EDITED BY

The William Salt Archaeological Society

1921

Vol. 3 V. 45

"And in this undertaking, the Reader may see what Furniture (though it lie disperst) our Publick Records will afford for History: and how plentifully our own may be supplied and improved, if pains were taken therein: for what is hitherto made publick, hath been collected, chiefly out of old Annals, and they filled with few things but such as were very obvious, nay the Annalists themselves (for the most part residing in Monasteries) too oftend byass'd with Interest, and Affection, to Times and Persons: But on the contrary, in our publick Records lye matter of Fact, in full Truth, and therewith the Chronological part, carried on, even to days of the Month. So that an industrious Searcher may thence collect considerable matter for new History, rectifie many mistakes in our old and in both gratifie the world with unshadowed verity."—(Asmole's History of the Charter.)

 - (c) History of Parishes and of Manors, and of Manorial Customs and Tenures, illustrated by Copies of, or reference to, original grants.
 - (d) Church Notes hitherto unpublished, such as Ecclesiastical Surveys, Extracts from Episcopal and Parish Registers, Copies of Epitaphs, and Description of Monuments and Ecclesiastical Buildings, Abstracts or Copies of Wills, etc.
 - (e) Notices of British and Roman Remains, and Roads and Buildings, and the Antiquities generally of the District.
 - (f) Autograph Letters and other Documents relating to the Civil War.
 - (g) Notices of distinguished Worthies, Broad-sides, Election Squibs, etc.

- III.—The general affairs of the Society shall be managed by a Council of ten, of whom five shall be trustees of the William Salt Library, and nominated by them, from time to time, and five shall be elected at an Annual Meeting of the Subscribers. The Council shall be empowered to delegate, if they see fit, the selection of the papers to be printed to an Editorial Committee. Of the Council, three shall be a quorum, and in case of equality of votes, their Chairman shall have a casting vote.
- IV.—The Officers of the Society shall be a Treasurer, a Secretary, and an Auditor, to be appointed by the Council. These Offices shall be honorary, but the Council shall have power to appoint an Assistant Secretary to be paid at the discretion of the Council, as the nature of his duties may warrant.

The William Salt Archaeological Society.

REPORT OF ANNUAL MEETING, NOVEMBER 11TH, 1920.

THE Forty-second Annual Meeting of the William Salt Archaeological Society was held in the Lecture Hall of the Free Library, Stafford, on November 11th, 1920.

Lord DARTMOUTH was in the Chair.

Mr. S. A. H. BURNE (Hon. Financial Secretary) reported that 14 new Members had been elected during the past year, while the Society had lost 7 members by death and 4 by resignation. The total membership is now 213. The Council, however, cannot look upon the Membership list as at all satisfactory, inasmuch as the Society has actually fewer Members than it had at the end of its first year's existence. It continues to secure steady support from the Public Libraries of England, America, and the Colonies, but the Council feels that the future output of the Society will be seriously affected unless the private Membership list can be substantially increased.

The Balance Sheet for the year ending September 30th, 1920, shows a credit balance of £202 8s. 1d. There are outstanding subscriptions due, amounting to a further £63. Against this, Messrs. Harrison's bill for printing the 1919 volume will considerably exceed the balance in hand. At the Annual Meeting held in November, 1919, Colonel J. C. Wedgwood, M.P., resigned the office of Hon. Secretary, which he had held since 1909. The Council wish to express their sense of the very valuable services rendered by him to the Society.

Messrs. G. P. MANDER and S. A. H. BURNE were elected to act jointly in his place.

Lord DARTMOUTH proposed a vote of thanks to the Hon. Auditor, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. MANDER then read the Report of the Editorial Committee : The Committee regret having again to offer their apologies to Members for delay in the publication of the Volumes. They propose to print for 1921 part of a calendar of the ancient deeds in the William Salt Library, which is being prepared by Miss Cornford and Miss Miller. These documents, amounting to some three thousand, have hitherto been little known. The Hearth Tax of 1665, of which the Hundreds of Pirehill, Seisdon, and part of Offlow have already been transcribed, also await publication.

Lord DARTMOUTH, in introducing Mr. R. A. Roberts, of the P.R.O., explained a scheme devised by the Historical MSS. Commissioners for obtaining particulars of private collections of manuscripts throughout the country, and stated that the Society had undertaken to carry it out, as far as possible, in Staffordshire.

Mr. ROBERTS then read an interesting paper on the subject of historical manuscripts, which has been fully reported in the local press.

The DEAN OF LICHFIELD followed with a paper emphasizing the importance of printing local records, in the course of which he made many valuable suggestions for the future work of the Society.

The Meeting concluded with a hearty vote of thanks to both speakers.

CALENDAR OF THE MANUSCRIPTS IN THE WILLIAM SALT LIBRARY, STAFFORD.

BY

M. E. CORNFORD AND E. B. MILLER.

INTRODUCTION.

THERE are in the William Salt Library some hundreds of ancient deeds, dating from the tenth century, which contain much information of value to students of history. They give the early history of manorial and other property; the names of clergy, officials, and the principal inhabitants of towns and villages; particulars as to roads, lanes, bridges, mills, woods, watercourses, dykes, hedges and other boundaries; field-names; and details as to curious tenures and legal processes; while they throw much light on the social and industrial life of England, and especially of Staffordshire, in the Middle Ages.

It is thought that a Calendar giving a brief abstract of each deed, with the names of the parties and of the witnesses, will be more useful than a mere catalogue. The Society has undertaken to publish a section of this Calendar year by year until it is complete, when a few separate copies of the whole will be available for use in the Library and for sale. The first five or six sections will deal with MSS. of dates prior to 1500.

Many of these earlier deeds are undated. An attempt has been made to supply approximate dates by comparing names of witnesses, etc. In a fair proportion of cases the original seals are attached to the parchments; some of them are well worthy of examination.

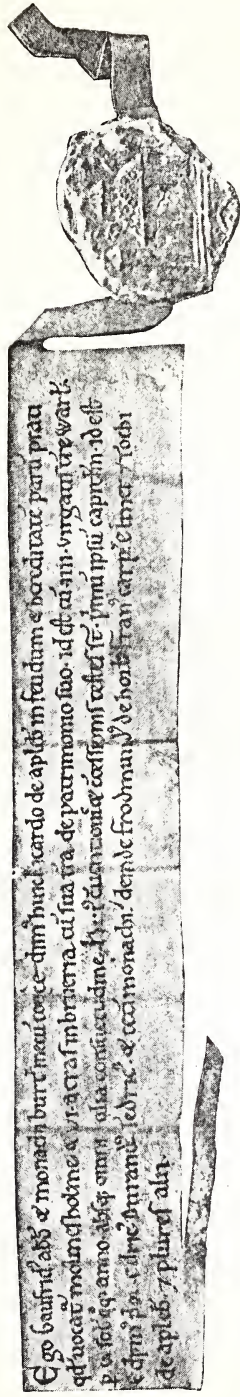

As the collection receives frequent additions, it is impossible to arrange the deeds chronologically or topographically. The method adopted corresponds to that of the Catalogue of Ancient Deeds issued by the Public Record Office, and is designed to facilitate reference to the original parchments in the Library. When the Calendar is complete it will be furnished with a full index of names and places, so that there will be no difficulty in finding any particular deed.

In bringing out Part I, we beg to acknowledge most gratefully much valuable help received from Mr. T. F. T. Plucknett.

M. E. CORNFORD.

E. B. MILLER.

This illustration is a reproduction of the earliest deed and seal in the William Salt Library. The writing is a fine specimen of that late Saxon character which survived into Norman times.

The seal is peculiarly interesting both from its antiquity, predating as it does the usual twelfth-century monastic seal bearing an effigy of some saint or abbot, and also because it gives a somewhat conventional but very early view of Burton Abbey itself. It shows the west end of the "lead-covered" church flanked by two towers and surmounted by the "elegant belfry" over the choir which abbot Geoffrey himself is reputed to have built.

This seal was unknown to Shaw, who gives (Pl. II) engravings of no less than four other seals belonging to the last years of the twelfth century.

The Norman work of Burton Church and these two towers are well shown in Hollar's print of 1661.

LAY SUBSIDY $\frac{256}{31}$ HEARTH TAX
PYREHILL HUNDRED, CO. STAFFORD

THE STAFFORDSHIRE HEARTH TAX.

The Hearth Tax or chimney-money was a payment to the king of 2s. on every hearth "in all houses paying to church and poor," first levied in 1662. It was repealed in 1689, although it was producing £170,000 a year, on account of its unpopularity, the tax being especially obnoxious because of its inquisitorial character.

The following Hearth Tax Rolls relating to Staffordshire are to be found in the Public Record Office:—

- 179 Hearth money. Arrears due upon fire hearths in the City of 324 Lichfield. Also the names of inhabitants too poor to be assessed. 15 Charles II. 1663.
- 256 Return of hearth tax for Farley. 15 Charles II. 1663.
29
- 256 Assessment of Hearth Tax. 18 Charles II. 1666. [74 mem-
31 branes.]
- 256 Ditto (Imperfect.) 24 Charles II. 1672. [52 membranes.]
32
- 256 Variations of assessment of Hearth Tax. 23 Charles II. 1671.
33 [6 membranes.]
- 179 Account of all the fire hearths and stoves as well chargeable as 328 unchargeable. 25 Charles II. 1673. [53 membranes.]
- 179 Hearth money: Totmanslow Hundred. Charles II. [11 mem-

REVIEWS.

THE LIBERATE ROLLS OF THE CHANCERY. Vol. I.
1226-1240.

The series of Liberate Rolls of the Chancery extends from 2 John to 14 Henry VI, and includes 148 rolls. The first three, however, are not of the same nature as the others, but are really the beginning of the series now known as the Close Rolls. The Liberate Rolls proper begin 11 Henry III. From that point onwards the series was continued regularly, one roll to each year, until 39 Edward III, after which the rolls included more than one year each.

When the Liberate Rolls were instituted three classes of writs employed in ordering or warranting expenditure, which had hitherto been entered on the Close Rolls, were transferred to them. Of these the Liberate writ was a warrant from the King or the Justiciar to the Treasurer and Chamberlains of the Exchequer to pay money out of the Treasury to certain persons named. If a sheriff or other accountant were to be repaid sums spent by him on the King's account, a writ of Computate was issued by the King to the Barons of the Exchequer; or if he were to be excused payment of a sum with which he was chargeable, a writ of Perdono was addressed to the same persons.

As these writs were the King's usual means of spending money, and as the objects of his expenditure ranged from gifts intended for foreign potentates and the expenses of military expeditions down to the purchase of food and kitchen utensils for the royal household, it will be readily realized that these rolls contain an immense amount of material for students of history, whether political, social, or economic.

The period covered includes the greater part of the episcopate of Alexander de Stavenby, Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield.

This prelate held a high position in the councils of the realm, and was frequently employed by the King as an envoy to Rome and "the parts beyond sea." On one occasion he borrowed 400 marks from some merchants of Siena for his expenses at the Roman court, which was duly repaid from the Treasury; and in the same year the King granted £100. as a gift to the Bishop "going as the King's envoy." There are numerous entries of the payment to him of a sum of £10 a year, usually paid in two portions, "which he receives at the Exchequer for Rugeley and Cannock in the same way as William, late Bishop of Coventry, received this sum."

Bishop Stavenby introduced the Friars Minors into the diocese, and built for them the Friary at Lichfield. After his death the King, in March 1239, ordered the guardians of the vacant bishopric to pay to the Friars a sum of 10 marks, and in August a further sum of 100s. as a gift.

Henry III was as lavish in his gifts to the Church as in his general expenditure; he seems to have made a practice of presenting bishops and archbishops with various vestments and ornaments on the occasion of their consecration. In 1230 a Liberate writ was issued to William de Haverhulle and William the King's tailor for £55 3s. 6d. to pay for two chasubles, a cope, two tunics, two dalmatics, two albs, two mitres, two pairs of sandals and other pontificalia necessary for the consecration of Luke, Archbishop-elect of Dublin, who subsequently became Dean of the Collegiate Church of Penkrige. When Hugh de Pateshull succeeded Bishop Stavenby at Lichfield the King bestowed upon him a mitre costing the large sum of £19 19s. 9d.

An order for eight quarters of wheat to be bought and delivered for the use of "St. John's Hospital, Lichfield," in 1240 shows that that foundation was even at that early date called a hospital, not a friary or monastery as Shaw implies.

Leaving ecclesiastical for secular matters, we find a good many entries relating to Cannock Forest, of which a certain Hugh de Loges was at that time forester. It was the King's custom to send yeomen with harthounds and buckhounds (canibus cerviriciis et damericiis) to hunt at Cannock in order to provide meat for the royal table; and directions are given to the forester as to the disposal of the venison, which was either sent at once to the King, or salted and kept until further orders were received. Another entry is concerned with timber from the King's wood of Ashwood in the forest of Kinver.

Orders are given for the repair of the King's "stews" or fishponds at Stafford and at Newcastle-under-Lyme; of these the former were long known as "the King's Pools," and are so marked on a plan of Stafford dated c. 1600. They lay between the north wall of the town and Coton Hill.

Many more quotations might be made, but enough has been said to show the interest and value of the Calendar alike to historians and archæologists. The abstracts of the writs are admirably clear and full, and students will appreciate the frequent quotations from the original Latin and the excellent indices.

CALENDAR OF PATENT ROLLS, EDWARD III, 1374-1377.

The printed calendar of the Patent Rolls between the years 1216 and 1509 is completed by the issue of this volume, which has been prepared by Mr. M. C. B. Dawes, B.A. A very full abstract in English of practically every document recorded in these rolls is now easily available and is invaluable to students, as these rolls illustrate nearly every subject connected with national and local history and government.

All the fifty-four volumes of this issue can be consulted without charge at the William Salt Library, Stafford. Each is furnished with an admirable index, which not only enables readers to ascertain at a glance if there is anything in the volume about the person or place in which they are interested, but also is of great assistance in identifying persons and places in other documents that are difficult to recognise in their mediæval forms.

Among the Staffordshire documents given in the present volume should be noted the confirmation of a hitherto unprinted charter of Henry II, granting further lands in the royal forest of Cannock, at Lindhurst (within the royal manor of Alrewas) and at Pipe to the nuns of St. Mary "de Fagerwella" (Fairwell), dated from Radmore, the royal hunting box near Gentleshaw, and the confirmation of a deed of 1263, in which Robert de Ferrars, earl of Derby, granted various rights and privileges to persons holding burgages within his free borough of Agardsley in Newborough.

The Staffordshire commissions of the peace in 1375 and 1377 have been already printed in the Salt volume for 1912, pp. 310 and 311. The "Adomar" de Lichfield mentioned on p. 311 is, of course, identical with Aylmer (Taverner) de Lichfield and he was originally appointed on 15 Dec. 1376. Most of these Staffordshire justices occur in the present volume and, as an illustration of the kind of information given about them, it may be mentioned that Ralph Basset of Drayton sold to the king for 12,000 franks of gold a Genoa prisoner, taken in the last voyage made by the king's son, John, King of Castile and Duke of Lancaster; that Basset had a licence to impark 300 acres in Olney, co. Bucks; that he occurs as a custodian for the king of the lands late of John de Moubray in Axholme, co. Lincs, and that he was licensed to found a house of friars hermits of the Augustinian order at Atherstone.

Other typical entries include a pardon to Thos. Greneway of co. Stafford for the death of Rich. Bykur of Stone, taillour; a commission to enquire into the death of Henry atte Walle at Fradswell and into an outrage on the wife of John Mareschall at Aston by Stone; an exemption for life of Wm. Collesone of Walsall from serving as a juror, mayor, etc., against his will; a grant to Wm. Purcell of the £10 6s. 8d. which the abbey of Halesowen is bound to render to the king at fee farm for the manor of Rowley Regis; a pardon to Wm. de Burley, chaplain, outlawed in Staffordshire at the suit of the bishop; the appointment of John Ray of Coventry as collector of the subsidy on cloths for sale in the county of Stafford, etc.; and an entail of property by Wm. de Bentley on his brothers

Nicholas de Ruggeley and John Ins successively, failing issue of himself.

There is a good deal of local ecclesiastical information given in this volume. Several presentations to prebends, etc., in the royal free chapels of Penkridge, Stafford, Tamworth, Tettenhall and Wolverhampton are recorded; perhaps the most noteworthy being that of Adam de Hertyngdon to the deanery of Stafford. During these three years he was appointed by the king as clerk of the works in the manors of Clarendon, co. Wilts, King's Langley, co. Herts, Worldham and Wheatley, co. Southampton, and Marish, co. Bucks; as well as at Porchester castle. He also occurs as holding prebends at S. Paul's, London, at Salisbury, and at Windsor.

There are several ratifications of the estates of Lichfield prebendaries and one grant by the King of a prebend there, that of Tarvin to John de "Gurmonchestre" (Godmanchester). The king also made many presentations to livings belonging to alien priories, such as Tutbury, which were at this time in his gift on account of the war with France, but only two Staffordshire clerics seem to have obtained these livings, viz., Henry Bradley, rector of Hampstall Ridware, who was moved to Marston, and Ralph de Sutton, vicar of Harbourne, who went to Droitwich.

Other documents that illustrate the local ecclesiastical history of these times include the royal assent to the election of the vicar of Seighford, a Ronton monk, as abbot of Rocester abbey; an order to the escheators of the counties of Stafford, Northampton and Derby to deliver the temporalities of the abbey within their respective bailiwicks to him; and an order to two Sheriffs and other commissioners to arrest a Rocester canon, who had left the abbey without leave and was a vagabond in secular attire, and to deliver him, when caught, for chastisement to the abbot according to the rules of the order.

CALENDAR OF PAPAL LETTERS, 1447-1455.

This abstract of papal documents has been prepared by Mr. J. A. Twemlow, B.A., and deals with the papacy of Nicholas V, elected 6 March 1447, died 24 March 1455. It is of course invaluable for the ecclesiastical history of this period and it is furnished with admirable indices.

Among the numerous Staffordshire entries in this volume attention may be directed to the following items.

On 26 April 1447 the Pope provided Wm. Bothe, a canon of London, with the bishopric of Coventry and Lichfield, vacant by the death of Wm. Heyworth, the bishop from 1419 to 1447. In June 1448 Bothe found that many of the "palaces, castles, manors, lodgings, houses and buildings" belonging to the see had fallen into ruins and decreed that it would be sufficient for the habitation of the bishop and "for keeping up hospitality" to keep in repair the palaces at Coventry and Lichfield, the castle and Manor of Echeshall, the manors of Beaudesert and Heywood and the lodging in the Strand, London, and that the remainder might be demolished in consideration of the great burden to the episcopal "mensa" that their repair entailed. Sanction to this decree was obtained from the Archbishop of Canterbury in July 1448, and from the Pope in August 1450.

In Jan. 1450 Bothe obtained an indult to visit his diocese by deputy, alleging that it was less burdensome to the diocese to be visited by his officials rather than by the bishop in person, and also that he was much hindered by royal and private business. In July 1450 the Pope appointed him and the prior of Kenilworth to hear and decide an appeal to the apostolic see, made by the prior of Stone, against a decision of the Archbishop of Canterbury with regard to the internal government of the Stone monastery.

On 21 July 1452 Bothe was translated by the Pope to the Archbishopric of York and on the 30 August 1452 Nicholas Close, Bishop of Carlisle, was similarly translated to the see of Coventry and Lichfield. Nicholas received a dispensation from personal attendance at the Roman Court. He had only been Bishop of Carlisle for two years, having previously been domestic chaplain to the king, Archdeacon of Carlisle, etc., when he had received various indulgences, dispensations, etc., mentioned in this and the preceding calendars.

On the 7 Feb. 1453 Reginald Boulers was translated by the Pope to the see of Coventry and Lichfield (on the death of Nicholas) from Hereford, to which see he had been appointed on 18 Sept. 1450, when abbot of the Benedictine monastery of S. Peter, Gloucester.

Vincent Clementis, S.T.M., was the chancellor of Lichfield at this period. In Jan. 1450 he was appointed collector of the papal camera in England. At this date he was subdeacon of the Pope, nuncio of the apostolic see, provost of Valencia, and held the rectories of Montfort-sur-Rille, in France, and of Wetheringsett in Suffolk. He had been an ambassador of Henry VI to the Pope. In 1453 he received a mandate from the Pope to suspend the archbp. elect of Dublin and the Bishop of Llandaff for certain irregularities.

Wm. Radclyff, I.U.D., was the treasurer of Lichfield. He was one of the papal chamberlains at Rome and as such received several dispensations to hold and to visit by deputy various benefices. He occurs as rector of S. Michael's le Querne, London, archdeacon of Cashel, Tipperary, and as an "abbreviator" of apostolic letters. In an indulgence to him to have a portable altar, etc., he is described as a priest, whose father and grandfather were knights. Two other Lichfield prebendaries received indulgences to let even to laymen the fruits of other benefices held by them, whilst residing at Lichfield, and a third—George Radcliff—aged over sixty-seven and the son of a knight, had an indulgence to visit his archdeaconry of Chester by deputy.

Several dispensations to hold pluralities are given in this volume, a typical example being Drew Malefurmiti, who held prebends at Tamworth, Westminster, Salisbury, Hastings, and Lisieux, besides being rector of Saltwood, chaplain at Troyes, and parson of St. Sulpice de Plasnis. He had been secretary to Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester.

On two occasions the Bishop of Lichfield received a papal mandate to dispense persons to remain in a marriage that they had contracted in ignorance of the fact that the parent of one had also been the godparent of the other party to the marriage. Papal confirmation is given to the collation by Bishop Bothe of his nephew aged fourteen and only in minor orders to the wardenship of the Denhall poor hospital; also to the finding by the rector of Hanbury that the abbey of Darley need not maintain a separate priest at Alverston and that the inhabitants there should attend the parish church of S. Michael's, Derby.

Space will not permit of further local extracts from this calendar, but perhaps sufficient have been given to show the kind of information given. It may be added that the eight preceding volumes of this series cover the period from 1198 to 1447.

W. N. L.

CALENDAR OF INQUISITIONS (MISCELLANEOUS). Vol. I (1219-1307). Vol. II (1307-1349). H.M. STATIONERY OFFICE 1916.

These volumes are the first of a series of calendars descriptive of the residue of the Inquisitions returned into Chancery after the classes known as post mortem and ad quod damnum have been separately calendered. It will be readily seen on looking at the full subject indexes how varied is the historical information here contained. For the most part these Inquisitions were taken before Sheriffs in pursuance of writs under the great seal, but many were taken before escheators, bailiffs of liberties, or commissioners, and some were taken under writs of privy seal. The jury system was worked hard. These inquiries covered elaborate statistical returns as to the extent, value, and customs of manors, of armour in castles (Bamborough), as well as escapes from prison, the fate of lost falcons, and more important questions of tenure and ownership. Most frequent are the inquests in the modern sense—where deaths had to be inquired into. Here we are brought closely in touch with the everyday life of the Middle Ages: the particulars are invaluable for the social historian. The reign of law was indeed a reality when it availed to collect a jury to inquire into the death of a plough-boy who, while helping his father, was accidentally killed by the staff (baculum) of the plough which the father was whirling round and round to frighten the mixed team of oxen and horses; and the jury find that “they know for a truth that Henry would rather have killed himself than his only son.” But homicide, the outcome of sordid and even childish squabbles, most frequently taxed the time of the local jurymen.

Hockey as a game for boys may be noted (1277), and the undefined “penyperche” was probably a game of cards, since it was played in taverns.

The student of mediæval measurements may be glad to know that the "king's perch" was in Berkshire 21 feet and in Hampshire 20, "but not of the king's feet, and the perch of the hedge is 20 of the king's feet." In Staffordshire hedging work is still reckoned by the eight yard rood. Under highway law, we find in 1291 a refusal on the part of two Hundreds to repair a Norfolk bridge "because it was first made by alms," and this is not an isolated case: the Common Law gradually relieved a hopeless situation by fixing liability upon the county.

Perhaps the most important section of these Inquisitions is that "de Rebellibus." After the battle of Evesham, fought in 1265, the King appointed a special Commission with a view to the appropriation of the land of all who had supported Simon de Montford. In these calendars are the returns for thirty counties, showing the rebels' names, but not for Staffordshire nor Shropshire. It is news, however, that Alton castle was captured by Robert Ferrers from John de Verdon, "who held loyally by the King," and was rewarded by grants of land in Surrey and elsewhere.

Several references to the numerous Swynnerton family are given. There is a curious robbery at Hilton, in 1324, Nicholas de Swynnerton, John de Charnes and others taking away a large quantity of armour, here detailed and valued, as well as "2 tents of the price of 6 marks, 7 oxen and a cow, 5 mares, and 4 foals and 13 she goats." Nicholas is described as parson of Cheleston (? Muckleston, cf. S.H.C. ix), and would seem to have been the brother of John. It is known that the family were divided in their political partisanship during the disorders of the reign of Edward II (see S.H.C., iii, N.S., p. 94), and this is the probable explanation of this profitable raid.

No. 1758 of vol. ii contains a statement of the defects "of the hall and chambers of the manse of the deanery of Wolverhampton in the time of Master Hugh Elys, late dean." This has already been printed in our Collections (vol. 1913, pp. 82-3). It tends to prove that the dean had been resident, a rare virtue in those days.

In the reign of Edward II the chief political event for Staffordshire was the King's successful attack on the Earl of Lancaster at Burton and Tutbury. We learn incidentally that the royal Welsh levies pilfered the chapel of Tutbury Castle before the King's arrival, but there is no record of any inquiry into the disappearance of the Earl's treasure, which brought suspicion upon the monks of Burton for several years. John de Leek was the first royal keeper. An important record is a finding of a jury in 1324 that the Prior of Tutbury "ought to have and his predecessors have had from the foundation of the house, viz., from the Annunciation, A.D. 1121, the ameracements of all his tenants in the Hundred of Apeltre." The date given in all the books is 1080-1089, based upon a charter of Henry de Ferrers printed in the Monasticon, but the annals of the house record no prior before 1125, nor does D.B. include the monastery in the list of Staffordshire landholders.

It is as well to point out that some of these Inquisitions have been already printed in full by the Society in recent volumes, but these being based upon the transcripts, require to be checked with the calendar version. In one instance, at least, the Inquisition on Hugh de Loges' perquisites in Cannock Forest (S.H.C., 1911, p. 127), there is marked discrepancy.

Not a few entries disclose the details of domestic architecture in the thirteenth century. Perhaps some of the larger Staffordshire manor houses may have resembled that at Laughton in Sussex, which had a hall with a chapel, three chambers, and a garderobe adjoining at one end, and three solars with another garderobe at the other end. There was a moat round the site and a fringe of palings; the entrance was over a drawbridge through a gatehouse with two houses on each side. Outside lay the granges and beast houses.

The fullness of the indexes and the accuracy of the identifications are remarkable. In one instance the editor has shrunk from the attempt; a jury in 1346 sat at "Breloughton" for the purpose of ascertaining the tenure of the manor of Cresswell. This is almost certainly Burlaughton near Blymhill, which may also be the scene of "a great wrestling" and its consequent tragedy on July 22, 1289; the record reads "Brelasto" and the index gives Barlaston. It is the Derbyshire parish of Norbury that had a ferry (vol. i, No. 108). More misleading, perhaps, is the identification of Tunstall, or Dunstall, in Wolverhampton manor as Tunstall in Adbaston (vol. i, No. 441), and the busardos which destroyed an eyrie of sparrow-hawks in Arundel Park (No. 411 of vol. ii) were surely buzzards and not "bustards."

S. A. H. B.

CALENDAR OF FINE ROLLS. Vol. V (1337-1347).

The series of the records of the Chancery known as Fine Rolls extend from the reign of King John to that of Charles I. On them were entered the sums of money (or other property) offered to the King by way of oblation or fine for the passing of charters, grants of liberties, exemptions, licences, pardons, etc. By this means the Crown was secured a considerable income, no pretext being too trivial for the extortion of an apparently voluntary payment. The favoured receivers of these grants must indeed in many cases have looked upon them with mixed feelings.

The present volume belongs to a period when the King sorely needed money for his French Wars, and several levies of tenths and wool subsidies are dealt with therein. There are also Edward's dealings with foreign merchants, the Bardi and Peruzzi and other financiers. Several entries deal with that species of taxation known as forced loans: "the King has ordained . . . that the merchants of Lombardy staying in London, who are under the King's protection and make no small gains from their trafficking in the realm, help the King with a loan of 1000 l. . . ."; and not once only. Another bird to be plucked was the alien priory. The King argued that to have aliens, even clergy, fattening at home when he was at war abroad with their friends was a fit subject for a “fine.” There are only two of this numerous class belonging to Staffordshire in this volume, Lapley and Tutbury.

In September 1337, Godbert de Lapione, fellow-monk of the abbot of St. Remigius (Rheims), and Robert de Shareshull, proctors of the said abbot of the priory of Lappeye, were charged 55 marks for the favour of keeping their lands and goods. In May 1338, Baldwin the prior was granted the priory in return for an annual rent of 26*l.* 5*s.* 7½*d.*, he having petitioned that the former rent exceeded the income and that he not having the necessaries of life, divine worship, celebrations of mass, alms and other works of piety would cease. In July 1338 followed a pardon (or remission) of 19*l.* 12*s.* 3½*d.* off the above sum, on condition that he pay a like sum of ten marks yearly. In March 1341 this sum was doubled, and the prior, preferring a fixed stipend without the worry of ever changing assessments, surrendered the priory into the King's hands, who committed it to his kinsman, Henry of Lancaster, Earl of Derby. A similar process troubled brother Alexander de Portu, prior of Tutbury, which had been assessed at 100 marks.

Many pages are devoted to the wool subsidy of 30,000 sacks, 14 lbs. to a stone and 26 stones to a sack, granted to the King in 1342. The Staffordshire collectors were Thomas de Swynerton, sheriff, Robert Mauveysyn, chivaler, John de Aston, chivaler, William de Perton and Ralph Basset of Cheadle. The assessment was 125 sacks, 12½ stones, 5 pounds, 1 quarter, at the rate of one-fifteenth. Compared with the 480 sacks from Suffolk, 637 from Kent, 632 from Lincoln, or 1103 from Norfolk, Staffordshire appears to come off lightly. In fact, the wool-raising industry had not yet reached the Midlands.

Considerable sums were paid by individuals and towns who wished to be freed from their assessment for supplying troops in 1346. Thus John de Handlo paid 160 marks for the remission of his quota of men-at-arms, hobelers and archers in counties Salop and Stafford; William Caumpion, assessed at one archer, paid 40*s.*; John Doyly for a hobeler and archer, 8 marks ; John de Aston, Adam de Morton, Henry de Bushbury and Thomas de Tamhorn, 5 marks each for a hobeler ; Sir John de Hastang, 26 marks for two men-at-arms and two archers ; Sir Thomas de Halghton, 10*l.* for one man-at-arms and one hobeler. The men of Penkridge, assessed at two armed men, were discharged from one for 5 marks.

As rewards for service we find the bailiwick of the hundred of Cuddeston granted (1339) to John de Bremesgrave, the King's porter, in the place of John de Troye, King's serjeant-at-arms, deceased. Robert de Ferrers in like manner received grants of Pirehill (1338 to 1345). Hugh de Wrottesley had, during pleasure, the keeping of the manor of Tettenhall, at a rent of 100*s.* He is likewise excused payment of customs at Antwerp on 27½ sacks of his own wool put on board at Great Yarmouth. There are many such exemptions, the King's clerk, Philip de Weston, being twice so privileged. In him we may probably recognize the newly-appointed (1339) Dean of Wolverhampton. During this period he also filled the posts of keeper of Carisbrook Castle (1342), guardian of the bishopric of Winchester, steward of the lands reserved to the chamber and keeper of Corfe Castle, 1345. One other local grant deserves mention. It is that of 100 acres of waste in the forest of Kinver to Leo de Perton the King's pantler, on payment of sums from 2*d.* to 4*d.* per acre a year. There are many place-names mentioned in the neighbourhood of Swindon and "the Spitelbrok," which is still marked on the map as a tributary of the Stour. Finally, it is interesting to find that Sir Robert Mauveysyn and Philip de Lutteleye, collectors of the subsidies of tenths and fifteenths in 1344-5, were to place the money in Lichfield Cathedral for safe keeping. Abbeys, priories and cathedrals, and in one case a church, served this purpose in other counties. The compilation and index (full and elaborate) of this volume is chiefly the work of Mr. A. E. Bland. This society has already printed General Wrottesley's abstracts from the Fine Rolls of Edward II in volume ix.

CALENDAR OF CHARTER ROLLS. Vol. V (1341-1417).

The character of the contents of this volume does not differ from that of previous volumes already reviewed in these pages (vide N.S. xii, and 1913). The charters dealt with largely consist of confirmations of older charters, and those which are new are usually grants of free-warren, markets, and other liberties.

Of the former, which date from William I, but are chiefly of Henry I, Stephen, Henry II, and Richard I, few concern Staffordshire. But there is a grant of Stephen to Roger (de Clinton), bishop of Chester, Coventry and Lichfield of the churches of Pencriz and Statford (1135-6). There is also a curious confirmation by Henry II (marked as spurious) of a charter of Robert de Baskerville, granting the abbey of Combermere, his manor of Erlida (Yarlett) near Stafford, half the villis of Aston, Ennestona (Enson), and Baginhold (Bagnall), with the waste of Longmore. One of the witnesses was Radulf, clerk of Kinver, "who wrote this charter." Printed in full also is a charter of King Richard, granting the bishop the towns and churches of Rugeley and Cannock, 4 December 1189.

Of grants of Free Warren that to Roger Hillary in 1344 takes first place, covering as it does the towns of Walsall, Rushall, Aldridge, Gorscote, Essington, Wednesbury, Tipton, West Bromwich, Great Barr, Little Barr, Perry Barr, Oscott, Hampstead, Handsworth, Fisherwick, Whittington, Horton, co. Stafford and two places in Warwickshire. Others are:—

William de Caverswall (with leave to make a park), at Caverswall, 1344.

Hugh Meignyll at Packington and Hints (and elsewhere), 1350.

John Cokayn in Snellesdale and Calton (and in Derbyshire), 1359.

John de Beverley, King's squire, at Penkridge, 1368.

Ralph Basset of Weldon, kt., at Madeley Alsowe, 1380.

John de Beverley is also favoured (1372) with a grant of view of frank pledge and other privileges in Penkridge and the fees and members thereof, to wit Wolgarston, Drayton, Connegrove, Doneston, Coverley, Bescote and Little Omn. In 1364, when "king's yeoman," he had been granted a market and fair at Penkridge.

Similar grants of markets and fairs were :— to Nicholas de Beek at Tene (1355).

to Ralph de Stafford, steward of the King's household, at Madeley-under-Lime (1341) and elsewhere.

to Nicholas de Stafford, kt., and Elizabeth his wife at Tiddeswell, co. Derby (1393).

to the bailiffs and burgesses of Stafford (a yearly fair on 3 May), 1412.

to Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, at Walsall (1417).

There is a charter creating Ralph, baron of Stafford, to be earl, 5 March 1351, and another (1398) in favour of Joan, widow of the seventh and last Ralph Bassett of Drayton, and sister of John, Duke of Brittany and Earl of Richmond. We may infer from a charter dated at Lichfield, 8 May 1348, that the King was passing through the county at that time.

In one of the indexes the places are grouped under counties, no easy matter, and such mistakes as arise may probably be due to faulty rubrication in the original—Hints, for instance, is not in Derbyshire. It may also be suggested that Shrewsbury abbey's manor "de loco Sancti Johannis Baptiste in the wood of Suthon, co. Stafford," which is indexed as Sutton in Norbury, is probably Sutton, near Shrewsbury, which the abbey had in 1240,¹ and where there was a church of St. John. Does not Sutton near Norbury belong to Meer ?
