MEMORANDUM FOR: CHIEF OF ECONOMIC AND SCIENTIFIC SECTION.

SUBJECT: Violation of Pension and Benefit Directive.

1. For more than five months representatives of the Imperial Japanese Government have been cognizant of the fact that GHQ, SCAP, will not tolerate pensions, emoluments, or any other special benefits and treatment which are designed to segregate military from non-military or to keep ex-military personnel organized under, and obedient to, their former leaders (Inclosure 1.). The absolute dead-line for abolishing such pensions, emoluments, and other benefits to former military personnel was 1 February 1946, as indicated in Memo to Imperial Japanese Government from GHQ, SCAP, File AG 260 (24 Nov 45) ESS/FI, subject: "Pensions and Benefits". Yet, even up to the present time, departments of the Imperial Japanese Government have seen fit to violate the spirit of the above Directive on numerous occasions and specifically, in two instances at least, to violate the letter of the Directive.

2. The Pension and Benefit Directive (SCAPIN 338) required the Imperial Japanese Government "to take the necessary steps as rapidly as practicable and in no event later than 1 February 1946 to terminate all payments, except as authorized by this Headquarters, of any public or private pensions or other emoluments or benefits of any kind granted or conferred to any person:

a. By reason of military service, including severance or retirement pay or similar bonus or allowance, except compensation for physical disability." (Underlining added for emphasis). Also excluded were members of dissolved organizations, purged individuals, and those persons interned by SCAP orders. The significance and import of this Directive are perfectly clear to those who wish to understand it. It does not prohibit monetary payments or other benefits to ex-military personnel or their families on the basis of need, as under a general welfare plan -- what it does deny is the right of persons to receive anything as a reward for military service. The underlying principle is to eliminate "the authority of the militarists and the influence of militarism from the political, economic, and social life of Japan." (Part I, U.S. Post-Defeat Policy Relating to Japan (SWNCC 150/4A)).

3. Representatives of the Japanese Government contend that complete compliance with the above Directive is difficult to administer and enforce. The influence of the military is still sufficiently strong to cause any public official to hesitate before acting. For this reason and others, the clause: "as rapidly as practicable and in no event later than 1 February 1946", was included. However, the Imperial Japanese Government rather than marshalling its forces and attempting to reform the system during the interim, maintained the status quo as long as possible and then requested postponement of application of the "onerous" directive. For example, Military Pension

RESTRICTED

Certificates were issued at top speed until 30 January 1946, and several hundred certificates were discovered passing through the mails by CCD as late as March. All of this activity stemmed from a clause in paragraph 4, Memo to the Imperial Japanese Government from GHQ, SCAP, file AG 260 (19 Mar 46) ESS/FI, subject: "Pensions and Benefits" (SCAPIN 827) to the effect that payments of military pensions which were scheduled before 1 February 1946 would be permitted prior to 30 April 1946 only in cases where delay was caused by "mechanical or technical errors". During the interim, rather than expediting an over-all relief plan, the Imperial Japanese Government submitted to SCAP a rather "dubious" plan for applying the existing Welfare Annuity Insurance System to ex-military personnel and their families. The plan, as submitted, still gave special treatment to servicemen.

4. Last Fall organizations known as the Hodo Kai (Guidance Association), Army, and the Fukuin Engo Kai (Demobilization Support Association), Navy, were created solely for the purpose of aiding ex-military personnel. These Associations were recognized to be undesirable and subsequently were banned by SCAP. Shortly hereafter, a new organization called the Chiho Sewabu (Local Assistance Bureau), with offices in each Prefecture, came into existance under the 1st Demobilization Ministry with essentially the same functions and personnel as its predecessor, the Hodo Kai.

a. During early April, information was collected regarding one of the Local Assistance Bureaus, recently renamed the Kaikaku Kiden (Readjustment Board), located in Chiba Prefecture under the leadership of Chiyoki Matsumura, an ex-major general. This office employs 150 former officers and enlisted men operating on a military T/O basis. From ex-Major General Matsumura down, each individual receives his army salary and is ranked accordingly. Each month, Y 600,000., a relatively large sum, is allocted to this agency by the 1st Demibilization Ministry for carrying out its stated functions which are:

(1) Delivery of the ashes of deceased soldiers.

(2) Giving information concerning, and supervising the accounts of soldiers still overseas.

(3) Facilitation of Demobilization.

Actually, this organization goes far beyond its authorized functions, into the field of social welfare and relief. It establishes and maintains continuous contact with ex-military personnel, obtains jobs for them, and even goes so far as to give them advice pertaining to family matters. Approximately 400 former servicemen visit this office daily. Six thousand ex-soldiers have applied for jobs through the above agency, of which 1200 have obtained work.

b. Obviously, such an organization, staffed entirely by former military personnel, which assists and gives relief to ex-servicemen alone - thus creating a feeling of obligation to former military leaders, is contrary to the basic precepts of the Pension and Benefit Directive (SCAPIN 338), as well as other fundamental directives. This organization not only grants special benefits to former soldiers, but, far more important, it perpetuates the influence of military leaders. This does not mean that the idea of a rehabilitation bureau is inherently bad; what it does mean, however, is that such an agency should be staffed by civilians and subordinated to the Welfare Ministry. Otherwise the democratization of Japan will be seriously impeded.

5. Throughout Japan there exists so-called communal farms operated solely by ex-military personnel and sponsored, at least passively, by the Imperial Japanese Government (in Chiba alone, there are 12 of these communal farms). These farms were established last August and September , for the most part utilizing the land and buildings of arsenals or other former military installations. At that time military personnel desiring to be farmers made application through the Hodo Kai upon returning from overseas. Generally they were sent back to their garrison town - thus, leaving the pre-war set-up, from General on down, intact. These people were divided into teams of 50-300 men paying no rent for the land they received from the Japanese Government. Crops were distributed on the basis of number of days worked, size of family, needs, etc.

a. Data has been gathered concerning one of these communal farms at Shimoshizu in Chiba Prefecture. This farm, consisting of 2495 chobu obtained from the Bureau of Properties, Finance Ministry, rent-free, is operated by 647 former officers and enlisted men and 396 civilians formerly attached to the Army. Among the ex-military personnel - and it is extremely enlightening to note the sub-division between professional soldiers and draftees, there are 97 professional soldiers - including 3 major generals, 17 colonels, 12 lieutenant colonels, 37 majors, 15 captains, 6 first lieutenants, 5 second lieutenants, and 2 master sergeants, from Military Police Units - and 491 draftees from major on down. The Chief of this development is Hiromitsu Hashimoto, an ex-major general, with Toru Onoderu, a former colonel, apparently as his chief assistant. Until recently, a military organization has been maintained; i.e. the position of each person determined by his former military rank. In early April however, shortly after the unexpected visit of a CIC investigator, it was decided to democratize the organization. A board composed of 9 men, 1 ex-lieutenant colonel, 2 majors, and 6 persons formerly attached to the Army, was created to supervise the farm, and an innocuous individual from the Reclamation Bureau who had been acting as Technical Advisor since September was nominally appointed as manager.

b. The Shimoshizu farm was well supplied from military stocks and received a direct loan, or possibly a grant, of Y 6.63 million from the Ministry of Finance during September. The land is quite fertile with an average of 2.5 chobu per capita (far more than the general average). In spite of this, it is producing little more than enough for its own requirements. There has been considerable local trouble; in at least one instance, members of the local populace, assisted by the police, actually raided the farm and removed certain supplies. Finally, to appease the less favored elements, 140 chobu of the poorest land was turned over to the farmers in that locality.

c. Apparently, no reforms were initiated by the concerned governmental agencies regarding these special benefits to ex-military personnel even after the issuance of the 24 November Directive - thus acting in direct violation of that Directive.

d. The above information contained in paragraphs 4 and 5 was obtained from unofficial sources, being the results of investigations conducted by American Press Correspondents and informally conveyed to Finance Division.

6. The results of official investigations regarding the Tokai Demobilization Headquarters, Nagoya, and the Mie Local Aid Bureau (Inclosure 2) clearly demonstrate the urgent necessity for an immediate and complete reorganization of the 1st and 2nd Demobilization Ministries and all agencies connected with them. The presentation of awards for military service should be prohibited, for such practices are contrary to the fundamental principles formulated by JCS and Washington, as well as SCAP. More important, however, is the statement of Yoshio Shibata, an ex-major general heading the Mie Local Aid Bureau, to the effect that at least five million Yen was received from the Nagoya Headquarters during March for "beneficial payments". (Subject to the same criticisms as the case mentioned in paragraph 4). On the basis of the above - an official report, it is apparent that the Pension and Benefit Directive (SCAPIN 338) is being violated and that, inasmuch as the 1st Demobilization Ministry determines the functions of, and interprets SCAP Directives in relation to, its subordinate agencies, as well as allocating funds for their utilization, direct responsibility can be traced to that Ministry.

7. Both the 1st and 2nd Demobilization Bureaus have violated the Pension and Benefit Directive on a nation-wide scale by granting unauthorized "travelling expenses" and "allowances" (Refer to Inclosures 3, 4 and 5). Regulation # 210, issued on 7 January 1946 by the 1st Demobilization Bureau, and its counter-part, promulgated by the 2nd Demobilization Bureau on 13 December 1945, allow severance payments to servicemen and civilians attached to the Army and Navy which cannot be construed as current pay (the reason given by the Demobilization Bureau officials for such action). Such persons are considered seperated or discharged one day after reaching Japan, in the case of the 1st Demobilization Ministry, and five days after landing, in the case of the 2nd Demobilization Ministry. The payment of actual expenses for transportation home or even a nominal allowance is not disapproved. The above payments ,however, were not based on costs, but on rank (i.e. under regulation # 210 , a general receives Y 1,835, while a private gets Y 120). One of the reasons for the graduated scale, it was stated, was that many officers are career men and require funds while searching for other occupation, which is a direct function of general welfare and government rehabilitation agencies, not of the Demobilization Ministries. Nor were those plans ever submitted to GHQ, SCAP for approval. The magnitude of this violation is considerable. Between 1 January and 30 April more than Y 146 million was paid out to 721,346 soldiers under the provisions of Regulation # 210 alone. No justification can be seen for such extraordinary systems of travelling expenses and allowances, and it is felt that drastic action is required.

8. All the cases described above illustrate clearly the passive resistance employed by members of the Japanese Government in complying with the Pension and Benefit Directive. These cases appear to show a deliberate "misunderstanding" of the principles involved and actually constitute serious violations of the Pension and Benefit Directive. It is evident that a thorough investigation of the existing setup - especially throughout the prefectural and local governments - is absolutely necessary. And, wherever traces of military influence are discernible, such influence should be eliminated immediately. The Finance Division has neither the personnel nor the facilities to carry out such an investigation. Nor does it receive sufficient information from Official Sources, which are responsible for observing the extent to which the Prefectural and Local Governments comply with SCAP directives, to take any overall action regarding the enforcement of the Pension and Benefit Directive (SCAPIN 338). Although each Section is charged with the enforcement of Directives which it has initiated, this matter goes far beyond the Pension and Benefit Directive (SCAPIN 338) and is directly related to the basic interests of the Occupation Forces - thus being also the responsibility of CIS, GS and 8th Army.

9. Specific violation of the Pension and Benefit Directive (SCAPIN 338) has been carried out on a nation-wide scale by the 1st and 2nd Demobilization Ministries (refer to paragraph 7). The reason given - i.e. that such payments were thought to be current pay - seems to be a deliberate attempt to warp the above directive to fit the desires of the Demobilization Ministries. The Ministries have been directed to rescind the violating regulations and, wherever possible, to recapture the excess of allowances over actual travelling expenses. This, however, is not sufficient. Such a violation cannot go unpunished for this would encourage other "incorrect interpretations" of SCAP Directives - something which has already occurred in several instances. In view of the reasons given above, the following recommendations are made:

a. The Imperial Japanese Government be directed to determine the persons directly responsible for the above violation and to remove them summarily from office. The persons removed should presumably include Koko Araki, Chief of General Affairs Division, 1st Demobilization Ministry, Jusho Yoshimoto, Chief of General Affairs Section, same Ministry, Yoshii Yamamoto, Chief of General Affairs Division, 2nd Demobilization Ministry, and the Chief of General Affairs Section, same Ministry. (Inclosure 6 & 7).

b. The vice ministers of both ministries be summarely removed.

c. Persons removed under (a) and (b) above be barred from holding any public office in the future.
