Inquired of Forestry Bureau - Their Reply:

1. The Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry does not presently have under its custody and use any forest lands formerly used by the Japanese Army.

2. However, application is being made to the Ministry of Finance for use of 49,921 chobu (112,306 acres) of such forest lands.

3. At the suggestion of Mr. Bishop of the Natural Resources Section, investigation is now being made to ascertain how much of these forest lands actually constitute forests, since it is felt that not all of the said lands are forests. It is probable that following the investigation the forest acreage would be smaller.

4. The forest lands under investigation are located in 40 different places and it is believed that a large number of them are in Hokkaido.

5. Finance Ministry has recommended to its local finance offices to give priority consideration to any applications filed by local offices of the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry. All transactions are being held locally and transfers are to be made of the particular forest land desired is appropriate.
