INSTITUTIONS.

ST. LOUIS INSTITUTION.
DIRECTED BY ADAMS DERON.
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES.
(Western Division.)

No. 145 St. Louis st., between Dauphin & Burgundy.

THIS Institution, founded nearly twelve years ago, combines every personal, moral, and intellectual advantage. Madame Deron, formerly a pupil and governess in the "Institut de la Legion d'Honneur," (Maison St. Denis,) has founded her Seminary, as much as possible, on the model of that great establishment, as well as on the plan of the first Northern Academies.

The situation of St. Louis' Institution is one of the most agreeable and salubrious in town. The whole locality, including dormitories, class and study rooms, and play grounds, being very spacious and airy, and overlooking several gardens, is in so healthy a position, that, not a single pupil has experienced the least serious illness.

The plan of instruction both in French and English embraces all the literary and scientific branches of a liberal education.

The study of English is the object of particular attention. Madame Deron is scrupulously careful that the young ladies under her charge should devote more time to the study of the English language and literature than to any other branch. Mr. Orton, a professor of English, in New Orleans, continues his course of lessons every day. Two English governesses residing in the establishment, preside over the class and dormitories, in which reside the progress of the pupils by the continual use of that language in all the relations of ordinary life.

The pupils are furnished with all other articles of the Hospital, approved by the Collector, may be required.

Any other articles that may be wanted, the contractor to furnish at the lowest market prices.

It is estimated that the number of patients to be supplied will average about eighty per day. In addition to which there will be about twelve officers and servants to be supplied.

Any information concerning the contract will be given on application at this office.

WM. FERET, Collector and Agent U. S. Marine Hospital.
