

NARBERTH AUTOIST IS KILLED BY P. & R. TRAIN

Mrs. Raymond Bye, Narberth, and Miss Eschrick, Langhorne, Victims

Mrs. Raymond Bye, of this borough, and Miss Elizabeth Eschrick, of Langhorne, were killed when their auto was struck by a Philadelphia and Reading express at Woodbourne station, about one mile from Langhorne. Word of the accident was conveyed to Mr. Bye, who was but recently married and who left for Philadelphia at once to claim the body of his wife.

Mrs. Bye left Narberth in her runabout for a visit with friends at Langhorne and Trenton. Arriving at the former place, she and Miss Eschrick started for a short ride before Mrs. Bye continued her journey, Miss Eschrick driving the car.

As they approached the crossing Miss Eschrick evidently became confused on discovering the approaching train and was unable to get off the track in time to escape being hit. She was instantly killed and Mrs. Bye, whose back was broken, was living when picked up. She was placed aboard the train to be taken to the Jewish Hospital, Philadelphia, but died on the way.

Concerning Our Building and Loan Association

Only two weeks more to Christmas, for those stockholders in the Narberth Building and Loan Association who will receive the matured value of their first series of stock to be paid off on September 5, and they will all say that Christmas came twice for them in 1918.

If you do not have any stock in this first series, count up and see when your series comes due; you will be surprised to see how quickly the time flies.

And then again if you do not have any stock in the association, there is no reason why you shouldn't take out a few shares in the new series that opens the same night the first one is paid off, September 5, and before you realize it Christmas will come for you.

One dollar a month will buy one share and after you have paid that dollar every month for about one hundred and thirty-eight months, you will receive two hundred dollars in cash for the one hundred and thirty-eight dollars you have paid in. If you will pay five dollars a month for the same number of months, you will receive one thousand dollars. Ten dollars a month and you will receive two thousand dollars.

We want the residents of Narberth to make this coming series the largest we have ever had and hope all the reads of Our Town will think it over and come to the firehouse on the evening of September 5 prepared to become stockholders in the Narberth Building and Loan Association by purchasing shares in the new series.

One of the Members.

KILLED IN ACTION

James Brawley, Formerly of Haverford, Lost Life in Fight Against Huns

Mrs. William Brawley, of 1618 North Fifty-fourth street, Philadelphia, formerly of Haverford, received word on Monday that her son, James C. Brawley, Jr., had been killed in action in France, on July 15.

James, who was 28 years of age, was a member of Company B, 103d Engineers, which regiment has done such valuable service in the drive against the Huns.

He is a brother of Mrs. Horace Barr, of Lancaster avenue, Haverford, and had many friends along the Main Line. His family have the sincere sympathy of the community in their sad loss. Like many other heroes he has made the supreme sacrifice in the fight for a world wide democracy and his name will be remembered and honored by all who knew him.

NARBERTH'S PATRIOTIC FETE AND DEDICATION OF NARBROOK PARK

September 20 and 21 will go down in the history of Narberth as two days to be remembered. On those days the dedication of Narbrook Park will take place and there will also be held a fete planned along patriotic lines.

While all the features of the fete have not been decided on by the directors of the Civic Association, under whose auspices it will be held, several plans can be announced at this time. Further plans will be discussed at another meeting of the association to be held on Friday evening, August 23, at the Y. M. C. A. Vacations or being out of the city will be the only legitimate excuses for your non-appearance at this meeting.

The objects of this fete are several. The most important is the dedication of Narbrook Park, which a few years ago was nothing but a swamp; a fine resting place for weeds and mosquitoes of the most vicious breed. Today the park is a garden spot on the Main Line, beautifully planned out, with green lawns, and charming houses and containing Narberth's open air theatre, which few of the residents know about. We want every one in Narberth and thousands who live outside the borough to know more about this great civic betterment.

A second object is to make the Narberth Civic Association and its paper, Our Town, better known to so many of our newer citizens and to remind some of the older residents that we are still at the old stand and doing business, and that it is the duty of every adult in Narberth to be a member of the association and to subscribe to its splendid little publication.

And running side by side with these two very worthy objects will be the war and its winning, and as far as possible every booth and every activity connected with the fete will have this in mind.

It is also hoped that every organization of the borough will in some way be represented and in this way become better known to all.

And so with these objects in mind and remembering that even in such a war as this we must keep up the morale of the home and the morale of the community "till the boys come home," we are outlining a few of the features of the fete.

On Friday afternoon the dedication of the park will take place, and on the same afternoon there will be a baby parade and a costume parade, the latter for the older children. There will be a large number of booths, all decorated along patriotic lines; some of these will represent the Allied nations, Great Britain, France, Belgium, etc. Others will represent our own nation, army, navy, marines and the activities which are counting so much in backing them up; Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, etc.

There will be music, both for community singing and for dancing for the younger people and a series of patriotic pictures, details of which will be announced later.

There will be enough booths so that every organization can be represented and we are able to announce already that the Community Club will take charge of the French booth and the suffrage ladies will have the British booth. The organizations of St. Margaret's Church will have a booth. It is hoped that as fast as possible other church organizations will reserve booths, taking under their charge the decoration as well as the sale of materials.

The following booths have been suggested and others may be added from time to time: Belgian, Japanese, Italian, Serbian, Russian (Czechoslavs), Poland, U. S. Army, U. S. Navy, U. S. Marines, Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Red Cross.

This is an open invitation for every one in Narberth to offer suggestions addressed to Mr. Joseph H. Nash, president of the Civic Association; for every individual and every organization to do something for the fete; and to not only have these two days and evenings so that you can be there but spread the invitation to your friends in Philadelphia and along the Main Line, yea throughout Pennsylvania, Jersey and Delaware.

Remember the meeting on Friday evening, August 23, and come with a lot of ideas and suggestions.

ANNUAL NARBERTH TENNIS TOURNAMENT STARTS THIS COMING SATURDAY AFTERNOON

All the Star Players Are Entered for Both the Singles and Doubles.
Many Good Matches Assured—Playing Will Continue Every Saturday Afternoon for Several Weeks, and All Labor Day

The annual tennis tournament of the Narberth Tennis Association will start this coming Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, on the courts at Elmwood and Essex avenues.

Entries for both singles and doubles must be in the hands of the Tournament Committee by 6 P. M. Friday. The members of this committee are W. R. D. Hall, chairman; W. J. Kirkpatrick and A. T. Grugan. If there are any members of the association who haven't yet sent in their entries they are urged to get in communication with one of the members of the committee immediately.

The Tournament Committee is working hard to make this the most interesting and in every way the most successful tournament in the history of the association. The players are all keen to play and judging from the form displayed by some of the members during the summer there are surprises in store for players as well as spectators.

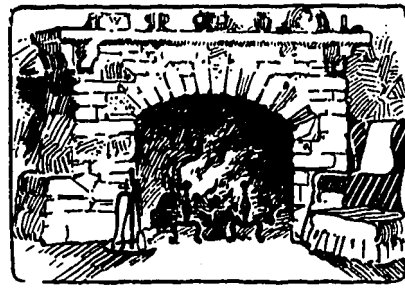

The courts will be put in excellent condition and only a little kindness on the part of the weather man is needed to make the opening of the tournament on Saturday afternoon all that could be desired.

Throughout the tournament at least one court will be reserved for regular playing, so no member need stay out of either the singles or doubles or remain away from the courts on the assumption that he may be eliminated in one of the early matches and then not have any opportunity to play again until the tournament ends. Moreover, every player eliminated in the first round of singles, and every team eliminated in the first round of doubles, will be entered in the consolation tournament, which the Tournament Committee will start just as soon as the first rounds are finished and the consolation drawings can be made.

So, every member of the association should be at the courts Saturday afternoon, promptly at 2 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. George Floyd, of Dudley avenue, have returned from a trip to various Southern points, including a visit to Mrs. Fred Wetherill, of Washington.

Miss T. M. Poole, 3480 Amber street, Philadelphia, held the lucky number (20) which entitled her to the handbag given by the ladies collecting money for the tobacco fund for our boys.

BRYN MAWR HORSE SHOW

The Bryn Mawr Horse Show takes place on September 19, 20 and 21 at Polo Grounds, Bryn Mawr, for British and American war relief and Bryn Mawr Hospital. The hospital should appeal to our neighbors, as there is a large deficit. This hospital is a "war relief" also inasmuch as it will manage a large house for convalescent soldiers and sailors. The hospital benefits only through sale of tickets at 50 cents (not gate money), procurable from Allen Evans, Haverford.

THIS AMERICAN BOY IS HUNGRY IN GERMAN CAMP

Charles W. Kerwood, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., who was in the French aviation service, has sent the following card, written from a German prison camp to a friend in Paris:

"I hope it is possible for you to discover some kind person who will send me food and the essentials of life in the near future. I am in dire need of everything, even shoes. Your informing my former comrades in the Lafayette Corps of my want should do heaps toward my receiving some assistance shortly. I was brought down on March 31. Am in a well-organized camp and being well treated. Food is the big question, and it will take years to receive help from home (Philadelphia), as I have just commenced writing.

The above article was sent from France by James Compton, a Narberth boy, to Fred Walzer. Mr. Walzer is planning assistance to Kerwood, and will be glad to hear from Narberth folks who are desirous of doing something for this worthy cause.

DRAFT RAID NETS 150 AT BELMONT RACE MEET

Young Men Without Classification Cards Turned Over to Police

Federal agents and Ardmore police visited the grand circuit races at Belmont last Thursday and rounded up more than 150 young men who couldn't show their draft classification cards.

The men were taken to the Ardmore police station, where they were turned over to the draft board for examination. Many who had left their classification cards at home were permitted to send for them.

There were 7000 persons in the driving park when the police and Department of Justice agents conducted their surprise party.

ANOTHER CALL FOR SOLDIERS

State draft headquarters at Harrisburg, Saturday, issued the quotas for the various districts to furnish the 10,000 white men and 892 colored men to be sent to Camp Lee late this month.

It is figured out that with some of the 1918 class not yet classified and examined, there will be over 15,000 class 1 men in the State by the end of the month. This number will be added to by new men and probably by some reclassification.

The quotas for this county are:

	White	Col.
First District	6	1
Second District	102	5
Third District	32	1
Fourth District	27	1
Fifth District	20	1
Norristown	11	1

EMERGENCY PHONE CALLS
Fire, 350
Police, 1250

Now that the new postoffice is an accomplished fact, we begin to hope that we may have a telegraph office. There are few towns in the country with a population of between three and four thousand that have no telegraph facilities. We are still depending on the awkward and uncertain method of sending and receiving messages by telephone. Those who have no telephones are at a still greater disadvantage. Just why we should be in the same position as some hamlet, miles from a telegraph line we do not understand.

Narberth is to be congratulated for having at last secured better post-office accommodations. Postmaster Haws has been untiring in his efforts to bring this about for several years, and although his ambition to have a separate building has not been realized, the new office is such a great improvement over the old, cramped quarters that he feels very happy in his new surroundings. He has made use of the space at his disposal to the very best advantage for all concerned, and with the consideration for the needs of the public and the necessities of the working force. So far as possible box renters have been assigned boxes with the same numbers as those they had in the old office; the furniture and fixtures are neat and attractive, and the space much better lighted and ventilated than heretofore. There is no doubt that under such conditions the business of the office will be carried on with much greater satisfaction to all concerned.

Our population is increasing so rapidly, and the parcel post is adding so much work, that even this improvement can only be regarded as of a temporary character. It will suffice admirably for a time, at least until the important business of finishing the war is concluded. When that happy day arrives, there will be time and means to give Narberth what it is entitled to, an office specially designed for the purpose.

NATIONAL BANK RESOURCES

The total resources of the national banks of the country, as shown by reports to the Comptroller of the Currency under the call of June 29, were $17,839,502,000, an increase of $1,688,462,000 over the same date last year. Total deposits in national banks on June 29 show an increase of $1,249,776,000 over a year ago.

LIBERTY LOAN INTEREST RATE

Secretary McAdoo has definitely announced that the fourth Liberty Loan bonds will bear 4 1/4 per cent. interest. The Secretary has been insistent that the Government interest rate should be stabilized at 4 1/4 per cent. He points out that a raise in the rate of interest of only one-fourth of 1 per cent. on $10,000,000,000 of government bonds would mean an annual increase of $25,000,000 in interest charges, and that this money would have to be raised by increased taxation and paid by the people of the country. It would not be paid by one class only, because there are consumption as well as other kinds of taxes, and the consumption taxes reach every class of people.

"As an intelligent people," said Secretary McAdoo during the Third Liberty Loan campaign, "we should now make a stand for the financing of our government during the period of this war at a stabilized rate of interest, say at 4 1/4 per cent. per annum, so that all business and all investments may be adjusted to that basis and so that we ourselves may protect ourselves against successively increased rates of interest on government loans."

Neither our patriotism nor our support of the Liberty Loans are measured in fractions of per cent.

Next Tuesday, August 27, the Montgomery County Farm Bureau will hold its fourth annual farmers' auto excursion through the southwestern portion of the county. This is one of the regular "know your county trips" for farmers and others to see and study what the other part of the county is doing. Each year it has become more popular until last year when fifty autos were in line. The first year the central part of the county was covered; the second the northern; the third the eastern, and this year the western and southern portion will be explored. Every one having an auto is invited to join, and especially requested to have it filled with the family or neighbors who may not have autos.

The general route, and the stops will be as follows: Meet at Collegeville near the Bridge Hotel and proceed at 9 o'clock north to Trappe, and the Royersford road to the farm of Earl Bechtel and the 50-acre orchard of Alan Wright. Then through Valley Forge Park to the Guernsey farm of Frank Thomson and the Thomson camp of the U. S. Boys' Working Reserve. From the Thomson Farm to the Holstein Farm of C. W. Bray, where basket lunch will be had. In the afternoon the Chester Valley Stock Farm, the Penhurst Farm at Narberth and the Pencoed Farm at Bala will be visited. The Chester Valley Farm is one of the largest Berkshire farms in the United States. The Penhurst Farms have the finest herd of Ayrshires in the county and the Pencoed Farm the finest Guernsey herds in the east.

The following editorial is reprinted because of the belief that the sympathetic sentiments therein expressed for one who bears the burden of mankind should be read, AND WILL BE UNDERSTOOD, by EVERY AMERICAN:

Our President
(Reprinted by Permission from the United Presbyterian)

God bless him! If ever man needed prayer and sympathy it is Woodrow Wilson. His path is as lonely as that of Abraham of old. With a thousand advisers he stands alone. With hundreds of voices calling—do it this way—do it that way, he must do it his own way and take the responsibility. Advice is blown upon him and over him and around from editorial tripods and armchair warriors as apple blossoms before a storm, yet he alone must mark out the nation's pathway. He must sift and risk and apply and bear the burden of final action. Two hundred million eyes are turned toward him from America's homes and hamlets and millions more from battlefields and national councils. So far as human finality is concerned the solution of the world's governmental problems will come from Washington, its White House and its man of destiny.

Can we sift truth out of the manifold advices and from contradictory advisers, and always, unerringly, and under all conditions, know what is the wisest thing to do? He must decide and execute. In God's name, O ye inconsiderate critics, have a heart! Where would the world have been today had you been in his place? Be merciful. Only infallibility can carve a path unerringly through this Red Sea of world-confusion and tumult. No braver heart than that of Woodrow Wilson ever stood at the focus of a thousand possibilities and all of them wrong but one. Men may be perfectly honest in their advisings, but they may be just as erroneous as honest. There may be honesty even in the grossest ignorance. One needs more than honesty. He needs ballast, he needs a knowledge of conditions, he needs judgment, he needs to know what can be done and what cannot be done, and to do aright the thing that is undertaken. No man ever had a braver, manlier, saner heart than the man installed in the White House, whom the embattled world today looks to, beyond all others, save God, as its reliance and helper in the conflict of peoples and the equitable adjustments and reconstruction of nations yet to be. More than any other one man he is today the world's prophet and leader. Think of his responsibility, a responsibility that belongs only to him. Think of his lone battles with problems which are to shape civilization for a thousand years, and give him a cheer; give him a prayer; give him your confidence. Right or wrong he is your own and your only executive. He and he alone is entrusted with executive authority, and, by the grace of God, has shown himself to be a friend and brother of the human race, the guardian of democracy in a most perilous time. Let 100,000,000 people send up to heaven a petition for him on the forthcoming day of prayer and humiliation. Let him have our earnest supplications and our patriotic backing in this day when, contrary to his own long-cherished wishes, war's mighty problems have been thrust upon him. A nation that rallies wholeheartedly, enthusiastically, determinedly, about their chosen leader when the fate of their own and of unborn generations is at stake, cannot ultimately fail. Again we say: "Our President; God bless him!"

THE POST OFFICE

The new post office was opened on Monday, the "moving" from the old frame structure into the fine new quarters having been accomplished by Postmaster Haws and his assistants on Sunday after the usual Sunday mails had been sorted. The many expressions of pleasure from the hundreds of our citizens who inspected the new office is sufficient evidence that Narberth has been provided with an up-to-date post office. Postmaster Haws was the recipient of many congratulations and one patron who does a large amount of business at the office presented the postmaster with a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

The box equipment consists of 815 automatic combination boxes from which the patrons will be able to secure their mail without asking for it at the windows at all times during office hours as well as on Sundays from 7.30 until 12 o'clock and on holidays from 7.30 A. M. to 5.30 P. M. The popular question in Narberth just now is, "Do you know your combination?" If you don't know it, ask the postmaster. Visitors from Ardmore and other offices as far west as Malvern have pronounced our office the best on the Main Line.

Many patrons who heretofore have been in the general delivery have now rented boxes. This also shows their appreciation of the up-to-date equipment.

A doctor had been attending a man for some considerable time whose prospect of recovery was very slight, but one morning, after his visit, he turned to the wife and said, "He'll be all right now."

"You mean he's going to recover?" asked the wife, in a horrified voice.

"Why, you assured me he couldn't live a fortnight."

"I know I did," said the doctor. "But my treatment has proved successful. Surely you're glad?"

"Oh, I'm glad enough," retorted the wife, "but, yer see, it puts me in a bit of a hole. I've bin and sold all his clothes to pay for the funeral."

The Brightest Spot in Narberth

CUB'S WEEKLY LETTER

To the Editor of Our Town:

Several fond parents with marriageable daughters, disappointed because of the failure of the "Porch Swing Campaign" against our friendless soldiers and sailors, which was entirely due to the stupidity of the swings themselves failing to meet the test at the psychological moment, have redoubled their efforts and the chances of escape for the poor boys in uniform are growing less every hour. Determined fathers have spent the week bracing and reinforcing the swings, thus guarding against a recurrence of the accidents which have so greatly interfered with the proper rest of the community and the matrimonial aspirations of Narberth's daughters.

Well, I did all I could.

Last week I suggested that all holders of shares in the Narberth Building and Loan Association—first series—use the cash they receive in the purchase of fourth series Liberty Bonds. Fearful lest all or part of that money get away from him, the postmaster is urging that it be used for War Stamps. Well, I can't see any objection to that—it is an easy matter for me to tell the other fellow how to spend his money, and no doubt a great many of the prize winners have been awaiting my advice. Therefore, I suggest splitting the thing fifty-fifty, Liberty Bonds and Stamps. Patriotism, thrift and safety would all be served by that method.

Stamp sales so far aggregate $30,000, but the amount pledged is around $60,000. It seems to me a lot of people are four-flushing. After all the fuss we made about going over the top and beating everything in sight, it won't look good for Narberth to fall down on her pledges. Come across, slackers.

Four members of the Main Line Fishing Club, Verna, Savill, Claghorn and Harbert, stung to the quick by the charge that their organization was pervaded by the spirit of commercialism, which they felt was not deserved, decided to remove the stigma on their fair names as sportsmen and show the world that they had been unjustly maligned. Hence, a fishing trip was planned and it was agreed that none of the fish be sold, and that none of the "anglers," as they like to call themselves (although two of them use drop lines and scoop nets), keep any fish for themselves. To show the stuff they were made of and at the same time regain their reputations, it was voted that the fish be distributed to their friends in Narberth, especially to those with whom they had "an ax to grind." Their intentions were excellent—on the surface at least—but unfortunately, the expedition was a failure, not a fish having been caught. If they had possessed the true spirit of reform, they would have bought a lot of fish and distributed them.

What has become of C. D., aspirant for the crown of Poet Laureate of Narberth? He ought to come out of hiding and receive the honors an eager populace is anxious to bestow. It behooves him more than ever now to come forth and claim his own. He has a rival and no mean one at that. Perry Redifer is now claiming the title and submits the following exhibit of his genius in support of his demand:

Hoch Foch

Hoch Foch.
That sturdy oak.
He's the bloke
Whose master stroke
The advancing line of Germans broke.
When he spoke
Amid the smoke
The Allies woke
And gave the Clown Prince such a soak
It wrecked his dream of Kaiser's cloak
And nearly made old Hindy croak.
Another poke
From Issimo Foch
Will free the French of Kultur's yoke.
And that's no joke.
Hoch Foch.

I leave it to "Notions" and "Critic" to pass on Perry's offense. As for C. D., he'll be out of a job if he does not show himself soon.

We must guard our Burgess carefully. He was almost induced to part with his auto in exchange for a bunch of Fiji money. To get a good cash price—real money—he ought to use the advertising columns of Our Town as John did. It would disturb the dignity and repose of the sovereign people of the borough, if the executive chariot were taken from us by a flim-flam game.

"What did you learn at Sunday school?" asked grandma.
"The Lord is my chauffeur, I shall not walk," answered 5-year-old Tommy.

SUFFRAGE NEWS

Federal Amendment Conference

At Mrs. Catt's special request, Mrs. Lewis L. Smith, acting president, has called a conference of county chairmen and borough leaders at the Acorn Club, 1618 Walnut street, on Thursday, September 19, to consider Federal amendment ratification plans, which Mrs. Catt will present in person. This conference is open to all suffragists. The program is not yet completed, but a speaker on the Woman's Overseas Hospitals has been secured. Mrs. Catt believes the amendment will be passed by the Senate when the vote is taken and friendly Senators have promised a vote in this session, which means before December 4. The vote may come during August or September, but if it is delayed beyond September and then passed, or if the worst comes, and it is not passed until the short session of Congress, which begins on December 4, there will not be sufficient time between the date of its passage and the convening of our State Legislature next January, to do the necessary work to secure ratification in this State. "Woman suffrage for the nation before the next presidential election" is the slogan which suffragists are asked to adopt.

If you have not subscribed for the Woman Citizen, send your dollar to Mrs. Charles W. Young and receive a weekly publication which is well worth reading and at the same time financially help our branch of the Woman Suffrage Association.

A special meeting of the Narberth Branch of the Woman Suffrage party will be held soon. Important work is to be discussed. The time and place will be announced later.

County Meeting

The regular meeting of Montgomery County Suffrage party will be held on Wednesday, September 11, at 10 A. M. at the county headquarters in Norristown.

MORE TROUBLE FOR DUNCAN

Two brothers, Angus and Duncan, bachelors, who worked a small croft, had the misfortune to lose by death their sister, who was also their housekeeper. They tried to do the housework themselves for a time, but it wasn't a success; so one day Angus, the elder, said to his brother: "Duncan, ye'll ned to look about an' see if ye canna get a wife."

"Na, na," replied Duncan; "you are auldest, Angus, and the croft belongs to you, ye ken."

"But you are likely to live longest," Duncan, continued Angus, "so ye'd beter be the one to tak' a wife."

"Oh, aye!" said Duncan, resignedly; "it's aye the same way here, whenever there's ony dirty work to be done, it's me that has to do it!"

Have you a surplus supply of vegetables in your garden? If so, they will be greatly appreciated at the Holiday House. No amount is too small to send. Please leave them before noon, any day, on the back porch at 110 N. Essex avenue, the home of Mrs. Harry W. Derby.

Mr. Steckel is living at 211 Elm Terrace, and can be reached on telephone, Narberth 325-M.

The pews at All Saints' are all free, and strangers as well as the residents are most cordially invited to attend any of the services.

Church busses leave Narberth and Wynnewood stations at 10.40 on Sunday mornings.

The regular midweek union service this week will be held on Wednesday evening, August 21, at 8 o'clock in the Methodist Church.

It will be a meeting of unusual local importance, as letters of general interest will be read from a goodly number of "our Narberth boys" who are now in the service. Don't miss it. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley will sing.

Fortune seldom knocks at the door of the chronic kicker.

A man's crookedness often gets him into financial straits.

GIVE YOUR BOY A CHANCE

"I don't know what I'm going to do with Walter," said Mr. Ambler, in a doleful voice.

"What's the matter with him?" asked Mr. Monroe, with a surprised look. "Has he been doing anything wrong?"

"Oh, no, he hasn't been misbehaving," was the reply, "but he doesn't seem to be of much account."

"I don't understand."

"Well, he isn't smart. It takes him a long time to study his lessons, while young Ben Bryson masters them almost at a glance. Then he isn't ambitious. I never hear him say what he would like to be when he grows up to be a man, and he doesn't care a bit about saving money. He's nothing but the slowest kind of a slow coach, and so I tell him."

"Indeed!" said Mr. Monroe, lifting his eyebrows in a peculiar way. "Do you make a habit of telling him what you think of him?"

"Yes; I keep prodding him up, but it doesn't seem to do him any good."

"You tell him he is dull, do you?"

"Yes, indeed!"

"And compare him with other boys to his disadvantage?"

"Lots of times. Whenever I hear of a smart boy, I tell Walter about him, and try to make him ashamed of his dullness."

Mr. Monroe was silent for a moment, and then he said, gently:

"Has it ever struck you that you may be taking the wrong course with Walter?"

"Why, no!" replied Mr. Ambler, in great surprise. "A dull boy needs stirring up, I think."

"I think not," answered Mr. Monroe, decidedly. "A smart boy needs 'stirring up,' as you call it, but a dull boy needs leading up, or encouragement. Now my boy Burt is by no means smart, yet he makes a creditable showing, because I do not crowd him too hard. Then, again, I never compare him unfavorably with other boys."

"Do you think that does him harm?"

"Undoubtedly it does. To keep telling a boy that he is slow and stupid, and much inferior in sense or capability to this or that boy, breaks his spirit and destroys his pride. You, his father, tell him that he is a slow coach, that he has no chance in the race for life, and he must believe you. If he were a smart, quick boy, he would know better, and you couldn't keep him back if you tried; but with a slow boy it is the surest way to kill any ambition he may have—and there is no boy wholly destitute of ambition."

"You wouldn't have me tell Walter he is smart?" questioned Mr. Ambler, quickly.

"That is not necessary. You need not give him your opinion at all. Protect him, build him up on his weak spot. Let him know that you are back of him all the time; that while you expect him to plunge in and do his own swimming, still you are always at hand with a long pole in case he needs it."

"Wouldn't he depend on me all the time, then?" asked Mr. Ambler, dubiously.

"Not any more than swimmer does on his teacher, until he has acquired strength and skill. But, like the swimming master, you must not hurry your pupil, or he will never learn. Lead, but do not drive him."

Wise doctors always word their advice to their patients so that they will not take offense. A man once called on a physician to see if he could find some remedy for a red nose.

"Doctor," he said, "what shall I take to remove the redness of my nose?"

"Take nothing—especially between meals," the doctor answered.

Mr. Charles V. Noel Heads New Y. M. C. A. Committee

Red Triangle Committee Will Serve Narberth's Sons in the Army and Navy

To promote those parts of the Pennsylvania Red Triangle's program that are adaptable to Narberth is the work cut out for the Narberth Y. M. C. A. Red Triangle Committee. The Red Triangle League of Pennsylvania is the name under which the State Y. M. C. A. Committee promotes its program for enlisted men. Acting on the suggestion of the State Committee, the Narberth directors authorized this new committee for our association and appointed as chairman, Mr. Charles V. Noel. The chairman was given the authority to name his own associates. His appointments to date include W. S. Horner, H. C. Gara, Horace C. Oddyke, Fred C. Patton, Edward S. Haws, Thomas C. Trotter and Henry Rose. As the work develops the committee will be enlarged.

Second Tuesday Regular Meeting Night

Meeting regularly each month on the second Tuesday at 8 P. M. this group of men will plan the promotion of the following service activities for our boys in the khaki and blue:

Enlistment record—The perfecting of an accurate record of the rank, regiment, etc., of every Narberth man in the service.

Correspondence—The promotion of correspondence between the league and enlisted men, possibly getting our weekly "news letter" with interesting town and league news and encouraging personal letter writing.

Camp co-operation—Giving a card to enlisted men as they leave home, introducing them to the camp secretaries; keeping in touch with camp secretaries in an effort to enlist their personal interest in our boys.

Pocket Testament and literature—Promote Pocket Testament League and assist in the providing of proper literature for the camps.

Personal interview—The arranging of personal interviews between an older man and each young man leaving town for the service. This is a method of co-operating with the draft board and other enlistment officers.

Publicity—To supply local paper with many items of news of our boys in the service, extracts from letters, Y. M. C. A. reports, camp papers, etc.

Aim to Co-operate With Existing Agencies

In no way will this committee duplicate the fine work being done along some of the lines suggested above by other Narberth organizations. The churches and other organizations are all working hard and rendering service. This new effort will be to catch up any lag ends, promoting its program wherever possible through existing organizations now on the job.

"The winning of the war" is the goal that we should all set before us, planning our gifts of time and money to that end. That gift will be well spent that tends to raise the ideals of the men on the firing line to the highest possible level, that of Christian service and sacrifice.

A strong home base to prepare the coming generation for the great reconstruction period is equally entitled to a place in the "win the war program." Sir Baden-Powell recently said that the war will not be won until 1935, that is that that nation will be the ultimate victor which best safeguards its present boys and girls in addition to winning military victories. With that thought in mind, all other Y. M. C. A. committees will endeavor to make this a banner year for the youth of Narberth, planning a full program of activities for all. Watch later issues of Our Town for announcements of these home activities.

WHEN THE MOOSE CHARGED

In "A Book-Lover's Holidays in the Open," Colonel Theodore Roosevelt takes his readers into the less familiar corners of both North and South America. Many of his experiences were exciting, but perhaps the most thrilling was his encounter with a bull moose when on a hunting trip in Quebec.

When we were half a mile from the landing, he says, we saw a big bull moose on the edge of the shore ahead of us. He looked bigger than the one I had shot that morning, and his antlers were rather more palmed. We paddled up to within a hundred yards of him, laughing and talking, and remarking how eager we should have been if we had not already got our moose.

At first he did not seem to notice us. Then he looked at us, but paid no further heed. We were surprised, but paddled on past him; we supposed that he did not realize what we were. But another hundred yards put us to windward. Instead of turning into the forest when he got our wind, the moose merely bristled up the hair on his withers, shook his head and walked along the shore after us. Plainly he meant mischief. So we turned the canoe round and paddled on our back track. But the moose promptly turned and followed us along the shore. We yelled at him, and Odilon struck the canoe with his paddle, but with no effect.

For more than an hour he thus kept us from the shore, running to meet us wherever we tried to go. The afternoon was waning, and a cold wind began to blow. He was not a pleasant-looking beast to meet in the woods in the dusk. We were at our wits' ends to know what to do. At last he turned, shook his head and, with a flourish of his heels, galloped—not trotted—for fifty yards up along the little river that paralleled the portage trail. I called Arthur's attention to that, as he had been telling me that a big bull never galloped. Then the moose disappeared at a trot round the bend. We waited a few minutes, cautiously landed and started along the trail, watching to see if the bull were lying in wait for us. Arthur told me that if he now attacked us I must shoot him at once or he would kill some one.

A couple of hundred yards on, the trail led within a few yards of the little river. As we reached that point a smashing in the brush beyond the opposite bank caused us to wheel; and the great bull came headlong for us. Arthur called to me to shoot. With a last hope of frightening him I fired over his head, without the slightest effect. At a slashing trot he crossed the river, shaking his head, with his ears laid back and the hair on his withers bristling.

"Tirez, m'sieu, tirez; vite, vite!" called Arthur, and when the bull was not 30 feet away I put a bullet into his chest in the sticking point. It was a mortal wound, and stopped him short.

I was sorry to have to kill him, but there was no alternative. As it was, I only stopped him in the nick of time, and had I not shot straight at least one of us would have paid forfeit with his life. Even in Africa I have never known anything except a rogue elephant or buffalo, or an occasional rhinoceros, to attack so viciously or with such premeditation when he was neither wounded nor threatened.—Youth's Companion.

Edith was light-hearted and merry over everything. Nothing appealed to her seriously. So one day her mother decided to invite a very serious young parson to dinner, and he was placed next to the light-hearted girl. Everything went well until she asked him: "You speak of every one having a mission. What is yours?"

"My mission," said the parson, "is to save young men."

"Good!" replied the girl; "I'm glad to meet you. I wish you'd save one for me."

THE FIRESIDE

Arthur W. Burns, of 108 Woodbine avenue, Narberth, on Tuesday received his commission as first lieutenant of engineers.

The Misses Maizie, Florence and Sadie Simpson have been visiting Narberth's favorite summer resort, Ocean City.

Dr. and Mrs. Romaine C. Hoffman are entertaining Mrs. Harold Thompson and daughter Betty, of Rancagua, Chili, South America.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Maddox and daughter Lee have returned from the Poconos, where they have been spending the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart McClellan, of Forrest avenue, have returned from Atlantic City, where they have been spending their vacation.

Mme. Olga Petrova, the most beautiful woman on the screen, will be seen in her greatest success, "The Life Mask," at the Palace Theatre, on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The story shows a daughter's sacrifice to a mother's craving for society in which solace comes to wounded hearts when love finally triumphs.

Last Friday evening the Narberth Fire Company was called to extinguish the blaze of an automobile truck owned by the Crew Levick Company, Montgomery avenue near the General Wayne Inn. The company was quick to respond to the alarm, and through the heroic work of the firemen they succeeded in saving the automobile truck with the exception of the seats and front cover, as well as the large tank which contained 400 gallons of gasoline.

Have you a surplus supply of vegetables in your garden? If so, they will be greatly appreciated at the Holiday House. No amount is too small to send. Please leave them before noon, any day, on the back porch at 110 N. Essex avenue, the home of Mrs. Harry W. Derby.

THE WAR CHEST FUND

Your pledge for the War Chest Fund is due and payable to the Treasurer, Chas. V. Noel, or the Merion Title and Trust Company, at Narberth.

If you pay by check, make checks payable to the War Chest Fund, or mail direct to Chas. V. Noel, Treasurer.

NARBERTH RED CROSS

If you do not count it a privilege, consider it your duty to come to the Red Cross work room at least a few hours each week and make surgical dressings or sew for the wounded soldiers. The room is open each day except Saturday and Sundays from 9 until 5, and also Monday evenings and there are very few women who could not spare an hour or two in a week to do this work and have the satisfaction of feeling that they are a part of the army as well as the boys in the trenches.

Of course, you are knitting at home and contributing to the War Chest, so is every one else, but workers are needed and if the habit is once formed of giving a few hours to the Red Cross, you will find that you not only have the time, but enjoy the work.

Count it a privilege to be able to assist the doctors and nurses in the marvelous work among the sick and wounded.

ABOUT INDIAN DOLLS

Students of the Indian race tell us that when an Indian girl dies, her mother often substitutes a doll for the last little one. She fills the empty cradle with feathers, arranged in the form of the child, and carries it around with her wherever she goes, talking to it and caressing it as she would her loving child.

If she does not do this, she ties in a tight bundle the toys, clothes and armlets which belonged to her little one, and fastening this to the cradle board, carries it as she had formerly done her child. The Ojibwas called these "unlucky dolls" because they represent the dead.

The reason the Indian mother carries her "doll" in this pathetic way is because she thinks that the little dead child is too small to find its way to paradise. By substituting the doll, it will help along until the dead baby has grown large enough to make its way to the Spirit-land alone, at least this is what the sad Indian mother believes.

The children of the Passamaquoddy tribe of Indians play with a doll not more than a couple of inches high. In fact, it is smaller than the word which means doll, for this word is "Ampskudahekanck." One had almost rather go without make-believe babies than to be obliged to call them by such an outlandish name, don't you think so? Just fancy a wee papoose crying, "I want a Ampskudahekanck!" The Sioux doll is made of chamois and deer-skin. The curious thing about it is that it is perfectly flat. To judge from this, one might think that the Sioux babies were systematically starved. This is not the case, for they are as round and fat and jolly as any children you ever saw.

CHINESE MANNERS

The Chinaman shakes his own hand instead of yours.

He keeps out of step when walking with you.

He puts his hat on in salutation.

He whitens his boots, instead of blackening them.

He rides with his heels in his stirrups, instead of his toes.

His compass points south.

His women folks are often seen in trousers, accompanied by men in gowns.

He laughs on receiving bad news (This is to deceive evil spirits.)

His left hand is the place of honor. He says west north, instead of northwest, and six-fourths instead of four-sixths.

His favorite present to a parent is a coffin.

He faces the bow when rowing a boat.

His mourning color is white.

He stands with his back to the teacher when reciting a lesson.

He studies at the top of his voice.

LETTER FROM FRANCE

France, July 14, 1918.

Mr. Daniel Leitch, Narberth, Pa.:
Dear Sir—It has been a long time since I have either written or heard from you, but it is up to me to write you now, for yesterday I took out a $75 deposit and am sending it to you for deposit and wish you would send me a statement as to how I stand when you get the draft.

Now to try and tell you what little I can of this country. Of course, you know there is lots to be said, but little we can say, so the only thing I can say was that I had a fine trip over the sea and did not feel the least bit sick at any time; but do not take from that that our trip was as smooth as Concourse lake in Fairmount Park, for there were times when our decks were under water and the spray blew over our top decks; but the weather was fine as far as clear weather is concerned, but the days when the water was rough the wind was rather wicked also, but outside of the rough water and hard blows I don't think there was anything to brag about except that we all longed for a morning's paper and some new scenery, for after our first day out there was not much to see except sky and sea, and there was no scarce amount of that to look at, for from the boat it looked very much as though we were trying to get over a hill, but no matter how far we went or what time in the morning we got up that hill seemed just as far away until one fine morning, about the 30th of May, we saw one big hill off our port deck. (You see I had been on the water twelve days now, and am entitled to use some nautical names) and I'll tell you here that sight was almost as welcome as the Statue of Liberty will be when we see it. But you notice here that I say almost).

About two days later we were moved off the boat at an English port and then took a trip all the way across England to camp for two days. Then we packed up for another camp and after about a nine-mile hike, full pack, we arrived at another port and from there sailed for France. I think we spent about two days here, then moved again; this time we went to another camp, but we did not have nearly as much hiking to do on this trip. After this hike we entrained and went south for nearly 48 hours and struck our camp, which was a wonderful place to us fellows, for we had been living in tents for about ten months in the States (we have all adopted this way of referring to home for some reason), and here we found real homes or barracks made of frame and concrete with electric lights and all kinds of running water for washing and bathing purposes, so that we felt real proud of ourselves, for it certainly seemed like getting home again until we went to a village near camp and that certainly changed everything, for there was not one in the company who asked for a drink of water, and then we realized that we were many miles from our own soil. But at this camp our stay was short like all other stops, and after a few days' stop started on a much longer ride than any before; but this time we left camp in autos and drove about eight miles to the main line of one of those railroads and entrained again for the eastern part of France. On this train we spent a little over two days and arrived at the camp where we now are and have been for about five weeks. But from our camp we can see some wonderful country, and the best way for me to describe it is to say that if you ever have a chance to go out Narberth avenue and follow it to the end on out beyond Mr. Roberts' farm I think you will see country almost like this place, but here we miss the sight of Manayunk in the low land.

Then in all this traveling I have been through some of the best known towns in both England and France, and am only sorry that I cannot mention the names of these places, for I know you would be interested in knowing where we have been. But it is as they say down Georgia, "Orders is orders and they got to be obeyed," therefore, I dare not say where we have been.

In all our railroading here we have a much different way of riding than at home, for the cars are small and instead of aisles down the centre of the coaches they have compartments which hold eight persons; but on our trips we were always lucky and had fewer than eight, so that we were fairly comfortable at all times, and at all the large stations on the road they have the American Red Cross

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY

Next to air and food in the human economy comes exercise. We may have plenty of fresh air and a proper allowance of the right kind of food, and yet without helpful daily exercise these will not avail to keep the body in good condition. In answer to the question, "Why do we grow old?" a French writer gives these three reasons: "We do not get enough physical exercise in the open air, we are poisoned by microbes which the phagocytes have not succeeded in destroying, and we are depressed by fear of death." Of the three reasons it will be noted that he gives the place of first importance to lack of exercise. There is nothing else which can take the place of physical activity as a preserver of youth and energy. "Grow younger as you grow older by cultivating a moderate love of good, healthful, honest sport," is sound advice. Walking, running, jumping, rowing, playing golf, tennis or croquet, or any other milder form of exercise in the open air, keeps the muscles supple and prevents the joints from stiffening, fills the lungs with life-giving oxygen and keeps the blood from becoming sluggish or the liver torpid. In short, it is exercise that keeps the body in tune and "up to concert pitch," just as exercise keeps the voice of a musical instrument in perfect tone.—Sun.

When the pedagogue whales the urchins it is but natural that they should blubber.

NO DANGER FOR HIM

The old salt who took small parties out by the hour in his cockleshell boat had been much annoyed by the loud and fatuous remarks of 'Arry, who had come down for the day.

When just beyond the mile limit the old wreck began to leak. The boatman, however, reassured the party—told them that there was no danger and was confident that they would reach the shore before the leak developed. To allay any further fears he handed around lifebelts. The party consisted of five and there were only four belts.

"Hi! Where's mine?" asked the terrified cockney, who had dropped all his cheerful chipping of the old salt. "Don't you worry, my lad!" said the boatman. "You don't need no lifebelt? A feller with a head as holler as yourn can't sink!"

In the pursuit of pleasure for the moment, are you sacrificing the happiness of the future?

- The above department should be the greatest use to the community, the list contains the name of every professional man, tradesman, mechanic, shopkeeper, etc., who does or can in any way serve his fellow townsman, and who is progressive enough to add name to list of Register. As it is difficult for those contributing their time and efforts to the production of "Our Town" to personally either know or interview all such, it would be most helpful if those not now found in the printed list would send in a memo of their names, address, phone numbers and businesses or professions for listing. This will cost as follows: 10 cents each issue for 2 lines; 5 cents for each additional line.
