PREFACE

Since the last revision of the text-book of Eclectic Shorthand, methods of teaching have radically improved. To keep the book well abreast of the times, the present revision has been made.

In general it may be said that the revision is one of arrangement and form only; the fundamental principles of the system remain unchanged. A constant effort has been made to secure brevity and condensation together with clearness. A method of treatment has been adopted that is practicable and that will materially lessen the work of the teacher. The order of presentation has been rearranged; the body of the book has been divided into chapters by subjects rather than into lessons for assignment, since the daily work of different classes varies greatly; and a further division into sections numbered consecutively throughout the book has been made.

The Introduction consists of fundamental definitions and explanations concerning the theory of shorthand in general and particularly Eclectic Shorthand. This is for reference use mainly, but it can well be given the definite consideration of advanced students.

The body of the book falls into three general divisions. The first division, Chapters I-XIII, establishes the alphabet, the vowel and consonant positions, and the coalescents. The modification in the size of different classes of letters to imply following letters is introduced in connection with each class, thus from the beginning requiring exactness in form. The abbreviation of a few common words and the phrasing of some simple expressions find a natural place among the fundamentals of these first chapters.

The second division, Chapters XIV-XXV, discusses in full the various means of implying letters or syllables by modification in size and direction of preceding letters, or by the various devices of hooks, loops, retracing, etc. This permits the work in phrasing to be extended to include words involving modified letters. A comprehensive treatment of the writing of words beginning with ex and a review exercise for implied letters end this part.

The third division, Chapters XXVI-XXXVII, is concerned with abbreviation, in single words and in phrases. Lists of fifty and one hundred of the commonest words in English, and of others so frequent as to make shortened outlines desirable, are given first place. The long words of the language are provided for by a comprehensive study of prefixes and terminations, after which follow the final chapters, devoted to a full treatment of phrasing.

Throughout the entire book illustration has been employed freely, and the words comprising these illustrations have been selected as actually exemplifying the principle under discussion and as typical of fair English. Writing exercises, to be prepared by pupils out of class and submitted to the teacher for critical inspection, are frequent and full, and consist of disconnected words and complete sentences. Here again the words have been selected with reference to their appropriateness at the places given, while the sentences, including words written by all preceding principles, furnish constant review. In all writing, whether for illustration or for practice, great care has been taken to avoid words involving a knowledge of principles not yet presented.

Supplementary reading exercises have been prepared from material selected from business letters and court testimony. In these will be found illustrated the principles discussed in preceding pages. Keys have been given for one or two pages of each class of material to assist the student in grasping peculiarities.

For dictation work in class, the words of the illustrations and writing exercises are in the author's opinion better than outside material, although, perhaps, less interesting. More lasting gain will result from the writing of five words ten times each, than from the writing of fifty words once. Therefore, in dictation to a class it is best to pronounce one word at a time, allowing one or two minutes for the class to fill a line in a note-book with the repeated outline of that word before pronouncing a second. When an outline has once been learned correctly, it is impossible for the writing of it to become too automatic, or the recognition too certain.

In this revision there will be found instances of two different writings of one word. Investigation will discover that both of these writings are in strict accord with principles, and the teacher may safely permit his pupils to adopt the one best suited to them individually. The same principle of recognition of individuality obtains in the matter of phrasing. The simple, common phrases written by the three different methods should be thoroughly learned by every pupil, but beyond this, insistence should not be carried. Eclectic Shorthand lends itself with peculiar ease to phrasing, and with most writers the combination of words into continuous outlines is a means of acquiring speed so valuable as to seem almost necessary. But on the other hand it has been demonstrated by the severe test of professional court reporting that rapid verbatim writing with full outlines is not only possible but preferable to some writers. To such as these, therefore, prolonged drill in advanced phrasing can yield no gain. The teacher should use his own judgment, not Procrustean methods, in teaching phrasing.

The changes and additions to the system which have been incorporated into this revision are in the treatment of the following points:

1. Means of representing diphthongs.
2. The circle when medial and final; sh and ch when medial and final.
3. The implying of way, we, with, and would.
4. The representing of ward, word.
5. The ns hook.
6. The compound prefixes of com and con; prefix signs written across.
7. The prefixes dis and re.
8. Compound suffixes in tion.
9. The terminals ment, entment.
10. Terminals previously written across.

These modifications are for the purpose of saving time and do not, in any sensible degree, impair the legibility of the words in which they occur.

The illustrative shorthand in the book has been written by the author, not engraved. It thus represents actual freehand work, and is to be used for comparison rather than for rigid specimen copy.

Acknowledgment is made to all Eclectic writers who during the past years have used the system and by their correspondence and counsel have helped the author to bring about the present revision. But special thanks are due to the principals of a few of the leading commercial institutions of the country for their wise suggestions and to their teachers in this special department for their kindly criticism and painstaking assistance. In this latest revision of his book the author is gratified to combine with his own theory and experience the results of the experience of others.

ECLECTIC SHORTHAND

INTRODUCTION

FUNDAMENTAL DEFINITIONS

1. Shorthand.—Shorthand writing is a brief and quick method of writing words. Phonography, Tachigraphy, Stenography, and Brachygraphy are all names for different methods of shorthand writing.

2. Words.—Whether spoken or written, words are signs of ideas. Spoken words are composed of elementary sounds. Written words are composed of signs of elementary sounds.

3. Letters.—The signs of elementary sounds are called letters, sound-signs, and phonograms. In this book they are called by their common name, letters.

4. Alphabet.—An alphabet consists of signs of the elementary sounds.

5. Syllables.—A syllable is a short word or a distinct part of a word, comprising either a vowel, or a diphthong, or a vowel combined with one or more consonants.

6. Shorthand Alphabet.—A shorthand alphabet represents the elementary sounds by brief signs. A shorthand letter is a letter of the simplest possible form.

7. Shorthand Syllable.—A shorthand syllable is a combination of shorthand letters, or some contracted character representing such combination, a sign of the sounds comprised in the syllable.

8. Shorthand Word.—A shorthand word is a combination of its syllabic sound-signs, or even a briefer representation of them; a sign of the sounds which are comprised in the word.

9. Sound-signs.—There are, therefore, three classes of sound-signs in shorthand; viz., alphabetic, syllabic, and verbal.

10. Orthography.—In the common spelling and writing some sounds are represented by combinations of letters arbitrarily arranged; as in bright, the silent gh follows the long vowel, while in thought it follows a short vowel. In receive, i is placed after e, while in believe it is placed before it. Such arbitrary provisions encumber our orthography, making it difficult.

11. Shorthand Spelling.—The shorthand writing of a word is the expression of its utterance by its sound-signs only, or by some abbreviated representation of their combination.

12. Classes of Letters.—A shorthand alphabet being a representation of the elementary sounds of a language, comprises the three classes of letters,—vowels, diphthongs, and consonants.

13. The Vowel.—A vowel is the sound produced by the vibration of the vocal cords in the expulsion of full breath from the lungs, called tone. The several vowels are produced by modifications of the tension of the vocal cords by the muscular action of the larynx upon them as breath is being emitted. The vowel is pure voice tone, and is the chief element in every syllable.

14. The Diphthong.—A combination of two vowel sounds, beginning with one vowel and ending with another, is called a diphthong. The diphthongs used in Eclectic Shorthand are au, ou, eu, oi, and oo; the first four are also spelled aw, ow, ew, oy.

15. The Consonant.—Consonants are of two classes; viz., distinct whispered sounds formed by the action of the external organs of speech, and those combining slight action of the vocal cords with the whispered sound. The letters of the first class are called surds, meaning “without tone,” and are c or k, f, h, p, s, t, w, y, ch, sh, th. Those of the second class, called sonants because of their voice quality, are b, d, g, j, l, m, n, r, v, zh, dh, ng.

16. Office of the Consonant.—No single or double consonant represents either a syllable or a word. The office of consonants is to aid in the formation of vowels into distinct syllables and words, as the word consonant (con-sonant) meaning “together with sonants, voice, vowel.” A system of shorthand which is so constructed that it must rely chiefly upon consonants to represent words, is therefore at variance with the structure and philosophy of speech.

17. Coalescent Consonants.—When two consonants combine in one sound, as pr in the word pray, cl in clime, they are called coalescents; but when they simply follow each other, as nd in and, rl in furl, they are called concurrent consonants, as they together help to form with the vowels new syllables; as an, and, ten, tend.

In this system each pair of coalescent consonants is represented by a single letter or digraph; that the writing may conform to their pronunciation, any two consonants or vowels forming a union of sound are represented by a single letter. Most pairs of concurrent letters, whether two consonants or consonant and vowel, are written as a unit, making the system almost purely syllabic.

18. Double Consonants.—A double consonant is two consonants represented by one letter; as x, which is ks, and q, which is kw. In shorthand any two consonants which are represented by one character, whether they are coalescent or merely concurrent, are called a double consonant.

19. Sounds of the Vowels.—Each vowel has a short and a long sound. In shorthand it is generally sufficient to rely upon the context to indicate whether it is short or long. However, in those cases in which the precise sound is important, a dot is placed above the vowel to indicate its long sound, or is placed beneath it to make it a diphthong.

20. Alphabetic Letters.—The Eclectic Shorthand alphabet represents in full the English alphabet, and has also letters for sh, ch, wh, th, zh, and ng.

21. The c, q, and x.—The letters c, q, and x, which are omitted from the alphabets of most systems, are herein represented. The use of letters for q and x is briefer than to write them by kw and ks, as is done in other systems; their use also gives greater simplicity and distinctness to words in which they occur.

22. The c and k.—In the use of c for k, we follow the Spelling Reform Association alphabet. The same letter is used for both c and k, representing the c in can and the k in kick. The sound of c in face is written by s. When c and k must be distinguished as alphabetic letters, a dot is placed underneath to indicate k;  c, k. The letters ch, as in chord, and ck, as in back, are written by c.

23. The Soft g.—Soft g is represented by j and by a special writing of alphabetic g.

24. Purely Phonetic.—These alphabetic provisions make the system a pure, definite, reliable, phonetic medium for recording speech.

25. Force of Habit.—While shorthand represents words as pronounced rather than as spelled, it is still natural for the learner, to some extent, to adhere to the common orthography until thought and practice have fully revealed the shorter way; as tho for though, sa for say, tha for they, hi for high, ech for each, laf for laugh, ethr for either, ad for aid, thru for through, fors for force.

26. Approximate Writing.—While the writing of Eclectic Shorthand is phonetic, still it is impracticable to write all the sounds of most words as rapidly as they are uttered, even with all the alphabetic contractions that may be devised, and therefore many words are further contracted; as famn for famine, comn for common, sumn for summon, womn for woman, wimn for women, gamn for gammon, fremn for freeman. No system of shorthand is fully phonetic; all systems abbreviate as much as possible.

27. Full Phonetic Writing.—The following are a few illustrations of full phonetic writing: rit for write, wright, rite, right; brit for bright; nit for night; lit for light; sit for sight; tit for tight; thot for thought; brot for brought; sot for sought; bo for bow, beau; ad for aid, add; ech for each; erth for earth; et for eat; ethr for either, ether; sic for sick; thic for thick; qic for quick; nethr for neither, nether; rathr for rather; gathr for gather; bothr for bother; jus for juice; bruz for bruise, brews; yeld for yield, yelled; hu for who; enuf (enf) for enough; tuf for tough; sluf for slough; cof for cough. The teacher may need to give some pupils multiplied similar illustrations until they fully realize the difference between the spoken and the written word; or more exactly, between the word as spelled or spoken, and as written in shorthand.

28. Three Principles.—Eclectic Shorthand has, in common with other systems, three general principles; viz., (1) a simplified alphabet, (2) simplified spelling, (3) contractions, by which several letters, a syllable, or a word, may be represented by a single letter.

29. Simplified Alphabet.—Each letter is represented by a single line instead of several lines; as  $\_ m$ ,  $\swarrow a$ ,  $\nearrow t$ . If the longhand alphabet is written in full, it requires at least one hundred and twelve lines, while the shorthand writes each letter by a single line. Thus the alphabet alone greatly lessens the number of writing movements.

30. Simplified Spelling.—Omitting silent letters and all others that may be dispensed with decreases greatly the number of letters to be written. The use of these two principles only, simplified alphabet and simplified spelling, would greatly abbreviate writing.

31. Contractions.—Various means are provided by which two or more letters, or a syllable, or a word, may be written by one letter.

32. Illustration.—We will illustrate the application of these three principles in the writing of the words, a very bright thought. These words, as written in longhand, require eighteen letters and sixty-three pen movements, or lines. Applying the second principle, simplified spelling, we reduce the letters to thirteen,—a very brit thot. Applying the first principle, that is, writing them by shorthand letters, , we reduce the number of lines to eleven. Applying the third principle, writing them according to the principles of Eclectic Shorthand, , the words are reduced to four easily connected cursive lines, the same number as there are in the script a, and which are as legible to the Eclectic stenographer as longhand writing is to the English scholar.

CHARACTERS AND THEIR SOURCE

33. Chirographic Ellipse.—The alphabetic characters used in this system of shorthand are arcs and chords of the chirographic ellipse, from which source are also derived the lines from which the common longhand alphabet is built.

34. Arcs and Chords.—The following figures and lines show the arcs and chords which are used in the alphabet of this system of shorthand:

35. Directions.—These lines stand in three directions; viz.,

HORIZONTAL

FORWARD-SLANT

BACK-SLANT

36. Lengths.—Each line is used both short and long, thus doubling the number of lines.

37. Differentiation.—Each line has three differentiating features; viz., form, direction, length.

38. Perpendiculars Not Used.—There are no perpendicular characters, such as are used in other systems, but some characters are more nearly erect than others. The natural action of the hand in forward-slant longhand writing draws upward lines at a lesser slant than downward lines; in back-slant longhand writing, also, the upward lines stand the more upright.

39. Degrees of Slant.—The degree of slant of the upward lines in the forward-slant and of the corresponding lines in the back-slant is thirty degrees from the horizontal, while the slant of the downward lines is about sixty degrees. The two general directions of the lines in shorthand should conform in their degrees of slant with the similar lines in longhand. The following diagrams illustrate the degrees of slant of both upward and downward lines in each direction:

FORWARD-SLANT

BACKWARD-SLANT

40. Law of Motion.—This law of movement, adopted from longhand, is peculiar to this system, and is important. The motions on which it is based being so like those used in longhand, to which, from long practice, we have become accustomed, are much easier, and correct writing of the characters is much more certain, than in those systems which employ perpendicular characters in connection with backward, forward, and horizontal characters. The combining of the perpendiculars with the three other classes produces an irregular and unnatural action of the hand, very difficult either to acquire or to sustain in rapid writing.

41. Lines Common to Writing.—In longhand there are upward, downward, and horizontal lines of various lengths occurring in regular order. In this system of shorthand there are upward, downward, and horizontal lines similar in form, direction, and length to those of forward longhand; and, in addition, downward lines similar in form, slant, and direction to those of the back-slant longhand.

42. Classification.—The characters are divided into two general classes; viz., linear characters, those having length only, and surface characters, those having both length and breadth. The surface characters comprise the two hooks, two circles, and three circles differentiated by the different ticks beginning them.

LINEAR CHARACTERS

SURFACE CHARACTERS

43. Movement.—All the curves being derived from the ellipses, rapid practice in the formation of continuous ellipses is of much value to the shorthand student. The following exercises should be practiced at a rapid rate daily, until a power of two hundred or more continuous revolutions a minute can be sustained:

CHAPTER I

WRITING WORDS WHICH BEGIN WITH CONSONANTS

1. Two Alphabets.—There are two alphabets in this system, a visible and an invisible or implied alphabet. The visible alphabet, seen on the preceding page, consists of simple and modified lines each of which represents a letter or sound. The invisible alphabet consists of positions assumed with reference to the ruled line of the paper, each position representing one or more letters or sounds.

2. The Vowel Positions.—The ruled line is taken as the central position and is used to represent i, the most frequent vowel in oral speech. Two positions are assumed above the line and two below. For convenience in referring to these five positions, they are numbered consecutively from the top downward. Each position represents a vowel with both its short and long sounds and its diphthong; position 1 represents a, au, aw; 2—e, eu, ew; 3—i, y, oi, oy; 4—o, ou, ow; 5—u, oo; thus:

3. Initial Consonants.—By far the greater number of words begin with a consonant or double consonant, followed by a vowel or a diphthong; as m-e, m-ew, b-y, b-oy, fr-ee, pl-ay.

4. In writing this large class of words, the initial consonants are represented by visible letters and the vowels following them by invisible letters, according to the following rule:

Rule I.—Write an initial consonant, or double consonant on position 1 for a, au, aw;
on position 2 for e, eu, ew;
on position 3 for i, y, oi, oy;
on position 4 for o, ou, ow;
on position 5 for u, oo.

5. M, n, and t as represented by visible letters are — — ′, the n being one-half the length of m. This combination —→ is mt, this ← tm, this ← tn. The m is lengthened about one-half to imply a following m or n, as in the words maim, man. The n is made minute to imply a following m or n, as in the words namé, nine. It is made half its regular length to express nt, nd, and nth, as in not, need, neath.

These letters and combinations of letters written according to Rule I form words as follows:

ILLUSTRATIONS

1 may know tie meat team tone maim moon mount

2 name known not need tend tint tempt (temt) tenant

From these illustrations it will be seen that in shorthand writing all silent letters are omitted; see Introduction §§25-27.

6. Placing Letters Positionally.—For position 3, horizontal letters are written directly on the line, and oblique letters midway across it; for positions 2 and 4, horizontal letters are placed just above and below the line respectively, and oblique letters touch the line above and below respectively; on positions 1 and 5 all letters are perceptibly off the line above and below respectively.

7. The Use of the Dot as a Diacritical Sign.—To distinguish the different sounds of a position, a dot is placed over a letter to mark the long sound of the vowel position, and under it to indicate the diphthongal sound of the position.

ILLUSTRATIONS

WRITING EXERCISE

Write these words, dotting them for the long vowels and diphthongs:

- 1 me my mow neigh (na) nigh know tea toe tame team
- 2 tome tomb tan ten tin ton town met might moat
- 3 mute neighed (nad) gnat (nat) naught need night knit nod
- 4 node not note nude nut man main mean men mine
- 5 moan numb nine noun nun none tannin tenon tuned tent
- 6 taint taunt tamped (tamt) meant mint mountain maintain

8. S and d. s, d. The d is half the length of s. The letter s may, like m, be made one-half longer to imply a following m or n. The d, being a short letter like n, may be made minute to add m or n, as in deem, din, and half-length for dt, dd, or dth, as in date, did, death.

 5 satin mad made maid meed mid mode mud mowed mood
 6 mend mind maimed mound deeds dots daunt dent dint
 7 don't dined sudden (sudn) maiden (madn) tented needed

9. F and th. f, th. The th is half the length of f. The f may, like m and s, be lengthened for a following m or n. The th is made half-length for tht, thd, and minute for thm, thn.

ILLUSTRATIONS

In such words as tight, taught, the second t is represented by th; in other cases also where t does not join well, th is used instead.

WRITING EXERCISE

Write:

1 fay few they (tha) thee thy thou fawn foam fume fan
 2 fane fen fine fun thought then thin thine thumb faint
 3 faith fad fade feed feud food foot feet fate fit fight
 4 tough (tuf) tuft tiff fife feoff (fef) thief theft tooth teeth
 5 myth moth mouth sooth sayeth fathom method faded

10. The Dot for Words and Syllables.—A dot on position 2 represents the, he; on 3, I, eye, aye, and my; on 4, O, oh, owe, and of; on 5, you, and made heavy, your. Written close after a letter a dot represents ng, ing, or thing.

WRITING EXERCISE

1. Do you know the man now mowing? 2. Did they mine tin then? 3. I meant to say that you might not need the suit. 4. You may find the name of the tenant, though he knows nothing of the debt. 5. You did not know of the sudden death of the maiden? 6. Then nine men knew that mine? 7. The date of the meeting he did not see. 8. I maintain that some day he may find the method not now known. 9. The same town needed meat, too. 10. I thought you meant to see the mountain.

CHAPTER II

WRITING WORDS WHICH BEGIN WITH CONSONANTS

11. P and g.—These letters, ∩ ∪, are p, g. The p and g are made long to add m or n, and wide to add t, d, or th. They are made minute for pl and gl. This - is another form for s which is used in the middle and at the end of words whenever it can be, especially when followed by t.

ILLUSTRATIONS

1 pass goes puff pen gun game pit pod path get good Goth

It will be noticed that on position 2 the p and g stand on the line, and on position 4 their tops touch the line.

12. P and g as hooks.—When p and g follow letters which admit of it, they are not joined angularly, but as hooks; the g turned on the under side of the preceding letter as in ng in the alphabet, and the p turned on the upper side. If g is soft as in dodge, it is joined angularly. When soft g can not easily be joined angularly, as in stage, use j (see p. 16).

The g hook is also often used for c, k, because it is briefer, and being the sonant of c, the true sound is easily recognizable; as in quick, written qig; ask, written asg. Similarly, p is sometimes used for b, as in the phrases may be, not be.

These hooks are modified like the letters they represent to add m or n; t, d, or th; or l.

13. H, l, and r. o h, o l, — o r. Of the two letters which represent r, the first is called the line r, the second the circle r. When r stands alone, as in ray, row, the line r is used. In other cases the circle r is the form generally used, except when r is coalescent (Intro. §17), as in br, cr, dr. When the circle stands alone it is h; the circle r is never written disconnectedly. When the circle is joined to other letters, it is h if joined angularly but r if joined in a continuous line. This distinction is clear and important. These letters are to be placed positionally according to §6.

The circle r and the loop l both turn on the letters to which they are joined. When they are followed by a straight letter, they turn on the upper side of it; when they follow a straight letter, they turn underneath it. When connected with curved letters, at beginning or end, they turn on the concave side of them. These joinings of r and l determine the regular side, both initial and final, of straight and curved letters.

The h is enlarged for ht and hd, and made minute for hl. The following h is usually written with the alphabetic letter, to maintain a clear distinction between such words as had and hath. The l is lengthened for lt, and, when medial or final, for ld and lth; it is made minute when initial for fl as in fly, and when medial or final for fl, ly, fly.

14. Rt, d.—Make straight r half length for rt, rd, and minute for rn. Some writers prefer to write the circle r and n in such words as rain, instead of making r minute for rn; this is permissible.

15. Rl.—The circle r is made minute for rl, but in monosyllabic and short words like rail, railer, the l is shaded on its left side to express r. In all other cases of rl the r is made minute to imply the l. The r when medial or final is made minute also to represent ry, rly, rfl, and rflly.

16. Circle Rt.—When initial rt is followed by a short or long letter, as written, writes, the circle r enlarged for rt is used. If the rt is followed by another r as in retrace, the second r is expressed by shading the enlarged circle. When r is medial or final, it is enlarged for rt, rd, rth.

17. Circle r.—In all cases of initial r except those which have been explained, the circle is used; and when r is medial or final the circle is generally used, except as provided for under § 26.

18. Sh, ch, and wh. sh, ch, wh. In writing these letters begin with the tick, never with the circle. These letters are written positionally like preceding surface letters. When sh is followed by f, c, p, th, a, turn the circle toward the right to make the joining more facile. When sh and ch are medial or final, the h is often used instead, as in dah for dash.

These letters are enlarged for a following t or d, and made minute for shl, chl, and whl.

19. The Dot.—Instead of a dot written close after a letter, the straight s is used to express ings or things. Written just above the end of a letter the dot means less, and just beneath the end of a letter else. Following close after the dot for ing another dot is used for the; as in seeing the.

CHAPTER III

WRITING WORDS WHICH BEGIN WITH CONSONANTS (CONTINUED)

20. V, c, k, w, qu, and j.  v,  c,  k,  w, qu, and  j. The v, c, k, w, and j, are generally written upward, the q always downward. The c represents the sound of c, k, and ck, heard in come, like, kick. The k is never written except as an alphabetic letter, as in C. K. Morse. The u which always follows q is omitted in shorthand writing, being implied by q, and the q is written on the position of the vowel following the u; quake becomes qac, quick becomes qic (or for greater brevity, qag, qig). These letters are written positionally according to §6.

To add m or n, these letters, except j, are lengthened. To add s or sh they are written downward, the difference in slant making a clear distinction. The circle of the j is made minute for a following l, and enlarged for a following t; d.

When joined at the top of this group of letters p is a hook, and g is joined angularly whether hard or soft; but when the joining is at the bottom, g is the hook and p is joined angularly.

21. B, x, y, z, and zh.

These letters are all drawn from the left toward the right. The b is one-half the length of x. These letters are placed positionally according to §6.

The long letters, x, y, z, are lengthened for a following m or n. B, a short letter, is made half-length for bt, bd, bth, and minute for bn and bl. A distinction is necessary between such words as bone and blow. bun and blue, bank and black; see line 2 of illustrations. To add a following s, the letters of this group are written more nearly upright, at about an angle of sixty degrees from the horizontal; see Introduction §39. In words beginning with ex, as excel, e is omitted and x written on the position of the vowel following. Make final y for short i minute.

REVIEW

22. Reviewing.—Let the student now review the letters which have been given and practice them carefully, writing them as perfectly as possible in form, size, and direction.

Having filled half a dozen or more pages of a note-book with such drill, devote one page to each letter, writing it on the five positions in combinations with other letters, as follows:

ba be bi bo bu baf bef bif bof buf bag beg baj (etc.) bak (etc.) bal (etc.) bon bap (etc.) bar (etc.) bav (etc.) baw (etc.) bax (etc.) bay (etc.) bat (etc.) blue (etc.)

The student should practice the consonants in this way until the combination of consonant with vowel as, ba, ce, di, etc., can be produced without hesitation.

Much drill upon the modifications of letters in length and direction is necessary to preserve exact distinctions. Practice carefully the following:

m mn, n nt nn, f fm, d dt dn, s sm, th tht thn, c cm cs, w wm ws, v vm vs, q qn, x xm,
 y ym ys, z zm, b bt bn (bl) bs, p pt pn, g gt gn, h ht hl, l lt, sh sht shl, ch cht chl, w wht whl.

CHAPTER V

DOUBLE COALESCENT CONSONANTS

23. Double Letters.—The double letters of our orthography, as ff, bb, ll, etc., as in muff, ebb, all, are not both written in shorthand, but such double consonants as sn in snow, sm in small, sp in spin, fr in free, pl in play, sw in swim, are both expressed. By Rule I all initial double consonants are written positionally to imply a following vowel.

24. Coalescent r.—The r as a liquid sound coalesces, i.e. unites, with b, c, d, f, g, p, t, th, sh, sc, sp (§29), and st, making the compounds br, cr, dr, fr, gr, pr, tr, thr, shr, scr, spr, str. The letter with which r unites is shaded to express the coalescing r.

ILLUSTRATIONS

1 br cr dr fr gr pr tr thr shr str briar creep crag drop

2 frail grope price track thrill shrine strife strong strange

25. Initial Coalescent cr may be represented by a hook drawn on the under side of a letter, when it is more facile than the shaded c; as when followed by c, v, m, in such words as crack, crave, cram.

26. Shading for r.—When desirable, the shade may be used for r in connection with the letters with which r does not coalesce; as, h is shaded for here, her, etc.; y is shaded for year, your; m may be shaded for more. It is desirable to use the shade in these and similar cases as it leaves the circle to represent the words are, or, our, and far.

ILLUSTRATIONS

1 chair cheer churn chirk chirp church churl shares shore

2 sure (shur) surely whereby wherefore large larger largess

27. Coalescent l.—The l, also a liquid, unites with b, c, d, f, g, p, r, s, t, sc, sp (§29), st, making the combinations bl, cl, dl, fl, gl, pl, rl, sl, tl, scl, spl, stl. The letter with which l unites is made minute to show its coalescence with l. The letters c, f, and s can not well be made minute; they are therefore, when coalescent with l, represented by minute characters: cl by a minute hook which is drawn upward that it may join on the under side of a letter following it, fl by minute l, and sl by the straight s. For sl when not initial, the s is drawn vertical when it can be done; when the s can not be made vertical because of the slant of the preceding letter, as in tussle, write both the s and l. Write both letters also when sl is followed by t, as in slight. For tl and tly the t is drawn vertical.

ILLUSTRATIONS

bl gl pl rl sl cl fl tl scl spl stl bls ble gls glm pls

The differentiation of initial cl and sp (§29) or spl, is clearly maintained by drawing cl upward and sp, spl downward, an arrangement by which the latter stands on the upper side of the letter to which it is joined and the former on the under side: cln, spn, spln, — — —.

28. The circles r, h, sh, ch, wh, and j, and the hooks p and g are made minute to imply not only a following l (see §§12, 15, 18, 20), but also to imply a following y, ly, fl or fly. Vertical t shaded is trl, trly, and trfl. As was explained in §13, a minute l final represents ly, fl, and fly. Notice carefully the illustrations here given.

DOUBLE COALESCENT CONSONANTS

29. Coalescent s.—The s unites with c (k), f, l, m, n, p, q, t, w, making the compounds sc (sk), sf (sph), sl, sm, sn, sp, sq, st, sw, which are represented as follows:

Where else could they be made? 29. How else could we go through for so much less? 30. Do you say, not just the thing? No, I say not just yet. 31. You can not wait for me to see the thing through to-day. 32. You can not sail now; you must wait for the breeze (upright b). 33. I would not, were I you; there would be too much risk. 34. I can not say how much such work there will be to do before we go. 35. He will not be here before Monday. 36. She will not leave her very much money, I fear; there will be so much less, too, for you. 37. There will be so very much less to do before we will be ready to go. 38. When do you suppose they will form the club? Not just yet? 39. When will you explain the problem to the class? Not yet? 40. Be very careful, for the swing may fall. 41. Will you ship the bill to-day? 42. No, I can not ship before to-morrow (tomr). 43. When will the company be formed, do you know? 44. Yet the boy's character may be proved by just such trials.

CHAPTER VII

PHRASE WRITING

33. Phrase writing consists in joining together two or more common words to save lifting the pen; such words are will be, will not, will you, will you be, will you not, not yet, you may, you are, you will, you will be, you will not be, etc. Such phrases as naturally occur in speech are joined in writing by the expert shorthand writer. Generally, the letter or combination that writes a word positionally, is used to represent that same word in phrases; as, n for no, know, now; m for me, my, may; d for day, do, due, die. There are, however, some exceptions to this; as, v used for have, f for if, circle r for are, or, our, far, and for. After I, he, and she, w is used for will, but in other cases l is generally used; l is also used for well and all. In some cases p instead of b is used for be; as, after will, would, could, you, now, may. The first word of a phrase is written positionally and the signs for the other words attached.

MOVEMENT EXERCISE

Write the following characters as a movement exercise, trying to preserve their size and direction while writing them as rapidly as possible. Practice them daily. Be sure that you rest the hand on the paper very lightly.

CHAPTER VIII

VOWELS

34. Vowels Represented by Facile Lines.—The vowels, the most important letters in words, are represented in this system by the most facile lines. The lines used for a and i are the lines which begin the a and i in longhand. The o is represented by the straight downward line found in all longhand small letters except two; it is also the axis of o itself. The e and u are represented by the two opposite curves used in back-slant longhand.

35. Direction of Vowels.—The a, i, and o are written either upward or downward; when upward, at the slant of upward lines in longhand, viz., thirty degrees; and when downward, at the slant of downward lines in longhand, viz., sixty degrees. The e and u are always written downward, but in slants of sixty and thirty degrees, as lines are drawn in backhand writing.

36. Duality.—When vowels are drawn downward, or at a slant of sixty degrees, they are called left vowels, because the movement is toward the left. When drawn upward, or at a slant of thirty degrees, they are called right vowels, because the movement is toward the right.

RIGHT VOWELS

Learn these distinctions—left, right; and practice both classes of vowels until able to make them perfectly in form, slant, and size.

MOVEMENT EXERCISE

37. Two Classes of Words.—Three-fourths of the words of the language begin with a consonant or double consonant followed by a vowel. Our work thus far has been wholly with this class of words. It now remains to write words beginning with a vowel or diphthong, followed by a consonant.

38. Initial Vowels and Positioned Consonants.—If positions are assigned to consonants, as by Rule I they are to vowels, it is evident that initial vowels may be written positionally to imply following consonants, in the same manner as initial consonants are written positionally by Rule I to imply following vowels.

39. Cognate Consonants.—The vowel beginning a word is followed by a consonant, and the following five groups of cognate consonants (consonants having similar sounds) are placed on the five positions, that they may be implied by the vowel when written positionally: on position 1—p, b; 2—s, z, sh, zh; 3—m, n; 4—f, v; 5—c, k, g.

----- 1 2 3 4 5      p s m f c -----

To write is, place i on position 2; for as, write a 2; for us, write u 2; for ease (ez), e 2; for up, u 1; for if, i 4; for of, o 4; for ache (ac), a 5; for in, i 3.

From these illustrations we deduce

Rule II.—Initial left vowels are written on position 1 to imply p, b;

on position 2 to imply s, z, sh, zh;

on position 3 to imply m, n;

on position 4 to imply f, v;

on position 5 to imply c (k), g.

Notice that this rule applies to left vowels only; never write a vowel upward to imply the consonants of this class.

40. The Diacritical Dot.—In writing by this rule, the dot is used over a vowel to give it the long sound, or under it to make it a diphthong: thus, dotted a is au, aw; dotted e is eu, ew; dotted i is oi, oy; dotted u is ou, ow; dotted o is oo. Without a dot the vowel is short.

CHAPTER IX

WRITING WORDS WHICH BEGIN WITH RIGHT VOWELS

41. Initial Right Vowels are written positionally to imply a consonant following, according to

Rule III.—Initial right vowels are written on position 1 to imply w, wh; on position 2 to imply l; on position 3 to imply r; on position 4 to imply t, d, th; on position 5 to imply ch, j, h.

To illustrate: for all, use right a 2; for are, right a 3; for at, add, right a 4; for age (aj), right a 5. These consonants are implied by right vowels only.

3 aught odd oat oath other others err ear error urge urr

4 earl it its eddy eats ether argue ah aha ahoy awful

42. Rules II and III.—The consonants placed positionally in this rule complete the consonant-position alphabet begun in Rule II. By these two rules, any word beginning with a vowel or diphthong, except double vowels as aerial, Iowa, may be begun definitely, and the first two letters, vowel and consonant, expressed clearly by writing the vowel.

43. Initial Double Vowels.—The few words with initial double vowels, in which both vowels are sounded, are written by Rule I. The first vowel is expressed by a heavy dot on its vowel position, the second vowel is attached to the dot, and the rest of the word added. Words beginning with two vowels, only one of which is sounded, however, as either, aim, are written regularly, according to Rules II and III.

44. The Diphthongs au, aw; and aw Uncoalescent.—The difference in the use of aw in such words as away, aware, awake, and awl, awful, awkward, should be carefully noted; in the first three w is a consonant, in the last three it forms a diphthong with a. In the first three, a is written on w position; in the last three, the aw is written positionally for the consonant following the diphthong.

CHAPTER X

MODES OF EXPRESSING H

45. The H Shade.—When h begins a word, it is always followed by a vowel or diphthong, since no consonant coalesces with an initial h. In writing such words the vowel following h, if it is a left vowel, is shaded at the top to represent h and is placed on position for the consonant that follows. Thus has is written by placing a shaded left a on position 2; him, by placing a shaded left i on position 3. E and u, even when used as right vowels, may also be shaded for h, but the right forms of a, i, and o are never shaded for h, since they are upward strokes. The h shade must be carefully distinguished from the r shade by being made on the upper part of the vowel only.

ILLUSTRATIONS

1 has him hope heave hoop house whose happen hovel

2 hammer human hence help hawser hyperbola hasp husk

3 hive have hog hug hawk hedge hulk here hum

46. The H Circle.—In words in which the shorthand spelling requires only two letters, as he, hoe, high, etc., the h circle is used. It can not be mistaken for r, as the r circle never stands detached.

When the vowel following h, if written positionally, would be right a, i, or o, the h circle is employed instead of the shade, and is distinguished from r by being joined angularly to a following letter.

The circle is also usually employed even when the vowel is e or u, if the following consonant is l, r, t, or d, since a following l, as in heal, is implied by making the circle minute, a following t or d by enlarging, and a following r by shading.

3 horse harangue had hit hot hail held hold helm hello

47. H Medial or Final.—When h occurs elsewhere than at the beginning of a word, it is represented either by the shade or by the angularly joined circle, whichever forms the more facile outline.

ILLUSTRATIONS

1 cohere unhitch Bohemia Mahometan boyhood ashes unhoop

2 unhook hedgehog henhawk Ivanhoe unharmed unhappily

48. The H Circle Used for Sh and Ch.—At any part of a word except the beginning the h circle may be used for sh or ch. This should be used, however, only in those cases in which the alphabetic forms for sh and ch do not join well with the other characters, as dah = dash.

49. Vocabulary.—With the alphabet, the coalescents, and the three rules which have been given, there is now no word in the language which can not be begun correctly. Our vocabulary of complete words is, however, still greatly limited, and we must be content to write such words as we can, until new means of abbreviation are presented.

52. Phrase Words from Rule III.—The important phrase words derived from Rule III (§41), are all, are, away, aware, age, it, its, or, of, other, others, each, which, our, out, ought. Of these the words are, or, our, and far, when not initial in the phrase, are represented by r, and the word all by l. After t and all minute letters the l does not join well; therefore, when all follows these letters use right a. As right a is used for all only when following t, h, r, l, sh, wh, and ch, it may generally be used for a, an. Many writers prefer to use minute a for a and an, and it may properly be so used. The word of in phrasing is written by right o, and of the or of it by right o half-length. The words I am and I may are represented by right i 3, since ire is a word of infrequent occurrence. Right i 5, when written alone or at the beginning of a phrase, represents the word which; right i attached to a preceding word represents either which or I.

 18 take at, take it, time it, for it, before it, lay it, as far as, 19 at our time, at our own, at our day, at our time of.

53. Positional Phrases.—There are a few phrases of two words each, the last word being a, the, I, or you and therefore expressed by one of the positions; as, to a, to the, to you, do a, do the, do I, do you. In all such phrases the first word, or the sign for it, is written on the position of the second word, thus expressing both words in one sign. In the following phrases, the signs used are z for as, as in as a; f for if, as in if the; l for will, as in will you; l written inverted for all, as in all the day.

ILLUSTRATIONS

- 1 to a, to the, to you, do a, do the, do you, do I, for a, for the,
 2 for you, for I, as a, as the, as I, as you, have a, have the,

INITIAL VOWELS (CONTINUED)

54. Vowels Modified for t, d, or th, and m or n.—The vowels being short characters are, like the short consonant characters, made half-length for a following t, d, or th, and minute for a following m or n.

56. If a left vowel is followed by a consonant with a coalescing r, as in agree, accrue, afresh, afraid, approach, upright, shade the vowel for the r. If the position consonant is followed by an unaccented vowel and r, as in ever, over, upper, inner, also shade the initial vowel to imply the r. The words ever and every are best used as phrase words, written with the circle r.

CHAPTER XIII

RECAPITULATION

59. Two Alphabets.—We have now fully presented, and the student should have thoroughly mastered, the two alphabets, visible and invisible, one of letters, the other of positions representing letters.

60. Two Initial Letters.—The object of both alphabets is abbreviation, and by combining letters from each in accordance with the three rules, any two initial letters of a word are legibly expressed by one letter.

61. Three Initial Letters.—By the methods of writing coalescents, both vowels and consonants, which have been presented, any two coalescing letters are expressed in one letter; and by combining the coalescents with the positioned alphabet, three letters beginning a word are legibly represented by one letter.

62. Four Initial Letters.—By means of the principles of lengthening, shortening, and making minute, four initial letters,—two coalescents, a vowel, and a following consonant,—may be represented clearly by one shorthand letter. By a few principles of abbreviation yet to be presented, many frequent initial combinations and syllables of four and five letters are written by one letter.

63. Order in Writing.—The writing of these beginnings of words, by these rules, precisely conforms to the order of the utterance of the sounds in the spoken word, so that the elements of the written word are presented to the eye of the reader in the same sequence as the spoken word is to the ear of the hearer.

A definite idea of each of the preceding features is of the utmost importance to the pupil, who should not pass this lesson until able to apply all of them in writing such words as have been given. Carefully study the following re-statement of the three rules, and write the illustrations many times, until clear ideas are formed of the beginnings of words.

CHAPTER XIV

PRACTICE IN RELATIVE SIZES OF MODIFIED LETTERS

64. Modifications in Size.—It is evident that long letters may be lengthened and short letters shortened without conflicting with each other, and that surface letters may be both enlarged and made minute without confusion.

65. Classes of Letters.—To refresh the pupil's mind on the three classes of letters and their modifications, and to perfect him in writing them, let him now write each class, in alphabetic size, six times.

The long letters are m, f, s, v, c, q, k, w, x, y, z.

The short letters are a, i, o, e, u, b, n, th, d, r.

The surface letters are h, r, l, p, g, sh, ch, wh, ng, j, sc, sp, st.

66. Long Letters.—Now make six copies of the long letters about one-half longer than their alphabetic size, and six copies twice their usual size; also six of lengthened p and g.

This lengthening is to imply a following m or n, and the double lengthening is to imply an additional m or n, as in minim, summon.

67. Short Letters.—Make six copies of the short letters except o, in miniature size,—as minute as possible while yet preserving their form and proper direction. These minute forms of a, i, e, u, n, d, th, r, and b are distinct characters implying a following m or n and often a following y, l, ly, fl, fly.

Now make six copies of the short letters half their alphabetic size, which is done to imply a following t, d, or th.

68. Surface Letters.—Make six copies of the surface letters half larger than their alphabetic size, which is done to imply a following t, d, or th. Remember that h, sh, ch, and wh are not enlarged for a following th.

Make six copies double their alphabetic size, which is done to imply a following tt, td, dd, making the added syllables tut, tet, tit, tot, tut, tad, ted, tid, tod, dad, ded, did, dod, dud, as in patted, sodded.

Make six copies of the surface letters in miniature size, as small as possible and maintain their proper form. This is done to imply a following y, l, ly, fl, fly, or ll, according to the context, as in deadly, dreadful, dreadfully, moral, morally.

MOVEMENT EXERCISE

Resting the arm and hand very lightly, draw these continuous ovals by a very rapid movement, with the purpose of acquiring the power of rapid movement of the arm and hand.

CHAPTER XV

COMPLETE STATEMENT OF MEANS OF IMPLYING M AND N

69. Lengthening.—(1) The long letters are all extended to the length of mn to add a following m or n.

(2) The letters p and g are lengthened, without widening, to imply m, n.

(3) When l and r turn on a preceding letter, they are lengthened to imply m, n, by carrying the line which forms the curve of either across the preceding letter in a continued curve. After l this extension may also imply s. Examples are corn, morn, melon, meals, column, coals. The l is never lengthened for m, n, or s, however, when it is initial or when it stands alone.

(4) The long letters are drawn a greater length to imply a following syllable beginning with m and ending with n, as mon in common, summon, and num in maximum, or ine as in examine.

(5) When s and n or m coalesce, always lengthen the s to imply the following letter. In general, if a long letter is followed by final nt, as in sent, want, exeunt, vent, lengthen the long letter to imply n following, and add the t; but when it is followed by nd, as in words like wand, send, examined, vend, do not lengthen the first letter but write the shortened n to imply the final d. In words in which c, m, or y is followed by m or n, however, it is always better to lengthen the c, m, or y, and add the letter that may follow; as in count, kind, meant, mind, yawned.

70. Making Minute.—The short letters are made minute to imply a following m or n, and sometimes a following y, l, or ly. Initially, the miniature letters, with few exceptions, imply m or n, but when medial or final generally imply y, ly; as, penny, sadly, baby, lady, worthy, weedy, muddy, kindly, soundly, windy, ladle.

This modification can not apply to o because of t and s, nor to j because of sh, which the modified j would too closely resemble.

The b is made minute for bl coalescent also, and for final by, and ble, bly; but this does not interfere with the minute form for m or n except in a few words; as, blow and bone, blue and bun, black and bank. In such cases the preference is given to bl because of the coalescence of the two letters, and the bn is written out (see §21).

71. Letters Not Modified.—By these given modifications, m and n are added to all letters except o, j, sh, ch, and wh. These do not need to come under the rule, since initial o, like the other vowels, is written on position 3 for a following m or n; and j, sh, ch, and wh are continued into a following m or n without an angle, as in shine, chum, join, whom.

72. Importance of Principle.—This is one of the most important provisions for abbreviation that can possibly be made, as n is the most frequent consonant, while m is also of common occurrence.

The implication of either m or n by the modified letter may seem to be indefinite; but the student will soon find that, with the other letters in the word and with the context, the intended letter is clearly revealed.

73. The Syllable ment, when final, may be represented by nn, thus shortening the outline without materially impairing the legibility of the terminal.

PHRASE WORDS AND PHRASES

74. The preceding contractions develop a number of common words occurring in phrases, among which are the following: man, men, mine, manner, minor, meant, mint, mount, same, seem, seen, sign, some, sun, summer, can, come, crime, win, wine, fame, fine, frame, from, want, wanted, went, winter, within (win), vain, gain, gone, grain, grown, pain, principle (prin), name, none, known, been, them, then, think (thin), deem, done, dream, drawn, drown, drain, thrown, alone, again, even, heaven. The minute a is an, am, aim, and it is also used in phrase writing for a. The right o is used for of and off in phrases, and the left o for on, own, and one.

CHAPTER XVII

COMPLETE STATEMENT OF MEANS OF IMPLYING T, D, TH

75. Short Letters.—When a short letter is followed by either t, d, or th, it may be made half its usual length to imply the letter following it. Medial or final t and straight s are often lengthened to imply a following t or d.

76. Surface Letters.—When a surface letter is followed by t, d, th, it may be enlarged to imply the following letter, with the exception that h and sh are not enlarged for a following th. The sk hook also may not be enlarged, because of the possible confusion with sq, so d, t, th following it are always written; scr however is enlarged for a following pt, making script, as in script. Initial l is enlarged only for lt, as ld and lth are written alphabetically as easily as by enlarging and are the more legible.

77. Expressing r.—When r precedes the t or d implied by shortening an initial vowel, as in afraid, agreed, abroad, the vowel is shaded for the r. If the r follows the implied t, d, as in after, actor, the circle r is used; inter, enter, and under are, by exception, written with the shade, that they may not resemble wh and ch.

When coalescent r is involved in an enlarged surface letter, as in the word's pride, great, shred, the shade is used. When uncoalescent r occurs as in heard, shared, part, the shade is also used; but if r occurs at the end of the syllable or after it, as in heater, hotter, patter, greater, the circle is used.

CHAPTER XVIII

COMPLETE STATEMENT OF MEANS OF IMPLYING Y OR L

78. Surface Letters.—The surface letter l is made minute for ly; all other surface letters are made minute to imply a following l or y, when y is a vowel representing short i, as in happy, fury.

The p, g, sp, and sc frequently coalesce with l, and are, therefore, made minute for coalescent l, as in plan, splice; the other surface letters which never coalesce with l, are safely made minute to express a following uncoalescent l, as in hail, shall, wheel.

It is found practicable to give the minute letters even greater scope, and to let whatever modification implies l or y, imply also ly, fl, fly, or ll, as in manly, thoughtful, thoughtfully, parallel.

79. Minute l.—The minute l, initial, is used only for fl, except to represent the word little, for which it is used; but when final it is ly, ll, fl, or fly, as explained in the preceding paragraph.

In such words as raffle, rifle, reflect, reflex, the minute l is shaded at the beginning to express the initial r.

CHAPTER XIX

COMPLETE STATEMENT OF MEANS OF IMPLYING S AND SH

81. Obliques.—The forward oblique consonants which are generally drawn upward when beginning a word may be drawn downward, giving them the angle of sixty degrees, to imply a following s or sh.

The backward oblique consonants, which when beginning a word are generally drawn at thirty degrees slant, are drawn more upright, at sixty degrees, to imply a following s or sh.

82. The Vowels.—The left vowels, when initial, are written at sixty degrees on position 2 for s or sh; when medial or final, they are written downward to imply a following s or sh.

83. The Minute z.—The upright z for zs, ss, sz, is not a facile character; therefore it is made minute for ss, sz, zs, instead of being written at sixty degrees. It may curve to the right or left, whichever curve will make the better joining with the preceding letter.

CHAPTER XX

MEANS OF IMPLYING NS, MS

84. Ns, ms, Medial or Final.—The letters ns, ms, or nc (soft) either medial or final, are represented by a horizontal semi-ellipse joined angularly to the under side of the preceding letter, opening generally to the right, but to the left after o, i, t, p, k hook, sk, and circle r, to give a better angular joining, as in offends, immense, tunes, pencil, sickness, briskness, mourns. When this character is not readily used, the alphabetic letters are used, as in shines, Jones. After g or p, as in grains, pains, it is better to lengthen the g or p for n, and add s.

This character is enlarged like other surface characters to include t or d, making nts, nds, or nst, nced, and mpts, as in sends, scents, winds, wincel, fends, fenced, attempts (atmpts), preëmpts.

It is also made minute to imply y, l, ly, as in fancy, fancies, tensile, pencil.

85. Written Upward.—The ns hook is written on the upper side of a preceding letter for a following or final s, as in businesses, fences, minces, winces. When it can not be written upward, as after o, t, and p, in such words as offences, trounces, pretences, the hook may be opened toward the right to imply the final s, as the possibility of confusion with sp is very slight.

CHAPTER XXI

MEANS OF IMPLYING F, V, AND UNCOALESCENT W

86. Retracing.—The sf (sph) provided for under coalescent s (§29) suggests retracing other letters besides s. Any letter may be retraced to imply a following f or v when it is convenient to do so, as in move, save, also to represent tive, as in active. It is hardly practicable to retrace the circle.

The retracing gives the idea of surface, and it is therefore treated like surface letters; i.e., it is lengthened to imply a following t, d, or th, as in moved, saved, and it is made minute to imply a following y, l, vl, vly, as in envy, anvil. This minute retracing is also used for ively and tively, and for the word evil.

87. Implying w Uncoalescent.—The letters d, t, th, s, deepened for coalescent w occur in so few words that they are used to imply w uncoalescent and the words for which w stands, i.e., we, way, with, would, and were; and to imply these words any other curved letter may be deepened.

88. Implying ward, word.—In the words upward, outward, southward, northward, eastward, homeward, downward, onward, windward, etc., the enlarged circle r is used for ward. In the phrases our word, your word, few words, receive word, which word, his word, has word, any word, no word, my word, one word, send word, sent word, got word, etc., the enlarged r circle represents word.

CHAPTER XXII

MEANS OF IMPLYING ST, SD; DS, TS; PR AND BR

89. The st, sd Loop.—When st or sd follow a long or short letter they may be expressed by turning a loop similar to l on the irregular side of it. When st, sd occur initially, they are also expressed by a loop on the irregular side of the letter which follows if it is one which permits of it, as m, n, c, etc. Like l, this loop is enlarged to imply a following t or d, and drawn across the letter to which it is attached to imply a following s, m, or n. It is also used for xt; as in next, fixed, coaxed, boxed.

90. The ds Loop.—When the letters ds either precede or follow a long or short letter they may be expressed by a minute loop drawn on the irregular side of the letter. The letters ts, either medial or final, are expressed in the same way, as in notes.

91. The Loops sd and ds Drawn Horizontal.—Both of these loops may be written disconnectedly, and they are then distinguished from l and fl by drawing them horizontally as in sad, sowed, days, dies. When beginning a longer word they come under Rule I, and make a syllable with a medial vowel, as steam, stock, dismal, dispose, does not. For disl see § 126.

92. When final the st loop may represent the consonants st, sd, as in cast, west, most; or it may represent a syllable, as in fused, mused, advised. The ds loop when final may be ds or ts, as in the words nods, notes.

93. The t for st.—The t may be used for st after short and surface letters, because t following short letters is implied by shortening them, and following surface letters is implied by enlarging them. This provides two ways of expressing final st after the short letters in general, and three ways after b, which may be written at sixty degrees to imply s and shortened for t, making bst, or may be followed by the loop, or by t, making bst by either form. The minute st is sty, as in dusty, nasty.

94. The Circle for pr, br.—The circle is turned on the irregular side of a letter for pr or br, as in neighbor, expressed. It is of course modified to imply a following l or d, t, as in neighborly, expert, expired.

MEANS OF WRITING DOUBLE P AND G: WRITING WORDS BEGINNING WITH EX

95. Double p and g.—When p beginning a syllable is followed by another p or b, as in pipe, perhaps, pebble, the first p is written in the backward-slant to imply the following p. When g is followed by another g, as in gage, gig, the first g is slanted backward to imply the second g.

These backward-slant letters are enlarged for a following t or d, and made minute for a following y, l, or ly.

96. Words Beginning with ex.—In words beginning with ex, drop the e and write the x on the following vowel position. When x unites with c or k, p, t, f, or qu, write the k hook, p hook, t tick, retrace, or k hook respectively. If a vowel occurs between the ex and any one of these consonants, express the consonant by the alphabetic letter. When pr or br follows x, represent it by a circle on the upper side of x. In the words beginning with ex followed by soft c or s, omit soft c or s, and write the x on the following vowel position.

REVIEW OF HOOKS

97. Initial Hooks.—Initial p and g, being always written in their alphabetic form, can not clash with any other initial hook.

The sp hook joined without an angle, and always turned on the upper side of the following letter, can not clash with cl or cr, which are always turned on the under side of the following letter. Nor can the sc and sp clash, because they turn in opposite directions, and join with the following letters in a different manner.

The cl and cr, although alike in form, direction, and joining, differ in size.

The spl and cl can not clash if correctly written, cl being on the under, and sp on the upper side of the following letter.

98. Final Hooks.—Of the final hooks, p turns on the upper and g on the under side of all lines except the forward obliques a, i, o, c, v, and w. In joining p and g with these letters, it should be remembered that at the top, when these letters are written upward, there is but one hook,—p; if g follows them it is always joined angularly. At the bottom, when these letters are drawn downward, there is but one hook,—g, while p is joined angularly.

The sk is clearly differentiated from angularly joined g because it is written horizontally, a direction which angularly joined g never takes.

The ns is always a medial or final hook, while sp is seldom final and therefore unlikely to be mistaken for ns or ms.

WORDS OF FREQUENT USE

101. The following words occur so often in English that the student should practice them until able to write them automatically at a rapid rate, two hundred to two hundred and fifty words a minute. Most of them are fully written, but a few are written by briefer signs which are, however, clearly representative, and will be easily memorized.

102. The Fifty Most Frequent Words.—The following list comprises what are said to be the fifty most frequent words in extemporaneous discourse. They are given here in the order of the frequency of their occurrence in 100,000 words; thus the occurs 2179 times; of, 1169 times; to, 1104 times; and, 899 times; the other words gradually decrease in frequency to the end of the list, where if is seen to occur 99 times. These words should be thoroughly mastered. It would be well for the student to memorize the list and practice it from memory, striving earnestly to write it faster, and still faster, until he is able to write it four or five times a minute. Such effort at this stage of progress will be highly disciplinary and valuable.

ABBREVIATED WORDS

103. List.—The following list comprises words which, from their frequency and length, it is regarded advantageous to abbreviate. They may be fully written, if desired, but the abbreviated forms are all so suggestive that they are easily learned. For the syllable tion, occurring in some of the words, see § 117.

104. In Phrases.—Most of the foregoing words are to be written positionally. They are therefore to be used in phrasing only when they begin a phrase, as in the following illustrations. Great caution must be taken in employing abbreviated forms, and absolute familiarity is necessary.

KEY

- 1 any one, any time, represent them, represent you, accept this,
 2 character of, correspond with, can not be, differ with,
 3 differ from, difficulty in, difficult to, invoice inclosed,
 4 together with your, principle of, perhaps I may

105. Suggestive Outlines.—Study of the foregoing list of abbreviated words and phrases will doubtless suggest to the thoughtful student the possibility of similarly abbreviating other words which may occur in technical writing. Such efforts are quite legitimate if the outlines conform to the principles of the system. But any abbreviated form to be practicable must be so thoroughly learned that it is legible at sight.

106. Root Words.—Abbreviated forms generally represent root words, but in most cases they may also represent the derivatives therefrom; as, shi represents not only ship, but shipped, shipping, shipper, shipment; sel is self, selfish, selfishness, selfishly; ac is accept, accepts, accepted, acceptable-bly, acceptance, acceptor; ad is advertise-d-ing-ment. Most students will want to add to these root forms the various terminal letters that make the derivative words, but it will generally be safe to allow the root form to represent all the derivatives.

107. Selection of Outlines.—In the study of unfamiliar words there may occur to the student different ways of writing the same word, each in accordance with the principles of the system. In such a case the shortest should be selected if it is clear and facile, but it is better to write a longer, clear, and facile outline, than a shorter one that is not easy to write or to read. Always express in a word its most important sounds.

108. Shortest Outlines.—Most students will want to write the word mark by the use of the circle and c, rather than by shading the m and using the hook for c. By writing each form as rapidly as possible during a minute, it will be found that quite a number more of the latter form can be made, and, as it is equally as legible as the first form, it should, of course, be used. The same may be said of the word market. The student will incline to write it  instead of , while it will be found on writing the two each a definite time, as half a minute, that the second form is the quicker. The hook is better than the c in sake, seek, sick, suck, sank, sink, sunk, fact, back, book, thick, thank, week, wake. The word number is likely to present itself to the mind with the alphabetic b and r, while the r written on the upper side of the n is equally legible and distinct and at the same time is much more quickly made. In the words may be and can be, and similar phrases, the student is likely to use alphabetic b rather than the hook, although the hook is much the more facile because it is a continued motion with the preceding letter. In such words as find and signed, the student will generally choose to lengthen the f and s to imply n and add the d, instead of writing alphabetic f and s and finishing the words with short n, for nd, although the second form is much quicker made and is equally legible. In the words want, went, wanted, wont, won't, wonted, will not, would not, faint, font, feint, fount, saint, saintly, sent, scent, saunter, scintillate, senate, lengthen the first letter to imply the n, and add t; and in wand, wind, feigned, find, sand, sound, etc., shorten the n for nd.

Do not write “way” for away, “ware” for aware, “wake” for awake, “wait” for await, “rise” for arise, “round” for around, “side” for aside or beside, “sept” for except, “low” for allow, “cur” for occur, “casion” for occasion, “clusion” for seclusion or conclusion, “traction” for attraction, “lacion” for relation, “cuss” for discuss, “licious” for delicious, “gain” for again, “go” for ago, “gree” for agree, “sides” for besides, “specially” for especially, “ceived” for received, “genst” for against, “pear” for appear, “count” for account, “point” for appoint, “mount” for amount, “sent” for ascent, “send” for ascend, “sind” for assigned, “can’t” for can not, “don’t” for do not, “sistant” for assistant, “ficiant” for deficient, “ficious” for officious, “sponse” for response, “tention” for attention or intention, “pression” for impression or oppression, “gression” for aggression, “mission” for omission.

Avoid using circle r after shortened i and u. The circle causes them to resemble wh and ch. Always shade inter, under, and enter, as in interest, understand, entertain.

109. Write to Read.—The foregoing are samples of common errors, which the student should not allow himself to commit. The omission of initial syllables always seriously impairs legibility; and while in very rapid writing one may be driven to various time-saving devices, he should always seek to avoid them. Write every word with reference to reading it, at any time in the future.

110. Study of the Principles.—If well-grounded in the principles embodied in the three rules and the expedients to imply frequent letters, together with the prefixes and terminals, the resolving of most words into their representative elements would seem to offer little difficulty to any thoughtful student, while to many it becomes a keen mental pleasure. New words that cause hesitancy should subsequently be recalled and studied until they become clear and facile. In writing unfamiliar long words do not stop to determine the entire outline of a word, but begin at once by writing the first letter positionally, to imply the second, in doing which the writing of the remainder of the word will generally be seen.

WRITING EXERCISE

The following sentences illustrate the use of abbreviated words in phrasing. Those words whose outlines are quite suggestive irrespective of position, may be used in any relation in a phrase, but those which rely on their position to interpret them may be used in phrase writing only when they begin phrases.

1 bought a (an), it is a (an), there is a (an), will you accept them,

TERMINATIONS

111. The following list of terminal signs, with some of which the student is already familiar, will be easily learned and applied. These signs are presented in three classes: I, signs consisting of minute characters; II, signs consisting of single characters, some of which are written upward to imply a following l, and downward to imply a following s or sh, and some of which are modified to imply t, d or m, n; III, signs composed of two or three characters, the final one of which may be modified.

112. For the terminal age, j is sometimes preferable to g, as in heritage. For arity, erity, ority, urity, as in familiarity, sincerity, majority, maturity, if thought better, the vowels may often be omitted and the enlarged r or the minute t used instead. For ality, ility, ulity, the enlarged l is an easy representative when preceded by a long character, as in personality. For arity, erely, orial, urely, write the vowel with minute r when necessary, but generally the minute r alone will represent the terminal clearly, as in primarily, severely, censorial, securely.

The straight s is lengthened for st, sd, only when following a minute or surface character on which the sd loop can not be turned. The lengthened t is not used initially, as in tight, taught; th is used for the second t.

CHAPTER XXIX

WRITING THE SYLLABLES TION, TIOUS*

113. Lengthened or Diminished Consonants.—By far the greatest number of words in tion, tious, etc., consist of three or more syllables, of which the penult contains a single or a double consonant followed by a single vowel; as edu-ca-tion, pro-ba-tion, fumi-ga-tion, mi-gra-tion, invo-lu-tion, se-cre-tion, se-clu-sion, per-sua-sion. In all these cases tion is implied by means of n, which is indicated whenever possible by lengthening or diminishing the first consonant of the penult. This implying of n for tion is possible with all long letters, all short letters, and with the surface letters p, g, and l. Thus in education, lengthened c is used for cation; in probation, minute b is used for bation; in fumigation, lengthened g is used for gation; in migration, lengthened g shaded is used for gation; and in involution, lengthened l is used for lution. P and g, when used in this way, should be joined angularly. Under this class are also included words in uation, since this termination is nearly equivalent in sound to wation, and is expressed by the lengthened w.

115. Diminished Vowels.—There are a few words, mainly of three syllables, which end in ation, ition, ution, asion, ision, usion, hesion, etc., preceded by a vowel or by a positional consonant, or in action, ection, iction, uction, aptation, eption, iption, option, uption, preceded by letters other than d, f, fr, or s. To write these words, the minute vowels are used to imply the termination: minute a standing for ation, action, or aption; minute u for ution, uction, or uption; minute i for ition, iction, or iption; minute e for ection, eption; and minute shaded e for hesion.

116. The Letter n or Special Signs.—In those words in which the consonant or consonants preceding the penultimate vowel are such as can not be modified to imply n, the alphabetic n is used for tion. A few more complex terminations are also grouped with this class, and are represented by special signs. The following are the most important of these terminations:

tn	⌞	used for	tation when the minute curved t does not join well.

117. The Tick.— A number of words may most conveniently be written with a tick, called the “shun” tick. These include, principally, the words in which the termination tion or sion is immediately preceded by n or r, as invention, inversion. The tick is lengthened to imply t or d, and made very minute to imply a following l or ly. Some good writers use the tick for all the “shun” terminals, preferring it to the modifications of preceding letters.

118. Verbs Corresponding to Nouns in tion.—Most words in tion, sion, etc., are nouns, and are usually derived from verbs. A large proportion of these verbs end in t or te, as educate, elect, the primitives of education and election; and their past participles generally end in ed, as educated, elected. These forms, the present tense and the past participle, are often written alike, the context being relied upon to determine the form. The outlines are the same as those of the nouns, except that instead of adding or implying n as in the noun, t is added or implied for the present, and td for the participle, when possible to do it in one stroke. In some cases, the preceding vowel is also expressed.

CHAPTER XXX

EXERCISE IN TERMINATIONS

Having become an octoge-narian, on the verge of superan-nuation, and having had a gentle admo-nition of my incapaci-tation for physical exer-tion, but in my early edu-cation having made the acqui-sition of a dispo-sition averse to in-action, without the least am-bition or aspi-ration for distinc-tion, per-sonal aggran-dization, or pecuniary remune-ration, but for the sole purpose of having some occu-pation, and for my own satis-faction and gratifi-cation, I conceived the no-tion of the di-rection of my at-tention to the col-lection, classifi-cation, combi-nation, congre-gation, and concen-tration of words in the English vocabulary with t-i-o-n for their termi-nation.

With this expla-nation of my in-tention I commen-ced ope-ration, with no con-ception of the vex-ation and close appli-cation necessary for its com-pletion; but possessing an innate obdu-ration against the pre-vention of, or frus-tration in, any laudable vo-cation, I persevered in my investi-gation against strong oppo-sition, frequent interr-uption, and with excessive fati-gation, until I brought the sub-ject in contem-plate to a suc-cessful consum-mation.

Finding the enume-ration of t-i-o-n as a termi-nation far ex-ceeding my antici-pation, expec-tation, or calcu-lation, I felt an ineli-nation to submit for publi-cation, even at the risk of my repu-tation, my singular and unique pro-duction, for the infor-mation, in-struction, and edifi-cation of the rising gene-ration.

After the for-mation of a determi-nation in favor of its publi-cation, it became a matter of necessi-tation, in confor-mation to pre-vailling custom in every new literary compo-sition, to preface my publi-cation, as an intro-duction, with a dedi-cation to some distin-guished friend or re-lation.

It then became a grave ques-tion to what distant or near re-lation I could make this do-nation, before consul-tation, and avoid the cau-sation of disaf-fection, disappro-bation, and perhaps repro-bation. After long cogi-tation, much consul-tation, and serious re-flection, I could bring to my recoll-ection and recog-nition but one distant re-lation in all cre-ation, who, in my esti-mation, would entertain a full appre-ciation of this demon-stration of my af-fection.

Therefore, without further cir-cumlo-cution, in conside-ration and commemo-ration of the fre-quent repe-tition, excla-mation, vocife-ration, and apt appli-cation of t-i-o-n by my distant re-lation, L. B. C., in her daily conver-sation, when ob-jects offensive come in con-taction with her degus-tation, olfactory, or other acute sen-sation, I can have no hesi-tation, and I feel under great obli-gation, and it affords me much satis-faction and gratifi-cation to honor her with the do-nation of this dedi-cation of the following labor-ious compi-lation, trusting it will meet her entire appro-bation and highest commen-dation. Hoping that a perusal of this pro-duction will engage her at-tention, afford her in-struction, excite her ani-mation, elicit her admi-ration, produce exhila-ration, and oc-casionally a burst of cachin-nation, I am as ever, without affec-tation, her sincere friend and af-fectionate re-lation.

CHAPTER XXXI

IMPLIED WORDS

120. Some words, which by their relation to the context are rendered very obvious, are implied by writing their initial letter, or their initial terminal letter, beneath the preceding word or syllable. For example, in the sentences, "Did you hear the conversation?" "Were you present at this conversation?" the word conversation is implied by writing its terminal signs under the previous word.

This is a very important, definite, and facile means of brevity, and should be thoroughly mastered not only by writing the following sentences, but by discovering and practicing others in which the implied words occur.

KEY

Did you hear the conversation? Were you present when this conversation took place? Were you a witness of this transaction? When was the business transacted? Are you responsible for this? Is this statement correct? When did you make this observation? She is very intelligent. I am not able. Defendant's counsel objects.

WRITING EXERCISE

1. When did this transaction take place? 2. The business was transacted on June 1. 3. Who transacted the business? 4. Are you certain of the precise nature of the transaction? 5. Who are the responsible parties? 6. I do not know who is responsible. 7. Do you share in the responsibility? 8. Did you not agree to become responsible for the payment of these goods? 9. Is he well educated? 10. Where did he pursue his education? 11. The course of lectures was highly educational. 12. What is your conclusion? 13. I have reached no conclusion. 14. Is the course concluded? 15. The reasoning is very conclusive. 16. Hear the conclusion of the whole matter. 17. Did you make this calculation? 18. Did you calculate this accurately? 19. Yes, I made a very careful calculation of the amount of coal necessary to be used. 20. How much did you calculate would be sufficient to construct the shaft? 21. Did you observe the condition of the horse at the time of the transaction? 22. The transaction was in no way conditioned upon the condition of the roads or weather. 23. What was his conduct at the time? 24. I had no opportunity for observation. 25. Is this map drawn to a correct scale? 26. Who is responsible for the correctness of this proof? 27. Will you correct it? 28. It is sufficiently correct for all practical purposes. 29. What do you mean by sufficiently correct? 30. It is very satisfactory. 31. It is not very satisfactorily done. 32. He is well satisfied. 33. It is giving good satisfaction. 34. We are all well satisfied with its construction. 35. Are you a delegate to the convention? 36. What are you delegated to do? 37. I am not a member of the delegation. 38. Has the delegation been instructed? 39. Have the delegates been instructed? 40. There is no necessary relation between them. 41. To what does this relate? 42. They are in no way related. 43. That is only relatively true. 44. There was a very great commotion. 45. He is quite well informed. 46. Did you not inform the authorities? 47. Are you informed on the subject? 48. Such information is of great importance just now. 49. Is it necessary to conduct the matter in this way? 50. It is not necessarily true. 51. There is no necessity for it. 52. An amendment was offered. 53. The constitution was amended as follows. 54. A resolution was offered to amend the motion as follows. 55. There is no connection between the two. 56. Are you connected with this firm? 57. Have you any connection therewith? 58. Did you yourself make the observations? 59. Have you observed and noted the difference? 60. How much space will your display occupy? 61. How long have you occupied these premises? 62. What is your occupation? 63. How long were you occupied in this work? 64. What is the population of your town? 65. Is the county a populous one? 66. Long before this section was populated. 67. James Wells has been elected president of the company. 68. Mr. President, I arise to a point of order. 69. Who presided at the meeting of the stockholders? 70. Who is the president of this company? 71. I arise, Mr. President, to propose a new measure. 72. I now propose a reconsideration of the former question. 73. What is the nature of your proposition? 74. Are you prepared to lay the question before the court? 75. I have nearly completed my preparation. 76. Mr. President, I am prepared to show. 77. All preparation has been made to receive the delegation. 78. The result is consequent upon the decision to be made by this body. 79. It is of small consequence. 80. Grave consequences hang upon this decision. 81. I am prepared to show that the consequences will be overwhelming. 82. We have consequently no redress. 83. Were you present at the operation? 84. Yes, I saw the operation performed. 85. At its conclusion I proposed a toast in appreciation of the skill of the operator. 86. What was the position held by the plaintiff at that time? 87. He held the position of chief engineer to the company. 88. Its true position can not be definitely determined at this time. 89. Did you hear the conversation testified to by the last witness? 90. How many persons were involved in the conversation? 91. Did you hold frequent conversations with the plaintiff? 92. Did you not testify that this conversation occurred in your office and in your presence on the first day of May, 1902? 93. No, sir, I did not testify that I heard the conversation. 94. You may describe the appearance of the defendant at that interview. 95. I can not give an accurate description of her, as the conversation was very brief, and I was in a great hurry. 96. How much have you subscribed? 97. I have not subscribed, and can not make a subscription for this cause. 98. Did you respond to the demand made upon you for a subscription? 99. No, I made no response, as I did not consider the company had any claim on me to demand a subscription. 100. Are you the respondent in this cause? 101. Did you assist in deciding the ingredients of which the mixture consisted? 102. Can you afford to make the concession they require? 103. No, I shall never concede it. 104. What assistance did you give in the laying of the foundation? 105. I rendered them no assistance. 106. Why did you not assist? 107. Do you understand the construction of this machine? 108. If you understand its construction, why did you not respond to their request to explain it? 109. I am fully persuaded that it is not correct. 110. The logic of the facts is persuasive. 111. How did you receive this intelligence? 112. I received the intelligence directly from the secretary of the association. 113. Her intellectual faculties are very remarkable. 114. It was a most intellectual feast.

115. It was very intelligently presented. 116. Did you closely attend to the conversation between them? 117. Yes, I gave the closest attention. 118. Why were you such an attentive listener? 119. Was the attendance large? 120. Did you sign this contract? 121. Do you understand the nature of the contract? 122. Are you fully persuaded of his contractual ability? 123. I regarded the contract as being illegal. 124. What advantage would you derive from the contract? 125. The contract would be of no advantage to me. 126. Then why did you regard the contract favorably? 127. It would be very advantageous to my friend. 128. How much, according to the contract, were you to invest? 129. The contract does not specify that I am to make any investment. 130. Was there not a verbal contract specifying the amount of your investment? 131. No advantage would accrue to me in a contract of this nature. 132. Where is the plant situated? 133. I do not know its situation. 134. Where did he graduate? 135. I was not present at his graduation, and do not indeed know that he ever graduated. 136. The town is most advantageously situated. 137. What caused the division? 138. Where does the dividing line begin? 139. How shall we divide it? 140. You must not hesitate. 141. What is the cause of this hesitation? 142. He is very much improved. 143. There have been great improvements made there. 144. Counsel objects. 145. Why do you object? 146. There are no objections. 147. What were his objections to it? 148. When was the work commenced? 149. At what point shall we commence? 150. It is not sufficient. 151. Was the material sufficient? 152. Did you hear him speak? 153. Did you hear his speech? 154. Who is to speak? 155. Mr. Speaker. 156. Do not interrupt the speaker. 157. Let us consider the matter. 158. What is the consideration? 159. He is an enthusiast. 160. He is a very enthusiastic speaker. 161. On the contrary. 162. When was the execution issued?

CHAPTER XXXII

DISCONNECTED PREFIXES

121. Com or con Initial.—Either of the prefixes com or con, is always followed by a consonant; thus in contain the consonant t follows the con. To express the prefix com or con, the consonant is written on position for the vowel that follows it, and the remainder of the word, disconnected, is added close at the right of this consonant. Thus in writing contain, t on the a position is understood to stand for conta, since the n is written disconnectedly close at the right, and may be called the indicating consonant.

122. The Consonant, Simple and Modified.—In many words the indicating consonant, unmodified in any way, is used to indicate the prefix, as explained in the preceding paragraph.

KEY

1 contain combine connive commit convene comrade compact
2 compare congeal confer conceit concave continent

When the indicating consonant coalesces with the following consonant, the symbol which regularly represents such coalescent combination is used to indicate the prefix, just as the simple consonant is.

KEY

1 contract constrain comprehend congress conscript constant
2 complain conglomerate confluent conclude concrement conspire

If the consonant can be modified by lengthening, shortening, enlarging, shading, etc., so as to express one or more following consonants, though they are uncoalescent, this is done; and the consonant thus modified and placed on position for the vowel of the second syllable of the word, is used as the prefix sign.

KEY

1 commensurable concentrate combative condense contemplate
2 congratulate compartment commercial concert convert
3 confirm consist concession

123. Words in tion.—Words of four or more syllables, beginning with com or con and ending with tion or tious, should have the prefix expressed in accordance with §121, and the ending by the tion tick, or implied by n.

KEY

- |                 |              |              |              |

| 2 conscientious | complication | congregation | conformation |
| 3 consolidation | conciliation |              |              |

Most words of three syllables, however, beginning with com or con and ending with tion or sion, as completion, concession, contention, should have the prefix expressed as in §121, and the suffix, whether tion or sion, by n or the lengthened s. Plurals of these words should have an added s.

124. Lengthened c for com and con.—In some few words it is preferable to use the lengthened c instead of the prefix sign, as in the following and their derivatives:

CHAPTER XXXIII

CONNECTED PREFIXES

125. Compound com and con Prefixes.—When com or con follows another prefix, making a compound prefix, as in accommodate, unconfined, the com or con is represented by the modification of the preceding initial letter to imply the m or n in the com or con. This use of the first letter of the first syllable of the prefix and the last letter of the final syllable of the prefix combined as the sign of the two syllables, is analogous to the method of representing the final syllables cation, dation by final n.

Following are the compound prefixes formed with com and con: accom, accoun, concom, circum, decom, discon, discoun, econ, encom, encoun, excom, hypocon, incom, incon, intercom, irrecon, miscon, noncon, precon, recom, recon, recoun, rencon, rencoun, subcom, subcon, transcon, uncom, uncon, unaccom, unaccoun, unrecom, unrecon.

KEY

1 accommodate accountable concomitant decompose discomposed
 2 disconsolate discountenance economical encompass encounter
 3 encumbers excommunicate hypochondriacal incommoded

4 inconclusive intercommunication irreconcilable misconstrue
 5 nonconformable preconform subcompressed reconciled
 6 unaccommodated unaccountable uncompromising unreconciled
 7 unrecompensed circumstance circumference transcontinental

126. The Prefix dis.—The prefix dis is represented by the ds loop on the i position. When the loop is followed by a consonant, it implies an accented vowel following the consonant, as a in dismay, o in dispose, e in dismember. When the prefix is followed by t, making dist, however, it is expressed, not by the loop, but by the letter d followed by t, which after d becomes st (§93). The combination disl is written by the ds loop angularly joined to imply the l.

This use of the ds loop on the i position for the prefix enables us to employ it on other positions to imply other vowels, as in dusk, does not, despot.

127. The Prefix re.—When this prefix must be distinguished as such, it is represented by r written on the e position, and attached to the irregular side of the following letter in a manner similar to ds, from which it must be clearly distinguished by its circular form. It may be diminished to imply a following l, and enlarged for a following t, d. The prefix re always implies an accented vowel in a following syllable, as in re-made, re-miss, re-nown, re-mark, re-ceipt, which are written remd, rems, renn, remrk, rest.

The student should take a dictionary and write all the words to which the foregoing prefixes apply.

129. The Prefixes satis, dis-satis, and un-satis.—These prefixes are represented as follows: The word satisfy, with its various terminals, is represented by omitting satis, and writing f with the terminal across, or under, a preceding word to imply the prefix satis. For dis-satis attach ds loop to f, and for un-satis attach minute u to f, and write across, or under, the preceding word, thus implying satis not only in satisfy, but in dis-satisfy and un-satisfy.

CHAPTER XXXV

PHRASE WRITING: FIRST METHOD

130. As the idea of phrase writing has been grasped and considerable practice therein already attained, there remains but to present the subject more fully. The number of movements made in lifting the pen from word to word which are saved in phrase writing, is a practical argument in favor thereof; and well constructed phrases are perfectly legible.

131. Position Words.—There is a rather large class of very simple phrases, consisting of two words each, the second being a or an, they, or day; the, he, or me; I or my; to, do, or of; you or your; for example, the phrases to a or to an, to-day, to the, to my, to do, to you. In all phrases of this class write the first word of the phrase on the position which implies the second word. The position phrase words are as follows:

- 1 a, an, day, they, their, theirs
- 2 the, he, be, me, there
- 3 I, my, mine
- 4 do, to, though, these
- 5 you, your, yours

The phrases to a or to an, to-day, are represented by t on position 1; t 2, represents to the, to me, or to be; t 3, represents to my; t 4, represents to do; and t 5, is to you or your.

132. Phrase Words and Signs.—The words which are written positionally to imply the position words given above are presented in the following columns. Most of these words are written in regular form, that is, by the letter or letters which represent them positionally. The word but is represented by shortened shaded b, to differentiate it from the word but when unphrased. The only words which are arbitrarily represented are all, as, before, have, if, of, will. These are arbitrarily written because their natural signs are used for other words; as, v is used for have because ha is used for has; f is used for if because i is used for is; right o is used for of because left o is used for on. The words all and will are differentiated by the slant and direction of the l, which represents them both; the left l is used for will, and the right l for all.

PHRASE WORDS AND SIGNS OF THE FIRST CLASS

SIGNS	PHRASE WORDS	SIGNS	PHRASE WORDS	SIGNS	PHRASE WORDS
l	a	o	get, got	o	paid
b	after	o	give	o	shall
o	against	o	gone	o	ship
o	all	o	great	o	should
o	and	o	had	o	some
o	are	o	has	o	tell
o	as	o	have	o	that
o	ask	o	how	o	though
o	at	o	if	o	through
o	before	o	in	o	to o	but	o	is	o	upon
o	by	o	just	o	were
o	can	o	know	o	what
o	did	o	mail	o	when
o	do	o	never	o	whenever
o	done	o	nor	o	where
o	don't	o	not	o	while
o	drop	o	of	o	why
o	for	o	on	o	will
o	from	o	or	o	with
o	gave	o	over

This method constitutes the shortest phrase writing known to shorthand, and the phrases represented are in such common use as to be of great value to the student. A phrase of this class often makes the beginning of another phrase, as, in a few days, at the time, all you know, of the day, and when so related the following word is written attached.

This class of phrases has been given to some extent already; therefore in the following illustrations only the arbitrary signs are shown.

KEY

- 1 are you, all the, will you, as a, as I may, before the, but I,
- 2 have a, have you, if the, in a, of the, on the, or a, and the,
- 3 to be thought, to be known, to be found, to be had, to be paid, to be said

The student should practice the phrase words and the phrases arising from placing them on the different positions, until he is entirely familiar with them all.

WRITING EXERCISE

- 1 a day; against a, —the, —me, —you; all a, —day, —the, —he, —I, —my,
- 2 —you, —true; and a, —an, —the, —he, —I, —my, —you; are a, —the,

CHAPTER XXXVI

PHRASE WRITING: SECOND METHOD

133. There are many phrases of three words each, in which the first and last words are the same, joined, generally, by a conjunction or a preposition. In writing these phrases the first word is written positionally, the connecting word is omitted, and the last word either joined to the first, or written in close proximity to it.

The connecting words to and and are generally indicated by joining the first and last word, while by and after are implied by writing the last word close after or under the first.

PHRASES AND SIGNS OF THE SECOND CLASS

CHAPTER XXXVII

PHRASE WRITING: THIRD METHOD

134. This method consists in writing together two or more common words as they occur in frequent phrases.

All short words of frequent occurrence that are represented by simple outlines which can easily be joined to other words and yet preserve their established form, may be written attached to a preceding word when occurring in natural phrases.

In phrases of this class the first word of a phrase is always written positionally, and the remaining words joined to it. There is no limit to the number of words that may be joined except the natural structure of the phrase; but in general it is better not to attempt to join many words in one phrase outline. Words that are separated by pauses, or that do not form natural phrases in speech, should not be joined in written phrases. Words should be represented in phrase writing by the same outlines that represent them when disconnected. If a word occurs that does not join easily with the preceding word, it is better to lift the pen and write it positionally.

When th follows an upward line it is represented by d, as in the words the, they, though, that, than, then, them following will. Otherwise the same letters and combinations are used to represent words in phrasing that are used to write them positionally.

135. Compound phrases are often constructed, arising from the combination of a phrase of the first or second method with a phrase word or words of the third method; as in the following:

1. The first part of the document is a list of items, including various types of paper and other office supplies. The items are listed in a columnar format, with descriptions and quantities.
 The list is organized into several sections, each starting with a heading.
 The headings are written in a cursive hand, and the items are listed below them. The quantities are given in numbers, and the descriptions are in words. The list is complete and covers all the items mentioned in the document.

The first of these is the fact that the defendant was not present at the trial. This is a serious matter and it is necessary to determine the reasons for his absence. It is also necessary to determine whether or not the defendant was properly notified of the trial. If the defendant was not properly notified, the trial may be set aside.
 If the defendant was properly notified and failed to appear, the trial may proceed in his absence. It is the duty of the court to ensure that the trial is conducted fairly and that the rights of the defendant are protected.

KEYS FOR READING EXERCISES

PAGE 137.—ADVERTISING

1. Dear Sir:—I thank you for referring the Pacific Electric Co. of La Crosse to "Western Penman" as an advertising medium. I have received an inquiry from that company and hope they will decide to advertise with me. Yours truly.

2. Dear Sir:—We sent you copy for three months' advertising some time ago; up to date we have received no acknowledgment, nor have we received a copy of your paper. Please instruct us if you did not receive copy. Yours respectfully.

3. Gentlemen:—We are in receipt of your favor of the 6th, asking us to send a wall chart, as mentioned in our New York letter, to each of your schools. We have entered the order and the charts will be sent as soon as we receive them, which we expect will be before many days. We remain, yours very truly.

4. Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find corrected bill to conform with your understanding as to rates. The solicitor who made the rate to you is no longer with us, and he gave us no information as to the rate he quoted you. Trusting that corrected bill will be satisfactory and that we may be favored with further business from you, we remain, Yours very truly.

5. Dear Sir:—Replying to your favor of the 22d, we are pleased to quote you the following rates for 200 inches of advertising: "Daily Herald," 20c per inch; "Weekly Herald," 25c per inch; and the same advertisement in both "Daily" and "Weekly," 35c per inch, each insertion. We shall be pleased to receive your order. Yours truly.

6. Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find card of our advertising rates, also under separate cover sample of our publication. These rates are net; the only concession that we could make is, in case you should desire a yearly card, we would allow you a little extra time to take out the number of insertions in case any part of the year should be undesirable for your advertising. As you will notice, the rates are made according to the number of insertions and not according to the space. Yours truly.

PAGES 138, 139.—COAL

1. Dear Sir:—In accordance with conversation via telephone, your order is entered for one car Piedmont, to be consigned to you on L. S. & M. S. Ry., at $3.15 per net ton, mine weights. You to pay the Lake Shore switching charge. Yours very truly.

2. Dear Sir:—We are advised by Mr. Wagner that on last Saturday he made you a price of $2.25, delivered at your yard on the Lake Shore, for our egg coal. We wish to confirm this proposition and shall be glad to have you furnish us with your orders, which will receive my prompt attention. Yours truly.

3. Dear Sir:—Herewith we send you corrected bill for Wabash car No. 3567. You will please note attached letter from our superintendent at the mines, which we trust will explain the error. We have taken the matter up in such shape that we think nothing of the kind will occur on future shipments. Kindly excuse the mistake, and oblige,
Yours very truly.

4. Dear Sir:—Replying to yours of the 26th inst., and returning papers regarding switching on several cars of coal delivered to you in December, we beg leave to say that on September 27 we issued a new switching tariff, making our rate $3 per car for delivery to your yard, and bills referred to are therefore correct. Yours truly.

5. Dear Sir:—Owing to the withdrawal of all switching arrangements by the various Eastern coal-carrying roads entering Chicago, we are compelled to discontinue the absorption of switching charges on shipments of Hocking coal, which may be reconsigned to you from our supply on and after April 15.

Please be governed accordingly, and oblige, Yours truly.

6. Dear Sir:—We herewith enclose you communication from the Michigan Central Road, under date of to-day, showing that car 4304, C. P. & S. L., was received by them March 6, at Buffalo, and did not arrive at Kensington until this morning. You will also note that they have given instructions to have the car rushed forward. We regret exceedingly the delay, and hope it may not occur again. Yours truly.

7. Dear Sir:—We wrote you some days since asking if you cared to consider a proposition to take from three to five thousand tons of gas coke the coming season, to which we have received no reply. We consider this an exceptional chance to secure this amount of coke. If you are in the market and care to make an offer on it, we trust you will do so by return mail, since our option expires within a few days.

Hoping for a favorable reply, Very respectfully yours.

8. Dear Sir:—Referring to yours of recent date in reference to weight on five cars of coal, we beg leave to say that the matter has been referred to the mines, and they absolutely decline to make any allowance whatever, stating that all coal is shipped at railroad weights, and that they will not deviate from the usual custom.

If our invoice is not in accordance with railroad weights, we will take the matter up for further consideration, but if the same is rendered on the basis of railroad weights, we can make no allowance whatever.

Hoping this will be satisfactory, we are, Yours truly.

9. Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find freight bill for car No. 7889, which we find is a duplicate bill. We are in receipt of affidavit from you claiming shortage on this car of 4865 lbs. We are allowed this shortage for freight by the R.R. Co., if our claim is accompanied by a sworn affidavit and freight bill. This is a duplicate bill and they refuse to honor any but the original, therefore we return same to you and ask that you will send us original, on receipt of which we will credit your account.

Yours truly.

PAGE 140.—WIRE NAILS

1. Gentlemen:—Replying to your card of the 27th inst., the 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ -in. nails were sent you instead of the 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ -in., as invoiced. Inclosed you will please find corrected bill, and we ask that you excuse the error.

Yours very truly.

2. Gentlemen:—Replying to your card of the 13th inst., we wish to say that our mill being closed for repairs, it will be impossible to make immediate shipment of orders named. If you are compelled to cancel same, please advise us.

Regretting the delay, we remain, Yours truly.

3. Gentlemen:—Replying to yours of the 9th inst., will say, we have started tracer after the Minneapolis Sash & Door Company's order of March 23. Regarding enclosures, which we return herewith, we will hurry out these nails as fast as possible. Yours truly.

4. Dear Sir:—Referring to the inclosed specifications, it will be impossible for us to accept this offer, as we are now entirely too far behind on our contracts, and do not think it good policy to take orders and delay so long in shipping them as will give us a bad reputation.

Regretting that we can not see our way clear to accept your offer, we remain, Yours truly.

5. Dear Sir:—Confirming our message of yesterday, we will ship you the  $\frac{3}{4}$ -in. No. 17 wire nails ordered to-day, and trust the same may meet the requirements of your present needs. We regret very much having been compelled to delay shipment so long, but as our factory was closed for repairs, an earlier shipment would have been impossible. We beg to assure you that your future orders can be given more prompt attention, and hope you will excuse the delay this time.

Yours very truly.

6. Gentlemen:—Replying to yours of the 19th inst., we are pleased to offer you penny wire nails in car lots at $4.20 rate, and in less than car lots at $4.30. List goods we offer you at a discount of 60 and 10 per cent off inclosed list, f.o.b. Buffalo. Terms 60 days, or 2 per cent cash ten days.

Yours truly.

PAGES 141, 142.—TELEGRAPHIC

1. Dear Sir:—On the night of the 24th, please arrange to keep the Louisville Bulletin's day leased wire in service with all connections the same as in daytime. Report at what hour they discontinue using the circuit. Also say if any operators were furnished the Bulletin to man this circuit. Yours truly.

2. Dear Sir:—Referring to correspondence had relative to rates named the Democratic and Republican clubs at Florence, Tenn., I am now advised that when we offered both of these clubs schedule rates we were informed that they had accepted service from your company on more advantageous terms. Will you please advise? Yours truly.

3. Dear Sir:—Morgan & Co. ask if we can give them a wire either from Pittsburg or Norfolk to Atlanta. They also wish to reach Richmond and Charlotte. If there is no wire available for lease between those points, will you please say if you will construct one, and if so, advise on what terms. Morgan & Co. desire an early reply. Yours truly.

4. Dear Sir:—Please sever the connection between the shore wires leased to McDuffie & Co., from their office in the Ryder building, to the office of Merrill & Co. in the Jannieson building and from their office to the office of Lewis & Co. in the Burnett house, and arrange so that they can work these wires separately, commencing to-morrow morning. Advise when done. Yours truly.

5. Dear Sir:—Referring to the wire to be constructed for Monroe & Co., between San Francisco, Cal., and Sacramento, Cal., I have to advise that Sherman & Co. are to be their correspondents at the latter place. They are not yet prepared to give us the names of their correspondents at other points. As soon as we hear further from them I will communicate with you. Yours truly.

6. Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find renewal clauses in duplicate with the S. M. Wells Commission Company, of Nashville, Tenn., renewing their contracts for the use of wires, Nashville, Tenn., to Bowling Green, Ky., and in Nashville from their office in the Imperial building to an office in the Blandin building for one year, from October 29, 1900, and October 17, 1900, respectively. The office in the Blandin building, on the latter wire, is now operated by the Jackson Co., instead of A. W. Larson.

Will you please have one copy duly executed on the part of this company, returned for delivery. Yours truly.

7. Dear Sir:—Referring to your communication of the 29th inst., in regard to rates said to have been offered by our people to certain societies and clubs at Tuscumbia, our manager wires Superintendent Wilson that no such rates have been made; that we have contracted with the Turnverein for $30; that the Akrons take messenger service for $15; and that the Democratic Club arranged a week ago with our company at $25, the club to furnish and pay its own operator, and do not make any allowance to them on account of their furnishing him. Yours truly.

8. Dear Sir:—Referring to your memorandum of the 26th ultimo, requesting that we give you the services of certain operators on November 13 and 14, I beg to advise that owing to the large number of operators required by us, particularly on the night of the 14th, it may be somewhat difficult for us to let you have operators Bauman at Logansport and Maddox at Marion. In this connection I would call your attention to the fact that there is no extra wire reaching the points named provided for your service on the dates in question. Please see my letter to you on October 20. Kindly answer, advising if you still desire the services of the two operators referred to, and if so I will look into the matter further and see what arrangements can be made. Yours truly.

9. Dear Sir:—Referring to your endorsement of the 7th inst., please find herewith assignment clause in duplicate, transferring from the Lloyd Commission Company to Hanford & Co., the lease held by the former for the use of the wire.

PAGES 143, 144.—BOOTS AND SHOES

1. Gentlemen:—Your favor of June the 4th is received. You ask us to make immediate shipment of the miners' shoes. We find that we have always made these goods specially for you and we should have to do the same again. It would take at least three or four weeks to put them through the works. We thought it best to write you before putting in the order. Yours truly.

2. Dear Sir:—In reply to your letter of Nov. 6 relative to a proposed settlement of judgment by W. H. Smith, we beg leave to reply that we do not care to consider it in any way. We will not recede from our proposition, namely, that we want $250 in cash clear, the debtor to pay your fees and expenses. If this proposition is not accepted in ten days, you may tell him the matter is dropped. Yours truly.

3. Dear Sir:—We received a letter from you dated Nov. 3 asking us to send you some goods. Your order is for spring goods and we had not planned to ship them until December or January. Furthermore we do not feel it consistent to furnish goods while you allow your account to run overdue. We must have prompt settlement of our accounts to make them of value to us nowadays, on account of the low price of goods and the strong competition in business. Yours truly.

4. Dear Sir:—In reply to your letter of Nov. 2 if you will refer to our invoice of September last, you will find that it is dated October 1, thirty days. According to the terms on which these goods were sold the bills are now due. We had not planned to make any extensions, and therefore are not prepared to do so, though in this particular case we will wait until the first of December when we shall expect prompt settlement.

Yours truly.

5. Dear Sir:—Your favor through our Mr. Black is received and shipment made as far as possible. We are sorry to state that we do not have and are unable to procure at any of the jobbing houses the lady's shoe which you ordered. We were also entirely out of the child's shoes. We have plenty of the latter due us and shall be pleased to send with your other goods later if you desire us to do so. Yours truly.

6. Dear Sir:—We have your letter advising us that you received the package for which bill dated October 6 was sent by mail and we supposed you understood this was to take the place of the pair of shoes that were billed you Sept. 30. The package was sent by mistake to Buffalo, Minn., and we were obliged to have it returned; and the $2 that you mentioned in your letter was meant as a credit for the bill of Sept. 30, but our receiving clerk neglected to credit you with the postage. We have, therefore, made an additional credit of 37c, which, with the $2 already credited, will make a total of $2.37 to balance bill Sept. 30.

Hoping this explanation will be satisfactory, we remain,

Yours truly.

7. Gentlemen:—In reply to your letter of recent date we beg leave to say that we have cancelled your order for the remainder of the goods due you as requested. We regret that the delay in shipping should have caused you so much inconvenience, but we have certainly tried our best to get these goods out. During August we have made changes in our stitching room so that we are now able to get out nearly double the quantity of goods we were formerly able to do, and are now in a position to fill orders promptly. Shipment of your goods would have been made the day your countermand was received. Yours truly.

8. Dear Sir:—You wrote to us Nov. 2 advising that you had returned to us on that date our entire shipment of Nov. 8, consisting of six cases, amounting to $50.50, but we find on receipt of the shipment via the B. & O. R. R. that only four cases, numbers 2, 3, 5 and 6, have been returned, the contents thereof amounting to $38.76. You will, therefore, see that you owe us for two cases which we have not received, and we conclude that you have decided to keep them. If you returned us more than the four cases we received, you should send us railroad's shipping receipt, so that we can send a tracer after such cases as are missing.

Please look into this matter and advise us regarding the same.

Yours truly.

PAGE 145.—SHEET STEEL

1. Gentlemen:—On Jan. 9 we quoted you on steel plates, and as yet have not heard further from you in the matter. We are exceedingly anxious to secure your business, and, in quoting, endeavored to make our offer an attractive one.

We shall hope to hear from you in the matter, and, thanking you in advance, are, Yours truly.

2. Gentlemen:—We have just wired you as per confirmation attached, regarding deliveries on your orders Nos. 15563, 16565 and 6. This is in reply to your message of Nov. 27. The delay was occasioned by the fact that we were unable to get information from the factory.

Your letter has just been received, dated Dec. 3, regarding orders Nos. 16565 and 6, and the dates given in our telegram above referred to, are the best that we can promise at this time. Very respectfully.

3. Gentlemen:—Referring to your letter of Nov. 30 in regard to order No. 16146, we send you herewith carbon sketches showing the manner in which our people now understand your customer desires the plates furnished. They have eliminated all curves and understand that he will shear these. On account of the quantity of the plates, they do not consider it advisable to proceed with their execution until they are advised that their understanding is correct, and ask that these sketches be approved and returned as early as possible. The dimensions enclosed in red have been assumed, and if any changes are required please have them made on the sketch before returning the same.

Yours truly.

4. Dear Sir:—We beg to acknowledge receipt of your valued favor of the 9th ult., with reference to price on punched sheets for a tank. In reply we are pleased to advise that we can furnish you with plates punched, rolled, and bent, for a tank 56 feet long and 25 feet wide, 46 inches high, made of  $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch steel, and angle iron for top and bottom of tank bent, at price of \$85, f. o. b. New York. Terms, 10 per cent with order. Yours truly.

PAGES 146, 147.—IRON AND STEEL

1. Gentlemen:—We have your card of the 14th inst., about Diamond Harrow Tooth Steel, in your order 1537. We have this material in stock, and will ship promptly by local freight if you so direct. We have been holding to go in a car with other material. Yours truly.

2. Gentlemen:—On our new engine we should have two oil cups on main bearing in place of one. These oil cups should be one size larger than the one sent with the engine. The two oil cups on pillow block should be one size larger than those furnished.

Please give this your prompt attention, and oblige, Yours truly.

3. Gentlemen:—In order that you may have no mistake on your records in reference to coke shipments for us, we beg to advise that our order of Aug. 4 for 2 cars of egg size coke, and 2 cars of nut size coke for shipment Sept. 1 is still in force irrespective of what shipments you have made us, and what are to come forward on recent orders.

Yours truly.

4. Gentlemen:—Enclosed find sketch of pipe we desire you to ship to our works at Brooklyn Heights. They will send you a flange for one end of the pipe, which we wish you to bush and put on. On the other end you will kindly put a pair of new flanges with bolts. The works will probably send you the flange desired for one end by express to-day.

Yours truly.

5. Gentlemen:—We enclose our check for $439.86 in settlement of our invoice of March 21st. We have deducted the cash discount, as we have been ready to pay this bill any time since receiving the belt.

While we were very much disappointed about the way the rubber peeled off the inner side of the belt, the belt seems to be working satisfactorily, and we pay the bill under your guarantee of Feb. 20.

Yours truly.

6. Gentlemen:—Your favor of the 14th inst. is received. When we advised you that we expected to be able to make shipment of your beams in June, we felt sure we could do so, but we have been more or less handicapped lately in our operations, owing to trouble with our boilers, and we have not produced the tonnage figured upon.

We will keep your urgent necessities constantly before us, and endeavor to make the delay as short as possible. Yours truly.

7. Gentlemen:—In reply to your favor of the 23d inst., we beg to say that we ourselves figured on nearly all the steel rails that are offered by roads running into Chicago, and we are not disposed to make you an offer, as we may be figuring direct on the same lot that you are. We would, however, be willing to figure with you on rails that you have at Detroit or Buffalo. Likewise we beg to state that we do not, and have not, figured on any Michigan Central rails, and if you are receiving any from this road, we would be pleased to figure with you on same, providing you have named your price delivered here. Yours truly.

8. Gentlemen:—Your specifications of the 15th inst. are received and entered for December shipment.

We are not getting up entirely new rolls for single bead track, but with new passes on the rolls we have now a result which we know will be satisfactory to you. We are now at work with an entirely new set of double bead rolls, which we expect to have ready for use about the middle of December or sooner. We are endeavoring to reduce the weight of the double bead to about 1.85 to the foot, and we think we shall be successful. We shall not, however, be able to send you a sample until we put the rolls in order for the first time, which will be when we are ready to roll your order. Yours truly.

9. Gentlemen:—We have entered no definite order from you for beams, as you have not given us any shipping instructions. We have on our books only a contract to furnish you with 1200 to 1500 beams.

Yours truly.

PAGES 148, 149.—OIL

1. Dear Sir:—We enclose herewith our check No. 334 on the National Bank of this city, for $1,233.00 in settlement of your invoices of March 7 and 8, for two cars of lard oil.

Please receipt and return the enclosed voucher and oblige,

Yours truly.

2. Dear Sir:—Enclosed we hand you charge memorandum for $8.00, to cover switching on four cars lard oil at $2.00 per car, shipped via your line.

Kindly have same vouchered in our favor, and oblige,
Yours truly.

3. Dear Sir:—Enclosed we hand you shipping ticket and copy of invoice, covering shipment from here on the 31st ult., in M. P. car No. 672, of axle grease and varnish in pails and cases, consigned to your care at Newton. Please have the car unloaded promptly and billed back to point from which shipment was made, via route shipped south, and oblige,
Yours truly.

4. Dear Sir:—In compliance with your request in your favor of the 31st ult. we enclose herewith expense bills for switching, $3.00, and freight and transfer, $17.02, covering T. W. car No. 876, amounting in all to $20.02, which was deducted by us from the enclosed credit, leaving total amount of same $63.50. Yours truly.

5. Dear Sir:—Referring to A. M. and F. tank car 660, which was shipped from Quincy to Springfield, Jan. 6, and was ordered sent to Marshall Mills for a load of linseed oil, we beg to advise that this car met with an accident on the 'Frisco road, and contents were transferred into B. T. car No. 359, which will not be available for your service until repaired. Yours truly.

6. Dear Sir:—We beg to advise that N. P. R. car No. 5320 was received by us on the 10th inst. from which 37 gallons of gasoline had been lost by leakage from two barrels, one barrel having a worm hole in the head and the other an air hole in the stave near the bung.

Kindly favor us with credit covering this loss and oblige,
Yours truly.

7. Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find letter of 5th inst., from J. M. Donald, Lafayette, La., asking for shipment of ten barrels castor machine oil, and enclosing check for $31.25, to cover shipment made on Mar. 3.

Although addressed to us here, we assume it is intended for you, and so forward it to you. We find the amount shown on our trial balance due from this party is $31.25, which agrees with the check above mentioned. Yours truly.

8. Dear Sir:—We enclose herewith our claim, No. 523, amounting to $63.50, for freight overpaid on shipment of P. M. tank car No. 672 containing barreled gasoline consigned to us here from Kansas City, via your line. The weight of this car, as per bill of lading, was 45,300 pounds, net, but we are advised that shippers made a mistake in entering this weight, and same should only be 35,300 pounds. We, therefore, request that you favor us with a check to cover the difference, and greatly oblige,
Yours truly.

9. Dear Sir:—We have your order of the 2d inst., enclosed in your letter of that date, calling for shipment to James & Blanke, Benton, Ill., of 60 barrels refined petroleum. We note the price at which you have made the sale and regret that you have allowed so small a margin for profit in the transaction, but inasmuch as you have made the sale and desire to hold the trade of those parties, this being your second sale to them, we will make the shipment on terms stated, but in future please see that you allow more profit.

PAGE 150.—WHOLESALE GROCERY

1. Dear Sir:—We have decided not to interfere with arrangements which were made last year, and which we are still working on to increase our trade in the countries you are interested in. We are very much obliged to you for the offer of pushing our goods and our brand, and may perhaps be glad to avail ourselves of your services on some future occasion. We will, therefore, keep your valued address before us, and when we see an opportunity of trading through you shall be pleased to avail ourselves of it. Yours truly.

2. Dear Sir:—Your favor of the 24th inst. received. We have been selling the Philadelphia make of potato chips, and had a box sent you yesterday; they cost us 18c in Philadelphia. We can get them made here in Chicago and in Wisconsin that cost about 16c, but we make no guarantees of them. We have handled these Philadelphia chips for three or four years, and do not remember that we ever had any of them returned. If you want to sell any of these at 18c, do so, but I think when you see the sample that we sent you and show it to your trade that the majority will prefer to pay a little extra. These cost us, laid down here, just about 19c. Very truly yours.

3. Dear Sir:—I have succeeded in buying a few cases, I do not know just how many, of small fish. They are not here yet, but the size of the fish is from 14 to 20. The tin I saw was pretty good, costing $7.87 in New York, about $8.00 laid down here. There is no key on these, but I have a few more, 16-20 fish, cost $6.95 in New York, about $7.10 here.

Your letter of the 25th inst., in which you say that you had received the sample of sardines, came a little too late; we sent you another case yesterday. You had better suggest to the hotel people that they pay the expressage on this lot.

PAGES 151, 152.—COMMISSION BUSINESS

1. Dear Sir:—Enclosed I hand you account sales for five boxes of butter with check for $56.18, which I hope will be satisfactory. I wish you would increase to 8 boxes with your next shipment. Thanking you for favors, Yours truly.

2. Gentlemen:—In answer to your letter of the 25th inst., regarding lemons, will say I am not in the market for any lemons of that grade. If I can buy a car of Old Glories, extra fine fruit, at the right price, I might give you an order. Yours truly.

3. Gentlemen:—The reason I wired you to divert the car was that oranges are piling up, and not moving. The orange trade seems to have chopped right off. I thought best to have you divert the car, for I am satisfied if it comes in here on top of stock that I already have, it will result in a loss to Yours truly.

4. Gentlemen:—Would be pleased to have you ship me on receipt five 60-lb. tubs of your best creamery butter at Elgin board prices. If this butter gives my trade satisfaction, I can give you standing order for a large amount for regular weekly shipments. Will forward you check promptly on receipt of goods.

Awaiting your early reply, I remain, Yours truly.

5. Dear Sir:—Yours of the 22d inst. at hand and noted. In answer to same I would say that if you had shipped the three barrels by express, as I expected you would, instead of the six barrels, I would have been satisfied, and would have made no complaint, but instead of this you not only expressed the three barrels but the six also. I think I am justified in having overcharge refunded to me, and shall expect you to do so at your earliest convenience. Yours truly.

6. Dear Sir:—Your favor of the 17th inst. at hand and carefully noted. I am sending you to-day 50 empty cases, and you may fill them at 11c. This price is rather higher than I want them to cost, but we will start in at that, and can, no doubt, get down a little later on. See that you pack excelsior or straw on top of the cases, so as to prevent any breakage. Get all you can, but be careful that you take no more dirty eggs than you can help. Yours very truly.

7. Gentlemen:—I am very glad to note on your postal card of the 20th inst. that you have diverted the car of lemons. California lemons are being offered so cheap in this market that it is almost impossible to get a decent price for a foreign lemon. I have two or three cars of foreign lemons stacked up in my house now that I will probably have to sell at a loss in order to move them. The majority of the trade out here prefer the California lemon, and, when they can get it, they will not take any of the foreign ones. I dislike very much to turn away any cars, but knew it was much better for you to give it to some one else.

Yours truly.

8. Dear Sir:—Your letter of the 20th inst. is received, and in reply I beg leave to say that I have made inquiries to-day and can find nobody here who knows anything about Mr. Jones shipping any eggs, or who has given him orders to buy any. I am positive he has had no authority to buy eggs for me this season. Of course I should know better than to have two buyers in the same place.

The market is firm here, and you may buy for me to cost 12c net on track there. If you can not buy at this figure please let me know at once what you can buy at and I may be able to raise my bid, if it becomes necessary. Yours truly.

PAGES 153, 154.—RAILROAD

1. Dear Sir:—Referring to the attached, it is my understanding that shovel was to be returned to this division in as good condition as when it was delivered. Shovel was thoroughly overhauled at the shops just previous to our sending it, and the repairs which were made upon its return were such as were necessary to place it in as good condition as it was before. Yours truly.

2. Dear Sir:—Our coal car No. 5065 was delivered to you Apr. 5. Under date of Apr. 16 we requested you to give this car prompt release and deliver to proper connections for home. But this request has not yet been complied with. We will repeat the same and expect you to release car and start it for home immediately.

Kindly let us hear from you regarding same and oblige,

Yours truly.

3. Dear Sir:—The agent at Huntington advises that no mail was delivered on train No. 2, December 30. He states that pouch was placed on crane fifteen minutes before arrival of train, and after train had passed, the pouch was found near the crane. He does not know whether the pouch was knocked down by mail catcher or blown down by the wind.

Yours truly.

4. Dear Sir:—I enclose herewith a blank form for reporting the cost of new steel. Please fill out this blank for the month of January, showing the quantity of material used and the cost of section labor. As a portion of this work will not be completed this month, make similar reports each month until the work is finished.

I also send you a form for reporting the cost of re-laying the steel rails taken up from the main track, which please fill out and send in as the work is completed. Yours truly.

5. Dear Sir:—I wish to prepare a statement showing the total number of frogs and switches of each kind and weight in the main and side tracks, also the number of each kind of stand in use, and, in order to do so I have prepared a blank form to be sent to each of the section foremen. I wish you would distribute these and have the information entered on the blanks and returned to me. Yours truly.

6. Dear Sir:—If we are going to use the rib flats for hauling cinders for any length of time, I would suggest that we increase the height of the side boards to about 24 inches, and instead of depending on iron straps to hold the side boards in position, put about four pockets on the side of the car with stakes fastened to a chain, so that they can be dropped into the pockets after the side board is raised and knocked out releasing the boards. The additional height of the side boards would enable us to haul about twice the amount of cinders, reducing the number of cars to be handled. Yours truly.

7. Dear Sir:—Referring to your letter of the 19th inst., which, by the way, only reached me on the evening of the 22d, rather slow mail service between your office and mine, I do not see that the minims you demand need, in any way, interfere with your manifesting the shipments through from Hamilton on our continental line way-bill face. You could arrange in apportionment coal to take your minim proportion to Winton Junction and show the C. C. and B.'s and the B. & I.'s proportions in a consolidated amount on way-bill. Will you please so instruct? Kindly advise of your action. Yours truly.

8. Dear Sir:—Again referring to the delivery of P. C. C. & St. L. cars 4409 and 61255, as per yardmaster's Junction report of May 26, 1899, and my letter of inquiry of the 4th inst. attached, to which you reply that former car is charged to L. N. A. & C. and the latter to L. E. & W., I desire to state that several days ago Yardmaster Pratt advised me that these cars should not appear on his report, as they belong to the L. N. A. & C. I note from memorandum herewith attached, addressed to you, that only one of the cars should be charged to the L. N. A. & C. I hardly understand why information relating to these cars should conflict. Please investigate further and have the matter fully explained. If the former information given by Mr. Pratt is correct and the latter is incorrect, or vice versa, we can not altogether depend upon his records of cars moved. I trust the importance of the case will be impressed upon Mr. Pratt to such an extent that it will not again be necessary to direct his attention to conflicting statements. Yours truly.

PAGE 160.—LEGAL AND INSURANCE

1. Gentlemen:—In reference to your claim against W. L. Binford, of Maysville, Ky., we beg leave to say that our correspondent writes us that the freight bills which you furnished do not cover the bill of July 12 for $24.50. The receipts you furnished us show dates of May 16 and August 4, but no receipts of July 12 or about that date.

Kindly see if you can find a receipt to cover this bill.

Yours very truly.

2. Dear Sir:—I am just in receipt of New York exchange for $142.50, covering premium on your policy 186692, due Nov. 2. You had thirty days' grace on this policy, and the same expired Dec. 2. If you will furnish us satisfactory evidence of good health, we shall be very much pleased to reinstate your policy. I return you herewith draft which we will accept provided you pass a satisfactory examination.

Yours very truly.

3. Gentlemen:—Since hearing from you concerning the matter of the Lake City National Bank against V. T. Hansel, we have had several interviews with this debtor. He says it is impossible for him to make payment upon this note before March 1, but assures us that at that date he will pay $350, and will make monthly payments of $50 until the debt is fully paid.

Inasmuch as the claim can not be enforced by suit, Hansel being execution proof, we think it is advisable to settle the matter in this way, and we suggest that you have your client authorize us to close the matter on this basis. In view of the fact that this claim will be long drawn out and the difficulty of obtaining payments, we believe that a larger fee than the usual 10 per cent should be arranged for, and we trust you will make such arrangement with client.

Awaiting your advices, we remain, Yours very truly.

4. Dear Sir:—Answering your letter of the 20th inst. we must say that we can not continue your risk, as your policy has expired. If you had kept your policy we would have continued your risk whether you were railroading or not, but under our rule we can not renew it.

Yours truly.

Q. Are you familiar with the section of the city known as Canalport?

A. Yes; made brick on it twenty years.

Q. Did you ever have any other business pertaining to Canalport, other than the manufacture of brick?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What, if you please?

A. I took charge in 1863 of Mr. J. Pierson's property, in section thirty.

Q. That is Samuel J. Pierson?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much property did that include in a general way?

A. Well, I can't tell you how much,—all the property that he owned there; he took me around the—
