THE SECOND PART OF THE FAERIE QVEENE.

Containing
THE FOVRTH,
FIFTH, AND SIXTH BOOKES.

By Ed. Spenser.

Imprinted at London for VVilliam
Ponsonby. 1596.

Which who so list looke backe to former ages,
 And call to count the things that then were donne,
 Shall find, that all the workes of those wise sages,
 And braue exploits which great Heroes wonne,
 In loue were either ended or begunne:
 Witnesse the father of Philosophie,
 Which to his Critias, shaded oft from funne,
 Of loue full manie lessons did apply,
 The which these Stoicke censours cannot well deny.

To such therefore I do not sing at all,
 But to that sacred Saint my soueraigne Queene,
 In whose chaste breast all bountie naturall,
 And treasures of true loue enlocked beene,
 Boue all her sexe that euer yet was seene;
 To her I sing of loue, that loueth best,
 And best is lou'd of all aliue I weene:
 To her this song most fitly is adrest,
 The Queene of loue, & Prince of peace frō heauen blest.

Which that she may the better deigne to heare,
 Do thou dred infant, Venus dearling doue,
 From her high spirit chase imperious feare,
 And vse of awfull Maiestie remoue:
 In sted thereof with drops of melting loue,
 Deawd with ambrosiall kisses, by thee gotten
 From thy sweete smyling mother from aboue,
 Sprinkle her heart, and haughtie courage soften,
 That she may hearke to loue, and reade this lesson often.

CANT.

Cant. I.

Fayre Britomart saues Amoret,
 Duessa discord breedes
 Twixt Scudamour and Blandamour:
 Their fight and warlike deedes.

O Flouers sad calamities of old,
 Full many piteous stories doe remaine,
 But none more piteous euer was ytold,
 Then that of Amorets hart-binding chaine,
 And this of Florimels vnworthie paine:
 The deare compassion of whose bitter fit
 My softened heart so sorely doth constraîne,
 That I with teares full oft doe pittie it,
 And oftentimes doe wish it neuer had bene writ.

For from the time that Scudamour her bought
 In perilous fight, the neuer ioyed day,
 A perilous fight when he with force her brought
 From twentie Knights, that did him all assay:
 Yet fairely well he did them all dismay:
 And with great glorie both the shield of loue,
 And eke the Ladie selfe he brought away,
 Whom hauing wedded as did him behoue,
 A new vnknown mischiefe did from him remoue.

For that same vile Enchauntour Busfyan,
 The very selfe same day that she was wedded,
 Amidst the bridale feast, whilest euery man
 Surcharg'd with wine, were heedlesse and ill hedded,

All bent to mirth before the bride was bedded,
 Brought in that mask of loue which late was shoven:
 And there the Ladie ill of friends bestedded,
 By way of sport, as oft in maskes is knowen,
 Conueyed quite away to liuing wight vnknown.

Seuen moneths he fo her kept in bitter smart,
 Because his sinfull lust she would not serue,
 Vntill such time as noble Britomart
 Released her, that else was like to sterue,
 Through cruell knife that her deare heart did kerue.
 And now she is with her vpon the way,
 Marching in louely wise, that could deserue
 No spot of blame, though spite did oft assay
 To blot her with dishonor of so faire a pray.

Yet should it be a pleasant tale, to tell
 The diuerse vsage and demeanure daint,
 That each to other made, as oft befell.
 For Amoret right fearefull was and faint,
 Lest she with blame her honor should attaint,
 That euerie word did tremble as she spake,
 And euerie looke was coy, and wondrous quaint,
 And euerie limbe that touched her did quake:
 Yet could she not but curteous cou'tenance to her make.

For well she wist, as true it was indeed,
 That her liues Lord and patrone of her health
 Right well deserued as his duefull meed,
 Her loue, her seruice, and her vtmost wealth.
 All is his iustly, that all freely death:
 Nathlesse her honor dearer then her life,
 She sought to saue, as thing reseru'd from stealth;
 Die had she leuer with Enchanters knife,
 Then to be false in loue, profess a virgine wife.

Thereto

Thereto her feare was made so much the greater
 Through fine abuson of that Briton mayd:
 Who for to hide her fained sex the better,
 And maske her wounded mind, both did and sayd
 Full many things so doubtfull to be wayd,
 That well she wist not what by them to gesse,
 For other whiles to her she purpos made
 Of loue, and otherwhiles of lustfulnessse,
 That much she feard his mind would grow to some ex-(cessse

His will she feard; for him she surely thought
 To be a man, such as indeed he seemed,
 And much the more, by that he lately wrought,
 When her from deadly thraldome he redeemed,
 For which no seruice she too much esteemed;
 Yet dread of shame, and doubt of fowle dishonor
 Made her not yeeld so much, as due she deemed.
 Yet Britomart attended duly on her,
 As well became a knight, and did to her all honor.

It so befell one euening, that they came
 Vnto a Castell, lodged there to bee,
 Where many a knight, and many a louely Dame
 Was then assembled, deeds of armes to see:
 Amongst all which was none more faire then shee,
 That many of them mou'd to eye her sore.
 The custome of that place was such, that hee
 Which had no loue nor lemman there in store,
 Should either winne him one, or lye without the dore.

Amongst the rest there was a iolly knight,
 Who being asked for his loue, auow'd
 That fairest Amoret was his by right,
 And offred that to iustifie aloud.

The warlike virgine seeing his so prowd
 And boastfull challenge, wexed inlie wroth,
 But for the present did her anger shrowd;
 And sayd, her loue to lose she was full loth,
 But either he should neither of them haue, or both.

So forth they went, and both together giusted;
 But that same younker soone was ouerthrowne,
 And made repent, that he had rashly lusted
 For thing vnlawfull, that was not his owne:
 Yet since he seemed valiant, though vnknowne,
 She that no lesse was courteous then stout,
 Cast how to salue, that both the custome shoune
 Were kept, and yet that Knight not locked out,
 That seem'd full hard t'accord two things so far in dout.

The Seneschall was cal'd to deeme the right,
 Whom she requir'd, that first fayre Amoret
 Might be to her allow'd, as to a Knight,
 That did her win and free from challenge set:
 Which straight to her was yeilded without let.
 Then since that strange Knights loue from him was She claim'd that to her selfe, as Ladies det, (quitted,
 He as a Knight might iustly be admitted;
 So none should be out shut, sith all of loues were fitted.

With that her gliftring helmet she unlaced;
 Which doft, her golden lockes, that were vp bound
 Still in a knot, vnto her heeles downie traced,
 And like a silken veile in compasse round
 About her backe and all her bodie wound:
 Like as the shining skie in summers night,
 What time the dayes with scorching heat abound,
 Is crested all with lines of firie light,
 That it prodigious seemes in common peoples sight.
 Such

Such when those Knights and Ladies all about Beheld her, all were with amazement smit,
 And euery one gan grow in secret dout
 Of this and that, according to each wit:
 Some thought that some enchantment faygned it;
 Some, that Bellona in that warlike wife
 To them appear'd, with shield and armour fit;
 - Some, that it was a maske of strange disguise:
 So diuersely each one did fundrie doubts deuise.

But that young Knight, which through her gentle deed
 Was to that goodly fellowship restor'd,
 Ten thousand thanks did yeeld her for her meed,
 And doubly ouercommen, her ador'd:
 So did they all their former strife accord;
 And eke fayre Amoret now freed from feare,
 More franke affection did to her afford,
 And to her bed, which she was wont forbear,
 Now freely drew, and found right safe assurance there.

Where all that night they of their loues did treat,
 And hard aduentures twixt themselues alone,
 That each the other gan with passion great,
 And grieffull pittie priuately bemone.
 The morow next so soone as Titan shone,
 They both vprose, and to their waies them dight:
 Long wandred they, yet neuer met with none,
 That to their willes could them direct aright,
 Or to them tydings tell, that mote their harts delight.

Lo thus they rode, till at the last they spide
 Two armed Knights, that toward them did pace,
 And ech of them had ryding by his side
 A Ladie, seeming in so farre a space,

But Ladies none they were, albee in face
 And outward shew faire semblance they did beare;
 For vnder maske of beautie and good grace,
 Vile treason and fowle falshood hidden were,
 That mote to none but to the warie wife appeare.

The one of them the false Duess a hight,
 That now had chang'd her former wonted hew:
 For she could d'on so manie shapes in sight,
 As euer could Cameleon colours new;
 So could she forge all colours, saue the trew.
 The other no whit better was then shee,
 But that such as she was, she plaine did shew;
 Yet otherwise much worse, if worse might bee,
 And dayly more offensiu vnto each degree.

Her name was Ate, mother of debate,
 And all dissention, which doth dayly grow
 Amongst fraile men, that many a publike state
 And many a priuate oft doth ouerthrow.
 Her false *Duess*a who full well did know,
 To be most fit to trouble noble knights,
 Which hunt for honor, raised from below,
 Out of the dwellings of the damned sprights,
 Where she in darknes wastes her cursed daies & nights:

Hard by the gates of hell her dwelling is,
 There whereas all the plagues and harmes abound,
 Which punish wicked men, that walke amisse,
 It is a darksome delue farre vnder ground,
 With thornes and barren brakes enuirond round,
 That none the same may easily out win;
 Yet many waies to enter may be found,
 But none to issue forth when one is in:
 For discord harder is to end then to begin.

And

And all within the riuen walls were hung
 With ragged monuments of times forepast,
 All which the sad effects of discord sung:
 There were rent robes, and broken scepters plast,
 Altars defyl'd, and holy things defast,
 Disshiuered speares, and shields ytorne in twaine,
 Great cities ransackt, and strong castles rast,
 Nations captiued, and huge armies flaine:
 Of all which ruines there some relicks did remaine.

There was the signe of antique Babylon,
 Of fatall Thebes, of Rome that raigned long,
 Of sacred Salem, and sad Ilion,
 For memorie of which on high there hong
 The golden Apple, cause of all their wrong,
 For which the three faire Goddes did striue:
 There also was the name of Nimrod strong,
 Of Alexander, and his Princes five,
 Which shar'd to them the spoiles that he had got aliue.

And there the relicks of the drunken fray,
 The which amongst the Lapithes befell,
 And of the bloodie feast, which sent away
 So many Centaures drunken soules to hell,
 That vnder great Alcides furie fell:
 And of the dreadfull discord, which did driue
 The noble Argonauts to outrage fell,
 That each of life sought others to depriue,
 All mindlesse of the Golden fleece, which made them (striue.

And eke of priuate persons many moe,
 That were too long a worke to count them all;
 Some of sworne friends, that did their faith forgoe;
 Some of borne brethren, prov'd vnnaturall;

Some of deare louers, foes perpetuall:
 Witnesse their broken bandes there to be seene,
 Their girlonds rent, their bowres despoyled all;
 The moniments whereof there byding beene,
 As plaine as at the first, when they were fresh and greene.

Such was her house within; but all without,
 The barren ground was full of wicked weedes,
 Which she her selfe had sowen all about,
 Now growen great, at first of little seedes,
 The seedes of euill wordes, and factious deedes;
 Which when to ripenessse due they growen arre,
 Bring forth an infinite increase, that breedes
 Tumultuous trouble and contentious iarre,
 The which most often end in bloudshed and in warre,

And those same cursed seedes doe also serue
 To her for bread, and yeeld her liuing food:
 For life it is to her, when others sterue
 Through mischieuous debate, and deadly feood,
 That she may sucke their life, and drinke their blood,
 With which she from her childhood had bene fed.
 For she at first was borne of hellish brood,
 And by infernall furies nourished,
 That by her monstrous shape might easily be red.

Her face most fowle and filthy was to see,
 With squinted eyes contrarie wayes intended,
 And loathly mouth, vnmeete a mouth to bee,
 That nought but gall and venim comprehended,
 And wicked wordes that God and man offended:
 Her lying tongue was in two parts diuided,
 And both the parts did speake, and both contended;
 And as her tongue, so was her hart discided,
 That neuer thought one thing, but doubly stil was guided.

Als as the double spake, so heard she double,
 With matchlesse eares deformed and distort,
 Fild with false rumors and seditious trouble,
 Bred in assemblies of the vulgar sort,
 That still are led with euerie light report.
 And as her cares so eke her feet were odde,
 And much vnlike, th'one long, the other short,
 And both misplast; that when th'one forward yode,
 The other backe retired, and contrarie trode.

Likewise vnequall were her handes twaine,
 That one did reach, the other pusht away,
 That one did make, the other mard againe,
 And sought to bring all things vnto decay;
 Whereby great riches gathered manie a day,
 She in short space did often bring to nought,
 And their possessours often did disnaye.
 For all her studie was and all her thought,
 How she might ouerthrow the things that Concord (wrought.

So much her malice did her might surpas,
 That euen th'Almightie selfe she did maligne,
 Because to man so mercifull he was,
 And vnto all his creatures so benigne,
 Sith she her selfe was of his grace indigne:
 For all this worlds faire workmanship she tride,
 Vnto his last confusion to bring,
 And that great golden chaine quite to diuide,
 With which it blessed Concord hath together tide.

Such was that hag, which with *Duess*a roade,
 And seruing her in her malicious vse,
 To hurt good knights, was as it were her baude,
 To sell her borrowed beautie to abuse.

For though like withered tree, that wanteth iuyce,
 She old and crooked were, yet now of late,
 As fresh and fragrant as the floure deluce
 She was become, by chaunge of her estate,
 And made full goodly ioyance to her new found mate.

Her mate he was a iollie youthfull knight,
 That bore great sway in armes and chiuallrie,
 And was indeed a man of mickle might:
 His name was Blandamour, that did descric
 His fickle mind full of inconstancie.
 And now himselfe he fitted had right well,
 With two companions of like qualitie,
 Faithlesse Duesssa, and false Paridell,
 That whether were more false, full hard it is to tell.

Now when this gallant with his goodly crew,
 From farre espide the famous Britomart,
 Like knight aduenturous in outward vew,
 With his faire paragon, his conquests part,
 Approching nigh, estfoones his wanton hart
 Was tickled with delight, and iesting sayd;
 Lo there Sir Paridel, for your desart,
 Good lucke presents you with yond louely mayd,
 For pitie that ye want a fellow for your ayd.

By that the louely paire drew nigh to hond:
 Whom when as Paridel more plaine beheld,
 Albee in heart he like affection fond,
 Yet mindfull how he late by one was feld,
 That did those armes and that same scutchion weld,
 He had small lust to buy his loue so deare,
 But answerd, Sir him wise I neuer held,
 That hauing once escaped perill neare,
 Would afterwards afresh the sleeping euill reare.

This knight too late his manhood and his might,
 I did assay, that me right dearely cost,
 Ne list I for reuenge prouoke new fight,
 Ne for light Ladies loue, that soone is lost.
 The hot-spurre youth so scorning to be crost,
 Take then to you this Dame of mine (quoth hee)
 And I without your perill or your cost,
 Will challenge yond fame other for my fee:
 So forth he fiercely prickt, that one him scarce could see.

The warlike Britonesse her soone adrest,
 And with such vncouth welcome did receaue
 Her fayned Paramour, her forced guest,
 That being forst his saddle soone to leaue,
 Him selfe he did of his new loue deceaue:
 And made him selfe then sample of his follie.
 Which done, she passed forth not taking leaue,
 And left him now as sad, as whilome iollie,
 Well warned to beware with whom he dar'd to dallie:

Which when his other companie beheld,
 They to his succour ran with readie ayd:
 And finding him vnable once to weld,
 They reared him on horsebacke, and vpstayd,
 Till on his way they had him forth conuayd:
 And all the way with wondrous grieve of mynd,
 And shame, he shewd him selfe to be dismayd,
 More for the loue which he had left behynd,
 Then that which he had to Sir Paridel resynd.

Nathlesse he forth did march well as he might,
 And made good semblance to his companie,
 Dissembling his disease and euill plight;
 Till that ere long they chaunced to espie
 Two other knights, that towards them did ply.

With speedie course, as bent to charge them new,
 Whom when as Blandamour approching nie,
 Percei'd to be such as they seemd in vew,
 He was full wo, and gan his former grieffe renew.

For th'one of them he perfectly descride,
 To be Sir Scudamour, by that he bore
 The God of loue, with wings displayed wide,
 Whom mortally he hated euermore,
 Both for his worth, that all men did adore,
 And eke because his loue he wonne by right:
 Which when he thought, it griued him full sore,
 That through the bruses of his former fight,
 He now vnable was to wreake his old despight.

For thy he thus to Paridel bespake,
 Faire Sir, offriendship let me now you pray,
 That as I late aduentured for your sake,
 The hurts whereof me now from battell stay,
 Ye will me now with like good turne repay,
 And iustifie my cause on yonder knight.
 Ah Sir (said Paridel) do not dismay
 Your selfe for this, my selfe will for you fight,
 As ye haue done for me: the left hand rubs the right.

With that he put his spurres vnto his steed,
 With speare in rest, and toward him did fare,
 Like shaft out of a bow preuenting speed.
 But Scudamour was shortly well aware
 Of his approach, and gan him selfe prepare
 Him to receiue with entertainment meete.
 So furiously they met, that either bare
 The other downe vnder their horses feete,
 That what of them became, themselues did scarfly weete.

As when two billowes in the Irish fowndes,
 Forcibly driuen with contrarie tydes
 Do meete together, each abacke rebowndes
 With roaring rage; and dashing on all sides,
 That filleth all the sea with some, diuydes
 The doubtfull current into diuers wayes :
 So fell those two in spight of both their prydes,
 But Scudamour himselve did soone vprayse,
 And mounting light his foe for lying long vpbrayes.

Who rolled on an heape lay still in fbound,
 All carelesse of his taunt and bitter rayle,
 Till that the rest him seeing lie on ground,
 Ran hastily, to weete what did him ayle.
 Where finding that the breath gan him to fayle,
 With busie care they stroue him to awake,
 And doft his helmet, and vndid his mayle :
 So much they did, that at the last they brake
 His slomber, yet so mazed, that he nothing spake.

Which when as Blandamour beheld, he sayd,
 Falsse faitour Scudamour, that hast by slight
 And foule aduantage this good Knight dismayd,
 A Knight much better then thy selfe behight,
 Well falles it thee that I am not in plight
 This day, to wreake the dammage by thee donne :
 Such is thy wont, that still when any Knight
 Is weakned, then thou doest him ouerronne :
 So hast thou to thy selfe falsse honour often wonne.

¶ He little answer'd, but in manly heart
 His mightie indignation did forbear,
 Which was not yet so secret, but some part
 Thereof did in his frowning face appeare :

Like as a gloomie cloud, the which doth beare
 An hideous storme, is by the Northerne blast
 Quite ouerblowne, yet doth not passe so cleare,
 But that it all the skie doth ouercaft
 With darknes dred, and threatens all the world to wast.

Ah gentle knight then false Duessa sayd,
 Why do ye striue for Ladies loue so sore,
 Whose chiefe desire is loue and friendly aid
 Mongst gentle Knights to nourish euermore?
 Ne be ye wroth Sir Scudamour therefore,
 That she your loue list loue another knight,
 Ne do your selfe dislike a whit the more;
 For Loue is free, and led with selfe delight,
 Ne will enforced be with maisterdome or might.

So false Duessa, but vile Ate thus;
 Both foolish knights, I can but laugh at both,
 That striue and storme with stirre outrageous,
 For her that each of you alike doth loth,
 And loues another, with whom now she goth
 In louely wise, and sleepes, and sports, and playes;
 Whilest both you here with many a cursed oth,
 Swear she is yours, and stirre vp bloudie frayes,
 To win a willow bough, whilest other weares the bayes.

Vile hag (sayd Scudamour) why dost thou lye?
 And falsly seekst a vertuous wight to shame?
 Fond knight (sayd she) the thing that with this eye
 I saw, why should I doubt to tell the same?
 Then tell (quoth Blandamour) and feare no blame,
 Tell what thou saw'st, maulgre who so it heares.
 I saw (quoth she) a stranger knight, whose name
 I wote not well, but in his shield he beares
 (That well I wote) the heads of many broken speares.

I saw

I saw him haue your Amoret at will,
 I saw him kisse, I saw him her embrace,
 I saw him sleepe with her all night his fill,
 All manie nights, and manie by in place,
 That present were to testifie the case.
 Which when as Scudamour did heare, his heart
 Was thrild with inward grieffe, as when in chace
 The Parthian strikes a stag with shiuering dart,
 The beast astonisht stands in midst of his smart.

So stood Sir Scudamour, when this he heard,
 Ne word he had to speake for great dismay,
 But lookt on Glauce grim, who woxe afeard
 Of outrage for the words, which she heard say,
 Albee vntrue she wist them by assay.
 But Blandamour, whenas he did espie
 His change of cheere, that anguish did bewray,
 He woxe full blithe, as he had got thereby,
 And gan thereat to triumph without victorie.

Lo recreant (sayd he) the fruitlesse end
 Of thy vaine boast, and spoile of loue misgotten,
 Whereby the name of knight-hood thou dost shend,
 And all true louers with dishonor blotten,
 All things not rooted well, will soone be rotten,
 Fy fy false knight (then false Duesssa cryde) Vnworthy life that loue with guile hast gotten,
 Be thou, where euer thou do go or ryde,
 Loathed of ladies all, and of all knights defyde.

But Scudamour for passing great despight
 Staid not to answer, scarcely did refraine,
 But that in all those knights and ladies sight,
 He for reuenge had guiltlesse Glauce slaine:

But being past, he thus began amaine ;
 False traitour squire, false squire, of falsest knight,
 Why doth mine hand from thine auenge abstaine,
 Whose Lord hath done my loue this foule despight ?
 Why do I not it wreake, on thee now in my might ?

Discourteous, disloyall Britomart,
 Vntrue to God, and vnto man vniust,
 What vengeance due can equall thy defart,
 That hast with shamefull spot of sinfull lust
 Defil'd the pledge committed to thy trust ?
 Let vgly shame and endlesse infamy
 Colour thy name with foule reproaches rust.
 Yet thou false Squire his fault shalt deare aby,
 And with thy punishment his penance shalt supply.

The aged Dame him seeing so enraged,
 Was dead with feare, nathlesse as neede required,
 His flaming furie sought to haue assuaged
 With sober words, that sufferance desired,
 Till time the tryall of her truth expyred:
 And euermore sought Britomart to cleare.
 But he the more with furious rage was fyred,
 And thrise his hand to kill her did vpreare,
 And thrise he drew it backe : so did at last forbear.

CANT.

Cant. II.

*Blandamour winnes false Florimell, Paridell for her strives,
 They are accorded: Agape
 doth lengthen her sonnes liues.*

Firebrand of hell first tynd in Phlegeton,
 By thousand furies, and from thence out throwen
 Into this world, to worke confusion,
 And set it all on fire by force vnknown,
 Is wicked discord, whose small sparkes once blowen
 None but a God or godlike man can slake;
 Such as was Orpheus, that when strife was growen
 Amongst those famous ympes of Greece, did take His siluer Harpe in hand, and shortly friends them make.

Or such as that celestiaall Psalmist was,
 That when the wicked feend his Lord tormented,
 With heauenly notes, that did all other pas,
 The outrage of his furious fit relented.
 Such Musicke is wise words with time concented,
 To moderate stiffe minds, disposd to striue:
 Such as that prudent Romane well inuented,
 What time his people into partes did riue,
 Them reconcyld againe, and to their homes did driue.

Such vs'd wise Glauce to that wrathfull knight,
 To calme the tempest of his troubled thought:
 Yet Blandamour with termes of foule despight,
 And Paridell her scornd, and set at nought,

As old and crooked and not good for ought,
 Both they vnwise, and warelesse of the euill,
 That by themselues vnto themselues is wrought,
 Through that false witch, and that foule aged dreuill,
 The one a feend, the other an incarnate deuill.

With whom as they thus rode accompanie,
 They were encountred of a lustie Knight,
 That had a goodly Ladie by his side,
 To whom he made great dalliance and delight.
 It was to weete the bold Sir Ferraugh hight,
 He that from Braggadocchio whilome rest
 The snowy Florimell, whose beautie bright
 Made him seeme happie for so glorious theft;
 Yet was it in due triall but a wandring west.

Which when as Blandamour, whose fancie light
 Was alwaies flitting as the wauering wind,
 After each beautie, that appeared in sight,
 Beheld, eftsoones it prickt his wanton mind
 With sting of lust, that reasons eye did blind,
 That to Sir Paridell these words he sent;
 Sir knight why ride ye dūmpish thus behind,
 Since so good fortune doth to you present
 So fayre a spoyle, to make you ioyous meriment?

But Paridell that had too late a tryall
 Of the bad issue of his counsell vaine,
 List not to hearke, but made this faire denyall;
 Last turne was mine, well proued to my paine,
 This now be yours, God send you better gaine.
 Whose scoffed words he taking halfe in scorne,
 Fiercely forth prickt his steed as in disdaine,
 Against that Knight, ere he him well could torne
 By meanes whereof he hath him lightly ouerborne.

Who

Who with the sudden stroke astonisht fore,
 Vpon the ground a while in slomber lay;
 The whiles his loue away the other bore,
 And shewing her, did Paridell vpbray;
 Lo sluggish Knight the victors happie pray:
 So fortune friends the bold: whom Paridell
 Seeing so faire indeede, as he did say,
 His hart with secret enuie gan to swell,
 And inly grudge at him, that he had sped so well.

Nathlesse proud man himselfe the other deemed,
 Hauing so peerelesse paragon ygot:
 For sure the fayrest Florimell him seemed,
 To him was fallen for his happie lot,
 Whose like aliue on earth he weened not:
 Therefore he her did court, did serue, did wooe,
 With humblest suit that he imagine mot,
 And all things did deuise, and all things dooe,
 That might her loue prepare, and liking win theretoo.

She in regard thereof him recompens't
 With golden words, and goodly countenance,
 And such fond fauours sparingly dispenst:
 Sometimes him blessing with a light eye-glance,
 And coy lookes tempring with loose dalliance;
 Sometimes estranging him in sterner wise,
 That hauing cast him in a foolish trance,
 He seemed brought to bed in Paradise,
 And prou'd himselfe most foole, in what he seem'd most (wise.

So great a mistresse of her art she was,
 And perfectly practiz'd in womans craft,
 That though therein himselfe he thought to pas,
 And by his false allurements wylie draft,

Had thousand women of their loue beraft,
 Yet now he was surpriz'd: for that false spright,
 Which that same witch had in this forme engraft,
 Was so expert in euery subtile flight,
 That it could ouerreach the wisest earthly wight.

Yet he to her did dayly seruice more,
 And dayly more deceiued was thereby;
 Yet Paridell him enuiued therefore,
 As seeming plait in sole felicity:
 So blind is lust, false colours to descry.
 But Ate soone discovering his desire,
 And finding now fit opportunity
 To stirre vp strife, twixt loue and spight and ire,
 Did priuily put coles vnto his secret fire.

By sundry meanes thereto she prickt him forth,
 Now with remembrance of those spightfull speeches,
 Now with opinion of his owne more worth,
 Now with recounting of like former breaches
 Made in their friendship, as that Hag him teaches:
 And euer when his passion is allayd,
 She it reuiues and new occasion reaches:
 That on a time as they together way'd,
 He made him open challenge, and thus boldly sayd.

Too boastfull Blandamour, too long I beare
 The open wrongs, thou doest me day by day,
 Well know'st thou, whē we friendship first did sweare,
 The couenant was, that euery spoyle or pray
 Should equally be shard betwixt vs tway:
 Where is my part then of this Ladie bright,
 Whom to thy selfe thou takest quite away?
 Render therefore therein to me my right,
 Or answer for thy wrong, as shall fall out in fight.

Exceeding

Exceeding wroth thereat was Blandamour,
 And gan this bitter answere to him make;
 Too foolish Paridell, that fayrest floure
 Wouldst gather faine, and yet no paines wouldst take:
 But not so easie will I her forsake;
 This hand her wonne, this hand shall her defend.
 With that they gan their shiuering speares to shake,
 And deadly points at eithers breast to bend,
 Forgetfull each to haue bene euer others friend.

Their frie Steedes with so vntamed forse
 Did beare them both to fell auenges end,
 That both their speares with pitiless remorse,
 Through shield and mayle, and haberieon did wend,
 And in their flesh a griesly passage rend,
 That with the furie of their owne affret,
 Each other horse and man to ground did fend;
 Where lying still a while, both did forget
 The perilous present stownd, in which their liues were (set.

As when two warlike Brigandines at sea,
 With murdrous weapons arm'd to cruell fight,
 Doe meete together on the watry lea,
 They stemme ech other with so fell despight,
 That with the shocke of their owne heedlesse might,
 Their wooden ribs are shaken nigh a sonder;
 They which from shore behold the dreadfull sight
 Of flashing fire, and heare the ordenance thonder,
 Do greatly stand amaz'd at such vnwonted wonder.

At length they both vpstart in amaze;
 As men awaked rashly out of dreame,
 And round about themselues a while did gaze,
 Till seeing her, that Florimell did seme,

In doubt to whom she victorie should deeme,
 Therewith their dulled sprights they edgd anew,
 And drawing both their swords with rage extreme,
 Like two mad mastiffes each on other flew,
 And shields did share, & mailes did rash, and helmes did (hew.

So furiously each other did assayle,
 As if their foules they would attonce haue rent
 Out of their brests, that streames of bloud did rayle Adowne, as if their springs of life were spent;
 That all the ground with purple bloud was sprent,
 And all their armours staynd with bloudie gore,
 Yet scarcely once to breath would they relent,
 So mortall was their malice and so fore,
 Become of fayned friendship which they vow'd afore.

And that which is for Ladies most besitting,
 To stint all strife, and foster friendly peace,
 Was from those Dames so farre and so vnfitting,
 As that instead of praying them surcease,
 They did much more their cruelty encrease;
 Bidding them fight for honour of their loue,
 And rather die then Ladies cause release.
 With which vaine termes so much they did thẽ moue,
 That both resolu'd the last extremities to proue.

There they I weene would fight vntill this day,
 Had not a Squire, euen he the Squire of Dames,
 By great aduenture trauelled that way;
 Who seeing both bent to so bloody games,
 And both of old well knowing by their names,
 Drew nigh, to weete the cause of their debate:
 And first laide on those Ladies thousand blames,
 That did not seeke t'appease their deadly hate,
 But gazed on their harmes, not pittying their estate.

And

And then those Knights he humbly did beseech,
 To stay their hands, till he a while had spoken:
 Who lookt a little vp at that his speech,
 Yet would not let their battell so be broken,
 Both greedie sifers on other to be wroken.
 Yet he to them so earnestly did call,
 And them coniu'r'd by some well knowen token,
 That they at last their wrothfull hands let fall,
 Content to heare him speake, and glad to rest withall.

First he desir'd their cause of strife to see:
 They said, it was for loue of Florimell,
 Ah gentle knights (quoth he) how may that bee,
 And she so farre astray, as none can tell,
 Fond Squire, full angry then sayd Paridell,
 Seest not the Ladie there before thy face?
 He looked backe, and her aduizing well,
 Weend as he said, by that her outward grace,
 That fayrest Florimell was present there in place.

Glad man was he to see that ioyous sight,
 For none aliue but ioy'd in Florimell,
 And lowly to her lowting thus behight;
 Fayrest of faire, that fairenesse doest excell,
 This happie day I haue to greete you well,
 In which you safe I see, whom thousand late,
 Misdoubted lost through mischiefe that befell;
 Long may you liue in health and happie state,
 She litle answer'd him, but lightly did aggrate.

Then turning to those Knights, he gan a new;
 And you Sir Blandamour and Paridell,
 That for this Ladie present in your vew,
 Haue rayf'd this cruell warre and outrage fell,

Certes me seemes bene not aduised well,
 But rather ought in friendship for her sake
 To ioyne your force, their forces to repell,
 That seeke perforce her from you both to take,
 And of your gotten spoyle their owne triumph to make.

Thereat Sir Blandamour with countenance sterne,
 All full of wrath, thus fiercely him bespake;
 A read thou Squire, that I the man may learne,
 That dare fro me thinke Florimell to take.
 Not one (quoth he) but many doe partake
 Herein, as thus. It lately so befell,
 That Satyran a girdle did vptake,
 Well knowne to appertaine to Florimell,
 Which for her sake he wore, as him befemed well.

But when as she her selfe was lost and gone,
 Full many knights, that loued her like deare,
 Thereat did greatly grudge, that he alone
 That lost faire Ladies ornament should weare,
 And gan therefore close spight to him to beare:
 Which he to shun, and stop vile enuies sting,
 Hath lately caus'd to be proclaim'd each where
 A solemne feast, with publike turneyng,
 To which all knights with them their Ladies are to bring.

And of them all she that is fayrest found,
 Shall haue that golden girdle for reward,
 And of those Knights who is most stout on ground,
 Shall to that fairest Ladie be prefard.
 Since therefore she her selfe is now your ward,
 To you that ornament of hers pertaines,
 Against all those, that challenge it to gard,
 And saue her honour with your ventrous paines;
 That shall you win more glory, then ye here find gaines.
 When

When they the reason of his words had hard,
 They gan abate the rancour of their rage,
 And with their honours and their loues regard,
 The furious flames of malice to asswage.
 Tho each to other did his faith engage,
 Like faithfull friends thenceforth to ioyne in one
 With all their force, and battell strong to wage
 Gainst all those knights, as their professed sone,
 That challeng'd ought in Florimell, saue they alone.

So well accorded forth they rode together
 In friendly sort, that lasted but a while;
 And of all old dislikes they made faire weather,
 Yet all was forg'd and spred with golden foyle,
 That vnder it hidde hate and hollow guyle.
 Ne certes can that friendship long endure,
 How euer gay and goodly be the style,
 That doth ill cause or euill end enure:
 For vertue is the band, that bindeth harts most sure.

Thus as they marched all in close disguise,
 Of fayned loue, they chaunst to ouertake
 Two knights, that lincked rode in louely wise,
 As if they secret counsels did partake;
 And each not farre behinde him had his make,
 To weete, two Ladies of most goodly hew,
 That twixt themselues did gentle purpose make,
 Vnmindfull both of that discordfull crew,
 The which with speedie pace did after them pursew.

Who as they now approched nigh at hand,
 Deeming them doughtie as they did appeare,
 They sent that Squire afore, to vnderstand,
 What mote they be: who viewing them more neare

Returned readie newes, that those same weare
 Two of the prowest Knights in Faery lond;
 And those two Ladies their two louers deare,
 Couragious Cambell, and stout Triamond,
 With Canacee and Cambine linckt in louely bond.

Whylome as antique stories tellen vs,
 Those two were foes the fellonest on ground,
 And battell made the dreddest daungerous,
 That euer shrilling trumpet did resound;
 Though now their acts be no where to be found,
 As that renoumed Poet them compyled,
 With warlike numbers and Heroicke sound,
 Dan Chaucer, well of English vn defyled,
 On Fames eternall beadroll worthie to be fyled.

But wicked Time that all good thoughts doth waste,
 And workes of noblest wits to nought out weare,
 That famous moniment hath quite defaste,
 And robd the world of threasure endlesse deare,
 The which mote haue enriched all vs heare.
 O cursed Eld the cankerworme of writs,
 How may these rimes, so rude as doth appeare,
 Hope to endure, sith workes of heauenly wits
 Are quite deuourd, and brought to nought by little bits?

Then pardon, O most sacred happie spirit,
 That I thy labours lost may thus reuiue,
 And steale from thee the meede of thy due merit,
 That none durst euer whilest thou wast aliue,
 And being dead in vaine yet many striue:
 Ne dare I like, but through infusion sweete
 Of thine owne spirit, which doth in me suruiue,
 I follow here the footing of thy feete,
 That with thy meaning so I may the rather meeete.

Cambelloes sifter was fayre Canacee,

That was the learnedst Ladie in her dayes,
 Well seene in euerie science that mote bee,
 And euery secret worke of natures wayes;
 In wittie riddles, and in wise soothsayeres,
 In power of herbes, and tunes of beasts and burds;
 And, that augmented all her other prayse,
 She modest was in all her deedes and words,
 And wondrous chaste of life, yet lou'd of Knights & Lords.

Full many Lords, and many Knights her loued,
 Yet she to none of them her liking lent,
 Ne euer was with fond affection moued,
 But rul'd her thoughts with goodly gouernement,
 For dread of blame and honours blemishment;
 And eke vnto her looks a law she made,
 That none of them once out of order went,
 But like to warie Centonels well stayd,
 Still watcht on euery side, of secret foes affrayd.

So much the more as she refusd to loue,
 So much the more she loued was and fought,
 That ostentimes vnquiet strife did moue
 Amongst her louers, and great quarrels wrought,
 That oft for her in bloudie armes they fought.
 Which whenas Cambell, that was stout and wise,
 Perceiu'd would breede great mischiefe, he bethought
 How to preuent the perill that mote rise,
 And turne both him and her to honour in this wise.

One day, when all that troupe of warlike wooers
 Assembled were, to weet whose she should bee,
 All mightie men and dreadfull derring dooers,
 (The harder it to make them well agree)

Amongst them all this end he did decree;
 That of them all, which loue to her did make,
 They by consent should chose the stoutest three,
 That with him selfe should combat for her sake,
 And of them all the victour should his sister take.

Bold was the challenge, as him selfe was bold,
 And courage full of haughtie hardiment,
 Approued oft in perils manifold,
 Which he atchieu'd to his great ornament:
 But yet his sisters skill vnto him lent
 Most confidence and hope of happie speed,
 Conceiued by a ring, which she him sent,
 That mongst the manie vertues, which we reed,
 Had power to staunch al wounds, that mortally did bleed.

Well was that rings great vertue knowen to all,
 That dread thereof, and his redoubted might
 Did all that youthly rout so much appall,
 That none of them durst vndertake the fight;
 More wise they weend to make of loue delight,
 Then life to hazard for faire Ladies looke,
 And yet vncertaine by such outward fight,
 Though for her sake they all that perill tooke,
 Whether she would them loue, or in her liking brooke.

Amongst those knights there were three brethren bold,
 Three bolder brethren neuer were yborne,
 Borne of one mother in one happie mold,
 Borne at one burden in one happie morne,
 Thrise happie mother, and thrise happie morne,
 That bore three such, three such not to be fond;
 Her name was Agape whose children werne
 All three as one, the first hight Priamond,
 The second Dyamond, the youngest Triamond.

Stout Priamond, but not so strong to strike,
 Strong Diamond, but not so stout a knight,
 But Triamond was stout and strong alike:
 On horsebacke vsed Triamond to fight,
 And Priamond on foote had more delight,
 But horse and foote knew Diamond to wield:
 With curtaxe vsed Diamond to smite,
 And Triamond to handle speare and shield,
 But speare and curtaxe both vsd Priamond in field.

These three did loue each other dearely well,
 And with so firme affection were allyde,
 As if but one soule in them all did dwell,
 Which did her powre into three parts diuide;
 Like three faire branches budding farre and wide,
 That from one roote deriu'd their vitall sap:
 And like that roote that doth her life diuide,
 Their mother was, and had full blessed hap,
 These three so noble babes to bring forth at one clap.

Their mother was a Fay, and had the skill
 Of secret things, and all the powres of nature,
 Which she by art could vse vnto her will,
 And to her seruice bind each liuing creature:
 Through secret vnderstanding of their feature.
 Thereto she was right faire, when so her face
 She list discouer, and of goodly stature;
 But she as Feyes are wont, in priuie place
 Did spend her dayes, and lov'd in forests wyld to space.

There on a day a noble youthly knight
 Seeking aduentures in the saluage wood,
 Did by great fortune get of her the sight;
 As she sate carelesse by a cristall flood,

Combing her golden lockes, as secmd her good:
 And vnawares vpon her laying hold,
 That stroue in vaine him long to haue withstood,
 Oppressed her, and there (as it is told)
 Got these three louely babes, that prov'd three chāpions (bold.

Which she with her long fostred in that wood,
 Till that to ripenessse of mans state they grew:
 Then shewing forth signes of their fathers blood,
 They loued armes, and knighthood did ensue,
 Seeking aduentures, where they anie knew.
 Which when their mother saw, she gan to dout
 Their safetie, least by searching daungers new,
 And rash prouoking perils all about,
 Their days mote be abridged through their corage stout

Therefore desirous th'end of all their dayes
 To know, and them t'enlarge with long extent,
 By wondrous skill, and many hidden wayes,
 To the three fatall sisters house she went.
 Farre vnder ground from tract of liuing went,
 Downe in the bottome of the deepe Abyffe,
 Where Demogorgon in dull darknesse pent,
 Farre from the view of Gods and heauens blis,
 The hideous Chaos keepes, their dreadfull dwelling is.

There she them found, all sitting round about
 The direfull distaffe standing in the mid,
 And with vnwearied fingers drawing out
 The lines of life, from liuing knowledge hid.
 Sad Clotho held the rocke, the whiles the thrid
 By grieffly Lachesis was spun with paine,
 That cruell Atropos estsoones vndid,
 With curs'd knife cutting the twist in twaine;
 Most wretched men, whose dayes depend on thrids so (vaine.

She them saluting, there by them fate still,
 Beholding how the thrids of life they span:
 And when at last she had beheld her fill,
 Trembling in heart, and looking pale and wan,
 Her cause of comming she to tell began.
 To whom fierce Atropos, Bold Fay, that durst
 Come see the secret of the life of man,
 Well worthie thou to be of Ioue accurst,
 And eke thy childrens thrids to be a sunder burst.

Whereat she fore affrayd, yet her besought
 To graunt her boone, and rigour to abate,
 That she might see her childrēs thrids forth brought,
 And know the measure of their vtmost date,
 To them ordained by eternall fate.
 Which Clotho graunting, shewed her the same:
 That when she saw, it did her much amate,
 To see their thrids so thin, as spiders frame,
 And eke so short, that seemd their ends out shortly came

She then began them humbly to intreate,
 To draw them longer out, and better twine,
 That so their liues might be prolonged late.
 But Lachesis thereat gan to repine,
 And sayd, fond dame that deem'st of things diuine
 As of humane, that they may altred bee,
 And chaung'd at pleasure for those impes of thine.
 Not so; for what the Fates do once decree,
 Not all the gods can chaunge, nor Ioue him self can free.

Then since (quoth she) the terme of each mans life
 For nought may lessened nor enlarged bee,
 Graunt this, that when ye shred with fatall knife
 His line, which is the eldest of the three,

Which is of them the shortest, as I see,
 Eftsoones his life may passe into the next;
 And when the next shall likewise ended bee,
 That both their liues may likewise be annext,
 Vnto the third, that his may so be trebly next.

They graunted it; and then that carefull Fay
 Departed thence with full contented mynd;
 And comming home, in warlike fresh aray
 Them found all three according to their kynd:
 But vnto them what destinie was assynd,,
 Or how their liues were eekt, she did not tell;
 But euermore, when she fit time could fynd,
 She warned them to tend their safeties well,
 And loue each other deare, what euer them befell.

So did they surely during all their dayes,
 And neuer discord did amongst them fall;
 Which much augmented all their other praise.
 And now t'increase affection naturall,
 In loue of Canacee they ioyned all:
 Vpon which ground this same great battell grew,
 Great matter growing of beginning small;
 The which for length I will not here pursue,
 But rather will referue it for a Canto new.

CANT.

Cant. III.

The battellwixt three breshren with Cambell for Canaceo
 Cambina with true friendships bond doth their long strife agree.

Why doe wretched men so much desire,
 To draw their dayes vnto the vtmost date,
 And doe not rather wish them soone expire,
 Knowing the miserie of their estate,
 And thousand perills which them still awate,
 Tossing them like a boate amid the mayne,
 That euery houre they knocke at deathes gate?
 And he that happie seemes and least in payne,
 Yet is as nigh his end, as he that most doth playne.

Therefore this Fay I hold but fond and vaine,
 The which in seeking for her children three Long life, thereby did more prolong their paine.
 Yet whilest they liued none did euer see
 More happie creatures, then they seem'd to bee,
 Nor more ennobled for their courtesie,
 That made them dearely lou'd of each degree;
 Ne more renowned for their cheualrie,
 That made them dreaded much of all men farre and nie.

These three that hardie challenge tooke in hand,
 For Canacee with Cambell for to fight:
 The day was set, that all might vnderstand,
 And pledges pawnd the same to keepe a right,

That day, the dreddest day that liuing wight
 Did euer see vpon this world to shine,
 So soone as heauens window shewed light,
 These warlike Champions all in armour shine,
 Asssembled were in field, the challenge to define.

The field with listes was all about enclos'd,
 To barre the prease of people farre away;
 And at th'one side sixe iudges were dispos'd,
 To view and deeme the deedes of armes that day;
 And on the other side in fresh aray,
 Fayre Canacce vpon a stately stage
 Was set, to see the fortune of that fray,
 And to be seene, as his most worthie wage,
 That could her purchase with his liues aduentur'd gage.

Then entred Cambell first into the list,
 With stately steps, and fearelesse countenance,
 As if the conquest his he surely wist.
 Soone after did the brethren three aduance,
 In braue aray and goodly amenance,
 With scutchins gilt and banners broad displayd:
 And marching thrise in warlike ordinance,
 Thrise lowted lowly to the noble Mayd,
 The whiles shril trumpets & loud clarions sweetly playd.

Which doen the doughty challenger came forth,
 All arm'd to point his challenge to abet:
 Gainst whom Sir Privmond with equall worth:
 And equall armes himselve did forward set.
 A trumpet blew; they both together met,
 With dreadfull force, and furious intent,
 Carelesse of perill in their fiers affret,
 As if that life to losse they had forelent,
 And cared not to spare, that should be shortly spent.

Right practicke was Sir Priamond in fight,
 And throughly skild in vse of shield and speare;
 Ne lesse approued was Cambelloes might,
 Ne lesse his sill in weapons did appeare,
 That hard it was to weene which harder were.
 Full many mightie strokes on either side
 Were sent, that seemed death in them to beare,
 But they were both so watchfull and well eyde,
 That they auoyded were, and vainely by did flyde.

Yet one of many was so strongly bent
 By Priamond, that with vnluckie glaunce
 Through Cambels shoulder it vnwarely went,
 That forced him his shield to disaduance,
 Much was he griued with that gracelesse chaunce,
 Yet from the wound no drop of bloud there fell,
 But wondrous paine, that did the more enhance
 His haughtie courage to aduengement fell:
 Smart daunts not mighty harts, but makes them more to (swell,

With that his poynant speare he fierce auentred,
 With doubled force close vnderneath his shield,
 That through the mayles into his thigh it entred,
 And there arresting, readie way did yeld,
 For bloud to gush forth on the grassie field;
 That he for paine himselfe not right vpreare,
 But too and fro in great amazement reel'd,
 Like an old Oke whose pith and sap is seare,
 At puffe of euery storme doth stagger here and there.

Whom so dismayd when Cambell had espide, Againe he droue at him with double might,
 That nought mote stay the steele, till in his side
 The mortall point most cruelly empight:

Where fast infix'd, whilest he sought by slight
 It forth to wrest, the staffe a sunder brake,
 And left the head behind: with which despight
 He all enrag'd, his shiuering speare did shake,
 And charging him a fresh thus felly him bespake.

Lo faitour there thy meede vnto thee take,
 The meede of thy mischallenge and abet:
 Not for thine owne, but for thy sisters sake,
 Hauē I thus long thy life vnto thee let:
 But to forbearē doth not forgiue the det.
 The wicked weapon heard his wrathfull vow,
 And passing forth with furious affret,
 Pierst through his beuer quite into his brow,
 That with the force it backward forced him to bow.

Therewith a sunder in the midst it brast,
 And in his hand nought but the troncheon left,
 The other halfe behind yet sticking fast,
 Out of his headpeece Cambell fiercely rest,
 And with such furie backe at him it heft,
 That making way vnto his dearest life,
 His weasand pipe it through his gorget cleft:
 Thence streames of purple bloud issuing rise,
 Let forth his wearie ghost and made an end of strife.

His wearie ghost assoyld from fleshy band,
 Did not as others wont, directly fly
 Vnto her rest in Plutoes grieſly land,
 Ne into ayre did vanish presently,
 Ne chaunged was into a starre in sky:
 But through traduction was estsoones deriued,
 Like as his mother prayd the Destinie,
 Into his other brethren, that suruiued,
 In whom he liu'd a new, of former life deprived.

Whom

Whom when on ground his brother next beheld,
 Though sad and sorie for so heavy sight,
 Yet leaue vnto his sorrow did not yeeld,
 But rather stird to vengeance and despight,
 Through secret feeling of his generous spright,
 Rusht fiercely forth, the battell to renew,
 As in reuersion of his brothers right;
 And chalenging the Virgin as his dew.
 His foe was soone adrest: the trompets freshly blew.

With that they both together fiercely met,
 As if that each ment other to deuoure;
 And with their axes both so forely bet,
 That neither plate nor mayle, whereas their powre
 They felt, could once sustaine the hideous stowre,
 But riued were like rotten wood a sunder, (showre
 Whilest through their rifts the ruddie bloud did
 And fire did flash, like lightning after thunder,
 That filld the lookers on attonce with ruth and wonder.

As when two Tygers prickt with hungers rage,
 Haue by good fortune found some beasts fresh spoyle,
 On which they weene their famine to asswage,
 And gaine a feastfull guerdon of their toyle,
 Both falling out doe stirre vp strifefull broyle,
 And cruell battell twixt themselues doe make,
 Whiles neither lets the other touch the soyle,
 But either sdeignes with other to partake:
 So cruelly these Knights stroue for that Ladies sake.

Full many strokes, that mortally were ment,
 The whiles were enterchaunged twixt them two;
 Yet they were all with so good wariment
 Or warded, or auoyded and let goe,

That still the life stood fearelesse of her foe:
 Till Diamond disdeigning long delay
 Of doubtfull fortune wauering to and fro,
 Resolu'd to end it one or other way;
 And heau'd his murtherous axe at him with mighty sway.

The dreadfull stroke in case it had arriued,
 Where it was ment, (so deadly it was ment)
 The soule had sure out of his bodie riued,
 And stinted all the strife incontinent.
 But Cambels fate that fortune did preuent:
 For seeing it at hand, he swaru'd asyde,
 And so gaue way vnto his fell intent:
 Who missing of the marke which he had eyde,
 Was with the force nigh feld whilst his right foot did flyde.

As when a Vulture greedie of his pray,
 Through hunger long, that hart to him doth lend,
 Strikes at an Heron with all his bodies sway,
 That from his force seemes nought may it defend;
 The warie fowle that spies him toward bend
 His dreadfull soule, auoydes it shunning light,
 And maketh him his wing in vaine to spend;
 That with the weight of his owne weeldlesse might,
 He falleth nigh to ground, and scarce recouereth flight.

Which faire aduenture when Cambello spide,
 Full lightly, ere himselfe he could recower,
 From daungers dread to ward his naked side,
 He can let driue at him with all his power,
 And with his axe him smote in euill hower,
 That from his shoulders quite his head he rest:
 The headlesse tronke, as heedlesse of that stower,
 Stood still a while, and his fast footing kept,
 Till feeling life to fayle, it fell, and deadly slept.

They which that piteous spectacle beheld,
 Were much amaz'd the headlesse tronke to see
 Stand vp so long, and weapon vaine to weld,
 Vnweeting of the Fates diuine decree,
 For lifes succession in those brethren three.
 For notwithstanding that one soule was rest,
 Yet, had the bodie not dismembred bee,
 It would haue liued, and reuiued est;
 But finding no fit seat, the lifelesse corse it left.

It left; but that same soule, which therein dwelt,
 Streight entring into Triamond, him sild
 With double life, and grieffe, which when he felt,
 As one whose inner parts had bene ythrild
 With point of steele, that close his hartbloud spild,
 He lightly lept out of his place of rest,
 And rushing forth into the emptie field,
 Against Cambello fiercely him address;
 Who him affronting soone to fight was readie prest.

Well mote ye wonder how that noble Knight,
 After he had so often wounded beene,
 Could stand on foot, now to renew the fight.
 But had ye then him forth aduauncing seene,
 Some newborne wight ye would him surely weene:
 So fresh he seemed and so fierce in fight;
 Like as a Snake, whom wearie winters teene,
 Hath worne to nought, now feeling sommers might,
 Casts off his ragged skin and freshly doth him dight.

All was through vertue of the ring he wore,
 The which not onely did not from him let
 One drop of bloud to fall, but did restore
 His weakned powers, and dulled spirits whet.

Through working of the stone therein yset.
 Else how could one of equall might with most,
 Against so many no lesse mightie met,
 Once thinke to match three such on equall cost,
 Three such as able were to match a puissant host.

Yet nought thereof was Triamond adredde,
 Ne desperate of glorious victorie,
 But sharply him assayld, and sore bestedde,
 With heapes of strokes, which he at him let flie,
 As thicke as hayle forth poured from the skie:
 He stroke, he soult, he foynd, he hewd, he lasht,
 And did his yron brond so fast applie,
 That from the same the fierie sparkles flasht,
 As fast as water-sprinkles gainst a rocke are dasht.

Much was Cambello daunted with his blowes,
 So thicke they fell, and forcibly were sent,
 That he was forst from daunger of the throwes
 Backe to retire, and somewhat to relent,
 Tillth'heat of his fierce furie he had spent:
 Which when for want of breath gan to abate,
 He then afresh with new encouragement
 Did him assayle, and mightily amate,
 As fast as forward erst, now backward to retrate.

Like as the tide that comes fro th'Ocean mayne,
 Flowes vp the Shenan with contrarie forse,
 And ouerruling him in his owne rayne,
 Driues backe the current of his kindly course,
 And makes it seeme to haue some other source:
 But when the floud is spent, then backe againe
 His borrowed waters forst to redisbourse,
 He sends the sea his owne with double gaine,
 And tribute eke withall, as to his Soueraine.

Thus did the battell varie to and fro,
 With diuerse fortune doubtfull to be deemed:
 Now this the better had, now had his fo;
 Then he halfe vanquisht, then the other seemed,
 Yet victors both them selues alwayes esteemed.
 And all the while the disentrayled blood
 Adowne their sides like litle riuers stremed,
 That with the wasting of his vitall flood,
 Sir Triamond at last full faint and feeble stood.

But Cambell still more strong and greater grew,
 Ne felt his blood to wast, ne powres emperisht,
 Through that rings vertue, that with vigour new,
 Still when as he enfeebled was, him cherisht,
 And all his wounds, and all his bruses guarisht,
 Like as a withered tree through husbands toyle
 Is often seene full freshly to haue florisht,
 And fruitfull apples to haue borne awhile,
 As fresh as when it first was planted in the soyle.

Through which aduantage, in his strength he rose,
 And smote the other with so wondrous might,
 That through the seame, which did his hauberk close,
 Into his throate and life it pierced quight,
 That downe he fell as dead in all mens sight:
 Yet dead he was not, yet he sure did die,
 As all men do, that lose the liuing spright:
 So did one soule out of his bodie flie
 Vnto her natieue home from mortall miserie.

But nathelesse whilst all the lookers on Him dead behight, as he to all appeared,
 All vnawares he started vp anon,
 As one that had out of a dreame bene reard,

And fresh assayld his foe, who halfe affeard
 Of th'vncouth sight, as he some ghost had seene,
 Stood still amaz'd, holding his idle sward;
 Till hauing often by him stricken beene,
 He forced was to strike, and saue him selfe from teene.

Yet from thenceforth more warily he fought,
 As one in feare the Stygian gods r'offend,
 Ne followd on so fast, but rather sought
 Him selfe to saue, and daunger to defend,
 Then life and labour both in vaine to spend.
 Which Triamond perceiuing, weened sure
 He gan to faint, toward the battels end,
 And that he should not long on foote endure,
 A signe which did to him the victorie assure.

Whereoffull blith, eftsoones his mightie hand
 He heau'd on high, in mind with that same blow
 To make an end of all that did withstand:
 Which Cambell seeing come, was nothing slow
 Him selfe to saue from that so deadly throw;
 And at that instant reaching forth his sward
 Close vnderneath his shield, that scarce did show,
 Stroke him, as he his hand to strike vpreard,
 In th'arm-pit full, that through both sides the wound ap (peard.

Yet still that direfull stroke kept on his way,
 And falling heauie on Cambelloes crest,
 Strooke him so hugely, that in swowne he lay,
 And in his head an hideous wound imprest:
 And sure had it not happily found rest
 Vpon the brim of his brode plated shield,
 It would haue cleft his braine downe to his brest.
 So both at once fell dead vpon the field,
 And each to other seemd the victorie to yield,

Which

Which when as all the lookers on beheld,
 They weened sure the warre was at an end,
 And Iudges rose, and Marshals of the field
 Broke vp the listes, their armes away to rend;
 And Canacee gan wayle her dearest frend.
 All suddenly they both vpstart light,
 The one out of the swownd, which him did blend,
 The other breathing now another spright,
 And fiercely each assayling, gan afresh to fight.

Long while they then continued in that wize,
 As if but then the battell had begonne:
 Strokes, wounds, wards, weapons, all they did despise,
 Ne either car'd to ward, or perill shonne,
 Desirous both to haue the battell donne;
 Ne either cared life to saue or spill,
 Ne which of them did winne, ne which were wonne.
 So wearie both of fighting had their fill,
 That life it selfe seemd loathsome, and long safetie ill.

Whilst thus the case in doubtfull ballance hong,
 Vnsure to whether side it would incline,
 And all mens eyes and hearts, which there among Stood gazing, filled were with rufull tine,
 And secret feare, to see their fatall fine,
 All suddenly they heard a troublous noyes,
 That seemd some perilous tumult to define,
 Confusd with womens cries, and shouts of boyes,
 Such as the troubled Theaters oftimes annoyes.

Thereat the Champions both stood still a space,
 To weeten what that sudden clamour ment;
 Lo where they spyde with speedie whirling pace,
 One in a charet of straunge furniment,

Towards them driuing like a storme out sent,
 The charet decked was in wondrous wize,
 With gold and many a gorgeous ornament,
 After the Persian Monarks antique guize,
 Such as the maker selfe could best by art deuize.

And drawne it was (that wonder is to tell)
 Of two grim Lyons, taken from the wood,
 In which their powre all others did excell;
 Now made forget their former cruell mood,
 T'obey their riders hest, as seemed good.
 And therein sate a Ladie passing faire
 And bright, that seemed borne of Angels brood,
 And with her beautie bountie did compare,
 Whether of them in her should haue the greater snare.

Thereto she learned was in Magicke leare,
 And all the artes, that subtill wits discouer,
 Hauing therein bene trained many a yeare,
 And well instructed by the Fay her mother,
 That in the same she farre exceld all other.
 Who vnderstanding by her mightie art,
 Of th'euill plight, in which her dearest brother
 Now stood, came forth in hast to take his part,
 And pacifie the strife, which causd so deadly smart.

And as she passed through th'vnruely preace
 Of people, thronging thicke her to behold,
 Her angrie teame breaking their bonds of peace,
 Great heapes of them, like sheepe in narrow fold,
 For hast did ouer-runne, in dust enrould,
 That thorough rude confusion of the rout,
 Some fearing shriekt, some being harmed hould,
 Some laught for sport, some did for wonder shout,
 And some that would seeme wise, their wonder turnd to (dout,

In her right hand a rod of peace shee bore,
 About the which two Serpents weren wound,
 Entrayled mutually in louely lore,
 And by the tailes together firmly bound,
 And both were with one oliue garland crownd,
 Like to the rod which Maias sonne doth wield,
 Wherewith the hellish fiends he doth confound.
 And in her other hand a cup the hild,
 The which was with Nepenthe to the brim vp filld.

Nepenthe is a drinck of souerayne grace,
 Deuized by the Gods, for to asswage
 Harts grief, and bitter gall away to chace,
 Which stirs vp anguish and contentious rage:
 In stead thereof sweet peace and quiet age
 It doth establish in the troubled mynd.
 Few men, but such as sober are and sage,
 Are by the Gods to drinck thereof assynd;
 But such as drinck, eternall happinesse do fynd.

Such famous men, such worthies of the earth,
 As Ioue will haue aduanced to the skie,
 And there made gods, though borne of mortall berth,
 For their high merits and great dignitie,
 Are wont, before they may to heauen flie,
 To drinke hereof, whereby all cares forepast
 Are washt away quite from their memorie.
 So did those olde Heroes hereof taste,
 Before that they in blisse amongst the Gods were plaste.

Much more of price and of more gracious powre
 Is this, then that same water of Ardenne,
 The which Rinaldo drunck in happie howre,
 Described by that famous Tuscane penne :

For that had might to change the hearts of men
 Fro loue to hate, a change of euill choise:
 But this doth hatred make in loue to brenne,
 And heauy heart with comfort doth reioyce.
 Who would not to this vertue rather yeeld his voice?

At last arriuing by the listes side,
 Shee with her rod did softly smite the raile,
 Which straight flew ope, and gaue her way to ride.
 Eftsoones out of her Coch she gan auaille,
 And pacing fairely forth, did bid all haile,
 First to her brother, whom she loued deare,
 That so to see him made her heart to quaile:
 And next to Cambell, whose sad ruefull cheare
 Made her to change her hew, and hidden loue t'appeare.

They lightly her requit (for small delight
 They had as then her long to entertaine,)
 And est them turned both againe to fight,
 Which when she saw, downe on the bloody plaine
 Her selfe she threw, and teares gan shed amaine;
 Amongst her teares immixing prayers meeke,
 And with her prayers reasons to restraine,
 From blouddy strife, and blessed peace to seeke,
 By all that vnto them was deare, did them beseeke.

But when as all might nought with them preuaile,
 Shee sinote them lightly with her powrefull wand.
 Then suddenly as if their hearts did faile,
 Their wrathfull blades downe fell out of their hand,
 And they like men astonisht still did stand.
 Thus whilest their minds were doubtfully distraught,
 And mighty spirites bound with mightier band,
 Her golden cup to them for drinke she raught,
 Whereof full glad for thirst, ech drunk an hartly draught.

Of which so soone as they once tasted had,
 Wonder it is that sudder change to see:
 Instead of strokes, each other kissed glad,
 And louely haulft from feare of treason free,
 And plighted hands for euer friends to be.
 When all men saw this sudder change of things,
 So mortall foes so friendly to agree,
 For passing ioy, which so great maruaile brings,
 They all gan shout aloud, that all the heauen rings.

All which, when gentle Canacee beheld,
 In hast she from her lofty chaire descended,
 Too weet what sudder tidings was befeld:
 Where when she saw that cruell war so ended,
 And deadly foes so faithfully affrended,
 In louely wise she gan that Lady greet,
 Which had so great dismay so well amended,
 And entertaining her with curt'sies meet,
 Profess't to her true friendship and affection sweet.

Thus when they all accorded goodly were,
 The trumpets sounded, and they all arose,
 Thence to depart with glee and glad some chere.
 Those warlike champions both together chose,
 Homeward to march, them selues there to repose,
 And wise Cambina taking by her side
 Faire Canacee, as fresh as morning rose,
 Vnto her Coch remounting, home did ride,
 Admir'd of all the people, and much glorifide.

Where making ioyous feast their daies they spent
 In perfect loue, deuoid of hatefull strife,
 Allide with bands of mutuall couplement;
 For Triamond had Canacee to wife,

With whom he ledd a long and happie life;
 And Cambel tooke Cambina to his fere,
 The which as life were each to other lief.
 So all alike did loue, and loued were,
 That since their days such louers were not found elswere.

Cant. IIII.

*Satyrane makes a Turneyment
 For loue of Florimell:
 Britomart winnes the prize from all,
 And Artegall doth quell.*

IT often fals, (as here it earst befell)
 That mortall foes doe turne to faithfull frends,
 And friends profest are chaungd to foemen fell:
 The cause of both, of both their minds depends.
 And th'end of both likewise of both their ends.
 For enmitie, that of no ill proceeds,
 But of occasion, with th'occasion ends;
 And friendship, which a faint affection breeds
 Without regard of good, dyes like ill grounded feeds.

That well (me seemes) appeares, by that of late
 Twixt Cambell and Sir Triamond befell,
 As els by this, that now a new debate
 Stird vp twixt Scudamour and Paridell,
 The which by course befals me here to tell:
 Who hauing those two other Knights espide
 Marching afore, as ye remember well,
 Sent forth their Squire to haue them both descride,
 And eke those masked Ladies riding them beside.

Who

Who backe returning, told as he had seene,
 That they were doughtie knights of dreaded name;
 And those two Ladies, their two loues vnseene;
 And therefore wisht them without blot or blame,
 To let them passe at will, for dread of shame.
 But Blandamour full of vainglorious spright,
 And rather stird by his discordfull Dame,
 Vpon them gladly would haue prov'd his might,
 But that he yet was fore of his late lucklesse fight.

Yet nigh approaching, he them fowle bespake,
 Disgracing them, him selfe thereby to grace,
 As was his wont, so weening way to make
 To Ladies loue, where so he came in place,
 And with lewd termes their louers to deface.
 Whose sharpe prouokement them incenst so sore,
 That both were bent t'auenge his vsage base,
 And gan their shields addressse them selues afore:
 For euill deedes may better then bad words be bore.

But faire Cambina with perswasions myld,
 Did mitigate the fiercenesse of their mode,
 That for the present they were reconcyld,
 And gan to treat of deeds of armes abroad,
 And strange aduentures, all the way they rode:
 Amongst the which they told, as then befell,
 Of that great turney, which was blazed brode,
 For that rich girdle of faire Florimell,
 The prize of her, which did in beautie most excell.

To which folke-mote they all with one consent,
 Sith each of them his Ladie had him by,
 Whose beautie each of them thought excellent,
 Agreed to trauell, and their fortunes try.

So as they passed forth, they did espy
 One in bright armes, with ready speare in rest,
 That toward them his course seem'd to apply,
 Gainst whom Sir Paridell himselfe address't,
 Him weening, ere he nigh approacht to haue repress't.

Which th'other seeing, gan his course relent,
 And vaunted speare eftsoones to disaduance,
 As if he naught but peace and pleasure ment,
 Now false into their fellowship by chance,
 Whereat they shewed curteous countenaunce.
 So as he rode with them accompanide,
 His rouing eie did on the Lady glaunce,
 Which Blandamour had riding by his side:
 Whō sure he weend, that he somwhere tofore had eide.

It was to weete that snowy Florimell,
 Which Ferrau late from Braggadocchio wonne,
 Whom he now seeing, her remembered well,
 How hauing rest her from the witches sonne,
 He soone her lost: wherefore he now begunne
 To challenge her anew, as his owne prize,
 Whom formerly he had in battell wonne,
 And proffer made by force her to reprice,
 Which scornefull offer, Blandamour gan soone despize.

And said, Sir Knight, sith ye this Lady clame,
 Whom he that hath, were loth to lose so light,
 (For so to lose a Lady, were great shame)
 Yee shall her winne, as I haue done in fight:
 And lo shee shall be placed here in sight.
 Together with this Hag beside her set,
 That who so winnes her, may her haue by right:
 But he shall haue the Hag that is ybet,
 And with her alwaies ride, till he another get.

That

That offer pleased all the company,
 So Florimell with Ate forth was brought,
 At which they all gan laugh full merrily:
 But Braggadocchio said, he neuer thought
 For such an Hag, that seemed worst then nought,
 His person to emperill so in fight.
 But if to match that Lady they had sought
 Another like, that were like faire and bright,
 His life he then would spend to iustifie his right.

At which his vaine excuse they all gan smile,
 As scorning his vnmanly cowardize:
 And Florimell him fowly gan reuile,
 That for her sake refus'd to enterprize
 The battell, offred in so knightly wize.
 And Ate eke prouokt him priuily,
 With loue of her, and shame of such mesprize.
 But naught he car'd for friend or enemy,
 For in base mind nor friendship dwels nor enmity.

But Cambell thus did shut vp all in iest,
 Braue Knights and Ladies, certes ye doe wrong
 To stirre vp strife, when most vs needeth rest,
 That we may vs referue both fresh and strong,
 Against the Turnement which is not long.
 When who so list to fight, may fight his fill,
 Till then your challenges ye may prolong;
 And then it shall be tried, if ye will,
 Whether shall haue the Hag, or hold the Lady still.

They all agreed, so turning all to game,
 And pleasaunt bord, they past forth on their way,
 And all that while, where so they rode or came,
 That masked Mock-knight was their sport and play.

Till that at length vpon th'appointed day,
 Vnto the place of turneyment they came;
 Where they before them found in fresh aray
 Manie a braue knight, and manie a daintie dame
 Asssembled, for to get the honour of that game.

There this faire crewe arriuing, did diuide
 Them selues asunder : Blandamour with those
 Of his, on th'one ; the rest on th'other side.
 But boastfull Braggadocchio rather chose,
 For glorie vaine their fellowship to lose,
 That men on him the more might gaze alone.
 The rest them selues in troupes did else dispose,
 Like as it seemed best to euery one ;
 The knights in couples marcht, with ladies linckt attone.

Then first of all forth came Sir Satyrane,
 Bearing that precious relicke in an arke
 Of gold, that bad eyes might it not prophane :
 Which drawing softly forth out of the darke,
 He open shewd, that all men it mote marke.
 A gorgeous girdle, curiously embost
 With pearle & precious stone, worth many a marke ;
 Yet did the workmanship farre passe the cost :
 It was the same, which lately Florimel had lost.

That same aloft he hong in open vew,
 To be the prize of beautie and of might ;
 The which estsoones discovered, to it drew
 The eyes of all, allur'd with close delight,
 And hearts quite robbed with so glorious sight,
 That all men threw out vowes and wishes vaine.
 Thrise happie Ladie, and thrise happie knight,
 Them seemd that could so goodly riches gaine,
 So worthie of the perill, worthy of the paine.

Then

Then tooke the bold Sir Satyrane in hand
 An huge great speare, such as he wont to wield,
 And vauncing forth from all the other band
 Of knights, adrest his maiden-headed shield,
 Shewing him selfe all ready for the field.
 Gainst whom there singled from the other side
 A Painim knight, that well in armes was skild,
 And had in many a battell oft bene tride,
 Hight Bruncheval the bold, who fierfly forth did ride.

So furiously they both together met,
 That neither could the others force sustaine;
 As two fierce Bulls, that striue the rule to get
 Of all the heard, meete with so hideous maine,
 That both rebutted, tumble on the plaine:
 So these two champions to the ground were feld,
 Where in a maze they both did long remaine,
 And in their hands their idle troncheons held,
 Which neither able were to wag, or once to weld.

Which when the noble Ferramont espide,
 He pricked forth in ayd of Satyrane;
 And him against Sir Blandamour did ride
 With all the strength and stifnesse that he can.
 But the more strong and stiffely that he ran,
 So much more sorely to the ground he fell,
 That on an heape were tumbled horse and man.
 Vnto whose rescue forth rode Paridell;
 But him likewise with that same speare he eke did quell.

Which Braggadocchio seeing, had no will
 To hasten greatly to his parties ayd,
 Albee his turne were next; but stood there still,
 As one that seemed doubtfull or dismayd.

But Triamond halfe wroth to see him staid,
 Sternly stept forth, and raught away his speare,
 With which so fore he Ferramont assaid,
 That horse and man to ground he quite did beare,
 That neither could in hast themselues againe vpreare.

Which to auenge, Sir Deuon him did dight,
 But with no better fortune then the rest:
 For him likewise he quickly downe did smight,
 And after him Sir Douglas him adrest,
 And after him Sir Falimord forth prest,
 But none of them against his strokes could stand,
 But all the more, the more his praise increst.
 For either they were left vpon the land,
 Or went away sore wounded of his haplesse hand.

And now by this, Sir Satyrane abraid,
 Out of the swowne, in which too long he lay;
 And looking round about, like one dismaid,
 When as he saw the mercilesse affray.
 Which doughty Triamond had wrought that day,
 Vnto the noble Knights of Maidenhead,
 His mighty heart did almost rend in tway,
 For very gall, that rather wholly dead
 Himselfe he wisht haue beene, then in so bad a stead.

Estfoones he gan to gather vp around
 His weapons, which lay scattered all abrode,
 And as it fell, his steed he ready found.
 On whom remounting, fiercely forth he rode,
 Like sparke of fire that from the anduile glode.
 There where he saw the valiant Triamond
 Chasing, and laying on them heauy lode,
 That none his force were able to withstond,
 So dreadfull were his strokes, so deadly was his hond.

With

With that at him his beamlike speare he aimed,
And thereto all his power and might applide:
The wicked steele for mischief first ordained,
And hauing now misfortune got for guide.
Staid not, till it arriued in his side.
And therein made a very griesly wound,
That streames of bloud his armour all bedide.
Much was he daunted with that direfull sound,
That scarce he him vpheld from falling in aound.

Yet as he might, himselfe he soft withdrew
Out of the field, that none percei'd it plaine,
Then gan the part of Challengers anew
To range the field, and victorlike to raine,
That none against them battell durst maintaine.
By that the gloomy euening on them fell,
That forced them from fighting to refraine,
And trumpets sound to cease did them compell,
So Satyrane that day was iudg'd to beare the bell.

The morrow next the Turney gan anew,
And with the first the hardy Satyrane
Appear'd in place, with all his noble crew,
On th'other side, full many a warlike swaine,
Assembled were, that glorious prize to gaine.
But mongst them all, was not Sir Triamond,
Vnable he new battell to darraine,
Through grieuance of his late receiued wound,
That doubly did him grieue, when so himselfe he found.

Which Cambell seeing, though he could not salue,
Ne done vndoe, yet for to salue his name,
And purchase honour in his friends behalue.
This goodly counterfesaunce he did frame.

The shield and armes well knowne to be the same,
 Which Triamond had worne, vnwares to wight,
 And to his friend vnwist, for doubt of blame,
 If he misdidd; he on himselve did dight,
 That none could him discerne, and so went forth to fight

There Satyrane Lord of the field he found,
 Triumpling in great ioy and iolity;
 Gainst whom none able was to stand on ground;
 That much he gan his glorie to enuy,
 And cast t'auenge his friends indignity.
 A mightie speare estfoones at him he bent;
 Who seeing him come on so furiously,
 Met him mid-way with equall hardiment,
 That forcibly to ground they both together went.

They vp againe them selues can lightly reare,
 And to their tryed swords them selues betake;
 With which they wrought such wondrous maruels
 That all the rest it did amazed make, (there,
 Ne any dar'd their perill to partake;
 Now cuffling close, now chacing to and fro,
 Now hurtling round aduantage for to take:
 As two wild Boares together grapling go,
 Chaufing and foming choler each against his fo.

So as they courst, and turneyd here and there,
 It chaunst Sir Satyrane his steed at last,
 Whether through foundring or through sodein feare
 To stumble, that his rider nigh he cast;
 Which vauntage Cambell did pursue so fast,
 That ere him selfe he had recouered well,
 So sore he fowst him on the compast creast,
 That forced him to leaue his loftie sell,
 And rudely tumbling downe vnder his horse feete fell.

Lightly Cambello leapt downe from his steed,
For to haue rent his shield and armes away,
That whylome wont to be the victors meed;
When all vnwares he felt an hideous sway
Of many swords, that lode on him did lay.
An hundred knights had him enclosed round,
To rescue Satyraue out of his pray;
All which at once huge strokes on him did pound,
In hope to take him prisoner, where he stood on ground.

He with their multitude was nought dismayd,
But with stout courage turnd vpon them all,
And with his brondiron round about him layd;
Of which he dealt large almes, as did befall:
Like as a Lion that by chaunce doth fall
Into the hunters toile, doth rage and rore,
In royall heart disdaining to be thrall.
But all in vaine: for what might one do more?
They haue him taken captiue, though it grieue him sore.

Whereof when newes to Triamond was brought,
There as he lay, his wound he soone forgot,
And starting vp, streight for his armour sought:
In vaine he fought; for there he found it not;
Cambello it away before had got:
Cambelloes armes therefore he on him threw,
And lightly issewd forth to take his lot.
There he in troupe found all that warlike crew,
Leading his friend away, full forie to his vew.

Into the thickest of that knightly preasse
He thrust, and smote downe all that was betweene,
Caried with feruent zeale, ne did he ceasse,
Till that he came, where he had Cambell scene,

Like captiue thral two other Knights atweene,
 There he amongst them cruell hauocke makes.
 That they which lead him, soone enforced beene
 To let him loose, to saue their proper stakes,
 Who being freed, from one a weapon fiercely takes.

With that he driues at them with dreadfull might,
 Both in remembrance of his friends late harme,
 And in reuengement of his owne despight,
 So both together giue a new allarme,
 As if but now the battell waxed warme.
 As when two greedy Wolues doe breake by force
 Into an heard, farre from the husband farme,
 They spoile and rauine without all remorse,
 So did these two through all the field their foes enforce.

Fiercely they followd on their bolde emprize,
 Till trumpets sound did warne them all to rest;
 Then all with one consent did yeeld the prize
 To Triamond and Cambell as the best.
 But Triamond to Cambell it relest.
 And Cambell it to Triamond transferd;
 Each labouring t' aduance the others gest,
 And make his praise before his owne preferd:
 So that the doome was to another day differd.

The last day came, when all those knightes againe
 Asssembled were their deedes of armes to shew.
 Full many deedes that day were shewed plaine:
 But Satyrane boue all the other crew,
 His wondrous worth declared in all mens view.
 For from the first he to the last endured,
 And though some while Fortune from him withdrew,
 Yet euermore his honour he recured,
 And with vnwearied powre his party still assured.

Ne was there Knight that euer thought of armes,
 But that his vtmost prowesse there made knowen,
 That by their many wounds, and carelesse harmes,
 By shiuered speares, and swords all vnder strowen,
 By scattered shields was easie to be showen.
 There might ye see loose steeds at randon ronne,
 Whose luckelesse riders late were ouerthrowen;
 And squiers make hast to helpe their Lords fordonne,
 But still the Knights of Maidenhead the better wonne.

Till that there entred on the other side,
 A straunger knight, from whence no man could reed,
 In quyet disguise, full hard to be descride.
 For all his armour was like saluage weed,
 With woody mosse bedight, and all his steed
 With oaken leaues attrapt, that seemed fit
 For saluage wight, and thereto well agreed
 His word, which on his ragged shield was writ,
Saluageesse sans finesse, shewing secret wit.

He at his first incomming, charg'd his spere
 At him, that first appeared in his sight:
 That was to weet, the stout Sir Sangliere,
 Who well was knowen to be a valiant Knight,
 Approued oft in many a perlous fight.
 Him at the first encounter downe he sinote,
 And ouerbore beyond his crouper quight,
 And after him another Knight, that hote
 Sir Brianor, so sore, that none him life behote.

Then ere his hand he reard, he ouerthrew
 Seuen Knights one after other as they came:
 And when his speare was brust, his sword he drew,
 The instrument of wrath, and with the same

Far'd like a lyon in his bloodie game,
 Hewing, and flashing shields, and helmets bright,
 And beating downe, what euer nigh him came,
 That euery one gan shun his dreadfull sight,
 No lesse then death it selfe, in dangerous affright.

Much wondred all men, what, or whence he came,
 That did amongst the troupes so tyrannize;
 And each of other gan inquire his name.
 But when they could not learne it by no wize,
 Most answerable to his wyld disguise
 It seemed, him to terme the saluage knight.
 But certes his right name was otherwise,
 Though knowne to few, that Arthegall he hight,
 The doughtiest knight that liv'd that day, and most of (might.

Thus was Sir Satyrane with all his band
 By his sole manhood and atchieuement stout
 Dismayd, that none of them in field durst stand,
 But beaten were, and chased all about.
 So he continued all that day throughout,
 Till euening, that the Sunne gan downward bend.
 Then rushed forth out of the thickest rout
 A stranger knight, that did his glorie shend:
 So nought maybe esteemed happie till the end.

He at his entrance charg'd his powrefull speare
 At Artegall, in midst of his pryde,
 And therewith smote him on his Umbriere
 So sore, that tombling backe, he downe did slyde
 Ouer his horses' taile aboute a stryde;
 Whence litle lust he had to rise againe.
 Which Cambell seeing, much the same enuyde,
 And ran at him with all his might and maine;
 But shortly was likewise seene lying on the plaine.

Whereat

Whereat full inly wroth was Triamond,
And cast t'euenge the shame docn to his freend:
But by his friend himfelfe eke soone he fond,
In no lesse neede of helpe, then him he weend.
All which when Blandamour from end to end
Beheld, he woxe therewith displeas'd sore,
And thought in mind it shortly to amend:
His speare he feutred, and at him it bore;
But with no better fortune, then the rest afore.

Full many others at him likewise ran:
But all of them likewise dismounted were,
Ne certes wonder; for no powre of man
Could bide the force of that enchaunted speare,
The which this famous Britomart did beare;
With which she wondrous deeds of arms atchieued,
And ouerthrew, what euer came her neare,
That all those stranger knights full sore agriued,
And that late weaker band of challengers relieued.

Like as in sommers day when raging heat
Doth burne the earth, and boyled riuers drie,
That all brute beasts forst to refraine fro meat,
Doe hunt for shade, where shrowded they may lie,
And missing it, faine from themselues to flie;
All trauellers tormented are with paine:
A watry cloud doth ouercast the skie,
And poureth forth a sudder shoure of raine,
That all the wretched world recomforteth againe.

So did the warlike Britomart restore
The prize, to knights of Maydenhead that day,
Which else was like to haue bene lost, and bore
The prayse of prowesse from them all away.

Then shrilling trumpets loudly gan to bray,
 And bad them leaue their labours and long toyle,
 To ioyous feast and other gentle play,
 Where beauties prize shold win that pretious spoyle:
 Where I with found of trompe will also rest a while.

Cant. V.

*The Ladies for the girdle strue of famous Florimell:
 Scudamour comming to Cares house,
 doth sleepe from him expell.*

IT hath bene through all ages euer seene,
 That with the praise of armes and cheualric,
 The prize of beautie still hath ioyned beene;
 And that for reasons speciall priuitie:
 For either doth on other much relie.
 For he me seemes most fit the faire to serue,
 That can her best defend from villenie;
 And she most fit his seruice doth deserue,
 That fairest is and from her faith will neuer swerue.

So fitly now here commeth next in place,
 After the prooffe of prowesse ended well,
 The controuerse of beauties soueraine grace;
 In which to her that doth the most excell,
 Shall fall the girdle of faire Florimell:
 That many wish to win for glorie vaine,
 And not for vertuous vse, which some doe tell
 That glorious belt did in it selfe containe,
 Which Ladies ought to loue, and seeke for to obtaine.

That

That girdle gaue the vertue of chaste loue,
 And wiuehood true, to all that did it beare;
 But whosoever contrarie doth proue,
 Might not the same about her middle weare,
 But it would loose, or else a sunder teare.
 Whilome it was (as Faeries wont report)
 Dame Venus girdle, by her steemed deare,
 What time she vsd to liue in wiuely fort;
 But layd aside, when so she vsd her looser sport.

Her husband Vulcan whylome for her sake,
 When first he loued her with heart entire,
 This pretious ornament they say did make,
 And wrought in Lemno with vnquenched fire:
 And afterwards did for her loues first hire,
 Giue it to her, for euer to remaine,
 Therewith to bind lasciuious desire,
 And loose affections streightly to restraine;
 Which vertue it for euer after did retaine.

The same one day, when she her selfe disposd
 To visite her beloued Paramoure,
 The God of warre, she from her middle loosd,
 And left behind her in her secret bowre,
 On Aridalian mount, where many an howre
 She with the pleasant Graces wont to play.
 There Florimell in her first ages flowre
 Was fostered by those Graces, (as they say)
 And brought with her frō thence that goodly belt away.

That goodly belt was Cestas hight by name,
 And as her life by her esteemed deare.
 No wonder then, if that to winne the same
 So many Ladies sought, as shall appeare;

For pearelesse she was thought, that did it beare.
 And now by this their feast all being ended,
 The iudges which thereto selected were,
 Into the Martian field adowne descended,
 To deeme this doutfull case, for which they all cōtended.

But first was question made, which of those Knights
 That lately turneyd, had the wager wonne:
 There was it iudged by those worthie wights,
 That Satyrane the first day best had donne:
 For he last ended, hauing first begonne.
 The second was to Triamond behight,
 For that he sau'd the victour from fordonne:
 For Cambell victour was in all mens sight,
 Till by mishap he in his foemens hand did light.

The third dayes prize vnto that straunger Knight,
 Whom all men term'd Knight of the Hebene speare,
 To Britomart was giuen by good right;
 For that with puissant stroke she downe did beare
 The Saluage Knight, that victour was whileare,
 And all the rest, which had the best afore,
 And to the last vnconquer'd did appeare;
 For last is deemed best. To her therefore
 The fayrest Ladie was adiudgd for Paramore.

But thereat greatly grudged Arthegall,
 And much repynd, that both of victors meede,
 And eke of honour she did him forestall.
 Yet mote he not withstand, what was decreede;
 But inly thought of that despightfull deede
 Fit time t'awaite auenged for to bee.
 This being ended thus, and all agreed,
 Then next ensue'd the Paragon to see
 Of beauties praise, and yeeld the fayrest her due fee.

Then

Then first Cambello brought vnto their view
 His faire Cambina, couered with a veale;
 Which being once withdrawne, most perfect hew
 And passing beautie did estsoones reueale,
 That able was weake harts away to steale.
 Next did Sir Triamond vnto their sight
 The face of his deare Canacee vnheale;
 Whose beauties beame estsoones did shine so bright,
 That daz'd the eyes of all, as, with exceeding light.

And after her did Paridell produce
 His false Duessa, that she might be seene,
 Who with her forged beautie did seduce
 The hearts of some, that fairest her did weene;
 As diuerse wits affected diuers beene.
 Then did Sir Ferramont vnto them shew
 His Lucida, that was full faire and sheene,
 And after these an hundred Ladies moe
 Appear'd in place, the which each other did outgoe.

All which who so dare thinke for to enchace,
 Him needeth sure a golden pen I weene,
 To tell the feature of each goodly face.
 For since the day that they created beene,
 So many heauenly faces were not seene
 Assembled in one place: ne he that thought
 For Chian folke to pourtraict beauties Queene,
 By view of all the fairest to him brought,
 So many faire did see, as here he might haue sought.

At last the most redoubted Britonesse,
 Her louely Amoret did open shew;
 Whose face discouered, plainly did expresse
 The heauenly pourtraict of bright Angels hew.

Well weened all, which her that time did vew,
 That she should surely beare the bellaway,
 Till Blandamour, who thought he had the trew
 And very Florimell, did her display:
 The sight of whom once seene did all the rest dismay.

For all afore that seemed fayre and bright,
 Now base and contemptible did appeare,
 Compar'd to her, that shone as Phiebes light,
 Amongst the lesser starres in euening cleare.
 All that her saw with wonder rauiht weare,
 And weend no mortall creature she should bee,
 But some celestially shape, that flesh did beare:
 Yet all were glad there Florimell to see;
 Yet thought that Florimell was not so faire as shee.

As guilefull Goldsmith that by secret skill,
 With golden foyle doth finely ouer spred
 Some baser metall, which commend he will
 Vnto the vulgar for good gold insted,
 He much more goodly glosse thereon doth shed,
 To hide his falshood, then if it were trew:
 So hard, this Idole was to be ared,
 That Florimell her selfe in all mens vew
 She seem'd to passe: so forged things do fairest shew.

Then was that golden belt by doome of all
 Graunted to her, as to the fayrest Dame.
 Which being brought, about her middle small
 They thought to gird, as best it her became;
 But by no meanes they could it thereto frame.
 For euer as they fastned it, it loof'd
 And fell away, as feeling secret blame.
 Full oft about her wast she it enclof'd;
 And it as oft was from about her wast disclof'd.

That all men wondred at the vncouth sight,
 And each one thought, as to their fancies came.
 But she her selfe did thinke it doen for spight,
 And touched was with secret wrath and shame
 Therewith, as thing deuiz'd her to defame.
 Then many other Ladies likewise tride,
 About their tender loynes to knit the same;
 But it would not on none of them abide,
 But when they thought it fast, estsoones it was vntide.

Which when that scornefull Squire of Dames did vew,
 He lowdly gan to laugh, and thus to iest;
 Alas for pittie that so faire a crew,
 As like can not be seene from East to West,
 Cannot find one this girdle to inuest.
 Fie on the man, that did it first inuent,
 To shame vs all with this, Vngirt vnablest.
 Let neuer Ladie to his loue assent,
 That hath this day so many so vnmanly ihent.

Thereat all Knights gan laugh, and Ladies lowre:
 Till that at last the gentle Amoret
 Likewise assayd, to proue that girdles powre;
 And hauing it about her middle set,
 Did find it fit, withouten breach or let.
 Whereat the rest gan greatly to enuie:
 But Florimell exceedingly did fret,
 And snatching from her hand halfe angrily
 The belt againe, about her bodie gan it tie.

Yet nathemore would it her bodie fit;
 Yet nathelasse to her, as her dew right,
 It yeilded was by them, that iudged it:
 And she her selfe adiudged to the Knight,

That bore the Hebene speare, as wonne in fight.
 But Britomart would not thereto assent,
 Ne her owne Amoret forgoe so light
 For that strange Dame, whose beauties wonderment
 She lesse esteem'd, then th'others vertuous government.

Whom when the rest did see her to refuse,
 They were full glad, in hope themselues to get her :
 Yet at her choice they all did greatly muse.
 But after that the Iudges did arret her
 Vnto the second best, that lou'd her better;
 That was the Saluage Knight : but he was gone
 In great displeasure, that he could not get her.
 Then was she iudged Triamond his one ;
 But Triamond lou'd Canacee, and other none.

Tho vnto Satyras she was adiudged,
 Who was right glad to gaine so goodly meed :
 But Blandamour thereat full greatly grudged,
 And litle pray'd his labours euill speed,
 That for to winne the saddle, lost the steed.
 Ne lesse thereat did Paridell complaine,
 And thought t'appeale from that, which was decreed,
 To single combat with Sir Satyrane.
 Thereto him Ate stir'd, new discord to maintaine.

And eke with these, full many other Knights
 She through her wicked working did incense,
 Her to demaund, and chalenge as their rights,
 Deserued for their perils recompense.
 Amongst the rest with boastfull vaine pretense
 Stept Braggadocchio forth, and as his thrall
 Her claym'd, by him in battell wonne long sens :
 Whereto her selfe he did to witnesse call ;
 Who being askt, accordingly confessed all.

Thereat

Thereat exceeding wroth was Satyrus;
 And wroth with Satyrus was Blandamour;
 And wroth with Blandamour was Eriuan;
 And at them both Sir Paridell did loure.
 So all together stir'd vp strifull stoure,
 And readie were new battell to darraine.
 Each one profest to be her paramoure,
 And vow'd with speare and shield it to maintaine;
 Ne Iudges powre, ne reasons rule mote them restraine.

Which troublous stirre when Satyrus auiz'd:
 He gan to cast how to appease the same,
 And to accord them all, this meanes deuiz'd:
 First in the midst to set that fayrest Dame,
 To whom each once his challenge should disclame,
 And he himsele his right would eke releasse:
 Then looke to whom she voluntarie came,
 He should without disturbance her possesse:
 Sweete is the loue that comes alone with willingesse.

They all agreed, and then that snowy Mayd
 Was in the middest plact among them all;
 All on her gazing wisht, and vowd, and prayd,
 And to the Queene of beautie close did call,
 That she vnto their portion might befall.
 Then when she long had lookt vpon each one,
 As though she wished to haue pleas'd them all,
 At last to Braggadocchio selfe alone
 She came of her accord, in spight of all his sone.

Which when they all beheld they chaft and rag'd,
 And woxe nigh mad for very harts despight,
 That from reuenge their willes they scarce asswag'd:
 Some thought from him her to haue rest by might;

Some proffer made with him for her to fight,
 But he nought car'd for all that they could say:
 For he their words as wind esteemed light.
 Yet not fit place he thought it there to stay,
 But secretly from thence that night her bore away.

They which remaynd, so soone as they percei'd,
 That she was gone, departed thence with speed,
 And follow'd them, in mind her to haue reau'd
 From wight vnworthie of so noble meed.
 In which poursuit how each one did succede,
 Shall else be told in order, as it fell.
 But now of Britomart it here doth neede,
 The hard aduentures and strange haps to tell;
 Since with the rest she went not after Florimell.

For soone as she them saw to discord set,
 Her list no longer in that place abide;
 But taking with her louely Amoret,
 Vpon her first aduenture forth did ride,
 To seeke her lou'd, making blind loue her guide.
 Vnluckie Mayd to seeke her enemye,
 Vnluckie Mayd to seeke him farre and wide,
 Whom, when he was vnto her selfe most nie,
 She through his late disguizemēt could him not descrie.

So much the more her grieffe, the more her toyle:
 Yet neither toyle nor grieffe she once did spare,
 In seeking him, that should her paine assoyle;
 Whereto great comfort in her sad misfare
 Was Amoret, companion of her care:
 Who likewise sought her louer long miswent,
 The gentle Scudamour, whose hart whileare
 That stryfull hag with gealous discontent
 Had filld, that he to fell reueng was fully bent.

Bent to reuenge on blamelesse Britomart

The crime, which cursed Ate kindled earst,
 The which like thornes did picke her gealous hart,
 And through his soule like poysoned arrow perst,
 That by no reason it might be reuerst,
 For ought that Glauce could or doe or say.
 For aye the more that she the same reherst,
 The more it gauld, and grieu'd him night and day,
 That nought but dire reuenge his anger mote defray.

So as they trauelled, the drouping night

Couered with cloudie storme and bitter showre,
 That dreadfull seem'd to euery lining wight,
 Vpon them fell, before her timely howre;
 That forced them to seeke some couert bowre,
 Where they might hide their heads in quiet rest,
 And shrowd their persons from that stormie stowre.
 Not farre away, not meete for any guest
 They spide a little cottage, like some poore mans nest,

Vnder a steepe hilles side it placed was,

There where the mouldred earth had cav'd the banke;
 And fast beside a little brooke did pas
 Of muddie water, that like puddle stanke,
 By which few crooked fallowes grew in ranke:
 Whereto approaching nigh, they heard the sound
 Of many yron hammers beating ranke,
 And answering their wearie turnes around,
 That seemed some blacksmith dwelt in that desert ground.

There entring in, they found the goodman selfe,

Full busily vnto his worke ybent;
 Who was to weete a wretched wearish elfe,
 With hollow eyes and rawbone cheekes forspent.

As if he had in prison long bene pent :
 Full blacke and grieſly did his face appeare,
 Beſmeard with ſmoke that nigh his eye-ſight blent ;
 With rugged beard, and hoarie ſhagged heare,
 The which he neuer wont to combe, or comely ſheare.

Rude was his garment, and to rags all rent,
 Ne better had he, ne for better cared :
 With bliſtred hands emongſt the cinders brent,
 And fingers filthie, with long nayles vnpared,
 Right fit to rend the food, on which he fared.
 His name was Care ; a blackſmith by his trade,
 That neither day nor night, from working ſpared,
 But to ſmall purpoſe yron wedges made ;
 Thoſe be vnquiet thoughts, that carefull minds inuade.

In which his worke he had ſixe ſeruants preſt,
 About the Andvile ſtanding euermore,
 With huge great hammers, that did neuer reſt
 From heaping ſtroakes, which thereon ſouſed ſore :
 All ſixe ſtrong groomes, but one then other more ;
 For by degrees they all were diſagreed ;
 So likewise did the hammers which they bore,
 Like belles in greatneſſe orderly ſucceed,
 That he which was the laſt, the firſt did farre exceede.

He like a monſtrous Gyant ſeem'd in ſight,
 Farre paſſing Bronteus, or Pynacmon great,
 The which in Lipari doe day and night
 Frame thunderbolts for Ioues auengefull threate.
 So dreadfully he did the anduile beat,
 That ſeem'd to duſt he ſhortly would it driue :
 So huge his hammer and ſo fierce his heat,
 That ſeem'd a rocke of Diamond it could riuē,
 And rend a ſunder quite ; if he thereto liſt ſtriuē.

Sir Scudamour there entring, much admired
 The manner of their worke and wearie paine;
 And hauing long beheld, at last enquired
 The cause and end thereof: but all in vaine;
 For they for nought would from their worke refraine,
 Ne let his speeches come vnto their eare.
 And eke the breathfull bellowes blew amaine,
 Like to the Northren winde, that none could heare,
 Those Pensifenesse did moue; & Sighes the bellows weare.

Which when that warriour saw, he said no more,
 But in his armour layd him downe to rest:
 To rest he layd him downe vpon the flore,
 (Whylome for ventrous Knights the bedding best)
 And thought his wearie limbs to haue redrest.
 And that old aged Dame, his faithfull Squire,
 Her feeble ioynts laydeke a downe to rest;
 That needed much her weake age to desire,
 After so long a trauell, which them both did tire.

There lay Sir Scudamour long while expecting,
 When gentle sleepe his heauie eyes would close;
 Oft chaunging sides, and oft new place electing,
 Where better seem'd he mote himselfe repose;
 And oft in wrath he thence againe vprose;
 And oft in wrath he layd him downe againe.
 But wheresoeuer he did himselfe dispose,
 He by no meanes could wished ease obtaine:
 So euery place seem'd painefull, and ech changing vaine.

And euermore, when he to sleepe did thinke,
 The hammers sound his senses did molest;
 And euermore, when he began to winke,
 The bellowes noyse disturb'd his quiet rest,

Ne suffred sleepe to settle in his brest.
 And all the night the dogs did barke and howle
 About the house, at sent of stranger guest:
 And now the crowing Cocke, and now the Owle
 Lowde shriking him afflicted to the very fowle.

And if by fortune any litle nap
 Vpon his heauie eye-lids chaunst to fall,
 Eftsoones one of those villeins him did rap
 Vpon his headpeece with his yron mall;
 That he was soone awaked therewithall,
 And lightly started vp as one affrayd;
 Or as if one him suddenly did call.
 So oftentimes he out of sleepe abrayd,
 And then lay musing long, on that him ill apayd.

So long he muzed, and so long he lay,
 That at the last his wearie sprite opprest
 With fleshly weaknesse, which no creature may
 Long time resist, gaue place to kindly rest,
 That all his senses did full soone arrest:
 Yet in his soundest sleepe, his dayly feare
 His ydle braine gan busily molest,
 And made him dreame those two disloyall were:
 The things that day most minds, at night doe most ap-peare.

With that, the wicked carle the maister Smith
 A paire of redwhot yron tongs did take
 Out of the burning cinders, and therewith,
 Vnder his side him nipt, that forst to wake,
 He felt his hart for very paine to quake,
 And started vp auenged for to be
 On him, the which his quiet slomber brake:
 Yet looking round about him none could see;
 Yet did the smart remaine, though he himselfe did flee.

In such disquiet and hartfretting payne,
He all that night, that too long night did passe.
And now the day out of the Ocean mayne
Began to peepe aboue this earthly masse,
With pearly dew sprinkling the morning grasse:
Then vp he rose like heauie lumpe of lead,
That in his face, as in a looking glasse,
The signes of anguish one mote plainely read,
And ghesse the man to be dismayd with gealous dread.

Vnto his lofty steede he clombe anone,
And forth vpon his former voiage fared,
And with him eke that aged Squire attone;
Who whatsoeuer perill was prepared,
Both equall paines and equall perill shared:
The end whereof and dangerous euent
Shall for another canticle be spared.
But here my wearie teeme nigh ouer spent
Shall breath it selfe awhile, after so long a went.

Cant. VI.

*Both Scudamour and Arthegall
Doe fight with Britomart,
He sees her face; doth fall in loue,
and soone from her depart.*

WHat equall torment to the grieffe of mind,
And pyning anguish hid in gentle hart,
That inly feeds it selfe with thoughts vnkind,
And nourisheth her owne consuming smart?
What medicine can any Leaches art
Yeeld such a fore, that doth her griuance hide,
And will to none her maladie impart?
Such was the wound that Scudamour did gride;
For which Dan Phebus selfe cannot a salue prouide.

Who hauing left that restlesse house of Care,
The next day, as he on his way did ride,
Full of melancholie and sad misfare,
Through misconcept; all vnawares espide
An armed Knight vnder a forrest side,
Sitting in shade beside his grazing steede;
Who soone as them approaching he descride,
Gan towards them to pricke with eger speede,
That seem'd he was full bent to some mischieuous deede.

Which Scudamour perceiuing, forth issued
To haue rencountred him in equall race;
But soone as th'other nigh approaching, vewed
The armes he bore, his speare he gan abase,

And

And voide his courſe: at which ſo ſuddain caſe
 He wondred much. But th'other thus can ſay;
 Ah gentle Scudamour, vnto your grace
 I me ſubmit, and you of pardon pray,
 That almoſt had againſt you treſpaſſed this day.

Whereto thus Scudamour, Small harme it were
 For any knight, vpon a ventrous knight
 Without diſpleaſance for to proue his ſpere.
 But reade you Sir, ſith ye my name haue hight,
 What is your owne, that I mote you requite.
 Certes (ſayd he) ye mote as now excuſe
 Me from diſcouering you my name aright:
 For time yet ſerues that I the ſame reſuſe,
 But call ye me the Saluage Knight, as others uſe.

Then this, Sir Saluage Knight (quoth he) areede;
 Or doe you here within this forreſt wonne,
 That ſeemeth well to anſwere to your weede?
 Or haue ye it for ſome occaſion donne?
 That rather ſeemes, ſith knowen armes ye ſhonne.
 This other day (ſayd he) a ſtranger knight
 Shame and diſhonour hath vnto me donne;
 On whom I waite to wreake that foule deſpight,
 When euer he this way ſhall paſſe by day or night.

Shame be his meede (quoth he) that meaneth ſhame.
 But what is he, by whom ye ſhamed were?
 A ſtranger knight, ſayd he, vnknowne by name,
 But knowne by fame, and by an Hebene ſpeare,
 With which he all that met him, downe did beare.
 He in an open Turney lately held,
 Fro me the honour of that game did reare;
 And hauing me all wearie earſt, downe feld,
 The ſayreſt Ladie reſt, and euer ſince withheld.

When Scudamour heard mention of that speare,
 He wist right well, that it was Britomart,
 The which from him his fairest loue did beare.
 Tho gan he swell in euery inner part,
 For fell despight, and gnaw his gealous hart,
 That thus he sharply sayd; Now by my head,
 Yet is not this the first vnknightly part,
 Which that same knight, whom by his launce I read,
 Hath doen to noble knights, that many makes him dread.

For lately he my loue hath fro me rest,
 And eke defiled with foule villanie
 The sacred pledge, which in his faith was left,
 In sname of knighthood and fidelitie;
 The which ere long full deare he shall abie.
 And if to that auenge by you decreed
 This hand may helpe, or succour ought supplie,
 It shall not fayle, when so ye shall it need.
 So both to wreake their wrathes on Britomart agreed.

Whiles thus they communed, lo farre away
 A Knight soft ryding towards them they spyde,
 Attyr'd in forraine armes and straunge aray:
 Whō when they nigh approcht, they plaine descryde
 To be the same, for whom they did abyde.
 Sayd then Sir Scudamour, Sir Saluage knight
 Let me this craue, sith first I was defyde,
 That first I may that wrong to him requite:
 And if I hap to fayle, you shall recure my right.

Which being yeelded, he his threatfull speare
 Gan fewter, and against her fiercely ran.
 Who soone as she him saw approaching neare
 With so fell rage, her selfe she lightly gan

To dight, to welcome him, well as she can:
 But entertaind him in so rude a wise,
 That to the ground she smote both horse and man;
 Whence neither greatly hasted to arise,
 But on their common harmes together did deuise.

But Artegall beholding his mischaunce,
 New matter added to his former fire;
 And est auentring his steeleheaded launce,
 Against her rode, full of despiteous ire,
 That nought but spoyle and vengeance did require.
 But to himselfe his felonous intent
 Returning, disappointed his desire,
 Whiles vnawares his saddle he forwent,
 And found himselfe on ground in great amazement.

Lightly he started vp out of that ffound,
 And snatching forth his direfull deadly blade,
 Did leape to her, as doth an eger hound
 Thrust to an Hynd within some couert glade,
 Whom without perill he cannot inuade.
 With such fell greedines he her assayled,
 That though she mounted were, yet he her made
 To giue him ground, (so much his force preiayled)
 And shun his mightie strokes, gainst which no armes (auayled.

So as they coursed here and there, it chaunst
 That in her wheeling round, behind her crest
 So forely he her strooke, that thence it glaunst
 Adowne her backe, the which it fairely blest
 From foule mischance; ne did it euer rest,
 Till on her horses hinder parts it fell;
 Where byting deepe, so deadly it imprest,
 That quite it chynd his backe behind the sell,
 And to alight on foote her algates did compell.

Like as the lightning brond from riuen skie,
 Throwne out by angry Ioue in his vengeance,
 With dreadfull force falles on some steeple hie;
 Which battring, downe it on the church doth glance,
 And teares it all with terrible mischance.
 Yet she no whit dismayd, her steed forsooke,
 And casting from her that enchaunted lance,
 Vnto her sword and shield her soone betooke;
 And therewithall at him right furiously she strooke.

So furiously she strooke in her first heat,
 Whiles with long sight on foot he breathlesse was,
 That she him forced backward to retreat,
 And yeeld vnto her weapon way to pas:
 Whose raging rigour neither steele nor bras
 Could stay, but to the tender flesh it went,
 And pour'd the purple blood forth on the gras;
 That all his mayle yri'd, and plates yrent,
 Shew'd all his bodie bare vnto the cruell dent.

At length when as he saw her hastie heat
 Abate, and panting breath begin to fayle,
 He through long sufferance growing now more great,
 Rose in his strength, and gan her fresh assayle,
 Heaping huge strokes, as thicke as showre of hayle,
 And lashing dreadfully at euery part,
 As if he thought her soule to disentrayle.
 Ah cruell hand, and thrise more cruell hart,
 That workst such wrecke on her, to whom thou dearest (art.

What yron courage euer could endure,
 To worke such outrage on so faire a creature?
 And in his madnesse thinke with hands impure
 To spoyle so goodly workmanship of nature,

The

The maker selfe resembling in her feature?
 Certes some hellish furie, or some feend
 This mischiefẽ framd, for their first loues defeature,
 To bath their hands in bloud of dearest freend,
 Thereby to make their loues beginning, their liues end.

Thus long they trac'd, and trauerst to and fro,
 Sometimes pursewing, and sometimes pursewed,
 Still as aduantage they espyde thereto:
 But toward th'end Sir Arthegall renewed
 His strength still more, but she still more decrewed.
 At last his lucklesse hand he heau'd on hie,
 Hauing his forces all in one accrewed,
 And therewith stroke at her so hideoullie,
 That seemed nought but death mote be her destinie.

The wicked stroke vpon her helmet chaunst,
 And with the force, which in it selfe it bore,
 Her ventayle shard away, and thence forth glaunst
 A downe in vaine, ne harm'd her any more.
 With that her angels face, vnseene afore,
 Like to the ruddie morne appeared in sight,
 Deawed with siluer drops, through sweating fore,
 But somewhat redder, then besem'd aright,
 Through toylesome heate and labour of her weary fight.

And round about the same, her yellow heare
 Hauing through stirring loofd their wonted band,
 Like to a golden border did appeare,
 Framed in goldsmithes forge with cunning hand:
 Yet goldsmithes cunning could not vnderstand
 To frame such subtile wire, so shinie cleare.
 For it did glister like the golden sand,
 The which Pactolus with his waters there,
 Throwes forth vpon the riuage round about him nere.

And as his hand he vp againe did reare,
 Thinking to worke on her his vtmost wracke,
 His powrelesse arme benumbd with secret feare
 From his reuengefull purpose shronke abacke,
 And cruell sword out of his fingers slacke
 Fell downe to ground, as if the Steele had sence,
 And felt some ruth, or sence his hand did lacke,
 Or both of them did thinke, obedience
 To doe to so diuine a beauties excellence.

And he himselte long gazing thereupon,
 At last fell humbly downe vpon his knee,
 And of his wonder made religion,
 Weening some heauenly goddesse he did see,
 Or else vnweeting, what it else might bee;
 And pardon her besought his error frayle,
 That had done outrage in so high degree:
 Whilest trembling horrour did his sence assayle,
 And made ech member quake, and manly hart to quayle.

Nathelesse she full of wrath for that late stroke,
 All that long while vpheld her wrathfull hand,
 With fell intent, on him to bene ywroke,
 And looking sterne, still ouer him did stand,
 Threatning to strike, vnlesse he would withstand:
 And bad him rise, or surely he should die.
 But die or liue for nought he would vpstand
 But her of pardon prayd more earnestlie,
 Or wreake on him her will for so great iniurie.

Which when as Scudamour, who now abrayd,
 Beheld, whereas he stood not farre aside,
 He was therewith right wondrously dismayd,
 And drawing nigh, when as he plaine descride.

That

That peerelesse paterne of Dame natures pride,
 And heauenly image of perfection,
 He blest himselfe, as one sore terrifide,
 And turning his feare to faint deuotion,
 Did worship her as some celestiall vision.

But Glauce, seeing all that chaunced there,
 Well weeting how their errour to assoyle,
 Full glad of so good end, to them drew nere,
 And her salewd with seemely belaccoyle,
 Ioyous to see her safe after long toyle.
 Then her besought, as she to her was deare,
 To graunt vnto those warrours truce a while;
 Which yeelded, they their beuers vp did reare,
 And shew'd themselues to her, such as indeed they were.

When Britomart with sharpe auizefull eye
 Beheld the louely face of Artegall,
 Tempred with sternesse and stout maiestie,
 She gan estfoones it to her mind to call,
 To be the same which in her fathers hall
 Long since in that enchaunted glasse she saw.
 Therewith her wrathfull courage gan appall,
 And haughtie spirits meekely to adaw,
 That her enhaunced hand she downe can soft withdraw.

Yet she it forst to haue againe vpheld,
 As fayning choler, which was turn'd to cold:
 But euer when his visage she beheld,
 Her hand fell downe, and would no longer hold
 The wrathfull weapon gainst his countnance bold:
 But when in vaine to fight she oft assayd,
 She arm'd her tongue, and thought at him to scold;
 Nathlesse her tongue not to her will obayd,
 But brought forth speeches myld, when she would haue

But Scudamour now woxen inly glad,
 That all his gealous feare he false had found,
 And how that Hag his loue abused had
 With breach of faith and loyaltie vnfound,
 The which long time his griued hart did wound,
 Her thus bespake; certes Sir Artegall,
 I ioy to see you lout so low on ground,
 And now become to liue a Ladies thrall,
 That whylome in your minde wont to despise them all.

Soone as she heard the name of Artegall,
 Her hart did leape, and all her hart-strings tremble,
 For sudden ioy, and secret feare withall,
 And all her vitall powres with motion nimble,
 To succour it, themselues gan there assemble,
 That by the swift recourse of flushing blood
 Right plaine appeard, though she it would dissemble,
 And fayned still her former angry mood,
 Thinking to hide the depth by troubling of the flood.

When Glauce thus gan wisely all vpknit;
 Ye gentle Knights, whom fortune here hath brought,
 To be spectators of this vncouth fit,
 Which secret fate hath in this Ladie wrought,
 Against the course of kind, ne meruaile nought,
 Ne thenceforth feare the thing that hethertoo
 Hath troubled both your mindes with idle thought,
 Fearing least she your loues away should woo,
 Feared in vaine, sith meanes ye see there wants theretoo.

And you Sir Artegall, the saluage knight,
 Henceforth may not disdaine, that womans hand
 Hath conquered you anew in second fight:
 For whylome they haue conquerd sea and land,

And

And heauen it selfe, that nought may them withstand
 Ne henceforth be rebellious vnto loue,
 That is the crowne of knighthood, and the band
 Of noble minds deriued from aboue,
 Which being knit with vertue, neuer will remoue.

And you faire Ladie knight, my dearest Dame,
 Relent the rigour of your wrathfull will,
 Whose fire were better turn'd to other flame;
 And wiping out remembrance of all ill,
 Graunt him your grace, but so that he fulfill
 The penance, which ye shall to him empart:
 For louers heauen must passe by sorrowes hell.
 Thereat full inly blushed Britomart;
 But Artegall close smyling ioy'd in secret hart.

Yet durst he not make loue so suddenly,
 Ne thinke th'affection of her hart to draw
 From one to other so quite contrary:
 Besides her modest countenance he saw
 So goodly graue, and full of princely aw,
 That it his ranging fancie did refraine,
 And looser thoughts to lawfull bounds withdraw;
 Whereby the passion grew more fierce and faine,
 Like to a stubborne steede whom strong hand would restraine.

But Scudamour whose hart twixt doubtfull feare
 And feeble hope hung all this while suspence,
 Desiring of his Amoret to heare
 Some gladfull newes and sure intelligence,
 Her thus bespake; But Sir without offence
 Mote I request you tydings of my loue,
 My Amoret, sith you her freed fro thence,
 Where she captiued long, great woes did proue;
 That where ye left, I may her seeke, as doth behoue.

To whom thus Britomart,³ certes Sir knight,
 What is of her become, or whether rest,
 I can not vnto you aread a right.
 For from that time I from enchaunters theft
 Her freed, in which ye her all hopelesse left,
 I her preferu'd from perill and from feare,
 And euermore from villenie her kept:
 Ne euer was there wight to me more deare
 Then she, ne vnto whom I more true loue did beare.

Till on a day as through a desert wyld
 We trauelled, both wearie of the way
 We did alight, and fate in shadow myld;
 Where fearelesse I to sleepe me downe did lay.
 But when as I did out of sleepe abray,
 I found her not, where I her left whyleare,
 But thought she wandred was, or gone astray.
 I cal'd her loud, I sought her farre and neare;
 But no where could her find, nor tydings of her heare.

When Scudamour those heauie tydings heard,
 His hart was thrild with point of deadly feare;
 Ne in his face or bloud or life appeared,
 But senselesse stood, like to a mazed steare,
 That yet of mortall stroke the stound doth beare.
 Till Glauce thus; Faire Sir, be nought dismayd
 With needelesse dread, till certaintie ye heare:
 For yet she maybe safe though somewhat strayd;
 Its best to hope the best, though of the worst affrayd.

Nathlesse he hardly of her chearefull speech
 Did comfort take, or in his troubled sight
 Shew'd change of better cheare: so sore a breach
 That sudden newes had made into his spright;

Till

Till Britomart him fairely thus behight;
 Great cause of sorrow certes Sir ye haue:
 But comfort take : for by this heauens light
 I vow, you dead or liuing not to leaue,
 Till I her find, and wreake on him that her did reauē.

Therewith he rested, and well pleased was.
 So peace being confirm'd amongst them all,
 They tooke their steeds, and forward thence did pas
 Vnto some resting place, which mote befall,
 All being guided by Sir Artegall.
 Where goodly solace was vnto them made,
 And dayly feasting both in bowre and hall,
 Vntill that they their wounds well healed had,
 And wearie limmes recur'd after late vsage bad.

In all which time, Sir Artegall made way
 Vnto the loue of noble Britomart,
 And with meeke seruice and much suit did lay
 Continuall siege vnto her gentle hart,
 Which being whylome launcht with louely dart,
 More eath was new impressiō to receiue,
 How euer she her paynd with womaniſh art
 To hide her wound, that none might it perceiue:
 Vaine is the art that seekes it selfe for to deceiue.

So well he woo'd her, and so well he wrought her,
 With faire entreatie and sweet blandishment,
 That at the length vnto a bay he brought her,
 So as she to his speeches was content
 To lend an eare, and softly to relent.
 At last through many vowes which forth he pour'd,
 And many othes, she yeilded her consent
 To be his loue, and take him for her Lord,
 Till they with mariage meet might finish that accord.

Tho when they had long time there taken rest,
 Sir Artegall, who all this while was bound
 Vpon an hard aduventure yet in quest,
 Fit time for him thence to depart it found,
 To follow that, which he did long propound;
 And vnto her his congee came to take.
 But her therewith full sore displeas'd he found,
 And loth to leaue her late betrothed make,
 Her dearest loue full loth so shortly to forsake.

Yet he with strong perswasions her asswaged,
 And wonne her will to suffer him depart;
 For which his faith with her he fast engaged,
 And thousand voves from bottome of his hart,
 That all so soone as he by wit or art
 Could that atchieue, whereto he did aspire,
 He vnto her would speedily reuert:
 No longer space thereto he did desire,
 But till the horned moone three courses did expire.

With which she for the present was appeas'd,
 And yeelded leaue, how euer malcontent
 She inly were, and in her mind displeas'd.
 So early in the morrow next he went
 Forth on his way, to which he was ybent.
 Ne wight him to attend, or way to guide,
 As whylome was the custome ancient
 Mongst Knights, when on aduentures they did ride,
 Saue that she algates him a while accompanide.

And by the way she sundry purpose found
 Of this or that, the time for to delay,
 And of the perils whereto he was bound,
 The feare whereof seem'd much her to affray:

But all she did was but to weare out day.
Full oftentimes she leaue of him did take;
And est againe deuiz'd some what to say,
Which she forgot, whereby excuse to make:
So loth she was his companie for to forsake.

At last when all her speeches she had spent,
And new occasion fayld her more to find,
She left him to his fortunes gouernment,
And backe returned with right heauie mind.
To Scudamour, who she had left behind,
With whom she went to seeke faire Amoret,
Her second care, though in another kind;
For vertues onely sake, which doth beget
True loue and faithfull friendship, she by her did set.

Backe to that desert Forrest they retyred,
Where sorie Britomart had lost her late;
There they her sought, and eury where inquired;
Where they might tydings get of her estate;
Yet found they none. But by what haplesse fate,
Or hard misfortune she was thence conuayd,
And stolne away from her beloued mate,
Were long to tell; therefore I here will stay
Vntill another tyde, that I it finish may.

Cant. VII.

*Amoret rapt by greedie lust
 Belphebe saues from dread,
 The Squire her loues, and being blam'd his dayes in dole doth lead.*

Great God of loue, that with thy cruell dart
 Doest conquer greatest conquerors on ground,
 And setst thy kingdome in the captiue harts
 Of Kings and Keasars, to thy seruice bound,
 What glorie, or what guerdon hast thou found
 In feeble Ladies tyranning so sore;
 And adding anguish to the bitter wound,
 With which their liues thou lancedst long afore,
 By heaping stormes of trouble on them daily more?

So whylome didst thou to faire Florimell;
 And so and so to noble Britomart:
 So doest thou now to her, of whom I tell,
 The louely Amoret, whose gentle hart
 Thou martyrest with sorow and with smart,
 In saluage forrests, and in deserts wide,
 With Beares and Tygers taking heauie part,
 Withouten comfort, and withouten guide,
 That pittie is to heare the perils, which she tride.

So soone as she with that braue Britonesse
 Had left that Turneyment for beauties prise,
 They trauel'd long, that now for wearinesse,
 Both of the way, and warlike exercise,

Both through a forest ryding did deuise
 T'alight, and rest their wearie limbs awhile.
 There heauie sleepe the eye-lids did surprife
 Of Britomart after long tedious toyle,
 That did her passed paines in quiet rest affoyle.

The whiles faire Amoret, of nought affeard,
 Walkt through the wood, for pleasure, or for need;
 When suddenly behind her backe she heard
 One rushing forth out of the thickest weed,
 That ere she backe could turne to taken heed,
 Had vnawares her snatched vp from ground.
 Feebly she shriekt, but so feebly indeed,
 That Britomart heard not the shrilling sound,
 There where through weary trauel she lay sleeping sound.

It was to weet a wilde and saluage man,
 Yet was no man, but onely like in shape,
 And eke in stature higher by a span,
 All ouergrowne with haire, that could awhape
 An hardy hart, and his wide mouth did gape
 With huge great teeth, like to a tusked Bore:
 For he liu'd all on rauin and on rape
 Of men and beasts; and fed on fleshly gore,
 The signe whereof yet stain'd his bloody lips afore.

His neather lip was not like man nor beast,
 But like a wide deepe poke, downe hanging low,
 In which he wont the relickes of his feast,
 And cruell spoyle, which he had spard, to stow:
 And ouer it his huge great nose did grow,
 Full dreadfully empurpled all with blood;
 And downe both sides two wide long eares did glow,
 And raught downe to his waste, when vp he stood,
 More great then th'eares of Elephants by Indus flood.

His wast was with a wreath of yuie greene
 Engirt about, ne other garment wore:
 For all his haire was like a garment seene;
 And in his hand a tall young oake he bore,
 Whose knottie snags were sharpned all afore,
 And beath'd in fire for steele to be in sted.
 But whence he was, or of what wombe ybore,
 Of beasts, or of the earth, I haue not red:
 But certes was with milke of Wolues and Tygres fed.

This vgly creature in his armes her snatcht,
 And through the forrest bore her quite away,
 With briers and bushes all to rent and scratcht;
 Ne care he had, ne pittie of the pray,
 Which many a knight had fought so many a day.
 He stayed not, but in his armes her bearing
 Ran, till he came to th'end of all his way,
 Vnto his caue farre from all peoples hearing,
 And there he threw her in, nought feeling, ne nought (fearing.

For she deare Ladie all the way was dead,
 Whilest he in armes her bore; but when she felt
 Her selfe downe soust, she waked out of dread
 Streight into grieffe, that her deare hart nigh swelt,
 And est gan into tender teares to melt.
 Then when she lookt about, and nothing found
 But darknesse and dread horrour, where she dwelt,
 She almost fell againe into a swound,
 Ne wist whether aboue she were, or vnder ground.

With that she heard some one close by her side
 Sighing and sobbing sore, as if the paine
 Her tender hart in peeces would diuide:
 Which she long listning, softly askt againe
 What

What mister wight it was that so did plaine?
 To whom thus aunswer'd was: Ah wretched wight
 That seekes to know anothers grieffe in vaine,
 Vnweeting of thine owne like haplesse plight:
 Selfe to forget to mind another, is ouersight.

Aye me (said she) where am I, or with whom?
 Emong the liuing, or emong the dead?
 What shall of me vnhappy maid become?
 Shall death be th'end, or ought else worse, aread.
 Vnhappy mayd (then answerd she) whose dread
 Vntride, is lesse then when thou shalt it try:
 Death is to him, that wretched life doth lead,
 Both grace and gaine; but he in hell doth lie,
 That liues a loathed life, and wishing cannot die.

This dismall day hath thee a caytiue made,
 And vassall to the vilest wretch aliue,
 Whose cursed vsage and vngodly trade
 The heauens abhorre, and into darkenesse driue.
 For on the spoile of women he doth liue,
 Whose bodies chast, when euer in his powre
 He may them catch, vnable to gainestriue,
 He with his shamefull lust doth first deflowre,
 And afterwards themselues doth cruelly deuoure.

Now twenty daies, by which the sonnes of men
 Diuide their works, haue past through heuen sheene,
 Since I was brought into this dolefull den;
 During which space these sory eies haue seen
 Seauen women by him slaine, and eaten clene.
 And now no more for him but I alone,
 And this old woman here remaining beene;
 Till thou can'st hither to augment our mone,
 And of vs three to morrow he will sure eate one.

Ah dreadfull tidings which thou doest declare,
 (Quoth she) of all that euer hath bene knowen :
 Full many great calamities and rare
 This feeble brest endured hath, but none
 Equall to this, where euer I haue gone.
 But what are you, whom like vn lucky lot
 Hath linckt with me in the same chaine attone ?
 To tell (quoth she) that which ye see, needs not;
 A wofull wretched maid, of God and man forgot.

But what I was, it irkes me to reherse ;
 Daughter vnto a Lord of high degree ;
 That ioyd in happy peace, till fates peruerse
 With guilefull loue did secretly agree,
 To ouerthrow my state and dignitie.
 It was my lot to loue a gentle swaine,
 Yet was he but a Squire of low degree ;
 Yet was he meet, vnlesse mine eye did faine,
 By any Ladies side for Leman to haue laine.

But for his meannesse and disparagement,
 My Sire, who me too dearely well did loue,
 Vnto my choise by no meanes would assent,
 But often did my folly fowle reprove.
 Yet nothing could my fixed mind remoue,
 But whether willed or nilled friend or foe,
 I me resolu'd the vtmost end to proue,
 And rather then my loue abandon so,
 Both fire, and friends, and all for euer to forgo.

Thenceforth I sought by secret meanes to worke
 Time to my will, and from his wrathfull sight
 To hide th'intent, which in my heart did lurke,
 Till I thereto had all things ready dight.

So on a day vnweeting vnto wight,
 I with that Squire agreede away to flit,
 And in a priuy place, betwixt vs hight,
 Within a groue appointed him to meete;
 To which I boldly came vpon my feeble feete.

But ah vnhappy houre me thither brought:
 For in that place where I him thought to find,
 There was I found, contrary to my thought,
 Of this accursed Carle of hellish kind,
 The shame of men, and plague of womankind,
 Who trussing me, as Eagle doth his pray,
 Me hether brought with him, as swift as wind,
 Where yet vntouched till this present day,
 I rest his wretched thrall, the sad AEmylia.

Ah sad AEmylia (then sayd Amoret,)
 Thy ruefull plight I pittie as mine owne.
 But read to me, by what deuise or wit,
 Hast thou in all this time, from him vnknowne
 Thine honor sau'd, though into thraldome throwne,
 Through helpe (quoth she) of this old woman here
 I haue so done, as she to me hath showne.
 For euer when he burnt in lustfull fire,
 She in my stead supplide his bestiall desire.

Thus of their euils as they did discourse,
 And each did other much bewaile and mone;
 Loe where the villaine selfe; their sorrowes fourse,
 Came to the caue, and rolling thence the stone,
 Which wont to stop the mouth thereof, that none
 Might issue forth, came rudely rushing in,
 And spredding ouer all the flore alone,
 Gan dight him selfe vnto his wonted sinne;
 Which ended, then his bloody banquet should beginne.

Which when as fearefull Amoret perceiued,
 She staid not the vtmost end thereof to try,
 But like a ghastly Gelt, whose wits are reaued,
 Ran forth in hast with hideous outcry,
 For horroure of his shamefull villany.
 But after her full lightly he vprose,
 And her pursu'd as fast as she did flie :
 Full fast she flies, and farre afore him goes,
 Ne feeles the thorns and thickets pricke her tender toes.

Nor hedge, nor ditch, nor hill, nor dale she staies,
 But ouerleapes them all, like Robucke light,
 And through the thickest makes her highest waies;
 And euermore when with regardfull sight
 She looking backe, espies that grieffly wight
 Approching nigh, she gins to mend her pace,
 And makes her feare a spur to hast her flight:
 More swift then Myrrh or Daphne in her race,
 Or any of the Thracian Nimphes in saluage chase.

Long so she fled, and so he follow'd long,
 Ne liuing aide for her on earth appeares,
 But if the heauens helpe to redresse her wrong,
 Moued with pity of her plenteous teares.
 It fortun'd Eelphabe with her peares
 The woody Nimphs, and with that louely boy,
 Was hunting then the Libbards and the Beares,
 In these wild woods, as was her wonted ioy,
 To banish sloth, that oft doth noble mindes annoy.

It so befell, as oft it fals in chace,
 That each of them from other sundred were,
 And that same gentle Squire arriu'd in place,
 Where this same cursed caytiue did appeare,
 Pursuing

Pursuing that faire Lady full of feare,
 And now he her quite ouertaken had;
 And now he her away with him did beare
 Vnder his arme, as seeming wondrous glad,
 That by his grenning laughter mote farre off be rad.

With drery sight the gentle Squire espying,
 Doth hast to crosse him by the nearest way,
 Led with that wofull Ladies piteous crying,
 And him assailes with all the might he may,
 Yet will not he the louely spoile downe lay,
 But with his craggy club in his right hand,
 Defends him selfe, and saues his gotten pray.
 Yet had it bene right hard him to withstand,
 But that he was full light and nimble on the land.

Thereto the villaine vsed craft in fight;
 For euer when the Squire his iauelin shooke,
 He held the Lady forth before him right,
 And with her body, as a buckler, broke
 The puissance of his intended stroke.
 And if it chaunst, (as needs it must in fight)
 Whilest he on him was greedy to be wroke,
 That any little blow on her did light,
 Then would he laugh aloud, and gather great delight.

Which subtill sleight did him encumber much,
 And made him oft, when he would strike, forbear;
 For hardly could he come the carle to touch,
 But that he her must hurt, or hazard neare:
 Yet he his hand so carefully did beare,
 That at the last he did himselfe attaine,
 And therein left the pike head of his speare.
 A streame of coleblacke blood thence gush't amaine,
 That all her silken garments did with blood bestaine.

With that he threw her rudely on the flore,
 And laying both his hands vpon his glaue,
 With dreadfull strokes let driue at him so fore,
 That forst him flie abacke, him selfe to saue:
 Yet he therewith so felly still did raue,
 That scarce the Squire his hand could once vpreare,
 But for aduantage ground vnto him gaue,
 Tracing and trauerling, now here, now there;
 For bootlesse thing it was to think such blowes to beare.

Whilest thus in battell they embusied were,
Belphebe raunging in that Forrest wide,
 The hideous noise of their huge strokes did heare,
 And drew thereto, making her eare her guide.
 Whom when that theefe approching nigh espide,
 With bow in hand, and arrowes ready bent,
 He by his former combate would not bide,
 But fled away with ghastly dreriment,
 Well knowing her to be his deaths sole instrument.

Whom seeing flie, she speedily pursued
 With winged feete, as nimble as the winde,
 And euer in her bow she ready shewed,
 The arrow, to his deadly marke desynde.
 As when Latonaes daughter cruell kynde,
 In vengeance of her mothers great disgrace,
 With fell despight her cruell arrowes tynde
 Gainst wofull Niobes vnhappy race,
 That all the gods did mone her miserable case.

So well she sped her and so far she ventred,
 That ere vnto his hellish den he raught,
 Euen as he ready was there to haue entred,
 She sent an arrow forth with mighty draught,

That

That in the very dore him ouercaught,
 And in his nape arriuing, through it thrild
 His greedy throte, therewith in two distraught,
 That all his vitall spirites thereby spild,
 And all his hairy brest with gory bloud was filld.

Whom when on ground she groueling saw to rowle,
 She ran in hast his life to haue bereft:
 But ere she could him reach, the sinfull fowle
 Hauing his carrion corse quite sencelesse left,
 Was fled to hell, surcharg'd with spoile and theft.
 Yet ouer him she there long gazing stood,
 And oft admir'd his monstrous shape, and oft
 His mighty limbs, whilest all with filthy bloud
 The place there ouerflowne, seemd like a sodaine flood.

Thenceforth she past into his dreadfull den,
 Where nought but darke some drerinesse she found,
 Ne creature saw, but hearkned now and then
 Some litle whispering, and soft groning sound.
 With that she askt, what ghosts there vnder ground
 Lay hid in horrour of eternall night?
 And bad them, if so be they were not bound,
 To come and shew themselues before the light,
 Now freed from feare and danger of that dismall wight.

Then forth the said AEmylia issewed,
 Yet trembling euery ioynt through former feare;
 And after her the Hag, there with her mewed,
 A foule and lothsome creature did appeare;
 A leman fit for such a louer deare.
 That mou'd Belphebe her no lesse to hate,
 Then for to rue the others heauy cheare;
 Of whom she gan enquire of her estate.
 Who all to her at large, as hapned, did relate.

Thence she them brought toward the place, where late
 She left the gentle Squire with Amoret:
 There she him found by that new louely mate,
 Who lay the whiles in swoune, full sadly set,
 From her faire eyes wiping the deawy wet,
 Which softly stild, and kissing them atweene,
 And handling soft the hurts, which she did get.
 For of that Carle she sorely bruz'd had beene,
 Als of his owne rash hand one wound was to be seene.

Which when she saw, with sodaine glauncing eye,
 Her noble heart with sight thereof was filld
 With deepe disdain, and great indignity,
 That in her wrath she thought them both haue thrild,
 With that selfe arrow, which the Carle had kild:
 Yet held her wrathfull hand from vengeance sore,
 But drawing nigh, ere he her well beheld;
 Is this the faith she said, and said no more,
 But turnd her face, and fled away for euer more.

He seeing her depart, arose vp light,
 Right sore agriued at her sharpe reproofe,
 And follow'd fast: but when he came in sight,
 He durst not nigh approach, but kept aloofe,
 For dread of her displeasures vtmost proofe.
 And euer more, when he did grace entreat,
 And framed speeches fit for his behoofe,
 Her mortall arrowes, she at him did threat,
 And forst him backe with fowle dishonor to retreat.

At last when long he follow'd had in vaine,
 Yet found no ease of grieffe, nor hope of grace,
 Vnto those woods he turned backe againe,
 Full of sad anguish, and in heauy case:

And

And finding there fit solitary place
For wofull wight, chose out a gloomy glade,
Where hardly eye mote see bright heauens face,
For mossy trees, which couered all with shade
And sad melancholy, there he his cabin made.

His wonted warlike weapons all he broke,
And threw away, with vow to vse no more,
Ne thenceforth euer strike in battell stroke,
Ne euer word to speake to woman more;
But in that wildernesse, of men forlore,
And of the wicked world forgotten quight,
His hard mishap in dolor to deplore,
And wast his wretched daies in wofull plight;
So on him selfe to wreake his follies owne despight.

And eke his garment, to be thereto meet,
He wilfully did cut and shape anew;
And his faire lockes, that wont with ointment sweet
To be embaulm'd, and sweat out dainty dew,
He let to grow and grieuely to concrew,
Vncomb'd, vncurl'd, and carelesly vnshed;
That in short time his face they ouergrew,
And ouer all his shoulders did dispred,
That who he whilome was, vneath was to be red.

There he continued in this carefull plight,
Wretchedly wearing out his youthly yeares,
Through wilfull penury consumed quight,
That like a pined ghost he soone appears.
For other food then that wilde Forrest beares,
Ne other drinke there did he euer tast,
Then running water, tempred with his teares,
The more his weakened body so to wast:
That out of all mens knowledge he was worne at last.

For on a day, by fortune as it fell,

His owne deare Lord Prince Arthur came that way,
Seeking aduentures, where he mote heare tell;

And as he through the wandring wood did stray,

Hauing espide this Cabin far away,

He to it drew, to weet who there did wonne;

Weening therein some holy Hermit lay,

That did resort of sinfull people shonne;

Or else some woodman shrowded there from scorching (sunne.

Arriuing there, he found this wretched man,

Spending his daies in dolour and despaire,

And through long fasting woxen pale and wan,

All ouergrownen with rude and rugged haire;

That albeit his owne deare Squire he were,

Yet he him knew not, ne auiz'd at all,

But like strange wight, whom he had seene no where,

Saluting him, gan into speach to fall,

And pittie much his plight, that liu'd like outcast thrall.

But to his speach he aunswered no whit,

But stood still mute, as if he had beene dim,

Ne signe of sence did shew, ne common wit,

As one with grieffe and anguilhe ouercum,

And vnto euery thing did aunswere mum:

And euer when the Prince vnto him spake,

He louted lowly, as did him becum,

And humble homage did vnto him make,

Midst sorrow shewing ioyous semblance for his sake.

At which his vncouth guise and vsage quaint

The Prince did wonder much, yet could not ghesse

The cause of that his sorrowfull constraint;

Yet weend by secret signes of manlinesse,

Which

Which close appeard in that rude brutishnesse,
 That he whilome some gentle swaine had beene,
 Traind vp in feats of armes and knightlinesse;
 Which he obseru'd, by that he him had seene
 To weld his naked sword, and try the edges keene.

And eke by that he saw on euery tree,
 How he the name of one engrauen had,
 Which likly was his liefest loue to be,
 For whom he now so forely was bestad;
 Which was by him BELPHEBE rightly rad.
 Yet who was that Belphebe, he ne wist;
 Yet saw he often how he wexed glad,
 When he it heard, and how the ground he kist,
 Wherein it written was, and how himselfe he blist:

Tho when he long had marked his demeanor,
 And saw that all he said and did, was vaine,
 Ne ought mote make him change his wonted tenor,
 Ne ought mote ease or mitigate his paine,
 He left him there in languor to remaine,
 Till time for him should remedy prouide,
 And him restore to former grace againe.
 Which for it is too long here to abide,
 I will deferre the end vntill another tide.

Cant. VIII.

*The gentle Squire recouers grace,
 Slaunder her guests doth staine:
 Corflambo chāseih Placidus,
 And is by Arthure slaine.*

Well said the wiseman, now prou'd true by this,
 Which to this gentle Squire did happen late,
 That the displeasure of the mighty is
 Then death it selfe more dread and desperate.
 For naught the same may calme ne mitigate,
 Till time the tempest doe thereof delay
 With sufferance soft, which rigour can abate,
 And haue the sterne remembrance wypt away
 Of bitter thoughts, which deepe therein infix'd lay.

Like as it fell to this vnhappy boy,
 Whose tender heart the faire Belphebe had,
 With one sterne looke so daunted, that no ioy
 In all his life, which afterwards he had,
 He euer tasted, but with penaunce sad
 And pensiuē sorrow pind and wore away,
 Ne euer laught, ne once shew'd countenance glad;
 But alwaies wept and wailed night and day,
 As blasted bloosme through heat doth languish & decay

Till on a day, as in his wonted wife
 His doole he made, there chaunst a turtle Doue
 To come, where he his dolors did deuise,
 That likewise late had lost her dearest loue,

Which

Which losse her made like passion also proue,
 Who seeing his sad plight, her tender heart
 With deare compassion deeply did emmoue,
 That she gan mone his vnderferued smart,
 And with her dolefull accent beare with him a part.

Shee sitting by him as on ground he lay,
 Her mournefull notes full piteously did frame,
 And thereof made a lamentable lay,
 So sensibly compyl'd, that in the same
 Him seemed oft he heard his owne right name.
 With that he forth would poure so plenteous teares,
 And beat his breast vnworthy of such blame,
 And knocke his head, and rend his rugged heares,
 That could haue perst the hearts of Tigres & of Beares.

Thus long this gentle bird to him did vse,
 Withouten dread of perill to repaire
 Vnto his wonne, and with her mournefull muse
 Him to recomfort in his greatest care,
 That much did ease his mourning and misfare:
 And euery day for guerdon of her song,
 He part of his small feast to her would thare;
 That at the last of all his woe and wrong
 Companion she became, and so continued long.

Vpon a day as she him fate beside,
 By chance he certaine miniments forth drew,
 Which yet with him as relickes did abide
 Of all the bounty, which Belphebe threw
 On him, whilst goodly grace she did him shew:
 Amongst the rest a ieuell rich he found,
 That was a Ruby of right perfect hew,
 Shap'd like a heart, yet bleeding of the wound,
 And with a litle golden chaine about it bound.

The same he tooke, and with a riband new,
 In which his Ladies colours were, did bind
 About the turtles necke, that with the vew
 Did greatly solace his engriued mind.
 All vnawares the bird, when she did find
 Her selfe so deckt, hernimble wings displaid,
 And flew away, as lightly as the wind:
 Which sodaine accident him much dismaid,
 And looking after long, did marke which way she straid.

But when as long he looked had in vaine,
 Yet saw her forward still to make her flight,
 His weary eie returnd to him againe,
 Full of discomfort and disquiet plight,
 That both his iuell he had lost so light,
 And eke his deare companion of his care.
 But that sweet bird departing, flew forth right
 Through the wide region of the wastfull aire,
 Vntill she came where wonned his Belphebe faire.

There found she her (as then it did betide)
 Sitting in couert shade of arbors sweet,
 After late weary toile, which she had tride
 In saluage chase, to rest as seem'd her meet.
 There she alighting, fell before her feet,
 And gan to her her mournfull plaint to make,
 As was her wont, thinking to let her weat
 The great tormenting grieffe, that for her sake
 Her gentle Squire through her displeasure did pertake.

She her beholding with attentiuie eye,
 At length did marke about her purple brest
 That precious iuell, which she formerly
 Had knowne right well with colourd ribbands drest:
 There-

Therewith she rose in hast, and her adrest
 With ready hand it to haue rest away.
 But the swift bird obeyd not her behest,
 But swaru'd aside, and there againe did stay;
 She follow'd her, and thought againe it to assay.

And euer when she nigh approcht, the Doue
 Would flit a litle forward, and then stay,
 Till she drew neare, and then againe remoue;
 So tempting her still to pursue the pray,
 And still from her escaping soft away:
 Till that at length into that forrest wide,
 She drew her far, and led with slow delay.
 In th'end she her vnto that place did guide,
 Whereas that wofull man in languor did abide.

Eftsoones she flew vnto his fearelesse hand,
 And there a piteous ditty new deuiz'd,
 As if she would haue made him vnderstand,
 His sorrowes cause to be of her despis'd.
 Whom when she saw in wretched weedes disguiz'd,
 With heary glib deform'd, and meiger face,
 Like ghost late risen from his graue agryz'd,
 She knew him not, but pittied much his case,
 And wisht it were in her to doe him any grace.

He her beholding, at her feet downe fell,
 And kist the ground on which her sole did tread,
 And washt the same with water, which did well
 From his moist eies, and like two streames proceed,
 Yet spake no word, whereby she might aread
 What mister wight he was, or what he ment,
 But as one daunted with her presence dread,
 Onely few ruefull lookes vnto her sent,
 As messengers of his true meaning and intent.

Yet nathemore his meaning she ared,
 But wondred much at his so selcouth case,
 And by his persons secreet seemlyhed
 Well weend, that he had beene some man of place,
 Before misfortune did his hew deface:
 That being mou'd with ruth she thus bespake.
 Ah wofull man, what heauens hard disgrace,
 Or wrath of cruell wight on thee ywrake?
 Or selfe disliked life doth thee thus wretched make?

If heauen, then none may it redresse or blame,
 Sith to his powre we all are subiect borne:
 If wrathfull wight, then fowle rebuke and shame
 Be theirs, that haue so cruell thee forlorne;
 But if through inward grieffe or wilfull scorne
 Of life it be, then better doe aduise.
 For he whose daies in wilfull woe are worne,
 The grace of his Creator doth despise,
 That will not vse his gifts for thanklesse nigardise.

When so he heard her say, eftsoones he brake
 His sodaine silence, which he long had pent,
 And sighing inly deepe, her thus bespake;
 Then haue they all them selues against me bent:
 For heauen, first author' of my languishment,
 Enuying my too great felicity,
 Did closely with a cruell one consent,
 To cloud my daies in dolefull misery,
 And make me loath this life, still longing for to die.

Ne any but your selfe, o dearest dred,
 Hath done this wrong, to wreake on worthlesse wight
 Your high displeasure, through misdeeming bred:
 That when your pleasure is to deeme aright,

Ye may redresse, and me restore to light.
 Which sory words her mightie hart did mate
 With mild regard, to see his ruefull plight,
 That her inburning wrath she gan abate,
 And him receiu'd againe to former fauours state.

In which he long time afterwards did lead
 An happie life with grace and good accord,
 Fearlesse of fortunes chaunge or enuies dread,
 And eke all mindlesse of his owne deare Lord
 The noble Prince, who neuer heard one word
 Of tydings, what did vnto him betide,
 Or what good fortune did to him afford,
 But through the endlesse world did wander wide,
 Him seeking euermore, yet no where him descride.

Till on a day as through that wood he rode,
 He chaunst to come where those two Ladies late,
Amylia and Amoret abode,
 Both in full sad and sorrowfull estate;
 The one right feeble through the euill rate
 Of food, which in her duresse she had found:
 The other almost dead and desperate (wound,
 Through her late hurts, and through that haplesse
 With which the Squire in her defence her sore astound.

Whom when the Prince beheld, he gan to rew
 The euill case in which those Ladies lay;
 But most was moued at the piteous vew
 Of Amoret, so neare vnto decay,
 That her great daunger did him much dismay.
 Eftsoones that pretious liquour forth he drew,
 Which he in store about him kept alway,
 And with few drops thereof did softly dew
 Her wounds, that vnto strength restor'd her soone anew.

Tho when they both recouered were right well,
 He gan of them inquire, what euill guide
 Them thether brought, and how their harmes befell.
 To whom they told all, that did them betide,
 And how from thraldome vile they were vntide
 Of that same wicked Carle, by Virgins hond;
 Whose bloudie corse they shew'd him there beside,
 And eke his caue, in which they both were bond:
 At which he wondred much, when all those signes he fond.

And euermore he greatly did desire
 To know, what Virgin did them thence vnbind;
 And oft of them did earnestly inquire,
 Where was her won, and how he mote her find.
 But when as nought according to his mind
 He could outlearne, he them from ground did reare:
 No seruice lothsome to a gentle kind;
 And on his warlike beast them both did beare,
 Himselfe by them on foot, to succour them from feare.

So when that forrest they had passed well,
 A litle cotage farre away they spide,
 To which they drew, ere night vpon them fell;
 And entring in, found none therein abide,
 But one old woman sitting there beside,
 Vpon the ground in ragged rude attyre,
 With filthy lockes about her scattered wide,
 Gnawing her nayles for felnesse and for yre,
 And there out sucking venime to her parts entyre.

A foule and loathly creature sure in sight,
 And in conditions to be loath'd no lesse:
 For she was stufte with rancour and despight
 Vp to the throat, that oft with bitternesse

It forth would breake, and gush in great excesse,
 Pouring out streames of poyson and of gall,
 Gainst all, that truth or vertue doe professe,
 Whom she with leasings lewdly did miscall,
 And wickedly backbite: Her name men Sclaunder call.

Her nature is all goodnesse to abuse,
 And causelesse crimes continually to frame,
 With which she guiltlesse persons may accuse,
 And steale away the crowne of their good name;
 Ne euer Knight so bold, ne euer Dame
 So chaste and loyall liu'd, but she would striue
 With forged cause them falsely to defame;
 Ne euer thing so well was doen aliue,
 But she with blame would blot, & of due praise depriue.

Her words were not, as common words are ment,
 T'expresse the meaning of the inward mind,
 But noysome breath, and poynsous spirit sent
 From inward parts, with cancred malice lind,
 And breathed forth with blast of bitter wind; (hart,
 Which passing through the eares, would pierce the
 And wound the soule it selfe with grieue vnkind:
 For like the stings of Aspes, that kill with smart,
 Her spightfull words did pricke, & wound the inner part.

Such was that Hag, vnmeet to host such guests,
 Whom greatest Princes court would welcome sayne,
 But neede, that answers not to all requests,
 Bad them not looke for better entertayne;
 And eke that age despysed nicenesse vaine,
 Enur'd to hardnesse and to homely fare,
 Which them to warlike discipline did trayne,
 And manly limbs endur'd with litle care
 Against all hard mishaps and fortunelesse misfare.

Then all that euening welcommed with cold,
 And chearelesse hunger, they together spent;
 Yet found no fault, but that the Hag did scold
 And rayle at them with grudgefull discontent,
 For lodging there without her owne consent:
 Yet they endured all with patience milde,
 And vnto rest themselues all onely lent,
 Regardlesse of that queane so base and vilde,
 To be vniustly blamd, and bitterly reuilde.

Here well I weene, when as these rimes be red
 With misregard, that some rash witted wight,
 Whose looser thought will lightly be missed,
 These gentle Ladies will misdeeme too light,
 For thus conuersing with this noble Knight;
 Sith now of dayes such temperance is rare
 And hard to finde, that heat of youthfull spright
 For ought will from his greedie pleasure spare,
 More hard for hungry steed t'abstaine from pleasant lare.

But antique age yet in the infancie
 Of time, did liue then like an innocent,
 In simple truth and blamelesse chastitie,
 Ne them of guile had made experiment,
 But voide of vile and treacherous intent,
 Held vertue for it selfe in soueraine awe:
 Then loyall loue had royall regiment,
 And each vnto his lust did make a lawe,
 From all forbidden things his liking to withdraw.

The Lyon there did with the Lambe consort,
 And eke the Done sate by the Faulcons side,
 Ne each of other feared fraud or tort,
 But did in safe securitie abide,

With

Withouten perill of the stronger pride:
 But when the world woxe old, it woxe warre old
 (Whereof it hight) and hauing shortly tride
 The traines of wit, in wickednesse woxe bold,
 And dared of all finnes the secrets to vnfold.

Then beautie, which was made to represent
 The great Creatours owne resemblance bright,
 Vnto abuse of lawlesse lust was lent,
 And made the baite of bestiall delight:
 Then faire grew foule, and foule grew faire in sight,
 And that which wont to vanquish God and man,
 Was made the vassall of the victors might;
 Then did her glorious flowre wex dead and wan,
 Despisd and troden downe of all that ouerran.

And now it is so vtterly decayd,
 That any bud thereof doth scarce remaine,
 But if few plants preseru'd through heauenly ayd,
 In Princes Court doe hap to sprout againe,
 Dew'd with her drops of bountie Soueraine,
 Which from that goodly glorious flowre proceed,
 Sprung of the auncient stocke of Princes straine,
 Now th'onely remnant of that royall breed,
 Whose noble kind at first was sure of heauenly seed.

Tho soone as day discovered heauens face
 To sinfull men with darknes ouerdight,
 This gentle crew gan from their eye-lids chace
 The drowzie humour of the dampish night,
 And did themselues vnto their iourney dight.
 So forth they yode, and forward softly paced,
 That them to view had bene an vncouth sight;
 How all the way the Prince on footpace traced,
 The Ladies both on horse, together fast embraced.

Soone as they thence departed were afore,
 That shamefull Hag, the slaunder of her sexe,
 Them follow'd fast, and them reuiled sore,
 Him calling theefe, them whores; that much did vexe
 His noble hart; thereto she did annexe
 False crimes and facts, such as they neuer ment,
 That those two Ladies much asham'd did wexe:
 The more did she pursue her lewd intent,
 And rayl'd and rag'd, till she had all her poyson spent.

At last when they were passed out of sight,
 Yet she did not her spightfull speach forbear,
 But after them did barke, and still backbite,
 Though there were none her hatefull words to heare:
 Like as a curre doth felly bite and teare
 The stone, which passed straunger at him threw;
 So she them seeing past the reach of eare,
 Against the stones and trees did rayle anew,
 Till she had duld the sting, which in her tongs end grew.

They passing forth kept on their readie way,
 With easie steps so soft as foot could stryde,
 Both for great feebleffe, which did oft assay
 Faire Amoret; that scarcely she could ryde,
 And eke through heauie armes, which sore annoyd
 The Prince on foot, not wonted so to fare;
 Whose steadie hand was faine his steede to guyde,
 And all the way from trotting hard to spare,
 So was his toyle the more, the more that was his care.

At length they spide, where towards them with speed
 A Squire came gallopping, as he would flie
 Bearing a litle Dwarfie before his steed,
 That all the way full loud for aide did crie;
 That

That seem'd his shrikes would rend the brafsen skie:
 Whom after did a mightie man pursew,
 Ryding vpon a Dromedare on hie,
 Of stature huge, and horrible of hew,
 That would haue maz'd a man his dreadfull face to vew.

For from his fearefull eyes two fierie beames,
 More sharpe then points of needles did proceede,
 Shooting forth farre away two flaming streames,
 Full of sad powre, that poysonous bale did breede
 To all, that on him lookt without good heed,
 And secretly his enemies did slay:
 Like as the Basiliske of serpents seede,
 From powrefull eyes close venom doth conuay
 Into the lookers hart, and killeth farre away.

He all the way did rage at that same Squire,
 And after him full many threatnings threw,
 With curses vaine in his auengefull ire:
 But none of them (so fast away he flew)
 Him ouertooke, before he came in vew.
 Where when he saw the Prince in armour bright,
 He cald to him aloud, his case to rew,
 And rescue him through succour of his might,
 From that his cruell foe, that him pursewd in sight.

Estfoones the Prince tooke downe those Ladies twaine
 From loftie steede, and mounting in their stead
 Came to that Squire, yet trembling euery vaine:
 Of whom he gan enquire his cause of dread;
 Who as he gan the same to him aread,
 Loe hard behind his backe his foe was prest,
 With dreadfull weapon aymed at his head,
 That vnto death had doen him vnredrest,
 Had not the noble Prince his readie stroke represt.

Who thrusting boldly twixt him and the blow,
 The burden of the deadly brunt did beare
 Vpon his shield, which lightly he did throw
 Ouer his head, before the harme came neare.
 Nathlesse it fell with so despiteous dreare
 And heauie sway, that hard vnto his crowne
 The shield it droue, and did the couering reare,
 Therewith both Squire and dwarfe did tomble downe
 Vnto the earth, and lay long while in senselesse swowne.

Whereat the Prince full wrath, his strong right hand
 In full auengement heaued vp on hie,
 And stroke the Pagan with his steely brand
 So fore, that to his saddle bow thereby
 He bowed low, and so a while did lie:
 And sure had not his massie yron mace
 Betwixt him and his hurt bene happily,
 It would haue cleft him to the girding place,
 Yet as it was, it did astonish him long space.

But when he to himselfe returnd againe,
 All full of rage he gan to curse and sweare,
 And vow by Mahoune that he should be slaine.
 With that his murdrous mace he vp did reare,
 That seemed nought the soufe thereof could beare,
 And therewith smote at him with all his might.
 But ere that it to him approched neare,
 The royall child with readie quicke foresight,
 Did shun the prooffe thereof and it auoyded light.

But ere his hand he could recure againe,
 To ward his bodie from the balefull stound,
 He smote at him with all his might and maine,
 So furiously, that ere he wist, he found

His head before him tombling on the ground.
The whiles his babling tongue did yet blaspheme
And curse his God, that did him so confound;
The whiles his life ran foorth in bloudie streame,
His soule descended downe into the Stygian reame.

Which when that Squire beheld, he woxe full glad
To see his foe breath out his spright in vaine:
But that same dwarfe right sorie seem'd and sad,
And howld aloud to see his Lord there slaine,
And rent his haire and scratcht his face for paine.
Then gan the Prince at leasure to inquire
Of all the accident, there hapned plaine,
And what he was, whose eyes did flame with fire;
All which was thus to him declared by that Squire.

This mightie man (quoth he) whom you haue slaine,
Of an huge Geaunteffe whylome was bred;
And by his strength rule to himselfe did gaine
Of many Nations into thraldome led,
And mightie kingdomes of his force adred;
Whom yet he conquer'd not by bloudie fight,
Ne hostes of men with banners brode dispred,
But by the powre of his infectious fight,
With which he killed all, that came within his might.

Ne was he euer vanquished afore,
But euer vanquisht all, with whom he fought;
Ne was there man so strong, but he downebore,
Ne woman yet so faire, but he her brought Vnto his bay, and captiued her thought.
For most of strength and beautie his desire
Was spoyle to make, and wast them vnto nought,
By casting secret flakes of lustfull fire
From his false eyes, into their harts and parts entire.

Therefore Corflambo was he cald aright,
 Though namelesse there his bodie now doth lie,
 Yet hath he left one daughter that is hight
 The faire Pæana; who seemes outwardly
 So faire, as euer yet saw liuing eie:
 And were her vertue like her beautie bright,
 She were as faire as any vnder skie.
 But ah she giuen is to vaine delight,
 And eke too loose of life, and eke of loue too light.

So as it fell there was a gentle Squire,
 That lou'd a Ladie of high parentage,
 But for his meane degree might not aspire
 To match so high, her friends with counsell sage,
 Dissuaded her from such a disparage.
 But she, whose hart to loue was wholly lent,
 Out of his hands could not redeeme her gage,
 But firmly following her first intent,
 Resolu'd with him to wend, gainst all her friends consent.

So twixt themselues they pointed time and place,
 To which when he according did repaire,
 An hard mishap and disauentrous case
 Him chaunst; in stead of his Æmylia faire
 This Gyants sonne, that lies there on the laire
 An headlesse heape, him vnawares there caught,
 And all dismayd through mercilesse despaire,
 Him wretched thrall vnto his dongeon brought,
 Where he remaines, of all vnsuccour'd and vnsought.

This Gyants daughter came vpon a day
 Vnto the prison in her ioyous glee,
 To view the thrals, which there in bondage lay:
 Amongst the rest she chaunced there to see

This louely swaine the Squire of low degree;
To whom she did her liking lightly cast,
And wooed him her paramour to bee:
From day to day she woo'd and prayd him fast,
And for his loue him promist libertie at last.

He though affide vnto a former loue,
To whom his faith he firmly ment to hold,
Yet seeing not how thence he mote remoue,
But by that meanes, which fortune did vnfold,
Her graunted loue, but with affection cold
To win her grace his libertie to get.
Yet she him still detaines in captiue hold,
Fearing least if she should him freely set,
He would her shortly leaue, and former loue forget.

Yet so much fauour she to him hath hight,
Aboue the rest, that he sometimes may space
And walke about her gardens of delight,
Hauing a keeper still with him in place,
Which keeper is this Dwarfe, her dearling base,
To whom the keyes of euery prison dore
By her committed be, of speciall grace,
And at his will may whom he list restore,
And whom he list reserue, to be afflicted more.

Whereof when tydings came vnto mine eare,
Full inly forie for the feruent zeale,
Which I to him as to my soule did beare;
I thether went where I did long conceale
My selfe, till that the Dwarfe did me reueale,
And told his Dame, her Squire of low degree
Did secretly out of her prison steale;
For me he did mistake that Squire to bee;
For neuer two so like did liuing creature see.

Then was I taken and before her brought,
 Who through the likenesse of my outward hew,
 Being likewise beguiled in her thought,
 Can blame me much for being so vntrew,
 To seeke by flight her fellowship r'eschew,
 That lou'd me deare, as dearest thing aliue.
 Thence she commaunded me to prison new;
 Whereof I glad did not gaine say nor striue,
 But suffred that same Dwarfe me to her dongeon driue.

There did I finde mine onely faithfull frend
 In heauy plight and sad perplexitie;
 Whereof I forie, yet my selfe did bend,
 Him to recomfort with my companie.
 But him the more agreeu'd I found thereby:
 For all his ioy, he said, in that distresse
 Was mine and his Æmylias libertie.
Æmylia well he lou'd, as I mote ghesse;
 Yet greater loue to me then her he did professe.

But I with better reason him auiz'd,
 And shew'd him how through error | and mis-thought
 Of our like persons eath to be disguiz'd,
 Or his exchange, or freedome might be wrought.
 Whereto full loth was he, ne would for ought Consent, that I who stood all fearelesse free,
 Should wilfully be into thraldome brought,
 Till fortune did perforce it so decree.
 Yet ouerrul'd at last, he did to me agree.

The morrow next about the wonted howre,
 The Dwarfe cald at the doore of Amyas,
 To come forthwith vnto his Ladies bowre.
 In steed of whom forth came I Placidus,

And

And vndiscerned, forth with him did pas.
 There with great ioyance and with gladfome glee,
 Of faire Pavana I receiued was,
 And oft imbraſt, as if that I were hee,
 And with kind words accoyd, vowing great loue to mee.

Which I, that was not bent to former loue,
 As was my friend, that had her long refusd,
 Did well accept, as well it did behoue,
 And to the present neede it wiſely vsd.
 My former hardneſſe firſt I faire excuſd;
 And after promiſt large amends to make.
 With ſuch ſmooth termes her error I abuſd,
 To my friends good, more then for mine owne ſake,
 For whoſe ſole libertie I loue and life did ſtake.

Thenceforth I found more fauour ather hand,
 That to her Dwarf, which had me in his charge,
 She bad to lighten my too heauie band,
 And graunt more ſcope to me to walke at large.
 So on a day as by the flowrie marge
 Of a freſh ſtream I with that Elfe did play,
 Finding no meanes how I might vs enlarge,
 But if that Dwarf I could with me conuay,
 I lightly ſnatcht him vp, and with me bore away.

Thereat he ſhriekt aloud, that with his cry
 The Tyrant ſelfe came forth with yelling bray,
 And me purſew'd; but nathemore would I
 Forgoe the purchaſe of my gotten pray,
 But haue perforce him hether brought away.
 Thus as they talked, loe where nigh at hand
 Thoſe Ladies two yet doubtfull through diſmay
 In preſence came, deſirous t'vnderſtand
 Tydings of all, which there had hapned on the land.

Where soone as sad Æmylia did espie
 Her captiue louers friend, young Placidus;
 All mindlesse of her wonted modestie,
 She to him ran, and him with streight embras
 Enfolding said, and liues yet Amyas?
 He liues (quoth he) and his Æmylia loues.
 Then lesse (said she) by all the woe I pas,
 With which my weaker patience fortune proues.
 But what mishap thus long him fro my selfe remoues?

Then gan he all this storie to renew,
 And tell the course of his captiuitie;
 That her deare hart full deeply made to rew,
 And sigh full sore, to heare the miserie,
 In which so long he mercilesse did lie.
 Then after many teares and sorrowes spent,
 She deare besought the Prince of remedie:
 Who thereto did with readie will consent,
 And well perform'd, as shall appeare by his euent.

CANT.

Cant. IX.

*The Squire of low degree releast
 Poëana takes to wife :
 Britomart fightes with many Knights
 Prince Arthur stints their strife.*

Hard is the doubt, and difficult to deeme,
 When all three kinds of loue together meet,
 And doe dispart the hart with powre extreme,
 Whether shall weigh the balance downe ; to weet
 The deare affection vnto kindred sweet,
 Or raging fire of loue to woman kind,
 Or zeale of friends combynd with vertues meet.
 But of them all the band of vertues mind
 Me seemes the gentle hart, should most assured bind.

For naturall affection soone doth cesse,
 And quenched is with Cupids greater flame :
 But faithfull friendship doth them both suppress,
 And them with maystring discipline doth tame,
 Through thoughts aspyring to eternall fame.
 For as the soule doth rule the earthly masse,
 And all the seruice of the bodie frame,
 So loue of soule doth loue of bodie passe,
 No lesse then perfect gold surmounts the meanest brasse.

All which who list by tryall to assay,
 Shall in this storie find approued plaine ;
 In which these Squires true friendship more did sway,
 Then either care of parents could refraine,

Or loue of fairest Ladie could constraîne.
 For though Pæana were as faire as morne,
 Yet did this Trustie squire with proud disdain
 For his friends sake her offred fauours scorne,
 And she her selfe her syre, of whom she was yborne.

Now after that Prince Arthur graunted had,
 To yeeld strong succour to that gentle swayne,
 Who now long time had lyen in prison sad,
 He gan aduise how best he mote darrayne
 That enterprize, for greatest glories gayne.
 That headlesse tyrants tronke he reard from ground,
 And hauing ympt the head to it agayne,
 • Vpon his vsuall beast it firmly bound,
 And made it so to ride, as it aliue was found.

Then did he take that chaced Squire, and layd
 Before the ryder, as he captiue were,
 And made his Dwarfe, though with vnwilling ayd,
 To guide the beast, that did his maister beare,
 Till to his castle they approached neare.
 Whom when the watch, that kept continuall ward
 Saw comming home; all voide of doubtfull feare,
 He running downe, the gate to him vnbar'd;
 Whom straight the Prince ensuing, in together far'd.

There he did find in her delitious boure
 The faire Pæana playing on a Rote,
 Complayning of her cruell Paramoure,
 And singing all her sorrow to the note,
 As she had learned readily by rote.
 That with the sweetnesse of her rare delight,
 The Prince halfe rapt, began on her to dote:
 Till better him bethinking of the right,
 He her vnwares attacht, and captiue held by might.

Whence

Whence being forth produc'd, when she perceiu'd
 Her owne deare fire, she cald to him for aide.
 But when of him no aunswere she receiu'd,
 But saw him sencelesse by the Squire vpstaide,
 She weened well, that then she was betraide:
 Then gan she loudly cry, and weepe, and waile,
 And that same Squire of treason to vpbraide.
 But all in vaine, her plaints might not preuaile,
 Ne none there was to reskue her, ne none to baile.

Then tooke he that same Dwarfe, and him compeld
 To open vnto him the prison dore,
 And forth to bring those thrals, which there he held.
 Thence forth were brought to him about a score
 Of Knights and Squires to him vnknowne afore:
 All which he did from bitter bondage free,
 And vnto former liberty restore.
 Amongst the rest, that Squire of low degree
 Came forth full weake and wan, not like him selfe to bee.

Whom soone as faire AEmylia beheld,
 And Placidus, they both vnto him ran,
 And him embracing fast betwixt them held,
 Striuing to comfort him all that they can,
 And kissing oft his visage pale and wan.
 That faire Paana them beholding both,
 Gan both enuy, and bitterly to ban;
 Through ielous passion weeping inly wroth,
 To see the sight perforce, that both her eyes were loth.

But when a while they had together beene,
 And diuersly conferred of their case,
 She, though full oft she both of them had seene
 A sunder, yet not euer in one place,

Began to doubt, when she them saw embrace,
 Which was the captiue Squire she lou'd so deare,
 Deceiued through great likenesse of their face,
 For they so like in person did appeare,
 That she vneath discerned, whether whether weare.

Andeke the Priace, when as he them auized,
 Their like ressemblaunce much admired there,
 And mazd how nature had so well disguized
 Her worke, and counterfet her selfe so nere,
 As if that by one patterne seene somewhere,
 She had them made a paragone to be,
 Or whether it through skill, or errour were.
 Thus gazing long, at them much wondred he,
 So did the other knights and Squires, which him did see.

Then gan they ransacke that fame Castle strong,
 In which he found great store of hoorded threasure,
 The which that tyrant gathered had by wrong
 And tortious powre, without respect or measure.
 Vpon all which the Briton Prince made feasure,
 And afterwards continu'd there a while,
 To rest him selfe, and solace in soft pleasure
 Those weaker Ladies after weary toile;
 To whom he did diuide part of his purchast spoile.

And for more ioy, that captiue Lady faire
 The faire Peana he enlarged free;
 And by the rest did set in sumptuous chaire,
 To feast and frolicke; nathemore would she
 Shew glad some countenance nor pleasaunt glee:
 But griued was for losse both of her fire,
 Andeke of Lordship, with both land and fee:
 But most she touched was with grieffe entire,
 For losse of her new loue, the hope of her desire.

But her the Prince through his well wonted grace,
 To better termes of myldnesse did entreat,
 From that fowle rudenesse, which did her deface;
 And that same bitter corsiue, which did eat
 Her tender heart, and made refraine from meat,
 He with good thewes and speaches well applyde,
 Did mollifie, and calme her raging heat.
 For though she were most faire, and goodly dyde,
 Yet she it all did mar with cruelty and pride.

And for to shut vp all in friendly loue,
 Sith loue was first the ground of all her grieffe,
 That trusty Squire he wisely well did moue
 Not to despise that dame, which lou'd him liefe,
 Till he had made of her some better prieffe,
 But to accept her to his wedded wife.
 Thereto he offred for to make him chiefe
 Of all her land and lordship during life:
 Heycelded, and her tooke; so stinted all their strife.

From that day forth in peace and ioyous blis,
 They liu'd together long without debate,
 Ne priuate iarre, ne spite of enemis
 Could shake the safe assuraunce of their state.
 And she whom Nature did so faire create,
 That she mote match the fairest of her daies,
 Yet with lewd loues and lust intemperate
 Had it defaste; thenceforth reformd her waies,
 That all men much admyrde her change, and spake her (praise.

Thus when the Prince had perfectly compylde
 These paires of friends in peace and settled rest,
 Him selfe, whose minde did trauell as with chylde,
 Of his old loue, conceau'd in secret brest,

Resolued to pursue his former guest;
 And taking leaue of all, with him did beare
 Faire Amoret, whom Fortune by bequest
 Had left in his protection whileare,
 Exchanged out of one into an other feare.

Feare of her safety did her not constraîne,
 For well she wist now in a mighty hond,
 Her person late in perill, did remaine,
 Who able was all daungers to withstond.
 But now in feare of shame she more did stond,
 Seeing her selfe all soly succourlesse,
 Left in the victors powre, like vassall bond;
 Whose will her weakenesse could no way repressse.
 In case his burning lust should breake into excesse.

But cause of feare sure had she none at all
 Of him, who goodly learned had of yore
 The course of loose affection to forstall,
 And lawlesse lust to rule with reasons lore;
 That all the while he by his side her bore,
 She was as safe as in a Sanctuary;
 Thus many miles they two together wore,
 To seeke their loues dispersed diuersly,
 Yet neither shewed to other their hearts priuity.

At length they came, whereas a troupe of Knights
 They saw together skirmishing, as seemed:
 Sixe they were all, all full offell despight,
 But foure of them the battell best befeemed,
 That which of them was best, mote not be deemed.
 Those foure were they, from whom false Florimell
 By Braggadochio lately was redeemed.
 To weet, sterne Druon, and lewd Claribell,
 Loue-lauish Blandamour, and lustfull Paridell.

Druons delight was all in single life,
 And vnto Ladies loue would lend no leasure:
 The more was Clayibell enraged rife
 With feruent flames, and loued out of measure:
 So eke lou'd Blandamour, but yet at pleasure
 Would change his liking, and new Lemans proue:
 But Paridell of loue did make no threasure,
 But lusted after all, that him did moue.
 So diuerfly these foure disposed were to loue.

But those two other which beside them stooode,
 Were Britomart, and gentle Scudamour,
 Who all the while beheld their wrathfull moode,
 And wondred at their impacable stoure,
 Whose like they neuer saw till that same houre:
 So dreadfull strokes each did at other driue,
 And laid on load with all their might and powre,
 As if that euery dint the ghost would riue
 Out of their wretched corfes, and their liues depriue.

As when Dan AEolus in great displeasure,
 For losse of his deare loue by Neptune hent,
 Sends forth the winds out of his hidden threasure,
 Vpon the sea to wreake his fell intent;
 They breaking forth with rude vnruliment,
 From all foure parts of heauen doe rage full sore,
 And tossle the deepes, and teare the firmament,
 And all the world confound with wide vprore,
 As if in stead thereof they Chaos would restore.

Cause of their discord, and so fell debate,
 Was for the loue of that same snowy maid,
 Whome they had lost in Turneyment of late,
 And seeking long, to weet which way she straid

Met here together, where through lewd vpbraide
 Of Ate and Duessæ they fell out,
 And each one taking part in others aide,
 This cruell conflict raised thereabout,
 Whose dangerous successe depended yet in dout.

For sometimes Paridell and Blandamour
 The better had, and bet the others backe,
 Eftsoones the others did the field recoure,
 And on their foes did worke full cruell wracke :
 Yet neither would their fiendlike fury slacke,
 But euermore their malice did augment ;
 Till that vneath they forced were for lacke
 Of breath, their raging rigour to relent,
 And rest themselues for to recouer spirits spent.

Their gan they change their sides, and new parts take ;
 For Paridell did take to Druons side,
 For old despight, which now forth newly brake
 Gainst Blandamour, whom alwaies he enuide :
 And Blandamour to Claribell relide.
 So all afresh gan former fight renew.
 As when two Barkes, this caried with the tide,
 That with the wind, contrary courses sew,
 If wind and tide doe change, their courses change anew.

Thenceforth they much more furiously gan fare,
 As if but then the battell had begonne,
 Ne helmets bright, ne hawberks strong did spare,
 That through the clifts the vermeil bloud out sponne,
 And all adowne their riuen sides did ronne.
 Such mortall malice, wonder was to see
 In friends profest, and so great outrage donne :
 But sooth is said, and tride in each degree,
 Faint friends when they fall out, most cruell fomen bee.

Thus

Thus they long while continued in fight,
 Till Scudamour, and that same Briton maide,
 By fortune in that place did chance to light:
 Whom soone as they with wrathfull eie bewraide,
 They gan remember of the fowle vpbraide,
 The which that Britonesse had to them donne,
 In that late Turney for the snowy maide;
 Where she had them both shamefully fordonne,
 And eke the famous prize of beauty from them wonne.

Eftsoones all burning with a fresh desire
 Of fell reuenge, in their malicious mood
 They from them selues gan turne their furious ire,
 And cruell blades yet steeming with whot bloud,
 Against those two let driue, as they were wood:
 Who wondring much at that so sodaine fit,
 Yet nought dismayd, them stoutly well withstood;
 Ne yeelded foote, ne once abacke did flit,
 But being doubly smitten likewise doubly smit.

The warlike Dame was on her part assaid,
 Of Claribell and Blandamour attone;
 And Paridell and Druon fiercely laid
 At Scudamour, both his professed fone.
 Foure charged two, and two surcharged one;
 Yet did those two them selues so brauely beare,
 That the other litle gained by the lone,
 But with their owne repayed duely weare,
 And vsury withall: such gaine was gotten deare.

Full oftentimes did Britomart assay
 To speake to them, and some emparlance moue;
 But they for nought their cruell hands would stay,
 Ne lend an eare to ought, that might behoue,

As when an eager mastiffe once doth proue
 The tast of bloud of some engored beast,
 No words may rate, nor rigour him remoue
 From greedy hold of that his blouddy feast:
 So litle did they hearken to her sweet behest.

Whom when the Briton Prince a farre beheld
 With ods of so vnequall match opprest,
 His mighty heart with indignation sweld,
 And inward grudge fild his heroicke brest:
 Eftsoones him selfe he to their aide addrest,
 And thrusting fierce into the thickest preace,
 Diuided them, how euer loth to rest,
 And would them faine from battell to surceasse,
 With gentle words perswading them to friendly peace.

But they so farre from peace or patience were,
 That all at once at him gan fiercely flie,
 And lay on load, as they him downe would beare;
 Like to a storme, which houers vnder skie
 Long here and there, and round about doth flie,
 At length breakes downe in raine, and haile, and fleet,
 First from one coast, till nought thereof be drie;
 And then another, till that likewise fleet;
 And so from side to side till all the world it weet.

But now their forces greatly were decayd,
 The Prince yet being fresh vntoucht afore;
 Who them with speaches milde gan first dissuade
 From such foule outrage, and them long forbore:
 Till seeing them through suffrance hartned more,
 Him selfe he bent their furies to abate,
 And layd at them so sharpely and so sore,
 That shortly them compelled to retrate,
 And being brought in daunger, to relent too late.

But now his courage being throughly fired,
 He ment to make them know their follies prise,
 Had not those two him instantly desired
 T'asswage his wrath, and pardon their mesprise.
 At whose request he gan him selfe aduise
 To stay his hand, and of a truce to treat
 In milder tearmes, as list them to deuise:
 Mongst which the cause of their so cruell heat
 He did them aske, who all that passed gan repeat.

And told at large how that same errant Knight,
 To weet faire Britomart, them late had foyled
 In open turney, and by wrongfull fight
 Both of their publicke praise had them despoyled,
 And also of their priuate loues beguyled,
 Of two full hard to read the harder theft.
 But she that wrongfull challenge soone affoyled,
 And shew'd that she had not that Lady rest,
 (As they supposd) but her had to her liking left.

To whom the Prince thus goodly well replied;
 Certes sir Knight, ye seemen much to blame,
 To rip vp wrong, that battell once hath tried;
 Wherein the honor both of Armes ye shame,
 And eke the loue of Ladies foule defame;
 To whom the world this franchise euer yeelded,
 That of their loues choise they might freedom clame,
 And in that right should by all knights be shielded:
 Gainst which me seemes this war ye wrongfully haue (wielded.

And yet (quoth she) a greater wrong remaines:
 For I thereby my former loue haue lost,
 Whom seeking euer since with endlesse paines,
 Hath me much sorrow and much trauell cost;

Aye me to see that gentle maide so tost.
 But Scudamour then sighing deepe, thus saide, Certes her losse ought me to sorrow most,
 Whose right she is, where euer she be straide,
 Through many perils wonne, and many fortunes waide.

For from the first that I her loue profest,
 Vnto this houre, this present lucklesse howre,
 I neuer ioyed happinesse nor rest,
 But thus turmoild from one to other stowre,
 I wast my life, and doe my daies deuowre
 In wretched anguishe and incessant woe,
 Passing the measure of my feeble powre,
 That liuing thus, a wretch I and louing so,
 In neither can my loue, ne yet my life forgo.

Then good sir Claribell him thus bespake,
 Now were it not sir Scudamour to you,
 Dislikefull paine, so sad a taske to take,
 Mote we entreat you, sith this gentle crew
 Is now, so well accorded all anew;
 That as we ride together on our way,
 Ye will recount to vs in order dew
 All that aduenture, which ye did assay
 For that faire Ladies loue: past perils well apay.

So gan therest him likewise to require,
 But Britomart did him importune hard,
 To take on him that paine: whose great desire
 He glad to satisfie, him selfe prepar'd
 To tell through what misfortune he had far'd,
 In that atchieuement, as to him befell.
 And all those daungers vnto them declar'd,
 Which sith they cannot in this Canto well
 Comprised be, I will them in another tell.

Cant. X.

*Scudamour doth his conquest tell,
Of vertuous Amoret:
Great Venus Temple is describ'd,
And louers life forth set.*

TRue he it said, what euer man it sayd,
That loue with gall and hony doth abound,
But if the one be with the other wayd,
For euery dram of hony therein found,
A pound of gall doth ouer it redound.
That I too true by triall haue approued:
For since the day that first with deadly wound
My heart was launcht, and learned to haue loued,
I neuer ioyed howre, but still with care was moued.

And yet such grace is giuen them from aboue,
That all the cares and euill which they meet,
May nought at all their setled mindes remoue,
But seeme gainst common sence to them most sweet;
As boasting in their martyr dome vnmeet.
So all that euer yet I haue endured,
I count as naught, and tread downe vnder feet,
Since of my loue at length I rest assured,
That to disloyalty she will not be allured.

Long were to tell the trauell and long toile,
Through which this shield of loue I late haue wome,
And purchased this peerelesse beauties spoile,
That harder may be ended, then begonne.

But since ye so desire, your will be donne.
 Then hearke ye gentle knights and Ladies free,
 My hard mishaps, that ye may learne to shonne;
 For though sweet loue to conquer glorious bee,
 Yet is the paine thereof much greater then the fee.

What time the fame of this renowned prise
 Flew first abroad, and all mens cares possesse,
 I hauing armes then taken, gan auise
 To winne me honour by some noble geste,
 And purchase me some place amongst the best.
 I boldly thought (so young mens thoughts are bold)
 That this same braue emprise for me did rest,
 And that both shield and she whom I behold,
 Might be my lucky lot; sith all by lot we hold.

So on that hard aduenture forth I went,
 And to the place of perill shortly came.
 That was a temple faire and auncient,
 Which of great mother Venus bare the name,
 And farre renowned through exceeding fame;
 Much more then that, which was in Paphos built,
 Or that in Cyprus, both long since this same,
 Though all the pillours of the one were guilt,
 And all the others pauement were with yuory spilt.

And it was seated in an Island strong,
 Abounding all with delices most rare,
 And wall'd by nature gainst inuaders wrong,
 That none mote haue accessse, nor inward fare,
 But by one way, that passage did prepare.
 It was a bridge ybuilt in goodly wize,
 With curious Corbes and pendants grauen faire,
 And arched all with porches, did arize
 On stately pillours, fram'd after the Doricke guize.

And

And for defence thereof, on th'other end
 There reared was a castle faire and strong,
 That warded all which in or out did wend,
 And flanked both the bridges sides along,
 Gainst all that would it faine to force or wrong.
 And therein wonned twenty valiant Knights ;
 All twenty tride in warres experience long ;
 Whose office was, against all nanner wights
 By all meanes to maintaine, that castels ancients rights.

Before that Castle was an open plaine,
 And in the midst thereof a pillar placed ;
 On which this shield, of many sought in vaine,
 The shield of Loue, whose guerdon me hath graced,
 Was hangd on high with golden ribbands laced ;
 And in the marble stone was written this,
 With golden letters goodly well enchaced,
Blessed the man that well can vse his blis :
VVhose euer be the shield, faire Amoret be his.

Which when I red, my heart did inly carme,
 And pant with hope of that aduentures hap :
 Ne stayed further newes thereof to learne,
 But with my speare vpon the shield did rap,
 That all the castle ringed with the clap.
 Streight forth issewd a Knight all arm'd to prooffe,
 And brauely mounted to his most mishap :
 Who staying nought to question from aloofe,
 Ran fierce at me, that fire glaunst from his horses hoofe.

Whom boldly I encountred (as I could)
 And by good fortune shortly him vnseated.
 Eftsoones out sprung two more of equall mould ;
 But I them both with equall hap defeated :

So all the twenty I likewise entreated,
 And left them groning there vpon the plaine.
 Then preacing to the pillour I repeated
 The read thereof for guerdon of my paine,
 And taking downe the shield, with me did it retaine.

So forth without impediment I past,
 Till to the Bridges vtter gate I came :
 The which I found sure lockt and chained fast.
 I knockt, but no man aunswred me by name;
 I cald, but no man answerd to my clame.
 Yet I perseuer'd still to knocke and call,
 Till at the last I spide within the same,
 Where one stood peeping through a creuis small,
 To whom I cald aloud, halfe angry therewithall.

That was to weet the Porter of the place,
 Vnto whose trust the charge thereof was lent :
 His name was Doubt, that had a double face,
 Th'one forward looking, th'other backward bent,
 Therein resembling Ianus auncient,
 Which hath in charge the ingate of the yeare :
 And euermore his eyes about him went,
 As if some proued perill he did feare,
 Or did misdoubt some ill, whose cause did not appeare.

On th'one side he, on th'other sate Delay,
 Behinde the gate, that none her might espy;
 Whose manner was all passengers to stay,
 And entertaine with her occasions sly,
 Through which some lost great hope vnheedily,
 Which neuer they recover might againe ;
 And others quite excluded forth, did ly
 Long languishing there in vnpittied paine,
 And seeking often entraunce, afterwards in vaine.

Me when as he had priuily espide,
 Bearing the shield which I had conquerd late,
 He kend it streight, and to me opened wide.
 So in I past, and streight he closd the gate.
 But being in, Delay in close awaite
 Caught hold on me, and thought my steps to stay,
 Feigning full many a fond excuse to prate,
 And time to steale, the threasure of mans day,
 Whose smallest minute lost, no riches render may.

But by no meanes my way I would forslow,
 For ought that euer she could doe or say,
 But from my lofty steede dismounting low,
 Past forth on foote, beholding all the way
 The goodly workes, and stones of rich assay,
 Cast into sundry shapes by wondrous skill,
 That like on earth no where I reckon may:
 And vnderneath, the riuer rolling still (will.
 With murmure soft, that seem'd to serue the workmans

Thence forth I passed to the second gate,
 The Gate of good desert, whose goodly pride
 And costly frame, were long here to relate.
 The same to all stooode alwaies open wide:
 But in the Porch did euermore abide
 An hideous Giant, dreadfull to behold,
 That stopt the entraunce with his spacious stride,
 And with the terrour of his countenance bold
 Full many did affray, that else faine enter would.

His name was Dauinger dreaded ouer all,
 Who day and night did watch and duely ward,
 From fearefull cowards, entrance to forstall,
 And faint-heart-fooles, whom shew of perill hard

Could terrifie from Fortunes faire adward:
 For oftentimes faint hearts at first espiall
 Of his grim face, were from approaching scard;
 Vnworthy they of grace, whom one deniall
 Excludes from fairest hope, withouten further triall.

Yet many doughty warriours, often tride
 In greater perils to be stout and bold,
 Durst not the sternnesse of his looke abide,
 But soone as they his countenance did behold,
 Began to faint, and feele their corage cold.
 Againe some other, that in hard affaies
 Were cowards knowne, and litle count did hold,
 Either through gifts, or guile, or such like waies,
 Crept in by stouping low, or stealing of the kaies.

But I though nearest man of many moe,
 Yet much disdainng vnto him to lout,
 Or creepe betweene his legs, so in to goe,
 Resolu'd him to assault with manhood stout,
 And either beat him in, or driue him out.
 Effsoones aduancing that enchaunted shield,
 With all my might I gan to lay about:
 Which when he saw, the glaiue which he did wield
 He gan forthwith t'auale, and way vnto me yield.

So as I entred, I did backward looke,
 For feare of harne, that might lie hidden there;
 And loe his hindparts, whereof heed I tooke,
 Much more deformed fearefull vgly were,
 Then all his former parts did earst appere.
 For hatred, murther, treason, and despight,
 With many moe lay in ambushment there,
 Awayting to entrap the warelesse wight,
 Which did not them preuent with vigilant foresight.

Thus

Thus hauing past all perill, I was come
 Within the compasse of that Islands space;
 The which did seeme vnto my simple doome,
 The onely pleasant and delightfull place,
 That euer troden was of footings trace.
 For all that nature by her mother wit
 Could frame in earth, and forme of substance base,
 Was there, and all that nature did omit,
 Art playing second natures part, supplied it.

No tree, that is of count, in greenewood growes,
 From lowest Iuniper to Ceder tall,
 No flowre in field, that daintie odour throwes,
 And deckes his branch with blossomes ouer all,
 But there was planted, or grew naturall:
 Nor sense of man so coy and curious nice,
 But there mote find to please it selfe withall;
 Nor hart could wish for any queint deuce,
 But there it present was, and did fraile sense entice.

In such luxurious plentie of all pleasure,
 It seem'd a second paradise to bee,
 So lauishly enrich with natures threasure,
 That if the happie soules, which doe possesse
 Th'Elyfian fields, and liue in lasting blesse,
 Should happen this with liuing eye to see,
 They soone would loath their lesser happinesse,
 And wish to life return'd againe to ghesse,
 That in this ioyous place they mote haue ioyance free.

Fresh shadowes, fit to shroud from sunny ray;
 Faire lawnds, to take the sunne in season dew;
 Sweet springs, in which a thousand Nymphs did play;
 Soft rombling brookes, that gentle slomber drew;

High reared mounts, the lands about to view;
 Low looking dales, disloign'd from common gaze;
 Delightfull bowres, to solace louers trew;
 Falsse Labyrinthes, fond runners eyes to daze;
 All which by nature made did nature selfe amaze.

And all without were walkes and all eyes dight,
 With diuers trees, enrang'd in euen rankes;
 And here and there were pleasant arbors pight,
 And shadie seates, and sundry flowring bankes,
 To sit and rest the walkers wearie shankes,
 And therein thousand payres of louers walkt,
 Praying their god, and yeelding him great thankes,
 Ne euer ought but of their true loues talkt,
 Ne euer for rebuke or blame of any balkt.

All these together by themselues did sport
 Their spotlesse pleasures, and sweet loues content.
 But farre away from these, another sort
 Of louers lincked in true harts consent;
 Which loued not as these, for like intent,
 But on chaste vertue grounded their desire,
 Farre from all fraud, or fayned blandishment;
 Which in their spirits kindling zealous fire,
 Braue thoughts and noble deedes did euermore aspire.

Such were great Hercules, and Hyllus deare;
 Trew Ionathan, and Dauid trustie tryde;
 Stout Theseus, and Pirithous his feare;
Pylades and Orestes by his fyde;
 Myld Titus and Gesippus without pryde;
Damon and Pythias whom death could not feuer:
 All these and all that euer had bene tyde,
 In bands of friendship there did liue for euer,
 Whose liues although decay'd, yet loues decayed neuer.
 Which

Which when as I, that neuer tasted blis,
 Nor happie howre, beheld with gazefull eye,
 I thought there was none other heauen then this;
 And gan their endlesse happinesse enuye,
 That being free from feare and gealofye,
 Might frankely there their loues desire possesse;
 Whilest I through paines and perlous ieopardie,
 Was forst to seeke my lifes deare patronesse:
 Much dearer be the things, which come through hard distresse.

Yet all those sights, and all that else I saw,
 Might not my steps withhold, but that forthright
 Vnto that purposd place I did me draw,
 Where as my loue was lodged day and night:
 The temple of great Venus, that is hight
 The Queene of beautie, and of loue the mother,
 There worshipped of euery liuing wight;
 Whose goodly workmanship farre past all other
 That euer were on earth, all were they set together.

Not that same famous Temple of Diane,
 Whose hight all Ephesus did ouersee,
 And which all Asia sought with vowes prophane,
 One of the worlds seuen wonders sayd to bee,
 Might match with this by many a degree:
 Nor that, which that wise King of Iurie framed,
 With endlesse cost, to be th'Almighties see;
 Nor all that else through all the world is named
 To all the heathen Gods, might like to this be clamed.

I much admyring that so goodly frame,
 Vnto the porch approcht, which open stood;
 But therein fate an amiable Dame,
 That seem'd to be of very sober mood,

And in her semblant shewed great womanhood:
 Strange was her tyre; for on her head a crowne
 She wore much like vnto a Danisk hood,
 Poudred with pearle and stone, and all her gowne
 Enwouen was with gold, that raught full low a downe.

On either side of her, two young men stood,
 Both strongly arm'd, as fearing one another;
 Yet were they brethren both of halfe the blood,
 Begotten by two fathers of one mother,
 Though of contrarie natures each to other:
 The one of them hight Loue, the other Hate,
Hate was the elder, Loue the younger brother;
 Yet was the younger stronger in his state
 Then th'elder, and him maystred still in all debate.

Nathlesse that Dame so well them tempred both,
 That she them forced hand to ioyne in hand,
 Albe that Hatred was thereto full loth,
 And turn'd his face away, as he did stand,
 Vnwilling to behold that louely band.
 Yet she was of such grace and vertuous might,
 That her commaundment he could not withstand,
 But bit his lip for felonous despight,
 And gnasht his yron tuskes at that displeasing sight.

Concord she cleeped was in common reed,
 Mother of blessed Peace, and Friendship trew;
 They both her twins, both borne of heavenly feed,
 And she her selfe likewise diuinely grew;
 The which right well her workes diuine did shew:
 For strength, and wealth, and happineffe she lends,
 And strife, and warre, and anger does subdew:
 Of litle much, of foes she maketh friends,
 And to afflicted minds sweet rest and quiet sends.

By her the heauen is in his course contained,
 And all the world in state vnmoued stands,
 As their Almighty maker first ordained,
 And bound them with inuiolable bands;
 Else would the waters ouerflow the lands,
 And fire deuoure the ayre, and hell them quight,
 But that she holds them with her blessed hands.
 She is the nourse of pleasure and delight,
 And vnto Venus grace the gate doth open right.

By her I entring halfe dismayed was,
 But she in gentle wise me entertayned,
 And twixt her selfe and loue did let me pas;
 But Hatred would my entrance haue restrayned,
 And with his club me threatned to haue brayned,
 Had not the Ladie with her powrefull speech
 Him from his wicked will vneath refrayned;
 And th'other eke his malice did empeach,
 Till I was throughly past the perill of his reach.

Into the inmost Temple thus I came,
 Which fuming all with frankensence I found,
 And odours rising from the altars flame.
 Vpon an hundred marble pillors round
 The roose vp high was reared from the ground,
 All deckt with crownes, & chaynes, and girlands gay,
 And thousand pretious gifts worth many a pound,
 The which sad louers for their voves did pay;
 And all the ground was strow'd with flowres, as fresh as (may,

An hundred Altars round about were set,
 All flaming with their sacrifices fire,
 That with the steme thereof the Temple swet,
 Which rould in clouds to heauen did aspire,

And in them bore true louers vowes entire:
 And eke an hundred brazen caudrons bright,
 To bath in ioy and amorous desire,
 Euery of which was to a damzell hight;
 For all the Priests were damzels, in soft linnen dight.

Right in the midst the Goddesse selfe did stand
 Vpon an altar of some costly masse,
 Whose substance was vneath to vnderstand:
 For neither pretious stone, nor durefull brasse,
 Nor shining gold, nor mouldring clay it was;
 But much more rare and pretious to esteeme,
 Pure in aspect, and like to christall glasse,
 Yet glasse was not, if one did rightly deeme,
 But being faire and bricke, likest glasse did seeme.

But it in shape and beautie did excell
 All other Idoles, which the heathen adore,
 Farre passing that, which by surpassing skill
Phidias did make in Paphos Isle of yore,
 With which that wretched Greeke, that life forlore
 Did fall in loue: yet this much fairer shined,
 But couered with a slender veile afore;
 And both her feete and legs together twyned
 Were with a snake, whose head & tail were fast cōbyned.

The cause why she was couered with a veile,
 Was hard to know, for that her Priests the same
 From peoples knowledge labour'd to conceale.
 But sooth it was not sure for womanish shame,
 Nor any blemish, which the worke mote blame;
 But for, they say, she hath both kinds in one,
 Both male and female, both vnder one name:
 She syre and mother is her selfe alone,
 Begets and eke conceiues, ne needeth other none.

And

And all about her necke and shoulders flew
 A flocke of litle loues, and sports, and ioyes,
 With nimble wings of gold and purple hew;
 Whose shapes seem'd not like to terrestriall boyes,
 But like to Angels playing heauenly toyes;
 The whilest their eldest brother was away,
Cupid their eldest brother; he enioyes
 The wide kingdome of loue with Lordly sway,
 And to his law compels all creatures to obay.

And all about her altar scattered lay
 Great sorts of louers piteously complayning,
 Some of their losse, some of their loues delay,
 Some of their pride, some paragons disdayning,
 Some fearing fraud, some fraudulently fayning,
 As euery one had cause of good or ill, (ning,
 Amongst the rest some one through loues constray-
 Tormented sore, could not containe it still,
 But thus brake forth, that all the temple it did fill,

Great Venus, Queene of beautie and of grace,
 The ioy of Gods and men, that vnder skie
 Doest fayrest shine, and most adorne thy place,
 That with thy smyling looke doest pacifie
 The raging seas, and makst the stormes to flie;
 Thee goddesse, thee the winds, the clouds doe feare,
 And when thou spredst thy mantle forth on hie,
 The waters play and pleasant lands appeare,
 And heuens laugh, & al the world shews ioyous cheare.

Then doth the dædale earth throw forth to thee
 Out of her fruitfull lap abundant flowres,
 And then all liuing wights, soone as they see
 The spring breake forth out of his lusty bowres,

They all doe learne to play the Paramours;
 First doe the merry birds, thy pretypages
 Priuily pricked with thy lustfull powres,
 Chirpe loud to thee out of their leauy cages,
 And thee their mother call to coole their kindly rages.

Then doe the saluage beasts begin to play
 Their pleasant friskes, and loath their wonted food;
 The Lyons rore, the Tygres loudly bray,
 The raging Bulls rebellow through the wood,
 And breaking forth, dare tempt the deepest flood,
 To come where thou doest draw them with desire:
 So allthings else, that nourish vitall blood,
 Soone as with fury thou doest them inspire,
 In generation seeke to quench their inward fire.

So all the world by thee at first was made,
 And dayly yet thou doest the same repayre:
 Ne ought on earth that merry is and glad,
 Ne ought on earth that louely is and fayre,
 But thou the same for pleasure didst repayre.
 Thou art the root of all that ioyous is,
 Great God of men and women, queene of th'ayre,
 Mother of laughter, and welspring of blisse,
 O graunt that of my loue at last I may not misse.

So did he say: but I with murmure soft,
 That none might heare the sorrow of my hart,
 Yet inly groning deepe and sighing oft,
 Besought her to graunt ease vnto my smart,
 And to my wound her gracious help impart.
 Whilest thus I spake, behold with happy eye
 I spyde, where at the Idoles feet apart
 A beuie of fayre damzels close did lye,
 Wayting when as the Antheme should be sung on hye.

The first of them did seeme of ryper yeares,
 And grauer countenance then all the rest;
 Yet all the rest were eke her equall peares,
 Yet vnto her obeyed all the best.
 Her name was VVomanhood, that she exprest
 By her sad semblant and demeanure wyse:
 For stedfast still her eyes did fixed rest,
 Ne rovd at randon after gazers guyse,
 Whose luring baytes oftymes doe heedlesse harts entyse.

And next to her fate goodly Shamefastnesse,
 Ne euer durst her eyes from ground vpreare,
 Ne euer once did looke vp from her desse,
 As if some blame of euill she did feare,
 That in her cheekes made roses oft appeare:
 And her against sweet Cherifulnesse was placed,
 Whose eyes like twinkling stars in euening cleare,
 Were deckt with smyles, that all sad humors chaced,
 And darted forth delights, the which her goodly graded.

And next to her fate sober Modestie,
 Holding her hand vpon her gentle hart;
 And her against fate comely Curtesie,
 That vnto euery person knew her part;
 And her before was seated ouerthwart
 Soft Silence, and submisse Obedience,
 Both linckt together neuer to dispart,
 Both gifts of God not gotten but from thence,
 Both girlonds of his Saints against their foes offence.

Thus fate they all a round in seemely rate:
 And in the midst of them a goodly mayd,
 Euen in the lap of VVomanhood there fate,
 The which was all in lilly white arayd,

With siluer streames amongst the linnen stray'd;
 Like to the Morne, when first her shyning face
 Hath to the gloomy world it selfe bewray'd,
 That same was fayrest Amoret in place,
 Shyning with beauties light, and heavenly vertues grace.

Whom soone as I beheld, my hart gan throb,
 And wade in doubt, what best were to be donne:
 For sacrilege me seem'd the Church to rob,
 And folly seem'd to leaue the thing vndonne,
 Which with so strong attempt I had begonne.
 Tho shaking off all doubt and shamefast feare,
 Which Ladies loue I heard had neuer wonne
 Mongst men of worth, I to her stepped neare,
 And by the lilly hand her labour'd vp to reare.

Thereat that formost matrone me did blame,
 And sharpe rebuke, for being ouer bold;
 Saying it was to Knight vnseemely shame,
 Vpon a recluse Virgin to lay hold,
 That vnto Venus seruices was sold.
 To whom I thus, Nay but it fitteth best,
 For Cupids man with Venus mayd to hold,
 For ill your goddesse seruices are drest
 By virgins, and her sacrifices let to rest,

With that my shield I forth to her did show,
 Which all that while I closely had conceald;
 On which when Cupid with his killing bow
 And cruell shafts emblazond she beheld,
 At sight thereof she was with terror queld,
 And said no more: but I which all that while
 The pledge of faith, her hand engaged held,
 Like warie Hynd within the weedie soyle,
 For no intreatie would forgoe so glorious spoyle.

And euermore vpon the Goddesse face
 Mine eye was fixt, for feare of her offence,
 Whom when I saw with amiable grace
 To laugh at me, and fauour my pretence,
 I was emboldned with more confidence,
 And nought for nicenesse nor for enuy sparing,
 In presence of them all forth led her thence,
 All looking on, and like astonisht staring,
 Yet to lay hand on her, not one of all them daring.

She often prayd, and often me besought,
 Sometime with tender teares to let her goe,
 Sometime with witching smyles: but yet for nought,
 That euer she to me could say or doe,
 Could she her wished freedome from me wooe;
 But forth I led her through the Temple gate,
 By which I hardly past with much adoe:
 But that same Ladie which me friended late
 In entrance, did me also friend in my retrate.

No lesse did daunger threaten me with dread,
 When as he saw me, maugre all his powre,
 That glorious spoyle of beautie with me lead,
 Then Cerberus, when Orpheus did recoure
 His Lemman from the Stygian Princes boure.
 But euermore my shield did me defend,
 Against the storme of euery dreadfull stoure:
 Thus safely with my loue I thence did wend.
 So ended he his tale, where I this Canto end.

Cant. XI.

*Marinell's former wound is heald,
 he comes to Proteus hall,
 Where Thames doth the Medway wedd,
 and feasts the Sea-gods all.*

BVt ah for pittie that I haue thus long
 Left a fayre Ladie languishing in payne:
 Now well away, that I haue doen such wrong,
 To let faire Florimell in bands remayne,
 In bands of loue, and in sad thraldomes chayne;
 From which vnlesse some heauenly powre her free
 By miracle, not yet appearing playne,
 She lenger yet is like captiu'd to bee:
 That euen to thinke thereof, it inly pitties mee.

Here neede you to remember, how erewhile
 Vnlouely Proteus, missing to his mind
 That Virgins loue to win by wit or wile,
 Her threw into a dongeon deepe and blind,
 And there in chaynes her cruelly did bind,
 In hope thereby her to his bent to draw:
 For when as neither gifts nor graces kind
 Her constant mind could moue at all he saw,
 He thought her to compell by crueltie and awe.

Deepe in the bottome of an huge great rocke
 The dongeon was, in which her bound he left,
 That neither yron barres, nor brasen locke
 Did neede to gard from force, or secret theft

Of all her louers, which would her haue rest.
 For wall'd it was with waues, which rag'd and ror'd
 As they the cliffe in peeces would haue cleft;
 Besides ten thousand monsters foule abhor'd
 Did waite about it; gaping grieſly all begor'd.

And in the miſt thereof did horror dwell,
 And darkeneſſe dredd, that neuer view'd day,
 Like to the balefull houſe of loweſt hell,
 In which old Styx her aged bones alway,
 Old Styx the Gramdame' of the Gods, doth lay.
 There did this luckleſſe mayd three months abide,
 Ne euer euening ſaw, ne mornings ray,
 Ne euer from the day the night deſcride,
 But thought it all one night, that did no houres diuide.

And all this was for loue of Marinell,
 Who her deſpyſd (ah who would her deſpyſe?)
 And wemens loue did from his hart expell,
 And all thoſe ioyes that weake mankind entyſe.
 Nathleſſe his pride full dearely he did pryſe;
 For of a womans hand it was ywroke,
 That of the wound he yet in languor lyes,
 Ne can be cured of that cruell ſtroke
 Which Britomart him gaue, when he did her prouoke.

Yet farre and neare the Nymph his mother ſought,
 And many ſalues did to his ſore applie,
 And many herbes did uſe. But when as nought
 She ſaw could eaſe his rankling maladie,
 At laſt to Tryphon ſhe for helpe did hie,
 (This Tryphon is the ſeagods ſurgeon hight)
 Whom ſhe beſought to find ſome remedie:
 And for his paines a whistle him behight
 That of a fiſhes ſhell was wrought with rare delight.

So well that Leach did hearke to her request,
 And did so well employ his carefull paine,
 That in short space his hurts he had redrest,
 And him restor'd to healthfull state againe:
 In which he long time after did remaine
 There with the Nymph his mother, like her thrall;
 Who sore against his will did him retaine,
 For feare of perill, which to him mote fall,
 Through his too ventrous prowesse proued ouer all.

It fortun'd then, a solemne feast was there
 To all the Sea-gods and their fruitfull seede,
 In honour of the spoufalls, which then were Betwixt the Medway and the Thames agreed.
 Long had the Thames (as we in records reed)
 Before that day her wooed to his bed;
 But the proud Nymph would for no worldly meed,
 Nor no entreatie to his loue be led;
 Till now at last relenting, she to him was wed.

So both agreed, that this their bridale feast
 Should for the Gods in Proteus house be made;
 To which they all repayr'd, both most and least,
 Aswell which in the mightie Ocean trade,
 As that in riuers swim, or brookes doe wade.
 All which not if an hundred tongues to tell,
 And hundred mouthes, and voice of brasse I had,
 And endlesse memorie, that mote excell,
 In order as they came, could I recount them well.

Helpe therefore, O thou sacred imp of Ioue,
 The nourling of Dame Memorie his deare,
 To whom those rolles, layd vp in heauen aboue,
 And records of antiquitie appeare,

To which no wit of man may comen neare;
 Helpe me to tell the names of all those floods,
 And all those Nymphes, which then assembled were
 To that great banquet of the watry Gods,
 And all their sundry kinds, and all their hid abodes.

First came great Neptune with his threeforkt mace,
 That rules the Seas, and makes them rise or fall;
 His dewy lockes did drop with brine apace,
 Vnder his Diademe imperiall:
 And by his side his Queene with coronall,
 Faire Amphitrite, most diuinely faire,
 Whose yuorie shoulders weren couered all,
 As with a robe, with her owne siluer haire,
 And deckt with pearles, which th'Indian seas for her prepaire.

These marched farre afore the other crew;
 And all the way before them as they went,
Triton his trompet shrill before them blew,
 For goodly triumph and great iollyment,
 That made the rockes to roare, as they were rent.
 And after them the royall issue came,
 Which of them sprung by lineall descent:
 First the Sea-gods, which to themselues doe clame
 The powre to rule the billowes, and the waues to tame.

Phorcys, the father of that fatall brood,
 By whom those old Heroes wonne such fame;
 And Glaucus, that wise southsayer vnderstood;
 And tragicke Inoes sonne, the which became
 A God of seas through his mad mothers blame,
 Now hight Palemon, and is saylers friend;
 Great Brontes, and Astræus, that did shame
 Himselfe with incest of his kin vnkend;
 And huge Orion, that doth tempests still portend.

The rich Creatus, and Eurytus long;
Neleus and Pelias louely brethren both;
 Mightie Chrysaor, and Caicus strong;
Eurypulus, that calmes the waters wroth;
 And faire Euphæmus, that vpon them goth
 As on the ground, without difmay or dread:
 Fierce Eryx, and Alebius that know' th
 The waters depth, and doth their bottome tread;
 And sad Asopus, comely with his hoarie head.

There also some most famous founders were
 Of puissant Nations, which the world possesse;
 Yet sonnes of Neptune, now assembled here:
 Ancient Ogyges, euen th'auncientest,
 And Inachus renownd aboute the rest;
Phœnix, and Aon, and Pelasgus old,
 Great Belus, Phœax, and Agenor best;
 And mightie Albion, father of the bold
 And warlike people, which the Britaine Islands hold.

For Albion the sonne of Neptune was,
 Who for the prooffe of his great puissance,
 Out of his Albion did on dry-foot pas
 Into old Gall, that now is cleeped France,
 To fight with Hercules, that did aduance
 To vanquish all the world with matchlesse might,
 And there his mortall part by great mischance
 Was slaine: but that which is th'immortall spright
 Liues still: and to this feast with Neptunes feed was dight.

But what doe I their names seeke to reherse,
 Which all the world haue with their issue fild?
 How can they all in this so narrow verse
 Contayned be, and in small compasse hild?

Let them record them, that are better skild,
 And know the monuments of passed times:
 Onely what needeth, shall be here fulfilled,
 T'expresse some part of that great equipage,
 Which from great Neptune do deriue their parentage.

Next came the aged Ocean, and his Dame,
 Old Tethys, th'oldest two of all the rest,
 For all the rest of those two parents came,
 Which afterward both sea and land possesse:
 Of all which Nereus th'eldest, and the best,
 Did first proceed, then which none more vpright,
 Ne more sincere in word and deed profest;
 Most voide of guile, most free from fowle despight,
 Doing him selfe, and teaching others to doe right.

Thereto he was expert in prophecies,
 And could the ledden of the Gods vnfold,
 Through which, when Paris brought his famous prise
 The faire Tindarid lasse, he him fortold,
 That her all Greece with many a champion bold
 Should fetch againe, and finally destroy
 Proud Priams towne. So wise is Nereus old,
 And so well skild; nathlesse he takes great ioy
 Oft-times amōgst the wanton Nymphs to sport and toy.

And after him the famous riuers came,
 Which doe the earth enrich and beautifie:
 The fertile Nile, which creatures new doth frame;
 Long Rhodanus, whose sourse springs from the skie;
 Faire Ister, flowing from the mountaines hie;
 Diuine Scamander, purpled yet with blood
 Of Greekes and Troians, which therein did die;
Pactolus gliftring with his golden flood, (stood.
 And Tygris fierce, whose streames of none may be with-

Great Ganges, and immortall Euphrates,
 Deepe Indus, and Mæander intricate,
 Slow Peneus, and tempestuous Phasides,
 Swift Rhene, and Alpheus still immaculate:
 Ooraxes, feared for great Cyrus fate;
 Tybris, renowned for the Romaines fame,
 Rich Oranochy, though but knowen late;
 And that huge Riuer, which doth beare his name
 Of warlike Amazons, which doe possesse the same.

Ioy on those warlike women, which so long
 Can from all men so rich a kingdome hold;
 And shame on you, ô men, which boast your strong
 And valiant hearts, in thoughts lesse hard and bold,
 Yet quail in conquest of that land of gold.
 But this to you, ô Britons, most pertaines,
 To whom the right hereof it selfe hath sold;
 The which for sparing litle cost or paines,
 Loose so immortall glory, and so endlesse gaines.

Then was there heard a most celestially sound,
 Of dainty musicke, which did next ensue
 Before the spouse: that was Arion crownd;
 Who playing on his harpe, vnto him drew
 The eares and hearts of all that goodly crew,
 That euen yet the Dolphin, which him bore
 Through the Agæan seas from Pirates view,
 Stood still by him astonisht at his lore,
 And all the raging seas for ioy forgot to rore,

So went he playing on the watery plaine.
 Soone after whom the louely Bridegroome came,
 The noble Thamis, with all his goodly traine,
 But him before there went, as best became;

His auncient parents, namely th'auncient Thame.
 But much more aged was his wife then he,
 The Ouze, whom men doe Isis rightly name;
 Full weake and crooked creature seemed shee,
 And almost blind through eld, that scarce her way could (see.

Therefore on either side she was sustained
 Of two smal grooms, which by their names were hight
 The Churme, and Charwell, two small streames, which Them selues her footing to direct aright, (pained
 Which fayled oft through faint and feeble plight:
 But Thame was stronger, and of better stay;
 Yet seem'd full aged by his outward sight,
 With head all hoary, and his beard all gray,
 Deawed with siluer drops, that trickled downe alway.

Andeke he somewhat seem'd to stoupe afore
 With bowed backe, by reason of the lode,
 And auncient heauy burden, which he bore
 Of that faire City, wherein make abode
 So many learned impes, that shoote abroad,
 And with their braunches spred all Britany,
 No lesse then do her elder sisters broode.
 Ioy to you both, ye double nourfery,
 Of Arts, but Oxford thine doth Thame most glorify.

But he their sonne full fresh and iolly was,
 All decked in a robe of watchet hew,
 On which the waues, glittering like Christall glas,
 So cunningly enwouen were, that few
 Could weenen, whether they were false or trew.
 And on his head like to a Coronet
 He wore, that seemed strange to common vew,
 In which were many towres and castels set,
 That it encompass round as with a golden fret.

Like as the mother of the Gods, they say,
 In her great iron charet wonts to ride,
 When to Ioues pallace she doth take her way;
 Old Cybele, arayd with pompous pride,
 Wearing a Diademe embattild wide
 With hundred turrets, like a Turribant.
 With such an one was Thamis beautifide;
 That was to weet the famous Troynouant,
 In which her kingdomes throne is chiefly resiant.

And round about him many a pretty Page
 Attended duely, ready to obay;
 All little Riuers, which owe vassallage
 To him, as to their Lord, and tribute pay:
 The chaulky Kenet, and the Thetis gray,
 The morish Cole, and the soft sliding Breane,
 The wanton Lee, that oft doth loose his way,
 And the still Darent, in whose waters cleane
 Ten thousand fishes play, and decke his pleasant streame.

Then came his neighbour fouds, which nigh him dwell,
 And water all the English soile throughout;
 They all on him this day attended well;
 And with meet seruice waited him about;
 Ne none disdained low to him to lout:
 No not the stately Seuerne grudg'd at all,
 Ne storming Humber, though he looked stout;
 But both him honor'd as their principall,
 And let their swelling waters low before him fall.

There was the speedy Tamar, which deuides
 The Cornish and the Deuonish confines;
 Through both whose borders swiftly downe it glides,
 And meeting Plim, to Plimmouth thence declines:
 And

And Dart, nigh chockt with sands of tinny mines.
 But Auon marched in more stately path,
 Proud of his Adamants, with which he shines
 And glisters wide, as all of wondrous Bath,
 And Bristow faire, which on his waues he builded hath.

And there came Stoure with terrible aspect,
 Bearing his fixe deformed heads on hye,
 That doth his course through Blandford plains direct,
 And washeth Winborne meades in season drye.
 Next him went Wylibourne with passage slye,
 That of his wylinessse his name doth take,
 And of him selfe doth name the shire thereby:
 And Mole, that like a nousling Mole doth make
 His way still vnder ground, till Tham is he ouertake.

Then came the Rother, decked all with woods
 Like a wood God, and flowing fast to Rhy:
 And Sture, that parteth with his pleasant floods
 The Easterne Saxons from the Southerne ny,
 And Clare, and Harwitch both doth beautify:
 Him follow'd Yar, soft washing Norwitch wall,
 And with him brought a present ioyfully
 Of his owne fish vnto their festiuall, (call.
 Whose like none else could shew, the which they Ruffins

Next these the plenteous Ouse came far from land,
 By many a city, and by many a towne,
 And many riuers taking vnder hand
 Into his waters, as he passeth downe,
 The Cle, the Were, the Guant, the Sture, the Rowne.
 Thence doth by Huntingdon and Cambridge flit,
 My mother Cambridge, whom as with a Crowne
 He doth adorne, and is adorn'd of it
 With many a gentle Muse, and many a learned wit.

And after him the fatall Welland went,
 That if old sawes proue true (which God forbid)
 Shall drowne all Holland with his excrement,
 And shall see Stamford, though now homely hid,
 Then shine in learning, more then euer did
 Cambridge or Oxford, Englands goodly beames.
 And next to him the Nene downe softly slid;
 And bounteous Trent, that in him selfe enseames
 Both thirty sorts of fish, and thirty sundry streames,

Next these came Tyne, along whose stony bancke
 That Romaine Monarch built a brazen wall,
 Which mote the feebled Britons strongly flancke
 Against the Picts, that swarmed ouer all,
 Which yet thereof Gualseuer they doe call:
 And Twede the limit betwixt Logris land
 And Albany: And Eden though but small,
 Yet often staine with bloud of many a band
 Of Scots and English both, that tynd on his strand.

Then came those sixe sad brethren, like forlorne,
 That whilome were (as antique fathers tell)
 Sixe valiant Knights, of one faire Nympe yborne,
 Which did in noble deedes of armes excell,
 And wonned there, where now Yorke people dwell;
 Still Vre, swift Werfe, and Oze the most of might,
 High Swale, vnquiet Nide, and troublous Skell;
 All whom a Scythian king, that Humber hight,
 Slew cruelly, and in the riuer drowned quight.

But past not long, ere Brutus warlicke sonne
Locrinus them aueng'd, and the same date,
 Which the proud Humber vnto them had donne,
 By equall dome repayd on his owne pate:

For in the selfe fame riuer, where he late
 Had drenched them, he drowned him againe;
 And nam'd the riuer of his wretched fate;
 Whose bad condition yet it doth retaine,
 Oft tossed with his stormes, which therein still remaine.

These after, came the stony shallow Lone,
 That to old Loncaster his name doth lend;
 And following Dee, which Britons longygone
 Did call diuine, that doth by Chester tend;
 And Conway which out of his streame doth send
 Plenty of pearles to decke his dames withall,
 And Lindus that his pikes doth most commend,
 Of which the auncient Lincolne men doe call,
 All these together marched toward Proteus hall.

Ne thence the Irishe Riuers absent were,
 Sith no lesse famous then the rest they bee,
 And ioyne in neighbourhood of kingdome nere,
 Why should they not likewise in loue agree,
 And ioy likewise this solemne day to see.
 They saw it all, and present were in place;
 Though I them all according their degree,
 Cannot recount, nor tell their hidden race,
 Nor read the saluage cūtreis, thorough which they pace.

There was the Liffy rolling downe the lea,
 The sandy Slane, the stony Aubrian,
 The spacious Shenan spreading like a sea,
 The pleasant Boyne, the fishy fruitfull Ban,
 Swift Awniduff, which of the English man
 Is cal'de Blacke water, and the Liffar deep,
 Sad Trowis, that once his people ouerran,
 Strong Allo tombling from Slewlogher steep,
 And Mulla mine, whose waues I whilom taught to weep.

And there the three renowned brethren were,
 Which that great Gyant Blomius begot,
 Of the faire Nimph Rheusa wandring there.
 One day, as she to shunne the season whot,
 Vnder Slewblome in shady groue was got,
 This Gyant found her, and by force deflowr'd,
 Whereof conceiuing, she in time forth brought
 These three faire sons, which being thēce forth powrd
 In three great riuers ran, and many countreis scowrd.

The first, the gentle Shure that making way
 By sweet Clonmell, adornes rich Waterford;
 The next, the stubborne Newre, whose waters gray
 By faire Kilkenny and Rosseponte boord,
 The third, the goodly Barow, which doth hoord
 Great heapes of Salmons in his deepe bosome:
 All which long fundred, doe at last accord
 To ioyne in one, ere to the sea they come,
 So flowing all from one, all one at last become.

There also was the wide embayed Mayre,
 The pleasaunt Bandon crownd with many a wood,
 The spreading Lee, that like an Island fayre
 Encloseth Corke with his deuided flood;
 And balefull Oure, late staind with English blood:
 With many more, whose names no tongue can tell.
 All which that day in order seemly good
 Did on the Thamis attend, and waited well
 To doe their duefull seruice, as to them befell.

Then came the Bride, the louely Medusa came,
 Clad in a vesture of vnknowne gear,
 And vncouth fashion, yet her well became;
 That seem'd like siluer, sprinckled here and there
 With

With glittering spangs, that did like starres appeare,
 And wau'd vpon, like water Chamelot,
 To hide the metall, which yet euery where Bewrayd it selfe, to let men plainely wot,
 It was no mortall worke, that seem'd and yet was not.

Hēr goodly lockes adowne her backe did flow
 Vnto her waste, with flowres bescattered,
 The which ambrosiall odours forth did throw
 To all about, and all her shoulders spred
 As a new spring; and likewise on her hed
 A Chapelet of sundry flowers she wore,
 From vnder which the deawy humour shed,
 Did tricle downe her haire, like to the hore
 Congealed litle drops, which doe the morne adore.

On her two pretty handmaidens did attend,
 One cald the Theise, the other cald the Crane;
 Which on her waited, things amisse to mend,
 And both behind vpheld her spredding traine;
 Vnder the which, her feet appeared plaine,
 Her siluer feet, faire washt against this day:
 And her before there paced Pages twaine,
 Both clad in colours like, and like array,
 The Doune & eke the Frith, both which prepar'd her way.

And after these the Sea Nymphs marched all,
 All goodly damzels, deckt with long greene haire,
 Whom of their sire Nereides men call,
 All which the Oceans daughter to him bare
 The gray eyde Doris: all which fifty are;
 All which she there on her attending had.
 Swift Proto, milde Eucrate, Thetis faire,
 Soft Spio, sweete Endore, Sao sad,
 Light Doto, wanton Glauce, and Galene glad.

White hand Eunica, proud Dynamene,
 Ioyous Thalia, goodly Amphitrite,
 Louely Pasithee, kinde Eulimene,
 Light foote Cymothoe, and sweete Melite,
 Fairest Pherusa, Phao lilly white,
 Wondred Agave, Poris, and Nesæa,
 With Erato that doth in loue delite,
 And Panopæ, and wife Protomedæa,
 And snowy neckd Doris, and milkewhite Galathæa.

Speedy Hippothoe, and chaste Actea,
 Large Lisianassa, and Pronæa sage,
Euagore, and light Pontoporea,
 And she, that with her least word can asswage
 The surging seas, when they do forest rage,
Cymodoce, and stout Antonoe,
 And Neso, and Eione well in age,
 And seeming still to sinile, Glauconome,
 And she that hight of many heastes Polynome.

Fresh Alimeda, deckt with girlond greene;
Hyponeo, with salt bedewed wrests :
Laomedia, like the christall sheene ;
Liagore, much praisd for wise behests ;
 And Psamathe, for her brode snowy brests ;
Cymo, Eupompe, and Themiste iust ;
 And she that vertue loues and vice detests
Euarna, and Menippe true in trust,
 And Nemertea learned well to rule her lust.

All these the daughters of old Nereus were,
 Which haue the sea in charge to them assinde,
 To rule his tides, and surges to vprere,
 To bring forth stormes, or fast them to vpbinde.

And

And sailers saue from wreckes of wrathfull winde.
 And yet besides three thousand more there were
 Of th'Oceans feede, but Ioues and Phæbus kinde;
 The which in floods and fountaines doe appere,
 And all mankinde do nourish with their waters clere.

The which, more eath it were for mortall wight,
 To tell the sands, or count the starres on hye,
 Or ought more hard, then thinke to reckon right.
 But well I wote, that these which I descry,
 Were present at this great solemnity:
 And there amongst the rest, the mother was
 Of luckelesse Marinell Cymodoce,
 Which, for my Muse her selfe now tyred has,
 Vnto an other Canto I will ouerpas.

Cant. XII.

*Martin for loue of Florimell,
 In languor wastes his life:
 The Nymph his mother getteth her,
 And giues to him for wife.*

What an endlesse worke haue I in hand,
 To count the seas abundant progeny,
 Whose fruitfull feede farre passeth those in land,
 And also those which wonne in th'azure sky?
 For much more eath to tell the starres on hye,
 Albe they endlesse seeme in estimation,
 Then to recount the Seas posterity:
 So fertile be the flouds in generation,
 So huge their numbers, and so numberlesse their nation.

Therefore the antique wifards well inuented,
 That Venus of the fomy sea was bred;
 For that the seas by her are most augmented.
 Witnesse th'exceeding fry, which there are fed,
 And wondrous sholes, which may of none be red.
 Then blame me not, if I haue err'd in count
 Of Gods, of Nymphs, of riuers yet vnred:
 For though their numbers do much more surmount,
 Yet all those same were there, which erst I did recount.

All those were there, and many other more,
 Whose names and nations were too long to tell,
 That Proteus house they fild euen to the dore;
 Yet were they all in order, as befell,
 According their degrees disposed well.
 Amongst the rest, was faire Cymodoce,
 The mother of vnlucky Marinell,
 Who thither with her came, to learne and see
 The manner of the Gods when they at banquet be.

But for he was halfe mortall, being bred
 Of mortall fire, though of immortall wombe,
 He might not with immortall food be fed,
 Ne with th'eternall Gods to banquet come;
 But walkt abroad, and round about did come,
 To view the building of that vncouth place,
 That seem'd vnlike vnto his earthly home:
 Where, as he to and fro by chance did trace,
 There vnto him betid a disauentrous case.

Vnder the hanging of an hideous cliesse,
 He heard the lamentable voice of one,
 That piteously complaind her carefull griesse,
 Which neuer she before disclosd to none.

But

But to her selfe her sorrow did bemone,
 So feelingly her case she did complaine,
 That ruth it moued in the rocky stone,
 And made it seeme to feele her grieuous paine,
 And oft to grone with billowes beating from the maine.

Though vaine I see my sorrowes to vnfold,
 And count my cares, when none is nigh to heare,
 Yet hoping grieffe may lessen being told,
 I will them tell though vnto no man neare:
 For heauen that vnto all lends equall care,
 Is farre from hearing of my heauy plight;
 And lowest hell, to which I lie most neare,
 Cares not what euils hap to wretched wight;
 And greedy seas doe in the spoile of life delight.

Yet loe the seas I see by often beating,
 Doe pearce the rockes, and hardest marble weares;
 But his hard rocky hart for no entreating
 Will yeeld, but when my piteous plaints he heares,
 Is hardned more with my abundant teares.
 Yet though he neuer list to me relent,
 But let me waste in woe my wretched yeares,
 Yet will I neuer of my loue repent,
 But ioy that for his sake I suffer prisonment.

And when my weary ghost with grieffe outworne,
 By timely death shall winne her wished rest,
 Let then this plaint vnto his eares be borne,
 That blame it is to him, that armes profest,
 To let her die, whom he might haue redrest.
 There did she pause, inforced to giue place,
 Vnto the passion, that her heart opprest,
 And after she had wept and wail'd a space,
 She gan afresh thus to renew her wretched case.

Ye Gods of seas, if any Gods at all
 Haue care of right, or ruth of wretches wrong,
 By one or other way me woefull thrall,
 Deliuer hence out of this dungeon strong,
 In which I daily dying am too long.
 And if ye deeme me death for louing one,
 That loues not me, then doe it not prolong,
 But let me die and end my daies attone,
 And let him liue vnlou'd, or loue him selfe alone.

But if that life ye vnto me decree,
 Then let mee liue, as louers ought to do,
 And of my lifes deare loue beloued be:
 And if he shall through pride your doome vndo,
 Do you by duresse him compell thereto,
 And in this prison put him here with me:
 One prison fittest is to hold vs two:
 So had I rather to be thrall, then free;
 Such thraldome or such freedome let it surely be.

But ô vaine iudgement, and conditions vaine,
 The which the prisoner points vnto the free,
 The whiles I him condemne, and deeme his paine,
 He where he list goes loose, and laughs at me.
 So euer loose, so euer happy be.
 But where so loose or happy that thou art,
 Know Marinell that all this is for thee.
 With that she wept and wail'd, as if her hart
 Would quite haue burst through great abūdance of her (smart.

All which complaint when Marinell had heard,
 And vnderstood the cause of all her care
 To come of him, for vsing her so hard,
 His stubborne heart, that neuer felt misfare

Was

Was toucht with soft remorse and pittie rare;
 That euen for grieffe of minde he oft did grone,
 And inly wish, that in his powre it weare
 Her to redresse: but since he meanes found none
 He could no more but her great misery bemone.

Thus whilst his stony heart with tender ruth
 Was toucht, and mighty courage mollifide,
 Dame Venus sonne that tameth stubborne youth
 With iron bit, and maketh him abide,
 Till like a victor on his backe he ride,
 Into his mouth his maystring bridle threw,
 That made him stoupe, till he did him bestride:
 Then gan he make him tread his steps anew,
 And learne to loue, by learning louers paines to rew.

Now gan he in his griued minde deuise,
 How from that dungeon he might her enlarge;
 Some while he thought, by faire and humble wise
 To Proteus selfe to sue for her discharge:
 But then he fear'd his mothers former charge
 Gainst womens loue, long giuen him in vaine.
 Then gan he thinke, perforce with sword and targe
 Her forth to fetch, and Proteus to constraîne:
 But soone he gan such folly to forthinke againe.

Then did he cast to steale her thence away,
 And with him beare, where none of her might know.
 But all in vaine: for why he found no way
 To enter in, or issue forth below:
 For all about that rocke the sea did flow.
 And though vnto his will she giuen were,
 Yet without ship or bote her thence to row,
 He wist not how her thence away to bere;
 And daunger well he wist long to continue there.

At last when as no meanes he could inuent,
 Backe to him selfe; he gan returne the blame,
 That was the author of her punishment;
 And with vile curses, and reprochfull shame
 To damne him selfe by euery euill name;
 And deeme vnworthy or of loue or life,
 That had despisde so chaste and faire a dame,
 Which him had sought through trouble & lōg strife;
 Yet had refusde a God that her had sought to wife.

In this sad plight he walked here and there,
 And romed round about the rocke in vaine,
 As he had lost him selfe, he wist not where;
 Oft listening if he mote her heare againe;
 And still bemoning her vnworthy paine.
 Like as an Hynde whose calfe is falne vnwares
 Into some pit, where she him heares complaine,
 An hundred times about the pit side fares,
 Right sorrowfully mourning her bereaued cares.

And now by this the feast was throughly ended,
 And euery one gan homeward to resort.
 Which seeing Marinell, was sore offended,
 That his departure thence should be so short,
 And leaue his loue in that sea-walled fort.
 Yet durst he not his mother disobay,
 But her attending in full seemly sort,
 Did march amongst the many all the way:
 And all the way did inly mourne, like one astray.

Being returned to his mothers bowre,
 In solitary silence far from wight,
 He gan record the lamentable stowre,
 In which his wretched loue lay day and night,

For his deare sake, that ill deseru'd that plight :
 The thought whereof empierst his hart so deepe,
 That of no worldly thing he tooke delight ;
 Ne dayly food did take, ne nightly sleepe,
 But pyn'd, & mourn'd, & languisht, and alone did weepe.

That in short space his wonted chearefull hew
 Gan fade, and liuely spirits deaded quight :
 His cheeke bones raw, and eie-pits hollow grew,
 And brawney armes had lost their knowen might,
 That nothing like himselfe he seem'd in sight.
 Ere long so weake of limbe, and sicke of loue
 He woxe, that lenger he note stand vpright,
 But to his bed was brought, and layd aboue,
 Like ruefull ghost, vnable once to stirre or moue.

Which when his mother saw, she in her mind
 Was troubled sore, ne wist well what to weene,
 Ne could by search nor any meanes out find
 The secret cause and nature of his teene,
 Whereby she might apply some medicine ;
 But weeping day and night, did him attend,
 And mourn'd to see her losse before her eyne,
 Which grieu'd her more, that she it could not mend :
 To see an helpelesse euill, double grieffe doth lend.

Nought could she read the roote of his disease,
 Ne weene what mister maladie it is,
 Whereby to seeke some meanes it to appease,
 Most did she thinke, but most she thought amis,
 That that same former fatall wound of his Whyleare by Tryphon was not throughly healed,
 But closely rankled vnder th'orifis :
 Least did she thinke, that which he most concealed,
 That loue it was, which in his hart lay vnreuealed.

Therefore to Tryphon she againe doth haſt,
 And him doth chyde as falſe and fraudulent;
 That ſayld the truſt, which ſhe in him had plaſt,
 To cure her ſonne, as he his faith had lent:
 Who now was falne into new languiſhment
 Of his old hurt, which was not thoroughly cured.
 So backe he came vnto her patient,
 Where ſearching euery part, her well aſſured,
 That it was no old ſore, which his new paine procured.

But that it was ſome other maladie,
 Or grieſe vnknowne, which he could not diſcerne:
 So leſt he her withouten remedie.
 Then gan her heart to faint, and quake, and earne,
 And inly troubled was, the truth to learne.
 Vnto himſelfe ſhe came, and him beſought,
 Now with faire ſpeeches, now with threatnings ſterne,
 Ifought lay hidden in his grieued thought,
 It to reueale: who ſtill her answered, there was nought.

Nathleſſe ſhe reſted not ſo ſatisſide,
 But leauing watry gods, as booting nought,
 Vnto the ſhinie heauen in haſte ſhe hide,
 And thence Apollo King of Leaches brought.
Apollo came; who ſoone as he had ſought,
 Through his diſeaſe, did by and by out find,
 That he did languiſh of ſome inward thought,
 The which afflicted his engrieued mind;
 Which loue he red to be, that leads each liuing kind.

Which when he had vnto his mother told,
 She gan thereat to fret, and greatly grieue.
 And comming to her ſonne, gan firſt to ſcold,
 And chyde at him, that made her miſbelieue:

But afterwards she gan him soft to shrieue,
 And woe with faire intreatie, to disclose,
 Which of the Nymphes his heart so fore did mieuē.
 For sure she weend it was some one of those,
 Which he had lately seene, that for his loue he chose.

Now lesse she feared that same fatall read,
 That warned him of womens loue beware:
 Which being ment of mortall creatures sead,
 For loue of Nymphes she thought she need not care,
 But promist him, what euer wight she weare,
 That she her loue, to him would shortly gaine:
 So he her told: but soone as she did heare
 That Florimell it was, which wrought his paine,
 She gan a fresh to chafe, and grieue in euery vaine.

Yet since she saw the streight extremitie,
 In which his life vnluckily was layd,
 It was no time to scan the prophecie,
 Whether old Proteus true or false had sayd,
 That his decay should happen by a mayd.
 It's late in death of daunger to aduize,
 Or loue forbid him, that is life denyd:
 But rather gan in troubled mind deuize,
 How she that Ladies libertie might enterprize.

To Proteus selfe to seue she thought it vaine,
 Who was the root and worker of her woe:
 Nor vnto any meaner to complaine,
 But vnto great king Neptune selfe did goe,
 And on her knee before him falling lowe,
 Made humble suit vnto his Maiestie,
 To graunt to her, her sonnes life, which his foe
 A cruell Tyrant had presumpteouslie
 By wicked doome condemn'd, a wretched death to die.

To whom God Neptune softly smyling, thus ;
 Daughter me seemes of double wrong ye plaine,
 Gainst one that hath both wronged you, and vs:
 For death t'adward I ween'd did appertaine
 To none, but to the seas sole Soueraine.
 Read therefore who it is, which this hath wrought,
 And for what cause ; the truth discover plaine.
 For neuer wight so euill did or thought,
 But would some rightfull cause pretend, though rightly nought.

To whom she answerd, Then it is by name
Proteus, that hath ordayn'd my sonne to die ;
 For that a waift, the which by fortune came
 Vpon your seas, he claym'd as propertie:
 And yet nor his, nor his in equitie,
 But yours the waift by high prerogatiue.
 Therefore I humbly craue your Maiestie,
 It to repleuie, and my sonne repriue :
 So shall you by one gift saue all vs three aliuie.

He graunted it: and streight his warrant made,
 Vnder the Sea-gods seale autenticall,
 Commaunding Proteus straight t'enlarge the mayd,
 Which wandring on his seas imperiall,
 He lately tooke, and sithence kept as thrall.
 Which she receiuing with meete thankfulnessse,
 Departed straight to Proteus therewithall:
 Who reading it with inward loathfulnessse,
 Was grieved to restore the pledge, he did possesse.

Yet durst he not the warrant to withstand,
 But vnto her deliuered Florimell.
 Whom she receiuing by the lilly hand,
 Admir'd her beautie much, as she mote well:

For she all liuing creatures did excell;
 And was right ioyous, that she gotten had
 So faire a wife for her sonne Marinell.
 So home with her she streight the virgin lad,
 And shewed her to him, then being sore bestad.

Who soone as he beheld that angels face,
 Adorn'd with all diuine perfection,
 His cheared heart estfoones away gan chace
 Sad death, reuiued with her sweet inspection,
 And feeble spirit inly felt refection;
 As withered weed through cruell winters tine,
 That feelles the warmth of sunny beames reflection,
 Liftes vp his head, that did before decline
 And gins to spread his leafe before the faire sunshine.

Right so himselfe did Marinell vpreare,
 When he in place his dearest loue did spy;
 And though his limbs could not his bodie beare,
 Ne former strength returne so suddenly,
 Yet chearefull signes he shewed outwardly.
 Ne lesse was she in secret hart affected,
 But that she masked it with modestie,
 For feare she should of lightnesse be detected:
 Which to another place I leaue to be perfected.

THE FIFTH

BOOKE OF THE FAERIE QUEENE.

Contayning,

THE LEGEND OF ARTEGALL OR OF IVSTICE.

SO oft as I with state of present time,
The image of the antique world compare,
When as mans age was in his freshest prime.
And the first blossome of faire vertue bare,
Such oddes I finde twixt those, and these which are,
As that, through long continuance of his course,
Me seemes the world is runne quite out of square,
From the first point of his appointed course,
And being once amisse growes daily wourse and wourse.

For from the golden age, that first was named,
It's now at earst become a stonie one;
And men themselues, the which at first were framed
Of earthly mould, and form'd of flesh and bone,
Are now transformed into hardest stone:
Such as behind their backs (so backward bred)
Were throwne by Pyrrha and Deucalione:
And if then those may any worse be red,
They into that ere long will be degenerated.

Let none then blame me, if in discipline
 Of vertue and of ciuill vses lore,
 I doe not forme them to the common line
 Of present dayes, which are corrupted fore,
 But to the antique vse', which was of yore,
 When good was onely for it selfe desyred,
 And all men fought their owne, and none no more;
 When Iustice was not for most meed outhyred,
 But simple Truth did rayne, and was of all admyred.

For that which all men then did vertue call,
 Is now cald vice; and that which vice was hight,
 Is now hight vertue, and so vs'd of all:
 Right now is wrong, and wrong that was is right,¹
 As all things else in time are chaunged quight.
 Ne wonder; for the heauens reuolution
 Is wandred farre from, where it first was pight,
 And so doe make contrarie constitution
 Of all this lower world, toward his dissolution.

For who so list into the heauens looke,
 And search the courses of the rowling spheares;
 Shall find that from the point, where they first tooke
 Their setting forth, in these few thousand yeares
 They all are wandred much; that plaine appears.
 For that same golden fleecy Ram, which bore
Phrixus and Helle from their stepdames feares,
 Hath now forgot, where he was plast of yore,
 And shouldred hath the Bull, which fayre Europa bore.

And eke the Bull hath with his bow-bent horne
 So hardly butted those two twinnes of Ioue,
 That they haue crusht the Crab, and quite him borne
 Into the great Nemæan lions groue.

So now all range, and doe at randon roue
 Out of their proper places farre away,
 And all this world with them amisse doe moue,
 And all his creatures from their course astray,
 Till they arriue at their last ruinous decay.

Ne is that same great glorious lampe of light,
 That doth enlumine all these lesser fyres,
 In better case, ne keeps his course more right,
 But is miscaried with the other Spheres.
 For since the terme of fourteene hundred yeres,
 That learned Ptolomæ his hight did take,
 He is declyned from that marke of theirs,
 Nigh thirtie minutes to the Southerne lake;
 That makes me feare in time he will vs quite forsake.

And if to those Ægyptian wisards old,
 Which in Star-read were wont haue best insight,
 Faith may be giuen, it is by them told,
 That since the time they first tooke the Sunnes hight,
 Foure times his place he shifted hath in sight,
 And twice hath risen, where he now doth West,
 And wested twice, where he ought rise aright.
 But most is Mars amisse of all the rest,
 And next to him old Saturne, that was wont be best.

For during Saturnes ancient raigne it's sayd,
 That all the world with goodnesse did abound:
 All loued vertue, no man was affrayd
 Of force, ne fraud in wight was to be found:
 No warre was knowne, no dreadfull trompets found,
 Peace vniuersall rayn'd mongst men and beasts,
 And all things freely grew out of the ground:
 Iustice fate high ador'd with solemne feasts,
 And to all people did diuide her dred beheasts.

Most sacred vertue she of all the rest,
 Resembling God in his imperiall might;
 Whose soueraine powre is herein most exprest,
 That both to good and bad he dealeth right,
 And all his workes with Iustice hath bedight.
 That powre he also doth to Princes lend,
 And makes them like himsele in glorious sight,
 To sit in his owne seate, his cause to end,
 And rule his people right, as he doth recommend.

Dread Souerayne Goddesse, that doest highest sit
 In seate of iudgement, in th' Almightyes place,
 And with magnificke might and wondrous wit
 Doest to thy people righteous doome aread,
 That furthest Nations filles with awfull dread,
 Pardon the boldnesse of thy basest thrall,
 That dare discourse of so diuine a read,
 As thy great iustice praysed ouer all:
 The instrument whereof loe here thy Arte gall.

CANT.

Cant. I.

*Artegall trayn'd in Iustice lore
 Irenaes quest purfewed,
 He doeth auenge on Sanglier his Ladies bloud embrewed.*

Though vertue then were held in highest price,
 In those old times, of which I doe intreat,
 Yet then likewise the wicked seede of vice
 Began to spring which shortly grew full great,
 And with their boughes the gentle plants did beat.
 But euermore some of the vertuous race
 Rose vp, inspired with heroicke heat,
 That cropt the branches of the sient base,
 And with strong hand their fruitfull rancknes did deface.

Such first was Bacchus, that with furious might
 All th'East before vntam'd did ouerronne,
 And wrong repressed, and establisht right,
 Which lawlesse men had formerly fordonne.
 There Iustice first her princely rule begonne.
 Next Hercules his like ensample shewed,
 Who all the West with equall conquest wonne,
 And monstrous tyrants with his club subdewed;
 The club of Iustice dread, with kingly powre endewed.

And such was he, of whom I haue to tell,
 The Champion of true Iustice Artegall.
 Whom (as ye lately inote remember well)
 An hard aduventure, which did then befall,

Into redoubted perill forth did call;
 That was to succour a distressed Dame,
 Whom a strong tyrant did vniustly thrall,
 And from the heritage, which she did clame,
 Did with strong hand withhold: Grantorto was his name.

Wherefore the Lady, which Eirena hight,
 Did to the Faery Queene her way addressse,
 To whom complayning her afflicted plight,
 She her besought of gracious redresse.
 That soueraine Queene, that mightie Emperesse,
 Whose glorie is to aide all suppliants pore,
 And of weake Princes to be Patronesse,
 Chose Artegall to right her to restore;
 For that to her he seem'd best skild in righteous lore.

For Artegall in iustice was vpbrought
 Euen from the cradle of his infancie,
 And all the depth of rightfull doome was taught
 By faire Astraea, with great industrie,
 Whilest here on earth she liued mortallie.
 For till the world from his perfection fell
 Into all filth and foule iniquitie,
Astraea here mongst earthly men did dwell,
 And in the rules of iustice them instructed well.

Whiles through the world she walked in this sort,
 Vpon a day she found this gentle childe,
 Amongst his peres playing his childish sport:
 Whom seeing fit, and with no crime defilde,
 She did allure with gifts and speaches milde,
 To wend with her. So thence him farre she brought Into a caue from companie exile,
 In which she nourshed him, till yeares he raught,
 And all the discipline of iustice there him taught.

There

There she him taught to weigh both right and wrong
 In equall ballance with due recompence,
 And equitie to measure out along,
 According to the line of conscience,
 When so it needs with rigour to dispence.
 Of all the which, for want there of mankind,
 She caused him to make experience
 Vpon wyld beasts, which she in woods did find,
 With wrongfull powre oppressing others of their kind.

Thus she him trayned, and thus she him taught,
 In all the skill of deeming wrong and right,
 Vntill the ripenessse of mans yeares he raught;
 That euen wilde beasts did feare his awfull sight,
 And men admyr'd his ouerruling might;
 Ne any liu'd on ground, that durst withstand
 His dreadfull heast, much lesse him match in fight,
 Or bide the horror of his wreakfull hand,
 When so he list in wrath list vp his steely brand.

Which steely brand, to make him dreaded more,
 She gaue vnto him, gotten by her slight
 And earnest searck, where it was kept in store
 In Ioues eternall house, vnwist of wight,
 Since he himselfe it vs'd in that great fight
 Against the Titans, that whylome rebelled
 Gainst highest heauen; Chrysaor it was hight;
Chrysaor that all other swords excelled,
 Well prou'd in that same day, when Ioue those Gyants quelled.

For of most perfect metall it was made,
 Tempred with Adamant amongst the same,
 And garnisht all with gold vpon the blade
 In goodly wise, whereof it tooke his name,

And was of no lesse vertue, then of fame.

For there no substance was so firme and hard,
But it would pierce or cleaue, where so it came;
Ne any armour could his dint out ward,
But wheresoeuer it did light, it throughly shard.

Now when the world with sinne gan to abound,
Astraea loathing lenger here to space
Mongst wicked men, in whom no truth she found,
Return'd to heauen, whence she deriu'd her race;
Where she hath now an euerlasting place,
Mongst those twelue signes, which nightly we doe see
The heauens bright-shining baudricke to enchace;
And is the Virgin, sixt in her degree,
And next her selfe her righteous ballance hanging bee.

But when she parted hence, she left her groome
An yron man, which did on her attend
Always, to execute her stedfast doome,
And willed him with Artegall to wend,
And doe what euer thing he did intend.
His name was Talus, made of yron mould,
Immoueable, resistlesse, without end,
Who in his hand an yron flae did hould,
With which he threst out falshood, and did truth vn-fould.

He now went with him in this new inquest,
Him for to aide, if aide he chaunst to neede,
Against that cruell Tyrant, which opprest
The faire Irena with his foule misdeede,
And kept the crowne in which she should succeed.
And now together on their way they bin,
When as they saw a Squire in squallid weed,
Lamenting sore his sorowfull sad tyne,
With many bitter teares shed from his blubbred eyne.

To whom as they approched, they espide
 A forie sight, as euer seene with eye;
 An headlesse Ladie lying him beside,
 In her owne blood all wallow'd wofully,
 That her gay clothes did in discolour die.
 Much was he moued at that ruefull sight;
 And flam'd with zeale of vengeance inwardly,
 He askt, who had that Dame so fouly dight;
 Or whether his owne hand, or whether other wight?

Ah woe is me, and well away (quoth hee)
 Bursting forth teares, like springs out of a banke,
 That euer I this dismall day did see:
 Full farre was I from thinking such a pranke;
 Yet litle losse it were, and mickle thanke,
 If I should graunt that I haue doen the same,
 That I mote drinke the cup, whereof she dranke:
 But that I should die guiltie of the blame,
 The which another did, who now is fled with shame.

Who was it then (sayd Artegall) that wrought?
 And why, doe it declare vnto me trew.
 A knight (said he) if knight he may be thought,
 That did his hand in Ladies bloud embrew,
 And for no cause, but as I shall you shew.
 This day as I in solace fate hereby
 With a fayre loue, whose losse I now do rew,
 There came this knight, hauing in companie
 This lucklesse Ladie, which now here doth headlesse lie.

He, whether mine seem'd fayrer in his eye,
 Or that he wexed weary of his owne,
 Would change with me; but I did it denye;
 So did the Ladies both, as may be knowne,

But he, whose spirit was with pride vpblowne,
 Would not so rest contented with his right,
 But hauing from his courser her downe throwne,
 Fro me rest mine away by lawlesse might,
 And on his steed her set, to beare her out of sight,

Which when his Ladie saw, she follow'd fast,
 And on him catching hold, gan loud to crie
 Not so to leaue her, nor away to cast,
 But rather of his hand besought to die.
 With that his sword he drew all wrathfully,
 And at one stroke cropt off her head with scorne,
 In that same place, whereas it now doth lie.
 So he my loue away with him hath borne,
 And left me here, both his & mine owne loue to morne,

Aread (sayd he) which way then did he make?
 And by what markes may he be knowne againe?
 To hope (quoth he) him soone to ouertake,
 That hence so long departed, is but vaine:
 But yet he pricked ouer yonder plaine,
 And as I marked, bore vpon his shield,
 By which it's easie him to know againe,
 A broken sword within a bloodie field;
 Expressing well his nature, which the same did wield.

No sooner sayd, but streight he after sent
 His yron page, who him pursew'd so light,
 As that it seem'd about the ground he went:
 For he was swift as swallow in her flight,
 And strong as Lyon in his Lordly might.
 It was not long, before he ouertooke
 Sir Sanglier; (so cleped was that Knight)
 Whom at the first he ghesped by his looke,
 And by the other markes, which of his shield he tooke.

He bad him stay, and backe with him retire ;
 Who full of scorne to be commaunded so,
 The Lady to alight did est require,
 Whilest he reformed that vnciuill fo :
 And streight at him with all his force did go.
 Who mou'd no more therewith, then when a rocke
 Is lightly stricken with some stones throw ;
 But to him leaping, lent him such a knocke,
 That on the ground he layd him like a fencelesse blocke.

But ere he could him selfe recure againe,
 Him in his iron paw he seized had ;
 That when he wak't out of his warelesse paine,
 He found him selfe vnwist, so ill bestad,
 That lim he could not wag. Thence he him lad,
 Bound like a beast appointed to the stall :
 The sight whereof the Lady fore adrad,
 And fain'd to fly for feare of being thrall ;
 But he her quickly stayd, and forst to wend withall.

When to the place they came, where Artegall
 By that same carefull Squire did then abide,
 He gently gan him to demaund of all,
 That did betwixt him and that Squire betide.
 Who with sterne countenance and indignat pride
 Did aunswere, that of all he guiltlesse stood,
 And his accuser thereupon deside:
 For neither he did shed that Ladies bloud,
 Nor tooke away his loue, but his owne proper good.

Well did the Squire perceiue him selfe too weake,
 To aunswere his defiaunce in the field,
 And rather chose his challenge off to breake,
 Then to approue his right with speare and shield.

And rather guilty chose him selfe to yield.
 But Artegall by signes perceiuing plaine,
 That he it was not, which that Lady kild,
 But that strange Knight, the fairer loue to gaine,
 Did cast about by sleight the truth thereout to straine.

And sayd, now sure this doubtfull causes right
 Can hardly but by Sacrament be tride,
 Or else by ordele, or by bloody fight;
 That ill perhaps mote fall to either side.
 But if ye please, that I your cause decide,
 Perhaps I may all further quarrell end,
 So ye will sweare my iudgement to abide.
 Thereto they both did frankly condescend,
 And to his doome with listfull eares did both attend.

Sith then (sayd he) ye both the dead deny,
 And both the liuing Lady claime your right,
 Let both the dead and liuing equally
 Deuided be betwixt you here in fight,
 And each of either take his share aright.
 But looke who does dissent from this my read,
 He for a twelue moneths day shall in despite Beare for his penaunce that same Ladies head;
 To witnesse to the world, that she by him is dead.

Well pleased with that doome was Sangliere,
 And offred streight the Lady to be slaine.
 But that same Squire, to whom she was more dere,
 When as he saw she should be cut in twaine,
 Did yield, she rather should with him remaine
 Aliue, then to him selfe be shared dead;
 And rather then his loue should suffer paine,
 He chose with shame to beare that Ladies head.
 True loue despiseth shame, when life is cald in dread.

Whom

Whom when so willing Artegall perceaued;
 Not so thou Squire, (he sayd) but thine I deeme
 The liuing Lady, which from thee he reaued:
 For worthy thou of her doest rightly sceme.
 And you, Sir Knight, that loue so light esteeme,
 As that ye would for little leaue the same,
 Take here your owne, that doth you best beseeme,
 And with it beare the burden of defame;
 Your owne dead Ladies head, to tell abroad your shame.

But Sangliere disdaind much his doome,
 And sternly gan repine at his beheast;
 Ne would for ought obay, as did become,
 To beare that Ladies head before his breast.
 Vntill that Talus had his pride represt,
 And forced him, maulgre, it vp to reare.
 Who when he saw it bootelesse to resist,
 He tooke it vp, and thence with him did beare,
 As rated Spaniell takes his burden vp for feare.

Much did that Squire Sir Artegall adore,
 For his great iustice, held in high regard;
 And as his Squire him offred euermore
 To serue, for want of other meete reward;
 And wend with him on his aduecture hard.
 But he thereto would by no meanes consent;
 But leauing him forth on his iourney far'd:
 Ne wight with him but onely Talus went.
 They two enough t'encounter an whole Regiment.

Cant. II.

*Artegall heares of Florimell,
Does with the Pagan fight:
Him slaies, drownes Lady Momea,
Does race her castle quight.*

NOught is more honorable to a knight,
Ne better doth besee me braue cheualry,
Then to defend the feeble in their right,
And wrong redresse in such as wend awry.
Whilome those great Heroes got thereby
Their greatest glory, for their rightfull deedes,
And place deserued with the Gods on hy.
Herein the nobleffe of this knight exceedes,
Who now to perils great for iustice sake proceedes.

To which as he now was vppon the way,
He chaunst to meet a Dwarfe in hasty course;
Whom he requir'd his forward hast to stay,
Till he of tidings mote with him discourse.
Loth was the Dwarfe, yet did he stay perorse,
And gan of sundry newes his store to tell,
And to his memory they had recourse:
But chiefly of the fairest Florimell,
How she was found againe, and spousde to Marinell.

For this was Dony, Florimels owne Dwarfe,
Whom hauing lost (as ye haue heard whyleare)
And finding in the way the scattred scarfe,
The fortune of her life long time did feare.

But of her health when Artegall did heare,
 And safe returne, he was full inly glad,
 And askt him where, and when her bridale cheare
 Should be solemniz'd: for if time he had,
 He would be there, and honor to her spousall ad.

Within three daies (quoth she) as I do here,
 It will be at the Castle of the strond;
 What time if naught me let, I will be there
 To doe her seruice, so as I am bond.
 But in my way a little here beyond
 A cursed cruell Sarazin doth wonne,
 That keeps a Bridges passage by strong hond,
 And many errant Knights hath there fordonne;
 That makes all men for feare that passage for to shonne.

What mister wight (quoth he) and how far hence
 Is he, that doth to trauellers such harmes?
 He is (said he) a man of great defence;
 Expert in battell and in deedes of armes;
 And more emboldned by the wicked charmes,
 With which his daughter doth him still support,
 Hauing great Lordships got and goodly farmes,
 Through strong oppression of his powre extort;
 By which he stil them holds, & keepses with strong effort.

And dayly he his wrongs encreaseth more,
 For neuer wight he lets to passe that way;
 Ouer his Bridge, albee he rich or poore,
 But he him makes his passage-penny pay:
 Else he doth hold him backe or beat away.
 Thereto he hath a groome of euill guize,
 Whose scalp is bare, that bondage doth bewray,
 Which pols and pils the poore in piteous wize;
 But he him selfe vppon the rich doth tyrannize.

His name is hight Pollente, rightly so
 For that he is so puissant and strong,
 That with his powre he all doth ouergo,
 And makes them subiect to his mighty wrong;
 And some by sleight he eke doth vnderfong.
 For on a Bridge he custometh to fight,
 Which is but narrow, but exceeding long;
 And in the same are many trap fals pight, (sight
 Through which the rider downe doth fall through ouer-

And vnderneath the same a riuer flowes,
 That is both swift and dangerous deepe withall;
 Into the which whom so he ouerthrowes,
 All destitute of helpe doth headlong fall,
 But he him selfe, through practise visuall,
 Leapes forth into the floud, and there assaies
 His foe confused through his sodaine fall,
 That horse and man he equally dismaies,
 And either both them drownes, or trayterously slaies.

Then doth he take the spoile of them at will,
 And to his daughter brings, that dwels thereby:
 Who all that comes doth take, and therewith fill
 The coffers of her wicked threasury;
 Which she with wrongs hath heaped vp so hy,
 That many Princes she in wealth exceeds,
 And purchast all the countrey lying ny
 With the reuenue of her plenteous meedes,
 Her name is Munera, agreeing with her deedes.

Thereto she is full faire, and rich attired,
 With golden hands and siluer feete beside,
 That many Lords haue her to wife desired:
 But she them all despiseth for great pride.

Now

Now by my life (sayd he) and God to guide,
 None other way will I this day betake,
 But by that Bridge, whereas he doth abide:
 Therefore me thither lead. No more he spake,
 But thitherward forthright his ready way did make.

Vnto the place he came within a while,
 Where on the Bridge he ready armed saw
 The Sarazin, awayting for some spoile.
 Who as they to the passage gan to draw,
 A villaine to them came with scull all raw,
 That passage money did of them require,
 According to the custome of their law.
 To whom he aunswerd wroth, loe there thy hire;
 And with that word him strooke, that streight he did ex(pire.

Which when the Pagan saw, he waxed wroth,
 And streight him selfe vnto the fight adrest,
 Newas Sir Artegall behinde: so both
 Together ran with ready speares in rest.
 Right in the midst, whereas they brest to brest
 Should meete, a trap was letten downe to fall
 Into the floud: streight leapt the Carle vnblest,
 Well weening that his foe was false withall:
 But he was well aware, and leapt before his fall.

There being both together in the floud,
 They each at other tyrannously flew;
 Ne ought the water cooled their whot blood,
 But rather in them kindled choler new.
 But there the Paynim, who that vse well knew
 To fight in water, great aduantage had,
 That oftentimes him nigh he ouerthrew:
 And eke the courser, whereuppon he rad,
 Could swim like to a fish, whiles he his backe bestrad.

Which oddes when as Sir Artegall espide,
 He saw no way, but close with him in hast;
 And to him driuing strongly downe the tide,
 Vppon his iron coller griped fast,
 That with the straint his wesand nigh he braist.
 There they together stroue and struggled long,
 Either the other from his steede to cast;
 Ne euer Artegall his griple strong
 For any thing wold slacke, but still vppon him hong.

As when a Dolphin and a Sele are met,
 In the wide champian of the Ocean plaine:
 With cruell chaufe their courages they whet,
 The maysterdome of each by force to gaine,
 And dreadfull battaile twixt them do darraine:
 They snuf, they snort, they boūce, they rage, they rore,
 That all the sea disturbed with their traine,
 Doth frie with some about the surges hore.
 Such was betwixt these two the troublesome vprore.

So Artegall at length him forst forsake
 His horses backe, for dread of being drown'd,
 And to his handy swimming him betake.
 Eftsoones him selfe he from his hold vnbownd,
 And then no ods at all in him he fownd:
 For Artegall in swimming skilfull was,
 And durst the depth of any water fownd.
 So ought each Knight, that vse of perill has,
 In swimming be expert through waters force to pas.

Then very doubtfull was the warres euent,
 Vncertaine whether had the better side:
 For both were skildin that experiment,
 And both in armes well trained and throughly tride.

But

But Art egall was better breath'd beside,
 And towards th'end, grew greater in his might,
 That his faint foe no longer could abide
 His puiffance, ne beare him selfe vpright,
 But from the water to the land betooke his flight.

But Art egall purfewd him still so neare,
 With bright Chrysaor in his cruell hand,
 That as his head he gan a litle reare
 About the brincke, to tread vpon the land,
 He smote it off, that tumbling on the strand
 It bit the earth for very fell despight,
 And gnashed with his teeth, as if he band
 High God, whose goodnesse he despaired quight,
 Or curst the hand, which did that vengeaunce on him dight

His corps was carried downe along the Lee,
 Whose waters with his filthy bloud it stayned:
 But his blasphemous head, that all might see,
 He pitcht vpon a pole on high ordayned;
 Where many years it afterwards remayned,
 To be a mirrour to all mighty men,
 In whose right hands great power is contayned,
 That none of them the feeble ouerren,
 But alwaies doe their powre within iust compasse pen.

That done, vnto the Castle he did wend,
 In which the Paynims daughter did abide,
 Guarded of many which did her defend:
 Of whom he entrance sought, but was denide,
 And with reprochfull blasphemy deside,
 Beaten with stones downe from the battilment,
 That he was forced to withdraw aside;
 And bad his seruant Talus to inuent
 Which way he enter might, without endangerment.

Eftsoones his Page drew to the Castle gate,
 And with his iron flae at it let flie,
 That all the warders it did fore amate,
 The which erewhile spake so reprochfully,
 And made them stoupe, that looked earst so hie.
 Yet still he bet, and bounst vpon the dore,
 And thundred strokes thereon so hideouslie,
 That all the peece he shaked from the flore,
 And filled all the house with feare and great vprore.

With noife whereof the Lady forth appeared
 Vpon the Castle wall, and when she saw
 The daungerous state, in which she stood, she feared
 The sad effect of her neare ouerthrow;
 And gan eptreat that iron man below,
 To cease his outrage, and him faire besought,
 Sith neither force of stones which they did throw,
 Nor powr of charms, which she against him wrought,
 Might otherwise preuaile, or make him cease for ought.

But when as yet she saw him to proceede,
 Vnmou'd with praiers, or with piteous thought,
 She ment him to corrupt with goodly meede;
 And causde great sakes with endlesse riches fraught,
 Vnto the battilment to be vpbrought,
 And powred forth ouer the Castle wall,
 That she might win some time, though dearly bought
 Whilest he to gathering of the gold did fall.
 But he was nothing mou'd, nor tempted therewithall.

But still continu'd his assault the more,
 And layd on load with his huge yron flae,
 That at the length he has yrent the dore,
 And made way for his maister to assaile.

Who

Who being entred, nought did then auaille
 For wight, against his powre them selues to reare:
 Each one did flie; their hearts began to faile,
 And hid them selues in corners here and there;
 And eke their dame halfe dead did hide her self for feare.

Long they her fought, yet no where could they finde her,
 That sure they ween'd she was escapt away:
 But Talus, that could like a limehound winde her,
 And all things secrete wisely could bewray,
 At length found out, whereas she hidden lay
 Vnder an heape of gold. Thence he her drew
 By the faire lockes, and fowly did array,
 Withouten pittie of her goodly hew,
 That Artegall him selfe her seemelesse plight did rew.

Yet for no pittie would he change the course
 Of Iustice, which in Talus hand did lye,
 Who rudely hayld her forth without remorse,
 Still holding vp her suppliant hands on hye,
 And kneeling at his feete submissiuely.
 But he her suppliant hands, those hands of gold,
 And eke her feete, those feete of siluer trye,
 Which sought vnrighteousnesse, and iustice sold,
 Chopt off, and nayld on high, that all might the behold.

Her selfe then tooke he by the slender wast,
 In vaine loud crying, and into the flood
 Ouer the Castle wall adowne her cast,
 And there her drowned in the durty mud:
 But the streame washt away her guilty blood.
 Thereafter all that mucky pelfe he tooke,
 The spoile of peoples euill gotten good;
 The which her sire had scrap't by hooke and crooke,
 And burning all to ashes, powr'd it downe the brooke.

And lastly all that Castle quite he raced,
 Euen from the sole of his foundation,
 And all the hewen stones thereof defaced,
 That there mote be no hope of reparation,
 Nor memory thereof to any nation.
 All which when Talus throughly had performed,
 Sir Artegall vndid the euill fashion,
 And wicked customes of that Bridge reformed.
 Which done, vnto his former iourney he returned.

In which they measur'd mickle weary way,
 Till that at length nigh to the sea they drew;
 By which as they did trauell on a day,
 They saw before them, far as they could vew,
 Full many people gathered in a crew;
 Whose great assembly they did much admire.
 For neuer there the like resort they knew.
 So towards them they coasted, to enquire
 What thing so many nations met, did there desire.

There they beheld a mighty Gyant stand
 Vpon a rocke, and holding forth on hie
 An huge great paire of ballance in his hand,
 With which he boasted in his surquedrie,
 That all the world he would weigh equallie,
 Ifought he had the same to counterpoys.
 For want whereof he weighed vanity,
 And fild his ballaunce full of idle toys:
 Yet was admired much of fooles, women, and boys.

He sayd that he would all the earth vptake,
 And all the sea, deuided each from either:
 So would he of the fire one ballaunce make,
 And one of th'ayre, without or wind, or wether:
 Then

Then would he ballaunce heauen and hell together,
 And all that did within them all containe;
 Of all whose weight, he would not misse a fether.
 And looke what surplus did of each remaine,
 He would to his owne part restore the same againe.

For why, he sayd they all vnequall were,
 And had encroched vppon others share,
 Like as the sea (which plaine he shewed there)
 Had worne the eare, so did the fire the aire,
 So all the rest did others parts empaire.
 And so were realmes and nations run awry.
 All which he vnderooke for to repaire,
 In fort as they were formed aunciently;
 And all things would reduce vnto equality.

Therefore the vulgar did about him flocke,
 And cluster thicke vnto his leasings vaine,
 Like foolish flies about an hony crocke,
 In hope by him great benefite to gaine,
 And vncontrolled freedome to obtaine.
 All which when Artegall did see, and heare,
 How he mis-led the simple peoples traine,
 In sdeignfull wize he drew vnto him neare,
 And thus vnto him spake, without regard or feare.

Thou that presum'st to weigh the world anew,
 And all things to an equall to restore,
 In stead of right me seemes great wrong dost shew,
 And far about thy forces pitch to fore.
 For ere thou limit what is lesse or more
 In euery thing, thou oughtest first to know,
 What was the poyse of euery part of yore:
 And looke then how much it doth ouerflow,
 Or faile thereof, so much is more then iust to trow.

For at the first they all created were

In goodly measure, by their Makers might,
And weighed out in ballaunces so nere,
That not a dram was missing of their right,
The earth was in the middle centre pight,
In which it doth immoueable abide,

Hemd in with waters like a wall in sight;

And they with aire, that not a drop can slide:
Al which the heauens containe, & in their courses guide.

Such heauenly iustice doth among them raine,

That euery one doe know their certaine bound,

In which they doe these many yeares remaine,

And mongst them al no change hath yet beene found.

But if thou now shouldst weigh them new in pound,

We are not sure they would so long remaine:

All change is perillous, and all chaunce vnfound.

Therefore leaue off to weigh them all againe,

Till we may be assur'd they shall their course retaine.

Thou foolishhe Elfe (said then the Gyant wroth)

Seest not, how badly all things present bee,

And each estate quite out of order goth?

The sea it selfe doest thou not plainely see

Encroch vpon the land there vnder thee;

And th'earth it selfe how daily its increast,

By all that dying to it turned be.

Were it not good that wrong were then surceast,

And from the most, that some were giuen to the least?

Therefore I will throw downe these mountaines hie,

And make them leuell with the lowly plaine:

These towring rocks, which reach vnto the skie,

I will thrust downe into the deepest maine,

And

And as they were, them equalize againe.
 Tyrants that make men subiect to their law,
 I will suppress, that they no more may raine;
 And Lordings curbe, that commons ouer-aw;
 And all the wealth of rich men to the poore will draw.

Of things vnseene how canst thou deeme aright,
 Then answered the righteous Artegall,
 Sith thou misdeem'st so much of things in sight?
 What though the sea with waues continuall
 Doe eat the earth, it is no more at all:
 Ne is the earth the lesse, or loseth ought,
 For whatsoever from one place doth fall,
 Is with the tide vnto an other brought:
 For there is nothing lost, that may be found, if sought.

Likewise the earth is not augmented more,
 By all that dying into it doe fade.
 For of the earth they formed were of yore,
 How euer gay their blossome or their blade
 Doe flourish now, they into dust shall vade.
 What wrong then is it, if that when they die,
 They turne to that, whereof they first were made?
 All in the powre of their great Maker lie:
 All creatures must obey the voice of the most hie.

They liue, they die, like as he doth ordaine,
 Ne euer any asketh reason why.
 The hils doe not the lowly dales disdain;
 The dales doe not the lofty hils enuy.
 He maketh Kings to sit in souerainty;
 He maketh subiects to their powre obay;
 He pulleth downe, he setteth vp on hy;
 He giues to this, from that he takes away.
 For all we haue is his: what he list doe, he may.

What euer thing is done, by him is donne,
 Ne any may his mighty will withstand;
 Ne any may his soueraine power shonne,
 Ne loose that he hath bound with stedfast band.
 In vaine therefore doest thou now take in hand,
 To call to count, or weigh his workes anew,
 Whose counsels depth thou canst not vnderstand,
 Sith of things subiect to thy daily vew
 Thou doest not know the causes, nor their courses dew.

For take thy ballaunce, if thou be so wise,
 And weigh the winde, that vnder heauen doth blow;
 Or weigh the light, that in the East doth rise;
 Or weigh the thought, that frō mans mind doth flow.
 But if the weight of these thou canst not show,
 Weigh but one word which from thy lips doth fall.
 For how canst thou those greater secrets know,
 That doest not know the least thing of them all?
 Ill can he rule the great, that cannot reach the small.

Therewith the Gyant much abashed sayd;
 That he of little things made reckoning light,
 Yet the least word that euer could be layd
 Within his ballaunce, he could way aright.
 Which is (sayd he) more heauy then in weight,
 The right or wrong, the false or else the trew?
 He answered, that he would try it streight,
 So he the words into his ballaunce threw,
 But streight the winged words out of his ballaunce flew.

Wroth wext he then, and sayd, that words were light,
 Ne would within his ballaunce well abide.
 But he could iustly weigh the wrong or right.
 Well then, sayd Artegall, let it be tride.

First in one ballance set the true aside.
 He did so first; and then the false he layd
 In th'other scale; but still it downe did slide,
 And by no meane could in the weight be stayd.
 For by no meanes the false will with the truth be wayd.

Now take the right likewise, sayd Artegale,
 And counterpeise the same with so much wrong.
 So first the right he put into one scale;
 And then the Gyant stroue with puissance strong
 To fill the'other scale with so much wrong.
 But all the wrongs that he therein could lay,
 Might not it peise; yet did he labour long,
 And swat, and chauf'd, and proued euery way:
 Yet all the wrongs could not a litle right downe way.

Which when he saw, he greatly grew in rage,
 And almost would his balances haue broken;
 But Artegall him fairely gan asswage,
 And said; be not vpon thy balance wroken:
 For they doe nought but right or wrong betoken;
 But in the mind the doome of right must bee;
 And so likewise of words, the which be spoken,
 The eare must be the ballance, to decree
 And iudge, whether with truth or falshood they agree.

But set the truth and set the right aside,
 For they with wrong or falshood will not fare;
 And put two wrongs together to be tride,
 Or else two falses, of each equall share;
 And then together doe them both compare.
 For truth is one, and right is euer one.
 So did he, and then plaine it did appeare,
 Whether of them the greater were attone.
 But right sate in the midst of the beame alone.

But he the right from thence did thrust away,
 For it was not the right, which he did seeke;
 But rather stroue extremities to way,
 Th'one to diminish, th'other for to eeke.
 For of the meane he greatly did misleeke.
 Whom when so lewdly minded Talus found,
 Approching nigh vnto him cheeke by cheeke,
 He shouldered him from off the higher ground,
 And down the rock him throwing, in the sea him dround.

Like as a ship, whom cruell tempest driues
 Vpon a rocke with horrible dismay,
 Her shattered ribs in thousand peeces riuies,
 And spoyling all her geares and goodly ray,
 Does makes her selfe misfortunes piteous pray.
 So downe the cliffe the wretched Gyant tumbled;
 His battred ballances in peeces lay,
 His timbered bones all broken rudely rumbled,
 So was the high aspyring with huge ruine humbled.

That when the people, which had there about
 Long wayted, saw his sudden desolation,
 They gan to gather in tumultuous rout,
 And mutining, to stirre vp ciuill faction,
 For certaine losse of so great expectation.
 For well they hoped to haue got great good;
 And wondrous riches by his innouation.
 Therefore resoluing to reuenge his blood,
 They rose in armes, and all in battell order stood.

Which lawlesse multitude him comming too
 In warlike wise, when Artegall did vew,
 He much was troubled, ne wist what to doo.
 For loth he was his noble hands t'embrew

In the base blood of such a rascall crew ;
 And otherwise, if that he should retire,
 He fear'd least they with shame would him pursew.
 Therefore he Talus to them sent, t'inquire
 The cause of their array, and truce for to desire.

But soone as they him nigh approaching spide,
 They gan with all their weapons him assay,
 And rudely stroke at him on euery side :
 Yet nought they could him hurt, ne ought dismay.
 But when at them he with his flaile gan lay,
 He like a swarme of flyes them ouerthrew ;
 Ne any of them durst come in his way,
 But here and there before his presence flew,
 And hid themselues in holes and bushes from his vew.

As when a Faulcon hath with nimble flight
 Flowne at a flush of Ducks, foreby the brooke,
 The trembling foule dismayd with dreadfull sight
 Of death, the which them almost ouertooke,
 Doe hide themselues from her astonying looke,
 Amongst the flags and couert round about.
 When Talus saw they all the field forfooke
 And none appear'd of all that raskall rout,
 To Artegall he turn'd, and went with him throughout.

Cant. III.

The spousals of faire Florimell,
 where turney many knights:
 There Braggadochio is vncas'd in all the Ladies sights.

After long stormes and tempests ouerblowne,
 The sunne at length his ioyous face doth cleare:
 So when as fortune all her spight hath showne,
 Some blisfull houres at last must needes appeare;
 Else should afflicted wights oftymes despeire.
 So comes it now to Florimell by tourne,
 After long sorrowes suffered whyleare,
 In which captiu'd the many moneths did mourne,
 To tast of ioy, and to wont pleasures to retourne.

Who being freed from Proteus cruell band
 By Marimell, was vnto him affide,
 And by him brought againe to Faerie land;
 Where he her spouf'd, and made his ioyous bride.
 The time and place was blazed farre and wide;
 And solemne feasts and giusts ordain'd therefore.
 To which there did resort from euery side
 Of Lords and Ladies infinite great store;
 Ne any Knight was absent, that braue courage bore.

To tell the glorie of the feast that day,
 The goodly seruice, the deuicefull sights,
 The bridegromes state, the brides most rich aray,
 The pride of Ladies, and the worth of knights,

The royall banquets, and the rare delights
 Were worke fit for an Herauld, not for me:
 But for so much as to my lot here lights,
 That with this present treatise doth agree,
 True vertue to aduance, shall here recounted bee.

When all men had with full fatietie
 Of meates and drinckes their appetites sustiz'd,
 To deedes of armes and prooffe of cheualrie
 They gan themselues addresse, full rich aguiz'd,
 As each one had his furnitures deuiz'd.
 And first of all issu'd Sir Marinell,
 And with him fixe knights more, which enterpriz'd
 To chalenge all in right of Florimell,
 And to maintaine, that she all others did excell.

The first of them was hight Sir Orimont,
 A noble Knight, and tride in hard assayes:
 The second had to name Sir Bellifont,
 But second vnto none in prowesse prayse;
 The third was Brunell, famous in his dayes;
 The fourth Ecastor, of exceeding might;
 The fift Armeddan, skild in louely layes;
 The sixt was Lausack, a redoubted Knight:
 All fixe well seene in armes, and prou'd in many a fight.

And them against came all that list to giust,
 From euery coast and countrie vnder sunne:
 None was debar'd, but all had leaue that lust.
 The trompets sound; then all together ronne.
 Full many deedes of armes that day were donne,
 And many knights vnhorst, and many wounded,
 As fortune fell; yet litle lost or wonne:
 But all that day the greatest prayse redounded
 To Marinell, whose name the Heralds loud resounded.

The second day, so soone as morrow light
 Appear'd in heauen, into the field they came,
 And there all day continew'd cruell fight,
 With diuers fortune fit for such a game,
 In which all stroue with perill to winne fame.
 Yet whether side was victor, note be ghest:
 But at the last the trumpets did proclame
 That Marinell that day deserued best.
 So they disparted were, and all men went to rest.

The third day came, that should due tryall lend
 Of all the rest, and then this warlike crew
 Together met, of all to make an end.
 There Marinell great deeds of armes did shew;
 And through the thickest like a Lyon flew,
 Rashing off helmes, and rying plates a sonder,
 That euery one his daunger did eschew.
 So terribly his dreadfull strokes did thonder,
 That all men stood amaz'd, & at his might did wonder.

But what on earth can alwayes happie stand?
 The greater prowesse greater perils find.
 So farre he past amongst his enemies band,
 That they haue him enclosed so behind,
 As by no meanes he can himselfe outwind.
 And now perforce they haue him prisoner taken;
 And now they doe with captiue bands him bind;
 And now they lead him thence, of all forsaken,
 Vnlesse some succour had in time him ouertaken.

It fortun'd whylest they were thus ill beset,
 Sir Artegall into the Tilt-yard came,
 With Braggadocchio, whom he lately met
 Vpon the way, with that his snowy Dame.

Where

Where when he vnderstood by common fame,
 What euill hap to Marinell betid,
 He much was mou'd at so vnworthie shame,
 And streight that boaster prayd, with whom he rid,
 To change his shield with him, to be the better hid.

So forth he went, and soone them ouer hent,
 Where they were leading Marinell away,
 Whom he assayld with dreadlesse hardiment,
 And forst the burden of their prize to stay.
 They were an hundred knights of that array;
 Of which th'one halfe vpon himselfe did set,
 Th'other stayd behind to gard the pray.
 But he ere long the former fiftie bet;
 And from th'other fiftie soone the prisoner fet.

So backe he brought Sir Marinell againe;
 Whom hauing quickly arm'd againe anew,
 They both together ioyned might and maine,
 To set afresh on all the other crew.
 Whom with fore hauocke soone they ouerthrew,
 And chaced quite out of the field, that none
 Against them durst his head to perill shew.
 So were they left Lords of the field alone:
 So Marinell by him was rescu'd from his sone.

Which when he had perform'd, then backe againe
 To Braggadocchio did his shield restore:
 Who all this while behind him did remaine,
 Keeping there close with him in pretious store
 That his false Ladie, as ye heard afore.
 Then did the trompets sound, and Iudges rose,
 And all these knights, which that day armour bore,
 Came to the open hall, to listen whose
 The honour of the prize should be adiudg'd by those.

And thether also came in open sight
 Fayre Florimell, into the common hall,
 To greet his guerdon vnto euery knight,
 And best to him, to whom the best should fall.
 Then for that stranger knight they loud did call,
 To whom that day they should the girlond yield.
 Who came not forth: but for Sir Artegall
 Came Braggadocchio, and did shew his shield,
 Which bore the Sunne brode blazed in a golden field.

The sight whereof did all with gladnesse fill:
 So vnto him they did addeeme the prise
 Of all that Tryumph. Then the trompets shrill
 Don Braggadochios name resounded thrise:
 So courage lent a cloke to cowardise.
 And then to him came fayrest Florimell,
 And goodly gan to greet his braue emprise,
 And thousand thanks him yeeld, that had so well
 Approu'd that day, that she all others did excell.

To whom the boaster, that all knights did blot,
 With proud disdaine did scornefull answere make;
 That what he did that day, he did it not
 For her, but for his owne deare Ladies sake,
 Whom on his perill he did vndertake,
 Both her and eke all others to excell:
 And further did vncomely speaches crake.
 Much did his words the gentle Ladie quell,
 And turn'd aside for shame to heare, what he did tell.

Then forth he brought his snowy Florimele,
 Whom Trompart had in keeping there beside,
 Couered from peoples gazeiment with a vele.
 Whom when discovered they had throughly eide,
 With

With great amazement they were stupefide;
 And said, that surely Florimell it was,
 Or if it were not Florimell so tride,
 That Florimell her selfe she then did pas.
 So feeble skill of perfect things the vulgar has.

Which when as Marinell beheld likewise,
 He was therewith exceedingly dismayd;
 Ne wist he what to thinke, or to deuise,
 But like as one, whom feends had made affrayd,
 He long astonisht stood, ne ought he sayd,
 Ne ought he did, but with fast fixed eies
 He gazed still vpon that snowy mayd;
 Whom euer as he did the more auize,
 The more to be true Florimell he did surmize.

As when two sunnes appeare in the azure skye,
 Mounted in Phæbus charet fierie bright,
 Both darting forth faire beames to each mans eye,
 And both adorn'd with lampes of flaming light,
 All that behold so strange prodigious sight,
 Not knowing natures worke, nor what to weene,
 Are rapt with wonder, and with rare affright.
 So stood Sir Marinell, when he had seene
 The semblant of this false by his faire beauties Queene.

All which when Artegal, who all this while Stood in the preasse close couered, well aduewed,
 And saw that boasters pride and gracelesse guile,
 He could no longer beare, but forth issued,
 And vnto all himselfe there open shewed,
 And to the boaster said; Thou losell base,
 That hast with borrowed plumes thy selfe endewed,
 And others worth with leasings doest deface,
 When they are all restor'd, thou shalt rest in disgrace.

That shield, which thou doest beare, was it indeed,
 Which this dayes honour sau'd to Marinell;
 But not that arme, nor thou the man I reed,
 Which didst that seruice vnto Florimell.
 For prooffe shew forth thy sword, and let it tell,
 What strokes, what dreadfull stoure it stird this day:
 Or shew the wounds, which vnto thee befell;
 Or shew the sweat, with which thou diddest sway
 So sharpe a battell, that so many did dismay.

But this the sword, which wrought those cruell stounds,
 And this the arme, the which that shield did beare,
 And these the signes, (so shewed forth his wounds)
 By which that glorie gotten doth appeare.
 As for this Ladie, which he sheweth here,
 Is not (I wager) Florimell at all;
 But some fayre Franion, fit for such a fere,
 That by misfortune in his hand did fall.
 For prooffe whereof, he bad them Florimell forth call.

So forth the noble Ladie was ybrought,
 Adorn'd with honor and all comely grace:
 Whereto her bashfull shamefastnesse ywrought
 A great increase in her faire blushing face;
 As roses did with lillies interlace.
 For of those words, the which that boaster threw,
 She inly yet conceiued great disgrace.
 Whom when as all the people such did vew,
 They shouted loud, and signes of gladnesse all did shew.

Then did he set her by that snowy one,
 Like the true saint beside the image set,
 Of both their beauties to make paragone,
 And triall, whether should the honor get.

Streight

Streight way so soone as both together met,
 Th'enchanted Damzell vanisht into nought:
 Her snowy substance melted as with heat,
 Ne of that goodly hew remayned ought,
 But th'emptie girdle, which about her wast was wrought.

As when the daughter of Thaumantes faire,
 Hath in a watry cloud displayed wide
 Her goodly bow, which paints the liquid ayre;
 That all men wonder at her colours pride;
 All suddenly, ere one can looke aside,
 The glorious picture vanisheth away,
 Ne any token doth thereof abide:
 So did this Ladies goodly forme decay,
 And into nothing goe, ere one could it bewray.

Which when as all that present were, beheld,
 They stricken were with great astonishment,
 And their faint harts with senselesse horreur queld,
 To see the thing, that seem'd so excellent,
 So stolen from their fancies wonderment;
 That what of it became, none vnderstood.
 And Braggadosio selfe with dreriment
 So daunted was in his despeyring mood,
 That like a lifelesse corse immoueable he stood.

But Artegall that golden belt vptooke,
 The which of all her spoyle was onely left;
 Which was not hers, as many it mistooke,
 But Florimells owne girdle, from her rest,
 While she was flying, like a weary west,
 From that foule monster, which did her compell
 To perils great; which hevn buckling est,
 Presented to the fayrest Florimell;
 Who round about her tender wast it fitted well.

Full many Ladies often had assayd,
 About their middles that faire belt to knit;
 And many a one suppos'd to be a mayd:
 Yet it to none of all their loynes would fit,
 Till Florimell about her fastned it.
 Such power it had, that to no womans wast
 By any skill or labour it would fit,
 Vnlesse that she were continent and chaste,
 But it would lose or breake, that many had disgraft.

Whilest thus they busied were bout Florimell,
 And boastfull Braggadocchio to defame,
 Sir Guyon as by fortune then befell,
 Forth from the thickest preasse of people came,
 His owne good steed, which he had stolne, to clame;
 And th'one hand seizing on his golden bit,
 With th'other drew his sword: for with the same
 He ment the thiefe there deadly to haue smit:
 And had he not bene held, he nought had fayld of it.

Thereof great hurly burly moued was
 Throughout the hall, for that same warlike horse.
 For Braggadocchio would not let him pas;
 And Guyon would him algates haue perorse,
 Or it approue vpon his carrion corse.
 Which troublous stirre when Artegall perceiued,
 He nigh them drew to stay th'auengers forse,
 And gan inquire, how was that steed bereaued,
 Whether by might extort, or else by slight deceaued.

Who all that piteous storie, which befell
 About that wofull couple, which were slaine,
 And their young bloodie babe to him gan tell;
 With whom whiles he did in the wood remaine,

His

His horſe purloyned was by ſubtill traine :
 For which he chalenged the thiefe to fight.
 But he for nought could him thereto conſtraine.
 For as the death he hated ſuch deſpight,
 And rather had to loſe, then trie in armes his right.

Which Artegall well hearing, though no more
 By law of armes there neede ones right to trie,
 As was the wont of warlike knights of yore,
 Then that his foe ſhould him the field denie,
 Yet further right by tokens to deſcrie,
 He aſkt, what priuie tokens he did beare.
 If that (ſaid Guyon) may you ſatiſfie,
 Within his mouth a blacke ſpot doth appeare,
 Shapt like a horſes ſhoe, who liſt to ſeeke it there.

Whereof to make due tryall, one did take
 The horſe in hand, within his mouth to looke :
 But with his heeles ſo forely he him ſtrake,
 That all his ribs he quite in peeces broke,
 That neuer word from that day forth he ſpoke.
 Another that would ſeeme to haue more wit,
 Him by the bright embrodered hedſtall tooke :
 But by the ſhoulder him ſo fore he bit,
 That he him maymed quite, and all his ſhoulder ſplit.

Ne he his mouth would open vnto wight,
 Vntill that Guyon ſelſe vnto him ſpake,
 And called Brigadore (ſo was he hight)
 Whoſe voice ſo ſoone as he did vndertake,
 Eftſoones he ſtood as ſtill as any ſtake,
 And ſuffred all his ſecret marke to ſee:
 And when as he him nam'd, for ioy he brake
 His bands, and follow'd him with gladfull glee,
 And friſkt, and ſlong aloft, and louted low on knee.

Thereby Sir Artegall did plaine areed,
 That vnto him the horſe belong'd, and ſayd;
 Lo there Sir Guyon, take to you the ſteed,
 As he with golden ſaddle is arayd;
 And let that loſell, plainly now diſplayd,
 Hence fare on foot, till he an horſe haue gayned.
 But the proud boafter gan his doome vpbrayd,
 And him reuil'd, and rated, and diſdayned,
 That iudgement ſo vniuſt againſt him had ordayned.

Much was the knight incenſt with his lewd word,
 To haue reuenged that his villeny;
 And thrife did lay his hand vpon his ſword,
 To haue him ſlaine, or dearely doen aby.
 But Guyon did his choler pacify,
 Saying, Sir knight, it would diſhonour bee
 To you, that are our iudge of equity,
 To wreake your wrath on ſuch a carle as hee
 It's puniſhment enough, that all his ſhame doe ſee.

So did he mitigate Sir Artegall,
 But Talus by the backe the boafter hent,
 And drawing him out of the open hall,
 Vpon him did inflict this puniſhment.
 Firſt he his beard did ſhaue, and fowly ſhent:
 Then from him reſt his ſhield, and it renuerſt,
 And blotted out his armes with falſhood blent,
 And himſelfe baffuld, and his armes vnherſt,
 And broke his ſword in twaine, and all his armour ſperſt.

The whiles his guilefull groome was fled away:
 But vaine it was to thinke from him to flie.
 Who ouertaking him did diſaray,
 And all his face deform'd with infamie,

And

And out of court him scourged openly,
 So ought all faytours, that true knight hood shame,
 And armes dishonour with base villanie,
 From all braue knights be banisht with defame:
 For oft their lewdnes blotteth good deserts with blame.

Now when these counterfeits were thus vncafed
 Out of the foreside of their forgerie,
 And in the sight of all men cleane disgraced,
 All gan to iest and gibe full merilie
 At the remembrance of their knauerie.
 Ladies can laugh at Ladies, Knights at Knights,
 To thinke with how great vaunt of brauerie
 He them abused, through his subtill slights,
 And what a glorious shew he made in all their fights.

There leaue we them in pleasure and repast,
 Spending their ioyous dayes and gladfull nights,
 And taking vsurie of time forepast,
 With all deare delices and rare delights,
 Fit for such Ladies and such louely knights:
 And turne were here to this faire furrowes end
 Our wearie yokes, to gather fresher sprights,
 That when as time to Artegall shall tend,
 We on his first aduenture may him forward send.

Cant. IIII

*Artegall dealeth right betwixt two brethren that doe strue,
Saves Terpine from the gallow tree,
and doth from death reprinse.*

WHo so vpon him selfe will take the skill
True Iustice vnto people to diuide,
Had neede haue mightie hands, for to fulfill
That, which he doth with righteous doome decide,
And for to maister wrong and puissant pride.
For vaine it is to deeme of things aright,
And makes wrong doers iustice to deride,
Vnlesse it be perform'd with dreadlesse might.
For powre is the right hand of Iustice truely hight.

Therefore whylome to knights of great emprise
The charge of Iustice giuen was in trust,
That they might execute her iudgements wise,
And with their might beat downe licentious lust,
Which proudly did impugne her sentence iust.
Whereof no brauer president this day
Remaines on earth, preferu'd from yron rust
Of rude obliuion, and long times decay,
Then this of Artegall, which here we haue to say.

Who hauing lately left that louely payre,
Enlincked fast in wedlockes loyall bond,
Bold Marinell with Florimell the fayre,
With whom great feast and goodly glee he fond,
Departed

Departed from the Castle of the strond,
 To follow his aduentures first intent,
 Which long agoe he taken had in hond :
 Ne wight with him for his assistance went,
 But that great yron groome, his gard and gouernment.

With whom as he did passe by the sea shore,
 He chaunst to come, whereas two comely Squires,
 Both brethren, whom one wombe together bore,
 But stirred vp with different desires,
 Together stroue, and kindled wrathfull fires :
 And them beside two seemely damzels stood,
 By all meanes seeking to asswage their ires,
 Now with faire words; but words did little good,
 Now with sharpe threats; but threats the more increast (their mood.)

And there before them stood a Coffer strong,
 Fast bound on euery side with iron bands,
 But seeming to haue suffred mickle wrong,
 Either by being wreckt vpon the sands,
 Or being carried farre from forraine lands.
 Seem'd that for it these Squires at ods did fall,
 And bent against them selues their cruell hands.
 But euermore, those Damzels did forestall
 Their furious encounter, and their fierceness pall.

But firmly fixt they were, with dint of sword,
 And battailes doubtfull prooffe their rights to try,
 Ne other end their fury would afford,
 But what to them Fortune would iustify.
 So stood they both in readinesse : thereby
 To ioyne the combate with cruell intent ;
 When Artegall arriuing happily,
 Did stay a while their greedy bickerment,
 Till he had questioned the cause of their dissent.

To whom the elder did this aunswere frame;
 Then weete ye Sir, that we two brethren be,
 To whom our fire, Milesio by name,
 Did equally bequeath his lands in fee,
 Two Ilands, which ye there before you see
 Not farre in sea; of which the one appears
 But like a little Mount of small degree;
 Yet was as great and wide ere many yeares,
 As that same other Isle, that greater bredth now beares.

But tract of time, that all things doth decay,
 And this deuouring Sea, that naught doth spare,
 The most part of my land hath washt away,
 And throwne it vp vnto my brothers share:
 So his encreased, but mine did empaire.
 Before which time I lou'd, as was my lot,
 That further mayd, hight Philtera the faire,
 With whom a goodly doure I should haue got,
 And should haue ioyned bene to her in wedlocks knot.

Then did my younger brother Amidas
 Loue that same other Damzell, Lucy bright,
 To whom but little dowre allotted was;
 Her vertue was the dowre, that did delight.
 What better dowre can to a dame be hight?
 But now when Philtera saw my lands decay,
 And former liuelod fayle, she left me quight,
 And to my brother did ellope streight way:
 Who taking her from me, his owne loue left astray.

She seeing then her selfe forsaken so,
 Through dolorous despaire, which she conceyued,
 Into the Sea her selfe did headlong throw,
 Thinking to haue her grieve by death bereaued.

But

But see how much her purpose was deceaued.
 Whilest thus amidst the billowes beating of her
 Twixt life and death, long to and fro she weaued,
 She chaunst vnwares to light vppon this coffer,
 Which to her in that daunger hope of life did offer.

The wretched mayd that earst desir'd to die,
 When as the paine of death she tasted had,
 And but halfe seene his vgly visnomie,
 Gan to repent, that she had beene so mad,
 For any death to chaunge life though most bad:
 And catching hold of this Sea-beaten chest,
 The lucky Pylot of her passage sad,
 After long tossing in the seas distrest,
 Her weary barke at last vppon mine Isle did rest.

Where I by chaunce then wandring on the shore,
 Did her espy, and through my good endeouour
 From dreadfull mouth of death, which threatned sore
 Her to haue swallow'd vp, did helpe to saue her.
 She then in recompence of that great fauour,
 Which I on her bestowed, bestowed on me
 The portion of that good, which Fortune gaue her,
 Together with her selfe in dowry free;
 Both goodly portions, but of both the better she.

Yet in this coffer, which she with her brought,
 Great threasure sithence we did finde contained;
 Which as our owne we tooke, and so it thought.
 But this same other Damzell since hath fained,
 That to her selfe that threasure appertained;
 And that she did transport the same by sea,
 To bring it to her husband new ordained,
 But suffred cruell shipwracke by the way.
 But whether it be so or no, I can not say.

But whether it indeede be so or no,
 This doe I say, that what so good or ill
 Or God or Fortune vnto me did throw,
 Not wronging any other by my will,
 I hold mine owne, and so will hold it still.
 And though my land he first did winne away,
 And then my loue (though now it little skill,)
 Yet my good lucke he shall not likewise pray;
 But I will it defend, whilst euer that I may.

So hauing sayd, the younger did enfew;
 Full true it is, what so about our land
 My brother here declared hath to you:
 But not for it this ods twixt vs doth stand,
 But for this threasure throwne vppon his strand;
 Which well I proue, as shall appeare by triall,
 To be this maides, with whom I fastned hand,
 Known by good markes, and perfect good espiall,
 Therefore it ought be rendred her without deniall.

When they thus ended had, the Knight began;
 Certes your strife were easie to accord,
 Would ye remit it to some righteous man.
 Vnto your selfe, said they, we giue our word,
 To bide what iudgement ye shall vs afford.
 Then for assuraunce to my doome to stand,
 Vnder my foote let each lay downe his sword,
 And then you shall my sentence vnderstand.
 So each of them layd downe his sword out of his hand.

Then Artegall thus to the younger sayd;
 Now tell me Amidas, if that ye may,
 Your brothers land the which the sea hath layd
 Vnto your part, and pluckt from his away,

By what good right doe you withhold this day?
 What other right (quoth he) should you esteeme,
 But that the sea it to my share did lay?
 Your right is good (sayd he) and so I deeme,
 That what the sea vnto you sent, your own should seeme.

Then turning to the elder thus he sayd;
 Now Bracidas let this likewise be showne.
 Your brothers threasure, which from him is strayd,
 Being the dowry of his wife well knowne,
 By what right doe you claime to be your owne?
 What other right (quoth he) should you esteeme,
 But that the sea hath it vnto me throwne?
 Your right is good (sayd he) and so I deeme,
 That what the sea vnto you sent, your own should seeme.

For equall right in equall things doth stand,
 For what the mighty Sea hath once possessd,
 And plucked quite from all possessors hand,
 Whether by rage of waues, that neuer rest,
 Or else by wracke, that wretches hath distrest,
 He may dispose by his imperiall might,
 As thing at randon left, to whom he list.
 So Amidas, the land was yours first hight,
 And so the threasure yours is Bracidas by right.

When he his sentence thus pronounced had,
 Both Amidas and Philtra were displeas'd:
 But Bracidas and Lucy were right glad,
 And on the threasure by that iudgement seas'd.
 So was their discord by this doome appeas'd,
 And each one had his right. Then Artegall
 When as their sharpe contention he had ceas'd,
 Departed on his way, as did befall,
 To follow his old quest, the which him forth did call.

So as he trauelled vpon the way,
 He chaunst to come, where happily he spide
 A rout of many people farre away;
 Towhom his course he hastily applide,
 To weete the cause of their assemblaunce wide.
 To whom when he approached neare in sight,
 (An vncouth fight) he plainly then descride
 To be a troupe of women warlike dight,
 With weapons in their hands, as ready for to fight.

And in the midst of them he saw a Knight,
 With both his hands behinde him pinnoed hard,
 And round about his necke an halter tight,
 As ready for the gallow tree prepar'd:
 His face was couered, and his head was bar'd,
 That who he was, vneath was to descry;
 And with full heauy heart with them he far'd,
 Grieu'd to the soule, and groning inwardly,
 That he of womens hands so base a death should dy.

But they like tyrants, mercilesse the more,
 Reioyced at his miserable case,
 And him reuiled, and reproched sore
 With bitter taunts, and termes of vile disgrace.
 Now when as Artegall arriu'd in place,
 Did aske, what cause brought that man to decay,
 They round about him gan to swarme apace,
 Meaning on him their cruell hands to lay,
 And to haue wrought vnwares some villanous assay.

But he was soone aware of their ill minde,
 And drawing backe deceiued their intent;
 Yet though him selfe did shame on womankinde
 His mighty hand to shend, he Talus sent

To

To wrecke on them their follies hardiment:
 Who with few sowces of his yron flae,
 Disperfed all their troupe incontinent,
 And fent them home to tell a piteous tale,
 Of their vaine prowefse, turned to their proper bale.

But that fame wretched man, ordaynd to die,
 They left behind them, glad to be fo quit:
 Him Talus tooke out of perplexitie,
 And horreur of fowle death for Knight vnfit,
 Who more then losse of life ydreaded it;
 And him restoring vnto liuing light,
 So brought vnto his Lord, where he did fit,
 Beholding all that womanifh weake fight;
 Whom foone as he beheld, he knew, and thus beight.

Sir Turpine, hapleffe man, what make you here?
 Or haue you loft your felfe, and your discretion,
 That euer in this wretched cafe ye were?
 Or haue ye yeilded you to proude oppreffion
 Of womens powre, that boaft of mens fubiection?
 Or elfe what other deadly difmall day
 Is falne on you, by heauens hard direction,
 That ye were runne fo fondly far aftray,
 As for to lead your felfe vnto your owne decay?

Much was the man confounded in his mind,
 Partly with fhame, and partly with difmay,
 That all aftonifht he him felfe did find,
 And little had for his excufe to fay,
 But onely thus; Moft hapleffe well ye may Me iuftly terme, that to this fhame am brought,
 And made the fcorne of Knightthod this fame day.
 But who can fcape, what his owne fate hath wrought?
 The worke of heauens will furpaffeth humane thought.

Right true: but faulty men vse oftentimes
 To attribute their folly vnto fate,
 And lay on heauen the guilt of their owne crimes.
 But tell, Sir Terpin, ne let you amate
 Your misery, how fell ye in this state.
 Then sith ye needs (quoth he) will know my shame,
 And all the ill, which chaunst to me of late,
 I shortly will to you rehearse the same,
 In hope ye will not turne misfortune to my blame.

Being desirous (as all Knights are woont)
 Through hard aduentures deedes of armes to try,
 And after fame and honour for to hunt,
 I heard report that farre abrode did fly,
 That a proud Amazon did late defy
 All the braue Knights, that hold of Maidenhead,
 And vnto them wrought all the villany,
 That she could forge in her malicious head,
 Which some hath put to shame, and many done be dead.

The cause, they say, of this her cruell hate,
 Is for the sake of Bellodant the bold,
 To whom she bore most feruent loue of late,
 And wooed him by all the waies she could:
 But when she saw at last, that he ne would
 For ought or nought be wonne vnto her will,
 She turn'd her loue to hatred manifold,
 And for his sake vow'd to doe all the ill
 Which she could doe to Knights, which now she doth (fulfill.

For all those Knights, the which by force or guile
 She doth subdue, she fowly doth entreate.
 First she doth them of warlike armes despoile,
 And cloth in womens weedes: And then with threat
 Doth

Doth them compell to worke, to earne their meat,
 To spin, to card, to sew, to wash, to wring;
 Ne doth she giue them other thing to eat,
 But bread and water, or like feeble thing,
 Them to disable from reuenge aduenturing.

But if through stout disdaine of manly mind,
 Any her proud obseruaunce will withstand,
 Vppon that gibbet, which is there behind,
 She causeth them be hang'd vp out of hand;
 In which condition I right now did stand.
 For being ouercome by her in fight,
 And put to that base seruice of her band,
 I rather chose to die in liues despight,
 Then lead that shamefull life, vnworthy of a Knight.

How hight that Amazon (sayd Artegall?)
 And where, and how far hence does she abide?
 Her name (quoth he) they Radigund doe call,
 A Princeesse of great powre, and greater pride,
 And Queene of Amazons, in armes well tride,
 And sundry battels, which she hath atchieued
 With great successe, that her hath glorifide,
 And made her famous, more then is believed;
 Ne would I it haue ween'd, had I not late it priued.

Now sure (said he) and by the faith that I
 To Maydenhead and noble knighthood owe,
 I will not rest, till I her might doe trie,
 And venge the shame, that she to Knights doth show.
 Therefore Sir Terpin from you lightly throw
 This squalid weede, the patterne of dispaire,
 And wend with me, that ye may see and know,
 How Fortune will your ruin'd name repaire, (paire.
 And knights of Maidenhead, whose praise she would em-

With that, like one that hopelesse was repy'ud
 From deathes dore, at which he lately lay,
 Those yron fetters, wherewith he was gy'd,
 The badges of reproch, he threw away,
 And nimble did him dight to guide the way
 Vnto the dwelling of that Amazone.
 Which was from thence not past a mile or tway:
 A goodly citty and a mighty one,
 The which of her owne name she called Radegone.

Where they arriuing, by the watchmen were Descried streight, who all the citty warned,
 How that three warlike persons did appeare,
 Of which the one him seem'd a Knight all armed,
 And th'other two well likely to haue harmed:
 Eftsoones the people all to harnesse ran,
 And like a sort of Bees in clusters swarmed:
 Ere long their Queene her selfe halfe, like a man
 Came forth into the rout, and them r'array began.

And now the Knights being arriued neare,
 Did beat vpon the gates to enter in,
 And at the Porter, skorning them so few,
 Threw many threats, if they the towne did win,
 To teare his flesh in peeces for his sin.
 Which when as Radigund there comming heard,
 Her heart for rage did grate, and teeth did grin:
 She bad that streight the gates should be vnbar'd,
 And to them way to make, with weapons well prepar'd.

Soone as the gates were open to them set,
 They pressed forward, entraunce to haue made.
 But in the middle way they were ymet
 With a sharpe showre of arrowes, which them staid,
 And

And better bad aduise, ere they affaid
 Vnknownen perill of bold womens pride.
 Then all that rout vppon them rudely laid,
 And heaped strokes so fast on euery side,
 And arrowes haild so thicke, that they could not abide.

But Radigund her selfe, when she espide
 Sir Terpin, from her direfull doome acquit,
 So cruell doile amongst her maides dauide,
 T'auenge that shame, they did on him commit,
 All sodainely inflam'd with furious fit,
 Like a fell Lionesse at him she flew,
 And on his head-peece him so fiercely smit,
 That to the ground him quite she ouerthrew,
 Dismayd so with the stroke, that he no colours knew.

Soone as she saw him on the ground to grouell,
 She lightly to him leapt, and in his necke
 Her proud foote setting, at his head did leuell,
 Weening at once her wrath on him to wreake,
 And his contempt, that did her iudg'ment breake.
 As when a Beare hath seiz'd her cruell clawes
 Vppon the carkasse of some beast too weake,
 Proudly stands ouer, and a while doth pause,
 To heare the piteous beast pleading her plaintiffe cause.

Whom when as Artegall in that distresse
 By chaunce beheld, he left the bloody slaughter,
 In which he swam, and ranne to his redresse.
 There her assayling fiercely fresh, he raught her
 Such an huge stroke, that it of sence distraught her:
 And had she not it warded warily,
 It had depriu'd her mother of a daughter.
 Nathlesse for all the powre she did apply,
 It made her stagger oft, and stare with ghastly eye.

Like to an Eagle in his kingly pride,
 Soring through his wide Empire of the aire,
 To weather his brode sailes, by chaunce hath spide
 A Gosshauke, which hath seized for her share
 • Vppon some fowle, that should her feast prepare;
 With dreadfull force he flies at her byliue,
 That with his souce, which none endure dare,
 Her from the quarrey he away doth driue,
 And from her griping pounce the greedy prey doth riuē.

But soone as she her sence recouer'd had,
 She fiercely towards him her selfe gan dight,
 Through vengeful wrath & sdeignfull pride half mad:
 For neuer had she suffred such despight.
 But ere she could ioyne hand with him to fight,
 Her warlike maides about her flockt so fast,
 That they disparted them, maugre their might,
 And with their troupes did far a sunder cast:
 But mongst the rest the fight did vtill euening last.

And euery while that mighty yron man,
 With his strange weapon, neuer wont in warre,
 Them forely vext, and court, and ouerran,
 And broke their bowes, and did their shooting marre,
 That none of all the many once did darre
 Him to assault, nor once approach him nie,
 But like a sort of sheepe disperfed farre
 For dread of their deuouringemie,
 Through all the fields and vallies did before him flie.

But when as daies faire shinie-beame, yclouded
 With fearefull shadowes of deformed night,
 Warn'd man and beast in quiet rest be shrowded,
 Bold Radigund with sound of trumpe on hight,

Caused all her people to surcease from fight,
 And gathering them vnto her citties gate,
 Made them all enter in before her sight,
 And all the wounded, and the weake in state,
 To be conuayed in, ere she would once retrate.

When thus the field was voided all away,
 And all things quieted, the Elfin Knight
 Weary of toile and trauell of that day,
 Caused his pavilion to be richly pight
 Before the city gate, in open sight;
 Where he him selfe did rest in safety,
 Together with sir Terpin all that night:
 But Talus vsde in times of icopardy
 To keepe a nightly watch, for dread of treachery.

But Radigund full of heart-gnawing grieffe,
 For the rebuke, which she sustain'd that day,
 Could take no rest, ne would receiue relieffe,
 But tossed in her troublous minde, what way
 She mote reuenge that blot, which on her lay.
 There she resolu'd her selfe in single fight
 To try her Fortune, and his force assay,
 Rather then see her people spoiled quight,
 As she had seene that day a disauenterous fight.

She called forth to her a trusty mayd,
 Whom she thought fittest for that businesse,
 Her name was Clarín, and thus to her sayd;
 Goe damzell quickly, doe thy selfe addresse,
 To doe the message, which I shall expresse.
 Goe thou vnto that stranger Faery Knight,
 Who yester day droue vs to such distresse,
 Tell, that to morrow I with him wil fight,
 And try in equall field, whether hath greater might.

But these conditions doe to him propound,
 That if I vanquishe him, he shall obey
 My law, and euer to my lore be bound,
 And so will I, if me he vanquish may;
 What euer he shall like to doe or say:
 Goe streight, and take with thee, to witnesse it,
 Sixe of thy fellowes of the best array,
 And beare with you both wine and iuncates fit,
 And bid him eate, henceforth he oft shall hungry sit.

The Damzell streight obeyd, and putting all
 In readinesse, forth to the Towne-gate went,
 Where sounding loud a Trumpet from the wall,
 Vnto those warlike Knights she warning sent.
 Then Talus forth issuing from the tent,
 Vnto the wall his way did fearelesse take,
 To weeten what that trumpets sounding ment:
 Where that same Damzell lowdly him bespake,
 And shew'd, that with his Lord she would emparlaunce (make.

So he them streight conducted to his Lord,
 Who, as he could, them goodly well did greete,
 Till they had told their message word by word:
 Which he accepting well, as he could weete,
 Them fairely entertaynd with cur'sies meete,
 And gaue them gifts and things of deare delight.
 So backe againe they homeward turnd their feete.
 But Artegall him selfe to rest did dight,
 That he mote fresher be against the next daies fight.

Cant. V.

*Artegall fights with Radigund
And is subdued by guile:
He is by her emprisoned,
But wrought by Clarins wile.*

SO soone as day forth dawning from the East,
Nights humid curtaine from the heauens withdrew,
And earely calling forth both man and beast,
Comaunded them their daily workes renew,
These noble warriors, mindefull to pursue
The last daies purpose of their vowed fight,
Them selues thereto preparte in order dew;
The Knight, as best was seeming for a Knight,
And th' Amazon, as best it likt her selfe to dight.

All in a Camis light of purple silke
Wouen vppon with siluer, subtly wrought,
And quilted vppon sattin white as milke,
Trayled with ribbands diuersly distraught
Like as the workeman had their courses taught;
Which was short tucked for light motion
Vp to her ham, but when she list, it raught
Downe to her lowest heele, and there vppon
She wore for her defence a mayled habergeon.

And on her legs she painted buskins wore,
Basted with bends of gold on euery side,
And mailes betweene, and laced close afore:
Vppon her thigh her Cemitare was tide,

With an embrodered belt of mickell pride;
 And on her shoulder hung her shield, bedeckt
 Vppon the bosse with stones, that shined wide,
 As the faire Moone in her most full aspect,
 That to the Moone it mote be like in each respect.

So forth she came out of the citty gate,
 With stately port and proud magnificence,
 Guarded with many damzels, that did waite
 Vppon her person for her sure defence,
 Playing on shaumes and trumpets, that from hence
 Their sound did reach vnto the heauens hight.
 So forth into the field she marched thence,
 Where was a rich Pauilion ready pight,
 Her to receiue, till time they should begin the fight.

Then forth came Artegall out of his tent,
 All arm'd to point, and first the Lists did enter:
 Soone after eke came she, with fell intent,
 And countenance fierce, as hauing fully bent her,
 That battels vtmost triall to aduenter.
 The Lists were closed fast, to barre the rout
 From rudely pressing to the middle center;
 Which in great heapes them circled all about,
 Wayting, how Fortune would resoluē that daungerous (dout.

The Trumpets sounded, and the field began;
 With bitter strokes it both began, and ended.
 She at the first encounter on him ran
 With furious rage, as if she had intended
 Out of his breast the very heart haue rended:
 But he that had like tempests often tride,
 From that first flaw him selfe right well defended.
 The more she rag'd, the more he did abide;
 She hewd, she foyn'd, she lasht, she laid on euery side.

Yet still her blowes he bore, and her forbore,
 Weening at last to win aduantage new;
 Yet still her crueltie increased more,
 And though powre faild, her courage did accrew,
 Which sayling he gan fiercely her pursew.
 Like as a Smith that to his cunning feat
 The stubborne mettall seeketh to subdew,
 Soone as he feesles it mollifide with heat,
 With his great yron sledge doth strongly on it beat.

So did Sir Artegall vpon her lay,
 As if she had an yron anduile beene,
 That flakes of fire, bright as the sunny ray,
 Out of her steely armes were flashing seene,
 That all on fire ye would her surely weene.
 But with her shield so well her selfe she warded,
 From the dread daunger of his weapon keene,
 That all that while her life she safely garded:
 But he that helpe from her against her will discarded.

For with his trenchant blade at the next blow
 Halfe of her shield he shared quite away,
 That halfe her side it selfe did naked show,
 And thenceforth vnto daunger opened way.
 Much was she moued with the mightie sway
 Of that sad stroke, that halfe enrag'd she grew,
 And like a greedie Beare vnto her pray,
 With her sharpe Cemitare at him she flew,
 That glauncing downe his thigh, the purple bloud forth drew.

Thereat she gan to triumph with great boast,
 And to vpbraid that chaunce, which him misfell,
 As if the prize she gotten had almost,
 With spightfull speaches, fitting with her well;

That his great hart gan inwardly to swell
 With indignation, at her vaunting vaine,
 And at her strooke with puissance fearefull fell;
 Yet with her shield she warded it againe,
 That shattered all to peeces round about the plaine.

Hauing her thus disarmed of her shield,
 Vpon her helmet he againe her strooke,
 That downe she fell vpon the grassie field,
 In fencelesse swoune, as if her life forfooke,
 And pangs of death her spirit ouertooke.
 Whom when he saw before his foote prostrated,
 He to her lept with deadly dreadfull looke,
 And her sunshynie helmet soone unlaced,
 Thinking at once both head and helmet to haue raced.

But when as he discovered had her face,
 He saw his senses straunge astonishment,
 A miracle of natures goodly grace,
 In her faire visage void of ornament,
 But bath'd in bloud and sweat together ment;
 Which in the rudenesse of that euill plight,
 Bewrayd the signes of feature excellent:
 Like as the Moone in foggie winters night,
 Doth seeme to be her selfe, though darkned be her light.

At sight thereof his cruell minded hart
 Empierced was with pittifull regard,
 That his sharpe sword he threw from him apart,
 Cursing his hand that had that visage mard:
 No hand so cruell, nor no hart so hard,
 But ruth of beautie will it mollifie.
 By this vpstarting from her swoune, she star'd
 A while about her with confused eye;
 Like one that from his dreame is waked suddenlye.

Soone

Soone as the knight she there by her did spy,
 Standing with emptie hands all weaponlesse,
 With fresh assault vpon him she did fly,
 And gan renew her former cruelnesse:
 And though he still retyr'd, yet nathelless
 With huge redoubled strokes she on him layd;
 And more increast her outrage mercilesse,
 The more that he with meeke intreatie prayd,
 Her wrathful hand from greedy vengeance to haue stayd.

Like as a Puttocke hauing spyde in sight
 A gentle Faulcon sitting on an hill,
 Whose other wing, now made vnmeete for flight,
 Was lately broken by some fortune ill;
 The foolish Kyte, led with licentious will,
 Doth beat vpon the gentle bird in vaine,
 With many idle stoups her troubling still:
 Euen so did Radigund with bootlesse paine
 Annoy this noble Knight, and sorely him constraine.

Nought could he do, but shun the dred despight
 Of her fierce wrath, and backward still retyre,
 And with his single shield, well as he might,
 Beare off the burden of her raging yre;
 And euermore he gently did desyre,
 To stay her stroks, and he himselfe would yield:
 Yet would she hearke, ne let him once respyre,
 Till he to her deliuered had his shield,
 And to her mercie him submitted in plaine field.

So was he ouercome, not ouercome,
 But to her yeelded of his owne accord;
 Yet was he iustly damned by the doome
 Of his owne mouth, that spake so warelesse word,

To be her thrall, and seruice her afford.
 For though that he first victorie obtayned,
 Yet after by abandoning his sword,
 He wilfull lost, that he before attayned.
 No fayrer conquest, then that with goodwill is gayned.

Tho with her sword on him she flatling strooke,
 In signe of true subiection to her powre,
 And as her vassall him to thraldome tooke.
 But Terpine borne to'a more vnhappy howre,
 As he, on whom the lucklesse starres did lowre,
 She causd to be attacht, and forthwith led Vnto the crooke t'abide the balefull stowre,
 From which he lately had through reskew fled:
 Where he full shamefully was hanged by the hed.

But when they thought on Talus hands to lay,
 He with his yron flaile amongst them thondred,
 That they were fayne to let him scape away,
 Glad from his companie to be so sondred;
 Whose presence all their troups so much encombred
 That th'heapes of those, which he did wound and slay,
 Besides the rest dismayd, might not be nombred:
 Yet all that while he would not once assay,
 To reskew his owne Lord, but thought it iust t'obay.

Then tooke the Amazon this noble knight,
 Left to her will by his owne wilfull blame,
 And causd him to be disarmed quight,
 Of all the ornaments of knightly name,
 With which whylome he gotten had great fame:
 In stead whereof she made him to be dight
 In womans weedes, that is to manhood shame,
 And put before his lap a napron white,
 In stead of Curiets and bafes fit for fight.

So being clad, she brought him from the field,
 In which he had bene trayned many a day,
 Into a long large chamber, which was field
 With monuments of many knights decay,
 By her subdewed in victorious fray:
 Amongst the which she causd his warlike armes
 Be hang'd on high, that mote his shame bewray;
 And broke his sword, for feare of further harmes,
 With which he wont to stirre vp battailous alarmes.

There entred in, he round about him saw
 Many braue knights, whose names right well he knew,
 There bound t'obay that Amazons proud law,
 Spinning and carding all in comely rew,
 That his bigge hart loth'd so vncomely vew.
 But they were forst through penurie and pyne,
 To doe those workes, to them appointed dew:
 For nought was giuen them to sup or dyne,
 But what their hands could earne by twisting linnen twyne.

Amongst them all she placed him most low,
 And in his hand a distaffe to him gaue,
 That he thereon should spin both flax and tow;
 A sordid office for a mind so braue.
 So hard it is to be a womans slaue.
 Yet he it tooke in his owne selves despight,
 And thereto did himselfe right well behaue,
 Her to obay, sith he his faith had plight,
 Her vassall to become, if she him wonne in fight.

Who had him seene, imagine mote thereby,
 That whylome hath of Hercules bene told,
 How for Iolas sake he did apply
 His mightie hands, the distaffe vile to hold,

For his huge club, which had subdew'd of old
 So many monsters, which the world annoyed;
 His Lyons skin chaungd to a pall of gold,
 In which forgetting warres, he onely ioyed
 In combats of sweet loue, and with his mistresse toyed.

Such is the crueltie of womenkynd,
 When they haue shaken off the shamefast band,
 With which wise Nature did them strongly bynd,
 T'obay the heasts of mans well ruling hand,
 That then all rule and reason they withstand,
 To purchase a licentious libertie:
 But vertuous women wisely vnderstand,
 That they were borne to base humilitie,
 Vnlesse the heauens them list to lawfull soueraintie.

Thus there long while continu'd Artegall,
 Seruing proud Radigund with true subiection;
 How euer it his noble heart did gall,
 T'obay a womans tyrannous direction,
 That might haue had of life or death election:
 But hauing chosē, now he might not chaunge.
 During which time, the warlike Amazon,
 Whose wandring fancie after lust did raunge,
 Gan cast a secret liking to this captiue straunge.

Which long concealing in her couert brest,
 She chaw'd the cud of louers carefull plight;
 Yet could it not so thoroughly digest,
 Being fast fixed in her wounded spright,
 But it tormented her both day and night:
 Yet would she not thereto yeeld free accord,
 To serue the lowly vassall of her might,
 And of her seruant make her souerayne Lord:
 So great her pride, that she such basenesse much abhord.

So much the greater still her anguish grew,
 Through stubborne handling of her loue-sicke hart;
 And still the more she stroue it to subdew,
 The more she still augmented her owne smart,
 And wyder made the wound of th'hidden dart.
 At last when long she struggled had in vaine,
 She gan to stoupe, and her proud mind conuert
 To meeke obeyfance of loues mightie raine,
 And him entreat for grace, that had procur'd her paine.

Vnto her selfe in secret she did call
 Her nearest handmayd, whom she most did trust;
 And to her said; Clarinda whom of all
 I trust a liue, sith I thee fostred first;
 Now is the time, that I vntimely must Thereof make tryall, in my greatest need:
 It is so hapned, that the heauens vniust,
 Spighting my happie freedome, haue agreed,
 To thrall my looser life, or my last bale to breed.

With that she turn'd her head, as halfe abashed,
 To hide the blush which in her visage rose,
 And through her eyes like sudden lightning flashed,
 Decking her cheeke with a vermilion rose:
 But soone she did her countenance compose,
 And to her turning, thus began againe;
 This griefes deepe wound I would to thee disclose,
 Thereto compelled through hart-murdring paine,
 But dread of shame my doubtfull lips doth still restraine.

Ah my deare dread (said then the faithfull Mayd)
 Can dread of ought your dreadlesse hart withhold,
 That many hath with dread of death dismayd,
 And dare euen deathes most dreadfull face behold?

Say on my souerayne Ladie, and be bold;
 Doth not your handmayds life at your foot lie?
 Therewith much comforted, she gan vnfold
 The cause of her conceiued maladie,
 As one that would confesse, yet faine would it denie.

Clarim (sayd she) thou seest yond Fayry Knight,
 Whom not my valour, but his owne braue mind
 Subiected hath to my vnequall might;
 What right is it, that he should thraldome find,
 For lending life to me a wretch vnkind;
 That for such good him recompence with ill?
 Therefore I cast, how I may him vnbind,
 And by his freedome get his free goodwill;
 Yet so, as bound to me he may continue still.

Bound vnto me, but not with such hard bands
 Of strong compulsion, and streight violence,
 As now in miserable state he stands;
 But with sweet loue and sure beneuolence,
 Voide of malitious mind, or foule offence.
 To which if thou canst win him any way,
 Without discoverie of my thoughts pretence,
 Both goodly meede of him it purchase may,
 And eke with gratefull seruice me right well apay.

Which that thou mayst the better bring to pas,
 Loe here this ring, which shall thy warrant bee,
 And token true to old Eumenias,
 From time to time, when thou it best shalt see,
 That in and out thou mayst haue passage free.
 Goe now, Clarinda, well thy wits aduise,
 And all thy forces gather vnto thee;
 Armies of louely lookes, and speeches wise,
 With which thou canst euen Ioue himselfe to loue entise.

The trustie Mayd, conceiuing her intent,
 Did with sure promise of her good indeuour,
 Giue her great comfort, and some harts content.
 So from her parting, she thenceforth did labour
 By all the meanes she might, to curry fauour
 With th'Elfin Knight, her Ladies best beloued;
 With daily shew of courteous kind behaiour,
 Euen at the markewhite of his hart she roued,
 And with wide glauncing words, one day she thus him proued.

Vnhappie Knight, vpon whose hopelesse state
 Fortune enuying good, hath felly frowned,
 And cruell heauens haue heapt an heauy fate;
 I rew that thus thy better dayes are drowned
 In sad despaire, and all thy senses swowned
 In stupid sorow, sith thy iuster merit
 Might else haue with felicitie bene crowned:
 Looke vp at last, and wake thy dulled spirit,
 To thinke how this long death thou mightest disinherit.

Much did he maruell at her vncouth speech,
 Whose hidden drift he could not well perceiue;
 And gan to doubt, least she him sought t'appeach
 Of treason, or some guilefull traine did weaue,
 Through which she might his wretched life bereaue.
 Both which to barre, he with this answere met her;
 Faire Damzell, that with ruth (as I perceauē)
 Of my mishaps, art mou'd to wish me better,
 For such your kind regard, I can but rest your detter.

Yet weet ye well, that to a courage great
 It is no lesse befeeming well, to beare
 The storme of fortunes frowne, or heauens threat,
 Then in the sunshine of her countenance cleare.

Timely to ioy, and carrie comely cheare.
 For though this cloud haue now me ouercast,
 Yet doe I not of better times despeyre;
 And, though vnlike, they should for euer last,
 Yet in my truthes assurance I rest fixed fast.

But what so stonie mind (she then replyde)
 But if in his owne powre occasion lay,
 Would to his hope a window open wyde,
 And to his fortunes helpe make readie way?
 Vnworthy sure (quoth he) of better day,
 That will not take the offer of good hope,
 And eke pursue, if he attaine it may.
 Which speaches she applying to the scope
 Of her intent, this further purpose to him shope.

Then why doest not, thou ill aduized man,
 Make meanes to win thy libertie forlorne,
 And try if thou by faire entreatie, can
 Moue Radigund? who though she still haue worne
 Her dayes in warre, yet (weet thou) was not borne
 Of Beares and Tygres, nor so saluage mynded,
 As that, albe all loue of men she scorne,
 She yet forgets, that she of men was kynded:
 And sooth oft seene, that proudest harts base loue hath (blynded.)

Certes Clarinda, not of cancred will,
 (Sayd he) nor obstinate disdainefull mind,
 I haue forbore this duetie to fulfill:
 For well I may this weene, by that I fynd,
 That she a Queene, and come of Princely kynd,
 Both worthie is for to be sewd vnto,
 Chiefely by him, whose life her law doth bynd,
 And eke of powre her owne doome to vndo,
 And alſ of princely grace to be inclyn'd thereto.

But want of meanes hath bene mine onely let,
From seeking fauour, where it doth abound;
Which if I might by your good office get,
I to your selfe should rest for euer bound,
And readie to deserue, what grace I found.
She feeling him thus bite vpon the bayt,
Yet doubting least his hold was but vnfound,
And not well fastened, would not strike him strayt,
But drew him on with hope, fit leasure to awayt.

But foolish Mayd, whyles heedlesse of the hooke,
She thus oft times was beating off and on,
Through slipperie footing, fell into the brooke,
And there was caught to her confusion.
For seeking thus to salue the Amazon,
She wounded was with her deceipts owne dart,
And gan thenceforth to cast affection,
Conceiued close in her beguiled hart,
To Artegall, through pittic of his causelesse smart.

Yet durst she not disclose her fancies wound,
Ne to himselfe, for doubt of being sdayned,
Ne yet to any other wight on ground,
For feare her mistresse shold haue knowledge gayned,
But to her selfe it secretly retayned,
Within the closet of her couert brest:
The more thereby her tender hart was payned.
Yet to awayt fit time she weened best,
And fairely did dissemble her sad thoughts vnrest.

One day her Ladie, calling her apart,
Can to demaund of her some tydings good,
Touching her loues successe, her lingring smart.
Therewith she gan at first to change her mood,

As one adaw'd, and halfe confused stood;
 But quickly she it ouerpast, so soone
 As she her face had wypt, to fresh her blood:
 Tho gan she tell her all, that she had donne,
 And all the wayes she sought, his loue for to haue worne.

But sayd, that he was obstinate and sterne,
 Scorning her offers and conditions vaine;
 Ne would be taught with any termes, to lerne
 So fond a lesson, as to loue againe.
 Die rather would he in penurious paine,
 And his abridged dayes in dolour wast,
 Then his foes loue or liking entertaine:
 His resolution was both first and last,
 His bodie was her thrall, his hart was freely plast.

Which when the cruell Amazon perceiued,
 She gan to storme, and rage, and rend her gall,
 For very fell despight, which she conceiued,
 To be so scorned of a base borne thrall,
 Whose life did lie in her least eye-lids fall;
 Of which she vow'd with many a cursed threat,
 That she therefore would him ere long forstall.
 Nathlesse when calmed was her furious heat,
 She chang'd that threatfull mood, & mildly gan entreat.

What now is left Clarinda? what remaines,
 That we may compassse this our enterprize?
 Great shame to lose so long employed paines,
 And greater shame t'abide so great misprize,
 With which he dares our offers thus despize.
 Yet that his guilt the greater may appeare,
 And more my gracious mercie by this wize,
 I will a while with his first folly beare,
 Till thou haue tride againe, & tempted him more neare.

Say,

Say, and do all, that may thereto preuaile;
 Leauē nought vnpromist, that may him perswade,
 Life, freedome, grace, and gifts of great auaille,
 With which the Gods themselues are mylder made:
 Thereto adde art, euen womens witty trade,
 The art of mightie words, that men can charme;
 With which in case thou canst him not inuade,
 Let him feele hardnesse of thy heauie arme:
 Who will not stoupe with good, shall be made stoupe (with harme.

Some of his diet doe from him withdraw;
 For I him finde to be too proudly fed.
 Giue him more labour, and with streighter law,
 That he with worke may be forwearied.
 Let him lodge hard, and lie in strawen bed,
 That may pull downe the courage of his pride;
 And lay vpon him, for his greater dread,
 Cold yron chaines, with which let him betide;
 And let, what euer he desires, be him denide.

When thou hast all this doen, then bring me newes
 Of his demeane: thenceforth not like a louer,
 But like a rebell stout I will him vse.
 For I resolue this siege not to giue ouer,
 Till I the conquest of my will recouer.
 So she departed, full of grieffe and sdaine,
 Which inly did to great impatience moue her.
 But the false mayden shortly turn'd againe
 Vnto the prison, where her hart did thrall remaine.

There all her subtill nets she did vnfold,
 And all the engins of her wit display;
 In which she meant him warelesse to enfold,
 And of his innocence to make her pray.

So cunningly she wrought her crafts assay,
 That both her Ladie, and her selfe withall,
 And eke the knight attonce she did betray:
 But most the knight, whom she with guilefull call
 Did cast for to allure, into her trap to fall.

As a bad Nurse, which fayning to receiue
 In her owne mouth the food, ment for her chyld,
 Withholdes it to her selfe, and doeth deceiue
 The infant, so for want of nourture spoyle:
 Euen so Clarinda her owne Dame beguyle,
 And turn'd the trust, which was in her affyde,
 To feeding of her priuate fire, which boyle
 Her inward brest, and in her entrayles fryde,
 The more that she it sought to couer and to hyde.

For comming to this knight, she purpose fayned,
 How earnest suit she earst for him had made
 Vnto her Queene, his freedome to haue gayned;
 But by no meanes could her thereto perswade:
 But that in stead thereof, she sternely bade
 His miserie to be augmented more,
 And many yron bands on him to lade.
 All which nathlesse she for his loue forbore:
 So praying him t'accept her seruice euermore.

And more then that, she promist that she would,
 In case she might finde fauour in his eye,
 Deuize how to enlarge him out of hould.
 The Fayrie glad to gaine his libertie,
 Can yeeld great thanks for such her curtesie,
 And with faire words, fit for the time and place,
 To feede the humour of her maladie;
 Promist, if she would free him from that case,
 He wold by all good means he might, deserue such grace.

So daily he faire semblant did her shew,
Yet neuer meant he in his noble mind,
To his owne absent loue to be vntrew:
Ne euer did deceitfull Clarín find
In her false hart, his bondage to vnbind;
But rather how she mote him faster tye.
Therefore vnto her mistressse most vnkind
She daily told, her loue he did defye,
And him she told, her Dame his freedome did denye.

Yet thus much friendship she to him did show,
That his scarce diet somewhat was amended,
And his worke lessened, that his loue mote grow:
Yet to her Dame him still she discommended,
That she with him mote be the more offended.
Thus he long while in thraldome there remayned,
Of both beloued well, but litle frended;
Vntill his owne true loue his freedome gayned,
Which in an other Canto will be best contayned.

Cant. VI.

*Talus brings newes to Britomart, of Artegals mishap,
She goes to seeke him, Dolon meetes, who seekes her to entrap.*

Some men, I wote, will deeme in Artegal
Great weaknesse, and report of him much ill,
For yeelding so himselfe a wretched thrall,
To th'insolent commaund of womens will;
That all his former praise doth fowly spill.
But he the man, that say or doe so dare,
Be well aduiz'd, that he stand stedfast still:
For neuer yet was wight so well aware,
But he at first or last was trapt in womens snare.

Yet in the streightnesse of that captiue state,
This gentle knight himselfe so well behaued,
That notwithstanding all the subtill bait,
With which those Amazons his loue still craued,
To his owne loue his loialtie he faued:
Whose character in th'Adamantine mould
Of his true hart so firmly was engraued,
That no new loues impression euer could
Bereau it thence: such blot his honour blemish should.

Yet his owne loue, the noble Britomart,
Scarfe so conceiued in her ieaious thought,
What time sad tydings of his balefull smart
In womans bondage, Talus to her brought;

Brought

Brought in vntimely houre, ere it was sought:
 For after that the vtmost date, assynde
 For his returne, she waited had for nought,
 She gan to cast in her misdoubtfull mynde
 A thousand feares, that loue-sicke fancies faine to fynde.

Sometime she feared, least some hard mishap
 Had him misfalne in his aduenturous quest;
 Sometime least his false foe did him entrap
 In traytrous traine, or had vnwares opprest:
 But most she did her troubled mynd molest,
 And secretly afflict with icalous feare,
 Least some new loue had him from her possess;
 Yet loth she was, since she no ill did heare,
 To thinke of him so ill: yet could she not forbear.

One while she blam'd her selfe; another whyle
 She him condemn'd, as trustlesse and vtrew:
 And then, her griefe with errour to beguyle,
 She sayn'd to count the time againe anew,
 As if before she had not counted trew.
 For houres but dayes; for weekes, that passed were,
 She told but moneths, to make them seeme more few:
 Yet when she reckned them, still drawing neare,
 Each hour did seeme a moneth, & euery moneth a yeare.

But when as yet she saw him not returne,
 She thought to send some one to seeke him out;
 But none she found so fit to serue that turne,
 As her owne selfe, to ease her selfe of dout.
 Now she deuiz'd amongst the warlike rout
 Of errant Knights, to seeke her errant Knight;
 And then againe resolu'd to hunt him out
 Amongst loose Ladies, lapped in delight:
 And then both Knights enuide, & Ladies eke did spight.

One day, when as she long had sought for ease
 In euery place, and euery place thought best,
 Yet found no place, that could her liking please,
 She to a window came, that opened West,
 Towards which coast her loue his way adrest.
 There looking forth, shee in her heart did find
 Many vaine fancies, working her vnrest;
 And sent her winged thoughts, more swift then wind,
 To beare vnto her loue the message of her mind.

There as she looked long, at last she spide
 One comming towards her with hasty speede:
 Well weend she then, ere him she plaine descride,
 That it was one sent from her loue indeede.
 Who when he nigh approcht, shee mote arede
 That it was Talus, Artegall his groome;
 Whereat her heart was fild with hope and drede;
 Ne would she stay, till he in place could come,
 But ran to meete him forth, to know his tidings somme.

Euen in the dore him meeting, she begun;
 And where is he thy Lord, and how far hence?
 Declare at once; and hath he lost or wun?
 The yron man, albe he wanted sence
 And sorrowes feeling, yet with conscience
 Of his ill newes, did inly chill and quake,
 And stood still mute, as one in great suspence,
 As if that by his silence he would make
 Her rather reade his meaning, then him selfe it spake.

Till she againe thus sayd; Talus be bold,
 And tell what euer it be, good or bad,
 That from thy tongue thy hearts intent doth hold.
 To whom he thus at length. The tidings sad,

That

That I would hide, will needs, I see, be rad.
 My Lord, your loue, by hard mishap doth lie
 In wretched bondage, wofully bestad.
 Ay me (quoth she) what wicked destinie?
 And is he vanquisht by his tyrant enemy?

Not by that Tyrant, his intended foe;
 But by a Tyrannesse (he then replide,)
 That him captiued hath in haplesse woe.
 Cease thou bad newes-man, badly doest thou hide
 Thy maisters shame, in harlots bondage tide.
 The rest my selfe too readily can spell.
 With that in rage she turn'd from him aside,
 Forcing in vaine the rest to her to tell,
 And to her chamber went like solitary cell.

There she began to make her monefull plaint
 Against her Knight, for being so vntrew;
 And him to touch with falshoods fowle attaint,
 That all his other honour ouerthrew.
 Oft did she blame her selfe, and often rew,
 For yeelding to a straungers loue so light,
 Whose life and manners straunge she neuer knew;
 And euermore she did him sharpely twight
 For breach of faith to her, which he had firmly plight.

And then she in her wrathfull will did cast,
 How to reuenge that blot of honour blent;
 To fight with him, and goodly die her last:
 And then againe she did her selfe torment,
 Inflicting on her selfe his punishment.
 A while she walkt, and chaufft; a while she threw
 Her selfe vppon her bed, and did lament:
 Yet did she not lament with loude alew,
 As women wont, but with deepe sighes, and singulfs few.

Like as a wayward childe, whose fonder sleepe
 Is broken with some fearefull dreames affright,
 With froward will doth set him selfe to weepe;
 Ne can be stild for all his nurses might,
 But kicks, and squals, and shriekes for fell despight:
 Now scratching her, and her loose locks misusing;
 Now seeking darkenesse, and now seeking light;
 Then crauing sucke, and then the sucke refusing.
 Such was this Ladies fit, in her loues fond accusing.

But when she had with such vnquiet fits
 Her selfe there close afflicted long in vaine,
 Yet found no easement in her troubled wits,
 She vnto Talus forth return'd againe,
 By change of place seeking to ease her paine;
 And gan enquire of him, with mylder mood,
 The certaine cause of Artegals detaine;
 And what he did, and in what state he stood,
 And whether he did woo, or whether he were woo'd.

Ah wellaway (sayd then the yron man,
 That he is not the while in state to woo;
 But lies in wretched thraldome, weake and wan,
 Not by strong hand compelled thereunto,
 But his owne doome, that none can now vndoo.
 Sayd I not then (quoth shee) erwhile aright,
 That this is things compacte betwixt you two,
 Me to deceiue of faith vnto me plight,
 Since that he was not forst, nor ouercome in fight?

With that he gan at large to her dilate
 The whole discourse of his captiuaunce sad,
 In sort as ye haue heard the same of late.
 All which when she with hard enduraunce had

Heard

Heard to the end, she was right sore bestad,
 With sodaine stounds of wrath and grieffe attone:
 Ne would abide, till she had aunswere made,
 But streight her selfe did dight, and armor don;
 And mounting to her steede, bad Talus guide her on.

So forth she rode vppon her ready way,
 To seeke her Knight, as Talus her did guide:
 Sadly she rode, and neuer word did say,
 Nor good nor bad, ne euer lookt aside,
 But still right downe, and in her thought did hide
 The felnesse of her heart, right fully bent
 To fierce auengement of that womans pride,
 Which had her Lord in her base prison pent,
 And so great honour with so fowle reproch had blent.

So as she thus melancholicke did ride,
 Chawing the cud of grieffe and inward paine,
 She chaunst to meete toward th'euen-tide
 A Knight, that softly paced on the plaine,
 As if him selfe to solace he were faine.
 Well shot in yeares he seem'd, and rather bent
 To peace, then needlesse trouble to constraîne.
 As well by view of that his vestiment,
 As by his modest semblant, that no cuill ment.

He comming neare, gan gently her salute.
 With curteous words, in the most comely wize;
 Who though desirous rather to rest mute,
 Then termes to entertaine of common guize,
 Yet rather then she kindnesse would despize,
 She would her selfe displease, so him requite.
 Then gan the other further to deuize
 Of things abrode, as next to hand did light,
 And many things demaund, to which she answer'd light.

For little lust had she to talke of ought,
 Or ought to heare, that mote delightfull bee;
 Her minde was whole possessed of one thought,
 That gaue none other place. Which when as hee
 By outward signes, (as well he might) did see,
 He list no lenger to vse lothfull speach,
 But her besought to take it well in gree,
 Sith shady damppe had dimd the heauens reach,
 To lodge with him that night, vnles good cause empeach

The Championesse, now seeing night at dore,
 Was glad to yeeld vnto his good request:
 And with him went without gaine-saying more.
 Not farre away, but little wide by West,
 His dwelling was, to which he him address;
 Where soone arriuing they receiued were
 In seemely wise, as them befecemed best:
 For he their host them goodly well did cheare,
 And talk't of pleasant things, the night away to weare.

Thus passing th'euening well, till time of rest,
 Then Britomart vnto a bowre was brought;
 Where groomes awayted her to haue vndrest.
 But she ne would vndressed be for ought,
 Ne doffe her armes, though he her much besought.
 For she had vow'd, she sayd, not to forgo
 Those warlike weedes, till she reuenge had wrought
 Of a late wrong vppon a mortall foe;
 Which she would sure performe, betide her wele or wo.

Which when their Host perceiu'd, right discontent
 In minde he grew, for feare least by that art
 He should his purpose misse, which close he ment:
 Yet taking leaue of her, he did depart.

There

There all that night remained Britomart,
 Restlesse; recomfortlesse, with heart deepe griued,
 Not suffering the least twinckling sleepe to start
 Into her eye, which th'heart mote haue relieued,
 But if the least appear'd, her eyes she streight repriued.

Ye guilty eyes (sayd she) the which with guyle
 My heart at first betrayd, will ye betray
 My life now to, for which a little whyle
 Ye will not watch? false watches, wellaway,
 I wote when ye did watch both night and day
 Vnto your losse: and now needes will ye sleepe?
 Now ye haue made my heart to wake alway,
 Now will ye sleepe? ah wake, and rather weepe,
 To thinke of your nights want, that should yee waking (keepe.

Thus did she watch, and weare the weary night
 In wayfull plaints, that none was to appease;
 Now walking soft, now sitting still vpright,
 As sundry change her seemed best to ease.
 Ne lesse did Talus suffer sleepe to seaze
 His eye-lids sad, but watcht continually,
 Lying without her dore in great disease;
 Like to a Spaniell wayting carefully
 Least any should betray his Lady treacherously.

What time the natiue Belman of the night,
 The bird, that warned Peter of his fall,
 First rings his siluer Bell t'each sleepey wight,
 That should their mindes vp to deuotion call,
 She heard a wondrous noise below the hall.
 All sodainely the bed, where she should lie,
 By a false trap was let adowne to fall
 Into a lower roome, and by and by
 The loft was rayfd againe, that no man could it spie.

With sight whereof she was dismayd right sore,
 Perceiuing well the treason, which was ment:
 Yet stirred not at all for doubt of more,
 But kept her place with courage confident,
 Wayting what would ensue of that euent.
 It was not long, before she heard the sound
 Of armed men, comming with close intent
 Towards her chamber; at which dreadfull stound
 She quickly caught her sword, & shield about her bound.

With that there came vnto her chamber dore
 Two Knights, all arm'd ready for to fight,
 And after them full many other more,
 A raskall rout, with weapons rudely dight.
 Whom soone as Talus spide by glims of night,
 He started vp, there where on ground he lay,
 And in his hand his thresher ready keight.
 They seeing that, let driue at him streight way,
 And round about him preace in riotous aray.

But soone as he began to lay about
 With his rude yron flaile, they gan to flie,
 Both armed Knights, and eke vnarmed rout:
 Yet Talus after them apace did plie,
 Where euer in the darke he could them spie;
 That here and there like scattred sheepe they lay.
 Then backe returning, where his Dame did lie,
 He to her told the story of that fray,
 And all that treason there intended did bewray.

Wherewith though wondrous wroth, and inly burning,
 To be auenged for so fowle a deede,
 Yet being forst to abide the daies returning,
 She there remain'd, but with right wary heede,

Least

Least any more such practise should proceede.
 Now mote ye know (that which to Britomart Vnknownen was) whence all this did proceede,
 And for what cause so great mischieuous smart
 Wasment to her, that neuer euill ment in hart.

The goodman of this house was Dolon hight,
 A man of subtill wit and wicked minde,
 That whilome in his youth had bene a Knight,
 And armes had borne, but little good could finde,
 And much lesse honour by that warlike kinde
 Of life: for he was nothing valorous,
 But with slie shiftes and wiles did vnderminde
 All noble Knights, which were aduenturous,
 And many brought to shame by treason treacherous.

He had three sonnes, all three like fathers sonnes,
 Like treacherous, like full of fraud and guile,
 Of all that on this earthly compasse wonnes:
 The eldest of the which was slaine erewhile
 By Artegall, through his owne guilty wile;
 His name was Guiſor, whose vntimely fate
 For to auenge, full many treasons vile
 His father Dolon had deuiz'd of late
 With these his wicked sons, and shewd his cankred hate.

For sure he weend, that this his present guest
 Was Artegall, by many tokens plaine;
 But chiefly by that yron page he ghest,
 Which still was wont with Artegall remaine;
 And therefore ment him surely to haue slaine.
 But by Gods grace, and her good heedinesse,
 She was preserued from their traytrous traine.
 Thus she all night wore out in watchfulnesse,
 Ne suffred slothfull sleepe her eyelids to oppresse.

The morrow next, so soone as dawning houre
 Discouered had the light to liuing eye,
 She forth yssew'd out of her loathed bowre,
 With full intent t'auenge that villany,
 On that vilde man, and all his family
 And comming down to seeke them, where they wond,
 Nor fire, nor sonnes, nor any could she spie:
 Each rowme she sought, but them all empty fond:
 They all were fled for feare, but whether, nether kond.

She saw it vaine to make there lenger stay,
 But tooke her steede, and thereon mounting light,
 Gan her addressse vnto her former way.
 She had not rid the moutenance of a flight,
 But that she saw there present in her sight,
 Those two false brethren, on that perillous Bridge,
 On which Pollente with Artegall did fight.
 Streight was the passage like a ploughed ridge,
 That if two met, the one mote needes fall ouer the lidge.

There they did thinke them selues on her to wreake:
 Who as she nigh vnto them drew, the one
 These vile reproches gan vnto her speake;
 Thou recreant false traytor, that with lone
 Of armes hast knighthood stolne, yet Knight art none,
 No more shall now the darkenesse of the night
 Defend thee from the vengeance of thy sone,
 But with thy bloud thou shalt appease the spright
 Of Guizor, by thee slaine, and murdered by thy flight.

Strange were the words in Britomartis eare;
 Yet stayd she not for them, but forward fared,
 Till to the perillous Bridge she came, and there
Talus desir'd, that he might haue prepared

The way to her, and those two losels scared.
But she thereat was wroth, that for despight
The glauncing sparkles through her beuer glared,
And from her eies did flash out fiery light,
Like coles, that through a siluer Censer sparkle bright.

She stayd not to aduise which way to take;
But putting spurres vnto her fiery beast,
Thorough the midst of them she way did make.
The one of them, which most her wrath increast,
Vppon her speare she bore before her breast,
Till to the Bridges further end she past,
Where falling downe, his challenge he releast:
The other ouer side the Bridge she cast
Into the riuer, where he drunke his deadly last.

As when the flashing Leuin haps to light
Vppon two stubborne oakes, which stand so neare,
That way betwixt them none appears in sight;
The Engin fiercely flying forth, doth teare
Th'one from the earth, & through the aire doth beare;
The other it with force doth ouerthrow,
Vppon one side, and from his rootes doth reare.
So did the Championesse those two there strow,
And to their fire their carcasses left to bestow.

Cant. VII

*Britomart comes to Isis Church,
Where shee strange visions sees:
She fights with Radigund, her slaues,
And Artegall thence frees.*

Nought is on earth more sacred or diuine,
That Gods and men doe equally adore;
Then this same vertue, that doth right define:
For th'heuens theselues, whence mortal men implore
Right in their wrongs, are rul'd by righteous lore
Of highest Ioue, who doth true iustice deale
To his inferiour Gods, and euermore
Therewith contains his heavenly Common-weale:
The skill whereof to Princes hearts he doth reueale.

Well therefore did the antique world inuent,
That Iustice was a God of soueraine grace,
And altars vnto him, and temples lent,
And heavenly honours in the highest place;
Calling him great Osyris, of the race
Of th'old Ægyptian Kings, that whylome were;
With fayned colours shading a true case:
For that Osyris, whilest he liued here,
The iustest man aliue, and truest did appeare.

His wife was Isis, whom they likewise made
A Goddesse of great powre and souerainty,
And in her person cunningly did shade
That part of Iustice, which is Equity,

Whereof

Whereof I haue to treat here presently.
Vnto whose temple when as Britomart
Arriued, shee with great humility
Did enter in, ne would that night depart;
But Talus mote not be admitted to her part.

There she receiued was in goodly wize
Of many Priests, which duely did attend
Vppon the rites and daily sacrificize,
All clad in linnen robes with siluer hemd;
And on their heads with long locks comely kemd,
They wore rich Mitres shaped like the Moone,
To shew that Isis doth the Moone portend;
Like as Osyris signifies the Sunne.
For that they both like race in equall iustice runne.

The Championesse them greeting, as she could,
Was thence by them into the Temple led;
Whose goodly building when she did behould,
Borne vppon stately pillours, all dispred
With shining gold, and arched ouer hed,
She wondred at the workemans passing skill,
Whose like before she neuer saw nor red;
And there vppon long while stood gazing still,
But thought, that she thereon could neuer gaze her fill.

Thence forth vnto the Idoll they her brought,
The which was framed all of siluer fine,
So well as could with cunning hand be wrought,
And clothed all in garments made of line,
Hemd all about with fringe of siluer twine.
Vppon her head she wore a Crowne of gold,
To shew that she had powre in things diuine;
And at her feete a Crocodile was rold,
That with her wreathed taile her middle did enfold.

One foote was set vppon the Crocodile,
 And on the ground the other fast did stand,
 So meaning to suppress both forged guile,
 And open force: and in her other hand
 She stretched forth a long white slender wand.
 Such was the Goddesse; whom when Britomart
 Had long beheld, her selfe vppon the land
 She did prostrate, and with right humble hart,
 Vnto her selfe her silent prayers did impart.

To which the Idoll as it were inclining,
 Her wand did moue with amiable looke,
 By outward shew her inward sence desining.
 Who well perceiuing, how her wand she shooke,
 It as a token of good fortune tooke.
 By this the day with dampe was ouercast,
 And ioyous light the house of Ioue forsooke:
 Which when she saw, her helmet she vnlaste,
 And by the altars side her selfe to slumber plaste.

For other beds the Priests there vsed none,
 But on their mother Earths deare lap did lie,
 And bake their sides vppon the cold hard stone,
 T'enure them selues to sufferaunce thereby
 And proud rebellious flesh to mortify.
 For by the vow of their religion
 They tied were to stedfast chastity,
 And continence of life, that all forgon,
 They mote the better tend to their deuotion.

Therefore they mote not taste of fleshly food,
 Ne feed on ought, the which doth blood containe,
 Ne drinke of wine, for wine they say is blood,
 Euen the bloud of Gyants, which were flaine,

By thundring Ioue in the Phlegrean plaine.
 For which the earth (as they the story tell)
 Wroth with the Gods, which to perpetuall paine
 Had damn'd her sonnes, which gainst them did rebell,
 With inward grieffe and malice did against them swell.

And of their vitall bloud, the which was shed
 Into her pregnant bosome, forth she brought
 The fruitfull vine, whose liquor blouddy red
 Hauing the mindes of men with fury fraught,
 Mote in them stirre vp old rebellious thought,
 To make new warre against the Gods againe:
 Such is the powre of that same fruit, that nought
 The fell contagion may thereof restraine,
 Ne within reasons rule, her madding mood containe.

There did the warlike Maide her selfe repose,
 Vnder the wings of I/sis all that night,
 And with sweete rest her heauy eyes did close,
 After that long daies toile and weary plight.
 Where whilest her earthly parts with soft delight
 Offencelesse sleepe did deeply drowned lie,
 There did appeare vnto her heavenly spright
 A wondrous vision, which did close implie
 The course of all her fortune and posteritie.

Her seem', das she was doing sacrifice
 To I/sis, deckt with Mitre on her hed,
 And linnen stole after those Priestes guise,
 All sodainely she saw transfigured
 Her linnen stole to robe of scarlet red.
 And Moone-like Mitre to a Crowne of gold,
 That euen she her selfe much wondered
 At such a change, and ioyed to behold
 Her selfe, adorn'd with gems and iewels manifold.

And in the midst of her felicity,
 An hideous tempest seemed from below,
 To rise through all the Temple sodainely,
 That from the Altar all about did blow
 The holy fire, and all the embers strow
 Vppon the ground, which kindled priuily,
 Into outrageous flames vnwares did grow,
 That all the Temple put in ieopardy
 Of flaming, and her selfe in great perplexity.

With that the Crocodile, which sleeping lay
 Vnder the Idols feete in fearelesse bowre,
 Seem'd to awake in horrible dismay,
 As being troubled with that stormy stowre;
 And gaping greedy wide, did streight deuoure
 Both flames and tempest: with which growen great,
 And swolne with pride of his owne peerelesse powre,
 He gan to threaten her likewise to eat;
 But that the Goddesse with her rod him backe did beat.

Tho turning all his pride to humbleesse meeke,
 Him selfe before her feete he lowly threw,
 And gan for grace and loue of her to seeke:
 Which she accepting, he so neare her drew,
 That of his game she soone enwombed grew,
 And forth did bring a Lion of great might;
 That shortly did all other beasts subdew.
 With that she waked, full of fearefull fright,
 And doubtfully dismayd through that so vncouth sight.

So thereuppon long while she musing lay,
 With thousand thoughts feeding her fantasie,
 Vntill she spide the lampe of lightsome day,
 Vp-listed in the porch of heauen hic.

Then

Then vp she rose fraught with melancholy,
 And forth into the lower parts did pas;
 Whereas the Priestes she found full busily
 About their holy things for morrow Mas:
 Whom she saluting faire, faire resaluted was.

But by the change of her vnchearefull looke,
 They might perceiue, she was not well in plight;
 Or that some pensiuenesse to heart she tooke.
 Therefore thus one of them, who seem'd in sight
 To be the greatest, and the grauest wight,
 To her bespake; Sir Knight it seemes to me,
 That thorough euill rest of this last night,
 Or ill apayd, or much dismayd ye be,
 That by your change of cheare is easie for to see.

Certes (sayd she) sith ye so well haue spide
 The troublous passion of my pensiuemind,
 I will not seeke the same from you to hide,
 But will my cares vnfolde, in hope to find
 Your aide, to guide me out of error blind.
 Say on (quoth he) the secret of your hart:
 For by the holy vow, which me doth bind,
 I am adiur'd, best counsell to impart
 To all, that shall require my comfort in their smart.

Then gan she to declare the whole discourse
 Of all that vision, which to her appeared,
 As well as to her minde it had recourse.
 All which when he vnto the end had heard,
 Like to a weake faint-hearted man he fared,
 Through great astonishment of that strange sight;
 And with long locks vp-standing, stify stared
 Like one adawed with some dreadfull spright.
 So fild with heauenly fury, thus he her behight.

Magnificke Virgin, that in queint disguise
 Of British armes doest maske thy royall blood,
 So to pursue a perillous emprize,
 How couldest thou weene, through that disguised hood,
 To hide thy state from being vnderstood?
 Can from th'immortall Gods ought hidden bee?
 They doe thy linage, and thy Lordly brood;
 They doe thy fire, lamenting sore for thee;
 They doe thy loue, forlorne in womens thraldome see.

The end whereof, and all the long euent,
 They doe to thee in this same dreame discover.
 For that same Crocodile doth represent
 The righteous Knight, that is thy faithfull loue,
 Like to Osyris in all iust endeuer.
 For that same Crocodile Osyris is,
 That vnder Isis feete doth sleepe for euer:
 To shew that clemence oft in things amis,
 Restraines those sterne behests, and cruell doomes of his.

That Knight shall all the troublous stormes asswage,
 And raging flames, that many foes shall reare,
 To hinder thee from the iust heritage
 Of thy fires Crowne, and from thy countrey deare.
 Then shalt thou take him to thy loued fere,
 And ioyne in equall portion of thy realme:
 And afterwards a sonne to him shalt beare,
 That Lion-like shall shew his powre extreame.
 So blesse thee God, and giue thee ioyance of thy dreame.

All which when she vnto the end had heard,
 She much was eased in her troublous thought,
 And on those Priests bestowed rich reward:
 And royall gifts of gold and siluer wrought,

She

She for a present to their Goddesse brought,
 Then taking leaue of them, she forward went,
 To seeke her loue, where he was to be fought;
 Ne rested till she came without relent
 Vnto the land of Amazons, as she was bent.

Whereof when newes to Radigund was brought,
 Not with amaze, as wómen wonted bee,
 She was confused in her troublous thought,
 But filld with courage and with ioyous glee,
 As glad to heare of armes, the which now she
 Had long surceast, she bad to open bold,
 That she the face of her new foe might see.
 But when they of that yron man had told,
 Which late her folke had slaine, she bad the forth to hold

So there without the gate (as seemed best)
 She caused her Pavilion be pight;
 In which stout Britomart her selfe did rest,
 Whiles Talus watched at the dore all night.
 All night likewise, they of the towne in fright,
 Vppon their wall good watch and ward did keepe.
 The morrow next, so soone as dawning light
 Bad doe away the dampe of drouzie sleepe,
 The warlike Amazon out of her bowre did peepe.

And caused streight a Trumpet loud to shrill,
 To warne her foe to battell soone be prest:
 Who long before awoke (for she ful ill
 Could sleepe all night, that in vnquiet brest
 Did closely harbour such a iealous guest)
 Was to the battell whilome ready sight.
 Eftsoones that warriouresse with haughty crest
 Did forth issue, all ready for the fight:
 On th'other side her foe appeared soone in sight.

But ere they reared hand, the Amazone
 Began the streight conditions to propound,
 With which she vsed still to tye her sone;
 To serue her so, as she the rest had bound.
 Which when the other heard, she sternly frownd
 For high disdaine of such indignity,
 And would no lenger treat, but bad them found.
 For her no other termes should euer tie.
 Then what prescribed were by lawes of cheualrie.

The Trumpets sound, and they together run
 With greedy rage, and with their faulchins smot;
 Ne either sought the others strokes to shun,
 But through great fury both their skill forgot,
 And practicke vse in armes: ne spared not
 Their dainty parts, which nature had created
 So faire and tender, without staine or spot,
 For other vses, then they them translated;
 Which they now hackt & hewd, as if such vse they hated,

As when a Tygre and a Lionesse
 Are met at spoyling of some hungry pray,
 Both challenge it with equall greedinesse:
 But first the Tygre clawes thereon did lay;
 And therefore loth to loose her right away,
 Doth in defence thereof full stoutly stond:
 To which the Lion strongly doth gaine say,
 That she to hunt the beast first tooke in hond;
 And therefore ought it haue, where euer she it fond.

Full fiercely layde the Amazon about,
 And dealt her blowes vnmercifully fore:
 Which Britomart withstood with courage stout,
 And them repaide againe with double more.

So long they fought, that all the grassie flore
 Was filld with bloud, which from their sides did flow,
 And gushed through their armes, that all in gore
 They trode, and on the ground their liues did strow,
 Like fruitles seede, of which vntimely death should grow.

At last proud Radigund with fell despight,
 Hauing by chaunce espide aduantage neare,
 Let driue at her with all her dreadfull might,
 And thus vpbrayding said; This token beare
 Vnto the man, whom thou doest loue so deare;
 And tell him for his sake thy life thou gauest.
 Which spitefull words she sore engric'd to heare,
 Thus answer'd; Lewdly thou my loue deprauest,
 Who shortly must repent that now so vainely brauest.

Nath'lesse that stroke so cruell passage found,
 That glauncing on her shoulder plate, it bit
 Vnto the bone, and made a grieffly wound,
 That she her shield through raging smart of it
 Could scarce vphold; yet soone she it requit.
 For hauing force increast through furious paine,
 She her so rudely on the helmet smit,
 That it empierced to the very braine,
 And her proud person low prostrated on the plaine.

Where being layd, the wrothfull Britonesse
 Stayd not, till she came to her selfe againe,
 But in reuenge both of her loues distresse,
 And her late vile reproch, though vaunted vaine,
 And also of her wound, which sore did paine,
 She with one stroke both head and helmet cleft.
 Which dreadfull sight, when all her warlike traine
 There present saw, each one of sence bereft,
 Fled fast into the towne, and her sole victor left.

But yet so fast they could not home retrate,
 But that swift Talus did the formost win;
 And pressing through the preace vnto the gate,
 Pelmell with them attonce did enter in.
 There then a piteous slaughter did begin:
 For all that euer came within his reach,
 He with his yron flae did thresh so thin,
 That he no worke at all left for the leach:
 Like to an hideous storme, which nothing may impeach.

And now by this the noble Conqueresse
 Her selfe came in, her glory to partake;
 Where though reuengefull vow she did professe,
 Yet when she saw the heapes, which he did make,
 Of slaughtred carkasses, her heart did quake
 For very ruth, which did it almost riue,
 That she his fury willed him to flake:
 For else he sure had left not one aliue,
 But all in his reuenge of spirite would deprive.

Tho when she had his execution stayd,
 She for that yron prison did enquire,
 In which her wretched loue was captiue layd:
 Which breaking open with indignant ire,
 She entred into all the partes entire.
 Where when she saw that lothly vncouth sight,
 Of men disguiz'd in womanishe attire,
 Her heart gan grudge, for very deepe despight
 Of so vnmanly maske, in misery misdight.

At last when as to her owne Loue she came,
 Whom like disguise no lesse deformed had,
 At sight thereof abasht with secreete shame,
 She turnd her head aside, as nothing glad,

To haue beheld a spectacle so bad:
 And then too well beleeu'd, that which tofore
 Iealous suspect as true vnruely drad,
 Which vaine conceipt now nourishing no more,
 She fought with ruth to salue his sad misfortunes sore.

Not so great wonder and astonishment,
 Did the most chaste Penelope possesse,
 To see her Lord, that was reported drent,
 And dead long since in dolorous distresse,
 Come home to her in piteous wretchednesse,
 After long trauell of full twenty yeares,
 That she knew not his fauours likelynesse,
 For many scarres and many hoary heares,
 But stood long staring on him, mongst vncertaine feares.

Ah my deare Lord, what sight is this (quoth she)
 What May-game hath misfortune made of you?
 Where is that dreadfull manly looke? where be
 Those mighty palmes, the which ye wont t'embrew
 In bloud of Kings, and great hoastes to subdew?
 Could ought on earth so wondrous change haue
 As to haue robde you of that manly hew? (wrought,
 Could so great courage stouped haue to ought?
 Then farewell fleshly force; I see thy pride is nought.

Thenceforth she streight into a bowre him brought,
 And caud him those vncomely weedes vndight;
 And in their steede for other rayment sought,
 Whereof there was great store, and armors bright,
 Which had bene rest from many a noble Knight;
 Whom that proud Amazon subdewed had,
 Whilest Fortune fauourd her successe in fight,
 In which when as she him anew had clad,
 She was reuiu'd, and ioyd much in his semblance glad.

So there a while they afterwards remained,
 Him to refresh, and her late wounds to heale:
 During which space she there as Princes rained,
 And changing all that forme of common weale,
 The liberty of women did repeale,
 Which they had long vsurpt; and them restoring
 To mens subiection, did true Iustice deale:
 That all they as a Goddesse her adoring,
 Her wisdome did admire, and hearkned to her loring.

For all those Knights, which long in captiue shade
 Had shrowded bene, she did from thraldome free;
 And magistrates of all that city made,
 And gaue to them great liuing and large fee:
 And that they should for euer faithfull bee,
 Made them sweare fealty to Artegall.
 Who when him selfe now well recur'd did see,
 He purposd to proceed, what so be fall,
 Vppon his first aduenture, which him forth did call.

Full sad and sorrowfull was Britomart
 For his departure, her new cause of grieffe;
 Yet wisely moderated her owne smart,
 Seeing his honor, which she tendred chiefe,
 Consisted much in that aduentures priefe.
 The care whereof, and hope of his sucresse
 Gaue vnto her great comfort and reliefe,
 That womanish complaints she did repressse,
 And tempred for the time her present heauinesse.

There she continu'd for a certaine space,
 Till through his want her woe did more increase:
 Then hoping that the change of aire and place
 Would change her paine, and sorrow somewhat ease,
 She

She parted thence, her anguish to appease.
 Meane while her noble Lord sir Artegall
 Went on his way, ne euer howre did cease,
 Till he redeemed had that Lady thrall:
 That for another Canto will more fitly fall.

Cant. VIII.

*Prince Arthure and Sir Artégall,
 Free Samient from feare:
 They slay the Soudan, drine his wife,
 Adicsa to despaire.*

NOught vnder heauen so strongly doth allure
 The sence of man, and all his minde possesse,
 As beauties louely baite, that doth procure
 Great warriours oft their rigour to repressse,
 And mighty hands forget their manlinesse;
 Drawne with the powre of an heart-robbing eye,
 And wrapt in fetters of a golden tresse,
 That can with melting pleasaunce mollifye
 Their hardned hearts, enur'd to bloud and cruelty.

So whylome learnd that mighty Iewish swaine,
 Each of whose lockes did match a man in might,
 To lay his spoiles before his lemans traine:
 So also did that great Oetean Knight
 For his loues sake his Lions skin vndight:
 And so did warlike Antony neglect
 The worlds whole rule for Cleopatras sight.
 Such wondrous powre hath wemens faire aspect,
 To captiue men, and make them all the world reiect.

Yet could it not sterne Artegall retaine,
 Nor hold from suite of his auowed quest,
 Which he had vndertane to Gloriane;
 But left his loue, albe her strong request,
 Faire Britomart in languor and vnrest,
 And rode him selfe vppon his first intent:
 Ne day nor night did euer idly rest;
 Ne wight but onely Talus with him went,
 The true guide of his way and vertuous gouernment.

So trauellling, he chaunst far off to heed
 A Damzell, flying on a palfrey fast
 Before two Knights, that after her did speed
 With all their powre, and her full fiercely chaste
 In hope to haue her ouerhent at last:
 Yet fled she fast, and both them farre outwent,
 Carried with wings of feare, like fowle aghast,
 With locks all loose, and rayment all to rent;
 And euer as she rode, her eye was backward bent.

Soone after these he saw another Knight,
 That after those two former rode apace,
 With speare in rest, and prickt with all his might:
 So ran they all, as they had bene at bace,
 They being chased, that did others chase.
 At length he saw the hindmost ouertake
 One of those two, and force him turne his face;
 How euer loth he were his way to flake,
 Yet mote he algates now abide, and answere make.

But th'other still pursu'd the fearefull Mayd;
 Who still from him as fast away did flie,
 Ne once for ought her speedy passage stayd,
 Till that at length she did before her spie

Sir Artegall, to whom she streight did hie
 With gladfull hast, in hope of him to get Succour against her greedy enemy:
 Who seeing her approach gan forward set,
 To saue her from her feare, and him from force to let.

But he like hound full greedy of his pray,
 Being impatient of impediment,
 Continu'd still his course, and by the way
 Thought with his speare him quight haue ouerwent.
 So both together ylike felly bent,
 Like fiercely met. But Artegall was stronger,
 And better skild in Tilt and Turnament,
 And bore him quite out of his saddle, longer
 Then two speares length; So mischief eouermatcht the (wronger.

And in his fall misfortune hm mistooke;
 For on his head vnhappily he pight,
 That his owne waight his necke asunder broke,
 And left there dead. Meane while the other Knight
 Defeated had the other faytour quight,
 And all his bowels in his body braist:
 Whom leauing there in that dispiteous plight,
 Heran still on, thinking to follow fast
 His other fellow Pagan, which before him past.

In stead of whom finding there ready prest
 Sir Artegall, without discretion
 He at him ran, with ready speare in rest:
 Who seeing him come still so fiercely on,
 Against him made againe. So both anon
 Together met, and strongly either strooke
 And broke their speares; yet neither has forgon
 His horses backe, yet to and fro long shooke, (quooke.
 And tottred like two towres, which through a tempest

But when againe they had recouered sence,
 They drew their swords, in mind to make amends
 For what their speares had fayld of their pretence.
 Which when the Damzell, who those deadly ends
 Of both her foes had seene, and now her friends
 For her beginning a more fearefull fray,
 She to them runnes in hast, and her haire rends,
 Crying to them their cruell hands to stay,
 Vntill they both doe heare, what she to them will say.

They stayd their hands, when she thus gan to speake;
 Ah gentle Knights, what meane ye thus vnwise
 Vpon your selues anothers wrong to wreake?
 I am the wrong'd, whom ye did enterprise
 Both to redresse, and both redrest likewise:
 Witnesse the Paynims both, whom ye may see
 There dead on ground. What doe ye then deuise
 Of more reuenge? if more, then I am shee,
 Which was the roote of all, end your reuenge on mee.

Whom when they heard so say, they lookt about,
 To weete if it were true, as she had told;
 Where when they saw their foes dead out of doubt,
 Estfoones they gan their wrothfull hands to hold,
 And Ventailes reare, each other to behold.
 Tho when as Artegall did Arthure vew,
 So faire a creature, and so wondrous bold,
 He much admired both his heart and hew,
 And touched with intire affection, nigh him drew.

Saying, sir Knight, of pardon I you pray,
 That all vnweeting haue you wrong'd thus fore,
 Suffring my hand against my heart to stray:
 Which if ye please forgiue, I will therefore

Yeeld

Yeeld for amends my selfe yours euermore,
 Or what so penaunce shall by you be red.
 To whom the Prince; Certes me needeth more
 To craue the same, whom error so misled,
 As that I did mistake the liuing for the ded.

But sith ye please, that both our blames shall die,
 Amends may for the trespassse soone be made,
 Since neither is endamadg'd much thereby.
 So can they both them selues full eath perswade
 To faire accordaunce, and both faults to shade,
 Either embracing other louingly,
 And swearing faith to either on his blade,
 Neuer thenceforth to nourish enmity,
 But either others cause to maintaine mutually.

Then Artegall gan of the Prince enquire,
 What were those knights, which there on ground were
 And had receiu'd their follies worthy hire, (sayd,
 And for what cause they chased so that Mayd.
 Certes I wote not well (the Prince then sayd)
 But by aduenture found them faring so,
 As by the way vnweetingly I frayd,
 And lo the Damzell selfe, whence all did grow,
 Of whom we may at will the whole occasion know.

Then they that Damzell called to then nie,
 And asked her, what were those two her sone,
 From whom she earst so fast away did flie;
 And what was she her selfe so woe begone,
 And for what cause pursu'd of them attone.
 To whom she thus; Then wote ye well, that I
 Doe serue a Queene, that not far hence doth wone,
 A Princeesse of great powre and maiestie,
 Famous through all the world, and honor'd far and nie.

Her name Mercilla most men vse to call;
 That is a mayden Queene of high renoune,
 For her great bounty knowen ouer all,
 And soueraine grace, with which her royall crowne
 She doth support, and strongly beateth downe
 The malice of her foes, which her enuy,
 And at her happinesse do fret and frowne:
 Yet she her selfe the more doth magnify,
 And euen to her foes her mercies multiply.

Mongst many which maligne her happy state,
 There is a mighty man, which wonnes here by
 That with most fell despight and deadly hate,
 Seekes to subuert her Crowne and dignity,
 And all his powre doth thereunto apply:
 And her good Knights, of which so braue a band
 Serues her, as any Princeesse vnder sky,
 He either spoiles, if they against him stand,
 Or to his part allures, and bribeth vnder hand.

Ne him sufficeth all the wrong and ill,
 Which he vnto her people does each day,
 But that he seekes by traytrous traines to spill
 Her person, and her sacred selfe to slay:
 That ô ye heauens defend, and turne away
 From her, vnto the miscreant him selfe,
 That neither hath religion nor fay,
 But makes his God of his vngodly pelfe,
 And Idols serues; so let his Idols serue the Elfe.

To all which cruell tyranny they say,
 He is prouokt, and stird vp day and night
 By his bad wife, that hight Adicia,
 Who counsels him through confidence of might,

To breake all bonds of law, and rules of right.
 For she her selfe professeth mortall foe
 To Iustice, and against her still doth fight,
 Working to all, that loue her, deadly woe,
 And making all her Knights and people to doe so.

Which my liege Lady seeing, thought it best,
 With that his wife in friendly wise to deale,
 For stint of strife, and stablishment of rest
 Both to her selfe, and to her common weale,
 And all forepast displeasures to repeale.
 So me in message vnto her she sent,
 To treat with her by way of enterdeale,
 Of finall peace and faire attonement,
 Which might concluded be by mutuall consent.

All times haue wont safe passage to afford
 To messengers, that come for causes iust:
 But this proude Dame disdayning all accord,
 Not onely into bitter termes forth brust,
 Reuiling me, and rayling as she lust,
 But lastly to make prooffe of vtmost shame,
 Me like a dog she out of dores did thrust,
 Miscalling me by many a bitter name,
 That neuer did her ill, ne once deserued blame.

And lastly, that no shame might wanting be,
 When I was gone, soone after me she sent
 These two false Knights, whom there ye lying see,
 To be by them dishonoured and shent:
 But thank be God, and your good hardiment,
 They haue the price of their owne folly payd.
 So said this Damzell, that hight Samient,
 And to those knights, for their so noble ayd,
 Her selfe most gratefull shew'd, & heaped thanks repayd.

But they now hauing throughly heard, and seene
 Al those great wrongs, the which that mayd complai-
 To haue bene done against her Lady Queene, (ned.
 By that proud dame, which her so much disdaind,
 Were moued much thereat, and twixt them fained,
 With all their force to worke auengement strong
 Vppon the Souldan selfe, which it mayntained,
 And on his Lady, th'author of that wrong,
 And vppon all those Knights, that did to her belong.

But thinking best by counterfet disguise
 To their deseigne to make the easier way,
 They did this complot twixt them selues deuise,
 First that sir Artegall should him array,
 Like one of those two Knights, which dead there lay.
 And then that Damzell, the sad Samient,
 Should as his purchast prize with him conuay
 Vnto the Souldans court, her to present
 Vnto his scornefull Lady, that for her had sent.

So as they had deuiz'd, sir Artegall
 Him clad in th'armour of a Pagan knight,
 And taking with him, as his vanquisht thrall,
 That Damzell, led her to the Souldans right.
 Where soone as his proud wife of her had sight,
 Forth of her window as she looking lay,
 She weened streight, it was her Paynim Knight,
 Which brought that Damzell, as his purchast pray;
 And sent to him a Page, that mote direct his way.

Who bringing them to their appointed place,
 Offred his seruice to disarme the Knight;
 But he refusing him to let vnlace,
 For doubt to be discouered by his sight,

Kept himselfe still in his straunge armour dight,
 Soone after whom the Prince arriued there,
 And sending to the Souldan in despight
 A bold defyance, did of him requere
 That Damzell, whom he held as wrongfull prisonere.

Wherewith the Souldan all with furie fraught,
 Swearing, and banning most blasphemously,
 Commaunded straight his armour to be brought,
 And mounting straight vpon a charret hye,
 With yron wheelles and hookes arm'd dreadfully,
 And drawne of cruell steedes, which he had fed
 With flesh of men, whom through fell tyranny
 He slaughtred had, and ere they were halfe ded,
 Their bodies to his beasts for prouender did spred.

So forth he came all in a cote of plate,
 Burnisht with bloudie rust, whiles on the greene
 The Briton Prince him readie did awayte,
 In glistering armes right goodly well becene,
 That shone as bright, as doth the heauen sheene;
 And by his stirrup Talus did attend,
 Playing his pages part, as he had beene
 Before directed by his Lord; to th'end
 He should his sleale to finall execution bend.

Thus goe they both together to their geare,
 With like fierce minds, but meanings different:
 For the proud Souldan with presumptuous cheare,
 And countenance sublime and insolent,
 Sought onely slaughter and auengement:
 But the braue Prince for honour and for right,
 Gainst tortious powre and lawlesse regiment,
 In the behalfe of wronged weake did fight:
 More in his causes truth he trusted then in might.

Like to the Thracian Tyrant, who they say
 Vnto his horses gaue his guests for meat,
 Till he himselfe was made their greedie pray,
 And torne in peeces by Alcides great.
 So thought the Souldan in his follies threat,
 Either the Prince in peeces to haue torne
 With his sharpe wheelles, in his first rages heat,
 Or vnder his fierce horses feet haue borne
 And trampled downe in dust his thoughts disdaind (scorne.

But the bold child that perill well espying,
 If he too rashly to his charet drew,
 Gaue way vnto his horses speedie flying,
 And their resistlesse rigour did eschew.
 Yet as he passed by, the Pagan threw
 A shiuering dart with so impetuous force,
 That had he not it shun'd with heedfull vew,
 It had himselfe transfix'd, or his horse,
 Or made them both one masse withouten more remorse.

Oft drew the Prince vnto his charret nigh,
 In hope some stroke to fasten on him neare;
 But he was mounted in his seat so high,
 And his wingfooted coursers him did beare
 So fast away, that ere his readie speare
 He could aduance, he farre was gone and past.
 Yet still he him did follow euery where,
 And followed was of him likewise full fast;
 So long as in his steedes the flaming breath did last.

Againe the Pagan threw another dart,
 Of which he had with him abundant store,
 On euery side of his embatteld cart,
 And of all other weapons lesse or more,
 Which

Which warlike vſes had deuiz'd of yore.
 The wicked ſhaft guyded through th'ayrie wyde,
 By ſome bad ſpirit, that it to miſchiefe bore,
 Stayd not, till through his curat it did glyde,
 And made a grieſly wound in his enriuen ſide.

Much was he grieued with that hapleſſe throe,
 That opened had the welſpring of his blood;
 But much the more that to his hatefull foe
 He mote not come, to wreake his wrathfull mood.
 That made him rauē, like to a Lyon wood;
 Which being wounded of the huntſmans hand
 Can not come neare him in the couert wood,
 Where he with boughes hath built his ſhady ſtand,
 And ſenſt himſelfe about with many a flaming brand.

Still when he ſought t'approch vnto him ny,
 His charret wheelles about him whirled round,
 And made him backe againe as faſt to fly,
 And eke his ſteedes like to an hungry hound,
 That hunting after game hath carrion found,
 So cruelly did him purſew and chace,
 That his good ſteed, all were he much renownd
 For noble courage, and for hardie race,
 Durſt not endure their ſight, but fled from place to place.

Thus long they traſt, and trauerſt to and fro,
 Seeking by euery way to make ſome breach,
 Yet could the Prince not nigh vnto him goe,
 That one ſure ſtroke he might vnto him reach,
 Whereby his ſtrengthes aſſay he might him teach.
 At laſt from his victorious ſhield he drew
 The vaile, which did his powrefull light empeach;
 And comming full before his horſes vew,
 As they vpon him preſt, it plaine to them did ſhew.

Like lightening flash, that hath the gazer burned,
 So did the sight thereof their sense dismay,
 That backe againe vpon themselues they turned,
 And with their ryder ranne perforce away:
 Ne could the Souldan them from flying stay,
 With raynes, or wonted rule, as well he knew.
 Nought feared they, what he could do, or say,
 But th'onely feare, that was before their vew;
 From which like mazed deare, dismayfully they flew.

Fast did they fly, as them their feete could beare,
 High ouer hilles, and lowly ouer dales,
 As they were follow'd of their former feare.
 In vaine the Pagan bannes, and sweares, and rayles,
 And backe with both his hands vnto him hayles
 The resty raynes, regarded now no more:
 He to them calles and speakes, yet nought auayles;
 They heare him not, they haue forgot his lore,
 But go, which way they list, their guide they haue forlore.

As when the fire-mouthed steeds, which drew
 The Sunnes bright wayne to Phaetons decay,
 Soone as they did the monstrous Scorpion vew,
 With vgly craples crawling in their way,
 The dreadfull sight did them so sore affray,
 That their well knowne courses they forwent,
 And leading th'euer-burning lampe astray,
 This lower world nigh all to ashes brent,
 And left their scorched path yet in the firmament.

Such was the furie of these head-strong steeds,
 Soone as the infants sunlike shield they saw,
 That all obedience both to words and deeds
 They quite forgot, and scornd all former law;

Through

Through woods, and rocks, and mountaines they did
 The yron charet, and the wheelles did teare, (draw
 And tost the Paynim, without feare or awe;
 From side to side they tost him here and there,
 Crying to them in vaine, that would his crying heare.

Yet still the Prince pursew'd him close behind,
 Oft making offer him to smite, but found
 No easie meanes according to his mind.
 At last they haue all ouerthrowne to ground
 Quite topside turuey, and the pagan hound
 Amongst the yron hookes and graples keene,
 Torne all to rags, and rent with many a wound,
 That no whole peece of him was to be seene,
 But scattred all about, and strow'd vpon the greene.

Like as the curfed sonne of Thesus,
 That following his chace in dewy morne,
 To fly his stepdames loues outrageous,
 Of his owne steedes was all to peeces torne,
 And his faire limbs left in the woods forlorne;
 That for his sake Diana did lament,
 And all the wooddy Nymphes did wayle and mourne.
 So was this Souldan rapt and all to rent,
 That of his shape appear'd no litle monument.

Onely his shield and armour, which there lay,
 Though nothing whole, but all to brufd and broken,
 He vp did take, and with him brought away,
 That mote remaine for an eternall token
 To all, mongst whom this storie should be spoken,
 How worthily, by heauens high decree,
 Iustice that day of wrong her selfe had wroken,
 That all men which that spectacle did see,
 By like ensample mote for euer warned bee.

So on a tree, before the Tyrants dore,
 He caused them be hung in all mens sight,
 To be a moniment for euermore.
 Which when his Ladie from the castles hight
 Beheld, it much appald her troubled spright:
 Yet not, as women wont in dolefull fit,
 She was dismayd, or faynted through affright,
 But gathered vnto her her troubled wit,
 And gan estfoones deuize to be aueng'd for it.

Streight downe she ranne, like an enraged cow,
 That is berobbed of her youngling dere,
 With knife in hand, and fatally did vow,
 To wreake her on that mayden messengere,
 Whom she had cauld be kept as prisonere,
 By Artegall, misween'd for her owne Knight,
 That brought her backe. And comming present there,
 She at her ran with all her force and might,
 All flaming with reuenge and furious despight.

Like raging Ino, when with knife in hand
 She threw her husbands murdred infant out,
 Or fell Medea, when on Colchicke strand
 Her brothers bones she scattered all about;
 Or as that madding mother, mongst the rout
 Of Bacchus Priests her owne deare flesh did teare.
 Yet neither Ino, nor Medea stout,
 Nor all the Maenades so furious were,
 As this bold woman, when she saw that Damzell there.

But Artegall being thereof aware,
 Did stay her cruell hand, ere she her raught,
 And as she did her selfe to strike prepare,
 Out of her fist the wicked weapon caught:

With

With that like one enfelon'd or distraught,
 She forth did come, whether her rage her bore,
 With franticke passion, and with furie fraught;
 And breaking forth out at a posterne dore,
 Vnto the wyld wood ranne, her dolours to deplore.

As a mad bytch, when as the franticke fit
 Her burning tongue with rage inflamed hath,
 Doth runne at randon, and with furious bit
 Snatching at euery thing, doth wreake her wrath
 On man and beast, that commeth in her path.
 There they doe say, that she transformed was
 Into a Tygre, and that Tygres scath
 In crueltie and outrage she did pas,
 To proue her surname true, that she imposed has.

Then Artegall himselfe discovering plaine,
 Did issue forth gainst all that warlike rout
 Of knights and armed men, which did maintaine
 That Ladies part, and to the Souldan lout:
 All which he did assault with courage stout,
 All were they nigh an hundred knights of name,
 And like wyld Goates them chaced all about,
 Flying from place to place with cowheard shame,
 So that with finall force them all he ouercame.

Then caused he the gates be opened wyde,
 And there the Prince, as victour of that day,
 With tryumph entertayn'd and glorifyde,
 Presenting him with all the rich array,
 And roiall pompe, which there long hidden lay,
 Purchast through lawlesse powre and tortious wrong
 Of that proud Souldan, whom he earst did slay.
 So both for rest there hauing stayd not long,
 Marcht with that mayd, fit matter for another song.

Cant. IX.

*Arthur and Artegall catch Guyle whom Talus doth dismay,
They to Mercillaes pallace come,
and see her rich array.*

WHat Tygre, or what other saluage wight
Is so exceeding furious and fell, (might)
As wrong, when it hath arm'd it selfe with
Not fit mongst men, that doe with reason mell,
But mongst wyld beasts and saluage woods to dwell;
Where still the stronger doth the weake deuoure,
And they that most in boldnesse doe excell,
Are dredded most, and feared for their powre:
Fit for Adicia, there to build her wicked bowre.

There let her wonne farre from resort of men,
Where righteous Artegall her late exyled;
There let her euer keepe her damned den,
Where none may be with her lewd parts defyled,
Nor none but beasts may be of her despoyled:
And turne we to the noble Prince, where late
We did him leaue, after that he had foyled
The cruell Souldan, and with dreadfull fate
Had vtterly subuerted his vnrighteous state.

Where hauing with Sir Artegall a space
Well solast in that Souldans late delight,
They both resoluing now to leaue the place,
Both it and all the wealth therein beight

Vnto that Damzell in her Ladies right,
 And so would haue departed on their way.
 But she them woo'd by all the meanes she might,
 And earnestly besought, to wend that day
 With her, to see her Ladic thence not farre away.

By whose entreatie both they ouercommen,
 Agree to goe with her, and by the way,
 (As often falles) of fundry things did commen.
 Mongst which that Damzell did to them bewray
 A straunge aduenture, which not farre thence lay;
 To weet a wicked villaine, bold and stout,
 Which wonned in a rocke not farre away,
 That robbed all the countrie there about,
 And brought the pillage home, whence none could get it out.

Thereto both his owne wylie wit, (she sayd)
 And eke the fastnesse of his dwelling place,
 Both vnassaylable, gaue him great ayde:
 For he so crafty was to forge and face,
 So light of hand, and nymble of his pace,
 So smooth of tongue, and subtile in his tale,
 That could deceiue one looking in his face;
 Therefore by name Malengin they him call,
 Well knowen by his feates, and famous ouer all.

Through these his slights he many doth confound,
 And eke the rocke, in which he wents to dwell,
 Is wondrous strong, and hewen farre vnder ground
 A dreadfull depth, how deepe no man can tell;
 But some doe say, it goeth downe to hell.
 And all within, it full of wyndings is,
 And hidden wayes, that scarce an hound by smell
 Can follow out those false footsteps of his,
 Ne none can backe returne, that once are gone amis.

Which when those knights had heard, their harts gan
 To vnderstand that villeins dwelling place, (earne,
 And greatly it desir'd of her to learne,
 And by which way they towards it should trace.
 Were not (sayd she) that it should let your pace
 Towards my Ladies presence by you ment,
 I would you guyde directly to the place.
 Then let not that (said they) stay your intent;
 For neither will one foot, till we that carle haue hent.

So forth they past, till they approched ny
 Vnto the rocke, where was the villains won,
 Which when the Damzell neare at hand did spy,
 She warn'd the knights thereof: who thereupon
 Gan to aduize, what best were to be done.
 So both agreed, to send that mayd afore,
 Where she might sit nigh to the den alone,
 Wayling, and rayfing pittifull vprore,
 As if she did some great calamitie deplore.

With noyse whereof when as the caytiue carle
 Should issue forth, in hope to find some spoyle,
 They in awayt would closely him ensnarle,
 Ere to his den he backward could recoyle,
 And so would hope him easily to foyle.
 The Damzell straight went, as she was directed,
 Vnto the rocke, and there vpon the foyle
 Hauing her selfe in wretched wize abiected,
 Gan weepe and wayle, as if great griefe had her affected.

The cry whereof entring the hollow caue,
 Eftsoones brought forth the villaine, as they ment,
 With hope of her some wishfull boot to haue.
 Full dreadfull wight he was, as euer went

Vpon the earth, with hollow eyes deepe pent,
 And long curld locks, that downe his shoulders shag-
 And on his backe an vncouth vestiment (ged,
 Made of straunge stuffe, but all to worne and ragged,
 And vnderneath his breech was all to torne and iagged.

And in his hand an huge long staffe he held,
 Whose top was arm'd with many an yron hooke,
 Fit to catch hold of all that he could weld,
 Or in the compasse of his clouches tooke;
 And euer round about he cast his looke.
 Als at his backe a great wyde net he bore,
 With which he seldome fished at the brooke,
 But vsd to fish for fooles on the dry shore,
 Of which he in faire weather wont to take great store.

Him when the damzell saw fast by her side,
 So vgly creature, she was nigh dismayd,
 And now for helpe aloud in earnest cride.
 But when the villaine saw her so affrayd,
 He gan with guilefull words her to perswade,
 To banish feare, and with Sardonian smyle
 Laughing on her, his false intent to shade,
 Gan forth to lay his bayte her to beguyle,
 That from her self vnwares he might her steale the whyle.

Like as the fouler on his guilefull pype
 Charmes to the birds full many a pleasant lay,
 That they the whiles may take lesse heedie keepe,
 How he his nets doth for their ruine lay:
 So did the villaine to her prate and play,
 And many pleasant trickes before her show,
 To turne her eyes from his intent away:
 For he in flights and iugling feates did flow,
 And of legierdemayne the mysteries did know.

To which whilest she lent her intentiue mind,
 He suddenly his net vpon her threw,
 That ouersprad her like a puffe of wind;
 And snatching her soone vp, ere well she knew,
 Ran with her fast away vnto his mew,
 Crying for helpe aloud. But when as ny
 He came vnto his caue, and there did vew
 The armed knights stopping his passage by,
 He threw his burden downe, and fast away did fly.

But Artegall him after did pursew,
 The whiles the Prince there kept the entrance still:
 Vp to the rocke he ran, and thereon flew
 Like a wyld Gote, leaping from hill to hill,
 And dauncing on the craggy cliffes at will;
 That deadly daunger seem'd in all mens sight,
 To tempt such steps, where footing was so ill:
 Ne ought auayled for the armed knight,
 To thinke to follow him, that was so swift and light.

Which when he saw, his yron man he sent,
 To follow him; for he was swift in chace.
 He him pursewd, where euer that he went,
 Both ouer rockes, and hilles, and euery place,
 Where so he fled, he followd him apace:
 So that he shortly forst him to forsake
 The hight, and downe descend vnto the base.
 There he him courtst a fresh, and soone did make
 To leaue his proper forme, and other shape to take.

Into a Foxe himselfe he first did tourne;
 But he him hunted like a Foxe full fast:
 Then to a bush himselfe he did transforme,
 But he the bush did beat, till that at last

Into

Into a bird it chaung'd, and from him past,
 Flying from tree to tree, from wand to wand:
 But he then stones at it so long did cast,
 That like a stone it fell vpon the land,
 But he then tooke it vp, and held fast in his hand.

So he it brought with him vnto the knights,
 And to his Lord Sir Artegall it lent,
 Warning him hold it fast, for feare of slights.
 Who whilest in hand it gryping hart he hent,
 Into a Hedgehogge all vnwares it went,
 And prickt him so, that he away it threw.
 Then gan it runne away incontinent,
 Being returned to his former hew:
 But Talus soone him ouertooke, and backward drew:

But when as he would to a snake againe
 Haue turn'd himselfe, he with his yron flayle
 Gan driue at him, with so huge might and maine,
 That all his bones, as small as sandy grayle
 He broke, and did his bowels disentrayle;
 Crying in vaine for helpe, when helpe was past.
 So did decept the selfe deceiuer fayle,
 There they him left a carrion outcast;
 For beasts and foules to feede vpon for their repast.

Thence forth they passed with that gentle Mayd,
 To see her Ladie, as they did agree.
 To which when she approched, thus she sayd;
 Loe now, right noble knights, arriu'd ye bee
 Nigh to the place, which ye desir'd to see:
 There shall ye see my fouerayne Lady Queene
 Most sacred wight, most debonayre and free,
 That euer yet vpon this earth was seene,
 Or that with Diademe hath euer crowned beene.

The gentle knights reioyced much to heare
 The prayſes of that Prince ſo manifold,
 And paſſing litle further, commen were,
 Where they a ſtately pallace did behold,
 Of pompous ſhow, much more then ſhe had told;
 With many towres, and tarras mounted hye,
 And all their tops bright gliſtering with gold,
 That ſeemed to outſhine the dimmed ſkye,
 And with their brightneſſe daz'd the ſtraunge beholders eye.

There they alighting, by that Damzell were Directed in, and ſhewed all the ſight:
 Whoſe porch, that moſt magnificke did appeare,
 Stood open wyde to all men day and night;
 Yet warded well by one of mickle might,
 That ſate thereby, with gyantlike reſemblance,
 To keepe out guyle, and malice, and deſpight,
 That vnder ſhew oftimes of fayned ſemblance,
 Are wont in Princes courts to worke great ſcath and hindrance.

His name was Ame; by whom they paſſing in
 Went vp the hall, that was a large wyde roome,
 All full of people making troublous din,
 And wondrous noyſe, as if that there were ſome,
 Which vnto them was dealing righteous doome.
 By whom they paſſing, through the thickeſt preaſſe,
 The marſhall of the hall to them did come;
 His name hight Order, who commaunding peace,
 Them guyded through the throng, that did their cla-
 mors ceaſſe.

They ceaſt their clamors vpon them to gaze;
 Whom ſeeing all in armour bright as day,
 Strange there to ſee, it did them much amaze,
 And with vnwonted terror halfe affray.

For neuer saw they there the like array.
 Ne euer was the name of warre there spoken,
 But ioyous peace and quietnesse alway,
 Dealing iust iudgements, that mote not be broken
 For any brybés, or threatés of any to be wroken.

There as they entred at the Scriene, they saw
 Some one, whose tongue was for his trespasse vyle
 Nayld to a post, adiudged so by law:
 For that therewith he falsely did reuyle,
 And foule blasphemé that Queene for forged guyle,
 Both with bold speaches, which he blazed had,
 And with lewd poems, which he did compyle;
 For the bold title of a Poet bad
 He on himselfe had ta'en, and rayling rymes had sprad.

Thus there he stood, whylest high ouer his head,
 There written was the purport of his sin,
 In cyphers strange, that few could rightly read,
 BON FON S: but bon that once had written bin,
 Was rased out, and Mal was now put in.
 So now Malfont was plainely to be red;
 Eyther for th'euill, which he did therein,
 Or that he likened was to a welhed
 Of euill words, and wicked sclaunders by him shed.

They passing by, were guyded by degree
 Vnto the presence of that gracious Queene:
 Who sate on high, that she might all men see,
 And might of all men royally be seene,
 Vpon a throne of gold full bright and sheene,
 Adorned all with gemmes of endlesse price,
 As either might for wealth haue gotten bene,
 Or could be fram'd by workmans rare deuice;
 And all embost with Lyons and with Flourdelyce.

All ouer her a cloth of state was spred,
 Not of rich tiffew, nor of cloth of gold,
 Nor of ought else, that may be richest red,
 But like a cloud, as likest may be told,
 That her brode spreading wings did wyde vnfold;
 Whose skirts were bordred with bright sunny beams,
 Gliftring like gold, amongst the plights enrold,
 And here and there shooting forth filuer streames, Mongst which crept litle Angels through the glittering gleames.

Seemed those litle Angels did vphold
 The cloth of state, and on their purpled wings
 Did beare the pendants, through their nimbleffe bold:
 Besides a thousand more of such, as sings
 Hymnes to high God, and carols heauenly things,
 Encompassed the throne, on which she sate:
 She Angel-like, the heyre of ancient kings
 And mightie Conquerors, in royall state,
 Whylest kings and kesars at her feet did them prostrate.

Thus she did sit in souerayne Maiestie,
 Holding a Scepter in her royall hand,
 The sacred pledge of peace and clemencie,
 With which high God had blest her happie land,
 Maugre so many foes, which did withstand.
 But at her feet her sword was likewise layde,
 Whose long rest rusted the bright steely brand;
 Yet when as foes enforst, or friends sought ayde,
 She could it sternely draw, that all the world dismayde.

And round about, before her feet there sate
 A beuie of faire Virgins clad in white,
 That goodly seem'd t' adorne her royall state;
 All louely daughters of high Ioue, that hight,

Lite by him begot in loues delight,
 Vpon the righteous Themis: those they say
 Vpon Ioues iudgement seat wayt day and night,
 And when in wrath he threats the worlds decay,
 They doe his anger calme, and cruell vengeance stay.

They also doe by his diuine permission
 Vpon the thrones of mortall Princes tend,
 And often treat for pardon and remission
 To suppliant, through frayltie which offend.
 Those did vpon Mercillaes throne attend:
 Iust Dice, wise Eunomie, myld Eirene,
 And them amongst, her glorie to commend,
 Sate goodly Temperance in garments clene,
 And sacred Reuerence, yborne of heauenly strene.

Thus did she sit in royall rich estate,
 Admir'd of many, honoured of all,
 Whylest vnderneath her feete, there as she sate,
 An huge great Lyon lay, that mote appall
 An hardie courage, like captiued thrall,
 With a strong yron chaine and coller bound,
 That once he could not moue, nor quich at all;
 Yet did he murmure with rebellions sound,
 And softly royne, when saluage choler gan redound.

So sitting high in dreaded souerayntie, (brought;
 Those two strange knights were to her presence
 Who bowing low before her Maiestie,
 Did to her myld obeysance, as they ought,
 And meekest boone, that they imagine mought.
 To whom she eke inclyning her withall,
 As a faire stoupe of her high soaring thought,
 A chearefull countenance on them let fall,
 Yet tempred with some maiestie imperiall.

As the bright sunne, what time his fieric teme
 Towards the westernne brim begins to draw,
 Gins to abate the brightnesse of his beme,
 And feruour of his flames somewhat adaw:
 So did this mightie Ladie, when she saw
 Those two strange knights such homage to her make,
 Bate somewhat of that Maiestie and awe,
 That whylome wont to doe so many quake,
 And with more myld aspect those two to entertake.

Now at that instant, as occasion fell,
 When these two stranger knights arriu'd in place,
 She was about affaires of common wele,
 Dealing of Iustice with indifferent grace,
 And hearing pleas of people meane and base.
 Mongst which as then, there was for to be heard
 The tryall of a great and weightie case,
 Which on both sides was then debating hard:
 But at the sight of these, those were a while debard.

But after all her princely entertayne,
 To th'hearing of that former cause in hand,
 Her selfe estsoones she gan conuert againe;
 Which that those knights likewise mote vnderstand,
 And witnessse forth aright in forrain land,
 Taking them vp vnto her stately throne,
 Where they mote heare the matter throughly scand
 On either part, she placed th'one on th'one,
 The other on the other side, and neare them none.

Then was there brought, as prisoner to the barre,
 A Ladie of great countenance and place,
 But that she it with foule abuse did marre;
 Yet did appeare rare beautie in her face,

But blotted with condition vile and base,
 That all her other honour did obscure,
 And titles of nobilitie deface;
 Yet in that wretched semblant, she did sure
 The peoples great compassion vnto her allure.

Then vp arose a person of deepe reach,
 And rare in-sight, hard matters to reuele;
 That well could charme his tongue, & time his speech
 To all assayes; his name was called Zele:
 He gan that Ladie strongly to appele
 Of many haynous crymes, by her enured,
 And with sharpe reasons rang her such a pele,
 That those, whom she to pitie had allured,
 He now t'abhorre and loath her person had procured.

First gan he tell, how this that seem'd so faire
 And royally arayd, *Duess*a hight
 That false *Duess*a, which had wrought great care,
 And mickle mischief vnto many a knight,
 By her beguyled, and confounded quight:
 But not for those she now in question came,
 Though also those mote question'd be aright,
 But for vylde treasons, and outrageous shame,
 Which she against the dred Mercilla oft did frame.

For she whylome (as ye mote yet right well Remember) had her counsels false conspyred,
 With faithlesse Blandamour and Paridell,
 (Both two her paramours, both by her hyred,
 And both with hope of shadowes vaine inspyred.)
 And with them practiz'd, how for to depyue
Mercilla of her crowne, by her aspyred,
 That she might it vnto her selfe deryue,
 And triumph in their blood, whō she to death did dryue.

But through high heauens grace, which fauour not
 The wicked driftes of trayterous desynes,
 Gainst loiall Princes, all this cursed plot,
 Ere prooffe it tooke, discouered was betymes,
 And th'actours won the meede meet for their crymes.
 Such be the meede of all, that by such mene
 Vnto the type of kingdomes title clymes.
 But false Duessa now vntitled Queene,
 Was brought to her sad doome, as here was to be seene.

Strongly did Zele her haynous fact enforce,
 And many other crimes of foule defame
 Against her brought, to banish all remorse,
 And aggrauate the horror of her blaine.
 And with him to make part against her, came
 Many graue persons, that against her pled;
 First was a sage old Syre, that had to name
 The Kingdomes care, with a white siluer hed,
 That many high regards and reasons gainst her red.

Then gan Authority her to appose
 With peremptorie powre, that made all mute;
 And then the law of Nations gainst her rose,
 And reasons brought, that no man could refute;
 Next gan Religion gainst her to impute
 High Gods behest, and powre of holy lawes;
 Then gan the Peoples cry and Commons sute,
 Importune care of their owne publicke cause;
 And lastly Iustice charged her with breach of lawes.

But then for her, on the contrarie part,
 Rose many aduocates for her to plead:
 First there came Pittie, with full tender hart,
 And with her ioyn'd Regard of womanhead;

And

And then came Daunger threatning hidden dread,
 And high alliance vnto forren powre;
 Then came Nobilitie of birth, that bread
 Great ruth through her misfortunes tragicke stowre;
 And lastly Griefe did plead, & many teares forth powre.

With the neare touch whereof in tender hart
 The Briton Prince was fore empassionate,
 And woxe inclined much vnto her part,
 Through the sad terror of so dreadfull fate,
 And wretched ruine of so high estate,
 That for great ruth his courage gan relent.
 Which when as Zele perceiued to abate,
 He gan his earnest seruour to augment,
 And many fearefull objects to them to present.

He gan t'efforce the euidence anew,
 And new accusements to produce in place:
 He brought forth that old hag of hellish hew,
 The curfed Ate, brought her face to face,
 Who priuie was, and partie in the case:
 She, glad of spoyle and ruinous decay,
 Did her appeach, and to her more disgrace,
 The plot of all her practise did display,
 And all her traynes, and all her treasons forth did lay.

Then brought he forth, with grieisly grim aspect,
 Abhorred Murder, who with bloudie knyfe
 Yet dropping fresh in hand did her detect,
 And there with guiltie bloudshed charged ryfe:
 Then brought he forth Sedition, breeding stryfe
 In troublous wits, and mutinous vproure:
 Then brought he forth Incontinence of lyfe,
 Euen foule Adulterie her face before,
 And lewd Impietie, that her accused sore.

All which when as the Prince had heard and seene,
 His former fancies ruth he gan repent,
 And from her partie estfoones was drawn cleene.
 But Artegall with constant firme intent,
 For zeale of Iustice was against her bent.
 So was she guiltie deemed of them all.
 Then Zele began to yrge her punishment,
 And to their Queene for iudgement loudly call,
 Vnto Mercilla myld for Iustice gainst the thrall.

But she, whose Princely breast was touched nere
 With piteous ruth of her so wretched plight,
 Though plaine she saw by all, that she did heare,
 That she of death was guiltie found by right,
 Yet would not let iust vengeance on her light;
 But rather let in stead thereof to fall
 Few perling drops from her faire lampes of light;
 The which she couering with her purple pall
 Would haue the passion hid, and vp arose withall.

CANT.

Cant. X.

Prince Arthur takes the enterprize
for Belgee for to fight, Gerioneos Seneschall
he slayes in Belges right.

Some Clarkes doe doubt in their deuicefull art,
Whether this heauenly thing, whereof I treat,
To weeten Mercie be of Iustice part,
Or drawne forth from her by diuine extreate.
This well I wote, that sure she is as great,
And meriteth to haue as high a place,
Sith in th'Almighties euerlasting seat
She first was bred, and borne of heauenly race;
From thence pour'd down on men, by influence of grace.

For if that Vertue be of so great might,
Which from iust verdict will for nothing start,
But to preserue inuiolated right,
Oft spilles the principall, to saue the part;
So much more then is that of powre and art,
That seekes to saue the subiect of her skill,
Yet neuer doth from doome of right depart:
As it is greater prayse to saue, then spill,
And better to reforme, then to cut off the ill.

Who then can thee, Mercilla, throughly prayse,
That herein doest all earthly Princes pas?
What heauenly Muse shall thy great honour rayse
Vp to the skies, whence first deriu'd it was,

And now on earth it selfe enlarged has,
 From th'vtmost brinke of the Armericke shore,
 Vnto the margent of the Molucas?
 Those Nations farre thy iustice doe adore:
 But thine owne people do thy mercy prayse much more.

Much more it prayfed was of those two knights;
 The noble Prince, and righteous Artegall,
 When they had seene and heard her doome a rights
 Against Duessá, damned by them all;
 But by her tempred without grieffe or gall,
 Till strong constraint did her thereto enforce.
 And yet euen then ruing her wilfull fall,
 With more then needfull naturall remorse,
 And yeelding the last honour to her wretched corse.

During all which, those knights continu'd there,
 Both doing and receiuing curtesies,
 Of that great Ladie, who with goodly chere
 Them entertayn'd, fit for their dignities,
 Approuing dayly to their noble eyes
 Royall examples of her mercies rare,
 And worthie paterns of her clemencies;
 Which till this day mongst many liuing are,
 Who them to their posterities doe still declare.

Amongst the rest, which in that space befell,
 There came two Springals of full tender yeares,
 Farre thence from forrein land, where they did dwell,
 To seeke for succour of her and of her Peares,
 With humble prayers and intreatfull teares;
 Sent by their mother, who a widow was,
 Wrapt in great dolours and in deadly feares,
 By a strong Tyrant, who inuaded has
 Her land, and slaine her children ruefully alas.

Her name was Belga, who in former age
 A Ladie of great worth and wealth had beene,
 And mother of a frutesfull heritage,
 Euen seventeene goodly sonnes; which who had seene
 In their first flowre, before this fatall teene
 Them ouertooke, and their faire blossomes blasted,
 More happie mother would her surely weene,
 Then famous Niobe, before she tasted
Latonaes childrens wrath, that all her issue wasted.

But this fell Tyrant, through his tortious powre,
 Had left her now but fiue of all that brood:
 For twelue of them he did by times deuoure,
 And to his Idols sacrifice their blood,
 Whylest he of none was stopped, nor withstood.
 For soothly he was one of matchlesse might,
 Of horrible aspect, and dreadfull mood,
 And had three bodies in one wast empight,
 And th'armes and legs of three, to succour him in fight.

And sooth they say, that he was borne and bred
 Of Gyants race, the sonne of Geryon,
 He that whylome in Spaine so sore was dred,
 For his huge powre and great oppression,
 Which brought that land to his subiection,
 Through his three bodies powre, in one combynd;
 Andeke all strangers in that region
 Arryuing, to his kyne for food assynd;
 The fayrest kyne aliue, but of the fiercest kynd.

For they were all, they say, of purple hew,
 Kept by a cowheard, hight Eurytion,
 A cruell carle, the which all strangers slew,
 Ne day nor night did sleepe, t'attend them on,

But walkt about them euer and anone,
 With his two headed dogge, that Orthrus hight;
Orthrus begotten by great Typhaon,
 And foule Echidna, in the house of night;
 But Hercules them all did ouercome in fight.

His sonne was this, Geryoneo hight,
 Who after that his monstrous father fell
 Vnder Alcides club, streight tooke his flight
 From that sad land, where he his fyre did quell,
 And came to this, where Belge then did dwell,
 And flourish in all wealth and happinesse,
 Being then new made widow (as befell)
 After her Noble husbands late decesse;
 Which gaue beginning to her woe and wretchednesse.

Then this bold Tyrant, of her widowed
 Taking aduantage, and her yet fresh woes,
 Himselfe and seruice to her offered,
 Her to defend against all forrein foes,
 That should their powre against her right oppose.
 Whereof she glad, now needing strong defence,
 Him entertayn'd, and did her champion chose:
 Which long he vsd with carefull diligence,
 The better to confirme her fearelesse confidence.

By meanes whereof, she did at last commit
 All to his hands, and gaue him soueraine powre
 To doe, what euer he thought good or fit.
 Which hauing got, he gan forth from that howre
 To stirre vp strife, and many a Tragicke stowre,
 Giuing her dearest children one by one
 Vnto a dreadfull Monster to deuoure,
 And setting vp an Idole of his owne,
 The image of his monstrous parent Geryone.

So tyrannizing, and oppressing all,
 The woefull widow had no meanes now left,
 But vnto gracious great Mercilla call
 For ayde, against that cruell Tyrants theft,
 Ere all her children he from her had rest.
 Therefore these two, her eldest sonnes she sent,
 To seeke for succour of this Ladies giest:
 To whom their sute they humbly did present,
 In th'hearing of full many Knights and Ladies gent.

Amongst the which then fortun'd to bee
 The noble Briton Prince, with his braue Peare;
 Who when he none of all those knights did see
 Hastily bent, that enterprise to heare,
 Nor vndertake the same, for cowheard feare,
 He stepped forth with courage bold and great,
 Admyr'd of all the rest in presence there,
 And humbly gan that mightie Queene entreat,
 To graunt him that aduenture for his former feat.

She gladly graunted it: then he straight way
 Himselfe vnto his iourney gan prepare,
 And all his armours readie dight that day,
 That nought the morrow next mote stay his fare.
 The morrow next appear'd, with purple hayre
 Yet dropping fresh out of the Indian fount,
 And bringing light into the heauens fayre,
 When he was readie to his steede to mount;
 Vnto his way, which now was all his care and count.

Then taking humble leaue of that great Queene,
 Who gaue him roiall giftes and riches rare,
 As tokens of her thankfull mind besene,
 And leauing Artegal to his owne care;

Vpon his voyage forth he gan to fare,
 With those two gentle youthes, which him did guide,
 And all his way before him still prepare.
 Ne after him did Artigall abide,
 But on his first aduenture forward, forth did ride.

It was not long, till that the Prince arriued
 Within the land, where dwelt that Ladie sad,
 Whereof that Tyrant had her now depriued,
 And into moores and marshes banisht had,
 Out of the pleasant soyle, and citties glad,
 In which she wont to harbour happily:
 But now his cruelty so sore she drad,
 That to those fennes for fastnesse she did fly,
 And there her selfe did hyde from his hard tyranny.

There he her found in sorrow and dismay,
 All solitarie without liuing wight;
 For all her other children, through affray,
 Had hid themselues, or taken further flight:
 And eke her selfe through sudden strange affright,
 When one in armes she saw, began to fly;
 But when her owne two sonnes she had in sight,
 She gan take hart, and looke vp ioyfully:
 For well she wist this knight came, succour to supply.

And running vnto them with greedy ioyes,
 Fell straight about their neckes, as they did kneele,
 And bursting forth in teares; Ah my sweet boyes, (Sayed she) yet now I gin new life to feele,
 And feeble spirits, that gan faint and reele,
 Now rise againe, at this your ioyous sight.
 Alreadie seemes that fortunes headlong wheele
 Begins to turne, and sunne to shine more bright,
 Then it was wont, through comfort of this noble knight.

Then

Then turning vnto him ; And you Sir knight
 (Said she) that taken haue this' toyle some paine }
 For wretched woman, miserable wight,
 May you in heauen immortall guerdon gaine
 For so great trauell, as you doe sustaine:
 For other meede may hope for none of mee,
 To whom nought else, but bare life doth remaine,
 And that so wretched one, as ye do see
 Is liker lingring death, then loathed life to bee.

Much was he moued with her piteous plight,
 And low dismounting from his loftie steede,
 Gan to recomfort her all that he might,
 Seeking to driue away deepe rooted dreede,
 With hope of helpe in that her greatest neede.
 So thence he wished her with him to wend,
 Vnto some place, where they mote rest and feede;
 And she take comfort, which God now did send:
 Good hart in euils doth the euils much amend.

Ay me (sayd she) and whether shall I goe?
 Are not all places full of forraine powres?
 My pallaces possessed of my foe,
 My cities sackt, and their sky-threatening towres
 Raced, and made smooth fields now full of flowres?
 Onely these marishes, and myrie bogs,
 In which the fearefull ewftes do build their bowres,
 Yeeld me an hoftry mongst the croking frogs,
 And harbour here in safety from those rauinous dogs.

Nathlesse (said he) deare Ladie with me goe,
 Some place shall vs receiue, and harbour yield;
 If not, we will it force, maugre your foe,
 And purchase it to vs with speare and shield:

And if all fayle, yet farewell open field:
 The earth to all her creatures lodging lends.
 With such his chearefull speaches he doth wield
 Her mind so well, that to his will she bends
 And bynding vp her locks and weeds, forth with him (wends.

They came vnto a Citie farre vp land,
 The which whylome that Ladies owne had bene;
 But now by force extort out of her hand,
 By her strong foe, who had defaced cleene
 Her stately towres, and buildings sunny sheene;
 Shut vp her hauen, mard her marchants trade,
 Robbed her people, that full rich had beene,
 And in her necke a Castle huge had made,
 The which did her cōmaund, without needing perswade.

That Castle was the strength of all that state,
 Vntill that state by strength was pulled downe,
 And that same citie, so now ruinate,
 Had bene the keye of all that kingdomes crowne;
 Both goodly Castle, and both goodly Towne,
 Till that th'offended heauens list to lowre
 Vpon their blisse, and balefull fortune frowne.
 When those gainst states and kingdomes do coniure,
 Who then can thinke their hedlong ruine to recure.

But he had brought it now in seruile bond,
 And made it beare the yoke of inquisition,
 Stryuing long time in vaine it to withstond;
 Yet glad at last to make most base submission,
 And life enjoy for any composition.
 So now he hath new lawes and orders new Imposd on it, with many a hard condition,
 And forced it; the honour that is dew
 To God, to doe vnto his Idole most vntrew.

To him he hath, before this Castle Greene,
Built a faire Chappell, and an Altar framed
Of costly Iuory, full rich besene,
On which that cursed Idole farre proclaimed,
He hath set vp, and him his God hath named,
Offering to him in sinfull sacrifice
The flesh of men, to Gods owne likenesse framed,
And powring forth their bloud in brutishe wize,
That anyron eyes, to see it would agrize.

And for more horror and more crueltie,
Vnder that cursed Idols altar stone;
An hideous monster doth in darknesse lie,
Whose dreadfull shape was neuer seene of none
That liues on earth; but vnto those alone
The which vnto him sacrificed bee.
Those he deuoures, they say, both flesh and bone:
What else they haue, is all the Tyrants fee;
So that no whit of them remayning one may see.

There eke he placed a strong garrifone,
And set a Seneschall of dreaded might,
That by his powre oppressed euery one,
And vanquished all ventrous knights in fight;
To whom he wont shew all the shame he might,
After that them in battell he had wonne.
To which when now they gan approach in fight,
The Ladie counfeld him the place to shonne,
Whereas so many knights had fouly bene fordonne.

Her fearefull speaches nought he did regard,
But ryding streight vnder the Castle wall,
Called aloud vnto the watchfull ward,
Which there did wayte, willing them forth to call

Into the field their Tyrants Seneschall.
 To whom when tydings thereof came, he streight
 Calls for his armes, and arming him withall, Eftsoones forth pricked proudly in his might,
 And gan with courage fierce addresse him to the fight.

They both encounter in the middle plaine,
 And their sharpe speares doe both together smite
 Amid their shields, with so huge might and maine,
 That seem'd their soules they wold haue ryuen quight
 Out of their breasts, with furious despight.
 Yet could the Seneschals no entrance find
 Into the Princes shield, where it empight;
 So pure the mettall was, and well refynd,
 But shiuered all about, and scattered in the wynd.

Not so the Princes, but with restlesse force,
 Into his shield it readie passage found,
 Both through his haberieon, and eke his corse:
 Which tombling downe vpon the senselesse ground,
 Gaue leaue vnto his ghost from thraldome bound,
 To wander in the grieelly shades of night.
 There did the Prince him leaue in deadly swound,
 And thence vnto the castle marched right,
 To see if entrance there as yet obtaine he might.

But as he nigher drew, three knights he spyde,
 All arm'd to point, issuing forth a pace,
 Which towards him with all their powre did ryde,
 And meeting him right in the middle race,
 Did all their speares attonce on him enchace.
 As three great Culuerings for battrie bent,
 And leueld all against one certaine place,
 Doe all attonce their thunders rage forth rent,
 That makes the wals to stagger with astonishment.

So all attonce they on the Prince did thonder;
 Who from his faddle swarued nought asyde,
 Ne to their force gaue way, that was great wonder,
 But like a bulwarke, firmly did abyde,
 Rebutting him, which in the midst did ryde,
 With so huge rigour, that his mortall speare
 Past through his shield, & pierst through either syde,
 That downe he fell vppon his mother deare,
 And powred forth his wretched life in deadly dreare.

Whom when his other fellowes saw, they fled
 As fast as feete could carry them away;
 And after them the Prince as swiftly sped,
 To be aueng'd of their vnknightly play.
 There whilest they entring, th'one did th'other stay,
 The hindmost in the gate he ouerhent,
 And as he pressed in, him there did slay:
 His carkasse tumbling on the threshold, sent
 His groning soule vnto her place of punishment.

The other which was entred, laboured fast
 To sperre the gate; but that same lump of clay,
 Whose grudging ghost was thereout fled and past;
 Right in the midst of the threshold lay,
 That it the Posterne did from closing stay:
 The whiles the Prince hard preased in betweene,
 And entraunce wonne. Streight th'other fled away,
 And ran into the Hall, where he did weene
 Him selfe to saue: but he there slew him at the skreene.

Then all the rest which in that Castle were,
 Seeing that sad ensample them before,
 Durst not abide, but fled away for feare,
 And them conuayd out at a Posterne dore.

Long sought the Prince, but when he found no more
 To oppose against his powre, he forth issued
 Vnto that Lady, where he her had lore,
 And her gan cheare, with what she there had vewed,
 And what she had not seene, within vnto her shewed.

Who with right humble thanks him goodly greeting,
 For so great prowesse, as he there had proued,
 Much greater then was euer in her weeting,
 With great admiraunce inwardly was moued,
 And honourd him, with all that her behoued.
 Thenceforth into that Castle he her led,
 With her two sonnes, right deare of her beloued,
 Where all that night them selues they cherished,
 And from her balefull minde all care he banished.

Cant. XI

*Prince Arthure ouercomes the great
 Gernoneo in fight:
 Doth slay the Monster, and restore
 Belge vnto her right.*

IT often fals in course of common life,
 That right long time is ouerborne of wrong,
 Through auarice, or powre, or guile, or strife,
 That weakens her, and makes her party strong:
 But Iustice, though her dome she doe prolong,
 Yet at the last she will her owne cause right.
 As by sad Belge seemes, whose wrongs though long
 She suffred, yet at length she did requight,
 And sent redresse thereof by this braue Briton Knight.

Whereof

Whereof when newes was to that Tyrant brought,
 How that the Lady Belge now had found
 A Champion, that had with his Champion fought,
 And laid his Seneschall low on the ground,
 And eke him selfe did threaten to confound,
 He gan to burne in rage, and friese in feare,
 Doubting sad end of principle vnfound:
 Yet sith he heard but one, that did appeare,
 He did him selfe encourage, and take better cheare.

Nathelesse him selfe he armed all in hast,
 And forth he far'd with all his many bad,
 Ne stayed step, till that he came at last
 Vnto the Castle, which they conquerd had.
 There with huge terrour, to be more ydrad,
 He sternely marcht before the Castle gate,
 And with bold vaunts, and ydle threatning bad
 Deliuer him his owne, ere yet too late,
 To which they had no right, nor any wrongfull state.

The Prince staid not his aunswere to deuize,
 But opening streight the Sparre, forth to him came,
 Full nobly mounted in right warlike wize;
 And asked him, if that he were the same,
 Who all that wrong vnto that wofull Dame
 So long had done, and from her natue land
 Exiled her, that all the world spake shame.
 He boldly aunswerd him, he there did stand
 That would his doings iustifie with his owne hand.

With that so furiously at him he flew,
 As if he would haue ouerrun him streight,
 And with his huge great yron axe gan hew
 So hideously vpon his armour bright,

As he to peeces would haue chopt it quight :
 That the bold Prince was forced foote to giue
 To his first rage, and yeeld to his despight ;
 The whilest at him so dreadfully he driue,
 That seem'd a marble rocke asunder could haue riue.

Thereto a great aduantage eke he has
 Through his three double hands thrise multiplyde,
 Besides the double strength, which in them was :
 For stil when fit occasion did betyde,
 He could his weapon shift from side to syde,
 From hand to hand, and with such nimbleesse fly
 Could wield about, that ere it were espide,
 The wicked stroke did wound his enemy,
 Behinde, beside, before, as he it list apply.

Which vncouth vse when as the Prince perceiued,
 He gan to watch the wielding of his hand,
 Least by such slight he were vnwares deceiued ;
 And euer ere he saw the stroke to land,
 He would it meeete, and warily withstand.
 One time, when he his weapon faynd to shift,
 As he was wont, and chang'd from hand to hand,
 He met him with a counterstroke so swift,
 That quite smit off his arme, as he it vp did list.

Therewith, all fraught with fury and disdain,
 He brayd aloud for very fell despight,
 And sodainely t'auenge him selfe againe,
 Gan into one assemble all the might
 Of all his hands, and heaued them on hight,
 Thinking to pay him with that one for all :
 But the sad steele feizd not, where it was hight,
 Vppon the childe, but somewhat short did fall,
 And lighting on his horses head, him quite did mall.

Downe streight to ground fell his astonisht steed,
 And eke to th'earth his burden with him bare:
 But he him selfe full lightly from him freed,
 And gan him selfe to fight on foote prepare.
 Whereof when as the Gyant was aware,
 He wox right blyth, as he had got thereby,
 And laught so loud, that all his teeth wide bare
 One might haue seene enraung'd disorderly,
 Like to a rancke of piles, that pitched are awry.

Eftsoones againe his axe he raught on hie,
 Ere he were throughly buckled to his gear,
 And can let driue at him so dreadfullie,
 That had he chaunced not his shield to reare,
 Ere that huge stroke arriued on him neare,
 He had him surely clouen quite in twaine.
 But th'Adamantine shield, which he did beare,
 So well was tempred, that for all his maine,
 It would no passage yeeld vnto his purpose vaine.

Yet was the stroke so forcibly applide,
 That made him stagger with vncertaine sway,
 As if he would haue tottered to one side.
 Wherewith full wroth, he fiercely gan assay,
 That curt'sie with like kindnesse to repay;
 And smote at him with so importune might,
 That two more of his armes did fall away,
 Like fruitlesse braunches, which the hatchets flight
 Hath pruned from the natiue tree, and cropped quight.

With that all mad and furious he grew,
 Like a fell mastiffe through enraging heat,
 And curst, and band, and blasphemies forth threw,
 Against his Gods, and fire to them did threat,

And hell vnto him selfe with horreur great.
 Thenceforth he car'd no more, which way he strooke,
 Nor where it light, but gan to chaufe and sweat,
 And gnasht his teeth, and his head at him shooke,
 And sternely him beheld with grim and ghastly looke.

Nought fear'd the childe his lookes, ne yet his threats,
 But onely wexed now the more aware,
 To saue him selfe from those his furious heats,
 And watch aduantage, how to worke his care:
 The which good Fortune to him offred faire.
 For as he in his rage him ouerstrooke,
 He ere he could his weapon backe repaire,
 His side all bare and naked ouertooke,
 And with his mortal steel quite through the body strooke.

Through all three bodies he him strooke attonce;
 That all the three attonce fell on the plaine:
 Else should he thrise haue needed, for the nonce
 Them to haue stricken, and thrise to haue slaine.
 So now all three onè sencelesse lumps remaine,
 Enwallow'd in his owne blacke bloody gore,
 And byting th'earth for very deaths disdain;
 Who with a cloud of night him couering, bore
 Downe to the house of dole, his daies there to deplore.

Which when the Lady from the Castle saw,
 Where she with her two sounnes did looking stand,
 She towards him in hast her selfe did draw,
 To greet him the good fortune of his hand:
 And all the people both of towne and land,
 Which there stood gazing from the Citties wall
 Vppon these warriours, greedy t'vnderstand,
 To whether should the victory befall,
 Now when they saw it false, they eke him greeted all.

But Belge with her sonnes prostrated low
 Before his feete, in all that peoples sight;
 Mongst ioyes mixing some tears, mongst wele, some Him thus bespake; O most redoubted Knight, (wo,
 The which hast me, of all most wretched wight,
 That earst was dead, restor'd to life againe,
 And these weake impes replanted by thy might;
 What guerdon can I giue thee for thy paine,
 But euen that which thou sauedst, thine still to remaine?

He tooke her vp forby the lilly hand,
 And her recomforted the best he might,
 Saying; Deare Lady, deedes ought not be scand
 By th'authors manhood, nor the doers might,
 But by their trueth and by the causes right:
 That same is it, which fought for you this day.
 What other meed then need me to requight,
 But that which yeeldeth vertues meed alway?
 That is the vertue selfe, which her reward doth pay.

She humbly thankthim for that wondrous grace,
 And further sayd; Ah Sir, but mote ye please,
 Sith ye thus farre haue tendred my poore case,
 As from my chieftest foe me to release,
 That your victorious arme will not yet cease,
 Till ye haue rooted all the relickes out
 Of that vilde race, and stablished my peace.
 What is there else (sayd he) left of their rout?
 Declare it boldly Dame, and doe not stand in dout.

Then wote you, Sir, that in this Church hereby,
 There stands an Idole of great note and name,
 The which this Gyant reared first on hic,
 And of his owne vaine fancies thought did frame:

To whom for endlesse horror of his shame,
 He offred vp for daily sacrificize
 My children and my people, burnt in flame;
 With all the tortures, that he could deuize,
 The more t'aggrate his God with such his blouddy guize.

And vnderneath this Idoll there doth lie
 An hideous monster, that doth it defend,
 And feedes on all the carkasses, that die
 In sacrificize vnto that cursed feend:
 Whose vgly shape none euer saw, nor kend,
 That euer scap'd: for of a man they say
 It has the voice, that speaches forth doth send,
 Euen blasphemous words, which she doth bray
 Out of her poyfnous entrails, fraught with dire decay.

Which when the Prince heard tell, his heart gan earne
 For great desire, that Monster to assay,
 And prayd the place of her abode to learne.
 Which being shew'd, he gan him selfe streight way
 Thereto addresse, and his bright shield display.
 So to the Church he came, where it was told,
 The Monster vnderneath the Altar lay;
 There he that Idoll saw of massy gold
 Most richly made, but there no Monster did behold.

Vpon the Image with his naked blade
 Three times, as in defiance, there he strooke;
 And the third time out of an hidden shade,
 There forth issfewd, from vnder th'Altars smooke,
 A dreadfull feend, with fowle deformed looke,
 That stretcht it selfe, as it had long lyen still;
 And her long taile and fethers strongly shooke,
 That all the Temple did with terrour fill;
 Yet him nought terrifide, that feared nothing ill.

An huge great Beast it was, when it in length
Was stretched forth, that nigh filld all the place,
And seem'd to be of infinite great strength;
Horrible, hideous, and of hellish race,
Borne of the brooding of Echidna base,
Or other like infernall furies kinde:
For of a Mayd she had the outward face,
To hide the horrour, which did lurke behinde,
The better to beguile, whom she so fond did finde!

Thereto the body of a dog she had,
Full offell rauin and fierce greedinesse;
A Lions claws, with powre and rigour clad,
To rend and teare, what so she can oppresse;
A Dragons taile, whose sting without redresse
Full deadly wounds, where so it is empight;
And Eagles wings, for scope and speedinesse,
That nothing may escape her reaching might,
Whereto she euer list to make her hardy flight.

Much like in foulnesse and deformity
Vnto that Monster, whom the Theban Knight,
The father of that fatall progeny,
Made kill her selfe for very hearts despight,
That he had red her Riddle, which no wight
Could euer loose, but suffred deadly doole.
So also did this Monster vse like flight
To many a one, which came vnto her schoole,
Whom she did put to death, deceiued like a foole.

She comming forth, when as she first beheld
The armed Prince, with shield so blazing bright,
Her ready to assaile, was greatly queld,
And much dismayd with that dismayfull sight,

That backe she would haue turnd for great affright.
 But he gan her with courage fierce assay,
 That forst her turne againe in her despight,
 To saue her selfe, least that he did her slay:
 And sure he had her slaine, had she not turnd her way.

Tho when she saw, that she was forst to fight,
 She flew at him, like to an hellish feend,
 And on his shield tooke hold with all her might,
 As if that it she would in peeces rend,
 Or reauue out of the hand, that did it hend.
 Strongly he strove out of her greedy gripe
 To loose his shield, and long while did contend:
 But when he could not quite it, with one stripe
 Her Lions claws he from her feete away did wipe.

With that aloude she gan to bray and yell,
 And fowle blasphemous speaches forth did cast,
 And bitter curses, horrible to tell,
 That euen the Temple, wherein she was plast,
 Did quake to heare, and nigh asunder brast.
 Tho with her huge long taile she at him strooke,
 That made him stagger; and stand halfe agast.
 With trembling ioynts, as he for terrour shooke;
 Who nought was terrifide, but greater courage tooke.

As when the Mast of some well timbred hulke
 Is with the blast of some outrageous storme
 Blowne downe, it shakes the bottome of the bulke,
 And makes her ribs to cracke, as they were torne,
 Whilest still she stands as stonisht and forlorne:
 So was he stound with stroke of her huge taile.
 But ere that it she backe againe had borne,
 He with his sword it strooke, that without faile
 He ioynted it, and mard the swinging of her flaile.

Then

Then gan she cry much louder then afore,
 That all the people there without it heard,
 And Belge selfe was therewith stonied fore,
 As if the onely found thereof she feard.
 But then the seend her selfe more fiercely reard
 Vppon her wide great wings, and strongly flew
 With all her body at his head and beard,
 That had he not foreseene with heedfull vew,
 And thrown his shield atween, she had him done to rew.

But as she prest on him with heauy sway,
 Vnder her wombe his fatall sword he thrust,
 And for her entrailes made an open way,
 To issue forth; the which once being brust,
 Like to a great Mill damb forth fiercely gusht,
 And powred out of her infernall sinke
 Most vgly filth, and poyson therewith rusht,
 That him nigh choked with the deadly stinke:
 Such loathly matter were small lust to speake, or thinke.

Then downe to ground fell that deformed Masse,
 Breathing out clouds of sulphure fowle and blacke,
 In which a puddle of contagion was,
 More loathd then Lerna, or then Stygian lake,
 That any man would nigh awhaped make.
 Whom when he saw on ground, he was full glad,
 And streight went forth his gladnesse to partake
 With Belge, who watcht all this while full sad,
 Wayting what end would be of that same daunger drad.

Whom when she saw so ioyously come forth,
 She gan reioyce, and shew triumphant chere,
 Lauding and praying his renowmed worth,
 By all the names that honorable were.

Then in he brought her, and her shewed there
 The present of his paines, that Monsters spoyle,
 And eke that Idoll deem'd so costly dere;
 Whom he did all to peeces breake and foyle
 In filthy durt, and left so in the loathely foyle.

Then all the people, which beheld that day,
 Gan shout aloud, that vnto heauen it rong;
 And all the damzels of that towne in ray,
 Came dauncing forth, and ioyous carrols song:
 So him they led through all their streetes along,
 Crowned with girlonds of immortall baies,
 And all the vulgar did about them throng,
 To see the man, whose euerlasting praise
 They all were bound to all posterities to raise.

There he with Belgae did a while remaine,
 Making great feast and ioyous merriment,
 Vntill he had her settled in her raine,
 With safe assuraunce and establishment.
 Then to his first emprize his mind he lent,
 Full loath to Belgae, and to all the rest:
 Of whom yet taking leaue, thenceforth he went
 And to his former iourney him address,
 On which long way he rode, ne euer day did rest.

But turne we now to noble Artegall;
 Who hauing left Mercilla, streight way went
 On his first quest, the which him forth did call,
 To weete to worke Irenaes franchisement,
 And eke Grantortoos worthy punishment.
 So forth he fared as his manner was,
 With onely Talus wayting diligent,
 Through many perils and much way did pas,
 Till nigh vnto the place at length approacht he has.

There as he traueled by the way, he met
 An aged wight, wayfaring all alone,
 Who through his yeares long since aside had set
 The vse of armes, and battell quite forgone :
 To whom as he approcht, he knew anone,
 That it was he which whilome did attend
 On faire Irene in her affliction,
 When first to Faery court he saw her wend,
 Vnto his soueraine Queene her suite for to commend.

Whom by his name saluting, thus he gan ;
 Haile good Sir Sergis, truest Knight aliue,
 Well tride in all thy Ladies troubles than,
 When her that Tyrant did of Crowne deprive ;
 What new occasion doth thee hither driue,
 Or is she thrall, or doth she not suruiue ?
 To whom he thus ; She liueth sure and sound ;
 But by that Tyrant is in wretched thraldome bound.

For she presuming on th'appointed tyde,
 In which ye promist, as ye were a Knight,
 To meete her at the saluage Ilands syde,
 And then and there for triall of her right
 With her vnrighteous enemy to fight,
 Did thither come, where she afrayd of nought,
 By guilefull treason and by subtill slight
 Surprized was, and to Grantorto brought,
 Who her imprisond hath, and her life often sought.

And now he hath to her prefixt a day,
 By which if that no champion doe appeare,
 Which will her cause in battailous array
 Against him iustifie, and proue her cleare

Of all those crimes, that he gainst her doth reare
 She death shall by. Those tidings sad
 Did much abash Sir Artegall to heare,
 And grieued sore, that through his fault she had Fallen into that Tyrants hand and vsage bad.

Then thus replide; Now sure and by my life,
 Too much am I too blame for that faire Maide,
 That haue her drawne to all this troublous strife,
 Through promise to afford her timely aide,
 Which by default I haue not yet defraide.
 But witnesse vnto me, ye heauens, that knew
 How cleare I am from blame of this vpbraide:
 For ye into like thraldome me did throw,
 And kept from complishing the faith, which I did owe.

But now aread, Sir Sergis, how long space,
 Hath he her lent, a Champion to prouide:
 Ten daies (quoth he) he graunted hath of grace,
 For that he weeneth well, before that tide
 None can haue tidings to assist her side.
 For all the shores, which to the sea accoste,
 He day and night doth ward both far and wide,
 That none can there arriue without an hoste:
 So her he deemes already but a damned ghoſte.

Now turne againe (Sir Artegall then sayd)
 For if I liue till those ten daies haue end,
 Assure your selfe, Sir Knight, she shall haue ayd,
 Though I this dearest life for her doe spend;
 So backward he attone with him did wend.
 Tho as they rode together on their way,
 A rout of people they before them kend,
 Flocking together in confusde array,
 As if that there were some tumultuous affray.

To which as they approcht, the cause to know,
They saw a Knight in daungerous distresse
Of a rude rout him chafing to and fro,
That fought with lawlesse powre him to oppresse,
And bring in bondage of their brutishnesse:
And farre away, amid their rakehell bands,
They spide a Lady left all succourlesse,
Crying, and holding vp her wretched hands
To him for aide, who long in vaine their rage withstands.

Yet still he striues, ne any perill spares,
To reskue her from their rude violence,
And like a Lion wood amongst them fares,
Dealing his dreadfull blowes with large dispence,
Gainst which the pallid death findes no defence.
But all in vaine, their numbers are so great,
That naught may boot to banishe them from thence:
For soone as he their outrage backe doth beat,
They turne afresh, and oft renew their former threat.

And now they doe so sharply him assay,
That they his shield in peeces battred haue,
And forced him to throw it quite away,
Fro dangers dread his doubtfull life to saue;
Albe that it most safety to him gaue,
And much did magnifie his noble name.
For from the day that he thus did it leaue,
Amongst all Knights he blotted was with blame,
And counted but a recreant Knight, with endles shame.

Whom when they thus distressed did behold,
They drew vnto his aide; but that rude rout
Them also gan assaile with outrage bold,
And forced them, how euer strong and stout.

They were, as well approu'd in many a doubt,
 Backe to recule; vntill that yron man
 With his huge flaile began to lay about,
 From whose sterne presence they diffused ran,
 Like scattred chaffe, the which the wind away doth fan.

So when that Knight from perill cleare was freed,
 He drawing neare, began to greeete them faire,
 And yeeld great thankes for their so goodly deed,
 In sauing him from daungerous despaire
 Of those, which sought his life for to empaire.
 Of whom Sir Artegall gan then enquire
 The whole occasion of his late misfare,
 And who he was, and what those villaines were,
 The which with mortall malice him pursu'd so nere.

To whom he thus; Myname is Burbon hight,
 Well knowne; and far renoumed heretofore,
 Vntill late mischiefe did vppon me light,
 That all my former praise hath blemisht fore;
 And that faire Lady, which in that vprore
 Ye with those caytiues saw, Flourdelis hight,
 Is mine owne loue, though me she haue forlore,
 Whether withheld from me by wrongfull might,
 Or with her owne good will, I cannot read aright.

But sure to me her faith she first did plight,
 To be my loue, and take me for her Lord,
 Till that a Tyrant, which Grandtorto hight,
 With golden giftes and many a guilefull word
 Entyced her, to him for to accord.
 O who may not with gifts and words be tempted?
 Sith which she hath me euer since abhord,
 And to my foe hath guilefully consented:
 Ayme, that euer guyle in wemen was inuented.

And

And now he hath this troupe of villains sent,
 By open force to fetch her quite away:
 Gainst whom my selfe I long in vaine haue bent,
 To rescue her, and daily meanes assay,
 Yet rescue her thence by no meanes I may:
 For they doe me with multitude oppresse,
 And with vnequall might doe ouerlay,
 That oft I driuen am to great distresse,
 And forced to forgoe th'attempt remedileffe.

But why haue ye (said Artegall) forborne
 Your owne good shield in daungerous dismay?
 That is the greatest shame and foulest scorne,
 Which vnto any knight behappen may
 To loose the badge, that should his deedes display.
 To whom Sir Burbon, blushing halfe for shame,
 That shall I vnto you (quoth he) bewray;
 Least ye therefore mote happily me blame,
 And deeme it doen of will, that through inforcement (came.

True is, that I at first was dubbed knight
 By a good knight, the knight of the Redcrosse;
 Who when he gaue me armes, in field to fight,
 Gaue me a shield, in which he did endosse
 His deare Redeemers badge vpon the bosse:
 The same long while I bore, and therewithall
 Fought many battels without wound or losse;
 Therewith Grandtorto selfe I did appall,
 And made him oftentimes in field before me fall.

But for that many did that shield enuie,
 And cruell enemies increased more;
 To stint all strife and troublous enmitie,
 That bloudie scutchin being battered sore,

I layd aside, and haue of late forbore,
 Hoping thereby to haue my loue obtayned:
 Yet can I not my loue haue nathemore;
 For she by force is still fro me detayned,
 And with corruptfull brybes is to vntruth mis-trayned,

To whom thus Artegall; Certes Sir knight,
 Hard is the case, the which ye doe complaine;
 Yet not so hard (for nought so hard may light,
 That it to such a streight mote you constraine)
 As to abandon, that which doth containe
 Your honours stile, that is your warlike shield.
 All perill ought be lesse, and lesse all paine
 Then losse of fame in disauentrous field;
 Dye rather, then doe ought, that mote dishonour yield.

Not so; (quoth he) for yet when time doth serue,
 My former shield I may resume againe:
 To temporize is not from truth to swerue,
 Ne for aduantage terme to entertaine,
 When as necessitie doth it constraine.
 Fie on such forgerie (said Artegall)
 Vnder one hood to shadow faces twaine.
 Knights ought be true, and truth is one in all:
 Of all things to dissemble fouly may befall.

Yet let me you of courtesie request,
 (Said Burbon) to assist me now at need
 Against these pesants, which haue me opprest,
 And forced me to so infamous deed,
 That yet my loue may from their hands be freed.
 Sir Artegall, albe he earst did wyte
 His wauering mind, yet to his aide agreed,
 And buckling him estsoones vnto the fight,
 Did set vpon those troupes withall his powre and might.

Who

Who flocking round about them, as a swarme
 Of flies vpon a birchen bough doth cluster,
 Did them assault with terrible allarme,
 And ouer all the fields themselues did muster,
 With bills and glayues making a dreadfull luster;
 That forst at first those knights backe to retyre:
 As when the wrathfull Boreas doth bluster,
 Nought may abide the tempest of his yre,
 Both man and beast doe fly, and succour doe inqyre.

But when as ouerblowen was that brunt,
 Those knights began a fresh them to assaile,
 And all about the fields like Squirrels hunt;
 But chiefly Talus with his yron flayle,
 Gainst which no flight nor rescue mote auayle,
 Made cruell hauocke of the baser crew,
 And chaced them both ouer hill and dale:
 The raskall manie soone they ouerthrew,
 But the two knights theselues their captains did subdew.

At last they came whereas that Ladie bode,
 Whom now her keepers had forsaken quight,
 To saue themselues, and scattered were abroad:
 Her halfe dismayd they found in doubtfull plight,
 As neither glad nor sorie for their sight;
 Yet wondrous faire she was, and richly clad
 In roiall robes, and many Iewels dight,
 But that those villens through their vsage bad
 Them fouly rent, and shamefully defaced had.

But Burbon streight dismounting from his steed,
 Vnto her ran with greedie great desyre,
 And catching her fast by her ragged weed,
 Would haue embraced her with hart entyre.

But she backstarting with disdainefull yre,
 Bad him auaint, ne would vnto his lore
 Allured be, for prayer nor for meed.

Whom when those knights so forward and forlore
 Beheld, they her rebuked and vpbrayded fore.

Sayd Artegall; what foule disgrace is this,
 To so faire Ladie, as ye seeme in fight,
 To blot your beautie, that vnblemisht is,
 With so foule blame, as breach of faith once plight,
 Or change of loue for any worlds delight?
 Is ought on earth so pretious or deare,
 As prayse and honour? Or is ought so bright
 And beautifull, as glories beames appeare,
 Whose goodly light then Phebus lampe doth shine more cleare?

Why then will ye, fond Dame, attempted bee
 Vnto a strangers loue, so lightly placed,
 For guiftes of gold, or any worldly glee,
 To leaue the loue, that ye before embraced,
 And let your fame with falshood be defaced.
 Fie on the pelfe, for which good name is sold,
 And honour with indignitie debased:
 Dearer is loue then life, and fame then gold;
 But dearer thẽ them both, your faith once plighted hold;

Much was the Ladie in her gentle mind
 Abasht at his rebuke, that bit her neare,
 Ne ought to answere thereunto did find;
 But hanging downe her head with heauie cheare,
 Stood long amaz'd, as she amated weare.
 Which Burbon seeing, her againe assayd,
 And clasping twixt his armes, her vp did reare
 Vpon his steede, whiles she no whit ginesayd,
 So bore her quite away, nor well nor ill apayd.

Nathlesse the yron man did still pursfew
 That raskall many with vnpittied spoyle,
 Ne ceassed not, till all their scattred crew
 Into the sea he droue quite from that soyle,
 The which they troubled had with great turmoyle.
 But Artegall seeing his cruell deed,
 Commaunded him from slaughter to recoyle,
 And to his voyage gan againe proceed:
 For that the terme approaching fast, required speed.

Cant. XII.

O Sacred hunger of ambitious mindes,
 And impotent desire of men to raine,
 Whom neither dread of God, that deuils bindes,
 Nor lawes of men, that common weales containe,
 Nor bands of nature, that wilde beastes restraine,
 Can keepe from outrage, and from doing wrong,
 Where they may hope a kingdome to obtaine.
 No faith so firme, no trust can be so strong,
 No loue so lasting then, that may endure long.

Witnesse may Burbon be, whom all the bands,
 Which may a Knight assure, had surely bound,
 Vntill the loue of Lordship and of lands
 Made him become most faithlesse and vnsound:

Which message when Grantorto heard, full fayne
 And glad he was the slaughter so to stay,
 And pointed for the combat twixt them twayne
 The morrow next, ne gaue him longer day.
 So sounded the retraite, and drew his folke away.

That night Sir Artegall did cause his tent
 There to be pitched on the open plaine;
 For he had giuen streight commaundement,
 That none should dare him once to entertaine:
 Which none durst breake, though many would right
 For fayre Irena, whom they loued deare. (faine
 But yet old Sergis did so well him paine,
 That from close friends, that dar'd not to appeare,
 He all things did puruay, which for them needfull weare.

The morrow next, that was the dismall day,
 Appointed for Irenas death before,
 So soone as it did to the world display
 His chearefull face, and light to men restore,
 The heauy Mayd, to whom none tydings bore
 Of Artegals arryuall, her to free,
 Lookt vp with eyes full sad and hart full sore;
 Weening her lifes last howre then neare to bee,
 Sith no redemption nigh she did nor heare nor see.

Then vp she rose, and on her selfe did dight
 Most squalid garments, fit for such a day,
 And with dull countenance, and with doleful spright,
 She forth was brought in sorrowfull dismay,
 For to receiue the doome of her decay.
 But comming to the place, and finding there
 Sir Artegall, in battailous array
 Wayting his foe, it did her dead hart cheare,
 And new life to her lent, in midst of deadly feare.

Like as a tender Rose in open plaine,
That with vntimely drought nigh withered was,
And hung the head, soone as few drops of raine
Thereon distill, and deaw her daintie face,
Gins to looke vp, and with fresh wonted grace
Dispreeds the glorie of her leaues gay;
Such was Irenas countenance, such her case,
When Artegall she saw in that array,
There wayting for the Tyrant, till it was farre day.

Who came at length, with proud presumptuous gate,
Into the field, as if he fearelesse were,
All armed in a cote of yron plate,
Of great defence to ward the deadly feare,
And on his head a steele cap he did weare
Of colour rustie browne, but sure and strong;
And in his hand an huge Polaxe did beare,
Whose steale was yron studded, but not long,
With which he went to fight, to iustifie his wrong.

Of stature huge and hideous he was,
Like to a Giant for his monstrous height,
And did in strength most sorts of men surpas,
Ne euer any found his match in might;
Thereto he had great skill in single fight:
His face was vgly, and his countenance sterne,
That could haue frayd one with the very sight,
And gaped like a gulfe, when he did gerne,
That whether man or monster one could scarfe discern.

Soone as he did within the listes appeare,
With dreadfull looke he Artegall beheld,
As if he would haue daunted him with feare,
And grinning grielesly, did against him weld

His deadly weapon, which in hand he held,
 But th'Elfin swayne, that oft had seene like fight,
 Was with his ghastly count'nance nothing queld,
 But gan him streight to buckle to the fight,
 And cast his shield about, to be in readie plight.

The trumpets sound, and they together goe,
 With dreadfull terror, and with fell intent;
 And their huge strokes full daungerously bestow,
 To doe most dammage, where as most they ment.
 But with such force and furie violent,
 The tyrant thundred his thicke blowes so fast,
 That through the yron walles their way they rent,
 And euen to the vitall parts they past,
 Ne ought could them endure, but all they cleft or brast.

Which cruell outrage when as Artegall
 Did well auize, thenceforth with warie heed
 He shund his strokes, where euer they did fall,
 And way did giue vnto their gracelesse speed:
 As when a skilfull Martiner doth reed
 A storme approching, that doth perill threat,
 He will not bidé the daunger of such dread,
 But strikes his sayles, and vereth his mainsheat,
 And lends vnto it leaue the emptie ayre to beat.

So did the Faeric knight himselfe abeare,
 And stouped oft his head from shame to shield;
 No shame to stoupe, ones head more high to reare,
 And much to gaine, a litle for to yield;
 So stoutest knights doen oftentimes in field.
 But still the tyrant sternely at him layd,
 And did his yron axe so nimbly wield,
 That many wounds into his flesh it made,
 And with his burdenous blowes him fore did ouerlade.

Yet when as fit aduantage he did spy,
 The whiles the curfed felon high did reare
 His cruell hand, to smite him mortally,
 Vnder his ftroke he to him stepping neare,
 Right in the flanke him ftrooke with deadly dreare,
 That the gore bloud thence gushing grieuoufly,
 Did vnderneath him like a pond appeare,
 And all his armour did with purple dye;
 Thereat he brayed loud, and yelled dreadfully.

Yet the huge ftroke, which he before intended,
 Kept on his courfe, as he did it direct,
 And with fuch monftrous poife adowne descended,
 That feemed nought could him from death protect:
 But he it well did ward with wife refpect,
 And twixt him and the blow his fhield did caft,
 Which thereon feizing, tooke no great effect,
 But byting deepe therein did fticke fo faft,
 That by no meanes it backe againe he forth could wraft.

Long while he tug'd and ftroue, to get it out,
 And all his powre applyed thereunto,
 That he therewith the knight drew all about:
 Nathleffe, for all that euer he could doe,
 His axe he could not from his fhield yndoe.
 Which Artegall perceiuing, ftrooke no more,
 But loofing foone his fhield, did it forgoe,
 And whiles he combred was therewith fo fore,
 He gan at him let driue more fiercely then afore.

So well he him purfew'd, that at the laft,
 He ftroke him with Chryfaor on the hed,
 That with the foule thereof full fore aghaft,
 He staggered to and fro in doubtfull fted.

Againe whiles he him saw so ill bested,
 He did him smite with all his might and maine,
 That falling on his mother earth he fed:
 Whom when he saw prostrated on the plaine,
 He lightly rest his head, to ease him of his paine.

Which when the people round about him saw,
 They shouted all for ioy of his successe,
 Glad to be quit from that proud Tyrants awe,
 Which with strōg powre did thē long time oppresse;
 And running all with greedie ioyfulnessse
 To faire Irena, at her feet did fall,
 And her adored with due humblenessse,
 As their true Liege and Princeesse naturall;
 And eke her champions glorie sounded ouer all.

Who streight her leading with meeete maiestic
 Vnto the pallace, where their kings did rayne,
 Did her therein establish peaceable,
 And to her kingdomes seat restore agayne;
 And all such persons, as did late maintayne
 That Tyrants part, with close or open ayde,
 He forely punished with heauie payne;
 That in short space, whiles there with her he stayd,
 Not one was left, that durst her once haue disobayd.

During which time, that he did there remaine,
 His studie was true Iustice how to deale,
 And day and night employ'd his busie paine
 How to reforme that ragged common-weale:
 And that same yron man which could reueale
 All hidden crimes, through all that realme he sent,
 To search out those, that vsd to rob and steale,
 Or did rebell gainst lawfull gouernment;
 On whom he did inflict most grieuous punishment.

But ere he could reforme it thoroughly,
 He through occasion called was away,
 To Faerie Court, that of necessity
 His course of Iustice he was forst to stay;
 And Talus to reuoke from the right way,
 In which he was that Realme for to redresse.
 But enuies cloud still dimmeth vertues ray.
 So hauing freed Irena from distresse,
 He tooke his leaue of her, there left in heauinesse.

Tho as he backe returned from that land,
 And there arriu'd againe, whence forth he set,
 He had not passed farre vpon the strand,
 When as two old ill fauour'd Hags he met,
 By the way side being together set,
 Two grielesly creatures; and, to that their faces
 Most foule and filthie were, their garments yet
 Being all rag'd and tatter'd, their disgraces
 Did much the more augment, and made most vgly cases.

The one of them, that elder did appeare,
 With her dull eyes did seeme to looke askew,
 That her mis-shape much helpt; and her foule heare
 Hung loose and loathsomely: Thereto her hew
 Was wan and leane, that all her teeth arew,
 And all her bones might through her cheekes be red;
 Her lips were like raw lether, pale and blew,
 And as the spake, therewith she flauered;
 Yet spake she seldom, but thought more, the lesse she sed.

Her hands were foule and durtie, neuer washt
 In all her life, with long nayles ouer raught,
 Like puttocks clawes: with th'one of which she scracht
 Her cursed head, although it itched naught;

The other held a snake with venime fraught,
 On which she fed, and gnawed hungrily,
 As if that long she had not eaten ought;
 That round about her iawes one might descry
 The bloudie gore and poyson dropping lothsomely.

Her name was Ennie, knowen well thereby;
 Whose nature is to grieue, and grudge at all,
 That euer she sees doen prayf-worthily,
 Whose sight to her is greatest crosse, may fall,
 And vexeth so, that makes her eat her gall.
 For when she wanteth other thing to eat,
 She feedes on her owne maw vnnaturall,
 And of her owne foule entrayles makes her meat;
 Meat fit for such a monsters monsterous dyeat.

And if she hapt of any good to heare,
 That had to any happily betid,
 Then would she inly fret, and grieue, and teare
 Her flesh for felnesse, which she inward hid:
 But if she heard of ill, that any did,
 Or harme, that any had, then would she make Great cheare, like one vnto a banquet bid;
 And in anothers losse great pleasure take,
 As she had got thereby, and gayned a great stake.

The other nothing better was, then shee;
 Agreeing in bad will and cancred kynd,
 But in bad maner they did disagree:
 For what so Ennie good or bad did fynd,
 She did conceale, and murder her owne mynd;
 But this, what euer euill she conceiued,
 Did spred abroad, and throw in th'open wynd.
 Yet this in all her words might be perceiued, (reaued.
 That all she sought, was mens good name to haue be-

For what soeuer good by any sayd,
 Or doen she heard, she would streightwayes inuent,
 How to depraue, or slaunderously vpbrayd,
 Or to misconstrue of a mans intent,
 And turne to ill the thing, that well was ment.
 Therefore she vsed often to resort,
 To common haunts, and companies frequent,
 To hearke what any one did good report,
 To blot the same with blame, or wrest in wicked fort.

And if that any ill she heard of any,
 She would it eeke, and make much worse by telling,
 And take great ioy to publish it to many,
 That euery matter worse was for her melling.
 Her name was hight Detraction, and her dwelling
 Was neare to Ennie, euen her neighbour next;
 A wicked hag, and Enny selfe excelling
 In mischief: for her selfe she onely vext;
 But this same both her selfe, and others eke perplex.

Her face was vgly, and her mouth distort,
 Foming with poyson round about her gils,
 In which her cursed tongue full sharpe and short
 Appear'd like Aspis sting, that closely kils,
 Or cruelly does wound, whom so she wils:
 A distaffe in her other hand she had,
 Vpon the which she litle spinnes, but spils,
 And faynes to weaue false tales and leasings bad,
 To throw amongst the good; which others had disprad.

These two now had themselues combynd in one,
 And linckt together gainst Sir Artegall,
 For whom they wayted as his mortall fone,
 How they might make him into mischief fall,

For freeing from their snares Irena thrall,
 Besides vnto themfelues they gotten had
 A monster, which the Blasant beast men call,
 A dreadfull feend of gods and men ydrad,
 Whom they by flights allur'd, and to their purpose lad.

Such were these Hags, and so vnhandsome drest:
 Who when they nigh approching, had espyde
 Sir Artegall return'd from his late quest,
 They both arose, and at him loudly cryde,
 As it had bene two shepheards cures, had scryde
 A rauenous Wolfe amongst the scattered flockes.
 And Ennie first, as she that first him eyde,
 Towardes him runs, and with rude flaring lockes
 About her eares, does beat her brest, & forehead knockes.

Then from her mouth the gobbet she does take,
 The which whyleare she was so greedily
 Deuouring, euen that halfe-gnawen snake,
 And at him throwes it most despightfully.
 The curfed Serpent, though she hungrily
 Earst chawd thereon, yet was not all so dead,
 But that some life remayned secretly,
 And as he past afore withouten dread,
 Bit him behind, that long the marke was to be read.

Then th'other comming neare, gan him reuile,
 And fouly rayle, with all she could inuent;
 Saying, that he had with vnmanly guile,
 And foule abuson both his honour blent,
 And that bright sword the sword, of Iustice lent
 Had stayned with reprochfull crueltie,
 In guiltlesse blood of many an innocent:
 As for Grandtorto, him with treacherie
 And traynes hauing surpriz'd, he fouly did to die.

Thereto the Blatant beast by them set on
At him began aloud to barke and bay,
With bitter rage and fell contention,
That all the woods and rockes nigh to that way,
Began to quake and tremble with dismay;
And all the aire rebellowed againe.
So dreadfully his hundred tongues did bray,
And euermore those hags them selues did paine,
To sharpen him, and their owne cursed tongs did straine.

And still among most bitter wordes they spake,
Most shamefull, most vnrighteous, most vntrew,
That they the mildest man aliuē would make Forget his patience, and yeeld vengeance dew
To her, that so false sclaunders at him threw.
And more to make thē pierce & wound more deepe,
She with the sting, which in her vile tongue grew,
Did sharpen them, and in fresh poyson steepe:
Yet he past on, and seem'd of them to take no keepe.

But Talus hearing her so lewdly raile,
And speake so ill of him, that well deserued,
Would her haue chastiz'd with his yron slaile,
If her Sir Artegall had not preferued,
And him forbidden, who his heast obserued.
So much the more at him still did she scold,
And stones did cast, yet he for nought would swerue
From his right course, but still the way did hold
To Faery Court, where what him fell shall else be told.

THE SIXTH BOOKE OF THE FAERIE QVEENE.

Contayning
THE LEGEND OF S. CALIDORE OR
OF COVRTESIE.

HHe waies, through which my weary steps I
In this delightfull land of Faery, (guyde,
Are so exceeding spacious and wyde,
And sprinckled with such sweet variety,
Of all that pleasant is to eare or eye,
That I nigh rauisht with rare thoughts delight,
My tedious trauell doe forget thereby;
And when I gin to feele decay of might,
It strength to me supplies, & chears my dulled spright.

Such secret comfort, and such heauenly pleasures,
Ye sacred imps, that on Parnasso dwell,
And there the keeping haue of learnings treasures,
Which doe all worldly riches farre excell,
Into the mindes of mortall men doe well,
And goodly fury into them infuse;
Guyde ye my footing, and conduct me well
In these strange waies, where neuer foote did yse,
Ne none can find, but who was taught them by the Muse.

Reuele to me the sacred nourfery

Of vertue, which with you doth there remaine,
 Where it in filuer bowre does hidden ly
 From view of men, and wicked worlds difdaine.
 Since it at first was by the Gods with paine
 Planted in earth, being deriu'd at firft
 From heauenly feedes of bounty foueraïne,
 And by them long with carefull labour nurft,
 Till it to ripenefse grew, and forth to honour burft.

Amongft them all growes not a fayrer flowre,
 Then is the bloofine of comely courtesie,
 Which though it on a lowly ftalke doe bowre,
 Yet brancheth forth in braue nobilitie,
 And fpreeds it felfe through all ciuilitie:
 Of which though present age doe plenteous feeme,
 Yet being matcht with plaine Antiquitië,
 Ye will them all but fayned fhoves eftime,
 Which carry colours faire, that feeble eies mifdeeme.

But in the triall of true curtesie,
 Its now fo farre from that, which then it was,
 That it indeed is nought but forgerie,
 Fashion'd to please the eies of them, that pas,
 Which fee not perfect things but in a glas:
 Yet is that glaffe fo gay, that it can blynd
 The wifeft fight, to thinke gold that is bras.
 But vertues feat is deepe within the mynd,
 And not in outward fhows, but inward thoughts defynd.

But where fhall I in all Antiquity
 So faire a patterne finde, where may be feene
 The goodly praife of Princely curtesie,
 As in your felfe, O foueraïne Lady Queene,

In whose pure minde, as in a mirrour sheene,
It shewes, and with her brightnesse doth inflame
The eyes of all, which thereon fixed beene;
But meriteth indeede an higher name:
Yet so from low to high vplifted is your name.

Then pardon me, most dreaded Soueraine,
That from your selfe I doe this vertue bring,
And to your selfe doe it returne againe:
So from the Ocean all riuers spring,
And tribute backe repay as to their King:
Right so from you all goodly vertues well
Into the rest, which round about you ring,
Faire Lords and Ladies, which about you dwell,
And doe adorne your Court, where courtesies excell.

Cant. I.

*Calidore saues from Maleffort,
A Damzell vsed vylde:
Doth vanquish Crudor, and doth make Briana wexe more mylde.*

OF Court it seemes, men Courtesie doe call,
For that it there most vseth to abound;
And well beseemeth that in Princes hall
That vertue should be plentifully found,
Which of all goodly manners is the ground,
And roote of ciuill conuersation.
Right so in Faery court it did redound,
Where curteous Knights and Ladies most did won
Of all on earth, and made a matchlesse paragon.

But mongst them all was none more courteous Knight,
Then Calidore, beloued ouer all,
In whom it seemes, that gentlenesse of spright
And manners mylde were planted naturall;
To which he adding comely guize withall,
And gracious speach, did steale mens hearts away,
Nathlesse thereto he was full stout and tall,
And well approu'd in batteilous affray,
That him did much renowme, and far his fame display.

Ne was there Knight, ne was there Lady found
In Faery court, but him did deare embrace,
For his faire vsage and conditions found,
The which in all mens liking gayned place,

And

And with the greatest purchaft greatest grace:
 Which he could wisely vse, and well apply,
 To please the best, and th'euiill to embase.
 For he loathd leasing, and base flattery,
 And loued simple truth and stedfast honesty.

And now he was in trauell on his way,
 Vppon an hard aduenture forebestad,
 Whenas by chaunce he met vppon a day
 With Artegall, returning yet halfe sad
 From his late conquest, which he gotten had.
 Who whenas each of other had a sight,
 They knew them selues, and both their persons rad:
 When Calidore thus first; Haile noblest Knight
 Of all this day on ground, that breathen liuing spright.

Now tell, if please you, of the good successe,
 Which ye haue had in your late enterprize.
 To whom Sir Artegall gan to expresse
 His whole exploite, and valorous emprize,
 In order as it did to him arize.
 Now happy man (sayd then Sir Calidore)
 Which haue so goodly, as ye can deuize,
 Atchieu'd so hard a quest, as few before;
 That shall you most renoumed make for euermore.

But where ye ended haue, now I begin
 To tread an endlesse trace, withouten guyde,
 Or good direction, how to enter in,
 Or how to issue forth in waies vntryde,
 In perils strange, in labours long and wide,
 In which although good Fortune me befall,
 Yet shall it not by none be testifyde.
 What is that quest (quoth then Sir Artegall)
 That you into such perils presently doth call?

The Blatant Beast (quoth he) I doe purfew,
 And through the world incessantly doe chafe,
 Till I him ouertake, or else subdew:
 Yet know I not or how, or in what place
 To find him out, yet still I forward trace.
 What is that Blatant Beast? (then he replide)
 It is a Monster bred of hellishe race,
 (Then answerd he) which often hath annoyd
 Good Knights and Ladies true, and many else destroyd.

Of Cerberus whilome he was begot,
 And fell Chimera in her darke some den,
 Through fowle commixture of his filthy blot;
 Where he was fostred long in Stygian fen,
 Till he to perfect ripenesse grew, and then
 Into this wicked world he forth was sent,
 To be the plague and scourge of wretched men:
 Whom with vile tongue and venemous intent
 He fore doth wound, and bite, and cruelly torment.

Then since the saluage Island I did leaue
 Sayd Artegall, I such a Beast did see,
 The which did seeme a thousand tongues to haue,
 That all in spight and malice did agree,
 With which he bayd and loudly barkt at mee,
 As if that he attonce would me deuoure.
 But I that knew my selfe from perill free,
 Did nought regard his malice nor his powre,
 But he the more his wicked poyson forth did poure.

That surely is that Beast (saide Calidore)
 Which I pursue, of whom I am right glad
 To heare these tidings, which of none afore
 Through all my weary trauell I haue had:

Yet

Yet now some hope your words vnto me add.
 Now God you speed (quoth then Sir Artegall)
 And keepe your body from the daunger drad:
 For ye haue much adoe to deale withall,
 So both tooke goodly leaue, and parted feuerall.

Sir Calidore thence trauelled not long,
 When as by chaunce a comely Squire he found,
 That thorough some more mighty enemies wrong,
 Both hand and foote vnto a tree was bound:
 Who seeing him from farre, with piteous sound
 Of his shrill cries him called to his aide.
 To whom approching, in that painefull stound
 When he him saw, for no demaunds he staide,
 But first him losde, and afterwards thus to him saide.

Vnhappy Squire, what hard mishap thee brought Into this bay of perill and disgrace?
 What cruell hand thy wretched thraldome wrought,
 And thee captuyed in this shamefull place?
 To whom he answerd thus; My haplesse case
 Is not occasiond through my misdesert,
 But through misfortune, which did me abase
 Vnto this shame, and my young hope subuert,
 Ere that I in her guilefull traines was well expert.

Not farre from hence, vppon yond rocky hill,
 Hard by a streight there stands a castle strong,
 Which doth obserue a custome lewd and ill,
 And it hath long mayntaind with mighty wrong:
 For may no Knight nor Lady passe along
 That way, (and yet they needs must passe that way,)
 By reason of the streight, and rocks among,
 But they that Ladies lockes doe shaue away,
 And that knights berd for toll, which they for passage pay

A shamefull vse as euer I did heare,
 Sayd Calidore, and to be ouerthrowne.
 But by what meanes did they at first it reare,
 And for what cause, tell if thou haue it knowne.
 Sayd then that Squire: The Lady which doth owne
 This Castle, is by name Briana hight.
 Then which a prouder Lady liueth none:
 She long time hath deare lou'd a doughty Knight,
 And sought to win his loue by all the meanes she might.

His name is Crudor, who through high disdain
 And proud despight of his selfe pleasing mynd,
 Refused hath to yeeld her loue againe,
 Vntill a Mantle she for him doe fynd,
 With beards of Knights and locks of Ladies lynd,
 Which to prouide, she hath this Castle dight,
 And therein hath a Seneschall assynd,
 Cald Maleffort, a man of mickle might,
 Who executes her wicked will, with worse despight.

He this same day, as I that way did come
 With a faire Damzell, my beloued deare,
 In execution of her lawlesse doome,
 Did set vpon vs flying both for feare:
 For little bootes against him hand to reare.
 Me first he tooke, vnhabable to withstond;
 And whiles he her pursued euery where,
 Till his returne vnto this tree he bond:
 Ne wote I surely, whether her he yet haue fond.

Thus whiles they spake, they heard a ruefull shriek
 Of one loud crying, which they streight way ghest,
 That it was she, the which for helpe did seeke.
 Tho looking vp vnto the cry to left,

They

They saw that Carle from farre, with hand vnblest
 Hayling that mayden by the yellow heare,
 That all her garments from her snowy brest,
 And from her head her lockes he nigh did teare,
 Ne would he spare for pittie, nor refraine for feare.

Which haynous sight when Calidore beheld,
 Eftsoones he loofd that Squire, and so him left,
 With hearts dismay and inward dolour queld,
 For to pursue that villaine, which had rest
 That piteous spoile by so iniurious theft.
 Whom ouertaking, loude to him he cryde;
 Leaue saytor quickly that misgotten west
 To him, that hath it better iustifyde,
 And turne thee soone to him, of whom thou art desyde.

Who hearkning to that voice, him selfe vpreard,
 And seeing him so fiercely towards make,
 Against him stoutly ran, as nought afeard,
 But rather more enrag'd for those words sake;
 And with sterne count'naunce thus vnto him spake.
 Artthou the caytiue, that desyest me,
 And for this Mayd, whose party thou doest take,
 Wilt giue thy beard, though it but little bee?
 Yet shall it not her lockes for raunsome fro me free.

With that he fiercely at him flew, and layd
 On hideous strokes with most importune might,
 That oft he made him stagger as vnstayd,
 And oft recuile to shunne his sharpe despight.
 But Calidore, that was well skild in fight,
 Him long forbore, and still his spirite spar'd,
 Lying in waite, how him he damadge might.
 But when he felt him shrinke, and come to ward,
 He greater grew, and gan to driue at him more hard.

Like as a water streame, whose swelling source
 Shall driue a Mill, within strong bancks is pent,
 And long restrayned of his ready course;
 So soone as passage is vnto him lent,
 Breakes forth, and makes his way more violent.
 Such was the fury of Sir Calidore,
 When once he felt his foeman to relent;
 He fiercely him pursu'd, and pressed sore,
 Who as he still decayd, so he encreased more.

The heauy burden of whose dreadfull might
 When as the Carle no longer could sustaine,
 His heart gan faint, and streight he tooke his flight
 Toward the Castle, where if need constraine,
 His hope of refuge vsed to remaine.
 Whom Calidore perceiuing fast to flie,
 He him pursu'd and chaced through the plaine,
 That he for dread of death gan loude to criec
 Vnto the ward, to open to him hastilie.

They from the wall him seeing so aghast,
 The gate soone opened to receiue him in,
 But Calidore did follow him so fast,
 That euen in the Porch he him did win,
 And cleft his head asunder to his chin.
 The carkasse tumbling downe within the dore,
 Didchoke the entraunce with a lumpe of sin,
 That it could not be shut, whilest Calidore
 Did enter in, and slew the Porter on the flore.

With that the rest, the which the Castle kept,
 About him flockt, and hard at him did lay;
 But he them all from him full lightly swept,
 As doth a Steare, in heat of sommers day.

With his long taile the bryzes brush away.
 Thence passing forth, into the hall he came,
 Where of the Lady selfe in sad dismay
 He was ymett, who with vncomely shame
 Gan him salute, and fowle vpbrayd with faulty blame.

Falſe traytor Knight, (ſayd ſhe) no Knight at all,
 But ſcorne of armes that haſt with guilty hand
 Murdred my men, and ſlaine my Senefchall;
 Now comelt thou to rob my houſe vnmand,
 And ſpoile my ſelfe, that can not thee withſtand?
 Yet doubt thou not, but that ſome better Knight
 Then thou, that ſhall thy treaſon vnderſtand,
 Will it auenge, and pay thee with thy right:
 And if none do, yet ſhame ſhal thee with ſhame requight

Much was the Knight abaſhed at that word;
 Yet anſwerd thus; Not vnto me the ſhame,
 But to the ſhamefull doer it afford.
 Bloud is no blemiſh; for it is no blame
 To puniſh thoſe, that doe deſerue the ſame;
 But they that breake bands of ciuilitie,
 And wicked cuſtomes make, thoſe doe deſame
 Both noble armes and gentle curteſie.
 No greater ſhame to man then inhumanitie.

Then doe your ſelfe, for dread of ſhame, forgoe
 This euill manner, which ye here maintaine,
 And doe in ſtead thereof mild curt'ſie ſhowe
 To all, that paſſe. That ſhall you glory gaine
 More then his loue, which thus ye ſeek t'obtaine.
 Wherewith all full of wrath, ſhe thus replyde;
 Vile recreant, know that I doe much diſdaine
 Thy courteous lore, that doeſt my loue deride,
 Who ſcornes thy ydle ſcoffe, and bids thee be deſyde.

To take defiance at a Ladies word
 (Quoth he) I hold it no indignity;
 But were he here, that would it with his sword
 Abett, perhaps he mote it deare aby.
 Cowherd (quoth she) were not, that thou wouldst fly,
 Ere thou doe come, he should be soone in place.
 If I doe so, (sayd he) then liberty
 Ileaue to you, for aye me to disgrace
 With all those shames, that erst ye spake me to deface.

With that a Dwarfe she cald to her in hast,
 And taking from her hand a ring of gould,
 A priuy token, which betweene them past,
 Bad him to flie with all the speed he could,
 To Crudor, and desire him that he would Vouchsafe to reskue her against a Knight,
 Who through strōg powre had now her self in hould,
 Hauing late slaine her Seneschall in fight,
 And all her people mured with outragious might.

The Dwarfe his way did hast, and went all night;
 But Calidore did with her there abyde
 The comming of that so much threatned Knight,
 Where that discourteous Dame with scornfull pryde,
 And fowle entreaty him indignifyde,
 That yron heart it hardly could sustaine:
 Yet he, that could his wrath full wisely guyde,
 Did well endure her womanish disdain,
 And did him selfe from fraile impatience refraine.

The morrow next, before the lampe of light,
 About the earth vpreard his flaming head,
 The Dwarfe, which bore that message to her knight,
 Brought aunswere backe, that ere he tasted bread,

He

He would her succour, and aliuē or dead
Her foe deliuer vp into her hand:
Therefore he wild her doe away all dread;
And that of him she mote assured stand,
He sent to her his basenet, as a faithfull band.

Thereof full blyth the Lady streight became,
And gan t'augment her bitternesse much more:
Yet no whit more appalled for the same,
Ne ought dismayed was Sir Calidore,
But rather did more chearefull seeme therefore.
And hauing soone his armes about him dight,
Did issue forth, to meete his foe afore;
Where long he stayed not, when as a Knight
He spide come pricking on with al his powre and might.

Well weend he streight, that he should be the same,
Which tooke in hand her quarrell to maintaine;
Ne stayd to aske if it were he by name,
But coucht his speare, and ran at him amaine.
They bene ymett in midst of the plaine,
With so fell fury, and dispiteous forse,
That neither could the others stroke sustaine,
But rudely rowld to ground both man and horse,
Neither of other taking pittie nor remorse.

But Calidore vprose againe full light,
Whiles yet his foe lay fast in sencelesse sound,
Yet would he not him hurt, although he might:
For shame he weend a sleeping wight to wound.
But when Briana saw that drery stound,
There where she stood vppon the Castle wall,
She deem'd him sure to haue bene dead on ground,
And made such piteous mourning therewithall,
That from the battlements she ready seem'd to fall.

Nathlesse at length him selfe he did vpreare
 In lustlesse wife, as if against his will,
 Ere he had slept his fill, he wakened were,
 And gan to stretch his limbs; which feeling ill
 Of his late fall, a while he rested still:
 But when he saw his foe before in vew,
 He shooke off luskifhnesse, and courage chill
 Kindling a fresh, gan battell to renew,
 To proue if better foote then horsebacke would ensew.

There then began a fearefull cruell fray
 Betwixt them two, for maystery of might.
 For both were wondrous practicke in that play,
 And passing well expert in single fight,
 And both inflam'd with furious despight:
 Which as it still encreast, so still increast
 Their cruell strokes and terrible affright;
 Ne once for ruth their rigour they releast,
 Ne once to breath a while their angers tempest ceast.

Thus long they trac'd and trauerst to and fro,
 And tryde all waies, how each mote entrance make
 Into the life of his malignant foe;
 They hew'd their helmes, and plates asunder brake,
 As they had potshares bene; for nought mote flake
 Their greedy vengeaunces, but goary blood,
 That at the last like to a purple lake
 Of bloody gore congeal'd about them stood,
 Which from their riuen sides forth gushed like a flood.

At length it chaunst, that both their hands on hie,
 At once did heaue, with all their powre and might,
 Thinking the vtmost of their force to trie,
 And proue the finall fortune of the fight:

But

But Calidore, that was more quicke of sight,
 And nimbler handed, then his enemy,
 Preuented him before his stroke could light,
 And on the helmet smote him formerlie,
 That made him stoupe to ground with meeke humilitie.

And ere he could recouer foot againe,
 He following that faire aduantage fast,
 His stroke redoubled with such might and maine,
 That him vpon the ground he groueling cast;
 And leaping to him light, would haue vnlast
 His Helme, to make vnto his vengeance way.
 Who seeing, in what daunger he was plast,
 Cryde out, Ah mercie Sir, doe me not slay,
 But saue my life, which lot before your foot doth lay.

With that his mortall hand a while he stayd,
 And hauing somewhat calm'd his wrathfull heat
 With goodly patience, thus he to him sayd;
 And is the boast of that proud Ladies threat,
 That menaced me from the field to beat,
 Now brought to this? By this now may ye learne,
 Strangers no more so rudely to intreat,
 But put away proud looke, and vsage sterne,
 The which shal nought to you but foule dishonor yearne.

For nothing is more blamefull to a knight,
 That court'sie doth as well as armes professe,
 How euer strong and fortunate in fight,
 Then the reproch of pride and cruellnesse.
 In vaine he seeketh others to suppressse,
 Who hath not 'learnd him selfe first to subdew:
 All flesh is frayle, and full of ficklenesse,
 Subiect to fortunes chance, still chaunging new;
 What haps to day to me, to morrow may to you.

Who will not mercie vnto others shew,
 How can he mercy euer hope to haue?
 To pay each with his owne is right and dew.
 Yet since ye mercie now doe need to craue,
 I will it graunt, your hopelesse life to saue;
 With these conditions, which I will propound:
 First, that ye better shall your selfe behaue
 Vnto all errant knights, whereso on ground;
 Next that ye Ladies ayde in euery stead and stound.

The wretched man, that all this while did dwell
 In dread of death, his hearts did gladly heare,
 And promist to performe his precept well,
 And whatsoeuer else he would require.
 So suffring him to rise, he made him sweare
 By his owne sword, and by the crosse thereon,
 To take Briana for his louing fere,
 Withouten dowre or composition;
 But to release his former foule condition.

All which accepting, and with faithfull oth
 Bynding himselfe most firmly to obay,
 He vp arose, how euer liefe or loth,
 And swore to him true fealtie for aye.
 Then forth he cald from sorrowfull dismay
 The sad Briana, which all this beheld:
 Who comming forth yet full of late affray,
 Sir Calidore vpcheard, and to her teld
 All this accord, to which he Crudor had compeld.

Whereof she now more glad, then sory earst,
 All ouercome with infinite affect,
 For his exceeding courtesie, that pearst
 Her stubborne hart with inward deepe effect,

Before

Before his feet her selfe she did proiect,
 And him adoring as her liues deare Lord,
 With all due thankes, and dutifull respect,
 Her selfe acknowledg'd bound for that accord,
 By which he had to her both life and loue restord.

So all returning to the Castle glad,
 Most ioyfully she them did entertaine,
 Where goodly glee and feast to them she made,
 To shew her thankfull mind and meaningaine,
 By all the meanes she mote it best. explaine:
 And after all, vnto Sir Calidore
 She freely gaue that Castle for his paine,
 And her selfe bound to him for euermore;
 So wondrously now chaung'd, from that she was afore.

But Calidore himselfe would not retaine
 Nor land nor fee, for hyre of his good deede,
 But gaue them streight vnto that Squire againe,
 Whom from her Seneschall he lately freed,
 And to his damzell as their rightfull meed,
 For recompence of all their former wrong:
 There he remaind with them right well agreed,
 Till of his wounds he waxed hole and strong,
 And then to his first quest he passed forth along.

Cant. II.

*Calidore sees young Tristram slay
A proud discourteous knight,
He makes him Squire, and of him learns his state and present plight.*

WHat vertue is so fitting for a knight,
Or for a Ladie, whom a knight should loue,
As Curtesie, to beare themselues aright
To all of each degree, as doth behoue?
For whether they be placed high about,
Or low beneath, yet ought they well to know
Their good, that none them rightly may reprove
Of rudenesse, for not yeelding what they owe:
Great skill it is such duties timely to bestow.
Thereto great helpe dame Nature selfe doth lend:
For some so goodly gracious are by kind,
That euery action doth them much commend,
And in the eyes of men great liking find;
Which others, that haue greater skill in mind,
Though they enforce themselues, cannot attaine.
For euerie thing, to which one is inclin'd,
Doth best become, and greatest grace doth gaine:
Yet praise likewise deserue good thewes, enforst with paine.
That well in courteous Calidore appears,
Whose euery act and deed, that he did say,
Was like enchantment, that through both the eyes,
And both the eares did steale the hart away.

He

He now againe is on his former way,
 To follow his first quest, when as he spyde
 A tall young man from thence not farre away,
 Fighting on foot, as well he him descryde,
 Against an armed knight, that did on horsebacke ryde.

And them beside a Ladie faire he saw,
 Standing alone on foot, in foule array:
 To whom himselfe he hastily did draw,
 To weet the cause of so vncomely fray,
 And to depart them, if so be he may.
 But ere he came in place, that youth had kild
 That armed knight, that low on ground he lay;
 Which when he saw, his hart was inly child
 With great amazement, & his thought with wonder fild.

Him stedfastly he markt, and saw to bee
 A goodly youth of amiable grace,
 Yet but a slender slip, that scarfe did see
 Yet seenteene yeares, but tall and faire of face
 That sure he deem'd him borne of noble race.
 All in a woodmians iacket he was clad
 Of lincolne greene, belayd with siluer lace;
 And on his head an hood with aglets sprad,
 And by his side his hunters horne he hanging had.

Buskins he wore of costliest cordwayne,
 Pinckt vpon gold, and paled part per part,
 As then the guize was for each gentle swayne;
 In his right hand he held a trembling dart,
 Whose fellow he before had sent apart;
 And in his left he held a sharpe borespeare,
 With which he went to launch the saluage hart
 Of many a Lyon, and of many a Beare
 That first vnto his hand in chafe did happen neare.

Whom Calidore a while well hauing vewed,
 At length bespake; what meanes this, gentle swaine?
 Why hath thy hand too bold it selfe embrewed
 In blood of knight, the which by thee is slaine,
 By thee no knight; which armes impugne th plain?
 Certes (said he) loth were I to haue broken
 The law of armes; yet breake it should againe,
 Rather then let my selfe of wight be stroken,
 So long as these two armes were able to be wroken.

For not I him as this his Ladie here
 May witnesse well, did offer first to wrong,
 Ne surely thus vnarm'd I likely were;
 But he me first, through pride and puissance strong
 Assayld, not knowing what to armes doth long.
 Perdie great blame, (then said Sir Calidore)
 For armed knight a wight vnarm'd to wrong.
 But then aread, thou gentle chyld, wherefore
 Betwixt you two began this strife and sterne yprore.

That shall I sooth (said he) to you declare.
 I whose vnryper yeares are yet vnfit
 For thing of weight, or worke of greater care,
 Doe spend my dayes, and bend my carelesse wit
 To saluage chace, where I thereon may hit
 In all this forrest, and wyld wooddie raine:
 Where, as this day I was enraunging it,
 I chaunst to meete this knight, who there lyes slaine,
 Together with this Ladie, passing on the plaine.

The knight, as ye did see, on horsebacke was,
 And this his Ladie, (that him ill became,)
 On her faire feet by his horse side did pas
 Through thicke and thin, vnfit for any Dame.

Yet

Yet not content, more to increase his shame,
 When so she lagged, as she needs mote so,
 He with his speare, that was to him great blame,
 Would thumpe her forward, and inforce to goe,
 Weeping to him in vaine, and making piteous woe.

Which when I saw, as they me passed by,
 Much was I moued in indignant mind,
 And gan to blame him for such cruelty
 Towards a Ladie, whom with vsage kind
 He rather should haue taken vp behind.
 Wherewith he wroth, and full of proud disdaine,
 Tooke in foule scorne, that I such fault did find,
 And me in lieu thereof reuil'd againe,
 Threatning to chastize me, as doth t'a chyld pertaine.

Which I no lesse disdayning, backe returned
 His scornefull taunts vnto his teeth againe,
 That he streight way with haughtie choler burned,
 And with his speare strooke me one stroke or twaine;
 Which I enforst to beare though to my paine,
 Cast to requite, and with a slender dart,
 Fellow of this I beare, throwne not in vaine,
 Strooke him, as seemeth, vnderneath the hart,
 That through the wound his spirit shortly did depart.

Much did Sir Calidore admyre his speach
 Tempred so well, but more admyr'd the stroke
 That through the mayles had made so strong a breach
 Into his hart, and had so sternely wroke
 His wrath on him, that first occasion broke.
 Yet rested not, but further gan inquire
 Of that same Ladie, whether what he spoke,
 Were soothly so, and that th'vnrighteous ire
 Of her owne knight, had giuen him his owne due hire.

Of all which, when as she could nought deny,
 But cleared that stripling of th'imputed blame,
 Sayd then Sir Calidore; neither will I
 Him charge with guilt, but rather doe quite clame:
 For what he spake, for you he spake it, Dame;
 And what he did, he did him selfe to saue: (shame.
 Against both which that knight wrought knightlesse
 For knights and all men this by nature haue,
 Towards all womenkind them kindly to behaue.

But sith that he is gone irreuocable,
 Please it you Ladie, to vs to aread,
 What cause could make him so dishonourable,
 To driue you so on foot vnfit to tread,
 And lackey by him, gainst all womanhead?
 Certes Sir knight (sayd she) full loth I were
 To rayse a lyuing blame against the dead:
 But since it me concernes, my selfe to clere,
 I will the truth discover, as it chaunst whylere.

This day, as he and I together roade
 Vpon our way, to which we weren bent,
 We chaunst to come foreby a couert glade
 Within a wood, whereas a Ladie gent
 Sate with a knight in ioyous iolliment,
 Of their franke loues, free from all gealous spyes:
 Faire was the Ladie sure, that mote content
 An hart, not carried with too curious eyes,
 And vnto him did shew all louely courtesyes.

Whom when my knight did see so louely faire,
 He inly gan her louer to enuy,
 And with, that he part of his spoyle might share.
 Whereto when as my presence he did spy

To be a let, he bad me by and by
 For to alight: but when as I was loth,
 My loues owne part to leaue so suddenly,
 He with strong hand down frō his steed me throw'th,
 And with presumptuous powre against that knight
 streight go'th.

Vnarm'd all was the knight, as then more meete
 For Ladies seruice, and for loues delight,
 Then fearing any foeman there to meete:
 Whereof he taking oddes, streight bids him dight
 Himselfe to yeeld his loue, or else to fight.
 Whereat the other starting vp dismayd,
 Yet boldly answer'd, as he rightly might;
 To leaue his loue he should be ill apayd,
 In which he had good right gaynst all, that it gaine sayd.

Yet since he was not presently in plight
 Her to defend, or his to iustifie,
 He him requested, as he was a knight,
 To lend him day his better right to trie,
 Or stay till he his armes, which were thereby,
 Might lightly fetch. But he was fierce and whot,
 Ne time would giue, nor any termes aby,
 But at him flew, and with his speare him smot;
 From which to thinke to saue himselfe, it booted not.

Meane while his Ladie, which this outrage saw,
 Whilest they together for the quarrey stroue,
 Into the couert did her selfe withdraw;
 And closely hid her selfe within the groue.
 My knight hers soone, as seemes, to daunger droue
 And left fore wounded: but when her he mist,
 He woxe halfe mad, and in that rage gan roue
 And range through all the wood, where so he wist
 She hidden was, and fought her so long, as him list.

But when as her he by no meanes could find,
 After long search and chauff, he turned backe
 Vnto the place, where me he left behind:
 There gan he me to curse and ban, for lacke
 Of that faire bootie, and 'with bitter wracke
 To wreake on me the guilt of his owne wrong.
 Of all which I yet glad to beare the packe,
 Stroue to appease him, and perswaded long:
 But still his passion grew more violent and strong.

Then as it were t'auenge his wrath on mee,
 When forward we should fare, he flat refused
 To take me vp (as this young man did see)
 Vpon his steed, for no iust cause accused,
 But forst to trot on foot, and foule misused,
 Pouncing me with the butt end of his speare,
 In vaine complayning, to be so abused.
 For he regarded neither playnt nor teare,
 But more enforst my paine, the more my plaints to heare.

So passed we, till this young man vs met,
 And being moou'd with pittie of my plight,
 Spake, as was meet, for ease of my regret:
 Whereof befell, what now is in your sight.
 Now sure (then said Sir Calidore) and right
 Me seemes, that him befell by his owne fault:
 Who euer thinks through confidence of might,
 Or through support of count'nance proud and hault
 To wrong the weaker, oft falles in his owne assault.

Then turning backe vnto that gentle boy,
 Which had himselfe so stoutly well acquit;
 Seeing his face so louely sterne and coy,
 And hearing th'answeres of his pregnant wit,

He prayd it much, and much admyred it;
 That sure he weend him borne of noble blood,
 With whom those graces did so goodly fit:
 And when he long had him beholding stood,
 He burst into these words, as to him seemed good.

Faire gentle swayne, and yet as stout as fayre,
 That in these woods amongst the Nymphs dost wonne,
 Which daily may to thy sweete lookes repayre,
 As they are wont vnto Latoaes sonne,
 After his chace on woodie Cynthus donne:
 Well may I certes such an one thee read,
 As by thy worth thou worthily hast wonne,
 Or surely borne of some Heroicke fead,
 That in thy face appeares and gracious goodly head.

But should it not displease thee it to tell;
 (Vnlesse thou in these woods thy selfe conceale,
 For loue amongst the woodie Gods to dwell;) I
 I would thy selfe require thee to reueale,
 For deare affection and vnfayned zeale;
 Which to thy noble personage I beare,
 And wish thee grow in worship and great weale.
 For since the day that armes I first did reare,
 I neuer saw in any greater hope appeare.

To whom their thus the noble youth; may be
 Sir knight, that by discouering my estate,
 Harme may arise vnweeting vnto me;
 Nathelesse, sith ye so courteous seemed late,
 To you I will not feare it to relate.
 Then wote ye that I am a Briton borne,
 Sonne of a King, how euer thorough fate
 Or fortune I my countrie haue forlorne, (adorne.
 And lost the crowne, which should my head by right

And Tristram is my name, the onely heire
 Of good king Meliogras which did rayne
 In Cornewale, till that he through liues despeire
 Vntimely dyde, before I did attaine
 Ripe yeares of reason, my right to maintaine.
 After whose death, his brother seeing mee
 An infant, weake a kingdome to sustaine,
 Vpon him tooke the roiall high degree,
 And sent me, where him list, instructed for to bee.

The widow Queene my mother, which then hight
 Faire Emiline, conceiuing then great feare
 Of my fraile safetie, resting in the might
 Of him, that did the kingly Scepter beare,
 Whose gealous dread induring not a peare,
 Is wont to cut off all, that doubt may breed,
 Thought best away me to remoue somewhere
 Into some forrein land, where as no need
 Of dreaded daunger might his doubtfull humor feed.

So taking counsell of a wise man red,
 She was by him aduiz'd, to send me quight
 Out of the countrie, wherein I was bred,
 The which the fertile Lionesse is hight,
 Into the land of Faerie, where no wight
 Should weet of me, nor worke me any wrong
 To whose wise read she hearkning, sent me streight
 Into this land, where I haue wond thus long,
 Since I was ten yeares old, now growen to stature strong.

All which my daies I haue not lewdly spent,
 Nor spilt the blossome of my tender yeares
 In ydleffe, but as was conuenient,
 Haue trayned bene with many noble feres

In gentle thewes, and such like seemely leres.
 Mongst which my most delight hath alwaies been,
 To hunt the saluage chace amongst my peres,
 Of all that raungeth in the Forrest greene;
 Of which none is to me vnknowne, that eu'r was seene.

Ne is there hauke, which mantleth her on pearch,
 Whether high towring, or accoasting low,
 But I the measure of her flight doe search,
 And all her pray, and all her diet know.
 Such be our ioyes, which in these Forrests grow:
 Onely the vse of armes, which most I ioy,
 And fitteth most for noble swayne to know,
 I haue not tasted yet, yet past a boy,
 And being now high time these strong ioynts to imploy.

Therefore, good Sir, sith now occasion fit
 Doth fall, whose like hereafter seldome may,
 Let me this craue, vnworthy though of it,
 That ye will make me Squire without delay,
 That from henceforth in batteilous array
 I may beare armes, and learne to vse them right;
 The rather since that fortune hath this day
 Giuen to me the spoile of this dead knight,
 These goodly gilden armes, which I haue won in fight.

All which when well Sir Calidore had heard,
 Him much more now, then earst he gan admire,
 For the rare hope which in his yeares appear'd,
 And thus replide; faire chyld, the high desire
 To loue of armes, which in you doth aspire,
 I may not certes without blame denie;
 But rather wish, that some more noble hire,
 (Though none more noble then is cheualrie,)
 I had, you to reward with greater dignitie.

There him he cauld to kneele, and made to sweare
 Faith to his knight, and truth to Ladies all,
 And neuer to be recreant, for feare
 Of perill, or of ought that might befall:
 So he him dubbed, and his Squire did call.
 Full glad and ioyous then young Tristram grew,
 Like as a flowre, whose silken leaues finall,
 Long shut vp in the bud from heauens vew,
 At length breakes forth, and brode displays his smyling
 hew.

Thus when they long had treated to and fro,
 And Calidore betooke him to depart,
 Chyld Tristram prayd, that he with him might goe
 On his aduenture, vowing not to start,
 But wayt on him in euery place and part.
 Whereat Sir Calidore did much delight,
 And greatly ioy'd at his so noble hart,
 In hope he sure would proue a doughtie knight:
 Yet for the time this answere he to him behight.

Glad would I surely be, thou courteous Squire,
 To haue thy presence in my present quest,
 That mote thy kindled courage set on fire,
 And flame forth honour in thy noble brest:
 But I am bound by vow, which I profest
 To my dread Soueraine, when I it assayd,
 That in atchieuement of her high behest,
 I should no creature ioyne vnto mine ayde,
 For thy I may not graunt, that ye so greatly prayde.

But since this Ladie is all desolate,
 And needeth safegard now vpon her way,
 Ye may doe well in this her needfull state
 To succour her, from daunger of dismay;

That thankfull guerdon may to you repay.
 The noble ympe of such new seruice fayne,
 It gladly did accept, as he did say.
 So taking courteous leaue, they parted twayne,
 And Calidore forth passed to his former payne.

But Tristram then despoyling that dead knight
 Of all those goodly implements of prayse,
 Long fed his greedie eyes with the faire sight
 Of the bright mettall, shyning like Sunne rayes;
 Handling and turning them a thousand wayes,
 And after hauing them vpon him dight,
 He tooke that Ladie, and her vp did rayse
 Vpon the steed of her owne late dead knight,
 So with her marched forth, as she did him beight.

There to their fortune leaue we them awhile,
 And turne we backe to good Sir Calidore;
 Who ere he thence had traueild many a mile,
 Came to the place, whereas ye heard afore
 This knight, whom Tristram slew, had wounded fore
 Another knight in his despiteous pryde;
 There he that knight found lying on the flore,
 With many wounds full perilous and wyde,
 That all his garments, and the grasse in vermeill dyde.

And there beside him sate vpon the ground
 His wofull Ladie, piteously complayning
 With loud laments that most vnluckie stound,
 And her sad selfe with carefull hand constrayning
 To wpe his wounds, and ease their bitter payning,
 Which sorie sight when Calidore did vew
 With heauie eyne, from teares vneath refrayning,
 His mightie hart their mournefull case can rew,
 And for their better comfort to them nigher drew.

Then speaking to the Ladie, thus he sayd:

Ye dolefull Dame, let not your grieffe empeach
 To tell, what cruell hand hath thus arayd
 This knight vnarm'd, with so vnknightly breach
 Of armes, that if I yet him nigh may reach,
 I may auenge him of so foule despight.
 The Ladie hearing his so courteous speach,
 Gan reare her eyes as to the chearefull light,
 And from her sory hart few heauie words forth sight.

In which she shew'd, how that discourteous knight
 (Whom Tristram slew) them in that shadow found,
 Ioying together in vnblam'd delight,
 And him vnarm'd, as now he lay on ground,
 Charg'd with his speare and mortally did wound,
 Withouten cause, but onely her to reauce
 From him, to whom she was for euer bound:
 Yet when she fled into that couert greaue,
 He her not finding, both them thus nigh dead did leaue.

When Calidore this ruefull storie had Well vnderstood, he gan of her demand,
 What manner wight he was, and how yclad,
 Which had this outrage wrought with wicked hand.
 She then, like as she best could vnderstand,
 Him thus describ'd, to be of stature large,
 Clad all in gilden armes, with azure band
 Quartred athwart, and bearing in his targe
 A Ladie on rough waues, row'd in a sommer barge.

Then gan Sir Calidore to ghesse streight way
 By many signes, which she described had,
 That this was he, whom Tristram earst did slay,
 And to her said; Dame be no longer sad:

For he, that hath your Knight so ill bestad,
Is now him selfe in much more wretched plight;
These eyes him saw vpon the cold earth sprad,
The meede of his desert for that despight,
Which to your selfe he wrought, & to your loued knight.

Therefore faire Lady lay aside this griefe,
Which ye haue gathered to your gentle hart,
For that displeasure; and thinke what reliefe
Were best deuise for this your louers smart,
And how ye may him hence, and to what part
Conuay to be recur'd. She thank't him deare,
Both for that newes he did to her impart,
And for the courteous care, which he did beare
Both to her loue; and to her selfe in that sad dreare.

Yet could she not deuise by any wit,
How thence she might conuay him to some place.
For him to trouble she it thought vnfit,
That was a straunger to her wretched case;
And him to beare, she thought it thing too base.
Which when as he perceiu'd, he thus bespake;
Faire Lady let it not you seeme disgrace,
To beare this burden on your dainty backe;
My selfe will beare a part, coportion of your packe.

So off he did his shield, and downeward layd
Vpon the ground, like to an hollow beare;
And pourcing balme, which he had long puruayd,
Into his wounds, him vp thereon did reare,
And twixt them both with parted paines did beare,
Twixt life and death, not knowing what was donne.
Thence they him carried to a Castle neare,
In which a worthy auncient Knight did wonne:
Where what ensu'd, shall in next Canto be begonne.

Cant. III.

*Calidore brings Priscilla home,
 Pursues the Blatant Beast:
 Saues Serena whilest Calepine
 By Turpine is opprest.*

TRue is, that whilome that good Poet sayd,
 The gentle minde by gentle deeds is knowne.
 For a man by nothing is so well bewrayd,
 As by his manners, in which plaine is showne
 Of what degree and what race he is growne.
 For seldome seene, a trotting Stalion get
 An ambling Colt, that is his proper owne:
 So seldome seene, that one in baseness set
 Doth noble courage shew, with curteous manners met.

But euermore contrary hath bene tryde,
 That gentle blood will gentle manners breed;
 As well may be in Calidore descryde,
 By late ensample of that courteous deed,
 Done to that wounded Knight in his great need,
 Whom on his backe he bore, till he him brought Vnto the Castle where they had decreed.
 There of the Knight, the which that Castle ought,
 To make abode that night he greatly was besought.

He was to weete a man of full ripe yeares,
 That in his youth had beene of mickle might,
 And borne great sway in armes amongst his peares:
 But now weake age had dimd his candle light.

Yet

Yet was he courteous still to euery wight,
 And loued all that did to armes incline.
 And was the father of that wounded Knight,
 Whom Calidore thus carried on his chine,
 And Aldus was his name, and his sonnes Aladine.

Who when he saw his sonne so ill bedight,
 With bleeding wounds, brought home vpon a Beare,
 By a faire Lady, and a straunger Knight,
 Was inly touched with compassion deare,
 And deare affection of so dolefull dreare,
 That he these words burst forth; Ah fory boy,
 Is this the hope that to my hoary heare
 Thou brings? aie me, is this the timely ioy,
 Which I expected long, now turnd to sad annoy?

Such is the weakenesse of all mortall hope;
 So tickle is the state of earthly things,
 That ere they come vnto their aymed scope,
 They fall too short of our fraile reckonings,
 And bring vs bale and bitter sorrowings,
 In stead of comfort, which we should embrace:
 This is the state of Keasars and of Kings.
 Let none therefore, that is in meaner place,
 Too greatly grieue at any his vnlucky case.

So well and wisely did that good old Knight
 Temper his grieffe, and turned it to cheare,
 To cheare his guests, whom he had stayd that night,
 And make their welcome to them well appeare:
 That to Sir Calidore was easie geare;
 But that faire Lady would be cheard for nought,
 But sigh'd and sorrow'd for her louer deare,
 And inly did afflict her pensue thought, (brought.
 With thinking to what case her name should now be

For she was daughter to a noble Lord,
 Which dwelt thereby, who sought her to affy
 To a great pere; but she did disaccord,
 Ne could her liking to his loue apply,
 But lou'd this fresh young Knight, who dwelt her ny,
 The lusty Aladine, though meaner borne,
 And of lesse liuelood and hability,
 Yet full of valour, the which did adorne
 His meanness much, & make her th'others riches scorne.

So hauing both found fit occasion,
 They met together in that luckelesse glade;
 Where that proud Knight in his presumption
 The gentle Aladine did earst inuade,
 Being vnarm'd, and set in secret shade.
 Whereof she now bethinking, gan t'aduize,
 How great a hazard she at earst had made
 Of her good fame, and further gan deuize,
 How she the blame might salue with coloured disguise.

But Calidore with all good courtesie
 Fain'd her to frolicke, and to put away
 The pensieue fit of her melancholie;
 And that old Knight by all meanes did assay,
 To make them both as merry as he may.
 So they the euening past, till time of rest,
 When Calidore in seemly good array
 Vnto his bowre was brought, and there vndrest,
 Did sleepe all night through weary trauell of his quest.

But faire Priscilla (so that Lady hight)
 Would to no bed, nor take no kindly sleepe,
 But by her wounded loue did watch all night,
 And all the night for bitter anguish weepe,

And

And with her teares his wounds did wash and steepe.
 So well she wafht them, and so well she wacht him,
 That of the deadly fswound, in which full deepe
 He drenched was, she at the length dispacht him,
 And drooue away the ffound, which mortally attacht him.

The morrow next, when day gan to vplooke,
 He also gan vplooke with drery eye,
 Like one that out of deadly dreame awooke:
 Where when he saw his faire Priscilla by,
 He deeply figh'd, and groaned inwardly,
 To thinke of this ill state, in which she stood,
 To which she for his sake had weetingly
 Now brought her selfe, and blam'd her noble blood:
 For first, next after life, he tendered her good.

Which she perceiuing, did with plenteous teares
 His care more then her owne compassionate,
 Forgetfull of her owne, to minde his feares:
 So both conspiring, gan to intimate
 Each others grieffe with zeale affectionate,
 And twixt them twaine with equall care to cast,
 How to saue hole her hazarded estate;
 For which the onely helpe now left them last
 Seem'd to be Calidore: all other helpes were past.

Him they did deeme, as sure to them he seemed,
 A courteous Knight, and full of faithfull trust:
 Therefore to him their cause they best esteemed
 Whole to commit, and to his dealing iust.
 Earely, so soone as Titans beames forth brust
 Through the thicke clouds, in which they steeped lay
 All night in darkenessse, duld with yron rust.
Calidore rising vp as fresh as day,
 Gan freshly him addresse vnto his former way.

But first him seemed fit, that wounded Knight
 To visite, after this nights perillous passe,
 And to salute him, if he were in plight,
 And eke that Lady his faire louely lasse.
 There he him found much better then he was,
 And moued speach to him of things of course,
 The anguish of his paine to ouerpasse:
 Mongst which he namely did to him discourse,
 Of former daies mishap, his sorrowes wicked source.

Of which occasion Aldine taking hold,
 Gan breake to him the fortunes of his loue,
 And all his disaduentures to vnfold;
 That Calidore it dearly deepe did moue.
 In th'end his kyndly courtesie to proue,
 He him by all the bands of loue besought,
 And as it mote a faithfull friend behoue,
 To safeconduct his loue, and not for ought
 To leaue, till to her fathers house he had her brought.

Sir Calidore his faith thereto did plight,
 It to performe: so after little stay,
 That she her selfe had to the iourney dight,
 He passed forth with her in faire array,
 Fearelesse, who ought did thinke, or ought did say,
 Sith his own thought he knew most cleare from wite.
 So as they past together on their way,
 He can deuize this counter-cast of sight,
 To giue faire colour to that Ladies cause in sight.

Streight to the carkasse of that Knight he went,
 The cause of all this euill, who was slaine
 The day before by iust auengement
 Of noble Tristrans, where it did remaine:

There

There he the necke thereof did cut in twaine,
 And tooke with him the head, the signe of shame.
 So forth he passed thorough that daies paine,
 Till to that Ladies fathers house he came, (came.
 Most pensiuē man, through feare, what of his childe be-

There he arriuing boldly, did present
 The fearefull Lady to her father deare,
 Most perfect pure, and guiltlesse innocent
 Of blame, as he did on his Knighthood swear,
 Since first he saw her, and did free from feare
 Of a discourteous Knight, who her had rest,
 And by outrageous force away did beare:
 Witnesse thereof he shew'd his head there left,
 And wretched life forlorne for vengeance of his theft.

Most ioyfull man her sire was her to see,
 And heare th'adventure of her late mischaunce;
 And thousand thanks to Calidore for see
 Of his large paines in her deliuerance
 Did yeeld; Ne lesse the Lady did aduance.
 Thus hauing her restored trustily,
 As he had vow'd, some small continuance
 He there did make, and then most carefully
 Vnto his first exploite he did him selfe apply.

So as he was pursuing of his quest
 He chaunst to come whereas a iolly Knight,
 In couert shade him selfe did safely rest,
 To solace with his Lady in delight:
 His warlike armes he had from him vndight;
 For that him selfe he thought from daunger free,
 And far from enuious eyes that mote him spight.
 And eke the Lady was full faire to see,
 And courteous withall, becoming her degree.

To whom Sir Calidore approaching nye,
 Ere they were well aware of liuing wight,
 Them much abasht; but more him selfe thereby,
 That he so rudely did vpon them light,
 And troubled had their quiet loues delight.
 Yet since it was his fortune, not his fault,
 Him selfe thereof he labour'd to acquite,
 And pardon crau'd for his so rash default,
 That he gainst courtesie so fowly did default.

With which his gentle words and goodly wit
 He soone allayd that Knights conceiu'd displeasure,
 That he besought him downe by him to sit,
 That they mote treat of things abrode at leasure;
 And of aduentures, which had in his measure
 Of so long waies to him befallen late.
 So downe he sate, and with delightfull pleasure
 His long aduentures gan to him relate,
 Which he endured had through daungerous debate.

Of which whilest they discoursed both together,
 The faire Serena (so his Lady hight)
 Allur'd with myldnesse of the gentle wether,
 And pleasaunce of the place, the which was dight
 With diuers flowres distinct with rare delight;
 Wandred about the fields, as liking led
 Her wauering lust after her wandring sight,
 To make a garland to adorne her hed,
 Without suspect of ill or daungers hidden dred.

All sodainely out of the forrest nere
 The Blatant Beast forth rushing vnaware,
 Caughther thus loosely wandring here and there,
 And in his wide great mouth away her bare.

Crying

Crying aloud in vaine, to shew her sad misfate
 Vnto the Knights, and calling oft for ayde,
 Who with the horrour of her haplesse care
 Hastily starting vp, like men dismayde,
 Ran after fast to reskue the distressed mayde.

The Beast with their pursuit incited more,
 Into the wood was bearing her apace
 For to haue spoyled her, when Calidore
 Who was more light of foote and swift in chace,
 Him ouertooke in midst of his race:
 And fiercely charging him with all his might,
 Forst to forgoe his pray there in the place,
 And to betake him selfe to fearefull flight;
 For he durst not abide with Calidore to fight.

Who nathelasse, when he the Lady saw
 There left on ground, though in full euill plight,
 Yet knowing that her Knight now neare did draw,
 Staide not to succour her in that affright,
 But follow'd fast the Monster in his flight:
 Through woods and hils he follow'd him so fast,
 That he would let him breath nor gather spright,
 But forst him gape and gaspe, with dread aghast,
 As if his lungs and lites were nigh a sunder braist.

And now by this Sir Calepine (so hight)
 Came to the place, where he his Lady found
 In dolorous dismay and deadly plight,
 All in gore bloud there tumbled on the ground,
 Hauing both sides through grypt with griesly wound.
 His weapons soone from him he threw away,
 And stouping downe to her in dreyf swound,
 Vprear'd her from the ground, whereon she lay,
 And in his tender armes her forced vp to stay.

So well he did his busie paines apply,
 That the faint sprite he did reuoke againe,
 To her fraile mansion of mortality.
 Then vp he tooke her twixt his armes twaine,
 And setting on his steede, her did sustaine
 With carefull hands softing foot her beside,
 Till to some place of rest they mote attaine,
 Where she in safe assuraunce mote abide,
 Till she recured were of those her woundes wide.

Now when as Phæbus with his fiery waine
 Vnto his Inne began to draw apace;
 Tho waxing weary of that toylesome paine,
 In traueilling on foote so long a space,
 Not wont on foote with heauy armes to trace,
 Downe in a dale forby a riuers syde,
 He chaunst to spie a faire and stately place,
 To which he meant his weary steps to guyde,
 In hope there for his loue some succour to prouyde.

But comming to the riuers side, he found
 That hardly passable on foote it was:
 Therefore there still he stood as in a stound,
 Ne wist which way he through the foord mote pas.
 Thus whilest he was in this distressed case,
 Deuising what to doe, he nigh espyde
 An armed Knight approaching to the place,
 With a faire Lady lincked by his syde,
 The which themselues prepard through the foord to ride

Whom Calepine saluting (as became)
 Besought of courtesie in that his neede,
 For safe conducting of his sickely Dame,
 Through that same perillous foord with better heede,
 To

To take him vp behinde vpon his steed,
To whom that other did this taunt returne.
Perdy thou peasant Knight, mightst rightly reed
Me then to be full base and euill borne,
If I would beare behinde a burden of such scorne.

But as thou hast thy steed forlorne with shame,
So fare on foote till thou another gayne,
And let thy Lady likewise doe the same,
Or beare her on thy backe with pleasing payne,
And proue thy manhood on the billowes vayne.
With which rude speach his Lady much displeas'd,
Did him reprove, yet could him not restrayne,
And would on her owne Palfrey him haue eas'd,
For pittie of his Dame, whom she saw so diseas'd.

Sir Calepine her thanckt, yet inly wroth
Against her Knight, her gentlenesse refused,
And carelesly into the riuer goth,
As in despight to be so fowle abused
Of a rude churle, whom often he accused
Offowle discourtesie, vnfit for Knight
And strongly wading through the waues vnused,
With speare in th'one hand, stayd him selfe vp right,
With th'other staide his Lady vp with stedy might.

And all the while, that same discourteous Knight,
Stood on the further bancke beholding him,
At whose calamity, for more despight
He laught, and mockt to see him like to swim.
But when as Calepine came to the brim,
And saw his carriage past that perill well,
Looking at that same Carle with count'nance grim,
His heart with vengeance inwardly did swell,
And forth at last did breake in speaches sharpe and fell.

Vnknightly Knight, the blemish of that name,
 And blot of all that armes vppon them take,
 Which is the badge of honour and of fame,
 Loe I defie thee, and here challenge make,
 That thou for euer doe those armes forsake;
 And be for euer held a recreant Knight,
 Vnlesse thou dare for thy deare Ladies sake,
 And for thine owne defence on foote alight,
 To iustifie thy fault gainst me in equall fight.

The dastard, that did heare him selfe desyde,
 Seem'd not to weigh his threatfull words at all,
 But laugh't them out, as if his greater pryde,
 Did scorne the challenge of so base a thrall:
 Or had no courage, or else had no gall.
 So much the more was Calepine offended,
 That him to no reuenge he forth could call,
 But both his challenge and him selfe contemned,
 Ne cared as a coward so to be condemned.

But he nought weighing what he sayd or did,
 Turned his steede about another way,
 And with his Lady to the Castle rid,
 Where was his won; ne did the other stay,
 But after went directly as he may,
 For his sicke charge some harbour there to seeke;
 Where he arriuing with the fall of day,
 Drew to the gate, and there with prayers meeke,
 And myld entreaty lodging did for her beseeke.

But the rude Porter that no manners had,
 Did shut the gate against him in his face,
 And entraunce boldly vnto him forbad.
 Nathelesse the Knight now in so needy case,

And

Gan him entreat euen with submission base,
 And humbly praid to let them in that night:
 Who to him aunswer'd, that there was no place
 Of lodging fit for any errant Knight,
 Vnlesse that with his Lord he formerly did fight.

Full loth am I (quoth he) as now at earst,
 When day is spent, and rest vs needeth most,
 And that this Lady, both whose sides are pearst
 With wounds, is ready to forgo the ghost:
 Ne would I gladly combate with mine host,
 That should to me such curtesie afford,
 Vnlesse that I were thereunto enforst.
 But yet aread to me, how hight thy Lord,
 That doth thus strongly ward the Castle of the ford.

His name (quoth he) if that thou list to learne,
 Is hight Sir Turpine, one of mickle might,
 And manhood rare, but terrible and stearne
 In all affaies to euery errant Knight,
 Because of one, that wrought him fowle despight.
 Ill seemes (sayd he) if he so valiaunt be,
 That he should be so sterne to stranger wight:
 For seldome yet did liuing creature see,
 That curtesie and manhood euer disagree.

But go thy waies to him, and fro me say,
 That here is at his gate an errant Knight,
 That house-rome craues, yet would be loth t'assay
 The prooffe of battell, now in doubtfull night,
 Or curtesie with rudenesse to requite:
 Yet if he needes will fight, craue leaue till morne,
 And tell with all, the lamentable plight,
 In which this Lady languisheth forlorne,
 That pittie craues, as he of woman was yborne.

The groome went streight way in, and to his Lord
 Declar'd the message, which that Knight did moue;
 Who sitting with his Lady then at bord,
 Not onely did not his demaund reprocue,
 But both himselfe reuil'd, and eke his loue;
 Albe his Lady, that Blandina hight,
 Him of vngentle vsage did approue
 And earnestly entreated that they might
 Finde fauour to be lodged there for that same night.

Yet would he not perswaded be for ought,
 Ne from his currish will awhit reclame.
 Which answer when the groome returning, brought
 To Calepine, his heart did inly flame
 With wrathfull fury for so foule a shame,
 That he could not thereof auenged bee:
 But most for pittie of his dearest Dame,
 Whom now in deadly daunger he did see;
 Yet had no meanes to comfort, nor procure her glee.

But all in vaine; for why, no remedy
 He saw, the present mischiefe to redresse,
 But th'vtmost end perforce for to aby,
 Which that nights fortune would for him adresse.
 So downe he tooke his Lady in distresse,
 And layd her vnderneath a bush to sleepe,
 Couer'd with cold, and wrapt in wretchednesse,
 Whiles he him selfe all night did nought but weepe,
 And wary watch about her for her safegard keepe.

The morrow next, so soone as ioyous day
 Did shew it selfe in sunny beames bedight,
Serena full of dolorous dismay,
 Twixt darkenesse dread, and hope of liuing light,
 Vprear'd

Vprear'd her head to see that chearefull sight.
Then Calepine, how euer inly wroth,
And greedy to auenge that vile despight,
Yet for the feeble Ladies sake, full loth
To make there lenger stay, forth on his iourney goth.

He goth on foote all armed by her side,
Vpstaying still her selfe vppon her steede,
Being vnhable else alone to ride;
So sore her sides, so much her wounds did bleede:
Till that at length, in his extreamest neede,
He chaunst far off an armed Knight to spy,
Pursuing him apace with greedy speede,
Whom well he wist to be some enemy,
That meant to make aduantage of his misery.

Wherefore he stayd, till that he nearer drew,
To weet what issue would thereof betyde,
Tho whenas he approched nigh in vew,
By certaine signes he plainely him descryde,
To be the man, that with such scornfull pryde
Had him abusde, and shamed yesterday;
Therefore misdoubting, least he should misguyde
His former malice to some new assay,
He cast to keepe him selfe so safely as he may.

By this the other came in place likewise,
And couching close his speare and all his powre,
As bent to some malicious enterprise,
He bad him stand, t'abide the bitter stoure
Of his sore vengeance, or to make auoure
Of the lewd words and deedes, which he had done:
With that ran at him, as he would deuoure
His life attonce; who nought could do, but shun
The perill of his pride, or else be ouerrun.

Yet he him still purfew'd from place to place,
 With full intent him cruelly to kill,
 And like a wilde goate round about did chace,
 Flying the fury of his bloody will.
 But his best succour and refuge was still Behinde his Ladies backe, who to him cryde,
 And called oft with prayers loud and shrill,
 As euer he to Lady was affyde,
 To spare her Knight, and rest with reason pacifyde.

But he the more thereby enraged was,
 And with more eager felnesse him purfew'd,
 So that at length, after long weary chace,
 Hauing by chaunce a close aduantage vew'd,
 He ouer raught him, hauing long eschew'd
 His violence in vaine, and with his spere
 Strooke through his shoulder, that the blood enfew'd
 In great aboundance, as a well it were,
 That forth out of an hill fresh gushing did appere.

Yet ceast he not for all that cruell wound,
 But chaste him still, for all his Ladies cry,
 Not satisfyde till on the fatall ground
 He saw his life powrd forth despiteously:
 The which was certes in great ieopardy,
 Had not a wondrous chaunce his reskue wrought,
 And saued from his cruell villany.
 Such chaunces oft exceed all humaine thought:
 That in another Canto shall to end be brought.

Cant. IIII.

*Calepine by a saluage man from Turpine reskewed is,
And whylest an Infant from a Beare
he saues, his lone doth misse.*

Like as a ship with dreadfull storme long tost,
Hauing spent all her mastes and her ground-hold,
Now farre from harbour likely to be lost,
At last some fisher barke doth neare behold,
That giueth comfort to her courage cold,
Such was the state of this most courteous knight
Being oppressed by that faytour bold,
That he remayned in most perilous plight,
And his sad Ladie left in pitifull affright.

Till that by fortune, passing all foresight,
A saluage man, which in those woods did wonne,
Drawne with that Ladies loud and piteous shrighr,
Toward the same incessantly did ronne,
To vnderstand what there was to be donne.
There he this most discourteous crauen found,
As fiercely yet, as when he first begonne,
Chasing the gentle Calepine around,
Ne sparing him the more for all his grieuous wound.

The saluage man, that neuer till this houre
Did taste of pittie, neither gentleffe knew,
Seeing his sharpe assault and cruell stoure
Was much emmoued at his perils vew,

That euen his ruder hart began to rew,
 And feele compassion of his euill plight,
 Against his foe that did him so purfew:
 From whom he meant to free him, if he might,
 And him auenge of that so villenous despight.

Yet armes or weapon had he none to fight,
 Ne knew the vse of warlike instruments,
 Saue such as sudden rage him lent to smite,
 But naked without needfull vestiments,
 To clad his corpse with meete habiliments,
 He cared not for dint of sword nor speere,
 No more then for the stroke of strawes or bents:
 For from his mothers wombe, which him did beare
 He was invulnerable made by Magicke leare.

He stayed not t'aduize, which way were best
 His foe t'assayle, or how himselfe to gard,
 But with fierce fury and with force infest
 Vpon him ran; who being well prepar'd,
 His first assault full warily did ward,
 And with the push of his sharp-pointed speare
 Full on the breast him strooke, so strong and hard,
 That forst him backe recoyle, and reele areare;
 Yet in his bodje made no wound nor bloud appeare.

With that the wyld man more enraged grew,
 Like to a Tygre that hath mist his pray,
 And with mad mood againe vpon him flew,
 Regarding neither speare, that mote him slay,
 Nor his fierce steed, that mote him much dismay.
 The saluage nation doth all dread despize:
 Tho on his shield he griple hold did lay,
 And held the same so hard, that by no wize
 He could him force to loose, or leaue his enterprize.

Long did he wrest and wring it to and fro,
 And eucry way did try, but all in vaine:
 For he would not his greedie grype forgoe,
 But hayld and puld with all his might and maine,
 That from his steed him nigh he drew againe.
 Who hauing now no vse of his long speare,
 So nigh at hand, nor force his shield to straine,
 Both speare and shield, as things that needlesse were,
 He quite forsooke, and fled himselfe away for feare.

But after him the wyld man ran apace,
 And him pursewed with importune speed,
 (For he was swift as any Bucke in chace)
 And had he not in his extreamest need,
 Bene helped through the swiftnesse of his steed,
 He had him ouertaken in his flight.
 Who euer, as he saw him nigh succeed,
 Gan cry aloud with horrible affright,
 And shrieked out, a thing vncomely for a knight.

But when the Saluage saw his labour vaine,
 In following of him, that fled so fast,
 He wearie woxe, and backe return'd againe
 With speede vnto the place, whereas he last
 Had left that couple, nere their vtmost cast.
 There he that knight full sorely bleeding found,
 Andeke the Ladie fearefully aghast,
 Both for the perill of the present stound,
 And also for the sharpnesse of her rankling wound.

For though she were right glad, so rid to bee
 From that vile lozell, which her late offended,
 Yet now no lesse encombrance she did see,
 And perill by this saluage man pretended;

Gainst whom she saw no meanes to be defended,
 By reason that her knight was wounded sore.
 Therefore her selfe she wholly recommended
 To Gods sole grace, whom she did oft implore,
 To send her succour, being of all hope forlore.

But the wyld man, contrarie to her feare,
 Came to her creeping like a fawning hound,
 And by rude tokens made to her appeare
 His deepe compassion of her dolefull stound,
 Kissing his hands, and crouching to the ground;
 For other language had he none nor speach,
 But a soft murmure, and confused sound
 Of senselesse words, which nature did him teach;
 T'expresse his passions, which his reason did impeach.

And comming likewise to the wounded knight,
 When he beheld the streames of purple blood
 Yet flowing fresh, as moued with the sight,
 He made great mone after his saluage mood,
 And running streight into the thickest wood,
 A certaine herbe from thence vnto him brought,
 Whose vertue he by vse well vnderstood:
 The iuyce whereof into his wound he wrought,
 And stopt the bleeding straight, ere he it stanch'd (thought.

Then taking vp that Recreants shield and speare,
 Which earst he left, he signes vnto them made,
 With him to wend vnto his winning neare:
 To which he easily did them perswade
 Farre in the forrest by a hollow glade,
 Couered with mossie thrubs, which spreading brode
 Did vnderneath them make a gloomy shade;
 There foot of liuing creature neuer trode, (abode.
 Ne scarce wyld beasts durst come, there was this wights
 Thether

Thether he brought these vnacquainted guests;
 To whom faire semblance, as he could, he shewed
 By signes, by lookes, and all his other gests.
 But the bare ground, with hoarie mosse bestrowed,
 Must be their bed, their pillow was vnfowed,
 And the frutes of the forrest was their feast:
 For their bad Stuard neither plough'd nor sowed,
 Ne fed on flesh, ne euer of wyld beast
 Did taste the bloud, obaying natures first behest.

Yet howsoeuer base and meane it were,
 They tooke it well, and thanked God for all,
 Which had them freed from that deadly feare,
 And sau'd from being to that caytiue thrall.
 Here they of force (as fortune now did fall)
 Compelled were themselues a while to rest,
 Glad of that easement, though it were but small;
 That hauing there their wounds awhile redrest,
 They mote the abler be to passe vnto the rest.

During which time, that wyld man did apply
 His best endeuour, and his daily paine,
 In seeking all the woods both farre and nye
 For herbes to dresse their wounds; still seeming faine,
 When ought he did, that did their lyking gaine.
 So as ere long he had that knightes wound
 Recured well, and made him whole againe:
 But that same Ladies hurts no herbe he found,
 Which could redresse, for it was inwardly vnfound.

Now when as Calpine was woxen strong,
 Vpon a day he cast abroad to wend,
 To take the ayre, and heare the thrushes song,
 Vnarm'd, as fearing neither foe nor friend,

And without sword his person to defend,
 There him befell, vnlooked for before,
 An hard aduenture with vnhappy end,
 A cruell Beare, the which an infant bore
 Betwixt his bloodie iawes, besprinkled all with gore.

The litle babe did loudly scrike and squall,
 And all the woods with piteous plaints did fill,
 As if his cry did meane for helpe to call
 To Calepine, whose eares those shrieches shrill
 Percing his hart with pitie point did thrill;
 That after him, he ran with zealous haste,
 To rescue th'infant, ere he did him kill:
 Whom though he saw now somewhat ouerpast,
 Yet by the cry he follow'd, and pursew'd fast.

Well then him chaunst his heauy armes to want,
 Whose burden mote empeach his needfull speed,
 And hinder him from libertie to pant:
 For hauing long time, as his daily weed,
 Them wont to weare, and wend on foot for need,
 Now wanting them he felt himselfe so light,
 That like an Hauke, which feeling her selfe freed
 From bels and iesses, which did let her flight,
 Him seem'd his feet did fly, and in their speed delight.

So well he sped him, that the wearie Beare
 Ere long he ouertooke, and forst to stay,
 And without weapon him assaying neare,
 Compeld him soone the spoyle adowne to lay.
 Wherewith the beast enrag'd to loose his pray,
 Vpon him turned, and with greedie force
 And furie, to be crossed in his way,
 Gaping full wyde, did thinke without remorse
 To be aueng'd on him, and to deuoure his corse.

But

But the bold knight no whit thereat dismayd,
 But catching vp in hand a ragged stone,
 Which lay thereby (so fortune him did ayde)
 Vpon him ran, and thrust it all attone
 Into his gaping throte, that made him grone
 And gaspe for breath, that he nigh choked was,
 Being vnable to digest that bone;
 Ne could it vpward come, nor downward passe,
 Ne could he brooke the coldnesse of the stony masse,

Whom when as he thus combred did behold,
 Stryuing in vaine that nigh his bowels braist,
 He with him closd, and laying mightie hold
 Vpon his throte, did gripe his gorge so fast,
 That wanting breath, him downe to ground he cast;
 And then oppressing him with vrgent paine,
 Ere long enforst to breath his vtmost blast,
 Gnashing his cruell teeth at him in vaine,
 And threatning his sharpe clawes, now wanting powre (to straine.

Then tooke he vp betwixt his armes twaine
 The litle babe, sweet relickes of his pray;
 Whom pitying to heare so fore complaine,
 From his soft eyes the teares he wypt away,
 And from his face the filth that did it ray,
 And euery litle limbe he searcht around,
 And euery part, that vnder sweathbands lay,
 Least that the beasts sharpe teeth had any wound
 Made in his tender flesh, but whole them all he found.

So hauing all his bands againe vptyde,
 He with him thought backe to returne againe:
 But when he lookt about on euery syde,
 To weet which way were best to entertaine,

To bring him to the place, where he would faine,
 He could no path nor tract of foot descry,
 Ne by inquirie learne, nor ghesse by ayne.
 For nought but woods and forrests farre and nye,
 That all about did close the compasse of his eye.

Much was he then encombred, ne could tell
 Which way to take : now West he went a while,
 Then North; then neither, but as fortune fell,
 So vp and downe he wandred many a mile,
 With wearie trauell and vncertaine toile,
 Yet nought the nearer to his iourneys end;
 And euermore his louely litle spoile
 Crying for food, did greatly him offend.
 So all that day in wandring vainely he did spend.

At last about the setting of the Sunne,
 Him selfe out of the forest he did wynd,
 And by good fortune the plaine champion wonne :
 Where looking all about, where he mote fynd
 Some place of succour to content his mynd,
 At length he heard vnder the forrests syde
 A voice, that seemed of some woman kynd,
 Which to her selfe lamenting loudly cryde,
 And oft complayn'd of fate, and fortune oft defyde.

To whom approching, when as she perceiued
 A stranger wight in place, her plaint she stayd,
 As if she doubted to haue bene deceiued,
 Or loth to let her sorrowes be bewrayd.
 Whom when as Calepine saw so dismayd,
 He to her drew, and with faire blandishment
 Her chearing vp, thus gently to her sayd,
 What be you wofull Dame, which thus lament,
 And for what cause declare, so mote ye not repent.

To whom she thus, what need me Sir to tell,
 That which your selfe haue earst aared so right?
 A wofull dame ye haue me termed well;
 So much more wofull, as my wofull plight
 Cannot redressed be by liuing wight.
 Nathlesse (quoth he) if need doe not you bynd,
 Doe it disclose, to ease your griued spright:
 Oftimes it haps, that sorrowes of the mynd
 Find remedie vnsought, which seeking cannot fynd.

Then thus began the lamentable Dame;
 Sith then ye needs will know the grieffe I hoord,
 I am th'vnfortunate Matilde by name,
 The wife of bold Sir Bruin, who is Lord
 Of all this land, late conquer'd by his sword
 From a great Gyant, called Cormoraunt;
 Whom he did ouerthrow by yonder foord;
 And in three battailes did so deadly daunt,
 That he dare not returne for all his daily vaunt.

So is my Lord now seiz'd of all the land,
 As in his fee, with peaceable estate,
 And quietly doth hold it in his hand,
 Ne any dares with him for it debate.
 But to these happie fortunes, cruell fate
 Hath ioyn'd one euill, which doth ouerthrow
 All these our ioyes, and all our blisse abate;
 And like in time to further ill to grow,
 And all this land with endlesse losse to ouerflow.

For th'heauens enuying our prosperitie,
 Haue not vouchsaf't to graunt vnto vs twaine
 The gladfull blessing of posteritie,
 Which we might see after our selues remaine

In th'heritage of our vnhappie paine:
 So that for want of heires it to defend,
 All is in time like to returne againe
 To that foule feend, who dayly doth attend
 To leape into the same after our liues end.

But most my Lord is grieued herewithall,
 And makes exceeding mone, when he does thinke
 That all this land vnto his foe shall fall,
 For which he long in vaine did sweat and swinke,
 That now the same he greatly doth forthinke.
 Yet was it sayd, there should to him a sonne
Be gotten, not begotten, which should drinke
 And dry vp all the water, which doth ronne
 In the next brooke, by whō that feend shold be fordonne.

Well hop't he then, when this was propheside,
 That from his sides some noble chyld should rize,
 The which through fame should farre be magnifide,
 And this proud gyant should with braue emprize
 Quite ouerthrow, who now ginnes to despize
 The good Sir Bruin, growing farre in yeares;
 Who thinkes from me his sorrow all doth rize.
 Lo this my cause of grieffe to you appeares;
 For which I thus doe mourne, and poure forth ceaselesse (teares.)

Which when he heard, he inly touched was
 With tender ruth for her vnworthy grieffe,
 And when he had deuized of her case,
 He gan in mind conceiue a fit reliefe
 For all her paine, if please her make the priefe.
 And hauing cheared her, thus said; faire Dame,
 In euils counsell is the comfort chiefe,
 Which though I be not wise enough to frame,
 Yet as I well it meane, vouchsafe it without blame.

If that the cause of this your languishment
 Be lacke of children, to supply your place,
 Low how good fortune doth to you present
 This litle babe, of sweete and louely face,
 And spotlesse spirit, in which ye may enchace
 What euer formes ye list thereto apply,
 Being now soft and fit them to embrace;
 Whether ye list him traine in cheualry,
 Or nourle vp in lore of learn'd Philosophy.

And certes it hath oftentimes bene seene,
 That of the like, whose linage was vnknowne,
 More braue and noble knights haue rayfed beene,
 As their victorious deedes haue often shoven,
 Being with fame through many Nations blowen,
 Then those, which haue bene dandled in the lap.
 Therefore some thought, that those braue imps were Here by the Gods, and fed with heauenly sap, (sowen
 That made them grow so high t'all honorable hap.

The Ladie hearkning to his sensefull speach,
 Found nothing that he said, vnmeet nor geason,
 Hauing oft seene it tryde, as he did teach.
 Therefore inclyning to his goodly reason,
 Agreeing well both with the place and season,
 She gladly did of that same babe accept,
 As of her owne by liuerey and seisin,
 And hauing ouer it a litle wept,
 She bore it thence, and euer as her owne it kept.

Right glad was Calepine to be so rid
 Of his young charge, whereof he skilled nought:
 Ne she lesse glad; for she so wisely did,
 And with her husband vnder hand so wrought,

That when that infant vnto him she brought,
 She made him thinke it surely was his owne,
 And it in goodly thewes so well vpbrought,
 That it became a famous knight well knowne
 And did right noble deedes, the which elsewhere are shoune.

But Calepine, now being left alone
 Vnder the greenewoods side in sorie plight,
 Withouten armes or steede to ride vpon,
 Or house to hide his head from heauens spight,
 Albe that Dame by all the meanes she might,
 Him oft desired home with her to wend,
 And offred him, his courtesie to requite,
 Both horse and armes, and what so else to lend,
 Yet he them all refusd, though thankd her as a friend.

And for exceeding grieve which inly grew,
 That he his loue so lucklesse now had lost,
 On the cold ground, maugre himselfe he threw,
 For fell despight, to be so sorely crost;
 And there all night himselfe in anguish tost,
 Vowing, that neuer he in bed againe
 His limbes would rest, ne lig in ease embost,
 Till that his Ladies sight he mote attaine,
 Or vnderstand, that she in safetie did remaine.

CANT.

Cant. V

The saluage serues Matilda well
 till she Prince Arthure fynd,
 Who her together with his Swayne
 with th' Hermit leaues behynd.

O What an easie thing is to descry
 The gentle blood, how euer it bewrapt
 In sad misfortunes foule deformity,
 And wretched sorrowes, which haue often hapt?
 For howsoeuer it may grow mis-shapt,
 Like this wyld man, being vndisciplynd,
 That to all vertue it may seeme vnapt,
 Yet will it shew some sparkes of gentle mynd,
 And at the last breake forth in his owne proper kynd.

That plainely may in this wyld man be red,
 Who though he were still in this desert wood,
 Mongst saluage beasts, both rudely borne and bred,
 Ne euer saw faire guize, ne learned good,
 Yet shewd some token of his gentle blood,
 By gentle vsage of that wretched Dame.
 For certes he was borne of noble blood,
 How euer by hard hap he hether came;
 As ye may know, when time shall be to tell the same.

Who when as now long time he lacked had
 The good Sir Calepine, that farre was strayd,
 Did waxe exceeding sorrowfull and sad,
 As he of some misfortune were afrayd:

And leauing there this Ladie all dismayd,
 Went forth streightway into the forrest wyde,
 To seeke, if he perchance a sleepe were layd,
 Or what so else were vnto him betyde:
 He sought him farre & neare, yet him nowhere he spyde.

Tho backe returning to that sorie Dame,
 He shewed semblant of exceeding mone,
 By speaking signes, as he them best could frame;
 Now wringing both his wretched hands in one,
 Now beating his hard head vpon a stone,
 That ruth it was to see him so lament.
 By which she well perceiuing, what was done,
 Can teare her hayre, and all her garments rent,
 And beat her breast, and piteously her selfe torment.

Vpon the ground her selfe she fiercely threw,
 Regardlesse of her wounds, yet bleeding rise,
 That with their bloud did all the flore imbrew,
 As if her breast new launcht with murtherous knife,
 Would streight dislodge the wretched wearie life.
 There she long groueling, and deepe groning lay,
 As if her vitall powers were at strife
 With stronger death, and feared their decay,
 Such were this Ladies pangs and dolorous assay.

Whom when the Saluage saw so sore distrest,
 He reared her vp from the bloudie ground,
 And sought by all the meanes, that he could best
 Her to recure out of that stony swound,
 And staunch the bleeding of her dreary wound.
 Yet nould she be recomforted for nought,
 Ne cease her sorrow and impatient stound,
 But day and night did vexe her carefull thought,
 And euer more and more her owne affliction wrought.

At length, when as no hope of his retourne
 She saw now left, she cast to leaue the place,
 And wend abroad, though feeble and forlorne,
 To seeke some comfort in that sorie case.
 His steede now strong through rest so long a space,
 Well as she could, she got, and did bedight,
 And being thereon mounted, forth did pace,
 Withouten guide, her to conduct aright,
 Or gard her to defend from bold oppressors might.

Whom when her Host saw readie to depart,
 He would not suffer her alone to fare,
 But gan himselfe addressse to take her part.
 Those warlike armes, which Calepine whyleare
 Had left behind, he gan estfoones prepare,
 And put them all about himselfe vnfit,
 His shield, his helmet, and his curats bare.
 But without sword vpon his thigh to fit:
 Sir Calepine himselfe away had hidden it.

So forth they traueled an vneuen payre,
 That mote to all men seeme an vncouth sight;
 A saluage man matcht with a Ladie fayre,
 That rather seem'd the conquest of his might,
 Gotten by spoyle, then purchaced aright.
 But he did her attend most carefully,
 And faithfully did serue both day and night,
 Withouten thought of shame or villeny,
 Ne euer shewed signe of foule disloyalty.

Vpon a day as on their way they went,
 It chaunst some furniture about her steed
 To be disordred by some accident:
 Which to redresse, she did th'assistance need.

Of this her groome, which he by signes did reede,
 And streight his combrous armes aside did lay
 Vpon the ground, withouten doubt or dreed,
 And in his homely wize began to assay
 T'amend what was amisse, and put in right aray.

Bout which whilest he was busied thus hard,
 Lo where a knight together with his squire,
 All arm'd to point came ryding thetherward,
 Which seemed by their portance and attire,
 To be two errant knights, that did inquire
 After aduentures, where they mote them get.
 Those were to weet (if that ye it require)
 Prince Arthur and young Timias, which met
 By straunge occasion, that here needs forth be set.

After that Timias had againe recured
 The fauour of Belphebe, (as ye heard)
 And of her grace did stand againe assured,
 To happie blisse he was full high vprear'd,
 Nether of enuy, nor of chaunge asfeard,
 Though many foes did him maligne therefore,
 And with vniust detraction him did beard;
 Yet he himselfe so well and wisely bore,
 That in her soueraine lyking he dwelt euermore.

But of them all, which did his ruine seeke
 Three mightie enemies did him most despight,
 Three mightie ones, and cruell minded ecke,
 That him not onely sought by open might
 To ouerthrow, but to supplant by slight.
 The first of them by name was cald Despetto,
 Exceeding all the rest in powre and hight;
 The second not so strong but wise, Decetto;
 The third nor strong nor wise, but spightfullest Desetto.
 Oftimes

Oftimes their sundry powres they did employ,
 And feuerall deceipts, but all in vaine:
 For neither they by force could him destroy,
 Ne yet entrap in treasons subtill traine.
 Therefore conspiring all together plaine,
 They did their counsels now in one compound;
 Where singled forces faile, conioynd may gaine.
 The Blatant Beast the fittest meanes they found,
 To worke his vtter shame, and throughly him confound.

Vpon a day as they the time did waite,
 When he did draunge the wood for saluage game,
 They sent that Blatant Beast to be a baite,
 To draw him from his deare beloued dame,
 Vnwares into the daunger of defame.
 For well they wist, that Squire to be so bold,
 That no one beast in forrest wylde or tame,
 Met him in chafe, but he it challenge would,
 And plucke the pray oftimes out of their greedy hould.

The hardy boy, as they deuifed had,
 Seeing the vgly Monster passing by,
 Vpon him set, of perill nought adrad,
 Ne skilfull of the vncouth ieopardy;
 And charged him so fierce and furiously,
 That his great force vnable to endure,
 He forced was to turne from him and fly:
 Yet ere he fled, he with his tooth impure
 Him heedlesse bit, the whiles he was thereof secure.

Securely he did after him pursew,
 Thinking by speed to ouertake his flight;
 Who through thicke woods and brakes & briers him
 To weary him the more, and waste his spight, (drew,

So that he now has almost spent his spright,
 Till that at length vnto a woody glade
 He came, whose couert stopt his further sight,
 There his three foes shrowded in guilefull shade,
 Out of their ambush broke, and gan him to inuade.

Sharply they all attonce did him assaile,
 Burning with inward rancour and despight,
 And heaped strokes did round about him haile
 With so huge force, that seemed nothing might Beare off their blowes, from percing thorough quite.
 Yet he them all so warily did ward,
 That none of them in his soft flesh did bite,
 And all the while his backe for best safegard,
 He lent against a tree, that backward onset bard.

Like a wylde Bull, that being at a bay,
 Is bayted of a mastiffe, and a hound,
 And a curre-dog; that doe him sharpe assay
 On euery side, and beat about him round;
 But most that curre barking with bitter sounde,
 And creeping still behinde, doth him incomber,
 That in his chauffe he digs the trampled ground,
 And threats his horns, and bellowes like the thonder,
 So did that Squire his foes disperse, and driue asonder.

Him well behoued so; for his three foes
 Sought to encompasse him on euery side,
 And dangerously did round about enclose.
 But most of all Defetto him annoyde,
 Creeping behinde him still to haue destroyde:
 So did Decetto eke him circumuent,
 But stout Despetto in his greater pryde,
 Did front him face to face against him bent,
 Yet he them all withstood, and often made relent.

Till that at length nigh tyrd with former chace,
 And weary now with carefull keeping ward,
 He gan to shrinke, and somewhat to giue place,
 Full like ere long to haue escaped hard;
 When as vnwares he in the Forrest heard
 A trampling steede, that with his neighing fast
 Did warne his rider be vppon his gard;
 With noise whereof the Squire now nigh aghast,
 Reuiued was, and sad dispaire away did cast.

Eftsoones he spide a Knight approaching nye,
 Who seeing one in so great daunger set
 Mongst many foes, him selfe did faster hye;
 To reskue him, and his weake part abet,
 For pittie so to see him ouerset.
 Whom soone as his three enemies did vew,
 They fled, and fast into the wood did get:
 Him booted not to thinke them to pursew,
 The couert was so thicke, that did no passage shew.

Then turning to that swaine, him well he knew
 To be his Timias, his owne true Squire,
 Whereof exceeding glad, he to him drew,
 And him embracing twixt his armes entire,
 Him thus bespake; My lief, my lifes desire,
 Why haue ye me alone thus long yleft?
 Tell me what worlds despight, or heauens yre
 Hath you thus long away from me bereft?
 Where haue ye all this while bin wandring, where bene (west?)

With that he sighed deepe for inward tyne:
 To whom the Squire nought aunswered againe,
 But shedding few soft teares from tender eyne,
 His deare affect with silence did restraine,

And shut vp all his plaint in priuy paine.
 There they awhile some gracious speeches spent,
 As to them seemed fit time to entertaine.
 After all which vp to their steedes they went,
 And forth together rode a comely couplement.

So now they be arriued both in sight
 Of this wyld man, whom they full busie found
 About the sad Serena things to dight,
 With those braue armours lying on the ground,
 That seem'd the spoile of some right well renownd.
 Which when that Squire beheld, he to them stept,
 Thinking to take them from that hylding hound:
 But he it seeing, lightly to him lept,
 And sternely with strong hand it from his handling kept.

Gnashing his grinded teeth with grieufully looke,
 And sparkling fire out of his furious eyne,
 Him with his fist vnwares on th'head he strooke,
 That made him downe vnto the earth encline;
 Whence soone vpstarting much he gan repine,
 And laying hand vpon his wrathfull blade,
 Thought therewithall forthwith him to haue slaine,
 Who it perceiuing, hand vpon him layd,
 And greedily him griping, his auengement stayd.

With that aloude the faire Serena cryde
 Vnto the Knight, them to dispart in twaine:
 Who to them stepping did them soone diuide,
 And did from further violence restraine,
 Albe the wyld-man hardly would refraine.
 Then gan the Prince, of her for to demand,
 What and from whence she was, and by what traine
 She fell into that saluage villaines hand,
 And whether free with him she now were, or in band.

To whom she thus; I am, as now ye see,
 The wretchedst Dame, that liue this day on ground,
 Who both in minde, the which most griueth me,
 And body haue receiu'd a mortall wound,
 That hath me driuen to this drery stound.
 I was erewhile, the loue of Calepine,
 Who whether he aliue be to be found,
 Or by some deadly chaunce be done to pine,
 Since I him lately lost, vneath is to define.

In saluage Forrest I him lost of late,
 Where I had surely long ere this bene dead,
 Or else remained in most wretched state,
 Had not this wyld man in that wofull stead
 Kept, and deliuered me from deadly dread.
 In such a saluage wight, of brutish kynd,
 Amongst wilde beastes in desert Forrests bred,
 It is most straunge and wonderfull to fynd
 So milde humanity, and perfect gentle mynd.

Let me therefore this fauour for him finde,
 That ye will not your wrath vpon him wreake,
 Sith he cannot expresse his simple minde,
 Ne yours conceiue, ne but by tokens speake:
 Small praise to proue your powre on wight so weake,
 With such faire words she did their heate asswage,
 And the strong course of their displeasure breake,
 That they to pittie turnd their former rage,
 And each sought to supply the office of her page.

So hauing all things well about her dight,
 She on her way cast forward to proceede,
 And they her forth conducted, where they might Finde harbour fit to comfort her great neede.

For now her wounds corruption gan to breed;
 And eke this Squire, who likewise wounded was
 Of that same Monster late, for lacke of heed,
 Now gan to faint, and further could not pas
 Through feeblenesse, which all his limbes oppressed has.

So forth they rode together all in troupe,
 To seeke some place, the which mote yeeld some ease
 To these sicke twaine, that now began to droupe,
 And all the way the Prince sought to appease
 The bitter anguish of their sharpe disease,
 By all the courteous meanes he could inuent,
 Somewhile with merrypurpose fit to please,
 And otherwhile with good encouragement,
 To make them to endure the pains, did them torment.

Mongst which, Serena did to him relate
 The foule discour'sies and vnknightly parts,
 Which Turpine had vnto her shewed late,
 Without compassion of her cruell smarts,
 Although Blandina did with all her arts
 Him otherwise perswade, all that she might;
 Yet he of malice, without her defarts,
 Not onely her excluded late at night,
 But also trayterously did wound her weary Knight.

Wherewith the Prince fore moued, there auoud,
 That soone as he returned backe againe,
 He would auenge th'abuses of that proud
 And shamefull Knight, of whom she did complaine.
 This wise did they each other entertaine,
 To passe the tedious trauell of the way;
 Till towards night they came vnto a plaine,
 By which a little Hermitage there lay,
 Far from all neighbourhood, the which annoy it may.

And

And nigh thereto a little Chappell stooode,
 Which being all with Yuy ouerspred,
 Deckt all the roofe, and shadowing the roode,
 Seem'd like a groue faire braunched ouer hed:
 Therein the Hermite, which his life here led
 In streight obseruaunce of religious vow,
 Was wont his howres and holy things to bed,
 And therein he likewise was praying now,
 Whenas these Knights arriu'd, they wist not where nor (how.

They stayd not there, but streight way in did pas.
 Whom when the Hermite present saw in place,
 From his deuotion streight he troubled was;
 Which breaking of he toward them did pace,
 With stayed steps, and graue beseeming grace:
 For well it seem'd, that whilome he had beene
 Soome goodly person, and of gentle race,
 That could his good to all, and well did weene,
 How each to entertaine with cur'fie well beseene.

And soothly it was sayd by common fame,
 So long as age enabled him thereto,
 That he had bene a man of mickle name,
 Renowmed much in armes and derring doe:
 But being aged now and weary to
 Of warres delight, and worlds contentious toyle,
 The name of knighthood he did disauow,
 And hanging vp his armes and warlike spoyle,
 From all this worlds incombraunce did himselfe assoyle.

He thence them led into his Hermitage,
 Letting their steedes to graze vpon the greene:
 Small was his house, and like a little cage,
 For his owne turne, yet inly neate and clene,

Deckt with greene boughes, and flowers gay befeene.
 Therein he them full faire did entertaine
 Not with such forged showes, as fitter beene
 For courting fooles, that curtesies would faine,
 But with entire affection and appearaunce plaine.

Yet was their fare but homely, such as hee
 Did vse, his feeble body to sustaine;
 The which full gladly they did take in glee,
 Such as it was, ne did of want complaine,
 But being well suffiz'd, them rested faine.
 But faire Serene all night could take no rest,
 Ne yet that gentle Squire for grieuous paine
 Of their late woundes, the which the Blatant Beast
 Had giuen them, whose griefe through suffraunce sore in(creast.

So all that night they past in great disease,
 Till that the morning, bringing earely light
 To guide mens labours, brought them also ease,
 And some asswagement of their painefull plight.
 Then vp they rose, and gan them selues to dight
 Vnto their iourney; but that Squire and Dame
 So faint and feeble were, that they ne might Endure to trauell, nor one foote to frame:
 Their hearts were sicke, their sides were sore, their feete (were lame.

Therefore the Prince, whom great affaires in mynd
 Would not permit, to make their lenger stay,
 Was forced there to leaue them both behynd,
 In that good Hermits charge, whom he did pray
 To tend them well. So forth he went his way,
 And with him eke the saluage, that whyleare
 Seeing his royall vsage and array,
 Was greatly growne in loue of that brauc pere,
 Would needes depart, as shall declared be elsewhere.

Cant. VI.

The Hermite heales both Squire and dame
 Of their sore maladies :
 He Turpine doth defeate, and shame
 For his late villames.

NO wound, which warlike hand of enemy
 Inflicts with dint of sword, so sore doth light,
 As doth the poysonous sting, which infamy
 Infixeth in the name of noble wight :
 For by no art, nor any leaches might
 It euer can recured be againe ;
 Ne all the skill, which that immortall spright
 Of Podalyrius did in it retaine,
 Can remedy such hurts; such hurts are hellish paine.

Such were the wounds, the which that Blatant Beast
 Made in the bodies of that Squire and Dame ;
 And being such, were now much more increast,
 For want of taking heede vnto the same,
 That now corrupt and curelesse they became.
 Howbe that carefull Hermite did his best,
 With many kindes of medicines meete, to tame
 The poysonous humour, which did most infest
 Their ranckling wounds, & euery day them duely drest.

For he right well in Leaches craft was seene,
 And through the long experience of his dayes,
 Which had in many fortunes tossed beene,
 And past through many perillous assayes,

He knew the diuerse went of mortall wayes,
 And in the mindes of men had great insight;
 Which with sage counsell, when they went astray,
 He could enforme, and them reduce aright,
 And al the passiōs heale, which wōūd the weaker spright.

For whylome he had bene a doughty Knight,
 As any one, that liued in his daies,
 And proued oft in many perillous fight,
 Of which he grace and glory wonne alwaies,
 And in all battels bore away the baies.
 But being now attacht with timely age,
 And weary of this worlds vnquiet waies,
 He tooke him selfe vnto this Hermitage,
 In which he liu'd alone, like carelesse bird in cage.

One day, as he was searching of their wounds,
 He found that they had festred priuily,
 And ranckling inward with vnruely stounds,
 The inner parts now gan to putrify,
 That quite they seem'd past helpe of surgery,
 And rather needed to be disciplinde
 With holesome reede of sad sobriety,
 To rule the stubborne rage of passion blinde:
 Giue salues to euery sore, but counsell to the minde.

So taking them apart into his cell,
 He to that point fit speaches gan to frame,
 As he the art of words knew wondrous well,
 And eke could doe, as well as say the same,
 And thus he to them sayd; faire daughter Dame,
 And you faire sonne, which here thus long now lie
 In piteous languor, since ye hither came,
 In vaine of me ye hope for remedie,
 And I likewise in vaine doe salues to you applie.

For in your selfe your onely helpe doth lie,
 To heale your selues, and must proceed alone
 From your owne will, to cure your maladie.
 Who can him cure, that will be cur'd of none?
 If therefore health ye seeke, obserue this one.
 First learne your outward fences to refraine
 From things, that stirre vp fraile affection;
 Your eies, your eares, your tongue, your talk restraine
 From that they most affect, and in due termes containe.

For from those outward fences ill affected,
 The seede of all this euill first doth spring,
 Which at the first before it had infected,
 Mote easie be supprest with little thing:
 But being growen strong, it forth doth bring Sorrow, and anguish, and impatient paine
 In th'inner parts, and lastly scattering
 Contagious poyson close through euery vaine,
 It neuer rests, till it haue wrought his finall bane.

For that beastes teeth, which wounded you tofore,
 Are so exceeding venemous and keene,
 Made all of rusty yron, ranckling sore,
 That where they bite, it booteth not to weene
 With salue, or antidote, or other mene
 It euer to amend: ne maruaile ought;
 For that same beast was bred of hellish strene,
 And long in darksome Stygian den vpbrought,
 Begot of foule Echidna, as in bookes is taught.

Echidna is a Monster direfull dred,
 Whom Gods doe hate, and heauens abhor to see;
 So hideous is her shape, so huge her hed,
 That euen the hellish fiends affrighted bee

At sight thereof, and from her presence flee:
 Yet did her face and former parts professe
 A faire young Mayden, full of comely glee;
 But all her hinder parts did plaine expresse
 A monstrous Dragon, full of fearefull vglinesse.

To her the Gods, for her so dreadfull face,
 In fearefull darkenesse, furthest from the skie,
 And from the earth, appointed haue her place,
 Mongst rocks and caues, where she enrold doth lie
 In hideous horrour and obscurity,
 Wasting the strength of her immortall age.
 There did Typhaon with her company,
 Cruell Typhaon, whose tempestuous rage
 Make th'heauens tremble oft, & him with vowes asswage.

Of that commixtion they did then beget
 This hellish Dog, that hight the Blatant Beast;
 A wicked Monster, that his tongue doth whet
 Gainst all, both good and bad, both most and least,
 And poures his poysonous gall forth to infest
 The noblest wights with notable defame:
 Ne euer Knight, that bore so lofty creast,
 Ne euer Lady of so honest name,
 But he them spotted with reproch, or secrete shame.

In vaine therefore it were, with medicine
 To goe about to salue such kynd of sore,
 That rather needes wise read and discipline,
 Then outward salues, that may augment it more.
 Aye me (sayd then Serena fighting sore)
 What hope of helpe doth then for vs remaine,
 If that no salues may vs to health restore?
 But sith we need good counsell (sayd the swaine)
 Aread good fire, some counsell, that may vs sustaine.

The best (sayd he) that I can you aduize,
Is to auoide the occasion of the ill:
For when the cause, whence euill doth arize,
Remoued is, th'effect surceaseth still.
Abstaine from pleasure, and restraine your will,
Subdue desire, and bridle loose delight,
Vse scanted diet, and forbear your fill,
Shun secrecie, and talke in open sight:
So shall you soone repaire your present euill plight.

Thus hauing sayd, his sickely patients
Did gladly hearken to his graue behest,
And kept so well his wise commaundements,
That in short space their malady was cease,
And eke the biting of that harmefull Beast
Was throughly heal'd. Tho when they did perceauē
Their wounds recur'd, and forces reincrease,
Of that good Hermite both they tooke their leaue,
And went both on their way, ne ech would other leaue.

But each th'other vow'd t'accompany,
The Lady, for that she was much in dred,
Now left alone in great extremity,
The Squire, for that he courteous was indeed,
Would not her leaue alone in her great need.
So both together traueled, till they met
With a faire Mayden clad in mourning weed,
Vpon a mangy iade vnmeetely set,
And a lewd foole her leading thorough dry and wet.

But by what meanes that shame to her befell,
And how thereof her selfe she did acquite,
I must a while forbear to you to tell;
Till that, as comes by course, I doe recite,

What fortune to the Briton Prince did lite,
 Pursuing that proud Knight, the which whileare
 Wrought to Sir Calidore so foule despight;
 And eke his Lady, though she sickely were,
 So lewdly had abusde, as ye did lately heare.

The Prince according to the former token,
 Which faire Serene to him deliuered had,
 Pursu'd him streight, in mynd to bene ywroken
 Of all the vile demeane, and vsage bad,
 With which he had those two so ill bestad:
 Ne wight with him on that aduenture went,
 But that wylde man, whom though he oft forbad,
 Yet for no bidding, nor for being shent,
 Would he restrayned be from his attendement.

Arriuing there, as did by chaunce befall,
 He found the gate wyde ope, and in he rode,
 Ne stayd, till that he came into the hall:
 Where soft dismounting like a weary lode,
 Vpon the ground with feeble feete he trode,
 As he vnable were for very neede
 To moue one foote, but there must make abode;
 The whiles the saluage man did take his steede,
 And in some stable neare did set him vp to feede:

Ere long to him a homely groome there came,
 That in rude wise him asked, what he was,
 That durst so boldly, without let or shame,
 Into his Lords forbidden hall to passe.
 To whom the Prince, him fayning to embase,
 Mylde answer made; he was an errant Knight,
 The which was fall'n into this feeble case,
 Through many wounds, which lately he in fight,
 Receiued had, and prayd to pittie his ill plight.

But he, the more outrageous and bold,
Sternely did bid him quickly thence auaunt,
Or deare aby, for why his Lord of old
Did hate all errant Knights, which there did haunt,
Ne lodging would to any of them graunt,
And therefore lightly bad him packe away,
Not sparing him with bitter words to taunt;
And therewithall rude hand on him did lay,
To thrust him out of dore, doing his worst assay.

Which when the Saluage comming now in place,
Beheld, estfoones he all enraged grew,
And running streight vpon that villaine base,
Like a fell Lion at him fiercely flew,
And with his teeth and nailes, in present vew,
Him rudely rent, and all to peeces tore:
So miserably him all helpelesse flew,
That with the noise, whilest he did loudly rore,
The people of the house rose forth in great vpror.

Who when on ground they saw their fellow slaine,
And that same Knight and Saluage standing by,
Vpon them two they fell with might and maine,
And on them layd so huge and horribly,
As if they would haue slaine them presently.
But the bold Prince defended him so well,
And their assault withstood so mightily,
That maugre all their might, he did repell,
And beat them back, whilest many vnderneath him fell.

Yet he them still so sharpely did pursew,
That few of them he left aliue, which fled,
Those euill tidings to their Lord to shew.
Who hearing how his people badly sped,

Came

Came forth in haft : where when as with the dead
 He saw the ground all strow'd, and that same Knight
 And saluage with their bloud fresh steeming red,
 He woxenigh mad with wrath and fell despight,
 And with reprochfull words him thus bespake on hight.

Art thou he, traytor, that with treason vile,
 Hast slaine my men in this vnmanly maner,
 And now triumphest in the piteous spoile
 Of these poore folk, whose foules with black dishonor
 And foule defame doe decke thy bloody baner?
 The meede whereof shall shortly be thy shame,
 And wretched end, which still attendeth on her.
 With that him selfe to battell he did frame;
 So did his forty yeomen, which there with him came.

With dreadfull force they all did him assaile,
 And round about with boystrous strokes oppresse,
 That on his shield did rattle like to haile
 In a great tempest; that in such distresse,
 He wist not to which side him to addresse.
 And euermore that crauen cowherd Knight,
 Was at his backe with heartlesse heedinesse,
 Wayting if he vnwares him murther might:
 For cowardize doth still in villany delight.

Whereof whenas the Prince was well aware,
 He to him turnd with furious intent,
 And him against his powre gan to prepare;
 Like a fierce Bull, that being busie bent
 To fight with many foes about him ment,
 Feeling some curre behinde his heeles to bite,
 Turnes him about with fell auengement;
 Solikewise turnde the Prince vpon the Knight,
 And layd at him amaine with all his will and might.

Who

Who when he once his dreadfull strokes had tasted,
 Durst not the furie of his force abyde,
 But turn'd abacke, and to retyre him hasted
 Through the thicke prease, there thinking him to hyde.
 But when the Prince had once him plainly eyde,
 He foot by foot him followed alway,
 Ne would him suffer once to shrinke asyde
 But ioyning close, huge lode at him did lay:
 Who flying still did ward, and warding fly away.

But when his foe he still so eger saw,
 Vnto his heeles himselfe he did betake,
 Hoping vnto some refuge to withdraw:
 Ne would the Prince him euer foot forsake,
 Where so he went, but after him did make.
 He fled from roome to roome, from place to place,
 Whylest euery ioynt for dread of death did quake,
 Still looking after him, that did him chace;
 That made him euermore increase his speedie pace.

At last he vp into the chamber came,
 Whereas his loue was sitting all alone,
 Wayting what tydings of her folke became.
 There did the Prince him ouertake anone,
 Crying in vaine to her, him to bemone;
 And with his sword him on the head did smyte,
 That to the gound he fell in senselesse swone:
 Yet whether thwart or flatly it did lyte,
 The tempred steele did not into his braynepan byte.

Which when the Ladic saw, with great affright
 She starting vp, began to shricke aloud,
 And with her garment couering him from sight,
 Seem'd vnder her protection him to shroud;

And falling lowly at his feet, her bowd
 Vpon her knee, intreating him for grace,
 And often him besought, and prayd, and vowd;
 That with the ruth of her so wretched case,
 He stayd his second strooke, and did his hand abase.

Her weed she then withdrawing, did him discover,
 Who now come to himselfe, yet would not rize,
 But still did lie as dead, and quake, and quiuer,
 That euen the Prince his basenesse did despize,
 And eke his Dame him seeing in such guise,
 Gan him recomfort, and from ground to reare.
 Who rising vp at last in ghastly wize,
 Like troubled ghost did dreadfully appeare,
 As one that had no life him left through former feare.

Whom when the Prince so deadly saw dismayd,
 He for such basenesse shamefully him shent,
 And with sharpe words did bitterly vpbrayd;
 Vile cowheard dogge, now doe I much repent,
 That euer I this life vnto thee lent,
 Whereof thou caytiue so vnworthie art;
 That both thy loue, for lacke of hardiment,
 And eke thy selfe, for want of manly hart,
 And eke all knights hast shamed with this knightlesse (part.)

Yet further hast thou heaped shame to shame,
 And crime to crime, by this thy cowheard feare.
 For first it was to thee reprochfull blame,
 To erect this wicked custome, which I heare,
 Gainst errant Knights and Ladies thou dost reare;
 Whom when thou mayst, thou dost of arms despoile,
 Or of their vpper garment, which they weare:
 Yet doest thou not with manhood, but with guile
 Maintaine this euill vse, thy foes thereby to foile.

And

And lastly in approuance of thy wrong,
 To shew such faintnesse and foule cowardize,
 Is greatest shame: for oft it falles, that strong
 And valiant knights doe rashly enterprize,
 Either for fame, or else for exercize,
 A wrongfull quarrell to maintaine by right;
 Yet haue, through prowesse and their braue emprize,
 Gotten great worship in this worldes fight.

For greater force there needs to maintaine wrong, then (right.)

Yet since thy life vnto this Ladie fayre
 I giuen haue, liue in reproch and scorne;
 Ne euer armes, ne euer knighthood dare
 Hence to professe: for shame is to adorne
 With so braue badges one so basely borne;
 But onely breath sith that I did forgiue.
 So hauing from his crauen bodie torne
 Those goodly armes, he them away did giue
 And onely suffred him this wretched life to liue.

There whilest he thus was setting things aboue,
 Atwene that Ladie myld and recreant knight,
 To whom his life he graunted for her loue,
 He gan bethinke him, in what perilous plight
 He had behynd him left that saluage wight,
 Amongst so many foes, whom sure he thought
 By this quite slaine in so vnequall fight:
 Therefore descending backe in haste, he sought
 If yet he were aliue, or to destruction brought.

There he him found enuironed about
 With slaughtred bodies, which his hand had slaine,
 And laying yet a fresh with courage stout
 Vpon the rest, that did aliue remaine;

Whom he likewise right forely did constraîne,
 Like scattred sheepe, to seeke for safetie,
 After he gotten had with busie paine
 Some of their weapons, which thereby did lie,
 With which he layd about, and made them fast to flie.

Whom when the Prince so felly saw to rage,
 Approching to him neare, his hand he stayd,
 And sought, by making signes, him to assuage:
 Who them perceiuing, streight to him obeyd,
 As to his Lord, and downe his weapons layd,
 As if he long had to his hearts bene trayned.
 Thence he him brought away, and vp conuayd
 Into the chamber, where that Dame remaind
 With her vnworthy knight, who ill him entertayned.

Whom when the Saluage saw from daunger free,
 Sitting beside his Ladie there at ease,
 He well remembred, that the same was hee,
 Which lately sought his Lord for to displease:
 Tho all in rage, he on him streight did seaze,
 As if he would in peeces him haue rent;
 And were not, that the Prince did him appeaze,
 He had not left one limbe of him vnrent:
 But streight he held his hand at his commaundement.

Thus hauing all things well in peace ordayned,
 The Prince him selfe there all that night did rest,
 Where him Blandina fayrely entertayned,
 With all the courteous glee and goodly feast,
 The which for him she could imagine best.
 For well she knew the wayes to win good will
 Of euery wight, that were not too infest,
 And how to please the minds of good and ill, (skill.
 Through tempering of her words & lookes by wondrous

Yet were her words and lookes but false and fayned,
 To some hid end to make more easie way,
 Or to allure such fondlings, whom she trayned
 Into her trap vnto their owne decay:
 Thereto, when needed, she could weepe and pray,
 And when her list, she could fawne and flatter;
 Now smyling smoothly, like to sommers day,
 Now glooming sadly, so to cloke her matter;
 Yet were her words but wynd, & all her teares but water.

Whether such grace were giuen her by kynd,
 As women wont their guilefull wits to guyde;
 Or learn'd the art to please, I doe not fynd.
 This well I wote, that she so well applyde
 Her pleasing tongue, that soone she pacifyde
 The wrathfull Prince, & wrought her husbands peace.
 Who nathelesse not therewith satisfyde,
 His rancorous despight did not releasse,
 Ne secretly from thought of fell reuenge surceasse.

For all that night, the whyles the Prince did rest
 In carelesse couch, not weeting what was ment,
 He watcht in close awayt with weapons prest,
 Willing to worke his villenous intent
 On him, that had so shamefully him shent:
 Yet durst he not for very cowardize
 Effect the same, whylest all the night was spent.
 The morrow next the Prince did early rize,
 And passed forth, to follow his first enterprize.

Cant. VII.

Turpine is bafful, his two knights doe gaine their treasons meed, Fayre Mirabellies punishment for loues disdain decreed.

Like as the gentle hart it selfe bewrayes,
In doing gentle deedes with franke delight,
Euen so the baser mind it selfe displays,
In cancred malice and reuengefull spight.
For to maligne, t'enuie, t'vse shifting slight,
Be arguments of a vile donghill mind,
Which what it dare not doe by open might,
To worke by wicked treason wayes doth find,
By such discourteous deeds discovering his base kind.

That well appears in this discourteous knight,
The coward Turpine, whereof now I treat;
Who notwithstanding that in former fight
He of the Prince his life receiued late,
Yet in his mind malicious and ingrate
He gan deuize, to be aueng'd anew
For all that shame, which kindled inward hate.
Therefore so soone as he was out of vew,
Himselfe in hast he arm'd, and did him fast pursew.

Well did he tract his steps, as he did ryde,
Yet would not neare approach in daungers eye,
But kept aloofe for dread to be descryde,
Vntill fit time and place he mote espy,

Where

Where he mote worke him scath and villeny.
 At last he met two knights to him vnknowne,
 The which were arm'd both agreeably,
 And both combynd, what euer chaunce were blowne,
 Betwixt them to diuide, and each to make his owne.

To whom false Turpine comming courteously,
 To cloke the mischief, which he inly ment,
 Gan to complaine of great discourtesie,
 Which a straunge knight, that neare afore him went,
 Had doen to him, and his deare Ladie shent:
 Which if they would afford him ayde at need
 For to auenge, in time conuenient,
 They should accomplish both a knightly deed,
 And for their paines obtaine of him a goodly meed.

The knights beleeu'd, that all he sayd, was trew,
 And being fresh and full of youthly spright,
 Were glad to heare of that aduenture new,
 In which they mote make triall of their might,
 Which neuer yet they had approu'd in fight;
 And eke desirous of the offred meed,
 Said then the one of them; where is that wight,
 The which hath doen to thee this wrongfull deed,
 That we may it auenge, and punish him with speed?

He rides (said Turpine) there not farre afore,
 With a wyld man soft footing by his syde,
 That if ye list to haste a litle more,
 Ye may him ouertake in timely tyde:
 Estfoones they pricked forth with forward pryde,
 And ere that litle while they ridden had,
 The gentle Prince not farre away they spyde,
 Ryding a softly pace with portance sad,
 Deuizing of his loue more, then of daunger drad.

Then one of them aloud vnto him cryde,
 Bidding him turne againe, false traytour knight,
 Foule womanwronger, for he him defyde.
 With that they both at once with equall spight
 Did bend their speares, and both with equall might Against him ran; but th'one did misse his marke,
 And being carried with his force forthright,
 Glaunst swiftly by; like to that heavenly sparke,
 Which glyding through the ayre lights all the heuens (darke.

But th'other ayming better, did him finite
 Full in the shield, with so impetuous powre,
 That all his lance in peeces shiuered quite,
 And scattered all about, fell on the flowre.
 But the stout Prince, with much more steddý stowre
 Full on his beuer did him strike so sore,
 That the cold steele through piercing, did deuowre
 His vitall breath, and to the ground him bore,
 Where still he bathed lay in his owne bloody gore.

As when a cast of Faulcons make their flight
 At an Herneshaw, that lyes aloft on wing,
 The whyles they strike at him with heedlesse might,
 The warie foule his bill doth backward wring;
 On which the first, whose force her first doth bring,
 Her selfe quite through the bodie doth engore,
 And falleth downe to ground like senselesse thing,
 But th'other not so swift, as she before,
 Fayles of her soufe, and passing by doth hurt no more.

By this the other, which was passed by,
 Himselfe recouering, was return'd to fight,
 Where when he saw his fellow lifelesse ly,
 He much was daunted with so dismall sight,
 Yet

Yet nought abating of his former spight,
 Let driue at him with so malicious mynd,
 As if he would haue passed through him quight:
 But the steele-head no stedfast hold could fynd,
 But glauncing by, deceiu'd him of that he desynd.

Not so the Prince: for his well learned speare
 Tooke surer hould, and from his horses backe
 About a launces length him forth did beare,
 And gainst the cold hard earth so sore him strake,
 That all his bones in peeces nigh he brake.
 Where seeing him so lie, he left his steed,
 And to him leaping, vengeance thought to take
 Of him, for all his former follies meed,
 With flaming sword in hand his terror more to breed.

The fearefull swayne beholding death so nie,
 Cryde out aloud for mercie him to saue;
 In lieu whereof he would to him descric,
 Great treason to him meant, his life to reauē.
 The Prince soone hearkned, and his life forgauē.
 Then thus said he, There is a straunger knight,
 The which for promise of great meed, vs draue
 To this attempt, to wreake his hid despight,
 For that himselfe thereto did want sufficient might.

The Prince much mused at such villenie,
 And sayd; Now sure ye well haue earn'd your meed,
 For th'one is dead, and th'other soone shall die,
 Vnlesse to me thou hether bring with speed
 The wretch, that hyr'd you to this wicked deed,
 He glad of life, and willing eke to wreake
 The guilt on him, which did this mischiefe breed,
 Swore by his sword, that neither day nor weeke
 He would surceasse, but him, where so he were, would (seeke.

So vp he rose, and forth streight way he went
 Backe to the place, where Turpine late he lore;
 There he him found in great astonishment,
 To see him so bedight with bloodie gore,
 And griesly wounds that him appalled sore.
 Yet thus at length he said, how now Sir knight?
 What meaneth this, which here I see before?
 How fortuneth this foule vncomely plight,
 So different from that, which earst ye seem'd in sight?

Perdie (said he) in euill houre it fell,
 That euer I for meed did vndertake
 So hard a taske, as life for hyre to sell;
 The which I earst aduentur'd for your sake.
 Witnesse the wounds, and this wyde bloudie lake,
 Which ye may see yet all about me steeme.
 Therefore now yeeld, as ye did promise make,
 My due reward, the which right well I deeme
 I yearded haue, that life so dearely did redeeme.

But where then is (quoth he halfe wrothfully)
 Where is the bootie, which therefore I bought,
 That cursed caytiue, my strong enemy,
 That recreant knight, whose hated life I fought?
 And where is eke your friend, which halfe it ought?
 He lyes (said he) vpon the cold bare ground,
 Slayne of that errant knight, with whom he fought;
 Whom afterwards my selfe with many a wound
 Did slay againe, as ye may see there in the stound.

Thereof false Turpin was full glad and faine,
 And needs with him streight to the place would ryde,
 Where he him selfe might see his foeman slaine;
 For else his feare could not be satisfyde.

So

So as they rode, he saw the way all dyde
 With streames of bloud; which tracting by the traile,
 Ere long they came, whereas in euill tyde
 That other swayne, like ashes deadly pale,
 Lay in the lap of death, rewing his wretched bale.

Much did the Crauen seeme to mone his case,
 That for his sake his deare life had forgone;
 And him bewayling with affection base,
 Did counterfeit kind pittie, where was none:
 For wheres no courage, theeres no ruth nor mone.
 Thence passing forth, not farre away he found,
 Whereas the Prince himselfe lay all alone,
 Loosely displayd vpon the grassie ground,
 Possessed of sweete sleepe, that luld him soft in swound.

Wearie of trauell in his former fight,
 He there in shade himselfe had layd to rest,
 Hauing his armes and warlike things vndight,
 Fearelesse of foes that mote his peace molest;
 The whyles his saluage page, that wont be prest,
 Was wandred in the wood another way,
 To doe some thing, that seemed to him best,
 The whyles his Lord in siluer slomber lay,
 Like to the Euening starre adorn'd with dewy ray.

Whom when as Turpin saw so loosely layd,
 He weened well, that he in deed was dead,
 Like as that other knight to him had sayd:
 But when he nigh approcht, he mote aread
 Plaine signes in him of life and liuelihed.
 Whereat much grieu'd against that straunger knight,
 That him too light of credence did mislead,
 He would haue backe retyred from that sight,
 That was to him on earth the deadliest despight.

But that same knight would not once let him start,
 But plainely gan to him declare the case
 Of all his mischief, and late lucklesse smart;
 How both he and his fellow there in place
 Were vanquished, and put to foule disgrace,
 And how that he in lieu of life him lent,
 Had vow'd vnto the victor, him to trace
 And follow through the world, where so he went,
 Till that he him deliuered to his punishment.

He therewith much abashed and affrayd,
 Began to tremble euey limbe and vaine;
 And softly whispering him, entyrelly prayd,
 T'aduize him better, then by such a traine
 Him to betray vnto a straunger swaine:
 Yet rather counfeld him contrarywise,
 Sith he likewise did wrong by him sustaine,
 To ioyne with him and vengeance to deuize,
 Whylest time did offer meanes him sleeping to surprize.

Nathelesse for all his speach, the gentle knight
 Would not be tempted to such villenie,
 Regarding more his faith, which he did plight,
 All were it to his mortall enemie,
 Then to entrap him by false treacherie:
 Great shame in lieges blood to be embrew'd.
 Thus whylest they were debating diuerflie,
 The Saluage forth out of the wood issew'd
 Backe to the place, whereas his Lord he sleeping vew'd.

There when he saw those two so neare him stand,
 He doubted much what mote their meaning bee,
 And throwing downe his load out of his hand,
 To weet great store of forrest frute, which hee

Had for his food late gathered from the tree,
 Himselfe vnto his weapon he betooke,
 That was an oaken plant, which lately hee
 Rent by the root; which he so sternely shooke,
 That like an hazell wand, it quiuered and quooke.

Whereat the Prince awaking, when he spyde
 The traytour Turpin with that other knight,
 He started vp, and snatching neare his syde
 His trustie sword, the seruant of his might,
 Like a fell Lyon leaped to him light,
 And his left hand vpon his collar layd.
 Therewith the cowheard deaded with affright,
 Fell flat to ground, ne word vnto him sayd,
 But holding vp his hands, with silence mercie prayd.

But he so full of indignation was,
 That to his prayer nought he would incline,
 But as he lay vpon the humbled gras,
 His foot he set on his vile necke, in signe
 Of seruile yoke, that nobler harts repine.
 Then letting him arise like abiect thrall,
 He gan to him obiect his haynous crime,
 And to reuile, and rate, and recreant call,
 And lastly to despoyle of knightly bannerall.

And after all, for greater infamie,
 He by the heeles him hung vpon a tree,
 And baffuld so, that all which passed by,
 The picture of his punishment might see,
 And by the like ensample warned bee,
 How euer they through treason doe trespassse.
 But turne we now backe to that Ladie free,
 Whom late we left ryding vpon an Assse,
 Led by a Carle and foole, which by her side did passe.

She was a Ladie of great dignitie,
 And lifted vp to honorable place,
 Famous through all the land of Faerie,
 Though of meane parentage and kindred base,
 Yet deckt with wondrous giftes of natures grace,
 That all men did her person much admire,
 And praise the feature of her goodly face,
 The beames whereof did kindle louely fire
 In th'harts of many a knight, and many a gentle squire.

But she thereof grew proud and insolent,
 That none she worthie thought to be her fere,
 But scornd them all, that loue vnto her ment;
 Yet was she lou'd of many a worthy pere,
 Vnworthy she to be belou'd so dere,
 That could not weigh of worthinesse aright.
 For beautie is more glorious bright and clere,
 The more it is admir'd of many a wight,
 And noblest she, that serued is of noblest knight.

But this coy Damzell thought contrariwize,
 That such proud looks would make her prayesd more;
 And that the more she did all loue despize,
 The more would wretched louers her adore.
 What cared she, who sighed for her sore,
 Or who did wayle or watch the wearie night?
 Let them that list, their lucklesse lot deplore;
 She was borne free, not bound to any wight,
 And so would euer liue, and loue her owne delight.

Through such her stubborne stifnesse, and hard hart,
 Many a wretch, for want of remedie,
 Did languish long in lifeconsuming smart,
 And at the last through dreary dolour die:

Whylest

Whylest she, the Ladie of her libertie,
 Did boast her beautie had such soueraine might,
 That with the onely twinckle of her eye,
 She could or saue, or spill, whom she would hight.
 What could the Gods doe more, but doe it more aright?

But loe the Gods, that mortall follies vew,
 Did worthily reuenge this maydens pride;
 And nought regarding her so goodly hew,
 Did laugh at her, that many did deride,
 Whylest she did weepe, of no man mercifide.
 For on a day, when Cupid kept his court,
 As he is wont at each Saint Valenteide,
 Vnto the which all louers doeresort,
 That of their loues successe they there may make report.

It fortun'd then, that when the roules were red,
 In which the names of all loues folke were fyled,
 That many there were missing, which were ded,
 Or kept in bands, or from their loues exyled,
 Or by some other violence despoyled.
 Which when as Cupid heard, he wexed wroth,
 And doubting to be wronged, or beguyled,
 He bad his eyes to be vnblindfold both,
 That he might see his men, and muster them by oth.

Then found he many missing of his crew,
 Which wont doe suit and seruice to his might;
 Of whom what was becomen, no man knew.
 Therefore a Iurie was impaneld streight,
 T'enquire of them, whether by force, or sleight,
 Or their owne guilt, they were away conuayd.
 To whom foule Infamie, and fell Despight
 Gaue euidence, that they were all betrayd,
 And murdred cruelly by a rebellious Mayd.

Fayre Mirabella was her name, whereby
 Of all those crymes she there indited was:
 All which when Cupid heard, he by and by
 In great displeasure, wild a Capias
 Should issue forth, t'attach that scornefull lasse.
 The warrant straight was made, and therewithall
 A Baylieffe errant forth in post did passe,
 Whom they by name there Portamore did call;
 He which doth summon louers to loues iudgement hall.

The damzell was attacht, and shortly brought
 Vnto the barre, whereas she was arrayned:
 But she thereto nould plead, nor answere ought Euen for stubborne pride, which her restrayned.
 So iudgement past, as is by law ordayned
 In cases like, which when at last she saw,
 Her stubborne hart, which loue before disdayned,
 Gan stoupe, and falling downe with humble awe,
 Cryde mercie, to abate the extremitie of law.

The sonne of Venus who is myld by kynd,
 But where he is prouokt with peeuishnesse,
 Vnto her prayers piteously enclynd,
 And did the rigour of his doome repressse;
 Yet not so freely, but that nathelesse
 He vnto her a penance did impose,
 Which was, that through this worlds wyde wildernes
 She wander should in companie of those,
 Till she had sau'd so many loues, as she did lose.

So now she had bene wandring two whole yeares
 Throughout the world, in this vncomely case,
 Wasting her goodly hew in heauie teares,
 And her good dayes in dolorous disgrace:

Yet had she not in all these two yeares space,
 Saued but two, yet in two yeares before,
 Through her dispiteous pride, whilest loue lackt place,
 She had destroyed two and twenty more.
 Aie me, how could her loue make half amends therefore.

And now she was vpon the weary way,
 When as the gentle Squire, with faire Serene,
 Met her in such misseeming foule array;
 The whiles that mighty man did her demeane
 With all the euill termes and cruell meane,
 That he could make; And eeke that angry foole
 Which follow'd her, with curfed hands vnclane
 Whipping her horse, did with his smarting toole
 Oft whip her dainty selfe, and much augment her doole.

Ne ought it mote auaille her to entreat
 The one or th'other, better her to vse:
 For both so wilfull were and obstinate,
 That all her piteous plaint they did refuse,
 And rather did the more her beate and bruse.
 But most the former villaine, which did lead
 Her tyreling iade, was bent her to abuse;
 Who though she were with wearinesse nigh dead,
 Yet would not let her lite, nor rest a little stead.

For he was sterne, and terrible by nature,
 And eeke of person huge and hideous,
 Exceeding much the measure of mans stature,
 And rather like a Gyant monstrous.
 For sooth he was descended of the hous
 Of those old Gyants, which did warres darraine
 Against the heauen in order battailous,
 And sib to great Orgolio, which was slaine
 By Arthur, when as Vnas Knight he did maintaine.

His lookes were dreadfull, and his fiery eies
 Like two great Beacons, glared bright and wyde,
 Glauncing askew, as if his enemies
 He scorned in his ouerweening pryde;
 And stalking stately like a Crane, did stryde
 At euery step vppon the tiptoes hie,
 And all the way he went, on euery syde
 He gaz'd about, and stared horrible,
 As if he with his lookes would all men terrifie.

He wore no armour, ne for none did care,
 As no whit dreading any liuing wight;
 But in a Iacket quilted richly rare,
 Vpon checklaton he was straungely dight,
 And on his head a roll of linnen plight,
 Like to the Mores of Malaber he wore;
 With which his locks, as blacke as pitchy night,
 Were bound about, and voyded from before,
 And in his hand a mighty yron club he bore.

This was Disdain, who led that Ladies horse
 Through thick & thin, through mountains & through Compelling her, wher she would not by force (plains,
 Haling her palfrey by the hempen raines.
 But that same foole, which most increast her paines,
 Was Scorne, who hauing in his hand a whip,
 Her therewith yirks, and still when she complains,
 The more he laughs, and does her closely quip,
 To see her fore lament, and bite her tender lip.

Whose cruell handling when that Squire beheld,
 And saw those villaines her so vildely vse,
 His gentle heart with indignation sweld,
 And could no lenger beare so great abuse,

As such a Lady so to beate and bruse;
 But to him stepping, such a stroke him lent,
 That forst him th'halter from his hand to loose,
 And maugre all his might, backe to relent:
 Else had he surely there bene slaine, or fowly shent.

The villaine wroth for greeting him so sore,
 Gathered him selfe together soone againe,
 And with his yron batton, which he bore,
 Let driue at him so dreadfully amaine,
 That for his safety he did him constraîne
 To giue him ground, and shift to euery side,
 Rather then once his burden to sustaine:
 For bootelesse thing him seemed, to abide,
 So mighty blowes, or proue the puissaunce of his pride.

Like as a Mastiffe hauing at a bay
 A saluage Bull, whose cruell hornes doe threat
 Desperate daunger, if he them assay,
 Traceth his ground, and round about doth beat,
 To spy where he may some aduauntage get;
 The whiles the beast doth rage and loudly rore,
 So did the Squire, the whiles the Carle did fret,
 And fume in his disdainefull mynd the more,
 And oftentimes by Turmagant and Mahound swore.

Nathelesse so sharpely still he him pursewd,
 That at aduauntage him at last he tooke,
 When his foote slipt (that slip he dearely rewd,)
 And with his yron club to ground him strooke;
 Where still he lay, ne out of swoune awooke,
 Till heauy hand the Carle vpon him layd,
 And bound him fast: Tho when he vp did looke,
 And saw him selfe captiu'd, he was dismayd,
 Ne powre had to withstand, ne hope of any ayd.

Then vp he made him rise, and forward fare,
 Led in a rope, which both his hands did bynd;
 Ne ought that foole for pittie did him spare,
 But with his whip him following behynd,
 Him often scourg'd, and forst his feete to fynd:
 And other whiles with bitter mockes and mowes
 He would him scorne, that to his gentle mynd
 Was much more gricuous, then the others blowes:
 Words sharply wound, but greatest griefe of scorning (growes.

The faire Serena, when she saw him fall
 Vnder that villaines club, then surely thought
 That slaine he was, or made a wretched thrall,
 And fled away with all the speede she mought,
 To seeke for safety, which long time she sought:
 And past through many perils by the way,
 Ere she againe to Calepine was brought;
 The which discourse as now I must delay,
 Till Mirabellaes fortunes I doe further say.

Canto.

Cant. VIII.

Prince Arthure ouercomes Disaame,
 Quites Mirabell from dreed:
 Serena found of Saluages,
 By Calepine is freed.

YE gentle Ladies, in whose soueraine powre
 Loue hath the glory of his kingdome left,
 And th'hearts of men, as your eternall dowre,
 In yron chaines, of liberty bereft,
 Deliuered hath into your hands by gift;
 Be well aware, how ye the same doe vse,
 That pride doe not to tyranny you list;
 Least if men you of cruelty accuse,
 He from you take that chiefedome, which ye doe abuse.

And as ye soft and tender are by kynde,
 Adorn'd with goodly gifts of beauties grace,
 So be ye soft and tender eeke in mynde;
 But cruelty and hardnesse from you chace,
 That all your other praises will deface,
 And from you turne the loue of men to hate.
 Ensamble take of Mirabellaes case,
 Who from the high degree of happy state,
 Fell into wretched woes, which she repented late.

Who after thraldome of the gentle Squire,
 Which she beheld with lamentable eye,
 Was touched with compassion entire,
 And much lamented his calamity,

That for her sake fell into misery:
 Which bootéd nought for prayers, nor for threat
 To hope for to release or mollify;
 For aye the more, that she did them entreat
 The more they him misust, and cruelly did beat.

So as they forward on their way did pas,
 Him still reuling and afflicting sore,
 They met Prince Arthure with Sir Enias,
 (That was that courteous Knight, whom he before Hauing subdew'd, yet did to life restore,)
 To whom as they approcht, they gan augment
 Their cruelty, and him to punish more,
 Scourging and haling him more vehement;
 As if it them should grieue to see his punishment.

The Squire him selfe when as he saw his Lord,
 The witnessse of his wretchednesse, in place,
 Was much asham'd, that with an hempen cord
 He like a dog was led in captiue case,
 And did his head for bashfulnesse abase,
 As loth to see, or to be seene at all:
 Shame would be hid. But whenas Enias
 Beheld two such, of two such villaines thrall,
 His manly mynde was much emmoued therewithall.

And to the Prince thus sayd; See you Sir Knight,
 The greatest shame that euer eye yet saw?
 Yond Lady and her Squire with foule despight
 Abusde, against all reason and all law,
 Without regard of pittie or of awe.
 See how they doe that Squire beat and reuile;
 See how they doe the Lady hale and draw.
 But if ye please to lend me leaue a while,
 I will them soone acquite, and both of blame assoile.

The Prince assented, and then he streight way
 Dismounting light, his shield about him threw,
 With which approching, thus he gan to say;
 Abide ye caytiue treachetours vntrew,
 That haue with treason thralld vnto you
 These two, vnworthy of your wretched bands;
 And now your crime with cruelty pursew.
 Abide, and from them lay your loathly hands;
 Or else abide the death, that hard before you stands.

The villaine stayd not aunswer to inuent,
 But with his yron club preparing way,
 His mindes sad message backe vnto him sent;
 The which descended with such dreadfull sway,
 That seemed nought the course thereof could stay:
 No more then lightening from the lofty sky.
 Ne list the Knight the powre thereof assay,
 Whose doome was death, but lightly slipping by,
 Vnwares defrauded his intended destiny.

And to requite him with the like againe,
 With his sharpe sword he fiercely at him flew,
 And strooke so strongly, that the Carle with paine
 Saued him selfe, but that he there him flew:
 Yet sau'd not so, but that the bloud it drew,
 And gaue his foe good hope of victory.
 Who therewith flesht, vpon him fet anew,
 And with the second stroke, thought certainly
 To haue supplyde the first, and paid the vsury.

But Fortune aunswerd not vnto his call;
 For as his hand was heaued vp on hight,
 The villaine met him in the middle fall,
 And with his club bet backe his brondyron bright

So forcibly, that with his owne hands might Rebeaten backe vpon him selfe againe,
 He driuen was to ground in selfe despight;
 From whence ere he recouery could gaine,
 He in his necke had set his foote with fell disdaine.

With that the foole, which did that end awayte,
 Came running in, and whilest on ground he lay,
 Laide heauy hands on him, and held so strayte,
 That downe he kept him with his scornefull sway,
 So as he could not weld him any way.
 The whiles that other villaine went about
 Him to haue bound, and thrald without delay;
 The whiles the foole did him reuile and flout,
 Threatning to yoke them tow & tame their corage stout.

As when a sturdy ploughman with his hynde
 By strength haue ouerthrowne a stubborne steare,
 They downe him hold, and fast with cords do bynde,
 Till they him force the buxome yoke to beare:
 So did these two this Knight oft tug and teare.
 Which when the Prince beheld, there standing by,
 He left his lofty steede to aide him neare,
 And buckling soone him selfe, gan fiercely fly
 Vppon that Carle, to saue his friend from ieopardy.

The villaine leauing him vnto his mate
 To be captiu'd, and handled as he list,
 Himselfe addrest vnto this new debate,
 And with his club him all about so blist,
 That he which way to turne him scarcely wist:
 Sometimes aloft he layd, sometimes alow;
 Now here, now there, and oft him neare he mist;
 So doubtfully, that hardly one could know
 Whether more wary were to giue or ward the blow.

But yet the Prince so well enured was
 With such huge strokes, approved oft in fight,
 That way to them he gaue forth right to pas.
 Ne would endure the daunger of their might,
 But wayt aduantage, when they downe did light.
 At last the caytiue after long discourse,
 When all his strokes he saw auoyded quite,
 Resolued in one t'assemble all his force,
 And make one end of him without ruth or remorse.

His dreadfull hand he heaued vp aloft,
 And with his dreadfull instrument of yre,
 Thought sure haue pownded him to powder soft,
 Or deepe emboweld in the earth entyre:
 But Fortune did not with his will conspire.
 For ere his stroke attayned his intent,
 The noble childe preuenting his desire,
 Vnder his club with wary boldnesse went,
 And sinote him on the knee, that neuer yet was bent.

It neuer yet was bent, ne bent it now,
 Albe the stroke so strong and puissant were,
 That seem'd a marble pillour it could bow,
 But all that leg, which did his body beare,
 It crackt throughout, yet did no bloud appeare;
 So as it was vnable to support
 So huge a burden on such broken geare,
 But fell to ground, like to a lumpe of durt,
 Whence he assayd to rise, but could not for his hurt.

Eftsoones the Prince to him full nimblely stept,
 And least he should recouer foote againe,
 His head meant from his shoulders to haue swept.
 Which when the Lady saw, she cryde amaine;

Stay stay, Sir Knight, for loue of God abstaine,
 For that vnwares ye weetelesse doe intend;
 Slay not that Carle, though worthy to be flaine:
 For more on him doth then him selfe depend;
 My life will by his death haue lamentable end.

He staide his hand according her desire,
 Yet nathemore him suffred to arize;
 But still suppressing gan of her inquire,
 What meaning mote those vncouth words comprize,
 That in that villaines health her safety lies:
 That, were no might in man, nor heart in Knights,
 Which durst her dreaded reskue enterprize,
 Yet heauens them selues, that fauour feeble rights,
 Would for it selfe redresse, and punish such despights.

Then bursting forth in teares, which gushed fast
 Like many water streames, a while she stayd;
 Till the sharpe passion being ouerpast,
 Her tongue to her restord, then thus she sayd;
 Nor heauens, nor men can me most wretched mayd
 Deliuer from the doome of my desart,
 The which the God of loue hath on me layd,
 And damned to endure this direfull smart,
 For penance of my proud and hard rebellious hart.

In prime of youthly yeares, when first the flowre
 Of beauty gan to bud, and bloosme delight,
 And nature me endu'd with plenteous dowre,
 Of all her gifts, that pleasde each liuing sight,
 I was belou'd of many a gentle Knight,
 And sued and sought with all the seruice dew:
 Full many a one for me deepe groand and sight,
 And to the dore of death for sorrow drew,
 Complaining out on me, that would not on them rew.

But let them loue that list, or liue or die;
 Me list not die for any louers doole:
 Ne list me leaue my loued libertie,
 To pittie him that list to play the foole:
 To loue my selfe I learned had in schoole.
 Thus I triumphed long in louers paine,
 And sitting carelesse on the scorners stoole,
 Did laugh at those that did lament and plaine:
 But all is now repayd with interest againe.

For loe the winged God, that woundeth harts,
 Cause me be called to accompt therefore,
 And for reuengement of those wrongfull smart,
 Which I to others did inflict afore,
 Addeem'd me to endure this pena unce fore;
 That in this wize, and this vnmeete array,
 With these two lewd companions, and no more,
Disdaine and Scorne, I through the world should stray,
 Till I haue sau'd so many, as I earst did slay.

Certes (sayd then the Prince) the God is iust,
 That taketh vengeaunce of his peoples spoile.
 For were no law in loue, but all that lust,
 Might them oppresse, and painefully turmoile,
 His kingdome would continue but a while.
 But tell me Lady, wherefore doe you beare
 This bottle thus before you with such toile,
 And eeke this wallet at your backe arreare,
 That for these Carles to carry much more comely were?

Here in this bottle (sayd the sory Mayd)
 I put the teares of my contrition,
 Till to the brim I haue it full defrayd:
 And in this bag which I behinde me don,

I put repentaunce for things past and gon.
 Yet is the bottle leake, and bag so torne,
 That all which I put in, fals out anon;
 And is behinde me trodden downe of Scorne,
 Who mocketh all my paine, & laughs the more I mourn.

The Infant hearkned wisely to her tale,
 And wondred much at Cupids iudg'ment wise,
 That could so meekly make proud hearts auale,
 And wreake him selfe on them, that him despise.
 Then suffred he Disdaine vp to arise,
 Who was not able vp him selfe to reare,
 By meanes his leg through his late luckelesse prise,
 Was crackt in twaine, but by his foolish feare
 Was holpen vp, who him supported standing neare.

But being vp, he lookt againe aloft,
 As if he neuer had receiued fall;
 And with sterne eye-browes stared at him oft,
 As if he would haue daunted him with all:
 And standing on his tiptoes, to seeme tall,
 Downe on his golden feete he often gazed,
 As if such pride the other could apall;
 Who was so far from being ought amazed,
 That he his lookes despised, and his boast dispraized.

Then turning backe vnto that captiue thrall,
 Who all this while stood there beside them bound,
 Vnwillig to be knowne, or seene at all,
 He from those bands weend him to haue vnwound.
 But when approching neare, he plainely found,
 It was his owne true groome, the gentle Squire,
 He thereat wext exceedingly astound,
 And him did oft embrace, and oft admire,
 Ne could with seeing satisfie his great desire.

Meane while the Saluage man, when he beheld
 That huge great foole oppressing th'other Knight,
 Whom with his weight vnweldy downe he held,
 He flew vpon him, like a greedy kight
 Vnto some carrion offered to his sight,
 And downe him plucking, with his nayles and teeth
 Gan him to hale, and teare, and scratch, and bite;
 And from him taking his owne whip, therewith
 So sore him scourgeth, that the bloud downe followeth.

And sure I weene, had not the Ladies cry
 Procur'd the Prince his cruell hand to stay,
 He would with whipping, him haue done to dye:
 But being checkt, he did abstaine streight way,
 And let him rise. Then thus the Prince gan say;
 Now Lady sith your fortunes thus dispose,
 That if ye list haue liberty, ye may,
 Vnto your selfe I freely leaue to chose,
 Whether I shall you leaue, or from these villaines lose.

Ah nay Sir Knight (sayd she) it may not be,
 But that I needes must by all meanes fulfill
 This penaunce, which enioyned is to me,
 Least vnto me betide a greater ill;
 Yet no lesse thanks to you for your good will.
 So humbly taking leaue, she turnd aside,
 But Arthur with the rest, went onward still
 On his first quest, in which did him betide
 A great aduenture, which did him from them deuide.

But first it falleth me by course to tell
 Of faire Serena, who as earst you heard,
 When first the gentle Squire at variaunce fell
 With those two Carles, fled fast away, afeard

Of villany to be to her inferd:
 So fresh the image of her former dread,
 Yet dwelling in her eye, to her appeard,
 That euery foote did tremble, which did tread,
 And euery body two, and two she foure did read.

Through hils & dales, through bushes & through breres
 Long thus she fled, till that at last she thought
 Her selfe now past the perill of her feares.
 Then looking round about, and seeing nought.
 Which doubt of daunger to her offer mought,
 She from her palfrey lighted on the plaine,
 And sitting downe, her selfe a while bethought
 Of her long trauell and turmoyleing paine;
 And often did of ioue, and oft of lucke complaine.

And euermore she blamed Calepine,
 The good Sir Calepine, her owne true Knight,
 As th'onely author of her wofull tinc:
 For being of his loue to her so light,
 As her to leaue in such a piteous plight.
 Yet neuer Turtle truer to his make,
 Then he was tride vnto his Lady bright:
 Who all this while endured for her sake,
 Great perill of his life, and restlessse paines did take.

Tho when as all her plaints, she had displayd,
 And well disburdened her engriued brest,
 Vpon the grasse her selfe adowne she layd;
 Where being tyrde with trauell, and opprest
 With sorrow, she betooke her selfe to rest.
 There whilest in Morpheus bosome safe she lay,
 Fearelesse of ought, that mote her peace molest,
 False Fortune did her safety betray,
 Vnto a straunge mischaunce, that menac'd her decay.

In these wylde deserts, where she now abode,
 There dwelt a saluage nation, which did liue
 Of stealth and spoile, and making nightly rode Into their neighbours borders; ne did giue
 Them selues to any trade, as for to driue
 The painefull plough, or cattell for to breed,
 Or by aduentrous marchandize to thriue;
 But on the labours of poore men to feed,
 And serue their owne necessities with others need.

Thereto they vsde one most accursed order,
 To eate the flesh of men, whom they mote fynde,
 And straungers to deuoure, which on their border
 Were brought by errour, or by wreckfull wynde:
 A monstrous crueltie gainst course of kynde.
 They towards euening wandring euery way,
 To seeke for booty, came by fortune blynde,
 Whereas this Lady, like a sheepe astray,
 Now drowned in the depth of sleepe all fearelesse lay.

Soone as they spide her, Lord what gladfull glee
 They made amongst them selues; but when her face
 Like the faire yuory shining they did see,
 Each gan his fellow solace and embrace,
 For ioy of such good hap by heavenly grace.
 Then gan they to deuize what course to take:
 Whether to slay her there vpon the place,
 Or suffer her out of her sleepe to wake,
 And then her eate attonce; or many meales to make.

The best aduizement was of bad, to let her
 Sleepe out her fill, without encomberment:
 For sleepe they sayd would make her battill better.
 Then when she wakt, they all gaue one consent,

That since by grace of God she there was sent,
 Vnto their God they would her sacrificize,
 Whose share, her guiltlesse bloud they would present,
 But of her dainty flesh they did deuize
 To make a common feast, & feed with gurmandize.

So round about her they them selues did place
 Vpon the grasse, and diuersely dispose,
 As each thought best to spend the lingring space.
 Some with their eyes the daintest morsels chose;
 Some praise her paps, some praise her lips and nose;
 Some whet their kniues, and strip their elboes bare:
 The Priest him selfe a garland doth compose
 Of finest flowres, and with full busie care
 His bloody vessels wath, and holy fire prepare.

The Damzell wakes, then all attonce vpstart,
 And round about her flocke, like many flies,
 Whooping, and hallowing on euery part,
 As if they would haue rent the brasen skies.
 Which when she sees with ghastly griefful eies,
 Her heart does quake, and deadly pallid hew
 Benumbs her cheekes: Then out aloud she cries,
 Where none is nigh to heare, that will her rew,
 And rends her golden locks, and snowy breasts embrew.

But all bootes not: they hands vpon her lay;
 And first they spoile her of her iewls deare,
 And afterwards of all her rich array;
 The which amongst them they in peeces teare,
 And of the pray each one a part doth beare.
 Now being naked, to their sordid eyes
 The goodly treasures of nature appeare:
 Which as they view with lustfull fantasyes,
 Each wisheth to him selfe, and to the rest enuyes.

Her yuorie necke, her alablaster brest,
 Her paps, which like white silken pillowes were,
 For loue in soft delight thereon to rest;
 Her tender sides her bellie white and clere,
 Which like an Altar did it selfe vprere,
 To offer sacrifice diuine thereon;
 Her goodly thighes, whose glorie did appeare
 Like a triumphall Arch, and thereupon
 The spoiles of Princes hang'd, which were in battel won.

Those daintie parts, the dearlings of delight,
 Which mote not be prophan'd of common eyes,
 Those villeins vew'd with loose lasciuious sight,
 And closely tempted with their craftie spyes;
 And some of them gan mongst themselues deuize,
 Thereof by force to take their beastly pleasure.
 But them the Priest rebuking, did aduize
 To dare not to pollute so sacred treasure,
 Vow'd to the gods: religiō held euen the cues in measure.

So being stayd, they her from thence directed
 Vnto a litle groue not farre asyde,
 In which an altar shortly they erected,
 To slay her on. And now the Euentyde
 His brode black wings had through the heauenswyde
 By this dispred, that was the tyme ordayned
 For such a dismall deed, their guilt to hyde:
 Of few greene turfes an altar soone they fayned,
 And deckt it all with flowres, which they nigh hand ob-(tayned.

Tho when as all things readie were aright,
 The Damzell was before the altar set,
 Being alreadie dead with fearefull fright.
 To whom the Priest with naked armes full net

Approching nigh, and murdrous knife well whet,
 Gan mutter close a certaine secret charme,
 With other diuelish ceremonies met:
 Which doen he gan aloft t'aduance his arme,
 Whereat they shouted all, and made a loud alarme.

Then gan the bagpipes and the hornes to shrill,
 And shriek aloud, that with the peoples voyce
 Confused; did the ayre with terror fill,
 And made the wood to tremble at the noyce:
 The whyles she wayld, the more they did reioyce.
 Now mote ye vnderstand that to this groue
 Sir Calepine by chaunce, more then by choyce,
 The selfe same euening fortune hether droue,
 As he to seeke Serena through the woods did roue.

Long had he sought her, and through many a soyle
 Had traueled still on foot in heauie armes,
 Ne ought was tyred with his endlesse toyles,
 Ne ought was feared of his certaine harmes:
 And now all weetlesse of the wretched stormes,
 In which his loue was lost, he slept full fast,
 Till being waked with these loud alarmes,
 He lightly started vp like one aghast,
 And catching vp his arms streight to the noise forth past.

There by th'vncertaine glims of starry night,
 And by the twinkling of their sacred fire,
 He mote perceiue a litle dawning sight
 Of all, which there was doing in that quire:
 Mongst whom a woman spoyle of all attire
 He spyde, lamenting her vnluckie strife,
 And groning sore from grieued hart entire;
 Estsoones he saw one with a naked knife
 Readie to launch her brest, and let out loued life.

With

With that he thrusts into the thickest throng,
 And euen as his right hand adowne descends,
 He him preuenting, layes on earth along,
 And sacrificzeth to th'infernall feends.
 Then to the rest his wrathfull hand he bends,
 Of whom he makes such hauocke and such hew,
 That swarmes of damned soules to hell he sends:
 The rest that scape his sword and death eschew,
 Fly like a flocke of doues before a Faulcons vew,

From them returning to that Ladie backe,
 Whom by the Altar he doth sitting find,
 Yet fearing death, and next to death the lacke
 Of clothes to couer, what they ought by kind,
 He first her hands beginneth to vnbind;
 And then to question of her present woe;
 And afterwards to cheare with speaches kind.
 But she for nought that he could say or doe,
 One word durst speake, or answere him awhit thereto.

So inward shame of her vncomely case
 She did conceiue, through care of womanhood,
 That though the night did couer her disgrace,
 Yet she in so vnwomanly a mood,
 Would not bewray the state in which she stood.
 So all that night to him vnknown she past.
 But day, that doth discouer bad and good,
 Ensewing, made her knownen to him at last:
 The end whereof Ile keepe vntill another cast.

Cant. IX.

Calidore hostes with Melibœ and loues fayre Pasiorell; Coridon enuies him, yet he for ill rewards him well.

Now turne againe my teme thou iolly swayne,
Backe to the furrow which I lately left;
I lately left a furrow, one or twayne
Vnplough'd, the which my coulter hath not cleft:
Yet seem'd the soyle both fayre and frutesfull est,
As I it past, that were too great a shame,
That so rich frute should be from vs bereft;
Besides the great dishonour and defame,
Which should befall to Calidores immortall name.

Great trauell hath the gentle Calidore
And toyle endured, sith I left him last
Sewing the Blatant beast, which I forbore
To finish then, for other present hast.
Full many pathes and perils he hath past, (plaines
Through hils, through dales, through forests, & through
In that same quest which fortune on him cast,
Which he atchieued to his owne great gaines,
Reaping eternall glorie of his restlesse paines.

So sharply he the Monster did pursew,
That day nor night he suffred him to rest,
Ne rested he himselfe but natures dew,
For dread of daunger, not to be redrest,

If he for slouth forslackt so famous quest,
 Him first from court he to the citties coursed,
 And from the citties to the townes him prest,
 And from the townes into the countrie forsed,
 And from the country back to priuate farmes he scorsed.

From thence into the open fields he fled,
 Whereas the Heardes were keeping of their neat,
 And shepheards singing to their flockes, that fed,
 Laves off sweete loue and youthes delightfull heat:
 Him thether eke for all his fearefull threat
 He followed fast, and chaced him so nie,
 That to the folds, where sheepe at night doe seat,
 And to the litle cots, where shepherds lie
 In winters wrathfull time, he forced him to flie.

There on a day as he pursew'd the chace,
 He chaunst to spy a sort of shepheard groomes,
 Playing on pypes, and caroling apace,
 The whyles their beasts there in the budded broomes
 Beside them fed, and nipt the tender bloomes:
 For other worldly wealth they cared nought.
 To whom Sir Calidore yet sweating comes,
 And them to tell him courteously besought,
 If such a beast they saw, which he had thether brought.

They answer'd him, that no such beast they saw,
 Nor any wicked feend, that mote offend
 Their happie flockes, nor daunger to them draw:
 But if that such there were (as none they kend)
 They prayd high God them farre from them to send.
 Then one of them him seeing so to sweat,
 After his rusticke wife, that well he weend,
 Offred him drinke, to quenach his thirstie heat,
 And if he hungry were, him offred eke to eat.

The knight was nothing nice, where was no need,
 And tooke their gentle offer : so adowne
 They prayd him sit, and gaue him for to feed
 Such homely what, as serues the simple clowne,
 That doth despise the dainties of the towne.
 Tho hauing fed his fill, he there besyde
 Saw a faire damzell, which did weare a crowne
 Of sundry flowres, with silken ribbands tyde.
 Yclad in home-made greene that her owne hands had (dyde.

Vpon a litle hillocke she was placed
 Higher then all the rest, and round about
 Environ'd with a girland, goodly graced,
 Of louely lasses, and them all without
 The lustie shepheard swaynes fate in a rout,
 The which did pype and sing her prayles dew,
 And oft reioyce, and oft for wonder shout,
 As if some miracle of heauenly hew
 Were downe to them descended in that earthly vew.

And soothly sure she was full fayre of face,
 And perfectly well shapt in euery lim,
 Which she did more augment with modest grace,
 And comely carriage of her count'nance trim,
 That all the rest like lesser lamps did dim :
 Who her admiring as some heauenly wight,
 Did for their soueraine goddesse her esteeme,
 And caroling her name both day and night,
 The fayrest Pastorella her by name did hight.

Ne was there heard, ne was there shepherds swayne
 But her did honour, and eke many a one
 Burnt in her loue, and with sweet pleasing payne
 Full many a night for her did sigh and grone :

But

But most of all the shepheard Coridon
 For her did languish, and his deare life spend;
 Yet neither she for him, nor other none
 Did care a whit, ne any liking lend:
 Though meane her lot, yet higher did her mind ascend.

Her whyles Sir Calidore there vewed well,
 And markt her rare demeanure, which him seemed
 So farre the meane of shepheards to excell,
 As that he in his mind her worthy deemed,
 To be a Princes Paragone esteemed,
 He was vnwares surprisd in subtile bands
 Of the blynd boy, ne thence could be redeemed
 By any skill out of his cruell hands,
 Caught like the bird, which gazing still on others stands.

So stood he still long gazing thereupon,
 Ne any will had thence to moue away,
 Although his quest were farre afore him gon;
 But after he had fed, yet did he stay,
 And sate there still, vntill the flying day
 Was farre forth spent, discoursing diuersly
 Of sundry things, as fell to worke delay;
 And euermore his speach he did apply
 To th'heards, but meant them to the damzels fantazy.

By this the moystie night approching fast,
 Her deawy humour gan on th'earth to shed,
 That warn'd the shepheards to their homes to hast
 Their tender flocks, now being fully fed,
 For feare of wetting them before their bed;
 Then came to them a good old aged syre,
 Whose siluer lockes bedeckt his beard and hed,
 With shepheards hooke in hand, and fit attyre,
 That wild the damzell rise; the day did now expyre.

He was to weet by common voice esteemed
 The father of the fayrest Pastorell,
 And of her selfe in very deepe so deemed;
 Yet was not so, but as old stories tell
 Found her by fortune, which to him befell,
 In th'open fields an Infant left alone,
 And taking vp brought home, and noursed well
 As his owne chyld; for other he had none,
 That she in tract of time accompted was his owne.

She at his bidding meekely did arise,
 And streight vnto her litle flocke did fare:
 Then all the rest about her rose likewise,
 And each his sunorie sheepe with seuerall care
 Gathered together, and them homeward bare:
 Whylest euerie one with helping hands did striue
 Amongst themselues, and did their labours share,
 To helpe faire Pastorella, home to driue
 Her fleecie flocke; but Coridon most helpe did giue.

But Melibæe (so hight that good old man)
 Now seeing Calidore left all alone,
 And night arriued hard at hand, began
 Him to inuite vnto his simple home;
 Which though it were a cottage clad with lome,
 And all things therein meane, yet better so
 To lodge, then in the saluage fields to come.
 The knight full gladly soone agreed thereto,
 Being his harts owne with; and home with him did go.

There he was welcom'd of that honest syre,
 And of his aged Beldame homely well;
 Who him besought him selfe to disattyre,
 And rest him selfe, till supper time befell.

By which home came the fayrest Pastorell,
 After her flocke she in their fold had tyde,
 And supper readie dight, they to it fell
 With small adoe, and nature satisfyde,
 The which doth litle craue contented to abyde.

Tho when they had their hunger flaked well,
 And the fayre mayd the table ta'ne away,
 The gentle knight, as he that did excell
 In courtesie, and well could doe and say,
 For so great kindnesse as he found that day,
 Gan greatly thanke his host and his good wife;
 And drawing thence his speach another way,
 Gan highly to commend the happie life,
 Which Shepherds lead, without debate or bitter strife.

How much (sayd he) more happie is the state,
 In which ye father here doe dwell at ease,
 Leading a life so free and fortunate,
 From all the tempests of these worldly seas,
 Which trosse the rest in dangerous disease,
 Where warres, and wreckes, and wicked enmitie
 Doe them afflict, which no man can appease,
 That certes I your happinesse enuie,
 And wish my lot were plapt in such felicitie.

Surely my sonne (then answer'd he againe)
 If happie, then it is in this intent,
 That hauing small, yet doe I not complaine
 Of want, ne wish for more it to augment,
 But doe my selfe, with that I haue, content;
 So taught of nature, which doth litle need
 Of forreine helpes to lifes due nourishment:
 The fields my food, my flocke my rayment breed;
 No better doe I weare, no better doe I feed.

Therefore I doe not any one enuy,
 Nor am enuyde of any one therefore;
 They that haue much, feare much to loose thereby,
 And store of cares doth follow riches store.
 The litle that I haue, growes dayly more
 Without my care, but onely to attend it;
 My lambes doe euery yeare increase their score,
 And my flockes father daily doth amend it.
 What haue I, but to praise th' Almighty, that doth send it?

To them, that list, the worlds gay shoues I leaue,
 And to great ones such follies doe forgiue,
 Which oft through pride do their owne perill weaue,
 And through ambition downe themselues doe driue
 To sad decay, that might contented liue.
 Me no such cares nor combrous thoughts offend,
 Ne once my minds vnmoued quiet griue,
 But all the night in siluer sleepe I spend,
 And all the day, to what I list, I doe attend.

Sometimes I hunt the Fox, the vowed foe
 Vnto my Lambes, and him dislodge away;
 Sometime the fawne I practise from the Doe,
 Or from the Goat her kidde how to conuay;
 Another while I baytes and nets display,
 The birds to catch, or fishes to beguyle:
 And when I wearie am, I downe doe lay
 My limbes in euery shade, to rest from toyle,
 And drinke of euery brooke, when thirst my throte doth boyle.

The time was once, in my first prime of yeares,
 When pride of youth forth pricked my desire,
 That I disdain'd amongst mine equall peares
 To follow sheepe, and shepherds base attire:

For

For further fortune then I would inquire.
 And leauing home, to roiall court I sought;
 Where I did sell my selfe for yearely hire,
 And in the Princes gardin daily wrought:
 There I beheld such vainenesse, as I neuer thought.

With sight whereof soone cloyd, and long deluded
 With idle hopes, which them doe entertaine,
 After I had ten yeares my selfe excluded
 From natiue home, and spent my youth in vaine,
 I gan my follies to my selfe to plaine,
 And this sweet peace, whose lacke did then appeare.
 Tho backe returning to my sheepe againe,
 I from thenceforth haue learn'd to loue more deare.
 This lowly quiet life, which I inherite here.

Whylest thus he talkt, the knight with greedy care
 Hong still vpon his melting mouth attent;
 Whose sensefull words empierst his hart so neare,
 That he was rapt with double rauishment,
 Both of his speach that wrought him great content,
 And also of the obiect of his vew,
 On which his hungry eye was alwayes bent;
 That twixt his pleasing tongue, and her faire hew,
 He lost himselfe, and like one halfe entraunced grew.

Yet to occasion meanes, to worke his mind,
 And to insinuate his harts desire,
 He thus replyde; Now surely fyre, I find;
 That all this worlds gay shoues, which we admire,
 Be but vaine shadowes to this safe retyre
 Of life, which here in lowlinesse ye lead,
 Fearelesse of foes, or fortunes wrackfull yre,
 Which tosseth states, and vnder foot doth tread
 The mightie ones, affrayd of euery chaunges dread.

That euen I which daily doe behold
 The glorie of the great, mongst whom I won,
 And now haue prou'd, what happinesse ye hold
 In this small plot of your dominion,
 Now loath great Lordship and ambition;
 And wish th'heauens so much had graced mee,
 As graunt me liue in like condition;
 Or that my fortunes might transposed bee
 From pitch of higher place, vnto this low degree.

In vaine (said then old Melibæ) doe men
 The heauens of their fortunes fault accuse,
 Sith they know best, what is the best for them:
 For they to each such fortune doe diffuse,
 As they doe know each can most aptly vse.
 For not that, which men couet most, is best,
 Nor that thing worst, which men do most refuse;
 But fittest is, that all contented rest
 With that they hold: each hath his fortune in his brest,

It is the mynd, that maketh good or ill,
 That maketh wretch or happie, rich or poore:
 For some, that hath abundance at his will,
 Hath not enough, but wants in greatest store;
 And other, that hath litle, askes no more,
 But in that litle is both rich and wise.
 For wisdom is most riches; fooles therefore
 They are, which fortunes doe by vowes deuize,
 Sith each vnto himselfe his life may fortunize.

Since then in each mans self (said Calidore)
 It is, to fashion his owne lyfes estate,
 Giue leaue awhyle, good father, in this shore
 To rest my barcke, which hath bene beaten late

With

With stormes of fortune and tempestuous fate,
 In seas of troubles and of toylefome paine,
 That whether quite from them for to retrate
 I shall resolute, or backe to turne againe,
 I may here with your selfe some small repose obtaine.

Not that the burden of so bold a guest
 Shall chargefull be, or change to you at all;
 For your meane food shall be my daily feast,
 And this your cabin both my bowre and hall.
 Besides for recompence hereof, I shall
 You well reward, and golden guerdon giue,
 That may perhaps you better much withall,
 And in this quiet make you safer liue.
 So forth he drew much gold, and toward him it driue.

But the good man, nought tempted with the offer
 Of his rich mould, did thrust it farre away,
 And thus bespake; Sir knight, your bounteous proffer
 Be farre fro me, to whom ye ill display
 That mucky masse, the cause of mens decay,
 That mote empaire my peace with daungers dread.
 But if ye algates couet to assay
 This simple sort of life, that shepheards lead,
 Be it your owne: our rudenesse to your selfe aread.

So there that night Sir Calidore did dwell,
 And long while after, whilest him list remaine,
 Dayly beholding the faire Pastorell,
 And feeding on the bayt of his owne bane.
 During which time he did her entertaine
 With all kind courtesies, he could inuent;
 And euery day, her companie to gaine,
 When to the field she went, he with her went:
 So for to quench his fire, he did it more augment.

But she that neuer had acquainted beene
 With such queint vsage, fit for Queenes and Kings,
 Ne euer had such knightly seruice seene,
 But being bred vnder base shepheards wings,
 Had euer learn'd to loue the lowly things,
 Did litle whit regard his courteous guize,
 But cared more for Colins carolings
 Then all that he could doe, or euer deuize:
 His layes, his loues, his lookes she did them all despize.

Which Calidore perceiuing, thought it best
 To change the manner of his loftie looke;
 And dosing his bright armes, himselfe address
 In shepheards weed, and in his hand he tooke,
 In stead of steelehead speare, a shepheards hooke,
 That who had seene him then, would haue bethought
 On Phrygian Paris by Plexippus brooke,
 When he the loue of fayre Benone sought,
 What time the golden apple was vnto him brought.

So being clad, vnto the fields he went
 With the faire Pastorella euery day,
 And kept her sheepe with diligent attent,
 Watching to driue the rauinous Wolfe away,
 The whylest at pleasure she mote sport and play;
 And euery euening helping them to fold:
 And otherwhiles for need, he did assay
 In his strong hand their rugged teats to hold,
 And out of them to presse the milke: loue so much could.

Which seeing Coridon, who her likewise
 Long time had lou'd, and hop'd her loue to gaine,
 He much was troubled at that straungers guize,
 And many gealous thoughts conceiu'd in vaine,
 That

That this of all his labour and long paine
 Should reap the haruest, ere it ripened were,
 That made him scoule, and pout, and oft complaine
 Of Pastorell to all the shepheards there,
 That she did loue a stranger swayne then him more dere.

And euer when he came in companie,
 Where Calidore was present, he would loure,
 And byte his lip, and euen for gealoufie
 Was readie oft his owne hart to deuoure,
 Impatient of any paramoure:
 Who on the other side did seeme so farre
 From malicing, or grudging his good houre,
 That all he could, he graced him with her,
 Ne euer shewed signe of rancour or of iarre.

And oft, when Coridon vnto her brought
 Or litle sparrowes, stolen from their nest,
 Or wanton squirrels, in the woods farre sought,
 Or other daintie thing for her addrest,
 He would commend his guift, and make the best.
 Yet she no whit his presents did regard,
 Ne him could find to fancie in her brest:
 This newcome shepheard had his market mard.
 Old loue is litle worth when new is more prefard.

One day when as the shepheard swaynes together
 Were met, to make their sports and merrie glee,
 As they are wont in faire sunshynie weather,
 The whiles their flockes in shadowes shrouded bee,
 They fell to daunce: then did they all agree,
 That Colin clout should pipe as one most fit;
 And Calidore should lead the ring, as hee
 That most in Pastorellaes grace did fit.
 Thereat frown'd Coridon, and his lip closely bit.

But Calidore of courteous inclination
 Tooke Coridon, and set him in his place,
 That he should lead the daunce, as was his fashion;
 For Coridon could daunce, and trimly trace.
 And when as Pastorella, him to grace,
 Her flowry garland tooke from her owne head,
 And plast on his, he did it soone displace,
 And did it put on Coridons in stead:
 Then Coridon woxe frolicke, that earst seemed dead.

Another time, when as they did dispose
 To practise games, and maisteries to try,
 They for their Iudge did Pastorella chose;
 A garland was the meed of victory.
 There Coridon forth stepping openly,
 Did challenge Calidore to wrestling game:
 For he through long and perfect industry,
 Therein well practis'd was, and in the same
 Thought sure t'auenge his grudge, & worke his foe great (shame.

But Calidore he greatly did mistake;
 For he was strong and mightily stiffe pight,
 That with one fall his necke he almost brake,
 And had he not vpon him fallen light,
 His dearest ioynt he sure had broken quight.
 Then was the oaken crowne by Pastorell
 Giuen to Calidore, as his due right;
 But he, that did in courtesie excell,
 Gaue it to Coridon, and said he wonne it well.

Thus did the gentle knight himselfe abear
 Amongst that rusticke rout in all his deeds,
 That euen they, the which his riualls were,
 Could not maligne him, but commend him needs:

For

For courtesie amongst the rudest breeds :
 Good will and fauour. So it surely wrought
 With this faire Mayd, and in her mynde the seeds
 Of perfect loue did sow, that last forth brought
 The fruite of ioy and blisse, though long time dearely (bought.

Thus Calidore continu'd there long time,
 To winne the loue of the faire Pastorell;
 Which hauing got, he vsed without crime
 Or blamefull blot, but menaged so well,
 That he of all the rest, which there did well,
 Was fauoured, and to her grace commended.
 But what straunge fortunes vnto him befell,
 Ere he attain'd the point by him intended,
 Shall more conueniently in other place be ended.

Cant. X.

*Calidore sees the Graces daunce,
 To Colins melody:
 The whiles his Pastorell is led,
 Into captivity.*

Who now does follow the foule Blatant Beast,
 Whilest Calidore does follow that faire Mayd,
 Vnmyndfull of his vow and high behest,
 Which by the Faery Queene was on him layd,
 That he should neuer leaue, nor be delayd
 From chacing him, till he had it attchieued?
 But now entrapt of loue, which him betrayd,
 He mindeth more, how he may be relieued (griued.
 With grace from her, whose loue his heart hath fore en-

That from henceforth he meanes no more to see
 His former quest, so full of toyle and paine;
 Another quest, another game in view
 He hath, the guerdon of his loue to gaine:
 With whom he myndes for euer to remaine,
 And set his rest amongst the rusticke sort,
 Rather then hunt still after shadowes vaine
 Of courtly fauour, fed with light report,
 Of euery blaste, and fayling alwaies on the port.

Ne certes mote he greatly blamed be,
 From so high step to stoupe vnto so low.
 For who had tasted once (as oft did he)
 The happy peace, which there doth ouerflow,
 And prou'd the perfect pleasures, which doe grow
 Amongst poore hyndes, in hils, in woods, in dales,
 Would neuer more delight in painted show
 Of such false blisse, as there is set for stales,
 T'entrap vnwary fooles in their eternall bales.

For what hath all that goodly glorious gaze
 Like to one sight, which Calidore did vew?
 The glaunce whereof their dimmed eies would daze,
 That neuer more they should endure the shew
 Of that sunne-shine, that makes them looke askew.
 Ne ought in all that world of beauties rare, (Saue onely Glorianaes heauenly hew
 To which what can compare?) can it compare;
 The which as commeth now, by course I will declare.

One day as he did raunge the fields abroad,
 Whilest his faire Passorella was elfewhere,
 He chaunst to come, far from all peoples troad,
 Vnto a place, whose pleasaunce did appere

To passe all others, on the earth which were:
 For all that euer was by natures skill
 Deuized to worke delight, was gathered there,
 And there by her were poured forth at fill,
 As if this to adorne, she all the rest did pill.

It was an hill plaste in an open plaine,
 That round about was bordered with a wood
 Of matchlesse hight, that seem'd th'earth to disdain,
 In which all trees of honour stately stood,
 And did all winter as in sommer bud,
 Spredding pauilions for the birds to bowre,
 Which in their lower braunches sung aloud;
 And in their tops the foring hauke did towre,
 Sitting like King of fowles in maicesty and powre.

And at the foote thereof, a gentle flud
 His siluer waues did softly tumble downe,
 Vnmard with ragged mosse or filthy mud,
 Ne mote wylde beastes, ne mote the ruder clowne
 Thereto approach, ne filth mote therein drowne:
 But Nymphes and Faeries by the bancks did sit,
 In the woods shade, which did the waters crowne,
 Keeping all noysome things away from it,
 And to the waters fall tuning their accents fit.

And on the top thereof a spacious plaine
 Did spred it selfe, to serue to all delight,
 Either to daunce, when they to daunce would faine,
 Or else to course about their bases light;
 Ne ought there wanted, which for pleasure might Desired be, or thence to banish bale:
 So pleasauntly the hill with equall hight,
 Did seeme to ouerlooke the lowly vale;
 Therefore it rightly cleeped was mount Acidale.

They say that Venus, when she did dispose
 Her selfe to pleasaunce, vsed to resort
 Vnto this place, and therein to repose
 And rest her selfe, as in a gladsome port,
 Or with the Graces there to play and sport;
 That euen her owne Cytheron, though in it
 She vsed most to keepe her royall court,
 And in her soueraine Maiesty to sit,
 She in regard hereof refusde and thought vnfit.

Vnto this place when as the Elfin Knight
 Approacht, him seemed that the merry sound
 Of a shrill pipe he playing heard on hight,
 And many feete fast thumping th' hollow ground,
 That through the woods their Eccho did rebound.
 He nigher drew, to weete what mote it be;
 There he a troupe of Ladies dauncing found
 Full merrily, and making gladfull glee,
 And in the midst a Shepheard piping he did see.

He durst not enter into th' open greene,
 For dread of them vnwares to be descryde,
 For breaking of their daunce, if he were seene;
 But in the couert of the wood did byde,
 Beholding all, yet of them vnspyde.
 There he did see, that pleased much his sight,
 That euen he him selfe his eyes enuyde,
 An hundred naked maidens lilly white,
 All raunged in a ring, and dauncing in delight.

All they without were raunged in a ring,
 And daunced round; but in the midst of them
 Three other Ladies did both daunce and sing,
 The whilest the rest them round about did hemme,
 And

And like a girlond did in compasse stemme:
 And in the middest of those same three, was placed Another Damzell, as a precious gemme,
 Amidst a ring most richly well enchaced,
 That with her goodly presence all the rest much graced.

Looke how the Crowne, which Ariadne wore
 Vpon her yuory forehead that same day,
 That Theseus her vnto his bridale bore,
 When the bold Centaures made that bloody fray
 With the fierce Lapithes, which did them dismay;
 Being now placed in the firmament,
 Through the bright heauen doth her beams display,
 And is vnto the starres an ornament,
 Which round about her moue in order excellent.

Such was the beauty of this goodly band,
 Whose sundry parts were here too long to tell;
 But she that in the midst of them did stand,
 Seem'd all the rest in beauty to excell,
 Crownd with a rosie girlond, that right well
 Did her beseme. And euer, as the crew
 About her daunst, sweet flowres, that far did smell,
 And fragrant odours they vpon her threw;
 But most of all, those three did her with gifts endew.

Those were the Graces, daughters of delight,
 Handmaides of Venus, which are wont to haunt
 Vpon this hill, and daunce there day and night:
 Those three to men all gifts of grace do graunt,
 And all, that Venus in her selfe doth vaunt,
 Is borrowed of them. But that faire one,
 That in the midst was placed parauant,
 Was she to whom that shepheard pypt alone,
 That made him pipe so merrily, as neuer none.

She was to weete that iolly Shepherds lasse,
 Which piped there vnto that merry rout,
 That iolly shepheard, which there piped, was Poore Colin Clout (who knowes not Colin Clout?)
 He pypt apace, whilest they him daunst about.
 Pype iolly shepheard, pype thou now apace
 Vnto thy loue, that made thee low to lout;
 Thy loue is present there with thee in place,
 Thy loue is there aduaunst to be another Grace.

Much wondred Calidore at this straunge sight,
 Whose like before his eye had neuer seene,
 And standing long astonished in spright,
 And rapt with pleasaunce, wist not what to weene;
 Whether it were the traine of beauties Queene,
 Or Nymphes, or Faeries, or enchanted show,
 With which his eyes mote haue deluded beene.
 Therefore resoluing, what it was, to know,
 Out of the wood he rose, and toward them did go.

But soone as he appeared to their vew,
 They vanisht all away out of his sight,
 And cleane were gone, which way he neuer knew;
 All saue the shepheard, who for fell despight
 Of that displeasure, broke his bag-pipe quight,
 And made great mone for that vnhappy turne.
 But Calidore, though no lesse sory wight,,
 For that mishap, yet seeing him to mourne,
 Drew neare, that he the truth of all by him mote learne.

And first him greeting, thus vnto him spake,
 Haile iolly shepheard, which thy ioyous dayes
 Here leadeest in this goodly merry make,
 Frequented of these gentle Nymphes alwayes,
 Which

Which to thee flocke, to heare thy louely layes;
 Tell me, what mote these dainty Damzels be,
 Which here with thee doe make their pleasant playes?
 Right happy thou, that mayst them freely see:
 But why when I them saw, fled they away from me?

Not I so happy answerd then that swaine,
 As thou vnhappy, which them thence didst chace,
 Whom by no meanes thou canst recall againe,
 For being gone, none can them bring in place,
 But whom they of them selues list so to grace.
 Right sory I, (saide then Sir Calidore,)
 That my ill fortune did them hence displace.
 But since things passed none may now restore,
 Tell me, what were they all, whose lacke thee grieues so (fore,

Tho gan that shepheard thus for to dilate;
 Then wote thou shepheard, whatsoeuer thou bee,
 That all those Ladies, which thou sawest late,
 Are Venus Damzels, all with in her see,
 But differing in honour and degree:
 They all are Graces, which on her depend,
 Besides a thousand more, which ready bee
 Her to adorne, when so she forth doth wend:
 But those three in the midst, doe chiefe on her attend.

They are the daughters of sky-ruling Ioue,
 By him begot of faire Eurynome,
 The Oceans daughter, in this pleasant groue,
 As he this way comming from feastfull glee,
 Of Thetis wedding with AEidee.
 In fommers shade him selfe here rested weary.
 The first of them hight mylde Euphrosyne,
 Next faire Aglaia, last Thalia merry:
 Sweete Goddesses all three which me in mirth do chery.

These three on men all gracious gifts bestow,
 Which decke the body or adorne the mynde,
 To make them louely or well fauoured show,
 As comely carriage, entertainment kynde,
 Sweete semblaunt, friendly offices that bynde,
 And all the complements of curtesie :
 They teach vs, how to each degree and kynde
 We should our selues demeaine, to low, to hie ;
 To friends, to foes, which skill men call Ciuility.

Therefore they alwaies smoothly seeme to smile,
 That we likewise should mylde and gentle be,
 And also naked are, that without guile
 Or false dissembaunce all them plaine may see,
 Simple and true from couert malice free :
 And ecke them selues so in their daunce they bore,
 That two of them still forward seem'd to bee,
 But one still towards shew'd her selfe afore ;
 That good should from vs goe, then come in greater (store.

Such were those Goddesses, which ye did see ;
 But that fourth Mayd, which there amidst the traced,
 Who can aread, what creature mote she bee,
 Whether a creature, or a goddesse graced
 With heauenly gifts from heuen first enraced ?
 But what so sure she was, she worthy was,
 To be the fourth with those three other placed :
 Yet was she certes but a countrey lasse,
 Yet she all other countrey lasses farre did passe.

So farre as dot! the daughter of the day,
 All other lesser lights in light excell,
 So farre doth she in beautyfull array,
 Aboue all other lasses beare the bell,
 Ne

Nélesse in vertue that befeemes her well,
Doth she exceede the rest of all her race,
For which the Graces that here wont to dwell,
Haue for more honor brought her to this place,
And graced her so much to be another Grace.

Another Grace she well deserues to be,
In whom so many Graces gathered are,
Excelling much the meane of her degree;
Diuine resemblance, beauty soueraine rare,
Firme Chastity, that spight ne blemish dare;
All which she with such courtesie doth grace,
That all her peres cannot with her compare,
But quite are dimmed, when she is in place.
She made me often pipe and now to pipe apace.

Sunne of the world, great glory of the sky,
That all the earth doest lighten with thy rayes,
Great Gloriana, greatest Maiesty,
Pardon thy shepheard, mongst so many layes,
As he hath sung of thee in all his dayes,
To make one minime of thy poore handmayd,
And vnderneath thy feete to place her prayse,
That when thy glory shall be farre displayd
To future age of her this mention may be made.

When thus that shepheard ended had his speech,
Sayd Calidore; Now sure it yrketh mee,
That to thy blisse I made this luckelesse breach,
As now the author of thy bale to be,
Thus to bereaue thy loues deare sight from thee:
But gentle Shepheard pardon thou my shame,
Who rashly fought that, which I mote not see.
Thus did the courteous Knight excuse his blame,
And to recomfort him, all comely meanes did frame.

In such discourses they together spent

Long time, as fit occasion forth them led;
 With which the Knight him selfe did much content,
 And with delight his greedy fancy fed,
 Both of his words, which he with reason red;
 And also of the place, whose pleasures rare
 With such regard his senses rauished,
 That thence, he had no will away to fare,
 But wisht, that with that shepheard he mote dwelling (share.

But that enuenim'd sting, the which of yore,
 His poyfnous point deepe fixed in his hart
 Had left, now gan afresh to rancle sore,
 And to renue the rigour of his smart:
 Whch to recure, no skill of Leaches art
 Mote him auaille, but to returne againe
 To his wounds worker, that with louely dart
 Dinting his brest, had bred his restlesse paine,
 Like as the wounded Whale to shore flies frō the maine.

So taking leaue of that same gentle swaine,
 He backe returned to his rusticke wonne,
 Where his faire Pastorella did remaine:
 To whome in sort, as he at first begonne,
 He daily did apply him selfe to donne,
 All dewfull seruice voide of thoughts impare
 Ne any paines ne perill did he shonne,
 Bywhich he might her to his loue allure,
 And liking in her yet vntamed heart procure.

And euermore the shepheard Coridon,
 What euer thing he did her to aggrate,
 Did striue to match with strong contention,
 And all his paines did closely emulate;

Whether

Whether it were to caroll, as they fate
 Keeping their sheepe, or games to exercize,
 Or to present her with their labours late;
 Through which if any grace chaunft to arize
 To him, the Shepheard streight with ieaiousie did frize.

One day as they all three together went
 To the greene wood, to gather strawberies,
 There chaunft to them a dangerous accident;
 A Tigre forth out of the wood did rise,
 That with fell clawes full of fierce gourmandize,
 And greedy mouth, wide gaping like hell gate,
 Did runne at Pastorell her to surprize:
 Whom she beholding, now all desolate
 Gan cry to them aloud, to helpe her all too late.

Which Coridon first hearing, ran in hast
 To reskue her, but when he saw the feend,
 Through cowherd feare he fled away as fast,
 Ne durst abide the daunger of the end;
 His life he steemed dearer then his frend.
 But Calidore soone comming to her ayde,
 When he the beast saw ready now to rend
 His loues deare spoile, in which his heart was prayde,
 He ran at him enraged in stead of being frayde.

He had no weapon, but his shepheards hooke,
 To serue the vengeaunce of his wrathfull will,
 With which so sternely he the monster strooke,
 That to the ground astonished he fell;
 Whence ere he couldrecoûr, he did him quell,
 And hewing off his head, it presented
 Before the feete of the faire Pastorell;
 Who scarcely yet from former feare exempted, (ted.
 A thousand times him thank, that had her death preuen-

From that day forth she gan him to affect,
 And daily more her fauour to augment;
 But Coridon for cowerdize reiect,
 Fit to keepe sheepe, vnfit for loues content:
 The gentle heart scornes base disparagement.
 Yet Calidore did not despise him quight,
 But vsde him friendly for further intent,
 That by his fellowship, he colour might
 Both his estate, and loue from skill of any wight.

So well he woo'd her, and so well he wrought her,
 With humble seruice, and with daily sute,
 That at the last vnto his will he brought her;
 Which he so wisely well did prosecute,
 That of his loue he reapt the timely frute,
 And ioied long in close felicity:
 Till fortune fraught with malice, blinde, and brute,
 That enuies louers long prosperity,
 Blew vp a bitter storme of foule aduersity.

It fortun'd one day, when Calidore
 Was hunting in the woods (as was his trade)
 A lawlesse people, Brigants hight of yore,
 That neuer vsde to liue by plough nor spade,
 But fed on spoile and booty, which they made
 Vpon their neighbours, which did nigh them border,
 The dwelling of these shepheards did inuade,
 And spoyld their houses, and them selues did murder;
 And droue away their flocks, with other much disorder.

Amongst the rest, the which they then did pray,
 They spoyld old Melibee of all he had,
 And all his people captiue led away,
 Mongst which this lucklesse mayd away was lad,
 Faire

Faire Pastorella, sorrowfull and sad,
 Most sorrowfull, most sad, that euer sight,
 Now made the spoile of theeues and Brigants bad,
 Which was the conquest of the gentlest Knight,
 That euer liu'd, and th'onely glory of his might.

With them also was taken Coridon,
 And carried captiue by those theeues away;
 Who in the couert of the night, that none
 Mote them descry, nor reskue from their pray,
 Vnto their dwelling did them close conuay.
 Their dwelling in a little Island was,
 Couered with shrubby woods, in which no way
 Appeard for people in nor out to pas,
 Nor any footing fynde for ouergrowen gras.

For vnderneath the ground their way was made,
 Through hollow caues, that no man mote discover
 For the thicke shrubs, which did them alwaies shade
 From view of liuing wight, and couered ouer:
 But darkeness dred and daily night did houer
 Through all the inner parts, wherein they dwelt.
 Ne lightned was with window, nor with louer,
 But with continuall candlelight, which delt
 A doubtfull sense of things, not so well seene, as felt.

Hither those Brigants brought their present pray,
 And kept them with continuall watch and ward,
 Meaning so soone, as they conuenient may,
 For slaues to sell them, for no small reward,
 To merchants, which them kept in bondage hard,
 Or sold againe. Now when faire Pastorell
 Into this place was brought, and kept with gard
 Of griesly theeues, she thought her self in hell, (dwell
 Where with such damned fiends she should in darknesse

But for to tell the dolefull dreriment,
 And pittifull complaints, which there she made,
 Where day and night she nought did but lament
 Her wretched life, shut vp in deadly shade,
 And waste her goodly beauty, which did fade
 Like to a flowre, that feeles no heate of sunne,
 Which may her feeble leaues with comfort glade,
 But what befell her in that theeuissh wonne,
 Will in an other Canto better be begonne.

Cant. XI.

THe ioyes of loue, if they should euer last,
 Without affliction or disquietnesse,
 That worldly chaunces doe amongst them cast,
 Would be on earth too great a blessednesse,
 Liker to heauen, then mortall wretchednesse.
 Therefore the winged God, to let men weet,
 That here on earth is no sure happinesse,
 A thousand sowres hath tempred with one sweet,
 To make it seeme more deare and dainty, as is meet.

Like as is now befallne to this faire Mayd,
 Faire Pastorell, of whom is now my song,
 Who being now in dreadfull darknesse layd,
 Amongst those theeues, which her in bondage strong
 Detaynd,

Detaynd, yet Fortune not with all this wrong
 Contented, greater mischiefe on her threw,
 And sorrowes heapt on her in greater throng;
 That who so heares her heauinesse, would rew
 And pittie her sad plight, so chang'd from pleasaunt hew.

Whylest thus she in these hellish dens remaind,
 Wrapped in wretched cares and hearts vnrest,
 It so befell (as Fortune had ordayned)
 That he, which was their Capitaine profest,
 And had the chiefe commaund of all the rest,
 One day as he did all his prisoners vew,
 With lustfull eyes, beheld that louely guest,
 Faire Pastorella, whose sad mournfull hew
 Like the faire Morning clad in misty fog did shew.

At sight whereof his barbarous heart was fired,
 And inly burnt with flames most raging whot,
 That her alone he for his part desired
 Of all the other pray, which they had got,
 And her in mynde did to him selfe allot.
 From that day forth he kyndnesse to her showed,
 And sought her loue, by all the meanes he mote;
 With looks, with words, with gifts he oft her wowed:
 And mixed threats among, and much vnto her vowed.

But all that euer he could doe or say,
 Her constant mynd could not a whit remoue,
 Nor draw vnto the lure of his lewd lay,
 To graunt him fauour, or afford him loue.
 Yet ceast he not to sew and all waies proue,
 By which he mote accomplish his request,
 Saying and doing all that mote behoue;
 Ne day nor night he suffred her to rest,
 But her all night did watch, and all the day molest.

At last when him she so importune saw,
 Fearing least he at length the raines would lend
 Vnto his lust, and make his will his law,
 Sith in his powre she was to foe or friend,
 She thought it best, for shadow to pretend
 Some shew of fauour, by him gracing small,
 That she thereby mote either freely wend,
 Or at more ease continue there his thrall:
 A little well is lent, that gaineth more withall.

So from thenceforth, when loue he to her made,
 With better tearmes she did him entertaine,
 Which gaue him hope, and did him halfe perswade,
 That he in time her ioyauce should obtaine.
 But when she saw, through that small fauours gaine,
 That further, then she willing was, he prest,
 She found no meanes to barre him, but to faine
 A sodaine sicknesse, which her sore opprest,
 And made vnfit to serue his lawlesse mindes behest.

By meanes whereof she would not him permit
 Once to approach to her in priuity,
 But onely mongst the rest by her to sit,
 Mourning the rigour of her malady,
 And seeking all things meete for remedy.
 But she resolu'd no remedy to fynde,
 Nor better cheare to shew in misery,
 Till Fortune would her captiue bonds vnbynde,
 Her sicknesse was not of the body but the mynde.

During which space that she thus sicke did lie,
 It chaunst a sort of merchants, which were wount
 To skim those coastes, for bondmen there to buy,
 And by such trafficke after gaines to hunt,

Arriued

Arriued in this Isle though bare and blunt,
 T'inquire for slaues; where being readie met
 By some of these same theeues at the instant brunt,
 Were brought vnto their Captaine, who was set
 By his faire patients side with sorrowfull regret.

To whom they shewed, how those marchants were Arriu'd in place, their bondslaues for to buy,
 And therefore prayd, that those same captiues there
 Mote to them for their most commodity
 Be sold, and mongst them shared equally.
 This their request the Captaine much appalled;
 Yet could he not their iust demaund deny,
 And willed streight the slaues should forth be called,
 And sold for most aduantage not to be forstalled.

Then forth the good old Melibæ was brought,
 And Coridon, with many other moe,
 Whom they before in diuerse spoyles had caught:
 All which he to the marchants sale did showe.
 Till some, which did the sundry prisoners knowe,
 Gan to inquire for that faire shepherdesse,
 Which with the rest they tooke not long agoe,
 And gan her forme and feature to expresse,
 The more t'augment her price, through praise of com-(linesse.

To whom the Captaine in full angry wize
 Made answere, that the Mayd of whom they spake,
 Was his owne purchase and his onely prize,
 With which none had to doe, ne ought partake,
 But he himselfe, which did that conquest make;
 Litle for him to haue one silly lasse:
 Besides through sicknesse now so wan and weake,
 That nothing meet in marchandise to passe.
 So shew'd them her, to proue how pale & weake she was.

The sight of whom, though now decayd and mard,
 And eke but hardly seene by candle-light,
 Yet like a Diamond of rich regard,
 In doubtfull shadow of the darke some night,
 With starrie beames about her shining bright,
 These marchants fixed eyes did so amaze,
 That what through wonder, & what through delight,
 A while on her they greedily did gaze,
 And did her greatly like, and did her greatly praise.

At last when all the rest them offred were,
 And prises to them placed at their pleasure,
 They all refused in regard of her,
 Ne ought would buy, how euer prisd with measure,
 Withouten her, whose worth about all threasure
 They did esteeme, and offred store of gold.
 But then the Captaine fraught with more displeasure,
 Bad them be still, his loue should not be sold:
 The rest take if they would, he her to him would hold.

Therewith some other of the chiefeft theeues
 Boldly him bad such iniurie forbear;
 For that same mayd, how euer it him greeues,
 Should with the rest be sold before him there,
 To make the prises of the rest more deare.
 That with great rage he stoutly doth denay;
 And fiercely drawing forth his blade, doth sweare,
 That who so hardie hand on her doth lay,
 It dearly shall aby, and death for handsell pay.

Thus as they words amongst them multiply,
 They fall to strokes, the frute of too much talke,
 And the mad steele about doth fiercely fly,
 Not sparing wight, ne leauing any balke,

But

But making way for death at large to walke:
 Who in the horror of the grieſly night,
 In thouſand dreadful ſhapes doth mongſt them ſtalke,
 And makes huge hauocke, whiles the candlelight
 Out quenched, leaues no ſkill nor difference of wight.

Like as a ſort of hungry dogs ymet
 About ſome carcaſe by the common way,
 Doe fall together, ſtryuing each to get
 The greateſt portion of the greedie pray;
 All on confuſed heapes themſelues aſſay,
 And ſnatch, and byte, and rend, and tug, and teare;
 That who them ſees, would wonder at their fray,
 And who ſees not, would be affrayd to heare.
 Such was the conflict of thoſe cruell Brigants there.

But firſt of all, their captiues they doe kill,
 Leaſt they ſhould ioyne againſt the weaker ſide,
 Or riſe againſt the remnant at their will;
 Old Melibæ is ſlaine, and him beſide
 His aged wife, with many others wide;
 But Coridon eſcaping craftily,
 Creepes forth of dores, whilſt darknes him doth hide,
 And flies away as faſt as he can hye,
 Ne ſtayeth leaue to take, before his friends doe dye.

But Pafstorella, wofull wretched Elſe,
 Was by the Captaine all this while defended,
 Who minding more her ſafety then himſelfe,
 His target alwayes ouer her pretended;
 By meanes whereof, that mote not be amended,
 He at the length was ſlaine, and layd on ground,
 Yet holding faſt twixt both his armes extended
 Fayre Pafstorell, who with the ſelfe ſame wound
 Launcht through the arme, fell down with him in drierie

There lay she couered with confused preasse
 Of carcases, which dying on her fell.
 Tho when as he was dead, the fray gan ceasse,
 And each to other calling, did compell
 To stay their cruell hands from slaughter fell,
 Sith they that were the cause of all, were gone.
 Thereto they all attonce agreed well,
 And lighting candles new, gan searh anone,
 How many of their friends were slaine, how many fone.

Their Captaine there they cruelly found kild,
 And in his armes the dreary dying mayd,
 Like a sweet Angell twixt two clouds vphild:
 Her louely light was dimmed and decayd,
 With cloud of death vpon her eyes displayd;
 Yet did the cloud make euen that dimmed light
 Seeme much more louely in that darknesse layd,
 And twixt the twinckling of her eye-lids bright,
 To sparke out litle beames, like starres in foggie night.

But when they mou'd the carcases aside,
 They found that life did yet in her remaine:
 Then all their helps they busily applyde,
 To call the soule backe to her home againe;
 And wrought so well with labour and long paine,
 That they to life recouered her at last.
 Who fighting sore, as if her hart in twaine
 Had riuen bene, and all her hart strings braist,
 With drearie drouping eyne lookt vp like one aghast.

There she beheld, that sore her grieu'd to see,
 Her father and her friends about her lying,
 Her selfe sole left, a second spoyle to bee
 Of those, that hauing saued her from dying,

Renew'd her death by timely death denying:
 What now is left her, but to wayle and weepe,
 Wringing her hands, and ruefully loud crying?
 Ne cared the her wound in teares to steepe,
 Albe with all their might those Brigants her did keepe.

But when they saw her now reliu'd againe,
 They left her so, in charge of one the best
 Of many worst, who with vnkind disdaine
 And cruell rigour her did much molest;
 Scarfe yeelding her due food, or timely rest,
 And scarfely suffring her infestred wound,
 That fore her payn'd, by any to be drest.
 So leaue we her in wretched thraldome bound,
 And turne we backe to Calidore, where we him found.

Who when he backe returned from the wood,
 And saw his shepheards cottage spoyled quight,
 And his loue rest away, he wexed wood,
 And halfe enraged at that ruefull sight,
 That euen his hart for very fell despight,
 And his owne flesh he readie was to teare,
 He chaust, he grieu'd, he fretted, and he sight,
 And fared like a furious wyld Beare,
 Whose whelpes are stolne away, the being otherwhere.

Ne wight he found, to whom he might complaine,
 Ne wight he found, of whom he might inquire;
 That more increast the anguill of his paine.
 He sought the woods; but no man could see there,
 He sought the plaines; but could no tydings heare.
 The woods did nought but ecchoes vaine rebound;
 The playnes all waste and emptie did appeare:
 Where wont the shepheards oft their pypes resound,
 And feed an hundred flocks, there now not one he found.

At last as there he romed vp and downe,
 He chaunst one comming towards him to spy,
 That seem'd to be some forie simple clowne,
 With ragged weedes, and lockes vpstaring hyc,
 As if he did from some late daunger fly,
 And yet his feare did follow him behynd:
 Who as he vnto him approched nye,
 He mote perceiue by signes, which he did fynd,
 That Coridon it was, the silly shepherds hynd.

Tho to him running fast, he did not stay
 To greet him first, but askt where were the rest;
 Where Pastorell? who full of fresh dismay,
 And gushing forth in teares, was so opprest,
 That he no word could speake, but smit his brest,
 And vp to heauen his eyes fast streming threw.
 Whereat the knight amaz'd, yet did not rest,
 But askt againe, what ment that rufull hew:
 Where was his Pastorell? where all the other crew?

Ah well away (sayd he then sighing sore)
 That euer I did liue, this day to see,
 This dismall day, and was not dead before,
 Before I saw faire Pastorella dye.
 Die? out alas then Calidore did cry:
 How could the death dare euer her to quell?
 But read thou shepheard, read what destiny,
 Or other dyrefull hap from heauen or hell
 Hath wrought this wicked deed, doe feare away, and tell.

Tho when the shepheard breathed had a while,
 He thus began: where shall I then commence
 This wofull tale? or how those Brigants vyle,
 With cruell rage and dreadfull violence

Spoyle

Spoyld all our cots, and caried vs from hence?
 Or how faire Pastorell should haue bene sold
 To marchants, but was sau'd with strong defence?
 Or how those theeues, whilest one sought her to hold,
 Fell all at ods, and fought through fury fierce and bold.

In that same conflict (woe is me) befell
 This fatall chaunce, this dolefull accident,
 Whose heauy tydings now I haue to tell.
 First all the captiues, which they here had hent,
 Were by them slaine by generall consent;
 Old Melibæ and his good wife withall
 These eyes saw die, and dearely did lament:
 But when the lot to Pastorell did fall,
 Their Captaine long withstood, & did her death forstall.

But what could he gainst all them doe alone:
 It could not boot; needs mote she die at last:
 I lonely seapt through great confusione
 Of cryes and clamors, which amongst them past,
 In dreadfull darknesse dreadfully aghast;
 That better were with them to haue bene dead,
 Then here to see all desolate and wast,
 Despoyled of those ioyes and iolly head,
 Which with those gentle shepherds here I went to lead.

When Calidore these ruefull newes had raught,
 His hart quite deaded was with anguish great,
 And all his wits with doole were nigh distraught,
 That he his face, his head, his brest did beat,
 And death it selfe vnto himselfe did threat,
 Oft cursing th'heauens, that so cruell were
 To her, whose name he often did repeat;
 And wishing oft, that he were present there,
 When she was slaine, or had bene to her succour nere.

But after grieffe awhile had had his course,
 And spent it selfe in mourning, he at last
 Began to mitigate his swelling course,
 And in his mind with better reason cast,
 How he might saue her life, if life did last;
 Or if that dead, how he her death might wreake,
 Sith otherwise he could not mend thing past;
 Or if it to reuenge he were too weake,
 Then for to die with her, and his liues threed to breake.

Tho Coridon he prayd, sith he well knew
 The readie way vnto that theeuish wonne,
 To wend with him, and be his conduct trew
 Vnto the place, to see what should be donne.
 But he, whose hart through feare was late fordonne,
 Would not for ought be drawne to former drede,
 But by all meanes the daunger knowne did shonne:
 Yet Calidore so well him wrought with meed,
 And faire bespoke with words, that he at last agreed.

So forth they goe together (God before)
 Both clad in shepherds weeds agreeably,
 And both with shepherds hookes: But Calidore
 Had vnderneath, him armed priuily.
 Tho to the place when they approached nye,
 They chaunst, vpon an hill not farre away,
 Some flockes of sheepe and shepherds to espy;
 To whom they both agreed to take their way,
 In hope there newes to learne, how they mote best assay.

There did they find, that which they did not feare,
 The selfe same flockes, the which those theeues had rest
 From Melibæ and from themselves whyleare,
 And certaine of the theeues there by them left,

The

The which for want of heards themfelutes then kept.
 Right well knew Coridon his owne late sheepe,
 And seeing them, for tender pittie wept:
 But when he saw the theeues, which did them keepe
 His hart gan fayle, albe he saw them all asleepe.

But Calidore recomforting his grieffe,
 Though not his feare: for nought may feare diffwade;
 Him hardly forward drew, whereas the thiefe
 Lay sleeping soundly in the bushes shade,
 Whom Coridon him counfeld to inuade
 Now all vnwares, and take the spoyle away;
 But he, that in his mind had closely made
 A further purpose, would not fo them flay,
 But gently waking them, gaue them the time of day.

Tho fitting downe by them vpon the greene,
 Of fundrie things he purpose gan to faine;
 That he by them might certaine tydings weene
 Of Pastorell, were she aliuie or flaine.
 Mongst which the theeues them questioned againe,
 What mister men, and eke from whence they were.
 To whom they answer'd, as did appertaine, (here
 That they were poore heardgroomes, the which why-
 Had frō their maisters fled, & now sought hyre elsewhere.

Whereof right glad they seem'd, and offer made
 To hyre them well, if they their flockes would keepe:
 For they themfelues were euill groomes, they sayd,
 Vnwont with heards to watch, or pasture sheepe,
 But to forray the land, or scoure the deepe.
 Thereto they soone agreed, and earnest tooke,
 To keepe their flockes for litle hyre and chepe:
 For they for better hyre did shortly looke,
 So there all day they bode, till light the sky forfooke.

Tho when as towards darksome night it drew,
 Vnto their hellish dens those theeues them brought,
 Where shortly they in great acquaintance grew,
 And all the secrets of their entrayles sought.
 There did they find, contrarie to their thought,
 That Pastorell yet liu'd, but all the rest
 Were dead, right so as Coridon had taught:
 Whereof they both full glad and blyth did rest,
 But chiefly Calidore, whom griefe had most posselt,

At length when they occasion fittest found,
 In dead of night, when all the theeues did rest
 After a late forray, and slept full sound,
 Sir Calidore him arm'd, as he thought best,
 Hauing of late by diligent inquest,
 Prouided him a sword of meanest sort:
 With which he streight went to the Captaines nest.
 But Coridon durst not with him consort,
 Ne durst abide behind, for dread of worse effort.

When to the Caue they came, they found it fast:
 But Calidore with huge resistlesse might,
 The dores assayled, and the locks vpbrast.
 With noyse whereof the theefe awaking light,
 Vnto the entrance ran: where the bold knight
 Encountering him with small resistance slew;
 The whiles faire Pastorell through great affright
 Was almost dead, misdoubting least of new
 Some vprore were like that, which lately she did vew.

But when as Calidore was comen in,
 And gan aloud for Pastorell to call,
 Knowing his voice although not heard long sin,
 She sudden was reuiued therewithall,

And

And wondrous ioy felt in her spirits thrall:
 Like him that being long in tempest tost,
 Looking each houre into deathes mouth to fall,
 At length espies at hand the happie cost,
 On which he safety hopes, that earst feard to be lost.

Her gentle hart, that now long season past
 Had neuer ioyance felt, nor chearefull thought,
 Began some sinacke of comfort new to tast,
 Like lyfull heat to nummed senses brought,
 And life to feele, that long for death had sought;
 Ne lesse in hart reioyced Calidore,
 When he her found, but like to one distraught
 And robd of reason, towards her him bore,
 A thousand times embrast, and kist a thousand more.

But now by this, with noyse of late vprore,
 The hue and cry was rayfed all about;
 And all the Brigants flocking in great store,
 Vnto the caue gan preasse, nought hauing dout
 Of that was doen, and entred in a rout.
 But Calidore in th'entry close did stand,
 And entertayning them with courage stout,
 Still slew the formost, that came first to hand,
 So long till all the entry was with bodies mand.

Tho when no more could nigh to him approach,
 He breath'd his sword, and rested him till day:
 Which when he spyde vpon the earth t'encroch,
 Through the dead carcases he made his way,
 Mongst which he found a sword of better say,
 With which he forth went into th'open light:
 Where all the rest for him did readie stay,
 And fierce assayling him, with all their might Gan all vpon him lay: there gan a dreadfull fight.

How many flies in whottest sommers day
 Do seize vpon some beast, whose flesh is bare,
 That all the place with swarmes do ouerlay,
 And with their litle stings right felly fare;
 So many theeues about him swarming are,
 All which do him assayle on euery side,
 And sore oppresse, ne any him doth spare:
 But he doth with his raging brond diuide
 Their thickest troups, & round about him scattreth wide.

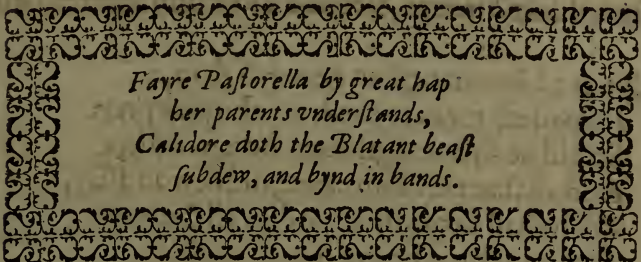

Like as a Lion mongst an heard of dere,
 Disperseth them to catch his choyssest pray;
 So did he fly amongst them here and there,
 And all that nere him came, did hew and slay,
 Till he had strowd with bodies all the way;
 That none his daunger daring to abide,
 Fled from his wrath, and did themselues conuay
 Into their caues, their heads from death to hide,
 Ne any left, that victorie to him enuide.

Then backe returning to his dearest deare,
 He her gan to recomfort, all he might,
 With gladfull speaches, and with louely cheare,
 And forth her bringing to the ioyous light,
 Whereof she long had lackt the wishfull sight,
 Deuiz'd all goodly meanes, from her to driue
 The sad remembrance of her wretched plight.
 So her vneath at last he did reuiue,
 That long had lyen dead, and made againe aliue.

This doen, into those theeuishe dens he went,
 And thence did all the spoyles and treasures take,
 Which they from many long had robd and rent,
 But fortune now the victors meed did make;

Of which the best he did his loue betake;
 And also all those flockes, which they before
 Had rest from Melibæ and from his make,
 He did them all to Coridon restore.
 So droue them all away, and his loue with him bore.

Cant. XII.

*Fayre Pastorella by great hap her parents understands,
 Calidore doth the Blatant beast
 subdew, and bynd in bands.*

Like as a ship, that through the Ocean wyde
 Directs her course vnto one certaine coast,
 Is met of many a counter winde and tyde,
 With which her winged speed is let and crost,
 And she her selfe in stormie surges tost;
 Yet making many a borde, and many a bay,
 Still winneth way, ne hath her compasse lost:
 Right so it fares with me in this long way,
 Whose course is often stayd, yet neuer is astray.

For all that hetherto hath long delayd
 This gentle knight, from sewing his first quest,
 Though out of course, yet hath not bene mis-sayd,
 To shew the courtesie by him profest,
 Euen vnto the lowest and the least.
 But now I come into my course againe,
 To his atchieuement of the Blatant beast;
 Who all this while at will did range and raine,
 Whilst none was him to stop, nor none him to restraine.

Sir Calidore when thus he now had raught
 Faire Pastorella from those Brigants powre, Vnto the Castle of Belgard her brought,
 Whereof was Lord the good Sir Bellamour;
 Who whylome was in his youthes freshest flowre
 A lustie knight, as euer wielded speare,
 And had endured many a dreadfull stoure
 In bloody battell for a Ladie deare,
 The fayrest Ladie then of all that liuing were.

Her name was Claribell, whose father hight
 The Lord of Many Islands, farre renound
 For his great riches and his greater might.
 He through the wealth, wherein he did abound,
 This daughter thought in wedlocke to haue bound
 Vnto the Prince of Picteland bordering nere,
 But she whose sides before with secret wound
 Of loue to Bellamour empierced were,
 By all meanes shund to match with any forrein fere.

And Bellamour againe so well her pleased,
 With dayly seruice and attendance dew,
 That of her loue he was entyrelly seized,
 And closely did her wed, but knowne to few,
 Which when her father vnderstood, he grew
 In so great rage, that them in dongeon deepe
 Without compassion cruelly he threw;
 Yet did so streightly them a sunder keepe,
 That neither could to company of th'other creepe.

Nathlesse Sir Bellamour, whether through grace
 Or secret guifts so with his keepers wrought,
 That to his loue sometimes he came in place,
 Whereof her wombe vnwist to wight was fraught,
 And

And in dew time a mayden child forth brought.
 Which she streight way for dread least, if her fyre
 Should know thereof, to slay he would haue sought,
 Deliuered to her handmayd, that for hyre
 She should it cause be fostred vnder straunge attyre.

The trustie damzell bearing it abroad
 Into the emptie fields, where liuing wight
 Mote not bewray the secret of her lode,
 She forth gan lay vnto the open light
 The litle babe, to take thereof a sight.
 Whom whylest she did with watric cyne behold,
 Vpon the litle brest like christall bright,
 She mote perceiue a litle purple mold,
 That like a rose her silken leaues did faire vnfold.

Well she it markt, and pittied the more,
 Yet could not remedie her wretched case,
 But closing it againe like as before,
 Bedeaw'd with teares there left it in the place:
 Yet left not quite, but drew a litle space
 Behind the bushes, where she her did hyde,
 To weet what mortall hand, or heauens grace
 Would for the wretched infants helpe prouyde,
 For which it loudly cald, and pittifully cryde.

At length a Shepheard, which there by did keepe
 His fleecie flocke vpon the playnes around,
 Led with the infants cry, that loud did weepe,
 Came to the place, where when he wrapped found
 Th'abandond spoyle, he softly it vnbound;
 And seeing there, that did him pittie sore,
 He tooke it vp, and in his mantle wound;
 So home vnto his honest wife it bore,
 Who as her owne it nursed, and named euermore.

Thus long continu'd Claribell a thrall,
 And Bellamour in bands, till that her syre
 Departed life, and left vnto them all.
 Then all the stormes of fortunes former yre
 Were turnd, and they to freedome did retyre.
 Thenceforth they ioy'd in happinesse together,
 And liued long in peace and loue entyre,
 Without disquiet or dislike of ether,
 Till time that Calidore brought Pastorella thether.

Both whom they goodly well did entertaine;
 For Bellamour knew Calidore right well,
 And loued for his prowesse, sith they twaine
 Long since had fought in field. Als Claribell
 No lesse did tender the faire Pastorell,
 Seeing her weake and wan, through durance long.
 There they a while together thus did dwell
 In much delight, and many ioyes among,
 Vntill the damzell gan to wex more sound and strong.

Tho gan Sir Calidore him to aduize
 Of his first quest, which he had long forlore,
 Asham'd to thinke, how he that enterprize,
 The which the Faery Queene had long afore
 Bequeath'd to him, forslacked had so fore;
 That much he feared, least reprochfull blame
 With foule dishonour him mote blot therefore;
 Besides the losse of so much loos and fame,
 As through the world thereby should glorifie his name.

Therefore resolving to returne in hast
 Vnto so great atchieuement, he bethought
 To leaue his loue, now perill being past,
 With Claribell, whylest he that monster sought
 Through-

Troughout the world, and to destruction brought.
 So taking leaue of his faire Pastorell,
 Whom to recomfort, all the meanes he wrought,
 With thanks to Bellamour and Claribell,
 He went forth on his quest, and did, that him befell.

But first, ere I doe his aduentures tell,
 In this exploite, me needeth to declare,
 What did betide to the faire Pastorell,
 During his absence left in heauy care,
 Through daily mourning, and nightly misfare:
 Yet did that auncient matrone all she might,
 To cherish her with all things choice and rare;
 And her owne handmayd, that Melissa hight,
 Appointed to attend her dewly day and night.

Who in a morning, when this Mayden faire
 Was dighting her, hauing her snowy brest
 As yet not laced, nor her golden haire
 Into their comely tresses dewly drest,
 Chaunst to espy vpon her yuory chest
 The rosie marke, which she remembred well
 That litle Infant had, which forth she kest,
 The daughter of her Lady Claribell,
 The which she bore, the whiles in prison she did dwell.

Which well auizing, streight she gan to cast
 In her conceiptfull mynd, that this faire Mayd
 Was that same infant, which so long sith past
 She in the open fields had loosely layd
 To fortunes spoile, vnable it to ayd.
 So full of ioy, streight forth she ran in hast
 Vnto her mistresse, being halfe dismayd,
 To tell her, how the heauens had her graste, (plaste.
 To saue her chylde, which in misfortunes mouth was

The sober mother seeing such her mood,
 Yet knowing not, what meant that sodaine thro,
 Askt her, how mote her words be vnderstood,
 And what the matter was, that mou'd her so.
 My liefe (sayd she) ye know, that long ygo,
 Whilest ye in durance dwelt, ye to me gaue
 A little mayde, the which ye chylded tho;
 The same againe if now ye list to haue,
 The same is yonder Lady, whom high God did saue.

Much was the Lady troubled at that speech,
 And gan to question streight how she it knew.
 Most certaine markes, (sayd she) do me it teach,
 For on her brest I with these eyes did vew
 The litle purple rose, which thereon grew,
 Whereof her name ye then to her did giue.
 Besides her countenaunce, and her likely hew,
 Matched with equall yeares, do surely priue
 That yond same is your daughter sure, which yet doth liue

The matrone stayd no lenger to enquire,
 But forth in hast ran to the straunger Mayd;
 Whom catching greedily for great desire,
 Rent vp her brest, and bosome open layd,
 In which that rose she plainly saw displayd.
 Then her embracing twixt her armes twaine,
 She long so held, and softly weeping sayd;
 And liuest thou my daughter now againe?
 And art thou yet aliue, whom dead I long did faine.

Tho further asking her of sundry things,
 And times comparing with their accidents,
 She found at last by very certaine signes,
 And speaking markes of passed monuments,
 That this young Mayd, whom chance to her presents

Is her owne daughter, her owne infant deare.

Tho wondring long at those so straunge euent,

A thousand times she her embraced nere,

With many a ioyfull kisse, and many a melting teare.

Who euer is the mother of one chylde,

Which hauing thought long dead, she fyndes aliue,

Let her by prooffe of that, which she hath fylde

In her owne breast, this mothers ioy descriue :

For other none such passion can contriue

In perfect forme, as this good Lady felt,

When she so faire a daughter saw suruiue,

As Pastorella was, that nigh she swelt

For passing ioy, which did all into pittie melt.

Thence running forth vnto her loued Lord,

She vnto him recounted, all that fell :

Who ioyning ioy with her in one accord,

Acknowledg'd for his owne faire Pastorell.

There leaue we them in ioy, and let vs tell

Of Calidore, who seeking all this while

That monstrous Beast by finall force to quell,

Through euery place, with restlesse paine and toile

Him follow'd, by the tract of his outrageous spoile.

Through all estates he found that he had past,

In which he many massacres had left,

And to the Clergy now was come at last;

In which such spoile, such hauocke, and such theft

He wrought, that thence all goodnesse he bereft,

That endlesse were to tell. The Elfin Knight,

Who now no place besides vnought had left,

At length into a Monastere did light,

Where he him found despoyling all with maine & might.

Into their cloysters now he broken had,

Through which the Monckes he chaced here & there,

And them pursu'd into their dortours sad,
 And searched all their cels and secrets neare;
 In which what filth and ordure did appeare,
 Were yrkesome to report; yet that foule Beast
 Nought sparing them, the more did tosse and teare,
 And ransacke all their dennes from most to least,
 Regarding nought religion, nor their holy heast.

From thence into the sacred Church he broke,
 And robd the Chancell, and the deskes downe threw,
 And Altars fouled, and blasphemy spoke,
 And th'Images for all their goodly hew,
 Did cast to ground, whilest none was them to rew;
 So all confounded and disordered there.
 But seeing Calidore, away he flew,
 Knowing his fatall hand by former feare;
 But he him fast pursuing, soone approched neare.

Him in a narrow place he ouertooke,
 And fierce assailing forst him turne againe:
 Sternely he turnd againe, when he him strooke
 With his sharpe steele, and ran at him amaine
 With open mouth, that seemed to containe
 A full good pecke within the vtmost brim,
 All set with yron teeth in raunges twaine,
 That terrifide his foes, and armed him,
 Appearing like the mouth of Orcus grielesly grim.

And therein were a thousand tongs empight,
 Offundry kindes, and sundry quality,
 Some were of dogs, that barked day and night,
 And some of cats, that wrawling still did cry.
 And some of Beares, that groynd continually,
 And some of Tygres, that did seeme to gren,
 And snar at all, that euer passed by:

But most of them were tongues of mortall men,
Which spake reprochfully, not caring where nor when.

And them amongst were mingled here and there,
The tongues of Serpents with three forked stings,
That spat out poyson and gore bloody gere
At all, that came within his rauening,
And spake licentious words, and hatefull things
Of good and bad alike, of low and hie;
Ne Kefars spared he a whit, nor Kings,
But either blotted them with infamie,
Or bit them with his banefull teeth of iniury.

But Calidore thereof no whit afraid,
Rencountred him with so impetuous might,
That th'outrage of his violence he stayd,
And bet abacke, threatning in vaine to bite,
And spitting forth the poyson of his spight,
That fomed all about his bloody iawes.
Tho rearing vp his former feete on hight,
He rampt vpon him with his rauenous pawes,
As if he would haue rent him with his cruell clawes.

But he right well aware, his rage to ward,
Did cast his shield atweene, and therewithall
Putting his puissaunce forth, pursu'd so hard,
That backward he enforced him to fall,
And being downe, ere he new helpe could call,
His shield he on him threw, and fast downe held,
Like as a bullocke, that in bloody stall
Of butchers balefull hand to ground is feld,
Is forcibly kept downe, till he be throughly queld.

Full cruelly the Beast did rage and rore,
To be downe held, and maystred so with might,

That he gan fret and some out bloody gore,
 Striuing in vaine to rere him selfe vpright.
 For still the more he stroue, the more the Knight
 Did him suppressse, and forcibly subdew;
 That made him almost mad for fell despight.
 He grind, hee bit, he scratcht, he venim threw,
 And fared like a feend, right horrible in hew.

Or like the hell-borne Hydra, which they faine
 That great Alcides whilome ouerthrew,
 After that he had labourd long in vaine,
 To crop his thousand heads, the which still new Forth budded, and in greater number grew.
 Such was the fury of this hellish Beast,
 Whilest Calidore him vnder him downe threw;
 Who nathemore his heauy load releast,
 But aye the more he rag'd, the more his powre increast.

Tho when the Beast saw, he mote nought auaille,
 By force, he gan his hundred tongues apply,
 And sharpely at him to reuile and raile,
 With bitter termes of shamefull infamy;
 Oft interlacing many a forged lie,
 Whose like he neuer once did speake, nor heare,
 Nor euer thought thing so vnworthily:
 Yet did he nought for all that him forbear,
 But strained him so streightly, that he chokt him neare.

At last when as he found his force to shrinke,
 And rage to quaile, he tooke a muzzell strong
 Of surest yron, made with many a lincke;
 Therewith he mured vp his mouth along,
 And therein shut vp his blasphemous tong,
 For neuer more defaming gentle Knight,
 Or vnto louely Lady doing wrong:

And

And thereunto a great long chaine he tight,
With which he drew him forth, euē in his own despight.

Like as whylome that strong Tirynthian swaine,
Brought forth with him the dreadfull dog of hell,
Against his will fast bound in yron chaine,
And roring horribly, did him compell
To see the hatefull sunne, that he might tell
To grieisly Pluto, what on earth was donne,
And to the other damned ghosts, which dwell
For aye in darkenesse, which day light doth shonne.
So led this Knight his captiue with like conquest wonne.

Yet greatly did the Beast repine at those Straunge bands, whose like till then he neuer bore,
Ne euer any durst till then impose,
And chauffed inly, seeing now no more
Him liberty was left aloud to rore:
Yet durst he not draw backe; nor once withstand
The proued powre of noble Calidore,
But trembled vnderneath his mighty hand,
And like a fearefull dog him followed through the land.

Him through all Faery land he follow'd so,
As if he learned had obedience long,
That all the people where so he did go,
Out of their townes did round about him throng,
To see him leade that Beast in bondage strong,
And seeing it, much wondred at the sight;
And all such persons, as he earst did wrong,
Reioyced much to see his captiue plight, (Knight.
And much admyr'd the Beast, but more admyr'd the

Thus was this Monster by the maystring might
Of doughty Calidore, suppress and tamed,
That neuer more he mote endammadge wight
With his vile tongue, which many had defamed,

And many causelesse caused to be blamed:
 So did he ecke long after this remaine,
 Vntill that, whether wicked fate so framed,
 Or fault of men, he broke his yron chaine,
 And got into the world at liberty againe.

Thenceforth more mischief and more scath he wrought
 To mortall men, then he had done before;
 Ne euer could by any more be brought Into like bands, ne maystred any more:
 Albe that long time after Calidore,
 The good Sir Pelleas him tooke in hand,
 And after him Sir Lamoracke of yore,
 And all his brethren borne in Britaine land;
 Yet none of them could euer bring him into band.

So now he raungeth through the world againe,
 And rageth fore in each degree and state;
 Ne any is, that may him now restraine,
 He growen is so great and strong of late,
 Barking and biting all that him doe bate,
 Albe they worthy blame, or cleare of crime:
 Ne spareth he most learned wits to rate,
 Ne spareth he the gentle Poets rime,
 But rends without regard of person or of time.

Ne may this homely verse, of many meanest,
 Hope to escape his venemous despight,
 More then my former writs, all were they clearest
 From blamefull blot, and free from all that wite,
 With which some wicked tongnes did it backebite,
 And bring into a mighty Peres displeasure,
 That neuer so deserued to endite.

Therefore do you my rimes keep better measure, (sure,
 And seeke to please, that now is counted wisemens threa-
