OBSERVATIONS OF THE STROLLER On Theatrical Life and Environment STORIES AND ANECDOTES

Though one of the most amiable men in the world, Tim Murphy can rise to an occasion requiring prompt and drastic action.

Practical Joking As a Profession. On one occasion a member of his company was caught playing a practical joke on the audience, and he remembers to this day the terms in which the star dismissed him. When Mr. Murphy returned to his dressing room he lighted a cigar, remarking simply: "I have no use for people who mix up their professions."

When his reference to practical joking as a profession was questioned, he insisted that some people actually made a career of it.

"There was a Frenchman," continued the comedian, after citing other instances, "an artist—Honner was the name, I believe. He spared no trouble or expense to carry out a hoax. He took great delight in wearing a disguise. On one occasion he presented himself before an irascible janitor and said: 'Does H. Henry Honner live here?' 'No,' was the brief reply. 'I know he does not, for I am he,' retorted the artist, as he walked away. The next day he came again, differently dressed, and he repeated the same game for a week, coming each day in a fresh disguise, as a policeman, postman, benevolent looking professor—but he always took care to get out of the janitor's way before the man could grasp a broomstick. After a time Honner chanced to meet a rich 'dude,' who made himself a regular nuisance to the artist by telling everybody that he was the artist's friend. He asked to be allowed to visit the artist's studio, and Honner gave him the address of the janitor he was victimizing. The young man called there and innocently put the fatal question, 'Does M. Henri Honner live here?' Then he saw stars and was taken to the hospital for repairs."

Eddie S. Daly, the genial little hustler ahead of Chester DeVonde, tells the following story: A traveling company had struck

Every Little Bit Added to What You Got. bad business had to rest upon someone's shoulders—and of course the show was good—so the manager decided to change the advance man. He scouted around and finally landed a "good un," who came with the best credentials as to sobriety, dress, work, etc. After he had been ahead for a week, he thought he would write back to the show and inquire how business was.

He did, and in due time received a letter saying: Business in great, $449." He immediately replied: "Glad to hear it; quite a feather in my hat." Each day for the succeeding week he received a letter from the manager telling of the continued good business, and each day he replied, always adding, "Quite a feather in my hat." Finally there came a time when there was no letter from his manager. His funds being low, he naturally worried, and at last he telegraphed, but received no reply.

VESTA VICTORIA,

The English singing comedienne, now at the New York Theatre, New York City, where she is even greater hit than when she introduced Walking At The Church and Poor John.

After three or four days in the town he was surprised, on calling at the telegraph office, to receive a message. Opening it, he read: "By Adams Express have shipped you a bunch of feathers. Fly home."

The leading man of a local stock company had been presented with triplets by his wife. He immediately sought one of his usual after-theatre haunts to receive the felicitations of his cronies, who were of course invited to "inspect" the new arrivals, the time being set for a few days later and the rendezvous appointed.

Upon his arrival there, the happy young father found that only one of those who had protested their anxious desire to see the new triple edition had been brave enough to keep his appointment, and he was the least desirable of the bunch, being a race-track follower whose luck had been consistently good but whose education had been confined to the curriculum of the sheds and association with those of his own intellectual calibre. Not to be entirely outdone, the actor set off with his flashily dressed friend to his home, where the youngsters were laid out in a row.

"Well, what do you think of them?" asked the actor, in high glee.

The visitor ran his hand across his mouth several times in his characteristic fashion, and then said deliberately:

"Take me tip, old man, an' keep de middle one."

Here is another one on Clarence F. Horton, manager of the Theatrical and Excursion Department of the Big Four Railroad, with offices in Cincinnati. In Mr. Horton A Jekyll And Hyde. are combined the sound business sense that makes life prosperous, and the love of the artistic that lends enjoyment to it. He has an excellent tenor voice which is in great demand at local events of a musical nature, and is, in consequence, on nearly every program of any considerable importance.

Mr. Horton was down for two numbers at a recent event in the auditorium of the Sinton Hotel, at which the musical program was to precede a banquet. As Mr. Horton's second number was way down on the bill, he concluded, after singing his first selection, and the inevitable encore, to retire to the rear of the auditorium, where it was cooler than on the stage.

He was standing there, observing the other features of the entertainment, when a hand gripped his arm roughly and an angry voice said in suppressed tones:

"Come on here, you loafer—what're ye standing here for? Don't ye see all the other waiters are ready and in line? Come, get a move on!"

Horton turned around, and there, in evening dress, were the waiters lined up ready to serve the banquet. He had been mistaken by their chief for one of them.

Aime Todd, Jr., who is business manager of the Edsall-Winthrop Stock Company, playing Klaw & Erlanger's Southern houses, Shattered Dignity. relates the following: "In His a certain good sized Southern city the family of the proprietor of the theatre has apartments upstairs over the box office. Attached to the theatre is Charlie —, a young man with ambition far beyond his years, and who has just been made "business manager" of the house, while the proprietor has taken charge of his other house in a neighboring city. The young man's position has naturally increased the size of his hat band a little. But Charlie is industrious and has arisen by dint of hard work, being even accustomed to doing chores for the boss's family upstairs. Therein was concealed his doom. The other day Charlie was all spruced up and ornamented with a cane; big things were doing, for he knew the proprietor was coming home and that with him would be one of the big syndicate's representatives. Charlie met the duo just as he stepped out of the theatre door. He was introduced to the stranger with considerable formality. Charlie assured the K. & E. man that, as business manager of the house, he would serve him well, and was just unfolding his sails when the window upstairs was flung open with a bang and a negro servant stuck her head out of it and yelled: 'Charlie, Mrs. — wants you to bring her up a bucket of coal right away.'

The Christian Pilgrim Pleases Baltimore

Katherine Emmett has Scored in Stock at Albaugh's—Minnie Dupree Offers Prizes for Best Articles on Love at First Sight —Business Good at All the Theatres in New Orleans.

THE financial situation in other cities aroused an excited interest here during the past week, but nothing unusual happened. The local banks at present are in an excellent condition and are in a position to withstand any financial crisis. Therefore the people looked upon the present situation with calmness and confidence. Local business conditions are very prosperous and there is no cause for alarm. The theatres are enjoying their share of the prosperity and no one seems to be disturbed about the financial troubles elsewhere.

Brown of Harvard was the attraction at the Academy of Music during the past week, and it was overwhelmingly received. This city is a great university town and the play aroused much interest here. Henry Woodruff has been here in other attractions and his work was always well received. His portrayal of the Imp In When We Were Twenty-One, will always be remembered. He is a Harvard graduate and there are a number of college graduates in the company to give the play a natural college atmosphere. An important feature of the play that arouses local interest is the fact that it was written by Mrs. Rita Johnson Young, a Baltimorean. The old adage—a prophet is honored save in her own country—does not affect her in any way. All her plays that have appeared in the past were well patronized and in fact local theatregoers take much interest in her work.

Honorette Crosman, in The Christian Pilgrim, was well received at Ford's Opera House. It is a splendid drama along the lines of a morality play, similar to Everyman. The characters representing the characteristics of humanity, such as Obstinate, Faith, Superstition, Good Will, Piety, Charity, Prudence, Hopeful, Mis-trust, Timorous, etc. The star is supported by a splendid company and the acting of Tyrone Power was excellent. The play is gorgeously mounted and the scenery and scenic effects are exquisite. The play as produced lacks nothing that goes to make up a successful production from a theatrical standpoint, but as the performance proceeds it becomes tiresome to the audience.

Miss Minnie Dupree has offered three prizes to Baltimore girls during her appearance at the Academy of Music in The Road To Yesterday. The prizes will be given for the best explanation of the phrase, "love at first sight." The prizes will be given in the order of merit, first, lower box; second, upper box; third, two orchestra seats, and the dates can be selected by the winners. Several college professors have been chosen as the judges. The explanation can not be longer than one typewritten page.

Frederick Forrester, with Brown of Harvard Company, is a Baltimorean. He was also with the company On Parade, and at one time with Viola Allen. He has become very successful in the profession.

Miss Katherine Emmett has made a deep impression on the patrons of Albaugh's Theatre, and her work is received with great pleasure. She is young and beautiful and a splendid actress. In the several plays in which she has appeared, she has shown that she is capable and painstaking in her work. Although she is a stranger in this city, the patrons of the George Fawcett Stock Company take much interest in her efforts. As the leading woman, her part is very trying for a new-comer, for she must stand in comparison with Percy Hassell, Jane Kenmar, Jane Oakley, Mary Shaw, Adelaide Kelm and others who have in turn been the leading woman at this theatre and have succeeded in gaining the favor of the patrons. She will become a favorite if she is allowed to remain throughout the season. The management has adopted a new policy in changing the leads every six weeks. Earle Ryder, the leading man, has been succeeded by William Far-num, and he makes his first appearance in Monte Cristo. He made a great impression here in Ben Hur, The Princess of India and other famous dramas. His appearance with the stock company will be an incentive to arous greater interest. The patronage up to the present time has been excellent.

It is reported that Orls Skinner is doing excellent business on the road with The Honor of the Family.

There is much incidental music in The Christian Pilgrim and it was composed by Wm. Furst. Mr. Furst is a native Baltimorean and he has several brothers and he is the only one in the family that resides out of this city. He began his musical career as a drummer boy with the federal troops and he figured in many engagements about Antietam battlefield with the Union Army. For a number of years he was the organist in one of the leading churches here, which he quit in 1878. In 1879, he was engaged as director of the orchestra at Ford's Opera House by the late John T. Ford. He then produced his first work, an opera entitled The Electric Light. He quit that position in 1886. He personally directs the orchestra in The Christian Pilgrim and when he stepped into the place where he raises his baton it was the first time that he had stood there in twenty years. For many years he wrote music for the plays produced by Mr. Charles Frohman. He resigned that position in 1892 and went with Mr. Belasco. He was written the music for many great plays that Mr. Belasco has presented. He contemplates writing music for Milton's Paradise Lost, which he says will some day be presented on the stage.

Mr. Wells Hawks was a welcome visitor in the city during home-coming week. He was glad to be here with his old acquaintances. He was formerly a well-known figure in newspaperdom. Now he is chief of staff for Mr. Chas. Frohman.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Orls Skinner, in The Honor of the Family, was the attraction at the Tulane the past week, and played to fine business. Rose Stahl, in The Chorus Lady, is the attraction this week.

JOHN W. BARRY,

He is manager of the Dauphine Theatre, New Orleans, La., the home of the Barry-Burke Stock Company.

week. The play is an excellent one and handsomely staged and well acted; capacity business has been ruling throughout the week. Frank Moulin, in The Grand Mogul, will be the attraction next week and the sale of seats heavy. Week Nov. 11, Maud Adams, in Peter Pan, will be the attraction.

Al. G. Field, with his big minstrel company, did capacity business at the Crescent last week. The show presented by Mr. Field's company is a very fine one and should do a big business all along the line. Charles Grapewin in The Awakening of Mr. Pipp, is holding the boards at the Crescent this week. This is Mr. Grapewin's first appearance in the Crescent City, and he has more than made good with his new play, as business has been phenomenal during the entire week. Hap Ward, in Not Yet But Soon, will be the attraction next week.

Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, in Tess of the D'Urbervilles, opened the new Shubert, Oct. 28. The play presented by her was an exceptionally fine one, handsomely staged, and well acted, and big business ruled. This is Mrs. Fiske's first visit to the Crescent City in quite a while and she was greeted with large and enthusiastic audiences. Mrs. Fiske will play a two weeks' engagement in this city; next week she will present Leah Klosinski. Advance prices are prevailing. The new Shubert Theatre was under the Shubert banner last season, but is now operated by Klaw & Erlanger, and the Shuberts, with Thomas C. Campbell, as local manager, and Walter H. Brown, as assistant manager.

The Barry-Burke Stock Company presented Hearts Adrift at the new Dauphine last week to big business. The Cowboy and the Squaw is being presented this week in grand style and capacity business is ruling. Mr. Jere Sanford, in Illustrated songs and other specialties, is meeting with big success.

Miss Anna Eva Fay, as the headliner, and John W. World, and Mindrell Kingston, Ward and Curran, Billy Gaston and Ethel Green, Elmer Tenney, monologist; Ned Lockwood and Hazel Bryson, and the Kinedrome was the bill at the Orpheum this week, and capacity business ruled.

John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain, with the Golden Crook Extravaganza Company, held the boards at that popular burlesque house, the Greenwald, the past week and business has been phenomenal, the S. R. O. sign being put out at each performance. At the Olympic Club in this city is where John L. met defeat at the hands of Gentleman Jim, or in other words, now Mr. James J. Corbett. Sullivan has been tendered many receptions in this city by his many admirers and old friends, and some of the clubs, and John L. says he is glad to get back to the dear old city. Trocadero Extravaganza Company is the attraction this week and fine business is ruling.

The ever popular Baldwin-Melville Stock Company is presenting A Curse of Drink at Blaney's Lyceum this week to big business. Under Two Flags will be presented next.

The Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows gave four performances in this city beginning Nov. 2, and packed their enormous tent at each performance. The exhibition given by this big aggregation was very fine and their visit to the Crescent City was well repaid.

The Bijou, a new vaudeville theatre under the management of McAllister & Morris, was opened in this city and is meeting with big success. The following vaudeville bill was the

The Comedian in The Newspaper Business.

By ETHEL POWERS.

"Great Scott! Caraway, what are you worried about?" asked the Juvenile, stopping the comedian on 42nd and Broadway. "You look as though you had lost your best bet. What's the matter? Has Wall Street gone wrong?"

"Wall Street," repeated the comedian, "why, that's a wide-open house. But did you ever try to break into the newspaper business? You'll have to be a 'Hondini' to succeed."

"What? Don't tell me that you are in the newspaper business," said the juvenile, laughing. "What drove you to that? Drink?"

"No, a jolly," replied the comedian, sadly, "the editor of the Commercial Breeze told me I was a genius, and insisted on me writing front page signed stories."

"Well, what are you kicking about?"

"Oh, yes, they appeared all right, but not under my name."

"I don't understand. Do you get paid?"

"Yes, and that's why the editor says I ought not to kick. You see, I was dragged into this, Jack. The editor is all right. He's a bally fellow, but he deceived me. In my first conversation, he handed me a 'Perfecto,' and said, 'I am for men. He sold no skirts overhung around his office. If they did any work for him they had to hand in their copy and do part for he believed in peace, even in a news paper."

"Why should you make all this kick? You say you received your salary?" asked the juvenile, in surprise.

"Well, I shouldn't care so much if I wasn't assigned to correct amateurs' copy. They send in stuff and are featured with it, while I do the work. They are the kind of people who spell cabbage with a 'k.' To my utter surprise, the other day, as I was smoking a Perfecto with the editor, a door of a private office opened and out rushed a Cressida beauty, her face red with indignation. Before she had time to sail into the editor, he said, 'Mr. Caraway, this is Miss Nervina Gall.'

"Oh, that's Mr. Caraway, is it? He's the man who has been stealing my stuff," she shrieked.

"But what I wanted to say is, Miss Meek is darling to insult me again. I noticed this morning she used the same slang word I used in a story last year."

"But her style is entirely different," remarked the editor, trying to pacify her. "Don't you worry if they try to insult you. It's a compliment. You are the only woman in the country who has a sense of humor." Then he winked at me and whispered, 'tske her out to luncheon, that's the only way to square your self—make her think she's it."

"Did you take her?" asked the juvenile, amused.

"Did I take her? I did—not. I suddenly remembered I had more of the amateur's stuff to edit."

"Say Caraway," said the editor, "how are you on editorials? I see this morning's Whop has given us a dig. There, read it, and answer with that satirical humor of yours."

"But," I answered, pushing the paper aside, "you told me—"

"Hush," he interrupted, "now don't rub it in. You may have had experience in every other business, but you would appreciate my position if you ever tried to run a newspaper."

"But," I insisted, "you told me there were no women in the office of your paper."

"Well, there isn't. They do their work on the outside," he rejoined, looking surprised.

"Well, what about Miss Nervina Gall?"

"Oh, she isn't a woman, she's a cat," he answered, lighting a cigar.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Metropolitan Theatre for the first half of the week, is offering a musical comedy, entitled The Blue Moon, which is said to have been somewhat clouded by eastern critics, but not yet totally eclipsed. It is under the Shubert management, and is held in British India, which affords a large scope for scene effects and costuming, and no expense has been spared to make both of these accessories, the most lavish. James T. Powers is, of course, the principal person in this play, and he keeps the house in a roar during the entire time that he is on the stage. The supporting company is adequate and the chorus, handsome and well dressed. Marle Callill in Marrying Mary, is the attraction the latter part of the week and this is also a musical play, which is advertised as a combination of good story, good music and good lyrics, and judging from its success in the east, is bound to be well received here. Max Figman in The Man On The Box, in which he scored so great a success here last season, will hold down the boards of this theatre for the half week commencing Nov. 3, and will be followed by the musical extravaganza, The Land of Nod. Other early bookings at the Metropolitan are The Prince of Pilsen, Florence Roberts in Zira, The Hellie of Mayfair and Salomy Jane.

The Christine Hill Stock Company, at the Lyceum Theatre, is putting on a huge scream in the guise of a three-act farce comedy, entitled My Mother-In-Law, which the press agent quotes as being so hot a show that special asbestos scenery has to be used for its production. It is full of surprises and ridiculous situations, and is keeping the audience convulsed with laughter from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Christine Hill, herself, returns to the cast in the role of Mrs. Weatherby, the mother-in-law, and Edna Archer Crawford, who so pleased the patrons last week with her work in Sweet Nell of Old Drury, is seen in an entirely different style of character—that of Marie, the French danceme. Frances McLeod, formerly of the Lyceum Stock Company, joins the ranks of the Christine Hill Stock Company, commencing in this play, and the balance of the cast is happily chosen. For an early date Miss Hill announces an elaborate production of the play in which Eugenia Blair scored such

NEW FIVE-CENT THEATRE PLANNED.

John Lackner and Horace Mulvey have secured a lease on the store occupied by the Aurora Piano Company at 53 South Broadway, Aurora, Ill., and will open a five-cent theatre there within the next two weeks. The promoters plan to open the theatre with a moving picture show, and several vaudeville acts.

A special meeting of the Washington (D. C.) Lodge No. 7, was held Oct. 25, at which Wanda Ludlow, of the Candy Kid Company, was initiated as an honorary member of the Memphis (Tenn.) Lodge No. 17. Visiting brothers present were Will R. Fredericks, Lodge No. 5; Palmer Gresham, Lodge No. 8; Italy Raymond, Lodge No. 7; Sister Ludlow, Lodge No. 17, and Brother Leese, Lodge No. 14. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

The Billboard

a success last season, The Woman in the Case, in which she will portray the role of the woman. The Lyceum is keeping up the reputation which the management promised for it upon the advent of the Christine Hill Stock Company, that of a playhouse, where plays of the best type are put on in a thorough manner by capable actors and at popular prices, and accordingly by enjoying a large and permanent patronage.

The Bijou Theatre is vying with the Metropolitan Theatre this week to hold the public favor with a new musical comedy, which moreover is a play of life at a girl's college—Vassar Cupid At Vassar, is the title of this offering, and it is a replica, so far as is able to be produced on the stage, of the actual scenes and events at that well-known institution, including commencement, college class day exercises on the campus, and many other sports and frolics, so dear to the college student. The music with this play is very good, and the scenic effects and costuming very showy and elaborate. The chorus is also quite up to the best standard. The foot-hill returns from the Minnesota-Chicago game were read from the stage at the Saturday matinee. The King and Queen of Gamblers, a Wool's attraction, will be the offering at the Bijou Theatre next week and is said to be the boldest dramatic production of the series. It is a play of western life and will feature Severin Deyn, the clever stock actor, in the leading role. Thomas E. Shea, in repertoire, including The Bells, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and his new play, entitled A Soldier of the Cross, is an early attraction as is also Kellar, the world-famed magician, and Miss Rose Melville in her infinite rendition of Sis Hopkins.

The headliner at the Orpheum Theatre this week is called The Builder of a Chinese House of Mystery. Theodore Okito, who with the two other Okitos, gives an act of Oriental magic, which is quite as splendid in effects and scenery as it is mysterious and occult. Chris Richards, an eccentric comedian from the London music halls, is also an important feature of the bill and keeps the patrons in a laugh with his clever Trans-Atlantic humor. Mlle. Martha, called the Queen of the Trapeze, quite lives up to her title with her graceful and perilous feats, and Miss Allie is an exceptionally entertaining woman juggler. There are several other numbers on the bill of equal merit and the attractions are all well worth seeing. Next week Bert Leslie and company, in a catchy slang playlet will head the bill at this theatre, which will also contain Viola Gillette and George MacFarland, Fred Ray and Company, O'Hanlon San and Company, Bandy and Wilson, Meader and Moulier and Mlle. Saito.

Comedy is king at the Unique Theatre this week, and the house has been crowded at every performance with an enthusiastic audience. The chief number on the bill is an animated sketch, entitled The Musical Bell Boy and the Military Band, which Gray and Graham produce with excellent results and afford the spectators much amusement. No less of interest is the act put on by the four acrobatic Hills which is very enthusiastically received and contains much that is novel and original. Glenroy and Russell are comedy sketch artists who introduce into their stunt, the various dances peculiar to the different nations, and Horton and La Triska present a novelty number, which is of a very humorous nature. Sadie Whiting styles her act the "single girl," and her singing, stories and dancing are proving very popular. The illustrated song by Eugene White, and motion pictures, complete the bill, which is taken as a whole, of especial merit. Next week the Unique has secured a strong attraction in the shape of the St. Onge Brothers, comedy bicyclists, and for the second week in November, the Helm Children, Nellie and Billy, who created such a sensation here last year, have been booked, and will undoubtedly prove just as great a success, this season.

One of the most popular shows that ever appeared at the Dewey Theatre, Williams' Imperials, is drawing crowded houses there this week, with the company on a larger scale than ever and an entirely new vehicle. Larry McCull, termed the man behind the comedy gun, is at the head of the bill, and he is ably assisted by Ben Cook, Harry Pently and the Adams Brothers. Margie Hilton, "the ideal girl," is also an important feature, as are Ida Sturgess and Julia Heitzman, two very capable burlesquers, and the Interest of the bill is added to by May Belmont and George Brennan. Two new farces, entitled A Night in Paris and Off to the Front, have been especially written for this show and both of these sketches are very humorous and elicit much laughter. The chorus contains twenty charming young ladies and sing and dance equally well, and are becomingly costumed. Athos, the strong man and wrestler, is also a part of the entertainment, and announces that before the company leaves, he will attempt his famous feat of throwing a ball, an act which he often performed while with the Mexican circus, and Stanley Karp, the welterweight wrestler, will meet all comers at every performance. Next week the Oriental Co-Operatives will be the attraction at this theatre.

The Scenic Theatre has had a very satisfactory week, so far and the houses have been all that could be desired. Saturday night and Sunday are especially heavy days at this theatre, which is holding its popularity as the coziest meeting picture theatre in Minneapolis.

The Gem Family Theatre reports excellent patronage this week and is offering a bill both entertaining and meritorious, and including Dobson and Le Van, Eugenia Wood, Master Johnny Manning and the Geograph.

RODERIC STE. FLEURE.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

At Twelfth and Main streets, Kansas City, Missouri, last week, in a large show window, there was a young lady dressed in a Red Cross suit, preparing and mixing powders that were warranted a sure cure for the blues; in a corner of the window was a sign as follows: Before and After Powders given away inside. There was the unique advertisement of the play Before and After, which was at the Willis Wood Theatre from October 31 to November 2, inclusive. This advertisement was used by the Willis Wood from Monday, October 28, until Thursday, October 31, inclusive.

November the eighteenth there occurs the first break in advanced vaudeville at the Shubert Theatre, when Mrs. Elsie comes to Kansas City in two of her strongest plays, Leah Kloochee and Tess of the Uetersvilles. Both of these plays are new to Kansas City and, in consequence, are looked forward to with a great deal of interest.

Miss Eva Mudge, who was to have appeared at the Shubert Theatre this week as The Military Maid, cancelled her engagement at the last moment and J. W. Winton was secured. Mr. Winton is a very fine ventriloquist, and proved as good as anything on the bill. This week's bill came direct from the Auditorium Theatre, Chicago.

At the Orpheum Theatre this week is a very unique and novel musical instrument called the Immensaphone. It is in reality a huge graphophone, about one hundred times the size of an ordinary one, and has the following dimensions: 25 feet long, 14 feet wide, and 49 feet in circumference. In the box of the instrument are concealed ten skilled musicians, among whom are Miss Ida Reiter, the famous trombone soloist and, by the way, a Kansas City girl, and Nat K. Cafferty, the baritone singer. At the close of the act they render a very realistic battle scene, giving the night before the battle, the morning and the night after, and the victory. At the victory, the musicians come out of the box and play the Star Spangled Banner.

Low Rockstader's Minstrels at the Grand Theatre filled the house at every performance, for he is the prince of minstrel entertainers. His burlesque this year, A Drill Day at the White House, is very amusing and full of laughs. His quips and references to Judge Wallace and Sunday closing, Judge Pollock, the Union depot, and other local features kept the house in an uproarious mood for twenty minutes.

At the Auditorium Theatre, Miss Benjish Poynter is appearing in Lena Rivers this week and she is certainly making a hit with Kansas City. At the Tuesday matinee a copy of the Five New Theatres to Be Built in the Island City—Frank C. Bostock Ready to Book Several Groups of Animals in Vaudeville—Other News of the Week.

RICHARD CARLE in The Spring Chicken is at Teller's Broadway Theatre this week. Blanche Walsh in The Straight Road at the Montauk. Blanche Bates in The Girl of the Golden West at the Shubert, and The Umpire at the Majestic. The has appeared here at one of our vaudeville houses, and made a big hit. Mr. Bostock has an elephant act about ready. Two small elephants are being trained to do juggling and other new stunts.

The Orpheum here is drawing capacity crowds. All headliner bills are presented.

Five new theatres will be built in Brooklyn shortly. Percy Williams has one started in Greenpoint; a burlesque house is building at Ralph Avenue and Quincy Street; another is projected for Flatbush Avenue and State Street; Leo Teller is expected to build next spring a first-class house in the Bedford section; John Emonson, erstwhile King of the Mardi-Gras, will have a farce and musical comedy house at Broadway and Park Avenue. Then there is the old Montauk, now nearly at rest on its new foundation.

The nobles of Kismet Temple will give their annual theatre party at the Montauk on Monday evening, November 11. On that night Virginia Hartman begins her Brooklyn engagement in Anna Karenina, the stage version of Tolstoi's novel, in which she has been notably successful.

A great deal of interest is felt among the White Rats in the annual benefit which will take place at Carse Payton's Lee Avenue Theatre in Williamsburg, Sunday night, November 10. The entertainment already bids fair to be one of the most notable ever given in New York. Mr. Payton has donated the theatre, the tickets, and, in short, everything but the talent.

The Rentz-Santley Company furnished the entertainment at the Star Theatre last week with a program that was up to the standard. It has maintained for many seasons, and that surpasses it in many particulars in the matter of stage equipment and in the strength of the company, both in number and in quality. Two satires, with showy scenery, rich and varied costumes, and catchy music, were the principal offerings. These are entitled A Day's Frolic at Atlantic City and The Ballads of the Demon. They are a mixture of broad farce, musical numbers and spectacle, in which Fred Hinsell, Frank Ross, Charles Weber and Carl Anderson take care of the comic parts and Anna Glockner, Jennie Edwards and Georgine Brando lead a large chorus in an effective way in ensembles and marches. An elaborate vaudeville bill adds diversity and entertainment between these two pieces. An extra feature was added by the appearance of Sansone and Delta in an acrobatic and bar act that contained many unique features.

For the week of November 4, Manager Keeney, of Keeney's Theatre, announced the engagement of the Gillman Sisters, Eunice and Pearl. These young aspirants for vaudeville fame have sprung into popularity through the fame attached to their celebrated sister, Ma Bell Gillman-Corey.

George Sloane, formerly of the Empire Theatre, also connected with Percy G. Williams' Bergen Beach enterprises, is now business manager of Keeney's Theatre.

Down at Rockaway Beach work has begun on a new amusement park, which is to be ready for the summer of 1908, and which will offer many new attractions for the excursionists who go down to that seaside resort. The new amusement place will be erected on Walwright Place and Ocean Front, at Seaside, and will contain a magnificent roller coaster, with elaborate scenic features, a spectacular novelty on the style of The Trip to the Moon, prancing horses, and other attractions. The company which will build the amusement center is composed of well-known capitalists, who have invested much money in similar enterprises at Coney Island, and who see a bright future for Rockaway Beach as a seaside resort.

The bill at the Grand Opera House last week was It. G. Knowles, Claire Romaine, Le Harlan and Broadway Girls, Louis Simon and Grace Gardner, Willy Zimmerman, W. S. Harvey and Co., Belmont and Moore, Duffin Reddy Troope and Schenck Brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, with a supporting company, presented the laughing sketch, Billy's Tombstones, at Keeney's last week, and it made the usual hit.

The Claremont Roller Rink is doing well.

LIVELY TIME IN AMUSEMENT CIRCLES.

There has been a decided awakening in the amusement circles of Harrisburg, Pa. The Arthur C. Young Amusement Company, just organized, are now the sole lessees of Chestnut Street Hall and Chestnut Street Auditorium, a dual place of amusement. The Chestnut Street Auditorium is now being reconstructed at a cost of $30,000, and will be thoroughly modernized for up-to-date amusement purposes. This innovation to Harrisburg, Pa., will constitute what Madison Square Garden is to New York City.

The building will comprise a number of features, which will include a roller skating rink, a winter zoo, and a winter circus, and special attention will also be given for Carnival purposes and Pure Food Show Exhibitions.

Chestnut Street Hall will be admirably adapted for a popular-price family theatre, for which the city has been clamoring for a long time. Mr. A. C. Young has just closed a lease on the foregoing valuable amusement property for a long term of years, and will consider propositions from responsible parties to do business, either sub-letting, sharing, or on a rental basis. Harrisburg, Pa., comprises a population of 80,000 people, while the trolley cars reach fully 40,000 more.

Miss Vivian Ogden is shown above in the character of Miss Hazey in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, the role in which she is appearing this season, and in which she has made the most pronounced hit of her career. Her Miss Hazey is generally conceded to be a perfect interpretation of that unique and interesting character. Miss Ogden first received recognition for her work as the old maid in Way Down East. She was also with Grace George in Audrey.

book Lena Rivers, was given to every lady in attendance at the performance.

A Fighting Chance is the name of the melodrama seen this week at the Gills Theatre, and it is full of thrilling situations. It is one of the best plays ever seen at this house, and had more than "a fighting chance" to make good with the audience yesterday.

At both the burlesque houses this week are wrestling champions. At the Century Theatre, Miss New York, Jr., is holding the boards and the heavyweight wrestler, Henry Arden, and the heavyweight wrestler, Henry Arden. At the Majestic Theatre The World Busters are drawing good houses and Max Lattberg, the light-weight wrestler, is offering to meet all and all comers.

Only Ruth, the marvelous skating pony, is engaged for the second week at Convention Hall Skating Rink.

WM. W. SHELDY.

Burt E. Melburn, better known as the Corker in Cork, is meeting with tremendous success with his black-face monologue over the Nash Vaudeville Circuit. Mr. Melburn is booked solid until March 14, 1908.

GREATER NEW YORK NEWS

THREE are fewer productions these days because every theatre in town has its grand fall opening and quite a few of the season's products in the play line have settled down for a good long run. Naturally the successes are to remain undisturbed, and so for a number of managers the worry and anxiety concerning the fate of a pet play or musical comedy is ended. The past week the New York premiere of George Ade's Artie took place at the Garrick Theatre, and Miss Pocahontas supplanted Madam Kallie in Sappho and Phoen at the Lyric. Novelties of the near future will be Henry W. Savage's offering of Tom Jones at the Astor, Nov. 11; Henrietta Crossman in The Christian Pilgrim at the Liberty, November 11; The Coming of Mrs. Patrick at the Madison Square, November 6; Mrs. Patrick Campbell at the Lyric, November 11. At Wallack's, on November 4, will be presented The Right of Way. Then the first opera of the season in the Manhattan Opera House is to be performed November 4, whereas November 18 will usher in the season at the Metropolitan.

ARNOLD DALY AND HIS THEATRE OF IDEAS

The Berkeley Theatre, leased and managed by Mr. Arnold Daly, was opened to the public October 16. Mr. Daly calls the little playhouse the Theatre of Ideas. He has original ideas about the management of a theatre and has always shown decided individuality in the selection of plays. To Mr. Daly may be credited the popularity. Bernard Shaw has attained in this country. For many of the plays by the Irish dramatist which were ridiculed at first are now appreciated by the theatregoing public.

The triple bill first presented was The Shirkers, by C. M. S. McLellan; Madam Hanako in a one-act tragedy, The Martyr, and Washington's First Defeat, by Charles Frederick Nordin. Later How He Lied to Her Husband, by Bernard Shaw, was substituted for The Shirkers. These plays are still being presented at the matinee and evening performances. Washington's First Defeat is cast as follows:

George Washington, Lieutenant of the Virginia State Militia ..... Arnold Daly
Lucy Grymes ..... Miss Marian Chapman
Camellia ..... Miss Mattie Ferguson

George Washington, a very good-looking, youthful Lieutenant, calls at the home of Lucy Grymes, Coverly Court, Virginia. In making love to the pretty southern girl, the historical character of Washington is cleverly burlesqued. He admits that he didn't cut down the cherry tree with a hatchet, because he didn't have a hatchet, but that he did it with a sword, to get the cherries, and, of course, to avoid being punished, he told his father he didn't do it.

When Lucy tells him she has always heard that Washington was a young man of solid worth, he replies that sounds like what is always said of some girls—an ugly girl with a beautiful soul.

Lucy is distrustful of his protestations of devotion and to prove his constancy he endeavors to show that he carries a locket containing her picture over his heart, but in his mad search for the right one, the pictures of two other sweethearts are uncovered first. She storms and leaves the room, while he rides off a vanquished lover, by no means the hero of our dreams.

It is a comedy of the very lightest sort, but was well played by Mr. Daly and the Misses Chapman and Ferguson.

Then came the Japanese play by a Japanese company, The Martyr, with subjoined cast:

Princess Ossode ..... Mme. Hanako Washizuka, her brother ..... Mr. Yamane Baron Saito ..... Mr. Yoshikawa Tsune, servant ..... Miss Oharu

Scene—Baron Saito's house, Tokyo, Japan.
Period—Middle of the nineteenth century.

Not understanding a word of the Japanese language, I append the argument printed in the program:

Ossode, a cavalier, loves a young girl named Washizuka. He sends one of his servant maids to invite Ossode and her brother, Washizuka, to visit him. The maid returns and tells him that his invitation is accepted, and that he can prepare to receive them. The cavalier, who loves Ossode, prepares to meet his loved one.

"Washizuka enters alone, and announces that his sister will follow very soon. In a few moments Ossode arrives, and after salutations and partaking of tea, she begins to dance at the request of Saito.

"The cavalier, wishing Washizuka to plead his cause with his sister, takes him into the house for a quiet talk. During this conversation Ossode plays upon the Shamsien, but hearing the men returning, she abruptly ceases playing and conceals herself. The cavalier picks up a fan which Ossode has dropped, and immediately goes in search of her. During this time Ossode has been watching the actions of her lover, and conceiving the idea of playing a joke upon him, dresses the maid with her own garments. Hearing the footsteps of her lover returning, she again conceals herself to watch the effect of her ruse.

"The cavalier enters, observes the maid which he believes to be Ossode, and proceeds to make passionate love to her. He receives no response to his pleadings, becomes enraged, and prepares to kill her. Washizuka, returning at this moment, and believing that his sister's life is in jeopardy, closes with the cavalier, and they engage in a terrible fight. Ossode, having witnessed the scene, rushes forward, but is too late, for her brother has killed her lover, the cavalier.

"Washizuka, seeing his sister, stands aghast, and is so horrified at what has happened that she falls in a fainting fit.

"Ossode, beside herself with grief at the termination of her joke, declares that she has now nothing to live for, and proceeds to commit har-kiri."

Madam Hanako is a very tiny Japanese actress, who was amusing in pantomime and woefully tragic in the prolonged death scene.

Mr. Daly has recently appeared in How He Lied to Her Husband in vaudeville with marked success. The one-act comedy was written especially for him by Bernard Shaw. The person is:

Her Lover ..... Arnold Daly.
Her Husband ..... Holbrook Blinn.
Herself ..... Helen Ware.

The story has been published too often to require repeating. It is a delicious bit of refuses to believe a word of it, and so starts the most amazing medley of mirthful situations in theatrical history. The opening performance took place at Worcester, Mass., on October 24.

Rehearsals for The Coming of Mrs. Patrick, the new Lawrence production at the Madison Square Theatre, are progressing most favorably. The production will be made within the next fortnight.

Laura Nelson Hall, who is to appear as Mrs. Patrick, has the role of a professional nurse. Miss Hall believes in knowing precisely what she is about, and, instead of merely imagining what it must be like to work as a nurse, she has visited several of the large hospitals in the city. "I have been so disgustingly well myself his associates, Margaret Anglin and Lee Shultz, will be sole owners and managers of all the productions made, but upon arrangements with prominent producers in the different cities who will be in charge of local details, Mr. Miller will rehearse each company personally. He is negotiating with a leading American actor and actress who speak French fluently, and with another American couple who are at home with the German language, to play the roles of Stephen Ghent and Ruth Jordan in Paris and Berlin, respectively. The remaining members of the companies will be native French and German, and the Rome and Madrid productions will be made with all Italian and Spanish casts. This will be the first time in history that a reigning New York theatrical success has been adapted especially for presentation in Spain and Italy. The four productions will be made next autumn, Mr. Miller giving them his personal attention after his London engagement in The Great Divide.

MISS POCAHONTAS CAMPS AT THE LYRIC

Miss Pocahontas, after drifting about New York homeless for a couple of weeks for lack of a theatre in which to set up her toupee, took advantage of the failure of Harrison Grey Fiske's production of Sappho and Phoen to creep unexpectedly into the Lyric Theatre, Monday evening, October 28. Though the night was stormy and disagreeable, a large first-night audience was there to vie with the Indians on the stage in yelling. The book is by R. A. Barnet and R. M. Baker, and the musical score by Dan J. Sullivan. The cast:

Capt. John Smith	Walter Jones
Pow-Ha-Tan (Big Chief)	George LeSoir
Mighty Medicine Man	Nell McNeil
Soan-Ge-Ta-lla (Strong Heart)	Harold Crane
John Roffe	George Fox
Freckled-Thunder-Cloud	John Peachey
Man-Who-Soaked-Father	L. N. Lawson
Splinter-In-His-Foot	Jean Millar
Deep-Voice-In-His-Chest	J. E. Scott
Contractor McLaughlin	Daniel Hall
Not-Afraid-Of-A-Lunch	John O'Hanlon
Painting-Pants-Of-The-Panther	C. Vandiver
Jane Roffe's sister	Blanche Deyo
Kee-Kee-Kee-Wan-Ua See	Anna McNabb
Wah-Wah-Tay-Soo (Firefly)	Violet Zell
Shaw-Shaw (Swallow)	Emile Wellington
Ne-Ne-Moo-Sha (Sweetheart)	Gladys Eagan
O-Pee-Chee (Robin)	Lorraine Bernard
Questiona Pilim	Marie Terry
Messenger Boy	Lorraine Bernard
Bride	Violet Zell
Bridegroom	Lester Allen
Pocahontas	Marie Dupuis

The musical travesty was produced by the Boston Cadets, and after continuing in Boston for a time it was taken on tour. With an enlarged chorus and some important additions to the cast, it was given its Broadway premiere. The program disarmingly criticizes with these words: "A bit of foolishness music and movement which makes no dramatic pretensions, has very little reason, and not much rhyme, and whose only 'mission' is to add just a little bit more to the gaiety of nations. A certain event in American history is supposed to be mixed up somewhere in the 'plot.'"

It surely did, and added just a "little bit more," especially in its first act, and the first scene of the second act. But when the Indians arrive, as they do in Long Acra Square, Manhattan, and do a number of vaudeville stunts there in that thoroughfare, they are not nearly so entertaining and interesting.

The scenes depicted are the banks of the James river at Jamestown, a forest near Jamestown, and the street scene above mentioned.

Almost immediately the pretty chorus of Indian maidens caught the fancy of the house, and the first song number, Play the Star Spangled Banner and The Wearing of the Green, well sung by Pocahontas (George LeSoir), with chorus of redskins, started the piece well on the road to success. What story there is has to do with berlesquing the John Smith and Pocahontas Incidents. These two characters are well taken by Walter Jones and Marie Dupuis, respectively. Mr. Jones succeeded in being very funny, especially in his song, If Things Were Only Different, and the quartet numbers, Every Little Bill and What Remarkable Things, by Walter Jones, George LeSoir, Neil McNeil and Anna McNabb, were highly grotesque and comical. These four, by their brilliant and humorous antics, were a tonic for tired brains and eyes weary with following the spot light assiduously.

Marie Dupuis, in the title role, was pretty, and sang with sweetness of tone quality and good expression. Her voice has so much more freshness, and she sings with so much more intelligence than the average musical comedy prima donna that it was very refreshing.

Blanche Deyo won favor by her delicate beauty and marvelously pretty and graceful dancing. She gave her specialty, National Dances, with much cleverness and skill. Though she sang Take Care plaintively and sympathetically.

As Strong Heart, the Indian lover, Harold Crane was effective dramatically, and sang beautifully, notably the splendid song, In a Dory, and Twang of the Trusty Bow. His voice is of brilliant dramatic quality and shows excellent cultivation.

In the last act four of the chorus girls take from the trees four blossoms suspended there, and in this Emile Wellington imitates the squall of an infant and its subsiding grunt as its mouth closes around the nursing bottle with a real touch of nature.

Lastly, the Nichols Sisters do their negro specialty, and Walter Jones his famous Tramp. Miss Pocahontas will fill in the time very nicely at the Lyric until the advertised appearance of Mrs. Patrick Campbell, November 11.

comedy replete with sparkling wit, bubbling humor and ludicrous situations. Back of all it shows the authors grasp of the problems of humanity and his appreciation of the follies of every day life. It is a well painted little picture. The play could hardly be better cast. Mr. Daly, of course, gives an artistic performance of the Lover and Helen Ware has just the right amount of spirit and vitality to give an interesting characterization of the Wife, while Holbrook Blinn is adequate as the Husband.

November 5, The Van Dyke adapted from the French of Eugene Fournier Perquin. A Japanese Lady—Madam Hanako and Company, and after the Opera also a French adaptation will be given at the "Theatre of Ideas" until December 24, when there will be another change of programme.

MORE PLANS OF WALTER N. LAWRENCE

Carlotta Nilsson, who is starring under the management of Walter N. Lawrence, in her wonderful Madison Square success, The Three of Us, will appear during the current week in Wilmington, Del., Atlantic City, N. J., and Providence, R. I. Her engagement for three weeks at the new Adelphi Theatre, Philadelphia, will begin on November 11.

The complete cast of Walter N. Lawrence's annual production of that most riotously laughable of all laughing successes, Mrs. Temple's Telegram, proves conclusively that the company is second to no other comedy organization in America. Carl Anthony will appear as Jack Temple, and France Gaunt will be his wife, who finds the miraculous truth, as Jack tells it, so much stranger than fiction that she has said I have to borrow my sick experience." says Miss Hall. "I saw an operation at the Roosevelt Hospital the other day—and now I know what sort of a woman a good nurse must be to be able to endure such things as that and at the same time never to become so hardened as to lose her sympathy. I didn't faint—and so I feel I acquitted myself admirably for a beginner. The nurse who assisted the doctors was just such a nurse as I would like to be in real life; and such a nurse as I shall try my best to be upon the stage."

Walter N. Lawrence announces his new production of The Man on the Box, that singular play combining comedy and intense dramatic interest, which has already run 225 nights in New York under his management. The Man on the Box is Grace Livingston Furness' dramatization of Harold McGrath's novel of the same name, of which nearly a million copies have been sold. Jameson Lee Flinner will be the star in the production, and Elsie Leslie will play the leading female role. The initial performance occurred in Bridgeport, Conn., on October 24.

TRANSLATING THE GREAT DIVIDE

The Great Divide is being translated into French, German, Italian and Spanish, and Henry Miller has begun arrangements for its presentation in Paris, Berlin, Rome and Madrid, in addition to his own appearance in the play in London next spring. All the adaptations are being made by the actor-manager's elder son, Gilbert H. Miller, who is a brilliant linguist. Mr. Miller has had many offers for rights of The Great Divide in the continental countries, but he has retained them just as he has the London rights, and he, with

THE WARRING VAUDEVILLIANS.

It was to be expected that the vaudeville war would be "continuous." Yet there were many who predicted it could not last; that it would be impossible for the Klaw & Erlanger forces to control a sufficient number of the worthy "acts" to attract paying audiences to the big seating area of the Auditorium; that the established forces of Kohl & Castle held the situation in the shape of contracts in the pigeonholes of their desks, and that, like the gentleman in the song, the contenders would walk right into Chicago, turn around, and walk right out again.

So far, nothing of the kind has happened. Advanced vaudeville is still in evidence, and the only change noted in the other houses is that the bills have been bigger and better.

Neither do the audiences patronizing the theatres engaged in the contest appear to be finely discriminating. It seems to be a question of the price of seats rather than this favorite or that favorite. Even celebrities have counted more in the advertising than in the actual results. The privilege of seeing anything worth seeing in the magnificent Auditorium for 50 and 25 cents has appealed strongly, and curiously the instinctive love of a good bargain are working hand in hand to draw big audiences.

Vaudeville, however, is like a new brand of cigars or a new breakfast food. In this: It is not a question of how many may be induced to sample but rather of the number that after sampling, will buy again and keep on buying. In the long run, much depends on which of the contending forces offers the most in quality, for the money. So far the public appears to be thoroughly satisfied with its own position and is quite impartial in bestowing its patronage.

MOVING PICTURES.

The moving picture is the only act in vaudeville which does not complain about its position on the bill, according to Mr. Charles E. Kohl, owner and manager of the Chicago Opera House, the Majestic, Olympic and Haymarket Theatres. All other acts want the middle of the program and let it be known that they don't like it if they don't get it. The moving pictures occupy the two most unpopular places on the program at Mr. Kohl's vaudeville theatres. They open and close the entertainment.

At the four Kohl theatres, moving pictures are displayed three times a day—1 p. m., 6 p. m., and 10:15 p. m. About 1,500 linear feet of film is used during the fifteen minutes the pictures are shown, and this performance is repeated at each theatre three times a day. It will be seen that about a mile of film is necessary for each theatre a day or about four miles of moving pictures a day for the four Kohl houses. About 1,500 miles of film is used annually to furnish pictures for these theatres. The films used in a year, if attached end to end, would reach from Chicago to Denver.

Chicago has recently become the center of the moving picture business in the United States, more film being prepared and sent out from this city than any other two cities in the land. The new French and English pictures are shipped direct to Chicago and are seen here by vaudeville audiences before being exhibited in New York.

The idea of moving pictures is thirty years old, although it was not perfected and generally used until the iconograph was invented fifteen years ago. The scheme was first conceived by an Englishman, who used one hundred cameras set side by side to photograph the finish of a horse race. Glass plates were developed and displayed in rapid succession in front of a powerful light, but the result was not interesting because of the necessary delay in changing the plates.

Then a Frenchman invented a camera which automatically exposed fifty plates a minute. This was an improvement but the moving picture we know to-day was not possible till the invention of the celluloid film, which is now used exclusively in taking and projecting modern moving pictures. The presentation of moving pictures was at first such a novelty in itself that any scene or subject could be used with success, but in time there was great competition among the operators in the selection of subjects. Mr. Kohl says that public taste in the matter of moving pictures changes as in other things. First, were the railroad views taken from the rear of a train, showing mountain scenery and tunnels. Then came a series of crime pictures, the result of competition and obtained only at great expense because each picture had to be specially posed. There was the great train robbery picture, which was the greatest hit among the crime view series, and ran in the Chicago vaudeville theatres for many weeks. This was followed by hold up pictures, safe blowing scenes, thrilling escapes from penitentiaries, scenes from hangings, and all sorts of representations of violence and explosion. They were all "made" or specially posed pictures and actors were engaged to act the principal characters. Several months ago Manager Kohl barred this class of pictures from his theatres because of their demoralizing effects on the younger minds.

An ordinance has been introduced in the Chicago city council and will probably be passed, which is of keen interest to theatres, pony arcades, motion-picture parlors, and all places where there are pictures displaying entertainments,

The ordinance provides that before any picture is displayed it must be submitted to the police department and approved. Hitherto, when a picture was suppressed in one place it could be removed to another part of the city and continued in use.

People are talking about moving pictures and endorsing them and suggesting far-reaching possibilities. The following excerpt from the editorial columns of the Evening Post here, is significant: "The prediction of those who speculate on the moving picture concern themselves with the possibilities of the future. How will the real theatre fare when to a perfected

That man Ade certainly keeps his comedy factory running day and night, working double shifts.

A GREAT PLAY AT THE GARRICK.

The Secret Orchard is a play written by Channing Pollock in adaptation from a novel of the same name by Agnes and Egerton Castle. It is one of those gripping and vital plays that takes hold of some of the stern and somber problems of life that we are all familiar with by thought and occasional hearsay, but which we very seldom drag out into the open and talk about freely and candidly. The Secret Orchard is not exactly a problem play, though it does probe around in the very shuddering, silvery vials of life.

Plainly stated, the foundation of this rather remarkable play is that a married man with rather deep adoration for his wife is unfaithful to her. That does not sound especially pitiful with novelty, but its minuteness of verity, its loftiness of purpose and merciless unmasking of secrets and broken hearts, make it the most disastrous cage of gloom possible to conceive. At the same time it is such a terrible story that is unfolded, with such terrible incidents and terrible situations, that it fascinates like a melodrama, while being true to life. That's a hard combination but Channing Pollock seems to have struck it in this play. The outraged wife is a magnificent figure, who, in the splendor of her noblest moments of love, has her life crushed about her innocent head, her faith brutally killed, her hope and charity blighted and forevermore her soul made the sounding board of wailing tears and crushing happiness. Miss Adelaide Prince plays this engaging role with a womanly sympathy which makes it touching. The wife is the beautiful martyr in reality, but the whimpering, wounded and sorely beset little girl, who has been victimized and deceived, is made the central figure of suffering. This part is well taken by Josephine Victor. Vincent Serrano, as the emotional young duke, who fell into the snare and blasted his own life, his wife's and that of the innocent girl victim, has never appeared to more thrilling advantage in picturesque emotional acting. The scenery is simple, tasteful, and correct.

STUDEBAKER THEATRE.

The very American play, A Man From Home, is having a good run, with its popularity on the increase. Will T. Hodge, who has the principal role, is making lots of friends. He gets a curtain call almost every night. So far, he has done pretty well with his speeches, it being his practice to tell each audience a new story, but the genial comedian finds his fund of fresh ones growing smaller and announces that he will have to find some new way of responding.

AT THE GRAND THEATRE.

Mr. Robert Mantell, who is to-day rated by many critics as America's greatest actor, is playing in Shakespearean at the Grand. He is in splendid form and is doing the best work I have yet seen from him. To superb natural talent and rare innate skill, he adds all the results to be had from patient, arduous toil of cultivation. He is crowding the theatre, and he deserves the patronage.

It is a three weeks' engagement and opened with a revival of Macbeth. The entire engagement will be devoted to the plays of Shakespeare, save for a single night performance of Lord Lytton's Richelieu, which the management explains is given by request. The order of plays this week is as follows: Sunday and Tuesday nights, Macbeth; Monday night, King Lear; Wednesday afternoon, Hamlet; Wednesday night, The Merchant of Venice; Thursday and Friday nights and Saturday afternoon, Julius Caesar, with Mr. Mantell again as Brutus. H. Cooper Cliffe for the first time here as Cassius, and Francis McGinn as Antony, and Saturday night, the play will be Othello, with Mr. Mantell as Iago. His revival of King John will be effected on Sunday night, Nov. 17, and will be acted seven times in that week, the last of the engagement. This latter interesting project shows Mr. Mantell following the custom of Mr. Mansfield and electing to make the first revelation of his important ventures in Chicago. King John, which has received no authoritative revival in this country since the days of Edwin Booth, will be produced by Mr. Mantell in a spirit of dignity and on a scale of splendor. Aside from the portrayal of the English monarch by Mr. Mantell, the action of other members of an unusually qualified supporting cast is anticipated with interest. The work of Miss Irene Prahar, who was for several seasons associated with Mr. Mansfield, is especially looked forward to.

The music composed for Mr. Boerbohm Tree's London revival of King John, by Raymond Rose, will be used in the impending revival. The Tree arrangement of the settings will be followed in a measure, but the tragedy will be acted from a new prompt book, prepared by Louis Calvert, who staged the Tree revival.

GRAND OPERA AT THE INTERNATIONAL.

The Italian Opera Company of New York opened a season of opera at the International on the night of Nov. 4. This season is to last fifteen weeks. Following is the list of operas presented the opening week: Monday, Rigoletto; Tuesday, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci; Wednesday, Il Trovatore; Thursday, Carmen; Friday, Cavalleria and Pagliacci; Saturday matinee, Trovatore; Saturday evening, Rigoletto. Otello may be sung in the second week, together with one of the Wagner operas, either Lohengrin or Tannhäuser.

They have a record of successes in all of the prominent foreign cities, including principal theatres in France, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Denmark, Austria, England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. picture device has been added a perfected talking machine, the two working in such union that every word of the play will be reproduced perfectly as every action of the players? Then there will be no indisposition of the star to disappoint and no fretfulness of the leading lady to annoy the public. After one performance of a drama before the combined talking and picture machine a score of cities may enjoy the play at the same time. The educational possibilities of such a development are apparent. Cities far removed from the present caravan route of the leading players may share in the enjoyment of their art. The drama of the metropolis will cease to exist and Kokomo and Paducah will have the "best the stage has to offer." All this is within the bounds of possibility. The moving picture show is more than a passing public fancy."

WILLIAM COLLIER AT THE ILLINOIS.

One laugh for every minute is passed with William Collier this week at the Illinois. Caught in the Rain is the piece that is catching and holding the people. William Collier has the role of a young easterner who is in the west on business concerning mining property. He is brave and manly with men but is afraid of women. He meets one young girl, however, just when she is terrified by an approaching thunder storm, and his chirrally compels him to assist and protect her.

ANOTHER ADE PLAY.

The Land of Dollars, George Ade's new comedy, had its premiere performance at Michigan City Oct. 26 and was well received. Ezra Kendall, who takes the leading role, is a millionaire who, to celebrate his return of health and wealth, invites a dozen inhabitants of a little village to accompany him to Atlantic City. The plot is full of deep, human interest. At present, and during weeks of the near future, the production will tour through Indiana.

TRUTH--A GOOD INVESTMENT.

Firm in truth, from its earliest issue—The Billboard has sought to avoid the alluring pitfalls that lead only to the impairment of its investiture—truth. That it might stand true to its purpose—that it might feel no restraint in espousing truthfully the cause of the profession to which it is devoted, it has been held free from entangling alliances—however profitable.

No dependence—financial or commercial—troubles the dreams of its editors, or stalks to coerce its financial sponsors.

A prominent member of the company at the Garrick Theatre in Flanders Widow, which is a charming comedy of country life, is Mr. H. Nye Chard, who is playing the part of Richard Marshall. Mr. Chard has traveled a great deal and he is a great favorite over on this side. Miss Mirian Clements is playing the part of Flanders Widow, and she plays it with a gracious personality which has won her praise on all sides.

Mr. Charles Frohman intends to present Miss Pauline Chase in Milquette, by Robert de Flers and G. de Calvaret, at the Duke of York's Theatre. Mr. Cosmo Gordon-Lennox has adapted the play for the English stage. No date has yet been fixed for the production.

The Mollusc, a comedy in three acts, by Herbert Henry Davies, will be produced at the Criterion Theatre on Tuesday evening, Oct. 15, at 9 o'clock. The following is the cast:

Tom Kemp.....Sir Charles Wyndham
Mr. Baxter.....Mr. Sam Sothern
Miss Roberts.....Miss Elsie Inescort
Mrs. Baxter.....Miss Mary Moore
Acts 1, 2, and 3: A sitting-room in the Baxters' House.

The Mollusc will be preceded at 8:30 by Comerling A Countess, of which the following is the cast:

Isabella.....Miss Marguerite Leslie
Lorn Melford.....Mr. Reginald Walter
Mary.....Miss Frances Vine
Lord Cheevening.....Mr. George Giddens

Mr. George Alexander's present provincial tour (with Mr. A. W. Pinero's comedy, His House in Order) will be concluded on Saturday, Oct. 19, at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh. On his return to London the final preparations will be made for the production of The Thief, an adaptation by Mr. Cosmo Gordon-Lennox of Mr. Henry Bernstein's play, Le Voleur. In addition to Mr. Alexander, Miss Irene Vanbrugh and Miss Lilian Braithwaite will be in the cast. The date of the first performance is fixed for Nov. 12, a dress rehearsal taking place on the previous day.

Miss Kitty Mason, who has returned from her honeymoon, will reappear at the Gailey Theatre in The Girl of Gotenberg to-morrow evening.

The following is the cast of Op O' Me Thumb, which will be presented at the Hicks Theatre on Monday, Oct. 14, at 8:15:

Madame Didler.....Miss Maud Love
Clem (Mrs.) Galloway.....Miss Lydia Rachel Rose Jordan.....Miss Hazel Thompson
Celeste.....Miss Frances Wetherall
Amanda Affleck.....Miss Hilda Trevethan
Horace Greensmith.....Mr. Louis Goodridge
Scene: Madame Didler's Laundry, Soho.
Time: Saturday night before an August Bank Holiday.

Brewster's Millions at 8:45.

When Brewster's Millions is transferred on Monday next from the Duke of York's to the Hicks Theatre it will be preceded by Op O' Me Thumb with Miss Hilda Trevethan in the part which she originally played.

MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH.

At the Adelphi Theatre, one thousand five hundred London Mrs. Wiggles were invited to a matinee performance of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, which Mrs. Madge Carr Cook is giving to poor working women of London.

The applications for seats which have been received aggregate ten times the accommodation of the theatre. In round figures the written requests for places at the performance number 15,000 and hundreds of the applicants plead pathetically that they have never been in a theatre of any sort during their lives and those chosen are all of the hardest working classes.

NAT GOETZ.

Roman Ring Expert.

They have been selected by local clergymen in connection with a committee of clergymen assisting Mrs. Cook in organizing the matinee. Their fares to the theatre will be paid by local helpers, who will afterwards send in their bills of expenses to Mrs. Cook's committee.

Mr. Cyril Mandie is considering the production at a series of playhouse matinees of the very successful American play, Buster Brown, founded on the adventures of that young villain as set forth in the New York Herald, but his one difficulty is to find the right boy to play Buster.

The Sugar Bowl, at the Queen's Theatre, Shaftesbury Avenue, was played last week for the first time. Although this beautiful theatre has only been opened just over a week, the business increases wonderfully every night. A new little play, entitled The Convict on the Hearth, by Mr. Frederick Fenn, the author of Amasis, will shortly precede The Sugar Bowl, which at the end of its run at the Queen's, will go on tour, and then Miss Jeffreys will come to America with it, but before that she will produce a new comedy at a neighboring theatre. This piece has already enjoyed a big success in America, and contains a fine Lady Gay Spanker part for Miss Jeffreys. She describes it as a "good after-dinner comedy," and it is full of high spirits. Miss Ellis Jeffreys, Mr. Fred Kerr and the full London company in The Sugar Bowl have been booked to appear at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, for a flying matinee next Thursday week.

Next Saturday, at the Apollo Theatre, Mr. Tom B. Davis presents his new author, Mr. Roy Horniman, in The Education of Elizabeth, and a very fine cast has been engaged. The scenes of the new play are laid at chambers in London and in Paris—where Elizabeth gets her training. As I have said, Elizabeth is an actress engaged to a young fellow in a good social sphere. She is at last accepted by the family on condition that she is turned up to to comic pitch in Paris.

She goes abroad, is made a "lady" of, and returns—apparently a failure. They have "educated" her within an inch of her life, but all the charm of her real character—like the "fizz" of a Parisian farce—has escaped in the adaptation.

In the end, of course, she "recaptures" her real self, and everything is happily arranged. Mr. Roy Horniman should repeat Mr. Anthony P. Wharton's successes at the Kingsway, for like Mr. Wharton, he has already given "hostages to fortune." He has given us a series of brilliant novels. His Bellamy the Magnificent comes on after The Mollusc at the Criterion.

At the Fulham Theatre this week, Mr. Robert Arthur has arranged for the presentation of Mrs. Henry de La Pasture's comedy, Peter's Mother, with Miss Lillias Earle and Mr. Percy Hutchinson as Peter's Mother and Peter.

The revised version of The Christian, at the Lyceum Theatre, has induced Mr. Henry Hamilton to revise his version of Ouida's Moths. The first of a series of performances will be presented at the King's Theatre Hammersmith this week, with Miss Kate Rorke as Fuschia Leach.

At the Crystal Palace Theatre, on Monday next, Mr. Wentworth Croke will present The Prodigal Son. No expense has been spared in securing a first-class London company.

In accordance with the policy of changing their program from time to time, the Folies opened Monday, Oct. 21, reviving the burlesque of a music hall. A week or two later, there will be a further alteration in their program. The Folies are paying a special flying visit to Cambridge to-day and another to Oxford on Thursday next.

VARIETY NEWS.

Miss Marie Dressler, the famous American comedienne, has arrived in London for a long stay. She has taken, for a period of twelve years, a house in a pleasant and convenient quarter of the town, where she will give English audiences an opportunity of exercising their judgment upon those talents which have brought her fame and fortune in her adopted country.

M. M. Bettle and Lefevre, who appeared recently at the Palace Theatre with a novel exhibition of diabolio in the sketch, Modes and Melodies, offer to stake any sum against a like sum named by anyone else, to make a match with the Diabolio Cambio, as used by them against any other player or players of Diabolio. Miss Margaret will this evening make her appearance with two more new songs at the piano, specially written for the occasion. Among other excellent turns may be mentioned the Strolling Players in their pastoral sketch, Doraswami the Indian Paganini, Alfred Lester in A Restaurant Episode, Carma in her international dances, and Malcolm Scott.

An interesting engagement announced for the West End Variety stage is that of Mlle. Estrella Belinfante, a contralto, who is said to be very fine. Mlle. Belinfante has had a romantic career, and has sung the chief contralto music of the grand opera repertoire.

Several new turns of considerable interest will be added to the Empire Theatre program this week. The Campbell and Johnson Trio, three of America's most brilliant comedy cyclists, make their first appearance. The Cat-aerobats Troupe, an amusing little company of acrobats and tumblers, are also added to the bill, while Martin and Lona, a pair of comic jugglers, will present a clever bit of legerdemain. Tom-Titt and Titt-Titt, whose imitations of birds and animals have been so successful during the past week, are also on the program.

Mlle. Gaby Deslys, the pretty actress who will be remembered quite recently in the New Aladdin, at the Gailey, is the latest recruit to the variety stage. She will make her first appearance at the Alhambra this week when, assisted by Mr. Georges Choff, she will give an entertainment entitled, La Journee d'une Parisienne. Mlle. Deslys' dresses are said to be even more beautiful than her fair self, and are the latest Parisian creations. Les Cloches de Corneville is drawing a crowded house nightly, and much praise is due to Signorina Bordoni as the Spirit of the Bells.

Mlle. Adeline Genée danced her way back to the Empire Theatre on Monday night, after her brief rest and again led the Bell of the Ball to victory. The success of this beautiful production is not only steadily maintained, but is increasing nightly.

Miss Sybil Arnould goes to the Tivoli on the 26th, in new songs written by her brother Claude the author of The Gipsy Girl. She will appear in boy's clothes and have a "set." The Avalanche, at the Hippodrome, is a roaring success. Miss Fatali Mirth is making a great hit at the Hippodrome this week, and her performances are simply marvelous, so much so that a statement has been made by certain persons that she employs a double in her act. The attention of the London Hippodrome has been called to this statement and a reward of £1,000 has been offered by the directors of Moss Empires (t.d.) to anyone who can prove that Mirth is in any way assisted by such a double during the course of her performance.

Zhysco, at the Pavilion, who claims to have beaten practically all the men that Hackenschmidt has met, is a formidable character. He is only 25 years old, but he has a chest 55 inches round, and the longest arms—so it is said—of any man in the world. He has a summary way of dealing with his opponents, and should stand a good chance in the final rounds of the great tournament which it is hoped shortly to arrange.

Yukino Tan, the famous Jiu-jitsu wrestler, has been engaged to appear at the Metropole this week. Mr. Henri Gros has a capital bill. It includes George Robey, Will Evans, Sam Mayo, Bert Shepard, Jack Whiteford, Redford and Valentine, Bertha Smart, Mark Melford & Co., in Only A Wedding, and several others.

At the Canterbury, M. D. Wadlow & Company are still presenting Captain Breyfus, and Fred Maitland will give an amusing political study of the question Shall Women Vote?

This week, Mr. Harry Randall, The Polunks and Sanford and Lyons, augment the Oxford program, already one of the strongest in London. Jacob Koch and Oscar Suder will wrestle the best two falls out of three (Greek-Roman) on Thursday afternoon at the Oxford.

One of the most attractive personalities on the boards of the variety theatre at the present time is a young lady, who was a niece of that eminent scientist, the late Professor Huxley. Miss Gladys Huxley is regarded as one of the prettiest ladies on the stage at the present time. She is a very dainty little lady and her songs, like her dresses, are of the daintiest character. She was captured by one of the managers at a charity concert, at which she was singing, only recently, and the inducement to go on the stage was so great that she felt bound to accept. Miss Huxley is a fine all-round sportswoman, a clever motrist, and in all probability she will be seen this year in one of the West End pantomimes.

A UNIQUE TRIBUTE.

One of the prettiest incidents ever witnessed in a theatre happened night of Oct. 23 at the Houston (Texas) Theatre, when the gallery called time and again for Miss Marble of the Dream City Company to sing the song Geography, which gave her fame in Wonderland. Miss Marble promised to sing the song the following night, at which time when she had finished her regular number, I Don't Believe I'll Ever Be A Lady, in response to a vociferous gallery demand, she came out and sang the song until her voice almost cracked; and when she failed to conjure up any further rhymes, into which she could interject the names Houston and Texas, she fled, only to be recalled to receive a magnificent bouquet of flowers subscribed "To Miss Marble from the gallery gods."

It is doubtful if any such tribute has ever been bestowed on an actress before. All of those youngsters put their pennies and nickels and dimes together and they raised four dollars with which to purchase the floral gift. Sarah Bernhardt sold once that a tribute from the gallery gave her untold joy. Henry Irving and Ellen Terry said the same, but no actor ever received a tangible tribute even in the shape of flowers or floral device from the gamins who sit up above.

STILL PACKING 'EM IN.

The Edsall-Winthrop Stock Company, which is now on its eighth annual tour of Klaw & Erlanger's circuit of houses in the south, reports excellent business invariably. As in previous seasons, Miss Pearl Winthrop and Mrs. B. Edsall are being featured jointly. House managers who have played the attraction say that Mr. Edsall has one of the best aggregations this season that he has ever had. A considerable lot of special scenery is carried, and a fine line of plays are being presented. Manager Edsall and Miss Winthrop were recently initiated into the growing order of T. M. A.'s. Roster of the company is as follows: Edsall, B. Edsall, manager; Alme Todd, Jr., business manager; William Sampson, musical director; Fred Wilson, properties; Sammy Freis, Ben H. Howe, Robt. Robinson, Watkyns Douglas, Frank Forbes, Harry Foulke, Vic Granberry, George Robbins, Pearl Winthrop, Marion West, Catherine Hadley, Ada M. Darette, and Grace Forbes.

TO APPEAR IN VAUDEVILLE.

Mme. Suzanne Adams, formerly a member of the Grand Metropolitan Opera Company, who has spent the last few years abroad, has been engaged by Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger to make her debut in their advanced vaudeville theatres. She will return to the United States early in November and her first appearance will be in the Auditorium Theatre, Chicago, according to present announcements. Nov. 18 is the day set for her initial performance.

NEW PLAY LAUNCHED.

Ezra Kendall launched his new play, The Land of Dollars, written for him by George Ade at the Grand Opera House, Michigan City, Ind., Sunday, Oct. 27. Mr. Ade and the owners of the production were present to witness the first performance.

WOODS & RALTON.

Two musical artists who stand foremost in their line to-day, have presented their new musical act, The Musical Marines, with the Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels, and it has proven the feature of the show. The Musical Marines embrace nine artists, principally Woods and Ralton, Doc Quigley, Billy Walters and Ned Brill. This act will be put into vogue next season. They have many new novelty instruments especially invented for this act, carrying a complete set of scenery, electrical effects and beautiful costumes. The black-face comedy is handled by Doc Quigley.

NEW, SAVOY TO OPEN NOV. 11.

The new building is located a few doors north of the Lyceum Theatre on Seventh avenue, Beaver Falls, Pa. The mammoth front is decorated in relief stucco. It is an exact copy of the marble arch at the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, which cost $10,000, and is finished in white enamel, trimmed in gold and aluminum and contains 315 electric lights. The base of the arch is Italian marble and the floor is mosaic. The auditorium of the theatre is 50x60 feet, with a seating capacity of 500, and the building is provided with all the latest conveniences and the scenic equipment is the very best. Sam Hauner will be manager and will see that the public gets the best in the way of amusement that is going.

NEW THEATRE FOR LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY.

F. J. Steeves, of Hillsboro, N. B., and J. Jefferson Broit, of Milwaukee, Wis., formerly proprietor of the Crystal Theatre at Muskegon, Mich., and late manager of the Dominion Film Exchange of Toronto, Ont., have leased from Judge Geo. B. Kincaid, of Lexington, Ky., for a term of five years, the large, three-story brick building at 10 and 12 North Upper street, and are converting it into a theatre for vanderbilt, playing three shows daily. The house will be conducted on the highest plane, and the best attractions are being booked.

COMBINED.

The Frick Lyceum of Hotel Bank, N. J., one of the largest amusement auditoriums in Eastern New Jersey, is so arranged that when there is no theatrical performance, the inclining floor can be removed and the theatre turned into a roller skating rink, or for any kind of indoor athletic sport. Fred Frick, the proprietor and manager, is a great sport promoter, and on various occasions has hung up handsome silver and gold prizes to be contested for, such as ice speed skating, bicycle races and bowling matches. There is skating in the Lyceum during the absence of shows, and a full orchestra is in attendance nightly.

HIS ACT REWARDED.

A. L. Dilevart, proprietor of the Hotel Main, Monongahela, Pa., in conjunction with a number of other friends, presented Nat Goetz, Itoman ring expert, with a beautiful set of stand and chair covers made of dark red silk velvet with his monogram on each article in silver spangles, while he was appearing in that city. He made a great hit there and the people hope to see him again in the near future.

PLANNING FOR NEW THEATRE.

Plans are now being made for the building of new $50,000 opera house at Hammond, Ind. Clifford Hendricks, an eastern theatrical promoter, is looking the project and he will personally manage the house. The building will be 60 by 120 feet and will be ready for operating about February 1, 1908.

TWO WALLS OF JERICHO COMPANIES.

Laura Hunt and Henry Stanford are doing so well in a financial as well as artistic way with The Walls of Jericho, that Ernest Shipman by arrangement with James K. Hackett, will launch a second company in early December.

The Muchliners recently closed twenty weeks on Barbour's Circuit, playing Iowa, Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana, and have signed to appear on the Gus Sun Circuit. They present a refined comedy sketch that appeals to the most fastidious

SHORTHIDGE'S LETTER.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 28, 1907.

Editor The Billboard:
The Buster Brown Amusement Company, of New York City, was practically forced by the great demand for dates to open another Buster Brown Company, which opened at Orange, N. J., to big business, on Saturday, Oct. 12, with the following people: R. M. Garfield, manager; Harry S. Hopping, agent; Geo. Gorman, stage manager; Major Barth, carpenter; Wm. Golding, electrician; Frank Remick, musical director; Master Reed, Edwin Lamar, John Gorman, Geo. Gorman, Stephen Stott, Harold Castle, Jos. Hudson, Ray Myers, Madge Towle, Alletta Bridgeford, Margaret Miles, Alma Sterling, Maud Tiffany, the Sisters Little, Elsie Walton, Ruth Gordon, Rosamond Wells, Elsie Wood, Mae Dickinson, Mae Ward, Clemence Moche, Helen Remick, Teresa Fletcher, Patricia Barrington, Millie Raymond, Margie Crossen and Pauline Proctor. This company is booked up until June 15, 1908, and will tour to the coast and return.

F. C. Schmelz, manager of the Star Bloomer Girls, writes that he has arranged to carry forty people this fall and winter, playing half in the afternoon, and presenting Uncle Tom's Cabin at night. P. E. Neer, the general agent, has just returned from a tour of Cuba, where he arranged for the Girls to play several games of ball, and for the usual night performances of dear old Uncle Tom. Mr. Neer will have a crew of four men in advance. The company will jump direct from Indianapolis to New Orleans, where they will play one game, then a few one-nighters into Key West, from where they will sail for Cuba, for a stay of seven weeks. The company will appear at night under a three-pole tent, with a 30x40 foot stage. Twenty-five lengths of eight-tier blues will be carried, besides four hundred folding chairs. All indications point to a very prosperous season. The writer wishes Mr. Schmelz a world of success in his new venture. Harry McGowen will furnish an eighteen-piece band with the company.

Manager Frank Hurst will open his theatre at Waterloo, Ia., on November 30, with Mrs. Fliske. Mr. Hurst has won the people of Waterloo to him from the start, and why shouldn't he? for he is a prince of good fellows, and no wiser manager can be found among the one-night stands. The following is a clipping from a recent issue of a Waterloo paper:

"A meeting of the Committee of Twenty-five, appointed by the Board of Trade to arrange for the opening event of the Waterloo theatre on the east side of the river, was held last night, and preliminary arrangements were made for the opening play by Mrs. Fliske on November 30. The sale of seats will open on Monday, October 21, at a place to be designated later. It is the intention of Manager Hurst to have his office, where tickets may be bought and reserved, in the opera house, but the office will not be ready for use by the time the seat sale will commence. The place where tickets may be bought and reserved will be noted in the press as soon as it has been decided upon."

"The committee last night decided to place a graduated scale of prices on the seats in the theatre for the opening event, and to sell the boxes at public auction. This sale will take place on Monday, October 21, the opening day of the seat sale. The following prices will rule for the other seats in the house: Parquet, $10; parquet circle, $7.50; first two rows in balcony, $10; next three rows, $7.50; next seven rows, $5; gallery, $2. Seats will be reserved in the usual manner, and not by lot, as is sometimes done. Manager Hurst, who has had large experience in the management of theatres, is decidedly in favor of the regular reservation. He has observed that this manner gives better satisfaction than drawing by lot."

"The opening night at the theatre is a benefit, not to Manager Hurst, but to the Board of Trade, through whose efforts in soliciting public contributions the building of the opera house was made possible. The Board of Trade solicits the patronage of the general public at this opening event. Mrs. Fliske is one of the best actresses in the country and plays at only one city in Iowa this season, and that is Waterloo. A special train will bring her and her company for the opening bill."

"When the committee from the Board of Trade visited the business men and solicited contributions for the erection of the theatre, large numbers of people expressed a desire to help, but they did not feel able to make a contribution of $100, $75, or even $50. Now everybody is given an opportunity to add to the project to the extent of their ability. These people are urged to be liberal in their purchase of tickets, to the end that the opening even may not only be an artistic success, but a success from the viewpoint of the box-office. This much the members of the Board of Trade feel that they have reason to expect."

Jules Minry made a flying trip from New York City to Utica, N. Y., to visit his Paul Gilmore Company in The Wheel of Love. Harry Hardy is acting manager for the second season with the above company. Bye, bye, Hardy was the first man I had the pleasure of getting to join the Iowa State Travelling Men's Association. Last summer a stool fell over and mashed one of his toes, for which they sent him $50. In the past two months I have sent out over two score of application blanks.

H. C. Watrous, the genial manager of the Loomis Opera House, at Waverly, N. Y., was married in August last, and now there is one more on the free list.

In the issue of Oct. 20 I note that Harry Nye advises the editor of this journal to cut me out—fine. Sorry my writings do not please the Honorable Mr. Nye. He also says I recently gave a list of the fifty best agents in the columns of The Billboard. Would advise Mr. Nye to read that list over and see if it did not say "fifty good agents." Mr. Nye has tried to guide my career for me the past season, and naughty boy that I am, I can't seem to appreciate his well-intended advice. First, he was aggravated because I "hid" a piece of cow pasture which he chose to call a park. This field is located in Muncie, Ind., and I am still preserving a lovely letter Mr. Nye wrote me after I threw it up; or, shall we say, after I woke up. Second, he advised me how I got my position, the kind of show I ought to be ahead of, and what I ought to write, and who to. Now, he has commenced to advise my friends, if I may count The Billboard as such, what to do to me. Now, I am perfectly willing to give up my Billboard space to Mr. Nye, and will promise to read his writings regularly, as he has shown he has done mine, or else how would he know what I write? Until I hear one single person say that Harry Nye is even a half good agent I will not find it advantageous to follow his free advice. If Mr. Nye will pardon a poor agent for presuming to give him, a good agent(?), a little advice, I would like to simply say that I believe it advisable for him to keep busy with his tack hammer and leave other people's business alone, or else that $50 and pay your own may cease to arrive regularly. Funny how I can guess a salary to dollar, the same as I can write a list of good agents.

Mrs. Shortridge joined me at Harrisburg, Pa., and will visit until after Christmas.

Yours very truly,

F. M. SHORTHIDGE.

Beck, Daly and Gunby, managers of Music Hall, So. Norwalk, Conn., have completely remodeled and refurbished the house, and it is now on a first-class footing. The managers deserve great credit for the improvements they have made, also for the highly refined and first-class vaudeville shows they are putting on. Mr. Beck is manager of the Electrograph Company and each night gives two new reels of films which alone are well worth the price of admission.

Amusement Houses Report Exceptional Business Rinks Flourishing and Vaudeville Shows Prospering.

ALTHOUGH there has been a financial flurry in New York and some little trouble in the money circles of this city, the theatres have not suffered any. Business is in a healthy shape here, and there seems to be no prospect of a pause as some pessimists are trying to predict. As one well-known financier has aptly stated it, "This is the time for the rich men to worry and the poor man need not have any uneasiness." All our factories are working full time and the owners report that they have lots of orders ahead. This means prosperity for both the working and middle classes, and that will help the theatrical situation here greatly. In the meantime our managers are perfectly satisfied with the amount of business they are doing.

New Adelphi Theatre.—Virginia Harned, in Anna Karenina, was the attraction week of Oct. 28, and she succeeded in interesting the large crowds that attend this new and cosy playhouse. For week of Nov. 4, Ermete Novelli, the famous Italian actor, will play a repertoire for the week. Business should be very large as he was announced to play here last season but was cancelled, and many people have been anxious to see him ever since. The Adelphi Theatre is a small house and just suited for such high-grade dramatic performances.

Lyric Theatre.—Charming Adele Ritchie, who at one time was a resident of this city, opened at this house on Oct. 28, with the new musical show, Fascinating Flora, and scored heavily. All of the papers were liberal in their praise, and the engagement will be a big success. It will continue week of November 4. The comedy is light, full of laughs with enough song in it to make it a very acceptable evening's entertainment. The managers have adopted as their motto, "We must see it again," and it looks as if they had struck the right expression for repeaters are in evidence every night. They like the show and will make many visits to it during its run here. Ada Lewis is in the cast, and she is quite a favorite here.

Walnut Street Theatre.—Mary's Lamb, supposed to be an adaptation from the French, by Richard Carle, was produced here for the first time on Oct. 28, with Harry Conon as the star. The play proved to be Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, transformed into a musical comedy. That play made a hit here years ago and as is generally known was written by Sir Francis Burnand, at one time editor of London Punch. Stuart Robson presented the play in America and it made a hit. It may have been that Mr. Burnand took the idea of his play from a French farce, but Mr. Carle in rewriting the play or turning it into a musical offering, most assuredly got the most of his material from the play spoken of, as in many cases the lines are identical. Mr. Conon had a part that suited him and the rest of the company were effective although the play was rather crudely presented during the opening performances. When it is toned down and the weak spots eliminated, it will be an effective vehicle for Mr. Conon to star in. Richard Carle directed the rehearsals and at a special matinee for professionals, directed the orchestra. Week of November 4, Alfred E. Aaron's long promised new musical show, Yama, comes to this house and the chances are that it will run for a long season. Although Al has been dabbling with Klaw & Erlanger advanced vaudeville for the past six months, he hasn't neglected his musical comedies, and the chances are that this will be as swift, saucy and surprising as the many hits he has put on at this house in the past. Jeannette Lowrie, a company of eighty, and the Dancing Dolls are to be the features with the show.

Broad Street Theatre.—Blanche Walsh in The Straight Road, was the attraction at this house week of Oct. 28, with business fair. A bargain matinee with best seats fifty cents, was given on Wednesday for the first time in this house, and it was very successful. Week of Nov. 4, Frank Daniels comes in The Tattooed Man, and there is quite a liberal advance sale already.

Garrick Theatre.—Richard Carle is presenting himself there this week, Oct. 28, in The Spring Chicken. That is the way he bills it, and it must be very attractive billing, for crowds are going there every day. The show is tuneful and funny. Week of November 4 we get our first glimpse of Sam Bernard in The Rich Mr. Hogenheimer.

Chestnut Street Opera House. Klaw and Erlanger's stupendous production of Ben Hur has simply jammed this house during its run here. There are no seats left for the balance of the week, and the attraction could profitably run two weeks more. Week of November 4 Anna Held will be the attraction with the Parisian Model, and as she is a big favorite here and the comedy made a big hit here last season, her engagement will be one of those big events. The seat sale is enormous so far.

Chestnut Street Theatre.—Much of the large patronage bestowed upon this house is due to the untiring efforts of Grant LaFerty, who has been showing the people of this town that he knows many a wrinkle that is new in the show business. His Sunday advertisements are things that make people talk, and everybody reads them. He has a clean house, beautifully decorated and with attaches that make you feel welcome. The stock company playing at that house is just like a piece of mosaic—everyone fits in their proper place, and the productions as given there are complete in every respect. For these reasons the house is doing a wonderful business, with "sell-outs" every night and the matinees very well attended. This week the production is The Undertow, a play by Eugene Walters, that is being presented at sixteen stock houses in different parts of the country this week. It is a political play, with lots of timely hits, and is making a big hit. Next week Leah Kleschka will be the bill.

Park Theatre.—Billy B. Van in Patsy in Politics is the bill for this week and the houses are large. Billy Carroll, a Philadelphian, is in the cast and making good with a clever part. Next week the attraction at this house will be Al, II, Wilson in Metz in the Alps. Al is a favorite here and will no doubt do well.

Grand Opera House.—Business good at this house especially when musical comedies are the attraction. Week of Oct. 28th, The Umpire is making a hit and business is very good. For week of Nov. 4th The Earl and the Girl is announced.

Girard Theatre. Cole and Johnson are duplicating their success of last year at this house, when they turned people away at nearly every performance. They are giving The Show Fly Regiment with a new musical setting and an Empire Theatre. Business is fair with the stock company playing at this house.

Hart's New Theatre.—John Hart has the field of melodrama all to himself in this section of the city, and is therefore prospering. This week he has Mamie Fleming, with a big production of Carmen, and many added specialty performers, and for week of Nov. 4, Edna the Pretty Typewriter, will be the attraction.

Forrest Theatre.—The first week of the advanced vaudeville festival was a huge success, and everybody connected with the house is now sure that it will be the biggest winner on the Klaw & Erlanger Circuit. Dan Fishell, the new manager, is telling the public just what he has to offer, and in that peculiar, convincing manner of his and the result is that business is something enormous. There is none of the croaking now about this house being a frost, for this week's business proves that real management with real vaudeville will draw the real people. The sale for week of Nov. 4 is already large, although the list of artists engaged has not yet been announced. The bill for week of Oct. 28 included Vesta Victoria, Clinquevalle, Wilfred Clarke and his company, That Quartet, Rosanquist, the Zaretsky's, the Lu Valles, Cartmell and Harris, and the Arrival of the Lusitania. That's going some for a vaudeville bill and people know it, so they are just buying tickets as fast as their turn in the line brings them to the window. A radical departure for Mr. Fishell was that no tickets were sold at hotels or newsstands but every body had to go to the box office.

Keith's Chestnut Street Theatre.—Fierce com-her Kandy Kids, Radie Furman, Delmore and Lee, Itellman and Moore and a new series of animated pictures.

Trocadero Theatre.—Manager Fred Willson claims that this is the best season for burlesque that the house ever enjoyed and the appearance of the house indicates that he is telling the truth. The Jolly Grass Widows was the attraction at this house week of Oct. 28.

Castro Theatre.—Business keeps up to a profitable standpunkt at this house. Week of Oct. 28 The Bowery Burlesques was the attraction.

Gayety.—The Jersey Lillies are attracting large crowds this week and general business has been very good under the active management of Charles Walters.

Bijou Theatre.—The Americans are pleasing this week. An amateur boxing night is a special feature every week, and always draws crowds.

Museum.—Tom Hopkins is wearing a smile these days, as curios and vaudeville are drawing very large houses here eight times a day. It is a regular gold mine and the assay is running higher this year than it ever did before.

All of our large cafes are now using orchestras to attract trade. At the Majestic Grotto Rigo is attracting large crowds with his orchestra.

Glumb Brothers, one of our largest department stores, has had a big band as an attraction for the past two weeks. It is the Randa Puppilla, under the leadership of Chevalier Lorenzo Puppilla, and consists of forty pieces. They play many classical selections and are interesting the music loving people of Philadelphia. They played at the Pen and Pencil Club reception and scored a hit.

The Philadelphia Orchestra is doing well with its weekly matinee and one evening performance. A star is secured for every week. The star for week of Oct. 28 was Josef Hofmann.

Oreste Vessella, the band master, who has been playing at Atlantic City for the past four years, and who married a wealthy Cincinnati girl, was sued by an Italian girl for breach of promise. A verdict for $5,000 damages was rendered against him, but he filed a petition in bankruptcy, and a referee has just decided that he has nothing in the way of assets but his clothing, so he has been discharged. The Italian girl gets nothing.

Charles B. Weidlog, of this city, was awarded $5,000 damages in the U. S. District Court of New Jersey for injuries he received at Washington Park on the Delaware in May of this year. He was a passenger on a toboggan and was seriously injured by a collision between two cars. The judgment was rendered against the Aerial Railway Company of Washington Park.

Lilt Brothers, one of our department stores, are playing vaudeville attractions, changing frequently. The bill for week of Oct. 28 includes The Edelweiss Trio, The Dancing Lubins, Col. C. Young, the miniature monologue artist, and Gus Alexander and Queen Mab, in singing and dancing specialties. The theatre is under the management of Casper H. Weiss. No charge for admission is made.

The crudest against picture shows still keeps up, but new places are opening in all parts of the city. The merchants on Market street have filed a petition in court that those places that use orchestras or phonographs to attract custom shall be declared a nuisance. An ordinance is being prepared for Council, which will increase the license for these places and place them under the control of the Fire Department. Many of them will have to close if the rule for exits is made to apply to every place.

Elmendorf is giving a series of illustrated lectures on travel at the Academy of Music, and the subscription list this year is much heavier than it ever has been before.

The Boston Symphony orchestra will give a concert at the Academy of Music on November 4, and the sales are very large.

General Booth lectured here on October 31, before a large crowd. The topic was Secret of Success of the Salvation Army.

One of our cafes is running an old Home Week, and are serving apples and cider, pumpkin pie and other country dishes. The place is decorated with forest leaves and stacks of corn and wheat.

The business at roller rinks in this city keeps up to the high water mark. The Third Regiment Armory Rink gave a Hallow Eve ball on October 31 that was well attended. Young's Rink also gave a masquerade carnival on the same night that drew a large crowd. The Central Roller Rink and Park Rinks are also doing well.

Well, the Theatrical Treasures' Club is an established success, and it is only a little over a month old. They are easily installed in their palatial rooms at 1205 Walnut street, where they have every convenience for the comfort of members and their friends. It fills a long-felt wan in this city, being the only real theatrical headquarters in town.

John B. Porter, treasurer, and Frank Beckerman, assistant treasurer of the People's Theatre, are enthusiastic members of the Treasures' Club, and never miss a meeting.

The large crowd that attended the Night in Bohemia at the Hotel Majestic has convinced Adolph Segal, the owner of that hotel, that a theatre would pay in that neighborhood, so he will push the project that he was so much interested in at the start of the season.

Phil Nash is coming about as close to his old home as he can. He bought the lease of the Broadway Theatre in Camden, and is now running vaudeville at that place. Phil at one time was a newspaper man in this city. The new venture looks promising.

G. A. Wegarfarth is pushing work on the new skating rink that he is building over the lobby of the Grand Opera House, and expects to have it open early in January. Work has been delayed on his new William Penn Theatre, and it will not be ready to open before the holidays.

The idea suggested by the members of the Philadelphia Actors' Church Alliance, that headquarters be established in Philadelphia for visiting choir girls, has met with the fullest approval of the members of the theatrical profession, and there is every indication that within a week a temporary club room will be opened. The first definite steps to form a club were taken this week, and, singularly enough, the initiative was taken by a Philadelphia girl, Adele Ritchie, Miss Ritchie, who is an active member of the Actors' Church Alliance, is anxious that Philadelphia should be the first city to establish a choir girls' club, and wrote to the Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tompkins, who is vice president of the Actors' Church Alliance, urging his co-operation. A conference will probably be arranged for the early part of the week.

Miss Ritchie's letter to Dr. Tompkins was as follows:

Three brothers, three singers and three musicians, whose services are in constant demand. Their novelty musical act is one big hit from New York to San Francisco. At present they are duplicating their former success on the Pacific Coast.

entire new outfit of scenery and electrical effects. Week of Nov. 4th The Little Organ Grinder will be the attraction.

National Theatre, Broadway After Dark, a huge melodrama with enough thrills in it to please the patrons of this house, is the attraction Oct. 28 and week, and is packing them in like sardines. Give this audience lots of sensation and they will pack the house. Week of Nov. 4, Bertha the Sewing Machine Girl.

Blancy's Theatre, Week Oct. 28, Through Death Valley is drawing largely and for week of Nov. 4 The New Eight Bells is announced.

Standard Theatre. Since Sam Speck got back into active work again the patronage of this house has steadily improved, and now a poor house is an unknown thing there. Sam Speck and Fred Darcy thoroughly understand what the people of that section of the city want, and they give it to them. The stock company is made up of clever people and they are giving a good production of Nobody's Darling this week.

Forepaugh's Theatre. The Middleton-Barbier Stock Company is pleasing the people and the results are good. This week George Barbier is playing the title role in The Parish Priest and is soaring heavily, both from an artistic and a financial standpoint.

Eleventh Street Opera House. Dumont's Minstrels continue their reign of merriment with a change of burlesque every week, and with new songs in the first part. Frank Dumont has his eye open for every national and local sensation, and he produces a burlesque on it within a few days after the papers are talking about it. The result is that this only permanently located minstrel company in the world always does a large business.

German Theatre. A stock company is presenting late European successes at this house. Three changes of bill are made every week and the business is good.

petition has helped business at this house, for both afternoons and evenings see crowded houses at this million dollar play house. Manager Harry Jordan only smiles when his friends ask him if the vaudeville fight has hurt their business at all and points with pride to the empty ticket racks. Press Agent C. E. Barns is keeping supplying the papers with news of the big acts now playing, or to come, and says that this stirring up of things is what he has long desired, as a man gets rusty if he is not kept awake by competition. The bill for week of October 28 was a wonderful one.

Heading the list is Millie Lindon, an English Music Hall singer who won the favor of our people at once. Charlotte Parry and Company in The Comstock Mystery also pleased, while Arthur Dunn and Marie Glazer were a knock out. A Night in a House Boat pleased immensely, as it is a novel act. Others on the program were Talciani, Mathews and Ashley. The Thought Reading Dog Bill, Fred Watson and the Mathews Sisters, Estelle Wordeett and Company, and Paul Conchis. A mammoth bill is in order for week of November 4.

People's Theatre.—At its start Klaw and Erlanger's Advanced Vaudeville was given three weeks at most to live. It is now in its eleventh week at this house and business is perfectly satisfactory to all concerned. The people of uptown are being educated to vaudeville and are liking it immensely, so there seems to be no reason why there should be a change at that house. For week of October 28 the bill was made up of Baptiste and Francon, two equilibrist, Maude Lambert, The Howard Bros., Juan Calcedo, Sydney Grant, Canfield and Carleton, Eph. Thompson's elephants and a new series of pictures. For week of November 4 the bill will be made up of Prellie's Dogs, Will Rogers, Hyams and McIntyre, Irene Lee and

Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, 1904 Walnut street, My Dear Sir: Tompkins: As a member of the Actors' Church Alliance and an advocate of closer relationship between the church and the stage, I write you to urge your cooperation in the establishment of a church club-house or rooms for chorus girls in this city. As a Philadelphian I am, of course, naturally more interested in my native city than any other place and would like to aid in establishing in this city the first club of the kind in the country. Knowing your interest in this matter I would very much appreciate an opportunity to meet you and decide more definitely the details of such an organization for the chorus girls, many of whom are without home and protection. In my own company we have many girls who are experiencing their first year on the stage and I am sure the influence of such a club would prove of inestimable influence to these girls, and I wish to offer to the Alliance the services of myself and of the young women associated with "Fascinating Flora" for the furtherance of the project. I shall be in the city for three weeks and would be very grateful to have an opportunity of aiding the Alliance in this matter. Several ideas have suggested themselves to me regarding steps that may be taken for the immediate establishment of a headquarters.

Miss Ritchie has had in contemplation for some months a plan to establish the chorus girls' club in Philadelphia, and at her solicitation, Mr. Melville Hammitt, her business manager, called on Dr. Tompkins and discussed the idea.

Dr. Tompkins heartily endorsed the plan, and in speaking of the matter said:

"I am thoroughly in sympathy with Miss Ritchie's ideas concerning the opening of a headquarters or club-rooms in Philadelphia under the auspices of the Actors' Church Alliance, for visiting chorus girls. It is a project that I have had under consideration for some time and consequently am deeply interested in any effort that may be made toward the consummation of the idea. Up to the present time other clerical duties have prevented my giving sufficient time to take any definite steps in the matter. Speaking for the Alliance I can say that we will be grateful to Miss Ritchie for her assistance in this worthy cause."

The probability is that rooms will be secured shortly in a central location, and they will be furnished immediately. Books, magazines, papers, games, etc., will be provided for the girls, who will thus be enabled to spend their spare time in a strange city to excellent advantage.

NOTES.

Louis Lustman, leader of the orchestra of the People's Theatre, has just had published a pretty revue entitled Love-Poem. It is a beautiful selection for the piano that delights every one who hears it, and is meeting with big sales. It is published by Blasius & Sons.

I hope, the animal importer, has not been resting throughout the winter, but has been laying plans for the biggest spring business he ever had. He has contracts with sixteen firms to supply them with snakes, and will completely stock the menageries of two of the largest shows in the country.

John Welch is very busy these days formulating plans for his automobile circus to go on the road next season. He has ordered the motor cars and will actively push work on the rest of the outfit. There is ample capital back of the enterprise and it looks like a sure winner.

Eph Thompson and his elephants played the People's Theatre week of October 28th, and he was kept busy renewing the old acquaintances he made when he was connected with the Adam Forepaugh Show. The old winter quarters of the Forepaugh Show are only three blocks from the theatre and the "bulbs" were marched around there one day. One of the elephants is an original Forepaugh elephant, and he is once recognized the place and showed his joy by loud trumpeting.

One of the most interesting events ever held in this city occurred on Tuesday evening, October 29th, when the Pen and Pencil Club gave "A Night in Bohemia," at the Hotel Majestic. This is one of the finest hotels in the country, with spacious ball rooms, grottos, etc. Over three thousand people attended, and the place was jammed from eight in the evening to the wee sma' hours of the morning. Vaudeville artists from all the theatres volunteered their services, and the longest vaudeville bill ever given in this city went through without a hitch. Harry T. Jordan, the popular manager of Keith's Theatre, acted as stage manager, and he had the acts placed so that there was no friction. The Pen and Pencil Club is an organization of active newspaper men, and the performers playing this city are always so well treated by them that they are anxious to show their appreciation by volunteering their services at all of their functions.

The Hammerstein Grand Opera House project is still lumbering. Oscar says it will be built if he gets the necessary financial help, but the subscriptions for seats are coming in slowly. In the meantime, active preparations are being made at the Academy of Music for the regular season of grand opera. The offer of Mr. A. L. Erlanger to purchase the property and turn it into a mammoth vaudeville house has stirred up the stockholders of the company and they are now formulating plans to materially improve the property. In the meantime, the deal is not off for the purchase of the property, and Mr. Erlanger may secure it after all.

Ban came, saw, and conquered. Slipping into town without any advance billing, Dan Fishell, one of those few real good fellows in the show business, took up the active management of the Forrest Theatre, Klaw & Erlanger's down-town vaudeville house. He got busy as soon as he got here. In a day or two the town woke up to the fact that there was going to be a revolution in methods at that house. The theatre was billed like a circus, the newspapers were jammed with pithy advertisements from Dan's fertile brain, and people began to sit up and take notice. Ban stopped at nothing. He weeded a lot of dead wood out of the house and made a general clearing up, before he started his big steam roller at work. Wise heads said it was a waste of money, and that the house would not benefit by this boom. Monday afternoon the vaudeville festival started, and for the first time since the house opened, droves of people were turned away. At night there was a jam of people, and it has continued so ever since. Everybody is patting the alert manager on the back and saying that all the house needed was a man like him, but Ban is saying nothing, but is laying out his plans for a continuance of the same methods, that business will not fall down at that house.

JEWEL.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The musical wave still remains with us. The past week brought forth Emma Carus in Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway, Gay New York, Eddie Foy in The Orchid, Madame Calve, the famous French contralto, and two burlesque shows of unusual merit, all receiving a heavy patronage.

Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway was seen here for one performance, Oct. 27, with Emma Carus in the role of Mary Jane Jenkins. This lively通俗 piece won much favor here. Scotch Welsh, in the role of Kid Burns, proved very satisfactory. The principals are supported by a very capable company.

Dale Wilson, a member of the Lid Lifters during her engagement here, went through a successful operation.

The Orchid brought Eddie Foy and his new fair assistant, Flavia Acaro, successor to Trixie Frimino, who recently retired from the cast, to the Davidson for a week's engagement. Miss Acaro succeeded remarkably well with her smile and charming way of tossing herself about. Her ability as a singer is pleasing. Eddie Foy is surrounded by an agile and attractive company. There are a number of clever people in the cast, but all are apparently handicapped and they are worthy of a better opportunity. But Eddie Foy is as funny as ever and was highly applauded throughout the three hour performance by his many friends who were there on the opening night to greet him. Marletta Di Dio carries her part as the French adventuress with grace, and made a strong impression on her audience. Ada Gordon is a pleasing little actress with nimble little feet, which she uses cleverly, she being a close rival of La Petite Adelaide, whose dance is a feature of the entertainment, the latter being very graceful and was repeatedly applauded. Rose Botti, who was recently raised from the chorus, has an excellent contralto voice. William Cameron does some clever dancing. From the scenic view the production is a gorgeous one and the stage is filled with a large number of graceful figures, which prove a dazzling ray of beauty.

In this week's bill at the Shubert, there is noticed a slight falling off of previous weeks. Advanced vaudeville is now on its ninth week at this house. The bill included the following artists: Henry Lee in impersonations of great men, successfully done; Mlle. Agost and Company, feminine juggler, wears handsome clothes; her act is similar to those seen here recently. Joe Flynn presents a monologue act which could be improved greatly; Ollie Young and his three brothers, hoop rollers, received heavy applause; Joe Hart's Military Girls have a musical sketch Josephine that is briskly acted. The singing of Louise Mintz is pleasing as well as the dancing graceful. Josephine Sabel's act is pleasing but is somewhat coarse; Morris and Morris, a comedy act, is lacking in features; John Birch springs some jokes which are very laughable.

The Merry Makers, with an aggregation of merry maids are making things merry at the Star. The opening burlesque title is The Sultan's Wives, which introduces Sam J. Adams and W. P. Kelly, as chief fun makers. The olio includes Gladys St. John and Tillie Cohen, May Orletta, Fred W. Taylor, two pleasing singers and Geo. A. Street, in an elaborate scenic creation, in which he portrays the world's greatest generals, is worthy of special mention. La Belle and O'Rourke, is a pleasing sketch. The closing burlesque, The Girl From Chelsea, offers lively dances and catchy songs. The chorus girls are all young and good looking and have voices that are above the average of burlesque attractions.

Gayety, Rice & Barton's Extravaganza Company is the attraction here this week. This company is well known in Milwaukee and the show offered this year is not behind the former offerings of the aggregation. The play is elaborately costumed, and the chorus is capable and energetic. Mlle. Arnoldi in her graceful dancing in the afterpiece, proved one of the features of the program. The olio features Mildred Gilmore in song and story act; the inevitable musical turn by the Nicodemus Trio, and Pierce and Malize offer a dancing and singing number that includes some quick changes in costume. A black-face act, by McKee and Van, and Bert Baker's songs, proved highly acceptable. Chas. Barton heads the two musical farce comedies, Broadway After Twelve and The Red Light District. The musical numbers are new and the chorus is well drilled. The company is playing to good houses.

Stay New York, the attraction at the Alhambra this week, is a musical comedy adapted from the German. This play is keeping the large audience in continual uproars of laughter. The music is very pleasing, which accounts for the popularity with which the piece has been received for several seasons. The song, Hinky Dink, did not fail to win its usual share of applause. They were encored a number of times. Much attention has been given to the feature of the production, which helps to make it a highly enjoyable entertainment. Next, The Russell Brothers in The Hired Girls' Millions.

Those E. Sheas, the tragedian, is entertaining large audiences at the Second street house, the Bijou, this week. He is steadily and surely coming to the front. In addition to presenting The Bells and Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, he will appear in a new play, A Soldier of the Cross, in which he has a heroic role for which he is physically qualified. Mr. Shea has enlisted for his support, a capable company of players.

A very delightful program is being played at the Crystal this week. It is attracting its usual large audiences.

James K. Blackett and Company will give a performance presenting John Gay's Honor. This will be given its premiere here under the auspices of the Milwaukee Press Club.

Word has been received from Neenah, Wis., that theatrical promoters have secured two-year leases on the theatres at Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Appleton, Green Bay and Marinette and will devote the houses secured to refined and advanced vaudeville.

A ladies' cafe, the Princess, was thrown open to the public recently, and it is declared that this is the finest confectionery and ladies' cafe in America. It has been opened in connection with the Alhambra Theatre. The new confectionery, which is under the management of Henri Thivierge, is a revelation as to the artistic possibilities. It is finished throughout in ivory and gold with marble tables, costly mirrors and beautiful tapestries lavishly used. Exquisite mural paintings are a feature of the cafe, and the furniture is dainty and artistic. The table service is the finest that can be secured. Lalibaud China of the costliest patterns; delicate glass and expensive silver figure throughout the place. The electric lighting is a novel design. The work has been done by Messrs. Kirchoff and Rose, two well-known architects of this town.

CLEVELAND, O.

On the eve of the mayoralty election, the hottest this city has ever known, the tent and hall meetings of the opposing candidates has had its effect upon attendance at the theatres. Business, generally, has been satisfactory.

At the Opera House, the twin stars, Guy Standing and Theodore Roberts, are presenting for the first time here, The Right of Way. This is a super play, and the fine acting of all, aroused great enthusiasm.

This is Vaughan Glaser's seventh week at the Colonial, the presentation being Eugene Walker's political play, The Undertow. This is a particularly good production, just at this time, when politics waxeth warm. It affords plenty of entertainment and carries a strong moral lesson.

At the Majestic Theatre another political play holds the boards, it being The Stolen Stock. Manager Macy's selection of this proves to be a wise move, as his theatre has enjoyed a big patronage. The singing was well done, and the work of the excellent stock company is meritorious.

At the Lyceum, Ernest Hogan drew forth many a hearty laugh, in his presentation of The Oyster Man. This new play of Hogan is his best, and one which is full of lively music.

At the Empire Theatre last Saturday morning, Bobby Manchester gave a special complimentary matinee for the down-town newsboys who sell the Cleveland News. The members of the Vanity Fair Company playing there this week, took part in the program, and everyone enjoyed themselves. Bobby Manchester in his boyhood days, was a Cleveland "Newfie," and every year when one of his many attractions plays here, he arranges a treat for the kids.

The Elysium, Cleveland's new ice-skating rink, and by the way the largest rink in the country, will open for the season, Nov. 9. This is one of the Humphrey Co.'s enterprises, and is a beautiful structure containing all of the up-to-date appointments of the skating rink.

ERMETE NOVELLI.

BY W. H. ANTISDEL.

(See first page.)

Ermete Novelli, the distinguished Italian actor, who first visited the United States last spring, scoring such artistic success both in Boston and New York City (the only two places in which his limited time before sailing home for Italy would permit), will inaugurate his first grand American tour at the Adelphi Theatre, in Philadelphia, on Monday evening, Nov. 7. The Messrs. Shubert have made a contract with the Italian firm of managers, Paradossal and Consigli, by which Signor Novelli will spend between twelve and twenty weeks in this country, visiting among other cities, New York City, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Washington, Providence and a number of other cities not yet definitely decided upon for engagement. In almost all cases this famous actor's engagement will be positively limited to one week only as the briefness of his period allotted for this American tour enforces the making of New York City the only two-week engagement. At the close of this tour he will depart for Latin America, where he has important contracts with subsidies both from the Mexican government and the governments of Brazil and Argentine Republic. He will also appear again in Havana, where he is a special favorite. It was from these Latin American regions that he came for his hasty visit last spring.

In view of the unqualified success achieved by Novelli with the Boston and New York critics early this year, there can be no question of the critical reception which he would seem bound to meet as he journeys throughout the land. He brings over with him once more, the same admirable company of associate artists whose fine ensemble playing made his former performances here so remarkably enjoyable. In spite of the fact that the exigencies of that visit deprived him of almost any adequate scenery for his large repertoire of plays, this time he is bringing over with him all his own scenery—the curious but extremely beautiful paper scenery of Italy that is used in all the theatres of that Alpine peninsula. Raphael himself used to be a scene painter for the old Italian spectacles of the time of the renaissance, and Novelli numbers among his scenery masterpieces from the brush of the famous Milanese artist, Rossetti. There are forty productions in all which Novelli is bringing over and this is only a part of his wonderful repertoire, which is said to include one hundred and forty plays of every type and nationality. Last season, in New York City, he gave nearly, if not exactly, twenty different roles during his four weeks' stay at the Lyric Theatre.

For the present season's exhibit of his versatility, a choice has been made of the seven or eight most popular dramas in his long list. In each city, where he will remain for a week, he will give about three Shakespearean portrayals—drawn from Othello, Hamlet, Shylock, King Lear in tragedy, and The Taming of the Shrew—Petruchio—in comedy. Casimir Delavigne's picturesquely and melodramatic stage figure of the crafty, cunning but superstitious old French King Louis XI, enacted in this country by the late Sir Henry Irving, will also be one of Novelli's selections and also the highly emotional role of Conrad, the escaped convict in The Outlaw (La Morte Crivile), the part made familiar by the elder Salvini many years ago. One of Goldoni's most sparkling Venetian comedies, The Benevolent Bear (Il Burbero Benevolo), which that Molire of Italy originally wrote in French for a fete at Versailles in honor of the ill starred Marie Antoinette, will give Novelli an opportunity to show the playgoers of America what a delightful Italian buffo artist he is. His opening performances will generally be made in Papa Lebonard, a comedy by Jean Alcard, in which Novelli scored his great Parisian triumph in 1888, at Madame Sarah Bernhardt's Theatre de la Renaissance. Then there are such plays as Kean of the elder Dumas, Deidulus Rex of Sophocles, Alleluia of Marco Praga, and several others which will press for an occasional hearing. It is too bad that each city can not see Novelli in at least twenty such roles as those which New York playgoers enjoyed him in during last spring!

The company in support of Signor Novelli is practically the same as before, containing such admirable artists as Achille Vitti, Luigi Ferrati, Emilio Lamonti, Annibale Betrone, Nicola Pescatori, Laura Rossi, Olga Giannini (Signora Novelli), and others equally praiseworthy. Several new faces will be seen in the cast, however, when Novelli returns to New York, for Novelli has strengthened his entourage to the utmost. He will also present several novelties in the metropolis during his two weeks' run there. One of these will be a play written by an American woman of Italian descent, Miss Heloise Durante Rose, entitled Dante. This four-act play deals with the life, love, romance, exile from Florence and sorrows of the great Florentine poet who wrote The Divine Comedy. By a curious coincidence, Novelli himself lives at Ravenna, the city of Dante's exile and rich in the memory of the poet. This drama will be given its first production in any language by Novelli in this country. He will also present there Coeca's powerful tragedy of Nero (Neron), which he has already done in the South American cities. Shakespeare's Macbeth is also a possibility, since Novelli has been giving it a deep study for many years and has hopes of presenting it before an English speaking audience the first time that he essays the character of the unmitigated Scotch Thane.

So much was written of Novelli during his sojourn of last spring that it is only necessary to echo the unanimous plaudits which were then heard. In view of his remarkable versatility, and to his ease of comedy and breadth of farce in the lighter parts, Madame Bernhardt's praise of him as "the greatest of all living actors in the world," does not seem to be an exaggeration. Novelli is so unique in the range of his thespian achievements that this praise is not invalid nor renders any other actor odious by comparison. The chorus of critics last season sent up a paean of praise in unison for this most worthy foreign artist who is the fifth Italian actor of note to visit these shores—the others having been Ristori, Rossi, Salvini and Duse. Francisque Sarcey, the late dean of French critics, pronounced Novelli, "master of both smiles and tears with perfect control over all the human emotions," and nobody who sees him in a number of his widely contrasted characterizations but must be amazed by his equal facility at either comedy or tragedy and by the extreme realism and naturalness and sympathetic human quality with which he endows every one of his great roles.

BANQUETED ON THE STAGE.

While playing an engagement at the Bucklingham Theatre in the city of Louisville, Ky., Mr. W. B. Watson, the star comedian and owner of Watson's Burlesques, was tendered a banquet by the members of his company on the stage during the performance in celebration of his forty-first birthday, Friday, Oct. 25.

The banquet happening during the performance was a surprise to the audience and was one of the most realistic happenings that the Bucklingham Theatre has seen during its entire existence as a burlesque house. Imagine a company producing a scene where a banquet is actually served in view of the audience and the curtain raises upon the actual goods, the tables being loaded with all the delicacies of the season which included everything from a Martini to the grapes, a beautiful, large decorated roast in full view of the audience as well as the finest fruits of the season, the tables actually growing under their burdens, the whole being presided over by Mr. Watson's brother and friend, the genial Matt Glaser, the American representative of the Sweden-American Match Co., of Cincinnati, which he came especially from Cincinnati to do.

Mr. Watson was the recipient of many beautiful presents from members of the company and also remembered by Mr. Glaser with a very elaborate umbrella and cane.

The audience, somewhat surprised at first at this novel scene, soon fell in with the enthusiasm of the occasion and the specialties introduced during the banquet received encore after encore and it actually required a speech from Mr. Watson himself to satisfy the large and appreciative audience.

After the fall of the curtain upon the final act, the banquet was continued until the wee sma' hours, and every one, after congratulating the famous comedian once more upon reaching his forty-first milestone, separated to their several hotels after singing good Auld Lang Syne. A delegation of his local friends, consisting of Louis Greenberg, the well-known broker, Jack Elgen, the city passenger agent of the B. & O., and Horace McCrooklin, general manager of Whalen Brothers' Buckingham Theatre, escorted Mr. Watson to the company's special car leaving Louisville for Cincinnati at three a.m.

Taking it all in all, it was a great time.

STREET FAIR NOTES.

Frank LaMondue, originator of several comedy wire acts, is now located at the beautiful LaMondue Hotel, Pekin, Ill. He deserves mention for the gentlemanly and courteous manner in which he and Mr. Albert Weiss, secretary of the free attractions, treated and looked after their performers at the late Pekin, Ill., free street fair. Some of the attractions were the Aerial Bolts, Harry Durrell, Leonzo, Dacoma and Onzo, Collins Brothers and Delavoye and Frits.

The Lachman-Loos Carnival Company played Ft. Scott, Kan., week of Oct. 21, to big returns. Mr. Lachman reports excellent business all along the line and has his shows booked solid in Texas for the entire winter.

The Great Bertini is now enjoying a very pleasant engagement with the famous Johnny Jones Exposition Shows, after having played twenty-one consecutive weeks with the Robinson Amusement Company.

Sheik Ali Ben Deb has closed his Streets of All Nations and Turkish Theatre Show after playing to big business at state and county fairs.

The Original Candy Kids have joined the West Amusement Company, which is at present touring the southern states.

MUSICAL COMEDY.

Andy Thumiser, comedian and comedy juggler, opened week of Oct. 28 with the Miller and May Comedy Company, this marking his third season with the organization. Previous to his opening, he enjoyed a four week's vacation at his home in Philadelphia.

SAN FRANCISCO LETTER

Rube Cohen
Representative

OCTOBER 24, the Colonial opened for a season of stock, presenting The Crust of Society, with Miss Juarez as leading lady, who also acts as manager of the company. A packed house greeted the players, and the show made a hit. Miss Anna Crewe, Annie Rogers, Laura Oakley, Jessie Miller, Harry Leighton, H. M. Dodgeon, Herbert Glenn, Chester Stevens, T. F. Henry and Wallace Orcutt make up the company.

Sons' Band played to a ten thousand house at the Greek Theatre, Berkeley, October 24. The open air amphitheatre was packed and there were hundreds who were unable to gain admittance, who lingered outside and caught the overflow of music.

The Van Ness Theatre, with The Squaw-Man, had an exceptionally profitable week, with a promising week to follow. The Novelty with Old Kentucky did a fair week.

Fighting the Flames at the Chutes opened to a crowded house and did record-breaking business.

Toby Lyons made an emphatic hit at the American Theatre in The Yankee Regent, and received many favorable press notices. The entire show is full of snap and good singing numbers, and made good.

rumors are abroad that the Globe Theatre will open November 11, presenting melodrama, with D. J. Grauman as manager.

San Francisco people are pleased to learn that Messrs. Kuhn and Dillon, big favorites out here, are booked to open in New York at the Majestic, November 24, in Lonesome Town. A big success is anticipated. Ben T. Dillon left here to join them.

The Four Claytons were Billboard visitors last week. They have finished their time with The Western States Vaudeville Association, and are now booked on the Alpha Vaudeville Circuit. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelley also called. They are now playing their forty-eighth consecutive week on the Sullivan-Considine Circuit, presenting their comedy sketch, The Thoroughbred, now playing return dates. They are still one of the strongest cards on the circuit. They have some ten more weeks' time to fill and then will proceed east.

Dancing Davy was another visitor last week. He is playing The Princess Theatre this week and receiving several curtain calls for his eccentric and novel wooden shoe dancing.

The Victory Theatre management has postponed the opening of their new house from Nov. 3 to two weeks later, owing to the delay in building material.

Nance O'Neill appeared at the Orpheum to open November 4. This is the last week of vaudeville at the Princess Theatre where The Birthmous, wire artists, are repeating their success they had in two previous houses they have played here. Gillihan and Broeck came in for a liberal share of applause. Mr. and Mrs. Elwood are playing their return date and their act, The Soldier of Propriety, is as strong a card as ever. Dancing Davy, an eccentric wooden shoe dancer, puts on one of the cleverest dancing turns seen for many a moon, and was duly appreciated. Harrington and Giles, from the Wigwam, made good. Sam Sidman and Co., in Irish Justice, done in German dialect, closed the bill.

The newcomers at the Orpheum last week were all well received. The Colonial Sextet was the big turn, and although their second visit proved a good card. Miss Lillian Tyce and Cliffe Bergac's trained ponies kept the audience in a merry mood. The Four Dainty Dancers won favor with their clever dancing. Elfie Fay, retained from last week, continued one of the features.

The offerings at the Wigwam last week were Al Jolson, who was heavily featured and made good. The American Newsboys' Quartet was a close second, their turn being well received. Baird and Dunn, in their comical sketch, The Wise Boy and the Blonde Souurette, proved a good turn. McCloud and Melville was one of the big cards. Drake's Sheep and Dogs furnished the novelty act, and The Three Azardes the acrobatic turn.

At the National Theatre, last week, Adgie's Lions were the big feature act, and deservedly so, for her performance is full of sensation and proved a big box-office winner. She remains another week. The balance of the following: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelley in The Thoroughbred; Blackberry Sisters in black face songs and dances; Dorothy Dale, her first appearance, is a very clever character change artist with a most pleasing voice and presence. Col. Billy Link is as funny as ever, and with his Hobo-Soldiers received many laughs. John Dempsey, dancer; Merrill and Burns, also dancers, were also on this bill. Uyeno's Japs, six people, are a clever troupe, and their act is also a winner.

Manager Hale Curtis, of the Empire, offered a good bill last week with Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bartlett in a rural sketch called Willie, for his opening number. Hall and Colburn, first San Francisco appearance, in The Swede and the Happy Girl, followed. Jimmy Cowper, black face monologist, proved a favorite. The Rostjano Trio pleased universally. James Post and Co., in The New Judge, closed the bill.

The Princess Theatre will present comic operas and musical comedy, opening October 28, with The Mocking Bird. The company includes Cecilia Rhoda, Lucille Sanders, Zoe Barnett, Ritchie Ling, Robert Hosie, Elliott Beamer, Fred Waelder, Nigelle Bruller, Edna Maisonneuve, LeRoy Jepson and Harry Cashman and a large chorus. Albert McGuckin is musical director. The stage is under the personal supervision of George Lask. During the season it is the intention of the management to produce Babette Two Roses, The Madcap Princess, Dolly Dollars, The School Girl, The Catch of the Season, The Girl from Kay's, Veronique, The Flower Girl, The Duchess of Danzig and The Girl from Zayder Zee.

Gentry Brothers' Shows are billed to appear in Alameda Wednesday, November 5.

Daniel M. Henderson is now a member of the Ernest E. Howell Stock Co., at the Central Theatre.

Sam Davis, manager of the Davis Theatre, mourns the loss of his wife, who died October 23.

IN OAKLAND

Heart's Flame, at the Liberty Theatre with Bishop's company of capable players, did a big week.

At the Macdonough, Olga Nethersole played to turn-away houses for four performances. The Orpheum is the fad of Oakland, and crowded houses are in attendance every evening. Idora Park Theatre, with The Belle of New York holds its own. The Circus Girl follows. The Bell, Novelty and Empire, the popular priced vaudeville houses, continue to prosper; all offering good bills.

The Park Theatre, Alameda, opened Monday evening, under the management of the Alpha Vaudeville Circuit, and a packed house greeted the performers, which included The Clayton Family, Leonard and Thornton, Ted Ross, LeCall Brothers, Grace Blodgett and Walter Robever held here, the horse show will be in evidence for nearly a week, and this latter will have some effect on the patronage at the respective playhouses, yet if the opening night can be taken as a forerunner of the week's business, then a big week is in store for them all, as almost record breakers were in evidence throughout the city. Mr. Mantell, at the Nixon, attracted a very large and select audience in his presentation of Merchant of Venice last night, and with the high esteem in which he is held here, and his ability to portray any character he attempts, there is no good reason why business should not keep up if not show improvement. Mr. Mantell will also present Othello and Julius Caesar. Miss Mary Shaw, in Mrs. Warren's Profession, at the Duquesne, was greeted with many encores for her portrayal of the character assumed. Miss Shaw is ably supported, and while the play isn't one that appeals to a Pittsburg audience, it is nevertheless to be hoped that more liberal patronage will be extended throughout the week, in fact for some unaccountable reason this house has fallen to the rear in patronage and from no fault of the plays, and it is to be hoped that with the coming next week of Virginia, it is hoped that business will take a decided spurt and will continue during the remainder of the season. The offerings this season at the Alvin are such that business is almost nightly capacity. Mrs. Wiggs of The Cabbage Patch is playing exceptionally good business and this will be the case next week when Nat M. Wills will again be with us in A Lucky Dog. At the Grand, our one sure bet high-class vaudeville house, continues to pack them in, and erts and Co., in Keep Your Eye on Mag. The policy of the new management will be one show per night, with matines Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Alpha Vaudeville Circuit opened the Coliseum Theatre, Oakland, Monday, October 28. The Twentieth Century Vaudeville is the trade mark adopted by this growing circuit.

San Francisco, Cal. RUBIE COHEN.

PITTSBURG, PA.

Never before has the public at large, and the business houses in general, taken to the Horse Show week so prominently, as one can hardly bear anything else now but horse show, and the liberal decoration in the smart shops and windows in nearly every branch of business, shows which way the wind blows, the outlook for a record breaker in attendance as well as the assurance of a much larger list of entries, and every detail that will go to making the Pittsburgh Horse Show of this week of national importance and one never to be forgotten by the business houses, reports elegant business. The new management will be one show per night, with matines Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

The press agent and management occupy a suite of offices in the Fulton Building and also occupy one of the ground floor offices, which is alive with stenographers, and same is embellished with the colors, red and gold.

With the closing of the Exposition, which by the way has been the most successful one offers this week Robert Hilliard and Company, Urbani and Son, The Zannettos, Lalla Schibni, Village Choir, Elizabeth Murray, Exposition Four, Clifford and Burke, Morrow and Schellberg, Frederic and Larose, Chas. Howison, The McCarrers, and the Cinematograph. The Gayety and Academy are offering good burlesque bills, Gay Morning Glories at the former, and High Jinks Company at the latter. At Blaney's Shadows On The Hearth is drawing big and satisfying, and 999 at the Bijou, is drawing well. In fact, at these two houses, Blaney's and Bijou, business is always good.

If one were to judge from the number of enginels that surrounded the Nixon, Monday morning, a hasty conclusion would have been that the beautiful theatre was doomed, however, within a short space of time the fire which was from the Nixon restaurant, was distinguished, and many a heart resumed its accustomed place, and left the scene rejoicing. The New Bijou Dream, ten-cent vaudeville house, reports elegant business. This also holds good at the other houses playing at the same price. Hippodrome, down town; Casino, Allegheny, and Liberty, Casino and Majestic, in the East End. The roller rinks are doing nicely and business will improve as the weather grows colder. The Auditorium (vaudeville) recently opened in the East End by the Brann's, is now closed indefinitely.

LOUIS L. KAUFMAN.

Hines and Remington in their farcical musical comedy, Randolph and Adolph, opened their season at Reading, Pa., Nov. 9.

THE STORY OF ADVANCED VAUDEVILLE.

(From The Klaw & Erlanger Offices.)

There is no new chapter of modern theatrical history more interesting than that dealing with the birth and development of Klaw & Erlanger's advanced vaudeville. It has established a new style of entertainment in this country and has given to American vaudeville a meaning and significance that composite amusement has never before known and enjoyed in this country. Advanced vaudeville has gone further and accomplished a sort of missionary work throughout the country; of a standard of novelty and artistic achievement previously unattained, it has established a precedent that has made it compulsory for vaudeville generally to be improved and uplifted. Thus it is true that through the medium of advanced vaudeville, there has been great benefit to vaudeville generally. The class of artists is higher and the standard of acts is better than ever in the past.

The preparations for advanced vaudeville, as is well known, covered many months of work, of search through Europe for novelties and in signing famous stars, of picking the best of native talent and represented the outlay of a princely sum of money. When the curtain was raised on the inaugural performance in America of advanced vaudeville at the New York Theatre the last of August—it was to see presented the most remarkable bill ever seen in this country under the name of vaudeville. Six different foreign nations were represented on this bill with the best-known stars of American vaudeville.

These facts tell the story for themselves. It was a program of novelty, of diversity and of artistic worth. And it was also a performance that served as a reliable index to the meaning of advanced vaudeville. It was not the policy of Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger to begin with a flourish, push forward their most important acts at the start and present less attractive bills in the succeeding weeks. They presented a remarkable bill in the beginning and they have, if anything, improved from week to week, others of the well-known European stars have come over from time to time since then, to take the places of those who would go out on the circuit, and have been seen at the New York Theatre. It is a remarkable list of stars that has been brought over thus far, and many of the greatest remain to come. Harry Landor, Vesta Victoria, Guss Elen, Hetty Klug, Arthur Prince, Claire Rosalie, Cleopatra, Kara and many others, could be mentioned. It is a simple statement of fact that the pick of foreign and native vaudeville is included on the circuit. The American names on the list are equally as attractive and important. It is easily shown with such names on the list as Louis Mann, Charles Bigelow, George Fuller Golden, George Evans, Madame Suzanne Adams, Triste Frigana, Grace Hazard and scores upon scores of others.

Now it is announced that a splendid spectacle from England, in other words, the London ballets from the Alhambra and Empire theatres, are to be made a feature of this new amusement enterprise. Premiere dancers are to be brought over for these spectacles and they will go on here on a most elaborate scale. A strictly American ballet will also be introduced after the first of the year, telling the story of this nation from its birth to the present time. This is simply a part of the regular advanced vaudeville and will be presented as a part of the usual performances. The ballet, however, is to become a permanent feature in advanced vaudeville.

And now that advanced vaudeville has become thoroughly grounded in this country, it will be the purpose to establish it throughout the country from New England to California. Alliances have been made with powerful theatrical circuits east and west for the installation of advanced vaudeville in the different houses they control, and managers who own their houses throughout the country will be also given the opportunity of playing this vaudeville of the nations wherever desired, securing the same talent seen in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and the other large cities.

Everywhere on this circuit the people are giving their support and encouragement to this new regime of composite entertainment. Their acceptance of it with such enthusiasm has influenced the promoters to prepare even more remarkable bills for the future than was originally planned. Advanced vaudeville has come to stay, and to occupy a place of greatest prominence in the stage life of America.

BOSTON, MASS.

Under the careful management of F. S. Eager, the Unique Theatre has outgrown its seating capacity and is now being enlarged and renovated all around. When finished, Manager Eager will have one of the prettiest houses in the city devoted to moving pictures.

In my letter of last week I stated that Harris Brothers were the owners of Happyland, it should have been Allan Brothers.

Sky Farm was retained for another week at the Boston Theatre. This makes the third week of the most successful production the stock company has produced this season.

November 4th will see Mr. Erlanger in charge of the advanced vaudeville forces in Boston, unless the present plans are changed. This will mark the real campaign of advanced vaudeville in this city.

Marie Doro, in The Mirlots of Marcus, has made such a hit in the piece that her original engagement of three weeks has been extended to six.

Tom O'Brien, with the Earl Burgess County Fair Company, reports business good with the attraction, which is playing the small cities around Boston. Later on, the show may come to the city for a run, if a suitable house can be found.

Charlton, at the Orpheum, was held over for another week, owing to her act going big.

McLean, the bicycle rider and champion, with others has taken hold of the Park Square Rink, and will install an enclosed bicycle track in conjunction with the present roller skating rink.

The Food Show, which closed last week, had a most unsuccessful exhibition during its stay of four weeks.

PRESTON LOMBARD.

The Lola Lee Earl Company scored such a big success at Jonesboro, Ark., recently that they were engaged for the second week.

LONDON.
WANTED--PLAYS WITH PRINTING

If you wish to sell or let your plays for ENGLAND? I can do so for you. I deal directly with nearly all the A-1 Managers in this country, and have sold a great many winners. Quote your lowest price for cash. Fancy prices are not given, and a great deal of time is lost in correspondence.

If authors of good dramas will send them over to me, together with samples of printing, I can arrange to have them produced by stock companies in London. This generally results in a play being let or sold for the road. I can arrange to copyright plays in London on the same day as their American production, thus securing a copyright according to English law.

Divulge Secrets of Miles Brothers

Use Information Acquired while Working for Wages to help Establish a Competitor.

ONE of the most gigantic schemes ever formulated to rob an employer culminated Wednesday afternoon, October 30, when Miles Bros., of New York, caused the arrest of two of their employees on the charge of grand larceny and breach of trust. One was manager of the film department, while the other had charge of projecting machines, song slides, stereopticons, etc. The amount of the alleged peculations is not stated, but it is said to run well into the thousands. These alleged stealings, however, were the least part of the general scheme to seriously harm Miles Bros.' business. It is charged that the two men accused entered into a conspiracy to furnish Jersey City capitalists positive proofs of the profits in the business by showing what had actually been accomplished by the firm in the last six years. For instance, it was shown the capitalists that the receipts of Miles Bros., for the first twelve days in October were approximately thirty thousand dollars, and that the business of the firm for the twelve months ending July 1, exceeded six hundred thousand dollars. It was the aim of the conspirators to cause dissatisfaction among the firm's best customers by improperly serving them, thus throwing to the new concern at least forty per cent. of the business.

It was definitely stated and boasted by the conspirators that out of the October business they would secure at least a volume of five thousand dollars. They also said that the men had secured many of the largest subscribers of Miles Bros., and that the new concern's income the first week would not be less than from six hundred to one thousand dollars. This had been accomplished by improperly booking customers, thus causing their dissatisfaction and withdrawal as soon as the new firm was ready for business. Following the arrest of the men, numerous thefts were uncovered, the losses totaling many thousand. It was also discovered that the crooked work extended to the sending of repeaters three times in succession, and that much junk film had been distributed. The contemplated fraud became known to Miles Bros. ten days ago. After a thorough detective inquiry and the establishment of the fact that the conspirators had violated the statutes in the matter of giving their alleged backers inside information, the arrests followed on the charges already named. It having also been developed that Miles Bros. had actually suffered loss of many thousand dollars. Mr. Herbert Miles, general manager Miles Bros., said: "The conspirators stopped at nothing to accomplish their ends, even to circulating reports detrimental to the credit standing of the firm. So much so that we had a miniature run on our finances for about two weeks, paying out thousands of dollars thirty and sixty days before they were due. Every obligation, however, was met, without as much delay as any metropolitan bank in these smoky times. We certainly do not object to new competitors; in fact, welcome them, for being the largest firm of importers, manufacturers and jobbers in the moving picture trade, we feel that every new concern in the field means a possible new customer for us. We do, however, most strenuously object to such nefarious methods of attempting to wreck our rental department, which was first in existence, and which will always be maintained as the largest and best."

Continuing, Mr. Miles said: "I honestly believe that I have, during my management of our New York office, overlooked and pardoned more times than have ever been committed against my business firm of like proportions, but the limit has been reached, and the co-operation of all reputable concerns in this most wonderful and growing industry is now necessary to root out and make examples of the army of grafters, petty larceny offenders and all those preying upon the moving picture dealers, and exhibitors. Our dragnet is set, and it will go hard with all caught in its meshes hereafter."

BROADWAY TABLOIDS.

COMING OF THE NEWLY-WEDS.

Leslie Brattan Amusement Company, managers of the Ulster Brown company, and R. F. Outram, the artist, now playing important Broadway engagements, have made arrangements with The New York World to make a big production of The Newly-Weds, founded on the celebrated cartoons by George McManna. The book has been written by Paul West and the music for this very promising musical comedy has been composed by George W. Brattan. It will be recalled that Mr. Brattan wrote the score of The Pearl and the Pumpkin and numerous song hits, as Cosy Corner, I Love You, In The Same Old Way, and many others.

Leslie and Brattan were responsible for the success of Yvette Gilber last season. The Ulster Brown company continue very popular, and they have no doubt made another happy selection in The Newly-Weds, which is to be splendidly staged, beautifully costumed, and everything done to make it a first-class production. After a try-out on the road, it will be presented on Broadway.

Much to the surprise of everyone, Wallace Beery, who unseated Raymond Hitchcock in the stellar role of A Yankee Tourist upon such short notice the past week, when Mr. Hitchcock so suddenly disappeared, has made an instantaneous hit in the role, which was supposed to require the hitchcock personally and individually in comedy acting above all else. Mr. Savage is very fortunate in having an under-study of the ability of Mr. Beery.

A new play by Augustus Thomas is to be produced by the Shuberts in December. The title of the drama is The Witching Hour. John Mackay, at present co-star with Virginia Marston in Anna Karneva, is to have the star part, which is that of a gambler. The play is said to be one of strong appeal. In the cast will be Jennie Eustace, Adelaide Nauak, Ethel Winthrop, Russ Whytai, George Nash, William Sampson, Morgan Coleman, Harvey Haffield, E. L. Walton, Thomas P. Jackson, Freeman Barnes, Samuel Hines and James Farmer.

That we are to have still another new theatre in the vicinity of Forty-second street is now announced. A forty-two year lease has been obtained by the broker, Harry Levey, through the McVicker Galliard Realty Company, of the south-east corner of Forty-third street and Broadway, fronting 104.2 feet on Broadway and 195.0 feet on Forty-third street. The plans are in preparation for a large structure to contain various stores, a restaurant and a modern theatre, with a Subway entrance.

Tom Jones, the latest musical comedy to have production under the Henry W. Savage management, had its American premiere in Plainfield, N. J., October 31. It will come into the Astor Theatre November 11. The leading parts are sung by Louise Gunning, William Morris, VanRensselaer Wheeler and Gertrude Quillin.

One special matinee performance will be given by Daniel Frohman in the Garrick Theatre, of Dr. Wake's Patient, within a short time before the departure of the authors, Mr. and Mrs. Gayer Mackay, for London. Doris Keane and Bruce McRae will be in the cast.

Edwin Holt is to be starred by Theodore M. Morris in a new play by Edward E. Kiddell, called String Stebbins. The star will have the opportunity to show how brightly he can twinkle about the holiday season.

Dr. Houghton, of The Little Church Around the Corner, has decided to take steps to lessen the misfortune and unhappiness growing out of hasty marriages. For years eloping couples and young people whose marriage was opposed by parents have sought the rector of The Little Orchestra. Later she will sing at the Metropolitan Opera House.

It has at last been definitely settled that The Great Divide will take to the road December 1, as it is under contract to appear in Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston theatres. It will be followed here by The Lancers, in which Mr. Miller is to present Lawrence D'Orsay and Cecilia Loftus as co-stars.

Madame Nazimova is rehearsing a modern play by a young American author, Owen Johnson, the novel and short-story writer. The title of the new three-act tragedy is The Comet, and Madame Nazimova has great faith in it. It was written especially for her. While in preparation A Doll's House will be revived.

Shipman-McKinney Company, who managed Wright Lorimer in Quicksands, have become bankrupt. This state of affairs was brought about by Mr. Shipman's ill health and the enormous expenses incurred by the production and failure of Quicksands.

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK DISAPPEARS.

Tightly stories have been in circulation for over a year involving the name of Raymond Hitchcock, star of A Yankee Tourist, with that of several very young girls. This culminated in the arrest of Hugo C. Voecks, of 366 Third avenue, on a charge of blackmail. Voecks' young sister was one of the girls implicated in the unpleasant stories. Voecks was nabbed by detectives in the dressing-room of Hitchcock in the Astor Theatre, over a week ago, after he had extorted money from the comedian.

When he appeared at the office of the Assistant District Attorney to prosecute this

J. FRANK LONGBOTHAM

In the year 1900 Mr. Longbotham joined the Margarethes Shows as treasurer, and has been associated with that organization in the same capacity ever since. Last fall Mr. Longbotham was representative of the Puhillone Circus with offices at the Hotel America, New York City, which position he will again fill after the close of the present season.

Church. But now the reverend gentleman has resorted to the old-time method of publishing the ban on before performing the ceremony.

Louis P. Vaudaine, formerly with The Music Master, has organized a French comedy company to present plays that are current successes in English in the French tongue. A production of The Thief and My Wife is mentioned among the repertoire. This embryo of a French theatre will start in the Bijou Theatre with Sunday evening and special matinee performances. There will be a weekly change of bill.

Mrs. Leslie Brattan has been sued for the payment of a promissory note by her son, Dudley Carter, and endorsed by the actress for $2,308. The complaint was made by Miles Brothers, stock brokers. Mrs. Carter's lawyers claim that proper demand for the claim had never been made upon the defendant.

About a year ago, Paul Armstrong completed a play called The Renegade for Edmund Breese, but star and playwright had a misunderstanding and the play was withheld by Mr. Armstrong. Lately he has selected William Farnum as a suitable star for the drama and he will himself manage the production.

Mr. George Broadhurst is in Florida completing a play which he has promised to deliver to Nat. C. Goodwin by the first of December.

James C. Williamson, the Australian manager, is in New York to arrange for the production in Australia of The Great Divide and to secure the rights to a number of other plays which have had good runs in New York and other cities of the United States.

Madame Fremstad, the prima donna, arrived on the La Provence November 2. Madame Fremstad was hit by a huge tidal wave that nearly carried her overboard in coming over. She was hurled across the deck and against the deck-house with such force that she was severely bruised and had to be treated by the ship's surgeon. After a brief rest she was able to leave for Chicago to open with the Thomas charge, Oct. 28, he was arrested on complaint of Agent Pisera, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The complaining witness was Helen Von Hagen, 18 years old.

It was admissions made by Hitchcock during the first trial that led to his arrest. He acknowledged to having taken them to his apartment in West Forty-First street and in his automobile to his summer home at Great Neck, L. I. Since then the scandal has grown to enormous proportions, involving a number of girls as well as the name of a prominent millionnaire.

It all grew out of a trial in the Children's Court of the girls who were charged with waywardness.

On Wednesday, after the Grand Jury heard the evidence of the three little girls, six indictments were found against Hitchcock. Warned by a telephone message, the actor disappeared before the sergeant reached the theatre to make the arrest. Since then no trace has been found of him, his wife, Cora Zabelle, believes with her lawyer, that he has either been kidnapped or murdered by the band of alleged blackmailers, who have been hounding him for months.

The police have watched every train and outgoing steamer since, but have been unable to locate their man. Various rumors have been printed. One man having claimed to have seen him aboard a certain train—another to have recognized him in a hotel at North Adams. A clue led to a wireless being sent to the Steamer Majestic, but no answer was received. Lastly comes the news that he was supposedly in Canada.

The theory of suicide at first advanced, is now generally disbelieved. In the meantime the three girls are prisoners of the Children's Court. Hugo Voecks will be prosecuted on the blackmailing charge, and if Raymond Hitchcock is not found his three thousand dollar bond will be forfeited.

For Melancholy is Weber's New Show

Valeska Surratt Scores Hit in Good Songs, Costumes and A Wonderful Coiffure.

By CADY WHALEY.

HIP! HIP! HOORAY! at Weber's Theatre, is as good an antidote for the blues as any entertainment offered at this famous music hall has been for years. Beside the little comedian himself, prominent in the cast are Dick Bernard, Tom Lewis, Amelia Stone, Bessie Clayton, William Gould, Valeska Surratt and Harry Tige. There is the same pretty chorus, and the women of the cast have not overlooked the advantage of being beautifully costumed. Leading the bevy of beauty is Valeska Surratt, in striking gowns, striking hats and striking coiffure. She fits her songs to the costumer she sings. The first is entitled, quite appropriately, The Leader of Fashion. Am I. The "creation" she wears first is a black satin Empire with a deep yoke effect and the sleeves at the top braided in white silk braid. It is crossed front and back and falls in long, graceful lines; the very full sleeves and high collar are of purple satin. The picture hat is also of black satin, with a long, flowing ostrich plume at the left side. This affair later proves to be a sort of cloak, which she throws off and stands radiant in a cloth of gold Princess, crossed front and back and falls in long, graceful lines; the very full sleeves, yoke and high collar is now revealed as sleeves, yoke and high collar to this Frenchy costume. There is a touch of purple in the embroidery used as trimming, and, removing the big, black hat, behold! under it, too, is a small, purple velvet toque, with trimming of cloth of gold to match the gown. She also carries a stick with gold head.

For the song, Old Friends, in which she gave imitations of Lillian Russell, Fay Templeton and Anna Held, while lamenting their absence from Broadway, she wore a Princess of pink satin elaborately embroidered with bangles. Over the gown is thrown a Japanese pelerine of blue long, full, and with the kimono sleeve.

Above the wonderful array of auburn hair, which is a mass of puffs and curls and waves, sits one of those big mushroom hats. It is of blue satin, the tone of the wrap, with a wide band of silver cloth faced with pink satin and having the crown surrounded with white lilles. One noticeable feature of all Miss Surratt's dresses is the wearing of unusually long sleeves over the hands and very high collars.

Lastly, we have the pleasure of seeing her in the gown in which she won her great success as The Gibson Girl last season, and though severely plain, it is more becoming to her than the more elaborate gowns she wears in the earlier part of the evening. It is the rich black velvet Princess with the deep V front and back, and the long, straight lines outlining the perfect figure. The only change she makes is in having a black velvet band tied around her head and deep drop earrings in her ears. The wearing of earrings is a new fad with Miss Surratt.

Amelia Stone, the prima donna of the Weber aggregation, looked pretty in the first act in a well-made dress of lemon colored yellow satin, dancing length, over pale pink, with lace insertion set in the skirt in a fanciful design, an Empire girdle of the satin fastened with Rhinebeck buckles in the back, a square neck outlined with lace, short puffed sleeves, long white gloves and yellow slippers and stockings. The big hat was a Leghorn straw, tied under the chin by velvet ribbon ties and trimmed with a wreath of blue roses and pink and lavender hydrangeas.

Her second change is to a simple dainty frock of pale blue Liberty satin, trimmed with white lace insertion and ticks, and in her dark hair is a big blue ribbon bow. In the third act she wears a more elaborate affair. It is made after the same style as those previously described, except that the material is dark red velvet, embroidered in orchids with the green leaves of the flower as well. This is worn over many underskirts of lavender silk. Her hat is a lavender satin encircled by red roses, with red plumes at the side. The slippers are also of red velvet worn with red silk stockings.

Helen Hines looked chic in a short costume of white Liberty satin strapped with black satin, with black velvet buttons used in the decoration of it; a touch of pink on the bodice, black slippers and stockings; a big black velvet hat with jet crown and a cluster of plumes on the left side.

Again, she looks dainty as she sings and dances in the Tootsie Tripper song with chorus. She has donned a dance frock of the sheerest pink chiffon over pink silk, and many fluffy, lace-trimmed dance skirts; pink roses in her hair, pink stockings, and slippers to match the dress.

The chorus is an unusually pretty and well-dressed one, from the tiny broilers to the six statuesque Gibson Girls, and the show girls in elaborate evening costumes, too numerous to describe. Suffice it to say, in good looks and stylish appearance, they are quite up to the high standard required at Weber's.

ANOTHER MERRY WIDOW.

Henry W. Savage has another Merry Widow company under way. Twelve auburn-haired beauties have been selected for the Maxim scene and began rehearsals last week.

Rehearsals of Miss Hook of Holland are in progress at the Criterion Theatre. This is the musical play in which pretty Christie McDonald will be starred.

"Mrs. Newbold has a great many diamonds hasn't she?"

"I should say so. Before she goes to the opera she sends for a window dresser."

The Texas laws have been interpreted to make the railroads common carriers of circuses. The act was brought about through the efforts of the proprietors of Relation to the Seils-Floto Shows, who waged a bitter fight in behalf of the circus fraternity.

The Denver, Col., Post, which is controlled by the proprietors of the Seils-Floto Shows, comments editorially on the situation as follows:

If Governor Buchtel carries out his reported intention of calling a special session of the legislature to pass a new railroad law, and that law conforms to any extent to that of the State of Texas, the fool lawyers of the fool railroads that have tried to stultify the existing Colorado statute will be sorry they didn't let sleeping dogs lie. The inception of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the recent railroad enactments in many states, have all directly been caused by the stupid arrogance of railroads and their attorneys, who defied the principles of square dealing and the demand of the people for reasonable treatment until all patience was exhausted, and legislation took on something of the character of retaliation.

The last legislature adopted a law to regulate the railroads that was almost innocuous. It was free altogether from any "freak" character, and was even accused by the knocker press of being so friendly to the roads as to be useless for any good purpose. It was by far the most moderate statute passed by any state during the last four years. And it was opposed by every one interested in its enactment, that the roads operating through Colorado would accept it as an example of sane railroad regulation. Unfortunately, that supposition was based on the illusion that the railroads were advised by lawyers of sound judgment, and controlled by managers of good sense. But, immediately the act became operative, the railroads and their attorneys hastened to exhibit the quite profound depth of their foolishness. Instead of welcoming it as an example of sane legislation, that might serve as an object lesson to states inclined to "freak" enactments, they filed suits against its operation on purely technical grounds that had no merits at all in equity. An excellent Commission of notable conservative men had been appointed by Governor Buchtel to administer the new act, and the appeal to the courts by the befuddled railroads estopped that Commission from exercising its very limited power until the appeal should be finally adjudicated upon by the Supreme Court. And, if the court decides that the act is unconstitutional, or legally irregular, in even the most trifling and immaterial way, the people of Colorado will be put to the vexatious and expensive necessity of the calling of a special session of the legislature by Governor Buchtel. Should that legislature adopt a new measure on the lines of that now operating in Texas, the railroads will have only themselves to blame.

Just how rapidly and effectively the Texas law can be shown clearly by the story told in a dispatch from that state. There is in America a Circus Trust, with a capital of something like ten million dollars. It controls all the large shows in the country with the exception of the Denver concern, known as the Sells-Floto Shows. Its influence with the railroads is in proportion to its business. And, like all monopolies, it exercises its power to baffle its more active rivals. Now the Sells-Floto Shows went into Texas recently on their Mexican coast tour. They purposed playing to several of the larger Texan towns on the way. They made their usual arrangements for an extensive itinerary, and there seemed no possibility of any trouble. But the Circus Trust suddenly manifested an unusual interest in the affairs of this active contestant of its domination, and the Sells-Floto people discovered that the transportation rates to be charged by the railroads in Texas were so excessive that the tour, in that state, at least, would have to be abandoned. If the situation had happened in Colorado, where the railroad law has been stultified by the railroads, the tour would have had to have been abandoned, and the show would have incurred a loss of something like $100,000. But the railroad law in Texas is an exceedingly pulsant piece of legislation, and it is administered by a commission of courageous men, whose powers of fine and punishment are great. The Commission is constantly in session, and its methods of procedure are peremptory. It has no long list of unheard cases. It gets down to the substantial merits of an issue at once and decides it then and there. So the Sells-Floto Show appealed to this Commission for justice, and it received justice.

The occasion of the hearing was unusual and not lacking in dramatic qualities. When the case was called, at Austin, ONE MAN appeared for the appellant, Mr. DeWitt Webber, an attorney of Denver. For the railroads there were nearly TWO HUNDRED MEN. Some of them were, of course, attorneys (the railroads have not yet learned that they are better off without their attorneys until a new brand is forthcoming), and some were railroad presidents, and some were only general freight agents. But, altogether, they numbered nearly two hundred. And the Denver attorney had to face them alone. He stated his case clearly and briefly, and asked only that his client should have the same treatment and the same rates as the Circus Trust. The Two Hundred, or a good many of them, rejoiced that his client WAS getting the same treatment and the SAME rates. DeWitt Webber produced irrefutable evidence to prove that that was untrue. Whereon the railroad attorneys shifted their ground and rejoined that the railroads were not common carriers so far as the carrying of circuses and menageries were concerned. And DeWitt Webber left that issue to the Commission. The Commission took that point and settled it out of hand. It decided that the railroads were common carriers everywhere and all the while in Texas, and that the carriage of a circus, or a menagerie, was no exception.

Thereafter that TWO HUNDRED seem to have lost their heads entirely. But they were no more foolish without their heads than with them. They attempted to sidestep by urging plausibly that as a matter of fact they didn't want to transport any more circuses at all. Circuses, apparently, got on their nerves. And again, the Commission came back by saying that as the railroads were common carriers, they had to transport circuses, they must continue to transport circuses or retire from business. The railroad attorneys, and their misguided clients, got into action once more by claiming that they should be allowed to charge more for the Sells-Floto Show than for the Trust Show because the Trust gave them more business. And the Commission said, in effect, that that was a fool argument that wouldn't hold water. Whereon it was decided that the roads must carry circuses because they were common carriers; that they could not increase their rates beyond what they were last year, because then the service cost them exactly now what it did then, and that—in the meantime—they, the Commission, would consider the question of declaring a special rate for circuses and menageries, to be effective on all the railroads running through the State of Texas. They have power to enforce such a rate and power to enforce it in a summary way. And there, for the present, the case stands. One Denver attorney, appearing for a Denver company, won his case before a Texas Railroad Commission against a big and influential road and the opposition of TWO HUNDRED railroad men and railroad attorneys.

And the facts have only been recited here to exhibit the kind of legislation the railroads may conceivably call down upon themselves in Colorado by their fatuous opposition to a statute that was mildness itself compared to the Texas law. Clearly, the incident also proves how useful a comprehensive measure can be when it is administered by a courageous court. When the Colorado law was being considered by the last legislature this paper supported it because of its very moderate character, and its clear intention of treating the railroads doing business in this state, as honest corporations willing to act squarely by the people. When the last sitting of the Interstate Commerce Commission was held in Denver this paper took the view that the differences between the railroads and the shippers of Colorado could be settled by mutual arrangement without the intervention of that Commission's powers. Throughout many recent controversies this paper has urged a course of deliberate reasonableness with regard to legislation affecting all railroads and corporations. It is neither an enemy of the railroads nor a malevolent "Trust Buster." But when an administration friendly to the railroads, and a people friendly to the railroads, too, are defied and troubled by the stubborn folly of railroad attorneys, who attempt to stultify such moderate legislation as that passed by the last session, we think it time to protest on behalf of the public as frequently and as vigorously as the occasion offers. And the fact that the owners of this paper happen to have a proprietary interest in the circus is in no way cogent to the fundamental issues. When the last clown of that circus has made his last joke, and the last Bengal tiger has broken loose—if there are any Bengal tigers in it—and the last tent is furled, The Post will still be a power in this state. This paper had nothing to do with that fight. It was carried on altogether by a Denver attorney, who saw it through alone. Also, The Post is not suggesting that the Texas law should be adopted in Colorado. For a thousand reasons it would rather see the existing law given a trial. The Texas law is perhaps the most effective statute of its kind in the world. But The Post would like to see how the Colorado law works before the more sweeping provisions of the other enactment are resorted to. And it suggests to the railroad interests of Colorado that they should come in out of the wet here and now and withdraw their ill-advised and misguided opposition to the present statute and let the sleeping dogs of public anger lie sleeping.

THE ORIGINAL COLLEGE WIDOW.

George Ade is an alumnus of Purdue University, of Lafayette, Ind., where he graduated in 1887. While at college he was known as a good, all-round fellow, and a fair student, his temperament being more on the lackadaisical order than the energetic. He had a quiet vein of dry wit, but no one supposed, at that time, that he would eventually develop into a popular wit. While at the university Ade was initiated into college Greek-letter secret society, the Sigma Chi fraternity. In June, 1900, the local chapter of this fraternity decided to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the college by publishing a very handsome little book under the title of "A Souvenir." Alumni members of the society were invited to contribute. Ade being among those solicited, he responded by contributing a poem called "The College Widow," which he has since admitted was his chief inspiration for the successful comedy bearing the same title. The following is a verbatim copy of the poem as originally published:

When I was but a Freshman—and that was long ago—

I saw her first—but did not learn her name;
She was at a lecture, I believe, in the first or second row.

And the Junior with her seemed to be her name,

He held her fan all evening and gazed into her eyes.

Thought I: "Now they're engaged—or soon will be."

But afterward they quarreled, as I learned with some surprise,

When the Faculty conferred on him—G. B.

That very spring a rumor in the college spread

That a Senior had her young affections snared;

And after he had graduated, then the two would wed—

'Twas even said her trousseau was prepared.

But this was surely a canard; when I returned next fall,

She had a young Professor on the string.

He used to send her flowers and frequently would call,

And kindly turn her music when she'd sing.

The Prof. received an offer from some college in the East

And left quite unexpectedly one day;

Within a week the charmer wasn't grieving in the least,

When I saw her with a Freshman at the play.

She had a gay flirtation with a Special taking art:

I went with him to call one Sunday night;

He kindly introduced me—then I played a villain's part,

For I made a mess and knocked him out of sight.

Oh, charming college widow, I never can forget The night when you put on my college pin; I pressed your hand and told you that the act you'd not regret,

And you said you'd stick to us through thick and thin.

I remember still the picnics and that moonlight promenade,

Just the night before I paid for my degree,

When we interchanged such sacred vows, and declarations made

That we'd love each other through eternity.

I heard from you quite often—I liked your letters, too;

They were spicy and chuck-full of college news;

But the interval between them soon became a month or two,

And our courtship seemed its interest to lose.

I didn't write for full three months, and one day I deserv'd.

By express, collect, each love-sick billet doux,

And though I swore that I had been both jilted and deceived,

I returned your letters—paid the charges, too.

Last Commencement I revisited the scenes of college life,

Six years had brought about a wondrous change;

I knew a few Professors who were glad to meet my wife,

But the students all seemed out of place and strange.

There was little to recall to me the olden time so sweet,

And so it was a pleasure you may know,

At the Field-day exercises, unexpectedly to meet,

An acquaintance of the happy long ago.

She looked but little older, her laugh was just as gay;

Beside her was a gallant Sophomore,

Who held her parasol aloft and gushed the self-same way.

That I had doubts done in days of yore,

I merely tipped my hat; I feared to intrude my wife.

For I knew that some remark might lightly fall,

Revealing to my better half a chapter of my life

Which I'd rather she should not suspect at all.

E. E. MEREDITH.

We take especial pleasure in reproducing herewith an excellent likeness of "brother" E. E. Meredith, at present filling his second sea in advance of Nixon & Zimmerman's Simple Simon Simple Co. Mr. Meredith is one of the many who has risen from the ranks of the "tank town agents" to one of the best known and best liked agents in the land. For several years he was in advance of Fred Raymond's Missouri Girl, and while in that position he started what is to-day the best known and most quoted agent's paper of them all—The Missouri Breeze. The past summer this creative genius and tireless worker was engaged as special press representative for the Carl Hagenbeck and Great Wallace Shows combined. His engagement was only to cover a short period but during these few weeks he proved to his employers to be "the right man in the right place," and, therefore, was retained until duty called him to take up his work in advance of Simple Simon Simple. Mr. Meredith is a member of that great organization of agents known as the Friars.

AMONG THE AGENTS.

Arch McGovern, one of Ernest Shipman's business manager, was recently transferred from Anna Day's company, which is appearing in When Knighthood Was in Flower, to Wright Lorimer's Company. Mr. Norcross succeeded Mr. McGovern with Anna Day. Mr. McGovern is one of the best of agents and one who has a world of friends.

Frank Abbott, the well-known agent, got the lang on Mr. Hurtig, manager of the Batastini Theatre, Syracuse, N. Y., by telling him that Mrs. Fliske was now with Tess of the D'Urbervilles, and would appear in Ambrosia that same night with the result that Mr. Hurtig being a great lover of Mrs. Fliske's work, journeyed to Ambrosia to find that it was the regular one-night stand company. If you know Mr. Hurtig you can imagine what he said.

Homer Drake, agent for The Bay (John and Emma), will take out his own company next season. It will be one of our friend Shakespeare's plays.

"Dago" the ticket for Anna Day's performance for the privilege of posting up a couple of sheets. About two weeks later the "Dago" presented the ticket and when told that it was no good, that this was the Buster Brown Company and the other show had gone he looked at his ticket and then said, "She's good, he says right on ticket 'Anna Day.'"

Leon Davis, advertising agent for John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels is getting some great showings up in York State.

Harry S. Hopping is doing fine ahead of the Central Buster Brown Company.

Matt Nasher recently closed as agent of Cox 900, and joined Marian Ballou, who is appearing in The Little Organ Grinder, as manager back.

BIRTHS.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Virge Campbell, daughter, October 23. Virge Campbell is one of the owners of the Campbell Brothers' consolidated shows.

MARRIAGES.

GERSTENSANG-THOAME—Geo. H. Thoame, one of the bass players in the orchestra with Madam Butterfly, to Miss Jeanette Gerstensang a pretty geisha girl in the same company, October 23, at New York. The marriage was the culmination of a romance of one week.

LESTER-CODY—M. J. Cody to Miss Kate Lester, a member of the Man of the Hour Company, at Grand Rapids, Mich., October 23. Miss Lester is well and popularly known.

BENNETT-ARNWINE—Walter Arnwine, electrician of the Family Theatre, Elmira, N. Y., to Miss Trixie Bennett, appearing at the Italia Theatre, same city, October 21.

DEATHS.

W. T. SHERWOOD, first tenor and manager of the Bowery Comedy Quartette, with Clark's Runaway Girls, died Monday, October 28, at Washington University Hospital, St. Louis, Mo. Typhoid fever was the cause of his death. His remains were sent to his home in West Hoboken, N. J., where interment was made.

BESSIE LAMB, formerly connected with Reilly & Ward, also Hurtig & Seaman, died at her home, 438 Hopkins street, Cincinnati, Ohio, October 30.

CINCINNATI*WHEN THE YOKE DON'T FIT

Last week we had The Hypocrites at the Grand. The original company is still interpreting the great Henry Arthur Jones play, and it proved to be as popular in Cincinnati as elsewhere, for the house was crowded at every performance except Friday night, when inclement weather served to keep the people away. This week Eleanor Robson in Salomé Jane.

Mary Manueing returned to the Lyric last week in Glorious Betsy and played to good business, duplicating her success of last season. This week, Mary Shaw in Mrs. Warren's Profession.

There certainly was some real vaudeville at the Columbia last week. The bill was well balanced and it was indeed puzzling to tell which was really the headliner, but one thing certain is that none of them had anything on the sketch entitled, Peaches, with Wm. Courtleigh in the leading role. It is without doubt one of the best sketches in vaudeville to-day, and received rounds of applause at every performance. Jack Wilson, Franklyn Battie and Afa Lane, in a black-face sketch, produced laughter for twenty minutes that will long be remembered. Carbrey Brothers presented as neat a dancing turn as was ever seen at the Columbia and it was only their seventh week behind the footlights, too. Bowers, Waiters and Crooker, as three "rubes," and the Quaker City Quartet, made decisive hits. The title, Seven Madcaps, is suggestive to the regular vaudeville patrons, of a lot of girls who can do nothing, but out of the large sized bosoms there came some merit in the form of acrobatic dancing. Dorothy Keaton played the banjo in excellent style, and the Spanish dance, the opening act of the bill, was above the ordinary. Taken all in all, it was about the best bill of the season.

When We Were Twenty-One, was effectively revived by the Forepaugh Stock Company last week, and it may be set down as the best thing done by the local players in a long time. Herschell Mayall, of course, had the leading role, and played it most effectively. Miss Adair was also pleasing, as was the remainder of the cast. The scenic artist's work was also distinguished.

Parted On Her Bridal Tour, tells the story of the play at Hirsch's last week. The hero and the heroine, the designing villain, who weaves the web of misunderstanding about their feet, and the innocent prattling child, were all there. Miss Katherine Roth, in the leading role, was good, and Baby Barker, the child actress, made a hit with her singing. Some clever specialties were also introduced.

That the famous cartoon-comedy, Buster Brown, has not lost the popularity it gained when its first production several years ago, was demonstrated at the Walnut, where "Tige" bit a chunk out of "Buster Brown's" apparel at every performance last week. Master Rice, as Buster, is at the head of the well balanced company, and Jack Bell, as Tige, Buster's guardian, shared honors with the Master, as a laugh producer. Leila Cautua, as Mary Jane, was pleasing, and had them all guessing as to her age. Numerous specialties by various members of the company, were introduced and they all succeeded in drawing rounds of applause. The assistance of the beautiful and sprightly chorus helped the production considerably.

The Silver Slipper, that lively, tuneful musical comedy, was the best thing of the season offered by the Fisher Opera Company, as presented at Robinson's last week. In fact it proved so successful that Manager John Fisher decided to hold it over for this week, but after the performance Sunday evening, he announced the closing of the company. It is said the stringency in the eastern money market, in a measure, was responsible for the sudden curtailment of the organization, as Manager Fisher found his available resources tied up, when he sought financial relief in the east. Unless a change is decided upon in a day or two, Mr. Fisher will leave with his forces for New York.

The bill at the Lyceum last week was, Lottie, the Poor Saleslady, and the company succeeded in delighting good houses all week. There was just enough comedy to relieve the recital and presentation of Lottie's troubles, who played her part most effectively. Crane Wilbur was a hero of the first rank, and Lydia Powell, the villainess, succeeded in arousing the tempest of the "gallery gods."

Billy Watson and his winning combination, sold forth at Peoples', and his clever company was witnessed by good houses all week. Numerous novelties were introduced in the act, which provoked much laughter. The chorus was above the ordinary.

Jack Reid, at the head of Louis Roble's Kalckerbochers, more than made good at the Standard last week. The vaudville was short and sweet and the burlesques were full of mirth and melody.

Business has improved so much over last season, which was at all times good, that Manager Nall, of the New Risk, has been forced to increase his wardrobe and stage capacity, which is now about fourteen hundred pair, and most of them are out every evening.

THE RAIN MAKING SHOW.

Bonheur Bros.' Yellow Wagon Show got the name of being a rain maker in 1901, the year of the drought, because farmers in the southwest noted the fact that rain fell nearly every where it made a stand to show. Since it travels by rail its title has been changed to "The Golden Mascot Show" and it seems that drought tides before it as of yore. The Pilgrim Bard sends The Billboard verses as follows about the old Yellow Wagon Show.

It was several years ago.
When the Bonheur Brothers' Show,
That travels now in luxury on a train.
O'er the western prairie land,
Trudged along through dust and sand,
While the crops were burning up for want of rain.

CHORUS.

And those old-timers tell you,
With a knowing look of wonder,
How the rain poured down.
Mid the lightning and the thunder
And caused the grass to live up,
And made the cornstalks grow,
Wherever Bonheur Brothers' traveled
With their yellow wagon show.

But the wagons were too slow
And the Golden Mascot Show
Now speeds along in special coaches grand,
While the farmers point with pride
To the show that turned the tide
And drove the doughty demon from the land.

CHORUS.

Still those old-timers tell you,
With a knowing look of wonder,
How the rain poured down.
Mid the lightning and the thunder;
And caused the grass to live up
And made the cornstalks grow
Wherever Bonheur Brothers traveled
With their yellow wagon show.

CLOSING DAYS WITH BUFFALO BILL'S WILD WEST.

We experienced our first rain in six weeks at Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7. It was only a shower, however, and did not interfere with our having two big turnaways.

At Opelika, Ala., 8, we only gave one show on account of a long run to Montgomery, where we arrived late, and had a long haul, but gave two performances to capacity business.

Dothan, Ala., was good for two performances.

We only gave one performance at Valdosta, Ga., 11, on account of a long run to Jacksonville, Fla., where we gave two performances the 12, to big business. As the second section was leaving Jacksonville, night of 12, four cars were derailed and four men slightly injured, which prevented the train from reaching Savannah until 6 p. m., 13.

Savannah was up to expectations, giving us an afternoon turnaway and good night business, 14.

Charleston and Florence, S. C., were also big, giving us four capacity houses.

We gave two performances at Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 17, to first-class business.

Goldsboro was good for one show. David Castello, the veteran equestrian and trainer of equestrians, who resides at Henderson, N. C., paid us a visit here. Mr. Castello has a fine family, who are well known in the show business. Mrs. Castello, nee Waller, was known in her maidenhood days as Zazel, doing a high-wire as well as the cannon act. She came to this country from England in 1882, under contract with the Cooper & Jackson Show, where she met and was married to Mr. Castello.

October 19, we reached our goal, Richmond, Va., the closing stand, where business was up to our usual standard.

D. Ballard, who has so efficiently catered to the Wild West for the past five years, gave us a fine closing dinner, presided over by Buffalo Bill in person, who delivered one of his felicitous speeches as is his custom on these occasions.

Manager Fred B. Hutchinson and assistants, started for winterquarters, Bridgeport, Conn., immediately after the show, night of the 19th. Never did any show have such a delightful fall or such a prosperous season in every way as Buffalo Bill's Wild West during the tour just ended.

PYRAMUS.

HELPED TO ADVERTISE THE SHOW.

Quite a sensation and no small amount of excitement was caused at the police headquarters in New Haven, Conn., Thursday, October 17, when Cheyenne Bill Weadick and Miss Florence La Due, who are with Joseph Santley's Billy, the Kid Company, giving larlat exhibitions on the streets to advertise the show, rode up to police headquarters to secure permission to do their stunts on the streets. It seems that a cowboy who has been holding up New Haven citizens at the point of a gun, lately escaped from jail and when Cheyenne Bill and Miss La Due galloped up Cheyenne Bill was taken by the bandit. The result was that when he got off his horse and went to the station house in quest of the chief of police everyone in the corridor ran before him and the chief himself was in the act of phoning for the sheriff. After a satisfactory explanation, the chief willingly consented to their working on the streets and asked them to give an exhibition for his benefit, which they did in the presence of about 3000 people. Needless to say, it was indeed a good advertisement for the company.

ROUGH RIDER INJURED.

Miss Anna Shaffer, who just closed a twenty-seven weeks engagement with Buffalo Bill's Wild West at Richmond, Va., attempted to ride a wild and vicious horse at Vincennes, Ind., October 30 and was seriously injured. She was making her way to Old Mexico where she intended giving exhibitions of her skill by riding in the various bull rings. At Vincennes she was advertised to give a free exhibition of riding a Montana horse which killed a man three years ago and had not been ridden since. When Miss Shaffer mounted the animal, instead of it bucking, it reared straight up in the air, fell backward on her, the horn of the saddle hitting her in the side, breaking three of her ribs and otherwise injuring her. It is expected she will be in the hospital six or seven weeks.

CIRCUS GOSSIP.

Harry F. Curtiss closed his second season with Car No. 1 of the Great Cole Bros. Shows at Illico, Indian Territory, October 28. The roster of the car at the closing stand was as follows: Charles Martin, boss billposter; F. O. Rossman, ass't. billposter; Geo. Houghstelling, Special agent; Louis Houser, S. H. Jones, Arch Puttman, Ed. Feeney, Jack Reynold, J. Magby, J. Mulverhill, J. Allburg, F. Russo, P. Bryan, L. Morton, Harry Snyder, Lithographer and John Carmon, porter. Mr. Curtiss found an elegant gold watch on his desk the closing day which was given him by the boys of the car.

H. L. (Buck) Massie for thirty weeks General Contracting Agent of the Sells-Floto Shows, recently closed his engagement with the show and will winter with his wife, Mlle. Hilda, the contortionist, (whom Buck, as he is known to circus friends, married in New Orleans last September), at Oakland, California. He is favorably known as one of the closest contracting circus agents in the profession and succeeded in reducing licenses for the Sells-Floto Shows this season lower than they experienced on any previous tour.

Mlle. Amy, the well-known sword swallower, arrived in New York Oct. 27, after a successful season with the John Robinson Shows. She will winter in the metropolis, where she will be able to spend some of her leisure time considering a goodly number of tempting offers for a 1908 engagement. Amy is the picture of good health, and is a regular daily caller at the office of The Billboard.

Barlow Brothers' closed their season at Benkelman, Nebraska, October 26 to excellent business afternoon and evening. They are now busily engaged at their winterquarters there, fitting up more wagons for next season when they intend to tour Nebraska, Kansas, and Colorado.

Wm. H. Delly after closing his fourth season as manager of Gollmar Brothers' Advertising Car No. 1, has resumed his old position as advertising agent of the Crawford Theatre, Leavenworth, Kans., this making his fourth season with Manager Cunningham.

The Cliffords, sword swallowers, closed with the Gollmar Brothers' Show after a very successful season and are now enjoying a much needed vacation at Hot Springs, Ark. They will open in vaudeville November 25 at the Palace Theatre, Memphis, Tenn.

Frank Hyatt, superintendent of the Barnum & Bailey Show, is at his home in Corynerville, Ind., where he will spend the winter.

Frank Broomking and MaBelle, snake enchantress, with the John Robinson Circus, were Billboard callers, Monday, October 28, enroute to their home.

Mr. & Mrs. J. W. Bonhomme closed their season with the Frank Adams Southern Railroad Show at Rule, Texas, October 10.

Bonheur Brothers' have purchased two large cars to add to the Golden Mascot Shows next season.

Hargreaves Shows have pulled into winterquarters at Hammond, Ind.

A Circus Episode

By Sam J. Banks, General Press Agent Great Hargreaves Railroad Shows.

The great modern circus, with its veritable army of employees, is sometimes the scene of extraordinary happenings of which the public hear little or nothing, owing to the fact that the circus manager doesn't desire a certain kind of notoriety.

The actresses and actors employed by a big show number, approximately, one hundred. A keen rivalry invariably exists between both men and women. Sometimes this rivalry assumes such proportions that it develops into malicious jealousy, as may be seen by the following narrative, which is based on events which actually occurred in the United States not more than twenty-five years ago. For obvious reasons, the characters are given fictitious names:

The circus, with which I was the equestrian director, had been out of winter quarters about a month when the three Mazenls, aerialists, joined the "trick." The Mazenls—Tony, Nicolo and Catherine, aged, respectively, 30, 25 and 20 years—were members of a prominent Italian family of acrobats and trapeze performers. They had created an enormous sensation throughout the principal European vaudeville houses, and this was their first appearance in America. Prior to the coming of the three Mazenls, the aerialistic honors had been divided about equally between the Belmark family and the DeChelu brothers. But when the three Mazenls came over to our show and demon-

THE UNITED STATES TENT AND AWNING CO., Chicago, Ills.

GENTLEMEN:—Kindly accept our sincere thanks for your promptitude in sending us the new and other canvas paraphernalia that you built for us this season. We received the same long before the allotted time, and you are also entitled to much praise for the excellent workmanship on everything. The materials are all of the best, the roping beyond criticism, and the general make-up of the big show and side-show tents are the finest that we ever had built during our 16 years in the tented show business. All of the tents fit perfect and besides are beautiful of construction. You can always count on the Sun Brothers Shows patronizing your house in the future. We wish you unbounded success in your business, which you certainly deserve.

Yours very truly,

Worthing, Ind., May 17, 1907.

strated, in the most spectacular manner, that they were far superior to both the Belsmark family and the DeCheln brothers, the latter troupe grew very jealous. From the very first performance of the Mazenls they made the greatest hit in their respective line of work. The intricate and seemingly impossible feats, which they performed with apparent ease, were marvelous, to say the least. Everybody connected with the show (except the rival aerialists) was enthusiastic over the proficiency of the newcomers. At the end of the first week the Mazenls had been with us the manager said to me: "I'm thinking about featuring the three Mazenls." We talked the matter over and I stated that I really thought they were worth featuring. A few days later just before the matinee performance, the manager came to me and said: "Oh, so-and-so, I think we had better feature the Mazenls; you may begin this afternoon. I have sent their photos, together with some descriptive matter, to the printing house with an order for several stands of paper."

So, that afternoon I arranged the display in such a manner that during the rendition of the act the three Mazenls had the "big top" entirely to themselves. That is to say, while they were performing in the centre of the huge canvas all other acts were stopped. When the orator announced "the greatest feature of the kind in the world, the three Mazenls, earth's champion eccentric aerialists," I noticed much excitement among the male and female circus folk who were grouped about the dressing room door. The Mazenls were as much surprised when they realized that they were being "featuring" as were the rest of the acting contingent. But the Italian troupe, who were personally very pleasant, unostentatious people, took the matter coolly and, instead of exhibiting any nervousness, they even surpassed their former efforts. The audience went wild over the act.

That night, after the show, I joined a group of fellow showmen in the privilege car. Max, the junior member of the Belsmark family, a fellow about twenty-six years of age, was there. But he never uttered a word. Everybody in the room, including myself, was frankly enthusiastic over the superior ability of the Mazenls, and we didn't hesitate to give vent to our opinions. While we were engaged in discussing their act, the manager strolled in. After listening a minute or two, he said, addressing everybody in general: "They have the most unique and wonderful act that was ever conceived. I have never seen, in all my twenty years' experience, such a marvelous aerial performance."

As this was said I noticed Max Belsmark turn very pale and bite his lip. Subsequently, Max got up and left the car. As he passed me I noticed an unnatural, cat-like expression in his eyes. Ordinarily he was affable but he left the room without bidding anybody good-night.

The show went along smoothly for a month, the three Mazenls never failing to win laurels every day. Nor did their sudden and signal success have any effect on them one way or the other. They simply remained the same unassuming, pleasant folks we had first known. From the very first the Belsmarks were exceedingly jealous of the Mazenls. At the end of a month the former grew so envious that they would not speak to the latter. This furnished a current subject for conversation among the circus folk.

One afternoon I overheard Max Belsmark say to himself: "To-night I'll put a stop to it; they won't get all the glory after to-night." At the time I thought nothing of the remark, but afterward the terrible meaning of these words became as plain as day to me.

We were playing a good-sized city, and in the afternoon the Mazenls made their usual hit. But, as they were giving their exhibition during the evening, something startling happened. Everybody who was connected with the show will always remember it. The Mazenls had about half finished their act when the trouble came. At a certain juncture of the act they clasped hands and jumped from the flying trapeze to the net beneath. They jumped, but to the surprise of everybody when they struck the net it parted and the trio fell through, piling up in a heap. The audience became frantic. Countless women fainted, and it was with the utmost difficulty that the monstrous mass of spectators could be compelled to keep their places. Scores of circus attaches appeared on the scene in less time than it takes to record the fact. I was one of the first to arrive at the spot where the Mazenls had fallen. Imagine my amazement when, upon reaching the trio, I saw the two male members assisting the young lady to her feet. In a twinkling I saw that they had miraculously escaped serious injury and possible death. It so happened that a large pile of thick matting, used in acrobatic and tumbling acts, had been left on the ground directly under the netting. The Mazenls had fortunately landed on this matting, their fall thereby being broken. Aside from a severe shaking up and the nervous shock naturally resulting from such an awful experience, the Mazenls were none the worse because of their fall.

The manager, perceiving that a panic in the audience was imminent, suggested that the three Mazenls go upon the centre of the stage and bow to the spectators. This was done just in time to avert a stampede. The onlookers kept their seats; albeit everybody in the huge tent yelled and cheered for many minutes.

The remainder of the circus program was carried through without incident.

Throughout the entire performance I thought hard about the accident. Knowing, as I did, that the net was practically new, it was a mystery to me why it should have torn apart. Suddenly I remembered the words which I heard Max Belsmark utter to himself during the afternoon. My suspicions were aroused, and I determined to make a thorough investigation. The more I thought of the incident the more convinced did I become that Max Belsmark was the one who had placed the lives of the three Mazenls in jeopardy. At the first opportunity I examined the netting and, upon close scrutiny, it was evident that it had been recently cut with a knife. This confirmed my suspicion and I looked for the manager. I found him in the private apartment of his Pullman car and told him everything I knew concerning the accident. I finished by saying: "I believe that Max Belsmark knows a great deal about that cut net." The manager listened attentively to what I said and then remarked: "Max doubtless knows something about this affair, and I will have a talk with him. Go and ask Max to come here to my stateroom." It was about midnight, and I found Max in the privilege car playing cards. When I whispered in his ear that the manager wished to see him at once on important business he started and grew ashy pale. Then, composing himself, he said "all right," and shortly afterward we entered the manager's stateroom. Arriving there the manager, a determined look on his face, said sternly: "Max, what do you know about the net which broke to-night? Come out with it. You might as well tell us everything, as we already have enough evidence to land you in jail. A truthful statement will help you more than anything else can. Now, tell us frankly."

The "bluff" on the manager's part acted like magic for Max Belsmark's heavy frame began to shake and he sank into a nearby chair, sobbing like a little child. Then he spoke up: "Oh, don't prosecute me, please don't. I was mad with jealousy when I cut the netting. I alone am guilty, but please don't prosecute me. I knew not what I was doing. I was the happiest man on earth when somebody told me the Mazenls weren't hurt. Had any one of them been killed I would have committed suicide. All the evening my conscience kept telling me to inform them of their impending danger, and yet I didn't dare do so. Don't prosecute me; for the sake of my family, don't."

The poor fellow broke down completely and begged so hard to be forgiven that it was really pathetic.

The manager gazed hard at the floor. For five minutes he was silent, then he raised his head and looking straight into the eyes of Max Belsmark, said: "Nobody outside of this group knows anything about your dastardly deed. You really ought to be punished, but, owing to the fact that the Mazenls escaped injury, I have decided to let you go."

The circus manager painted a vivid word picture of what might have happened to the three Mazenls, then gave Max Belsmark a severe lecture, and the fellow cried like a baby. It was more than I could endure, so I got up and left the car.

A BOOMERANG CONTRACT

The author of A Temperance Town and A Texas Street spent much of his time in his country home; but one day he appeared unexpectedly in New York at the Lamb's Club. Going straight to the cafe, he made one large, inclusive gesture, which brought every man present about him. "It's on me," said Mr. Hoyt. Then he told his story.

It was before the days of electric and gasoline motors, and he had bought a little steam yacht. He engaged as his engineer one of his Yankee neighbors and offered him liberal wages, with the provision that the engineer should find his own coal. It was a long way to the nearest coal yard, and Mr. Hoyt had all the trouble he was looking for to keep his own furnace fed.

"But where shall I get the coal?" the new engineer asked.

"I don't care," said the foremost of American stage humorists. "Steal it."

So the bargain was struck. All went well until in the early autumn Mr. Hoyt went into his cellar to see how much coal he would have to have brought him for the winter. Of several tons on hand in the spring only two or three scuttlefuls remained. The theft was speedily traced to the engineer.—Saturday Evening Post.

A REVIEW OF THE SEASON.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 5. One week from to-night we will all be on our way home, the circus closing its season at Fulton, Ky., Nov. 12.

Seven and a half months of prosperity, such as even this show has seldom seen have marked this season's tour. With the record of losing but one show, and with packed houses everywhere, I have had a season that the Ringling Brothers may recall with just pride.

With the closing stand in Kentucky, we will have pitched our tents in thirty-three states and territories, covering the entire country from Boston to San Francisco, and from Chicago to New Orleans, and traveling in all about twenty thousand miles. We have to record the accident at Albany, N. Y., which cost the life of Assistant Property Master Harry Parrish, and the sudden deaths of Clinton Loggins at Boston, and Edward Keeley, at San Francisco. With these sad exceptions, the season has been one of good fortune to all.

Business began with a rush during the opening engagement at the Chicago Coliseum April 24. With intervening stops at Milwaukee and Clinton, Ill., we played the week of April 29 at St. Louis. In rain and cold, to record business for that city. The route then continued with single stops at Anderson, Ind.; Piqua, Columbus and Uhrichsville, O.; Wheeling, W. Va.; Washington, Johnstown, Uniontown and Bradock, Pa.; Youngstown, Akron and Cleveland, O., and a week in New York State at Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Schenectady and Troy, bringing the show for the week of May 27 into Boston, where the record was again broken in rainy and cold weather.

The route then lay as follows for the next few weeks: Worcester, Mass., June 3; Providence, R. I., 4 and 5; Fall River, Mass., 6; New Bedford, 7; Brockton, 8; Lynn, 10; Salem, 11; Lawrence, 12; Manchester, N. H., 13; Lowell, Mass., 14; Fitchburg, 15; Springfield, 17; Hartford, Conn., 18; New Haven, 19; Bridgeport, 20; Waterbury, 21; Holyoke, Mass., 22; Herkimer, N. Y., 24; Auburn, 26; Batavia, 27; Dunkirk, 28; Jamestown, 29; Elvira, O., July 1; Canton, 2; Wooster, 3; Mt. Vernon, 4; Tiffin, 5; Kenton, 6; Marion, 8; Kokomo, 9; Crawfordsville, 10; Paris, Ill., 11; Litchfield, 12; East St. Louis, 13; Macomb, 15; Rock Island, 16; Monmouth, 17; Fort Madison, Ia., 18; Centerville, 19; Brookfield, Mo., 20.

The usual Kansas City turnaways are recorded for July 22, and excellent business in intense heat at Lawrence, Kan., 23; Junction City, 24; Lincoln, Neb., 25; Fremont, 26; Kearney, 27; Denver, 29-30, was a case of tent too small, though it's the largest ever built, and Colorado was also good at Pueblo, 31; Colorado Springs August 1, and Boulder, 2.

All of Cheyenne, which, of course, isn't much, turned out Aug. 3. A long Sunday run brought us into Utah at a prosperous time at Ogden, 5; Salt Lake City, 6; Logan, 7, whence we proceeded to Idaho Falls, Idaho, 8; Butte, Mont., 9; Dillon, 10; Boise, Id., 12; Baker City, Ore., 13; LaGrande, 14; Walla Walla, Wash., 15; Coitax, 16; Spokane, 17; Bellingham, 19; Everett, 20; Seattle, 21 and 22; Tacoma, 23; Centralia, 24; Portland, Ore., 26-27; Salem, 28; Albany, 29; Eugene, 30; Medford, 31.

Then followed five weeks of sunshine, flowers and big business in California, at Redding, Sept. 2; Chico, 3; Marysville, 4; Sacramento, 5; Santa Rosa, 6; Napa, 7; Oakland, 8 and 9; Alameda, 10; Santa Cruz, 11; Salinas, 12; San Francisco, 13-16; San Jose, 17; Stockton, 18; Fresno, 19; Visalia, 20; Bakersfield, 21; Los Angeles, 22-23; Santa Ana, 26; Riverside, 27; San Bernardino, 28.

Over the hot sands we sped into Arizona, at Phoenix, 30; Tucson, Oct. 1; Bisbee, 2, and Douglas, 3, touching New Mexico at Deming, 4, and hurrying through Texas at El Paso, 5; Abilene, 7; Weatherford, 8; Fort Worth, 9; Dallas, 10, and Sherman, 11, ending the week at Duran, 12.

Business still continued prosperous at Shawnee, Okla., 14; El Reno, 15; Enid, 16; Hobart, 17; Lawton, 18; Chickasha, I. T., 19; Tulsa, 21; Muskogee, 22; Fort Smith, Ark., 23; Fayetteville, 24; Aurora, Mo., 25, and Jonesboro, Ark., 26, where the first rain since August struck us.

Last week began with capacity at Memphis and remained big at Clarksville, Miss., 29; Greenville, 30; Port Gibson, 31; Baton Rouge, Nov. 1; New Orleans, Nov. 2-3, and McComb, Miss., 4.

The prospects here are as usual. The route winds up with Kosciusko, Miss., 6; Aberdeen, 7; Tupelo, 8; Birmingham, Ala., 9; Jackson, Tenn., 11; Fulton, Ky., 12.

With Otto Ringling in control back with the show; Tom Buckley in charge of the ticket wagon, with C. L. Rose and James J. Brooks as his assistants, and Alfred Witsenhausen conducting the down-town sale, and Mark Kirkenhead in the reserved seat wagon, great crowds have been handled without confusion. The eke show has been headed under Leo Graham's management, and Edward Alexander with his corps of trustees at the big show entrance has kept a level head and a calm tongue under the most trying circumstances.

The adjusting has been done by Charles Davis, Charles E. White is the special officer, Dr. D. J. Riley the chief tongue Inspector, and Jules Turnour the postmaster. The soft snaps with the show have been held by William Carr and John Nevin, twenty-four-hour men.

Alt. T. Ringling has directed the press department, his staff being James J. Brady, Thomas Namack and Guy F. Steely, with Chas. A. White doing the contracting.

John Ringling has routed the show, and his excursion agent is Ralph Peckham.

Charles Ringling has guided the army of advertisers, his lieutenants being Frank Estes, manager Car No. 1; Thomas Dailey, manager Car No. 2; George Goodhart, manager Car No. 3; M. F. Nagle and W. H. Horton, special agents.

The General contractor of the show is Samuel McCrackin; N. J. Petit, special contractor; Walter S. Wappenstein, checker-up, and J. B. Abacom, the route-rider.

The performance this season is the best ever presented by the Ringling Bros., rehearsed and directed by Al. Ringling with William (Bud) Gorman as his assistant, and Al. C. Sweet, band director. A list of the principal performers follows: The two Kauanan Troupes, cyclists; The Four Holloways, wire; Charles Carlos, dogs; The Eight Belfords, acrobats; The Clarkians; The Eight Jordans, trapeze; The Kittonurias Japanese Troupe, jugglers; C. M. Roode, wire; The Three Noetzelis, wire; Lili Kerslake, pigs; Art and Florence Jarvis, riding; The Clark Brothers, riders; Mr. and Mrs. Hobson, riders; Mr. and Mrs. Devine, riders; Mr. and Mrs. Stickney, riders; Marguerite and Hanley, acrobats; John Miller, contortionist; Harry DeMarco, contortionist; Livingston Trio, burlesque girls; The Aerial Smiths; The Three Millettes, trapeze; Nola Satterfield, rider; The Party Brothers, head walkers; The Aerial Shaw's; The Alvarez Troupe, burlesque bars; Pearl Sonder, Geo Sardor and Geo. Kealey, elephant performers; The Lagard Troupe, acrobats; The Marlo Troupe, head balancing; The Mirre-Golem Family, acrobats; Riccobono, trainer of the "Good-night" horses; The Four Marnello-Marnitz acrobats; The Toreadores, burlesque bull-fighters; Horton and Linden, burlesque bars; Jos. La Rex, contortionist; Prost Trío, comedy acrobats; Frank Shadel, burlesque rider; Mr. and Mrs. John Agee, riders; The Bedini Family, riders; Jack Foley, Roman rider; John Mercer, mule act; Roy McDonald, rider; Schenk-Marvelly Troupe, acrobats.

Headliners among the clowns are Al. White, George Hartzell, Dick Ford, Al. Miano, Jules Turnour, Tom Roberts, The Three Millions, Frank Morris, C. Hopper, Stewart Butterfield, John Tripp, George Kealey, Dan Curtis, Cecil Orwin.

The cuisine has been in the charge of A. L. Webb, who has fed us well. William Fay is the steward of the dining cars, "Boston" and "Washington," and Sid Rubin is manager of the cafe car, "Seattle." At the head of the commissary department is H. H. Weaver, and Robert Taylor is train master.

The side show attractions are: Ella Ewing, Missouri giantess; Little Lord Robert, smallest man on earth; Sig. Arcaria Troupe, impalement act; Leo Hario, ventriloquist; Verda Wren, athletic wonder; Mohammed Kahn, Hindoo conjurer; Rose Valerio, serpent enchantress; Eddie Badger, musical act; Charles B. Tripp, armless phenomenon; Old Zip, original "What-is-it," and Wolford and Nevella, German comedians.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 3, 1907.

My Dear "Billy Boy":

We were to close the season yesterday at Reading, O., but we didn't. The Robinssons did a trick like this in the "nineties." The weather was warm then; it was cold this time. It began to tell on the animals and the close came at Xena, Saturday, Oct. 26. We opened the season in rain, and we closed in a downpour. The weather was frightful during the entire season. A number of shows quit business on account of it.

I am tardy in writing about the last two weeks of our road tour. I got mixed up with Mrs. Doc Waddell, who visited Mr. and Mrs. William Curtis, and that accounts for it. Poor old Doc had to stay close to shore during her visit. I didn't get to be with him myself.

Our business at Frankfort, Ind., was high, considering the cool atmosphere. The date was Monday, Oct. 14. Ah Johnson stole two of the harleque riding mules, and with Maud Franks, lady bag puncher, rode out into the woods 14 miles and married her. This is bona-fide. Doc Shilders did the piloting that landed the license. This Shilders can certainly dodge the Indiana laws. I think Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are a nice couple. I am sure they will always be happy.

At Portland, Ind., Tuesday, Oct. 15, it rained.

At Portland, Ind., Tuesday, Oct. 15, it rained.

At Portland, Ind., Tuesday, Oct. 15, it rained. The wind is strong every time a trade wind passes over Portland. Business fair. Two shows.

It was cloudy and cold at St. Marys, Wednesday, Oct. 16. The reservoir looked natural, and as I looked at it I thought of Lafayette Sours (George Lafayette) who has put more bullets in other people's legs than any other known being, and Billy Milligan, that hammered down Akron, O., clown. There was a day when these two individuals could call every fish in the reservoir by name. Well, we gave two shows at St. Marys to light attendance. I got the blues and took the street cars for Fostoria. I rode all over Northern Ohio to get there. I put in the rest of the night at Judge Hale's place, in the company of a number of men. I had nerve to do this, but I preferred it to stopping at the Hayes House.

Thursday, Oct. 17, was the Fostoria date. The day was nice, but those cool currents of air were about. The people instead of going to the circus put in their winter coat. Two shows; fair business.

Friday, Oct. 18, found us at Delaware. "Crimp" was here in earnest. Someone stole $2,500 from J. W. King, who had the wild west with the show. The "nigger" porter on his car was gone and all hands shouted bigger thief. I don't believe it. I noticed slicker looking fellows than the porter about. Harry Exley, the detective, arrested no one. The elephant "Tom" said to have the scent of a bloodhound, was put on the nigger's tracks, but failed to find him. Police departments are now talking of adding elephants for use in running down criminals.

Lancaster, Saturday, Oct. 19, proved all right for business. Two shows and a reception to Uncle John Richardson, of Cambridge. Doc Minturn, that prince of New Lexington, and Hazlett, his friend, the New Lexington hill-poster, were visitors. I remained over Sunday in Lancaster and had a jolly time. I went out with Bill Cutler, manager of the Opera House, Harry Throckmorton, who mixes fancy drinks, and Will Scully, the shoemaker, and like Ellis, who lives at Lancaster. Say, they took me the pace that kills. I saw things the whole of the next week.

Nelsonville, Monday, Oct. 21, proved a dandy. The night house was big. I did not find Jack Taylor and his curvets at home. W. H. Hatch showed up. He was out with a show but hit the jagged rocks. The bareback rider, who in days charmed under the name of Betty Brooks, was a visitor. She is now a widow and resides at Athens, O. Her present name is Mrs. C. D. Smith.

Wellston was Tuesday, Oct. 22, and the business was hum, hum, hum. If W. X. Y. Z. Yard, the Wellston manager, attended the circus I didn't see him. The theatre manager's name at Jackson is Rauf. I was once with a show and came near freezing to death on the stages of these two opera houses. I was permitted to make a speech and said: "It is cold even if we have a roof to cover me and a yard to play in." A cousin of mine lives at Wellston, and I got something to eat. One of the big balloons out of St. Louis passed over Wellston. The Associated Press, hacked by the Board of Trade and Doc Waddell, wired all over the country: "Bag of sand dropped with note attached reading: 'If Harvey Wells were alive would visit.' Hope Jones will be elected mayor. According to The Billboard, the John Robinson Circus below us. Give John our best." The bag ripped the canvas and struck among the musicians, demolishing the brass drum and hitting Olivetto in the head.

Blanchester came Wednesday, Oct. 23, with two shows; poor business and cool weather.

Hillsboro, Thursday, Oct. 24, was just as bad. And what will I say of Loveland the following day? We will mark it little with the exception of smelling the farm eight miles away. The next day we closed as stated at the outset.

Several people with the show went away owing me. For that reason I am repeating: "The sweetest words in the English language, 'En closed, please find check.'

Mrs. Effie Dutton has gone to New York City. So has Ed. Van Skalk, Frank Biesser, the Broom King, and a good one in every way, is wintering at Lawrence, Mass. The wives of these men accompany them. It is great to be married.

Miss Kate Lippnick will enter upon a vaudeville engagement soon, starting in at Pittsburgh. A finer little woman does not live.

Frank Ellert was taken to his home at Grand Rapids, Mich., ill with typhoid fever.

William Davis has accepted a position with the Armoni meat people. His wife will join a burlesque company.

Billy Curtis, the greatest of boss canvas men, who never had a blow down, and who never backed away from trouble, will establish an office in Cincinnati and push the sale of his Truss System for circus seats. I am using the system to hold myself up. It staggers me to think of what I have gone through the last few years. Me for a high-hall and then to bed, singly and alone, in room 12 at the Galt House.

Yours Always,
DOLLY VARDEN.

MANY of the new shows are homeward bound, scarred, mangled, and with tattered silk hanging limp after the turbulent battle with the elements of misfortune. Disaster has overtaken at least fifteen productions that started out with the vim, vigor and ginger that thousands of dollars could put into them but the public balked and when the public balks salary sheets do not drop—something else does and it's a case of plenty of troupers on the market looking for something that has a chance to stay out.

Not only are the melodramas shelved, but one or two musical comedies and a very large New York production are to gather dust in the niche of oblivion. No one seems to understand why, money is plentiful, wages are high, times are prosperous, crops are in fine shape, but the patronage stringency with some attractions continues with woeful regularity and even there has been a circus tied up for three weeks in South Chicago with a railroad bill large enough to make a twenty-sheet stand look like a postage stamp.

As predicted by a certain writer not long ago, the public, that is the popular priced end of it, and with that the writer is most familiar want musical melodrama. Supreme sensations with a pistol shot for cue to close a scene are on the wane; of this there is no question. Easy to verify by glancing over the different attractions routed in The Billboard. The percentages of the shows out now certainly incline to the drama with pretty girls, song hits, plenty of plot, some excitement and that intangible thing called atmosphere, all of which the old-time thrillers lack by reason of the awfulness, the hurry-up-shoot-em-thing we have had for decades past. And next season the change will be more apparent. From several playwrights who have commissions for next season, I glean the fact that they are going in more for the clean, wholesome entertainment style of amusement than before. Mark me, gentlemen, the days of "Three-Fingered Mike or Thirteen Drops of Blood" are over.

House managers insist on it—and incidentally the public—and they are not to be overlooked in the betting.

Manager Billy Garen, of Havlin's, St. Louis, springs a new one in the advertising that marks another peg in the progressive policy of aggressive Billy. He has constructed a drop to hang in front of the curtain on which is posted a twenty-sheet stand of the attraction billed for the following week. It is a new one in publicity getting, and has won the heartiest approval from agents and managers playing Havlin's, which by the way, is doing a creamy business. Old Chap, if you are booked with Billy this season, just get out that little hand bag for you'll need it. Capacity rules nearly always.

Fred Dixon, of Dixon and Talbot, of Indianapolis, manager of the Park, and about everything else within a thousand miles that is worth the while, has renovated the Park from top to bottom, dressed his ushers in swell red velvet uniforms and—for those in back has provided one of the cleanest lot of dressing-rooms in the country. Is he doing well? Oh well, rather—just added another string of dirt to his belongings; this time one of the best pieces of property in the city and it only cost a hundred thou.

Met Punch Wheeler in Omaha recently; same good jolly Punch, always happy, always forward with a kind word for the other fellow. What a striking example of a real press agent. Punch, here's to you and many times more.

I think it was Punch that tells this one: Listen—Some fellow walked up to the box-office down in Texas recently and asked to be passed in to see the show. The manager asked who he was and the chap replied, "an actor."

"Allright, if you are an actor what's the password?"

"Broke."

And he passed in.

The Mysterious Burglar, one of the Rowland & Clifford Amusement Company's attractions, carrying twenty-seven people, two carloads of scenery and two live bears, was nearly wrecked one day last week while going to Toledo. The company got a bad shaking up but no one was injured. The attraction has had a remarkably successful season, making house records everywhere, nearly doubling any business done at Brat's in Toledo. The show will be seen in all the larger Eastern cities.

Harry Strauss writes that The District Leader is giving excellent satisfaction and doing big business everywhere.

Harry Bryant, ahead of Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model, is doing good work for the benefit to be given by the Pathfinders and Trailers in New York next May.

Richard Chapman, last season a principal player with Thorne and Orange Blossoms, is this season managing Mann's production of Tempest and Sunshine, and from all reports is doing exceptionally well.

The original Cohen an R. & C. attraction, along with The Phantom Detective, two companies of Thorne and Orange Blossoms, and McCurdy, in The Old Clothes Man, are getting more than their share of the business, making good everywhere and getting a barrel of money.

Edwin Clifford, of R. & C., just returned from a seven weeks' pleasure tour of the East, dropping off in several cities to watch for new ideas to be used in the Central States theatre holdings, which are large, and in which Mr. Rowland and Mr. Clifford are heavily interested.

Everybody talkin'? Allright.

Him—Did you enjoy the performance at the theatre last night?

Him—No. I was the only one in the box party who knew anything about motoring, golf, or bridge, so there was nothing to talk about. It was awfully stupid.—Cleveland Leader.

Under the Old Apple Tree.

The history of the world began in the shade of the "old" apple tree in Eden, and ever since trees have played an important part in its affairs—the Charter Oak, the cherry tree which was felled by a swoop of George's little hatchet, and then the family tree that we all so dearly love to climb. The apple tree in the Biograph's latest story certainly bears fruit, and the many ludicrous incidents that happen in the shade of its sheltering branches go to make up a film that is indeed a Pippin.

BALTIMORE

A city of over 450,000 white people is without a park. The present site of ELECTRIC PARK is now within the FIVE-CENT car-fare zone of all Baltimore, and is now served by FIVE street car lines.

We bought ELECTRIC PARK October 24, 1907, and intend to erect upon its twenty-four acres the finest park in the country, installing every known amusement device. This is truly a million-dollar undertaking.

Seven days a week this park has been, and will be, operated. No liquor will be sold upon the premises.

Music Pavilion to accommodate 10,000 under cover. Other features accordingly.

It is hard to write an announcing advertisement of this sort, because even the parks in small cities have appropriated descriptions, which beggar the vocabulary.

There are only five cities in America larger than Baltimore, and in none of these cities is the summer temperature as oppressively hot or the season as long as in Baltimore. There is no city where a high standard park can do better than cater to the hundreds of thousands of people who want recreation and amusement, as well as relief from the terrible summer heat, as in Baltimore.

The Intelligence of the Old-Time Circus Manager.

His Business Ability Was Way Above Par, and for Enterprise He Was in Advance of the Majority of the Mercantile Community. In His Way, an Explorer and Pathfinder.

By The Late CHARLES H. DAY.

The old-time circus managers were, as a whole, men of character and more than ordinary ability, and conducted their business honorably and aboveboard. Their travels at home and abroad gave them an education not to be found in books. Exploiters and explorers they assumed risks and profited thereby. They faced dangers on the seas and in the wilds, and the Star of Empire never moved so far west that it failed to have a circus wagon hitched to it; and these same old-time circus managers showed the American flag on a central pole in about every inhabitable spot on earth and still pined for the showman's unrequited, insatiable desire, "new country."

The old-time circus managers of this country, it may be said, discovered advertising. Who ever took any noticeable space in a newspaper until after the circus made the experiment and demonstrated the profit and the possibilities?

Who appropriated the poster to his purpose and adopted it as almost solely his own? The old-time circus manager.

Who, first, last and all the while, believed in printing ink, in the distribution of the handbill, not only locally but for miles and miles around the place of exhibition? The old-time circus manager.

Who first employed men of literary ability to prepare their announcements and secure publicity in the newspapers? The old-time circus manager.

And while these same old-time circus managers were ever alert and venturesome the representative merchants and men of commercial interests were rather slow, not and not a bit ready to risk their dollars in enterprise or exploitation. In fact, the old-time merchant believed it was beneath his dignity to advertise, so he sat in his counting room and waited for customers to come to him. His father and grandfather had done before him. The merchants were a half century behind the circus managers of the time in appreciating and appropriating the increasing methods of publicity discovered and developed by the showmen.

Even the theatrical managers were slow to learn or pattern after the tenters, and it was decades after before the slumbering directors of the drama woke up and realized that the world had moved and that they had not moved with it. The theatrical manager in time came to follow in the wake of the circus manager, but his step was slow and he was ever very far behind in the promotion of publicity.

The cheapening of the process of poster printing by the discovery of the use of the pine block gave a great impetus to circus business and advertising. Joseph Morse, the inventor, had his hands full, as he was both artist and engraver.

And now something of the manner of men who were the pioneers in the circus business in the United States and developed it as fortune favored and capital accrued. They were not an uncouth ignorant lot, did not wear lead clothes, chew ping tobacco and smoke an oath every other word as they have often been pictured in imaginative literature. They were men of affairs and as for practical knowledge of the general condition of finance and trade throughout the country they were the best posted people in the land. It would never do to take a circus into a section that was not prosperous, and the old-time circus manager rarely made any mistakes in the selection of profitable territory. And now let some of these heroes of the sawdust arena of yore pass in review.

Turner, who left the shoemakers' bench to become an innovator in the circus line and induce P. T. Barnum in the sawdust. Barnum, the writer, the humorist, lecturer and most famous of showmen, set the pace for rivals for many years. Nat Howes, who put the top on the tent; Seth B. Howes, who sent out the first golden chariot drawn by twenty horses. This same Mr. Howes was always the prime mover in the organization of large enterprises and an extensive importer of wild animals. He was also instrumental in touring a magnificent American circus in England with the cream of the Yankee performers in the ring.

The first of "the flatfoots," the progenitors of the later tribe who succeeded to the heritage, were financiers of great ability. They set out to monopolize the menagerie business and carried well night doing it. They also aimed to syndicate the shows. June Titus and Angelina and their associates were making good progress with the scheme when the panic of 1857 made the merging of interests impossible. And this was many years before the time of Rockefeller, Hill, Gould or Harriman.

"General" Rufus Welch went in strong for expensive spectacles. In his tours "the world was an oyster," and he visited many lands and also made a venture in the importation of wild animals, in opposition to "the flatfoot" trust.

Lewis B. Lent, a manager of chit-chat, travel and wide information, founded the famous kid glove show, the New York Circus.

Levi J. North accumulated a fortune in the ring and on the road, built an amphitheatre in Chicago in 1856, and became an alderman of the swinging brash.

P. T. Barnum represented Bridgeport in the Connecticut legislature and also served his city as mayor. "Old" John Robinson ran for mayor of Cincinnati, but failed of election.

"Dr." Gilbert B. Spanidng was one of the brightest of the old-timers. He invented the use of quarter poles, eleven tier seats and extra front seats, and with his associate, Charles J. Rogers, put a floating palace on the Mississippi river and also the water minstrel hall, called The Banjo. Rogers, who was originally an equestrian, was a polished gentleman of the old school, but not so aggressive as his pushing, demonstrative partner.

Isaac A. Van Amburgh, the Lion King, got his fill of glory at home and abroad.

Stone, Rosston and Murray were managers of worth and gentleness in all that word implies. Hyatt Frost, was a sterling character, a wit, humorist and versifier, who could find lots of fun in an ink bottle.

O. J. Ferguson, many years an associate with Mr. Frost and the Van Amburgh party, a linguist and a show writer of no mean ability.

num, and even James A. Bailey, are not to be inclined in this imperfect reminder of those who actually created the American circus. The circus as it was born in a topless tent, without seats and exhibiting but once a day, grown under the skillful direction of its managers to become the great popular amusement for decades, whose one ring was a plenty and the prodigious innovations of millionaire managers had not been made to present at every performance at enormous expense an army of performers in the presence of a world of people.

Taking into consideration all the conditions, the original American circus managers, under the lead of the Turners, the Howes, Raymond and Waring, "the flatfoots," made rapid progress in the enlargement and improvement of the tent show. At the outset, the population of the entire country was small, but a few cities of any size existed, and New York, Boston and Philadelphia were little better than large towns. The masses were not in possession of much "cash money," and barter was in vogue in many localities. The people were close minded, being herd that way, and the larger majority of them puritanical and narrow minded. One might as well be frank about it and out with the truth. Pleasure and recreation was sin and it was better to weep in woe than to rejoice and be glad.

"The entrance of the theatre is the gateway to hell," said the preacher who inveighed against amusements, "and the ring of the circus is the bottomless pit itself."

As to faces, they were worn long and the preachers and pharisees set the fashion.

There are other professions in which she is not barred from equal wages. In the aggregate, however, she does not make them, as she does not rise to the high places or fill the mediocre ones in numbers that compare with the men already in the field.

On the stage she not only can, but does hold her own with men in the number of successes which she makes, but at this particular time she goes him one better. In fact, she goes him two better, for, in addition to the preponderance of women occupying the high places theatrically, at present it is women who are making the exceptional contracts in point of dollars.

The other day Lillian Russell signed with Whitney for $2,000 a week. This was preceded by Schumann-Hink's contract for the same amount, with the addition that it was guaranteed for three years. Prior to this Fritz Scheff was induced to appear in light opera for $1,500 a week.

COMPARISON OF SALARIES.

Marlowe and Sothern each received $2,000 a week for their appearance in Shakespeare. Lew Fields and Frank Daniels receive salaries of $1,500 and $1,000 respectively, while against this there is Lillian Russell with $1,250 and Mrs. Carter, Marie Cahill and Marie Dressler, each with $1,000. Fay Templeton and Mandie Adams at $800 each, Blanche Bates at $800, and Clasy Loftus (in the drama) and also Anna Held at $500, with Annie Russell, Ethel Barrymore, and Blanche Ring, a motley collection at $400 each, make up that goes to show that the theatrical prima have a way at present of falling especially into the feminine lap.

The fact of the indiscriminate mixing of high-salaried among theatrical stars of different rank proves to what extent the business is a speculation. It also shows that it is a speculation upon personality which seems to have the most to do in determining salaries. When Marie Cahill was engaged for it happened in Nordland at $1,000. It was considered one of the most generous contracts ever made. It was given to her because of her popularity and personal following. That personality seems to command higher money than skill is shown by the fact that the work for which the highest offers are made is often retrogressive. Camille D'Arville and Jessie Harlett Davis received $850 and $1,000 each, by going from the legitimate into vaudeville. Clasy Loftus received $1,000 as Clasy Loftus in vaudeville and $500 as Sir Henry Irving's leading woman. Blanche Ring received as much for a song and dance as other stars are getting who have been hard workers for a lifetime in the drama.

ALL MATTER OF PERSONALITY.

"It is all a matter of personality, and the feminine personality to-day is by all odds the greatest loadstone," is the way the matter is summed up by a prominent manager, and that the facts bear out this statement shown that in addition to equal chance with men workers there is also a bonus in sight for women who can make their living theatrically.

There are several reasons offered in explanation. One is the dearth of good plays and the fact that men do not appear to advantage except in strong parts, while the "show girl" type of play which reigns gives women a chance to draw on the strength of clothes and personal attractiveness. Also, modern realism can accept a pretty woman as not thrown too far out of present standards when she is made up as the old time heroine of the romantic play. It cannot, however, apparently "stand for" the change from its ideal of the modern young man which takes place when he is transformed to the swashbuckling hero, unless it is in the case of an exceptionally strong part.

WOMEN WANT WOMAN STAR.

The peculiar attitude that women have at present toward the woman star is also given as a reason for this state of things by one expert.

"Women have shown a great liking for the woman star," said this critic, "at least the class of women who are not included with the matinee girl following, and really she is not a large part. Outside the matinee audiences women make up only about half of the people in a theatre. Men themselves go to the theatre to be amused, and, as a class, care the most to see women. Even if this were not so the majority of them buy tickets to please women who instead of admiring those of the opposite sex most, as would naturally be expected of them, show the most enthusiasm over women stars."

IS IT WORTH WHILE?

Is it worth while that we jostle a brother bearing his load on the rough road of life? Is it worth while that we jeer at each other in blackness of heart—That we war to the knife?

God pity us all in our pitiful strife.

God pity us all as we jostle each other, God pardon us all for the triumphs we feel When a fellow goes down 'neath his load on the heather, Pierced to the heart: Words are keenest than steel, And mightier far for woe or for weal.

Were it not well in this brief little journey, Over the Isthmus down into the tide, We gave him a bay instead of a serpent, Ere folding the hands to be and abide Forever and aye in dust, at his side?

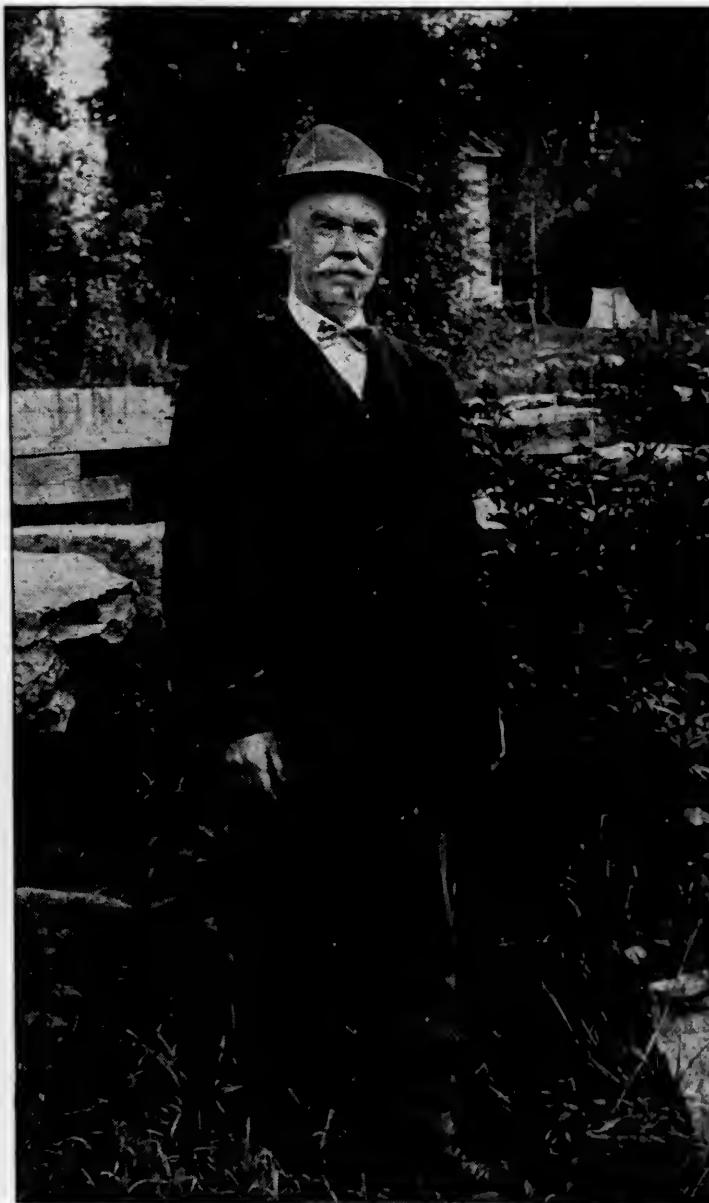

Look at the roses saluting each other, Look at the hounds all at peace on the plain: Man, and man only, makes war on his brother. And glooms in his heart on his peril and pain Shamed by the brutes that go down on the plain.

It is worth while we should in the dust humble Our fellows with whimpers of gull and mis-trust? God pity us all! Time oft-sore will tumble All of us together like leaves in a gust, Humbled indeed, down into the dust.

Why should we envy a moment of pleasure Some poor fellow mortal has wrung from it all? Oh! could you look into his life's broken measure— Look at the dredge—at the wormwood and gall— Look at his heart hung with creeps like a pall.

Look at the skeleton down by his hearthstone Look at his cares in their merciless sway; I know you would go and say tenderly to him: Brother—My brother, for aye and for ay! Lo! Lethe is washing the blackness away. —Frank B. Ticknor.

CLARENCE W. FARRELL,

The popular treasurer of the F. A. Robbins' Show, started with Adam Forepaugh as assistant treasurer in 1874 and remained with that organization until 1878. Since then he has been with John O'Brien twelve seasons, John F. Hummel, John Barton's London Show, Forepaugh-Fish Wild West and the present season with F. A. Robbins.

Col. Dan Rice, the most popular clown, who, having no early advantages of education, under the inspiration of Van Orden, the press agent, took to the books and made good his deficiency. John J. Nathans, who during his career as manager and performer visited good part of the world, and for many years participated in many ventures in about every land under the sun. He was one of the latter day "flatfoots," headed by Avery Smith, whose name was never used in connection with any show of which he was part owner.

George Fox Bailey, of Danbury, Conn. The Turners made Danbury a circus town, and Mr. Bailey—not to be confounded with James A. Bailey, the great—was the son-in-law of a Turner. When "the flatfoots" ran the Barnum Show, George F. Bailey was the manager.

Many managers have made the last stand and for whom the band has played "Home, Sweet, Home!"—for they are at rest—might be classed as old managers. Adam Forepaugh, Ephraim, Allen and Peter Sells, W. C. Coup, several of the younger associates of P. T. Barnum, and even James A. Bailey, are not to be inclined in this imperfect reminder of those who actually created the American circus. The circus as it was born in a topless tent, without seats and exhibiting but once a day, grown under the skillful direction of its managers to become the great popular amusement for decades, whose one ring was a plenty and the prodigious innovations of millionaire managers had not been made to present at every performance at enormous expense an army of performers in the presence of a world of people.

Occasionally a newspaper man was under the rays of the "blue light," and declined to advertise the circus, and then, full of Christian charity, preceded the appearance of the show with a venomous libel.

In estimating the ability of the first American circus managers, it may be said that they succeeded for two reasons:

1. They were smarter than their fellowmen then on earth.

2. They knew how to advertise and were about the only persons living who did.

And when they were up against each other, as instance the fierce wars of Dan Rice and Dr. Spanidng, it was diamond cut diamond.

WOMEN STARS PAID MORE THAN MEN.

To those whose cry for woman is "equal pay for equal work," the stage is the one occupation to which they can logically direct her.

HOW A LECTURER LOST HIS JOB.

Here is a little circus story that will not end up for you to buy somebody's bitters or liver pills.

The menagerie superintendent of the Sells-Floto Shows told the reporter:

"We had an Englishman with our show once who was employed as a lecturer in the menagerie, and he was a peach. One day, when he had just started out, he began his spiel after this fashion:

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, I will call your attention to this remarkable beast which you see in this cage. It hides its head in the sand, not because, as some people would have you believe, it is stupid, but because its color blends perfectly with the sand of the desert and it is thus enabled to avoid its enemies and escape capture. You will notice that it is just the color of the sand, and the spots on the feathers in the deception which it practices on its owners."

"That's the antelope cage, you fool, not the ostrich," I said, as I pulled his coat and tried to get him to stop. He simply said:

"Can't help it. I learned this thing in the regular order, and if they change the order of the cages I can't go learn my speech all over again."

"He kept on with the program all during that first run, and the boys never put the cages in the same order any two successive days. We had to fire that Englishman, I am sorry to say, for he was a good fellow and knew his speech perfectly. I really sympathized with him, for it was mean of the animal men not to put the cages in the same position every day."

NOW FATHER IS SKATING TOO.

Oh, father, dear father, come out to the rink,
For mother's awaiting you there;
She is dreaming of days when you wooed her and won,
And called her tender and fair.

Poor mother, poor mother, her life has been hard,
Her hair is now sprinkled with gray;
But she's slipped from the kitchen, the pots and the pans,
To live once again in life's May.

Oh, father, dear father, pray come to the rink,
And again as in halcyon days,
Come and glide with your bride o'er the smooth,
polished floor,
And practice love's tender sweet ways.

And smooth the poor brow that grew wrinkled with pain—
Be children again for a day—
And let the long years of life's sorrow and pain
Like dreams fade and vanish away.

O, sweet expectation, dear father has come
(To mend it is never too late),
He has brought all the children, and Mary, the cook,
And is teaching them all how to skate.

G. G.

"What did Shakespeare mean when he wrote of moving accidents?" asked the professor.
"Why," answered a fair coed, "I presume the furniture handles broke things for him, same as they do for everyone else."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FAITH, A HYMN.

To MRS. McKINLEY, IN MEMORIAM.

Words by Capt. Jack Crawford. Music by Alfred D. Liefield.
COPYRIGHT 1907.

I am standing on the border
Of the bright Celestial land,
And I see the heavenly sunlight
Dancing on the golden strand;
There I'll meet the blessed Saviour
And will take His guiding hand—
I shall camp with Him in Glory in the morning.

(REFRAIN)

In the morning, in the morning,
With the halo of His love my soul adoring;
I am clinging to His hand,
And shall know and understand,
When I meet my blessed Saviour in the morning.

I am waiting for the summons
That shall call me to my own,
I am nearer to my Saviour,
And my faith has stronger grown;
I can see my loved companions
And my dear ones near the throne—
I am coming, blessed Saviour, in the morning.

I have no regrets to offer,
I have no desire to stay,
But I want to scatter sunshine
Ere my soul has passed away.
O! I want to tell the story
To the friends I love to-day—
I shall tell it to my Saviour in the morning.

O! the glory of possession
Of the simple faith that clings
To the sheltering Rock of Ages,
And the peace of love it brings
Is the crowning song eternal
That my soul in rapture sings—
I shall see my loved Redeemer in the morning.

THE ROAD TO WEALTH LIES IN USING THE GLOBE

FILM FIEND FABLES - - - NO 2
IN THREE CHUNKS.

CHUNK II.

After the wise M. P. Man left the Cheap Film Man he met a chap with a very smooth smile, who said to him: "My service is high, but it is the only one. Give me all your money and come with me, and I will show you MY way." But the wise M. P. Man saw the lead pipe sticking from under his coat, and he said: "Nay, nay! If I give you all my money, I will starve to death, and I can see that it is YOUR Road to Wealth, not mine. So beat it, kid. Beat it."

CHUNK III. TO FOLLOW.

We have some interesting things to tell you about Films and Machines and all kinds of supplies, and if you are dissatisfied with your service, we will tell you what we will do for you.

Globe Film Service Co.
79 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

KALEM FILMS!

(THE NEW LINE.)

A GINGERLY, CRISP, SHORT COMEDY, ON AN UP-TO-DATE THEME—340 FEET.

In "His Affinity," the hero, or rather, the victim, is a meek and mild, hen-pecked husband who, in the opening scene, is discovered doing the week's washing, while his strapping big wife is reading a novel. Goaded to desperation, Papa decides that he will run away and do something real devilish. He meets a sprightly Miss in the park and strikes up an acquaintance. The flirtation is proceeding nobly when a friend of Wifey discovers the pair and runs back and tells. Wifey starts out with blood in her eyes and arrives on the spot just as Papa decides that he has found his affinity. What follows can readily be imagined.

PATTI

AFTER making at least £750,000 during a career which has extended over fifty-six years, Patti has decided to retire. That is to say, announcements to that effect have been made. On Dec. 1 she gave the last of her London concerts, unless she again thinks it necessary to follow this farewell London appearance by another—and yet another one. In the meantime, the concert in question marks a period in her existence when a few biographical and other details concerning her unique career may appropriately be given.

According to some authorities, "the peerless Adeline" (as the imitable Mr. Mapleson used to call her) sang delightfully before she could lip in baby language "Pa-pa, Ma-ma," and never had a singing lesson in her life; others declare that she worked as hard as does any modern Miss whose misguided parents have placed her under the care of some London voice-extinguisher. As a matter of fact, she studied with a brother of her mother's and with Maurice Strakosch—not to mention the instruction which she received from her parents, especially from her mother Barilli—who was a most successful operatic artist. But long before her uncle, and subsequently, Strakosch, took her in hand, she had appeared as an infant phenomenon, for at the age of seven the little Patti sang at a New York concert—her father and mother having emigrated to America whilst she was in the swaddling clothes stage. Thus, having commenced her career by excelling as a singer of florid music, when, at the age of fifteen and a half, she made her debut in opera as Lucia—just forty-seven years ago, her success was at once assured. After singing various Bellini and Donizetti roles, she left for England in the spring of 1861 to join Mr. E. T. Smith's company. Upon arriving at the Norfolk Hotel in Arundel Street, Strand, London, she was met by Mr. Mapleson, who informed her that Mr. Smith's financial embarrassments had resulted in the season being abandoned. At this juncture Mr. Gye stepped in, and in a few weeks, Patti found herself engaged for Covent Garden, where on May 14 she sang in Le Sonambula. A writer of the period declares that in Amina's first recitative the lovely, velvety quality of her voice delighted the most blasé of the habitues, and that her rendering of Come per me Sereno drew a hurricane of applause. Before completing her engagement she also sang Violetta, Marta, Zerlina—a part in which the perfection of her singing has made her Zerlina the envy of all her competitors, Rosina and Lucia. Patti's connection with Covent Garden lasted for about twenty years, and in 1865, after an interval of several seasons, she was specially engaged for six performances, her roles being Rosina and Violetta, each of which she performed three times. She also sang repeatedly at Her Majesty's during her London career, the competition for her services being so keen that the management of either opera house was ready to make almost any financial sacrifice to secure her.

Huge though Patti's success has been in England, her greatest triumphs—and her highest fees—were secured in America. Deputations of the leading citizens called upon her with addresses of welcome; steam tugs with the most brazen of brass bands on board met her steamer, while regimental bands serenaded her; autograph-hunters thronged the roads leading to the hotel at which she stayed; and upon one occasion she could not reach the wings for the mob of admirers who, forcing their way to her dressing-room, had blocked the staircase communicating with the stage. Her special railway car was a dream of luxury—and a nightmare of expense, for it cost £12,000, the walls being covered with gilded tapestry, while everything else, including the bath and the woodwork, was on an equally lavish scale. Wherever she went the most notable people were at her feet. Senators gave parties in her honor, and the King of the Hawaiian Islands created her a lady-knight of the Royal Order of Kapiriani, with "permission to wear the insignia of the order"—whatever that may be. In spite, however, of the fame which had preceded Patti, her return in 1862 (after an absence of some twenty-two years) would have been a failure had she not enrolled herself under the Mapleson flag. For the concert tour which she had undertaken did not fulfill expectations, the public preferring to stay away to paying ten dollars a seat. She thereupon took part in the Cincinnati Festival (which was a very different affair to that which is permitted now-a-days) at—according to her manager—£1,800 a night, this being the highest fee ever paid to a singer. The following year she was again engaged by Mr. Mapleson, and prior to her arrival in New York went Patti-mad. Seats were bought up long before the season opened; she was met at the docks by an enormous crowd which had sat up all night to see her; unscrupulous artists and imaginative reporters reveled in their opportunities; and her rooms at the hotel were filled with flowers, including a huge set piece embroidered with the words "welcome" in roses. Upon this memorable occasion, the chorus from the opera serenaded her at midnight with the prayer from I Lombardi, the space in front of the hotel being filled with the Diva's admirers. Her re-entrance as Lucia drew an overflowing house, and the public interest in the diamonds which she wore with her Violetta costume, rose to so great a pitch that an enterprising journalist calculated the interest of the money accruing on her gems while singing the part—to quote her impresaio. She also sang in Semiramide, when she was recalled so often that another journalist—not to be outdone by his comrade—calculated the wear of her shoes for the evening's performance. Towards the end of the season Patti and Albeni sang the exquisite duet Sullaria, Le Nozze di Figaro at a charity concert in New York—an artistic treat which probably never will be equaled; both singers were then in their prime and each did her best to earn the approval of the audience. Upon this occasion Patti gave a particularly delightful rendering of the difbuilt Waits Song from Romeo et Juliette, singing it in Italian, according to the custom which prevailed at that time.

In 1883 Patti paid another visit to the States, her opening appearance being made in La Gazza Ladra—a work which failed to charm the critics, who could only find words of praise for the stuffed magpie which has to fly down to the stage, seize the spoon and soar upwards into the flies. Rossini's opera, therefore, was shelved, and the next appearance of the prima donna assoluta was in Ernani. During this tour (for which she received a thousand pounds a performance) she also sang Violetta—a role for which she used to have a particular liking, Valentina, and other parts. Yet the season was not a success for the unfortunate manager, and when the company arrived at Montreal, the famous Patti car (with Patti asleep inside) was seized for debt. Eventually it was released, and Patti awoke without knowing what had happened. A little later, "the highest paid prima donna on earth" (as an American reporter once dubbed her) sang at Chicago, marking her debut in Oriphino e la Comare—an opera by Ricci which has long been forgotten. Whilst filling this engagement a contretemps occurred which resulted in Patti registering vowed never to again sing in the same opera with Gerster, who, according to Patti, possessed the "evil eye." At a performance of Les Huguenots a large number of bouquets, which should have been handed up to Patti (the Valentine of the evening) after the duel with Marcello, were passed across the orchestra to her at the conclusion of the first act in which Valentine practically has nothing to do. It was thought by her that this was done to enhance the value of Gerster's Margherita di Valois—and to make her appear ridiculous, indeed, such was her superstitious dread of Gerster's evil influence, that, according to the entertaining Mr. Mapleson, she invariably "extended her third, first and fourth fingers in the direction of the supposed sorceress when passing her room. Neither history nor Mr. Mapleson relates what she did with the intervening fingers and the thumb."

Whilst in America, Patti had several strange experiences of the native newspaper reporter. Upon one occasion when she caught cold from driving in an open carriage, one of these persons proved the cause of her ailment by ascertaining the amount of her bill at the local livery stables, and when in 1884 she was en route for San Francisco the train was boarded by a "press-man" who declared that if he was not allowed to interview Patti he would telegraph to his rascally employer that she was too ill to sing. Thanks to her tact, the reporter not only received answers to all his questions but was so impressed with her graciousness that he painted her attractions in the most lurid terms of admiration to be found in the English language. Consequently, when the night of her first appearance arrived, the city was all agog with excitement. The evening before the approach to the theatre was crowded with would-be purchasers of tickets, a long line was formed, positions in which were sold for the price of a Covent Garden stall—to be increased the next morning to £4; the theatre was festooned with flags and flowers; and on the evening of the performance seats actually were selling at four hundred per cent. above box office prices. Upon this auspicious occasion, Patti elected to sing in the well worn La Traviata, appearing later in Il Trovatore to the Manrico of her future husband, Nicolini, whom she married shortly after the death of the Marquis de Caux, with whom her married life was not, alas, a happy one.

In addition to the operas already mentioned, Patti also has sung in Rigoletto, Aida, Rossini's Otello, Luisa Miller, Giovanna d'Arco, Un Ballo in Maschera, Don Pasquale—in which she made a most engaging Norina, Mose in Egitto, Le Vespri Siciliani, L'Elisir d'Amore, La Fille del Reggimento, L'Elisir du Nord, Linda di Chamounix, Robert le Diable, Minerva, I Puritani, Le Nozze di Figaro, Il Flauto Magico, Romeo et Juliette—in which she sang with Mario, and many years later, with Jean de Reske; Faust, Mireille, Frédéric, Les Diamants de la Couronne, Don Dездiderio and Gelmin—by Poniatowski, Campanella's Esmeralda, Cohen's Estrella, Lenepveu's Velleda, and Carmen—in which she was unsuccessful. In addition to singing in most of these operas in England and America, she has, at various periods in her amazing career, appeared in them at almost every Continental opera house of repute.

There are innumerable stories about Patti—some of which are true. Perhaps the most amusing one is that which deals with a certain performance of Il Trovatore, during which the Conte di Luna never having met Patti (who had not considered a rehearsal necessary) begged Manrico to present him to Leonora. The introduction was performed by the tenor whilst the trio was being sung—to the satisfaction of all parties!

SAMSON OPERA HOUSE

Samson, Ala., Wants Good Attractions, Season 1907-8. Population 3,000. Seating capacity 750. best Show town in this section. Two Railroads to draw from.

T. S. FAUCK, Manager.

The Chester DeVonde Stock Company is meeting with the utmost success this season. They have already played twelve weeks and have a record of which they are justly proud. At Jamestown, N. Y., recently, they broke the house record.

Charles B. Hanford has opened the season of 1907-08 with prospects even more brilliant than he customarily enjoys. Big business has greeted his spectacular production of Antony and Cleopatra from the very start.

The Dougherty Stock Company has been doing fine business through the state of Wisconsin for the past two months, and is now playing Minnesota time. They are booked solid until September, 1908, all return dates.

The Columbian Newsboys Quartet, Tolton, Niels, Mack and Devere, are playing their fourth week with Hale's Rip Van Winkle Company, doing their specialty and playing well. Their act is going fine.

Miss Sara McDonald, authoress and sole owner of Atrifit in New York, will tour the west shortly in her play. She has won her law suit against Moses, Oshler and Quinby and is no longer under their management.

The Lindemanns, Billy and Milly, novelty slack wire artists and trick bicycle riders, have joined Carl M. Dalton's Ole Olson in Spiritland Company for parts and to do their specialties.

MUSICAL.

Geo. E. Hall, who is appearing in I'm Married Now, this season is meeting with great success throughout Canada. At Brookville, Ont., where Mr. Hall summers, he was warmly received and greeted with excellent business.

MINSTREL.

Harris and Nelson, black-face knockabout comedians, are still with Guy Bros. Minstrels, closing the olio.

PARK ASSOCIATION CONVENTION.

A meeting of the recently organized National Amusement Park Association will be held at the Hotel Knickerbocker, Broadway and Forty-second street, New York City, on Thursday, Nov. 14. There is every prospect of a big meeting. Since the preliminary meeting at the Imperial, Secretary C. H. Oberheide has been in communication with park men all over the United States and Canada and has received hundreds of replies commanding the purposes of the new association and assuring him of their co-operation. A large number of park owners and managers have already signified their intention to be present at the next meeting so that there is certain to be a good attendance. Park men everywhere are cordially invited to be present and take part in the meeting. Full particulars can be obtained from the secretary, Mr. C. H. Oberheide by addressing him at Trenton, N. J.

HOILE RECOVERING.

Harry Holle, the well-known animal and bird dealer of 368 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, is recovering from the effects of a rattlesnake bite on Oct. 22, that nearly resulted in his death.

He was unpacking a consignment of snakes from Florida and was ignorant of the fact that one of the reptiles was a vicious diamond-back rattler. The latter caught Holle's left hand in its jaws and inflicted a severe wound before it was killed. The infusion of poisonous virus caused the injured member to immediately swell and discolor, while the victim began to suffer the usual intense pain that accompanied a rattlesnake bite.

Holle was quickly taken to a neighboring hospital, where everything possible was done to relieve his intense suffering. For a while it was thought that an amputation of Holle's hand would be necessary to save his life. This extreme measure was not taken, however, and the complete recovery of the veteran animal dealer is now regarded as a certainty, provided no aggravating complications develop.

as they are with their hands, and the Mayfair Sisters, in natural dances, are upholding their reputation of the past.

Some of the other merrymakers are Larry Hyatt, Thos. H. Welch, M. A. O'Brien, Harry Ahlert, Howard Inemon, Wilfred Mills, Frances Le Roy, Lucille Mayfair, Cady Henney, Anna Arnold, Alice Kelley, Luis Fremaine, Marie Frank, Marzie Burns, Marion Hastings, Jessie Newell, Maizee Dawson, Sadie Kessel, Helen Mehill, Jessie Whitley, Marie Breban and Minnie LaFrance. The executive staff consists of Gramlich and Cochran, sole owners; Chas. Gramlich, general manager; George C. Cochran, treasurer; L. C. Zelleno, advance representative; Monroe S. North, assistant manager; Chas. Holoway, carpenter; George Mozart, electrician; Harry Speck, stage manager, and George Kee, musical director. Charles A. Burt is the New York representative of The King Bee, with offices in the Broadway Theatre Building. If city time is not secured for the show at an early date, we will play all return dates, as Mr. Gramlich has received numerous letters asking for return date, in many instances being offered flattering guarantees.

CONSTRUCTION COMPANY HOLDS MEETING

At the annual stockholders meeting of the White City Construction Company, held Tuesday, Oct. 29, the following directors were elected: Joseph Belfeld, Aaron J. Jones, Paul D. Howes, Morris Belfeld, Wm. F. Merle, Eugene B. Belfeld and L. A. Dehan.

The directors convened at once and the following officers were elected: Joseph Belfeld, president; Morris Belfeld, vice president; Aaron J. Jones, secretary and treasurer, and Paul D. Howes, general manager.

Many new and novel concessions are being considered for the coming summer, and White City will be on a much grander scale than ever before. Notice will be given later of some new and exclusive concessions secured for next summer.

THE KING BEE

L. C. Zelleno, agent for The King Bee Musical Comedy Company, writes as follows: Despite numerous rumors to the effect that The King Bee Company had closed, I wish to state that we are still moving along, and although we have endured our share of bad business, we are still in the field, and have some good time booked ahead.

The King Bee Company opened at the Grand Opera House in Wilmington, Del., on Sept. 2, and has since delighted audiences in the States of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. We are carrying a complete line of special scenery this season. Those clever little comedians, Harry and Curtis Speck, who were a big hit with McFadden's Flats for several seasons, are repeating their success of last season, playing the roles of Hans and Fritz, the mischief making Katzenjammer Kids, and whenever they appear it's an assurance of a hearty laugh. Chas. Gramlich, the author of the play, furnished an abundance of comedy as Herr Wilhalm Von Bumpernickel, an aspirant for political honors, who becomes elected Judge and declares himself to be The King Bee of the Eighteenth Assembly District.

Helen Hall is scoring a big hit as Mary Ellen Murphy, and is singing several catchy song hits. Specialties are introduced by the Yankee Doodle Quartet, a clever singing organization, whose voices blend harmoniously. The Speck Brothers, in their comedy boxing act, and their baby elephant, continue to keep the audience in an uproar of laughter. Ingram and Henney, in a clever singing and dancing act, are proving that they are just as handy with their feet

"O, let me, dear," be softly plead.

"My love to thee relate."

She sneered at him, and coldly said,

"You don't know how to skate."

"I vow by all the saints that pray

At Heaven's golden gate,

That I will love you every day."

She smiled—"You do not skate."

"Yes, I'm here for you I will buy,

Strawberries by the crate."

She stared him squarely in the eye,

"You do, you can not skate."

"Ah, me," he wailed, "I must be denied

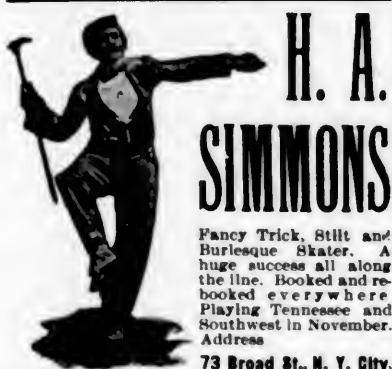

By all the jealous fates."

To lose out, till at last I've learned

To sheet the roller skates."

Vaudeville

Edith Helena, the soprano with the remarkable vocal range, made such a constantly increasing series of successes at the New York Theatre last week that Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger cancelled her engagement at one of their theatres in another city and prolonged her for another week at the Broadway house, although it was Saturday evening before this arrangement was decided upon.

"Original" Jimmie Kelly is now booked solid until February over southern time, opening at the Majestic Theatre, Beaumont, Texas, week of Nov. 10. He has cancelled all northern time so as to stay south during the cold months, but he will return to New York City in the early spring.

Zech and Zech, high-class novelty aerial artists, opened their season at the Majestic Theatre, Pittsburg, Pa., week of Oct. 14 and are now on their way west to open on the Hollings Circuit, Nov. 17. Their act is a very good one and they are offered return dates at nearly every stand.

Archie W. Stanley, of Stanley and Scanlon, eccentric comedy musical entertainers, was made a member of the White Rats of America, Oct. 4. They have finished all their time on the Western States Circuit and are now playing the northwest for the Pacific Coast Amusement Company.

The Great Hornberger, better known as the boy king of the slack wire, is meeting with success with his novelty wire and ring act and is being featured at every stand. He is playing the big ones in the south.

Georgia Gardner and Jos. Maddern are very busy rehearsing a new act for vaudeville. It is by a well-known author and gives both of them a better chance to display their talents than any of their former acts.

Martha Wagstaffer, Maid of Niagara Falls Rapids, mourns the loss of her only brother, a non-professional, who died in New York City, Sept. 26. He was thirty-four years old.

Lafair and West are presenting their comedy playlet, "A Drop Into Society," over the Gas Sun Circuit. Miss West's singing is indeed clever and she is winning applause at every performance. They are booked solid until next June.

Weisz and Weisz will work in and around Chicago this winter presenting their new electrical comedy act. They will not leave that territory owing to the fact that two of their children are attending school in Chicago.

Jack and Nellie Ripple closed October 21 at the Aerolite, Watonga, Okla., after three months of successful engagements. They will now open a moving picture show at Okeene, Okla.

Winkler and Kress, comedy acrobats, have joined the Bellhaven Stock Company and will feature their forward somersault with a chair with the company the entire season.

The Wingates recently closed a very successful engagement on the Irving J. Polack Circuit of Pennsylvania. They are now on route with Emerson's Floating Palace.

Frank L. Perry closed October 19 at the Corn Carnival, Coliseum Theatre, Chicago, where he was very successful. He is booked to appear in vaudeville until March.

John and Mayme Slattery are meeting with big success with their refined singing, talking and fashionable change act. They are well booked up for the season.

The Three Musical Harts made their first vaudeville appearance in Nashville, Tenn. week of Oct. 21, and played to S. R. O. the entire engagement.

Robertson and Fanchette, in their singing and dancing sketch, are meeting with big success on the Keith & Proctor Circuit.

THE REPERTOIRE AGENT.

By ED. S. DALY.

In an issue of your valuable paper several weeks back, I read, with much pleasure, an article in reference to "the man ahead," and I am glad to say that there is one who nobly defends them and that your paper so graciously printed the article. As an agent I can appreciate the article in all its detail. It dealt with agents in general, but I want to say word in reference to the repertoire agent. I am one myself. I have also handled the "one-nighters." The "rep," agent, as he is called, is in a class by himself and in too many instances is not considered an "agent" by either his "one-nighter" agents or his own manager. He is more often called the "Hill Boy" of the troupe. There are many, I will admit, who are merely "Hill Boys" or "Errand Boys." The word "agent" can't apply to them for the simple reason all they do ahead is to put out the distributing matter and that lets them out. They don't know what a press notice is or any of the managerial details of the business.

But to get back to my subject, the real repertoire agent, his position ahead is not a path of roses, by any means. When I say real repertoire agent, I mean the fellow, who has everything to look after. He orders all the paper before the season opens, with his typesetter, grinds out all his own original press matter, makes his railroad arrangements, books the nights out and there are many, etc. True, he is a "Hill Boy" in a way; his one main duty is to get distributing matter all over a town before the company's first performance. If the company opens good, he is a good agent. If the reverse, well he knows what to expect. In the repertoire business it is up to the agent to get the first good house of the week. Some managers will overlook a poor house the first night and not blame the agent. But where there is one manager who will do this, there are fifty who won't. All towns are not good and here is where the "rep" agent is underestimated. He can go ahead and bill some towns like a circus and no results are obtainable, but his manager won't admit this fact. No matter what the conditions are, the agent isn't exonerated. Many times when the openers are bad and the house hasn't put forth any efforts, the local manager hides his light under a bushel. This is another blue mark against the agent. I want to say right here, underestimated as he is and invaluable as he may seem, the "rep" agent is up against the hardest proposition in the show business and has a much harder road to travel than the average one-night stand fellow.

A graduate from the repertoire business knows what work is. Repertoire is the greatest schooling in the business and any agent or manager, who has tasted of it, will bear me out in what I say. This "hill peddling," from house to house, is hard work. There is no excuse for not doing it, so the majority of managers think. Weather, sickness or inability to get help is no excuse, the expense sheet can't contain an "extra help" account. If the agent hires help, nine times out of ten he pays for it out of his own pocket, spends his own money to get business for the show. To the local manager there are quite a few exceptions. He is only the "errand boy" or a bothersome trouble. The house sees that the ## LATEST FEATURE SUBJECT: MIDNIGHT RIDE OF PAUL REVERE.

The Green Dragon Inn—The Headquarters of the Revolution. The Committee of Safety Meets—A Daughter of Liberty brings the warning: "The British are leaving the town to-night"—Paul Revere arrives—he tells his friends to hang signal lights from the belfry arch of the Old North Church—Revere leaves—"With muffled oars silently rowed to Charlestown shores." The Old North Church—The sentinels are posted—Revere's friend slips by them into the church—The belfry arch—The signal lights are hung—The British soldiers discover him—he escapes through the window as they break in the church doors. On the opposite shore Paul Revere waits for the signal lights, and lo! as he looks on the belfry height—A glimmer and then a gleam of light—A second lamp in the belfry burns. Paul Revere starts on his historic ride "Through the gloom and the light. The fate of a nation was riding that night." He stops at one house and then at another with his cry of warning—"A voice in the darkness, a knock at the door, and a word that shall echo for evermore!" "The British are coming—On to Lexington!" "It was twelve o'clock by the village clock, when he crossed the bridge into Medford town." He is met at the cross-roads by British officers—he turns back—he hides—They pass—he starts out into the moonlight again—they see him and give chase—he passes a tollgate—the keeper's daughter bears his cry of warning as he passes through—She closes the gate just in time—Paul Revere passes safely on—but a British sword ends her life. The village bell is rung—The farmers are up and to arms. "And so through the night rode Paul Revere—And the spark struck out by that steel in his flight—Kindled the land into flame with its heat." The fight with the British on Lexington Green—"The farmers gave them ball for ball, from behind each fence and farmyard wall." And thus was fired "The shot that was heard around the world."

one night distributing goes out but the "rep" agent digs for himself. I have had eight years in the repertoire field, with the best, and I know what I am talking about; there are many who may take objections to clauses of this article but ask the first repertoire agent you meet, if I'm not right. I don't mean to cast any insinuations on the one-night stand agent. He has plenty of troubles of his own. All that glitters is not gold, as people outside of this business are apt to think. I wanted to say a word or two in behalf of the "rep" agent and I hardly think any one could take offense at what I have written. If they do I am sorry but I spoke my mind in a truthful manner.

T. M. A. NOTES.

Minneapolis Lodge No. 50 held an election of officers Thursday evening, Oct. 24, which resulted in the reelection of practically all the incumbents of last year. The following is the roster: President, W. F. Landon; first vice-president, John Elliott; past president, G. Quinn; recording secretary, Richard Haney; financial secretary, E. C. Goosman; assistant financial secretary, L. Ruben; marshal, Zack Luckins, sergeant at arms, Joseph Khrin. The nomination for treasurer was laid over until the next regular meeting.

Zack Luckins announces that every Monday night the new T. M. A. quartet will sing in the Lodge room. The members of this quartet are as follows: Lloyd Cranklith, Sam A. Meharry, George Chesebro and C. Reisner.

J. Milton Campbell, business manager of Macnealy & Patton's The Minister's Son Company, was made a member of the Wheeling, W. Va., Lodge No. 51, on Oct. 22.

Frank Gotch, the wrestler, who was at the Dewey recently, is a member of the Minneapolis Lodge.

George Print is now master mechanician of A Child Shall Lead Her Company, playing in New York.

Claude Dizotell, door-keeper at the Ithion Theatre, has just returned from a trip with a band through Ireland.

John Elliott, manager of the Unique Theatre, has been in Chicago on business.

Roy Langray was recently initiated into the Minneapolis Lodge.

A LAMBS' CLUB TOURING COMPANY

At a recent gambol of The Lambs Club, a plan was evolved to send an all star minstrel and vaudeville company on tour after the manner of ten years ago. Augustus Thomas, Shepherd of the Lambs, and the trustees, had arrived at this conclusion, after threshing out the best means of raising a large sum of money, in which the club stands in need. A. L. Erlanger promised to direct the management. Victor Herbert has agreed to write the music for the main skirt, and Henry Blossom is to write the book. Nat Goodwin, John Drew and other players volunteered their services. Only stars of the first magnitude will have places in the company. The first performance will probably be at the Metropolitan Opera House. The date discussed was the last week in May.

OPERA AT BLANEY'S LINCOLN SQUARE

The Aborn Opera Company is presenting a double bill at Blaney's Lincoln Sq. Theatre, at present giving Pinafore and Cavalier Rusticana, with the following casts of principals:

H. M. S. PINAFORE.

The Right Hon. Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B.	Philip Branson
Captain Corcoran	Harry Luckstone
Ralph Rackstraw	Harold Blake
Dick Deadeye	Arthur Wooley
Bill Bobstay	Charles W. Phillips
Becket	Walter Hallbach
Josephine	Grace Orr Myers
Little Buttercup	Hattie Arnold
Hebe	Irene Langford
The Midshipmite	Master Joseph Hughes

CAVALIERIA RIUSTICANA.

Santuzza	Estelle Wentworth
Lola	Grace Orr Myers
Turiddu	Albert Parr
Alfio	Harry Luckstone
Lucia	Hattie Arnold

Large audiences were in attendance nightly and the tuneful music of Pinafore and the old-time but still delicious satire is found as amusing and appealing as ever.

Phil Branson gave a traditional and capable impersonation of Sir Joseph Porter. The characters throughout were capably sung.

In Cavalleria, Estelle Wentworth as Santuzza, and Harry Luckstone as Alfio, were heartily applauded.

The week of November 4 Faust is billed.

A SOCIAL AT THE P. W. L.

The regular monthly social was held in the club house of the Professional Woman's League, 118 West 45th street, Monday afternoon, October 28. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Suzanne Leonard Westford, her sister, Mrs. Fred Ross, received the guests, assisted by Mrs. Kate L. Crystal, Mrs. Scott Palme and other members. The guest of honor was Margaret Hubbard Ayre, whose mother was for many years an esteemed member of the League.

For the entertainment of the guests, Mrs. M. Scott Palme, the regular chairman of music, had arranged an excellent program. Dr. Ida C. Nahm made the announcements. Hamilton Macaulay sang with fine expression, (a) I Know a Lovely Garden; (b) Philosophy. Lilian Coleman, who is pretty and the possessor of a pleasing stage presence, gave (a) The Mission of a Rose; (b) All for You. Miss Coleman has a voice of pleasing quality and she sings with finished technique. R. G. Herz, who was playing in Lola from Berlin at the Grand Opera House the past week, graciously obliged the chairman of the day with several humorous readings, delivered in his own inimitable style. Sallie Fisher pleased greatly with My Very Own, and for an encore, playing her own accompaniment, she sang Dearie, with sympathy and charm. Alden MacClaskie was heard in Mr. Duran's Still Wie Die Nacht. He has a big, brilliant dramatic voice, seemingly under perfect control. Not the least credit for the pleasure the music afforded is due to the delicate accompaniments played by Mrs. M. Scott Palme.

The membership of the League is constantly increasing. It is now more than a charitable way than it is given credit for.

NOTES

The Lion and the Mouse began an engagement at the Academy of Music the week of October 28. The cast includes Edmund Breese, Gertrude Coughlan, William Lewers, Marion Pollock Johnson, Frazer Conder, Grace Thorne, E. A. Eberle, Carolyn Elberts, Reginald Harrington, Charles Sturz, Julia Hatchett, Walter Allen, E. C. Craven, Margaret Grey and W. H. McDonald.

Raymond H. Lewis, star of A Yankee Tourist, playing at the Astor Theatre, was arrested when he called at the office of the Assistant District Attorney the morning of October 28, where he had gone relative to the case of black mail which he is prosecuting against Hugo C. Weeks. The arrest was made by agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The sister of young Weeks and other young girls are implicated in the affair. The comedian is held in $3,000 bail.

A storm of words took place in front of the New Amsterdam Theatre, last Monday evening. All because some theatregoers, unheeding the warning, had purchased tickets of the speculators. The transaction was watched by private detectives, who followed the holders of the tickets to the doors of the theatre. Admission being refused, a wild bowl went up and the manager, Malcolm Douglas, had a sorry time of it.

The sale of seats for the season of grand opera at the Manhattan Opera House began Monday morning, October 28. The finishing touches are being given to La Gioconda, which will be sung November 4, the opening night.

Three one-act plays by Arthur Schmitz were given in the German Theatre the past week. They are At the Sign of the Green Parrot, Literature and The Last Masks. The Reckoning, by the same author was presented in English at the Berkeley Theatre last season, with Katherine Gray in the leading part.

Reuben Fox has been ill and out of the cast of A Grand Army Man for several days. He has been making a great hit in the part of Captain Bestor, a lawyer. Fortunately, it is reported, his illness is not serious. Not a member of the excellent cast at the new Savoyean will be spared.

Ignace Paderewski was one of the passengers on the Kaiserin Augusta, which arrived in port October 26. He is to be heard in concert throughout the country, under the management of C. A. Ellis. The dates announced for Carnegie Hall are November 2 and 23.

Charles Dillingham has borrowed Joseph Cawthorne from Klaw & Erlanger for The Hoyden, now playing at the Knickerbocker Theatre. He opens there Monday evening, November 4.

The time of The Dairy Maids has been extended, and it will now continue well into the holiday season. The new song, Mary McGee, is one of the best numbers of the long list of good things.

Madam Nazimova will soon revive A Doll's House at the Bijou Theatre, and about the first of the year she will be seen in something entirely different from the gloomy Ibsen plays. She is to produce a new modern drama.

Signor Novelli, the Italian actor who took New York by storm, at least, in certain plays, is due to arrive Thursday of this week. He will open in Philadelphia November 4.

The Lotus Club has changed its policy in one respect, and will now celebrate ladies' day. The first of these will occur November 7 and December 5. Special entertainments are planned for those dates.

Mrs. Leslie Carter has engaged Paul McAllister as her leading man. He is now busily rehearsing the somewhat trying Carter repertoire of plays.

Upper Broadway is to have another new theatre. Howard Gould has purchased a site for the purpose on the west side of Broadway, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets. Enough ground has been bought to allow of an open court around the building, as now required by law. It is to be named the Gavety, and is to be managed by Charles Dillingham.

Viola Allen, who is in London at present, will be under the management of Liebler & Co. this year. She is to be seen in New York in January in Le Baccalà, by Henri Bernstein, author of The Thief. The adaptation is now being prepared by Louis N. Parker. Miss Allen's tour last season in Shakespeare, like that of Sothern and Marlowe, was an expensive luxury.

Edward A. Batchelder, formerly associated with Boston and New York newspapers, has been engaged for one of the trio of advance agents for Puccini's operatic gem, Madam Butterfly, when it leaves the Garden Theatre in New York for its record cross continent tour. Mr. Batchelder's courteous and obliging manner will make him a host of friends on his coming trip two weeks ahead of Henry W. Wolfson, and Star of Mammon, by Paul Heyse.

Pupils of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts gave their first public performance in the Empire Theatre, Thursday afternoon, October 24. Two plays entirely new to this country were given adequate production. They were His Alibi, a three-act comedy, by Wilhelm Woltz, and Star of Mammon, by Paul Heyse.

A chain of theatres and opera houses under one manager is growing popular. The latest in the field is Leopold Spachner, manager of the Kalleh Theatre, on the Bowery. He proposes to establish a chain of Yiddish theatres, and has leased for that purpose a theatre in Philadelphia and one in Baltimore. He will send plays first given at the Kalleh Theatre here on tour, playing one week at each of his newly acquired theatres.

An important novelty of the forthcoming American tour of Ernesto Novelli, the celebrated Italian actor, will be the first production in this country of four-act drama by an American lady, Miss Heloise Durant Rose. A curious feature of this play is that it was originally produced in Italy by Novelli during the past summer in the Italian language, although written by Miss Rose in English at the outset. It is entitled Dante, and has for its central figure the great Florentine poet, author of The Divine Comedy. Novelli is said to be highly enthusiastic over this drama, and scored a big success as the stern Alighieri. He is a devoted student of Dante, and has his summer palace, the Villa Olga, at Revenna, the city where Dante spent his last years of exile from his native city of Florence.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell will inaugurate her fourth American tour in the Lyric Theatre, November 11, where she will play an engagement of but one week. Mrs. Campbell is under the management of Liebler and Company. Her repertoire of plays includes Magda, The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith and Hedda Gabler. In the English company supporting Mrs. Campbell will be Mr. Ben Webster, the well known artist, and Mrs. Campbell's daughter, Stella Patrick Campbell, who will appear in America for the first time. She will be assigned distinctive roles during the tour.

Joseph Weber and his company will present their first burlesque of the season at the Music Hall, November 9. The play selected is A Grand Army Man. C. W.

THE OPERA HOUSE GUIDE

WITH WHICH IS UNITED
THE LECTURER THE EXCEUM THE PLATFORM & CHAUTAUQUAS.

25c Per Copy. 2.50 Per Year.

For sale by all newsdealers, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. The trade supplied by the Cincinnati News Company and its Branches. The paper is fully returnable.

COMPLETE LISTS OF ALL OPERA HOUSES, VAUDEVILLE THEATRES, BURLESQUE HOUSES, NICKELODEONS, AND EVEN TOWN HALLS. IT IS REVISED AND CORRECTED EVERY MONTH.

It gives the Name of the Town.
It gives the Population of the Town.
It gives the Population to draw from.
It gives the Name of the Opera House.
It gives the Name of the Manager.
It gives the Seating Capacity of the House.
It gives the Name of the Stage Carpenter.
It gives the Name of the Orchestra Leader.
It gives the Name of the Billposter.
It gives the Name of the Transfer Company.
It gives the Name of the Newspapers.
It gives the Name of the Critic.

The Opera House Guide is not only the best list of theatres, but the LARGEST LIST—It contains over 700 more theatres than any other list ever published.

Oftentimes, also, it gives the description of the house, viz: depth of the stage, width of the stage, height to gridiron, height to grooves, etc., how lighted, prices, character of the house, booking agent, etc.

IT IS A PERFECT MINE OF VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR MANAGER AND AGENT, AND, DON'T FORGET,

IT IS REVISED AND CORRECTED EVERY MONTH.

It is the only theatrical guide that is RIGHT. Heretofore, there never has been one that was worth a damn.

The Opera House Guide IS RIGHT.

It is right, because it is constantly being corrected; because we work on it continually; in a word, because it is issued every month, instead of every year. The corrections and changes range between four hundred and seven hundred every month.

IT IS Accurate, Reliable, Comprehensive and Complete.

We make no charge for listing theatres—any manager whose house is not listed, has only himself to blame. The service is free. There is no cost attached.

It is a Splendid Advertising Medium.

Hotels, Boarding Houses, Theatrical Architects, Scene Painters, Costumers and Booking Agents will find it especially valuable. The rate is right—The rate is low—The rate is lowest. FIVE CENTS PER AGATE LINE, and it pays. Last form closes at Cincinnati on the fourth of each month.

And it strikes into a new and different field of its own, that of the Lecturer and Platform Orator.

Lyceums are subscribing for it; Chautauquas are taking it up; Vocalists, Musical Artists, Magicians, and Elocutionists find it useful.

The Opera House Guide is fully returnable. Your newsdealer ought to handle it—if he does not, we will mail you a copy on receipt of 25 cents in stamps. By the year, $2.50.

High Class Service

We are pioneers in the business and have in service from one to several of every desirable subject in both Films and Song Slides that have been produced, and yet, without the use of either large advertising space or circus talk, we have most of the time had all the customers we could supply and sometimes have many on our waiting list. The quality of our service does our advertising. We are increasing our facilities and

We Want Your Patronage

If you need a machine we can tell you where to get the right one at the right price, but, we want to furnish your films and slides. You prefer a specialist in medicine or in law, so let us show you what a specialist can do for the bank account of a five cent theatre

WEBSTER'S

DEFINITION OF SERVICE IS: "THE DUTY OF A SERVANT." DUTY MEANS OBLIGATION. OBLIGATION MEANS THE STATE OF BEING INDEBTED.

Don't You See

That a film renting concern is indebted to the Moving Picture Show Man who trusts to them for good film service because they are under obligation to him to perform their duty, and that duty is service?

When a Customer

Pays us his good, cold cash, we are just as sure to send him subjects that will get the money as we are sure of our next meal. It is right that he should have such treatment, and then if it were not customary for us to accord such treatment we would be losing customers all of the time instead of gaining, as our records plainly show.

We Work on this Principle

Secure a customer by fair means and hold him by just treatment. Our books show the same names that they showed when we first went into the film business, of course, with the additions that have accumulated very rapidly ever since.

WE ARE THE EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE =VIASCOPE=

The price of this machine with all fire-proof attachments is $150. The Viascope is the most perfect machine now in existence, and it will stand the wear and tear as no other machine will do. Our stock of machines is not confined, however, to the Viascope, because we have stacks of Edison, Powers and Selig Polyscopes ready for shipment on the same day that your order is received.

An Essential Thing

In connection with all complete Moving Picture Theatres is a PHONOGRAPH. We carry a full stock of the three best makes—the Edison, the Victor and the Columbia. These machines draw the crowds. They are far better than an announcer, and require very little attention and labor to operate. We are sending them out every day to Up-to-Date Theatres.

Our Establishment

Is the Beehive of the Film Industry. Our shipping room is a sight to look at, and often drivers for the different express companies are lined up, one back of the other, delivering returned subjects at one side of our office, while at the other side reels of film are going out by the score. THERE IS NOT SUCH ANOTHER SIGHT IN CHICAGO. If your business is not up to your expectations, come over to us and we will show you just what has been wrong all of the time.
