SUGGESTIONS BY GOOD ROADS MEN

Inter-Provincial Meeting in
City of Quebec

Quebec, Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press)—Matters pertaining to highways throughout Canada were thoroughly discussed and passed upon at the Inter-Provincial Good Roads Conference here last night. Among the most important resolutions unanimously adopted was one urging limitation of the speed of auto buses to twenty miles an hour.
Uniform regulations regarding vehicular traffic were left with the Governments of the various provinces to deal with.
The conference condemned the unreasonable speed of some vehicles and suggested that severe penalties should be enforced, such as the loss of license or a jail term should the offence be repeated.
The elimination of grade railway crossings was urged wherever possible.

All provinces will have uniform regulations regarding headlights on all types of cars. This will be two white lights on the front of the vehicle and one red lamp at the rear.
Another regulation urged with a view to public safety was the control by the Government of all danger signs.
Autonomy.
The following resolution was passed on motion of Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Highways of Ontario: "That this conference go on record as approving the principle of provincial autonomy in matters of road building, and that the selection of routes for roads to be approved, be made with the following objects in view: (1) Local service; (2) eventually to co-ordinate the roads within the province; (3) that the system when completed may form a comprehensive whole and the inter-provincial road connection be made part of such plan."
The conference will also make an endeavor to have the International Good Roads Congress held in Canada in 1926. This congress will be held in Spain next year.

COMPLETELY FREE OF CONSTIPATION

Tried for Years to Find Relief

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE IT
Chronic Constipation or insufficient action of the bowels, is one of the great causes of disease. Some authorities even claim that Constipation cannot be permanently corrected. This is a great mistake, because here is the proof that constipation can be cured and the bowels made to act regularly and naturally.
Yarmouth, N.S.
"For years, I was troubled with Constipation, and had to take laxatives and purgatives all the time. If I neglected to take these, the bowels would refuse to do their work."
"About two years ago, a friend advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives,' which I did. The first box helped me so much that I obtained further supplies of the remedy and continued the treatment. After using about eight boxes, my bowels were able to perform their particular function without aid."
"The relief in my case has been lasting, as up to date, I have never had any further trouble. I can recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to all suffering as I did and I am sure they will derive equal benefit."
A. W. FRANKLIN
"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

TO TRADE AGAIN WITH GERMANY

New Zealand to Place High Duties on Incoming Goods

Dominion's Defence Forces Reduced; Economy

Times Correspondence.
Wellington, New Zealand, Oct. 20.—New Zealand will resume direct trading with Germany within three months. Already quantities of German goods have come into the country through British firms. However, a direct trading will now be permitted subject to a modification of the customs which Parliament will make. This bill will enable high duties to be placed on German goods up to 75 per cent. of their value.
Australia has already penalized German goods to this extent but the existing law in New Zealand imposes duties only up to 25 per cent. of their value. Now the Government proposes to insert a clause in the Customs Act placing the manufacturers and exporters in Germany in a worse position than the British manufacturers despite the extraordinary advantage given Germany in the fall of the mark.
Defence Forces.
Heavy reductions made for reasons of economy in the New Zealand defence forces have, in the opinion of the general officer commanding, General Sir E. Chaytor, greatly lowered their efficiency.
In a report to Parliament the general says that the defence forces, now reduced to 45,000 officers and men, are not now able to provide "refresher" courses in aviation, nor to maintain former camps of instruction, nor the officers to go to the Indian army for special service. A saving of half a million dollars had been made during the years and the total defence vote now was only $1,500,000.
A Daring Cruise.
In a little yacht of not much more than 100 tons, J. Percival Jefferson and his wife with a party of three friends, all from Santa Barbara, California, are crossing the Pacific to New Zealand. Already the expedition has made calls at Fiji, Tahiti and even the Cocos Islands, where the members did a little treasure hunting on their own, but did not find any. They propose to visit Australia, the New Hebrides and the Solomon and return to San Francisco across the Pacific.
An Unusual Accident.
Easily the most astonishing motor car accident in the history of New Zealand happened in Wellington recently.
Wellington is a city of hills and terraces. The easiest way to reach one's suburban residence is by balcony. A motorist coming along one of these terraces lost control of his car. It crashed through a fence, fell ten feet to the road below, down, then launched itself into the air and fell 60 feet straight down, all four wheels as if they were still planted on the solid earth, until it was brought up by the bump when it hit the third terrace.
It stopped outside the door of a suburban home. The driver remained at the wheel and neither he nor the engine was damaged, though needless to say, the wheels gave way.
No Women Justices.
Women in New Zealand are furious with the Legislative Council, the Upper House under the New Zealand constitution. After the Government had given facilities for the passage of a bill to give women the right of becoming justices of the peace, the Legislative Council incontinently killed it, giving as its reason that the "time is not ripe."
Such a reason is usually all that women get in New Zealand. They have had the vote for twenty years but the male section of the community is averse from giving them anything else. In the House of Representatives the Premier, Mr. Massey, himself supported the bill, which was actually carried unanimously. But the Upper Chamber would have none of it and unannouncedly rejected it.

MURDER TRIALS MEAN NOTHING TO ESKIMO MEN

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—The Eskimo mind, failing to comprehend "white man's justice" as punishment for crime, is likely to put an end, for a time at least, to the bringing of natives of the Far North out to civilization for trial for murder.
The Eskimo, especially when he or one of his fellows has admitted killing a white man, finds it extremely difficult to understand why the red-coated mounted policeman, representative of the white man's law, should not shoot him on sight, but instead should bring him out to civilization where a big white chief, dressed like a woman, sits on a bench and hears another white chief say, on the Eskimo's behalf, that though he killed the white man in question he should not be punished.
Several natives having been brought out to civilization for trial, given good treatment and then returned to their own people fatter than when they left, the Eskimo mind has been unable to understand this situation when all of the murderers' friends had given them up for dead, in some cases the men having confessed to the murders of whites.
Because of this confusion in the minds of the natives it is likely that the alleged Eskimo murderers now being held at Herschell Island will be tried there by a specially constituted court which will leave Edmonton next Spring for the purpose. In the meantime, the Eskimos are being given their preliminary trials before Inspector Wood of the Mounted Police, who is in charge here.
One of the alleged murderers to be tried by the special court next Spring is Aikomiak, who confessed to the murder of Corporal Doak and Otto Binder of the Hudson's Bay Company. According to the statement of Aikomiak to Inspector Wood he had been arrested by Doak for his share in other murders, and had determined that rather than be brought out to civilization he would end his life. He therefore shot Doak while the latter was lying asleep, with the idea "that Doak would get mad, seize his revolver and shoot him (the Eskimo) dead."
After shooting Doak, the report states, the native waited outside the police buildings for some time for Doak to come out and shoot him. Then when he saw the Hudson's Bay man approaching the police quarters the native shot Binder, and with the help of a native woman placed his body in the buildings and started for a seal camp, where other Mounted Policemen were located. Before reaching there he was persuaded by other Eskimos to give himself again into custody and did so.

PROTECTION FOR BRITISH TENANTS

London, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press Cable)—An interim report has been issued by a Government committee with a view to dissipating the widespread anxiety of householders and other tenants lest the war-time act against eviction and unreasonable increases in rentals should not be renewed when it expires next June.

BUSY MONTH AHEAD OF LOCAL INSTITUTE

Institute Work and Method Explained by Mrs. Crocker.

At the regular meeting of the Victoria Women's Institute, yesterday afternoon the president, Mrs. H. Crocker, gave an interesting report on Institute work and method, which proved conclusively that these bodies are a powerful factor in the Dominion. There are over 100,000 members in Canada alone, all of whom are working under the same plan of work. Mrs. Crocker explained clearly and concisely the activities of the Women's Institutes and their relation to the Department of Agriculture, more particularly in inference to British Columbia.

Another speaker at the meeting was the Rev. H. T. Archbold, who spoke on "Social Hygiene," dealing with the preventive and educational phases of the work. The speaker laid particular stress on an equal moral standard, the importance of the home, and the importance of the training of the child. Mr. Archbold was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. A report of the Vancouver Island District Conference was given by the official delegate, Mrs. D. Todd. The following month promises to be an exceptionally busy one for the Victoria Institute. On Wednesday afternoon, October 27, Mrs. F. W. Leung will hold a silver tea and sale of home-cooking at her home, Stanley Avenue, in aid of the Institute funds. On Saturday evening, November 4, the Institute will hold a whist drive in the Institute rooms, Surrey-Block. Christmas bazaar to be held the early part of December, under the convener-ship of Mrs. Baillies. A pianoforte solo, "Tarantelle," played by Mrs. Ernest Yeo gave much pleasure.

Some discussion took place on the advisability of conducting night classes and it was decided to conduct public-speaking and debating, and one in millinery, it possible. At the conclusion of the business was served by Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Copeland and Miss Patterson. The hostesses for the fortnightly meeting on November 3 will be Mesdames Campbell, Coleman, Hall and Stephen.

PRETTY WEDDING AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Miss Jean M. Moffat Becomes Bride of Ian McLorie

On Thursday evening a very pretty wedding took place at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, when the Rev. W. L. Clay united in the holy bonds of matrimony Miss Jean Margaret, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Moffat, of 326 Heywood Avenue, and Ian, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John McLorie, 534 Empress Street. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a gown of peach satin and radium lace trimmed with pearls and a large picture hat to match. She carried a large shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Peden, cousin of the bride, becomingly attired in a mauve taffeta dress trimmed with silver, with hat to match, and Miss Marjorie Moffat, the bride's youngest sister, similarly attired in satin. Both carried large bouquets of pink roses and white chrysanthemums. The groom was supported by Mr. Donald Smith, while Mr. John Moffat and Mr. Thomas Moffat, brothers of the bride, acted as ushers. The church, which was filled with guests and friends, was tastefully decorated by friends of the bride. During the signing of the register Miss Davis sang "O Promise Me," with Mr. Jesse Longfield at the piano. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple standing beneath a white wedding bell. Mrs. Moffat, mother of the bride, was becomingly gowned in brown Canton crepe and hat to match and Mrs. McLorie, mother of the groom, looked smart in grey crepe de Chine and grey hat. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. McGowen and daughter, of Vancouver, and Mrs. Williams, of Eburne. The bridegroom gifts to the bride was a gold bar pin set with pearls and diamonds, to the best man a gold penknife, to the bridesmaid a silver vanity case and a gold locket and chain. The bride's present to the bridegroom was a diamond set pin. After a honeymoon in Vancouver and vicinity Mr. and Mrs. McLorie will reside in Victoria.

A very enjoyable time was spent on Thursday evening at the C. F. B. Social Club, 500 Drive, held in the Empress Hotel. Seventeen tables were in play, and the first prize, after a "cut" was taken part in, was won by Mrs. Buckley, Mrs. Peters, Messrs. Stringer and D. C. Robertson. The second prize was given to Mrs. Cuthbert, Mrs. Lancaster, Messrs. Silburn and Watson. The "booby" prize created great merriment, when it was handed to such veteran players as Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Leblanc, Messrs. Buckley and Tea was served in the dining room, the tea table centred with pink roses and nuptials.

SMART WEDDING AT CHEMAINUS

Nuptials Thursday of Miss Dorothy Dunne and Major Williams-Freeman

Duncan, Oct. 20.—A very charming wedding took place at 2:30 p. m. Thursday, at All Saints Church, Chemainus River, when Dorothy Edith Florence, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dunne, of Crofton, became the bride of Major Francis Williams-Freeman, D. S. O., of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. C. W. Dunne, looked lovely in a crepe de chine dress with a beautiful veil of old Limerick lace which had been in the family for generations and belonged to her younger sister, Gretta.

The bride's youngest sister, Betty, was bridesmaid, and Mr. W. Colfer, of Salt Spring Island was best man. The church was beautifully decorated by Madames Groves, R. J. Barclay, Marpole and Miss Watson. Owing to the smallness of the vestry only the immediate family of the bride and Mrs. Barnes, her godmother, were present at the signing of the register.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's father in Crofton. The bride's health was proposed by Col. Barnes.

The bride's going away dress was fawn with touches of pale blue satin, a black hat with silver, and a beautiful fox fur, the gift of her grandfather, Mr. Fisher.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. L. Stephenson, of Ladysmith, the bride's uncle, assisted by the Rev. H. D. Porter, rector of All Saints Church.

After a wedding trip to England Major and Mrs. Williams-Freeman will return to Somerset to live.

CASUAL WORK FOR WOMEN NEEDED

From the Women's Branch of the Employment Service of Canada, comes the request to the householders of the town that they will give what work they can to the women.

"The women need the work, too often they are the only wage-earner in the family, and their earnings in the week do not provide more than bare necessities in the home. There are generally children in that home, and that is the reason why the women have to do must be of a casual nature. There are many women registered at the Employment Bureau who are excellent workers."

"Well, I don't know what I said, old man. I know what I thought. I thought just precisely what you're thinking. Yes, I had a furiously vivid recollection of old Bright as I'd seen him a couple of hours before of wanting to buy the Tables of Stone at me, and of his extraordinary remark about Sabre—I had put two and two together (same as you) and I jolly near fell down dead. I did. Jolly near."

"But Sabre was going on, pleasant and natural. 'Go on, please. Miss Bright was here as companion to my wife while I was in France. Now she's staying here a bit. Put the baby on the sofa, Effie, and let's get to work. I'd like you two to be friends. How about it? I was at school together, you know, about a thousand years ago. They used to call him Porker because he was so thin.'"

"The girl smiled faintly. I put up an hysterical sort of squeak, and we sat down. The meal wasn't precisely a banquet. We helped ourselves and we stacked up the soiled plates as we used them. No servants, I'd say. No. That was pretty clear by wedding ring; wife, no servants, no servants, no servants, and old Bright's daughter's baby—and Sabre."

"I suppose it was. I'd heard my voice some times. The easy flow Sabre had started with didn't last long. The girl hardly spoke. I watched her a lot. I liked the look of her pretty in a vivacious sort of way before she ran up against her trouble, whatever it was. I'd say whatever it was. I knew; though, mind you, I was guessing pretty shrewdly. It was lying there on the sofa it was lying there on the sofa, wrapped up in what you call me swaddling clothes. Yes, uncommonly swaddling clothes. But now Sabre—said as a young widow at the funeral, that sort of look. It was her eyes, that especially. He showed a great pool in a shadow. If I may quote poetry at you.

H. G. WELLS FAMOUS OUTLINE OF HISTORY The Romance of Mother Earth

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT—36

When Men Began to Dwell in Cities

Problems in History

Do you know—

Who were the first city builders?

Do you know—

The story of Sargone, the first of earth's military conquerors, who lived 2,700 years ago?

Do you know—

Who founded Babylon, and what wars were waged with it?

Do you know—

How many thousands of years the idea of irrigation and the cultivation of wheat spread over the entire eastern hemisphere.

Answers to tomorrow's instalment of H. G. Wells' "Outline of History."

It was out of the so-called hellelithic culture we have described that the first beginnings of anything that we call civilization arose.

It is still doubtful whether we are to consider Mesopotamia or Egypt the earlier scene of the two parallel beginnings of settled communities living in towns. By 400 B.C. in both these regions of the earth, such communities existed and had been going on for a very considerable time.

The excavations of the American expedition at Nippur have unearthed evidence of a city community existing there at least as early as 5,000 B.C., and probably as early as 6,000 B.C., an earlier date than anything we know of in Egypt.

The late Mr. Aaronson found a real wild wheat upon the slopes of Mount Hermon, and it must be found somewhere in that part of the world its cultivation began. It may be that from the western end of the Mediterranean, possibly in some region now submerged, as a centre that the cultivation of wheat spread over the entire eastern hemisphere.

Civilization Defined

But cultivation is not civilization; the growing of wheat had spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast with the distribution of the neolithic culture by perhaps 15,000 or 20,000 B.C. before the beginning of civilization. Civilization is something more than the occasional growing of wheat. It is the settlement of men upon an area, continuously cultivated and possessed, who live in buildings continuously inhabited with a common rule and a common city or citadel.

For a long time civilization may have possibly been developed in Mesopotamia without any relations with the parallel beginnings in Egypt. The two settlements may have been quite independent, arising separately out of the widely diffused hellelithic culture. Or they may have had a common origin in the region of the Mediterranean, the Red Sea and southern Arabia.

The first condition necessary to a real settling down of neolithic man, as distinguished from a mere temporary settlement among abundant food, was of course a trustworthy supply of water, food for themselves and building material for their homes. There had to be everything they could need at any season and no want that would tempt them to wander farther.

This was a possible state of affairs, no doubt, in many European and Asiatic valleys and in many such valleys, as in the case of the Swiss lake dwellings, men settled from a very early date indeed; but nowhere, of any country now known to us, were these favorable conditions found upon such a scale, and nowhere did they hold good so surely year in and year out as in Egypt and in the country between the upper waters of the Euphrates and Tigris and the Persian Gulf.

A Land of Plenty

Here was a constant water supply under enduring sunlight; trustworthy harvests year by year; in Mesopotamia wheat yielded, says Herodotus, two hundredfold to the sower; there were abundant palms and many sorts of fruits; and as for building material, in Egypt there was clay and in Mesopotamia worked stone, and in Mesopotamia madic. The settled sort began to rely more and more upon grain for food; the nomad began to make a greater use of milk for food. He bred his cows for milk.

The two ways of life specialised in opposite directions. It was inevitable that nomad folk and the settled folk should clash, that the nomads should seem hard barbarians to the settled peoples, and the settled peoples soft and effeminate and very good plunder to the nomad peoples. Along the fringes of the developing civilizations there must have been a constant raiding and bickering between hardy nomad tribes and mountain tribes and the more numerous and less warlike peoples in the towns and villages.

For the most part this was a mere raiding of the borders. The settled folk had the weight of numbers on their side; the herdsmen might raid and loot, but they could not stay. That sort of mutual friction might go on for many generations.

But ever and again we find some leaders of the nomads, the disorganizers of free and independent nomads powerful enough to force a sort of unity upon their kindred tribes, and then was the nearest approach to a Down pour the united nomads on the unwarlike, unarmed plains, and there ensues a war of conquest.

The Conquerors Conquered

Instead of carrying off the booty, the conquerors settle down on the conquered land, which becomes all booty for them; the villagers and townspeople are reduced to servitude and tribute-paying, they become hewers of wood and drawers of water, and the leaders of the nomads become kings and princes, masters and aristocrats. They, too, settle down; they learn many of the arts and refinements of the conquered, they cease to be lean and hungry, but for many generations they retain traces of their old nomadic habits, they hunt and indulge in open air sports, they drive chariots, they regard work, especially agricultural work, as the lot of an inferior race and class.

This in a thousand variations has been one of the main stories in history for the last seventy centuries or more. In the first history that we can clearly decipher, we find already in all the civilized regions a distinction between a non-working ruler class and the working mass of the population.

As we find, too, that after some generations, the aristocrat, having settled down, begins to respect the arts and refinements and to lose something of his original hardihood. He intermarries, he catches up a sort of tolerance between conquerors and the conquered, he exchanges religious ideas and learns the lessons upon which soil and climate insist. He becomes a part of the civilization he has captured. And as he does so, events gather towards a fresh invasion by the free adventurers of the outer world.

SAANICH POLICE BALL PLANNED NEXT WEEK

Annual Function of District Force Will Attract Numbers

The annual ball of the Saanich Police Department will be staged at the Agricultural Hall, Saanichton, on Wednesday evening next, under the patronage of the Reeve, members of the council and police commissioners of the district. This will be the thirtieth annual holding of the event, which on the former occasions proved a pronounced success.

Special arrangements have been made with tally-ho for the transportation of guests. A tally-ho will leave the City Hall at 8.15 p. m. for the scene of the dance, while the regular interurban trains will be of use in the same connection. Arrangements have been made to supplement this service by a late train and further buses. Tickets may be obtained from the committee in charge of the arrangements, under Chief Brogan, at the Royal Oak headquarters, or at the city police station. Dress will be informal.

The catering is under the care of the West Saanich Women's Institute, and special arrangements are planned in this connection. Ozard's orchestra will officiate and promise something in the nature of a dance programme de luxe. Spurred on by the success of their former annual balls the police committee workers are sparing no pains to make this year's event an outstanding one in the annals of the association.

The ball is given in aid of a charitable cause, and if last year's function be a criterion the ball will be one of the popular events of the Saanich dancing season. Arrangements have been made to take care of 350 guests, and it is expected that that number may be exceeded.

LILLOOET'S MASTER PASSES SUDDENLY

Capt. Fred. H. Griffith Succumbs at Queen Charlotte City

Had Been With Government Steamer Since She Was Commissioned

Another well-known figure in Victoria shipping circles has been removed in the death of Capt. Fred H. Griffith, master of the Dominion Hydrographic Survey steamer Lillooet, who succumbed to an apoplectic seizure yesterday at Queen Charlotte City.

Arrangements have been made by Capt. Saunders, Agent of Marine at Prince Rupert, to ship the body to Victoria for burial.

The late Capt. Griffith was 59 years of age and was a native of St. Martins, N.B. He came out to Victoria in the early days of sealing and commanded various schooners plying out of this port to the Behring Sea sealing grounds.

The late Capt. Griffith leaves a widow and two sons residing at 2011 Cook Street and three sisters in the Maritime Provinces, one in New Brunswick and two in Nova Scotia.

FINE MOTOR LINER FOR AUSTRALIAN RUN

Passenger Ship Fitted With Internal Combustion Engines Building For B. C. Service, Announces Charles Holdsworth, Managing Director of Union Steamship Company.

A magnificent new passenger liner will be available for the Canadian-Australasian service on the Pacific by the Fall of 1924, it was announced by Charles Holdsworth, managing director of the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, who was a passenger sailing from this port to-day by the liner Makura for Australia.

This ship, in addition to being a palatial passenger liner, will be in a class by herself on the Pacific. She will be the first great trans-Pacific passenger liner fitted with high-power internal combustion engines.

Mr. Holdsworth announced that the contract had been let to Fairfields, Glasgow, the ship to be launched in twenty months. She will be between 19,000 and 20,000 net-registered tons, 600 feet long, 73 feet beam, with a conservatively estimated speed of 17.5 knots.

In 1915 the Union Company built the steamship Aotearoa for the Victoria and Vancouver service. She was taken by the admiralty for war service, fitted as an armed cruiser, sent to sea under the name of Avenger, and later sunk by a submarine.

The Union Company has been anxious since to replace her, but the difficulty of securing a berth in the British shipyards and the high prices, delayed the contract until the present.

The new steamer will accommodate 220 passengers. It has always been the practice to build ahead of present demands, and this ship is no exception to this practice.

There are only two full internal combustion passenger ships in the world. They are low-powered. However, the success of these, and the fast freighters of various companies that are powered by internal combustion engines, has persuaded the Union Company to build a high-powered craft of this type in order to keep abreast with marine development.

The new ship will have between 12,000 and 13,000 shaft horsepower. For passengers she will have spacious and comfortable cabins. The cargo capacity will be exceptionally large. These conditions are made possible by the fact that her internal combustion engines do not require nearly the bunker space for fuel that ordinary coal ships do.

Among the larger number of one and two-berth cabins and the accommodations for 400 deck passengers. There will be only thirty first-class cabins, with more than two berths, and there will be eight cabins do luxe. In addition there will be a large and well-equipped gymnasium, a very fine cafe, and a soda fountain.

The Union S. S. Company of New Zealand has been operating fast liners and freighters to B. C. since 1906. It has 230,000 tons of shipping, with a total of eighty ships on the ocean. In service to Canada, United Kingdom, United States and coastwise in Australasia.

Draw By-laws—Following the regular meeting of the school-boys' clubs at the Y. M. C. A., each separate club went into session and drew up its own constitution and by-laws, charmingly arranged, and of such matters through actual practise.

A Correction—The sweep stake special prize for 10 best orpington birds, any one variety at Victoria Provincial Show, was won by A. Foulkes, 144 Walnut St., and not J. Corlett as stated in the Daily paper some time ago. The mistake was made by J. Corlett our Victoria Poultry Association's secretary's assistant.

Concert Enjoyed—A recital in aid of the funds of the Women's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church was given at the Gordon Head Hall last night before a large gathering. Miss Clare Powell and Madame Lillian Atfield contributed a number of selections that were highly appreciated. Mrs. MacGovern played the accompaniments. The programme, charmingly arranged, contained a number of works from famous masters. Hearty votes of thanks were passed to those assisting in the concert.

Evening Registration—Arrangements have been made to have a rotary public at the City Clerk's office throughout the coming week from 7 to 9 p.m. to take registrations for the civic voters' list. The staff in the clerk's office has found the work in connection with the voters' list so heavy that it has been unable to get the routine work attended to. Members of the public who can do so are asked to delay registration until the evening. The new arrangement at the City Hall will give labor the evening service which it requires. The officers elected are as follows:

Elected Officers—At the annual meeting of the Mentors of this city at the Y. M. C. A. last night the election of officers was held. Discussion of the Duncan conference also met with approval. It is the intention to rally all city boys to attend this conference and go there in a trolley at 8 o'clock on Friday. The officers elected are as follows:

President, Mr. Fred Bartholomew; vice-president Mr. J. T. Barratt; secretary, Mr. Harold Cross; executive members in addition to officers mentioned, Messrs. James McEwan, A. B. Merrick and Grant Johnston.

Many Crews Shot—The shooting of carrion crows for the twenty cents a head bounty continued briskly throughout the year. The records in the local office of the provincial police dealing with the southern section of the island, shows that 4900 has been paid out for 2,000 heads since April 1 of this year. Yesterday an individual high mark was set by Charles Jones, a logger from Jordan River district, when 104 heads were laid on the counter of the local police office. Mr. Jones received $20.80 for his bag. The Indians in particular have taken kindly to the carrion-crow hunting, bringing many bags of heads in for exchange for Canadian currency. In this manner many have collected excellent pocket money, while they proceed about their business.

Many Attend Exhibit—The Island Arts and Crafts Society exhibition in the Belmont Building has been well attended since the opening, and many complimentary remarks have been heard of the high quality of the exhibits from the various visitors. Something like 250 visitors in two days speaks well for the effort by the members. The crafts too, seem to interest the people, as there is a constant going and coming of interested spectators. The tea room is proving a popular rendezvous for the exchanging of opinions regarding the exhibition. Here too is a very fine collection of paintings, one of

"A Terrible Experience"

I Recall My Experiences with the Burglar with Feelings of Horror!

"How would you feel if you awakened in the middle of the night with a flashlight shining in your eyes and the gruff voice of a man threatening that 'if you make the slightest noise, I'll shoot!' That was my experience the end of last March when my husband was away in the woods and I was alone with my three children. Evertime I think of this experience a shudder passes over me and as long as I live I shall remember it. At the time I really thought I would die. It's a wonder my heart did not stop beating. I was so weak that even if I had any desire to move, I could not. I was bathed in a cold, clammy perspiration. Even to recall the shocking details now makes me shudder. It was a result of this shock that I contracted a high fever and for hours at a time I was delirious. I got so bad that the doctor finally gave up hope of my ever recovering, but by careful nursing, I was finally pronounced out of danger. The shock had left me so weak, that for no reason whatever, I would suddenly burst into tears. All this life seemed to have been taken out of me. I kept getting weaker and weaker, so much so that my husband and children were constantly worrying about me. Doctors prescribed for me and while I willingly tried their medicines, only very few of them did me any good, but unfortunately the good was not lasting. My family asked me if I would try Carnol and I said, 'I was willing to try anything,' but felt that it would not do me any good. I had been Carnol taken regularly, has completely restored my former health and strength and, while I occasionally recall my experience with the burglar with feelings of horror, I am otherwise as well and strong as I have ever been. Carnol is the most wonderful preparation I have ever used for building and restoring health and strength. It has done wonders for several of my friends to whom I have recommended it." Mrs. McC. of...

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money.

Canadian Legion Whist Drive—The usual Friday evening whist drive conducted by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion was held last evening in the club rooms. There was a very satisfactory attendance, twenty tables being occupied. At the termination of the drive, dancing took place, music being supplied by Mrs. Ridgway. Prizes were given as follows: First prize (special), Mrs. Johnstone; second, Mrs. Greaves; third, Mrs. O'Connell. First guest, Mr. Hancock; second, Mr. Miller, and third, Mr. Stevens.

Saanich Tax Collections—Eighty-four per cent of the annual tax levy in Saanich had been paid into the Municipal Treasury when the fifteen per cent penalty became effective on October 11, according to figures completed yesterday by Collector Sewell. This is a small improvement over 1921, when 82 per cent was paid in at the same date. The amounts received from the various wards show some variations from the totals collected last year, the reductions in the waterfront tax in Wards Two and Seven affecting the collections in those districts, while

WORDS OF PRAISE FOR BABY'S OWN TABLETS

No medicine receives such great praise from thankful mothers as do Baby's Own Tablets. Once a mother has used them for her little ones she will use nothing else. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative. They regulate the bowels and stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion; relieve colds and simple fevers; promote healthy sleep and make teething easy. Concerning them Mrs. Omer LeBou, Maddington Falls, Que., writes: "I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets and will always use them for my little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. (Adv.)

Halderson Coming To Claim Uniform

"Slim" Will Quit His Job In Detroit and Be On Coast Within Ten Days; Intends to Start In Where He Left Off Last Spring; Lester Patrick Now Has Two Right-Handed Shots In "Slim" and Oatman For New Game.

Harold "Slim" Halderson, the flashy young hockey player, is coming west to claim his uniform, according to a letter received by Lester Patrick, manager of the Aristocrats. "Slim" is now working in a flivver factory in Detroit, but as soon as the hockey call went forth he started to collect his furs and bolts and get his department in shipshape preparatory to handing in his resignation and pulling out for Victoria.

"Slim" is a big favorite with the fans. Built on the lines of a racehorse, he is not a very rugged youngster, but he has taken on another ten pounds this Summer, which an expert mathematician figures out is one pound to every seven and one-half inches of "Slim's" height.

"Slim" took a lot of nasty bumps last season. In the opening game here Bobby Rowe zipped into him at the end of boards and the blow took all the starch out of him and caused "Slim" to look like a false alarm. But as the season progressed and "Slim" began to retaliate and give the boys to understand that if they handed him anything they were getting to get something in return he was not treated to such a rough passage. He got used to the seven-man game and assisted by his beautiful stick-handling and his long, graceful stride, which carried him over the ice like an antelope, he became one of the bright lights of the league. "Slim" was going great guns when the season closed and he was a particular favorite with the fans. Anytime a visiting player gave "Slim" the hip or the elbow, the spectators nexted clamor over the rail to scalp the assailant.

Going to Start Fast

"Slim" intends to start in where he left off last year. He finished up a regular on the forward line and was able to stand the gaff for nearly sixty minutes. With six-man hockey Halderson should find the going easier, although the increased speed will use up his stamina. Still, after all, it's the body check that slows the boys up.

Lester Patrick is particularly pleased at getting "Slim" on his roster. It gives him two crackling goals in the hands and shots which is something one of the other teams in the circuit possess. Right-handed shots are as hard to locate as a two-bit hockey player. Lester will have Halderson and Eddie Oatman for that position. In six-man hockey it will be necessary to carry practically two forward lines in order to keep the players going at top speed. Lester will be able to alternate Eddie and "Slim" on right wing, and the attacking and defensive ability of the team will be kept at its normal strength no matter which of the boys is on the ice.

"Slim" is expected to pick up his transportation in Detroit early next month and be out on the Coast early next month.

"Freddie" on His Way

Frank Fredericksen, Halderson's team-mate of the old Falcons, has picked up his transportation and is now on his way to the Coast. He will be here late next week.

The Coast hockey moguls will gather in Vancouver on Monday to draft the schedule for the season and also see how each team lines up in players and carry out the annual strengthening process.

The schedule will be the longest in the history of Coast hockey and will open about the middle of November and continue until early in March. Much important news is expected to be issued after the meeting on Monday.

A movement is on foot in Vancouver to change the name of the team. For the past eleven years the team has been known as the Millionaires, but that is an unwieldy monogram. Last year the team was labelled the "Millies," which is fortunate in being able to abbreviate its sobriquet from Metropolitan to "Mets," and it goes down alright. Victoria is in last same bottle as Vancouver. The team here has been highly branded with the appellation of "Aristocrats." Last year this was shortened to "Arries," but even that does not flatter.

Suggestions have gone forth in Vancouver that the team be called the "Maroons." This is favored through the fact that the Millionaires' main color is maroon. However, those advancing that name evidently have not figured on other meanings of the word. For instance, suppose the Millionaires should find themselves in last place and be "marooned."

Known as Wild Men

Again, after consulting a venerable friend, Dan Webster, it is discovered that maroon also means "one of a class of native fellows, as they do not rank high as hockey players, even though they cause a riot of fun on the ice and are easy pickings for fast men like the Aristocrats. Last season Vancouver produced a play-senior who was branded as the "Wild Man of the Kootenays." The fans here hope Manager Lloyd Cook has some more of these fellows, as they do not rank high as hockey players, even though they cause a riot of fun on the ice and are easy pickings for fast men like the Aristocrats. GEORGE AND ABE HAD GOOD LUCK IN STATES

Duncan and Mitchell Won 40 Matches and Lost 10; Off For the Homeland

New York, Oct. 21.—George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, noted British golf professionals, were booked to sail for home to-day after an extensive tour of the United States.

The British pair won forty matches, lost ten and tied two during their invasion. Mitchell's 18-hole average for 102 rounds was 72.7 strokes and Duncan's 73.

Duncan won the Western New York open title leading Walter Hagen by five strokes, while Mitchell defeated Leo Diegel, in the playoff of a tie for the southern open championship.

The Southern Golf Association, however, refused to officially recognize the Briton's victory on the ground that three extra holes of play needed to break a second tie between Diegel and Mitchell at the end of the second round was not authorized.

Duncan finished sixth in the national game at Skokie with a score of 296, while Mitchell, with 303, failed to land among the money winners.

OTTAWA HOPES TO HALT ARGOS' RUSH

Win For Toronto Oarsmen To-day Will Assure Them of Dominion Title

McGill Team Shaken Up and Will Tackle Powerful Varsity Squad

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—Another stirring day in the eastern football world is scheduled for to-day with the championship honors, in all probability, hanging on the outcome.

In the capital, the mighty Argonauts machine for Toronto, led by the super-athlete, Lionel Conacher, will do battle with the Rough Riders in an effort to continue their unbroken string of victories. If victorious to-day, the Argos will have registered their own straight win, one series of which gave them the Dominion championship last year. Ottawas are hoping the hoodoo number will give them the opportunity of reinstating themselves in the football world. They have not won a start so far this season.

A Ghost's Chance.

Montreal and Hamilton Tigers, the other pair in the inter-provincial league, are not playing, but a surprise win by Ottawa to-day will hand one of them a ghost's chance of nosing into the championship.

The event of the eastern college world will be turned to Montreal where the McGill warriors, who went down before Queen's last Saturday, will battle for a star toward Dominion honors with the powerful crew from Toronto Varsity. Wisconsin are calling the Varsity to win the right to battle for the college championship with Queen's. However, this does not mean that the McGill squad has been through a thorough overhauling during the week.

A Football Feast.

In the Ontario unit play, Toronto will have a football feast.

The Parkdale team, with a victorious season to its credit so far, will strive to hold its position against the assault of the Hamilton Rowing Club, while the Varsity team in this league will meet the St. Brigid squad pointed to as one of the comers, but will be called upon to prove their mettle when the clash comes to-day.

WELLS GAINS DECISION.

Cecil Hay Equals Record In Hundred

Local Sprinter, Captain of McGill Squad, Showed Great Form In Inter-Collegiate Track Meet at Montreal Yesterday and Was Second In Aggregate; Kennedy Sets New High Jump Record; Varsity Hopelessly Beaten

Montreal, Oct. 21.—A record was broken and another equalled at the annual inter-collegiate track and field events meet held here yesterday at the Molson Stadium. Only Toronto and McGill competed, Queen's scratching at the last moment when the two entries found that nothing less than a team of eight entries could count for points. The contest ended with McGill carrying off the honors for the fourth year in succession with a total of 83 points against Toronto Varsity's 42.

W. H. Kennedy, of McGill, was the outstanding performer of the afternoon, accounting for 16 points for the McGill team and breaking the record in the high jump when he cleared five feet eight and seven-eighths inches, the former record being five feet eight inches, held jointly by O. S. Waugh, McGill, and H. C. Davis, Toronto. Cecil Hay, captain of the McGill track club, came second with 13 points. He equalled the inter-collegiate 100-yard record of 19 seconds flat.

Cecil Hay is a local boy and is well known here as a result of his springing performances during the past few years. During his holidays here this Summer he competed in many meets and won a number of events, chief of which was the quarter-mile Canadian championship at Calgary. He ran second in the 220 and third in the hundred in the Calgary meet.

Before leaving for Montreal to renew his studies Cecil made known his intention to go after the inter-collegiate record for the hundred. This is his last term at McGill and he will not get another chance to smash the mark. Hay equalled the record of ten seconds flat.

Montreal, Oct. 21.—Royal Military College, Kingston, was automatically suspended from the inter-collegiate track union on account of the failure of that institution to send a team to the meet here yesterday, it was announced at a meeting held at McGill Union Building.

GIRL BASKETEERS TO PERFORM TO-NIGHT

To-night's game between the Fidells and St. Andrew's Senior teams should prove to be one of the fastest exhibitions of girls' basketball seen here for some time.

The Fidells, from First Presbyterian Church, won the local Sunday School League Junior championship two years in succession, after which they went to Vancouver and captured the B. C. Junior championship. Their entry into Senior company this season will be watched with great interest as they are considered strong contenders for the Senior honors this year.

Isobel Crawford, captain of the team, is perhaps the most promising player in girls' basketball in the city. Jeanette McQueen plays a fine game at centre, while Vera MacNaughton, Iris Philbrook and Marjorie Breckinridge are all speedy players.

St. Andrew's girls have four of last season's players lined up for this season. Jean Burridge, Dorothy Melville, and Bellinda Hamilton played well all last season. Lois Worthington is a promising young player who will add greatly to the strength of St. Andrew's line-up this year.

Jessie Widdowson and Helen Boyce are the two new additions to the team.

A fast game between the Congregational Intermediates and St. Andrew's Intermediates will open the programme to-night. The games will be as follows: 7.30 p. m.—Boys' Intermediates: St. Andrew's vs. Congregational. 8.15 p. m.—Senior Girls: St. Andrew's vs. Fidells.

Sarazen Proves His Game Is Sound in Match With Hagen

By Roy Grove
Rye, N.Y., Oct. 21.—It was a question well answered. Answered by a twenty-five-year-old boy, Gene Sarazen, of the twenty-seventh hole of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club.
By defeating the greatest there was left of living golfers, Walter Hagen, he has proved his own greatness. Proved that there is nothing of a fluke about his game; it is not luck, there is nothing of the sensational excitement that he alone is playing his own game in a sensational way.
Severest Test of All
It is true that he defeated the pick of the American pros at the Oakland tournament, but Hagen, the master of British open champion, was not there.
The severest test of Gene Sarazen's golf was that of meeting Hagen over the marathon route of 5,605 yards at the Rye Links.
The defeat of Hagen proves Sarazen to be one of the greatest golfers in the history of the game. In addition to his medal and match plays that have won for him the open championship at Skokie and the P.G.A. tournament at Oakland, it is also remembered that he defeated the big three.
First Long Jim Barnes went down before the Bille fellow on the Homestead links and then he measured Jock Hutchinson, and now it is Hagen. More so Hagen, because he beat him at his own game, that of out-driving the famous Bing driver and at time out-approaching him.
Walter Hunter, former British amateur champion, remarked that he had never before in all his experience seen anybody drive so far, hard, accurate and so consistently as Sarazen.
It is true that Hagen has played better games than his exhibition with Sarazen, but it does not lessen the credit due the little Italian as Hagen's superior.

MARKS A SOFT MARK FOR CHARLEY WHITE

Canadian "Light" Champion Kayoed in Second Round; Whyte After Leonard

New York, Oct. 21.—Charley White, hard-hitting Chicago lightweight, stands out to-day as a "logical contender" for Benny Leonard's 135-pound title as a result of his sensational knockout of Sid Marks, Canadian lightweight champion, in Madison Square Garden last night.

White put Marks to sleep after fifty-nine seconds of the second round had elapsed, ending the fight with a smashing left hook to the jaw.

New York, Oct. 21.—Charley White, Chicago lightweight, knocked out Sid Marks, champion of the Canadian light-weight championship last night in the second round of a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden.

A left hook to the count of ten after fifty-nine seconds of the second round had elapsed. The end came with startling suddenness and almost before the battle had really begun.

White's decisive victory last night was regarded by ring experts as clinching his claims for a title contest with Benny Leonard, lightweight king.

DAVE BLACK BETTER; IS BACK ON LINKS

Vancouver, Oct. 21.—Dave Black, the professional of the Shaughnessy Heights Golf Club, who some time ago underwent a serious operation, has now recovered sufficiently to resume his game, and his lengthy absence from the links has not apparently interfered very seriously with his ability. On Thursday he played a third complete round since his illness, and his score for the eighteen holes was an even seventy. Dave hit a pair of birdie two on his card, one at the third hole and the other at the tenth.

HIGH SCHOOL RUGBY TEAMS TRAIN HARD

Two fifteens of the Victoria High School met this week in the first rugby battle of the year. The High School seniors were matched against the Juniors, the latter reinforced by several players from the Victoria College. The junior team was hopelessly light and untrained in the scrum and the ball invariably went to the seniors. Even with sixteen players on the junior team the seniors were able to walk away with the victory, 9-0.

Next Thursday the Victoria College and the Victoria High School will meet in the first of the inter-school games of the season. As the College is not in any league, the game will be fought as a test of ability. Both fifteens have decided that they shall play only thirteen men to a team. This pleases the College boys, as they are hard pressed to get a full team of trained players.

Oak Bay High School and the Victoria High will also meet sometime next week. The College is endeavoring to meet a game with the boys from Oak Bay and feel confident of a successful series. School rugby football this year is going to be exceedingly interesting.

THE PLAYHOUSE

If any one wants to have a real good laugh they should attend The Playhouse this week where the extremely funny farce, "What Happened to Jones," is holding the boards. There is no doubt that this is one of the funniest plays ever written, and it can be truly said that there is a laugh for every minute. There is not a serious minute in the whole performance, even if Ebenezer Goodly is threatened with terrible complications for a black eye received in escaping from the police who have raided a prize fight which he has been attending. To see this sedate college professor come in through his own window after a most embarrassing chase by the police and to witness the predicament he gets into in trying to explain is just one riot of fun, and the large audiences that have been in at-

Fun, and lots of it, was enjoyed on Harold Lloyd's set when "Grandma's Boy" was under production for Associated Exhibitors. Mr. Lloyd believes in the old adage, "Care will kill a cat," and is just as certain that smiles will infuse new spirit into a company. When something really funny happens nobody else laughs as heartily as he.

When the shooting of the interiors in Grandma's home was finished everybody was tired, for the scenes had been exacting. The "prop" boy had brought on the set a pair of handcuffs, which "Red" Golden, assistant director, was trying out for a "shot." For a joke, the cuffs were snapped on Golden's wrists and for an hour the whole company chuckled at "Red's" expense. When he was released the assistant director, quick as a flash, joined the wrists of Fred Newmayer and Sam Taylor, of the scenario staff, together, and for the rest of the afternoon these two had to move in unison.

COLUMBIA

"Ten Nights in a Barroom" is one of those pictures which deals with a subject with which half the universe is familiar. While it is a strong human interest story, it also deals with one of the great sociological problems of the times, that is intemperance in the use of alcoholic stimulants. The danger from this great evil is gradually becoming less, even in countries where liquors of which alcohol is a basic ingredient, is still the rule, rather than the exception. In putting the subject into motion pictures, the idea has been to portray a great human drama with the coloring drawn from the well known incidents usually associated with the barroom. The special feature to-day and final performance to-night no doubt will see the Columbia Theatre crowded to its capacity. This being one feature which the management has considered well worth an entire week's engagement.

CAPITOL

To the North Pole in a forty-five foot sloop!
That was the goal at one time of J. Farrel Macdonald, character actor playing Sam Marcum in "The Ghost Breaker," Wallace Reid's new Paramount picture, now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Macdonald and his adventurous associates got into a big jam when they had penetrated quite a ways into the frozen north and were forced to return and give up the expedition. It was for this and other unusual adventures in his past career that Macdonald was made a member of the Adventurers' Club, which had the names of Admiral Peary and other noted adventurers on its roster.

ROYAL VICTORIA

Deep, inside stuff of the motion picture producers reveals the fact that John M. Stahl and Milton Sills were recent undergraduates at a medical school in the far west.

No, they weren't plotting towards an M.D. degree. The incident was simply in the course of business and goes to show to what extent motion picture producers are willing to go for the sake of realism and accuracy. In the story of "One Clear Call," John Stahl's latest First National attraction, Milton Sills, in a featured role, is called upon to perform an unusual and dangerous medical operation. The scene casting him as a skilful surgeon demanded that the feat should be one that might be recorded to the credit of an unusual physician perhaps once in a lifetime.

Not satisfied with a research of medical records for such an operation, Mr. Stahl and his leading man attended a medical college for several weeks to learn by personal watching the exact manner in which such a case would be handled. The gist of their learning is embodied in one of the most unusual scenes ever filmed in "One Clear Call," which will be shown for the last time to-day at the Royal Victoria Theatre.

"THE ETERNAL FLAME" FEATURED NEXT WEEK AT ROYAL VICTORIA

A cast of unusual brilliance surrounds Norma Talmadge in her picture of Balzac's "The Duchess of Langeais," which goes to the Royal screen at the Royal Victoria Theatre next week as "The Eternal Flame."

Norma herself runs the gamut of emotions in the leading role of the Duchess of Langeais, the famous court beauty whose character dominated the court of Louis XVIII in the Second Restoration Period and whose romance with General de Montriveau forms one of the most vivid and dramatic achievements from the pen of Balzac.

Conway Tearle again proves himself an actor of sterling worth in his convincing portrayal of De Montriveau, the warrior friend of Napoleon, who falls in love with the beautiful Duchess. In the end, he finds a revenge for her apparent deceit, finds he cannot mar her beauty, then meets out the deadliest of all punishments by ignoring her altogether.

Adolphe Jean Menjou portrays the role of the jealous but loveless Duc de Langeais, who is killed in battle. Rosemary Theby enacts the part of Madame de Serizy, court rival of the Duchess of Langeais, of whom she is bitterly envious. Otis Harlan is said to give an inimitable characterization of the Abbe Gonrand, spiritual adviser and confessor of the Duchess. Wedgwood Nowell is seen

Victoria's Three Great Laundries

Will Hold

PUBLIC RECEPTIONS

Daily From 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Beginning

October 23, and Thereafter

Until the Evening of the 27th

Very few people have any idea of how the modern laundries of to-day are run. As we are all seeking knowledge, we believe our "open house" will prove both a revelation and an education to the adults and children of Victoria and Vancouver Island.

It will prove a most interesting surprise to you to watch the almost human-like machinery whirring round in its efforts to do your laundry work as you would wish it done. The machine whose duty it is to do shirts, and his brother who does the collars; these, together with the mass of other mechanical contrivances, will also help to prove to you that our laundry prices are reasonable.

Also, it will equally surprise you to observe how colored goods are handled, how blankets, quilts, eiderdowns, pillows, etc., are washed, how the marking is done, how the bundles are piled, sorted and checked ready for delivery men.

You have possibly wanted to see under what conditions laundry girls and women work. Now is your opportunity—take advantage of it—you and yours are welcome.

Tenting on the New Camp Ground

By C. F. Crandell

Apart from the public camps, the thing most needed to attract the motor tourist is an adequate system of road markings, and here the average American State is way ahead of our Province. To be compelled to find the way by continually checking one's mileage with a tour book, is to ruin the party—generally a friend wife is condemned to keep her eye glued to "47.8 turn left at school house" and to throw sand in the bearings of the whole holiday machine. All of the main transcontinental highways are now so marked, each with its distinguishing color and design on posts of trees at every turn, that nothing more than a good map and a fairly watchful eye are needed to keep one's toes from slipping at top speed, with continually pleasant surprise of the right trail. In our 4,599 miles of journey, our party never once went astray, though we never bothered with a route book from start to finish.

For the best of mental comfort in this connection, the motorist should be a member of his local Automobile Club and, carry his card with him. It will bring him not only the best of service and information everywhere, but in most cities will furnish him with all maps he wants, marked for his personal requirements by courteous club officials.

Camp Equipment Necessary.
What equipment does one need for a motor camping tour? I have often been asked. Here is what we had for a party of four.

We got the back of the front seat cut down and hinged, so that it would fold back to meet the rear seat, making a very comfortable bed for two, as is Pullman. When in ordinary use the movable back is held in place by self-locking clips that are almost invisible and prevent all rattling. It interferes in no way with the strength or appearance of the car, and cost only about as much as an extra tent and two cot equipment. Any good car upholsterer can do it.

For sleeping accommodation for the other two we had a lean-to tent, that can sit on the fastened to the side of the car, or be upheld by two small jointed poles at the open side, which is closed by a flap when needed. This type of tent is better than those which depend entirely upon the car for support, as the car is free for driving if required, after the camp is made. Be sure the tent material is stout enough to stand heavy rain. Be sure also to get metal tent pegs and save yourself a lot of fuss and trouble.

For the rest we had two folding cots, a folding table, four folding camp chairs (get the kind with backs to them) you'll be glad if it after the dinner is done, the dishes washed, two rubber basins, a folding canvas bucket, an axe, a small shovel, a stout rope for towing (trouble), a tarpaulin to cover your bedding by day, and throw over the exposed side of the car by night, lots of bedding, a couple of changes of clothes (including flannel unders for its cold in the high hills even in midsummer) extra shoes all around; waterproof coats, and I almost forgot one of the most useful things of the lot—a gasoline stove for cooking. You can get a good two burner type for from $9 to $12. It cooks food as quickly as a gas stove and is incomparably better than having to depend upon a wood fire, especially when it rains.

Of course if wood is available you can have a camp fire to sit by afterward—and what a beautiful and friendly thing a camp fire is at night, with its dream-provoking glow, its flicker of shadow through the trees and its shining sparks that fly upward, as man is born to trouble, toward the still stars that twinkle on and trouble not at all.

But to return to brass tacks, all this gear, outside of clothes, need not cost much more than $100 and is good for many a trip.

5,926 MILES IN AN OVERLAND FOUR

A trip across the continent seems to be the goal of every motor fan. Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Rose, of Binghamton, N.Y., recently completed the trek across the country in their Overland four, covering a distance of 5,926 miles, which included some side trips of interest.

Their route lay from Binghamton to New York City, and thence to Atlantic City, where they spent a few days before proceeding, via the Lincoln Highway, to Toledo, where they went through the Willys-Overland plant, then via Denver and Yellowstone Park, remaining at the latter point several days. From there the route lay via Spokane and Seattle, then down the Pacific Highway to Portland and on to San Francisco.

"It was a wonderful trip all the way," wrote Mr. Rose, "and we had no trouble with the car at any time on the trip. We traveled a total of 5,926 miles since we left home in Binghamton, including several side trips of interest."
"We averaged better than twenty-three miles to the gallon of gasoline, and in many places in the West were sixty to seventy miles from the nearest gasoline station."
Thomas Plimley is the local distributor for the Overland.

CLUB COMPILING VALUABLE REPORT

Victoria Automobile Club Busy; Will Welcome New Members

The Victoria Automobile Club, through Secretary R. R. Webb, is now busily engaged in gathering some very valuable data which should prove of great value to local motorists and enable them to discuss intelligently the question of all matters affecting their interests.

The compilation which Secretary Webb is now busy on includes the gathering of statistics relating to motor licenses, the gasoline tax and various other matters which are treated in various parts of Canada and the United States.

When the material is gathered, a special committee will go through the information and it will have something on which recommendations can be based in coming before the City Council or the Provincial Government.

As already announced, the Victoria Automobile Club, in favor of a gasoline tax provided a change is made in the present scheme of motor licenses. The club thinks that the present system is not exactly all that it should be if all are to be treated fairly. The gasoline tax would reach the man who is out using the roads and he is not so likely to complain if he is taxed on the commodity which is used only when he is getting use of his automobile.

Members are looking forward with interest to the report and as soon as it is compiled copies will be distributed or a meeting will be called to go into the whole matter of the subjects dealt with.

Those realizing the value of an automobile club in any community and who would like to join the club will be heartily welcomed at the club office, in the Pemberton Building or, if they will telephone number 3209 Secretary Webb will be only too glad to call upon them.

CYLINDER GRINDING IS MOST IMPORTANT

R. E. McMorran Tells How It Will Help the Car

Cylinder grinding, in a word, is a scientific method of making old motors run like new—usually better than new—and making some new motors run better. It is guaranteed to increase the efficiency and cut down the operating costs of the motor, naturally bringing greater motoring pleasure and comfort.

Therefore, it is well worth your full investigation, says R. E. McMorran, local auto man.

The process of cylinder grinding imparts a smooth, highly polished, mirror-like surface to the inside of the cylinder, leaving no high or low spots. The cylinder bore is cut perfectly round and true, and square with the crank shaft, thus providing

MOTORISTS PRAISE HIS NON-SKID TIRE

A. McGavin Offers to Demonstrate Pennsylvania Vacuum Cup

The equipping of cars with Pennsylvania Vacuum Cup tires makes it possible for motorists to enjoy motoring and forget the danger of skidding on the pavement. The tread of four rows of massive vacuum cups means guaranteed non-skid effectiveness," says A. McGavin, local distributor of the tires mentioned.

Mr. McGavin says that he will be glad to show interested motorists how the tires are constructed and how the cups operate to insure safety and prevent dangerous skidding. He says that new customers buying the vacuum cup tires to-day will ultimately become regular customers because the standing up ability of these tires he says gives the motorist an insight into greater tire values.

"I am willing to leave it to the buyer whether these tires are not only serviceable, economical and safe but also extremely neat in appearance and I think I am right in saying that most automobile owners are just as anxious to have an attractive looking tire on their machine as they are to possess the serviceable article," says Mr. McGavin, whose tire shop on Blanshard Street is one of the best known local houses.

Good Pistons Essential.
Therefore it is clear that regrinding of itself is not enough to insure perfect motor operation. The pistons are actually the most important essential for it is they that do the actual work. Grinding only properly prepares the cylinders for the pistons.

It follows then, that the best pistons obtainable should be used. New pistons are, of course, necessary, and for this purpose we use and strongly recommend pistons. No other pistons so completely fulfill the essentials necessary for proper efficient operation in regard to rebored cylinders. Pistons are extremely light in weight. Made of cast iron they are much stronger than necessary, achieved by a scientific system of reinforcing ribs. They have minimum expansion, run cooler and save gas and oil, as well as completely eliminate vibration.

Keep on just as long as you can—then keep on a little longer. Persistence wins.

ANNIVERSARY WILL BE COMMEMORATED

First Presbyterian Church Established Here Sixty Years Ago

On the occasion of its Diamond Jubilee, the First Presbyterian Church will hold special anniversary services to-morrow.

The speaker of the day will be Rev. T. H. Mitchell, M. A., B. D., of St. Andrew's Church, New Westminster. Special musical numbers will be rendered by the choir and all former members of the congregation and friends of members of the congregation are welcomed to attend the anniversary service.

On Monday evening, commencing at 8 o'clock a Congregational Union and Social will be held. An interesting and bright programme has been arranged, and an enjoyable time is assured all those who attend. A brief history of the Presbyterian Church is being put into pamphlet form and will be distributed.

RELIGIOUS COUNCIL TO CONVENE HERE

Tuesday Is Date of Annual Convention of Religious Education Council

The Religious Education Council will convene here on October 24 in the annual convention, which will be held at the Y.M.C.A., commencing at 6.15. The convention promises to be a most interesting and successful one and is for Sunday school workers and members of the Young People's Societies.

C.G.I.T. SUPPER WAS A BIG SUCCESS

Nearly Two Hundred Girls at Conference in Wesley Church

Some two hundred girls representative of the Canadian girls in training groups of the city met at the successful supper conference held in the Wesley Methodist Church last evening. This gathering superseded the usual three-day conference held in previous years, it being felt that such a gathering was more enjoyable for the girls and easier for them to attend. A dainty repast was followed by a sing-song, "Pack All Your Troubles" and "The Girls of Canada Are Marching On." The programme was most interesting and well presented, with vocal numbers by Miss Helen Starr and Mr. George Guy.

Miss MacDonald, one of the National Secretaries of the Dominion Board of the Y. W. C. A. was introduced by Miss Helen Henderson, President of the Girls' Work Board, and said that members of the board except on the American continent would see such a splendid gathering of girls. She emphasized the privilege and power possessed by the girls of today and urged each one to stand for the four-fold programme of social, spiritual, mental and physical uplift.

Mr. Farr of the Victoria High School in a brief address disparaged the "clinging vine" type of girl of the early Victorian era and emphasized the need for a girl to work out certain ideals, choose her calling with care and develop a character. In response to the roll call by the secretary the representative of each group gave the number of the number present, the motto and colors of her group, and in some instances the "class song" or yell was added with enthusiasm.

Miss Joy Whiteside proved a capable toastmistress and fully justified her unanimous election to this position.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN

The pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Princess Avenue and Chambers Street, Rev. R. F. Kibler, will preach Sunday at a mission festival in Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, Vancouver, of which Rev. R. F. Kibler is the pastor. Rev. Mr. Kibler was formerly also pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Victoria. Owing to the absence of the pastor, there will be no preaching service Sunday, but the Sunday School session will be held as usual at 2.30 p.m.

MISSION BAND WILL HOLD CONCERT

A concert has been planned by the Mission Band to take place on October 27. An excellent programme has been arranged, including musical numbers both piano, violin and organ, recitations, dialogues, and various other versatile performances. Many talented artists will be secured to make this concert a success and a large attendance is anticipated. Home made candies will be sold at the booths and all those who attend are assured of an enjoyable time. The concert will commence at 8 o'clock, and will be held in the lecture room of the church.

"OUTLINES OF HISTORY" TO BE SUBJECT OF SERMON

On Sunday evening at St. John's, the rector, Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick will give the second of a short series of sermons on the subject, "Outlines of History." In these sermons Mr. Chadwick shows that there seems to be a wonderful coincidence between the findings of science and revealed religion. The subject to be dealt with on Sunday evening will be, "Natural Science and the Faith of Man." The organist, Mr. C. J. Burnett will give a short organ recital before the early service commencing at 6.40.

SERVICE OF SONG

Following the opening of the new pipe organ, recently installed in Emmanuel Baptist Church, which took place last Wednesday evening, the choir of the church will render a service of song on Sunday under the capable management of their leader, Fred Parfitt. Several volunteers will be played by the organist, Ivor Parfitt. At the morning service the choir will render, "Praise the Lord, O Sion" (Maudslayi).

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL

The Bishop of Columbia, the Right Rev. C. D. Schofield, will preach at the 11 o'clock service to-morrow morning in Christ Church Cathedral. At choral evensong at 7 o'clock, Rev. F. C.G.I.T. SUPPER WAS A BIG SUCCESS

Nearly Two Hundred Girls at Conference in Wesley Church

Some two hundred girls representative of the Canadian girls in training groups of the city met at the successful supper conference held in the Wesley Methodist Church last evening. This gathering superseded the usual three-day conference held in previous years, it being felt that such a gathering was more enjoyable for the girls and easier for them to attend. A dainty repast was followed by a sing-song, "Pack All Your Troubles" and "The Girls of Canada Are Marching On." The programme was most interesting and well presented, with vocal numbers by Miss Helen Starr and Mr. George Guy.

Miss MacDonald, one of the National Secretaries of the Dominion Board of the Y. W. C. A. was introduced by Miss Helen Henderson, President of the Girls' Work Board, and said that members of the board except on the American continent would see such a splendid gathering of girls. She emphasized the privilege and power possessed by the girls of today and urged each one to stand for the four-fold programme of social, spiritual, mental and physical uplift.

Mr. Farr of the Victoria High School in a brief address disparaged the "clinging vine" type of girl of the early Victorian era and emphasized the need for a girl to work out certain ideals, choose her calling with care and develop a character. In response to the roll call by the secretary the representative of each group gave the number of the number present, the motto and colors of her group, and in some instances the "class song" or yell was added with enthusiasm.

Miss Joy Whiteside proved a capable toastmistress and fully justified her unanimous election to this position.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN

The pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Princess Avenue and Chambers Street, Rev. R. F. Kibler, will preach Sunday at a mission festival in Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, Vancouver, of which Rev. R. F. Kibler is the pastor. Rev. Mr. Kibler was formerly also pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Victoria. Owing to the absence of the pastor, there will be no preaching service Sunday, but the Sunday School session will be held as usual at 2.30 p.m.

MISSION BAND WILL HOLD CONCERT

A concert has been planned by the Mission Band to take place on October 27. An excellent programme has been arranged, including musical numbers both piano, violin and organ, recitations, dialogues, and various other versatile performances. Many talented artists will be secured to make this concert a success and a large attendance is anticipated. Home made candies will be sold at the booths and all those who attend are assured of an enjoyable time. The concert will commence at 8 o'clock, and will be held in the lecture room of the church.

"OUTLINES OF HISTORY" TO BE SUBJECT OF SERMON

On Sunday evening at St. John's, the rector, Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick will give the second of a short series of sermons on the subject, "Outlines of History." In these sermons Mr. Chadwick shows that there seems to be a wonderful coincidence between the findings of science and revealed religion. The subject to be dealt with on Sunday evening will be, "Natural Science and the Faith of Man." The organist, Mr. C. J. Burnett will give a short organ recital before the early service commencing at 6.40.

SERVICE OF SONG

Following the opening of the new pipe organ, recently installed in Emmanuel Baptist Church, which took place last Wednesday evening, the choir of the church will render a service of song on Sunday under the capable management of their leader, Fred Parfitt. Several volunteers will be played by the organist, Ivor Parfitt. At the morning service the choir will render, "Praise the Lord, O Sion" (Maudslayi).

Autumn Glories Will Bring Hunger Too

THIS is Nature's fashion parade, Autumn. We see it advertised in the first tinge of russet in the leaves, increasingly evident until the red days of Autumn are here in all their colorful glory. Behold the chestnut tree with its myriad of shades, verging from the deep green leaf of Summer through all the tints of the merry russet leaf to the drop from the parent tree. Soon the boulevards will be carpeted with a covering that out-rides in color and splendor the most pretentious artifices of mankind.

The mountain ash is turning to suit the fashion of Nature in her most colorful mood. The first keen breath of frost will speed the change until her most highly prized greens have lost faith in their season and turned red for shame. The Boston ivy and the Virginia creeper, of the house lovers are turning rapidly changing, mantle after mantle, one more beautiful than the other, until they will have assumed the garb of full Fall.

In the height of their fashion parade Nature's sentinels will be stripped of their glory and soon stand dejected skeletons through which the wind will growl harshly army of evergreens will withstand the hard keen blows of King Frost as he comes riding on the heels of the Indian Summer to claim vedure for his own. The sun has reigned all Summer, now it will be his turn, and he is a hard master.

Even King Frost, however, cannot hide forever the color that lies in Nature's gardens to be expressed on her many moods. If the rigor of the Frost King's reign becomes too severe, Nature will cast her white mantle over the bareness of the vegetation and snow will clothe the bare boughs of the trees with a mantle yet more beautiful than the deep scarlet of Autumn.

Even the stately conifers, the pines in their glory and the firs, whose heavy had withstood the advance of the harsh winds of Autumn will give way to the softly flowing raiment of the Snow King. Glistening softly in the twilight of the Winter's day or flashing a myriad of sparkling gems from every point when caught by the faint rays of the Winter's sun, none will surpass the snow blanketed evergreens in beauty. They have two dresses, these evergreens: the serviceable handworking green that never leaves them and the snow covered raiment of Winter which leads to their stately shapes the last touch of charm that is needed to win for them supremacy in Nature's realm.

The evergreens have another claim to honorable mention, and one indeed that might well be placed in the forefront of their merits for their permanent leaves and sturdy growth provide shelter for Nature's feathered creatures in the long hard days of Autumn and the wet and colder days of Winter. The hedgerow claims the thrushes for a space, the mountain ash with its yield of red berries delights the robins in season, but it is to the evergreen that most little birds turn for a Winter housing.

In the warm and rain-proof curtain of an ivy clad stem the sparrows will pass the severest days of Winter with comfort. Here they will chatter busily while outside rages the keenest wind, and falls the most uncompromising rain. What of their food, you ask? That is the only difficulty. Spring gives the birds the freshness of growth that feeds them well after their long Winter fasting. Summer comes with its abundance of food. In Autumn the little creatures have many a choice meal in the grain fields, and in the domestic garden, but Winter is their lean time.

In Winter the streets of the city will be alive with shy little visitors of the feathered flocks who forget even their fear of mankind to get food enough to carry them through the long cold days. Perched on telegraph wires the sparrows will chatter and grumble while a stray pedestrian keeps them off the ground, on which a few crumbs may have fallen, and yet this is a feast for the birds! Pigeons that all year long have been so bold to walk our city street will then be joined by sparrows and other little visitors who dare all to staff off the hunger that lets in the cold.

This is one place where mankind may share with the evergreen the pleasure of eating for the lesser and more defenceless creatures of the universe. A few crumbs of bread, useless and long stale, thrown from the house to a garden that is encrusted with snow will prove a feast for the birds. A little chicken feed or other waste food thrown to the garden will bring a daily throng of flying medics whose thankfulness will amply repay the small trouble of throwing away to their needs what is not wanted in the household.

One Garden last Winter was the scene of a feathered assembly every morning that made it stand remarked by the neighborhood. Birds of all sizes, ages and colors came there to feast upon the crumbs saved against their advent. The dainty and somewhat lost city-bred quail vied with the cheeky sparrow for the attainment of a feast; while each failed not to chirp in its own peculiar way its gratitude for the morning meal.

It is not necessary to wait until Winter to throw out a few crumbs for the birds. These mornings have an edge of cold that is felt by feathered citizens as well as mortals. Food is becoming scarce and will shortly be still harder to obtain, and the little ones of Nature's kingdom must eat or die. Make this a "meal a day" season for the birds.

Radio conversation between aircraft in the air was developed during the late war by the Allied armies. Aeroplanes hundreds of miles apart "spoke" to each other. Scout machines were directed from the ground by wireless in pursuit of an enemy in the air they could not see. Flight commanders were enabled to speak to their accompanying pilots in other machines, and say what they wished done.

CRABS IN SEASON
This is the best season of the year for edible crabs. Crabs taken at this time are hard and firm, and their meat of a superior grade than at any time, it is said. Deep sea fishing for crabs is carried out by the means of wicker traps which are sunk to the bottom with bait inside. The crabs get into the trap by means of a small hole at the top and are unable to find the way out. Lobsters are taken in much the same manner.

Sponge Fishing Is Quaint Industry

OF THE many animal creatures of the marine world perhaps few outrival the utility to mankind of the common sponge. Fishing for sponges is carried on extensively by the Greeks, Syrians, and in some parts of Mexico. The Greeks commence their fishing for sponges in the Mediterranean in May and end in August; while the Syrians fish for one month longer.

A boat's crew consists of four or five men. Each diver is armed with a strong bladed knife or a trident and a net pouch to hold his sponges when gathered. The fishing is carried out in calm weather, with the sponges easily to be seen attached to rocks at the bottom of the clear water. The divers drop overboard and remain under for some time, some staying down for over two minutes. In that time they will gather several sponges, cutting them free from their parent rocks. Sometimes the prize is dredged for, but in this case it is considered an inferior article and is slightly damaged.

In the Gulf of Mexico, where the sponges grow in comparatively shallow water the fishermen drape down a long pole to the rocks where the prizes grow. The divers slide down these poles and easily detach the sponges, getting large numbers in a comparatively short space of time.

After being taken from the water the sponges are cleaned to separate from them the foreign substances in which they are found, and made ready for market. The industry as carried on the various parts of the world affords a comfortable living for large numbers.

Of late years the synthetic or manufactured sponge has cut into the industry in no uncertain way; but the trade still survives and along the shores of the Mediterranean may be seen villages whose inhabitants live from this quaint mode of livelihood. The sponges themselves are no less interesting, but their structure is too complicated to be further debated upon in these columns.

ACCUSTOMED as we are to the nests of land birds, the nests of aquatic birds seem hard and cold. On a seagull colony hundreds of eggs may be found so close together that there is scarcely room to place a foot between. The eggs are laid on the bare rock, and sometimes without even the protection of a crevasse to keep them from rolling. Here the gulls hatch out their young in countless numbers, and create a terrible clamor if the island be approached by mankind. Clouds of birds will fly up together, wheeving and screaming in the air until pandemonium reigns.

Penguins dig a horizontal hole in the sand and there make their nest. Puffins take possession of rabbit burrows, and love company. Many puffins will be found with nests side by side in amicable and chatty array. Shearwaters also burrow under the earth. In the neighborhood of the Cape of Good Hope Albatrosses assemble to make their nests, laying an immense egg. They are orderly birds, marking out the ground so that each has an even space on which to lay, and none have more ground than another. They build their nests in small squares, connected by regular tracks, and the whole community of nests is surrounded by a wall of stones.

Cormorants and ducks make their nests among the reeds and rushes, building a nest of twigs slightly elevated above the surface of

Aquatic Birds Have Curious Nests

THE water. The kingfisher burrows into the bank of a river, usually going in horizontally for a distance of three feet before scooping out the chamber to hold the nest. The eggs of most aquatic birds are larger at one end than the other, though the penguin lays a round egg.

The colors and marking of the eggs are varied between great ranges; from a deep and plain green to a deep chocolate and speckled. Some are barred in varicolored stripes, and many are dotted with little brown specks. Their owners are as much attached to the eggs as are land birds to their products.

Whales Use Lungs to Great Advantage

OF A large family of cetacea which number some one hundred species under its family roof, whales are remarkable in that they have lungs and must breathe the air which we breathe to live. They may remain under the water for hours at a time, but must come to the surface to take in fresh air and discharge the old.

This office, as far as the discharging of the stale air is concerned, is done in many kinds of whales through a vent in the top of the head that is connected with the mouth. Through this vent the whale expels the air it wishes to get rid of from its lungs. The air rises with considerable force carrying a large quantity of water with it. This is accomplished the "spouting" that is recorded by the hunter of the whales in northern waters.

One interesting fact about the whale is the provision given it by a special nature to take care of its blood pressure under the surface of the water, when its lungs cannot function in the manner that is normal. The blood, or most of it that is not required, in the veins of the mammal is forced into a large reservoir, thus keeping the most important organs from being overcharged. Upon the return to the surface the veins expand and the blood rushes back to the lungs for re-purification. Whales are of two main types, carnivorous or herbivorous; the former feeding on animal organisms and the latter grazing like ruminants, only on marine vegetation.

The carnivorous whales are great fighters and fall not to destroy other and smaller members of the same family if the occasion demand. Their sworn enemy is the narwhal and the swordfish and many battles are fought out between these contestants until the seas around are covered in blood. Whales travel usually in schools and are fond of the company of their fellows. Many varieties of whales are caught by mankind for his own purposes and from them is obtained whale bone, oil and a number of other useful substances.

WATER BORNE SILVER

Examination of the copper sheeting taken from the bottom of a ship that had lain for some time submerged, conducted at Valparaiso recently, showed visible traces of silver that had been deposited on the copper by the chemical action of the ingredients contained in the salt water. Analysis of 100 grains of water taken from the Atlantic Ocean shows the following results: water, 96.470 grains; sodium chloride (common salt), 2.709 grains; magnesium, 0.89 grains; potassium, 0.970 grains; magnesium bromide, 0.602 grains; magnesium sulphate, 0.230 grains; calcium sulphate, 0.140 grains; carbonate of lime, 0.003 grains; and a residue of 0.925 grains. Small quantities of iodine, sulphur, silica, ammonia, iron, and copper have also been detected in the water comprising the Atlantic Ocean.

Even a Spider Has One Good Quality

"UGH! A nasty spider." Saying this Mary drew away to the far side of the path so that she would not pass within reaching distance of a little spider which was busy sunning itself in the centre of a complicated network of silken strands that formed its web. "You must not be afraid of spiders, Mary" reproved her mother; "they are harmless and besides they are very patient." "Well I don't like them," replied the little girl.

Determined to overcome this prejudice Mary's mother watched for a good opportunity and that evening found a spider that had just started to spin its web. Fascinated Mary watched the little fellow scramble up the cellar wall and drop at the end of his own line into mid air. Patiently he floated back and forth until a slight wind had blown him against the framework of the wall. Here the first strand was made fast with sailor-like efficiency.

Traversing this line, now drawn taut, the spider reclined to the ceiling and then cast himself off again into the air. This time the wind carried him a little further afield and the second line formed with the first and the sides of the wall a triangle. On this slender base Mary watched the spider rear a structure that was composed of many silken threads laid and secured with mathematical exactness.

Now the skeleton of the web had been completed and Mary saw the little worker weave his ribs into the framework of the web until it began to resemble a maze. Under her mother's guidance Mary was able to pick out with her fingers the main lines upon which the spider travelled to complete the maze. There were, it seemed, running in radiations out from the common centre a number of "first-class roads" as it were. Joining these together were an innumerable number of lesser roads, and between the latter were laid countless paths.

Mary next saw the spider retreat into a little crevice at the top of the web, which was to be his home for many days to come. The door of this home was cunningly concealed so that when he lay within scarcely any part of his body was visible from the web. Around the doorway a fence of fine threads which effectively obscured sight of the interior. Into this doorway ran communications from the main roads of the web. Of course the web was not built in a minute and by the time it had progressed thus far Mary was tired of the strain of watching the tiny creature deal with almost invisible threads.

Resuming her watch next day Mary had scarcely taken her stand when a blue bottle, humming an incautious way near the window light ran full tilt into the web. The first faint shake of the web had not subsided before out came its owner on the run. Straight down a main road for the captive came the spider. Then followed a furious buzzing on the part of the blue bottle and a thrashing of wings. The web was rent in many places but the threads held the captive; for the more he floundered the more embroiled he became.

Taking note of the situation at an instant the spider came galloping along his communications until he had reached the web. Mary began to wonder if the fly would overcome the spider when she saw the owner of the web rush right in upon the blue bottle and proceed to trust him up.

Lines were passed around the wings. Other bends were grouped and the insect, towed up the web, was held in a ball of thread that stifled its exertions, and held it still.

The spider spent a few seconds longer making sure of his captive by binding him yet tighter and then Mary saw the blue bottle now a doubled-up ball of helplessness, held up the web and into the home of the spider. Mary shuddered and did not inquire too closely into what happened next.

Angered at the seeming cruelty of the spider, small though he was, Mary seized a stick and demolished the web. If the spider saw he gave no sign and Mary watched for several minutes and could behold not a sign of life in the dark recess above. Next morning, curious to know what had become of the spider and also the poor captive, Mary was bright and early at the vantage point in the cellar.

Sure enough the spider was already commenced upon the rebuilding of his web. The same lines were dropped down with their builder swinging perilously at their extremity. The cross roads were built, to be followed by the by-paths, and all the intricacies of the maze. By evening the web had been rebuilt, and was even more strong than the first attempt. The spider had changed his home, however, and was now lodged in a crevice some inches higher than formerly.

Though she could not school herself into a love for the persistent little builder, Mary learned to respect him. This led to an observation of other spiders' webs and it was not long before Mary found the home of the funnel web spider. This was a tremendous funnel-shaped inverted dome built in tall grass in a field near her home. In this case the web was much thicker than used by the house spider, and seemed far more strongly made. It was almost a solid sheet of weaving in the form of a cone stood on its tip.

The owner of this web lived at the bottom of the funnel, Mary found. From this vantage point it would dart with incredible speed up the round walls of its trap to the victims that fell into its lair. Mary watched while the occupant of this strange house made short work of a tiny flying insect, and carried it to its home at the bottom of the funnel. Curiosity piqued, Mary threw a tiny blade of grass into the web. Almost as soon as the light mist fell on the weaving of the web the spider was racing out to see what was the trouble. He ran to the blade of grass and left it in disgust.

Mary threw another lure, this time a small crumb of bread. The spider raced out obediently but stopped half way. This was too much for it thought clearly, and would not be gulled again. Mary threw other little objects, but in vain; the spider had learned that some one was playing him tricks and would not perform. While Mary could not be brought to look on a spider with anything approaching liking, she at least had overcome her fear of them, and respected the tiny-looking little creatures for their never-ending patience.

Every Element Has Its Color

THERE are, in nature, a number of simple substances called elements. These when ignited under suitable conditions will give off a light peculiar to themselves and by which they can be distinguished from every other element. From this it may be seen that the color emitted by a substance when burning under the right conditions will at once indicate what that substance is.

Astronomers make use of this simple fact to determine what the stars are made of, though they are millions and hundreds of millions of miles away from this planet on which we live. Who has not seen how a triangular piece of solid glass, a prism glass, will split up the white light of the sun until it assumes its many-colored spectrum. Nature does this for us in the rainbow, where the sheet of falling rain breaks up the light rays attempting to pass through it.

The rays of the sun, it will be found, may be diverted into the following components: red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet; these when joined together form the light we know so well. The interesting part of this simple experiment comes in dealing with the sun's rays when they are split up. For instance, we may say, we learn from chemists, that the yellow denotes the presence of sodium strontium is there also. In this manner we may calculate all the elements that are represented by color in the spectrum, and from this we find that the sun is made up of many elements that are to be found on this earth.

This course may be pursued with the other planets that give light, and in the farthest stars we find the presence of iron and many of the commoner substances of this planet. The chemist tells us what elements combine to form our well known minerals and thus we are able to learn a great deal about distant bodies.

ICE LIGHTS PIPE

Recently, a noted explorer of other years, astonished the sailors of his ship on a voyage of discovery by lighting his pipe with a block of ice. He hacked off a piece of ice with an axe, shaped it into the fashion of a lens with his knife. This he polished with the heat of his hands and used to centre the rays of the sun into a focus that fired the material in his pipe. On another occasion he obtained a wonderfully transparent lens fourteen inches in diameter by the same methods.

TIDAL ACTION CASELESS

The combined action of the sun and the moon daily draw around the world two great waves which at the periods of the full and new moon rise to the greatest heights. These are called the tides. The tides in midocean do not rise above three feet, but in narrow necks of land have been known to rise over 40 feet, as for example in the Bay of Fundy.

SUGGESTED DESIGN FOR FOOTREST WITH PLACE FOR SLIPPERS

ASSEMBLE ALL PARTS WITH SCREWS COVERED WITH DOWELS AS AT K

IF IT IS DESIRED TO USE FOOTREST WITHOUT ROCKERS, ROUND CORNERS AT BOTTOM

For real comfort a person in a rocking chair should have a foot rest that rocks too. Then he will not have to rub his feet back and forth, as he would over an ordinary stationary footstool. Complete plans for making such a rocking foot rest are shown above.

To make the ends plane two pieces of board $\frac{3}{4}$ in. x 10 in. x 10 in. Then follow the steps indicated in the series of three drawings at the left of the diagram. The best way to cut the pieces to shape is by means of a turning saw. Great care should be taken.

The top piece, on which the feet rest is $\frac{3}{4}$ in. x 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. x 14 in., and is held in place by three screws at each end, inserted and covered with dowels, as indicated. The cross piece between the lower part of the rockers is similarly held in place.

In laying out the rockers do not use a piece of string to draw the arcs, because it will likely stretch a little. The better way would be to use a long narrow piece of wood having a hole bored in the end in which a pencil may be held snugly. 40% in. and 42 in. from the centre of the hole drive heads. This instrument will provide a means of drawing the arcs with both sides uniform. Saw very carefully to the lines, then finish both pieces by clamping together to insure their being exactly alike. Fasten with screws inserted from underneath and covered with dowels, planing the ends of the dowels flush.

To upholster the top of the stool, fill with cotton or hair, and cover with imitation leather or cretonne. Bind with material to match, fastening with upholstery nails. Stain or shellac the article to suit.

Some may wish a stool which has a place for slippers. One is suggested at the extreme right of the drawing, it being a box having the upholstered part hinged. It necessitates a change in the design of the end pieces. No dimensions are given. Make it a size to accommodate one or two pairs of slippers.

NOT PRIMPS OF FASHION ARE THE BONNY SCOTCH

Ralph Connor May Have Been a "Skinny Kid," But Looks Don't Always Count.

RALPH CONNOR, the famous Canadian novelist, was born and lived for a number of years near the little village of Harrington, in the northernmost part of Oxford county, Ont., later staging many of the scenes in his stories on farms in that locality.

Ralph Connor.

Shortly after his novels began to attract attention, two elderly natives of that section of the country who had known him from a small lad, were having a friendly visit over the rail fence between their farms, and their conversation turned to Charlie Gordon, the name by which they knew him around those parts. Considerable was said about the reputation he was beginning to make for himself and the amount of money he was probably making from the books. Finally, one old son of toil reflectively rolled his head of tobacco into the other cheek, and said:

"Wall, ye can't allus tell by lookin' at a skinny kid what he'll turn into, kin ye, Andy?"

And after the necessary moment for the consideration of this statement, Andy, a grizzled old dour Scotch Presbyterian replied:

"Awa' w'e ye, mon. The Scots were aye fighters and doers, not primps of fashion."

AN M.P. WHO SPEAKS NOT

ALTHOUGH he has been a member of the British House of Commons for twenty-two years, Mr. John Hope, M.P. for Berwick, has never made a speech. The secret of his silence is not that he is unable to speak, for outside the House he talks very effectively, but that he considers he can be more useful by not opening his lips. He is a very regular attendant at the House, and has the rare record of having contested seven elections in which he has fought and been supported by every political party in turn.

Mr. Hope's case recalls the famous silence of "Single-speech" Hamilton, who sat in the House during the eighteenth century. As his nickname shows, he was popularly supposed to have addressed the Commons but once. There is also the story of the M.P. who opened his lips on one occasion only—and then to ask that a window behind him might be closed!

Can Siki Beat Him?

NOT like Napoleon with the manhood of Europe pressed into his legions, but alone, double-fisted, has Mr. Dempsey conquered the world. And now a racial significance is attached to his sovereignty which, should it be shattered by a black man, says the press of England, would be felt in all the colonies of Africa, where already the defeat of Carpenter by Siki has added difficulties to the task of governing by the small forces of official whites. In decrying these bouts that make it possible for a black man to defeat a white, the press of England sees a serious blow at white prestige.

LANDLORD PRAYS FOR KIPLING'S FIERY NOTES

Hopes He Would Send a Fresh One Every Day.

MANY are the tricks that cunning autograph collectors have practiced to get a highly prized signature. Some men spend much time and patience on the task; others, like the driver of the local omnibus at Rotterdam, where Rudyard Kipling settled down to live, accomplish their purpose with little or no effort. The driver often annoyed Mr. Kipling by pointing at him with his whip and announcing in a stentorian voice, "Here we have Mr. Kipling, the soldier poet." Mr. Kipling sufficed in silence until the vehicle ran into his favorite tree and damaged it badly; then he wrote a vigorous letter of complaint to the owner, who was landlord of the White Horse Inn. The fellow laid the letter before a select company of patrons of his bar-parlor, and one and all advised him to appear indifferently. One man offered him ten shillings in cash for the letter, and the landlord accepted the offer. A second and stronger letter followed the first, and the landlord carried the autograph to a bookseller and demanded a pound for it. The bookseller eagerly snapped it up, and the landlord began to dream of more missives. But the next day Kipling answered briskly and wrathfully, "Why don't I answer your letter, sir?" said the landlord. "Why I was hoping you would send me a fresh one every day. They pay a deal better than driving a bus."

Not Tired of the "Janets" In Three Brief Weeks

Bliss Carman Suggests That His Friend Peter McArthur Has Had Far More Experience.

IT may not be generally known that when Bliss Carman, the distinguished Canadian poet, visited Toronto early in 1921, he then for the first time faced an audience for the purpose of reading from his own works.

Bliss Carman.

His friend, Mr. Peter McArthur, who is an experienced platform lecturer, immediately sensed a possible demand on the part of clubs, schools and church organizations to see and hear Mr. Carman, and he accordingly took it upon himself to arrange an itinerary of lecture readings at various cities throughout western Ontario. Not only did Mr. McArthur arrange the engagements, but in some cases he accompanied his friend to many places, and assisted him in his programs.

On one occasion during this time the two poets put up at the Tecumseh House in London, between engagements, and as usual they talked nearly half the night.

"Say, Bliss," called out Mr. McArthur to his friend in the bed across the room, after the lights had been put out, and they had at last retired, "aren't you getting tired of the fuss these 'Janets' are making over you wherever you go?"

"Oh, I don't know, Peter," returned Mr. Carman. "I don't think so—you see, I have had only three weeks of it."

And what could Peter say to this?

THE LATEST DODGE

LADY MAITLAND, herself an enthusiastic amateur electrician, related a good story apropos the broadcasting craze.

A certain man had been "late at the club," and, returning home in the small hours, heard his wife's voice calling sleepily from upstairs demanding an explanation.

But hubby was a man of resource. Instead of replying, he stood stock still in the hall, delivered part of a discourse on "civic righteousness," told a bed-time story, and sang three grand opera selections.

His wife listened for a while, then concluded she had forgotten to turn off the radio receiving set, and dropped off to sleep.

HELD FOR 'SLIGHT REPAIRS'

WHEN in his early twenties, Mr. Rod-erick J. Mackenzie, son of Sir Wm. Mackenzie, and to-day one of the big men in Western Canada, was a very enthusiastic sportsman.

The following incident occurred one day while Mr. Mackenzie and a friend were on their way down the Vegreville branch of the C.N.R. As Mr. Mackenzie was admiring the scenery from the car window, he noticed a team of ducks settle in a marsh a short distance ahead. The sight was too much for the young sportsman, and on the impulse of the moment he pulled the stop signal. Telling the conductor what had been done, he requested that the train should be held a few minutes. If there were any enquiries the conductor was to say that with his compliments.

Mr. Mackenzie and his friend approached the retreat of the ducks as quickly and quietly as possible. Several shots were heard, and shortly after the hunters returned with soiled clothes, but laden down with the fruits of their venture, and the "slight repairs" having been made, the train journeyed on.

Blind French Sculptor

THIS is M. Duvalet, a blind French sculptor, who was awarded first prize at the recent Versailles Exhibition. His exhibits have received the highest comment of the judges. M. Duvalet continued at his work after he was blinded during the war, and is looked upon as the most promising of the young French sculptors.

A Man Specially Born For a Position in Life

Says the Genial Manager of the World's Greatest Fair.

ONE of the tenets an alert newspaper man maintains is to establish the how, when, where and why of any occurrence, no matter how insignificant, for the editor, trained by years of experience, may see in it untold news value.

It is related that an erstwhile young reporter, who shall be nameless, was on one occasion interviewing John G. Kent, the general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition.

During the course of the interview the reporter asked Mr. Kent when and where he was born. Having received the required information, being somewhat over-zealous and from sheer force of habit, asked, "Why?"

Mr. Kent, not to be outwitted, for he always has a ready answer, replied:

"Why? To manage the world's greatest fair, of course."

FRIEND TO HUMBLE ICE CREAM CONES

Mrs. McClung Stood by Them in "Society."

ALL who know "Nellie" McClung, with her breezy and genial independence, her complete absence of "side," will appreciate Edmondson's "latest."

At a recent informal tea, while Mrs. McClung was chatting with the guest of honor, Her Excellency, Lady Byng, the latter referred to ice cream as the "national dish." A very dignified guest of the "princess-and-prince" type, sitting near, joined in to express her disapproval of a particular form of it, "the ubiquitous cone," completing her arraignment of that popular delicacy, by stating, complacently: "I have never eaten one."

"Nellie's" eyes reflected visions of past delights, but her tones were very sympathetic as she sighed, sorrowfully: "My! Just think what you've missed."

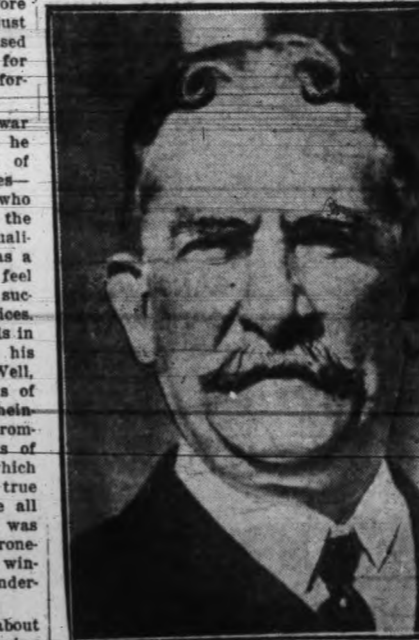

"Well," she explained afterwards, "I love cones. Why I've eaten hundreds of them. I wasn't going to give up the humble cone just because I was eating in high society."

"BRING YER GUNS W' YE"

COLONEL, now General, Logie, mounted on his charger, was on duty at one of the entrances to Niagara Camp in the summer of 1915 when a green sentry was on duty, probably doing his first "sentry go." Imagine the colonel's astonishment when the sentry did not turn out the guard. "What are you doing here, my man?" asked the colonel. "On guard, sir," replied the sentry, still leaning on the muzzle of his rifle. "On guard, eh?" said the colonel. "Don't you know that you should turn out the guard for a colonel. You are lucky I am not a general. Turn out the guard immediately."

The sentry turned and sauntered over to the guard tent, dragging his rifle after him, and, pulling back the tent flap, called out: "Hey, youse fellows in there, wake up and come on out; here's a gink on a horse out here, and he wants to have a look at ye; and bring yer guns w' ye."

General Logie was inwardly amused at the incident, but no doubt a considerable time of the syllabus was taken up in mounting guard and the duties of sentries after that.

Wall Street Wreaks Revenge

THIS is Thos. W. Lawson, celebrated Wall street financier, and author of "Friday, the Thirteenth," the gripping novel in which he set out to expose the methods by which the high financiers gouge the widow and orphan and the uninitiated who speculate in stocks. Lawson has been a marked man ever since, and now "Friday, the Thirteenth" has come to him. Wall street has broken him. It drove him out of large operations. Now it has forced him to give up Dreamworld, his beautiful estate in Egypt, Mass., with all its freight of treasures, worth $6,000,000. All that is left for him is an annuity of $50,000, which he bought some years ago.

Predicts the British Empire is Doomed.

BUT he is only Gen. Ludendorff, the ex-quarter-master-general of German armies, in his latest picture. Sitting with his hand jammed hard down on his revolver, the muzzle visibly sticking forward within his pocket, he warned Ferdinand Tuohy of the New York World that there would come a day of reckoning for Germany. "In sacrificing her fleet and giving Ireland her freedom England has made the two blunders in her history," he said. "Break up the British Empire," he suggested, as a message for the people of the United States. "England now has a fleet only equal to that of the United States. Lloyd George has rendered that service to his country. The British Empire is doomed and will be the next to go. And it will not recover like Germany is going to."

From High School Principal to Poultry Farmer, John S. Martin Plunged to Income and Fame

JOHN S. MARTIN, of Port Dover, Ontario, the man who twenty years ago took what appeared to some people to be the awful plunge from high school principal to start a poultry farm, and who is now famous throughout the continent and enjoys an income as large as that of a cabinet minister, is a believer in perspiration rather than inspiration. He wins prizes in the greatest poultry shows in America, but he says there is no magic about it—only hard work and the power to look at your own birds just as critically as the judge looks at them. His motto is "Never leave anything undone beforehand and you will have no regrets afterwards."

When taking his birds to shows at a distance he buys a pullman ticket, and then spends most of his time in the baggage car where his charges are. "Once when going to show in New York city he arrived in the metropolis about breakfast time. Another poultryman, showing other breeds, arrived on the same train. The station was a long way from Madison square. Both men saw their charges carefully loaded on to delivery trucks, and then Mr. Martin got into the seat alongside the driver of the truck he had hired. "What are you going to do?" asked the other poultryman. "Not going to do!" asked the other poultryman. "Not going to ride all the way to Madison square? Come and get some breakfast. The birds will get there all right." "No breakfast for me until I see these birds on the bench at the show," and the two men separated.

He mounted beside the driver.

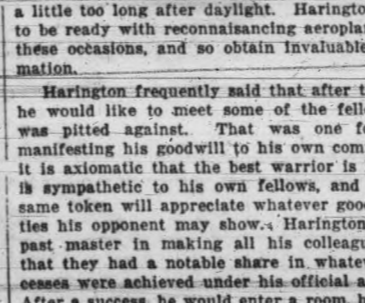

Harrington's Charm is Held as Dangerous As His Outstanding Capacities for War

Though Firm About Duty, He Can Relax When Relaxation Is the Proper Order of the Day—He is a Master of Giving Without Seeming to Take.

EVERYTHING written about General Sir Charles Harrington, the commander of the army of the Black Sea, who has held the British key to peace, without which there would almost certainly have been a great war with the Turks, has emphasized his efficiency in many military fields and his ability to get along with all sorts of men. He is never out of patience, is invariably courteous, and obviously wishful to see things as they present themselves to his subordinates, whom he encourages fully to express their views. He will not stand for anything like evasion of duty, or even the smallest lack of candor in disclosing a situation. His habit of always being at the top of his form when on duty, though, is close to a readiness to relax, when relaxation is the proper order of the day or night.

Tim Harrington was and is a perfect exponent of the truth that the greater the tension the greater the reaction. That is especially true of the cruel strains of warfare, and such warfare as our fellows had to endure in Europe. Tim Harrington began the war high up in the intelligence department, a phase of warfare in which he gave such eminent Canadians as General Mitchell their first lessons, and it may be said, their first confidence, for they felt pretty green in Armageddon's early days. The costs of obtaining information were of course often terribly tragic, even when they meant the saving of much life. In warfare always a few lives must be spent in order that many be not sacrificed. Apart from that the matching of knowledges and wits is a great and tremendous game. Tim Harrington played it in France and Flanders with consummate skill and unflinching courage.

He was never downhearted, however dark the odds against the allies. For one thing, he was continually proving that no matter how thoroughly the Germans played their side of the terrific game, it was always possible to go one better, because they were such slaves to method that they often fell into madness. When they shelled a certain position from time to time it was possible to figure that they would always send their missiles in multiples of four, and at intervals as punctually observed as the clock scheduled for darkness. Fritz's eagerness would cause him to set his engines in motion before darkness fully fell, and to keep them up just a little too long after daylight. Harrington used to be ready with reconnoitering aeroplanes for these occasions, and so obtain invaluable information.

General Harrington.

Harrington frequently said that after the war he would like to meet some of the fellows he was pitted against. That was one form of manifesting his goodwill to his own comrades—it is axiomatic that the best warrior is he who is sympathetic to his own fellows, and by the same token will appreciate whatever good qualities his opponent may show. Harrington was a past master in making all his colleagues feel that they had a notable share in whatever successes were achieved under his official auspices. After a success, he would enter a room, hands in pockets and head shoved down between his shoulders, and hail his brethren with "Well, boys, we did it." The occasional outbreaks of horseplay and horseplay was one of the main-features that were alleged against Oliver Cromwell in connection with the gravest events of his amazingly effective military life—in which Harrington participated were specimens of a true camaraderie as well as testimonies to the all but insupportable strain under which duty was daily done. The sense of humor and the proneness to give it rein were greater factors in winning the war than the historians fully understand.

Imagine everything that has been said about the stiffness, the ineptitude, the overbearing superiority of the British officer saturated with war office traditions, and you have in mind qualities that are conspicuous by their absence from the British safeguard in Constantinople. When the British government turned over the actual negotiations with Kemal to Harrington, it was predicted that, once let Harrington get near enough to the great Turk Nationalist to exercise his common sense and charm and diplomacy upon him, there would be no war. There might possibly be a little horseplay; but by knowing how to give without seeming anxious to take the British general would serve the cause of peace by making plain his capacities for war—it was were forced upon him.

A HUNDRED-MILE WALK TO SEE HIS FATHER-IN-LAW

James H. Ashdown, the Millionaire Hardware Dealer of Winnipeg, Was Keen to Grasp an Opportunity.

By W. L. E.

MR. JAMES H. ASHDOWN, the veteran multi-millionaire wholesale hardware merchant of Winnipeg, who settled there in 1868, and was imprisoned by Riel in 1870 for taking up arms against him, was early noted for his keenness to grasp an opportunity that promised to further his business interests. But there was at least one opportunity in this respect that he was unable, through lack of the necessary financial means, to grasp, although it was not without making an effort that few would have either the courage or the physical ability to emulate.

It happened away back in the days when Winnipeg was a little village unconnected with the outside world—except by trail or water route and when the business Mr. Ashdown owned was represented by a modest tin-smithing shop. A local man having a retail hardware store, which, though small, he was unable to run successfully, suggested to Mr. Ashdown that he purchase his stock.

"It will fit in well with your tireware," he ventured.

"But, much as I would like to get your stock, I haven't the money to pay for it," replied Mr. Ashdown.

"Well, your father-in-law has," suggested the hardwareman. "See if you cannot borrow from him."

"I'll think it over," replied Mr. Ashdown. This conversation took place on a Friday, and on the following Monday, the hardwareman, encountering Mr. Ashdown on the street, remarked:

"Well, have you been thinking over that matter?"

"Yes; and furthermore, I have seen my father-in-law and he said 'No.'"

As Mr. Ashdown's father-in-law lived at Portage la Prairie, nearly sixty miles distant, and there was at the time no connecting railway between the two points, the hardwareman, doubting the truthfulness of Ashdown's statement, asked: "How in the world could you have seen him since Friday?"

"I walked to Portage la Prairie and back," replied Mr. Ashdown. And that is what he had done.

The Most Contented Man

At one of the annual fairs held in the Windermere district, Mr. Gibbon contributed a prize of twenty dollars for the most contented settler in the valley. It was won by Mr. Troyer, who is a pioneer in the district.

He is now eighty-two years old and with a very cheerful wife enjoying life in keeping with Julia Ward Howe's pithy remark that "All the sugar was in the bottom of the cup."

GAME OF TAKE AND PUT

HERE is a story from Lord Eversley's interesting book of reminiscences, and as it concerns an Irish M.P., it has a topical flavor. The Irishman's name was Scully, and he stood hesitating on one important occasion, undecided as to which way he would vote.

Lord Moncke, the Liberal whip, observed his hesitation and seized the opportunity. Going up to Scully, Lord Moncke remarked pleasantly: "My dear Scully, I hope you are going to give us your vote."

Scully frowned testily, and, drawing away, replied: "My dear Lord Moncke, I hope the next time you abstract a 'y' from my name, you will add it on to your own."

And the Conservative cause flourished.

Two Taft Tales

ONE of the best jokes ever invented about President Taft was fired off by Mr. Chauncey Depew, himself once a candidate for the presidency, and one of the world's most brilliant raconteurs.

It turned, of course, as do all the Taft stories, on the latter's huge bulk.

"My friend Taft," said Mr. Depew, "is the coldest man in America. He has been seen sitting in his seat in a tramcar on three ladies."

Another story relates how, on one of his visits to the Southern States, a negro cook who had prepared dinner for him was asked if she did not feel highly honored at cooking for such an eminent man.

"Never done heard of him before," was aunty's reply. "Know nothin' about him, ex-aunty he do look as if he been reg'lar at his place."

After the show the latter was complaining of his hard luck, and Mr. Martin gave him this piece of advice: "You have a good string of birds, but you lost your prizes between the station and Madison square. Only perfect care on every part of the journey can deliver a bird in perfect condition at a show."

Harrington's Charm is Held as Dangerous As His Outstanding Capacities for War

Though Firm About Duty, He Can Relax When Relaxation Is the Proper Order of the Day—He Is a Master of Giving Without Seeming to Take.

EVERYTHING written about General Sir Charles Harrington, the commander of the British key to peace, without which there would almost certainly have been a great war with the Turks, has emphasized his efficiency in many military fields and his ability to get along with all sorts of men. He is never out of patience, is invariably courteous, and obviously wishful to see things as they present themselves to his subordinates, whom he encourages fully to express their views. He will not stand for anything like evasion of duty, or even the smallest lack of candor in disclosing the situation. His habit of always being at the top of his form when on duty, though, is close to a readiness to relax, when relaxation is a proper order of the day or night.

Tim Harrington was and is a perfect exponent of the truth that the greater the tension the greater the reaction. That is, especially true of the cruel strains of warfare, and such warfare as our fellows had to endure in Europe. Tim Harrington began the war high up in the intelligence department, a phase of warfare in which he gave such eminent Canadians as General Mitchell their first lessons, and it may be said, their first confidence, for they felt pretty green in Armageddon's early days. The costs of obtaining information were of course often terribly tragic, even when they meant the saving of much life. In warfare always a few lives must be spent in order that many be not sacrificed. Apart from that the matching of knowledges and wits is a great and tremendous game. Tim Harrington played it in France and Flanders with consummate skill and unflinching courage.

He was never downhearted, however dark the odds against the allies. For one thing, he was continually proving that no matter how thoroughly the Germans played their side of the terrific game, it was always possible to go one better, because they were such slaves to method that they often fell into madness. When they shelled a certain position from time to time it was possible to figure that they would always send their missiles in multiples of four, and at intervals as punctually observed as the clock could allow. In making train movements, scheduled for darkness, Fritz's eagerness would cause him to set his engines in motion before darkness fully fell, and to keep them up just a little too long after daylight. Harrington used to be ready with reconnaissance aeroplanes for these occasions, and so obtain invaluable information.

Harrington frequently said that after the war he would like to meet some of the fellows he was pitted against. That was one form of manifesting his goodwill to his own comrades—it is axiomatic that the best warrior is he who is sympathetic to his own fellows, and by the same token will appreciate whatever good qualities his opponent may show. Harrington was a past master in making all his colleagues feel that they had a notable share in whatever successes were achieved under his official auspices. After a success, he would enter a room, hands in pockets and head shoved down between his shoulders, and hail his brethren with "Well, boys, we did it." The occasional outbreaks of horseplay—and horseplay was one of the heinousnesses that were alleged against Oliver Cromwell in connection with the gravest events of his amazingly effective military life—in which Harrington participated were specimens of a true camaraderie as well as testimonies to the all but insupportable strain under which duty was daily done. The sense of humor and the proneness to give it rein were greater factors in winning the war than the historians fully understand.

Imagine everything that has been said about the stiffness, the ineptitude, the overbearing superiority of the British officer saturated with war office traditions, and you have in mind qualities that are conspicuous by their absence from the British safeguard in Constantinople. When the British government turned over the actual negotiations with Kemal to Harrington, it was predicted that, once let Harrington get near enough to the great Turk Nationalist to exercise his common sense and charm and diplomacy upon him, there would be no war. There might possibly be a little horseplay; but by knowing how to give without seeming anxious to take the British general would serve the cause of peace by making plain his capacities for war—if war were forced upon him.

A Man Specially Born For a Position in Life

Says the Genial Manager of the World's Greatest Fair.

ONE of the tenets an alert newspaper man maintains is to establish the how, when, wherefore and why of any occurrence, no matter how insignificant, for the editor, trained by years of experience, may see in it untold news value.

It is related that an erstwhile young reporter, who shall be nameless, was on one occasion interviewing John G. Kent, the general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition.

During the course of the interview the reporter asked Mr. Kent when and where he was born. Having received the required information, being somewhat over-eager and from sheer force of habit, asked, "Why?"

Mr. Kent, not to be outwitted, for he always has a ready answer, replied:

"Why?—To manage the world's greatest fair, of course."

John G. Kent.

FRIEND TO HUMBLE ICE CREAM CONES

Mrs. McClung Stood by Them in "Society."

ALL who know "Nellie" McClung, with her breezy and genial independence, her complete absence of "side," will appreciate Edmonton's "latest."

At a recent informal tea, the guest of honor, Her Excellency, Lady Byng, the latter referred to ice cream as the "national dish." A very dignified guest of the "prunes and prisms" type, sitting near, joined in to express her disapproval of a particular form of it, "the ubiquitous cone," completing her arraignment of that popular delicacy, by stating, complacently: "I have never eaten one."

"Nellie's" eyes reflected visions of past delights, but her tones were very sympathetic as she sighed, sorrowfully: "My! Just think what you've missed."

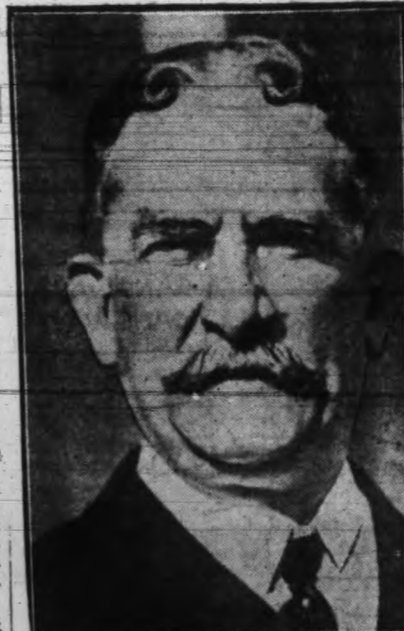

"Well," she explained afterwards, "I love cones. Why I've eaten hundreds of them. I wasn't going to give up the humble cone just because I was eating in high society."

"BRING YER GUNS WY YE"

COLONEL, now General, Logie, mounted on his charger, was on duty at one of the entrances to Niagara Camp in the summer of 1915 when a green sentry was on duty, probably doing his first "sentry go." Imagine the colonel's astonishment when the sentry did not turn out the guard. "What are you doing here, my man?" asked the colonel. "On guard, sir," replied the sentry, still leaning on the muzzle of his rifle. "On guard, eh?" said the colonel. "Don't you know that you should turn out the guard for a colonel. You are lucky I am not a general. Turn out the guard immediately."

The sentry turned and sauntered over to the guard tent, dragging his rifle after him, and, pulling back the tent flap, called out: "Hey, youse fellows in there, wake up and come on out; here's a gink on a horse out here, and he wants to have a look at ye; and bring yer guns 'wy ye."

General Logie was inwardly amused at the incident, but no doubt a considerable time of the syllabus was taken up in mounting guard and the duties of sentries after that.

Wall Street Wreaks Revenge

THIS is Thos. W. Lawson, celebrated Wall street financier, and author of "Friday, the Thirteenth," the gripping novel in which he set out to expose the methods by which the high financiers gouge the widow and orphan and the uninitiated who speculate in stocks. Lawson has been a marked man ever since, and now "Friday, the Thirteenth" has come to him. Wall street has broken him. It drove him out of large operations. Now it has forced him to give up Dreamworld, his beautiful estate in Egypt, Mass., with all its freight of treasures, worth $5,000,000. All that is left for him is an annuity of $50,000, which he bought some years ago.

A HUNDRED-MILE WALK TO SEE HIS FATHER-IN-LAW

James H. Ashdown, the Millionaire Hardware Dealer of Winnipeg, Was Keen to Grasp an Opportunity.

By W. L. E.

M R. JAMES H. ASHDOWN, the veteran multi-millionaire wholesale hardware merchant of Winnipeg, who settled there in 1868, and was imprisoned by Riel in 1870 for taking up arms against him, was early noted for his keenness to grasp an opportunity that promised to further his business interests. But there was at least one opportunity in this respect that he was unable, through lack of the necessary financial means, to grasp, although it was not without making an effort that few would have either the courage or the physical ability to emulate.

It happened away back in the days when Winnipeg was a little village unconnected with the outside world except by trail or water route a day when the business Mr. Ashdown owned was represented by a modest tin-smithing shop. A local man having a retail hardware store, which, though small, he was unable to run successfully, suggested to Mr. Ashdown that he purchase his stock.

"It will fit in well with your tinware," he ventured.

"But, much as I would like to get your stock, I haven't the money to pay for it," replied Mr. Ashdown.

"Well, your father-in-law has," suggested the hardwareman. "See if you cannot borrow from him."

"I'll think it over," replied Mr. Ashdown. This conversation took place on a Friday, and on the following Monday, the hardwareman, encountering Mr. Ashdown on the street, remarked:

"Well, have you been thinking over that matter?"

"Yes; and furthermore, I have seen my father-in-law and he said 'No.'"

As Mr. Ashdown's father-in-law lived at Portage la Prairie, nearly sixty miles distant, and there was at the time no connecting railway between the two points, the hardwareman, doubting the truthfulness of Ashdown's statement, asked: "How in the world could you have seen him since Friday?"

"I walked to Portage la Prairie and back," replied Mr. Ashdown. And that is what he had done.

The Most Contented Man

At one of the annual fairs held in the Windermere district, Mr. Gibbon contributed a prize of twenty dollars for the most contented settler in the valley. It was won by Mr. Troyer, who is a pioneer in the district.

He is now eighty-two years old and with a very cheerful wife enjoying life in keeping with Julia Ward Howe's pithy remark that "All the sugar was in the bottom of the cup."

GAME OF TAKE AND PUT

HERE is a story from Lord Eversley's interesting book of reminiscences, and as it concerns an Irish M.P., it has a topical flavor. The Irishman's name was Scully, and he stood hesitating on one important occasion, undecided as to which way he would vote.

Lord Moncke, the Liberal whip, observed his hesitation and seized the opportunity. Going up to Scully, Lord Moncke remarked pleasantly: "My dear Scully, I hope you are going to give us your vote."

Scully frowned testily, and, drawing away, replied: "My dear Lord Moncke, I hope the next time you abstract a 'y' from my name, you will add it on to your own."

And the Conservative cause flourished.

Two Taft Tales

ONE of the best jokes ever invented about ex-President Taft was fired off by Mr. Chauncey Depew, himself once a candidate for the presidency, and one of the world's most brilliant raconteurs.

It turned, of course, as do all the Taft stories, on the latter's huge bulk.

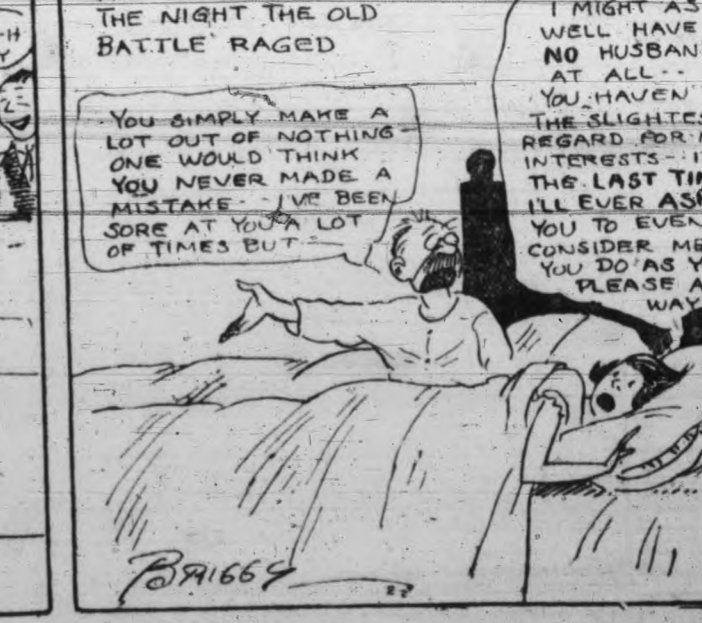

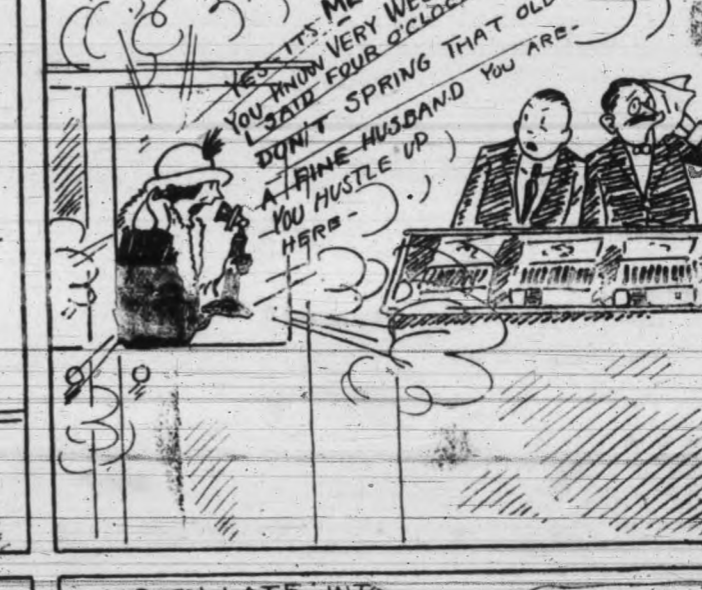

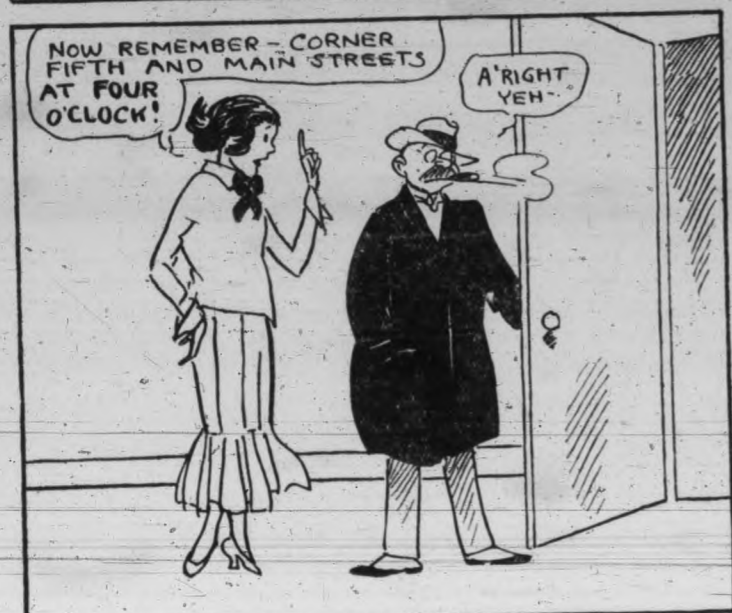

"My friend Taft," said Mr. Depew, "is the wildest man in America. He has been seen to give up his seat in a tramcar to three ladies."

Another story relates how, on one of his visits to the Southern States, a negro cook who had prepared dinner for him was asked if she did not feel highly honored at cooking for such an eminent man.

"Never done heard of him before," was aunty's reply. "Know nothin' about him, except he do look as if he been reg'lar at his place."

SHE GETS ALONG.
A young married woman, full of idealism, met an older woman, also married. "How's your husband?" asked the young woman. "Pretty well, I think. He works

"Oh, you poor thing! I sympathize."
"Oh, no dear. It's all right. The hour soon goes."

The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada

This Little Black Book Contains The Best Plan of Insurance For You

THE most sensible way to buy life insurance is to take the Mutual Life Agent into your confidence. Tell him your circumstances.

Then with the aid of the "Little Black Book," which every Mutual Life Agent carries, he will help you to select the plan of life insurance best suited to your needs.

The young unmarried man who buys insurance as an investment for his savings needs a plan of insurance different from that of the man who takes out insurance to protect his wife and family of young children.

The capitalist with very heavy financial responsibilities requires a plan different from that of the man on straight salary.

The farmer who has his farm bought and paid for requires a policy different from the one carried by a farmer with a mortgage to pay off.

The "Little Black Book" contains Mutual Life plans for everybody. It contains plans of insurance with which you are not familiar—one of these unfamiliar plans might be the very best for you. Consult the Mutual Life Agent.

SEGREGATION PLAN TO AID EFFICIENCY IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Dictated by Desire For Best Work at Lowest Cost, Trustees Say

Desire for the highest efficiency at the lowest cost dictated the City School Board's policy of segregating Chinese students from the public schools, the City School Board declares in a signed statement issued by Chairman George Jay yesterday.

The text of the board's statement, as signed by Trustee Jay, follows: "The policy of the Board of School Trustees has been adopted in the interests of increased economy and efficiency, and only after very careful consideration. The board is endeavoring to give pupils better opportunities to progress and at the same time meet its responsibilities to the ratepayers by reducing cost of maintenance wherever possible. Its action has been governed by no racial prejudice, it has not exceeded its jurisdiction and has not disregarded its duty to all classes.

To Relieve Congestion
"At the close of last term it was considered that an effort should be made to remove certain unsatisfactory classrooms, and to a certain extent retarding influences were handicapping general progress in schools attended by pupils of foreign extraction who were deficient in English. The grounds of the Fernwood School were unfit for use during the Fall and Winter months, while the attendance at this school was comparatively low. A careful survey of the whole situation led the board to conclude that most of these difficulties could be removed by a readjustment of district boundaries, the removal of Fernwood buildings to a congested district and by utilizing in the best general interests this school as well as those at Rock Bay and King's Road. To that end the Fernwood School was closed, the buildings moved to a new site on Railway Street, the district being absorbed in the redefined Oaklands and Bank Street districts; the Burnside and Quadra Street districts were enlarged to relieve conditions at Quadra Primary School; boundaries of the North Ward district were extended slightly to relieve probable congestion in adjoining districts. It was further decided to use the above buildings at Rock Bay, King's Road and Railway Street, which were situated within the North Ward district, as accommodation for pupils in that district below the junior fourth grade, whom, on account of their deficiency in the English language, it was deemed advisable to keep together for the purpose of receiving special instruction in that subject; also, to assign to these special classes pupils from other districts whose imperfect knowledge of English was a retarding influence not only to their own progress, but also to that of other pupils in the same class, provided such pupils were within a reasonable distance of the

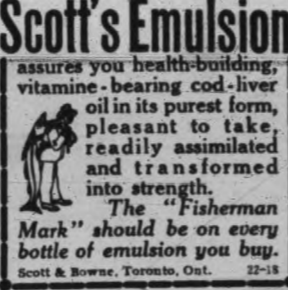

No Racial Ideas
"The board has put into effect no policy based on racial segregation. With a few exceptions it is simply demanding that pupils attend the schools within their own district and that junior and intermediate grades be given special instruction in the North Ward district which will benefit by special instruction in English, attend the classes in that district. It is regretted that the opposition of certain parents has been carried to the extent of withdrawing their children from school, but it is hoped that after careful consideration they will realize that the board is endeavoring to provide for their children the best opportunities of educational progress.

Result of Reorganization
"By carrying out these plans and by increasing enrolment in divisions generally where conditions permitted, the board was able:

- (a) To close a school located on a site unsatisfactory during wet weather.
- (b) To vacate a Sunday school room not adapted for classroom purposes on account of inadequate lighting, etc., and for which the board was paying a monthly rental of thirty-five dollars ($35.00).
- (c) To dispense with using classrooms one basement room and two assembly rooms entirely unfitted for such use.
- (d) To provide against the necessity of constructing a two-room annex at Quadra Primary School.
- (e) To reduce the graded school staff by fourteen teachers.
- (f) To promote general progress by keeping in special classes those pupils requiring extra attention and special instruction in the subject of English.

These results would seem to justify the action of the board, which is determined to administer the schools as economically as possible and in the best interests of all concerned.

VISITING ALPINIST PRAISES B. C. PEAKS

Believes Mt. Everest's Ascent Will Yet Be Achieved

Famous British and American alpinists have praised the wonders of the Canadian Rockies, and compared them with the Alps and other great mountain ranges of the world that have tested the endurance of expert mountaineers, but it is not often that tribute to the opportunities afforded in British Columbia by climbers is paid by expert Swiss opinion.

Otto Paul Schwarz, of Basel, who is registered at the Strathcona Hotel, has just come from a visit to the Swiss guides engaged in the mountain resorts, and has himself climbed extensively around Lake Louise and a number of peaks in the area. He devoted much of his time to climbing the world famous peaks in his native country, and shows keen interest in displaying pictures of the Matterhorn, which he has attacked from various routes. Mr. Schwarz has a fine collection of Swiss mountain pictures, which he showed to the Times' representative last evening, and he will lecture on mountain climbing in Montreal on his way back. He is a graduate of Basel University, correspondent for Swiss newspapers, and for the Alpine Journal, so that British Columbia mountains will receive from him in the near future some interesting comment.

Mr. Schwarz believes that British endeavor will yet conquer the terrors of Mount Everest, difficult as are the problems presented to ascend the highest peak in the world. He referred to the struggles of the British alpinists to conquer the Matterhorn, and the eventual triumph after several years in 1868, though at the cost of four lives, and expressed the opinion that the summit will be won. It will not be done, however, he thinks until further sacrifice of lives has been made over the crowning peak in the Himalayas.

The people of Canada, Mr. Schwarz declared, do not appreciate the commercial value of the country as magnets to tourists, and of the opportunities they afford for testing out the endurance and courage of those who go mountain climbing. He takes a rather unusual view of the opportunity for young people, when he says that there is no other pastime which occupies the whole attention of the participants, which calls for greater hardihood, decision, and supreme qualities of adventure.

Mr. Schwarz is collecting data about British Columbia for information to his fellow countrymen who desire to emigrate to a country of similar physical conditions to their own land. He will remain in Victoria until Sunday.

BUILD FORTY MILES OF RAILWAY TO TAP VAST TIMBER AREAS

Cheminain Lumber Company to Boost Output to Enormous Figure

Will Open Robertson River Section and Log Fallen Timber

Forty miles of railway, which opens up some of the finest stands of timber on Vancouver Island, is under construction now by the Victoria Lumber and Manufacturing Company to provide raw material for its big mill at Chemainus. To consume the enormous supply of timber tapped by this railway the company proposes to increase the capacity of its mill to no less than 1,000,000 feet a day. If the lumber market is steady, according to E. J. Palmer, the veteran lumberman, who operates the Chemainus plant. This would make the mill one of the largest in the world.

One branch of the railway now being built will open up a fine tract of timber in the Haslam Creek district and will be tributary to Oyster Harbour, two miles north of Ladysmith. Ten miles of this railway already are graded. Track laying and the installation of bridges are proceeding now. Logs will be moving over the new road next March, Mr. Palmer says.

Another line will tap a stand of timber further south on the Chemainus River, which line will be by way of Copper Canyon, running to a point about three miles from Sautim station. It will reach some of the finest timber on the island. This growth is surrounded by hills and protected from the wind, has reached a wonderful development.

A second railway line is run along the southern shore of Cowichan Lake to the rich Bear Lake and Robertson River area the Victoria Lumber and Manufacturing Company will commence operations there, Mr. Palmer announces. The company is particularly anxious to move out timber which fell during heavy storms two years ago. This timber must be saved without much delay. Engineers are in the Robertson River country now locating the route of the new line from the southern end of Cowichan Lake to Bear Lake.

HOSPITAL RECEIVES GENEROUS GIFTS

Board Appreciates Kindness; Money and Furnishings Given

Gifts and donations to the new Jubilee Hospital are being made in a most generous fashion and the board of directors last evening expressed its hearty appreciation of the kindly acts of the donors.

Edwin Johnson sent the board a cheque for $500. The Women's Canadian Club, through its secretary, Mrs. P. Elliott, informed the board that the club had decided to use $1,000 of its building fund for the purpose of furnishing a three-room ward in the hospital to be known as the Women's Canadian Club ward. To this proposal the directors readily agreed.

The Great War Next-of-Kin Association, through Mrs. R. S. Day, informed the directors that the association was prepared to furnish, out of the memorial fund of the society, the suite to be used for the eye, ear and nose treatment and the anaesthetic room attached to it. This gift, in the latter states, is a most grateful tribute to the men who fought and in loving memory of those who fell.

Mrs. Rhodes, president of the W. A. of the hospital, showed the directors one of a set of twenty tray services which the W. A. is supplying the new hospital with. The services are of white metal and are complete. A letter of thanks will be sent to the ladies.

A separate book will be opened for the new hospital in which to record the gifts made to the hospital and a plan of the hospital will be prepared for the information of organizations or individuals wishing to furnish wards or make other gifts.

Electrical Contract.
The Sun Electric's tender for telephone and radio wiring in the new hospital was accepted, the figures being $320 and $78 respectively. Three firms have tendered on elevator installation but the board has made no decision in the matter. Tenders are to be called for the erection of a greenhouse.

The pathologist department showed 455 examinations during the month and the X-ray department treated 236 patients. The cost per patient per diem for the past month was $4.32.

The board will consider shortly the discharge or making provision for other accommodation for chronically infirm and incurable patients. Conditions are not now satisfactory owing to the large number of such cases and the resultant crowding of the institution.

PANGS OF NEURALGIA

This Painful Trouble Is Due to Poverty of the Blood.

Neuralgia is one of the most painful maladies that afflicts humanity. The trouble is usually seated in the face or head following the course of some nerve, but it attacks other parts of the body as well. It is characterized by acute pains, sometimes steady, at others spasmodic and darting. But whatever course it takes the pain is agonizing and almost unbearable. Medical authorities agree that neuralgia is due to poverty of the blood—that the nerves are actually being starved. It is further agreed that if the blood is purified and enriched the trouble will disappear. It is for this reason that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been so successful in treating neuralgia. They enrich the blood which feeds the starved, aching nerves and thus bring relief to the sufferer, whose general health is also improved. Proof of the value of these pills in cases of this kind is given by Mrs. M. Brown, R. R. No. 1, Warsaw, Ont., who says: "I have taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and can recommend them as being the best medicine I know of for neuralgia. Two years ago I had an attack of this trouble in the neck and shoulder. The repeated attacks of the pain were of such frightful intensity that my life was almost unbearable. I consulted two doctors and took their medicine, but without relief. I had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills years ago, when they helped me wonderfully, and I decided to try them again. Before I had taken more than a half dozen boxes the pain had disappeared, and I have since enjoyed the best of health, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

REPORT IMPROVED REGISTRATIONS
Household List Passes 500 Mark Yesterday

The Get-A-Vote campaign will end its third week to-day with a lead over last year's registration figures for the same period.

A jump in the registrations, due to the Gyro notary service, sent yesterday's total to 504, making a total up to last night of 504, as compared with 417 last year.

At the end of October 21 last year there were 492 registrations, exceeded already by this year's total.

Next week the big effort will come, for the Gyros will struggle to keep up to the 1921 daily totals, which ranged from 125 to 261 during the fourth
