Nor is this the only example of signal service rendered to this state by Col. Benton. It is principally through his ucessing and powerful exertions, on the floor of the sonne, that the bank of the United States was prevented m prostrating the government, and, with it, the liberties of the people of this union. The defeat of the bank was lailed with general acclamation throughout Louisiana; and to no man, peckape, Andraw Jacuson excepted, are we more debted for that great deliverance; than to this distinguish

A SORER CARRIGAYE.—There be many features, in the broad our government, which command the admiration of the world; there are, again, traits, that must, among foreign respectively, place us under the visitation of most ineffible of states. The former grow out of the broad principles of attendance, in the postery. This conviction was irresistibly forced upon us by the perusal of a Tennessee paper, announcing the candidateship of a Mr. C. G. Olmetead, for congress. The genderan does not run on the domocratic, national republican, intimassoner, or any other plausible ticket; but straddling the label of congress. Would not such a farce almost justify the inference, that intemporance, in that portice of Tennessee, no far prevails as its mecessitate the running of a candidate, pledged to uphold the doctrine of sobriety?

As to the capacities of such a candidate, there can be but the manner of intellect?—Can't tell; but he is an abtemious man. Has he studied the principles of polity—bon't know; but he has read all the temperance reports.

Don't know; but he has read all the temperance reports. he acquainted with the statistics of the country?-Not to av knowledge; but he is a living tabular of deaths through itemperance, and knows, to a thimble-full, what quantity of spirits is consumed in the country. Has he drunk deeply at those sources of information, essentially necessary w the discharge of legislative duties?—I am not aware; but o drinks nothing but unadidierated water. Unparalleled ommendations, indeed! Rare qualifications for sharing in he councils of the nation! Proceeding on this scale of industion, we may soon expect to see an inquisition established in the very fore consciencia of a man, and Lis suc se depend upon his answers to: do you go to church; de on say your prayers at night?—Or any other equally legiti-
