Fever and Ague,

FROM which mankind suffer so much in a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a diseased action in the system, induced by the poisonous miasma of vegetable decay. This exhalation is evolved by the action of solar heat on wet soil, and rises with the watery vapor from it. While the sun is below the horizon this vapor lingers near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken with it through the lungs into the blood. There it acts as an irritating poison on the internal viscera and excreting organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and fails to secrete not only this virus, but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the circulation, and produce violent constitutional disorder. The spleen, the kidneys and the stomach sympathize with the liver, and become disordered also. Finally, the internal organs, as if in an attempt to expel the noxious infection, concentrate the whole blood of the body in the internal excretories to force them to cast it out. The blood leaves the extreme parts and rushes to the surface, as if in another effort to expel the irritating poison through that other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and lies in the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day. There are the fits or paroxysms of Fever and Ague. Such constitutional disorder will of course undermine the health, if it is not removed.
We have labored to find, and have found a antidote

which neutralizes this malarious poison in the blood, and eliminates it from the system. It is special it from the body. As it should, so it does cure this afflicting disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of more service to those subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels it from the system, so it is absorbed, and thus keeps those who use it free from its attacks; keeps the system in health, although exposed to the disease. Consequently it not only cures the fever and ague, but prevents the fever and ague. Hence it is the great remedy for the prevention of this disease. Not only does it cure and prevent the fever and ague, but protects from the great variety of affections which are induced by this malignant influence, such as Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb or Masked Ague, Periodical Headache or Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation of the Heart, Affections of the Spleen, Hysterics, Cholic, Paralysis and Palsied Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cause, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This antidote is a vegetable, and is perfectly harmless, and cures the disease.
The it accomplishes by stimulating the torpid liver to expel its virus from the system; and those organs by degrees become habituated to do this their office of their own accord. Hence arises that so term acclimatation. Time may accomplish the same end, but often life is not long enough, or is sacrificed in the attempt, while the "Ague Cure" does it at once, and with safety. We have great reason to believe this is a surer as well as safer remedy for the whole class of diseases which are caused by the miasmatic infection, than any other which has been offered, and it has still another important advantage to the public, which is that it is cheap as well as good.
