PAINTERS AND PAINTINGS.

L AAR, JAN HENDRIK VAN DE, born at Rotterdam, Jan. 1, 1807, died there, May 15, 1874. History and genre painter, pupil of Cornelis Bakker (born in 1771), and in Antwerp of Wappers; returned in 1830 and lived first at The Hague, afterwards at Rotterdam, whence he again visited Antwerp, spending there two years. Member of Amsterdam Academy in 1852, and professor. Works: Heroic Death of Herman de Ruyter (1840); Daughter craving her Father's Pardon (1842), New Pinakothek, Munich; Pilgrim returning from Holy Land; Fugitives Hiding; Alice (after Walter Scott); A Baptism in 1600; Salvator Rosa drawing Girl's Portrait; Wedding in 17th Century; Benvenuto Cellini in his Workshop; Jacob van Campen and the Fortune-Teller; Rembrandt's Journey; Adriaan van Ostade drawing from Nature; Erasmus in his Study; Retreat of the Waldenses; Protestant Service in 17th Century; Emigrants Ready to Start; Patriotic Women at Delft in 1573; Allegory on Engraving (1852); Resurrection;

LAAR (Laer), PIETER VAN, called Bamboccio (cripple), born at Haarlem about 1600, died there after 1658. Dutch school; genre painter, pupil of Jan van Campen (1590?–1650); went with his brother Roeland about 1623 through France to Italy, and remained for sixteen years in Rome, living in friendly intercourse with Poussin, Claude Lorrain, and Sandrart, but going his own way in art, which differed widely from that of those masters. He avoided the ideal, and treated, with much humour and truthfulness, realistic subjects, such as scenes from Italian popular life, markets, jugglers, gypsies, etc.; also landscapes, finding many imitators, notably Cerquozzi and Jan Miel, so that the "bambocciate" formed a special branch in art. His nickname was given him partly on account of his deformity, partly for his artistic whims. He returned to Holland in 1639, first to Amsterdam, but settled afterwards in Haarlem, where he is said to have committed suicide in a fit of melancholy. Works: Travellers leaving Inn, Shepherds with Cow and Goats, Louvre, Paris; Halt before Inn, Brunswick Museum; Mountebank showing his Patent, Brawl among Italian Peasants, Rural Frolic, Roman City-Gate, Cassel Gallery; Landscape with Shepherds and Travellers crossing a Bridge (1657), Darmstadt Museum; Scenes from Italian Life (2), Monk distributing Food, Man busy with White Horse, Paying the Vintagers, Dresden Museum; Horseman conversing with Peasant, Musée Rath, Geneva; Horseman and Bathers by a Ruin, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Two Horses in a Stall, a Third being Saddled, Italian Porters playing under the Wall of a Fortress, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Guard-Room (1646), Oldenburg Gallery; Bandits playing Morra, National Gallery, Pesth; Travellers' Halt, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Smithy in Roman Ruin (1635), Italian Peasants' Frolic in a Grotto, Schwerin Gallery; Various Animals with Shepherds, Stuttgart Museum; Landscape with Ruins, Stockholm Museum; Peasants' Frolic, Boy waiting on Dismounted Peasant, Museum, Vienna; A Singer, Halt of Shepherds before Inn, Shepherds with Cows, Robber Scene at Night, Camp at Night, Liechtenstein Gallery, ib.; Man giving three Dogs to Drink, Landscapes with Figures (2), Cottage with Peasants and Horses, Beg-

LAST CARTRIDGES

vi. 189 ; Merlo, 252 ; Wolfg. Müller, Düsseldorf, K., 352.

LAST CARTRIDGES (Les dernières cartouches), Alphonse de Neuville, private gallery. Episode of the battle of Sedan. The marines composing part of the Twelfth Corps, which held the village of Bazeilles, two miles from Sedan, Sept. 1, 1870, fought gallantly until every cartridge was spent. The scene represents the interior of a house in the thick of the battle, its ceiling rent by rounded by seraphim and cherubim, presides over the judgment, to which souls are called by the trump of angels beneath him ; below his right is the paradise, to which angels dancing in a flowery meadow lead the blessed through a gate ; on his left, the condemned and demons. Painted for Convent of the Angeli, Florence. Repetition, with changes, in Dudley House, London ; a third, nearly the same, in Pal. Corsini, Rome.—Vasari, ed. Mil., ii. 515 ; C. & C., Italy, i. 586 ; Larousse, ix. 1080.

By Fra Bartolommeo, S. M. Nuova, Florence ; fresco, 12 ft. sq., arched at top. Above, Christ sitting in judgment, in a glory of cherubs' heads, with Apostles on clouds on each side ; in middle, a seraph with symbols of the Passion and Redemption, and on each side an angel with a trumpet ; below, Michael dividing the wicked from the blessed. Painted in 1498–99 on wall of the cloister cemetery of S. M. Nuova ; lower part, left incomplete when he became a monk, finished by Mariotto Albertinelli. The figure to the right of Christ, looking downward, is a portrait of Fra Angelico. The picture a shell, its doors unhinged, and furniture shattered ; at left, several marines are firing their last cartridges through a broken window, under the direction of a wounded officer, who leans for support against a bookcase ; at right, a soldier whose ammunition is expended stands nonchalantly with his hands in his pockets ; in background, through the open door, is seen the glare and smoke of battle, with many figures.—Salon, 1873.

rounded by seraphim and cherubim, presides over the judgment, to which souls are called by the trump of angels beneath him ; below his right is the paradise, to which angels dancing in a flowery meadow lead the blessed through a gate ; on his left, the condemned and demons. Painted for Convent of the Angeli, Florence. Repetition, with changes, in Dudley House, London ; a third, nearly the same, in Pal. Corsini, Rome.—Vasari, ed. Mil., ii. 515 ; C. & C., Italy, i. 586 ; Larousse, ix. 1080.

has been sawed from the wall and placed in the court, where it is fast decaying.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 177 ; C. & C., Italy, iii. 436.

By Peter von Cornelius, Ludwigs Kirche, Munich ; fresco, on wall back of high altar, H. 60 ft. × 40 ft. Above, Christ sitting as judge, amongst saints and angels, with the Virgin and John Baptist kneeling at sides ; on his left are Abraham, Noah, Moses, and David ; on his right, Peter, James, John, and Paul ; beneath him, angels sounding trumpets, and the book of life and death. Below, left, the damned, with hell and fiends, and Satan sitting on a throne at the entrance ; right, the blessed ; between them, the Archangel Michael ; and at the bottom, they who are rising from the dead. Among those whom the angels are bearing to heaven are Dante and Fra Angelico, the poet and painter who have most successfully depicted the nether world. Cornelius' most remarkable work. Designed in Rome, finished in 1840.—Larousse, ix. 1082.

By Jean Cousin, Louvre ; canvas, H. 4 ft. 9 in. × 4 ft. 7 in. First plane, left, the dead coming out of their graves and angels holding sickles ; middle, the resurrected precipitating themselves into a cavern ; right, demons dragging sinners. Second plane, a circular temple at which the elect are received by angels ; middle, the resurrected running in opposite directions ; right, a tower beside a moat and a bridge leading to a ruined edifice with a gibbet. In background, a destroyed city. Above, Christ in glory, surrounded by angels, the elect, etc. Engraved by Pierre de Jode.—Cat. Louvre ; Larousse, ix. 1082.

By Giotto, S. M. dell' Arena, Padua ; fresco, on wall above the door. On each side of three small windows, two warrior angels seem to hold back a curtain, disclosing the celestial hall of justice ; beneath them, legions of warriors with swords and shields, and angels with flags and tapers, hold guard in three divisions over the majesty of the Saviour, who sits below in a glory ; at the four cardinal points, archangels sound trumpets, while the Redeemer blesses the chosen with his right hand and curses the evil-doers with his left ; on each side, on thrones, sit the Apostles ; to left of the Saviour's feet, the Virgin, crowned and leading St. Anna, heads the procession of the happy ; amongst them, in a corner, to left, stand three figures in profile, the central one of which is said to be Giotto himself ; the cross, in the centre, separates the elect from the damned ; between it and the procession to Paradise, the donor, Enrico Scrovegno, kneels before a group of three female figures, presenting to their notice a model of the chapel, held by a priest in white ; below, left, the resurrection ; and right, the bottomless abyss, with Lucifer sitting amidst fire and struggling souls. Painted in 1305-6 ; one of a series of frescoes, illustrating the lives of the Virgin and the Saviour, in the chapel erected in 1303 by Enrico Scrovegno, a rich citizen of Padua who had been ennobled by the republic of Venice.—Vasari, ed. Mil., i. 400 ; C. & C., Italy, i. 271, 289 ; Selvatico, Sulla Cappellina degli Scrovegni, etc. (Padua, 1836) ; Baldinucci ; Cicognara.

By Michelangelo, Sistine Chapel, Vatican, Rome ; fresco, on end wall opposite entrance, H. 54 ft. 6 in. × 43 ft. 8 in. In centre, Christ, sitting on the great white throne, with the Virgin at his right, surrounded by angels and apostles ; above, the Holy Ghost and God the Father, with angels and seraphs on each side bearing the instruments of the Passion ; below the feet of Christ are St. Bartholomew, holding in his right hand the knife with which he was flayed, and in his left his skin ; St. Lawrence, with the gridiron on which he was martyred, and other martyrs, and below them the seven angels, with their trumpets, and the recording angels ; on each side, the companies of the blessed are received into glory, while below them the damned are meeting their punishment ; in left corner, rent rocks and opening graves, with angels aiding the elect and demons dragging down the lost ; at the right, Charon is crossing the Styx in his boat, crowded with the condemned, who pass into the presence of Minos. Contains 314 figures, counting heads, and many of them are heads and shoulders only. Painted in 1534-41. Regarded by the critics of the day as the painter's masterpiece, but ranks in our time after the frescos of the ceiling. Greatly deteriorated through time, smoke, and attempted repairs. Restored first in 1555-59 by Daniele da Volterra, who draped certain nude figures ; retouched in 1566 by Giuliano del Fano, and again in

By Philippe de Champaigne, Louvre; canvas, H. 5 ft. 2 in. × 7 ft. 8 in. In centre, Christ, seated before a table, surrounded by the disciples, raises his eyes to heaven and blesses the bread. Painted in 1648 for Abbey of Port Royal. Repetitions, with changes, Lyons Museum, and in chapel of Chamber of Peers in the Luxembourg. Engraved by A. Girardet in Musée français; Chataigner.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Filhol, v. Pl. 295; Réveil, vi. 376.

By Michael Coxcie, Brussels Museum; triptych. Central panel, Last Supper; right, his hand on the shoulder of St. John, who leans his head upon the table, as in the fresco of Andrea del Sarto, in S. Salvi, Florence.—Larousse, iii. 703.

By Dierick Bouts, St. Peter, Louvain. This picture, an altarpiece, with wings, bears the signature of Memling, but the best critics regard it as the work of Bouts. The figures are distributed with great artistic judgment around a quadrangular table, and exhibit an admirable variety in action, character, and expression. Completed in 1467.—Kugler (Crowe), i. 108; Larousse, iii. 704; Van Even, Nederlandsche Konstenaers (Amsterdam, 1858).

Washing of Feet; left, Christ in Garden. Formerly in Church of St. Gudule; placed in Museum in 1794.

By Lucas Cranach, the elder (?), Church of Wittenberg; triptych. Centre, Last Supper, with disciples seated around a circular table; right wing, Sacrament of Baptism, administered by Melanchthon in presence of an assistant and three sponsors; left wing, Confession, the confessor a portrait of Bugenhagen. Predella, with Christ Crucified in centre, and on one side a pulpit with Luther preaching.—Larousse, iii. 704; Kugler (Crowe), i. 193; Schadow, Wittenberg's Denkmaler, etc. (1825).

LAST SUPPER

By Daniele Crespi, Brera, Milan; canvas, H. 10 ft. 6 in. × 6 ft. 10 in. Christ has his hand on the shoulder of St. John; two apostles in foreground; above, two angels with a banner.

By Gaudenzio Ferrari, S. M. della Passione, Milan; in chapel of left transept. St. John leans upon Christ's shoulder; in background, an open window with two boys looking in.

By Eduard von Gebhardt, National Gallery, Berlin; canvas, H. 6 ft. 5 in. × 9 ft. 11 in.; signed, dated 1870. Christ seated in the centre of the table, with his left hand raised; at his right, John inquiringly places his hands on the Saviour's arm; on the other side, James, son of Alphæus, with his hand upon his mouth, looks searchingly at the Master; Nathanael, risen from his seat, is standing behind him; at the left, next to John, are sitting Simon Zelotes, Andrew, and James the son of Zebedee; in the foreground right, Matthew trying to console the youthful Thomas, who hides his face in his hands, weeping; at the left Judas, looking down sadly; next him the empty chair of Judas Iscariot, who has risen and, noticed only by Bartholomew, is leaving the room.—Jordan (1885), i. 35.

By Domenico Ghirlandajo, Convent of S. Marco, Florence; fresco on wall. But little varied from an earlier fresco by him in the refectory of the Ogni Santi, Florence.

By Giotto, S. M. dell' Arena, Padua; fresco on wall. One of same series as Last Judgment by Giotto. Another Last Supper (fresco) by Giotto in Convent of S. Croce, Florence.—C. & C., Italy, i. 271; Larousse, iii. 702.

By Hans Holbein, the younger, Basle Museum. Shows influence of Da Vinci, but the head of Judas, which is decidedly vulgar, shows the painter's realistic tendency. A Last Supper by Holbein, the elder, part of an altarpiece completed in 1501 for the Dominicans of Frankfort, is in the Städel Gallery, Frankfort.—Kugler (Crowe), i. 141, 203.

By Vicente Joanes, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 4 ft. 2 in. × 6 ft. 3 in. Christ seated in middle before a long table, with St. Peter at his right and St. John at his left; Judas leans on table, holding a purse in his hand. The masterpiece of the painter. Lithographed in Madrazo. Another Last Supper by Joanes in Cathedral of Valencia.—Madrazo; Larousse, iii. 704.

By Justus of Ghent, Town Gallery, Urbino. In the middle of a church-like hall, with open doors, in front of a table, Christ stands with a plate in his left hand, bending to give the host to an apostle kneeling next to him; behind the Saviour, three apostles kneeling; behind the first apostle, at the left, the others partly kneeling, partly about to kneel, one disciple standing with a candle in his hand, and St. John with a wine-flask, ready to fill the chalice. On the opposite side of the table, Duke Frederic of Urbino, turning to the Venetian ambassador, Caterino Zeno; behind the Duke, two younger men, one of whom is said to be Justus of Ghent. Painted for S. Agata, Urbino, in 1470-74.—Förster, Denkmale, xi. iii. 9.

By Lambert Lombard, Brussels Museum; dated 1531. Christ seated midway at back of the table, Judas with the purse in front; two dogs quarrel under the table; a basket with bread and fruit on the floor; in background, a servant bearing two vases; through a window, in a landscape, the city of Jerusalem.—Fétis, Cat. du Mus. royal, 130; E. Leroy sale (1857), 2,300 fr.

By Murillo, S. M. la Blanca, Seville; canvas, arched, H. 8 ft. 8 in. × 8 ft. 8 in. Christ and the disciples seated at a square table, covered with a white cloth, on which is a candle, but neither dishes nor food; a candelabrum on the wall in upper left-hand corner dimly lights the scene. If by Murillo, a very early work.—Ponz, Viage, ix. 85; G. de Leon, i. 104; Curtis, 196

By school of Perugino (?). S. Onofrio, Florence; fresco, figures life-size. Table set in front of a colonnade; Christ seated in middle, with SS. James the less, Philip,

LAST SUPPER

James the elder, Andrew, and Peter on his right, and John Evangelist, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, Simon, and Thaddeus on his left; in front, alone, Judas. Composition resembles that of Dom. Ghirlandajo, in S. Marco, Florence, but execution Peruginesque. Possibly painted by Perugino's pupils, Gerino da Pistoia, Eusebio, or Giannicola Manni. Was at one time attributed to Raphael. Another Last Supper, in fresco, belonging also to this school, but attributed to Raphael, was recovered in 1845 from under a coat of whitewash in the refectory of the Convent of S. Onofrio, Florence. It has been engraved by Jesi.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 247; Jahrbuch, v. 207.

By Frans Pourbus, the younger, Louvre; canvas, H. 9 ft. 5 in. × 12 ft. 2 in.; signed, dated 1618. The apostles seated two by two on benches on each side of the table, leaving in front an opening through which is seen Christ, with a plate, a glass, and the bread before him; at left, Judas, standing, holds the purse behind him and protests his innocence. Formerly on high altar of S. Leu and S. Gilles, Paris.—Villot, Cat. Louvre.

By Nicolas Poussin, Louvre; canvas, H. 10 ft. 8 in. × 8 ft. 3 in. In a hall adorned with Ionic columns, Christ, standing in front of the table, distributes the bread to the disciples, who stand or kneel around him. Ordered in 1641 by Louis XIII. for Chapel of St. Germain-en-Laye. Engraved by P. Lombart; Normand.—Cat. Louvre; Landon, Œuvres; Smith, viii. 52.

By Giulio Procaccini, L'Annunziata, Genoa. Considered the painter's masterpiece.

By Raphael, Vatican, fresco on wall of Loggia. The disciples are seated on all sides of a square table, those seen from behind turning their heads so as to show their faces. Engraved by Sisto Badalocchio, and others.—Gruyer, Fresques de Raphael (Loges), 188; Larousse, iii. 704.

By Rubens, Brera, Milan; canvas, H. 10 ft. × 6 ft. 9 in. Christ, seated with his disciples around a table, holds the bread in his hands and lifts his eyes to heaven.

By Andrea del Sarto, Convent of S. Salvi, near Florence; fresco on wall of refectory. Composition similar to that of Leonardo da Vinci, Christ and the disciples being seated on the same side of the table; Judas, at the right of Jesus, protests his innocence, while the rest show astonishment or indignation.—Larousse, iii. 704; Lavice.

By Bartolommeo Schidone, Parma Museum. Christ has his right hand raised above a large platter containing a lamb, his left upon St. John's shoulder; two disciples are standing, the rest are seated.

By Tintoretto, S. Giorgio Maggiore, Venice; canvas. Represented like any large supper in an Italian inn, the figures all uninteresting; but the smoke of the lamp turns as it rises into a multitude of angels, so writhed and twisted together as to be at first scarcely distinguishable.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 302; Zanotto, 631.

By Tintoretto, S. Trovaso (SS. Gervasio e Protasio), Venice; canvas. While the rest of the apostles are intently listening to Christ's words, one of them (Judas?) is stooping to help himself to wine from a flask on the floor. So much repainted as to be hardly worth notice. A similar picture, attributed to Tintoretto, in the Louvre. Engraved by Sadeler; Lovisa.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 361.

By Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; canvas. Christ at the end of the table, which is spread in a sort of large kitchen, the host being employed at a dresser in the background; only eleven disciples, Judas having gone out; in front, sitting on steps, two mendicants wait for the fragments, and a dog watches earnestly the movements of the company. A most unsatisfactory picture.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 338.

By Titian, Escorial, Spain; canvas; thirteen full-length figures of life-size; signed. Table in a vast hall, with an arched opening at each side; Christ seated in middle, with the disciples grouped behind and around ends of the table, under which a dog is gnawing a bone; on the floor, a vase near a shallow bowl, out of which a partridge is drinking. Finished in 1564, and sent to Philip II.; hung in the great refectory, after the top of the canvas had been cut off to make it fit the wall. Greatly damaged by repainting. Probably a replica of the picture in the refectory of SS. Giovanni e Paolo, which was burned in 1571. Copy in Bridgewater House, probably by Andrea Schiavone; small copy in Lord Overstone's Collection, London. Engraved by Cort. — Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 457; Ridolfi, Maraviglie, i. 268; C. & C., Titian, ii. 337; Northcote, Titian, i. 349.

By Otto Vaenius, Cathedral, Antwerp, in the south transept. Christ seated in the centre of the table, around which the disciples are grouped, with his right hand raised in the act of blessing the bread and wine before him. Above are suspended two chandeliers; in foreground, a basket of dishes, and a servant pouring out wine. — Réveil, xii. 819.

By Giorgio Vasari, formerly in Louvre; wood, H. 3 ft. × 5 ft. Christ and the apostles seated around a table; in front, Judas, holding a purse; vases of gold, silver, and marble are on the floor. Formerly in S. Luigi dei Francesi, Rome. Another Last Supper (1546) by Vasari is in S. Croce, Florence. — Villot, Cat. Louvre; Larousse, iii. 703.

By Paolo Veronese, Convent of SS. Giovanni e Pietro, Venice; fresco on wall of refectory. Engraved by J. Saenredam.

By Leonardo da Vinci, refectory of Convent of S. M. delle Grazie, Milan; wall-painting in oil, H. 14 ft. 10 in. × 28 ft. 3 in. Christ and the disciples seated behind a long table in a room, through the open door and windows at the back of which is seen a mountainous landscape. Disciples arranged in groups of three on each side of Christ, who occupies the middle place; on his right, first group, John, Judas, and Peter; second, Andrew, James the younger, and Bartholomew, who stands at the end; on Christ's left, first group, James the elder, Thomas, with upraised finger, and Philip; second, Matthew, Thaddeus, and Simon, who is seated at the end. Finished in 1498; colours mixed with a defective oil medium and faded rapidly; repainted by Bellotti in 1726, by Mazza in 1770, and by Barozzi in 1853. Lower part of central group destroyed in 1652, when a door was cut through wall. In 1796 the refectory was made into a stable, against Napoleon's orders, and the picture much damaged by dragoons. In 1800 refectory was flooded for fifteen days. Best copy by Marco d'Oggionno, in Royal Academy, London; others in the Louvre, in the Brera at Milan (formerly in Convent at Castellazzo di Vigentino), and at Ponte Capriasco, Switzerland. Picture best known by Raphael Morghen's engraving (1800), but it was not made from the original, as generally supposed. Morghen engraved it in Florence from a drawing made by Teodoro Matteini, who was sent to Milan for the purpose, but who undoubtedly took many details from Marco d'Oggionno's copy, in which the heads are not closely copied from the original. Luini is said to have made a copy for Louis XII. of France, but nothing is known of it. A copy by Rubens, in his peculiar style, has been engraved by Soutman. Another engraved by Thouvenet. In 1884 the French Ministry of Fine Arts commissioned Gaillard to engrave it for 70,000 francs. Reputed studies by Leonardo are in the collection of the Grand Duchess of Weimar, in the Windsor Collection, in the Brera at Milan, in the Louvre, and in the Venice Academy; Leonardo's memoranda concerning the arrangement of the figures, in one of his note-books in South Kensington Museum.—Vasari, ed. A fair young girl, exposed in the arena to two lions and a tiger, which have evidently just come out of their den beside her, is timidly resting one hand upon the wall and gazing upward to see what sympathetic spectator has cast down a rose lying at her feet.—Art Journal (1881), 174; Art Treas. of Amer., i. 124.

LASTMAN, PIETER, born in Amsterdam (?) between 1580 and 1584, died at Haarlem in 1649 (?). Dutch school; history painter, pupil of Gerrit Pieterz, on leaving whose studio, between 1600 and 1602, he went to Rome, where for many years he was one of the Dutch and Flemish artists who grouped themselves about Elsheimer and regarded him as their master. Before 1622 Lastman must have returned to Amsterdam, as in that year or the next Rembrandt became his pupil there. Three pictures painted in Italy may be taken as examples of Lastman's first manner, namely: Repose in Egypt (1608), Rotterdam Museum; do. (1608), and Philip baptizing the Eunuch (1608), Berlin Museum. In his second transitional manner, under Italian influence, are Ulysses and Nausicaä (1609), Brunswick Museum; replica (1619), Augsburg Gallery; Massacre of the Innocents, and David playing the Harp (1618), Brunswick Museum. In his third (style of Caravaggio), Manoah and his Wife, formerly in Rotterdam Museum; Adoration of the Shepherds (1629), Haarlem Museum; Raising of Lazarus (1632), Hague Museum. Other works in public galleries: Herodias receiving the Head of St. John, Aschaffenburg Gallery; Ulysses and Nausicaä (1619), Augsburg Gallery; and Apollo and the Muses, Cassel Gallery; Tobias (1618), Moltke Collection, Copenhagen.—*Allgem. d. LATHROP, FRANCIS, born on the Pacific Ocean, near the Sandwich Islands, June 22, 1849. Portrait and decorative painter, pupil of T. C. Farrer in New York in 1863, and of the Royal Academy, Dresden, in 1868. In 1870-73 he studied under Madox Brown in London, and assisted William Morris, Spencer Stanhope, and Edward Burne-Jones in execution of various works. Has painted in the United States since 1873. Member of Society of American Artists. His chief decorative works are in the Metropolitan Opera House and the Hoffman House, New York, and in private residences in New York, Albany, and Baltimore; in Trinity Church and the Bijou Theatre, Boston; and the Chapel at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me. He has designed illustrations for several books.

LATIL, FRANÇOIS VINCENT MATHIEU, born at Aix, Feb. 2, 1796. History painter, pupil of Gros and of the École des Beaux Arts. A careful and diligent artist, of no marked originality. Medals: 2d class, 1827; 1st class, 1841. Works: Byranus leaving Olympia (1824); Washing the Feet (1827); Morality of the People during the Suspension of the Laws in July, 1830, Joseph's Coat (1830); The Veteran's Daughter (1838); Incident of the History of Shipwrecks (1841); Christ healing a Possessed Man, St. Paul in Macedonia (1845); Mission of the Apostles (1847); Portraits of Marshals Puysegur (1835) and Berchény, and of Vice-Admiral Suffren, Versailles Museum.—Bellier, i. 917; Larousse.

LA TOUR, MAURICE QUENTIN DE, born at Saint-Quentin (Aisne), Sept. 5, 1704, died there, Feb. 17, 1788. French school; portrait painter in pastel, pupil in Paris of Spoëde, an obscure artist; probably in 1722 he went to Rheims, and thence to Cambrai, where, during the Congress of 1724, he rapidly won a reputation and the favour of the English ambassador, who took him to London; equally successful there, he soon returned to Paris, introducing himself as an English painter, and became so prominent in his branch that the Academy, fearing detriment to all other branches, closed its doors to pastel-painting in 1749. Member of the Academy, 1746; court-painter, 1750. Works: Jean Restout (1738), Dumont le Romain (1742), Louis de France, son of Louis XV. (2, 1745, 1748), Louis XV., Marie Leczinska, Marshal de Saxe (1748), Marquise de Pompadour (1755), Dauphine Marie de Saxe (1763), Siméon Chardin, Sculptor René Firmin, Marquis d'Argenson (?), and himself, Louvre, Paris; Portrait of himself, Aix Museum; do., and a Canon of Rheims Cathedral, Marshal de Saxe, Male Head with Night-cap, Dijon Museum; The Poet Crébillon, Jean Jacques Rousseau, Marie Leczinska, Marshal de Saxe, and thirty-six others, Saint-Quentin Museum; Male and Female Portrait, Valenciennes Museum.—Bellier, i. 918; Desmaze, M. LAURI, FILIPPO, born in Rome in 1623, died there in 1694. Roman school; son and pupil of Baldassare Lauri (1570–1642), a landscape painter of Antwerp, and brother of Francesco Lauri (1610–35), a famous pupil of Andrea Sacchi, but who died young, after exciting the greatest hopes. Filippo, who was deformed, had instruction from Francesco, and afterwards from Caroselli, who married his sister; but he abandoned the style of the latter, and devoted himself to painting lively and humorous cabinet pictures. He executed these with so much spirit that his works were in great demand in Rome. He worked sometimes conjointly with Claude Lorraine, painting the figures in the latter's landscapes. His largest picture is Adam and Eve, in S. M. della Pace, Rome. Other works: Venus and the Seasons, Palazzo Doria, Rome; St. Francis of Assisi in Ecstasy, Offering to Pan, Apollo and Marsyas, Louvre, Paris; Landscape, Hague Museum; Flight into Egypt, Vienna Museum; St. Ann teaching the Virgin to read, Christ appearing to Magdalen, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Hagar in the Desert, Historical Society, New York.—Lanzi, i. 501; Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne.

LAUS VENERIS, Burne-Jones, private gallery; canvas, H. 3 ft. 11 in. × 5 ft. 11 in. A young queen, in a vermilion robe, with a golden coronet resting on her knees, is reclining in a half-lighted room, hung with tapestry representing the triumph of Venus, attended by several lady companions, grouped a little apart from their mistress, one of whom is reading a hymn to the glory of Venus; through the window are seen six young knights in armor riding by, all looking eagerly in. Grosvenor Gallery, 1878; bought by John Graham; at his sale (1886), £2,460.—Athen. (1876), i. 867.

LAVIELLE, EUGÈNE ANTOINE SAMUEL, born in LAW, GLORIFICATION OF, Paul Baudry, grand hall of audience of the Cour de Cassation, Paris. In the centre, Law, personified by a female figure, sits enthroned on a pedestal, while Jurisprudence stands on the steps of the sanctuary, at left, contemplating her. Above Law are two aerial figures, symbolical of Justice (with the sword and balances) and Equity (with the metric rule). At the foot of the pedestal, at left, Authority leans upon the fasces and holds aloft the tri-colour ; at right, Force reposes upon a lion, with Innocence (a nude child) beside her. Beside the pedestal, a figure in the robe of the President of the Court of Cassation uncovers his head and salutes the Law. Salon, 1881 ; awarded the grand medal of honour.—L'Artiste (1882), i. 356.

LAWRENCE, ST., MARTYRDOM OF, Rubens, Munich Gallery ; wood, H. 8 ft. 3 in. × 5 ft. 10 in. Lawrence, a native of Spain, was archdeacon in Rome under Pope Sixtus II., in the reign of Valerian, third century. After the death of Sixtus, Lawrence, commanded to give up the treasures of the Church, distributed them among the poor, and presenting himself before the prefect, accompanied by his beneficiaries, declared that these were the riches of the Church. The prefect, Cornelius Secularis, angered at this reply, ordered him to be roasted on a gridiron until he should comply with his orders. In the picture by Rubens, two executioners throw down the Saint with violence, while a third supplies fuel to the fire ; in background, at right, statue of Jupiter, seated ; at left, soldiers and a horse's head ; above, an angel with the palm and crown of martyrdom. Formerly in the Elector-Palatine's Gallery at Düsseldorf. Engraved by Lucas Vorsterman ; Corn. Galle.—Réveil, vii. 495.

By Titian, Escorial, Spain ; canvas, arched, figures life-size ; signed. Similar to St. Lawrence of the Gesuiti, Venice ; but a triumphal arch takes the place of the temple, and there are some other variations. Painted in 1567 for Philip II. of Spain. Engraved by C. Cort in 1571.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 383.

LAWRENCE

By Titian, S. M. Assunta dei Gesuiti, Venice; canvas, arched, H. 17 ft. 8 in. × 9 ft., figures larger than life; signed. Night scene; St. Lawrence stretched on an iron framework, under which is a fire fed by at-graved by Oortman. Carried to Paris in 1799; returned in 1815.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 259; Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 453; Filhol, x. 691; Landon, Musée, iv. Pl. 65.

LAWRENCE, Sir THOMAS, born at Bristol, May 4, 1769, died in London, January 7, 1830. Portrait painter, son of a Bristol inn-keeper who had known better days.

At the age of ten he took crayon portraits at Oxford and copied historical pictures, and before he was twelve he had drawn Mrs. Siddons in crayons and made his studio at Bath a fashionable resort. He began to paint in oils in his seventeenth year, and succeeded so well, in his own opinion, that he declared himself ready to stake his reputation against that of any painter in England. When, however, he first exhibited in London (1787), his vanity received a salutary check, and feeling the necessity of study he entered the Royal Academy. The very next year he achieved a success with his portrait of Miss Farren, the actress, afterwards Countess of Derby, and followed it up with portraits of the Queen and the Princess Amelia. In 1791, through the influence of George III., with whom he was a great favourite, Lawrence was admitted to the Royal Academy as supplementary A.R.A., although under the required age, and the next year he became painter in ordinary to his majesty. In 1794 he was elected R.A. To these years belong his portraits of J. J. Angerstein and Benjamin West, the full length of Mrs. Siddons, and the portraits of John Kemble as Rolla, Cato, Hamlet, and Coriolanus. At the height of his reputation he received one hundred guineas for a head, and four hundred for a full-length portrait. At this rate per portrait, and with £1,000 a year to draw upon for travelling expenses, Sir Thomas was sent to the Continent by George IV., soon after the fall of Napoleon, to paint the allied sovereigns, then assembled at Aix-la-Chapelle; to Rome to paint Pius VII. and Cardinal Gonsalvi (1819), two of his finest works, and to Vienna to paint Prince Schwartzberg and other Austrian generals. He had been knighted by the king in 1815, and five years later, after his return to England, he was elected president of the Royal Academy. He was a member of the Academy of St. Luke, Rome, and of many other foreign academies, and in 1825 was made a chevalier of the L. of Honour. He painted some large historical subjects, among which his Satan calling his Legions was placed by himself above all his other works. Sir Thomas was the ideal of a fashionable portrait painter, thanks to his facile use of colour, the superficial elegance of his style, and his skill in the art of flattering the many distinguished people whose portraits he painted. He contributed, from 1787 to 1830 inclusive, 311 pictures to the exhibitions of the Royal Academy. After his death, in the latter year, a selection of 91 of his works was exhibited at the British Institution. Among his best works are: Portraits of Julius Angerstein, A Lady, Benjamin West, Mrs. Siddons (2), Dowager Countess of Darnley, John Fawcett—Comedian, Child with a Kid, Hamlet with Yorick's Skull, National Gallery, London; Pius VII., Cardinal Gonsalvi, Emperor Francis II. of Austria, George IV., Count Nesselrode, Hetman Platoff, Duke of Wellington, Sir Walter Scott, and others, Windsor Castle; Master Lambton, Earl of Durham; Lady Peel, Sir Robert Peel, Bart.; Nature—Children of C. B. Calmady, Vincent P. Calmady, Esq.; Eliza Farren—Countess of Derby, Countess of Wilton, Wilton House; Lady Gower and Child, Stafford House; Lord Dover, Lady Dover and Son, Dover House; Lady Blessington, Sir Richard Wallace, Bart.; Artist's Portrait, Gypsy Girl, Satan calling his Legions, Royal Academy; Thomas Campbell, Sir J. Mackintosh, National Portrait Gallery, London; Kemble as Coriolanus, Earl of Yarborough.—Williams, Life (London, 1831); Cunningham; Redgrave; F. de Conches, 349; Ch. Blanc, École anglaise; Art Journal (1859), 325; Sandby, ii. 21.

LAWRIE, ALEXANDER, born in New York in 1828. Landscape and portrait painter, pupil of the National Academy, New York, and of the Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia; studied in Paris under Picot, in Düsseldorf under Lettze, and painted in Florence. Has worked in Philadelphia and New York; studio in the latter place. Elected an A.N.A. in 1866. Works: Autumn in the Hudson Highlands (1869); Valley in the Adirondacks (1870); Monk playing Violoncello (1876). Portraits: General Z. Tower, Military Academy, West Point; Judge Sutherland, New York Bar Association; Colonel J. Porter; General J. F. Reynolds.

LAWSON, CECIL GORDON, born at Wellington, Shropshire, Dec. 3, 1851, died in London, June 10, 1882. Landscape painter, son and pupil of William Lawson, portrait painter; also studied under his brother, Wilfrid Lawson, and was strongly influenced by works of Gainsborough. Exhibited his Cheyne Walk, Chelsea, at Royal Academy in 1870, but did not win much reputation until 1878, when his Minister's Garden, now in the Manchester Gallery, and other works were exhibited at Grosvenor Gallery. After this he had an assured place in English landscape art, but his career was cut short by death.

Works: River in Rain, Summer Evening at Cheyne Walk (1871); Lament (1872); Pastoral (1873); Hop Gardens of England (1876); View from Don Saltero's (1877); Wet Moon—Old Battersea, Autumn Sunrise, Strayed, In the Valley (1878); Sundown, Old Battersea—Moonlight, Wet Moon, Morning Mist, Twixt Sun and Moon, Kent, Silver Mist, Golden Mist, Haunted Mill, Morning After (1879); Moonlight Pastoral, August Moon, Voice of the Cuckoo (1880); The Pool, Bardon Moors, Valley of Desolation, Wharfedale (1881); Blackdown—Surrey, Peach Blossom, Doone Valley, Storm Cloud, September, On Road to Monaco (1882). Mrs. Cecil (Constance) Lawson contributed to the Grosvenor Gallery in 1882 Provence Roses; in 1883 White Chrysanthemums, Poppies; in 1884 Almond Blossoms; and to the Royal Academy in 1884 Peonies, Chrysanthemums, Almond Blossoms.—E. W. Gosse, Memoir (London, 1883); Acad., June, 1882, 439; Athen., June, 1882, 770; Portfolio (1883), 185; Comyns Carr, Modern Landscape.

LAWSON, F. WILFRID, born in Shropshire, England; contemporary. Elder brother of Cecil Lawson. Genre painter; began as a designer for periodicals, especially The Graphic. Exhibits at Royal Academy and Dudley Gallery. Has painted a series of pictures illustrative of the Children of the City. Works: Street Arabs (1876); Imprisoned Spring (1877); Dawn (1878); Jesus at the House of the Pharisee (1881); A Day in the Country (1882); A Midway Inn (1884).

LAZARUS, RAISING OF, Garofalo, Ferrara Gallery; wood, H. 8 ft. 6 in. × 5 ft. 7 in. An excellent composition, with figures in two groups, accessories of landscape, and a sepulchre cut in the rock. Painted in 1534 for S. Francesco, Ferrara.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 463; Ape italiana delle Belle Arti (Rome), i. 36.

LAZARUS

By Giotto, S. M. dell' Arena, Padua; fresco on wall. One of same series as Last Judgment by Giotto.—C. & C., i. 271.

By Guercino, Louvre; canvas, H. 6 ft. 6 in. × 7 ft. 8 in. Composition of eight figures. Christ, standing, extends his arm towards Lazarus, from whose body a young man removes the winding-sheet; Mary and Martha, sisters of Lazarus, are the one on her knees beside Christ, the other near the sepulchre with two disciples; at right, a man leaning over the grave holds his nose. Collection of Louis XVI.; acquired in 1785. Engraved by V. Denon; J. B. Pasqualini.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Filhol, ii. 61; Landon, Musée, vi. Pl. 35.

By Jean Jouvenet, Louvre, Paris; canvas, H. 12 ft. 9 in. × 21 ft. 9 in.; signed, dated 1706. Jesus, with Martha and Mary kneeling beside him and surrounded by many others, stands on the steps of the sepulchre with his left hand stretched out towards Lazarus, who, aided by several men, one bearing a torch, is rising from the tomb at right. Jouvenet himself, with his daughters, is among the spectators in the first plane. Painted for the Church of Saint-Martin-des-Champs; repetition, made by order of Louis XIV. to be reproduced in Gobelins tapestry, now in Lille Museum; tapestry given to Peter the Great, when he visited the Gobelins. Original engraved by Jean Audran; Duchange.—Landon, Musée, iv. 61; Monteil, Histoire des Français des divers États, vii.; Larousse, x. 279.

By Sebastian del Piombo, National Gallery, London; wood, transferred to canvas, H. 12 ft. 6 in. × 9 ft. 5 in. Mary at the feet of Christ, who stands with a gesture of command; Lazarus leaning against side of sepulchre, under a large tree, struggling, with help, out of his grave-clothes; in rear, Martha and others, offended in their nostrils, cover their faces, while the apostles look on; near Christ, some fall on their knees and believe; background, a river and a bridge, with buildings on a hill, the houses like those of the Trastevere suburb of Rome, and the ruin a reminiscence of the Basilica of Constantine. Painted in 1519, in rivalry with the Transfiguration of Raphael; executed, according to Vasari, under the superintendence, and after the designs, of Michelangelo. It is probable that the latter gave drawings for several of the figures, but of his superintendence we have no proof. Ordered by Cardinal Giulio de' Medici, who sent it to his bishopric in Narbonne, where it was hung in the Cathedral; later in Or-him £15,000 for it, but he insisted upon guineas, and the negotiation failed; sold, with 37 other pictures, forming Angerstein Collection, to National Gallery in 1824, for £57,000. One of the noblest pictures in existence.—Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 570; C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 329; Rosini, v. 8; Waagen, Treasures, i. 320; Angerstein Gal., Pl. 1; Richter, 89, 105; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 514.

By Rubens, Berlin Mus.; canvas, H. 8 ft. 6 in. × 6 ft. 5 in. Christ stands at right, with extended arms, addressing Lazarus, who is quitting the tomb, assisted by Peter standing behind him, and a woman kneeling in front; another disciple and another woman raise their hands in astonishment. A good work of Rubens' middle period. Formerly at Potsdam. Taken to Paris; returned in 1815. Sketch in Louvre. Engraved by Bolswert.—Smith, ii. 108; Meyer, Museen, 392; Landon, Musée, 2d Col., i. Pl. 34.

By Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; canvas. Christ, half reclining, half sitting, at the bottom of the picture, while Lazarus is disencumbered of his grave-clothes at the top, on the side of a rocky hill; the persons aiding exhibit neither astonishment nor awe.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 339; Burekhardt, 745.

By Otto Vaenius, Antwerp Cathedral, Eighth Chapel. Christ, standing in centre surrounded by many people, with women kneeling in front, raises his right hand; in the foreground, Lazarus, who has just been raised from the grave beside him, is assisted by two men. Taken to Paris by the French; returned in 1815.—Landon, Musée, xiii. Pl. 37.

Subject treated also by Leandro Bassano, Venice Academy; Aliense, Perugia; Girolamo Muziano, Louvre, and S. M. Maggiore, Rome; Mabuse, Brussels Museum; Lucas Cranach, the elder, Dresden Museum; Otto Vaenius, Ghent Cathedral; Abraham Bloemaert, Munich Museum; Johann Rotten-

LE BRUN, CHARLES, born in Paris, Feb. 24, 1619, died there, Feb. 12, 1690. French school; history and portrait painter, son of a sculptor; pupil of Perrier, Vouet, and Poussin. Protected by the Chancellor Seguier. At the age of fifteen he attracted attention by several pictures painted for Cardinal Richelieu, and in 1642 was taken to Rome by Nicholas Poussin, with whom he lived six years, and from whom he received invaluable advice. Recalled to Paris in 1648, he was received into the Academy, protected by Fouquet, presented to Louis XIV. by Cardinal Mazarin, and made court-painter. In 1662 the king ennobled him, gave him the general care of all works of art in royal buildings, and made him director of the Gobelins, and successively rector, chancellor, and director of the Academy of Painting. In 1666 Le Brun induced the king to found the French Academy at Rome, where, though absent, he was made prince of the Academy of St. Luke. After the death of Colbert the fortunes of Le Brun declined, through the enmity of Louvois, who brought so much trouble upon him that he sickened and died. He was an extremely able and prolific painter, who belonged to a theatrical and mannered school. Works: Adoration of Shepherds (2), Sleep of Infant Jesus (1655), Holy Family, Christ served in Desert by Angels, Christ's Entry into Jerusalem (1689), Christ bearing his Cross (1687), Christ on the Cross (1685), Crucifix with Angels (1686), Christ dead on Virgin's Knees, Descent of Holy Spirit, Martyrdom of St. Stephen (1651), Repentant Magdalen, Fall of Rebellious Angels, Mucius Scaevola before Porsena (1639), Death of Cato, Passage of the Granicus, Battle of Arbela, Tent of Darius, Alexander and Porus, Alexander entering Babylon, Meleager and Atalanta Hunting, Death of Meleager, Mars and Venus, Portrait of Charles Le Brun, do. of Charles Alphonse du Fresnoy, Louvre; Establishment of the Invalides, Founding of the Order of St. Louis, Baptism of the Dauphin, The King visiting the Gobelins, Founding of the Observatory, Louis XIV. apologizing in the Name of Spain, Giving the Keys of Marsal to Louis XIV., Renewal of the Swiss Alliance, Marriage of Louis XIV. to Maria of Austria, Versailles Museum; Descent from Cross, Rennes Museum; Nymph pursued by a River, Bordeaux Museum; Louis XIV. with Conquered Nations at his Feet, Lyons Museum; Baptism of Christ, Daniel in Lions' Den, Last Judgment, Caen Museum; Father Eternal in Glory, Nantes Museum; Hercules and Cacus, Lille Museum; St. John the Apostle in Ecstasy, Nîmes Museum; Christ in the Garden, Crucifixion, Her-

LE BRUN, Mme. MARIE LOUISE ELISABETH (née Vigée), born in Paris, April 16, 1755, died there, March 30, 1842. French school; portrait, history, and landscape painter. Taught drawing by her father, portrait painter, and by Briard, painting by Doyen and Joseph Vernet; perfected herself by study of the old masters at the Louvre, and at the age of sixteen had painted many portraits. In 1774 she was made a member of the Academy of St. Luke, and in 1783 of the French Academy. Long before this she had married a picture-dealer named Le Brun, who made a very free use of the money which she earned. At the outbreak of the Revolution Mme. Le Brun went to Italy, painted at Naples Lady Hamilton as a Bacchante, and was made associate member of the Academies of Bologna and Parma. Before returning to France in 1801 she visited Germany and Russia, and was made associate of the Academies of Berlin, St. Petersburg, Copenhagen, and Geneva. Later she visited England, Holland, and Switzerland, and in 1808 painted Mme. de Staël at Coppet. In 1809 she settled at Marly, and at the age of eighty painted an admirable portrait of her niece, Mme. von Rivière. In 1835 she published her reminiscences. During her life she painted 662 portraits, 200 landscapes, and 15 historical pictures. Works: Peace bringing Abundance (1780), Portrait of herself and Daughter (2), Portrait of Paisiello (1791), Portrait of Hubert Robert (1788), Portrait of Joseph Vernet (1778), Louvre; Hebe, Bordeaux Museum; Venus tying the Wings of Love; Modesty and a Vestal (Le Brun sale, 1842, 1,500 fr.); Marie Antoinette and her Three Children, Versailles Museum; Portrait of Maria Caroline—Wife of Ferdinand IV. ## LECTURE

LECTURE CHEZ DIDEROT (Reading at Diderot's House), Jean Louis Ernest Meissonier, Baron Edmond de Rothschild, Paris. The encyclopædists Helvetius, d'Holbach, D'Alembert, Grimm, and others are met in Diderot's study to listen to the reading of some work. The reader, at left, clad in gray, is seated at a table around which are placed three of his companions, one in pale yellow, another in blue, the third in rosy gray; a fifth is standing near the bookcase, a sixth leans upon the back of a chair, and Flowers, Little Red-Cap, Solomon de Caus in Bicêtre (1827 to 1852); Christian Soul (1864); Portrait of Duc de Retz, Versailles Museum.—Bellier, i. 961; Larousse; Müller, 325.

LEDA, Correggio, Berlin Museum; canvas. Leda and her companions surprised by swans while frolicking in the water in a wood. Painted in 1530–32, probably by order of the Duke of Mantua, together with the Danaë, for a present to the Emperor Charles V.; afterwards in possession of Antonio Perez, favourite of Philip II., and sold, after his fall, to Emperor Rodolf II.; in Prague catalogue of 1621, and probably carried to Stockholm when the Swedes took Prague in 1648; passed from collection of Queen Christina, through several hands, to Orleans Collection in 1722. Louis the Pious, son of the Regent Duc d'Orléans, instigated by his father confessor, Abbé de Saint Geneviève, cut out the head of the Leda and otherwise mutilated it. The fragments fell into the hands of Charles Coypel, the court-painter, and either he or a painter named Deslyen repaired it and repainted the head. At Coypel's sale it was bought by Pasquier for 16,050 livres, and at his sale (1755) it was bought for Frederick the Great for 21,060 livres. In 1806 the French took it from the Palace of Sansouci to Paris, where Prud'hon painted in a new head; it was returned in 1814, and has been in the Berlin Museum since 1830. Lately restored by Schlesinger, a seventh is seated apart at right. Exposition universelle, 1867; purchased by Paul Demidoff.

LECURIEUX, JACQUES JOSEPH, born at Dijon, Aug. 13, 1801. Genre painter, pupil in Dijon of Anatole Devosge, in Paris of Lethière, and of the École des Beaux Arts (1822–26). Medals: 3d class, 1844; 2d class, 1846. Works: Francis I. at the Tomb of Jean sans Peur, St. Louis at Damietta, Death of Louis XI., Brigands disguised as Monks, Girl giving her Hair to the Poor, Resurrection of Jairus' Daughter, Love of who put in a still better head. Replica in Palazzo Rospiglioso, Rome, and in Madrid Museum. Engraved by Duchange; Desrochers; Müller; Porporati.—Meyer, Correggio, 347, 490; Künst. Lex., i. 440; Landon, Œuvres, viii. Pl. 55; Klas. der Malerei (group), i. Pl. 52; Réveil, xii. 859.

By Michelangelo, National Gallery, London. Leda embracing the swan. A large picture painted in tempera, about 1529. Given to Antonio Mini, his pupil, who carried it to France and sold it to Francis I; was at Fontainebleau till reign of Louis XIV. Desnoyers ordered it to be burned, but Mariette is said to have seen it in the 18th century. A cartoon of it, formerly erroneously ascribed to Michelangelo and once in the Casa Vecchietti, Florence, is now in the Royal Academy, London.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 199; Clement, 345; Waagen, Treasures, i. 391; Revue univ. des Arts, xxii. 158; Rosini, v. 65; Gaz. des B. Arts (1876), xiii. 155.

By Tintoretto, Norton Collection, England; canvas. Leda, nude, reclining on drapery spread upon a couch overhung with curtains, caresses the swan; at her feet, a little dog barking at the swan; at side, a woman, draped, leaning over as if to take from a coop a duck with which a cat is playing; in background, a bird in a cage. Formerly in Orleans Gallery; sold to Mr. Willett for £200. Engraved by G. Mondet.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

By Paolo Veronese, Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 3 ft. 4 in. × 3 ft. Leda with the swan. Acquired in 1744 from Casa Grimani Calergi, Venice.

By Paolo Veronese, Monro-Johnstone Collection, London; canvas. Leda with the swan. Exquisitely modelled. Probably same picture as one in Orleans Gallery, which was sold to Earl Gower for £300.—Waagen, Treasures, ii. 132, 498.

LELY, Sir PETER, born at Soest in 1617, died in London, Nov. 30,

1680. Real name Peter van der Faes. Flemish school; portrait painter, pupil of Pieter de Greber in Haarlem, but on coming to England with William of Orange, in 1643, he so closely studied the manner of Van Dyck, who had just died, that his earlier portraits often approach the great master's style. For thirty years he was the most popular portrait painter in England, and amassed a large fortune; nominated court-painter and knighted by Charles II. His portraits are of elegant conception, clear and warm colouring; hands especially finely drawn. In his later period he degenerated; his treatment grew superficial, his colouring cold and heavy, the female portraits mannered, with the languishing expression of the eyes affected by the ladies of the time. Works: Dukes of Albemarle and Buckingham; Duchess of Cleveland, May Davis, Sir H. Grimston, Nell Gwynn, Lord Jermyn, Duke of Ormonde, Lord Ossory, Prince Rupert, Countess of Shrewsbury, T. Stanley, Sir W. LEO III., OATH OF, Raphael, Stanza dell' Incendio del Borgo, Vatican; fresco. Leo III. (portrait of Leo X.) clearing himself by oath at the altar, in presence of Charlemagne and church dignitaries, from accusations made by the nephew of the deceased Pope Adrian I.; behind him, a young priest carries the triple crown; at left, in front of a group of bishops, Charlemagne in

the costume of a Roman senator; behind the bishops, a great crowd; and on steps of altar, guards and mace-bearers in Italian costume of 16th century. Typical of the dogma that the Pope is not amenable to any earthly tribunal. Painted in 1517, probably by pupils after Raphael's designs. Engraved by Fr. Aquila; Aloisius Fabri.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 361; Passavant, ii. 156; Müntz, 428.

with fur-trimmed sleeves and red velvet collar, sits at a table on which are an illuminated breviary and a silver bell, holding an eye-glass in his left hand; behind his chair, his two nephews standing, at right, Cardinal Giulio de' Medici (Clement VII.), at left, Cardinal Luigi de' Rossi, his secretary. A masterpiece of portraiture. Painted about 1517-19; became the property of Ottaviano de' Medici; was seen in Florence by Federigo II., Duke of Mantua, who, coveting it, asked Clement VII. for it. The Pope ordered it sent to Mantua, but Ottaviano substituted a copy by Andrea del Sarto (1525). This copy, which deceived even Giulio Romano, who had taken part in the execution of the original, is now in the Naples Museum, where it passes as the original. The Pitti picture was carried to Paris in 1797; returned in 1815. Engraved by Samuel Jesi, Marri, F. Morel, F. Lignon, Chataignier, and Landon.—Vasari, ed. LESLIE, CHARLES ROBERT, born in Clerkenwell, London, Oct. 11, 1794, died in London, May 5, 1859. His father, a watchmaker of Philadelphia, returned to America in 1800, and on his death (1804) Charles was apprenticed to a bookseller; but in a few years he was enabled to go to London, where he became a student at the Royal Academy (1813). Although his first pictures were meritorious, it was not until his return from the Continent in 1817 that he displayed his special talent, in the picture of Slender and Anne Page. Two years later he exhibited his Sir Roger de Coverley (Marquis of Lansdowne), which left him without a rival in this class of subjects. He became an A.R.A. in 1821, and R.A. in 1826. In 1833 he accepted the professorship of drawing at West Point, but held the position only a few months. On his return to England the same year he painted several pictures from the great poets, and two historical pieces for the Queen, her Coronation (1838), and the Baptism of the Princess Royal. From 1847 to 1852 he was professor of painting at the Royal Academy. His somewhat formal and theatrical compositions are enlivened by a vein of humour which shows itself especially in his treatment of Shakespearean subjects. He was a good draughtsman and colourist, though he had a tendency to blackness in his shadows, and a want of feeling for those transparent and harmonious middle tones which should unite them with the higher lights. Among his best known works are: Uncle Toby and Widow Wadman (1831), Sancho Panza and the Duchess, National Gallery; Florizel and Perdita (1837), Taming the Shrew (1832), Autolycus (1836), Queen Catherine and Patience (1839), Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme (1841), Les Femmes Savantes (1845), Who can this be? (1839), Who can this be from? (1839), Le Malade imaginaire (1843), South Kensington Museum; Dinner at Page's House (1831), Lady Lawley (?); Murder of Rutland by Lord Clifford, Sterne and the Chaise Vamper's Wife, Uncle Toby and Widow Wadman, Olivia (Twelfth Night), Musidora, Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia.—Autobiographical Recollections, with essay by Tom Taylor (London, 1860); Redgrave, Century; Art Journal (1856), 73, 105; Sandby, ii. 39; Hamerton, Thoughts about Art, 304.

LESLIE, GEORGE DUNLOP, born in London, July 2, 1835. Subject painter, son and pupil of C. R. Leslie; student in schools of Royal Academy in 1854; exhibited two pictures in Royal Academy in 1857; elected A.R.A. in 1868, and R.A. in 1876.

LEYDEN, LUCAS VAN, born in Leyden in 1494, died there in 1533; Dutch school. Real name Lucas Jacobaz; pupil of his father, Huig Jacobaz, and of Cornelis Engelbrechts-

zen. Historical and genre painter, and one of the great masters of the Dutch school. Friend of Albert Dürer, who mentions him in his Diary. Patronized by Charles V. and by the Archbishop Margaret, he had a vessel splendidly fitted up, in which he sailed about the Dutch coasts and rivers. Master of Antwerp guild in 1522. His pictures are rare, but his admirable engravings are numerous and highly valued. Works characterized by realistic treatment of sacred subjects, and thoroughly original as to invention and execution. He never idealized; even in his altar-pieces the heads are portraits of living persons; as a rule, their type is ugly but expressive, and he often shows considerable dramatic power; besides, we meet in his works with a great variety of dramatis personæ, such as saints, gods of Olympus, noblemen and beggars, warriors and peasants, gentlewomen as well as toothless hags, monks, fools, and pilgrims. Works: Last Judgment (1532), Leyden Museum; The Engagement Ring, David playing the Harp before Saul, St. Luke and St. Mark, St. Matthew, Adoration of the Magi (?), Triptych with Adoration in centre, Antwerp Museum; Game of Chess, St. Jerome doing Penitence, Berlin Museum; Madonna and Angels, Darmstadt Museum; Temptation of St. Anthony (replica in Vienna Museum), Mary Magdalen, Dresden Museum; Surgical Operation, Gotha Museum; Madonna with Mary Magdalen (1522), Annunciation, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Christ and the Blind Man of Jericho (1531), Hermitage, St. Petersburg; The Tiburtine Sibyl and Emperor Augustus, Academy, Vienna; Antonius and Hilarion, Triumphal Entry of David, Liechtenstein Gallery, ib.; Pietà, St. Sebastian, Bergamo Gallery; Madonna with Angels, Galleria Estense, Modena; Christ Crowned with Thorns, Uffizi, Florence; A Card Party, Earl of Pembroke, Wilton House; The Dentist, Duke of Devonshire, Chatsworth; Calvary (triptych), Turin Gallery; Last Judgment, Historical Society, New York; Portrait of himself, Brunswick Museum; Count Edzard I. of East Friesland, Oldenburg Gallery; Emperor Maximilian I., Vienna Museum; do., Naples Museum; Portrait of a Young Knight, Liverpool Institution; do. of himself, and another, Uffizi, Florence. LIBERALE DI JACOPO DA VERONA, born in Verona in 1451, died there, Aug. 12, 1536. Venetian school; history painter, pupil of Stefano dai Libri, a miniaturist of Verona, by whom he was taught the art of illuminating. The choir-books in the cathedrals at Chiusi (1467-69) and Siena are examples of his skill as a miniature painter. After his return to Verona, about 1745, he took up fresco and oil painting, carrying into them those habits of excessive detail and minuteness which were derived from his early training. The Adoration of the Magi (1480-90) in the Duomo, Verona, shows this; but the Predella in the Episcopal Palace is more broadly treated, and plainly executed under the influence of Mantegna. This is yet more evident in the Madonna di Casa Scotti, Milan, which has been attributed to Mantegna. Among the works of Liberale are: Angels with Instruments of the Passion, Casa Gradenigo, Padua; Glory of St. Anthony, S. Fermo, Verona; Entombment, S. Leone, Venice; Assumption of the Magdalen, Sacristy of S. Anastasia, Verona; St. Sebastian, Brera, Milan; replica, Berlin Museum. The frescos of St. Catherine in Glory, Christ in the Garden bearing his Cross, and the Deposition, S. Anastasia, Verona, have been attributed to Liberale.—Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 274; C. & C., N. LIBERI, PIETRO, Cavaliere, born in Padua in 1605 (?), died in Venice, Oct. 18, 1687. Venetian school; pupil of Alessandro Varotari; afterwards studied at Rome the works of Raphael, Michelangelo, Correggio, and Titian, and formed from them all a style of his own. He became famous both in Italy and in Germany, and, though originally poor, won wealth and titles. He is considered one of the best designers of the Venetian school; his touch is free and masterly, and his colouring agreeable and tender; and few artists have greater variety of style. His pictures may be divided into two classes: those executed with a free and rapid pencil, and those finished with great care and attention to details, the former being the best. He was noted for his nude Venuses and other subjects, which were treated so freely as to win him the surname of Libertino. Among his works in Venice are: Battle of the Dardanelles, Palazzo Ducale; Annunciation, S. M. del Pianto; S. Proculo, Virgin and St. Joseph, Assumption, S. Proculo; S. Mosè, Finding of the Cross, S. Mosè; Massacre of the Innocents, Ognisanti; Annunciation, Venice Suppliant, Salute; Crucifixion, S. Agostino. Other examples: Cupid adorned by Nymphs, Venus visiting the Smithy of Vulcan, Susanna at the Bath, Bathsheba leaving the Bath, Venus bandaging the Wounded Vulcan, Hercules and Omphale, Dresden Museum; Judgment of Paris, Youth protected by Wisdom, Dresden Museum; Mars and Venus playing at Chess, Oldenburg Gallery; Medor and Angelica with Cupids in a Landscape, Schleichheim Gallery; Allegory on Motto of Emperor Leopold I.: Consilio et Industria, Venus and Cupid, Vienna Museum. Liberi had a son, Marco, who imitated his father's style almost to caricature.—Ch. Blanc, École vénéitienne.

LINGELBACH, JOHANNES, born in Frankfort-on-the-Main in Oct., 1622, died in Amsterdam in Nov., 1674. Dutch school ; painted Italian seaports, landscapes, hunts, and fairs. Went to Amsterdam in 1637, was in Paris in 1642, then returned to Frankfort, and in 1644 went to Rome, where he remained till 1652, when he returned through Germany to Amsterdam. His style was influenced by Wynants, to whose pictures he often supplied figures and animals, and by Wouvermans, whom he successfully imitated. The cool, delicate, silvery tone of his pictures sometimes degenerates into coldness and want of harmony. His composition is skilful, the drawing good, the execution careful. Works: Hay Harvest, National Gallery, London ; Vegetable Market (1670), Seaport, and two others, Louvre ; Dentist on Horseback (1651), Two Italian Harbours (one dated 1664), Riding-School, Camping, Thoroughfare (Landscape by Wynants), Hunting, Return from the Chase, Amsterdam Museum ; Building of New Town Hall, City Hall, Amsterdam ; Charlatan on Piazza del Popolo in Rome (1658), Brussels Museum ; Port in the Levant (1670), Hay-Making, March of Prince William II. on Amsterdam in 1650, Departure of Charles II. from Scheveningen—1660, Hague Museum ; Country People by a Spring, Rotterdam Museum ; Wanderers resting at the Foot of a Hill, Aschaffenburg Gallery ; Naval Battle between Christians and Turks, Brunswick Museum ; Public Square in Italian Town (1669), Carlsruhe Gallery ; Turkish Galley engaged in a Sea-Fight, Copenhagen Gallery ; Landscape by the Sea, Christiana Gallery ; Vessels in Port with many Figures, Dresden Museum ; Portrait of himself, and others, Städel Gallery, Frankfort ; Hunting Party, Kunsthalle, Hamburg ; Harbour of Leghorn, Ferdinandeum, Innsbruck ; Muleteers by the Seashore, Königsberg Museum ; Hay Making, Old Pinakothek, Munich ; Hunting Party Resting, Germanic Museum, Nuremberg ; Hay Harvest (2), Rest in the Campagna, Italian Seaport (2), Queen Christina of Sweden, King Charles X. of Sweden, Schwerin Gallery ; Merchants in Italian Harbour, Market Square of Italian Town (1666). LINNELL, JAMES THOMAS, contemporary. Landscape painter, son of John Linnell ; first exhibited at Royal Academy in 1850, Temptation in the Wilderness, and in 1851, Job and the Messengers. Works : Haymakers (1862) ; South Coast (1864) ; Ploughing (1868) ; Reaping (1870) ; Country Road (1873) ; Sunset over the Moors (1875) ; Dartmoor (1876) ; Cherry Blossoms (1877) ; Redstone Wood (1879) ; Clearing up over Snowdon (1884).

LINNELL, JOHN, born in London, June 16, 1792, died at Redhill, near London, Jan. 20, 1882. Landscape painter ; pupil of Benjamin West, of John Varley, and of Royal Academy, where he first exhibited in 1807, Study from Nature, and View near Reading. Began by painting portraits, and had among his sitters Rev. John Martin (1812), Lord Ingestre, Samuel Rogers, Lady Lyndhurst, Lord Lansdowne, Sir Robert Peel, Malthus, Whately, and Carlyle. Later painted landscapes with figures, combining great skill in execution with a close study of nature. His Quoit Players (1811) belongs to Mr. Simpson, of Redhill, who gave £1,000 for it. Mr. Linnell was noted as an engraver in line and mezzotint ; he was also a writer, chiefly on biblical subjects. Works : St. John preaching in Wilderness (1828-33) ; Wood Cutters (1846), Windmill (1847), National Gallery, London ; Eve of the Deluge (1847) ; Last Gleam before the Storm (1848) ; Flight into Egypt (1849, sold in 1883 for £945) ; Return of Ulysses, Summer Evening (1849) ; Crossing the Brook (1850) ; Farm Evening (1851) ; Boar-Hunt in England in the Olden Time, Sere Leaf, Barley Harvest, Timber Wagon (1852) ; Weald of Kent, Forest Road (1853) ; Harvest Home, Disobedient Prophet (1854) ; Country Road (1855) ; Sand Pits, Harvest Sunset (1856) ; Gravel Pits (1857) ; Shepherds (1858) ; Midday Rest (1865, sold in 1883 for £1,585) ; Wayfarers (1866, sold in 1883 for £819) ; Crossing the Brook (1868) ; Sleeping for Sorrow (1870) ; The Ford (1872) ; Coming Storm (1873) ; Hollow Tree (1876) ; Autumn (1877) ; The Heath (1878) ; Wood Cutter (1881). Collection of his works exhibited at Royal Academy, winter of 1882-83. His son William is also an able landscape painter, and has been a regular contributor to the exhibitions in the Royal Academy since 1861.—Art Journal (1859), 105 ; (1882), 261, 293 ; (1883), 37 ; Portfolio (1872), 45 ; (1883), 41 ; Acad., Jan. 28, 1882, 74 ; Athen., Jan., 1882, 131 ; Jan., 1883, 125 ; Cat. LION'S BRIDE, Gabriel Max, private gallery. Illustration of Uhland's poem of same name (Die Löwenbraut). A young woman, daughter of the menagerie keeper, who has been accustomed to go into the lion's den with impunity, enters it to bid her friend farewell just before her wedding-day, and is killed by the melancholy brute, who recognizes that it is her last visit. The lion lies crouching on her prostrate form and glaring with glassy-green eyes at her lover, who is seen through the bars of the cage with a pistol in his hand.—Benjamin, 130.

LIOTARD, JEAN ÉTIENNE, born at Geneva in 1702, died there in 1789. French school; portrait and genre painter, pupil of Jean Baptiste Massé, and of Lemoyné in Paris, whither he went in 1725; the Marquis Puy-sieux took him to Naples, whence he went to Rome to paint the Pope and the Stuart family. In 1738-

42 he painted in Constantinople many dignitaries and foreign ambassadors; in 1749 he went to Vienna, where he was munificently rewarded by the Empress Maria Theresa for her and her family's portraits, and thence to France and England. In 1772 he visited London again, to remain two years, carrying with him a precious collection of paintings by famous masters, which he sold successfully. His portraits in pastel are especially remarkable, and preserve to this day their brightness of colour. Works: La belle Liseuse (1746), Marshal Maurice de Saxe, Empress Maria Theresa, do. (1760), Louis de Bourbon—son of Louis XV., Marie Josephine de Saxe—wife of preceding,

Countess of Marlborough, nine other portraits, The Three Graces, Gamin of Geneva, Amsterdam Museum; Artist's portrait in Greek Costume, Marshal Maurice de Saxe, Vienna Chocolate Girl, La belle Lyonnaise (1746), Dresden Museum; Prince Frederic of Saxe-Gotha Altenburg, Gotha Museum; Old Woman fallen asleep over the Bible (1760), Vienna Museum; Empress Elizabeth Christine, Empress Maria Theresa, Emperor

LIPPARINI, LUDOVICO, born at Bologna, Feb. 17, 1800, died at Venice, March 10, 1856. History and portrait painter, had attained such a reputation at the age of twenty-five that the Academy of Bologna elected him an honorary member; he then studied in Venice after the works of Jacopo Bassano, Tintoretto, Giorgione, Veronese, and Titian, and at the Academy under Matteini, whose daughter, also a skilful artist, he married. Invited to Rome and Naples, he painted many portraits of distinguished persons; then studied in Florence the works of Fra Bartolommeo, and several years after in Parma those of Correggio, having meanwhile lived again in Bologna. In 1838 he became professor at the Venice Academy. Works: Pisani's Oath not to take Revenge on his Enemies, Vienna Museum; Assumption, Cathedral at Gran, Hungary; Achilles; Erigone (1827); Bacchus and Ariadne; Youth of Jupiter; Byron's Oath on the Grave of Bozzaris; Portraits of Popes Pius VII. and Leo XII., Marshal Marmont, Canova, Rossini, and Thalberg.—D. Kunstbl. (1856), 129, 133; Wurzbach, xiv. 225.

LIPPI, FILIPPINO, born at Prato in 1457-58, died in Florence, April 18, 1504.

Florentine school; called by Vasari the natural son of Fra Filippo Lippi by Lucretia Buti, but perhaps an adopted son (C. & C.).

Vasari says he was a pupil of Sandro Botticelli, but he was probably taught first by Fra Diamante. He shows high power of expression and composition in the Vision of St. Bernard, in the Badia, one of the most charming pictures in Florence, painted when he was only about twenty years old. His style, though founded upon that of Fra Filippo, is modified by the influence of Botticelli. Though he occupies a lower place in the scale of art than Masaccio, as regards ability in composition, verity, and individuality of type, he excels him in charm and grace. He executed frescos in the Brancacci Chapel of the Carmine, Florence; in the Strozzi Chapel, S. M. Novella; and in the Caraffa Chapel, Minerva, Rome. He also completed some frescos in the Brancacci Chapel left unfinished by Masaccio at his death. Those now attributed to him are: Adam and Eve, Peter in Prison, Martyrdom of Peter, Liberation of Peter. Among the best of his easel pictures are Madonna with Saints (1485), Adoration of Magi (1496), Uffizi, Florence; Death of Lucretia, Palazzo Pitti, ib.; Madonna and Angels, Palazzo Corsini, ib.; Madonna with Saints, S. Spirito, ib.; Altarpiece, S. Michele, Lucca; Christ appearing to the Virgin, Resurrection, (1495), Deposition from the Cross, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Madonna with Saints, Adoration of Magi and St. Francis in Glory, National Gallery, London; Madonna (2), Christ on the Cross, Berlin Museum; St. Joachim and St. Ann, Cöpenhagen Gallery; Madonna, Dresden Gallery.—C. & C. LIPPI, Fra FILIPPO, born in Florence about 1406, died at Spoleto, Oct. 9, 1469.

Florentine school; son of a butcher, Tommaso Lippi, whose death in 1414 left him an orphan. When eight years old he was received into the Community of the Carmine, Florence, where Masaccio afterwards painted (1423-28) frescos in the Brancacci Chapel; and he either had lessons from that master or studied his style. Filippo left the convent in 1432, and led for a time, it is said, a wandering life. Vasari represents him as a man of loose habits, and accuses him of the seduction of Lucretia Buti, a novice in the convent of S. Margherita, Prato, who became the mother of Filippino Lippi; but late researches seem to cast some doubt upon this story. It is certain that he bore the title of Frate until his death, that he was poor, with six nieces dependent upon him, and that he was chaplain to the nuns of S. Giovannino, Florence, in 1452, and rector of S. Quirico, Legnaia, in 1457. Fra Filippo was the greatest colourist and the most complete master of the technical difficulties in art of his time. Though inferior in composition to Masaccio, his arrangement of figures is always graceful; and none before him expressed attitude and motion of living figures under draperies as he did. He was among the first to introduce the element of sensuous beauty into sacred pictures, by taking the prettiest faces around him as models for his madonnas. His sacred subjects, too, are often treated in a realistic style that detracts from their dignity, saints and even angels being painted in the Florentine costume of the time, and low, vulgar types selected for the representation of holy personages. His best frescos are the Histories of John the Baptist and of St. Stephen in the choir of the Cathedral at Prato. Those in the apse of the Cathedral of Spoleto were not finished at the time of his death. Fra Diamante was his assistant in these works. Among the best of his many easel pictures are: Coronation of the Virgin, Nativity, Florence Academy; Madonna, Palazzo Pitti; Madonna with Angels, St. Augustine, Uffizi; Nativity, S. Domenico, Prato; Annunciation, Palazzo Doria, Rome; Annunciation, Naples Museum; Madonna in Adoration, Madonna della Misericordia, Berlin Museum; Crucifixion, Städels Gallery, Frankfurt; Madonna, Annunciation (2), Old Pinakothek, Munich; Madonna, Königsberg Museum; Nativity, Madonna with Saints, Louvre; Annunciation, John Baptist with Saints, Madonna Enthroned, Madonna and Angel, Vision of St. Bernard, National Gallery, London.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 319; Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Dohme, 2i.; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iv. 114; Seguier, 84; Burckhardt (Clough), 60; Baldinucci, i. 507; Lübke, Gesch. d. ital. Mal., i. 301.

LIPPINCOTT, WILLIAM H., born in Philadelphia, Pa.; contemporary. Portrait and genre painter, pupil of Léon Bonnat in Paris. Exhibits in Salon and National Academy. Studio in New York, where he is professor in National Academy schools. Elected A.N.A. in 1885. Works: Duck's Breakfast (1876); Lolotte, Portrait of Miss Ethel, Little Prince (1878); Corner of a Farmyard—France (1880); Pont Aven—Bretagne, Light of the Harem (1881); Loan Collection, Two Good Friends, T. B. Clarke, New York; At the Gate—Waiting (1882); Renée, Helena (1883); Happy Hours (1884).

LIPPO DALMASIO (di Dalmasio di Jacopo Scannabecchi), born about 1376, died about 1410. Bolognese school; pupil probably of Vitale de Bologna. Painted figures of a broad instead of slender form, with marked and deep outline and sharp colour, and a tendency to profusion in ornament.

LONGÉ, ROBERT DE, born at Brussels about 1635 (?), died at Piacenza in 1707 (1709?). Flemish school; history and landscape painter, pupil of Jacques de Potter in 1658; went to Italy and studied at Cremona under Agostino Bonisoli, probably visited Venice, Rome, Florence, and Bologna, and finally settled at Piacenza. By Italian writers he is quoted as Roberto La Longe or Uberto Da Longe, and surnamed Il Fiammingo, the frequent application of which surname to Flemish painters make it all but certain that many of his works, painted during his long residence in Italy, are attributed to other masters. He painted in a variety of styles, at times imitating Guido Reni, at others approaching Guercino, without ever abandoning the Flemish style. Works in fresco: Resurrection, St. Francis, Groups of Children, Cathedral at Piacenza; St. Anthony and St. Victor, First Bishop of Piacenza, St. Anthony's, ib.—Fétis, Les Artistes belges à l'étranger, ii. 345.

LOO, (JULES) CÉSAR (DENIS) VAN, born in Paris in 1743, died there, July 1, 1821. French school; landscape painter, son and pupil of Carle; received into the Academy in 1784, and became adjunct rector in 1790. Works: Tempest, Moonlight (1784); Temple of the Sibyl at Tivoli (1785); Sunset (1800); Conflagration (1802); Snow Landscape (1804), Louvre, Paris; do., Cherbourg Museum; Road from Tivoli to Subiaco, Similar view, Fountain of Aqua Autosa, Ponte Molo; Campagna, Toulouse Museum; Two landscapes, Turin Gallery.—Bellier, ii. 628.

LOO, LOUIS VAN, born at Amsterdam about 1641, died at Aix in 1713. Dutch school; history painter, son and pupil of Jakob van Loo; went early to France, won first prize in Academy, of which he would have become a member had he not been obliged to leave Paris, whence he retired to Nice on account of a duel; travelled afterwards in the south of France and settled at Aix, where he married in 1683, and became the father of Jean Baptiste and Carle van Loo. There is a St. Francis by him in the Chapel of the Black Penitents at Toulon, and a fresco at Aix.—Archives de l'Art français, Documents, vi. 162; Michiels, x. 36; Revue des Deux Mondes (1842), xxi. 487.

LOO, LOUIS MICHEL VAN, born at Toulon, March 2, 1707, died in Paris, March 20, 1771. French school; history and portrait painter, son and pupil of Jean Baptiste; won in 1725 the grand prix de Rome, and on his return to Paris was received into the Academy in 1733, and became adjunct professor in 1735. On the death of Ranc he was appointed court-painter by Philip V. of Spain, who bestowed many honours upon him. On Philip's death he returned to Paris, and succeeded his uncle Carle as director of the Royal School of Art. Order of St. Michael, 1748. Works: Apollo pursuing Daphne (1733), Louvre; Portrait of Infante Don Felipe, Family of Philip V., Young Infanta as Venus, Portrait of Philip V., Madrid Museum; Portraits of Louis XV. (2), Louis Philippe d'Orléans, Duc de Choiseul, Duc de Praslin, Louis XVI., Comte de Provence (afterwards Louis XVIII.), Comte d'Artois (afterwards Charles X.), Philip V. of Spain, Elizabeth Farnese, Queen of Spain, Philip V. and his Family (sketch to picture in Madrid Museum), Duc de La Vrillière (1769), Carle van Loo (1764), do. and his Family (1757), Portrait of himself, Versailles Museum.—Bellier, ii. 625; Larousse, xv. 767; Nagler, xix. 373; Revue des Deux Mondes (1842), xxi. 510; Villot, Cat. LOOS, FRIEDRICH, born in Gratz, Styria, Oct. 29, 1797. Landscape painter, pupil of the Vienna Academy; afterwards travelled in the Alps (1821), in Hungary (1823-26), Salzburg (1826-29), Istria (1840); visited Rome in 1846, Naples in 1847. In 1851 finished a panorama of ancient and modern Rome in 17 pictures, equally poetic in conception and truthful. He then went via Berlin to Bremen, Oldenburg, and Copenhagen, and in 1853 settled in Kiel; visited Norway in 1856, and was appointed professor of drawing at the University of Kiel in 1863. He painted also a few good portraits, among them his own (1837). Works: Three Views around Salzburg, Saw-Mill in Styria (1830); Two Views of Salzburg (1831); The Ramsau near Berchtesgaden (1836), Vienna Museum; River-Bank with Birch-Trees (1837), Alpine Fes-

LOOSE, BASILE DE, born at Zeele, Flanders, Dec. 17, 1809. Genre painter, son and pupil of Joannes Josephus de Loose, and pupil of Antwerp Academy ; went in 1835 to study in Paris, settled in Brussels ; imitates Terburg and kindred masters of the 17th century. Medal, Paris, 3d class, 1841. Works : Maiden at Toilet-Table ; The Present ; The Swing ; Boys' Tricks ; Flemish Kirmess ; Children's Festival at School, Lace Maker with Child (1858), Leipzig Museum ; Company in Tavern (1846), Dutch Family Scene (1846), National Gallery, Berlin ; Girls' School in the Country, Stettin Museum.—Immerzeel, ii. 186 ; M ller, 342 ; Kramm, iv. 1011.

LOOSE, JOANNES JOSEPHUS DE, born at Zeele, Flanders, Nov. 22, 1770. History painter, pupil of Ghent Academy, where in 1794 he obtained the first prize ; studied then in Mechlin under Herreyns, and afterwards became professor at the Academy of Design at St. Nicolaus, East Flanders. Works : St. Cornelia blessing Children, St. Jacob's, Ghent ; Martyrdom of St. Apollonia ; Martyrdom of St. Barbara ; Christ driving the Venders from the Temple (1822) ; Entry of Christ into Jerusalem (1828) ; Festive Scene with sixteen portraits.—Immerzeel, ii. 185 ; Nagler, viii. 48.

LOOTEN (Loten), JAN, born in Amsterdam about 1618, died in London in 1681. Dutch school ; landscape painter. Seems to have worked first in Switzerland, then in Holland, and to have gone to England about 1662 and painted for Charles II. His usual subjects were rocky scenes, dark oak-woods, rushing torrents, and wild solitudes. An inky colouring detracts much from the effect of his finely composed, well-drawn, and truthful pictures. Was an imitator of Hobbema. Works : River Scene, National Gallery, London ; Sportsmen in a Wood (1658), Rotterdam Museum ; Three landscapes, Dresden Gallery ; Stag-Hunt (1659), Berlin Museum ; Consecration of a Church, View across a River (1656), Copenhagen Gallery ; Landscape with Travellers, Kunsthalle, Hamburg ; Rocky Landscape (1675), Beech-wood, Liechtenstein Gallery, Vienna.—Kugler (Crowe), ii. 481 ; Kramm, iv. 1012.

LOPEZ Y PORTAÑA, VICENTE, born in Valencia in 1772, died in Madrid in 1855 (1850 ?). History and portrait painter, pupil of the Franciscan monk Villanueva, and in Madrid of Maella ; became director of Valencia Academy, made court-painter in 1802, and called to Madrid in 1814 to instruct the second and third queens of Ferdinand VII. ; appointed director-general of Madrid, Saragossa, and Valencia Academies. Works : Charles IV. and his Family, Charles III. instituting his Order, Adoration of Santa Forma, Death of Abradates, Portraits of Queen Maria Christina de Bourbon, Queen Maria Amalia, Queen Maria Isabel de Braganza, Queen Maria Antonia of Naples, Infante Don Antonio, Francisco Goya, F lix M ximo Lopez, Madrid Museum ; SS. Augustine and Rufus, Tortosa Cathedral ; Ceiling paintings (fresco), Royal Palace, Madrid. His son and pupil, Bernardo Lopez y Piquer (1801-74), was noted for pastel portraits.—Madrazo.

LOREDANO, LEONARDO, Doge, portrait, Giovanni Bellini, National Gallery, London ; wood, H. 2 ft. × 1 ft. 5 in. ; signed. Painted about 1505 ; long an heirloom of the Grimani family. One of the best of Bellini's portraits. Originally in Palazzo Grimani, Venice ; then owned by Lord Cawdor and Beckford, from whom bought in 1844 for £600.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 181 ; Richter, 79, 105 ; Meyer, Kunst. Lex., iii. 420.

LOREDANO, LEONARDO, Doge, portrait, Catena, Lochis-Carrara Gallery, Bergamo ; wood, nearly life-size. Painted about 1503 ; attributed to Gentile Bellini. Copy at Dresden attributed to Giovanni Bellini ; replica of latter in Correr Museum.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 250.

LORENTZEN, CHRISTIAN AUGUST, born at Sonderburg, Isle of Alsen, Aug. 10, 1749, died in Copenhagen, May 8, 1828. Portrait, genre, and animal painter, pupil of Copenhagen Academy ; studied in Antwerp the works of Rubens and Van Dyck, visited Paris, and after his return became in 1803 professor at, and in 1809 director of, Copenhagen Academy. He was a member of the Paris and Copenhagen (1784) Academies. Works : Portrait of Count Reclusky (1794), Copenhagen Gallery ; Rural Smithy, From the Zoölogical Garden, Attack of Gunboats on Roadstead of Copenhagen in 1807, Burning of Shipping Store at Copenhagen, Siege of Wismar, Battles of Femern and Volmer, Cycle of Scenes from Holberg's Comedies.—Nagler, viii. 55 ; Raczyński, iii. 549 ; Weilbach, 416.

LORENZETTI, AMBROGIO, Siennese school, first half of 14th century. Son of one Lorenzo, and younger brother of Pietro Lorenzetti ; first heard of in 1324 ; earliest productions frescos in S. Francesco, Siena (1331), so highly praised by Ghiberti in his second Commentary, but of which only two fragments remain. Other injured frescos by this painter are to be seen in S. Agostino, Siena, and in the Florence Academy. In 1335 he aided his brother in painting the front of the Spedale, Siena, and in 1337-39 he decorated the Sala della Pace in the Palazzo Pubblico, Siena, with three vast allegories in fresco, illustrative of the advantages of justice and peace, and of the evils of tyranny. In this work the Siennese school reaches its zenith, and Ambrogio proves himself a far abler composer than his contemporary, Simone di Martino. Indeed, he and his brother Pietro are the only Siennese who nearly approached the high excellence of Giotto in this respect, and their works are so nearly alike in some cases that they are with difficulty to be distinguished from each other. In 1342 Ambrogio completed a Presentation in the Temple (1342), Florence Academy, which has been so restored as to give little idea of his talent as a colourist and draughtsman. His Annunciation (1344) is in the Siena Academy. The latest record of Ambrogio is in 1345, and both he and his brother are supposed to have perished in the plague of 1348.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 134 ; iii. 75 ; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., i. 33 ; ii. 65 ; Burekhardt, 315, 362 ; Baldinucci, i. 222 ; W. & W., i. 466 ; Ghiberti, 2d Commentary ; Rio, i. 48 ; Dohne, 2i. ; Siennische Malerschule, i. ; Lübke, Ital. Mal., i. 171.

LORENZETTI, PIETRO, born latter part of 13th century, died about middle of 14th century. Siennese school ; called, by Vasari, Pietro Laurati. Elder brother of Ambrogio Lorenzetti ; appears in Siena in 1305 as the painter of an altarpiece, after which no trace of him is found until 1326, when he executed several pictures in the workshop of the Siena Cathedral. The earliest picture signed by him is a Virgin Enthroned, dated 1329, in S. Ansano, outside the Pispini gate of Siena, in which the figure of the Virgin is deservedly considered the finest of the Siennese school. The execution shows that Pietro had already abandoned the dark Siennese colouring for the light flesh tints and warm shadows of the Florentines. In 1333 Pietro painted a Madonna above the portal of the Siena Duomo, which Luca di Thomé afterwards restored, and in 1335 an altarpiece for the Duomo. In the same year he executed in company with his brother a now destroyed masterpiece—the Marriage of the Virgin, on the front of the Hospital of Siena—which is highly eulogized by Vasari, who says it was in the manner of Giotto. In 1340 Pietro finished for S. Francesco of Pistoja a picture supposed to be that now in the Uffizi, Florence, and two years later painted the Nativity of the Virgin, in the Sacristy of the Duomo, Siena. His altarpiece in the parish church of Arezzo, which is in better preservation though inferior to Giotto, is a more powerful and able work, both in conception and execution, than any produced by his pupils. Other remarkable works by Pietro are the frescos of the Crucifixion, the Passion, and St. Francis receiving the Stigmata, in the lower church of S. Francesco at Assisi, assigned by Vasari to Pietro Cavallini, and those in the Campo Santo, Pisa, representing the life of the hermits in the desert of the Thebaid.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 117; Vasari, ed. Mil., i. 471; ed. Le Mon., ii. 26; Burckhardt, 516; W. & W., i. 466; Rio, 42; Dohme, 2i.; Siensische Malerschule, i.; Lübke, Ital. Mal., i. 171.

LORENZO GIUSTINIANI, ST., APOTHEOSIS OF, Gentile Bellini, Venice Academy; canvas, tempera, figures nearly life-size; signed, dated 1465. St. Lorenzo, born in 1380, was bishop of Castello and first patriarch of Venice; canonized by Alexander VIII. Painted for S. M. dell'Orto, Venice.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 122.

LORENZO GIUSTINIANI, GLORY OF, Giovanni Antonio Pordenone, Venice Academy; canvas, arched, H. 13 ft. 6 in. × 10 ft. 6 in.; signed. St. Lorenzo standing in a niche, with several monks of his order around him; in foreground, SS. Augustine, Francis of Assisi kneeling, and John Baptist. Painted about 1537 for the Renieri altar in S. M. dell'Orto, Venice; taken to Paris in 1799; returned in 1815 and placed in Academy.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 284; London, Musée, xi. Pl. 47.

LORENZO MONACO, Don, born near end of 14th century, died aged fifty-five. Florentine school; a Camaldolensian monk in Florence. His style as a painter is that of a disciple of Agnolo Gaddi, but while he shows more religious sentiment than his master, as a draughtsman he is no better. In general tone his work is soft and transparent like that of a miniature painter, and his flesh tints are carefully fused. The only picture bearing his name is a Coronation of the Virgin, dated 1413, formerly in the abbey of his order at Ceretto, and now in the Uffizi, Florence. Its peculiarities enable us to identify him as the painter of such unsigned pictures as a Madonna, dated 1404, at Empoli; Madonna and Saints, dated 1410, church of Monte Oliveto, Florence; Annunciation, S. Trinità, Florence; and Adoration of the Kings, Uffizi, Florence.—C. & C., Italy, i. 551; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 209; Burekhardt, 534; Baldinucci, i. 314; Lübke, Ital. Mal., i. 165.

LORENZO DA PAVIA. See Fasolo, Lorenzo.

LORENZO DA SAN SEVERINO, born in 1374, died in (?). Umbrian school; earliest example, a much injured Marriage of St. Catherine, dated 1400, in San Severino. In 1416, with the aid of his brother Jacopo, Lorenzo decorated the oratory of S. Giovanni Battista, Urbino, with a Crucifixion, and incidents in the Baptist's life. The figures in these frescos are exaggerated in action, lean to excess, and ill drawn—interesting chiefly as a link in Umbrian art between the works of Ottaviano Nelli and Gentile da Fabriano.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 109; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., viii. 69.

LORME, ANTON DE, flourished in Rotterdam about 1640–66. Dutch school; architecture painter, whose rare works are masterpieces as regards lighting and perspective. Style of Pieter Neefs; perhaps worked also at Delft, as Antonis Palamedesz painted accessories in several of his pictures. Works: Interior of a Church by Candlelight, Warwick Castle; Interior of a Church, Lord Northwick, Thirlestaine House; do., Berlin Museum; do. (1649?), Darmstadt Museum; do. (1642), Old Pinakothek, Munich; do. (1641, 1658), Schwerin Gallery;

LORRAIN, CLAUDE. See Claude Lorrain.

LORY, GABRIEL, the elder, born at Berne in 1763, died there in 1840. Landscape painter, pupil of Aberli (1723–86) and Kaspar Wolf (1735–98); lived alternately in Geneva, Berne, St. Gall, and Herisan (Canton Appenzell); fled during the revolutionary disturbances of 1798–1803 to Lindau, and after a sojourn at Neuchatel returned in 1812 to Berne, where he was one of the founders of the Artists' Union. Works: View of the Wellhorn and Wetterhorn (1817), View of the Jungfrau (1818), Berne Museum.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xix. 207.

LORY, GABRIEL, the younger, born at Berne, June 11, 1784, died there, Aug. 25, 1846. Landscape painter, son and pupil of preceding, whose changes of abode he shared; visited Paris in 1808, Rome and Naples in 1811, and after settling for a short time at Neuchatel, in 1812, started out again on extended travels; spent the winters of 1834–36 in Berlin, where he was in favor at court, and received the title of professor. Worked chiefly in water-colours. Works: View of La Cava near Naples, View near Albano (1816), Grotta Ferrata near Rome, Old Devil's Bridge on St. Gotthard Road (1827), City and Castle Esa between Genoa and Nice (1846), Berne Museum.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xix. 208.

LOSSENKO, ANTON, born in (?), died in 1773. History painter, pupil of St. Petersburg Academy; then studied in Paris and Rome (about 1770); on his return became professor, and soon after director of St. Petersburg Academy. Works: St. Peter's Draught of Fishes, St. Andrew, Sacrifice of Isaac, Grand Duke Vladimir and Princess Rogneda (Hermitage, St. Petersburg), Hector's Farewell.—Raczynski, iii. 535.

LOSSOW, FRIEDRICH, born in Munich, June 13, 1837, died there, Jan. 19, 1872. Animal painter, son of the sculptor Arnold Hermann Lossow, pupil of Munich Academy under Piloty. Since 1860 has painted a series of animal pictures full of humour. Works: Watch Dog (1860); Bitch with Puppies (1861); Rat Hunt (1861); Rat and Terrier (1862); Rural Scene by the Oven (1865); Travelling Company of Dogs and Monkeys (1866): Badger Dog in Baby Carriage (1870).—Allgem. d. Biogr., xix. 222; Kunst-Chronik, vii. 203.

LOSSOW, HEINRICH, born in Munich, March 10, 1843. Genre painter, brother of preceding, pupil of the Munich Academy; paints rococo scenes, often strongly realistic. Works: The Hunchbacked Beau; Musical Entertainment; I do as I like; Lady in a Park; Honeymoon; Milliner.—Müller, 342.

LOSSOW, KARL, born in Munich, Aug. 6, 1835, died in Rome, March 12, 1861. History painter, brother of preceding, pupil of Munich Academy under Foltz; much influenced by Andreas Müller and the works of Schwind; visited Italy in 1856, where he was induced by the hereditary Prince of Saxe-Meiningen to settle in Meiningen. Works: Horand's Wooing for Hilde in the Name of King Hettel, Hagen carried off by the Griffin, Hagen's Fight with the Griffin, Villa Carlotta, Lake of Como; Conquest of City of the Malians by Alexander the Great (1858, Cartoon).—Allgem. d. LOTEN. See Looten.

LOTH, JOHANN KARL, called Carlotto, and Carlo Lotti, born in Munich in 1632, died in Venice, Oct. 6, 1698. Venetian school ; history painter, son and pupil of Johann Ulrich Loth (1590-1662, by whom are several pictures in the Augsburg Gallery). Went early to Italy, where he soon ranked among the best masters; thought by some to be a pupil of Pietro Liberi; influenced by the works of Caravaggio, although his colouring is often sombre. He was much employed for the Emperor Leopold II., and in Italy for churches and private collections. Works: Mercury Seated, Jupiter with the Thunderbolt, Vulcan, Saturn, Return of Prodigal Son, Cassel Gallery; Jupiter brought up in Crete, Copenhagen Gallery; Ecce Homo, Fürstenberg Gallery, Donaueschingen; Job with his Friends (2), Lot and his Daughters, Christ crowned with Thorns, Dresden Museum; St. Dominick, The Angel Raphael with a Boy points towards Heaven where the Trinity appears, Agrippina borne to the Shore, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Holy Family, Death of Seneca, Male Portrait, Schleissheim Gallery; Jacob blessing the Sons of Joseph, Jupiter and Mercury with Philemon and Baucis, Vienna Museum; Adam bewailing the Death of Abel, Artist's Portrait, Uffizi, Florence; Death of Abel, Adam and Eve, Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia; others in Augsburg, Brunswick, and Christiania Galleries.—Nagler, viii. 77; Lanzi (Roscoe), ii. 256.

LOTTI, CARLO. See Loth.

LOTTIER, LOUIS, born at La Haye du Puits (Manche), Nov. 9, 1815. Marine painter, pupil of Gudin. Medal, 3d class, 1852. Works: Sunset in Egypt (1850), Avignon Museum; View of Cairo (1850), View of Constantinople (1852), Ministry of Interior; Harbor of Smyrna (1865); Banks of the Nile (1867); Sunset in Roadstead of Smyrna (1867), Perpignan Museum; Views around Constantinople and in South of France (1868–80); Conflagration at Sea, View of St. Raphaël (1882); Environs of Beirut (1885).—Bellier, i. 1059.

LOTTO, LORENZO, born at Bergamo or Treviso (?) about 1480, died at Loreto about 1554. Venetian school; sometimes called Il Bergamasco, from his long residence in Bergamo. Went early to Venice, where, according to Vasari, he was Palma's friend and assistant, and studied the works of Giovanni Bellini, and later those of Giorgione. He was one of the best of the second-rate artists of his time. The oldest extant picture by him, a Madonna with St. Onofrius, Palazzo Borghese, Rome, is dated 1508, the date 1500 of the S. Jerome in the Desert, Louvre, being an obvious duplicate. A larger production of 1508 is the Madonna of St. Dominick, S. Domenico, Recanati, in which the drawing is precise and minute, the perspective correct, and the colours clear and pure. Of similar characteristics and of about the same time are: Madonna and Saints, S. Cristina, near Treviso; Marriage of St. Catherine, Munich Gallery; and Madonna and Peter Martyr, Naples Museum. His pictures after this period show a bolder approach to the manner of Palma and of Giorgione, e. g.: Madonna and SS. Anthony and Basil (1506), Duomo, Asolo; St. Jerome, Louvre; Madonna and Four Saints, Bridgewater Collection; and the Three Ages, Palazzo Pitti, Florence. Other examples are the Entombment (1512), S. Floriano, Jesi; Transfiguration, Collegiata, Castelnuovo; Death of Peter Martyr, S. Pietro Martire, Alzano; Family Group, Portraits of Agostino and Niccolò della Torre (1515), National Gallery, London; Throned Madonna (1516), S. Bartolommeo, Bergamo; Madonna (1521), S. Bernardino, Bergamo; Madonna and Saints (1521), S. Spirito, Bergamo; Christ parting from his Mother (1521), SS. Christopher and Sebastian (1531), Berlin Museum; Marriage of St. Catherine (1523), Adoration of Sleeping Christ (1533), Bergamo Gallery; Portrait of Andrea Odoni (1527), Hampton Court; Glory of St. Nich- olas (1529), S. M. del Carmine, Venice; Glory of St. Antoninus, S. Giovanni e Paolo, Venice; Madonna with Saints, Vienna Museum; Crucifixion (1531), Church of Monte S. Giusto; Holy Family (1534), Uffizi, Florence; Dead Christ, Brera, Milan; Mystic Marriage of St. Catherine, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Santa Conversazione, Dresden Gallery; A Betrothal in the 15th Century, Madrid Museum. In his last years Lotto came so much under influence of Titian that some of his pictures, especially portraits, have been ascribed to that master. About 1548 his powers began to wane, and he then resolved to retire to Loreto. His pictures at San Giacomo dell' Orto, Venice (1546), at S. M. della Pace, and in the Governor's Palace, Ancona, give sad evidences of his decline.—C. L. Lotus pict

LOVE AND DEATH, George Frederick Watts, London; canvas, H. 7 ft. 7 in. × 3 ft. 9 in. Death, represented by a tall figure draped in white, whose back alone is seen, relentlessly forces his way into the portal of a house, thrusting back Love, who vainly seeks to bar his entrance, crushing his wings against the garlands of roses which grow at the side. Begun about 1869; exhibited at Grosvenor Gallery, London, 1877; at Metropolitan Museum, New York, in 1884–85.

LOVE AND LIFE, George Frederick Watts, London; canvas, H. 7 ft. 2 in. × 4 ft. Companion picture to Love and Death. Love, represented by the winged figure of a youth, is leading the way up a steep ascent and guiding over the rough places Life, a young girl, nude, who clings to him for support. The half-extended wings of Love shade the delicate figure of Life from the rays of the sun, and his footsteps can be traced by the daisies which have sprung up in his path. Painted in 1884; Grosvenor Gallery, 1885; replica at Metropolitan Museum, New York, 1884–85.

LUCA DI THOMÉ (Tomé), latter half of 14th century. Siennese school; third-rate artist. Called by Vasari a pupil of Barna, though his painting shows rather the influence of Simone. His name is the third on the register of the Siennese Guild of St. Luke, which was confirmed as a guild in 1355. He restored in 1357 a Madonna painted by Pietro Lorenzetti in 1333 above the portal of the Siena Cathedral, and he was living in 1392. Among his extant works are a Crucifixion, dated 1366, Pisa Academy, and an altarpiece, dated 1377, in the Capuccini of S. Quirico in Osenna.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 112; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 163; Milanese, Siena, 167.

LUCAS, SEYMOUR, born in England in 1851. Historic genre painter, pupil of St. Martin's Government Schools and of the Royal Academy, where he won the gold medal. First exhibited at Royal Academy in 1870 the Apotheary from "Romeo and Juliet."

Elected A.R.A. in 1886. Works: Intercepted Despatches, Danger, The Burgomaster (1877); Gordon Riots (Melbourne Gallery), Unbreathed Memories (1879); The Armada in Sight (1880); Reckoning without his Host, Charles I. before Gloucester (1881); The Favourite, Disputed Strategy, Spy in the Camp (1882); Whip for Van Tromp (1883); You don't say so! After Culloden (purchased by Royal Academy under Chantrey Bequest, 1884); From the Field of Sedgemoor (1885); Old Cronies

(1886). His wife, Marie Cornellissen Lucas, is also an artist of some repute.—Illus. News (1886), i. 487.

LUCATELLI (Locatelli), ANDREA, born in Rome in 1695, died there in 1741. Roman school; pupil of Paolo Anesi; became noted as a landscape and genre painter. In landscape he was a pleasing imitator of Claude Lorrain; in genre he was the rival of Zuccarelli. His small pictures are sometimes highly finished, and the figures are painted with great care. Works: Mercury and the Woodchopper, Cassel Gallery; Mercury and Argus, Another Mythological Subject, Landscape, St. Petersburg Academy; View of Castle San Angelo—Rome, Liechtenstein Gallery, Vienna; Fishermen putting out to Sea, Ray Fishing, Snow Scene, Pushing Off, Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia.—Lanzi, i. 535; Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne.

LUCCARDI, VINCENZO, born at Gemona, North Italy, in 1811, died in 1876. History painter, pupil of Venice Academy, settled at Rome. Professor in Academy of San Luca and other institutions in Italy. Medals, Venice (9), Florence, and Vienna. Works: Cain; The Deluge; Raphael and the Fornarina; Hagar and Ishmael; Cleopatra; Aida; Venus; Four Seasons.

Works: Flower Piece, Madrid Museum; Still Life, Brunswick Museum; do. (2). Professor Wilhelm Sohn, Düsseldorf.—Kunst-Chronik, xix. 581; Riegel, Beiträge, ii. 126; Van den Branden, 1314.

LUCRETIA

LUCRETIA, Alexandre Cabanel, Samuel Hawk Collection, New York ; canvas, H. 7 ft.  $\times$  4 ft. Lucretia, seated at her loom, is surprised at the return of Sextus Tarquinius, who, leaning upon the back of her chair, asks her hospitality.—Photogravure in Art Treasures of America, ii. 27.

By Albrecht Dürer, Munich Gallery ; wood, H. 5 ft. 2 in.  $\times$  2 ft. 4 in. ; signed, dated 1518. Lucretia, nude, life-size, stands at the foot of a bedstead furnished in burgher style with a red coverlet and blue bolster, about to plunge the dagger into her heart with her right hand. Several studies, dated length ; Lucretia, with the dagger in her right hand ; in the gloom behind, her husband Collatinus, who grasps her arm and strives to prevent her suicide. Copy attributed to Paris Bordone, at Hampton Court ; another by Varotari, in Uffizi.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 476.

By Il Sodoma, Turin Gallery ; wood, H. 3 ft. 3 in.  $\times$  2 ft. 6 in. Lucretia in act of killing herself.—Meyer, Künst. Lex., iii. 224.

By Titian, Vienna Museum ; canvas, H. 3 ft. 2 in.  $\times$  2 ft. 4 in. Half-length, about to kill herself with a dagger. Probably of Titian's later time, but not a very attractive picture.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 426.

By Luca Giordano, Dresden Gallery ; canvas, H. 4. ft. 3 in.  $\times$  5 ft. 11 in. Lucretia, nude, upon a couch ; Tarquin has one hand upon her shoulder, and points with the other to a black servant beyond. Engraved by P. Tanjé.—Gal. Roy. de Dresde, i. Pl. 37.

By Titian, Hertford House, London ; canvas, H. 7 ft. 2 in.  $\times$  4 ft. 8 in. ; signed. Lucretia, nearly nude, on a couch, resists the assaults of Tarquin, in green doublet and crimson hose, who threatens her with a dagger ; to left, a man peeps from behind a curtain. Painted about 1571 (?) ; passed from collection of Joseph Bonaparte to Lord Northwick, thence to Mr. Conyngham, at whose sale it was bought for 520 guineas by Marquis of Hertford. Perhaps the picture in the Louvre in 1752-54, which was bought by Louis XIV. of Jabach, who obtained it from the collection of Charles I. of England ;

Lucretia and Tarquin, Guido Cagnacci, Accademia di S. Luca, Rome.

1508, in Albertina Collection, Vienna. One in British Museum.—Thausing (Eaton), ii. 35, 132 ; Ephrussi, 157.

By Guido Reni, Turin Gallery ; canvas, H. 3 ft. 2 in.  $\times$  2 ft. 1 in. Lucretia, half-length, nude, holding in her hand the dagger with which she has stabbed herself. Engraved by Lasinio.—Gal. di Torino, ii. Pl. 65.

By Filippino Lippi, Palazzo Pitti, Florence ; wood, H. 1 ft. 4 in.  $\times$  4 ft. 2 in. Action divided into two parts : 1. The death of Lucretia ; 2. The exposure of her body, in the Forum, with Brutus inciting the people against Tarquin.—Cat. Pal. Pitti.

By Palma Vecchio, Vienna Museum ; wood, H. 2 ft. 6 in.  $\times$  2 ft. 1 in. Half-and this in turn may possibly be the canvas sent in 1571 by Titian to Philip II. of Spain. Much damaged by patching and repainting. Engraved by C. Cort.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 392; Waagen, Treasures, ii. 152.

LUCY, CHARLES, born at Hereford in 1814, died at Notting Hill, May 19, 1873. History painter; studied at École des Beaux Arts, Paris, and also under Paul Delaroché; afterwards pupil of Royal Academy, London. First became known by a series of large historical cartoons exhibited in 1844 at the Westminster Hall Competition, where he was awarded a premium of £100 for his Caractacus. His works are important on account of their subject and the scale on which they are painted, rather than for their originality. Many of them have been engraved. Works: Interview between Milton and Galileo (1840); Departure of the Pilgrim Fathers (1847); Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers (1848); Mrs. Claypole's Deathbed (1849); Parting of Charles I. and his Children (1850); Parting of Lord and Lady Russell (1852), Mrs. Joseph Harrison, Philadelphia; Shakespeare before Sir Thomas Lucy, Nelson in the Cabin of the Victory, Lord Saye and Sele before Jack Cade (1860); Reconciliation of Gainsborough and Reynolds (1863); Garibaldi at Tomb of Foscolo (1865); Intercepted Embarkation of John Hampden (1867); Abdication of Mary Stuart (1868); Charlotte Corday (1871); Columbus at La Rabida (1872); Portraits of Gladstone, Cobden, Bright, Hume, Garibaldi, and Nelson, South Kensington Museum.—Redgrave; Athenæum (1873); Art Journal (1873), 208.

LUINI, AURELIO. See Luini, Bernardino.

LUINI (Lovino), BERNARDINO (Bernardo), born at Luino between 1475 and 1480, died in Milan, after 1533. Lombard-Milanese school; called by Vasari, del Lupino. Pupil of Civerchio and of Leonardo da Vinci, whose manner

he imitated so closely that many of his pictures pass for the work of his master. His faces wear the Leonardesque smile, though it has not the same depth of meaning, and his manner of painting is similar to that of Leonardo, though it does not reach that almost superhuman degree of finish which distinguishes the Gioconda among pictures. A Pietà in S. M. della Passione, Milan, is an early painting by Luini, but his most important works in that city are the frescos in the Monastero Maggiore, among which the Martyrdom of St. Catherine is justly celebrated for composition and expression; the

71 fragments of frescos in the Brera, including the famous St. Catherine borne by Angels, the Madonna with SS. Anthony and Barbara (1521), the Marriage of the Virgin, a Madonna with St. Elizabeth, the Birth of Adonis, and the Flagellation, Ambrosian Library. Other important frescos by Luini are those in the Church of the Pilgrims at Saronno, Marriage of the Virgin, Christ among the Doctors, Adoration of the Magi, Presentation in the Temple (1525), Sibyls, Evangelists, and Fathers of the Church; and those in S. M. degli Angeli, Lugano—a colossal Passion over the entrance to the Choir, a fresco lunette of the Madonna with the Infant St. John, and a Last Supper. Among Luini's easel pictures are: large altar-piece, Church at Legnano; several small easel pictures, Ambrosian Library, Milan; Madonna, Brera, Milan; Adoration of Shepherds, Adoration of Magi, etc., Dumomo, Como; Salome, Madonna and St. John, Uffizi, Florence; Modesty and Vanity, Palazzo Sciarra, Rome; Virgin and Infant Jesus, Naples Museum; Christ among the Doctors, National Gallery, London; Salome, Holy Family, Sleep of Jesus, Forge of Vulcan, Adoration of Magi, Nativity, and others, Louvre, Paris; Madonna, St. Sebastian, St. Catherine, La Colombine, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; St. Catherine, Copenhagen Gallery; Infants Christ and St. John Kissing, Holy Family, Daughter of Herodias receiving Head of St. John, Madrid Museum; Herodias, St. Jerome Penitent, Vienna Museum; Madonna, The Three Marys, Historical Society, New York. Bernardo's sons, Aurelio (1530-93) and Evangelista, are mentioned by Lomazzo in 1584 as among the best painters of their time. Pictures by Aurelio are in the Brera and in Milan churches.—Vasari, ed. Mil, vi. 519; ed. Le Mon., vii. 43; viii. 217; xi. 276; Lanzi, ii. 492; Burckhardt, 165, 182; Ch. Blanc, École milanaise; Dohme, 2iii.; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 363; Gaz. des B. By Murillo, Duke of Bedford, London; canvas, H. 3 ft. 3 in. × 2 ft. 5 in. The Virgin, in lilac robe, blue mantle, and brown scarf, seated, holds the Child on her lap; her cheek touches his head, which rests on her left shoulder; his left hand rests on the bosom of her dress. Calonne sale (1795), 205 guineas; Bryan sale (1798), to H. Hope, £304. Repetitions: Comtesse Robert de Pourtalès, Paris; Henry Mason, New York; Aguado sale (1843), 2,460 francs. Old copy in S. Isidoro, Seville.—Curtis, 157.

By Murillo, Lord Overstone, London; canvas, H. 5 ft. 4 in. × 3 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, seated on a stone bench, three quarters right, tenderly looks at Jesus, who is seated on her lap, looking front, with both hands on the neck of her dress. Formerly an altarpiece in house of Marqués de Santiago, Madrid, where considered finest small picture of the master; carried to England in 1809 by Mr. Wallis, and sold to Lord Berwick for $2,500; sold at Lord Berwick sale in 1825; bought by Lord Overstone in 1832.—Palomino, iii. 421; Buchanan, Memoirs, ii. 221; Curtis, 154.

By Murillo, Lord Overstone, Lockinge, Berkshire, England; canvas, arched, H. 7 ft. 7 in. × 5 ft. 4 in. The Virgin, in crimson robe, blue mantle, and light blue veil on head, standing on clouds, in a glory of cherubs, with the Child on her right arm. Altarpiece of a church in Seville, whence taken by Soult. Before it left Spain, thieves cut out the centre part, containing the Virgin (half-length) and Child, which was sold in England to Mr. Gray of Harringhay House, from whom Lord Overstone acquired it. Soult took mutilated remainder to Paris, where centre was replaced by a copy by Lejeune. At Soult sale (1852) the picture, then called La Vierge Coupée, was bid in at 5,000 francs. In 1885 Lord Overstone purchased it of Soult's heirs, and the two parts were skilfully reunited after a separation of more than forty years. Considered by Wornum one of the most beautiful of Murillo's pictures of this class. Engraved by Leroux; lithographed by Maggi, in reverse. Lord Overstone owns also a study for it.—Wornum, Epochs, 393; Curtis, 149.

By Murillo, Palazzo Corsini, Rome; canvas, H. 5 ft. 4 in. × 3 ft. 6 in. The Virgin, seated on a stone bench beside a broken wall, holds Jesus seated on her lap.—Curtis, 153; Sterling, ii. 910; Cunningham, Life of Wilkie, ii. 257.

The Virgin and Child on a bank of clouds floating in the sky, with Gabriel kneeling to lift the hem of her mantle ; below, St. Francis with a cross, and St. Blaise, with his hand on the shoulder of a kneeling patron, pointing heavenward ; in the background, the lagoon, with Venice in the distance. Painted in 1520 for S. Francesco, but removed about 1880 to S. Domenico.—C. & C., Titian, i. 233.

MADONNA DEGLI ANGELI. See Madonna del Collo Lungo.

MADONNA WITH ANGELS, Cimabue, Florence Academy ; wood, H. 12 ft. × 8 ft. 2 in. The Virgin, with Jesus on her arm in the act of benediction, on a throne supported by eight angels ; the throne rests on niched supports, in which stand the four prophets who foretold Christ's coming. Painted for the Badia of S. Trinità, Florence. One of Cimabue's earliest extant works ; style still closely Byzantine.—Vasari, ed. Mil., i. 250 ; C. & C., Italy, i. 206 ; Gal. dell' Accad. di Firenze, Pl. 1 ; Riepenhausen, Gesch. der Malerei, i. 6.

By Cimabue, Louvre ; wood, H. 13 ft. 10 in. × 9 ft. The Virgin, enthroned, with Jesus on her lap ; on each side are three angels, placed at equal distances one above another ; on the border, forming part of the picture, are twenty-six medallions of saints and apostles. Painted for S. Francesco, Pisa.—Vasari, ed. Mil., i. 251 ; C. & C., Italy, i. 206.

By Francesco Francia, Munich Gallery ; wood, H. 2 ft. × 1 ft. 6 in. The Virgin supports Jesus who is standing, on a table and holding a bird ; in rear, two angels. Painted about 1490 ; obtained by Maximilian II. from Zambeccari Collection, Bologna, and given by him to Gallery in 1832.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 561 ; Pinak. zu München, Pl.

By Raffaellino del Garbo, Berlin Museum ; wood, round, tempera, small. The Virgin standing, with Jesus in her arms, before a balustrade in a landscape ; at each side an angel, with musical instruments. A notably graceful composition, almost Raphaelesque in conception.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 417.

By Fra Filippo Lippi, Uffizi, Florence ; wood, figures life-size. The Virgin, half life-size, seated at left, adores Jesus held up to her by two angels. A very fine example. Sketch in the Uffizi. Similar composition, with but one angel and the Virgin in act of taking the Child, in the Chiesa degli Imocenti, Florence.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 347 ; Molini, Gall. di Firenze, iii. 84.

By Andrea Mantegna, Brera, Milan. The Virgin seated on clouds, in a glory of singing angels' heads, holding the Infant Christ standing on her lap, his arms around her neck. This picture was attributed to the school of Giovanni Bellini until 1885, when it was discovered that the face of the Virgin had been reduced in size by some restorer in the 17th century, who had painted a white cloth enveloping the head. It is believed to be the picture painted in 1485 for Eleonora d'Aragona, Duchess of Ferrara, afterwards taken to Venice, where it was placed in the Church of S. Maria Maggiore, and whence it was brought to Milan in the time of Napoleon I.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 394 ; Gaz. des B. Arts (1866), xx. 482 ; Kunst-Chronik, xx. 436 ; Zeitschr. f. b. K., xxi. 101.

MADONNA DI ANSIDEI, Raphael, National Gallery, London; wood, H. 9 ft. × 5 ft., figures full-length, less than life-size; dated 1506. The Virgin on a high throne with Jesus on her knees, both reading from a book; on the left stands John Baptist; on right, Bishop Nicholas of Bari, with crozier and book. Painted at Perugia for Ansidei family, as an altarpiece for chapel of S. Nicola da Bari in S. Fiorenzo; bought in 1764 by Lord Robert Spencer, who placed in the chapel a copy by Niccola Monti, and presented to his brother, Duke of Marlborough, whence sometimes called Blenheim Madonna; bought for National Gallery (1884) for £70,000. Engraved by L. Gruner (1856).—C. & C., Raphael, i. 222; Passavant, ii. 31; Müntz, 214; Waagen, Treasures, iii. 127; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 447; Lübke, Raphael, 31, 95; Portfolio (1884), 204.

MADONNA, APPARITION OF, Annibale Carracci, Louvre; canvas, H. 13 ft. 1 in. × 7 ft. 5 in.; signed, dated 1592. At left, St. Luke, kneeling, implores the Virgin, who, with Jesus in her arms and surrounded by the other Evangelists, appears in glory; at right, St. Catherine, her foot upon the wheel. Painted, according to Malvasia, for the chapel of the notaries in the Cathedral of Reggio. From Musée Napoléon.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Landon, Musée, ii. Pl. 46.

MADONNA OF THE APPLE, Murillo, Sir William Eden, Bart., London; canvas, H. 5 ft. × 3 ft. 3 in. The Virgin holds the Child seated on her knee; he has an apple in one hand and with the other clasps one of her fingers. Second manner. Bought in 1834 from Julian Williams.—Curtis, 155; Athenæum, Aug. 18, 1877.

MADONNA DELLE ARPIE (of the Harpies), Andrea del Sarto, Uffizi, Florence; signed, dated 1517. The Virgin (said to be a portrait of Lucrezia Fede, wife of Andrea), with Jesus in her arms, standing supported by two boy angels on a pedestal, on which harpies are sculptured; on the left, St. Francis; on the right, St. John Evangelist. Painted for S. Francesco, Florence; bought by Ferdinando de' Medici, who placed in the church a copy by Francesco Petrucci. One of the best of Andrea's easel pictures. Engraved in 1832 by J. Felsing; Lasinio; Lorenzini.—Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 20; C. & C.,

Pescia. The original was carried to Paris in 1796, and given by Napoleon to the Museum of Brussels, but restored to Italy in 1815. Much injured by cleaning and by the retouching of Agostino Cassana. Studies in the Louvre, at Chatsworth, and in the Lille Collection. Engraved by Lorenzini ; Nicolet (1802) ; G. Morghen ; Biondi ; and Landon.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 328 ; C. & C., Raphael, i. 369 ; Passavant, ii. 90 ; Müntz, 196 ; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 477 ; Landon, Musée, iv. Pl. 33 ; Gal. du Pal. Pitti, iv. Pl. 90 ; Lübke, Raphael, 35, 101.

MADONNA DEL BARACCANO (of the Shed), attributed to Lippo Dalmasio, church of same name, in Bologna. The Virgin and Child enthroned within an archway ; angels hold candelabra at sides, and, lower down, a male and female look up to Virgin's face. Repainted in 1472 by Francesco Cossa, who added the figures below, the male being supposed to be a portrait of Giovanni Bentivoglio, and the female of Maria Vinciguerra. The church was established in 1403, in honor of the miracles performed by the picture, which was painted on a bastion of the city walls.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 524 ; Gualandi, Guida, 139.

angels singing, and above, two others raising the curtains of the canopy over the throne. Begun in 1508, for chapel of Dei family in S. Spirito, Florence, but left incomplete when Raphael went to Rome. After Raphael's death bought by Baldasare Turini for the Cathedral of Pescia, whence sometimes called Madonna di Pescia ; sold in 1697 to Ferdinando de' Medici, son of Grand Duke Cosmo III., who placed it in the Pitti. A copy, made at the time by Pietro Dandini, is still in the cathedral at

Vinci, Collection of Lord Monson, Gatton Park, England. The Virgin, seated, holding Jesus, who reaches forward to greet St. John ; Joseph and Zacharias standing behind, looking at Jesus ; the bas-relief is seen in the lower corner of the picture, under St. John. Similar in composition to the Holy Family of the Hermitage. Probably painted in Milan about 1490. Reduced copy in Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge ; copy in Melzi Collection, Milan. Waagen attributes this picture to Marco d'Oggione, Passavant to Salaino, and Mündler to Cesare da Sesto. Engraved by Forster.—Heaton, 76, 238; Rigollot, Hist. des Arts, etc., i. 274; Mündler, Essai, 114; Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 356.

MADONNA DE BELEN, Murillo, Seville Museum; canvas, H. 3 ft. 11 in. × 3 ft. 2 in. The Virgin, seated, holds the Child, who lies across her lap on a white cloth; with his right hand he seizes the neck of her dress; his left hangs down in front. From

MADONNA OF THE BELL. See Madonna del Campanello.

MADONNA, BELLE JARDINIÈRE (Bella Giardiniera), Raphael, Louvre; wood, arched at top, H. 4 ft. × 2 ft. 8 in.; dated 1507 or 1508. The Virgin is seated in a meadow with landscape in background; Jesus, with his hand in her lap, stands by one knee, and St. John, holding a cross, kneels at the other. Supposed to be the picture ordered by Filippo Segardi of Siena; left incomplete in Florence by Raphael, when summoned to Rome, and finished by Ridolfo Ghirlandajo, who painted the blue mantle of the Virgin. Segardi sold it to Francis I., from whose collection it passed to the Louvre. Passavant notes many copies; the best one is in the Townshend Collection, Kensington Museum, London. Another belongs to Lord Ashburton, Bath House, London. Engraved by E. Rousselet (1656); Chereau; N. Poilly; B. Desnoyers; Audouin; Laugier; G. Levy; J. Bal; Massard; Sasso; N. Aurelio.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 328; C. & C., Raphael, i. 361; Passavant, ii. 67; Müntz, 185; Cab. Crozat, i. Pl. 6; Filhol, vi. MADONNA DEL BELVEDERE, Ottaviano Nelli, S. M. Nuova, Gubbio; tempera on wall, now under glass; dated 1403. Virgin, seated, holding Jesus on her lap, surrounded by saints and angels of different sizes arranged symmetrically against a blue diaper ground. Their faces are sweet, though neither mystic nor elevated in character. The system of highly contrasted colours, abundant ornament, and minute design is characteristic of the earlier Umbrian school, which developed on a Siense basis. Chromo-lithograph in collection of Arundel Society.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 88.

MADONNA OF BURGOMASTER MEYER, Hans Holbein, the younger, Collection of Princess Charles of Hesse Darmstadt; wood, H. 4 ft. 9 in. × 3 ft. 4 in. The Virgin, as Queen of Heaven, standing in a niche, holding Jesus, who extends one hand in benediction; on left, kneeling, are Jacob Meyer, burgomaster of Basle, and a youth, the latter holding a nude infant standing; on right, kneeling, are Meyer's first wife, Magdalen Ber, his second wife, Dorothea Kannengiesser, and Dorothea's daughter Anna. Painted about 1525-26. Bought in Paris in 1822 from M. Delehante by Prince Wilhelm of Prussia for 2,500 thalers. Replica in Dresden Gallery.—Mantz, Hans Holbein, 54; W. & W., ii. 469; Kugler (Crowe), i. 206; Förster, v.

MADONNA OF BURLEIGH HOUSE, Titian, Burleigh House, England; half-length, half of life-size. The Virgin, seated on a stone bench in front of a landscape, looks fondly at Jesus, who smiles as he lies full-length in her lap. Painted about 1508.—C. & C., Titian, i. 111.

MADONNA OF CADORE, Titian (?), parish church of Cadore; canvas, H. 2 ft. × 4 ft. 3 in. The Virgin (Titian's last wife?) bends over Jesus, to whom she gives the breast; to the right, St. Andrew (Francesco Vecelli), bending under a large cross; to the left, St. Titian of Oderzo (said to be Marco Vecelli) kneeling in prayer, with an acolyte (Titian himself) bearing a crozier. Painted about 1560, after death of his brother Francesco Vecelli, probably by Orazio Vecelli, though Vasari assigns it to Titian. The part containing the Madonna and St. Andrew was cut out by a thief, but recovered and restored to its place.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 442; C. & C., Titian, ii. 297; Ridolfi, Maraviglie, i. 265; Gilbert, Cadore, 96, 98.

MADONNA DE' CALZOLARI (of the Shoemakers), Il Sodoma, fresco on a house, corner of the Piazza de Tolomei, Siena. The Virgin, with Jesus in her arms, between SS. John, Francis, Roch, and Crispin, the behind them, three Venetian servants with offerings in a sack. Absurd as an Adoration of the Magi, but perfect as a piece of portraiture and artistical composition. Formerly in the ex-Magistrato de' Camerlenghi.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 306; Zanotto, 289; Boschini, 265.

MADONNA DEL CAMPANELLO (of the Bell), Bartolommeo Schidone, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 10 in. × 8 in. The Virgin, seated, with Jesus in her lap; he reaches forward to take a bell from her hand.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, iii. Pl. 98.

MADONNA DEI CANDELABRI (of the Candelabras) or DEI FIACCOLE (of the Torches), Raphael, Butler-Johnstone Collection, London; round, wood, 2 ft. 1½ in. diameter. The Virgin, with Jesus on her knees, her eyes downcast, is looking toward the spectator. On each side an angel holding a torch. These are later additions, not by Raphael. The principal figures have been much restored, but show admirable drawing; the Virgin is noble and dignified, and the Child full of life and action. Painted in Rome in 1516–17; the latest of Raphael's Madonnas which represent only the Virgin and Child. In Rome, in last century, in Palazzo Borghese, whence sometimes called Borghese Madonna; passed thence to Lucien Bonaparte, then to Maria Louisa, daughter of Charles IV. of Spain and Queen of Etruria, from whom inherited by her son Charles Louis, Duke of Lucca, who sent it to London, where it was bought in 1841 by Mr. H. A. J. Munro, of Novar; bought in at his sale (1878), for £20,000, by his nephew, Mr. H. A. Munro-Butler-Johnstone, who brought it to New York in 1882 and deposited it in the Metropolitan Museum, where it was offered for sale at $200,000. Returned to England in 1884. Engraved by Ern. Moraces; Bettellini; Blot; Fabri; Folo; Bridoux; Gustave Lévy.—Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 97; Passavant, ii. 243; Waagen, Treasures, ii. 132; London Times, June 3, 1878; London Telegraph, June 3, 1878; Lübke, Raphael, 56, 109.

MADONNA DELLA CARAFFA (of the Bottle), attributed to Leonardo da Vinci, Palazzo Borghese, Rome. So called because a bottle containing flowers is one of its accessories. Painted in Florence about 1472; belonged to Clement VII., who greatly prized it. D'Argenville speaks of it as in the Vatican in 1762. It is probably by Lorenzo di Credi.—Heaton, 281; Rigollot, Hist. des Arts, etc., i. 264; Clement, 341; Richter, Leonardo, 8.

MADONNA DEL CARDELLINO (of the Goldfinch), Raphael, Tribune of the Uffizi, Florence; wood, H. 3 ft. 1 in. × 2 ft. 5 in.; figures full-length, under life-size. The Virgin, seated in a meadow, holding a book, looking at infant St. John, who is offering a goldfinch to Jesus; in distance the city of Florence. Painted in 1506 as a wedding present for Lorenzo Nasi of Florence. In 1547, when the Casa Nasi was crushed by a landslip from Monte S. Giorgio, the picture was broken into pieces, which have been cleverly joined. Copies in Geneva Museum, in Consiglio di Stato at Florence, and in possession of Mr. Verity in London, but none by Raphael. Engraved by R. Morghen (1814); Martinet; P. Nocchi; A. Krüger (1830); J. Pavon; Reipenhausen.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 322; Passavant, i. 34; Müntz, 180; C. & C., Raphael, i. 256; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 146; Molini, Gal. di Firenze, i. 121; Perkins, 73; Lübke, Raphael, 34, 96; Rosini, iv. 48.

MADONNA OF THE CARTHUSIANS, Antonio da Murano and Bartolomeo Vivarini, Bologna Gallery; wood, tempera. In centre, the Virgin enthroned adoring Jesus asleep in her lap; on one side, in a niche, a bishop with book and crozier; on the other, SS. Jerome, John Baptist, and Nicholas of Bari; upper course, centre, Christ between angels; in niches, SS. Peter, Gregory, Augustine (?), and Paul, in half-length. Painted in Venice in 1450, by order of Pope Nicholas V., to commemorate the services of Cardinal Albergati. One of the most tasteful combinations of architectural carving and panel painting of its period in N. Italy. The figures show the influence of the Paduan school as affected by Donatello.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 30; Rosini, Pl. 61.

MADONNA DELLA CASA D' ALBA (of the Alva Family). Raphael, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; wood, round, 9½ in. diam. The Virgin, in a fine landscape, leans her back against the trunk of a tree, while Jesus, on her knees, takes a cross offered him by St. John kneeling. Painted in Rome in 1508-9; formerly in the Church of Monte Oliveto at Nocera dei Pagani, near Naples, and bought by the Marchese del Carpio, Viceroy of Naples, for about 1,000 scudi. Later in gallery of Duke d'Alba, Madrid; Duchess d'Alba said to have left it in 1801 to her doctor, who sold it to Count Bourke, Danish Ambassador at Madrid; sold by him for £4,000 to the banker Coesvelt, who sold it in 1836 to Nicholas I. of Russia for £14,000. MADONNA DI CASA PESARO, Titian, S. M. de' Frari, Venice; canvas, arched at top, figures larger than life. The Virgin, with Jesus in her lap, enthroned in the portico of a temple; SS. Peter, Francis, and Anthony of Padua implore her intercession in favor of Jacopo Pesaro and other members of the Pesaro family, who kneel at the foot of the throne; a man in armour with the standard of the Church and a captive Turk symbolize the victory over the Turks at Santa Maura. Painted in 1526; still in its original place, near which is Titian's tomb. One of the finest art creations of any age (C. & C.).—C. & C., Titian, i. 305; Mosehimi, Guida di Venezia, ii. 194.

MADONNA DI CASA SCOTTI, Liberale da Verona, Casa Scotti, Milan. Formerly ascribed to Mantegna.

MADONNA DI CASA TEMPI, Raphael, Munich Gallery; wood, H. 2 ft. 4 in. × 1 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, half-length, standing, pressing Jesus tenderly in her arms; background, landscape with town. A masterpiece which shows an almost absolute abandonment of Umbrian for Tuscan principles (C. & C.). Painted in Florence in 1506. Long unnoticed, covered with dust in Casa Tempi, Florence, where it was as early as 1677; sold in 1829 to Louis I. of Bavaria for 16,000 scudi. Much damaged sketch, of doubtful authenticity, in Musée Fabre, Montpellier. Engraved by B. Desnoyers; Ant. Morghen; S. Jesi; S. Amsler; Wagner; Th. Kisling.—C. & C., Raphael, i. 269; Passavant, ii. 37; Müntz, 170; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 43; Lübke, Raphael, 33, 97; Pinak. zu München, Pl.; Civelli, Bell. di Firenze, 282.

MADONNA OF THE CASIO FAMILY, Giovanni Antonio Beltraffio, Louvre; wood, 6 ft. 1 in. square. The Virgin, seated in centre, with infant Jesus on her knees, receiving the homage of two kneeling donors, Giacomo and Girolamo Casio; the latter, a poet, crowned with laurel, presented by S. John Baptist; near him is S. Sebastian attached to a tree. Painted in 1500 for the chapel of the Casio family in the Church of the Misericordia, near Bologna, in commemoration of the deliverance of Girolamo Casio de' Medici, the poet, from captivity by the Turks. Passed from the chapel to the Brera, Milan, whence it was acquired by the Musée français by exchange in 1812.—Ch. Blanc, École milanaise; Mündler, 39.

MADONNA DEL CONIGLIO (of the Rabbit, Vierge au Lapin), Titian, Louvre; canvas, H. 2 ft. 3½ in. × 2 ft. 9 in.; signed. The Virgin, seated on the grass, with her hand on a white rabbit, which St. Catherine, with Jesus in her arms, stoops to look at; in background, St. Joseph fondles a black lamb near a hut; a summer landscape with distant hills. Painted in 1530 for Federico Gonzaga, Marquis of Mantua; belonged to Louis XIV. No copies known.—C. & C., Titian, i. 338; Filhol, vii. Pl. 493; Landon, Musée, xiii. Pl. 8.

MADONNA, CONNESTABILE or STAFFA, Raphael, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; wood transferred to canvas, 6¾ in. sq. The Virgin, standing in a landscape, holds Jesus on her left arm and reads from a book, which the Child is trying to grasp; in background, hills covered with snow, a boat on a lake, and a man on a white horse. "A genuine and almost priceless masterpiece" (C. & C.). Picture formerly a round in a square, the panel of one piece with the frame. Painted in Perugia about 1502–3 for Alfano di Diamante, uncle of Raphael's friend, Domenico di Paris Alfani, from whom it descended to the collateral branch of the Connestabile Staffa family, Perugia. Sold by Count Scipione Connestabile of Perugia in 1871 for 330,000 francs to the Emperor of Russia, and given by him to the Empress, who bequeathed it to the Hermitage. Original sketch in Berlin Museum shows the Virgin with a pomegranate instead of a book in her hand; when the picture was transferred to canvas in St. Petersburg the outline of the hand and the pomegranate was found, showing that Raphael changed the design on the panel and substituted the book, from which the picture was formerly named Madonna del Libro (of the Book). Copy in Perugia Gallery; several others knees, whose infant lies dead at her feet.—Salon, 1877.

MADONNA

MADONNA, COWPER (the little), Raphael, Panshanger House, near Hertford, England; wood, H. 2 ft. × 1 ft. 5 in. Virgin, half-length, sitting, presents to Jesus, standing on a cushion before her, a bunch of grapes; behind, boy angels and a curtain.—Cat. Munich Gal.

By Pierre Mignard, Louvre, Paris; canvas, H. 4 ft. × 3 ft. 1 in. (Vierge à la Grappe). The Virgin, seated near a table with fruit upon it, holds Jesus upon her knees on a cushion; he raises her veil and takes a grape which she gives him. Collection of Louis XIV.; was at Versailles in 1709–10.—Filhol, iv. Pl. 260; Villot, Cat. Louvre; Larousse, xv. 1029.

Madonna of the Green Cushion, Andrea Solario, Louvre.

By Martin Schongauer, Vienna Museum; wood, H. 10 in. × 6½ in. The Virgin, seated on a wooden bench, holds in her left hand a bunch of grapes, from which she is picking one for Jesus, who stands on her lap embracing her neck; in background, Joseph with an ox and an ass. Acquired in 1806 from Böhm Collection.—Dolme (Keane), 81.

MADONNA IN THE GREEN. See Madonna in the Meadow.

MADONNA OF THE GREEN CUSHION (Vierge au Coussin vert), Andrea Solario, Louvre; wood, H. 1 ft. 9 in. × 1 ft. 6 in.; signed. Called also Vierge à l'Oreiller vert and Vierge allaitant Jésus. The Virgin, her head covered with a white veil, is giving the breast to the infant Jesus, who is lying on a green cushion upon a marble parapet. Painted in France in 1507–9 for the convent of the Cordeliers at Blois; given to Marie de Medicis, in exchange for a copy by Mosnier; passed thence to Cardinal Mazarin, then to the Duc de Mazarin, then to Prince de Carignan, from whom bought for Louis XV.; appears in 1784 in royal cabinet at Versailles. Copy in Hermitage, St. Petersburg. Engraved by Demeulemeester; C. Ulmer; M. L. Butavand; N. Lecompte.—C. & C, N. Italy, ii. 56; Mündler, 203; Villot, Cat. Louvre; Musée royal; Filhol, ix. MADONNA DELL' IMPANNATA (of the Sun-Shade), Raphael, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 5 ft. × 4 ft. The Virgin, standing, about to receive Jesus from arms of St. Elizabeth, who is sitting at left; behind her, a woman (Mary Magdalen?) touches Jesus with her finger; on the right, John the Baptist, seated on a panther's skin, points to Jesus. Behind is a window with a sun-shade (impannata). Painted in Rome about 1514 for Bindo Altoviti of Florence; afterward an altarpiece in chapel of Duke Cosmo's palace; carried to Paris in 1799; returned in 1815. Authenticity doubted; probably mostly painted by Giulio Romano, but a drawing in Royal Collection, England, proves that the design is Raphael's. Engraved by Fr. Villamena (1602); R. Guidi (1604); C. Mogalli; Crispin de Pas; Balzer (1818); E. Esquivel de Sotomayor (1825); Dissard; Bertonnier; Landon; also when in Paris by Lorichon, after design by Ingres.—Vasari, ed. MADONNA, ROGERS, Raphael, Mrs. R. J. Mackintosh, London; wood, H. 2 ft. 8 in. × 2 ft. 1 in. The Virgin sitting behind a parapet on which Jesus stands; he has his arms around her neck, and she supports him with one arm while the other clasps one of his feet. Painted in Rome about 1511. In Orleans Gallery; sold for 150 guineas to Mr. Willet; passed to Henry Hope and to Samuel Rogers, the poet; sold in 1856 to R. J. Mackintosh. Copies in Bergamo, Pesth, and Rome. Study for the heads in British Museum. Engraved by J. C. Flipart, and others.—Cab. Crozat, i. MADONNA DELLA RONDINE (of the Swallow), Carlo Crivelli, National Gallery, London; wood, tempera, 4 ft. 11 in. × 3 ft. 6 in. The Virgin and Child enthroned, with SS. Jerome and Sebastian. Enriched with fruit and flowers, and with a swallow. In a predella below are: St. Catherine; St. Jerome in Wilderness; Nativity; Martyrdom of St. Sebastian; St. George and Dragon. Painted after 1490. Formerly in Church of Franciscans, Matelica; acquired in 1862 from Count L. de Sanctis, Matelica.—Cat. Nat. Gal.; Richter, Italian Art in Nat. Gal., 83, 108.

MADONNA DELLA RONDINELLA (of the Swallow), Guercino, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; canvas, H. 3 ft. 10 in. × 4 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, seated in clouds, turns her head mournfully towards an angel, who presents her a rose; Jesus, in her lap, holds a swallow on his finger. The group of Virgin and Child is identical with that in the upper part of St. William taking the Monastic Habit, in the Bologna Gallery, excepting that in the latter picture Jesus has in his hand a cross instead of a swallow. Engraved by Bonafede.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, ii. Pl. 17.

MADONNA DELLA ROSA (of the Rose), Parmigianino, Dresden Gallery; wood, H. 4 ft. × 3 ft. 2 in. The Infant Jesus reclining and resting one hand upon the globe of the earth, holds in the other a rose apparently just received from the Virgin. Painted, according to Vasari, for Pietro Aretino, the poet, but presented to Clement VII. on his visit to Bologna (1529) to crown Charles V.; afterwards in hands of Zani family of that city. Affò says it was originally a Venus and Cupid, and thinks it was sold to Zani. It was bought in Rome in 1752 by Crespi of the prelate Dion. Zani for Augustus III., King of Poland, for 5,000 scudi. Engraved by G. C. Venenti; Dom. Pellegrini.—Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 228; Affò, Vita . . . Parmigianino, 71; Ch. Blanc, École lombarde, Parmigianino; Gal. roy. de Dresde, ii. Pl. 3.

By Raphael, Madrid Museum; wood, transferred to canvas, H. 3 ft. 8 in. × 3 ft. (Virgen de la Rosa). The Virgin, seated, with Jesus on her knees, with John Baptist, at left, offering a scroll inscribed Ecce Agnus Dei; behind, St. Joseph, in contemplation. Painted about 1517; placed by Philip IV. in Escorial. Sometimes called Holy Family of the Legend; but more commonly as above, because a rose was painted in the lower part when the picture was restored (about 1852). Many copies, with variations. Engraved by Forster; Sirain.—Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 372; Passavant, ii. 533; Lübke, Raphael, 79, 115; Madrazo, 193.

By Spinello Spinelli, Arezzo. The Virgin behind a parapet on which stands Jesus, whom she supports with both hands; background covered with a rosebush with numerous blossoms. Called also Madonna del Duomo. Painted for the now destroyed Church of St. Stefano, Arezzo; removed to a little church in the Via delle Derelitte, where it now is.—Vasari, ed. Mil., i. 685; Gaz. des B. Arts (1874), ix. 114.

By Leonardo da Vinci. See Gallerani.

MADONNA DEL ROSARIO (of the Rosary), Michelangelo da Caravaggio, Vienna Museum; figures more than life-size. Virgin enthroned; SS. Dominick and Peter Martyr distributing crowns of roses to people. Van Dyck is said by Rosa (Pictures of Vienna Gal., 1796, i. 108) to have painted in the head of the donor.

By Domenichino, Bologna Gallery; canvas, H. 14 ft. 8 in. × 8 ft. 9 in. Called also Il Rosario. The Virgin, seated in clouds in a glory of cherubs' heads, supporting the Child, who stands beside her scattering roses on those who invoke his mother's aid. She is surrounded by angels, in three groups, symbolical of the fifteen mysteries of the rosary: 1st group, at left, the five Joyful Mysteries—Annunciation, Visitation, Nativity, Purification, Christ found in the Temple; 2d group, at right, the five Dolorous Mysteries—Christ in the Garden, Flagellation, Crown of Thorns, Procession to Calvary,

The Virgin, seated on clouds, with Jesus on her knee; he holds in both hands a rosary, which the Virgin also holds with her right hand in his lap; beneath, four cherubs. Brought from Spain in 1790 by the English ambassador, Mr. Fitzherbert, afterwards Lord St. Helens. Engraved by Groser; W. Say; R. Graves; in part, by J. Somerville, R. Graves, J. Rogers, A. Feart, H. B. Hall, Lecouturier, Cottrel; several lithographs. Picture repainted in many parts.—Curtis, 149; Passavant, Tour in England, i. 64; Richter, Dulwich Cat.

By Murillo, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; canvas, H. 5 ft. 5 in. × 3 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, seated on a stone bench, with Jesus on her lap holding a rosary with both hands; she also holds it with her right hand. Purchased by Ferdinand III. from painter Fedele Acciaj, who had it from a Roman dealer, Cartoni, for 900 scudi. Engraved by P. Mancion.—Curtis, 151; Gal. du Pal. Pitti.

By Murillo, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 5 ft. 4 in. × 3 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, wearing a yellow veil which falls to her waist, sits on a stone bench embracing Jesus, who stands naked, one foot on the bench, the other on her lap; both hold a rosary with their right hands. Second manner. From the Escorial, collection of Charles III. Etched by B. Maura. Repetition, without

MADONNA WITH ROSES, Titian, Uffizi, Florence; wood, half-length, a little less than life-size. The Virgin, seated, with Jesus in her lap; he stoops to take the roses which St. John offers him; at one side, St. Anthony, white-haired and bearded, leans on his staff. Painted about 1508.—C. & C., Titian, i. 108.

MADONNA DE' RUCELLAI, Cimabue, S. M. Novella, Florence; wood, gabled, H. 13 ft. 7 in. × 8 ft. 11 in. The Virgin, with Jesus on her lap, sitting on a chair which is borne by six angels kneeling, three on each side, one above another; frame ornamented with 30 small medallions with heads of saints. Painted about 1267 for the Cappella de' Rucellai, in S. M. Novella. It was the largest altarpiece ever painted, in its time, and was so much admired that it was carried to the church in a festive procession of people and trumpeters. In this picture the faces have a softer expression than we see in the given Byzantine madonnas; the Child is not lifeless, and the adoring angels are devotional. There is also a decided advance in drawing and colour over Greek examples; stippling is practised instead of shading by lines, and there are blending half-tones instead of a sharp contrast between extremes of light and shade. From this picture the Florentine school dates its advance, and it is therefore of great interest.—Vasari, ed. Mil., i. 254; C. & C., Italy, i. 203; Riepenhausen, Gesch. der MADONNA WITH ST. ANNA, Leonardo da Vinci, Louvre; wood, H. 5 ft. 6 in. x 4 ft. 3 in. The Virgin, seated on St. Anna's knees, leans forward to take Jesus, who is caressing a lamb; background, a mountainous country. Said to have been bought by Francis I., who had it hung in his oratory. If so, it found its way back to Italy, for it was purchased there in 1629 by Cardinal Richelieu, after whose death it passed into collection of Louis XIV. Though its authenticity has been doubted, it is unhesitatingly affirmed by some of the best judges. A copy, attributed to Salai, formerly in S. Celso, Milan, now in Leuchtenberg Gallery, Munich; another in Brera, Milan, with varied background, attributed to Bernardino Luini; a third in Uffizi, Florence, attributed to Salai. Colonna family, Rome, who sold it in 1802 to the King of Naples. On the expulsion of the Bourbons (1860) it fell into the hands of the Duke de Ripalda, who sent it to Madrid. In 1869 sent to Paris, and offered to French Government for 1,000,000 francs; exhibited in Louvre in February, 1870, when war with Germany ended the negotiations; packed in a box during siege of Paris, and sent in June, 1871, to London, where it was offered for sale at £40,000. Remained in the storeroom of the National Gallery, London, until death of Duke de Ripalda (1883), who bequeathed it to ex-King Francis II. of Naples. Engraved by T. A. Juvara. The five panels which once formed the predella of this picture were sold in 1663 to Queen Christina of Sweden, for 600 scudi, and passed thence to the Orléans Collection. They are now scattered as follows: Christ's Agony on the Mount, Lady Burdett-Coutts, London; Christ on Road to Golgotha (Leigh Court sale, 1884, 520 guineas), Lord Windsor; Pietà, Mr. M. H. MADONNA WITH ST. BRIDGET, Titian, Madrid Museum; wood, H. 2 ft. 10 in. × 4 ft. 3 in. The Virgin, seated, with Jesus in her lap; he bends forward to take the flowers which St. Bridget offers in a basin, but turns his face inquiringly towards his mother; saint in armour at left, supposed to be St. Hulfus, husband of St. Bridget, but may be portrait of a donor. Painted about 1508; originally in the Escorial; still wrongly catalogued as by Giorgione. Copy at Hampton Court, not by Titian.—C. & C., Titian, i. 110.

MADONNA WITH ST. CATHERINE, Anton van Dyck, Grosvenor House, London; canvas, H. 3 ft. 8 in. × 3 ft.; figures seen to knees. The Virgin, seated under a tree, gazing upon the Child in her lap, who is worshipped by St. Catherine kneeling, and with her hands crossed holding a palm. From collection of W. A. Ellis. Engraved by Blooteling; Bolswert; Guzzi; Ragot.—Waagen, Treasures, ii. 165; Guiffrey, 245; Smith, iii. 3; Head, Van Dyck, 34.

By Tintoretto, Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 3 ft. 4 in. × 5 ft. The Virgin and Jesus with St. Catherine; in front, a Venetian admiral kneeling. From the reserved pictures in 1853. Restored by Schirmer.

MADONNA OF ST. DOMINICK, Lorenzo Lotto, S. Domenico, Recanati; wood, middle panel 7 ft. 4 in. × 3 ft. 5 in.; dated 1508. The Virgin, enthroned under a panelled arch, and attended by SS. Urban and Gregory, holds the Child in benediction, while two seraphs play the viol and rebeck on the throne steps; to the left, St. Dominick bends in devotion before accepting the dress of his order presented by an angel; on sides, SS. Thomas Aquinas and Flavian and Peter Martyr and Vitale. Painted in Venice; sent to Recanati about 1525.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 498; Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 250; Ricci, Mem. dell' Arte, etc., della Marca d' Ancona, ii. 92.

MADONNA OF ST. FRANCIS, Correggio, Dresden Gallery; wood, H. 9 ft. 8 in. × 7 ft. 10 in.; signed. The Virgin, with Jesus on her lap, sits on an elevated throne under a vaulted canopy; above her head is a glory and a ring of angels' heads, and on each side two angels float in space; on one side of the throne are SS. Francis and Anthony of Padua, and on the other SS. John Baptist and Catherine. Painted in 1514-15 for Franciscans at Correggio; afterwards in Modena Gallery; bought about 1745 from Duke Francesco di Este-Modena by Augustus III., Elector of Saxony and King of Poland. Restored by Palmaroli in 1827. Engraved by Mitelli; Fessard; Lutz; Levy.—Meyer, Correggio, 304, 478; Künst. Lex., i. 428; Gal. Roy. de Dresde, i. Pl. 1; London, Œuvres, viii. Pl. 19; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 499.

MADONNA

MADONNA AND ST. FRANCIS, Guido Reni, Hermitage, St. Petersburg. The saint, kneeling, with his hands crossed on his breast, adores the Infant Jesus who stands on his mother's knees; above them, a violet-coloured drapery held up by three angels. Formerly at Malmaison.

MADONNA OF ST. GEORGE, Correggio, Dresden Gallery; wood, H. 10 ft. 1 in. × 6 ft. 8 in. The Virgin, with Jesus on her lap, enthroned in a chapel, through the arch of which is seen a landscape; below, on one side, St. George in armour, with his foot on the dragon's head, and behind him St. Peter Martyr; on the other side, St. John Baptist, and behind him St. Geminianus receiving the model of the church from an angel; cherubs in foreground. Painted for brotherhood of S. Pietro Martire, Modena, and placed in their church about 1530-32; came in 1649 into possession of Francesco I. of Modena, whence passed to Dresden Gallery in 1745-46. Copy by Cesare Aretusi in S. Barnaba, Mantua. Engraved by Bertelli, Giovannini of Bologna (1699), and by Beauvais. Restored by Hartmann, and Schirmer (1858).—Meyer, Correggio, 315, 479; Gal. Roy. de Dresde, i. Pl. 2; Landon, Œuvres, viii. Pl. 24; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 504; Hübner, Dresden Gal., i. 9; Réveil, ix. 601.

By Giacomo Francia, Bologna Gallery; wood, H. 8 ft 1 in. × 4 ft. 11 in.; signed, dated 1526. The Virgin, seated, holding Jesus, who reaches for the reed cross held by the kneeling St. John; at right, St. George, in full armour, holding his banner by the staff; at left, St. Sebastian tied to a tree and pierced with arrows; behind, SS. Francis and Bernard kneeling; above, three angels with palms and flowers. Formerly in the suppressed Church of S. Francesco, Bologna. Engraved by G. Rosaspina.—Pinac. di Bologna, Pl. 34; Lanzi, iii. 20.

MADONNA OF ST. JEROME. See Giorno, II.

MADONNA WITH ST. JOHN, Anton van Dyck, Munich Gallery; wood, H. 4 ft. 7 in. × 3 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, half-length, standing, holds Jesus standing on an architectural fragment; at left, St. John, half-length, offers a scroll.—Munich Gal., Pl. 55; Eastlake, Notes, 68.

By Giulio Romano, Louvre; wood, H. 11 in. × 10 in. The Virgin, seated, with Jesus in her arms; behind, to right, Infant St. John, with reed cross, pointing with left hand to Jesus. Supposed to have been painted for Cardinal Gonzaga.—Filhol, v. 355; Landon, vi. Pl. 7; Villot, Cat. Louvre.

By Guido Reni, Louvre; copper, H. 10 in. × 8 in. The Virgin, seated, holds on her knees the Infant Jesus, who blesses the young St. John embracing his feet; at right, in window, a vase of flowers. Collection of Louis XIV. Many old and well-executed copies. Engraved by Vallet; Bloemaert; Lochon.—Filhol, i. Pl. 62; Landon, Musée, vi. Pl. 53.

By Guido Reni, Uffizi, Florence; copper. The Virgin (half-figure) near Jesus (seated on two cushions), one of whose feet St. John kisses. Original sketch also in Uffizi.—Molini, Gal. di Firenze, ii. 84; Soc. Ed., Gal. di Firenze, Pl. 117; Lavice, 47.

By Bernardino Luini, Uffizi, Florence; wood. The Virgin, kneeling; at left, Infant Jesus; at right, St. John Baptist playing with a lamb.—Soc. Ed. and Paris, Gal. di Firenze, Pl. 39.

By Pietro Perugino, National Gallery, London; wood, tempera, H. 2 ft. 2½ in. × 1 ft. 5½ in. Bought by the late Mr. Beckford at Perugia, and of him for the National Gallery in 1841 for £800. Has been attributed to Lo Spagna, though signed by Perugino. An unimportant though original work.—Richter, Ital. Art in Nat. Gal., 52, 105.

By Andrea Solario, Leuchtenberg Gallery, St. Petersburg; wood, H. 1 ft. 6 in. × 10½ in. The Virgin holds Jesus in the crenelated opening of a parapet, behind which the Baptist stands with a reed cross and fruits; Jesus holds a bird with a string. Painted about 1515. A forged signature on this panel has led to much controversy.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 60; Mosechini, Mem. della Vita di And. Solario (Florence, 1832); Kunstblatt (1832), No. 38.

MADONNA DI S. LUCA (of St. Luke), attributed to Raphael, Accademia di S. Luca, Rome; wood. St. Luke, kneeling on a footstool before an easel, painting the Virgin, with the Child in her arms, who appears beside it sustained by clouds; behind the saint, an ox lying down and a youth standing, supposed to be Raphael himself. Probably by Timoteo Viti (C. & C.) or Francesco Penni (Gruyer). Formerly in S. Martino, Rome, where is now a copy by Ant. Grammatica. Engraved by J. Langlois; M. Piccioni.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 581; Müntz, 511; Gruyer, Virgès de Raphael, iii. 570; Jameson, Sacred and Leg. Art, i. 566.

MADONNA WITH ST. MARGARET, Parmigianino, Bologna Gallery; wood, H. 6 ft. 5 in. × 4 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, seated under a tree, presents Jesus to St. Margaret, who is kneeling with the head of the dragon beside her; behind, at left, St. Augustine; at right, an angel and St. Jerome. Formerly in S. Margherita, Bologna; carried to Paris in 1796; returned in 1815. Small replica in Louvre, where St. Angus-

Engraved by J. M. Mitelli; N. Dupuis.—Gal. Roy. de Dresde, i. Pl. 20; Réveil, viii. 512.

MADONNA DI SAN NICCOLÒ, Titian, Vatican; wood, formerly arched at top, but squared in time of Pius VII.; H. 13 ft. × 8 ft. 8 in.; signed. The Virgin on a dome of cloud with Jesus in her lap; both bend and look downwards at a group of six saints standing in the curve of a roofless temple; to right, St. Sebastian; to left, St. Nicholas and St. Catherine; and between them, SS. Peter, Francis, and Anthony of Padua. Painted in 1523 for S. Niccolò de' Frari, Venice, where Sir Joshua Reynolds saw it in 1752; Clement XIV. bought it by the advice of Hamilton and Volpato, and hung it in the Quirinal, whence removed to Vatican under Pius VII. Damaged by time and smoke.—C. & C., Titian, i. 288; Leslie, Life of Reynolds, i. 76; Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 436.

MADONNA WITH ST. ONOFRIUS, Lorenzo Lotto, Palazzo Borghese, Rome; wood, H. 2 ft. 1 in. × 1 ft. 8 in.; signed, dated 1508. The Virgin, half-length, holding the Child, between St. Onofrius and a bishop in episcopal robes, who presents the transfixed heart of the Redeemer to the Infant Christ. In good preservation.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 497.

MADONNA WITH ST. ROSALIE, Murillo, Belvoir Castle, Leicestershire, England; canvas, H. about 6 ft. × 5 ft. The Virgin, seated, holding in her lap Jesus, to whom St. Rosalie, kneeling, offers roses; on left, four maidens in white with palms; on right, a street scene with a friar preaching; above, cherubs and heads. Carried to England by Mr. Stanhope (Lord Harrington) on returning from his embassy to Madrid in 1729.—Davies, Murillo, xci.; Waagen, Treasures, iii. 398; Curtis, 163.

By Murillo, Sir Richard Wallace, Bart., London; canvas, half-length, less than life-size. The Virgin, seated, with Jesus in her lap; on left, St. Rosalie (?) offers him two roses.—Curtis, 163.

MADONNA OF ST. SEBASTIAN, Correggio, Dresden Gallery; wood, H. 9 ft. 6 in. × 5 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, with Jesus in her lap, enthroned on clouds, surrounded by cherubs; below, St. Sebastian, a maiden holding the model of a cathedral, St. Geminianus in his bishop's cloak, and St. Roch sleeping. Painted in 1525 for brotherhood of St. Sebastian, an archery company at Modena. Cleaned and restored probably by Ercole dell' Abbate in 1611, and certainly by Flaminio Torre; later by Palmaroli, and finally by Schirmer in 1858. Engraved by Bertelli, Kilian, and Lefèvre. Bought for Dresden Gallery in 1745.—Scanelli, Microcosmo, 287; Meyer, Correggio, 310, 478; Gal. roy. de Dresde, i. Pl. 3; Pongileoni, ii. 198; Landon, Œuvres, viii. Pl. 25; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 504.

MADONNA DI SAN SISTO (of St. Sixtus), Raphael, Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 9 ft. 10 in. × 7 ft. 5 in. The Virgin, with the Child in her arms, standing on clouds, within a glory of cherubim, between two green curtains which are looped back at the sides; at the left, St. Sixtus (Pope Sixtus II.), in a white tunic and gold-coloured pallium turned back with purple, kneels in supplication; on the right, St. Barbara, kneeling and looking downwards; behind her is her attribute, the tower; below, a balustrade, upon which two angels lean, both looking upwards; at left, on the balustrade, is the tiara of St. Sixtus. A rare example of a picture of Raphael's later time, painted entirely by his own hand. No study known to exist. Every form of eulogy has been exhausted on this incomparable masterpiece. The Madonna's beauty is a human beauty, but the Child's is something more—the divine nature shines through the mortal frame and illumines it. Here Raphael's work is above all other work. Painted in Rome in 1518 for the Church of the Monastery of S. Sisto, Piacenza, where Vasari saw it; in 1754 the monks sold it for 40,000 Roman crowns to Augustus III., Elector of Saxony and King of Poland, who presented to the monastery an old copy by Paris Nogari, which still hangs in the place of the original. Restored by Palmaroli in 1826. Engraved by Müller; Tosetti (1821); W. Say (1826); J. Pavon; Dessart; Thouvenin; F. W. Meyer; Nordheim; Schultz; Boucher-Desnoyers (1841); Steinla (1858); Keller. Lithographed by Bodmer; Hanfstängl; Noël; A. Maurin; L. Maurin (1842); L. Zoellner; A. Lecompte.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 365; Rumohr, iii. 131; Passavant, ii. 278; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 595; Klas. der Malerei; Gal. roy. de Dresde, iii. and playing instruments; below, in predella, Christ on Mount, Crucifixion, and Ascension. Painted between 1457 and 1459 at the expense of the prothonotary Gregorio Conaro. Taken to Paris in 1797 and returned in 1815, excepting the predella, one panel of which (Crucifixion) is in the Louvre, the two others in Museum of Tours. Predella in S. Zeno is a copy.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 379; Burekhardt, 578; Gaz. des B. Arts, May 1, 1866; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 394.

MADONNA WITH SAINTS, Francesco Albani, Bologna Gallery; canvas, H. 5 ft. 3 in. × 3 ft. 4 in.; dated 1599. The Virgin, with Jesus in her arms, enthroned, between SS. Mary Magdalen and Catherine. Formerly in SS. Fabiano e Sebastiano, Bologna. Engraved by Rosaspina.—Pinac. di Bologna, Pl. 5.

By Mariotto Albertinelli, Florence Academy; wood, oil, figures life-size; signed. The Virgin and Child, enthroned, between SS. John Baptist and Julian standing, and SS. Dominick and Nicolas of Bari kneeling. Painted about 1510 for S. Giuliano, whence removed to the Academy.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 222; C. & C, Italy, iii. 488.

By Mariotto Albertinelli, Louvre; canvas, H. 5 ft. 11 in. × 5 ft. 8 in.; signed, dated 1506. The Virgin, with Jesus in her arms, standing on a pedestal; at sides, SS. Jerome and Zanobius, Bishop of Florence, kneeling; in distance, scenes in lives of those saints. Painted about 1506 for Zanobi del Maestro, who placed it in S. Trinità, Florence; carried to Paris before 1813.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 224; Landon, Musée, 2d Col., iv. Pl. 34; C. & C, Italy, iii. 487; Meyer, Künst. Lex., i. 222.

By Fra Angelico, Florence Academy; wood. The Virgin and Child enthroned in a niche; at sides, SS. Peter Martyr, Francis, Cosmo, Damian, John Evangelist, and Lawrence. Painted for Annalena Monastery, Florence. Engraved by Chiossone.—Gal. di Firenze, Pl. 23.

By Fra Angelico, Florence Academy. The Virgin and Child enthroned, with an angel at each side, between SS. Francis, Peter Martyr, Anthony, Cosmo, Damian, and Louis. In pediment: Pietà, SS. Peter, Paul, Bernard, and three others. Painted for Convent del Bosco a Frati, Mugello.—C. & C, Italy, i. 585; Gal. Accad. di Firenze, Pl. 32.

By Fra Bartolommeo, S. Martino, Lucca; wood, figures under life-size; signed, dated 1509. The Virgin, with Jesus on her knees, enthroned, between SS. John and Stephen; above, two angels in act of crowning her; below, in front, an exquisite boy angel singing, with a lute. Sketch, made with pen, in Uffizi. Engraved by S. Jesi; M. Steinla.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 191; Marchese, ii. 60; C. & C, Italy, iii. 449; Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Klas. der Malerei, i. Pl. 28.

By Fra Bartolommeo, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 11 ft. 6 in. × 8 ft. 9 in.; dated 1512. The Virgin, enthroned under a canopy the curtains of which are sustained by angels, supports Jesus, who offers the ring to St. Catherine kneeling before him; at sides, St. George, in armour, and St. Bartholomew, with other saints around the throne; in front, two boy angels with lyre and lute. Painted for S. Marco, Florence; given in 1588 to Bishop Milanesi; transferred in 1690 to apartments of Prince Ferdinand, son of Grand Duke Cosmo III., thence to the Palazzo Pitti.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 186; C. & C, Italy, iii. 454.

By Giovanni Bellini, formerly in SS. Giovanni e Paolo, Venice; wood, tempera; signed. The Virgin, enthroned, supporting Jesus erect on her knee; on one side, SS. Thomas Aquinas, Gregory, and Jerome; on the other, St. Catherine of Siena, the Magdalen, and others; between them, three boys singing from a book. Painted about 1472 for a chapel in SS. Giovanni e Paolo; burned with Titian's Peter Martyr, Aug. 16, 1867. Vasari calls it one of the best creations up to its time in Venice. It was Bellini's masterpiece.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 155; C. & C, N. Italy, i. 154.

By Giovanni Bellini, Louvre; wood, H. 2 ft. 9 in. × 2 ft.; signed. The Virgin stands behind a balustrade, on which Jesus stands in the attitude of blessing; at sides, SS. Peter and Sebastian; above, three cherubim on clouds. Acquired in 1859 of M. Van Cuyck for 15,000 francs; previously belonged successively to M. Nieuwenhuys, the Prince of Orange, Mr. Brentano, and Lord Northwick.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; C. & C, N. Italy, i. 185.

By Giovanni Bellini, Venice Academy; wood, H. 15 ft. × 8 ft. 4 in.; signed. The Virgin, with Jesus seated on her lap, enthroned under the semi-dome of a vaulted chapel; at foot of throne, three angels playing instruments; on one side, SS. Francis, Job, and John Baptist; on the other, SS. Sebastian, Dominick, and Louis. Painted about 1480 for S. Giobbe, Venice.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 155; Sansovino, 155; C. & C., N. Italy, i. 163.

By Giovanni Bellini, S. Zaccaria, Venice; wood, transferred to canvas, arched, figures life-size; signed, dated 1505. The Virgin and Child, enthroned under the semi-dome of a vaulted chapel, between SS. Peter and Madonna with Saints, Giovanni Bellini, S. Zaccaria, Venice.

Catherine and St. Jerome and the Magdalen; in front, an angel seated on a step of the throne, playing a viol. Taken to Paris in 1797, transferred to canvas, and badly restored; returned in 1815.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 173; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 162; Landon, Musée, xv. Pl. 10.

By Annibale Carracci, Bologna Gallery; canvas, H. 8 ft. 11 in. × 5 ft. 11 in. The Virgin, enthroned in a niche, with Jesus and Infant St. John; at left, St. John Evangelist, holding a chalice from which a serpent is emerging; at right, St. Catherine of Alexandria. According to Lanzi, Annibale imitated Paolo Veronese in the figure of the Virgin, Correggio in Jesus and St. John, Titian in St. John Evangelist, and Parmigianino in St. Catherine. Painted for S. Giorgio, Bologna. Engraved by A. Marchi.—Lanzi, iii. 71; Pinac. di Bologna, Pl. 36.

By Ludovico Carracci, Bologna Gallery; canvas, H. 8 ft. 7 in. × 5 ft. 7 in.; signed, dated 1588. The Virgin, with Jesus in her lap, enthroned under a portico at right; above, angels with a crown, censers, and flowers; below, SS. Francis, Dominick, Monica, and Mary Magdalen; behind, two angels playing and singing. Engraved by Gio. Fr. Nadius; F. Rosaspina.—Pinac. di Bologna, Pl. 26.

By Cima da Conegliano, Louvre; wood, H. 5 ft. 6 in. × 3 ft. 4 in.; signed. The Virgin, enthroned in front of a balustrade, with Jesus upon her knees, receives the homage of SS. John and Mary Magdalen, who stand one on each side, the latter presenting a vase of perfume; background, a landscape, with view of Conegliano. From Musée Napoléon.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

By Cima da Conegliano, Parma Gallery; wood, figures two-thirds life-size; signed. The Virgin, enthroned, lays her right hand on the head of St. Damian; Jesus, on her knee, turns to bless St. Apollonia; on sides, SS. Cosmo and John, SS. Catherine and Paul; at foot of throne, an angel. Painted about 1500 for Cathedral of Parma.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 238.

By Cima da Conegliano, Parma Gallery; wood, figures two-thirds life-size; forged signature—"Leonardo Vinci, 1492." The Virgin, resting on a stone near a ruined temple, with Jesus beside her on a broken pillar; St. Andrew, with his cross on his shoulder; St. Michael, weighing souls in a pair of scales. Long in Sanvitale Collection, where attributed to Leonardo.—Amoretti, Mem. Stor. di Leo. Vinci, 41; C. & C., N. Italy, i. 238.

By Francesco Cossa, Bologna Gallery; canvas, figures life-size; signed, dated 1474. Virgin and Child enthroned under an arch; on left, St. Petronius and Alberto de' Catanei kneeling; on right, St. John Evangelist. Painted for Domenico d'Amorini and Alberto de' Catanei.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 523; Burckhardt, 579.

By Lorenzi di Credi, Louvre; wood, 5 ft. 3 in. sq. The Virgin enthroned, with Jesus on her knees in the attitude of benediction; at left, St. Julian; at right, St. Nicholas, Bishop of Myra, reading. Painted for Monastery of Cestello, Florence; carried to Paris in 1812. Called by Vasari the best work of the master.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 567; Villot, Cat. Louvre; Landon, Musée, 2d Col., iv. Pl. 19.

By Domenichino, Brera, Milan; canvas, H. 13 ft. 11 in. × 8 ft. 9 in. The Virgin enthroned, with the Child standing on a crimson-velvet cushion; four angels make music for them; other angels in the sky; below are SS. John the Evangelist and Petronius, with two angels. The picture is fine, but somewhat cold. Formerly in S. Petronio de' Bolognesi, Rome.—Lavice, 156.

By Dosso Dossi, Ferrara Gallery; wood, H. 16 ft. 5 in. × 16 ft. The Virgin and Child, with Infant John Baptist, on a lofty throne under a canopy; above, a glory of angels; below, SS. John Evangelist, Jerome, Andrew the Apostle, and others; on sides, in compartments, SS. Sebastian and George below, and SS. Gregory and Ambrose above. A sumptuous picture, called by Burckhardt one of the greatest treasures of art in North Italy.—Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 488.

By Francesco Francia, Bologna Gallery; wood, H. 6 ft. 5 in. × 4 ft. 9 in. The Virgin enthroned, with Jesus on her lap; below, SS. Augustine, George, John Baptist, Stephen, and an angel. Painted for Church of the Misericordia, Bologna; sent to Milan, where it remained some time in the gallery, but finally returned to Bologna. Engraved by G. Rosaspina.—Pinac. di Bologna, Pl. 59.

By Garofalo, Ferrara Gallery; wood, H. 8 ft. × 5 ft.; signed, dated 1514. The Virgin and Child seated upon clouds in a glory of angels; below, SS. Jerome and Francis of Assisi, with two members of the Suxena family praying. Painted for S. Spirito, Ferrara. Restored by Palmaroli in 1826.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 463.

By Domenico Ghirlandajo, Florence Academy. The Virgin and Child between two angels, with flowers; on right, St. Thomas Aquinas; on left, St. Denis Areopagite; in front, SS. Clement and Dominick kneeling. In predella, the Pietà between four episodes of the saints' lives.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 437.

By Domenico Ghirlandajo, Uffizi, Florence; wood, figures life-size. The Virgin and Child enthroned; at sides, two angels and St. Michael, two angels and St. Gabriel; in front, SS. Zenobius and Justus kneeling in adoration. Painted about 1485 for S. Giusto, near Florence; transferred in 1529 to S. Giovanni Battista, called della Scalza; acquired by government in 1857. A noble picture.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 487; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 257; Cinelli, Belezze di Firenze, 126.

By Giorgione, Church of Castelfranco; wood, H. 6 ft. 6 in. × 4 ft. 9 in. The Virgin enthroned, with Jesus on her lap; on one side, St. Francis; on the other, St. Liberale in armour. According to some, the two saints are likenesses of Giorgione and his brother; according to others, St. Liberale is a portrait of Matteo Costanzo, a captain of lances, who died at Ravenna in 1504. Painted after 1504; much repainted. Copy in Stafford House, London; study for St. Liberale, called Knight in Armour, National Gallery, London.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 129; Ridolfi, Maraviglie, i. 123; Richter, 86; Art Journal (1884), 247.

MADONNA

By Girolamo Romanino, S. Francesco, Brescia; wood, arched; signed, dated 1502, but probably not finished until 1512. The Virgin and Child enthroned in an open archway, the sky being intercepted by a green cloth held up by two dancing cherubs; at sides, SS. Francis and Anthony, standing; in front, SS. Bernardino, Louis of Toulouse, Bonaventura, and another, kneeling. Ordered by the executors of Fra Sansone (died 1499), general of the Franciscan order. Formerly the centre of a great triptych, on the doors of which were compositions from the life of St. Francis. Much injured.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 371; Ridolfi, Marav., i. 350.

By Il Rosso, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 11 ft. 5 in. × 8 ft. 5 in. The Virgin and Child, enthroned in a niche, between saints; at right, SS. Sebastian, Bernard (kneeling), Augustine, James, and another; at left, SS. Peter, Paul, and two others; in front, St. Catherine, kneeling, with a book in her hand, and near her a cimeter and a broken wheel. Engraved by Clerici.—Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 158; Gal. du Pal. Pitti, iv. Pl. 84.

By Rubens, Cassel Gallery; canvas. The Virgin, sitting in a landscape, holding Jesus in her arms; near her, St. John, standing; before her, the Magdalen and St. Roch, kneeling; at left, SS. Dominick, Francis, and George, King David, and a bishop, standing.—Zeitschr., v. 202; Cat. Cassel Gal.

By Rubens, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; wood, H. 13½ in. × 9½ in. The Virgin, seated, holds Jesus, who is caressing a lamb, across the neck of which St. John is leaning, holding its ear; behind the latter, St. Elizabeth. Formerly in Houghton Collection. Engraved by Earlom.—Smith, ii. 156.

By Rubens, Duke of Rutland, Belvoir Castle; canvas, H. 8 ft. 6 in. × 7 ft. The Virgin, seated, with the Child in her lap, about to place a crown on the head of St. Catherine, kneeling with a palm-branch in her hand; on the other side, SS. Christina and Margaret, and four angels. One of Rubens' most attractive pictures.—Waagen, Treasures, iii. 399.

By Andrea Salai, Brera, Milan; wood, H. 6 ft. 6 in. × 4 ft. 10 in. The Virgin and Child, to whom St. Peter delivers the keys; behind, St. Paul, standing. Formerly in S. Andrea alla Pusterla, Milan.—Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 366; Brera Cat.

By Andrea del Sarto, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 9 ft. 10 in. × 6 ft. 6 in.; dated 1540. The Virgin in glory, adored from below by SS. Giovan Gualberto, Caterina, Fedele, and Bernardo degli Uberti, Bishop of Parma; rocky background. Ordered in 1529 for Abbey of Poppi in Casentino; paid for in 1531, though unfinished, and completed in 1540, after Andrea's death, by Vincenzo Bonelli, who added the date. Acquired in 1818 by Ferdinand III. Only upper part is Andrea's.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 518; Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 49; Benci, Lettere sul Casentino (Florence, 1821), 17.

By Il Sodoma, Pisa Academy; canvas, figures life-size. The Virgin, with Jesus in her arms, sits on a stone bench in front of a tree; on one side, SS. Sebastian and Joseph; on the other, SS. John Baptist and Peter with book and keys; in front, SS. Mary Magdalen and Catherine, kneeling. Painted in 1542 for S. M. della Spina, Pisa.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 398; Meyer, Künst. Lex., iii. 216, 226.

By Il Sodoma, Turin Gallery; wood, H. 7 ft. 4 in. × 5 ft. The Virgin, seated, holding Jesus, who stands in front of her, enthroned on a pedestal under a canopy, the curtains of which are held back by two flying cherubs; at left, SS. Catherine and Jerome; at right, SS. Lucy and John Evangelist. Painted about 1512-13; formerly at Colle di Val d'Elsa. Engraved by A. Lauro.—Gal. di Torino, iv. Pl. 125; Meyer, *Künst. her lap ; on right, St. Jerome, bareheaded, holds a book ; behind him, St. Stephen with a palm and St. George in armour. Painted about 1508. Engraved by Lisebe-tius. From collection of Archduke Leopold Wilhelm ; taken to Vienna in 1657. Duplicate (canvas) in Louvre, finer and better preserved ; but St. Jerome wears a red cap and is called St. Ambrose, while St. George is named St. Maurice. In collection of Louis XIV.—C. & C., Titian, i. 107 ; Filhol, ix. Pl. 589 ; Landon, Musée, xii. Pl. 38 ; Mündler, Essai, 207 ; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

Madonna with Saints, Paolo Veronese, Louvre.

By Paolo Veronese, Dresden Gallery ; canvas, H. 6 ft. × 14 ft. 9 in. The Virgin, with Jesus in her arms, in a recess behind two pillars, attended by SS. John Baptist and Jerome and an angel, has presented to her, by Faith, Hope, and Charity, a Venetian family ; in background, a palace on a canal with gondolas in front. The palace is the one constructed by Palladio for the Cocina family ; hence supposed its members are represented in the picture, although Ruskin calls it Veronese himself and his family. From Modena Collection. Restored by Pahlen in 1827, and by Schirmer in 1856. Engraved by Kilian.—Gal. roy. de Dresde, i. Pl. 15 ; Ruskin, Mod. Painters, v. 226.

By Paolo Veronese, Louvre ; canvas, H. 1 ft. 8 in. × 1 ft. 1 in. The Virgin, seated in a splendid apartment, with Jesus on her lap ;

the Magdalen holds the Child's hand to be kissed by a kneeling Benedictine nun, who is presented by Joseph ; behind the Virgin, St. Elizabeth weaves a crown of flowers. From collection of Louis XIV. ; belonged in 1662 to Comte de Brienne. Engraved by Boutroi.—Musée royal, ii. ; Landon, Musée, 2d Col., ii. Pl. 59.

By Paolo Veronese, Venice Academy ; canvas, H. 11 ft. 2 in. × 6 ft. 4 in. The Virgin, enthroned in a semicircular niche, with Jesus in her arms ; beside her is St. Joseph, and below him St. Jerome ; on the other side, SS. Catherine (or Justina?) and Francis ; all apparently listening to St. John Baptist, who stands on a balustrade in front of the throne. Painted for S. Zaccaria, Venice ; taken to Paris in 1797, but returned in 1815 and placed in the Academy.—Filhol, vii. Pl.

481 ; Landon, Œuvres, xxi. Pl. 12 ; Musée, xii. Pl. 17.

By Luigi Vivarini, Berlin Museum ; wood, oil. The Virgin, enthroned in a portico, with Jesus on her lap ; to the left, SS. John Baptist and Jerome ; to the right, SS. Augustine and Sebastian. Painted for S. Cristoforo, Murano.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 66.

By Bartolommeo Vivarini, Naples Museum ; wood, tempera, half life-size ; signed, dated 1465. The Virgin, enthroned, adoring Jesus asleep in her lap ; on each side, two saints, full-length, and above them, other saints, half-length, issuing from clouds. Painted for church at Bari.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 41 ; Rosini, Pl. 67.

By Luigi Vivarini, Venice Academy ; wood, figures under life-size ; signed, dated 1480. The Virgin enthroned, with Jesus standing on her lap ; on one side, SS. Bernardino, Anthony, and Anna ; on the other, SS. Joachim, Francis, and Buonaventura. Formerly in S. Francesco, Treviso.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 56 ; Ridolfi, Maraviglie, i. 50 ; W. & W., ii. 296.

MADONNA WITH SAINTS AND ANGELS, Francesco Francia, S. Jacopo Maggiore, Bologna ; wood, figures life-size ; signed. The Virgin and Child enthroned, with adoring angels at sides and playing angels in front ; at right, SS. Florian and Augustine ; at left, SS. John Evangelist and Sebastian. Painted in 1499 for Giovanni Bentivoglio. Well preserved.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 537 ; C. & C., N. Italy, i. 561 ; Gualandi, Guido, 94.

By Luigi Vivarini, Berlin Museum ; wood, life-size ; signed. The Virgin enthroned, with Jesus on her lap ; to left, SS. George, Peter, and Catherine ; to right, SS. Mary Magdalen, Jerome, and Sebastian ; at foot of throne, two angels, one playing the lute, the other the flute. Lermolief' calls it one of the most remarkable of the 15th century Venetian works. Painted in 1501 for S. M. dei Battuti, Belluno. In 1815 owned by Count Marino Pagani, of Belluno.—Vasari,

MADONNA WITH SS. JEROME AND FRANCIS, Raphael, Berlin Museum ; wood, H. 14 in.  $\times$  11 $\frac{3}{4}$  in. The Virgin, her head covered with a blue mantle, holds Jesus on a cushion on her knees, looking lovingly at him ; he, clasping her hand in his left, raises his right hand in benediction ; St. Jerome, in a cardinal's hat, kneels on left, and St. Francis, in ecstasy, on right ; in background, a town and high mountains. Painted about 1503 ; belonged successively to the Borghese and Aldobrandini families ; then passed into Germany to collection of Count Von der Ropp, and in 1820 to Berlin Museum.—Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 436 ; Passavant, ii. 11 ; Müntz, 59 ; Lermolieff, 365 ; Lübke, Raphael, 15, 92.

MADONNA WITH SS. JOHN AND CATHERINE, Titian, National Gallery, London ; canvas, H. 3 ft. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  in.  $\times$  4 ft. 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  in. ; signed, dated 1533. The Virgin, stopping near Bethlehem to rest, sits with Jesus in her lap, and takes a bunch of flowers from the Infant St. John, whilst St. Catherine gazes in rapture ; behind, a beautiful vista of undulating country, at evening ; in distance, the angel appearing to the shepherds. Belonged to the Coesvelt Collection, and in 1720 to the Duc de Noailles in Paris ; thence to the Baucousin Collection, from which bought for National Gallery in 1860. Copy by Pietro da Cortona in Capitol Gallery, Rome. Engraved by Audran.—C. & C., Titian, i. 206 ; Gilbert, Cadore, 36 ; Richter, 86.

MADONNA WITH SAINTS OF MODENA, Guercino, Louvre ; canvas, H. 10 ft. 10 in.  $\times$  7 ft. 6 in. The Virgin, seated upon clouds, and accompanied by two angels, holds in her arms Jesus, who is in the act of blessing ; at left, St. Geminiannus receiving from an angel a model of the city of Modena ; behind him, another angel bears his cross ; St. John Baptist, kneeling, at right, SS. Peter Martyr and George, patron saints of the city. Ordered in 1651 by Duke of Modena for S. Pietro Martire, but not put in place until 1668, after Guercino's death ; taken to France in 1796.—Malvasia, ii. 269 ; Landon, Musée, ii. Pl. 59 ; Meyer, Künst. Lex., iii. 5

MADONNA OF SERRAVALLE, Titian, S. Andrea, Serravalle; canvas, arched at top, H. 14 ft. × 7 ft.; signed. The Virgin and Child on clouds, surrounded by cherubim in a glory; below, SS. Peter and Andrew; in the distance, Christ in a fishing-boat, calling Peter and Andrew from their nets. Painted in 1547. Somewhat injured by cleaning and retouching.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 145; Burckhardt, 720.

MADONNA DE LA SERVILLETA (of the Napkin), Murillo, Seville Museum; canvas, H. 2 ft. 2 in. × 2 ft. 3 in. The Virgin, half-length, holds Jesus on her left arm; he is in lively action, apparently struggling out of her arms. Painted about 1676 for altar of Capuchin Church, Seville. Doubtful story that it was painted on a dinner-napkin for a lay-brother who served Murillo as cook, the artist having used all his canvas. Similar story told by Davies concerning a Head of Christ. Engraved by Blas Amettler; A. Boilly; lithographed by L. Maurin.—Stirling, ii. 879; Davies, Murillo, 35; Curtis, 159.

MADONNA DELLA TENDA (of the Curtain), Raphael, Munich Gallery; wood, H. 2 ft. 7 in. × 1 ft. 9 in. The Virgin seated, her right arm around Jesus, who sits on her knees; Infant St. John behind, with his reed cross, in adoration; green curtain in background. Similar in composition to M. della Sedia. Sometimes called Vierge à la Croix. Painted in Rome about 1516. A doubtful story is, that the picture, formerly in the Escorial, was taken to France in 1813, and thence to England, where Sir Thomas Baring bought it for £4,000, and in 1814 sold it to the Prince of Bavaria for £5,000. Such a picture was owned by Mr. J. Purling in 1789. Many copies; one of best in Turin Gallery. Original sketch in possession of Duke of Devonshire. Engraved by P. MADONNA DI TERRANUOVA, Raphael, Berlin Museum ; wood, round, 2 ft. 10 in. diameter. Virgin seated, Jesus lying on her knees ; on left, Infant St. John ; on right, another child (St. John Evangelist?). Painted in Florence in 1505 for Terranuova family of Genoa, afterwards of Naples ; in their possession until 1854, when sold to King of Prussia for 30,000 scudi. Fairly preserved, and but little retouched. In it the genius of Raphael may be seen struggling between the tendencies of the Umbrian and Florentine schools (C. & C.). Studies in Berlin Museum and Venice Academy. Engraved by J. Scotto (1823) ; Ed. Schäffer.—C. & C., Raphael, i. 172, 193, 231 ; Passavant, ii. 25 ; Müntz, 176 ; Lübke, Raphael, 33, 93 ; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 121 ; Lermolieff, 378.

MADONNA DEL TRONO (of the Throne), Fra Bartolommeo, Uffizi, Florence. The Virgin enthroned, with Jesus in her lap and Infant St. John kneeling at her feet ; behind her, St. Anna, standing, gazing upwards at a choir of angels and cherubs ; on each side of the throne, the ten patron saints of Florence, and on the steps in front, two angels seated. Fra Bartolommeo's last picture, left unfinished at his death in 1517. Ordered for the grand saloon of the Republic of Florence, but placed, in time of the Medici, in S. Lorenzo, whence removed to Uffizi.—Lasinio, i. Pl. 86 ; Vasari, ed. Mil. ; Soc. Ed. and Paris, Gal. di Firenze, Pl. 24.

Bought in 1871 from Mr. Nieuwenhuys; Walsh-Porter sale (1810), £420.—Curtis, 259.

By Murillo, Academia S. Fernando, Madrid; canvas, figure full-length, life-size. In white chemise and brown robe, with red drapery over limbs, seated front, with hands clasped, looking to her right; in her lap, an open book. Engraved by S. Brieva.—Curtis, 260.

By school of Murillo, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 5 ft. × 4 ft. Partly draped in gray robe and red mantle, seated nearly front, on a rock in a cavern, looking up, her cheek resting on her right hand, her left holding an open book against her body; beneath her elbow is a skull, and on the rock beside it a cross. From Palace of Ildefonso (?). Lithographed by H. Blanco.—Curtis, 259; Madrazo, 489.

By Rubens, Vienna Museum; canvas, H. 6 ft. 3 in. × 4 ft. 7 in. Seated at left, in a white satin robe and blue vest, with clasped hands and streaming eyes turned upwards, trampling her casket of jewels under her feet; the tranquillity of a religious life represented by a female figure in black seated in background. Engraved by Vorsterman.—Smith, ii. 90.

By Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; canvas. The Magdalen in a beautiful landscape, with a laurel tree near a brook in foreground. Companion picture to St. Mary of Egypt, the two being painted to fill narrow spaces between windows.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 330.

By Titian, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; canvas, H. 3 ft. 9 in. × 3 ft. 3 in.; signed. Figure, seen to the hip, scantily clad in a white garment striped with red and black; well-developed bosom and throat covered by long, wavy hair; skull and open book to right, little vase to left. Painted about 1561; passed in 1581 from Pomponio Velli to the Barberigo family, and thence to the Hermitage. Replicas, with variations, in Naples Museum and Palazzo Durazzo, Genoa; another lately in Ashburton Collection, London. Numerous late copies.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 313; Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 454; Cat. Hermitage.

By Titian, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 2 ft. 9 in. × 2 ft. 3 in.; signed. A young woman, nude, half-length, her shoulders partly covered with golden tresses which she presses to her breast; her upturned face and eyes and falling tears imply a penitence which her form belies. Probably painted about 1531 for Francesco Maria, Duke of Urbino. Original, painted for Marquis of Mantua to be presented to D'Avalos del Vasto, has disappeared. Many copies by Titian's disciples and others: two in Palazzo Doria, Rome; two at Hampton Court; fine one, with variations, in Naples Museum.—Vasari, ed. MANNA, FALL OF, Nicolas Poussin, Louvre, Paris; canvas, H. 4 ft. 10 in. × 6 ft. 6 in. Scene: a rocky desert, with high cliffs and trees on each side, and the tents of Israel in a valley in background; in middle ground, Moses and Aaron, with people prostrating themselves before them; in foreground, men, women, and children gathering manna. Painted in Rome in 1639 for M. de Chantelon, whence passed to Louis XIV. Engraved by G. Chasteau (1680); B. Audran; Bern; H. Testelin.—Landon, Musée, viii. Pl. 33; Réveil, xii. 852.

By Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; square, on ceiling of upper room. The Israelites in a soft green meadow surrounded by blue hills with rich trees above them, to the branches of one of which is attached a gray drapery to catch the manna; some sheep also catch manna as it falls, or lick it from each others' fleeces; above, God the Father, seen through an opening in the clouds.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 346.

By Tintoretto, S. Giorgio Maggiore, Venice; canvas, square, ceiling of upper room. A brook flowing through a mountainous country, studded with thickets and palm-trees; the Israelites busied in various manufactures more than in gathering manna—one group forging, another grinding manna in a mill, another making shoes, a woman making a dress, and some washing—the idea being to express the continuity of the supply.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 302; Ridolfi, Marav., ii. 198.

By Paolo Veronese, SS. Apostoli, Venice; left wall, Cappella Maggiore.—Zanotto, 366.

MANNI, GIANNICOLA, born at Città della Pieve about 1470 (?), died in Perugia, Oct. 27, 1544. Umbrian school; pupil and assistant of Perugino, in whose shop he was probably a companion of Raphael. Among his youthful works are a Madonna, ascribed to Raphael, Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge (C. & C.), and a Saviour in Glory between the Virgin and Evangelist, Perugia Academy. Frescos by him are in various churches in Perugia. In the Louvre is a Madonna enthroned with Saints, ascribed to l'Ingegno, which shows a mixture of Perugino, Pinturicchio, and Raphael; in the National Gal-

71 as pensioner of the French Academy; became in 1772 court-painter and director of the newly erected Art School at Zweibrücken, and was called to Munich by the Elector Maximilian, in 1799, as director of all art collections in Bavaria. MANNLICH, JOHANN CHRISTIAN VON, born in Strasburg, Oct. 4, 1740, died in Munich, Jan. 3, 1822. History painter, son and pupil of Konrad Mannlich (1701–59, court-painter at Zweibrücken), and studied in Mannheim under Zinzenich and Verschaffelt; went to Paris in 1763 with his patron, Duke Christian IV. of Zweibrücken, and studied under François Boucher; having returned to Mannheim in 1764, he accompanied the duke to Paris again in 1776, then was in Rome in 1767–

Christ.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xx. 207; Cotta's Kunstbl. (1822), 165.

MANNOZZI, GIOVANNI, born at San Giovanni in 1590, died in Florence, Dec. 9, 1636. Florentine school; sometimes called Giovanni da San Giovanni; pupil of Matteo Rosselli, whose finished style was not suited to the capricious imagination and facile execution of his pupil. Though he often fell into absurd extravagances, Mannozi was capable of better things when he saw fit to work seriously. Works: Portrait of a Cook, Reunion of Huntsmen, Madonna, Pitti, Florence; Venus and Cupid, Marriage of St. Catherine, Jesus served by Angels, Madonna, Uffizi, Florence.—Ch. Blanc, École florentine.

MANOAH, SACRIFICE OF, Rembrandt, Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 8 ft. 7 in. × 10 ft.; signed, dated 1641. Manoah and his wife kneeling before an altar, on which their sacrifice is burning; above the smoke, the angel ascending (Judges, xiii. 20).—Smith, vii. 14; Vosmaer, 458.

MANS, FREDERICUS H., died after 1687. Dutch school; landscape and figure painter, about whose life nothing is known; probably worked at Utrecht. His pictures are frequently to be found in private collections in Holland. Works: View on the Downs (1673), Rotterdam Museum; Winter Landscape (1668), Oldenburg Gallery; Three do. (1677), Dresden Museum; Dutch Landscape, Leipzig Museum; Skating on Village Pond (1687), Vienna Museum.

MANSKIRSCH, BERNARD GOTTFRIED, born at Bonn in 1736, died in Cologne, March 19, 1817. Landscape painter, pupil of his father, a painter of some repute; accompanied his patron, the Elector Clemens Wenceslaus of Treves, on a journey in 1776, was in Coblenz in 1786, and settled in Cologne about 1790. His pictures sold for considerable sums in England, Holland, and Switzerland. Works: Two Landscapes in Cologne Museum.—Merlo, Nachrichten, 269.

MANSKIRSCH, FRANZ JOSEF, born about 1770 or 1778, died in Dantzic in 1827. Landscape painter, son and pupil of Bernard, whom he surpassed; went to England in 1796; was in Germany again in 1805, when the Empress Josephine ordered him to paint views around Aix-la-Chapelle and on the Rhine; was called to Bonn in 1823, afterwards went to Memel, thence to Frankfurt, Berlin, and Dantzic, where, having become destitute, he stabbed himself. Works:

Castle Dürnstein on the Danube (1798); Two Landscapes with Oxen; Landscape with Gothic Ruin.—Merlo, Nachrichten, 271.

MANSUETI, GIOVANNI, end of 15th and beginning of 16th century. Venetian school; pupil of the Bellini in Venice. There are extant at least a dozen of his pictures, in several of which he nearly approaches the excellence of Carpaccio. In his Miracle of the Cross (1493), Venice Academy, the short, square, rigid, and motionless figures are mingled in the manners of Gentile Bellini and Carpaccio. In the same gallery are St. Mark curing Anianus the Cobbler; St. Mark preaching in Alexandria, in which he closely approaches Carpaccio, and Glory of St. Sebastian (1500). Mansueti's latest period may be studied in a St. Jerome, and a Pietà, in the Bergamo Gallery, and in a Christ in the Temple, Uffizi, Florence. Charles Blanc places Mansueti among the best painters of Gentile Bellini's school.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 219; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., v. 19.

MANTEGNA, ANDREA, born near Padua in 1431, died in Mantua, Sept. 13, 1506.

Paduan school; history painter, pupil of Squarcione, who adopted him in 1441; worked at first like the realists Zoppo and Schiavone, as his Ecce Homo, in the Communal Gallery, Padua, shows, but afterwards came so much under influence of the Florentine school, which worked at Padua through Donatello and Uccello, and of the Venetian, through Jacopo Bellini, whose daughter Niccolosia became his wife, that Squarcione quarrelled with him. A fresco of SS. Bernardino and Anthony, over the high portal of his Basilica at Padua (1448), is his earliest extant work, but the altarpiece of St. Luke and Saints (1454), at the Brera, Milan, painted for S. Giustina at Padua, is the first which displays the master's characteristics. It and the St. Euphemia, in the Museum at Naples, are the only representatives of his early Paduan period. After 1448 Mantegna began to paint a continuation of the Life of St. James, begun by Pizzolo, in the Church of the Eremitani, Padua. The Saint exorcising the Devils, and Called from his Nets were probably designed and partly executed by Mantegna, but those of James Baptizing, and on his Trial, as well as the rest of the chapel, are altogether his work. They show a close study of the antique, as well as minute observation of common nature, and are characterized by an excessive display of scientific knowledge. The human form, regarded as a geometrical unit, is treated architecturally, and perspective is carried so far by the precipitation of the lines that the inner parts of all the figures, excepting those on the very edge of the foreground, are concealed. In no other painter's works are to be found so strange a mixture of classic feeling, realism, and science, combined with rare dramatic power and intensity of life, as in those of Mantegna; whose style may be studied to advantage, not only in his paintings, but in the few precious engravings which he executed on copper after 1468. About 1460 Mantegna entered the service of Luigi Gonzaga, Marquis of Mantua, but he did not take up his residence there until 1471. In 1459 he painted the Madonna of San Zeno, Verona, and the Christ in the Garden, Baring Collection. The Madonna, and the Presentation in the Temple, Berlin Museum, the St. George, Venice Academy, and the admirable St. Sebastian, Vienna Museum, belong to the years 1464-66. Between 1471 and 1474 Mantegna decorated the walls of the so-called Camera de' Sposi in the Castello at Mantua with pictures in distemper, one of which represents the Marquis of Gonzaga and his family. The dead Christ and the Marys (1474), Brera, and a Madonna (1485), in the collection of Sir Charles Eastlake, preceded the famous Triumph of Julius Cæsar; probably of the same period (1485?) is the Madonna with Angels, identified recently, in the Brera, Milan. Called to Rome in 1488 by Innocent VIII, Mantegna remained there two years, during which he painted some now destroyed frescos in the Chapel of the Vatican; a Madonna, Uffizi; Parnassus, Wisdom victorious over Vices, Louvre; Man of Sorrows, Copenhagen. The Assumption, in the Trivulzi Gallery, Milan, was painted in 1497, and the Madonna della Vittoria, Louvre, about the same time. In the National Gallery, London, are the Triumph of Scipio, Summer and Autumn, Samson and Delilah, and a Madonna with Saints; in the Historical Society, New York, a Crucifixion, and an Adoration of the Magi. The latter years of Mantegna's life at Mantua were full of trouble, on account of the banishment of his son Francesco and his greatly reduced circumstances. His tomb in the Church of S. Andrea is marked by an admirable portrait bust in bronze, perhaps the work of the great medallist Sperandio. His second son, Francesco (1479—after 1517), was the painter of a Noli Me Tangere, and a Resurrection, in the National Gallery, London.—Art Journal (1882), 225; C. & C., N. MANTOVANO, IL. See Feti, Domenico.

MANUEL, NICOLAUS, called Deutsch, born in Berne about 1484, died there, April 30, 1530. German school; history painter, about whose artistic training nothing is known. His family name was Alleman, of which Deutsch is a translation. Elected member of the Great Senate of Berne in as a painter, poet, soldier, and statesman. Painted many monumental mural decorations. There are many drawings in the Basle Museum by this master, who must be counted among the most noteworthy representatives of the renaissance on this side of the Alps. Works: Beheading of St. John, Lucretia (1517), David and Bathsheba (1517), St. Ann, Pyramus and Thisbe, Judgment of Paris, Invocation for Deliverance from the Plague, Basle Museum; Altarpiece with St. Luke and Birth of the Virgin, Peasant Wedding in 16th Century, Artist's Portrait (1630?), Berne Museum.—Allgem. d. MARAIS, ADOLPHE CHARLES, born at Honfleur (Calvados); contemporary. Landscape painter, pupil of Busson, Berchère, and C. de Cock. Medal, 3d class, 1880. Works: Crossing the Brook (1876); Forest Border with Animals, Herd in the Plains (1877); Cows drinking in Forest of Touques, Hostelry Yard in Normandy, Sunset (1878); Storm near Arundel, Road to Blackhurst Farm (1879); Pastures of Merville, Herd on the Road (1880); Rest in the Woods (1881); The Ford (1883).

1511, where he was one of the leaders of the Reformation until 1528, and acquired fame

MARÁK, JULIUS, born at Leitomischl, Bohemia, March 29, 1835. Landscape painter and illustrator, pupil of Prague Academy under Haushofer, then studied for a short time in Munich, and settled in Vienna in 1858. Works: Congress of Storks under the Elms, Vienna Art Union; Runie Stone in Oak Wood; Moonrise in Pine Woods; Forest Solitude; Evening near Sadowa in 1866; Four Seasons; Four Divisions of Day; View in Lavant Valley (1884).—Meyer, Conv. MARATHON, BATTLE OF. See Panænus.

MARATTI (Maratta), CARLO, Cavaliere, born in Camerano, May 13, 1625, died in Rome, Dec. 15, 1713. Roman school; best and favourite pupil of Andrea Sacchi; at first painted mostly Madonnas, whence often satirically called Carluccio delle Ma-donne. Through Sacchi's influence he obtained a commission to paint, in S. Giovanni in Laterano, Constantine destroying the Idols, which was highly prized. From this time he was very successful, and he became one of the most popular painters in Rome, executing many works for churches and public buildings. Among his largest and most important works was the decoration of the cupola of the church of Urbino, destroyed by the earthquake of 1782. Under Innocent XII. Maratti was superintendent of the paintings in the Vatican, and Clement XI. conferred on him the Order of Christ and commissioned him to restore the frescos of Raphael. To this he owes much of his fame, but his restorations have been severely criticised. He was Prince of the Academy of St. Luke at the time of his death. Maratti's works are characterized rather by absence of defects than by any especial merits. His design and colouring are generally pleasing, but his handling is weak and his feeling superficial. He was a close imitator of Guido Reni. Works: Madonna, Palazzo Doria, Rome; Annunciation, The Virgin, Turin Gallery; Adoration of the Shepherds, Basle Museum; Magdalen in Meditation, Musée Rath, Geneva; Madonna (2), The Virgin contemplating the Infant Christ, Dresden Museum; Christ on Mount of Olives, Fürstenberg Gallery, Donaueschingen; St. John in Patmos (1698), Sleeping Child, Portrait of a Cardinal, Old Pinakothek, Munich; The Virgin with the Child in the Cradle, Allegory on Vanity, Wood Nymph Bathing, Madonna, Children by Vase with Flowers, Schleissheim Gallery; Holy Family, Weimar Museum; Death of St. Joseph (1676), Presentation in the Temple, Holy Family (1704), The Trinity, Museum, Vienna; Bathsheba, Liechtenstein Gallery, ib.; Repose in Egypt, Harrach Gallery, ib.; Holy Family (2), Czernin Gallery, ib.; Adoration of the Shepherds, Holy Family, Annunciation, Portrait of Pope Clement IX., several others, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Madonna in Glory, Hagar and Ishmael, Madrid Museum; Apollo pursuing Daphne, Madonna, Brussels Museum; Portrait of a Cardinal, National Gallery, Lon-

MARC, (JEAN) AUGUSTE, born at Metz, July 12, 1818, died at Suresnes (Seine), May, 1886. History and genre painter, pupil of Drölling, of Delaroche, and of the École des Beaux Arts. L. of Honour in 1868, when he also became director of L'illustration, of which he was then one of the most esteemed contributors. Works: Soap-bubbles (1848); Allegorical Figure of France (1855), Metz Museum; Assassination of Duc de Guise, 1563 (1857); Mozart playing the Violin; Eve Asleep; Sultana at the Bath; Christ in the Prætorium, Cathedral of Mexico.—Belier, ii. 25; Chronique des Arts (1886), 165.

MARC, WILHELM, born at Landshut, Bavaria, Oct. 9, 1839. Genre painter, pupil of Munich Academy and of Erich Correns; has repeatedly visited Italy; paints in the manner of the old Venetian and Dutch masters. Works: Decameron; Housewife; Concert; Aphrodite; Alpine Shepherdess; City and Country (1874); Children in Village Churchyard, Venus Anadyomene (1876); Evening in Convent Garden; Recess in Boarding-School; Morning Prayer; A Question (1883); Procession at Wackersberg, Music at Eve on the Alp (Jubilee Exhibition, Berlin, 1886).—Müller, 352; *Illustr. MARCEAU, DEATH-BED OF, Jean Paul Laurens, M. Turquet, Paris; canvas, H. 8 ft. × 10 ft. François Séverin des Graviers Mareeau, division commander in the French army, was mortally wounded near Altenkirchen, Rhenish Prussia, Sept. 20, 1796; and was carried within the Austrian lines, where he died three days later, universally regretted, even by his enemies. The picture represents his body in full uniform upon his death-bed, surrounded by several French officers at left and the Austrian staff-officers at right. Salon, 1877; exhibited in New York, 1886.

MARCELLIS. See Marseus.

MARCELLO, NICCOLÒ, portrait of Doge, Titian, Vatican; canvas, H. 4 ft. 11 in. × 2 ft. 11 in. Painted about 1508. From Aldrovandi Collection, Bologna.—C. & C., Titian, i. 112.

MARCH, ESTÉBAN, born in Valencia about 1590, died there in 1660. Spanish school; pupil of Pedro Orrente, from whom he learned to colour in the Venetian manner. Painted principally battle scenes and coarse subjects, but sometimes also religious compositions. Most of his pictures are in Madrid and Valencia; a great Battle Scene by him (1660) is in the Schwerin Gallery. Works: Portrait of J. B. del Mazo, Passing the Red Sea, and six other pictures, Madrid Museum. His son and scholar, Miguel (1643-70), who studied in Italy, painted similar pictures, but with less success.—Ch. Blanc, École espagnole; Madrazo, 438; Stirling, i. 756.

MARCH TO FINCHLEY. See Finchley.

MARCH TO PARIS IN 1814, Feodor Dietz, National Gallery, Berlin; canvas, H. 11. ft. 6 in. × 13 ft. 10 in.; signed, dated 1868. Having defeated Napoleon at La Rothière on February 1, 1814, Marshal Blücher, authorized by the war-council of the allied monarchs, began the advance towards Châlons on February 2d. The picture shows the aged general, with two adjutants on horseback, at the head of a young Prussian Landwehr-Regiment, who shout enthusiastically as he points to the road to Paris; in the middle, to right, cavalry advancing across the wintry battle-field.

MARCHAL, CHARLES FRANÇOIS, born in Paris, April 10, 1825, died there, March 31, 1877. Genre painter, pupil of Drölling and Dubois. Improved and prospered until 1876, when he lost his eyesight, and in despair committed suicide. Medals: 1864, 1866, and 1873. His Alsace has been often engraved and lithographed. Works: Misunderstanding (1852); Van Dyck in Rubens' Studio (1853); Return from Masked Ball (1855); Mother's Festival (1857); Chilly, Last Kiss (1859); Interior of an Alsatian Tavern (1861); Luther's Horse (1863); Servant Market (1864), formerly in Luxembourg Museum; Spring Time (1866); Katarina (1867); Penelope (1868), H. MARCKE, ÉMILE VAN, born at Sèvres, August 20, 1827. Landscape and animal painter, pupil of Troyon. Medals: 1867, 1869, and 1870; 1st class, 1878; L. of Honour, 1872. Works: Pastures by the Sea, Pastures in the Woods (1868); Plain, Forest (1874); Bridge on the Brèsles, River Morte at Tréport, Village Pasture (1875); Cliff (1876); Spring at Neslette (1877), Mr. Brown, Philadelphia; Grass at Soreng (1879); Meadows of Bourbel (1880); Sluice, Study (1881); Swiss Cow, Norman Cow (1882); Vache blanche, Samuel F. Barger, New York; In the Landes, Wm. Astor, ib.; Cows in a Pool, Cattle, W. H. Vanderbilt, ib.; Cows Drinking, Spring Time, Cattle Reposing, Cows in a Pool, On the Cliffs, Going to Pasture, Mill Farm, formerly in Mrs. Morgan's Collection, ib.; Study from Nature, Early in the Morning, Cow, The Pool, Misty Morning, Approaching Storm (1873), W. T. Walters, Baltimore.—Bellier, ii. 629; Meyer, Gesch., 760.

MARCO D'OGGIONE (Uggione, Uggione), born in Oggione, near Milan, about 1470-80, died about 1530-40. Lombard school; pupil of Leonardo da Vinci. Executed careful copies of his master's pictures, especially of his fresco of the Last Supper, one of which is in the Royal Academy, London, a second in the Brera, Milan, and a third (small) in the Hermitage, St. Petersburg. Oggione painted frescos, also, in S. M. della Pace, Milan, now in the Brera. In the Louvre are a Holy Family, and the Madonna of the Scales, attributed to him.—Lanzi, ii. 490; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., vii. 39, 44; ed. Mil., iv. 52; Ch. Blanc, École milanaise; Burekhardt, 628, 707; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 45; W. & W., ii. 562.

MARCONI, ROCCO, native of Treviso, end of 15th and beginning of 16th century. Venetian school; Ridolfi calls him a pupil, and Burekhardt a follower, of Palma Vec-chio, but Zanetti thinks him more probably a disciple of Giovanni Bellini. He was an agreeable colourist and a fair designer. Among his works in Venice are a Descent from the Cross, and Christ between SS. Peter and John, Academy; Woman taken in Adultery, S. Giorgio Maggiore; and Christ between SS. Peter and Andrew, S. Giovanni e Paolo. The Woman taken in Adultery, Palazzo Corsini, Rome, attributed to Titian, is by Marconi (C. & C.); same subject in Berlin Museum, and Hermitage, St. Petersburg.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Burekhardt, 725.

MAREC, VICTOR, born in Paris; contemporary. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of Jean Paul Laurens. Medal, 3d class, 1885; 2d class, and prix du Salon, 1886. Works: The Little Patient (1885); Morning after Pay-Day (1886).

MARÉCHAL, CHARLES LAURENT, born at Metz in Feb., 1801. Genre painter, pupil of Regnault. Usually painted in water colour or on porcelain and glass. Has had many pupils. Medals: 3d class, 1840; 2d class, 1841; 1st class, 1826, 1842, and 1855; L. of Honour, 1846; Officer, 1855. Works: Job (1826); Washerwomen, Ravine, Harvest (1835); Sisters of Mercy, Hungarian Woodsmen (1840); Little Gitano, Little Student, Study of Heads (1841); Masaccio as a Child, Pfeiffer House (1841); The Cluster, Herodias (1845); Lawyer, St. Clotilde, St. Valeria (1853); Priest, Student, Galileo in Velletri (1855); Columbus brought back from the New World (1857); Young Girl, Sisters of Misery, Shepherds, Portrait of Marshal Ney, Metz Museum. Has executed decorative works in the Ministry of State and in the New Louvre. His son and pupil, Charles Raphaël, is also a genre painter; Medal, 2d class, 1853.—Bellier, ii. 28; Larousse.

MARÉES, GEORG DE, born at Stockholm in 1697, died in Munich in 1776. Portrait painter, pupil of Peter Martin Meytens, whom he assisted fourteen years, during which time he also painted the royal family of Sweden, and the senators. He went in 1724 to Amsterdam, then to Nuremberg, where he studied at the Preussler Academy, and won the friendship of Kupetzky; thence to Rome via Munich, Innsbruck, Padua, and Venice, where he painted miniatures, and completed his studies under Piazzetta; after a short stay at Augsburg, settled in Munich, where he became court-painter, and painted more than fifty portraits of Bavarian Princes. Works: Portrait of himself at the Easel, do. of a Physician, Portraits of the Painters Albrecht and Beich, do. of Bavarian Princes and Princesses (31), Schleissheim Gallery.—Nagler, iii. 360.

MARES, PIERRE DES, a Burgundian painter, who flourished in the beginning of the 16th century. His style resembles that of the master of the Holy Kith-and-Kin. Works: Crucifixion (1517), St. Maurice refusing to sacrifice to an Idol, Behheading of St. Maurice, Old Pinakothek, Munich.

MARESCALCO, IL. See Buonconsiglio, Giovanni.

MARGARET, ST., Raphael, Louvre; wood, transferred to canvas, H. 5 ft. 10 in. × 4 ft. St. Margaret, standing and holding a palm, has one foot on the monster, which lies, with open mouth, upon its back. Painted about 1518, probably for Francis I. or for his sister Margu'rite de Valois, and according to Vasari, almost entirely by Giulio Romano from Raphael's design. Cleaned by Primaticcio in 1530; again in 1685, and later much damaged by restoration. Engraved by P. Thomassin (1589) from a poor copy; also by G. Rousselet; L. Surugue; Desnoyers.—Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 525; Cab. Crozat, i. Pl. 7; Landon, Musée, iv. Pl. 21; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 590; Passavant, ii. 260.

By Raphael (?), Vienna Museum; wood, H. 5 ft. 4 in. × 4 ft. 1 in. A repetition of the St. Margaret in the Louvre, excepting that the Saint holds a cross in her hand instead of a palm, and looks at the dragon instead of at the spectator. Probably by Giulio Romano after a drawing by Raphael.

MARGARET

In 1528 owned at Venice by Gianantonio Venier.—Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 595; Passavant, ii. 261; Morelli (L'Anonimo), 72.

By Titian, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 8 ft. × 6 ft.; signed. The Saint, bearing the cross in her left hand, looks at the dragon, whose frame stretches from the left foreground to the mouth of the cavern in the background to the right. Painted in 1552; long in the Escorial, where the monks had the bare leg painted over with drapery, since removed. Two copies in the Escorial.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 222.

St. Margaret, Raphael, Louvre, Paris.

MARGARET, ST., MAJESTY OF, Moretto, S. Francesco, Brescia; wood, figures life-size; dated 1530. In middle, St. Margaret with the double cross, her foot on the monster; to right, St. Francis, to left, St. Jerome.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 403.

MARGARITA OF AUSTRIA, Queen, wife of Philip III., Velasquez, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 9 ft. 9 in. × 10 ft. 2 in. About twenty-five years old, on a chestnut and white horse, whose embroidered housings fall nearly to the ground; black dress with open sleeves and a ruff; her red hair surmounted by a white plume; background, landscape. Companion picture to Philip III. by Velasquez; painted about 1644. As the Queen was dead before Velasquez went to Madrid, the likeness was taken from contemporaneous portraits. Etched by F. Goya.—Curtis, 90; Madrazo, 607.

MARGARITA MARIA (Margarita Teresa), Infanta, daughter of Philip IV. and Mariana of Austria, and wife of Leopold I., Emperor of Germany, Velasquez, Vienna Museum; canvas, H. 4 ft. × 3 ft. 2 in. About three years old, full-length, standing, with fan in left hand, right resting on a table on which is a glass vase filled with flowers; wears a white dress trimmed with black lace, a necklace, and heavy gold chain. Painted about 1654. Etched by F. A. Milius. Repetitions: Duke de Alba, Madrid; with changes, Louvre. Latter engraved by Conquy; etched by Waltner; H. Meyer; Milius.—Palomino, iii. 349. Gaz. des B. Arts (1879); Curtis, 99.

MARGARITONE (Margheritone), born at Arezzo in 1216 (?), died there in 1293 (?). Tuscan school. A rude follower of the Byzantine school, classed with Giunta Pisano and other painters of crucifixes, portraits of St. Francis, etc., of a repulsive type. The Church of S. Francesco, Arezzo, contains a St. Francis and a Madonna by him, and the National Gallery, London, a Madonna with symbols of the Evangelists, coloured like playing-cards. Crucifixes attributed to him are in the chapel of the Sacristy, S. Croce, Florence, and in S. Francesco, Castiglione, Aretino. The Madonna delle Vestighe near Monte San Savino is signed with his name and dated 1284. Vasari ascribes to this artist the design of the Palazzo di San Ciriaco, Ancona, which dates from the 10th and was remodelled in the 13th century, and the tomb of Gregory X. in the Duomo,

MARIANA

ciety, New York ; Francis Clare Ford, London.—Curtis, 93 ; Madrazo, 618.

MARIANA OF THE MOATED GRANGE, Sir John E. Millais, Bart., H. F. Makins, Esq., London ; wood, H. 2 ft. × 1 ft. 8 in. Illustration of Tennyson's poem of same title. Mariana, in a dress of deep blue, rises from her embroidery frame, with eyes half-closed, wearied and lorn of love ; in front, a window with painted glass, through which the light falls on a piece of unfinished embroidery ; to the right, an oratory, with a lamp burning. Royal Academy, 1851.

MARIE ANTOINETTE, Charles Louis Müller, Mrs. M. O. Roberts, New York ; canvas. Scene—the small room in the Conciergerie, still kept as shown in the picture. Marie Antoinette, dressed in white, standing to listen to her death-warrant, read by Paris—called Fabricius, at whose right stands Herrman, Vice-President of the Convention ; next to him is Coffin-hall, and then Collier, two commissaries from the Convention ; a gendarme is seated on the table. Photogravure in Art Treasures of America, ii. 41.

MARIE ANTOINETTE LEAVING THE TRIBUNAL, Paul Delaroche, private gallery. Salon, 1851. Engraved by A. François. Original sketch, Pereire sale, Paris (1872), 6,100 francs.

MARIENHOF, A., born at Goreum about 1630 (?), died young at Brussels. Dutch school ; history and portrait painter, supposed pupil of Teniers, the younger, according to others of Rubens, whom he imitated. Works : Man kneeling before Sovereigns enthroned (1648), Dresden Museum ; Artist in his Studio (1648), Male Portrait, Hermitage, St. Petersburg.

MARILHAT, PROSPER, born at Vertazon, near Thiers (Puy-de-Dôme), March 20, 1811, died there, Sept. 13, 1847. Landscape painter, pupil of Roqueplan. Recommended by his master as the artistic companion of Baron Hügel, he visited the years in Cairo, where the climate so ruined his health that he did not long enjoy the fame which awaited him on his return to Paris. Works : Pan playing the Flute for Shepherds and Shepherdesses (1830), Mans Museum ; Square of Ezbekieh in Cairo (1834) ; Tomb of Abou-Mandour (1837) ; Environs of Beyrut (1841) ; Souvenirs of the Nile ; Syrian Arabs Travelling ; Egyptian City in Twilight ; Tripoli in Syria (1844) ; Village in Auvergne (1849), Montpellier Museum ; Caravan on the Libanon, View near Tripolis, Leipsic Museum ; View of Baalbek ; Rosetta ; Cairo, Comte Duchatel ; Syrian Restaurant ; Interior at Rosetta, Lord Seymour ; Feeding the Camel, B. Wall, Providence, R. I. He left more than two hundred unfinished pictures.—Ch. Blanc, École française ; Revue des Deux Mondes (1848), xxiii. 56 ; Gaz. des B. Arts (1860), v. 290.

MARINO DE' PITTORI, IL. See Cesari, Giuseppe.

MARINUS VAN ROYMERSWALE (M. de Zeeuw), born probably about 1497, died after 1567. Flemish school, flourished in 1521–58. Contemporary of Frans Floris, and lived chiefly in Zeeland. His specialty was the painting of money-changers and shop-keepers in bright and pastose colours, which would seem to indicate the influence of Quinten Massys, who may even have been his master. Works : Two Money-Changers in their Office, National Gallery, London ; Customs Officer (1560), Copenhagen Gallery ; Money-Changer with his Wife (1541), Dresden Gallery ; do. (1538), and Agent at his Desk (1542), Old Pinakothek, Munich ; do., and St. Jerome (2, one dated 1521), Madonna, Museum, Madrid ; Money-Changer (1835), Academy of S. Fernando, ib. ; replica, Schleissheim Gallery ; Parable of the Unjust Housekeeper, St. Jerome, Vienna Museum.—Hymans, Marin le Zélandais (Brussels, 1884) ; Engerth, Belved. Gal., ii. 255 ; Journal des B. Arts, v. 127 ; Kugler (Crowe), i. 117 ; Kunst-Chronik, xx. 205 ; Cat. Nat. Gal. (1883), 92 ; Rooses (Reber), 62.

MARIS

MARIS, JAKOB, born at The Hague, Aug. 25, 1837. Landscape painter, brother of Matthys, pupil of Hague Academy, then of Ströbel and of Hubertus van Hove, whom he followed to Antwerp, where he became a pupil of De Keyser and of Van Lerijs; went to Paris in 1866, studied under Hébert, and was greatly influenced by the representatives of the "Paysage intime." He returned to The Hague in 1871; lives now in Brussels. Works: Knitting Girl by a House; View of the Y with Amsterdam; Coast View; Girl dressing Vegetables; View of Schiedam; On the Shore, Dutch Landscape (1878); View in Dutch Town; By the Sea; Mother and Children (1879); River, View of Amsterdam (1883); Souvenir of Dordrecht, Return of Fishermen (1884).—Meyer, Conv. Lex., xvii. 570; Müller, 353.

MARIS, MATTHYS, born at The Hague in 1835. Genre painter, pupil of Hague and Antwerp Academies, where he was especially attracted by Leys; returned to The Hague, went to Paris in 1869, and, influenced by Hamon, completely changed his style, which found great favour in England, in the private galleries of which most of his pictures, bought at high prices, are to be found. For some years past settled in London. Works: At the Well; Dutch Village; Reading a Letter; Baptism; Rear of a House (1863); Girl with Butterflies; Girl with Doves (1872); Girl and Goats, G. A. Drummond, Baltimore.—Meyer, Conv. Lex., xvii. 570; Müller, 354.

MARIS, WILLEM, born at The Hague; contemporary. Landscape and animal painter, brother of the preceding, greatly esteemed in Holland and Belgium for his water-colours. He is one of the presidents of the Teeken Maatschapy at The Hague. Works: Pasture in Sunshine (1879); Wading Cows (1879).—Meyer, Conv. Lex., xvii. 570; Müller, 354.

MARIUS AT CARTHAGE, Léon Cogniet, Luxembourg Museum; canvas, H. 10 ft. 5 in. × 14 ft. Marius, fleeing from the pursuit of Sulla, landed at Carthage, where a message was sent him by the ruling prætor commanding him to leave the country. "Tell the prætor," said he to the messenger, "that you have seen Caius Marius a fugitive sitting on the ruins of Carthage," thus comparing his own changed fortunes, not inaptly, says Plutarch, to the fate of that city. In the picture Marius is seated at left, addressing the soldier, who is standing, spear in hand, at right; in background, the sea, and the sun setting. Painted in 1824.—Réveil, iii. 190; Larousse, x. 1220.

St. Mark, Fra Bartolommeo, Palazzo Pitti, Florence.

By John Vanderlyn, heirs of Bishop W. I. Kip, San Francisco. Marius, seated, with his toga falling from his shoulders, and leaning on his sword; his helmet is at his feet. The waters of the Mediterranean are seen through the arches of an aqueduct; in the distance is a temple, with one of its columns fallen, and a fox among the ruins of its portico. Painted in Rome in 1807; Paris dicci, who left in its place a copy by Antonio Franchi; taken to Paris in 1799 and transferred to canvas; returned in 1815. Copy by Anton Domenico Gabiani in Florence Academy. Engraved by Lorepzin; Lasinio.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 189; Marchese, ii. 115; C. & C., Italy, iii. 468; Gal. du Pal. Pitti, i. Pl. 32; Landon, Musée, ii. Pl. 55.

By Tintoretto, Berlin Museum; canvas, dated 1569. St. Mark enthroned, instructing three procurators of the Zane, Cornaro, and Molino families.

By Titian, sacristy of S. M. della Salute, Venice; wood, arched at top, figures under right, SS. Paul and Nicholas. Formerly in chapel of Cornaro family.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 44.

MARK, ST., PREACHING IN ALEXANDRIA, Giovanni Mansueti, Venice Academy; canvas, H. 12 ft. × 19 ft. 11 in.; signed. People of Alexandria listening to St. Mark's sermon in a distant temple; many figures on foot and on horseback, in Eastern and other costume, with a band of musicians, and a leopard, stag, and other animals in foreground. Painted about 1500 for Scuola di S. Marco, Venice.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 221; Burekhardt, 599.

MARK

MARK, ST., CURING ANIANUS, Cima da Conegliano, Berlin Museum; wood, H. 5 ft. 6 in. × 4 ft. 4 in. Long in the Gesuiti, Venice.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 245.

By Giovanni Mansueti, Venice Academy; canvas, H. 12 ft. × 13 ft. 1 in.; signed. Anianus, the cobbler, seated with a shoe strapped to his knee, shows his hand wounded by an awl; St. Mark, in the presence of the people, who fill the market-place of Alexandria, cures him with a blessing. Painted about 1500 for Scuola di S. Marco, Venice.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 221; Burekhardt, 599.

MARK AND MARCELLINUS, STS., MARTYRDOM OF, Paolo Veronese, S. Sebastiano, Venice. The Saints are exhorted by St. Sebastian to meet martyrdom with firmness. One of the master's finest works.—Zanotto, 428.

MARK, ST., MIRACLE OF, Tintoretto, Venice Academy; canvas. St. Mark, who is represented flying downwards, frustrates, by his power over physical laws, the attempts of the Turks to torture a Christian slave for acts of devotion to him; in the centre a standing figure exhibits to the overseer the broken tools. Painted about 1548; one of four pictures for Scuola di S. Marco; carried to Paris in 1799; returned in 1815. Popularly considered Tintoretto's masterpiece. Taine thinks it unsurpassed, and Ch. Blanc regards it as equal in colouring to any other work in Venice; but Ruskin says it is excelled in some respects by the Death of Abel, and the Fall of Man, near it.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 592; Rosini, v. 254; Ridolfi, Marav., ii. 186; Zanotto, 505; Burekhardt, 744; Lavice, 462; Landon, Musée, ix. Pl. 13.

MARK, ST., RING OF, Paris Bordone, Venice Academy. The fisherman presenting to the Doge, who is seated on a dais, in an illustrious assembly, the ring which was given to him by St. Mark. Burekhardt calls this the "most beautifully painted ceremonial picture which exists." Carried to Paris in 1806; returned to Venice in 1815.—Landon, Musée, 2d Col., iii. 1;

MARREL (Morel), JACOB, born at Utrecht in 1614 (?), died at Frankfort in 1685. German school; flower and fruit painter, pupil at Frankfort of Georg Flegel (1563-1638), whom he surpassed in composition and colouring. Married at Frankfort the widow of Merian, the elder. Works: Wreath with Insects and small Landscape (1655), Flower Groups around Architecture, Darmstadt Museum; Wreath of Flowers gin and five other figures, at a table in a hall; near him a small dog; he points to the wine jars which are being filled by attendants, one of whom is a negro; other attendants waiting on guests; Second manner. Julienne sale (1767), 6,000 livres; l'Abbé Guillaume sale (1769), 6,432 livres; Prince de Conti sale (1777), 9,060 livres; Boileau sale (1779 or 1782?), 5,010 francs; G. Hibbert sale (1829), £819.—Curtis, 191.

Marriage at Cana, Tintoretto, S. M. della Salute, Venice.

By Scarsellino, Ferrara Gallery; canvas, H. 9 ft. 3 in. × 19 ft. 8 in. A vast composition with many figures and an architectural background. Formerly in the convent of the Certosa, Ferrara.—Cat. Ferrara Gal.

By Tintoretto, Sacristy of S. M. della Salute, Venice; canvas, H. about 15 ft. × 25 ft.; signed. The table is set lengthwise, instead of crosswise as usual, along one side around Coat of Arms (1658), Historical Society, New York.—Kramm, iv. 1155.

MARRIAGE AT CANA [John ii. 1-12], Moretto, S. Fermo, Lonigo; canvas, life-size. Christ at the table is surrounded by the guests, who wonder as the drawer orders the wine to be poured into a fresh flask. Painted about 1544; in refectory of convent till 1819, when removed to choir of church. Worthy to be placed beside the Feast in the House of Simon. Unfortunately much injured.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 410.

By Murillo, Marquis of Aylesbury, Wiltshire, England; canvas, H. 5 ft. 10 in. × 7 ft. 6 in. The Saviour seated, with the Virgin seated at farther end, conversing with the person on his left; the guests, arranged along the sides of the table, men on one side, women on the other, await the newly made wine; servants and other attendants in foreground and in distance. Painted about 1561, for brotherhood of the Crociferi; formerly in a church on the Island of S. Spirito. Ruskin says, "this picture unites colour as rich as Titian's, with light and shade as forcible as Rembrandt's, and far more decisive." Replica in the Uffizi. Engraved by G. Volpato; O. Fialetti.—Ruskin. Stones of Venice, iii. 355; Zanotti, 558.

By Paolo Veronese, Brera, Milan; canvas,

MARRIAGE

H. 7 ft. 4 in. × 17 ft. Similar in composition to others, with new and spirited motives, but dull and uninteresting in colour. Formerly in convent of the Cappuccini, Padua.

By Paolo Veronese, Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 7 ft. 3 in. × 16 ft. Christ seated at a table, spread in an open court, among many others, male and female, mostly in Venetian costume; among the guests are a Moor, in a turban, and a negro. From the Modena Collection. Transferred to new canvas in his left, cardinals and other ecclesiastics. The bridegroom is Alfonso d'Avalos, Marquis del Vasto; the bride, Eleanor of Austria, sister of Charles V. and Queen of France. Behind her is the court-jester. The musicians in the foreground represent the great painters of Venice: Titian plays a bass-viol; Bassano, the elder, a flute; Tintoretto, a violoncello, and Veronese himself, in a white costume, a second violoncello. The standing figure at the right, with a goblet in his hand, is Benedetto Caliari, the painter's Marriage at Cana, Paolo Veronese, Louvre, Paris.

1827 by Palmaroli. Engraved by Jacob.—Gal. roy. de Dresde, ii. Pl. 9; Ridolfi, Marav., ii. 57; Hübner, Dresden Gal., i. 15.

By Paolo Veronese, Louvre; canvas, H. 21 ft. × 32 ft. One of the largest easel pictures ever painted, containing about 130 figures, many of them portraits. Table spread in a court, with splendid architectural background; Christ seated in the middle; on his right, noted sovereigns of the 16th century, including Francis I., Charles V., Solomon II., and Queen Mary of England; on brother. Painted in 1563 for refectory of Convent of S. Giorgio Maggiore, Venice; carried to Paris in 1797, and retained, M. Denon having persuaded the Austrian Commissioners in 1815 to take instead of it Charles Le Brun's Repas chez le Pharisien. Engraved by Mitelli; Jackson; Prevot (1854).—Vasari, ed. ## MARRIAGE

By Paolo Veronese, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 4 ft. 2 in. × 6 ft. 6 in. A semi-circular table spread in a sumptuous room opening into a garden, at which sit ten persons, two of whom, Jesus and the Virgin, occupy the middle; eight servants attend. Bought for Philip IV. from collection of Charles I. of England.—Cat. Museo del Prado.

MARRIAGE Á LA MODE, Hogarth, National Gallery, London; six pictures, canvas, each H. 2 ft. 3 in. × 2 ft. 11 in. A series representing profligacy in high life, or the effects of a marriage in which rank and wealth are the sources of attraction. The peer is neglectful and profligate, the lady faithless; the husband is killed in a duel by her paramour, who is hanged for the murder, and the suicide of the lady by poison closes the tragedy. 1. The Marriage Contract. Engraved originally by G. Scotin (1745); also by Earlom; J. Garner. 2. Shortly after Marriage. Engraved originally by B. Baron; also by Earlom; T. E. Nicholson; and others. 3. Visit to the Quack Doctor. Engraved originally by B. Baron; also by Earlom; C. Mottram; and others. 4. The Countess' Dressing-Room. Engraved originally by S. F. Ravenet; also by Earlom; Armstrong; and others. 5. The Duel and Death of the Earl. Engraved originally by S. F. Ravenet; also by Earlom; T. E. Nicholson; and others. 6. Death of the Countess. Engraved originally by G. Scotin; also by Earlom; J. Mansell; and others. The paintings were finished in 1744; sold by auction, June 6, 1750, to Mr. Lane, of Hillingdon, for 110 guineas; passed by bequest to Colonel Cawthorne, who sold them (1797) for £1,381 to Mr. Angerstein, with whose collection they were purchased for the National Gallery in 1824.—Cat. Nat. Gal. (1882); F. de Conches, 115; Ch. Blanc, École anglaise; Nichols, Anecdotes; Ireland, Hogarth.

MARRIAGE, SPANISH (Le mariage espagnol or La Vicaria), Mariano Fortuny, Mme. de Cassin, Paris. Sometimes called

Mariage dans la vicaria de Madrid, although it does not represent the vicaria of Madrid nor any existing sacristy, the painter having chosen the material for his background from several churches, especially from the Cathedral of Granada and from a church in Rome. Represents a wedding party gathered to sign the marriage contract in a large sacristy, the walls of which are hung with Cordovan leather, and which is separated from the church by an open grille in the rococo style. Lamps are suspended from the ceiling, and pictures and Venetian mirrors adorn the walls, against which stand heavy oaken benches and a book-case filled with missals and antiphonaries. The groom is about to affix his signature to the contract in the place pointed out by the scrivener. A priest stands beside the table, and two others are seated, writing. The two principal women, the bride and her mother, are portraits of Mlle. Isabel de Madrazo, the painter's sister, and of Mme. Fortuny. Another of the ladies is said to be a portrait of the Duchess Colonna; Meissonier is said to have posed for the officer with the sabre, and Henri Regnault for another of the attendant gentlemen. Begun in Rome, finished in Paris in 1869. Exhibited in 1870 by Goupil, who purchased it and sold it to Mme. Cassin.—Davillier, Fortuny, 55; Gaz. des B. Arts (1875), xi. 276; L'Art (1875), i. 370.

MARS, Velasquez, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 5 ft. 10 in. × 3 ft. A nude figure, seated, with blue drapery covering middle, a helmet on his head, and armour at his feet. Probably painted after the artist's second journey to Italy (1651). Drawing in Royal Institution, Gijon. Engraved by G. R. Le Villain.—Curtis, 19; Gal. Esp.; Madrazo, 635.

MARS AND RHEA SYLVIA, Nicolas Poussin, Louvre; canvas, H. 2 ft. 6 in. × 4 ft. 9 in. Sylvia, daughter of Numitor, reclining asleep against a hillock, holding the vase with which she has come to draw water from the Tiber; behind her, a cupid asleep, two others shooting arrows, and a third flying towards Mars, who, attended by Love with a torch, is approaching in a chariot drawn by lions; between Sylvia and Mars, the Tiber personified, with Romulus and Remus, and the wolf. Engraved by Niquet in Musée français.—Cat. Louvre; Filhol, iv. Pl. 223; Landon, Musée, viii. Pl. 55; Smith, viii. 121.

MARS AND VENUS, Luca Giordano, Louvre; canvas, H. 2 ft. × 2 ft. 6 in. Mars about to leave Venus, who is reclining, nude, on a couch; at right, two women arrange the toilette of the goddess; at left, a cupid plays with a dog; another is on a globe, around which is twined a serpent; in background, Vulcan working at his forge. Engraved by Pierron; Sixdeniers.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Musée royal, ii.; Filhol, xi. Pl. 55; Landon, Musée, xiii. Pl. 11.

By Guercino, Modena Gallery; canvas, H. 4 ft. 2 in. × 4 ft. 10 in. Venus, half nude, sitting upon a couch; behind her, Cupid aiming an arrow; at left, Mars, in full armour, is drawing aside the curtains of the bed. Painted in 1634 for Francesco, Duke of Modena; carried to Paris; returned in 1815. Engraved by Giovanni Berselli; Le Villain; L. A. Claessens.—Landon, Musée, ii. Pl. 17; Filhol, i. Pl. 9.

By Nicolas Poussin, Louvre; canvas, H. 2 ft. 8 in. × 4 ft. 9 in. Venus, nude, reclining on drapery spread on the ground under trees; Mars, with his casque on, half reclining behind her; on opposite side a cupid with a torch, others, etc. Engraved by Blot in Musée français; Niquet.—Cat. Louvre; Filhol, iv. Pl. 259; Smith, viii. 104.

MARSEN (Marts, Martsen), JAN (the younger?), flourished about 1632–44. Dutch school; battle painter, about whose life nothing is known; as he occasionally painted backgrounds in the pictures of Michiel Miervelt, he may have lived at Delft. Works: Cavalry Combat (1630), Rotterdam Museum; Gustavus Adolphus in Battle of Lützen (1636), Brunswick Museum; Fight between Cavalry and Infantry (1632), Schwerin Gallery; Cavalry Skirmish (1644), Czernin Gallery, Vienna.—Kramm, iii. 816; Riegel, Beiträge, ii. 422; Schlie, 365.

MARSEUS VAN SCHRICK, OTHO, born at Nymwegen about 1619, died at Amsterdam in June, 1678. Dutch school; still-life painter; excelled in the representation of plants, insects, and reptiles, which he painted with great truth and careful detail. He visited England, France, where he painted for the queen mother, and Italy; was long in the service of the Grand Duke of Tuscany; lived at Rome and Naples, and in the former place was called Snuffelaer (Secker), from his search after insects, plants, etc., in the Campagna; appears as settled in 1663 at Amsterdam, where he kept a special preserve for the breeding of insects and reptiles. Works: A Nest, Rotterdam Museum; Two large Snakes among Plants, Berlin Museum; Snakes, Mushrooms, etc. (1662), Brunswick Museum; Poppy with Butterflies, similar subject (1671), Dresden Gallery; Bouquet with Insects, etc., Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Thistle with Snake, etc., Schleissheim Gallery; Animal Life in the Woods (7, three dated 1660, 1669, 1676), Schwerin Gallery; Landscape with Shrubbery and Frog, Wiesbaden Gallery; Flowers with Snake and Insects (1672), four others, Uffizi, Florence; Reptiles, Birds, and Insects (1667), Historical Society, New York.—Immerzeel, ii. 199; Kramm, iv. 1060; Kugler (Crowe), ii. 522; Riegel, Beiträge, ii. 437; Schlie, 366; Siret (1883), ii. 18.

MARSH IN THE LANDES (Marais dans les Landes), Théodore Rousseau. Frédéric Hartmann sale, Paris (1881), 129,000 francs, bought by State.

drid, Fontainebleau (1722), Chambord, Bosquets de Versailles (2), Bassin d'Apollon and Canal de Versailles, Engine and Aqueduct of Marly, Versailles Museum; View of St. Cloud, Nantes Museum.—Bellier, ii. 41.

MARTIN, ST., DIVIDING HIS MANTLE, Anton van Dyck, church at Saventhem, near Brussels; wood, H. about 5 ft. 9 in. × 5 ft. 3 in. Nearly the same in composition as the picture by Rubens. The woman and children are omitted, St. Martin is a portrait of Van Dyck himself, and the horse is the one given him by Rubens. Painted by Van Dyck for a young lady at Saventhem, who presented it to the parish church. Taken to Paris; returned in 1815. Engraved by J. L. Krafft; G. Edelinek; Jos. Franck (1872). Etched by M. A. Boulard.—Musée français; Landou, vii. Pl. 5; Filhol, iii. 212; Smith, iii. 12; Guiffrey, 22, 251.

By Rubens, Windsor Castle; canvas, H. 8 ft. 4 in. × 7 ft. 10 in. The Saint, accompanied by two horsemen and clad in brilliant armour, mounted on a gray horse, is dividing with his sword a scarlet mantle between two poor men; beyond, a woman with a child in her arms and another by her side. Waagen ascribes the horse, the woman, and the children to Van Dyck, who probably assisted in the work. This picture is the original of Van Dyck's St. Martin, in the church at Saventhem. It was formerly in Spain, whence it was taken about 1750 and sold to Frederick, Prince of Wales, father of George III. Engraved by Thomas Chambers (1766).—Waagen, Treasures, ii. 435; Smith, ii. 240.

MARTIN D'ÉGLISE, BATTLE OF, Anton van Dyck, Munich Gallery; canvas, H. 10 ft. 6 in. × 8 ft. 9 in. Victory gained by Henri IV. of France over the Duc de Mayenne. In foreground, the King, attended by Sully, and many armour-clad knights on horseback; in middle distance, an encounter between pikemen and arquebusiers; background, a landscape. The animals are by Snyder. Taken to Paris in 1800; returned in 1815.—Eastlake, Notes, 72.

MARTINEZ, JUSEPE, born in Saragossa in 1612, died there in 1682. Spanish school; studied in Rome; attracted attention of Velasquez, by whose recommendation Philip IV. named him, in 1642, one of his painters; afterwards appointed to same office by Don Juan of Austria, but he preferred to remain in Saragossa, where he painted works for the cathedral. He was also an engraver and writer on art.—Stirling, ii. 737; Cean Bermudez.

MARTINEZ, SEBASTIAN, born in Jaen in 1602, died in Madrid in 1667. Spanish school; pupil of one of the scholars of Cespedes; became painter to Philip IV. in 1660. His Martyrdom of St. Sebastian was painted for the Cathedral of Jaen, and he also exobliterated frescos, executed in 1397, in the style of Taddeo Bartoli. These works, which are minutely described by Bonaini (Not. Med., 53), are third rate in quality, as are his pictures in the Academy and in S. Domenico, Pisa.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 172; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 31; xi. 175.

MARTINO DA UDINE. See Pellegrino da San Daniele.

MARTYR, BURIAL OF A, Edward Armitage, private gallery, London; canvas, H. 12 ft. 6 in. × 9 ft. 7 in. The body of a young Christian, slain in the arena, at Rome, is being lowered into the Catacombs, where it is received by the sorrowing relations; in the background, upon a staging, stands a workman, ready to put it into its last resting-place, one of the oven-like receptacles in the wall.—Royal Academy, 1885.

MARTYR, CHRISTIAN, Paul Delaroche, private gallery; canvas, H. 4 ft. 9 in. × 5 ft. 10 in. Martyr in time of Diocletian. The body of a young girl, the hands bound, floating down the Tiber by night, the aureola which lights her face reflected in the water; in background, the prow of a galley, and two figures watching from the bank. Subject said to have been suggested by a dream. Painted in 1855. Exhibited in 1857, after his death. Engraved by Rousseaux. At Delaroche sale, to Goupil, 36,000 francs. At same sale, a smaller sketch, 2,400 francs. Replica, in small (face and hands by Delaroche, remainder by C. F. Jalabert), W. T. Walters, Baltimore.

MARTYR'S TRIUMPH (Triomphe du Martyr), Adolphe William Bouguereau, Luxembourg Museum; canvas, H. 11 ft. 3 in. × 13 ft. 2 in. The body of St. Cecilia, crowned and decked with the palms of martyrdom, is borne to rest in the Catacombs. Bouguereau's fame dates from the exhibition of this picture.—Salon, 1855.

MARTYRS, CHRISTIAN, François Léon Benouville. Scene in the arena of the amphitheatre at Rome, with an immense audience gathered to witness the death of Christian martyrs by wild beasts. The barriers have just been opened and the victims are coming forward, brutally pushed by the slaves of the circus and by soldiers. Exposition universelle, 1855. Original sketch in water-colours, Salon of 1852, Luxembourg Museum.—Larousse, x. 1290.

By Gustave Doré, Doré Gallery, London. Scene at night in the Coliseum, the long ranges of seats deserted by the crowd which has lately witnessed a festival of slaughter; in the arena lions and tigers are feeding on the mangled corpses of the Christian martyrs, while from the star-lit heavens a troop of white-robed angels are descending. Salon, 1874.—Claretie (1884), 124.

By Jean Léon Gérôme, W. T. Walters, Baltimore; canvas, H. 2 ft. 10 in. × 4 ft. 11 in. Scene in the Circus Maximus, Rome, with Christians exposed to wild beasts, which are represented as just coming into the arena from their dark dens and pausing in astonishment at the light and the great mass of people surrounding them; in the middle distance are prisoners fastened to crosses and smeared with pitch, destined to be burned alive.

MARY OF EGYPT, ST., Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; canvas. Similar in plan to its companion piece, the Magdalen, opposite, except that St. Mary has her back turned to the spectator and the tree by the brook is a palm instead of a laurel.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 331.

MARY STUART AND ELIZABETH, Wilhelm von Kaulbach, private gallery, Berlin; canvas. Scene from Schiller's "Mary Stuart" (Act iii., Scene 4). A stormy interview between the two queens; Elizabeth, at right, with clinched fists, is gazing fixedly at Mary, who, restrained by an attendant, is talking angrily, with one hand raised; behind Elizabeth are two courtiers, with sorrowful faces and downcast eyes, the unwilling witnesses of the scene.

MARY STUART LISTENING TO HER DEATH-WARRANT, Karl von Piloty, private gallery. Mary sits at right, with downcast eyes, her rosary and breviary on the floor where they have fallen from her lap ; behind her, two of her attendants, one on her knees, the other standing, horror-stricken ; at left, the Earls of Shrewsbury and Kent, the Sheriff of the County with the warrant, and Sir A. Melville, the last in armour, all standing. Painted in 1869. Engraved by Dorris Raab. — Art Journal (1878), 228.

MARY STUART IN PRISON, Leon y Escosura, Fletcher Harper, New York. Queen Mary, robed in full toilet, alone in her chamber in Fotheringay Castle ; her bed is concealed in a canopy of splendid embroideries ; a large crucifix and a Book of Hours denote her religion.—Art Treasures of America, ii. 94.

MARY STUART AND RIZZIO, David Neal, D. O. Mills, New York. Queen Mary's first interview with David Rizzio. She is descending a staircase, preceded by a little spaniel and followed by ladies and courtiers, and is surprised to see Rizzio fast asleep on a bench at the foot, with his viol beside him. Painted in 1876.

MARY VIRGIN, GIRLHOOD OF, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Lady Louisa Fielding, London. The Virgin and St. Anne sit side by side at an embroidery frame, while before them stands a little angel, with rose-coloured wings, tending the symbolic lily with child-like seriousness. St. Anne is a portrait of the painter's mother ; the Virgin, of his sister Christina ; the angel, of a younger sister of the late artist, Walter H. Deverell. The picture, his first subject piece, is signed Dante Gabriele Rossetti, P.R.B.—i. e., Pre-Raphaelite Brother. Exhibited in 1849 ; sold for £80 to Marchioness of Bath.—Athenæum (Jan., 1883), 22 ; Art Journal (1884), 150.

MARYS AT THE SEPULCHRE, Paolo Veronese, Palazzo Pitti, Florence ; canvas, H. 3 ft. × 2 ft. 2 in. The three Marys, coming to the tomb of Christ, are told of the resurrection by two angels clad in white garments. Engraved by Lasinio.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, ii. Pl. 27.

MARZIALE, MARCO, beginning of 16th century. Venetian school ; a follower of Carpaccio, and later an imitator of Albert Dürer. In 1492 he was a journeyman employed in the Great Hall of Council, Palazzo Ducale, Venice. His Christ and the Apostles at Emmaus (1506), Venice Academy, and do. (1507), in the Berlin Museum, exhibits the arrangement of Carpaccio with the minute details of the German school. In the National Gallery, London, are a Circumcision (1500), and a Madonna with Saints (1507).—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 227 ; Lübke, Gesch. d. ital. Mal., i. 544.

MASACCIO, TOMMASO, born at Castel San Giovanni di Valdarno, Dec. 21, 1401, died in Rome (?) about 1428. Florentine school ; real name Tommaso di Giovanni di Simone Guidi, but called Masaccio (Careless Thomas) from his indifference to appearance ; perhaps studied under Masolino da Panicale. In 1421 he was enrolled in the guild of the Speziali (apothecaries) in Florence, and in 1422 in that of the painters. Masaccio is to the 15th century what Giotto is to the 14th—the founder of a new school, the opener of a new era in painting, and the painter of frescos which were studied by all the great artists who came after him as models of style, composition, treatment of drapery, and truth to nature. Before 1421 (?) he decorated a chapel in S. Clemente, Rome, with frescos from the life of St. Catherine. The next eight years were spent in painting frescos in the Brancacci Chapel in the Carmine, Florence, which are the chief examples of his style and school. The entire series was formerly attributed to him ; but modern research has shown that these frescos were begun by Masaccio, and continued and completed by Filippino Lippi, and that of them Masaccio painted nine only, namely: Expulsion from Eden, St. Peter healing Tabitha and curing the Cripple at the Gate of the Temple; Seeking of the Tribute Money and its payment by St. Peter; The Expulsion; Sermon of St. Peter (?); St. Peter Baptizing; Distribution of Alms; SS. Peter and John curing the Sick; Resurrection of the Child and St. Peter in Cathedra, partly executed by Filippino Lippi. This takes from Masaccio two of the finest works in the chapel—the Crucifixion of St. Peter, and the Arraignment of SS. Peter and Paul before the Proconsul—both painted by Filippino Lippi, and therefore to some extent diminishes his glory. It, however, leaves him enough to entitle him to be considered the greatest painter of his time, and to be called the father of modern art, through careful study of the human form, and investigation of the laws of light and shade which govern relief, as well as of the management of drapery in broad masses; he rescued painting from mediævalism, and gave an impulse which finally brought the art to that perfection which it afterwards attained in the hands of Raphael. Each event represented by Masaccio is like a scene upon the stage where the actors are grouped with due regard to effect. Many of the heads are portraits, and all the figures are studied from life in a naturalistic spirit, which faithfully renders the costumes worn by the men and women of the time. Even Raphael did not disdain to take Masaccio's noble group of Adam and Eve driven from Paradise as a model when he treated the same subject in the Vatican. The few other extant works of Masaccio are: Fragment of a Procession, cloister of the Carmine; The Trinity between the Virgin and St. John the Evangelist, with two donors, S. M. Novella (much injured); Conception, Florence Academy; and portrait of himself (?), perhaps by Filippino Lippi, Uffizi; Adoration of the Magi, Diptych with Martyrdom of SS. Peter and John the Baptist, Berlin Museum.—C. &

MASOLINO DA PANICALE, born at Panicale in 1383, died in Florence in Oct. (buried, 18th), 1440. Florentine school; real name Tommaso di Cristofano di Fino; pupil of Gherardo da Starnina, and probably master of Masaccio. Vasari confounds him with Maso di Cristoforo Braccii, and his account is therefore untrustworthy. Masolino had no hand in the famous frescos of the Brancacci Chapel. He was admitted into the guild of the Physicians and Apothecaries in Florence in 1423, and shortly afterwards entered the service of Pippo Spani, Obergespann of Temeswar, Hungary. After Spani's death (1427) he returned to Italy, and executed, about 1428, for Cardinal Castiglione, a series of frescos in the Church of Castiglione di Olona and in the adjoining baptistery. These, which were unknown to Vasari, were lately rescued from whitewash and are signed with his name. Those in the choir represent events in the lives of the Virgin, and of SS. Lawrence and Stephen, to whom the church is dedicated. With no little religious sentiment, which is at times so expressed as to recall Fra Angelico, with a conscientious care for details of form and composition and a system of architectural and figure arrangement which has no little analogy with that of his great pupil, Masaccio, Masolino elaborated detail at the expense of breadth, and made solitary figures unduly prominent. His compositions are monotonous, both on account of lack of variety in arrangement and the absence of contrast in light and shade. His heads are characteristic, and his extremities carefully studied from nature. In the frescos of the baptistery at Castiglione, which represent scenes in the life of St. John, the faces are excellent and the action is weak. Considerable boldness is shown in the use of perspective, which Masolino, like other painters of his time, had learned to apply to painting, thanks to the scientific discoveries of Brunelleschi. According to the annotators of Vasari, the baptistery frescos were painted in 1435, but C. & C. give the date of 1428 as covering these as well as those in the Collegiate Church.—C. & C., Italy, i. 499; Vasari, ed. MASON, GEORGE HEMING, born at Wetley, Staffordshire, in 1818, died in London, Oct. 22, 1872. Genre and landscape painter; forsook medicine for art in 1844, travelled through Europe, and resided several years in Rome; returned in 1858 to Wetley, whence he removed to London in 1865. Elected an A.R.A. in 1869. Works: Plough-

MASS OF BOLSENA, Raphael, Stanza d'Eliodoro, Vatican; fresco, dated 1512. Called also Miracle of Bolsena. In 1263, under Urban IV., a priest who doubted the reality of transubstantiation is said to have seen blood flow from the wafer, when celebrating mass in S. Cristina, Bolsena. This gave rise to the feast of Corpus Christi, instituted A.D. 1310. The priest is saying mass in the presence of Urban IV. (portrait of Julius II.), who kneels at right; behind the pope are four cardinals, and below them five of the Swiss guard; on the left are deacons and acolytes, and below them people wondering at the miracle. By Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; canvas. The outer vestibule of a palace, with a flight of stairs, down which rush a crowd of women mixed with the murderers; one woman dashes herself down head-foremost, dragging her child with her; in front, a great struggle, with a confused heap of mothers and of the slain; in background, women fleeing pursued by soldiers.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 328; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

By Daniele da Volterra, Uffizi, Florence; wood, small figures. A fine composition, with numerous figures. Formerly in Cathedral of Volterra; purchased in 1782.

MASSACRE OF MACHÉCOUL, François Flameng, Paris; canvas, H. 20 ft. × 30 ft. Illustration of a scene in the war of La Vendée in 1793. Under the walls of a castle lie many bodies, men and women together, ghastly and contorted with the agonies of death; at the left, an old man tied to a tree, the blood oozing from his wounds; in centre, a group of aristocrats, the lord of the manor and his lady friends, daintily picking their way over the blood-stained ground. A disagreeable but masterly picture. Salon, 1884.—Art Journal (1884), 180.

MASSARI, LUCIO, born at Bologna in 1569, died there in 1633. Bolognese school; history painter, pupil of Bartolommeo Passarotti and opponent of the Carracci, but afterwards became a zealous adherent of Lodovico Carracci and went to Rome, where he studied after the antique and the great masters. Works: Madonna with St. John, Uffizi, Florence; St. Clara with the Holy Sacrament driving off Invading Saracens, Return of Prodigal Son, Angel presenting Purified Soul to the Holy Trinity, Pietà, Pinacoteca, Bologna; Four pictures from Life of St. Benedict, S. Michele, ib.; others at the Benedictines and Carthusians, ib.

MASSONE, GIOVANNI, of Alessandria, about 1490. Genoese school; painted in 1490, in mortuary family chapel erected at Savona by Sixtus IV., an altarpiece in three compartments, representing the Nativity in the middle, with St. Francis and Pope Sixtus on one side, and St. Anthony of Padua and Cardinal Giuliano di Rovere, the pope's nephew, afterwards Julius II., on the other. It is now in the Louvre, having been bought for Louis XVIII. for 3,000 francs.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Ch. Blanc, École génoise; Lanzi, iii. 234.

MASSYS (Matsys, Messys, Metsys), JAN, born in Antwerp about 1509, died before Oct. 8, 1575. Flemish school; son and pupil of Quinten, whose realistic style and subjects he imitated, degenerating, however, into coarser treatment and, into great feebleness in every respect, especially in his later pictures. Free of Antwerp guild in 1531. Was exiled for heresy in 1544, but returned to Antwerp a few years later. Works: The Misers (copy of Quinten), Windsor Castle; Men and Women playing Cards, Wyndham Collection, Petworth; The Virgin and St. Joseph refused Shelter at Bethlehem (1558), Healing of Tobias (1564), Antwerp Museum; Danaë, Rotterdam Museum; Chaste Susanna, Lot and his Daughters (1565), Brussels Museum; David and Bathsheba, Louvre; Tax Collectors, Berlin Museum; do., Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Elijah and the Widow of Sarepta (1565), Carlsruhe Gallery; The Two Moneychangers (1551), Leipsic Museum; St. Paul (1565), Schleissheim Gallery; St. Jerome (1537), Jolly Company and Bagpiper (1564), Lot and his Daughters (1563), MASSYS, QUINTEN, born in Antwerp before 1460, died there between July 13 and Sept. 16, 1530. Flemish school; history, genre, and portrait painter, perhaps pupil of Dierick Bouts. The current story of his having begun life as a blacksmith, and turned to art in order to win a painter's daughter for his wife, is not well authenticated. What we know is, that he married about 1480, and again in 1508-9; that he entered the painters' guild at Antwerp in 1491, lived there mostly, and perhaps at Louvain temporarily; and that his friends were Egidius, Erasmus, and Dürer. While the painters of the Van Eyck school had for the most part painted figures of small size, Massys painted them of life-size, showing in his treatment of religious subjects an intense and sometimes exaggerated sentiment. His flesh tones are clear, his draperies harmonious in colour, and his execution is careful and elaborate. His style, which marks the close of the early Flemish school and inaugurates a new period, is distinguished by more independence of thought and greater artistic freedom than that of any previous painter in the Low Countries, excepting the Van Eycks. Works: Triptych with Legend of St. Ann (1509), Brussels Museum; Triptych with Pietà (1508-11), Bust Figures of Christ and the Virgin, Magdalen, Tax Collector, Antwerp Museum; Money-Changer and his Wife (1518), Descent from the Cross (attributed), Louvre; Bust Figures of Christ and the Virgin, National Gallery, London; Death of Lucretia, Berne Museum; Madonna, St. Jerome, Portrait of a Young Man, Museum, Berlin; Madonna with the Lamb, Raczynski Gal-

His younger son and pupil, Cornelis (born at Antwerp about 1512, master of the guild in 1531, and still living in 1580), was a figure and landscape painter, by whom is a Village Street Scene (1543) in the Berlin Museum.—*Allgem. d. MASTER OF ALTAR OF HOLY KITH-AND-KIN. German school, in which, during the early part of the 16th century, were represented partly the idealism of the old school of Cologne combined with the more modern tendency to truth and individuality, partly an independent and ingenious adaptation of Upper-German influences, and chiefly a close leaning to the contemporaneous art of the Netherlands. This master is the brilliant representative of the first-named tendency. Works attributed to this painter: Altar der heiligen Sippe, Cologne Museum; SS. Columba, Ursula, and Agnes, Germanic Museum, Nuremberg; works in the Museums of Berlin and Munich.—W. & W., ii. 97, 488.

MASTER OF CAPPENBERG, 16th century, German school; his style is closely related to that of the brothers Dünwegge. Works: Crucifixion, Parish Church, Copenhagen; Holy Family, Münster Museum.—W. & W., ii. 502; Zeitschr. f. b. K., xviii. 60.

MASTER OF DEATH OF THE VIRGIN, flourished in Cologne first half of 16th century, died there, 1556. German school; painter of many altarpieces and portraits, identified by some writers with Jan Joest, though possibly his pupil, as he worked long after the death of that master, whose style is traceable in his early pictures. His later works resemble those of Quinten Massys and Mabuse so closely that they pass in several collections under those two masters' names, while many of his portraits have been ascribed to Holbein. Of late, attempts have been made to identify this master with Jan Scorel, which seem to have much in their favor, but have called forth a lively controversy by opponents. Works: Death of Virgin, Cologne Museum (1515); do., SS. George and Nicasius, St. Christina, Christ on the Cross, Repose in Egypt, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Scenes from Life of Christ (1516), St. Mary's Church, Dantzic; Adoration of Magi, Berlin Museum; do., Dresden Gallery; do. (?), Hohenzollern Museum, Sigmaringen; Altarpiece with Madonna and Angel, Madonna (2), Vienna Museum; Bewailing Christ, Louvre; Adoration of Magi, San Donato, Genoa; do., and Crucifixion, Naples Museum; Madonna, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Portraits in Cassel Gallery (1525), Cologne and Nuremberg (3) Museums, Uffizi (1520) and Corsini Gallery, Flor-

MASTER OF FRANKFORT, flourished between 1500 and 1520. German school; his works have been erroneously attributed to Konrad Fyol. Works: Adoration of Magi, Antwerp Museum; Crucifixion, Städel Gallery, Frankfort; Holy Family, Frankfort Museum; Triptych with Madonna and St. Ann, Berlin Museum.—Meyer, Museen, 273; W. & W., ii. 499.

MASTER OF LIESBORN, flourished about middle of 15th century. German school; he is known only through a great altarpiece, painted about 1465 and representing the life and passion of Christ; formerly at the Abbey of Liesborn, near Münster. In the two fragments now at the National Gallery, London, the heads are peaceful in expression and devout in feeling. The colouring is clear and agreeable, but as regards truth to nature these pictures are very inferior to those of contemporary Netherlandish painters. Works: Half-length Figures of Six Saints, Annunciation, Presentation, National Gallery, London.—Förster, Denkmale, i. 5; Kugler (Crowe), i. 133; Lübke, Kunst in Westfalen, 345; Schnaase, viii. 362; W. & W., ii. 98.

MASTER OF LYVERSBERG PASSION, second half of 15th century. German school; this artist, named after his masterpiece once in possession of Mr. Lyversberg, of Cologne, whose works were formerly attributed to the engraver Israel van Meckenem, was the first to bring into prominence the graft of Flemish realism upon the idealism of the old school of Cologne. Works: Eight Scenes from Life of Mary, Twelve Apostles, Three do. (2), Old Pinakothek, Munich; Five Scenes in Life of Mary, Germanic Museum, Nuremberg; Lyversberg Passion, Cologne Museum; Madonna with Saints, Berlin Museum.—Kugler (Crowe), i. 131; do., kl. Schriften, ii. 302; Schnaase, viii. 355; W. & W., ii. 95.

MASTER OF SIGMARINGEN, first half of 16th century. German school; contemporary of Martin Schaffner, and much his inferior. Works: Altarpiece with Scenes from Life of Mary, Hohenzollern Museum, Sigmaringen; other works in Carlsruhe and Stuttgart.—W. & W., ii. 454.

MASTER OF THOMAS ALTAR, flourished in Cologne, end of 15th and beginning of 16th century. German school; though influenced by the contemporaneous art of Upper Germany, this master, formerly identified with Lucas van Leyden, and later with Christoph, an earlier painter at Cologne, was an artist of strong individuality. Despite the meagre forms and awkward motions of his mannered figures, they are not devoid of a certain grace and expression. Works: Bartholomew Altar, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Thomas Altar (1501), Crucifixion, Cologne Museum; Two Altar Wings with Saints, Mentz Gallery; do., National Gallery, London; Descent from the Cross, Louvre (attributed to Quinten Massys, and formerly to Lucas van Leyden).—Förster, Denkmale, XII. iii. 1; Kugler (Crowe), i. 227; *Rep. f. MASURE, JULES, born at Braine (Aisne); contemporary. Marine painter, pupil of Corot. Medals: 1866; 2d class, 1881. Works: Environs of Antibes; Sea at Fréjus (1866); Bay of San Raphael; Cape of Antibes, Gulf of Juan (1868); Sunset at Granville, Solitude among Rocks at Granville (1874); Morning at Antibes, Gust of Wind at Granville (1879); Environs of Nice, Cliff in Normandy (1880); November Morning at Granville, Low Tide (1881); Fishing Boats at Granville, The Undertows (1882); Evening, Rough Sea (1883); Autumn Afternoon (1884).—Du Camp, Beaux Arts, 231; Meyer, Gesch., 753.

MASWIENS, JOSEPH, born at Louvain, Sept. 19, 1828. Architecture painter, pupil of Louvain Academy and of Genisson, then in Madrid of Villa-Amil; travelled in Spain (1853-54) and France (1855); paints chiefly interiors of churches and other buildings, of great perspective accuracy and excellent light-effects. Works: Cathedral of Toledo; Great Chapel in do.; Chapel San Isidoro, Madrid; Interior of St. Gomar's at Liern, near Antwerp; Former House of Brewers' Guild at Louvain, Louvain Museum.

MATEJKO, JAN (B. ALOYSIUS), born at Cracow, July 30, 1838. History painter, pupil of Cracow Art School, then of Munich (1858-60) and of Vienna Academy. Came at once into prominence with dramatic scenes from history of his native country.

Director of Cracow Art School since 1873; member of Berlin and Paris Academies. Medals: Paris, 1865; 1st class, 1867; of honour, 1878; L. of Honour, 1870; Order of Francis Joseph. Works: Simon Starowolski and Charles Gustavus of Sweden at Monument of King Lokietek (1857), Cracow Art Union; King Sigismund I. conferring Privilege of Nobility on Professors of Cracow University (1858), Jagellonic Library, Cracow; Poisoning of Queen Bona (1859); Murder of Wapowski (1860); King John Casimir in Bielany (1861); John Kochanowski beside the Body of his Daughter Ursula (1862); Court Jester Stanczyk (1863); Jesuit Skarga preaching before Diet of Cracow in 1592 (1862-64); Veit Stoss (1863-65); Diet of Warsaw in 1773 (1864), Vienna Museum; Alchemist Sendziwoi before Sigismund III.; Vladislav the Wise called to Throne of Poland; Union of Lublin in 1569 (1870); Stephen Báthory in the Camp of Wielki Luki (1872); Johann Wilczek during

MATTEIS, PAOLO DE, born at Cilento, Naples, in 1662, died at Naples in 1728. Neapolitan school; history painter, pupil of Luca Giordano and of Giovanni Maria Morandi; worked in Rome for Popes Clement XI, Clement XII, and Benedict XIII.; invited to France, he acquired during a residence of three years celebrity at court and throughout the kingdom. After his return he deviated from the style of Giordano, leaning more towards the Roman school. Many of his frescos and easel pictures are in Genoa and Naples, and he painted much at Monte Cassino in 1692, and in 1706-9. Works: Scenes from Tasso's Jerusalem (3), Aschaffenburg Gallery; Death of Cato of Utica, John of Nepomuk before King Wenceslaus, Schleissheim Gallery; Achilles with the Daughters of Lyncomedes, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; The Virgin in Glory, Schwerin Gallery; Scene from Tasso's Jerusalem, Museum, Vienna; Venus bidding Cupid to wound Adonis, Harrach Gallery, ib.; Triumph of Galatea (1692), Milan Academy; Adoration of the Shepherds, The Paradise, Naples Museum.—Goethe, Winckelmann, ii. 73; Lanzi (Roscoe), ii. 59.

MATTEO DI GIOVANNI di Bartolo, born about 1435, died in 1495. Sienese school; sometimes called Matteo da Siena. Though far behind the Florentines, he was the best Sienese painter of his time, and may be said to have adopted the manner of Sano di Pietro, and improved it by modernizing it. His oldest authentic picture, Virgin enthroned with Angels (1470), is in the Siena Academy; his masterpiece, the Madonna della Neve (Madonna of the Snow), dated 1477, in S. M. della Neve, Siena; his St. Barbara (1479), in S. Domenico, Siena; Madonna with Saints, in a chapel of same church; Adoration of the Virgin, Siena Academy; and his Madonnas in the Palazzo Pubblico and Palazzo Tolomei, Siena, and in the Duomo, Pienza, are also favourable examples. He was less successful in scenes requiring action, as in his Massacres of the Innocents, which are melodramatic and full of exaggerated sentiment pushed to the verge of grimace. One of them (1482) is in S. Agostino of Siena, another (1491) in S. M. de' Servi of Siena, and a third in the Naples Museum. Matteo designed three subjects for the pavement of the Cathedral, Siena, namely: the Samian Sibyl, the Deliverance of Bethulia, and the Massacre of the Innocents. In the National Gallery, London, are an Ecce Homo and an Assumption.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 81; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., vi. 186; Rio, 104; Lübke, Gesch. d. ital. Mal., i. 387.

MAZZOLA, FRANCESCO. See Parmigianino.

MAZZOLA, GIROLAMO, born at Moile, near Parma (1520–80). Lombard school; sometimes called Il Mazzolino. According to Lanzi, he was son of Michele Mazzola, but Zani says his real name was Bedolo, and that he took the name of Mazzola on marrying the daughter of Pier Hilario Mazzola, brother of Michele. He was therefore cousin, or cousin by marriage, of Parmigianino, of whom he was the favourite pupil. He had a great reputation in Parma and painted many pictures for its churches. Among his works are: Adoration of the Magi, Louvre, Paris; Madonna and Kneeling St. George, an allegory, Dresden Gallery; Miracle of the Loaves, fresco, Mantua.—Lanzi, ii. 406; Ch. Blanc, École lombarde; Zani, sub Bedolo.

MAZZUCHELLI, PIERFRANCESCO. See Morazzone.

MAZZUOLA, FILIPPO, called dell' Erbette, of Parma, died in 1505. Lombard school; father of Francesco Mazzola, called Parmigianino. His style may be seen in his Virgin and Child, dated 1491, in the Parma Gallery; his Baptism of Christ, 1493, in the Episcopal Palace, Parma; and his Dead Christ, 1500, in the Naples Museum. His figures are ill-drawn and stiff, his tempera is raw and of a sad gray tone, and he shows no knowledge of perspective. His Madonna, in the Berlin Museum, exhibits more study and better forms.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 585; Burekhardt, 587; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 485.

MAZZUOLI, GIUSEPPE, of Ferrara, died there about 1589. Lombard school; commonly called Il Bastaruolo (grain-seller) from his father's business. Probably pupil of Surchi, who was a scholar of the Dossi. Lanzi calls him a learned, graceful, and correct artist. His works are mostly in Ferrara; e.g., Circumcision, S. Barbara.—Lanzi, iii. 209; Ch. Blanc, École ferraraise.

MECHAU, JAKOB WILHELM, born at Leipsic, Jan. 16, 1745, died in Dresden, March 14, 1808. Landscape painter, pupil in Berlin of Bernhard Rode and of Le Sueur, and in Dresden of Casanova; went in 1776 to Rome, where he took Claude Lorrain and Philipp Hackert for his models; returned home in 1780 and became a member of Leipsic Academy; went to Rome again in 1790, and after the expulsion of the Pope settled in Dresden. Works: View of Rome, Dresden Museum; Abraham entertaining the angels, Christiania Gallery; Castel Gandolfo; View on Tiber with Cincinnatus ploughing; Albinus offering his Chariot to the Retreating Gauls; six scenes from life of Abraham; Flight into Egypt.—Goethe, Winckelmann, ii. 173; Meusel, ii. 28; Nagler, viii. 527.

MEDICI, MARIA DE', DEATH OF, Niçaise de Keyser, National Gallery, Berlin; canvas, H. 4 ft. 6 in. × 5 ft. 5 in.; signed, dated 1845. Maria de' Medici, queen of King Henry IV. of France, on her deathbed, one hand upon the crucifix, the other holding a medallion with the portrait of her son Louis XIII.; near by stands a nun carrying a candle; in the foreground, beside the bed, a Dominican in prayer; in the open door in the background, through which the priest with the sacrament is passing out, are two noblemen.

MEDICI, MARIA DE', HISTORY OF, Rubens, Louvre, Paris; series of twenty-one pictures, canvas. Maria de' Medici (1573–1632), daughter of Francis I. of Tuscany and of the Archduchess Joanna of Austria, and wife of Henri IV. of France, having returned to Paris after her reconciliation with her son Louis XIII., employed Rubens to paint a series of decorative pictures for the grand gallery (now destroyed) of her Palace of the Luxembourg. Rubens went to France in 1621, made the sketches in Paris, executed the pictures in Antwerp with the aid of his scholars, and delivered them in 1625. He also painted three portraits for the gallery: Maria de' Medici as Bellona, her Father Francis I., and her Mother Joanna; all of which, together with the series, were removed to the Louvre in 1779. Eighteen of the original sketches, in grisaille, are in the Munich Gallery.

MEER, JAN VAN DER, the younger, born in Haarlem, baptized Nov. 29, 1656, died there, May 28, 1705. Dutch school; landscape painter, son of Jan the elder, pupil of his father and of Berchem; master of the Haarlem guild in 1683, when he married the sister of Cornelis Dusart. He had a pure feeling for nature, and his execution is careful, but the tone of his pictures is cold and heavy. Sheep, which he had studied thoroughly, form the principal subject in his landscapes. Works: Landscape with Sheep (1678), Amsterdam Museum; do. (1688), Rotterdam Museum; do. (1679), Berlin Museum; do. (1679), Gallery, Copenhagen; do. (1681), Moltke Collection,

MEHUS, LIEVEN, born at Oudenarde in 1630, died in Florence, Aug. 7, 1691. Flemish school; history painter, first instructed in Milan, where his parents had settled, by one Karel, a Flemish battle painter, then pupil in Florence of Pietro da Cortona; fought three years against the Spaniards and returned to Florence, where he met with extraordinary success. Works: Triumph of Ignorance, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Abraham's Sacrifice, Christ bearing the Cross, Artist's Portrait, Uffizi, ib.; Madonna with Saints, S. Silvestro, Prato, Tuscany; Marriage of St. Catherine, S. Marco, ib.; Communion of St. Theresa, Cathedral, ib. Fresco: Cupola, Madonna della Pace, Florence.—Fétis, Les artistes belges, i. 191; Immerzeel, ii. 211; Michiels, x. 322.

MEIRE, GERARD VAN DER, born at Ghent about 1427, died after 1474. Flemish school; free of the guild in 1452, and sub-dean in 1472. No record of his life, nor authenticated works besides the triptych in the Church of St. Bavon at Ghent, representing the Crucifixion, the Raising of the Brazen Serpent, and Moses striking the Rock. These compositions are remarkable for the number of figures, which, however, are not skilfully distributed, and are very meagre. The many pictures in various public galleries, attributed to this painter, are not verified. Among them are: Adoration of Magi, Visitation of Virgin, Berlin Museum; Triptych with Christ bearing the Cross, Entombment, Christ on the Cross, Mater Dolorosa, Lady Donor, Antwerp Museum; Count of Henegau with Patron Saint, Portrait of Marco Barberigo, National Gallery, London; Adoration of the Magi, New York Museum.—*Allgem. d. MEISSONIER, (JEAN LOUIS) ERNEST, born in Lyons, Feb. 21, 1815. Genre painter, went in 1830 to Paris, where he was for four months the pupil of Léon Cogniet; but he formed himself chiefly by studying the works of the old masters, especially of the Dutch school. He first became known as an illustrator of books, such as "Paul et Virginie," "Chaumière indienne" (1838), "Les Français peints par eux-mêmes" (1844), etc., but soon began the series of masterpieces on a small scale, whose wonderful finish, marked character, and peculiar individuality have made his name famous in every part of the civilized world. His first exhibited picture was The Visitors (1834). MEISSNER, ERNST ADOLF, born at Dresden, April 12, 1837. Animal and landscape painter, pupil of Dresden Academy and Kummer ; spent 1860-61 in Zürich, 1868 in Rome, and settled in Munich in 1870. Many of his pictures are in America. Works : Pilgrimage on Lake Koehel ; Mill on the Elbe near Dresden ; Transportation of Cattle in Winter ; Scattered Sheep, Vienna Academy ; Returning Herd in Winter (1875), Dresden Gallery ; Sheep on Flight ; Sheep with Lambs ; On the Alp ; Sunday Afternoon (Jubilee Exhib., Berlin, 1886.—Müller, 362.

MEISTER ARNOLD, of Würzburg, 14th century. German school ; a master of equal fame in Franconia to that of Meister Wilhelm on the Nether Rhine. No work can be attributed to him directly, but the altarpiece of Pähl (about 1400), National Museum, Munich, is of his school.—Meyer, Künst. Lex., ii. 272.

MEISTER STEPHAN, born at Constance, died in Cologne in 1451. German school ; real name Stephan Lochner. Possibly a pupil of Meister Wilhelm, and the most famous master of mediæval art. He settled, and bought a house, in Cologne in 1442 ; the guild of St. Luke chose him to represent their corporation in the senate in 1448, and again in 1451, in which year he died in poverty in a hospital. In him the school of Cologne attained its highest form of originality. Works : Triptych (known as Dombild, after 1426), Cologne Cathedral ; Madonna in der Rosenlaube, Cologne Museum ; replica (?), Old Pinakothek, Munich ; Madonna with the Violets (?), Archiepiscopal Museum, Cologne ; Presentation in the Temple (? 1447), Darmstadt Gallery ; Three Saints, National Gallery, London.—Allgem. d. MEISTER WILHELM, born at Herle, Limburg, died in Cologne in 1378. German school. The earliest known representative of the ancient school of Cologne, where he painted from 1358 to 1372, and the best German artist of his time ; he is mentioned in the Limburg Chronicle of 1380, as "a famous painter in Cologne, whose equal was not to be found in Christendom, and who painted a man as though he lived." Childlike innocence, tenderness of sentiment, and remarkable purity of expression characterize the faces and graceful, slender figures painted by Master Wilhelm with sweet and tender colour. Works : Clara Altar, Cologne Cathedral ; Christ Crucified, Sacristy of St. Severin's, Cologne ; Small Altarpiece, w. Virgin w. Bean Blossom, Cologne Museum ; Madonna with Saints, Chapter Room of Halberstadt Cathedral ; St. Veronica with the Handkerchief (?), Old Pinakothek, Munich ; do. (?), National Gallery, London.—Ch. MEISTER, NICOLAS, born at Coblentz. Landscape painter, younger brother and pupil of Simon, with whom he went to Cologne about 1833 ; painted the landscape in the panorama and dioramas mentioned under Simon. Works : Views of Coblentz ; Rolandseck with Siebengebirge, and Castle Rheinstein (1834) ; Ravine with Ruin (1839) ; View of Neuwied (1848).—Merlo, Nachrichten, 279.

MEISTER, SIMON, born at Coblentz in 1803, died in Cologne, Feb. 29, 1844. History painter, pupil in Paris of Horæe

Vernet; after his return, about 1833, settled in Cologne; painted especially battles, animals, and equestrian portraits. Works: Scenes from Greek War of Independence; Death of Adolphus of Nassau; Kosciusko taken Prisoner; Napoleon and his Generals; Elector Albrecht Achilles of Brandenburg in Battle of Nuremberg (School of Cadets, Berlin); Blücher's Rescue in Battle of Ligny; Lion Hunt; Lions Fighting (1835), Frederic William IV. of Prussia returning from Parade, Cologne Museum; Panorama of French Army under General Hoche crossing the Rhine (1838-41); Diorama of Battle of Kulm; View of Castle Stolzenfels at Sunset (1843; last three together with his brother Nicolas).—Allgem. d. Biogr., xxi. 263; Merlo, Nachrichten, 280; Raczynski, i. 238.

MELXNER, LUDWIG, born in Munich in 1828. Landscape and marine painter, pupil of Bernhard Stange; visited Norway and Sweden in 1848-51; excels in moonlight scenes. Works: View in English Park near Munich; Vöhring near Munich; Moonlight Landscape, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Lake Constance with Cloud Effect; Landscape at Moonrise; View on the Untersberg; Coast Scene; Moonlight Night on Swedish Coast; Venice; The Auer Kirehe near Munich by Moonlight (1884), New Pinakothek, Munich.—D. Kunstbl. (1857), 261; Müller, 363.

MELANTHIUS (Melanthus), painter of the Sicyonian school; pupil of Pamphilus, about 332 B.C. He was a fellow-student of Apelles, by whom he was considered superior to himself in composition. Pliny says (xxxv. 32-[50]), he was one of the four great painters (the others being Apelles, Eclion, and Nicomachus) who executed their immortal works with four colours only, white, yellow, red, and black. The only one of his pictures mentioned represented Aristatus of Sicyon standing beside the chariot of the Goddess of Victory, which Nealees preserved from destruction.—Plut. Arat., 13; Brunn, ii. 142.

MELBYE, (DANIEL HERMAN) ANTON, born in Copenhagen, Feb. 13, 1818, died in Paris, Jan. 10, 1875. Marine painter, pupil of Copenhagen Academy under Eckersberg, and much influenced by Rumohr; visited, on board of Danish men-of-war, the North, Baltic, and Mediterranean seas, obtained a prize in 1843, went to Stockholm and Hamburg in 1846, and the year after to Paris, where the Duc de Decazes became his patron. In 1853 he accompanied the French embassy to Constantinople, painted there for the Sultan, and after his return for Napoleon III.; revisited Copenhagen in 1858, and having worked for a while in Hamburg returned to Paris. Member of Copenhagen Academy; L. of Honour, 1854; Order of Danebrog, 1858. Works: Ships Cruising; Eddystone Lighthouse (1846), Copenhagen Gallery; Boat in Danger; Floating Ice on Coast of Greenland; Morning after Storm; Roadstead of Copenhagen; do. of Constantinople; French Men-of-War on Greek Coast; Naval Battle in Kjöge Bay (1855), Copenhagen Gallery; Roadstead with Ships (1850), Corvette (1851), Solitude of the Sea (1852), Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Agitated Sea after Sunset (1867), Schwerin Gallery; Moonlight on Bosphorus.

MELCHIOR, WILHELM, born at Nymphenburg in 1813, died in Munich, Sept. 9, 1860. Animal painter, son of Georg Wilhelm (landscape and portrait painter, 1780–1826), pupil of Munich Academy ; fancied especially scenes after a chase. Works : Booty watched by Dogs, Fox caught by Dogs (1849), New Pinakothek, Munich ; Before the Badger's Dwelling ; Cat pinched by Crawfish. His brother Josef (born in 1810) was an esteemed painter of horses.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xxi. 291 ; Cotta's Kunstbl. (1848), 234 ; Vinc. Müller, Handb., 161.

MELDOLLA, ANDREA. See Schiavone, Andrea.

MELEAGER AND ATALANTA, Rubens, Munich Gallery ; canvas, H. 6 ft. 1 in. × 9 ft. 4 in. Meleager presenting the head of the Calydonian boar to Atalanta, who is seated in a landscape at foot of a tree ; between them stands Cupid ; several dogs and implements of the chase, painted by Snyders, near the group. Landscape probably by Wildens. Taken to Paris in 1800 ; returned in 1815. Similar picture, engraved by Bartsch, Dresden Gallery ; another, engraved by Bloemart, Blenheim sale (1886), Cavendish Bentinck, £520 ; a third in Madrid Museum.—Smith, ii. 84, 247 ; ix. 277.

By Rubens, Vienna Museum ; canvas, H. 10 ft. 4 in. × 13 ft. Attacking the Calydonian boar, which is at bay beside a fallen tree ; several dogs are wounded, and a man lies dead at the feet of the beast ; horsemen, with javelins, are galloping up to the aid of Meleager and Atalanta, who has just wounded the boar with an arrow. Animals by Snyders ; landscape by Wildens. Etched by Prenner. Similar subject, with changes, Hermitage, St. Petersburg ; another, engraved by Bolswert, Lady Stuart ; a third in Madrid Museum.—Smith, ii. 88, 157, 275.

MELEM, HANS, born at Mehlem, near Bonn, in 1493. German school ; flourished in Cologne as a contemporary, perhaps scholar, of the Master of the Death of the Virgin. His only certain work is a signed portrait of himself (1530), in the Munich Gallery. A triptych there, with Crucifixion and Saints, attributed to Melem, is by one of his pupils. He was inferior in drawing, execution, and colouring.—Förster, ii. 183 ; Kugler (Crowe), i. 228 ; Merlo, Nachrichten, 283 ; W. & W., ii. 497.

MÉLIDA, Don ENRIQUE, contemporary. Genre painter, pupil in Paris of Meissonier ; paints ingenious genre scenes, eminently individualized, often humorous. Medal, 3d class, 1886. Works : Mass in Spain (1872), Luxembourg Museum ; Round of the Santo Oficio ; Antechamber of Prince de la Paz ; Monkey-Story ; Falling Flat ; After the Procession ; First Walk ; Bull-Fight Lesson (1879) ; Illusions to the Winds (1880) ; A Study, Disturbed Festival (1883) ; Herrar, o quitár el banco, Mardi-Gras before Theatre of Marcellus at Rome (1884) ; A Maja (1885) ; Carmen, Under the Elm-tree (1886) ; Consultation (Jubilee Exhib., Berlin, 1886).—La Ilustracion (1879), i. 283 ; (1881), i. 138 ; ii. 375 ; (1883), i. 275 ; (1884), i. 341.

MELONE, ALTOBELLO, end of 15th and beginning of 16th century. Lombard school; probably studied in Bologna and Ferrara. He was Boccaccino's competitor before Pordenone's arrival in Cremona. His seven frescos of scenes in lives of Virgin and of Christ (1517) are in the nave of the Duomo, Cremona, and his Christ on the Road to Emmaus is in the National Gallery, London. He was not without power as a portrait painter, and some of his works have been assigned to great men: one, in the Stuttgart Museum, to Giovanni Bellini; another, in the Lochis Carrara Collection, Bergamo, to Giorgione; and a third, in the Castelbarco Collection, Milan, to Raphael.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 451; Meyer, Künst. Lex., i. 559; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., 223, 251; Ch. Blanc, École lombarde; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 480.

MELOZZO DA FORLI, born at Forli, June 6, 1438, died there, Nov. 8, 1494.

Umbrian school; contemporary of Mantegna, whose influence he may have felt, but owed his advancement to Piero della Francesca, of whom he was perhaps a pupil. He had, however, a higher sense of beauty and of dramatic life, and his draperies are richer and more ample than those of Piero, who excelled him in colour. Melozzo was called to Rome by Sixtus IV., and painted (1475–80) in fresco, in the Vatican Library, an Audience of Sixtus IV., now transferred to canvas and in the Vatican Gallery, which is remarkable for fine characteristic portraiture, rich architectural background, and harmonious colour. Part of another fresco, Christ among Angels, formerly in SS. Apostoli, Rome, is now on the staircase of the Quirinal; and there are seven fragments of Angels playing and singing, together with four heads of Apostles, in the sacristy of St. Peter's. His works are marked by masterly drawing, bold foreshortening, and good perspective. Many of the pictures in galleries, attributed to him, are of doubtful authenticity. Among those which may be considered genuine, as they are admirable, are the allegorical representations of the Arts and Sciences, which probably originally decorated the library in the Ducal Palace, Urbino. Of this series, one is in the Berlin Museum; two, Rhetoric and Music, in the National Gallery, London; and one, Duke Frederic with his son Guidobaldo and Vittorio da Feltre his Tutor, at Windsor.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 556; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iv. 190; Burckhardt, 559; Lermolieff, 277; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal, i. 399; Gaz. des B. Arts (1875), xii. 369.

MELZI, FRANCESCO, born in Milan in 1492, died after 1568. Lombard school; pupil of Leonardo da Vinci, and one of his most devoted disciples; an amateur of a rich and noble family. Accompanied his master to France, and was made heir of his designs and manuscripts. His pictures are so like Da Vinci's in manner as to be mistaken for them. A Vertumnus and Pomona, Berlin Museum, formerly attributed to Leonardo, is now ascribed to him. A portrait of himself is in the Melzi Collection, Milan.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 35; Baldinucci, i. 602; Lanzi, ii. 488; Ch. Blanc, École milanaise; Burekhardt, 707; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 444.

MEMLING (Memline, Memmelinck, Hemling), HANS, born about 1425, died at Bruges between Dec. 1, 1492, and Dec. 10, 1495. Flemish school; history painter, probably pupil of Rogier van der Weyden; was settled at Bruges in 1478, perhaps since 1471, if not before. According to a popular legend, Memling was admitted as a sick soldier into the Hospital of St. John, Bruges, after the battle of Nancy, and in gratitude for the care bestowed upon him painted the celebrated wooden shrine of St. Ursula, before Oct. 29, 1489, with miniatures representing six scenes from the legend of the saint, and other subjects, still preserved in the hospital. Of all the great Flemish painters of the time, Memling had the deepest religious feeling. His earliest works are: A Diptych (1460), Rev. I. F. Russell, Greenhithe, Kent; Last Judgment (1467), St. Mary's, Dantzic; Triptych (1471), Duke of Devonshire, Chiswick. His finest portraits are those of William Moreel and wife (1480), Brussels Museum; of the same persons and their eldest son, on wings of a triptych (1484), Bruges Academy; and of Mary Moreel, known as the Sibyl Sanbatha, and of Martin van Nieuwenhove, diptych (1487), Hospital of St. John, Bruges. Other works are: Madonna, Male Portraits (3), Antwerp Museum; Altar of St. John (also called Marriage of St. Catharine), Adoration of the Kings (1479), Shrine of St. Ursula, Diptych with Pietà (1480), do. with Madonna (1487), St. John's Hospital, Bruges; Altar of St. Christopher (1484), Academy, ib.; Seven Sorrows of the Virgin (1479), Passion of our Lord (?), Turin Gallery; Seven Joys of the Virgin (1480), St. John the Baptist, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Annunciation (1482), Prince Radziwill, Berlin; Altarpiece (1484), Moreel Chapel, St. Jacques', Bruges; Christ on the Cross, Male Portrait, Brussels Museum; Madonna and Saint, Man Praying (1487), Uffizi, Florence; Descent from the Cross (?), Palazzo Doria, Rome; Triptych with Adoration of the Magi (?), Madrid Museum; Madonna, Berlin Museum; Portrait of Anton of Burgundy, St. Christopher carrying the Infant Christ, Dresden Museum; do., Wörlitz Gallery; do., Count Duchatel, Paris; do., and SS. John the Baptist and Evangelist, Adam and Eve, Christ bearing the Cross, Resurrection, Museum, Vienna; Madonna (1472), Liechtenstein Gallery, ib.; Great Altarpiece with Passion of our Lord (1491), Lübeck Cathedral; Marriage of St. Catherine, Strasburg Gallery; Two panels of St. John Baptist and Mary Magdalen, with scenes from their lives, Louvre, Paris. In fresco: Crucifixion, Saints and Donors, Notre Dame, Dijon.—

MEMMI, LIPPO, died in 1356. Sienese school; an artist of the same school as his greater brother-in-law, Simone di Martino, with whom he had a common workshop in Siena. Though at times content to labor on the mechanical part of Simone's altarpieces, he frequently undertook separate commissions, the most important of which was the adornment of the Palazzo del Podesta at S. Gimignano in 1317. The spirit and composition of this work much resembles that of Simone; but it is remarkable for the minuteness of its finish, every hair and every ornamental detail being patiently worked out. Lippo also aided Simone in the painting of the Annunciation, now in the Uffizi, Florence. Other examples of his work are a Madonna with Saints, in the Palazzo Pubblico, S. Gimignano; a Madonna and Angels, in the Chapel of the Santissimo Corporale, at Orvieto; the Beato Augustino, in S. Agostino, Siena; a Madonna, in the Berlin Museum; and a Resurrection, in the Dresden Gallery.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 101; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 87, n. 3, 94; W. & W., i. 466; Dohme, 2i.; *Zeitschr. f. b. MENABOI, GIUSTO DI GIOVANNI, second half of 14th century; dead in 1397. Florentine school; pupil probably of Giovanni da Milano; name in register of Florentine painters in 1387, but afterwards a resident of Padua. A Madonna Enthroned, dated 1363, is at Milan, and a Coronation of the Virgin, dated 1367, in the National Gallery, London. Frescos attributed to him are in the Baptistery, Padua, and an altarpiece in the adjoining chapel; and other frescos in the Luca Belludi Chapel, Padua, and in the Rinuccini Chapel, S. Croce, Florence. He was a feeble continuator of the style of Giotto, whose colouring is bright and well fused, but whose drawing, expression, and choice of motives are dull and clumsy.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 248; Kunstblatt (1838), No. 13; W. & W., i. 484.

MENENDEZ, Don LUIS, born at Naples in 1716, died at Madrid in 1780. Spanish school; history and fruit painter, son and pupil of Francisco Antonio Menendez (a successful miniature painter, 1682–1745); then studied in Rome, and, visiting Naples, was appointed painter in ordinary to King Charles; on his return to Madrid, Ferdinand VI. employed him to illuminate the choir-books of the royal chapel. His favourite subjects were bodegones, in the delineation of which he has rarely been excelled. Works: Holy Family, Madonna, thirty-nine Bodegones and Fruitpieces, Madrid Museum.—Stirling, iii. 1219.

MENESES OSORIO, FRANCISCO, born at Seville about 1630, died there about 1705. Spanish school; pupil of Murillo, his favourite assistant, and one of his best copyists; painted the glory in the Marriage of St. Catherine, which cost Murillo his life, and also the four lateral pictures. Some works ascribed to his master were probably executed by him. He was a member of the Academy of Seville from 1666 to 1673, and its Mayordomo in 1668–69. Works: Death of a Hermit, Last Judgment, Cadiz Museum; Virgin appearing to St. Cayetano, Church of La Merced, Cadiz; Institution of Third Order of St. Francis, Seville Museum; Christ in Garden of Olives, Duc de Montpensier, S. Telmo.—Stirling, iii. 1103; Ch. Blanc, École espagnole; Cean Bermudez; Curtis, 331.

MENESTRATUS, painter, 1st century A.D. His pictures were ridiculed in an epigram in the Greek anthology by Lucilius, who says his Phaëthon was only fit for the fire and his Deucalion for the water. Brunn (ii. 310) thinks it doubtful whether bad tragedies rather than pictures are not here referred to.

MENGES, ANTON RAPHAEL, born at Aussig, Bohemia, May 12, 1728, died in Rome, June 29,

1779. German school; history and portrait painter, son and pupil of Ismael Mengs, a distinguished miniature and enamel painter, who early caused him to study the great masters in Dresden and afterwards in Rome, where the King of Poland, Augustus III., permitted him to continue his studies in 1741–44, and again in 1746–49; he was made court-painter at the age of twenty-three, and removed to Rome in 1751, stopping at Venice for five months. He was an eclectic who, living at a time of extreme degradation in art, excited great admiration by his skill in composition and his knowledge of technical processes, but, as he had little originality or warmth of feeling, his works have not stood the test of time. Cardinal Albani and Pope Clement XIV. employed him to paint for them at Rome, and Charles III. of Spain called him to Madrid in 1761, where as court-painter he received a high salary. His writings on painting and painters contain many refined observations and valuable notices of remarkable pictures. Works: Adoration of the Shepherds, Magdalen, St. Peter, sixteen portraits, Madrid Museum; Clement XIII., Brera Gallery, Milan; do., Bologna Gallery; Portrait of himself, Uffizi, Florence; Christ, Stuttgart Museum; St. Joseph incited to Flight by Angel, Madonna, Annunciation, St. Peter Enthroned, two portraits, Museum, Vienna; Cleopatra and Augustus, St. Erasmus, Czernin Gallery, ib.; Nativity, Liechtenstein Gallery, ib.; do. and St. Christopher carrying the Infant Christ, Head of Christ, do. of Magdalen, Harrach Gallery, ib.; Angel appearing to Joseph,

MENGES, ISMAEL, born at Copenhagen in 1690, died at Dresden in 1764. Miniature painter, pupil of Benoît Caffre, then at Lübeck of Johann Harper (of Stockholm, 1688–1746) and of Paul Heinecke ; usually painted portraits on enamel, of larger size than was then customary, but executed a few historical subjects. He became court-painter at Dresden, whence he twice accompanied his son Anton Raphael to Rome in the capacity of a severe mentor. He educated his children with so barbarous a discipline as to cause his eldest son to run away. His two daughters, Julia and Theresia Concordia, were also excellent miniature painters. Works : Artist's portrait (in oil, 1741), St. Magdalen, Annunciation (enamels), Dresden Museum ; Portrait of a Merchant (in oil), Leipsic Museum.—Nagler, ix. 122.

Benno and Corbinian, Frauenkirche, Munich ; Charitable Nuns.—Müller, 364.

MENZEL, ADOLF (FRIEDRICH ERDMANN), born at Breslau, Dec. 8, 1815. History and genre painter and illustrator, self-taught, but for a short time in 1833 pupil of Berlin Academy. First known by a series of pen-and-ink drawings, called "Artist's Pilgrimage," followed by a cycle of twelve lithographed scenes from the history of Brandenburg. Having illustrated Kugler's History of Frederic the Great, and the edition de luxe of the king's works, he was led to depict the age of Frederic, and produced a series of pictures of a pronounced realistic style, combining great skill in the treatment of details with fine colouring. His water-colours are equally excellent. Professor since 1856 ; Member of Berlin, Vienna, and Munich Academies, and of Société belge des Aquarellistes. Great gold medal, Berlin, 1856 ; 2d class, Paris, 1867 ; L. of Honour, 1867 ; Order pour le mérite, 1870 ; Bavarian Order of St. Michael. MERIAN, MARIA SIBYLLA, born at Frankfort, April 2, 1647, died at Amsterdam, Jan. 13, 1717. German school; flower and insect painter, sister of preceding, pupil of her step-father Jacob Marrel (1614–85), and of Abraham Mignon. Having married the painter Johann Andreas Graf (1637–1701) in 1665, she settled at Nuremberg; returned in 1684 to Frankfort, and afterwards moved to Holland, whence she visited the West Indies, painting for two years at Surinam (1699–1701) the native insects and plants. A former work on insect life, and one published as a result of this journey, made her famous. Most of the original paintings for them are in the British Museum, and in the Academy of Sciences at St. Petersburg. In the Vienna Museum is a Basket with Flowers, and in the Basle Museum, Locust and Chafers. Her daughters Johanna (born in 1668) and Dorothea (1678–1745) excelled in the same line; the latter accompanied her to Surinam and aided in the above-named work.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xxi. 425.

METTENLEITER, JOHANN JAKOB, born at Grosskuchen, Württemberg, Aug. 9, 1750, died in St. Petersburg in 1825. History and portrait painter, pupil at Schwäbisch Gmünd of Urban, and in Mannheim of Brand, then worked in Speyer; went to Holland, and thence, as a soldier, to the Cape of Good Hope, where he earned by portrait painting enough to buy himself off; returned to Amsterdam; went in 1775 for one year to Italy, and then to Munich, where he copied especially after Mieris and Dou; settled in 1778 at Augsburg, whence he went again to Amsterdam, then to Vienna, and, in 1786, to St. Petersburg. Works: Resurrection (1785), Augsburg Cathedral; two genre scenes with portraits of Obwexer Family; two scenes from Götz von Berlichingen.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xxi. 524.

METRODORUS, Greek painter and philosopher, of Athens, 2d century B.C. Probably identical with writer on architecture of same name. When L. Æmilius Paulus asked the Athenians (168 B.C.) to send him a tutor for his children and a painter to celebrate his triumph, Metrodorus was selected as uniting both qualifications in his own person.—Pliny, xxv. [135].

METSU, GABRIEL, born in Leyden in 1630, died in Amsterdam, buried Oct. 24, 1667. Dutch school; genre and portrait painter, son of and probably first instructed by Jacob Metsu (a Fleming, who had settled in Holland); then pupil of, or at least influenced by, Gerard Dou, and afterwards by Rembrandt; entered the guild of Leyden in 1648, but left his native place in 1650, and settled in Amsterdam, where he married in 1658, and took the freedom of that city in 1659. This distinguished master shows in his style the influence of Terburg and Dou; in refinement of drawing and picturesque composition no painter of small subjects equalled him. In pictures of his earlier period a warm harmony of great clearness predominates; in his later works the tone is cooler, finely balanced, occasionally somewhat spotty in effect. He painted chiefly scenes from the upper classes of society, yet he took pleasure in representing market scenes, huntsmen, cook-maids, and the like. He treated mythological and allegorical subjects exceptionally well. Works: Duet, Music Lesson, Drowsy Landlady, National Gallery, London; Female Fruit Dealer, Gentleman playing Violoncello, Girl drinking Champagne, Portrait of himself, Buckingham Palace, ib.; Woman selling Herrings, Lady caressing Spaniel, Horseman before a House, Bridgewater Gallery, ib.; Sleeping Huntsman, Sir Richard Wallace, ib.; Young Girl Drawing, Old Woman Reading, Lord Ashburton, ib.; Dictating the Letter, Gentleman Writing, Lady reading a Letter, Mr. Hope, ib.; Intruder, Mr. Baring, ib.; Corset Bleu, Mr. Neeld, ib.; Corset Rouge, W. MICHELANGELO DI LODOVICO

BUONARROTI SIMONE, born at the Castle of Caprese in Casentino, March 6, 1475, died in Rome, Feb. 18, 1564. Florentine school; became the pupil of Domenico Ghirlandajo, April 1, 1488, and also studied at the Academy in the Gardens of St. Mark, where he attracted the notice of its founder, Lorenzo de' Medici, who gave him a home at the Medici Palace until his death (April 8, 1492). By the advice of Politian he selected the Battle between Hercules and the Centaurs as the subject of his first bas relief, preserved in the Casa Buonarroti. After the death of his patron, he for a time returned to his father's house and devoted himself to anatomical studies, but feeling bound by ties of gratitude to the Medici, he accepted the invitation of Piero de' Medici, and resided in his palace until 1494. His departure for Venice, shortly before Piero's expulsion, closes the first period in his life, during which he probably painted a Deposition from the Cross, which has been attributed to Luca Signorelli and to Baccio Bandinelli, and a very fine unfinished Madonna with Angels, National Gallery, London. In the autumn of 1494 Michelangelo came from Venice to Bologna, where he spent a year in the house of Gian Francesco Aldrovandi, working little, and impatient to return to Florence. Having sculptured an angel for the altar shrine of St. Dominick, he returned to his native city before July 15, 1495. As this notice of Michelangelo relates only to his work as a painter, his sculpture is only casually referred to. Early in 1496 he went to Rome and remained there four years, during which time he sculptured the famous Pietà at St. Peter's. At Florence, before 1504, he painted for Angelo Doni a Holy Family, now in the Tribune of the Uffizi, one of the least interesting of all celebrated pictures. In October of the same year he began a cartoon of Soldiers summoned to Battle while bathing in the Arno near Pisa, intended for a fresco which was to have been painted in the Great Hall of the Palazzo Vecchio. It was finished in Aug., 1505 or 1506, and hung in the hall side by side with the rival work of Leonardo da Vinci, admired by all and studied by young artists until its intentional or accidental destruction during a popular tumult about 1512, though there are reasons for thinking that it survived a few years longer. In 1505 Michelangelo entered the service of Pope Julius II., and from early in that year until May, 1506, when he spent three months at Florence, he was either employed at Rome in designing the Pope's monument or at Carrara in superintending the extraction and shipment of marbles to be used in its construction. In May, 1506, after a quarrel with Julius, Michelangelo fled from Rome to Florence. A reconciliation was effected between them in August, at Bologna, where the artist remained, to cast the Pope's statue in bronze, until March, 1508, when he was again at Florence for a short time, until his forced return to Rome to paint the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel. This greatest of his works was begun in May, 1508, and the first unsatisfactory experiment of painting with Granacci, and other assistants, in September of that year. Their work having been destroyed, the great artist grappled with his herculean task single-handed. On All Saints' Day, 1509, when the ceiling had been half completed, the chapel was thrown open to the public. Satisfied with the effect, Pope Julius then allowed the scaffolding to be replaced and Michelangelo to resume his labours, which he probably completed in 1512, although the chapel was not reopened until after March, 1513, when the Pope died. The vaulted ceiling is divided into compartments containing scenes from the Book of Genesis. Sublime figures of Sibyls and Prophets are painted in the pendentives, and subjects taken from the Old Testament in the lunettes. All these are bound together by a simulated architectural framework, vivified by figures representing the geni of architecture. The theme of the artist is man and his redemption; the actors in the great drama are Adam and his progeny; the assisting chorus, those sublime figures of Sibyls and Prophets in which Michelangelo displays his unrivalled powers of conception, imagination, design, and drawing. Could we also add to these power as a colourist, we should call him the greatest of painters; but this we cannot do, because colour was to him an, in itself, unimportant means for the representation of form, upon which his essentially plastic genius concentrated itself. In the Holy Family, at the Uffizi, his one certainly authentic oil picture, the colour is cold and inharmonious, while in his frescos it is of secondary importance. Before the death of Pope Clement VII. (1534) Michelangelo had made designs for the fresco of the Last Judgment, in the Sistine Chapel, and in September of that year it was begun, at the bidding of Paul III., and finished in 1541. While the Last Judgment shows no sign of diminished power, the frescos of the Conversion of St. Paul, and the Crucifixion of St. Peter, in the Pauline Chapel (about 1550), exhibit a marked decline. When Leo X. succeeded, in 1513, he appointed Michelangelo architect of the projected, but never built, façade of San Lorenzo, and caused him to waste three years in marble-buying and road-building at Carrara and Seravezza. In 1519 he was ordered by Leo to build the Chapel of the Medici, begun in 1520, to sculpture for it tombs of the famous members of the family, partially completed in 1525-29, and to construct the library of San Lorenzo, undertaken in 1523, when this Pope was succeeded by Clement VII. Six years later he besieged Florence to restore the Medici, and Michelangelo as commissioner-general conducted the defence. In this capacity he went to Ferrara to study the fortifications, and was commissioned by the duke to paint a Leda, supposed to be the picture in tempera in the National Gallery (unexhibited), London. This is the only other picture by him, besides those already mentioned, in existence, for the Three Fates, Pitti Gallery, Florence, belongs to his school. After Aug. 12, 1530, when Florence was betrayed to the Imperial forces, Michelangelo resumed his work at the Medici Chapel, and carried it on until 1534, when he began to paint the Last Judgment, in the Sistine Chapel. Before this time he had finished the statue of Moses for the tomb of Julius II., finally completed, on a very reduced scale, in 1545 for the Church of S. Pietro in Vincola. In 1546 Michelangelo succeeded Antonio di Sangallo as head architect of St. Peter's, confirmed by papal brief, Jan. 1, 1547. In February of that year he sustained a severe affliction in the death of Vittoria Colonna, who had long been the presiding deity of his life, and to whom he addressed so many of his finest sonnets. In Dec., 1555, he lost Urbino, his faithful servant more than twenty-five years. The Grand Duke of Tuscany tried to induce Michelangelo to leave Rome for Florence, but in vain, for he feared that if he did so the great cupola of St. Peter's might never be finished as he had designed; and, with the exception of a few months spent at Loreto and in the mountains near Spoleto, he did not again absent himself from the city. After his death his body was secretly taken to Florence, where splendid obsequies were celebrated in the Church of S. Croce in March, 1564.—Black, *M. A. MICHELE DA VERONA, died May 15, 1525. Venetian school; one of his earliest known works, the Crucifixion, in S. Stefano, Milan, dated 1500, is in many respects a copy of Jacopo Bellini. As he repeated the same subject on a vast scale in S. M. in Vanzo, Padua (dated 1505), it is likely that he had some share in the series which adorns the school (Scuola) of the Santo.

He was again in Verona in 1509, as in that year he finished the Eternal with Angels, (dated 1508) in S. Chiara. The full measure of his ability is given in an altarpiece of 1523, a Madonna Enthroned, in the Church of Villa di Villa, near Este, where he displays a not unpleasant mixture of Morone, Cima, and Buonconsiglio. Other works are Pentecost, Miniscalchi, Verona; Crucifixion (1505), Seminario vescovile, Padua.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 506; Bernasconi, 283.

MICHELINO DA MILANO, 15th century (flourished in 1402–12). Lombard school; celebrated for painting animals; decorated parts of Casa Borromeo, Milan, with frescos, which show that he had some ability in rendering form and in treating colour. Possibly identical with Michelino da Besozzo or de' Molinari, recorded in 1404 as a glass painter in the Duomo, Milan.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 257; Burekhardt, 521.

MICHELIS, ALEXANDER, born at Münster, Dec. 25, 1823, died at Weimar, Jan. 23, 1868. Landscape painter, pupil of Düsseldorf Academy under Schirmer; became professor at the Weimar Art School in 1863, founded an etching club, and devoted himself to art history. Works: Westphalian Landscape (1845); Wood-Path with Cows; Hungarian Horses at Sunrise; Heath View, Prague Gallery; Battlefield in Approaching Storm; Elves' Dance; Destroyed Earthwork; Primeval Forest (1857); Wood Interior, Stettin Museum.—*Allgem. d. MICHOLD, EDMUND, born in Cologne in 1818. Genre painter, studied in Cologne and Munich, afterwards lived alternately in Düsseldorf and Cologne. Works : Tyrolese Family ; Musical Shoemaker ; Cobbler training Bird ; Uncautious Tailor.

MICON, painter and brass-caster of Athens, son of Phanoehus and fellow-worker at Athens of Polygnotus, 5th century B.C. Said by Pliny (xxxiii. 56 [160] ; xxxv. 25 [42]) to have been the first, with Polygnotus, to use yellow ochre (sil) and black made from burned grape-husks. Noted for his skill in painting horses. Among his works were the Battle of Theseus, and the Athenians with the Amazons, in the Pœcile at Athens ; the same subject, on one of the walls of the Theseum, and the Fight between the Centaurs and the Lapiths, on another wall of the same building ; and the Argonautic Expedition, in the Temple of the Dioscuri.—Paus, i. 18, 1 ; Brunn, i. 274.

MICON, painter, called the younger by Pliny (xxxv. 35 [147]). He was the father of Timarete.—Brunn, ii. 300.

MIEL (Meel), JAN, called Bieke, Jamieli, and Giovanni delle Vite, born near Antwerp in Brussels (?) in 1599, died in Turin in 1664. MIELICH (Müelich), HANS, born at Munich in 1516, died there in 1573. German school ; history, portrait, and miniature painter, perhaps pupil of Sigmund Schmitzer (court-painter in Munich about 1514–36), and influenced by Altdorfer ; appears as a master as early as 1546, and afterwards became court-painter to Duke Albrecht V. of Bavaria. Seems to have visited Italy, to judge from an existing copy of Michelangelo's Last Judgment ; excelled in minature, of which the most remarkable are those in the compositions of Orlando di Lasso and Ciprian de Rore, in the Court and State Library at Munich. Other works: Altarpiece with Scenes in Life of Christ and Mary (1572), Frauenkirche, Ingolstadt; Christ on Mount of Olives, and Entombment, Last Judgment (copy after Michelangelo), Frauenkirche, Munich; Male Portrait (1540), Female do. MIERIS, FRANS VAN, the elder, born in Leyden, April 16, 1635, died there, March 12, 1681. Dutch school ; genre painter, son of Jan van Mieris, goldsmith ; pupil of Abraham Torenvliet, then of Gerard Dou, who called him the prince of his scholars, and of Adriaen van den Tempel. His preference for subjects from the life of the upper classes shows the influence of Metsu ; and a certain humour in some of his works, that of his friend Jan Steen. Minuteness of execution is carried to the highest point in his pictures, his colouring is as clear and delicate as it is deep and rich, and in the art of painting velvet, satin, and other rich stuffs he is unsurpassed. Works : Lady in Crimson Jacket, National Gallery, London ; Portrait of himself, Bridgewater Gallery, ib. ; Making out the Reckoning, Mr. Hope, ib. ; Woman reading Music, Mr. Baring, ib. ; Pedestrian with a Flask, Mr. Holford, ib. ; Portraits of himself and of Frank Wouters, Mr. Heusch, ib. ; Lady at her Toilet, Two Ladies drinking Tea, Interior of a Household, Male Portrait, Louvre ; Artist and his Wife, Boy blowing Soap-Bubbles (1663), Portraits of Florentius Schuijl (1666) and of Mieris and his wife, Hague Museum ; Lady writing Letter (1680), Lady playing Guitar, Frailty, Jacob's Dream, Escaped Bird (1676), Amsterdam Museum ; Rembrandt's Mother, Brunswick Gallery ; Boy giving Water to his Bird (1665), Male Portrait, Carlsruhe Gallery ; Sent on an Errand, Officer with Bumper, Portraits (3, one dated 1662), Gallery, Copenhagen ; Drinking the Health, Reading before School-

MIERIS, JAN VAN, born at Leyden in 1660, died at Rome in 1690. Genre and portrait painter, son and pupil of Frans, the elder, then of Lairese; went via Germany to Florence and Rome. As he died when thirty, his pictures are very rare. Works: Assembly of Ladies and Gentlemen with Lute-Player, Gotha Museum; Surgeon dressing Wound, Hermitage, St. Petersburg.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xxi. 717.

MIERIS, WILLEM VAN, born in Leyden in 1662, died there, Jan. 27, 1747. Dutch school; genre and mythology painter, son and pupil of Frans, the elder, whom in his early genre pictures he approached in merit, though always inferior in drawing and im-pasto. In his later time he painted mythological subjects and landscapes, which are prosaic and totally deficient in grace. Painted small easel pictures, especially shop interiors, also historical and mythological subjects. Modelled statuettes and vases adorned with bas-reliefs. Died blind at the age of 85. Works: Female Poultry-Dealer (1713), National Gallery, London; Woman and Violin-Player, Bridgewater Gallery, ib.; Two Girls, Young Man giving Grapes to a Woman, David and Bathsheba, Mr. Hope, ib.; Old Woman and a Girl, Mr. Baring, ib.; Raree-Show, Mr. Heusch, ib.; Three Children, Poultry-Dealer, The Cook, Louvre; Fishmonger (1717), Antwerp Museum; Susanna and the Judges, Brussels Museum; Poultry Dealer (1733), Arcadian Landscape (1722), Lady and Gentleman, Amsterdam Museum; Grocer's Shop (1717), Hague Museum; Fishmonger with Glass of Beer, Basle Museum; Joseph and Potiphar's Wife, Carlsruhe Gallery; Old Woman in Grocer's Shop, Cassel Gallery; Ceres (1719), Copenhagen Gallery; Venus endeavoring to dissuade Adonis from Hunting, Darmstadt Museum; Itinerant Musician embraced by Girl (1694), Game Dealer, Woman filling Glass for a Man (1699), Man blowing a Trumpet (1700), Cephalus and Procris (1702), Venus Asleep (1703), Ariadne and Bacchus (1704), Fortune-Teller, Girl bringing Drink to a Man (1706), Preciosa recognized by her Mother (1709), Venus and Paris (1717), Company of Apes (1719), Old Cook (1729), Dresden Gallery; Male and Female Portrait, Ferdinandeum, Innsbruck; Interior with Lady and Fishmonger (1719), Old Pinakothek, Munich;

MIGLIORI, FRANCESCO, born at Venice in 1684, died there in 1734. Venetian school; history painter, about whose life little is known. He showed early an unusual talent, which was impaired by an attack of temporary insanity. Works: Bacchus and Ariadne, Europa sitting on the Bull, Joseph interpreting Dreams, Abraham's Sacrifice, Lot and his Daughters, Cain and Abel, Cimon nursed by his Daughter Pera, Dresden Museum.

MIGNARD, NICOLAS, born at Troyes, Feb. 7, 1606, died in Paris, March 20, 1668.

French school; portrait and allegory painter, studied at first at Troyes, then spent several years at Fontainebleau, where the works of Fréminet, Primaticcio, and Rosso inspired him with the desire to visit Italy. In 1644 he accompanied the Cardinal Archbishop of Lyons to Rome, where he remained two years. On his return he went to Avignon, and when that city was visited by Louis XIV. in 1660, painted so good a portrait of the king that he was called to Paris by royal command, and there received all the honours of a great painter. Member of Academy in 1663, professor in 1664, and rector in 1690. Many of his portraits are in private collections. Works: Mars and Venus (1658), Aix Museum; Louis XIV. as a Child, Blois Museum; Portrait of Anne Geneviève de Bourbon-Condé, Douai Museum; Artist's Portrait, Lyons Museum; Portrait of a Bourbon Princess, do. of a Painter, Musée Rath, Geneva; St. John in the Desert, Portrait of Louis XIV. in his Youth, do. of Duchess Cristina of Savoy, Turin Gallery.—Bellier, ii. 90; Ch. By Ary Scheffer, Duchesse d'Ayen; two pictures, canvas, each H. 5 ft. 5 in. × 2 ft. 8 in. Subject from Goethe's "Wilhelm Meister." 1. Mignon regretting her Country. Painted in 1836; Salon, 1839. Engraved by Aristide Louis. 2. Mignon aspiring to Heaven. Painted in 1839; Salon, 1839. These pictures met with so pronounced a success that Scheffer followed them with a third, illustrating the meeting of Mignon with her father, entitled Mignon and the Old Harper (1844), now belonging to Queen Victoria, but it was not so favourably received. The subject of Mignon has been treated also by Garipuy (Salon, 1859) and Christian Kohler (engraved by Massau, 1865).

MILL, THE. See Isaac and Rebecca, Marriage of.

MILLAIS, Sir JOHN EVERETT, Bart., born in Southampton, June 8, 1829. Genre, landscape, and portrait painter; pupil in drawing at Mr. Sass's Academy, and won in 1838 a silver medal of the Society of Arts with a drawing from the antique; became in 1840 a student in the Royal Academy, where he won in 1843 the silver medal; he exhibited in 1846 Pizarro seizing the Inca of Peru, and in 1847 was awarded the gold medal for his Benjamites seizing the Daughters of Shiloh. In 1847 he competed for a commission to paint in the Houses of Parliament, sending ing to Westminster Hall The Widow bestowing her Mite, and in the same year his Elgiva seized by Odo was in the Academy. In the years 1847-49, in connection with D. G. Rossetti, Holman Hunt, Woolner, and others, seven in all, he founded an association, afterwards called the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, whose motto was Truth. Nothing was to be generalized in their art which could and should be expressed in detail. Their theory was that what is common in nature is good enough for art. In 1854 Mr. Millais was elected an A.R.A., being, with the exception of Lawrence, the youngest artist who has attained that distinction; he became an R.A. in 1863, and was created a baronet in 1885. He was awarded a 2d class medal at Paris in 1855, a medal of honour in 1878, in which year he was made an Officer of the Legion of Honour, and was chosen a Member of the Institute of France in 1883. He is a member also of the Academies of Edinburgh, Antwerp, Madrid, and Rome. Works: Portrait of William Hugh Fenn (1848), W. W. MIND, GOTTFRIED, born at Berne in 1768, died there, Nov. 7, 1814; or, according to Wurzbach, born at Lipese, Hungary, in 1768, died at Berne, Nov. 15, 1814. Animal and genre painter, first instructed by one Legel, then pupil of Sigmund Freudenberger, in whose house he thenceforth remained, faithfully assisting the master. Mind's specialty was the representation of cats, in which he had no equal; many of his pictures became widely known through lithographs and engravings, and won him the surname of the Cat Raphael. Among his genre pictures those of children at play were the most successful. Works: Various Animals, Cat with her Young, Landwehrmann of Berne, Two Poodle Dogs, Basle Museum; Groups of Cats (3), Berne Museum.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xxi. 765; Wurzbach, xviii. 339.

MINDERHOUT, HENDRIK VAN, born in Rotterdam in 1632, died in Antwerp, July 22, 1696. Flemish school; marine painter. Free of guild at Bruges in 1663, moved to Antwerp in 1672, and forthwith entered the guild there. Painted harbours and rivers with vessels very truthfully, but the numerous figures in his pictures are of inferior merit. Works: Harbour in the Levant (1675), Antwerp Museum; do., Rouen Museum; do., Christiania Gallery; View of Reservoir at Bruges (1653), Bruges Academy; Seaport (1673), Dresden Museum; two River Views with Skippers Feasting, Madrid Museum; Storm at Sea, Turin Gal-

Half-length, in black dress, with white veil falling upon shoulders; holds a book in left hand; background, seen through two arches, the buildings of a city with hill in distance. Supposed by some to be a portrait of Ginevra, wife of Amerigo Benci, which Leonardo painted in Florence about 1500, but the picture is probably not by Leonardo. Bought by Ferdinand III. of Niccolini family. Engraved by Marchi.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 39; Gal. du Pal. Pitti, ii. Pl. 36; Clement, 374; Rigollot, Hist. des Arts, etc., i. 301; Heaton, 266, 270.

MONACHESI, NICOLA, born at Tolentino, Italy, in 1795, died in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1851. History and portrait painter, pupil of the Accademia di S. Luca, Rome, under Gasparo Landi, where he won the first prize for painting. In 1831 he emigrated to America, made his home in Philadelphia, and soon after became a naturalized citizen. Among his earliest patrons were Stephen Girard, Madam Rush, and Joseph Bonaparte. In 1832 he executed a series of frescos in St. John's Roman Catholic Church (then the Cathedral), Philadelphia, which brought him into prominent notice. These, painted upon wet plaster, are said to have been the first real frescos executed in this country. In 1833-34 he frescoed the Philadelphia Merchants' Exchange, and in 1834 Matthew Newkirk's residence, the decorations of which were carefully preserved when it was made into St. George's Hall. He also frescoed the Roman Catholic Churches of St. Mary, St. Joseph, St. Augustine, and St. Philip, and painted altarpieces for them. In 1841-42 his large historical picture, The Murder of Jane McCrea, was exhibited in Philadelphia. His portraits exist in many old families of Philadelphia and its vicinity.

MONTAGNA, BARTOLOMMEO, born at Orzinovi, near Brescia, about 1450, died at Vicenza, Oct. 11, 1523. Venetian school ; resident of Vicenza in 1480, and painted an altarpiece there in 1483. Bred probably in the local school of Vicenza, he was early attracted by Bellini and Carpaccio, but his style was not fully developed until he visited Padua (1491), where he studied Mantegna. From Padua he went to Veroua, and in 1496 settled down to steady work in Vicenza, where he was held in great esteem, and accounted the first resident master. Among his best works are the Madonna and Saints (1499), Brera, Milan ; Madonna, in S. Maria in Vanzo, Padua ; Madonna and Saints, Venice Academy ; do. (1487), Bergamo Gallery ; do. (1499), Milan Academy ; do. (1500), Berlin Museum ; and the Pietà (1500), Church of Monte Berico. Other examples in the Vicenza Gallery, in the Louvre, the National Gallery, London, and at Orgiano, Modena, Pavia, Schwerin, and Stuttgart.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 423; Burekhardt, 174, 191, 603; Ch. Blanc, École vé-

MONTAGNA, BENEDETTO, first half of 16th century. Venetian school; son of Bartolommeo, though commonly called his brother, and his assistant until his father's decease. Better known as an engraver than as a painter. His father bequeathed him the bulk of his property and his practice, but Benedetto was not Bartolommeo's equal in talent. In 1490 he was master in his guild. There are pictures by him in the Duomo at Vicenza, in the Brera, Milan (1528), and in the Venice Academy (1533).—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 435; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Bartsch, xiii. 332; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 478; Wiltshire, 446.

MONTAGNANA, JACOPO, born before 1450, died in Padua about 1499, in which year he made his will. Venetian school; Vasari classes him among the disciples of Giovanni Bellini, but he was probably a follower of Mantegna, who somewhat modified his later work by study of Bellini and Carpaccio. Enrolled among the members of the Paduan guild in 1469. His constant employment in later years in the Santo, where he painted now destroyed frescos in the Chapel of the Sacrament (1476), and the important works intrusted to him, show the esteem in which he was held.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 361; Gonzati, La Basilica di S. Antonio, Padua (1854), i. 59, 258.

MONTALBA, CLARA, born at Cheltenham; contemporary. Landscape and marine painter, pupil in Paris of Eugène Isabey. Associate of London Society of Painters in Water Colours in 1874, and of Belgian Society in 1876. Exhibits at Royal Academy and Grosvenor Gallery. Works: Festa di S. Antonio—Venice, Canal—Venice (1879);

S. Chiara—Venice (1880); Dalmatian Boat, S. Marco—Venice (1881); Boats—Venice, Riva degli Schiavoni—Venice (1882); Trabacolo at Custom House—Venice, Cement Works on Thames (1883); Middelburgh, Port of do. (1884); Port of Amsterdam (1886). Of her sisters, Ellen and Hilda Montalba paint portraits and figure-pieces, and Henrietta S. Montalba is a sculptor.

MONTANO D'AREZZO, of Arezzo, beginning of 14th century. He was of considerable ability and great industry, and undertook large and important works. In 1305 he painted two chapels in Castel Nuova, and in 1306 two chapels in the Castel del' Ovo, Naples. In 1310 he was knighted by King Robert. He adorned a chapel in the Monastery of Montevergine, near Avellino, and he is the traditional author of a Madonna there.—C. & C., Italy, i. 190.

MONTEN, DIETRICH, born in Düsseldorf, Sept. 18, 1799, died in Munich, Dec. 13, 1843. MORANDO. PAOLO, born in 1486, died in 1522. Venetian school; commonly called Cavazzola. He was the pupil of Domenico, and the fellow-pupil of Francesco Morone, when Francesco was the partner of his father. Vasari thinks that had he lived he would have acquired great celebrity. While his pictures show the influence of the Moroni, they have an individual stamp; and he may justly claim to have infused new life into the Veronese school, especially by his novel system of colouring. His latest altarpiece, the Madonna in Glory with Saints, dated 1522, is in the Verona Gallery, where are also his Christ bearing his Cross, St. Thomas, and St. Roch. His Madonna, in the National Gallery, London, painted about 1520, recalls the madonnas of Raphael.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 498; Vasari, ed. MORETTO, IL, born at Brescia about 1498, died there in 1555. Venetian school; real name Alessandro Bonvicino, but commonly called Moretto or Moretto da Brescia. Said to have been a pupil of Titian's, but probably only a diligent student of his works, as his earlier creations show a dependence on his master Fioravante Ferramola and Romanino. Later he made a very successful approach to the highest performances of the Venetian school; and still later his colour foreshadowed the coming of Paolo Veronese. He aided Ferramola in 1518 in painting an organ screen for the old cathedral, Brescia, and Romanino in 1521 in the decorations in S. Giovanni Evangelista, Brescia. In later years he painted much for this church, one of his best efforts being the Massacre of the Innocents, a canvas tempera. Many other churches in Brescia possess one or more of his pictures, the more noteworthy of them being the Coronation of the Virgin and the Christ in Glory in S. Nazzaro e Celso, the Virgin and Child in S. Clemente, the Majesty of St. Margaret in S. Francesco, the Virgin and St. Nicholas in S. Maria de' Miracoli, and the Glory of St. Anthony in S. M. delle Grazie. His Supper at Emmaus is in the Tosi Collection. In 1544 he painted his celebrated Feast in the House of Simon, in S. M. della Pietà, Venice, the model of the style elaborated by Paolo Veronese. The Marriage at Cana in S. Fermo, Lonigo, is of about the same date. Other important works by Moretto are: The Death of Adonis, Uffizi, Florence; Death of Peter Martyr, Ambrosiana, Milan; Virgin in Glory, SS. Clara and Catherine, St. Jerome and an Apostle, and Assumption, Brera, Milan; Faith, Judith and Holofernes, Allegory of Faith, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Madonna (ascribed to Giorgione), Leuchtenberg Gallery, ib.; Adoration of the Shepherds, Madonna in Glory (1541), Berlin Museum; The Virgin, Dresden Museum; Madonna, Four Roman Fathers at the Church, Städels Gallery, Frankfurt; St. Justina, Vienna Museum; SS. MORGENSTERN, JOHANN LUDWIG ERNST, born at Rudolstadt, Sept. 22, 1738, died in Frankfurt, Nov. 13, 1819. Architecture and landscape painter, studied at the Academy of Salzdalen in 1766, and after having worked under Schütz in Frankfurt in 1770, and in Darmstadt in 1771-72, entered Nothnagel's studio in Frankfurt. His architectural paintings are cold in effect, but good in perspective, clear in colour, and carefully executed. Works: Gothic Church Interiors (3, 1805, 1812), Darmstadt Museum; do. (2, one dated 1789), Gotha Museum; Church Interior, Stuttgart Museum; Gothic and Renaissance Church Interiors (2, 1792, 1793), Peasant Farm, Städel Gallery, Frankfurt.—Kugler (Crowe), ii. 568.

MORGENSTERN

MORGENSTERN, KARL, born at Frankfurt in 1811. Landscape painter, grandson of preceding, pupil of Munich Academy (1832), whence he visited the Bavarian highlands, and in 1834 went to Italy; his landscapes, of masterly perspective, are mostly views from different parts of that country. Works: Bay of Villafranca near Nice (1843), View of Naples, Bay of Bajæ, Städels Gallery, Frankfurt; replica of first-named, and Coast of Capri, Tasso's House at Sorrento, Schack Gallery, Munich. — Kaulen, 147; Schack (1884), 222.

MORGENSTERN, (KARL) ERNST, born in Munich in 1847. Landscape painter, son and pupil of Christian, after whose death he studied under Joseph Schertl; visited the Bavarian Alps, Tyrol, Switzerland, North Germany, Holland, and Belgium. Works: Waldbachstrupp near Ischl, Stettin Museum; Bären Lake near Hohenaschau; Starnberg Lake; View on Meisling Lake; Village View near Dachau; Eytenshausen; North German Heath; Autumn Landscape with Chapel; Evening; Abandoned Mill; River Landscape; Evening, Indian Summer (1883). — Müller, 377.

MORIN, (FRANÇOIS) GUSTAVE, born at Rouen, April 8 (18?), 1809, died there, Feb. 15, 1886. Genre and history painter, pupil of Chaumont and of Leon Cogniet. Member of Rouen Academy; custodian of Rouen Museum since 1837; L. of Honour, 1863. Works: Last Hour (1835); Titian preparing his Colours (1852), Havre Museum; Conquest of England, Magdalen, Youth of the Virgin (1848); Ariosto reading his Poem, Rouen Museum; The Sharpers (1859), Assembly of Saint-Vivien (1861), ib. — Hédou, Gustave Morin et son Œuvre (Rouen, 1877); Chronique des Arts (1886), 61.

MORITZ, LOUIS, born at The Hague, Oct. 29, 1773, died in Amsterdam, Nov. 22, 1850. History and portrait painter, pupil of Dirk van der Aa. Member of Hague, Brussels, and Ghent Academies. Works:

Cleopatra taken Prisoner by Proculus (1809); Victory of Nieuwpoort in 1600 (1818); Figures in Panorama of Waterloo; Battle of Nieuwpoort (1820), War Council of Civic Guard in Amsterdam; Death of Antoninus Pius, Amsterdam Museum; Stable Interior, Rotterdam Museum;

Night Camp of Cossacks.—Inmerzeel, ii. 240; Kramm, iv. 1156.

MORITZ, WILLIAM, the younger, born at Neuchâtel about 1805, died at Berne in 1860. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of his father (William Moritz, the elder, landscape painter?), then studied in Italy. Works: Henri II. de Longueville ordering Planting of Avenues at Colombin (1844), Wounded Chamois Hunter (1846), Neuchâtel Museum; Empty Cradle (1856), Husband at the Inn (1858), Berne Museum.

MORLAND, GEORGE, born in London, June 26, 1763, died there, Oct. 29, 1804.

Figure and animal painter, son and pupil of Henry Robert Morland (1712–97), portrait painter, and grandson of George Henry

Morland (died after 1789), subject painter; also studied several years at the Royal Academy, and copied assiduously the Dutch and Flemish masters. First exhibited at Royal Academy in 1779. Became dissipated, and died in a sponging-house. Painted chiefly country scenes with domestic animals, and enjoyed a high reputation. Works: Interior of Stable, Quarry with Peasants, National Gallery; The Reckoning, South Kensington Museum; his own portrait, National Portrait Gallery, London; Dogs fighting, Old English Sportsman, Historical Society, New York.—J. Hassell, Life (1804); G. Dave, Life (1807); Blagdon, Memoirs (1806); Wm. Collins, Memoirs of a Picture (1805);

MORO, BATTISTA ANGELI DEL, born about 1530, died in Rome about 1610.

Venetian school; proper name Battista Angeli, but took the name del Moro when he became the heir of his father-in-law and master, Francesco Torbido, called Il Moro. As a painter he lacked originality, being an eclectic imitator of all the great painters of his time, but he won a considerable reputation, and worked in Venice and in Mantua in concurrence with Paolo Veronese. He painted also many frescos in Verona. Vasari says he excelled as a painter of miniatures, and he was an engraver of much merit. He was aided in his works by his son, Marco del Moro, who died young at Rome after 1586. Battista had also two brothers, Giulio (died after 1618), a mediocre painter, sculptor, and architect, and Girolamo dell'Angelo (died 1622).—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., vi. 108; ix. 184, 282; xi. 133; Baldinucci, ii. 429; Bernasconi, Studii, 337.

MORO, GIOVANNI, portrait, Titian, Berlin Museum; canvas, H. 2 ft. 7 in. × 2 ft. 2 in. In armour, bareheaded. Painted in 1538. Cleaned in 1874 by Pettenkofer process.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 22.

MORO, IL. See Torbido.

MORONE, DOMENICO, born in Verona in 1442, died after 1508. Venetian school; called by his townsmen Pelacano (Tanner), on account of his father's occupation. Registered among Veronese burghers in 1491; educated in the school of Pisanello, but developed a broader style; commissioned to paint library of Convent of S. Bernardino in 1503, and doors of the organ (1483), still extant, and frescos in S. M. in Organo in 1508. He was a fair second-rate representative of his art in the 15th century, but, taken in connection with his son, Francesco, he gave an impulse to Veronese art, developing a new and powerful style based on the precepts of Mantegna, though without servile imitation.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 486; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 575; Bernasconi, 238.

MORONE, FRANCESCO, born in Verona in 1473, died there, May 16, 1529. Venetian school; son of Domenico Morone, whom he served some time as an assistant; afterwards an independent master of large practice, gaining a name second only to that of Morando. He studied Mantegna as a draughtsman, and Montagna as a colourist. His first works known are a Virgin and St. John, Church of S. Bernardino (1498); Virgin with Trinity and Saints, Verona Museum; Virgin enthroned with Saints (1503); Altar-piece, S. M. dell'Organo; do., Brera, Milan; do., Duomo, Trent. His masterpieces are in the sacristy at S. M. dell'Organo, where the walls and ceiling are filled with incidents adapted from Mantegna's in the Camera de Sposi at Mantua. This sacristy is one of the grand monuments of local art in the Venetian provinces, second only to Mantegna's creations in the use of perspective and foreshortening, and in the geometrical distribution of the space. Morone's Madonna and Saints, on the walls of a house near the Ponte delle Navi, Verona, painted in 1515, indicates a long and careful study of the best masterpieces of Mantegna.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 489; Bernasconi, 280; Lavice, 99, 147; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 576.

MORONI, GIOVANNI BATTISTA, born at Bondo near Albino, Province of Bergamo, about 1520–25, died at Brescia, Feb. 5, 1578. Venetian school; pupil of Moretto, and one of the most successful followers of his style, says Tassi; but, though he was an admirable colourist, his pictures are unequal in invention and design to those of his master. His portraits are far better than his altarpieces, and are equal to any of his time. He worked chiefly in Bergamo and its vicinity. Among his large examples are a Holy Family, Leuchtenberg Gallery, St. Petersburg; and the Assumption and a Madonna, Brera, Milan. Fine examples of his portraits are in the Uffizi, Florence (5, one dated 1563, among which his own portrait); Berlin Museum (3, one dated 1543); Pope Pius IV., Dresden Museum; Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Städel Gallery, Frankfurt (2); Academy Carrara, Bergamo (12); Gallery Tosi, Brescia; Madrid Museum, and National Gallery, London.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Burekhardt, 737; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 621.

MOROT, AIMÉ NICOLAS, born at Nancy, June 16, 1850.

History painter, pupil of Cabanel and of the École des Beaux Arts. Won the grand prix de Rome in 1873. Medals: 3d class, 1876; 2d class, 1877; 1st class, 1879; medal of honour, 1880. Works: Daphnis and Chloë

(1873); Medea (1877); Incident of the Battle of Aqua Sextiæ (1879); Good Samaritan (1880); Temptation of St. Anthony (1881); Crucifixion (1833); Bravo Toro, Dryad (1884); Toro Colante (1885); Rézonville (1886).—Müller, 378; Kunst-Chronik, xviii. 27; xx. 571; Gaz. des B. Arts (1881), xxiii. 513.

MORRELL, IMOGENE ROBINSON, born at Attleborough, Mass.; contemporary. Portrait and history painter; pupil of Camp-hausen in Düsseldorf, and of Couture in Paris. Paints horses with great fidelity. Works; David before Saul; Washington and his Staff welcoming a Provision Train, First Battle between the Puritans and the Indians (1876).

MORRIS, PHILIP RICHARD, born at Devonport, England, Dec. 4, 1838. History painter; studied in the British Museum, under the advice of Holman Hunt, and in the Royal Academy, where he won in 1855 the silver medal for the best drawing from life, and in 1858 the gold medal for the best historical painting, The Good Samaritan, and also the travelling studentship, which enabled him to spend some time in France and Italy. Elected an A.R.A. in 1877.

Medal, 2d class, Antwerp Exhibition, 1885. Works: Voices from the Sea, Widow's Harvest (1860); Captives' Return (1861); Where they crucified Him (1864); Jesu Salvator, Battle Scar (1865); Riven Shield (1866); Drift Wreck from the Armada (1867); Ambuscade (1869); Summit of Calvary (1871); Highland Pastoral (1872); Whereon he Died (1873); End of the Journey (1874); The Mowers (1875); Sailor's Wedding (1876); Lost Heir, Heir of the Manor (1877); The Tomb, First Communion (1878); Bathers Alarmed (1879); Sons of the Brave (1880); Queen's Shilling (1881); Sale of the Boat (1882); Foes or Friends, Tambour Minor, Promenade (1883); Joy and Sorrow, Quite Ready, Sweethearts and Wives (1884); The First Prince of Wales (1885).—Art Journal (1872), 161; (1878), iii. 212.

MORSE, SAMUEL FINLEY BREESE, born in Charlestown, Mass., April 27, 1791, died in New York, April 2, 1872. Figure and portrait painter; graduated at Yale College in 1810, and became a pupil of Washington Allston, whom he accompanied in the following year to London, where he studied also under Benjamin West. In 1813 he was awarded a gold medal by the Adelpi Society of Arts for an original model of a Dying Hercules. He returned to the United States in 1815, and after painting in Boston, and Charleston, S. C., removed in 1822 to New York, where, in 1826, he became one of the original founders of the National Academy of Design, of which he was president in 1827-45, and again in 1861-62. In 1829 he revisited Europe and spent three years in study in Rome, Paris, and other art centres, but ten years later abandoned the profession to devote himself to scientific investigations; and he is now better known as the inventor of the system of magneto-electric telegraphy which bears his name than as a painter. Works: Death of Hercules (1813); Judgment of Jupiter (1814); House of Representatives at Washington (H. 8 ft. x 11 ft., 1822), Daniel Huntington, New York; Ichabod Crane and the Headless Horseman (1826); Una and the Dwarf, Cazenovia Lake, Trenton Falls (1828); Gallery of the Louvre (1832-33), George Clark, Otsego; Amalfi, The Wetterhorn and Falls of the Reichenbach, Brigand Alarmed, Pifferari (1833); Helicon and Aganippe, Sunset View of St. Peter's (1836); Portraits of President Monroe, Chancellor Kent, DeWitt Clinton, Lafayette, Fitz-Greene Halleck, William Cullen Bryant, Thorwaldsen, Major-General Stark, *Rev. MORTIMER, JOHN HAMILTON, born at Eastbourne, Sussex, in 1741, died in London, Feb. 4, 1779. History painter, pupil of Thomas Hudson, and St. Martin's Lane Academy; also said to have had instruction from Reynolds. In 1763 gained first premium from Society of Arts, and in 1764, in competition with Romney, the award of 100 guineas for his St. Paul preaching to the Britons, now the altarpiece of the church at High Wycombe. Was a member of the Society of Artists, and its vice-president in 1773; but fell into dissipated habits and neglected art. Created R.A. in 1779, by special grant from the king, but did not live to receive his diploma. Better known by his drawings than his pictures. Left many etchings. Works: King John granting Magna Charta; Vortigern and Rowena; St. Paul preaching to the Britons; Battle of Agincourt; Progress of Vice; Progress of Virtue; Portrait of himself, National Portrait Gallery.—Redgrave; Ch. Blanc, École anglaise; F. de Conches, 301.

MORTO DA FELTRE, of Feltre, born

at Feltre in 1474, killed in battle of Zara, 1519, according to Vasari, though a fresco of 1522 has been ascribed to him. Venetian school; supposed identical with Pietro Luzzi, son of Bartolommeo, who was appointed surgeon to city of Zara, in 1476, and died there in 1530. Pietro or Morto, who, from his father's residence in Zara is sometimes called Zarato or Zarotto, went in 1495 to Rome, in 1506 to Florence, and in 1508 to Venice, where, according to Ridolfi, he became the disciple of Giorgione, whose mistress he seduced, and whose death he caused (1511) from grief. He afterwards settled at Feltre. But few of his works remain. He is at his best in the altarpiece in the church at Villabruna.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 219; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ix. 106; vii. 87; Burchardt, 728; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 606.

MOSCHELES, FELIX, born in London in 1833. Figure and portrait painter, son of the eminent composer, Ignaz Moscheles; studied in Paris and under Van Lerius in Antwerp. MOZART, LAST MOMENTS OF, Michael Munkácsy, Paris. The dying composer having written as his last work a requiem to be sung at his own funeral, rehearsed fragments of this composition with his friends on the day before his death, Dec. 5, 1791. Clothed in a yellow dressing-gown, his legs wrapped in a woollen blanket, he is seated in an arm-chair, and, seen in profile, beats the time for the singers with his right hand, while the left is holding a leaf of the score, which seems to glide from his feeble grasp. Behind him stands his wife, and at his right, half shaded, his little son. The group of singers, wholly absorbed in the immortal work, occupies the left side of the picture, while a third group, standing by the piano in the background, is formed by the friends, who observe the master with mournful disquietude, one of them, leaning upon the instrument, looking with marked sympathy at his face. Painted in 1885–86.—Allgem. K. C., x. 263, 374; Kunst-Chronik, xxi. 443.

MÜNSTER, PEACE OF, Gerard Terburg, National Gallery, London; copper, H. 1 ft. 5 in. × 1 ft. 10 in.; signed, dated 1648. Assemblage in the Rathhaus, Münster, May 15, 1648, for ratification of treaty between the Dutch United Provinces and Spain. A clerk is reading the oath of ratification, while Barthold van Gent, for the Provinces, and the Count of Peñaranda, for Spain, hold copies of the paper. One of the most wonderful assemblages of minute portraits ever painted in oil, containing about thirty figures. Passed from painter's family, late in last century, to Van Leyden Gallery; thence to Prince Talleyrand, to Buchanan (1817), to Duc de Berri, and in 1837 to Prince Demidoff, at whose sale (1868) it was bought by Marquis of Hertford for £7,280; presented by Sir Richard Wallace in 1871.—Art Journal (1871), 294; (1872), 28; Cat. Nat. Gal.

MURILLO, BARTOLOMÉ ESTÉBAN, born in Seville, Jan. 1, 1618, died there, April 3, 1682. Spanish school. From his first master, Juan del Castillo, Murillo learned all the mechanical parts of his calling, and in 1639–40, when Castillo removed to Cadiz, earned his daily bread by painting such devotional pictures as were commonly bought up by colonial merchants for shipment to Transatlantic Spain. In this way he obtained sufficient means to allow him to go in 1643 to Madrid, where he introduced himself to Velasquez, then in the zenith of his fame, who gave him valuable counsel, and obtained admission for him to the royal galleries, where he copied the works of the great masters. On his return to Seville in 1645 he spent three years in painting a series of eleven pictures for the small cloister of the Franciscan Convent, whose excellence at once gave him reputation and brought him many commissions. In 1648 he married, and soon after gave up his first, so-called cold (frio) manner, and adopted his second, warm (calido) style. The fertility of his talent, only paralleled by that of Lope de Vega in literature, enabled him to cover the walls of private and public buildings at Seville with pictures, now scattered all over Europe at prices which, to the artist, would have seemed fabulous. In representing his favourite subject, the Virgin of the Conception, of which the finest example is that in the Louvre, Murillo so far surpassed all other painters that he obtained the surname of the Painter of the Conception. Alternating, according to the nature of his subject, between his warm manner and his so-called vaporous (vaporoso) style, he produced his masterpieces for the Capuchin Convent near Seville, and the Hospital de la Caridad in that city. In 1658 Murillo conceived the idea of founding a public Academy of Art at Seville, and having obtained the concurrence of Valdes Leal and of Herrera the younger, accomplished his design Jan. 1, 1660. On the death of Philip IV., his successor, Charles II., named Murillo his court-painter, and in vain endeavoured to induce him to take up his residence at Madrid. He continued to work at Seville until his death in 1682, which resulted from the effects of a fall from a scaffolding, upon which he had mounted to paint the upper part of a picture of the Marriage of St. Catherine, for the Church of the Capuchin Friars at Cadiz. Works: Holy Family del Pajarito, Rebekah and Eliezer, Annunciation (2), Magdalen, St. Jerome (2), Adoration of Shepherds, St. Augustine, St. Francis of Assisi, Madonna, St. James, Christ the Good Shepherd, St. John Baptist, Christ and St. John, Vision of St. Bernard, St. Ildefonso, Madonna del Rosario, Conversion of St. Paul, Education of the Virgin, Christ Crucified (2), San Fernando, Conception (4), Martyrdom of St. Andrew, Prodigal Son (4), Jesus sleeping upon the Cross, Head of John Baptist, do. of St. Paul, St. Francis de Paul (3), Ecce Homo, Mater Dolorosa, and others, Madrid Museum; St. Elizabeth of Hungary, St. Diego blessing Soup, St. Francis, Adoration of Shepherds, Magdalen, Roman Senator's Dream, Roman Senator relating do., Academia S. lem Muys, and at the Hague Academy of Aart Schouman; dean of the guild at Rotterdam in 1782–83 and 1792. Works: Interiors (1775, 1776, 1777, 1779, 1791), do. by Candle Light (1783), Landscape with Figures (1790), Rotterdam Museum.

MUZIANO (Mutiano), GIROLAMO,

born at Acquafredda in 1530, died in Rome, April 27, 1592.

Venetian school; pupil of Girolamo Romanino at Brescia, but went young to Venice to study the works of Titian. When about twenty years old he went to Rome, where his talent won him the friendship of Michelangelo and Taddeo Zuccherò, with whom he painted many works. Muziano was superintendent of the decorations in the Vatican under Gregory XIII., and the founder of the Academy of St. Luke, which he endowed at his death. He made drawings, begun by Giulio Romano, of the bas-reliefs on the column of Trajan, afterwards engraved. His works, of which he left a large number, exhibit a grandeur of design approaching that of Michelangelo, whom he closely imitated. His compositions are good, and his colouring rich, after the Venetian manner. Blanc calls him a second-rate Sebastiano del Piombo. He excelled as a designer of mosaics, many of which in St. Peter's, Rome, were executed after his designs. His best pictures are in Roman churches: Resurrection of Lazarus, in S. M. Maggiore; Assumption of the Virgin, S. Paolo; St. Francis receiving the Stigmata, Cappuccini; Conception of the Virgin, S. M. Traspontina; Christ giving the Keys to St. Peter, and St. John preaching in the Desert, S. M. degli Angeli; Circumcision, Gesù; Ascension, Ara Coeli. In the Louvre are the Incredulity of St. Thomas, and Resurrection of Lazarus;

at Reims is a St. Mary the Egyptian; in the Bergamo and Bologna Galleries a St. Jerome; in the Naples Museum a St. Francis d'Assisi in Prayer; and in the Schleissheim Gallery are a Christ before the Crucifixion, and a Pietà.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 266; xii. 115; Seguiet, 136; Siret, 633; Burekhardt, 739; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal.; Zeitschr. f. b. K., x. 207.

MYN, HERMAN VAN DER, born at Amsterdam in 1684, died in London in 1741. Flower painter, pupil of Ernst Steuven; afterwards began to paint portraits and historical subjects, which caused his being called to the court of the Elector-Palatine; returned to Holland in 1717, then went to Paris, and later on to London, where he obtained enormous prices for life-size portraits, but, living recklessly, was obliged to leave on account of debts in 1736, and on his return to Holland received a pension from the Prince of Orange; hoping to better his circumstances he went again to London in 1741, and died in poverty. Works: Garden Flowers in costly Vase, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Festoon of Flowers, Schleissheim Gallery; Death of Sophonisbe, Turin Gallery.—Immerzeel, ii. 251; Kramm, iv. 1180; Nagler, x. 90.

MYTENS, DANIEL, the elder, born at The Hague about 1590, died after 1658. Dutch school; portrait painter, formed himself after Rubens; entered the guild of The Hague in 1610; went in 1618 to England, where he worked for James I. and Charles I., whose court-painter he became in 1625. On Van Dyck's arrival he wished to retire, but the king and Van Dyck himself persuaded him to remain. Said to have returned to The Hague about 1630. He painted beautiful copies of Raphael's cartoons. His works show great simplicity of manner, lightness of colour, and silvery flesh tones. Works: Charles I. with Henrietta Maria and Child, Buckingham Palace; Earl of Arundel and Family, Duke of Norfolk's Collection, London; Marquis of Hamilton, and others, Hampton Court; Marquis of Hamilton, Earl of Hopetoun's Collection; Earl of Portland, Duke of Bedford's Collection; Charles I. and Henrietta Maria, Earl of Dunmore's Collection; Sir Randolph Crewe, National Portrait Gallery, London; Charles I. and Henrietta Maria (1637), Dresden Gallery; Charles I. as Prince of Wales (1624), Copenhagen Gallery; Charles I. NASELLI, FRANCESCO, born at Ferrara about 1570, died there in 1630. Lombard school, of noble family; pupil of Ippolito Mazzuoli or of Bastaruolo; opened a school at Ferrara and removed to Bologna, where he studied the works of the Carracci and their disciples. Painted in competition with Bonone and Giuseppe Scarsella.—Lanzi, iii. 218; Ch. Blanc, École ferraraise.

NASINI, GIUSEPPE NICOLA, born at Castel del Piano, Jan. 25, 1657, died in Siena, July 3, 1736. Sienese school; history painter, pupil of his father, Francesco Nasini, and in Rome of Ciro Ferri, who sent him to Florence to copy the paintings of Pietro da Cortona. There the Grand Duke furnished him with the means to continue his studies in Rome. All writers on art of that period unite in the most enthusiastic eulogies of the works of this master, who seems now entirely forgotten. His masterpiece, the Novissimi, or Four Last Stages of Man, completed in 1594, grand compositions of enormous size, are still in the church of San Francesco, at Siena, to which city they were presented by Ferdinand III. of Tuscany, in 1795.—Acacl. (1883), 52, 219.

NASMYTH, PATRICK, born in Edinburgh, Jan. 7, 1787, died at Lambeth, Aug. 17, 1831. Son and pupil of Alexander Nasmyth (1758–1840), a mediocre landscape painter; went to London in 1807, and two years later exhibited his first picture in the Royal Academy. Painted simple landscapes, with much detail in execution, in imitation of the Dutch school, but with great force. Works: View in Hampshire, Thomas Baring; Cottage, Angler's Nook, National Gallery, London.—Redgrave; Ch. Blanc, École anglaise.

NASON, PIETER, born probably at The Hague, died after 1680. Dutch school; portrait and still-life painter, supposed pupil of Jan van Ravesteyn; master of Hague guild in 1639, one of the founders of the new guild in 1656; long employed at the court of the Great Elector in Berlin. A manly style and decided individuality characterize his portraits, which are excellently drawn and of careful execution. Works: Female Portrait (1670), Haarlem Museum; Portrait of Willem Frederik of Nassau (1662), Hague Museum; Two Portraits, Rotterdam Museum; Portrait of Great Elector (1667), Charlottenburg Castle; Male Portrait (1668), Still Life with costly Vessels, Berlin Museum; Portrait of Charles II.; Two Portraits

NERO PERSECUTING CHRISTIANS, Wilhelm von Kaulbach. The Emperor, clad as Apollo, is standing on a terrace before his palace, lifting with his right hand a goblet; a favourite slave, kneeling, holds his lyre, while a host of voluptuous Greek and Roman women come with wreaths and cymbals to proclaim him their god and to sacrifice to him; at his right, Tigellinus, prefect of Rome, applauds him; but serious men around him, of old-republican morals and patriotic spirit, look on with grief and anger. In the foreground, the martyrdom of Christians, whom Nero has charged with the firing of Rome. In the middle group, a man, supposed to be St. Peter, is tied head downwards on a cross, which Nero's attendants are about to erect, while some of the saint's adherents passionately kiss his face and hands. In the group at the left, a martyr, dressed in skins, is tied to a pole, to be covered with pitch and lighted like a torch, his wife raising their child to him for a farewell kiss. The central figure in the group at the right is St. Paul, who has manfully risen against the horrors, while a licitor already lifts the executioner's axe against him; others around him are plunged in sorrow; some girls point with passionate gestures towards another who, about to ascend the steps to join the idolaters, is seized with sudden shame, and endeavours to cover her nude form; the German warriors near them observe as hostile an attitude as the noble Romans above, one of them looking pensively on St. Paul.—Illustr. Zeitg. (1874), i. 9; Land und Meer (1874), i. 15.

NERO ON RUINS OF ROME, Karl von Piloty, National Museum, Pesth; canvas, H. 15 ft. × 20 ft. Rome having been devastated by fire for six days, the Emperor goes forth to view the burning ruins; crowned with a rose wreath, bloated and debauched, yet grand in form, he stalks through the mid-picture, on the Palatine, preceded by slaves and torch-bearers, and followed by favourites of both sexes. A company of prætorian guards fill the far corner of the canvas; in the middle foreground lies a group of dead Christian martyrs, around whom are broken and up-torn mosaics, crumbling and calcined walls, and black, charred rafters. Painted in 1861; exhibited at International Exhibition, London, 1862. Bought for 10,000 florins by Count John Pálaffy, Pressburg, who presented it to the National Museum of Pesth in 1872.—Art Journal (1862), 183; (1865), 297; Pecht, D. K., iii. 220.

NEROCCHIO DI BARTOLOMMEO DE' LANDI, born in Siena in 1447, died there in 1500. Sienese school; of moderate ability, he held a good position in his native city. His style varies but little from that of Vecchietta, except that the attitudes of his figures are more affected and unnatural. Most of his extant works are in the Siena Academy.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 68.

NESEAS (Neseus), painter, of Thasos, about 424 B.C. Supposed by some to have been the master of Zeuxis.—Pliny, xxxv. 36 [61]; Brunn, ii. 74.

NESSELTHALER, ANDREAS, born at Langenisarhofen, Bavaria, in 1748, died at Salzburg in 1821. History, portrait, and landscape painter, pupil of Vienna Academy; went in 1779 to Rome, where he assisted Unterberger in copying Raphael's loggia paintings for the Russian Court; painted with Flüger allegories in fresco in the queen's palace at Caserta, near Naples, and on his return to Rome had great success with encaustic paintings, especially for the Empress of Russia. In 1789 he settled at Salzburg, whither he had been called by Archbishop Jerome, and painted in oil, encaustic, fresco, and water-colours for many churches in and around that city. Works: Alliance of Arminius against Rome; Roman Embassy concluding Peace with the Almans; Nativity; Death of St. Joseph; St. John the Baptist; Ave Maria; Death of Cato, Abbey of St. Florian, Upper Austria; Old Man playing the Lyre, Vienna Museum.—Hormayr's Archiv (1833), 120, 128; Wurzbach, xx. 196.

NEWTON, GILBERT STUART, born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Sept. 2, 1795, died at Chelsea, Eng., Aug. 5, 1835. Son of a royalist officer driven from Boston when Washington occupied it; on the death of his father his mother returned (1803) to Boston, where he had some instruction from his uncle, Gilbert Stuart. In 1817 he went to Italy and to Paris, where he met Charles Robert Leslie, and, returning with him to London, became a student at the Royal Academy, and was soon recognized as an agreeable subject painter. Elected an A.R.A. in 1828, and R.A. in 1832, in which year he revisited America and married. On his return, his mind became so seriously affected that he had to be taken to a private asylum at Chelsea, where he died. Works: Yorick and the Grisette, The Window, National Gallery, London; Captain Macheath (1826), Vicar of Wakefield reconciling his Wife to Olivia (1828), Bowood House; Shylock and Jessica (1830); Lear and Cordelia, Portia and Bassanio (1831); Lute-Player, Historical Society, New York; Importunate Author, E. and two boys holding book and inkstand respectively ; below, a crone and a bearded old man on one side, and a maiden playing the harp, with a boy, on the other, typifying Saga and Song.

Right of entrance: King Gunther and Brunhilde ; opposite, Siegfried and Chrimhilde.

Second wall, left: Hagen, Volker, and Dankwart ; the Dwarf Alberich, as guardian of the Nibelungen hoard, with the key, and Chrimhilde's messenger, Eckewart, with the sword, asleep.

Third wall, opposite door: The Danubian Nixies predicting to Hagen his own and his friends' ruin ; on sides, Dietrich von Bern and Hildebrand, Etzel and Rüdiger.

Fourth wall: Siegfried's parents, Siegmund and Sieglinde ; Gunther's and Chrimhilde's mother, Ute, with her younger sons, Gernot and Giseler.

On ceiling: Quarrel of the two Queens ; Hunting-party returning with the body of Siegfried ; Fall of the Burgundians in Etzel's castle at Vienna ; Etzel's lament over the heroes' death.

2. Wedding Hall. Return of Siegfried with Volker, Hagen, Dankwart, and the captured kings of the Danes and Saxons, Lüdeger and Lüdegast ; Gunther and his brothers riding to meet him.

Opposite wall: Brunhilde at Worms, received by Ute, Chrimhilde, and her brothers ; in the foreground, right, Siegfried, Hagen, and others.

Third wall: Siegfried's Wedding ; above, Siegfried's first entry into Worms, and Hagen reporting it to King Gunther, on the one side, and Siegfried returning from the chase, on the other.

Fourth wall: Between the windows, Siegfried giving to his wife Brunhilde's girdle and ring ; over the windows, Siegfried, with Chrimhilde and Eckewart, returning to his parents. Also, ten smaller pictures.

3. Hall of Treason. Quarrel of the Queens ; Murder of Siegfried ; Chrimhilde beholding the body of Siegfried at her door.

Chrimhilde discovers Hagen to be the murderer of Siegfried—on the four walls respectively, besides several smaller pictures ; on the ceiling, a falcon between two eagles, surrounded by festoons of jewels and pearls, emblematic of the Nibelungen hoard.

4. Hall of Vengeance. Death-struggle between the Burgundians and the Huns ; Hagen vanquished by Dietrich von Bern ; Chrimhilde kills Hagen, and is herself slain by Hildebrand. On the ceiling, the Nixies behold the fulfilment of their prophecy.

5. Hall of Lament. Etzel and his court weeping over the body of Chrimhilde ; Return to Worms of the messengers, with the weapons of the slain ; Bishop Pilgrim receives the news of the destruction of the Burgundians ; He orders masses to be sung for the heroes.—Marggraff, München mit seinen Kunstschatzen (Munich, 1845), 288.

NICIAS, Greek painter, Theban-Attic school; pupil of Antidotus, first part of 4th century B.C. He preferred large subjects, thinking it waste skill and labour to paint small objects, such as birds and flowers. He excelled in aerial perspective and in chiaro-oscuro; was famous for his female figures, and very happy in his pictures of dogs. Pliny says (xxxv. 20) he was the first who used usta (burnt ceruse). Praxiteles said that he prized most among his statues those which had been coloured by Nicias. Among his noted pictures were a Necromantia, or representation of the infernal regions as described by Homer, which he declined to sell to King Ptolemy for sixty talents, because he preferred to give it to his native city; Nemea seated on a Lion, placed in the Curia at Rome by Augustus; Father Liber, preserved in the Temple of Concord at Rome; Hyacinthus, which Augustus carried from Alexandria to Rome, and which Tiberius dedicated in the Temple of Augustus; Io, Andromeda, Calypso, and Alexander, in the Portico of Pompey; Danaë, and Calypso seated.—Pliny, xxxv. 40 [131, 133]; Paus., iii. 29, 15; vii. 22, 6; Demet. NICOMACHUS, painter, of Thebes (?), son and pupil of Aristiaëus, about 350 B.C. Cicero speaks of him (Brut., 18–70) with high praise; Pliny says that he worked with great rapidity; Plutarch (Timol., 36) compares his pictures with the verses of Homer, as having, besides strength and beauty, the charm of seeming to have been executed with little effort; and Vitruvius (iii. Procem. 2) mentions him among those artists who were prevented by adverse circumstances only from attaining the highest rank. Among his works were Rape of Proserpine, Victory soaring on High in a Chariot, Cybele on a Lion, Ulysses wearing the Pileus, Bacchantes surprised by Satyrs, and Scylla, the last of which was probably burned in the Temple of Peace, Rome, A.D. 191.—Pliny, xxxv. 21, 32, 36 [108, 109]; Brunn, ii. 168.

NICOPHANES, Greek painter, probably of 4th century B.C. Sicyonic school. Pliny (xxxv. 36 [111]) calls him an elegant and finished painter, with whom few could compare for gracefulness, but inferior to Zeuxis or Apelles in the severe and tragic style; but Polemon (Athen., xiii. p. 567) gives a much lower opinion of him. He may have been identical with Chærephanes, an artist mentioned by Plutarch (De Aud. Poet., 18) in even more severe terms. Pliny mentions (xxxv. 40) among the works of Nicophanes, Æsculapius with his Daughters, Hygiea, Ægle, Panacea, Jason, and the Ocnos (slug-gard), representing a man twisting a rope at one end while an ass gnaws it at the other.—Brunn, ii. 154.

NICOSTHENES, painter, probably of 4th century B.C., master of Theodorus of Samos and of Stadiaëus. Pliny, xxxv. 40 [146]. There was also a pottery painter called Nicosthenes, whose name appears on several vases found at Agrigentum.—Brunn, ii. 646.

portraits. Went to Italy in 1777; returned three years later to London, and fairly entered into competition with Opie, at a time when Reynolds, West, Barry, and Fuseli largely occupied public attention. From his studio, on Clifford Street, Northcote sent forth many historical pictures, such as The Murder of the Princes in the Tower (1786), Hubert and Arthur, The Death of Wat Tyler, painted for Boydell's Shakespeare Gallery, which, thanks to a certain dignity and narrative ability, met with considerable favour. His best work, however, was in portraiture of a semi-historical nature, examples of which are his portraits of Viscount Exmouth and Dr. Jenner. During the last fifteen years of his life he painted about sixty portraits, the best of which give him a high place in the ranks of his distinguished contemporaries. He became an A.R.A. in 1786 and R.A. in 1787. At the age of eighty-one he painted the portrait of himself, in the National Portrait Gallery. Northcote had literary ability of no mean order, as proved by his Life of Sir Joshua Reynolds (1813), and his Life and Times of Titian (1830).—Dutton Cook, 244; Fortnightly Rev. (1876), xxv. 861; Once a Week (1860), iv. 373; Redgrave; *Ch. NORTHWEST PASSAGE, Sir John Everett Millais, Bart., C. F. H. Boleckow, Middleborough; canvas, H. 5 ft. 9 in. × 7 ft. 3 in. Painted in 1874, when the public mind was exercised about the fate of some Arctic explorers. In a room, through the open windows of which is seen the sea, are seated two figures—an aged seaman, in navy blue (portrait of E. J. Trelawney, friend of Byron and Shelley), intently listening, and a young lady, dressed in white with a rose-coloured fichu, reading aloud from a book on Arctic discovery lying on her lap. A sea picture is on the wall, and a Japanese screen in the background is draped with a large Union Jack. Royal Academy, 1874; Exposition universelle, Paris, 1878. Etched by M. Mongin in "Modern Artists."—London Illus. News (1885).

NOTER, DAVID DE, born in Ghent, contemporary. Still-life painter of distinction. Medals: 1845, 1852. Lives in Algiers. NUÑEZ, JUAN, painted in Seville, beginning of 16th century. Spanish school; pupil of Sanchez de Castro. His best known work, The Virgin supporting the Dead Christ, with SS. Michael and Vincent Martyr at her side and an ecclesiastic kneeling beneath, is in the Cathedral at Seville.—Stirling, i. 96.

NUÑEZ DE VILLAVICENCIO. See Villavicencio.

NUVOLONE, CARLO FRANCESCO, born in Milan in 1608, died there in 1651. Lombardo-Milanese school; history and portrait painter, son and pupil of Panfilo Nuvolone; sometimes called Panfilo and confounded with his father. Afterwards studied under Giulio Cesare Procaccini, and followed his style, but later imitated Guido so successfully that he was named the Guido of Lombardy. The Brera has several of his works, and others are in the churches of Milan, notably St. Peter's Miracle at the Gate of the Temple, in S. Vittore. Nuvolone was selected to paint the portrait of the Queen of Spain on her visit to Milan in 1649. Other works: Rebekah at the Well, Bergamo Gallery; Assumption and Apostles, Annunciation (2), St. Martha slaying a Dragon (1636), Family of Panfilo Nuvolone, Academy, Milan; Chaste Susanna, Fondazione Pol-di-Pezzoli, ib.—Lanzi, ii. 529; Ch. Blanc, École milanaise; Lavice, 125, 148.

NUVOLONE, GIUSEPPE, born at Milan in 1619, died there in 1703. Milanese school; brother of preceding, with whose works his own form a striking contrast; reared in the same school, he exhibited a more fervid imagination, though without equal taste, and painted on a much larger scale, for the cities of Lombardy, for many churches in Brescia, and other cities in the states of Venice. Among his best works are his pictures in S. Domenico, Cremona; in particular his grand piece of St. Dominic raising a Dead Man. His portrait, painted

NUZI, ALLEGRETTO. See Allegretto Nuzi.

NUZZI, MARIO, called Mario da' Fiori, born at Penna (or Perma?), Naples, according to some in Rome, in 1603, died in Rome in 1673. Roman school; flower and fruit painter, pupil of Tommaso Salini; in Rome his pictures were held in the highest estimation, and purchased at great prices; but, from a vicious mode in the preparation of his colours, they soon lost their original freshness and depreciated in value. Member of Academy of San Luca, 1657. Works: Flower- and Fruit-Pieces in Suermondt Museum, Aix-la-Chapelle; Darmstadt (2) and Madrid (8) Museums; Artist's portrait, Uffizi, Florence.—Lanzi (Roscoe), i. 490; Siret (1884), ii. 105; Goethe, Winckelmann, ii. 29.

NYDIA, Gabriel Mar., private gallery. Nydia, the blind girl of Pompeii, from Bulwer's "Last Days of Pompeii." Full length, standing upon the steps of a portico, in front of two columns which support an awning; her long white robe, which shows her sandalled feet in front, trails on the marble behind her, and she holds a basket of flowers in her hands.

NYMEGEN, DIONYS VAN, born at Rotterdam in 1705, died there, Aug. 28, 1798. Dutch school; genre, portrait, and landscape painter, son and pupil of Elias van Nymegen (flower painter, 1667-1755). OPHELIA, Sir John E. Millais, Bart., Mrs. Fuller-Maitland, London; canvas, H. 2 ft. 4½ in. × 3 ft. 7 in. Immersed in a deep stream, through whose clear waters her richly brocaded gown and a tangled mass of half-floating weeds are visible, Ophelia, her head just above the surface, with her auburn hair spread out like threads of gold, is singing her last song. The background was painted on the Ewell River, near Kingston. Miss Siddal, afterwards Mrs. D. G. Rossetti, sat for the face of Ophelia. Royal Academy, 1852. Engraved by J. Stephenson (1866).

OPHELION, painter, date and country unknown. His pictures of Pan, and of Ærope, wife of Atreus, are mentioned in the epigrams of Nicodemus of Heraclea.—

Anth., 91, 2 (Pal. vi. 315, 316); Brunn, ii. 287.

OPIE (Oppy), JOHN, born at St. Agnes, near Truro, Cornwall, May, 1761, died in London, April 9, 1807. Son of a carpenter; began to paint when ten years old and sold portraits at sixteen. About 1780 he went to London, heralded by Dr. John Wolcot (Peter Pindar) as the Cornish Genius, was introduced to Sir Joshua Reynolds, and became the wonder of the hour; but as his popularity was based upon admiration for the relative excellence of the painter's works to his years, it proved a misfortune, as it prevented him from obtaining a solid training in art. Opie painted some historical subjects, such as the Murder of James I. (1786) and the Death of Rizzio (1787), but his best work was in portraiture. He became an A.R.A. in 1787 and R.A. in 1788; in 1805 he was chosen professor of painting in the Royal Academy, and his lectures, delivered in 1807, show good literary ability, though, like Northcote, he excelled in conversation rather than in writing. His portrait of himself at the age of twenty-four (1785) is in the National Portrait Gallery, and his Troilus, Cressida, and Pandarus, and his portrait of William Siddons are in the National Gallery, London; Gil Blas securing the Cook in the Robbers' Cave, Pennsylvania Academy,

ORCAGNA

ORCAGNA or ORGAGNA, ANDREA, born in Florence in 1308 (?), died there in 1368. Florentine school; son of Cione, a Florentine goldsmith; known during his life as L'Arcagnolo, corrupted later into Orcagna. Pupil in painting of his brother Nardo, and in sculpture more probably of Neri Fioravanti than of Andrea Pisano, who was dead in 1352, when Orcagna was enrolled in the guild of the stone cutters. In 1343 he had become a member of the painters' guild, though his earliest known frescos in the choir of S. M. Novella, now completely repainted, were not executed before 1354. In painting he carried out the maxims of Giotto, and did all possible to do without a knowledge of perspective. With less fertility of invention, dramatic power, and force of expression than that great master, he had more tenderness and grace, and though not his equal, stands next greatest among the fourteenth century painters. The faces of his tall, dignified, well-proportioned, and carefully draped figures are Giottesque in type, his compositions are mediæval in character, and his style combines the soft qualities of the Sienese with the grand severity of the Florentine school. His greatest works are frescos, which have for the most part suffered so much from time and restoration as to make it difficult to judge of their original qualities of colour. Those of the Strozzi Chapel, S. M. Novella,—Last Judgment, Paradise, and Hell (the latter completely repainted by Nardo?)—are grandly conceived in the Dantesque spirit. Though ordered in 1354, they were probably painted before the altarpiece of this chapel, dated 1357, in which the dignified, nobly draped SS. Thomas and Peter are in Orcagna's best style. The colouring, as in the panel of St. Zanobius and two other Saints, in the Duomo, Florence, and in that of Saints, in S. Croce (1363), is fine, clear, and luminous. This chapel contains also a picture in three parts, by Orcagna, of the Apotheosis of S. Giovanni Gualberto and episodes of his Legend, and a Madonna with Pope Gregory and Job, dated 1365. Other works are: Descent of the Holy Spirit, cloister of the Badia, Florence; altarpiece in the refectory of the nuns of the Hospital of S. Matteo, Florence; and altarpiece in three divisions representing the Coronation of the Virgin, National Gallery, London. In 1355 Orcagna was made Head Master of the Oratory of Or San Michele, and in 1359 he completed the beautiful Gothic tabernacle in the church, with all its fine bas-reliefs and rich architectural ornament. At Orvieto, where he held the office of Head Master of the Cathedral from June, 1358, to Sept., 1360, he made a mosaic for the façade. The latest notice of him (1369) as a painter, is in the records of the guild of St. Luke at Florence. The Triumph of Death, the Last Judgment, and the Inferno, frescos in the Campo Santo, Pisa, long attributed to Orcagna, are now supposed to be works of the Sienese school, perhaps by the Lorenzetti; and the Legend of S. Raineri is given to an Andrea of Florence, who survived Orcagna, and was confounded with him by Vasari. As the Loggia de' Lanzi, at Florence, was not begun until 1376, it cannot have been built by Orcagna.—Vasari, ed. Mil., i. 593, 617; C. & C., Italy, i. 425; Burekhardt, 314; Dohme, 2i.

ORLEY, BERNAERT (Barend), VAN, also called Barend van Brussel, born in Brussels about 1491-92, died there, Jan. 6, 1542. Flemish school; history painter, probably pupil of his father Valentyn van Orley; went to Rome after 1509 (before 1515, in which year he is settled in Brussels), and became a successful imitator of, and possibly was even instructed by, Raphael. In 1520 he was appointed court-painter to Margaret of Austria, governor of the Netherlands, and then to her successor, Mary of Hungary (1524-35). Albrecht Dürer was entertained at his house in Brussels, in 1520, and painted his portrait. His early pictures show good composition and elevated sentiment, but his later style is somewhat mannered and exaggerated; though always careful in execution and brilliant in colouring. Works: Magdalen Reading, National Gallery, London; Holy Family, Liverpool Institution; Family praying to St. Christopher, Ladies in Prayer, Madrid Museum; Christ on the Cross, Turin Gallery; Marriage of the Virgin, Louvre; Altarpiece with History of Job (1521), Pietà, Holy Family, Episodes in Life of the Virgin, Portrait of Guillaume de Norman (1519), do. of Physician, Brussels Museum; Magdalen at the Saviour's Feet, Christ bearing the Cross, Church of the Saviour, Bruges; Infant Christ, Adoration of the Magi, Madonna, Female portrait, Works: Deliverance of St. Peter, St. Nicholas, Brussels; Allegory, Portrait of Philip II., City Hall, ib.; Adoration of the Magi, Dillighem Abbey, ib.; Resurrection, Church at Assche, Brabant.—Ch. Blanc, École flamande; Immerzeel, ii. 283; Michiels, x. 398.

ORLEY, RICHARD VAN, born in Brussels in 1663, died there, June 6, 1732. Flemish school; history painter, son of Pieter, pupil of Hieronimus van Orley. Works: Reëntry of Pope Innocent II. into Rome, Antwerp Museum; The Pierides metamorphosed into Birds, Juno transferring Eyes of Argus to Peacock's Tail, Ghent Museum; Preaching of St. John, City Hall, Louvain.—Immerzeel, ii. 283; Kramm, iv. 1229; Michiels, x. 394.

ORLOWSKY, ALEXANDER OSSIPOVICH, born in Warsaw in 1777, died in St. Petersburg, May 14, 1832. Genre, battle, and landscape painter, pupil of Norblin at the St. Petersburg Academy, then visited France, Germany, and Italy; he excelled as a battle painter; was made court painter in 1812. Member of St. Petersburg Academy. Works: Cossack attacked by Tiger (1811), Return from Hay Harvest, Mountainous Landscape (1811), Huntsmen Resting, Pastorale (2), Coast View (1809), Shipwreck (1820), Hermitage, St. Petersburg.

ORPHEUS, DEATH OF, Émile Lévy, Luxembourg Museum; canvas, H. 6 ft. 3 in. × 4 ft. The death of Orpheus at the hands of the Thracian Mænads, whom his grief for the loss of Eurydice had led him to treat with contempt. He is lying, nude, in the foreground of a wood, surrounded by the infuriated women, excited by their Bacchanalian orgies, some of them in frenzied attitudes, others striking him with sickles and other weapons. Salon, 1866.

ORPHEUS AND EURYDICE, Nicolas Poussin, Louvre; canvas, H. 4 ft. × 6 ft. 6 in. In a landscape, with the river Peneus in middleground, a city and mountains in background, Orpheus, seated at right, sings to his lyre, while three nymphs listen; near by, Eurydice, culling flowers, is stung by a serpent. Painted in 1659 (?). Collection of Louis XIV. Engraved by E. Baudet (1701); Desaulx and Bovinet in Musée français ; Niquet.—Cat. Louvre ; Filhol, i. Pl. 10 ; Landon, vi. Pl. 70 ; Smith, viii. 145.

By Rubens, Madrid Museum ; canvas, H. 6 ft. × 8 ft. Scene in Hades. Pluto upon his throne, with Proserpine by his side, and Cerberus lying at his feet ; on opposite side, Orpheus with his lyre, followed by Eurydice, nearly undraped ; before them is the open portal of Hades, and beyond it the Styx.—Smith, ii. 136 ; Madrazo.

By George Frederick Watts, London ; canvas, H. 5 ft. 10 in. × 3 ft. 4 in. Orpheus, too impatient to wait until Eurydice is out of the portals of Hades, turns back to look at her, when, though he drops his lyre and encircles her with his arm, she is snatched back into the gloom of the nether world. Painted in 1879. Grosvenor Gallery, 1882 ; then much repainted and exhibited in New York in 1884.

ORRENTE, PEDRO, born at Monteleagre, Murcia, about 1570, died in Toledo in 1644. Spanish school ; animal and landscape painter, probably pupil of El Greco ; called the Spanish Bassano because he imitated the manner of Bassano, painting chiefly scriptural subjects in which animals could be introduced. Worked in Toledo, Murcia, Valencia, Cuença, Madrid, and Seville. Was much patronized by the Duke of Olivárez. Works : Sacrifice of Isaac, Lot and Family, Calvary, Adoration of Shepherds, and four others, Madrid Museum ; Jacob lifting the Stone from the Well, Dresden Museum ; Multiplication of the Fishes, Hermitage, St. Petersburg ; Christ healing the Sick, St. John the Baptist, Herds and Shepherds (?), Vienna Museum.—Stirling, i. 503 ; Ch. OSTADE, ADRIAAN VAN, born in Haarlem, baptized Dec. 10, 1610, died there, April 27, 1685. Dutch school; genre painter, pupil of Frans Hals, and after 1640 developed under Rembrandt's influence. His family, which came from South Brabant, took the name of Ostade from a village, now called Ostedt, in the environs of Eindhoven, whence his father, a weaver, removed to Haarlem about 1605. Adriaan at a very early age became the favourite pupil of Frans Hals. He married twice and died a widower. The story of his flight to Amsterdam in 1662 and his death there has no foundation. He had many pupils, one of whom was the famous Jan Steen. Adriaan was not only an inimitable painter of rustic scenes, but also an excellent etcher. Works: A Smoker, New York Museum; Artist's Wife and Child, Head of a Boor, Interior, Allegory of Five Senses (5), Historical Society, New York; Alchymist (1661), National Gallery, London; Musical Party (1656), Interior (1668), six others, Buckingham Palace, ib.; Lawyer in his Study (1671), Countryman drinking a Toast (1677), four others, Bridgewater Gallery, ib.; Butcher's Shop, National Gallery, Edinburgh; Grotesque Concert, Rustics at Dinner, Madrid Museum; Artist's Family, Schoolmaster (1662), Fish Market, Cottage Interior (1642), Business-Man in his Office, Smoker, Tippler (1668), Tavern Interior (1641), Reading a Newspaper (1653), four others, Louvre, Paris; Tavern Interior (1666), Lute Player, Montpellier Museum; Smoker (1655), Antwerp Museum; Herring Eater, Flemish Trio, Museum, Brussels; Tavern Interior, Arenberg Gallery, ib.; Peasants at the Inn (1662); Exterior of Rustic Cottage (1673), Hague Museum; Artist's Studio, Village Reunion (1671), Quack Doctor (1648), Baker, Man blowing Horn, Intimate Conversation (1642), Peasants' Company (1661), Amsterdam Museum; Old Philosopher, Rotterdam Museum; Dutch Peasant Room, Suermondt Museum, Aix-la-Chapelle; do. OUWATER, ALBERT VAN, flourished in Haarlem, 15th century. Dutch school; history and landscape painter, was one of the first Dutch painters in oil, probably a contemporary of the Van Eycks. Nothing is known of his life. Works attributed to him: The Last Judgment, Dantzic Museum; Descent from the Cross (1480?), Cologne Museum.—C. & C., Flemish Painters, 246; Dohme, li.; Kramm, iv. 1238; Schnaase, viii. 215.

OVENS, JURIAEN, born in Amsterdam in 1623, died at Friedrichstadt, Schleswig, Dec. 7, 1678. Dutch school; history and portrait painter, pupil of Rembrandt about 1640. His pictures, mostly night pieces, are full of spirit, his portraits truthful and of masterly execution, though less warm in tone than Rembrandt's. In 1675 he was employed at the court of the Duke of Holstein. Works: Family of Ryklof van Goens (1650), Haarlem Museum; Conspiracy of Claudius Civilis, City Hall, Amsterdam; Regents'-Piece (1656), Male Portrait, Museum, ib.; Portraits, Hùysittenhuis, ib.; Male and Female Portrait, Rotterdam Museum; Departure of Tobias, Nantes Museum; Male Portrait (1666), Musical Lovers, Copenhagen Gallery; Taking of Christ, Bamberg Gallery; Head of Christ, Brunswick Museum; Girl with Chicken, Girl with Grapes, Harrach Gallery, Vienna.—Fernow (Riegel), Carstens, 44; Kramm, iv. 1240; Riegel, Beiträge, ii. 279; Vosmaer, Rembrandt, 161; Weilbach, 527.

OVER THE HILLS AND FAR AWAY, Sir John Everett Millais, Bart., Kay Knowles, Esq., England; canvas, H. 4 ft. 3 in. x 6 ft. 2 in. Landscape-view of Strath Tay, as seen from near Birnam, in Perthshire, with Ben-y-Gloe in the middle distance, the range of vision extending nearly to Dunkeld. Royal Academy, 1876; Exposition universelle, Paris, 1878 (Dans les montagnes d'Écosse).

OVERBECK, (JOHANN) FRIEDRICH,

born at Lübeck, July 4, 1789, died in Rome, Nov. 12, 1869. History painter, pupil of Vienna Academy under Füger; but, at variance with its conventional routine, he was expelled in 1810, and, accompanied by Franz

Pffor, Ludwig Vogel, and Hottinger, went to Rome, where, with Cornelius, Schadow, Veit, and Schnorr, he formed the brotherhood of Pre-Raphaelites, aspiring to the revival of German art on a religious basis, who, through their exclusiveness and sanctity won the epithet of Nazarites. In pursuance of these views, Overbeck shortly (1813) became a proselyte to the Roman Church and devoted himself exclusively to Christian art. All his paintings in oil as well as in fresco are distinguished for beauty of composition, simplicity of expression, grace, and deep religious feeling, but are lacking in force, vividness, and harmony of colour. United in closest friendship with Cornelius for more than half a century, he also entertained intimate relations with Niebuhr, Bunsen, and Friedrich Schlegel. He married in 1821, visited Germany in 1831-33, and again in 1855. Works: Adoration of the Magi (1811); Jesus in the House of Martha and Mary (1812); The Preaching of St. John; Raising of Lazarus (1822), Carlsruhe Gallery; Italia and Germania (1820), Portrait of Vittoria Caldoni (1821), Holy Family (1825), Feast of Pentecost, New Pinakothek, Munich; Christ blessing Little Children; Ave Maria; Christ's Entry into Jerusalem (1809-24); Pietà (1846), Marien Kirche, Lübeck; Holy Family (1825), Preaching of St. John (1831), Düsseldorf Academy; Death of St. Joseph (1836), Basle Museum; replica (1838); Christ in the Garden (about 1831-35), Hamburg Hospital; Marriage of the Virgin (1836), Raczyński Gallery, Berlin; Triumph of Religion in the Arts (1831-40), Städel Gallery, Frankfurt; Incredulity of St. Thomas (1851), Mr. Hope, London; Assumption (1855), Cologne Cathedral; Christ escaping from the Jews (1857), Quirinal, Rome; replica (1864), Antwerp Museum; Portrait of himself, Uffizi, Florence. In fresco: Joseph sold by his Brethren, (Cartoon in Städel Gallery, Frankfurt), The Seven Years of Famine (1818), Casa Bartholdi, Rome; Jerusalem Delivered (1817-27), Villa Massimo, ib.; Vision of St. Francis (1830), Santa Maria degli Angeli, near Assisi; Oil Study for do., Leipsic Museum.—Atkinson, Overbeck, London, 1882; Brockhaus, xii. 596; Dohme, K. u. K. des xix. Jahrh., ii.; Förster, Denkmale, ix. 15; do. K., 241, 247, 269, 287, 322, 324, 346; Zeitschr. f. b. K., vi. 217; xvii. 112.

OWEN, WILLIAM, born at Ludlow in 1769, died in London, Feb. 11, 1825. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of Charles Catton, and of the Royal Academy in 1791. He exhibited the Blind Beggar of Bethnal Green, Fortune-Teller, Schoolmistress, and other works of this class, but his real strength lay in portraiture, in which he was the rival of Lawrence, of Hoppner, and of Beechey; and he had many distinguished sitters. In 1804 he became an A.R.A., in 1806 R.A., and in 1810 was appointed portrait painter to the Prince of Wales, and in 1813 principal portrait painter to the Prince as Prince Regent. Some of his pictures were engraved. Works: Wilson Croker, Lord Loughborough, National Portrait Gallery; Ernst August, Duke of Cumberland, Hanover Gallery.—Redgrave; F. de Conches, 312; Ch. Blanc, École anglaise; Sandby, i. 328; Kunst-Chronik, xxi. 95.

PAAPE (Pape), ADRIAAN DE, 17th century. Dutch school; genre painter, probably pupil of Dou or Mieris; one of the best masters of his period, true and speaking in action, harmonious in colouring, and very careful in execution. Lived at Leyden. Works: Woman plucking a Hen, Hague Museum; Drawing Lesson, Berlin Museum; Peasant Company, Amalienstift, Dessau; Mother's Joy, Schwerin

PABLILLOS

Gallery.—Kramm, v. 1242; Kugler (Crowe), ii. 542; Zeitschr. f. b. K., xiv. 390.

PABLILLOS DE VALLADOLID, Velasquez, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 6 ft. 7 in. × 4 ft. A buffoon called Pablillos, dressed in black, standing with right hand extended, as if declaiming. Was supposed to be the portrait of an actor. Etched by B. Maura; H. Guérard.—Curtis, 32; Gaz. des B. Arts (1880), xxii. 182; Madrazo, 626.

PABST, CAMILLE ALFRED, born at Colmar; contemporary. Genre painter, pupil of Comte. Medal, 3d class, 1874. Works: Young Woman tuning Guitar (1865); Alsace in 16th Century (1866); At the Alchemist's (1868); Folly and Truth (1869); Duo (1870); Alsatian Interior (1871); Reading the Newspaper (1872); Letter from France (1873); Alsatians preparing to celebrate Return of French Troops to Cities East, Alsace at Present and in Future (1874); Married Woman of Alsace (1875), Schöngauer Museum, Colmar; Game of Ninepins (1876); The Noodles (1876), Strasburg Museum; Cradle, War-Album (1877); Druggist in Alsace, Corner of Artist's Studio (1878); Grandfather's Present, Studio Scraps (1879); Alsatians at Paris (1880); Husband's Ransom (1881); Envoy of Tonquin (1885).—Bellier, ii. 189.

PACCHIA, GIROLAMO DEL, born at Siena, Jan. 4, 1477, died after 1535. Siennese school; son of a Hungarian cannon founder, Giovanni, called Del Bombarde from his occupation, who died in 1478. Girolamo, who was educated by his mother as an artist, was in Rome in 1500, and in Siena in 1515. In 1533 he was implicated with Pacchiarotti in political troubles, and two years afterwards left the city. His earliest extant works, a Coronation of the Virgin, in S. Spirito, and a Madonna with Saints, in S. Cristoforo, Siena, are in the manner of Raphael, though treated with the originality of an independent talent. The colour in the last-named picture is powerful, brilliant, transparent, and softly fused. His Annunciation (1518), Siena Academy, is an inferior work, which shows the influence of Bazzi and Francia Bigio. In 1518 Pacchia competed with Bazzi and Beccafumi in painting frescos in S. Bernardino, and clearly outstripped the latter. He repeated his Annunciation on one wall, and designed a Nativity on another. Other works: Holy Family and a Madonna, Siena Academy; S. Bernardino da Siena, Madonna with Angels, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Holy Family, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Madonna, National Gallery, London.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 380; Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 428; ed. Le Mon., iv. 163; vi. 38; xi. 151, 184; Burckhardt, 559, 689; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 395.

PACCHIAROTTI, GIACOMO DI BARTOLOMMEO, born at Siena in 1474, died at Viteccio about 1540. Siennese school; this artist figured largely in the civic convulsions of Siena in the 16th century, being now imprisoned for treason, and now outlawed, though he was finally restored to civil rights, and died peacefully in his bed. All that remains of his art work are an Ascension and a Visitation, in the Siena Academy, and a Visitation, in the Florence Academy. These works want compactness in arrangement and simplicity in action. Most of the pictures attributed to him in European galleries are now recognized as the work of Girolamo del Pacchia.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 377; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 151, 172; ed. Mil., vi. 415; Burckhardt, 689; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 393.

PACHECO, FRANCISCO, born at Seville in 1571, died there in 1654. Spanish school; pupil of Luis Fernandez; visited in 1611 Toledo and Madrid, where he saw the works of the great Spanish and Italian painters, and on his return to Seville opened an academy, having among his pupils Velasquez, who married his daughter Juana, and Alonso Cano. In 1614 he painted for the convent of S. Isabel his principal work, the Last Judgment. From 1623 he spent two years in Madrid with Velasquez. Notwithstanding continual study, Pacheco never rose above mediocrity as a painter, and he is best known as the author of "Arte de la Pintura" (Seville, 1649). He succeeded best in portraits. Works: SS. Agnes, Catharine, John Evangelist, John Baptist, Madrid Museum.—Viardot, 131; Stirling, 462; Madrazo, 496.

PACHECO, Doña JUANA, wife of Velasquez, portrait, Velasquez, Dudley House, London; canvas, H. 4 ft. 6 in. × 3 ft. 3 in. About twenty years old, half-length, with right hand on back of a chair, a fan in left; wearing a robe with high neck and green sleeves, gold chain, pearl necklace, and earrings. Salamanca sale (1867), 98,000 francs.—Curtis, 102.

By Velasquez, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 2 ft. × 1 ft. 8 in. About twenty-four years old, nearly half-length, seated, holding a portfolio; wears a yellow mantle and pearl necklace. First manner. Formerly in Collection of Queen Isabel Farnese. Etched by B. Maura; lithographed by H. Blanco.—Lübke, Hist. Art, ii. 386; Curtis, 102; Madrazo, 622.

PACHER, MICHAEL, born at Bruneck, Tyrol, flourished about 1465–83. German school; history painter, free from the exaggerations of his German contemporaries, and gifted with a rare feeling for beauty. Works: Altarpiece (1481), St. Wolfgang, Salzburg; do. (1465), Vienna Museum; do., at Pinzon, near Neumarkt, Tyrol.—D. Kunstbl. (1853), 131, 175; (1854), 427; (1855), 79; Förster, Denkmale, i. 17; viii. 15, 25; do., Gesch., ii. 261; Schnaase, viii. 481; W. & W., ii. 127.

PACUVIUS, painter and tragic poet, of Brundisium, born about 220, and died about 130 B.C. He lived many years in Rome, where he won fame by both his poetry and his paintings. Pliny says (xxxv. 7 [19]) that his picture in the Temple of Hercules, in the Cattle Market, was only second in celebrity to the famous work of Fabius Pictor.—Brunn, ii. 303.

PADOVANINO, IL, born in Padua in 1590, died in 1650. Venetian school; real name Alessandro Varotari; son of Dario Varotari (Darius Wehrotter, of Augsburg, who changed his German name on removing to Padua), a reputable painter and architect, who died when his son was six years old. Alessandro studied the frescos of Titian at Padua, and in 1614 went to Venice to study his other works. He soon became one of his most successful imitators, and if his design had equalled his colouring, he would have been one of the greatest painters of the Venetian school, but he lacked robustness and virility, and is well characterized by Charles Blanc as a feminine Titian. The most important of his works is the Marriage of Cana, in the Venice Academy. In the same collection are the Wife of Darius, Deacon at Prayer, Virgin in a Glory of Angels, Rape of Proserpine, Judith, Orpheus and Eurydice, Vanity, and the Jewish Mother at the Siege of Jerusalem. Other examples are Venus and Cupid, Louvre; Orpheus, Madrid Museum; Triumph of Venus, Bergamo Gallery; Lucretia with the Dagger, Uffizi, Florence; Venus Attiring, Borghese, Rome; Holy Family, Naples Museum; Cornelia and her Children, Boy with a Bird, National Gallery, London; Judith with the Head of Holofernes, Cleopatra, Lucretia, Dresden Museum; Holy Family with Angels, Königsberg Museum; Eumenes promising Protection to Roxana, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Judith, Holy Family, Christ and the Woman taken in Adultery, Museum, Vienna; The Magdalen, Liechtenstein Gallery, ib. There are also many of his pictures in the churches of Venice and of Padua. His daughter, Chiara, was a good portrait painter.—Charles Blanc, École vénitienne; Burckhardt, 751.

PAELINCK, JOSEPH, born at Oostacker, near Ghent, March 20, 1781, died in Brussels, June 19, 1839. History and portrait painter, pupil of Ghent Academy, and in Paris of David; after his return was for a short time professor at the Ghent Academy, then went to Rome, where he remained five years; became court-painter and member of the Institute of the Netherlands in 1815, and professor at the Brussels Academy on its erection. First prize of Ghent Academy in 1817, grand prize in 1820; Orders of Lion and of Leopold; Member of Antwerp and Brussels Academies. Works: Judgment of Paris (1804), Ghent Museum; Rome under Augustus, Quirinal; Finding of the Cross, St. Michael's, Ghent; Anthia (1820), Juno (1832), Portrait of Antonius Sanderus (1825), do. of Van Dyck (copy after Van Dyck in the Louvre), Museum, ib.; Adoration of the Shepherds, La Trappe, near Antwerp; Psyche's Toilet (1823), Amsterdam Museum; Abdication of Charles V. PAGANI, GREGORI, born at Florence in 1558, died in 1605. Florentine school; history painter, son of Francesco Pagani (1531–61, an artist of great promise and successful imitator of Caravaggio and Michelangelo), pupil of Santo di Titi, but more influenced by Cigoli, his fellow-scholar, whose style he adopted, and thence was often praised as a second Cigoli. His most celebrated work, Finding of the Cross, in the church of the Carmelites, was destroyed with that edifice by fire in 1771; it has been engraved. Other works: Madonna with Saints (1595), Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Tobias restoring his Father's Sight (1604), Artist's portrait, Uffizi, Florence; Male portrait, Palazzo Pitti, ib.; frescos in S. Maria Novella, and S. Maria del Fiore, ib.—Lanzi (Roscoe), i. 214; Nagler, x. 459.

PAGE, WILLIAM, born at Albany, N. Y., Jan. 23, 1811, died at Tottenville, Staten Island, Oct. 1, 1885. Portrait and history painter, pupil of Herring, portrait painter in New York, for one year; later of Professor Morse, and of the National Academy, where he received a silver medal for drawings from the antique. Elected N.A. in 1836; lived in Rome and Florence in 1849–60; President of the National Academy in 1871–73. In 1874 he visited Germany to study the Kesselstadt death-mask of Shakespeare, and thus obtained material for several portraits which he painted after his return. Page held very peculiar theories of colour, derived from study of the old masters. Works: Holy Family, Boston Athenæum; Infancy of Henry IV.; Wife's Last Visit to her Condemned Husband; Venus (1859), W. Bul-lard, Boston; Infant Bacchus; Moses and Aaron on Mount Horeb; Mother and Child, Mrs. Joseph Harrison, Philadelphia; The Young Merchants, Pennsylvania Academy, ib.; Flight into Egypt; Head of Christ (1870); Ruth and Naomi, Historical Society, New York; Farragut at Battle of Mobile, Emperor of Russia; Antique Timbrel-Player (1871); Shakespeare (1874); do. from German Death Mask (1878); Cupid (1880). Fenton (1870), City of New York; Robert Browning; Charlotte Cushman; General Grant (1880); Colonel Robert G. Shaw, Thomas Le Clear (1883); Hiram Powers (painted in Florence about 1848), Charles Sumner (left unfinished at the death of that statesman), exhibited at the National Academy, 1884; Mrs. Andrews Norton, Professor Norton, Cambridge.

PAGGI, GIOVANNI BATTISTA, born in Genoa in 1554, died there, March 16, 1627. Genoese school; of noble birth and excellent education; pupil of Luca Cambiaso; was a rising painter, when a homicide compelled his flight to Florence, where he resided twenty years and won reputation.

In 1600 he was invited to return to Genoa, and executed there many works in churches and public buildings. Among his works in Genoa are: Adoration of the Shepherds, S. Pietro in Banchi; Annunciation, Duomo; St. Jerome, S. Francesco; Jesus and Saints, Modonetta; Conception, St. Francis, Cappuccini; Assumption of the Virgin, SS. Giacomo and Filippo. Other works in galleries: Repose in Egypt, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; do., National Gallery, Edinburgh; Moses striking the Rock, Schleissheim Gallery.—Lanzi, iii. 251; Ch. Blanc, École génoise; Burchardt, 768; Lavice, 67, 84.

PAGLIANO, ELEUTERIO, born at Casal Monferrato in 1826. History and genre painter, pupil of Milan Academy; took part in campaigns of 1848-49, and afterwards had much success with battle scenes and historical genre pieces. Professor at Milan Academy; Member of Berlin Academy. Medals: Vienna; Paris, 3d class, 1867; 2d class, 1878; L. of Honour, 1878; Orders of Maurice and Lazarus, and of Leopold; Officer, Order of Italian Crown; Commander, Order of Medjidieh. Works: Skirmish near Cemetery of Magenta; Bayard's Recovery; Lute-Player; Girl Knitting; Aldobrandi refusing to Dance with Maramoldi; Ambuscade; Optician; Examining the Legacy, J. J. PAGNEST, (A MABLE) LOUIS CLAUDE, born in Paris, June 9, 1790, died there, May 25, 1819. Portrait painter, pupil of David. His few portraits were painted with a mirror-like fidelity to detail and minute finish. Portrait of H. de Nanteuil-Lanorville (1817); do. of Général de Salle, Louvre.—Ch. Blanc, École française; Villot, Cat. Louvre; Lejeune, Guide, iii. 197; L'Art (1882), i. 178, 197, 218, 241; ii. 3.

PAINTING, INVENTION OF (Erfindung der Malerei), Eduard Daege, National Gallery, Berlin; canvas, H. 5 ft. 10 in. × 4 ft. 5 in.; signed, dated 1832. A nude Greek youth seated by a well, with a short sword lying across his knees, his left arm around a maiden, who, her right knee upon the seat, is tracing his profile upon the wall, while holding his chin with the other hand; on the ground a helmet and a clay vessel; in background, a grove.—Jordan (1885), i. 145.

PALAMEDESZ, ANTONIS (Anthoni), surnamed Stevaerts, born at Delft about 1601, died there in Dec., 1673, or in Jan., 1674. Dutch school; genre and portrait painter, son of Palamedes Stevaerts, also a painter; formed himself under influence of Mierevelt and Frans Hals; entered guild of Delft in 1621. His friendship with Van Deelen, for whose architectural pieces he painted figures, probably brought him in contact with Dirk Hals, whose style he imitated in his PALKO (Palcko), FRANZ ANTON, born at Breslau, died in Vienna in 1760. German school; history and portrait painter, son and pupil of Kaspar Palko (died at Presburg, Hungary, in 1745); settled and married in Brünn, Moravia, where he painted many portraits; later went to Dresden, and thence to Vienna. Works: SS. Francis Xavier and Ignatius, St. Salvator's, Vienna; St. Stephen, St. Stephen's, ib.; Portraits of Maria Theresa, Emperor Francis I., Stephen, Joseph II.—Hormayr, Archiv (1817), 371; Wurzbach, xxi. 224.

PALKO, FRANZ KARL, born at Breslau in 1724, died in Prague in 1767. German school; history painter, brother and pupil in Presburg of the preceding, then of the Vienna Academy; won the grand prize, and studied in Venice after the old masters; returned to Presburg, became court-painter in Dresden in 1752, and in Munich in 1764, whence he went to Prague. Works: Judith and Holofernes; Christ on Mount of Olives, St. Salvator's, Presburg; Redemption of Christian Prisoners from Turkish Slavery, Trinity Church, ib.; St. John, Hofkirche, Dresden; Ignatius of Loyola, Schleissheim Gallery; Holy Family, Vienna Museum.—Hormayr, Archiv (1817), 371; Wurzbach, xxi. 224.

PALLIÈRE, VINCENT LÉON, born at Bordeaux, July 19, 1787, died there, Dec. 29, 1820. History and genre painter, pupil of his father and of Vincent; won the grand prix in 1812, and spent five years in Rome. His pictures are remarkable for the grace and simplicity of the figures, good colour, and lightness of touch. Medal, 1st class, 1819. Works: Ulysses killing the Suitors (1812); Prometheus Bound; Flagellation of Christ, Trinità de' Monti, Rome; Nymph quitting her Bath (1819), Amiens Museum; Tobias restoring his Father's Sight (1819), Bordeaux Museum; St. Peter healing a Lame Man, St. Séverin, Paris; Shepherd Resting, Bordeaux Museum; Juno borrowing Venus's Belt (1819); Scourging of Christ, Trinità de' Monti, Rome.—Bellier, ii. 195; Biographie univ.

PALM, GUSTAF VILHELM, born at Christianstad, March 14, 1810. Landscape painter, pupil of Stockholm Academy; travelled in Sweden and Norway, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy; lived for eleven years in Rome, then visited France (1855) and England. Member of Stockholm and Venice Academies; Order of Vasa, 1867. Works: View in Sabine Mountains (1847); Roman Campagna (1847), H. Stouth, New York; Naples and Roman Landscape (1848); Sicilian Landscapes, Views of Naples and Venice (1849); Civita Castellana; Colosseum (1855); Ritterholm Church in Stockholm; Canal Grande (1860), Stockholm Museum.—Müller, 405.

PALMA, GIACOMO, called Palma Vecchio (the elder), born at Serinalta (?), near Bergamo, about 1480, died in Venice, Aug. 8, 1528. Venetian school; called Il Vecchio (the elder) to distinguish him from his nephew Giacomo. He learned the elements from Venetian masters, was an original rather than an imitator, and shared with Giorgione and Titian the honour of advancing Venetian art to its highest level. Though not a great master in the full meaning of the term, he nearly equalled his two great contemporaries. As a colourist he recalls Giovanni Bellini, and in other respects Cima and Carpaccio. Like Giorgione, he was fond of natural backgrounds and loved to paint smiling landscapes, but he approached that master more nearly in his portraits of women, which are remarkable for brilliancy of tint, softness of tone, and richness of costume. Among his many pictures are : Christ and Apostles, Venice Academy ; Madonna, Palazzo Colonna, Rome ; Madonna (3), Lochis Carrara, Bergamo ; Virgin Enthroned, Church of Zerman ; St. Peter Enthroned, Venice Academy ; St. Barbara, S. M. Formosa, Venice ; Glory of Constantine and Helena, Brera, Milan ; Virgin Enthroned, S. Stefano, Vicenza ; Santa Conversazione, Naples Museum ; Entombment, Brussels Museum ; Adoration of the Shepherds, Madrid Museum ; do., National Gallery, Edinburgh ; Visitation, Santa Conversazione, Vienna Museum ; Madonna, Louvre ; do., and two portraits, Berlin Museum ; Venus at Toilet, Andromeda freed by Perseus, Cassel Gallery ; Holy Family (3), Three Graces, Dresden Museum ; Madonna with Saints, Portrait of the Artist, Old Pinakothek, Munich ; Adoration of the Shepherds, Madonna with

Florence ; La Schiava, Palazzo Barberini, Rome ; Female Portraits (4), Lucretia, Violante, Vienna Museum ; Venus, Dresden Museum.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 456 ; Vassari, ed. Mil., v. 243 ; ed. Le Mon., ix. 140 ; Burekhardt, 713, 722, 806 ; Seguier, 147 ; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne ; Dohme, 2iii. ; Lermolieff, 14 ; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 500 ; *Zeitschr. f. b. PALMA, GIACOMO, called Palma Giovane (the younger), born in Venice in 1544, died there in 1628. Venetian school ; son and pupil of Antonio Palma, a mediocre painter, and nephew of Palma Vecchio. Afterwards studied the works of

Titian, and later, during an eight years' sojourn in Rome under the protection of the Duke of Urbino, the compositions of Michelangelo, Raphael, and Caravaggio. Although Tintoretto and Paolo Veronese were in high favour when Palma returned to Venice (1568), he nevertheless obtained important commissions through the friendship of the architect and sculptor Alessandro Vittoria, who had quarrelled with Tintoretto and Veronese. He was, says Lanzi, the last painter of the good, and the first of the bad, epoch in Venice. Vigorous but not always correct in design, having great facility, and distinguished for the freshness of his colouring, which, though less lustrous than that of Paolo Veronese, is often more pleasing than that of Tintoretto, he gives evidence of carelessness in his later pictures, and may be justly called one of the corrupters of taste in his age. There are several pictures by him in the Palazzo Ducale, Venice, the best of which are the Last Judgment, and the Saviour adored by Two Doges. Other works from his hand are : Tarquin and Lucretia, Venus and Cupid, and Per-

Saints, Holy Family, Hermitage, St. Petersburg. Among his single figures and portraits are : Venus, Dresden Museum ; Adam and Eve, Brunswick Gallery ; Judith, Uffizi, seus and Andromeda, Cassel Gallery ; Presentation of Mary, St. Sebastian, Crucifixion of St. Andrew, Dresden Museum ; Marriage of St. Catherine, Triumph of David, Conversion of Saul, Madrid Museum ; Pietà (3, one dated 1600), Nativity, Ecce Homo, Scourging of Christ, Old Pinakothek, Munich ; Death of St. Sebastian, Schleissheim Gallery ; Death of Abel, Daughter of Herodias, Pietà (3), The Dead Christ held by Angels, Immaculate Conception, St. John and the Angels of the Apocalypse, Truth and Justice, Vienna Museum ; Madonna with Saints, Naples Museum.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne ; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xiii. 45 ; Burekhardt, 751.

PALMAROLI, Don VICENTE, born in Madrid in 1835.

Genre and portrait painter, pupil of Madrazo and of San Fernando Academy, and in 1857 continued his studies in Rome. His style resembles partly that of Fortuny and partly that of Meissonier.

Member of S. Fernando Academy, director of Spanish Academy in Rome since 1872. Medals : Paris, 2d class, 1867 ; Madrid, 1871. Works : October Festival (1862) ; S. Ildefonso ; Sermon in Sistine Chapel (1866) ; Trasteverines in the Colonnade of St. Peter's ; Burial of the Victims of May 3, 1808 (1871), City Hall, Madrid ; The Widow's Tears ; Lucky Accident (1883) ; Confession, Jealous Clown (1884) ; The Rising Tide, William Astor, New York ; Petit Lever—La Bouchée du Cardinal, M. Graham, ib. ; New Volume, W. Rockefeller, ib. ; Girl Reading, R. G. Dun, ib. ; Listener, Connoisseur, T. R. Butler, ib. ; Souvenir of Granada, Colonel Bennett, ib. ; Girl Reading, H. V. Newcombe, ib. ; Convalescent, E. B. Warren, Philadelphia ; Garden Scene, Hurlbut Collection, Cleveland ; Pompeian

Woman's Toilet, Pretty Model, Sketching on the Sea-side, H. Dousman, St. Louis ; Reverie, Beautiful Marchioness, S. A. Coale, ib. ; Hiding Abelard, Charles Parsons, ib.—La Ilustracion, 1873 ; (1883), i. 122 ; (1884), i. 267, 378 ; Zeitschr. f. b. K., xix. 317.

PALME, AUGUSTIN, born at Rochlitz, Bohemia, in 1809. History painter, pupil of Prague Academy, then of Schnorr in Munich, whither he returned after having studied in Rome. Works : Exposure of Moses (1839) ; Conversion of St. Norbert ; Establishment of St. Norbert's Order in Austria ; St. Colman ; The Virgin crushing the Serpent's Head. Fresco : Legend of the 14 Saints, Vierzehnheiligen, Franconia ; Sketch for this in Bamberg Gallery.—Cotta's Kunstbl. (1848), 140 ; D. Kunstbl. (1850), 55, 114 ; Förster, v. 104 ; Wurzbach, xxi. 245.

PALMER, SAMUEL, born in Walworth, Surrey, in 1805, died in 1881. Water-colour painter and engraver, pupil of antique school of British Museum, and studied in Italy. Works : Evening Bell ; Dream on the Appennines (1864) ; St. Paul landing in Italy (1868) ; Coliseum ; Old Castle at Twilight ; Fall of Empire (1871) ; Waterfall in Shadow ; Golden City (1873) ; Sunday Evening in Old England.—Academy (1881), i. 420 ; Athenæum (1881), 728, 757 ; Varley, Memoir (London, 1882) ; Hamerton.

PALMER, WALTER L., born in Albany, N. Y. ; contemporary. Landscape and still-life painter, son of the sculptor, Erastus D. Palmer ; studied in Paris. Exhibits at National Academy and the Society of American Artists. Studio in Albany. Works : Interior, Montigny-sur-Loing (1878) ; Sir Frederick Leighton's Hall, T. B. Clarke, New York ; Dining-Room at Appledale (1879) ; June, an Interlude (1880) ; Off the Public Gardens in Venice, Dudley Olcott ; Dining-Room Interior (1882), Morris K. Jesup, New York ; End of an October Day (1883) ; Upper Hudson, Studio Interior (1884).

PALMERUCCI, GUIDO, born at Gubbio, near Perugia, in 1280, died about 1345.

Roman school; name appears in the list of the Ghibellines of Gubbio in 1315; painted before 1337 in S. M. de' Laici, Gubbio, and in 1342 in the Palazzo del Comune. On one of the outer walls of the church are the remains of a life-size St. Anthony, and another fragment, which may be by Palmezzano. They have the flatness of a miniature, with little or no relief.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 185; Cibo, 14.

PALMEZZANO, MARCO (DI ANTONIO), born in Forli in 1456 (?), died after 1527. Umbrian school; pupil of Melozzo da Forli, and inheritor of his style; his works show the same accuracy in linear perspective, and but little feeling for colour. His best works in churches are in S. Girolamo and in the Carmine, Forli, and a Madonna and Saints (1500), in the orphan asylum of the Michelline Faenza. Of those in galleries, good examples are: Madonna Enthroned with Saints, Christ bearing the Cross, Berlin Museum; St. Sebastian, Carlsruhe Gallery; Madonna and Saints (1513), Old Pinakothek, Munich; Coronation of the Virgin, Madonna with Saints, Brera, Milan; Circumcision (1535), Bergamo Gallery; Crucifixion, Uffizi; Entombment, National Gallery, London; Madonna with Saints (1537); Museum of S. Giov. Laterano, Rome.—C. & C., ii. 566; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iv. 201; xi. 92; Burckhardt, 560; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 401.

PALOMINO DE CASTRO Y VELASCO, ACISCLO ANTONIO, born at Bujalance in 1653, died in Madrid in 1725. Spanish school; pupil in Cordova of Valdés Leal and of Alfaro; went to Madrid in 1678, after he had received minor orders in the church, and became famous for works in the Alcázar and the Escorial, and at Salamanca and Granada. After the death of his wife he entered into full orders. Though a fair painter, Palomino is best known as the historian of the artists of Spain, a work in two folio volumes, entitled "El Museo Pictórico y Escala Óptica" (Madrid, 1715–24). Works: Conception, St. John, St. Bernard, Madrid Museum.—Stirling, iii. 1120; Ceán Bermudez; Ch. Blanc, École espagnole; Madrazo, 499.

PALTRONIERI, PIETRO, called Il Mirandolese dalle prospettive, born at Bologna in 1673, died there in 1741. Bolognese school. Architecture painter, pupil of F. Cassana, and of Marcantonio Chiarini (1652–1730), whose manner he adopted. Many of his pictures, in which the figures were frequently supplied by Ercole Graziani, may be seen in public buildings at Bologna, Rome, and Vienna; they usually represent arches, fountains, aqueducts, temples, and ruins, tinged with a certain reddish colour. In the Dresden Museum is a specimen with Ruins of Palaces.—Lanzi (Roscoe), iii. 176.

PAMPHILUS, painter, of Amphipolis in Macedonia, pupil of Eupompus, about 377 B.C. He became the head of the Sicynonic school, and did much more for it than even his master. His pupils, among whom were Apelles and Melanthius, paid him a talent for a course of study extending over twelve years. His scientific attainments enabled him to found a school based on the exact knowledge of proportion and perspective; and he did for painting what Polycleetus did for sculpture. Among his pictures were the Battle of Philios, Victory of the Athenians, and Ulysses in his Ship.—Pliny, xxxv. 75, 76; Plut. Arat., 13; Quin., xii. 10, 6; Suid., v.; and Schol. Arist. Plut., 385; Brunn, ii. 132.

PAN, SCHOOL OF, Luca Signorelli, Palazzo Corsi, Florence; canvas, signed. Pan, sitting on a rocky throne; Olympus, standing beside him, playing, with two shepherds listening. The sounds are supposed to be wafted away by the reeds held united by a man lying on the ground, and a nymph (Echo?), standing; two other nymphs in background. Nearly same subject painted by Signorelli in Palazzo Petrucci, Siena. Probably the picture mentioned by Vasari as painted for Lorenzo de' Medici; found in Florence in 1865. Engraved in C. & C.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 689; C. & C., Italy, iii. 5.

PAN AND SYRINX, Rubens, Buckingham Palace ; wood, H. 1 ft. 8 in. × 2 ft. 2 in. Pan pursuing the nymph Syrinx, who is seeking shelter among a cluster of reeds in a stream ; background, a woody landscape. Collection of W. Porter (1810), 1,000 guineas.—Smith, ii. 220 ; Waagen, Treasures, ii. 2.

PANÆNUS, painter, brother or nephew of Phidias, about middle of 5th century B.C. Strabo says (viii., iii. 30) that he aided Phidias in ornamenting his statue of Zeus at Olympia with colour, and that many admirable pictures of his were shown around the temple. From Pausanias (v. 11) we learn that the following subjects were represented on three sides of the parapet about the base of the statue : Atlas with the Earth on his Shoulders ; Theseus and Peirithous ; Hellas and Salamis ; Hercules overcoming the Nemean Lion ; Ajax insulting Cassandra ; Hippodameia ; Prometheus Bound ; Penthesilia Expiring ; and two of the Hesperides with the Golden Apples. Pausanias (i. 15) also describes a large picture in the Pœcile at Athens, representing the Battle of Marathon, which Pliny says (xxxv. 34 [57]) was the work of Panænus, though ascribed by others to Micon.—Böttiger, Arch. d. Malerei, 243-251.

PANETTI, DOMENICO DI GASPARO, born in Ferrara about 1460, died in 1511-12. Lombard-Ferrarese school ; first efforts dry and feeble ; was the early master of Garofalo, but became his pupil when the latter returned from Rome (1591), bringing with him the style of Raphael. In Panetti's later works he resembles Costa in his Umbrian phase. Works : Madonna, Duomo, Ferrara ; Dead Christ and the Marys, Berlin Museum ; Annunciation and Visitation, Ferrara Gallery ; Organ Shutters, S. Andrea, Ferrara ; St. Andrew, Ferrara Gallery ; Pietà, Berlin Museum.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 552 ; Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 458 ; Cittadella, Doc., etc., Art. Ferrarese, 46 ; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 485.

PANNINI, GIOVANNI PAOLO, born at Piacenza about 1695, died in Rome, Oct. 21, 1768. Roman school ; pupil in Rome of Benedetto Luti and of Andrea Lucatelli ; painted many remains of ancient edifices in and around Rome. Member of Roman

School of Pan, Luca Signorelli, Palazzo Corsi, Florence.

Academy and of French Institute (1732). Neither his interiors nor his exteriors can be depended on for accuracy, as he treated them simply as material for picturesque effect, sometimes even combining parts of different edifices and introducing imaginary accessories. Looked at, however, from the painter's point of view, Pannini's pictures are often strikingly effective. Among his works are : Interior of St. Peter's, Piazza Navona at Rome, Antique Ruins (2), Louvre ; Interior of St. Peter's, and four others, Turin Gallery ; Ancient Ruins with Figures, National Gallery, London ; Interior of St. Peter's, Interior of Basilica of St. Paul, National Gallery, Edinburgh ; various ancient Roman buildings, Windsor Castle ; Cardinal Polignac visiting Interior of St. Peter's, New York Museum ; others in Museums of Berlin (1735), Brussels, Dresden (2), Gotha (2, one dated 1754), Madrid (6), and Naples (2) ; Galleries of Cassel, Frankfort (2), Hamburg, Schleissheim (4), Wiesbaden ; Hermitage, St. Petersburg (2) ; Czernin (2), Harrach (2, 1751), and Liechtenstein (2) Galleries, Vienna ; Uffizi, Florence ; Historical Society, New York ; Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia (2).—L'Art (1880), ii. 97, 121 ; Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne ; Siret (1883), 127 ; Mémoires inédits, ii. 371.

PANTOJA DE LA CRUZ, JUAN, born in Madrid in 1551, died there after 1609. Spanish school ; pupil of Sanchez Coello, and his equal as a portrait painter. He succeeded his master as court-painter to Philip II., and held the same rank at the court of Philip III. While his style resembles that of Coello, it is more remarkable for care and finish than for force and freedom ; his drawing is good, and his colouring rich and pleasing. He painted both religious and historical compositions. Works : Portraits of Infanta Doña Maria, Queen Isabel de Valois (2), Queen Margaret of Austria, Emperor Charles V. (2), Infanta Doña Juana, Philip II., Birth of the Virgin, Nativity, Madrid Museum ; Portraits of Archduke Albrecht of Austria (1600), and his Wife Infanta Isabella (1599), Old Pinakothek, Munich ; Portrait of a Child, do. (1604), Vienna Museum.—Stirling, i. 266 ; Ch. Blanc, École espagnole ; Viardot, 250 ; Madrazo ; La Ilustracion (1882), ii. 283.

PAOLINO, FRA, born in Pistoja about 1490, died there in 1547. Florentine school ; pupil of his father, Bernardino del Signoracchio, a feeble artist ; took orders in S. Domenico of Prato, and became assistant to Fra Bartolommeo and Mariotto, to whom he was probably chiefly indebted for instruction, in their workshop at S. Marco. His most successful work is a Madonna with Saints (1510), Vienna Museum. By him are also a Nativity (1511), Palazzo Borghese, and a Madonna and Baptist, Palazzo Sciarra Colonna, Rome ; a Madonna with Saints (1511), Palazzo Corsini, Florence ; and a Crucifixion, fresco (1516), in S. Spirito, Siena.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 478 ; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 170.

PAOLO AND FRANCESCA, Alexandre Cabanel, Luxembourg Museum, Paris ; canvas, H. 5 ft. 10 in. × 8 ft. 4 in. The death of Paolo Malatesta and Francesca da Rimini. She is stretched upon the bench, where they have been reading the story of Lancelot and Guinevere, her head sustained upon his shoulder ; in the background, her deformed husband Gianciotto or Lanciotto, with bloody sword, savagely contemplates his victims from behind the arras. Salon, 1870. Replica, in small, Mrs. A. E. Kidd, New York.—Larousse, xiii. 1218.

PAPELEU, VICTOR DE, born at Ghent, Feb. 10, 1810, died there in 1881. Landscape painter, pupil in Paris of Jules Dupré and of Achille Benouville, after having studied law and travelled all over Europe, and spent several years in the East and in Italy. Lived mostly in Paris, and in 1874 gave a special exhibition of his works at the Cercle de l'Union artistique. Works: Views in the Landes (1857, 1859, 1861, 1867); Downs of Pas-de-Calais (1859); Marina grande in Capri (1865); Naples and Bay of Salerno (1866); Sunrise on Coast of St. Raphael (1868); several other Views about St. Raphael (1869, 1870, 1872, 1878); Var Valley near Nice (1874); The Meuse at Dordrecht, Boulevard de la Madeleine (1875); Interior Port of Ghent (1876); Low Tide in September (1877); Entrance to Harbour of Ostend, Villiers-sur-Morin in Autumn (1879); Coast of Finistère (1880).—Bellier, ii. 198; Meyer, Conv. PAPETY, DOMINIQUE (LOUIS FÉ-RÉAL), born at Marseilles, Aug. 12, 1815, died there, Sept. 19, 1849. Genre painter, pupil of Léon Cogniet and of the École des Beaux Arts, where he won the grand prix de Rome in 1836. Made many sketches in Italy and Greece, and gave promise of a brilliant future, which was cut short by an early death. Works: Saving of Moses (1838); Council of the Gods (1841, copy of Raphael's fresco); Dream of Happiness (1843); St. Hilarion (1844); William of Clermont defending Ptolemaïs (1845), Versailles Museum; Madonna Consolatrix (1846), Italian Types, Marseilles Museum; Solon dictating his Laws (1846); Serenade to the Madonna, Nantes Museum; Finding of Moses, Story of Telemachus (1847), Leipsic Museum; Monks discovering a Chapel on Mt. Athos (1847); Portrait of the Architect Vivenel.—Larousse; Bellier, ii. 198.

PAPPERITZ, GUSTAV FRIEDRICH, born in Dresden, Jan. 27, 1813, died there, Jan. 26, 1861. Landscape and genre painter, pupil of Dresden Academy under Clausen-Dahl, then studied in Munich, and visited Italy and Spain. Works: Valley of Elche in Spain (1857), Dresden Gallery; View near Laubegast on the Elbe, Leipsic Museum; Ruin of Petersberg near Halle; Sicilian Pilgrimage Scene; Anniversary Day of Sedan (1875).—D. PARADISE (Printemps, Spring), Nicolas Poussin, Louvre, Paris; canvas, H. 3 ft. 10 in. × 5 ft. 3 in. In a rich landscape, near a mass of rocks and a cascade, Adam is seated on the turf, while Eve, upon one knee, takes him by the arm and points to the tree of knowledge. Above, at right, the Father Eternal upon clouds. One of a series of four painted in 1660–64 for Duc de Richelieu, whence passed to Louis XIV. Engraved by J. Audran.—Filhol, iv. Pl. 256; Landon.

By Tintoretto, Louvre; canvas, H. 4 ft. 8 in. × 11 ft. 10 in. Christ in glory crowns the Virgin; on each side, the apostles; below, in order, the evangelists, fathers, and doctors of the church, virgins, confessors, and martyrs. This picture is not a sketch for the famous Paradise of the Palazzo Ducale, Venice.—Villot, Cat. Louvre.

By Tintoretto, Palazzo Ducale, Venice; canvas, 30 ft. × 74 ft. The largest oil-painting in the world, containing more than 400 figures; on the only one of the four walls of the Sala del Maggiore Consiglio which is not pierced by windows. In the centre is Christ, leaning on the globe of the earth, crowned with a glory which lights all the picture, descending through circle beneath circle of cloud and of flying spirits.

The Virgin kneels to Christ, and the three Archangels fly toward them. Michael is followed by the Thrones and Principalities, beneath which are SS. Ambrose, Jerome, Gregory, and Augustine. On the other side, Gabriel is surrounded by the Seraphim and the Cherubim, beneath whom are the Hebrew kings and prophets, and lower down SS. Agnes, Giustina of Padua, Catharine, and Barbara. Raphael, in front, has beneath him the Evangelists, on the left Noah, and on the right Adam and Eve; in the centre rises the angel of the sea, praying for the safety of Venice, with Mary Magdalen on the right, behind St. Monica, and beneath, Rachel, among the angels of her children. Begun in 1588, when Tintoretto was seventy years old; painted in place of the Paradise by Guariento, destroyed in the fire of 1577. Study in the Palazzo Mocenigo, Venice; another in Madrid Museum. Ruskin calls this picture the "most wonderful piece of pure, manly, and masterly oil-painting in the world."—Ridolfi, Maraviglie, ii. 241; Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 294; Zanotto, 134.

PAREJA, JUAN DE, born at Seville, about 1606, died in Madrid in 1670. Spanish school. His parents were slaves, and he himself was slave to Velasquez, who employed him as his colour-grinder. Learned to paint secretly, was freed by his master at the intercession of Philip IV., and became his pupil, but continued in his service and in that of his daughter until his death. He succeeded best in portraits, but painted several large pictures, his style being a close imitation of his master's. Works: Calling of St. Matthew, Madrid Museum; Baptism of Christ, Presentation in Temple, Battle-Piece, Museo Nacional, Madrid; Capuchin Monk, Hermitage; Boy, Dulwich Gallery.—Cean Bermudez; Stirling, ii. 708; Viardot, 217; Ch. PAREJA, JUAN DE, portrait, Velasquez, Earl of Carlisle, Castle Howard, England. Bust of a mulatto, in gray doublet and white collar. Painted during Velasquez's second journey to Italy; attracted so much attention when exhibited in the Pantheon, Rome, that Velasquez was made (1650) a member of the Academy of St. Luke. It is possible, however, that the portrait possessed by the Earl of Radnor may be the one in question.—Stirling, ii. 710; Waagen, Treasures, iii. 325; Lord Gower, *Hist. Gal. PARET Y ALCÁZAR, Don LUIS, born in Madrid in 1747, died there, Feb. 14, 1799. Pupil of Antonio Gonzalez Velasquez in Academy of S. Fernando, afterwards of Charles de la Traverse, then living in Madrid. Studied in Rome; on his return home elected a member of the Academy, and employed by Charles III. to paint views of the harbours of Spain. He painted also small figure-pieces, landscapes, and flowers; made designs for book illustrations, and executed many etchings. Works: Two Flower-Pieces, Royal Fête (1789), Oath of Prince of Asturias in St. Jerome's at Madrid (1789), Madrid Museum.—Stirling, iii. 1232; Ch. Blanc, École espagnole; Madrazo, 513.

PARMIGIANINO or PARMIGIANO, IL, born in Parma, Jan. 11, 1504, died at Casal Maggiore, Aug. 24, 1540. Lombard school; real name Francesco Mazzola; son of Filippo Mazzola, a painter of Parma, who died in 1505, leaving Francesco to the care of his brothers, Michele and Pierilario, painters of Parma, who brought him up. His early pictures show how carefully he had studied Correggio's works before going in 1522 to Rome, where study of its great masters profoundly affected his manner. He had won such reputation there before 1527, when the sack of the city interrupted his career, that the soul of Raphael was said to have passed into him. From Bologna, where he first took refuge after his escape from Rome, he went to Parma in 1531, and made a contract to execute frescos in S. M. della Steccata, to be completed in 1532; illness and other causes prevented his fin-

PARRHASIUS, Ionic school, one of the greatest of Greek painters, born in Ephesus, son and pupil of Evenor, about 400 B.C. Most of his life was spent at Athens, of which he was made a citizen. He attained to so high a degree of excellence and was held in such honour that he became arrogant, called himself the descendant of Apollo, and the prince of painters, and claimed that he had assigned to art precise limits which could never be transgressed. Quintilian says (xii. 10. 5) that Parrhasius was so exact in his drawing that he was called the legislator of painting, and that other painters followed, as a matter of obligation, his models of gods and heroes. Pliny adds (xxxv. 36) that he was the first to give expression to the features, elegance to the hair, and gracefulness to the mouth; and that it was universally admitted that he bore off the palm for contour, or the rounding off of his outlines. Parrhasius was a prolific artist and left many works. Among those mentioned by Pliny (l. c.), one of the most celebrated was an allegorical picture of the Athenian People. Another famous one was a Theseus, preserved in the Capitol at Rome. His Archigallus (high priest of Cybele), valued at 600,000 sesterces, was kept by the Emperor Tiberius in his own chamber. Other scarcely less celebrated pictures by him were an Armed Runner contending for the Prize, and the same taking off his armour; a Meleager, Hercules, and Perseus; an Achilles, Agamemnon, and Ulysses; and an Æneas, Castor, and Pollux. Plutarch (De And. Poet., 3) says that he painted also Ulysses feigning Madness. On being defeated at Samos by Timanthes in a painting competition, the subject being the Contest for the Arms of Achilles by Ajax and Ulysses, Parrhasius remarked that he felt quite disgraced at seeing Ajax defeated a second time by an unworthy opponent (Pliny, l. c.; Ath., xii. 543; Æl. V. H., ix. 11). He was more successful in a contest with Zeuxis. The story told by Seneca (Controv., v. 10) about Parrhasius's torturing a slave, purchased from among the captives taken at Olynthia (346 B.C.), that he might serve as a model for a picture of Prometheus, is chronologically impossible, as the painter was then dead.—Brunn, ii. 97.

PARROCEL, BARTHÉLEMY, born at Montbrison (Loire), about 1600, died at Brignolles (Var), in 1660. French school; painter of sacred history. Having abandoned the priesthood he went to Italy to study art. Before reaching Rome, where he lived several years, he is said to have visited Spain with a nobleman who took a fancy to him, and to have been taken prisoner by an Algerian corsair during the voyage to Italy. On his return to France he settled at Brignolles, where he died at an early age. His two sons, Joseph and Louis, were painters, as were their sons, Charles, Ignace, and Pierre, and Pierre's son, Joseph Ignace François. Barthélemy's only known work is a Descent from the Cross, in the Church of the Saviour at Brignolles. Louis also is known by a single picture, an Agony in the Garden, in the Church of St. Martin at Marseilles.—Bellier, ii. 206; Mémoires inédits, ii. 40.

PARROCEL, CHARLES, born in Paris, May 6, 1688, died there, May 24, 1752. French school; battle painter, son of Joseph Parrocel, and pupil of Charles de Lafosse and Bon Boullogne. After serving two campaigns in a cavalry regiment, he went to Italy to study painting. In 1721 he painted two pictures for Louis XIV., and in 1744–45 accompanied Louis XV. in his campaigns, to paint his victories. Died of apoplexy at the Gobelins, where he resided. Member of the Academy, 1721; councillor, 1735; professor, 1746. Works: Cavalry Fighting (1709); Cavalry Charging (1711); Battle of Cavalry and Infantry (1721); Entry of the Turkish Ambassador for an Audience, His Departure after the Audience, Entry of PARROCEL, JOSEPH, born at Brignolles, Oct. 3, 1646, died in Paris, March 1, 1704. French school; history painter, son of Barthélemy, pupil of his eldest brother, Louis (1634–1703), in Languedoc, and of Courtois in Rome, where he was much influenced by Borgognone. Spent eight years in Italy. Produced some spirited, though often sketchy, battle-pieces, and painted a few religious pictures. Member of Academy, 1676; councillor, 1703. Works: Battle-Pieces (2), Louvre; Louis XIV. repulsing a Sortie of the Maestricht Garrison (1676), Combat of Leuze, 1691, View of the Place Royale with Ambassador's Cortège, Versailles Museum; Conquests of Louis XIV., Invalides, Paris; St. John preaching in the Desert (1674), Notre Dame, Paris; Cavalry Combat, do. at Crossing of Bridge, Besançon Museum; Battle in Antiquity, Dijon Museum; Halt of Horsemen, Lyons Museum; Battle, Marseilles Museum; Monks healing the Sick, Nantes Museum; others in Museums of Caen, Niort, and Tours; Cavalry Skirmish, Uffizi, Florence.—Bellier, ii. 208; Jal, 941; Mémoires inédits, ii. 40; Ch. PASSERI, GIOVANNI BATTISTA, born in Rome about 1610, died there, April 2, 1679. Roman school; worked at Grotta Ferrata with Domenichino, and followed his style. Painted a Crucifixion in S. Giovanni della Malvè, Rome, and a St. Peter baptizing Two Saints in Prison, which was copied in mosaic for St. Peter's. His Portrait of Domenichino is in the Academy of St. Luke, of which he was prince in 1641. Passeri is best known by his "Vite de' Pittori, Scultori, ed Architetti, 1641-73," published in 1772. He became a priest in 1675. His nephew, Giuseppe Passeri (born 1654, died 1714), was a pupil of Maratti and a good colourist.—Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne.

PASSEROTTI, BARTOLOMMEO, born in Bologna about 1520, died there, June 3, 1592. Bolognese school; pupil of Jacopo da Vignola, whom he followed to Rome; afterward assistant to Taddeo Zuccherro. Established an academy of painting in Bologna, where he was considered the equal of the Carracci. Excelled as a portrait painter, being esteemed by some as second to Titian only. Among his sitters were Pius V., Sixtus V., Gregory XIII., and Cardinals Alessandrino and Guastavillano. Wrote a work on anatomy, and was among the first to introduce nude figures in religious subjects. Was also a good engraver and designer with the pen. Works in Bologna: Presentation of the Virgin in the Temple, Portrait of Pope Sixtus V., Pinacoteca; Altarpiece, Oratory of the Notaries; Madonna with Saints, S. Petronio; Adoration of the Magi, Sacristy, Duomo; Annunciation, S. Martino Maggiore; Madonna with Saints, S. Giacomo Maggiore; St. Catharine, S. M. Maddalena; St. Ursula and Virgins, Mendicanti; Portrait of the Artist and his Family, Dresden Gallery. ## PASSIGNANO

PASSIGNANO, DOMENICO DA, Cavaliere, born at Passignano about 1550, died in Florence, May 17, 1638. Florentine school; real name Domenico Cresti; pupil successively of Girolamo Macchietti, Battista Naldini, and of Federigo Zuccherò, whom he aided in painting the cupola of S. M. del Fiore (the Duomo), Florence, and with whom he went in 1581 to Venice, where he profited by the advice of Paolo Veronese; returned to Florence in 1589, and was thrice called to Rome, — by Clement VIII., who made him a knight of the Order of Christ, by Paul V., and in 1625 to execute important works. Though neither correct in design nor select in his forms, he aided in the reform of the Florentine school by improving the taste for colour. He was a prolific and rapid painter, and many of his pictures have faded. He formed many pupils, among others, Alessandro Tiarini and Lodovico Carracci. Perhaps his most perfect work is a Glory in the Church of the Fathers of Vallombrosa at Passignano. Other works: Finding of the Cross, Louvre, Paris; Adoration of the Shepherds (1600), Darmstadt Museum; Banquet of Ahasuerus, Vienna Museum; Entombment, Palazzo Borghese, Rome; Assumption, S. Andrea della Valle, ib.; Dead Christ, Capella di Mondragone, Frascati; Christ bearing the Cross, Collegio S. Giovannino, Florence; Descent of the Holy Ghost, S. Maria Maggiore, ib.; Assumption, St. Andrew, St. Peter, Academy, ib.; Christ bearing the Cross, Madonna, Artist's Portrait, Uffizi, ib.; others in Palazzo Brignole, Genoa, and S. Martino, Lucca. — Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Burekhardt, 766; Lanzi, (Roscoe), i. 215.

PASSINI, LUDWIG, born in Vienna, July 9, 1832. Genre painter, son of the engraver, Johann Passini, pupil of Vienna Academy under Kupelwieser, Führich, and Ender; went in 1850 to Trieste, thence to Venice, allied himself to Karl Werner and accompanied him to Dalmatia and Rome, where he settled in 1855; after his marriage, in 1864, he lived for several years in Berlin, returned to Rome, and in 1873 settled in Venice.

Ranks among the first masters in water-colour. Member of Vienna, Berlin, and Venice Academies. Medals: Berlin, 1866, 1871; Paris, 1870; Vienna, 1873; L. of Honour, 1878. PATER, JEAN BAPTISTE JOSEPH, born at Valenciennes, Dec. 29, 1695, died in Paris, July 25, 1736. French school; genre painter, son of a sculptor and pupil of Watteau, for whose pictures his own are sometimes taken, although the master was by far the greater painter. Their subjects are of the same character, and are treated in much the same style and taste. Though weak as a draughtsman, Pater was an excellent colourist. Overwork is said to have shortened his days. Member of Academy, Dec. 31, 1728. Works: Picnic (1728), Reunion of Comedians in a Park, The Toilet, Conversation in a Park, Bather at a Brook, Louvre, Paris; Women Bathing, Bal Champêtre, Angers Museum; Pleasure Party in a Garden, Group reposing in a Garden, Nantes Museum; Portrait of Artist's Sister, The Soirée, Valenciennes Museum; Women Bathing, National Gallery, Edinburgh; Guitar Player, Young Lady Eyeing a Man leaning against Pedestal, Cassel Gallery; Man and Woman dancing to Music of a Hurdy-gurdy, Men and Women dancing around a Tree, Dresden Museum; The Comical March, Metropolitan Museum, New PATIENCE, Cecchino del Salviati, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; canvas, H. 5 ft. 10 in. × 3 ft. 4 in. A female figure, full-length, standing, chained by one ankle to a rock, watching the drops of water which fall one by one from a vase upon her shackles, and which are sure eventually to liberate her.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, i. Pl. 89.

PATINIR (Patenier), JOACHIM DE, born at Dinant about 1490, died in Antwerp about 1524. Flemish school; painter of scriptural subjects, in which the figures are subordinate to the landscape. Matriculated in St. Luke's guild at Antwerp in 1515; supposed to have previously studied under Gheerardt David at Bruges. Albrecht Dürer was present at Patinir's second marriage in 1521, and painted his portrait at Antwerp. Early pictures fantastic, hard, and bad in perspective; the later, more truthful and in better taste. He is considered the founder of the landscape school of the Low Countries. Works: Flight into Egypt, Antwerp Museum; Virgin of the Seven Sorrows, Brussels Museum; History of Tobias, Haarlem Museum; Flight into Egypt, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Temptation of St. Anthony, Charon crossing the Styx, Flight into Egypt (3), St. Francis, Rocky Landscape with St. Jerome and the Lion, Madrid Museum; Crucifixion, St. Christopher carrying Infant Christ, St. John at Patmos, Nun (?), Flight into Egypt (?), National Gallery, London; Repose in Egypt, Conversion of St. Hubert, Berlin Museum; Rocky Landscape with St. Jerome before the Crucifix, Carlsruhe Gallery; Nativity, St. Bernard carried in Triumph by Emperor Conrad III., Triumph of Love, Triumph of Time, Christ bearing the Cross, Christ fallen under the Burden of the Cross, Three Portraits, Cologne

PAUSIAS, one of the best of Greek painters, of Sicily, son and pupil of Bryes, and scholar of Pamphilus, about 360–330 B.C. He became most famous for his paintings in encaustic, which art he had learned from Pamphilus, and he was the first to use this method in the decoration of walls and ceilings. Art in his hands made great technical progress, especially in the modelling of objects through skilfully treated light and shadow. This was most conspicuous in his picture of a Sacrifice, preserved in the portico of Pompey at Rome. The victim, a black ox, was so admirably foreshortened that, though standing with his head to the spectator, his length seemed to be measurable; and the shadow of the animal falling on a group of people in a strong light caused both to appear to stand out from the picture. Another famous picture of his was the portrait of Glycera, a flower-girl, for a copy of which L. Lucullus paid two talents. Pliny says (xxxv. 40 [123]) that Pausias painted many small pictures, chiefly miniatures of children. Pausanias (ii. 27, 3) mentions two paintings by Pausias, in the Tholus at Epidaurus, the one representing Love, the other Drunkenness.

PAUSIAS AND GLYCERA, Rubens, Grosvenor House, London; canvas, H. 7 ft. × 6 ft. 2 in. PELLEGRINO DA MODENA, born in Modena in 1468 (?), died there, Nov. 20, 1524. Umbrian school ; real name Pellegrino Munari or Aretusi ; son and pupil of Giovanni Munari ; mentioned as a skilful young painter in 1483. About 1509 he went to Rome and studied with Raphael, who employed him as his assistant at the Vatican. His work was so satisfactory that he was commissioned to paint frescos in S. Eustachio and in S. Giacomo degli Spagnuoli. Those in the latter church, representing the legend of St. James, still extant, are worthy in design and execution of a scholar of Raphael. On his return to Modena, Pellegrino painted in churches and other public buildings, but few of his works have survived. He was slain in a street quarrel by the friends of a man whom his son had killed. A Nativity by him is in the Modena Gallery.—Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne ; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., viii. 246 ; x. 4, 357 ; ed. Mil., iv. 649.

PELLEGRINO PELLEGRINI. See Tibaldi.

PELLEGRINO DA SAN DANIELE, born in latter half of 15th century, died at San Daniele, Dec. 23, 1547. Venetian school ; called also Martino da Udine ; son of Battista da San Daniele (died before 1491), a Dalmatian painter resident in Udine, of whom no picture remains. In 1491, Martino was the partner of a goldsmith at San Daniele, and had contracted to decorate with frescos the Church of Villanuova. Probably studied under his father, and afterwards in Venice (1494), where he perhaps obtained the surname of Pellegrino from Giovanni Bellini. Painted for several years at San Daniele and Udine, but was obliged to leave for political reasons, and spent four years (1508–12), in Venice and Ferrara. Up to this time his style had been chiefly influenced by Cima, but after this his work shows a careful study of Giorgione. In 1512 he returned to Udine and painted thenceforth there and at San Daniele, where he decorated the Church of Sant' Antonio with frescos. This long and arduous task was not completed until 1522. Among his other works are the Madonna with Saints (1529), Santa Maria, Cividale ; Glory of St. Joseph, Cathedral of Udine ; Madonna with Saints, Collection of Prince Giovanelli, Venice ; and Madonna enthroned with Saints, National Gallery, London. Duchesne, who calls him Pellegrino da Cesena, gives a list of 66 niellos by him.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 189 ; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ix. 28 ; ed. Mil., v. 105 ; Hartzen, Kunstblatt (1853), No. 24 ; Duchesne, Essai sur les Nielles (Paris, 1826), 322 ; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 583.

PENCZ, GEORG, born at Nuremberg about 1500, died there in Oct., 1550. German school; history and portrait painter, pupil or follower of Dürer. Admitted into the guild in 1523, he was banished for unbelief in 1524, with Hans and Sebald Beham; but he appears to have been allowed to settle in the neighbourhood soon afterwards, and probably returned to Nuremberg in 1532. After his return from Rome, which he visited before 1530 and again in 1539, he was frequently employed by the council of his native city. He was one of the best German portrait painters of his time, and as an engraver he occupies the first place among the followers of Dürer. Works: Adoration of the Magi, Dresden Gallery; St. Jerome (1544), Portrait of Field Marshal Sebaldus Schirmer (1545), Germanic Museum, Nuremberg; Judith with Head of Holofernes, Schleissheim Gallery; St. Jerome, Stuttgart Museum; Crucifixion, Wörlitz Gallery; do., and Portrait of Young Man (1543), Vienna Museum; do. PENGUILLY-L'HARIDON, OCTAVE, born in Paris, April 4, 1811, died there, Nov. 3, 1870. Genre painter, pupil of Charlet. Entered the École Polytechnique in 1831, became captain of artillery in 1841, inspector of studies in the École Polytechnique in 1850-54, custodian of the artillery museum in 1854, chief of battalion in 1860, and in 1866 retired on a pension. His pen-and-ink sketches, exhibited in 1835, were so much admired that he was encouraged to take up art professionally. Medals: 3d class, 1847; 2d class, 1848; L. of Honour, 1851; Officer, 1862. Works: Two Riders (1842); Tennis-Court, Interior of Farm House, Beggar (1847); Don Quixote's Return (1848); Sancho Panza (1849); The Revels, Robbers, Flemish Cavalry (1850); Calvin (1852); Cavalier (1853); Gallic Scout, Breton Bagpipe, An Inventor, An Invitation (1855); Battle of the Thirty (1857); The Beach, Stroke of the Spur, Little Sea-Gulls (1859); Rocks of Grand Paow, Death of Judas, St. Jerome (1861); Riding Lesson, The Shepherds guided by the Star to Bethlehem, Arrival at the Inn (1863); Arrival of the Magi, The Hurricane (1864); Knight dictating a Letter to a Monk (1865); Proteus and the Phocians (1866); Prodigal Son, The Beach (1868); Spoonbills, View of the Belleville Coast (1869); Ruins of Roman Town in Dauphiny, Storm in Channel (1870).—Bellier, ii. 228; Larousse.

PENNACCHI, GIROLAMO DI PIER MARIA, born at Treviso in 1497, died in 1545. Called also Girolamo da Treviso. Probably pupil of his father, Pietro Maria Pennacchi, but early exhibited a more modern spirit. Of this period are three pictures of his in the Casa Origo, Treviso, two of which bear the name of Giorgione. Girolamo went early to Venice, and was probably in Genoa between 1528 and 1532. In 1532 he painted frescos in the Castello of Trent, and in 1533 he executed a large fresco of the Madonna, in the Church of the Commenda, Faenza. About the same time he painted several pictures also in Bologna, one of the best of which, a Madonna, is in the National Gallery, London. He returned to Venice, and about 1538 entered the service of Henry VIII. of England; in 1542 he was architect to the king, and designed a palace for him; and in 1544 he was raised to the rank of an engineer, and as such commanded the works at the siege of Boulogne, where he was killed by a cannon-shot.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 230; Burckhardt, 113, 192, 728; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 604.

PENNACCHI, PIETRO MARIA, born at Treviso in 1464, died there in 1528. Painted first in Treviso, where he produced pictures remarkable for dryness and patient finish, one of them being so German that it has been ascribed to Albrecht Dürer. Afterwards studied in Venice, where he changed his style, wavering between imitation of Bellini and Carpaccio. In his early manner is the Christ in the Tomb, in the Berlin Museum; in his second, the Annunciation, in S. Francesco della Vigna, Venice. Still later he adopted the free system of treatment of Rondinello, examples of which are the Madonna, in S. M. della Salute, Venice, and the Assumption, in the Duomo, Treviso.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 227; Burckhardt, 192, 728; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 604.

brother-in-law, Perino del Vaga, in Genoa, Lucca, and other cities in Italy, and then with Il Rosso at Fontainebleau. Thence he went to England, where he was employed by Henry VIII. He had considerable talent, though his compositions are often confused. His infants are pretty, but his female figures lack the simplicity of those of Raphael. His landscape backgrounds are carefully finished. A Holy Family by him is in the Palazzo Pitti, Florence.—Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., viii. 244; ix. 291; Seguiet, 149.

PENN'S TREATY, Benjamin West, Independence Hall, Philadelphia. Treaty made by William Penn with the Indians at Shackamaxon, now Kensington, October 14, 1682. West's picture represents the traditional interview under the great elm, blown down in 1811, the site of which is marked by a small monument.

PENNY WEDDING, Sir David Wilkie, Buckingham Palace; canvas. A wedding party assembled in a cottage interior, some feasting in the background, others dancing the reel to the music of a violin and violoncello. Called a penny wedding because each visitor pays a small fee, the money thus collected going to help furnish the house of the bride. Painted in 1818 for the Prince Regent, who paid for it 500 guineas. Loan Exhibition, Edinburgh, 1883. Original sketch, Gillot sale (1872), 700 guineas. Engraved by James Stewart; W. Greatbach.—Heaton, Works of Sir D. W.; Waagen, Art Treasures, ii. 25; Art Journal (1860), 184.

PENTHEUS PURSUED BY THE MAINADES, Charles Gleyre, Basle Museum; canvas, H. 3 ft. 10 in. × 6 ft. 6 in. Pentheus, King of Thebes, being opposed to the introduction of the worship of Dionysus in his kingdom, was torn to pieces by his mother and two other Mainades, who, in their Bacchic frenzy, believed him to be a wild beast.

PEPYN, MARTEN, born in Antwerp, baptized Feb. 21, 1575, died there about

PERSEUS AND PHINEUS, Luca Giordano, Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 9 ft. × 12 ft. 10 in.; signed. Perseus overcomes Phineus and his companions by showing them the head of Medusa, by which they are turned into stone. Painted for Duc de Créqui; bought in Paris at Carignan sale (1742) for 2,000 livres. Engraved by J. F. Beauvarlet.—Gal. roy. de Dresde, ii. Pl. 39.

PERSEUS, EDVARD, born at Lund, Dec. 23, 1841. History and genre painter, pupil of Stockholm Academy; went in 1867 to Düsseldorf, studied in Munich under Piloty (1869–72), went in 1872 to Italy, and returned to Sweden in 1875. Works: Judith; Katharina Månsdotter visiting Erich XIV. in Prison; Katharina Månsdotter in Old Age.—Illust. Tidning, 1876.

PERUGINI

PERUGINI, CHARLES EDWARD, born in Italy; contemporary. Genre painter; has resided in England many years, and been a constant exhibitor at Royal Academy. Works: Playing at Work (1872); Cup of Tea (1873); Labour of Love (1874); Hop Picker (1877); Girl Reading, Quoits—Evening, Roses and Butterflies (1878); Fresh Lavender (1879); Siesta, Dead Leaves (1880); The Loom, Little Nell (1881); Dolce far Niente (1882); Nerina (1883); Idle Moments, Donna è Mobile (1884); Cup and Ball (1885); Tempora Mutantur (1886).

PERUGINI, Mrs. KATE DICKENS; contemporary. Genre painter; daughter of Charles Dickens and wife of Charles Edward Perugini. Works: In a Scrape, Music hath Charms (1877); Competitive Examination (1878); A Little Woman (1879); Civettina, Multiplication (1880); Violet and Muriel, Old Curiosity Shop (1881); Rabbit Hutch, Dolls' Dress Maker (1882); Effie, Bébelle (1883); The "Tick-Tick," Little Redcap (1884); Mollie's Ball Dress (1885); All for Her (1886).

PERUGINO, PIETRO, born at Città della la Pieve in 1446, died at Fontignano, Feb. or March, 1523. Umbrian school; real name Pietro di Cristoforo Vannucci; apprenticed in 1455 in Perugia to a painter, probably Benedetto Bonfigli, though Niccolò da Foligno and Fiorenzo di Lorenzo lay claim to the honour. At an early age he may have acted as assistant to Pietro della Francesca (with whom, as with Luca Pacioli, he studied perspective) in painting frescos at Arezzo. Before 1475 or after 1478, the year in which he painted the now destroyed frescos at Cerqueto, Peruginino went to Florence, where he is said to have studied with Verocchio, and during his two years' residence there painted a Madonna with Saints and Angels, now in the Louvre. In 1480 he was called to Rome by Pope Sixtus IV. to paint in the Sistine Chapel. Some of his frescos were destroyed to make room for the Last Judgment of Michelangelo; those which remain are the Moses and Zipporah, Baptism of Christ, and Christ's Charge to St. Peter, finished in 1486. Four years later he was in Florence as member of a congress of artists called to deliberate about giving a façade to the Duomo; but he again returned to Rome to decorate the palace of Cardinal Giuliano della Rovere, and in 1491 painted the Nativity, Crucifixion, etc., now in the Villa Albani. Two large altarpieces, of which one, Madonna and Saints, is in the Uffizi, Florence, and the other is in the Vienna Museum, were painted in 1491. At this time he established himself in Florence for six years and opened a workshop, where he and his assistants painted many panels and prepared cartoons for frescos. Remains of those executed in the Convent of the Gesuati are in the Academy. Other works painted before 1499 are: Madonna and Saints, S. Agostino, Cremona; Portrait of Peruginino (1494), Uffizi; Pietà, Pitti; Pietà, Christ on the Mount (1496), Florence Academy; Madonna and Saints, Vatican, Rome; Frescos in S. M. Maddalena dei Pazzi, Florence; and the Ascension of our Lord, S. Pietro, Perugia. In 1499 Peruginino began to decorate the Sala del Cambio, Perugia, with frescos of religious and classical subjects, which constitute his most important work. He himself painted the personifications of the Virtues, and the twelve figures of classic personages, as well as the God the Father, the Nativity, and the Transfiguration, and designed the arabesques for the pilasters and flat spaces of the walls and ceiling, which were painted by his assistants, Pinturicchio, Lo Spagna, Alfani, and Girolamo Genga. While the frescos were in progress Raphael became his pupil, and doubtless had his share in such preparatory work as might safely be entrusted to a novice of extraordinary ability. The series of frescos, the Sposalizio or Marriage of the Virgin, now in the Museum of Caen, Normandy; the Madonna in Adoration, National Gallery, London (painted for the Certosa, at Pavia); the Pietà, of the Pitti, Florence; the Ascension of Christ, in the Museum at Lyons; the Adoring Madonna, in S. Agostino, Perugia; and the fresco in S. M. Maddalena dei Pazzi, Florence, are Perugino's finest works. Many of those painted after 1500 are studio works, in which the master supplied his pupils with his old cartoons to be applied, in whole, in part, or in combination, to the carrying out of new commissions. Vasari, who is evidently unjust towards Perugino in many respects, may be right in attributing the haste and carelessness as to result of his latter years to the master's greed of gain. It is certain that by the practice above alluded to he injured his reputation in Florence and lost many of his pupils. In his best days, when he laboured conscientiously to produce the best work for its own sake, Perugino painted many pictures of incontestable excellence. He possessed the ability to feel and the power to express the deeper emotions of the human soul, and his spirit, though limited in its range of thought and narrow in its scope, was progressive up to the time when press of work and the habit of mechanical repetition made him somewhat negligent. He was a careful draughtsman, an excellent colourist in the Umbrian manner, understood anatomy and perspective, paid special attention to backgrounds, both landscape and architectural, and treated accessories with care and diligence. Among his works painted after 1504 are: Resurrection of Christ, Vatican, Rome, in which he was assisted by Raphael; Adoration of the Magi, Chapel of the Disciplinati, Città della Pieve; Assumption, Annunziata, Florence; Madonna and Saints, Palazzo Penna, Perugia; Adoration of the Magi, Freri; Adoration of the Infant Christ (1509), Historical Society, New York; and a fresco, now in the Kensington Museum, painted in 1522 for Fontignano, where he died of the plague the following year.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 170; Vasari, ed. Mi., iii. 565, 603, 610; Burckhardt, 82, 172, 558, 569; Mündler, Essai, etc., 159; Dohme, PERUGINO, portrait, Perugino, Sala del Cambio, Perugia; dated 1500. Bust in a painted frame hanging by a string of beads from a nail. Another portrait in Raphael's School of Athens.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 214; Perkins, 25.

By Perugino, Uffizi, Florence; wood, dated 1494. Bust, with black skull-cap, a red vest laced over a white shirt, and purple coat with brown facing.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 194; Lavice, 52.

PERUZZI, BALDASSARE, born at Siena, March 7, 1481, died in Rome, Jan. 6, 1537. Sienese school; son of a weaver of Volterra; he was perhaps indebted to Il Sodoma for his early instruction, but soon learned to follow Pinturicchio. Went about 1504 to Rome, where he speedily won a favourable position. He executed frescos—an Eternal, Coronation of the Virgin, and Madonna with Saints—in S. Onofrio, and made designs for mosaics in S. Croce in Gerusalemme. By him also is the ceiling in the Camera dell' Eliodoro in the Vatican, partly repainted by Raphael. Peruzzi was an architect as well as painter, and built (1509) the Palazzo Chigi, called the Farnesina, and decorated its ceilings with frescos. He painted also many other frescos, the best of which are those in S. M. della Pace. In these he endeavoured to rival Michelangelo and Raphael, and some of them recall the grandeur of their works. In 1520 he succeeded Raphael as architect of St. Peter's, and held that position until the sack of Rome by the Spaniards in 1527, when he was captured and plundered of all he possessed. He was employed in architectural and engineering work until 1535, when he returned to Rome and began the Palazzo Massimi, which he did not live to finish. He was the last of the great artists of Siena.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 384; Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 569, 615; ed. Le Mon., viii. 219; Ch. PESARO, JACOPO, portrait, Titian, Antwerp Museum; wood, H. 4 ft. 9 in. x 6 ft. Jacopo (nicknamed Baffo from his bishopric of Paphos in Cyprus), in the dress of a Dominican, praying for victory before St. Peter, to whom Alexander VI., in full pontificals, is presenting him; in the distance, a military harbour, with galleys at anchor. Painted in 1503, when Pesaro was on the eve of sailing against Santa Maura. Passed from collection of Charles I. of England to Spain and to the Netherlands; presented in 1825 by William I. to municipality of Antwerp. Injured by repainting. Copy in Casa Lazara, Padua. See Madonna di Casa Pesaro.—Waagen, Treasures, ii. 479; C. & C., Titian, i. 74.

PESCHEL, KARL GOTTLIEB, born in Dresden, March 31, 1798, died there, July 3, 1879. History painter, pupil of Dresden Academy under Pochmann (1762-1830); went in 1825 to Rome, where he contracted a life-long friendship with Ludwig Richter; after his return he painted frescos at Castle Pillnitz, and in 1838 assisted Bendemann in the decoration of the royal palace at Dresden, where he was professor at the Academy in 1837-77. Works: Rebekah at the PESELLINO, FRANCESCO, born in Florence in 1422, died there, June 29, 1457. Florentine school; real name Francesco di Stephano Giuochi; grandson and pupil of Giuliano Giuochi, called Pesello, whom he aided in experimenting with an oil medium. Francesco imitated Fra Filippo Lippi, according to Vasari, and this is evident if we accept as his work the predella of Lippi's altarpiece (three parts in Florence Academy and two in Louvre), and an Adoration of the Magi, Uffizi, which shows him to have been one of the best animal painters of his day. Among his other works are: Madonna, Städel Gallery, Frankfort; Trinity, National Gallery, London; Exhibition of a Relic, Liverpool Institution; and two predella scenes, Palazzo Doria, Rome.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 358; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iv. 128, 180; ed. Mil., iii. 35, 41; Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 310.

PESELLO, born in Florence in 1367, died there, April 6, 1446. Florentine school; real name Giuliano d'Arrigo di

Giucolo Giuochi. Vasari erroneously calls him Francesco Peselli, and makes Pesellino his son instead of his grandson. He is also wrong in making him a pupil of Andrea del Castagno, who was not born until 1390. None of his works extant. He was also an architect and a sculptor.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 354; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 136, 155; iv. 74, 180; ed. Mil., iii. 35, 41; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 310.

PESNE, ANTOINE, born in Paris, May 23, 1683, died in Berlin, Aug. 5, 1757. French school; history and portrait painter, nephew of the famous engraver Jean Pesne (1623–1700), pupil of his father, Thomas Pesne, a portrait painter, and of Charles de la Fosse, his uncle; studied then at Rome, Naples, and Venice, and while in Italy was called in 1710 to Berlin, where he became court-painter in 1711, and director of the Academy. Member of Paris Academy in 1720. Works: Portrait of Frederik William II., do. of the Painter Nicolaas Wleughels, Versailles Museum; do. of Frederick the Great (1739), do. of Engraver G. F. Schmidt and Wife (1748), Family of Captain von Erlach, Berlin Museum; Girl with two Pigeons (1728), Fortune Teller, Cook plucking Turkey (1712), Artist's Portrait (1728), three other portraits, Dresden Museum; Girl with Basket, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Lady's Portrait, Schwerin Gal-

By Guido Reni, Hermitage, St. Petersburg. The Apostle, in a blue tunic and yellow mantle, is represented with clasped hands, expressive of repentance.

PETER, ST., CHRIST'S CHARGE TO, Pietro Perugino, Sistine Chapel, Vatican; fresco. Christ, attended by the Apostles and others in a palatial court, gives the keys to Peter, who is kneeling; background, an octagonal temple with two porches, and a triumphal arch on each side, with landscape in background, figures in middle distance. One of his finest mural works. Finished in 1486.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 179; Woermann, ii. 238.

By Rubens, Hertford House, London; wood, H. 4 ft. 7 in. × 3 ft. Figures half-length, life-size. Christ, in the presence of three of his disciples, delivers the keys to Peter, to whom he appears to say: "Feed my sheep;" near the Saviour the heads of two sheep. Painted for chapel of tomb of Viscomte d'Amant, Chancellor of Brabant; sold to Lafontaine in Paris, whence taken to England and passed finally to Mr. Champion for £5,000; sold by Mr. Pinny (1824) to Prince of Orange for 2,500 guineas; sale of William II. (1850) to Lord Hertford, 18,375 francs. Engraved by Kraaft; Van Eisen; Winstanley. Same subject, different composition, painted for chapel of tomb of Jan Brueghel, in Chartreux, Brussels.—Smith, ii. 51; Waagen, ii. 157.

Subject treated also by Jacopo da Empoli, Trinità, Florence; Guido Reni, Cathedral of Fano; Heinrich von Hess, Church of All Saints, Munich; Jean François Brémond, Church of La Villette, Paris; Girolamo Mutiano, chapel in St. Peter's, Rome.

PETER, ST., DELIVERANCE OF, Raphael, Stanza d'Eliodoro, Vatican; fresco, dated 1514. In three compartments: middle, the angel awakening St. Peter, who lies between two slumbering guards; at right, he is leaving the prison with the angel, passing soldiers asleep on the steps; at left, the keepers awaking in dismay at the escape of their charge. By Rubens, St. Pierre, Cologne; canvas. Three executioners bind and nail the hands and feet of the martyr to the cross, which a fourth plants in the ground; a fifth holds the Saint's left hand. Rubens's last picture; painted in 1638 for Jabach, who gave it to the church. Executed with the utmost vigour, and finished with great care, it shows no sign of diminished power.—Kugler (Crowe), ii. 286; Michiels, 357.

PETER, ST., IN PRISON, Murillo, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; canvas, H. 10 ft. × 8 ft. 6 in. In blue tunic and yellow mantle, seated on floor of prison, turning his head towards the angel, who points the way of escape; background, architecture and sleeping guards. Painted about 1674; one of eight large pictures for Hospital of La Caridad, Seville; carried off by Soult; Soult sale (1852), 151,000 francs.—Curtis, 263; L'Illustration, May 31, 1852; Hermitage Cat., 130.

PETER, ST., RAISING TABITHA, Guericino, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; canvas, H. 4 ft. 4 in. × 5 ft. 5 in. Tabitha lying dead upon a bier, surrounded by weeping women; beside the bier, one of the messengers sent to Lydda, pointing to the corpse, and beside him, St. Peter, with his right hand raised. Black in tone. Engraved by C. Ferrari.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, ii. Pl. 19; Lavice, 60.

PETER ARBUEZ, ST., Murillo, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; canvas, H. 9 ft. 6 in. × 6 ft. 9 in. Two executioners, seizing the Saint from behind, attack him with sword and poniard as he kneels on the steps of an altar, looking up to an angel who brings the palm of martyrdom; a night scene.

Taken in 1804 from baptistery of Cathedral, Seville, by the Prince of Peace, who left in its place a copy by Joaquin Cortes; purchased for Hermitage in 1831. Repetition in Vatican. Copy in Chapel of Belen, Seville Cathedral; another in Cordova Museum. Etched by M. Arteaga; lithographed by H. Robillard. This Saint, sometimes called St. Peter Martyr, was born in Aragon about 1441; was an efficient aid to Torquemada, and was slain in 1484 in the Cathedral of Saragossa.—Curtis, 264; Hermitage Cat., 131.

PETER MARTYR, ST., Cima da Conegliano, Brera, Milan; wood, H. 10 ft. 6 in. × 7 ft.; signed. By Garofalo, Ferrara Gallery; wood, H. 8 ft. 6 in. × 5 ft. 11 in. A group of three figures, with landscape background; above, a glory of angels. Represents death of Peter Martyr, of Verona; some authorities declare, says Lanzi, that it was painted in competition with Titian. Painted for S. Domenico, Ferrara.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 465; Lanzi, iii. 203.

PETER MARTYR, ST., DEATH OF, Domenichino, Bologna Gallery; canvas, H. 10 ft. 9 in. × 7 ft. 2 in. Peter Martyr, lying on the ground beneath trees, is about to be despatched by the sword of a ruffian, while his companion takes to flight; above, five boy angels, one bearing the palm of martyrdom and the crown. The composition is a plagiarism on Titian's celebrated picture of the same subject, simply reversed, treated with extreme and painful realism. From Church of Dominicans at Brisighella. Was taken to Paris. Engraved by Rosaspina. Pinac. di Bologna, Pl. 13.—Viardot, 107; Lavice, 21.

PETITOT, JEAN, born at Geneva, July 12, 1607, died at Vevay in 1691. French school; portrait painter in enamel of great renown, supposed to have gone to Paris at an early age, and about 1634 to London, where the king's physician, Sir Theodore de Mayerne, an excellent chemist, communicated his discoveries in the treatment of enamels to Petitot, and introduced him to Charles I., who took him into his service and gave him apartments at Whitehall. He painted the portrait of that monarch and the royal family several times, and copied several pictures after Van Dyck, who assisted him with his advice. After the death of Charles I. he followed the royal family to France, where he found equal favour with Louis XIV., but on the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, in 1685, retired to his native land. He may almost be considered the inventor of painting in enamel, which he carried to a perfection before unknown; his works are extremely scarce and valuable. The Apollo Gallery in the Louvre contains about sixty of the finest, the most interesting of which are: Several portraits of Louis XIV. at different periods, three of Anne of Austria, two of Madame de Maintenon, La Duchesse de La Vallière, Ninon de l'Enclos, Madame de Sévigné, Duchess of Portsmouth, Christina of Sweden, Cardinal Richelieu, Madame de Montespan, Maréchal de Villars. The beautiful portrait of the Countess of Southampton (1642, after van Dyck), now in the collection of the Duke of Devonshire, is declared to be the finest specimen of enamel painting in existence.—Bellier, ii. 253; Jal, 963; Nagler, xi. 177; Spooner, ii. 684.

PETRARCH, TRIUMPH OF, Louis Boulanger, private gallery. The return of the cortège from the Capitol, Rome, whither the poet had gone at the summons of the senate, in 1341, to receive the laurel crown. His chariot is surrounded by the Muses, and Revery is seated at his feet. Salon, 1836:

PETRI, HEINRICH, born at Göttingen in 1835, died at Düsseldorf, Feb. 15, 1872. History painter, pupil of Düsseldorf Academy; allied himself closely with Deger, and, after a short stay in Munich in 1857, studied in Rome (1858–59), with Overbeck as his model, and returned there in 1868. Works: Descent from the Cross (1862); Madonna (3, 1861–62–63); Mary and John beside the Cross (1864); Entombment (1870); The Virgin as Patron of Poor Children (1871).—Blanckarts, 56; *Zeitschr. f. b. PETRONILLA, ST., Guercino, Capitol Gallery, Rome; canvas. The body of St. Petronilla, in her bridal dress, is being lowered into the tomb. Three grave-diggers support the corpse, while a young man and two old men look on. To the right are two women and a person holding a taper, probably Flaccus, her betrothed; above, the Virgin in glory, surrounded by angels, kneeling before Christ, receives the Saint into heaven. A masterpiece in Guercino's second manner. Painted about 1622, by order of Gregory XV., for St. Peter's, Rome, where is a copy in mosaic, considered one of the finest in the church. Engraved by N. Dorigny; J. J. Frey.—Meyer, Künst. Lex., iii. 2; Lavice, 331.

PHILISCUS, painter, date unknown; mentioned by Pliny (xxxv. 40 [141]) in connection with his picture of a Painter's Studio, with a boy blowing the fire.—Sillig, 350.

PHILLIP, JOHN, born in Aberdeen, April 17, 1817, died at Kensington, Feb. 27, 1867. History and portrait painter, pupil in London of T. M. Joy in 1836, and of Royal Academy in 1837; exhibited portraits in 1838–39, and Tasso in Disguise in 1840. During the next ten years he painted many clever Scotch subjects, among the best of which were Baptism in Scotland (1850) and Scotch Washing (1851). Visited Spain in 1852 and 1856, after which his style changed and his art and subjects became Spanish. Elected an A.R.A. in 1857, and R.A. in 1859; went to Spain again in 1860, and to Rome in 1866. Phillip was one of the best colourists of the British school. Works: Visit to the Gypsy Quarter (1853), Letter Writer of Seville (1854), belonging to the Queen; Death of the Contrabandista (1858); Marriage of the Princess Royal (1860); Dolores (1862); Agua Bendita (1863); La Gloria (1864); Early Career of Murillo (1865); Chat around the Brasiers (1866); Antonio (1867).—Redgrave; Wilmot-Buxton, 161; Art Journal (1867), 127, 153; Sandby, ii. 306.

PHILLIPS, THOMAS, born at Dudley, Warwickshire, Oct. 18, 1770, died in London, April 20, 1845. Studied with Francis Eginton, glass painter, Birmingham; went to London in 1790, and was employed by Benjamin West on the window of St. George's Chapel, Windsor. Became an exhibitor in 1792 at the Royal Academy; A.R.A. in 1804, and R.A. in 1808. In 1825 he succeeded Fuseli as professor of painting, and after his resignation, in 1832, published his lectures on the "History and Principles of Painting" (London, 1833). He executed some historical subjects, but was more successful as a portrait painter, though he does not occupy high rank as a colourist. Among his sitters were the Prince of Wales, Duke of York, Duke of Sussex, Marchioness of Stafford, Lord Lyndhurst, Lord Egremont, Lord Byron, Hallam, Southey, Coleridge, Crabbe, Faraday, and many other notabilities. Works : Wood Nymph, Sir David Wilkie, National Gallery ; Sir N. Tindal, Lord Thurlow, Blake, Faraday, Sir F. Burdett, Byron, Chantrey, Dibdin, National Portrait Gallery, London. His son, Henry Wyndham Phillips (1820-68), was also a successful portrait painter.—Redgrave ; F. de Conches, 373 ; Ch. Blanc, École anglaise ; Sandby, i. 331.

PHILOCHARES, Greek painter, supposed to have been identical with the brother of Æschines (389-314 B.C.), of whom Demosthenes speaks contemptuously (De Fals. Legat., 237), but whom Ulpian ranks with the greatest painters (Ad. Demos., 386). Pliny says (xxxv. 10 [27]) that Augustus consecrated two of his pictures, one of which represented an old man and his son, on the wall of the Curia and in the Comitium, Rome.—Brunn, ii. 257.

PHILOCLEES, a very early Egyptian painter, date unknown. Pliny says (xxxv. 5 [16]) that the invention of line drawing has been assigned both to him and to Cleantes of Corinth.

PHILOMELA AND PROCNE, William Adolphe Bouguereau, Luxembourg Museum ; canvas, oval, H. 5 ft. 3 in. × 4 ft. Figures draped, three-quarters length, one with a lyre, the other with a tambourine. Painted in 1861.

PHILOSOPHER IN MEDITATION, Rembrandt, Louvre, Paris ; wood, H. 11 in. × 1 ft. 1 in. ; signed, dated 1633. A bearded old man, in a fur-trimmed robe, seated in contemplation before an open window, in a vaulted apartment, beside a table on which are books and an inkstand ; at right, a woman ascending a winding staircase ; in foreground, at right, another woman tending a fire. This, and the following picture, sold at the sale of Comte de Vence (1750), 3,000 livres ; sale of Duc de Choiseul (1772), 14,000 livres ; sale of M. Randon de Boisset (1777), 10,900 livres ; sale of Comte de Vaudreuil (1784), 13,000 livres. Engraved by Surugue (1754) ; R. Houston ; Herstel ; W. Baillie ; M. Bisi, with changes ; Wattelet ; J. Longhi.—Musée français ; Filhol, viii. Pl. 575, Vosmaer, 35, 431 ; Smith, vii. 66.

closed window, in a vaulted room, beside a table on which are books and a globe ; at left, a winding stairway. History and engravers same as preceding. Painted in 1633.—Filhol, iv. Pl. 261 ; Musée français ; Vosmaer, 35, 431 ; Smith, vii. 66.

graved by Paradisi.—Smith, ii. 149; Gal. du Pal. Pitti, i. Pl. 84.

PHILOSOPHY, Raphael, Camera della Segnatura, Vatican; fresco, medallion of ceiling. Female figure seated on a marble throne-chair; symbolical representations of the four elements are woven into her dress, and on her knees are books entitled "Naturalis et Moralis;" two genii stand by, holding inscribed tablets. Painted in 1512; probably entirely by Raphael.—Engraved by B. Audran; R. Morghen; and others.—Passavant, ii. 88; Müntz, 311, 316, 350.

By Raphael (fresco). See School of Athens.

PHILOXENUS, painter, of Eretria, pupil of Nicomachus, probably about 330 B.C. He painted for King Cassander a picture of one of the battles between Alexander and Darius, which, says Pliny (xxxv. 36 [110]), was inferior to none. A grotesque picture representing three Sileni at their revels was also his work.

PHRYLUS, painter. See Erillus.

PHRYNE GOING TO THE BATH AS VENUS, Joseph M. W. Turner, National Gallery, London; canvas, H. 6 ft. 4 in. × 5 ft. 5 in. An extensive landscape, with baths in middle distance, and a crowd of figures in foreground; among them, on right, Phryne as Venus in her chariot; on left foreground, Demosthenes taunted by Æschines. Royal Academy, 1838; Turner Collection. Engraved by J. B. Allen.—Hamer-ton, Life; Cat. Nat. Gal.

PHRYNE BEFORE THE TRIBUNAL, Jean Léon Gérôme, Paris; canvas. Phryne, accused by Euthias of a capital crime, was defended by one of her lovers, the orator Hyperides. When his eloquence failed to move the judges, he bade her unveil her charms and thus secured her acquittal. Salon, 1861. Engraved by Flameng.—Gaz. des B. Arts (1861), x. 266.

PIAZZA, CALLISTO, born at Lodi, died there in 1561 (?). Venetian school; history painter, son and pupil of Martino Piazza (died in 1527), and one of the most successful followers of Titian, although he imitated Giorgione also, and afterwards studied at Brescia under Romanino; settled at Lodi about 1529, and in 1539 went to Spain and painted in the Escorial, and thence to Lisbon, where he was the recipient of great honours. His earlier works are distinguished for grand conception and powerful colouring, but in his latter years he became flat and mannered. His masterpiece is an Assumption (1533), in the parish church at Codogno, said to be worthy of the ablest disciple of that school. Other works: Visitation of Mary (1521), S. Maria in Calchera, Brescia; Nativity (1524), S. Clemente, ib.; Daughter of Herodias (1526), Vienna Museum; Massacre of the Innocents, Cathedral, Lodi; Beheading of (1530), and four other Episodes in Life of St. John, Pietà (1538), Mysteries of the Passion, Life of the Virgin, S. Maria Incoronata, ib.; Madonna Enthroned, St. Stephen crowned by Angels, Marriage at Cana (1545), Brera, Milan. His brothers Cesare and Scipione were also painters. A Madonna (ascribed to Cesare da Sesto) is in the Turin Gallery.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 432; Kunstbl. (1838), No. 75; Lanzi (Roscoe), ii. 188; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 622; Nagler, xi. 252.

PIAZZETTA, GIOVANNI BATTISTA, born in Venice in 1682, died there, April 28, 1754. Venetian school; pupil of Antonio Molinari, a mediocre painter; afterwards studied the works of Guercino and adopted his system of chiaroscuro and bold relief. Among the last of the Venetian painters of any note. Among his best works are: Glory of St. Dominick, in SS. Giovanni e Paolo, Venice; and the Decollation of St. John, Santo, Padua. Most of his works have been engraved.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne, Appendice, 48; Burckhardt, 799.

PICHON, PIERRE AUGUSTE, born at Sorèze (Tarn), Dec. 6, 1805. History and portrait painter, pupil of Ingres. Medals: 3d class, 1843; 2d class, 1844; 1st class, Immerzeel, ii. 309 ; Kramm, v. 1284 ; Quellschriften, xiv. 258 ; Kugler (Crowe), ii. 521.

PIETÀ, (pity, compassion), the lamentation of the Virgin and the Holy Women over the deposed body of Christ. The incident is not mentioned in the Gospels, but is a late invention of art.

By Giovanni Bellini, Brera, Milan ; wood, tempera, half-lengths, life-size. The dead body of Christ, sustained in a standing position, behind a marble parapet, by the Virgin and St. John. Fine work of the master's early time ; formerly in Zampieri Collection, Bologna ; presented to Brera in 1811 by Eugène Beauharnais, then Viceroy of Italy.—C. & C., N. Italy, iii. 144 ; Meyer, Künst. Lex., iii. 414.

By Correggio, Parma Gallery, canvas. The body of Christ, after the descent from the cross, in the lap of Mary ; weeping Magdalen at the Saviour's feet, and other mourners by his head ; Joseph of Arimathea descending ladder, whence the picture is sometimes called Vierge de l'Échelle (of the Ladder). Painted at same time as Martyrdom of Sts. Placidus and Flavia (1522-24). Old copy, attributed to Correggio, in Madrid Museum. Engraved by Rosaspina, Hubert, and Ravenet.—Meyer, Correggio, 305, 480 ; Künst. Lex., i. ; Landon, Œuvres, viii. Pl. 14 ; Landon, Musée, x. Pl. 3.

By Anton van Dyck, Munich Gallery ; canvas, H. 6 ft. 1 in. × 4 ft. 6 in. The Virgin, seated at foot of a rock, and St. John kneeling by her side, support between them the body of Christ ; behind, one of the holy women wringing her hands ; in foreground, emblems of the crucifixion. Sketch in Munich Gallery.—Eastlake, Notes, 70.

By Anton van Dyck, Munich Gallery ; wood, H. 3 ft. 5 in. × 4 ft. 7 in. The body of Christ extended on drapery on the ground, the upper part resting on the knees of the Virgin, behind whom is the cross ; at left, three angels ; above, in clouds at right, three cherubim. Sketch also in Munich Gallery. Same composition (1 ft. × 1 ft. 6 in), Louvre. Engraved by Vosterman ; Viennot ; J. Smith ; Normand ; Schiavonetti ; Chr. de Méchel.—Smith, iii. 16 ; Gal. de Düsseldorf, Pl. 70 ; Guiffrey, 249 ; Filhol, xi. PIETRO DA CORTONA, born in Cortona, Nov. 1, 1596, died in Rome, May 16, 1669. Roman school; real name Pietro Berrettini; pupil in Florence of Andrea Comodi, and in Rome (1611), of Baccio Ciampi; also studied works of Raphael, Michelangelo, and Polidoro da Caravaggio. Cardinal Sacchetti procured him many commissions, among others the decoration of the ceiling of the Palazzo Barberini, finished in 1630. This work brought him into vogue, and he received orders in many cities. Employed in Florence by Ferdinand II. to decorate the Palazzo Pitti, where he painted several large historical compositions, but left without finishing the series. On his return to Rome he executed many works for churches, and enjoyed there a great reputation. Pietro da Cortona was little more than a scenic painter, who covered walls and ceilings with superficial, rapidly executed works in a baroque style. Among his easel pictures are: Nativity of PINCHART, ÉMIL AUGUSTE, born at Cambrai ; contemporary. History, genre, and portrait painter, pupil of Gérôme. Medal, 3d class, 1884. Works : Worship of Ibis (1868) ; Venus Wounded (1870) ; Rendez-vous (1872) ; The First Tooth, New Year's Day (1878) ; The Bath (1879) ; Education of Bacchus (1880) ; Temptation of St. Anthony, Return from Festival (1882) ; At the Fountain (1884) ; Market Corner at Geneva (1885) ; Tobias and the Angel (1886).

PINTURICCHIO (Little Painter), BERNARDINO, born at Perugia in 1454 (?), died at Siena, Dec. 11, 1513. Umbrian school ; real name Bernardino di Betti Biagi ; sometimes called also Lo Sordicchio on account of his deafness and the insignificance of his personal appearance. Representing Perugian art as practised by Bonfigli and Fiorenzo di Lorenzo, he almost always painted in tempera, and worked in the spirit of the early Umbrian painters. He was all his life, says Charles Blanc, what Raphael was at twenty years old ; for while the latter enlarged his horizon and developed his genius, he remained a faithful follower of Perugino. In 1484 Pinturicchio became the partner of Perugino at Rome, and worked with him in the Sistine Chapel. He then decorated a chapel in S. M. del Popolo with an Adoration of the Shepherds and scenes from the life of St. Jerome (1485), laid out the choir ceiling in the church, and also painted frescos in the Palazzo Belvedere and the Palazzo di S. Apostolo, now mostly destroyed. His frescos in the Cathedral of Orvieto (1491-92) and those of

PINUS

1492-94 in the Vatican still exist, but those painted (1495) in the Castle of S. Angelo are no longer extant. To finish such vast works so rapidly many assistants were needed, and the result achieved represents rather the skilled labour of art than exceptional talent. About 1495 Pinturicchio painted a series of frescos from the life of S. Bernardino, in the Bufalini Chapel in Araceli, Rome, in a purer and better style than had been his wont. The Madonna and St. John the Baptist, in the Perugia Academy, and the Madonna and Donor, in the Duomo of S. Severino, belong to a little later period, while the important frescos of the Annunciation, Nativity, and Christ disputing with the Doctors, in S. M. Maggiore at Spello, were painted about 1501. The next year he was engaged by Cardinal Piccolomini to decorate his family chapel, the so-called Library, in the Duomo, Siena, with frescos illustrating the history of the great Piccolomini Pope, Pius II., the learned Æneas Silvius, which he completed in 1507 with the aid of many apprentices, one of whom was Raphael, who came to Siena in 1503. Vasari's statement that Raphael designed the whole series is probably greatly exaggerated, but his drawings in the Uffizi, at Perugia, and at Chatsworth, of single figures and draperies of two of these frescos, proves that it is not altogether untrue. His co-operation is also substantiated by the fact that Pinturicchio introduced him as a spectator in the fresco of the Canonization of St. Catharine. Pinturicchio's last authentic picture is a cabinet miniature of Christ bearing the Cross (1513), Palazzo Borromeo, Milan. Among his easel pictures in galleries are: Altarpiece, Perugia Academy; Holy Family, Siena Academy; Coronation of the Virgin, Vatican; Adoration of the Magi, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Reliquarium with SS. Augustine, Benedict, and Bernard, Madonna, Berlin Museum; several Madonnas, Louvre; St. Catharine, Madonna, Return of Ulysses (fresco transferred to canvas), and the Story of Griselda (3, in tempera on wood), National Gallery, London.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 256; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., v. 261; ed. Mil., iii. 493, 529; Burekhardt, 571; Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne; Vermiglioli, Mem. di Bern. Pinturicchio (Perugia, 1837); Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 38, 438.

PINUS, CORNELIUS, Roman painter, about A.D. 70. Decorated, together with Attius Priscus, the Temple of Honos and Virtus, near the Porta Capena, Rome, when it was restored by Vespasian.—Pliny, xxxv. 37 [120]; Sillig, 357.

PIOLA, DOMENICO, born in Genoa in 1628, died there in 1703. Genoese school; brother and pupil of Pellegro Piola; afterwards studied under Cappellino. Associated with Valerio Castello, he executed large mural paintings in S. M. della Passione and S. Marta, Genoa, and painted many frescos in his style. Afterwards adopted the manner of Pietro da Cortona. His works are in many churches and palaces in and around Genoa. Domenico had three sons who were painters—Antonio Maria (1654-1715), Giambattista, and Paolgirolamo (1666-1724).—Lanzi, iii. 261; Ch. Blanc, École génoise.

PIOLA, PELLEGGRO, born in Genoa in 1617, died there, Nov. 24, 1640. Genoese school; pupil of Giovanni Domenico Cappellino, who was a disciple of Paggi, but formed his style on study of the best masters. Displayed exceptional talent before he was assassinated at the age of twenty-three. Works: St. Ursula, Palazzo Brignole sale, Genoa; Madonna del Rosario, Genoa Academy; Madonna and St. John, Uffizi, Florence; Bacchante, Turin Museum; Unus Vestrum, S. Stefano, Genoa; Madonna, Palazzo Brignole, ib.; SS. Peter and John curing the Paralytic, Carignano Church, ib.—Lanzi, iii. 260; Ch. Blanc, École génoise; Burekhardt, 787; Lavice, 84.

PIOMBO, Fra SEBASTIANO DEL, born in Venice (?) in 1485, died in Rome, June 21, 1547. Venetian school; real name Luciani, but commonly called as above from the office of the Piombo (Keeper of the Leaden Seals) which he held under Clement VII. and Paul

III. Pupil of Giovanni Bellini and afterwards of Giorgione. An example of his work at this period is the Majesty of St. John Chrysostom, in S. Giovanni Crisostomo, Venice. He was called to Rome soon after 1509 by Agostino Chigi to assist in decorating the Farnesina with frescos, but after painting nine lunettes in the garden lodge, with little success, ceased to work there about 1512. Meantime his portraits in oil had won him fame. Among the best of this period are the so-called Fornarina, in the Tribune of the Uffizi, Florence, the Fornarina, of Blenheim, and the Tebaldeo, in the Galleria Scarpa at La Motta, all of which have been ascribed to Raphael. The papal court was at this time divided into two strong parties, one led by Raphael, the other by Michelangelo, and the latter, feeling his own defects as a colourist, courted Sebastiano in hope that, by uniting Venetian colour with his own grand design, Raphael could be outdone. Sebastiano, under the guidance of Michelangelo, who in many cases supplied him with designs, executed pictures which to some eyes equalled those of Raphael, and after the death of the latter won him the name of the best painter in Rome. When Cardinal Giulio de' Medici commissioned Raphael to paint the Transfiguration, he also commissioned Sebastiano to paint the almost equally renowned Raising of Lazarus, National Gallery, London. The Martyrdom of St. Agatha, Palazzo Pitti, Florence, is of about the same time. Henceforward Sebastiano had many commissions, and was engaged to paint chapels, especially in S. M. del Popolo, S. M. della Pace, and S. Pietro in Montorio, in the last of which he painted the Flagellation and the Transfiguration, now damaged by time and restoration. The Visitation, Louvre, was painted in 1521 for Francis I. In 1527 Sebastiano went to Venice, and there probably painted the wonderful portrait of Andrea Doria, now in the Palazzo Doria, Rome. He returned to Rome in 1529, and two years afterwards was appointed Piombatore to the Pope, which obliged him to become an ecclesiastic. Deriving a good income from his office, he built a house, and working little was charged with idleness in his later years. Other pictures by him are : Christ shown to the Multitude, Historical Society, New York ; Holy Family, Baring Collection, London ; Christ in Limbo, and Christ on the Road to Golgotha, Madrid Museum ; Portraits of himself with Cardinal Ippolito de' Medici, and of an Italian Lady as St. Agatha, National Gallery, London ; Portrait of Cardinal Pole, Descent from the Cross, Christ bearing his Cross, Pietà, Hermitage, St. Petersburg ; Pietà, Two Male Portraits, Berlin Museum ; Christ bearing the Cross, Dresden Museum ; The Dead Christ supported by Angels, Oldenburg Gallery ; Portrait of Cardinal Pucci, Vienna Museum ; Portraits of Adrian VI., Naples Museum, and Labouchere Collection, London ; A Bearded Man, Pitti, Florence ; Portraits of Clement VII., Naples Museum, and Parma Museum.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 310 ; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., x. 121 ; Burckhardt, 647, 660, 722 ; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne ; Dohme, 2iii. ; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 512 ; Lübke, *Gesch. ital. PIOTROWSKI, MAXIMILIAN ANTON, born at Bromberg, Posen, in 1815, died at Königsberg, Nov. 29, 1875. History and genre painter, pupil of Berlin Academy under Hensel ; painted at first romantic episodes from Polish history, later on scenes of popular life in Poland, cleverly conceived and of vigorous colouring. Was professor at Königsberg Academy. Works : The Prince of Toren (1847), A Little Word (1873), Königsberg Museum ; Marie Antoinette in the Temple ; Lithuanian Grain-shippers ; Baptism of the Fox, etc.

PIPPI, GIULIO. See Giulio Romano.

PIRÆICUS (Pyreicus), painter, probably close of 4th century B.C. He painted low subjects, such as barbers' shops and cobblers' stalls, but so skilfully that his works brought higher prices than the largest works of many masters.—Pliny, xxxv. 37 [112] ; Brunn, ii. 259.

PISANO, GIUNTA. See Giunta Pisano.

PISANO, VITTORE, born at S. Vigilio, on the Lago di Garda, about 1380 (?), died in March, 1456. Venetian school (of Verona) ; sometimes called Pisanello. Vasari says he was the pupil of Andrea del Castagno in Florence, but the statement is doubtful. Wherever he was educated, he appears to have settled early at Verona. Between 1417-22 he painted the story of Otho, a fresco in the Sala del Gran Consiglio, Venice, and also decorated some rooms in the Castle of Pavia. His fame as a portrait painter was considerable, and in 1435 he painted Nicholas III, Duke of Ferrara. Having completed the series of pictures in S. Giovanni Laterano, Rome, begun by Gentile da Fabriano, he settled permanently at Verona ; he appears to have painted also at Mantua. He was noted among his contemporaries for his portraits, scenery, birds, and quadrupeds ; but he is now known principally as a medallist. Still, he must be regarded as one of the most original and remarkable painters of the 15th century, who did not come at all under Mantegna's influence. Works : Annunciation (fresco), S. Fermo Maggiore, Verona ; Portrait of Lionello d'Este, Galleria Costabili, Ferrara ; Madonna with Saints, ib. ; Madonna, Gallery, Verona ; St. George and the Dragon, S. Anastasia, ib. Frescos : S. Maria della Scala ; SS. Anthony and George, National Gallery, London ; Adoration of the Magi, Berlin Museum.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 450 ; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 8, 23 ; ed. Le Mon., iv. 152 ; Bernasconi, 59 ; Burekhardt, 588, 605 ; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 479.

PISTORIUS, EDUARD, born in Berlin, Feb. 28, 1796, died at Karlsbad, Aug. 20, 1862. Genre painter, pupil of Willich, then of Berlin Academy ; studied in 1818-19 in Dresden, and after a visit to the Netherlands, in 1827-29, in Düsseldorf ; returned to Berlin in 1830, and became member of the Academy in 1833. Works : Bowling Alley ; Old Man, Old Woman (1824), Geography Lesson, Toilet (1827), Artist's Studio (1828), Village Fiddler (1831), Sound Sleep (1839), National Gallery, Berlin ; Reading the Bible, Amsterdam Museum ; Village Fiddler (1833), Cooper at the Cask (1834), Königsberg Museum.—Grosse, 176 ; Kugler, Kl. Schr., iii. 168 ; Rosenberg, Berl. Malersch., 169 ; Wiegmann, 270.

PIXIS, THEODOR, born at Kaiserslautern, July 1, 1831. Genre painter and illustrator, pupil of Munich Academy under Philip Foltz and Kaulbach, then spent two years in Italy and later visited the mountainous districts of Germany ; painted at first historical subjects.

Works : Huss taking Farewell of his Friends (1856), Berne Museum ; Pictures from Gudrun Saga (1857-59) ; Skaters ; City Dandy on the Alp ; Woman from Black Forest ; Enjoyment of Nature ; Before and After the Ball ; Thwarted Departure and Doubtful Arrival ; Moltke in the Black Forest ; Scene from Life of Travelling Actors. In fresco : Coronation of Charles X. of Sweden, Crossing the Belt, Charles XI. in Battle of Lund (1860-62), National Museum, Munich ; Calvin's Last Conversation with Michael Servetus (1861).—Müller, 420 ; Illustr. Zeitg. (1872), i. 303 ; ii. 38.

PLACE, HENRI, born in Paris, April 5, 1812. Landscape and marine painter. Medals: 3d class, 1847; 2d class, 1848; L. of Honour, 1855. Works: Cliffs of Étretat

(1846); View of Pont d'Espagne, Fisherman's Bark (1847); Pic du Midi at Pau, Environs of Cherbourg (1848); View at Rosenlaur—Canton Berne (1849); Cliffs of Douvres (1849), formerly in Luxembourg Museum; Fishermen surprised by Storm, Melun Museum.—Bellier, ii. 284.

PLACIDUS AND FLAVIA, STS., MARTYRDOM OF, Correggio, Parma Gallery; canvas. Placidus, son of the patrician Tertullus, newly converted to Christianity, went to Messina to found a convent, accompanied by his sister

Flavia and the brothers Eutyehius and Victorinus. Soon afterwards a ship landed an Arabian horde who put them to death. Placidus and Flavia are represented singing under the strokes of the executioners, the two others having already fallen. Painted between 1522 and 1524 for the Benedictine Don Placido del Bono, and placed, together with a Pietà, in a Chapel of S. Giovanni, Parma. Carried to Paris, and returned in 1815. Copies attributed to Correggio in Madrid Museum. Engraved by

G. B. Vanni and by S. F. Ravenet.—Landon, Œuvres, viii. Pl. 26; Musée, x. Pl. 5; Meyer, Correggio, 305, 480; Künst. Lex., i. 428.

PLAGEMANN, CARL GUSTAF, born at Södertelje, Södermanland, in 1805. History painter, pupil of Stockholm Academy; studied two years in Florence after the old masters and in 1820 went to Rome, where he remained twenty-two years and finally spent two years and a half in Madrid. Works: Judas throwing the Money at the High Priest's Feet; Adoration of Shepherds; Last Supper; Holy Family, Stockholm Museum.

PLAGUE OF ASHDOD, Nicolas Poussin, Louvre; canvas, H. 4 ft. 9 in. × 6 ft. 3 in.

Plague of Ashdod, Nicolas Poussin, Louvre.

A street in the city of Ashdod, filled with the sick and dying; at one side, many people in consternation around the temple of their deity, whose broken image lies on its pedestal. Painted in Rome in 1630, for 60 crowns; sold to Duc de Richelien for 1,000 crowns, whence passed to Louis XIV. Engraved by E. Picart (1677); B. Toozani; Niquet.—Cat. Louvre; Filhol, ii. Pl. 127; Landon, Musée, ii. Pl. 37; Smith, viii. 22.

PLAGUE OF ATHENS, Nicolas Poussin, Leigh Court, England; canvas, H. 4 ft.

PLAGUE

× 5 ft. 8 in. Illustration of the description by Thucydides (ii. 47–52). A magnificent street in Athens, with many groups of plague-stricken inhabitants, some extended on the ground, others prostrated at the portals of the temples and other public buildings. A masterly treatment of a heart-rending subject. Engraved by J. Fittler. Taken to London from Cadiz; sold at Christie's in 1804 for 1,000 guineas; collection of Henry Hope (1816), 200 guineas; Leigh Court sale (1884), bought in at £420.—Waagen, Treasures, iii. 180; Smith, viii. 95.

PLAGUE OF JAFFA. See Jaffa.

PLAGUE OF SERPENTS, Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; centre of ceiling of upper room. Rubens and Michelangelo make the fiery serpents boa-constrictors, but Tintoretto's conception is truer to Scripture; his serpents are little, fluttering monsters, like lampreys with wings, perhaps suggested by the sea-horses of the lagoons. They are biting the people everywhere, and to give the appearance of great extent to the plague a cavern opens in the right of the foreground, through which are seen another sky and horizon; above, the Supreme Being is borne by angels, passing over the congregation in wrath; in background, the angel of mercy is descending towards Moses, surrounded by a globe of white light. The upper part of the picture is magnificent; the lower figures are not so interesting. Painted in 1576.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 345; Ridolfi, Marav., ii. 198.

PLASSAN, (ANTOINE) ÉMILE, born at Bordeaux, Sept. 29, 1817. Genre painter. Medals: 3d class, 1852, 1857, 1859; L of Honour, 1859; medal, Philadelphia Exposition, 1876. POLLAJUOLO, ANTONIO and PIETRO, Antonio born in Florence in 1433, died there in 1498 ; Pietro born there in 1443, died there in or before 1496. Florentine school ; sons of Jacopo d'Antonio, a goldsmith. Antonio, whose portrait is given, closed his apprenticeship with his father in 1459, opened a workshop in Florence, and became one of the most famous goldsmiths of his time, as well as an eminent painter, sculptor, and engraver.

Pietro, who studied painting under Andrea del Castagno, afterwards became his brother's associate. Their pictures show the effect of their training as goldsmiths in a certain precision and neatness of line and a metallic quality of surface. The style of the Pollajuoli, for it is difficult to assign to each that which belongs to him in the pictures assigned to one or the other, is mannered and exaggerated, though vigorous and full of life. Those displaying most sculptural elements are probably by Antonio, and those in which the pictorial element prevails are perhaps by Pietro. They are said to have been the first to dissect dead bodies for artistic purposes. Among the pictures generally assigned to Antonio are Martyrdom of St. Sebastian (1475), Angel Raphael and Tobias, The Virgin adoring the Infant Christ, and Apollo and Daphne, National Gallery, London; St. Sebastian, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; St. Sebastian, Galleria Estense, Modena; Holy Family, Palazzo Borghese, Rome; Tobias and the Angel, Turin Gallery; St. Christopher and the Infant Christ, New York Museum. To Pietro belong the Coronation of the Virgin (1483), in the Pieve of S. Gemignano, and the Annunciation, Berlin Museum. The Hercules, Three Saints, and Prudence, Uffizi, Florence, and three other panels in the Munich Gallery, are probably joint works of the two brothers.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 382; Vasari, ed. POLYCLEES, painter, of Adramyttium in Mysia. Said by Vitruvius (iii. Præf., 2) to have deserved fame, but to have failed through adverse fortune to attain it.

POLYDOR. See Glauber, Jan.

POLYGNOTUS, the first really great Greek painter, son and pupil of Aglaophon, born in Thasos about the beginning of 5th century B.C. He probably accompanied Cimon on his return from the expedition against Thasos (463 B.C.), to Athens, where he was employed in the decoration of the walls of the public buildings, and Polygnotus refusing any compensation for his labour, the Athenians bestowed citizenship upon him. He assisted Micon in the decoration of the Theseum, and painted in the portico of the Pœcile, The Greeks assembled after the Fall of Troy to judge Cassandra's Case, and in the Anicæum, The Marriage of the Dioscuri with the Daughters of Leucippus. He also decorated the walls of the temple at Thespiæ, painted Ulysses after Slaying the Suitors, in the portico of the Temple of Athena Areia at Plataea, and adorned the Lesche of the Cnidians at Delphi with a series of pictures representing the Trojan War and the adventures of Ulysses (Paus., x. 25-31). Polygnotus made so great an advance over the artists who had preceded him that Theophrastus ascribed to him the invention of painting (Pliny, vii. 57). Pliny says (xxxv. 35) that he gave expression to both faces and figures, and elegance and variety to draperies, his work being in strong contrast to the stiff attitudes and rigid draperies of the earlier painters. Lucian (De Imag., 7) gives him similar praise, and Aristotle says (Poet., 2) that Polygnotus represented men better than they are, meaning that he idealized his characters. Cicero records (Brut., 18) that he was one of those who painted with four colours only, but according to Pliny (xxxiii. 56, xxxv. 25) he and Micon introduced new pigments. We learn from the latter also (xxxv. 39, 40) that he worked both with the cestrum and with the hair pencil.—Paus., x. 25-31; Bött., 274-291; Hermann, Epikritische Betrachtungen über die Polygotischen Gemälde (Göttingen, 1849); Lenormant, Mémoire sur les peintures que Polygnote avait exécutée dans la Lesché de Delphes, Mémoire de l'Acad. royale de Belgique (Brussels, 1864), xxxiv., and works there cited; Sillig, 361.

PONTORMO, JACOPO DA, born at Pontormo, May 25 or 26, 1494, died in Florence, buried Jan. 2, 1557. Florentine school; real name Jacopo Carucci, son of Bartolommeo Carucci, a mediocre painter. Studied under Leonardo da Vinci, Albertinelli, Pier di Cosimo, and Andrea del Sarto. His early efforts are said to have been praised by Michelangelo, who prophesied that if Pontormo continued as he had begun he would carry painting to its highest perfection. But Pontormo did not realize his hopes. Though he worked sometimes, like Sebastian del Piombo, from Michelangelo's designs, he never approached Sebastian as a colourist. His portraits are superior to his compositions. Among his works are: Holy Family, Madrid Museum; do., Old Pinakothek, Munich; Visitation, SS. Annunziata, Florence; Madonna and Saints, Visitation, Louvre; Portrait of Andrea del Sarto, Berlin Museum; Supper at Emmaus, Florence Academy; Joseph presenting his Father to Pharaoh, Joseph accused by Potiphar, Venus kissed by Love, Birth of St. John Baptist, and portraits, Uffizi, Florence; Portrait of a Boy, National Gallery, London; others in the Louvre, Cassel and Oldenburg Galleries, Vienna Museum (3), Palazzo Pitti, Florence.—Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 29; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 206.

POOLE, PAUL FALCONER, born at Bristol in 1810, died in London, Sept. 22, 1879. History and genre painter; exhibited first picture, The Well—a Scene in Naples, at Royal Academy in 1830; elected an A.R.A. in 1846 and R.A. in 1861. Works: Herman and Dorothea at the Fountain (1840); Solomon Eagle preaching during the Plague in London (1843); Beleaguered Moors (1844); Arletta of Falaise (1848); The Tempest (1849); Goths in Italy (1851); Seventh Day of the Decameron (1855); Escape of Glaucus and Ione (1860); Lighting the Beacon on the Appearance of the Spanish Armada (1864); Vision of Ezekiel (1875), National Gallery.—*Cat. POPELIN-DUCARRE, CLAUDIUS MARCEL, born in Paris; contemporary. History painter, pupil of Ary Scheffer and of Picot. Medal, 1865; L. of Honour, 1869. Works: Dante reading his Poem to Giotto (1852); St. Jerome (1853); Robert Estienne, famous printer of 16th Century, surrounded by Savants aiding him (1857); Calvin preaching before Duchess of Ferrara, Guillaume Budée, founder of Collège de France, studying Greek (1859); Dante re-entering Florence after Battle of Campaldino (1861); Julius Caesar (1864); Renaissance of Literature (1865); Truth, Dante Alighieri, France (1867).—Bellier, ii. 298.

PORCELLIS (Parcelles), JAN, born in Ghent about 1597 (?), died probably at Soeterwoude, near Leyden, before or in 1632. Dutch school; marine painter, supposed pupil of Hendrik C. Vroom, more probably developed under the influence of Adam Willaerts; living in 1615 in Antwerp, where he was master of the guild in 1617, then in Haarlem (1622-28) and at The Hague (1629); was skilful in representing the sea in its more terrible phases, and in his time considered the greatest painter of storms. Works: Seaport, Madrid Museum; Vessels at Sea, Berlin Museum; do. (1629), Old Pinakothek, Munich; do., Gotha Museum, and Oldenburg Gallery; Whaling (1664), Amalienstift, Dessau.—Descamps (Marsailles, 1840), i. 252; Kramm, v. 1270; Meyer, Museen, 351; Kunst-Chronik, viii. 29; xviii. 604; Rep. f. PORDENONE, BERNARDINO LICINIO DA, of Pordenone, born about beginning of 16th century, died after 1541. Venetian school; kinsman of G. A. Pordenone; educated in Friuli, and later lived in Venice. Earliest pictures dated 1524; latest, 1541. His strength lay in portraits, and he was fond of family groups, though he painted some religious pieces. Works: Madonna and Saints (1535), Frari, Venice; do., Sarego; Salome, Palazzo Sciarra, Rome; Holy Family and Saints, Palazzo Borghese, ib.; Holy Family, Palazzo Doria, ib.; do., Palazzo Balbi, Genoa; Madonna and Saints, Rovigo Gallery; Madonna and Saints, Four Saints, Venice Academy; Female Portrait, Dresden Gallery; do., Buda-Pesth Gallery; Lady and Spinnet, Portrait of Himself and Family, Hampton Court; Adoration of Magi, Portraits, Hermitage, St. Petersburg.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 293; Burckhardt, 732.

PORDENONE, GIOVANNI ANTONIO

LICINIO DA, born at Pordenone in 1483, died at Ferrara in 1539. Venetian school. He bore many names. About 1517 he assumed the title of De Corticellis or Cuccicelli, from his father's native village near Brescia; afterwards called Sacchiensis or De Sacchis, and lastly Regillo or Licinio. His descendants took the name of Regillo. A pupil of Pellegrino, he learned at Venice to imitate Palma and Giorgione, and in his subsequent career acquired something from Correggio, Titian, Raphael, and Michelangelo. At his best he remained second to Titian, and when careless he sank to a still lower level. Pordenone executed many frescos in Friulian churches, most of which have greatly suffered from time and by restoration. In 1528 he went to Venice and decorated the tribune of S. Rocco with frescos, no longer extant. Two pictures on panels by him are in this church: St. Martin and St. Christopher. The next year Pordenone painted several compositions in chapels of the Madonna di Campagna, Piacenza, now much injured, and subsequently executed frescos in the palace of Andrea Doria, Genoa, and in S. Pietro, Treviso. He also finished a Trinity for Santissima Trinità, San Daniele, and began for the Duomo of Pordenone an altarpiece, Glory of St. Mark, which, though unfinished, shows great talent. In 1535 King John of Hungary sent him a patent of knighthood; and Pordenone, taking the name of Regillo, settled at Venice, where his services were eagerly sought, as Titian was out of favour with the Venetian rulers. He covered the walls of many palaces with frescos, and executed several public works, all of which have perished. The Glory of St. Lorenzo Giustiniani, Venice Academy, is one of the finest pictures of Pordenone, and the altarpiece in S. Giovanni Elemosinario, Venice, is also a noble though much damaged work. Among the few easel pictures ascribed to him are: Madonna of Ottobon family, Venice Academy; Salome, Palazzo Doria, Rome; St. George and the Dragon, Quirinal, Rome; Madonna, Church of Torre in Friuli; Madonna with Saints, Church of Moriago, near Treviso; Calling of St. Matthew, Woman in Mourning Dress, Dresden Museum; Taking of Christ, Gotha Museum; Assumption, Portrait of a Lady, Madrid Museum; Old Man tempting Young Girl, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Assumption, Portrait of a Lady, Madrid Museum; An Apostle, National Gallery, London.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 238; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., vii. 87; ix. 26; xi. 252; ed. Mil., v. 103; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 591.

PORION, CHARLES, born at Amiens; contemporary. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of Drölling and of Ingres. Medal, 3d class, 1844; L. of Honour, 1884. PORTA, BARTOLOMMEO DELLA. See Bartolommeo, Fra.

PORTA, GIUSEPPE, born at Castelnuovo di Garfagnana about 1520, died in Venice about 1575. Venetian school; pupil in Rome of Francesco Salviati, from whom he acquired name of younger Salviati. Followed his master to Florence, Bologna, and finally Venice, where he remained after Salviati's return to Rome. Falling under the influence of Titian he abandoned the Roman style, became the intimate friend of that great painter, and was selected by him to assist in decorating the Library of St. Mark, in company with Paolo Veronese, both being paid at a higher rate than the other assistants. After the death of Salviati (1563), Porta was invited by Pius IV. to Rome to aid in decorating the Vatican, where he painted, in the Sala Regia, Barbarossa doing Homage to Alexander III., and won general admiration. After his return to Venice he executed works in the Palazzo Ducale, which were destroyed in the fire of 1577. Giuseppe was a good designer, skilful in composition, and a vigorous and brilliant colourist. He excelled in the treatment of costumes, ornaments, and architectural accessories. The Dead Christ held by Angels, Dresden Museum.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xii. 81; ed. Mil., vii. 45.

POTTER, PAULUS, born at Enkhuysen, baptized Nov. 20, 1625, died in Amsterdam, buried Jan. 17, 1654.

Dutch school; animal and landscape painter, son and pupil of Pieter Potter. Family settled at Amsterdam in 1631, and in the following year Paul went to study painting at Haarlem under Jacob de Weth the elder. His earliest known picture, in the Gallery at Gotha (1641 ?), and his etching of Le Vacher (1643), show the precocity of his talent, which attracted notice at Delft, where he was made a member of the Guild of St. Luke, Aug. 6, 1646, and at The Hague, where he resided from 1649 to May, 1652.

POTTER

He then removed to Amsterdam, where he lived during the rest of his life. He painted from 130 to 140 pictures, seven-eighths of them between 1647 and 1654. His most renowned work is The Young Bull, signed, and dated 1647, Hague Museum. T. van Westrheene's biography of Paul Potter contains a complete catalogue of his works, chiefly rural subjects. Among them are: Landscape with Cattle (1651), Old Gray Hunter, National Gallery, London; others in Buckingham Palace (5), Bridgewater, Grosvenor, and Somerset Galleries; Baring, Hertford, Holford, Hope, and Miles Collections, ib.; Horses at a Trough before Cottage (1647), Vast Meadow with Oxen, etc. (1652), Louvre, Paris; Shepherd's Hut (1645), Bear-Hunt, Horses in Pasture (1649), Orpheus charming the Animals (1650), Herdsmen with their Herds, Cows in Pasture (1651), Landscape with Cattle (1653), Amsterdam Museum; Young Bull (1647), Cows by River, and Bathers (1648), Meadow with Cattle and Swine (1652), Hague Museum; Start for the Chase in the "Bosch" near The Hague (1652), Berlin Museum; Great Cattle-piece, two others, Cassel Gallery; Cows on Hill-Top (1648), Gallery, Copenhagen; Bowling Green by a Farm (1652), Moltke Collection, ib.; Park with Hunting Party, Herdsmen driving Cattle up a Hill, Cattle Horse and Sheep (1652), Dresden Museum; Cattle-pieces (3, two dated 1645, 1647), Gotha Museum; Man taking Horses to Pond (1650), Peasants at Foot of a Hill, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Farm Scene (1646), Herd driven by Man and Woman, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Cattle-pieces (2, 1649, 1651), Halt of Huntsmen (1650), Hunter's Life, Landscape with Figures (1650), three others, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Milkmaid (1648), In Pasture (2, 1649), Before the Tavern (1650), Truly Rural (1651), Schwerin Gallery; Cattle-piece (1649), Harrach Gallery, Vienna; Herd driven to Pasture, Czernin Gallery, ib.; Sunset Landscape with Cows, Naples Museum. —Ch. POUSSIN, GASPARD. See Dughet.

POUSSIN, NICOLAS, born at Andelys, Normandy, in June, 1593, died in Rome, Nov. 19, 1665. French school; history and landscape painter, pupil of Quentin Varin in Andelys, and of Noël Jouvenet, Ferdinand Elle, and Lallemond in Paris. Despite needy circumstances and two unsuccessful attempts, he made his way in 1624 to Rome, where he studied nature and the antique with the sculptor Dughet; married the daughter of Jacques Dughet, and adopted his son Gaspard, who took his name and afterwards rivalled him in fame as a painter; painted for Cardinal Barberini, and remained until 1640, when Louis XIII. sent M. de Chanteloup to bring him back to France. Although the king made him his first painter and showered honours upon him, Poussin found his position at Paris so intolerable on account of the jealous intrigues of Vouet, Fouquières, and Mercier, that he returned to Rome on a leave of absence after two years, and considering himself freed from keeping his promise to return, by the death of Cardinal Richelieu in 1642, and of the king in the following year, remained there the rest of his life. His noble style, his skill in composition, his elegance in the grouping and disposition of his figures, and his truly grand and poetic feeling in landscape, entitle him to the first place among painters of the French school. Works: Rebekah and Eliezer, Moses saved from the Waters (seven figures), same subject (ten figures), Moses and Pharaoh's Crown, Moses and Aaron's Rod, Manna in the Desert, Plague of Ashdod, Judgment of Solomon, Adoration of Magi, Holy Family, another Holy Family, Blind Men of Jericho, Woman taken in Adultery, Last Supper, Assumption, Apparition of Virgin to St. James, Death of Sapphira, St. John Baptizing, St. Paul in Ecstasy, St. Francis Xavier restoring to Life a Girl, Rape of the Sabines, Camillus and the Schoolmaster, Rescue of Pyrrhus, Mars and Venus, Mars and Rhea Sylvia, Bacchanal (2), Echo and Narcissus, Triumph of Flora, The Concert, Shepherds of Arcadia, Time protecting Truth from Envy and Discord, Portrait of Poussin, Paradise, Ruth and Boaz, Return of the Spies, Deluge, Orpheus and Eurydice, Diogenes throwing away his Tub, Apollo and Daphne, Louvre; Repose of Holy Family, Avignon Museum; Rebekah and Eliezer, Baptism of Christ, Death

PRESENTATION IN TEMPLE, Fra Bartolommeo, Vienna Museum; wood, H. 4 ft. 11 in. × 5 ft.; dated 1516. Simeon, standing before the altar, holds the Child presented by the Virgin; on left, SS. Joseph, with two pigeons, Elizabeth, and Anna. Painted for Convent of S. Marco, Florence; bought by Grand Duke Leopold I. in 1781; obtained by exchange from him by the Emperor Joseph II. Engraved by A. Campanello; Massard; C. Rahl; Langer.—Gal. de Vienne, i. Pl. 9; C. & C., Italy, iii. 470; Marchese, ii. 119; Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 196.

By Carpaccio, Venice Academy; wood, H. 13 ft. 9 in. × 7 ft. 4 in.; signed, dated 1510. The Virgin, attended by two women, presents Jesus to Simeon the High Priest, who is represented as a pontiff between attendant cardinals, one of whom bears his mantle; below, three boy angels playing musical instruments. Painted for S. Giobbe, Venice. Carpaccio's masterpiece. Of the three angels, the middle one playing on a lute is world-famed and widely known by photographs.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 207.

Presentation in Temple, Fra Bartolommeo, Vienna Museum.

By Domenico Ghirlandajo, S. M. Novella, Florence; fresco in the choir.

By Guido Reni, Vienna Museum; canvas, H. 10 ft. × 6 ft. 7 in. The Virgin, kneeling in prayer, attended by a train of women and by boys bearing candles; behind the altar, Simeon, with Jesus in his arms; at his left, Joachim and Anna; at his right, Joseph. In Guido's second manner. In foreground a little boy plays with two doves, and a girl kneeling offers two other doves for sacrifice. Sixteen figures. Replica, smaller, in the Louvre. Engraved by J. Kovatsch and by Couet.—Gal. de Vienne, ii. Pl. 65; Réveil, xii. 812.

By Andrea Mantegna, Berlin Museum; canvas, tempera, H. 2 ft. 2 in. × 2 ft. 8 in. The Virgin presents Jesus to Simeon, in presence of Joseph, Anna, and another. Painted about 1464; formerly in Bembo

Collection, and later in that of the Gradenigo, Padua. A late work of the master (1490–1500). It is really a Circumcision, probably the picture spoken of by l'Anonimo as in the Bembo Collection.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 419; C. & C., N. Italy, i. 386; Lermolieff, 433; l'Anonimo, 17.

Presentation in Temple, Guido Reni, Vienna Museum.

By Rembrandt, Hague Museum; wood, arched, H. 2 ft. 3 in. × 1 ft. 6 in.; dated 1631. A lofty temple with several groups of worshippers; at left, a broad flight of steps, with people ascending and descending; in foreground, Simeon kneeling, with Jesus in his arms, the Virgin and Joseph kneeling before him, and the High Priest and rabbis standing. Collection of Prince of Orange Nassau in 1770; carried to Paris; returned in 1815. Engraved by J. de Frey; Devilliers; Bierweiler (1835).—Smith, vii. 26; Musée français; Filhol, v. Pl. 325; Vosmaer, 16, 421; Mollett, Rembrandt, 21.

By Tintoretto, S. M. del Carmine, Venice.

A very beautiful picture, reminiscent of the influence both of Schiavone and of Titian; one of the few of the early period of Tintoretto still unharmed.—Osler, 23.

By Titian, Venice Academy; canvas, H. 12 ft. 4 in. × 25 ft. 6 in., but part at top and bottom is new. The Virgin ascending the steps of the temple, the High Priest standing at the top with a priest in a cardinal's robe beside him; below are Anna, Joachim, and others, looking up. Painted in 1539 for brotherhood of S. M. della Carità. The finest and most complete creation of Venetian art since the Peter Martyr and the Madonna di Casa Pesaro (C. & C.). Much injured by cleaning and restorations.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 449; C. & C., Titian, ii. 31; Ridolfi, Maraviglie, i. 198.

By Paolo Veronese (?), Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 5 ft. 11 in. × 13 ft. 2 in. Acquired in 1747 from Casa Bonfadini, Venice. Ascribed to Carletto Caliarì by Guarienti, and to Paolo Farinato by Rumohr.

By Paolo Veronese, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; canvas, H. 3 ft. 9 in. × 4 ft. 6 in. The Virgin kneeling, with Jesus in her arms, before the High Priest, who is attended by two Levites; behind the Virgin is Joseph, holding a lighted candle; at the right a kneeling female figure with a scroll. Engraved by Dala.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, iv. Pl. 19.

PRIEUR, ROMAIN ÉTIENNE GABRIEL, born at La Ferté-Gaucher (Seine-et-Marne), Aug. 21, 1806, died in 1880. Landscape painter, pupil of Victor Bertin and of the École des Beaux Arts; won grand prix de Rome in 1833. Medals: 3d class, 1842; 2d class, 1845. Works: Hay-making, View at Villette (1833); Forest of Fontainebleau (1836); Jacob discovering the Wells, View near Rome (1842); Slaves' Tower, Brook at Bougival, Mill of St. Ouen (1845); Approaching Storm, Woods of Satory (1846); etc.—Bellier, ii. 316; Larousse.

PRIMATICCIO, FRANCESCO, born in Bologna in 1504, died in Paris in 1570. Bolognese school; pupil of Innocenzo da Imola and of Bagna cavallo; went in 1525 to Mantua and assisted Giulio Romano in the Palazzo del Tè and elsewhere. In 1531 he went, on the invitation of Francis I., to France, where he worked under Rosso in the decoration of the Château at Fontainebleau. He is said to have executed the first stucco work and the first frescos of any account in France. In 1540 he was sent by the King to Italy to collect antiques and works of art, but he was recalled the following year to finish the works left by Rosso at his death. His efforts were so satisfactory that Francis made him (1544) abbot of St. Martin de Troyes, which gave him a revenue of 8,000 crowns. After the King's death he continued in the royal service under Henry II., Francis II., and Charles IX., and executed many works with the aid of his assistant, Niccolò dell' Abbate. Only a few of his frescos at Fontainebleau are left, the most important series, illustrating the Odyssey, having been destroyed in 1738, when the Gallery of Ulysses was pulled down. Primaticcio also decorated the Châteaux of Chantilly and of Beauregard, the pavilion of Meudon, and other buildings with mural paintings. Among his pictures in oil, which are rare and none certain, are: Three Graces, Czernin Gallery, Vienna; Continence of Scipio, Louvre; Lady of Court of Francis II. at her Toilette, Venus and Cupid (portrait of Diana of Poitiers), Musée de Cluny;

PRIMO, LUIS, called Gentile, born in Brussels in 1606, died in Rome in 1670. Flemish school; history and portrait painter, lived for thirty years in Rome, where he became a member of the Accademia di S. Luca, and, by the elegance of his style and personal demeanour, acquired the above surname. Works: Christ Crucified, St. Michael's, Ghent; Phœbus in his Chariot; St. Raimund; St. Charles Borromeo and the Plague-Stricken, Ghent Museum; Portrait of Pope Alexander VII.—Déschamps (Marseilles, 1840), i. 298; Inimmerzeel, i. 275.

PRINCES IN THE TOWER, Paul Dela-roche, Louvre, Paris; canvas, H. 5 ft. 11 in. × 7 ft.; signed, dated 1830. Children of Edward IV.—Edward V. and Richard, Duke of York, his younger brother—in the Tower of London. Supposed to have been murdered in the Tower of London in 1483 by order of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, afterwards Richard III. Salon, 1831. Formerly in Luxembourg.—Engraved by Prudhomme.

By Sir John E. Millais, Bart., Holloway Institute, Egham, near London; canvas, H. 3 ft. 1 in. × 3 ft. 3 in. Two fair-haired boys, full-length, dressed in black, stand on a winding staircase, looking anxiously as if in dread of some one descending behind them, indicated by the shadow of a man on the wall. The young king wears the Garter. Royal Academy, 1878; painted from a sketch made in the Tower at the foot of the staircase where, in the reign of Charles II., the bones of two youths were discovered. Purchased by Mr. Holloway at the E. T. Coleman sale (1881), for £3,990. Engraved by S. Cousins; Lumb Stocks.—Art Journal (1884), 7.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH, Sir John E. Millais, Bart., Holloway Institute, Egham, near London; canvas, H. 4 ft. 2 in. × 3 ft. 7½ in. The Princess Elizabeth, daughter of Charles I., imprisoned in St. James's, is seated at a cabinet in the act of writing a letter to the Parliamentary Commissioners begging them to allow her to retain the servants she was accustomed to. The cabinet, which was formerly at Theobalds, the favourite house of James I., now belongs to the painter. Painted in 1879; Fine Art Society, 1881. Engraved by T. L. Atkinson.

PRINCETEAU, RENÉ, born at Libourne (Gironde); contemporary. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of the École des Beaux Arts; is also a sculptor. Medal, 3d class, 1883. PRISCUS, ATTIUS, Roman painter, about A.D. 70. Decorated, together with Cornelius Pinus, Temple of Honos and Virtus, Rome. Pliny says (xxxv. 37 [120]) he approached the ancient masters more nearly than his colleague.

PRISONERS FROM THE FRONT, Winslow Homer, Robert Lenox Kennedy, New York; canvas, H. 2 ft. x 3 ft. 2 in. Camp scene in the Civil War, with a group of ragged, travel-stained Confederate prisoners, just brought in from the front. Painted in 1865; Paris Exposition, 1867; purchased by John Taylor Johnston; at his sale (1877), $1,800.

PROBST, KARL, born in Vienna in 1854. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of Angeli; imitates Meissonier in treatment of details in his figures. Works: Forbidden Book; Shopkeeper and Lansquenet; Garden Scene; Marine Painter (1876); Lady on Balcony feeding Pigeons; Lady before Book-Case; Girl at Church; Kunstpause (1883); After trying Days, The Messenger (Jubilee Exhibition, Berlin, 1886); Reader, T. A. Havemeyer, New York.—Müller, 426.

PROCACCINI, CAMILLO, born in Bologna in 1546, died in Milan in 1626. Bolognese school; son and pupil of Ercole Procaccini, the elder; studied the works of Raphael and of Michelangelo in Rome, but formed his style chiefly on that of Correggio and of Parmigianino. He had great facility of execution, and abused it by painting too many works, some of which show evidences of carelessness; but generally his pictures are pleasing and well coloured. Many of his works are in the churches of Milan, especially in S. Alessandro, S. Marco, S. M. del Carmine, S. M. presso S. Celso, and S. M. della Passione. Several also in S. Giorgio, Bologna. In galleries are: Nativity, Bologna; St. Roch healing the Sick, Dresden; Baptism of Constantine, Gotha; Annunciation, Leipsic; Madonna, Munich;

PROCACCINI

Repose in Egypt, Oldenburg; The Dead Christ, Stuttgart; Calling of St. Peter, Liechtenstein Gallery, Vienna; Holy Family, Augsburg; do., Madrid; do. and Angels, Hermitage; Saint preaching in a Temple, S. Marco, Milan; Adoration of the Shepherds, Brera, Milan.—Ch. Blanc, École bolonaise; Burckhardt, 760, 784; Lavice, 125, 150.

PROCACCINI, CARLO ANTONIO, born in Bologna about 1555, died in 1605 (?). Bolognese school; youngest son and pupil of Ercole Procaccini, the elder. Painted landscapes, fruit, and flowers; was the weakest of the family, but was a favourite with the court and had many orders from Spain.—Lanzi, ii. 515; Ch. Blanc, École bolonaise; Siret, 726.

PROCACCINI, ERCOLE, called the elder, born in Bologna in 1520, died after 1591. Bolognese school, pupil of the Carracci; removed to Milan, where he established a famous school of painting, in which his sons and many other noted painters were educated. Lomazzo calls him a happy imitator of the style of Correggio, but Lanzi better characterizes his art as minute in design and feeble in colouring, though more pleasing and accurate than that of most artists of his time. His principal works are in Bologna; Annunciation, S. Benedetto; Conversion of St. Paul, Christ in the Garden, S. Giacomo Maggiore; St. Michael overthrowing the Rebel Angels, S. Bernardo; Pietà, Annunciation, St. Augustine and Angel, Pinacoteca.—Lanzi, ii. 511; Ch. Blanc, École bolonaise; Burckhardt, 238, 760, 784; Seignier, 158; Siret, 726; Gualandi, 91, 95.

PROCACCINI, ERCOLE, called the younger, born in Milan in 1596, died there in 1676. Bolognese school; son of Carlo Antonio Procaccini and pupil of his uncle Giulio Cesare. Painted historical and still-life subjects, but excelled in the latter. After the death of Giulio Cesare, he became director of the Academy of the Procaccini. One of his best works is the Assumption in S. M. Maggiore, Bergamo.—Ch. Blanc, École bolonaise; Siret, 727.

PROCACCINI, GIULIO CESARE, born in Bologna in 1548, died in Milan in 1626.

Bolognese school; son and pupil of Ercole Procaccini the elder, and brother of Camillo. Said to have studied in the school of the Carracci at Bologna, but more probably took Correggio for his model; and was so good an imitator of that painter's style that some of his pictures have been ascribed to him. Many of his works are in the churches of Milan, especially in the Duomo, S. Fedele, S. Prassede, S. Antonio Abbate, S. Celso, S. Tomaso, S. Angelo, S. Giuseppe. He painted also in Genoa, where his Last Supper, called his masterpiece by Charles Blanc, is in the Annunziata. Other works: His own portrait, Uffizi, Florence; Apotheosis of S. Carlo, Palazzo Adorno, Genoa; Adoration of the Magi, Madonna, Palazzo Balbi, ib.; Holy Family, Palazzo Brignole Sale, ib.; Last Supper, St. Sebastian, Palazzo Spinola, ib.; Martyrdom of St. Agatha, Ambrosian Library, Milan; Adoration of Shepherds, Brera, ib.; Marriage of the Virgin, Parma Gallery; Virgin and Saints, Turin Gallery; Samson defeating the Philistines, Madonna, Madrid Museum; Dead Christ with Magdalen and Angels, National Gallery, Edinburgh; St. Sebastian saved by Angels, Brussels Museum; Joseph's Dream, Berlin Museum; Holy Family, Man with a Woman in his Arms leaping into a Boat, Dresden Museum; Holy Family and Angels, Madonna and St. John, Old Pinakothek, Munich; do., and Angels, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Liberation of Peter, Stuttgart Museum;

Holy Family, Pietà, Vienna Museum.—Lanzi, ii. 514; Ch. Blanc, École bolonaise; Lavice, 46, 84.

PROCLAMATION AT VERSAILLES, Anton von Werner, Emperor of Germany; canvas, H. 15 ft. × 27 ft. The Proclamation of the German Emperor, January 18, 1871, in the Galerie des Glaces of the Château at Versailles. On a carpeted platform stands King William, who has just been proclaimed German Emperor, with the Crown Prince on his right and his son-in-law, the Grand Duke of Baden, on his left; grouped sides (narrow panels in grisaille), left—the swineherd, right—the return home, the father receiving him in the robes of a doge. This is the study of the larger picture (Salon, 1867), which was bought by Mr. Stewart for $30,000, exhibited throughout the United States, and finally burned in the West. Photogravure in Art Treasures of America.—Art Treasures of America, i. 44.

By David Teniers, younger, Louvre, Paris; copper, H. 2 ft. 3 in. × 2 ft. 11 in.; signed, dated 1644. The prodigal son, seated at

PROTOGENES, one of the most famous of Greek painters, born in Caunus, Caria; resided chiefly in Rhodes, but painted much at Athens; best period, 332–300 B.C. Until his fiftieth year he supported himself by painting ships, then decorated with fanciful devices; but his reputation was established by Apelles, who visited Rhodes and made its people recognize his merits (Pliny, xxxv. 36). The Rhodians became so proud of his works that when Demetrius Poliorcetes was besieging their city they sent a herald to beg him to spare the picture of Ialysus or Jalysus, which Protogenes was then painting in the suburbs (Plut. Demet., 22). Pliny tells a similar story (xxxv. 36 [105]), but makes the Ialysus a finished picture, and represents Protogenes as at work on his Satyr in Repose, known as the Anapauomenos (see also Suidas, v., and Aulus Gellius, xv. 3). The Ialysus, on which the artist spent seven years, was seen at Rhodes by

PROUT

Cicero (Orat. 2) and by Strabo (xiv. p. 652), but when Pliny wrote it was in the Temple of Peace at Rome, where it was destroyed by fire (A.D. 191). At Athens, Protogenes painted on the walls of the Propylæa the picture of Paralus and Ammonias, called by some the Nausicaa (Pliny, l. c.), and in the Senate House of the Five Hundred another picture of the Thesmothetæ (Paus., i. 3, 4). Other works of his, noted by Pliny, were a Cydippe; a Tlepolemus; an Athlete; portraits of Philiscus, the tragic poet, of King Antigonus, and of the mother of Aristotle; and a picture of Alexander and Pan. His pictures were comparatively few, on account of the labour and minute care bestowed upon them.—Brunn, ii. 233.

PROUT, SAMUEL, born at Plymouth, England, Sept. 17, 1783, died at Camberwell, Feb. 10, 1852. Landscape painter, water-colours; went to London about 1805, and painted rustic scenery and sea-pieces.

About 1818 he began a series of artistic tours on the Continent, from which resulted many views on the Rhine, in the Alps, etc., especially architectural drawings, in which he preserved the picturesque beauties of many old cities. He was one of the oldest members of the Society of Painters in Water-Colours.—Ottley; Art Journal (1849), 76; (1852), 188, 291; (1857), 337; Ruskin, Notes on S. Prout and Wm. Hunt (London, 1879).

PRUDENCE, FORTITUDE, AND TEMPERANCE, also called The Three Virtues. Raphael, Camera della Segnatura, Vatican, fresco, in arch above window. The three handmaids of Justice: in centre, Prudence, Janus-faced, to whom one genius presents a mirror while another holds a torch; on left, Fortitude, an armed woman sitting, with a branch of oak in her hand and a lion by her side; on right, Temperance, holding a bri-

Cluny (Saône-et-Loire), April 4, 1758, died in Paris, Feb. 16, 1823. History and portrait painter. Son of a mason, who owed his education to the monks of the monastery at Cluny, where the pictures developed in him a love of art at a very early age. Seeing this, the Bishop of Macon placed him under the care of Desvoges, director of the school of painting at Dijon, with whom he remained until 1780, when he entered the École des Beaux Arts in Paris. Two years later he won the grand prix de Rome, and in that city passed seven years, became intimate with Canova and contracted a feeling for the antique which influenced his style. After his return to Paris in 1789 he was long obliged to support himself by designing vignettes, address cards, etc., nor was it until 1794 that he became able to devote himself to work of a higher character. In 1794–98 he stood at the height of his reputation and produced his best pictures. About this time he obtained a separation from his wife, who had long rendered his life miserable, and formed a liaison with Constance Mayer, whose sympathetic companionship brightened the remainder of his days. While in such ambitious attempts as his Justice and Vengeance pursuing Crime, at the Louvre (1804–08), Prud'hon is mannered and melodramatic, he is altogether charming in his representations of children. The classic spirit shown in his Demeter in the House of Næara, though genuine, is not free from exaggeration. Despite a prevailing monotony of type in his faces, and the use of imperfect mediums which have caused many of his pictures to darken, greatly to their detriment, Prud'hon deservedly holds a high place among the artists of his school. Works: Union of Love and Friendship (1793); Wisdom and Truth descending upon Earth (1800); Study guiding the Efforts of Genius (1800, ceiling in Rothschild Palace, Rue Lafitte, Paris); Diana imploring Jupiter (1803); Justice and Vengeance (1808); Venus and Adonis, Rape of Psyche, Zephyr hovering over the Water (1812); Interview between Napoleon I. and Francis II. after Austerlitz, Sketch of the ceiling in the Diana Hall of the Louvre, Study, Assumption, Christ on the Cross (1822), several portraits of Mme. Jarre and others, Louvre; Study guiding Genius, Angers Museum; Two Male Portraits, Dijon Museum; Young Girl's Head, Lille Museum; Allegorical Figures: Wealth, Art, Pleasure, Philosophy, Montpellier Museum; France Triumphant after Restoration of Louis XVIII. (sketch to a ceiling at Dijon), Historical Society, New York; Josephine at Malmaison; Portrait of the King of Rome; Andromache Weeping over the Fate of Astyanax (1817); Portraits of Duchess of Montebello, Mme. tecting Psyche ; 4, Venus going in her car to ask aid of Jupiter ; 5, Venus imploring Jupiter to send Mercury in search of Psyche ; 6, Mercury in pursuit of Psyche ; 7, Psyche, by order of Venus, bringing a vase from the infernal regions ; 8, Psyche presenting the vase to the astonished Venus ; 9, Jupiter giving his consent to the marriage of Cupid and Psyche ; 10, Mercury conveying Psyche to Olympus to be married. Ceiling : 1, Council of the Gods, before which Cupid and Psyche are pleading their cause ; Mercury offers Psyche ambrosia which is to give her immortality. Painted by G. Romano. 2, Banquet of the Gods in celebration of the marriage of Psyche and Cupid, who occupy the post of honour at the table. The Graces pour perfumes over the bride, Bacchus and genii fill the flagons, the Hours scatter flowers, and Apollo sings and plays the lyre, while Venus, crowned with roses, prepares to dance. Painted by Il Fattore. Lunettes : 1, Cupid with his arrows ; 2, Cupid with Jupiter's thunderbolt ; 3, Cupid with Neptune's trident ; 4, Cupid with Pluto's staff ; 5, Cupid with shield and sword of Mars ; 6, Cupid with bow and quiver of Apollo ; 7, Cupid with caduceus and cap of Mercury ; 8, Cupid with thyrsus of Bacchus ; 9, Cupid with Pan's flute ; 10, Cupid with helmet and shield of Minerva ; 11, Cupid with helmet and shield of Mars ; 12, Cupid with club of Hercules ; 13, Cupid with hammer and trident of Vulcan ; 14, Cupid subduing a lion and a sea-horse. Ordered by Agostino Chigi in 1512, but execution delayed and not completed until about 1519 ; cartoons finally drawn by Raphael and frescos painted by Giulio Romano, Il Fattore, and Giovanni da Udine, by whom are the festoons, arabesques, and other ornamental parts. Only one figure, the nearest of the Graces in the second pendentive, is attributed to Raphael. Restored and much repainted by Carlo Maratti. Engraved by N. D. Gallus, F. P. Burgundus, Joseph Insler ; the whole pendentives engraved by Marc Antonio, Marco da Ravenna, Cherubini, Alberti. The designs of a series of thirty-two engravings, by pupils of Marc Antonio, representing the history of Psyche, but differing from these frescos, are attributed to Raphael ; but Vasari ascribes them to Michael Coxcie, a Flemish painter who worked in Raphael's school.—Vasari, ed. Probably painted in 1639.—Palomino, iii. 331; Stirling, ii. 621; Waagen, Treasures, iii. 141; Curtis, 74.

PULIGO, DOMENICO, born at Florence in 1492, died in 1527. Florentine school; history and portrait painter, pupil of Ridolfo Ghirlandajo, but became a follower of Andrea del Sarto, with whom he formed an intimate friendship, often assisting him in his works, and painting from his designs pictures which were mistaken for the productions of that great master. Works: Holy Family (3), Madonna with Angel, Santa Conversazione, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Holy Family, Madrid Museum; Madonna with St. John and Angels, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Young Nobleman, Fondazione Poldi-Pezzoli, Milan.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 461.

PULZONE, SCIPIONE, called Il Gaetano, born at Gaeta in 1550, died in Rome about 1588. Roman school; history and portrait painter, pupil of Jacopino del Conte, but seems to have formed himself on the styles of Raphael and Andrea del Sarto; was particularly distinguished as a painter of portraits, and had many distinguished sitters in Rome, Naples, and Florence. His style is extremely minute, his drawing correct, and colouring harmonious. Works: Assumption, with Apostles, S. Silvestro a Monte Cavallo, Rome; Pietà, Il Gesù, ib.; Crucifixion, S. Maria della Vallicella, ib.; Holy Family, Palazzo Borghese, ib.; Christ in the Garden, Uffizi, Florence; Portraits of Eleonora and Maria de' Medici, and three other Princesses (one dated 1595), Palazzo Pitti, ib.; Annunciation, Male Portrait, Naples Museum; Male Portrait, Madrid Museum; Female do. PURGATORY, SOULS IN, Salvator Rosa, Brera, Milan; canvas, H. 9 ft. 4 in. × 6 ft. 2 in. The Virgin and Child, seated upon clouds, borne up by angels, is delivering souls from Purgatory. Formerly in S. Giovanni alle Case Rotte, Milan; carried to Paris in 1799; returned in 1815.—Landon, Musée, xiv. Pl. 7.

PURIFICATION. See Presentation in Temple.

PURITANS GOING TO CHURCH, George H. Boughton, R. L. Stuart Collection, New York. Motive from Bartlett's "Pilgrim Fathers." Pilgrims going on foot in winter to a church in the wilderness; the preacher walks a little behind the vanguard, a soldier in steel helmet guards the women and children, and other men, gun in hand, keep a sharp lookout for the savages. Photogravure in Art Treasures of America, ii. 117.

PÜTTNER, JOSEF, born at Plan, Bohemia, July 26, 1821, died at Hallstadt, Upper Austria, in 1881 or 1882. Marine painter, self-taught, studying nature in Hungary, and in 1846 in Italy; spent one year in Rome and returned to Vienna, where he obtained many orders; has visited South America, the islands of the Pacific, and travelled through nearly the whole continent of North America. Court painter in 1865. Works: Storm and Shipwreck at Cape Horn (1854), Vienna Museum; In the Lagoons of Venice (1857); Naval Battle off Helgoland (1864); do. off Lissa (1866); Moonlight on Coast; Ship in Breakers; Lake of Hallstadt; Shipwrecked People; Stormy Evening on Trann Lake; Coast of Normandy (1873); Coast of Sorrento. — Wurzbach, xxiv. 58.

PUVIS DE CHAVANNES, PIERRE,

born in Lyons, Dec. 14, 1824. History and genre painter, pupil of Henri Schefter and of Couturo. Leaving the beaten track, he sought to revive the monumental painting of the Renaissance. His works, though wanting in organic cohesion, precise drawing, energetic modelling, and colour, are redeemed by a certain grandeur, clearness of thought, and novelty of invention. Like all would-be reformers, this painter has been heartily abused by the critics and excessively praised by his admirers. Medals: 2d class, 1861; medal, 1864; 3d class, 1867; of honour, 1882; L. of Honour, 1867; Officer, 1877. Works: Return from Chase (1859), Marseilles Museum; Work, Rest (1863); Autumn (1864); Peace, War (1861); Ave Picardia Nutrix (1865), Amiens Museum; Vigilance, Fancy (1866); Sleep (1867); Masilia the Greek Colony, Marseilles the Gate of the East (1869), Marseilles Museum; Beheading of John Baptist, Magdalen in Des-

PUYROCHE, ELISE, née Wagner, born in Dresden, March 31, 1828. Flower painter, sister of Adelheid Salles, pupil at Lyons, where she resides, of Simon St. Jean, whose harmony of colour she acquired, surpassing him in modelling and tasteful arrangement. In the Dresden Museum is by her: The Torn Wreath (1850).—Gaz. des B. Arts (1860).

PYNACKER, ADAM, born at Pynacker, near Delft, in 1624, died in Amsterdam, buried March 28, 1673. Dutch school; landscape painter, went to Italy very young and remained there three years. He approaches Jan

Both, and while inferior to him in the taste and grandeur of his conception of Italian nature, surpasses him in variety. Works: Landscapes (4), Historical Society, New York; Rocky Coast on Mediterranean, Mr. Munro, London; Lofty Bridge Smilit, Mr. Baring, ib.; Recesses of a Forest, National Gallery, Edinburgh; Sea Coast with Tower and Vessels, Muleteer before Tavern, Landscape with Cattle and Herdsmen, Sunset in the Mountains, Louvre ; Deer-Hunt, Brussels Museum ; Border of Italian Lake, Pilgrimage, Italian Landscapes (2), Amsterdam Museum ; The Torrent, Hague Museum ; others in Museums of Rotterdam (3), Aix-la-Chapelle (2), Basle, Berlin (2, one dated 1654), Brunswick, Dresden, Gotha (3), Vienna ; Galleries of Aschaffenburg, Cassel, Frankfort, Hamburg (3), Schleissheim ; Old Pinakothek, Munich (2, one dated 1659) ; Gallery, and Moltke Collection (2), Copenhagen ; Hermitage, St. Petersburg (5) ; Academy, and Czernin and Liechtenstein (3) Galleries, PYNAS, JAN, born at Haarlem about 1580, died after 1621. Dutch school ; biblical scenes, history, and landscape painter. Went to Italy with Pieter Lastman, Goudt, and Elzheimer in 1605. Adopted the so-called dark style ; on his return settled at Haarlem. He painted also single figures, philosophers, alchymists, and the like. Accepted by most writers as one of Rembrandt's masters. Works : The Miser, Uffizi, Florence (?) ; Picture of a Bearded Man, Gotha Gallery (?) ; Mary and St. John under the Cross, Hague Museum ; Expulsion of Hagar (1613), Suermondt Museum, Aix-la-Chapelle ; Moses striking the Rock, Vienna Museum. About his younger brother Jacob, probably his pupil, nothing is known, except that he painted : Queen of Sheba (1627). The following works may be by either of the two : Raising of Lazarus (1609) ; Christ's Walk to Emmaus.—Bode, Studien, 343 ; Kramm, v. 1287 ; Nagler, Mon., iii. 526 ; iv. 82.

PYRAMIDS, BATTLE OF THE, Baron Gros, Versailles Museum ; canvas, H. 12 ft. 9 in. × 16 ft. 9 in. Battle fought July 21, 1798. The picture illustrates the moment when Bonaparte addressed his army with the famous words : "Soldiers, remember that from the summit of those monuments forty centuries look down upon you !" The general-in-chief, mounted upon a superb white horse, in the centre of the composition, points to the Pyramids in the distance, while his staff and others around him are electrified by his words. In the background, the army of Mourad Bey is deploying, its vanguard just opening the engagement. Salon, 1810. Engraved by Vallot ; J. Frilley.—Larousse, xiii. 449 ; Ch. Blanc, École française.

PYREICUS, painter. See Piræicus.

PYRRHON, the Sceptic, Greek philosopher of Elis, in the 4th century B.C., was a painter in early life. A picture of some torchbearers, painted by him in the gymnasium of his native town, is mentioned by Diogenes Laertius (ix. 62).—Sillig, 399.

PYRRHUS, RESCUE OF, Nicolas Pous-sin, Louvre ; canvas, H. 3 ft. 10 in. × 5 ft. 3 in. Æacides, King of Epirus, having been driven from his kingdom by rebels, Pyrrhus, his infant son, is saved by his adherents ; the flying party, coming to a river and having no means of crossing it, make known their situation to the Megarians on the opposite bank, who construct a raft and rescue them from their pursuers. Collection of Louis XIV. Engraved by G. Audran ; G. Chasteau (1676). Replica in small, Lord Darnley, Cobham Hall.—Cat. Louvre ; Filhol, x. Pl. 667 ; Waagen, Treasures, iii. 25 ; Smith, viii. 88.

QUAGLIO, DOMENICO, born in Munich, Jan. 1, 1786, died at Hohenschwangau,

April 9, 1837. Landscape and architecture painter, son and pupil of Giuseppe Quaglio, of a numerous family of artists who emigrated from Laino, near Lake of Como, to Bavaria in 17th century. The eldest was Giulio Quaglio (born in 1601), history painter, imitator of Tintoretto, worked in Vienna, Salzburg, and Laybach, where many of his altarpieces and fresco paintings are to be found. Domenico was at first a scene painter in Munich, then travelled extensively in Germany, the Netherlands, England, France, and Italy, and was among the first to reach in architectural painting the high standard of the famous Dutch masters. His last work was the restoration and decoration of Castle Hohenschwangau. Member of Munich, Berlin, Leipsic, and other Academies. Works: Ruin on Lake, Fish-Market in Antwerp (1824), Monastery Church at Kaisheim, Kiederich on the Rhine, Church at Boppard, Pfalzburg on the Rhine, National Gallery, Berlin; View of Frankfort (1832), Stüdel Gallery, Frankfort; Frauenberg Cathedral (1833), Königsberg Museum; Minster at Freiburg (1821), Leipsic Museum; Old Abbey at Rouen, Interior of St. Sebaldus at Nuremberg (1816), Old Gate of Salzburg Fortress (1815), Villa Malta in Rome (1830), Orvieto Cathedral (1831), Former Courtyard of Royal Palace in Munich (1826), Former Northeast Side of do.
