

ly, that he would speak of the battles which he had taken part in.

(7) It is difficult for us, in those days of steam and electricity, to realize how long it took to despatch a message in the seventeenth century, even when the occasion was most pressing.

(8) As might be expected, the English were no sooner assured that the invincible Armada was a thing of the past, than they thirsted to revenge themselves on the Spaniards for the anxiety and terror that the threatened invasion had inflicted upon them.

專門學校入學豫備檢定試驗

(1) A man's real inward habits and mental condition form his character. His will works out to the surface in some degree, and in some persons much more than in others.

(2) To do Lumsdam justice, that evening after dinner, he apologised most manfully for striking me and we were on better terms than even before.

(3) It is not the little a man has but rather a desire for more poverty-stricken class.

(4) a. The son takes after the father more than the mother. b. To wear gay colours at a funeral is out of keeping with the occasion.

東京高等師範學校豫科入學

(1) The best satisfaction for a father is to deserve and receive loyal and unfailing respect from his son.

(2) When you have to give advice, you should never forget whom you addressing, and what is practicable for him.

(3) In the decline of life, shame and grief are of short duration: whether it be that we bear easily what we have borne long; or that, finding ourselves in age less regarded, we less regard others.

東京外國語學校

(1) The winter is over and gone; and the day is gaining on the night.

(2) If you knew what a mean fellow he is, you'd have nothing to do with him.

(3) A great reputation is a great noise; the more there is made, the farther off it is heard.

(4) Now, I'll tell you what, my friend. I am not going to stand this sort of thing any longer.

神戸高等商業學校

(1) The fears expressed that the Great Northern steamship "Dakota" would become a total loss appear to be well-founded, the latest information to hand stating that there is but little or no prospect of saving either the vessel or her cargo. The bulk of the mails on board is also unfortunately believed to be irrecoverable. The one matter for satisfaction, therefore, is that no lives have been lost in this great shipping disaster, the whole of the passengers and crew being safely landed, and made as comfortable — with the aid of supplies from the ship — as possible under the circumstances.

(2) The business world of to-day demands that things be done quickly — but it also demands that they be done well. The power of yesterday is not the power of today. The methods of yesterday will not do today.

(3) The late marshall Field is said to have left important holdings in many cities in Europe, Asia and Africa, amounting to $50,000,000 in round numbers.

山口高等商業學校

(1) Fine clothes are not essential to self-respect. Though a person's dress be coarse and plain, if it be suited to the employment in which he is engaged, or is as good as he can procure, and is kept as clean and tidy as possible, he has no reason to think less of himself because he is not dressed in a rich and fashionable manner.

(2) The art of saving is not a difficult art to learn; but the learning of it ought to begin early. If a habit is formed early, it is easy; and a habit once formed is never thrown away. Habit is second nature; and it is quite possible to form so settled a habit of saving time and money that we should find it more difficult to waste than to save.

(3) The money given to the poor old man will go far towards clothing him for the winter.

(4) Will you go halves with me in buying this land?

長崎高等商業學校

(1) To speak perfectly well one must feel that he has got to the bottom of his subject.

(2) He made light of his illness, not even consulting a doctor about it.

(3) The little time one can afford for reading ought to settle the question once for all as to what shall he read.

(4) Whoever tries to be other than himself, makes a failure of life, and yet many do this very thing.

(5) In the daily affairs of life, whether the most important or the least, duty should be the first thing to be kept in mind.

東京商船學校

(1) Vice in its true light is so deformed, that it shocks us at first sight, and hardly ever seduce us if it did not, at first, wear the mask of some virtue.

(2) We flatter ourselves by claiming to national and intellectual beings, but it would be a great mistake to suppose that men are always guided by reason.

(3) The cowards die many times before their deaths; the valiants never taste of death but once.

(4) People who are uncertain of themselves, who are not sure of their character, are always throwing up a defence to protect them—selves against the close scrutiny of the world.

同入學豫備

(1) The thing may be worth a good deal more than you gave for it, yet, if you do not want it, it may be dear to you.

(2) If we try to grasp all the good things in the world, and give nothing in return, we will be compelled to swallow some very portions.

(3) Agreeable company means agreement in thought and sentiment; not necessarily in expression or idea.

(4) Exercise is not something to be done at some special hour of the day merely, but is, if life is to be a joy and a pleasure, to be the business of the day.

東京商船學校

(1) The wealth of the world cannot purchase a moment of time; princes and kings can not command it; it is the common inheritance and possession of all.

(2) Look at the results of a dissolute life, which are as certain in their effects as punishments; as a contrary life is secure in its rewards.

(3) A man who has his will in control, and whose actions are controlled by his will, exhibits one of the noblest objects in creation.

(4) The man who treats his servants even in any but the most respectful manner forfeits his own respects, and very properly forfeits theirs.

水產講習所

(1) Napoleon wrote, "Nothing is more important in war than unity of command." No people understood better than the Russians the value of the conqueror's maxims. Yet in the opening of the campaign in Manchuria the troops were placed under the orders of an admiral and a general.

(2) The nineteen centuries since the birth of Christ are antecedent to the twentieth century, or the one we live in; but it is the nineteenth only we call the preceding one.

(3) Every member of society feels and acknowledges the necessity of detecting crimes, yet scarce any degree of virtue or reputation is able to secure an informer from public hatred.

(1) Never speak ill of the absent or of anybody else unless you are sure they deserve it; and, not then, unless it is necessary for the amendment, or for the safety and benefit of others.

(2) The professor's lecture was delivered in a free and eloquent manner, which proved him to be quite at home with his subjects.

(3) It is difficult even for the imagination to conceive the feelings of such a man at the moment of so sublime a discovery.

(4) When I fled from my duty every thing went wrong with me; but now, after fulfilling it, good luck meets me at every step.

(5) In the meeting at the residence of one of their leaders on the 5th inst., the progressist party decided to work actively with regard to the anti-

Japanese agitation in California. It is really a matter of national importance.

(1) Look at that boy, who has just succeeded after six hours of hard study. How his large eye is lit up with a proud joy, as he marches to his class.

(2) The plowman is an aristocrat, if he excels in his vocation: he is an aristocrat, if he turns a better or a straighter furrow than his neighbour.

(3) It is said that trees are sometimes ignited by the friction of dry branches which happen to touch each other when violently rubbed together during a strong wind.

(4) In another instant, before the spectators had thought of the danger, the fawn was leaping wildly through the street and the hound in full chase.

東京高等工業學校

(1) He went to Holland, the country to which his father had just been appointed minister from the United States.

(2) Every human being is intended to have a character of his own, to be what no other is, to do what no other can.

(3) Other nations are not only men, but brothers, and their interests are in many ways bound up with us. If they suffer, we suffer with them; whatever benefits them, benefits us.

名古屋高等工業學校

(1) It has been said that all the coal mined in the world would barely supply the steam pumps that would be needed to pump back the water that flows over Niagara Falls.

(2) Though I often made fun of what you said that was simply a way I had; and when I saw you did not mind, I continued in that way, hoping always to vex you.

熊本高等工業學校

(1) The Chinese Government is said to have decided to send seventy students to the Nautical College in Tokyo.

(2) The next morning Teddy and Vick were up before any body else and marched proudly about with their guns on their shoulders, talking of all the game they were going to bring home.

(3) The distance of the moon from the earth is about 239, 000 miles, or thirty times the diameter of the earth. The mass of the moon, which is only about one-eightieth part of the mass of the earth, is still sufficient at that distance to produce disturbances of considerable magnitude on the surface of our planet.

(4) All communications to be addressed to the director of the Higher Technical School of Kumamoto.

(5) Will Mrs. A and Mr. A give us the pleasure of your company to-morrow evening to a six o'clock supper? Kindly let me know if you come.

仙臺高等工業學校

(1) Very cold I was, I know, notwithstanding the hot tea they had given me before a large fire.

(2) Society does not in any age prevent a man from being what he can be.

(3) Caesar not only fought battles, he wrote an account of them too.

(4) Read nothing that you do not care to remember, and remember nothing you do not mean to use.

千葉醫學專門學校 (甲)

(1) In fact, a gas has an intense desire to fill any vacant space that is not already filled, and will strongly exert itself to do so.

(2) You have seen how powerful an agent heat is; how the strongest and hardest bar of iron will by it he changed into a white hot mass as soft as treacle, not if heated still more will be driven of in the shape of gas.

(3) Evidently then the sound does not reach the ears at the very moment when the gun is fired, because it lags behind the light.

(1) To-day the face of nature looks bright and happy, and full of smiles; to-morrow the same face is dark and lowering; the ram falls, the thunder roars, and the sea is tossed with waves and very stormy.

(2) The diamond is the hardest solid; that is to say, it can scratch everything else, but nothing else can scratch it.

(3) You have seen that a body in actual motion may be said to possess energy, and also that the same may be said of a body in vibration.

金澤醫學專門學校

(1) No country seems to owe more to its women than ours.

(2) If you really are what you say you are you are doubtless worthy of any situation.

岡山醫學專門學校

(1) Honour, like life, when once it is lost, is never recovered.

(2) If we are ever in doubt what to do, it is a good rule to ask ourselves what we shall wish on the morrow that we had done.

(3) What we call conduct and good manners obtains for us that which otherwise is to be obtained only by force, or not even by force.

(4) Public disgrace I might have faced, although I am a man whose character has never yet borne a stain. Private affliction is also the lot of every man; but the two coming together, and in so frightful a form, have been enough to shake my very soul.

(1) A spirit of independence, which was formerly conspicuous by its absence, has been created.

(2) "No one who can afford to leave," he remarked, "lives in New York during the hot season."

(3) Old as he was, Marlborough's designs had from the first all the dash and boldness of youth.

(4) On Tuesday the laughter grew louder and louder as the programme wore on, and the audience went away with aching sides and jaws, vowing that it was the wittiest and funniest entertainment that London had seen for years.

(1) When a boy does wrong, and then tells a lie to conceal it, he not only commits a sin, but he is a great coward also.

(2) Newton began to think how and why it was, that, when the stem broke, the apple fell to the ground.

(3) Never, perhaps, have triumph and lamentation been so strangely intermingled. Astonishment and admiration at the splendid victory (General Wolfe), filled every breast. Throughout all the land were illuminations and public rejoicings, except in the little village of Westerham, where Wolfe was born, and where his widowed mother now mourned her only child.

大阪高等工業學校

(1) The nations which have the skill and ingenuity to higher class than those which only acquire advanced warlike machines by purchase.

(2) The world has a long distance to travel in the uphill road of industrial and social improvement before it can succeed in obtaining a really true view of the part filled by inventive genius in contributing to human happiness.

(3) It is a known fact that, taken all round, the Russian field guns were much better than those which we had, and that their cavalry was a good deal more numerous.

海軍兵學校
