In presenting the present situation, as of October 1941, the report concludes: "without going into detail, we are intending to make general adjustments in American-Japanese relations. The American side strongly maintains the assertion of theoretical principles.....Such is the present situation. Complete agreement is not yet found on basic matters for premises of principal negotiations.

Item 6: Paper Entitled: "Important Points to be Re-Examined in Furthering Important National Policies"

Undated

Summary: Item consists of 11 questions, with appropriate government department given for consultation on problem posed. All questions pertain to Japanese war planning, national mobilization, and policies regarding American-Japanese negotiations, and reveal evidence on time limit set for negotiations. (Q 10)

Following excerpts are the more significant questions posed and the government department for consultation is given in parentheses.

Q 7: "What degree of cooperation could be expected from G. & I. in case of war against A.B. & D.?"
(Foreign, Army, Navy)

Q 9: "In case war started in March of next year - -

14 Oct. 1941.

"Last progress in Japan America Negotiation." (Japanese 7 pages)

Ambassador Nomura was in unofficial conversations with State Secretary HULL, Chief of Communications WALTER and others; and produced a preliminary draft of Japan-America Understanding, which was cabled to us on 17 April.

The draft were in the prevention of European War coming to Pacific ocean, termination of China incident, etc --, the basic conditions of which shall first be concluded in the form of common declaration, and then details shall be concluded by Japan-America negotiations.

We sent a draft of 1st stage amendments on 12 May.

U.S. side sent us an counter-proposition.
to our draft.

We sent after further considerations
cabled the 2nd stage Amendments on 15 July.

These were communicated to Ambassadors of Germany and Italy.

The cabinet changed before Ambassador Namura handed over our 2nd. Amendment to U.S. Government. And shortly after our troops stationed to French Indo-China, which procedure the U.S. Government, mistaking to be first step of armed policy to South, conflicting to the maintenance of security in the Pacific Ocean which is the basic principle of Japan-America Understanding has taken an attitude that the continuance of the understanding talk is not possible, and on the other hand, on 26 July, operated the application of property freezing act to Japan. For this, in our side, on 28 July, the exchange control law was reinforced and applied the Alien trade control regulation to America.

Later on 30 July, occurred the "Tutuila" damage at Chungking, which fortunately came into settlement by the acceptance of our explanation by the American side.

The American side, taking our stationing of Troops in F.I.C. as opposing to the principle of peaceful settlements of international affairs, which must be the basic idea of Japan-American understanding, shows an attitude rather cool to the furtherance of negotiation. We are investigating how to improve such a situation and reopen the negotiation.

The Premier KONO's Message to President Roosevelt of 28 Aug. was sent for the purpose of releasing the acuteness of circumstance and find a way of reopening the negotiation.

To this, the American side, while agreeing with us in Japan-America adjustment, peace in the Pacific and the world security, points out on the other hand that common understandings in the basic principles of international relations are necessary between two governments, and that the fundamental adjustment of national relation shall be difficult without the guarantee of applications of these basic principles to the actual cases, and demanded our more explicit expression in regard to several basic cases in China, as well as our peaceful intention to North and South.

Since then, negotiations are going
and letters exchanged,
and at Tokyo and Washington, between
I [Foreign Minister] TOYOPA and Ambassador Grew, and between Ambassador NOMURA
and Secretary HULL and President Roosevelt.

Whilst we, intending general adjustments in international relations, without going into detailed matters, the American side strongly maintains the assertion of theoretical principles,
not satisfying with the temporary solutions, popular opinions being cared for. Such is the present situation of the negotiation not yet finding complete agreement about basic matters <sup>for</sup> premises of principal negotiation.

The American government seems, however, to have much concern <sup>we do in regard</sup> as to the adjustment of Japan-American relation as well as security in the Pacific Ocean, we are making our best for the realization of adjustment of national relation
on a fair foundation.
