How Wiki Loves Living Heritage has made use of Meta-wiki.

Susanna Ånäs

The image features two overlapping red hearts on a plain white background. The hearts are positioned in the center-left of the frame, with the front heart slightly larger and more prominent than the one behind it. The hearts have a smooth, slightly textured surface. Overlaid on the front heart is white text in a bold, sans-serif font.

All-in-one website

Wiki Loves Living Heritage pages in Meta are an all-in-one website

with a campaign, blog, event calendar and showcase, content lists, wikiproject, material collection, learning materials, tasks, teams, content creation, contacts, documentation, design templates, metrics and maybe more.

It displays content from and encourages contributions to other projects: Wikidata, Wikipedia, Wikimedia Commons.

The visually engaging design wishes to attract visitors and helps navigate complex content.

Wiki Loves Living Heritage

Menus, submenus and pagination

The pages contain a lot of material, and arranging them in a meaningful way is important to make the pages navigable. The menus and submenus are created using templates that take the page name and data in the header template as input.

Listeria lists

The pages use Listeria lists to create lists of events, blog posts, learning materials, inventories, countries/topics, heritage elements and metrics.

By using row templates, it is possible to use templates instead of table rows to create nice layouts.

All content boxes make use of the same template, Template:Wiki Loves Living Heritage/Box, with variations.

Documenting Living Heritage

Wiki Loves Living Heritage invites heritage communities, Wikimedia volunteers, and safeguarding organizations and authorities around the world to document and share Living Heritage together.

The project aims to ensure that the documentation produced in this context is produced with the free, prior and informed consent of the heritage communities. In this way, we are creating a collection of works for which the consent is agreed and documented with the heritage communities.

ローカルの活動

年間を通じて、それぞれのローカルのコミュニティがローカル層でプログラムを企画しているし、その活動はグローバルなオンラインのメディア・キャンペーンを介して見たり聞いたりできる仕組みです。

これらの活動は既に企画を動かしてきたコミュニティや組織と一緒に、祝う企画やイベント、プロジェクトなどを作成してください。焦点は地域ではなくテーマに当てることが可能です。提案して、他の人にも参加を呼びかけて招待しましょう。アイデア共有にはぜひ活動のアイデアページまたは通常の会議ページを使ってください。

Add your activity to Wikidata

Click on the button below to add your activity to Wiki Loves Living Heritage. Fill in the form that opens to create a Wikidata entry for the activity. The information will be used to power all displays of your activity and it can be translated to any language.

To make the display attractive on the main page

- Include an image using image \(P18\). Your organization logo will be used as a fallback image if no image is added.
- Add all organizers. You can also update their information in Wikidata (logo, translated names and more).
- Add a short description to have a descriptive text on the display on the main page.

If your activity already has an item in Wikidata, you can link it to Wiki Loves Living Heritage by adding this Wikidata statement: on focus list of Wikimedia project \(P5008\) activities of Wiki Loves Living Heritage \(Q11863787\).

Note: Only submit the form once, even if it looks as if nothing happened. After submitting the form, return to this page and refresh the list below. You can edit your new Wikidata item by clicking the Edit link in the list.

Introduction

[\[Expand\]](#)

Texts [\[ edit | edit source \]](#)

As practised by the indigenous communities of Mexico, el Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) commemorates the transitory return to Earth of deceased relatives and loved ones. The festivities take place each year at the end of October to the beginning of November. This period also marks the completion of the annual cycle of cultivation of maize, the country's predominant food crop.

Families facilitate the return of the souls to Earth by laying flower petals, candles and offerings along the path leading from the cemetery to their homes. The deceased's favourite dishes are prepared and placed around the home shrine and the tomb alongside flowers and typical handicrafts, such as paper cut-outs. Great care is taken with all aspects of the preparations, for it is believed that the dead are capable of bringing prosperity (e.g. an abundant maize harvest) or misfortune (e.g. illness, accidents, financial difficulties) upon their families depending on how satisfactorily the rituals are executed. The dead are divided into several categories according to cause of death, age, sex and, in some cases, profession. A specific day of worship, determined by these categories, is designated for each deceased person. This encounter between the living and the dead affirms the role of the individual within society and contributes to reinforcing the political and social status of Mexico's indigenous communities.

The Day of the Dead celebration holds great significance in the life of Mexico's indigenous communities. The fusion of pre-Hispanic religious rites and Catholic feasts brings together two universes, one marked by indigenous belief systems, the other by worldviews introduced by the Europeans in the sixteenth century.<sup>[1]</sup>

Welcome to the project page for Flickrpedia!

Here you will find information about who is working on it, what we're building, when we plan to launch, how you can get involved, and most importantly, why we're doing it.

This project is a partnership between the 501(c)(3) Flickr Foundation and the Wikimedia Foundation, with the support of its Culture and Heritage team. We have agreed to be joint copyright holders of the software, and plan to release it under a Dual-Apache and MIT license.

Why are we doing this?

The Flickr Foundation has a long-term vision: to keep Flickr pictures visible for 100 years. Along the way, technologies will surely change and decay and even die. But! We had the idea to gather the Flickr-related tools together at the Flickr Foundation so we could take responsibility for looking after them in the long term. We know that Flickr Commons is a great start, but we want to make sure that Flickr Commons is the best way to do this.

A tribute to Flickr2Commons

When we began to design the partnership, we had hoped to “adopt” Flickr2Commons and extend it. In June, we took a good look at the source code in consultation with Magnus Manske and figured out it probably wouldn't stand up to being extended as it is without significant changes to its architecture. The good news is that we can still use it as a starting point for our new tool.
