PETROLEUM IN LOUISIANA.

In former years, when capital and enterprise in this State were solely devoted to cotton and sugar, and to heavy and lucrative, but ill-conceived and monstrous, commercial and financial speculations based on those leading products, the mineral resources of the State were invariably neglected. Suggestions regarding their immediate importance, or their contingent value, met with direct indifference, or were discouraged with undisguised contempt. Scientific inquiry to determine their existence, their locality, their extent, and their nature and quality, was "damned by false praise," and still further embarrassed by encouragement, on the part of our authorities. The unwholesome tendency of the policy of executive commendation of activity upon special objects is now being seen. The cup of success, when emptied, always has a bitter sediment. We are now reaping the sediment in Louisiana. We are now feeling the disastrous effect of the undue attention given to sugar, or nothing. The want of versatility and variety in our favorite enterprises has undoubtedly, has left us with little more than nothing to show for our labors. Our fields, well only considered, are first falling into a state of a vanished prosperity. Yet there was an opportunity for other investments. The materials of wealth lie all around, and have been so lying from the beginning.

If our State is poor, she is poor in the midst of plenty—a plenty that, though unappreciated, may yet prove the rock of her salvation. The time like the prophesied time when the leaders threw away. It is plain to be seen, that our better off our people would be, if they had been educated with a view to a wider sphere of labor and enterprise; if our agriculture had been organized for a larger number of products, or if it admitted of easy transition from one product to another; in short, if real industry in Louisiana had been more extensive, more diversified, more self-supporting, more self-adjusting to all circumstances and to every contingency. And it is not too clear how many positive advantages are lost, as regards instant availability, by past inattention to the mineral resources of the State. A decade of years may have been sufficient to have made the development of those resources, while capital was still satisfied with its profits from established enterprises, yet there was abundant reason why they should have been explored, precisely ascertained, and so defined as to place them readily available when needed. It is only the experience of the present that can clearly prove the imperviousness of the policy of the past.

During the late war, the scarcity of necessity caused some useful mineral discoveries in various parts of the South; among others, was that of extensive saline deposits in Louisiana, one of which, the New Iberia salt mine, may challenge comparison with any in the world, and which is now supplying the most valuable of the State. Coal is known to exist in the northern part of the State, but immigrate towards working its deposits have been sufficiently supported by capital to make it an element of our industry and commerce. Iron ore abounds in the same region; but all of the production of Louisiana, very little more than a year, has been in Lorenzo, very little remains and visionary speculations. Laying aside the known or probable existence of other valuable minerals in Louisiana, is worth nothing that, for years past, tonnes of petroleum have been seen in various parts of the State; but only of late years has it been the subject of serious interest. This article, whose value was far to other in the North, the commercial losses resulting from the war, is now one of the staple exports of the country, and petroleum is now in more request for illuminating than gold placers. It is not a thing, then, that should be disregarded, should now be eagerly fastened on by eyes which have "speculation" in their glare. We learn that petroleum brands have been eagerly searching for evidences of the precious fluid in several of our parishes, and that they have discovered enough to justify their zeal and make the best existing. A trial experiment near Fort Hudson was offered by some of these parties two hundred thousand dollars for a spot which was ascertained to yield petroleum. Not accepting this offer, he would yield twenty thousand dollars for one year's privilege of working its springs or reservoirs of petroleum, coupled with an interest in the profits of the work. The same parties have bored up all the adjacent lands which, were purchasable. Then far, south-western Louisiana seems to present the most attractive field for future exploitation by petroleum speculators and investors. The Parish of Calcasieu appears, for example, to possess the probable oil in remarkable abundance. Of the very accessible form, as may be judged from the following paragraph in the Franklin Planter's Banner of the 9th:

One of our neighbors recently made a trip to Lake Charles, in the South-western part of this State. He states that there is an abundance of petroleum about twelve miles from the Lake are indisputable. The rare, and valuable article is there, as it is found and flows on the surface of the land for years, and has been gathered up and used in a rough manner in the place of oil. The attention of speculators and practical operators has been turned to the matter, and they are the first of the year entirely with a long petroleum well in the neighborhood of Lake Charles.

We were greatly gratified to find in yesterday's Bee, over the signature of Mr. Emile Durel, a communication stating that the free of last Monday had adjourned in our city, and to evince unmixed approbation, over which angel wrath from mortal imperfection, we publish the following, which is signed by merchants and clerks in our immediate neighborhood, who make a declaration of what they have seen and heard.

Very respectfully,

DAWSON & CO.

February 19th, 1866.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19th, 1866.

We, the undersigned, testify that the free of Saturday last originated in the upper part of the Bourbon, corner of Chartres and Conti.

Speech of an Old Confederate Against Confiscation.

[From the Washington Chronicle, February 16, of the Congressional Proceedings.]

Hon. Columbus Delano of the Thirteenth Congressional District of Ohio, this afternoon made a speech in the House that amazed the Radicals and some of his Republican colleagues from his own State.

Mr. Delano's remarks were so non-acceptable to the political friends of the President, that he was ostracised by the radical party. It is pronounced one of the ablest arguments of this session of Congress, and was listened to with marked interest from the full House. The galleries were densely filled. The members of the House, by almost universal consent, suspended the Radicals, giving their undivided attention to the speaker. Mr. Delano's speech, coming from the hitherto ultra Radical party, and delivered in the Radical House, was virtually an impeachment, as, by raising the bed of the river, it contained the principle of its own defeat. Since Gen. Humphreys is now discharging an important mission in regard to river protection in this great valley, it is interesting to know that in his report referred to he has decided in favor of the plan of levees, as the simplest, most efficient and least expensive of all.

JUDICIAL ADVERTISING.—It is noteworthy that so far not one of our day journals has advanced a word in favor of the bill in the State Legislature making a monopoly of judicial advertisements. All but two have spoken in decided condemnation of it. The Crescent of yesterday devotes to it some judicious remarks in which it thus disposes of the only argument upon which it has been sought to justify the measure:

It may be very true that it would be convenient for people in general to know exactly where to look for a judicial advertisement. But is the fact so true that it would be convenient for people to know exactly where to look for a certain doctor's card, or a theatrical advertisement, or a news telegram. The legislature would have a good right, on the plea of public convenience, to prescribe the manner in which cotton factors or theatrical managers should address themselves to the public, as to limit the choice of litigants in the disposal of their advertising.

REWARD FOR DESERTERS, ETC.—Major Gen. Canby promulgates under date of the 17th general orders from Washington Headquarters, in regard to army desertions, dated the 1st inst. The reward of $30 is offered for the arrest and delivery of a deserter to an officer of the army, and that to deter, harboring deserters, etc., are punishable with heavy fine and imprisonment.

We are indebted to Captain Ryder, of the steamship Montgomery, for the following report:

The steamship Montgomery left New York for the 4th inst. 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th,
