SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

SUBJECT: Communists within Kanagawa Prefectural Government Building

1. On 23 October 1948 a report was received from a reliable source indicating that a cell of the Japan Communist Party was in existence among the Government employees in the Kanagawa Prefectural Government Building. The following is a translation of this report:

"On 29 September 1948 a wall newspaper with the following information was found posted on the west-side entrance of the Prefectural Government Building,

'Wall Newspaper No. 1

With your cooperation, a Prefectural Administration Cell of our Communist Party came into existence. Will it be the road to fascism by our sacrifice or anti-fascism by our will? Through our present living conditions, we have approached a point whereby we must choose between the two.

To oppose the Public Service Law is one of our problems. There are men who intend to split the union and the vocational rank system is applied at random. We must guard our living from these complicated affairs by means of solidarity; and this same road leads us straight to the stand to oppose the traitorous Cabinet that stands for violence. Though the problem may be small, we must fight them one at a time. This wall newspaper is ours, and we hope that we hear your sincere voices on our paper'.

Prefectural Administration Cell, Japan CP
Masuda Masayasu, responsible person."

2. On 3 November 1948 a list of the Kanagawa Prefectural Government Cell members was obtained from a reliable source. This list is a copy made from the "Cell Register" kept at the Yokohama City Committee, Japan Communist Party. The following is the list, as obtained, with pertinent information:

Masuda Seikyo	Reparations Section
Ogawa Hiroshi	Liaison Section
Hirata Kazu	Education Section

Terazawa Minoru	Liaison Section
Umeno Toshiaki	Liaison Section
Kasuya Taiji	Unemployment Insurance Section

The source further stated that there are a number of sympathizers in the Prefectural Government building, however, this roster is not kept by the Japan Communist Party.

3. On 5 November 1948 an identical list (refer par 2) was obtained from a reliable source. The list was a copy made from the "Cell Register" kept at the Yokohama City Committee, Japan Communist Party. Names of any sympathizers are unknown, however, it is believed that liaison with the Yokohama City Committee and the Prefectural Government cell was being maintained by Masuda Seikyo, the cell captain. The cell has been relatively inactive, but Masuda is a frequent visitor to the Yokohama City Committee, Japan Communist Party.

4. On 6 November 1948, a list of Communists and sympathizers within the Kanagawa Prefectural Government was obtained. This list is as follows:

Masuda Seikyo
Kasuya Taiji
Ogawa Hiroshi
Sakai Itsuko	Labor Administration Section
Hosaka Satoshi	Farmland Section
Sato Keiji	District Labor Board
Saito Haruo	District Labor Board

Information further received indicated that the responsible person of the cell is Masuda Seikyo, and that the cell has been inactive as far as could be determined.

5. On 15 November 1948 Sakai Itsuko (mentioned in Par 4 above) was interviewed. Preliminary investigation revealed that Sakai is a quiet, modest and conscientious worker in the Labor Section. Sakai stated that she became a member of the Communist Youth League in June 1948, however, is not a Party member. Sakai identified Masuda, Umeno, Ogawa, and Kasuya, as the Communists in the Prefectural Government, and that Hosaka, Sato, and Saito, were sympathizers. Sakai further stated that she has not attended any cell meetings and that the cell is not active.

6. On 16 November 1948 Kasuya Taiji was interviewed. Kasuya stated that he became a Party member in April 1947 and that the Prefectural Government Cell had its last meeting during the early part of September 1948. Kasuya stated that the cell has been inactive, and that the cell meetings were held at the Yokohama City Committee, Japan Communist Party, usually attended by Ogawa Hiroshi, Masuda Seikyo, Kasuya Taiji, and Umeno Toshiaki. Kasuya further stated that Hosaka, Saito, and Sato are Party sympathizers, and have not attended any cell meetings. The cell meetings were conducted by Maruyama Ichiro, responsible person of Yokohama City Committee, JCP, Masuda Kanichi, Chairman of Election Supervision Committee, Kanagawa Prefectural Committee JCP, and Nagano Akira, Personnel Department Chief and Permanent Committee member of Yokohama City Committee, JCP. Kasuya stated that cell activities within the Prefectural Government have been at a stand-still mainly due to the opposition received from anti-Communist elements among Government employees.

7. On 7 December 1948 Hirata Kazuo was interviewed. Preliminary investigation revealed that Hirata did not participate in cell meetings, and was considered anti-Communist by his superiors, (attention is invited to the fact that Hirata's name was listed in the "Cell Register" at the Yokohama city committee, JCP and was not known as a Party member by the police or other officials. Hirata stated that he became a Party member in May 1948, however, after paying 20 yen a month dues for two months, and attending one cell meeting at the Yokohama City Committee, he voluntarily declined to participate in any Party activities. Hirata stated that he became a Party member through the urging and recommendation of Kasuya, however, it did not take him long to understand the true Communist motive of promoting strifes and thereby increasing membership. Hirata identified Masuda, Kasuya, Ogawa, Umeno, and Terazawa as Communists in the employment of the Prefectural Government. Hirata did not know any sympathizers. Hirata stated that he is, technically, still a Party member, as he was not notified officially of the acceptance of his resignation.

8. An employment check was made by the Public Safety Section, Yokohama Municipal Police, on 10 December 1948, to ascertain the present occupation of Terazawa Minoru. Terazawa was listed as being a member of the Prefectural Government cell (refer par 2). This check revealed the following information:

Terazawa Minoru
Present Address: Kanagawa Prefecture, Yokohama City, Kohoku-Ku, Shinohara-machi, 484
Present Occupation: R & U Finance Section

Further information received indicated that since Terazawa was working with the Occupation Force, he would be registered as an employee of the Prefectural Government's Liaison Section.

SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

SUBJECT: Communist Party Preparation for the General Elections

1. Since the fall of the Ashida Cabinet, the Japan Communist Party has been feverishly preparing itself for the general elections which it believes will take place by the end of this year. Numerous executive orders and informational bulletins have been issued recently to subordinate organs of the Party exhorting these organizations to carry out concerted pre-election activities.

2. On 24 October 1948, the Japan Communist Party convened the 4th General Assembly of the Central Committee, at which time leading officials of the Party formulated plans and policies for the coming general elections. In his speech to the Assembly, TOKUDA Kyuichi, Secretary General of the Party, stated that:

a. In order to let the masses understand the slogans of the Party, lectures, conferences, public meetings, etc., should be held.

b. Rather than post slogans, names of candidates should be posted at conspicuous places to emphasize the candidate instead of the slogan.

c. The Party should roundly criticize and disrupt the Democratic-Liberal Party as well as criticize other Parties.

d. Instead of the Procurator's Office exposing illegalities, the populace should be made to believe that they themselves should expose those incidents through the Japan Communist Party.

e. Opportunism should be stopped and a people's offensive should be started immediately while the government is at unrest.

f. Having members of labor unions as election candidates will tend to undermine the unions so it should be thoroughly propagandized that the candidates should come from political parties only.

g. The newly formed Labor-Farmer Party should be given material criticism and cooperation as the situation warrants. Make it explicit that the leadership will be in the hands of the Japan Communist Party.

h. The idea that by means of economic struggles people will naturally vote for the Party is false; together with these economic struggles, political 'agitation' should be carried out. The populace should be made to understand the Communist Party and the defeatist mood of the voters in regards to voting for the Party should be abolished completely.

i. Although due attention must be given strongly Communist areas, those areas which are potential should not be ignored.

j. Cultivate sympathizers among the election committee.

k. Conceit and over-aggressiveness will destroy the Party. Strengthen the activities of the basic organizations and elevate them politically. There is absolutely no other election measure.

a. Stabilization or undermining of living conditions?

SUBJECT: Minimum Wage Law Proposed by Japan Communist Party

1. An original leaflet in Japanese, entitled "Outline of the Communist Party Minimum Wage Law" was obtained on 23 October 1948. According to a usually reliable source, this leaflet was issued by the Japan Communist Party. Exact date of issue is not known.

2. The following is a translation of the complete text of Subject leaflet:

"Outline of Communist Party Minimum Wage Law

"Introduction:

The 25th Article of the Constitution stipulates that the people have the right to enjoy a healthy and cultural (civilized) minimum livelihood standard and the 1st Article in the Labor Standard Law also stipulates that necessities (labor conditions) must be provided for laborers to live and enjoy a life of human beings. The critical time has come for us to establish a minimum wage system and a general social assurance institution so that the above stipulations may live. This law is aimed to build two foundations, meaning the assurance of a healthy and civilized minimum livelihood standard for laborers and the guarantee of a free economical recovery (Program) and racial independence for Japan.

I. A minimum wage system will be decided upon in accordance with the 25th Article of the Constitution and the 1st Article of the Labor Standard Law in order to plan for the livelihood is that the laborers and their families should be guaranteed a civilized and materialistic livelihood, meaning a complete living assurance.

II. The minimum wage will be based upon at least 8 hour per day labor and not more than 48 hours per week, however, mine labor in the mining industry will be at least 6 hours per day and not more than 36 hours per week. The wages payed for overtime will not be included in the minimum wage mentioned in this law.

III. The minimum wage must be paid regardless of attendance, negligence, efficiency or disputes; however, if labor efficiency is very low, due to mental and physical disability, the Wage Committee must verify said disability. The difference will be assured through the social insurance.

IV. Minimum wage must be assured through suitable prices of goods necessary for subsistence and adequate ration. If this assurance can not be met, the government must completely make up for the shortage.

V. In accordance with this law, the losses of the medium and small enterprises must be reimbursed through a separate aid fund by the government, provided the above is the decision of the Wage Committee.

VI. A Wage Committee will be formed to decide upon a minimum wage.

VII. The Wage Committee will be comprised of those from the labor unions, capitalists' organizations, farmers and citizens organizations. The majority must be from labor unions.

VIII. The term of office for a Wage Committee member will be one year. However, the selection body can fire a member before the term is up, if they see fit. The successor will complete the balance of the term stipulated.

IX. The Wage Committee will meet one or more times per year according to necessity, and decide upon the goods that make up the details of the minimum wage, as stipulated in Article 1. A general minimum wage must be decided upon in spite of occupational differences. In addition, if the condition necessitates, a minimum wage for different industries and occupations will not be less than the general minimum wage.

X. The government and employers will abide by the decisions made by the Wage Committee.

XI. The Wage Committee will carry out an examination supervision in relation to the minimum wage. The Wage Committee is given the power to examine the place of business, ask laborers questions, and request for the submission of documents and books in regard to wages, working hours and all other matters concerned by the employers. The employers can not refuse the above request.

XII. When the minimum wage is decided upon, its details must be made public. When the minimum wage is made public, the employers must pay the laborers a larger wage than that mentioned above.

XIII. The laborers and labor unions can appeal to the Wage Committee in regard to violations of the minimum wage. Utilizing this appeal as a reason, the employers will not carry out illegal and discriminating treatment against the laborers involved.

XIV. The Wage Committee can examine this appeal, advise the employers in regard to the violation and take said appeal to court.

XV. The employer will be punished in the following cases.

(1) When the minimum wage is made public and the employer does not pay the laborers more than the above mentioned, he will receive a sentence of six months or more. In addition, the employer will have to pay five times that of the minimum wage balance.

(2) When the laborers and labor union make a complaint to the Wage Committee in regard to the violation of the minimum wage and the employer carries out illegal and discriminating treatment against the laborers involved, he will receive a sentense of 3 months or more.

(3) When the Wage Committee examines the place of business, asks the laborers questions in regard to the examination supervision and requests for the submission of documents and books by the employer and said employer refused to do so, he will receive a sentense of one month or more. In addition, he will be fined 20,000 yen or more."

LABOR: COMMUNISTS TO USE INDIVIDUALISTIC, INDEPENDENT TACTICS IN COAL MINING INDUSTRY TO PREVENT COMMUNIST PARTY (LIST: X-76) FROM ASSUMING RESPONSIBILITY

Writer encloses a carbon copy of typewritten bulletin 'TORE' No. 19 dated 28 Sep, and stamped 'Secret', which reads in part as follows:

"The analysis of the struggle policy of the ZEN NIPPON SEKITAN SANGYO RODO KUMIAI (ZEN SEKITAN, All-Japan Coal Industry Workers Union).

Vice-chairman TAKAYAMA of the Central Struggle Committee of ZEN SEKITAN referred to the future struggle policy in the editorial of the union's organ paper TANKO (Coal Mine). It may be said that his opinion revealed the gist of the leftist tactics to be adopted in the future. He stated:

'There are two (2) types of struggle against authority. One is a permanent struggle and the other a temporary one. As to the struggle policy for the acquirement of (a) the minimum wage system, (b) an automatic wage increase in line with the rise in cost of living, and (c) retirement allowance and safety regulations, the policy has been established to conduct regional struggles. The idea is to effect ultimate regional struggles which develop from workshop struggles intended to overthrow the ASHIDA Cabinet.'

"He explains the reason why these policies have been adopted, stating that it is due to the fundamental difference in opinion regarding the analysis of the objective situation. He denounces those realists who oppose the permanent struggle which has political aims, saying that such an attitude would confine the activities of the laboring class to economic struggles only.

"Hinting at the extreme leftist tactics to be used, the editorial reveals that the key for the coming struggle lies in the expansion of the struggle from the rank-and-file members and the adoption of measures that would move masses to carry out struggles of their own. TAKAYAMA's conclusion is as follows:

'It is important to expand a local struggle against local authority. The strong point of an independence union lies in its ability to unify all struggles into a political struggle, directly aimed against regional authority or against the Cabinet.'

"The following cases will affirm our view to regard TAKAYAMA's opinion as an indication of the strategy of the extreme leftists.

1. In the middle of August when the government railway workers actively deserted their posts, TOKUDA Kyuichi (List: XBVa-76) of the KYOSANTO (Communist Party, List: X-76), was summoned by CIC and given a warning that CIC would take definite steps if the party agitated labor too much. He was also questioned if the desertions were caused by a party directive. His reply was that he could do nothing regarding the matter because the desertions were conducted voluntarily by the deserters.

2. On 10 September, Chairman DOBASHI (List: XH-76) of ZENTEI (List: XH-76) and his staff members were told by Mr. KADES, deputy chief of the Government Section, GHQ to explain the so-called 'graded struggle'. Then the ZENTEI issued an amended directive which read, 'As to the workshop struggle, union members will carry out a struggle against authority as individuals'.

47A "From these facts we can draw the following conclusion.

The members of a fraction in ZEN SEKITAN will commence a workshop struggle and a struggle against authority, as individuals."

SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

SUBJECT: Communist Party Election Tactics in Election of Village Mayor in Ishikawa-ken

Investigation was initiated on 10 August 1948, upon receipt of reports from various sources that the Japan Communist Party had been putting forth special efforts to elect their candidate village mayor of Ishikawa-ken, Kashima-gun, Koshiji-machi, and that Communist tactics in this election were different from those in past elections. Investigation was for the purpose of determining what these Communist Party tactics were and how they differed from those used in the past, and to determine if any remarks against the American Occupation Forces or policies were employed as part of these tactics.

1. On 10 August 1948, the following information was obtained from Uejima Yaichi of the Kashima-gun local office of the Ishikawa Prefectural Government, which had supervision over the election in Ishikawa-ken, Kashima-gun, Koshiji-machi. Uejima stated as follows:

On 1 July 1948 the former village mayor of Koshiji-machi, TANAKA Teiji, resigned because of ill health. The date for the new election was set for 10 August, and on 3 August 1948, both URABE Shuzo on the non-partisan ticket, and OMOTE Muneo on the Communist Party ticket, announced their candidacy for village mayor. Since that time, the Communists have made frequent inquiries at the Kashima-gun local office regarding the election laws.

2. On 11 August 1948, the following information was submitted by a usually reliable source:

On 20 July 1948 the Communist Party held a cell meeting in Ishikawa-ken, Koshiji-machi, Aza Takabe for the purpose of making plans for the election of a new village mayor. Even before that time they planned to put OMOTE up as a candidate for the post left vacant by the resignation of TANAKA. Soon after this the Communist Party launched an intensive election campaign for OMOTE in Koshiji-machi, holding lecture meetings and "paper shows" every night until the election. Many Communists came from Ishikawa-ken, Kanazawa-shi to assist in this campaign. Youth Communist League members, mostly from the Fourth High School and the Kanazawa Women's College, came from Kanazawa to entertain the young people and to spread Communist propaganda among the boys and girls. They employed "paper shows", "magic lantern shows" and attempted to teach English conversation. This activity was carried on several times a day in all parts of the village. While most of the lectures and campaign speeches were made by local Communists such as TAMURA Shigeo, YOKOYAMA Yoshio, TAKA Eisaku, OMOTOE, and YATA Kikuo (alias SHINO Koichi), other well-known Communists came to the area to spread Communist propaganda and to assist in OMOTE's campaign. These included UMEDA Hyoichi, MIYASHITA Hachiro, HAKAMADA Satomi, and TORIKI Ryo. Their speeches dealt principally with discussions of taxation, rice deliveries, and war between the United States and Russia. The Communists made such remarks as that the farmers need not deliver rice because the best Japanese rice was being taken by the Americans and rationed out by them to make "osushi" or that it was sent to South Korea during the recent elections there. Likewise, they said that it would be best not to pay taxes since almost all of the tax money was being used by the Occupation Forces for occupation costs. Source further stated that the Communists are gradually but vigorously disseminating extremely derogatory anti-Occupational propaganda.

3. On 11 August 1948 SAMI Tetsuo, president of the Ishikawa Branch of the Japan Anti-Communist League, was interviewed. SAMI stated in substance as follows:

On 28 July 1948 the Koshiji Cell of the Japan Communist Party sponsored a lecture meeting at the Koshiji-machi, Aza Arie Primary School at which the speakers were OMOTE Muneo, TORIKI Ryo, and YOKOYAMA Yoshio. About thirty-five villagers were present. TORIKI spoke on why he believes in Communism. He pointed out that he remained in Karafuto after the war in order to learn the true meaning of Communism and that as a result of this, he was convinced that the only way to save Japan is through Communism and that the people should be prepared to face a bloody revolution in order to bring this about.

During OMOTE's speech, a villager asked if it wasn't dangerous to speak out for Communism when Japan is under the occupation of American Forces. SAMI claims that it is considered smart tactics to have one of their own members ask a question at a public meeting and then to answer it boldly. At any rate, according to SAMI, OMOTE stated that the Soviet Union is behind the Japanese Communists and that, in the event of a Soviet-American war, the Russians are sure to win for they have superior planes and a geographical advantage.

The highlight of YOKOYAMA's speech was his remarks to the effect that Japan does not need interference from the Occupation Forces today for she is actually under the control of the Far Eastern Commission.

He stated that the Communists are determined to fight to the last ditch against those occupation policies which are suppressing the workers and farmers. Their weapon is the strike. Already the Occupation policy for Japan has been weakened; this is illustrated by the fact that the 1 Feb strike of last year was called off by an order, while all the Occupation Forces did during the local strikes last March was to advise that they be called off.

NOTE: (1) Arie is that block in Ishikawa-ken, Kashima-gun, Koshiji-machi which is said to be completely Communist dominated. Actually it is about eighty percent Communist. OMOTE Muneo is the block chief. It was in this block that there was recently some question about the allocation of rice quotas and the making of false reports regarding land holdings. Allegations were that Communists in the block were favored. Police reports indicate that there is some degree of truth in the allegations.

(2) This is the first reported incident of active participation in Communist Party activity by TORIKI Ryo since his repatriation from Karafuto on 17 May 1948.

(3) The Communist Party tactic of having one of their own members ask a question at a public meeting to give the appearance that non-Communists are participating in the meeting is an old one that has been confirmed by previous reports from sources close to the party itself.

4. On 11 August 1948, information was received from the Kashima-gun National Rural Police which largely confirmed the report mentioned in paragraph 2, above. In addition it stated, in substance, as follows:

Although TANAKA resigned because of poor health, there are some villagers who say that some sort of agreement existed between TANAKA and the Communist, OMOTE. Investigation by the police failed to bear this allegation out.

In general the villagers frown upon the Communist attempt to spread propaganda among the young people of the village. It was reported that many of the children went out at night to see the "paper shows" and some had stolen money from their homes in order to contribute to the Communist funds. The "paper shows" were free, but it seems that they always collected contributions.

In addition to the above, YOKOYAMA Yoshio of Koshiji-machi, Aza Kuroji held song fests under the title of "Boys' World" and taught these youngsters songs about the moral degradation and corruption prevalent in Japan today. These songs are hardly fit for children of ten or twelve years. The children could not understand the meaning of these songs but they seemed anxious to learn them within a few days as they were instructed to.

5. On 11 August 1948 UEJIMA Yaichi was reinterviewed, and was informed that:

Of the two thousand nine hundred and seventeen (2917) registered voters in Koshiji-machi, one thousand four hundred and thirty-six (1436) cast votes in the election for a new mayor on 10 August 1948. Of this number, URABE Shuzo polled one thousand one hundred and sixty-five (1165), while the Communist candidate, OMOTE Muneo polled only two hundred and fifty-one (251) votes. The rest were improperly marked ballots.

Although the newspapers had reported that the Communists were planning to protest the election in Koshiji-machi on the grounds that certain officials had told them about the new election laws which have not gone into effect and they had campaigned according to these new rules causing them to be deteated, no formal complaint has been made to the prefectural authorities nor does it seem likely that such a complaint will be made. The Communist Party apparently used the election merely as a means of spreading more Communist propaganda and have tried to stir up the people to dislike the present government.

1. In our mutual local efforts of indoctrinating the Japanese public, I recommend the continuous publication (in Japanese media) of authentic data, that unmasks the Communist conspiracy. I should be happy to assist in funds and procurement of news print; note our recent pulping ofobsolute texts.

2. One of the most important American agencies, which we must fully exploit, is the Congressional Committee on Un-American /Activities. I have just read a brochure by the Chairman, the Hon J. Parnell Thomas (New Jersey) entitled "Ten Years of Vigilance". This clean-cut summary of the Committee's activities also reveals the shattering story of Communist penetration, in all walks of life. As such, it is most instructive: As a reprint, it may serve to remind the Japanese political and labour leaders, that when they toy with Communism they are flirting with disaster. The complete subservience of these traitors, to Moscow, is also clearly driven home. We will assist (thru ATIS) in translating this and any other related material.

3. I take the liberty of suggesting that you expand this line of attack, to include all of this important Committee's past publication. The official dignity of this Committee will carry these publications far better than any other background. I have in mind:

a. Report on Communist Controlof CIO Transport Workers.
b. Report (56 pp) Communist Party as Agent of a Foreign Power.
c. Report Southern Conference Human Welfare (Comm Front).
d. Report on U. S. Comm Party to overthrow U. S. Government.

4. Your writers can digest this material, for circulation in the American Press. It will orient the new political and labour class, on the true nature of Communism as a Soviet tool.

SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

SUBJECT: Japan Communist Party Central Committee Directive No. 278

The following is a translation of Japan Communist Party Directive No. 278 dated 22 July 1948, Subject: "Engage in Activities Against the Enemy's Attack", as reported by a reliable source:

"Directive #278 22 July 1948

FROM: Secretariate Section, Central Committee, Japan Communist Party

TO: Regional, Prefectural and District Committees

SUBJECT: Engage in Activity Against the Enemy's Attack

1. Up to now you have maintained a watchfulness for the defense of the organization of the party, but the recent attempted assassination of the Secretary General revealed that there was practically no watchfulness for the protection of the principal leaders from the hands of the enemy and that there was no training of party members regarding such matters.

In order to reinforce secretly their weak and dangerous condition and their comprador-like nature, the ruling class is now not only resorting more and more to reactionary laws and oppressive measures, but is organizing the reactionary Anti-Communist elements, giving them funds and facilities and undoubtedly having them commit acts of violent terrorism against party leaders. These organizations are now being organized quite widely in all areas. There are quite a few which are even publishing their own newspapers. Especially in mining areas, capitalists and outside powers are positively instigating and propagandizing the activities of the Anti-Communist elements; already they have committed acts of terror against the cells and local leaders. There have been so many actual incidents that it is impossible to keep track of them.

2. You must realize that the warning our comrade, Stalin, made regarding the attempted assassination of the Secretary General of the Italian Communist Party is also a warning to our party. We must not be one to trust everyone too much. We must not be tied down by old moral concepts such as that it is bad to be suspicious of everyone. All party members must cultivate a healthy suspicious and watchful spirit since we are in the midst of a cruel and violent class struggle and we have voluntarily organized this class struggle.

3. In the event of assemblies and lecture meetings, all party members must maintain a watchfulness not only to see that the meeting runs smoothly, but they must be trained to be able to take proper measures, under the prevailing circumstances for the protection of the leaders.

4. Up to now the Secretariat of the Central Committee has requested that all party organizations investigate such Anti-Communist organizations as these, but there are practically no organizations which have accomplished this. Investigate the following things:

a. Name of organization.

b. Names and background of leaders.

c. Social standing of the members of the Organizing Committee (Ex-soldier, officer, purgee, member of a right wing organization which was dissolved, etc).

d. Matters pertaining to funds.

e. Methods of activity.

f. Newspapers and other publications.

and immediately send what you have to headquarters.

This investigation is not just something to send to headquarters. It is useful in bringing about the realization that all party members must always maintain a watchful attitude over the daily activity of these violent reactionary elements and other organizations. It will bring about the realization that all party members have the task and the responsibility to the laboring class and the party, of making such an investigation.

5. What kind of political reaction did all party members and all party organizations show regarding the attack on the Secretary General? It is requested that all party organizations base their activity regarding this incident on the following basic policy:

a. Thoroughly explain to the masses that the meaning of this incident is related to the changes for the worse of the labor laws and regulations and the oppressive incidents in Fukui, Osaka, and elsewhere.

b. In order to do this, cells will propagandize and organize meetings in their working places.

c. Bring this matter before the guidance section of labor unions and other organizations of the masses, as a request of the masses.

d. Work to organize, at the hands of the people, organizations for the defense of the party and democracy, in the factories, farms and homes.

6. Our failure is that we do not become angry at the baseness of the enemy. It must be realized that political and class hatred toward the enemy is the driving power of struggle and action. The peaceful development of revolution must not dissolve the fierce hatred felt toward the class enemy. Conversely, unless there is an extremely violent public hatred, the peaceful development of a revolution is impossible. If we Party members really understand the political and social significance of the assassination design on TOKUDA, we will be able to instill our rage in all the people.

SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

SUBJECT: Japan Communist Party Central Committee Directive No. 282

1. Directive No. 282, entitled, "Preparation for Enforcement of Political Fund Regulation Law" was issued on 25 July 1948 by the Secretariat, Central Committee, Japan Communist Party.

2. The following is the gist of Directive No. 282:

"In spite of the opposition by our party and all democratic organizations, the Political Fund Regulating Law was passed by the Diet effective 1 August 1948. The new law is directed towards the oppression of the political activities of labor unions, farmers' organizations and democratic organizations by limiting their funds. The law aims to destroy our system based on the collection of funds from the masses and to deprive us of funds.

"The law will never affect the reactionary political parties including the right-wingers of the Socialist Party who became notorious for their dealings as was exposed by the Diet's Committee for Disposing Illicit Transactions (FUTO TORIHIKI IINKAI). We of the Japan Communist Party must exert our efforts to crush such ambitions of the reactionary parties and to consolidate our party finance by: (1) Studying of Laws, (2) Book-keeping of contributions, (3) Campaign for collecting ¥10,000,000 and (4) Discrimination of electioneering funds from general party funds.

"This law is to limit our Party activity by limiting our finance, but is also proving troublesome to the bourgeois parties. The bourgeois parties have the help of the bureaucrats so we must watch for illicit transactions conducted by them. We must go on exposing them while taking the initiative in stressing financial activity. By knowing what weapons the reactionary parties are using we will be able to counter their attacks."

8. Estimate of Situation

1. Introduction:

The Japan Communist Party has worked hard to influence and control labor activity since the war but the number of known Communists in top labor union positions is only a crude index of Communist influence. In addition to cells and fractions Communists have worked through fellow travelers and secret Party members whose affiliation can only be guessed and who obscure the picture of actual Communist control. One of the most prominent sympathizers and possible secret JCP members in Japanese labor is Dobashi Kazuyoshi, energetic leader of the Communist-dominated All Japan Communications Workers Union (Zenkoku Teishi Rodo Kumiai), usually called Zentei. Zentei's aggressive strike offensive last fall and winter culminating in the threatened March-April general strike spotlighted Dobashi as one of the most powerful and certainly the most equivocal of Japan's labor leaders. Although once considered a "political neutral" and one of the most democratic labor leaders in Japan, during the past year and one half, he has directed his union along JCP tactical lines. While denying Party affiliations Dobashi has expressed sympathy for Communist teachings and certainly has had JCP support in his activities with the union.

a. Leader of Leftist Zentei: Unknown in labor or political circles until Dec 45, Dobashi has organized and developed Zentei to its present strength and directs its aggressively leftist activities. In a little over two years he has succeeded in unionizing more than 330,000 workers into a nation-wide organization representing more than 90 percent of all government communications employees. Through strong and intelligent leadership he has developed one of the best organized and most powerful unions in Japan. His meteoric rise in leading Zentei through successive strike periods rates him as one of Japan's most successful labor leaders. As head of the largest member union in the Communist-influenced National Congress of Industrial Unions, (Zenkoku Sangyobetsu Rodo Kumiai Kaigi), Dobashi has lead his union through every major offensive since the war. Zentei's capacity to interrupt all communications facilities in Japan gives it enormous power. Should its leaders choose to pervert the union's power for the tactical uses of the JCP, the effect would be serious. Communists have been aware of this potential and have agitated for strike action among Zentei workers for nearly two years.

Several times since the war the union has come dangerously close to realising a general strike and Occupation authorities have had to intervene. The recent shutting off of power by Soviet-occupied North Korean Communists is an example of how capriciously Zentei's power could be used should Japanese Communists decide on an all-out effort to bring chaos and distress to Japan as a prelude to attempting to seize control of the government. Since Party sympathizers and secret members have been used effectively by the JCP in achieving its aims in the past, a study of Dobashi is important in understanding the trend of thinking of Communist-inspired Japanese labor leaders whose questionable political affiliations threaten the democratic development of labor movement.

SUMMATION

"Smart in appearance, agile in action, Dobashi would have made good as a movie star if hed aspired to become a Bob Taylor in Japanese filmdom," a press report once said. He is always well-groomed and is something of a dandy. Unusually cool and resourceful, his diplomatic abilith is widely acknowledged among Japan's labor leaders. Although he has many friends in the Japan Federation of Labor (Sodomei) and the Social Democratic Party (Shakaito) he has chosen not to seek political office. There are several reasons for this. If he is a secret Party member he is more valuable to the JCP as a labor leader, since Communists have never won control in any country through legal parliamentary methods. In addition Dobashi is too devoted to union work to give up leadership of Zentei to assume a full time job as legislator.

2. Has High Ambitions in Youth:

Dobashi was born on 1 May 08 in Shimane Prefecture as the second son of a relatively well-to-do country pawnbroker and a proprietor of a tiny confectionary store. An average boy, he accomplished nothing outstanding. He loved sports, however, and became quite skilled in jujitsu, swimming, and javelin throw. At Yonago Middle School in Tottori Prefecture he developed an interest in geography and history. Ambitious and proud, Dobashi wanted to become a professor or a government official and in 1926 went to Tokyo where he studied German law at Meiji University. By then his interest in social sciences had grown and he became an admirer of Oyama Ikuo, noted Socialist who recently returned from the United States. Meanwhile Dobashi read books by Marx and Engels and attended meetings of a student organization called Social Science Society. His father lost everything in a stock market crash just before Dobashi was graduated, but he managed to finish school and complete three years of post-graduate work by taking a job as a drugstore clerk.

There was no professorial vacancy when Dobashi finished college in 1935. In addition, he failed his civil service examination and lost his chance to become a government official. Reluctantly he sought employment with the Central Post Office in Tokyo as a clerk. A year later he married and now has two children. Dobashi made little as mail sorter and his wife was forced to do sewing to help out the family resources. Dobashi's interest had shifted from law to history by then and he read avidly on Japanese history, trying to compare conditions which existed in the Meiji Era with those of the 1930's. He became indignant over the "feudalistic system of old Japan" and developed the idea that "bureaucracy is a perpetuation of feudalism which oppressed the workers." (a)

From Dec 43 to Aug 45 Dobashi served as a private in the Kyushu home defense unit. When he returned to his position in the post office after the war, he resolved to put his anti-bureaucracy theories into practice. After studying the surrender terms Dobashi struck upon an idea to organize labor. After working out a program for unionization Dobashi and a small group of communications workers formed the nucleus of a union in Dec 45. Aiming at the replacement of old bosses of communications workers with new leaders the group proposed a four-point program: (1) improvement of working conditions, (2) elevation of social standing, (3) participation in management and (4) elimination of feudalism, especially bureaucracy. Representatives from several prefectures met a month later and unanimously elected Dobashi chairman of the executive committee of the new union. Since then he has lead Zentei with an efficient and determined hand. (b)

3. Political Affiliations Uncertain:

Dobashi is unquestionably the most difficult person to portray accurately among Japan's labor leaders. His continued hold on union leadership reportedly is due to his ability to maintain a balance of power between the right and left-wing factions. Investigations of his own political status have reached divergent conclusions, however, and despite his rise in labor politics his political affiliations remain obscure. Although some Communists in the union oppose him on the ground that he is too independent and tends to be too moderate by deviating from strong Party policies, this is no proof that Dobashi is not acting on secret orders as a paid tool of the Japan Communist Party. A self-acknowledged admirer of Soviet Russia and communism, to all intents and purposes, he seems to be a Communist

Although once considered a "political neutral" and one of the most democratic labor leaders in Japan, during the past 18 months he had direct pressure from Communist elements within his union and no conclusive proof has yet been obtained that Dobashi is an actual JCP member. It has long been known, however, that he is a strong sympathizer and has, in general, followed Party policy in labor. As early as Mar 46 it was reported that Dobashi relied heavily upon advice of Communist organizers in Zentei headquarters. His conduct and public statements for some time have branded him as a strong Communist sympathizer if not a secret Party member. He has endorsed JCP policies in several public statements.

a. Expresses Pro-Communist Sentiments: In February he told a Japanese newspaper survey of views on Communism. "I favor any Party which is supported by the working masses, and I favor the Japan Communist Party on this ground. The JCP has been exerting every effort to improve living conditions for the laboring class, and has pointed out contradictions in the capitalistic system. The JCP knows the aims of the working people and is trying to assist in the attainment of this aim. I cannot find any indication of exploitation of labor in the JCP. I support that Party with all my heart; the JCP has only a few seats in the Diet and its influence is rather weak. This is due to the fact that Japan's laboring class is rather weak in political consciousness. It is also attributed to a recurring slander against the JCP by the capitalists." Commenting on the Communist revolution, he said "unless we do our very best, a Communist revolution will be difficult." Stating that a revolution "depends upon the tempo of the vicious economic conditions," he charged that big businessmen, bankers and financiers are "the root of the evil." He predicted that "honest laborers, farmers and townspeople will finally come to realize the cause of their suffering" and that "this will lead to a revolution." (c)

At another time Dobashi said: "...I can assure you that in case the Communist Party or the Left Wing of the Socialist Party have power over the nation the present situation will be much improved, since (they) are for the working classes." (d); last February Dobashi joined the JCP in denouncing the Katayama Government as incompetent and exhorted workers to place their faith in the Communist Party, because the "Communist Party is the only party which includes our interests in its party platform." He added: "The JCP is a people's party; there can be no harm in working with it when it agrees with our dispute."(e)

Meanwhile Dobashi reportedly told a meeting of JCP members that he would make public announcement of his Party affiliation if and when he is forced to resign from the chairmanship of Zentei. This would parallel the tactics of Kikunami Katsumi who kept his Communist affiliation secret while chairman of the NCIU. Upon failure to be reelected in Jul 47 he announced his Party membership. From the organization of the union and as long as he held office Kikunami persistently denied that he was a Communist. Only after resigning did he admit Party membership. Although previously many disbelieved him, he had drawn considerable strength from posing as an independent with no proved relationship with the JCP. He is now a member of the Party's Supreme Council.

4. Promotes Party Line in Speeches:

Dobashi early became one of the most popular speakers among Japanese labor leaders with his forceful speeches and winning personality. Many of his speeches follow typical Communist lines and have conformed with the Party's anti-American attacks. In April Dobashi reportedly stated that: "If the United States had not interfered the present Ashida Cabinet would have been forced to resign. Those who cooperated with our union, as well as its regular members, have acknowledged the fact that the actual enemy of labor is not the present government, but the United States." (f) Dobashi's criticism of Occupation officials is apparently in accordance with the policy of anti-Occupation propaganda which Tokuda Kyuichi and other JCP leaders have advocated. Dobashi has charged GHQ with "openly and secretly oppressing Japanese labor. . ." (g)

It is significant that during Jan 48 Party leaders reportedly urged the Japanese leftist press to engage in anti-Occupation propaganda by giving publicity to alleged cases of oppression of labor. It is possible that Dobashi is following JCP advice in making remarks critical of the Occupation. In Sasebo, Kyushu, he told union members: "The 1 Feb 47 strike was ordered to be canceled by the Occupation Forces, and this action was contradictory to Labor Union Regulations. . . Labor has the right to strike as a means of obtaining its objectives. We realize that we were defeated in this war, but we should not always accept the orders of the Occupation unconditionally. Althoug the unions strive to advance the labor front it is impossible, due to the Occupation Forces and other opposition." (h)

5. Dobashi in Zentei:

Since Dec 45, Dobashi has organized and developed the union to its present strength and directs its aggressively leftist activities. Aided by Communists, he directed a demonstration against the Communications Ministry in Feb 46 which achieved a 200 to 300 percent salary raise for all government communications workers. In the inaugural national convention of the union on 31 May 46, Dobashi was elected chairman of the union with 518 of the 566 votes cast. He has been reelected since then, has started a union paper and has organized lectures on labor movements for union members. (i) As a result of his successful tactics and shrewd organizing ability, more than 90 percent of all Communications workers joined the union. His repeated pledges to keep the union politically neutral gained a large following among those who considered Communist fraction activity over-impatient and irresponsible. Dobashi refused for several months to bring his union into the Communist dominated NCIU. The union, however, on 19 Aug 46, voted to join the federation and at the inaugural conference Dobashi was elected one of the two vice chairmen.

By virtue of his personality and background Dobashi is the most powerful figure in Zentei. His influence is felt in every phase of major union activity and he is responsible for coordinating the work of the Central Committee, Central Executive Committee, National Headquarters and Central Struggle Committee. A tireless worker, Dobashi has developed the best organized union in Japan and from the beginning has been its actual as well as its titular head. Through cool and resourceful diplomacy he has better control over his union than any other big union leader in Japan. It should be noted that the Communications Workers Union, due to the nature of the work in which its members are engaged, is able to maintain close liaison between its branches, through government communications channels. Dobashi can, therefore, maintain a more closely coordinated organization than other union leaders, and is able to instigate unified action by all local branches more rapidly than other union leaders who do not have as easy access to these communication channels.

Meanwhile Dobashi works with a strong Communist fraction in the union's Central Executive Committee which is supported by a large group of pro-communists who undoubtedly exert strong pressure upon Dobashi. Directly under Dobashi two of the three vice-chairmen in Zentei follow the Communist line. Dobashi's chief assistant, Takahara Shinichi, vice-chairman is a known JCP member. He may be the central figure in the Communist fraction in Zentei headquarters and unquestionably maintains liaison with the Party. It may be assumed that where Party interest and labor interests conflict this man will use his influence for Party interests. Young and fiery, Takahara has taken a leading role in union affairs for more than a year, taking his orders direct from Dobashi. Besides being chief of the Education Bureau he was a member of the 1 Feb 47 general strike central struggle committee. Last fall he headed a special committee in charge of directing union activities in the projected October Offensive. Takahara's chief deputy is Ebihara Tetsu, a Party liner and possible secret Party member.

6. Dobashi and the 1 Feb 47 General Strike:

Dobashi played an active role in organizing and was one of three leading figures in the Communist-sponsored All Japan Government and Public Workers Joint Struggle Committee, which planned and controlled the projected 1 Feb 47 general strike. He served as one of the key committee members with Ii Yashiro and Suzuki Seiichi, Communist labor leaders. The Joint Struggle Committee directed the entire dispute from the drafting and presentation of the initial demands to the final calling off of the strike a few hours before it was to begin. It consisted of a small group of top leaders who represented their respective unions in the dispute. At least two-thirds of these leaders were Communists or Party sympathizers dominating the group and thereby controlling the entire dispute. During the struggle period Dobashi joined other strike leaders in expressing vehement defiance toward SCAP in accordance with a policy dictated by the JCP and encouraged by Soviet officials in an effort to discredit US Occupation authorities. So vigorously did Dobashi lead Zentei in this dispute that his union became one of the most prominent participants in the strike attempt. (j)

While most unions and their leaders became more inclined to settle dispute by negotiations through established labor mediation machinery after 1 Feb 47, Dobashi continued strike agitation. He joined radical labor leaders in raising loud outcries upon receipt of SCAP's no-strike order and in abusing the Government on the charge that Allied intervention would not have been necessitated had the Government been willing to meet the demands of its workers. Dobashi joined the Government Railway Workers Union (Kokutetsu) in making concerted efforts to initiate independent strikes during February. On 1 Feb, only a few hours after the strike was canceled, Dobashi instructed all local Zentei branches to be prepared to conduct independent strikes at any time after 2 Feb. He told union members to strengthen Zentei's internal organization and continue to press their demands. (k) Thus Zentei remained more active than any of the other government workers union following the strike ban. A continuous exchange of comment was carried on between its headquarters in Tokyo and its various branch headquarters regarding plans for an independent strike scheduled for 24 Feb 47. Allied officials intervened again, however, and the strike was called off. On 21 Feb Zentei agreed to drop its state of strike preparedness and by 9 Mar the union's Central Struggle Committee was officially dissolved, but only after prolonged agitation by union leaders and after Zentei had gained most of its economic demands in whole or in part.

7. Zentei During Past Year:

A discussion of Dobashi Kazuyoshi is not complete without a discussion of his union. Zentei remained relatively quiet after it dropped its plans for the 24 Feb 47 strike, but by fall it became clear that Communists were placing greatest emphasis on agitating Zentei, along with the All Japan Electric Industry Workers Union (Zen Nippon Denki Sangyo Rodo Kumiai), for the Party's prolected "October Offensive." Zentei revived its struggle committee in August and directed local branches to present demands to the Central Labor Relations Committee for mediation before 5 Sep 47. Even while union headquarters was submitting grievances to the CLRC there was primary emphasis on the organization of regional waves of strikes which were to engulf the whole country. Work slowdowns, 24-hour walkouts and absenteeism appeared in major cities and spread rapidly until by late fall they had disrupted considerably mail and telephone communications. Although union officials claimed that these strikes were unauthorized and spontaneous, they gave every indication of being part of an organized program. The confusion and delay caused in government communications became so serious that on 23 Oct the Cabinet was forced to issue a sharp warning to communication workers on their "deliberate idleness." Commenting on this remonstration, Dobashi countered that "the issuance of such a threatened statement might well lead to serious circumstances and might even cause a genuine large-scale strike." (l)

On 31 Oct Dobashi protested non-payment of absent workers during the union's strike period. A few days later he endorsed the "sonal negotiation method" for future union activities, apparently trying to relieve union headquarters of the mounting pressure from both the government and the Occupation to halt the organized strike program.

a. Strike Plans Continue: By winter strike action had abated but Dobashi and his followers never actually gave up hopes of realizing a strike and proposed new demands. Beginning 1 Mar 48 the union launched an all-out offensive against the government. Instead of the previous harassing tactics of "wildcat strikes" and slowdowns, the union resorted to locally conducted 24 and 48 hour sitdown or walkout strikes on dates designated by the Central Struggle Committee. By virtue of his position in Zentei, Dobashi heads the union's Central Struggle Committee which directs the dispute tactics of the union and which is responsible for accepting or rejecting CLRC rulings. At present it is a communist-dominated body with more than half its members either JCP members or fellow travelers. On 7 Feb 48 this Committee outlined plans for a "grand offensive" against amendments to labor union laws, revision of labor contracts, reshuffle of administrative personnel and increases in rail and postal rates. The CSC resolved to "apply pressure by all methods to oppose unjust revision of labor laws." (m) Later the committee rejected the Government's ¥2,920 wage base, continued its nation-wide wave of 24-hour layoffs, and scheduled a general strike for 23 Mar 48.

Although the strike was suspended following Labor Minister Kato Kanju's announcement that there would be no changes in labor laws, Zentei scheduled a three-day strike program which was to reach its climax in a nation-wide general strike on 31 Mar. It actually carried out the first phase of the struggle before official intervention forestalled the threatened strike. The 3 Apr 48 official interpretation of the order prohibiting the scheduled 1 Feb 47 general strike as meaning regional as well as nation-wide strikes served to check the wave of regional strikes by government employees. In the face of this announced application of the strike ban, Zentei's CSC decided to remove central control of local strike activities and to encourage forceful voluntary struggles by union locals instead. (n)

Although Government revival of the strike ban brought relative peace to the labor field, the situation still remained acute. At first Zentei officials regarded regional 24-hour work stoppages as within the law and although they canceled the nation-wide strike scheduled for 31 Mar, local strikes continued. By mid-April an estimated two-thirds of the 1,800,000 government workers had accepted Government proposals for settlement of the dispute, but Zentei remained a principal hold-out. Dobashi lead a three-day Central Committee meeting to decide future struggle policy. He instructed all union branches to establish counter-oppression committees, in expectation of government oppression. The directive told all locals to continue independent strikes while negotiations were proceeding. When the dispute finally ended, Dobashi was named a member of the New Pay Adjustment Committee of 10 Government and 10 labor representatives set up to reach an amicable settlement of the wage issue. Meanwhile the union reluctantly went along with the All Japan Government and Public Workers Liaison Council in accepting the ¥2,290 wage level as a provisional measure pending settlement of new wage scale. (o)

Zentei was not satisfied, however, and Dobashi made it clear that the agreement is only a matter of expedience, saying that "if negotiations end in rupture the union will strike again." Union representatives told the press that the basic labor laws set down by the International Labor Committee protects their right to strike and that they consider themselves free to carry out regional strikes.

8. Estimate of Situation:

Dobashi bears watching, not only because he heads one of the largest and most powerful unions in Japan, but because he has shown an increasing tendency to follow the Japan Communist Party line in his administration of Zentei. The vast powers he has as chief of the union is augmented by the fact that he has better control over his union than other Japanese labor leaders have over theirs. Dobashi's close adherence to Communist policies and the fact that he welcomes Party advice and aid leaves room for conjecture that he is a paid tool of the Party. If he actually is working under Communist instructions he is in a position to divert the enormous powers of his union for Party purposes should the JCP try to cause nation-wide chaos and economic distress before attempting to take over the country.

While it is not known whether Dobashi is an official Party member, there is substantial evidence showing his support of Party policies in labor and that for all intents and purposes he is a communist. His activities in Zentei may be due to Communist influence within the union to which he commits himself in order to retain his position as Zentei chief. Dobashi wants to hold his position in the union and there is no indication that he will resign or will be unseated in the near future. His hold on the union is stronger than ever, as he has proved in leading Zentei through successive strike periods during the past year and a half.

Dobashi's consistent adherence to Communist policies in his union activities is a dangerous influence and threatens the democratic development of Japanese labor unions. Unless the Japanese themselves can eliminate such radical elements from high positions of labor unions it may postpone indefinitely the democratization of Japan.

Recent Movements of the Japan Farmers Union

1. The following decisions were made by Standing Committee Members OZAWA (fnu), SHIMOSAKA (fnu), OKADA (fnu), TANAKA (fnu), and HARUSE (fnu):

a. The 3rd National Convention will be held for 3 days beginning around 20 August 1948.

b. A place will be borrowed which imposes no time limit on the length of the meeting.

c. A Central Committee meeting will be held before and after the National Convention.

2. A summary of the meeting of the Japan Farmers Union Orthodox Faction Comrades Society (SEITOHA DOSHIKAI), which was held 21 June 1948, is as follows:

a. Main participants were as follows:

KURODA Hisao, OZAWA (fnu)(Aomori Prefecture), TAMAI (fnu) (Niigata Prefecture), YAMAGUCHI (fnu)(Ibaragi Prefecture), OBARA (fnu) (Nagano Prefecture), HAMANO (fnu)(Tochigi Prefecture), SHIOZAKI (fnu) (Tokushima Prefecture), SAITO (fnu)(Chiba Prefecture), HORIE (fnu) (Tottori Prefecture). Approximately 20 persons attended.

b. The objective of this meeting was to establish an organ for liaison and cooperation on Japan Farmers Union problems between Japan Farmers Union members who are Socialist Party (SHAKAI-TO) members and who belong to the united (leftist) faction, and independent members of the Japan Farmers Union. Approval was given to join the United Round-table Conference (TOITSU KONDANKAI), which includes the Communist Party, and to engage in joint actions.

Assistants	:	All participants

d. There is an intention to make this organization a basis for the foundation of a new political party. It is said that the organization is to engage in collective bargaining with the Communist Party. The main current of this organization is running in the right direction.

Future Prospects and Countermeasures

1. Leadership on the Japan Farmers Union should be in compliance with previous Japan Communist Party Central Committee Directives. However, the following points should be carefully noted:

a. Throughout July 1948, the JFU Leadership Character Establishment League (NICHINO SHUTAISEI KAKURITSU DOMEI) will be strengthened from below with Minister KOMIZO Masaru, and vice-minister OSHIMA (fnu) at the front. Through these activities, the power of the united (leftist) faction prefectural federations will be suppressed. Those prefectural federations, in which the united factions are strong, will be expelled and dissolved on some excuse, and will be denied the right to attend the national convention.

2. Concerning the above conditions, the following leadership must be given:

a. All cells and cell groups must expose the betrayal actions of those delegates of the Leadership Character Faction who approved the huge budget. Emphasize that the burden of the farmer is becoming increased due to increases in various taxes and the raising of transportation and postal rates. Organize a struggle.

b. Although only one National Convention must be held, there is a possibility that two may be convened. Therefore, those United Faction Branches which belong to Leadership Character Faction Prefectural Federations are to remain in their original positions, and develop a struggle to attend the United Faction National Convention. Even though 2 Nation Conventions are convened, it is imperative that opportunities be grasped through delegates who will attend the Leadership Character Faction National Convention, to have policies of the Japan Communist Party fully understood by those farmers who are under the influence of the Leadership Character Faction.

3. Branches which belong to the Leadership Character Faction must be halted and a joint struggle must be promoted from within. The party, from the standpoint of uniting the battle front of all farmers, will establish footholds for struggles in various places. Members of the Leadership Character Faction must be purged from the farmers' front.

CONFIDENTIAL

4. When the Leadership Character Faction holds assemblies, etc., mobilise united faction farmers and utilize all opportunities (congratulatory addresses, questions, etc.) to expose their betrayal actions.

5. Make all organ papers of the Japan Farmers Union pass resolutions to overthrow the Ashida Cabinet and to investigate all Japan Farmer Union delegates who approved the budget and advance quotas. Throughout Japan, inform organ papers of this, and send telegrams to all prefectural federations.

6. District councils of the JFU are to convene conferences and influence prefectural federations where the united faction is weak. Prefectural federations must be apparated from the Leadership Character Faction. It is important to utilise the dissention within the Socialist Party and to influence wavering elements.

7. Laborers and farmers must be led to fight the National Convention Struggle. Organize Youth Action Corps (SEINEN KODO TAI) and labor unions in unorganized areas. The leadership of the laborers must be established through actual struggles. After the National Convention, make organs of the JFU pass resolutions to convene a labor-farmer meeting to overthrow the Ashida Cabinet. Collect demands of all the prefectural federations and have KURODA Hisao make demands. Unite with labor offensives and give leadership so that labor-farmer meetings will be held in protest against regional and central authority.

8. On 18 July 1948, the National Labor-Farmer Group Conference will be held; on 19 July 1948, the JFU National Group Conference; and on 20 July 1948, the JFU United Faction Round-table Conference. Have formal organs of the prefectural federations discuss countermeasures for the above meetings. Comply with previous JCP Central Committee Directives on union dues and posters, etc. Send as many Communist Party members as possible to the convention and organizers who can fight at the National Convention. Submit union dues to KURODA Hisao. Dues of branches which belong to prefectural Federations of Leadership Character Factions will submit dues according to prospects of gaining delegates.

Movements for a New Political Party

Among independent delegates and a part of the Socialist Party delegates who opposed the budget, there is a movement to form a new Labor-Farmer Party (RONO TO). In order to encourage the party purge struggle, have JFU organs pass resolutions to encourage those JFU delegates who opposed the budget, and to support the Socialist Party purge movement.

Concerning united faction elements who participate in the movements for a new political party, concentrate their anger on opposing factions within the Socialist Party such as the Socialist Party Purge league and the Opposition to Expulsion League (JOMEI HANTAI DOMEI).

The investigation and purge of NOMIZO Masaru, who cooperates with the Ashida Cabinet, will be the basis for this. Utilize the anti-official atmosphere atmosphere of the Socialist Party Youth Department. Lead them toward a thorough struggle within the Socialist Party. The Communist Party must support them in their struggle on a friendly basis.

a. Our Party should be strengthened by educating and training Party members. The Party Cells should be strengthened as they are essential in carrying out proficient political activities. It is needless to say that the Japan Communist Party was unable to attain its aims in the February 1st Strike. This was due mainly to the pressure of GHQ. However, we must admit that even the Party itself was not internally organized to bring about a revolution. This was due to the inactiveness and lack of political knowledge of party members. To combat this weakness each Party member must be trained in the Bolshevik methods of operations and furthermore the masses must be indoctrinated so that they will adhere to our suggestions and will participate in the revolution. Many of the Party members have a lack of faith in the revolutionary movement and there are inclinations that they are being taken advantage of and are being ordered about by the reactionary forces. The Party's influence must be strengthened and expanded through the examination of qualifications, surveillance of Party members and through the promotion of superior Party members by maintaining strict Party regulations. For these reasons it is important to strengthen the education and propaganda department of the Committee. Education and propaganda departments should be established and classes should be held in respective areas. In each cell, by means of the cell meeting study of the Akahata, debates on world situation should be held and it is essential that each Party member train himself so as to develop a habit of Political Criticism. At the same time lecturers should tour the farm villages and have classes corresponding to the political education of the Party members themselves. The cell should be the nucleus and should conduct propaganda activities for all kinds of public enlightment.

b. Formation of the Organizers Group: The selected comrades from each area or cell should be given Organizers Training at their respective committee headquarters. They should then be directed to places which need to be organized.

c. Cultural Movement: The cultural movement is to be considered as part of the Party movement. Public sentiment is still cold toward the Party due to the past record of our struggle. Through strong cultural activities we must make the masses easily intimate to the Party and convince the masses that Party Communist are strictly and sincerely struggling for the masses. To further this movement we should develop reading clubs, plays and other cultural activities. Students must be strongly indoctrinated because they are to be the personalities to carry out the future of Japan.

d. Farm-village Activities: The winning of the farmers is truly the key to the success of the revolution. However, the farm-village in general are in such a situation that the feudalistic characteristics can never fully be overlooked. Accordingly, the situation at present is that the Farmers Cooperative Union is being taken over by the Head of the Farmers Association. The Party is looking forward to acquiring authority to issue directives to the Farmers Cooperative Union which is in itself a progress of the Farm-village activities. Party members should renew the study regarding the general plan of farming held at the Sixth Mass Meeting and set up a concrete policy.

e. Youth Movement and Women Movement: The youth and women are not concerned with politics and they are easily managed by the reactionary influencing policies. Some organizations which are under the influence of the reactionary powers are: New Japan Farm-villages Construction League, Joint Youth Organization, and various Youth Cultural Groups. The tendency of these organizations is to establish an Anti-CP influence. The Party is vigorously working against this and after smashing it, will immediately make a vanguard toward the revolution.

f. Strengthening of the Youth Communist: The Youth Communist are still basically confused on the guiding policy. The Youth Communist are a massive democratic organization for the attainment of social, economical, political and cultural demands of the youths. It is against Fascism and Militarism and its aims are toward the establishment of a democratic people's Government. In this struggle to establish a people's Government the general plan is to make the masses understand communism. Organize the Youth Communists strongly and through this organization look forward to the strengthening of the Party influence and make it a vanguard of the revolutionary movement.

g. September Offensive: Through the regional struggle the organization within the ZENTEI was strengthened. The regional struggle was temporarily ended due to the pressure of GHQ, however, this pressure by GHQ enlightened the Communist Party on struggle tactics. In the coming struggle we must immediately drive forward to a people's struggle and smash the ambition of the United States, enemy of world laborers. The price readjustment brought the citizens livelihood to a new low. We must renew our resolution to struggle along side with the masses and through the strengthening of propaganda we must perfect our aims toward that of the People's struggle. Already Japan has invited the completion of her colonization under the United States and the people of Japan are as slaves and are ordered about by United States capital. We, the Japan Communist Party, were given the mission of smashing the capitalistic monopoly so we must gather the comrades of the world and dash forward to accomplish the mission. The basic movement policies for the coming struggle are as follows:

1) Life protection struggle contents which are to be for the attainment of winter allotments, raising of actual wages and the establishment of a minimum wage system.
2) Attainment of fundamental rights such as the abolishment of the national public officials laws, the deterioration of labor rules and regulations and the enforcement of labor standard laws.
3) Production recovery struggle which is a guarantee of finance and the establishment of welfare.
4) Democratization of Finance struggles such as the calculation of annual expenses; democratization of the tax-collection organs and the democratization of taxation.
5) Edufational and cultural struggle of those who work to embody the expulsion of degenerating culture and the complete enforcement of the 6.3 system.

Considering the pressure of the Japanese Government and GHQ authorities in the coming struggle we must immediately form the Defense Promotion teams.

h. Investigation Activities: GHQ and the Puppet Japanese Government have attempted to expose the Japan Communist Party. This was expressed by the United States policies toward the international situation. In order to correspond to this situation we must always investigate the movements of the reactionary powers. Even the local Government is investigating our activities. The police department has become a strong organization and their attitude toward us has become stubborn. We must drive forward to strengthen our organization and strengthen our investigative activities.

i. Counter-Measure of the Repatriates: The repatriates activities have not yet reached the border of success. In spite of the fact that good results have been attained through the Soviet Union's education of repats while in Siberia many of the repatriates have started Anti-CP Leagues. We must open a repatriates consultation Association and work vigorously to combat these Anti-CP Leagues.

STATEMENT CONCERNING THE ASSASSINATION PLOT AGAINST SECRETARY-GENERAL TOKUDA.

The assassination plot involving Secretary-General Tokuda is the most extremely violent action by the cowardly, militaristic, treacherous and reactionary elements still existing in Japan which are being helped by the anti-civil rights and suppressive policies recently pursued by the Japanese Government. This action is not directed against Tokuda alone, but is also a brutal terrorist action against the working class as a whole.

This incident was caused by the reactionary policies of the Japanese Government which is returning to militarism and fascism by means, such as the suppression of all democratic movement by the issuance of public safety by-laws in Fukui city only recently; or the issuance of regulations barring or preventing demonstrations in Osaka, Kyoto and 12 other prefectures; and statements depriving government workers of the right to strike. Furthermore, the culprit is definitely a member of the Anti-Communist League. This (incident) indicates that the reactionary, terrorist organizations, which had been eliminated by the Potsdam Declaration, are still existing under the protection of the ruling classes.

Such tendencies are not limited to Japan, but are world-wide in scope. The sinister assassination plot against the Secretary-

General of the Communist Party in Italy explicitly indicates this tendency. We hereby proclaim that we will fight in the name of all the working classes of Japan against the violent policies of the ruling class of Japan which is utilizing the underground reactionary organizations. At the same time, in conjunction with the democratic forces the world over, we demand the strict enforcement of the Potsdam Declaration in Japan, and we hereby make a strong protest against the Japanese Government which is promoting the revival of reactionary influences by sabotaging (the enforcement of the Potsdam Declaration).

APPEAL TO THE WORKING CLASSES IN JAPAN!

Since the ruling class of Japan cannot control the working classes by deceptive measures behind a façade of democracy, they have resorted to extreme and cowardly violence. These fascistic measures have appeared in the form of reactionary laws; on the other hand, it has appeared in the form of violent oppression of the movement of labor unions, farmers' organizations and other democratic organizations. Our party appeals to the working people to organize and awaken. We hereby protest against the political powers in the central as well as local governments; at the same time we propose that you, the people, will organize a democratic defense by yourselves in your own businesses, farming villages and homes. The right of the people can only be protected by the people; there is no other way.

However, these violent policies are merely indications of fear on the part of the ruling class, of the growth of revolutionary tendencies on the part of the Japanese working people. The Japanese Communist Party has great confidence in the ability of the working class, and it will have the honor of continuing to be the vanguard of such a movement.

In expression of the indignation of the Japanese people, we question the responsibleness of the Ashida Cabinet for the incident, and at the same time we demand it's immediate resignation.

1. STRICT MEASURES AGAINST THE TERRORIST ORGANIZATIONS.
2. ELIMINATION OF ANTI-COMMUNIST, MILITARISTIC, TERRORISTIC INFLUENCES.
3. OBJECTION TO THE SUPPRESSION OF WORKERS.
4. ANNIHILATION OR DESTRUCTION OF FASCISM BY THE DEMOCRATIC PEOPLE'S FRONT
5. PROTECTION OF PEACE, FREEDOM, AND INDEPENDENCE.
