1. The continuously increasing Japanese birth rate and resultant increase in population is having such serious effects on the economic situation of Japan that the Japanese have turned to the Occupation Forces for advice and suggestion. The ethical and moral implications involved in the encouragement of birth control and in the dissemination of educational material regarding its practice are so contentious that military government must not be associated with such activities.

2. It is desired, therefore, that all interested Japanese officials be informed that the entire subject of birth control is one of Japanese concern only and that under the recently passed Eugenics Protection Law (No. 156) and the Pharmaceutical Affairs Law (No. 197) they may proceed with any program which they deem desirable.

3. Hereafter, military government will not concern itself with the subject.

For your information and possible use.

The people of one ward of Shitsumi village have established a co-operative kitchen to operate periodically during the busy seasons when mothers must work away from the homes. Eighteen families live in the ward, numbering seventy-nine people.

The kitchen is loaned by Mr. Denemon Onishi(age 69) who is a public spirited citizen, anxious to see his village progress. The kitchen is centrally located and is very clean and well kept. A house wife and a female student have voluntered their services in the kitchen. The first few days after the kitchen was opened Miss Sato of Food Section Kyoto Prefecture gave instruction and guidance for operation of the project using charts and posters made by C.I.

The C.I. officer of this team visited the kitchen with representatives of the Kyoto Prefecture Information Section and saw the actual workings of the project. This was a surprise visit so no special planning was possible. On the day of the visit the vice mayor had left his home at 0530 to go to the city market to pick up rations for all families. He returned with them about 1200. By careful menu planning and buying, it is possible to keep the cost low for everyone.

Great interest is shown in the project and the venture is voted highly successful by the group.

Enclosures of pictures taken at the kitchen are submitted for your information and possible use.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 715013

Each family has space on shelves for dishes and baskets to be used in carrying the prepared food. Each place is labeled with name and number of people in the family.

Raw produce is supplied jointly according to number in family.

When food is prepared it is placed in dishes on shelves. The noon day and evening meals are prepared daily.

Some of the mothers come from the fields to get their noonday meal.

Happy children help by carrying food to their parents who are still in the fields.

Most families prefer to eat the meals in their own homes or in the field. If they wish they may eat them at the kitchen. After the meal is eaten dishes are washed by each family and returned to the shelves built in kitchen -- ready for next meal.

Posters are crop production, food conservation, hygiene in carrying for food, etc. -- made by C.I. are displayed on the walls of the kitchen.

2. Attached extract (inclosure 1) of reports submitted by the Prefectural Government indicates that the figures shown in reference above represent, with two exceptions (underlined), the situation as of 20 April 1949, not 10 May as stated.

3. Situation as of 20 May indicates considerable improvement. Entire allocations of woolen and cotton shirts and sweaters have been delivered to consumers. Cotton cloth, the largest single item, is 96.5% complete. One hundred percent of available quantities of wool and cotton trousers, woolen drawers, and underwear have or will in a few days be delivered to farmers.

4. Greatest obstacle to completion is the failure of shipping prefectures to deliver the full allocated quantities of all items. In the case of this prefecture's allocation of socks, only 20% have been received from manufacturers.

1. During the past few weeks reports have come to the attention of this headquarters wherein the Japanese civil police in localities within the Kinki Region have been "pushed around" without taking any action against the offenders.

2. If the police are to be effective, they must have the respect of the public. This respect must be based upon the impartial and aggresive discharge of their duties as provided by laws. To do otherwise is to lose the respect of the public.

3. Specific laws may not exist to cover every conceivable situation; however, the following public pronouncements give an indication of the overall attitude which the police should adopt:

a. Chapter 1 of Diet Law 196, the Police Law, dated 17 Dec 1947, incorporates duties as follows:

"The Police power is inherent in every sovereignty and embraces the whole system of internal regulation by which the state seeks not only to preserve the public order and to prevent offenses against itself, but to also establish for the intercourse of citizens with citizens, those rules of good manners and good neighborhood which are calculated to prevent the conflict of rights and to insure to each the uninterrupted enjoyment of his own, so far as it is reasonable consistent with the enjoyment of rights by others".

b. In a letter from the Commander in Chief, FEC to the Prime Minister, 16 Sept 47, it was stated that:

"Responsibilities of the Police will be confined to prevention of crime, suppression of criminal activities, detection and apprehension of criminals or violators of criminal laws, protection of life and property, and the serving of warrants, subpoenas, and other courst instruments as directed by competent authority"

c. In a letter from the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers to the Prime Minister in July 48, after discussing the consequences of premitting a minority group to render the government impotent, the letter continues:

"In Japan, where the maintenance of armed forces is renounced by constitutional mandate, such application of police power can, however, only be supported by the civil police. This renders it all the more necessary here than else where that the law carefully define and make unmistakably clear the authority of government and provision for the firm preservation of its integrity and dignity".

4. In the event the police in their operations need to seek more severe punitive action against offenders by corrective action on the spot, they may rely on the following statutory provisions:

a. Article 95 of the Criminal Code-- Every person who has used violence or threats against a public official in the performance of his duties shall be punished with penal servitude or imprisonment not exceeding three years.

The same (punishment) applies to every person who has used violence or threats against a public official with an intention of causing him to do or refrain from doing an (official) act or of causing his resignition.

b. Article 106 of the Criminal Code--Persons who by assembling in large numbers have used violence or threats shall be punished for riot and in accordance with the following classification:

(1) The ringleaders, with penal servitude or imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than ten years;

(2) Those who have directed others or have led others and encouraged (the disturbance), with penal servitude or imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than seven years;

(3) Those who have (merely) followed, with a fine not exceeding ¥50.

c. Article 107 of the Criminal Code--Persons assembled in large numbers with (intent) to use the violence or threats who have refused to disperse even though ordered three or more times to do so by the public officials concerned shall be punished with penal servitude or imprisonment not exceeding three years for ringleaders and fined not more than ¥ 50 for others.

d. Law # 39, Minor Offense Law--The law is reported in the Official Gazette (Extra) 1 May 48, and is not quoted here because of its length.

e. Law # 251. Law of Temporary Measures Concerning Fines --This law provides for an increase in fines due to the depreciation of the yen and is reported in Official Gazette #817, dtd 18 Dec 48.

5. The above is brought to your attention to insure prompt and aggressive police action to prevent recurrence of these "pushing around" incidents.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 715 013

Further, the police should be in control of the situation at all times and not wait until a riot or melez is well under way before they attempt to gain control.

SUBJECT: Discharging Police Duties

TO : All Team Commanders

1. During the past few weeks reports have come to the attention of this headquarters wherein the Japanese civil police have been "pushed around" without taking any action against the offenders.

2. If the police are to be effective, they must have the respect of the public. This respect must be based upon the impartial and aggressive discharge of their duties as provided by laws. To do otherwise is to lose the respect of the public.

3. Specific laws may not exist to cover every conceivable situation; however, the following public pronouncements give an indication of the overall attitude which the police should adopt:

a. The police power is inherent in every sovereignty and embraces the whole system of internal regulation by which the state seeks not only to preserve the public order and to prevent offenses against itself, but also to establish for the intercourse of citizens with citizens, those rules of good manners and good neighborhood which are calculated to prevent the conflict of rights and to insure to each the uninterrupted enjoyment of his own, so far as it is reasonably consistent with the enjoyment of rights by others.

b. In a letter from the Commander in Chief, FEC to the Prime Minister, 16 Sept 47, it was stated that "Responsibilities of the police will be confined to prevention of crime, suppression of criminal activities, detection and apprehension of criminals or violators of criminal laws, protection of life and property, preservation of law and order, control of traffic and traffic safety, and the serving of warrants, subpoenas, and other court instruments as directed by competent authority."

c. Chapter 1 of Diet Law 196, the Police Law, dated 17 Dec 47, incorporates the duties as listed in paragraph a above.

d. In a letter from the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers to the Prime Minister in Jul 48, after discussing the consequences of permitting a minority group to render the government impotent, the letter continues, "In Japan, where the maintenance of armed forces is renounced by constitutional mandate, such application of police power can, however, only be supported by the civil police. This renders it all the more necessary here than elsewhere that the law carefully define and make unmistakably clear the authority of government and provision for the firm preservation of its integrity and dignity."

4. In the event the police in their operations need to seek more severe punitive action against offenders by corrective action on the spot, they may rely on the following statutory provisions:

a. Article 95 of the Criminal Code -- Every person who has used violence or threats against a public official in the performance of his duties shall be punished with penal servitude or imprisonment not exceeding three years.

The same (punishment) applies to every person who has used violence or threats against a public official with an intention of causing him to do or refrain from doing an (official) act or of causing his resignation.

b. Article 106 of the Criminal Code -- Persons who by assembling in large numbers have used violence or threats shall be punished for riot and in accordance with the following classification:

(1) The ringleaders, with penal servitude or imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than ten years;

(2) Those who have directed others or have led others and encouraged(the disturbance), with penal servitude or imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than seven years;

(3) Those who have (merely) followed, with a fine not exceeding ¥50.

c. Article 107 of the Criminal Code -- Persons assembled in large numbers with (intent) to use violence or threats who have refused to disperse even though ordered three or more times to do so by the public officials concerned shall be punished with penal servitude or imprisonment not exceeding three years for ringleaders and fined not more than ¥50 for others.

d. Law #39, Minor Offense Law -- The law is reported in the Official Gazette (Extra) 1 May 48, and is not quoted here because of its length.

e. Law #251, Law of Temporary Measures Concerning Fines -- This law provides for an increase in fines due to the depreciation of the yen and is reported in Official Gazette #817, dtd 18 Dec 48.

5. It is therefore desired that you bring this matter to the attention of the public safety commissions and the chiefs of police within your prefecture and discuss with them the problem of police conduct to insure prompt and aggressive police action to prevent recurrence of these "pushing around" incidents. Further, the police should be in control of the situation at all times and not wait until a riot or melee is well under way before they attempt to gain control.

(Translated by Miss Tsuda)

TO: ~~Military~~ Commanding Officer.

FROM: Shinbei Ikeda, president of Forestry Promoting Society of Kyoto Prefecture.

DATE: March 19, 1949

SUBJECT: Invitation to a planting of memorial tree.

Sir:

Allow us to thank you for your kind consideration shown to our society.

A large number of the trees of the forestries of Kyoto Pref. were cut down during the war time. And after the war, as the demand of lumbers and fuels were more and more increased, the trees were cut down exceedingly. We see bare mountains every where.

However, afforestation is not carried out as we expected before, and if it is left as it is now, shortage of lumber and fuel will become conspicuous. Also we may suffer from a flood. And irrigation water which is necessary to increase foods production, and river-head for electricity generating will be dried up. Also it spoils the beauty of the scenery. Accordingly, people's hearts will become boolish. It will be impossible to expect the elevation of our culture.

From April 1, to 7, as the week of green, our Forestry Promoting Society, jointly supported by Kyoto Pref. Office, Kyoto City Office and The Kyoto Forestry Bureau, decided to carry out "Loving forests and planting trees movement" in the week of green.

We decided to plant memorial trees as shown below.

So, allow us to request the honour of your presence on the occasion.

Also allow us to expect your answer whether you will attend or not, by March 31.

Planting of Memorial trees:

1. Place: The hill at the back of Ohara-mura Village-office, Otagi-gun.
   (The hill is owned by Ohara Secondary School)
2. Time: April 4, (Monday) at 10 a.m. 1949.
   (To be carried out in case of a little rain.
   To be postponed till the first fine day in case of rain.)
3. Gathering place and time:
   In front of Kyoto Prefectural office at 9 a.m.
   From where to the planting place, by Kyoto bus.
4. Others: Light lunch will be served.
   Dance by Ohara women will be shown.

Yours respectfully,

Pref. notified — Cannot go.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 715013

Details to carry out "Loving forests and planting trees movement"

1. Purpose:

Forestries of Kyoto Prefecture have been supplying a large number of lumbers and fuels since war time.

To meet the demand for rehabilitation of industry and economy of the country after the war, it is unavoidable to cut down trees exceedingly.

But afforestation is making slow progress. As the result of this, lumber shortage is now close at hand.

The present condition is that we are menaced by continuous series of floods and drying up of irrigation water and river-head for electricity generating which we shall have in near future.

So, we decided to carry out "Loving forests and planting trees movement" to promote afforestation and popularize loving forest idea.

本會の事業遂行につきましては、手素格別の御高配を賜りまして、厚く御禮を申上げます。

さて、京都府下の森林は戰時中多量の木材を伐採致しましたが、戰後産業圣清の復興のため、木材、薪炭の需要は益々多くなり森林は過伐せられて、到る処に禿山が目立つて来るようになりました。然し造林は思ふように行かれてゐませんので、このまゝでは、木材薪炭の不足を来すばかりでなく、水害は発生し、食糧増産に必要な灌漑や、発電の水源は涸渇し、又風致を損ふ、人心まで荒廃して、文化の向上を望むことは出来ない結果となります。

よつて四月一日から七日までを緑の週間とし、京都府林業振興會主催、京都府、京都市、京都営林署後援の下に「愛林緑化運動」を行ふ、造林の奨励と、愛林思想の普及を図ることになつた次第であります。

「愛林緑化」運動実施要項

一、目的

京都府下の森林は、戦時中の濫伐に引續き、戦後の産業経済の復興に必要な木材、薪炭を大量に供給するため、過伐を余儀なくせられてゐるが、造林事業は遅々として進まず、これがため木材饑饉は目捷に迫り一方水害の續発と、灌漑及び発電の水源は涸渇の脅威にさらされてゐる実情である。

Notes for Land Reform Meeting

1. The Land Reform Program, which started in 1946, was one of the most important of several programs started to aid the farmers and improve agricultural conditions throughout Japan.

2. Outstanding success of this program is due mainly to the work of members of the committees represented here, as well as the local Land Reform committees and other officials.

3. However, in this program to "Free the Farmers", the governments' responsibility did not stop with merely seeing that the farmer owned the land he farmed. In order to complete the "Democratization" it was necessary to see that:

a. The Nogyo Kai was abolished and Cooperative Associations, run by and for the farmers, were established - 298 Coops formed in Kyoto Fu.

b. Distribution of Fertilizer was improved so that farmers got the kind they needed when they needed it and as near as possible in the amounts they needed. Also information on better methods of utilization was furnished the farmer.

c. Extensive Land Reclamation Projects were started to make more land available to the farmers.

d. Agricultural Extension Program is currently being revised and improved to make available to the farmers latest information on improved farming practices and methods.

e. Adult Education Program is now in progress which it is hoped will teach the farmers, as well as all other citizens, the duties and responsibilities, as well as the privileges, of the people under a democracy.

6. "Efficient Performance in the Civil Service Coincides With Speedy Reconstruction of Japan."

The term "Business in a public office" as so far used in our country was a synonim of inefficiency. In fact there have been many points deserving of it. How much the public have been troubled with it! How much the rebuilding of Japan has been prevented by it! Main factors which is preventing efficiency, I.e., redtape and unreasonable performance --- should be reformed, so that a democratic and efficiency public service may come into existence. That is the foundation of the rehabilitation of Japan. It is expected that the Efficiency Bureau of the National Personnel Authority will make a program for training and reasonable placement in an effort to make public servants acquire and attitude desirable for public servants and master their duties.

Public servants, being servants for the whole, ought to consider public welfare first. Furthermore, they are not permitted to resort to as strike as means of settling complaints as is the case with employees of private enterprises, as their duties closely touch with the national life. However, they are guaranteed of freedom to explain discontent or complaints against unfavorable treatment or to submit opinions and desire. For this purpose the Equity Bureau was established in the National Personnel Authority.

Position classification plan in a certain restaurant.

Before position classification plan is established.

In a shop where position classification is not established confusion is prevailing as shown here. Who is doing What? We cannot understand.

How to make classification: Collection of data-Detailed investigation is first made as to who is doing what business.

Analysis: Facts which have been found are analyses and classified by kind of job.

Result: When classification is completed in this way, all jons are placed in cross-sections by kind of work, responsibility and difficulty is job. Some personnel treatment can be applied to the same action. This is a position-classification plan.

Once-classification is completed:

A. Compensation is made in proportion to quality and quantity of job actually done. Thus the principle of equal pay for equal work is realized.

B. Right men are placed in right places all around, as we can clarify what job requires what qualification.

C. Achievement test is enforced for promotion. As a result, no one but men of actual ability can promote.

E. Flow of work is so clearly pictured that efficiency will increase.

10. Compensation And Pension

Explanation: Reasonable sompensation must be proportionate to difficulty of job, degree of responsibility and quality of job which is done. Discrimination has so far existed due to social status, education, age, sex, etc. of an individual. To abolish such unfair treatment and to made reasonable compensation, the position classification plan should be established.

Wage level of civil servants: As compensation for public servants is paid at the cost of the people, it ought to be just and fair. The wage level of public servants is fixed as based upon two points of view: it should be in harmony with the wage level in private enterprises and it should be enough to support the minimum cultural life of civil servants including their families.

Comparison between 6,307 Yen base and 3,792 Yen base.

The National Personnel Authority announced 6,307 Yen base as a salary scale for the civil service. Although a satisfactory pay plan cannot be expected without the establishment of position classification plan, it may safety be said that the way in which this base has been fixed is practically most scientific and reasonable under such a situation as it is now.

Pension: Pension is to guarantee persons who retire after many years of civil service against old age. This makes public servants make their best while they are in the civil service without feeling uneasiness about their future.

SUBJECT: Extracts from Talk

TO: All Team Commanders

1. Following are extracts from a talk, a copy of which has been translated and furnished each Governor, and given by me to the Prefectural Governors (except Nara which was otherwise represented) Saturday, 12 February 1949:

"1. Encourage greater effort and harder work on the part of every citizen in your prefecture.

2. Inspire individuals to plan and work for the good of their [illegible] as well as for personal gain. All must be made to realize that the privilege of being a citizen in a free country is sufficient pay in [illegible] that obligations of citizenship require the performance of a number of public duties for which the pay is not money but is personal satisfaction and a contribution to society. As an example, sponsor the idea of everyone giving one hour a day to community improvement, such as groups cleaning up debris in their neighborhood, etc. The first sign of prosperity is a clean and healthy surrounding. New industry seldom locates in an unsightly area.

3. Give active support to the adult education program, making full use of public spirited citizens and voluntary organizations such as youth groups, etc. See that everyone not only knows the workings and benefits of a democracy, but also his duties and obligations as well.

One of the most important of these obligations is the prompt payment of taxes. It is imperative that the tax collection program be successfully accomplished if economic stabilization is ever to become a reality. The present program is aimed at meeting current expenditures out of current revenues. Approximately 65% of revenues are composed of tax collections.

It is essential that tax collection enforcement be effected rigidly but equitably and rationally. The cooperation of the tax-paying public is to be earnestly sought and fostered, and the importance of voluntary disclosures of their correct incomes stressed, if this type of structure is to function effectively. As an alternative, punitive measures to the full extent provided in the law must be asserted to insure compliance."

Diligent surveillance must be exercised to make certain that tax personnel recognize and assert the rights of the government as their paramount responsibility.

Subversive activities and anti-tax payment propaganda must be nullified and the equity of taxation thoroughly sold to the people.

4. Plan, obtain appropriations for, and construct needed public works.

5. Encourage new business ventures. Impress chambers of commerce and other business groups with the advisability of starting new businesses, with little or no profits now, in order to have going concerns when foreign trade opens up.

6. Arouse your people to the trying times ahead. Encourage them to accept their sacrifices willingly.

7. Guard against the few who will take advantage of this critical period to sow seeds of unrest.

8. Insist upon prompt prosecution and just punishment of law violators and especially those guilty of willful acts to obstruct the occupation program. Your authority for this is clearly set forth in the letter of General MacArthur, a portion of which I would like to read:

"There will be no place for interference by management or labor with the acceleration of production, for the burden will be shared by every segment of Japanese society. There will be no place for political conflict over the objectives to be sought as these objectives are stated with crystal clarity. Nor will there be any place for ideological opposition as the purpose to be served is common to all of the people, and any attempt to delay or frustrate its accomplishment must be curbed as menacing the general welfare."

9. The popular vote of the 23 January election indicated a number of trends in the thinking and attitudes of the public. You have, no doubt, analyzed the voting and the public attitude. There is one factor I want to stress as I consider it very important. The recently exposed scandals in high government places contributed to the shift of a large number of votes from the "middle of the road" or "center" parties to the two extremes, because the voters were protesting and voting against the former government. These protests from the public are telling all publicly elected officials and persons entrusted with public business and money to rid their own and subordinate offices of graft, favoritism and other forms of corruption. Public officials are more closely watched than is commonly realized and they cannot expect or exact from others that which they themselves do not inspire by personal example."

2. The above are furnished primarily to acquaint you with what the Governors were advised to do and as a guide in checking for progress in meeting the objectives set forth in the letter from the Supreme Commander to the Prime Minister, 19 December 1945.

3. I am specially interested in developing the community spirit as suggested in paragraph 2 above quoted extracts and to bringing about a higher standard of cleanliness throughout the region.
