SUMMARY OF RELEVANT POINTS:

Item 52: State Minister ADKI's explanation re the participation in war by the Chinese National Government.

The main object of participation in war by the National Government lies in (1) clarifying the way of national policy as well as arousing the national spirit all over the country, and (2) making the Chungking Government seem like a traitor. To cope with this new situation, the Japanese Government has decided in the Imperial Conference the following measures to deal with the Chinese problems:

- To strengthen the political power of the National Government as well as to destroy the center of anti-Japanese Chungking Government.
- 2. To terminate the China Incident before the offensive of U.S.A. and United Kingdom against Japan reaches its height.

"Then the Japanese Government made public the Joint Proclamation with the National Government regarding war and took various steps to strengthen her political power through her activities, such as the return of the concessions and extraterritoriality. From the economic point of view, Japan endeavors to develop industries and production in China on the basis of her abundant underground resources, agricultural production and labor power. As to the relation between the Imperial Way and "the Three Principles of the People", they are consistent in the matter of establishing a Greater East Asia."

Member TAKAOKA asked about the disposition of enemy property, and State Minister AOKI answered that the Government would deal with it from the viewpoint of carrying out the war and not from the Chinese viewpoint. Member NAKAYA asked about the ideology of the leaders of the National Government, and State Minister AOKI answered that there was no fear of their not cooperating with us.
