EDITOR'S NOTE.

A NEW English version of the SONNAMBULA cannot but invite a very natural prejudice in favour of the one so long familiar. It can scarcely be said, however, that this popular version has the quality of being very singable; in the best known pieces the monotony of rhymes in eeling and eeming (indeed throughout of rhymes ending in ing, out of all proportion to their prevalence in ordinary English), and the many heavy syllables on notes that should be light, are certainly undesirable. Not to enumerate others, these peculiarities are more disadvantageous in the SONNAMBULA than they might be in some other works, since its chief characteristic is a great harmoniousness of both words and music, in the absence of any energy or individuality of character, hence a version that should sound musical, and sing easily, would not remain without some justification.

The present version is an attempt in this direction, at the expense occasionally of accuracy of translation, when the sound of the English words seemed adverse to that of the music.

The principal pieces in which Elvino is concerned are here transposed in accordance with Ricordi's modern edition of this Opera. The voice for which the part was originally composed would seem to be happily extinct; even as it stands now the part is in some places beyond the ordinary tenor range.

In the recitatives of this Opera (as in those of "Norma"), it should be noticed that the appoggiaturas are not to be sung as well as the notes before which they stand, but instead of them.

The Scene is laid in a Swiss village.

THE Opera opens with festivities in honour of the betrothal of Amina and Elvino. Lisa, the hostess of the village inn, is jealous of Amina, and treats with disdain the advances of her own lover, Alexis. While Amina and Elvino are thanking their friends for their congratulations, a traveller arrives, who is at once struck with the beauty of the young bride, and pays her marked attention, to the great annoyance of the bridegroom. Theresa warns the villagers that night is approaching; and, as the place is haunted, that it is time they returned to their homes. The stranger, who proves to be Count Rodolpho, the lord of the manor, treats the story of the phantom, which is related to him, with ridicule; and, after taking a tender leave of Amina, retires to the inn, conducted by Lisa. Elvino upbraids Amina for receiving the attentions of the traveller; but she succeeds in pacifying his jealousy, and they part reconciled. Lisa attends the Count to his apartment, and whilst talking to him is startled by a noise, and in running to conceal herself, drops her veil. The Count then perceives a figure in white standing at his window. He at first thinks it is the phantom, but soon perceives that it is Amina walking in her sleep. Fearful of disturbing her, he carefully closes the window and quits the room, leaving her, as he imagines, alone. Lisa then steals out to fetch Elvino. In the meantime the villagers enter the apartment to welcome the Count, whom they have recognised, and are surprised to find Amina there. On awakening her, she is unable to account for her position, and is horrified to find that she is spurned by her lover and friends, all of whom disbelieve her assertions of innocence. Elvino tears the ring which he has given her from her finger, and leaves her almost broken-hearted. Lisa endeavours to console him, and persuades him at last to marry her. On their way to the church they meet the Count, who again tries to explain the reason of Amina's presence in his chamber, but Elvino refuses to believe him. Theresa comes from her cottage to beg of the villagers not to disturb Amina with their rejoicings, as she has just fallen into a sleep; and at this moment Amina is seen issuing from her window in a state of somnambulism. She crosses a narrow bridge, her friends watching her with intense anxiety, and at last descends amongst them, singing of her lost love, and uttering such words of affection that Elvino is convinced of her innocence, and on her awakening, begs her forgiveness for ever having doubted her. Her delight and happiness are shared by Theresa, the Count, and all her friends, with the exception of Lisa, who has also the mortification of being detected in her false accusation by the finding of her veil in the Count's apartment.

ACT I.

INTRODUCTION.

The stage represents the outskirts of a Swiss village: in the foreground, on the one side, an inn; on the other side, a portion of a mill, the wings of which stretch toward the background. The prospect is closed by mountains.

No. 1.

CHORUS—"HAIL, AMINA."

The musical score for Act I, Introduction, No. 1, features six systems of music. The instrumentation includes a Piano (labeled PIANO.), Oboes and Flutes (labeled Ob. & Fl.), Clarinet (labeled Cl.), Horn (labeled Cor.), Trombones (labeled Ob. & Fl.), and Bassoon (labeled Bassoon). The score begins with an Allegro tempo in common time. The first system shows the piano playing eighth-note chords, followed by the oboes and flutes entering with a rhythmic pattern. The second system introduces the clarinet and horn. The third system adds the trombones. The fourth system adds the bassoon. The fifth system returns to the piano with a staccato eighth-note pattern, followed by a crescendo and sempre dynamic. The sixth system concludes with a powerful tutti entry from all instruments.

The musical score is composed of eight staves of music for piano and voice. The piano part is divided into two staves: treble and bass. The vocal part is in soprano clef. The music begins with a forte dynamic (ff), followed by a dynamic marking "Corni." (horns) and a piano dynamic (pp). The piano part features sustained notes and chords. The vocal part enters with eighth-note patterns. The key signature changes from G major to F# major. The score includes dynamic markings such as ff, Corni., pp, mf, p, and mf. The piano part continues with eighth-note patterns and chords, while the vocal part sings melodic lines.

The musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is in common time (indicated by 'C') and has a key signature of one sharp. It features a piano part with dynamic markings 'pp' (pianissimo) and 'cresc.' (crescendo). The middle staff is also in common time ('C') and has a key signature of one sharp. The bottom staff is in common time ('C') and has a key signature of one sharp. Both middle and bottom staves show a continuous pattern of eighth-note chords.

The musical score consists of six staves. The top four staves represent the vocal parts, likely soprano, alto, tenor, and bass, with lyrics in Italian. The bottom two staves represent the piano accompaniment. The key signature is A major (three sharps). The music features eighth-note patterns and sustained notes. The vocal entries occur in groups of three, followed by instrumental interludes. The vocal parts sing in unison at the end of the page.

This musical score page from Bellini's "La Sonnambula" features a vocal part with lyrics in English and Italian, and a piano accompaniment. The vocal part includes dynamic markings like 'f Tutti.' and performance instructions like 'con abbandono rall. un poco.' and 'con abban. >> a tempo.'. The piano part consists of multiple staves of rhythmic patterns. The lyrics describe a scene where a character pleads with a count to clear their suspicion and reveals a secret about a past meeting. The score is set in common time with a key signature of one flat.

The musical score consists of two systems of staves. The top system features three vocal parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor) and a piano accompaniment. The vocal parts sing a repeating phrase in common time, with lyrics in both English and Italian. The piano part provides harmonic support with sustained notes and chords. The bottom system shows the vocal parts continuing their phrase, with the piano accompaniment providing harmonic support through sustained notes and chords.

(NEW AND COMPLETE EDITION.)

AGNES ZIMMERMANN.

PRICE ONE GUINEA.

PREFACE.

NOTWITHSTANDING the many editions of Beethoven's Sonatas that exist already, the present one will stand in need of no justification if it should prove a help towards the better rendering and clearer understanding of these great works. This it aims to do.

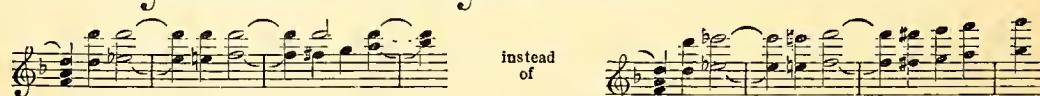

Firstly: by the fingering. Many passages from their complication, present difficulties almost insurmountable to amateurs without some guidance; others again admit of various ways of fingering; in all such cases the one selected is that which the Editor, on careful consideration, believes to be the most conducive to the clearness of the phrasing; and even should it not seem the most easy or simple, the player may be repaid for any practice spent upon it, by a better insight into the purport of such passages.

Secondly: by the slurs, which are of such essential importance to define the phrasing, and yet are so seldom placed with due attention. These have been carefully revised; the best editions have been compared; in innumerable places where (contrary to musical sense and feeling) the slur stops short of the final note or resolution, it is here made to include such note or resolution; in fugal movements where the subject is originally slurred, the same indication is added in all its repetitions.

Thirdly: by the addition of the small staves in some places; it must be borne in mind that the compass of the Pianoforte was formerly much more limited than it is now, the highest note being at one time F (), and consequently passages which, in the first part of a movement, appeared in a certain form, were obliged, when they recurred in the second part in a higher key, to be compressed for want of notes. In many cases this enforced alteration led to the addition of a new feature of interest, as, for instance, in Sonata No. 4

In both these examples the introduction of the Pedal-note in the top part is so novel and beautiful, that it more than compensates for the loss of the original form of the phrase—wherever similar instances occur (and there are many), no alteration is proposed; but where no such compensatory element exists, where it is plain that the mechanical limitations of the instrument alone prevented a complete reproduction of the original passage, such passage is here printed in the shape in which it would probably have been written, had the keyboard in Beethoven's time had its present extent. Such alterations are offered as suggestions only; whoever prefers, can of course play the passage according to the original text.
