

TO TEACH PEACE

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA OFFERS VARIED SCHOLASTIC COURSE

When the University of Southern California swings open its doors on June 24th for its eleventh annual summer session, it will offer more courses in a wider range of subjects than ever before in the history of the institution; and to a student body probably much larger than at any previous summer session. A group of courses which is certain to attract very wide attention will be offered under the direct auspices of the Carnegie endowment for international peace. Thousands of dollars will be spent this summer by the Carnegie endowment in giving courses in current history, the history of the international peace movement, trade problems of the United States and allied subjects. The purpose of these courses will be to instill in the minds of American citizens the privileges and opportunities which lie before the inhabitants of the greatest neutral power in the world, and by this means to create a sentiment opposed to seeing the United States embroiled with other nations in the great European catastrophe.

At the University of Southern California the courses to be given by the Carnegie endowment will come under two general heads. Professor Frank J. Klingberg will give work in European history since the congress of Vienna. He will discuss all the tangled maze of political alliances among the great powers which preceded the war. At the same time he will take up the history of the movement for international peace and will discuss the relation of the peace movement to the probable outcome of the war.

The relations between North and South America will be treated in courses to be given by Professor Carlos Bransby, professor of Spanish in the University of California. Prof. Bransby is an authority on the habits of life, social, political and economic status of our southern neighbors.

The announcement that Dr. Ernest Carroll Moore of Harvard university will be a member of the faculty at the University of Southern California for the summer session has aroused widespread interest. Dr. Moore is one of the most foremost educators, not only of the United States, but of the whole world, and is the author of a number of books on the principles of pedagogy. His two courses this summer are called "Methods of Study" and "School Administration."

Students of biology will this year be able to combine a summer outing at the seashore with collegiate study if they so desire. The University of Southern California maintains a marine station at Venice equipped with a seagoing launch to aid the students in their explorations up and down the coast.

Summer work is to be offered this year in the colleges of liberal arts, fine arts, music, oratory, law and medicine.

ELKS BEGIN TO ARRIVE

Los Angeles and its vicinity is already beginning to receive the first contingents of the great Elk host that is due to arrive in that and the neighboring cities Sunday. The railroads running into Los Angeles are looking forward to having their energies specially taxed and the many thousands of the great army are converging on the city.

In addition to the three grand prizes are the district prizes, which include three $75 scholarships to the Isaacs-Woodbury Business college of Los Angeles, the $50 bank deposit at the First National bank of Glendale and other prizes to be announced later.

SANE FOURTH

It is a pleasure to note the change that has come about in the past ten years in the way of observing the Fourth of July in a sane manner. There are accidents reported this year, but according to the population there are not nearly so many reported this year as there were ten, fifteen and twenty years ago. The old way of having a good time on the Fourth was to use as many pounds of explosives as possible. The more noise and the more smoke, the greater the celebration. The loss of life and the loss of limb became appalling. Older men were reckless and younger people were ignorant of the danger confronting them, and thus the list of the dead and injured would run up into the thousands the last hours of Independence Day.

When the anarchist's bomb was exploding in Washington patriotic Glendale was listening to "The Star Spangled Banner" played by our municipal band.

HARVEST EXTRA VOTES

THEY SHOULD BE EASY TO SECURE FROM NOW UNTIL THURSDAY, JULY 15

Bonus Vote Offer
An extra inducement is offered to candidates who begin work at once. Fifty thousand extra votes will be given with every club of six new subscriptions turned into the Evening News office for the Glendale Evening News or the Tri-City Progress between Wednesday, June 30, and Thursday evening, July 15. These votes are in addition to the regular votes issued. All new subscriptions already turned in by candidates will count on this offer.

If you are a friend to any of the contestants in The News subscription campaign, now is the time to assist by subscribing to the Evening News or help them to procure other subscriptions. The race is well under way and each and every candidate is striving to make the most of the extra vote offer on each club of six new subscriptions, which continues until Thursday, July 15.

The Evening News, in addition to printing local Glendale and Casa Verdugo events, publishes local items of interest from Tropic, Eagle Rock, Burbank, Little Lands, La Crescenta, La Canada and Glendale Heights; in fact, the Evening News and the weekly, the Tri-City Progress, are by far the most comprehensive publicity mediums in the San Fernando valley.

There are scores of ranchers and people living in territory tributary to Glendale, as well as people living inside the city limits, who would be glad to sign for The News or Progress if properly approached.

During the next ten days of the special vote offer on new subscriptions try to see as many people as possible who are not now subscribers to The News or Progress.

Also remember that you will gain many votes if you go after clubs of six yearly subscriptions to the Evening News, as it counts for much more than the weekly. For instance, the regular vote on six yearly subscriptions to the daily would be 10,000 votes each, or 60,000 votes, to which add the 50,000 bonus or extra vote and you have a grand total of 110,000 votes. While a club of six yearly subscriptions to the Tri-City Progress totals only 6000, together with the bonus, a club of the weeklies would amount to 56,000 votes. Therefore, it behooves every candidate to specialize on yearly subscriptions to the Evening News.

Next in desirability and in point of value in the list of prizes comes the $400 Schiller piano, a pure-toned instrument, with a highly finished mahogany case, one of the most attractive medium-priced instruments to be found in the large show-rooms of the Platt Music company of Los Angeles, from which firm it was purchased.

The trip to the exposition, with expenses prepaid, will also be a most desirable one this autumn when California weather will be at its best. This trip may be yours if you miss both the first and second prizes and win the third.

In addition to the three grand prizes are the district prizes, which include three $75 scholarships to the Isaacs-Woodbury Business college of Los Angeles, the $50 bank deposit at the First National bank of Glendale and other prizes to be announced later.

INCREASED EGG PRODUCTION

There are approximately 300,000,000 laying hens in the United States and these average about 70 eggs each per year. Increase this number to 80 eggs, and the additional output, at 25 cents per dozen, would be valued at $62,500,000. Double the average yield, making each hen lay 140 eggs, and the increase in national wealth would amount to the sum of $437,500,000.

TRUE PEACE

That the teachings of the greatest of all teachers are but dreams to thousands of his so-called followers finds clearest evidence in the collapse of their faith in the real hour of testing. Peace is a fine thing, and love is power until nations begin to compare gunboats and measure brute strength. Then—well—Christianity or not Christianity, they put their trust in the weapons of hell. A man's faith in the ideal is worth as much as he is willing to venture upon it.

TOTAL LOSS IN FIRE

HOUSE BETWEEN ADAMS AND VERDUGO IS BURNED TO THE GROUND

Probably on account of the stringent ordinance prohibiting the setting off of fireworks on the Fourth within the limits of Glendale, there were no accidents within the city and only one fire, that had no connection with fireworks. The department was summoned Monday night about 12:20 to a blaze in the home of George Doyle, 206 Stanley avenue.

When the firemen arrived on the scene they found the house completely wrapped in flames, without a chance of being saved. They directed their attention to saving the house on each side of the Doyle residence and were successful in preventing the spread of the flames. The roofs of the neighboring houses were smoking several times, but active work on the part of Chief Herald and his men saved them.

Stanley avenue lies between Adams street and Verdugo road and the department found it necessary to lay a line of hose from a hydrant on Third street, across an orchard, to the scene of the fire. The water pressure was very low.

George Doyle said that the first intimation he and his family had of their danger was when they were awakened by the flames and smoke. They found that they had barely time to escape with their lives and were unable to save anything. The furniture in the house, part of which belonged to a man in Los Angeles, was a total loss and the building itself was completely destroyed. As far as could be ascertained there was no insurance on the furniture.

LUTHERAN CHURCH

An unusually interesting number was present Sunday morning in the Lutheran church services to enjoy the hour in worship and patriotically observe the spirit of the day. The decorations, principally in Old Glory, tastefully arranged—the large red, white and blue bouquet on the center table, the unfurling of the beautiful silk flag—were matters of favorable comment. The music under the direction of Prof. Laichinger was enjoyed by all. The duet, "The Flag We Love the Best," and the solo, "We Love That Dear Old Flag," were favorably received.

The patriotic address by the pastor, "The Mission of Our Republic," based on Ps. 147:20, "God hath not so dealt with any nation," was listened to with the closest and keenest interest and attention.

There was most clearly traced beyond question how our great republic was established here by the hand of Almighty God to demonstrate to mankind the power of a Christian purpose that God set up this nation to bear witness to the true worth of men as men, without respect to race, color or condition, and to promote peace among the nations of the world. The pastor concluded his very acceptable and patriotic address by saying:

"A new era has at last come when the time is ripe in the providence of God for our country to be the leader in humanity's march from the low levels of national friction, strife and conflict, from the dark valleys of race prejudice and hatred and a half-century-old animosity, from the social swamps of greed and lust and false ambition; yes, to lead humanity up to the very sun-lighted summits of fraternity, justice, civic equality and a 'square deal all around.'"

The only regret seemed to be felt by all was that there were not more citizens present to enjoy the uplift of the hour.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Pre-communion services are being held at the Presbyterian church every evening this week. Tonight at 7:30 the Rev. O. P. Rider, pastor of the Tropic Presbyterian church, will deliver the sermon. Tomorrow evening the pastor will preach and on Thursday the Rev. Dr. Pratt of Lincoln avenue Presbyterian church of Pasadena will be the speaker. Friday evening is the regular preparatory service.

THE PRODUCTIVENESS OF GLENDALE HEIGHTS

As a practical evidence of the productiveness of Glendale Heights, Jno. A. Pirtle brought to the Evening News office Tuesday morning four potatoes grown on his premises in that beautiful section of Glendale. These potatoes weighed 18, 21, 23 and 24 ounces, with an aggregate weight of five pounds, six ounces. They were well developed with a perfect formation and smooth surface.

ELKS' DIZZY WHIRL

BIG ANNUAL BROWSE OF ANTLERED HERD BEGINS NEXT SUNDAY

Feverish preparations are being made by the Best People on Earth in all parts of Los Angeles county for the big annual browse of the antlered herd July 11 to 17. One hundred thousand Elks and visitors from all parts of the United States are expected to be in the Southland. The towns of Glendale, Long Beach, Pasadena, Pomona, Redlands, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Pedro, Santa Ana, Santa Monica and Whittier are joining with Los Angeles in providing entertainment for the vast throng of good fellows at their yearly gathering.

An elaborate program of entertainment has been arranged by Motley H. Flint, director-general for the convention, and also chairman of the 1915 general committee, which is assisting in all of the forty conventions in the Southland during exposition year. There will be a magnificent midsummer floral and allegorical pageant Wednesday, July 15, the Elks' parade the following day, exhibition drills, two nights of electrical parades and two open-air street dancing parties that will be the greatest of the kind ever held in the state.

Monday, July 12, is Glendale-Pasadena day; Tuesday, Santa Monica day; Friday, San Diego and Long Beach day, and Saturday, Redondo Beach day.

The visiting delegations will be greeted upon arrival by the brothers in Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, Redlands, Riverside and Pomona. They will be kept in a whirl of joy every moment of their waking hours while in the Southland.

LEARNS POWER OF LAW

Judge Whomes read a Los Angeles picnicker a severe lesson this morning in the recorder's court. "Glendale," said the judge, "is not only a temperance town, as everyone knows, but it is particularly strict in enforcing its ordinances dealing with offenses against its liquor legislation." In accordance with the determination of the city to punish severely all violations of this ordinance, the judge fined Thomas Handy, 1617 Lucille avenue, Los Angeles, $15, the amount he had furnished for bail.

Handy had, as Officer Hollenbeck testified, conducted himself in a disorderly manner in Verdugo park, along with others. The party had a large quantity of beer, which as they consumed it, produced varying effects on the celebrators. Handy became quarrelsome and though repeatedly warned by the officer, persisted in disorderly conduct that warranted his arrest. He paid the fine.

J. STITT WILSON

(Contributed)

Last Sabbath J. Stitt Wilson again spoke to a crowded house in Blanchard hall, Los Angeles, in a series of discourses he is giving on the present world's crisis. He read from the Bible these words: "This day the spirit of the Lord is upon me for he hath anointed me to preach the glad tidings to the poor, to heal the broken-hearted, to set at liberty them that are bruised." His masterly handling of his subjects has to be heard to be appreciated. He is too large a man to be classed as a partisan; he is not a party prohibitionist, although he throws his herculean strength against the liquor traffic as one who has consecrated his great abilities, his soul and his life to the service of his fellow men. He stands in a class by himself.

FOURTH OF JULY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mitchell of 805 Verdugo road entertained friends from Sheldon, Iowa, at a 6 o'clock dinner on Saturday evening. The guests enjoyed the pleasure of eating apricots, prunes, oranges, plums and grapefruit from their trees.

With a visit to the pigeon farm nearby and one of Mrs. Mitchell's excellent dinners, they enjoyed the day and privilege of renewing old friendships.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lickel and daughters, Jessie, Maude and Hazel of Hollywood; the Misses Jolena Coombs of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Olive Wykoff of Sheldon, Iowa; Mrs. Mabel Rankin, Mrs. Winifred Brown and Wm. McCoombs of Los Angeles.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB

The Glendale Shakespeare club will meet Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the studio of Mrs. Coral Harrison Sloan, 1550 Myrtle street. The reading of "Hamlet" will be continued. These studies are free. All interested in this important work will be given a cordial welcome.

FUN ON THE FOURTH

PLAYGROUND COMMITTEE PRESENTED FINE PROGRAM OF ATHLETIC SPORTS

Glendale celebrated the Fourth in sane and safe fashion. The city ordinances forbid the indiscriminate setting off of fireworks in the streets that has so often resulted in serious accident. The city was therefore quiet and orderly. Toward evening, on the outskirts of the city line, a few fireworks were visible and some of the old-time noise was heard.

The program of exercises and sports at the high school attracted an enthusiastic gathering, which listened with appreciation to the patriotic addresses delivered by the Rev. W. E. Edmonds of the Glendale Presbyterian church and the Rev. R. T. Smith of Tropic.

The work done by the committee appointed by the Parent-Teacher federation to raise funds for opening playgrounds during the summer months was the subject of much approving comment among those who were present at the sports. The committee was appointed June 9 and consisted of the Rev. E. H. Willisford, chairman; Mrs. Charles H. Toll, Mrs. Ella W. Richardson, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson and Principal Richardson D. White of the Intermediate school.

This committee was successful in obtaining a grant of $150 from the city trustees and a similar sum from the grammar school trustees. With this money they have been able to secure the services of competent playground superintendents and with the additional aid of sums raised by the Parent-Teacher associations that will defray supplies and equipment expenses, the playgrounds are now open to the children and will remain open until the beginning of September.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Presbyterian church was decorated on Sunday night with a profusion of bunting, every pew being adorned by small American flags, while a large flag covered a large portion of the wall behind the pulpit, the contribution of the Brotherhood of the church.

Both morning and evening services were devoted to the topic that was suggested by the Fourth of July—"Christian Patriotism." Rev. Edmonds for his morning service took a text from Exodus 17:15, "And Moses erected an altar there and called it Jehovah-nissi, which means 'The Lord is my banner.'" The preacher alluded to the fact that a great many organizations are represented by banners, not all of them worthy ones. What this nation needs most is a definite recognition of God, not of the attributes of God only, but a recognition and acceptance of him as a personality. We are apt to think of him as the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the God of yesterday, but we need to think of him as the God of the living present, the God whom we need now, the God of every day in the week!

The conjunction of the banner and the altar, that is the essential thing, for the banner means nothing to us if the altar is not behind it. We are co-laborers with God—human faithfulness plus the power of God—that is what counts. The altar stands for sacrifice and that monument was spoken of on which is the inscription, "Ready for either service or sacrifice," as representing the true spirit of the Christian, and the question which comes home to everyone is, "What sacrifice have you made?" The banner backed by the altar stands for consecrated manhood.

The great patriots of our country, Washington, Lincoln, McKinley and our president of today, have all recognized that altar, and it is recognized in that inscription on our coins, "In God we trust." To every American citizen today comes the great question, "What kind of an altar are you putting up? Is God behind the banner that you follow?"

The evening service was a program of patriotic variety, features of which were the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," by the choir; reading of "The Blue and the Gray," by Cora Louise Butterfield; a reading, "God in the National Life," by Annabel McClellan, and a talk by the pastor, "Is Ours a Christian Nation?"

BAPTIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Women's Missionary society of the First Baptist church will hold their regular meeting on Thursday, July 8th, at 2:30, at the home of Mrs. R. A. Siple, 1473 Sycamore avenue, corner of Columbus avenue.

The subject for study is the first chapter of the new text-book, "The King's Highway," by Helen Barrett Montgomery. Leader, Mrs. J. E. Morrison. All ladies of the church and congregation cordially invited. 27312

NEW OPERA CHARMS

LOCAL EXPERT SAYS "FAIRYLAND" MUSIC HAS STRIKING AND ORIGINAL FEATURES

"While it is too soon to declare that 'Fairyland,' the new prize opera, will rank among the few musical creations that are destined to live," said Miss Helen Beatrice Cooper of the Cooper school of music to a representative of the Glendale Evening News, "it has many original musical features that take it out of the rank of common-place productions." Miss Cooper has had excellent opportunity to judge of the quality of the famous prize opera, having heard it at rehearsal and having witnessed the completed production. Mdlle. Rausch, the premiere danseuse of the opera, is an old European friend of Miss Cooper. As leader of the ballet, Mdlle. Rausch added much to the charm of the now-famous production.

"With artists of the caliber of Marcella Craft and Mdlle. Rausch in the piece," said Miss Cooper, "it can be seen that the work is being given every chance of success. Marcella Craft, the 'Rosamund' of the opera, is an artiste of the first rank and her acting was a marvel of genius, supreme skill and refined taste. The other characters were equally well sustained.

"The opera is allegorical and moral in its teaching. It shows the conflict of the dogmatic and ritualistic in religion, autocracy and despotism in the state and the voice of the people. Out of the storm and strife of these elements the voice of the people brings harmony and peace—a 'fairyland' on earth. The main character is Rosamund, who is a novice in a convent. Auburn, the King of Fairyland, falls in love with her. Corvain, who represents the state, steals the crown, usurps the power of the king, debases the crown by making it of the earth earthly, and peace and harmony are not restored until Rosamund, returning the king's love, is united to him by the voice of the people, and 'fairyland' is restored.

"This beautiful symbolical story is worked out in a wonderful atmosphere of first-class music and ballet. Mdlle. Rausch of the Imperial Vienna opera house and latterly of the Metropolitan in New York, leads a well-trained ballet of about forty excellently trained young girls.

"The orchestra is a wonderful combination. Its very numbers are imposing; special alterations of the pit were necessary to give it accommodation. There is a preponderance of violins, all of the first class. The music itself is distinctly modern. It resembles nothing that has preceded it, though a faint likeness to some of Puccini's vagaries may be traced here and there. The chorus is tremendous and a great part of the work usually assigned to soloists is done by it. There are several strikingly beautiful arias, but the chorus is the main feature. Much of the music is written in six sharps and six flats. The rhythm is also out of the common order, some of it being written in 15-8 and 5-4 time. This, too, is real 15-8 time, not a mere ripple of triplets.

"The scenery and lighting effects were in keeping with the originality of the wonderful work itself. The color schemes, too, in the different scenes, were exquisite. The acting was wonderful.

"When you ask me if the opera will live, I find it difficult to pronounce any judgment. Judging by the enthusiasm of the audience it will. Some of the actors received as many as ten curtain calls, but time will show."

BIRTHDAY DINNER

Resplendent in patriotic colors the home of Mrs. C. W. Burket, 704 West Fifth street, was the scene of a beautiful birthday dinner party last week in honor of Mr. C. W. Burket and Mr. F. H. Dickman. Everywhere the red-white-and-blue of the Fourth was to be seen. The flowers were blue bachelor's buttons, white sweet alyssum and red geraniums. The favors were Fourth of July noisemakers. The guests were Mr. C. A. Baxter, Mr. F. H. Dickman, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Goss, Mrs. Lenora Cammack, Miss Harriet Cammack, Mr. and Mrs. Will Goss, Phillip Goss, William Goss and Dana Burket. The company entertained itself with a program of informal music.

AT GRIFFITH PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grosvenor, 1421 Burchett street; Steeve Beebe, Mrs. Charles Nickerl and Reid Nickerl motored to Griffith park Monday. Hundreds of autos were lined along the driveways of the park, numerous auto trucks conveyed thousands of merry picnickers. The park is becoming popular and the zoo is proving a great attraction for children.

SANE CELEBRATION OF THE FOURTH

Nothing marks more clearly the advance of the nation to higher ideals than those of the past, than the sentiment that has resulted in the sane celebration of the Fourth of July. Past remembrances of the national day are mixed up with bombardments of the cities of the country with cannon crackers, toy and real pistols, assembled bunches of firecrackers under tomato cans for greater effect, and a general din and blare that made life hideous for several days and nights around the season of patriotic remembrance.

During those old celebrations accidents were of frequent occurrence and some of those past years show a list of killed and wounded as great as the American army suffered during the war with Spain. Fires, too, as the result of such celebrations, were numerous in every city and the fire departments of the land had come at last to dread the recurrence of the day.

Now all that is changed. The campaign for a sane and safe celebration of the Fourth has made way everywhere and most of the cities of the land forbid the indiscriminate use of fireworks by laymen and provide civic fireworks within a closely guarded boundary. The result is seen in the enormously reduced list of casualties and in the similarly lessened tale of fires.

There is no fear that this curbing of noisy patriotism will result in any diminution of the real spirit of the Fourth. The people are just as patriotic and likely to be more so in future now that they have a chance to manifest their patriotism without danger of accident. The large and enthusiastic gatherings in all the cities of the country which listened Monday with respectful attention to the ever-new story of the sacrifices of the past and to the absorbing history of the development of the republic, are none the less likely to remember the Fourth because they are not painfully reminded of it by missing fingers or toes or some disfiguring scar. The sane celebration of the national holiday, too, is likely to develop a much higher type of citizen than one who can only manifest sentiment by meaningless noise.

INCREASING NATIONAL LONGEVITY

At the American Medical association the other day Dr. Victor Vaughn, the retiring president, gave interesting details concerning the increasing longevity in the United States. In the fifteenth century the average length of life was only twenty years; in 1883 it had increased to thirty years; now it is forty-three years. In the next generation it will be sixty-five.

Of course the constant wars and periodical epidemics, like the Black Death, that used to sweep the world with the besom of destruction, were the cause of the astounding mortality of the past. Now the cities of the world have been cleaned up and in this country, on account of its superior sanitation, the mortality is lower than elsewhere on the globe.

Preventive medicine is saving annually 20,000 lives and such scourges of humanity as tuberculosis are being gradually brought under control, with the hope that some day they will be eliminated entirely. The work done on the Panama Canal Zone is an example of what can be effected in this direction when absolute power to handle contagious disease is in the hands of a medical commission. The scourge of smallpox has been absolutely destroyed in the Zone and malarial fever and yellow fever reduced to insignificant proportions.

Altogether, the country owes much to its medical men. They are a body of self-sacrificing, highly intelligent and thoroughly competent practitioners. Their labors and their sacrifices are yearly resulting in the betterment of the race and they are deserving of all support and honor.

COMMERCIALISM IN WAR

Notwithstanding talk of patriotism and glory, national ideals and super-humanity, that has been elicited on all sides in Europe, by the war, there seems little doubt that at the back of all lies the desire for commercial supremacy. The challenge made by Germany of Britain's long monopoly of the world's markets undoubtedly inspired the military and naval rivalry that has resulted in the present slaughter of millions.

By this time the nations of Europe are asking themselves in secret how much they are to benefit by this war. It seems almost incredible that none of them in the beginning should have measured the sacrifices that such a war would demand nor have counted the cost. When it is remembered that Britain alone is expending $15,000,000 a day on the strife and that that sum does not in any adequate way represent the ultimate cost of the war to that country, it looks as though insanity had smitten that and the other nations. Nations go insane at times and their insanity is a hundred times more dangerous than that of individuals. They take the bit in their teeth, close their eyes and rush headlong into ruin. The individuals that constitute a mob would never dream of committing individually the crimes they perpetrate collectively. A nation rushing heedlessly into war is but a mob writ large.

Surely the world is large enough for ordinary competition between nations, just as any city is large enough for the competing businesses of many rivals. What would be the lot of a city the merchants of which, not content with ordinary competition, should arm their employes and march with rifle and torch against the business houses of their competitors? That is what Britain and Germany, in their insanity, are doing. In the end they will both be crippled badly and some other nation or nations will take the trade for which they are struggling.

Of what avail the wonderful scientific attainments of the German chemists when they are applied for the destruction and not for the preservation of life; of what value the marvellous mechanical skill of the workers of the Fatherland when they are directed toward the manufacture of war weapons and war materials? What good is to come of Britain's vast merchant navy if the better part thereof is to be sent to the bottom of the sea? Where will France's great literary acquisitions and delicacies of artistic skill be when the nation lies bleeding at every pore and the men of genius are dust of the trenches?

Surely it should have been possible for the nations to have assigned to each other spheres of operation commercially or to have found some other method of agreement by which each might have had a share and all lived in peace and amity. If some great light does not shine out of this war there is likely to arise a greater moral darkness than existed when it broke out. Nation will work against nation in a frenzied fight for the markets of the world. This country will be drawn into that contest if it is to maintain itself on an equality with the organized exploiters of Europe.

Before the war arose German competition had almost driven American commerce from China and from South America. After the war the countries of Europe will enter into fierce competition for the trade of the world. The old countries must build themselves up once more. They will enter every American market with labor and its products and this country will be hard pushed to maintain itself in that coming strife.

TO STOP ROOSTERS FROM CROWING

Many people have thought that newspaper articles referring to statutes and ordinances formulated for the purpose of stopping roosters from crowing, or ordaining that the noisy fowls be put to bed at a respectable time and forced to keep from disturbing the "wee, sma" hours of the morning, were merely jocular, and intended to add to the humor of the nation. However, there seems to be no limit to the modern craze for passing ordinances and statutes to curb not only humanity but also the so-called lower animals.

Up to this moment however, restrictive measures dealing with brute creation or inanimate nature have never proved much of a success. Xerxes' castigation of the Hellespont did not aid his army to get over the straits and he had to wait until the storms subsided. The case of the jackdaw of Rheims is about the only one on record, and that is merely poetical, where an invisible curse was launched against an offender of the feathered creation with any degree of success.

It is therefore interesting to learn that several of the citizens of Tropic are determined to put the majesty of the law in operation against the "feathered bipeds" that make night lively in that favored region. It is reported from that city that at the regular meeting of the trustees to be held tonight a proposal will be brought forward for the regulation of the denizens of the barnyards there and that the thunders of civic anathemas will be launched against the offenders.

That it should be seriously proposed to curtail or possibly take away what has hitherto been considered the privilege of the family to keep chickens in its own backyard seems incredible; but there is really no bounds to the desire of the modern regulator for regulation. From legislating that statues shall be clothed in substantial garments to the advocacy of ordinances that roosters shall not crow tonight, anything may be expected.

Little wonder that the thrifty housewives of Tropic who have eked out the family larder in these hard times with the welcome eggs produced with so much trouble and the art of producing which at a reasonable price has sorely exercised their provident minds, should keenly resent the proposed ordinance. It is expected that should the proposed ordinance be brought up at the meeting tonight there will be a strong and indignant opposition that will let the authors of the obnoxious proposition understand the difficulty of invading rights consecrated by civic usage of many centuries.

Think of it! Rome was saved by geese on one memorable occasion. Who knows from what untoward fate Tropic may yet be delivered by its contingent of feathered guardians.

This country is prospering in measure greater than reasonably might be expected, in view of the widespread depressing effects of the great war. It is prospering because the American people are keeping their heads and are going right ahead, doing the day's work.

To be successful in a business way, one must concern oneself about outgo as well as income. The fifty-thousand-a-year income with the fifty-one-thousand-a-year outgo is no nearer business success than the thousand-dollar-a-year income and the eleven-hundred-dollar-a-year outgo.

It is very important that the United States make Latin America think well of it.

One of the most stirring scenes in the Lasky-Belasco picturization of "The Governor's Lady" shows the excitement at a mining camp when there has been an explosion and many of the workers have been entombed. The episodes of the rescue are wonderfully realistic.

Sea otter is the most valuable fur at present; Russia sable is next in value, with silver fox nearly approaching it, although when the size of the skin is considered, the sable is infinitely greater in value.

BURBANK

Mr. J. L. Bicker of Los Angeles, who has charge of the sales department of the Greenman tract, consisting of 21 1/2 acres just south of town, has subdivided the tract into acre lots and has sold most of them to home builders, who are busily engaged improving them with neat and up-to-date residences.

The bonds that were voted for the new grammar school have been placed and plans are almost completed and work will begin in a few days. The trustees hope to have the new building ready for occupancy early in the fall.

Mr. Chas. Hopper and family of Verdugo avenue spent Sunday in Glendale as the guests of C. L. Cox and family. The day was spent in the shade of the sycamores at Verdugo park.

Misses Elsie, Grace and Ida Ludlow and Mr. Wickersham, Mr. Eichert and Mr. Martin motored to San Diego Saturday night and returned Monday night. They all report a very pleasant trip.

Mr. L. I. Mulvey of the Burbank pharmacy and Mr. R. O. Church returned Tuesday morning from a three days' fishing trip to Big Bear lake. They report a fine trip, but very few fish.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Kahl spent the Fourth at Long Beach.

Mr. R. Johnson, our popular tonorial artist, spent Monday at Santa Monica trying to relieve the briny deep of some of its "fin family," but with very little success, as his catch was only five small mackerel.

The main attraction of our Fourth of July celebration was a ball game between the married and single men. Attracted by the bugle call and the noise of a big bass drum, quite a crowd gathered at the ball park in the afternoon to witness a very sensational game, indeed. It was full of "pep" and "ginger" from start to finish and many thrilling (?) plays were pulled off. The many girls who lined up to boost for the singles kept everybody in an uproar of laughter, while the married men were continually spurred on to better efforts and finally when the scorekeeper got done counting the scores, they were declared the victors by a margin of one score. R. L. Linn did the slab work for the married men and M. S. McNutt for the singles, both pitchers performing like veterans.

Mr. E. S. Hogel, who has opened a new grocery and confectionery stand in the new Burbank block, gave his grand opening Saturday night from 7 to 9. Everything at the soda fountain and in the ice cream parlor was served free. The Burbank orchestra furnished music throughout

Mr. J. H. Franklin and family of Oklahoma, who are visiting their son, on West Third street, Glendale, were sightseeing in Burbank Tuesday. Mr. Franklin is very much impressed with Burbank and vicinity and in speaking of Southern California as a whole, says it is just simply "wonderful."

After meeting an old college friend suddenly and bringing him home to dinner and to spend the night, without telephoning ahead or sending any message whatsoever, your dear wife, when you were at last alone and could talk freely to each other, should throw her arms about you and say: "I just love to have you surprise me in this charming manner; always do it, will you?"

"THE GOVERNOR'S LADY" GREAT PICTURE DIRECTED BY GEORGE MELFORD

The cast for the Lasky-Belasco picture of "The Governor's Lady," the renowned Belasco hit, which is to be the offering at the Palace Grand tonight, may truthfully be described as all-star, for each of the artists has been and is a recognized star, either on the screen or on the legitimate stage. The five principal characters by Edith Wynne Mathison, Theodore Roberts, James Neil, Tom Forman and May Allison. This picture was directed by George Melford of Glendale and is one of his best pieces of work.

At the beginning of the drama Dan Slade, a young miner, and Mary, his wife, are shown happy together in their little mountain cabin. Mary is content with life so long as she has Dan to care for, but Dan already shows signs of a great ambition.

Robert Hayes, a young lawyer, riding in the hills near Dan's cabin, falls over a cliff with his horse and the fall dislodges some of the earth from the face of the cliff. Dan, returning from his work at the mines, discovers Hayes and at the same time among the rocks brought down by the fall, unmistakable traces of gold. Dan brings Hayes home to the cabin and Mary cares for him, with the result that they become fast friends. It turns out that Dan's discovery is a real gold mine and he is rich. Mary and Dan then move to a large house in the city and Dan surrounds himself with money and servants. He wants to rise and become a power, but Mary is afraid of everything and longs for the old simple life together.

At this period of his career Dan meets Senator Strickland, a political leader, and Katherine, his daughter, a beautiful and ambitious girl with whom Hayes is in love. The senator objects to Hayes as a possible son-in-law because he is poor, and separates the lovers, sending Katherine abroad for a time. On her return from Europe, Katherine has become ambitious herself and craves money and influence. She and her father both see a future for Dan Slade in politics and they urge him to run for the office of governor.

Dan gradually grows restive and impatient with Mary, who cannot get used to money, servants, dress or any of the conditions of her new life. Dan, meanwhile, becomes fascinated with Katherine and Katherine with the thought of all she could do with Slade's wealth and political power. Dan asks Katherine whether she would share his career if he were free and she admits that she would do so, which causes Dan to leave home and ask his faithful wife for a divorce. Dan asks Hayes to act as his lawyer, but Hayes refuses and breaks his relations with Katherine when he learns that it is because of the girl he himself loves that Dan wishes to be separated from Mary. Mary cannot believe that Dan wishes to leave her, but learns through Hayes' suffering that Katherine is the other woman.

Strickland gives a dinner to the politicians at his home and Dan is hailed as the next governor. Mary comes there and tells Dan that she will never consent to a divorce which will ruin three lives. Mary then goes back to live in the little cabin, where she spent her happiest days, and this causes much talk when Dan's enemies and the newspapers learn of it.

Mary sends for Katherine and she shows the girl what she is doing and Katherine, thoroughly ashamed of the extremes to which her foolish ambition has led her, is forgiven by Hayes. Dan, coming to ask Mary to go away, learns the truth—that Katherine cares not for him but for Hayes. At the same time he is surprised at the change in Mary and asks her to come back to the city with him, but Mary refuses on the ground that he is asking her only because he cannot get the other woman, saying that she is now ready to give him his divorce. In the end, however, Dan is elected governor and his wife takes her proper place by his side.
