12. Because of the extra large number of cash and special premiums—both for the novies and the already great.

Do not forget to write the Secretary, S. J. Johnston, No. 417 West St., Bloomsburg, Pa., so that you may receive a premium list.

Geo. Hassert, one of the Bloomsburg Leghorn fanciers, has a number of pullets that are laying. They commenced when they were just four and a half months old. His cockerels are also some class.

The Columbia County Association certainly have a case of "Too much Johnston" on their hands. Mail and addressed get quite a little mixed. They have B. H., the White Leghorn man; Boyd, the Imperial Barred Rock raiser, and S. J., the Black Minorca fancier. The latter is the Secretary; the former a director, and Boyd is the First Vice President. But it matters not to which the mail is addressed because all are well known in Bloomsburg and vicinity and they have the welfare of the association at heart.

Here we are in September, the month of many of the largest Fall Poultry Shows of the country, and best of all Pennsylvania can boast of one of the greatest if not the greatest Fall Poultry Shows in the whole United States, Allentown. Are you going to show there? If you can, do so. If you cannot, attend at least. It will repay you a hundred fold. Speaking of Allentown, we naturally think of W. Theo. Wittman, and what this man has done towards making the Allentown show what it is today. Too much praise cannot be given Wittman. We only wish more such men were at the helm of our large shows of today. Don't forget entries close Sept. 13. Show dates: Sept. 24, 25, 26 and 27.

Read the letters from the different association secretaries this month. Aren't you proud of your Pennsylvania shows? We know of no other State where the associations are more liberal in cash premiums and specials than right here in Pennsylvania, and that notwithstanding the fact that this great State does absolutely nothing towards the support of her poultry shows. When will the poultrymen of Pennsylvania awaken to the fact that they can do much to hasten the time when Pennsylvania will be forced to assist her poultry shows? Get after your legislators, let them know that you are as interested in an appropriation for State aid for the poultry show as the people of Harrisburg were interested in the Capitol Park extension.

Williamsport, Pa., is the first of the large winter shows, coming as it does in Thanksgiving week, it will make Williamsport a mecca for the fancier. In Williamsport's previous shows her reputation was made, and all over this broad land Williamsport, Pa., has a clean bill of lading in the conduct of her exhibitions. Mr. Frank Corey in a letter to a friend, in speaking of Williamsport, says: "Of all the shows I have ever attended, Williamsport was the best managed, and her officers men who know how."

It is this perfect attention to details that has made the Williamsport Show what it is today.

For the coming event, Nov. 27, 28,

29 and 30, and for which entries close Nov. —, the exhibitor will find a still greater effort put forth to place Williamsport on the top rung of the ladder.

At the Philadelphia Show last winter the writer was asked by a prominent official of one of our largest eastern shows, how Williamsport could, on a fifty-cent entry fee, put on such a show as she was in the habit of doing. We can only explain this by saying that where some shows depend on the dollar and two dollar entry fee to finance their shows, Williamsport raises that difference by other means. True, it means some hustle on the part of her managers, but a saving to the exhibitor. We give you a two dollar entry fee show, on a fifty-cent entry. In addition to this as a sample, we give you a few specials: On the White Leghorns, $30 in cash specials; White Wyandottes, $25 to date, Aug. 6th; Barred Plymouth Rocks, a like amount, and three silver cups; classes also for pullet bred and cockerel bred, with cash on all. Houdans, Camperees and Rose Combs in varieties that are forgotten in most premium Lists, are well taken care of at Williamsport. Write Geo. P. Stryker, Box 415, get your name on his mailing list. When the premium list is out compare it with the shows with their $2.00 and $3.00 entry and decide to show at Williamsport.

Mr. E. B. Darrow and Bernard Himes, chairman of the committee on advertising and specials, surely have been faithful to their jobs. Here are a pair of hustlers that Williamsport may well be proud of.

Mac Dawson is planning to make an elaborate display at the Williamsport Show. F. W. Dawson and Son for years have made this exhibit, and this year will go one better, putting on a display of incubators, brooders, feeds and supplies that will extend for fifty feet along the north side of the Armory. The name of Dawson is a household word to poultrymen of Central Pennsylvania and Mac is a worker for all that pertains to Williamsport show affairs.

Sure! Lewistown has a live one in A. D. Ullrick. It is these kind of men that make poultry shows.

We are in receipt of a letter from B. F. Kahler, president of the Hughesville, (Pa.) Show. Dates for this winter's exhibition, Dec. 18, 19 and 20. The following are the officers for the ensuing year: President, B. F. Kahler; Vice Presidents, Geo. H. Miller and S. B. Gaunt; Treasurer, Dr. H. J. Smith; Secretary, B. Monroe Postern; Directors, Ray Sones, Milton Springer, B. H. Boatman and Geo. Huffman. These men are known to be true fanciers, and with them at the helm you can look for Hughesville to do herself proud at her next exhibition. We will look to President Kahler to keep the Fancier readers posted on show matters at Hughesville. Give us more news, Brother Kahler.

Have you decided at which shows you will exhibit your birds this winter? If not, decide to show at your own local show first, then if you are a Pennsylvania Fancier take in as many shows of your own State as you can. A good home reputation spreads.

B. F. Kahler, one of the old guard of Fanciers in Pennsylvania, informs us that the Hughesville Fair Association is putting up a new Poultry Building, 60x20 feet. This is progress and we bet B. F. helped this good move along.

Geo. P. Stryker, who is rounding out his second year as secretary of the Williamsport Association, reports that the regular and special cash prizes will run over fifteen hundred dollars at the coming event, Nov. 27, 28, 29 and 30. In addition to the cash they have some specials that for value have seldom been equalled at any show. George says the Premium List will surprise them all. I guess he is right, alright, alright.

Say, why does every one ask E. B. Darrow, the Leghorn man of Williamsport, if he has a pair of boots to spare? Tell me, and I will tell you.

Souder Bros., So. Williamsport, Pa., are reported as not having crossed the bridge since the date of their first hatch. It is also reported that these two brothers take turns sitting up nights watching a flock of the best White Leghorns these boys have ever raised. And they always breed good ones. Talking about bugs, here's a pair.

Boyd Johnston, of Rupert, may have thought the writer had to milk cows, but that don't excuse him for not introducing him to the street car conductor.

We hope that every show secretary in this section of Pennsylvania, will contribute to this department for October. Get your copy in as soon as you get your current issue of Fancier. To insure insertion in October number it should reach us as near the first of the month as possible. Get busy.

We have been asked to make this department a Pennsylvania State Department, giving news from all over the State. What do you think of it, Brother Payne of Scranton, and Riley of Philadelphia, and all you show people from different parts of the State. Speak up.

The fifth annual show of the Sunbury Poultry Association, which will be held in Armory Hall, Jan. 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th, 1913, promises to exceed by far any other former show held in Sunbury. Inquiries for premium lists and other information regarding the show are already commencing to come in.

Great preparations are under way to make this the biggest and best show ever held in Sunbury, and the Association is already getting the premium list into shape, which will be ready the latter part of November. The Association expects to have the best line of specials yet offered so as to give the fancier with second prize a chance to win something, and not have the first prize birds win everything in sight.

This show will be run strictly on the square, no favors will be shown anyone, but everybody treated alike and any exhibitor can rest assured that he will be accorded the same treatment, even though he cannot be present when his birds are judged, as the exhibitor that is with his birds when they are judged. The Association will see to it that no partiality is shown any one, neither will the Association allow any exhibitor to use any dishonest methods to win. If any fancier expects to win by dishonesty we don't want his business or patronage but we do want all the birds we can get entered with an honest intent and purpose, and the little fellow that will enter his one bird and that bird should happen to be a mongrel, nevertheless his bird will be taken care of and handled just the same as the fellow that sends a string of 100 birds and we will be pleased to answer his inquiries just as prompt and cheerfully as the big fellow, and besides the judges will be instructed to examine every bird and take it out of the coop although it may be a mongrel, or in other words the Association wants the little fellow's business just as well as the big fellow's and in order to get that business we will have to treat everybody alike, in fact we will positively not stand for anything that is not honest and right.

Every premium that we offer, the Association will stand back of it and whoever the winner is can rest assured that he will get the premium that he won. All cash prizes will be paid the last day of the show and if exhibitors cannot be present on the last day of the show their premium money will be mailed to them the last day of the show with other premiums that they may have won. Mr. H. M. Kenner, Barred Rock specialist, will judge the Rocks and Orpingtons. Mr. Kenner judged for Sunbury last year and gave good satisfaction, in fact not one kick, and every exhibitor that showed under him, winner or not winner, want him back. Mr. F. G. Wile will judge the other breeds. Mr. Wile needs no introduction, as he is an old hand at the business, and any exhibitor showing under Mr. Wile can rest assured that he will just what belongs to him.

In looking over the field we find that there are more people raising fancy chickens in and around Sunbury than ever, of course there are not so many early birds as in former years, but this same condition exists all over the country; but lots of later hatched that are coming on nice, and our show being a late show, the late birds by that time will be just at their best, which should bring out banner classes in cockerels and pullets. If any of our former patrons and friends have any suggestion to make that would help to improve our premium list or rules we would thank them for such suggestion, which would be carefully considered by the Association in making up their premium list. H. Y. Tobias, the White Wyandotte breeder, and Secretary and Treasurer of this Association, will not show any birds this year in competition but expects to have a string at the show just the same but only on exhibition.

For any information regarding the show address all communications to H. Y. Tobias, Secretary, Sunbury, Pa.

Easton will hold her sixth exhibition during the week of Jan. 6, 1913. As heretofore our premium list will compare very favorably with any show of its size in the country. We are making a special effort to have at least $500 in cash specials this year. No strings to any of our specials; the exhibitor who wins them this year takes them. Again Easton is one of the very few shows that pays second money on single entries, so it can readily be seen that everybody is treated fairly and squarely. Each exhibition is growing larger which proves that we satisfy our exhibitors. Our judges for this show are J. D. Koons, Treichlers, Pa.; J. T. Baldwin, Philadelphia, Pa., and J. W. Bruckhart, of Lititz, Pa. All inquiries for premium lists will be gladly answered and copies sent to all who write for same to S. W. Godley, Secretary, Easton Poultry Association, Inc.

WHERE IS LEWISTOWN?

First in war, first in peace;

First in the minds of chickendom—

That's Lewistown!

The writer was asked by a citizen of the State of Maine: "How about Logan, the famous Mingo Indian Chief, and Alfarata, the Indian maiden who roamed where flows the waters of the Blue Juniata—did they really exist or were they only a myth?" Logan, the great chieftan, lived six miles from Lewiston and Alfarata, the Indian maiden, lived near Lewistown. No, they were not a myth—neither is the poultry show at Lewistown.

A real, live poultry association exists at Lewiston and we are on the map—61 miles west of Harrisburg, 72 miles east of Altoona, on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the terminus of the branch to Sunbury, 50 miles distant.

Mifflin County, the seat of which is Lewistown, sent the first company of infantry to Harrisburg on their way to Washington (a part of the First Defenders); it also had the first company of cavalry to offer their services when the call of Lincoln went forth for volunteers in the great Civil War, started in 1861. Mifflin County sent more soldiers to the Civil War than any other county in the Union, according to population. First in war!

When you hear a noise like a great battle, don't think the war is on again—it is only the boys at Lewistown unlimbering for action in preparation for the second annual poultry exhibition, which will be held Dec. 31, 1912, January 1, 2 and 3, 1913. When you hear a noise like a soda fountain that will denote that the boys have settled down to business and are just letting loose some surplus steam for they have an abundance of it. Last year, at the first annual exhibition, 469 birds were placed on the floor and every bird was returned to the owner in a satisfactory and pleasing manner—so pleasing, in fact, that they are all coming back again. Although our entry fee was only 25c and admission to hall 10c, yet the patronage of the public was so good that we came out of the fray with a surplus—a rare thing for a new show. We had the people with us and the exhibitors too. We had Williamsport, Bloomsburg, Sunbury, Rochester and other big winners in our line-up and the competition was hot. This year it will be more than hot as the boys are going about it in a more scientific manner. We welcome all the big winners at our show for if we win over them our glory will be all the greater and if defeated we will feel it less keenly; however, there will be "glory enough for all."

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Koons of Treichlers, Pa., will judge our show by the comparison system and a square deal is assured to all. Competition is open to the world and we want the best in the world at our show. There are no strings to our prizes—if you win them they are yours and you will have our congratulations, but, remember you must have quality to get the cream at Lewistown and a win here will count for something. Don't forget; our next show will be bigger and better than ever, and all roads will lead to Lewistown, geographically located in the center of the State and on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Get ready to show in Lewistown this

THE LEBANON PA. SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Lebanon county Poultry and Pigeon Association will be held in Lebanon, Pa., December 10th to the 14th. They have secured the large Wiemer Auditorium which is the largest and best hall in the city, and they will be in a position to coop singly, and single tiers, the entire show.

There is offered a very attractive premium list, with liberal specials. The Oriental Frill Club of America will meet at Lebanon during the show, which will naturally bring out a number of these birds. Chas. T. Cornman and W. Beer will place the awards.

THE MISSOURI STATE POULTRY SHOW.

Some of the biggest and best poultry shows ever held in the past were the Missouri State Poultry Shows held at Kansas City and St. Louis. An effort will be made this year to make the one at Springfield, Mo., Dec. 10-14, equally as great as any we have ever held. The following prizes will be paid: Pens, $10 for 1st, $5 for 2nd, $2.50 for 3rd; single entries, $3.00 for 1st, $2.00 for 2nd, $1.00 for 3rd. Lots of club prizes and special prizes are offered. A winning at a great show like this means hundreds of dollars to the exhibitor as an advertising proposition. You will be wise if you put the Big Missouri State Show on your list this year. The best judges of the Central West are on our list, and we guarantee an absolutely impartial and square deal to every exhibitor.

Special inducements are offered to any exhibitor who wants a special booth in which to make a display of his birds. This is one of the best ways imaginable to advertise your birds and to make a hit with them.

There will be a special department for the school children and for an educational exhibit. The children will have several hundred birds on display. You want to interest the coming generation in poultry.

One of the best features of this big show will be the poultry school, lectures by experts and prominent poultrymen from the Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations. An excursion train will be run from Springfield on Thursday of that week and all visitors, exhibitors and judges will be taken to Mountain Grove to inspect the Missouri State Poultry Experiment Station. This will be your opportunity to learn something of the methods there and to see the hens in the National Egg Laying Contest. You will see birds from England, Australia, Japan, Canada, and all parts of the United States. We invite all to visit the Experiment Station, and urge you to make a display of your poultry at Springfield, Mo., Dec. 10-14, 1912. Write the Secretary for premium list.

ANCONA BREEDERS, PLEASE TAKE NOTICE.

The Ancona Club of America is an organization whose sole object is the promoting of the interest of all Ancona breeders, and the perfecting of the Ancona fowl. Realizing that this object is best attained by encouraging exhibition, association and personal acquaintance of the breeders with one another, this club has held each year since its organization a National Meeting at a prominent show in different parts of the United States.

Special and valuable prizes have been awarded to the winners, and great general good has come from the association and meeting together of so many Ancona breeders where Ancona matters in general were discussed. The National Meetings will be continued as in the past and the special prizes will be more valuable than ever before.

The officers of the Ancona Club of America, believing in returning every cent possible to the breeder, encouraging exhibition, and closer unity of all Ancona breeders, has recently instituted a Nation-wide movement to hold State Meetings or State Shows in every State in the Union. Special silver prizes will be offered at these State Shows, valued in proportion to the State membership. These shows will bring together the best stock in the State, insuring to Ancona people an exhibition worth coming to see, also be a valuable feature to both the buyer and the seller.

The Penna. State Show will be held during the coming season at some point easy of access, and valuable silver prizes will be offered. All members of the Ancona Club of America, residing within the State are eligible to compete, and are earnestly requested to help make the movement a success worthy of the noble Ancona. The State Vice President solicits suggestions from all breeders and would like every member to express preference as to the place of holding the show.

THE CUMBERLAND WHITE-EGG RUNNER CLUB.

First called meeting, Tuesday, Sept. 10, 1912, at Poultry Building, State Fair, Syracuse, N. Y. Two sessions, the first at 11 A. M. for adoption of Constitution, election of permanent officers and plans for a rousing year's work will be the order of the day. All questions of policy at the outset will be decided by vote, members only voting. All who wish to have a word in early are welcomed and should join before this meeting. Initiation with annual dues, $2.00. C. S. Valentine, Acting President, Ridgewood, N. J.

RHODE ISLAND REDS

How to Breed and Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

Is the Best and Most Complete Treatise Ever Published on this Popular Breed

There are but few breeds so widely advertised to-day as the Rhode Island Reds and no breed in which there is such a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes perfection.

"RHODE ISLAND REDS; HOW TO BREED AND JUDGE THEM" is better than the "STANDARD OF PERFECTION"

because it goes into detail and describes every section, with numerous illustrations, showing ideal and defective shape and color, thus making scoring so simple that any one can understand. Some sections have four or five illustrations showing the several defects that may be found in them, with the proper discount for the same as applied by our leading Judges.

Size of Book 11 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches, Contains over 50 pages, including cover which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00

In addition to this most complete series of articles on scoring, there are numerous articles from America's foremost Red breeders on every phase of Red Breeding. This book tells you just what you want to know. It tells you how to mate your pens; how to grow your chicks; how to select your show birds; in fact, it tells you how to grow, exhibit and make money out of Reds.

This book is sold on approval. The price is $1.00. If you are not satisfied with your bargain, send us back the book and we will refund your money.

SPECIAL OFFER

Standard Wyandottes in Colors and How to Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

REACHES THE CLIMAX FOR THOSE INTERESTED IN THIS VARIETY. WHEN YOU SEE IT YOU WILL ACKNOWLEDGE THAT IT IS THE BEST AND WORTH MANY TIMES THE PRICE TO YOU.

This book teaches you How to Score and Judge the greatest of all the American varieties. No other work published will give the information as it is given by Theo. Hewes in his articles, which are fully illustrated by over one hundred pictures, together with the chart system, of which he is the originator, and which is copyrighted by him. Not only do full page half-tone plates of some of the finest living specimens of these breeds appear in black and white, but the richest and grandest work ever done in oil by an artist is given by I. W. Burgess in a series of twelve pictures representing male and female, accompanied by feathers from the different sections of the birds in colors.

Size of book 11 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches. Contains over 70 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE, $1.00

These pictures are 4 1/2 x 7 inches in size, and cost over $1,000 for the copper plates alone, to say nothing of the artist's labor and general cost of production. In fact no expense has been spared to make it by far the most valuable work on Wyandottes ever printed in America or elsewhere you cannot duplicate it at any price, but you can have one by return mail for $1.00, and if you are not satisfied we will refund your money. We do as we say we will, now and always. Our past dealings with the public will prove this.

Remit by Express, P. O. Order or Check as this is the safest way. Book will be sent immediately upon receipt of order.

OWEN FARMS

Our Win at NEW YORK, MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, Last Show

BUFF ORPINGTONS: Five firsts including first cock, first hen, first cockerel, first pullet, first pen, making first in all the classes, and also third cock, fourth hen and sixth cockerel.

WHITE ORPINGTONS: Three firsts, first cockerel, first hen and first pen; also second pen, third and fifth cock, sixth hen and third pullet.

BLACK ORPINGTONS: First cockerel, fifth hen and fifth pen.

WHITE ROCKS: Four firsts, first cock, first cockerel, first pullet and first pen. Second in all five classes, cock hen cockerel, pullet and pen. Fourth and fifth cock, fourth hen, fifth cockerel, fourth pullet, and on pen we won every place but fourth, making our pen winnings first, second, third, fifth and sixth.

BARRED ROCKS: In this variety no exhibitor won more than one first. We won first pullet, which was awarded the Shape Special and also won the Championship for best female. We also won fourth pullet and second hen.

WHITE WYANDOTTES: Three firsts, cock, cockerel, and pen. Also third and fourth cock, second, third and fifth hen, second cockerel, second and third pullet, and second and third pen, giving us the first three awards on pen.

SINGLE COMB REDS: First cockerel, first hen and first pen. Our first hen also won the shape special. We also won fifth and sixth cock.

ROSE COMB REDS: First cock and first pen. Our first cock was the champion male of the show. We also won third cock, second and sixth hen.

SILVER PENCILED ROCKS: Four firsts, cockerel, hen, pullet and pen. Also third cock, fifth hen, fourth cockerel, and third and fifth pullet.

CLUMBIAN WYANDOTTES: First and fourth pullet and fourth pen.

This made a grand total of 27 firsts, 12 seconds, 11 thirds, 9 fourths, 10 fifths and 5 sixths, and a total number of birds winning under ribbons at this famous and largest show in America of 139.

We sold out of the First Prize birds winning there one hen and one pen. All the other birds we kept on our farm for breeding. The result is that never before in the history of Owen Farms have we had such wonderful success in young stock. We commenced hatching very early and we have birds of magnificent form, fully developed, all along the line in each variety and can absolutely say that never have we seen such marvelous form as displayed by our birds at the present time, or have we had such promise in birds to fill orders for guaranteed winners in every show as it comes along.

8000 CHICKS

This does not seem so many if you say it quickly, but when you consider that each and every one of the chicks is born and bred from ancestors of the purest blood and of almost priceless value, nearly all hatched and raised by hens and reared on broad range with abundant shade, having every possibility to attain the very greatest size and weight, together with the most perfect color, you will appreciate the enormous undertaking attempted, and if you could see the resulting chicks you would be very enthusiastic over the results attained.

In BUFF ORPINGTONS you could go through yard after yard containing fifty birds, either cockerels or pullets, and find each and all of them of even, beautiful color, magnificent type, good head points and such examples of the Buff Orpington as have never before been seen. Both in breeding stock and in exhibition stock, in old and young, we have a remarkable lot of birds, and each and every one of them is for sale. Remember we want you to see all birds before final acceptance and we insist that you shall be satisfied with what you have from Owen Farms.

In WHITE ORPINGTONS we have a great lot of youngsters; birds that have attained immense size, are particularly fine in head points and good in color. From the beginning we have ever been at the very head and front at Madison Square Garden in White Orpingtons. We can win any place for you if you but give us a fair chance. Our prices on all of our stock this year will be extremely interesting to our customers, as we have such a large quantity of very high class stock we have determined that our value for money received shall be higher than ever.

In BLACK ORPINGTONS we have many more this year than ever before and of far higher quality. Today we have a cockerel weighing 9 lbs. just finishing that in the opinion of Mr. Delano and the writer is the best bird in Black Orpingtons that has ever been bred anywhere in the world up to date. A large number of birds bred from this same pen give promise and I am positive that the results for our customers in Black Orpingtons this year will be as great as it has been in previous years in Buffs and Whites. We have made a special effort along the line of magnificent quality, great size and fine Black Orpington characteristics. The Black Orpington has been more popular each year and we are particularly anxious to please our customers in this variety.

In WHITE ROCKS we have a very large flock, both old and young, of the best grown and most perfect birds that Owen Farms has ever possessed. These we have in quantity and we can fill your orders and be as certain of winning for you as we have been in the past. Our cocks and hens are moulting into perfect form and we are ready at once to furnish you a complete string of old and young and pens that would win anywhere in the United States. Our winning at New York was the most sensational win in White Rocks ever attained by any one and it has been a history of continuous winning there year after year for more than ten years.

In WHITE WYANDOTTES this year will prove our banner year. FORTY cockerels better than the First and Second Cockerels at New York last year have already been selected and are under careful development and training. I repeat, FORTY cockerels better than the First and Second at New York at the last show. Our pullets hens and cock birds have grand size, the most perfect heads, well rounded and full breasts, with tail carriage that makes them perfect in Wyandotte shape, and altogether the most classy lot of Wyandottes that has ever been seen. I am positive that we can win any show in the country for you and at very reasonable prices. Mr. Delano, our manager, went South last year to see exactly what the South wanted in White Wyandottes and all the other varieties. The writer, Mr. Owen, went West clear to the Pacific Coast in order that he might see what the requirements were in all varieties there. There is no doubt that there are slight differences of opinion among the judges in different sections of the country as to the exact ideal of type in various breeds. Whatever these differences may be we have taken every step to learn and we know we are right when we say that we can provide you with the birds that will absolutely win for you wherever you may wish to exhibit.

In SINGLE COMB REDS at New York, as noted above, we won three of the five firsts, more than all others combined. Every one who has been on our farms has held up his hands and said, "I have never seen anything like it in magnificent, even color, in nearly perfect type and in every characteristic that makes the Rhode Island Red a wonderful bird." That we had the best pens this year that have ever been mated we have repeatedly affirmed and it is positively true. That the resulting cockerels and pullets are way beyond anything ever exhibited is equally true, and that we can and will furnish you in Single Comb Reds what you are absolutely expecting, wherever you may be, you may depend upon, and again I say, remember that if they do not come to you as good as you expect them for the money paid you may return them after a reasonable rest of two, three or four days, according to the distance.

In ROSE COMB REDS I cannot say that we are stronger than in the Single Comb, because I think that would be impossible, but I do say that we are as strong in this variety of the Red as we ever were or are in the Single Comb. In my travels over the United States and to various exhibitions I have never found the Rose Comb class quite as strong in evenness of color and in perfection of detail as the Single Comb. On Owen Farms, however, I am prepared to say that the Rose Combs do not take any second position for evenness of color and for perfection of type in male and female they are nothing short of marvelous and that we shall give our customers in Reds a glad surprise this year you may be certain. In no variety have the trips our Mr Delano and our Mr. Owen made to the various exhibitions, North, South, East and West, been so tremendously important and so fruitful in equipping us with proper information to make our customers win as in Rhode Island Reds. We know exactly what is necessary. We have it and we will furnish it and we will furnish it to you.

In BARRED ROCKS we have many more birds than ever before but unfortunately in exhibition cockerels we shall not be ready with fully furnished birds before November first. We have the most magnificent lot of exhibition females that has ever been bred and from November first on we can sell guaranteed winners in both male and female and be sure of making good. The quality of our young cockerels is surprising even to us but, as I said above, they were not as early hatched as all our other varieties. You can safely rely, however, on our filling your wants and carrying out any guarantee for winning any show after November first.

COLUMBIAN WYANDOTTES and SILVER PENCIL-ED ROCKS. We are not large breeders of these two varieties but, as our winning at New York last year showed, we are possessed of the very top quality, and while we have not bred a large number of birds we have bred some choice ones and we are prepared in these two varieties to furnish a limited number of birds that can win anywhere and at very reasonable prices.

MODERATE PRICED BIRDS

Having as large a flock as we have this year we are wonderfully equipped to furnish good birds at moderate prices. Our catalogue tells you just about what you may expect in birds at various prices, so that you can make up your mind exactly what you feel that it is best for you to buy and we will be only too glad to send you subject to your approval the birds you may order. Our invariable rule is to pay the expressage on birds that are not satisfactory. This paying the return expressage, however, does not apply to males sold at less than $10.00 or females at less than $5.00. In all cases where males or females are sold at amounts under these figures they may be returned if not satisfactory but the return express charges must be borne by the buyer

EARLY ORDERS

Book your order early. This is to your advantage and to ours. It allows us to select the birds longer in advance, fit them better, give you better trained birds, in better condition for the shows. It also insures our giving you our best help for a particular show. We only sell one person in a class for any show in America and you can see how urgent it is, if you wish us to furnish the bird, that you take steps to book your order at the earliest possible moment.

CATALOGUE

Our 131 page catalogue with a large amount of illustrations is yours for the asking. We trust that therein are some things which will be helpful to you as well as interesting.

SECRETS OF SUCCESSFUL POULTRY RAISING

POULTRY

SUCCESS and successful poultry raising are easily within the reach of everyone. Thousands every year take up poultry raising either in a large or small way. Many fail because they try to follow some SYSTEM they have been induced to buy that is not practical or involves so much labor as to be unprofitable for them. With Poultry Success, a reliable guide every month, and either the BRIGGS SYSTEM book or the SMITH SYSTEM book, or both, failure is impossible.

BRIGGS SYSTEM — SMITH SYSTEM

Best, Simplest, Most Practical

There is nothing difficult or complicated about either the BRIGGS SYSTEM or the SMITH SYSTEM. The equipment is also very simple and easy to make. One man can easily care for as many as 2,000 layers and 3,000 chicks. EQUALLY SUCCESSFUL FOR SMALL OR LARGE PLANTS.

FOLLOW BRIGGS OR SMITH and success is yours. Sick fowls are rarely seen, more eggs are hatched, more chicks are raised to maturity the egg basket is filled oftener, and the FEED BILL IS CUT WAY DOWN.

LESS MONEY REQUIRED, MORE MONEY MADE. Every branch of poultry keeping is thoroughly covered from start to finish. The priceless secret of many years' experimenting may now be yours. Every poultry raiser can increase his profits greatly by using the BRIGGS or SMITH SYSTEMS. (Briggs system is unequalled for free range, and is most successful also in confined quarters. Smith System is unquestionably without a rival for close quarters as well as confinement.)

Let us help you to success with poultry through POULTRY

THE FALL FAIRS

By J. E. Willmarth, Amityville, N. Y.

THIS is the month of the Fall Fairs. A few Associations hold their Annual Fairs in August and a lesser number have dates in October, but the great majority of Agricultural Fairs are held in September. Most of these Fairs are known as County Fairs, in that the principal idea is exploiting the Agricultural interests of the County in which the Fair is held. Nearly every State also holds an Annual Fair and most of these are on quite a large scale, as representing a much larger territory, although there are some County Fairs that excell some State Fairs both in quality and quantity of exhibits.

Nearly all Agricultural Associations receive more or less State aid, and this is as it should be, for they must be considered as an educative exposition, and seldom do the receipts equal the expenses, hence the necessity of State appropriations.

Horse Trotting Races used to be and often are to-day the chief attraction to the general run of attendants at these Exhibitions. The "so-called" Fakirs, with every allurements to part innocent spectators from their money are often also one of the chief attractions. But slowly and surely are the strictly Agricultural interests coming into their own, and every year they are getting more and more attention from the attending crowds, and not least of these attractions are the exhibits of Poultry.

Any old place used to be considered good enough for the Chickens, and but little attention was paid to this section. But now we have Fair after Fair improving their Poultry Departments, offering better care and premiums to attract exhibits. Erecting new buildings for their accommodation and giving this department more prominence. But in many cases the Fair Associations are not taking the lead in this matter, but simply following the Poultry Exhibitors requirements, the latter really being the leaders in that they exhibit more and better birds, and the Poultry exhibit attracts the attention of the crowds. We appreciate that there are many Agricultural Associations that are trying to keep ahead of the Poultry Exhibitors and offering inducements to make this exhibit grow faster than it naturally would but the great majority of such Associations simply follow the lead of the Exhibitors, and do no more for their comfort and accommodation than they are compelled to do.

The Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Vegetable, etc., exhibitors are often offered much better inducements to show their products, probably these get no more than their due, but we think that the Poultry men are equally deserving, and we would consider it a good business proposition when it is readily seen that the Poultry are attracting most attention from the crowds, try to improve this exhibit, instead of trying to improve some less attractive one. Any successful business man knows that it is much more profitable to cater to the wants of the people than to try to sell something that is not in as great demand, and we are glad to see that every year more of the Fair Associations are acting on this principle and consequently making their exhibits more profitable.

Some of our Fall Fairs equal the winter shows in quality and excell them in quantity. These are the Fairs that are open to the world, and attract exhibits from the large breeders from all sections of the country. However the greater number of Fairs are confined to limited territory, many confining competition to the County in which they are located, and in most cases this is at the request of the exhibitors. True, where the competition is open to the world, the so-called Hucksters come in and win many prizes, and take considerable money out of the County, that the local exhibitors think ought to be kept at home. This is a rather narrow minded way of looking at it. The local exhibitor has every advantage over the Huckster. The latter probably has a hundred or more varieties to look after, they are junketed around the country, being cooped up for a long time, and it is practically impossible to keep them in excellent condition. The Local Exhibitor probably has but the one variety. They are shown but for a week at a time. He gives them personal attention and can give much more time and care towards getting them in show condition, and the birds have to do but comparatively little traveling, and should arrive in the show room in excellent condition, and if they are any where near as good quality as the "Hucksters" birds, they will beat him out. It certainly seems to us very unsportsman-like to be afraid to show against any one, when we have every legitimate advantage over him.

I never showed but the one variety of Poultry in my life, so I certainly cannot be classed as a "Huckster" and if any of them beat me out in the show room, they are welcome to do so. Not that I think the "Huckster" has not good quality of stock, for I have seen birds in such "strings" that were the equal of the very best, and if they are smart enough to get a hold of such birds, they certainly deserve to win when showing against an inferior specimen.

This confining competition to a certain hurts the the Huckster but little, (he simply goes elsewhere with his birds), but it does injure the Association and the local exhibitors, and poultry interests in general in that section. Open up competition, let the Huckster show his birds. We get a better exhibit. This helps the Association. It probably hurts the local exhibitor temporarily, but if he is of the right kind of stuff he will show something better another year, and try to beat out the "Huckster," thus the local man is helped by being urged to better his stock. Also often a local exhibitor having no competition thinks he has the best stock and makes no effort to improve his flock, so they are bound to deteriorate, when if he were to see the better birds of the "Huckster" he would strive to better them. Thus the Huckster has a tendency to improve local Poultry conditions, eventually causing a larger exhibit of better stock, and thus causing much greater general local interest to be taken in Poultry Breeding, and this very improvement will gradually dispose of the Huckster question, for unless the Huckster can win, he can not exist. So the square way to get rid of Mr. Huckster is to beat him at his own game.

Overdoing the Poultry Business

OW often we hear people saying (with a little pessimistic ring to it) "Oh, they're going to overdo the poultry business." This has been preached by a certain class of persons, ever since Turkey eggs hatched out turkeys and Light Brahmas had feathers on their toes, but we wish to say to these people that such a thing as overdoing the poultry business along any line is strictly impossible, made so for special reasons, chiefly because only about one in twenty (or perhaps worse than that) go into the business and stick to it until success crowns their efforts. Each year brings thousands of recruits, and also witnesses many stepping down and out. Now who are these people that step down and out so quickly and why do they do it? We will name them by classes. Class 1 are those who after having a rumpus with hard work and a falling out with the gentleman, turn to the poultry business to make a fortune without work in one year, and why they even think they can do it by sitting on a box with a pan of corn in one hand and an egg basket in the other, calling Biddy to them—and sometimes they even work up energy enough to throw a club at her because she don't come. One year is enough for this class, and as they review the past twelve months, noting the great ugly blisters on their hands, and remembering the great chunks of sweat they wiped from their tired brows during the year, they nearly collapse, and go out in the cold world, again seeking a soft job. Class 2 is the man with too many irons in the fire. He has a 100-acre farm, runs a blacksmith shop, saw mill and cheese factory, and expects his wife to raise chickens and sell eggs and broilers—and from the income from same, buy the groceries and furnish the table for six in the family and two hired men, and have enough money left to pay the taxes. This man fails also, because his good wife, with a six months' old in her arms and a three-year-old clinging to her skirts can't very well attend to a couple of hundred hens morning, noon and night, and get all her duties done on schedule time as expected by her kind hearted, indulgent husband. Class 3 are the people from the city who are hoodwinked into buying a suburban poultry farm by land sharks who tell them they can take in thousands of dollars in the poultry business with no experience and live independent, and of course you know real estate agents always tell the truth and nothing but the truth—most of this class fail because of lack of experience. A few, however, really do make good in the face of the fact that they have little experience or money, but use lots of common sense and elbow-grease. Class 4 is the man with a big swelled head and a small bunch of brains down in one corner, who is heard to say, "I'll show them how to raise poultry," when he (really) don't know a White Leghorn from a Dark Brahma. He has a nice wad-left him by a kind old aunt which he blows into the business and, oh no, he'll take no advice, for he, why he knows it all, but the real test comes and he too finds a poultry plant won't run itself, and there are many more that for various reasons fail to make good financially in the poultry business. And it is a noticeable fact that many each year launch into the poultry business only to drop out of sight before a second year rolls around. Now, kind reader, this state of affairs will always exist, and is it any wonder that the poultry business is not overdone or never will be? The field is large and there's plenty of room and good profits awaiting all those who are willing to take advice from the successful, go slow and are willing to accept experience as part pay for the first few years, and who expect from the start to study and work hard as they go along.

Again, to succeed one must like the business, like fowls and like to care for them. The commercial poultry trade is always clamoring for strictly fresh eggs, and never can get enough of this kind. Also nice young fowls and broilers are eagerly sought by those that want the best and have the money to pay for it. Of course there are fluctuations in the market, owing to the capers of cold storage and middle men. But no, oh no, don't think for once that the poultry business can ever be overdone when the great army of consumers are daily clamoring for twice as many poultry products as are produced. All people want is good goods—produce them and success is yours—and you can keep right at it as long as you please without the least fear of overproduction. Yes, the field is strictly unlimited.

BY THE WAY

By H. Babcock

ARL A. Oppell, of Minneapolis, Minn., thinks that he has found in the frog a successful rival to the cow or hen in profit making. We don't advise others to go into the business, there are too many chances to croak.

One of the difficulties about a success won in an unexpected manner is that many are led to believe that the abnormal may be made the normal, and that what one man can do another can do. Unique successes demand unique men. If the man can be duplicated, the success may be, but not otherwise.

That's why I object to the extravagant prices said to have been paid for fowls and the enormous profits said to have been made by breeders. They beget a feeling that anybody can get such prices and can make such profits; they arouse expectations which cannot be realized; and they injure, rather than help, the industry.

Still, and this shows the essential selfishness of human nature, few men would object to receive the aforesaid extravagant prices or refuse to make such enormous profits, if the chance came to them. They would fail, under the pressure of self interest, to remember the interests of the industry.

But, at any rate, we can at least apprehend the fact that such attractive prices and such dazzling successes are not the rule, but the exception; that they may be something to be thankful for, if they come, but are not to be expected; and that we must be content with a reasonable, instead of an extraordinary profit.

We make too much of the fact that new laid eggs in winter command fifty cents a dozen. They command this price because there are so few of them, and fortunate, indeed, is the man who gets enough of them to pay for the feed consumed by his hens. The cost of producing winter eggs is often more than their value.

In a market report, a dealer said: "Egg prices have not advanced, because there are no eggs upon which to advance prices." That tells the story of winter egg-production.

Still we should strive to produce what eggs we can in winter because they help to cut down the cost of keeping for the year. Even if spring and summer eggs are produced more economically than winter eggs, the business must be figured upon an annual basis. The true method of reckoning profits is to get all the credits possible through the whole year, and deduct the whole yearly expense from the credits, and winter eggs, even if they are not so plentiful as desired, help to swell the annual credits.

I do not wish to be misunderstood. Some breeders do produce winter eggs in such quantities as to make their production profitable. Without egotism I think I can say that I have done this. But I venture to say that the profits upon the production of market eggs, taking the matter by and large, are made rather in the warmer months than in winter, even if the summer prices are lower.

To many this may seem a new point of view. But the statement is not absolutely new. I have myself brought it to public attention before. I remember a Mr. Willetts who called attention to the loss, as he designated it, of the production of winter eggs, showing by actual figures that the eggs produced by his hens in winter cost more than their value. And I also recall an article written by Mr. Samuel Cushman, at one time connected with the Rhode Island State Experiment Station, in which he set forth clearly the greater profit in summer egg-production. So it will be seen that this is not an entirely new point of view.

Mr. Willett's ideas, while correct if carefully read, were misleading because they seemed to teach that one ought not to produce winter eggs because it led to a loss. Mr. Cushman's ideas, also, were correct, though a careless reading might lead to the inference that one should try to produce eggs only in summer, because only then did their value exceed the cost of production. And those writers who called attention to the high prices of winter eggs, without calling attention to the cost of their production, are also misleading, because it will be inferred by the careless reader that such high prices necessarily mean a handsome profit. But the true position is, as has been stated, to produce all the eggs possible in winter and summer, and figure an annual profit from the total production. By taking this course we shall get a sane and reasonable idea of the profits in the production of market eggs, and shall avoid the misleading inferences which are naturally drawn from partial views. It is in this respect that I have said that we make too much of the high prices which freshly laid winter eggs command. High prices do not necessarily mean large profits, but they do help in making the annual profits, and to this extent are to be desired by the poultryman.

Professors Emmerich and Loewe, of Germany, it is said, have declared that if one would be healthy, happy and long-lived, if he would see his grandchildren's children, he should eat, or rather drink, the shells of eggs, for the learned professors have prepared a liquid which they call chloride of egg-shells. Longevity increased weight of the body, destruction of injurious bacilli, nourishment of the brain, strengthening of the heart, prevention of inflammation and increase of courage and energy are some of the blessings promised to follow the use of this wonderful pre-Shake the egg-shake and seize the new tippie, chloride of egg-shells. The outer rind, which has been usually thrown away, out-classes the contents, which have heretofore been so highly valued. Perhaps we have here a clue to why hens—which have had egg shells fed to them—never grow old, but perpetually remain "chickens."

Scientists declare that there is as much strength in three eggs as there is in a pound of beefsteak, but this is obviously discounting the strength in eggs. We have seen a single egg which contained more strength than a pound of beefsteak; indeed, it was so strong that we couldn't get within ten feet of it without holding our nose.

In spite of the alleged wonderful fecundity of English fowls, it is said that "England imported from continental countries last year 19,000,000 'great hundreds' (120) of eggs, of which Russia supplied 52 per cent., and the average price of which was 43½ per cent. above that of 13 years ago."

Realize the import of the above paragraph. The imported eggs numbered 2,280,000,000 eggs or 19,000,000 dozens. If the average production of the hens were ten dozen a year, England needed, to meet the demanded supply, nineteen million more hens, or, if the average reached 150 eggs per hen, the number required would be fifteen million two hundred thousand. It looks very much as if there would be a shortage in English hens for some time to come. The twohundred egg hen is badly needed by our cousins across the water.

It is not a bad idea to have a few two-hundred-egg hens for domestic use. They are getting rather more common than formerly, at least on paper, and yet it would be difficult to go into the market and buy a moderate-sized flock of such fowls—I mean fowls that, after purchase, would actually lay 200 eggs each within a calendar year.

A gentleman down in Jersey is advertising a new breed of fowls, the Black Diamonds. Wonder if they would be a substitute for coal, if the price keeps up to the present figures! The eggs are only $25.00 per dozen.

The latest solution of the color breeding problem in Barred Plymouth Rocks is the proposal of F. W. Proctor that the variety should be divided into two distinct, standard varieties, the pullet breeding to be known as the Light Plymouth Rock and the cockerel breeding as the Dark Plymouth Rock. We venture the prediction that this proposal is in advance of the desires of breeders and that the time is not yet ripe for its adoption.

Mr. Proctor also suggests the need of a more uniform and consistent nomenclature of breeds and varieties. "The name 'Columbian' as applied now to both Rocks and Wyandottes," he says, "has so generally superseded the older term Light to designate this type of color, that I would urge its general adoption and that the Light Brahma be rechristened the Columbian Brahma." We are "agin" the suggestion. The term "Columbian" as applied to this style of marking has no color significance. It was given to the Wyandotte because its appearance was almost synchronous with the celebration of the four-hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, after the awkward term, Brah-Wyandotte, by which the variety was first called. It was a mistake to apply the term Columbian to the new variety of the Plymouth Rock, though, perhaps, a partial justification for its use may have existed in its origin. As the so-called Columbian Wyandotte originated in a chance cross between the Barred Plymouth Rock and the White Wyandotte, there is reason to believe that in some instances the Columbian Plymouth Rock originated from the Wyandotte of the same name, through reversion or through a direct cross. But even such a scant justification would not apply to the Light Brahma. It could not be associated in time with the Columbian Exposition, nor in origin with the Wyandotte which appeared about that time. If there is to be a rechristening of these varieties, and we agree so far with the suggestion that such an act would be desirable, let us go about it in a sensible way and select, if possible, a name that is suggestive and appropriately descriptive. In the term, Ermine, we have such a name. It suggests the black and white in the coloration, and it is already in use for this very purpose in some foreign breeds, as, for example in the Faverolle. Ermine Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks, and Brahmas would mean something, and it could be used for any new variety, having similar markings, which might appear in other breeds, without doing violence to the proper use of language or to the proprieties of a consistent nomenclature.

Before any scheme of a reformed nomenclature is adopted, there should be determined some principle upon which it should be founded. For breeds, perhaps, this would be difficult. The geographical principle, though applied to some breeds, would be found difficult of application to all, for two or more distinct breeds might originate in the same territory. But with varieties the principle of descriptive color terms is generally used, and perhaps no better could be adopted. Of course, such a term as Columbian violates this principle and for that reason should be done away with. Color terms, too, should be made as short as possible. We have a number of instances where they are so long as to be cumbersome. The briefer they are, and at the same time sufficient to suggest the coloration, the better and more satisfactory they will be. To produce such will require considerable study and quite probably the renaming of some breeds as well as varieties, but this is a work that should be done, and probably some time will be done. It is well to turn thoughts in that direction so as to be ready to act when the time for action arrives.

THE ROLLER TRAY INCUBATOR

Successful Incubation Means Your Success.

SCIENTIFICALLY PERFECT

To overcome the element of chance in the artificial incubation of eggs you are confronted with five problems. 1st—Heat: 2nd—Moister: 3rd—Ventilation: 4th—Turning the eggs properly: 5th—Disposition of the chicks when free from the shell. If these essential problems cannot be overcome you must meet with failure. We have enabled you to overcome the five essential points necessary to successfully operate an incubator. We want to impress on your mind that there is a great difference in chicks that are just incubated and

CHICKS THAT ARE PROPERLY INCUBATED

There is absolutely no difference in a chick hatched in a Roller Tray and those from a hen. You want to incubate chicks that will live—and not the kind that will linger a few days and pass away. Its the chicks that live that mean your success or failure. The Roller Tray will hatch every fertile egg. It cannot go wrong. Now is the time to look up the merits of the different incubators. We want you to look into the merits of ours. Send for booklet.

The Buff Wyandotte

We are wondering why more is not written in the poultry papers of the day on this splendid breed, which is a combination of egg and meat quality which is difficult to come up with by any other breed under the sun. Furthermore the large numbers seen at the leading shows proves that they are very popular as a fancier's fowl. There were two hundred and fifty Buff Wyandottes at the Great Crystal Palace Show last winter. Does it look as though they were not popular? We fail to see any signs of it. The people of the south and also Canada are among the most active purchasers just now, which goes to prove that they are especially well adapted to the extremes of heat and cold. In fact the Buff Wyandotte is one of the most practical all round breeds before the American public today. Their low combs and rather small wattles are not so much of a frost mark as the single combed varieties. Good, vigorous stock will produce broilers to weigh 1½ to 2 lbs. in from 9 to 11 weeks and they are the very best when ready, with a yellow chin and legs and best of all good plump breasts. The older birds are a happy medium between the extremely heavy and light fowl and are always saleable at the very best prices. They are very quiet and easy to keep where they belong without building a fence heaven high. I have kept them next to a 2 foot fence all summer and have yet to see one get over it.

The soft Buff color does not attract the rays of the sun as do other colors and therefore they stand the hot weather nicely and their extra heavy feathering keeps them warm in winter, but I notice that they are great workers and keep the litter flying most of the time in the cold days, which is the best sign of eggs and profitable hens. At night they are not as easily seen as white fowls and therefore not as likely to be stolen if out of doors, on top of their coops, etc.

We have been looking over some egg records in one paper and another and so will offer here the record of a flock of Buff Wyandottes from Jan. 1, 1912 to August 1, 1912. These are birds bred for utility and exhibition purposes, all bred direct from two of the best known strains in the land and which have been Boston and New York winners for years. January 1, 1912, we had 46 pullets and 9 yearling hens, total 55, and aside from these 12 pullets that were hatched Sept. 1, 1911. These we did not count very much on as they were hatched so late. However they began to lay February 20, which is 5 months and 20 days, all cold weather. The flock was not mated up until February 1 in the breeding pens, so we were obliged to give the egg record from the whole flock together for January. It must also be remembered that a large portion of them were on the road a large part of the time during January to the show room and back, which is a bad thing for hens and pullets just ready to lay as mine were.

PECKHAM'S POULTRY FARM, Lexington, Mass., July 10, 1912.
Consolidation Sales Co., Cowen, W. Va.

Dear Sirs:—I am using the Arenberg Brooder stove and it is giving perfect satisfaction. It is a great labor saver, it taking no more time or work to care for 1000 or 1500 chicks than it did 50 by other methods. I can also raise a larger per cent of chicks, and they are very much stronger and healthier and grow much faster than by any other method I have used for the last 20 years. Any one who will give this stove a fair trial will never go back to the old methods of raising chicks. Yours truly,

W. E. PECKHAM.

Perfection as Near as it has Yet Been Obtained

EVERY BIRD shown by us and every bird sold by us, has been hatched from eggs laid on our farm and the birds grown on our farm. We sell or show no birds we do not raise.

SEAMLESS LEG BANDS

Tell the story, when a bird reaches about a pound in weight a seamless leg band is put on; it cannot be removed; there it remains as the seal of Onlya Farm quality, and every young bird on our farm contains the band.

WE CAN MEET ANY COMPETITION

Our 1912 matings containing America's noted winners produced the best birds we ever raised, and they are well developed. The price is reasonable and positively every bird sold has been reared on the Onlya Farm, where nothing but White Wyandottes are bred.

FLORHAM PARK, N. J.

In January from the 55 head mentioned above, 246 eggs.

In February:

Pen A, 4 hens and 4 pullets ..46 eggs
Pen B, 8 pullets .....92 eggs
Pen C, 4 hens and 4 pullets ..77 eggs
Pen D, 8 pullets .....79 eggs
Pen E, 18 pullets, 1 hen ....195 eggs
Pen F, 12 pullets hatched Sept. 1, layed Feb. 20. ....12 eggs
Feb. 10 sold one hen from Pen E.

In March:

Pen A, as above .....119 eggs
Pen B, as above .....125 eggs
Pen C, as above .....143 eggs
Pen D, as above .....156 eggs
Pen E, as above .....243 eggs
Pen F, as above .....106 eggs

Pen B, as above .....183 eggs
Pen C, as above .....151 eggs
Pen D, as above .....177 eggs
Pen E, as above .....294 eggs
Pen F, as above .....221 eggs

One hen died in Pen A, April 13 and April 27, sold 10 from Pen E.

In May:

Pen A, as above .....131 eggs
Pen B, as above .....183 eggs
Pen C, as above .....74 eggs
Pen E, as above .....265 eggs
Pen F, was put in with Pen E, May 1.

June 1 the pens were broken up and from the 52 hens left for 5 days and 42 for balance of the month we got 722 eggs. July we had 40 hens and got 697 eggs.

The record of Pen D all the way through was good and in May the eight pullets in that pen averaged 24.87 eggs each for the month.

The whole number of eggs for the seven months was 5117.

Formerly it has been argued that there was no difference between a thoroughbred and a mongrel in the quality of the meat, but it is now well known and an admitted fact that there is a vast difference and to secure the fancy price the pure bred stock will lead by a long way. The first object is to keep up the vigor of the stock by introducing new blood and feeding good clean sweet grain, fresh clean water and lots of fresh air along with plenty of shade in summer, green feed with milk or beef scrap, fresh or commercial. There is a nice profit and lots of pleasure in caring for pure bred fowls that are pleasing to look at and to have around. We have several pullets hatched March 14th that layed the last week in August and about all the March hatched pullets are laying now (Sept. 14).

Here's to the Buff Wyandotte that will lay with any breed on the face of the earth today and win if you want them to. To you breeders who are asleep just wake up and hear the birds sing. Write a word or two and send it to your paper. Tell us what you and your birds are doing and let the public know that we have got something on them in the way of good poultry.

Barry Strain---SINGLE COMB WHITE LEGHORNS

Universally recognized. The Ideal Strain. Why? Because they are bred for heavy laying and have exhibition quality. They lay more and larger eggs than the usual run. They are bred for vigor and stamina, and the chicks hatched from Barry Strain live and develop properly. They will produce the eggs at the time of the year when eggs are most needed and command the highest price. We are offering

Is the Poultry Business a Benefit to the Farmer?

By B. Monroe Posten

If the average farmer would look at his hens from a business point of view there would be less talk of the foolish question, Does it pay?

When I talk of hens I mean thoroughbreds of course. No one would expect dunghills to pay a very big profit because they have to be sold on the market. But let us start with the proposition that a farmer has a flock of standard bred hens. Will it pay him to provide for them the up-to-date house and fixtures?

I say without hesitation that no money he spends as an investment will bring him so large a per cent. of profit.

One hundred dollars will give him a start that would at least make him famous among his neighbors. You have to start there anyhow.

Let's make a house 20 by 50 feet and place 300 hens in it in the fall. Give them the care necessary to keep them laying and you will find a relief. The question will be answered.

Now there are some reasons why some men fail to get eggs. In the first place you must understand all hens are not layers and so you must begin to select them. I select them day old, four weeks old, 3 months old, 6 months old.

I mark the really strong ones when they are hatched; keep discarding the weaklings as we go to the season's close. Look for long backs, deep breast and keels, look of course for busy bodies; don't keep the pullet that has a coarse head, that is those that look as though they had a second weeks' growth of feathers on their face.

Especially in Leghorns do we look at the facial expression. Then we must keep the henhouse clean. You are not so busy in the winter that you can't, at least once a week, clean out thoroughly. Keep the lice out rather than clean them out.

Feed clean feed. I feed equal parts corn (cracked), buckwheat, oats and wheat. A dry mash of 50 bran, 25 ground oats, corn meal, wheat middlings and oil meal fed in a hopper, and every other night a good feed of boiled oats, boiled dry.

Then every noon I feed a little sprouted oats, they must have an abundance of fresh water. The vessels must be clean. Keep the eggs clean by clean nests.

Always feed the grain in a litter on the floor. Of course the open house is the thing nowadays. Nothing else is as good even if it costs more.

Keep only one kind or variety. Mixed breeds make dunghills very quick. The only cross worth while is cross the road and get thoroughbreds.

Usually we expect some argument from Oyster Bay but I am surprised that any one would attempt to place a crested blue legged fanciers' fowl against the greatest profit paying and most beautiful Leghorn.

When one man says it pays him better, he will find hard work to prove to any one who goes in it for cash.

I will just ask a few questions. Who has a farm for production of eggs or meat that has Polish?

There are 85 farms in New York State alone that have thousands of Leghorns. Where are the good bit larger eggs of the Polish? I have bred nearly every variety and never got Christmas eggs from them. I admit they won't freeze their combs but will have icycles in their crests all winter. Where are they bred that are larger than Leghorns?

Why did they not find their way into the egg laying contests at Sports, Conn.?

No need to lose your temper (or rather it would be a good thing if you could lose it). It's the man and not the leghorns that are a scarey lot. I have 900 and can pick them up any time. I don't fall down like a telephone pole though. Why a farmer would not have one left in this country, the hawks would get them all; they can't see to get away. I

I have no trouble with Leghorns getting over a 2 foot fence. I don't believe any one else will say the Polish are easy to raise. The fact is they are not, no variety has so much rump as the Polish.

At the fairs no lot is as sickly as the Polish. I have judged lots of fairs and know from experience. Now about the tearing out of teeth eating the meat, that's not the fact; I take out my teeth to eat them. The finest soft roaster for the small family is a properly fatted Leghorn.

There is no argument for the Polish as compared with a Leghorn. It is strange it should come up in 1912.

GREAT EGG RECORD.

Twin Oaks Farm, Palmyra, Pa., reports an egg record from their famous strain of Indian Runner Ducks which in our estimation is a very good one. Seventeen ducks from February first to August first, 1912, laid 2517 eggs, in six months or 182 days; an average of 148 eggs to the duck and one egg over. Their average flocks are at this date, August 15th, shelling out a 66 per cent. egg yield. If any one can beat this record, Twin Oaks Farm would like to hear from them.

The Runners on Twin Oaks Farm have been bred for a number of years for high egg production as well as for American Standard requirements. Mr. Stauffer procured his foundation stock from the best Blue Ribbon Strains in the country and any one interested in Indian Runners would be surprised and well repaid in paying a visit and see what really can be accomplished by systematic breeding in a few years' time.

Their flocks at present number about eight hundred (young and old) and a finer lot of Runners than what you will see there is hard to find anywhere. Mr. A. G. Stauffer, the proprietor, is always glad to hear from breeders of Runners and those living close enough will always find a cordial welcome at the farm any day except Sunday. Mr. Stauffer expects to have his new mating list ready by December 1st, and will cheerfully mail one free of charge to any one interested in Blue Ribbon Indian Runner stock.

K. M. Turner, owner of the Ridge Egg Farm, Nanuet, N. Y., has secured as manager Mr. Clarence A. Cornell, a graduate of Cornell, N. Y., Poultry School. Mr. Cornell has been for the past four years manager for Mr. Seth Low, formerly the Mayor of New York, who has a very extensive plant at Bedford Mills. It perhaps is not generally known that Mr. Turner is the inventor of the Dictograph, the instrument that secured the confession of the McNamara Brothers, and a large number of boodling legislators and aldermen throughout the country.

Central Pennsylvania Chicken Chatter

Any News, Notes or Items of Interest Pertaining to Poultrydom in Central Pennsylvania. Will Find a Place in this Department. Address all Communications to J. T. Houston,, Williamsport, Pa.

Lewistown has just had a big celebration—Firemen's Field Day—with a monster parade and a fine program, "big eats," etc. The town was crowded with visitors who were loud in the praise of our hospitality. You might ask "What has that to do with the poultry industry?" Why, consarn it, are firemen not like ministers in that they are lovers of fine poultry, especially if it is prepared as only the good housewives over here know how to prepare it. Many a fowl that day was like the missionary who went among a tribe of cannibals to work. His friends not hearing from him sent another minister to locate him. After arriving among the cannibals and inquiring for his friend he was told that he had taken a trip into the "interior"—they had eaten him.

We have many persons who are from Missouri and have to be convinced of the true value of fine poultry or other value of the poultry show. Last year when our committee was soliciting for our premium list a merchant was canvassed for an advertisement or a premium and he very reluctantly took a small ad. Before our show was over he was so enthusiastic about it that he said he wished we would have a show every week in the year—so many persons from the rural districts had come in to see the "chicken show" and then dropped into his store and purchased a nice bill of goods.

We will this year fall in line with Mr. Wittman's idea to secure more interest among the farmers and will offer a premium or premiums for exhibits of strictly farm fowls. So many farmers have an antagonistic feeling toward the "back lotter," and the commercial egg farmer that we should try to bring about a more harmonious feeling. Many farmers have today a greatly increased egg supply due to new blood secured from the fellow on the town lot. We, in turn, must depend on the farmer for our grain supply and as the motto of the Mifflin County Poultry and Fanciers' Association is "Better Poultry and More of It," it behooves us to fall in line with the great lights of the poultry industry and try to bring the farmer into the fold in greater numbers. Lewistown had 469 birds on the floor at the first annual exhibition and every one returned in good order. This year we expect to have 1000 birds and some of the highest quality—in fact, it is our aim to make this a quality show. We don't intend to be lined up with the trailers! Did you get that, dear reader?

Lewistown poultry men will organize a ladies' auxiliary to help in the good work. A committee has been appointed for the purpose with Dr. W. S. Wilson as chairman and if he don't prescribe the right "dope" for the committee it will not be his fault as he is a very enthusiastic poulterer. His son-in-law, Robert S. Foster, is our Secretary, and when they get their heads together in "consultation" some good will surely come of it.

The ladies, God bless them; what would we do without them. Wonder if the care of fowls was figured out and boiled down carefully what percentage of the work is done by them. No doubt we would feel alarmed and possibly ashamed at the true figures. All honors to mother, wife and sister—are they not entitled to share in our work in the show room when they help us so at home. The writer asked the exhibitor of a magnificent bird at our show who had trianed it and he proudly said, "My wife."

Geo. C. Sherman, our show superintendent, is spending some time "down on the farm" while undergoing repairs to an injured wrist. He was unfortunate enough to fall and badly stove up his wrist, at first thinking it was a severe strain, but later discovering it had been fractured, too.

Frank W. Specht, President of our Association, will be in line for some of those tall silver cups at the big shows with his Silver Wyandottes. Frank is a tall man—nearly seven feet—and is going to reach out after some of the prizes and will send some of his competitors to the tall timbers if he runs in an especially beautiful pullet that he has in his yard.

George Challenger—challenger by name and nature—is out for big game this year and will land some, too.

Geo. Hall—he of Indian Runner fame—expects to hang up a nice string of blue in the "hall" of fame. Keep your eye open for George.

A. C. Helfrich, cashier of the Belleville Bank, is going to "check" up some handsome trophies this year. Mr. Helfrich is the pioneer exhibitor of our Association and always comes marching home proudly from the big shows with a string of prizes. If he should decide to get in the game exclusively (not just as a hobby) he would be a power that the very biggest fellows would have to reckon with.

WILLIAMSPORT NOTES.

The "Fancier" Editor in the September issue, asks whether Williamsport will have a banquet. We are happy to state that plans have been laid to that end. At a meeting of the Board of Directors last week the matter was placed in the hands of a committee with Mr. John R. Heim, the White Wyandotte king, as chairman. This committee will report at the October meeting and the particulars will be fully given in the November Fancier.

It was the writer's privilege to speak before the Hughesville Association on September 14th. This association is only one year old, but one of the liveliest in the State. We were met at the station by the President, M. B. F. Kahler, proprietor of the Shady Lawn Poultry Farm, and after an enjoyable ride in Mr. Kahler's automobile we were set down at beautiful Shady Lawn. Although the time was short we felt well repaid by our visit. Our eyes feasted on the grand stock of poultry and waterfowl found here. Surely these birds will speak for themselves later on at the Fall and Winter shows. The meeting was held in the Town Hall, the room being filled with interested poultrymen. Between the Fair and Winter Show, Hughesville is making herself a name on the poultry map. With the true sportsmanship displayed by her members much may be expected of Hughesville.

A word about entries. Don't fail to make your entry early. What is the use of waiting until the last day before closing? Cannot you assist the Secretary? Those mailing entries after November 19 will find themselves too late.

Some Williamsport fanciers have engaged Mr. Gus Braun of Syracuse, N. Y., to come to Williamsport two weeks prior to the show and wash and put their birds in perfect show condition. This plan was inaugurated by Mr. Kellertsrass at the Kansas City Show last year and met with great success. Mr. Gus Braun is one of the greatest authorities in the matter of conditioning in the poultry world today, and much good will ensue. A large building has been secured for the purpose and many exhibitors who know little of the fine points of conditioning will take advantage of Mr. Braun's services. Any exhibitor at Williamsport will be at liberty to secure the services of Mr. Braun at a nominal figure. The writer would be pleased to give any information desired to any one whom this might interest.

Mr. W. E. Gage and wife, Mr. E. B. Darrow, Mr. J. C. Atkinson, Mr. W. E. Winner, Mr. W. H. Heim and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. T. Huston were Williamsport visitors to the Allentown Fair.

Keep these dates in mind when you think of Williamsport. Entries close November 29. Show dates, Thanksgiving Week, November 27, 28, 29 and 30.

Truly Allentown was a remarkable show and run by a remarkable superintendent. Too many good things cannot be said of W. Theo. Wittman.

Have you sent your name in to the different Secretaries of the Pennsylvania Shows Circuit? If not do so at once. Get the different Premium Lists and then enter in as many as you can. This is the one and only way to get a reputation for your stock.

An Announcement of Importance to Orpington Breeders

After January 1st, 1913, the Sunswick Poultry Farm, South Plainfield, N. J., will be Conducted as a Buff Orpington Specialty Plant for S. C. Buff Orpingtons and Buff Orpington Ducks Exclusively.

In order to further this departure I will offer for sale my entire strain of line bred S. C. Black and White Orpingtons.

These birds, including the Champion Winners in the BLACKS and WHITES of the famous SUNSWICK STRAIN inclusive, are at your disposal.

Place your orders early for Show Birds as they represent rare and desirable values, and comprise Birds fit to win in any Show in the Country.

In fact AMONG THEM ARE BIRDS THAT NO MONEY COULD BUY if I were not contemplating this change.

As I am selling EVERY BLACK AND WHITE BIRD ON THE FARM, it is only natural that I can offer better values than other Breeders who must, of course, hold back the best Birds for their own showing.

All this season's young stock have been raised from my $20.00 matings only, and comprise some very wonderful Birds, the most mature of which are now up to Standard weight, and will soon be in condition for the early Fall and Winter Shows.

These Black and White Orpingtons have, with their descendants, won FIRST PLACE, CUPS, MEDALS and SWEEPSTAKES at Madison Square Garden, New York; Boston, Mass.; Cleveland, Ohio; Allentown, Pa.; Baltimore, Md.; Augusta, Ga.; Hagerstown, Md.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Philadelphia, Pa., and Trenton, N. J.

All the "SUNSWICK" Birds have been scientifically line bred for generations and this offer therefore presents to BREEDERS THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME TO GET THE BEST.

All Blue Orpington Ducks for sale, they are the wrong color and so must go, too; although would like to keep them all.

Bear all the above in mind and before ordering Show Birds or Breeding Pens elsewhere, send to "SUNSWICK POULTRY FARM" for full particulars of this remarkable sale. Visitors are welcome at all times and will be met at the train on notice.

This opportunity is yours to-day, to-morrow may be too late.

Sunswick Farm will not exhibit at Madison Square Garden, New York, this year. So send to us for your winners, we can supply them in all three colors. Also ducks. Order early.

THE LAKENVELDER.

What can I say that will do these beautiful birds justice? Has there ever been a strain imported into America that so quickly came to the front, and captured the heart of the fancier? I believe I can truthfully say no.

We can give credit to the people of Holland and Belgium in creating these wonderful birds. For many years in those countries they were known as the Jerusalem Fowl or Everlasting Layer.

From these countries the breeders of England bought them and they attracted the attention of fanciers in all parts of the British Isles. After a time they were taken up by the German breeders and great improvements were made in the strain.

We must "take our hats off" to-day to the German breeders, for from that country come the finest Lakenvelders in the world.

The first importations of Lakenvelders was in 1903 by Messrs. Schmitt Bros., of New York, widely known as importers of rare birds and animals.

Their advent into this country created a sensation in the poultry world. They at once came to the front by attracting the attention of fanciers. It is simply compulsory with any one who is a lover of bird life to notice and admire these birds when in their purity.

The black of hackle and tails and white of body is so striking that it instantly attracts the attention. In size they will average the same as the Leghorn—similar in shape but a trifle lower upon leg.

Real merit is back of them. Not only are they beautiful to look upon but to produce the eggs they are "Ne plus ultra." When the Dutch people named them the Everlasting Layer they certainly had the one that fit the bird.

I can speak from personal experience in regard to the great laying ability of these birds and from the large number of letters of commendation that have come from my customers in all parts of the country in the past 4 years.

They are small feeders and if they can have range are great foragers. The Lakenvelde chicks are very fast growers, equal, if not exceeding the Leghorn in this respect, and are equally as hardy.

I doubt if there is a strain of Parti-Colored fowl in existence that will throw as many fine specimens as the Lakenvelde.

Reader, it will be a very significant fact to you when I say that my daily mail contains from 1 to 5 letters from breeders of note of the "old line of fowls."

They are all "sitting up and taking notice." Any breed of fowl with real merit back of them is bound to come to the front.

Such is the Lakenvelde fowl.

THE FOWL THAT AM.

"The Orpington."

To the beginner in the poultry business there are a number of confusing things. Especially will he find it so in his selection of a fowl after reading articles from different men. The best way is to select a certain kind, study them and "dig in" and do your best. Pick up any poultry papers and among the questions put to the editor (and let me remark that some are really lacking in common sense, and if all were published the chickens themselves would quit cackling and start to laugh), you will find this one more than any other, "What fowl should I raise for most eggs?" Invariably the editor says Leghorns will answer their purpose. There seems to be a general impression that if you don't have Leghorns, you get no eggs. I used to think that way and raised them. Ask any breeder what his idea is and he will name the breed he is raising as the best. Another breeder of an entirely different breed will name his as the best. Is it a case of "personal attachment" to their particular breed or it is a case of blowing too hard on the big horn?

Some man writes on the Coming Fowl, which is well and good, but I want to say a few words in praise (no horn blowing) of the "fowl that am"—the Orpington. A bird of the English class and one that has been "lauded" by some, kicked by a few, and eaten by the rest. To my mind the Orpington is the ideal general purpose fowl. They do well in close confinement or on range, a four-foot fence will keep them in their run. Are easily kept and their flesh is of the very best. Look up the National or local laying contests, and see how they compare with the rest. That one thing alone would surely place them at the head of the list of all fowls. Some one says they are so broody. I have broken up broody hens and in ten days they were laying as well as ever. They make good mothers and will begin laying when their chicks are but three weeks old. I have one buff hen that never stopped laying all the time she was setting and continued to lay all the time she was rearing her chicks. It is not uncommon for the yearling hen to weigh 9 or 10 pounds. Most any fowl will lay if they are fed to lay but the Orpington is the fowl that makes her egg machine suit the conditions that surround her and you can't make her stop laying unless you kill her and even then she will continue to "lay" till some one picks her up and gets her dressed for the "layman" of the church or some other particular person with that particular taste. In conclusion I will say that in summing every thing up in regard to the Orpingtons you will find them doing their duty very faithfully, in filling the egg and market baskets of those wise ones who see their worth.

Sincerely,
DR. O. G. CRAWSHAW.

eight years. He has been interested in S. C. Black Minorcas for more than fifteen years.

The Financial Secretary, A. H. Genaria, is second assistant postmaster, knows everybody, especially if he is interested in S. C. White Minorcas.

Ex-Mayor Jos. L. Townsend is the Treasurer. He is now associated with his father in the clothing business. He, too, is interested in the chicken business. His are Campines.

The Vice Presidents, Boyd Johnston and D. E. Bogard, are telegraph operator and tailor, respectively. Boyd, of course, is the Imperial Barded Rock man, while Bogard has those handsome White Wyandottes to look after.

Then comes the other Johnson. This time it is B. H., the celebrated White Leghorn man. He does nothing but look after his business, but of course, takes time to look after his duties as director.

C. L. Pensyl, the man who made Bloomsburg famous in the Buff world, is also a director. He has now one of the finest lot of White Orpingtons that one will meet. Charles could not stay out of the business. It seems that when one has once had a taste it is hard to get away and then stay away.

Director Kesty takes enough time off from receiving taxes to look after his White Rocks. His experience in the chicken world will add to the efficiency of the directors.

Clyde Kemp, the genial shoe man, is interested in White Wyandottes. Clyde is a worker in all lines.

A. H. Stroh, who is in the Bloomsburg National Bank, is a great admirer and breeder of the Rhode Island Reds.

A. R. Dykeman, one of the best electricians in the State, is interested in White Leghorns and knows a good one when he sees it.

C. L. Hawbecker is also an operator on the P. R. R. Clyde has a fine strain of Reds and is always willing to "swop" chicken stories.

C. N. Ohl, the Cornish Game man of Bloomsburg, is more than interested in the advancement of poultry in not only his home section but in all sections as well.

The last but not least is Art. Roan. Arthur is a breeder of Columbia Rocks and Golden Wyandottes. All of this together with being everybody's friend, keeps him very busy. No chicken man ever sees Art without being impressed with his ability as a chicken raiser.

It is also surprising at the large number of special premiums that we are receiving. It seems that every one is only too glad to help to better the conditions of the poultry industry in this section. If present conditions continue to improve as much as they have since last writing you, we shall be still more sure that to win at Bloomsburg will be the very best advertisement that one can have.

We have partly decided to have a crowing contest in connection with our show. If we do, we will more than likely have many who will enter their roosters in this amusement.

Our pigeon department is expected to be much larger this year than in the past. There are quite a few in this section who have bought several new ones in order to help the competition along. We are arranging to have plenty of special prizes for this department also.

The secretary has assured all of the directors and others interested that he will send the premium money, to those who earn it, just as soon as it is possible after the judges have done their work. He guarantees that it will all be on the road before the show is over. All money due shall be received before the birds are sent back. This, as you know, will necessitate a large amount of rapid work but he has worked out a system whereby he thinks it can be done.

Mr. Webb, of the Genesee Cooping Company, in a recent letter, assures us that he will do more than ever to help to make this show a success, not only in appearance but in all other ways as well. We happen to know Webb well enough to know that he is a man who not only does what he says he will but does even more. So look out for the best ever.

We are glad to hear that quite a few of your Williamsport fanciers will be among our number. They always have good goods. We expect to be with you the week before. I hear that many are getting ready to attend the two because of the trouble being lessened. A very good idea. All who send their birds direct from the Williamsport show to us will be assured of the best of care being given them when they arrive. Our express men are both good, careful fellows and that insures prompt delivery and we will not only care for them as to taking them out of the shipping coops but will look after the feeding as well.

We are looking after the return shipment also. No birds shall be sent out unless "checked up" and put in the proper boxes before being given over to the express company. Special care will be given this end of the work.

Last year several birds were sold at the prices named on the entry blanks. All were well pleased with the results. A special man shall have this end of it in charge. We think it best to have enough men on the job and thus not over work any one. Then, too, one can do far better and more satisfactory work if he does not have so many things to look after.

A little well done is far better than much poorly done.

Respectfully,
S. J. JOHNSTON,
Secretary.

Editor Chicken Chatter,
Williamsport, Pa.

Dear Sir:—

The Pennsylvania State Fanciers Association of Altoona, Pa., is at the present time busily engaged in preparing a float for the Industrial Parade which will be held during the Sem-Centennial of the Pennsylvania War Governors Conference, September 26th.

They will have a small poultry show on wheels which will promote interest in the poultry industry as well as advertise their coming poultry show, to be held in Altoona, Pa., Jan. 20th to 25th, 1913.

Very truly yours,
H. S. WERTZBERGER,
Secretary.

Mr. H. S. Wertzberger, Secretary of the Altoona Show, is hard at it to make the 4th annual the greatest in its history. Mr. Wertzberger is a worker and the kind of a man who brings results. ### "KEYING" POULTRY ADVERTISEMENTS.

By J. E. Willmarth, Amityville, N. Y.

Every publisher of a Poultry Paper will try to tell us that his publication will pay us to advertise in it. One claims a large circulation, another lays great stress on the "quality" of his circulation, and still another claims to combine these two very desirable qualities in circulation and other conditions being equal, a combination of circulation with best "quality" is to be earnestly desired. By "quality" in circulation we mean a circulation that is made up of people who want to buy what we have to sell. The cost of advertising is generally regulated by the quantity of circulation rather than by the quality, for the former is something definite and easily ascertained, but "quality" is hard to find out about, although all Poultry Publications claim to have it. No doubt but that they all do have the "quality" but do they have the quality that will fit out particular case, that is, do a far proportion of their subscribers want to buy the kind and quality of stock we have for sale? The only way to find this out is to select a list of our best ability and key our Advertisements, then govern our Advertising another year by the results obtained. How to "key" often bothers new beginners, and sometimes ones who have been advertising several years.

The most common form is to have a box number or letter inserted with our address in the Ad. But this is not always positive to work for a large proportion of enquirers know that this box number is only a "key" and do not take the trouble of using it when writing you.

Those living in cities where the streets are numbered, thus necessitating the street number in the Advertisement may vary their initials, using a different initial in different papers, the street number insuring proper delivery of our mail.

Where one lives in a small town or where there are no numbered streets, may take advantage of this fact by giving a street address and number, possibly using the name of the road upon which they live and giving different numbers for different publications.

If one has an odd name and there are no others of the same name in the local post office delivery, the method of using different initials, as in cities, may be resorted to.

Where one has numerous relatives or is an old settler in a locality, there may be several of the same name living in the place, then there is apt to be confusion in the delivery of mail, unless the proper initials are used, then the street number method may be employed.

If one has a rather odd or long name, capable of being spelled in several different ways, yet not materially altering the pronunciation of same, this method may be used.

The writer sometimes uses this latter method, there being several Willmarths' in this locality, necessitating the use of correct initials. Also there were two original families of the name, one spelling their name with one "L" and the other with the two "L's", but we get the following "key" spellings and have no confusion, Wellmarth, Wellmurth, Wellmerth, Willmurth, Willmirth, Wellmirth, etc. Thus we cover at least six papers, and is pretty sure to come out all right, as practically every one in answering an advertisement will pay particular attention to spelling the name. This method also has the advantage of not taking up space in an advertisement as a box number or street address will.

This "keying" is not always positive proof of the pulling power of any particular publication, for often a paper will show good results one year and the following year fall way lack of some other paper which did not show up as well the year previous, but as a rule it will pay in the end to know just where our enquiries are coming from.

One Heater vs. Several Oil Lamps

A Candee Incubator Saves Labor and Makes Custom Hatching and Baby Chick Trade Profitable.

NOTE THE SUPERIOR HEAT DISTRIBUTION OF THE 1913 MODEL

Both the Heater and each 300-egg compartment have automatic regulators, an exclusive Candee feature. Machines have a capacity from four 300-egg compartments upward. Not only are moisture and ventilation properly supplied but the amount of heat for each setting of eggs is automatically controlled.

Don't Waste Your Time—The demand for the Candee comes from Poultrymen who are tired of trimming and filling oil lamps. Their time is too precious to waste on this unproductive labor. Candee Equipment saves their time and one man can look after five to ten times greater incubator capacity.

New Sources of Profit—Every Section offers a good opportunity for a live poultryman to make good money by running a Central Custom Hatchery and he can also get handsome returns for Baby Chicks. Now is the time to act and be first in the field.

SUNBURY NEWS NOTES.

Sunbury, Penna., Sept. 4, 1912.

Mr. Huston,

Editor Chicken "Chatter,"
Williamsport, Pa.

My Dear Mr. Huston:—

The Sunbury Poultry Association is busy getting premium list into shape for their next or fifth annual show, which will be held in Armory Hall, Sunbury, Pa., Jan. 7, 8, 9 and 10th, 1913. Every member is into this with heart and soul, and this coming show promises to outdo any other show ever held by this association. There are more and better birds raised this season in and around Sunbury, but may not be quite so far developed as in former years, due to late season and poor hatches in the early spring, but this show being held in January, promises by that time to bring out banner classes in both old and young stock as birds will be by that time at their very best.

This association was re-organized last spring and membership fee is new $10 in former years membership was $1.00 and quite a number joined as this gave them some privileges worth more than $1.00, such as free admission to show and other privileges, but a fancier that is willing to put up $10.00 has the interest of the association at heart and will work for the welfare of the association. The aim of this association is to put this show on a level with the best.

We have learned some valuable lessons from former shows and show room experiences, and our aim is to try and remedy any evil or defect in the show room as we meet them.

Our rules will be so plain that they represent only one meaning, so that anybody that can read can understand them, besides what premiums that are offered in our premium list are offered in good faith, and backed by the association, and any one winning a premium, large or small can rest assured that he or she will receive the premium awarded.

We will be pleased to have our old friends and former exhibitors with us again this coming season, and to the fancier that never showed at Sunbury we ask you to give us a trial and you can rest assured we will give you fair and courteous treatment. Will consider it a pleasure to answer all inquiries promptly.

Yours truly,
SUNBURY POULTRY ASSO.
H. Y. Tobias, Sec'y.

Mr. A. A. Geise, the president, has just completed his up-to-date poultry house, erected close to his beautiful home on Fairmount Street, and has more and better Rhode Island Reds and Barred Rocks than ever, and is working hard to have the biggest and best classes of Reds and Barred Rocks at the coming show than were ever exhibited at Sunbury and he assures us that there will be good and strong competition in these classes at the coming show.

Mr. M. A. McFarland, the Vice President, is taking care of the Association's end at Northumberland and vicinity, and he assures us that Northumberland has more and better birds this season than ever before. Mr. McFarland is one of the good old standbys, and nothing is too much trouble for Mac to do to make the coming show a success.

Mr. H. A. Soper, the jeweler and Buff Orpington Breeder is exceptionally busy looking over his stock and getting them in shape for the coming show season, more and better Buffs than ever.

Mr. Elijah Youtz, the veteran Barred Rock Breeder, will be heard of in the coming show season. Barred Rocks that are Barred to the skin, and lots of them.

OWING to the disastrous fire that we had last month it will be impossible for us to build enough buildings before cold weather to house our thousands of youngsters, therefore a sacrifice must follow. Our loss is your gain, the earlier you buy the less they will cost you. You know we are cranks on eggs and, it matters not how many prizes fowls cannot win if they do not lay and lay profitably for table purposes alone, they have no place on The Underhill Farms and are only fit for the butcher's block. We are furnishing winner as well as layers and every youngster we have and offer comes from prize winners on one side or the other and in many instances both parents are top notchers. Write us just what you want, satisfaction guaranteed, and we would not let you keep stock (even if you wanted) if they were not perfectly satisfactory. For our customers come back and bring more with them. Every sale we make is an advertisement of more benefit to us than a barrel of printer's ink—"the proof of the pudding is the eating." We are ready to serve and if it is not palatable you can pass it right back—if you don't say that we give you more for your money in high grade fowls than you ever bought before in your life. (Remember not as good but better values for less money)—all you have to do is to tell us so and ask for your money—there'll be no quibbling—nor shall we write, asking to substitute. If we don't have just what you want your money will come back by return mail, that's the way The Underhill Farm does business. We don't keep your money for weeks, trying to sell you something you don't want. Our prices on the 1st day of November will necessarily be increased 50 per cent. We shall then have our surplus worked down and the increase in value from feed, care, conditioning, etc., will force us to bigger values. No better stock—but cost of production enters in. First come first served, A very unusual and extraordinary opportunity. Write right now.

This picture was taken at 8 months old. We have over a thousand youngsters sired by this bird. Can you beat him? We can.

at Sunbury who have worked so hard for the success of the Association as has Mr. Aurand.

Mr. Hatten Bastian, the veteran of them all, will again have his hat in the ring, so lookout for Reds and Barred Rocks, he has got them, and you will hear from him this coming season.

Mr. Ed. Dewire, the Buff Wyandotte man, has his young stock again farmed out, so lookout for Buffs when they arrive in town; he, no doubt, will again make the circuit.

There are quite a number of amateurs just starting out in the business in Sunbury and we hope they will withstand the coming storm and get weathered.

Mr. H. Y. Tobias, the Secretary, is just the right man in the right place for Sunbury. We have in Mr. Tobias, first of all a true fancier, together with his ability as a man, makes him an ideal show manager. All hands should back him in his endeavor to make Sunbury a leader.

THE STEELTON, PENNA., SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Dauphin Co. Poultry Asso. will be held at Steelton, Penna., December 3rd to 6th. Jacob Eberly has been engaged to place the awards, and indications are that the coming show will be larger and better than any ever held in Dauphin Co.

Address all communications to L. L. Dintiman, Sec., Steelton, Pa.

The Pottstown Poultry and Pigeon Association are working hard to make their Second Annual Show the best ever held in the Schuylkill Valley. They have secured the Sixth Regiment Armory for their coming exhibition which will make an ideal show room, being both well lighted and ventilated. They will have about three times the floor space and can accomodate upwards of two thousand birds. They have secured the services of A. J. Fell of West Point and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Koons of Treichlers, to place the awards in the Poultry Department. The dates are December 17, 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22, 1912. And every member is working hard to make it the best ever. If you have an A. P. A. Directory our dates belong there, as we are an Associate Member.

Yours truly,

COLUMBIAN WYANDOTTES.

National Columbian Wyandotte Club will hold its Annual Meeting and Club Show in connection with the Philadelphia, Pa., Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, December 10-14, 1912.

The Club is engaged in raising a Specials Fund of $500 to be used exclusively for prizes at various shows the coming winter.

At the Philadelphia Show there will be offered $200 in cash besides many silver cups, medals and other prizes for Columbian Wyandottes alone.

Silver Cups, Cash Specials and Club Ribbons are to be offered at various state and local shows in the United States and Canada.

The membership of the club is fast increasing and great interest is being shown in the coming show season.

I SAW IT STATED that a steamer had arrived in San Francisco harbor loaded to the water line with eggs from China. How long will the American stomach stand this? If yours rebels write at once to the DARLINGTON EGG FARM.

One of my neighbors missed her turkey eggs from the nest; near by she found a dead black-snake with a curious swelling in his body; on opening "the varmint" there was her China nest egg.

Now put these two true statements together and what do you get?
MORAL

If you don't want to land at the Johns Hopkin's Hospital get in touch with the DARLINGTON EGG FARM. It is easy, take an envelope, put a two-cent stamp in the N. E. corner and Uncle Sam will do the rest. Or better:—Drop in yourself, you will be as welcome as the first shad that comes up our beautiful river, and I can tell you he is pretty welcome after our winter diet of "hog and hominy."

Now, What Will You See?

You will see 3000 mature breeding hens in one flock.
You will see a brooder house such as you cannot see elsewhere.
You will see 6000 eggs under one hen,—rough on the hen.
You might see a pretty girl or two. This I will not promise.
You will see (this I can promise) a man who will be glad to see you.
You will see a S. C. White Leghorn plant that is up to date.
You will see,—well, I will keep something till you come and then I will show it, don't let me forget it.

GETTING READY FOR THE WINTER SHOWS.

By E. M. Long.

At this season of the year it is important that we begin to select top-notchers and give them extra care and feed. Birds that were hatched in April or May should now be rounding up towards maturity. The adult plumage is coming in and we should guard against the direct rays of the sun during the warmer part of the sunny days, against wet weather and we should use every possible protection to avoid soiling of this new plumage. White and Buff birds should have special protection from the sun's rays if we expect to show them with a pure white or a good rich, clean, even buff.

If we are unable to turn them on range where there is a plenty of shade, it is well to confine them in some well ventilated barn loft or airy shed during the day except perhaps in the early morning and late afternoon. Please bear in mind, that in giving this advice I am not telling you how to breed good White or Buff specimens or any other good variety. If there is any defect in plumage, the sun rays will bring it out. If a lack of Buff pigment the birds usually fade rapidly and get almost a faded cream; if a lack of black pigment, the blacks will turn a dirty brown; if an excess of color pigments in white birds they will turn creamy and brassy when exposed to the sun's rays. I am giving some simple directions that will help you keep an ordinary bird in fair condition of plumage until the show season is over. I am of the opinion that "prevention is better than cure," also that it is easier to avoid deterioration in plumage conditions than to perfect them after deterioration has commenced. After a buff has faded they are no good in the show pen. After a black has turned brown, they are not a pleasant sensation. After the whites have turned brassy they don't look good and I know of no bleach that will have any permanent effect. Washing will not give a badly soiled plumage that clean delicate appearance it has when newly acquired.

Cocks and hens that have moulted early during the present season are probably gone by for exhibition purposes the coming winter unless they are exceptional specimens and retain their rich, pure coloring. Those that are now in the process of moulting may be given the care mentioned above and they will usually be in good shape for winter exhibition.

A cock is usually at his best when he has fully completed his moult. That is when the new feathers are all in, full length, except perhaps the sickles. Some breeds look better when the main sickles are about two-thirds or three-fourths developed. A cockerel should also be in full feather, fully developed and right in the height of vigor and health. It usually requires about two months longer to get a cockerel into full development than a pullet, but after being fully developed they hold their shape and form much better and longer than a female. A hen is usually at her best

Hatching Strong, Healthy Chicks— Chicks That Stay Alive—

THAT'S WHERE

are pre-eminent among hatching machines

To get the most profit from poultry you must hatch chicks that will live. To be sure of hatching "livable" chicks you should get the "NEWTOWN." Chicks are livable because conditions are right.

The hatching results of any Incubator depend as much upon the harmonious co-operation of Heat, Fresh Air and Moisture—the three hatching essentials—as upon their individual excellence.

Careful investigation and intelligent comparison will convince even the most skeptical that the "Newtown" has the most effective and perfectly balanced heating, ventilating and moisture systems.

For instance, Fresh Air and Heat in the "Newtown" hatching compartment are thoroughly mixed before striking the eggs, insuring plenty of warm air on all sides of the eggs all the time.

Other methods bring hot air into the top and cool air into the bottom of the hatching compartment, resulting in the eggs being cooled on the bottom and heated on the top, a process at once illogical and injurious.

6000 Egg Newtown "Giant" Incubator—the owner has ordered double this capacity for next season

If you were not satisfied with your last season's hatching operations, why not let us prove to you that the "Newtown" will improve them. We can do it. Write for catalog and tell us your troubles.

The "NEWTOWN" Adjustable Hover Brooding System

uses the same common-sense, sanitary methods in raising chicks as are used in raising human beings. It brings plenty of fresh, warm air directly into the hover, which no other brooding system does. Fresh air, in turn, is just as necessary to young, delicate chicks as it is to people.

"NEWTOWN" Individual Hover Regulation

The "Newtown" regulates heat going into each hover, thereby giving day-old, week-old, month-old or older chicks just the temperature and fresh air they individually require. The "Newtown" is the only Brooding System doing this. It is a fact that the "Newtown" will raise practically all the chicks you put in the Brooder, because it supplies all the favorable conditions for their growth, not a part, as do others. Let us give you proof that convinces.

Incubator Catalog L and Brooder Catalog D, free for the asking. They give you logical reasons for the "Newtown's" superiority and tell you how it is accomplished. A letter or postal brings either or both.

just as she is fully through the moult and ready to lay. To obtain best results a hen should not be forced for laying purposes while getting them ready for the show room. They should be rounded out carefully, not too much stimulating food should be given as they lose much of their neat trim appearance after they have laid their first clutch of eggs after completing moult. A pullet should reach her full development just about the time she is to be placed on exhibition. If size is desired, she should not be forced to lay too early. About two weeks before she commences to lay and perhaps from then until a week or two afterwards, she is at her best. Then her comb may develop and become flabby or wrinkled and her feathers loosen up until she loses that youthful appearance so much desired in exhibition pullets.

There is a time when a cock, cockerel, hen and pullet is at his or her best. This is the time they should be exhibited, outside of this period, better keep them at home. Learn to know when a bird is at its best and then arrange your exhibitions accordingly.

"AMERICAN CAMPINE CLUB."

Since the meeting of the American Campine Club held at Madison Square Garden Poultry Show last December, when the permanent organization was effected, applications for membership have come in increasing the total to 169 members.

The Secretary is very anxious within the near future to enroll many more members. As there are many breeders of Campines at the present time that the Secretary is unable to reach he asks that all breeders send to him for application blanks which will be gladly furnished.

As there are many members of the American Campine Club who have this year started other breeders in the Campines, the Secretary asks that all such members use their best endeavors to induce these new breeders to become members of the American Campine Club.

From reports the Secretary is receiving it is very evident that many shows throughout the country this season will have large exhibits of Campines and in many shows the Campines promise to be the leading feature.

The next annual meeting of the American Campine Club will be held at the coming Madison Square Garden Show. At this show the club will offer a number of attractive specials. From the present indications it is very evident that at this show will be exhibited not only the largest but also the finest class of Campines ever exhibited in this country or at any show abroad.

A FEW RABBIT POINTERS.

The show season is now with us and we are to expect a Poultry and Pet Stock Show in almost every county during the coming fall and winter.

Now we expect every association who say that they are Pet Stock associations also, and cater to the pet stock breeders, to make some provision for our friend the Red Belgian Hare, also the Flemish Giant both the gray and black; and you my friend and reader, who are breeding these fellows, make it a point to see the executive committee of your local association and have them place these beauties on the list, and after placing them there see that you get out as good a display as your community can supply, and you will be surprised at the interest that it will give the local show as many visitors that attend will go more for the purpose of looking at the bunnies than at the chickens.

We do not think at the present time that there is a county in this country but has its pet stock breeders and judging by the enquiries that the older breeders are receiving for stock it is growing very fast. So much so that the United States Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin on the care and breeding of the Belgian and other rabbits. We would advise all interested to write the Department for the same, as it is free and as the Government has no ax to grind or stock for sale you are getting something that you can depend upon. Just write for Farmers Bulletin No. 496 and you will receive the same by return mail. Address, Washington, D. C.

See that you take your best rabbit to the show and if you fall down ask your judge just where you were short and he will tell you also how to breed out that flaw, although in times past we have seen some hares get the blue ribbon just because he happened to be the largest regardless of all other points; just as consistent to put the blue ribbon on the Langshan over the Bantam, but that is not the case at present as all our judges are now thoroughly competent to judge and score hares as poultry.

In looking over the premium list of the Pensacola Inter State Fair to be held at Pensacola, Fla., we note a Belgian hare dept. separate from the poultry dept. which goes to show the interest they are held in in the south.

We received many inquiries as to what is the best season of the year for hares? That depends on what part of the country you are living in, we find the season here in Ohio the year around. not a few months in the spring as with eggs or a few months in the fall for the sale of show animals, but we have our best success in the winter time as they can stand the cold much better than the heat, especially the Belgians. Last summer we were bothered quite a bit with lop ear with the Flemish, caused by their ears growing so fast, getting too long and thin, therefore falling down, as they are so heavy they cannot hold them up, and whenever we get a fallen ear that says another one for the market, as we have found no cure for same and they never come up, it does not hurt them for breeders but spoils them as to looks and show. When the tips of the ears curl over that is not lop as they will straighten up as soon as it gets cooler.

We generally aim here to let our does rest through the hot part of August and the first part of September, we would like to hear from some of the southern breeders as to their experience as to breeding them in the far south as well as the extreme north, we think the Flemish would do better in the north than the south as they have such a thick coat of fur, it never gets too cold for them if kept perfectly dry.

If the interest keeps on in the next five years as in the past five we will expect to see the rabbit in most every back yard in town and on every farm as they are raised much cheaper than poultry, less liable to disease and are very clean, kind and affectionate and supply the table with the choicest kind of meat more to be desired by the preacher than the proverbial fried JESS M' CULLEY.

GENTLEMEN'S DRIVING PARK POULTRY SHOW.

The poultry exhibit was cooped in brand new Empires coops under a tent, which was located in a shady grove. This made it very pleasant for the poultry. For so early in the season the quality was of unusual excellence. Leading class was S. C. Black Minorcas and the winners were in wonderful plumage and Judge Geo. O. Brown remarked that this condition could hardly be better even at a winter show. Buff Orpingtons, next zest class, contained some promising youngsters fine in color. White Orpingtons were also of high quality. S. C. White Leghorns were few in number, but the quality superior. The 2nd Langshang Cock of last winter's Baltimore show was here in a class by himself. Barred and White Plymouth Rocks were good average classes. Several varieties of Bantams were shown and a number of kinds of pigeons. Next year the show will be held in a new building built for the purposes. Mr. Jos. F. Mettam was in charge of the poultry and he kept everything spic and span and everybody got their ribbons and checks on Friday.

NATIONAL ROSE COMB ORPINGTON CLUB.

Our club show will have one of the largest lists of cash prizes ever offered by any Specialty Club. A large, valuable cup is offered by the Club for the best display of any variety of Rose Comb Orpingtons. Breeders are requested to write to the secretary, A. R. Brown, 83 Greenwood Street, Melrose Highlands, Mass., for a catalogue and list of specials. All breeders joining now have the privilege of voting for place of holding Club meet. Ballots are sent with membership certificate on receipt of one dollar which pays all dues to Oct. 1st, 1913. There are cash prizes for all whether birds are placed or not. Now get busy Rose Comb breeders and make this show the greatest of the season.

HISTORICAL INCIDENT.

How the Pilgrim Father landed on the Plymouth Rock.

Preparations are almost complete which are expected to make the 5th annual show at Williamsport the greatest in its history. If your Premium List has not as yet reached you write at once. With all the care Secretary Stryker has exercised in compiling his mailing list you may have been missed; if so write a postal at once and same will reach you by return mail. Your attention is called to this matter for the reason that part of last year's mailing list was lost in moving office effects from one location to another.

We will not attempt to describe the good things that are offered in the way of specials at Williamsport, suffice it to say that there are few, if any, shows in the entire country that will reach Williamsport in the amount of cash offered. Williamsport has always been in the lead in this respect and this year she has outdone herself.

Regarding Williamsport as a show of National reputation, every poultry man is well acquainted, a win here means much to the exhibitor. One Pennsylvania breeder of wide fame and an exhibitor at New York and Boston states that Williamsport has brought him more sales than either of the shows mentioned.

Coming in Thanksgiving week the record for attendance will most likely be broken, and many exhibitors will prepare to spend at least Thanksgiving Day at the Armory.

A mistake many fanciers make is expecting too much for their birds in regards to weight and development for the early winter shows. Just stop and think, if yours are not quite far enough along, is it not likely that the other fellow is in the same boat? Comparison judging does away with all the "tommy rot" of a bird being an ounce too light, or a bird not fully finished in every section, being set aside for that reason alone. No! You all have a chance for the blue, and to win it at Williamsport on Thanksgiving Day will make that day a red letter day in your history. Pick them out, get your entry in early, arrange to come with your birds if you can, if you cannot be satisfied that they will get the same careful treatment as if you were there to attend them.

The Fancier readers are aware that Williamsport has printed its last unmarked catalogue. Marked catalogues on sale Thanksgiving morning. This has been done to avoid any appearance of evil. When the judges walk into the aisles at 10 A. M. Wednesday, November 27 they will see the birds for the first time and no unscrupulous exhibitor, with an unmarked catalogue in his hand, will confront them with "What do you think of this bird Mr. Judge? It does not belong to me, only I want your opinion?" We have few of such exhibitors at Williamsport, and would rather their like would exhibit elsewhere. It is to save our Judges the indignities thus heaped upon them that we have decided on no unmarked catalogue. Our Judges are men of honor, gentlemen who are honest and who demand that they be treated in like manner. In Schwab, Burgoth, Nixon and Braun we believe we have four Judges that are the peers of judging in the classes assigned them.

Whether you show one bird or fifty at Williamsport, fair play shall be the rule. Our years of experience in handling a large show has taught us that the exhibitor showing a single bird if treated in the same manner as the larger exhibitor, usually comes back next year with a large string.

Do not forget that entries close November 19. All entries mailed before midnight of that date will be received, but owing to the short time between the closing of the entries and the day set in contract with the catalogue printers, it will be necessary to return all entries received after time mentioned.

Show opens in the 12th Regiment Armory, Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and continues until 12 o'clock midnight, November 30.

We shall be looking for you.

A NEW BOOK ON LEGHORNS.

What is perhaps the most complete text book on this popular breed that has been issued is one entitled "The Leghorns," treating of Standard and non-Standard varieties, published by the reliable Poultry Journal Publishing Co., Ill.

This new book was edited by J. H. Drenstedt, breeder and judge of more than twenty-five years experience, and a member of the Standard Revision Committee. It is based upon the requirements for Leghorns given in the latest issue of the American Standard of Perfection. Contributors to the book include the foremost poultrymen of America and Europe.

The book consists of 144 large pages and cover, tells how to select and mate for the breeding pen; how to judge Leghorns for the show room; how to breed for heavy egg yield and fast growth. Some of the great commercial Leghorn egg farms are described and in fact the articles cover all subjects that are of interest to breeders of this fowl.

The many valuable and helpful illustrations in the book are by Artists F. L. Sewell and A. O. Schilling, among them being two full page reproductions of Sewell oil paintings, showing White Leghorn fowls and Brown Leghorn feathers in natural colors.

Price of "The Leghorns" is $1.00 a copy, postpaid, and we can handle your order. We will send you the book and include a yearly subscription to the Poultry Fancier at a special rate of $1.00 or the book will be mailed as a premium for 4 subscriptions.

HOW TO SAVE TIME.

Easy Way for Any Man to Accomplish More Work in a Day.

Today everyone is trying to increase the output without extra labor—to accomplish more work without extra effort. This is especially necessary on a poultry plant. When it comes to incubation, this has been solved by the so-called mammoth. A Candee for instance, has only one heater to tend for any capacity up to 10,200 eggs. Starting with the smallest size, 1200 eggs, one heater supplies plenty of hot water for the four 300-egg compartments. Each compartment is operated separately with its own automatic regulator, just like any 300-egg machine. The supply of hot water is drawn from the one heater and it, too, is automatically regulated. Therefore, the operator has only to supply coal, like any coal stove and to turn the thumbscrew on each compartment regulator as the hatch progresses. This reduction of labor permits one man alone to handle five to ten times the incubating capacity that he could under the old methods. Full information including a catalogue, can be obtained by writing the Candee Incubator & Brooder Co., Eastwood, N. Y.

Yours in regard to the 1-2 page ad. for May received. Well go ahead and give the thing the benefit of your experience, write me a good one and use the good cut. Business has been extra good and the Fancier has brought me over $600.00 in 30 days for stock and eggs. Have shipped to Scotland, Ireland, Japan and Australia from my ad. with you.

Have a lot of fine youngsters out, and eggs are very fertile.

Sincerely yours,
 C. H. BRUNDAGE.

THE ATTENTION OF THE POULTRY FANCY AGAIN CENTERED ON RED LION.

The remarkable progress and phenomenal growth of Red Lion, Pa., which is so widely known, has been attributed largely to the fact that its industries are principally in the hands of a practical and progressive young business element. These same conditions which have marked the building of a good town are being applied in the building of a good Poultry Show. The Red Lion Poultry Association, having these interests at heart, are making extensive preparations to give the Fancy a classic event that will compare favorably with the leading exhibitions of Southern Pennsylvania.

The second annual show of the Association will be staged in the Red Lion Market House, Red Lion, Pa., November 6, 7, 8, and 9, 1912. The two prominent judges selected are Jacob Eberly, Dallastown, Pa., and E. J. Chandler, Kennett Square, Pa. The marvelous success of last year proved a very pleasing surprise, especially to the breeders from other States who were with us, for so keen was the competition as a quality event, that many of the Red Lion winners, which were later entered at Baltimore, carried off a number of the highest honors, which was probably the greatest Poultry Show held in America last season.

Consequently, a winner at Red Lion this year should be of vital importance to the breeder. The Association and citizens are co-operating, and a large list of cups and specials, in addition to the prize money, will be placed on the various breeds. In fact every effort is being made to insure the lover of our feathered companions the most enjoyable affair of the season. For catalogue and further information, address A. S. Ziegler, Secretary, Red Lion, Pa.

IS THERE ANY DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A THOROUGHBRED AND A DUNGHILL FOR TABLE USE?

A Reply to E. M. Long.

For anyone to say that a White Dorking is the ancestor of a tough fowl would be a contradiction of a fact in the History of Poultry. Queen Victoria, whose refined taste and abhorrence of anything tough, always had on her table the White Dorking.

I am a sleeper of but few hours and always have the Fancier and a Fruit Journal to help me pass the dark night, and this insult to the Dorking was so poignant to me that I got up at 6 A. M. and am writing from a long text.

As a breeder of Dorkings for 25 years, I think I know something of their quality—from heresay, however, as I don't eat meat. What to do with the few culls and extra cock birds is a question, so I sometimes give them to my father, he belonging to an older generation, can, perhaps conscientiously, eat meat, and I well remember that after a winter feeding on Dorkings, Hamburgs, Polish and Langshans, he knew at once when a Rock and Cochin, an exchange with a neighbor, were sent and asked why I had sent him such tough, stringy birds. I, of course, view the Rock as a mongrel. My aunt tells me that the foeted odor from a Rock when being prepared is nauseating.

Some years ago my grandmother had our clergyman, his wife and two boys and a girl to dinner. My grandfather and grandmother were both fond of chicken. I didn't eat any. She had two white Polish Cockereels roasted. These birds were so large and full of meat that not even all of one of these birds was eaten by the seven diners; nobody ever roasted chicken equal to my grandmother—so there was no fault as to toughness or ill-cooking—simply almost all meat to a Polish fowl. We all know that Mr. Long's Dunghill had many Leghorn ancestors, he needn't have noted that, for we have doubtless all been tempted to have Leghorns for a while, but the cocks are so fly that they have a very tough influence on the young of the poultry yards. But Mr. Long should ask a profound apology to the White Dorking.

ELBERT WAKEMAN.

A BIG WIN AT LOUISVILLE.

The many friends of A. E. Martz, well known breeder of Buff Orpingtons, of Arcadia, Ind., will be pleased to learn that he made one of the greatest wins on Buff Orpingtons, at Louisville, that has ever been recorded at a big show. Mr. Martz won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th cock; 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th hen; 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th cockerel; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th pullet. This win was made in strong competition and is possibly one of the best wins ever made in Buffs. We congratulate Mr. Martz on such a win.

AN ACCOUNT OF H. B. COOPER'S TRIP TO CONNECTICUT AG- RICULTURAL COLLEGE.

It was with great pleasure that I visited the Connecticut Agricultural College, July 29, 30 and 31, at the annual three day field meet of the Connecticut Poultry Association. A series of lectures, demonstrations, and interviewing the great North American Egg Laying Contest filled the days in such a pleasant manner that the hour for departure was far too soon.

The opening session consisted of three addresses of welcome by President Beach, Dr. Clinton and Prof. Kirkpatrick. Their hearty welcome was brimming over with delight to witness close on to three hundred poultrymen assembled to save the State of Connecticut and its sons to live the life of the agricultural. The theme of these three speeches was encouragement to the farmer to breed the dairy cow and the laying hen, Connecticut having on the rate of eight thousand acres per year going back to nature or a total of 560,000 acres which was cultivated at the close of the Revolutionary War now growing wild. Little grain, except corn, is raised, the dairy cow is holding her own and the laying hen has gained ground, being found more profitable to breed standard bred utility fowls than barn yards.

Following the opening addresses was an excellent practical talk from Prof. W. G. Krum of the Poultry Department of the Cornell University, the subject being, Breeding and Feeding for Egg Production, and the few facts as I can recall them are as follows:

Every poultry man must have good egg producers as the egg is the foundation of the business, and the two most important factors, is first, the proper housing of birds and second the proper feeding. In selecting any breed pick out a bird with a bright eye, low red comb, short blocky head with a good width between the eyes, a wedge shaped body and a bird that is fat—no skiny bird is an egg factory. In making a selection of a bird at this season of the year (August), see that its legs are faded out, the best layers have bright legs, but in summer subsequent to a good year's work they should have a faded appearance.

Nature is stronger than man and if the poultry man does not pick out his breeders with discretion and judgment and as just suggested the flock is bound to deteriorate instead of improving. For example I guarantee that if every chicken were to be turned loose in this State, in five years' time not one breed could be recognized, for a chicken left to itself would lay few eggs and smaller ones and finally only lay in the breeding season. The cock birds would fight and kill off the weaker ones, the winter weather kill still more and only the healthy, strong males would survive to mate with the females.

Give the birds plenty to eat and make them work for the same. Plenty of clear water, as 60 per cent. of every egg is water, while the balance is 11 per cent. protein, 10 per cent. ash, 9 per cent. fat. In every dozen of eggs there is one pint of water, and one pound of lime. My method of feeding is a little breakfast of wheat corn and oats, at noon open the dry mash hopper (which was closed at feeding time the night before), let the chickens eat the mash at the evening feed. Allow the birds to eat all the grain they will, the grain feed consisting of two parts corn, two parts wheat, one part oats, the mash contains six parts corn meal, three parts bran, six parts wheat middlings, five parts beef scraps, one part alfalfa, and one part oil meal. I try and induce the hens to eat one pound of mash to two pounds of grain. In order to make them exercise the mash is placed in a box or hopper elevated from the floor and the pan of water on the opposite side of the pen from the mash, thus compelling the birds to run back and forth, jumping on the platform for the mash, becoming thirsty chasing across for the water. Grain is fed in deep litter.

An open front with muslin screens is the ideal method of housing the flock or breeding pen. Open the muslin window in the day, close at night if necessary, allowing the birds ample room to run, giving them their freedom, snow or shine; snow does not hurt them unless, of course, you have them penned up half the winter and then rush them out in the snow. In such a case it is usually fatal to the birds. This reminds me of a story when I was West, travelling in a buggy one very cold night with the temperature considerably below zero. We stopped at a farm and found my friend's neighbor frozen by the barn door. We resumed our journey, tucking the robes tight around us and struck out. Ere long we saw an Indian on the same path with next to no clothing. I said, "Are you cold?" his reply being, "Is your face cold." "No," was my answer. "Well," said the Indian, "red man all face."

The following morning at eight o'clock was a demonstration of caponizing by Mr. Henry Beaupain. It was given in such a fine manner that all who witnessed the demonstration felt confident they could understand the operation themselves.

At ten o'clock we assembled in the hall to hear Prof. J. C. Graham of the Massachusetts Agricultural College deliver a talk on the breeding of poultry, commencing in this manner: Some years back when a man engaged in the poultry field he was considered small, recently the business has a different and higher aspect. About twenty years ago there was told a story of a hen fancier who was the joke of the neighborhood. One evening when this fancier was returning home late a heavy rain storm overtook him, and he was obliged to creep into a hollow log for shelter. Storming hard all night, it caused the log to swell to such an extent that in the morning the fancier was unable to get out. He thought the problem over, at last struck upon the idea that being a poultry man, he made himself small, and crept out of the small entrance.

Every poultry plant should consist of two departments: First, an egg factory and second, a breeding establishment. First the egg factory is composed of all the females on the farm after culling and selecting the cream for the breeding establishment. These hens should be pushed right along for heavy egg production, no male being necessary, in fact better without him.

The breeding establishment is where very careful selection should be made, as this establishment is to furnish the egg factory with pullets for the coming year. Cull out to the extreme to start with and then dispose of such birds that prove of small value, poor layers or small egg producers, for the average flock never rises above the average breed. Breeding from the whole flock will deteriorate the breed. Breed from a few select specimens and you have splendid results. A man once came to me and said: "Mr. Graham, five years ago I started in the poultry business. I netted $1.53 per hen the first year, the next year, $1.25 per hen; the next, 83 cents, and the fifth, 50 cents, and this year I will be down and out unless something unusual happens within the next two months." I questioned the man and discovered that he has purchased birds discovered that he had purchased birds poultry, and since that purchase he added but little new blood, bred from the whole of his flock, and the consequences were complete failure in the value of the stock, for nature being stronger. My advice was that there was just as good fish in the sea as ever was caught, consequently just as good birds in the land.

A few hints how to recognize a good breeding bird are as follows: Broad back bird, with well rounded breast, legs short, well separated, short beak, eyes bright, a tail well spread and plenty of space between the two pelvis bones in order to leave ample space for a number of eggs to pass out, casting aside the birds that you find do not lay fertile eggs and lastly breed from good standard bred utility stock.

Dr. Rettger of Yale was the next speaker, the subject being White Diarrhoea, in which he presented an exceedingly interesting, practical lecture, in which facts were stated and questions answered. "This dread disease, which was such an epidemic this year is a deep study and I am asked to talk upon this subject before the cure is known, such is yet to be discovered. The germ lays in the ova of the hen and is transmitted to the chick in the yolk of the egg; boiling kills the germ, liquid air does not kill it, and as boiling is impossible and liquid air does not have the desired effect, we are still searching and experimenting with the disease. Every chick that is affected with the White Diarrhoea does not necessarily have to be born with it, as it is very contagious and one chick can spread it through an entire flock. The little chaps who contract it we believe can be cured and at the present time we are experimenting with sour milk. The acid is very effective upon the chicks and believe it will cure them when the germ is attacked in the first stage, laying in the intestines. Specimens of the living affected chicks were shown, also specimens of the ovas of the affected hens in the various stages.

The next lecture was one of interest also, by Prof. Clinton, the subject "Why Poultrymen Should Grow Their Own Grain and How to Grow It."

Tuesday evening was general discussion on poultry subjects, a question box and a general social time, followed by a dance.

At eight A. M. Wednesday was the breaking of the ground for the $25,000 Poultry Student Building. At nine o'clock was an excellent lecture on "Turkeys," which I was obliged to miss on account of being interested in the egg laying contest which took up my time.

The final lecture was by Prof. A. S. Clark of New Jersey Agricultural Experimental Station, subject "Practical Poultry Houses." Economy, Ventilation, Dryness, Floor Space for Exercise and Conveniences are the six factors in poultry houses. His belief is to pen the laying hens or the egg factory breeders and force them, but allow the breeding birds to run all winter. Different style houses were drawn on a blackboard, and numerous discussions, which were followed by a farewell dinner.

In reference to the great North American egg laying contest I would be able to write several pages on the subject, but on account of space can only give a few facts.

The birds in this contest are owned by the various breeders in the United States, Canada and England (open to the world). All birds are housed in colony style, 50 houses in all, 12x12 feet, divided in two, making 100 pens containing five birds, with few exceptions where there are but four, on account of death. There is one understudy or extra hen in such case to replace the lost one, but where two or more die the pen is obliged to run with the balance of the birds. The race is 52 weeks in length and the thirty-eighth week is just passed. The average egg yield to this date is 120 eggs per hen.

The highest pen record (now held by Mr. F. G. Yost, of Sayre, Pa., 818, White Leghorns), Mr. Barron of England, second, (now running with four birds to the pen) (White Leghorns), 778 eggs, closely followed by Norwood Poultry Farm, Butler, Pa., 772 eggs (White Leghorns).

The individual bird with the highest record is close on two hundred eggs, a Buff Orpington, owned by Mr. O. Wilson, Carlisle, W. Va., The White Wyandotte and Rhode Reds are doing wonderful work as a class, it was well on to Spring before the White Leghorns passed these two American varieties.

In further reference to the housing and yards will say that the houses have two large open muslin windows to the south and a small glass window to the east and to the west. The floor is pounded clay and well filled with straw. Birds are fed mash in a hopper, consisting of bran, middlings, cornmeal, gluten, ground oats, beef scraps and fish scraps, with best pulp as a side dish. The grain is also hopper fed in the center of the pen, consisting of wheat, corn, oats, buckwheat, kaffir corn, grit, charcoal and shell as a side issue. Every pound of feed is charged against each pen and every egg is credited to each pen. The ration is an experiment and kept secret until contest is complete when same shall be published. The door of the houses open south directly into a driveway while the yards extend on the side and back of each house 20x50 feet. The ground slopes South with fine drainage, an ideal plant for poultry where results are being obtained.

In conclusion will state that the egg laying contest will be held again next year and those wishing to compete write to the Philadelphia North American.

AMERICAN LEGHORN CLUB.

The above club will hold its 18th annual meeting in Charlotte, N. C., during the Great South Eastern Exhibition, Thursday, January 13th, at 2.30 p. m. in the show room.

"HARMONY PARK."

(From the Westfield (N. J.) Leader,

True to predictions, often made in the Leader, Harmony Park is coming to the front with a rush, and with its flock of White Orpingtons stands as one of the leading plants of this variety in the country. Here was the great assistance of unusual business experience, gained all over the country, combined with a whole lot of hard work.

All this has blossomed into a successful venture and now Sydney R. Clarke, who is president of the New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement, has crowned his efforts by forming a partnership business to further increase the fame of the plant at Glenside avenue.

The two new harmonics, who will have to take on the many duties, are Samuel Truesdale and Joseph Nesler. "Sam" needs no introduction to the poultry world, for those who have visited Harmony Park have always had a pleasant time with Sam. He has, as his part of the labor, recently completed about thirty coops, which in point of workmanship and neatness, bespeaks the characteristics of this 'un-York State' man who comes from the old reliable stock. At that age when he can mix good humor with daily labor, Mr. Truesdale is bound to be a tuneful chord in the establishment.

By securing "Chic" Nesler as another coop in the wheel of progress, the astute of "Syd" has made a ten strike. Here is one gent who not only possesses the ability for the place but one who loves work and not afraid to pitch in and do anything. "Chic" has been hovering around the past few years and has established a corking good strain of birds, which, coming down to the Park, swells the total up to about 1,500 head.

Mr. Clarke takes Joe into partnership, and he, too, will share in the profits, have general management of the poultry. If ever a man worked hard in his line Nesler is that man, for most of Joe's chicken work was done after ten hours hard toil in a factory.

Thus the triple alliance start out prominently and aggressively, specializing in the White Orpington and bending all their energy to further enhance the popularity of this breed, which will be known as the "Harmony Park" strain. There are no bosses there, and all work for the good of Harmony Park, each taking upon himself the duty to see that the best good is accomplished.

The doors are always swinging the right way at Harmony Park, and the same reception is accorded to all interested, whether seeking information or as a buyer, and we would advise a visit to this down-to-date plant, as many features will be explained that cannot fail to impress those who are already in the business and more so those who anticipate the venture at an early date, for with the thirty coops or more and 1,500 White Orpingtons, with the genial atmosphere to accompany you on your rounds, you will be well repaid for the time spent.

And thus behold the triumvirate, a welding together of thoughts, ideas and bustling, hustling energy and so evenly tempered with good nature and fine fellowship.

"Sid" Clarke is as well known in one state as another, he is the very embodiment of all that is essential to the successful poultryman. Bright as a new dollar; aggressive and tireless in all his efforts for the good of his friends; absolutely fearless and chock full of courage he is backed up by the conservative "get there" "Sam" Truesdale, whose antecedents are his credentials, where skill and prescience are needed and flanked on the other side with the knowledge of "Chic" Nesler's experience. This latter and last harmonic is faithful and always worshipful in his adoration of the White Orpington and with the virtues and qualities of his associates on the score card is bound to be known all over the country. All the success of this growing plant on Springfield Road was long ago predicted by the writer, who believes in placing honor and credit where absolutely due. They should have the full measure of reward due to their untiring labors.

No One Responsible for Editing This Department

Yes, Dickey, we will all be at the Baltimore oyster roast.

The Gander Band will again head the Hagerstown parade.

All the officers of the Central Pennsylvania Shows are working like beavers.

Willie Minnick's White Orpington shoats have developed to full-fledged Porkers.

The Chicago show this year will break all records. It can't help but be a winner.

J. W. Bruckhart and J. D. Koons have been selected as Judges for the Easton, Penna., show.

Now is the time to start your add. We can do your job printing and it is of Poultry Fancier quality.

New York and Baltimore coming on the same dates hits the crowd bad, and it will do the entries no good.

J. W. Bruckhart, the veteran from Lititz, Pa., judged the show at the Nazareth Fair for the seventeenth consecutive year.

W. N. Watson, Sunbury, Pa., never won anything but a first or a shut out at Madison Square. Three firsts and two shut outs.

C. F. Porteous of Wilkesburg, Pa. has some Barred Rocks coming on which will make some of the Breeders sit up and take notice.

Looks as if that editorial that was in National Poultry Magazine, about the Madison Square show would cause some "heap much" fight.

Well Jimmy, is Williamsport going to have that banquet? This is a straight question and we want to know if we eat, or don't eat.

Rule 17 is a very live corpse. We will be on hand with the amendment and shall get legislation along this line. It can't help but come.

All classified adds in the front of the book and they have the same privileges as Display advertisers. Equal Rights in the Fancier.

The young stock on the F. L. Poultry Farm is coming alone fine. F. L. Ober has had one of the biggest seasons since he has been in the business.

Every show should advertise in the Fancier. We have over 11,000 paid in advance subscribers in Pennsylvania alone. Get your copy in for the November issue.

I was told that Link Orr visited the Syracuse Fair, and distinguished himself as a political orator. Dollars to doughnuts, Link isn't in the ranks of the Progressives.

Rusty Palmer has been elected Big Puppy, in the ancient and honorable order of Yellow Dogs. A meeting will be held at Hagerstown when all breeders who have passed the Puppy age can join.

Give yourself a square deal, get "Down to Date Poultry Knowledge" and Fancier 3 years, for $1.00. Remember this when you meet us at the Fair, and in renewing your subscription.

Hagerstown next. Big Show, Banquet and Parade. Don't miss it. Able bodied men are supposed to walk in the parade this year, and not ride. Hamburg Bill is especially invited to read this and take notice.

James Skiles has had hard luck. His paint shop has been burned to the ground and along with it his poultry and pigeon houses. More than 600 pigeons were burned. Mr. Skiles was only able to save 24 out of the entire lot. This is indeed hard luck.

F. N. Perkins, Freeport, Ill., writes that he has the Partridge Rock with yellow legs and we have no reason to doubt his word. Mr. Perkins worked hard to get it and at last has succeeded. This should certainly make a boom on the Perkins Partridge Rocks.

Chas. Staaff, the well known manager of the Onlya Farm, expects to visit his old home in Sweden in the near future. Forty years ago Charles crossed the pond, and this will be his first visit home. His aged mother is still living. Charles also served in the U. S. Army but he won fame as a breeder of White Wyandottes.

The Pittsburgh Fanciers' Club held a meeting September 19th and elected their Judges, announcement of which will be made later. They have also made arrangements for the cooping of their show. Several changes were made in the premium list. The show will be held at the Old City Hall, at the same old place, and by the same old crowd, February 17, to 22, 1913, and will be better than ever.

The circulation of Poultry Fancier is national in character. It is the only poultry journal published solely in the interests of fanciers, the people who constitute practically the entire fraternity.

The mission of Poultry Fancier is to teach breeders how to produce the beautiful and valuable Standard bred birds which are the foundation of all profit and pleasure in poultry raising.

When you see an X marked in this space, it means your subscription has expired.

HAS THE COURAGE OF HIS CONVICTIONS.

*Legislation Along the Lines of Rule

We have just received a letter from Frank L. Platt, Associate Editor of R. P. J. It speaks for itself. Read it:

"I quite agree with you that a Poultry Journal editor should not take a little show to judge, and then because he is judging, turn around and bend his best energies to get the small breeder to advertise in his paper. I feel sure of a great many editor judges who would not do this. And a show should not have any man that would do it. While I was opposed to Rule 17, as it read, and voted against it at Nashville, I am willing to be quoted as above, this is just as I told you in a personal conversation with you at Nashville, and I have the courage of my convictions. With all good wishes,

"Truly yours,
"FRANK L. PLATT."

Well, well, Mr. Platt, thousands of Poultrymen throughout this broad land agree with you, and will rejoice that you have the courage to let your honest convictions be known. You know and I know and every Poultryman in the land knows that legislation along the line of Rule 17 is needed and shall come, in fact, it must come. Something must be done to divorce soliciting advertising and judging at the same shows.

While Rule 17, as I so stated at Nashville, was a little severe, still it will boil down to such legislation as will satisfy the rank and file. You can only stem the tide of public sentiment so long, and the writer will be "Johnny on the spot" with the amendment, and will keep pegging away until the "powers that be" grant legislation along this line.

THIS MEANS YOU

We want every one of our subscribers and advertisers to read our stock add. in this issue. As we announced editorially in the last issue, we are going to sell several thousand shares of the Treasury stock of Poultry Fancier Publishing Co. at the par value of $1.00 per share, full-paid and non-assessable. Poultry Fancier Publishing Co. has been incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, and the money to be derived from the sale of this stock will be used to defray the expenses of our new equipment, which has just been installed, and not to promote or establish a business. That is already done.

We would like every one of our subscribers to take a few shares at least. If you can't take 25 or 50 or 100 shares, take 5 or 10. We want you with us. We are safe in saying that this stock will bear at least 6 per cent dividend, and we will try our level best to make it worth considerable more than par value by April 1st, the same as we have done in the past.

Be sure and read our stock advertisement in this issue.

THE ALLENTOWN SHOW.

One of the greatest poultry exhibitions ever held in the U. S. was that held in connection with the Great Allentown Fair. There were 302 exhibitors of Poultry and 58 exhibitors of Pigeons, but this does not tell the whole story. $1500.00 worth of entries had to be refused. W. Theo. Wittman is to be congratulated and has proven himself to be one of the greatest show managers of the day.

ADVANCE IN RATES.

There was nothing else for us to do but to advance the advertising rates in Poultry Fancier. As stated in our past issues, we were practically unable to meet the demand, and we were several thousand short on the September issue. And the thousands of subscriptions that are coming in from the Fairs and through the mails is certainly proof sufficient that the Fancier is the Journal that is meeting the demands of the rank and file.

The new rate went into effect September 21st, and all contracts now running will be carried through to completion at the rate contracted for. We are pleased to note the excellent results being obtained by our advertisers. A number of testimonial letters we publish in this issue. Our circulation is not farmed out or tilted out. For since December 1st, the time the present management took charge, 25,000 new subscribers were secured. We thank you one and all for the support given us in making this possible.

OVER 11,000 SUBSCRIBERS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Who would have thought that it would have been possible for any one Poultry Journal to secure over 11,000 subscribers in the State of Pennsylvania? And when we stop to consider that they were all secured in ten months, we cannot help but think that the Fancier with its policy, is meeting with the approval of the men who raise chickens. This greatest of all Poultry Journal circulations in the greatest buying state in the Union, means nothing less than remarkable. And considering the fact that we have no expirations before December issue it looks very much as if Poultry Fancier would cross the 15,000 mark in Pennsylvania before the end of the show season.

ATLANTIC CITY IN 1913.

It will not be many months until the members of the A. P. A. will be called upon to vote on the place of holding the next annual meeting, and we are inclined to think that the next meeting should go to Atlantic City, N. J. Denver had it in 1911, Nashville 1912, and it is no more than fair that Atlantic City should have it in 1913. We need not tell you what Atlantic City is, you all know it. It is the best place in all America to hold a convention, and we believe it will bring out a record breaking attendance. Just put Atlantic City down in your note book.

W. W. GALE KILLED.

W. W. Gale, New Haven, Conn., one of the foremost poultrymen as well as one of the best known, was killed on his way to the New York State Fair at Syracuse. In company with Mrs. Gale they intended making the trip in an automobile and were within sight of the fair grounds when in making a turn the machine turned turtle and Mr. Gale was instantly killed and Mrs. Gale seriously injured. Mr. and Mrs. Gale were considered the foremost breeders of R. C. Brown Leghorns in the country and were known to all the poultrymen in the eastern and central field. The death of Mr. Gale is a serious loss to the poultry industry, he was a real fancier and exemplified the true spirit of sportsmanship and his work in upbuilding the poultry business was one of his real pleasures and the name of W. W. Gale will linger forever in our memories. Gone but not forgotten.

THE ERIE (PA.) SHOW.

The second annual exhibition of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association will be held at Erie, Pa., December 30th, to Jan. 4th. This Association is one of the largest and most influential in the State of Pennsylvania and has done a power of good for the promotion of the poultry interests in that part of the State. Their last show was a great success and their coming show promises to be far superior to the first attempt. They have secured a much larger hall with better light and in fact a better building to hold their coming show.

The Erie Association pulls together just like a team of horses. There is no friction and they are doing hard and intelligent work for their coming show. The catalogue will soon be ready and all communications should be addressed to E. A. Foht, Secretary, 1204 W. 10th St., Erie, Pa.

Canada's Best S. C. & R. C. B. Minorcas

Have proven themselves America's Best which means the Best in the World

At the American Black Minorca Club Show at Indianapolis, Ind., Feb., 1911, they won the Directors' $50 cup for best collection. They again won the Directors' cup for best collection at the A. B. M. Club Show at Philadelphia, December, 1911. At same show my Rose Comb Black Minorcas won every 1st and 2nd prize. Winning the highest honors two years in succession at the greatest Minorca show on the continent entitles me to a rest from showing, and I will therefore not exhibit at all this season. In the twenty years I have been breeding Black Minorcas I never had as high quality in both old and young stock as I have this season. By not exhibiting I will be in a better position than ever to supply exhibition stock. Prices reasonable and quality guaranteed to suit or money cheerfully refunded. Please send for sale list and testimonials. Also completelist of prizes won at Guelph, Boston, New York, Buffalo, Toronto and London. Vice-Pres. Canadian Black Minorca Club, Life Member of A. P. ## Rheumatism

A home cure given by one who had it

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

Rose Comb Rhode Island Reds

The Laying Strain that Wins the Blue

My birds are a wonderful combination of utility and beauty. The most expert judges of the country pronounce our Reds the equal of any in the country in both surface and under color as well as practically ideal in shape. They are strong in eye, have splendid combs and great size. We are offering a limited number of both old and young stock for sale at prices that will please you. Here is your opportunity. We guarantee satisfaction. Address

MARYLAND STATE FAIR INC.

The Maryland State Fair to be held at Laurel, Maryland, October 28 to November 1, 1912, has an ideal location being about equal distance between Baltimore and Washington on the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. The buildings are all new and there is ample room to house all exhibits comfortably, particularly the poultry. Good cooping has been secured, Empire cooping will be used exclusively and the regular prize money is liberal besides a number of special cash prizes are offered by the Association. Messrs. George O. Brown of Baltimore, M. D.; F. G. Bean of Collegeville, Pa.; Chas. T. Cornman of Sellersville, Pa., and John D. Jaquins of New York, have been secured to place the awards in the Poultry Department, and judging will be done promptly. Mr. Calvin Hicks, the well known Superintendent of Poultry will look after the comforts of all exhibits of Poultry and assures the exhibitors that a square deal will be measured out to all. For further information address Mr. Calvin Hicks, care of Poultry Department, Laurel, Md., or the Secretary, Mrs. C. R. Henchmann, Laurel, Maryland.

KILL THE RATS.

One of the most serious problems that poultrymen have to solve is getting rid of the rats which causes so much destruction to the young stock, feed, etc. The rat problem has been solved by the Botanical Mfg. Co.,

255 S. 4th St., Philadelphia, Pa., who are manufacturing a remedy that will not only exterminate the rats, mice and in a safe and sane manner, but it also mummifies them, no matter where they are, they simply dry up and there is no smell.

Rat corn is a new and scientific discovery and without doubt the greatest rat exterminator in the world. Elsewhere in this issue will be seen the advertisement of the Botanical Manufacturing Co., and we recommend and suggest that all our readers who are bothered with rats around their place get in touch with this concern.

Columbian Wyandottes—Ckl. 1; pullet 1, 2; (3 birds entered, 3 placed).

As you see, we entered 127 and 113 of them were winners. Only 14 in this large number failed to get ribbons after travelling 1000 miles.

BE SURE to see our exhibit at MEMPHIS NEXT WEEK and see how reasonably you can buy a winner. We have 8000 other magnificent birds and are ready to sell the entire string in preference to shipping them home.

READY NOVEMBER FIRST.

The Premium List of the Great Chicago Coliseum Show will be ready for mailing November 1st. Entries close positively November 25th and this is one of the few shows that closes its entries on the date advertised and positively will not accept them twenty-four hours later.

Much of the success of this great exhibition is due to the down-to-the-minute rule they have adopted and the fact that these rules are lived up to the letter. As an illustration: Every premium list is mailed on the first day of November unless this date falls on a Sunday, in that event they are mailed the last day of October, and readers of this paper who have made request of the Secretary for list who fail to receive one by the fifth of November are requested to write again to the Secretary as the first copy has gone astray.

There are many special features added to this great show for 1912, features that should appeal to every fancier from Maine to California and the Gulf to the Lakes. The great sweepstake cash specials on many of the prominent breeds for best male and female should prove one of the most valuable prizes ever offered at any exhibition and do more to create an interest in these breeds than any special before offered.

The list of the judges includes thirteen of the best known men in the profession and every one is a head liner in the judging game and known from Maine to California.

The great Chicago dailies have at last wakened up to the importance of this show and are booming it this early in the game.

There will be hundreds of new exhibitors from the suburbs of Chicago, many of whom will make their first exhibit in 1912.

For full information in reference to this show, address the Secretary, Theo. Hewes, Indianapolis, Ind.

DAYTON (OHIO) SHOW.

The Gem City Fanciers Club of Dayton, Ohio, will hold their show December 9 to 14, 1912, at Memorial Hall. Judges Otto of Michigan, Ira C. Keller of Ohio and A. C. Smith of Waltham, Mass., will judge the birds at this show. Address all correspondence to B. F. Hewitt, 26 Ringgold St., Dayton, Ohio.

Poultry Diseases and Remedies

It is unquestionably true that a large number of failures in poultry enterprises are due directly to disease and that these diseases are, as a rule, not of a contagious nature, but rather the result of mismanagement, unskilled feeding and too little attention to general sanitation. Any system of feeding and care which does not keep the fowls active, bright-eyed, of keen appetite, sleek in appearance and of hard flesh is fundamentally wrong.

It is by careful housing, feeding and management that the diseases described in the following paragraphs may be prevented. One must recognize that disease is a sign that proper care and sanitation have not been practiced and must take immediate steps to rectify these conditions. The individual treatment of fowls is expensive and unsatisfactory, for after the fowl is cured it usually takes a little longer time to get her back into laying condition. The preventative method of treatment is the safest and most economical.

For this reason importance should be attached to sanitation. The pens should be thoroughly sprayed with a disinfecting solution or white-washed three or four times a year. It is advisable to spray the nest boxes and perches frequently during warm weather. As danger and death linger in damp and filthy accumulations, do not let the droppings become damp and filthy; clean the dropping boards every other day, or at least twice a week.

Sprinkle ashes or land plaster over the clean boards and again over the droppings between cleanings. This practice not only keeps the pen cleaner and sweeter, but makes it easier to clean the dropping board and greatly increases the value of the manure, because it absorbs the liquid and retains the nitrogen. A dust wallow should be provided in which the fowls can remove the scurf from their bodies and better fight the lice that suck and sap up their vitality. For disinfecting with whitewash the addition of one pint of crude carbolic acid to every two gallons of the mixture makes it much more effective in destroying both animal parasites and bacteria. For spraying the nest boxes and perches during the summer months, a solution of three parts kerosene and one part crude carbolic acid will give excellent results.

I will not describe many of the diseases to which poultry are susceptible just a few of the most common and which are the first to make their appearance.

Bumblefoot.

Bumblefoot is a term commonly applied to the condition when an injury has resulted in the formation of pus in the fleshy part of the foot. The injury may be received in various ways, such as falling or dropping from a high perch or tree onto a bare floor, or scratching among cinders or other sharp and hard substances. The formation of pus causes a swelling and wears away the tissue until it breaks forth either at the upper or lower surface. A scab forms over this opening, but the continued formation of pus repeatedly forces open the wound.

For treatment remove the scab or lance the swollen area and thoroughly clean and disinfect the cavity with a diluted solution of carbolic acid or hydrogen peroxide. Keep the sore well greased with carbolated vaseline until healed.

Blindness.

There are several causes for blindness: 1st, accident; 2d, the effects of other diseases; and 3d, a parasite. When accidental, the fowl is blinded in one eye only; there is no economic treatment. The inflamed part should be bathed in a weak solution of boracic acid and greased with vaseline to effect a speedy healing of the sore. The most common forms of blindness closely follow or accompany other diseases. When due to rousp a swelling among the tissues of the eye, caused by the hardening of the mucous secretion of the head and eyes, destroys the sight. When rousp has progressed to this stage there is little profit in treating it. There is also an eye worm or parasite which infects poultry, causing inflammation of the eye and occasional blindness. This parasite can be removed only by surgical means. The wound should be bathed with a weak solution of boracic acid and kept greased with vaseline until healed.

Black Head.

Black head is a disease common and fatal to young turkeys and quite serious among young chickens. It is usually recognized in the turkeys by the stunted growth and the emaciated condition of the body. Internal examination usually discloses large, discolored diseased areas on the liver and greatly enlarged caeca (blind intestines). If recognized in time and careful, sanitary conditions are provided in brooding and feeding, many of the affected chicks can be saved. Sour skimmed milk has been found quite effective in checking the disease. After one experience with the disease it will be readily conceded that the preventative method is most satisfactory.

Cholera.

It is a common error for the amateur poultryman to think that every disease among his fowls, which manifests itself by a looseness of the bowels, a yellowish discharge and a pale or yellow color about the face and head is cholera. As a matter of fact, this disease is common only in the warm climates and rare elsewhere. It is communicable and very destructive. Fowls often die within a few days after being exposed to the disease, even before they are suspected of being stricken. In other cases it takes on a chronic form. It requires a bacteriological examination definitely to recognize the disease. Scientists have failed to find a cure for it. Thorough disinfection of the entire plant and a rigid separation of exposed from the non-exposed flock should be practiced.

Diarrhoea.

Diarrhoea in some form accompanies and is a symptom of many common communicable diseases. Because of this fact the beginner interprets the diarrhoea as the indication of a dangerous disease. As a matter of fact, diarrhoea is more often the result of indigestion. It is caused by over-consumption of rich, highly stimulating foods, by tainted meats, by musty grains, green or milky grain in the stalk, irregular feeding of green foods in the winter, excessive amounts of green cut bone, or a stale or irregular supply of water. The best treatment for such diarrhoea is to remove the irritant or to shut in the fowls from it, giving them a regulating ration. They will soon readjust themselves.

GOLDEN WYANDOTTES

AND WHY I BREED THEM

By R. H. Shatzer.

Newville, Pa.

Member of the Golden Wyandotte Club of the World.

In the year 1909 when the chicken fever developed in me the same as it has in thousands of others I happened along a road one day and saw some chickens that I thought would suit my fancy, so I asked the owner what breed they were and he told me Golden Wyandottes. I purchased six hens and one cock from him for a pretty good price and took them home. I raised something like fifteen hens and how those twenty hens did shell out the eggs that winter and have every winter since. I never showed any birds until last fall when I showed at six shows and carried off the blue at all of them but one. I love the Golden and cannot help it. When I am among my flock I forget all my troubles and everything that may have occurred during the day. In dealing with the most of breeders of Golden I have found that they are all very anxious to see a man get started in this great breed. This beauty breed is coming to the front more and more every day and since the organization of our new club the Golden Wyandotte alley at the shows this season ought to have a larger and better string of birds than ever before. I will say I have tried lots of other breeds beside my Golden and both yards were fed the same, and got the same attention and when balancing up the books the Golden always came out ahead. I have set my seal upon the Golden and would say to the man who is thinking of starting in the chicken business, buy yourself a bunch of Golden, the best money can buy or if you cannot afford to buy the stock get a setting or two of eggs from some good reliable breeder and you will have a flock of chickens that you can be proud of and when your neighbors come to see you on Sunday or any other day you can show them a flock of chickens beautiful enough for any king to look upon. They cannot be beat in laying winter and summer and are quick to mature. I will close my article and give some one else a chance. Who's next?

The outlook for a most successful show at the State Armory in Geneva, N. Y., to be given by the Ontario Poultry Association, is very bright. Among the specials offered are a sweepstake prize of $50 in gold on poultry and a sweepstake prize of $25 in gold on pigeons. Write for premium list and particulars to H. W. Closs, Canandaigua, N. Y. Secretary.

BREEDERS' FUTURITY STAKE.

This new offering of the Scranton Poultry and Pet Stock Association is planned to provide a large and substantial cash sweepstake prize to be won by actual breeders. The small fancier with a few well kept birds of prize winning blood, has at least an equal chance with the larger breeder.

A—All 1912 birds are eligible for entry, provided the party making the nomination was the bona fide owner of the parent stock at the time the eggs were laid. Affidavits to this effect, as to the winners, will be required by the Association on payment of the prizes.

2—Classes are provided for both cockerels and pullets in the varieties named.

3—The nomination fee is $2; and must reach the Secretary on or before June 1st. The blanks are now ready.

4—Birds competing for this sweepstake must wear a sealed leg band provided by the Association, and are to be regularly entered in single classes in the usual manner for the coming show, January 13 to 18, 1913.

5—The following varieties are listed for this contest: Columbian, White and Silver Laced Wyandottes, Single Comb R. I. Reds, White and Black Orpingtons, Barred and White Plymouth Rocks, S. C. White Leghorns, R. C. Black Minorcas, Black Red Game Bantams, Black R. C. Bantams, Buff Cochin Bantams.

Nominations now practically pledged indicate that some of the stakes at least will reach the hundred dollar mark or more. Many will increase their chances by naming several birds each. Remember, the winner in each class takes the whole stake and in addition stands a good chance of winning one of the solid silver $100 cash or cup prizes, as well as the regular cash prizes and other specials.

Send to the Secretary for blanks. Oscar Payne, Secretary.

SCHENECTADY, (N. Y.) SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Schenectady, N. Y., Fanciers Association will be held in that city, January 6th to 11th, 1913, and the Association is working very hard to make their coming show the largest and best show in the State of New York, outside of New York City.

Their exhibition in 1912 was admittedly one of the finest arrays of Fancy Fowls that has ever been assembled outside of New York City and the show was managed in a "down to date way," premiums paid promptly and no dissatisfaction concerning the judging.

The Association is working very hard to make their coming show a howling success and if liberal prizes and "down to date management" and good publicity has anything to do with it, they will certainly meet with success.

The Schenectady Fanciers Association is worthy of the support of every fancier.

Watch Poultry Fancier for all news notes at Schenectady and vicinity and for premium list, etc., address Secretary Schenectady Fanciers' Association, Schenectady, N. Y.

A POULTRY SHORT COURSE AT THE STATE AGRICULTURAL FARM.

The second annual poultry short course of the New Jersey State Agricultural College at New Brunswick begins November 18, 1912. Twenty-two students were graduated last year as a result of the first year's work. The Poultry Short Course is outlined to cover a period of three months, during which time, instruction is given by means of lectures, laboratory exercises, inspection trips and demonstrations. The Poultry Course is designed to cover briefly, yet completely, the entire subject of Poultry Husbandry, the object being to fit students to better manage their own flocks or where they desire to take positions on poultry plants as managers or superintendents. The course is open to both ladies and gentlemen, and where possible, it is desired that those taking the work shall have had some previous experience in the handling and managing of at least a small flock of birds. The lecture subjects discussed are as follows: Type and breeds of poultry; poultry breeding, exhibition, scoring and judging; preparation and marketing of poultry products; location design and construction of buildings; Sanitation, parasites, diseases and enemies; incubation and brooding; poultry farm management; composition of animal feeds; principles and practices of poultry feeding; turkeys, ducks, geese and pigeons; practical pomology; insects and farm crops. The above outlined lecture subjects are grouped so that from six to twelve lectures are devoted to each series.

Laboratory exercises occupy the afternoon periods. During the course each student has the entire charge of an incubator and brooder, also the actual care and management of a pen of laying birds, keeping all records and doing the entire work personally. One afternoon Laboratory period throughout the course is devoted to the design and construction of poultry houses, the work includes the making of plans, tracings and blue prints, as well as the actual construction of same by the students. In addition to this the following subjects are covered in the Laboratory work.

Dissection and a study of anatomy and physiology.

Practical work in judging and the running of a poultry show.

Fitting poultry for exhibition.
Cooping and exhibition.
Judging and managing.
Mating up breeding fowls.
Killing, picking, shaping and packing.
Judging dressed poultry.
Drawing, trussing, etc.
Grading and packing and cleaning eggs for market.

Making and applying a lice powder and disinfectants.

Laying out poultry farms and estimating expenditures and capacity.

Caponizing.
Firing heating plants.
Embryology.

The lectures given by the regular poultry staff are supplemented by special lectures from noted subjects upon which they represent the highest authority. Among these outside lecturers for the coming season are: Prof. Jas. E. Rice, of Cornell University; Prof. Kirkpatrick, of Storrs, Conn.; Mr. John H. Robinson, Editor of Farm Poultry; Mr. J. Harry Woolsieffer, of Vineland, N. J.; Chas. D. Cleveland, President of the State Branch of the American Poultry Association, and Mr. F. Warren Sumner, of Elizabeth, N. J. In addition to these, other local poultrymen will address the students.

During the course inspection trips are made to six or seven of the larger poultry plants in the State, during which time the students score the plant with the use of the score card and study the methods and systems in use.

The Poultry Department is well equipped for the work in hand, the equipment including among other things, a large lecture and laboratory building, adequate rooms for killing, fattening and dressing poultry, large incubator cellar and brooder houses as well as three breeds of ducks. The students taking this work have the opportunity of keeping in touch with the detailed scientific experiments which are being conducted by the Experiment Station, and also have the opportunity of keeping in touch with some of the larger poultry shows in the vicinity during the winter. The students organize and run a one week poultry show during the short course.

Tuition is free to residents of New Jersey; non-residents pay a tuition of $25.00 on entering. There is a registration fee for all of $5.00. The largest expense of the course is the cost of living in New Brunswick, and the cost of travel to and from the city. Comfortable rooms, with table board, can be obtained within ten to fifteen minutes walk of the main agricultural building for from $5.00 to $6.00. Student trips to inspect nearby farms may cost $5.00 to $6.00 for the term. The cost of books need not be more than $8.00, but it would be well, if possible, to allow a larger sum for them, as many of them not required would be useful for students, and should be a part of their home libraries. The total expense of the course is about $100.00. The required entrance fee is to be paid when the application is accepted or may be sent with the application, as the numbers are to be limited because of lack of room.

Application for Admission.—There are no entrance examinations for admission to the short courses. The students should, however, have a good common school education, in order to make the best use of the instruction given. The course is open to persons of sixteen years of age and upwards. Information and circular regarding this course can be had by writing to the Principal of Short Courses, College Farm, New Brunswick, N. J.

Pottstown Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association.

Arnold's "Stay White" Orpingtons, Aug. Arnold, Dillsburg, Penna., was one of the first, if not the first Breeder of White Orpingtons who made the claim of breeding Stay White males in the White Orpingtons. He has for three years, made a specialty of breeding out the objectionable feature of brassiness in males and will have many cockerels for sale this fall. They have been bred "Stay White" for many generations back.

These males are valuable as breeders and will be sold at prices within the reach of all. See Mr. Arnold's ad in this issue and write him at once.

The Beaver Valley Poultry Association, of Beaver, Pa., will hold their fifth annual show at the Junction Park pavilion, December 11, 12, 13, 14, 1912. This association has gained an enviable reputation with the exhibitors and the coming exhibition promises to be bigger and better than ever. The entry fee is reasonable and the premiums paid are larger than most Associations pay. The specials given here are above the ordinary.

One of the features at this show which is especially pleasing to the exhibitors is that all premiums and specials are paid on or before the last day.

A. F. Kummer and R. A. Poole, two judges of National reputation, have been secured to place the awards and it is expected they will be up by noon of the second day. The exhibition hall is remarked by all visitors to be one of the best in the country, having a very large floor space and is enclosed with glass on all four sides. It usually has a large attendance and a prize won here is worth something. Any person wishing further information will promptly receive same by addressing the secretary, J. Mays Ecoff, Beaver, Pa.

KEYSER, W. VA., SHOW.

The third annual exhibition of the Potomac Valley Poultry Association will be held at Keyser, W. Va., November 26, 27, 28, 29, 1912. Jacob Eberly Judge.

35 Silver Cups, special Prize Ribbons will be awarded.

This will be the Quality show of West Virginia.

Yours truly,
C. L. EVERHART,
Secretary.

LATROBE, PENNA. PY. SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Latrobe Poultry Association will be held in that place, December 16th to 21st. The indications are that the coming show will be one of the very best held in Western Pennsylvania.

Latrobe is a great Poultry center and the Fanciers there are doing some hard and intelligent work to make their coming exhibition equal to the best. It is well for all Poultrymen to bear in mind the dates of the Latrobe show, and write to H. W. Lawson, for full particulars, Latrobe, Penna.

"THE QUALITY SHOW OF OHIO."

The Youngstown Fanciers Club will hold its third annual poultry show December 9-14, 1912. Judges, W. Theo. Wittman, D. D. Whittaker and J. Allen Frederick have been engaged to place the awards by the comparison system. Instead of silver cups and various other wares, cash premiums will be liberally offered on all varieties. The Youngstown boys have a reputation of doing business in a square and up-to-date style and will be pleased to place your name on their mailing list if your address is sent to the Secretary, Geo. D. Williams, 175 Chicago Ave., Youngstown, O.

The Ohio State Branch of the American Rose-Comb Brown Leghorn Club will hold their annual meeting Dec. 9-14, 1912, in connection with the Youngstown show. This is an interesting and wide-awake club and all breeders of the brown beauties should join. The dues are $1 per year. For particulars write the Secy.-Treas. Geo. D. Williams, Youngstown, O., or Mrs. W. W. Gale, National Secy.-Treas., New Haven, Conn.

The Pennsylvania State Fancier's Association of Altoona, Pa., have decided as an inducement to Specialty Clubs, both Poultry and Pigeon, to make the following offer: Any Specialty Club showing 100 birds, 25 DOLLARS IN GOLD, and for 200 birds 50 DOLLARS IN GOLD, the Specialty Club to place as they please. They would like if all Specialty Clubs desiring to place their club ribbons at their show would please send their names to the Secretary, H. S. Wertzberger, 121 Washington Ave., Altoona, Pa., as they are now working on their Premium Lists, which will be full of valuable prizes. They pay all premiums during the show. H. S. Wertzberger, Secretary.

MANSFIELD (OHIO) SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Ohio State Branch of the A. P. A. will be held in connection with the big Mansfield Show, December 2nd, to 7th, and the exhibition will be under the management of the Mansfield Association. The Winter meeting of the Ohio Branch will also be held during the week of the show. Mansfield is one of the best shows in the Buckeye State and the indications point very strongly that the coming show is going to be a record breaker.

The following judges have been selected: S. B. Lane, L. A. Stream, Joe Coleman, J. A. Mackintosh. Address all communications to F. A. Walter, Secretary Mansfield, Ohio.

EASTON (PA.) SHOW.

The sixth annual exhibition of the Easton Poultry Association, Incorporated, will be held at Easton, Pa., during the week of January 6, 1912. The Judges this year will be J. D. Koons, J. T. Baldwin and J. W. Bruchart, all men of reputation and ability, insuring every exhibitor the fairest kind of treatment.

Each year we have been holding larger shows, and, while it is a little early in the season to make predictions, all indications point to a larger show than ever this year.

Easton does things just a little different from most Associations in that we believe that cash counts more than cups, and while our premium list does not show many cups offered it does show plenty of good cash.

Everything offered at our show is given outright—no strings to anything, large or small.

Send for a premium list which will tell more about the good things offered at Easton, Pa.

MOHNTON (PA.) SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Mohnton Poultry and Pigeon Association will be held in Mohnton, Pa., November 27 to 30, 1912. This is the eighth annual show, which is promising to be the largest yet held at Mohnton. With their large hall they will be in a position to coop singly and single tiers the entire show. There is offered a very attractive premium list with liberal specials. The Barred Rock Club will meet during the show and will make a large exhibition. Geo. O. Brown and P. A. Scheid will place the awards.

THREE SHOWS AT PITTSBURGH.

The Greater Pittsburgh Poultry Show Association will hold its First Annual Show November 25th to 30th, 1912 at the South Side Market Hall, Pittsburgh, Pa. For premium list write A. J. Henning, Secretary, 1812 Carson St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

UNION CITY (PA.) SHOW.

The Union City Poultry and Pet Stock Association will hold their second annual show the first week of December, 1912. J. W. Picknel, the veteran judge of Buffalo, N. Y., will judge the show. Liberal premiums will be offered.

The Association is working hard to make the coming show a great success and from present indications their efforts will be well rewarded. Address all communications to S. E. Brooks, Union City, Penna.

Chestnut Hill Barred Rocks

Never Before Have Offered Such Quality

at such surprisingly low prices and we know that some day you are going to breed Chestnut Hill Barred Rocks because this strain of birds represents perfection as near as it has yet been obtained and we know that no where else can you get such quality at the prices asked.

We Have Furnished Winners

for many of last season's shows and we make the statement that our 1912 matings produced the best Barred Rocks ever bred on Chestnut Hill Farm. We also are offering Several Hundred Grand Breeders at prices that will surprise you. If you want winners, layers and payers, write

CHESTNUT HILL POULTRY FARM

Chas. M. Kerr, Mgr.,

Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa.

Want This $100.00?

Rockland Farm will give to each of its two winning customers under the following conditions a prize of $50.00 cash.

To the customer winning the greatest number of first prizes with a cockerel purchased from Rockland Farm.

To the customer winning the greatest number of first prizes with a pullet purchased from Rockland Farm.

These birds to be purchased and exhibited between October 1, 1912 and October 1, 1913. The Poultry Fancier to hold the money until Oct. 1st, 1913 when the winning owners or owner will be decided upon by three men to be selected by the Poultry Fancier. The owner of a bird competing for these prizes should promptly report to the Fancier each winning made by his bird, and will be required to display on the bird's coop in the show rooms a card stating that the bird was purchased from Rockland Farm, Benson, Md.

The customer who purchases a $5 bird will have an equal chance with the one who purchases a $75 bird by entering in the smaller shows. This is a splendid opportunity to get an excellent breeder and win a good prize also. We have more of them and better White Rocks this season than ever before.

ROCKLAND FARM, D. Lee, Prop., Box 1, Benson, Md.

VICTORY UNEQUALLED

has been the record of the MONMOUTH STRAIN of S. C. BUFF and WHITE LEGHORNS in the hands of our customers at the FALL SHOWS. The winning of FIRST PEN, 1st and 5th cockerel and 2nd pullet by one of our patrons was the sensation of the GREAT ALLENTOWN SHOW. The quality of our Buffs and Whites is the talk of expert fanciers. We will not exhibit at MADISON SQUARE GARDEN or at any Eastern Show this season, so we are in position to supply you with winners both in old and young stock. You cannot afford to let this opportunity pass. Write us your wants immediately. A grand lot of utility pullets, cockerels, yearling hens and cock birds in both varieties ready for shipment.

NOTE—Send 25 cents for a reproduction in colors of Schillings wonderful oil painting of the greatest trio of S. C. Buff Leghorns ever bred. A masterpiece worth having.

Standard Wyandottes in Colors and How to Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

REACHES THE CLIMAX FOR THOSE INTERESTED IN THIS VARIETY. WHEN YOU SEE IT YOU WILL ACKNOWLEDGE THAT IT IS THE BEST AND WORTH MANY TIMES THE PRICE TO YOU.

This book teaches you How to Score and Judge the greatest of all the American varieties. No other work published will give the information as it is given by Theo. Hewes in his articles, which are fully illustrated by over one hundred pictures, together with the chart system, of which he is the originator, and which is copyrighted by him. Not only do full page half-tone plates of some of the finest living specimens of these breeds appear in black and white, but the richest and grandest work ever done in oil by an artist is given by I. W. Burgess in a series of twelve pictures representing male and female, accompanied by feathers from the different sections of the birds in colors.

Size of book 11½x8½ inches. Contains over 70 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE, $1.00

These pictures are 4½x7 inches in size, and cost over $1,000 for the copper plates alone, to say nothing of the artist's labor and general cost of production. In fact no expense has been spared to make it by far the most valuable work on Wyandottes ever printed in America or elsewhere you cannot duplicate it at any price, but you can have one by return mail for $1.00, and if you are not satisfied we will refund your money. We do as we say we will, now and always. Our past dealings with the public will prove this.

Remit by Express, P. O. Order or Check as this is the safest way. Book will be sent immediately upon receipt of order.

SPECIAL OFFER

RHODE ISLAND REDS

How to Breed and Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

Is the Best and Most Complete Treatise Ever Published on this Popular Breed

There are but few breeds so widely advertised to-day as the Rhode Island Reds and no breed in which there is such a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes perfection.

"RHODE ISLAND REDS; HOW TO BREED AND JUDGE THEM"

is better than the "STANDARD OF PERFECTION"

because it goes into detail and describes every section, with numerous illustrations, showing ideal and defective shape and color, thus making scoring so simple that any one can understand. Some sections have four or five illustrations showing the several defects that may be found in them, with the proper discount for the same as applied by our leading Judges.

Size of Book 11½x8½ inches. Contains over 50 pages, including cover which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00

In addition to this most complete series of articles on scoring, there are numerous articles from America's foremost Red breeders on every phase of Red Breeding. This book tells you just what you want to know. It tells you how to mate your pens; how to grow your chicks; how to select your show birds; in fact, it tells you how to grow, exhibit and make money out of Reds.

This book is sold on approval. The price is $1.00. If you are not satisfied with your bargain, send us back the book and we will refund your money.

SPECIAL OFFER

A copy of this great book and a year's subscription to this Poultry Journal, both for $1.25. DO IT NOW and be up-to-date.

Winter Eggs and How to Get Them

It is an old but true saying, "The hen that lays is the hen that pays." Chapter 15 in "Down-to-date poultry knowledge" dealing intelligently on this important subject is worth 100 times the price of the book. See adv. elsewhere in this issue.

"The Book of the Hamburgs"

Is a complete and comprehensive illustrated standard of all varieties of the Hamburg fowl,

Written by THEO. HEWES

The book is handsomely and profusely illus-trated by one of America's best poultry artists. Contains over fifty drawings, showing ideality and imperfections. Every section fully illus-trated and described.

Correct Methods of Scoring and Judging

Given in language that can be understood by all. It is a useful and handy reference book for breeders of all varieties of fowls and should have a place in the library of every poultry fan-cier in America.

By a careful study of the book one will be enabled to mate their fowls for best results. It teaches how to select the best breeders and ex-hibition specimens and tells how to show them to the best advantage. This valuable book contains forty-eight pages and cover, is printed on best quality of book paper, and is carefully indexed. Price postpaid, 60 cents.

Poultry Fancier, Sellersville, Pa.

Sick Chickens

Are your chickens sick? Do you know what to do for them? Do you want to keep them from getting sick?

Chapter 18 in "Down-to-date poultry knowledge" is the most complete treatise on the market. See "Down-to-date" adv. in this issue.

Ads will be inserted in this department under the following conditions. The size shall be uniform each ad occupying one inch single column, each advertiser using same space each month. Ads may be changed every three months if desired. The cost is $22 per year, $12 per six months, $6.00 for three months. Payment strictly in advance—no exceptions to this rule. The price is made exceptionally low on this account.

Attention Classified Advertisers !!

A 30-Word Class Add

3 Mo. for $3.00      6 Mo. for $4.50

Let us reason together:

Poultry Fancier is published in the interests of the men who raise the high grade standard bred birds, which is the foundation of all pleasure and profit in Poultry raising.

It is read by people who are willing to pay the price of the real fanciers product and skill. It is read by the people whose ideas of Beauty are not alone based upon pounds of flesh, and dozens of eggs.

A circulation that will not pay the price of a setting of eggs, or a good bird is worthless to you. You are spending dollars in trying to hit a mark beyond your range.

But how many are paying for this kind of a circulation? Is it any wonder they say advertising doesn't pay? Who is to blame? The circulation of the Poultry Fancier represents the cream, and we sell it to you without buying so much milk, (by the milk I mean circulation that will not pay the price.)

It's the shot that hits the mark that wins the battle, and there is a buyer for every good bird that's raised, and for every egg that's laid.

The circulation of the Fancier is the demand. Can you furnish the supply? During the next three months, our thousands of readers will spend mans thousands of dollars for stock and eggs, and for the price of a setting of eggs, we will insert your Add, 30 words, three times for $2.50.

Come reason together, and remember, every one of Poultry Fanciers subscribers is interested in Poultry, and after all (in advertising). It is the shots that hit the mark that wins the battle.

A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent on Trial to Prove It

Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer.

After Thirty Year's Experience I Have Produced an Appliance for Men, Women and Children That Actually Cures Rupture.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon to-day and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief where all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not. Mr. C. F. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Dear Sir:—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and it is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on. It just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot no matter what position it was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers, I am

Yours very sincerely,

JAMES A. BRITTON.

80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Recommended from Texas Farmer

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co., Marshall, Mich.

Gentlemen:—I feel it my duty to let you, and also all people afflicted as I was, know what your Appliance has done for me. I have been ruptured for many years and have worn many different trusses, but never got any relief until I got your appliance. I put it on last November, but had very little faith in it, but must say I am now cured. I have laid it away—have had it off for two weeks and doing all kinds of farm work with ease. While I was wearing it, I had lagrippe and coughed a great deal but it held all right. Words cannot express my gratitude towards you and your Appliance. Will recommend it to all ruptured people.

Very sincerely,

J. E. LONG.

Others Failed but the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him three months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you.

Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON.

No 717 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Cured at the Age of 76

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which, considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,

Jamestown, N. C. SAM. A. HOOVER.
21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa.
Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

The above is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who has been curing others for over 30 years. If ruptured, write him to-day.

Child Cured in Four Months

Gentlemen:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.

Yours very truly,

ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Send for Brooks' Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutey the only Appliance of the kind on the market to-day, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or un-gainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positive-ly cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon to-day.

OWEN FARMS

THE AUTHORITY

On White Rocks, White Wyandottes, White Orpingtons, Buff Orpingtons, Black Orpingtons, Barred Rocks, Single and Rose Comb Reds.

When you consider the purchase of anything, and especially when that thing is of considerable importance, the first thing you do is to consider of whom you will make the purchase. Generally speaking you want some information concerning the article to be purchased and it is important that the information you get concerning it be derived from a house that has the reputation of being an authority on the subject. You want to feel that there is no one thing that can be told you, either good or bad, about the article that the house selected is not able to tell you. In other words, in the purchase of everything of importance, the one desirable quality in the house approached is that they shall be an authority on the subject. Now Owen Farms claims to be the authority on the eight breeds which they offer and we want to tell you plainly some of the reasons that entitle them to that position.

In the poultry world, as every one knows, there is an open, plain method of demonstrating a particular farm's ability to breed the best specimens known to the United States, and that is in the show room. Owen Farms has shown these eight varieties at the largest and most difficult shows held in our country and uniformly they have been the very largest winners wherever they have competed. They have furnished innumerable birds from Maine to California, from Minnesota to Texas to their customers and these birds have been shown in the hottest competition, where they have won handsomely.

Mr. Maurice F. Delano, who has judged at New York, World's Fair, St. Louis, Boston, and in fact nearly all of the large shows of the country, stands without a peer as a judge of the breeds which we offer. Frank H. Davey, another licensed American Poultry Association judge and looked upon by the whole United States as one of the most able men in this direction, also is a member of our organization. If the question is asked Owen Farms how good a bird it takes to win a particular show I say without any hesitation and emphatically that there is no organization in the world that can be so sure of giving the right answer. Whatever the information desired may be in regard to the poultry business you cannot possibly get a more prompt, specific and authoritative answer to your letter asking for it than you can from Owen Farms.

We breed thousands of birds annually from the very best parent stock that this country knows and we grow them successfully year after year. Above and beyond everything else we have a conscience that is alive, healthy and wide awake, which does not permit us in any possible case to charge one dollar more for a bird than we are positive is the actual value.

NOT A HIGH PRICED FARM.

Our Mr. Delano has just returned from a trip to the Nashville and Memphis Shows. We took there 127 birds which we entered. Of these 127 birds at Nashville 113 of them were placed under ribbons. Only 14 out of the 127, after traveling 1000 miles, failed to get the eye of the judge. At Memphis 94 of our birds were declared winners in spite of the fact that we had sold and delivered a large number of birds from the string which went on from Nashville to Memphis. I believe this is the most extraordinary winning that has ever been made in the history of the United States. The winnings were made throughout our entire range of varieties and they were uniformly successful. I asked Mr. Delano when he arrived home to give me as accurately as he could what he found to be the impression concerning Owen Farms. I am pleased to state that he found every one enthusiastic about the wonderful winnings that were made. They approved uniformly our methods and one and all who had had experience with us said they received large value for the money, but he added that generally the opinion among the smaller breeders is that Owen Farms' prices are very high and that it is useless for them to come to Owen Farms for their breeding stock and their show birds because they cannot afford the price. Nothing could be a greater mistake than this expression of feeling. I am positive that at $10.00, $15.00 or $25.00 no farm in the United States is giving as much value in birds so uniform in quality, color and detail as we are, and I want to say urgently that the man or woman who sends an order to Owen Farms saying to send the best cockerel of a particular breed, or the best pullet, for $10.00, $15.00 or $25.00, with no other specification and no other requirement, simply adding to the letter that it is understood that this bird is to be sent on approval and subject to the satisfaction of the purchaser, will get a greater bargain than they can possibly secure from any other source.

EXHIBITION BIRDS.

This is the period of the great shows throughout the United States. Some say the birds raised this year are fewer in number; that they were later in hatching and that the difficulty in putting grand good birds into the show room was never so great as now. Our experience is just the reverse. We never raised so many; we never had them so good and we never had them so early. We can furnish you birds for exhibition that will do what we say they will. Get in touch with us early and make your arrangements, for we sell only to one person in a class for any show and when we have booked we cannot sell to the second individual.

WHO TAKES THE CHANCE.

Let us assume that you wish to purchase a White Rock cockerel to win Allentown, Pa. You make the inquiry of half a dozen different people as to what their charge would be for the bird good enough to win that show. You get half a dozen replies and they vary in the amount charged from $15.00 to $75.00. Now if you purchase the $15.00 bird from one of the six I want to impress upon you that you take the chance of his winning. If you purchase the $25.00 bird of another you still take the chance on his winning. If you purchase a $50.00 bird you still take the chance of that bird's winning. The reason is because there is likely to be other birds of that value and so good that they may beat this other bird. We tell you that that is so. The other farm does not tell you. If you wrote us we should give you a price of $75.00 for a guaranteed winner of the Allentown Show and we would give you a bird of the full value and a bird that would stand out in front of others and win. Others disappoint you; we do not. Why? Because we are an authority on the quality necessary to win a particular show and we know. In each case where we guarantee a winner we give you a price and we take the chance. Do you appreciate how eminently fair this is? Do you understand that we set ourselves up as an authority and that if we make a mistake and fail it is purely up to us and that we ought to suffer accordingly? Which we are always prepared to do. In every case of a bird sold for exhibition either you, the purchaser, or the seller must take a chance. How will you have it? If you want us to take it write us fully what you wish to do; give as full and fair statement of the case as possible and receive our proposition concerning it.

OUR WINNINGS.

Everybody now must be familiar with our New York winnings last year. In another column separate from this advertisement (on page 857 of this journal) you will find Owen Farms winnings at the Nashville Fair Sept. 16th to 21st and at the Memphis Fair Sept. 23rd to 28th. Kindly look these over carefully and see what it means to you as to what we can do. We are showing at Atlanta, Georgia, Oct. 27th to Nov. 2nd, and at Augusta, Georgia, Nov. 4th to 9th. Note what we do there.

EGGS FOR HATCHING.

I received last evening a check from one of our old customers, who saw Mr. Delano at Memphis, for eggs for hatching this next season. He desired to have eggs from a pen headed by our First New York Cockerel in White Orpingtons last year. He was told by Mr. Delano that this year we should change our system of selling eggs and sell from individual and particular pens. This customer was certainly an early bird and he will secure the goods. We shall undoubtedly have our pens arranged earlier this year than ever before and while I do not expect to have our mating list mailed before January 1st it will be mailed on that date if it is possible for us to do it. We certainly later shall have some very pleasant things to say about eggs for hatching.

LOW PRICED BIRDS.

This is the season when we have $5.00, $7.50 and $10.00 cockerels, and a few females at $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00 each, that are extraordinary value.

Some Things Needed in the Show Room

By E. M. Long, Osceola, Indiana.

As the show season approaches, our thoughts drift back to the seasons of poultry exhibitions gone by,—we remember where we won, where we got fair treatment, and where our birds were properly handled—we also remember where we lost, perhaps fairly and perhaps unfairly, where some of our best stock was ruined by inefficient methods, and where no one was willing to take the responsibility.

It is a fitting time, it seems to me, to bring before the public and before the different show managements some things that are needed, and I speak as one who views the matter in an impartial way, having been an exhibitor as well as an officer of Poultry Associations.

First, we need a competent Superintendent with a number of efficient helpers. He should be on the job early and see that the coops are up and ready and that the birds are taken care of promptly on receipt. He should personally know that every bird is properly and carefully handled and that the attendants give sufficient feed and water but that they do not overfeed, one of the most common faults of smaller shows. The birds should be liberally fed up to time of weighing and afterwards sparingly fed, as a bird that is full standard weight at time of cooping for shipment is bound to lose some in weight. The weighing committee should be on the job early and not wait until the birds have been cooped two or three days. After the birds have been transferred to the shipping coops, and liberally fed they should be weighed at once and if possible in the presence of the owner. There is room for crooked work here in the weighing and every man should have all that is coming to him.

The judge should be on the job as soon as the show begins or as soon as a class is ready to be judged. It would be a wonderful improvement if the judges would furnish their own clerks.

The judge and his clerk should complete, add and sign score cards before they leave their hands. I do not say that there is crooked work by the Secretary after the judges have turned over the score cards to them but there is plenty of room for it and the possibility should be removed. Occasionally the Secretary handles the score cards and adds them up and no one else has anything to do with them. How easy for him, if he is in competition with other exhibitors to increase the cuts on the cards of his competitors, thus putting them out of the running. If the cards are completed by the judge and his clerk, and it is necessary that a clerk be furnished either by the judge or the Association, it places all competitors on a fair and equal basis, and if the judge is perfectly square, as I believe most judges are, there is little room for dissatisfaction.

The work of the judge should be completed not later than the third day of the show and the second day if possible. Nearly every person who pays his admission fee is anxious to see the winner, the first, second and third and they want to know who wins. It is unfair to the exhibitor as well as the public to delay the hanging of the ribbons until the last or the next to the last day of the show.

After the awards are made and the ribbons ready to hang on the coops of the winning birds, the judge should take particular pains to place the ribbons on the proper coops, either in person or under his personal supervision. Then he should stick around a day or so and tell the people why he disqualified this bird or why he cut this one two points on comb or why this bird was cut one and one-half on hackle, etc., etc. If some judges had to explain why they made certain cuts, they would be more careful in scoring the birds. I have seen good judging one year by certain poultry judges and the next season it was simply rotten and usually the second season there were more birds on hand to pass on, and therefore less time to do the work.

In the closing hours of the show, even the best of Superintendents and attendants are apt to get careless and fail to complete their previous good record. After the stock has been cooped for a week in a warm room, much warmer than they are used to, they get a little off condition and if not given ample protection from the elements when moved from the show room to their usual quarters, they are apt to contract colds, bronchitis and pneumonia. Here is where the show management should see that no fault of theirs may be the cause. Coops should be carefully nailed up and openings covered with muslin to keep out the drafts. They should see that the transportation companies handle the birds with promptness and care.

Now the time arrives to award the special prizes and to pay the cash prizes. Extra care should be taken that the right man gets the specials or cups and the checks covering the cash prizes should be in the hands of the winners or mailed to them before the show closes.

This is the kind of treatment that pleases the exhibitors. If they get a fair deal, proper treatment, and if their birds have the proper care and come home in good condition—if their winnings are promptly paid and the specials and prizes due them properly awarded—there is nothing left to be desired. The exhibitor will be with the show next year stronger than ever. The officers of the Association will receive the praise due them instead of censure which is more the rule than the exception and not always undeserved.

BY THE WAY

By H. S. Babcock

ANY poultrymen have a way of guessing at the weight of their fowls instead of knowing by weighing them. The right way is to weigh.

How many actually know what their chickens are worth per pound live weight? And yet it is not difficult to learn from the scales—not the scales on the legs, but the legs on a good pair of scales, platform or other.

Here is a plain illustration of how to do it. Not long ago I killed a late hatched and so somewhat small White Cornish cockerel. The bird was not fat, only in good growing condition, and so shows a somewhat larger percentage of shrinkage through dressing than one expects from this admirable variety of table fowls. With his crop entirely empty this cockerel weighed alive exactly  $5\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.; bled, picked, with head on, he weighed 4 lbs. 14 ozs., a shrinkage of 10 ounces or 11 4-11 per cent.; with head, entrails and contents of gizzard removed, he weighed 4 lbs. 6 ozs., a total shrinkage of 1 lb. 2 ozs., or 20 5-11 per cent.

In some markets dressed poultry is sold undrawn. Supposing that to be the case and the market price for undrawn poultry to be 25 cents per pound, what would this cockerel have been worth per pound live weight, not counting the expense of dressing him? He would have been worth 227-44 cents per pound. If on the other hand the market demanded drawn poultry and the price per pound for such was 25 cents, the cockerel would have been worth 1934-44 cents per pound, live weight, omitting the cost of dressing. Or we might express the same facts in round numbers by saying that in the supposed case of 25 cents per pound for undrawn poultry there would have been a shrinkage of about three cents per pound, or for drawn poultry a shrinkage of about five cents per pound. These figures would vary somewhat ac-ording to the breed of fowls and even now according to the condition in which the fowls were at the time they were killed. If well fattened, the shrinkage would be considerably less than this particular cockerel showed, and, if very thin, it would be considerably more.

A number of years ago I killed and dressed chickens of a number of breeds, including among them specimens of Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Cornish. I haven't their figures at hand, but I went into the matter more minutely than in the illustration above given. I ascertained the loss in weight from bleeding, from removing feathers, from taking out the entrails, and the like. The result showed that the Cornish fowls shrank the least in weight of any of the breeds killed, and that the Rhode Island Reds and the Plymouth Rocks were close together, the advantage, if any, being with the Reds, but they were so nearly alike that it would be no material error to say the percentage of loss in dressing of these two breeds was the same. Such experiments take but little time and can be conducted by any one, but they, nevertheless, give us exact knowledge in the place of guess work. In determining the relative value of different breeds for dressed poultry in this way one ought to be careful to have the chickens as nearly alike in fatness as possible, otherwise the results may be misleading.

While the experiments which I have conducted have been confined largely to chickens, they ought to include adult fowls also. Reasoning a priori, we should expect the shrinkage in adult fowls to show a smaller percentage than in chickens for several seasons. The adults will take on fat more readily than a growing chicken, and the fatter the fowls are the less per cent of loss from dressing. Adult fowls, too, have larger and more fully developed muscles and seem to be meatier, in proportion to the offal, than are chickens. Yet to know this, and to know the relative percentage of shrinkage of adults and chickens, one needs to weigh both carefully. And, in the end, one possibly may find the difference less than he reasonably expected. The facts are worth knowing.

Many small breeders probably do, as I used to do when I was young in poultry breeding, sell off to men who gather up fowls and dress them for market, all the surplus old fowls I had, which I didn't think worth using again in my breeding yards and which I thought were not good enough for others to so use. I remember that, in those early days, I used to get nine cents a pound live weight, according to the buyer's scales, which, at their price of dressed poultry, allowed these gatherers a pretty wide margin. It was a wasteful and extravagant method of disposing of the fowls, but as I had not learned what percentage of shrinkage to expect, I didn't know the real value of the property I was selling. And strange to say, if others knew this, they kept their information to themselves, for they never made it public in the poultry press. But at last I "got wise" to the fact that I was throwing away a portion of my profit, and I determined to know just how much. I then conducted a good many experiments the results of some of which I made public, and thus, so far as I know, became a pioneer in imparting this particular kind of poultry information. And what I did, because I found it of value, I advise others to do, weigh your fowls alive and dressed and know what they are worth. Then, if you wish to sell them to the "hen-cart man" for much less than their value, you will do so with your eyes open; you cannot say "I did it in ignorance."

The old Greeks used to have a wise saying, "Know thyself." We may, for our own purposes, modify this to "Know, thyself, what thou art doing." And so modified it applies to all kinds of business, including the poultry industry in all its branches. "Knowledge is power" and one cannot expect to win any great success as a poultryman without having the power which comes from competent knowledge of poultry, and especially from the knowledge that relates to the particular purpose the poultryman possesses. To breed good fowls, to win prizes at exhibitions, to make the fowls pay the largest profits, one needs to know what he desires to do. Even this humble bit of poultry knowledge, the relative weight of a fowl alive and dressed, is worth having.

The U. S. Census certainly cannot be accused of exaggerating the merits of the domestic fowl. It credits Rhode Island with 602,335 hens, which laid 32,728,972 eggs in a year, of the value of $848,527. Rhode Island has a territory of 1250 square miles, and has, therefore, about 482 hens to the square mile, or just about three-fourths of one hen to the acre. That doesn't savor of overcrowding even the least bit, though it has been said that the dogs are so numerous that they wag their tails perpendicularly instead of horizontally. Nor does the product per hen indicate that the biddies are overworked: 54 1-3 eggs per hen each year indicates that a good deal must be done before the farm hen rivals the 200 egg hen, we hear so much about. The average price per dozen eggs appears to have been about 29 1-3 cents. But as poor as the showing, the Rhode Island hen is not at the bottom of the list. The Delaware hens are credited with only about 34 eggs per year on an average, and those of the District of Columbia with an average of about 40 eggs. But in this last case the smallness of the output in eggs may perhaps be more than balanced by the great output in legislation at the National Capitol. Does anyone believe that such figures represent adequately or accurately the facts? If upon such a basis the poultry industry appears to be a great and important one, what would it appear to be if the real facts could be collected and classified? We may, indeed, we ought, to be glad that an attempt has been made to collect data about the poultry industry. If such an attempt is persevered, in the time may come when the real facts will be made to appear with some approximation to accuracy. Those who keep hens will be better prepared to state the facts, knowing that inquiries concerning them will be made. Until such a time arrives we cannot expect to gain very accurate knowledge of the poultry industry from a study of the incomplete data which the census gives us, but even from such imperfect data the poultry industry appears to be a really great industry. As Rhode Island is credited with 4652 farms, the eggs on these farms averaged $182.42 in value for each of the tillers of the soil, not a large but nevertheless a very convenient sum to add to the income derived from other sources. "Every little bit added to what you have, makes a little bit more."

We get some wonderfully illuminating accounts of the profits derivable from poultry keeping. The usually reliable Country Gentleman, for instance, contains on page 27 of the June 1st, 1912, issue, an account of one woman, who "kept an average of 141 Barred Plymouth Rocks at a total expense of $13.68," and cleared a profit of $1.84 per hen. As the expense of keeping them was but $0.097 each, she ought to have made a handsome profit. "These fowls had the free range of the farm and cattle lots after feeding time," and we are left to presume that the cattle wasted enough grain to keep them, with the small expenditure above noted. But most poultry keepers, and most farmers for that matter, would not be able to feed a flock of that size on the wasted grain fed to the cattle.

There is also an account of a farmer who kept pure-bred Buff Orpingtons, at an average annual cost of seventy-two and one-half cents each. His hens laid about 53 eggs apiece—they certainly didn't break any laying records—but, considering the cost of keeping them, even in the Middle West, he ought to be thankful that they laid at all.

Then in the same contribution there is the tale of the woman who kept an average of 331.2 Brown Leghorn hens, at a total annual expense of $282.74, or about 85 cents apiece. This comes nearer the line of credibility, though with the prices which grain has been commanding for a year or more, no one in the East could have anywhere near approached this low cost of living. The hens were said to have laid 111 eggs each on an average, and the total income is set down as $626.92. It is not slated whether this income was from the eggs alone, but it is obvious that it could not have been, for 331.2 hens, laying an average of 111 eggs each, which were sold at an average price of $0.173 per dozen, would have produced but $530.30. If chickens were reared we are not told whether the eggs set were charged in the expense account, thus still further reducing the cost of keeping, nor if the expenses account included the food which such presumptive chickens would consume.

Just what good such incomplete accounts are expected to do passes my comprehension. They certainly are not likely to stimulate poultry breeding, because the cost of keeping is placed so low, that few, if any, persons, can duplicate it, and because, also, the egg record—7.3, 4.39 and 9.24 dozens respectively—is certainly depressing in these days when we read of hens laying 200 or more eggs in a year.

The writer says, however, of his figures that "they show the actual results obtained by farmers with fowls kept under ordinary conditions." If they do show "actual results" the conditions seem to me to be anything but "ordinary." If the figures are of any value, they indicate that such conditions need to be changed, and that it would pay the farmers of the country, who keep hens to study more carefully the means of increasing the prolificacy of their flocks. We cannot expect them to learn how to lessen the cost of keeping, for that is so low now that it is scarcely credible, but we may reasonably expect them to learn how to make their fowls produce more than they are doing, if such figures are reliable.

BUFF COLOR.

By Geo. S. Barnes, Battle Creek, Mich.

A letter we saw recently stated that the writer of it wanted to secure some birds of a certain buff variety. He said he wanted a deep orange buff, no light buff for him. Was this writer correct?

For answer it is only necessary to refer to the Standard. The orange or reddish buff was long ago ruled out of court by the fanciers of buff varieties, and the Standard calls for a rich golden buff. Orange buff is not the color now desired, and is it not the color that wins at the leading poultry shows? And in our judgment orange buff is not a beautiful shade or color in poultry. But the rich, golden buff of the Standard—what is more beautiful than this?

The Standard rejects on one side the orange buff, and on the other the pale, or lemon buff. What is wanted is a shade of color like that of a ten dollar gold piece. The buff bird should be of even shade of color in hackle and on the surface of the wings. Such birds satisfied the demand years ago, but they are not wanted now.

Buff is desired also in the undercolor in all seasons, though surface color is more important than undercolor. The importance of undercolor is sometimes exaggerated. The buff color should extend to the primary feathers. The latter are difficult to secure and are not often seen, but this is the ideal to be striven for.

That the color described above is beautiful is acknowledged by every lover of poultry, though it is not the favorite color with all. That it is a difficult color to get in perfection is one of its chief attractions to many.

The Buff Leghorn Club has issued a 90 page book, the value of which is priceless and worth more to any person interested than any $2 poultry book yet on the market. It tells about these great winter layers.

Catasauqua Poultry Fanciers Association will hold their first annual show Dec. 23 to 28, 1912, in I. O. O. F. Hall, Front St., Catasauqua, Pa. The boys promise an eye opener in special premiums and will have every facility for the care and proper handling of birds.

Catalog will be ready by November 1st and can be had by addressing the Secretary. The Association is in a thriving condition adding new members at each meeting and before long expect to make the other boys hustle to keep up with us.

The officers of the Association are as follows: President, Joseph Troxell; Vice President, Chas. E. Fredrick; Secretary and Treasurer, Chas. D. Oswald; Assistant Secretary, Oliver E. Holton; Trustees, Chas. Fredrick, Wm. Richards.

We attribute much of our success in our community to the able addresses given here by your Mr. DeLancey and Mr. Sutton. With best wishes for the future of the Fancier, I remain as ever, an interested reader. Respectfully, Chas. D. Oswald.

Aldrich Poultry Farm

By F. D. Sutton,

The Aldrich Poultry Farm is located on the Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Street Ry. about one mile north of the city limits of Columbus, Ohio, and is known in the immediate vicinity under the home-stead name of "Maplehurst" and has been the residence of Mr. O. W. Aldrich, the senior member of the firm, for over 30 years. The dwelling is built of brick and contains eleven rooms, with every possible convenience and is surrounded with large maple trees, making one of the most ideal homes in this vicinity.

The Aldrich farm contains about 23 acres of land, well suited to poultry raising on account of its porous soil and favorable location, and overlooking the Olentangy river as it does, forms one of the most charming suburban homes we have ever seen. A large two story building situated at the rear of the dwelling contains the conditioning room, office, incubator cellar, wash room, vegetable cellar and machinery room. In the feed and machinery rooms are two large compressed air tanks with 300 gallon capacity, each for hard and soft water. All the machinery, such as corn shellers, pumps, grinders, bone cutters, etc., are operated by electric motors. The water from the compressed air tanks, both hard and soft, is piped to all the poultry houses for the convenience of the attendants. The incubator cellar contains a number of individual incubators of the most approved kinds and are heated with natural gas which reduces the care of incubation to a minimum.

The brooder house is 16x60 feet, divided into ten hovers and pens, and heated by a hard coal furnace with hot water pipes. The temperature is controlled by an electric regulator which maintains a very even temperature at all times. The large laying house is 22x108 feet with a four foot alleyway at the rear and is divided into eleven pens, each 9x18 feet, with a grain and feed room at one end containing every possible convenience. This house is built on the open front plan and is a model of neatness. All the openings are furnished with wire netting and frames covered with muslin to fit into the openings during stormy or extremely severe weather. On the north side of the laying or breeding house is a two-story building, the upper story of which is used as a work shop, while the first or lower story is used for a grain room and additional laying houses. The entire 23 acres of the Aldrich Poultry Farm is devoted to orcharding and poultry raising. Not one foot of waste ground anywhere. There are a large number of colony houses, constructed on the same plan, located at different points throughout the apple, pear and plum orchards thus affording the growing stock abundance of shade, plenty of green food and ample range. In many respects the Aldrich Poultry Farm is a model for the majority of poultrymen to pattern after. It is well planned, the houses are neat and comfortable, though inexpensive. No unnecessary expenditure of money to be seen anywhere. It is a real business poultry plant, well arranged, thoroughly practical, a real profit-maker, with every possible chance for expansion, and under the present wise management, sure to continue as one of our most successful modern poultry farms of the present day.

Now about the birds on the Aldrich Poultry Farm. I am afraid if one undertakes to give a minute description of the Aldrich Orpingtons he would have imposed upon himself a greater task than any of us ordinary mortals would be able to fulfill. But we have seen enough high class Orpingtons during our experience as an Orpington breeder that we are inclined to believe we are partially able at least to distinguish a bird of merit even though it is in some other man's yards. And it so happened that as we accompanied Mr. May the able and congenial manager of the Aldrich Poultry Farm, on a trip of inspection from yard to yard, we were more than satisfied with the splendid display before us, in both old and young stock. It was quality, quality, quality everywhere we went and it certainly did me a world of good to see how proud Mr. May appeared over my exclamations of surprise at the numbers and merits of the Aldrich Farm Orpingtons. There were March hatched cockerels, weighing up to seven pounds each, with fine combs, good eyes, great type and as white as one could find anywhere. There were pullets, plenty of them, that weighed well up to

The Winning Strain

If you wish to WIN at your show this season we will furnish you birds good enough for the STRONGEST COMPETITION, and condition them free of charge at prices as low as possible for such quality. Or, we can furnish you utility stock of strictly HIGH QUALITY and at very moderate prices.

Our foundation stock was purchased from the leading breeders of England, Canada and the United States and were all selected by our manager, Mr. Geo. J. May, the most experienced breeder of White Orpingtons in the United States. Our winnings of 51 prizes out of a total of 150 at last season's exhibitions at St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Baltimore, Cleveland and MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, as well as our Allentown, Atlanta and Augusta winnings this season in competition with all the largest Eastern and Southern breeders, in addition to our customer's winnings at Nashville and many other shows, proves the Superior Quality of our stock.

Our English birds are from the best known English Farms, especially selected so as to be free from minor defects so often found in imported birds, while having the weight, strength of bone and purity of color in which they excel. Our young stock sired by these prize winning birds is reared and fed according to English methods and in strength of bone, color and weight equal the best English birds of the same age.

standard requirements. A number of which I could use in my own breeding yards to mighty good advantage, but I concealed this desire as best I could for reasons not expedient to tell. The fact is I was anxious to finish that tour of inspection (See?). As we passed from one pen to another my attention was attracted to a number of promising cockerels and having called Mr. May's attention to them he asked me the questions "What do you think those cockerels weigh, and when do you think they were hatched?"—but before I had time to frame an intelligent answer he informed me that they were hatched in May and some of them weighed close to 6 pound each. Well that weight was "going one too far for me" and when Mr. May "caught" my eye he deliberately demonstrated his statement to be a fact, for the cockerel did weigh full 6 pounds. They have cocks and hens that weighed considerably above standard weight when they were in moult and not in the best of flesh. There were over 1200 young birds on the Aldrich Farm at the time of our visit, which was during the latter part of August, and every one of them strong and thrifty. Not a sickly or stunted bird to be seen. This fact should be born in mind by those who anticipate adding new blood to their flocks or launching out into the poultry industry. Strong, vigorous birds, backed up by years of healthy ancestral lines are a wonderful asset to any breeder who desires to increase the vigor of his flock or make a successful start in the business, and to know where such birds can be secured is certainly "half the battle."

We were glad of the opportunity afforded us for visiting the Aldrich Poultry Farm, and if this account of our experience and impressions during our visit there should prove of value to any of the Fancier's readers, we will feel amply repaid for our trouble.

LITTLE ROCK (ARK.) SHOW.

The 5th annual exhibition of the Little Rock Poultry Association will be held at Little Rock, Ark., November 25th to 30th. This will be the official State show of the Arkansas Branch of the A. P. A. There will also meet at the same place the Southern Branch of the National Buff Orpington Club.

The Association is working hard to bring out an entry of 4000 birds and it looks very much as if they would not fall far short of the mark. The following Judges have been selected: C. A. Emry, F. J. Marshall, and F. H. Shellanbarger. Address all communications to J. V. Johnson, 820 State Bank Bldg., Little Rock, Arkansas.

BRIDGETON (N. J.) SHOW.

Everything is in readiness for the 9th annual show of the South Jersey Poultry & Pigeon Association, to be held at Bridgeton, N. J., November 27-30, 1912. This show promises to eclipse anything ever undertaken in New Jersey. The Cup, Cash and Merchandise specials amounting to over $625, besides the association regular premium money. The Franklin Sanitary Dry Mash Feeder, manufactured by Franklin and Detwiler, of Hatfield, Pa., is, in the writer's estimation, the most economical and practical feeding device we have ever used. It is very reasonable in price, never clogs, is made of the best quality galvanized iron, is easily filled, and will last a lifetime. We are glad to have the opportunity of indorsing this feeder, as we are confident it will fill a long felt want among up-to-date poultrymen. These people are putting out an automatic pigeon feeder that is just as practical as their poultry feeder and, no doubt, will be hailed with delight among pigeon men. The add. of Messrs. Franklin & Detwiler appears in this issue of the Fancier and we urge all our friends to write them for further particulars. We are sure you will be glad you followed our advice.

Any News, Notes or Items of Interest Pertaining to Poultrydom in Central Pennsylvania. Will Find a Place in this Department. Address all Communications to J. T. Houston,, Williamsport, Pa.

Williamsport, Pa., Nov. 27, 28, 29 and 30 (Thanksgiving Week.)

Before another issue of the "Fancier" goes to press the Williamsport Show for 1912 will have passed into history. That the coming event will surpass any of this noted show's previous exhibitions is conceded by all who are close to poultry officers at Williamsport.

Coming this year as it does on Thanksgiving Week makes it doubly interesting to all exhibitors of the East as many who heretofore have been unable to attend personally, can on this holiday week spend at least a day in attendance at the large 12th Regiment Armory, where the show will be held, and also be enabled to attend the 1st annual banquet on Wednesday evening, November 27th. Further details of this affair will be found elsewhere in this department.

Never before in the history of the Williamsport Association has so great an effort been put forth to make this, the 5th annual, the greatest in its history. A glance over the Premium List (which should now be in your hands, if intending to show here) will convince you that the premiums offered at Williamsport surpass both in numbers and value any show in the country. Right here, let it be said, is where Williamsport shines, 30 silver cups and silver sets, over $1,400.00 in regular and cash specials and merchandise (not of the junk order) but of the best of Williamsport manufacture.

This is where Williamsport stands alone, and should interest every intending exhibitor. Of all the specials offered, only six of these have a semblance of a string attached and these are namely, the Challenge Cups which must be won twice by one exhibitor before ownership can be claimed. All other cups, silver sets, merchandise and every dollar offered, is offered without a single string attached and will be awarded as offered, whether your entry consists of one bird or a hundred. Look them over, cast your eye over the general prizes. Every exhibitor at Williamsport has an opportunity to win one or more of these valuable prizes, turn to your breeding, look the specials over carefully, compare the prizes offered with any Premium List of any show in the country, and we believe you will agree with us that Williamsport on a fifty-cent entry fee is offering more to the exhibitor than the shows with the one to a three dollar entry. The large 12th Regiment Armory is perhaps the best adapted show hall in the State, modern in every respect, located in the center of the city, two minutes walk from all R. R. stations, making it convenient for all purposes. In selecting Judges for the coming event only those were selected who have a national reputation for judging the varieties for which they are engaged. In Henry P. Schwab, Geo. H. Biergolb, Charles Nixon and A. J. Braun we believe we have selected men who are past masters in their profession. That the exhibitor may know that the Williamsport Association intends that the greatest care will be exercised in the birds sent to Williamsport, we will state that Mr. Gus Braun of Syracuse, N. Darrow, Superintendent, will vouch for the careful keep of all specimens entrusted to them.

Each year the Williamsport Show grows greater. Each year finds all of last year's exhibitors back again. Each year finds many new ones with birds in competition. We expect to be able to accommodate them all but there is a limit to how many the Armory will hold, so don't wait until the day the entries close, November 19th, GET THEM IN EARLY. When we say entries close on that date we mean POSITIVELY close. Banquet.

The President appointed at the October meeting the following committee to prepare and arrange for the first annual banquet of the Williamsport Association to be held on Wednesday evening, November 27th: John R. Heim, chairman; Chas. D. Drinkwater, Chas. D. Lamade, Chas. G. Whitehead, John R. Sims. That this will be an annual event is doubtless a fact. With the above committee the affair will be more than the ordinary. If you will write to Mr. John R. Heim, No. 412 Grant St., stating if you will be in attendance it will greatly facilitate the committee's work. All other information will be given you pertaining to the banquet on your arrival in Williamsport by applying at the information bureau at the exhibition hall. We are informed by the committee that surprises will be in store for all who attend and that this banquet will be in conformity with Williamsport's way of doing things. If you are afraid of staying up late, get your sleep out by keeping good hours up to this time as you can rest assured that there will be something doing all the time. The after dinner talks (we are told by Mr. Heim) will long be remembered by the poultrymen; that is all he will say; but assures us that the eating will be the best that can be obtained. Let Our Agent
SHOW YOU

A 1913

BUCKEYE

Sold with a 5 year guarantee to hatch every hatchable egg.

Let him show you a Buckeye in operation, so you can see for yourself that it will hatch more chicks and better chicks than any other incubator. Let him show you the Buckeye Hot Water Heating System (the kind all the big breeders use in their mammoth machines), the automatic supply of natural moisture, the fireproof heating apparatus, the copper tank and boiler, the heavy 3-wall case, the dark hatching chamber and a dozen other features that make it possible for the Buckeye to produce such wonderful hatches.

The Buckeye is not built to exploit some fad or fancy—it is built to hatch eggs—and it does it. We guarantee the Buckeye to hatch every hatchable egg, and our agent can prove to you that it will do this—before you spend your money.

The 1913 Buckeye is the result of 22 years of incubator building. It is equipped with every desirable device that can possibly add to incubator efficiency—it represents incubator perfection in both hatching and construction.

Sold as low as $8.00

Made in 5 sizes—60 eggs to 350 eggs
Over 325,000 in successful operation

Buckeye incubators are sold by over a thousand merchants—in every state in the Union. We have agents everywhere who will gladly show you a Buckeye in operation. Send us your name on a postal and we'll send you the name of our agent in your town, so you can see the chicks hatching and examine the incubator in every detail. Ask our agent to show you the 5-year guarantee that goes with every Standard Buckeye. Send us your name today!

Our 1193 Catalog sent on request.

The booth spaces this year will be confined to the north side of Armory, occupying 175 feet long and six feet wide. This space is going rapidly. If you desire space better write at once.

Mr. Wells Edward Gage, the veteran fancier of Williamsport (not in years but experience) will talk White Wyandottes to you, if you please.

Mr. A. A. Swartz, the old reliable, will be at the Armory the entire week. Mr. Swartz is rounding out his fourth year as Treasurer of the Association. You will find him when not counting the cash, looking over the R. I. Reds.

Mr. Harvey Springman, who has always made a sensational exhibit of Houdans, will again put on a great collection of his very best.

Sender Bros. of White Leghorn fame, will meet you among the Leghorns. Albert says three hundred White Leghorns will be small. I guess you are right, Albert.

Boyd Johnston telegraphed for a ticket to the banquet. You bet Boyd wouldn't miss anything like that. Bring a friend along, "street car conductors on the side" but don't keep on going to Lock Haven. Williamsport is on a different road than Syracuse.

Entries positively close November 19th. Show opens Wednesday morning November 27th.

We call your attention to the special request contained in Premium List, regarding shipment of birds. Ship that birds surely arrive during Tuesday, not on Monday. But get them to us not later than Tuesday evening.

All roads will lead to Williamsport Thanksgiving Week. Get in the crowd.

If you are thinking of showing at the Garden, try your birds out at Williamsport. If you want competition you will get it here.

THE LONG POLE GETS THE PERSIMMON.

Did you, dear reader, ever go after persimmons? If you did you well know that the best fruit hangs high and it takes a long pole to bring it down. That's the way it will be at the second annual exhibition of the Mifflin County Poultry and Fanciers' Association, Lewistown, this winter—you will have to have the long pole of "quality" to bring down the prizes. Better get ready now.

A fellow poultryman poured into our ear the other day a tale of woe of how he had been "stung" by sending away for eggs. First it was a poor, very poor hatch; next as to how the birds developed. Yes, sir; he just knew that the fellow who shipped those eggs was a crook and his stock was no good. Possibly that was true, but on the other hand I wonder how many buyers after they have had good luck—a good hatch and good, strong, vigorous stock—how many write a kindly letter and tell the man from whom they bought that he is a gentleman and that they will try to throw business his way.

Again, how many of the small

There must be, and is, a reason for such capacity in three years.

The Arenberg raises a greater percentage of chicks and turns them loose with more vitality than any other method. Every chick has plenty of floor space and fresh air.

The labor in taking care of an Arenberg flock of 1000 or 1500 is no more than for a 100 by other methods.

We will tell you how to have young chickens for the early spring market, with no more than the usual cost.

breeders or beginners know what to expect for a small price? Yes, they killed and ate better cockerels than that rogue sent them for $2. When we have learned the real value of a good bird we will not expect so much for our dollar or two.

The writer had experience with a man last spring who advertised eggs at a given price. Upon asking how soon an order could be delivered at his advertised price we got a reply that he could not possibly ship that number (100 eggs) although he was advertising them that way. He could send us two or three settings later on. We wrote and asked when he could ship fifty eggs, only five more than he said he could supply at a later date. Another reply said he could not possibly ship fifty but could let us have one or two settings at a higher price than advertised. He did not have a bird of the variety specified but a relative had, yet he was advertising them. Is that legitimate business? Should we have turned his correspondence over to the editor of the journal in which he advertised, or did we do right (to our fellow man) by simply dropping the matter? According to my mind a man should not advertise unless he is able to deliver the goods and when his supply is exhausted he should discontinue his ad. or word it in such a manner that it will not be misleading. Advertising and selling forces are two of the greatest forces we have to deal with today and we should all strive to keep them on the high plane where they belong. A shark can do irreparable harm and we should throw a good strong harpoon into them wherever we can.

How many poultry associations work in conjunction with those persons in charge of the Farmers Institutes? If I mistake not they have to recognize and work with organized poultrymen in Pennsylvania. If we can have lectures for our benefit that the State is willing to pay for are we not the losers if we fail to look it up?

Why could not the Association of Central Pennsylvania each appoint a representative and get together and "talk it over?" Seems to me some good should come of it. What say you, neighbors?

'Ere this month is gone all roads will be leading to Williamsport. Thanksgiving Day—the day of national thanksgiving—what will it have in store for we smaller fry? Gee, if we get some blue over at "Bill Town" we will have something to be thankful for and if we don't, oh, well—but we will. Look out, "fellers" we're coming after you. I can just shut my eyes and take an imaginary look down Barred Rock alley—down where it is sizzling hot and see "Jimmy" Huston swelling up with justifiable pride. We doff our hat to you in ad-

O. K. POULTRY LITTER is the greatest help to poultry raisers since the incubator was perfected. You too, will say so when you try it for yourself.

Send us your address TO-DAY, and by return mail you will receive a sample of O. K. LITTER with full particulars

Tell us how many birds you keep and the size of your house, and we will tell you how much O. K. LITTER you need.

When you use O. K. LITTER you need no dropping boards; clean your house only three or four times a year; lice and vermin will not flourish where O. K. LITTER is used; your house is always sweet and clean, with positively no odor; the feathers and legs are bright and shiny and poultry keeping becomes a real pleasure. After being used O. K. LITTER is worth almost as much as its original cost as fertilizer.

vance, Jim. Then I can see Edgar Darrow's broad smile as he fondles the blue on his White Leghorn display. He has the goods, fellows. I know, for didn't I play second fiddle to him in the cock class last winter. I happened to take his bird out of the shipping coop and place it in the exhibitor's coop and I told the boys then and there I would not be ashamed to have that magnificent bird take the blue over me—and he did!

Get your name in to Robt. S. Foster, Secretary, Lewistown, Pa., and you will, as soon as they are off the press, receive a premium list.

Well boys, we can't get all of the blue all of the time, but we can get some of the blue some time. That you all get your share of it and at the same time help to bring out the best of the utility side of the business is the wish of

 Dear Sir:—

Your favor of yesterday received and noted. Have already received notice from the Grit that they are going to donate a Trophy Cup for our show. letter received while I was away on a vacation but just as soon as I arrived home I answered same and thanked them for their kindness, which was greatly appreciated by the Association. We want to thank you for securing for us this Trophy Cup, and hope we will be able some day to return the favor.

The Sunbury Poultry Association will hold their next and 5th annual show January 7, 8, 9 and 10, 1913, in Armory Hall, Sunbury, Pa. There is no better building suitable to hold a poultry show in, in Central Pennsylvania, in fact nowhere in the State, and it is well ventilated and lighted and roomy and situated in the heart of the town on the main street. This show is annually attended by thousands of persons interested in poultry which makes it a good advertising show and a good business show. The members of this association are aiming to make this the best show ever held in Sunbury and considering the amount of inquiries that are already coming in for premium lists would indicate that the coming show will be a big one. There will be more cash prizes offered than at former shows and also a fine line of cups and medals.

Messrs. H. M. Kenner and F. G. Wile will place the awards and every exhibitor can rest assured that he will get just what belongs to him. Nothing but strictly honest business methods will be used at this show no favors shown to anyone. The exhibitor that expects to win by unfair methods had better stay away from Sunbury as his patronage is not wanted at this show.

The Genessee Cooping Co. will coop the show. This Association is a member of the A. P. A. and its strict rules will be rigidly enforced. All premiums will be paid last day of the show.

There will be no catalogs given out or sold until all the birds have been judged and specials placed, not even the officers will be allowed to see a catalog until awards have been placed. All those who have birds that they wish to show would do well to enter them at Sunbury because to win at this show will be a good advertisement.

Write H. Y. Tobias, Sunbury, Pa., who is the Secretary, for premium list which he will be only too glad to send you just as soon as it is ready.

Never before in the history of "The Central Pennsylvania Poultry Show" have they had so many inquiries for the premium lists which will be sent out on or about the first of November. The officers of the association have every reason to feel proud of their work thus far. Write S. J. Johnston, No. 417 West Street, Bloomsburg, Pa., for one of the premium lists. They will be worth looking over because they will contain something of interest for every breeder.

Through some error of omission rather than commission we left Mr. Bruce Sneiderman out of the last month's issue. Mr. Sneiderman is an instructor in the commercial department at our State Normal at this place. Besides being one of our finest young men in this section, he is a lover of a good chicken. He breeds S. C. Black Minorcas, E. I. Reds and the White Wyandotte.

As we are writing this article the Bloomsburg Fair is in full swing. Never before have they had as many entries in the poultry department as well as every other. They were compelled to hire a large tent in order to accommodate the large number of birds that were entered. This is another one of the many proofs that the people are interested in the advancement of the poultry business. Every variety known to mankind is on exhibition. The Braun Brothers are here in full force and are capturing their share of the ribbons. These fellows are all fine men and are interested in good birds from the top of their head to the sole of their feet. Our Bloomsburg boys were in the fight from start to finish and kept some of the ribbons at home. Not one "kick" was heard of the work of Judge Geo. W. Webb who placed the ribbons in the absence of Judge Whiteman who could not be here.

While talking about the interest that is being manifest in this section we are reminded of the fact that two of our citizens—who have never been interested in the poultry business to any great extent—have purchased small places in the country and are going to put up some fine new pens and breed chickens. They will help to swell the crowd who are trying to advance the profession. It is the beginner who we shall be called upon to assist and upon whom we shall depend to help carry on the work. Bloomsburg and vicinity can be relied upon to help with their share.

In counting the large number of fanciers in this section, it is surprising what a large percentage of them are men from the professional world. They find in the work not only the enjoyment but the vast amount of good that it does them physically. Several have said that the hour or more spent with their chickens each morning and evening does them more good than anything else. It also saves doctor bills.

Bloomsburg has added another fancier to its list. Mr. L. D. James has moved to our town. Mr. James first came to this section when he entered the employ of "Uncle John's" poultry farm which is just a short distance above town. He gave up that position and came to our "burg." He is the leader of the band here and is still raising Light Brahmans.

POULTRY AT THE COLUMBIA COUNTY FAIR.

The fifty-eighth annual Fair of the Columbia County Agricultural Association was held during the week of October 8, at Bloomsburg, Pa.

Never before in the history of this Association have they had so large a number of fowls on exhibition. Every variety known to mankind was on exhibition. Those who knew any thing about chickens had a fine chance to spend a day or two among the finest collection that has ever been shown in or near Bloomsburg. Winners from New York State Fair, Madison Square, Philadelphia, Allentown and elsewhere were there to compete for prizes and places.

The Braun boys of Syracuse, N. Y., John Kreiner of Setlerville, Pa.; E. G. Oliver, of Hornell, N. Y.; Charles Brown, of Whitney's Point, N. Y.; H. A. Rose, of Wellen, Canada, and Ben Rupert with E. E. Risley's strain of Walton, N. Y., each had one or two carloads on exhibition. These together with the local exhibitors made more than 4000 to be judged. The Association was compelled to secure two tents in order to accommodate the large display.

Col. Rose and the Sunnyside Farm had their full display of Polish and water fowls along with them. The game bantams, the Orpingtons, the Rocks, the Wyandottes, the Minorcas, the Leghorns, and in fact every class was well filled. Col. Rose had his string of water fowls that he was paid $200 to bring to Syracuse and place in the large pond during the State Fair this year. In fact it is doubtful if the people of this section will ever be able to see so large a collection of fine birds on exhibition again. Speaking in dollars and cents, there was a very large fortune tied up in the birds present.

When it was found that Mr. Wittman of Allentown, could not be present the association sent a telegram to Mr. Geo. W. Webb, of Rochester, N. Y., and secured him to do the work of judging. When the time came for this work it was found that Mr. Wittman had sent Mr. Chrisman to take his place. It was a good thing that both were on hand for they did not get the work completed until late Thursday night.

The above has been written to show that it would be impossible for the people of the different sections to see so many varieties of birds were it not for the so-called "huckster" going the rounds with their large string of birds. Much has been said pro and con about these lines of birds and the writer for one is of the opinion that they do far more good than they do bad. True, there is a chance of some diseases from the continual confinement and travel, but this is more than repaid by the large amount of good that the different people receive by being able to examine all of the different strains. Surely the above gentlemen deserve a large amount of credit for the hard work—because it requires work—that they are compelled to do in order to be able to show these birds at the different places.

ARCADIA, the Home of A. E. Martz, Indiana's Most Popular Buff Orpington Breeder.

BY F. D. SUTTON.

The poultry plant of Mr. A. E. Martz is situated at the northern outskirts of the little city of Arcadia, Ind., and equipped with the most modern and attractive poultry buildings the writer has ever seen. Mr. Martz is a Buff Orpington specialist, and the color of his favorite breed is in evidence on every hand. Buff fences, buff poultry coops, buff dwelling house, all so uniquely blended with the color of the beautiful birds that roam over their spacious, green clad yards, that one catches the "Buff fever" at once and becomes keenly possessed with the desire to own just such an outfit as this, buildings, birds and all, but such possessions are not the offspring of desire alone, they are the result of wise application of real business principles together with years of hard work, constantly applied in a profession that one really enjoys. Given the same conditions, birds, money, location and time, we doubt if there are a half dozen men of our acquaintance who would have attained Mr. Martz's success as a Buff Orpington specialist. An accurate fowling piece in the hands of an expert is a wonderful means of defence or protection, but it would be practically useless in the hands of a poor marksman. The successful man in any enterprise is greater than the enterprise he represents. We have big enterprises today because we had bigger men to make them; for every business, either large or small, gathers its personality and power from the man or men who are back of it. This we believe is one of the great causes of the present day popularity of America's great poultry industry. Men of genius, men of character, men with real red blood in their veins are back of it; and genius, character and real red blood always spells ADVANCEMENT into any profession with which they are connected and we believe every member of our poultry fraternity has ample reasons to be proud of the remarkable record Mr. A. E. Martz has made in the Buff Orpington world during the past seven or eight years. His very personality has been woven into the popularity of his favorite breed and the fact that his accomplishments in show room competition have always been honorable and at all times above suspicion has largely been responsible for the popularity of his birds and the high esteem in which he is held by all his fellow fanciers. Last season, generally speaking, was a severe experience for many of our best and most responsible breeders, fertility has been low, eggs have hatched poorly, chicks seemed to lack vitality, orders for hatching eggs as well as breeding stock below the average year, but with Mr. Martz "Fate" has dealt more considerably as his egg trade was the greatest he has ever enjoyed, his stock was all sold early and at good prices, his eggs hatched well (he had but very few orders to duplicate), his chicks were strong and thrifty and today he has close to two thousand youngsters crowding on towards maturity that will gladden the hearts of many who will trust their hard earned dollars to Mr. Martz's care. Mr. Martz's poultry houses are mostly built on the double colony house plan. In other words his houses are so constructed as to care for two breeding pens in each house, occasionally one house will contain three pens of birds, but this is done only when the arrangement will admit of ample yarding for the fowls. The double breeding houses are 14x20 ft. while the triple breeding houses are 14x30 feet, all connected with yards 50x100 feet, or its equivalent in square feet, which contain plenty of grass the whole season through and abundance of shade to protect the birds during the hot summer months. The small colony coops for growing stock are placed in large yards 56x200 feet with nice catalpa and apple groves for shade. There are two brooder houses 14x30 feet and 14x112 respectively with every possible convenience to insure the comfort, health and rapid maturity of the chicks and ease of operation for the attendant. The out-door brooders are all located under large shade trees, convenient to the dwelling and are kept scrupulously clean at all times. There are cock pens for surplus cock birds, conditioning coops for show birds and, in fact, every convenience known on a modern down to date poultry plant. Mr. Martz's birds are among the best in the land and his winnings in the largest shows in the country have been very pronounced indeed. At the recent Louisville, Ky., Show, his birds won practically everything in sight. Every first, second, third, fourth, two fifths, special for best display of Buff Orpingtons, the Gribble $50 cup for best display of Buff Orpingtons, also the Gribble $50 cup for best display of Orpingtons, any variety. This makes three sweeping victories Mr. Martz has made in the southland, having previously shown at Memphis and Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Martz's add. always appears on the inside back cover page of the Fancier. Look it up, it will do you good to read it and write him for his catalogue. It is free.

Mr. Sam'l Gibson, of Catasauqua, Pa., breeder of White, Black and Buff Orpingtons, has a fine lot of youngsters coming on in excellent shape for the winter shows. Mr. Gibson won 4th on S. C. Black Orpingtons at the Great Allentown Fair and his bird was worthy of the honors he won. It was a wonderful show and anyone who had even one bird in the winnings had reasons to be proud. Look up Mr. Gibson's add. in the Fancier and write him for prices on stock and eggs. All sales of stock made on a "satisfaction" basis.

PARTRIDGE PLYMOUTH ROCKS

THE 20TH CENTURY IDEAL FOWL

For the fancier, the farmer and the back yard poultry man. They have laid and paid their way to be the most popular breed and all because they meant it.

THEY HAVE YELLOW LEGS

Our strain of Partridge Rocks have yellow legs and are strong in penciling and of correct shape. As a general utility fowl they stand alone without a pier. This combined with the wonderful winnings they made at the great shows of America makes the Perkins strain unmatched.

A Few Hours With Men Who Raise

:-: Chickens :-:

By F. D. Sutton

The Sunny Hill Poultry Farm, Ossining, N. Y., C. W. Yellott, prop., is breeding some of the finest Partridge and White Wyandottes and S. C. White Leghorns of any breeder in the Old Empire State. Mr. Yellott's Jr. birds have free range and roam at will over his fifty acre farm, consequently they are strong and vigorous in the highest degree. They are raised in muslin curtained houses and are fed the most wholesome feed possible to secure. All the buildings on the Sunny Hill Poultry Farm are right down to date in every respect. No unnecessary expense or extravagant displays to be seen here, but every possible comfort and convenience for the fowls and their care is in evidence on every band.

Mr. Yellott has made many excellent winnings on his birds wherever they have been shown. At Madison Square Garden on four entries on Partridge Rocks, his birds won 3rd 4th hens and 5th cockerel; Grand Central Palace, 1 hen, 3 4 hen, 2 pul, 4 pen, also for third best exhibit. These are but a few prizes Mr. Yellott has won on Partridge Wyandottes, while his winnings on W. Wyandottes and S. C. W. Leghorns have been very pronounced indeed. Any one in the market for good birds of any one of Mr. Yellott's varieties of fowls can make no mistake by giving him a part of their patronage. Look up Mr. Yellott's add. in this issue of the Fancier and write him for prices on both old and young stock. You will be glad you did.

The Frederick Feeder Co., Ogontz, Pa., is putting out one of the most unique automatic poultry feeders on the market. It is attached to the ceiling and is out of the way, so that one does not need bother with it, only fill and set it. You can set this feeder so as to feed your fowls from one to fifteen times in 12 hours. This feeder is easily controlled, seldom if ever gets out of order and if one is away from home all day his birds will get their feed just the same, providing the hopper is full of feed and the feeder properly regulated. To the busy man or woman, and especially to those who are away from home from 8 to 12 hours per day, this splendid feeder will very forcibly appeal. It is a real practical feeder and will prove a blessing to any poultry man. Write the Frederick Feeder Co., Ogontz, Pa., for their circular and catalogue. It is free for the asking.

Robert A. Reichard, Allentown, Pa., mfr. of high grade Pure Blood, Meat and Bone Products for Poultry and Pigeons, is sending out a very neat and helpful booklet which describes their products and at the same time serves as a very useful book for memoranda. It is entitled "Scratching for a Living," and contains a lot of good information for all who have any use for Mr. Reichard's products. The Beef Scraps, or in fact any of the foods manufactured by this firm are of extra good quality and none of our readers can secure better products along these lines, no matter what price they pay. The booklet is free for asking. Ask for it and mention the Fancier when you write.

Mr. F. N. Perkins, Specialty Breeder, of Partridge Plymouth Rocks, Freeport, Ill., is setting a great pace for all the boys who are laboring in the World's Partridge Rock Alley. His birds this year are "head and shoulders" ahead of his last year's production and that fact alone is making a wonderful stir among the Partridge Rock breeders all over the country, for the birds Mr. Perkins produced last year were among the greatest winners of the country and to be able to improve his last year's matings is simply another splendid demonstration of Mr. Perkins' ability as a scientific poultryman. Last year wherever Mr. Perkins' birds appeared in competition either in his own hands or the hands of his customers, they won the most coveted prizes, as the following records show, viz.: At the Great Chicago Show, 1911, Mr. Perkins' birds won 1 2 3 4 cock, 2 3 4 5 hen, 2 4 5 cockerel, 2 3 4 5 pullet, 1 2 3 4 breeding pens, $50 cash best display, $50 silver cup for 2nd best display. At the Great Illinois State Fair, 1911, 1 2 cock, 1 2 hen, 1 2 3 4 cockerel, 1 2 3 4 pullet, and 1 2 breeding pens. We do not know of another such winning in the history of Partridge Rocks at either of these shows. Mr. Perkins has put out one of the most attractive catalogues we have ever examined and to say it is worthy a place in any poultryman's library only partially expresses our appreciation of the same. This valuable catalogue gives a condensed history of the origin of the Partridge Plymouth Rock as well as other valuable information which will be of great value to any one who has the interest of fancy or utility poultry at heart. Mr. Perkins' birds have free range, the best of care and finest quality of feed and any one interested in Partridge Rocks will find Mr. Perkins an honorable and kindly man to deal with and his birds equal to the best in the country. If any of our friends are looking for Partridge Rocks, we bespeak a share of their business for Mr. Perkins, assuring them that they will get a square deal for every dollar they commit to Mr. Perkins' care. Look up his add. in this month's issue of the Fancier and write Mr. Perkins for his catalogue and prices on stock and eggs. You will be glad you did.

Mrs. Wallace B. Campbell, proprietress of The White Orpington Place, Anderson, Ind., is one of our most successful White Orpington breeders and her winning during the past two or three years are very noteworthy indeed. At the National Show held in Indianapolis, Ind., 1912, Mrs. Campbell's birds won 4th on pen in the strongest competition ever known in the West. At the great Anderson (Ind.) Poultry Show in February 1912, Mrs. Campbell's birds won 1st cock, 1st hen, 1st 4th cockerel, 1st pen, 3rd and 5th pullet, and silver cup for best display. At the last Indiana State Fair held at Indianapolis, Mrs. Campbell's birds again demonstrated their merits by winning 2nd, 3rd hen and 3rd pullet. Had her cockerels been a little older they would have been in the winnings without doubt. While it looks to us very much as though she should have had her females placed a little higher up, they were white, grand in shape, great in head points and all that could be desired in size. Mrs. Campbell has a number of breeders for sale that are worthy a place in the best breeding yards and any one desiring A No. 1 birds at very reasonable prices will be very fortunate in securing these birds. We take pleasure in recommending both Mrs. Campbell and her birds to all who are interested in White Orpingtons, assuring them that they will always receive a square deal at Mrs. Campbell's hands. Write her at once for prices, delay may mean disappointment. Look up Mrs. Campbell's add. in this issue. It is replete with good things.

The North Side Poultry Co., Wm. A. Bartholomew, mgr., 343 N. 7th St., Allentown, Pa., are offering some gilt edge propositions to the readers of the Poultry Fancier. They can supply any of our friends with the best in almost any standard variety or breed of fowls, and are making a specialty this month in Buff and Black Orpingtons, Columbian Wyandottes and Single Comb White Leghorns. Mr. Bartholomew guarantees satisfaction to all his customers and the Fancier backs up his guarantee. The North Side Poultry Co. is one of Allentown's real live business concerns and enjoys a reputation for honorable dealing, second to none in their home city. The Fancier esteems it a special privilege to call the attention of its friends to their add. in this month's issue and trust that any one who may be interested in great quality at very reasonable prices will write The North Side Poultry Co. at once, for further information. They can supply any number of birds either for exhibition or utility purposes in almost any breed or variety, and a guarantee of satisfaction goes with every sale whether large or small. Look up their add. and tell them the Fancier led you to their door. It will please them and do you no harm.

It is with a large degree of pride that we call attention to the add. of Mr. J. W. Thorman, one of Ohio's most dependable and popular breeders of Rose Comb Rhode Island Reds. It was the writer's pleasure to visit Mr. Thorman's home on his recent western trip and carefully examine a large number of Mr. and Mrs. Thorman's birds. One of our old Ohio friends had partially prepared us for the pleasant surprises which awaited us, but we hardly expected quite such an array of good things as awaited us. We have examined hundreds of Reds in different parts of this country but never before did we find so small an amount of colored birds as we saw at Mr. Thorman's farm, while in eye and comb they are very remarkable indeed. We found but one hen with light eyes, while every youngster in both sexes had eyes "fit to please the gods." Mr. and Mrs. Thorman's Reds have won many coveted prizes in the last two years, but they have said little about their Reds outside of a small circle of friends, but have spared neither money nor hard work to produce the best in Rose Comb Reds before they offered them to the buying public, and we wish to assure our readers that we take a peculiar pride in calling their attention to Mr. Thorman's add. in this issue of the Fancier. We know any one desiring quality in Reds can secure it by writing Mr. and Mrs. Thorman their wants. Remember the Fancier backs up all its advertisers, thus giving double assurance of a square deal to all who patronize the Fancier's advertisers.

The Miller Anchor Co. of Norwalk, Ohio, manufacturers of the Ideal Automatic Feeder and Exerciser, also the Ideal Dry Mash Feeder, are certainly deserving of the confidence and patronage of all poultrymen who need a first class, practical feeder that is a real blessing in the poultry house or yard. These people are all or more than they claim in the two feeders above mentioned and the universal increase in business which they are now enjoying affords the Fancier a large amount of pleasure indeed. The Miller Anchor Co. is not only selling gilt edged feeders but they are selling them at prices within the reach of all and the writer trusts that all our friends who are in the market for goods of this kind will favor The Miller Anchor Co., of Norwalk, O., with a portion of their business. Be sure to write them for further information and mention the Fancier when you write.

ON TO WILLIAMSPORT.

Before another issue of Poultry Fancier reaches our subscribers, the great Williamsport Poultry Show will be history. This great show practically marks the beginning of the show season of the East. We need not tell you what kind of a show they have at Williamsport. We need not tell you the kind of men who make up the Williamsport Poultry Association. This is well known to all of our readers and to the poultrymen throughout the Eastern field. Their coming exhibition will undoubtedly be the best show that they have ever held. They have put forth a supreme effort, an effort which they started immediately after the closing of their last show, and for 12 long months they have kept the fight up, to make this their banner show, and we are safe in saying that on November 27th to 30th, there will be assembled in the Armory at Williamsport one of the greatest arrays of fowls that has ever been assembled at a Winter show, in the State of Pennsylvania.

We cannot help but congratulate the hard working President, James T. Huston, and his co-worker, Geo. P. Stryker. These men, by the good support of their members, have not only been able to make Williamsport a good show, but they have been able to place the poultry business of Central Pennsylvania on a concrete foundation.

Their motive is not a selfish one, as they have put forth an effort not only to get success for their own show but to make the Central Pennsylvania circuit, consisting of Bloomsburg, Lewistown, Sunbury, Altoona, Ottsville, Wilkes-Barre, also a great success. That is the kind of effort these men make.

One of the leading features of the Williamsport show this year will be the banquet, and the officers of the Association assure us that this will be right up to "Bill Town" quality.

We respectfully request the several hundred poultrymen who subscribed to Poultry Fancier at the last Williamsport show, to meet us at our booth. We will be there at the same old stand in the same old place and we can assure the poultrymen of Central Pennsylvania that Poultry Fancier will give a full and complete account and the awards in full of every poultry show in this circuit, irregardless of whether the exhibitors advertise with us or not. We will give it to you and we hope to have the pleasure of meeting you at the Williamsport show. Now altogether, ON TO WILLIAMSPORT.

A BIG WIN AT MINEOLA.

We are just in receipt of a letter from W. J. Douglas, the well known R. C. Rhode Island Red breeder, of Port Washington, N. Y., stating that he won 2nd cock, 3rd and 4th hen, 2nd pen (old) and 3rd pen (young) on a total of 7 entries in one of the largest and best entries of R. C. Reds that was ever at Mineola Fair.

Mr. Douglas is making quite a record in his R. C. Rhode Island Reds and we haven't the least bit of doubt but what he is going to out-do himself at the Winter Shows.

The Ohio Valley Fanciers Association of Evansville, Ind., will hold its second annual exhibition in Evans

Hall at Evansville, Ind., the second week in December, 1912.

This will be a comparison show and quite a few nice specials have been secured for the same.

Premium lists will be ready about the first of November.

Don't forget the dates, December 9-14, 1912.

Send to H. J. Reimer, Secretary, No. 113 Heinlein Ave., Evansville, Ind., for a premium list and see what the Association has to offer.

W. W. Zike and J. W. Mullinix will be the judges.

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY FANCIERS' ASSOCIATION.

The fifth annual poultry show of the Northampton County Fanciers' Association will be held, as usual, in Thanksgiving Week, November 27-30, in Loskiel Hall, Bethlehem, Pa. Notice has been delayed as it was thought that no suitable hall could be secured, but the above hall has now been rented and is a splendid building, well located, capable of accommodating about 1200 entries without crowding. The four successful shows of this association is causing the officers and members to put forth every possible effort to even better this year's exhibits.

Judges Denny and Bean will again place the awards. Prospective exhibitors should at once write the Secretary for a premium list as the entries will close on November 14th. This is an official A. P. A. show. Herman J. Schneller, Secretary, Bethlehem, Pa.

THE ROLLER TRAY INCUBATOR

Successful Incubation Means Your Success.

SCIENTIFICALLY PERFECT

To overcome the element of chance in the artificial incubation of eggs you are confronted with five problems. 1st—Heat; 2nd—Moister; 3rd—Ventilation; 4th—Turning the eggs properly; 5th—Disposition of the chicks when free from the shell. If these essential problems cannot be overcome you must meet with failure. We have enabled you to overcome the five essential points necessary to successfully operate an incubator. We want to impress on your mind that there is a great difference in chicks that are just incubated and

CHICKS THAT ARE PROPERLY INCUBATED

There is absolutely no difference in a chick hatched in a Roller Tray and those from a hen. You want to incubate chicks that will live—and not the kind that will linger a few days and pass away. Its the chicks that live that mean your success or failure. The Roller Tray will hatch every fertile egg. It cannot go wrong. Now is the time to look up the merits of the different incubators. We want you to look into the merits of ours. Send for booklet.

THE POULTRY FLOAT.

A Display Never Before Attempted in a Parade.

The Altoona branch of the Pennsylvania State Poultry Association, whose design in the Thursday issue of the Mirror, was given only a passing note, really deserves more extended mention. Mr. Ed. R. Martin, who designed the float, spent considerable time in its building, and the result of his well executed labor was certainly appreciated by the many on-lookers, who viewed it on that day. It was the first time in the history of street parades that a representation of this kind was ever shown.

The wagon on which the exhibit was displayed was thirty feet long and was drawn by four well groomed Percherons, of Wils. Hegarty's famous breed. Four large American flags and six pennants ornamented the top and sides of the coops and the beauty of the whole turnout was enhanced by festoonings of red, white and blue morning glories. The United States colors were represented in the first three pens of chickens—Rhode Island Reds, White Leghorns and Blue Andalusians, also by pigeons of the three colors. Altogether the display consisted of forty chickens and forty-four pigeons, confined in four pens of five birds each, four single compartment coops each containing six birds, forty compartments each containing a pigeon. The exhibitors and breeds of poultry were E. E. Seasoltz, five R. I. Reds; M. F. Bollinger, four R. I. Reds; J. D. Pierce, five S. C. B. Leghorns; Chas. Piper, five Barred Rocks; A. E. Ebricht, four W. Leghorns; Roy Cunsman, one W. Leghorn; J. Dalby, four W. Leghorns; F. M. Anderson, two Hamburgs; H. B. Bashore, two B. Leghorns; D. C. Kipple, two W. and two B. Orpingtons; H. W. Yingling, two B. Minorcas; Mrs. T. J. Patschke, four B. Andalusians; Wertzberger Bros., two S. L. Wyandottes. Pigeon exhibitors were F. M. Anderson, pen Fantails; John Ricemeier, six Russian Trumpeters and two English Carriers; Thos. Rutherford, ten Runts; Thos. Patschke, twelve Pigmy Pouters. Photographs have been taken of this handsome float, which can be seen at Martin & Co.'s feed store on Green avenue.

A CORRECTION.

In giving the awards of the Allentown Fair Show, in our October issue, we desire to state that on account of an error in the catalogue, H. C. Wack, of Conshohocken, Penna., failed to get credit for first and second S. C. White Leghorn Pullet.

We regret that this error occurred, as the first and second pullet by Mr. Wack were beyond all doubt two of the best birds of this variety ever seen at Allentown's great show.

ELKINS (W. VA.) SHOW.

The Elkins Poultry Association will hold their third annual Winter show December 10th to 13th. This Association has done very effective work in West Virginia for the up-building of the Fancy Poultry Industry and they are putting forth a supreme effort to make their third annual show the best yet. ### ANOTHER VICTORY FOR WHITING'S ROUPENE.

Mr. W. H. Kiser, City Treasurer of Wilkesburg, Pa., read an advertisement of Whiting's Roupene in a poultry paper, and sent to the manufacturer for two bottles, and used it so successfully that in March he wrote: "I will say, with an affidavit attached to it, that I have used all sorts of roup remedies without success until I got Roupene. I had hens as blind as bats, so blind I had to put the feed in their mouths. Some of them had beers so large they could not close their bills, but Roupene cured every one of them.

"Roupene so completely cures roup that we have used the stock as breeders with positively no trace of the disease in the chicks."—Riverview Poultry Farms, Savannah, Ga.

Dr. Prince T. Woods, the acknowledged authority on all matters pertaining to poultry will continue to conduct the Question and Answer Department, the Poultryman's Calendar, News, Notes and Comments, besides writing many of the leading articles on Housing, Feeding, Breeding, Marketing, etc., that will appear during the next year.

Exhibit of the E. C. Young Box Co., made at the Great Brockton Mass. Fair. This was one of the most instructive exhibits ever seen.

Helen T. Woods will continue to give readers the best information obtainable in the "Home and Table" Department; also in the Women's Poultry Department.

F. S. Shureman, one of the best posted men in this country, will tell each month what is going on in this great poultry world of ours.

H. H. Stoddard, the veteran poultryman and writer, will continue his Southwest Department which has created so much interest the past year. He will also write one of the leading articles each month. It is conceded by everybody that the articles by Mr. Stoddard that have appeared in American Poultry Journal the past year are the best that have ever been written on poultry subjects, and they have been written from practical experience. Future articles will be just as good, or better.

Miss Carey, of England, will tell how they raise thoroughbred poultry on the other side of the big pond.

H. P. Schwab, the well known breeder and judge, will continue his "Chick Chat" Department; report the large eastern shows as only he can report them, and will also furnish articles on showing, judging and mating Furred Rocks.

C. W. Zimmer will give the readers of American Poultry Journal many valuable hints on how to advertise the poultry business successfully in his "Good to Know" Department.

I. K. Feleh, the Father of Poultrydom, will contribute articles from his vast store of knowledge that will be of great value to the present-day fancier.

Charles H. Simmonds, one of the younger poultry writers, will continue his series of articles on the different phases of the poultry industry.

Many other writers of note will give American Poultry Journal readers the best to be had from time to time.

The Editorial pages of American Poultry Journal will be conducted along the same conservative lines as in the past, free from personal animosity or bickerings of any kind whatsoever.

American Poultry Journal is issued once a month, contains an average of 150 pages each issue and is profusely illustrated.

Ask your newsdealer for a copy of the November issue or send direct to American Poultry Journal, 542F So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

SHOW SECRETARIES TAKE NOTICE.

The Rhode Island White Club of America will give five handsome club ribbons, one each for best cock, hen, cockerel, pullet, and pen in any show in U. S., where this notice is printed in their premium list. These ribbons to be competed for by members only. Ribbons will be sent direct to winners by club secretary of show verifying winnings.

Club membership fees $1.00. For particulars and application blanks for joining the club, address the Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. C. M. Vertrees, Cecilia, Ky.

ERIE (PENNA.) SHOW.

Elsewhere in this issue will be seen the advertisement of the Erie, Pa., Poultry Association which gives the dates. We announced editorially in a recent issue that this is the 2nd annual exhibition held by this Association. We wish to make correction and state that this is the 19th annual exhibition held by the Erie Poultry Association. Their coming exhibition promises to be one of the great events in poultry circles in Western Pennsylvania, situated right in the heart of the great buying district, with an influence that extends over Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania and New York. We certainly cannot help but recommend this show to the consideration of our friends and patrons.

SCRANTON (PENNA.) SHOW.

We have just received a letter from the Veteran Poultryman, T. F. McGrew, stating that the Scranton Poultry Show this year is going to be the best that has ever been held by this Association and when we hear these words coming from T. F. McGrew we feel confident and know that he knows what he is talking about.

He states that there will be more special prizes and more new features than ever before and that full notice of same will be given in the December issue of the Fancier.

Look for this important notice in the December issue and look up the rates of the Scranton Show in this issue.

SHOW SECRETARIES, ATTENTION.

The new American Black Orpington Club is desirous of hearing from all show secretaries. This year we are offering silver cups at the State Meetings and fine silk ribbons to the members at all shows. If you would like to have them please enter into arrangements with the club secretary at once. This new club was organized by the breeders of both the S. C. and R. C. varieties. It is international in character and hundreds of breeders are interested in its success. If you are not now a member send your application in at once, accompanied by the fee of $1.00. The annual year-book will be issued about January 1st and all those that wish advertising space should apply at once. The rate is reasonable. There are several state meetings that have not been let, all those who are interested will do well to address the Secretary. Address, American Black Orpington Club, Ora Overholzer, Sec.-Treas., Eaton, Ohio.

CYPHERS COMPANY TO BUILD MODEL FACTORY.

Land Has Been Bought and Architects Employed for Complete, Special Purpose Manufacturing Plant to Be Erected by Cyphers Incubator Company, at Buffalo, N. Y.

Herewith is shown a bird's-eye view of the new, model manufacturing plant that is to be erected early next spring by Cyphers Incubator Company at Buffalo, N. Y. A tract of land eight and one-fourth acres in extent, favorably located on the inner belt of the New York Central Railroad Lines, has been bought and architects have been employed.

The contract for grading, putting in railway switches, laying sewers and running water mains into the property has been let and this work is to be done at once. Contract for the buildings is to be awarded before January 1st. The work on buildings is to be started as soon next spring as the weather will permit and possession is to be given by the contractors on or before July 31st, 1913.

The buildings that are to comprise the new plant will be as follows:

Main factory, 160 by 380 feet in dimensions, two-thirds of the building to be one-story in height with saw-tooth roof, thus giving perfect indoor light for workmen, and the middle third—see illustration—is to be two stories high, allowing for factory supplies, stock room, workmen's locker room, etc., on upper floor.

Warehouse, 120 by 380 feet in size, extending parallel with factory building and of same floor level; height to be one story, but foundations and walls to be of sufficient strength so that three more stories can be added later in case enlargement upward is desired at any time.

Laboratory and Sales Building, 80 by 120 feet, containing six kilns, with ground space left on which to double this capacity as needed.

Boiler and Transformer House, 40 by 60 feet in size, for location of heating plant and the electrical equipment required for use of Niagara Falls power.

Office Building, 60 by 160 feet in dimensions and two stories high, fronting on Dewey Avenue, six hundred and fifty feet from Main Street, Buffalo's principal thoroughfare.

These buildings are to be of reinforced concrete, with attractive red-brick wall trimmings. All floors and roofs are to be concrete and the plant throughout will be as near fire-proof as modern methods can make it. There is piling space for ten to twelve million feet of lumber and private water mains and hydrants are to be installed in the lumber yards.

The site for this plant was chosen with special reference to the use that is to be made of it as a factory, warehouse and office combined and every building is being designed to meet the exact requirements of the Cyphers Company's diversified business—a business which calls for the manufacture of more than one hundred different articles used by practical, successful poultrymen and that of late years has passed the million dollar mark in annual sales.

Grant M. Curtis, president and general manager of Cyphers Incubator Company, writing under date of October 15th, said: "An advertisement with this factory cut and description of buildings, the copy for a page advertisement entitled, 'An Open Letter,' which is to be published in your November issue. The advertisement will tell your readers how well fixed we are to fill orders during the poultry season now at hand, also about the increased business we have enjoyed since August 1st of this year; but please direct special attention to our November advertisement so that your readers will know to a certainty that we are in shape to handle promptly all orders entrusted to us, either at our home offices in Buffalo, or at our branch stores in New York City, Boston, Chicago, Kansas City, Mo., and Oakland, Calif."

NOTICE TO POULTRY SHOWS AND LEGHORN BREEDERS.

The Single Comb White Leghorn Club of Central New York will offer at any poultry show in New York State who will publish the following offer in their premium list, and send copy of same to the Club Secretary, five handsome ribbons, for best cock, best hen, best cockerel, best pullet and best shaped bird. Competition open only to Club members. Breeders may become members by sending $1.00 membership fee to the Secretary. The Club has issued an attractive catalogue which will be sent free to any one interested. Edwin H. Chase, Secretary, R. D. 1, Edmeston, N. Y.

"STAY WHITE" ORPINGTONS

We being the first breeders of White Orpingtons to claim "Stay White" males in this country, and having bred them now for three seasons we are prepared better than ever to furnish males and females containing the blood you will need to get the brassiness bred out of your male lines. We have 300 yearling hens for sale. Hundreds of cockerels and pullets sired by "Stay White" males that have had "Stay White" parentage for four generations. You must positively get rid of the brassiness in your male lines, and we can help you do it and at very reasonable rates.

PUTTING THE CORNISH DOWN TO THE FRONT.

While at the Trenton Fair, we had the pleasure of visiting the Poultry Yards of J. W. Ward, located at Pennington, N. J., about 6 miles distant from Trenton. As our readers know, Mr. Ward made a very enviable win with his Cornish fowls at the Great Allentown Fair Show, in competition with the leading breeders of his variety.

I have visited a great many fanciers in my time but have yet to find a more enthusiastic specialty breeder of any variety than Mr. Ward is, and he has himself put the Cornish fowls on the map in such a prominent way as they have never appeared before, and Mr. Ward states that he is just starting, so we can look for some big things and some interesting news along Cornish lines in the near future.

Mr. Ward has imported a number of the best birds in England, and by adding the English blood to his own American strain he has been able to produce as fine a bunch of youngsters as we have ever seen.

One particular point about the Ward strain of the Cornish is the fact that they are great egg producers, and when it comes to utility we know what we are talking about when we say that they are all good. We tasted them and tried them and there are certainly no disqualifications on the utility end of the Cornish, bred by Mr. Ward.

THE BIG BOSTON SHOW.

Premium lists for the Boston Show to be held January 7th to 11th will be out December 1st and entries close December 20th.

The following specialty clubs will hold their meets at Boston: The Partridge Wyandotte Club, the Silver Penciled Wyandotte Club, Hamburg Fanciers' Club, N. E. Light Brahma Club, The Fantail Club, and the International Rose Comb Black Minorca Club and the members propose to make this a record entry. Other clubs are expected to meet here, their votes not yet being in.

Above is illustrated the first S. C. White Leghorn hen at Pottstown, Pa. She also was in the first pen at Reading, Pa., in 1911. With her are shown some of the cups and ribbons that she helped to win. It is birds of this quality that are bred by Sam. S. Blicem, proprietor Spragle Valley Farm, R. 5, Pottstown, Pa.

The Eastern Division of the White Plymouth Rock Club will meet here and a big entry of White Rocks is promised. E. H. George will judge. Polish breeders are out to make this class a hummer and the Buff Rock breeders are planning another big class for Boston.

F. L. Platt will judge Columbian Plymouth Rocks, W. H. Card will take Rhode Island Reds, W. G. Minnich the Hamburgs, H. B. Gleezen Pit Games, H. B. Rollins the Light Brahmans and Hugh A. Rose, Ornamental Bantams. The list of judges is not yet complete, but in addition to the above, others engaged are J. H. Drenstedt, C. A. Ballou, Richard Oke, C. A. Wheeler, P. W. Rogers, and G. W. Weed.

The fact that $500 is put up in prizes on dressed poultry, eggs, and utility classes has attracted the attention of the market breeders and this department promises to be a large and interesting one.

TO SOUTH AMERICA.

Elsewhere in this issue will be seen letters from a number of breeders, stating that they have made shipments to foreign countries. We are also pleased to announce that H. M. Kenner, manager of the Rock Hill Farm, has received an order for four trios and a single bird, to be shipped to Brazil, South America.

Poultry Fancier is the only paper which Rock Hill Farm is using. The results that we are bringing our advertisers are nothing less than remarkable. Who's next?

CONCERNING FEED.

We have just received a letter from the Miner-Hilliard Milling Co., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the well known manufacturers of poultry feed, stating that the outlook for a successful season is bright, and that the demand for their goods is far greater than it has ever been in the history of the concern.

We are certainly glad to hear this good news from the Miner-Hilliard Co., and we are sure no concern is worthy of a larger patronage than they are, and the feeds which they manufacture have the reputation of being as near perfection as they have yet been obtained.

We cannot help but recommend this concern to our readers and call their attention to their interesting advertisement which appears on the inside back cover page of this issue.

INCREASE IN SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.

The publishers of American Poultry Journal advise us that on January 1st, 1913, the subscription price of American Poultry Journal, Chicago, Ill., will be advanced to $1.00 per year. Until that date subscriptions will be taken at the old price of 50c per year or three years for $1.00.

No one will say that American Poultry Journal has not been worth One Dollar per year in the past, but the good things they have in store for their subscribers will make each month's issue worth more than One Dollar. The colored plates that will appear in future issues, beginning with November, 1912, will alone be worth the subscription price, to say nothing about the vast fund of knowledge that will be given subscribers through the reading columns by their great staff of writers.

POTTSVILLE (PENNA.) SHOW.

The Pottsville Poultry Association is making great preparations for their show, to be held in that place January 8 to 14, and it looks very much as if their coming exhibition will be one of the best shows that has ever been held in Central Pennsylvania. Every one of their members is working hard and Pottsville has gained a reputation throughout the Eastern field that is bound to make it a leader.

It is so situated as to be right in the heart of one of the greatest poultry buying centers in Pennsylvania. This in connection with its liberal Premium List, makes it doubly interesting to exhibitors.

PITTSBURGH FANCIERS SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Pittsburgh Fanciers club will be held February 17th to 22nd. This makes the 15th successful exhibition for this Association which is the pioneer Poultry Association of Western Pennsylvania and the exhibitions held by this Association attract marked attention throughout all parts of the country and it is at this place and at this exhibition that the battle royal between the blue ribbon winners of the other great shows is fought out. Hence a win at the Pittsburgh Fanciers Show means much.

As our readers know, this is called the veteran association and there meet annually at this show, one of the greatest gatherings of Poultrymen of the Keystone State. They are bending every effort this year to make their coming show one of the greatest of their history on account of it being their 15th exhibition. Address all communications to Geo. E. Sutch, Secretary, 4 Lydia Sta., Pittsburgh, Penna. As usual the show will be under the superintendence of the veteran breeder, F. L. Ober.

The Mansfield Fanciers Association of Mansfield, Ohio, in connection with the Ohio Branch of the American Poultry Association, will hold a poultry exhibition in Mansfield December 2-7, 1912. This will be one of the largest and best poultry shows ever held in Ohio. The Ohio Branch will hold its annual meeting in connection with this show, on Thursday, December 5th.

Premium lists will be ready to mail November 1st.

At this show the gold and silver medals and diplomas offered by the American Poultry Association to branch shows will be awarded as special premiums. The show will be held in a large show room in the business center of the city.

Poultry breeders are requested to exhibit their birds and attend this show and state branch meeting. A high class exhibition and a good time is assured for all. Fred A. Walter, Secretary.

The New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement will hold their first show in Plainfield, N. J., Thanksgiving week. This organization, not yet one year old, has a membership of nearly two hundred, composed of some of the best fanciers in the State. The aim and purpose of the Association is for the betterment of all things pertaining to poultry culture. Its chief object is to be known as the most progressive gathering of breeders. Messrs. Woelshofer, Graham and Sumner have been engaged as Judges and no cash prizes will be given. However there are over twenty-five cups and a raft of specials in every class. Beautiful badges and medals will be awarded and a true sportsman's show will be held. If you win at Plainfield you need not be afraid of any of the shows. Write J. H. Kimball, Secretary, Westfield, N. J., for all particulars.

POULTRY EXHIBITION AT FARMINGTON MASS.

The Poultry Department at this great "Cattle Fair" is a leading feature of the "show." The Superintendent of Poultry, Abel F. Stevens, "Woodside Poultry Farm," Wellesley, Mass., who has held this position for many years, his long experience as a breeder and Judge qualifies him as a popular superintendent, ever ready to explain to all unsuccessful exhibitors why the Judge did not award a prize to their birds, thus keeping peace and harmony among the exhibitors. We found him ever on the alert attending to the needs of the birds and the queries of the show men. He told the representative of "Poultry Fancier" there was about four hundred birds, pigeons and pet stock on exhibition. In the three great classes, i. e., American, Orpingtons and Mediterranean breeds, were many superb specimens; "prize winners" at the "Winter Shows" at Boston, Providence, R. I. and Worcester, Mass. Superintendent Stevens' exhibition of 50 land and water fowls won the "silver cup" for best collection, while S. H. Fessenden, Esq., Holliston, won "silver cup" for best single "pen of chicks" on a superb lot of "White Legorns," both of these gentlemen agreed to offer the beautiful "cups" for the exhibition of 1913. The excellent birds shown in "Buff Orpingtons" by Edgar F. Belches, Fram. and Phillip La Prade, Sherborn, attracted the attention of all visitors, as did the exhibition pens of "White" and "Black" Orpingtons of Superintendent Stevens. Mr. Fessenden's extra choice pens of B. Plymouth Rocks, R. I. Reds and White Leghorns contained many fine birds. S. B. Hastings, Wayland exhibit in R. C. Reds was fine indeed. We noticed in Superintendent Stevens' superior string of water fowls a "blue ribbon" on every pen of the four varieties of geese and seven of ducks. Mr. Paul Saxonville won all prizes on display of pigeons and in the pet stock department superior specimens in hares and rabbits of all breeds. This Agricultural Society was very generous in the "special premiums" offered for the school children's department. These liberal prizes brought out over 150 specimens of all varieties and attracted great attention from the visitors, and certainly created a healthy rivalry among the young fanciers, who proclaimed they would double their entries for next year's exhibition. The Judge was W. M. Atherton, Esq., Randolph, Mass., giving general satisfaction in his good work. In the near future the "Poultry Department" will be a leading feature of this Agricultural exhibition.

Picked up Between the Showers at the Allentown Fair

It rained and then it stopped and rained some more and then some. Many think it was the greatest Fall Poultry Show ever held on the American continent. Wittman has demonstrated that he is a past master in the art of conducting a Poultry Show.

Charles M. Kerr, of the Chestnut Hill Poultry Yards was all smiles, winning two firsts in that hot class of Barred Rocks. Let the good work continue Charles. As we indicated, you were able to walk in the shoes of the former manager, Judge Kenner.

J. Nelson Allison broke into the Barred Rock alley and succeeded in getting away with a number of prizes.

Geo. Austin said it beat anything ever held in Ireland.

Hen Snitzer, the well known Rock man from Fairton, N. J., who handles potatoes and phosphate as a side issue, did himself proud and won first cock, and first pullet. If Hen had have been entered in that futurity list, he would have been ahead of the game about the price of 75 bushels of potatoes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Koons as usual were on hand. This pair of real fanciers haven't missed an Allentown show for the last 10 years and as usual, got away with a good share of the ribbons.

Buff John Poley was there. He had on a new Fall hat. There was a special reduction sale owing to the wet weather, and John is always looking for bargains.

Vierheller Bros., from the Smoky City, Pittsburg, who made quite a winning at the great Pittsburgh show last year, demonstrated their ability to win in the Eastern field. They got away with the first cockerel in the Buff Rock class, which was one of the most magnificent birds we have ever seen out this season.

Mrs. J. D. Koons, Treichler, Pa. The only lady Poultry Judge in Pennsylvania who will place the awards at a number of the leading State shows.

Charley MacKay, who has earned an enviable reputation as a runner, (I mean foot races), was here. Sometimes he loses and sometimes he wins. Last year Charley went into a partnership with Bart Fell, who makes bricks at Trenton. They got their heads together and put up a big poultry plant and I will tell you, the way Charley and Bart slaughtered things in Silver Penciled Rocks was a caution. Bart had that smile on, which extended from ear to ear. Charles MacKay never showed up at all on Thursday. News came from Trenton that he had something like Elephantosis of the Coco, brought about by over doses of blue ribbons.

Frank Bean was there. Frank has a habit of always being there and we would certainly like to have the photograph of the man who can beat Frank on Columbian Rocks.

We didn't see Dr. T. F. Charm-bury from Hanover, but we saw some of those clean cut Silver Laced Wyandottes and we had taken it for granted that they were his, and so they were.

Hanover is always well represented at any poultry show. No matter where we go, we are bound to run into Charles Shirk. Charley said it rained some over at Hanover, but he said there is only one place for the Hanover show and that is at the top. Charley brought along over there with him a fellow by the name of Myers, who makes the famous Han-over shoe, and it looks very much as if this man was going to make his Barred Rocks as prominent as the Hanover shoe.

Coming right along back of Shirk and Myers, we saw Jake Spangler. Jake is what we call a "Has Beener" that is, some years ago he used to breed some of the best Buff Cochins we ever saw, but Jake forgot to get married, and consequently has no other home but the hotel and he had to go out of the business.

Yes and the White Wyandotte Alley had attraction enough to make Phil Kearny forsake the floors of the New York stock exchange and run down to Allentown, just as soon as he heard the news spinning over the wire that he won first cockerel and first pen.

has been from Bethlehem. We went up and said, Where are you from? I am from Ohio. We said, who are you? He said, I am Hugo B. Hark. I was raised at "Soue Beslehem." Well the way that boy did things, up in the Partridge Wyandottes, was something terrific. He went back to the Buckeye State, loaded up with ribbons and specials. We couldn't help but congratulate this Pennsylvania boy on the win he made, and it does us good to know that Pennsylvania has sent out poultrymen into all parts of the country that have made good.

Well no show is complete unless there is a bunch of fellows from Wilkes-Barre. Arthur Trethaway, Barred Rock hen 2nd at Philadelphia. Owned and bred by C. N. Myers, Hanover, Pa.

Chas. Staff says he will surely now get that trip to the old country next summer to see that aged mother that he hasn't seen for four years. Rumor has it that Charles is going back to see an old sweetheart, also, that he forgot to bring along over. Well Charles, it isn't too late yet.

WE picked up a morning paper and saw where a fellow by the name of A. J. Fell, who lives about 10 miles below where this paper is printed, stating that this man Fell spent $10,000 to win on White Wyandottes. Well now, that is a lot of money and it is a darn sight more than A. J. has seen for a long time, let alone spending it and we want our readers to understand that A. J. raised those chickens right on his own farm and this fellow sort of does those things all around, even at New York and he doesn't put up 10,000 Shiners to do it.

We were walking down the aisle, and we saw a fellow there with a dignified look. Thinks I, that fellow you might know, was there, telling of the glorious battles which he has fought and hopes to win. You know, Arthur is that "Minorcie Feller" from Wilkes-Barre. He was very much there.

Of course, J. J. Smith said that the Minorcas weren't in it with the Silver Penciled Wyandottes. That Boy will swear by that breed, both on laying and utility. We don't know anything about the utility end of it. Many a time we were up at Wilkes-Barre Fair and J. J. has never given us an opportunity to test the utility merits of the Silvers. Of course he has a chance to make good at the Wilkes-Barre Winter Show.

We went down a little farther, and struck the Columbian Wyandottes, and what a commotion there was. Some were looking sad and some low has been from Bethlehem. We were looking glad. We saw a tall stately looking gentleman there, with

COLUMBIAN WYANDOTTES.

Ckl. 1, pul 1 2 (3 birds entered, 3 placed). Our First Black Orpington Cockerel won A. P. A. medal for best cock of any variety. We also won numerous collection and other specials.

Winnings like these (and we keep making them right along) point to one great truth: That the very fountain head of quality in the above varieties is at Owen Farms. We have not just a few star birds in each variety but a great number of them. Therefore we can actually furnish them to our customers at fair prices.

Winnings at Tri-State Fair, Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 23-28.

BUFF ORPINGTONS.

Cock 1 5, ckl. 1 2, hen 3, pul 2, pen 1 3.

WHITE ORPINGTONS.

Cock 1 2 3, hen 1 2 3, ckl. 3 4 5, pul 1 2 3 4, pen 1 2.

BARRED ROCKS.

Pul. 1 2 (the only Barred Rocks we entered).

ROSE COMB REDS.

Cock 1, hen 1, ckl. 1 2, pul. 1 3.

SINGLE COMB REDS.

Cock 3, hen 1 3, ckl. 4, pul. 4. Championship on Buff Orpington Pen and Black Orpington Cockerel against all varieties.

Collection, 1 2 3.

Now we would like to have you know these facts: That the young birds shown were all January and February hatch. That we have 8000 youngsters hatched from February to June, and as the later ones are always finer you will see what magnificent help we can give to those who need it.

There is just nothing that Owen Farms can not do for you this year in either sure winners or sterling breeders and we are willing to let our customers share in our good fortune by giving them quality and values that have never before been possible.

What can we do for YOU?

The Roseland Poultry Farm Charles W.

Switzer, Owner, South Euclid, Ohio.

Few men, if any, in the Old Buckeye State have attained to a greater degree of prominence in the fancy utility poultry business in the same length of time than Chas. W. Switzer, proprietor of the Roseland Poultry Farm, So. Euclid, Ohio. His birds are among the finest the writer has ever handled, both in shape and color, and we predict for them a series of winning during this season second to none in the country. Practically every mature bird on Mr. Switzer's place is either up to or above standard weight and so far as color is concerned, suffice it to say they are all that the most exacting could ask for. One even "golden buff" from comb to tip of tail, with clean rich under color finely graduated clear down to the skin. Roseland Farm Buff Orpingtons look mighty good to us and we believe there will be hundreds of satisfied customers who will be strong in their praise before the season is over. Mr. Switzer has about 400 youngsters for sale and will be able to supply show birds of the highest merits to any one who may desire the best in Buff Orpingtons to be found anywhere in the "Old Buckeye State."

The Roseland Poultry Farm is situated at South Euclid, Ohio, about 1 hour's ride from Cleveland, on the interurban line from Cleeland to Painsville, and Ashtabula. The farm contains about 55 acres of land and is well adapted to the purpose for which it is being devoted. The poultry houses on the Roseland Farm are up-to-date in every particular. There are a number of colony houses located among fine orchards that were loaded with apples at the time of our visit. The breeding houses are all well arranged and have plenty of fresh air and sunlight. The largest one of these houses is 16 ft. wide by 200 feet long with a feed and conditioning house in the center 16x20 ft. The floors are all cement and well under-drained to insure against dampness while every breeding pen has double yards, which are plowed alternately and sowed to various kinds of grain to furnish green feed for the fowls and to guard against unsanitary conditions and diseases. The brooder house is well arranged and built on the most scientific basis, which insures ease of operation and health and vigor for the baby chicks. Mr. Switzer believes exercise is essential to the health and proper development of his birds as well as high fertility in hatching eggs and as a consequence there is always a busy bunch of birds, in all stages of development, to be found on the Roseland Farm. We did not see one sick bird on the place nor one that appeared stunted in growth, but we did see hundreds of big, vigorous fellows crowding on to maturity and a splendid day of coronation in show room competition. One of the strong points in favor of Mr. Switzer's young birds is their combs. One finds so many Orpingtons, in all colors, today, with deficient combs, which detract so materially from the beauty of the fowl, that the question is often heard in the show room "Can't they breed Orpingtons with better combs?" This question, so far as Mr. Switzer's birds are concerned, has been practically eliminated and this fact will go a long way toward popularizing Mr. Switzer's Buff Orpingtons in the immediate future. Grand shape, exquisite color and almost faultless combs forms a combination of wonderful qualities in any breed of fowls and he or she who has succeeded in accomplishing these results has reason to be justly proud of their achievement. Mr. Switzer's birds have won the most coveted prizes in such shows as Cleveland, O.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Chicago, Ill. At the last Cleveland show Mr. Switzer won 1 2 3 cock, 2 3 hen, 1 3 4 5 ckl, 4 5 pens, silver cup and silver tea set for best display. At Pittsburgh's January show, 1912, his birds won 1 cock, 1 ckl, 1 pul, 3 hen, silver cup for best male, special for best shaped male and six special ribbons on five birds entered. At Cleveland, O., Mr. Switzer has won the "Best Display Prize" for five years in succession, an accomplishment of which any one may justly feel proud. There will be 20 breeding pens on the Roseland Farm this season, containing the best birds Mr. Switzer ever owned and his customers can rest assured that they will receive greater value for their money in eggs for hatching than ever before, while in either young or old stock

Huston's Ideal Barred Plymouth Rocks

In a class of 259 Barred Rocks at Rochester, N. Y., December, 1911, I won 1st B. P. Cock, 1st Hen, and 1st and 4th Pullet. American Plymouth Rock Club special for both shape and color. Does this not convince you that my Rocks are ideal?

Cockerel Sale. I have for sale 25 Cockerels, sired by my 1st Williamsport and Rochester N. Y. Pullet Bred Male, and dams are the above winners, that are yours at $5.00 each. Such blood lines installed in your flock will do wonders for you another season.

Pullet Sale. Grand utility Pullets at $2.00 each. Breeders at $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00 each.

Show Birds. Let me quote you a price on a Cock, Hen, Cockerel, Pullet or Pen.

GOLDEN LACED WYANDOTTES

The money makers of the season of 1912-13, I have well developed young birds that can successfully meet any competition and the price is reasonable.

Surely You Must be Convinced with all that has been said and written. You must be convinced of these facts, Golden Wyandottes the most beautiful of all breeds, Golden Wyandottes the best general purpose fowl, Golden Wyandottes the money makers of the future, Remember the Brundage record is unapproached. Stock at attractive prices. I can fit you out for the early shows,

CHARLES H. BRUNDAGE,

Mr. Switzer can furnish birds fit to win in the most exacting competition. Mr. Switzer's add. always appears in the Fancier. Look it up and write him your wants. Mr. Switzer guarantees satisfaction and the Fancier stands back of it.

THE GREAT ARMORY SHOW.

Louisville, Ky., December 23-28, 1912.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the South Central Poultry Association, held in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 11th, the following officers were elected: J. L. Gribble, Louisville, President; J. C. Dinsmore, Kramer, Ind., First Vice President; Harris Lehman, Midway, Ky., Second Vice President; E. B. Rogers, Cincinnati, Ohio, Third Vice President; John A. Murkin, Nashville, Secretary and Treasurer.

The above officers, together with Theodore Hewes, Indianapolis, Ind.; A. E. Martz, Arcadia, Ind.; H. C. Dipple, Indianapolis, Ind., and Geo. Rudy, Mattoon, Ill., constitute the Executive Committee.

It was decided to hold the First Annual Exhibition of the South Central Poultry Association at Louisville, Ky., December 23-28, 1912. The big Armory building, one of the finest show-rooms in the United States has been leased. Contracts for uniform cooping have been placed and the following well known judges have been engaged, Fred Kummer of Penn.; O. L. McCord of Ill.; H. A. Pickett of Indiana; W. C. Pierce of Indiana and Theodore Hewes, of Indiana. The premium list is now being arranged and will be ready for mail November 1st.

The South Central Poultry Association proposes to make the great Armory show the battle ground for breeders, north, east, south and west. Louisville being centrally located offers magnificent opportunities for one of the best shows on the American continent. Address John A. Murkin, Secy., Nashville, Tenn., for any information concerning the Big Louisville Show.

WILL CONTINUE THE BUSINESS.

We have just received a letter from Mrs. W. W. Gale, of New Haven, Conn., who was seriously injured on her way to the Syracuse State Fair, that she will continue breeding R. C. Brown Leghorns. As the poultry world well knows it was the master hand of Mrs. Gale that mated the birds that produced the wonderful Gale quality of R. C. Brown Leghorns.

We all must agree that Mrs. Gale is a past master in the art of mating and breeding this variety and the poultry world will rejoice to know that she is going to continue breeding the R. C. Brown Leghorns.

Our readers will also be pleased to know that Mrs. Gale is now at her home in New Haven, Conn., and is recovering as rapidly as could be expected from the serious injuries which she received in the automobile accident in which her husband, W. W. Gale, was killed.

Newtown "Giant" Incubator

The most successful hatching machine and why:

The only standard by which any incubator should be judged is the quality or the condition of the chicks it hatches.

Not Only "How Many," But "How Good"

Quality is of equal, if not greater, consequence than quantity in hatching; for what will it profit you to hatch an incubator full of chicks—weak, puny chicks—and then lose most of them?

Newtown Chicks "Stay Alive"

The "Newtown" stands pre-eminent, not only in the manner of hatching, but in the condition of the chicks or ducklings. Its hatching factors—Heat, Fresh Air and Moisture,—have each been brought to the highest state of efficiency and all operate in perfect harmony. This produces practically perfect hatching conditions, and insures strong, healthy chicks being hatched—chicks that stay alive.

Fresh Air, a Vital Hatching Necessity

It's no more possible to hatch "livable" chicks—chicks having vitality and strength to live—without plenty of FRESH AIR (the life sustaining element) than it is to hatch without heat.

"Newtown" Has a Real Ventilating System

The "Newtown" circulates fresh, moist, warm air—constantly replenished—throughout the hatching compartment, purifying the blood of the embryo chick and building up a strong, healthy body.

"Newtown" a Complete Incubator

Investigation and comparison show that the "Newtown" is the most SCIENTIFIC and COMPLETE hatching machine; and the most successful.

Stop Your Brooding Losses

How many of YOUR dollars, in the way of dead chicks, go out of your brooder to the dump? The usual heavy mortality is largely due to improper temperature and insufficient ventilation, under the hovers.

"Newtown" Adjustable Hover Brooding System

positively corrects these serious brooding drawbacks by regulating the heat in each hover individually; also by bringing in just the amount of fresh air the chicks in that special hover need. No other system does this.

Newtown Raises Chicks for the Laying House

Install the "Newtown" Brooding System and your chicks will go to the laying house instead of the dump.

Incubator catalog L and Brooder catalog D tell you "why" and show you "how" the Newtown produces superior hatching and brooding results. A postal brings it.

PICKED UP BETWEEN THE SHOWERS AT THE ALLENTOWN FAIR.

something like a Medicine Chest, or a lunch box under his arm. Saw him looking pretty good and we wondered who it was and we found out, it was Dr. J. S. Rittenhouse from Lorane, Penna. Well when he saw that first ribbon on the pullet and cockerel, he forgot all about Quinine and dope and everything else. He certainly was there with the goods.

There was another fellow in there the finest classes ever seen outside of the Garden.

Another big attraction was a fellow by the name of Hawkins, familiar to all Poultrymen over the world. Believe me, here is no editor judge. He did his duty nobly and well and went home to tell the people of that old Historic state of Massachusetts, that there was some show at Allentown.

Billy Bowman was there. You never saw him any place else but there. Billy has made Oakland Farms famous. He won the special for the best 10 Leghorns in the Show. That is going some. We also notice that Billy is breaking in on Judging game too, by the name of G. E. Nichols, not quite as old as Doc. He is from Morristown, N. J. Believe me, that lad is coming. Don't say much, but that 2nd cockerel and 3rd pullet are certainly going to make somebody sit up and take notice. They tell me he is a Fancier to the core.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon, we thought it was time to stop raining. We went out to look and see if the sun was coming out and we saw some fellow coming up on a half trot, soaking wet, mud to his knees. The first thing he said was, I am from Dillsburg. Where are the Campines. Yes, it was no other man than Gussie Arnold, the youngest old man in York Co.

Ben Koons was the faithful Guardian of the cups. Armed with two packs of Polar Bear and a Plug of Cinco, he kept the mauraders away at a safe distance from the trophies.

Dan Young proved to be the greatest drawing card in the whole program. Dan breeds some kind of White Chickens called Leghorns. You know. Enough said along that line. He judged them and the crowd that was around him, when he was handling those Leghorns, had the Beaver Oil Man skinned to a frazzle. Yes sir, Dan Young was the guy that put the quality into class of White Leghorns and brought out one of and we don't know of any one that is better qualified than Billy.

Well, there is always some fun in the Rhode Island Red class. It was a hot one. I tell you, when such breeders as Geo. P. Dearborn, Annlesy, M. Anderson and F. H. Eichelberger get together, there is nothing to be said about one man getting away with it all, that is sure.

John Gabriel came in. John is looking just as young as he used to and he said he is feeling just as good. John forgot to show this year, the first time for a good many years, for a long time John was a big figure in the Reds, and he is yet, and will be heard from at the Winter Shows.

Well with the White Leghorns, there was certainly a battle royal fought. There was a fellow from Conshohocken by the name of Wack, that will soon have the reputation of being the D. W. Y. of Penna. He seems to be a quiet fellow and unassuming, but when he cuts loose on Leghorns there is something doing.

Then there was the Newtown Producing Co. A concern which all Pa. feels proud of who won 2nd cockerel, which was one of the finest birds that we have seen, outside of the first bird. Newtown Producing Co. made an exhibit which they can well feel proud of and their great

How to Condition Birds for the Show Room

Do you know how? And do you know that many a good bird went down to defeat—yes was defeated by an inferior specimen, because he was not conditioned properly. Chapter 21 in "Down-to-date poultry knowledge" tells you how. See advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

win at this show, in the keenest competition, was wonderful indeed.

Then there was S. B. Denlinger from Doylestown, Penna. who made a good showing in S. C. White Leghorns. E. E. Brubaker was also a leading winner in this class.

There was a great commotion at the end of the building and naturally we ran up to see what it was. Finally we edged our way in thru the crowd, and we found that the cause of the trouble was no other than the hundreds of friends of Howard L. Davis trying to get the shake of the hand.

Howard was there demonstrating the Newtown Giant Incubator. This is the first he has seen of Allentown for three long and weary years. He is the same old Howard, and was smoking the same old pipe, and it seemed as if his absence for three years did him a lot of good, for it is said that he sold enough Mammoth Incubators to hatch out enough chickens to fill several buildings like Allentown show building. We were glad to see him.

Adam Noll was there demonstrating his cure for stubbs and White Tips. Adam says that Lamp Black and hair dye are ancient remedies and nothing to be compared with his discovery.

Tommy Samuels of Nanticoke, drifted in with a family umbrella to see his R. C. Black Minorcas. He didn't need any glasses to see the prizes, as he won the Lions share in the R. C. class.

Fred Grosbeck, the Connecticut midget, drifted down with a fine string of birds and succeeded in making an excellent win.

One of the star attractions was the first White Orpington pullet by the Aldrich Farm, of Coulmbus, beyond all doubt one of the most magnificent specimens of this variety ever produced. It won the futurity stake.

This along with A. J. Fell's White Wyandotte first Pullet occupied two handsomely decorated cages at the end of the building.

Col. Geo. May, the manager of the Aldrich Farm was there and by his fine win, in competition with the great breeders, demonstrated to them how to produce an Orp. Mr. Aldrich also attended the show on Wednesday.

It wouldn't seem like Allentown unless we saw the old familiar face of Rufus Delafield, owner of the Sunswick Poultry Farm. They made one of the best showings of Orpingtons that this noted concern ever made. The exhibit was in charge of their efficient Manager, Mr. Arnott, who was in attendance the whole week. We are advised that the Sunswick Farm are going to conduct the largest specialty plant of S. C. Buff Orpingtons in the country. This change is being brought gradually about.

Of course, Wm. Cook & Sons were there and made as usual, a good win the classes in which they were competing.

Samuel Gibson, known as the Cata-sauqua real thing, rounded out the 10th consecutive year at Allentown. Sam has never failed to win in Orpingtons for 10 long years. This is a record pretty hard to beat. It is said that Sam has some goods at Catasauqua, which measures 36 inches to the yard.

Parsons Bros. of Bangor, Penna., were there as usual with a very fine lot of Buff Orps.

Chas. Vass, of Washington, N. J., was booked to make an aerial flight, but failed to come, but he nevertheless made a good win in Orps.

G. Hughes and Bill Price did not get up to the show. This pair of Bridgeton youngsters were not allowed to go alone. It was quite a disappointment to Billy, as he has been saving for a long time to go to the show. We just received a letter from a prominent Bridgeton breeder, saying that Geo. and Billy are now figuring on spending a few hours at Phila. show.

Dick Oke was there and couldn't get over talking about the Baltimore Oyster Roast. Dick says the Oysters there are as big as brick bats.

We did not find the familiar face of the Honorable Hamburg, Bill Minnick.

Joseph Elias made one of the best showings of Part. Cochins seen in recent years.

J. O. Summers convinced the Eastern breeders that they raise some Anconas out in the Buckeye State, which are a pretty hard thing to beat.

Dr. Schell was there. Doc. pulls teeth over at Macungie and raises chickens for pleasure and profit as well. Doc says he hasn't missed a year at the Allentown Fair since he used to jump over the fence.

A. R. Saylor, known to the boys as Dr. Saylor, the famous exterminator of all lice on poultry and manufacturer of the real thing poultry condition tablets, was right on his job doing more business at the same old stand then he ever did in his life. Well Doc. is deserving of all that is coming to him, as it doesn't take the boys long to know when they have a good thing. His Lice Powder is now known from coast to coast, and will not only kill lice on chickens, but will also attend to them on Poultrymen, as well.

"Count Bonnie De Louis De Graham," the world's greatest artist, was there. Came there with Howard Davis. Louie still wears that little parisian beard. You can easily recognize him when you see him. He was right on the job and it will not be long until you will see the Allentown winners going the rounds of the Poultry Press.

Well it stopped raining and I thought I would take a walk over to where the Ducks and Geese were, and I will tell you they had some Ducks there, which were Ducks, with a big D, especially was this true of the Caw-Law Poultry Farm, of 101 W. Baltimore St., Baltimore, Md. Believe me, they have them. We had the pleasure of meeting the owner there, Mr. Weiler, and he told us that they have more and better stock than they have ever had before.

They had some chickens here in those coops too.

FERRIS IMPROVED WHITE LEGHORNS.

We wish to call attention to the ad. of the Ferris Leghorn Farm, Grand Rapids, Mich., on page —. Most of our readers have heard of Ferris Improved White Leghorns and the remarkable success Mr. Ferris has had in combining laying and exhibition qualities in this famous strain.

There is more money nowadays in egg farming than in any other branch of the poultry industry and much of the credit for this is due to the heavy egg yields it is now possible to secure by the use of bred-to-lay stock such as has been developed by Mr. Ferris.

The view of the Ferris Leghorn Farm shown here gives an idea of the up-to-date plant on which Ferris Leghorns are raised. The next best thing to a visit to the farm is to send for the 40 page illustrated catalogue which will be sent free to any one who mentions this paper when writing. It shows dozens of views of the farm and explains at length the methods that have been followed in building up the laying and exhibition qualities of this strain. Several photos showing exhibition birds that have won at our leading shows conform so closely to the standard that it is easy to understand why Ferris Leghorns have been able to carry away the leading prizes at every show where they have been exhibited.

In addition to the yearling cocks and hens of which Mr. Ferris has several hundred to sell, there are several thousand early hatched cockerels and pullets that have the quality to win in strong competition and are also bred from record layers that will improve the laying qualities of any flock. A special discount of 10 per cent. is allowed on all orders placed this month, as Mr. Ferris writes us that he would rather sell now at these reduced prices than wait until later when he has this stock in winter quarters.

Perhaps the best proof of the quality of his stock and the satisfaction he is giving his customers is the large number of unsolicited testimonials contained in the catalog, some of them from customers as far away as Japan and New Zealand.

Every bird is sold under "The Ferris Selling Plan," a new method of selling that gives the buyer much greater protection than has ever been considered possible before. Service to customers is the first and most important point in this guarantee. In addition to the usual method of allowing the return of birds not satisfactory, Mr. Ferris insures them for 30 days, and if any birds die during the 30 days he replaces these birds free of charge and also permits the return of birds that contract colds or show any signs of sickness during the 30 days. Every customer must be fully satisfied before the sale is considered closed. This rule followed during all the years that Ferris Leghorns have been before the public accounts for the fact that although Mr. Ferris has increased the capacity of his plant every year he has always

THE TRENTON (N. J.) WINTER SHOW.

The Trenton Winter Show to be held December 2 to 7, 1912, promises to excel all previous shows held by the Trenton Poultry and Pigeon Association. Harvey E. Rogers, the Secretary, reports that the Show Committee has made every effort to make this show the greatest show in the East. Cups and $10.00 gold specials have been placed on all the popular breeds for best display which only requires 6 single entries to compete. The National Partridge Wyandotte Club holds their State meet at this show. The Cornish Indian Game class and the Silver Campines are being especially boomed as there is $10.00 in gold on each for display, besides numerous other specials. Hayler, Kermer and Minnich will Judge the poultry department. Geo. W. Churchman will judge the Dragoon Pigeons and Rudolph Siversfurth all other varieties of Pigeons. If you have not already received the Premium List you had better drop a card at once as the entries will positively close on November 18th. Address Harvey E. Rogers, Secretary, 1520 East Clinton Ave., Trenton, N. J.

MILWAUKEE SHOW.

The 12th annual show of the Wisconsin Feathered Stock Association will be held at Milwaukee, December 31st to Jan. 5th, 1913, in the Arena of the Auditorium, known as the finest hall of its kind in the States. The association is leaving nothing undone to have this show exceed anything yet shown in this city. All poultry, pigeon and pet stock fanciers should bear in mind that the Milwaukee show is surpassed by no other show as an advertisement to the exhibitors, as this vicinity is a hot bed for fancy poultry, and new fanciers joining the ranks continuously and naturally a good market for high bred stock, which can be reached in no better way than by making an entry at Milwaukee, and get in contact with part of this business. A good list of judges have been engaged, and your birds will be given the best of care, and a win at Milwaukee will be a good asset in your next year's business which no good business man will pass up. The premium list will be ready about December 1st and will be mailed upon application. For further information address Albert T. Keipper, 1401 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

BIG THINGS DOING AT THE UNDERHILL FARMS.

The Underhill Farm, of Ft. Ann., N. Y., which recently suffered a severe loss by fire, lost no time in getting busy. Their new buildings are rapidly nearing completion and in order to supply the demand, in addition to the old buildings they are replacing, they have built another building, 320 feet long and also installing a large mammoth incubator. This new building going on is being done in a down to the minute way, and the buildings are of the very latest in poultry architecture.

Elsewhere in this issue will be seen the advertisement of the Underhill Farm, making an announcement that they have thousands of youngsters bred on free range, which they are offering at very reasonable prices. Their catalogue is free for the asking and we certainly suggest to all our readers that they send and get one of the Underhill catalogues as this concern is one of the "Down to the Minute" poultry plants of the East.

Rheumatism

A home cure given by one who had it

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

ONLYA FARM WHITE WYANDOTTES

AT ALLENTOWN FAIRS GREATEST SHOW

In the greatest class in competition with the greatest breeders Onlya Farms White Wyandottes proved their superiority the same as they have done in the big winter shows. At Allentown we won—1 cockerel, 4 pullet, 5 hen, 3-5 cock and 1-3 pen. Let us remind you

OUR SEAMLESS LEG BANDS

Tell the story, when a bird reaches about a pound in weight a seamless leg band is put on; it cannot be removed; there it remains as the seal of Onlya Farm quality, and every young bird on our farm contains the band.

WE CAN MEET ANY COMPETITION

Our 1912 matings containing America's noted winners produced the best birds we ever raised, and they are well developed. The price is reasonable and positively every bird sold has been reared on the Onlya Farm, where nothing but White Wyandottes are bred.

PHILADELPHIA POULTRY SHOW.

The 7th annual show of the Philadelphia Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, Inc., will be held the week of December 10th to 14th. As usual this will be one of the largest and best shows in the east, and everything possible is being done to make it one of the most successful. Many valuable specials are being offered, and there will be at least one hundred cups distributed among the different breeds. The National Columbian Wyandotte Club, and the American Columbian Plymouth Rock Club will hold their annual meetings during the show and a large entry in these breeds is assured, a large classification for table eggs has been made this year, and all breeders are invited to make a display in this department. Many of America's leading judges have been engaged to place the awards, and nearly every breed will have a specialist assigned to it. Philadelphia has always been noted as a show where sales are made, and where a win means something. If you have never exhibited at Philadelphia, don't miss it this year. Premium Lists and all information may be had by addressing the Secretary, William H. Moore, 430 Mint Arcade, Philadelphia.

ADDED 30 MORE RIBBONS TO HIS LIST.

We have just received word that Wm. E. Crevoiserat, the well known breeder of S. C. Buff Leghorns, won every first and second prize competed for at the Riverhead Fair, which is one of the leading Fairs of Long Island. He also did the same at the Mineola Fair, and he here got away with the special for best display with 5 breeders in competition.

Mr. Crevoiserat is certainly to be congratulated on the excellent work he is doing this season, which is proof conclusive that he is a past master in the art of mating to produce the right kind of buff color.

NOW A SPECIALTY BREEDER.

We have just received a letter from Gilbert E. Nichols of Morristown, N. J., stating that he has sold out his entire lot of Silver Laced Wyandottes to his brother and in the future will breed nothing but his Columbian Wyandottes. Mr. Nichols has been very successful as a breeder of Columbian Wyandottes and at the Great Allentown Fair Show he succeeded in winning second cockerel and 3rd pullet in one of the strongest lots of Columbian Wyandottes in the country. We feel safe in saying that Mr. Nichols will become one of the greatest breeders of this variety in the East.

WILL DISPOSE OF ALL HIS R. C. MINORCAS.

We have just received a letter from T. A. Faulds, the well known Minorca Breeder, London, Ont., stating that he will dispose of his entire flock of R. C. Black Minorcas, and will devote his entire time and attention to the Breeding of the S. C.'s. This will give some one an excellent chance to get some of the best R. C. Black Minorcas in America.

AN OPEN LETTER

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF CYPHERS INCUBATOR COMPANY TO EVERYBODY WHO IS INTERESTED.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 16th, the large warehouse at Buffalo, N. Y., in which were located the home offices, metal working departments and laboratory of Cyphers Incubator Company, was destroyed by fire, the loss in building and contents totaling about $200,000. The main factory building, illustrated herewith, in which our company has manufactured all incubators and brooders made by it during the last eleven years, was not reached by the fire nor injured in any way.

Saturday forenoon, August 17th, temporary general offices were opened in the paint shop and finishing room of the manufacturing building shown herewith. Monday morning, August 10th, an order for sixteen hundred Standard Cyphers Incubators, in assorted sizes, was started through the factory and in the afternoon of that day our regular force of tinsmiths was put to work in the brooder room of this factory, turning out metal parts for incubators, brooders, etc. That same afternoon space was rented in a separate, near-by building for use as a laboratory. All steel dies and a large number of metal-working machines were saved from the fire.

Fortunately for us, soon after the recent fire we were able to obtain, in this big establishment—by far the largest power plant in the City of Buffalo—all the additional manufacturing space we require for the present season. As a result, by October 15th we were as well situated to manufacture and ship goods as we have been at any time during the last six years.

As a matter of course our big new poultry food mill and warehouse, located at Chicago—built in 1910—was not injured by this fire, nor were we crippled in any way at our branch stores and warehouses in New York City, Boston, Kansas City, Mo. and Oakland, Cal.

At the time of the fire we had unusually large stocks of goods in our warehouses at New York City, Boston, Chicago, Kansas City, Mo., Oakland, Cal., and London, England. Immediately after the fire several carloads of seasonable articles were hurried to Buffalo from the nearest branches, with the result that orders were filled at all points during August and September almost as promptly as though no fire had occurred.

The astonishing fact is, that despite this severe fire, our sales for July, August and September, 1912, were greater than our sales for the same three months of 1911 by thirty-seven per cent., and we count as sales only such orders as are filled—only the shipments that actually are made. We hereby publicly thank our many customers for their continued liberal patronage at this time, when it was doubly welcome.

Since October 1, 1901—a period of eleven years—we have occupied half the ground floor of the immense power plant here illustrated, have operated one-half to three-fourths of the dry-kiln equipment and have had practically unlimited dockage and lumber piling space.

This fire showed the advantage of carrying a complete stock of goods at each of our seven places of business.

Next spring and early summer our company is to erect a large, model, special-purpose factory, to be used exclusively for the production of the more than one hundred poultry articles manufactured by us. An eight and one-quarter acre tract of land, centrally located in Buffalo, on the inner belt line of the New York Central Railroad, was bought by us October 2nd and the railway switches, sewer pipes and water mains are now being put in—October 15th. Architects have been employed and work on the buildings is to be started as soon as the weather will permit next spring, possession to be given us by the contractors not later than July 31, 1913.

MEANWHILE, AS ABOVE STATED, our company is every bit as well fixed to manufacture and ship its full line of goods for the season now at hand as it has been any time in the past and it is with this assurance to old and new customers that we solicit a liberal share of your 1912-1913 patronage, hereby agreeing to give prompt and careful attention to all orders entrusted to us.

Yours for continued progress,

OHIO STATE FAIR

The poultry exhibit at the Ohio State Fair, Columbus, O., was the largest on record at this popular State Fair. The Superintendent, Mr. Heiyer, proved himself a very capable and painstaking official and deserves the highest credit for the splendid success of the poultry department. He was on the job every minute of the time, always a gentleman, very considerate of the interests of every exhibitor, perfectly square in all his decisions, a real master of the situation—the Fair authorities are making a big mistake, not only in the interest of poultry, through omitting the State of Ohio, but also for the financial interest of the Fair, by not giving the poultry department a better building and employing the Superintendent at least six weeks before the fair opens to work up the entry list and to attend to the general details of the department. We are glad however to learn that these matters are being discussed among the Fair authorities and that it is morally certain they will be put into operation before another year rolls around. Such action will elicit the praise of all poultry men throughout the State and insure larger and better returns for all concerned than ever before.

The awards were placed by Judges Keeler, Sitis and Marshall to the satisfaction of practically all the exhibitors and were as follows:

SPECIFY "Tycos"—ALWAYS!

When you buy an incubator or a brooder, always specify that it be equipped with a "Tycos" thermometer. It will cost no more than an ordinary instrument.

Your dealer will be glad to furnish it. Its absolute reliability will insure a certainty in your hatches you can secure in no other way. A good machine should have a good thermometer—one that is accurate.

The accuracy of "Tycos" is permanent and dependable. "Tycos" thermometers in your incubators and brooders mean Bigger Hatches; Better Chicks; Larger Profits. Always specify "Tycos"

Demand "Tycos" Thermometers

MR. DEALER, your customers want them—in many cases insist upon them. Every "Tycos" equipped machine you sell means a Satisfied Customer. You can increase your sales by insisting on a "Tycos" in every incubator and brooder you handle. Many large manufacturers now put "Tycos" instruments in their entire output. They realize the greater value to the buyer of machines so equipped.

"Incubator Thermometer Tips"

is a valuable little book filled with hatching and brooding information.

Every poultryman should have a copy. Sent Free on request. Write today—now.

"Tycos" Instruments give best service because they are made right and are carefully tested before leaving the factory

This is the Superior Trough

It Solves Difficult Problems

Many kinds of appliances have been placed on the market for feeding fowls; and many have been found wanting. Some of the devices were almost impossible to clean and disinfect. In some the food clogged up, and when we thought the birds had plenty to eat, they were starving. This led to our manufacturing the

MADE A LONG SHIPMENT.

We have just received a letter from John S. Martin, the well known breeder of the Regal strain of White Wyandottes, of Port Dover, Ont., Canada, stating that he has just shipped two breeding pens of birds to Allahabad, India, 400 miles from Calcutta. This is going some and it looks as if John S. was establishing the Regal strain in the uttermost parts of the world.

Keep Your Hens Laying all Winter

—and you'll make more money than ever before. Eggs are going higher in price every day, the demand is far exceeding the supply, and it looks like good times and plenty of money for the man who has an

and is feeding his hens sprouted grains.

The "Ideal" will produce sprouts over 2 inches long in 24 hours—just the kind of green food necessary to insure prolific egg production.

It sprouts any kind of grain. It produces about three bushels of feed from one bushel of grain.

It pays for itself in a single month by saving in feed bills, increasing egg yield, supplying food that makes chicks grow strong, vigorous.

To do without an Ideal Grain Sprouter is to lose money this winter, especially when you can get one of a size suited to your needs at so low a cost—besides we pay the freight charges.

Do Not Delay—But Get Special Low Price Today

Write at once for special low price offer, full particulars and description of this perfect grain sprouter. No poultryman should be without it. It is the Biggest Money Maker for the Poultryman since the Incubator was invented. Made by J. W. ## Barry Strain---SINGLE COMB WHITE LEGHORNS

Universally Recognized--The Ideal Strain

WHY? Because they are bred to meet the requirements of the Fancier on account of their superb quality and bred to meet the requirements of the man who breeds for eggs.

Pullets and Cockerels--Grand Offerings

Just a word concerning cockerels—They are white, good shape, good heads, with excellent lobes. Concerning pullets will say—They are of the same high quality.

You will be surprised to see the quality for the money asked.

NEW PHILO UTILITY COOP.

The coop is twelve feet square and about three feet high, with a gable seven inches higher in the center than at the eaves. Being low, it has two advantages—all work on the inside can be easily done from the outside through the movable sections of the roof, and in winter the natural heat of the hens is conserved and kept close to where they work and roost.

The roof is made in fourteen sections, seven on each side. Of these seven sections, six are covered with prepared roofing paper and one is a sash, which is placed in the upper half, and equally distant from each end. The sash and the two other sections comprising the upper half of each side of the roof are fastened in position. The four sections comprising the lower half are movable, and each one can be pushed back under the upper section for the purpose of gaining access to the interior. In warm weather these can be push-about eighteen inches wide, are set on edge with a two-inch strip on top, and the space thus shut off is used as a dusting spot for the fowls, and this partition keeps the litter in the main part of the coop from being scratched into the dusting place. The dusting place is at the sunshiny end of the coop so that the dirt will be kept warm and dry, and the wire netting will allow a free escape of the dust into the outer air. A flat box is placed at one end of this little enclosure, and on this is placed a shallow crock for water, which is kept comparatively clean by its elevated position. Milk may also be served in the same way.

The nest boxes are placed near the top, at the roosting end of the coop, on both east and west sides. These have hinged doors that are fastened up during the day and closed at night to shut out broody hens and to prevent roosting on the edges.

Where the soil is light and porous, no floor will be needed during the summer, as the planned to help farmers to a better system of housing, it was soon seen that it would be of still greater advantage to the villager and suburbanite who would like to keep fifty or more fowls to produce market eggs and to raise broilers, and who has only limited room, and not much time to care for eight or ten small coops.

As the fact of its adaptability to a much wider use than at first planned began to dawn upon us, we looked about for a name that would be appropriate for it and in harmony with its various uses. It makes an ideal place for developing young fowls after the brooder coop stage is passed, and nothing could be better for growing a lot of cockerels, or fattening capons or other fowls for market, and we are finding it to be just the thing for laying hens. So in view of all these uses we could think of no more appropriate name than "Utility," and we have decided to put it in with our family of coops and call it "THE PHILO UTILITY COOP," and under this name we ed back a few inches so as to permit the escape of the heated air.

The south end of the coop is entirely covered with wire netting. In cold weather muslin-covered frames are placed outside this netting, keeping out the storm, but allowing a free passage of air in and out. In the east and west sides are openings about a foot wide near the top. These are covered with wire netting, and there are movable pieces of galvanized iron that can be so adjusted as to close the openings, partially or completely, as desired.

Underneath these latter openings there are four feed troughs so built that when in place the outside forms part of the coop, but which can be tilted outward, being balanced on the bottom edge, and cleaned and filled with feed, and then tilted back in place.

Just inside the north end, which is built of solid wood, is a series of roosting strips fastened together in sections, and removable for cleaning. These are about a foot from the floor, the inside resting on a board set edgewise which separates the pit, or dropping closet, underneath the roosts from the main part of the floor. In this pit may be put fine coal ashes or ground limestone and the droppings may be removed whenever necessary. By this arrangement of the roosts, which are close together, the fowls can never get their feet into the droppings, and if a soft-shelled egg is laid during the night, it falls into the pit and there is no danger that the hens will get it and thus form the egg-eating habit.

Across the south end, about thirty inches from the outside two boards, cleated together, ground can be kept in good condition by frequent stirring when the grain is buried. For the first three feet from the sides, a spading fork can be used, and for the space from that to the center, a potato hook will be just the thing to stir the ground thoroughly. In winter, or on wet soil, it will be well to put up a board floor made in sections, keeping it well covered with good straw litter. Under either arrangement the fowls will get plenty of exercise in scratching for the hidden grain, and will enjoy themselves, and do well.

We have had seven of these coops in use since about the first of February, and since the middle of May we have been increasing the number and they have given excellent satisfaction. Our first use of them was for young stock that were outgrowing the low brooder coops and it was a pleasure to watch them when we put the first hundred together in one of these roomy coops, where they could stand erect and stretch themselves to their utmost height, and where they could run and flap their wings. And when they began to scratch in the eight to ten inches of clean oat straw, how they did make it fly, and how happy they were!

Very soon the oldest of them began to lay, dropping the eggs anywhere in the straw, as we had not yet put in the nest boxes; but, as soon as these were in place, the nest-instinct asserted itself and they at once took possession, two, and sometimes three, being inside at once, and others waiting for a chance. The nest boxes have no partitions, and there is room for three hens in each one.

This coop is another instance of "building better than we knew." for while it was first hereby present it to our subscribers with our compliments and best wishes.

This coop will successfully accommodate 50 of any of the large breeds of fowls, and from 60 to 70 Leghorns. From 75 to 100 chicks when taken from the brooder coops can be placed in one of these with perfect safety.

These coops can be built at a cost not to exceed 80 cents a bird, on the basis of their housing only the minimum number, 50 fowls, which is much less than the average coop or house will cost, under the most favorable circumstances. And this figure can be considerably reduced if the poultryman can do his own building and does not include his time in the estimate.

So taking its good points and low cost together, we are sure that thousands of poultrymen will appreciate the privilege and avail themselves of the opportunity of housing their birds in this new Utility Coop.

Each of our coops has its desirable features, and is especially adapted to some phase of poultry work. We still have hundreds of the smaller coops in our yards, and shall continue to use them, as they are giving us unequalled satisfaction. But we are sure that there is a wide field for the introduction of this latest member of our coop family, and we cheerfully and confidently place it before our subscribers that they may study its merits and use it as freely as they desire.

The price of this coop is $40 equipped for northern climates; or $35 equipped for the South. For further particulars, address the Cycle Hatcher Co., Elmira, N. Y.

Don't Kill the Laying Hen

NO ARTICLE of food is in quite so big demand, all the year round, as strictly fresh eggs. You can always sell all you can get at fancy prices. Supplying fresh eggs yields good side money in a small way or makes a profitable business on a larger scale. It is the hen that lays 150 to 200 eggs a year that earns profit for you, so don't kill the layers because you don't know how to tell them from the drones who just eat their feed and don't lay enough eggs to pay for it. Kill the drones instead and save on your feed bill.

New Book on the Potter System of Selecting Laying and Non-Laying Hens and Egg Production

Contains 132 pages and 38 illustrations. It explains how the eggs grow; how nature controls the laying organs; how to determine the first stage of egg development, and how far off the laying period is; how to know the prolific layers; when and how to cull; how to tell when a hen has laid out her batch of eggs; the best way to break up the broody state; how eggs can be produced in winter; the effect of feed, vermin and disease on laying. In short, it tells the secrets of egg production from a physiological standpoint. It is all told in such simple language that a little practice will give you full understanding of these mysteries. You know the money you can make from such knowledge! The fact that many thousand copies have been sold and the twelfth edition is now at press gives you assurance of its worth.

Since 1874 AMERICAN POULTRY JOURNAL

Has educated the public how to raise and manage poultry properly, how to cut corners on the expense account and how to increase the income.

American Poultry Journal has become so big and the articles therein so costly that we will not attempt to give the subscriber a better paper for 50 cents a year, as we know that it's impossible. We don't want to stop where we are, as that would be an injustice to our subscribers, so there is only one way out of it, and that is, INCREASE THE VALUE and THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, thereby putting American Poultry Journal in a class by itself

January 1st, 1913

The subscription price of American Poultry Journal will be increased to One Dollar per year. Until that time subscriptions will be taken at the old rate of 50 cents per year or three years for One Dollar.

American Poultry Journal is issued once a month, contains an average of 150 pages each issue and is profusely illustrated.

QUALITY FOWL AT HAGERSTOWN

Strong Classes in Every Department Feature in this Year's Annual Exhibition

Again has Hagerstown pulled off one of the greatest fairs in the country. Every coop was filled with birds of quality. The waterfowl display was the best that has ever been exhibited. The strong classes were Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons, with Leghorns following closely. Hamburgs and Anconas were very strong. Dark Cornish was a large and fine class. Silver-laced Wyandottes a good class, especially the pullets. Pigeons and Bantam classes filled better than ever.

Breeders of fine poultry realize that a win at Hagerstown means that they have quality birds, which makes poultry at Hagerstown the leading feature. "The Record" medal winners were: First, Silver Wyandotte pullet, owned by Frank S. Sellers, Fort London, Pa., in the American Class; Hugh A. Rose, Welland, Ontario, Can., won the medal in the English class on a Black Orpington cockerel, and repeated in the Asiatic class on a White Brahma cock. Dune Alpin Farms, N. Y., won in the Mediterranean class on a classy Single Comb White Leghorn pullet. The Bantam medal went to Orr Lake Waterfowl and Poultry Farm, John C. Kriner, owner.

The banquet was well attended by visiting poultry breeders on Wednesday evening and with the majority of breeders it was "Meet me at Hagerstown next year." The judges were George O. Brown, Charles McClare, William G. Minnich, Richard Oke, William Atherton, George H. Burgott, Charles H. Shaylor, J. H. Drevensadt, Loring Brown, Herman Hoke, Hugh A. Rose, John Kriner, for poultry; C. E. Twombly, George Ewald and E. B. Ulrich, for pigeons.

"DON'T BE A CLAM."

"My dear" said Mrs. Noah, "those S. C. White Leghorns from Darlington have eaten up our only pair of fishing worms, and I fear the worms are extinct." "My dearest," said Noah, "Don't bother me about trifles, I just saw a lion and a lamb lying down together, but the lamb was inside the lion, I do wish we had specialized more and had not such a general farm."

The circulation of Poultry Fancier is national in character. It is the only poultry journal published solely in the interests of fanciers, the people who constitute practically the entire fraternity.

The mission of Poultry Fancier is to teach breeders how to produce the beautiful and valuable Standard bred birds which are the foundation of all profit and pleasure in poultry raising.

When you see an X marked in this space, it means your subscription has expired.

This is the Day---Now is the Time

In the last three issues of the Poultry Fancier we offered several thousand shares of the capital stock for sale at the par value of $1.00 per share, full paid and non-assessable, and many of our friends have subscribed, and we want everyone of our friends and patrons to take a small block, even if it is only five or ten shares. We want you with us. As we told you in past issues, Poultry Fancier Co. is chartered under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, and is today doing business in almost every state and territory in the Union, and the Provinces of Canada. Yes, sir, our stock is selling at par, and it is worth it, and we believe it will be worth a great deal more by April 1st. We want every one of our subscribers to take a few shares. (Now is the time, and today is the day). The money derived from the sale of stock will not be used to develop a business or promote a business. That is already done, but will be used in paying for our equipment which it was necessary to install to meet the demands. We therefore appeal to every one to take a few shares of Poultry Fancier Co.'s stock. It will bear at least six per cent. dividend, and we feel confident it will be worth a great deal more than par by April 1st. Do not delay. Any further information will be cheerfully given.

ARE YOU GETTING YOURS?

Are you getting your share of the business? If you are not advertising at this particular season of the year, you are missing a good trade. You should have started in November. That is too late now. December, January, February, March, April and May are before you—the six biggest selling months in the whole year. We want you to advertise in the Fancier. We have a circulation second to none, and all advertisers are treated alike, no matter if you are a classified advertiser or display. All have the same privileges. You must come in under the banner of "Equal rights and justice to all," no matter who you are or what you are.

We have a buying circulation, one that is not farmed out, or tilled out, a circulation of Poultry interested people whose value of standard bred poultry is based on more than pounds of flesh and dozens of eggs. Poultry Fancier's circulation represents the men and women who are willing to pay the price for the Fancier's product, and recognize the value of his skill in producing it.

Poultry Fancier is the real Fancier's journal, whose policy meets the approval of all fair-minded poultrymen. It is practically in a class by itself, endorsed by leading poultrymen from Canada as well as from all parts of the U. S. Hence we can say it is endorsed from ocean to ocean and from the Arctic to the Gulf with a circulation that reaches every civilized country in the world.

Mr. Advertiser, during the next 6 months our 150,000 readers are going to spend many thousands of dollars for stock and eggs. And this is the market we are laying at your very door. Are you going to get yours? If so get under the banner of the Fancier. Now is the time. We have the demand. Can you furnish the supply.

OVER 12,000 IN PENNSYLVANIA.

It is with grateful hearts that we thank the Poultrymen of Pennsylvania for the unequalled support given us in making it possible for this issue of Poultry Fancier to go into the homes of more than 12,000 poultrymen in the State of Pennsylvania alone. This, we claim, is the largest circulation of any one journal in any one State. Boys, we do not claim the credit. You we must thank for such support as was never extended to any publication.

It has just been eleven short months since the Fancier made its first stand for business at Williamsport, Pa., and Bridgeton, N. J., shows and in the short period of eleven months we added upwards of 25,000 new subscribers to our list. True enough our pathway has not been strewn with roses, but we kept working away night and day until now we can shout "Victory" with our more than 12,000 subscribers in our own State.

We have done our best to give you a journal that would be newsy, helpful and instructive, and one that we thought would be fit to grace the library tables of the best homes. Editorially, we stood steadfastly by our honest convictions, standing for the rank and file, and their interests, under all circumstances, and under all occasions, we tried to follow out the motto of our cover page, "Equal rights and justice to all."

True enough, we could not please you all, the Master himself could not do that, how then could you expect mortal man? The past is ours, it is gone forever, and the memory of the past eleven months shall forever linger with us. Well do I remember, (it seems but yesterday), when we brought an old camp table from the cellar and placed it in our front room to serve as a desk and subscription table. We had confidence. We worked hard and today we can shout "Victory is ours," and to the rank and file of the Poultrymen of this land and particularly those of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Maryland, Ohio and Indiana and the eastern and central States be given the credit for making the Fancier what it is today.

Once again I thank you and can give you the assurance that we will try our level best to make the Fancier even better in the future than what it has been in the past. Our policy shall remain just the same.

LOYALTY.

Every one who heard the speech of Hugh A. Rose, the prince of good fellows, at Hagerstown, agreed it was one of the best heard there in recent years. Mr. Rose stated that he was from Canada, and was loyal to his country, and flag, and that he was a chicken fancier, and enjoyed thoroughly the true spirit of sportsmanship shown there, and that Hagerstown was the place where all true Fanciers meet in friendly competition, irregardless of what country they are from.

Major Rose made an excellent address and made many friends. We all admire loyalty.

WHO IS IT?

The Hagerstown, Md. papers in commenting on the speakers at the Poultrymen's banquet stated that William African Boston made a very fine address, which was enjoyed by every one. Now the writer was at the banquet, and is sure that no one by that name spoke. I am inclined to think that the reporter got a little too much Hamilton punch, or was given a wild steer by Scott Bowers, for we all know that he means William Boston Atherton.

HOW TIME FLIES.

This issue contains the awards of the big shows held in connection with fairs, and the next issue will contain reports of the early winter shows, practically no time intervening before the gap is closed. The Fair season so far as poultry is concerned, has been a very successful one, and with one or two exceptions record breaking entries were recorded. One noticeable feature was the interest taken in poultry. This was brought out very plainly at the Allentown Fair show. During the week, with the exception of one day, it rained very hard, and aside from the Poultry Building the rest were practically empty, and in the aisles of the Poultry Building you had to edge your way through. This is good food for every Agricultural Association in the State to digest.

have proven themselves the "Best in the World." At the American Black Minorca Club Show, two years in succession, 1910-1911 and 1911-1912, they won the Directors' $50.00 cup for best collection. In 1911-1912 they won the President's cup for best S. C. and R. C. cock, hen, cockerel and pullet. This win was never equalled by any other Black Minorca breeder on the continent. I have decided to dispose of my entire flock of R. C. Black Minorcas and devote my attention exclusively to S. C. Black Minorcas. In the twenty years I have been breeding Black Minorcas I never had as high quality in both old and young stock as I have this season. By not exhibiting I will be in a better position than ever before to supply exhibition stock. Prices reasonable and quality guaranteed to suit or money cheerfully refunded. Slaughter prices until Dec. 1st as my flock is larger than my winter accommodation. Good hens and pullets at $2.00 each. Please send for sale list and testimonials, also complete list of prizes won at Guelph, Boston, New York, Buffalo, Toronto and London.

MARTIN'S REGALS

AT THE

New York State Fair

Judge Drevstedt's Report:

"White Wyandottes, magnificent classes, the best we remember handling at the State Fair. John S. Martin fairly out did himself with a wonderful string of Whites which filled many pens. Notably superior was the first prize cock, which is one of Mr. Martin's masterpieces in breeding White Wyandottes. But in hens, cockerels, pullets and pens he was equally well represented by the most uniform and well conditioned lot of Whites he ever exhibited."

Poultry Diseases and Remedies

Question.—What is the matter with my little chicks; they are dying off very rapidly. They have no diarrhoea, no lice, but they seem to have a sort of scale at the vent. I feed the best of chick feed, give the chicks plenty of fresh water and grit, they have lots of shade and green food. They are housed in a nice, clean brooder, with the temperature ranging from 88 to 90 degrees. I bought these chicks from a large breeder?

Answer.—Your chicks were not hatched properly. The appearance of a scale at the vent indicates that fact. Possibly the eggs were not well incubated, or it may be the parent stock had low vitality. Better write to the party you bought them of. Possibly he will send you more birds to replace these. He ought to do so if what you say about these chicks is true and I assure you we have every reason to believe your statement.

Ques.—Do you think whole oats a good feed for growing chicks?

Do you think there is any danger of oats piercing the chicken's crop?

Ans.—I would not feed the whole oats to growing chicks before they are three months old and then I prefer clipped oats if I can get them. I always feed pin-head or steel cut oats or oat flake to young chicks. It is great for bone and muscle.

Ans. 2.—I have never known of a case where whole oats pierced the crop of a chicken.

Ques.—Which variety of the Plymouth Rock family in your estimation is the best layer?

Ans.—The general claim is that one variety is as good as another. We have had extended experience with two varieties of the Rock family and found but little if any difference as to their laying qualities. Care has as much to do with prolificacy, we believe, as the strain itself. Some breeders have better success than others with birds taken from the very same strain. We would advise you to choose the variety which appeals to your fancy most, give them the right kind of care and feed and we feel sure the results will please you.

Ques.—My chickens are about 10 weeks old and are becoming droopy. They don't seem to have any appetite. They have a rather watery discharge from their mouths, their crops are empty and they pass a kind of a greyish colored liquid.

Ans.—Your birds are no doubt, suffering from indigestion. Give your chicks good, wholesome scratch feed, plenty of grit and pure water. Scatter the chick feed in deep litter, say 5 or 6 inches deep. Keep a mixture of 2 parts wheat bran and 1 part high grade beef scrap before them at all times. For the sick birds I would advise giving them a little bread and milk (sweet milk). Soak the bread in the milk and then squeeze out the milk until the bread crumbles nicely and feed three or four times a day. It would do no harm to scald the milk for a couple of days until watery discharge from the bowels stops.

Ques.—I have a White Rock hen that lost a part of her upper mandible lately and on examination I found a white, cheesy substance in the roof of her mouth. What is the matter with her? Can you suggest a cure?

...JACOBUS IMPROVED STRAIN SILVER CAMPINES...

WHY DID THE SILVER CAMPINE EGGS FROM MY YARDS WIN OVER ALL OTHER WHITE EGGS AT BOSTON IN '11 AND '12?

M. R. JACOBUS

RIDGEFIELD, NEW JERSEY

Ans.—Your hen has canker and we would advise you to remove her to other quarters, away from the rest of your birds. Carefully remove the canker with a tooth pick, swab the afflicted part with full strength hydrogen peroxide and apply a solution of 20 grains of boric acid to one ounce of water three times a day, after the above remedy has been applied sprinkle a little flowers of sulphur over the wound. The above is one of the safest and surest methods of curing canker we have ever tried.

Ques.—Dear Sir: What is the matter with my birds? They get sores on the side of their heads and combs from the size of a pin head to that of a large grain of corn. Nearly all my birds are afflicted. Can you help me?

Ans.—Another case of chicken pox. Yes, we can help you. Separate the afflicted birds at once. Give them dry, clean quarters. Disinfect the house where well birds are with a solution of 10 per cent. carbolic acid and water, remove the scabs carefully and apply Roupine if you have it; if not use carbolated ointment (which you can get at any drug store), three or four times a day until well. Disinfect the sores twice a day with hydrogen peroxide and use 1¼ drams of sulphate of copper (or blue stone) to every pint of drinking water each day until disease disappears, gradually reducing the amount of blue stone until its use is discontinued altogether. Better give the well birds blue stone in drinking water, as per above prescription for a week or so. It may prevent further spread of the disease.

Ques.—Dear Sir: My White Rock cock bird is sick. He seems to breathe hard, has rattling in his throat, and oft times gasps for breath. What is the matter with him? Can you give me a remedy to cure him?

Ans.—Your bird undoubtedly has bronchitis. Remove him to dry quarters where he will have plenty of fresh air, but where no drafts can strike him. Give him one teaspoonful of castor oil and in about two or three hours thereafter give him one-half teaspoonful coal oil, repeating the dose in 6 to 8 hours. Give the bird stale bread (not musty) soaked in skimmed, sweet milk, squeezed out fairly dry (just so it is not sloppy), mix two grains of black antimony into the bread and feed twice a day. If the castor oil does not operate in 5 or 6 hours repeat the dose. If this does not effect a cure, write me a personal letter and I will give you another remedy. Give full particulars of bird's symptoms if you find it necessary to write me again.

BIGGER PROFITS

FOR

Producers of Poultry Products

REAL SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEM

Co-operative Marketing of Poultry Products

is the producer's only salvation. It means less work and better prices for the producer, better products to the consumer and a marked stimulus to the poultry industry in general. Every poultryman, every farmer, every woman who cares for the home flock should learn about this effective method of getting the maximum profit out of poultry keeping. It's a great success in England, Denmark, and other foreign countries. It can and will be in America. The time is here for co-operative action to take the place of haphazard effort in marketing poultry products.

Poultry Husbandry has appropriated Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) for the purpose of employing high-class lecturers to appear before the students of Agricultural Colleges and Poultry Institutes, at Poultry Shows, before large gatherings of interested poultry raisers and farmers, to show how Co-operative Marketing can be accomplished—how it will vastly increase the profits of each poultry keeper. The first of the lectures referred to will be delivered in the early Fall.

Every poultry raiser will wish to keep in touch with the development of this great nation-wide co-operative movement that has been started. Poultry Husbandry, a wide awake and progressive monthly publication devoted exclusively to poultry culture, has formulated a unique plan for developing a system of Co-operative Marketing of Poultry Products. Send today for a free sample copy of Poultry Husbandry and free literature which describes the plan in detail. Write your name and address plainly on a penny post card stating that you desire this literature. Address

SECRETS OF SUCCESSFUL POULTRY RAISING POULTRY

SUCCESS and successful poultry raising are easily within the reach of everyone. Thousands every year take up poultry raising either in a large or small way. Many fail because they try to follow some SYSTEM they have been induced to buy that is not practical or involves so much labor as to be unprofitable for them. With Poultry Success, a reliable guide every month, and either the BRIGGS SYSTEM book or the SMITH SYSTEM book, or both, failure is impossible.

BRIGGS SYSTEM — SMITH SYSTEM

Best, Simplest, Most Practical

There is nothing difficult or complicated about either the BRIGGS SYSTEM or the SMITH SYSTEM. The equipment is also very simple and easy to make. One man can easily care for as many as 2,000 layers and 3,000 chicks. EQUALLY SUCCESSFUL FOR SMALL OR LARGE PLANTS.

FOLLOW BRIGGS OR SMITH and success is yours. Sick fowls are rarely seen, more eggs are hatched, more chicks are raised to maturity the egg basket is filled oftener, and the FEED BILL IS CUT WAY DOWN.

LESS MONEY REQUIRED, MORE MONEY MADE. Every branch of poultry keeping is thoroughly covered from start to finish. The priceless secret of many years' experimenting may now be yours. Every poultry raiser can increase his profits greatly by using the BRIGGS or SMITH SYSTEMS. (Briggs system is unequalled for free range, and is most successful also in confined quarters. Smith System is unquestionably without a rival for close quarters as well as confinement.)

Onlya Farm, Philip Kearney, Proprietor, Charles Staaf, Manager, Florham Park, N. J., Breeders of White Wyandottes. By F. W. DeLancey.

It is one of the special pleasures of an editor of a poultry journal to call the attention of the general poultry public to the various merits of breeders of high class poultry in the different sections of the country. These articles are valuable not only to the party or parties concerning whom they are written, but particularly are they of value to those who contemplate purchasing stock or eggs for their own yards and desire reliable information regarding breeders to whom they can trust their hard earned dollars and feel reasonably sure of receiving an equivalent for the same. In these Magazine articles which appear from month to month in the Fancier, it is our purpose to give this information and we feel a particular pride in calling the attention of our friends to the Onlya Farm, Florham Park, N. J., breeders of as high a class of White Wyandottes as can be found any where. The winnings Onlya Farm has made during the past two years is nothing less than marvelous when one considers the great competition they were up against. They have never exhibited anywhere that their birds were not right up among the highest winners in their class. Their birds have won the very best prizes in such shows as Philadelphia, Pa., Madison Square Garden, Boston and Hagerstown during the past season and already this season they won 1st cockerel, 1st and 3rd pens, 4th pullet, 5th hen and 3rd and 5th cock at Allentown, Pa., also 1st pullet at Hagerstown, Md., in the open class and at the time of writing this article we have not been able to learn their winnings in pen or the other classes. But for any one to make as marked winnings as the Onlya Farm at these two great Fall Fairs stamps quality of the highest order all over their birds. But the fact that they have made such sensational winnings tells but a part of the story. Others have done the same thing over and over again and their victories have been published far and wide but the glory and satisfaction of victory enjoyed by the Onlya Farm is, that they raised their own birds, every one of them. Every bird they showed, either old or young, were hatched and raised from eggs laid on their own farm by their own birds. This fact is well worth knowing by those who contemplate purchasing either stock or eggs for their own use for they are reasonably sure of securing stock that will reproduce them sellers if properly reared. The Onlya Farm has between five and six hundred young birds crowding on to maturity many of which will win in the largest shows of the land. Their cock birds and hens are in full feather and will be in great condition for the November and December shows. Their birds have no trace of brassiness, in fact have as white plumage as we have ever seen anywhere. They also have deep bay eyes, fine combs and wonderful shape. And unhesitatingly predict that many of the most sensational winners in the White Wyandotte alleys of the country will be furnished by the Onlya Farm people. Philip Kearney, owner and Mr. Staaf, Manager of the Onlya Farm are men of the strictest integrity and are worthy of the highest esteem and confidence of all our friends. They guarantee satisfaction to every customer and will ship all birds upon approval. The Fancier heartily recommends the Onlya Farm and their method of doing business with their customers and we feel confident that any one who desires as good as the best in Wyandottes will have no cause for regret if they decide to place a portion of their business with this firm. The address is Florham Park, N. J.

Scene on the plant of Chas. V. Keeler, Winimac, Ind., where the famous Keeler White Wyandottes are bred.

THE INCUBATOR OUTLOOK.

Sales of Mammoth will Eclipse all Previous Records.

Poultry writers are generally agreed that this winter and coming spring will see new high market records for poultry and eggs. It is evident that the supply is insufficient to meet the country's consumption. The inevitable result is found to be that next spring more amateurs will want to take up poultry and that the poultry plants will increase their stock.

The wideawake poultrymen are already preparing for this opportunity to reap golden profits. They realize that the man who has the right equipment to do Custom Hatching and to handle Baby Chicks will have more business offered him than he can handle. The man who selects the incubator that requires the least attention can handle the largest volume of business and makes the most money.

The Candee is the most automatic of any incubator made. It is made up in sections that are quickly set up and easily enlarged. It meets the practical requirements and its use on many of the most noted farms and country estates attests its successful operation. In capacity, the Candee holds from 1200 to 20 000 eggs, divided into 300 egg compartments, all supplied from one heater. If you wish to know more about this wonderful incubator and how it fits your business, send for a catalogue to the Candee Incubator and Brooder Company, Eastwood, N. Y.

THE BIG BATTLE.

Will be Fought December 23-28, in Big Armory Building, Louisville, Ky.

The poultry fanciers of the country are coming together in a "conflict" that is going to attract the attention of the whole nation. The "battle" will be fought in the big Armory Building, Louisville, Ky., Christmas Week, December 23-28. It will be a "clash" between the North, the South, the East and the West. The "big guns" and the "little guns" will all be there, and the best "guns" are going to win, and a winning at the Great Armory Show means the best in the land. The victorious breeders can truthfully say they have "whipped" the entire country. The South-Central Poultry Association is sparing neither time nor money in making the Great Armory Show at Louisville, an Annual National Poultry event of second importance to none. Here is one of the finest poultry exhibition halls in the world, located in the very heart of a city of a quarter of a million people, who are interested in poultry, and in a section of the country that promises to become the greatest poultry field on the face of the globe. You can not afford to miss the Great Armory Show. A big list of handsome silver specials will be offered in addition to the regular cash premiums and every obligation of the Great Armory Show will be met in full. The building will be beautifully decorated and illuminated. Special days and nights have been designated and special features have been arranged to make the great poultry exposition one of the biggest events ever planned in the Falls City. The newspapers, the Commercial organizations and the citizens generally of the city of Louisville are all boosting the Great Armory Show of 1912. John A. Murkin, Nashville, Tenn., Secretary-Treasurer, will be pleased to mail premium lists, floor diagrams for booth space, and any other information to those interested.

THE YORK (PA.) FAIR POULTRY SHOW.

The Poultry Department connected with the great York County Fair was beyond all doubt the finest exhibition that has ever been held in York Co. This is possibly due to the fact that the Fair management was ably supported by the big Poultry Associations of Glen Rock, Dallastown and Red Lion, and was under the superintendency of Allen Seitz, one of the live wires of fancy Poultrydom in Southern Pennsylvania.

A number of the classes were really nothing less than remarkable, especially the White Rock class, and the S. C. White Leghorn class. It was from these two classes that the best bird in the show was to be picked. At least it boiled down to that, and the final battle for this honor lay between the first S. C. W. Leghorn pullet, and the first White Rock pullet. The White Rock pullet was finally awarded the prize of the highest scoring bird in the show, which carried with it a $50.00 cup. Elsewhere in this issue will be seen our comment on the first W. Rock pullet, which was owned and bred and exhibited by the Highland Farms, York, Pa. This was beyond all doubt the finest White Rock pullet that we have seen shown this season. Considering the season of the year, this bird was as near perfect as any we have ever seen.

Leg Bands are Necessary

VICTORY

"Poultry Fancier" Now Greatest of all Eastern Poultry Journals.

November issue contains 637 Paid Adds---Our next nearest competitor 564.

On behalf of the entire staff of the Fancier and every employee I extend my heartfelt thanks to the Poultrymen of America for making the Poultry Fancier the greatest of all Eastern publications. To you and not to us belongs the credit. Every employee extends to you their heartiest thanks and pledges their best effort to maintain the proud position we now occupy. We have always been optimistic of the poultry industry. We are not going to pledge our best efforts, we did that long ago, at a time when the rank and file needed it. It has only been ten months since we purchased the "Fancier" we not only consecrated our very few dollars we had (only a few) but we consecrated our lives to the cause. We were optimistic of the future, we knew there was a field. We entered it heart and soul. "We won" and now my dear readers, I want to tell you, this issue of the "Poultry Fancier" goes into the homes of over 12,000 paid in advance subscribers in the State of Pennsylvania alone. This is possibly the greatest circulation ever obtained by any one journal in any one State. This November issue carries the adds of more Poultry organizations than any other journal in America. We want you to rejoice with us, for it is you who made all things possible. Let it be known to you all (And this pledge we make) "Our Policy of Equal Rights and Justice to All"—shall prevail. Yes, we suffered the pangs of poverty—It was no disgrace—In the dark hours. We remembered the old saying, "The darkest hour is just before dawn," and oft times at mid-night hours we would be thinking of that old hymn, "Jesus Saviour Pilot me, over lifes tempestuous seas; unknown waves before me roll, hiding Rock and Treacherous Shoul." We have done our best. I thank you all, and hope to have the pleasure of thanking you personally in the near future,

Thankfully yours,
FRANK W. DeLANCEY.

GEORGE AUSTIN.

Managing Pleasantdale Farms.

There are very few poultrymen who are not acquainted with George Austin and his many friends will be pleased to know that he is now manager of the Pleasantdale Farms, located at West Orange, N. J., and owned by C. W. Nichols. Mr. Austin is particularly known to the Wyandotte Fraternity and in the mating, breeding and conditioning the Wyandotte he is considered a past master in the art; this fact he again emphasized very strongly at the Great Allentown Fair show when in competition with the foremost breeders, Pleasantdale Columbians won 1st hen, 1st cock, 2d pullet and 4th hen and also a $50 cup. At Flemington, N. J., he won 18 prizes on 16 entries. Pleasantdale will be seen and heard from at the big winter shows and unless we are very much mistaken this old war horse of the Wyandotte tribe is going to put Pleasantdale on the map in such a way as will make them sit up and take notice.

A GREAT BIRD.

We can not help but make mention of the 1st White Rock Pullet at the York Fair. Beyond all doubt this was the best White Rock Pullet shown this season. It was as near perfection as anything we have ever seen both in quality and condition. It won special for best bird in show. It was owned bred and exhibited by the Highland Poultry Farm, York, Pa.

A WONDERFUL DISPLAY.

A wonderful Display. The display of Columbian Wyandottes made by Dr. J. S. Rittenhouse, Loraine, Pa., at the Hagerstown Fair was nothing less than remarkable and with lacings equal to the best Brahmas we have ever seen and of typical Wyandotte shape. There is no use of talking we must take off our hat to the Doctor, he is a past master in the art of mating.

A VERY PROMISING OUTLOOK.

The National Fanciers Club Show to be held in Tomlinson Hall, Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 11 to 17, 1913, promises to be the biggest poultry Show that was ever held in this city, as inquiries are coming in every day from this and adjoining States for premium lists and concession space. Besides, the management has secured the annual meets of the National Black Orpington Club, National Indian Runner Duck Club and the National Bronze Turkey Club which will meet in annual sessions on different days during the exhibition, and the number of entries guaranteed is satisfactory to the Association.

Every member of this Association is a fancier, and the Judges who hang the ribbons are the best in America, all premiums are guaranteed to be paid in full and that coupled with the fact that it is the only exclusive poultry show in the Central West, appears to the best breeders everywhere, realizing that a ribbon won at a show of this kind carries advertisement of great value, and knowing at the same time that quality will get the ribbon.

Send for the premium list now which will be ready for mailing December 1, telling about our uniform cooping, how cages will be displayed to show every bird to the best advantage and many other things peculiar to this great quality show of America, where breeders of Indiana and adjoining States will exhibit their specimens and a win at the National Fanciers Club Show will be heralded everywhere.

File your application for premium list now and you will get one as soon as they are off the press. Henry C. Dippel, Secy., 114 N. Delaware St., Indianapolis, Ind.

S. C. White Leghorns

Newell's bred to lay and pay winners

The big winners at leading Pennsylvania shows. Exhibition and breeding birds for sale at reasonable prices. Have special offerings in cocks, hens, cockerels and pullets. I guarantee you satisfaction.

PRESIDENT HICKS APPOINTS PERMANENT HOME COMMITTEE.

The Chicago Poultry Society (which made an offer of $100,000 at the Nashville Convention for the permanent home of the American Poultry Association) is more than pleased at the selection of President Hicks' permanent home committee. The committee as appointed by our worthy president is as follows: R. V. Hicks, Chairman, (ex-officio); E. B. Thompson, Amenia, N. Y.; T. E. Quisenberry, Mountain Grove, Mo.; Geo. H. Rudy, Mattoon, Ill.; Rufus Delafield, So. Plainfield, N. J.

The above committee is certainly a representative of one of the best breeders and business men that could be chosen and President Hicks is to be congratulated on his selection of such a body of fairminded and honored gentlemen to serve on this important committee.

Chicago is still in the race to secure the permanent home of the American Poultry Association, and is ready to have the above committee investigate its offer for the home any time it is ready to do so.

The Chicago Poultry Society at its September meeting, voted to endorse Detroit's effort to get the next annual meeting of the American Poultry Association for that city. Detroit is an ideal convention city being centrally located, with no extreme hot weather in the summer time and possessing ample facilities for entertaining and handling large convention crowds. There are also many beautiful and picturesque sites in and around Detroit worth going hundreds of miles to see.

CONDITION YOUR BIRDS PROPERLY.

Elsewhere in this issue will be seen the advertisement of A. R. Saylor Drug Co. of Allentown, Pa. The name of Saylor is about familiar to the Fancy Poultry World as Barnum is to the school boy. Mr. Saylor has been demonstrating his goods at all of the leading Poultry Shows, for a number of years past and they certainly must have merit for they are used and endorsed by leading Poultrymen everywhere.

Mr. Saylor's latest production on the market is a condition tablet, used to condition the birds for the show room, and to keep them in health while there and to prevent any after attacks from sickness.

This is certainly a great boon to the Fancy Poultry Business, as we are told by men who know, that this is the greatest thing that has been put on the market for a number of years.

I need not go into the merits of Saylor's Poultry Powder, Roupe Remedy and Lice Killer, they are too well known to be commented upon. We respectfully call the attention of all our readers to their advertisement in this issue of the Fancier.

CHAMBERSBURG (PENNA.) SHOW.

The third annual show of the Franklin County Poultry Association will be held at Chambersburg, Pa., Dec. 11, 12, 13 and 14. The show has grown in size and importance each year, and this year promises to eclipse all previous exhibitions.

The show is held in a large, airy building, absolutely fireproof, with concrete floor and ample skylights running the length of the room. It is convenient to the express offices, of which there are three in the city, and the Association will be able to handle the birds better than ever before.

Three judges will award the prizes, of which one is a pigeon and bantam specialist. The premiums are generous, while there is an extra long list of specials, including sweepstake cash prizes for cock, hen, cockerel, pullet and largest entry. There are also eighteen silver cups, and it is a ribbon show throughout.

For catalogue, address E. E. Eckel, Secretary, Chambersburg, Pa. Entries close at midnight, Saturday, November 30.

CHICAGO POULTRY SOCIETY.

Per Clarence Ward, Chairman Publicity Committee.

THE NATIONAL LANGSHAN CLUB, offers to members in both varieties of Langshans, the following: For the best shaped male, best shaped female, best colored male, and best colored female, each, A FINE PENNANT.

Fees, to September 1913, including MEMBERSHIP PENNANT, $1.00.

JOHN ALDRICH, Sec.-Treas
Maple Road, Longmeadow, Mass.

Down-to-Date Poultry Knowledge

34 Chapters---Handsomely Illustrated

WRITTEN BY

F. W. DeLANCEY assisted by F. D. SUTTON

...Notice...

IN THE PAST this great book has only been offered in connection with a three years' subscription to POULTRY FANCIER, and we wish to advise all our old subscribers that it means them also. We will renew your subscription for 3 years and send you the book for $1.00. This is beyond all doubt the greatest offer ever made and for the benefit of all who desire this book we have decided to sell it for the small sum of

50 cents

and we dare say it is worth hundreds of dollars to any man or woman who raises chickens. We want every one raising chickens to give himself a square deal. This you can't do unless you have the knowledge.

Be Honest With Yourself READ THIS

The following notice appeared in Farm & Gardens, published by Munn & Co., New York City:

"The title of the book has been rightly chosen and emphasizes the fact that without knowledge of the poultry business the chances of making a success are small. The teachings are both applicable to fancy and utility poultry breeders. The writer's knowledge seems to be complete, and he has written the book in a manner which makes it easily understood by the layman. The book will enable those about to start in the poultry business to start rightly, and those already in the business to steer clear of breakers and ultimately build up a successful business.

LOOK and READ

our large adv. elsewhere in this issue telling you just exactly what the 34 chapters are. Practically a complete course in Poultry Culture, sent prepaid to any address in the U. S. and Canada for 50 cents or given free with a 3-year subscription to POULTRY FANCIER for $1.00. No matter when your subscription expires, take advantage of this, it will be extended three years from the date of its expiration. Order to-day. You need this book.

WHITE PLY ROCK COCKEREL
FIRST at the GREAT HAGERSTOWN FAIR-1911 and SECOND at BALTIMORE-1912
Bred and Exhibited by ROCKLAND FARM - Benson, Md.

Want This $100.00?

Rockland Farm will give to each of its two winning customers under the following conditions a prize of $50.00 cash.

To the customer winning the greatest number of first prizes with a cockerel purchased from Rockland Farm.

To the customer winning the greatest number of first prizes with a pullet purchased from Rockland Farm.

These birds to be purchased and exhibited between October 1, 1912 and October 1, 1913. The Poultry Fancier to hold the money until Oct. 1st, 1913 when the winning owners or owner will be decided upon by three men to be selected by the Poultry Fancier. The owner of a bird competing for these prizes should promptly report to the Fancier each winning made by his bird, and will be required to display on the bird's coop in the show rooms a card stating that the bird was purchased from Rockland Farm, Benson, Md.

The customer who purchases a $5 bird will have an equal chance with the one who purchases a $75 bird by entering in the smaller shows. This is a splendid opportunity to get an excellent breeder and win a good prize also. We have more of them and better White Rocks this season than ever before.

Standard Wyandottes in Colors and How to Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

REACHES THE CLIMAX FOR THOSE INTERESTED IN THIS VARIETY. WHEN YOU SEE IT YOU WILL ACKNOWLEDGE THAT IT IS THE BEST AND WORTH MANY TIMES THE PRICE TO YOU.

This book teaches you How to Score and Judge the greatest of all the American varieties. No other work published will give the information as it is given by Theo. Hewes in his articles, which are fully illustrated by over one hundred pictures, together with the chart system, of which he is the originator, and which is copyrighted by him. Not only do full page half-tone plates of some of the finest living specimens of these breeds appear in black and white, but the richest and grandest work ever done in oil by an artist is given by I. W. Burgess in a series of twelve pictures representing male and female, accompanied by feathers from the different sections of the birds in colors.

Size of book 11½x8½ inches. Contains over 70 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE, $1.00

These pictures are 4½x7 inches in size, and cost over $1,000 for the copper plates alone, to say nothing of the artist's labor and general cost of production. In fact no expense has been spared to make it by far the most valuable work on Wyandottes ever printed in America or elsewhere you cannot duplicate it at any price, but you can have one by return mail for $1.00, and if you are not satisfied we will refund your money. We do as we say we will, now and always. Our past dealings with the public will prove this.

Remit by Express, P. O. Order or Check as this is the safest way. Book will be sent immediately upon receipt of order.

RHODE ISLAND REDS

How to Breed and Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

Is the Best and Most Complete Treatise Ever Published on this Popular Breed

There are but few breeds so widely advertised to-day as the Rhode Island Reds and no breed in which there is such a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes perfection.

"RHODE ISLAND REDS; HOW TO BREED AND JUDGE THEM"

"STANDARD OF PERFECTION"

because it goes into detail and describes every section, with numerous illustrations, showing ideal and defective shape and color, thus making scoring so simple that any one can understand. Some sections have four or five illustrations showing the several defects that may be found in them, with the proper discount for the same as applied by our leading Judges.

Size of Book 11½x8½ inches, Contains over 50 pages, including cover which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00

In addition to this most complete series of articles on scoring, there are numerous articles from America's foremost Red breeders on every phase of Red Breeding. This book tells you just what you want to know. It tells you how to mate your pens; how to grow your chicks; how to select your show birds; in fact, it tells you how to grow, exhibit and make money out of Reds.

This book is sold on approval. The price is $1.00. If you are not satisfied with your bargain, send us back the book and we will refund your money.

BIGGER PROFITS

FOR

REAL SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEM

Who gets the largest profit out of poultry products? Certainly not the producer nor the retailer. It's the middleman.

is the producer's only salvation. It means less work and better prices for the producer, better products to the consumer and a marked stimulus to the poultry industry in general. Every poultryman, every farmer, every woman who cares for the home flock should learn about this effective method of getting the maximum profit out of poultry keeping. It's a great success in England, Denmark, and other foreign countries. It can and will be in America. The time is here for co-operative action to take the place of haphazard effort in marketing poultry products.

Poultry Husbandry has appropriated Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) for the purpose of employing high-class lecturers to appear before the students of Agricultural Colleges and Poultry Institutes, at Poultry Shows, before large gatherings of interested poultry raisers and farmers, to show how Co-operative Marketing can be accomplished—how it will vastly increase the profits of each poultry keeper. The first of the lectures referred to will be delivered in the early Fall. Every poultry raiser will wish to keep in touch with the development of this great nation-wide co-operative movement that has been started. Poultry Husbandry, a wide awake and progressive monthly publication devoted exclusively to poultry culture, has formulated a unique plan for developing a system of Co-operative Marketing of Poultry Products. Send today for a free sample copy of Poultry Husbandry and free literature which describes the plan in detail. # A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent on Trial to Prove It

Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer.

After Thirty Year's Experience I Have Produced an Appliance for Men, Women and Children That Actually Cures Rupture.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon to-day and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief where all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not. Mr. C. F. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Dear Sir:—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and it is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on. It just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot no matter what position it was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers, I am

Yours very sincerely,

JAMES A. BRITTON.

80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Confederate Veteran Cured

Commerce, Ga., R. F. D. No. 11.

Mr. C. E. Brooks,

Dear Sir:—I am glad to tell you that I am now sound and well and can plough or do any heavy work. I can say your Appliance has effected a permanent cure. Before getting your Appliance I was in a terrible condition and had given up all hope of ever being any better. If it hadn't been for your Appliance I would never have been cured. I am sixty-eight years old and served three years in Eckle's Artillery, Oglethorpe Co. I hope God will reward you for the good you are doing for suffering humanity.

Yours sincerely,

H. D. BANKS.

Others Failed but the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him three months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you.

Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON.

No 717 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Cured at the Age of 76

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which, considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,

Jamestown, N. C. SAM. A. HOOVER.

21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa.

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

The above is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who has been curing others for over 30 years. If ruptured, write him to-day.

Child Cured in Four Months

Gentlemen:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.

Yours very truly,
ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon to-day.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Send for Brooks' Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market to-day, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day.

SECRETS OF SUCCESSFUL POULTRY RAISING

POULTRY

SUCCESS and successful poultry raising are easily within the reach of everyone. Thousands every year take up poultry raising either in a large or small way. Many fail because they try to follow some SYSTEM they have been induced to buy that is not practical or involves so much labor as to be unprofitable for them. With Poultry Success, a reliable guide every month, and either the BRIGGS SYSTEM book or the SMITH SYSTEM book, or both, failure is impossible.

BRIGGS SYSTEM — SMITH SYSTEM

Best, Simplest, Most Practical

There is nothing difficult or complicated about either the BRIGGS SYSTEM or the SMITH SYSTEM. The equipment is also very simple and easy to make. One man can easily care for as many as 2,000 layers and 3,000 chicks. EQUALLY SUCCESSFUL FOR SMALL OR LARGE PLANTS.

FOLLOW BRIGGS OR SMITH and success is yours. Sick fowls are rarely seen, more eggs are hatched, more chicks are raised to maturity the egg basket is filled oftener, and the FEED BILL IS CUT WAY DOWN.

LESS MONEY REQUIRED, MORE MONEY MADE. Every branch of poultry keeping is thoroughly covered from start to finish. The priceless secret of many years' experimenting may now be yours. Every poultry raiser can increase his profits greatly by using the BRIGGS or SMITH SYSTEMS. (Briggs system is unequalled for free range, and is most successful also in confined quarters. Smith System is unquestionably without a rival for close quarters as well as confinement.)

Text and Illustrations are based on the changes in the 1910 American Standard of Perfection.

The most valuable feature of all. Tells what changes were made, why they were made and how they will affect the mating and breeding problems that now confront the breeders of Orpingtons. Progressive breeders and exhibitors who wish to keep abreast of the times cannot afford to be without this book. Text supplemented by over sixty illustrations, by Sewell, Schilling and Burgess, a study in pictures that will prove valuable to breeders, bringing clearly before the eyes of all Orpington admirers, in the minutest detail every point of value in the fowl. The text and illustrations not only bring the book down to date, but anticipate the advancement of the breed for years to come.

The book consists of 80 large pages, 8½ x 11½, is printed on first class paper and bound in a handsome cover.

“Cornish” --- A Premier Fowl for the Fancier

By John W. Ward, Jr.

GENUINE fancier in selecting a breed generally has three ideas chiefly in mind. The breed he selects must be attractive in appearance, something that he can point to with pride either to a friend in his backyard, or to the same or other friends in the show-room. The fowl must be suitable for the table in order that his culls may be put to good use and his own needs satisfied, and the bird he feeds must be able to lay a fair number of eggs. These facts being true, Cornish are surely premier fowls for the fancier.

In many breeds the fancier has but one variety to choose from, in others there is a sameness that does not appease, but in Cornish surely any man's tastes can be satisfied with one of the three varieties we have, either the Dark, the White, or White Faced Red, alike in that bull-dog type alone, certainly distinct in their colorings from each other. The Dark males having a beautiful breast coloring of the richest greenish black, getting darker, and darker as one looks back along the body toward the stern until the greenish black blends into a black itself.

Wing-fronts, wing-bows and coverts again presenting a lustrous dark green giving a beautiful "sheen," with possibly just a slight touch of red, which must be very dark, in the wing bows. Primaries again black with a narrow edging of bay on outer web of feather, and secondaries black above shaft, with all bay below except for a narrow edging just along shaft, neck, back and low carried tail, carry out the color scheme of greenish black of richest color with red shafting, not too prominent, in hackle, and some very deep red in back and on saddle. Females have that rich marking of the wild part-ridge, being marked all over with a beautiful double penciling of rich greenish black on mahogany, except in hackle which is practically all greenish black. The Whites, are, as the name implies, a pure white fowl, massive in their build, which shows off the White to perfection. The White Laced Red is a new creation, but I believe when bred true to color with a white lacing around each deep red feather, they are one of the most beautiful creatures in our feathered world of to-day. Can you imagine a wider range of color to pick from under one breed? A premier fowl for the fancier in color alone. The Cornish.

Having a fowl that strikes the eye, the next thought is of what use it can be for the table and whether or not it will at least keep the egg basket half full. I sincerely believe, and my belief is upheld by others that in Cornish we have a table fowl without a peer. Deep chested, the breast in many cases even coming out beyond the breast bone, giving the latter a set-in appearance, they have perfectly wonderful breasts, even when young, making them the best of broilers. Muscular in wings and legs, we find a lot of white meat on the wings and "drumsticks" which rival even those of the turkey, and in Cornish more meat is found along the back than in any other breed of poultry. For eggs, we do not claim to equal the Leghorn as a typical egg "machine," but you must remember when comparing a light breed with a heavy one that the heavy fowl has a carcass to fill out and attend to, while a smaller bird puts the same amount of food into eggs, has a tough pigeon-like carcass, which even when cooked to a tender point, is so small that it does not go very far with a man who has been working either with his brain, or his hands all day, or all morning. Cornish will hold their own, egg for egg, with any of the heavier breeds like the Rocks, etc. Having great vigor, energy, and a big body, they can be forced for egg production without breaking down under the strain because of the lack of that important essential under any strain—vitality. Properly bred, not pampered, Cornish will lay eggs.

I have shown you in the above sketch a few facts that I have a personal knowledge of in regard to Cornish. I believe that you, from an unprejudiced point of view, will agree with me that Cornish are a premier fowl for the fancier.

ORPINGTONS

By G. J. May

Having been asked by the Editor of this paper to write an article on Orpingtons, I take pleasure in doing so, as I have bred them now for a number of years. As to their origin this has so often been explained, so I will pass this over only saying that knowing the originator as I did, I feel sure he never even had the slightest idea that they ever would become in America the most valued breed. This, of course, will be admitted by all. What is most gratifying to me is the fact that the Orpington won her way into the heart of every lover of good birds, on her merits alone, as one has to remember that the general idea was that their white skin and legs would never be overlooked. But it is a case of giving honor where it is due, the result obtained in all lands having proved over and over again that she can and will hold her own with any breed especially through the winter months, for this is when she lays the most eggs. I have bred and shown all three colors so will just make a few remarks that I hope may be useful to some of your readers.

Buff Orpington was one of my first loves and still is a great favorite of mine. The buff, from her color alone, has a great fascination for all lovers of nice chickens, but I do not wish any one to imagine to breed Buffs is a very easy matter; no, not at all, for it requires a great amount of patience and study to produce good even specimens. In mating Buffs, I find the best way is to choose your females that match the color of the breast of the male, not in any case using extremes. Then to produce any like decent stock you must have size on the female side, as this is where you get the size from. I never mind even an eight pound bird if he has type and even surface color, and above all a well set comb and bright red eye.

Black Orpingtons are among the most attractive specimens in the chicken world as no breed can equal them for massiveness and, if good specimens, their deep green sheen when seen in the sun has a most brilliant contrast to the green grass or even to a gravel pen. The hardest point to deal with is their tendency to produce barring across their feathers, in fact, very few are quite free from it. But this can be bred out with consistent care and selection. Never mate a deep green sheen male with females that have any sheen at all if possible; the more dull in color the better, so that they are black to the skin.

White Orpingtons are the most sought after of all breeds at the present moment and to any one who is a believer in numbers, look up the number of White Orpingtons that have been shown this winter at St. Louis, Chicago, New York and Baltimore and you will be greatly surprised, as in several cases, they have been the largest class in the show and by all means the most valuable, for it is no uncommon thing to be asked $1000 or $500 for a male bird of this breed and not only this, but plenty are prepared to pay this amount for a winner of a "Blue" at one of the large shows, and up to $500 for a female. This plainly shows which way the wind blows and my advice is to any one taking up the chicken business, start with Orpingtons, whatever color you most prefer, and you will never regret it. If you will only write to some good reliable firm and say what you are prepared to pay and then leave the entire matter in their hands, for we all like to feel that our customers trust us, and then it is up to us to "make good."

Partridge Plymouth Rocks, owned and bred by F. N. Perkins, Freeport, Ill. Mr. Perkins is recognized as one of the foremost breeders of this now popular variety.

In conclusion, I will say, I advise in all cases buy the very best you can afford as a good start is half the battle.

The Buff Wyandottes

Type---Austin W. Carpenter

Color---Henry R. Ingalls

TYPE has placed the Wyandottes in the position they occupy today. This being true it is important to give considerable consideration to the production of true Wyandotte type in breeding this variety or breed of fowls. It is an easy matter to distinguish proper type when once it presents itself, yet it is not so easy a matter to produce the same year in and year out upon our Wyandotte farms. Problems are presented that are extremely interesting and at the same time annoying. No matter how many birds are raised we have our hopes either shattered or gratified as the results of experiments in mating made run.

To commence with I believe that the females have more to do in producing shape than the males. In this particular I believe we find an exception to the rule that the male is half the breeding pen. Such has been my experience in producing this variety.

First of all we must have symmetry in both male and female. Now what do we mean by symmetry? Just this That the bird must not look out of proportion. Each individual portion of the body must correspond with each other part of the body. Length and slope of back must correspond with curving slope of breast and rear portions of body. Breast should not be of such width as to over balance the width of back or fluff.

The only solution of this problem of symmetry is found in the use of small matings. Cull and cull again until only birds that are in proportion are left for the mating. Mate only those that balance or even up in breast, back and fluff. Thus the foundation is laid for true Wyandotte type. Follow this up with line breeding and your birds will keep true to the type that has given them the title of "body of curves."

The breast of the Wyandotte gives it the utility qualities of which it justly boasts. The demand for market fowls is the demand for birds with large, wide and deep breasts.

Use males with great breadth and depth of breast. So many of our males are deficient in breast. Select sires who have large and deep breasts that are well rounded. We find many males that lack the fullness of breast which brings that portion of the body out in line with the beak. Again we find many that fail to carry the full breast the required distance to give it the gradual slope to the limbs that makes so strong for good type.

While we find considerable trouble in securing the standard breast in the males yet we will experience still more difficulty in producing this feature in the females. The majority of the females in our breeding pens today lack fullness of breast. Above all select females that have great breasts in width and depth and that round out in great fullness. Those are the females that make good in the show room and the ones that produce the flock of chicks that have Wyandotte type stamped upon them no matter from what angle your view point may happen to be. Keep the female up in breast. Let me repeat it. Keep the female up in breast.

When we come to getting the standard Wyandotte back we encounter still further obstacles. It neither wants to be too short nor too long. It wants to be of sufficient length to balance up the bird. Here comes our symmetry again. I think we have heard too much about short backs in Wyandottes. So much has been said and done along this line of breeding that in far too many of our best birds the back is altogether too short. You cannot shorten the back too much without doing away with your symmetry and this feature eliminated your Wyandotte type disappears. Of course it will not do to get too long a back. The longer the back the greater the tendency to lose the rounding slope that makes the Wyandotte. Don't use either sex that have too long backs and especial care should be taken to discard females, the straight backs.

When we come to the fluff we must solve a problem that is perhaps less difficult than either that of breast or back. The fluff should be well rounded in both male and females in order to carry out the curve of the breast. The plumage on fluff should be quite heavy so as to fill out the rear portion of the body to balance up and correspond with the well rounded breast.

Tail should always be short. If high and long it breaks up the symmetry of the bird and deprives it of its beauty. It should be well spread and the feathers fall over to rear in a well rounded slope.

The neck might seem of little importance, however it does much in making or destroying Wyandotte shape. It should be comparatively short in any event, especially in the female. Its length should be determined in viewing the bird in its entirety. Have it long enough to balance up the bird and not a fraction longer.

Lastly I come to the legs of the Wyandotte. They want to be short. Product long legs; set the bird up in the air and you have no Wyandotte at all. The limbs should be strong and set squarely under the bird. Nothing detracts more from true Wyandotte beauty than a knock kneed specimen and in particular if it happens to be the male.

With these suggestions as to type I am pleased to lay aside the results of my many experiences in producing Buff Wyandottes that those interested in this coming variety may take advantage of the splendid suggestions of my fellow fancier, Henry R. Ingalls, in reference to mating for Golden Buff plumage.

In telling you what buff color is I do not want you to think I am going to explain to you just exactly the shade of it, that is not what I mean. Buff color is any shade that is sound and absolutely even, that is, within reasonable limits; we do not want red, neither do we want lemon, but between these two extremes there are various shades that are acceptable. When a man goes to judge a class of Buffs and picks out only birds of a certain shade of Buff he is going to leave some of the best birds out of the awards.

In the first place we want the color to be strong and absolutely even on the surface, a bird that has a back of two or three shades is not a good Buff no matter how strong his under-color is or how clean his wing and tail is. How many times we see males with mixed up surface color, that is, his feathers are pale and dull with an edge of lustre, this produces a mixed or washy color that is very much the wrong thing, such a bird may have a very strong under-color, in fact in most cases this is what makes this poor surface color, the color is all underneath. A good Buff color is the same all over, the feathers have the sheen on them to the extent of causing the bird to be the same rich, shiny color all over the upper part of his body, this is an effect that the larger per cent of Buff males fail to have. Too many failures over the wing lows and back. A very light bird seldom has the desired density of color that makes a good Buff.

The females generally have a hackle too dark for their body color, it is a fault and should be corrected. Some females that look fine from a distance will be found to be very mealy over the wings, this is a very bad fault, it generally comes from too much under-color in the male parent. A great many otherwise fine pullets have an edging of lustre on their feathers and this too is a fault that is caused by too much under-color. Many females are very shafty, this is largely caused by the mating of extremes in color. A good Buff female should be even all over, with a sound wing-bow, of such a shade of color that hackle and body plumage are nearer of the same shade, feathers free as possible from shafting.

A great many breeders go crazy on under-color and then wonder why their pullets are so dark and have such dark hackles and so much shafting on them. Now under-color is all right in its place, but its all wrong to judge on under-color alone. In a good colored breeding bird it is better to have a lighter shade of undercolor and a strong solid surface color than it is to have a red under-color and the poor mixed up surface that we see so much of. I contend that we want the strongest part of the color on the surface where it makes strength and evenness, instead of making it red underneath and pale and washed out on the surface. A male with beautiful, strong, even surface color tapering down to a cream next to the skin will breed both males and females of good color and good shade. But a male with red undercolor will breed males with poor and uneven surface, and females that are too dark, mealy and shafty. Do not let under-color get on your nerves, you can easily get too much of it.

In mating up my breeding pens I generally try to have my females run about two different shades of color, that is, if there are six females in the pen, I will have three of them one shade and the other three either some darker or some lighter as the case may be. In this way of mating one is likely to get both good colored cockerels and good colored pullets from the same male bird. You have all noticed how, a great many times, your best pullets all happened to come from one pen and your best colored cockerels from another pen, you had one pen mated up rather light, this produced the nice colored pullets, the other pen was darker and produced the good colored cockerels, you did not mean to make double matings but just the same this is just what you had done. By having two distinct shades in a pen you are more likely to get more out of a good bird than if you were very particular to have your females all exactly the same shade of color.

Breeding Buff is a study, no color is so hard to produce. One must work back and forth, mix the heavier shades with the lighter, for if you hold to one shade you will go either to white or to red. It is not at all necessary to mate extremes, that is not the idea, but you will have to mix the tendency to white with the tendency to red in such a way that you get about the right sort of a color, keep as near it as you can and not let it get away from you either way, but do have the strength and soundness of color on the surface where it belongs.

Thoughts on Advertising

By S. P. Porter

N the rearing and selling of pure bred poultry good stock and effective advertising go hand in hand and neither can get along without the other, for, no matter how fine stock a breeder has raised if they are not properly advertised his work has been for naught. We say proper and effective advertising, now what is it?—there are many thousands of dollars sunk in advertising each year that availith nothing for several reasons, chief among which are the following: First—Poorly worded and arranged advertisement. Second—Making such extravagant claims that the reader sets you down at once as a fraud Third—Advertising fine breeding and show birds of a variety of which you are not familiar enough with to know yourself whether they are good or not. Fourth—Using papers that circulate among the wrong class of people. Fifth—Using papers that have more advertising than reading matter. Sixth—The use of poor stationary and circulars, etc., we could sight many more causes of failure but space will not permit. Poorly worded advertising, don't forget, that the most important point in arranging an advertisement is to have the name of the birds or article you wish to sell set in large heavy faced type at the top. Personally we believe that perfectly effective and all the display needed. The sole desire should be to catch the eye of the reader seeking the variety you offer and after you have his attention you can talk as low as you are a mind to for he will then read the smallest type carefully to see what you have to say, then if, in the advertisement, you knock the otherwise good points to pieces by making such a lot of extravagant claims that it disgusts the would be purchasers, you have lost him, and he seeks at once an advertisement that sounds more sensible.

We should be familiar enough with the breed we offer to know the quality of the stock we offer and then never, oh never, describe them as better than they are, better a little the other way; it sounds so good to have a customer report—birds arrived this evening, are even better than you described them, thank you for fair treatment.

It is only folly to advertise in a publication just because the rate is low, it may prove to be very high when it is found to circulate only in one or two counties in which the inhabitants are few, if any, that care for or take pride in fine poultry.

A publication cannot afford to starve its readers or subscribers by admitting advertisements to the extent that the advertisements predominate in space; we know that especially poultry publications have to derive their income from their advertising columns, and don't blame them for getting all the ads. they can, nevertheless its a sad mistake to crowd out good timely matter and poultry news, etc., to let in an over supply of advertising. To explain farther: Some years ago (and not so very many either) the writer used some ad. space in a publication that boasted of over a hundred thousand circulation, and a 250 page magazine. Well, when the first paper came containing our ad. we found that not one page in it had more than one column of solid reading matter and many, very many, had none at all; it also had some 30 pages of classified ads. We set it down at once as a poor investment and it sure was. Now why, we could not dispute the circulation claimed (tho we felt it in our bones) but we could dispute their right to allow fully three-fourths of their space to be taken in advertising. Why there was not enough good spicy reading in the publication to keep a fellow awake a half hour on a pleasant Sunday afternoon.

Now the good advertising medium is the one that has a reasonable circulation of paid in advance subscribers, that take the paper for the interesting reading they find in it, and its from these interested readers that we poultry fellows get our customers.

Therefore, the publication that is properly balanced as to space devoted to reading matter and ads. is the better one to patronize than are some unfair and misleading lines of advertising that need the knife badly (for their practice invites distrust in the poultry fraternity), among which is the publishing of ideal or commercial cuts in papers and circulars and printing beneath them, first hen, first pen, etc., at Chicago, Madison Square or Columbus, as the case might be.

Well, when we see such advertising, we rather pity the fellow for not having any birds good enough from which to get an original half-tone. Then again, when we get a circular, printing 50 or 100 testimonials, not one of which has the name and address attached, well, he's an expert testimonial writer, he might as well write a thousand for no one can find any of them any way. Oh! so silly.

Why a testimonial is not a testimonial unless name and address is attached. Is it possible that we are all fools but the fellow that publishes such testimonials; and that he believes we will take them as genuine; they may be perfectly genuine or not, but if they are the advertiser and the buyer would both profit by having the name and address attached.

The Illinois State Show which is held in Springfield, Jan. 6-12 has been a great success for years, and I believe the officers are safe in saying that the coming show will be the best ever. Last year the winning exhibitors reported the advertising value of this show was unsurpassed, as a winning at this show puts you right at the top, and after winning here you need not be afraid to exhibit at any show in the world.

If you have never exhibited at Springfield do not delay any longer, so make your plans to be with us this year, as nothing but Empire coops will be used, you will have plenty of room to make a large display, and you will not only win lots of silver cups, specials, large premium money, but the most beautiful ribbons offered by any poultry show in the country. The best judges in the country will place the awards—Hale, McCord, Pickett, Russell, Sheldenberger and Hemlich.

If you do not care to exhibit in competition plan on making a display as this was one of the great features of our last winter's show.

The officers of this association are all business men, and poultry breeders, and they know what to expect when they exhibit, and they will give you the same in return. Remember no officers are allowed to exhibit.

The White and Buff Rock Club will hold its national meeting, and show at Springfield, they are figuring on 1000 birds, and the White Rock Breeders alone have offered $500 in cash specials.

Our premium list is now ready, be sure and send for one, as a postal to T. S. McCoy, Secy., Springfield, Ill. will get it by return mail.

What is the Best to do to Have Your Word Taken as it Appears

There have been volumes of discussion relative to modes, ways, customs, etc., in conducting a poultry business. The attempt on our part to add anything new would, of course, be useless and so far as our criticisms are concerned, we have none but we appeal to your paper and to the readers and writers thereof for their support, so far as their opinion goes.

It has been said over and over and many and many times that people today, the poultry buying public, have become rather distrustful of all those associated with the commercial poultry interests. Now, this no doubt is exaggerated; yet, we do find a lack of confidence and this lack of confidence has been produced by a lack of honesty. Now, while we believe that the most of the large poultry concerns are absolutely honest so far as their intentions are concerned, we, also, know that it is beyond their power to regulate all the details and to control every individual transaction that takes place in their establishment. We, also, believe that on the part of the buyers, that their expectations are rather too high in some instances and it looks to us as though it would be an impossibility to have every transaction, even by all honest dealers, both buyers and sellers, to be perfectly satisfactory because individual judgment is exercised in all instances and we honestly believe differ. Therefore, some dissatisfaction must follow. But we, also, believe that through the lack of conscientious scruples or a desire to get rich quick or from lack of ability, much dissatisfaction has arisen which naturally has been no boom to the poultry work.

Now, the question arises, what is it best to do in order to have your word taken as it appears. We have seen in recent issues of some of the poultry magazines a practice which they advocate as one that might restore a great deal of confidence and one that, in their opinion, would benefit all concerned and, especially so, to the one selling. Now, this theory is that we prepay the express on all fowls shipped. That sounds well but there are many emergencies that might arise that would make this transaction an embarrassing one. Perchance that you had a customer who was unreasonable, we will not say dishonest, and one whom it was impossible to please, what would you do in this instance? Yet, if you were shipping goods such as you ought ship through intelligent, honest selection, priced at a fair value, these customers would be in the minority, but they would occur and could you increase your business enough more to pay for the extra annoyance given by these, perhaps, exceptional cases?

However, this demand seems to be in the atmosphere and we propose to keep abreast of the times and supply the demands both in commodity and in individual tastes and shall take the initiative in this respect and experiment for the month of December. If we find it to be safe and sane and the results will warrant a continuance, we shall do so and, with your permission, will state the consequences in your next issue.

SUCCESSFUL INCUBATORS AND BROODERS

Rose's Orpingtons Still Champions

The wonderful record made by the Black and Buff Orpingtons of Major Hugh A. Rose, Farnhill, Ontario, Canada, at the greatest American and Canadian Shows this year, has been most phenomenal. No matter where the show, no matter how strong the competition they have, without one exception, lead the way for all others. Their record of 18 out of 21 firsts at four of the greatest shows in this Continent is an unique one, the four shows referred to being Dominion Canadian National Exhibition, New York State Fair, Syracuse, N. Y., Allentown, Pa., and Hagerstown, Md. Another interesting point is that in all the shows where he has competed, he has won the most points in Black Orpingtons.

At the last Madison Square Garden Show, New York, December 1911, his Black Orpingtons won the Association $25.00 gold special for the best exhibit of Black Orpingtons, and this is without doubt the greatest class of Black Orpingtons ever brought together. The wins made were 1st cock, 1st and 3rd hen, 2, 3, and 6 cockerels, 1 pullet, and 2 pen.

The next exhibit was made at the New York State Fair, Syracuse, N. Y., September 9-13, 1912, and he more than duplicated his great record made at this same show the previous year; this time he won 1, 2, 4 cock, 1, 2, 4 hen, 1, 2, 3, and 5 cockerels, 1, 2, 3, 4 pullets, 1st old pen, and 1st and 2nd young pen, and the coveted cup for the best exhibit of Orpingtons of any variety in the show, and carrying with it another $25.00 gold special for exhibit of Orpingtons any variety.

The Allentown Show, September 24 to 27, 1912, was his next show, where in competition with the greatest of America's breeders, he demonstrated the class of his stock by winning 1 and 5 cock, 1 and 3 hen, 1 and 6 cockerel, 2 and 3 pullet, 1st pen. He also won with his Black Orpington cockerel, "George V." the A. T. Stover Estate Cup for the best Orpington in the show, the American Poultry Association Silver Medal for the best cockerel in the American, Asiatic, Mediterranean and English classes, and best of all the North American Cup for the best male in the entire show, competing against all varieties in a show where thousands of entries had to be refused for lack of cooping accommodation.

The last of his great line of victories was made at the Great Hagerstown Show, winning 1st and 2nd cocks, 2nd and 3rd hens, 1st and 2nd cockerels, 2nd and 3rd pullets, 1st old pen, 1st young pen, special for best pen in the entire show, special for best cockerel in the entire show, and the Hamilton Hotel Cup with his cockerel "George V." the best bird in the show—winning this special at this show with over 8000 entries.

In issuing his catalogue last spring, he stated that he hoped to place his Buff Orpingtons in the enviable position occupied by his Black

A Gold Mine of Information To Every Poultryman

HERE'S a book that paves the way to success in the poultry business.

It tells you all you should know about incubators and brooders. Tells you what kind of foods to buy; the different remedies to use in time of need; the experiences of those who have "made good."

Book also gives valuable information to beginners and old-timers; pictures and describes the different kinds of Standard Bred Poultry; lays bare the secret of my success and knowledge gained through 25 years' experience as a poultry raiser and incubator manufacturer.

The reason why I send this Big Book FREE is because it also tells all about my

J. W. Miller, President

This book is not for curiosity-seekers, but for men and women who are interested in poultry for pleasure or for the profit there is in it.

Every year I try to do what I can to help others on the road to success. Last year I cut the price of my world-famous hatchers to the lowest price ever put on an efficient, dependable, sure-profit paying incubator. This year, I go still further and besides selling my incubators for less money than ever sold before.

I Pay the Freight and Give You An Unqualified Guarantee

This unusual offer is not on an incubator made up for the purpose, but is quoted on the regular sizes of the Ideal Incubators and Brooders, same as those thousands of poultrymen have obtained 95%, 98% and 100% perfect hatches from.

If you are seriously thinking about spending your good money for an incubator, look into the merits of my "Ideal." My "Ideal" is built with a heating and ventilating system that automatically regulates moisture. It has a hot water system that's perfect, a regulator that will not allow temperature to vary one-half a degree, the best nursery advantages, the handiest egg tray, the record for successful hatching, etc.

WHY SPROUTED OATS ARE A CHEAP FEED.

The accompanying photograph offers a splendid illustration of the advantages in feeding sprouted oats. The oat sprouts shown in the picture are from nine to twelve inches high, the average being about ten inches. The question is often asked if there is any gain in feeding sprouted oats except the gain that comes from using a green feed. The illustration confirms the fact that there is also a gain in the amount of feed. When an oat sprout is from one to one and a half inches high, it has exhausted all nourishment in the kernel. But the sprout grows until ten to twelve inches in length. On what does it grow? Since in the grain sprouter nothing is given it but warmth and water, it of course gets its food from the water and the air. All young plants like young animals get their first food from easily accessible sources. There is a limit of course to the extent a plant will grow on water and air. When it has completed its youthful career and prepares to take on the duties and maternity or to reproduce itself, it needs the woody stalk to support the head and also the various elements for producing the mature grain and hence must have the earth salts. This is where rich soils come into produce heavy crops of grain. After the sprout or young plant has grown eight to twelve inches high if it be not given the earth salts it falls and decays. But there is an immense quantity of feed between the one inch which grows from the original kernel and the ten or twelve inches which one can grow easily in the Double Quick Grain Sprouter. Perhaps it is not generally known that a field of grain may be planted in pure sand or ground glass and if kept well watered will make a luxuriant growth eight to ten inches high but no mature grain will ever be reproduced in such a field.

Uniform Blanks and Entry Books

Acting under the resolution passed at Nashville, Tenn., at the last annual meeting of the AMERICAN POULTRY ASSOCIATION, providing for uniform blanks to be used by poultry shows, this is to inform you that contracts have been placed and the blanks are now being printed for the following supplies: Uniform entry books with loose-leaf covers. These entry books will enable the show secretary, by spending a few cents each year, to keep a uniform, down-to-date set of books, loose-leaf system.

With these blanks, the show secretaries can keep their blanks in a neat, compact, tidy form at the very minimum of expense. A compact, up-to-date card giving the required shipping directions for exhibitors at your shows, uniform judge's cards for comparison shows, uniform official ribbons of an entirely new design of high class material, very attractive, bright and something that will be sure to please your exhibitors. Also uniform score cards for score card shows and uniform coop numbers.

We have prepared a catalogue giving a complete description of these supplies and expect to mail it to you within the next two weeks. The supplies will be ready shortly after the catalogue reaches you. These uniform supplies can be used only by shows that are members of the AMERICAN POULTRY ASSOCIATION. They represent the study, brains and experience of some of the best show secretaries of the A. P. A. These uniform supplies will enable you to run your shows with less work, keep your records more accurate, make no mistakes and please your exhibitors because you will handle your show in a business-like manner.

You are urged to buy these supplies, not only because they are the very latest in show supplies but for the additional reason that your State Branch get a good per cent. of the profit for these supplies so when you patronize these down-to-date supplies, you are not only helping yourself in getting the latest ideas in show room equipment, but you will also help your Branch.

Kindly let us hear from you promptly if you are interested in this price list of supplies, ribbons, etc.

Very truly yours,
AMERICAN POULTRY ASSOCIATION.

PENN STATE HAMBURG CLUB.

Will hold their first meeting at Philadelphia Show, December 13th at which time we will enact By-Laws, there will be a lot of cups and cash specials for the members to compete for, it should appeal to every breeder of Hamburgs in Pennsylvania to join and help get what belongs to this breed in the way of judges and our pro rata of specials. Now every one that is interested should write to Mr. Otto Bodwesky the Secretary, Pittston, Pa., or Wm. G. Minich the President, 621 East Main Street, Carlisle, Pa.

THE "CYCLE"

Hatches in Nature's Way

Because it follows natural principles. These points found in the CYCLE will appeal to you. They are vital to success.

FIRST: The heated air is applied on top of the eggs only, as under the hen. SECOND: No direct air passes through the hatcher to carry off the natural moisture in the egg. THIRD: Being circular, with the lamp in the center, the radiation is equal throughout the machine. FOURTH: The heat is brought close to the eggs with no waste of heated air space. FIFTH: Eggs are turned and cooled similar to Nature's way. STUDY the hen and investigate the CYCLE. It will pay you.

Our machines were used exclusively in the original Philo System Plant where over $1500 from 60 hens in ten months has been cleared from the sale of eggs, baby chicks and fowls raised on a city lot 40 feet square. One of the largest plants in America saved over $700 this year by using our system of brooding. We sell the best brooder ever made for $2.50.

CYCLE HATCHERS $6

Holds 50 eggs. Constructed entirely of metal. Self-regulating. Requires no moisture. Will not warp, shrink or crack. Will last a lifetime. Hatches hens', ducks', geese and turkey eggs equally well.

BROODER-HATCHERS $8

Holds 50 eggs. A compact, safe and practical incubator and brooder combined. One lamp serving both purposes. Saves about one-half the cost of hatching and brooding chicks.

Testimonials

Paris, Ky., Feb. 16, 1912.
Cycle Hatcher Company, Elmira, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—Have used your Cycle Hatcher with excellent results. From my first batch I had forty-seven chickens from forty-eight eggs. Have used two other incubators, but prefer the Cycle to either of those used.
Respectfully,
Mrs. Henry Scott Clay.

Carterton, Clansfield, England, May 20, 1912.
Cycle Hatcher Company, Elmira, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—I take great pleasure in informing you of the great success I have had with the Cycle Hatcher. I also have a sixty-egg machine, but I can hatch more and stronger chickens with the Cycle. I have had hatches of 45 and 40 out of 48 eggs from the Cycle incubator.
Yours truly,
Henry Naseby.

Winona, Wash., Jan. 26, 1912.
Cycle Hatcher Company, Elmira, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—I have one of your splendid Metal Mothers and will say that it is far ahead of any other incubator I ever used.
Yours respectfully,
F. P. Whetzel.

Squaw Valley, Calif., April 16, 1912.
Cycle Hatcher Company, Elmira, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—The two Cycle Hatchers I purchased last year are giving entire satisfaction. We have averaged between 90 and 100 on every hatch yet, and don't think they can be beat.
Yours truly,
Claud H. Johnson.

Cycle Hatcher Company, Elmira, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—I have used your Cycle Hatcher three years. Set it six times one year, and four times the other two years. Once I got 42 chicks out of 49 eggs. Twice I got 46 chicks out of 49 eggs. The most of the time I got 44 and 45 chicks. I think there is no other incubator that will beat it.
Yours truly,
Lilly R. Hargis.

Fort Worth, Texas, September 28, 1912.
Cycle Hatcher Company, Elmira, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—I bought a Cycle Hatcher from my local dealer and hatched forty-eight chickens out of fifty-one eggs, my first batch. A much better record than I have been able to make with several other machines which I have tried.
Yours truly,
C. P. Davenport.

MARKETS AT YOUR VERY DOORS

"There are two markets to be reached by the poultryman that will pay 'top notch prices' for fresh eggs—the leading hotels and wealthy families." This is the text of the Star Egg Carrier and Tray Mfg. Co. of Rochester, N. Y., in the sale-plans they are sending free of charge to all poultrymen who ask for them.

Their sale-plans are entitled "Star" Light on HOW TO SELL YOUR EGGS." These plans represent valuable methods of building up individual trades and developing individual markets for the purpose of securing higher prices for eggs.

This company says "Why should poultrymen be content to sell their eggs at market prices to commission men and to stores handling eggs of hocus-pocus quality, when they can build up an individual egg trade at much higher prices?"

"If there's one thing in the poultry business more important than everything else it's finding a profitable market."

The Star Egg Carrier and Tray Mfg. Co. have reason to believe that the average poultryman is not satisfied with his "lot"—that he isn't contented to sell high grade REAL fresh eggs at the prices based on the questionable product of the commission men.

The principal thought in the mind of the big manufacturer is sales and this is rapidly becoming the big problem of the poultryman.

At the present cost of feeds and other poultry supplies the average poultryman feels that he deserves a higher price for his products. The problem has been solved in a masterful way by the Star Egg Carrier and Tray Mfg. Co., of Rochester, N. Y.

Their free folder comprises the following paragraphs—"How to sell your eggs," "Markets at your very door," "An individual egg trade," "Present breakage loss," "Eggs that look fresh," "Give your farm a name," "Use theft-proof crates," "Primitive packing," "Higher prices," "Service," "Unique Selling plans," "Let us help you," "For day-old chicks," "Selling hatchings," "Parcels Post."

We strongly advise every poultryman who isn't satisfied with the price he is receiving for his fresh eggs to write to this company and receive his copy of their selling plans. It's similar to the plan in other lines that is used by the most successful concerns in the country.

"INDIVIDUAL COOPS FOR PIGEONS."

I have read several articles in Pigeon Magazines referring to pigeons nests built so as to protect eggs and small squabs. I have built some individual coops to be used for my extra breeders such as Runts and Maltese. One of the coops I have eleven feet long by two feet, three inches wide by thirty-six inches high, it being divided into two stories each eighteen inches, with a small outyard one each side of coop. As each pair is entirely by itself nothing can disturb them. There are no eggs to be broken or squabs killed by another pair fighting for the nest, and in the case of Runts, show birds, etc., this means a great deal. They can also be used to a good advantage in experimenting with different breeds to produce crosses. I have had some coops similar to the one described for several years and have obtained good results from them. Any one desiring drawings can obtain them for the cost of postage from R. W. Brindle, Waynesboro, Pa.

ROUPINE.

A guaranteed to cure remedy for Roup, Canker, Chicken Pox, in adult fowls, as well as White Diarrhoea in the little chick is, without doubt, the most effective remedy for these terrible diseases ever discovered. We know of cases of roup in its worst stages that have been cured by "Roupin" and have staid cured. We have cured many cases of chicken pox with but two or three applications of Roupin. I personally know "Roupin" to have cured dozens of cases of canker and many other poultry diseases, and we esteem it a pleasure as well as a duty to recommend "Roupin" to all our friends. Look up Mr. Whiting's ad. in this issue of the Poultry Fancier and write him for circular and other particulars. The address is W. W. Whiting Co., East Orange, N. J.

The Coming Poultry Fancier

By J. E. Willmarth, Aintyville, N. Y.

The rich man takes up poultry as a hobby. He visits shows and sees fine birds. He wants the pleasure of winning, he wants to have a fine looking flock of fowls on his country estate, something that he can point to with pride and show off to his friends, as stock that has won prizes in the shows. Such people spend small fortunes establishing and stocking these plants, for two or three years they take great pleasure in contemplating their fine birds and telling about their winnings, then it gets to be an old story, they lose interest, stop showing their stock, and their flock gradually turns into a utility flock. This is the beginning and the end of the Rich Fancier, probably with slight variations but all coming to practically the same kind of an end. Then there is the rich man who hears about sales of fancy stock with the one idea of making money on their investment, we would not call such "Fanciers." These people put a lot of money into an elaborate plant and stock it up in great shape, but are impatient to make big dividends on their investment, and generally lay the fault to their managers, try several different managers, and finally quit the business in disgust.

Then, we are sorry to note, there are they of limited means, who seeing or dreaming of fortunes to be made with fancy stock, invest their all in such, with expectations of rapid and most large profits. The end of such is most rapid and sorrowful, for they are left with a memory of a sad experience, a bitter feeling towards poultry keepers, and an empty pocket book.

These are but a few of the several different kinds of Fanciers we could note. Probably fancy failures would be a more appropriate cognomen. Whether we would be better off without these fanciers is hard to tell. In the end they do a great deal of harm to the poultry business, but while they are in 'the making' they spend a lot of money, and help out many a breeder and poultry supply dealer.

Occasionally we come across one of these venturers into the poultry world who is really a Fancier, but their numbers are few and far between.

The Fanciers are not the fellows with big farms and lots of money, they are but incidents to the business. The Fanciers are the little fellows with little back yards. They raise their own stock or possibly have near by farmers raise a few for them, but these Fanciers attend to their matings and generally keep their breeding yards on their own suburban lots. The majority take all care of their stock, and are also their own Secretary and Advertising Manager, and everything else, sometimes with the help of his 'better half' or some other interested member of the family. The majority of these breeders have a living at some other occupation. Keeping poultry is their pastime, they do it for the pleasure derived from owning, raising, showing and selling fine birds, and incidently they make a nice profit at it that is very acceptable to the family purse. These are the real Fanciers of poultrydom. They have been, they are, and they always will be, and in ever increasing numbers, the coming poultry Fanciers, and we look for the day when practically every man in medium circumstances, will have a small back yard plant, stocked with pure bred poultry.

"Rich men and profit seekers may come

Anybody can Hatch Chickens with a Buckeye

Yes, anybody. Do you get that? Means YOU. Makes no difference whether you have ever used an incubator or not. Means YOU all the more if you have tried them and had poor hatches and bad luck generally. YOU can—anybody can—hatch chickens with a Buckeye.

Every Buckeye Incubator is guaranteed to hatch every hatchable egg—unconditionally guaranteed. A beginner can get successful hatches.

Just because you and anybody CAN hatch with a Buckeye, one-third of a million Buckeyes are in use today. Last year alone 100,000 were sold. Every fifth incubator sold last year was a Buckeye. More Buckeyes than any other two makes.

When you buy a Buckeye you are shown how to run it—personal help. No trying to study how from a book of complicated directions, using unfamiliar terms. But Personal Help that enables you to get good hatches from the start. You do not want to spend good money for costly settings of eggs, and then have them spoiled because you did not know how to use your incubator right.

See the 1913 Buckeye As low as $8.00

You can SEE a Buckeye before you buy. Learn all about it. See how it works. Satisfy yourself that you want it—and all before you buy. Let us send you the name of our dealer nearest you, where you can see our 1913 line of Buckeye Incubators. Five sizes—60 eggs up to 350 eggs—a complete line. Equipped with every desirable device to add to incubator efficiency. The big thousand-egg machines use the same principle of construction as the Buckeye—a perfected system that makes the Buckeye the world's best hatcher. The 1913 line of Buckeyes is better than ever before in our 22 years' experience. Now is the time to investigate. Don't delay. Get the facts, so when the time comes to buy, you will have determined what you want and not lose time then.

Get the Buckeye Catalogue

Our new catalogue is a clincher. It states facts simply, convincingly and briefly. It is an incubator catalogue, talks incubators right through, and shows you that if you keep chickens, you not only need an incubator, but you need a Buckeye Incubator. Write today for this book. You will realize that reading it will be time well spent. We will tell you how and where you can see a Buckeye at work. We stand ready to help you and to answer your questions. Address

THE ROLLER TRAY INCUBATOR

Successful Incubation Means Your Success.

SCIENTIFICALLY PERFECT

To overcome the element of chance in the artificial incubation of eggs you are confronted with five problems. 1st—Heat; 2nd—Moister; 3rd—Ventilation; 4th—Turning the eggs properly; 5th—Disposition of the chicks when free from the shell. If these essential problems cannot be overcome you must meet with failure, we have enabled you to overcome the five essential points necessary to successfully operate an incubator, we want to impress on your mind that there is a great difference in chicks that are just incubated and

CHICKS THAT ARE PROPERLY INCUBATED

There is absolutely no difference in a chick hatched in a Roller Tray and those from a hen. You want to incubate chicks that will live—and not the kind that will linger a few days and pass away. It's the chicks that live that mean your success or failure. The Roller Tray will hatch every fertile egg. It cannot go wrong. Now is the time to look up the merits of the different incubators. We want you to look into the merits of ours. Send for booklet.

$500.00 Donated

For the purpose of developing Co-operative Marketing of Poultry Products in America.

First step in a National Movement which cannot fail to greatly benefit poultry raisers and the poultry industry.

Able writers are continually advocating in public print that in the common interest of producer and consumer, co-operative action take the place of haphazard effort in marketing poultry products. The tide of thought on the subject has been gradually rising. It has now assumed tangible form and is destined to eventually sweep the country. The time has arrived for farmers and poultry keepers to get together and form organizations in various parts of the country that will get for them the profits to which they are justly entitled and which now go to the middlemen.

Buff Wyandotte female, owned and bred by J. H. Clark, West Pawlett, Vt.

The first effective shot has been fired in the right direction by poultry husbandry of Waterville, N. Y. Its Board of Directors has donated Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) for the purpose of employing high-class lecturers to appear before the students of Agricultural Colleges and Poultry Institutes, at poultry shows, before gatherings of interested poultry raisers and farmers, to show how co-operative marketing can be accomplished—how it will vastly increase the profits of each poultry keeper.

One-half, ($250.00) of the above amount has been turned over to the Missouri State Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove, Mo., and that organization has duplicated the amount, making $500.00 immediately available for the work in the State of Missouri.

The first of the lectures referred to will be delivered early in the fall. Send your name and address to Poultry Husbandry, Waterville, N. Y. if you want copies of these valuable lectures and wish to keep in close touch with the development of the great National Co-operative movement now started. Approval and endorsement of the plan is coming in from every quarter and it is only a matter of time when the Co-operative Marketing of poultry products in America will be profitable reality as it now is in many foreign countries.

The Egg Circle

A good cause in the egg business is assured. The Egg Circle was instituted recently in this community. Almost every poultryman found this circle. The Egg Circle is a society of farmers and poultrymen in general. The essential object is to improve the stock and facilities for marketing eggs and the quality of the eggs sold by them. The poultrymen will pay in a nominal fee to the society. A sales agent will be elected to look after the marketing of eggs. Each member of the society will be provided with a small rubber stamp with the name of the Circle and a number on it. He must place his stamp on every egg he sells. The eggs will be marked and placed in cardboard cartons with each member's special number. This plan will aid each member to be more careful of their eggs and will be of a great aid to the consumers. It has been impossible in the past when the grocer or consumer found bad eggs to trace them back to the producer. By this plan they can be very easily traced. The eggs will be shipped to our sales agent who will dispose of them at the markets where the poultryman can realize the greatest profits. If it is clear that we can realize more from our eggs by shipping to the eastern or any other markets, then we can at our home markets they will be shipped. It has been predicted by many dealers that the price of eggs would reach the enormous price of seventy-five cents per dozen before the winter passed. Eggs can be shipped from Morgantown to New York City for seventy-seven cents per case. This would make two and six-tenths cents per dozen. It is not the intention of this Circle to ship all the eggs out of the country, but if our home consumption demands them with fair prices a great many will be marketed at home. Our agent is to keep posted on the markets and will market them where he can get the better prices. The producer should be the one to reap the harvest from his labor. It has been proven frequently that our grocers have been in the past realizing from our poultry people, especially in the winter season, 6 to 10 cents per dozen profit. "In union there is strength" and have consolidated in our poultry business and in the future propose to control our own industry regardless of our stale experiment station which is a very poor example to follow with poultry culture. They may experiment to some extent by themselves but to the public there is nothing given out to interest any farm in this section.

Year's Final Results in National Egg Laying Contest

The Method of Feeding, Interesting Facts, and Some Lessons Learned From the First Annual Contest are Told.

The first Missouri National Egg Laying Contest closed at the State Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove, Mo., on October 31st. The results have been very satisfactory, so much so that another will begin November 15th. Seven hundred hens, representing twenty varieties of poultry, and gathered from England, Canada and 20 states of the United States will compete in the next contest. The following varieties will be represented by 30 hens each, all having exactly the same number of pens: Anconas, Black Langshans, S. C. White Leghorns, R. C. White Leghorns, S. C. Brown Leghorns, S. C. Buff Leghorns, Black Minorcas, Buff Orpingtons,

The results of the first contest have not been especially startling, and neither have we proven or attempted to prove that any one variety possessed all the good qualities. The leading pen was No. 107, R. C. Rhode Island Reds, which made a record of 1042 eggs for five hens, or an average of over 208 eggs per hen. The best individual record was made by Lady Showyou, White Plymouth Rock Hen, No. 717, which laid 281 eggs in 12 months. This hen lacked one egg of equalling the best record in this country which was 282 eggs by a Barred Rock hen at Guelph, Canada. Lady Showyou, however, laid a full sized egg weighing on an average a little more than two ounces each and with a good strong shell on each egg. We are told my Prof. Graham of Guelph, that his 282-egg hen laid a very small egg with a very poor shell, so Lady Showyou was far the most remarkable performer of the two when these facts are considered. There were 655 hens in this contest and they laid a total of 87,843 eggs, or an average of over 134 eggs

LEARN HOW TO DO CUSTOM HATCHING

Full Information Sent Free Upon Request.

Description of Egyptian Hatcheries And How Their Success Can Be Repeated in This Country.

Poultrymen are seeking reliable information about custom hatching because almost every one who has an incubator is often asked to do some hatching and this naturally leads to the thought that it may be profitable. It is certainly worth investigating, for many have already found that there is money in it and whoever is first in the field in any section will get the best profits. Just as a matter of history Custom Hatching has been carried on for centuries by the Egyptians, and they are still practising it, as they did in the days of Moses. Their method of charging and carrying on the business has been copied in this country and the industry has been hailed as something new.

A Custom Hatchery is just as necessary in a community as a grist mill or creamery. Whenever one is started it quickly gets the farmers' trade because the average farmer has not time to do his own hatching and the "broody" hen chooses her own time. Experience shows that the business offered is greater than the Custom Hatchery can handle, and, therefore, the incubator must be selected so that it can quickly be enlarged.

It must also be a safety one to guard against accidents and the more automatic it is the larger capacity one man can handle.

The Candee Incubator fully meets these requirements and it is the machine that is making successful Custom Hatcheries. A booklet fully describing Custom Hatching, with directions how to handle the business, what to charge, where to locate and other complete details has been prepared by the Candee Incubator & Brooder Co., Eastwood, N. Y. and it will be sent free if you will send your name and address and mention department 16.

per hen. Considering the fact that more than a dozen pens lacked two or three months of being mature at the time the contest began, and also considering the fact that more than half of the pens were made up of hens and several of them contained hens three and four years old, we are reasonably well satisfied. When we consider the fact that most of these birds had been carelessly and promiscuously bred with no special idea to increase egg production, and came from all classes of breeders, and considering the fact that the average hen only lays 80 eggs per year, we do not feel that one hundred and thirty four eggs per hen is a bad average for such a promiscuous lot of stock as this.

General Averages.

The average number of eggs laid by each hen and the average amount of feed consumed by each hen of those varieties which had ten or more hens entered, and which averaged more than 120 eggs per hen for the year, is as follows:

All Silver Wyandottes, 160 eggs per hen, Grain 35 lb.; Dry Mash, 35.3 lb.

All S. C. Reds, 156 eggs per hen, 35 lb.; 38.6 lb.

All Black Langshans, 156 eggs per hen, 35; 50.

All Black Orpingtons, 155 eggs per hen, 35; 44.

All White Orpingtons, 150 eggs per hen, 35; 39.

All R. C. Reds, 150 eggs per hen, 35; 32.6.

All Buff Orpingtons, 147 eggs per hen, 35; 30.3.

All S. C. Black Minorcas, 145 eggs per hen, 35; 44.

All S. C. White Leghorns, 143 eggs per hen, 34.8; 32.

All Anconas, 139 eggs per hen, 34.8; 30.5.

All Indian Runner Ducks, 131 eggs per hen, 0; 121.

All R. C. White Leghorns, 127 eggs per hen, 34.8; 23.3.

All Barred Plymouth Rocks, 126 eggs per hen, 35; 44.2.

All White Wyandottes, 125 eggs per hen, 35; 33.

All S. C. Brown Leghorns, 122 eggs per hen, 34.8; 31.5.

All Buff Plymouth Rocks, 120 eggs per hen. 34; 45.

The above includes good and bad producers and both young and old hens. Several varieties ran considerably below these in average eggs per hen but about same amount of food consumed. The cost of the grain fed these hens averaged about one and one-third cents per pound, and the cost of the dry mash was nearly two cents per pound. It can be seen from the above how far the Australians are in advance of the breeders of this country in breeding for egg production. The leading pen in this contest averaged more than 208 eggs per hen, but the leading pen in an Australian contest which recently closed averaged more than 250 eggs per hen. Also, in the same Australian contest, 360 hens gathered from 60 different breeders made an average of nearly 200 eggs per hen for the entire 360 hens. But they have been conducting these contests in that country for ten years or longer and the people have been educated to breed for egg production. We hope to stimulate some such effort in this country. The average farm hen does not lay more than 80 eggs per year at present. If we can even raise the average to 150 or 160 eggs per hen we can more than double or treble the profit in poultry to the average breeder for he can get this increase in most cases without little if any additional cost for houses, feed and stock.

The Houses Used.

The houses used were 8x10 feet. Each had two ordinary stationery shutters for ventilation in the front part of the house. These have proven to be far better than an open front or curtain front, even in the severest weather. Two window sashes were used in the front and two in the rear

OAKLAND POULTRY FARM'S

S. :: C. :: White :: Leghorns

At the Allentown Fair, four years in succession, our Leghorns won every Silver Cup offered for S. C. White Leghorns. And first prize on Leghorn Eggs, also Silver Cup for the Championship Dozen of eggs, 84 dozen in competition. And this year we won the Silver Cup for the 10 best Leghorns; a record to be proud of.

Remember our Leghorns also have a world wide reputation as heavy Winter layers of large white eggs, and are ready to make money for you through the cold Winter months. We have several hundred good vigorous Cockerels for sale which will improve your flock at let-live prices; these are all range grown.

We can furnish you with Exhibition Birds, either one or a full string, that can win that Blue Ribbon or that Silver Cup for you at prices that will suit. All birds at $5.00 and over will be shipped on approval.

We are now booking orders for Hatching Eggs and Baby Chicks for 1913 delivery.

of the house under the droppings board. A ventilator was placed in the rear, just beneath the eaves. Each had droppings boards, roosts and feed hoppers. Each house was divided in the center by a partition.

The Trap Nests.

Each house was fitted with two styles of trap nests, one a wooden home made nest, and the other a galvanized iron manufactured nest. Both were very satisfactory. The galvanized nest proved the most satisfactory of all nests we have tried out. It was most sanitary, most reliable, and easiest operated.

The Method of Feeding.

Grain mixture.

200 lb. cracked corn.
200 lb. wheat.
100 lb. oats.
Dry Mash Fed in a Hopper.
100 lb. wheat bran.
200 lb. middlings or shorts.
200 lb. corn meal.
200 lbs. rolled or ground oats.
150 lb. dry beef scraps.
75 lb. alfalfa meal.
50 lb. gluten meal.
25 lb. O. P. oil meal.
8 lb. fine table salt.
25 lb. powdered charcoal.

The cost of this feed will of course vary in different localities. We find that the average cost to us for this feed for the year was about one and one third cents per pound for the grain mixture and nearly two cents per pound for the dry mash mixture.

About one half pint of the grain mixture was fed in the litter each morning to a pen of five hens. A slightly greater quantity was fed at night. This dry mash mixture was kept before the fowls at all times. At one o'clock each day, a handful of the same dry mash which had been moistened with buttermilk or skim milk was fed in a trough to each pen. We did not give them all they desired of this moistened mash, but just enough to add variety and to whet their appetites and they literally fought to get to it. We also gave each pen a handful of sprouted oats about this time each day. We discovered that they liked this kind of green food better than any other we could get. We also found that we could supply this kind of green food about as economically as any other and with as little trouble by properly preparing to sprout the oats. We never let the drinking pan go dry winter nor summer and believe that a dry drinking pan will cut the egg yield as quickly as anything else if not quicker. We used a small quantity of permanganate of potash in the drinking water to prevent colds and diseases. A small quantity of Epsom salts was fed in the moistened mash once or twice every month.

The only changes which will be made in this method of feeding for the contest are as follows:

Two parts of corn and one part of wheat will be the grain mixture for winter months. and one part of corn and two parts of wheat for the summer months. The oats will be eliminated from the grain mixture for the reason that the hull on the oats caused us some trouble. In order to overcome this loss of oats in the grain mixture, we have increased the amount of oats in the dry mash to three hundred pounds and also will continue the sprouted oats. We also expect to increase the dry beef scraps to two hundred and fifty pounds and the powdered charcoal to thirty-five pounds in the dry mash.

Lessons Learned.

We haven't time or space to go very deep into this subject. We will simply mention a few of the things which we have gathered from the records and from general observation, and these will be elaborated in our later bulletin on this subject. We feel that we can safely say:—

1st—That there is no variety or breed which far excels other varieties or breeds which are in general use as far as egg production is concerned.

2nd—That more depends upon the strain or breeding of a variety as to the number of eggs it will produce than upon the variety itself.

3rd—That some hens have a born tendency to lay and others have a born tendency to put on fat. The latter kind should be culled out in establishing a laying strain.

4th—That more depends upon the breeding of the male as to the number of eggs the offspring will produce than upon the female, yet it will pay to breed from your best layers in preference to the poorest.

5th—That you should select the variety which suits you best as to color, size and shape, and breed them up until they satisfy you as to quality and productiveness. You make a mistake by jumping from one breed to another trying to discover a better layer.

6th—That it will pay the average poultryman to trap nest his flock in the fall and winter months and breed from the pullets which lay earliest in life and from the pullets and hens which lay in the winter.

7th—That the style of house used in this contest is one of the most satisfactory styles of houses for this climate. We find it cool in summer and comfortable in winter, convenient and properly ventilated.

8th—That hens like sprouted oats as much or better than any other green food and they do well on it, it aids digestion, and increases egg production.

9th—That a little moistened food is relished and will slightly increase egg production.

10th—That many high producers lay thin shelled eggs, and that the germs are often weak. A few high producers are able to lay large numbers of eggs, fertilize them, and put vitality into the chick.

11th—That the Mediterranean Class can stand more protein and fattening food than the birds of the American, Asiatic, or English classes. There is not so much danger of the Mediterraneans becoming too fat, and they require a richer food than the other classes mentioned.

12th—That the egg yield from Mediterraneans is affected by extraneous cold more than the other classes of fowls, because of the fact that they are coarsely feathered, larger combs and smaller bodies.

13th—That if you give a hen reasonably good shelter, feed and attention, she will net you a reasonable profit if she has been properly bred.

14th—That the purpose of properly feeding and housing a hen is not to feed eggs into her body but to so feed and care for her that you may get out of her the eggs which breeding has placed there. Proper feeding, housing and care have a bearing on the number of eggs produced by a flock, but breeding is the most important factor.

15th—That hens must be fed and fed liberally if you expect eggs in large quantities, especially if you expect winter eggs.

16th—That regularity in feeding is very essential.

17th—That hens must not be excited or chased, but should be handled in a quiet, gentle manner at all times.

18th—That rape will color the yolk of the egg green, and onions or fish scrap will cause the eggs to taste of these if fed in too large quantities.

19th—That the ground should be kept fresh, shade provided in the hot summer months, and the house kept clean. The hens cannot do well if covered with vermin.

20th—That most high layers will lay practically all the color out of their legs and plumage in one year.

21st—That hens lay a few more eggs when males are not used in the pens with them.

22nd—That most good layers moult late in the season. They look tough, dirty and weatherbeaten as a rule as a result of their hard year's work, but the poor layers spend their time in dressing up and putting on a beautiful coat of feathers, and test them early as a rule.

23rd—That the best producers have broad bodies. The back is broad and the ribs are widespread, giving plenty of room for the egg organs and digestive organs. Their bodies are solid and the birds are not loose jointed but compactly built.

24th—That good layers are big eaters. A bird must have capacity to eat and digest a great amount of food if she is to lay a great number of eggs.

25th—That a big decrease in the egg yield in winter months can be brought on more quickly by great variations in temperature, sudden changes in weather conditions, than by continued or prolonged spells of either cold or rainy weather.

26th—That it will pay to keep a good hen until she is four years old. We had several hens four years old which laid over 150 eggs each.

27th—That most of the high producers have good sized combs for birds of their variety.

28th—That the method of feeding may not be the best, but the hens certainly liked the mash used, ate great quantities of it, and if you are to get best results from the hens she must have a food which she relishes.

29th—That photographs have been taken and measurements made, but we are not able to say at this time that there is a fixed type for high producers. You can judge for yourself when these appear in the bulletin.

30th—That there is much room for improvement in all varieties and breeds as far as egg production is concerned and it is up to the breeders of this country to get busy. There are wonderful possibilities along this line.

Lest You Forget!

By C. A. Mack

Never before in the history of poultry industry has the poultry world experienced greater boom than at the present time. Just look at the many different poultry shows held all over the country; note the competition and the quality of stock exhibited and last but not least, note how our best and largest poultry breeders battle for supremacy. It takes a pretty good bird now-a-days to carry away the blue, and the novice is apt to make serious mistakes causing him to go down to defeated in the show room.

To raise a show bird one must not wait till the birds are half grown, or perhaps a week or two before the show at which you intend to exhibit, but the time to begin is as soon as the chick is out of the shell, as the first few weeks are the most serious ones. All through the chicks life you must prepare it for the show room, and then, here comes the point where most novices make a serious mistake; when you once get a good bird, don't show it at too many shows, especially right in succession. Be sure and allow the bird two or three weeks rest, at the least, between the shows, as showing is hard on a bird, it weakens her vitality and causes it to be a poor breeder.

If you once have a good show bird, never exhibit at more than two or three good shows during the show season, and let the bird rest the remainder of the time in order to get it in the pink of condition for the breeding pen.

Yes, it will be only a few more weeks, when the time will be at hand to make up your breeding pens, upon which lies the secret of your future success, and do you for a moment think, that an overshadowed bird (though good she may be) could produce strong, livable chicks? You would all answer "No." Then to do justice to yourself you should see to it that your birds are not overshadowed and are in the pink of condition for your breeding pens.

Don't for a moment think that I am writing against poultry exhibitions, or that you should not exhibit—far from it—but what I want to impress upon your mind is, that you do not exhibit a bird at too many shows in one season, as it will surely break her down physically, causing her to be a poor breeder, if not altogether ruined.

A good bird that is capable of winning the blue at a good show, is too valuable to be ruined in that way. So be sure, and use some plain common sense, not only look to the present, but more so, look to the future, next year you want more and better exhibition birds than this year, and you must start now to get them.

Lest you forget—Don't overshadow, when you once get a good bird.

A Plea for the Campine in the Show Room

By Dr. J. H. Prudhomme

Having attended some of the Fall Fairs, and being a breeder of Campines, my attention was attracted to the poultry display. Upon looking over the Campine entries I was much surprised and chagrined to find the Belgian type of birds in the Goldens especially being awarded prizes, when on account of the flowing red feathers in their backs and saddles they should have been disqualified.

I, with another gentleman of prominence in Campine circles, called the attention of the Judge to these birds and remonstrated with him for placing these Belgian type birds within the money. The Judge contended that the Campines were not in the Standard, that the Silvers were judged according to the English Standard, but the Goldens, he was sure, did not come under any standard, consequently he judged them according to the Belgium Standard. Now, all licensed Judges should know that the standard for judging Silvers and Goldens are identically alike, only in the Goldens, Gold is substituted for Silver in the barring.

As there were about 6500 fowls entered in the above mentioned show one can readily appreciate the importance of awards and of the indescribable harm done by placing the stamp of indorsement, 1st prize, upon birds that should have been disqualified.

Think for a moment of the innocent, gullible public who will buy eggs and stock from such 1st prize birds! Probably the owner not knowing of the true standard, the English standard, under which the birds should have been judged, and being awarded such prizes on his birds, believing he has true type and correct marked birds, he heralds his winnings far and wide to the world, thus he sows the seed of the wind to harvest in future the whirlwind.

Now, with all that has been written in the Poultry Press about Campines, it would seem unpardonable that a licensed Judge of the A. P. A. should be so shy on knowledge and should make glaring mistakes. At another fair where three or four thousand fowl were entered, another Judge doped out the same medicine to the Goldens.

It seems to me that any poultryman, much less a Judge, who reads and who has his ear to the ground knows that the Belgian type of Campines is no go here in America now, and never will be. The males with their white backs and the females with their gray, moss colored feathers will never appeal to the American fancier; the birds in themselves are too small, and while they lay a goodly number of eggs, it must be acknowledged, their eggs are too small to be of value, of much profit to the American utility man, or egg farmer.

At this writing, November 15th, fancy, new laid, white market eggs are selling at 72c in New York wholesale, the small egg of the Belgian female would not be in the class. New York market calls for 25 oz. eggs to the dozen, eggs from pure Belgian birds average 22 to 23 ounces to the dozen, while eggs from the improved Campines average 25 to 27 ounces and above average 30 ounces to the dozen. I have bred both types, I know whereof I speak.

The improved Campines is a thing of beauty, a joy forever, and while things appertaining to color, or beauty or taste are not to be disputed, no one can deny that the improved Campine is not beautiful. As to the color and size of their egg we all know that for two successive years at elite Boston eggs from the Silvers have won first prize for the best dozen white eggs and also first prize for the whitest dozen eggs at the show. At Allentown this year eggs from my Campines won 1st prize in a class of 22 dozen: Anconas, Houdans, Blue Andalusians, R. I. Reds, Langshangs, etc. competing. Later at Frederick, eggs from my Campines won the sweepstake over eggs from all other breeds competing. In the above fact we have it, the proof of the pudding is in the eating, the improved Campines have proved themselves. They have come to stay.

It is to the fancier and to the breeder of these latter who know the merits of the breed and the standard under which he bird should be judged, we should look to protect the breed as well as the public, the people who want to invest their hard earned cash in a breed with a future—the Improved Campines. We must see to it that the public gets what it wants and endeavor to prevent breeders to innocently or accidentally on purpose? unload upon them disqualified birds.

A word of advice will I give to those contemplating buying IMPORTED birds. It is this: Ask any breeder who knows, it requires several years for imported Campines to get acclimated, in America, to do their best. If you read, you must know that the birds being imported these days are of low grade. Be careful when you buy abroad for you will find your experience to be a sad, sad teacher.

As to Judges, with apologies, I can do no better than quote from a noted English breeder and say: "The judging on the whole is good, I have great admiration and respect for Judges in the man. * * * Campines do suffer occasionally because Judges don't know their standard, and sometimes because they think they know what Campines should be better than we breeders. I wish there were some power to bring ignorant and self-willed Judges to book."

Now, I can offer the solution; knowledge is the power required and I humbly suggest that when in doubt before judging any new breed not in the Standard, let the Judge write to the Secretary of the Club backing the breed—if there is no club back of the breed, then there is no occasion to worry—and secure a copy of the year book with the standard for judging the breed, which includes scale of points and serious defects for which the birds should be passed. For the Campine Standard address Mr. M. R.

Jacobus, Secretary Campine Club, Box 3, Ridgefield, N. J.

In conclusion, as a member of the Campine Club, as a fancier and breeder and with deep admiration for the genuine Campine, I have one more point to make in my stand upholding the—what I will call, "American Campine"—the breed that will in time be separate and distinct from the English and Belgian type Campine, that will be better suited to the wants of the American poultryman. Here, I want to go on record as opposing membership in the American Campine Club any and all breeders who are known to sell eggs from and breeders from the Belgian type of Campines, advertising such and calling such Improved Campines. I have been stung in the past, in the future I am going to look out for the novice and the amateur, and in this I am looking forward to the co-operation of the Judges. They hold great power in their hands—the correct judging of Improved Campines.

"Profitable Poultry and Egg Production"

HERE is the greatest Free Poultry Book of 1913—compiled for your success in one of the most promising money-making years in the poultry business. A book of sane, practical guidance—not written by one man or a set of men, but brought together from the garnered experience of many of America's most successful poultry men and women.

This Great Poultry Book is FREE

and its value to you will be immediate and far-reaching.

It contains actual records and facts developed during 1912 on Cyphers Incubator Company's $75,000 Experimental and Demonstration Farm. These facts are instructively illustrated by photographs of live and dressed fowls, the most modern poultry structures and equipment, also plans for laying out poultry yards, etc., etc.

The Cyphers Company's Year Book has always been regarded as an invaluable contribution to current poultry literature—and this year it is more vitaly interesting, more truly helpful than ever before. It treats of the real foundation of success and at the same time is practical in every detail.

244 Pages — 500 Illustrations Many Vital Facts

The eight special chapters that go into the very heart of profitable poultry and egg production should alone be worth many, many dollars to you.

Here are the chapters—note how broad their scope, how personal and practical their application:

- Chapter I. —What is Possible in Poultry and Meat Production.
- Chapter II. —What Can be Done in the Way of Egg Production.
- Chapter III. —Deep-Litter Feeding Experiments of 1912.
- Chapter IV. —Quick Maturity in General-Purpose Fowls.
- Chapter V. —Ages and Weights of Chickens for Table Use.
- Chapter VI. —How to Establish Prolific Egg-Yield Flocks.
- Chapter VII. —Today's Best Chance in the Poultry Business.
- Chapter VIII. —Small-Scale Poultry Keeping on a Practical Basis.

The Big Opportunity This Year

There is no question but that new money-making records will be established by enterprising poultry growers this season.

Highest Prices for Poultry and Eggs

Never since the Civil War have poultry and egg prices been as high as they are this year. This is no mere prophecy. It's founded on facts. Last season's shortage in the poultry and egg crop is the principal reason.

Lowest Cost to Produce—Biggest Profits

And also remember this fact: that while you are to get more money for your products, they will be costing you less to produce and market, because grain foods are quite a little lower than they were last year. The farmers' enormous crops have brought the prices down, including chicken feed in common use.

Up-to-date poultry growers who use the latest methods are going to make large profits under these unusually favorable conditions. Many old hands are going into the business on a bigger scale than ever before.

To avoid the numerous mistakes and pitfalls, let the Cyphers Year Book be your guide, and remember that the Cyphers Company's Service Department and Demonstration Farm are headquarters for money-making poultry facts. Well-known poultry experts now contribute.

The Parkway Poultry Yards, Trenton, N. J.

Barton T. Fell, Proprietor, John E. Mackay, Manager.

We believe the Parkway Poultry Yards have the largest and best collection of the Silver Penciled Plymouth Rock we have ever seen. While their S. C. Black and White Leghorns are as high in quality as can be found any where in the country. Mr. Fell is what we "chicken cranks" term a "natural born" poultry man and fancier and we certainly appreciate meeting men of his stamp in our travels over the country. When we visited conditions do exist it is not a difficult proposition to determine the results that are sure to follow. Mr. Fell has been in the poultry business for a number of years as a side line and has proven to be one of our most interested and interesting fanciers. But, in the future, Mr. Fell will devote his entire time to the production of the best, in both fancy and utility, in the different kinds or varieties of fowls he is breeding.

The farm comprises over 100 acres and practically all of it is devoted to poultry. There are a number of large laying houses constructed along the most modern methods with ample yarding and shade for all the matured stock.

The incubator cellar is 20x90 feet and the giant incubators installed have a capacity of 15,000 eggs. The brooder houses are constructed along

Mr. Fell's Farm, during the summer, we were greatly impressed with the wonderful location Mr. Fell had selected for his future business. Right at the "doorway" of the great city of Trenton, N. J., with unlimited demand for high class table fowls and eggs, right in the very heart of one of the most progressive centers of our great country with Atlantic City, Philadelphia, N. Y. City, Washington, D. C., and many other large and increasing markets centers at his very finger tips, insures immediate success from a utility standpoint alone, and then when one adds to these great assets the man behind the business together with the wonderful quality and varieties of fowls he is breeding, it is only a natural consequence that success in large type should be written all over this enterprise. It is seldom one finds so great a combination of man, location and birds and when such scientific lines and each pen has a beautiful outside park in which the chicks can enjoy plenty of protection from the hot sun and sufficient exercise to insure rapid growth and vigorous constitutions. There are feed and conditioning rooms, colony and numerous other houses conveniently arranged over the farm so as to form one of the most complete and convenient plants in the state.

Not only is this farm noted for breeding the best Silver Penciled Rocks, Black and White Leghorns, but some of the best Partridge Plymouth Rocks and Silver Campines in the country are bred on the Parkway Poultry Farm. Mr. Fell has 1500 layers and about 800 exhibition birds. Mr. Fell was unusually fortunate in securing the services of Mr. John F. Mackay as his poultry man, a man known, wherever standard bred poultry is raised, as one of the originat-

Rheumatism

A home cure given by one who had it

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

ors of the Silver Penciled Rocks.

Mr. Mackay has devoted many years to the perfection of this increasingly popular breed and deserves as much if not more credit for the high position they enjoy in the ranks of fancy poultry today. It is impossible for us to find time and space to give all the winnings of this popular Farm but we cannot feel justified in closing our article without first mentioning Mr. Fell's winnings at Allentown, Pa., and Trenton, N. J., which were as follows:

Allentown.—Silver P. Rocks, 1, 2, 3 cocks, 1, 2, 5 hens, 1, 2 cockerels, 1, 2, 3 pullets, and 1, 2 pens.

S. C. White Leghorns.—3rd pen.

Partridge Rocks.—2, 3 cocks, 4, 5 hens, 1 pullet, and 1st pen.

Silver Campines—1st cock and 1st hen.

At Trenton, N. J., Interstate Fair, Silver P. Rocks.—2, 3 cocks, 2, 3 hens, 1, 2 cockerels, 1, 2 pullets, 1, 2 pens.

Partridge Rocks.—1 cock, 2 cockerel, 1 pullet, 2 pen.

Campines.—1 cock, 3 hen, 1 cockerel, 1 pullet, 2 pen.

These remarkable winnings speak no larger words of praise than any thing we could say, so far as the quality of Mr. Fell's birds is concerned. We would advise any who are interested in any one of the varieties Mr. Fell is breeding to write him for further information. We assure you of honorable and considerate treatment at his hands.

A. J. Fell, West Point, Pa., One Of America's Most Prominent White Wyandotte Breeders

By F. D. Sutton

There are few, if any, men engaged in fancy poultry raising in the United States, whose name stands out more prominently or whose birds hold a more enviable record in the poultry world than A. J. Fell and his celebrated strain of White Wyandottes. Mr. Fell's winnings have always been won in the strongest competition. You can depend upon this statement as being absolutely true from first to last. You never have found an instance and I venture to say you never will find one, in the future, where A. J. Fell's Wyandottes were or will be entered, unless the strongest competition prevails. With A. J. Fell victory isn't victory unless it is won in the very strongest competition. There, and there only, will the superlative degree of quality be revealed, in its higher sense, and the glory and honor of a real conquest accrue to the owner. In looking over the winnings of Mr. Fell's White Wyandottes since he first exhibited them at Scranton, Pa., 1908 on down to his great victory at Madison Square Garden, 1910, we believe Mr. Fell established a record of remarkable winnings second to none, made by any other exhibitor, during the same years, in the United States. At Scranton, Pa., January, 1908, Mr. Fell won every first competed for as well as the Gibbons Challenge Cup, valued at $100, for the best White Wyandotte in the show.

At the same city the following December, Mr. Fell won five firsts, four seconds, together with the Gibbons $100 Challenge Cup, making the third time in succession he had captured this handsome prize at the Great Allentown Fair, 1909, the "Madison Square Garden of Pennsylvania." Mr. Fell won five firsts and Taylor $75 Cup for best White Wyandotte. At Trenton, N. J., 1909, his birds again won all five first and special for best bird in the show with 1100 birds in competition. At Norristown, 1909, Mr. Fell's birds again swept the board clean by capturing every first prize in both open class and pens, and in the same year at the Great Philadelphia Show at the National White Wyandotte Club meeting, with 142 birds in competition. Mr. Fell's W. Wyandottes carried away four out of a possible firsts, losing only on pullet and capped the climax of this splendid win by capturing practically every special offered including the National White Wyandotte Club Cup for best cock, hen, cockerel and pullet. With such a sweeping clean-up as the above one would naturally have decided that Mr. Fell would rest on his laurels for a time at least and enjoy the proud record he had made, but any one knowing A. J. Fell very intimately would never have made such a prediction for they would have caught the twinkle of his eye as he set his face towards the East and secretly reveled in the satisfaction of a practically assured victory at Old Madison Square Garden. And sure enough in a class of 269 W. Wyandottes Mr. Fell won 1 cock, 1 hen, 6 cockerel, and 3 pullet. Here Mr. Fell sold two birds, not in the winnings, for $250.00. Two weeks after the above winning at Madison Square he again "swooped down on the boys" at Philadelphia, 1910, and carried away four out of a possible five firsts, losing out only on pullet. In the same year Mr. Fell's birds walked into the Wyandotte alley at Allentown's great fair and won every first in both single and pen classes and the majority of all other prizes. This unique record certainly demonstrated the real championship quality of Mr. Fell's W. Wyandottes, but that former Madison Square Garden victory wasn't quite up to A. J. Fell's standard and when the title of the World's Championship White Wyandotte winners of 1910 was decided it was found that Fell's birds had won more honors than all his competitor's combined, by carrying

Does It Pay to Exhibit Our Best Breeders?

F. M. Long, Osceola, Ind.

I have serious doubts about it. Most of us want to get out a number of early chicks. We want them from our very best stock, of course, and if we get our best breeders in show condition for a December or January show and exhibit them for a week or more it is a very difficult matter to get any eggs from them in these two months and it puts them out of the running as valuable breeders from which to raise high class early chicks. There is nothing more conducive to infertility than penning up a bird in an exhibition coop from two to six weeks, housing in a warm temperature and the pampering that goes with show conditioning. Nothing more injurious than the overfeeding or the underfeeding, the lack of water, and the change of temperature incident to moving in and out of the usual show room.

sounding advertising. It is results that count and especially with former customers. Old customers come back with their orders if satisfactory results are secured, and did you ever think of it?—Every customer who repeats an order for stock or eggs means a saving in advertising expense. Further than this, it means a testimonial of square dealing and a clear conscience for the breeder.

Sometimes I wonder how males that have been shown and won at two or three important shows can do their breeder or owner the maximum amount of good. A year or two ago, I recall a cock bird that had won at Madison Square Garden and several other highly important shows, being widely advertised. Eggs sold from his pen cost the buyer $20 per sitting. This bird, a cock, could surely have produced but few hatchable eggs. The with your first installment of chicks next season. The early pullets are the ones that produce eggs when the price is soaring. Both the cockerels and pullets that are hatched early are the ones that stand the best chances at the early shows.

THE FRANKLIN SANITARY FEEDER.

Manufactured by Franklin & Detweiler, Hatfield, Pa., is one of the most practical feeders on the market to day. They have been endorsed by many of our leading poultrymen and are held in the highest esteem by all who have used them. We have a number of these feeders in our own poultry houses and are so well pleased with them that we are intending to add more of them as our future needs may require. We are personally acquainted with both Mr. Franklin and Mr. Detweiler and take pleasure in recommending them as men of honor who are worthy of the fullest confidence of all who may decide to favor them with a portion of their business. These gentlemen are also putting out the only practical pigeon feeder we have ever seen and we advise all our pigeon friends to write them for further information if in need of such an article. We feel sure you will not be disappointed in the actual value of any article Messrs. Franklin & Detweiler manufacture. Their ad. appears in this issue of the Fancier. It will pay you to look it up and write them for further information.

SCRANTON POULTRY SHOW.

They have been having a great big time up at Scranton over an ordinance that was introduced to prohibit the keeping of poultry within forty feet of any residence. The poultry fanciers of Scranton have taken the matter up. They have organized and have persuaded the City Council to modify their views and have an ordinance, if any at all that will regulate the sanitary conditions of keeping poultry. The great interest aroused through this has been very beneficial to the poultry interest about Scranton. Many persons who never took any particular interest before have now come forward and are determined to show the people of the State of Pennsylvania that the Quality Poultry Show shall be the best ever held in the State. Large numbers of special and cash cups and useful merchandise have been donated. Do not fail to get a premium list from Mr. A. W. Close, Secretary, at Scranton, Pa.

HARTFORD SHOW.

The East Hartford Poultry Association is to hold its third annual show December 31, 1912, and January 1 and 2, 1913, and I should be glad to have you mention of the dates in your columns.

A number of papers have in the past offered subscriptions as special prizes in exchange for advertising to a limited extent in the Premium List and we should be glad to extend the favor this year as in the past.

Awaiting a favorable and early reply, I am, Warren Huyden, Secy.

SECOND PRIZE SINGLE COMB BLACK ORPINGTON COCKEREL

WELLAND ONT.

I speak from experience. On several different occasions I have ruined the breeding chances of some of my best stock by showing and the necessary preparation. In late years I have made it a practice to keep my best birds, in part at least, at home. Right in their all winter, in familiar quarters, on regular rations and the results are very pleasing to me. True I cannot advertise these birds as winners at such and such a show and perhaps may fail to land some orders that would otherwise have been received for eggs, but I prefer to give results rather than to put out high customers who purchased eggs from his pen could hardly have been completely satisfied with results.

I have noticed a great difference in the vitality in the chicks from males or females that have been over shown and birds that have been kept at home in regular quarters and the difference is all in favor of the latter. I would not discourage exhibitors. Far from it. But I would recommend that a bird be shown but once in a season and would suggest that a few of the very best be kept at home for the production of early chicks. Take no chances if you expect to be successful

The How and Why of Newtown Superiority

Take a look at the above photograph. It's the end of a Newtown Giant Incubator farthest away from the heater, opened up so you can see its operations plain as day. See how it handles the vital matter of ventilation and moisture.

Fresh Air the Keynote to Correct Hatching

Notice the open space at the back of the chambers, extending full length of each compartment. Newtown Ventilating Process: 1. Fresh air rises constantly in the opening at back of chambers. 2. It enters the chambers through openings at the top. 3. It descends upon the eggs from above, because it is heavier than the warm air in the chambers. It is also radiated downward by the warm pipes above. 4. It circulates through the chamber and rises as warm air. 5. It passes out at the top—NOT at the bottom, carrying out fumes and gases.

Newtown Giants, any size, 1,200 to 10,000 Eggs

The Newtown Giant is the one large scientific incubator. Heat and air are circulated according to natural laws. The moisture nature placed in the egg is retained, none need be supplied. No such impossible scheme as attempting, contrary to physical laws, to force the heated air down and out at the bottom is employed, as in some incubators. The proof of its correct construction is shown in its remarkable hatching record: Always the most chicks from any given number of eggs. Chicks with vitality—big and strong and heavy, because the eggs have been in right conditions of heat, fresh air and moisture from the first day of incubation.

“Individual Regulating Hover” Brooding System

Controls temperature and fresh air in each hover individually. Fresh air is brought directly into each hover. Each hover full of chicks has the exact temperature they require—chicks one day old in one hover—chicks two months old in adjoining hover and each one with different temperature and quantity of fresh air. These are advanced practices found only in the Newtown Brooding System. Investigate and be convinced. Send today for Incubator Catalog L and Brooder Catalog D.

The circulation of Poultry Fancier is national in character. It is the only poultry journal published solely in the interests of fanciers, the people who constitute practically the entire fraternity.

The mission of Poultry Fancier is to teach breeders how to produce the beautiful and valuable Standard bred birds which are the foundation of all profit and pleasure in poultry raising.

When you see an X marked in this space, it means your subscription has expired.

Enoch D. Haney Now Treasurer and Business Manager of Poultry Fancier

Our readers will rejoice to learn that Enoch D. Haney, formerly the leading business head of the R. W. Hartnett Printing Machinery Co., of Philadelphia, one of the largest establishments of its kind in the country, has closed out his interests in that concern, and has purchased an equal interest with F. W. DeLancey, in the Poultry Fancier Publishing Co., and will become its treasurer and business manager.

It was absolutely necessary to have a general business manager, as the Fancier is now not only the greatest journal in the eastern field, but one of the greatest journals in the world, read throughout civilization, and with an advertising patronage in almost every state and territory in the Union and provinces of Canada. And with one of the finest equipments in the country, and additional machinery will be installed that will make the Fancier the pace-maker of Poultry Journalism.

Mr. Haney is well known as a self-made man, a man who has had years of experience in the business world, a man who by his own tact and energy, fought his way to the front in the business world. This means much to the readers of the Fancier. It means a larger and better journal than you have ever received before. No, we will not stand still, or where we are, we will push forward with all our might—increased effort in the field, increased energy at the office, increased mechanical equipment, will all aid in placing the Fancier where it has always been our aim to place it, namely, in the lead.

The dark days are over, and at last the sun broke through the dark clouds. And thanks be to you all. But let us remind you that our policy of equal rights and justice to all still remains our motto, and the eagle remains on the cover page. And, as in the past, we stand ready to fight for our honest convictions and for a pure, clean and an honest fancy, and to give justice to the little breeder as well as to the large one, and to the poor as well as the man of millions.

The Unseen, Hidden Power

Enormous powers be within us of which we know very little, and which if we would use them, would enable us to do marvelous things. It is this power, this hidden power, that makes a giant out of an invalid and weakling, when his house is on fire, or when in some great catastrophe, or when a man rushes to the rescue of his child in danger. When we face perils of this kind, or are confronted with a great crisis in business, it is at this point that a tremendous reserve power comes to our assistance. It is this tremendous reserve power that carries determined man on the crest of the wave to safety or prosperity. It is this tremendous reserve power that makes a man use stumbling blocks thrown in his way, as stepping stones to greater achievements. It is this tremendous reserve power that eliminates the word failure from the thoughts and mind of a determined man.

It is this tremendous reserve power that causes a man to step out boldly in the world, and carve his pathway through the unexplored regions of his business. It is this tremendous reserve power that causes a man with a few hundred dollars to accept the challenge of his seemingly great and powerful competitors. It is this tremendous reserve power that brings to a man's mind the thoughts that lead to success.

It is this tremendous reserve power that causes men to fight to the finish, for that which they believe to be right. This is the power that wins life's battles, and this is the power that inspired the patriots of old to establish this great country, where all men are born free and equal, where the poor shoemaker is given an equal chance with the learned.

Now, what I wish to inspire in the thoughts and minds of every one who raises poultry is this, there will come a time some day, some time, in your life, the same as it has come to the writer and every one else, when it will become necessary for you to bring forth from that mysterious within, all the tremendous reserve power that man has. After all, it is only fear that makes brave men weaklings. No matter how poor you are, or whether your education ended this side of the Grammar school, or not, step out boldly into the unknown, and by your own strength carve out your pathway through the wilderness.

No Expiration

Advertising in the Poultry Fancier is no experiment. It has long passed that stage and is now recognized as the foremost business-getter in the eastern field. Letters on file from nearly all parts of the country speak in the highest terms of the pulling powers of our truly great circulation.

We not only claim to have the largest circulation of any journal published in the great State of Pennsylvania, but claim to have one of the largest and best paid-in-advance-subscription lists of any journal in the U. S. Bear in mind the circulation of the Fancier represents the cream. Why? Because we are the only real fancier's journal. A journal published in the interest of the men who raise the high-priced standard-bred birds, but it is read by 150,000 readers who are willing to pay the price, men and women who value poultry for more than eggs and meat.

Why can you get the use of this circulation for so little money? Because we own our own plant and you are buying direct from the manufacturer of advertising. Send for our circular on "Advertising and Selling Power." It's free, no matter whether you advertise with us or not. We want you to have it. It is worth hundreds of dollars to you. It has solved the poultryman's most difficult problems, namely, finding a market for your product at profitable prices. We want you to have it. It has set hundreds on the right road to success, and prosperity, and will set you right. Now is the time. Start the new year right. Plant your advertising on fertile soil, a circulation of enormous size, and one that is not farmed out or tilled out.

Fancier Publishing Company Stock all Sold.

In the past several issues of Poultry Fancier, we advertised stock for sale, and we are pleased to announce that every share of our entire capitalization has been sold, and we were compelled to return several hundred dollars, that reached us too late.

It turned out just as we predicted it would, worth more than par, by April 1st. It is now worth considerable more than par value. We feel very grateful indeed for the support given and notwithstanding the fact that we have one of the best equipments in the country, I am proud to say, "We are free from debt."

We want to caution all our old subscribers as well as new ones to be on the lookout for fraudulent subscription agents. Do not give your renewal or take a subscription from any one representing the Fancier unless he has, and can show you his credentials, which gives him authority to receive your subscription.

A man representing himself and signing his name McNeil, victimized several hundred at the fall fairs in the State of New York, and caused us no end of trouble at this end. We hope to catch this unprincipled rascal, and let the law deal with him. Be sure you are right when you renew your subscription or give a new one.

Judge Drevenstedt's Report:

"White Wyandottes, magnificent classes, the best we remember handling at the State Fair. John S. Martin fairly out did himself with a wonderful string of Whites which filled many pens. Notably superior was the first prize cock, which is one of Mr. Martin's masterpieces in breeding White Wyandottes. But in hens, cockerels, pullets and pens he was equally well represented by the most uniform and well conditioned lot of Whites he ever exhibited."

"THE GREAT ROCHESTER SHOW."

The next "Great Rochester Show" of the Flower City Poultry and Pigeon Association, Inc., will be staged at Rochester's new exposition hall located at Exposition Park, during the week of January 6th to 11th, 1913.

This brand new fire proof hall contains some 45,000 square feet of floor space on the ground floor, with nearly a glass roof and about 300 feet of it on the south side giving practically daylight conditions on the inside; a condition so necessary and so much desired by the exhibitors. A modern heating and ventilating system is part of its up-to-date equipment. Cold draughts and hot spots are thus done away with; another very desirable feature. The hall is located within a few minutes walk from the center of the city; three car lines pass the door and one runs within a block, thus assuring the exhibitors of a large attendance.

The association will this year, for the first time, coop the show with their new sanitary all-wire and metal coops. These coops are of an original design and are an inch higher than the regulation exhibition cage now on the market, affording that much needed head room for the larger varieties.

A number of very attractive booths 15 feet square have been contracted for, in which Poultry Press, the Supply Houses and the Specialty Clubs, who will have national or state meetings at the show, will afford the attendance an opportunity of acquainting themselves with all that is new and best in the respective lines.

The show will be under the management of the following newly elected officers:

President, F. O. Guenther; 1st Vice President, August Eckert; 2nd Vice President, James E. Smith; Treasurer, George W. Bauer; Secretary, John F. Tallinger; Assistant Secretary, Dr. E. S. Haryward; Recording Secretary, James A. Smith; General Superintendent, Geo. J. Eckhardt; Assistant Superintendent, DeForest A. Harmon; Assistant Superintendent, Chas. C. Palmer; Board of Directors, F. O. Guenther, John F. Tallinger, Leopold

Fisher, Charles P. Marshall, Dr. E. S. Haryward, James A. Smith, Joseph A. Dunningham, Geo. J. Eckhardt, Geo. J. Otto, which is a sufficient guarantee that the show will be conducted upon the same basis that has made itself heralded throughout this broad land as the one class show of the season.

In connection with this year's show the Houdan Club will hold its annual national meet, as will also the Eastern Branch of the S. C. Black Orpington Club.

The Sicilian Buttercup Club will entrust its future to this great show by making its debut here, holding its first annual national meet here.

Messrs. R. N. Barnum, C. L. Jackson, H. M. Kenner, Frank G. Bean, J. Frank Van Alstyne, George H. Burgott, Dr. C. J. Andrus, O. W. Preston, R. D. Jolley, Theodore F. Jager and Edward Morris will place the awards. This grand battery of officials is a certain guarantee that nothing but proper conditions in the judging line will obtain.

The edition of the premium list will this year be limited to 5000 copies and it behooves those desiring to exhibit to put in an early request for one as the 4000 of last year were gone before we knew it and many had to be disappointed.

John F. Tallinger, the Secretary, whose new address is Box No. 544, Rochester, N. Y., has assured the writer that he would be glad to correspond upon matter pertaining to the show with any of our readers.

POULTRY FLATS

position because he got the chicken fever and engaged in it without the least practical knowledge of raising live stock of any kind, and the result was that he lost all he had. Not a very good proposition, with a family to support. Lack of knowledge and money, they say, is the cause of all failures; and I should like to add that the great majority want to begin at the top and that is the reason they end at the bottom—so impatient are we.

Build a flat,—it will not cost much,—and make money from the beginning. You always have room to expand as your means and knowledge will permit. Any ten-year-old child can feed and water these birds and not move three feet from one spot.

TRENTON, N. J., SHOW.

Before another issue of Poultry Fancier goes to press, the great Mid-winter poultry show held at Trenton, N. J., will be a matter of history. Indications are that before another issue goes to press, the Trenton poultry show will take its place among the ranks of the foremost shows of the East. Why shouldn't it? The members who compose the Trenton Poultry Association are real true fanciers, men who exemplify the true spirit of the sportsman. Trenton carved its way through the unexplored regions that finally led to one of the greatest shows of the East.

Their coming exhibition promises to be one of the very best ever held in their State.

On To Trenton, should be the motto of every one. Here is where the right hand of true sportsmanship is extended to the fancier. Trenton is the place where all men meet in equality, rich or poor, all walk the same line.

Trenton is a great show town, situated right in the heart of the great buying district in the State of New Jersey, and a win at Trenton means much.

J. C. FISHEL & SON

Issue a Book on White Wyandottes.

"Practical and Profitable Poultry Breeding" is the title of the new book describing the White Wyandottes and the methods of breeding them on J. C. Fishel & Son Farms at Hope, Indiana. This truly remarkable book is the best ever issued on the breed, and as a guide for the fancier as well as the beginner, it is unexcelled. An article on line breeding with complete instructions and a chart absolutely different and better than any printed heretofore will make it the most sought for book of the day. Articles on breeding, housing, judging, and preparing White Wyandottes for exhibition written in a clear and convincing style, are worth dollars to anybody who breeds poultry. Government statistics, selective breeding, specialty breeding and an illustrated article in poultry diseases puts this book in a class by itself. The book is chock full of illustrations and contains also a magnificent insert of a pair of White Wyandottes printed in natural colors. It has cost thousands of dollars and will be ready for distribution about December first. Twenty-five cents in stamps or coin to cover cost of mailing, etc., will bring it to you. Satisfaction guaranteed. J. C. Fishel & Son, Hope, Ind. Box PF.

DON'T KILL THE LAYING HEN SAVE LABOR, SPACE AND FEED BY KILING THE NON-LAYERS.

Detecting the drones is a science which many of our readers ought to acquire. To be able to walk out among a flock of hens, pick one up promiscuously and tell whether she is in laying condition or not is a trick is easily acquired and by means of which many a dollar will be saved on feed bills.

When first putting this knowledge to use it is necessary to make several tests, first go among your hens, and sort out the ones who are not in laying condition at that time, separate these from the ones in laying condition and a few days later make another test of the hens who were not in laying condition at the time of first test. Among these you will find several who are in laying condition and these can be put with the other layers.

After that you have the drones and non-layers left, those are the ones who do not lay often and some never lay at all and should be sold to the market as they eat as much as the layers and you get nothing back.

After a few tests of this kind you will find a remarkable increase in your egg yield per capita, your layers have more room in the pens, your feed bill decreases and you make more money, but this is not all. You also will find that in another year the pullets bred from these layers will have the same laying qualities and in a few years time you can build up a strain of layers which would be impossible to produce without the knowledge of the Potter Secret.

We would like to give more information herein, but as the book containing this secret is protected by copyrights and as it is the result of Mr. Potter's 20 year research on this subject, we believe he is entitled to his protection.

Further information regarding this discovery will be found in the full page Last Chance advertisement of the one great poultry paper in America the AMERICAN POULTRY JOURNAL 544 F. So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Don't fail to look it up in this issue. It will save you many dollars.

If you haven't already taken advantage of the great offer being made by the American Poultry Journal, the one great poultry paper of America, you should do so now.

The November issue of this great publication was a "jim dandy." It contained two of the best colored pictures of standard bred poultry seen for some time. The publishers promise many more of the same kind and our readers should procure a copy of the November issue if they want to be convinced.

After January 1st the subscription price of American Poultry Journal will be increased to One Dollar per year, but at present they are still accepting subscriptions at the rate of three years for One Dollar.

Double Quick Grain Sprouter

The Perpetual Poultry Silo.

A veritable hot-house, growth-forcing machine that sprouts in 24 hours and grows two inches or more daily.

Makes two to four bushels of feed from one of grain.

The Double Quick is the original grain sprouter, now in its third season, several thousand being in use in every part of the United States and Canada and is endorsed by hundreds of users.

Our catalog will give you scores of letters like the following:—
October 7, 1912.—"On September 16th I ordered your No. 5 Double Quick Sprouter sent to Maude L. Kaler, Columbia City, Ind., and this is proving so satisfactory that she wants another one of the same size, and, therefore you will find draft in payment of this second sprouter."
MIL0 R. MEREDITH, Wabash, Ind.

September 14th, 1912.—"I ordered and received from you last fall one of your 5-tray grain sprouters. This works very satisfactorily but is far too small to meet my requirements. I want one that will sprout for 1,500 hens. Will you kindly advise me by return mail if you make a larger size and the price of the same."

Later:—September 23.—"I have your esteemed letter of Sept. 16th with enclosures. I enclose my check for which please ship me RUSH one of your No. 6 grain sprouters."
E. A. PALMER, Providence, R. I.

Feb. 26, 1912.—"I am enclosing my check for your No. 5 Double Quick Sprouter. Please ship by express. I wish to get one of these machines going at the earliest moment. As soon as I have tested this one and find it satisfactory, as I expect I shall find it, I will give you an order for more."

Later:—April 27.—"I am enclosing my check for two more of your No. 5 Double Quick Sprouters. The one I bought some weeks since is doing good work."

C. H. LATHAM, Beauty and Utility Barred Rocks, Lancaster, Mass.
M. O. Richardson, Plattsburg, Mo., writes—"It is the greatest trick ever. It grows oats 10 inches high in six days. I am well pleased with it."

Irwin A. Rush, Phillipshurg, N. J., writes:—"I am more than pleased with the Double Quick. We had some very cold weather here for some time but I had one tray a day of sprouts from 3 1-2 to 4 inches long."

David Schwertner, Ottawa, Ohio, says:—"Last fall I got one of your grain sprouters and used it last winter and had good results for the weather we had. It was zero weather nearly all the time but my chickens laid from 3 to 4 dozen eggs right along and I can say the oats did it for all the people around here didn't get any eggs last winter."

Made in six sizes, from a few hens to 1,000. Send for the complete Double Quick catalog. It will pay you.

Again at the greatest Fall fair ever held at Allentown, Pa., 1912, Mr. Fell's birds won 1 2 4 cocks, 1 3 4 hen, 2 4 cockerel, 1 2 3 pullets and 2 4 pen; Allentown cup for best 10 birds, Grand Futurity Championship Cup 1912, Item Cup, Fancier Cup, Rathburn Cup and North American Cup for best pullet in the show. I had planned for some time to visit Mr. Fell and after his last splendid victory at the Allentown Fair I had the good fortune of putting my plans into execution. It was only natural that I should expect to find good birds on Mr. Fell's farm after the remarkable winnings he had made at many of our leading shows, but I am only fair with myself and just to Mr. Fell to state that his W. Wyandottes are greater in quality and more perfectly finished than any I have examined this season. There were over 100 well matured cockerels, almost any of which are fit to win in the fastest company, and about as many pullets crowding on towards show room honors. In cock birds and hens, generally speaking, I believe Mr. Fell owns as grand a lot of birds as there are in this or any other country, while his cock bird "Teddy Jr." is the most perfect Wyandotte specimen we have ever seen. Mr. Fell has a number of most beautiful pullets in the pink of condition, with a fine collection that will be just right for honors in such shows as Philadelphia, Camden, etc. Then there are other pullets. Well, if we tried to describe them for the benefit of our readers I fear we would drop our pen and say, "Come on boys we will have to go to West Point." Mr. Fell has sold a number of great birds for many of the best shows of the season and from present indications he will be sold out long before the season closes. We were loath to leave such congenial surroundings, for both Mr. and Mrs. Fell are people of the "royal sort," who "puts one at ease," from the start and their hospitality so unaffected that one experiences the feeling of leaving one's own home instead of that of a friend. But duty demanded our attention elsewhere and after taking another long farewell of Mr. Fell's birds we reluctantly climbed into our host's carriage and allowed him to "drive us on" toward the further duties of the day.

A BIG WIN.

We are just in receipt of a letter from Fred Minch, proprietor of the Horseshoe Poultry Yards, Hicksville, N. Y., stating he made an excellent win at the Riverhead show, with his high-class Columbian Wyandottes, making almost a clean sweep. He also made a good win at the Hempstead, L. I. show, winning the lion's share of the first and seconds and specials in shape and color.

OWEN FARMS

OUR WIN AT NEW YORK,
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN,
LAST SHOW

BUFF ORPINGTONS: Five Firsts, including 1st Cock, 1st Hen, 1st Cockerel, 1st Pullet, 1st Pen, making first in all the classes, and also 3d Cock, 4th Hen and 6th Cockerel.

WHITE ORPINGTONS: Three Firsts, 1st Cockerel, 1st Hen and 1st Pen; also 2d Pen, 3d and 5th Cock, 6th Hen and 3d Pullet.

BLACK ORPINGTONS: One First, 1st on Cockerel, and also 5th Hen and 5th Pen.

WHITE ROCKS: Four Firsts, 1st Cock, 1st Cockerel, 1st Pullet and 1st Pen. 2d in all five classes, Cock, Hen, Cockerel, Pullet and Pen. 4th and 5th Cock, 4th Hen, 5th Cockerel, 4th Pullet, and on Pen we won every place but 4th, making our Pen winnings, 1st, 2d, 3d, 5th and 6th.

BARRED ROCKS: In this variety no exhibitor won more than one first. We won 1st Pullet, which was awarded the Shape Special and also won the Championship for best female. We also won 4th Pullet and 2d Hen.

This made a grand total of 27 Firsts, 12 Seconds, 11 Thirds, 9 Fourths, 10 Fifths and 5 Sixths, and a total number of birds winning under ribbons at this famous and largest show in America of 139.

We submit to you frankly this question: Could any other farm than Owen Farms possibly be in a position to do more for you than they can? We answer it for you by saying it is not possible. With 8000 young birds, and 2000 older birds for the cock and hen classes, possessing all the quality that their New York winners have made possible, they can and will do more for you than any other farm possibly could.

Whether you are rich or poor, a large breeder or a small breeder just beginning, makes no difference to us. Our price on a particular bird is the same to all. We necessarily have birds that will fit your needs, however

By F. D. Sutton.

It is almost beyond the reach of the minds of us ordinary human beings to grasp the marked improvements that have been made in the S. C. Bl. Minorcas during the past four or five years. Some breeders who have championed the cause of this grand old breed of fowls have greatly enhanced their value by increasing their size. Others have added to their popularity by breeding out purple and other foreign color, others have devoted more time to the question of shape, but it remained for Dr. Howard Mellor to combine all these great characteristics as designated above together with a most beautiful, pure white, olive shaped ear lobe, into one grand breed and present to the fancier one of the most remarkable strains of S. C. Bl. Minorcas bred today.

It was no insignificant undertaking I assure you, but Dr. Mellor went after the job in his persistent, painstaking way, which has characterized his great success for which he has become so popular along professional lines and refused to surrender until, at this present time, we doubt if there is a more wonderful array of really high class Minorcas to be found anywhere in the world than grace Dr. Mellor's yards. His birds combine size, shape, color of plumage, comb, wattles, ear-lobe and practically every other feature so essential to a well rounded out, typical Black Minorca, as demanded by our Standard of Perfection today, to a wonderful degree and takes particular pride in displaying the results of his years of painstaking efforts to those who are interested in his favorite breed. We knew Dr. Mellor had good Black Minorcas, for we have camped on his trail from year to year at our largest Eastern shows where he has exhibited, and have seen a great number of champion birds he has sold to others who have won in some of the greatest shows of the South and West, but it remained until our recent visit to Dr. Mellor's beautiful suburban home, to see such a display of Black Minorcas as our eyes never rested on before. There are cock birds weighing up to 13 lb. or over, hens more than a pound above Standard weight, cockerels and pullets ready, right now, to carry away crowns of blue in any show in the land. We have never seen such color before as we saw on Dr. Mellor's cock birds. Not a sign of purple, or white, in any section of the plumage. Just one splendid display of deep beetle green from comb to tip of tail. Nearly every cockerel we examined had a pure white, olive shaped ear lobe almost as perfect as an artist could draw, and every one of them carried a low tail and showed such wonderful Minorca symmetry as we have never seen before among so large a number of birds. The pullets, while not quite so fully matured, are constructed along the same standard lines and if Dr. Mellor's Minorcas do not win more blue ribbons this season than ever before, it will be on account of the fact that the Judge does not know the "Minorca Standard" or else some one has secret pens of birds too sacred for the eyes of the "stranger within the gates" to look upon.

Dr. Mellor's winnings at Madison Square Garden, Philadelphia and other great Eastern shows are well known to all our readers and we simply desire to state in closing this article that we are certain no one will have cause to regret their act if they are fortunate enough to secure some of Dr. Mellor's great Black Minorcas for show-room competition this season.

Two of Dr. Howard Mellor's Great Champion Minorcas.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON MARKET POULTRY AND EGG STANDARD.

The committee appointed by the American Poultry Association to prepare a Market Poultry and Egg Standard held its first meeting of the whole committee at Chicago, on Monday, the 28th of October, at 10 A. M. The following members of the committee were present: R. H. Essex, Chairman, Buffalo, N. Y.; W. R. Graham, Guelph, Ont.; T. E. Quisenberry, Mountain Grove, Mo.; Wm. Lippincott, Manhattan, Kan.; H. C. Pierce, Nashville, Tenn.; G. C. Bowman, Topeka, Kan.; Frank Hare, Quincy, Ill.; Harry M. Lamon, Washington, D. C.; Paul Mandeville, Chicago, Ill.

The whole committee was therefore present except Mr. J. M. Foster, Brown's Mills, N. J., who was ill and could not attend.

Mr. Reese V. Hicks and Mr. S. T. Campbell, president and secretary of the Association, were present.

Mr. Robert H. Essex, Chairman of the committee, outlined the work to be done, first reading to the committee, the report presented at Nashville, and the resolution of the American Poultry Association at that meeting, under which the committee is acting. This was done in order that the committee might in their work adhere strictly to the requirements of the Association.

The work and correspondence that had been taken up by the committee during the past year were dealt with, and fully discussed. The President and Secretary of the Association were invited by the Chairman to give their views of the subject.

Information, literature, etc., which has been referred to in the report presented to the Association at Nashville, were thoroughly discussed by a committee of the whole after which sub-committees were appointed by the Chairman to take up the work on Market Poultry, Eggs, Illustrations, Editing and Publicity, and the work of the sub-committees was well under way when on Wednesday evening the final meeting adjourned.

Members of the Standard Committee inspected the poultry packing and egg departments of the Armour Packing Company, also of the Chicago Cold Storage Company.

The National Poultry, Butter and Egg Association was in session at Chicago at the same time as this committee; and at the Tuesday afternoon meeting of that Association, Messrs. Essex, Graham and Mandeville, by invitation, addressed the Association on the subjects of this work, at the conclusion of which addresses the National Poultry, Butter and Egg Association was invited to appoint a committee to co-operate with the Market Poultry and Egg Standard Committee. The National Poultry, Butter and Egg Association agreed to co-operate, and appointed as their representatives, Messrs. Paul Mandeville of Chicago, Ill., and Geo. C. Bowman of Topeka, Kansas.

The committee decided that it would be necessary to have certain of the sub-committees visit packing houses and other industries whose business would be affected by the Standard, in order to secure further information, and that as opportunities arise the sub-committees would hold such additional meetings as are advisable.

Much valuable information has been gathered by the committee in the course of the past year, and it is intended to thoroughly investigate conditions governing the industry in various countries before completing the work, so that the Standard may be down-to-date, and thoroughly representative of the industry.

Poultry Diseases and Remedies

By F. D. Sutton.

Ques. Please advise me the best method for forcing moult in my old birds. Would you advise me to shut off feed altogether and give only water to drink for two or three days to begin with?

Ans. I would advise no one to force their birds to moult. I don't believe anything is gained thereby, but if you wish to try it, the following method is usually followed, viz.: Give fowls all the free range you can with plenty of water to drink and give but one very light feed per day, at roosting time for about three weeks. Then remove them to winter quarters and feed them full rations with plenty of sunflower seeds in scratch feed. 2. No that is simply cruel, one should be as considerate of his fowls as he is of himself in every particular and the thought of ill treatment of the fowls which have worked faithfully for you all year ought, at least, to be repugnant to any one who is opposed to cruelty to dumb creatures.

Ques. About how many Leghorn hens ought one to keep in a house 8x16. Would 75 be too many?

Ans. Yes, 75 Leghorn hens are more than we would care to keep in a house of the above dimensions. We believe 50 would be enough.

Ques. My birds are having some discharge at the nostrils and act rather stupid. Their heads seem rather hot. What is the matter with them?

Ans. Your birds are no doubt suffering from colds or catarrh in the head. If let run very long it will develop into Roup. The best home remedy we have ever used is to mix 18 grains of Boric acid with one ounce of water and inject same into the nostrils and roof of mouth of afflicted bird. Or a 3 per cent. solution of creoline administered to the sick fowls as stated above. You will find advertised in our columns some of the best remedies ever offered for rouse and kindred diseases. We are sure they will effect a cure if used in time, according to instructions. Be sure to separate the sick birds from those not affected and give them dry airy quarters, free from drafts. Feed only soft feed mixed to a crumbly mass until the birds are considerably improved. Always keep clean water before them and plenty of grit.

Ques. My best cock bird has rather a clumsy substance in his mouth under the roof of his mouth. He does not eat very well and dumps around considerably. Can you tell me what ails him and can you suggest a remedy?

Ans. Your bird is suffering from canker. Separate him from the rest of the flock and keep him in comfortable quarters; take a tooth pick or any other convenient instrument and remove the canker, then apply a solution of 20 grains of Boric acid to one ounce of water to the afflicted parts with a cloth or swab, three or four times a day. After each treatment of this liquid sprinkle a little flowers of sulphur over the sores and give the bird good wholesome food until he is well.

Ques. Will you please advise me what breed of fowls are the best layers where large numbers are to be kept together? I have S. C. W. Leghorns. Is there any other breed you consider better for eggs than they?

Ans. We know of no other breed of fowls that will give a better account of themselves, in the production of eggs, than the Leghorns. Of course something depends upon the strain of birds one is breeding, but we are firmly of the opinion that more frequently than otherwise, care, feed and housing have more to do with a good egg output than having any one particular strain of birds. Our advice would be stick to your Leghorns, give them proper care, good open front houses, and plenty of high grade feed and the results will be as satisfactory as they would if you changed to any other breed or variety of fowls.

Ques. How many birds (B. P. Rocks) ought I to keep in a house 8x12? I am raising only utility birds and would like to keep as many in one coop as I can with profit.

...Notice...

IN THE PAST this great book has only been offered in connection with a three years' subscription to POULTRY FANCIER, and we wish to advise all our old subscribers that it means them also. We will renew your subscription for 3 years and send you the book for $1.00. This is beyond all doubt the greatest offer ever made and for the benefit of all who desire this book we have decided to sell it for the small sum of

50 cents

and we dare say it is worth hundreds of dollars to any man or woman who raises chickens. We want every one raising chickens to give himself a square deal. This you can't do unless you have the knowledge.

Be Honest With Yourself READ THIS

The following notice appeared in Farm & Gardens, published by Munn & Co., New York City:

"The title of the book has been rightly chosen and emphasizes the fact that without knowledge of the poultry business the chances of making a success are small. The teachings are both applicable to fancy and utility poultry breeders. The writer's knowledge seems to be complete, and he has written the book in a manner which makes it easily understood by the layman. The book will enable those about to start in the poultry business to start rightly, and those already in the business to steer clear of breakers and ultimately build up a successful business.

LOOK and READ

Our large adv. in the POULTRY FANCIER will tell you exactly what these 34 chapters are. Practically a complete course in Poultry Culture, sent prepaid to any address in the U. S. and Canada for 50 cents or given free with a 3-year subscription to POULTRY FANCIER for $1.00. No matter when your subscription expires, take advantage of this, it will be extended three years from the date of its expiration. Order to-day. You need this book.

Poultry Fancier Pub. Co., SELLERSVILLE, PA.

Ans. If your house is built on the open front plan you can keep 20 hens in it with profit, providing you keep deep litter in your pens and scatter all their grain feed into it. Keep your birds busy giving plenty of green food, such as sprouted oats, cabbage, etc. Keep grit, oyster shells and clean water before them at all times and you will be amply repaid for your trouble.

Ques. Would you kindly explain through your valuable journal what is meant by the term "Non-Standard Breeds?"

Ans. The term "Non-Standard Breeds" is applied to those breeds of fowls which have not been admitted to the American Standard of Perfection. The fact that a breed of fowls is classed as "Non-Standard" should not be considered a demerit mark against that particular breed, but simply to designate the fact that it has not been bred a sufficient length of time to meet the various requirements designated by the Standard of Perfection for its admission to the Standard.

CYPHERS INCUBATOR COMPANY'S GREAT FREE BOOK, READY FOR MAILING THIS MONTH.

Many readers of this paper will be glad to learn that the 1913 complete catalogue and Poultrymen's Guide, published annually by Cyphers Incubator Co., Buffalo, N. 7. Today's best Chance in the Poultry Business.

8. Small-Scale Poultry Keeping on a Practical Basis.

The Poultrymen's Guide feature of the Cyphers Company's book for 1913 is based on the indisputable fact that the profitable production of market fowl and table eggs form the solid foundation of our present billion dollar poultry industry, of which the Standard-bred branch is the head. The argument of the book is along this line and it is believed by the publishers that its contents will be a revelation to thousands of earnest poultrymen and women in every branch of the industry.

The greatest value of the Cyphers Company's free catalogue guide for 1913 is to be found in what it sets forth and recommends as being both possible and practical in the field of really profitable poultry and egg production. The facts reported and the methods described are based on actual experiments conducted in 1911 and 1912 on the Company's $75,000 experimental and demonstration poultry farm, consisting of fifty acres of land located just outside of Buffalo. The 16-page introductory to the book and the eight chapters were written by Grant M. Curtis, President of Cyphers Incubator Co., who says that he believes a copy of it should be read, studied and preserved "by every person who is trying to better his or her condition in life by keeping poultry on either a small or large scale for any purpose."

To obtain a free copy of "Profitable Poultry and Egg Production," write direct to the home offices of Cyphers Incubator Company, Buffalo, N. Y., or address the Company's nearest Branch Store, as follows: being sure to mention this paper; 12-14 Canal St., Boston, Mass.; 23 Barclay St., New York City, N. Y.; 329-331 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.; 317-319 Southwest Blvd., Kansas City, Mo.; 2127-2131 Broadway, Oakland, Calif.; or 121-123 Finsbury Pavement, London, England.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

After Nov. 20th, 1912, Mr. Jos. Reiff of Chambersburg, Pa., will be manager of the Caw-Law Poultry Farm. Mr. Reiff needs no introduction into the poultry fraternity as he has won with his White Leghorns at the largest shows. We have purchased his entire stock of S. C. White Leghorns. His old customers will receive the same treatment as formerly. Reiff's S. C. White Leghorns and our strain of Indian Runner ducks are a combination hard to beat. This year we have again won the BLUE ribbons at Hagerstown and Allentown in the hottest competition on Fawn and White and Snow Whites. We do not rest on our laurels but we keep on winning. Watch our record grow. The demand for eggs, chicks and ducklings from such great stock will no doubt create a big sensation. We are now ready to book your orders. Do not delay. Write for prices at once.

Belle Brand Crushed Oyster Shells

Make Poultry PAY!

Tests show where these shells have been used—duration of test 22 days—number of eggs, 33; weight of eggs, 1439.6 grammes.

Where Sharp Grits were fed—test 22 days—number of eggs, 6; weight of eggs, 257.6 grammes. This is convincing argument why every poultry house or yard should have them. They'll make hens lay an egg a day, with firm, hard shell—less liable to break in shipment.

Belle Brand Crushed Oyster Shells supply Carbonate of Lime in natural form and acts as a grit, making them superior to any other poultry food on the market. Write for Free Catalogue to LOUIS GREBB, BALTIMORE, MD.

This is the Superior Trough

It Solves Difficult Problems

Many kinds of appliances have been placed on the market for feeding fowls; and many have been found wanting. Some of the devices were almost impossible to clean and disinfect. In some the food clogged up, and when we thought the birds had plenty to eat, they were starving. This led to our manufacturing the as shown above. They are made in all sizes. (NOTE) The lid lifts off so they can be cleaned and disinfected. SEE THESE PRICES. Order direct or send for illustrated booklet. If you are interested in winter eggs send today. Agents wanted in every locality, especially Poultry Supply houses.

Aldrich Poultry Farm

The Aldrich Poultry Farm of 6026 N. High St., Columbus, Ohio, have purchased the entire flocks of S. C. White Orpingtons owned by Sunswick Poultry Farm, S. Plainfield, N. J., and Mr. E. B. Rogers, Cincinnati, Ohio, together with their good will. Among these birds are the famous Champion Madison and Lady of the Snows, and the winners at Madison Square Garden, Allentown, Augusta, Baltimore, Hagerstown, and Indianapolis, as well as practically all the winners at Chicago during the last two years. These birds added to their already large number of winners at last year's shows in addition to those from Allentown, Atlanta and Augusta this season, now makes the Aldrich Poultry Farm easily the Quality White Orpington Farm of the world. Their motto is "Quality above all else" and their customers winnings in all the large shows so far this season plainly shows this.

The Sunswick Farm has decided to breed only the one color, Buff Orpington, as they realize only the highest quality can be bred by specializing in one variety. Mr. Rogers' poultry business was increasing so rapidly he found if he continued the business he would have to devote his entire personal attention to it and he could not afford to give up his large manufacturing interests so decided to dispose of his flock of White Orpingtons to the Farm which was prepared to devote all the personal attention of its three members which in addition to the help of one of England's greatest poultrymen as superintendent, now places the Aldrich Farm at the top in White Orpingtons. The same degree of satisfaction is assured to all the former customers of Sunswick Farm and Mr. Rogers and at prices even lower than ever before which the increased facilities of the Aldrich Farm now permit with their flock of over 2000 high quality birds.

CATASAUQUA (PENNA.) SHOW.

The first annual exhibition of the Catasauqua, Penna., Fanciers Association will be held December 24th to 28th. This is one of the live organizations of the eastern part of Pennsylvania, and by the looks of their catalog, just at hand, they have done some hard and intelligent work for success and welfare of their coming show.

Catasauqua is but a 5 cent fare from the great poultry center of Allentown, and is situated right in the heart of the great fancy poultry raising territory, and we anticipate, it is going to take a lot of quality to win at the Catasauqua show.

In addition to the regular list of prizes, they have secured a nice lot of special premiums. For all information, communicate with Chas. D. Oswald, Catasauqua, Penna., 1145 2d Street.

Chick raising IS NOT a matter of Luck

So many chicks die early that most poultry raisers think healthy chicks just a matter of luck. But it's largely a matter of feed.

Don't feed little chicks raw grain.

THE STRAIN OF QUALITY

If you wish to WIN at your show, or if you wish the HIGHEST QUALITY of selected breeders at prices never before offered for White Orpingtons, write us, telling us exactly what you want and we will quote you prices.

Our birds have won this season at the Great Allentown, Atlanta and Augusta Shows, 44 prizes on 60 birds entered in competition with 52 of the largest breeders in America from 11 different States. At Allentown we won both the futurity cockerel and pullet and at Atlanta our first prize cockerel received the sweepstake for the best cockerel in the show, of over 3000 birds, while our first prize hen at the Augusta Show was pronounced the best ever shown in the south.

Our customers have also won this season in Hagerstown, Bismark, N. D., Glasgow, Ky., Lancaster, Ohio, and many other shows, all these young birds being bred and raised on our farm or hatched from our eggs, from last year's prize winners at St. Louis, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago and MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.

Our egg prices will be one-half those of last year, making our best eggs $15. Eggs ready December 1st.

AT LAST—AN INCUBATOR DANGER SIGNAL.

Since the invention of the first incubator the maintenance of an even, regular temperature in the machine has been the most important subject connected with artificial hatching. It has been the stumbling block for thousands of poultry raisers; the one thing lacking in hundreds of otherwise perfect machines. Even in good machines, incessant examination of the thermometer was the only method of keeping up with temperature changes—and it often was inadequate in emergencies, when heaters failed to work and dangerous rises in temperature occurred.

If the temperature of the eggs is reduced somewhat, little harm is done. Nature has provided for this. Excessive heat, however, is fatal, for nature has made no compensation for this, there being no natural possibility for it. As a result, many hatches are baked to death and thousands of chicks lost. Thermostats have been invented and applied, but with indifferent success on account of the inability to make them strong enough and sensitive enough at the same time. Still it was necessary to have personal attention at the thermometer.

At last there has come a device that relieves the situation. A simple, safe, reliable, invention was perfected—the "Tyco's" electrical alarm thermometer—and brings to poultrymen the thing long wanted; an automatic danger signal working when temperature rises.

The apparatus consists of one of the famous reliable "Tyco's" Incubator Thermometers, the finest instrument of their kind, to which is attached an electric bell and battery. The thermometer rests on the eggs and as soon as the temperature passes the safety point, the bell starts to ring. The bell may be located anywhere—in the bedroom, if desired.

"Nobob" 1st. Cockerel. Pittsburg Exposition January 1912, bred and owned and exhibited by J. R. Eriser, Washington, Pa.

Anyone can install the apparatus—its cost is small compared with the great saving it makes and the certainty it assumes. The cost of one hatch saved will more than pay for it.

Made by the Taylor Instrument Companies, Rochester, N. Y., the well known manufacturers of incubator thermometers, this device has all the "Tyco's" quality of best material and thorough testing before leaving the factory. Its price is $5.00 complete with bell, connections, and wire, and no poultryman who desires the best equipment and most satisfactory hatches should fail to place one in every machine.

The Tyco's people are giving away a very attractive little booklet, nicely illustrated on the subject of Incubator Thermometers. It contains some interesting and valuable facts for everyone interested in hatching, and poultrymen should send for copies (free on request), as soon as possible.

HIS BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The results that Poultry Fancier has been bringing its display advertisers is nothing less than remarkable. From almost every state in the Union, we are receiving letters congratulating us in the quality of circulation that we have. The Underhill Farms, Ft. Ann, N. Y., has been in our Journal, as a regular advertiser, carrying anywhere from 12 inches to a half a page, during the dull months, and the early fall months, and under date of November first, we have received a letter from Mr. Underhill, and it reads as follows:

Ft. Ann, N. Y., November first, My dear Mr. Delancey: I am pleased to state that we have received more inquiries and orders from your paper, thus far, than any of the others that we are advertising in. You are at liberty to use this, in any way that it will benefit you. Thanking you kindly, we are very truly yours, Underhill Farms, Per G. H. Underhill.

THE SCRANTON SHOW.

The management of the Scranton Poultry and Pet Stock Association has engaged the large Auditorium Hall for their coming show. This is a miniature Madison Square Garden; beautiful floor, beautiful surroundings and well lighted from every side.

Those who have attended the Scranton Show in former years know what a glorious good time everyone can have while there and what a beautiful display is always caged and the remarkably large attendance that flows through the hall continually.

The features of the Scranton Show for this winter will be the meeting of the Game Bantam Club, the second time in two years. The display made by this organization two years ago eclipsed any like display ever made in this country. Dr. H. B. Gleezen, the Game expert from Georgetown, Mass., will come to Scranton and bring with him his display of beautiful Game fowls. He will judge all the Games and hold high carnival with all fanciers who breed or love the Game fowl.

Other organizations will meet in Scranton and the large amount of coops and cash specialties and other beautiful things offered in the premium list must attract a large attendance. The catalogue is now ready for delivery. Send to Mr. A. W. Close, Secretary, for one and send in your entries as soon as possible.

TIOGA CO. SHOW.

The Tioga County Poultry Association will hold its second annual exhibition at Knoxville, Pa., from December 15 to 20, 1912. Two noted judges have been secured, Mr. A. J. Braun, Syracuse, N. Y., and Mr. F. I. Bradford, Troy, Pa., both well known. The Association is looking forward to a fine show. Many valuable and special prizes will be offered and a large number of birds for exhibition seem assured. The success of last year would warrant high expectations for this year.

NORTH, SOUTH, EAST and WEST WE WIN

Following our great victories at Allentown and Hagerstown, we followed it up at Augusta Ga., by one of the grandest wins that has been made in competition with the greatest breeders in the land.

ONLYA FARM WHITE WYANDOTTES proved their superiority by winning 2-3 cock, 2-3 hen, 2-5 cockerel, 1-3-5 pullet, 1-4 pen and best display.

Considering the fact that our great wins at Allentown and Hagerstown during the season 1912 in connection with our great wins at the big winter shows last season, makes ONLYA FARM AS A LEADER AMONG WHITE WYANDOTTE BREEDERS.

OUR SEAMLESS LEG BANDS

Tell the story, when a bird reaches about a pound in weight a seamless leg band is put on; it cannot be removed; there it remains as the seal of Onlya Farm quality, and every young bird on our farm contains the band.

WE CAN MEET ANY COMPETITION

Our 1912 matings containing America's noted winners produced the best birds we ever raised, and they are well developed. The price is reasonable and positively every bird sold has been reared on the Onlya Farm, where nothing but White Wyandottes are bred.

THE SOUTH'S $32,500,000 ANNUAL PRESENT TO NORTHERN FARMERS.

Every reader of this paper will be intensely interested in the startling figures given in the October number of the Southern Field, published at the National Capital. It shows that $32,500,000 worth of butter is shipped annually from the North and West into the nine Southeastern States east of the Mississippi River.

Every condition favors the Southern farmer to produce dairy goods and all farm produce at a much lower cost than in less climatically favored sections. The Southern winters are very short and mild, cattle living comfortably out of doors the year around. The great varieties of forage, with heavy yields of corn, alfalfa, low-priced cotton seed meal and numerous other cheap feeds, lower production costs to the minimum.

Other advantages are the low-priced farms, with possibilities equal to lands in other sections selling at $100 an acre. Today, in the Southeast, the average price an acre for farm land is less than $17.00.

Farm produce finds ready markets in all sections of the South. In the past year 521 new industrial plants were established in the Southern Railway's territory, giving employment to thousands of operatives. This rapid influx of population will consume great quantities of all farm produce, thus making the demand far greater than the supply.

By writing M. V. Richards, Land and Industrial Agent, Southern Railway, Room 70, Washington, D. C., and mentioning this paper you can obtain a free subscription to the Southern Field. There are intensely interesting facts brought out in each number of this bi-monthly publication, showing the rapidly increasing agricultural and industrial developments of this territory, which is now experiencing additional phenomenal growth as the completion of the Panama Canal draws near.

NOTICE TO SINGLE COMB BROWN
LEGHORN BREEDERS.

The State Cup and a set of Club Ribbons will be offered at the Philadelphia Show, December 10-14, 1912. The Philadelphia Show has also made a liberal cash special offer of $25.00 and a Silver Cup. The Philadelphia Show is one of the largest and best shows in the State and a winning at this show is a credit to any breeder. We hope all State members will send a good entry and make our State meeting a successful one. Any breeder wishing to join can do so by sending $1.00 to E. W. Staebler, West Park, Ohio.

A CORRECTION.

In November issue, a mistake was made in the add. of B. H. Scranton, Rising Sun, Ind., stating that Mr. Scranton won first and third pullet, which should have been 3rd and 5th pullet. Mr. Scranton called our attention to this fact, as he doesn't desire to take honors which belong to his competitors.

BIRD BROS., MEYERSDALE, PA.

The boys who are setting "the long pace" for all Giant Bronze Turkey and Partridge Plymouth Rock breeders, have every reason to be proud of the remarkable record they have made in the strongest kind of show room competition during the past two or three years. Their winning at Madison Square Garden last winter were a great surprise to all the boys after the smoke of battle, in the Partridge Rock and Bronze Turkey Alleys had cleared away, for they had carried four out of a possible five first prizes in the Partridge Rock Alley and three times as many first as all their competitors on Bronze Turkeys and this season these same boys are coming right back at their competitors with the same spirit of conquest by winning at the Great Hagerstown, Md., Show, 1 2 4 5 cocks, 1 2 4 5 cockerels, 1 2 3 5 hens, 2 3 4 pullets; 1 old pen; 1 young pen, on Partridge Rocks; and 1 3 cocks, 1 2 3 hens, 1 3 cockerels, 1 2 3 pullets in Bronze Turkeys. The above recent winnings show a remarkable record so early in the year and when one considers the fact that they bred every one of these birds the glory of this victory is increased a hundred fold. Bird Bros. have raised about 1000 Partridge Rocks this season and still have about 500 fine show birds for sale and prices on these extra choice birds will be within the reach of any one who wants A No. 1 stock. Their Bronze Turkeys are as good as can be found anywhere in the country. They have about 300 for sale a great many of which are fit to win in our largest shows. We are specially proud to include Bird Bros. among our advertisers and unhesitatingly recommend them to all our readers. Look up their ad. in this issue of the Fancier, it is full of good things.

NEW BUILDING BADLY NEEDED.

It is a fact to be regretted that York County Fair, one of the best agricultural fairs in the State of Pennsylvania should have such an out of date Poultry Building. Frankly speaking their building is one of the worst in the state, to house valuable birds in, and if the high quality of Poultry which was at their exhibition this year, is to be maintained, they will surely have to provide a better building. Open on both ends, with a draught straight through, a great many of the birds caught cold, and complaints were heard on all sides by the exhibitors. There is no reason why York should not have a good building and if they do have a good building they will be able to have a show equal to Hanover, Lancaster, and the rest of the large Poultry Shows. The show was ably managed and well handled by the superintendent, who is to be congratulated on his excellent work.

FREDERICK POULTRY SHOW.

The Frederick Pan and Poultry Association has begun to make up, it appears there was a lull in the interest in the Poultry Department and this year there was a surprise for all to find a new poultry house with new cooping, new cement floors and everything pertaining to make a poultry show what it should be. Mr. D. C. Brish the Superintendent was the man on the job, there was over 1600 birds and next year he claims there will be over 2500, so that is going some to what Frederick has done in the past, let us hope that Frederick in the near future will be ranked with the rest in her poultry department and be one of the first to be remembered as she is one of the first counties in the U. S. in her financial standing and should be in her poultry.

READ THIS OFFER CAREFULLY

Nearly $2,000 worth of fowls from the cream of some of the best flocks in America will be distributed among the agents securing subscriptions for Successful Poultry Journal. These prizes are given in addition to liberal cash commissions and every one gets well paid for his time.

$100 PENS, $50 TRIOS, $25 PAIRS, GIVEN AWAY

Three Prizes in Each Class

FIRST PRIZE—A $100 PEN CONSISTING OF ONE MALE AND FOUR FEMALES.

SECOND PRIZE—A $50 TRIO CONSISTING OF ONE MALE AND TWO FEMALES.

THESE THREE PRIZES ARE OFFERED IN EVERY ONE OF THE 10 DIFFERENT BREEDS.

These are the 10 Classes

BARRED PLYMOUTH ROCKS, WHITE PLYMOUTH ROCKS, BUFF PLYMOUTH ROCKS.

WHITE WYANDOTTES, COLUMBIAN WYANDOTTES.

S. C. RHODE ISLAND REDS, R. C. RHODE ISLAND REDS.

S. C. BUFF ORPINGTONS, S. C. WHITE ORPINGTONS.

S. C. WHITE LEGHORNS.

A $100 PEN, A $50 TRIO AND A $25 PAIR OF EACH OF THE ABOVE 10 BREEDS WILL BE AWARDED.

HERE IS THE PLAN

Decide upon which one of the above mentioned varieties of fowls you prefer. For example: if you want to compete for one of the three lots of Barred Rocks, write us and say that you wish to enter the Barred Rock Contest. Each variety is in a class by itself and you do not have to compete with hundreds of other agents, as is generally the case. In this way you have ten times the chance to get either of the three prizes in your class, and it is very probable that a small number of subscriptions will secure the first prize. The agent sending in the largest number of subscriptions in his class gets the $100 pen. The $50 trio goes to second and the $25 pair to third. These prizes are almost equally desirable because the quality of the stock is about the same. The difference between the pen and the trio, for instance, is large in the number of birds constituting the prize, you get practically the same quality but fewer birds.

The contest closes March 15, 1913, and the birds will be promptly shipped at that time.

Every agent gets pay for his work whether he wins a prize or not. He gets this pay in the form of a liberal commission on every subscription he sends us, regardless of how few or how many that may be.

IT IS EASY TO GET SUBSCRIPTIONS

Our special plans for 1913 will make Successful Poultry Journal easily the best paper published. Special articles, special illustrations, increased size and other features will put it far in the lead. We supply agents with sample copies, receipt books, subscription blanks and a letter of complete instructions explaining how to place the merits of Successful Poultry Journal before prospective subscribers in such way as to easily get their subscriptions.

THE BEST FLOCKS IN AMERICA

Remember that some of the very foremost breeders in America will furnish stock in this contest. Absolutely the cream of some of America's best flocks will be purchased by us and the birds will be worth every dollar of the prices placed upon them. The names of breeders will be announced later.

Write us at once for sample copies and other supplies. Address

ENGLAND LOOKING TO AMERICA FOR POULTRY EQUIPMENT.

Owner of a 700 Acre English Poultry Farm Buys Newtown Giant Incubators and Brooding Systems.

An event of considerable importance in the poultry world is just now happening among the manufacturers of giant poultry equipment. One of the leading poultry raisers of England, recognizing the typically modern and up-to-date plants built in this country for raising poultry on a large and profitable scale, placed his order with one able here. He spent an entire month in making his investigations, visiting all the manufacturers of large poultry equipment. He also visited a number of large poultry farms where different giant incubator and brooding plants are in operation, in order that he might have reliable information at first hand as to the success of these different makes of large incubating and brooding equipment. Mr. Fels, was convinced of the complete success of the Giant poultry plants and returned to England an enthusiastic man. The Newtown Producing Company, Newtown, Pa., got the order.

this large order for Newtown equipment, Mr. Fels is only following the example of many of the largest and best posted poultry raisers in our own country. Newtown equipment, both incubators and brooders, are right in theory and successful in practice. The particular points of superiority as set forth in the Newtown catalogs make strong appeal to any one who is conversant with the wonderful improvement recently made in large poultry equipment.

of our progressive American concerns. About the middle of last month, the Steamship "South Point" carried an entire freight car load of representative American giant poultry equipment to England. The facts, in brief, are as follows:

Mr. A. Fels, resident of Standen, Sussex, England, is the owner of a 700 acre poultry farm. Recently he came to this country to make a personal investigation of the large poultry plants that are proving so profit-

Mr. Fels' machines were built at Newtown, Pa. The present order covers two Newtown Giant Incubators, each of 6,000 egg capacity, and five Newtown Giant Brooding Systems of twenty hovers each.

Naturally, the Newtown people are somewhat elated at the selection of their Giant equipment, particularly as the order was placed after full investigation and comparison by Mr. Fels with other large incubating and brooding systems. But, in placing

PEN-Y-BRYN FARM

F. A. TIFFANY, Manager.

Pen-y-Bryn Farm consists of 87 acres devoted to the production of high-class S. C. Comb White Leghorns, White Wyandottes and Pekin Ducks in addition to the above we have leased 130 acres adjoining for production of grain and green food for our flocks.

The Plant consists of two laying houses 16x150, open front type with a capacity of 1500 layers or 1200 breeders each with free range

A brooder house 30x100 with a capacity of 3000 chicks another brooder house 24x100 with a capacity of 3000 ducklings and a two story grainery 40x50 on one end. A breeding house 24x100 with an office and grainery at one end, this house has twenty breeding pens 8x10 with runs 8x100. These breeding pens are so arranged that an attendant can care for the birds from an alley and they will not be disturbed except about once a month.

Underneath the breeding house is an incubator cellar 100x24 and will be equipped with forty 390 egg incubators (Prairie States).

There is another breeding house for ducks 16x25 with a capacity of two flocks of 125 ducks each this building is a little different than most duck houses as it sits about three feet off the ground and the ducks have been trained to go up a gangway to their sleeping and laying quarters.

In addition to the other duck buildings there are fattening sheds with capacity of 1500 ducklings each, these sheds have runs 100 feet long with a stream of water for the ducklings to bath in. There are about 40 colony houses in which we grow youngsters on free range. The Proprietor's and Superintendents residences are in close proximity distance to the poultry buildings.

At the present time they have about 3000 head of females all pure bred. Among their Leghorns can be found such noted strains, pure and separate, as Young, Wack, Briggs, Newton and Wycoff. They do not in breed their stock.

Their White Wyandottes include such strains that are famous in their line as Duston, Fell, Regal and Knapp, they to are kept separate and not in breed.

Last but not least their Pekin Ducks. In this strain of ducks they have three families, all are descendants from prize winners at Philadelphia, Camden and Hagerstown.

In their selected pen they have ducks that will weigh 12 pounds and the parents of this family of ducks were never beaten at Hagerstown, one drake weighing 131-2 pounds and one duck 11 pounds

In breeding ducks they do not in breed at all as they have so arranged their pens so that in the end of twelve years breeding they have not 1-4 blood of present base.

With this system of breeding and the fact that their birds have free range of land and water they will have a strain of ducks and chickens surpassed by none in vigor, hardiness and laying qualities, not to mention size.

Concerning Leghorns and White Wyandottes the same system of breeding is used and a strict record of eggs is kept, all eggs from selected pens used to breed up outside flocks are all hatched by hens thus securing the same vigor and laying qualities that will be found in their ducks.

The object of this farm is to supply hatching eggs, day-old chicks and ducklings that will give our customers satisfaction as they have built this plant and arranged their breeding not only to give their customers satisfaction this year and the next but 10 or more years from now they want to have the same customers.

Now as to records of sales, etc., no birds leave the farm without a band on with serial numbers, a record is kept of every sale, the number of band and the family its blood represents are all carefully entered in this way, ten years from now a purchaser can secure the breeding of male or female he purchased from them this year or in other words he or she can send and get non-akin birds each year in the form of hatching eggs, chicks or matured stock.

And to further assure their customers that they are breeding for vitality they do not breed from pullets only two, three and four year old hens depending on type and vitality of each specimen. All pullets produce sterile eggs the first year we supply to customers who desire selected white eggs of quality.

Now as to the history of the farm Pen-y-Bryn farm has been running for the past three years as a commercial egg farm and owing to ever increasing demand for stock and eggs from our farm the owners decided to increase the plant and place it in a position to handle fancy as well as utility business. All buildings are complete in their purpose and neither time nor expense has been spared to make the plant one of the largest and best equipped in this state.

As to the personnel of the farm it is owned by Miss Louise G. Davis and Mr. J. Corbit Davis who have been breeding their own birds three years previous to August 1st on which date Mr. Tiffany took over the entire charge of the poultry department and has since that time planned and superintended the construction of new buildings now near completion. Mr. Tiffany previous to taking charge here was poultry manager at White Horse Farm, Paoli, Pa., two years and build a large plant there and previous to that was poultry manager at Chesterbrook Farm, three years he has been engaged in both utility and fancy poultry breeding for ten years during which time he has shipped chicks and ducklings to nearly every state in the Union.

In addition to poultry work he is agent for the Prairie State Incubator Co., placing their line of goods on a good many successful plants.

All orders receive Mr. Tiffany's personal attention and visitors are welcome to inspect the plant between the hours of 9 A. M. and 4 P. M., weekdays.

JOHN WARD, JR.

"Ward's Strain" of Dark Cornish Indians are forging to the front at an unusually rapid "gate." They have won the most coveted prizes in many of our leading shows, including Philadelphia, Pa., Madison Square Garden. Mr. Ward's winnings at Madison Square Garden were the most phenomenal ever made in that great show on Dark Cornish Indians and he surely deserves every particle of honor that has come his way as a result of his splendid victories. Look up Mr. Ward's add. in the Fancier and write him for his mating list. It is free. His address is John W. Ward, Jr., Pennington, N. J.

BLUE RIDGE FARM

The Blue Ridge Farm, Thurmont, Maryland, is making a specialty of breeding fawn and White Indian Runner Ducks and the record their birds have attained as layers is something to be mighty proud of, to say the least. The Blue Ridge Farm ducks are among the best typed birds in America, while in color markings they are well up with the very best in the land and we certainly take pleasure in recommending them to all our readers who are interested in Indian Runner Ducks of high quality in both fancy and utility. Write the Blue Ridge Farm for their booklet and look up their ad. in this issue of the Fancier. You will always be glad you followed our advice.

A. W. BLANCHARD

Mr. A. W. Blanchard, the popular Rhode Island Red breeder, of Beloit, Wis., is offering exceptionally fine bargains in both Single and Rose Comb Reds in his add. in the December issue of the Fancier. His prices on eggs are just as reasonable as are his prices on stock and we do not know of any other Red breeder in the country who is "fairer" in his prices than Mr. Blanchard and we certainly trust the Fancier's "Red" friends will favor Mr. Blanchard with a portion of their business. He guarantees satisfaction and we stand back of his guarantee. Better write for prices today. Delay may prove fatal, but be sure you mention the Fancier when you write.

HAWKEYE POULTRY FARM

The Hawkeye Poultry Farm, Harry E. Burgess, mgr. Osceola, Iowa, is certainly rounding out some wonderful victories already this season. At the Iowa State fair, Des Moines, Ia., on Buff Orpingtons, they won 3d cock, 1st hen. Black Orpingtons they won 3d cock, 3d hen and 2d cock in Partridge Plymouth Rocks. At the Kansas State Fair, Topeka, Kansas, they won 3d hen in Buff Orpingtons, 4th cock and 2d hen in Black Orpingtons, 4th hen and 1st pen in White Orpingtons, 2d cock, 1st cockerel and 4th pullet in Partridge Plymouth Rocks. At the Kansas State Fair, Hutchinson, they won 2d Buff Orpington hen, 1st Black Orpington cock, 2d hen, 3d White Orpington cockerel. In Partridge P. Rocks they won 2d cock, 1 3 cockerel, 4th pullet. At the Douglas Co Fair, Lawrence, Kansas, this firm won 1 cock, 1 2 cockerel and 1 2 pullet in Partridge P. Rocks and 1 hen in Buff Orpingtons. Every bird entered was placed. This is certainly a fine showing and should go far toward convincing any who want good birds of any of the above breeds where they should go to get as good as the best at reasonable prices.

THE ONLYA FARM

The Onlya Farm, Florham Park, N. J., is still at it. That man, Mr. Staaff never seems to be satisfied in demonstrating the quality of his White Wyandottes. For after having won many of the best prizes at Allentown, Pa., and Hagerstown, Md., he made a big jump down to Augusta, Ga., and there surprised the boys in the Wyandotte alley by winning two out of the five firsts including 1st pen and 1st pullet, besides best display in White Wyandottes, together with best pen in White Wyandottes and best pen all varieties of Wyandottes competing. Besides the above winnings the Onlya Farm landed 2d, 3d cocks, 2d 3d hens, 2d 5th cockerels, 3d 5th pullets and 4th pen. We wish to congratulate Friend Staaff on this splendid victory coming so close in the pathway of his other recent wins.

J. R. ERISER

Eriser's S. C. Buff Leghorns are among the best in color and shape we have ever seen and then they have size in the bargain as well as good combs and eyes. In the strongest show room competition they have shown like stars in their class. At the Great Pittsburgh, Pa., 1912 show, they won 1 3 cockerels, 2 cock, 2 pullet, 4 5 hen and 5 pen.

Mr. Eriser's Leghorns have won at Williamsport, Pa., Cannonsburg, Pa., and other equally important shows. Any one desiring A No. 1 birds can make no mistake by sending a portion of their business to Mr. J. P. Eriser, 14 Morgan Ave., Washington, Pa.

WILLIAM MOORE

Wm. Moore, Marshallton, Del., has a bunch of Barred Rock breeders when it comes to high class show quality birds. Mr. Moore has as grand a lot of young birds as can be found in a day's travels and can furnish cocks, hens, cockerels or pullets fit to win in very fast company at prices surprisingly reasonable. His reputation as a man of fair and honorable dealings needs no comment from us, for the boys all know he is on the square. Mr. Moore's ad. appears in this issue of the Fancier. Look it up and write him for prices. We feel sure you will give him a portion of your business if you do.

SUNSWICK FARM

The Sunswick Farm, So. Plainfield, N. J., made another great win at Allentown Fair this fall, but that has been one of their customs for so long that we all expect the Sunswick Farm to stand well up to the head of the list of big winners at this "great fair." Their first hen in Buff Orpingtons was one of the most perfect specimens ever shown while their first cockerel stood entirely alone in his class. And that White Orpington hen, well it seems almost useless to undertake a description of her splendid qualities. She deserved the honor accorded her and when one remembers the competition she was up against that statement contains volumes. She is certainly a grand bird and was well shown, almost ideal in shape, a real star of the first magnitude. The male in the second Buff pen was almost the equal of the 1st cockerel in every respect. These two winning males should prove a pair of wonderful sires and all who are fortunate enough to secure eggs from the pens they head will certainly get their money's worth even though they pay $2.00 per egg.

GEO. S. MOORE

Mr. George S. Moore, Clintonville, O., again demonstrated the quality of his White Rocks at the Great Columbus, O., State Fair by winning 1st and 2d cockerel, 1st 3d hen, 1st pullet, 2d 3d pen. Two years in succession Mr. Moore's W. Rocks have won the highest awards at Columbus, O., in hard competition and this fact certainly demonstrates the great quality of his birds. They are white as snow, have rich bay eyes, fine colored legs and shape second to none anywhere in the country. Mr. Moore was very fortunate in raising a large number of birds this season and is now ready to supply either utility or show birds to all his customers. Every sale is accompanied with a genuine guarantee to please or money refunded. In S. C. R. I. Reds Mr. Moore won 2d cockerel and 2d pullet in competition as strong as one would find in our largest winter shows. His Reds are great in shape, fine in surface and under color and extra good in tail and wing markings. It is with pleasure we recommend Mr. Moore to our readers assuring them that any order they may send him for either stock or eggs in either White Rocks or R. I. Reds will receive just and immediate attention. Look up Mr. Moore's ad. in this month's issue of the Fancier and write him for further particulars.

ROCKLAND FARM

Do any of our readers want that $50 offered by the Rockland Farm, Benson, Md? If so, be sure to write Mr. Lee now for particulars. His White Rocks are better than ever before and his prices are phenomenally low for the quality of birds he is offering for sale. Any one buying a cockerel of Mr. Lee and wins the greatest number of 1st prizes on that bird, whether he pays $5.00 or $75.00 will win $50.00 in cash. This is one of the most liberal offers ever made and we know our friends will not fail to appreciate Mr. Lee's generosity. Get your order in early and strike the first shows possible for every show you make gives you one more chance to win the prize. Address all communications to Rockland Farm, Box 1, Benson, Md.

INCUBATORS

Don't forget to look up our incubator "adds." Some great machines are offered in our columns and we know every company represented in the Fancier is on the square and it affords us great pleasure to recommend them to all prospective purchasers.

OAKLAND FARM

At the Great Allentown, Pa., Fall Fair the Oakland Farms won special for ten best S. C. White Leghorns in the show. The Oakland Farm birds are no experiment, they have been tried for years under the most exacting circumstances, and always found true. They are not only superlative show birds, but great utility birds as well. "They win and they lay" and it is the "Hen that lays that pays." The Oakland Farm has thousands of high grade S. C. White Leghorns and S. C. Rhode Island Reds for sale at surprisingly low prices, quality considered. Their Reds have great surface color and as wonderful undercolor as one ever saw. With every sale made the Oakland Farm gives a "guarantee to please contract" and if you are not satisfied your money will be returned without a question, immediately upon receipt of the birds in good condition. But the best part is yet to be told, viz.: They seldom, if ever, get a chance to return any money unless they are sold out of the quality of birds a customer orders. Better hurry your order in now. So as to avoid disappointment. Always address Oakland Farms, R. D., 10, Trenton Junction, N. J.

METUCHEN POULTRY FARM

The Metuchen Poultry Farm, W. A. Smith, prop., Metuchen, N. J., has a fine lot of both young and old R. and S. C. B. Minorcas, S. C. W. Minorcas, S. C. White, Buff and Black Orpingtons as can be found any where in the U. S., and Mr. Smith is offering some wonderful bargains in breeding stock for another season as well as young and old stock for exhibition purposes. Mr. Smith's young birds are the offspring of his champion winning male and females and they have as great "blood liners" as any birds of their kind in the world. You will surely receive a square deal if you place your orders with The Metuchen Poultry Farm. Don't forget the address, W. A. Smith, Prop., Metuchen Poultry Farm, Metuchen, N. J.

BOYD JOHNSON

Boyd Johnson, Rupert, Pa., breeder of high class B. P. Rocks is making some very flattering offers in his ad. for December. His birds have won in some of the most representative shows in the country, such as Williamsport and Philadelphia. His prices are right, his birds are right, and last but yet not least he is right. We gladly recommend Mr. Johnson to all who want A No. 1 B. P. Rocks. Don't forget to mention the Fancier when you write for his catalogue.

ROSEMONT POULTRY FARM

The Rosemont Poultry Farm, J. A. Rose, prop., Lehighton, Pa., is making splendid history with the three different breeds of birds he is raising, viz.: R. C. Reds, S. C. White and R. C. Brown Leghorns. Mr. Rose's birds have won many rare prizes in very strong competition and the prices he is asking for both old and young stock of splendid quality is but little above utility prices. His Reds are of good shape and color and with splendid combs and eyes, while his Leghorns both Browns and Whites are of very superior quality. It will surely pay any one who wants good birds in any of the above varieties to write Mr. Rose. He has the birds and will give you the lowest possible price, quality considered.

M. R. CROMAN

M. R. Croman, Cressman, Pa., is one of our most reliable S. L. Wyandotte breeders and his prices actually defy competition, quality considered. His birds are large, of good shape, the grand, wide open laced kind. They are wonderful layers and are fit to win in the fastest company. If any of our readers are interested in good Silver Wyandottes they will do well to write Mr. Croman at once for what you want, as his birds will not last long at the prices for which he is offering them.

J. C. PEIFFER

J. C. Peiffer, Danville, Pa., one of our most dependable and popular W. Orpington breeders is offering some great birds for sale, among the many high class winners and the prices he quotes are so reasonable that they will certainly go like a whirlwind. He has 12 cocks, 40 hens, 25 cockerels and 50 pullets he is offering at prices ranging from $2.50 to $10.00 each. Any one who wants A No. 1 White Orpingtons, (for that is the only kind Mr. Peiffer breeds) will certainly pick up these birds like a whirlwind finish. We would like a number of them ourselves if we had the room for them. If you want good birds at about one-third their real value, "get busy boys" for here is your chance.

BONNY VIEW POULTRY FARM

The Bonny View Poultry Farm, W. S. Sechrist, prop., Keyser, W. Va., certainly made a great hit with his S. C. W. Orpingtons at the last great Hagerstown fair, by winning 1st cockerel and other splendid premiums in mighty strong competition. We are informed that Mr. Sechrist's cockerel was one of the best S. C. W. Orpingtons shown this season. Any one desiring good Orpingtons will make no mistake by giving Mr. Sechrist a part of their business.

"The Book of the Hamburgs"

Written by THEO. HEWES

The book is handsomely and profusely illustrated by one of America's best poultry artists. Contains over fifty drawings, showing ideals and imperfections. Every section fully illustrated and described.

Correct Methods of Scoring and Judging

Given in language that can be understood by all. It is a useful and handy reference book for breeders of all varieties of fowls and should have a place in the library of every poultry fancier in America.

By a careful study of the book one will be enabled to make their fowls for best results. It teaches how to select the best breeders and exhibition specimens and tells how to show them to the best advantage. This valuable book contains forty-eight pages and cover, is printed on best quality of book paper, and is carefully indexed. Price postpaid, 50 cents.

Poultry Fancier, Sellersville, Pa.

ROSSWOOD POULTRY FARM

The Roswood Poultry Farm, S. B. Denlinger, prop., Doylestown, Pa., has succeeded in raising the greatest lot of S. C. W. Leghorns he ever owned and that is going some when one is acquainted with the large number of really high class birds he has bred during the past 3 or 4 years. If any of our readers enjoy a real live, up-to-date S. C. W. Leghorn show they can find it on Mr. Denlinger's Farm. They need not go to Madison Square Garden to see it. Mr. Denlinger's birds are big, long bodied birds, with as fine combs and lobes as any one could ask for. They are wonderful layers and exceptionally beautiful in plumage and carriage and we would advise any one who wants excellent S. C. W. Leghorns to give Mr. Denlinger a portion of their business. They will be started right and we believe will always remain his customers.

A. R. SAYLOR

Saylor's Condition Tablets, for sale by A. R. Saylor Drug Co., Allentown, Pa., is one of the best things to condition poultry or pigeons for the show room of any thing we have ever known. They not only "tone" up the constitution of the fowl but also keeps it in the pink of show condition and prevents it from taking cold. Write the Saylor Drug Co., Allentown, Pa., for further information. It is free.

MINCH BROS

Minch Bros., Bridgeton, N. J., Box F, breeders of Barred and White Rocks, Partridge Cochins and White Wyandottes are making one of the most sensational offers on their this year's breeders of any reliable poultrymen we know of. Ten females and one male for $25.00, and the interesting feature of the offer is any of the birds they are offering for sale are capable of gracing any man's poultry yard. Their birds have been winning the blue for years in many of our best shows and every young bird on their farms is a descendant from prize winning ancestry. We most gladly recommend them as gentlemen of the highest standing in every source that term implies. Any of our readers who really desire greater value than the same amount of money could secure from almost any other source, we would advise them to hurry their check to Minch Bros. by the first mail, for knowing the quality of their birds as we do, we are sure they will not last long. Remember the Fancier when you write.

HIGHLAND FARM

The Highland Farm, 1021 West Princess St., York, Pa., is turning out as fine a lot of White Rocks this season as we have seen in many a day. They won $50 special cup for best bird in show at York, Pa. Special cup for best cock, hen, cockerel and pullet. Also 2nd cock, 1st pen, 1st pullet, 1st cockerel and 1st hen. At the Red Lion, Pa., show, they won 2d and 4th cock, 1st, 2nd and 3rd hen, 1st 2nd cockerel, 1st 3rd pullet, 1st pen. Six cups and 7 specials including best cock and pullet, cockerel and hen. Cup for best pen in show. Cup for best pullet in show. Cup for best cockerel and pullet in show. The Highland Farm have some exceptionally fine White Rocks for sale in both old and young stock at prices that will certainly move them at a rapid pace, so if any of our readers are in the market for extra good birds at very reasonable prices they will make no mistake by hurrying their order in at once. Don't forget that the Highland Farm guarantees satisfaction or money will be cheerfully refunded.

AMERICAN FOUNDRY & MFG. CO.

The American Foundry and Manufacturing Co. of Frederick, Md., is advertising in the columns of the Poultry Fancier the "Superior" Poultry Troughs and Drinking Fountains for which many exceptional claims are made, both by the manufacturers and poultrymen who are using them. These troughs and drinking fountains are made of cast iron and will last practically forever. Freezing will not injure them. They are as sanitary as a fount or feed trough can possibly be made and the iron which has a slight tendency to rust is mixed into the water and forms a tonic for the fowls. These feed troughs and fountains look exceptionally good to me and we surely advise our friends to write the American Foundry & Mfg. Co., Frederick, Md., for their circular and folder describing these two articles. All information desired is cheerfully given and we feel sure it will be to the interest of all our readers to write for these booklets at once.

THE CHAMPION INCUBATORS

—AND—

Champion Brooders, save you money.

The wonderfully successful record of the Champion line of Incubators and Brooders has forced the manufacturer, J. A. Bennett Sons Co., Gouverneur, N. Y., to increase their capacity more than half, or about 60 per cent. This firm has been making brooders and incubators for more than 20 years and in this time their machines have won a reputation for successful operation not surpassed by any. Upwards of 100,000 of their hatchers and brooders are now in operation in all parts of the world. Mr. J. E. Bennett, Superintendent and Manager, has done his share towards the betterment of the conditions of the poultry raiser. He was the first to invent a successful brooder. When he placed The Champion Brooder on the market the cry among poultry raisers was "it is easy enough to hatch the chickens but almost impossible to raise them." The unsuccessful brooders were then selling same as today for $15.00 to $20.00 each. The Champion, the successful brooder sold at $5.00, same as today. The invention of The Champion Brooder revolutionized the system of raising chickens and today there is little, if any, trouble in raising the chicks after they are hatched. As far as they possibly could, other manufacturers adopted his ideas and all brooding systems were consequently greatly improved.

His next great work was the invention and placing on the market ground clover hay under the trade name of "Pioneer Clover Meal," which revolutionized the methods of feeding for winter egg production. This product is now manufactured all over the country and in the form of meal clover hay and alfalfa enters largely into every balanced ration for poultry. In the meantime Mr. J. E. Bennett was working on the problem of artificial incubation. He was endeavoring to lower the cost of the hatcher, as he had done with the brooder. It required many years of hard work, but at last he succeeded and placed his latest achievement on the market, The Champion Incubator, at a price of only $7.50 or about one-third the price of others.

In order to accomplish this result he had to have the best of manufacturing facilities and today he has supervision over one of the largest and best equipped incubator factories in the world. So well has he designed The Champion Incubator that every part is made by machinery, no hand tools of any kind, except a hammer and screw driver, is ever used on them. The perfect system in their manufacture explains, largely the reason why they are sold for so low a price. With good machinery an expert operator can turn out from seven to ten times as many machines as the man working part of the time with hand tools, saws, planes and chisels. When the different parts reach the assembling rooms the assemblers simply put them together and the machines are ready for shipment, no fitting with hand tools is ever required as each piece is perfectly machined and fits into its proper place.

While working to lower the price of the hatcher, the fact that its efficiency must not be sacrificed was kept constantly in mind. A low priced, inferior incubator was not to be considered for a moment. Nothing short of the most perfect and successful hatcher was to have any consideration whatever. The Champion Incubator, like all former products, should stand at the very head in successful operation and the production of the largest possible number of chicks from all fertile eggs. When the perfected incubator was made it was placed on the market and after years of use here is what the purchasers have to say regarding them: W. Uschmann, 604 Campbell Ave., Schenectady, N. Y., in a letter dated Dec. 9, 1911, says, "I got 126 chicks from 129 fertile eggs, all healthy and as lively as any one could wish for." Mr. James Bailey, New Baltimore Station, N. Y., says, "I cannot speak too highly of your incubator. I am well pleased with it. A neighbor of mine has a new $25.00 incubator and I would not give mine for two like it. My first hatch was 100 out of 115 and my second 97 out of 120." Mr. Edward M. Bailey, Tewksbury, Mass., says in a letter of Oct. 26, 1912, "It hatched better and cleaner than any high priced incubator I have ever owned and nearly every chick was raised to maturity. I have no hesitancy in recommending your machine." Mr. Henry Brien, Jr., Somerville, N. J., under date of May 3, 1912, says, "Enclosed find check for which send me a Champion Brooder at once. I have been using a Champion Brooder since 1901 and have had great success with it, and like it a great deal better than the C—, which I also use and which cost nearly three times as much as your's does." If space permitted we could give thousands of similar reports.

The Champion Incubator is well and durably constructed of good materials and is warranted for ten years. It has double walls, packed with the best known non-conductor, double glass door, double regulator, warranted thermometer, powerful, return flue hot air heater, new removable, sanitary nursery tray and stands on high legs. Capacity, 120 eggs; price, $7.50.

The Champion Brooder is three feet square, large and roomy, is divided into two chambers, the hover and safety chamber, the safety chamber guards against overheating the chicks and loss from leg weakness and bowel disease. It can be operated out doors or in door at any and all seasons of the year. It is the most economical to operate and the most successful brooding device ever put on the market. Price, $5.00. Before buying incubators or brooders send for free catalog, better write a card today. Address,

GROVE HILL POULTRY YARDS

Our office is just in receipt of a letter from Mr. F. G. Cook, manager of the Grove Hill Poultry Yards, Waltham, Mass. Wm. Ellery, Bright, owner, stating that their B. P. Rocks and S. C. Brown Leghorns are finer in quality than ever before. Practically every B. P. Rock cockerel on the Farm is so high in quality that they were obliged to refuse an order for 100 utility cockerels from one firm. This is certainly great news and we hasten to congratulate the owners of the Grove Hill Poultry Yards on the great quality of their young birds. When we visited Mr. Bright's plant last winter we predicted that many of the most valuable show birds of this season would be bred at the Grove Hill Poultry Yards or hatched from eggs sold from these yards and we have never wavered for one moment from that prediction, and the communication to which we referred, above, more strongly entrenches us behind that prediction. We have travelled thousands of miles and handled some of the best B. P. Rocks in the land, but we never saw such great quality in cockerel-bred bred pullets where so many birds were taken into consideration as we did at Mr. Bright's plant. And so far as the male birds, both old and young, were concerned, we doubt if their quality could have been surpassed in any other yards in our country. And then again, we found every "whit" as superlative quality in pullet bred pullets and cockerels as we did in the cockerel matings. Every cockerel we handled, no matter how light his surface color, was barred right down to the skin with those clean cut, straight bars so eagerly sought by all who are breeding this beautiful and useful breed.

In S. C. Brown Leghorns the Grove Hill Farm has them in the highest state of perfection. The males have as perfect shape and clean cut hackle and saddle as a past master could draw with his pen, while the females are as perfect in color as can be produced anywhere in this or any other country. Any one interested in either of these beautiful and popular breeds need not hesitate to send a portion of their business to the Grove Hill Poultry Farm, Waltham, Mass. They will receive courteous and honorable treatment with a guarantee to please sale or your money back.

BRYAN MANUFACTURING CO.

The Poultry Queen Fountain and Queen Oat Sprouter manufactured by the Bryan Manufacturing Co., Cadiz, Ohio, are two of the most essential aids one can possibly find in caring for mature fowls, especially during the winter months. The Queen Non-freezing Drinking Fountain is something unique as well as practical and any one who is troubled with water freezing in the fountains in their poultry houses can eliminate this dreaded inconvenience by securing the Queen Non-freezing Fountain. The Queen Oats Sprouter is a very remarkable invention, owing to the fact that there are no hidden parts to it; so to speak. Every pan or tray is right out in sight and very easy of access. This feature certainly appeals to us and we feel sure others will come to the same conclusion. We are glad to announce to our friends that the Bryan Mfg. Co. of Cadiz, O., is one of the Fancier's patrons and take this opportunity of recommending them to all who are interested in the kind of goods they have for sale. Look up their "ad" and write for their circular. It is free.

THE GALE POULTRY PLACE

The Gale Poultry Place, Mrs. W. W. Gale, 66 Centre St., New Haven, Conn., proprietor, will continue the breeding of Rose Comb Brown Leghorns of the same high quality as have characterized the birds bred on the Gale

Poultry Place in past years. We who are acquainted with the quality of Brown Leghorns produced by Mrs. Gale in past years rejoice to know that she will not give up the beautiful little Brown Hen, but that her efforts in the future to produce the very best in Rose Comb Brown Leghorns will not be diminished in any degree. It would be a calamity to the fancy side of our great poultry industry if Mrs. Gale were to drop out of the business, for her name, as one of our greatest fanciers, stands out pre-eminent in the galaxy of America's great fanciers. We need hardly comment on the quality of birds Mrs. Gale breeds for they are known from Ocean to Ocean and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Great Lakes. The Poultry Fancier greatly appreciates the honor conferred by including Mrs. Gale as one of our advertisers and we trust that anyone who is in need of the best in R. C. Brown Leghorns will give Mrs. Gale a portion of their business.

G. E. TIFFANY

Mr. G. E. Tiffany, Elkins, W. Va., is deserving of a large amount of credit for producing some of the very best W. Wyandottes in his home State. His birds have won many prizes of merit in as big class shows as Hagerstown, Md. His cockerels are fine, blocky fellows and are as white as snow. Mr. Tiffany always guarantees satisfaction and we are sure he will give every one of his patrons full value for every dollar they trust to his care.

THE WISCONSIN FEATHERED STOCK ASSOCIATION.

The Wisconsin Feathered Stock Association is making extensive preparations and straining every nerve to make their eleventh annual show, Jan. 1st to 5th, inclusive, the largest ever held in the northwest. They have secured the arena of the Auditorium, which has 22,500 square feet of floor space, with ample light and perfect ventilation. The show is to be cooped with the most uniform up-to-date all wire cooping, which makes it possible to see the birds from all sides, a thing that is so much admired by both exhibitors and visitors. There will be no crowding as all birds will be cooped single, no double decking or anything of that sort, as there will be plenty of room, and the entire show will be uniform. Five poultry judges have been engaged and three pigeon judges including D. T. Heimlich, J. E. Greenwald, F. Travis, F. Harrison and G. Wells. Pigeon judges, G. Ewald, H. Verges and F. Borchardt. The entire show will be judged by comparison. Many new features will be of special attraction as well as educational, including caponizing, geese stuffing, dry picking, egg laying contest, etc. Our supreme aim shall be the advancement of the interest of our exhibitors and general public alike, on which the welfare of the breeder and exhibitor depends. If you have no birds to show, come as a visitor and exchange ideas. It is through this constant rubbing up against each other that new ideas are involved. In no other way can it be accomplished so well as by associating with one another. So brother fanciers rally to the flag and show your appreciation of what the Wisconsin Feathered Stock Association has done by making a rattling good entry. The premium list will be ready about Nov. 30th and a copy may be had by addressing the secretary, A. T. Keipper, 1401-1st St., Milwaukee, Wis.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE SHOW.

The members of the Pennsylvania State Fancier's Association are all hustling to make the Fourth Annual Show which will be held in Altoona, Pa., January 20-21-22-23-24-25, 1913, the best that they have ever had. Their last year's show was a great success they having over 2000 birds and they expect to double that this year. They are offering Silver Cups and Gold Specials on all breeds of Poultry, Pigeons and Pet Stock. There are no strings to them and they pay all premiums during the show. If you have not received a copy of their Premium List send for one to-day. They have secured the services of A. Fred Kummer of Butler, Pa., W. Theo. Wittman of Allentown, Pa., to judge Poultry and P. A. Scheid of Lancaster, Pa., to judge Pigeons. The reputation of these men assures every exhibitor a square deal. They will hold their banquet on Thursday evening, January 23rd, 1913, this will be an annual event the after dinner talks will be long remembered.

For Premium Lists and any other information address H. S. Wertzberger, 121 Washington Ave., Altoona, Pa.

CENTRAL HATCHERIES.

Poultrymen Find That They Offer a New Way to Make Money.

Every poultry section is bound to have a Central Custom Hatchery and it is only a question as to who will be the first to start it in any of the sections left open. Having such an establishment is just as necessary as having a creamery in a dairy section. It is a sound proposition because it stands to reason that one man devoting his time to it, can handle the hatching better and cheaper than dozens of customers can in small machines. It is also natural that the farmers will take their eggs to the hatchery and call for their chicks by paying a nominal sum, rather than devote their attention for three weeks to watching a small machine. While the charge for a tray of 75 eggs usually averages only $1.50 to $2.00, in the aggregate in a so-called mammoth, this produces a very handsome profit.

As a guide and help for poultrymen, the Candee Incubator and Brooder Company, Eastwood, N. Y., has prepared a free booklet on Custom Hatching, giving full directions and it will be sent free upon request.

FROM BLOOMSBURG, PA.

At the October meeting the directors were compelled to order 300 more premium lists in order to supply the demand.

Director C. L. Hawbecker has been compelled to resign on account of accepting a new position at Syracuse, N. Y. The Directors have elected Mr. Geo. Hassert to fill the vacancy. Mr. Hassert is a member of the firm of Harman & Hassert, who manufacture cars at this place. He is a great chicken fancier and although a very busy man he finds time to help the cause along. It was greatly due to his untiring efforts that Bloomsburg ever had a show. He was Supt. of the first show and all who attended can well remember that his work helped to make it the great show that it proved to be.

Mrs. Boyd Johnston of Rupert, has purchased the fine string of Reds that were owned by C. L. Hawbecker. She won first pen at the Columbia County Fair.

The premium list will be out by the first of November. If you do not get one write.

Dear Editor:

I am very much pleased with "Poultry Fancier." I approve the policy under which you are conducting the magazine. I am interested in and instructed by its articles, and I enjoy its spirit. And best of all I am eminently satisfied with it as an advertising medium. I predict for the Fancier, under its present management, a large measure of prosperity.

Yours fraternally,
J. H. VANDEVER.

NEW YORK'S TWENTY-FOURTH POULTRY SHOW.

The annual Poultry Show held during the last days of each year at Madison Square Garden, New York, is conceded to be the premier American exhibition of its kind. The 1912 show, the twenty-fourth, will open Tuesday, December 31st and close Saturday night, January 4th, 1913. The veteran manager of the Metropolitan Poultry Show is ex-Mayor Henry V. Crawford, of Montclair, N. J. The exhibition is held by the New York Poultry & Pigeon Association (Limited.)

The officers of America's leading show are: President, T. A. Havemeyer, New York; Vice President, James Forsyth, Oswego, N. Y.; Treasurer, Chas. M. Griffing, Sbelter Island, N. Y.; Secretary and Superintendent, H. V. Crawford, Montclair, N. J.; Manager of Publicity, Allen S. Williams; Executive Committee, T. A. Havemeyer, Chas. M. Griffing, H. V. Crawford; Directors, James Forsyth, H. V. Crawford, Charles M. Griffing, Newton Adams, T. A. Havemeyer, T. Farrer Rackham.

To state that the Madison Square Garden's available space will be filled with exhibits is superfluous because the proffered entries for both the 1910 and 1911 exhibitions far exceed the possibilities, especially as regards the show of 1911. There is no sign that the poultry industry has retrogressed or even stood still and the outlook for the next coming "Chicken Show" at Madison Square Garden is that the earliest applicants will constitute the list of exhibitors.

The exhibitors and visitors to the twenty-fourth annual Poultry Show will be agreeably surprised at the aspect of the interior of the Garden. The new managers of Madison Square Garden, S. M. Van Allen and William J. Poth, have thoroughly cleaned its interior, and removing from some portions of it the dust accumulations of a dozen years. The poultry classes will include all the standard breeds and some novelties. The foreign, particularly the British and Canadian colonial exhibitors, whose invasion of the United States at last year's show so greatly enhanced the interest, will break in stronger this year and show yeoman spirit in the friendly strife for the coveted blue ribbons.

All the modern appliance for poultry raising; new and fancy fowl, a whole gallery filled with pigeons, the waterfowl with their showing in the centre, the exhibition cages, and the incubators, with the resultant yellow chicks, will as usual, prove potent attractions, to the general public betraying preliminary symptoms of catching the poultry-raising fever.

The showing of pet stock has become important. The rabbits, hares and guinea pigs as well as the bantam classes, each year, assert their importance, and the big birds do not show jealousy at their prominence.

There will be a fine showing of cats in the concert hall, where the Annual Championship Show of the Atlantic Cat Club will be given on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and admirers of fur as well as of feathers will have enough to see and to talk about wherever in the Garden they may go, from 9 A. M. until 10.30 P. M. each day of the exhibition.

BRISTOL'S BIG SHOW.

The Bristol Poultry and Pigeon Association which has recently reorganized with a hustling bunch of new members coming in daily promises to hold the greatest and best show ever given in that section of Bucks County. The largest hall in the town has been secured and every member is now bending his energy to secure more prizes, such as cups, money, merchandise, etc., than his fellow member secures. Everything will be handled systematically and all the birds will be given the best care and attention. Persons desiring to make entries should do so at once to the Secretary, Serrill D. Detlefson. Merely drop him a card and entry blanks and premium list will be forwarded at once.

This organization last year, under the same Superintendent, as this year, Mr. Frank T. Chambers, did not have a sick bird during the show. All of the stock was kept in a most excellent condition. It is anticipated that this year's attendance will exceed that of any previous show given. Everybody is interested and hustling and this is always a good sign. The show will be given in the fire house of America Hose, Hook and Ladder Co., No. 2, sometime during January.

NOTICE.

The 1912-1913 Year-Book of the White Plymouth Rock Club is in the mails. This book comes closer to doing the club and the splendid breed to which it acts as sponsor full credit than any other publication ever issued by the club.

Handsome bound, printed upon excellent coated paper, with half tones, that stand out boldly from the page, having some dozen contributors and most imminent authorities on the care and breeding of the Plymouth Rocks. It is a work of reference that should be on the desk or reading table in every home where there lives a poultry keeper, who loves this variety.

From the beginner to the advanced student there is something to interest and instruct all. The work of the club dates of the 1912-13 meetings, complete list of all members, various other items of interest on the breed and the club, are contained in this volume. It is an encyclopedia on the White Plymouth Rocks.

This book is not sold but is given to every one interested in the White Plymouth Rock Club, providing that they become members of the club the dues of which are one dollar a year.

Further information about this book or the handsome ribbons and cups given by the club for both fancy and utility, will be cheerfully furnished by the secretary, C. W. Whitney, Southboro, Mass.

NOTICE DATE CHANGED.

The second annual exhibition of the Wabash Valley Poultry Association will be held at Marshall, Illinois, Jan. 28 to Feb. 1, 1913. H. A. Pickett, Judge; J. S. Walker, Secretary, Palestine, Ill.

AMBLER (PENNA.) SHOW.

The first annual exhibition of the Montgomery Fanciers Association will be held at Ambler, Penna., December 19 to 21. This will undoubtedly be a very large show as well as an important one, as Ambler is only a half hour out of Philadelphia, and an hour and a half from Allentown and is on the North Penn division of the P. & R. on the main line from Allentown to Philadelphia and there are many good poultry fanciers around Ambler, to say nothing of the many poultry fanciers along the North Penn Division.

Address Jas. R. Gillan, Ambler, Penna., for further particulars.

SOLD IN 9 STATES.

Roaring Spring, Penna., May 6th. Poultry Fancier, Gentlemen:—I herewith enclose you $2.00 balance due on classified ad. to be inserted one year. Will do all I can for the Fancier and hope to carry a display ad. in a few months. I have shipped eggs to nine States already in two issues.

Very truly yours,
ROARING SPRING SQUAB CO.

WONDERFUL RESULTS.

Xenia, Ohio, July 5th, 1912. Poultry Fancier, Gentlemen:—Enclosed find Post Office money order for classified adv. for one year. Your paper has already produced the goods. Sorry I was not with you earlier.

Respectfully yours,
OLIVER C. CUSTER.

We have a bird at Darlington so intelligent that every morning she lays her egg in the Mammoth Machine. Her eggs are saved for hatching and we expect eventually to perfect a Strain that will do this regularly. Her full sister saw the sign, "Now is the time to lay in your coal." # Central Pennsylvania Chicken Chatter

Any News, Notes or Items of Interest Pertaining to Poultrydom in Central Pennsylvania. Will Find a Place in this Department. Address all Communications to J. T. Houston., Williamsport, Pa.

With this issue of the "Fancier" the great annual event at Williamsport, Pa., is in full swing. Never before in the history of this well known organization was any thing ever before undertaken of the magnitude of this, the 5th annual.

With this writing the entries are pouring in from all over the country, North, South, East and West have come to recognize Williamsport, Pa., as one of the big six in poultry exhibitions.

The officers and members of the Williamsport Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, Inc., wish at this time to publicly thank all who have contributed to make this the greatest exhibition ever attempted in Central Pennsylvania. Much appreciation is expressed to the readers of the Central Penna. Notes of the Fancier. The feeling among Pennsylvania exhibitors seeming to be "support of Pennsylvania shows." Let this feeling continue. On to "Bloom" Sunbury, Lewistown, Pottsville, Pottstown, Altoona and let us make Pennsylvania the banner show State of the Union.

NOTES.

S. J. Johnston of Bloomsburg was too busy to write anything but receipts for entries this month. The Fancier will give you a complete write up in the January issue.

Read the Sunbury Otter this month. Here is a show that grows better each year. The reason is obvious, good management, and officers who are men who are on the jump; a win at this show is a boost for any breeder.

Our mutual friend, Mr. A. D. Ulrick of Lewistown, Pa., and press representative of that live poultry association is a little late this month. We dare not miss the monthly letter, which we read with much interest.

It would surprise us if the full Williamsport awards were contained elsewhere in this issue of the Fancier. This would be a wonderful achievement on the part of this paper, but we have become to think that the managers of this paper enjoy to accomplish great things. Does not the paper itself prove this assertion.

"How would you like to be the Secretary?" ask the different ones. The chances are they would much rather prefer to be the "ice man" about the time the entries close.

An exhibitor at Williamsport, who makes a place on Barred Plymouth Rocks, White Wyandottes, White Leghorns or any of the Orpingtons can well afford to eat Thanksgiving turkey, regardless of the price. A win in these classes means quality which you can show anywhere.

If you don't get a Premium List from a certain show just because you have sent your name in, condemn the Secretary and feel slighted. Many went astray at Williamsport, but not the Secretary's fault. This may be the case all over, even Uncle Sam cannot explain where they went. If you intend showing at a certain show get the list if you have to write the second time.

Follow the reports of Central Pennsylvania Shows. The Fancier will give special attention to these reports.

Mr. Jas. T. Huston,
Editor "Chicken Chatter."
Dear Friend and Brother:—

"We came, we saw, we conquered," at your great poultry exhibit. Of course, as this is written in advance, we will not say to what extent we conquered, but as there is always "glory enough for all" am safe in saying we got our share.

And the "big eats" you put on the mahogany boards at "Bill Town" reminds one of an English lord who was dining with an American family who kept no servants. The mother of the household was waiting on the table and was serving an elaborate spread.

"Chief Winamac." One of the greatest White Wyandotte sires the world has ever known. He was bred and owned by Keelersville, the home of Keeler's World's Greatest Strain of White Wyandottes. This great bird sired the 1st prize cock at Topeka 1911-12, and was the grand sire of the 1st prize Cockerel at the same show. He has also sired numerous 1st prize males at such shows as Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Pittsburg, Washington, D. C., Columbus, Williamsport, Etc. For full information regarding this great bird send for the free 56 page art catalogue to Mr. Chas. V. Keeler, R. F. D. No. 15, Winamac, Ind.

WHITE ORPINGTON PLACE

The Home of Quality in White Orpingtons

My birds have won the highest honors in strongest competition in such shows as Indianapolis and Anderson, Ind. Write me for prices in either old or young stock. My prices are just and the quality of my birds the very best.

THE WHITE ORPINGTON PLACE,

Mrs. Wallace B. Campbell, Prop.

perience) but we hope to learn by experience—the same as our neighbors—and each year put on a better show. "Bigger and better" each year is the cry heard on every hand but we will shout from the housetops "better and better." We want to build up a quality show here—one from which you will all be proud to carry home the blue. We have cups and prizes that are worth striving for and if you win them you can well be proud of them as it will take quality to get them, as last year we had some topnotchers with us and will have more this year. There will be glory enough for all. Come over and see us and you will be proud of your winnings and if your string of blue should not be immense you can blame it on the high quality of the competition.

Dr. A. J. Savacool, Maud, P. O., Pa. One of the most prominent breeders of White Wyandottes in Penna.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Koons of Treichlers, Pa., will judge the Lewistown show by the comparison system. As they are noted for fair and impartial work you need not be afraid to send your birds here. They will get what they merit—no more, no less—competition, of course, considered.

Harvey Burkett, our Vice President, is at the time of writing this, a patient in the German Hospital, Philadelphia, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. We are glad to say he passed through the ordeal safely and is on the road to recovery.

Frank W. Specht, our President, was busy this Fall with political work and although he was lined up with the trailers he is not yet disheartened as he has some Silver Laced Wyandottes of which he is very proud and expects to be in for some of the winnings on our show circuit.

A. C. Helfrick, of Belleville, the big man of our association—big physically and our biggest fancier (he is a true fancier) has added a couple new varieties to his string this year and will make it interesting for that many more kinds of breeders.

We hope our neighbor, Altoona, will have better weather for their coming show than last time. We were fortunate in getting our birds home before that terrible and unusual cold snap.

Boys, get ready to show at Lewistown—the quality show. Send your birds along and come and see us in our large and comfortable quarters. We are conveniently located near the express office, near the trolley and hotels and close to the business center of the town.

As this is our last crack before the show we would like to make a request of the small exhibitor for the sake of the birds. (The large exhibitor thinks too much of his birds and this does not apply to him). Please do not ship birds in open crates that will allow the fowls to be exposed to the cold winter winds. If you have a crate of that kind line it with muslin. It will not cost much and will protect the health and life of your bird and keep it from contracting a disease that may be deadly to others. We had a single entry last year of a bird that was crammed down in a shallow basket and a lid forced on top of it. We had several entries in the open coops above referred to, one being from another State. If you have fowls that show a tendency to be scrappy don't coop them together for shipment. Don't be cruel in your method of shipping and expect your birds to arrive at any show room in prime condition.

Does quality count with you? Then come to Lewistown.

A. D. ULLRICH.

The Poultry Fancier, Sellersville, Pa.
Gentlemen:—

The Penna. Branch of the National Association of White Wyandotte Breeders will meet at Easton, Pa., in conjunction with the sixth annual exhibition to be held at that place, during the week of Jan. 7-11, 1913. Everyone is hustling to make the meet a big one. In addition to the regular premiums, there will be $60 in specials on the White Wyandottes alone, besides several hundred dollars distributed among the other varieties. We will also have a number of articles of merchandise of no small value. There are absolutely no strings of any kind, on any of our specials. The winner takes them the first time.

Premium list will be ready December 1, 1912. S. W. Godley, Secretary.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

This is to certify, we have sold J. H. Wendler, of the Roselawn Farms, Lakeland, Fla., all our prize winning and high quality Blue Orpington Ducks. Mr. Wendler intends to breed and develop these ducks to their highest possible perfection and as they are a remarkable breed of birds and worthy of the most prominent place, we feel sure Mr. Wendler will accomplish wonders with them. We can confidently refer all our Orpington Duck customers to him. (Signed).
SUNSWICK POULTRY FARM.

NORTH PENN POULTRY SHOW.

The fifth annual exhibition of the North Penn. Poultry Association will be held at Quakertown, Pa., January 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th. The North Penn Poultry Association is one of the strongest organizations in the eastern part of Pennsylvania and has held four very successful shows.

This Association comprises many poultrymen from along the North Penn division of the P. & R. R. R. between Lansdale and Allentown and their exhibitions are held in Sellersville and Quakertown, alternating.

This is a show where the glad hand of friendship is always extended to the new exhibitor and everything is done to make his visit to their show pleasant.

Jacob W. Eberly, Dallastown, Pa., places the awards and all communications should be addressed to E. R. McCrork, Secretary, Perkasio, Pa., or Sellersville, Pa., care of Poultry Fancier, as Mr. McCrork is the Secretary of this Association and the superintendent of the mechanical department of Poultry Fancier.

AMERICAN BARRED PLYMOUTH ROCK CLUB.

The annual meeting of the American Barred Plymouth Rock Club will be held at the show of the South-Eastern Poultry Association, at Charlotte, N. C., Saturday, January 11th, 1913. Two hundred dollars will be offered in "Specials" and everything gives promise of a large and enthusiastic meeting. The Club is in a flourishing condition and many new members are being added to our list every day. The popularity of the Barred Plymouth Rock was never greater than it is today. New breeds come and have their admirers and then booms, then sink to their proper level. The old and reliable Barred Plymouth Rocks have been leaders in the race for more than fifty years. They are America's most popular fowl. More Barred Rocks were exhibited at the Shows of the United States during the past year than any other breed. The American Barred Plymouth Rock Club is the leading Specialty Club of America. It will be to your interests to become a member of this Club. Membership fee is $1.00. Send your name and fee to Henry D. Riley Secretary, Strafford, Chester Co., Pa.

BUFF LEGHORN BREEDERS NOTICE.

To the Members of the Buff Leghorn Club: Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the American Buff Leghorn Club for the election of officers, passing of accounts and such other business as may properly come before the meeting will be held at Madison Square Garden, New York City, on the 3rd day of January, A. D., 1913, at 3 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Dated at the office of the Secretary at Battle Creek, Mich., this 4th day of October, A. D., 1912.

F. A. Tecktonius, President.
Geo. S. Barnes, Secretary.
William W. Storms,
F. Smith,
A. B. Dalby,

Members of the Executive Committee.
The Buff Leghorn Club has issued a 90 page book, the value of which is priceless and worth more to any person interested than any $2 poultry book yet on the market. It tells all about these great winter layers.

Williamsport Show Awards

That the fifth annual event of the Williamsport Poultry Association was one of, if not the greatest poultry exhibition ever held in the Keystone State. Over thirteen hundred birds in the single classes, one hundred breeding pens with an addition of the largest classes of Bantams, Pigeons and Water Fowl ever shown at this truly wonderful early Winter Show.

For months the officers of the Williamsport Association have been working to one end, that to be that Williamsport, Penna., should go down in history as being able to give to the poultry fanciers a Madison Square exhibit, at a small entry fee, that their efforts were more than fulfilled, was the sentiment of visitor and exhibitor alike.

The large 12th Regiment Armory was a grand sight when the doors were thrown open to the public on Wednesday morning, November 27. The beautiful decorations, setting off the perfect cooping arrangements of Spratts Pat. Ltd. who have cooped the show since 1908, and who through Mr. R. G. Bailey always gives to Williamsport the best that can be had in cooping appliances. That the men who have made Williamsport Show what it is today cannot be too greatly praised, is the general expression of all who are passing through the aisles today. Question after question is being asked, all terminating into the same identical query, namely, "How can you do it on a fifty-cent entry?" The question has but one answer, work, work, work, and then some more! Time is short for further comment on the wonderful exhibition, and we trust the Fancier, in the January issue, will be able to devote further space to the Williamsport Show of 1912. Again let us take our hats off to the officers of the 1912 show, and trust that when this Association chooses her officers for 1913 that we may again find such men as Geo. P. Stryker as Secretary; E. B. Darrow the Superintendent and the old reliable A. A. Swartz her Treasurer, and that we may again look forward to Williamsport for still greater triumphs in the year to come. The officers who piloted the Williamsport Show this year consisted of the following: Jas. T. Huston, President; John R. Heim, Vice President; A. A. Swartz, Treasurer; E. B. Darrow, Superintendent; Hemard Himes and McCormick Dawson, with the officers, constituting the Board of Directors.

"DON'T BE A CLAM."

Darlington Egg Farm is getting a great reputation as being the only large S. C. White Leghorn Farm, that did not make $7.49 per hen last season. Darlington is nothing if not truthful, to be exact we only cleared $7.45 3-4 and we did that mainly on our roosters. A word to the wise is sufficient. Write for a cockerel.

DARLINGTON EGG FARM,

Alfred P. Edge Box C, Darlington, Md.

*B. H. Scranton, Rising Sun, Ind., the Great Western
S. C. R. I. Red Breeder*

By F. D. Sutton

We don't believe there ever has been, or likely will be again, a breed of fowls, admitted to the American Standard of Perfection, that will fill as prominent a place in the poultry world, in so short a time, as the S. C. R. I. Reds. The same motto introduced and used by the Ford Automobile Co., "You see them wherever you go; and they go wherever you see them," is as applicable to the Reds as it is to this popular auto. For it is an undisputable fact that, in every show in the country, Reds are increasing in numbers faster than any other breed unless we except the White Orpingtons, and the prices they command certainly bear out the second statement of the motto. "They GO wherever you see them." The burden or price of the popularity of almost any of our breeds or varieties of fowls have always been born to a greater or less degree by a few staunch friends of those breeds or varieties who had unwavering faith in their merits and were willing to put their hard earned dollars into paper and ink in order to boost their favorite birds to that degree of fame which they considered to be their legitimate heritage, and we feel satisfied that no R. I. Red breeder in the Middle West is deserving of a larger share of credit for the present popularity of this splendid breed of fowls than B. H. Scranton, of Rising Sun, Ind. Possessed with the spirit of a true sportsman together with a deep rooted love for poultry from a fancier's viewpoint, B. H. Scranton launched out in the poultry industry with a determination to win, let come what would and how thoroughly he has succeeded was a matter of splendid history long before the "writer's deficient pen" took up the task of producing this article. Since espousing the cause of a poultryman the way of B. H. Scranton has not always been strewn with flowers, and only as they fell from his own hand or bloomed in triumph over apparently insurmountable difficulties. B. H. Scranton is so constituted as to refuse to recognize the word defeat in his profession as a poultryman. And because of this spirit of perseverance, together with a rare insight as a fancy poultry breeder, we have in Mr. Scranton one of the most pleasing, successful and prominent fanciers of the present day. Mr. Scranton's Reds, this season, are greater in both quality and numbers than ever before, and judging from his winning in the past he will be able to furnish birds of the highest capable of winning in the greatest shows of the country. We have heard great reports from Mr. Scranton's Reds already, this season, in the hands of customers, as well as the great victory he achieved at the wonderful Hagerstown Fair, where his birds won, in the strongest competition, we are told, ever seen at that popular show: 2 5 cock, 1 2 4 hen, 1 5 cockerel, 1 5 pullet and 1 pen and practically all valuable premiums offered on S. C. Reds.

This great victory is almost a duplicate of Mr. Scranton's winnings at Chicago, 1912, where he won all five firsts and every special offered. Besides the above victories Mr. Scranton's birds have carried away many of the most coveted prizes from such shows as Illinois State Fair, Kansas City, St. Louis, Topeka, Cincinnati and Indianapolis. We would advise all our readers who are interested in as good as the best in Single Comb Reds to write Mr. Scranton for prices and descriptive literature, for we feel morally certain that many of the greatest Reds of this season will come from Rising Sun, Ind.

ANOTHER SOLUTION OF BOWEL
In Newly Hatched Chicks.

(By Wm. H. Jones.)

One of the most serious problems that has confronted the poultry raiser for a good many years is the frequent development of bowel troubles in the newly hatched chick and while it has occasionally been traced to heredity, it has been proven beyond question that 95 times out of a hundred such troubles have resulted from some unnatural condition that existed either in the hatching device or the brooder.

We all know that sudden changes in the temperature of a brooder will produce bowel troubles and as a result of that knowledge much attention has been paid to the construction of brooders with a view of preventing such changes in temperature that might prove harmful, but most of us have overlooked the fact that unless those same sudden changes are guarded against before the chicks enter the brooder, all our efforts to prevent those fatal bowel troubles will go for naught.

I have before me a copy of the 1918 catalog of The Buckeye Incubator Co., in which they claim that fully 90 per cent of the bowel troubles in newly hatched chicks are caused by the sudden change of temperature to which the chicks are subjected right in the incubator, when they drop from the egg tray into the nursery.

The Buckeye Co. claim to have tested the temperature of the egg tray and nursery in most of the incubators on the market and found a difference of anywhere from 10 to 20 degrees between the two trays and if these figures are correct, I can readily understand why so many chicks develop bowel troubles just as soon as they leave the incubator.

The Buckeye Co. claim to have built incubators with nurseries and without nurseries for a number of years and in the course of many experiments they proved beyond a question that the chicks which remain right in the egg tray, where the temperature remains the same from the time they are hatched until they are put in the brooder will invariably show more strength and vitality than the chicks which are hatched in an incubator with a nursery attachment, where they are subjected to a change of anywhere from 10 to 20 degrees immediately after they are hatched.

This argument appears to me to be thoroughly sound and logical because we all know that a chill right at hatching time must be detrimental to some degree at least, and even though it may not be fatal, it must reduce the vitality and leave the chicks in a weakened condition.

As a result of their experience The Buckeye Co. have eliminated the nursery attachment from their incubators entirely and they claim that the machines they are now building will produce absolutely healthy chicks with more size and vitality than can possibly be produced when the nursery is used.

I have noticed during the past few years that a number of incubator manufacturers have been so constructing their egg trays that the chicks may be confined there without dropping into the nursery and I am inclined to the belief that the nursery has only been continued because it was customary to put it there and I, for one, am glad to see The Buckeye Incubator Co. make a move in the right direction for I am convinced that it will only be a short time until the nursery, as we know it, will be a thing of the past.

I believe this subject to be worthy of the serious consideration of every poultryman and would suggest that every reader of this article send to The Buckeye Co. at Springfield, Ohio. for their catalog and at least read their argument on this important subject.

No. 3. Double Quick Grain Sprouter with the door and all trays removed but two showing oat sprouts nine to twelve inches high. Manufactured by the Close-to-Nature Co., Colfax, Iowa. A description of this sprouter will be found on 915 of this issue.

Picked Up After the Parade at Hagerstown.

Well, that was some parade. What a sight it was to see Poultrymen from almost every state east of the Mississippi in line, white caps, badges, etc., parading down to the banquet hall, led by a brass band playing "My Maryland." Yes, that was some parade, and nowhere else in the world does there assemble a larger and enthusiastic lot of chicken men.

The next morning after the parade, we started down the aisles. For some reason or other the boys were late in getting down, after the parade. Some of them never showed up at the hen house until 11 or 12 o'clock the next day. I cannot account for this, except possibly some of them thought Hamilton Punch was lemonade and drank several glasses which had a peculiar effect.

The first place we went was down the Light Brahma Alley and saw our old friend and Judge, Nevius. Wherever you see Nevius, you also see Elias, a fellow from Chestnut Hill who breeds some full feathered Partridge Cochins.

We walked down the aisle a little further and we saw Gus Braun. Well that surely was something fierce. Gus could not wait to let us get there, he yelled, I want you to understand that I am the proud father of a young Bull Moose. Here is the telegram, read it. Thus another fancier has been added to the ranks.

Just about the time Gus began to get done hollering, in came Hamburg Bill. He wouldn't speak to the Fancier Inkslinger for two days at Hagerstown and I couldn't imagine what was wrong. I finally found out, that Bill was very much offended because I would not go along fishing with him the week before the Nashville meeting when that Rule 17 was brought up. Bill had an idea he would take this Inkslinger fishing and for all time squash Rule 17. Bill finally found out there wasn't much use of being mad and he came around all right and had a good time. He incidentally stated that was his 21st year at the Hagerstown show. After congratulating him on his excellent record, we shook hands and parted.

At the Philopino Village, Bill wanted to go into all the shows and Dick Oke and Bill Bailey wouldn't that wasn't good enough for a church carnival.

Well, the next fellow we ran across, was a fellow by the name of Hoke, from Spring Grove. There were two Hokes, Father and Son. The Young Hoke is making a good reputation as a Judge throughout the Eastern field and they had an exhibition of a full carload of fine birds and the list of awards will prove their being all to the mustard.

Hagerstown we all know wouldn't be right unless we saw the familiar face of Buff Mehring, of Littlestown. For some reason or other, Buff tried to make himself unrecognizable by shaving the crop of stubble off his upper lip, but it wouldn't go and we recognized him at once and Buff had some attraction up in the gallery which he couldn't take his eyes away from somehow.

Well, we got a little further down the line and we walked out of the Poultry Building and we heard someone say, "Have you been over to the Canadian headquarters yet?" We said, "Headquarters. Where is that." "Why don't you know, Hugh Rose has established headquarters on this grounds." That was news to me so we followed the crowd and went down and sure enough, Hugh had his own tent on the fair grounds, where he entertained his friends.

Scott Bowers was head chambermaid, assisted by Bill Bailey and Dick Oke. Now I tell you, that was some tent. That was some TENT. Space forbids us to go into details. We could write volumes.

Well we came down and saw Joe W. Reiff, farmer fancier. Joe has justly earned his reputation. We now understand Joe is going into city life. No reason why he shouldn't. We heard he has become the general manager of the Caw-Law Poultry Farm, one of Maryland's big poultry plants, with office headquarters at 101 W. Baltimore St., Baltimore, Md.

The next fellow we saw was Geo. O. Brown. George is called the grand old man from Maryland and nobody doubts it, and nobody questions it. George has made a good reputation in the past. Ex-President of the American Poultry Association, Secretary of the big Baltimore show, and rounded out about the 24th straight year at Hagerstown as Judge. It was George who put up the big fight to admit the ladies to the banquet.

Of course we had no objections but for the last two years it has been noticed with George that he always makes it a point to get with the ladies. We have no objection to this, but the point was objected to by Bill Bailey and Dick.

Now, just about this time, I began to get a little hungry and went to find a little place where they serve vegetable soup and hot dogs, thinking perhaps, it would be a little quiet and I would get away from the boys a little but that didn't go, for who dropped in but a fellow by the name of Knepper, breeds Buff Rocks over at Clear Spring.

That man Knepper is increasing his poultry plant and is going to quadruple his stock of Buff Rocks, about 7 times, and as his vocation is rural carrier of mail, he knows every good chicken within miles around, consequently it took us about an hour and a half to dispose of the soup and hot doggies. After we called his attention to the valuable time wasted, he replied, "Anything goes at Hagerstown."

Well, when we got back to the building, a pretty big crowd was there and we happened to see Bart Fell and the long distance runner, McKay, from Trenton. They ran all the way down to the Hagerstown show. That was the first they ever saw a parade at Hagerstown, and they thought that they were in a Bull Moose parade. They went back very well pleased to tell the rest of the bunch what was doing at Hagerstown. Take it from us, that whole crowd will be down next year.

We walked out to the aisle a little further and we ran into a pair of boys, by the name of Bird Bros., of Meyersdale, Pa., who breed some of the best Partridge Rocks and Bronze Turkeys in America and haven't missed Hagerstown for a good many years and they certainly maintained the reputation of the Keystone State by their winnings there.

Standing along side of Bird Bros. was our old friend Frank Bean. Frank is a funny fellow. The older he gets, the younger he gets. You know he breeds some Columbian Plymouth Rocks. Frank had a peculiar twist on his mouth, which gave indications that everything wasn't right. At last he told us. The cause was, that he ought to have been fourth but owing to the fact that none of Uncle Sam's coin was involved in the situation, he didn't say anything and he wouldn't have got anything if he did.

Someone said we were to be on the lookout for the Hanover delegation. That is some bunch. I have never been at a show, within 150 miles of Hanover, that there wasn't some of that crowd represented.

They are what we call rounders. There is Charley Shirk, Jake Spangler, Kinsel, Doc Charmbury and Myers. They all travel together. They tell me they have some sort of a secret order called the Knights of the Feathered Tribe. We are told that Jake Spangler is the head cockerel of the bunch.

Just about the time I was pleasantly reviewing the Hanover bunch, I saw Harry Baker, Superintendent of the show, coming around with a little book, collecting 12 shiners for the privilege of doing business at the Hagerstown show. I tried hard to get around the aisle, but there was nothing doing. Harry has an eye like an eagle, and it is that eye that has made Hagerstown famous, so I didn't kick much about the 12 shiners, for we all know, Hagerstown is one of the best shows in the country for business and they must have the sinews of war to conduct their show.

Frank Spahr was there and nobody had a better right to be there than Frank. He was certainly there with the goods this year, about 7,000 entries. He advised us he only lost 71 lbs. avordupois in making the big show. Quite a record.

Then we saw H. L. Fike, from Meyersdale. Fike is the man that beat things to a frazzle at the big fanciers show, Pittsburgh last year. This man Fike has been breeding chickens a great many years, as well as Bronze turkeys and has made his name famous throughout the entire country.

WM. AFRICAN BOSTON.

Wm. African Boston is an Editor Judge and the way he strutted past me was a caution, just like as if he was rubbing it in. He stopped once in front of the booth and went thru some sort of maneuvers with his feet which I thought was a figure eight, but Bill Minnick said he was trying to make a 17.

J. Napoleon Kriner was there. John is the venerable Ex-President of the R. H. D.'s an ancient organization which was founded at Allentown a great many years ago. John told us he had a pretty good season, got good

DUCKS, GEESE, TURKEYS, WYANDOTTES & ROCKS

That is what we are sacrificing, just think—high class exhibition and breeding stock at utility prices. Colored and White Muscovy and Wild Mallard Ducks at $6 a trio. Toulouse Geese at $6 a pair. prices for the corn fodder and the offal of his last butchering and indicated when he went to Wilkes-Barre he was going to show Arthur Trethewey what a full fledged Stettlersville sport looks like.

Scott Bowers said that George Ewald crossed the briny deep twice every day. Just what he meant by this strong statement, we are at a loss to know, but that was surely some speech Scott made at the banquet.

Well, our old friend S. E. Tiffany was there. He says this is the last year that he will be at Hagerstown. We aren't going to tell the reason why, for we all know he is going to be there with bells on next year. Come Tiff, you know it is true.

Well, we went down and saw a fellow by the name of Kerr, manager of the Dune Alpine Poultry Farm. That boy certainly had a good time at Hagerstown. He surely did, and the win made by the Dune Alpine Farm, in competition they encountered, was certainly great and will make G. J. feel proud.

James A. Cooley, Pittsburgh, also made a nice win in White Orpingtons. This year was his first at Hagerstown.

W. S. Secrist, of Keyser, W. Va., indicates he has purchased a fine farm and will make an exclusive business of producing Orps.

As usual our old friend F. W. Davis was there and as usual got away with a good amount of the prizes in Light Brahmas.

Hagerstown maintained its reputation that no matter who you are, or how much you are worth or how poor you are, you are on an equality at Hagerstown.

This was the spirit of the great founder of the show, John Cost, and it will be exemplified as long as the Hagerstown show lives and there is not much danger of it becoming ancient history.

It was the largest gathering of poultrymen that has been held in America in recent years and it was the largest show held in America in recent years and in many respects, it was the greatest show held in America in recent years.

Once you go to Hagerstown you will never stay away.

Now it is over, as Bill Minnick says, and we will have to wait until the next one.

NEW BERLIN POULTRY SHOW.

The seventh annual exhibition of the Unadilla Valley Poultry and Pet Stock Association will be held at Sidney, N. Y., January 27 to 31, 1913. Premium list and further information may be had by writing to Edwin H. Chase, Secretary, R. D. 1., Edmeston, N. Y., or A. E. Vandervort, Assistant Secretary, Sidney Center, N. Y.

MINORCAS AT THE BOSTON SHOW.

A great deal of enthusiasm has been aroused among Rose Comb Black Minorca breeders by the announcement that the club meeting of the International Rose Comb Black Minorca Club will be held at Boston. The Boston Show Management has offered a long list of specials, and personal members of the club have donated enough so that the cash prizes will greatly exceed $100. If 200 entries are made the cash specials will amount to over $200. Certainly no breeder of Rose Comb Black Minorcas can afford to miss sending a string of birds to this show or attending this show in person. There will be an experienced poultryman in attendance at all times to give his entire attention to this variety and see that all specimens are kept in proper condition for the judging and well taken care of in every way. The premium list of the Boston Show is now ready. Send to W. B. Atherton, 30 Broad Street, Boston, Mass., for a copy and enter at least a few birds at this show. There is no show in America where even a small winning carries with it so much prestige as the Boston Show. Be with us at Boston, Jan. 7th to 11th, 1913. The club meeting will be held Jan. 10th at Copley Square Hotel. Lloyd C. Mishler, Sec., North Manchester, Ind.

The Cyphers who is "The Recognized Authority" on Artificial Hatching.
The Cyphers who made Commercial Hatching Possible.
The Cyphers who discovered the Cyphers Principle.

The Cyphers whose Incubators Circle the World.

The Cyphers who will sell you his latest creation, the "Buffalo" at half the Standard Price.

Let Me Save You 50% My new Incubator, the Buffalo, fulfills the life-long demand of thousands of poultrymen. It offers all the Quality of the best high-priced incubators, at just half the price of any other incubator containing the Cyphers Principle.

I am proud of my new creation. The Buffalo is simply a wonder. There is nothing cheap about it but the price. I offer you an Incubator that is second to none in Durability, Reliability, or Quality. You can't get a better incubator than the Buffalo, no matter how much you pay. You can't get one as good. There are incubators and incubators, and nearly any of them will hatch some chickens. The biggest profits are made by operating the Buffalo, which will hatch a strong and vigorous chicken from every hatchable egg.

Note My Low Prices

Offer No. 0—50 to 60 Egg Size—Ship. Weight 65 lbs. $ 9.50 | Offer No. 2—220 to 240 Egg Size—Ship. Weight 130 lbs. $16
Offer No. 1—110 to 120 " " " " 90 lbs. $12.00 | Offer No. 3—340 to 360 " " " " 160 lbs. $20

Large Capacity Incubator SOMETHING NEW 1200 Egg Capacity $80.00

Occupies same floor space as any standard 360 egg machine.

Or run in conjunction with your present hatcher, whether a Buffalo, Cyphers, Model or Prairie State, will increase its capacity by 900 eggs. Incubator section alone costs you but $60. This is an Incubator, not a Hatcher. You put in 300 eggs every six days, and after the 18th day transfer the first 300 to the regular hatcher for the exclusion. Has the other large hatches beat in quality in price, in economy of labor, in space occupied and in price.

Get your name in for first circular announcement.

Don't buy until you get my offer. If you want more information about Buffalo Incubators or Brooders send a postal today to

"DON'T BE A CLAM."

Don't you think you should have a bunch of my March hatched pullets headed with one of my cockerels? When those very choice visitors come to see your birds and ask: "How is it your birds always seem so busy?" you can say: "Those birds? Oh, they came from Darlington." That one word Darlington explains everything.

DARLINGTON EGG FARM,

Alfred P. Edge Box C, Darlington, N. C.

The wonderful White Wyandottes typical of the style known as Keeler's World's Greatest Strain which Mr. Charles V. Keeler, R. F. D. No. 15, Winamac, Ind., has been breeding for the past 19 years. These three great birds were the winners of 1st and 2nd pullets and 1st prize cockerel at Indianapolis. As breeders Mr. Keeler writes that they further proved their worth; the two females damming and grand damming 1st prize pullets at the great Topeka show 1911-12 shown by Mr. Keeler, while the cockerel proved the sire of 1st prize males at Omaha, Des Moines, Washington, D. C., Baltimore, etc. For further information regarding these birds send to Mr. Keeler for his free 56 page art catalogue fully describing his 1913 breeding yards.

Farmer's Week at Pennsylvania State College.

The annual Farmer's Week at the Pennsylvania State College begins on Thursday, December 26th, and ends Thursday, January 2nd.

Poultry has been given a prominent place on the program for this year, nineteen lectures and demonstrations being scheduled.

Professor James E. Rice, Professor of Poultry Husbandry at the New York State College of Agriculture, and W. Theodore Wittman, Superintendent of the Poultry Department of the Allentown Fair, have been secured to assist the regular instructors during this week. Neither of these men need any introduction to Pennsylvania poultrymen. Professor Rice ranks as the foremost instructor in Poultry Husbandry. Mr. Wittman is well known through his work as Superintendent of the Allentown Fair show and as Farmers' Institute lecturer. Both of these men have had wide experience and are capable speakers.

The following program gives only the poultry lectures. In addition to these there are lectures dealing with every line of practical agriculture by men who know. A complete program can be secured by addressing Professor M. C. McDowell, Department of Agricultural Extension, State College, Pa.

The following is the list of the poultry lectures:—

Thursday, December 26th—"The Commercial Value of Pure Bred Poultry," Milliagan C. Kilpatrick.

Saturday Evening, December 28th, "Recent Light on Some Important Poultry Problems," Professor Jas. E. Rice.

EBENSBURG (PA.) SHOW.

About a year ago a small group of Ebensburg chicken fanciers were constantly discussing who had the best chickens of the local breeders. A poultry show was the outgrowth of these banter and claims. The show was a great success; in fact greater than the most sanguine had anticipated—over 500 birds and pets were on exhibition. No one realized there were so many good birds in the county. The judge stated a number of birds were good enough to go anywhere.

The success of last year has practically insured the permanency of the Ebensburg Poultry Show. This year the show will be set in the large new Firemen's Hall. A thousand birds can be comfortably cooped and every indication exists that that number will be on exhibition.

Cash prizes will be awarded for firsts. The association offers a number of silver loving cups suitably engraved and the merchants and friends of the association have donated over fifty special prizes ranging in value from two to twelve dollars. The prizes will be liberal insuring full classes in all the leading varieties.

Any one wishing information concerning the prizes in any class or desiring entry blanks should address Deck Lane, President, or Alfred Shumaker, Esq., Secretary. Mr. J. E. Weaver has been engaged to judge the show which will be held at Ebensburg Dec. 30, 1912 to Jan. 4, 1913, inclusive. Entries close Dec. 21, 1912.

CAMPINE CLUB.

The American Campine Club will hold its annual meeting at Madison Square Garden, New York Show, Thursday, January 2nd, 1912, at 2.00 P. M.

All interested parties are asked to join the club. No initiation fee being charged to those who apply for membership prior to January 1st, 1913. One dollar paid before that date covers dues from date of payment to December 31st, 1913.

At this show which is held December 31st, 1912, to January 4th, 1913, the following special prizes are offered by the American Campine Club to members only or to those who send One Dollar and application for membership prior to December 28th, 1912.

Silver Campines.

$5.00 gold best cock. Handsome Club Ribbon for best male.

$5.00 gold best hen. Handsome Club Ribbon for best female.

$5.00 gold best cockerel. Handsome Club Ribbon for best colored male.

$5.00 gold best pen. Handsome Club Ribbon for best pen.

Challenge Cup. Handsome sterling silver, value $50.00. For best display of American Bred Silver Campines, points to count, cup to be won three times or twice in succession before ownership can be claimed.

Golden Campines.

$5.00 gold best cock. Handsome Club Ribbon for best male.

$5.00 gold best hen. Handsome Club Ribbon for best female.

$5.00 gold best cockerel. Handsome Club Ribbon for best colored male.

$5.00 gold best pullet. Handsome Club Ribbon for best colored female.

$5.00 gold best pen. Handsome Club Ribbon for best pen.

Challenge Cup. Handsome sterling silver, value $50.00. For best display of American Bred Golden Campines, points to count, cup to be won three times or twice in succession before ownership can be claimed.

These specials are in addition to the regular premiums offered by the New York Show Management.

It is urged that all Campine Breeders send some of their best birds to this show, which will without doubt have the finest class of Campines ever exhibited, in this country or abroad.

M. R. JACOBUS, Sec.-Treas.
Ridgefield, N. J.
