MEXICO.

The excellent and reliable correspondence we are in the habit of receiving from Mexico by the semi-monthly mail had, we imagined, failed on this occasion, but having been entrusted to a private hand, it has at length arrived.—We need hardly recommend the letter to the attention of our readers, as by this time they must have learned to estimate these communications at their real value. We will only add that our correspondent is opportunities of ascertaining the position of matters in Mexico, and the prevailing policy of the government are unsurpassed.

MEXICO, March 19th, 1854.

The talk in Mexico now is entirely of briefs and tactics. The interest of Santa Anna and his proteges has created immense excitement at the Capital, and called forth innumerable military demonstrations. Unlike gallery on the highway, the mounted gentlemen of the soldier are seen gleaming and glittering in every street. Guerrero is invaded and Martinez with his brigade, the great God of War, has taken the field. His victorious Highness left on Thursday last to take the campaign in person. The transport regiment of the empire left at Buena Vista and Cerro Gordo, started at 5 P. M., freighted with the fortunes of the Mexican Caesar, his wooden legs and vast dead-all. It is reported that a small crown was given to the Generalissimo whole, as it is well understood, that when His Highness returns to Mexico he will assume the title of "His Majesty."—SANTA ANNA is under executive auspices. Just before his departure a courier from Guerrero arrived with a strong party, and it was speedily placed in the hands of the printers, and nothing bulletin. Twenty-nine of the army of Your Highness have bravely pursued into the hostile region and put to flight the rebels of Valencia, the lieutenant of Alvarez. Nothing disturbs the tranquillity of the country, and the Santa Anna party are the country preceded with the greatest enthusiasm. Nothing is heard but the clamor of the soldiers, and the sound of the drum. Mexico is now a military camp, and the Santa Anna party are the soldiers.
