MAY DAY SHOWER

MISS DOROTHY HOBBS AND MRS. TURCK COMPLIMENTED GUESTS AT P. E. O. LUNCHEON

Miss Dorothy Hobbs and Mrs. Charles Turck were the complimented guests at one of the prettiest social functions that has recently taken place in Glendale. Mrs. Charles A. Barker of 1415 South Glendale was the hostess and the guests were members of Chapter A. H. of the P. E. O., to which Miss Hobbs belongs. It was a May Day shower and the luncheon table which was laden with Cecil Brunner roses, was centered with a large and beautiful basket trimmed with Cecil Brunners that was filled to the brim with packages. On an adjacent table was an overflow of gifts which included a beautiful array of linen, silver, cut glass, china, and less decorative but equally useful things. The color scheme was carried out in the ices and in the cakes, one of which proved to be a beautiful birthday cake decorated with pansies for Mrs. Turck. This was a great surprise to the recipient, but none the less enjoyed. Mrs. W. C. Wattle, president of the Chapter, presented the basket to Miss Hobbs with an appropriate and gracious little speech, expressing the affection in which the bride-to-be is held by the Chapter. A much-enjoyed feature of the luncheon was the special place cards, each one bearing some sentiment of wit or wisdom selected by the hostess. Covers were laid for Miss Dorothy Hobbs, Miss Lucile Tholen, Mrs. John Hobbs, Mrs. John A. Logan, Mrs. Andrew Stephenson, Mrs. Noble Ripley, Mrs. H. P. Goodwin, Mrs. W. C. Wattle, Mrs. Leslie Eames, Mrs. W. C. Mabry, Mrs. J. Herbert Smith, Mrs. D. H. Smith, Mrs. Hal Davenport, Miss

Very friendly was little Clara; and, to satisfy her gregariousness, she demanded affectionate speech from all and on every occasion.

One evening her big brother Ben was industriously engaged in endeavoring to solve some arithmetical problems. After trying to get his attention several times without receiving any reply whatsoever, Clara appealed to her father to stir Ben up.

"But Ben is busy," said Dad. "I know he is," said Clara, "but at least he might have said, 'Shut up!'"—Cartoons Magazine.

ALASKA, WONDER LAND
ILLUSTRATED TALK ON BIG NORTHERN LAND BY LEVI CHUBBUCK

The speaker at the Sunday evening service at the Glendale Congregational church was Levi Chubbuck, who now resides on Valley View Road near Central avenue and expects to make his permanent home here, but for twenty-two years he was in the employ of the government in the Department of Agriculture and had occasion to make many tours of inspection. His talk concerned Alaska and was illustrated by lantern slides, the stereopticon being operated by Mr. Willisford.

By the things he told and by the pictures he showed the speaker made it quite clear that Alaska is a big land, larger than most Americans conceive it to be, and diversified in climate notwithstanding it is so far north. Isothermal lines, he explained, are modified by a good many factors. He first presented a series of maps which showed the contour of Alaska and the ranges at the south where the highest mountains are to be found. These mountains receive upon their breasts the warm, moisture-laden winds from the Pacific and their colder surfaces precipitate the moisture or "squeeze it out," as he phrased the process. At Sitka and Juneau he said the winter temperature is rather warmer than Washington, D. C., and the summers cooler because of the great amount of rain which averages about 90 inches annually. The wind therefore, when it passes over the mountains, is dry and there is much less precipitation in the interior and of course less snow and ice than in the mountains referred to.

On these mountains on which the snow never melts, glaciers are formed, being simply deposits of one season's snows on top of the previous season's, the lower strata, by reason of the weight and the melting that takes place in summer being converted into ice.

The first pictures shown were taken while making a trip by steamer along what is termed the "inside passage," through a gorge very tortuous and at times dangerous from masses of ice broken from glaciers descending the mountain slopes. There were several glacier views, the Hubbard Glacier which stands 300 feet above the surface being especially conspicuous. Natives, chiefly Indians, were shown and a pretty group of Esquimaux girls who were students at one of the government school houses of which a picture was shown. Mr. Chubbuck says there are three classes of natives, the Esquimaux, the Southern Coast Indians who have the totem poles, and the Indians of the interior who are quite different and who resemble our Navajos.

The most surprising views were the gardens showing luxuriant potato plantations bearing such a wealth of bloom as is never seen here. The government, which has several agricultural stations including one at Rampart, 75 miles south of the Arctic Circle, is making some interesting experiments in developing varieties from Alaskan seed to be utilized for "early varieties of potatoes" in the States. It is also experimenting with wheat to produce a more frost resistant variety. One fine garden exhibited was not far from a glacier 40 to 50 miles in extent yet it did not cool the air enough in midsummer to interfere with plant growth. When asked about the degree of summer heat, Mr. Chubbuck said he had never suffered with heat more than he did at Rampart because there was no let-up. It was practically one long summer day as the interval between one day and another was merely a brief time of twilight, and of course in almost constant light and heat vegetation leaps ahead. Planting is done about the first of June and it begins to freeze in October.

Mr. Chubbuck was enthusiastic in his praise of the native strawberry, as fragrant as it is delicious, he says, and the wonderful red native currant which fruits heavily.

The maps which he showed indicated the coal regions, the copper deposits and the chief gold fields. That precious metal is so plentiful in Alaska, he says, that you can get colors anywhere, it is merely a matter of getting gold in sufficient quantities to pay. The railroad which the government is building will eventually reach Fairbanks and tap the coal deposits the government intends to develop.

At Rampart, 75 miles south of the Arctic Circle where there is an experiment station and where luxuriant vegetation was shown, a picture was taken of ladies beside a bush of the Alaskan wild rose which is abundant and most beautiful, according to Mr. Chubbuck. He also showed the cabin there occupied by Rex Beach when he wrote "The Spoilers." He told of meeting Archbishop Stuck, who has charge of the Alaska Episcopal missions, and who has a special little steamer in which to make the trips necessary to cover his 6000-mile field. The Archbishop really made the ascent of Mount McKinley and didn't fake it as Mr. Chubbuck declares Dr. Cook did.

Caribou, the native elk of Alaska, were shown, and the speaker declared there is a movement on foot to

MYSTERY IN ACCIDENT

WAS WOUNDING OF BEN OKAYAMA DUE TO DRUNKEN AUTO DRIVER?

There seems to be considerable mystery surrounding the serious accident suffered Sunday afternoon by Ben Okayama and Floyd W. Kenney, manager of the Sparr Fruit Company, Ben's employer for several years past is determined to get to the bottom of it. Fred Fish of 228 North Maryland avenue and John Smalley of Sierra avenue came upon Ben as he lay by the side of Los Feliz Road a little west of the S. P. tracks. They saw a machine ahead of them zigzagging back and forth over the road and while Mr. Smalley stayed by the wounded man Fred followed the machine and got its number. He took note of the driver, that he was a small man, and dark, possibly a Japanese. He drove as if he was intoxicated. The first supposition of Mr. Fish and Mr. Smalley was that the wounded man had fallen or been thrown from the machine, but the police think he was struck by it, instead, as the drunken driver caused his machine to weave back and forth along the road. Ben is still unable to talk and until he recovers sufficiently to do so, nothing positive will be known. It has been learned that the machine involved was a rented one and belonged at a garage on San Pedro street, Los Angeles. It may be possible to trace the identity of the driver by this, but of course nothing will be done in this line until it is positively known that his machine struck Okayama.

In the meantime the latter is slowly gaining strength and will doubtless soon be able to talk.

replace the reindeer with these animals, which, it is believed, can be tamed and domesticated, and which are harder and better adapted to take care of themselves. Mr. Chubbuck says no vegetables are being shipped out of Alaska but reindeer meat is being sent south by the steamers and also the caribou meat. Though the transportation cost is heavy the expense of producing the meat is next to nothing because the animals feed on the moss that thickly covers the tundras, vast tracts that are incapable of tillage and can best be utilized in this way.

A CLUB TREAT

SHAKESPEARE SECTION ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON BY ITS INSTRUCTOR

Every year the Shakespeare Section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club is entertained by its instructor, Mrs. McClure, with a luncheon served at her home in Los Angeles. She is a wonderful cook and as the delicacies she places before them are all of her own making, the ladies have learned to look forward to these feasts as red letter days. Such an one was the luncheon at which she entertained them Monday. It included noodles of her own manufacture, hot biscuits which were a dream, home-made cake served with the ice cream, a delicious fruit salad, and other goodies.

Following the luncheon a pleasant social afternoon was enjoyed during which readings were given by Mrs. Fromme, a friend of the hostess, and by Mrs. Henry Ralston, vocal numbers being contributed by Mrs. Charles H. Parker.

Mrs. E. D. Yard, curator, announced that the net returns from the Shakespearean Tea were $75 to be contributed to the Club House Fund. Ambitious members of the Section then proposed that instead of its annual picnic the Section give a garden party presenting a program of Shakespearean scenes put on by its own members and charging a small fee, enough to bring its club house contribution to $100. The suggestion met with favor and will probably be carried out.

Ladies present at the luncheon were: Mrs. E. D. Yard, Mrs. Alma Gibbs, Mrs. Colin Cable, Mrs. A. M. Hunt, Miss Clara Ringert, Mrs. Charles H. Temple, Mrs. A. M. Waite, Mrs. Chester Kling, Mrs. William Halstead, Miss Scott, Mrs. George Lyons, Mrs. Harry Greenwalt, Mrs. D. I. Goldthwaite, Mrs. Anna Williams, Mrs. H. L. Clotworthy, Mrs. C. H. Parker, Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. Henry Ralston, Mrs. R. A. Puffer, Mrs. Oscar Von Oven.

ROSE LUNCHEON

Mrs. Charles L. Glover of 516 West Myrtle street is today entertaining at luncheon members of a social club to which she has belonged for fourteen years. In honor of the event she is decorating her home with roses from her own garden, in which she has a fine variety. Covers will be laid for Mrs. Theo. Stassforth, Mrs. George Allen, Mrs. Louis Herzog, Mrs. Robert Beattie, Mrs. Charles Wardwell, all of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Francis Holst of Altadena. The ladies will remain for a social afternoon.
