1. Inclosures 1 and 2 are, respectively, English and Japanese versions of a pamphlet written by SCAP personnel to secure a broader understanding of intra-organization democracy on the part of leaders and members of civic organizations.

2. Particularly important to reach are leaders and members of youth and women's organizations, because they are most likely to appreciate and work for a free Japan.

3. Several thousand copies of Inclosure 2 have been printed under the auspices of the Kyoto Youth Group Federation, whose mailing address is on the last page of Inclosure 2. To obtain a copy of this booklet, local organization leaders need simply remit 60 sen plus postage. There might be some delay in receiving copies of the pamphlet because of difficulty of printing additional copies, and because of the present inefficiency of the Japanese mails.

4. It is recommended that you stimulate local leaders to send for a number of copies of this pamphlet.

During the elections held thus far large numbers of ballots have been invalidated by reason of improper markings and misunderstanding among the voters of the proper methods to be used in voting.

Many voters fail to realize that their choice of candidates is limited to the certified list prepared in the legal manner and selected prior to election day.

Such ballots are "lost" and do not help in establishing for the people of Japan the exercise of free elections by citizens solemnly aware of their responsibilities during the youth of their new democratic form of government.

Persons must not write their own name on ballots. They must, in their own handwriting, enter the name of one candidate, on the official ballot given them at the polls. No other markings except the name of the candidate of their choice should be entered.

All voters should take the time and study to decide which candidate will best represent their particular area; then make sure they cast their ballot for such a candidate in the approved manner.

Every voter should cast a ballot; but an improper ballot is worthless. Officials at the polls are required to give instruction to any person not certain of the procedure in correct voting. If you don't know the correct procedure, ask for it before casting your vote.

for release AFTER Diet election

The April 30th elections will find the Japanese people again voting for two different candidates--one to represent them in the Prefectural Assembly; one to represent them in their local legislative body.

Voters are cautioned again to make certain they pay strict attention to the rules of voting on April 30th. One of the most frequent causes of illegal votes in the balloting for the House of Councillors was the mistake some persons made in confusing the candidates to be selected from within the prefectures with the candidates to be selected from the nation at-large.

The same mistake can be repeated in the April 30th election if due care is not taken and intelligent interest not manifested. There will be two ballots. Each ballot will be clearly marked to indicate that it is to be used for the candidate for prefectural assemblyman, or in applicable cases, for the city, town or village assemblyman. The important thing to remember is; don't vote for your village assemblyman on the prefectural ballot and don't vote for your prefectural assemblyman on the local ballot.

If voters are confused as to the proper segregation of the candidates, official and final lists of elegible candidates are posted at all polling places and should be consulted. One list will be exclusively for local assemblymen; the other exclusively for prefectural candidates.

Select the candidate from the prefectural list whom you consider best qualified to give you free and honest government and remember to place his name on the prefectural assembly ballot on election day. Do likewise after consulting the local assembly candidates' list and using the local assembly ballot. Do not mix the names on the two ballots. Do not write two names on one ballot. Do not write the same name on both ballots.

All these precautions are necessary to assure every voter that his effort to participate in the selection of his own government officials, a guarantee of the Potsdam Declaration, is successful. The Occupation Force is here to give every possible help to every person in Japan in the functioning of the nation's life along free and democratic ideals. The Japanese government is charged with the administration of adequate laws along democratic lines. But, and this point cannot be emphasized too strongly, it is the solemn duty of every citizen to be attentive and militant in the exercise of his rights and privileges in the reconstruction of Japan.

SOVIET NEWS.(Middle part of May)

There returned number of Japanesef from CHITA & IRKUTSK Areas for these days. As to the Soviet military affairs. almost of them did not know anything about it,because they did not see any of them and have had nothing to report.
We cannot expect satisfactory reports hereafter too if the matte matter go on in this way. Followings are some fragmental news which we collected from them.

1/ At BLAGOVESHCHENSK Area,they were strengthening their border lines and rearranging their arms and equipments taht were transfered from Manchuria and also strengthning ZSA fleet. Judging from these,we can guess that they are preparing and enlarging their armies in these areas.

2/ Near BEEKIN(Between KHABAROVKA & SPASK),there had been considerable number of mechanical corps and their H.Q.too until May 1946 and since then,they transfered them to somewhere and there seems to be not so many forces at present.

3/ ZULORIN(Eastern part of KRASNOYARSK) has no big forces but thereare many engine factories. Therethey have whole day program or 24 hour labour,having three alternative labours. Productive rate seems to be one engine per week in every factory.

4/ To h the vicinity of MAKARIO, they transfered arms from German and they were building some factory area.
Machines and iron scraps were send here at least one train a day, consisting 20-30 carriages. However among the materials there were much that could not avaiable for actual use, it was said.

In the battery factories in this area, there were about about 3000 workers(1200 of them Japanese) and they were working constantly with three alternatives, day and night.
The productive capacity is said to be about 13,000 a day. (ordinal square type)

5/ Among the army and inhabitants near CHITA, there were considerable number of TATAL tribes. They used Mongolian and they had good will toward Japanese.

6/ As to the rehabilitation of Japanese army, Soviet was telling Japanese in this way that they were doing their best to send Japanese back, and at Nahodokathere were thousands of Japanese but as Japan could not send their ships, it was delaying in this way. But to speak the truth, they weresending enough men. i.e. the first DAITAKU MARU, which anchored on Mayllth held only 2500 of which capacity was 3500.

7/ Soviet are intending to send back company officers, and there are number of company officers who are in NAHODOKA Port. Democratic group in NAHODOKA(ex Japanese officers) is said to preventing their returning.

the Pacific.

The Japanese literally interpreted General MacArthur's demand for an early peace according to their previous opinions.

Many fearing their own oligarchs, expressed hope American military forces would remain indefinitely. Others began visibly but slowly to regain their pride and hauteur with a consequent return of the attitude that everything must be done in the Japanese way. They implied clearly their belief it would not be long before the Japanese would be running everything. They are the men who could be expected to gain power when foreign occupation is ended.

General MacArthur's latest comment clarifies his peace proposals. Few foreigners in Japan have quarrelled with his argument that economic recovery depends upon adequate solution of Reparations, Trade and other problems dependent upon the peace treaty.

General MacArthur previously had not given any indication on the length of time he believed was necessary to maintain supervision. His estimate of one generation implies a more thorough control after the Peace Treaty than was generally interpreted from his past statements.

Belgrade Gov't. Not Guilty of Stirring Up Trouble in the Balkans, Vilfan Says

Kyodo-AP

LAKE SUCCESS, July 2—Yugoslavia struck back at the United States today with a veiled reference to "open intimidation" in the Balkans and a long denial that the Belgrade Government ever stirred up trouble in that area.

Doctor Joza Vilfan, new Yugoslav delegate to the United Nations and former Attorney General of his country, hit at the United States in an hour-long speech to the Security Council.

Without naming names, he declared: "We agree that most recently there exist in international relations methods of intimidation —not only concealed intimidation as stated by the Representative of the United States—but even open intimidation. In any event, Yugoslavia is the last country which could be accused of intimidation. But as to intimidation, the Balkan countries can tell much."

United States Delegate Warren Austin charged last week that Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania were causing trouble in the Balkans.

Dr. Vilfan joined Albania and Bulgaria in the previous denials by declaring:

Local Bureaucrats Stymied By MacArthur's Statement

Opinion to U.S. News Heads That Allied Supervision Should Last Generation Is 1st Indication

By RUSSELL BRINES
Chief of Bureau, the Associated Press

General MacArthur's opinion that supervision of Japan should last a generation came when many Japanese by subtle hints were beginning to indicate their belief that foreign control was about ended.

SCAP's previous proposal for an early peace followed by withdrawal of military forces has led to a slow and somewhat limited return of Japanese arrogance. This is noted particularly among bureaucrats and some businessmen who expect to capitalize on the reopening of foreign trade.

These people have not yet become offensive. But their attitude has stiffened sufficiently to indicate they were beginning to feel there was no longer any need to be as completely subservient to the Occupation as before.

This attitude was denoted by an increasing insistence upon "rights," a greater assurance that Japan will be granted foreign loans.

The attitude might have been reflected in the recent Government trial balloons for the return of Okinawa and some of the Kuriles. General MacArthur had not discussed this subject publicly before. But to the Editors he gave what appeared to be a definite answer by stating territorial questions have already been settled and by implying belief the United States should retain Okinawa. He described the latter as a cornerstone of American defense in

SCAP Says If U.N. Can't Take Over It Won't Be Effective Anywhere

NIPPON TIMES 29 June 47

Unless It Is Successful in Japan United Nations Will Die Like the League of Nations

By RALPH TEATSORTH
United Press Tokyo Bureau Manager

Gen. MacArthur told the editors and publishers that failure to write a peace treaty is costing the United States one million dollars daily.

He said the United Nations should be able to take over and exercise control in Japan when United States occupation forces are withdrawn. Gen. MacArthur expressed the opinion that if the United Nations is insufficiently effective by then it would not be effective in the future in any major role in world affairs. He said unless the United Nations takes over in Japan to show its effectiveness, it will die like the League of Nations.

Gen. MacArthur said if the United Nations cannot or will not assume responsibility for the task of guiding the Japanese, this responsibility should be turned over to the 11 nations of the Far Eastern Commission or such of them as would be willing to shoulder the job. He said this non- military supervision should be maintained for the generation after occupation troops have been withdrawn.

Asked what the effect would be in Japan if there is a serious crisis in China, he replied it would be unfortunate here becamse there should normally be strong economic ties between Japan and China. He said this is recognized by the top-men of both countries.

The Ryukyus are our natural frontier, the Supreme Commander said. He said it was felt that there was no Japanese opposition to the United States holding Okinawa since the Okinawans are not Japanese and because the Japanese foreswore war.

Gen. MacArthur indicated that maintenance of the United States air forces in Okinawa is of real significance to Japan and an obvious guarantee of her own security.
