COLEMAN
FLYING SCHOOL

A vintage photograph of a biplane on a runway. The sky is filled with large, white, fluffy clouds. A white rectangular text box is superimposed on the upper right portion of the image, containing several lines of text. The biplane is in the lower left foreground, and the runway extends into the distance.

We're sitting here in camp
With our spirits awfully damp
From those aunts along the ramp
While Tojo says "So solly!"

Our instructor says, "You'll learn to fly;
Get your head out; come on, try,
And 44A will rule the sky."
While Tojo says "So solly!"

Yes, the Air Corps treats us swell
Although we live and breathe by bell
We'll be in shape to "Give 'em hell"
While Tojo says "So solly!"

And when his rising sun is set
I hope that I'm the guy they let
Pay off that old Pearl Harbor debt,
While Tojo says "So solly!"

DEDICATION

It is a pair of silver wings that symbolizes the ultimate of our strivings.

They are a small pittance of silver, but their shape fashioned by the hands of man shows hard training, an excellent body, and perfection in the gift that was given to the birds alone.

It is for the privilege of being worthy to wear this trinket that we devote our very existence to the tasks that beset the way of an Army Air Cadet.

Therefore, we proudly dedicate this book to the symbol of perfection in the art to which we are devoted.

To the Class of 44-A:

You have now completed the most difficult part of your training. You are that much closer to your objective. The value of a military pilot is judged completely by his ability to meet unexpected situations easily and with good judgment. That above everything else is what you should derive from your training in order that when you finally do reach your objective, which I know you shall, you may be better qualified to meet and beat the enemy.

THOSE WHO WAIT
OUR WIVES

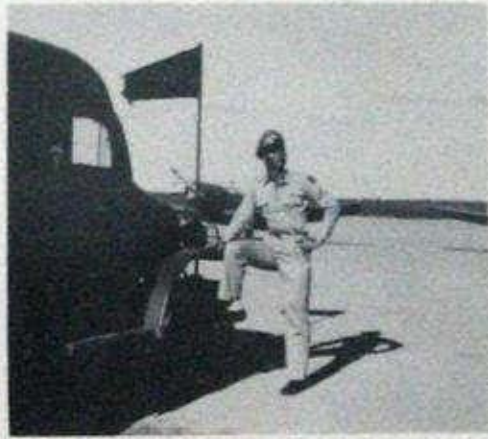

"Ain't it the damdest thing?" And it is — at least when "Monk" is doing one of his multitude of tricks. Perhaps one of the things we'll remember the most from primary is "Monk" Watson, his ever-present smile, and his bag of tricks.

We could write volumes on "Monk" and his experiences—how, long before he started his Morale Director here, he was hob-nobbing with such people as Bob Hope, Martha Raye, Edger Bergen, and others. But why write volumes? Those of us who have seen one of "Monk's" shows have seen enough to know that he is as important to Coleman Flying School as Airplanes are to the Air Corps. We're darn glad you're around, "Monk," and we know the classes to come will be. For a big job well done —Thanks a lot.

The Army Air Forces Cadets are confronted by a sacred common task: to present a solid front of courage and integrity ready to continue at any cost so that America will continue free from oppression.

The Army Forces are manned by gallant, skilled, self-sacrificing officers, trained in modern methods and vitalized by the spirit that has made America great—the spirit that will continue to make our America endure and conquer any force.

DEDICATION

To those fellows who struggled and sweated their way through Pre-flight to get on their way to winning those silver wings of a Pilot; to those fellows who wanted to fly, but lacked that certain little thing, such as the feel of the ship or a lack of co-ordination—the eliminated pilots—this page is sincerely dedicated.

These fellows didn't wash out because they wanted to. They didn't wash out because they didn't have the will to win. All these fellows known as "washouts" have the spirit, the will to win, and plenty of good, old-fashioned American guts, and you can be sure that even though they have been knocked down once, they, like all other good fighters, will come back. These fellows aren't beaten yet and they won't be kept down.

Tomorrow or the day after when you see a B-17 or B-26 you can say to yourself, "There is a plane up there—it has a Bombardier or Navigator who was once a washout. Those guys are no longer washouts—they have come back to the top and will stay there because they have that something that all flyers have and even a right cross to the jaw won't stop them." These so-called "washouts" are going to give Hitler and Hirohito just as much hell as anybody else.

SO LONG, BUDDY

We flew the flag
At half-mast today—
For you
Our Buddy.

We are not sorrowful—
You lived and died
Too full of life
To warrant tears.

We are not praying—
The Great Instructor
Needs no prayers—
To claim His own.

So long, Buddy—
We must go on . . .
Must leave you here.

Fly high, Buddy;
You can rest now—
You've won your wings.
So long, Buddy.

Ach, Mein Gott!!
It's 44-A!
