SUBJ: Summary of Agricultural Land Commission Election

4. In Akita Prefecture a total of 3,473 candidates filed candidacies, a total of 2,270 seats were to be filled as a result of the election only 2,257 candidates were elected due to delayed action in screening candidates by the Shimoshano Village Election Administration Committee and Inabe Village and Fujikoto Village the required number of candidates did not file candidacies, as a result partial re-election will be held in September, at present 13 seats are vacant.

5. Routine publicity was given thru election by each town and village election administration committees through, handbills, posters, and announcements on bulletin boards.

6. There were no prominent campaign issues in Akita Prefecture, as a rule four or five communist candidates would file candidacies, then two or three days before the election, the candidates would cancel candidacies so as to throw all the support behind one candidate, consequently eliminating a split vote.

7. The prefectural officials distributed posters, pamphlets and leaflets to each city, town and village concerned in this election. Many localities held Buraku meetings. 49,166 of the total 201,515 eligible voters abstained. In 35 of the towns and villages of Aomori-ken no voting was necessary because the total number of candidates was equal to or less than the number of positions to be filled. Total number of candidates throughout the prefecture was 2,210 for 1620 positions, of this number, 141 withdrew their candidacies prior to election time.

In six of the villages there were not enough candidates to fill all positions. An election is to be held in September to fill the existing vacancies.

No prominent campaign issues or significant political strategy was apparent in this election.

The highest percent of successful candidates with party affiliations belong to the Democrat-Liberal Party. Successful Communist Party candidates were concentrated mainly in Minami-gun of this prefecture.

2. a. The election for members of the Agricultural Land Commission was widely publicized through mediums of radio, press, posters, leaflets, film and slide showings and meetings held by members of this team. Two posters of 2,000 each prepared by the Prefectural Information Office and leaflets supplied by the Ministry of Agriculture, with sufficient copies for each farm household, were distributed throughout the Prefecture. Radio broadcasts concerning the election were made weekly from 22 July through 17 August and continued press conferences were held by Prefectural and District officials to keep the election before the public. Railway public address systems were utilized and slides were shown in commercial theaters advertising the election.

b. Thirty-four farmers' meetings concerning the election were held by Prefectural officials and district offices held additional local meetings. During these meetings, lectures were illustrated by film slides. CIE films were also made available for this program.

c. A number of communities were visited by Civil Affairs personnel prior to the election. During these meetings, the election and the workings of the Commission were explained. Teams from this organization maintained surveillance of the election, covering all guns.

d. 68% of the registered voters in this Prefecture have voted.

e. Prominent campaign issues of the candidates were arbitration of tenancy disputes and the exchange, division and price control of land.

REPORT ON AGRICULTURAL LAND COMMISSIONS ELECTION
EHIME PREFECTURE

1. Despite heavy rains in some districts, results of the Agricultural Land Commissions election in Ehime Prefecture showed a voting rate of 75%, indicating a fair amount of interest on the part of the electorate. However, judging from the number of villages where the number of candidates forthcoming did not warrant voting and candidates were automatically installed in office, there seems to be a general reluctance on the part of a majority of the people to take upon themselves the responsibility of what is apparently regarded as a "thankless task".

2. Frequent radio broadcasts, spot announcements and newspaper articles figured prominently in the widespread publicity given this election. Through the joint efforts of the Civil Information and Economic sections and prefectural officials, effective publicity was also obtained through the use of four 1/4 ton vehicles, one equipped with a loudspeaker and all displaying slogans urging the people to vote. Leaflets were also distributed from these vehicles. 10,000 leaflets printed locally were distributed to homes of eligible voters in addition to 126,000 printed by the Central Government. 5,000 information bulletins were also displayed on public bulletin boards throughout the prefecture. A slogan contest was sponsored by the prefecture with schoolchildren participating in the drawing of posters utilizing the best. Local public information officials were also active in urging eligible voters to go to the polls.

3. No significant political strategy, prominent campaign issues or serious violations of elections laws were noted.

2. The attitude of the voting public during the election was for the most part one of active interest. Statistically this election showed a 14% increase over the last election in the number of voters. Women made up approximately 41% of the total vote.

3. It was noted that many of the towns and villages conducted educational campaigns prior to the elections in an attempt to give the average person an accurate picture of the Agricultural Land Commission set-up. The Ken Government, in conjunction, utilized every available means of publicity in 'its' attempt to indoctrinate the public. The newspapers and radios carried daily reports; posters, pamphlets and leaflets were displayed and/or passed out; competent officials conducted public meetings on Gun and Village levels; a mobile sound truck toured the urban and suburban communities; and lastly, an airplane was used to distribute leaflets throughout the prefecture.

4. Generally speaking, there were no prominent campaign issues. Rather it seemed that the majority of the candidates were content to let the people form their own opinions without any outside influence. Political activity prior to and during the elections was negligible.
