Sung nightly with great success at Morris & Wilson's Opera House. It has already passed through twenty editions, and is destined to become the most popular ballad of the age.

Exquisite, both in sentiment and melody, and bids fair to eclipse in popularity his former productions.

A gem which only needs to be heard to be appreciated. It is full of tender pathos and flowing melody, and the chorus especially is very effective.

A song of great merit, and received with immense favor. Its success is sure.
