Mrs. PARLAMEENT, her Invitation

OF

Mrs. LONDON, to a Thanksgiving Dinner.

FOR

The great and mighty VIStory, which Mr. Horten obtayned over Major Powell, in Wales.

By Mercurius Melancholieus.

Exter Mrs. London, and Mrs. Common-Councell.

Mrs. London.

Ow, our good Lord be thanked for this great Victory, which the Righteoms under the Command of that holy Saint Horion, have obtained over the wicked, under the Command of those Reproduces, Poyer, Powell, and Langborne.

Mrs. Com. Comp. 'T was a happie Providence my dear Sifter, and much to be admired amongs? the Saints, for this will prove the animation of our owné party, and the discouraging of our enemies, those pagan Cavaliers, who now begin to take armes, and to fall foule on the people of the Lord:

Mrs. Lond. Very true Sifter, who would have thought of this new diffemper, or that our honourable Sifter Mrs. Parliament, who was arrived to the very higheft pitch of honour and faid to her felfe, 7 fit like a Queene, and faall know no forrow, fhould on the fudden become wretchedly milerable, fhe whom a Nation courted, offering their lives and effates at her feet, and maintained her for the fpace of feaven yeares, in open Rebellion and Difloyalty against her head and Husband, the that imagined her felfe fo fure, that no humane firength could thake her, is now become in a manner defolate.

Mrs. Mil. Hell take this every lafting Parliament, or rather, this incorrigible lunto, what a toffing to and fro they make of me; the King my true and onely Maller mult not Command me, (because forfooth) like another Minerva, the fate of new Troy, as once that of the old confifts in me, Mrs. Parliament who hath commanded me this feaven yeares (the Devill take her for it) is now woed by Mrs. Lenden to part with me, and let her another while injoy me; this the hath (but to her great coff) obtained, and now;

As at the first, a Royall Prince did owne me, His Power layd by, jeaven yeares the world hath known me. Upill Achree pild Bawd, to Mrs. Parliament; Now Mrs. Loadons; Cuckelds bee contene.

Mrs. Lond. Looke Sifter, yonders that malignant Dame, Mrs. Militia, muttering to herfelfe againft Mrs. Parliament, O'tis a notable Scold and of fuch force, that fhee is able to breake open yron barricado'd gates, to fland an Army and toffe huge Chies in the Ayre, but J have purchas'd her of Mrs. Parliament, with a round-fumme of money, and the truth is, that godly wo nan, is altogether fwayed by Gold, the will do nothing for mervithout greazing i'the fift.

Mrs. Com. Count Tis very true, exp. riemia docet, for my part had I the money once J freely parted with, mov'd with my fifter Parliaments pious words, I'de be advited ere I gave it away, but I hope well of her, and that with us, the is a Saint by calling; how does Mrs. Minitia.

Mrs. M.I. Sick fick at heart, of the very fame difease, that is now so catching, the Pox, the Plagne, and all those cruell malladies Pandora brought on earth to ruine men though all conjoyn'd in one, are not so mischievous.

Mrs. Com. What disease Mrs. Militia.

Mcs. Mil. Why? Its called Parliament, the fame that hath murdered to many thousands of loyall English subjects, this

Mrs Lon. O Mrs Parliament, I much joy to see you never was woman of your ranke so contemned and abused, here was, Mrs Militia the Malignant but even now, who shewed mee and my sifter Common counsell, an Anagram, which the Traiteresse Truth had framed on your names, whereis she taxes you of I know not how many crimes, and sayes you are worthy to bee hangd, as an enemie to your Conntry.

Mrs Parliament, no matter what Trath reports, you know I care not for her, but for Mrs. Militia and the refl ò the Malignants, I have given order for their removall, twentie miles from thy prefence Mrs. Lordon, Mrs Common connfell, you are to publish the order, reade it Mrs Thankgiving. Mrs. Thanksgiving Reads.

The day May 22. 1648,

I Mrs Parliament, by the permission and assistance of Pluto, of England, Scotland, and Ireland, Supreame Governesse, dee decree and ordaine that al Papifts, by whom I meane al those that are for Monarchicall government, for the Booke of Common Prayer, for Archbishops, and for order and decensie in thes Church of God, that all souldiers offoriuns and all other persons what soever, that base borne Armes against mee, that is to fay, all such, as have as cording to their oath of Allegiance the Law of God the Law of the Land, and the Law of nature, been in Armes and fought for the honour of their Soveraign Lord King Charles to pull downe mey a surped power, to put a period to my Rebellions, (ball at or before the five and twentieth of this instant May 1648 depart the cities of London and WV.estminster, and all other places wishin twentie miles, and if any of the faid perjons afore faid, foal continue within twentie miles as aforefaid, after the five, and tmenticsh day of May, they shal bee apprehended, Imprisoned and proceeded against as Traysors.

Mrs Come coun. I like the order well, wee will have none to converse with us Mrs. London; but those that are Righteens what fellowship ought there to bee betweene us Iewes, and those samaritans of the Royal partie, verily none, Mrs. Lond; Jnsoth you speake like a most godly Saint, my deare fister, and for my owne part I would have none to reside neare mee, but the good people of the Lord.

Mrs. Parl. Mrs London, and Mrs Common Counfel, you both know that the wicked ones of the Land are now combyning together against us; therefore a little to protract the time; I have devised a way for to amuse the people, Mr, Horton whom I fent with a partie for the reducing of Poyer, hath lately ceaz'd on divers Countrey fellowes, who met with an Intent to list themselves under the command of Poyer, Powel, Langhorn and the refl, this ile have noised to bee a victory a great and mighty victory, which news will cramp the Royalists Defignes, keepe back the Scots a while, incontage our owne partie, and cannot chuse but bee an helpe unto us; you therefore Mrs Thank/giving, proclaime throughout the Cattie, that every man praise God in his owne parish, those that have money fealt and make good cheare, for this most great and mighty victory, Mrs Thanks. I shall forsonh, but who shall Preach before ' you on that day.

Mrs. Parl. Who but my bonnie Bulchin Marshall, I have not amongstal my Priests notio fir, the Bellie God Vines, is a meere Barrel and yeilds no noise without you taker on him, Nie sqeaks so low, a new shoe trod on by a fickly woman, makes. better mellodie, but Marshal bellowes out my tryumph, in such a tone, not all the bulls that at Generathunde, when they exclaime against Episcopacie, yeild the like musick, goe you Mrs Thanksg iving to him, and carry these good Angels which will increase the vigout of his lungs Mrs Thanks; good M rs Common consfell, See that a Saintlike dinner bee prepared, and flore of wine, that we may heat our Zeale, you know wee canmot heave our eyes to heaven til wee have often elevated cups Mrs. Common cens, Wee will abound in al things, the creatures none ought to enloy but wee, beafts of the field, the former of the ayre, the fitnes that flock in the turnid deepe were made for us and for our use alone.

Not fit to have their guts with Fullen cramd, Not fit to have their guts with Fullen cramd, They must bee fed, with creatures of low rate. Least that they doe increase and propogate, To eat large Oisters Lobsters, and high fare, Onely is meat for us that Rigiteous are.

Mrs. Parl. Bat my good fifters what shall wee doe to please the Surry men, who are incenss against us, and sweare to bee our deaths men to prevent which and pacific their forie, you Mrs. Humillistian proclaime abroad, that all bee forrow fulland mourne in almes, for those good mens fall Ha, ha, ha, ha I sugh to thinke how my fould sers felld the Rogues, who durft defire a King.

Mrs. Humsliation, I will not faile in my hypocrifie, I can lie downe and crie and wring my hands, flrow flowre upon my face, and looke as meagerly, as when ui'd to mourn during the warre when as the Saints were beaten by the wicked on 's Mrs Parl; Now let us each unto our feverall charge, you Mrs. London, fland faft to mee as 1 will doe to you, I am refolv'd that you thall not out live mee, you Mrs ('ommon connfel, bee fate you finel out more plots and flratagems each day, it makes for our advantage, thus take wee hands, thus fweare to fall together, when as the house where I fo long have wored flall bee pull'd downe and levell'd to the earth, t' will doe mee good to fee thee Mrs London confume in flames, a factifice to Treafon, to conclude, fland unto your tackling floutly, when wee fall, all the land fhall tafte of ruine.

T' Wil bee my joy, when as I needs must fall For to behold a ruine generall; This is the period of my Reformation. To kill my King, and undoe my Nation.
