YOSHINAGA, Tokiji

1. As police official, the subject person has not a career of special police service.

Though the part of his career relating to the police service is considerably long, yet the subject person has no part at all relating to the special police service during that period. The subject person has been engaged merely in police affairs, namely, affairs concerning personnel, equipment, traffic guard, etc.

2. The subject person made efforts towards maintaining the fair and free social order.

While controlling strictly the unlawful act or activity, the subject person did his best to mercilessly oppress the military circle or other improper power, and making it his conviction from first to last to maintain the fair and free social order, he put it into practise.

Especially, it is remarkable that, during his tenure of office he held as Superintendent-General of the Metropolitan Police, the subject person devoted himself to carrying out various policies for maintenance of economic police and for security of national economic life, making efforts towards fair management of transportation, distribution,collection of daily life commodities, etc.

3. It is remarkable that the subject person was opposed to militaristic power.

(1) During his tenure of office he served as Superintent-General of the Metropolitan Police (1942-1944), the subject person was strongly opposed to the fact that a part of military circle and ultra-nationalists had an attempt for the Fascistization of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association (I.R.A.A.). The subject person sent for the brain part of the I.R.A.A. and other persons involved and, serving the severe warning on them, succeeded at last in frustrating the intrigue of the militarists and other persons involved.

(2) When Prime Minister Tojo ordered to mercilessly arrest his antagonists, the subject person refused the unreasonable proposal of the Prime Minister, insisting that arresting should be done in accordance with laws.

As is shown in above cases, the subject person was opposed to tendency to militarism or ultra-nationalism and did his best for the prevention of Fascistization.
