MEADOWBROOK FARM

"SUPERIOR" WHITE PLYMOUTH ROCKS AND WHITE WYANDOTTES

Again proved their quality at the big fairs of 1911. No matter what the competition, they have always won. We made 28 entries at two fairs and won all the firsts but one. We have 1500 farm raised birds of quality, and we can supply you show birds or breeders at reasonable prices. We cannot winter all our cockerels and this month we are offering $5 birds for $3 and $8 birds for $5. Order today.

Standard Wyandottes in Colors and How to Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

Reaches the CHmax for those Interested in this Variety. WHEN YOU SEE IT YOU WILL ACKNOWLEDGE THAT IT IS THE BEST AND WORTH MANY TIMES THE PRICE TO YOU.

This book teaches you How to Score and Judge the greatest of all the American varieties. No other work published will give the information as it is given by Theo. Hewes in his articles, which are fully illustrated by over one hundred pictures, together with the chart system, of which he is the originator, and which is copyrighted by him. Not only do full page half-tone plates of some of the finest living specimens of these breeds appear in black and white, but the richest and grandest work ever done in oil by an artist is given by I. W. Burgess in a series of twelve pictures representing male and female, accompanied by feathers from the different sections of the birds in colors.

Size of book 11½x8½ inches. Contains over 70 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00.

These pictures are 4½x7 inches in size, and cost over $1,000 for the copper plates alone, to say nothing of the artist's labor and general cost of production. In fact no expense has been spared to make it by far the most valuable work on Wyandottes ever printed in America or elsewhere; you cannot duplicate it at any price, but you can have one by return mail for $1.00, and if you are not satisfied we will refund your money. We do as we say we will, now and always. Our past dealings with the public will prove this.

Remit by Express, P. O. Order or Check as this is the safest way. Book will be sent immediately upon receipt of order.

RHODE ISLAND REDS

How to Breed and Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

Is the Best and Most Complete Treatise Ever Published on this Great Variety

There is no breed so widely advertised to-day as the Rhode Island Reds and no breed in which there is such a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes perfection.

because it goes into detail and describes every section, with numerous illustrations, showing ideal and defective shape and color, thus making scoring so simple that any one can understand. Some sections have four or five illustrations showing the several defects that may be found in them, with the proper discount for the same as applied by our leading judges.

Size of Book 11 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches. Contains over 50 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00

In addition to this most complete series of articles on scoring, there are numerous articles from America's foremost Red breeders on every phase of Red breeding. This book tells you just what you want to know. It tells you how to mate your pens; how to grow your chicks; how to select your show birds; in fact, it tells you how to grow, exhibit and make money out of Reds.

This book is sold on approval. The price is $1.00, and, dear reader, if you are not satisfied with your bargain, send us back the book and we will refund your money.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price for it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay, write today.

Mark H. Jackson, No. 106 Alhamhra Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

Mr. Jackson is responsible. Above statement true.—Puh.

White Leghorns

S. C. Rhode Island Reds

Our yards this month present a fine showing of these two profit-making breeds. A strong laying propensity is a well-known characteristic of all Newtown poultry. If you are looking for birds with a breeding that will produce exhibition stock, we invite your correspondence.

Breeding Stock We have an extra fine lot of exhibition and breeding cockerels. These birds are in their prime and are bred from prize winners. The present offering affords you an opportunity to secure genuine prize winning stock at almost utility bird prices.

Baby Chicks We make Baby Chicks a specialty. Over 100,000 were shipped during the first few months of 1911. We send out only strong, heavy fellows—chicks that are livable. They stand shipping anywhere.

Hatching Eggs If you prefer to do your own hatching, we will supply you with eggs that run high in fertility. No substituting. We guarantee every shipment to be of genuine "Newtown" stock.

Judges vs. Exhibitors and Judging vs. Exhibiting

By F. W. Corey.

At the start I am going to say, at the risk of being called conceited, that I have had a large experience on both sides of this question and have often seen the time when I felt as though I could only argue the question on one side, sometimes one and sometimes the other, but today I will try and give you my impressions of both sides. I started my career as an exhibitor some twelve years ago, showing from 150 to 175 birds at such shows as Hagerstown, Syracuse, Allentown, Madison Square Garden, Boston and Philadelphia and taking up the work of a Judge about five years ago, since which time I have been fortunate or unfortunate enough to handle some of the largest classes at our largest shows so I shall claim the right to have some views on both sides of the question.

It seems to me that the matter of good judging is the most important question before the Fancy Poultryman of today. If I condition a bird for a show and send same to a customer, a bird I know is almost perfect color and cannot be cut only very lightly on color if at all and the judge scores that bird giving him a cut of four or five points for color, it is a very unsatisfactory state of affairs both for the customer and for the seller and yet I have known just such a circumstance and seen the score card. I may be wrong and hope I am, but it seems to me there is more dissatisfaction and more discord in the show room between judges and exhibitors than there was ten years ago. Well do I remember the first real hot competition I ever showed in when I made my first showing in a class of about 200 white Rocks and after the judge was through disqualifying birds there was hardly enough to hang the ribbons and yet I remember no kicking. What would happen today? He would not be allowed to finish the class before someone would demand that he be removed and the chances are, I am sorry to say, that our present-day secretaries would heed the demand and off would go the judge's head.

It is not my object to prove which side is right and which is wrong, which is honest and which is dishonest, and I will frankly say I am not sure which side is most to blame, but I want to point out some of the most glaring errors of judgment on the part of the judges, some judges, as well as the faults of some exhibitors. I do not want to go on record as saying there is one judge or one exhibitor in the business who is not an honest man; honest as the world calls us honest. Not one I know, I am sure, would ever think of taking a man's pocketbook, but there are some, I am sure, that let other influences other than quality in the birds determine where some of the ribbons shall go. I think some of these judges have done this so often that they are like the Champion Liar "who tells his stories so often he gets so he really believes them true;" they get so they really think their work is right and it's no harm to favor their friends or those from whom they are looking for something in return. I am sorry to say I have seen some cases of this kind very recently. Such work is apt to show in the awarding of special prizes and the best way I can think of to do away with favoritism of this kind is for all shows to award their important specials on displays only and let points count. In shows where there are two or more judges this method would practically stop this kind of work. Another temptation some judges fall for is that of dividing up the ribbons so that all may get a piece, thinking thereby to please everyone, make himself popular so as to get back next year, and I am sorry to say, in eight out of every ten cases of this kind he succeeds. Now as an exhibitor this little Joker gets my Goat worse than anything else. If my birds are entitled to win all the ribbons in the class I want them and if they are not I don't want a thing and above everything else I haven't any use for the judge who tries to divide up the prizes so as to please everyone and yet, I realize just how strong the temptation is and in good strong competition just how easy it is to do this. You ask how can the judge know. I only can say, it's easy, without catalogue or names or knowing a bird or an owner, a good judge of birds can tell after handling the class those that belong to the different exhibitors, not necessarily the exhibitor's name, but he can pick the different entries. Only one remedy for this trouble suggests itself to me as an exhibitor, and that is to enter your birds in two different lots allowing a few days to intervent between your sending them in, and thus other birds will come between yours. This will fool the best of judges and if your birds are entitled to all the ribbons they will generally get the best of them.

F. W. COREY.

I shall be glad to see the day come when exhibitors will see and refuse to employ those few judges who fail to use their best judgment and fail to judge according to the standard. I think the Standard of Perfection was made for judges to use and they should follow it as closely as it is possible for them to do. Otherwise where is the good of the breeders and fanciers of this country paying their good money to make it. It may have its faults, and I think it has plenty of them, and if it don't suit us we should work and help to change it, but in the meantime it is a rule to be lived up to and we have no right to call a judge all sorts of names and write him up in the paper just because he disqualifies birds for disqualifications described in the Standard. This is one of the faults of the exhibitor and I would say to all such: don't show disqualified birds. Nothing annoys a judge more than to find birds that have been and are, disqualified, especially if the exhibitor has tried to cover it up so as to escape the judges' notice, and above all, if the judge discovers the trick, don't get mad and deny you knew anything about it, for that puts you in a class with the exhibitor "who always leaves his best birds at home." As an exhibitor I can kick and kick as hard as anyone when

I think things are not on the level, but never when the judge catches me with a disqualified bird.. Another very bad trick is to show pullets in the hen class in many varieties where we get much better color on pullets than we can on hens in the fall of the year. This is as dishonest as anything an exhibitor can do, and nothing you can do will bother the judge worse. Of course this will happen sometimes with amateurs as a mistake, and I have seen such cases, but it isn't always a mistake.

I think it the exhibitor's duty to show his birds in the best possible condition and as near the Standard requirements as it is possible for him to get them, but don't expect to get away with prizes on disqualified birds, no matter how you fix them up, and my advice is to leave all such birds at home. To every amateur exhibitor who does not own a Standard I would say to get one at once. Study the disqualifications, study the different types and the different sections on your birds and in the Standard illustrations and compare them. and come into the show room prepared to know whether the judge is doing honest work. This will be a big step in the right direction and will have a tendency to improve the quality of both the work of the judge and the quality of the birds brought into competition.

Let us have honest, fearless, impartial judging, and honest, reasonable, thinking exhibitors.

Don't waste too much time trying to cure a fowl afflicted with some disease that you do not understand. Better kill them at once unless they are valuable exhibition specimens.

Questions and Answers

Health and Disease

By John J. Ritz, Department Editor

Q. Mr. Editor, will you kindly let me know what is the matter with my pullets; they stand around all day and do not have any life in them; they are what I call dopy and none of them are laying; they are Leghorns and are seven months old.

J. G. La Mott, Pa.

A. Your pullets are old enough and should be laying. Would suggest you place them in a warm house with plenty of litter on the floor; feed them very little for a few days, and make them scratch for all the feed they get, and give them plenty of green food; do not let them stand around; keep them busy all the time, and if they are not stunted they will lay in a few weeks.

Q. Dear Sir: Several of my chickens have the roup. Some of them were so bad that I killed them, and the balance are getting along very good. Those are W. Orpingtons, and would it do any harm to breed from them?

C. W. R., Fern Rock, Pa.

A. We would not advise you to breed from any chickens that had roup, as we strongly believe in breeding from only the healthiest birds and it will pay in the end. As a rule, the young chicks that are hatched from roup stock are weak and subject to roup and canker. Use the axe freely when you have bad cases of roup.

Q. Several of my White Wyandottes have dark legs, and a party told me that the stock is not pure blood. Will you let me know if those birds are pure or not. I bought the eggs from Mr. ——— and paid $3.00 per setting for them.

G. W. H., Southampton, Pa.

A. White Wyandottes should have yellow legs, but if dark legs do crop out it does not mean that the stock is not pure, as we have often seen dark legs come from Wyandottes that have been bred for years from the very best, pure leg birds; however, I would not advise you to breed from them, but often they are fine layers.

Q. Dear Sir: Several of my chickens have the habit of eating feathers and pull them from each other since they have started moulting. Can you tell me how to stop them, as some of the chickens look fierce?

P. M. C., Langhorne, Pa.

A. Feather pulling is a bad habit. Some chickens have and it is not easily cured. Several poultry supply stores have in stock a bit made for feather pullers, and can be placed in the bird's mouth and over comb, which stops the bird from pulling feathers while the bit is on the chicken. Last year we had a flock that got this habit and we did not have the time to put a bit on each bird, so we tried feeding the birds feathers, taking all the feathers that we got from our killing house and placing them in the yards and runs of the chickens. While the place looked a sight for a few days with feathers flying, they soon ate all they wanted and it soon stopped them from pulling them from the other birds. Would suggest you try it.

Q. Several of my birds that I am going to show at the Philadelphia show are not up to the standard weight. They are large frame and big in every way, but there seems to be no meat or fat on them. How can I make them a little heavier? I am feeding them as follows: Fifty per cent oats, twenty-five per cent wheat, and twenty-five per cent cracked corn. I also have a dry mash before them all the time, with a mixture same as used by the Maine Experimental Station.

M. G. E., Bryn Athen, Pa.

A. To make your birds a little fatter, would suggest you cut out part of the oats and place it with whole or cracked corn, and make the following mixture: Fifty per cent wheat, forty per cent corn and ten per cent oats, but give them plenty of grit and charcoal and a little fresh meat. The dry feed and mixture is very good, but if they waste it cut out part of the bran and gluten feed and you are not likely to get them too fat before the show on those mixtures.

Q. How old should my W. P. Rocks be before they lay? I have several that were hatched in March and are not laying.

E. M. P., Pa.

A. As a rule Plymouth Rocks lay at about seven months old, but it all depends on the care. With good care they will lay a little earlier, and if not properly cared for it will take longer, but they should be laying now.

Current Events Among Fanciers Gathered From Live Wires

Furman and Johnson are requested to keep earlier hours when attending the Williamsport Show. Gustavis and Albertines Braun want them to thoroughly understand that when they go to bed early they mean business.

Geo. P. Stryker is to be complimented on the able way in which he handled the Williamsport Show.

Rufus Delafield said he positively couldn't miss the Baltimore Show. Rufus isn't the only one that thinks that way. There is a reason, too.

Archibald B. Dalby is now located on his new farm at Red Bank, N. J. Archie has one of the finest plants in the "Skeeter" state.

Luin B. Switzer, the well-known Orpington breeder of Southport, Conn., who has been seriously ill, is now able to be about again. This will be good news to his many friends.

Some editors were very liberal with roses and violets at the Grand Central Show.

The new Wilkesbarre association is working hard for the coming show.

It is noticed that Harry Wloseiffer smokes better cigars than he used to. For my part, I don't know.

Hats off to the Trenton, N. J., bunch. As we predicted, Madison Square did them no hurt. Full particulars in next issue.

If you want the news, get the Fancier.

If you want to help the Fancier, show this issue to your friends. If they are not satisfied that it is worth 25c a year we will refund the money. Now, Mr. Fancier, we will see if you are willing to support a fancier's paper. It is up to you. I will do my best.

The Fancier was established in 1897 and published several years under the name of Fancy Fowls, and we well know the names of the men who said it was a new journal just started only as an experiment. Fair play, gentlemen, and every true fancier will stand for this.

Billy Edgar, the well-known Buff Wyandotte breeder of Bethlehem, is now manager of J. D. Koon's farm, Treichler, Pa. What this pair will do for Buff Wyandottes will be large.

C. F. Ferry put up the finest string of Black Langshans at the Philadelphia and Garden Shows that was ever made by any individuals. Ferry is placing the Black Langshans where they belong.

The Bridgton Show was larger than usual. Geo. Hughes and Billy Rice chanced off 10 shares of Bottled Sunshine Stock; the unfortunate winner of the prize was Lew Heller.

Bill Baily is very much alive, so he says. The writer will not vouch for it. Haven't seen him since he mysteriously disappeared from the Palace. He was last seen going down Broadway with Count Bonnie DeLouy.

Allentown Fanciers' Show was, as usual, up to snuff, and Judge Braun was equal to the occasion. Adam did not enter his Huelly Bullys. Hair dye went into the trusts.

Percy A. Cook, who had been seriously ill with typhoid fever, is now able to be about again. This is good news. Sure Percy's face was missed from the regulars attending the show.

It is said that southern water is hard on northern exhibitors. Well, Whitman was down and he is still living—very much alive on the judging question, too.

Cap. Arnold and Brownie took in the long green at the Palace Show. The smile they wore had a subscription solicitor skinned to a frazzle.

Judge Corey couldn't stay long at the Williamsport show; had to hurry home to bury some turnips and haul in fodder. He came down to Palace to give some legal decisions in some of the classes. Corey is all right, but just what his nationality is remains a mystery.

Who said the judges' question was a joke? Surely it wasn't Dick Oke.

Onlya Farms, under the management of Chas. Staaff, is making a record. Charley has a habit of producing good White Wyandottes and going to moving picture shows.

Many large schools of frying oysters are due at the Baltimore Show, so says Arnott of Sunswick Farm.

Charles I. Fishel is judging a large number of shows in the sunny south.

For the first time we had the pleasure of meeting Link Orr personally at the Palace Show. We found Link perfectly harmless and feeling fine. Link ain't a bad sort of fellow any way, excepting that he thinks editors ought to judge. Perhaps Link has an editorial bee in his bonnet.

Bob Seaman, president of the Empire Poultry Association made a speech at the banquet, which is well worth reading. Read it. It is in the Empire Show Report.

E. B. Thompson and Lester Tomkins were prominent visitors at Grand Central Palace Show. H. B. Crawford says there will be another show in New York given by their association, no matter if Madison Square Garden is torn down or not. H. B. assured the writer that these are facts, and H. B. always means what he says.

Charlie Pensyl, formerly of Buff Rock fame, is back into the business again breeding Single Comb White Orpingtons. Seems funny that a man can't get rid of the hen fever, that's what John Kriner says.

In the Poultry Fancier the small breeders are given the choice of position. Notice the small ads in the front of the book.

Some show secretaries try to pay a Madison Square prize on a 25c entrance fee, and about 800 paid admissions. Somebody has got to pay the fiddler.

The Grand Central Banquet was a pace maker.

John Peiffer, Danville, Pa., showed two of the biggest White Orpingtons we ever saw at Williamsport. John is getting up in White Orps and he deserves to be.

It is rumored on good authority, that the Hanover Fair will enlarge their Poultry Building.

All the writers in the Poultry Fancier staff are men who raise chickens—men who have made good—men whose experience is valuable to the beginner. Those are the kind of writers we want, and not the professionals who get $2 for every 2,000 words and try to teach people what they think they know.

Selecting the Variety to Breed

By Austin W. Carpenter.

WITHIN the next six months thousands of men and women will have made their first venture in the poultry business. It is entirely safe to predict that ninety-nine out of every hundred will take up the breeding of one or more varieties of standard bred fowls. The day of the mongrel is past. Those who take up the fowls for pleasure will surely select some standard variety for the mongrel never appeals to the eye of the fancier who goes into the business simply for pleasure. Those who take up the poultry line for profit by way of egg production or market fowls find nothing these days in the mongrel. We have too many standard bred varieties that excel in both table fowls and egg production to give the mongrel the least chance along these lines.

The great question which will confront those who contemplate entering the poultry field will be: "What variety or varieties shall I select?" These beginners are now spending much time reading our poultry papers and visiting our show rooms in an effort to decide upon some breed or breeds. No better course can be pursued. As a rule our poultry publications do not discriminate between varieties. In fact they dare not as their patrons are breeders of nearly every known variety. Of course it is true that individual contributors on special varieties are apt many times to let their great admiration for a certain breed swell their eulogy to a far too great extent, yet most of our writers give only the true merits of their chosen variety. Draw your first conclusion from the knowledge you get from your poultry publications. Form your second conclusion in the show room. The poultry show is a strong educational factor. It should be visited by the persons about to enter the poultry industry. Here you can get a true idea of the various varieties of fowls. See how they look; observe how they act; secure a true outline of their characteristics and after a close study of each variety go home with your mind made up as to the breed or breeds you will take under your supervision. However, there are other matters to take into consideration in determining what variety to select. They are in concise topics as follows:

First—Facilities.

Fancy poultry for either pleasure or profit will result in failure if the proper facilities are not to be had.

If the fancier is confined to a city lot or small village property he will have to keep his fowls closely yarded. There is a vast difference in standard breeds in standing confinement. If the fancier is confined to few and small quarters he should be very careful in selecting some variety that is particularly adapted these surroundings.

Under this heading properly comes the discussion of the specialty breeder. Shall the would-be fancier breed one or more varieties? I am not a strong believer of specialty breeding. To be sure it takes a large amount of room to properly care for even one variety. The great majority of breeders this winter are short of room, the one variety men as much so as the several variety breeders. If your facilities are limited I would say keep only one breed. Above all, is this true in beginning.

After you have had experience and success with one variety you can add another if you have the room to do it.

The beginner who has lots of capital, buildings, room and time will make no mistake in selecting two or three breeds. Don't make the fatal mistake that has been made time and time again. That is in trying to breed every known variety. We still find some farms advertising nearly every variety. It is an impossibility. You will find today that the large farms breeding several varieties have a specialty man supervising each breed.

If you select one variety and stick by it until you honestly believe you have done it justice it will be several years before a second variety is added. However, the average person, if he devotes his entire time to the business, can very well look after two or even three breeds to good advantage. The person who has to divide his time between fancy poultry and some other line of work better take up but one variety. He will have all he finds time to do with a single breed.

Second—Climate.

Climatical conditions naturally have considerable to do in determining which variety to raise. Many of the heavier breeds are better adapted to the colder climates while many of the more delicate fowls are particularly adapted to warmer climes. The modern methods of poultry house building have to a great extent modified the stress of climate in selecting varieties. With houses constructed on scientific principles nearly any variety can be made comfortable no matter how hot or cold the weather conditions.

Third—Personal admiration of fancier.

No man ever made a great success of a business that he did not like. If your business does not appeal to your admiration failure is more apt to meet your efforts than success. The same principle applies in breeding fowls. No fancier can succeed with a variety that does not strike his personal admiration. If you have a dislike for a variety, let that variety alone. If you have a variety that you especially admire that is the variety that you will push to the front no matter how unpopular it may be. Above all, select your breed on your own personal likes and dislikes and not on the opinion of some fancier who has stock to sell or is interested in some special variety. You are the one that will have to care for the fowls; you will have to mate them; you will have to observe the good and the bad which they produce, and not your advisor.

In conclusion let me say that once you have made your selection, stick to the variety of your choice. The poultry man who has a different breed each season is the one who has a balance on the debit side of the ledger. You will meet many disappointments in the breed you select. This is true of all breeds. If you change you may meet even more disappointments. "Keeping everlasting at it" is a fine motto. I care not what variety you select. It may be the most unpopular of the standard varieties. If you have facilities, time and personal admiration for the breed backed up with brains and ambition the fowls of your choice will in due time rank with the best. Don't be in a hurry to select your variety. Give it timely consideration. Once your selection is made, stick.

Methods of a Successful Fancier

By Rev. C. E. Petersen.

THE care of the little downy balls that we call chicks is not only a pleasure and recreation to the fancier, but to very many it has been the first touch of Nature that opened the eyes of those formerly blind to her manifold beauties. It was the unfolding of one feature of animal life; that little by little opened up to us the whole domain. The pip, pip of the chick taught us to listen to the chirp of the sparrow; and the chirp of the sparrow to the singing, soaring meadow lark, until our gaze was lifted from earth to sky, and for one brief moment we realized that there is a religion in everything around us—a calm and holy religion in both the breathing and unbreathing things of Nature, which man would do well to imitate.” The interesting features of poultry yards and chick life have been so well described by Rev. Gilbert White in his world-famous volume, “The Natural History of Selborne,” from which we cannot refrain quoting.

“No inhabitants of the poultry yard seem possessed of such a variety of expression and so copious a language as what we commonly call chickens. Take a chicken of four or five days old, and if there is a fly within its reach, it will immediately seize its prey with little twittering of complacency; but if a wasp or bee, at once its note becomes harsh and expressive of disapprobation, and a sense of danger. When a pullet is ready to lay, she intimates the event by a joyous and easy soft note. Of all the occurrences of their life, that of laying seems to be the most important; for no sooner has a hen disburdened herself than she rushes forth with a clamorous kind of joy, which the cock and the rest of his mistresses immediately adopt. The tumult is not confined to the family concerned, but catches from yard to yard and spreads to every homestead within hearing, till at last the whole village is in an uproar.

“As soon as a hen becomes a mother, her new relation demands a new language. She then runs clucking and calling about and seems as agitated as if possessed. The father of the flock has also a considerable vocabulary; and if a bird of prey passes over, with a warning voice he bids his family beware. The gallant chanticleer has at command his amorous phrases and his terms of defiance, but the sound by which he is best known is his crowing; by this he has been distinguished in all ages as the countryman’s clock or alarm, as the watchman that proclaims the divisions of the night. Thus the poet styles him

The silent hours.’”

To the fancier, all these different sounds of both cocks, hen and chicks seem so much music. The young broods become objects of intense interest and a great deal of time may be spent among them; they are creatures of love, and that love us. How eager we are that they should thrive. We examine their points anxiously, and can almost in their early infancy, pronounce upon the future prize winners.

From that moment they are marked birds and receive special attention; all the tidbits fall to their share, and if there is a better coop or a choicer spot of ground than another, it is theirs. And this close attention and special care is necessary, for at this time, the young chicken has everything to make, and good nutritious feeding is an absolute essential until the process of feathering is completed, so as to make up for the unusual demand in the system.

It is in this respect that so many breeders fail in producing stock up to the required size, and we say knowingly, for if the size is there, a bird, in good condition will be up to standard weight also.

The strain on the system of the youngsters, at this time, is great, and if proper care and food is not given them, the result will be undersized, or, still worse, stunted specimens. Give them all they require and no more, avoiding pampering with condition powders and chick specifics. Nature does not demand such things. When you use them, you violate Nature’s laws and practically weaken, debilitate and finally destroy entirely the vitality of your birds. Well hatched, strong, vigorous chicks given plain food at intervals will keep in fine trim and grow to their full size.

For twenty-four hours after the chicks are hatched, they do not need any food, as nature has provided the first few meals for them in the yolk absorbed just before the exit from the shell, but this is the limit and I think the extreme limit to which any one using rational methods should go. After that length of time the yolk has been taken into the system entire and there is no necessity of starving the chicks from twelve to forty-eight hours longer, as some breeders advocate.

The fact is, that a newly hatched chick will not eat, as I have proven over and over again, and that others require food as early as from twelve to eighteen hours after exclusion from the shell. Nature is a good teacher and we will not go very far out of the way. For the first meal, I give a little fine grit, but never mix it with the food, and then, for the next few days bread and sweet milk; that is, crumble the bread and then moisten with the milk. Mr. Charles A. Cyphers, who has made many experiments in the feeding of little chicks, writes as follows:

"Without an exception, bread and sweet milk make the best food for a day or two, if not for the first two weeks. At the time for exclusion the crop, gizzard and intestines are filled with uric acid and other excretions, of which they should be cleaned. I have fed on nearly every food usually employed, and killed and dissected by the third day over one hundred chicks. Of all the foods experimented with, bread softened with sweet milk clears the crop, gizzard and starts the chicks growing the quickest."

This diet may be followed with steel-cut oatmeal (sometimes called pin head oatmeal) to scratch for, and a little later on hulled oats, cracked wheat, and cracked corn may be given. Too much cannot be said in favor of oats as a frame builder. I feed ad libitum in all forms, cooked and raw, and I do not know of any other single grain as valuable in bone and flesh forming properties as well cooked oatmeal, steel-cut oats and hulled corn. With me, it forms a steady diet as a grain food from time of hatching to maturity. After this, I feed regular unhulled oats as part of their ration.

A little cooked meat chopped fine will also be relished by the little fellows, and fresh green bone finely cut can also be fed to advantage, where a bone cutter is handy. It is a valuable food to facilitate growth, particularly where the range is limited.

Give me hulled oats, cracked corn and green bone and I will, without any other means of feeding, build up a strain of birds with frames so large that they will more than reach the different weights required in the standard, and not be spoiled for breeding by an excess of fat. Of course we take for granted that Summer chicks have all the green food they want, if not, it must be supplied. When green bone is not handy bone meal is excellent. Wherever it is used, there will be no complaint of leg weakness. I use it continuously, and if its valuable properties were fully understood, it would form one of the staple articles of chicken diet, especially where the chicks must be kept in confinement.

If you have plenty of spare milk, don't feed it all to the pigs. Give the chicks all they want to drink, but not to the exclusion of clean, cool water, as there are times with chicks, as with human beings, where nothing but water will do. For the first few weeks feed every few hours all they will eat up clean. For the next three weeks every three hours and after that four times a day, until they reach maturity.

If the youngsters have plenty of range, three times a day, or even less will be enough. Yet it is necessary to say this: Chickens having all the range they desire and compelled to hunt all day for their living mature far too rapidly to make large exhibition fowls. Runs of medium extent sufficiently large to supply all the green food needed, afford the best facilities after all. They moreover are conducive to that regularity of feeding so essential to success, and so hard to practice where the range is very extensive. Do not, under any circumstances, leave food around to sour and then feed to the chicks, as it will kill off the best flock by causing bowel trouble. As food will sour rapidly after making, particularly in hot weather, no more should be made at a time than needed. A little more trouble, but it pays well, like everything else that is done as it ought to be done.

When the mother shakes off the chickens, they should be moved to quarters where they will not crowd one another and they will thrive best, if kept in small flocks, say of about twenty-five chicks in each flock, for, if at this time they are at all crowded, it will be detrimental to their welfare. Chickens kept in ill-ventilated crowded quarters where the heat is extreme will never do well, and they bare ground under the shelter of a bush or a tree.

I am using to a great advantage, roosting coops six by three feet with wire front coming down twelve inches from the top of coop, running the whole length, six feet. The lower part is wood, that keeps the wind from blowing the rain on stormy days. There is also a hinged hood that keeps the rain from coming through the wire netting. It can be thrown back upon the roof on bright days. This admits the sunlight to purify the coop. Such a coop kept scrupulously clean makes an ideal shelter for young stock. See that the chickens in each flock are all of the same age or anyhow that they do not vary too much in size, or the chickens of larger growth will tyrannize over their younger companions, gorge themselves with food while the ones of lesser growth will, for a certainty, go short unless some special provisions be made so all will get their proper share.

If the birds are reared for exhibition, or to be sold at fancy prices, the cockerels must be separated from the pullets as soon as they show signs of becoming troublesome, which they generally do at an early age ranging from eight to fifteen weeks, according to the variety bred. If this is done, they will attain maturity too soon, notwithstanding all the care that may be bestowed on them to get them large and well proportioned. It is a dilemma to know just what to do with a number of cockerels from five to six months old, for a breeder that has not a cockerel house where each bird can be kept separate. If they are kept together in one pen, they are bound to spoil each other's plumage in a very few weeks. A strong courageous cock will keep order to some extent and also keep them from fighting, but every expediency fails at last, therefore, the necessity of the cockerel house. Anyhow, any male youngster selected for exhibition, must have a separate coop and run in, in which to be conditioned.

During the hot months be vigilant and observant, regarding the needs of your young stock. Provide plenty of shade, plenty of cold water and food regularly, and do this without fail. Let them out early in the morning when the sun is still low; they will hunt and enjoy life during these morning hours. At 11 a. m., feed them well, and you will see them lounge in the shady places, during the intensely hot hours of the day, every now and then, making a dart for a fly, or some insect coming within range. Then a few hours before sunset, they will scatter, until fed the last meal, and then retire happy and contented with chick life.

Examine closely for vermin and dust freely with some good insect powder, at least once a month, and with such treatment as described, I have never failed to raise strong, hardy stock, and chick mortality with me has been so rare an occurrence, that it is not worth mentioning and I use both natural and artificial methods of rearing my chickens. Common sense is the best manager in the poultry yard. We will take for granted that the chickens were hatched in season, so as to have plenty of time the cold weather sets in, and no feeding and care given them will help make them birds of size, though for laying purposes in the early spring they may do as well as those hatched earlier, but as we are dealing with "Fancy" and not common market stock, this is not relative to our subject of breeding fancy fowls. As a rule that we cannot deviate from, fine stock must be raised in time and have their growth before winter sets in, or they will be nothing but present and future disappointments to their owners, and mind this, that we cannot be guided by exceptions, as there are such to most every rule.

Extremely small eggs are sometimes all white, sometimes all yolk, and seldom have the yolk and white in proper proportions. Even if the white and yolk are properly proportioned and the eggs hatch, they are apt to produce small chickens, which make small fowls, and, if females, when grown, lay small to grow into fairly matured birds, and that they came from strong, robust breeding stock, for otherwise, all the care we can give them, will never make fine well proportioned birds.

We always advocated the early hatching of chickens; and a chick hatched in the month of March is better than three hatched in May.

March and April are the two best months in the year for hatching purposes, and will give finer and better chicks than at any other time. June hatched chicks are responsible for much disappointment in the raising of fancy stock, and all for the sake of saving a dollar or two, when really it is waste of time and money to try to do anything with chickens hatched this late; even the experienced breeders do not care to have them around. They are a weakness and not a strength, to the breed, and a cause of degeneracy of vigor, size and productiveness.

It will take from six to seven months to make full growth even in the small size breeds, and we cannot state truthfully that a fowl is fully mature till one year old.

Young stock will stand still in their growth after eggs, an undesirable combination which doesn't make for progress.

In mating, the first quality to select in either male or female, is vigor: It matters little how fine the birds may be, if they lack vigor the chickens will be difficult to rear and few be worth the trouble of rearing. Without vigor, beauty is of small moment; indeed, beauty is largely dependent upon this foundation quality. Don't sell an inferior bird alive. You can't afford to have your stock advertised by such specimens.

Very large eggs are generally double-yolked. They may hatch, if incubated, but in most cases do not. The chances of getting chickens from double yolked eggs are less than one in a hundred.

Mate the pens as early as convenience will permit in order that the birds may get acquainted with each other, all "scrapping" be over, and the eggs be fertile when wanted.

NOTICE.

Starting with the February issue the Poultry Fancier will run a special department under the heading "A few hours with men who raise chickens."

This will be very interesting, not only to our subscribers, but to advertisers, and we want all of our advertising friends to send us in all the information that they possibly can, concerning their stock and matings, and this special department will start with our February issue.

We believe it will be a great education to our subscribers, to know how the men who successfully raise poultry, do it. We also believe that their matings, for the coming season will interest them and help them very much in deciding matters.

While true enough we cannot begin to accommodate all this in a single issue, and it is not the intention to over-look anyone, hence this will be a regular monthly feature, which will interest you.

Announcement of Change

With this issue of Poultry Fancier, the publication passes into the hands of Mr. Frank W. DeLancey, who assumes complete editorial and business management. His ideas of what a good poultry journal should be, will prevail in the work of making the paper a leader in the field of poultry journalism, in which Mr. De-Lancey has for many years been a prominent and successful factor. His position and reputation in the poultry fraternity are so well known that he needs no special introduction. His success has been phenomenal and all existing conditions indicate that he will, in the future, eclipse his own past record.

The writer is exceedingly reluctant to part company with Poultry Fan-cier, but the constant growth of Successful Poultry Journal demands our entire time and attention to that publication, and we feel that a continued division of personal effort between both papers in the future would be detrimental to the interests of both.

We are also actuated to some extent by the universal rule of business that impels one to dispose of his possessions if he feels that the financial profit or advantage justifies it. We wish to publicly acknowledge our gratitude toward all the friends of Poultry Fancier who have given their encouragement and support in the past. All business and communications of any kind, intended for the writer should be addressed to Frank Heck, Editor Successful Poultry
Journal, 537 South Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill. FRANK HECK.

MY FIRST ISSUE.

First of all I wish to thank every one, from the largest advertiser to the subscriber, for the loyal support given me in making this my first issue of Poultry Fancier. The grand success that is, little did I think that I would be able to make my first issue so large. But then it wasn't me.
It was the men, the fanciers who rallied to my support, and I thank you one and all from the bottom of my heart. You and you alone have made all this possible. It has been my life long ambition to have my own journal. Many of the best years of my life were spent in the upbuilding of the poultry business. I have done my best for it, and I have tried to give my former employers, The Item Pub. Co., my best efforts, and reluctantly I quit them. The Poultry Item was dear to me. The Item Publishing Co. was good to me. The parting was painful to me. I must forget the past and look into the future. And the pathway of the Fan-cier I am going to carve out of the unexplored regions of poultry journalism. I am going to make it different from the rest. I have no enemies to punish or friends to serve, and my editorial pen will not be influenced by any one and it will always be ready to strike in defence of a pure, clean and honest fancy, and it will always be ready to attack evils that will have a tendency to disor-ganize and disrupt. At this point it is well to remember that it is well that all poultry editors do not think alike, especially on the judging question and other important matters, but I have not changed my mind and will express my views according to the dictates of my own conscience, and if I lose on the important question of judging that will be brought up at the next A. P. A. meeting, I, like every other good American citizen, will bow to the will of the majority and be good. But I am going to fight to a finish and fight with all my might.
And in the Feb. issue we will resume our crusade against soliciting editors judging, and incidentally take a shot at show Secretaries for allowing marked catalogues to get in to the judges' hands before they start work. My policy remains the same.
Equal rights and just to all.

DOES IT PLEASE YOU?

If this issue of Poultry Fancier does not come up to your expectations, tell us so, and be sure and tell us where we can make improvements. It is my intentions to make the Fancier a fancier's journal in every sense of the word, published in the interest of the men who produce the standard bred birds and read by the people who are willing to pay the price.

The mission of Poultry Fancier is to teach breeders how to produce the beautiful standard bred birds which we believe is the foundation of all pleasure and profit in poultry raising.
We know from the start that it will be impossible for us to please you all, we are simply human and no man on earth can please you all. But we are going to do the best we can, and it is the ambition of the man behind the gun to make Poultry Fancier the leading poultry journal of the land.
And we ask your co-operation in bringing this about. Without the support of the Fancy we are powerless, with your support we will give you a magazine second to none and one that will fill a long felt need. Let us work hand in hand and heart in heart for the upbuilding of the fancy poultry industry and a betterment of the conditions that now exist.

WHAT THE POULTRY FAN- CIER IS.

A journal that will stand for fair play and justice to all.

A journal that will oppose soliciting editors' judging.

A journal that will give full and complete show awards no matter whether you advertise or not.

A journal that has no friends to serve or enemies to punish.

A journal whose writers raise chickens not men who get so much per thousand words, telling what they think they know to men who know how.

A journal that will stand for the right.

A journal that will teach you the art of successful poultry keeping.

A journal that has your best interests at heart.

A journal that stands for better and more organization.

A journal that will put the small breeder carrying a class ad. in front pages of book and not the last.

A journal whose editorial policy will be fearless.

A journal that will have a down to date Bantam and Pigeon Dept. starting in Feb. issue.

A journal that will have a Health and Disease Dept. that will be worth dollars to you.

A journal that will fill a long felt need. Will you support a journal of this kind? It's up to you.

WANTED—A REPRESENTATIVE

Now is the time. Get in on the ground floor. We want a representative in every town, city and village in the United States. Poultry Fancier is a ready seller. No one keeping chickens or going into the business will refuse to subscribe. We let you to be the judge whether it is the biggest and best 25c worth ever offered for 25c. We want live wires, representatives that can produce, and to men and women of this kind we can make an offer that will be well worth your while. Write today. You are the one we are looking for. Don't delay or let this opportunity pass. We want you to work and make money. See co-operative ad in this issue. If you do not want to work for a prize, then work for cash. Write us right now.

IMPORTANT NOTICE — READ CAREFULLY.

Address all communications to Sellersville, Pa., the eastern office as well as the editorial office of Poultry Fancier. Sellersville, Pa., will be the headquarters of F. W. De Lancey. This is very important. 539 S. Dearborn St. will be the Chicago headquarters. Come to see us when you come East or West. Of course, we can't show you so many sights in Sellersville, as it is not quite as large as Chicago. But at either office we will take good care of you.

NO FOREIGN ADVERTISEMENTS.

A Poultry Fancier is a real Fancier's paper, and it is published in the interests of the American Fanciers, and while we believe they have very good birds on the other side of the pond, we also believe as was clearly demonstrated at Madison Square Gardens, that we have just as good stuff on this side of the pond, and so long as that eagle remains on the cover page of Poultry Fancier, it will not shelter any advertisement from the other side.

We believe there has been just about enough of good American Dollars sent over, and we would like to see those good American dollars remain right among our good American Fanciers.

We welcome in our columns all of our good old Canadian Friends who just take as active a part in the interests of the American Poultry Association, and in the upbuilding of the Poultry industry as we do, we welcome them, but we must draw the line where we stated, and positively no foreign advertisements will appear in the columns of the Poultry Fancier.

MORE SHOW REPORTS IN FEBRUARY.

Owing to the amount of business and MS. which reached our office, we were naturally caught a little unprepared for such a large issue, and the important show reports for the latter part of December, and those of January will appear in our February issue.

We will handle these reports and awards, just as rapidly as we possibly can, overlooking no show that we were officially represented at.

A SPECIAL REQUEST.

It is the desire of the writer, that every one of our subscribers show this issue to their friends, let them see for themselves what they are getting for their money. Every subscriber to Poultry Fancier has a number of friends interested in Poultry, and I am sure no one interested would refuse to pay 25c a year for it or better still 60c for four years. This is a personal message to all my friends. I would write every one of my old friends a letter if I knew your address but I don't. But you know mine and I want to hear from you all, and I want you to show this message, this issue to all your friends and frankly speaking send us in a club of subscribers. I am depending on you. Do all you can, and do it now. See our co-operative add. in this issue.

A NEW FEATURE.

In order that the small breeder who uses the classified advertising columns and special one inch display ads. can have the largest possible chance, to get gratifying results from his advertising, Poultry Fancier has decided to give him every possible chance, and place all classified advertisements and special one-inch display ads, in the front part of the book, instead of the last pages.

This will help very materially in bringing gratifying results to the small breeder, who can only afford to carry a small ad.

THE feed mixing problem is solved. For many years the poultrymen have needed a feed mixer that was a real mixer. Now there is one. There have been no less than four different types tried on the famous Afton Poultry Farm and their Mr. Twining pronounces the one shown in the illustration the best he has ever used and all he could ask for. He has given it a thorough try-out and knows of what he speaks.

Because of the part Afton Farm has played in the perfecting of this mixer, and because of the further fact that it has done so much toward making Afton Farm more profitable, the machine bears the name

"Afton Farm" Feed Mixer

The value and economy of home mixed feeds is well known to poultrymen. Why pay the extra price for ready mixed feeds when you can mix your own cheaper, better, and have it fresher? "Afton Farm" Feed Mixer is metal throughout, and will last a life time. It is as simple as a scoop shovel. It mixes more thoroughly and blends the feed much better than is possible to do by hand. With an "Afton Farm" Mixer, one man can mix as much as three men can by hand. It thoroughly blends both dry and moist mashes. It is a grain saver and a labor saver. When you know that it reduces your cost of feed mixing two-thirds; and it saves a large per cent. of the feed bill; and that it makes the feed more palatable and easier digested, you will realize that you can not afford to be without one. It is made in capacities of 15 qts., 75 qts. and 150 qts. Larger sizes for poultrymen and dairymen made to order.

With our free booklet, "Feed Formulas" and an "Afton Farm" Feed Mixer every poultryman can be a successful feeder. Full worth of this machine is learned only by using

3 Mo. for $2.50 6 Mo. for $4.00

Let us reason together:

Poultry Fancier is published in the interests of the men who raise the high grade standard bred birds, which is the foundation of all pleasure and profit in Poultry raising.

It is read by people who are willing to pay the price of the real fanciers product and skill. It is read by the people whose ideas of Beauty are not alone based upon pounds of flesh, and dozens of eggs.

A circulation that will not pay the price of a setting of eggs, or a good bird is worthless to you. You are spending dollars in trying to hit a mark beyond your range.

But how many are paying for this kind of a circulation? Is it any wonder they say advertising doesn't pay? Who is to blame? The circulation of the Poultry Fancier represents the cream, and we sell it to you without buying so much milk, (by the milk I mean circulation that will not pay the price.)

It's the shot that hits the mark that wins the battle, and there is a buyer for every good bird that's raised, and for every egg that's laid.

The circulation of the Fancier is the demand. Can you furnish the supply? During the next three months, our thousands of readers will spend mans thousands of dollars for stock and eggs, and for the price of a setting of eggs, we will insert your Add, 30 words, three times for $2.50.

A Pastor's Poultry Experience

By B. Monroe Posten.

You see I want to help the fellow who has little cash and from the standpoint of clergymen it ought to have weight, as they are the poorest paid of any men, seldom having any money to venture on wildcat schemes. The poultry business is no trial of your faith, of course, it worketh patience, and patience success.

There are several things about a clergyman's work that the poultry field helps him, and he can help the people. He needs a little extra cash, he has to buy eggs. They are seldom below twenty cents any more, and if he can have his own eggs they taste better and are better. He has no bill of fare at the table, but if he has fresh eggs he can have them served in about twenty ways, so he can have his own bill of fare—and fare better at that.

He needs recreation. Where in all creation can he find better rest and cash combined? The study of the hen is itself a fine bit of play. She is the most wonderful of all the creatures of God. She is a machine, and out of a bug and a grass and a crumb and a worm, and a—oh, well, anything you like, she is bound to make an egg. No matter how stingy the feeder she is asked to make an egg. If a woman was asked to make a silk dress out of paper muslin she would kick; but the poor hen can't kick, so if she doesn't get the feed she has to make it out of her own body.

It has been my privilege to study the hen under many different lights. I have bred 23 different varieties in a single season, have judged over 26,000, have raised 2,200 on half an acre, and have won over 1,200 prizes for excellence, so you see I speak not from the book altogether, but from experience.

If the poor man of to-day is to have all he needs, without adding any luxuries, he is bound to have some extra cash once in a while, and there is no way with as little investment that brings so big a return. Let's see, take a $5 note, that will buy a setting of the best eggs from any of the best varieties; oftentimes you can buy very good eggs from reliable men at $2 or $3—$15 will buy a trio. I would rather buy the latter, as you can get as many eggs from the trio as $15 will buy, and you can start double mating the next year. What do you mean by double mating, do you ask? Well, suppose you purchase a trio, next year you can take the male you bought, put him with the pullets you raise, and take a cockerel you raise and put him with the two hens. You can do this if you just keep a mark on them for years and do not lose vitality or good points. I have bought eggs at $1 a setting and sold $25 worth of stock from them. I bought $5 worth of day-old chicks and sold $25 worth from them. I have bought a male for $25 and won $20 on the pen and sold eggs for as much more and had both left; so you see no matter which way you do you will win if you keep your eyes open.

Different Kinds of Dignity.

Some one will say, but you lose dignity if you do this way and stay in the ministry. Let me ask which one lowers his dignity most, the preacher who works for nothing and boards himself and gets behind and can't pay, for the church has not helped him to be able to pay as he goes, and leaves debts behind to harass the other fellow for years, or the preacher on whose coat you occasionally find a feather? Again, the preacher who can do something besides preach is independent. A boy who broke down his express wagon was met by a man who said, "Oh, run to your father, he will fix it." The boy, crying, said: "No, he can't, he is a preacher."

I will give you several facts. I was asked to serve a church in a large town with two railroads and four other churches, and raise a debt of $1,200 with eight years' interest due, and to live on the magnificent sum of $400 and pay my own rent, live on Fifth avenue and keep sweet. Well, the song I enjoyed most was the song of the hens who paid my way and allowed me to stay till every dollar of the debt was paid. Now another fellow comes along and adds

MICHIGAN POULTRY FARM

SINGLE COMB WHITE LEGHORNS. CUSTOM HATCHING

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 18, 1911.

HALL MAMMOTH INCUBATOR Co., Little Falls, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—Please enter our order for two more 15,000-egg incubators, same to be installed by February 15th.

The two 15,000-egg machines which you installed at our plant last season have given us excellent satisfaction.

Before purchasing our present machines, the writer made an extended trip through the East, visiting the largest poultry plants in the country. It was soon decided that the Hall was the best machine for us to buy, and our own experience with these incubators during the past hatching season has substantiated the opinion we formed after making the above investigation, that the Hall is the best Incubator on the market.

No incubator, or hen either, could hatch better chicks than those hatched by our Hall machines. We have shipped these chicks to all parts of the United States, east of the Rocky Mountains. The reports received from our customers go to prove that the chicks must have been strong and properly incubated to have stood their long journeys and to have given the excellent satisfaction which they have.

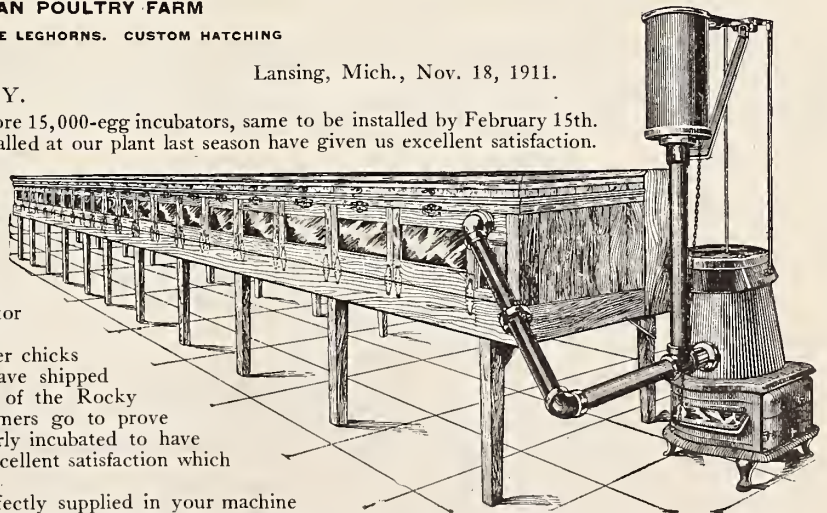

The moisture, heat and ventilation are so perfectly supplied in your machine that we sincerely believe that these incubators hatch every egg that could be hatched, even under a hen. For several years we have operated some of the best individual machines made (390 egg capacity), but they did not begin to hatch the large per cent. that the Hall has.

We have had a big demand for custom hatching also, and our customers are all well satisfied with the results obtained.

Wishing you continued success, we are

Yours very respectfully,

100 to the membership. Say, did I lose dignity or did I not raise the dignity of the church?

I will mention another instance. This time I was invited to serve two churches that had long been given up as hopeless cases, at least twelve preachers had quit the job. Well, again the hens sang the song of deliverance and in four years of awful struggle I spent $2,300 on one of the churches and moved it to a more desirable location, and to-day it is doing fine and gave me the best letter of reference I ever expect to get this side of heaven.

The dignity of a king is one thing and the dignity of a man who tries to preach the gospel in this trying age is another. My Master served the people. I want to. If I can show my people how to make $100 a year more out of their chickens I am theirs to do it, and will help the whole Christian cause. I am a traitor if I don't.

Too many preachers are worse than dead men; that is, they take up more room. To me, as a pastor, there must be nothing that a farmer has to contend with that dare be foreign to me. If I ever expect to be able to keep him near my heart, I must experience the things he does or I am as far away as the starry heavens. I have spent night after night asleep on the fair grounds trying to find out why the fellows whom the church has given up did not go to church. I find the preachers are so far away from the average farmers, they cannot understand what they say even if they do hear them preach.

There are several reasons why I am interested in poultry: First, I like it; second, it pays; third, I can help get comforts for my people; fourth, I can glorify God in the production of the best.

Which Was First, the Hen or the Egg?

It doesn't make any difference, you can commence at either, but commence right. Don't make a mistake in starting, for if you fall down when you start maybe the other fellow will win before you get picked up.

Let's start with the hen, for it is natural; if you start with the egg, where did you get the egg, will be asked by some fellow looking on and maybe you can't tell him, and you are stuck.

I want to know whose son I am before I want to know who I am. It makes a real difference you will find. My father always said if you have any respect for my feelings don't do this or that, so it is in the chicken business. Start with nothing but thoroughbred stock. This talk of buying a thoroughbred male and breeding up is a want of something new to say. You can not in forty years breed the dunghill out of a flock of fowls. I don't care where you get the male.

Now, in order to get eggs to hatch you ought to begin a year ahead. Last year I began my breeding for this season. I selected my pen. They were fed for eggs with high and strong fertility. This very day I tested out eight eggs out of 120 and all the eight were from one hen, every egg fertile from thirteen hens. This hen had laid three different times a double yolk egg, and not one of her eggs hatched. I selected 21 hens out of 128 hatched, and in 44 days they laid 881 eggs that were as highly fertile as I ever knew. I never put a hen in a yard because I am one short, but because she belongs in that yard and nowhere else. I set 25 eggs from one hen and all the eight pullets hatched were exhibited at the same show and not 1-4 point difference in score of all. Look well after

About Poultry Feeds and Feeding.

After I have selected the ones I want, then to the feed bin I go. I fill a hopper with mixed grain (whole grain); have a hopper full of dry ground grain, no wet mash at any time or for any purpose, the hen can wet her own mash as wet as she pleases, and it pleases you to see her do it. Grit and oyster shells are always on hand. Give her a grindstone and let her grind her own grain. Have a number of cigar boxes filled with oats each not quite half full, commencing, say, on Monday, wet number 1; Tuesday, wet number 1 and 2; Wednesday, wet all three, and so on until all are wet. When the first one is ready to feed you will have another box empty, and how they will enjoy the sprouted oats when other green food is out of reach. If you take a little piece of cloth or bagging cut the size of each box and keep on them all the while they will sprout sooner; the wet cloth has a tendency to keep the oats moist. One box is enough to feed 40 hens a day. Don't let it grow too long, it gets tough and you may have to open the crop to see what's up and all might be up at that. I often do open a crop and sew it up after filling with bread and milk with pepper on.

Feed cabbage! Yes, sir, I always have a head hung up so they can get at it. They don't want to be jumping for it, however, as it is unnatural to be jumping when egg heavy. Feed beets and turnips; take a board, drive ten-penny nails through it, tack up against the wall a foot from the floor and take a half turnip or beet, stick on the nail and they will work it all up into eggs.

I like to boil oats for a feed every other day during the winter; soak them over night in warm water, let simmer on stove till night, then feed about 4 o'clock. Dry oats are liable to injure the crop. Oats are full of protein and, of course, when soaked, are rich in water, and eggs are nearly all water. Eggs and strawberries are alike in that they are 9-10 water, but how different.

Sunflower seeds are cheap and make an excellent feed in the late summer and early fall; they hurry feathers back to place, they are good to help fatten the poor fowls.

The Baby Chicks.

Well, for my part, I cannot get enough hatched so buy from one to twenty-five hundred every year. They are shipped the day they are taken from the incubator; they cannot be shipped after they are fed as they will crowd. We get them off when dry enough to take from the machine. I had 1,100 come in one day, only three dead in coming 400 miles and on the road twelve hours.

I have brooders ready for their reception, bran on the floor and grit little chick size. Then I start them to drinking, as I take them out of the box, sticking each bill in a dish of water and putting the chicks under the hover. They will learn the rest themselves.

I plow up my yard and sow to oats, then drill in sunflower seeds in rolls four feet apart. This soon makes shade and a fine hiding place from hawks, also the best kind of feed in fall when the chickens are ready for winter. Chickens are fed nothing until they are 72 hours old. Little chicks, when they leave the shell, take all they have left of the yolk along with them so need nothing until this is gotten out of the crop. Four-fifths of the bowel trouble comes from too early feeding, the crops get irritated, and everything else goes wrong. You don't need to be from Missouri either. I don't think your chicks will ever have white diarrhoea if you are careful about feed for the first week. It is not disease, it is a result of some trouble; it is not a cause, it is an effect. Usually a sickly and deathly look follows. The only feed they get is little chick food, nothing but the real hard grain feed. This way hardens the crop and lessens the chances of death.

Beef scraps for the little fellows are necessary to give them the growth demanded of them. I separate the pullets from cockerels as soon as possible, both do better, no fighting and less other trouble. As soon as they are big enough, I change from the small to the large scratch food. Don't buy any old kind either. Some manufacturers put in a lot of cracked corn and leave out the other more necessary needs and say it is immense for the chicks. It is an immune fraud. Look at it, don't buy a bit until you look at it. I happened in a store when the agent was there. He did not know who I was but in conversation laughingly asked if any one had any kick about the chick feed. This storekeeper whispered, "Only the preacher and he has a hawk eye." Don't buy any stock foods. A large per cent. of the poor hatches can be laid at the door of too much of these mysterious egg producers.

Water is very necessary; don't let the chicks subsist by hunting for it. A man called me up on the phone one day, saying, "My hens are dying." Well, it was as I expected. All the water they got was in the barnyard, the foul stuff, and then he asked me, "What's up?" Well, I told him to take soda water, not from the druggist's fountain, but common baking soda and water, pour some down the chicks' throats, then hold their heads down till it runs out; do this again, then give them clean water.

Ever had gapes? No sir, I never did, don't want to bother with them, too much trouble to horse hair them out. I don't think any one ought to have them either. Plow up your fallow ground, give it a dressing of lime in the fall and get eggs from a fellow who doesn't have gapes in his flock. Here comes in the selection for strong vitality again; good, strong parents never have chicks with these troubles. If you do get them and can spare the time, take a horse-hair, make a loop and twist it around the worm, or buy a gape-work extractor for 25 cents. Don't be bothered with head lice, get at them before they arrive, make it so hot they won't stop off at all. Kerosene and lard without any trouble, will set them out of a place to live.

Remarkable Discovery That Cuts Down the Cost of Paint Seventy-Five Per Cent.

A Free Trial Package is Mailed to Everyone Who Writes

A. L. Rice, a prominent manufacturer of Adams, N.Y., has discovered a process of making a new kind of paint without the use of oil. He calls it Powderpaint. It comes in the form of a dry powder and all that is required is cold water to make a paint weather proof, fire proof and as durable as oil paint. It adheres to any surface, wood, stone or brick, spreads and looks like oil paint and costs about one-fourth as much.

Write to Mr. A. L. Rice, Manufacturer, 125 North Street, Adams, N.Y., and he will send you a free trial package, also color card and full information showing you how you can save a good many dollars. Write to-day.

How Much Money Do I Need to Start in the Poultry Business?

This question is quite frequently asked by people who are very much interested in starting up the poultry business. There are many ways to start, and it seems to me that if you wish at any time to make a success, it would be a very good idea for an inexperienced hand to start on a very small scale, as in my past experience I have found that it must be learned, and by starting on a small scale, you are not paying quite as much for your knowledge as if you were to undertake a good sized place where your expenses would make your income look very small. Yet I dare say all knowledge that is learned through your own experience is well learned and paid for.

To get the inside track of making a success in poultry raising is like any other business, and if our amateurs could take a position on a successful poultry farm for a few months they would, without a doubt, learn many very important things, for which otherwise the beginner may pay dear. Still so many do not like the idea of working on a poultry farm for the wages that are offered to an inexperienced hand. It is very true that the wages offered to such workmen are not very high, and the work is steady and quite hard; nevertheless it is the only place to gain the practical knowledge of poultry keeping. You will soon learn what should be done when you start for yourself.

There is another point which I wish to impress upon the minds of those who have not already learned. If you should be fortunate enough to get around and visit a few poultry farms, especially those who have not made a success, there you may see what you should not do, and such points may save the beginner enough to start a small place.

You may think it is a loss of time and money to work on a poultry plant for six months or a year. You may think the poultry business can be learned in a short time, but get out and see practical people work, then you may change your mind.

Now if you do not care to get out and work for others, you are safe to start on a small scale and still make your poultry. So I am going to look until I find the place that I feel sure is for poultry. Take some people, for instance. They never look as to where they locate, and how their houses are facing, especially those who go in without any experience.

My advice would be if your capital is limited, and you object to work on other plants, is to start with a few good thoroughbred fowls. And do not keep another kind whatever, as one good hen is worth two of any other kind. It costs no more to keep good stock than poor, and takes the same attention. Still the returns are larger on the thoroughbred than the common. And if you get a nice flock

W. Theo. Wittman, Allentown, Pa., President Pennsylvania Branch American Poultry Association and Superintendent Poultry Department, Allentown Fair. Mr. Wittman is leading the fight against soliciting editors judging and was re-elected by a big majority on his standpat position on this subject.

a success. A party called on the writer only a few days ago, saying he is looking for a farm to start raising poultry. He had something over one year's experience in poultry farm work. After looking around at different places that I hear are for sale, it seems quite hard for me to find just what I want. People who have little or no experience would take most any of those farms that were cheap, as the owner who was trying to make a sale, thought it was the finest place in the land to raise poultry. But we did not see our way clear after we learned that success sometimes depends on the location. I have learned in this short time that it is quite an important point as to where and how your land is for of good birds you will have something to be proud of as well as profitable. You will not need to put up a large poultry house to start with. If you start to raise your stock just build a few colony houses. Put your young stock in such places and scatter them about not close together. Let your young stock run all over the farm. I would say the more room they have the better. This would let the beginner get some idea of what was wanted for the next season. And his expense building the colony houses would be very small. And they would always come in handy, no matter how large a plant was wanted after he has learned what was and what was not needed.

COATESVILLE, PA., SHOW.

Featured by three large classes of Single-comb Rhode Island Reds, Buff Orpingtons and White Leghorns, the Coatesville Poultry and Pigeon Association opened its exhibition in the skating rink of that town, and the four judges began the task of awarding prizes and special premiums. The judges were A. P. Ingram, West Chester; F. G. Bean, Collegeville; W. J. Stokes and E. V. L. Turner, Philadelphia.

Nearly fifteen hundred chickens of the fancy feathered variety occupied pens in the big show, that excelled anything of its kind ever held in the state, with the exception of Philadelphia, and strutted for honors, and almost every fowl received some sort of recognition from the judges, who were ably assisted by George Gorsuch, of New Windsor, Md., and Norris G. Temple, of Pocopson.

ROSE AND S. C. BROWN LEGHORNS

The great winners at great shows. Space is too limited to enumerate our wins at Madison Square, Grand Central Palace, Allentown, Portland, etc., where we made the greatest wins ever recorded.

We have show birds for sale and breeding birds that will produce show birds. They are line bred, tried and true. We have choice cockerels, pullets and hens for sale at reasonable prices. Also 1st Madison Square cock for $25.

Send for literature.

400 AND 600-EGG

SURE HATCH INCUBATORS

The Sure Hatch Incubator Company is now building its famous machines in 400 and 600-egg sizes. This is done in response to a continued demand for larger machines. These new sizes have been thoroughly tested and rank right up with the other sizes of the Sure Hatch.

Their method of construction makes them far superior to any other make of equal capacity. Look at the picture of the 600-egg machine on this page and note the economy of floor space; how they are built in sections, one above the other; each is heated with its own lamp and can be run separately from the others; can set 200, 400 or 600 eggs at a time--as you may happen to be fixed for eggs; no waste of heating any more space than necessary to take the number of eggs you want to set. Any of the chambers can be set any time without interfering with either of the others. Can be easily taken apart and re-assembled in a few minutes.

Seven Sizes of Sure Hatch Incubators

Running from 50 to 600-egg, enables us to fit out a beginner, or a city lot dweller who may want only a few chicks, to the extensive breeder who hatches thousands of them. They are all built on plans laid down by the U. S. Government and described in Bulletin No. 236. Send for our catalogue and the Bulletin. Both sent free.

WHITE WYANDOTTES

We all know there is a difference between White Wyandottes. Here is my record—you be the judge: Allentown 1st cock, 4th hen, 4-5 cockerel, 1st pullet, 2nd pen. Special best bird and pullet in show at Williamsport—see awards, and also special best cockerel in show two years in succession. Stock and eggs, send for mating list.

C. C. FURMAN, - - - BLOOMSBURG, PA.

S. C. White Leghorns

The BEST because they win. It does pay to keep thoroughbred poultry; pays better in meat, eggs, money and satisfaction. I have shipped to nearly every state and as far away as Burma. Send for my 1912 mating list. It will save you money and get you quality.

FIRST PRIZE W-WYANDOTTE COCK AT PHILADELPHIA SHOW 1909.

A. J. FELL WEST POINT PA. Owner And Breeder.

A. J. FELL'S FAMOUS White Wyandottes

At the imperial show of America, MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Winter of 1911, win as follows: 1st and 3rd prize cock, 2nd and 4th prize hen, 3rd, 4th and 6th prize cockerel, 1st and 3rd prize pullet, 1st exhibition pen.

My exhibit was one of the greatest ever seen at Madison Square Garden, every bird having that snow white color, with grand Wyandotte type. My birds are noted for their short broad backs, wide spread tails, full round breasts, with fine head points and are second to none in the world. Five first prizes in two years showing at MADISON SQUARE GARDEN is White Wyandotte history.

A. J. FELL, Box 302, WEST POINT, PA.

BRIDGETON, N. J., SHOW.

The eighth annual show of the South Jersey Poultry and Pigeon Association, Inc., was held at the usual time (Thanksgiving week) and proved to be the largest and best show ever held.

The hall was handsomely decorated, well lighted, wide aisles and all Empire cooping.

The classes were well filled, Rhode Island Reds, White Rocks, White Wyandottes, Light Brahmas, Partridge Cochins, Partridge Wyandottes and Houdans leading.

The water fowl classes were the best and largest ever seen here.

The well-known secretary, Pauls Springer, and show committee are to be commended for their careful attention to all the little details that are making this show so well spoken of.

Many of the breeders in this locality are winners at Madison Square, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Allentown and Hagerstown, proving that South Jersey is doing much good work for the poultry industry in the east. A winning at Bridgeton is one worth trying for.

The full list of awards follows:

Onlya - Farms UNMATCHABLE QUALITY

Our great victories at Syracuse, N.Y., Memphis, Tenn., Hagerstown, Md., Williamsport, Pa., Grand Central Palace, N.Y. where we got the Lions share of the prizes should be the evidence of proof of our quality. Different strings of birds were shown at all the different shows we made. We bred and raised our winners and we can sell you stock that will do the same thing, and we sell eggs from same pens that we use ourselves. Write us your needs.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., SHOW REPORT.

By F. W. Corey.

This being my first trip to Williamsport, I want to say a few words in support of what I consider one of the best managed shows I have ever attended. My first impression as I came in the Show Hall was favorable and I am very glad to say I was justified in it. The show was much larger than I had any idea I would find there and the classes of Orpingtons, Wyandottes, Reds, Rocks and Leghorns would rival those in our largest shows, both in quality and numbers. The birds were nicely cooped in single rows and with wide aisles, leaving room for the splendid attendance which they had to see the exhibits.

White Orpingtons, White Wyandottes, White Leghorns and Barred Rocks were the banner classes with very hot competition all along the line, the first White Wyandotte cock being a very fine bird shown in splendid condition, first cockerel a very smooth feathered bird, well shown, and winning special for best cockerel in show. First pullet, a large, shapely bird, pure white, and winning special for best pullet in the show. First hen very near ideal in shape. Seconds and thirds very nearly equal to the winners all through the class. In White Orpingtons, first cock was awarded special for best bird in the show, and first pen was given special for best pen in the show. The class as a whole was remarkably good and shows that the White Orpingtons are coming fast. S. C. W. Leghorns were the strongest class I have ever handled outside of our very largest shows. First cock, first cockerel and first hen and pullet were all excellent in type and good color. Perhaps the cockerel at head of first pen was the best of the lot, as he had almost perfect head points and good type besides. There was a fine, large class of Buff Wyandottes, much larger and stronger in quality than is usually found, and all the firsts and seconds were awarded birds of exceptionally good quality. Barred Rocks had a very fine lot of birds, with the first hen and first cockerel the best of the lot. Nearly all varieties were represented by some entries of especial merit, and I have never seen a better balanced show.

May the present officers retain their positions and give the fanciers of Williamsport and vicinity as good a show in 1912.

ALLENTOWN, PA., SHOW.

The third annual exhibition of the Allentown Fanciers' Association was the most successful show yet held in the Staid Old City of Allentown. The management is certainly worthy of congratulations from every exhibitor for the courtesies received and the impartial manner with which each exhibit was managed. It was apparent from the beginning that there were no friends to serve or enemies to punish. That awards were to be placed on the birds, not on the exhibitor and the clean, manly way in which the Judge, Mr. Al. Brann went about his work was a source of great satisfaction to all concerned.

In a show of its size we have never seen better quality in general, while the Wyandotte, Leghorn, Orpington and Rock classes were a revelation of the fanciers' ability, around Allentown, to produce fancy stock of the higher and better class.

The Queen City Hatchery was well represented and its congenial manager was enthusiastic over the outlook for a more extensive business for the coming season. Adam Moll, forgot his famous African exhibit(?) after they lost their colour in the basement of his barber shop, and some of the boys are inclined to look askance when Adam exhibits enormous Ex-receipts.

The happiest man in the show room was Mr. Heine of the "Blink Bonnie Farms," and no wonder, for his 1st W. Leghorn hen was "All covered with ribbons." Edward Reichel wore the "Teddy" smile that won't come off. I don't blame him one bit for that 1st W. Wyandotte cock would draw a smile out of an iron wedge.

We need a few more men like Dundas in the Barred Rock alley.

Ask Gus. Brann what was the matter with that "tired boy" on the 3d floor. Don't be too personal about it though. Congratulations to Supt. Rick, with none the less of our good will for Assistant Supt. Futuroff. Look out, boys, for 1912. Allentown will have a hummer.

WHY NOT BREED BUFF ROCKS?

As show birds, Buff Rocks are unsurpassed. This class usually is one of the largest in the show room and arouses more popular interest than any other. Because Buff Rocks are here to stay regardless of to-day's fads or tomorrow's fancies.

Back of Buff Rock's advantages as show birds stands Buff Rock superiority as a general purpose fowl. They are splendid breeders and in laying qualities are unexcelled.

Ask us for Buff Rock facts and figures before you determine on what breed you will specialize.

BIRDS FOR SHOW PURPOSES

Birds for Breeding

Do you want a strain of Buff Rocks that has won thirteen out of twenty possible firsts at Madison Square Garden, New York, in the last four years; that has won the Gold Special for Best Display at the last four National Meetings of the American Buff Rock Club, and that at Kansas City, Indianapolis, Allentown, Philadelphia, Chicago, and at every important show has carried everything before it?

We have on hand this season 1500 such superb exhibition and breeding cocks, cockerels, hens and pullets. Just the bird you want is here, if you will write and state definitely your needs, you will find we have what you need to win, or for your breeding pens.

"Poley's World's Best Buff Rocks" have the best blood back of them. They have been line bred for eighteen years—any one who starts with "Poley's World's Best Buff Rocks" gets the benefit of the experience of the best known breeder of Buff Rocks.

The Newtown

Giant Incubator or Brooder Shipped to You Knocked Down

Assemble it yourself. You do not even need be "handy with tools" to do it. Anybody can take the photographs and plain directions furnished and set up a Newtown Giant, because everything is perfectly finished, fitted and numbered in our factory. The three photographs shown are greatly reduced in size. The complete series leads you along step by step in the setting up process. You cannot go wrong. Only the simplest tools are needed.

The Saving and Advantages

You save on the cost of the machine, save freight, save boarding and R. R. fare of men sent from the factory to put your machine up. Knocked down incubators go at lowest freight rate. Completed machines take highest rate. No difficulty in getting machines into your incubator cellar or building. They go in piece by piece. A easy matter to take apart and change from one cellar or building to another.

Scientific Hatching and Brooding

Newtown Giants are noted for their strong, vigorous, healthy chicks. Weigh more than others by scale tests. Scientific heating, ventilating and moisture features cause chicks to be hatched in a natural way. Brooders cut down losses and promote quick growth. Heat and air enter each hover under a perfect control such as no other incubator has.

Our New Catalog

Just off the press. Everyone who is looking forward to better things in poultry should send for it. It is the largest, most profusely illustrated and most complete book published on scientific incubating and brooding. Read and see the advantages of the large, permanent incubating and brooding plant over small, lamp-heated systems. A copy mailed free on request. Ask for Giant Catalog FI.

AURORA, ILL.

The Tenth Annual Show of the Fox River Fanciers' Association will be held Jan. 23-27, 1912, in the rmory at Aurora, Ill.

Mr. Frank Heck, of Chicago, will place the awards. The association will furnish a uniform system of cooping throughout the show.

The premium list giving full particulars regarding the grand list of cash and special prizes offered will be ready for mailing about Jan. 1. Do not fail to send for a copy today. A. E. FRENIER, Secretary.

CELEBRATED MR. ROOT PRAISES BUCKEYE INCUBATOR.

Mr. A. I. Root, of Medina, O., scarcely needs any introduction to our readers. His reputation as a bee culturist and poultry raiser is country-wide, and anything he says on either subject carries great weight.

Some time ago Mr. Root needed another incubator to take care of his growing poultry business, and he was attracted by an advertisement of the Buckeye Incubator Co., of 542 Euclid Ave., Springfield, O., which stated that "the Buckeye is guaranteed to hatch every hatchable egg."

Mr. Root doubted that statement—wrote the firm that he did not think any incubator in the world could do so—but the Buckeye people came right back and told Mr. Root that they would stand behind their guarantee to the letter.

Naturally Mr. Root put the Buckeye to the test, and we must congratulate the manufacturers on their success for Mr. Root has just sent them this remarkable letter:

"I am happy to tell you that my Buckeye Incubator did hatch every fertile egg but one, and that one was hardly hatchable. The chicks were all remarkably large and strong and every one is alive and growing finely."

"Haking Money the Buckeye Way" is the name of a remarkable folder issued by the manufacturers of the incubator bearing that name. It is crisp, instructive and cites no less than four different instances where Buckeye incubators hatched more chickens than the number of eggs incubated. The folder gives the whole story of Mr. Root's experience, which is truly convincing, and any of our readers interested in the poultry business would do well to write the Buckeye folks for a copy of the folder which we understand is free.

DON'T BE CARELESS JUST BECAUSE THE WEATHER IS WARM.

Unseasonable weather makes people careless both of themselves and, in the case of poultry owners, of their flocks. Yet it is the very time when care should be used. Warm weather, such as was experienced generally over the country up to the middle of December, ought to be seized upon by poultrymen to get their hens in prime condition for laying. If they would do so, it would insure a big daily crop of eggs when cold weather sets in.

The first principle that poultry owners ought to fix in their minds is that winter eggs are most profitable; next, that hens can be made to lay in winter and lay as many eggs as they do in summer.

Proper feeding and housing will do it. Most poultry is comfortably housed, so the really important task is feeding for egg production. Meat scraps from the table are excellent, but the supply from the average family is not large enough for an ordinary sized yard. Bone, just as you get it from the butcher's, is the one great egg-making food. It does not need cooking or any other preparation except to cut it in a Humphrey always open Hopper Bone Cutter. We mention this bone cutter particularly because it cuts so fast and so easily, and it is inexpensive. If you have 10 hens or more, you should have a Humphrey bone cutter just as certainly as you have nests. Have you read Humphrey's poultry book, "Making the Olden Egg?" It tells how to make hens lay, and how to change expensive into profitable poultry keeping. A copy will be sent you free if you mention that you are a reader of this paper. It is a book—not merely a catalogue—you ought to have handy to refer to. Address your request to Humphrey, East St. Factory, Joliet, Ill.

A MEDICAL POULTRY BOOK FREE TO YOU.

Every person interested in poultry, as a breeder or in a commercial way, will find "Zenoleum Chicken Chat" a useful and reliable adviser. It gives full directions for the treatment of all diseases that affect poultry, and the prevention of contagious and infectious diseases in the poultry yard. It tells the most effective treatments to rid the flock of parasites, such as lice, mites and various germs, that cause roup, pip, tapeworm, canker, typhoid, blackhead, etc., that if allowed to spread in the flock will surely cut off all chances of profit, and disgust the owner with the business.

"Chicken Chat" is the production of the most competent authorities on diseases of fowl, and is printed and sent out free by the manufacturers of Zenoleum Disinfectant, Germicide and Lice Killer, which has the endorsements of FORTY-FIVE out of forty-eight State Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations.

"Chicken Chat" teaches the doctrines of cleanliness, disinfection and the prevention of disease, as the surest and safest method of making the industry profitable.

To the commercial poultry raiser, who must depend upon the incubator to hatch out his chicks, the report of the Ontario government poultry expert, obtained in a series of tests at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, will be found of especial value. This test shows that the free use of Zenoleum in the incubator not only causes a large percentage of live chicks when hatched from the eggs in the incubator, but a greater percentage were alive at the end of four weeks than without the use of Zenoleum, or by hens under ordinary conditions. In other words, the chicks hatched out in the incubator treated with Zenoleum, had greater vitality, and consequently were better able to stand the various ills, that cause the death of one-half the hatch of incubators operated in the industry, and the Canadian Government issued a bulletin on the subject, which will make the business more profitable and certain than ever before.

"Chicken Chat" is free to every reader of this paper. A cent spent for a postal card will return you a profit of many dollars. Address, Zenner Disinfectant Company, 242 Lafayette Avenue, Detroit, Michigan, before you forget it.

The Poultry and Incubator News will be consolidated with The Poultry Yard, of Phoenixville, Pa., and will be published at Phoenixville in the future.

PARTRIDGE COCHINS

MITCHELL STRAIN

My hobby, "Highest Grade Birds only." Among my winnings this year in Partridge Cochins, not counting a clean sweep at minor shows, are Allentown. 2-3-4 cock, 2-3-4 hen. Trenton 1-2 cock, 1-2-3 hen. Male takes special for best Cochin shown. Hagerstown 2-4 cock, 1-2-3 hen. 1st hen takes special for best bird in Asiatic class and special for best female Cochin shown. Note, that the above awards in these three shows were taken by right different females. Last season at Philadelphia took 1-2 cock, 2-4 hen, and 1st on pullet; at Baltimore 1-2 cock, 1-2-3 hen, 1 pullet. Philadelphia 1-2-3 cock, 2-3-4 hen, 3 ekl, 1 hen, 1-2 pen. My only exhibit in light Brahmans so far as Trenton, where five single entries took four blues. No stock in Partridge Cochins for sale until after the big shows. In Light Brahmans I have some fine yearling cocks and hens to spare.

Greatest Nerve Vitalizer Known

SENT FREE

A Recent Discovery. The Most Effective Nerve Strengthening Ever Found by Science. Trial Package Sent Free to Any Man or Woman to Prove Its Remarkable Results.

This is the world's newest, safest, most reliable, and effective nerve invigorator, revitalizer, brain awakener, body strengthener, without equal in the world's history of medicine. It brings about a change from that awful, dull, weak, lazy, don't-give-a-hang feeling to brightness, strength, clear-headedness and courage which is remarkable. Its results are better than you would obtain from a two-weeks' vacation on a farm.

Kellogg's Santitone Wafers Make You Feel Fine All the Time.

This change comes rapidly. The results are lasting. It is absolutely safe, containing no injurious ingredients whatever. Absolutely different from anything that has ever before been used for nerves.

A high medical authority says: "In the forms of neurasthenia it deserves the unique position of being the only treatment which is curative, dispensing with all treatments of rest, travel, diversion of mind, dietetics and physio-mechanics."

Every man and woman suffering with fagged, weak nerves, nervous prostration, excessive nervousness, brain fag, insomnia, neuralgia, low vitality, general weariness, loss of strength and weight, or any condition which arises from poor, weak nerves, may now get "nerves of steel," clear head, courage, power, quick wit, energy, by taking this great discovery. Kellogg's Santitone Wafers.

FREE.

Prove the results of this great discovery for nerves, FREE. It speaks for itself. A 50c trial package of this great nerve awakener will be sent free in sealed wrapper by return mail, to every man or woman who sends his or her name and address, as instructed below. Do it today. A revelation is in store for you.

FOR MEN.—Nerve force gone! You are what your nerves are, nothing else. If you feel all run-down from overwork or other causes, if you suffer from insomnia, "caved-in" feeling, brain fag, extreme nervousness, peevishness, gloominess, worry, cloudy brain, loss of ambition, energy and vitality, loss of weight and digestion, constipation, headaches, neuralgia, or the debilitating effects of tobacco or drink, send for the free trial package of Kellogg's Santitone Wafers.

FOR WOMEN.—If you suffer from nervous breakdown, extreme nervousness, "blue" spells, desire to cry, worry, neuralgia, back pains, loss of weight or appetite, sleeplessness, headaches, and constipation, and are all out of sorts, Kellogg's Santitone Wafers will make you feel there is more to life than you ever realized before. Send today for the free trial package.

No more need of dieting, diversion, travel, tiresome exercises, dangerous drugs, electricity, massage, or anything else—Kellogg's Santitone Wafers do the work for each and all give you nerve-force and make you love to live.

A 50c trial package of this great discovery will prove that they do the work. They are guaranteed—every wafer. Send your name and address today for the free 50c trial package of Kellogg's Santitone Wafers, to F. J. ## POULTRY RAISERS WELCOME BIG DISCOVERY—A NEW REMEDY TO THE RESCUE—OCULUM.

One of the severest handicaps with which poultry raisers have had to deal has been the prevalence of Roup, White Diarrhoea and Gapes among fowls.

A rather remarkable chain of letters has come to our recent attention that would appear to solve the problem. We publish some of these letters in the belief that the information may be of value to some of our subscribers.

The first communication originated with the Mentzner Duck Farm, known to many as the Pen Mark Duck Farm. This duck farm, located in Waynesboro, lost from $10,000 to $15,000 worth of ducks inside

"The Hancock Inoculum Co., Salem, Va., Gentlemen: We visited D. B. Mentzner's duck farm this morning with your Mr. Miller and the results of his work yesterday were astonishing. To convince ourselves we went to his manager and asked him about a duck that Mr. Miller claimed he found flat on his back and the manager thought dead. Today we found the duck up and walking around. We also looked over the balance he had inoculated and from what the manager tells us there is every indication from present appearances that Oculum will wipe out all trouble. Maurice Harbaugh, Fred Bartholow."

The claims set forth in this letter were later established by a communication from Rev. D. B. Montzer to Mr. C. E. Miller of the Hancock Inoculum Co., Sa-of thirty days. The letter was addressed to the Baltimore Sun and read as follows:

"Will you kindly inform me what to do for my poultry? I have lost more than half of them. They are first affected with leg weakness, later with bowel disorders accompanied with bad odors, and die in less than 24 hours. Please let me know what to do for them."

To which the Sun replied, as follows:

"From the description given, your fowls evidently developed a severe case of roup or cholera. Either of these diseases, if not checked, will prove very serious. While there are several home remedies that we might suggest, yet we believe that your needs will best be served by Oculum. This is a most wonderful medicine and highly recommended."

As a result of this endorsement of Oculum by the Sun, it was decided to try this remedy, and Mr. Miller, together with Maurice Harbaugh, local distributor for the Oculum people, inoculated the Mentzner ducks with Oculum. The results were unusual, as shown by this letter afterward written the manufacturers by the representatives. The letter ran as follows:

lem, Va. Here is a reproduction of the letter:

"Mr. C. E. Miller, of the Hancock Inoculum Co., Salem, Va., went to my duck farm yesterday and took ducks that my foreman said he was ready to destroy, and inoculated them. In fact one duck was lying flat on his back and Mr. Miller said he could bring him back. He inoculated him and I am pleased to say that I walked into the coop where he had put him and the duck is well. I have had Oculum so thoroughly demonstrated to me that I recommend it to all the duck raisers, and I firmly believe that all raisers of ducks, chickens, turkeys, pigeons, hogs, goats, sheep, calves and colts would do well to investigate Oculum as the theory is right. Rev. D. B. Mentzer.

"P. S.—Telephone me and I will tell you all about Oculum."

Do You Know How Anxious I am to Please You?

Do you know how well fixed I am to do so?

I have hundreds upon hundreds of the choicest specimens I ever had to fill your orders. This has been a great year to produce good ones, bring out all that is in them. They are in the best of condition.

Buy early, get your pick, avoid wintering cost.

There are three reasons why you should let me talk it over with you.

1. My policy of doing all I possibly can to please you.
2. My birds are not "back-lotters", weak and no good. They are strictly farm raised, on Separate Farms.
3. My policy of a fair margin, relying upon many sales for my profits.

In conclusion, let me ask of you, if you were to come upon a likely looking chicken, say in some woods, would you place an exorbitant value upon it? Then let's not let repetition of catch words, "poo-bah", etc., dazzle us. Keep our feet on the earth. I offer—

LARGE SIZES OF SURE HATCH INCUBATORS.

Every reader of this paper is familiar with the celebrated Sure Hatch incubator which is as well, or better, known than any other in America. The manufacturers of this machine have just put upon the market two new and larger sizes than they have heretofore built. The new machines are 400 and 600 egg capacity. These larger sizes are made in response to a big demand for larger machines than their 200 egg size.

More than a year ago the company got up these new machines, but did not offer them for sale until they had been actually tried out. They were tested last winter and found to be entirely satisfactory. Quite a number were sold late in the spring and the best of reports have come in from them.

The flattering reception given these new sizes has led the Sure Hatch company to put them on the market this season.

Their style of construction makes them easy to operate, and they have so many advantages over others of like capacity that there can be no doubt they will have a large sale, especially when they are backed by the high reputation of the Sure Hatch machines. The company is now making "seven sizes of Sure Hatchers," which gives a wide range for purchasers to select from. The sizes are 50, 75, 100, 150, 200, 400 and 600 eggs. Customers can select machines to engage in the business to any extent they may desire.

The Sure Hatch people claim their catalog for 1912 is the finest and best they ever issued. It fully describes all the machines made by the company and contains a great deal of valuable information on the poultry business. Don't fail to send for this book which is sent free to every one asking for it. Write to the Sure Hatch Incubator Co., Fremont, Neb., Box 147.

Double Profits

Progressive poultrymen know that ordinary poultry brings 10c. to 15c. on the market, while Capons readily sell for 20c. to 30c. a pound, and often higher. Capons are easy to raise and bring double price—double profits.

PILLING CAPON TOOLS are "easy to use." A "Pilling" Capon Set with complete guide and instructions sent postpaid for $2.50. Booklet, "Guide for Caponizing" free.

$16 a WEEK for FIVE MINUTES WORK a DAY

Mr. M. E. Vodra of Gasport, N. Y., bought an "Essex-Model" Incubator; hatched 395 chicks from 407 eggs; sold the chicks for 12 cents each, making $47.40. If he had got 60 cents more it would have been $16.00 a week for three weeks' hatching. It took him five minutes a day to trim the lamp and turn the eggs. You can do this with an "Essex-Model." Our Big Free Catalogue of

A LETTER FROM CHAMBERSBURG, PA.

We take great pleasure in announcing to you that the Franklin County Poultry Association is now making arrangements for its Second Annual Exhibition to be held during the latter part of January, 1912.

Our object in writing you is to point out the splendid opportunity of securing advertising space in our catalogue.

We are situated in the very heart of the fertile fields of the Cumberland Valley and we are in the midst of a rapidly growing poultry sentiment.

Our advertising rates are as follows: $5 for a full page, 6x9 inches. $3 for a half page, 4½x6. $2 for one-third page, 3½x6. $1 for one-fourth page, 1½x6. The catalogue will contain 60 pages and will be handsomely gotten up.

Our show last year was a great success, having over 1,200 birds on exhibition, and we fully expect 1,800 to 2,000 birds this year.

We have secured a large new building for our show and everything points towards a rousing big time.

We will accept in exchange for space in our catalogue anything in your line you may wish to offer as a special premium, giving due notice of the donor, provided same equals in value the space desired.

We believe you will do well to get your goods known in this locality and we feel sure you won't hesitate to accept this liberal offer.

We kindly ask that if you are favorably impressed that you so advise us promptly, so that we may not be held back in having the catalogue printed.

Thanking you for your attention to the above, we remain,

Yours very truly,
Franklin County Poultry Assn.

PENNSYLVANIA BRANCH A. P. A. STATE MEETING.

The annual State Meeting of the Pennsylvania Branch, American Poultry Association, will be held Thursday, Jan. 18, in connection with the Scranton Poultry Show. Sessions begin at 2 p. m. and at 8 p. m.

All individual and all poultry show association members of the American Poultry Association within the state are entitled to a seat on the floor of the convention.

This promises to be the best attended and the most interesting meeting the branch has yet held and no members should miss attending it.

Members should come wearing their A. P. A. buttons. Those not having any can get same on arrival from the secretary.

NEW POULTRY ASSOCIATION FORMED.

The Lycoming Poultry, Pigeon and P. Stock Association was formed by electing the following officers:

President, B. J. Kahler; Vice-Presidents, George H. Miller and S. B. Gaunt; Secretary, B. Monroe Posten; Treasurer, Dr. H. T. Smith. It was decided to hold a show this winter some time in January and committees were appointed to arrange for the same. The show will be held at Hughesville, Pa.

COVERT'S BARRED ROCKS

They win in the East as well as the West. At Philadelphia, 1911, in competition with the great breeders of the country, they proved that there are none better---they are National Champions without a peer.

Our winnings at Philadelphia, 1-2 cockerel, bred female; 1-3 pullet bred male; 3 pullet mated pen; 2 cockerel mated pen; 4 Ex. pen; 3 pullet, 4 cockerel. Gold special, best pullet bred male. Gold special, best cockerel bred female. Gold special best display from a Western State. Gold special, best display coming longest distance. 11 special club ribbons. You be the judge if this record has ever been equalled or approached. I am now offering young stock, brothers and sisters of these winners that can win in any competition and breeders that will produce blue ribbon winners for 1912 shows. And my 1912 matings for the egg trade will produce some of the best Barred Rocks ever grown. Send for mating list after February 1st.

CONCORD, MASS.

BETHLEHEM, PA., SHOW.

Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 2.—A distinct success was the fourth annual show of the Northampton County Poultry Fanciers' Association, which came to a close to-night. There were over one thousand birds on exhibition and the competition for the more than two dozen challenge cups and nearly 200 other specials was very keen.

Considerable interest centered in The Inquirer medals offered for the championship birds. A silver cup for best White Rock pullet was captured by A. G. Connolly, of Nazareth.

The Philadelphia Inquirer Championship medals were won by R. M. Heine, of Bath, for the best cock, a White Leghorn; A. L. Russell, of Washington, N. J., for the best hen, a White Rock; C. A. Butz, of Allentown, for the best cockerel, a S. C. Black Minorca; A. G. Connolly, of Nazareth, for the best pullet, a White Rock; A. L. Russell, of Washington, N. J., for the best pen, White Rocks.

The medals were won as follows: W. K. Shimer, of Nazareth, for the best bird in the Asiatic class, a Black Langshan cock; A. G. Connolly, of Nazareth, for the best bird in the American class, a White Rock pullet; Hamm Bros., of East Bangor, for the best bird in the English class, a S. C. Black Orpington cockerel;

POULTRY COMPOUND

(Running for a Nest)

DENNIS Poultry Compound, a remarkably powerful but inexpensive egg food, is undoubtedly one of the greatest things of the age for making hens lay, and we believe it may safely be said to mark an epoch in poultry methods, fully equal indeed to that made by the invention and perfection of the incubator. Consisting largely of vermoline, the newly-discovered egg-producing material, chickens simply DEVOUR this compound, and an increase of 100 per cent. in egg-production is a common result wherever it is taken up.

If Your Hens Don't Lay 200 Eggs Each

Write Humphrey for his famous book, "Making the Golden Egg." It will guide you through hennedom from January to December—how to make your hens lay more eggs in winter—how to make them moult earlier and feather quicker—how to raise big, hardy chicks—in short, it will give you all the secrets and wrinkles on poultry profits. "Making the Golden Egg" has 48 pages, is illustrated in colors and every page bristles with money pointers for expert and amateur alike. The is also fully described in the book, with letters from hundreds of poultrymen and farmers all over the country telling the big profits this machine has made for them. The Humphrey Bone Cutter cuts bone at the correct grain angle which enables the hen to extract the maximum amount of nutrition from the bone without taxing the digestive organs. The Humphrey cuts quicker, better, turns easier and is strongly built to stand hard work. Priced many dollars below other bone cutters—has no equal for work and durability.

But be sure you get the book anyhow—"Making the Golden Egg" is a 48-page gold mine for folks who want to make money in the poultry business. It's free—write to-day.

White Wyandottes

No variety can be more popular for their compact, well rounded, broad deep bodies and breast, YELLOW SKIN, and meat of the finest texture that makes the ideal table fowl. Their quick maturing qualities again commend them for egg production. THEY HAVE NO EQUAL. The White Wyandottes will be found to be excellent winter layers, laying the bulk of their eggs in the cold winter months when the single comb varieties are taking their vacation. They lay when the Market is the highest, therefore the White Wyandottes.

Lay More Dollars' Worth of Eggs Than Any Other Breed.

Another advantage of the White Wyandottes over other breeds is the close-fitting comb. A frosted comb means to check egg production at once with all single comb varieties. With our White Wyandottes this never occurs, even in the coldest weather, in the extreme north. All in all, we have in the White Wyandottes more good utilitarian qualities than are found in any other breed. They will satisfy and please you, and as a source of income will give you a larger per cent. on the investment than any other variety you may invest in. As to exhibition qualities our White Wyandottes have upheld our claim of

Grand Central Palace Show

It Is Now History But an Event That Will be Long Remembered

By F. W. DeLancey

The Grand Central Palace show held in the New Grand Central Palace building, December 5-9, 1911, is now history, and gives evidence what an organization can do when the three essentials, Organization, Co-operation would develop into one of ered. Little did the poultry fancy think that the Empire Poultry association would develop into one of the best organized associations in the land just four years ago they conducted their first show at Richmond Hill, a small town on Long Island. They had ambitions, and they were determined men, and from that little show grew that magnificent exhibition that took the immense Grand Central Palace building to hold it.

It was a great show. Great in every way that the word can be applied to a poultry show. Every officer and member deserves credit.

The officers are:

Address of Robt. Seaman at Grand Central Banquet.

Brother Fanciers, I am glad of the opportunity to welcome you all among us and we are glad to have you inspect the Palace Show, criticize it, tell us where we can improve.

It is a Fanciers' show, run by Fanciers, for Fanciers, and every exhibitor should feel "this is my show," and all work together for a common end.

Golden Laced Wyandottes

Their record at Madison Square, the greatest show in all America has never been equalled or approached. This means they have no superiors in quality. As to beauty they are conceded to be the most handsome of thoro-bred fowls. As to egg producers they lay under such conditions that other varieties would not.

As to meat, they stand alone without a peer. The Ideal Fowl for the suburban estate, the backyard, poultryman and the Fancier. Hundreds of grand birds for sale -- EGGS at reasonable prices

WHITING'S ROUPENE

Saves Poultrymen Annually $100.00 Because It

ACTUALLY DOES CURE ROUP

Even worst cases, even DIPHTHERITIC ROUP and CANKER. We don't care how bad the case so long as the bird is not in the last gasp of death. WHITINGS ROUPENE WILL CURE IT, and positively leave no bad after effects. All we want is that you try it. Pick out a severe case, one on which you have tried other so-called remedies, and

WE GUARANTEE TO CURE OR REFUND MONEY

Whiting's Roupene is a genuine disease germ destroyer. That is the reason it takes right hold and cures without fuss or delay. That is the reason it positively prevents and cures WHITE DIARRHOEA in BABY CHICKS. It's worth its weight in gold for this purpose alone. COLDS ARE EASY FOR ROUPENE. Neglected they run into Roup. Roupene is easy to use, even the worst case is not penned off from flock. PREVENTS CONTAGION. Don't be persuaded to try anything else when Whiting's Roupene is the only remedy that has even claimed to cure DIPHTHERITIC ROUP. Agents wanted. 50 cents a large bottle. Ask dealers or order direct. Printed matter free.

GEO. L. YOUNG.

stead Scudder (who was one of our foremost Fanciers) I called a meeting of Poultry Fanciers on L. I. to meet at Mineola, N. Y., on March 14, 1906, when we organized this association.

We held our first exhibition at Richmond Hill, Nov. 19-22, 1907, with 784 entries. That proving a success, we held our second exhibition at the same place, Nov. 17-21, 1908, with 912 entries. Our third exhibition was held at the same place Nov. 23-27, 1909, with 1,156 entries. This entry overcrowded the hall, we had to look elsewhere to hold our fourth exhibition, and were advised to try New York City, as it would be large enough for two shows in a season, so we arranged and held our fourth exhibition at the old Grand Central Palace, Nov. 18-24, 1910, with 2,110 entries, this proving a great success, and as you know our fifth exhibition is now on at the new Grand Central Palace with over 3,900 entries, the finest exhibition hall ever opened to Poultry Fanciers.

Our efforts are not wholly along the line of exhibitions. We have promoted a number of institute meetings. One of our most successful series of meetings was made possible by the use of the automobile. In three days, nine lectures were given in eight different towns on Long Island, covering a distance of 220 miles.

The last morning on this trip we made a run of 40 miles before breakfast and Judge Card, who accompanied us, said he had often made a run of one or two miles before breakfast, but he had never made a run of 40 miles before breakfast. This he said was due to the bracing air of Long Island.

I welcome you all as fellow workers.

I hope that your being with us will be an inspiration to you to improve your stock along all lines.

We have with us this evening Mr. Reese V. Hicks, President of American Poultry Association, who I will introduce to you as Toastmaster for the evening.

HATCH YOUR CHICKENS

With a new 1012 Cycle or Brooder Hatcher. Our new discovery makes poultry keeping easy and profits sure. Our machines were used in the original Philo System Plant where over $1500 from 60 hens in ten months has been cleared from the sale of eggs, baby chicks and fowls. One of the largest plants in America saved over $700 by using our system of brooding. We sell the best brooder ever made for $2.50.

One party hatched and raised $500 worth of poultry last year with four Metal Mothers, and hundreds of others are delighted with our machines and our new way of raising poultry. Our combination machine hatches and broods perfectly at the same time with only one lamp and one-fifth the oil used in other machines. Once filling the lamp completes the hatch. It runs as steadily as a clock in any room, from cellar to garret, and our Long-Burning Safety Lamp runs on for weeks without attention. It is the only machine that airs the eggs in the natural way and applies the heat to chickens like the mother hen.

Poultry-Protecting Wonder of the 20th Century

Health Now for Fowls. Deadly White Diarrhea, Cholera, Gapes, Roup and Sore Head Positively and Permanently Cured and Prevented by this Wonderful, New, Effective Remedy

Never in the history of poultry raising has there been a remedy discovered to which fowls respond so quickly as to the scientific treatment of inoculation. Never before have you had equal opportunity to insure your poultry against sickness—your profits against depletion.

Two or three drops of Oculum injected in rectum of fowl prevents and cures Cholera, Roup and White Diarrhea. Absorbed by bowels, passes into blood, inoculates and safeguards the fowl against these deadly profit-draining diseases. Nothing else like it.

The world's greatest preventive; also the world's greatest curative. The only sure cure known for these diseases. Oculum cures the most aggravated cases; cures them permanently. We guarantee it. We have hundreds of letters like this one from a great poultry-raiser, to prove it. For puny fowls, Oculum is the best general tonic known. Renews vitality, builds weight, beautifies plumage. It increases egg yield, keeps down lice, and it stands between you and 90% of the causes that make poultry raising a drudgery and profits uncertain. Treatment simple—given in 30 seconds. Results stupendous. Cost, a trifle compared to lessened work and heaped-up profits.

Hancock Inoculum Co.

I inoculated all my game chickens and since haven't had chicken pens with cold. I was in a Prairie State incubator 73 McCoy Jungle game eggs. I hatched 64 chicks, inoculated them when they were old (one inoculation was all I put them) and the 64 are alive this winter. When small, chicks never had heat. I put them in an indoor brooder for two weeks. Then transferred them to outdoor brooder. Heretofore I've only been able to bring through from a hatch from 6 per cent to 30 per cent—I made a 100 per cent with OCULUM, something I never thought possible. Used the remedy for 3 months and have had success with all birds under my supervision. What I have stated are facts. Respectfully yours,

Philadelphia's Big Show, Comment and Awards

While it is conceded that the entries this year were not as large as last the quality was of the top notch kind. Quality to burn in almost every class. B. P. Rocks were of the same high class as has always characterized this great show. The wonderful quality of the Chestnut Hill Poultry Farm demonstrates the fact that their birds stand well up in the front ranks of the B. P. Rock world. We were delighted with the splendid quality and large display of Light Brahmas at this show. This grand old breed is coming back to her own heritage and we believe its popularity in the near future will eclipse even its past glory. Our old friend, J. V. Nevins was on deck with his old time smile that won't come off. His splendid optimistic spirit is certainly contagious among the boys and his congenial and attractive personality is a rare benediction to all who know him. The display of C. M. Ferry was most attractive. His Langshans were a real revelation to the lovers of this grand breed. Watch them claim their old time popularity boys, they are coming to the front again without a doubt, and we know of no man better qualified than Mr. Ferry to boost this once popular breed back into their old time glory. Every success, Mr. Ferry. The B. P. Rock alley would not be complete in its display without our old time friend, D. M. Covert's classy string of birds, and he sure was there and his birds kept the boys guessing hard until the awards were placed. His 3d cockerel was certainly a jewel, worthy of a place in any show room. You will hear from this bird again boys, mark this prophecy, please.

We wish Friend Covert every success with his favorite breed. Did I see any White Orpingtons? Well I should say yes, with every letter a capital, and all underscored. I hear Friend Brady of Parker's Landing, smiling yet! That 1st hen of his was a jewel of the 1st water and don't you imagine for one moment, Brady doesn't know it. I rather coveted her for my own yards, but, then, you know pounds and shillings "don't cut much ice" when hung around the cage in which this "Lady of Quality" displayed her charms to the many admirers who continually blocked the alley at her "trysting place." Here is success, Friend Brady, and lots of it. Yes, sir Oscar Poley was at the helm with a fine string of Partridge P. Rock, winning all firsts in the single class together with 1-2 pens. Mr. Poley's winnings were well deserved and we wish this congenial gentleman the success he merits with his chosen breed.

Joseph Elias was there sure. His Partridge Cochins and Light Brahmas deserve special mention. Come on boys with these grand old breeds, they are worthy of a place higher up.

Norris G. Temple's fine display of Dark Brahmas made one think of "Ye Olden Times." Drive the wedge hard, Friend Temple.

Our friend, H. B. Cooper, had a splendid display of his famous colony houses and fixtures. We were glad to hear of his large sales.

Well, Frank, no wonder you smiled the victor's smile. That winning you made on Columbian Rocks would display the worries of an iron wedge. It's all right, Friend Bean, keep the fire burning.

Minch Bros. were among the winners in the B. P. Rock alley. They also showed a number of high quality Light Brahmas, birds hard to defeat in almost any show. We were glad to meet them in old-Philadelphia show, and wish them great success.

Eastern Ideal Farms (F. C. Michaelson, proprietor), had a fine display of B. P. Rocks and landed among the winners. These birds show fine even barring and grand type. Look out for the future of this farm, boys, they are surely climbing to the top.

Chas. W. Switzer

chord in the White Rock alley, winning 1st pullet in one of the hottest classes ever shown in Philadelphia. No wonder J. D. smiled while displaying his graces to those who admired his pet.

The Rancocas people had a fine display in one of the most conspicuous locations in the show room; they won third cockerel and first hen in the White Rock alley; second pullet; second, third and fourth hen; third, fourth and fifth cockerel in S. C. White Leghorn class. Congratulations.

Chas. J. Kremmer made a fine display of Buff Plymouth Rock. So also did Howard Brown and both exhibitors landed in the money. The display and winnings of The Penn Poultry Yards are worthy of special mention. Their birds were excellent in color and good in shape. We predict a bright future for the Silver Penciled Rocks.

The Newtown Producing Co. made a large and attractive display of their Giant Inc and White Leghorns. They were among the large winners in White Leghorn competition.

The Hall Incubator Co.'s big display of their famous Mammoth Incubators was very attractive. We understand they did a splendid business. We hear many of their old patrons speaking highly of the merits of the Hall machines. Mr. Moss, their representative of Western Pennsylvania, had charge of the exhibit.

E. E. Brubaker carried away the most coveted prize (1st cockerel) in the S. C. W. Leghorn class. This cockerel was conceded, by Leghorn specialists, to be the ideal bird of his class. His second cockerel was also a bird of wonderful merit.

The Dune Alpine Poultry Farm showed some high class S. C. W. Leghorns that were worthy of a place in almost any competition.

Louder Bros. also struck a winning gait in W. Leghorn class, carrying away fourth cockerel, a real classy fellow with good shape and color, a bird hard to produce in this exacting age of poultry fanciers.

C. M. Ferry and Dr. Mellor, both showed with brilliant colors in the S. C. B. Minorca class, while T. A. Faulds carried off some of the most coveted prizes in the cockerel class. This was, without doubt, the greatest class of S. C. B. Minorcas ever assembled. The highest compliments are due any exhibitor winning in such a class.

T. A. Faulds made a clean sweep in the R. C. Black Minorca alley. His birds are large and possess splendid shape, color and good head points, features that have been hard to secure. We wish to compliment friend Faulds on the high quality of his R. C. B. Minorcas.

Wm. E. Crevoiserat's display in S. C. Buff Leghorns were a revelation to all who love this popular breed. His birds were rich in color, showing an even golden buff in all sections, a great class of birds indeed.

The greatest class of Houdans assembled in a show room in years greeted the sight of all admirers of ck. 1, hen, 2, ckl. 1, pul, Cairick 1, ckl. this coming popular breed. F. J. Ruely, G. Harvey Springman, George Guignet, E. D. Ogden and J. A. Underwood fought out a battle royal in the Houdan alley and carried away many of the much coveted prizes on their famous birds. Look out for the Houdan breeders another year—they sure are coming to the front.

BLACK LANGSHANS

Summit and Black Diamond-Strains have stood the test for more than a quarter of a century and have rightly and justly won the reputation of The Best in America. Winners at Madison Square, Grand Central Palace Red Bank and Philadelphia, unquestionably the largest and best flock of Black Langshans on the American Continent.

AS EGG PRODUCERS

The Black Langshans have always been considered the greatest of all winter layers. They can stand more cold weather and endure more hardships than any other breed and they lay during weather when other breeds will not. They lay a large, brown egg of superior flavor and my strains have been bred for heavy laying since their foundation.

AS SHOW BIRDS

They need no introduction. The Summit and Black Diamond strains of which I am now the sole owner, have won many blue ribbons in all parts of the land and will during the season of 1912. Their unmatched record at Grand Central Palace, Madison Square and Philadelphia substantiate the statement of the best in America. I can furnish you

SHOW BIRDS THAT CAN WIN—BREEDERS THAT WILL PRODUCE THEM

Let me quote you prices on these Langshans. The breed that has come to the front with leaps and bounds; all because they deserve it; new varieties boomed by extensive advertising flourished for a while but the Langshans has stood the test of the most severe kind and as for beauty, stateliness and productiveness both for eggs and meat they are unmatched wins at Grand Central Palace Show.

A Doubter Convinced

You can't down facts. Last October, one of our advertisements came under the notice of Mr. A. I. Root, of Medina, Ohio, America's celebrated bee man and poultry raiser. When he read our guarantee that the Buckeye Incubator was guaranteed to hatch every hatchable egg, he wrote us saying that his impression was "that there was not an incubator in the world that would do it—it seems to me you are putting it very strong." We replied that we would stand by our claim and asked him to try a

Buckeye Incubator

He did—tried one for four months—now read his letter:

"I am happy to tell you that my Buckeye Incubator did hatch every fertile egg but one, and that one was hardly hatchable. The chicks were all remarkably large and strong and every one is alive and growing finely."

That's expert proof—not talk. Buckeye Incubators have been on the market 21 years—over 225,000 in successful operation. Made in 50 egg, 60 egg, 110 egg and 220 egg sizes—as low as $8.00, and sold by over 1000 dealers from coast to coast. Send today for "Incubator Facts," a copy of our 5 year guarantee, and name of nearest dealer where you can examine a Buckeye.

SELECTING AND CARE OF WINTER LAYERS.

Have you taken stock of your layers from which you expect eggs? If not, no time should be lost in doing so. If the birds are of the right strain and have been rightly handled from shell, and the future management is right, the egg basket should be filled at a time when "hen fruit" is at its highest market value. If anything is known respecting the egg producing achievements of the stock that has been bred from, little difficulty will be experienced in spotting the right youngsters for the production of winter eggs. Such youngsters, steered clear of sickness, feathered up early and developed muscular bodies. There are hundreds who cannot conveniently operate trap nests, and such are debarred from making the wisest selection possible when choosing the youngsters calculated to equal or surpass their dams in the way of egg production. Still if the birds have been watched and their habits noted during their growth, and the most active and robust kept in mind, there will be little risk of making a wrong selection. The birds that handle hard and sinewy, especially about the thighs, will be those that have been most active on the range or in the scratching litter, and can be counted upon as egg producers, but the birds that handle heavy and feel flabby may with safety be culled out and disposed of, as you cannot get them into paying egg producers. The phenomenal egg producer is born, not made. The next thing necessary will be to see that the layers are rightly fed, rightly housed and well exercised to fit them for the laying quarters. See that they are not crowded, and an abundance of fresh air, both night and day; the floor should be covered thickly with scratching material so they may be exercised in scratching for buried grain. A feed of good plump oats scattered in the litter at daybreak and before the birds retire to roost. A dry mash kept before them at all times, the one I use is over the formula of the Maine Experiment station. At noon a feed of sprouted oats, and other green feed, such as cabbage, beets or turnips. About 3 o'clock a feed of wheat, buckwheat and cracked corn fed in litter. A good supply of fresh water before them at all times, the same with grit, charcoal and oyster shells. Such is the work necessary for the production of winter eggs. Such work entails the expenditure of time and labor, but it is the work that accounts for robust stock and a supply of eggs when they are at their highest market value.

PROFITS IN POULTRY.

This subject concerns the poultryman and the farmer more than any other. A few years ago it was only the fancier who was willing to pay $5.00 for a good trio of thoroughbred birds. The fancier demonstrated the advantage of raising pure bred stock to the poultryman and the farmer. Today all poultry men and nearly all intelligent farmers have discarded the mongrels to make room for the more profitable pure blood, not hesitating to pay $5.00 to $25.00 per trio for the better breeds, which have increased their profit several times the amount of the price paid for the trio.

After discarding my mongrels the question arises, what breed do I want? Some will tell you to get a heavy fowl, while others will advise you to get one of the Mediterranean class. For illustration we will take two of the older breeds, Rocks and Leghorns.

ROCK HILL POULTRY FARM Ossining, N.Y.

Supposing you raise a flock of 50—25 cockerels and 25 pullets. A laying hen should not be kept for laying purposes over three years, at the end of three years the hens are sold. The Rocks will bring about $15 more than the Leghorns, conceding that they will weigh 100 pounds more and providing you can get 15c a pound. The Leghorns will lay about 50 eggs more per year than the Rocks. In three years the 25 Leghorns will produce 310 dozen more eggs, at 18c per dozen the value of their egg production would be $55.88 more. The Rocks will consume 60.4 cents each more feed per year or $45.00 for 25 hens for three years. This would give the Leghorns earning capacity $85.88 over the Rocks. Deduct $15 for what the 25 Rock cockerels will sell for over their rivals, this will leave $70.88, or what the Leghorns will earn more than the Rocks. I am quoting these figures to show you that the profit is in the eggs. Where one man makes money by raising stock for the market, there are 20 who make money in eggs. These figures show beyond a doubt which breed to select. No one can deny the laying ability of the Leghorn; they have always been noted for being great layers.

The world is progressive. This is especially true in the chicken business. While Leghorns were regarded a few years ago as the foremost egg producers, they have met their superiors in Anconas. A few years ago this breed was comparatively unheard of in this country, although they have been bred largely in England for the past 60 years. They were introduced in this country about ten years ago. "By their works ye shall know them." By this way they have worked their way to the front, until their praises are voiced by thousands throughout the land.

No breeder or writer ever denied the remarkable laying ability of this handsome breed. I noticed an article some time ago which was unfriendly to Anconas, stating they were wonderful layers, but their eggs were not of a good flavor. I couldn't think the gentleman would be guilty of a willful misrepresentation, but concluded he must have got hold of a stale egg. I desire to say that Anconas lay a nice, large, white egg say having a delicious flavor.

Many breeders are keeping pace with the times, by discarding their breed for the grandest of breeds—Anconas. The replacing of their stock with Anconas is the handsome tribute paid by many progressive breeders to these most profitable layers. Anconas not only excell in laying the largest number of eggs, but also lay a very large white egg. They are noted for their heavy production during the winter months when price of eggs is high. A poultryman separated his Anconas from his other breeds, to compare their laying ability. He told me that his Anconas laid nearly twice as many eggs and consumed less feed. Have received many such flattering reports from other customers.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

By FRANK HECK

THE author claims and proves that this book contains information upon a greater variety of subjects than any book on poultry ever written. It has also drawn out more unsolicited testimonials from authorities and experts. Why worry and wonder and grope in the dark? Why learn by expensive experience and disappointment when everything is offered you at so small a price? The knowledge gained by years of experience is contained in this book. The methods and secrets of the foremost successful breeders and exhibitors in the show room are given in full.

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT GRAND CHAMPION FUTURITY STAKE FOR 1912.

The Great Allentown Fair Poultry Show, recognizing the fact that there is a great sameness in poultry shows, and wishing to have both something new and make its exhibition of still more value to its exhibitors and greater interest to its visitors, will inaugurate this year a Grand Champion Futurity Stake.

For the first year this will be open to six varieties only, namely: White Orpingtons, White Rocks, White Wyandottes, White Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds, and Game Bantams. However, if the interest warrants, stakes in other varieties may be opened.

Only birds hatched in 1912 will be eligible, and there will be separate stakes for cockerels and pullets, unless the stake for either should go below $50.00, when they will be bined.

The Nomination fee in White Orpingtons will be Five dollars each bird. In all other varieties, Two dollars each. Nominations will close April 1st, and the list in each variety will be published immediately thereafter.

Birds nominated need not necessarily compete for the regular prizes, but if entered at the Fair Show, must pay the regular entry fee of One dollar each, which will guarantee a single, well lighted and well placed coop to each bird.

The winner in the different breeds to take the entire stake. For instance, if the total stake in White Orpington cockerels is $200.00, the winner takes this amount. He shall also have the right to claim and advertise the "Grand Championship Futurity Winner for the Season of 1912," and shall be awarded a handsome ribbon certifying to this effect.

Only birds raised by the competitors shall be eligible and the winners will be required in every instance to make affidavit as to the month the bird was hatched, where raised, and supply the names of two adults who can certify to the correctness of statements made.

Further announcement will be made in next month's poultry journals, and more full information can be had by addressing W. Theo. Wittman, Supt. Mgr., Great Allentown Fair Poultry Show, Allentown, Pa.

Pertinent Paragraphs

By EASTERNER

While the Belgians are delighting themselves with cock-crowing competitions, in which it is reported one cock crowed no less than 463 times in an hour, the citizens of certain Massachusetts places are on the rampage to suppress the crowing of cocks. A few trained crowers ought to be imported to give these people an idea of the capabilities of a cock in this line.

In the Wyandotte line English fanciers are attempting the creation of many novelties. Not only the Red and the Blue Wyandottes are projected, but Piles, White-faced Blacks, Blue Duckwings, and Spangles. Americans are not the only ones who have a leaning for variety shows.

Of these projected varieties, the one which, if perfected, would seem to have the best chance for popularity, is the White-faced Black, but, fortunately or unfortunately, it is the one whose chance of perfecting seems the most difficult and remote. A really good specimen, having its feathers uniformly laced with white, upon a web otherwise of pure black, would certainly be a beautiful fowl.

Red Wyandottes with Rosecombed Rhode Island Reds and Buff Wyandottes as materials, ought not to be difficult to make, but whether "the game is worth the candle," having the aforesaid Rosecombed Rhode Island Reds already made, is another question. The Blues, also, with Black and White Wyandottes as a foundation, ought not to be an impossible task, but the variety, when made, would suffer from what has always been a handicap to the Andalusian, a constant reversion to the original black and white colors.

The futility of attempting to arrive at the relative popularity of the varieties of any specified breed from a study of the entries at any one show is well illustrated by the entries of Hamburgs at Syracuse, N. Y., in September, 1911. There were 42 Golden Spangled, 41 Silver Spangled, 44 Golden Penciled, 21 Silver Penciled, 19 White and 36 Black Hamburgs. While nearly every poultry publication in the United States carries the advertisement of one or more breeders of Silver Spangled Hamburgs, very few poultry papers carry the advertisement of a single breeder of the beautiful Golden Penciled, and yet, at Syracuse, this variety, like Ben Adhem's name, "led all the rest."

One more comment deserves to be made. Here were 203 Hamburgs on exhibition at one show. And we have regarded this lovely breed as in danger of extinction in this country! This exhibit proves that one should be careful about making generalizations on insufficient data. A breed which can muster over 200 specimens at a single show has an excellent chance for survival for some time to come, and every lover of the beautiful in fowls should rejoice that this is true of the handsome Hamburg.

In poultry breeding to "Live and let live" means to market all the culls as quickly as possible and preserve only the best chickens.

***

If you are "on the job," you will be making things snug for the coming winter. After Thanksgiving, and before, cold weather is due.

***

The most difficult job of culling is where the chickens are all culls; then it is a question of, not which are better, but which are less bad.

***

A good bird is worth a good price, and that perhaps is the reason why some of us have so few good birds—we haven't the price of them.

***

Many a fowl has been weighed and found wanting—in the show room.

***

Not every fowl which is up to weight, is also "up to snuff." That's nuff for that snuff.

***

Don't make the mistake of thinking that some breeders produce no "culls" or "wasters," all have them, but some kill and eat, and others keep them as an eye-sore and humiliation. Better kill and eat.

Standard of Perfection

OFFICIAL GUIDE

JUDGING — MATING — BREEDING

You cannot raise fows intelligently without a copy of the American Standard of Perfection the Official guide of Poultry Culture

THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION is published by the American Poultry Association and is the American authority [United States and Canada] on the required characteristics of all Breeds and Varieties of Chickens, Ducks, Turkeys and Geese. Every poultryman should have a copy of the new American Standard of Perfection. All the Standard requirements as to shape, color and markings of all standard breeds of poultry are clearly described and illustrated in the new work.

You cannot tell the value of your birds unless you know the Standard requirements. You cannot enter the show room and win unless you know these requirements. In short, you cannot succeed in the poultry business without possessing a copy of this book.

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS WITH POULTRY.

A Heart to Heart Talk to Amateurs and to Those Who Have Given Up Without a Fair Trial.

By E. L. Vincent.

The poultry business, to be successful, must be done by the hand to hand method. There is as a rule, too much generalization, too much theorizing, in what is written and said along this line. What the average man and woman want is fact, particularization, hand-picked fruit, on the part of the writer or speaker who claims to teach us what to do to make our work win and how to do it.

Now, I could not write a theoretical article if I wanted to, because it is not in me to do it; and then, too, I have no theories. All I have ever accomplished has been right down among the birds, with my coat off, dealing with my beauties as I would with men and women with whom I had business. With this fair warning, let me say my say and go on.

In the first place, I believe the way to win is to think out the best possible plan, taking into consideration one's own conditions, and then working up to that outline as closely as possible. No two men or women are situated just alike. Plans that would be adapted to the circumstances and the surroundings of one man might not work at all with another.

There are, however, certain bed-rock principles that everybody must take into account if he would do anything worth while with poultry. One of these is that we must have a full appreciation of the importance of the work we are doing. It is no boy's play to take a lot of hens and make them bring in a profit year by year. Right there we have made a lot of mistakes. We have thought that the hen business is nothing very serious; most anybody can take it up and win with it. So with haphazard plans and haphazard ways of dealing with our birds we have set about it to make our fortune. And we have not done it. We could not have done it in any other kind of business, if we went about it the same slipshod way. So we must put heart and soul into the work. If we do not, no matter how fine our stock, be our equipment what it may, we are doomed to failure.

Again, it takes a lot of patience to make a success with poultry. Look into the record of the men who have done the best in this business and you will find that they had an unlimited amount of patience, a determination that knows no such word as failure, and a genius for holding right on to the end. With far too many men, one season of indifferent success ends it. They never can see anything good about poultry after that. They are done. They will not believe anything that is said by others in the way of encouragement; it is all a falsehood or a scheme to deceive others. What such men need is the spirit to stick

What does this mean? It means that we must not sit down and rest on our laurels. A good many battles have been won and the fruit all lost while the officers and those under his command were having a good time rejoicing over what a great victory they had gained. Got to keep all the pickets posted, all the ends tucked in and all the forces working for the greater success that is coming tomorrow.

But there is still one thing more about this. The place to begin to it a little longer. It takes more than one swallow to make a summer. One season cannot beat out the man who has it in him to win.

And then, the blue ribbon is for the man who is not satisfied with what he has done and what he is doing now. What does he say when you congratulate him on what he has done? "Oh, that's nothing! I'm going to do something next year that will beat anything I ever have done." And he never will be satisfied till he does it.

bothers some folks. They haven't the facilities, they will tell you if you ask them why they do not get into the harness and do something fine with poultry. They have no stock, no buildings, no markets. Everything is against them now—but "they are going" to show you by-and-by! Next year, or the year after that, when they get a little more money, after their ship comes in, say, they will go at it and win all the prizes going. But they don't do it. The man who is always "going to" do something nev-

Christie's Single Comb Brown and White Leghorns

Are the greatest layers of large white-shelled eggs in the world today. None but the best—none but those that have shown us beyond a doubt that they have proven by their past performances to be sterling layers are ever allowed to enter our breeding pens. Five hundred robust and vigorous, two and three year old hens constitute our breeding pens this season, each one a picture of health and beauty, and each one a bird of rare quality. Imagine the hardy and thrifty, fluffy youngsters the offspring of these birds are like, and there is not one particle of doubt in our minds where you will place your order. Every claim we make for our LEGHORNS is backed up by years of practical experience and thousands of pleased customers. Write for our illustrated catalogue, it will interest you.

er really does anything. It is not in him to do it.

The place to begin is right where you are. Take the old coops, the commonplace hens you have, the bit of experience you now possess and make them the foundation stones of your success. You can do it. No better success was ever achieved than that won in just that way. The brightest light in the world is the light of personal experience.

I have in mind now the case of a man who started out to do greater things than any of his neighbors had done. He spent hundreds and thousands of dollars for up-to-date poultry houses; he bought the finest site he could find anywhere; he purchased the best stock in the world so far as he knew; he put a man in charge of whose ability he knew nothing, and went away to wait for the world to sound forth the news of what he was doing in his wonderful plant. The world never heard of that man. The last I knew, the beautiful plant was silent; not a crow to wake the echoes in the morning watches. What was the trouble? Too little practical knowledge, no real love for the work, only theory to back up a big pride.

All over the country there are men who could do better than that, if they only felt a little more assurance in their own ability to take the situation just as it is and work steadily forward. And there is everything to encourage that at the present time. Great things are being done with poultry on the farms of our country by those who began clear down at the bottom, but who were not content to stay there and could not be held there with a logchain.

With the hens one has, then, let him strike out for the top of the ladder. Watch them until you know which are the best layers, which are the most long lived and possessed of the greatest degree of vitality, and of a strain that will begin laying early in the season and hold out as long as possible. Let all the rest go. The weeding out may not leave you very many. Do not be disturbed about that. Go without some things that are not really necessary to your comfort and happiness and buy male birds of a good quality to mate with the hens you have left. Be as sure as you can that the birds you buy are worthy of the promotion you are going to give them. It may cost you some money to do this. Not that it is wise for the everyday man to pay a fancy price for a male bird under such circumstances, but it is all right to get one that is from approved stock and backed up by the word of a reliable breeder.

Mating your purchased stock with your best hens, get as many chicks as you can. Study the best methods of caring for these little birds, so that they may come to the age of productivity as soon as possible. Give them the best possible place to live, free from insect foes, and otherwise sanitary in its appointments. No matter if your present house be not as palatial as you wish it were, do the best you can with it. Make it dry, clean and commodious. Do not put too many birds in it. Not less than five square feet should be allowed on the floor for each fowl, in case you wish to keep only a couple of dozen in a single house. By taking out the old windows and enlarging the openings you can get more light, and this is a grand thing in every possible way. Not one house in a thousand on our farms is light enough.

If you have studied your birds, as every lover of poultry does, you know what things they like best, and that is what you will provide for them as nearly as possible, summer and winter. Hens are like everybody else. They have likes and dislikes in the matter of eating. It is not necessary to go into much speculation on this point. Just use common sense about it and you will come out all right.

Twelve Month's Work in the Poultry Yard

BY W. THEO. WITTMAN

Acknowledged by all to be one of America's Foremost Authorities and Judges.

Starts you in January, and takes you clear through the year—telling you just what to do to successfully handle your fowls in the safest and most economical way that is consistent with good business methods, to make the largest success possible with your fowls.

It does not tell you how to make $200 from 20 hens

But, it gives you a short, boiled down, and up-to-date treatise on lines that are practical and can be executed with safety. The contents of this book are intensely practicable, and to teach a method of poultry keeping, exactly opposite to that which is complicated and unnecessary. On the other hand Twelve Month's Work has been purposely chosen to emphasize the fact that that the successful poultryman will find work to do, twelve months in the year. For regularity and attention to small details, all of the time, and in season, are prime factors of success in the business. PRICE 25c.

SOME OF THE ATTRIBUTES OF THE SUCCESSFUL POUL-TRYMAN.

If any one quality is required in successful poultry keeping, it is the quality known as stick-to-it-ive-ness, more elegantly termed, perseverance. The man who has persistence, who is as they say, game, having pluck and backbone, is going to win in anything he sets out to do. But the possession of this one quality alone is not sufficient to carry over the pitfalls that are sure to be in the way at the out-start. There are some underlying principles to be learned even in such a prosaic occupation as poultry raising.

The winter season is one the poultry novice dreads, having innumerable difficulties and appearing to the untrained hand almost unsurmountable. This presumption is entirely erroneous and is based on the experiences of poultry keepers who have had no method in their work. The proper housing of fowls in cold weather is one of the most important details in the business. Given a draught proof house, with plenty of light and scratching material on the dry floors, there will result a flock of healthy, energetic chickens able to perform their egg-laying function in the coldest weather. Cold does not affect fowls as most people suppose; it is rather the varying conditions of the atmosphere and therefore the extremes of heat and cold are always to be avoided. I remember the case of one enthusiast, who had gone into poultry raising on the principle that what was good for him was good for his chickens. So the first winter of his experimental poultry raising, his poultry house was equipped with a gas stove. It was a cold season, with zero weather for days at a time, and the man rejoiced at the sight of his fowls all huddled comfortably around the gas fire, while the more plebeian chickens in the neighborhood were hustling around trying to keep warm. Well! The pampered gas heated chickens, when subjected to the cold on pleasant days when out of doors, contracted colds in the majority of cases and the loss was severe enough to teach this well meaning man that human methods of procedure for health and comfort are not in accord with those for fowls.

Scarcely less important than winter housing is feeding. It is the food in the body of the fowl that produces the heat, therefore in winter it is essential to select such foods as contain a large percentage of carbon and hydrogen, the two necessary heat producing elements. Carbon and hydrogen are obtained from carbonaceous foods and from water. Nitrogenous foods are also necessary to the good health of fowls, as nitrogen is the element which helps build up and repair the tissues of their bodies. Grains and mashes made of a variety of meals constitute the carbonaceous foods. Corn is especially adapted to winter feeding on that account. Green ground bone in winter and the succulent clover in summer are valuable for the nitrogen contained in them.

System which plays such a large part in all of the successful undertakings in the business world, is no less necessary in poultry raising. While the kind of food given the fowls is of importance, on the regularity of feeding much depends. If a fowl goes around with an overloaded stomach one day, and the next has an empty crop, a continuance of such treatment will result in indigestion not easily overcome. Balanced rations should mean not only a balance of the different food ingredients, but a balance of good judgment, in the feeding of the rations.

If the novice wants to simplify his work he will get it down on a busi-

Save Time and Labor

The railroads spend millions to save time and labor. But how about you?

Mr Poultryman

Are you not aware that time and labor means your success. And are you aware that tests 125 eggs at once and that 2000 can be tested in 16 minutes actual time? Now Mr. Poultryman, time is money, and with the Reflex there is no chance of a mistake and eggs cannot become chilled.

The Reflex Egg Tester

PLUVINOX WATER-PROOF ROOFING

For Roofing, Siding and Lining Poultry Houses and all Outbuildings.

Per 100 Square Feet

Clean - Durable - Odorless

This is a Water and Air-Proofing of which you are always sure—which you can absolutely depend upon to thoroughly protect your chickens and stock from dampness and draughts.

Just see how well PLUVINOX is made. First it is thoroughly soaked through and through with the heaviest kind of a water-proofing compound; then is heavily coated on both sides so that air or water cannot even get through the surface, let alone through the inside. Finally a layer of soapstone is placed on both surfaces to shed water and further protect the roofing.

We will send on request samples so that you may see how sturdy and well-made it is; compare it with others, and find how very low is the price we ask for it.

ness basis. A time for every little detail and every little detail on time, is a good foundation motto for the poultry worker. Because poultry keeping is made up of details, it is looked upon sometimes as of little account, and is often relegated to the irresponsible members of the family—the children. If in this haphazard way there should chance to be good results obtained, it is rather in spite of than otherwise. I know a woman, a widow, left with a small farm and three young children to support. This woman turned to poultry keeping as a means of adding to her small income. Her enthusiasm was unbounded and after having stocked up with a lot of thoroughbred fowls, there seemed no reason why she should not succeed. I am sorry to have to record this failure, since it was a woman who failed, but the failure was due to nothing but irregularity of feeding and a general laxity in looking after the flock. But to show that all women do not lack the power of systematizing their duties, this farm was sold to a man actively engaged in business and away from his home during the day, but the wife took up the poultry work where the other woman left off, and has made such a success of it that, were I permitted to mention her name, most of the readers of this journal would recognize it as belonging to a now famous poultry farm in Pennsylvania.

It sometimes seems as if most of us were gifted with a power to do certain things better than any one else can do them. I think that applies quite aptly to poultry raising. There must be ingrained in the successful man or woman engaged in poultry keeping a sympathetic feeling for the fowls. How soon a fowl learns whether the treatment which it is to receive will be harsh or humane, and how readily does that fowl respond to kindly handling. A nervous, highstrung person is not so well adapted to caring for chickens as one more phlegmatic and easy going. When I walk through the poultry yards, I adapt my gait to the requirements of the situation, and try not to be the disturbing element that will set the whole barnyard in an uproar of disapproval.

With eggs of the certain standard quality of freshness so scarce in the winter season that invalids in many cases are deprived of their beneficial ingredients, because of the shortage, it does seem as if all this hue and cry over the crowded condition in the poultry keeping world is out of place. There never was a time when the outlook for steady consumption and good prices was better than now.

Standard Wyandottes in Colors

and How to Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

Reaches the Climax for those Interested in this Variety. WHEN YOU SEE IT YOU WILL ACKNOWLEDGE THAT IT IS THE BEST AND WORTH MANY TIMES THE PRICE TO YOU.

This book teaches you How to Score and Judge the greatest of all the American varieties. No other work published will give the information as it is given by Theo. Hewes in his articles, which are fully illustrated by over one hundred pictures, together with the chart system, of which he is the originator, and which is copyrighted by him. Not only do full page half-tone plates of some of the finest living specimens of these breeds appear in black and white, but the richest and grandest work ever done in oil by an artist is given by I. W. Burgess in a series of twelve pictures representing male and female, accompanied by feathers from the different sections of the birds in colors.

Size of book 11½x8½ inches. Contains over 70 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00.

These pictures are 4½x7 inches in size, and cost over $1,000 for the copper plates alone, to say nothing of the artist's labor and general cost of production. In fact no expense has been spared to make it by far the most valuable work on Wyandottes ever printed in America or elsewhere; you cannot duplicate it at any price, but you can have one by return mail for $1.00, and if you are not satisfied we will refund your money. We do as we say we will, now and always. Our past dealings with the public will prove this.

Remit by Express, P. O. Order or Check as this is the safest way. Book will be sent immediately upon receipt of order.

Its The Shots That Hit the Mark That Wins The Battle

Attention Classified Advertisers !!

A 30-Word Class Add
3 Mo. for $2.50 6 Mo. for $4.00

Let us reason together:

Poultry Fancier is published in the interests of the men who raise the high grade standard bred birds, which is the foundation of all pleasure and profit in Poultry raising.

It is read by people who are willing to pay the price of the real fanciers product and skill. It is read by the people whose ideas of Beauty are not alone based upon pounds of flesh, and dozens of eggs.

A circulation that will not pay the price of a setting of eggs, or a good bird is worthless to you. You are spending dollars in trying to hit a mark beyond your range.

But how many are paying for this kind of a circulation? Is it any wonder they say advertising doesn't pay? Who is to blame? The circulation of the Poultry Fancier represents the cream, and we sell it to you without buying so much milk, (by the milk I mean circulation that will not pay the price.)

It's the shot that hits the mark that wins the battle, and there is a buyer for every good bird that's raised, and for every egg that's laid.

The circulation of the Fancier is the demand. Can you furnish the supply? During the next three months, our thousands of readers will spend mans thousands of dollars for stock and eggs, and for the price of a setting of eggs, we will insert your Add, 30 words, three times for $2.50.

Come reason together, and remember, every one of Poultry Fanciers subscribers is interested in Poultry, and after all (in advertising). It is the shots that hit the mark that wins the battle.

Now is the time. Send your add in right now to

RHODE ISLAND REDS

How to Breed and Judge Them
By THEO. HEWES

Is the Best and Most Complete Treatise Ever
Published on this Great Variety

There is no breed so widely advertised to-day as the Rhode Island Reds and no breed in which there is such a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes perfection.

"RHODE ISLAND REDS; HOW TO

is better than the
"STANDARD OF PERFECTION"

because it goes into detail and describes every section, with numerous illustrations, showing ideal and defective shape and color, thus making scoring so simple that any one can understand. Some sections have four or five illustrations showing the several defects that may be found in them, with the proper discount for the same as applied by our leading judges.

Size of Book 11½x8½ inches, Contains over 50 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00

Mark Your Chicks

It is the only way you can tell the birds bred from different matings.

Petty's Punch is one of the best on the market. You can't get along without one.

Price 25 cents or sent free to any one sending us two subscribers at our regular rate of 25 cents per year.

In addition to this most complete series of articles on scoring, there are numerous articles from America's foremost Red breeders on every phase of Red breeding. This book tells you just what you want to know. It tells you how to mate your pens; how to grow your chicks; how to select your show birds; in fact, it tells you how to grow, exhibit and make money out of Reds.

This book is sold on approval. The price is $1.00, and, dear reader, if you are not satisfied with your bargain, send us back the book and we will refund your money.

Do You Know How Anxious I Am To Please You?

Do You Know How Well Fixed to do so ?

I have hundreds upon hundreds of the choicest specimens I ever had to fill your orders. This has been a great year to produce good ones, bring out all that is in them. They are in the best of condition.

Buy early, get your pick, avoid wintering cost.

There are three reasons why you should let me talk it over with you.

1. My policy of doing all I possibly can to please you.
2. My birds are not "back-lotters", weak and no good. They are strictly farm raised, on Separate Farms.
3. My policy of a fair margin, relying upon many sales for my profits.

In conclusion, let me ask of you, if you were to come upon a likely looking chicken, say in some woods, would you place an exorbitant value upon it? Then let's not let repetition of catch words, "poo-bah", etc., dazzle us. Keep our feet on the earth. I offer—

A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent on Trial to Prove it Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer After Thirty Year's Experience I Have Produced an Appliance for Men, Women and Children that Actually Cures Rupture.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon to-day and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. F. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir.—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot no matter what position it was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON.

80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

The above is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who has been curing others for over 30 years. If ruptured, write him to-day.

Recommend From Texas Famer

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co., Marshall, Mich.

Gentlemen—I feel it my duty to let you, and also all people afflicted as I was, know what your Appliance has done for me. I have been ruptured for many years and have worn many different trusses, but never got any relief until I got your Appliance. I put it on last November, but had very little faith in it, but must say I am now cured. I have laid it away—have had it off for two weeks and doing all kinds of farm work with ease. While I was wearing it, I had lagrippe and conghed a great deal but it held all right. Words cannot express my gratitude towards you and your Appliance. Will recommend it to all ruptured people.

Very sincerely,
J. E. LONG.

Bald Prairie, Texas

Others Failed but the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks, Marshal, Mich.

Dear Sir—Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you. Yours respectfully,
WM. PATTERSON.

No. 717 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Cured at the Age of 76

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir—I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,
SAM A. HOOVER.
Jamestown, N. C.
21 Jansen St., Duhrque, Iowa.

Child Cure in Four Months

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

Gentlemen:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks. Yours very truly,
ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market to-day, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.

6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.

7. There is nothing about it to get foul and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.

8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.

9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon to-day.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day.

EGGS FOR HATCHING

I bought 15 eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass. The chicks are not yet three months old and will weigh easily three pounds each at this writing. I shall, if I live, exhibit these wonderful birds at our State Fair in October, and if justice is done in the judging, I shall score a triumph; $100 A PIECE WOULD NOT BUY THESE BIRDS FROM ME.

J. L. M.
Utah, July 30, 1909.

I bought eggs from Mr. Ernest Kellerstrass. I had remarkable hatches from said eggs, obtaining 66-2-3 per cent. in good fine chicks, of which I am justly proud. I have visited his splendid farm on two occasions, at which time I made the acquaintance of Mr. Kellerstrass, and looked closely into the methods employed by him in the conduct of his farm, and will say that a view of Mr. Kellerstrass' birds would set the most conservative and cold-blooded chicken fancier to glow with enthusiasm.

A. S. D.
Oklahoma, July 12, 1909.

I bought 15 eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass. I got ten chicks and they are all living. I have handled four other breeds, and must say that the Crystal White Orpingtons are the best. They are the first to mature and they are the healthiest birds I have ever kept.

J. W. H.
Minnesota, July 12, 1909.

I bought eggs from the Kellerstrass Farm. I am very well pleased with my treatment by Mr. Kellerstrass. The birds seem to be healthy and thrifty and look good to me, as I am a breeder of prize birds. I think I received my money's worth and expect in a few months to fill my pens by purchasing a few more pullets from him.

Ohio, July 12, 1909.

I bought a setting of eggs from Mr. Ernest Kellerstrass. I have seven very fine birds from them; all strong, large, healthy chicks. I have one pullet from this lot that $50 would not buy. I also have thirty more eggs that will come off next week.

I find Mr. Kellerstrass a very fine gentleman with whom to do business—prompt and square, and he shall receive an order again next season from me.

E. F. B.
Wisconsin, July 12, 1909.

I bought 15 eggs of Mr. Kellerstrass. The chicks were hatched April 16 and I have so far succeeded in raising all that were hatched. Everyone who sees them thinks they are the finest lot of chicks they ever saw. I am well pleased with them. I HAVE ONE PULLET THAT I WOULD NOT TAKE $50.00 FOR. So you see I think I am away ahead on the deal.

W. M.
Pennsylvania, July 4, 1909

I bought two settings of eggs from Ernest Kellerstrass this spring, and I have never seen any better chicks anywhere. While at present they are but half grown they have great, strong legs and feet. I have some eight hens that were hatched from eggs of Mr. Kellerstrass last season and they have proven to be wonderful layers and the most satisfactory of fowls. My dealings with Mr. Kellerstrass have been very satisfactory.

R. E. W.
Nebraska, July 14, 1909

I bought a setting of 15 eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass, hatching and raising 12 chicks out of the 15 eggs. All are healthy, vigorous birds and I expect to do some showing with them this fall and winter.

F. A. M.
Indiana, July 12, 1909.

I bought eggs from the Kellerstrass Farm and the chicks hatched from these eggs are chicks indeed.

As to the vigor of the Crystal White Orpingtons, I think they are unsurpassed, as I have proof of that this season by the birds from the eggs I purchased from them last season, 1908—about 95 per cent. HATCHED. The Kellerstrass Farm has always done the square thing with me, and they have my best wishes.

I purchased eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass. The chicks hatched from these eggs were very strong and vigorous. It was never my lot to have a stronger or more healthy lot of chickens and growing like weeds. I am more than proud of them and have wished many times this summer that I had gotten two settings of eggs instead of one. I expect to have them on exhibition this coming winter and expect to win some ribbons.

I bought eggs from Mr. Ernest Kellerstrass and will say that the chicks hatched from these eggs are strong, healthy and as fine little chicks as you ever saw.

I find that Mr. Kellerstrass gives his customers their money's worth. I am very much pleased with the square dealings I had with him.

I bought a setting of eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass. I hatched 14 chicks from the setting. I have raised every one of these chicks and they are strong and healthy. They are perfect beauties and I can say that Mr. Kellerstrass has certainly been square with me in his dealings. I have had a very successful year all around with my Crystal White Orpingtons, raising 200 birds and sold about 100 worth of eggs besides from ten pullets.

Fertility---How to Produce It.

By AUSTIN W. CARPENTER.

The season of incubation is at hand. It is the early chicks that make the fine show birds and the good layers. Every year we have planned to get the broody hens and incubators at work in January and February. Most every year we have failed in our plans. Let's make good this season. We can't get the first hatch off too early. But some fancier will tell you that you cannot get fertile eggs so early in the season. I grant that it is no fool's job to give the fowls such care and feed as will produce in the eggs the germs that by incubation turn out into those beautiful little chicks. We have to have knowledge along the line of care and feeding. We acquire such knowledge by experience. After some years spent in endeavoring to produce fertile eggs I have been able during the last few seasons to keep my fowls in such condition that on egg testing occasions disappointment was not my lot. In this article I shall try to relate some of my experiences together with the facts which I have discovered.

HEALTHY BREEDERS

In the first place the birds in our breeding pens must be healthy. They must be free from disease. Both male and females should be in perfect health. Any fancier can tell by close observance whether or not a bird is in good health. If your birds are active you need not worry. If you discover a bird that is always standing around with no ambition or activity you want to take such a bird from your breeding pen. Take especial notice of your male bird. See that he is full of life. That he pays close attention to his mates. Get a bird that will raise a rumpus if you go into the pen and pick up a hen and you will have a male that will make a grand breeder and one that will produce fertile eggs. It may seem hard to take several of your best females from the breeding pen because they are off in health. You might just as well do it. They will produce no live germs. They are taking up the room of birds that are healthy and would produce fertility. Only last season I let personal admiration for a particular male bird override good judgment. I did it to my sorrow. I had a first prize cockerel that was as good a Polish as ever stood on legs. He had fine type and perfect body color. He caught cold on his show tour and came home out of condition. By close attention I kept the cold from developing into roup. For two weeks I treated the bird and thought that I had a complete cure. I could not give up the idea of using him as a breeder. When I put him back into the pen after a two weeks' stay in the hospital I observed that he was not as active as he should be. He improved and I finally decided to give him a trial. I placed seventy five eggs from his mating under incubation and hatched only fifteen chicks. It was an expensive experiment for chicks were worth their weight in gold. You can bet I won't let experience override hobby again.

EXERCISE

Your breeders must have exercise. If they stand around under roosts and back of nest boxes you won't get any fertility. Fowls must have exercise as well as other animals. Keep a deep litter on your floors. Cover your grain with the litter when same is fed. Your birds will work their heads off to get it. This stirring about is just what they need. Place your green food and meat where they will have to jump to reach it. There are many patent exercisers that are valuable. Above all keep the birds on the move. It will keep them from getting fat and will produce vigor that is essential to fertility.

I have found that birds that have the opportunity of working on a dirt floor are apt to produce more fertility in eggs than those which do not get this opportunity. They will dig the earth floor and roll in the dry earth. It gives exercise and is more like the conditions of summer when fowls are on ground in their yards. Eggs always hatch better after birds get out in parks in the spring.

FEEDING

In producing fertility one of the most important features is proper feeding. In the use of grains I have made few experiments. I found that wheat in the morning; oats at noon and corn at night gave the most eggs. With this ration I have been very successful in getting good fertility and consequently have stuck to this method of grain feeding. I feed only dry mash but can see no good reason why wet mash should injure the possibilities of producing live germs.

Green food must be given breeders. I believe cabbage is a poor food for breeding season. Last season I had cabbage on one farm and mangle beets on the other. The birds that were fed cabbage did not produce as fertile eggs as those which were fed the beets. I could think of no other reason for the poor testing of the eggs excepting the cabbage. I substituted beets for the cabbage and the fertility increased. To make sure I mated up two pens purposely for an experiment along this line. To one pen I fed cabbage. To the other I fed beets. To the third I gave sprouted oats. After feeding for ten days I began saving eggs for incubation. The birds in each pen were of the same variety. They were cared for in the same manner excepting the feeding of green food. This was the result. The pen fed beets produced the greater percent of fertile eggs. The pen fed sprouted oats were second, while the pen fed cabbage fell shamefully behind.

Meat of some kind must be given the breeders. Fresh meat and fresh ground bone are the very best of feeds to produce fertility. Dried beef scraps while not as good, will aid much in getting fertile eggs.

Above all don't permit your breeders to get too fat. You won't get fertile eggs if you do.

In conclusion, let me say that many a fertile germ is killed in the handling of the eggs. Many times we blame the birds in the breeding pen when as a matter of fact we are at fault in the treatment of the eggs.

Gather eggs frequently. Don't let them chill. Keep them in a room where the temperature is even. Do not keep too warm. If eggs are kept any length of time before being placed in incubator turn them at least once every two days. See that no oil or grease touches the eggs.

Here's hoping that these few suggestions may be of service to those who take the time to peruse this article. Egg testing time is upon us. By using judgment and reason in caring for our fowls we may save many disappointments and some profanity. Remember that New Year's resolution. Prepare now to avoid breaking it on the sixth day of incubation.

ORPINGTONS

By G. J. May

Having been asked by the Editor of this paper to write an article on Orpingtons, I take pleasure in doing so, as I have bred them now for a number of years. As to their origin this has so often been explained, so I will pass this over only saying that knowing the originator as I did, I feel sure he never even had the slightest idea that they ever would become in America the most valued breed. This, of course, will be admitted by all. What is most gratifying to me is the fact that the Orpington won her breed Buffs is a very easy matter; no, not at all, for it requires a great amount of patience and study to produce good even specimens. In mating Buffs, I find the best way is to choose your females that match the color of the breast of the male, not in any case using extremes. Then to produce any like decent stock you must have size on the female side, as this is where you get the size from. I never mind even an eight pound bird if he has type and even surface way into the heart of every lover of good birds, on her merits alone, as one has to remember that the general idea was that their white skin and legs would never be overlooked. But it is a case of giving honor where it is due, the result obtained in all lands having proved over and over again that she can and will hold her own with any breed especially through the winter months, for this is when she lays the most eggs. I have bred and shown all three color, and above all a well set comb and bright red eye.

Black Orpingtons are among the most attractive specimens in the chicken world as no breed can equal them for massiveness and, if good specimens, their deep green sheen when seen in the sun has a most brilliant contrast to the green grass or even to a gravel pen. The hardest point to deal with is their tendency to produce barring across their feathers, in colors so will just make a few remarks that I hope may be useful to some of your readers.

Buff Orpington was one of my first loves and still is a great favorite of mine. The buff, from her color alone, has a great fascination for all lovers of nice chickens, but I do not wish any one to imagine to fact, very few are quite free from it. But this can be bred out with consistent care and selection. Never mate a deep green sheen male with females that have any sheen at all if possible; the more dull in color the better, so that they are black to the skin.

White Orpingtons are the most sought after of all breeds at the present moment and to any one who is a believer in numbers, look up the number of white Orphingtons that have been shown this winter at St. Louis, Chicago, New York and Baltimore and you will be greatly surprised, as in several cases, they have been the largest class in the show and by all means the most valuable, for it is no uncommon thing to be asked $1000 or $500 for a male bird of this breed and not only this, but plenty are prepared to pay this amount for a winner of a "Blue" at one of the large shows, and up to $500 for a female. This plainly shows which way the wind blows and my advice is to any one taking up the chicken business, start with Orpingtons, whatever color you most prefer, and you will never regret it. If you will only write to some good reliable firm and say what you are prepared to pay and then leave the entire matter in their hands, for we all like to feel that our customers trust us, and then it is up to us to "make good."

In conclusion, I will say, I advise in all cases buy the very best you can afford as a good start is half the battle.

Knowledge is Necessary With Poultry

There is a big difference between opinion and knowledge in poultry raising either for pleasure or profit, but how many of us readers realize the fact? We all think that our birds are the best and our houses are the only ones that are practical, still we cannot see why our chickens do not do better as we feed them regular and with all kinds of feed. We think they get the best of care and often go so far as it takes a long time for the owner to find out his mistake especially when he has not practical knowledge of such work. To those that are interested in starting up a poultry farm it is always best for them to visit Several Practical Poultry Farms that are profitable poultry farms and that have been in business for years. Let the owner give you some advice, and don't tell him how you are going to do, but let him tell you the way he made a success, as he has been up against the rocks and you are about to strike them unless you have the knowledge of success.

Just a short time ago the writer was very much interested in a large new poultry farm just being built and as the owner was a well known millionaire it made no difference how much he spent, but the ideas he had as to raising chickens were somewhat interesting to any one that has been up against it. After the new poultryman had visited several poultry farms he had an idea that he was going to improve on all he ever saw. His great idea was that he had the price to put up just the things that the other practical poultrymen could not afford. So to start right, in his opinion he would employ a good architect to draw up plans for a brooding house and laying houses, to be put up as soon as possible, and after all is complete to say they get the best of care, still our chickens are not as profitable as they should be and after looking over the amount of feed that is fed every year and what eggs are sold we find that the chickens are not profitable. Still we claim in many cases it is the owner's mistake, as he has his opinion as how to do things and not the practical knowledge.

When it comes down to make profit from poultry it is a business that is not learned in a week or a month, but it must be handled like all other businesses. Use all care in making every move count: cut down on all unnecessary labor and other expenses; let the chickens work; they have plenty of time; use good common sense with your work and there is without a doubt profit in poultry raising.

Many a mistake was made in starting a poultry farm and the start will almost say whether it is to be a success or not; for when one does not start right he will get a poultryman to manage the new poultry farm.

So finally when the buildings were completed or about ready he looked about for a poultryman and after advertising in a local daily paper for a poultryman, he selected one who was a very cheap man, and in his mind any one that knew how to hatch chicks in incubators would do, but to be sure he was on the road for success he visited a practical poultry farm that has been in business for years to purchase some stock

He asked about what he could get a manager for, that would take charge of his new plant. This is a question not easily answered, but to please the new buyer it was short but true to say that the best man was the cheapest.

After nearly six months had passed it was very interesting to see the new poultry plant and sorry to say it was most anything but a success. After looking into the matter very carefully we found that the owner believed that any one could raise poultry and that a cheap man with little experience would be just as good as a high priced man who has made a success of the business for years; but he will now claim a different story, as not quite one year had passed when he advertised for a practical poultryman who could make a success of the poultry business, and no other to apply. And from the replies received one would think it was easy to get managers for his new large plant, and in this case wages was not considered. He was willing to give the price asked for, if success was guaranteed; but after his new poultry plant was visited by several poultrymen who are well known, they did not make any offer to manage it and guarantee success. Finally he decided to ask why and what was wrong that he could not guarantee a success. "Not to hurt your feelings," said one of the poultrymen who was looking after the position, "I will say that your plant is not a practical place and I do not believe it can ever be made a success under the present conditions, and if you will allow me to saw further, I will say it looks like a place that was laid out by someone that was trying to see how much could make the plant cost, or by someone that has never raised a chicken, and it is about the most unpractical plant that I have ever visited; and my advice to you would be to remodel your buildings; until you do there is little hope for success on your place." "Well," said the owner "I was under the impression that I had an "ideal plant."

That is the difference between Knowledge and Opinion.

THE FANCIER

We quote the following paragraph from the catalog of an eastern firm making a business of selling poultry feed and poultry appliances.—“We have been there; we have won the ribbons, and sold the high priced birds, but take it from us, there is nothing in it. It is the good market biddy that has no frills, fancy skirts or shirt waists, that pays the grocery bills and the mortgage.”

As there is not one out of a hundred of the people who keep a flock of hens that are real poultry fanciers, the advice is probably good for the man who gives it, and also to the general run of people who read it, but it is better to tell the truth than to use other means of impressing the rank and file of poultry raisers in this country. We cannot all belong to the poultry fancy; some of us must produce eggs and stock for commercial purposes. There is a good profit in either line if properly handled. If there were nothing in the fancy poultry business, many of the fanciers who are now doing business would have been forgotten years ago. Most of the advertisers in the poultry press who have outgrown their infancy, are doing business at a nice profit. There was never a brighter outlook for fancy high-class stock than at the present time. Every year the demand for high-class specimens in nearly every variety increases. Every year, the prices for high-class birds advance. There is room for more real poultry fanciers. There always will be room. There is a market for high-class birds at an advanced price and there always will be.

As long as there remains in the human family a love for the beautiful in nature and animal and bird life, there will be specialists in this branch, whose life's work will be the improvement in plant life, the propagation of new varieties, and the perfection of quality, shape, size, color, etc; there will be specialists whose desire and purpose shall be to increase the size, perfect the shape and color, establish and perpetuate greater uniformity in size, shape and color and improve the efficiency and productiveness of animals and birds.

The future of the poultry business rests with this class of men, the poultry fanciers. Whenever you find a man who is making a profit out of poultry keeping, I am sure you will find a man who is interested in the above things. You will find a man who keeps one variety and nine chances out of ten it is a variety that is strictly thoroughbred and descended from the flock of a fancier of note. Perhaps not directly, but indirectly, the flock carries the blood lines of some great breeder. Did you ever hear of a race horse that was wholly the outcome of indiscriminate breeding? Did you ever hear of a cow with a great milk record that did not trace her pedigree back to some known producer of note, either on one side or the other, or both sides? No. Every prize winner, every exceptional producer is either directly or indirectly the outcome of the efforts of some fancier or specialist.

Some twenty years ago, one could drive through the country for miles and miles and never see anything in the poultry line that showed exceptional size, shape or uniformity in shape and color. Now one finds the country full of fine looking flocks of poultry and when ever one sees such a flock, he can rest assured that the owner is in some degree a fancier and that his flock is a paying proposition. What is the cause of the present interest in poultry throughout the country? I will tell you. It is the poultry fancier, the poultry journal and the poultry show. The poultry business cannot get along without these three factors and they cannot get along without each other.

OFFICE OF F. A. TECKTONIUS, BUFF LEGHORN SPECIALIST

The poultry fancier of today is not putting any "frills, fancy skirts, or shirtwaists," on his flock of hens. He is breeding them along lines laid down by masterhand along lines that are not antagonistic to utility, but in line with efficiency and productiveness. The fancier must not, and I believe does not as a rule ignore egg production and market qualities. He must keep these in mind as well as perfection of type, size, and color when mating up his breeding pens. On the other hand, the market poultry man should not forget size, shape and color when mating up his flocks, as the uniformity of size, shape and color in his market stock and in his market eggs, cuts quite a figure in the price received and it is going to cut a larger figure in the years to come.

Lastly, I want to comment on the way poultry fanciers study to increase the efficiency of their flocks by careful feeding and proper care. Nearly always the fancier's flock is comfortably housed and carefully fed with a variety of carefully balanced feeds. He it is that tells the farmer how to feed to increase egg production, although the farmer does not always follow his advice. We are glad, indeed, that we can claim a membership in this great family, the poultry fancier family, and that we are represented by a live and up-to-date journal, "Poultry Fancier."

LEGHORNS

By W. W. KULP, Pottstown, Pa.

I have been interested in farm life all my life, as my father was a farmer, and a successful one. Starting with almost nothing, he paid for considerable property in a short time. When he bought his first farm, he had no money whatever towards it, yet he was loaned all the money for it on a plain promisory note, with no security. That good name I have tried to keep, and it is one leg upon which my success stands.

It is a blessing to be born of God fearing parents, and a greater blessing to live that same God fearing life.

The second leg has been Brown Leghorns, and the Whites have been a good help, but my Brown sales have always been by far the largest. There has been a reason for that, too.

From the first, back in 1884, I have bred Rocks, White Wyandottes, and Light Brahmas. They all have their place in the poultry world, but the active Leghorn, has always seemed to suit my conditions and tastes best. I have never asked such large prices for my goods; so had to handle more to make the same profit. Then the shorter season of growth is a great help to get the birds to a salable age, for one who cannot handle so many chicks while winter lingers.

These conditions will fit many busy people and especially women, who have other duties.

Then again, Leghorns will thrive on less exact attention than is required by some of the larger breeds.

The amount of feed for a hen is less. The feed for thirteen Rock hens will keep about twenty Leghorns.

The Leghorns will lay from one and one-half to twice what the thirteen Rocks will lay on the same feed, but the greatest argument for the great worth of the Leghorn, is the great Leghorn farms springing up all over the land.

There are other great farms, also, but I refer to commercial farms. I have spoken of cost of feeding Leghorns. At present prices of beef scrap, corn meal, bran, and middlings, with whole corn, and wheat, one dollar will feed just about an even two hundred and fifty hens or pullets, for one day.

There is one flock of four hundred pullets, some five miles from me, producing about $125 a month in eggs. They may go to over $150 per month. The feed will cost $40, or between that and $50. This is a nice little start.

Size of Leghorns: I have raised all kinds of quality and size. I have never had too many good ones, or too many large ones, but have had too many small ones.

A pullet should weigh from three to four pounds. A four pound pullet is a beautiful bird, if built right.

Three and one half is a good size. Cockerels, should weigh from four to six pounds. Four and one half, to five, are nice large birds.

A three and one half pound pullet will weigh five pounds, when two years old and fully moulted.

I have them heavier, but not many.

When the Japanese were here they selected one hen that weighed six and one-fourth pounds. Hens of this size are apt to take on too much fat after they get to be three years old.

Beauty: The present type of Leghorn is one of the most beautifully shaped fowls bred. I wish I had a cut of a bird I saw in the West Chester Show, in about 1895, and the present beautiful birds.

The tail was almost against its head. It weighed about two and three-quarter pounds; and as yet some folks say fanciers do nothing for the good of practical poultry.

The hens and pullets I have shown and won on have been of the most practical type and great layers and the same can be said of most Leghorns shown.

The rich red of the Browns, contrasting with the green black of the black sections of the body, make one of the most beautiful pictures in poultrydom.

Red and white are also always beautiful, unless they are kept in small yards. Then Browns had better be chosen, if beauty is desired with usefulness.

Another word about size of Leghorns. Since writing the above I have seen a Single Comb Brown Leghorn Cockerel, from one of the prominent winners and he is under four pounds.

I saw three R. C. White Leghorn Cockerels, all under four pounds, and fully grown.

Breeding and selling such stock does more to injure the whole Leghorn business than anything else.

A doctor in Reading, Penn., some three years ago bought three settings of Brown Leghorn eggs, at $10 per setting. They hatched well and laid well, but he would not keep them. They were too small, and the eggs were too small.

There is no reason or no permanent profit in breeding small under-sized Leghorns at this late date. Any one who does it hurts himself and most all the other breeders.

BY THE WAY

By H. S. BABCOCK.

Great is advertising and its uses! But it takes something besides advertising to make a long and continuous success as a poultry breeder. One must be able to produce something worth advertising. The birds, plus advertising, is success.

The "valued at" birds and their breeders are getting some hard knocks these days. It is so easy to value a bird at an enormous sum and so difficult to sell a bird at a much less sum, that some persons have chosen the "valued at" as the line of least resistance, only to find that there is great resistance by the opposing public.

If one keeps the information to himself, the valuing of his birds at many hundreds or thousands of dollars is a harmless amusement, but, when he takes the public into his confidence, unless his birds are really worth an approximation to the appraised valuation, he runs the risk of being suspected as a person of vivid imagination, with a very small balance-wheel of good judgment. There is yet another phase of this "valued at" business. It may lead beginners to believe that the birds are really worth the valuation put upon them, and induce them to waste good money in procuring stock which is greatly overvalued. While, in such cases, the legal maxim that the buyer must beware, may protect the seller from legal complications, he may nevertheless be causing an injury to the confiding buyer and also to the poultry industry. If one values his birds publicly, he ought to be careful not to greatly overvalue them.

A truthful statement why one values a bird at, say $500, may help to correct or prevent the damage that such a valuation might produce. At any rate it enables the public to judge for itself of the justice or injustice of the valuation, and it can decide whether the bird ought or ought not to be valued at the sum named. I may have a cock bird which I "value at" a thousand dollars, that is no less sum would tempt me to sell him, and yet, if I told why I valued him at that sum, anybody might see that my reasons did not indicate that the bird was worth even one tenth of the amount, or, if the reasons given were valid, he might see that I under-valued the bird and that he was worth more than a thousand dollars. But, let me make haste to add, very few birds, for exhibition or breeding, are worth more than one thousand dollars. When a bird gets above one hundred dollars in value, he or she has got to be a pretty good specimen.

How far the record prices are real and how far they are fakes it is sometimes difficult to determine.

Some years ago a Black Red Game Cock was reported as sold at an English Show for 200 guineas, approximately $1000, in our money, and this sale was quoted with confidence for a good many years. And yet recently an English writer has intimated that the sale was not bona fide but some sort of a trade. From which it would appear that the price was fixed somewhat after the manner of the celebrated example of the man who sold a hound dog for $100 and took in payment two bitch pups at $50 each. Fake record prices on the sale of fine birds do not help the industry but rather inflict a serious injury upon it. They awaken expectations which can not be realized and which plunge those who entertain them into bitter disappointment. But genuine high prices, paid at actual sales, or genuine offers refused by the breeders, are of benefit, because they show the possibilities which may be realized in the poultry industry. We ought to look upon these, however, as possibilities and not as probabilities. They do occur, and they may happen to occur with you, but they are exceptions, not the general rule, and, therefore, the chances of their happening to any individual breeder are comparatively rare. Exceptional prices are paid only for exceptional birds, and one is fortunate when he has such a bird and receives such a price. Good prices, on the other hand, demand only good birds, and the breeder of such who takes the necessary means to inform the public of the fact, is pretty certain to realize them. Fortunately for the poultry industry, fake valuations and fake prices are also exceptional. The great body of poultry breeders is sound to the core and hates faking in whatever form it may appear. It doesn't matter whether it is dyed or spliced feathers, colored shanks and toes, artificial removal of natural disqualifications, intentional over-valuation of birds, or unrealized high prices, the American poultryman despises the practice and condemns the practitioner. If an occasional instance of faking appears, it is visited with condign punishment; if it escapes observation, it works to the disadvantage of the fakir in the long run. Such temporary advantage as may be gained is quickly followed by permanent loss. The poultry industry flourishes, and those pimples and boils upon its body—fakirs of any and every sort—can not materially affect its health, because they are soon pricked, lanced or physiced out of the system. For doctored birds and those who doctor them, the surgeons are numerous willing and skillful, even if they do not sport M. D. after their names.

of indorsing Thomas F. McGrew for President. When this resolution was read the big Y. M. C. A. building fairly shook with applause, and several minutes elapsed before the chair could get order.

The matter of having two licensed shows in one city, or town, was fully discussed, and both sides brought out some strong points. This question seemed to be the bone of contention and finally the resolution was given in the committee's hands and here it seemed deadlocked again. Finally a compromise resolution was agreed on by a unanimous vote on the following:

"Resolved, That the secretary of the Pennsylvania Branch be hereby requested in convention assembled to offer the following amendment to the Constitution and By-laws, sixty days before the next National Annual Convention. That no two memberships be granted to Poultry Show Associations in one town or place; the County and State Fair Poultry Shows and Cities of 500,000 or more population where two or more consecutive successful shows have held to be accepted.

If this resolution goes through at the annual meeting it means that Allentown and Pittsburg Fanciers' associations are eligible to membership.

The next important resolution was that concerning conflicting show dates, as independent associations, as well as association members themselves have the past season selected dates so near that it proved to be a detriment to their own interests and to the interests of the poultry industry which was considered paramount.

"Resolved, That in lieu of the new Constitution adopted at the last election, the Governing Board is to regulate the matter of Show dates, Show practices and Show indorsements in this State. By motion of A. W. Close, of Scranton, Geo. H. P. Pettie of Wisconsin, Philadelphia, and F. W. Davis of Pittsburgh, Pa., have been elected; The Association is endeavoring to carry on the warfare in every State against the evil practices of Poultry Associations and Exhibitors in biasing Poultry Judges in their awards.

The most important of all resolutions was then discussed—State Aid for the Work at State College. Other States in the Union are making liberal appropriations for the work. The great State of Pennsylvania, with a poultry industry valued at more than $7,000,000, is doing little or nothing for poultry, and the work at State College is not what it should be on account of lack of funds. It is an outrage that this lack of state money is holding back the advancement of the industry in this state. Thousands and thousands of dollars are being spent annually for other lines of agricultural work, but only a pittance granted for poultry. Poultrymen in every county of the state are urged to see their legislators and have an appropriation passed that will be sufficient to carry on the work. The following resolution was passed:

"Be it Resolved, That the Poultrymen of Pennsylvania use their earnest efforts in getting the proper appropriations from our State to conduct a Poultry Experiment Station, comparing favorably with other States, like Ohio, New York and Missouri, and that a man of each county be appointed to solicit the efforts of the representatives in their respective districts.

A resolution favoring Atlantic City for the 1913 meeting was passed. According to this resolution Penna. is to co-operate with New Jersey in landing the big meet. Two hundred copies of the constitution and by-laws were ordered printed. The finances are in good shape and aggressive work all along the line is under way.

"Complaint was lodged against a prominent breeder and exhibitor of Pennsylvania in his efforts to bribe the judge in his decision of certain variety at the Scranton show; the Executive Board in secret session recommended that the National body provide a severe punishment for the said exhibitor.

Dr. E. W. Garber, Mt. Joy, Pa., was re-elected election commissioner.

A Chat With the Beginner.

When a person has the Hen fever at about 103 degrees, this is the age when he can ask questions, and questions they surely are. Now in my 26 years' experience in the poultry business, I have had, well, I can't tell how many, but if I had kept an account of them there would be quite an army of these, my friends. I call them friends, for so they are. I have always tried to help them out of their trouble, and answer all the questions that I could in a simple way, for this is the only way you can get their confidence as they naturally know that we are breeders of the Crystal White Leghorns, and the "Red Velvet" S. C. R. Reds, and they know their quality is considered just about 22 karat.

The very first thing I impress on their minds is that I have no axe to grind, whatever, as they know we have a ready market for all our stock and eggs, so they take my word and with all confidence they commence to ask questions. So I try to make everything as plain as possible. I first find out what kind of fowls are their favorites. Then I find out what they know about this fowl. Then if they lack in knowing some important point they ought to know, I try to teach them the fact. If I have the kind that is their favorite, I take two specimens, one of No. 1 and one of No. 2 grade, still both look so near alike that it takes comparison to tell the difference in their quality. By this rule they can see for themselves and know that you are trying to start them right. At present I have in mind one party who came to me for advice about starting in the poultry business. He had asked me a number of questions, and in some of them this is one. Does a beginner get a square deal at the hands of parties who have stock to sell? My answer is they are very few and far between who will not give a beginner full value, with interest, for money sent him for eggs or stock, for this man knows if the beginner is satisfied he will become a living advertisement for him. This party I had referred to I told how I did when I got the fever for the R. I. Reds I went to a gentleman who made a specialty of breeding fine Reds. I told him that my mission was to buy Reds, but I wanted him to first give me a lesson on a good A. No. 1 Red, so he got some of his prize-winners, and commenced to give lessons, and lessons that were worth many a dollar to me since. Then we took what we called a No. 2 and compared them together. I could see very easy why fine show stock cost so much money. I told him I wanted four hens and one cockerel. He had given me the prices of different birds. He asked me how much I wanted to pay. I told him $5 each, so we got a big flock together. He said you can take your pick and see how much you have learned about Reds since you have been here.

He had reserved his show stock, as they were out of my price. Well I picked my four hens, and one cockerel. He said I was learning very fast (so you can if you have the real thing to go by), well I know I got big value for my money. True, I had picked out stock that was worth much more than I paid for but he was a man of his word, so he didn't squeal. In less than a year he gave me just five times as much for the same cockerel as I paid him. I used this instance to show the quality of our advertisers who have stock to sell and advertise in a clean cut journal.

While telling this to my friend, we were looking at a pen of Reds that were from the pen I bought. He asked if that pen was from the stock I bought. I said yes. He said: "something fine!" I told him that was what you got when you started with good stock. To my surprise, he asked me to set a price on the bunch.

At first I thought he was joking so I paid no attention to what he said, but continued our conversation, for a few minutes. Then he stopped and wanted to know if that bunch was for sale. I said we were always in the market to do business, and that I would sell anything I had, except my wife. Then he insisted on my setting a price on the whole bunch. I thought he had the hen fever pretty bad, so I told him to let things rest for a few days, and I would see him. I wanted him to have his own way (never act greedy in making a sale). I saw him in a few days. He was still determined to have that bunch of Reds, so I gave him my price. He gave me his check, and I delivered the goods. Little did I think he came to buy stock, and he has proved a living advertisement for me ever since.

Now it is my greatest delight to help any one, that is if they value good honest advice, so I will say to those who feel I can do you good, just tell me your troubles. Under no consideration would I sell any of our Leghorns or Reds to any party who thought more of another breed. That is if the other breed was their favorite, for I know my birds in their hands would suffer, and they would make a failure of the business. I have many who started in the poultry business, who have followed my advice, as near as possible, and they have made a "Great Hit," as we sometimes say (in the poultry business.) I have written this bit of news for two reasons: first, to make the impression on the beginner that he must start with the best stock he can afford to buy if he wishes to avoid the blues, on a start; for if he gets good stock to start with he is bound to raise some fine ones, and they will keep off the blues.

Second, I appeal to the man who has stock or eggs to sell. To him I would say, be patient with the beginners' letters and questions. I know we all have lots to do but if you expect to be any good to your fellow men, the ladies included, this means sacrifice sometimes, you must give them a bird that is worth some more than they can afford to pay; but let them have it; they will be so much the better satisfied, and become a living advertisement for you. Besides this, they have a model to go by, which is a big help to them.

PARTRIDGE COCHINS

MITCHELL STRAIN

My hobby, "Highest Grade Birds only." Among my winnings this year in Partridge Cochins, not counting a clean sweep at minor shows, are Allentown 2-3-4 cock, 2-3-4 hen. Trenton 1-2 cock, 1-2-3 hen. Male takes special for best Cochin shown. Hagerstown 2-4 cock, 1-2-3 hen. 1st hen takes special for best bird in Asiatic class and special for best female Cochin shown. Note, that the above awards in these three shows were taken by right different females. Last season at Philadelphia took 1-2 cock, 2-4 hen, and 1st on pullet; at Baltimore 1-2 cock, 1-2-3 hen, 1 pullet. Philadelphia 1-2-3 cock, 2-3-4 hen, 3 ekl, 1 hen, 1-2 pen. My only exhibit in light Brahmans so far as Trenton, where five single entries took four blues. No stock in Partridge Cochins for sale until after the big shows. In Light Brahmans I have some fine yearling cocks and hens to spare.

Royal Columbian Plymouth Rocks

Again Outclass All Competitors

At America's premier exhibition, BOSTON, JANUARY 1912, where the annual meeting of The American Columbian Plymouth Rock Club was held, which brought out the best birds from all sections, North, East, South and West, our "Royals" on six entries simply out-classed all competitors by winning:

1st cock, 1st and 6th cockerel, 1st pen, 2nd pullet and 3rd hen. Cash sweepstake special for best display, cash special for best cockerel in the class; Silver Cup for best surface colored male and the President's cash special for the best Columbian Plymouth Rock in the show, male or female. Also the beautiful specials offered by the American Columbian Plymouth Rock Club for best shaped male and best colored male.

A grand total of more first prizes than all other competitors combined; double the number of Special Prizes of any other exhibitor and every First and Special Prize offered on males.

This great Championship record stands alone and unequalled—an achievement that has never been approached by any other Columbian Plymouth Rock exhibitor in the history of the Boston Show, and proves beyond all question of doubt the superiority of our "Royal Strain" and substantiates the fact that they still remain undisputed champions.

Our birds possess quality in every sense that the term implies. Excellent layers, large in size, typical Rock type, fine head points and the clean "Royal" color, free from the smoky, splashed effect in body and fluff feathering that is so undesirable.

EGGS FOR HATCHING

Our breeding pens for 1912 have been mated with great care. They not only contain the sons and daughters of our "Royal" Champions, but are headed by noted sires themselves. From these we will sell eggs at $10.00 per 15 and we urge every Columbian Rock fancier who appreciates extreme high quality to write us before purchasing elsewhere. Other breeders may sell you eggs for less money but when you buy of us you secure quality that cannot be duplicated. Descriptive circular free.

Norman L. Kising, Bel Air, Md., just returned from an extended trip among southern breeders, a full account of which will appear in the March issue.

Some associations have lost money by offering a Madison Square prize on a small entry and 25c. admission. Just as we said before, it can't be otherwise.

Our policy remains the same, and we still think the men who raise chickens are the men who should make the Standard. Let the newspaper men stay on the outside. We have had too much editor in the past.

Well now—they say Linkey Orr is a full-fledged judge. We can see it all. Now Linkey has an editorial Bee and hence Linkey is opposed to Rule 17. Linky get on the right side of the fence before it is everlasting and eternally too late.

Just show this issue of The Fancier to your friends and tell them we have one price and one quality. Let every old subscriber send in as many new ones as he can. We have no special half-price coupon. We charge Mike the same as John—25c, to everybody.

The judging question is a joke—is it? Just read what the Penna. Branch did—Rule 17 was unanimously endorsed. Wow!

Rock Hill Farm has a thousand young chicks already. That's going some. Corey is too busy to express himself in this issue on the judging question.

He who lives to start a fight and runs away, lives to fight some other day. We have no reference to a man by the name of Black, Brown, Green, Pink, Blue,—but some other color. And the fight is the judging question, too. Well, neither side wants a man who shows a yellow streak.

There was a banquet at Chestnut Hill Show that we could get no particulars about. We understand it was a very select gathering, however, and that Bill Bailey was toast-master. Just why no particulars were given for publication, I am at a loss to understand. Perhaps Kenner could explain.

It is rumored that a new association of importance is to be organized, called the Honorable and Ancient order of Tramp Solicitors. Its object is to keep the postage the same, and to prevent some publications from charging double postage at one end of the booth and passing out a 25c. coupon at the other thus charging some people 50c for what can be gotten for 25c, (Well, that sounds pretty good). Another object is to create a sinking fund to help standard members to get away from shows when excessive booth space is charged. (Well that sounds good). Another object is to petition the Pullman company for lower rates, so they won't need to travel by freight. (Well, that's good, too). A meeting will be held at Pittsburg where Danny Cavanaugh will explain the benefits to be derived from membership. Only those who have experienced the heavy hand of the dying trust are eligible.

Baltimore Bay water had a very peculiar effect on the boys who attended the banquet or oyster roast. It made Hamburg Bill Minnick smile like a Billigan Baby. It made Geo. O. Brown feel 20 years younger. It made Charley Matsinger say there was no place on earth like Baltimore. It made Joe. Reiff say Fayetteville was a slow place to this. It made Bob Seaman put his glasses on upside down. It made Joe Street weak at the ankles. It made Louey Graham look like a goat. It made Charley Diefenderfer think of the Great White Way. It put Dickey Oke temporarily out of the business and he declared himself in favor of reciprocity. It made Gustavus Braun have a funny feeling in the Belly. It made Bantams look like Egyptian Geese to John Kriner. It made Ben Thornton keep quiet. It made the subscription solicitors collect more postage. Oh yes, that Baltimore Bay water is a wonderful remedy for all Poultrymen's troubles, and no wonder they gather there to unload their troubled minds.

To the Members of the R. I. Red Club of America

On account of the illness of the Secretary-Treasurer of our club, Mr. W. F. Burleigh, of Larrabees Point, Vt., he has been unable to attend to the duties of the office for the past few weeks, and has tendered his resignation, which took effect on Nov. 21st.

You will all regret to learn that Mr. Burleigh is paralyzed from the waist down, and has no use whatever of his lower limbs, and is moved about in a wheel chair.

Learning that the duties of the office were not receiving attention I took pains to ascertain the cause, with the above result, and have appointed Mr. W. H. Card of Manchester, Conn., to fill the unexpired term of this office.

There are doubtless many of our members who have not received answers to their inquiries, or acknowledgments for remittances, on account of the conditions existing, and one of the motives in sending this circular letter is to request such to communicate at once with Mr. Card, who will attend to all matters of the club as promptly as possible.

You will of course realize that it will take a little time for Mr. Card to get the affairs of the club well in hand, and I trust that your patience and kind cooperation will be extended to him.

Club prizes, ribbons, cups, etc., and remittances will receive prompt attention.

I understand that the copy for Red Hen Tales was placed in the hands of the printer just before Mr. Burleigh was stricken, but that the proofs for same were not read. This will be attended to at once, and the issue of Red Hen Tales gotten out and mailed to our members just as soon as possible.

Please report all neglect or inattention of any nature whatsoever to W. H. Card, Sec'y-Treas., Manchester, Conn.

Thanking our members for their extreme loyalty to the interests of our club and breed, and assuring them that I shall at all times do all in my power to advance its and their interests, I am

Yours faithfully

White Wyandottes

No variety can be more popular for their compact, well rounded, broad deep bodies and breast, YELLOW SKIN, and meat of the finest texture that makes the ideal table fowl. Their quick maturing qualities again commend them for egg production

THEY HAVE NO EQUAL. The White Wyandottes will be found to be excellent winter layers, laying the bulk of their eggs in the cold winter months when the single comb varieties are taking their vacation. They lay when the Market is the highest, therefore the White Wyandottes.

Lay More Dollars' Worth of Eggs Than Any Other Breed.

Another advantage of the White Wyandottes over other breeds is the close-fitting comb. A frosted comb means to check egg production at once with all single comb varieties. With our White Wyandottes this never occurs, even in the coldest weather, in the extreme north. All in all, we have in the White Wyandottes more good utilitarian qualities than are found in any other breed. They will satisfy and please you, and as a source of income will give you a larger per cent, on the investment than any other variety you may invest in. As to exhibition qualities our White Wyandottes have upheld our claim of

The World's Best

in such shows as Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Indianapolis, San Antonio, Nashville, Springfield, Columbus, Memphis, Birmingham, Atlanta, Louisville, Lexington, New Orleans, and in fact at all the leading shows of the country. You will evidently come to us to improve your stock. Why not do so now? Exhibition birds by the hundreds that will win. Send for our catalogue, full of valuable information, you should have. # BLACK LANGSHANS

Summit and Black Diamond-Strains have stood the test for more than a quarter of a century and have rightly and justly won the reputation of The Best in America. Winners at Madison Square, Grand Central Palace Red Bank and Philadelphia, unquestionably the largest and best flock of Black Langshans on the American Continent.

AS EGG PRODUCERS

The Black Langshans have always been considered the greatest of all winter layers. They can stand more cold weather and endure more hardships than any other breed and they lay during weather when other breeds will not. They lay a large, brown egg of superior flavor and my strains have been bred for heavy laying since their foundation.

AS SHOW BIRDS

They need no introduction. The Summit and Black Diamond strains of which I am now the sole owner, have won many blue ribbons in all parts of the land and will during the season of 1912. Their unmatched record at Grand Central Palace, Madison Square and Philadelphia substantiate the statement of the best in America. I can furnish you

SHOW BIRDS THAT CAN WIN—BREEDERS THAT WILL PRODUCE THEM

Let me quote you prices on these Langshans. The breed that has come to the front with leaps and bounds; all because they deserve it; new varieties boomed by extensive advertising flourished for a while but the Langshans has stood the test of the most severe kind and as for beauty, stateliness and productiveness both for eggs and meat they are unmatched wins at Grand Central Palace Show.

White Wyandotte male "Chief Winimac." Owned and bred by Chas. V. Keeler, Winimac, Ind.

It had long been our desire to visit the Grove Hill Poultry Yards, Wm. Ellery Bright, prop., and on Monday morning following the Great Boston Show, that desire was gratified. We have for a number of years noted the splendid quality of B. P. Rocks and S. C. Brown Leghorns exhibited by the Grove Hill Poultry Yards, but hardly expected to find such a general class of top notch birds as we found at this place.

We did not see a poor bird in either the Rock or Leghorn class, but we did find every yard replete with that splendid superiority for which Mr. Bright's birds have been noted in so show were: Cock, 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th; hen, 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th; cockerel, 1st, 2nd, 4th; pullets, 1st, 2nd, 4th, 6th, 7th; 1st and 2nd exhibition pens; 1st yard mated for exhibition cockerels; 1st yard mated for exhibition pullets; champion male, champion female, together with nine cups on specials. At this same show, on two entries of S. C. Brown Leghorns, they won 1st yard for exhibition cockerels and 1st yard for exhibition pullets. I cannot remember of ever having heard of such a sweeping and important victory as the above and it certainly stamps upon the mind of the Poultry Public with an indelible persistency, the increas-many of our greatest show rooms. There are few breeders of our acquaintance, but who can pick out an occasional high class bird for show purposes, but it has seldom, if ever, been my pleasure to go through pen after pen where quality of the winning kind was in such universal evidence. I soon discovered the reason why the Grove Hill Poultry Yards were not more deeply concerned over the loss of six of their Rocks that were shipped to the Great Topeka, Kansas, Show; for they walked right into this big show, without the above six birds, and carried away every first competed for in the Barred Rock alley; even to first prize on yard mated for exhibition cockerels and first prize on yard mated for exhibition pullets, together with the greatly coveted prizes of champion male and female. Their total winnings at this one great ing popularity of Mr. Bright's birds. And, by the way, Mr. Bright's first hen at the Topeka, Kansas, Show, was the pullet that created such a sensation at the "Garden" last year and was adjudged by many expert B. P. Rock breeders as the finest specimen in the show. It is needless to say that this hen defeated many of the most noted winners in the Great West, while one of her daughters carried away the "Blue" in the pullet class, a pullet of wonderful merit, typical in shape and sensational in barring. The great number of shows, including Chicago, Indianapolis, Washington, Philadelphia, Toronto, New Haven, Providence, as well as the Worlds' Fairs at Buffalo, St. Louis Exposition and Jamestown, at which Mr. Bright's Barred Rocks and Brown Leghorns have been winning the most coveted prizes for many years, is certainly worthy the most careful consideration of all who contemplate purchasing either stock or eggs for exhibition purposes, of either of the above named breeds, during the present season.

The Grove Hill Poultry Yards are ideally located, the houses all face the south and are built upon a gently sloping elevation, which insures good drainage and plenty of sunshine the year round. The yards are all roomy and well shaded with trees and grape vines, giving the whole plant a beautiful and artistic appearance, and lends to this plant a certain enchant-

Rheumatism

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price for it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay, write today.

W. E. Klinefelter, Mgr., Westtown, Penna

ment, during the summertime, not often seen on a poultry farm. Mr. Smith, the capable and congenial superintendent of the Grove Hill Poultry Yards, together with his efficient assistants, showed us every possible courtesy; to whom we were greatly indebted for the pleasant time we enjoyed while at Waltham. One of the special features on this plant, which especially attracted our attention, was the fine, healthy condition of all the birds. Not one sick bird did we see in all our round of inspection. Every bird aglow with healthy vigor and every eye sparkling with keenest delight. It was a real joy to behold and an experience the writer will not soon forget. Another feature we enjoyed was the careful, almost tender way in which Mr. Smith handled each bird. They all appeared to be his pets and seemed to appreciate the "touch of a master hand." Among the Leghorns we were treated to a real feast in both color and shape. That soft, unusual color, so eagerly sought by the Brown Leghorn breeder and so highly appreciated in the show room, while real Leghorn type was in evidence on every hand. It is no wonder Mr. Bright's Leghorns have the habit of winning the "Blue." They are built that way. We would like to have lingered longer among the Leghorns, but time was limited and the moments fast speeding on towards the close of the day, so we bid farewell to those "Brown Beauties" and hastened to the quarters of the B. P. Rocks. Here no disappointment awaited us. Conditions were simply as we had anticipated months before. Quality! Quality! Quality—Great Shape; Wonder-fur symmetry and matchless barring! "Those three," but it proved a difficult question to decide which was the greatest. Suffice it to say we have never seen as many dark or cockerel bred females with such harmony in surface coloring, while their under color was clear-cut and barred to the skin. Look out, boys, for exhibition cockerels another year from The Grove Hill Poultry Yards. The light colored or standard bred birds, in both males and females, are a glowing tribute to Mr. Smith's skill in mating barred Rocks, to produce highest quality exhibition birds. While the pullet bred cockerels or cockerels produced from matings bred for exhibition females, carried practically as good under color as the dark colored males, a result hard to accomplish as all experienced B. P. Rock breeders know. If quality, reinforced by years of scientific breeding, count in the production of unusual merit, the Rocks and Leghorns bred on the farm of Wm. Ellery Bright will naturally command the generous support of all true fanciers.

EDITOR'S NOTE.

This is something unusual, and shows the demand for stock of these breeds. It also proves conclusively the pulling power of advertising in Poultry Fancier, it also proves that the demand for well bred Poultry is really greater than the supply.

The Baltimore Show.

The annual exhibition of the Baltimore Poultry and Pigeon association held the first week in Jan. was beyond all doubt the finest show ever held in that place, and Baltimore is now in a class with New York and Boston. The classes were well filled and competition in Orpingtons Rocks Leghorns and Wyandottes was very keen. In order that all exhibitors get justice, we will not comment on the classes but let the reader draw his own conclusions from the full list of awards. It was one of the best managed and arranged shows we ever attended and Sec'y Brown and Supt. Matsinger and Kriner were highly commended on the excellent way they handled the show.

PICKED UP AFTER THE OYSTER ROAST.

A handsome loving cup was presented to Geo. O. Brown by the concession buyers. The win of Aldrich Farm was a good one in fact a great one. Col. May was in charge of the exhibit, and Mr. Aldrich spent the week there.

Matsinger is a past-master in the art of hauling a show.

Renovo has it the show will be held earlier next season.

Baltimore is noted for its many lady exhibitors, and they were in the winning too.

Yes, says I, what was Bill doing up so late? Nay, Nay, Pauline, there is no market at 3 A. M.

A great gathering of poultrymen that was! Everybody did a good business at Baltimore.

If you want all the Maryland news you will get it in the FANCIER.

Charley Diffenderfer says Baltimore will keep right on agoing and agrowing.

Dick Oke had a good time. Dick always enjoys himself at Baltimore.

And where was the Hagerstown bunch? Come Spahr—Baker, give an account of yourself.

It's the finest Exhibition Hall in the U.S.

We thank the people who attended the Baltimore Show for the excellent support

George O. Brown, Maryland's Grand Old Man, Secretary of the Big Baltimore Show.

Saylor of Louse Powder fame, was there and Dick Oke conferred the degree of M.D. on him so it is now Dr. Saylor.

Gus Brown had a severe attack of Milwaukeeitis.

A. J. Street, as usual, was all there in S. C. Buff Orps.

Geo. O. Brown never grows older. Well can he be called the Rock of Baltimore.

Bill Bailey was conspicuous by his absence. Shirk, Kinsell Spangler and Meyers come over from Hanover, and we have the assurance there will be only one show at Hanover and that will be the Fair Show. Wise men they.

Henry D. Riley spent a few days there and his Barred Rocks were very much there. Raab, Spatz and Smith represented the Dallas-town bunch.

RILEY'S BARRED PLYMOUTH ROCKS

A Triumph Seldom Approached and Never Equalled in one Season. A Grand Succession of Victories at Five of America's Leading Shows.

Whenever you see the "Bars" think of Riley's Rocks—Barred of course.

Williamsport, Pa., Four out of five Firsts. Coatesville, Pa., All five Firsts. Baltimore, Md., Four out of six Firsts. Camden, N. J., Four out of five Firsts, Madison Square Garden, 7th cock, 1st hen, 2nd cockerel, 4th and 6th pen. Color Special on both male and female. A grand total of 18 first prizes at five of America's leading shows.

My birds have been pronounced marvels of Barred Rock perfection by all. No Barred Rocks have been produced to equal my Madison Square Garden Color Special hen and cockerel, and they will stand as living examples for all time, as a standard to follow. My wonderful records for the past five years must thoroughly convince you that Riley's Rocks have established a record and reputation second to none in the country. This season I shall mate up the grandest lot of birds that have ever been found in any breeder's yards. My illustrated mating list will be issued about February 15 and every Barred Rock breeder should send for one. My greatest pleasure is to help my customers win. Elegant breeding cockerels or pens mated to produce winners always for sale. Write me your wants and rest assured I will do all in my power to help you. My best is at your disposal. Will you accept it?

Old Trusty Incubators

Famous the World Over—Sold for Less than $10—Freight Prepaid—30 to 90 Days' Free Trial—10 or 20 Years' Guarantee

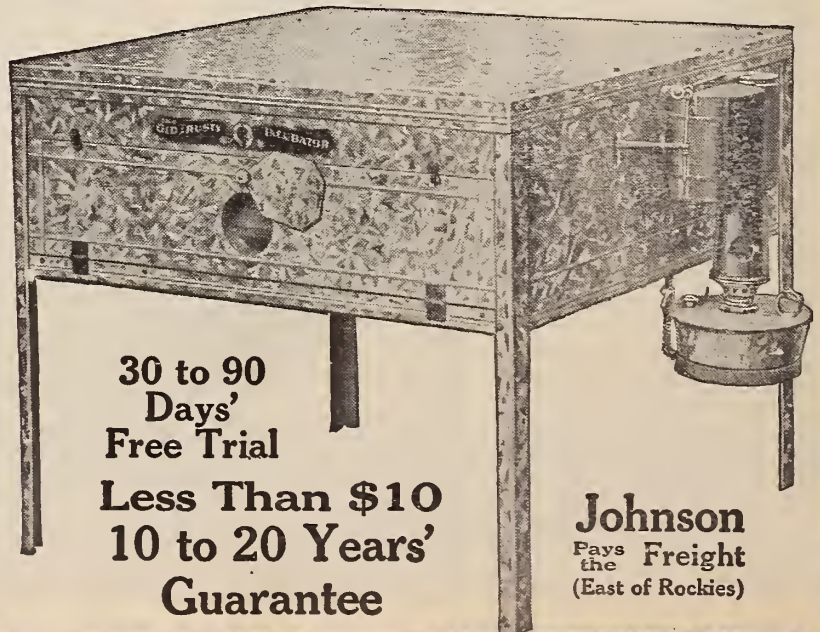

The Old Trusty is made like a watch—self-regulating to a quarter of a degree—guaranteed to give 75% better hatches. Read the brief description which gives proof of the superior quality of its construction.

Triple-cased throughout—inner case of high-grade 3/8-inch powder-dry California Redwood—middle case of highest grade asbestos—fire-proof insulation—outer case, legs and all, of galvanized metal, handsome mottle finish—equipped with guaranteed-not-to-leak cold-rolled copper tank and heater—indestructible—can't warp, swell, or open at the seams—with best thermometer, egg-tester, trays, and instructions—ready to run with sure results by anyone—no trouble—worry—or experimenting. Safety lamp and regulator fitted on at side—top clear for use as table in egg-testing.

The best machine of any kind always has the largest sale. That's why the Old Trusty outsells any five other machines made—every year. And it's because Johnson sells five times as many machines as any other maker that he can make such a low price on the highest-quality patented machine made. No other manufacturer can equal the Old Trusty—because Johnson owns the patents that prevent them from doing so. Every exclusive feature of the Old Trusty is patented—so you can get them only from Johnson. Write for Free Book Today. When he sends the Book Johnson will tell you for how much less than $10 he'll sell you an Old Trusty. Why pay double Johnson's price for a machine of inferior quality? Why not join the Old Trusty family of 325,000 satisfied customers? Read their experience and let their success point the road to your success. Poultry is going to bring big money this year—there are big profits to be had. Why not start right in the beginning—and get the best machine at the smallest outlay? Address

Oaklands Poultry Farm

During the war of the Revolution the State of New Jersey was the scene of many a conflict between the forces of King George and the Patriots, and in our travels through the State many houses and spots are pointed out to us as being the harboring place or the headquarters of the immortal "Father of his Country," George Washington. Several miles outside of the City of Trenton is what is known as the Reeder Farm; this farm had been in the Reeder family for upwards of two hundred years. The Continental army led by Gen. Washington crossed this farm on their march to engage the British, crossing the Delaware at a point a short distance from the farm.

This famed old farm is now known as the Oaklands Poultry Farm. Several years ago Mr. F. W. Roebing, Sr. as a diversion from business cares, started a Poultry Plant at the Trenton Country Club; he looked long and far for a suitable man to superintend this plant, until a friend recommended Mr. Wm. C. Bowman as a man capable to handle the poultry business successfully. Mr. Bowman at the time was successfully conducting another poultry farm, but seeing in an offer made to him by Mr. Roebing an opportunity for a wider sphere of usefulness in the poultry business he accepted the proposition and in an incredibly short space of time he convinced Mr. Roebing that his friend knew of what he speaketh when he recommended Mr. Bowman. Under his skillful management the poultry business paid and kept paying, which created in Mr. Roebing a desire to do bigger and better things, and in order to give Mr. Bowman opportunity to expand and ample room for their constantly growing business, he purchased the "Historic old Farm" above mentioned.

The farm consists of 150 acres, all of it tillable, and a visit to this farm will convince the most skeptical that here is where "they do things." A glance is enough to convince you that a master mind is in charge.

The houses are all built after Mr. Bowman's own design and admirably suited to every requirement. There are two breeding and laying houses each of a capacity of 2,000 breeders. These houses have an alley way the entire length; from this alley the eggs can be gathered without going into the pens. The pens are wired in the back, but in cold weather, curtains are put over the wire. The floor of the houses were originally earth, but they have been excavated and board floors substituted, leaving a space underneath, which relieves the apparent dampness. The houses are well lighted, and if there is any sunshine, the birds get their share. The house for exhibition matings is 240 feet long, constructed after the plan of the other laying and breeding houses. The pens are 10 by 19 feet, and as each mating consists of four to five females and one male, it follows that they have plenty of room. The houses have double runs, insuring plenty of green food at all times.

Colony coops are scattered over the various fields on the farm; into these the chicks are placed when they are six to eight weeks of age. Hall Mammoth machines are used for hatching and they have over a 20,000 eggs capacity. The brooding is also the Hall system, only Mr. Bowman uses a device of his own invention and construction that causes the heat to be near the outside edge preventing crowding and overheating, in consequence of which white diarrhoea is unknown at Oaklands. They have a brooding capacity of 8000 chicks.

The varieties bred upon the Oaklands Farm are a 242 egg strain, S. C. White Leghorns, White Wyandottes, Silver Penciled Rocks, S. C. Rhode Island Reds and White African Guineas. The business of Oaklands consists of selling baby chicks, eggs for hatching, stock for breeding as well as for exhibition.

They also cater to the fancy egg trade, but of course the Farm's pride is their show record year after year. We have seen their birds at the big Allentown Fair Show, and year after year have witnessed their triumph over all comers. This year, though crippled by heavy sales of show birds, they won 1st Cockerel, 1, 2, 5th hen, 4th and 5th cockerel and 4th pullet; while they also won 1st prize for best dozen eggs, also cup for best dozen eggs in Show, 64 dozen competing. They won everything at the Flemington Show, and also won a big victory at Mount Holly as follows: Cockerel, 1, 2; Hen 1, 2; Cockerel 2; Pullet 2, 4; Pens 1st. Their winning cockerel also winning gold special for best display. At Grand Central Palace, New York they won on Silvers 1st cockerel and 1st and 2d pullet, and at Madison Square Garden 6th pen Leghorns, as well as on Guineas at both places. It goes to show that Oaklands has more than one good bird as they made two Shows in one week, both of them full of competition, showing at Trenton and Madison Square Garden the same time. At Trenton their winnings were 1st and 2d cock; 1st, 2, 4th hen; 1st and 4th pullet; 2d and 3d cockerel and 1st and 2d pen, winning the North American Cup for best pullet in the show; Silver Cup for best hen and Silver Cup for best pen, as well as five other Silver Cups, making a total of eight Cups at one show.

The Oaklands Poultry Farm is a ten minute walk from either the trolley terminus or the Philadelphia & Reading Railway station at Trenton Junction, and visitors are welcome.

A word in closing about the good work done by Mr. Bowman as a judge; he placed the awards on the Mediterranean classes at the Inter State Fair at Trenton, and made a record for himself as a conscientious capable judge, his work in the hot class of S. C. White Leghorns being considered perfect by Mr. Theo Wittman and others. This skill in picking the best birds is of invaluable aid to the customers of the Oaklands Poultry Farm, as when you send for a show bird to win at a show, Mr. Bowman knows how to select them for you, and he certainly can pick the best birds.

The Latest, Most Modern and Up-to-date Hub Incubator and Brooders

The Hot Water Tubular Tank is made of heavy Cold-rolled Copper, and will last a lifetime with proper care. The water is heated in the boiler at the end of the tank, and circulates quickly in both directions through the outer tube, returning to the boiler through the central tube. The large tube, extending around the entire outer edge of the egg chamber applies the heat directly to the parts which are the first to be affected by outside changes of temperature. The central pipe is the return pipe, and acts as a syphon, forcing and maintaining a continuous and rapid circulation of the water. This equalizes the heating and radiating surfaces, and helps to maintain a uniform temperature throughout the entire egg chamber.

The Heat Retaining and Distributing Bars absorb the heat, and then distribute it equally to all parts of the egg chamber, producing an absolutely uniform temperature and resulting in a saving of 33 1-2 per cent. of oil over the ordinary tank.

As this incubator is heated both by radiation from hot tubular pipes and radiating bars as well as by warm fresh air, all the energy of the lamp in the way of heat is utilized. Therefore, there is much saving in oil or gas, for the incubator can be run with gas as well as with a kerosene lamp.

This method of heating assures an absolutely even distribution of heat over the eggs.

The supply of fresh warmed air is entirely under the control of the operator, so that, as the hatch progresses and the developing germs need more oxygen, it can easily be supplied, and that without lowering or altering the temperature in the incubator.

Prices—100 egg, Iron clad $10; 100 egg, Regular $15; 200 egg, Regular $25.

We also manufacture a Tried and True Hot Air Incubator and improved visible brooder. Send for literature that you should read before buying a machine.

The annual meeting of the Water Fowl Club of America was held at Madison Square Garden, New York, Wednesday Dec. 20, 1911.

The President, Eugene Sites, of Elyria, Ohio, being unable to attend the meeting Louis B. Schram, of Brooklyn, was chosen to act as chairman.

The members of the Club present were—Louis B. Schram, Clarence King, John Kriner, A. B. Dalby, Thos. Norris, Frank Sites, P. K. Hudson, F. G. Riggs, Mrs. W. P. Masten, E. H. Morris, Gaebel Bros., Wm. Hobbs, Rufus Delafield, Arthur Gough, R. Y. Evans and Miss Sara Little.

The following officers were elected for the year 1912, viz: Louis B. Schram, 60 Hamilton Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., Pres.; A. B. Dalby, Red Bank, N. J. Vice Pres.; Mrs. W. P. Masten, Pleasant Valley, N. Y., Sec'y-Treas.

Thirty-one new members were added to the Club and the Sec'y-Treas. reported a nice balance in the Treasury.

A committee of three, Louis B. Schram, A. B. Dalby and Mrs. W. P. Masten, were appointed to revise the by-laws of the club and motion was made and carried that a list of the members of the Water Fowl Club for 1912 be printed and sent to each member.

A proposition was made and referred to the committee on Revision of By Laws that all birds entered in the young bird classes bear an official closed leg band, showing the year of hatching.

Miss Sara Little and Mr. Rufus Delafield were appointed auditing committee.

The Water Fowl Club at present is in a flourishing condition and we trust that all interested in Water Fowl will avail themselves of the opportunity of becoming members of the Club. Membership fee of $1.00 may be sent to the Sec'y-Treas., Mrs. W. P. Masten, Pleasant Valley, Dutchess Co., New York.

ALL HATCHING RECORDS BROKEN
In 8 States by 8 Different Users of
ESSEX MODEL INCUBATOR

This is a wonderful record but it is true and we can supply ample proof of our claim. This record is more wonderful because eight different people in eight different states with eight different Essex machines accomplished the same results. Besides, one of them hatched every hatchable egg four times in succession. Further proof of Essex superiority is unnecessary. We want you to share in our success by using an Essex model incubator. After one trial we know you will need no further urging to continue their use and, as your needs require, buy more of them. Built in three styles and seventeen sizes, from $2.25 to $48.00. The Essex models are the result of a life-time study and experimenting, backed by Robert H. Essex, with an aim to producing a perfect incubator. In this we have succeeded and have made the Essex models the best built.

We also manufacture brooders that "mother the chicks better than a hen"—a complete line of every accessory for poultry raising.

Our 1912 book is more than just a catalog, it is also a valuable volume of reference containing five chapters written by Mr. Essex himself whose twenty-five years experience in all branches of poultry business makes his word and judgment good authority to go by.

This valuable book is free to you and contains:

- (I)—"When you Start—Start Right. How to Get Started."
  - (II)—"How to Get More Profits From Hens."
  - (III)—"How Money is Made from Standard-breds and Show-birds."
  - (IV)—"How to Build a Low-Cost Farm Poultry House." (With plans)
  - (V)—"How to Build a Woman Fancier's House." (With plans.)

OFFICIAL GUIDE

You cannot raise fows intelligently without a copy of the American Standard of Perfection the Official guide of Poultry Culture

THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION is published by the American Poultry Association and is the American authority [United States and Canada] on the required characteristic of all Breeds and Varieties of Chickens, Ducks, Turkeys and Geese. Every poultryman should have a copy of the new American Standard of Perfection. All the Standard requirements as to shape, color and markings of all standard breeds of poultry are clearly described and illustrated in the new work.

You cannot tell the value of your birds unless you know the Standard requirements. You cannot enter the show room and win unless you know these requirements. In short, you cannot succeed in the poultry business without possessing a copy of this book.

Buff Leghorns—1st and 2d, John I. Taylor.

Single Comb Black Minorcas—1st, A. W. T. Healey.

We hope our readers will come to realize more fully the value of the home garden, as a source of profit, saving, and a means of better living.

Perhaps if every farmer made a more careful study of garden implements and had modern, easy working tools, he would take more interest in his garden.

This question of tools—the planter the rake, the hoe, the cultivator, the sprayer, etc., needs more thorough study. Too many gardeners, farm gardeners, do not realize what the proper tools can do for them toward making the garden more profitable, more pleasant and produce better quality. Make your gardening easier and you will like it better. And you can only make it easier by using the best tools. Maybe you don't know what there really is for you in the way of garden tools. You should investigate modern gardening implements. Their cost need not prevent your owning them, for most of them will pay for themselves each year.

We cannot urge our readers too strongly, no matter what kind of garden they have, to get familiar with modern tools. Bateman M'fg Co., Box Z103, Grenloch, N. J., will gladly send you their garden tool booklets. Write them. They have tools for many purposes, big and small; also sprayers. They can "fit you."

Twelve Month's Work in the Poultry Yard

BY W. THEO. WITTMAN

Acknowledged by all to be one of America's Foremost Authorities and Judges.

Starts you in January, and takes you clear through the year—telling you just what to do to successfully handle your fowls in the safest and most economical way that is consistent with good business methods, to make the largest success possible with your fowls.

It does not tell you how to make $200 from 20 hens

But, it gives you a short, boiled down, and up-to-date treatise on lines that are practical and can be executed with safety. The contents of this book are intensely practical, and to teach a method of poultry keeping, exactly opposite to that which is complicated and unnecessary. On the other hand Twelve Month's Work has been purposely chosen to emphasize the fact that the successful poultryman will find work to do, twelve months in the year. For regularity and attention to small details, all of the time, and in season, are prime factors of success in the business. PRICE 25c.

"A Good Garden Makes a Good Table."

Certainly no class of people should enjoy a more bountifully supplied table than the farmer. If his garden is good, he "sets a good table." Otherwise, his stomach pays the bill, and we fear too many stomachs are settling unjust accounts!

The possibilities of the garden are unlimited—except by ourselves; that is, by how we direct our energy. Too frequently our gardens receive no particular attention. Work in many instances is never definitely planned. It is put off from day to day, waiting, as an odd job, to be cared for when there is nothing else to do; and those times are seldom found on farms to-day.

A BIG WIN.

While attending the Schenectady, N. Y. show, we had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Underhill, Prop'r. of the Underhill Farms, Ft. Ann, N. Y. and we also had the pleasure of seeing his birds, and we are safe in saying that the exhibit made by Mr. Underhill in Light Brahmans, R. C. Reds, White Rocks, White Leghorns, Buff Orpingtons, Indian Runner Ducks, and Bronze Turkeys, was as fine an exhibit as we had the pleasure of seeing this season.

The Underhill Farms have 200 acres devoted to Poultry, and is conceded to be one of the best and most reliable establishments in the Empire State.

Ft. Ann, is situated 30 miles north of Saratoga Springs. It would be well worth your while to go and see the "Down To the Minute" Poultry Plant.

Is It Right? No.

When a certain judge is selected to judge a class of birds by the management of the show, and is catalogued to judge that class of birds, and because the judge selected met the approval of the breeders and an exceedingly large entry was brought out on the strength of the good judgment of the judge selected, is it right for the management of the show to place another judge on the class, where the judge selected was present at the show? This is a straight from the shoulder question. I am asking exhibitors. Our answer is, No, it is not right. But circumstances sometimes alter cases, but if circumstances do alter cases, then the exhibitors should have the right to withdraw their birds from competition if they so desire. And we think the management of the show should notify the exhibitors to this effect. We are not asking our readers to read between the lines. That is against our policy with a big P. We have reference to the Black Orpington Class at the recent Madison Square Garden Show, when a Mr. Sikes was placed on the class, a name not even appearing on the judging list at all. This certainly went down like castor oil and salts to the exhibitors. This is something else for the show rule committee to think about and we believe Mr. Crawford is on the committee.

IS IT WRONG? YES.

Is it wrong for poultry journals to publish the awards of their advertisers only. Sure it is dead wrong, we think. Suppose for instance, the people from the Central West want the report of the New York, Boston, Baltimore, or Philadelphia Shows, they are interested in the awards to be sure, and they pick up a journal and find the wards of our advertisers only, and the class he is interested in their advertiser only won 3 and 4, I believe he wants to know who won 1 and 2. And so it is with the people of the East, we want to know who won at Cleveland, Chicago, etc. Some claim this is protecting their advertisers. Perhaps it is, but we are not in favor of this kind of protection. We claim the subscriber has a right to know the name of the man who beat the advertiser. We are not going to withhold this information from the general public in order to protect the advertisers. We are going to give it all or none, and we will publish the full awards of all shows that we are officially represented at. This has always been the writer's policy, and we believe the time is not far distant when the poultry public will demand this.

IS IT RIGHT? NO.

Just why it is, that show secretaries will permit catalogues to get in the judges hands the evening and morning before they start work has always been a mystery to me, and yet when this catalogue is in their possession they even have the aisles closed. Wouldn't it be better to leave the aisles open and keep the catalogue from them? Or wouldn't it be better still to keep the catalogues away from them and the aisles closed, too? We don't say the judges having catalogues are crooked, but it doesn't look right, and the public these days is so suspecting, too, that it would be well to take every precaution so they wouldn't think it was crooked. And then judges as a rule have such good memories, and the public knows this too. Considering all these things it would be well not to let the judge have a catalogue, and if if he does get one against the will and wishes of the management, then we can take for granted he is trying to find something out he shouldn't know. No hard feelings, boys. Just think it over, and see if this shouldn't at least be mentioned to the committee that is revising the show rules. Let us clean the cellar too when the general housecleaning time comes.

Pennsylvania Has Spoken.

Yes, and it didn't mince matters the least bit. The Penna. A. P. A., at its annual meeting at Scranton, Pa., passed a resolution unanimously endorsing rule 17 against soliciting editors judging.

All over the great Keystone state the sentiment is strong against soliciting editor judges. W. Theo. Wittman received every vote but three cast on his stand pat position on this all important question. This shows which way the wind is blowing, prominent men. "Poultrymen" in all parts of the country are supporting the Fancier's stand on the judging question, and it is beyond all doubt the most important question that has ever been before the American Poultry Association, and we are certainly going to stand pat and fight it to a finish. But we believe this rule is going to pass by an overwhelming majority, and notwithstanding the fact that for some reasons or influences several other poultry publications who were in favor of it have run up a "white flag." Well not for us as long as the Eagle is on the cover. He is a game bird and stood many hard raps. And sure he will be Johnny on-the-spot when the roll is called at the next A. P. A. meeting. Now the old Keystone state has spoken.

I, F. W. DeLancey, Editor and Manager of Poultry Fancier, do hereby certify, that on Tuesday, Jan. 23, 1912, upwards of 1,000 new subscriptions were received at the office of the Poultry Fancier, Sellersville, Pa.

Thomas F. McGrew, of Scranton, Pa., will be a candidate for President. That is an assured fact and he was endorsed by the Penna. Branch, and when the resolution was read to endorse him, round after round of applause greeted the Grand Old Man from Penna., a man who has given the best years of his life to the upbuilding of the poultry industry, a man whose name is known from ocean to ocean, a man who is loved and respected by every one, a man who has served almost a score of years on the executive board, a man who has always tempered justice with mercy, and has dealt with others as he would have others deal with him, a man who has the experience and the ability to cope with the many important problems that are now confronting the A. P. A. McGrew is the man who is needed now. It is not a case of the man asking the office; it is the office seeking the man. McGrew has no faction to serve if elected, which we believe he will be. He will be the President of the whole association and we believe with his firm hand dealing out justice that the existing evils will be corrected and that the association will be run in the interests of the many and not the few. We appeal to every member of the A. P. A. to vote for McGrew, and let every member in Penna. cast his vote for the nomination and the election of this man who is so worthy of filling this office, for surely no man is more deserving of the office than he is. Vote, and Vote for McGrew.

Allentown-Sellersville.

Sounds good to me. Well that is where this issue of the Fancier comes from. You know where Allentown is, just an hour's ride from Sellersville. You surely know they hold a fair there and with that fair is connected a chicken show, and a fellow by the name of Whittman runs that show, and by gosh it is some show, says Jimmy Glasgow. Well that is the same Allentown. Our Chicago office has been discontinued and moved to Allentown. Yes, sir, the same Allentown. And there will be located the publication office of the Fancier, and this issue is printed in one of the best equipped printing plants in the state, and additional machinery of the latest improved type is now being installed to produce what it is our ambition to make—the finest poultry journal in this broad land, and we are going to work everlastingly until we accomplish our ambition. We naturally won't have time to look at the (Inside Confetti) Bricks that our competitors throw at us. We are just going to keep on agoing. And now what will we do about Sellersville? Stay right here. Sure thing. Here is where the writer lives. I have a home here and will devote my time equally between the two offices. When you come to Allentown come in to see us. Lots of chicken men there. You know that is the home of The Allentown Fancier's Association, and we can show you a royal time. If you come to Sellersville come in to see us. You don't need a card, or even to rap at the door. Walk in and make yourself at home. Don't start to kick and we will treat you right. Address all correspondence, as usual, to Sellersville, Pa., just the same as in the past. Make special note of this. All mail to Sellersville, Pa.

Now With the Fancier.

This issue of the Fancier was gotten out under the direction of E. R. McCork who is Superintendent of the Mechanical Department of the Fancier. Mr. McCork is an old experienced veteran printer and make-up man, and for years before the writer went to the Item McCork was there He knows how to put a paper up that meets the requirements of the Fancier, and with a brand new equipment at his command, the best that can be had, we know he is going to produce a journal second to none. We were greatly handicapped this month, by the installation of new machinery, but we are on time nevertheless. Thanks to the untiring ability at the mechanical end.

Nature's Food for Newly Hatched Chicks, Turkeys and Pheasants

"F. P. C. CHICK MANNA"

TO BE FEED FOR THE FIRST 10 DAYS

Introduced in 1884 and has since had a continued increasing demand. Has been thoroughly tried and tested by leading poultry raisers and with the numbers of satisfied customers proves to be a food of unusual merits. It is unlike other ordinary chick feeds that are commonly composed of grain and seeds.

A TRIAL WILL CONVINCIVE OF ITS MERITS

First 10 days Food

"They not only like it but thrive on it."

Special discount to those buying in large quantities.

CHICK MANNA.

Every Poultry raiser should know the value of this feed for starting chicks and turkeys strong healthy, vigorous and well developed. It is specially prepared for bringing the tender little creatures through the most critical period—the first 10 days—by regulating and strengthening their fine and tender organs, and thereby being better able to withstand the diseases they are subject to. Is a complete food in every respect requiring nothing more for the first 10 days than F. P. C. Chick Manna.

CANADA'S BEST

S. & R. C. Black Minorcas

Have proven themselves America's best which means "The Best in the World." At the American Black Minorca Club show at Philadelphia December 1911 they won the director's $50.00 cup for best collection, also President's cup for best cock, hen, cockerel and pullet, 172 S. C. Black Minorcas in the class and the best ever shown in America. At same show I won on R. C. Black Minorcas every 1st and 2nd prize. This makes two years in succession I won the director's cup for best collection at the A. B. M. Club show, America's Greatest Minorca Show.

The Ontario Provincial Winter Show at Grulph, Canada's greatest show (was held the same week as Philadelphia) where I did not exhibit, S. C. Black Minorcas produced from eggs we sold, won at Grulph December 1911 S. C. cock 1st and 2nd, hen 2nd, cockerel 1st, 2nd and 4th, pullet 3rd. I consider that a better adv. than if I had done the winning. I will sell the balance of my stock at the same old reasonable prices. My sales have not been as large for S. C. pullets as other lines and for a while will sell good S. C. pullets at $5.00 a pair. All eggs $10.00 per 15.

A Record

On the 23rd day of Jan. over 1,000 new subscribers were received at our office. We are inclined to think this lowers some records along subscription lines and should certainly convince the doubtful that there is room for the Fancier. Our subscription department is swamped. We are thankful, indeed, for the loyal support given the Fancier from all parts of the country. Let the good work continue. Send us in a new subscriber. You can get them. Show this issue to your friends. Tell them it costs but 25c. the year, one price and one quality. We will appreciate the least you can do.

Correction

The address of W. L. Hornung, whose ad. appears on page 15 of this issue should be Greenburg instead of Greenburg.

It is always with the greatest of pleasure that I visit Mr. H. B. Cooper, Jr., of the Woodside Poultry Plant, Ford Road, West Philadelphia. He is one of my old advertisers and with keen interest I talk with him on poultry subjects while going through the Plant. There is always constant improvement and growth to the Plant and this year it is the fine Hall's Mammoth Incubator which is being installed. Mr. Cooper found it necessary to have the machine installed to meet the demands for baby chicks and to handle the Custom Hatchery. A compartment to hold 150 eggs can be rented during March and April for $4.00 per compartment or any other month for $3.00 per compartment.

Mr. Cooper breeds the Barred Plymouth Rocks, White Wyandottes and White Leghorns and has stock and eggs at all seasons.

Another department of this Plant is the manufacturing of Portable Poultry Colony

Houses; here I must admit that Cooper has the goods, the best sectional portable houses that I have had the good fortune to see. These houses are built in sections and constructed in such a manner that they fit together by an interlock corner, making the houses strong and air tight, being further strengthened by screw eyes and hooks. When assembled they are solid as a stationary house.

They are put together by the purchaser without the use of a hatchet, saw, screw-driver or bolts, requiring but a short time to erect them.

Houses are built of planed, tongued and ploughed pine boards, one inch thick, painted two coats of white, trimmed with green, or green with dark green trimmings.

Each house has two compartments, the house proper, which contains the roost drop-board, and nest boxes; has a door, curtain frame window, ventilators and chick door the roof being covered with a two-ply rubber roofing. The compartment rests on a fine yellow pine floor, the joists of which are 3x4 hemlock and they rest on tarred 2x6 yellow pine sleepers which support and keep the houses level in frosty weather, and prevent rotting.

The second compartment is an open front scratch shed, about twice the size of the house proper, used as feeding quarters for the happy hen while hunting for the grains in the clean litter. All the houses are well ventilated in a hygienic manner, so that the bird will not be subject to any draft. See Mr. Cooper's Ad. on back cover and get in touch with him.

HOW A BUSY WIFE INCREASED THE FAMILY INCOME.

A few months ago Mrs. Nellie Ogle—decided to try to earn some extra money and started raising poultry.

Her husband worked for wages and so most of the care and responsibility rested on her shoulders.

Her first experience was very discouraging. For several months her chickens failed to thrive. She lost many from sickness. After all the hard work of weekly cleaning the chicken houses and the daily care of the hens, to have such poor success nearly discouraged her.

She was just on the point of giving it up in disgust when a friend loaned her POULTRY WRINKLES, a book on poultry raising published and distributed free by the Pratt Food Company of Philadelphia.

After reading it Mrs. Ogle became more hopeful. She felt that if so many had succeeded by using Pratt's Poultry Regulator and Remedies, there was no reason why she should fail. So she bought a 50 cent box of Pratt's Poultry Regulator and tested it on two valuable four months' old pullets that were so sick that as she describes it, "their combs were as black as your hat."

The next day to her surprise and delight she found her two patients with rosy combs and good appetites. She is now using Pratt's Poultry Regulator all the time and is making a great success of her auxiliary money-making plan.

She not only has plenty of fresh eggs and nice, plump birds for her table, but she finds a ready market for all she can spare. She finds the work interesting and healthful and her experience has induced many of her neighbors to follow her example.

H. B. Cooper.

MIX POULTRY FEED THOROUGHLY.

In the profitable operation of a poultry business, the mixing of the feed is a factor of great importance. In fact the whole success of feeding depends upon the mixing. That is to say, a balanced ration is impossible where the ingredients of a ration are not thoroughly intermingled. To illustrate if you were combining 50 pounds of one grain, 40 pounds of another, and 25 pounds of still another in order to secure a ration containing a certain per cent. of proteids, carbohydrates and fats, and they were not thoroughly blended so that the bird ate the proportion of each, as intended, it would not have a balanced ration. The results would be according. In other words, if the feed is not thoroughly blended, there is little need of using mixed feeds at all, for the chickens would eat practically all of one or another of the ingredients.

The full value of mixed feeds has not been realized by the poultrymen, perhaps as fully as feeders of other live stock. The probable causes are two: First, the results from mixing have not been what they should have been, because the mixing has not been done thoroughly; second, because the labor required was too great.

Every feeder of poultry must study closely his problems of feeding, and bear in mind this fact—a balanced ration is nothing more or less than one containing the exact amount of each ingredient needed by the fowl to bring about certain results. Then remember this further fact—the full benefit of any ration cannot be realized without its thorough mixing.

We are therefore, glad you can now find in our advertising columns a mixer with all the merits such an implement could have. It mixes either dry grains or wet mashes. The illustration shows the general construction. It is made of metal throughout and will last indefinitely. That it is practical in every sense is proved by the fact that it was tested out on Afton Farm, from which it is named. It is not offered to the public in a state of evolution, but as an implement with all doubtful features long since eliminated. The Afton Farm Feed Mixer is made in many sizes, and, beside being a feed mixer, it is adaptable to mixing lice powder from your own formula.

It is gratifying to know that the merits of this feed mixer have created a demand for it. Those who use it are enthusiastic in their praise of it. On request Yardley M'fg Co., Yardley, Pa., will send complete information regarding its feed mixer.

Columbian Plymouth Rocks

Columbian Plymouth Rocks are one of the latest breeds admitted to the standard, and probably one of the best. They have been bred for the past eight or ten years by a very few.

The writer has bred them for about eight years.

I was probably one of the first to show them six years ago. I showed at several shows, a few very fair specimens, but there didn't seem to be any demand for them, so I bred very few the next few years. Then I made several shows, large winter shows, Philadelphia, the main one, and won several prizes, and had some keen competition the next year.

I decided to breed a few more, and they bred so well, and their qualities both for eggs and the table were so remarkable, that I decided to go into them more extensively, and they proved still greater quality, both for utility and beauty.

The last two years I went into them almost exclusively.

After trying 73 different varieties, I have yet to find anything to even equal them for eggs, that is in the larger breeds. I doubt very much, if handled right, that there are many smaller breeds that can beat them from a general utility and beauty standpoint.

I have never had their equal and I honestly predict for them a great future. They cannot help but become popular, as their beautiful appearance of white and black make them admired by all lovers of fine fowls.

TECKTONIUS S. C. AND R. C. BUFF LEG HORNS.

We have just received a copy of a twelve page mating list from Mr. F. A. Tecktonius, describing his pen matings and giving full particulars regarding prices of eggs per setting, baby chick prices, and a complete description of various grades of Single and Rose Comb Buff Leghorn breeding and exhibition stock.

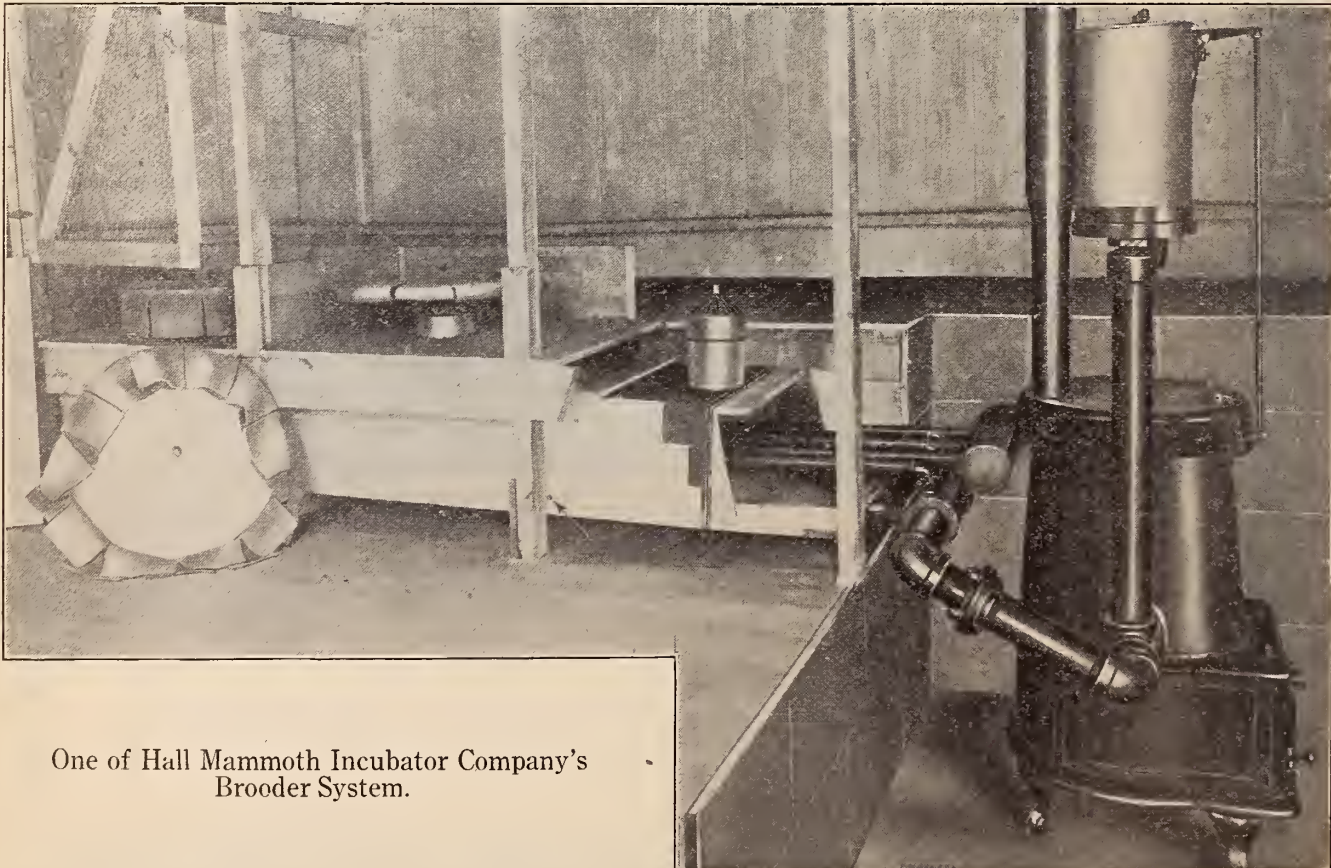

His mating list also has a full page plate cut of five of the first prize winning birds at Chicago, December, 1911. It also gives sufficient evidence for the "Doubting Thomas" as to the satisfaction Mr. Tecktonius is giving his customers in every part of the civilized world. He is also furnishing a supplementary colored plate insert, suitable for framing, of the two first prize winning Single and Rose Comb pens at Chicago, December, 1910.

We recommend to our readers Mr. Tecktonius as a reliable breeder of high-class utility and exhibition stock, and would advise all those interested in this breed of birds to receive a copy of his mating list before placing their order for eggs for hatching, baby chicks, or breeding stock. By addressing him as F. A. Tecktonius, Route 14, Racine, Wis., your inquiry will receive his prompt attention.

Notice

A special meeting of the American Buff Leghorn Club is hereby called for the purpose of transacting matters of business importance. Said meeting will be held at 4.00 P. M., February 9th, 1912, at the New Southern Hotel, 13th and Michigan Ave. All members are requested to attend.

On the Banks of Lake Erie With L. J.

Western Pennsylvania has forged to the front very rapidly the past several years in the Poultry Industry and today everything considered, dollar for dollar, bird for bird, plant for plant, man for man, it is equal to Eastern Pennsylvania, through the intelligent work of a number of the most progressive breeders who have opened the eyes of the general public in that section of the state to the advantages and the profits to be derived from Poultry; and one of the foremost of these men is L. J. Moss, Manager of the Lakeview Poultry Farm at Harbor Creek, Pa., just a few miles from Erie.

The writer had heard considerable of this plant, as to its site and management, and the quality of the birds, as well as the equipment, and decided to visit it at the first opportunity, and last summer, I took the time to spend the greater part of a day with Mr. Moss on the Lakeview Farm.

Its location is an admirable one, as well as one of the most picturesque, situated on high ground, overlooking Lake Erie, and to see the many hundreds of young birds running over the level ground was a sight which lingers long in the memory of any one who sees it.

The Farm is a large one, comprising many acres, and practically all of it is devoted to the Poultry Industry. The long suit here is the S. C. White Leghorns, which really represent a distinct strain and a type of their own, and we know they are all farm-raised and are given the best of care, and they have every opportunity to develop quickly into robust birds of vitality, and at the same time they have plenty of quality.

I had the pleasure of seeing pen after pen of these birds and was very much impressed with the uniformity of type and the shape of the birds as a whole.

They also breed Rhode Island Reds and Barred Rocks, and the quality of these birds is equal to that of the Leghorn.

Mr. Moss, manager of this concern, has built up not only strains of birds of par excellence, but he has built up one of the largest and best equipped Poultry Plants in the entire East.

Their long suit here is furnishing baby chicks from these high class birds at really utility prices, and no matter how large or how small the order they handle it with the same care.

Their incubating capacity is one of the largest in this state, and it naturally places them in a position to fill large orders with the same promptness as the small ones.

Last year they were unable to meet the demand for their baby chicks, and to prepare for the tremendous demand for the Lakeview Chicks they have doubled their incubating capacity and are prepared to handle anything that comes along; and naturally Lakeview Farm's baby chicks, bred from such remarkable vitality stock, cannot help but develop into chicks that will live and develop into robust cockerels and pullets. It seems to be the ambition of the management here to please their customers, and this possibly accounts for the remarkable trade which they have been able to build up.

A trip to the Lakeview Farm is well worth your while, and we certainly do advise and recommend our many hundreds of readers in and around Erie, and in fact all over Western Pennsylvania, to pay this Poultry Farm a visit. See for yourself what a real "Down to the Minute" Poultry Plant is.

The Incubator Cellar and the Brooding house certainly is a sight worth traveling to see, and for those that are making a start in the Poultry Business it is worth traveling any distance to see.

You will always find Mr. Moss there, willing to show you the entire plant. He is also willing to give you such information as will set you on the right road, which leads to success.

The Oaks Orpington Farm.

The Oaks Orpington Farm is situated at Bustleton, Philadelphia, about 14 miles from the City Hall, the owners, the Mullin Bros., are specializing on the S. C. Buff Orpington, and are making a great success with them, as their latest victory at the Philadelphia Show shows the quality of their stock. They took 1st cock, 1st hen, 1st pullet and 1st pen.

The farm is an ideal one for the rearing of a buff bird, having plenty of shade and the ground being exceptionally well drained.

They are great believers of fresh air and all of their houses are of the curtain front style.

They showed us some letters that were to be reproduced in their mating list, and from the recommendations that they have obtained from the people who know them intimately there is no doubt as to their fairness and square dealing. Then as they ship all stock on an absolute money back guarantee you are sure of getting your money's worth.

This season they are going to pay all of the express on all of the eggs shipped from their best pens, namely pens No. 1 to No. 6.

They will have 12 pens mated up this season and can supply eggs ranging in price from $15.00 per 15 to $2.00 per 15, and incubator eggs as low as $10.00 per 100.

Mr. Mullin told me that if their business increased as much this year as it did last year that they were going to double their breeding space and in addition build a larger fitting house to take care of their increasing demand for show birds and guaranteed winners.

The best of this farm is that they have nothing to hide and extend an invitation to everyone to make a personal inspection, meeting them at the station by appointment.

Last year they offered a Silver Trophy Spoon for the best "Mullin Strain" Buff Orp. to all poultry associations that took the trouble to write for one, and say that they are going to do the same thing next year, this should be an added inducement to own some "Mullin Strain" as it will make them eligible to win one more special at the shows at which they intend to exhibit. Send for their mating list. It is free. Address Mullin Bros., Box 1020, Bustleton, Philadelphia, Pa.

Poultry Diseases and Remedies

A Detailed Description of the Causes, Symptoms and Cures of Some of the Most Common Poultry Diseases. By J. Wesley Griffin.

It is unquestionably true that a large number of failures in poultry enterprises are due directly to disease and that these diseases are, as a rule, not of a contagious nature, but rather the result of mismanagement, unskilled feeding and too little attention to general sanitation. Any system of feeding and care which does not keep the fowls active, bright-eyed, of keen appetite, sleek in appearance and of hard flesh is fundamentally wrong.

It is by careful housing, feeding and management that the diseases described in the following paragraphs may be prevented. One must recognize that disease is a sign that proper care and sanitation have not been practiced and must take immediate steps to rectify these conditions. The individual treatment of fowls is expensive and unsatisfactory, for after the fowl is cured it usually takes a little longer time to get her back into laying condition. The preventative method of treatment is the safest and most economical.

For this reason importance should be attached to sanitation. The pens should be thoroughly sprayed with a disinfecting solution or white-washed three or four times a year. It is advisable to spray the nest boxes and perches frequently during warm weather. As danger and death linger in damp and filthy accumulations, do not let the droppings become damp and filthy; clean the dropping boards every other day, or at least twice a week.

Sprinkle ashes or land plaster over the clean boards and again over the droppings between cleanings. This practice not only keeps the pen cleaner and sweeter, but makes it easier to clean the dropping board and greatly increases the value of the manure, because it absorbs the liquid and retains the nitrogen. A dust wallow should be provided in which the fowls can remove the scurf from their bodies and better fight the lice that suck and sap up their vitality. For disinfecting with whitewash the addition of one pint of crude carbolic acid to every two gallons of the mixture makes it much more effective in destroying both animal parasites and bacteria. For spraying the nest boxes and perches during the summer months, a solution of three parts kerosene and one part crude carbolic acid will give excellent results.

I will not describe many of the diseases to which poultry are susceptible just a few of the most common, and which are the first to make their appearance.

BUMBLEFOOT

Bumblefoot is a term commonly applied to the condition when an injury has resulted in the formation of pus in the fleshy part of the foot. The injury may be received in various ways, such as falling or dropping from a high perch or tree onto a bare floor, or scratching among cinders or other sharp and hard substances. The formation of pus causes a swelling and wears away the tissue until it breaks forth either at the upper or lower surface. A scab forms over this opening, but the continued formation of pus repeatedly forces open the wound.

For treatment remove the scab or lance the swollen area and thoroughly clean and disinfect the cavity with a diluted solution of carbolic acid or hydrogen peroxide. Keep the sore well greased with carbolated vaseline until healed.

BLINDNESS.

There are several causes for blindness: 1st, accident; 2d, the effects of other diseases; and 3d, a parasite. When accidental, the fowl is blinded in one eye only; there is no economic treatment. The inflamed part should be bathed in a weak solution of boracic acid and greased with vaseline to effect a speedy healing of the sore. The most common forms of blindness closely follow or accompany other diseases. When due to roup a swelling among the tissues of the eye, caused by the hardening of the mucous secretion of the head and eyes, destroys the sight. When roup has progressed to this stage, there is little profit in treating it. There is also an eye worm or parasite which infects poultry, causing inflammation of the eye and occasional blindness. This parasite can be removed only by surgical means. The wound should be bathed with a weak solution of boracic acid and kept greased with vaseline until healed.

BLACK HEAD.

Black head is a disease common and fatal to young turkeys and quite serious among young chickens. It is usually recognized in the turkeys by the stunted growth and the emaciated condition of the body. Internal examination usually discloses large, discolored diseased areas on the liver and greatly enlarged caeca (blind intestines). If recognized in time and careful, sanitary conditions are provided in brooding and feeding, many of the affected chicks can be saved. Sour skimmed milk has been found quite effective in checking the disease. After one experience with the disease it will be readily conceded that the preventative method is most satisfactory.

CHOLERA.

It is a common error for the amateur poultryman to think that every disease among his fowls, which manifests itself by a looseness of the bowels, a yellowish discharge and a pale or yellow color about the face and head is cholera. As a matter of fact, this disease is common only in the warm climates and rare elsewhere. It is communicable and very destructive.

Fowls often die within a few days after being exposed to the disease, even before they are suspected of being stricken. In other cases it takes on a chronic form. It requires a bacteriological examination definitely to recognize the disease. Scientists have failed to find a cure for it. Thorough disinfection of the entire plant and a rigid separation of exposed from the non-exposed flock should be practiced.

DIARRHOEA.

Diarrhoea in some form accompanies and is a symptom of many common communicable diseases. Because of this fact the beginner interprets the diarrhoea as the indication of a dangerous disease. As a matter of fact, diarrhoea is more often the result of indigestion. It is caused by over-consumption of rich, highly stimulating foods, by tainted meats, by musty grains, green or milky grain in the stalk, irregular feeding of green foods in the winter, excessive amounts of green cut bone, or a stale or irregular supply of water. The best treatment for such diarrhoea is to remove the irritant or to shut in the fowls from it, giving them a regulating ration. They will soon readjust themselves.

difficulty of eating, combined with the weakening effect of the parasites, stunts the growth of the chickens. The feathers become soiled, torn and ruffled for lack of proper nourishment. The worms are coughed up by the chickens onto their food or into the drinking water, where they are consumed by other chickens. In this way the parasite is transmitted. A common method of treatment is to worm them, or to take the worms from the throat of the affected chicks with a twisted horsehair or the stem of a plant of blue-grass, saturated with turpentine. The turpentine loosens and kills the worms. Those not withdrawn when worming are coughed out. An easier and quicker method is to smoke the chicks with tobacco. The affected chicks are placed in a basket, covered with a piece of burlap or any old cloth that will confine the smoke, tobacco stems are placed on burning coals and the basket containing the chicks is held over it until they are pretty well overcome by the fumes of the burning tobacco. The fumes overcome and even kill the worms.

LICE.

There are many kinds of lice which are common among domesticated fowls. They have the same general characteristics, however, and all are combated in the same way. Some kinds stay on the body of the fowl both day and night, some just during the night; these do their devilment during the period when the poultry are asleep. It is necessary to apply treatment to the perches as well as to the fowls. As before stated, a mixture of one part carbolic acid and three parts kerosene applied with a force spray pump, gives excellent results. The spray pump drives the solution directly into the cracks and crevices, thus killing the mites by contact. The fowls are best treated by dusting a dry powder, one containing a burning and drying effect, rather than an offensive odor. The dust fills up the pores on the body of the mite and suffocates it.

The most economical way to keep a pen free from lice is to spray the perches and nest boxes when necessary and to provide a dust wallow of coal ashes, land plaster or road dust, in which the fowls can wallow and kill the lice. This dust wallow should be in a dry and sunny place in the room, so that the fowls will be attracted to it. If a small amount of air slacked lime and sulphur is added to the dust bath, it will help to keep off diseases.

In no other occupation is the old adage more applicable than in that of raising poultry. "An ounce of prevention is worth more than a pound of cure."

AMONG OUR ADVERTISERS.

The Locust-Poultry Farm, Charles Newill, proprietor, of Canton, Penna., is rapidly climbing to the top as breeders of S. C. W. Leghorns. Their "mating list" is before us and is certainly an admirable one. The quality of their matings is of the very best and the prices very reasonable. Every pen is headed by a winning male of splendid quality. Mr. Newill's patrons will certainly receive full value for their money. Write for mating list. It is free and will certainly please you.

A Few Hours With Men Who Raise Chickens

Howard C. Miller, of Akron, O. breeder of Partridge Rocks and Black Langshans has some mighty good stock for sale and is offering hatching eggs at very reasonable prices. Write him if interested in either of these two breeds. He guarantees satisfaction.

The Bryan Mfg. Co. of Cadiz, O. is advertising the Poultry Queen Non-Freezing Poultry Fountain in this issue of the Fancier. Also the Queen Oats Sprouter at very attractive prices. We are glad to call the attention of our readers to their goods. Write them. We know you will secure fair treatment.

Look up Mr. W. M. Conner's ad. in another column of this issue, Mr. Conners manufactures and sells "The Conners Automatic Poultry Feeder and Exerciser." Mr. Conners is an expert poultryman and is well acquainted with the needs of an up-to-date poultryman. Write him. His feeder will do you good.

Joseph Elias, Mt. Airy, Pa., one of the foremost breeders of Partridge Cochins and Light Brahmas in this country is offering high quality birds of his favorite breeds for sale at very reasonable prices. His birds are of the highest possible quality, as his winnings attest. His catalog is free. Write for it.

Harry C. Shilling, of Flourtown, Pa., breeder of S. C. B. Minorcas had a fine display of his favorite breed at Philadelphia, Pa., show. We are also glad to note that Mr. Shilling captured 1st pullet at Baltimore, Md., also medal for best bird in the Mediterranean class. Glad to hear it, friend Shilling.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the ad. of the Kneipper Cooping Co., 1401 First Street, Milwaukee, Wis. The gentlemen are building remarkably good coops and their prices are very attractive for the quality of their goods. Any of our readers desiring such goods as they manufacture will do well to write them.

The Roseland Poultry Farm, Chas W. Switzer, Owner, breeder of S. C. Buff Orpingtons made a splendid win at the late Chicago Show. His winnings were 2d, and 4th, cock, 4th pullet and 3d, Young Pen. This was a splendid win in such keen competition. The Roseland Farm's ad. appears in this month's issue. Write them if in need of good birds. Their address is So. Euclid, Ohio.

F. G. Bean's "Hurricane Sweep" on his Columbian Plymouth Rocks in thirteen different shows, attest the great merit of his birds. We were certainly pleased to learn of friend Bean's well-merited victories and are glad to be able to call our readers' attention to his ad. in this issue of The Fancier. Don't forget The Fancier when you write Mr. Bean for his mating list. His address, Colledgeville, Pa.

Covert's Barred Rocks, D. M. Covert, breeder, Willoughby, O., are making sensational winnings East, West, North and South, according to reports which have reached our office. Mr. Covert is certainly worthy of a place high up in the Barred Rock world and we know every true Fancier will welcome him to this place of honor. His record is an enviable one, and we are pleased to learn of Mr. Covert's success.

We take pleasure in calling our readers' attention to Mr. Jno. F. Hacker, Marissa, Ill. He breeds high class Buff Orpingtons and Bantams, and judging from his winnings during the past, his birds are of high merit. Our readers will do well to write him, as we are sure you will receive just and honorable treatment at his hands. Mr. Hacker's ad. appears in the February issue of The Fancier. Write him for prices.

The Only a Farm wins again in the White Wyandotte Alley at Boston, 1912. 1st, cock, 1st and 2d, pullet. The Wyandotte Class at Boston was great and to win in any class was a real honor. But to carry away two firsts out of five is certainly worthy of special mention at this time. We predict a still brighter future for this Farm. Write Mr. Chas. Staaff, Manager, Morristown, N. J., for their circular. His prices will please you.

Back to their own or the place they belong on the Silver Laced Wyandottes to-day, and no one man is more responsible for this state of affairs than Mr. Shirk, of Hanover, Pa. He has accomplished wonders in breeding them, and his grand wins at the big shows proves him a past master in the art of mating this difficult breed to produce the result. At the big Baltimore show Mr. Shirk made a grand win, as will be seen in this issue.

Howard T. Davis, New Egypt, N. J., has climbed into The Fancier's Band Wagon, and his clarion notes are being heard in every land. Good for you, Howard. The Poultry Fraternity needs you. There has always been a vacant chair awaiting your return. Look up Mr. Davis' ad. in our journal. He has a splendid trap nest and no one will question the quality of his White Leghorns. His mating list and catalog are awaiting your command.

The Chestnut Hill Poultry Farm, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa., H. M. Kenner, Manager is making very attractive offers in its ad. in this month's issue of the Fancier. We advise our readers to look up their ad. and write Mr. Kenner, if in need of real High Quality Barred Rocks. This Farm is certainly forging to the front at a wonderfully rapid pace. We are glad to note their remarkable success and are proud to have their ad. grace our pages.

The Hancock Inoculum Co., Inc., Salem, Va., has an ad. in the February Fancier. Our patrons will make no mistake in writing these people. They guarantee satisfaction or money will be refunded. We are well acquainted with Mr. McClung, President of the Inoculum Co., and do not hesitate in the least to commend both Mr. McClung and his remarkable remedy to all our friends. Write them. Mention The Fancier. It will do you good and us no harm.

Chas. V. Keeler, of Winamac, Ind., one of our foremost White Wyandotte breeders and popular Judges, cleaned up the board, Platter and all at the great Topeka, Kansas, Show, winning all 1st prizes and practically every special. That was a winning to be proud of friend Keeler, and worthy of many years of hard work and careful breeding, a record hard to attain. Look up Mr. Keeler's ad. in our February issue. Send for his catalog. It is sure to please you.

We are glad to correct a mistake made in the Philadelphia Pa. Show report as to winning of Mr. T. A. Faulds of London, Ont., in S. C. B. Minorcas. Mr. Faulds' winnings were 1st, 2d, and 5th, Pens and 2d, CK1, a wonderful winning in such strong competition. We also desire to mention the fact that on a very recent date Mr. Faulds made a large shipment of S. C. B. Minorcas to the Yokohama, Japan. Such transactions as the above shows which way the wind blows.

Humphrey and Sons, of Joliet, Ill., manufacturers of Humphrey's Green Bone Cutters and Pure Air Brooders, are carrying an ad. in the February issue of The Fancier. It is useless for us to comment on the quality of goods this reliable firm puts out; sufficient to say their guarantee is back of every sale they make. This firm is putting out one of the finest catalogs of its kind we have seen this year. A post card will bring it to your door. Write for it and mention The Fancier.

The Rancocas Poultry Farm, Browns Mills, N. J., breeders of White Leghorns and White P. Rocks, are more thoroughly prepared this season to supply their extensive trade in Baby Chicks or eggs than ever before. The public at large is familiar with the reputation the Rancocas people have for fair dealing and high quality of stock and it would be useless for us to try to add to their prestige in a section where they are so well known. Write them for their descriptive catalog and price list. It is free.

Wm. C. Crevoiserat, Buff Leghorn Specialist, of Freeport, L. I., N. Y., certainly has a handsome record of winning to the credit of his favorite breed. His winnings include such shows as Madison Square Garden, Grand Central Palace, N. Y., Philadelphia and Allentown, Pa., His record for the year of 1911—22 premiums and 8 specials on 25 entries. His complete record to date is 173 premiums, cups and specials, at 28 shows, in five different States. Look up his ad. in this issue. His prices are very attractive.

Dr. Howard Mellor, Spring House, Pa., is putting a keen edge on his battle ax for future conquest in the Single Comb Black Minorca world. His winning at the Great Philadelphia, Pa., Show in the Minorca Alley, put new strength in his arm and a little brighter

Dr. A. T. Bicket, Salem N. J., the popular breeder of Silver Laced Wyandottes, has a wonderful record of winning to his credit. In a quarter of a century he has lost but one first prize on Silver Wyandotte Cockerels. At Camden, N. J. 1912 he won 1st, 2d, and 3d, cocks, 1st, and 2d, hens. 2d, 3d, and 4th, pullets and 1st, cockerel. His 1st cockerel received medal for best cockerel in American class. Also Gold medal for best cockerel in the show. A record never before equaled Silver Wyandottes. Congratulations, Doctor.

Mr. Chas. H. Brundage, of Danbury, Conn., The Golden Laced Wyandotte Specialist, is certainly setting a high standard for his favorite breed and the strong feature of it all is that Mr. Brundage is closing in on his ideals with wonderful rapidity. His winnings have been remarkable, even in the very strongest competition, and the eye of many of our Golden Wyandotte breeders is frequently cast his way. It means business for Mr. Brundage, and we are glad to be able to note his success. Write Mr. Brundage in "The Name of the Fancier."

The Rock Hill Poultry Farm, Ossining, N. Y., F. W. Corey, Manager, is with us with a full page ad. in this issue and are making some very sensational prices on their birds, when one considers the splendid quality they are offering for sale. It is seldom our readers have an opportunity of buying as high quality of stock or eggs as Mr. Corey is offering at such popular prices, and we predict a real landslide of business for this Farm. If interested in any of the varieties bred by the Rock Hill Farm, write them for their big catalog. It is free.

Mr. S. A. Nofzger, North Manchester, Ind., originator of the Partridge Plymouth Rock, reports a great trade in his ever increasing popular breed. Mr. Nofzger is deserving of great credit for producing this handsome variety of Rocks, and we are very glad to note that he is now reaping a well-earned reward in the steady increase of business coming in from all sections of the country. We congratulate Mr. Nofzger on his success and trust his business for 1912 will be greater than ever before. Write Mr. Nofzger and mention The Fancier. Look up his ad. in this issue.

The Newtown Producing Co. Newtown, Pa., breeders of S. C. W. Leghorn and S. C. R. I. Reds, are offering very attractive prices on A. No. 1, breeding stock, hatching eggs and baby chicks. It is useless for us to comment on the products of this very popular firm. Their record for honest dealing is world-wide, while the quality of birds they breed is known among all men. The past record of The Newtown Producing Co. is a brilliant one and stands out as an unmistakable index of what this firm is capable of achieving in the future. Send for their catalog. It is surely worth the asking.

W. W. Kulp, Pottstown, Pa., one of the oldest and most widely known breeders of Fancy Poultry in this state, has an ad. in the February issue of the Fancier. Every one who has ever purchased either birds or eggs from Mr. Kulp knows his reputation for honest, conscientious dealings. His birds this season are even greater, if possible than ever before, and we are sure Mr. Kulp will have his share of 1912 business. Write him for his catalog. An article from his pen on Brown Leghorns will appear in The Fancier in the near future. Watch for it. It will please you.

Mr. Ira W. Crowther, Box P. F. Willoughby, O., breeder of the famous Aristocrat Strain of S. C. R. I. Reds, "The Strain that Swept Chicago," in 1910, is certainly making

Reds, we believe it will be to your interest to write for Mr. Crowther's catalog and Mating List. They are yours for the asking.

It is with considerable satisfaction that we call the attention of our readers to the ad. of Mr. A. J. Fell, West Point, Pa., in this issue of the Poultry Fancier. Mr. Fell's great winnings at Madison Square Garden, Philadelphia and other large shows stamps the quality of his White Wyandottes as "Front Rank Winners." The splendid reports we have received from those who have purchased birds and eggs from Mr. Fell, strengthens our confidence in Mr. Fell as a man who believes in and practices the "Square Deal" method with all his customers. Write Mr. Fell an envious record with his favorite breed. Mr. Crowther informs us that his birds this year are of higher quality, if possible, than ever before, and that he has a number of excellent Reds, both old and young, for sale at very reasonable prices. inclusive Mr. Punderford's S. C. Buff Leghorns have been awarded 1st Pen, a record, we understand, that no other Buff Leghorn breeder has ever equaled at the Garden. It is a pleasure for us to recommend Mr. Punderford's Leghorns to all our friends. His Mating list is ready. Write for it to-day. The Fancier is interested in both his and your success.

Lester Thompkins, the popular breeder of Rose and Single Comb R. I. Reds, of Concord, Mass., made a wonderful winning at the Great Madison Square Garden again this year, winning one of the most coveted prizes in the show, viz: Best display in Single Comb R. I. Reds, also $50 R. I. Red Club Cup for best Cock, Hen, Cockerel, Pullet and Peu. This fact Mr. Thompkins claims still leaves his Reds the undefeated champions of Madison Square Garden. It is useless for us to comment on the great quality of Mr. Thompkins Reds as his winnings in the largest shows of the country during the last seven years is conclusive evidence of their wonderful merit.

We have just received word from The Aldrich Poultry Farm, Columbus, Ohio, concerning a Big victory at both Pittsburg, Pa., and Baltimore, Md., winning Five First at Pittsburg, Pa., and Four First at Baltimore, Md., Best display at both these shows, besides many cups and other specials. They breed White Orpingtons exclusively, and their winnings attest the fact that with them the "Best is none Too Good." Their ad. appears in our February issue and is full of good things for the prospective buyer. All inquiries will receive courteous and immediate attention. Their catalog is ready for mailing and will be yours for asking. Write them and mention The Poultry Fancier.

It is with pleasure that we call the attention our our readers to the ad. of Sunswick Poultry Farm, Rufus Delafield, owner. The Sunswick birds have been scientifically line bred for many years, and some of the most noted winning Orpingtons in Buffs, Blacks and Whites have been produced on this farm. Mr. Delafield informs us that his pens contain 51 Blue Ribbon Winners of this season, together with their champions and their sons and daughters that have won many honors for the Sunswick Farm in many past years. We are further informed that the Sunswick Birds have just cleaned up 16 Blue Ribbons at the Great Indianapolis, Ind., show in the keenest competition. Congratulations, Delafield.

The Linfield Poultry Farm, Box F, Linfield, Mont'g. Co. Pa., John W. Poley, Manager, breeders of Poley's World's Best Buff Rocks, has been making one of the most remarkable records in the show room during the past four years of any Buff Rock breeders in the country. Their actual record shows thirteen out of a possible twenty first prizes, at Madison Square Garden, together with Gold Special for Best Display at the last four National Meetings of the American Buff Rock Club. Certainly a record to point to with a true Fancier's pride. Mr. Poley informs us that they now have over 1000 high class birds for sale at prices that will move them at once. If interested in this grand breed, write The Linfield Poultry Farm for their catalog.

Bueva Vista Poultry Yards, Summit, N. J., C. M. Ferry, Proprietor, breeder of Black Langshans. The kind that win in strongest competition. Mr. Ferry is sole owner of both the Summit and Black Diamond Strains of this popular breed and can supply the trade with birds of the highest quality. His winnings speak for themselves. Mr. Ferry has carried away the Blue from most of our leading shows, such as Central Palace, N. Y., The "Garden", Philadelphia, Pa., and Red Bank, N. J., and under all conditions his birds have received the highest possible commendations from every fancier who loves this splendid old breed. If in need of show birds, hatching eggs or a high grade of utility stock, write Mr. Ferry. Take it from me, you will receive a "square deal" every time.

Owen Farms, Vineyard Haven, Mass. swept Madison Square Garden with a veritable cyclone. Two Hundred and Twenty-three birds entered and when the smoke of battle cleared away, One Hundred and Thirty-nine of these birds swung under the ribbons at the home plate. This Farm won Twenty-two First Prizes out of a possible Forty, leaving but Eighteen ribbons for all other competitors. A remarkable victory, indeed, when one considers the wonderful competition they overcame in every class in which they were represented. We certainly extend congratulations to the Owen Farms in this sweeping victory and predict for them a record breaking year for business. The Poultry Fraternity certainly has great reasons to be proud of such men as Wm. Barry Owen.

J. C. Fishel & Son, Hope, Ind, breeders of "The World's Best" White Wyandottes, have just added another sweeping victory at the Great Atlanta, Ga., Show to their long list of awards by winning every 1st, but one, and many special prizes. The competition, we understand, was very strong, making this victory a very pronounced one indeed. We are always glad to learn of the continued success of all our friends and it always affords us much pleasure to announce their success in the columns of our journal. We trust that the coming season will prove a record breaker for "Fisheldotte White Wyandottes". Mr. Fishel will be glad to send his Mating list to all prospective buyers of hatching eggs or stock. Write him and simply say "The Fancier pointed out the way."

J. S. Brady, Parker's Landing, Pa., one of the most widely known S. C. W. Orpington breeders in this country, has a very attractive ad. in this issue of The Fancier. Mr. Brady's birds are too well know to need any comment in these pages, but his recent winning at both Williamsport and Philadelphia, Pa., Shows are worthy of special comment. Mr. Brady won all five first at Williamsport and many other prizes besides numerous specials. At the great Philadelphia Pa., Shows, his winnings were very remarkable. His 1st, hen, winner of eleven first prizes, is certainly a bird of the highest Orpington quality and was well deserving of every honor received. If interested in White Orpingtons, you cannot go far astray if Brady's Orpington blood finds its way into your yards.

Dune Alpine Poultry Farm, East Hampton N. Y., breeders of S. C. White Leghorns and Orpingtons are certainly enhancing the blue above their own immediate possessions by the high-class record made during this show season. At the Grand Central Palace Show they won three firsts out of a possible five and pretty nearly all other prizes in the open class in Leghorns. In Orpingtons they won two firsts, two seconds, two thirds and one fifth. In Boston they won four firsts on Orpingtons in the single class; third pen and numerous other prizes. In Leghorns they won four firsts out of a possible five, besides nu-

Our Winnings

Have seen the reports of our big winnings at all the largest National 1911-1912 poultry shows where the S. C. White Leghorns were among the leading classes? Our birds won wherever shown and have established themselves as blue-ribbon winners.

Eggs for Hatching

We have now on our farm over 50 of the best pens of S. C. White Leghorns ever mated in this country. All our birds have been carefully selected, and will produce nothing but the best. Our egg production this season will surpass, by 100 per cent. our best records of previous years. We are now prepared to furnish eggs from our special matings and from which we guarantee to replace every infertile egg. Our first, second and third prize pens are wonders, while our utility pens are of exceptional merit. Prices are moderate.

Eighty-five per cent. fertility guaranteed. Send us your order to-day and become an Oakland booster.

merous cups and specials. I was a splendid winning, and we offer congratulations. Anyone interested in either of these splendid breeds can secure their mating list and catalog on request. This Farm entered but did not show White Leghorns at the Philadelphia Show as notes in Jan. issue indicated.

The Foxhurst Farm, Lime Rock, Conn., R. N. Barnum, owner, certainly has made an enviable record with their S. C. Black and White Orpingtons for the season of 1911. Mr. Barnum writes us that he won four ribbons at The Great Garden Shows on Blacks and that his customers won as many more; that at the Big Baltimore, Md., show, in competition with the greatest lot of Black Orpingtons ever brought together there, he won four out of a possible five firsts, one 3d, and one 4th prize; bronze medal for best bird in the English class. This winning was made in spite of the fact that Mr. Barnum's greatest cock bird arrived too late to be judged. This bird Mr. Oke declared to be one of the greatest on the continent to-day, and attached a card to that effect to this cock bird's coop. In Whites, with but two entries, Mr. Barnum won 3d, in competition with the best in the country. His Blacks in the hands of his customers have made practically a clean sweep, so we have been informed, in every competition in which they have been entered in such shows as Atlanta and Augusta, Ga., Los Angeles, Cal., Cincinnati, O., Providence, R. I., as well as Boston, Mass. This record speaks for itself in words more eloquent than I can pen. Send your name and address and Mr. Barnum will mail you his Mating list free.

One of the best known Poultry Supply Houses in Eastern Pennsylvania, is that of the old well known firm of F. P. Cassel & Son, Lansdale, Penna.

Long before the writer was even connected with Poultry Item, he called on them, and that was some years ago, and the history of the concern dates back for a quarter of a century or more. We all heard of the name, we all know of their reliability, so we will say nothing along that line, but we do want every one of our readers to read that most remarkable adv. of theirs, on the Editorial page, whereby they are going to give a package of

CHICK MANNA FREE.

Just reading over it speaks for itself. And now what is "Chick Manna?" Is it something new? No. Has it been tried? Yes.

Chick Manna, is what made the name of Cassel a familiar one throughout the entire Poultry World. It is claimed by many of the foremost Poultrymen of the land, that there is no better food made to start chicks on, and for starting young turkeys it stands alone without a peer.

It is specially prepared to bring the chicks through the most critical part, the first ten days of their life, by regulating and strengthening their tender organs. Where Chick Manna is used, there can always be seen healthy, robust, big boned vigorous youngsters.

It is known in every Town, City and Hamlet. It is for sale at almost every Poultry Supply House. Ask for it. Take no other. Insist on F. P. C. Chick Manna.

If your dealer cannot supply you, send right direct to F. P. Cassel & Son, and be successful this year in raising your chicks.

Oculum cures the worst forms of Roup, Cholera, White Diarrhea, Canker, Chicken Pox and Gapes. Testimonials by the hundred are pouring in on us. Get a bottle now and save your chickens this spring.

As a tonic and conditioner, Oculum has a world-wide reputation—so says Miss Cary, the great English fancier. Read her letter—then others.

I cured a case of infectious Canker in a $200 cockerel, followed by the worst case of Chicken Pox I ever saw, with Oculum. I inoculated all of my chicks last year and have seen no evidence of White Diarrhea, and have never had them to grow so rapidly.—OSCAR E. MILES, Columbus, Ohio.

Oculum cured a bunch of chicks that were bad with White Diarrhea. Others of the same bunch that were not treated with Oculum took it and died.—LEROY RICE, Massillon, Ohio.

I consider OCULUM one of the best conditioners and revivers of tired showbirds I have ever come across. I brought my celebrated team of White Orpingtons and White Taverolles all the way from England—three thousand miles—right from a run of the big English shows which started August 14, and on landing inoculated them with OCULUM right off with results. I scored first on (Taverolle) hen, first on cock, first on pen; and in White Orpington, first on cock, third on cockerel and fourth on pen. I think nothing can prove the benefit that results from prompt use of OCULUM better than these results.—MISS S. CARY, Toynton Rectory, Spillsby, England.

Last August I saw Oculum cure a chicken suffering in the last stages of Cholera. I never before had an actual cure Cholera in its worst stages.—H. G. HUMPHREYS, President Chattanooga Poultry Association, Chattanooga, Tenn.

OCULUM is a cure so UNUSUAL among other cures that you certainly ought to look into it. MAIL COUPON TODAY—NOW.

Oculum is a positive cure for Chicken Pox, Canker and Scaly Legs.—F. A. TECKTONIUS, Racine, Wis.

Oculum is the best remedy for the positive cure of Roup I have ever used.—J. M. VANDERBILT, Manager Poultry Department Richmond County Agricultural Society, Richmond, L. I.

I have had at least forty cures from a dollar bottle of Oculum.—GEORGE V. DOANS, Brockport, N. Y.

Show-Room Etiquette

Some Very Pointed Remarks by an Old Timer. Nearly Every Show has Exhibitors who Should Act Upon the Advice Here Given.

Avoid talking too much. Let your birds do the talking for you. If they are the best in the hall the judge will discover the fact and confirm your opinion; if they are not, you will not be self-convicted of having overestimated their value. Above all things don't talk about your competitors' birds, unless to praise them, and even that is unnecessary as probably their owners have a sufficiently high opinion of their merits and do not need your laudation.

Do not handle the birds of a competitor, unless in his presence and at his invitation. If you do and there should happen to be a broken or missing feather or two, appearances a suspicion of faking, which is almost as bad as the real thing.

Do not try to fix the judge. If he is fit to be a judge and you attempt to fix him, he will probably fix you, and it may be serious work to get out of the fix in which you may find yourself. Attempts to fix the judge are more dangerous than attempts to fix the fowls.

Do not crow if you win. A cock which has defeated a rival announces his victory by crowing. It is all right for him; that is the way his education tends and he knows no better. But you are not a cock, but a man, and you should act as a man.

Do not be unduly depressed by de-would be against you. Never put yourself in a defensive position, for even if you successfully defend your acts and motives, there may remain an underlying suspicion that your defence is specious rather than true.

Do not make yourself conspicuous. Like Brer Possum lie low. You are not entered for a prize. Your birds may be as conspicuous as possible; that's what they are in the show for; and you should not divert any of the attention from them to yourself.

Do not fix up your birds for exhibition in the show room. When they get there the time for preparation is past. If they needed any "fixing" it should have been done in the privacy of your home. Most birds require this, some even need to be "faked" but all which require faking should be sent to the market, not to the exhibition. You cannot afford to get the reputation of being a faker and you can less afford to be a faker without the reputation. If you fix up your birds in the show room there may be feat. It is unmanly. The boy, who shows that other boys annoy him, is the boy who is always "picked upon." As the boy gains in experience and knowledge he knows that it is better to command his feelings than be commanded by them. Although you may be one of "the boys" you are no longer a boy, and having reached man's estate should act the part of a man.

Do not wish to win unless your birds deserve the honor. Every poultry breeder desires, or ought to, that the poultry industry should make progress. Every time an inferior bird wins over a superior, the hands on the dial of progress are set back. Your best interests are subserved when the best birds win, and an unmerited prize robs you of something of more value than the prize.

Do not be a kicker. Do you wish to announce yourself as the rival of the mule, that beast which has "no pride of ancestry and no hope of posterity?" Better suffer unmerited defeat in silence than to cast the aspersion upon your father that he was an ass. By kicking you will only make your defeat more conspicuous, and it don't pay to advertise such things. If you keep still the public will forget it, and you will suffer comparatively little damage, but if you show your heels and bray dismally you will keep the public in mind of your defeat and aggravate the damage which has fallen upon you.

Do not fail to congratulate your successful rival upon his victory. That will make him feel even better than he already does, and he will count you, not only as a good fellow, but also as a man of excellent judgment, for he will see or think that your judgment agrees with his. "How well he argues," said one, when the person spoken of was setting forth the speaker's own ideas.

Do not fail to learn, in a quiet and inconspicuous manner, wherein your competitors' birds surpass or are inferior to your own. Use your ears to hear what you can which will be of service to you at another show; use your eyes to see all the excellencies and defects possible in the birds on exhibition, and especially those of your own variety; use your brain in thinking out to a safe and sane conclusion what your ears have heard and your eyes have seen; but hold your tongue, that unruly member which may get you into trouble.

Don't forget that while you are a poultryman and engaged in the gentle art of breeding one of the most interesting creatures on this footstool, that you are "first, last and all the time" a gentleman. To speak as a gentleman and act as a gentleman—on these hang all the laws of etiquette of the show room—and if you do this, you will not make a false step, but will find an exhibition a place where you can do and get good, and from which, whether successful or defeated, you will return with a contented mind, a peaceful spirit and firm resolution to breed more birds and better ones the coming season.

A REMEDY THAT REALLY DOES CURE ROUP IN ITS WORST STAGES

Almost Hopeless Cases of Diphtheria and Canker are cured and the Birds Fully Restored to Health.

It's needless to tell any poultry raiser who has been in the game long of the fearful losses caused every year by Roup and its sister affections of the fowl's breathing organs. Few of us have escaped. Roup knows no location and respects no class of birds, killing off the most expensive and prized cockerel with apparent delight.

But its day is over since Mr. Whiting perfected and placed on the market his famous ROUPENE, a germicide which takes right hold of the most stubborn cases, that heretofore were regarded as sure death, and cures them with just as much ease as it cures a light cold. Time after time Mr. Whiting has taken hold of apparently hopeless cases for fanciers who had tried everything and every one, and he has just as often proved that ROUPENE will cure everything of the Roup nature.

Here is a letter from Mr. William H. Jones, Manager of Cugley & Mullen's, Poultry Supply Store, Philadelphia. Read what he says of the Whiting White Diarrhoea Remedy: "I have used almost every SURE CURE for White Diarrhoea and have failed to make a cure, but I wish to say to you that Bread Crumbs moistened with your White Diarrhoea Remedy, will cure White Diarrhoea. After curing 11 chicks I then shipped them 1000 miles and they are still alive and doing as well as others that were not infected."

How we Prevent the White Diarrhoea

As we have decided to use this farm to experiment in different ways for the benefit of those who patronize the Poultry Fancier, and especially those who feel they need our help, we give you our experiments as we go along through the season. If you have a better way in doing things, so much the better for you. Stick to it; but never be partial. Always look at anything in a fair way and be sure it is well mixed with hen sense, for we can learn from biddy every day. Through studying biddy is what caused us to look pretty well into the so much talked about White Diarrhoea in little chicks. Before we made a study of White Diarrhoea we lost quite some chicks with this dreaded disease. At least it was a Diarrhoea, and I know you can be soon out of the chick business with this disease in your flock. Now we believe there must be a cause and if there was a cause then the cause must be removed and then there would be no White Diarrhoea. So I got a professional in the drug business to come and stay right here on the place, and he got the hen fever. This was what I wanted, so that he could work more intelligently to accomplish what I wanted.

We got down to the inside of business as far as possible. I told him, I guess, all I ever heard or experienced with the White Diarrhoea. I told him of those who knew how (or claimed to know) the White Diarrhoea is carried to the chick. I said it was in the parent stock and we must get to work and get the parent stock right, and then their offspring would be right. I said I didn't want any washing eggs for hatching in an alcohol solution, as I believe by this process you will weaken the germ and naturally you will have a weakling chick, especially if the shell is as porous as it is claimed to be, and there is no doubt about that. I said I wanted a drug or medicine that I could put in the drinking water, and by the fowls drinking the water they would also get the medicine, and in this way they would purify themselves as far as possible and there would be very little chance for any White Diarrhoea germ in them. I also wanted this drug to be powerful enough to disinfect the drinking fixtures, etc. Well, after I told him all I wanted to, I guess he was glad his turn had come. He told me how different drugs would act, and on what part. I must confess it was like that much Greek to me, but I knew I would get what I wanted, so we tried to figure out what one fowl could stand and then how much it would require for one hundred in their drinking water.

So we settled down to a certain kind of a drug, with the understanding I must take all the risk of the fowls, as we had to experiment to get the drug down to a certain strength so that we were sure it was strong enough and yet not too strong. When he went to the city he sent me some of the tonic. In my imaginary views I could see that our next season's chicks would be rid of the White Diarrhoea, but my work is just beginning. Remember, I took all the risk of the stock and now must do the experimenting with the drug, (as the saying goes, kill or cure) until I would get the drug diluted down or strengthened to the desired degree) so that I could get the drug compounded in tablet form and so that I could order it made for each tablet to contain a certain number of grains. I knew I had something that was worth many hundred dollars to us so I stuck to it like a beaver, and Success crowned my labors, and today we feel we have one of the greatest tonics known to help prevent the White Diarrhoea.

No doubt many would say this tonic would be a Sure Cure. I have never felt like saying a Sure Cure, but we do know since using the tonic in the drinking water that the White Diarrhoea is unknown on our place. Since using this our young chicks show no signs of it. We also use it in the little fellows drinking water from the very first drink they get, and then use it occasionally all along through their life, so that they are ready to breed from just the same as their parents, and they certainly like to drink it.

Now others may have something better. Remember, I am only telling you what we have experienced. I think I hear some one say he is only drumming up some patent medicine of his own. Not so; it isn't patented, and we never intended to sell any of the tonic; for we wanted it for our own business, and all we ever

But you know how it is; if you have something good, others will find it out, and when they see it in the drinking water they want to know all about it, and then they want to buy some. I tell them it is not for sale, but they insist on our selling them some. One party sent to me and said their chicks were dying like flies, and wanted me to please sell them some of our good medicine. They said they had the White Diarrhoea. Well I try to have a heart as big as myself, so I sold them some, the very same tablets that were manufactured for us. In a few days they reported the chicks were doing fine, and that the Diarrhoea had disappeared and that the medicine had done the work. At no time did I see these chicks. I only give their word, which was endorsed by another party who came to buy some for himself. He said the medicine did cure the other party's chicks and that he had borrowed a few tablets of theirs and cured his and now he wanted me to sell him some too. So you see how it goes. How is a person going to do in such a boat? We will do this for 1912 to those who buy a certain amount of eggs from our S. C. White Leghorn eggs; we will give them free a certain amount of tablets to be used in the chicks' drinking water. We do this to help you; if you want these tablets you must give us a reasonable time to get them to you as sometimes we must wait for the new supply to come in. They are sent with plain directions, how to use them, and they are positively the same as we use. Look up the Crystal White Leghorn Co. ad. and see their offer concerning these tablets. They give you this offer so that you will have success in the poultry business.

HATCH YOUR CHICKENS

With a new 1912 Cycle or Brooder Hatcher. Our new discovery makes poultry keeping easy and profits sure. Our machines were used in the original Philo System Plant where over $1500 from 60 hens in ten months has been cleared from the sale of eggs, baby chicks and fowls. One of the largest plants in America saved over $700 by using our system of brooding. We sell the best brooder ever made for $2.50.

One party hatched and raised $500 worth of poultry last year with four Metal Mothers, and hundreds of others are delighted with our machines and our new way of raising poultry. Our combination machine hatches and broods perfectly at the same time with only one lamp and one-fifth the oil used in other machines. Once filling the lamp completes the hatch. It runs as steadily as a clock in any room, from cellar to garret, and our Long-Burning Safety Lamp runs on for weeks without attention. It is the only machine that airs the eggs in the natural way and applies the heat to chickens like the mother hen.

Ernest Kellerstrass

The Man Who Revolutionized the Poultry Industry.

It is remarkable what a man can accomplish when he makes up his mind to do it and does not know the meaning of the word, failure. How true this is of the man, Kellerstrass, who less than ten years ago was an unknown factor in the poultry world. A few years made the name, Kellerstrass, a household word throughout civilization. What he has done for the poultry industry of America or, in fact, throughout the world will go tumbling down the ages as one of the brightest spots in the history of the great poultry industry. It was a blessed day to the business, for all must agree that the prices he commanded, maintained and upheld were worth countless thousands of dollars to the poultrymen of the land.

It remained for him to demonstrate and conclusively prove that the American people were willing to pay what then seemed fabulous prices for the very best in chickens. Kellerstrass delivered the goods and the people paid him just what he asked; they did more than that—they offered him more than he asked. And now the thought comes to our mind, What is the secret of his success? Why is it that he is compelled to return tens of thousands of dollars of the people's money for orders that he cannot fill? Why is it that he has created a demand greater than the supply? These are questions worthy of the consideration of every poultryman.

The more we think of these great questions, the more we are convinced that they must be thought of, considered and solved before a successful path can be carved out to a successful career in the poultry business. When he started he did not follow the old beaten paths that countless hundreds had trodden before, for well he knew those paths were full of breakers and well did he know that countless thousands of dollars have been lost in following them; hence he made up his mind to strike out boldly into the unknown future and carve out a new pathway that would lead to a new era in the poultry industry.

It is known to but few men to-day that he had given as much thought to the poultry business before he started as he did since.

In the first place, he carefully surveyed the field to determine the variety that would best meet the demands of the American people from a point of eggs and meat, and at the same time stand confinement well enough to give the man in the city with his 15x20 lot a chance to taste the luxuries of fresh eggs and meat, the product of his own raising. He chose White Orpington and he was firm in his convictions that he was right. He then set to getting the very best stock that money could buy. By a careful study of the characteristics of the different individual specimens that he purchased he started breeding them. We all know the result—the origination of the "Crystal White Orpington." He knew the fowl that was destined to solve difficult problems. But what good did it do to the American people if they did not know it? He would tell them about it. Did he carry a classified ad. in a few papers? No. Did he carry a few inches space in a few journals? No! Did he carry large space in the leading journals? Yes, he was determined to place the merits of the White Orpington before every man who could read English. He did it. He created a demand for White Orpingtons that was greater than the supply and the thousands of dollars he spent in advertising made the demand so great for them that every bird that was raised, not only by him, but every breeder of White Orpingtons, found a ready market at such prices as compel us to say, "Long live Kellerstrass! Let us state right here that sooner or later the breeders of every well bred fowl, irregardless of variety, will say that Kellerstrass put hundreds of dollars in their pockets by the demand and interest he aroused and in conclusively proving to the public that there was money in raising poultry, thus enabling them to command double the price they formerly did for their product.

There are dozens of men whose names stand out prominently in the poultry world as making this great Billion dollar industry possible. Among this lot we will let the reader draw his own conclusions as to the name who should head the list. Kellerstrass set the pace. He opened up the road which many are now traveling over. He demonstrated to the leading breeders of other varieties what it was possible for them to do. He has made good. He has done more than that; he has delivered the goods.

We are not going to describe his plant and his stock. You know what it is. We want to impress on your mind that Ernest Kellerstrass is a deep thinker, a man who loos into the future. The figures which he presents to the people are startling but true, $18,178.52, net profit in a single year, selling chickens and eggs. This tells the story in a nut shell. It is a great story but it speaks volumes. What he has learned cost him thousands of dollars in the dark hours of the night. The early hours of dawn found him in the pursuit of his studies and investigations. This he did for many months in getting out his book, "The Kellerstrass Way," which helped many thousands to successfully handle their fowls and show the profit on the right side of the ledger. After all is said, we are compelled to think that Ernest Kellerstrass revolutionized the poultry industry and proved that no business presents the opportunities the poultry business does. Generations to come will enjoy this billion dollar industry which he helped to plant on a solid rock.

Hall Hot Water Brooder System

How about YOUR brooder?

Experiments prove that the fumes of burning oil in a brooder house reduce the vitality of the chicks 50%. This means sickness, diarrhea or death of a very large percentage of your chicks. With the Hall System the air of the brooder house is kept pure and wholesome. The HALL System of heating and ventilation supplies pure, warm air just where the chicks want it —on their backs. No crowding: just normal development under conditions which produce maximum results in strong, hardy, active and livable stock.

The Hall Brooder Systems are made both double and single. The above cut shows a double system: i.e., one single system placed on each side of a central alley; also how the systems are constructed.

Observe that the hovers are placed in the alley so that feeding, watering, etc., is done without entering the pens. This saves time, labor and cost. By raising two slides the pens and hovers (in ten minutes) can be cleaned and new litter put in. More than 50 per cent. of time and labor is saved.

The Hall chick-saving brooders are run by the Hall Self-Regulating Furnaces—powerful, low-priced hot-water heaters, burning anthracite coal.

These statements are verified by years of actual experience in use by enthusiastic customers.

The lives of your chicks year after year depend upon correct brooding: this the Hall System gives.

Nuts Cracked and the Meat Taken out for Town Lot Man

By B. Monroe Posten.

Hughesville is the place of the town lot man. We have over 100 breeders on the town lot plan and we hope to find out how to make it pay.

We have already found out that all the poultry sharks are not the small breeders.

One thing we know, it pays to keep poultry on the back lot better than any other thing you can raise.

We know it pays to feed sprouted oats even if they don't cost but 8c a bushel.

We know the town lot man won't have any trouble with $250 birds swallowing apple limbs that go down through the wind pipe and get stuck in the gizzard.

We know the Fancier will be the Town lot man's best friend.

We know it pays to organize a poultry association for we have one only three weeks old with 145 members. We save fifty per cent. on the purchase price of all our feed stuffs. We can help with the sale of eggs by each sending their consignment sealed in cartons to the secretary who sells at fifty per cent. above store prices.

It pays because we can send our birds under the care of one man to the shows and be sure they are well taken care of at one-tenth the expense.

We know how to build a $30 house that will accommodate 50 birds and give them lots of room. We will give you a cut of one with the material required next month.

Crystal White Orpingtons

Kellerstrass Strain

Winners, Baltimore 1912.

1st cock; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th cockerels; 1st, 2nd pen; 1st, 2nd, 4th, 5th pullets; 1st, 4th hen, 16 entries—13 ribbons, 4 Silver Cups, 8 other specials. 160 White Orpingtons contesting.

Special for best display, 52 points out of 80.

"Enchantress"

Best White Orpington in the World to-day.

Winners, Pittsburgh 1912.

1st, 2nd, cock; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 5th, cockerels; 1st, 3rd pen; 1st, 2nd, 3rd pullets; 4th, 5th hen; 16 entries—13 ribbons, 6 Silver Cups, 7 other specials. 113 White Orpingtons competing.

Special for best display, 78 points out of 128.

These Remarkable Winnings

in addition to our wonderful winnings during the present season at St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland and Madison Square Garden in competition with over 1,100 of the cream of birds from Canada, England and America, make a record never made before by a breeder of WHITE ORPINGTONS.

Twenty Pens now Mated including the winners of 18 firsts, 13 seconds, 8 thirds, 8 fourths and 9 fifths at the above shows, together with winners from Allentown, Nashville, Philadelphia and Indianapolis, tell where the winners for next year will come from. Every pen headed by a prize winner and mated by Mr. George J. May, conceded to be the best Orpington man in this country. Eggs from utility pens 5.00 and from exhibition pens 10.00, 15.00 and 25.00 per fifteen, guaranteeing fertility. Book your order early and save disappointment. Remember the best is the cheapest in the end. Utility and exhibition stock for sale. Send for new catalogues and mating list showing cuts of our birds and farm, or come and see the birds in the pens. Remember, we never sell a prize-winner and we breed only the one kind.

Aldrich Poultry Farm, 6020 N. High Street, COLUMBUS, OHIO

We know there is not nearly so much trouble with wry tailed, squirrel tailed, mixed tailed stock from the town lot man as with the Large Farm with 49 or 57 varieties all free range stock.

We know the town lot man will not sell a Silver Spangled Hamburg for the Williamsport show with a single comb and positively only two colored feathers on it. Such hamburgs grow—well I don't know where.

We know it pays to save the droppings and sell to the up-to-date farmer to raise corn with. Pays BOTH.

We know shape makes the Variety but if the Large breeds do so much better in little single coops why is it necessary to raise them on a farm. Then advertise free range stock?

It pays to keep the place clean, but there is such a thing as clean dirt and also that it is natural for a hen to dust herself, even if she has no lice. Don't make her do it in a manure pile.

We know it pays to grease the wattles of the males three or four times in the winter before they are frosted—it is too late afterward. We all know as much as we used to if we could only think of it.

We know if you will write me your troubles in the town lot we will try and make this space interesting and profitable for you. Write me, Very Truly Yours,
B. MONROE POSTEN, Hughesville.

POULTRY NOTES

Geese are not subject to diseases and live to a good old age.

Don't forget the setting hens; they get lice if not looked after.

If it's eggs you want, don't fail to breed from the good layers

Whole corn should be always fed in the litter to induce exercise.

Two-year-old hens mated with cockerels make good breeding stock.

More and better chickens every year should be the poultryman's motto.

Take good care of the early and best pullets. They make the winter layers.

Do not forget to have plenty of shade for your fowls in the summer, and clean water.

No poultryman should be without Charcoal, oyster shells or grit the year around.

Poultry houses should be cleaned often; twice a week is not too often in summer.

Keep pure bred geese; it costs no more to raise them and they are always in demand.

Hens that are too fat do not lay very good and the eggs are not as good for hatching.

Be sure to take in a few poultry shows every season; there is lots to learn at the shows.

Drop boards can be cleaned very easily if you throw a little lime on them after cleaning.

Eggs are not so plenty just now, so give your hens lots of care and you will soon get them.

Now is the time to get your incubators ready for Spring hatching, you can't start too early.

Every farmer should have a flock of Guineas; they take care of themselves the year around.

Ice water is not very good for making eggs, especially in the winter. Try a little warm water.

Rye should be sown in your chicken yards in early fall. It makes nice green food in the spring.

Don't force your laying hens if you want the eggs for hatching. Forced eggs don't hatch well.

Don't feed too much wet mash in wet weather, and not too much when eggs are wanted for hatching.

This a good time to sell off your culls; the price is up and the pullets and laying hens need the room.

Always have things ready to get lots of eggs when the price is high. All hens lay when eggs are cheap.

Fresh air, sunlight and exercise, is a good tonic for all poultry, but they can't live on nothing but this tonic.

Sunshine, plenty of fresh air, beats all the dope that is manufactured; but dope is good in many cases.

Don't think you will over-stock the market with eggs. If you should get too many just let us know.

It is not profitable to keep a lot of cockerels all winter unless they are good ones and wanted for breeding.

Always be ready before the hatching season commences; never wait until you see the other fellow with chicks.

Geese can live on grass all summer, and on whole corn all winter, and remember their feathers make a nice bed.

The best is the cheapest in most cases, so it applies to the poultry business just as well. Remember this when you buy stock.

If you have good stock to sell try an ad in the Poultry Fancier. It will pay you as there are plenty people who want good stock.

If anyone laughs at you for buying good stock, just keep quiet for awhile and it won't be long before your stock will laugh at them.

Keep plenty of dry straw on your chicken coup floors; throw feed in it and you will see how pleased the chickens are to hunt for it.

This is the time of the year for roup, but if you keep your chicken house dry and free from draught you will seldom be troubled with this disease.

Never let your good birds home, but send them to a show so the people can see what you have and that you are not afraid to let others see them.

Watch your hens as much as possible. The hen that lays best is the one you should do the hatching from. A trap nest will help to find the good hens.

Partridge Rocks--Black Langshans

I keep nothing but the best and if you are in the market for stock or eggs I can please you. I guarantee 9 chickens from every 15 eggs or replace each setting at half price. They are the big winners at big shows where we meet the competition that means something when you win.

Following the Laws of Nature in Brooding

There is no doubt about the efficiency of the hen as a brooder. By the laws of natural selection her efficiency was maintained. Otherwise the species would have become extinct. Artificial brooding was not originated as an improvement on nature; it was the result of commercialism. Economy of production on a large scale was the motive behind artificial brooding.

Therefore, to attain the greatest success in brooding of chicks it is necessary to follow the methods and principles of nature. The best brooder is the one that imitates most perfectly the conditions as found in the hen and her surroundings.

the exhaled carbon dioxide must be entirely removed. The floor, like the ground, should always be cool. Warm floors make weak legs. The air surrounding the hover must be cool, and the chicks must always have access to the correct amount of heat.

The heating of the brooder must be absolutely certain, without fluctuation. Beside the injurious effects of oil fumes, hot air systems of heat are now recognized as out-of-date. Not because of fashion, but because modern methods have proven them inefficient. Hot water is generally accepted by all experts as the best.

The difficulty of attaining success in brooding has been due to the stupidity of men. They have failed to dig deep enough into the mysteries of nature and learn the secrets which she is willing to reveal to the man who will study her closely enough to ascertain full knowledge of her processes.

Chicks, under the care of the hen, have plenty of fresh, pure air to breathe. They receive their warmth on their backs from the body of the hen. The ground is always cool. They do not live in warmed atmosphere all of the time, but they have access to the hen's warm body at any time they want it. The temperature of the hen does not vary, even though the opinion is prevalent that as the chicks get older the temperature of the hen's body is reduced. It is true that the chicks take less heat, but the chicks are out from under the hen more and more as their age advances. But when they need warmth they return to the hen.

These are some of the features we must observe in our artificial brooding. There must be no fumes and gases, as is generated by burning oil. The air must carry full amount of oxygen, and find all that makes for perfect brooding. They say there is "security, in Hall Equipments." No one who knows doubts it. "They do make success." And in economy of operation you can hardly say more than "it is the Hall System."

America's Great Poultry Futurity Stakes

A Brand New Innovation in the Exhibition of Fine Poultry.

The Great Allentown Fair Poultry Show (whose dates this year are September 24th to 27th) will inaugurate hereafter Grand Championship Futurity Stakes in the following varieties of poultry, viz:—White Orpingtons, White Plymouth Rocks, White Wyandottes, White Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds, and Game Bantams.

The Grand Championship Futurity Stakes will be an annual affair at Allentown in these varieties and others will be established, just as fast as interest develops. These will be the one and only Poultry Futurity Stakes in America and offer to poultry breeders in this country not only an unmatched opportunity to gain national advertising prestige, but to win the Grand Championship Futurity Stake in any one variety is likely to carry with it besides a rich purse or stake.

These futurities which are originated and conducted by the poultry department of the Great Allentown Fair, promise to be a feature of outstanding interest in poultry exhibitions hereafter, as the preliminary announcement of same in last month's poultry journals evoked a vast amount of inquiry concerning same.

These futurities offer the small breeder the same chance to win as they do the bigger breeders for no one can tell at the date the stakes close where or by whom the best bird of the year will be raised. Hence no one, who has been able to put together a nice breeding pen or anyone who has bought or is going to buy one or more good settings of eggs, should fail to nominate one or more birds. The nomination fees are ridiculously small; scarcely the price of one top-priced setting of eggs and one the small breeder can easily afford to pay.

The following rules will govern:

First—For the first year futurities will be open to six varieties only, namely: White Orpingtons, White Rocks, White Wyandottes, White Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds, and Game Bantams. However, if interest warrants, stakes in other varieties may be opened.

Second—Only birds hatched in 1912 will be eligible, and there will be separate stakes for cockerels and pullets in each variety or group of varieties mentioned unless the stakes of either should go below $50, when they will be combined.

Third—The nomination fee in White Orpingtons will be Five dollars each bird. In all other varieties Two dollars each. Nominations will close April 1st, and the list in each variety will be published immediately thereafter.

Fourth—Birds nominated for these futurities need not necessarily compete for the regular poultry show prizes or in the event of accident or failure to develop need not be shown at all. But all birds expecting to compete in the futurities and regular prizes both, must pay in addition on or before the date of closing of entries (about September 12th or 14th) the regular Fair Poultry Show entry fee of One dollar each, thus guaranteeing a single well lighted and correctly grouped cage.

Fifth—The winner in the different futurities to take the entire stake. For instance, if the total stake in White Orpington cockerels is $200, the winner takes this amount. He shall also have the right to claim and advertise the Grand Championship Futurity Winner for the season of 1912, and shall be awarded a handsome ribbon certifying to this effect.

Sixth—Only birds raised by the exhibitors shall be eligible and the winners will be required in every instance to make affidavit as to this; as to the month the bird was hatched; as to where raised, and supply therein the names of two adults who can certify to the correctness of statements made.

Seventh—All checks should be made payable to W. Theo. Wittman, Supt., Poultry Department, Great Allentown Fair, Allentown, Pa., and all correspondence addressed to him.

GETTING WINTER EGGS

By Chas. M. Weikert.

One of the most important subjects of the poultry keeper and one which is deserving of more attention is that of getting eggs in winter.

It is a subject which has been sadly neglected by a large majority of poultrymen, especially by the farming class.

There are four all important points which must be observed. First, good hens; second, comfortable quarters; third, proper feed; fourth, constant care.

March and April hatched pullets, if properly raised, make the most satisfactory winter layers. They should be allowed free range during the entire summer, where they can get shade and sunshine as they desire. Also feed a variety of muscle forming food. About a month before they are expected to begin laying those of a uniform age should be placed in quarters where they are to remain during the winter.

Nothing older than yearling hens should be retained in a special pen for winter layers, and then only those which have moulted early, and have completely recovered from that ordeal of growing a new coat of feathers. Such hens make very desirable winter layers. They should be allowed plenty of room, as in severe weather they should be compelled to remain inside, and should not be crowded. There should not be more than 25 to 30 fowls in each flock as you can give them closer attention and detect anything that may go wrong with them, for it is very necessary that every one is kept healthy and laying.

The poultry house need not be expensive, but should be warm, tight, dry, well ventilated, and free from drafts, and varied in size according to the number of fowls kept.

The roosting and laying room should face the south with a door and window on the south side to admit plenty of light and sunshine. Place the roosts along the north side, with dropping boards beneath them. These boards should be just high enough from the floor to permit the nests to be placed conveniently under them, thus leaving as much available floor space as possible.

On the east side of this room should be a scratching room, built so that it may be thrown open in front except at night and on extremely cold and stormy days, when it should be closed with a large door into which has been cut a hole of sufficient size, and covered with canvas to admit plenty of light and pure air, and yet exclude storm and wind. A screen door may also be provided here to confine the hens when the front is open, but when on account of storm or deep snow they are required to remain inside as they are much better off confined at such times if kept busy scratching in litter.

The floor should be well covered with straw or some other good scratching material, to a depth of at least a foot, and this should be removed and replaced with clean as often as it is necessary to keep it clean and dry.

The feeding is also a great question. The best strains cannot produce eggs unless they are supplied with proper food and care. I have often heard the saying of "forcing hens to lay." This, I claim to be a very improper expression. It is the nature of hens to lay eggs, and all that anyone can do is to make conditions so favorable that nature is assisted to the utmost degree in carrying out its work. A variety of food and especially that rich in albumen, must be given. This is best supplied through some kind of meat food.

Green cut bone with adhering meat gristle, is one of the best forms of animal food, but it is difficult for a great many poultrymen to obtain. Therefore the majority of us must look to some of the products now on the market to supply this want. I know of no other system of feeding which will more encourage winter egg production than the following:

In the morning, as soon as the fowls are off the roosts, they should be given a light feed of warm mash consisting of three parts ground oats, two parts corn meal, one part wheat bran, one part wheat middlings, and one part animal meal. No more of this should be given, than will be quickly eaten. Then scatter a few handfuls of oats and wheat in the litter. This will keep them busy, and the exercise will assist in maintaining animal heat. At noon give a light feed of wheat in litter. At night give all they will eat of corn and wheat that has been previously warmed. Supply them with plenty of green food, good grit and water slightly warmed should be given them twice a day.

Provide a dust bath, and keep a constant outlook for lice. The easiest way to fight lice, is to prevent them ever entering. Keep the entire building clean, and the nests well made and inviting. Air the room as often as the weather will permit, thus avoiding dampness.

When approaching your poultry house, always do so quietly, never causing fright among your fowls; but, on the other hand, strive to make them always glad to see you. By the observance of these few rules, the winter egg supply will be abundant.

THE feed mixing problem is solved. For many years the poultrymen have needed a feed mixer that was a real mixer. Now there is one. There have been no less than four different types tried on the famous Afton Poultry Farm and their Mr. Twining pronounces the one shown in the illustration the best he has ever used and all he could ask for. He has given it a thorough try-out and knows of what he speaks.

Because of the part Afton Farm has played in the perfecting of this mixer, and because of the further fact that it has done so much toward making Afton Farm more profitable, the machine bears the name

"Afton Farm" Feed Mixer

The value and economy of home mixed feeds is well known to poultrymen. Why pay the extra price for ready mixed feeds when you can mix your own cheaper, better, and have it fresher? "Afton Farm" Feed Mixer is metal throughout, and will last a life time. It is as simple as a scoop shovel. It mixes more thoroughly and blends the feed much better than is possible to do by hand. With an "Afton Farm" Mixer, one man can mix as much as three men can by hand. It thoroughly blends both dry and moist mashes. It is a grain saver and a labor saver. When you know that it reduces your cost of feed mixing two-thirds; and it saves a large per cent. of the feed bill; and that it makes the feed more palatable and easier digested, you will realize that you can not afford to be without one. It is made in capacities of 15 qts., 75 qts. and 150 qts. Larger sizes for poultrymen and dairymen made to order.

With our free booklet, "Feed Formulas" and an "Afton Farm" Feed Mixer every poultryman can be a successful feeder. Full worth of this machine is learned only by using

Partridge Plymouth Rocks

Many of your readers are not aware of the fact that this new breed of fowls has in the past few years not only made its appearance but gained such a foothold in poultrydom that it has attracted general attention. Already the demand for this newcomer is so great that the supply is inadequate. The great number of inquiries for information relative to this grand fowl prompts this article on Partridge Plymouth Rocks—the fowl of quality—the fowl that gives universal satisfaction.

In the first place the wonderful color of both male and female has won for them the name "Beauty Breed" and it is not surprising. The male birds, with rich red lacing of hackle and saddle as shown in cut, contrasted with solid black breast and fluff bright yellow shanks, and all decorated with brilliant green sheen, present the highest color of this sex of all breeds. The female, penciled beautifully in mahogany and black in all sections of the body, with rich red lacing of hackle embodies the most beautiful of her sex.

Many breeders of others of the Rock family as well as other fanciers are today turning their attention to this great new breed as they firmly believe the Rocks are the utility fowl of today and realize that this breed is the greatest of the greatest. Lovers of the Rock type, seeing the advantages in color, quickly avail themselves of an opportunity to get good stock and become champions of Partridge Plymouth Rocks just as soon as they have been given a trial, while the admirers of Partridge color are delighted to get their favorite color with our popular Rock shape. The breed that pleases is certainly a union of Partridge color and Rock shape.

Realizing the wonderful possibilities of such a breed, and feeling that there was a place for it, in 1898 I began to originate the Partridge Plymouth Rocks, using scanty, feathered Partridge Cochins females and Indian Game males for the first cross. The results of these matings were not fully satisfactory as the bright color of the Partridge male bird was largely lost. After giving the matter much thought, and having seen a flock that impressed me as being desirable for the purpose, I decided to cross Golden Wyandotte males on the females which were the result of the first cross. These Wyandottes had been bred for several years by a farmer who knew nothing of Standard requirements and they had grown large and coarse, with a good per cent. of single comb specimens.

Selecting large males, with good length of body, mostly with single combs and all with bright color and breasts as dark as possible, the second cross was made. From time to time the best individuals of both sexes were selected and mated to improve and perfect the type. For a few years progress was very slow, but after several years, better specimens appeared. Some became of the rare quality attracting much attention. Notable among them was "Chief," a male bird of exceptional color, grand in shape with splendid size and fall brother to many notables among the royal of this breed.

No new out cross was used after the second year but a systematic plan of line breeding was followed which alone was responsible for slow but steady improvement. From the beginning as large a number of matings were made as could be wisely selected and properly cared for and this proved on several occasions to be a great help as it gave more opportunity for improvement by both offering a larger field to choose from and affording a better opportunity for preventing in-breeding, since, after discarding the entire offspring from some of the matings because expected improvement was not shown, there were always a sufficient number of matings left to insure against breeding too closely.

peared then, to win laurels later in the show rooms, and this was actually an eventful year for the new breed. '08, a fowl which the judge said was as good in shape as any Rock in the show and in color a credit to any Partridge breed. However, after several years of endeavor, and at times it was pretty discouraging, fairly good specimens began to appear pretty regularly. In 1904 a few of them were quite satisfactory, even to an old breeder of Partridge color and quite a number were sold for breeding purposes. Within a year or two it was noticeable that the new fowl was reproducing much more true to type, good shape predominating with fair color in the majority, but the process of culling out very closely was rigidly adhered to. To this latter along with a system of careful pedigreeing, I attribute much of the progress that was made at about this time for blood began to tell, beside it was easy to know whence the improvement came.

This year 1906 is memorable in that several really excellent specimens appeared then, to win laurels later in the show rooms, and this was actually an eventful year for the new breed. Size had come naturally from the beginning, since all foundation stock had been plenty large and shape came comparatively easy but now good color, of both sexes, was not rare, while occasionally was found a combination of the three—size shape and color. Good illustrations of these were the cock bird "Generosity," the cock bird which attracted so much attention at the Indiana State Fair in 1908 and "Conqueror," first prize cock at Chicago, Dec. '08, a fowl which the judge said was as good in shape as any Rock in the show and in color a credit to any Partridge breed. Both these males stamped quality on their youngsters and to this pair, and especially the former, Partridge Plymouth Rocks owe much today. Two of ten pens mated for 1907 were headed by these two big young fellows and this year saw the greatest improvement in the history of the breed to that date. The sons and daughters of these two have been sent all over the continent to give size and quality to many flocks.

1st and April 14th, 1907 there were twenty-four pullets raised which had laid one hundred and five dozen eggs up to Jan. 20th following. These twenty-four pullets had not been disturbed except to remove the cockerels in the early fall and an actual daily record of the eggs was kept. So good was the quality of the twenty-four pullets that all of them were used for breeders, either for myself or others.

"Ruler of the Roost," wonderful in shape, size and color together with as many noted full brothers and sisters, probably furnished one of the most striking examples to be found in any breeds, of the possibilities of single mating. Simply to emphasize the importance of carefully conducted single mating and to impress forcibly that it is not only successful but brings better results, I wish to say that the following fowls were produced from a single pair of Partridge Plymouth Rock fowls, "Pride of Oaklyn" and "Beatrice."

"Chief" first prize cockerel, Chicago, Dec. '09; "Ruler of the Roost," third prize cockerel, Chicago, Dec. '09; the great cockerel in first pen at Indianapolis, Feb. 1910; "Oaklyn Delineator," first prize and winner of diploma at Kansas City, Dec. 1910; "His Majesty, Ohio," first prize and winner of diploma at Cleveland, Jan. '11; Second prize cockerel, Buffalo, Jan. '11; "Pansy," first prize pullet, Indianapolis, Feb. '10; two pullets in first prize pen, Chicago, Dec. '09; "Golda," first prize pullet, Kansas City, Dec. '10; first prize pullet, Toledo, '11; two pullets in first prize pen Cleveland, '11. In addition to this other full brothers and sisters to the above won at a number of minor shows and could be added to the already astonishing list of winners produced from a single pair of wonderful breeding fowls.

It was left for 1909 to see the first illustrated catalog of any consequence of the breed. Among the illustrations of this booklet were good ones of old "Prince" and "Georgine." Although the regular matings were fewer than those of some previous years yet many special matings enabled me to continue the improvement without losing ground, as there were ample blood lines and splendid individuals from which to select breeders for the following year.

"Indiana Bell," one of the very best penciled females of the breed that ever lived up to her time, is a fair sample of the result of careful selection from stock of royal blood lines. In fact, few breeders have ever been able to produce one as good. The illustration of this grand female does her an injustice in shape for it is evident that she was trying too hard to pose at the time the artist snapped her.

But culling closely and pedigreeing carefully from the very beginning is not alone responsible for the rapid strides of Partridge Rocks toward perfection. Single mating has done its share. Single mating has enabled me to do just twice as much with a given number of pens in a given time, has made it possible for breeders with room for but one mating to be a factor in perfecting the breed by improving the quality of both sexes. This has been demonstrated in the progeny of a single pair of fowls. Some individual pairs of fowls are positive proof of this assertion. Most of the male birds which have graced my pens of the very recent years have had great mothers as well as wonderful sires and each is a striking example of the wisdom of mating the very best of both sexes to get best results.

"Ty Cobb," the cockerel in First Pen at Chicago, Dec. '09, is a living example of the fine breeding of single matings. His ancestors for generations on both sides have not only been great individuals but he came from lines of prize winners and was himself of quality sufficient to attract general attention. When it is considered that just such specimens have given to Partridge Rocks the nom de plume "The Beauty Breed," then we begin to realize that this great breed is extraordinary.

But when the poultry public realizes what this remarkable breed has done in so short a time, it has gained admission to the Standard, captured the name of "Beauty Breed," and won the laying contest—all in one year—the real greatness of Partridge Rocks begins to dawn upon the fraternity. Since six of these females laid thirteen hundred and twenty-one eggs during the year 1910, an average of over two hundred and twenty eggs each, they begin to marvel at the wonderful combination and naturally conclude that their wondrous beauty has not caused them to degenerate as layers, by any means. Two of these splendid layers were daughters of the great "Generosity."

While there is no breed more beautiful and while as layers they demonstrated their superiority, yet their fine qualities are not confined to these. For table use, either as broilers, soft roasters, or as matured fowls they are unexcelled. Since they grow with great rapidity,

Incubators and Brooding Systems

Setting Up the Cross Partitions

Let your Giant Incubator come to you "Knocked down" (1200 to 24000 capacity). Assemble it yourself. We supply photographs and give plain directions. Everything finished and fitted perfectly and pieces marked in factory. Save on cost, on freight, on travelling expenses of men from factory. However, when requested, we will erect machine, same as formerly.

Newtowns are Displacing Other Systems—Get Your Order in Early

Every month big plants are being torn out by poultrymen to give place to Newtown Giants with their reduced cost of incubating, their stronger, heavier chicks and their greater capacity of operation. Newtown Giants have put incubation on a large scale on a scientific basis. The right relation between heat, moisture and fresh air is maintained automatically. Expenses are lowered, less attention required, bigger things in poultry are made possible. There is not a moment to lose if you are to get any benefit from your "Giant" System this season. Newtown "Giants" are built to order—no stock machines. With our increased factory facilities, however, we can promise prompt shipment. Take the matter up now and get on our books for early shipment. By installing your machine now, you can go far toward paying for it out of this spring's commercial hatching and baby chick business.

The Newtown Brooding System reduces chick raising to a certainty. Chicks develop naturally. They grow fast and become healthy, vigorous fowls. Each hover has separate heat and fresh air regulation. Chicks of different ages, or chicks and ducklings, can be brooded side by side, each lot getting just the right amount of heat. Newtown, Pa.

feathering out completely while yet quite small, they are fine broilers. Because they round out early into nice plump bodies they are excellent soft roasters. Being originated from a cross of game, their meat is unusually solid and they have no superiors, and very few equals, as table fowls at maturity.

"Irene", First Prize Pullet, Indianapolis is a fine example of combined beauty and utility. Herself a great layer, she is not only a wonderful show bird but usually weighs over eight pounds in breeding condition and can within a few days at any time, easily be made to weigh in the neighborhood of ten pounds. This type has made the breed what it is to-day and differs strikingly from Partridge Wyandotte sports. Such as this make breeding for type worth while and repays us for labor and time spent in producing them. These will always be in demand. This is the type that pleases the fancier, the market poultryman, the farmer and the housewife, for they "fill the bill" for the purposes of either the fancy or utility poulterer.

This fowl was not an accident, but the result of methods to gain certain ends. To obtain the desired points, plans and fixed rules were adopted always with a true ideal in view and breeding to fix certain desirable characteristics, striving always just as energetically to avoid the undesirable, fully realizing that nature endeavors at all times to assert herself and revert to the original. It was necessary to have a fixed purpose at every turn and to use great care and these were at all times in accord with the results we endeavored to obtain.

Sometimes our effort resulted in disappointment, for in this as with other affairs of the world it is the exception to the rule that works havoc, and then we could only discard the misfits and go back to the place where the rule had applied satisfactorily. These lessons learned them and greatly strengthened us for the battle against future disasters. At times it was discouraging but there was always present the necessary fascination for the work and made the victorious end possible.

Beginning with a strong hardy chick, of natural color, growing rapidly, and developing a fine plump body, at all stages adapted for table use, and developing into large solid fowls of the most beautiful color is a great deal to be combined in one breed, then add great laying qualities to this already wonderful combination and the result is the Partridge Plymouth Rock—the greatest creation in poultrydom.

SURE HATCH INCUBATORS

The Sure Hatch Incubator Company is now building its famous machines in 400 and 600-egg sizes. This is done in response to a continued demand for larger machines. These new sizes have been thoroughly tested and rank right up with the other sizes of the Sure Hatch.

Their method of construction makes them far superior to any other make of equal capacity. Look at the picture of the 600-egg machine on this page and note the economy of floor space; how they are built in sections, one above the other; each is heated with its own lamp and can be run separately from the others; can set 200, 400 or 600 eggs at a time—as you may happen to be fixed for eggs; no waste of heating any more space than necessary to take the number of eggs you want to set. Any of the chambers can be set any time without interfering with either of the others. Can be easily taken apart and re-assembled in a few minutes.

Seven Sizes of Sure Hatch Incubators

Running from 50 to 600-egg, enables us to fit out a beginner, or a city lot dweller who may want only a few chicks, to the extensive breeder who hatches thousands of them. They are all built on plans laid down by the U. S. Government and described in Bulletin No. 236. Send for our catalogue and the Bulletin. Both sent free.

Some Advice to Beginners

Pointers on How to Start and How to Invest Limited Funds. Best Plans to get Ahead Quickly. By J. C. Deaton.

To all who contemplate raising poultry, we would say by all means raise none but thoroughbred fowls. If the farmers throughout the country realized how much more interesting it is, and how much more may be realized from a flock of thoroughbred fowls, than from the same number of mongrels, they would certainly sell the mongrels at once and invest the amount received in thoroughbred poultry.

There are two ways to get a start. One is to purchase stock and the other to secure eggs and hatch them. If sufficient outlay can be spared and the purchase can be made in the fall ly related to the other two. The cockerels from the special mating could be used next breeding season with pullets from other matings.

In buying eggs, one has a chance of getting birds as good as the parent stock, and at a much less expenditure. When selecting stock for the breeding pens, take only the choicest birds. Do not make the mistake, often made by the beginner, of thinking that all the females must be used in the breeding pen, just because the eggs from which they were hatched were produced by a mating of prize winners. Grading the flock by selecting the best, must always be done.

to produce the best results. Usually the surplus good cockerels and utility pullets may be sold for sufficient to cover the cost of the eggs.

After the beginner has decided what variety of fowls to take up, he should learn all that is possible to learn about that breed and stick to it. Try to make it a more perfect breed. In order to do this, it is necessary to have a copy of the "Standard" of that particular breed, and also to read at least one good poultry journal, and it is to advantage to read several journals.

Also visit as many poultry shows as is practicable. There are always fanciers there who are willing and anxious to show their fowls, and much may be learned in this way, and you will then be able to select your best specimens to exhibit at the next show.

When writing to breeders for prices be sure to state what you want, that is, whether fancy or only utility stock. Then do not ask for the best stock he has, or as good as any, and expect to get it for just what utility stock is worth.

Our experience is that it pays to raise and advertise only the best. When the writer advertised eggs, two grades and two prices, at least nine times out of ten, the purchaser wanted the higher priced eggs and the income from those high scoring hens was correspondingly greater. We have learned that it pays to breed only the best.

When purchasing stock it is well to make sure that the birds have never been seriously sick, and that they are the progeny of strong, healthy stock, for certainly no one wants to start in the poultry business with stock that is of weakened constitution and readily susceptible to various diseases. Even after this precaution it is well to quarantine all stock for ten days, and see that no vermin or trace of disease is present before placing the birds in their permanent houses.

A GREAT BANQUET.

Joseph Elias Banquets Light Brahma Club in Honor of Judge Nevius.

Forty-three years an active fancier is a long time indeed and Joseph Elias thought it should be honored. And honored it was, in appreciation of the faithful services rendered. For months before the Great Philadelphia Show this veteran fancier was work-or early winter, we think it advisable to buy stock. If intending to raise fancy fowls, it is best to purchase a trio or pen of the best that can be secured. It is better to buy a trio rightly mated from a reliable breeder for $25, than to buy a dozen birds that are worth only that much.

If one intends to raise poultry for utility purposes, certainly fowls not scoring so high, if good strong specimens, of good laying qualities, are secured, may be depended upon for as good results as the higher scoring birds. If only a few dollars are to be invested in foundation stock we would suggest purchasing at least three sittings of eggs from a reliable breeder, with the request that one sitting of eggs be from a mating not close-ing to bring together the greatest class of Light Brahmas ever assembled in the country. He succeeded. And he also succeeded in getting the Light Brahma Club to meet there, and after their annual meeting the club and representatives of the press went to the Manufacturers' Club where one of the finest banquets ever served to poultrymen was enjoyed. Nevius, the fancier, is known the country over, loved and respected by all. No man is more worthy of the honors given. Mr. Nevius has rounded out his 43rd year as a fancier and is still active. For almost a half century he has remained loyal to the cause and it is said that he exemplifies the true spirit of the Fancier as it should be exemplified. The friends of Pennsylvania's grand old man are legion and all will join in wishing him many more years of activity in the fancy.

The credit for this elaborate banquet must be given to Joseph Elias who many think is the man destined to bring the Asiatics to the proud place they held when Nevius was in his prime and in honor of the kindness of Joseph Elias the following resolution was voted to be placed on the minutes.

Dec. 13, 1911.

Through the splendid and magnanimous spirit of our brother fancier, Mr. Joseph Elias, expressed in a testimonial banquet to the veteran fancier and judge, J. D. Nevius, we were permitted to enjoy a closer acquaintance and greater fellowship with these two great friends of the Light Brahmas, and hereby express our appreciation.

We believe that such action of a true fancier not only brings us in closer relationship as men but as breeders and lovers of the grand old standby of a half century. This event, arranged by a generous fellow-breeder, will do much to promote the further progress of our favorite breed. For this reason we desire to commend the whole-souled generosity of Mr. Joseph Elias, who by this splendid, red-letter function has given us an opportunity to herald the merits of our breed and make their good qualities known in a wider field.

Resolved that this expression of our gratitude be spread on the minutes of the American Light Brahma Club.

A. E. WOHLERT,
Chairman of Committee.

PHEASANTS

A Well Known Authority Discloses
Some State Secrets on the Proper Rearing of Pheasants.

(By Wm. C. Bowman.)

I set the eggs under light weight hens, giving each hen about fifteen eggs. The period for hatching is about twenty-four days. I set our hens in boxes under a covered building and about 24 hours previous to the eggs being due to hatch I sprinkle the eggs and nest very thoroughly with water at a temperature of the nest, using ordinary sprinkling can for the purpose. This will avoid, in a great measure, egg bound chicks or chicks that would not get out of the shell. If the hatching is done in coops outdoors and the ground has plenty of moisture this is not so necessary. After hatching we leave the hen and her chicks in the nest for about 24 hours, providing the mother is not unruly, in which case give the chicks to quiet, good hens that have not hatched out all their eggs. There will be plenty of these cases in a setting of 100 or 150 eggs all coming out the same day, to care for the young of the indifferent mothers. After the 24 hours coop the young birds in the rearing coops and yards, using the ordinary brood-coops same as for young chicks. After 3 or 4 days the young birds will learn the mother's call and then you can move the brood and coop to a large yard, enclosed with wire netting. Always keep the mother in the coop. I put two coops in one yard. The young birds will get mixed up afterward, which is not of any consequence. After eight weeks the young birds should be of sufficient age and size to be left alone. Divide the birds into flocks of 15 to 20 to a yard about 12 by 20.

FEEDING.

I feed Spratts game meal, procured from Spratts Patent Limited Co., corner Market and Congress Streets, Newark, N. J. I grind this fairly fine for the first few days through a coffee mill. Hard boiled eggs (that is infertile hen eggs out of your incubator if you run one). Break up the eggs and rub them through a fine sieve; green vegetables, chives, lettuce, cabbage or green onion tops cut fine with a knife or chopper. You can make up a batch of food for 100 young birds per day by using six quarts of Spratts game meal, 12 to 15 hard boiled eggs, plenty of fine chopped vegetables, at least one quart, moisten the whole batch and mix well.

I put the feed on a clean piece of board placed in the yard close to the slates of the coop where the mother hen can get at it and teach the young ones to eat. This same food will answer her as well, in fact she will start laying in a few weeks. Watch and see that the little ones get plenty of feed every two hours at least during the whole day, using a small quantity at a time, say two-third of a teacupful, increase or lessen as you think best. When birds become three to four weeks old I use a meat food made by Spratts called "Grissel" and mix this in with the other foods. When the chicks become of an age to leave the mother they will take grain such as wheat and buckwheat, Grissel, game meal and plenty of green vegetables at all stages.

Use plenty of Saylor's Insecticide Lice Killer during incubation on the hen and nest, also on young birds until six weeks old, then provide with dusting places. Spade the yards every year and use lime to disinfect. The only remedy that I have that will cure a sick pheasant is: "Don't let it get sick."

Trusting that this will be of some help to your readers whom have been trying to raise pheasants.

Yours sincerely,
WM. C. BOWMAN.

First pen five years straight at Madison Square Garden Show, New York

First Pen 5 Years Straight at Madison Square Garden New York.

AGAIN "POLEY'S WORLD'S BEST BUFF ROCKS" RECEIVE MORE FIRST AWARDS at America's leading show—held December, 1911 at Madison Square Garden, New York—than ALL THE OTHER COMPETITORS COMBINED.

AGAIN "POLEY'S WORLD'S BEST BUFF ROCKS" WIN FIRST PEN at this show, this being the fifth consecutive year in which they have won this most important first prize.

AGAIN "POLEY'S WORLD'S BEST BUFF ROCKS" ADD TO THEIR LONG LIST OF WINNINGS at Madison Square Garden by capturing, first and fourth on cock, first and fifth on cockerel, third on pullet, third and fifth on hen.

This season's record at New York is merely in keeping with the showing of the past five years—during which time "POLEY'S WORLD'S BEST BUFF ROCKS" have won 16 out of a possible 25 firsts at this show, in addition to numerous shape, color and gold specials.

Wherever else we have shown them—wherever our customers have shown them—"POLEY'S WORLD'S BEST BUFF ROCKS" have won easily.

In addition to the wonderful record of "POLEY'S WORLD'S BEST BUFF ROCKS" as a show bird, is their high reputation as a general purpose fowl. They are of great strength, size and vigor, and in laying qualities are unequalled—this is the sort of stock you want.

It will pay you to introduce this strain into your flock. Our new 1912 catalog, giving full details of Poley's famous all star matings, and our mating list, sent upon request. Write for these books, full of information about the best in Buff Rock Stock.

THE NORTH PENN.-QUAKERTOWN SHOW.

The most successful show ever held by the North Penn Poultry Association was that held at Quakertown, Pa., the first week in January, when over 700 of the best birds in Eastern Pennsylvania were assembled and the result was that many blue ribbon winners at other prominent shows had to take a back seat, and in some instances didn't get a place. It was a successful show in every way that the word successful implies and the officers are not only to be congratulated but commended for their hard and faithful work. They did their duty and did it well. The Fancier rejoices as this is the home organization and after all is said and done, there is no place like home. The North Penn boys are working shoulder to shoulder and they deserve all the success they enjoyed. And we wish to thank the management for the courteous and kind treatment extended the Fancier and the loyal way they supported us, May the North Penn continue to grow in prestige and power.

The following officers have been elected for the ensuing term: Franklin H. Bean, President; Joseph Clunk, Vice President; E. R. McCrook, Secretary; Jacob S. Larkins, Recording Secretary; William L. Moore, Treasurer; Harry Barnes, Superintendent; Chas. J. Kremer, Assistant Superintendent.

S.C. White Leghorns S.C. Rhode Island Reds

Intelligent, consistent breeding has enabled the Newtown strain, both varieties, to accurately reproduce the parent stock. "Newtown" birds combine in a rare way a great laying propensity and ideal exhibition points. We began with ideal stock. All our parent birds are able to trace their lineage through generations of Madison Square Garden winners.

Newtown Poultry Farm

The demand last year was so great for Newton stock that we greatly enlarged our plant. Our present capacity is 60,000 chicks at one time.

BABY CHICKS. We have bent every energy toward getting ready to supply this Spring's demand for baby chicks and hope to be able to take care of all orders. Shipments have already begun. The chicks we send out are strong, healthy, vigorous fellows that are able to stand the journey anywhere. Many shipments to the far West and Pacific Coast points made with safety last year.

Our special chick shipping box means safe arrival of chicks. Best box made for the purpose. 50 and 100 sizes. (Write for price list of boxes if you are a shipper yourself.)

HATCHING EGGS. We supply eggs of genuine Newton stock, either of above breeds. Eggs are strongly fertile—a well known Newton characteristic.

Your friend "Bob" Essex

THE LATEST IN INCUBATORS.

The "Mission-Finish" in a "Middle-price" Incubator appears to be the Up-to-date thing in Hatchers—and "Bob" Essex is responsible for it.

So far as our knowledge extends, the latest improved line of Incubators is the Essex-Model "Middle-Price"—a new 1912 design in Mission-Finish which is so popular in household furniture. The Essex-Model "Middle-Price" line has been on the market some years, and in this latest design it retains the same old successful principle that has given it a foremost name as a hatcher for many years.

Some amazing results have been obtained with the Essex-Model "Middle-Price" machines during past years—in fact, it was a "Middle-Price," Incubator with which Miss Ruth Zick beat the World's Hatching record, a report of which appears in the Robert Essex Incubator Company's advertisement on another page. Miss Zick hatched every hatchable egg four times in succession which not only constitutes a record in hatching but one which it will be very difficult to equal. The same advertisement tells of seven other users who with Essex-Model machines (not all "Middle-Price" however) hatched 100 per cent. Of course, these were single hatches; yet they constitute another record for the "Essex-Models."

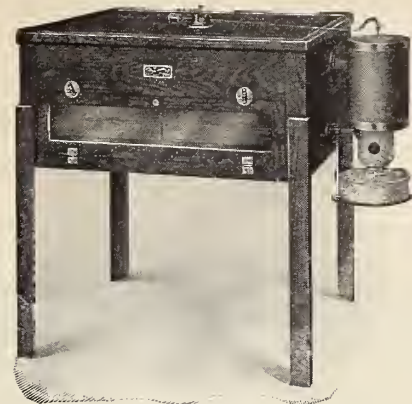

To hatch 100 chicks from 100 eggs is an extraordinary hatch, but the "Essex-Model" did it. To hatch all the eggs in seven different machines by seven different persons is simply wonderful—and the Essex-Model holds that record also.

But we were going to tell what we know of this wonderful hatcher.

Some years ago Mr. Essex decided that while there was a demand for first-class hatches, that demand would be much greater if such a machine could be produced at a price within the reach of everybody—for the high-class Incubators, while worth all that is asked for them, come high. So he made up his mind to experiment with the view of reducing cost of construction without interfering with the hatching principle—simply using less costly lumber—using nails where in his "Standard" machines screws are used, and in addition adopt fewer ornamental additions, which as an architect would say of a house, reduced the cost quite a lot.

The outcome of his endeavor was the production of his "Middle-Price" line—a machine which the records referred to above prove to be a strictly first-class machine. It is a leader—and yet it is sold at a price that has enabled him to give it the name—

"Middle-Price"—because it is midway in price between the cheaply constructed kind and the highest priced machines on the market. And in doing this Mr. Essex was successful, in retaining the hatching quality of the high-priced machines.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the Essex-Model "Middle-Price" Incubator is extremely popular. We remember one of Mr. Essex's advertisements a year ago described it as "Worth More—Cost Less"—a very happy illustration of its value.

The 1912 Style of this wonderful little machine is what we intended to describe when we began writing. It is as we have said, Mission-Finish, so that the machines are now known as "Essex-Model Middle-Price, Mission-Finish Incubators." They are made in Three Sizes—70 eggs, 120 eggs, and 200 eggs and sell at $9.50, $12.50 and $18.50 respectively.

We leave it to our readers to determine how near they approach their name of "Middle-Price," but this much we can say they are certainly most attractive-appearing Mission-Finish Incubators, set off, as they are, with bright brass fittings; and it has been shown that they do the work. The illustration which accompanies this article does not do them justice. They must be seen to be appreciated at their true worth.

We recommend our readers to send for the Catalogue of the Robert Essex Incubator Company and read further regarding these machines, and what they have done. Their address will be found in their advertisement on another page.

Speaking of advertisements reminds us that in their advertisement in the January issue of this journal appeared a letter from a user of one of the Essex-Model machines, who out of 407 eggs, hatched 395 chicks; sold them at 12 cents each, and made $47.40 out of the hatch, which was $10.00 more than he gave for the Incubator. That was one of their "Standard" machines, and it goes to show that with an Essex-Model and good fertile eggs a poultryman can readily pay for his machine with the first hatch, and have something to the good.

The Robert Essex Incubator Company needs no introduction. Every reader of this Journal knows "Bob" Essex and his life-time record in the business. He lives right up to his business motto, which is—

"My friends are the Poultry-Keeper!
My desire is to serve them all—faithfully."
And he'll do it!

Now is the time to order Baby Chicks and eggs for hatching from our Standard Bred Prize Winning Stock.

BARRED PLYMOUTH ROCKS

S. C. RHODE ISLAND REDS S. C. WHITE LEGHORNS

We Have Mated Up This Season

10 Special Pens Barred Rocks 5 Special Pens Leghorns

5 Special Pens Rhode Island Reds.

How good these pens are can best be explained by our winnings during the Fall and Winter Show Season, which include 86 firsts, 52 seconds and 30 specials, cups, ribbons and cash, on a total of 220 entries.

Won at the Great Allentown Fair; Trenton Interstate Fair; Hagerstown Fair; Bucks County, Chester County and Montgomery County Fairs; Red Bank; Philadelphia; Lititz and Scranton Winter Shows. Our marvelous win at Allentown Fair with our Barred Rocks of 4 firsts, 1 second, and 1 fourth, was the sensation of the show, which was repeated later at Trenton Fair.

The Breeders for our pens are the cream of 2400 Free-range Birds, selected for Color and Shape, and our terms for eggs and chicks present an opportunity to secure the best at most reasonable prices. Eggs from special pens of Rocks, $8 per setting. Reds and Leghorns, $5 per setting. Baby Chicks from above pens a matter of correspondence. Eggs from our general flocks, $8 per 100. Baby Chicks during February and March, $20 per 100.

COYLE &amp; LEACH

J. F. COYLE, Specialty Breeder of S. C. White Leghorns.

HARRY LEACH, Pekin Duck Specialist.

Our Farm Reared S. C. White Leghorns are primarily bred to LAY. 22 Pullets, latest of the season, 14 hatched on May 29, 1911, and 8 hatched on June 26, 1911, were placed in laying pen No. 10, open front, on Dec. 12, 1911, and between Dec. 31st and Jan. 31st, 1912, by accurate egg and feed records laid 18 doz. and 1 egg, retailing at 50 to 40 cents per doz. No egg forcing feeds of any sort used; just corn, wheat, oats, bran and buckwheat middlings. Feed bill $3.86. Larger breeds lay less and eat twice as much, ours more than pay their way, either summer or winter.

Two weeks in January, four of these pullets removed and with their Male bird won first pen at Scranton and at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. against the hottest kind of competition. Bred right to lay and to win.

SPECIAL OFFER TO all who choose to place orders in advance; good only during Feb. '12; deliveries any time within 5 months. Eggs for hatching from the best of these mated to the Prize winning Cock Bird (a splendid breeder, practically unrelated but our own strain) at $2.25 per setting of 15, satisfaction guaranteed, one-fourth with order (in Feb. '12) balance on delivery at date you specify. We will not repeat this offer.

OUR PEKIN DUCKS ARE LAYING NOW! Beat that for winter laying ducks, if you can. The splendid flocks of Coyle and Leach are now combined; these ducks are of the Samuels strain, and are unexcelled for Quick growth and size. Coyle's won first at Wilkes-Barre Jan. 1912, First duck and 2nd drake. Leach won first and third drake, 2nd and 3rd ducks (all young stock) against the hottest kind of competition. Leach's first young Drake at Wilkes-Barre, also won 1st at the Great Allentown Fair 1911. From the Pen headed by the Allentown winner we will sell hatchling eggs at three dollars per eleven eggs; from the Wilkes-Barre winner $2.20 per eleven, satisfaction guaranteed. We have unequalled facilities for care of breeding ducks. A few choice Drakes for sale at $3 to $5 each. Address all communications to Sunbury, Pa., Show, The Most Successful Show in The History of The Association.

More sales were made at this show than at any previous show. This is good evidence that the Sunbury Show is visited by a buying and much interested people.

The local Barred Rock fanciers and breeders gave the breeders of that breed many cash prizes, different than have heretofore been offered. They were the only exhibitors of eggs. Best doz. was won by Youtz.

Secretary Pritman had a sad experience; he had paralysis of the optic nerve, losing sight of his left eye. We hope for a recovery.

Mr. Hopple, who breeds Buff Leghorns, missed the show. He was confined at the hospital with eye trouble.

Geise, Treasurer, who is the Champion tobacco chewer, his spitting record being 12 feet 9 inches, won some ribbons in the Barred Rocks.

Mr. Harry Wilkerson, Partridge Cochin breeder, made a clean sweep again. Blue Andalusians were not many, but of good quality.

Youtz's 1st cock and 1st cockerel stood out by themselves for quality.

Slack's, Millersburg and Lewistown winners came in for 1st, 2d, and 3d pullet and 1st hen. He has a strong line of females in Barred Rocks.

Murrell told Youtz to watch him next year. Dick and Bill will be back.

The White Rock class was larger than ever and competition was keen. Highland Poultry Farm, of York, winning out. The mistress of Highland says they will win the $350 Piano. They must win it three times. The boys presented her with a toy Piano to practice on until she wins the large one. She took the joae.

Mr. Lentz made his first win this year in White Rocks. Reitz and Klinger tried to down O'Leary in this class, but must try again.

Lawrence Bros. came in and spent the week in town and always petting their Buff Rocks.

Tobies won out in White Wyandottes with quality to burn. Winegardner, the politician made his initial bow in the White Alley, getting 2d cock and 5th hen. He will be back next year, and thinks Penrose should be the judge.

Weidig fell out of the game slightly, only showing a pen.

Knorr's first pullet was a good one. Twenty-six in the class made her go some.

Devine won out in Buff Wyandottes. He said he was no boy, but he now has the goods. This class was the largest Sunbury ever had in Buffs. Columbias fell back in number.

Mr. Lehu was the only exhibitor of Black Wyandottes. His string was of the finest quality.

Judge B. Monroe Posten and G. Bradley Cooke looked the show over and thought it fine. Both decided to show with us next year.

The boys of the Barred Rock Alley hope Kenner will accept the invitation to return next year. The boys want a man who will judge the birds, not the breeders.

Mr. Andrew Miller spent a full half day looking up his Barred Rock friends. Increased business compelled Mr. Miller to sell his Rocks, but he is still a contributing fancier.

A pen of Reds won best pen in show. A Hamburg hen captured best hen. Youtz was so much taken up explaining how to breed Barred Rocks and booking orders that he forgot to get shaved all week. It was whispered about he is too tight to take a chance on a razor.

Elmer Hawk sold first cockerel Buff Orpington for $(LV). He still has the parent stock. His win in Blacks puts him at the head of the list.

Mrs. Chapin, of Milton, took the White Orpington cup. She and Miller broke even on points, she having most entries.

Sherry won a ribbon and lost it in Blacks. As John put it "Des gepht schlisht, der moust met mina frow gefrocht."

Runyan and Sober made many good sales of Buffs.

Wilhelien said: "Oh, you Houdans, for eggs and blue ribbons."

Mr. Greenough's exhibit of Pea fowls added much to the appearance of the show, and he promised a full string for next year.

Pres. McPharland was as busy as a cluck with one chick.

Mrs. Boyd Johnson, of Rupart, came down and looked in the Barred Rock Alley.

Oh, the weather was bad all week, but the crowd came just the same. Everything moved off nicely. One kind of breeder we failed to find, "the better at home fellow." Must have gotten snowed under.

The eggs laid during show week were delivered to the hospital for the patients. The show committee failed to get many eggs on account of the egg snipper being on hand. One of the lowest things, besides stealing chickens, is taking eggs. The committee got information about the parties, but failed to use the law.

Lentz showered his White Rock winners with kisses, and fed her houbon. It caused envy among the ladies present.

Mrs. Tobias won out easily on Buff Cochin Bantams while Aurand made a clean-up in the White classes.

Seasholtz took care of the pigeon department. Sunbury had its first Barred Rock Bantam, Dan Aurand being the exhibitor. Youtz wanted to buy his exhibit, but Aurand said "nothing doing" Dickie.

Poultry Journal business was good at Sunbury.

Attendance on Thursday reached the 2,000 mark.

White Orpington class was not as large this year as last. We wonder why?

A. F. Boardner, of Shamokin, came down and spent a day with us.

Furman, of Bloomsburg, took in the White Wyandotte and thinks he will be down with a string for 1913.

Mr. Pifer, of Danville, was amongst his Barred Rock friends and says, owing to illness he was unable to condition his birds. Thinks he will be on the spotlight at next show.

Hatter Bastain was showing at the Pottsville show, but spent a day comparing the Barred Rocks with his and meeting old friends.

There was an increase in all the Leghorn classes.

Jones, the Baby chick man, had a string of Whites and won in pen.

Mr. John Bloom took a ribbon home on his pen of S. C. W. Leghorns.

Snyder won on his W. C. B. Polish. He owns and has birds that won at Madison Garden show.

Supt. Runyan handled the birds in his usual careful manner.

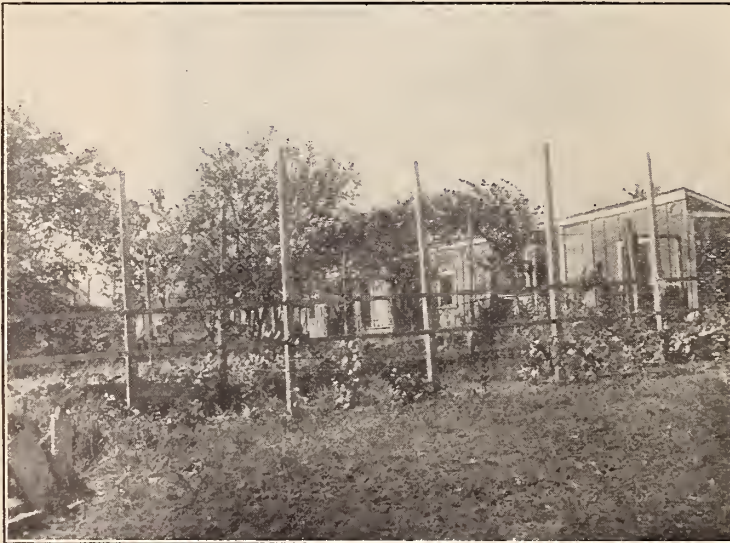

Everybody is invited to be on hand at Sunbury in 1913. Same time place and good fellowship.

Remember it takes the goods to win at Sunbury.

WOODSIDE BARRED ROX are winners

At the Bridgeton, N. J. Show on only 4 entries, I won 1st, cockerel, 2d, and 3d hen, and 5th pullet; at Burlington, N. J. Show in a class of 125 Barred Rocks, on 9 entries, I won 7 prizes. A few birds left for sale. Eggs, $3 per setting. Special matings $5.

AMERICAN BARRED PLYMOUTH ROCK CLUB.

The twentieth annual meeting was held at Philadelphia, December 13, 1911. Thirty-three members were in attendance. The Secretary's report of the previous meeting, as printed and mailed to members, was read and approved. The Treasurer's report showed that there was over Five Hundred and Ninety dollars ($590) on deposit with which to meet the bills for the present show season.

The following officers were unanimously elected: President, A. C. Smith, Waltham, Mass. Vice-Presidents, Victor Bradley, H. M. Keuer, O. L. King, C. H. Latham, William Barry Owen, C. H. Shaylor, C. B. Thompson. Executive Committee, D. M. Covert, S. T. Divinia, A. C. Hawkins, Reese V. Hicks, S. K. Willard, H. P. Schwab and C. H. Welles. Secretary-Treasurer, H. D. Riley.

Show committees to further the interest of the variety at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Topeka were elected. The Secretary read a list of nearly 300 applications for membership and all were unanimously elected.

The Secretary was instructed to have printed five thousand copies of the constitution, and to accept advertisements at $10 per page to help pay for same.

From every standpoint, membership activity, prospects, and finance, the club is in better condition than for years.

State cups have been allotted in twenty states or more. These are the most valuable given by any specialty club and vary in value from $12.50 to $25, while the value of the National cup this season was $50.

We want the assistance of every Barred Rock breeder and will assist every Barred Rock breeder.

Those who wish to join may do so by sending $1 fee to either A. C. Smith, Waltham, Mass., President or H. D. Riley, Stafford, Pa., Secretary-Treasurer.

A. C. SMITH, President.

THE AMERICAN ROSE COMB BROWN LEGHORN CLUB.

The industrious Brown Hen will produce more eggs with less feed than any other variety. The Secretary of the Club will be glad to mail catalogs containing valuable information on breeding, etc., to any one sending for same. Address, Mrs. W. W. GALE, Sec'y, 65 Centre St., New Haven, Conn.

Aug. D. Arnold starts out in this month's Fancier offering eggs from his Golden and Silver Campines. Mr. A. believes there is a very great future for this variety and he is not alone in this belief, for quite a number of leading fanciers have taken up this variety lately.

The Golden are not bred up to the standard to such a marked degree as are the Silvers, and are very scarce, having been shown for the first time at the late Crystal Palace Show in England, and then only a very few. The pen strain at the late Madison Square Garden Show attracted a great deal of attention and were a beautiful pen of birds, and many were the fanciers who were attracted by their beauty. At this time they are not nearly so extensively bred as are the Silvers, but since they are now before the breeders of America they are sure to go and no doubt the demand will be far ahead of the supply.

Mr. Arnold has procured a few pens of the best Silvers to be found in England and America. Also a pen of Golden, and will offer a few settings of eggs this season.

THE Great Egg Maker

Get Eggs in paying quantities all winter by feeding Red Comb Meat Mash and Red Comb Scratch Feed every day. No other feeding is necessary. A hen is an egg mill and she cannot grind out eggs unless she is fed egg-making food.

Red Comb Meat Mash contains the highest percentage of egg making elements it is possible to produce in a balanced ration by the combination of ground grains, meat and alfalfa. Absolutely free from sweepings and other dirt.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR PARCELS POSTS.

By C. W. ZIMMER, Chairman, Parcels Post Committee of the A. P. A.

The work which we are doing to secure an extended Parcels Post, is beginning to bear fruit.

I secured a hearing before the Senate Committee of Post Offices and Post Roads, which is investigating Parcels Post. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., consented to give me a hearing setting January 5th at eleven o'clock as the time. President Reese V. Hicks and Charles D. Cleveland, Chairman of the Express Committee, also appeared at that time.

We were allowed to present our reasons as to why we needed a Parcels Post and what the benefits would be; also as to how it would extend our business. We were questioned as to the extent of the poultry business and we certainly interested the Senators greatly in the day old chick business and the mammoth incubators. They did not know that there was such a thing as a 40,000 egg incubator, so naturally they were interested and asked many questions.

We told them of the abuse we suffered at the hand of the Express Companies, how they killed our valuable birds and refused to pay more than five dollars per head, how they would not route them the shortest way, etc., and they listened to our stories and certainly were interested in what we had to say.

It was easily seen by the drift of their questions that they will recommend some kind of Parcels Post Bill.

It is very probable that they will not recommend any of the present bills but will probably draft a new one. Judging by the deep interest shown by this committee. I believe it will be a better one. I also believe it will be on the zone plan by which is meant that for a certain distance from a City, say twenty-five miles, a very low rate will be charged and perhaps larger packet and a more varied classification of articles carried. For instance perhaps they will carry vegetables, eggs and dressed chickens from the producer living on Rural Routes, to his customer in the City but refuse to carry such articles from Indiana to New York City.

As I said before, I believe they will gress for its consideration and it is then up to Congress to pass it.

Now dear reader, here is where your part in this great work, comes in. You have a man in the House of Representatives and in the Senate representing you; write him a letter, tell him you NEED and WANT an extended Parcels Post; tell him you want him to vote for and support to the fullest extent of his ability, the best Parcels Post Bill presented. PLEASE DO THIS NOW.

Surely it is worth a two cent stamp and a few minutes of your time to help in this good cause. I appeal to every read-favor a zone system and the rates will be less on the short haul and more on the longer hauls.

I feel we created a very favorable impression and I am pleased to say I think we will get a Parcels Post.

But the work is by no means done yet, it really has only begun, for this Committee can only recommend a bill to Con-er, whether he is a member of the A. P. A. or not, it makes no difference. Write to your Representative and Senator anyway, for it is here where the greatest pressure will be brought to bear to try to defeat us. CAN I DEPEND UPON YOUR HELP?

Fraternally,
C. W. ZIMMER.

Cochin Bantams, look at this carefully and study the shape.

Bantam Breeders. ATTENTION!

It is our intention to devote considerable space to Bantams. We believe the midgets of the Poultry world are entitled to just recognition, and they will get it at the hands of the management of the FANCIER. In the past I always did all that was possible for the interests of Bantams and I am now in a better position than ever to promote the interests of Bantams. I will set aside the space and it is up to you to fill it with matter which will be instructive and interesting to all lovers of Bantams. Let us all work together; without your help it is impossible to conduct the department. But give me your assistance and we will have the most interesting Bantam Dept. of any journal in the country. Send us an article—send us some cuts. Do your part—we will do ours. Send in your article so it reaches us by Feb. 10th.

Pigeon Breeders, ATTENTION!

In connection with our Bantam Dept. we will also give space to the Pigeon men's interests, but it is up to you to make this department interesting. We will do all that we can here at this end, and we want every pigeon breeder in the country to rally to our support. We want to serve your interests. Send us a good story for the March issue. Get it into our hands by Feb. 10th.

Bantam Notes.

The Game Club Bantam meet at Baltimore brought out one of the best classes ever seen, and no kick was heard on the judging.

Rose Comb Black Bantam male, note the shape, study it carefully.

E. C. Ricker sold a number of birds to a party on the Pacific coast, at a long price, that are cleaning up the Blues.

It is said there are more Bantams raised to the square foot in and around Lititz than any other place in the country.

Charley Matsinger was in charge of Charley Diffenderfer's fine string of Bantams at the Scranton Show.

E. M. Bickel made an enviable record at the big shows, both at the fairs and winter events, and for the first time will sell eggs for hatching.

Many of the leading specialty breeders of Standard varieties are taking up a variety of Bantams. This should create increased demand.

Let every breeder of Bantams contribute something to this department. The reason the Bantam men don't get more space is because they neglect sending it in.

Danny Whitmyer, the well known Bantam breeder of Lititz, sold out his store. This means more Bantams.

Black Rose Combs are very scarce, and in good demand.

Bantam interest is rapidly increasing especially in the east, and the demand is greater than the supply.

Range Grown Quality Birds

My 1912 matings represent the very cream selected from hundreds of farm raised birds and sired by the winners of leading shows where the keenest of competition was met. I can furnish eggs from both cockerel and pullet matings. These pens are mated right, bred right and will produce the right kind of Rocks. Eggs $2 per setting of 15, 10.00 per 100. One grand select mating at 5.00. Choice stock for sale at reasonable prices.

Meadow Brook Superior Strain

When you purchase stock or eggs it is well to consider matters carefully. Many failures are due to lack of consideration in making the start. Your success depends largely on tried and true stock or eggs from the same. Our strains represent many years of careful breeding from farm raised birds. As winners in keen competition they have won their own record. Our 1912 matings—superior to any we have ever yarded—and we can furnish eggs at $5 per setting 15; exhibition matings $3; for other grand matings, $10. per '00. (Fertility guaranteed.) We have also choice breeding stock for sale at surprisingly low prices. Correspondence a pleasure, and our aim is to please.

THE UNDISPUTED CHAMPIONS OF THE WORLD

and all birds shown by me were raised on my own farm as their ancestors for many generations were. NOW

One Thing Sure

You want the best! That's what it takes to win in the present day competition. Let me say Blood Lines is what you want and it takes strong blood lines to produce better offspring than their sires. No strain on earth has stronger blood lines than Tompkin's. And for the first time in my years of advertising

One Thing Certain

Year after year I have demonstrated at America's great shows including Madison Square, where my winnings have never been approached let alone equalled and where I encountered competition from the North, South, East and West; not only in my hands but in hands of my customers in every State in the Union, hence

I SAY

YOU MUST HAVE TOMPKIN'S

STRAIN TO WIN

AND Let me impress on your mind that my 1912 matings represents the greatest, strongest matings that were ever bred and from these matings the Blue-Ribbon Winners of America's Greatest Shows will be raised and from a setting of eggs from my best matings you get the same chance as I do in raising the famous winners for next seasons shows.

When Eggs Are High Are Your Hens Laying?

Go after this egg business in dead earnest. Honestly, there is more—very much more—money in eggs than there is in raising corn, wheat or oats if you make sure of one thing

See that every hen has food that will make her lay all the time

Write to Humphrey and he will tell you how becomes a certainty all through the winter. Ask for proof that this can positively be done with a Humphrey always-open-hopper Bone Cutter. Now is the time you want to start to get your hens through the molting period. Brings out the new feathers, keeps the egg clusters active.

Send for Humphrey's famous book, "Making the Golden Egg"—the only book that tells you how to handle your poultry month by month—how to raise chicks from the time they "peep"—how to fix home remedies—how to cut your feed bill almost in half—how to make the most money from your poultry. This book is free. So write for it today. It will be worth dollars to you. Address

Standard Wyandottes in Colors and How to Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

Reaches the Climax for those interested in this Variety. WHEN YOU SEE IT YOU WILL ACKNOWLEDGE THAT IT IS THE BEST AND WORTH MANY TIMES THE PRICE TO YOU.

This book teaches you How to Score and Judge the greatest of all the American varieties. No other work published will give the information as it is given by Theo. Hewes in his articles, which are fully illustrated by over one hundred pictures, together with the chart system, of which he is the originator, and which is copyrighted by him. Not only do full page half-tone plates of some of the finest living specimens of these breeds appear in black and white, but the richest and grandest work ever done in oil by an artist is given by I. W. Burgess in a series of twelve pictures representing male and female, accompanied by feathers from the different sections of the birds in colors.

Size of book 11½x8½ inches. Contains over 70 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00.

These pictures are 4½x7 inches in size, and cost over $1,000 for the copper plates alone, to say nothing of the artist's labor and general cost of production. In fact no expense has been spared to make it by far the most valuable work on Wyandottes ever printed in America or elsewhere; you cannot duplicate it at any price, but you can have one by return mail for $1.00, and if you are not satisfied we will refund your money. We do as we say we will, now and always. Our past dealings with the public will prove this.

Remit by Express, P. O. Order or Check as this is the safest way. Book will be sent immediately upon receipt of order.

RHODE ISLAND REDS

How to Breed and Judge Them
By THEO. HEWES

Is the Best and Most Complete Treatise Ever
Published on this Great Variety

There is no breed so widely advertised to-day as the Rhode Island Reds and no breed in which there is such a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes perfection.

"RHODE ISLAND REDS; HOW TO BREED AND JUDGE THEM"
is better than the
"STANDARD OF PERFECTION"

because it goes into detail and describes every section, with numerous illustrations, showing ideal and defective shape and color, thus making scoring so simple that any one can understand. Some sections have four or five illustrations showing the several defects that may be found in them, with the proper discount for the same as applied by our leading judges.

Size of Book 11½x8½ inches, Contains over 50 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00

In addition to this most complete series of articles on scoring, there are numerous articles from America's foremost Red breeders on every phase of Red breeding. This book tells you just what you want to know. It tells you how to mate your pens; how to grow your chicks; how to select your show birds; in fact, it tells you how to grow, exhibit and make money out of Reds.

This book is sold on approval. The price is $1.00, and, dear reader, if you are not satisfied with your bargain, send us back the book and we will refund your money.

Twelve Month's Work in the Poultry Yard

BY W. THEO. WITTMAN

Acknowledged by all to be one of America's Foremost Authorities and Judges.

Starts you in January, and takes you clear through the year—telling you just what to do to successfully handle your fowls in the safest and most economical way that is consistent with good business methods, to make the largest success possible with your fowls.

It does not tell you how to make $200 from 20 hens

But, it gives you a short, boiled down, and up-to-date treatise on lines that are practical and can be executed with safety. The contents of this book are intensely practicable, and to teach a method of poultry keeping, exactly opposite to that which is complicated and unnecessary. On the other hand Twelve Month's Work has been purposely chosen to emphasize the fact that the successful poultryman will find work to do, twelve months in the year. For regularity and attention to small details, all of the time, and in season, are prime factors of success in the business. PRICE 25c.

Standard of Perfection OFFICIAL GUIDE

JUDGING — MATING — BREEDING

You cannot raise fowls intelligently without a copy of the American Standard of Perfection the Official guide of Poultry Culture

THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION is published by the American Poultry Association and is the American authority [United States and Canada] on the required characteristic of all Breeds and Varieties of Chickens, Ducks, Turkeys and Geese. Every poultryman should have a copy of the new American Standard of Perfection. All the Standard requirements as to shape, color and markings of all standard breeds of poultry are clearly described and illustrated in the new work.

You cannot tell the value of your birds unless you know the Standard requirements. You cannot enter the show room and win unless you know these requirements. In short, you cannot succeed in the poultry business without possessing a copy of this book.

A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent on Trial to Prove it Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer

After Thirty Year's Experience I Have Produced an Appliance for Men, Women and Children that Actually Cures Rupture.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon to-day and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. F. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir.—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot no matter what position it was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON.

80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

The above is O. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who has been curing others for over 30 years. If ruptured, write him to-day.

Recommend From Texas Famer

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co., Marshall, Mich.

Gentlemen—I feel it my duty to let you, and also all people afflicted as I was, know what your Appliance has done for me. I have been ruptured for many years and have worn many different trusses, but never got any relief until I got your Appliance. I put it on last November, but had very little faith in it, but must say I am now cured. I have laid it away—have had it off for two weeks and doing all kinds of farm work with ease. While I was wearing it, I had lagrippe and coughed a great deal but it held all right. Words cannot express my gratitude towards you and your Appliance. Will recommend it to all ruptured people.

Very sincerely,
J. E. LONG.

Bald Prairie, Texas

case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,
SAM A. HOOVER,
Jamestown, N. C., 21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa.

Child Cured in Four Months

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

Gentlemen:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.

Yours very truly,
ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

Others Failed but the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks, Marshal, Mich.

Dear Sir—Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you. Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON.

No. 717 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Cured at the Age of 76

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty badtively cannot be detected through the clothing.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market to-day, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and posi-

6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.

7. There is nothing about it to get foul and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.

8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.

9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon to-day.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day.

OWEN FARMS

"We Congratulate You, Mr. Owen"

This with a hearty handshake was the greeting of every well known breeder as I met him at Madison Square December Show. "Why do you congratulate me?" I asked of one great breeder. His reply was: "Because you have demonstrated here in this New York Show that it is possible for a breeder to take several varieties of poultry and make a success of each and every one. For years it has always been contended that this could not be done. It can never be seriously questioned after your winning at Madison Square Garden this time."

What Did we Really Do?

We entered a string of TWO HUNDRED AND TWENTY-THREE birds in ten breeds.

WE WON, in the severest competition, TWENTY-SEVEN BLUE RIBBONS (FIRST PRIZE,) TWELVE SECONDS, ELEVEN THIRDS, NINE FOURTHS, TEN FIFTHS and FIVE SIXTHS (New York this year giving six ribbons). In all SEVENTY-FOUR RIBBONS.

Buff Orpingtons

In this variety we won ALL FIVE FIRSTS, including, of course, first cock, first hen, first cockerel, first pullet and first pen; and also third cock, fourth hen and sixth cockerel. Such a win needs no further comment.

White Orpingtons

This was the variety in which the most wonderful and terrific competition ever pnt up anywhere in the world was exactly to be noticed.

WE WON 3 of the 5 firsts and on only two entries in the pen class, which was certainly one of the strongest classes of pens in the whole show, we won first and second. Our first cockerel was really a marvel, and we had no hesitation in refusing an offer of One Thousand Dollars for this single bird. We also won first hen, which by the way, was the same hen which won first two years ago. In addition, we won third and fifth cock, sixth hen and third pullet. In points won we far exceeded our nearest competitor, winning about three times as much as anyone else.

Black Orpingtons

In BLACK ORPINGTONS we made a grand winning in cockerel, for everyone considered that our first cockerel was one of the best ever shown in this variety. He had magnificent type, an excellent head and very fine color. We are positive that this cockerel will be the sire of very many winners in Black Orpingtons this next year. We also won fifth hen and fifth pen. We shall give unusual attention this year to the mating of our Black Orpingtons, and the result from our eggs for hatching will be more than gratifying to our customers.

White Plymouth Rocks

It is a long and full story to tell you about our winning in WHITE ROCKS. We won four firsts—first cock, first cockerel, first pullet and first pen. We won the seconds in all five classes, and on pens we won every place but fourth, making our winning pens first, second, third, fifth and sixth. This was positively the greatest winning in White Rocks ever made at the Madison Square Garden Show, and it was not because there was lack of competition, for it was one of the best classes in this grand variety that we ever penned there.

Barred Plymouth Rocks

As usual, the competition in Barred Rocks was extremely fierce, and it happened, as it so often does, that no one breeder won more than one first. We were very pleased to win first pullet, which was also awarded the Shape Special, repeating our winning of first pullet two years ago; and also the pullet this year was awarded the championship for best female.

White Wyandottes

We have said in our advertising several times this last year that this was to be a White Wyandotte year at Owen Farms, and if you could see our orders; if you could know what these birds that we have sold all over the country have done; how constantly they have been winning for our friends; if you could visit our farm and look over our White Wyandottes individually and as a flock, you would see that the prediction we made has come true.

We won three firsts—first cock, first cockerel and first pen. We also won third and fourth cock, second, third and fifth hen; second cockerel, second and third pullet, and second and third pen. This last winning of first, second and third pen in the hottest competition, with only three pens entered, demonstrated what Owen Farms' flock is as a whole. We have the type, the color and the head points, and above all that, the wonderful thing called station, that gives our White Wyandottes, when prepared and fitted for the show, an easy chance at the Blue Ribbons.

Rhode Island Reds

WE ARE MORE PROUD OF OUR WONDERFUL WINNING IN RHODE ISLAND REDS THAN OF ANYTHING WE HAVE EVER DONE AT OWEN FARMS. Please remember this was our first showing of Reds, and everybody was there and everybody was making predictions, and perhaps few, if any, expected that Owen Farms would make such a wonderful winning in this extremely hot and grand class of birds. Think of it! We won five out of the ten firsts in Single and Rose Comb Reds—as many as all others put together. Our first single comb cockerel was in a class of 43 cockereis, all grand birds, and yet he easily took the Blue Ribbon. Our hen, which was first was a marvel, and our pen was conceded very easily to be the best in the show, both in Single Combs and Rose Combs. Our first hen won the Shape Special. And in addition, we won fifth and sixth cock in single combs. Our rose comb first cock was decided to be the Champion male in Reds, and was admired by everyone who saw him.

What This Winning at New York Means to You

It must mean, if it means anything at all, that if you are looking for either birds or eggs for hatching from the best yards to be found in America, that you may depend upon it that Owen Farms has them. Your chances of success, I affirm to you, are just exactly equal to our own chances, for we give you eggs from every mating that we possess without reserve. We are positive that we can and will do much more for our customers this year, both in breeding stock and in eggs for hatching, than we have ever done before.

Eggs for Hatching

We are extremely pleased to announce that we have this year mated birds in all of our varieties that are far in excess in quality and value of any ever heretofore mated. We have sold only one winning male bird of all our winning male birds at New York. The balance are all heading our pens, together with many that have won previously or are the sons or grandsons of our New York winners. We have limited our pens in each case, so that the number is never in excess of our ability to mate them with the very highest quality of both males and females. What we have done in this respect, you will be able to learn from our mating list.

Our Mating List

This year we are publishing, and will send you upon application, a book containing approximately 144 pages. 56 of these pages are devoted exclusively to illustration, being the best bird's-eye view of Owen Farms and its wonderful winning birds that we have ever offered. In addition, we have included our general information which has heretofore been included in a separate book, and have described accurately and carefully each and all of the pens that we offer you. Our guarantee on eggs is explained therein. It is the same as we have employed in past seasons, and we have tried to make it for your protection, and as broad as possible. We certainly trust that this mating list and catalogue combined will meet your approval.

Our Egg Prices

You will find below a schedule of exactly what you can get in eggs for hatching from Owen Farms. For our convenience, we would ask you to write your order for eggs, giving careful attention to the variety you require, the exact time you wish shipment, and your shipping directions, upon a separate sheet of paper. This will help us very much in the handling of your order. We say further, that you may order eggs at the rate of 50 or 100 as priced below and make selection from as many varieties as you wish. Each egg will be marked with the number of the pen from which it comes and also with the name of the variety. Express charges will be prepaid on all original orders for eggs, for ten or over, to points in the United States and Canada, but not on eggs at half price, either on account of unsatisfactory hatch or on account of the lateuess of the season, which half price season commences June 1st.

EGGS FOR HATCHING

I bought 15 eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass. The chicks are not yet three months old and will weigh easily three pounds each at this writing. I shall, if I live, exhibit these wonderful birds at our State Fair in October, and if justice is done in the judging, I shall score a triumph; $100 APIECE WOULD NOT BUY THESE BIRDS FROM ME.

J. L. M.

Utah, July 30, 1909.

I bought eggs from Mr. Ernest Kellerstrass. I had remarkable hatches from said eggs, obtaining 66 2-3 per cent. in good fine chicks, of which I am justly proud. I have visited his splendid farm on two occasions, at which time I made the acquaintance of Mr. Kellerstrass, and looked closely into the methods employed by him in the conduct of his farm, and will say that a view of Mr. Kellerstrass' birds would set the most conservative and cold-blooded chicken fancier to glow with enthusiasm.

A. S. D.

Oklahoma, July 12, 1909.

I bought 15 eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass. I got ten chicks and they are all living. I have handled four other breeds, and must say that the Crystal White Orpingtons are the best. They are the first to mature and they are the healthiest birds I have ever kept.

J. W. H.

Minnesota, July 12, 1909.

I bought eggs from the Kellerstrass Farm. I am very well pleased with my treatment by Mr. Kellerstrass. The birds seem to be healthy and thrifty and look good to me, as I am a breeder of prize birds. I think I received my money's worth and expect in a few months to fill my pens by purchasing a few more pullets from him.

R. S. D.

Ohio, July 12, 1909.

I bought a setting of eggs from Mr. Ernest Kellerstrass. I have seven very fine birds from them; all strong, large, healthy chicks. I have one pullet from this lot that $50 would not buy. I also have thirty more eggs that will come off next week.

I find Mr. Kellerstrass a very fine gentleman with whom to do business—prompt and square, and he shall receive an order again next season from me.

E. F. B.

Wisconsin, July 12, 1909.

I bought 15 eggs of Mr. Kellerstrass. The chicks were hatched April 16 and I have so far succeeded in raising all that were hatched. Everyone who sees them thinks they are the finest lot of chicks they ever saw. I am well pleased with them. I HAVE ONE PULLET THAT I WOULD NOT TAKE $50.00 FOR. So you see I think I am way ahead on the deal.

W. M.

Pennsylvania, July 4, 1909

The above testimony's speak for themselves. Look through this journal and you will see more successful breeders advertising KELLERSTRASS CRYSTAL WHITE ORPINGTONS than any other breed. Any time better birds are bred Kellerstrass Farm will breed them. If you want to know more about them or the price of stock and eggs send for free catalog.

Kellerstrass Poultry Farm, 9166 Westport Road, Kansas City, Missouri

I bought two settings of eggs from Ernest Kellerstrass this spring, and I have never seen any better chicks anywhere. While at present they are but half grown they have great, strong legs and feet. I have some eight hens that were hatched from eggs of Mr. Kellerstrass last season and they have proven to be wonderful layers and the most satisfactory of fowls. My dealings with Mr. Kellerstrass have been very satisfactory.

R. E. W.

Nebraska, July 14, 1909

I bought a setting of 15 eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass, hatching and raising 12 chicks out of the 15 eggs. All are healthy, vigorous birds and I expect to do some showing with them this fall and winter.

F. A. M.

Indiana, July 12, 1909.

I bought eggs from the Kellerstrass Farm and the chicks hatched from these eggs are chicks indeed.

As to the vigor of the Crystal White Orpingtons, I think they are unsurpassed, as I have proof of that this season by the birds from the eggs I purchased from them last season, 1908—about 95 per cent. HATCHED. The Kellerstrass Farm has always done the square thing with me, and they have my best wishes.

J. S. B.

Washington, July 12, 1909.

I purchased eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass. The chicks hatched from these eggs were very strong and vigorous. It was never my lot to have a stronger or more healthy lot of chickens and growing like weeds. I am more than proud of them and have wished many times this summer that I had gotten two settings of eggs instead of one. I expect to have them on exhibition this coming winter and expect to win some ribbons.

R. M. G.

Iowa, July 17, 1909.

I bought eggs from Mr. Ernest Kellerstrass and will say that the chicks hatched from these eggs are strong, healthy and as fine little chicks as you ever saw.

I find that Mr. Kellerstrass gives his customers their money's worth. I am very much pleased with the square dealings I had with him.

Pennsylvania, July 20, 1909

I bought a setting of eggs from Mr. Kellerstrass. I hatched 14 chicks from the setting. I have raised every one of these chicks and they are strong and healthy. They are perfect beauties and I can say that Mr. Kellerstrass has certainly been square with me in his dealings. I have had a very successful year all around with my Crystal White Orpingtons, raising 200 birds and sold about 100 worth of eggs besides from ten pullets.

Single Comb Buff Leghorns

The poultry business of to-day might, to use a lecturer's phrase, be summed up in a nut-shell, but it would be much more appropriate to sum it up in the egg-shell. In other words prolific egg production, or otherwise, generally spells success or failure for the popularity of any breed or variety of poultry. Some varieties may enjoy a short-lived boom, due to the pushing and advertising of it by interested breeders, but the final result depends on the merits of the variety, and that means its value as an egg producer.

The reason that the heaviest egg-producing varieties win out is readily seen. The income from poultry may be divided into three classes; eggs, meat and fancy. The income from a heavy laying variety is certainly greater when the breeder sells his eggs to market, for he is paid for the number he markets. His profit is greatest when he can produce these at the least cost, as is the case where a light eating variety is kept. Those raising poultry for meat must fall back to the egg in order to produce their chicks which they will market later as broilers, etc. The heavy layer comes to the top here also, for the breeder can hatch more chicks from a given number of breeders than can he by having less prolific egg-producers. In other words, the man having the heaviest laying strain can hatch the same number at less expense, not having to keep so many breeders. The same principle holds good with the breeder of fancy fowls. His income depends on the eggs he sells for hatching and the breeding and show birds he sells. Naturally, the more eggs his prize birds lay the more he can sell. He also has more chances of getting high quality birds himself, just as many more chances as his birds excel those of others in their laying. Perhaps the baby chick class might be added to the above, for that has developed into a large and profitable branch of the poultry business of the present day. Here, again, it is the egg upon which the breeder depends for his baby chicks and income. The more eggs the more chance for a greater number of chicks.

In all these classes from which the poultry man derives his income it will be seen that the vital question, that of producing the most eggs at the least cost, is the foundation upon which each branch is founded. To get the greatest results, the greatest profit, he wants the breed and variety producing the most eggs at the least cost, whether it be for market eggs, for meat or for fancy.

At the least cost? That means that he wants a light eater, yet one that is an active forager and hardy, so that the birds may grow rapidly without sickness or heavy feed bills.

There is one breed that surpasses all others in filling out these requirements. It is the Mediterranean breed, the breed that a great majority of our commercial egg farmers are breeding at the present day. The owners of these find that they meet the requirements in producing the greatest number of first-class marketable eggs at the least cost. The eggs of this breed are large and white and command the highest prices, whereas those of others are generally of an assortment of the different shades of brown and do not present the uniform neat appearance demanded by first-class trade. I might add that it is the Leghorns that are so popular on the egg farms, the other varieties of the Mediterraneans, Minorcas, Spanish, Andalusians and Anconas being greatly in the minority.

As to broilers, the Leghorns are certainly quick developers and can reach the broiler size as quickly as any. Their clean, yellow legs and skin, plump carcass and small bone will appeal to any epicure. The larger varieties have larger bone and certainly must have less meat on them when marketed at the same weight. The fully matured Leghorn hen will average about four pounds in weight and makes a nice sized bird for the ordinary family.

For the fancy part a man could want nothing prettier than a Leghorn. The Leghorns have nice red combs and wattles, white lobes as a contrast, making a pretty head; a nice concave back, with a sloping tail, and nice yellow legs. Being so trim and neat, they are pretty in any color, but with a nice golden buff plumage that sparkles like gold itself in the sunlight, you certainly have the ideal.

White Rock female. Owned and bred by Peapack Farm, Fred Huyler, Peapack, N. J.

That gives you the Single Comb Buff Leghorn, the peer of all for eggs, meat or beauty, and the coming variety of the most popular egg-producing breed in the country. The three most popular varieties of the Mediterranean class at the present day are the Single Comb White Leghorns, Single Comb Buff Leghorns and Single Comb Brown Leghorns, in the order named. The Browns, once so popular, are now far in the rear of the Buffs. I do not know that there is any data on hand to prove this as far as farm stock is concerned, but the trend of public opinion is plainly seen by the classes shown at our poultry shows every year. The figures given from the leading show of the country, Madison Square Garden, are very interesting and plainly show the rapid use in popularity of the Single Comb Buff Leghorns. The following figures will give a representative idea of the classes shown five years ago and to-day.

Leghorn Classes; '07, '10, '11, Madison Square Garden

Variety	Dec. 1907			1910			1911
	Single Entries	Pens	Total	Single Entries	Pens	Total	Single Entries	Pens	Total
S. C. Whites	126	16	206	117	20	217	79	9	124
S. C. Buffs	42	5	67	72	9	117	74	6	104
S. C. Browns	69	7	104	32	2	42	43	3	58

By this table it will be seen that from 1907 to 1911 the S. C. Browns and S. C. Buffs have practically reversed positions, the Buffs going away ahead of the Browns; also that the Buffs were only five single entries and three pens behind the Whites. This is a remarkable gain, and coupled with the beauty and merits of the variety, should make all stop and study the S. C. Buff Leghorn before taking up any other variety.

A word as to the merits of the S. C. Buff Leghorns as learned by raising them during the past seven years. It has always been my policy to keep a record of my birds, especially so when mated. I have often compared these records with those published by other breeders, but have seen none to compare with that made by the hens in my first pen of 1911. These hens were selected as pullets for their heavy laying, for they had laid steadily from November to the following August, when they molted. All six were prize birds and several had won two or three ribbons each. Five of them were four years old and the other one five years old. The latter died from oviduct trouble in the middle of the season. They were mated in February and were kept so until July, when they were turned out on range. They continued laying until September when three of them molted, the other two not stopping until October. This means that these hens, in their fourth year, laid steadily for seven and eight months. Their record for the breeding season follows:

Egg Record—Pen 1, 1911.

Month	Days	Eggs	Hens	Av Hen	% Yield
March	31	64	6.	10.4	34.41
April	30	81	6.	13.5	45.
May	31	76	5.87	12.98	41.76
June	30	80	5.	16.	53.33
July	6	17	5.	3.4	56.23
Totals	128	318	5.69	56.28	43.56

The last hen to stop, the first prize hen at Brooklyn, 1909, laid her first egg again on January 13, and laid twice more during the next week. This was the coldest week we have had on Long Island in eight years, too. I might add that pullets bred from these birds averaged 60 per cent. egg yield for the 1911 season, going to 73.7 per cent. one month. The fertility from Pen 1 in 1911 was high, averaging 91.5 per cent. for the season. One hatch was 100 per cent. and two others lacked but one egg of being so. Although now in their fifth year, they are mated for the next season's business.

Of the exhibition record of my birds little need be said. They have won and are winning to-day in America's best shows, and can boast of a record seldom equalled by any breeder.

I trust this will find favor with all interested and encourage more fanciers still to take up the most profitable and beautiful of the Leghorn family, the Single Comb Buff Leghorn.

Photographing Fancy Stock

The Value of Photographs of Your Stock. By J. E. Willmarth, Amityville, N. Y.

Many beginners in the Fancy appreciate the value of good pictures of their birds, when used on their stationary and in the Poultry papers, but do not just know how to get such Photos.

The prices of Cameras are now so low that they are in the reach of nearly every body and are a good investment for the Poultry Fancier.

Of medium priced Cameras there are two types, the "so called" self focusing, or what are generally known as "Kodaks," are the easiest to use and often give good results, but the focusing Cameras have a far greater range of usefulness, and when properly handled, give much the best results; but they require quite some practice in handling and are more expensive than the "box type" or "Kodaks."

BARRED MINORCA PULLET - THIRD PRIZE
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., DEC. 1911
WM. A. SMITH, METUCHEN, N. J.

Of course, one can hardly expect to get the results of our experienced Poultry Artists in photographing stock, but the Breeder has the Artist at a disadvantage, for he can work among his birds whenever conditions are best, and his birds know him and are not as much frightened at his approach, as they will be when a stranger handles them. Thus the breeder can catch them in natural poses in the pens and can get near enough to get good results.

When one's Stock is reasonably tame it is best to get the pen of Birds in which is the one we wish to Photograph, in the yards, closing the entrance to the house, slowly drive the flock to the north end of the run, of course, choosing a good bright day for this work, as we have to "snap," time exposure being practically impossible in such cases. Plenty of patience is required; work very slowly; get up to within about ten feet of the bunch of Chickens without frightening them; focus your Camera as well as possible; then patiently wait until the one you wish to "Snap" moves out in front of the others and assume the desired pose. Then act quickly and get his picture before he moves again. It is best to take three or four exposures if things are working right, so if some of them should not turn out right you will have others to fall back on. It is not necessary to have the one you are "snapping" out by itself, providing no other bird stands in front of it, for even though parts of the other members of the pen are included in the picture it makes but little difference, as any professional Photographer can "paint these out" of the picture.

Some Breeders not possessing a Camera get their local photographer to take some pictures of their Stock. The results of such work is very unsatisfactory unless such photographer be one who understands the different types of Poultry and knows what is the proper pose for the bird he is photographing. Ordinarily Professional Photographers will get pictures that are clear and distinct, but the bird is very likely to be in a very poor position, as they do not know just what shape he should be.

Having "snapped" several of the birds we wish, the next thing is to develop the films or plates. Many amateurs do this work very nicely, but as a general rule it pays to let a professional photographer do this part as they are apt to "bring out" the Photo in better shape, especially if you tell him that you wish the pictures to have cuts made from.

The next step is to have cuts made and most of the Poultry papers have the best facilities for having this work done. If we have an extra good picture it is best to have several electrotypes made from the cut, as these are much cheaper and it saves the original "Cut," and by having several electrotypes we can have pictures running in several papers, as the Poultry papers set up their reading matter quite some time ahead of the publication date. This makes your cut slow in getting from one paper to another.

Often we get a photo of a bird that does not do him justice, and it seems impossible to get him to assume the right pose, or if the wind blows, his feathers are roughed up, or there may be an undesirable background to an otherwise good picture. All these can be improved by the Poultry Artists. The amateur photographer's great fault is wrong focusing, and thus we get an indistinct or blurred picture. Here again the Artist is necessary to correct our faults. We appreciate that there are no doubt some Poultry pictures going the rounds of the Poultry Papers that are not much better than fakes, through being "done over" by the Artists, but the great majority are truthful representations, and we have seen some cuts appearing that did not do justice to the birds, through faulty posing, etc.

We must remember that in all businesses the sample presented in soliciting trade is from the best goods, put up in an attractive form, and buyers of Poultry expect the same. A good cut of a good bird is one of the best forms of advertising, but a poor cut of a bird, be the latter a good one or a poor one, is worse than nothing, and is liable to do more harm than good.

You can buy a cheap stock cut of your variety, and such cuts answer the purpose when you are selling stock to farmers and others who wish cheap birds, and who do not know what your breed looks like, but when you want to be a Fancier and sell something that you are not ashamed of, then use a good cut of one of your own birds. Such Cuts give you an individuality, and pull you out of the class of Breeders who use stock cuts on their stationery and sell dollar birds.

Breeding Partridge Rocks

By S. A. Nofztger, North Manchester, Mass.

My experience in breeding nearly sixty different varieties of fancy poultry, in addition to assisting in producing or perfecting several breeds, has greatly assisted me in my work with Partridge Plymouth Rocks. It better enabled me to know how to create the new breed as it really should be and fitted me to make a fowl, the beauty of which almost beggars description, and which as a utility breed has few equals—no superiors—a breed which has won the title "Beauty Breed" or "Close to Nature Breed."

Partridge Plymouth Rocks today, the result of less than fifteen years of active, painstaking breeding, thought and study, are now attracting world-wide attention, over-stepping many of the old breeds and all the new ones, because they reproduce more true to type than any new fowls ever originated. For this "there is a reason." There was a fixed ideal and all effort was along definite lines. This breed is the result of rules that are the outgrowth of experience in breeding the same color and shape on other breeds.

The breeding of this grand new fowl has been greatly simplified by the adoption of single matings, standard matings so far as possible, from the very beginning. Much can be said in this connection. The making of them was not without trials and tribulations and to make lighter the burdens of the breeders of today I offer freely my knowledge and the benefit of my experience that there may be no "secrets of the trade."

When it is necessary to make separate matings for show birds of the different sexes breeding any variety of fancy poultry becomes a great study. When fine specimens of both sexes can be successfully mated to produce wonderful show and utility qualities, their breeding becomes comparatively a pleasure and pastime. It has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the leading breeders of Partridge Rocks that single matings will produce and have the world's greatest show and utility specimens; consequently it is the height of folly to give thought to any other method.

The first rule of single standard mating is to mate the nearest perfect individuals, both male and females. This rule, like all others, is not without exception. In the first place, fowls with the same striking defect of shape or color, no difference how good otherwise, should not be mated, but if possible select for each a mate that is good in this weak section. This applies also to utility as well as fancy. Never mate a male bird from a poor laying hen to other than females that are extra good egg machines. Success in the show room by violating this latter rule will prove to be dearly bought.

Remember, the breeding and mating of any variety of poultry, done at random, will result in failure; undertaken with limited knowledge is attended with greater risk, although often fairly satisfactory; producing, in ignorance of their breeding, is actually dangerous with fowls of any kind; intelligent selections, guided by fixed rules, insure matings that are almost invariably satisfactory, although there are the usual exceptions to the rules. However, we should follow the rules and expect the exceptions, hoping for as few of the latter as possible.

If compelled to breed from fowls which are too light in color care should be taken that the fowl of opposite sex be rather dark. Many disappointments in breeding for Partridge color can be traced to mating, each sex of which was a little light in color. Breeders who have improved Partridge color owe much of their success to the fact that they knew the ancestry of their fowls and could intelligently select breeders without fear of indelibly stamping some objectionable feature upon the progeny.

Many failures can be directly accounted for by the use of a fowl of exceptional quality but unknown breeding. For this reason "new blood" if any, should be introduced through the female so that all the offspring of the "new" one can be discarded without seriously affecting the general results. Fine individual merits is no excuse for the use of a male of questionable parentage for breeding purposes but when to quality is added royal ancestry, a priceless combination, then the breed at once becomes the best in the land to grace any pen.

It has not been my experience that either sex controls size, shape or color, but on the contrary, my observation convinces me that these qualities are gained by conditions and ancestry. For instance, a good per cent. of the progeny of any pair will grow to larger size than the parent stock if hatched in good season and grown under favorable conditions. A good shaped specimen of either sex will usually stamp this good quality on its offspring if it is not only from blood lines strong in shape, but if mated to a fowl fortified by just as good breeding even if the latter lack in shape.

The same rule applies to colors. Best results are obtained by mating fowls whose ancestors of both sexes were of rich show colors. Many times the apparent control of a certain characteristic, by one sex or the other, or both, when if the ancestors of neither was known, all the credit would be given to the one which was the better individual in that respect.

The belief among some breeders of Partridge color that brown in the fluff of males is necessary or better to produce best female color in the progeny is erroneous, for many of the very best females have been sired by high-class show birds without a particle of red in fluff. Other ideas of mating off colored fowls to get better of the opposite sex are just as much of a mistake. For instance, mating females strong in hackle stripe, but without penciling, to improve male color, has ruined flocks and I have failed to note a case where such matings have resulted in better males than numerous standard matings.

Fowls "bred in the purple" and with satisfactory color may not have all the requirements. Shape is of no minor importance. The whole Rock family owe popularity to the natural advantages of correct rock shape for, whether by accident or otherwise, this shape is today the greatest egg machine of poultrydom, hence should always be foremost in the mind of Rock breeders, and shape should always be given greater weight when selecting for fancy or utility.

Avoid mating striking defects in shape, same as in color. Under no circumstances should a fowl with a short deficient back, or lacking noticeably in breast, or strikingly poor in comb, etc., be mated with a bird lacking in the same section. Such a union would stamp indelibly the defect and render their offspring less valuable either as individuals or breeders.

Many rules for breeding can be cited, but the most simply and less troublesome plan is to adopt single matings, bearing in mind always the fact that we must avoid the union of the same defect as much as possible. Circumstances alter cases so that it is never possible to make matings just as we would like; in fact the ideal mating would be a perfect male and a perfect female, but a few suggestions might be of assistance here, since the writer may assist interested breeders to avoid the tendencies of the breed toward defects.

Don't use fowls with stubs on shanks, as the Cochinchina blood is disposed to assert itself, and this difficulty is apt to increase, although today there is no more of this than with the average flock of American breeds. Don't mate poor combs—combs with too many serrations or too large. Like all new breeds these fowls, being from new crosses, are more vigorous and inclined to overgrown combs. However, avoid using undersized combs. It means lack of vigor and vitality. Don't use a quite dark fowl with another the same, or two light ones, but use standard colors as much as possible. If necessary to use one too dark mate it with a light one and vice versa.

Select fowls for bright dark color in males and rich mahogany in females. Avoid shafting as much as possible. Be sure that the eye color on one side at least is good, and if the matings are none too strong in this respect, be careful that their ancestors were. Know the ancestry if possible and select breeders with the quality of their ancestors always in mind.

Remember, if the male bird is large and long in body the females can be somewhat undersize and short for good results. If possible choose a male bird of fine quality, whose dam was a fine colored hen, and fine individual females, the sires of which were fine show birds. Such constitute a better mating than ideal fowls of unknown or uncertain ancestry. To increase size of fowls mate good ones of medium size and hatch chicks early, rather than to select for size at expense of quality. Early hatched youngsters, when properly reared grow larger than the parent stock. This is a convenient and safe way to get exceptional quality from medium or even somewhat undersized parentage. Always bear in mind that blood tells.

Knowledge gained by past experience is of great value, but those who would progress must continue to gather information from which to profit. Success attained, whatever the degree, will not endure unless we keep in the van by learning from time to time. Fascination and pleasure of our pets make acquiring knowledge and its attendant duties pleasant pastime, instead of arduous, distasteful labor.

Remember that, as a rule, the knowledge of ancestry of the breeding fowls is not only a great help but is actually essential to the production of the world's best specimens of any breed. An exception to this may be the poultry man who produces a few very choice specimens but the fact that many noted breeders, famed for flocks of wonderful quality, produce annually but comparatively few fowls is evidence that there is a reason for good ones. This "reason" is knowledge of the fowls' pedigree and its correct application.

All rules for mating must be applied subject to the fowls' ancestry. For instance, if avoidable, no specimen with a marked defect should be raised with another, the ancestry of which had the same difficulty. Even though the one should show no trace of it "blood tells" and the fault will appear in the progeny with increased intensity. The more objectionable the defect in any fowl the greater our effort should be to find a mate, individually and in ancestry, as free as possible from it to thus avoid future trouble.

Reverse the rule—mate fowls with some desired features both in the individuals and their parents, and see what surprisingly pleasing results will follow from the view-point of this one characteristic. While doing this great care should be exercised that other defects do not creep in to the utter ruin of our efforts. This justifies larger numbers of matings in making a new strain or building a new breed; for the entire offspring of some matings, especially in the beginning, when it is impossible to avoid all the rocks, should be rejected in the early stages of the work. Learn to know the weak points, whatever the breed or strain, and strive to overcome or avoid them.

BY THE WAY

By H. S. Babcock.

Miss S. Carey, of England, in an article upon Orpington breeding, gives quite clearly the English point of view upon what defects should be considered disqualifications. She says "A chicken is bred for food, either in egg form or to obtain the largest amount of meat it can carry, and the fault that affects the purpose for which the bird is bred must be treated as a disqualification." Consequently disqualifications, such as side sprigs and white in earlobes would not be considered as such in England, but would be regarded as minor defects. "To reject a typical Orpington for a bird of inferior proportions because of a side spike," she says, "is like rejecting a fat ox for a lean beast because it had a bump on the side of its nose or a white patch over its left eye."

It is well to get every new view upon this vexed question of disqualifications, whether we agree with it or not, because we may thereby get a clearer understanding of the subject. Probably no subject in respect to standard-making in this country is in a more chaotic condition than this one of disqualifications. We have three classes of people in respect to disqualifications, one representing the extreme view that most defects should be treated as disqualifications, another going to the other extreme that disqualifications should be entirely abolished, and the third, sort of middle-of-the-road men who hold a position somewhere between the extremes.

A good many breeders and some judges apparently believe in the abolition of color disqualifications entirely and of figure disqualifications except some anatomical defect like a crooked back. But there does not seem to have been stated any underlying principle, except expediency, upon which their views are held.

To arrive at a just, consistent and scientific list of disqualifications some foundation principle or set of principles should be arrived at and established. We might, for example, take Miss Carey's view that the fault which affects the purpose for which a fowl is bred should be regarded as a disqualification, or we might determine that all inheritable defects are disqualifications, or that all abnormal developments of skeleton, muscles or feathers should be regarded as disqualifications. But the trouble with all these suggested principles is that they are too broad and they would tend rather to increase than to diminish the number of disqualifications, which is an end not to be desired.

While a just, consistent and scientific list of disqualifications, if it be a brief list, would be something very desirable, yet the difficulty, if not impossibility, of stating the necessary underlying principle may make us to prefer the ills we have rather than to fly to those we know not of. A brief arbitrary list may give good practical results.

Personally I believe that serious skeletal departures from the proper form, like crooked backs; feathered shanks and toes when the shanks and toes should be free from feathers and vice versa; decidedly wry tails caused not by habit, but by the so called "poppe's nose" being set on crooked; combs of a different character from the required type, as single for rose, for example; pronounced side sprigs and the like; all of which are quite likely to be transmitted to the progeny, if we are to have disqualifications at all, should be regarded as disqualifications. I am not in favor of many color disqualifications—I had almost written this "many" without the "M"—but if we must have them, let them be as few in number as possible, and of a character which will not interfere with successful color breeding.

It is really a serious question whether we need any disqualifications at all. As a poultry judge I used to favor disqualifications because it rendered the work easier and enabled me to eliminate a good many unworthy specimens easily. But with the total abolition of disqualifications one could, as a judge, pass such specimens as unworthy of a score, and it would be as easy to write "U" upon the score card as “Disq.” Or such defects might be given a larger value than is given to other defects, large enough to put the bird “out of the running.” The only difficulty about this is that they would be still disqualifications under a different name; like the suit of clothes in the drummer’s expense account, they would be there, though not so named.

If disqualifications were to be abolished altogether the best way would be to give all defects a proper value, the most serious ones of course a higher value than those of less serious character. Then each bird would be rated according to its actual value; if it didn’t score 85 points, after all the points for defects were deducted, it could not win. If the defects now regarded as disqualifications were valued at 15 or more points such birds as possessed them would have no chance to win and would be no more likely to appear in shows than are disqualified birds now.

It has always seemed a serious injustice to me to see a bird disqualified for a single or for several off-colored feathers, which would not seriously injure it for breeding purposes, and which many exhibitors would not hesitate to pull out had the feather or feathers been discovered in time. The removal of such feathers, where the number is small and the feathers are body feathers, could not be detected by the most acute judge, and “artificially moulted” at home would incur no danger of the penalties of faking. To make them disqualifications is to put a temptation in the way of exhibitors and place a premium upon dishonesty. But if they were regarded only as defects, and the defects properly and justly valued, the temptation would lose its power and the exhibitor would preserve his integrity.

The tendency of the day is towards reducing the number of disqualifications and reckoning the defects nearer to their real value. We are realizing more and more that defects which do not seriously impair the breeding value of the bird are not to be deeply cut. We are growing more lenient toward them, and that, too, without impairing the quality of our best birds. I believe we are breeding and showing better birds than ever before, despite the fact that disqualifications are less numerous in our Standard. With their total abolition there would be no retrograde movement toward producing high-class birds.

THE SQUARE DEAL

By E. M. Long, Osceola, Ind.

We have just read Mr. DeLancey's editorial in February issue of "Fancier," and it just "rings the bell" at the particular time and place which it should be rung. We are not conversant with conditions at Madison Square Garden show, but if Mr. DeLancey's statement is correct, and I do not doubt that it is, exhibitors who entered their birds according to the rules of the association with the understanding that the print-to compete. You may be straight and square, but the temptation is great. Don't allow any one to question your integrity and keep your birds out of competition. While the A. P. A. have a very good set of rules concerning judges showing in competition in classes they pass upon, and regarding the selling of birds to parties who expect to show them in competition where the party selling passes on the variety in question, the rules concerning show secretaries, as far as I can see, are very lax. I say to the A. P. A., place the show secretary who holds office in an Association which is a member of your body, in a position where there is no temptation and where his integrity will not be questioned by the exhibitors. And to the Poultry Association who holds yearly shows I say, pay your secretary for his services and let the premiums go to exhibitors who do not handle the score cards, if score card show it is. Most of the smaller western shows are score card shows and nearly every secretary is showing in competition.

I quote from the pages of an Eastern poultry journal as follows, concerning the report of the last Madison Square Garden show: "The Long lines of Orpington coops were partly explained by the presence of a big string of one of New England's breeders, and some quality stock brought over by an English lady. Next to the P. Rocks, the Orpington coops got the crowded attention of the week. In S. C. Buff Orpingtons the winnings that appealed to us most were those of ——. In S. C. Whites a ——" Then the writer goes on to tell the winnings which include one 2nd, one 4th and two 6ths. It is needless to say that the parties whose winnings were reported and commented on were advertisers in the poultry journal from which quotation was taken. I cannot call such reports a square deal.

ed statements in the Premium list or catalog were correct, should either be allowed to choose their judge in case of the judge scheduled to perform the work failing to be on hand, or they should be given the chance of withdrawing their exhibits from competition.

At one show where I exhibited during the past winter a complaint was registered by the secretary because my leg bands were stamped with the combination of three initials. At the same show three pen entries were turned down by the Secretary because in taking the entry by phone he had or his assistant had failed to mark down the pen entries. His reason was that the pen entries were not down on blank and he could not accept them because I did not get them down on blank before entries closed. It is needless to say that I withdrew my birds from competition. In the same show the rules of the American Poultry Association were violated in not requiring the judge to put up the ribbons. The judge had gone home before the winning birds had their ribbons or premium cards up. This Association is a member of the A. P. A. and the Secretary exhibited in competition against two varieties which I had entered. For the sake of appearance alone, I would say to show secretaries, keep your birds out of competition. Show them for exhibition but not

It is misleading to say the least. There is an old saying that "The truth will stand." We fanciers who are anxious to know the outcome of the big eastern shows, and cannot attend in person, want to know the whole truth. We want to know who won 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, and 5th in each class. What satisfaction would one get from reading such a report as above? I like the stand that Editor DeLancey has taken on a good many points concerning shows and their management, and I say let's clean house from cellar to garret.

THE POULTRY JUDGE

By F. D. Roger, Elgin, Illinois.

The man who chooses the vocation of a Poultry Judge thinking he has found a gold brick, and all he has to do is to don a duster and proceed to judge birds, wants to stop right where he is, change the lens in his glasses, and to use the slang phrase, have another look.

In the first place, a man to make an A No. 1 Poultry Judge, has to be naturally adapted, to a certain extent, for the work. Judges are not always made; many are born, the same as an artist, lawyer or doctor.

A man to get to the very top of any profession has to be in a way adapted to the choice of his life's work. You cannot make a whistle out of a pig's tail. You cannot make a Poultry Judge out of a man who has failed in everything else in which he has been engaged.

The Poultry Judge has people of all ages, sexes, sizes and nationalities to deal with and please. Imagine yourself for a moment a Judge starting to judge alone, say a small show of some five or six hundred birds.

Each exhibitor thinks he has the better bird or birds, and only one in a class can get the blue. It would be, I think, almost an impossibility to place the awards in a show of this character and not have some disappointed. You cannot please them all.

And, of course, the judge is a human being just like the rest of us. He is apt to make mistakes at times with his work, even if he is classed as a first-class judge. It matters not whether one is a blacksmith or a lawyer, we, one and all, at different times are apt to make mistakes, and a Judge of Standard-Bred Poultry is not exempt.

But let one little mistake be made that is at all evident and a cloud of smoke will rise from certain sections of the show-room thick enough to cut with a knife; and nine times out of ten the loser in the class will call the Judge all the names on the calendar, before seeing him, having a little heart to heart talk and settling misunderstanding in a much pleasanter and more man-fashion way.

Most exhibitors think a Judge should be perfect and they have positively no charity for his mistakes, and every reader of this article who has followed the game knows it to be a fact.

Many times too much work is piled upon one judge, and in order to get the ribbons up before the last day of the show, the Judge hurries, and mistakes are made.

In this case I blame the Judge, who takes it upon himself to do more scoring than he can possibly accomplish in the allotted time. Speedy judging spells disaster, and it spells it every time; and all concerned are losers, the Judge as well as the exhibitors.

The Wise Judge does not agree to score one thousand birds in three days just to land a show. He may land it once, but what about the next time? And moreover, the A No. 1 Judge of to-day has to know something beside Chickens.

He has to have a pleasing personality and not have the appearance of Uncle Josh or Si Coon just off the farm. He has to be somewhat of a diplomat, and know how to meet the people on the plane on which he finds them.

Judging Poultry is like most professions. In order to make good we must be able to meet obstacles and to overcome them.

Many men have and are now doing this very thing in all walks of life, and there is room for many more.

Indian Runner Ducks.

There is an enormous and growing demand for both stock and eggs of Indian Runner Ducks in both city and country.

To the city people the breeding of Runners is not only a pleasure, but they help meet the daily expenses of the family and add to the bank account, and to the farmer they are a good proposition to help pay off the mortgage on the farm. And to both they furnish delicious meat, fine flavored, tender and juicy, and large fresh eggs, as good and sweet as hens' eggs.

The number of eggs which these ducks lay seems almost unbelievable. Every noted egg machine goes down in defeat before them. Then I have found more profit, with much less expense, work and worry in breeding them than in chickens.

Ducks require less expensive houses and fences, and are not bothered with lice, mites, roup canker, bumble-foot, frozen combs, etc. If given their freedom they pick up much of their feed. They may be kept in confinement equally as well with proper feed and care, and it is remarkable the number of Runners that may be kept on a small space of ground.

Eggs from well mated stock are very fertile and stand shipping very well. A 90 per cent. hatch is not infrequent.

Ducklings are easy to raise and care for, and after a few weeks take care of themselves. They mature early, reaching market size in eight to ten weeks when fancy prices are paid for them in the city markets.

With good care Runners begin to lay when quite young, and all the year excepting during the molt after which they are ready for business again. Get the "bred-to-lay" kind and a handsome income awaits you, for Indian Runner Ducks lay, win, pay.

HARRY LEACH, Pekin Duck Specialist.

Our Farm Reared S. C. White Leghorns are primarily bred to LAY, 22 PULLETS, latest of the season, 14 hatched on May 29, 1911, and 8 hatched on June 26, 1911, were placed in laying pen No. 10, open front, on Dec. 12 1911, and between Dec. 31st and Jan. 31st, 1912 by accurate egg and feed records laid 18 doz. and 1 eggs, retailing at 50 to 40 cents per doz. No egg forcing feeds of any sort used; just corn, wheat, oats bran and buckwheat middlings. Feed bill $3.86. Larger breeds lay less and eat twice as much, ours more than pay their way, either summer or winter.

Two weeks in January, four of these pullets removed and with their Male bird won first pen at Scranton and at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., against the hottest kind of competition. Bred right to lay and to win.

SPECIAL OFFER TO all who choose to place orders in advance good only during Feb. '12; deliveries any time within 5 months. Eggs for hatching from the best of these mated to the Prize winning Cocker Bird (a splendid breeder practically unrelated but our own strain) at $2.25 per setting of 15, satisfaction guaranteed, one-fourth with order (in Feb. ## Topics of The Hour

By Ralph Rutter.

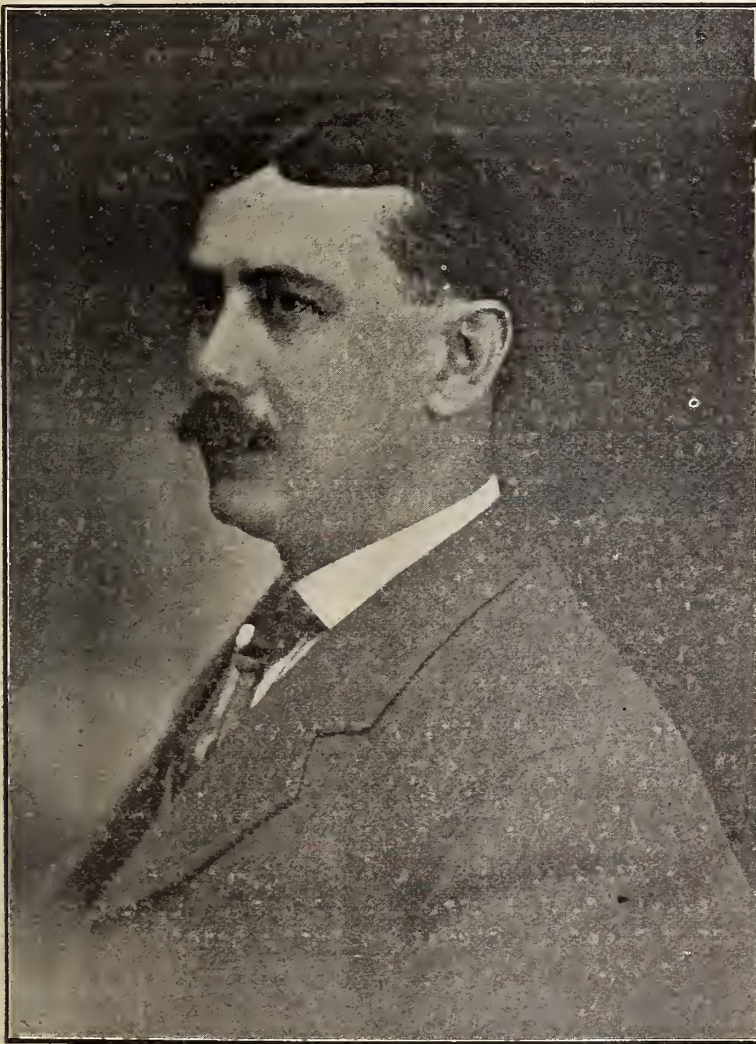

We are now at the season when most every back yard will contain little downy (balls) biddies whose peep peep will swell into myriads of lustrous voices from coast to coast. It is to help that modest peep-peep grow into a prodigious crow, or a delightful cackle that I am writing this article.

This inconceivable chick mortality can, with little effort and few precautions taken the first four weeks of a chick's life, be reduced to a minimum.

Already the incubators have expelled their contents a time or two, but those will need little or nothing that I can say to help them in what perhaps they have already mastered. But to those who chicks. Especially the larger breeds. For the Mediterranean class, April is equally as good, and some say better, for the chances of freezing are lessening. Of course you are, or are about to set eggs from good stock, either from your own breeding or procured from some honest breeder, and, of course, you have every right to expect a reasonable good hatch. But first of all, dear reader, do not expect to get exhibition birds from a setting of eggs that you have paid a dollar or two for. Your expectancy may be wild but you have no right to expect the cream of years and years of work and study for a paltry dollar.

March is the best month to hatch exhibition birds, it means years and years of study and work; it is symbolical to a good breeder and quite naturally and necessarily a good price. Quite often you can get good birds from a breeder who is lesser known and will serve your purpose quite as well as a top-notch setting, if you do not know how to handle them when they are hatched.

I do not mean that you should not start with good stock. Start with the very best you know how to handle and that you can afford to buy. But remember that the very best eggs in the world with the germ of the finest specimen ever exhibited inclosed in that ovi-case, in the hands of an amateur will or would be a sad, sad likeness.

The better stock with which you start the more years you are ahead. But my advice is, go slow; learn as you go along; bridle your expectancy, and last, but most important of all, spend every atom of work and brains in the raising and forge ahead. Good, healthy brains are equally essential as healthy work in the raising of healthy birds. And that better bird than the other fellow's must be the very acme of health.

Get in the game! Get in right, muscle and brains! "There is room at the top, but the bottom is crowded." It pays both financially and recreatively. There is great satisfaction in raising the best, the better, the kind that carries the blue away. There are men who will and do pay fabulous sums for this fascinating thing of honor—a small blue ribbon attached to a horse, a dog, a cage containing some fine chickens. We would covet a billy goat if it had a blue ribbon on its horns and it belonged to the other fellow.

Remember you are dealing with life, nature, that plastic, yet so subtle, fathomless thing that yields and yet does not. Be not deceived. Think not the other fellow has less brains than you. You can beat him out by persistent application of that which you learn from reliable sources. He may have had years of experience, years of learning, with probably as sound, as well developed brain as you, but we are all prone to get careless. We all make mistakes, but if you stay consistently at it from the time the egg is placed under the hen, or in the incubator, yea, from the time of conception, (but that is a subject for another discussion,) you will win out.

The present assumption is that the egg is bred right, and we are now going to raise it right. I do not mean we are going to cawdle it along like a hot house flower, but simply give it a wholesome, decent chance to develop in itself a state of perfection; to bring out of it its every worth; its individual worth.

The most dangerous act, to my mind, that results in the discouraging mortality is letting the chicks become chilled. If you have a brooder and it becomes too hot under the hover his little bit of sense tells him to crawl out where it is cooler, and this he does; but if it is cold and he has no place to go the mischief is done. Sometimes it does not crop out for a week or two later, but it eventually comes. Do not think the little fellows will eat as much as so many grown ups and then leave the remains lay until it sours or becomes musty. They want fresh or at least clean drinking water when they want it, too.

If chicks had been kept on the same ground before and it is known that gapes abound in early spring, scatter unslaked lime about and just as soon as the ground will permit being worked spade it in, and that will finish the worms; for it is generally conceded that the earthworm is the common carrier.

A brooder properly heated, or a hen placed where the chicks cannot stray too far away to become chilled, clean quarters, clean feed scattered in clean litter, where they will have to exercise to get it, and a resolve to keep consistently at it, will carry you through until this journal reaches you next month when there will be matters more interesting in it for you.

Now is the time to order Baby Chicks and eggs for hatching from our Standard Bred Prize Winning Stock.

5 Special Pens Rhode Island Reds.

How good these pens are can best be explained by our winnings during the Fall and Winter Show Season, which include 86 firsts, 52 seconds and 30 specials, cups, ribbons and cash, on a total of 220 entries.

Won at the Great Allentown Fair; Trenton Interstate Fair; Hagerstown Fair; Bucks County, Chester County and Montgomery County Fairs; Red Bank, Philadelphia; Lititz and Scranton Winter Shows. Our marvelous win at Allentown Fair with our Barred Rocks of 4 firsts, 1 second, and 1 fourth, was the sensation of the show, which was repeated later at Trenton Fair.

The Breeders for our pens are the cream of 2400 Free-range Birds, selected for Color and Shape, and our terms for eggs and chicks present an opportunity to secure the best at most reasonable prices. Eggs from special pens of Rocks, $8 per setting. Reds and Leghorns, $5 per setting. Baby Chicks from above pens a matter of correspondence. Eggs from our general flocks, $8 per 100. Baby Chicks during February and March, $20 per 100.

The Charles Incubator and Brooder Company

Why are you not interested in poultry, when eggs are bringing such enormous prices. You should invest in Charles' Incubators and Brooders, and hatch and raise chickens by the thousands. Our machines are made right. We were practical poultrymen long before we were manufacturers, we studied the machines we then used and learned their strong points and their weak points. These defects we have overcome in the Charles Incubators and Brooders. I also want you to notice the convenience of our machines, the nursery drawer containing the circular egg tray. The eggs can easily be mixed in two minutes, while sitting on a chair, then you push the drawer back in place and the work is done. There are no heavy egg trays to lift or table required, all this is done away with. Practical machines for practical poultrymen, made right here on "Our White Leghorn Farm."

THE CHARLES BROODER

The Charles Brooder is also a perfect product. It is an all-year-round brooder. The heater which is a great labor and fuel saver is entirely distinct from any other brooder heating device on the market. The Charles Incubators and Brooders are sold under a positive guarantee to give satisfaction or money refunded. Send for catalogue or better still, come and see our machines in operation. Breeding stock and hatching eggs for sale.

Impressions Formed in the Show Room

By Austin W. Carpenter.

The show season is over. Fanciers have returned home to the more serious problems of mating breeding pens and getting out catalogs and matings lists. It was my pleasure to have the opportunity of attending several shows this season. Some were large ones, others were small. At each I learned much. My time was well spent. Here are a few of the strong impressions that I brought home with me.

The poultry show is a blessing to the Poultry Industry.

We have too many shows. No line of the poultry business needs concentration more than the exhibitions.

Five out of every ten Associations cater to quantity rather than quality.

There are never enough men on the job to give the details of the show attention.

One-fourth of the diseases the Poultrymen have to combat are brought home from the show room, an evil that associations ought to eliminate and might eliminate if they only tried. Think of an assistant in whose hands is placed the care of the birds on exhibit, who simply gives them water and feed without observing their condition. Half of the assistants at poultry shows can't distinguish between a case of roupe and chicken pox. This is a fault that associations must correct.

The average association caters to the big fellow and the popular variety. Why not give the little breeder and the unpopular variety a chance? The little fellow who denies himself privileges in order to save the funds to show a few birds ought not to be crowded out of the aisle by the big advertiser with his fine linen duster. Gosh, it makes me sore to see those fellows strut around in the show room. They'll corner the Secretary for and hour with A. P. A. dope while the little fellow tries in vain to get a special his birds have won. About half their winnings are on imported birds or those purchased from other breeders. If the Associations would make a few as good overtures to the Polish men of the country as to the fellows who exhibit Orpingtons we would fill their coops with Polish and put the Orpington where it belongs, viz., on the level with other varieties. I am beginning to warm up on this subject. Just give us a half decent chance. Warm up to the little fellow and the unpopular variety. You won't make any mistake.

Very few Associations are ready for birds when they say they will be. This is a serious mistake. They lay the blame on the cooping corporations. If they made the right sort of a contract you can bet the coops would be up on time.

Above typical Leghorn was bred by one of Crystal Poultry Farm, Bloomsburg, Pa., egg customers and won the Blue Ribbon for same at a prominent Pennsylvania

The express companies ought to get "Hail Columbia." They know better than to leave valuable show birds on the express trucks in zero weather. If they don't it's time they were taught a lesson. Let's get after them.

Eight out of every ten judges intend to be square. One out of every ten judges place the awards with the Standard as their guide. The other nine let personal hobby run away with good intentions and common sense. One is crazy on type. Another is daffy on color. The poor exhibitor is up in the air. He mates his breeding pens, and selects his show birds on the only official guide in his reach, namely, The Standard. He gets to the show room and the judge tells him "The Standard don't amount to a damn." And there he is.

The marked catalog ought to go to the bone heap. It's almost impossible to keep it out of the hands of the judges until after the awards are placed.

It looks better to see the judge hike for home when he has completed his task. I always like to visit with them but before you can get away they'll fill you up on the proposition of a "good write up" and incidentally "an ad contract." It would sound better if some fellow would tell you the same thing who had not placed the awards.

About three out of every ten exhibitors are crooked. The blue ribbon is too great a temptation for them. The judges, when you go after them, begin to tell about the crooked exhibitors. Wern't they all exhibitors before they went to judging? Assuming their position is true, let me ask when they cut out the little things they say exhibitors are up to.

The majority of exhibitors are hard losers. You can't stop their knocking. They can't bear to see the other fellow win. Its dead wrong, and won't build up the poultry industry.

The poultry show has many virtues. It has its faults. Associations, Superintendents, Judges, and Exhibitors are all more or less to blame for its failures. We all need to get busy. The true principles of fraternity, put in practice by all of us, would boost the poultry industry and put the poultry exhibition where it ought to be. It's up to every one of us. Will we do our part?

The record of 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th cocks; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 6th, 7th, cockerels; 1st, 2nd, 4th, 5th, 7th, pullets; 1st, and 2nd pens at Topeka, Kans., Dec. 4th to 9th, 1911 in a class of 137 good birds, after a trip of hundreds of miles, stands alone and unequalled and shows that I have not only a few good birds, but lots of them, as 36 birds out of 40 shown stood under ribbons. This latest winning together with their winnings for the last 18 years in such shows as Chicago, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, Texas, New Orleans, Pittsburg, Philadelphia and scores of other large shows proves this strain has the perfection of type combined with the purity of color so necessary to win.

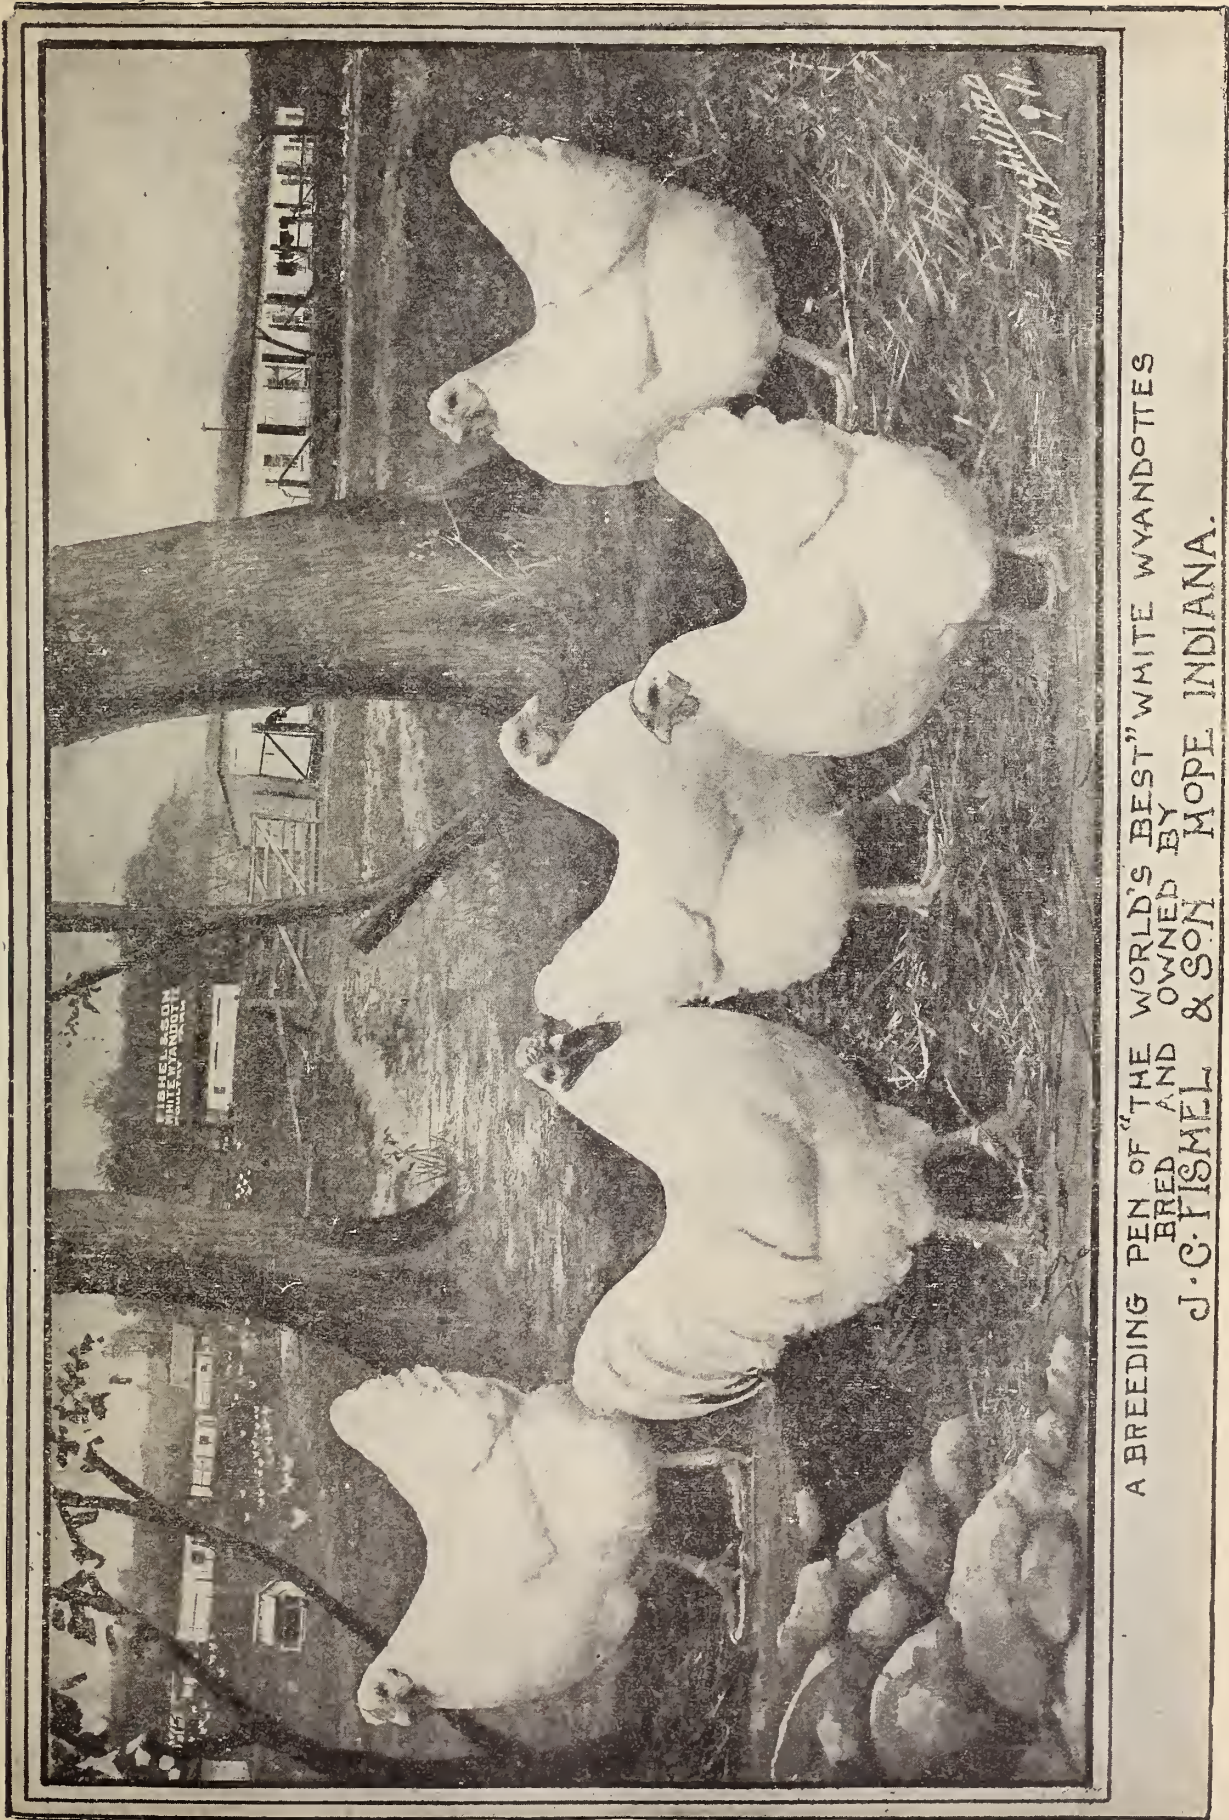

My 16 Grand pens, mated Jan. 1st contain all my prize winners at Topeka Dec. 4th to 9th, 1911. Fourteen are headed by the prize-winning males at this show. The balance of the birds in these pens are just as good individuals and as richly bred. They are bred right and mated right to produce the winners at America's largest shows.

A Few Hours With Men Who Raise Chickens

By F. D. Sutton.

The Twin Oaks Farm, Palmyra, Pa., A. G. Stauffer, Proprietor, starts a yearly ad. with The Fancier in this issue. Mr. Stauffer has one of the finest equipped poultry farms in the eastern part of the "Old Keystone State." This plant is devoted to the "One" great principle which should characterize the efforts of all high-class breeders, viz., "Honest value for an Honest Dollar." The incubator cellar on the Twin Oaks Farm is up-to-date in every respect, and one of the finest in the country, while the four large laying houses are modern in every respect. Plenty of light, plenty of good, fresh air and ideally located. It would prove a difficult task to improve upon either the location or arrangement of the Twin Oaks Farm. Mr. Stauffer breeds S. C. White Leghorns, Buff Plymouth Rocks and Indian Runner Ducks, and the quality of his flock is second to none we have seen this season, every bird full of health and vigor and thrilling the heart of the owner with songs of good cheer, and enhancing the value of his bank account with from fifty to sixty per cent. egg production during these cold, wintry days. The office, feed room and cellar for sprouting oats are in perfect harmony with the rest of the equipment on this splendid plant. There are a number of colony houses located at convenient distances from the main plant, which contain a fine lot of selected breeders of both Banded and White Rocks. These breeds are a sort of side line with Mr. Stauffer, and I assure any of our readers that any money invested in baby chicks or hatching eggs from these pens will certainly yield a splendid harvest to the purchaser. The Twin Oaks Farm's White Leghorns are large, white and true Leghorn type, and the prices Mr. Stauffer is making on eggs and day old chicks are very attractive indeed, and we would advise all prospective buyers to hurry their orders in to Mr. Stauffer's office, so as to avoid delay or other disappointments, as The Twin Oaks Farms are sure to have a wonderful run of business this season. Look up Mr. Stauffer's ads. in The Fancier.

He carries a Breeder's Card as well as an ad. in the display columns of this month's issue. It will pay you to investigate. "There is a reason."

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the ad. of Mr. W. W. Bohn, Rohesonia, Pa. Mr. Bohn breeds high-class S. C. White Orpingtons and White Wyandottes. His birds have won many prizes in strong competition and his prices are right for the quality of stock he keeps. Look up Mr. Bohn's ad. in the display Breeder's Card section and write him for prices.

We have an ad. from our old friend Oscar Blouch, of Annville, Pa., this month. Mr.

Blouch breeds Single Comb Buff Leghorns and it is needless for us to say they are birds of the "Better Kind." His winnings are among the highest in the East and we are glad to recommend Mr. Blouch's Buff Leghorns to all our readers who desire chicks or hatching eggs from this very popular breed. Write Mr. Blouch and say we saw your ad. in The Fancier.

Rhoads Brothers, Pottstown, Pa., R. D. No. 6, breeders of S. C. White Orpingtons, White Wyandottes and Single Comb Rhode Island Reds, have swung into line with the Fancier's advertisers with a yearly ad. beginning with this month's issue. These gentlemen are among the most honorable young poultrymen in our old home State and we predict for them a brilliant future. Their yards are teeming with prize-winners, the quality of which every one knows who has met them in competition. We are glad to welcome them among the ranks of The Fancier's friends and heartily recommend them to all our readers. Mention The Fancier When You Write.

Well, friend Bleim, it looks good to see your name among our advertisers and it certainly does us a lot of good to recommend both you and your birds to all our readers. Mr. Bleim raises S. C. White Leghorns exclusively. He has been at it for years and his victories in the show room are known far and wide. Look up Mr. Bleim's ad. in the Breeder's Card Section of The Fancier and tell him "The Fancier told you to."

The Charles Incubator & Brooder Co., of Columbia, Pa., H. H. Charles, inventor, are causing quite a stir among poultrymen with their magnificent Incubators and Brooders. This firm is perfectly reliable and a guarantee goes with every machine sold. We are pleased to say that every one we conversed with who has had any experience with the Charles Incubators or Brooders, speaks in highest terms of their merits. The Incubators hatch great big healthy chicks and lots of them. While the brooders make ideal mothers, the Incubators are different from any machine we have ever inspected, having a circular egg-tray attached to the nursery drawer. To turn the eggs you simply pull out the nursery drawer half way and revolve the circular egg-tray, rolling the eggs gently with your hands. One has no heavy trays to lift and no need of an extra table to lay the tray on. Our lady friends will no doubt appreciate this advantage. Other things being equal, this fact will have much to do towards popularizing the Charles Incubator.

We advise our readers to write Mr. Charles for catalog and further particulars concerning his incubators and brooders and tell him The Fancier told you about him and his splendid machines. And tell him there was a reason, too.

The way the Sanatoga Poultry Farm, P. E. Rightnour, Prop., Sanatoga, Pa., is sweeping on to the front in S. C. White Leghorns and is causing the other fellow to "sit up and take notice." Mr. Rightnour's display of White Leghorns at Pottstown, Pa., show was as classy a lot of birds as we have seen this year outside of the "Gar-den." At the Pottstown show there were 82 White Leghorns in the class and Mr. Rightnour "tucked" under his arm 1st and 4th cock, 2d hen, 1st, 3d, 3d cockerel; 1st, 2d, 3d pullet, 1st, 3d pens. Some of his birds scored as high as 96 points Pottstown show we had the pleasure of visiting Mr. and Mrs. Rightnour at their house, "The Sanatoga Poultry Farm," and carefully inspected their entire flock of Leghorns. It was evident to me at once that all of Mr. Rightnour's "Quality Birds" were not at the Pottstown, Pa., Show, for he had many other good birds that have never been shown that would stand close up to the front in strong competition. Mr. Rightnour breeds S. C. Rhode Island Reds of high quality, and the "Red men" had better look out for their "Laurels" when the winter shows come again. We unhesitatingly recommend Mr. Rightnour and his birds to any one who wants fair treatment. Don't forget the "Eagle" on The Fancier when you write The Sanatoga Poultry Farm for stock or eggs.

The Columbian Farm, J. K. Clemmer, Prop., Soudertown, Pa., breeder of Columbian Wyandottes, exclusively, is running a very attractive ad. in the March issue of The Fancier. Mr. Clemmer's Columbian Wyandottes have a wide reputation for fine coloring in hackle and saddle, while in shape we very much doubt if better birds can be found. For the quality of birds Mr. Clemmer breeds his prices are very reasonable and we bespeak for Mr. Clemmer a goodly share of our readers' patronage. His circular is free. Send for it and tell him The Fancier said "There was a reason for doing so."

At Paoli, Pa., we met one of the greatest surprises of our recent Eastern Pa., trip, and no doubt you, my reader, would express yourself in the same way had you visited The White Horse Farm with me. This magnificent plant is located about four miles from Paoli, Pa., on the Penna. R. R. and is one of the most attractive and handsomely equipped farms in the country. The White Horse Farm is a combination Stock and Poultry Farm, Mr. W. W. Blake Arkell, Manager, and Mr. F. A. Tiffany, Poultryman. Here is one of the most valuable breeds of Jersey Cattle in the U. S. Every modern equipment known to be of practical value to the dairy-

The White Horse Farm is also the home of a splendid flock of Shropshire Sheep, as well as the highest standard of Berkshire Hogs. "Nothing but the best" appears to be Mr. Arkcoll's motto and how closely it is followed the most unobserving could hardly fail to see. An illustrated catalog of the above named high-grade stock will be sent to any address upon request. However, this is not all the story by any means, for right here on The White Horse Farm is also the home of hundreds of the finest specimens of S. C. White Leghorns one would wish to see, as well as White Wyandottes, Mammoth Pekin Ducks, White Muscovy Ducks and Embden Geese, and not one "cull" in the whole lot. This Farm contains the best arranged poultry houses we have ever examined and is deserving of special mention. The two large poultry houses, together with the office, feed rooms, etc., are 240 feet long, 30 feet deep at either end, with the center or main building 40 x 40 feet. The Incubator cellar is under one of the Laying houses and is a model in every respect. All eggs are gathered and all feeding and watering done from the alley way, except the grain feeding which, of course, is scattered into deep litters in the scratching shed. There are fifteen colony houses located at convenient points over the plant and a large, well regulated duck house near the creek which gives the breeding ducks access to running water wherever the creek is open. The Leghorns, as well as all other breeds of fowls on this plant are of splendid quality and the way orders are coming in is certainly conclusive evidence of the esteem in which this plant is held by its patrons. The White Horse Farm certainly has a brilliant future and we congratulate both Mr. Arkcoll and Mr. Tiffany on the success they have achieved in so short a time. Write for catalog and say "We saw your ad. in The Fancier."

We are glad to call the attention of our readers to the Glick Leghorn Farms, Lancaster, Pa., R. D. No. 60, whose ad. appears in this month's issue of The Fancier. Mr. Glick breeds Single and Rose Comb White and Brown Leghorns of splendid quality. Look up his ad. in the Breeders' Card Section and write him for circular or better yet, order from his ad.

The Rock Vale Poultry Yards is with The Fancier this month. The Proprietor is Morris M. Moyer. Mr. Moyer breeds Fishel's Strain of W. P. Rocks exclusively. Write him for circular and price list. The address is Palmyra, Pa.

The Paradise Poultry Farm, Paradise, Pa., breeders of S. C. W. Leghorns, are among our new advertisers. This firm is run on an "Honor Basis" and the proprietor is deserving of every confidence on the part of his customers. The Leghorns on this plant are remarkable for both quality and number. The Paradise Poultry Farm is well equipped in every detail and is able to take the best possible care of all their customers. Look up their ad. in the "Display Breeder's Card Section" of this Journal and write them your wants. But do it now. To-morrow may be too late. The Fan-

The East Donegal Poultry Yards of Marietta, Pa., Harvey E. Hoover, Prop., are the breeders of thirty-six different breeds of poultry, ducks, geese and turkeys, and are one of the old reliable poultry farms. Their ad. begins with this month's issue of the Poultry Fancier. Look it up and write them for their large catalog. It is full of good things from start to finish and is worth a place in any poultryman's library. It costs but ten cents, and is worth many times that amount. Just say "The Fancier Sent Us".

The Park Farm Poultry Yards, of Marietta, Pa., Donald C. Duffy, Prop., are carrying a fine display ad. in our columns and are offering to their patrons some special and attractive prices on B. P. Rock and S. C. W. White Leghorn hatching eggs and chicks, as well as White Holland turkeys. It was our pleasure to look over Mr. Duffy's plant and we found many very choice birds there. Mr. Duffy has a regular "Park" for his birds and he takes pride in giving them the best at his command. There are a number of small artificial lakes, stocked with choice fish, in Mr. Duffy's Park, while rustic bridges span the streams and grand old trees "wave their proudest palms in air." It is a real summer resort, an inviting retreat for those who love to commune with nature in "her ancient garb." Order direct from The Park Farm Poultry Yard's Ad. All orders will receive Mr. Duffy's personal attention. Don't forget the Eagle on The Fancier.

We certainly advise all our readers who can do so to visit the Rosswood Poultry Farm, S. B. Denlinger, Prop., Doylestown, Pa., and look over this plant. There are lessons here to learn even for the professional poultryman, when it comes to construction and location of Poultry houses and care of fowls. Mr. Denlinger's success is very remarkable indeed. He commenced at the lower round in the business and has gradually climbed to the top, until to-day few poultry plants are doing as remunerative a business, as is the Rosswood Poultry Farm. In the first place, Mr. Denlinger's farm is ideally located, situated on a gently sloping hillside, protected from high winds by surrounding woodlands, with plenty of large apple trees to afford shade in the summer time. A first class incubator cellar, equipped with two six thousand egg Hall Mammoth incubators, lots of brooding facilities, drainage ideal, water of the finest quality. In fact, a model farm for an almost unlimited business. If any of our readers contemplate buying hatching eggs or day old chicks from Single Comb White Leghorns they can make no mistake by writing the Rosswood Poultry Farm. Mr. Denlinger attends to every order personally and assures us that his highest aim is "A pleased Customer." The Fancier's advertisers lead; others follow.

E. M. Sutton, of Youngstown, O., breeder of the White Satin Strain White Wyandottes, is climbing to the top of the poultry fancy by long strides. If any of our readers are in the market for high class Wyandotte eggs look up Mr. Sutton's ad. in our Breeder's Card Section. Write him for prices and simply say; "The Fancier told me about you to-day."

On our recent trip through the Eastern part of the state we spent one of the most pleasant afternoons at the Annasmead Farm, Robeson, Pa., that it has been our good fortune to enjoy in many moons. Dr. Livingood is the proprietor of the Annasmead Farm, and both the Doctor and his estimable wife are very enthusiastic over the poultry business. They breed S. C. W. Leghorns exclusively, and it would be a question in the writer's mind where he could go to find any higher class stock than grace the yards of the Annasmead Farm. This plant is splendidly located and is being equipped with all modern conveniences, and is doing a very choice business. One shipment of 600 eggs was to have left the farm the day we were there, but "Old Mercury" was hovering too closely around Zero to risk the shipment on that date. However, I presume those eggs have reached a thoroughly satisfied customer ere these words were penned. Look out for the Annasmead Farm, of Robeson, Pa., it has struck the winning "gait." Write the doctor for his mating list. It is yours for the asking.

We have just received the Special Sales List of Mr. T. A. Faulds, London, Ontario. One of the greatest Black Minorca breeders in America. Any one interested in either Rose or Single Comb Black Minorcas will find Mr. Faulds' Special Sales List full of good things. It "sort of" gives us the "Minorca fever" again when we note the splendid birds Mr. Faulds offers for sale and the very reasonable prices he is asking for them. If any of our readers are interested in Black Minorcas don't fail to write for this Sales List. It will surely do you good. The Fancier appreciates its friends.

The catalog and mating list of the Blink Bonnie Poultry Farm and Collie Kennels, Bath, Pa., breeders of S. C. W. Leghorns and Scotch Collies, is before us. It is a veritable little beauty, and is just what one would expect to be put out by Mr. Heine, the Prop. Mr. Heine's motto: "What You Buy We Stand By" characterizes his catalog from cover to cover. We know Mr. Heine and we know his birds and The Fancier unhesitatingly stands back of any claim or promise Mr. Heine's catalog contains. "There is a reason." Look up the ad. of the Blink Bonnie Poultry Farm, Bath, Pa., and send for their catalog.

Here is another staidby, a breeder of the "Better Class," Mr. R. C. Blodgett, Proprietor of Sunnyside Poultry Farm, Bristol, Vt. Mr. Blodgett has been in the poultry business for over twenty years and has built up a very remunerative trade in all parts of this country. He breeds Barred, Buff and White Rocks, S. C. Brown and White Leghorns and R. C. and S. C. R. I. Reds. Mr. Blodgett's mating list is ready for you and its contents will certainly please you. It is yours for asking.

Owen Farm's Catalog and mating List for 1912 has just reached our office and we have gone through it from cover to cover, including the cover page, and if we had the time we would go over it again. It is hrimful of good things, too, an up-to-date poultryman enjoys. To study the make-up or composition of one of Mr. Owen's catalogues is an unusually coveted privilege to the writer, and we certainly wish the Owen Farms every possible success they so richly merit. It is simply useless for us to go into detail so far as the quality of their stock is concerned, suffice it to say, that fact is known from ocean to ocean and from the extreme frozen North land to the far off borders of the Sunny South. Wherever the Owen Farm birds appear the "Blue seems to deepen in hue," and ribbons of the "Better Sort" enhance in value; but it is all right boys, we can follow up the "blazed trail" and gather a few of the fragments by the wayside. Every one of our readers ought to have the Owen Farms catalog and mating list for 1912. It is worth reading. It is a veritable "Storehouse of good things." Write to-day and mention "The Fancier."

Mr. Chas. Brundage, of Danbury, Conn., breeder of Golden Wyandottes, and Secretary and Treasurer of the "Golden Wyandotte Club of the World," is sending out circulars to all Golden Wyandotte Breeders in every part of the country, urging all live, up-to-date breeders of this magnificent breed to rally to the support of this "World-wide Golden Wyandotte Club." Now, Boys, here is a chance to Boost, and boost, too, for one of the grandest breeds on earth, and The Fancier trusts that Mr. Brundage's office will be swamped with applications for membership, as well as advertisements for the new "Club Book." Strike now, boys, while the iron is at the right heat.

It is with pleasure we call the attention of our readers to the ad. of Metuchen Poultry Farm, W. A. Smith, Prop., Metuchen, N. J. Mr. Smith is one of New Jersey's foremost poultrymen, and breeds all varieties of Minorcas and Buff, White and Black Orpingtons. His victories in the show room for the past fifteen years attest the high merits of his birds. He has won many blue ribbons in the largest Shows in the U. S. such as Baltimore, Grand Central Palace, Hagerstown Fair, Philadelphia, Trenton, Augusta, Chicago, Red Bank and Madison Square Garden, together with many other smaller Shows. In the past three show seasons, including 1910 and 1911, Mr. Smith has won nearly 300 regular premiums, besides a great number of specials. His 1st prize S. C. Black Minorca Cock, at "The Garden," (1910) which heads his 1st pen this year, is one of the most remarkable Minorca male birds in the world. This bird won four straight firsts at the best shows in the country.

The Metuchen Poultry Farm is one of the best equipped plants in this country and every variety bred on this farm is as near perfection as scientific and painstaking breeding can produce. The smallest order has Mr. Smith's personal attention, and he is just as eager to help the beginner as he is the man who is a little higher up.

We have the Metuchen Poultry Farm's catalog for 1912 before us and it is one of the most thorough and sensible catalogs we have seen this year. We certainly congratulate Mr. Smith on its composition and mechanical make-up and know it will be greatly appreciated by all who are fortunate enough to secure it. Write Mr. Smith for his catalog. The Fancier is interested in the welfare of all its friends.

The Mount Pleasant Farm, W. A. and H. M. Leech, Proprietors, Mt. Pocomo, Pa., have a very beautiful and helpful catalog for 1912. Their "Two points for Amateur" or expert is full of timely suggestions. Send for these booklets, friends, if you are interested in S. C. White Leghorns. They will do you good.

The catalog of Mr. Wm. A. Heinrichs, breeder of S. C. Black and White Orpingtons, Sellersville, Pa., is ready for mailing. It is very neat and well composed and gives a splendid description of Mr. Heinrichs's favorite breeds. Any of our readers who are interested in either of these popular breeds will make no mistake by writing for this catalog. Mr. Heinrich breeds very fine birds and we know he will treat you right. Tell him The Fancier told you about him and his Orpingtons. It will do you no harm and may aid us.

The Spring Water Poultry Farm, Stockton, N. J., Frank J. Eppel, Proprietor, stands to-day among the foremost poultry farms in this country. There are very few poultry farms in any locality with a larger hatching capacity than the Spring Water Poultry Farm; none more thoroughly equipped for a large and profitable business, and seldom can one find a poultry plant so centrally and favorably located. The Spring Water Poultry Farm has a very enviable record for square dealing and satisfied patrons. Their motto "We can please you. We will please you," is very characteristic of the plant. Every workman about this Farm is an expert, past-master at his particular profession and this fact alone is sufficient grounds to command the confidence of all prospective buyers. The Spring Water Poultry Farm are specialty breeders of Single Comb White Leghorns of the highest type of excellence. Nothing is allowed to remain in their yards but selected breeders. Their laying houses are of the highest order, equipped with down-to-date conveniences. The Incubator cellar is a real model of its kind, and is equipped with two 10,000 egg Mammouth Incubators. The Brooder house has a capacity of 6,250 chicks. It is built on the double brooder house-plan, with hallway in the center and brooders and yards on either side. This idea facilitates the care of little chicks and lessens labor to the minimum. The Spring Water Poultry Farm guarantees all orders, whether large or small, to be filled with chicks hatched from their own eggs, and not from eggs gathered promiscuously over the country. This statement is worthy of note by prospective purchasers of day old chicks; for the real value of any chick is the blood lines back of it. We are very glad of the opportunity of recommending the Spring Water Poultry Farm to all our readers, for we are entirely satisfied they will receive full value for every dollar intrusted to their care. for his catalog. It is worthy a prominent place in any poultryman's library.

Our old friend John C. Peifer, of Danville, Pa., one of the foremost White Orpington breeders in the U. S. stands shoulder to shoulder with The Fancier. Mr. Peifer is also breeding B. P. Rocks, and is forging to the front ranks with rapid strides with his Barred beauties. But he excels preeminently so in the White Orpington field. His winnings at the great Williamsport and Scranton, Pa., Shows stamps quality all over his birds. The Fancier certainly feels proud of such advertisers as Mr. Peifer and unhesitatingly recommends both himself and his birds to all who desire honorable treatment. Mr. Peifer's winnings at Scranton, Pa., 1912 show were 2d cock weight 12 lbs., 1st pen, 1st hen, awarded special for best hen in the show, 2d and 3d hens; also 1st cock, weight 11 lbs. He also won 1st hen at Sunbury, 1911, one of the finest females in the State. He also won many other premiums at other large shows during the season of 1910, '11, '12, a complete list of which you will find recorded in Mr. Peifer's catalog, a very neat and attractive book which is yours for asking. When you write Mr. Peifer tell him The Fancier told you about his birds. He will not scold you if you do, and The Fancier will appreciate your courtesy.

Richard W. Kerr, Frenchtown, N. J., is out in new dress with his catalog for 1912, and to say the least, it looks good to me. Mr. Kerr's "Yearly Announcement" in the front of his catalog is very characteristic of the gentleman and contains a "whole bunch" of good, sound readable common sense. We congratulate Mr. Kerr on the general make-up of his new catalog and commend it to all our readers. Mr. Kerr breeds "Pure Bred Heavy Laying Single Comb White Leghorns, Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes" and is making a specialty of "Day old Chicks." Write him for his catalog, but don't forget the Hand that led you to his door.

The Mating List of the Clinchfield Poultry Yards is on our desk and deserves special mention. Mr. George Lee Wolfe, proprietor, Address, Rogersville, Tenn. Mr. Wolfe breeds Rhode Island Reds only and his winnings since he took up his favorite breed have attracted universal interest among "Red Breeders." His prices are very reasonable for the quality of birds he breeds and his mating list will certainly prove a winner with those who are looking for high grade stock at moderate prices. Write Mr. Wolfe for his Mating List. We are sure it will not disappoint

you. The Fancier's advertisers are on the "Square."

Chas. V. Keeler, Winamac, Ind., has certainly "Out-Keelered Keeler" in the production of his splendid catalog and mating list for 1912. It is a "Gem of the First Water" and would grace any poultryman's library. Its pages are replete with good Wyandotte information and adorned with splendid cuts of Mr. Keeler's choice breeders for the present season. It is out of the question for the writer to give an adequate description of this fascinating catalog. The very best way for our readers to learn of its quality is to write Mr. Keeler for it. We understand it is free. Don't be too late in sending for it. You will regret it if you are. The Fancier's advertisers have lots of good things in store for their patrons.

Mr. Peter Graff, Washington, Pa., made many splendid winnings on his Silver and White Wyandottes during the past season. His Silver winnings were: New York Palace, two entries, 3d cock, 4th pullet; McKeesport, four entries, 1st cock, 1st hen, 2d cockerel, 1st pullet; Pittsburg, first show, 1st, 2d, 3d cocks, 1st, 2d hens, 1st, 2d, cockerels, 1st, 2d pullets and 2d pen; Butler, Pa., 1st cock, 3d, 5th hens, 1st, 4th pullets, 1st pen; Kittanning, Pa., 4 entries, 1st cock, 1st cockerel, 1st hen and 1st pullet, White Wyandottes, Kittanning, (No males shown,) 1st, 4th pullets, 2d hen. Butler, (No cocks or pen shown,) 1st, 3d cockerels, 1st, 2d, 3d pullets, 4th, 5th hens. These winnings speak for themselves. Write Mr. Graff for his mating list. His ad. is in our March issue.

Mr. W. W. Watson, Sunbury, Pa., breeder of Buff Cochins and Buff Leghorns, had a very successful year in the show room with his favorite breeds. His winnings at Washington, N. J., were remarkable considering the strong competition his birds were up against, for the Washington, N. J. show was full of quality in almost every class. Mr. Watson has been winning at The Garden as well as other large shows for years, and will be glad to send any of The Fancier's readers full information regarding his stock and eggs as well as prices on same. Write Mr. Watson in the name of The Fancier.

Mr. B. H. Johnson, Proprietor of the Crystal Poultry Farm, Bloomsburg, Pa., led the boys a merry chase in the S. C. White Leghorn alley at the Great Philadelphia, Pa., show; winning 1st cock, 6th hen, 6th cockerel, and 4th pen, in a class of 98 singles and 14 pens. A good win indeed friend Johnson in a show of such competition. Mr. Johnson's catalog

Of all the newer varieties of poultry, none seem to be crowding to the front-ranks of popularity faster than the Columbian Plymouth Rocks, and no breeder in the country making a specialty of this beautiful breed appears to stand in the lime-light quite so prominently as our old friend F. G. Bean, of Collegeville, Pa., whose ad. appears on the back cover page of The Fancier. In every show in which Mr. Bean has competed during the entire season he has carried away more awards than any other competitor, and under many circumstances more than all his competitors combined. This is certainly a remarkable record when we consider the strong competition Mr. Bean's birds had to meet especially in such shows as "The Garden," where he won 1st, 2d cocks; 1st hen; 2d cockerel; 1st pullet and 1st pen. I believe his 1st cock bird at this show is the greatest Columbian Plymouth Rock Cocker the writer has ever seen, while his hen was a star of the first magnitude. At Philadelphia, Mr. Bean won 2d cock; 1st, 3d hens; 1st cockerel; 1st pullet and 1st pen. At the Grand Central Palace his winnings were 1st, 3d cocks; 1st, 3d hens; 1st, 4th cockerels; 1st, 2d pullets and 1st pen. These are by no means a full record of Mr. Bean's winnings for this season. However, he has the whole list and will be glad to mail you his catalog containing the same upon request. Write Mr. Bean at Collegeville, Pa. The Fancier has your interests as well as his at heart.

Mr. M. E. Richardson, Front Royal, Pa., is breeding some of the best Rose Comb Reds in the country, and his prices are extremely low for the class of birds he breeds. Look up Mr. Richardson's ad. in The Fancier and write him for his catalog. We know Mr. Richardson will give you full value for every dollar you trust to his care. Don't delay. Write him to-day.

The Aristocrat Orpington Farm has put out a very neat "folder," giving a full account of their matings for the present season. Many of their pens are headed by Madison Square Garden winners, as well as winners at Boston, Sunbury, Williamsport, Allentown and Hagerstown. These facts certainly attest the value of the class of Orpingtons bred on this farm. Their curricular is free, and their address is Washingtonville, Pa.

Afton Farms, Yardley, Pa., is one of our oldest and most reliable firms in the poultry business to-day. This Plant was started 33 years ago by Mr. E. W. Twining, father of the present proprietor, Mr. S. B. Twining. They breed Barred Rocks, White Wyandottes, S. C. White Leghorns and Mammoth Pekin Ducks, and their business has grown to such large proportions as to really astonish all who are familiar with the output of this farm. The unquestioned success of the "Afton Farm" sheds a splendid halo of light over the commercial side of the poultry industry and stands out strongly as a convincing evidence of what "square dealing" and scientifically applied business methods can accomplish in this ever increasing sphere of activity. The Afton Farm people have one of the very best feed mixers on the market and we unhesitatingly recommend it to all our readers. Write the Afton Farm for their catalog, and the Yardley Mfg. Co., Box, D., Yardley, Pa., for prices on their Feed Mixer. You will not be disappointed.

We have just received the mating list of Mr. E. E. Endsley, Uniontown, Pa., breeder of S. C. Brown Leghorns, and we take pleasure in calling the attention of our friends to "Tobasco," 1st cockerel at Greensburg, Pa., 1912 show, conceded to be one of the best S. C. Brown Leghorn cockerels produced this season. His 1st hen at Greensburg, Pa., won 1st at Scottdale and Beaver, Pa., three firsts at three representative shows. Write Mr. Endsley for his mating list and kindly tell him where you saw his ad.

If there is one thing the inhabitants of Concord, Mass., boast over more than any other it is the "world wide fame" Lester Tompkin's Rhode Island Reds have brought to their city. Well may they be proud of "Tompkins and his Reds," for there is no other name that stands higher, or carries greater prestige in the "Red World," than Lester Tompkins. And the beauty of the whole thing is, he earned his popularity by fair dealing and hard, conscientious work. Mr. Tompkins has hundreds of excellent Reds for sale and his prices are always within the bounds of reason. If any of our readers are in need of a No. 1, breeder they can make no mistake by writing Mr. Tompkins for his 1912 catalog and mating list. It is free.

The White Wyandotte mating list of J. C. Fishel and Son, Hope, Ind., is art itself. Mr. Fishel always did have the "knack" of doing things just right and just at the right time, too. Mr. Fishel's catalog "gleams with beauty," and every cut that graces its pages is the work of a master. We certainly extend congratulations to Mr. Fishel on the general make-up of his catalog from outside to outside. Can't see where we could even "hint at improvement." We trust that every one of our friends who love this grand old breed will write J. C. Fishel & Son for their 1912 catalog. It is a real White Wyandotte souvenir and will please the most exacting. Write without delay. They certainly will go like "hot cakes." If you saw it in The Fancier, kindly tell him so.

Monmouth Poultry Farms, Frenau, N. J., J. Courterey Punderford, Prop., breeders of the famous Monmouth Strain Single Comb Buff and White Leghorns, have taken a "big step" forward in the general make-up of their catalog and mating list for 1912. It is just a shade different from any other catalogue we have seen this year, and appeals to the writer in a most striking manner. The binding is very attractive and the entire contents just what one would expect from the pen of Mr. Punderford. Every fancier in the "great" East is familiar with the splendid quality of S. C. Buff and White Leghorns bred on the Monmouth Poultry Farms, and they are also fully aware of the fact that for every dollar invested in either stock or eggs with Mr. Punderford they will receive full value for the same or their dollar will be returned. Such being the case, we are not at all surprised to note the wonderful increase of business this farm is enjoying from year to year. We congratulate Mr. Punderford on his new catalog and wish him every possible success throughout the entire season.

Mr. Allison has every reason to be proud of such a record and The Fancier wishes to congratulate him on his success. Look up the Glen Lake Poultry Farm's ad. in this issue of The Fancier and send for Mr. Allison's catalog, and be sure to remember The Fancier when you write him.

The Woodside Poultry Yards, Hainesport, N. J., G. E. Greenwald, Proprietor, advises us that he has a few very select matings of Barred Plymouth Rocks, both cockerel and pullet matings, from which he is offering eggs for hatching at very reasonable prices. During this last show season at three shows, viz., Mt. Holly, Bridgeton and Burlington, N. J., on 17 entries, Mr. Greenwald won 15 prizes. At the Bridgeton show he refused $50 for his 1st prize B. P. Rock cockerel, and assures us that all his patrons who order eggs from his cockerel matings will get a part of their order filled from the pen headed by this great cockerel. He guarantees both quality and fertility. Look up Mr. Greenwald's ad. in this month's issue of The Fancier and write him for prices.

A wonder in type and color and well worthy every honor accorded him.

The Glen Lake Poultry Farm, Langhorne, Pa., J. Nelson Allison, Proprietor, is certainly carving out a good record among the Barred Rock breeders of the Old Keystone State. Mr. Allison began his career as a poultryman on the Langhorne Farm, Good Ground, Long Island, and after finishing some preliminary work on the above farm, took a complete poultry course in Cornell. He then purchased the Glen Lake Poultry Farm at Langhorne, Bucks Co., Pa., containing about 55 acres, which is especially adapted to poultry raising. Having a southern exposure and plenty of good running water. On this farm Mr. Allison has built a modern poultry plant and is devoting his time to raising high-class Barred Plymouth Rocks. His success has been very remarkable from the start and his show record a very enviable

N. V. Greiner, of Rheems, Pa., breeder of as high classed S. C. Black Minorcas as any real fancier could desire. His birds have won first prizes in such leading shows as Madison Square Garden, Philadelphia, etc., and his matings this season are of the very highest order. Pen 2, headed by his great cock, which won 1st at The Garden as cockerel in 1910. Pen 1 is headed by the 3d cockerel, Philadelphia, Pa., show 1911. He is mated with 1st, 3d Philadelphia, Pa., hens and 7 others practically as good. Pen 3 is headed by a full brother to the 3d Philadelphia, Pa., 1911 cockerel, and this bird Mr. Greiner considers the best bird he ever owned. Pen 4 is headed by the largest cock Mr. Greiner ever raised, a bird of great type and color, as well as size. Every one of these male birds are mated to females of wonderful type and color, and all large-sized birds. This is certainly a wonderful string of birds and we trust every breeder or fancier of S. C. Black Minorcas who expect to add new blood to their flocks this year or those who are expecting to launch out into breeding Minorcas will write Mr. Greiner for prices on hatching eggs. Mr. Greiner guarantees fertility and The Fancier feels sure he will receive

Only One Mammoth Incubator

Has Been Fully Developed

You, who read to get posted, know about the increasing use of Mammoth Incubators and Brooders. The larger poultry operations brought about by their use is almost startling in money-making opportunity. For, Mammoths accomplish tremendous economies. And it is by economies that profit in all lines of human effort is increased. So, we know you'll be interested in this message from us. It is not our intention to make overclaims. The facts alone are sufficient. We were pioneers in the Mammoth Incubator business.

Based on Experience and Success

The first Mammoth Incubator in the World was made and used by Mr W. P. Hall in 1896—the culmination of 20 years' thought and experience in hatching. Principles were discovered and established during those 20 years by numberless tests made under different conditions. Every principle adopted was first proven good. Incubation as we perfected it is now known nationally. Our experience totals 36 years.

Decreased Costs

Fuel cost in a Hall Mammoth equals oil at 1c a gallon. Its cost of operation on an average is 21c to hatch 1,000 eggs. On a hatch of 15,000 eggs the saving exceeds $38.00. Thus the Hall Mammoth pays for itself in heating economy alone.

Like a Hen's Nest

The bottoms of our egg compartments are open-slatted. This allows the warm air around the hot water pipes at top of egg compartment to draw the moist, oxygen laden air of the cellar. We have simply applied nature's principle. Better hatching result.

Perfect Simplicity

Note illustration showing water expansion regulator on furnace. Our expansion tank has a float and lever. The lever is connected to the furnace drafts. The contraction and expansion of water insures equable temperature, for this regulator controls the source of the heat. And, though extremely sensitive, there is nothing delicate to get out of order.

Adjustable Egg Trays

As incubation progresses the trays are lowered a little each day. Thus the eggs get the right degree of heat as the embryo develops. So no regulation is needed for any egg compartment.

Built in Sections

A Hall Mammoth Incubator can be added to at any time. You can have your incubator grow as you increase your business. This is a vital feature for there will be no sacrifice of the original investment.

Get All The Facts

We publish a 74-page catalog. It won't please the merely curious. But it is packed full of facts which every poultryman should know. It covers principles and makes them plain. It opens the way to more profits through the employment of advanced and fully established incubating and brooding methods. When replying please tell us something about your plant. Ask for Catalog

Kellerstrass Strain

"Enchantress"

Best White Orpington in the World to-day.

During the past winter we have shown our birds at the six largest shows in this country, viz.: Cleveland, Baltimore, Chicago, Pittsburg, St. Louis, and Madison Square Garden, in competition with over 1100 of the cream of White Orpingtons from England, Canada and America, and our birds have won a total of 20 firsts, 13 seconds, 5 thirds, 7 fourths and 6 fifths in addition to 12 silver cups and 25 other specials, making a record never before equalled by a breeder of Orpingtons in America in one season. We have now in our pens more prize winners from this year's six largest shows than any five other breeders combined. Note the winnings at our last three shows in January, 1912.

FIRST SHOW AT FREDONIA, KAN. A SUCCESS.

The first annual show of the Wilson County Poultry and Pet Stock Association was held at Fredonia, Kan., Dec. 4—9, 1911. There were about 200 brds on exhibition. The Rhode Island Reds led in numbers with the Orpingtons a close second. The exhibit was judged by D. A. Stoner, Wichita. All exhibitors were well pleased with the show and plans are already being laid for a larger and better show for 1912. The show was well patronized by the public and was a success financially, the Association having a balance of about $75 in the treasury, after paying all premiums and expenses. The Association has 45 members.

Meadow Brook Superior Strain

When you purchase stock or eggs it is well to consider matters carefully. Many failures are due to lack of consideration in making the start. Your success depends largely on tried and true stock or eggs from the same. Our strains represent many years of careful breeding from farm raised birds. As winners in keen competition they have won their own record. Our 1912 matings—superior to any we have ever yarded—and we can furnish eggs at $5 per setting 15; exhibition matings $3; for other grand matings, $10. per '00. (Fertility guaranteed.) We have also choice breeding stock for sale at surprisingly low prices. Correspondence a pleasure, and our aim is to please.

Can't "Get Rich Quick" With Chichens

By John J. Ritz.

Don't start in the poultry business on a large scale; let it be a side issue until you get experience, and only about 10 per cent of the people stick to it after the first year, that is unless they have plenty money to back it up, and then the money does not make the business go, but it is the money that keeps the business going. Hold on to your job until you find that the business can keep you, then grow up with the business, and you will succeed.

Now don't think because eggs are high and they are a scarce article during the winter, that there must be lots of money in eggs and poultry. There is lots of money in the poultry business, but how many can get the money out of it? And where will we get fresh eggs in the winter? Just take your dinner at the hotel and ask for two fresh eggs with the sunny side up; the waiter will look at you and if he should get hold of a fresh egg he would frame it to keep posted how they look in case any one would ask him if he ever saw a real fresh egg.

Wouldn't it be nice if we could go out and buy a dozen of real fresh eggs in December, January or February, even if the price is 50 cents per dozen, and why is it that eggs cost so much? If there is lots of money in chickens, why is it that so many poultry farms do not make a success? Well, that part is easily answered by men who have been up against the rocks, and they are the only ones who can give the answer. Just look into the matter carefully and you will see why there are so many failures. Never think that you can make five or six dollars profit on each chicken, like some people tell or have the nerve to have printed. I have read of a man who had sixty heus on a forty foot lot and cleared fifteen hundred dollars in one year from his chickens. That would give most any one the chicken fever who has not much experience: other things along the same line is what lead many people to think there is lots of money in poultry and then after they get started it does not come so fast. They fail to have the money to hold out until the real profit does come, and by that time they give it up. Now the man who has lots of money and starts in poultry does about the same things in another way with about the same results. He builds up a large poultry house, then hires some man to take care of his chickens, and the first thing he thinks of is to get a cheap man, then after the man gets some experience the owner is tired of it; he thinks there is no money in it, so up goes the price of eggs because he, like many others, has no eggs to sell.

Now, to those who have not large experience I would say that this is the poorest get-rich industry that I know of, and experience will coax more eggs from the heus than money.

History of Cornish Fowl is Interesting

Has Many Merits and Popularity is Increasing Rapidly—A Good Market Fowl, Excellent Layers and One Admired by all.

By Clyde Dillie, Washington, Pa.

The Cornish fowl originated in Cornwall, England, some years prior to 1846. They were produced by crossing a Lord Derby Black-Breasted Red Game with a Red Assel imported from India. Later on the blood of the Sumatra Game was introduced. The parental blood is apparent in the Cornish of the present day. From the Assel they derive the short, thick legs, large thighs, deep and broad breasts, great width of back at shoulders, comparatively short neck and projecting brows; from the Lord Derby Game, the red color of plumage and the tendency of the breed toward red eyes; from the Sumatra Game, the great luster of plumage, especially in the tail. They are sturdy in appearance, and the thighs stout and muscular. The breast bone is well set in, causing a lack of fullness of breast, which is, however, very broad and rounded at the sides. The carriage is upright, the shoulders being carried high and the stern low. The body between thighs should be very wide.

Without a doubt they possess a great deal of merit or else they would have been consigned to the oblivion long ago. Every year new varieties flash upon the horizon of the poultry world. Their popularity blazes with the brilliancy of a comet, but like the comet they soon disappear. It is a breed for general purposes, have the qualities of a market fowl, i. e., compactness, yellow legs, heavy weight cocks 9 to 11 pounds, hens 7 to 8 1-2 pounds, from which there is but little waste in dressing and being of quick-growing habits, they produce fine broilers in a short time because they have short feathers the nutriment required to put feathers on other breeds going to flesh which is more juicy and tender in this breed than in a young turkey.

The hens are good sitters and mothers, and the chicks are very hardy. In color the fowls are very pretty; the bright brown shafts and the glossy green lacing make a beautiful contrast. Here we have a fowl for the market, poultrymen, the farmer, the broiler raiser, the egg producer and the fancier. In the male the plumage of the breast and underbody is a green glossy black, neckhackle game color with brown crimson shafts to feathers; back and saddle a mixture of green glossy black and brown crimson. Wings chestnut brown, with metallic green glossy black wing bar. The female is of a mahogany or bay color, each feather having a double penciling of greenish black. Both male and female have yellow legs, small comb and their proud carriage proclaims them the aristocrats of the feathered world. They are very tame and become great pets, and are not quarrelsome notwithstanding the mistaken notion of some people. They are a combination of beauty and utility. What more do you want?

RHODE ISLAND WHITE BREEDERS ORGANIZE.

The letters which were sent out announcing a meeting of R. I. White breeders on February 8th, at Indianapolis, brought breeders from many states. As a result the Rhode Island White Club of America was organized, and starts with over seventy-five charter members. The officers elected for the coming year are: President, Carl D. McCarthy, Kempton, Ind.; 1st Vice-President, C. W. Knox, Pulaski, Pa.; 2d Vice-President, E. C. Bartlett, Borodino, N. Y.; 3d Vice-President, H. W. Gossard, Chicago, Ill.; 4th Vice-President, A. B. Duncan, Atlanta, Ga.; 5th Vice-President, G. J. Simmons, Seattle, Wash.; Secy-Treasurer, Mrs. C. M. Vertrees, Cecilian, Ky.; Executive Board: For 1 year, Clem Hunter, Englewood, Colo.; For 2 years, R. W. Gault, Champaign, Ill.; For 3 years, Elam Leary Greenfield, Ind.

A year book will be published containing club standard to be used by breeders until the breed is admitted to the American Standard of Perfection. For further information write to the Secretary or President.

Silver Penciled and Partridge Rocks

For a great many years past the breeding of specialties has been the highest aim of the Poultrymen. A great deal of care, however, is attached to such specialties, and the average poultry farm, while making a specialty of some particular breed, invariably has a utility stock of some other breed, we may even say a dozen or more varieties.

I personally am of the belief that concentration of effort to develop two or three specialties at the most is all that any poultryman should deign to tackle, and have found that it is best to exert your entire energies to one specialty at a time, at least until you have attained results of a satisfactory nature.

For a number of years past I have had repeated requests made of me by the leading poultry journals of the country for a short story of my career as a poultryman, but until within the past few weeks I have always withheld and refrained from placing my career before the public. Now that I positively feel that my hard and earnest work has attained that high state of efficiency for which I have been looking I don't mind telling of the many hard hours of work and toil which I have put in.

I don't remember at all just when it was I started in to breed poultry. I do, however, know that my father was a Poultry Fancier and I do know that I received my early training from him. At the age of 18 I was managing one of the largest poultry farms in this country, and had it not been that my family were forced to go south I am inclined to believe that I would still have been in the employ of the Picturesque Poultry Farm. While employed in other lines of business, there was no stamping out the fascination which poultry had for me, and from boyhood up to the present time I cannot ever remember a time when I did not have in my back yard or on a small farm fancy stock of some sort. Possibly there is no other poultry fancier in this country who has tested and tried out more varieties than myself, and the many years of hard and earnest endeavor have resulted in the present type of fancy stock that I am at present breeding.

Among the latest varieties of fancy poultry are to be found the Silver Penciled and Partridge Rocks, and I personally believe that they rank far ahead of any. They are very easy to breed to standard color and shape. They do not require double matings. The offsprings are generally very hardy, the fertility of the eggs runs good at all times, and the chicks, if given only fair care, will thrive and grow very rapidly. I have never resorted to anything but single matings. This season Silver Penciled and Partridge Rocks have been very popular, in fact the Poultry Judges became so interested in them that a Club has been formed with the idea of pushing the Silver Penciled Rocks to the front. As a show bird they require little or no attention, as they are very quiet and docile. You can pick a bird out of the flock on the farm that has had free range, coop it up for a few days, wash its legs and comb and it is ready to show. They need little or no conditioning, as is the case with many other varieties.

As a table fowl there is none better. They have a fine yellow skin. As a winter layer they cannot be beat. Preparatory to placing them among the ranks as a winter layer, I built a coop 12 by 16 last year on my farm and put a partition in the middle of it. I then penned 6 females with a male bird in each side and kept them in their respective enclosures the entire winter. I got ten and eleven eggs per day from the dozen hens even when the snow was banked high against the side of the coop. I can prove this assertion not only through friends who visited me, but by the farmers who admitted to me that from large flocks they were not getting as many eggs as came out of my small coop. I could have sold every egg to those who saw what results I was getting, but I retained the eggs and hatched all spring from these matings. I had one gentleman who called to see them, offer me $600 for 60 of the Silver Penciled Rocks, but I did not feel that I could let such valuable hens get away from me at that early stage of the game.

Poultry fanciers that have but little room will never make a mistake in trying Silver Penciled Rocks. If they don't fill the egg baskets and come up to their ideas, I do not know of any other kind that will.

I have so much confidence in what they will do that I have bought out everyone that had any stock of silver rocks that was worth having. I purchased Mr. W. T. Totterall's flock, Hillcrest Farm, this year and added to my own flock, and now have about 1000 hens, and I expect during the coming season to materially increase my stock.

Judge F. W. Corey in a late address had this to say:

As Silver Penciled Rocks are practically a new variety, I want to say a few words in their favor. I was attracted by their beautiful white and black plumage a few years ago. I have found them more and more satisfactory year after year. I find them more hardy than any other fowl I have ever handled, and it is rare to have one of them sick. Then again I find as a rule that their eggs hatch at least 10 per cent better than any other large fowl, and the hens are the best of mothers. I find them equal every way to any other Plymouth Rock breed, you will have less culls, and it is neither necessary nor advisable to use double matings in breeding this variety. I have no hesitation in saying that I consider the Silver Penciled Rocks the best variety for the Amateur to take up.

Judge William T. Bowman is also a breeder and has this to say of them:

I took up the Silver Penciled Rocks about a year ago and have found them satisfactory in every respect. He was crowded for room and finally decided that he would have to let that variety go. He wrote me a letter and told me that if I could use any or all that he had I could have them. I had an order at that time which I could not fill and I turned it over to him in order to assist him in getting rid of them. The next day back came the order and the judge told me that he had made up his mind since writing me not to sell the Silver Penciled Rocks but dispose of his White Wyandottes instead.

Judge Wm. T. Totterall whom I bought out said to me:

If I were not the oldest breeder of Partridge Rocks in this country, and had worked so hard to get my strain where they are, I would not sell my flock of Silver Penciled Rocks, but the truth of the matter is I have not got the room to keep both varieties.

Why Orpingtons

I am often asked the question, "what do you consider the best general purpose fowl?" I have bred White Wyandottes for the past twenty-one years and until lately would have answered White Wyandottes "very promptly" to above question, but unquestionably the most popular and best general purpose fowl today is the White Orpington, with all the other Orpingtons close followers. The chicks are hardy and grow fast. At six to eight weeks old they make a plump two pound broiler. The pullets commence laying very early and are very prolific layers in winter, and all the year. In Intensive Poultry Culture which is practised largely these days the Orpingtons take to restraint more naturally than most others.

They are less restless under it, and the little inconvenience does not seem to interfere much with their business, which is to produce eggs. They go right ahead just the same, accepting the general idea of the country into which they have been adopted, that the main end and object of life is business. They have a very quiet disposition and put up with the necessities and inconveniences of life without any fuss. They are an excellent table fowl. The body is of excellent form, and in the market presents a fine appearance. Their flesh is white and they have a very thin skin which is also white, and as a table fowl are equal to a small turkey, and not inferior to them in delicacy of flavor. Long live the Orpingtons, or until at least something better is evolved.

HOW TO PAINT

Buggies, farm wagons, farming tools, barns, outbuildings and houses often need painting. "Everybody's Paint Book," written by a thoroughly practical painter, will be found a complete guide to the art of outdoor and indoor painting. It is designed for the special use of those who wish to do their own painting. It gives practical lessons in plain painting, varnishing, polishing, staining, paper hanging, kalsomining, etc.

It also tells how to renovate furniture and gives many hints on artistic work for decorating a home. Precise directions are given for mixing paints for all purposes. If farming tools and farm vehicles are kept painted, they will last twice as long, and anybody can do the work with the aid of this book. It is handsomely and substantially bound in cloth. ## THE VALUE OF SPROUTED OATS.

Oats to a hen is what oats is to a horse. The main objection to oats for fowls is their very tough hull, which is hard to digest, and for this reason alone many people will not feed them to their hens. Some fanciers practice feeding oats boiled with no results for eggs. They make a good fattening feed when boiled, but are of no value for eggs. But when feeding oats that is sprouted you increase the egg production, and it is a great aid in producing fertile eggs. The diatase formed by the ferments of sprouting act beneficially on the egg-producing organs of the hen and aid her in the secretion of albumen.

Sprouted oats are more valuable as a feed for the hen than their analysis would indicate. They furnish the desired green feed and the grain has a nutritive value, though not large, considering the bulk. By the use of proper concentrates sprouted oats can be made to occupy a prominent place in the ration, to the material advantage of the hen, not only increasing the egg yield, but resulting in better general health, a more rapid molt and a longer period of productiveness. By the use of concentrated high protein grain and meat rations, with a little green feed to supply the digestive juices, we burn out the lives of our hens and cause them to become old and unproductive when they should be in their prime. One of the main objections to sprouted oats has been the trouble of preparing them, and this is considerable unless one has suitable appliances. The silos I use I made myself, and do the work as well as any that are advertised. I made a frame of four corner posts five feet high, twenty inches wide and thirty inches long; on the ends I nailed seven cleats six inches apart for the drawers to slide and rest upon, the ends are held in place by four cross pieces, two at top and two at bottom. At the bottom I placed a sheet of tin to catch the drained water and conduct it to the pail. I use seven drawers, 30x20 inches, 3 inches high, with slatted bottoms, quarter inch apart. Take one bushel of good sound oats, soak them for ten hours, then empty into pails that have a couple of holes bored in the bottom, to drain off; let there for two days till they commence to show signs of sprouts, then spread on the trays, as given above, two inches thick. This bushel will now fill the seven trays. Cover with a sack and sprinkle with water every day, and in a few days you can commence to feed them.

That bushel of soaked oats, or the seven trays, will make enough feed for 100 fowls a week. I have found that young chicks grow faster and feather sooner when fed on sprouted oats once a day, than on any feed I know of. Oats can be sprouted any time of the year, where it does not freeze, and the sprouting will be more rapid and perfect if artificial heat is used. A good place for the poultry silo is near a furnace. The water that drains off can be used the second time where warm water is not used. For winter feeding I feel safe in saying that sprouted oats will increase the average yield of the average flock 25 per cent. when properly fed.—Wm. D. Seidel, Orpington Specialist, Washingtonville, Pa.

EASY TO USE.

The Pilling Milk Apparatus and the Pilling Garget Outfit should be on hand now as the time is at hand when those accidents of parturition, milk fever, inflammation of the udder (Garget) are apt to occur.

If you save one cow by the use of the Pilling air treatment for milk fever, or restore one udder to full secretion that otherwise would make a good cow worthless by the use of the Pilling Garget Remedy you will have saved enough money to purchase the instrument and remedies needed on a dairy farm for the rest of your natural life. Again we emphasize—easy to use, easy to buy, they are not expensive, easy to preserve, they last for a good many years. Altogether an easy way to make money. Let the Pilling people help you to save it.

The Pilling Cattle Case No. 3 contains not only the Milk Fever and Garget Outfits but several other "easy to use" cattle instruments needed by every dairyman and breeder.

Write the G. P. Pilling & Son Co., 23d & Arch Sts., Philadelphia, Pa. for their free books on "easy to use" cattle instruments. Write now, you may need these goods sooner than you expect.

BRIDGETON, N. J. BANQUET.

The members of the South Jersey Poultry and Pigeon Association with a few of their friends sat down to their annual Banquet in the dining hall of the Bridgeton Hotel, Wednesday, Feb. 8th.

The Bridgeton Association always gives this banquet as a testimonial affair to their retiring officers. Bridgeton Association is one of the very few associations in the country that has its own club room, open day and night to the members and their friends, and let it be known that it is always occupied. There is no livelier set of fellows to be found in this broad land than those which comprise the members of that association. This possibly accounts for the magnificent shows which are held there every year. As the old saying goes, they pull together like a pair of draft-horses, as there is no hatchet or tomahawk up the sleeve of any member of the Association for another.

Fraternity reigns supreme through the membership. This last banquet was a most enjoyable one. Upwards of 60 were present consisting of the members of the Bridgeton Association, representatives of the press, and the City Officers. Geo. Hughes presided as Toast Master, and he called on the following speakers: Louis G. Heller, Elmer D. Ogden, J. W. Morrow, Wm. B. Holmes, Albert R. McAllister, L. Willard Minch, Louis S. Johnson, Henry W. Snitzer and Chas. D. Carney. Every one of these men responded in an able way to the subjects which were assigned them. Everybody was well pleased and even those who were not members of the South Jersey Poultry Pigeon Association thought it was well to be a member. Long live the Association, was the sentiment of all.

FEEDING PIGEONS.

For any one to feed all the kinds of feed that you are told to by the average pigeon breeder it would take all your profits for feed, and more besides. Why, half of them don't do it themselves, and besides I have tried it and know from experience that it is not necessary to do it.

Give your pigeons a good dry place, warm in winter and cool in summer with plenty of boxes for nests, two for every pair at least, and plenty of straw cut in lengths of 6 to 8 inches, or tobacco stems, for them to build nests with, and when you take the squabs out of the nests be sure you remove all the straw and manure. Then take either coal oil or slug shot, and spray or dust the nest box thoroughly, and you will not be bothered with lice. Lice and squabs can't live in the same nest, or if you want to you can use a good louse powder, but the others are cheaper and answer the same purpose.

Another thing, you must keep your pigeon house free from mice, or in cold weather you will find more chilled eggs and dead squabs than live ones. You ask why? Because the mice scare the birds off the nest and they stay off too long.

Now, this is what I feed. I keep cracked corn and wheat before them all the time, and give them a couple of handfuls of hemp seed once a week for every 20 pairs of pigeons.

Did somebody say, why that corn and wheat will all get sour laying on the floor. So it would, but I don't put it on the floor. I have a feeding board 3 feet long by 1 foot wide, with sides 2 inches high. This, I place in the center of the pen, two feet from the floor, on a scantling nailed in the center of the board like a one legged table. This way they can get feed whenever they want it, or you can get ready-made self-feeders, but I like the board best. They don't waste the feed as much.

I keep oyster shells and salt before them all the time. They must have plenty of water to bathe in, winter and summer; also give them charcoal.

Be sure your birds are all mated, for an odd male or female will make more trouble for you than I would care to have.

No matter how good they are or what you feed them if they are not mated right they will not do any good.

A word of warning. Look out for a fighting cock bird. He is as bad as an unmated bird. Better get rid of him.

I think you will be satisfied with the results if you try this way of feeding.

WOOD PRESERVATIVES MAKE BIG SAVINGS.

The cost of any construction may be divided into two general accounts, cost of material and cost of labor. One is as much a part of the investment as the other. Since they are so related to each other, and each is essential to the other, it is an economic problem to see that the quality of each is in accord with the other. That is to say, if you are building a fence with posts that will last for many years, the work should be done in such a manner that the fence will stand in good condition as long as the posts remain good.

On the other hand, it is not profitable to set untreated posts of a quickly decaying kind with the expense of labor competent to build that fence to last many, many years. In other words, there is a relation between the quality of the material and the quality of the labor. It goes without saying that the fence with posts prepared to remain solid for a long period and built so well as to stand for the same time is the cheapest fence per year of its service.

The high cost of both labor and timber has emphasized the importance of using wood preservatives. There was a time when the timber supply was so great that durability was only considered because of the labor of cutting it and shaping it for use. Now its scarcity necessitates the strictest economy in its use. We are compelled to make every stick do its most efficient service, both as to its function and length of service.

Because of this condition the use of wood preservatives is rapidly growing in favor with men who are scientifically studying methods of obtaining the most efficiency from timber in any capacity for which they wish to use it.

Modern methods of manufacturing preservatives have given us one of peculiar excellence. Fortunately its properties are such that its use includes disinfecting purposes. Avenarius Carbolineum has won a most enviable record as a wood preservative and disinfectant. The following letter will give you some light on the real merit of this remarkable article. Mr. Boyer, the writer of the letter, is the Associate Editor of the American Poultry Advocate.

Hammonton, N. J., Jan. 17, 1912.

Earnest F. Hartmann,

Pres. Carbolineum Wood Preserving Co., New York City.

Dear Sir:—

I have been intending for some time to write you about my tests with Avenarius Carbolineum, but have been prevented by pressure of other matters.

We have used it both as a wood preservative and as a louse parnt, and in both cases found it to do excellent work. We find it better for painting posts put in the ground than by painting with tar or by charring. I can certainly recommend it.

Respectfully,

Michael K. Boyer.

Users of wood will find Avenarius Carbolineum a great economy. It lengthens the service of the timber, thereby saving cost of material, and saves labor for repairs and replacing decayed wood. Our readers will receive full information about this excellent wood preservative and disinfectant by writing the Carbolineum Wood Preserving Co., 196 Franklin St., New York City.

$500 SPECIALS AT EASTON.

At the Annual Meeting of the Easton Poultry Association the following officers were elected to serve during the ensuing year.

President, T. E. Daub, Vice-President, B. C. Roecker, Secretary, S. W. Codley, Treasurer, G. E. Dull. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read and everyone was pleased to learn that a nice balance was left in the Treasury. Eight new members were added to our already large list.

Our Sixth Annual Show will be held the week of Jan. 6, 1913. For Judges we have selected the following gentlemen: J. D. Koons, of Treichlers, Penna., J. W. Bruckart of Lititz, Penna., and J. T. Baldwin of Philadelphia, Pa., all men of well known ability.

If possible, we are going to out-do ourselves this next Show and be more liberal than ever in the offering of Specials. Our aim this year will be to offer $500 in Specials in addition to the regular premiums, which will make our Premium List compare favorably with the largest Shows. Watch the Poultry Journals for news from Easton.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The Sixth Annual Meeting of the American Columbian Plymouth Rock Club was held at Boston, Mass., Thursday, January 11, 1912, during the week of the Boston Poultry Show. It was one of the largest and most enthusiastic in the history of the organization. Matters of much importance relative to the welfare and advancement of Columbian Plymouth Rocks were discussed, specialty judges selected, a new Club catalogue authorized, etc. The latter will be the finest of its kind ever published. The following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, F. G. Bean, Collegeville, Pa., Vice-Presidents, Dr. E. B. Kaple, Elbridge, N. Y., Frank L. Platt, Toledo, Ohio, Howard M. Munroe, Lexington, Mass., Secy-Treas., D. Monroe Green, Waterville, N. Y.

All persons interested in Columbian Plymouth Rocks are respectfully requested to send in their application for membership to the secretary, membership fee, $1.00

A copy of the official report of the proceedings of the meeting, including discussions etc., will be sent free to any one upon request. Address, D. Monroe Green, Secretary, Waterville, N. Y.

GOOD POULTRY FENCING.

Until quite recently, the Standard Poultry Fence or rather Poultry Netting was made of No. 19 and 20 gauge wire, about as thick as a pin. Netting of this kind does not have the body to it to wear more than a very few seasons. Then again, this chicken netting requires posts set close together, as well as top and bottom boards between posts; otherwise it would not stand up but would bag, look limp and unsightly.

Should any of our subscribers be looking for something better, something more substantial and durable, in fact, a real poultry fence made of heavy wires, almost as heavy as regular farm fences are made from, with wires closely woven and chick-tight and every wire double galvanized we would advise your writing The Brown Fence & Wire Co., Dept. 123, of Cleveland, Ohio, who make such a poultry fence, for their free catalogue.

Your particular attention is called to the saving in lumber, as well as labor in building such a fence as the "Brown" because the wires are so large and the fence so heavy, that posts can be set double the distance apart and no top or bottom boards are required.

The Brown Fence & Wire Co. are one of our oldest subscribers and we believe their fences are giving excellent service and satisfaction; otherwise we would have heard from some of our subscribers if their fence was faulty in any way.

The Aldrich Poultry Farm, The People Who are Making Brilliant White Orpington History.

The Aldrich Poultry Farm, of Columbus, Ohio, stands today among the most popular and reliable breeders of Single Comb White Orpingtons in the United States. The achievements of this firm have been very remarkable, indeed, and only those who are fully acquainted with the conditions under which these results have been accomplished can fully appreciate them. And the secret of their splendid success is simply this: They started right.

They laid a sure foundation and exercised great care in the erection of the super-structure. "Quality" was their watch-word and the wisdom exercised in its selection, and how carefully they followed in its foot-steps, is evidenced ing every necessary convenience, plenty of sunlight, abundance of pure, fresh air, plenty of room and scrupulously clean. The yards are large and well-planned and their arrangement such as to insure plenty of shade for the birds. They have 20 pens of S. C. White Orpingtons mated up for this season's trade, and the quality of their matings can easily be determined by the fact that their pens contain winners of 18 first, 13 second, 8 third, 8 fourth and 9 fifth prizes, won at such shows as Madison Square Garden, Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Pittsburg and Baltimore, together with winners from Allentown, Nashville, Philadelphia and Indianapolis.

Every pen is headed by winning males,

John C. Peifer, Danville, Pa., one of the Keystone State's foremost breeders of White Orpingtons and Barred Rocks, his recent victories are well earned and deserved.

by the superiority of their breeding pens, as well as their sweeping victories in the strongest show-room competition. The Aldrich Poultry Farm is located right in the suburbs of the City of Columbus, the capital city of Ohio, and for situation and convenience to shipping facilities is uniqueness in itself. These problems were all figured out before the start was made; and many details worked out to a nicety before a nail was driven. This plant is ideally located for poultry raising. The buildings are modern, contain-selected and mated by Mr. Geo. J. May, the manager of the Aldrich Farm, one of the most noted and efficient White Orpington Judges in the country. The selection of Mr. May as manager of the Aldrich Poultry Farm is a further revelation of the wisdom of the proprietors of this plant. We certainly congratulate the Aldrich Farm people on securing the services of Mr. May. The winnings of the Aldrich Poultry Farm at two of our largest and most representative shows are as follows: viz., Pittsburg, Pa., 1912:

1st and 2d cock, 1st, 2d, 3d and 5th cockerels, 1st, 2d and 3d pullets, 4th and 5th hens, 1st and 3d pens, a total winning of 13 ribbons, 6 silver cups and 7 other specials, among them special for best display. At Baltimore they won 1st cock, 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th cockerels, 1st, 2d, 4th and 5th pullets, 1st and 4th hens, 1st and 2d pens, winning a total of 13 ribbons, 4 silver cups, 8 other specials including best display.

With such remarkable victories to their credit, the writer feels more than justified in his claim that the Aldrich Poultry Farm is "Making Brilliant History in the Orpington world," and we cheerfully recommend them to all our readers, feeling confident they will receive full value for every dollar committed to their care.

The name of "D. C. R. Hoff," prop. Lehigh Poultry Farm, and "Vitality" day-old chicks are inseparable, at least among those who have had the good fortune to secure some of his baby chicks. Mr. Hoff is a breeder of B. P. Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and S. C. White Leghorns, and his plant is located at Ne-shanic station, N. J. For over 20 years Mr. Hoff has been engaged in raising both utility and fancy fowls and his reputation as a man and breeder is second to Why experiment in hatching when you can buy strong, healthy chicks delivered in prime condition at less expense and with no trouble? The best evidence of the superior quality of Kerr's Chicks is the immense demand for them. This has come about solely because of the splendid satisfaction given users. Have already booked orders for several thousand for March, April and May delivery. Don't risk putting yours off. Safe arrival guaranteed.

Order now. All my chicks are ordered considerably ahead of the actual hatching. I fill in the order received. It is a case of first come first served. To be certain of getting your share, order direct from his ad.

My booklet will prove to you the advantage in buying chicks from me. Write for it Now. It's free.

Ducane Poultry Farm Co., Dept. 51 Butler, Pa

none in the country. Nearly a quarter of a century ago, while living at the historic old village of Centerville, N. J., about three miles from his present home, Mr. Hoff began to experiment with artificial incubation. It was his object to produce artificially hatched chicks that were equal in every respect to those hatched by a hen, Nature's own way. How well he has succeeded is fully attested by the repeat orders his old customers are sending in to his office. About five years ago Mr. Hoff decided to go into the poultry business on a more extensive scale and began at once to secure the best equipment possible for his plant. He now runs fifteen 390 egg machines and one mammoth incubator with a capacity of 6600 eggs.

During this time the demand for his chicks has been far in advance of his out-put. He has one of the best equipped best ventilated incubator cellars in existence, and prides himself on the sanitary condition of his whole plant. It is seldom Mr. Hoff has a case of White Diarrhoea. His losses in baby chicks from this cause for the past five years, has been less than 1 per cent. A record seldom equaled in the history of scientific poultry raising and certainly speaks volumes in favor of Mr. Hoff's Vitality Chicks.

The Lehigh Poultry Plant is admirably located for poultry raising, and so situated as to afford the best of shipping facilities, just 43 miles west of the city of New York, on the main line of the Lehigh Valley R. R., and on the South Branch of the Central R. R. of N. J., which has direct connection with Pennsylvania R. R. at Fleming, N. J., as well as direct connections with the Philadelphia and Reading and Baltimore and Ohio R. R. at Bound Brook, N. J. It would certainly be a profitable investment for any of our readers if possible, to visit Mr. Hoff's plant and learn what this gentleman has been able to accomplish in so short a time. We take pleasure in recommending Mr. Hoff to all our friends and would advise you to look up his ad. in this issue of The Fancier and write him for his price list on hatching eggs and Vitality Chicks.

The Crystal Quality Strain

The biggest winners of the season's show. To enumerate our winnings at Williamsport, Philadelphia, Kittanning, Nashville and Pittsburg is unnecessary at these great shows, they met competition from the North, South, East and West, they met the country's greatest breeders, they were victorious. They have proved themselves to be the biggest winners of the season.

NEVER BEFORE

have better S. C. White Orpingtons been yarded, representing the best blood lines in England and America, birds that have been bred right, mated right and will breed right.

You Must Start on Concrete Foundation

To be successful. The cause of failure is poor blood lines which produce poor results. It costs you no more to deal here than elsewhere and Crystal Quality will put you on the road to success.

select, fresh, white eggs for market. This meant to build a flock of hens that would, through their natural ability as layers, produce eggs for market at a commercial profit, also that this flock must have the vitality to reproduce in kind, year after year.

As a foundation for this flock were chosen birds from what were then the world's best flocks of single combed White Leghorns. From their first year's raising were chosen the foundation of the Mount Pleasant Farm single comb White Leghorns. One bird in ten, from the best the world afforded, met their requirements, for they had chosen a type—a hen built to lay eggs, a large, broad, deep, healthy, active hen, a hen that will, through her own natural vitality, lay eggs in great numbers. From that time on selecting their breeders, their type, from thousands of pullets, about one bird in ten meeting their standard, which was each year becoming more exacting as the flock improved. The Mount Pleasant Farm single comb White Leghorn hen is one that will reproduce herself in type and ability as a layer.

A booklet describing their methods and containing many valuable pointers may be had by addressing Box B, Mt. Pocono, Pa.

The farm comprises 40 acres, 200 feet above the sea level, and the buildings are of the latest modern designs.

The breeding and laying houses have open fronts, no glass, with muslin curtains, which are lowered at night and in extremely cold weather. The large breeding house is 16 by 184 feet, and will accommodate 1000 birds; the laying house is 20 by 114 and will accommodate 1000 layers; two brooder houses, one 28 by 114 and another 28 by 50 feet, will take care of 8500 chicks.

The mammoth incubator, 30,000 egg capacity, is in a concrete cellar, over which is the packing and feed store house.

The capacity of this plant is 80,000 day-old chicks, 80,000 eggs for hatching and 15,000 mature birds.

The houses are kept scrupulously clean, the litter being removed every week, the nest boxes renewed each morning, baled wheat straw being used, which is purchased in carload lots.

Feeding is a prominent feature of this farm. The feed is varied according to the season, and regular intervals are kept for feeding time. The work is arranged according to a schedule as follows: 7 A. M., watering and feeding scratch feed in litter, composed of cracked corn, whole wheat, oats and buckwheat; 8 to 11 A. M., cleaning all houses; 11 A. M., feeding whole wheat and oats in litter; 11.30, gathering of eggs; 1.30, feeding green feed; 3.30 P. M., feeding scratch feed in litter, in cold weather the amount of corn is increased in this feed; 4.30 P. M., last gathering of eggs.

A feed of alfalfa is chopped fine and scalded, then put in troughs and used as green food.

Arrangements are being made for handling at least 50,000 baby chicks during the coming season, and the vitality of the stock makes it an easy matter to raise most of these—the loss being less than 5 per cent.

Mount Pleasant Farm has started right—with healthy, vigorous stock—and by excluding any hothouse methods is sure to attain a remarkable success as a commercial egg farm.

Stamina Necessary for Egg Production

Strong, sturdy chicks, chicks that will grow into pullets which produce large quantities of eggs and remain healthy have been the aim of experienced commercial poultrymen. To produce chicks of this quality birds must have constitutions able to withstand the ravages incident to heavy laying. They are reared outdoors, and the layers are quartered in houses which have open fronts, the interior of which is the same temperature as the outside.

Mount Pleasant Farm, situated at Mount Pocono, and owned by W. H. and H. M. Leech, have made a specialty of egg production and have succeeded in producing a flock of fowls aptly fitted to fill these special requirements.

Their fowls are like a stout-hearted, strong-limbed, healthy mountaineer that have breathed fresh air, ate plain nutritious food for generations and have constitutions made rugged by their forced activity under natural conditions with expert handling.

The chicks are lusty, bouncing little fellows, who have inherited strong constitutions from parents which have been reared under the above conditions and they are fitted to begin their careers as profitable money earners for their owners.

For many years it has been conceded that the White Leghorn breed leads all others as egg producers, and it has been proven that when they receive proper attention an average flock will pay a handsome profit.

With poultrymen working for the production of eggs for market, came the demand for the fowl that would produce the greatest number of eggs for the least feed cost; this brought forward the single combed White Leghorn, the greatest known layer, the bright, active, healthy hen, the layer of large, white eggs, that command a premium in every market.

Following this work and working along these lines, for a number of years, has led to the establishment of the most modern specialty egg farm in the world, the Mount Pleasant Farm, founded by men who appreciated years ago the necessity of concentration, that to be successful in the poultry business meant to become specialists in the production of

Rule 17

Beyond all doubt one of the most important resolutions ever brought before the American Poultry Association will be that which forbids Soliciting Editor Judging, and we doubt whether there has been any other question that has ever attracted such widespread interest. This rule also reads that no one drawing a salary from a paper carrying Poultry Advertising shall be permitted to judge.

We are inclined to think that this rule should be, and think it will be supported, not only by the rank and file of the American Poultry Association members, but by every good thinking judge throughout the land, for this is a question which means dollars and cents to them, and it also means their future welfare.

It is said that some men drawing a nice salary from papers carrying Poultry Advertising offered their services free of charge to certain Poultry Shows. Now if this man was not drawing a nice salary from a paper we doubt very much if he could afford to do this.

Now we have plenty of good judges, not drawing salaries from papers and Poultry Magazines, and we would like to know how such judges not drawing these salaries from papers and Poultry Magazines can compete with this kind of competition.

We believe that every laborer is worthy of his hire, and we believe that judges should be paid for their services, and paid well, but this kind of unfair competition, if permitted to continue, will sooner or later put many good judges out of the business. Now Mr. Judge, have you ever looked at this question in this light. We want every one of you to consider rule 17, and know what it means to you. If this rule is defeated before the next meeting of the American Poultry Association at Nashville it means that you will have to encounter this kind of competition in the future.

If the rule is passed, it means that you will get an honest day's wages for an honest day's work. It is up to every judge in the country to support this resolution. We also believe that soliciting Editors connected with Poultry Journals or papers carrying advertising, should not judge. These reasons we expressed time and time again in the past, and the events of the past year have convinced the writer more than ever that soliciting Editors should not judge at all, and especially at the shows at which they solicit business from. If this thing is permitted to continue the time is not far distant when the Poultry Journals of this country will come to the conclusion that it is cheaper to have a soliciting Editor Judge than one that is not a Soliciting Editor Judge for the simple reason that a man can draw his salary as a judge, which will lower his salary from the paper on which he works, which will come in the profits of the publication.

This is only looking at it from one side of the fence. How many men in this country will say no to the fact that soliciting Editor Judges have, at times, used their influence as a judge in securing business for the paper for which they are connected? How many men will say no to the fact that soliciting Editor Judges have at all times, and under all occasions, been absolutely unbiased in their decisions? When the bell rings at Nashville, where we think the American Poultry Association will meet, and where rule 17 will be acted upon, the Poultry Fan-cier will be there, and we are going to do all that is within our power to have this rule passed on its own merit. We think it will be the wisest step that has ever been taken by the American Poultry Association, and one that will lead to the advancement of better show conditions. We appeal to every member of the American Poultry Association to vote for rule 17, which forbids soliciting Editor Judges, and judges drawing salaries from any paper carrying Poultry Advertising, to judge at American Poultry Association shows. Pennsylvania has spoken, passing unanimously the resolution against it. Rule 17 has met with widespread approval all over the Eastern, Central and Southern States, and we dare say it will be supported by many prominent men from the Western States.

We believe that rule 17 is going to pass, and we are going to stand pat on our position, even though some of the other publications that have previously supported this resolution have turned right-about-face, or as some call it, turned turtle.
The Poultry Fancier remains firm, and is also firm in the belief that rule 17 is going to pass. Vote for rule 17.

McGrew for President of A. P. A.

The nomination for President of the American Poultry Association do not close before March 10th. If you haven't voted yet, hustle in your ballot. Vote for Thomas F. McGrew, of Scranton, Pa., who was unanimously endorsed by the Pennsylvania branch, as we have previously stated. No man is more worthy of the office than Thomas F. McGrew, and let it be known that if Thomas F. McGrew is elected he will have no factions or friends to serve, or enemies to punish.

Everybody that knows Thomas F. Mc-Grew knows him to be a man of the highest integrity, and no man in the American Poultry Association is better qualified to fill this office than he is. The best years of Thomas F. McGrew's life were given to the Poultry Industry. He has served on the executive board of the American Poultry Association for a number of years, and in all his dealings as a member of the Poultry Association and in his dealings as a man he has always tempered justice with mercy.

Mr. Hicks, at the St. Louis convention, at which time the members of the Pennsylvania branch were insisting on Mr.
McGrew running for President last year advised the members of the Penna.
Branch that if McGrew would not run against him that he only wanted office one year and would support Mr. McGrew this year. Now, Mr. Hicks, we think you should stand by your pledges made to the Penna. members at St. Louis, or tell us the reason why you are not standing by the pledges. We think it is up to you to explain this to the Eastern members. At any rate this doesn't change the status of the affair. It looks like McGrew and Hicks on the final ballot, and we hope that every member will support Mr. McGrew for the Presidency, and thus crown his life-work in the interests of the Poultry Industry with a reward which it justly deserves. Vote, and vote for Thomas F. McGrew.

Misguiding and Mislead- ing Poultry Literature

Is it not a fact that misguiding Poultry literature is the cause of more failures in the poultry business than any other cause? I will even make a stronger statement, which I am sure can be borne out by facts, and that is that mis-guiding and misleading poultry literature is the cause of more failures in the poultry business than all other causes combined, and unless something is done by the American Poultry Association or by the different poultry associations throughout the land to curb this evil something of a serious nature is going to hit this great poultry industry some of these fine days.

How many poor fellows invested a dollar, more or less, in a book that told them how much money could be made in the chicken business, and the poor fellows believed every word they read, and came to the conclusion that if Mr. Jones could make so much money from his hens that it had the Klondike beat to a frazzle. Oh, yes, he started in with good intentions; he had it all figured out in Black and White, so many hundred dollars from so many hens. Well, he thought he would be conservative, and divided it by two, and he would still have $3,000 clear from his hens. Yes sir, he resigns his position; he converts his little home into cash; he puts in his 500 hens, and he reads his book. He is now started in the business. Need I follow and picture this man all through the year? We don't think it is necessary. At the end of the year we picture him. He realizes that the little book he bought led him astray; that there could not be so much money made from so many hens, no matter what system it is. This poor fellow loses his all. Back to the town business than the writer has to run a Drug Store.

Actual experience is what is needed, and such literature as will give the man a practical knowledge along lines that are safe and sane, and teach him good common hen sense.

Somebody should take a hand in preventing the circulation of such literature, that tells people how to make anywhere from $3,000 to $16,000 a year from so many hens. It figures out all right on paper, "but show me."

We will have more to say on this in the near future, when we read some of the books we have on hand. Let someone put a stop to misguiding and misleading poultry literature, and put a stop to so many failures. There is no reason why there should be more failures in the poultry business than in any other—and this is the cause, beyond all doubt.

Thanks

The writer cannot help but thank you all for making this issue possible. The support that has been given The Fancier in all parts of the country accounts for this issue, which we feel proud of. It is our aim to publish the best journal in the land. Just how near we hit that mark we will let our readers be the judge, but we are going to keep plugging away in our same old way, until we reach the mark. But when we stop and consider that this is only the third issue of The Fancier under the present management we cannot help but feel proud of the progress made. And we thank you, one and all, for the support given, and we will give you one hundred cents' worth for a dollar, and a journal fit to grace the library table of the best homes in the land.

At Your Service

Show Secretaries, Attention!

The Fancier is taking an advance step in having at your service B. Monroe Posten, the well-known lecturer and authority from Hughesville, Pa. Mr. Posten is one of the best speakers in Penna., and one of its most eminent authorities. We have made arrangements with him, whereby he is in a position to lecture before Poultry Associations.

What the Press has to say:—

Some men think the time is ripe. One of them is Rev. Posten, who lectured here four times this week. He radiates sunshine, either by nature or habit; he looks on the sunny side of things. He said, "God has always furnished a man when needed and would again lead the farmers to the promised land."

Street, walker and company are not half as good pay-masters as the average farmers. The house was packed to the doors, and it was half after 11 before the speaker could get away from the enthusiastic audience, who wanted to ask questions, regardless of the late hour.—Scottdale Courier, Scottdale, Pa.

Rev. Posten is a young man full of zeal for his chosen work, as well as the "side line," as he calls it. His lectures or city for him, to start life all over again. This man tells his friends to lay off the poultry business and he shows them figures that speak as loud as all the systems. Yes, what did he leave behind? A monument in the way of a deserted Poultry Plant, erected to the memory of misguiding and misleading Poultry Literature, that told him how to make so many dollars from so many hens.

E. R. McCrork, Supt. Mechanical Department of the Poultry Fancier, the man responsible for making the mechanical art in the Fancier possible. Mr. McCrork is also Secretary of the North Penn Poultry Association.

How long is the American Poultry Association or Organized poultry going to stand for the misleading dope that is being scattered broadcast at so much per system? I believe that the Poultry business presents as good an opportunity to make a living and make money as any business in this broad land, and I also believe that no business will yield a larger revenue from the amount of dollars invested than the Poultry business. But misfortune must come to the man who invests his all in the business because a system told him how; and the man has no more license to go into the poultry

The following are some of the subjects of Mr. Posten's lectures:

"When Will the Prodigal Return; or When Can the Farmer Kill the Fatted Calf."

"When Springtime Calls the Roll."

"Hendom from a Clergyman's Standpoint."

"The American Hen and the American Farmer."

"By Products vs. Buy Products."

All Poultry Associations desiring Mr. Posten to lecture before them, or anyone desiring Mr. Posten to come to a locality to organize a Poultry Association, will get into communication with The Poultry Fancier, and we will be pleased to take it up with you, and make the necessary arrangements.

DEATH OF DAVID A. NICHOLS.

The saddest news that we have been called upon to convey to our readers since publishing the Poultry Fancier is the death of David A. Nichols, at his home in Chelton, Conn.

Mr. Nichols for a great many years has served as Treasurer of the American Poultry Association, and has attended all of its Annual Meetings for years past, and an A. P. A. meeting without David A. Nichols would not have seemed like an A. P. A. meeting at all. No man in the American Poultry Association will be missed more than he. He was loved and respected by all who knew him. He was a Thorough Fancier, and bore no malice or ill will toward any man. Everybody that knew him loved him, and one of the first questions that an A. P. A. member would ask when going into meeting was, where is David. All over this broad land he had legions of friends. Everybody knew him.

He will be particularly missed also at the great Hagerstown Fair show, where for upwards of 20 years he served in the capacity of Judge. Without the presence of Dave Nichols Hagerstown show did not seem right. He was a great friend of the old Veteran Cost, and enabled him very much in building up the great Hagerstown Fair Show. His will be a hard place to fill, and the Poultry Fraternity has lost one of its staunchest supporters. His name will linger forever in the memories of the Poultrymen, and generations to come will hear and read of the good deeds of D. A. Nichols and the part he took in making this great Poultry Industry.

Current Events Among Fanciers Gathered From Live Wires

No One Responsible for Editing This Department

Full show reports for us.
Read the A. P. A. department in this issue.

The Incubator Companies are working overtime.

Bird Brothers attended the Pittsburg Fancier Show.

Look this issue over, and tell us where we can improve it.

H. M. Kenner is booking judging engagements already.

Win or lose the Judging question, The Fancier stands pat.

Hamburg Bill Minnick put in some White Orpington Shoats.

Show this issue to your friends. You need not say anything, it will speak.

J. C. Fishel is having the biggest season of his life in White Wyandottes.

Theodore Hewes and President Hicks attended the Pittsburg Fanciers' show.

Read Judge Correy's article in this issue. It is straight from the shoulder.

How does this issue please you for a three months' old baby? Wait until he is a man.

Sure thing, The Fancier will be at the same old fairs, and pretty near the same old places.

We thank everybody for making this issue possible from the subscriber to the advertiser.

Secretary Campbell attended the Pittsburg show, and enrolled many new A. P. A. members.

It is said there will be no more Wilkes Barre Fair, but a big Wilkes Barre winter show.

And now they say Madison Square Garden will not be torn down. Let us hope this is true.

B. Monroe Posten, the well known lecturer, of Hughesville, Pa., has entered the judging field.

Hanover will have one show, and that will be at the fair. Shirk says that will be some show.

Stroudsburg association is very active and doing much to promote the poultry industry in that section.

Judging by what leading show secretaries say, soliciting-editor-judging will go any way without rule 17.

Oaklands Poultry Farm has upwards of 30,000 incubating capacity. Here is where Billy Bowman is manager.

Every display advertiser in The Fancier is guaranteed. Yes every one. You can partonize them with safety.

Misguiding and misleading poultry literature has put more people out of the chicken business than any other cause.

J. Napoleon Kriner went all the way to Allentown and bought a quart of little onions when he heard the first blue-bird.

Jeff and Mutt—Joe Morrow and Billy Moore, blew into Philadelphia and parted with a big dime to see the moving pictures.

With Wittman leading the fight against soliciting editor's judging, it looks blue for the soliciting editors at Allentown Fair show.

The show season is over, and now everybody is down to business. But still some claim to have Allentown winners hatched already.

Joseph Elias has been elected president of the Wisconsin Poultry Association, succeeding Judge Nevius, who declined re-election.

Vote for Tom McGrew for president of the A. P. A. Tom McGrew will serve no faction. Thomas F. McGrew is the man needed to fill the office.

If there is ever a man that will be missed from the A. P. A. meetings it will be David Nichols. Forever will that name be dear to our memories.

Some one deserving of a ten-year sentence in the pen poisoned a lot of Mr. B. Bickel's prize-winning Bantams. Mr. Bickel's loss is several hundred dollars.

David B. Trout, formerly connected with the Newtown Producing Co., has moved to Washington. Well Davy, look up our old friend Billy Fulmer when out there.

Mt. Pleasant Farms, at Mount Pocono, are better prepared than ever to handle their increasing business. W. H. and H. M. Leech are the proprietors of this concern.

W. Theo. Wittman has been lecturing in the Western part of Pennsylvania. Wittman is the most popular man lecturing on poultry. He knows what he is talking about.

And Linkey Orr says Brother DeLancey stands all alone on the judging question. Well, I guess you are pretty nearly right, Linkey, but we are going to stand on the same spot.

Billy Rice ate all the Gravy at the Bridgeton Banquet. It is said that Billy Rice can get on the outside of more stuffing and gravy than any "skeeter" in South Jersey.

Dr. Gasber, Mount Joy, Pa., Supt. of the Poultry Dept. Lancaster Co. Fair, is laying plans for the greater show. The Doctor has Lancaster in a class with the big ones.

April, May and June are the best months in the year for the egg trade, and for the price of a setting, you can get a 330-word classified ad. 3 months. See page ad. in this issue.

It looks like Rufus Delafield, South Plainfield, N. J., and Dick Richards, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for the executive

BRED FROM RANGE GROWN BIRDS

It's Not How Many Chicks You Buy—It's How Many You Raise That Spells Success

LAKEVIEW FARMS chicks are livable chicks as well as quality chicks, because they are bred from quality birds that have vitality and stamina. They are the chicks that will develop into robust cockerels and pullets that will please, and in addition you stand a chance of raising a large percentage of show birds.

board. That is a good pair, and they are deserving of your support.

Col. Geo. May, of Orpington fame, will don the Linen Duster, take up a judging stick, and get to work this season. Oh! yes, the field is full of good men, who are capable of judging. And the passing of Rule 17 will cause no shortage. Nay! Nay! Pauline, there will be enough of judges.

Oh, yes, and some soliciting editors judge shows for nothing. Seems strange, doesn't it? I wonder why they do it? Now, how can judges who are not drawing fat salaries from papers compete with this kind of competition? Be-gosh they can't do it. Show me or tell me how they can.

The proposed Honorable and Ancient Order of Solicitors fell through. Everybody wanted to be treasurer. Another meeting will be held this summer, at Troutbrook Farm, the summer residence of Danny Cavanaugh. Al. Brown has been appointed a committee of one to look up transportation.—(By Freight.)

Louy Paul Graham is working overtime to keep up. Louey is "Johnny-on-the-spot," and he is keeping The Fancier cover page in the lead. Louy isn't a bad sort of a fellow when he is in a good humor.

We have heard that Wm. C. Denny will judge few if any shows next season. Well, Bill, this is a sensible stand. Don't do it as long as you are editor of the World. Who's next? Maybe we won't have any occasion to act on Rule 17.

John T. McKay and Barten T. Fell, two well-known Trenton Fanciers, have gone into partnership, and will push to the limit Silver Penciled and Partridge Rocks. They have a 120 acre farm, and new buildings are being erected. Take it from The Fancier man their combination will make Rocks ring.

And The Poultry Item turned (Turtle) on the soliciting editor judging question, they who first started this all important question. Well, dollars to doughnuts I know the reason—a soliciting editor for Editor. What a strange pill we live upon. Oh! this hard cruel sphere of ours. And how happy they would be if rule 17 was only out of the way.

Doc. Hertz, the Lititz Wizard has made a wonderful discovery. He discovered a dope that you put in the stuffing of Turkeys served at Poultry Banquets that has the effect of satisfying the exhibitors; and prevents any quarrelling in the ranks of associations. This will surely fill a long-felt need. Dan Whitmyer is marketing the product. Write him or Doc Hertz for particulars.

Wanted—Information as to the whereabouts of Dickey Oke and Willie Bailey. These two lads have not been seen or heard from since the Baltimore show, when they were seen in company with Augustus Bismarek Brown. Jimmy Glasgow will pay a liberal reward for information that will lead to their whereabouts. Dickey Oke is a stout boy, not very tall for his age, wears glasses at night-time, but not in day-time. When he smiles he resembles Roosevelt, a little broader around the middle than at the shoulders. Willie Bailey is a tall slender boy with sort of a saintly look, wears no glasses at any time. He has a sort of reverend appearance, sometimes.

A Few Hours With Men Who Raise Chickens

By F. D. Sutton.

Mr. R. J. Savacool, Cornwells, Bucks Co., Pa., breeder of America's Greatest Winning strain of White Wyandottes, has a show-room record of which the oldest Wyandotte breeders might justly feel proud. At the great Philadelphia, Pa., 1911 show he had but two entries and won first and special pullet, winning the National White Wyandotte Club Ribbon. At Trenton, N. J., he won 1st and special cock for best White Wyandotte in the show; at Camden, N. J., among one of the greatest classes of White Wyandottes seen this year Mr. Savacool won third cock and third hen. At Easton he won 1st pullet, 2d cockerel, 3d hen and at Bristol he carried away 1st cock and special for best bird in the show winning the North American Cup, also 1st cockerel and special for best Wyandotte in the show, also winning Senator Buckman's cup, together with 1st, 2d hen, and 1st and 2d pullet.

This is indeed a very remarkable season's victory, and puts Mr. Savacool's White Wyandottes up among the best in the East. We are glad to call the attention of all our friends ton, D. C., 1909, 2d cockerel and 3d pullet. Such a record as the above is a most attractive argument, and should go a long way toward convincing the prospective buyer where to place his order for baby chicks or eggs. Write for Mr. McCue's prices. He is a reliable breeder and worthy of your confidence.

We are in receipt of the 1912 catalogue of W. H. Somersall and Son, Manufacturers of the Hub Incubators, Visible Brooders, and Portable Houses, Natick, Mass. These gentlemen are putting out a very high-grade of goods, sold on a "guarantee to please" basis, and according to reports we have received from some of their customers, they are worthy of the full confidence of any one who is in the market for up-to-date Incubators and Brooders. Their machines are constructed out of the best grade of materials, having double walls throughout, and furnished in a very attractive manner. Their system of heating and ventilating is very practical and ought to insure high percentage of hatches, of big strong chicks.

Their brooder is practically fire-proof, and to these splendid victories, and assure them that Mr. Savacool will give everyone who deals with him honest value for their money. Mr. Savacool carries a very attractive ad. in this issue of The Fancier. Look it up, and write him your wants. Remember The Fancier stands back of its advertisers.

One of the leading Barred Rock Breeders of Old Virginia is Mr. Leslie M. McCue of Greenwood, Va. Mr. McCue has been breeding "Ringlet" Barred Rocks from a Fancier's standpoint for 10 years, and the quality of his stock is evidenced by the fact that for 6 years his birds have led the state in strong competition at the Virginia and Tidewater Poultry Associations' combined shows at Norfolk, Va.

Mr. McCue's "Ringlets" captured the following prizes: Jan. 1907, 2d cock; 1908, 1st and 3d cock, 1st and 3d hen, and 1st pen, together with best display; 1909, 3d and 5th cock, 1st cockerel, 3d and 5th pullets; 1910, 1st cock, 1st, 2d, 4th and 5th cockerels, special for best display, American Poultry Association's special diploma for best Bared Rock Cockerel in the show; 1911, 1st, 4th and 5th cock, 2d and 5th cockerel, 2d and 5th pullets, also at Washing-

Their system of heating and ventilating is very practical and ought to insure high percentage of hatches, of big strong chicks.

Their brooder is practically fire-proof, and the heater and pipes are made of the best galvanized iron. The part of the brooder between the heater and hover is entirely cut away, and then covered with a thick sheet of asbestos, making it impossible for any part of the brooder to catch fire from the heater. These improvements are worthy of recognition on the part of those who are interested in artificial incubation, and brooding, as a good incubator and safe brooder are among the most important factors to success on any poultry plant. You can secure the catalogue of this firm free. Better write for it today. They are yearly advertisers in The Fancier.

Mr. A. J. Fell, the great White Wyandotte breeder of West Point, Penn., is out with his mating and price list for 1912. It is hard to say anything "Good" about friend Fell, or his birds that our readers are not familiar with already. His qualities as a breeder and gentleman are esteemed as highly among fanciers as are the merits of his Wyandottes in the show room. Suffice to say, Mr. Fell's matings this season are the greatest he ever put up, and those who are fortunate enough to secure eggs from him will surely get good results. Get off an early letter to Mr. Fell, for his mating list. It is certainly the "whole corn in the ear." Lock up his ad. in the March issue of Poultry Fancier. It will do you good.

Pratt's little big Almanac for 1912 is ready for mailing to their many friends. It is a veritable "Treasure House" for the poultryman, fancier, stock raiser, and fruit grower, and The Fancier wishes to thank the Pratt Food Co. for the number sent us. The name Pratt, is a real "Household Word" from ocean to ocean and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. Their products need no "Boost" from us. They stand on their own merits, or possibly a more fitting expression would be, they "Grow on their Merits," as their business throughout the United States and Canada has grown to enormous proportions. The Pratt People are quick to discover a good thing, hence their ad. appears in The Fancier. Look it up and write them if in need of any of their products.

Edwards and Loomis Co., of Chicago, Ill., Sole Mfg'rs of Red Comb Meat Mash, and Red Comb Scratch Feed, are putting up Poultry Feeds of the highest possible order. There is no firm in this country more reliable than they, and the quality of their feeds is highly commended by all their customers.

All of the Red Comb Feeds are mixed automatically by machinery, under the supervision of an experienced poultryman, and uniformity of quality and mixture is always assured. Their ad. appears in this issue of The Fancier, and we esteem it a favor to call the attention of our readers to the same. They have agencies in all parts of the country who can supply our readers on short notice. Their Eastern representative is Mr. W. W. Shaw, Collingswood, N. J. Look up their ad. and write them when in need of their goods. They will please you. The Fancier's advertisers are on the square.

The 1912 mating list of Geo. W. Hatt, Mohnton, Penn., Proprietor Golden Dawn Poultry Yards, breeder of Buff Plymouth Rocks, is ready for mailing, and gives a full and complete list of his matings for this season's egg trade. His prices are very reasonable for the quality of birds he breeds, and his customers will surely be satisfied with results. His ad. appears in The Fancier. Look it up and write him for his 1912 mating list. It is free. Tell him you saw his ad. in The Fancier.

The Gale Poultry Place, 69 Center St., New Haven, Conn., breeders of Rose Comb Brown Leghorns, (the firm that won every first on R. C. Brown Leghorns at "The Garden" 1911, in the strongest competition ever shown there, also best display,) has a very unique mating list out for this season's egg trade, and any one in need of eggs from this popular strain of birds, can make no mistake in placing his or her order with Mr. and Mrs. Gale.

We looked their birds over very carefully while at the New York Show, and were greatly surprised at their wonderful shape and beautiful color. "Just like so many peas in a pod," and we unhesitatingly recommend the Gale Poultry Place to all interested in this useful and beautiful breed. Write them for circular and mention The Fancier. They will be pleased and we are sure you will be glad you followed our advice.

Klinka & Savidge, of Upper Darby, Pa., are among the most famous breeders of S. C. White Orpingtons in the state of Pennsylvania. They are business men, and perfectly reliable in every way. They have been breeding White Orpingtons for years, and their stock is not only noted for size and egg production, but they have the habit of walking away with the blue ribbons at our very largest shows. At Philadelphia they had a wonderful display of birds, and carried off the coveted prize of first S. C. White Orpington Pullet. At the Philadelphia, Penn., 1911 show to win in any class meant quality in the fullest sense of the word, but to win in the Orpington Alley demanded quality in the superlative degree. This first pullet at Philadelphia was without doubt the mistress of her class. She also won medal for the best pullet in the English Class, best pullet in the show, with 500 competing. A record for White Orpingtons worthy of very special mention. These gentlemen have a fine lot of breeding pens, mated up for the present egg season, stock from which will be among the best show birds of another season. Write this firm for their mating list. It will cost you nothing, and may result in lasting benefit to you.

The boys from old Ohio are swinging into line as advertisers in The Fancier. It is no wonder, for they are among the shrewdest and most reliable Poultrymen in the country, and mighty quick to sift out the best advertising mediums for the purpose of enlarging their business; and it didn't surprise us one bit, when ads. commenced to roll in from the "Old Buckeye State." Come on boys, we know we can do you good, and it pleases us mightily to win out for men who do business on the "Squaire."

Among the Ohio boys whose ads. appear in our Journal we are proud to include Mr. C. F. Louis, Warrensville, Ohio, who breeds as good S. C. White Orpingtons as grow.

We know whereof we speak, for our own eyes have seen and our own hands have handled many of the best Orpingtons in the country, and we don't hesitate to say, none or very few at the best, can show a better average flock of White Orpingtons than C. F. Louis.

Write Mr. Louis for prices and tell him The Fancier told you about his birds. Look up his ad. in this issue.

And here is another Tried and True White Orpington Breeder, Mr. J. W. Sellers, Elmira, N. Y. Every one who is acquainted with Mr. Sellers or has seen his birds knows full well that they will receive full value for every dollar entrusted to his care.

Write Mr Sellers for his mating list, and get some of his hatching eggs. You will not regret it when the winter shows come again.

The Zenner Disinfectant Co., Detroit, Mich., and Windsor, Ont. Canada, manufacturers of one of the greatest disinfectants known to this present age "Zenoleum" is running one of the most original and attractive ads in the March issue of The Fancier we have ever read. The proposition this responsible firm makes to our readers, is Fairness in itself, and we know from observation that their goods are just what they claim them to be, and unhesitatingly recommend them to all our friends. The Zenner disinfectant Co., are putting out a very neat folder, explaining the merits of "Zenoleum," and backing up their claim as to its merits, with testimonials from many of the most conscientious and widely known Poultrymen in the United States.

Write them for further information, or better still, order their goods direct from their advertisement, and tell them you saw their ad. in The Poultry Fancier. They guarantee satisfaction, and The Fancier stands back of their guarantee. Could any one ask any more?

That was a splendid victory, friend Fike: five 1st and five 2d prizes at Pittsburgh's quality show in such hot competition as characterized the Barred Rock Alleys. Mr. Fike is one of our old reliable Barred Rock breeders and well deserved the honors his birds won. This splendid win together with his sweeping victory at the great Hagerstown Fair, stamps Mr. Fike's birds with that superior quality which entitles them to a place in the front ranks of the Barred Rock world. Mr. Fike is also a very large breeder of Bronze Turkeys and has always won the lion's share wherever he has exhibited. Look up his ad. in this issue. Your name and address will bring his catalogue to your door.

The Truc Blue Poultry Yards, Guy Longstreth, Belington, W. Va., breeder of S. C. White Klondikes, Barred and White Rocks has a very interesting ad. in this issue of the Poultry Fancier. His Klondikes are in great demand as are also his Barred and White Rocks, and those who desire to secure eggs from either of these popular breeds would do well to hurry in their orders as Mr. Longstreth has but a limited number of eggs for sale. Look up his ad. in this issue, of The Fancier and write him at once. You can order direct from his ad. and save time if you desire. Mention The Fancier when you write.

Past history is repeating itself again with the Sunswick Poultry Farm, Rufus Delafield, Owner, South Plainfield, N. J., as this plant is already deluged with orders for stock and eggs, and this season is sure to prove a record-breaker for Mr. Delafield. It is a pleasure to hear of the prosperity of men of Mr. Delafield's stamp. We know him and we know the quality of his birds, and consequently we are not at all surprised at the volume of business pouring to his plant from all parts of the country. The matings of the Sunswick Poultry Farm for 1912 are replete with quality, containing 14 1st prize-winners at Allentown, Pa., 13 1st prize birds from Augusta, Ga., 8 blue ribbon winners from Madison Square Garden and 16 first prize-winners from Indianapolis, Ind., beside many other noted champions. This is certainly a wonderful array of superlative quality and worthy of the recognition of any one who is in the market for high-class hatching eggs in either Buff, Black or White Orpingtons. Write Mr. Delafield for his catalogue and mating list at once. It presents an opportunity of a life-time to all who are interested in Orpingtons.

Mr. Ira W. Crowther, Originator of the Aristocrat Strain Single Comb R. I. Reds, Box P. F., Willoughby, Ohio, has out a very interesting mating list for 1912. Nearly all our readers are no doubt well acquainted with the Superior quality of Mr. Crowther's Aristocrats and we feel sure his mail will be full of requests for his latest list of matings. Mr. Crowther's birds have the habit of winning in such shows as Chicago, Ill., and if any of our readers anticipate purchasing hatching eggs from the "Red" Class, we feel confident you will be pleased with the Aristocrats. Write Mr. Crowther, and mention The Fancier.

Mr. N. N. Greiner, breeder of S. C. Black Minorcas, (the kind that win at the "Garden" and Philadelphia,) is advertising in The Fancier, and offers eggs at $5 per setting. Mr. Greiner sells eggs from the same yards from which he raises all his own winners, and gives you an equal chance with him to secure the best. Mr. Greiner guarantees satisfaction to all his customers, and we take pleasure in recommending him as a reliable breeder. His address is N. N. Greiner, Rheems, Pa.

One of the largest and most reliable advertisers in the Poultry Fancier is Mr. Charles F. Fraser, of Marlton, N. J., breeder, importer and exporter of Orpingtons and Indian Runner Ducks. The prices Mr. Fraser is offering hatching eggs for is extremely low considering their quality. Mr. Fraser sold stock to the late Queen Victoria, the Royal family and the nobility of England, for over thirty years, and very pertinently asks, "Does this mean anything to you?" Of course it does, friend Fraser. It not only means something to us personally, it not only means something to us as a publication, but it also has a significant meaning for every one of The Fancier's readers. It simply stands for a "Square Deal," and a square deal means constantly increasing patronage and a merited increasing confidence of a buying public. The Fancier feels a special pride in securing the patronage of such men as Mr. Charles F. Fraser, and unhesitatingly recommends both Mr. Fraser and the firm he represents in England as perfectly responsible and worthy of the confidence of all our friends. Write Mr. Fraser for further particulars and tell him you saw his ad. in The Fancier.

The catalogue and mating list of Geo. E. Lumley breeder of White and Buff Orpingtons and White Wyandottes, Baurneville, Ohio, is a magnificent piece of art work. The cover page is very attractive and all the cuts are well executed. In fact the mechanical work all through is up-to-date in every particular. Mr. Lumley has won many coveted prizes with his birds and is perfectly reliable in all his dealings. He sells both hatching eggs and baby chicks, and for the quality of his stock, his prices are exceptionally low. Write Mr. Lumley for his new catalogue and give him a portion of your business. His ad. appears in this issue of The Fancier.

Our readers have doubtless noticed for the past two issues of The Fancier, the advertisement of L. B. Ressegue, Millers, N. Y., whose records on Rocks and Leghorns the past season at the big Rochester, Buffalo, and Detroit shows, is one that he can justly feel proud of.

Whenever an individual breeder can win 2d cock, 3d hen, 1st pullet and 5th cockerel, and 1st pen, in a show like Rochester, in Barred Rocks, with 234 in competition, it means something, and when a breeder can win 1st, 3d and 5th pullet, 2d and 5th cockerel, and 1st pen on S. C. Brown Leghorns at a show like Buffalo, it means something, and when you can win 1st hen, 2d pullet, 1st cock, and 5th cockerel on Barred Rocks, at a show like Detroit, it means something, and when you can win 1st pen, 1st and 3d pullet, and 2d pen, it means something. On Leghorns at the same show, he won 1st and 3d cockerel, 1st, 2d and 4th pullet, and 1st pen, is it any wonder that Mr. Ressegue can feel proud of this record, and we are proud to have him with us as one of our advertisers, for we know that stock and eggs purchased from him, are going to produce some of the next season's Blue Ribbon Winners, which we hope will get into the hands of our subscribers. It is with pleasure we recommend him to our readers.

The F. L. Poultry Farm, F. L. Ober, Prop., Verona, Pa., is making a strong bid for front ranks among R. I. Red breeders in the Old Keystone State. Mr. Ober's Reds have been winning at many of our leading shows such as "Malison Square Garden, Chicago, Grand Central Palace, N. Y., Pittsburg, Topeka, Hagerstown and Cleveland," and his winnings compare favorably with any of the large breeders.

Mr. Ober's display pen at the last Pittsburg show in which he had on exhibition, four generations of R. I. Red females with a large placard stationed above the coop containing the following wording, viz., "We don't claim the Non-fading Reds, or the Old M'omber hen blood, but we do claim to have as good as the Best and better than the Rest." Great Grandmother Lady Madison 1st, Grandmother Lady Madison, 2d, Mother Lady Madison, 3d & Miss Lady Madison 4th, created considerable stir and called forth many expressions of admiration from lovers of the "Red Bird." Every one of these females showed splendid color and were worthy of a conspicuous place in any show room. Mr. Ober is carrying an ad. in The Fancier. Look it up and write him for his mating list. It is free.

Orpingtons of the better sort, bred by the Mountain View Farm, E. A. Haring, proprietor, So. Kent, Conn., are demonstrating to the entire satisfaction of all who have been fortunate enough to secure stock or eggs from this strain, that the male birds, as well as the females, are "Stay White" White Orpingtons. The writer knows whereof he speaks in this matter and is glad to add his testimony to the fact that Mr. Haring does breed stay white Orpingtons male birds. We know Mr. Haring to be a perfectly reliable gentleman, a breeder who will treat his customers on the square. Look up the Mountain View Farm's ad. in this issue of The Fancier and write him for his 1912 catalog and mating list.

We consider it a great privilege to call the attention of The Fancier's readers and

THE OHIO ORPINGTON YARDS

Big Whites of Quality

Big Whites of Quality

If you are in the market for English stock and at prices within reach of all, I can please you. I have worked for five years to get these yards stocked, buying new blood from the best yards of England from time to time for the yards that supply all the best breeders here year by year. I do not sell my name or my strain. I am in the market to please the man I sell to. Write me, and I will send you names of judges, business men and breeders who stand ready to answer you. They are the men who bought of me. I have only one grade of birds, and one price on eggs, five dollars per setting. I guarantee stock raised from eggs I send out to grade up in the fall as good as the high-priced eggs advertised. Write me. Can take care of large orders.

friends to the splendid merits of "Oculum," in curing various poultry diseases. The Editor and Publisher of The Fancier owns some very high grade Anconas. His 1st pullet at Philadelphia, became very sick while at the Chestnut Hill show. He called Mr. John M. Fleming's attention to her condition and he at once administered a dose of Oculum, and in less than four days, Oculum brought her around all right. The Editor of The Fancier is glad to indorse Oculum and recommend it to all our friends, who are raising chickens. Mr. John M. Fleming, No. 10 So. Front St., Philadelphia, Pa., has the exclusive agency for Oculum, for the larger part of Pennsylvania, all of New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. The writer would advise any of our friends who are troubled with Roup, Swelled-heads, Cholera or White Diarrhoea among their birds to write Mr. Fleming at once for "Oculum." You will thank us for this advice and praise the merits of Oculum as well as we.

WHITE ORPINGTONS.

"GOOD AS THE BEST."

Geo. A. Keyser, 359 West 8th St., Erie, Pa.

The accompanying cuts are of First Cock and First Hen at the late poultry show at Erie, Pa. They are the foundation of the "Good as the Best" strain.

The hen was imported from a prominent English breeder and was a Madison Square winner in 1910.

The cock is also of English blood, being from a pen headed by first Boston cock, 1910.

My winnings on seven entries in a class of 79 birds were first cock, first hen, first and second cockerels, first and second pullets, and first pen.

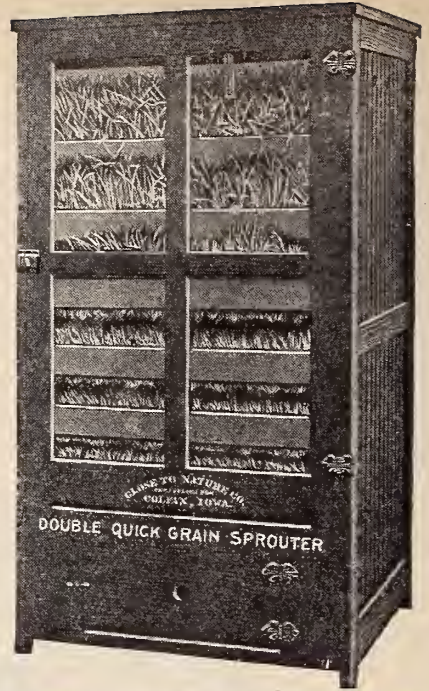

These birds were pronounced by the judge Chas. T. Cornman, to be the best string of White Orpingtons owned by one man, he had ever judged. I have mated two grand pens and anyone wishing to start right will do well to write me for my mating list which will be cheerfully furnished.

THE DOUBLE QUICK GRAIN SPROUTER

Manufactured by the Close-To-Nature-Company, 76 Front Street, Colfax, Iowa.

A grain sprouter and green feed grower is now becoming one of the indispensable parts of all modern poultry plants. The Double Quick is a pioneer in this new field of cheap feed. It is constructed on true scientific principles for forcing in an incredibly short time a crisp, palatable growth of sprouts from any kind of grain. It is double walled, the outside wooden wall being lined with insulation and a metal inside chamber, the lamps' heat passing up between the two walls thus warming every part of the chamber with a very small amount of fuel and at the same time excluding the lamp fumes from the grain chamber. It contains special ventilated trays giving the sprouts great air ventilation, thus adding immensely to the quick growth. The automatic moisture producing apparatus keeps the grain and the pendant roots constantly bathed in vapor. A great amount of light is given through the large glass doors so that the sprouters may be used in quite dark cellars and still admit enough light to the chamber to make green sprouts. It is evidently a scientific machine in every respect. See the advertisement on another page.

When writing to advertisers please mention the Fancier.

BARRED ROCKS S. C. BROWN LEGHORNS

Blue Ribbon winners at Buffalo, Rochester and Detroit.

Our winnings at Rochester, on Barred Rocks: 1st pen, 1st pullet, 5th cockerel, 2d cock, 3d hen.

At Buffalo, on S. C. Brown Leghorns: 1st, 3d, 5th pullet, 2d, 5th cockerel, 1st pen.

At Detroit, Rocks: 1st hen, 2d pullet, 1st P. B. cock, 5th P. B. cockerel, 1st C. B. hen, 1st, 3d C. B. pullet, 2d C. B. pen. Leghorns, 1st, 3d cockerel, 1st, 2d, 4th pullets, 1st pen.

We have the quality and we will sell you eggs from pens containing our prize-winners at reasonable prices. We guarantee satisfaction. We are in the business to stay and please.

WHITING'S White Diarrhoea Remedy Cures Diarrhoea in Little Chicks

It cures in the only reasonable, possible way, by killing the germ that causes the Diarrhoea.

It's a scientifically worked out formula of non-poisonous ingredients that act on the chicks quickly, effectively, and without the least bad after effects; they grow right along like magic.

Only one chick cured pays for a bottle, and WE KNOW it CURES, so you see the profit in getting a bottle of Whiting's White Diarrhoea Remedy at once and curing your chicks instead of letting them die. MONEY BACK IF IT DOES NOT CURE. At dealers, or direct, postpaid, 50 cents. Printed matter free.

WHITING'S ROUPENE, the standard remedy for roup, canker, diphtheritic roup, cures but never weakens. 50 cents a large bottle.

VASS' BUFF, BLACK AND WHITE ORPINGTONS

Blue Ribbon winners at Washington, N. J. On 17 entries won ten firsts, three seconds, one third and one fifth silver cup for best display on buffs, silver cup for best display on blacks, silver cup for best display on whites, and every special given on whites. Also winners at Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton, Pa., Hagerstown, Md., and Grand Central Palace, N. Y. I can offer you White Orpingtons bred direct from my imported English pen, extra fine, large birds; also Buffs and Blacks of that great winning strain that brought them to the front. I was the first importer of Buffs to this country. I can please you in any selection. Am booking Egg Orders now. All breeding stock at cut prices for 30 days. Write for prices. Booklet free giving winnings.

WHITE ORPINGTONS "Good as the Best"

My winnings at the Erie, Pa. Poultry Show, 1912, on 7 entries in a class of 79 birds were: 1st cock, 1st hen, 1st and 2d cockerel, 1st and 2d pullet, 1st pen; also best bird in show, won by 1st cock.

Mr. Orpington man think wisely before you act. Drop me a line and get my mating list, describing two of the finest pens ever mated.

Regal Eggs Produce Winners

For years the White Wyandotte eggs I have been sending out have been "making good" not only have they hatched well but the chicks developed into highclass birds.

This has been possible because of the fact that unlike many breeders who have a few good birds only, my yards contain a host of good birds. I have proven this by going to the New York State Fair on four different occasions with a string of from fifty to sixty White Wyandottes, and any one who saw them will tell you I did not take a poor one. My six years' record at this show is thirty blue ribbons out of a possible thirty-six. Furthermore, Regal White Wyandottes being bred in this northern Canadian climate and wintered in curtain-front houses are the picture of health and vigor. To be able to hatch and rear January chicks in Canada means vigorous breeding stock. Why should I not be able to send out eggs that please?

MY MATINGS

For the season of 1912 I have mated up seventeen prize pens, all headed by prize winners. There is not a single poor mating in the lot and I never had such grand quality right through. I honestly believe that if you could come to Port Dover and see these pens you would be convinced that Regal quality will keep to the front for years to come.

Price of eggs from these pens (as they run) $5 per 15, $9 per 30, $12 per 45, $24 per 100.

Utility eggs from healthy, vigorous surplus stock, $9 per 100; $17 per 200; $24 per 300.

If you are not ready for the eggs send $1.00 to book your order and hold your place.

Special 200 first-class stay white Regal Cockerels at $5, $8, $10 each. Send 10 cents in stamps or coin for the Regal White Wyandotte Book, the finest book ever published dealing wholly with the White Wyandotte. Free Illustrated Catalogue and Mating List, giving complete description of Matings for 1912.

Bronze Turkeys—A splendid exhibit was cooped by W Hershman, Pullins Bros., and Rothgeb Bros., and these three exhibitors divided honors in the winnings.

Committee on Uniform

Probably the most interesting thing that this committee can report at this time are the indications, taken from a large amount of correspondence evoked as the result of the publication of the fact that such a committee had been appointed, that uniform show committee blanks for Poultry Show Associations that are members of the American Poultry Association, are going to be extremely popular.

When issued they will form a powerful incentive for all poultry show associations, not at present members, to become so. For it will give such associations entry books, entry blanks, judge's cards, score cards, coop numbers, etc., etc., that are not only official but that will be simple, correct and low-priced and make the running of Poultry Shows simple and decidedly more satisfactory than at present.

In reply to the request that Poultry Show Secretaries, that have anything good or original in the make-up of such things, that we are willing the Committee should use in the interest of the best and most complete supplies possible, quite a deal of stuff has been sent in. However, still more from all sections of the country would be welcome and any Secretaries disposed to do so, will kindly send same to the undersigned.

The Committee, to date, has worked only through the medium of correspondence, but it is hoped to have a meeting at some central point within the next few months. This will depend somewhat upon the action of the Executive Board, for at least, some of the members are decided in feeling that if, by knowledge gained through many years and sleepless nights, of pulling off large and successful shows, they are to give such experience gratis for the benefit of Poultry Show Secretaries at large, they are at least entitled to their expenses in attending such a central Committee meeting.

LITITZ, PENNA., ON THE BOOM

A letter received from Danny White-mire, the King B of the Bantam Breeders from Lititz, states that every member of the Lititz Poultry Association is right on to his job, making preparations for their next show. When it comes to getting down to work early Lititz is a leader. Always was, and with Doc. Hertz again Boss of the crowd. He has them in excellent physical condition to undergo the ordeal of trying to pull off one of the greatest shows in the State next December.

Columbus, O., Feb. 10, 1912.

Mr. Frank De Lancy,
Editor, Poultry Fancier, Sellersville, Pa.

Dear sir:—

The copy of the Poultry Fancier was received by us this morning and very carefully noted from cover to cover. We wish to say that you have certainly outdone yourself in this wonderful issue. We have never seen a journal better gotten out and more of a work of art. Our own ad. particularly appeals to us, and we believe it to be the best ad. we have ever had. While the subject matter is the same in all Journals, this month, we feel the pulling power of this wonderfully set up ad. will be 100 per cent. greater than any of those in the other Journals.

This publication is one of which you can well be proud and every one of your many friends will rejoice with you in the beauty of this magnificent issue.

Thanking you for past favors, we are very truly yours,

The Aldrich Poultry Farm,
W. R. Aldrich.

Poultry Diseases and Remedies

It is very important that the health of birds should be considered as the principal fundamentals in poultry keeping. Above all prevent disease, as it is the ruination of many a dollar that was invested as a means for a living and to do this the birds must be kept free from drafts; the houses must be kept dry and well ventilated. This together with proper feeding will assure a good foundation to success.

It would be useless for me to mention all the diseases of the fowl, their causes and cures, so we will adhere to a few principal ones, such as you would call, sneezing, caused by dampness. This is the principal source of all ailments contracted with the exception of bumble-foot, caused from scratching among cinders or jumping from a high roost, or by alighting on a nail. Depluming, is known as a parasitic disease and can only be cured during molting time by greasing with an antiseptic, such as carbolated vasalene.

One of our important diseases, known to every poultryman large and small, is Roup, caused mostly from damp houses, draughts, improper feeding, and filthy water. This disease above all is the most contagious and in no quicker way can it be spread through your flock than by means of the drinking water. The principal symptoms of this disease is a mucous discharge of the nostrils and eyes. At first the discharge is thin, but soon becomes cloggy and interferes with the birds' breathing. Great care should be taken to prevent this disease, and in very bad cases the only remedy we advise is using the ax freely.

SCALY LEGS.

Scaly legs, a disease confined to the legs of poultry, is unsightly and injurious. It will, in bad cases, stop laying and produce lameness and soreness. If a brood hen is affected with it, the young chicks will at once become inoculated with it, and it will soon destroy both the smoothness and color of the shanks. As it is infectious, it soon spreads throughout flock, to avoid which stringent measures must be adopted. It is said to be caused by a parasite which works between and under the scales, or tarsi until the outward covering of the shanks is ruined, often forming great and unsightly bunches. It is caused or produced at first by unclean poultry houses and filthy and damp yards and runs. The best remedy that we know of is to furnish clean yards, and when there is evidence of the malady's presence, after thoroughly washing with soap and water, anoint with a mixture made by adding one ounce of flowers of sulphur and ten drops of carbolic acid to three ounces of sweet oil. Apply with a cloth as occasion demands. Young and growing chicks, if this be frequently applied, will grow up with smooth and bright legs.—Ex.

Roup, which includes Canker and Diphtheretic Roup, is the most dreaded and fatal disease that Poultry dealers have to deal with, and has been considered incurable up to the time that "ROUPENE" was discovered.

Roup generally starts with a cold which may be caused by cold rains or disagreeable weather, by drafts of cold air blowing on the roosts or by over heating. Being an infectious disease it may be communicated to your birds by new stock from infected flocks. A fowl when first affected with Roup shows it by sneezing, gasping or wheezing, and soon a very disagreeable odor will be noticeable. In the first stages of Roup the fowl mopes around for one or two days, during which time it neither eats or drinks.

To prevent the spread of Roup in your flock is as of as great importance as to cure it.

Claims are made that the easiest way to cure Roup is to let the chicken take its own medicine when it feels like it; but the fowl refuses to eat or drink at this stage just when the disease should be checked. If neglected now, fever soon sets in and then the fowl is liable to drink more than is good for it. By this time the disease has become seated and it takes work to eradicate it.

Treat the disease in a logical way.

Co-Operative Plan

IT COSTS YOU NO CASH

Free Eggs—Free Birds

For a club of 10 subscribers at our regular rate of 25c per year we will give you a setting of eggs of any variety you select; all stock and eggs are secured from Poultry Fancier Advertisers and Poultry Fancier guarantees satisfaction. No one interested in poultry will refuse 25c for a year's subscription to Fancier, as it is the only real Fanciers Journal. Get to work at once—You need not wait until you get the entire amount. Send in the names as you get them and you will be given credit.

If you need Stock, Or New Blood to improve your stock, we can furnish it.

POULTRY FANCIER, SELLERSVILLE, PA.

When you first notice symptoms of Roup give one or two applications of "Roupenes;" if given at this time this will be sufficient to eradicate all traces of the disease.

By following this plan of treatment you will see how easy it is to cure and prevent the spread of Roup in your flock; also how unnecessary to isolate the sick fowls or dose them all to cure a few.

Poultry authorities now admit that by the use of "Roupenes," Roup and kindred diseases can positively be cured, leaving no traces of the disease or harmful after-effects in the fowl or their progeny.

QUESTION AND ANSWER.

Editor:—I have a Rose Comb Black Minorca Cock, who, to every appearance seems to be in perfect health. Comb and wattles are red, but lacks vitality, even when hens squat before him. Will you kindly let me know through your paper what to do for him.—J. H. C., Petersburg, Pa.

Answer. Probably the bird you speak of has Liver trouble, and if you will coop him up for a week or two and feed him plenty of green food and grain containing a large percentage of protein, he will show improvement. Keep the bird away from the hens, just so he can see them and allow no other male birds near him.

Question Mr. Editor. Will you let me know if Leghorn chicks hatched in February will moult in the fall of the same year. Some people tell me it is too early to hatch Leghorns.—F. O., Lansdown, Pa.

A. February is not too early to hatch

Leghorns. We have often seen Leghorns that were hatched in January that did not moult in the fall. It is more in the care that makes them moult than in the time they are hatched. We would advise not to force them along but let them grow steady and they will make fine layers for the fall. We have hatched Leghorns in December and January and hatching from them the next fall, making the finest broilers we ever saw.

Editor Fancier—Will you please let me know why my hens are not laying, as I have not got an egg since Christmas, and now tomorrow is the first of February. I feed them everything I can think of, and still they don't lay. I know we have had a very cold winter but how is it you get eggs? I have the Leghorns the same stock as you have. Do you feed meat? Some people tell me to give them red pepper and hot feed. Tell me how you get so many eggs. If I did not see them I would think yours was not laying, and I have a better hen house than yours. Mrs. R. L., Langhorne, Pa.

A. This is a question asked very often and is one that is hard to answer, as to why your chickens do not lay after you feed them everything you can think of. We do not feed every thing we think of, but give them plenty of wheat in the morning and at noon a little good scratch feed, then at night we give them half whole corn and half cracked corn, but we feed them only what they eat up at all times. We keep a dry mash before them all the time with 10 per cent of meat scrap in it; also give them some cabbage, if we have it, or some beets to pick at.

This is all we feed during the winter, and we do get eggs as you see.

THE FIVE SENSES.

Elsewhere in this issue will be seen the advertisement of a book called the "Five Senses," written by Rev. B. Monroe Posten, one of the best known lecturers and authorities on Poultry in the state. We are pleased to state that this book does not tell you how to make several thousand dollars from a few hens, or anything of the kind. It is a book that will teach you practical "Hen Sense," and will tell you how to so conduct your Poultry Business that it will give you the largest amount of profit from the money invested.

Rev. B. Monroe Posten needs no introduction to the readers of the Poultry Fancier, or in fact to the Poultry Industry in general, from me. Few are more widely known than he is, and as an Authority he ranks high, as he has made a study of scientific Poultry Keeping a part of his work for years.

Some of the subjects used in Rev. Posten's new book are as follows: A Wonderful Machine, Common Sense with Poultry, An Eye Opener, Why Don't You Listen?, That Tastes All Right, Success with a Capital S., Men Who Have Succeeded, Without Sucking Eggs and Why, Little Chicks, The Town Lot Man, Dollars Well Earned, Pin Money, Many Reasons for the Other Fellow's Success. When Will the Prodigal Return to the Farm, or When Can the Farmer Kill the Fatted Calf, is also added.

Chicken, Men Will Boom Organization

Scranton Poultry Association Decides to Increase Scope and Efficiency

At the last meeting of the Scranton Poultry and Pet Stock association it was decided to broaden the scope of the organization, introduce a futurity sweepstakes at the next exhibition, and have monthly lectures by expert poultrymen for the benefit of the membership. Officers were also elected and installed.

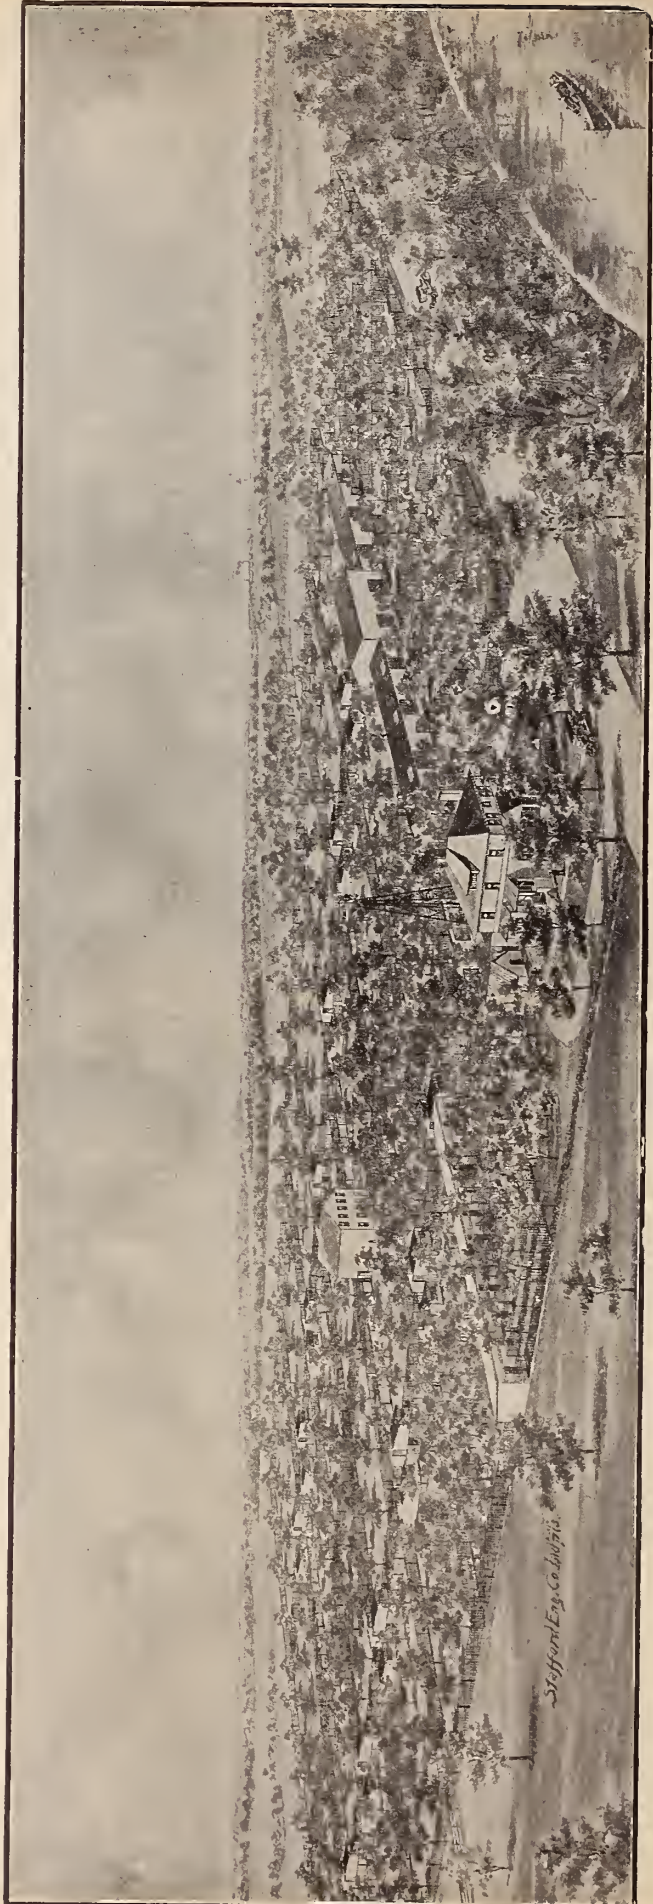

The membership of the organization is to be increased by the creation of an associate membership in which it is hoped that every man interested in poultry, particularly if he only raises a few fowls each year for his own amusement and to supply his own table, will be enrolled. Each associate member will be required to pay dues amounting to $1 per year and in return they will receive instruction in the various lines of poultry raising. Monthly meetings are to be held and there will be a lecture at every meeting on some phase of the poultry industry, the money received from dues going towards the paying of the expenses of these lecturers.

In this manner it is hoped to interest every "town-lot" poultryman in Scranton and vicinity in the breeding of thoroughbred stock. The first meeting will be held March 8, the subject and speaker to be announced later.

Perhaps the most important phase of the meeting to breeders was the decision to establish a sweepstakes futurity for the benefit of local poultrymen. During the breeding season each poultry raiser will be invited to nominate either a cockerel or pullet in any certain class for the following Winter show, paying a small fee at the time of making the nomination. The fees will be lumped and form a prize to be awarded to the cockerel or pullet nominated that makes the best showing in its class at the show. Just how many classes will be included in the futurity has not yet been determined.

At the meeting for reorganization the following board of directors was elected: H. F. Atherton, Thomas Brown, A. W. Close, T. F. McGrew, O. W. Payne, W. J. Peck, E. C. Ricker, C. J. Sprandle, C. E. Tobey, W. L. Weddigen, R. E. Weeks. The directors organized by electing the following officers: President, C. E. Tobey; first vice-president, A. W. Close; second vice-president, W. J. Peck; treasurer, T. F. McGrew; secretary, Oscar W. Payne. The president, secretary and treasurer were appointed an executive committee to conduct the 1912 show.

Attention Classified Advertisers !!

A 30-Word Class Add
3 Mo. for $2.50 6 Mo. for $4.00

Let us reason together:

Poultry Fancier is published in the interests of the men who raise the high grade standard bred birds, which is the foundation of all pleasure and profit in Poultry raising.

It is read by people who are willing to pay the price of the real fanciers product and skill. It is read by the people whose ideas of Beauty are not alone based upon pounds of flesh, and dozens of eggs.

A circulation that will not pay the price of a setting of eggs, or a good bird is worthless to you. You are spending dollars in trying to hit a mark beyond your range.

But how many are paying for this kind of a circulation? Is it any wonder they say advertising doesn't pay? Who is to blame? The circulation of the Poultry Fancier represents the cream, and we sell it to you without buying so much milk, (by the milk I mean circulation that will not pay the price.)

It's the shot that hits the mark that wins the battle, and there is a buyer for every good bird that's raised, and for every egg that's laid.

The circulation of the Fancier is the demand. Can you furnish the supply? During the next three months, our thousands of readers will spend mans thousands of dollars for stock and eggs, and for the price of a setting of eggs, we will insert your Add, 30 words, three times for $2.50.

Come reason together, and remember, every one of Poultry Fanciers subscribers is interested in Poultry, and after all (in advertising). It is the shots that hit the mark that wins the battle.

Off to California

John J. Ritz, our well known Poultryman, Judge, and writer, will leave us for a new home in California, and we are sorry indeed to have him leave us. Mr. Ritz is a well known breeder of land and water fowl, and especially known among the market poultrymen, and duck breeders, and we believe he has raised more market poultry and ducks than any other man in the state. For 15 years he gave his entire time to the market end of the poultry business, and for the past seven years he has taken up the fancy poultry as a side issue, and making his entire living from poultry.

We wish him success in the new country and we feel sure he will, as he has made a success here in the east on several plants and directed others that are a success. His knowledge is practical; he started at the bottom of the ladder, and persevered until he reached the top. He has never told anyone that there was a fortune in raising poultry either for market or fancy, but he has proven time and again that if the business is properly handled that there is one; and on large poultry plants there is big interest on the money invested.

Mr. Ritz has built up several large poultry plants and managed them, also built up the CASTLE GOULD poultry plant on Long Island, which is known as the finest plant in America. He has also visited all the leading poultry farms, North and South, from Maire to California, and is a well known Judge here in the east. His writings will also be missed by the readers of the Poultry Fancier.

LAST CALL FOR THE GREAT "POULTRY FUTURITY STAKES" NOMINATIONS.

The Great Allentown Fair Poultry Futurity Stake nominations will positively close April 1st, as at first announced. Already there are inquiries about this and urgent requests that on account of the severe winter and likelihood that the spring may be late that the date of closing of nominations be extended. This cannot and will not be done and all nominations not bearing post mark before midnight, April 1st, will be returned.

To the list of varieties already published, Barred Rocks, Light Brahmas and Columbian Wyandottes have been added and others will be added if enough interest is evoked.

Due to a stenographical error the rules as printed last month are incorrect; they should have read that every bird nominated if shown, for regular Fair prizes or not, must pay an additional entry or coop rental fee of one dollar on or before September 12th.

Also as an additional safe-guard all birds nominated for their respective stakes must arrive at Allentown wearing a "Futurity Stakes" sealed and numbered leg band, furnished by the Association. All nominated birds not entered in regular competition will have special "Futurity Stake" coop cards posted immediately on arrival. Those in regular competition will have such cards posted immediately after the regular fair judging of each class; all to remain up the balance of the week. (No further change of rules this year for any cause.)

These "Futurity Stakes" at an immense show like Allentown will prove an advertising stunt of the greatest possible value to poultry breeders. The small breeder and even the amateur who buys a good setting of eggs for hatching will have a chance to win one or more of these stakes, rich in both a money and advertising sense. The low fee of $5.00 for White Orpingtons and $2.00 for all other varieties is equivalent to the price of only a cheap setting of eggs and brings the fee within the reach of all.

Remember these are the one and only "Poultry Futurity Stakes" in America, originated by the management of the Great Allentown Fair Poultry Show and to be conducted by them annually hereafter.

Nomination blanks" can be secured from W. Theo. Wittman, Supt., Allentown, Pa., or if in a hurry, from Harry B. Schall, Secretary, Allentown Fair, Allentown, Pa.

DOING THINGS.

The many friends of Howard L. Davis, of New Egypt, N. J., will be pleased to learn that he is building up one of the finest Poultry Plants in that section of the state. Howard reports that his trap nests are in good demand, and that he is working night and day to keep up with the orders.

Howard L. Davis is one of the best known Poultrymen in the country. There are very few people that have not heard of him, and his work in the Poultry Field. Mr. Davis, as our readers well know, formerly conducted the Glenolden Poultry Yards, at Glenolden, Penna., and two years ago, moved to New Egypt, where he started from the ground, to build up a Poultry Plant, and to establish his strain of birds on such quarters, as would meet the demand.

Davis' Leghorns, have a reputation second to none. We have had the pleasure of dealing with Mr. Davis from the very first time the writer went into Poultry Journalism, and during all those many years, we have yet to receive the first complaint against him. Remarkable record indeed. This should be proof conclusive that the readers of Poultry Fancier can patronize Howard L. Davis with absolute safety, and get 100 cents' worth for $1.00.

MEETING AMERICAN WHITE ORPINGTON CLUB.

The annual meeting of the American White Orpington Club was held at Indianapolis, during week of Feb. 5 to 10, in connection with the Exhibition of the Fancier's Association of Indiana. The attendance was larger than at any previous meeting. Report of Secretary showed a good fund in the treasury and a good flourishing condition. 500 new members were enrolled during the past year, making the club membership now over the 1000 mark.

A committee was appointed to confer with the committee of the A. P. A. on standard type of the White Orpingtons. The Secretary was authorized to get out a new club book and all members in arrears of dues are requested to pay up at once, to keep from being left out.

Perfect Hatching by Artificial Means

When an incubator hatches every fertile egg entrusted to its care it may be said to have done perfect hatching. Not only will a strictly first-class modern incubator do this kind of hatching in the case of hen eggs and ducks eggs, but it can be relied on to hatch the eggs of other kinds of domestic fowl and of wild birds equally well. Following are examples of this grade and variety of work, as done by the genuine Standard Cyphers Incubators, manufactured by Cyphers Incubator Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

“Grant M. Curtis, President.
Storrs, Conn., Aug. 14, 1911
“Cyphers Incubator Company, “Buffalo, N. Y.

“My dear Mr. Curtis:—
“For quite a series of years it has been evident to the sportsmen of this state that the supply of native game birds is decreasing with great rapidity. In fact, conditions have reached such a pass that many well posted men feel that there is danger of complete extermination of both quail and partridges.

At the State Agricultural College, Storrs, Conn., the State Game and Fish Commissioners are Hatching Partridge and Quail Eggs very successfully by Artificial Means.

“In view of this fact the State Fish and Game Commissioners have been giving much thought to the problem of restocking the natural covers of the state with these birds. As a result of their investigation on the subject they concluded to attempt artificial propagation, and this work was begun a few months ago. The experiment is being conducted on the grounds of this institution, State Ornithologist H. K. Job, being in charge.

“During the natural breeding season of the partridge several clutches of eggs were secured from nests in the vicinity. In some cases these eggs were practically fresh, while in others they had been partially incubated by the breeding birds. In all fifty-one eggs were secured, and these were placed in one of your small-sized incubators, with the following results:

No. Eggs Set.	No. Eggs Hatched
10 .....	10
12 .....	11
13 .....	13
16 .....	16
51 .....	50

“The work thus far accomplished leads us to believe that in the near future methods of management will be worked out whereby our native game birds can be reared in large numbers under artificial conditions. Very sincerely yours,
F. H. STONEBURN.

In the above four hatches it is correct to say that the work of the incubator was perfect in at least three cases out of four, because in all trials except the second one, the incubator hatched every egg placed in it—three 100 per cent hatches.

Following is a letter that was published in the November, 1910, issue of the “Agricultural Journal of the Cape of Good Hope,” a monthly paper in magazine form issued under the direction of the British Government:

“Sir:—
“Certain it is that some of our most successful breeders as regards numbers of healthy chicks per nest keep their breeding birds under natural conditions as possible and make little or no use of the incubator.”

Ostrich Chicks Hatched in Cyphers Incubators by Roelof B. Kotze, on Ostrich Farm at Middleburg, Cape Province, British South Africa.

“The above is an extraction from the reply of Professor Duerden to Mr. A. G. Erlank of New Bethesda, re. sterility in ostrich eggs, and published in your last issue.

“Out of fairness to the incubator, I am forwarding you the following particulars:

“All our chicks are incubated in Cyphers Incubators and most of the parent birds were also incubated. You will see by our egg record that we have sixteen camps of breeding birds, one cock and two hens to a camp. Of the only fourteen laid; the other two were only mated this year.

“For reasons of our own we separated our birds at the end of September, although you will notice they were mostly all laying well at the time, but of the 603 eggs we hatched 410 chicks, nearly 400 of which are alive and doing splendidly.

“This, in a year when so many are complaining of having few or no chicks, you will admit speaks well for the incubator.

"Altogether out of the 603 eggs laid 430 were fertile, from which we got 410 chicks. Yours truly, ROELOF B. KOTZE.

Ostrich eggs weigh three to four pounds apiece and the shells are one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness. Such eggs are not easy to hatch by artificial means, yet Mr. Kotze reported to the Government Journal of Agriculture that by the use of Cyphers Incubators he hatched 410 ostrich chicks from 430 fertile eggs and the list of six hatches given by him in his letter, contain at least two that represent perfect hatching by artificial means—forty chicks from forty fertile eggs and thirty-seven chicks from thirty-seven fertile eggs.

This Big and Valuable Book is Free to Every Reader of Poultry Fancier who will write Cyphers Incubator Company for it and mention this paper. Two hundred and forty-four pages, 7 1-2 by 10 inches in size. Each copy weighs one pound.

Four hundred and ten ostrich chicks hatched from four hundred and thirty fertile eggs is of itself a great performance. Cyphers Incubators are now being sold in hundred lots to mercantile houses in British South Africa for the use of ostrich plume farmers, in competition with incubators manufactured in England France, Germany, etc.

The following sample report, quoted from page 31 of the Cyphers Company's Complete Catalogue and "Poultry Growers Guide for 1912" shows the kind of work Cyphers Incubators are doing for Cyphers customers in the hatching of ordinary hen eggs:

"Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 8, 1911.
"Cyphers Incubator Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
"Please find below report of chicks I hatched out with my Cyphers Incubator, which speaks for itself regarding the superiority of the machine.—

Eggs Set.	Fertile Eggs.	Chicks Hatched.
240	179	149
223	196	196
208	136	136
244	186	186

"The Cyphers Incubator is self-regulating, requires little attention, and the chicks hatch out strong. My experience with the Adaptable Hover and Cyphers Brooders has been highly satisfactory, although I did not get a chance to hold my chicks long. I could have sold at least two thousand more chicks if I could have supplied them. Yours very truly, ALBERT H. REIDEL, 1221 Forge St."

In four cases out of five, Mr. Reidel obtained a chick from every fertile egg, and these four 100 per cent hatches came one after another, representing at least twelve weeks of perfect hatching by his 244-egg Cyphers.

Cyphers Incubator Company is now distributing the first edition of its big 1912 Catalogue and Poultry Guide, an illustration of which is shown herewith. This truly great book contains 244 pages, 7 1-2 by 10 inches in size and a free copy will be sent postpaid to any reader of these lines who writes for it and mentions seeing the notice of the book in this paper. For list of interesting free chapters and other valuable information in "The Poultry Growers' Guide for 1912," see the Cyphers Company's attractive advertisement on page 252 this issue of The Poultry Fancier.

As a tonic and conditioner, Oculum has a world-wide reputation—so says Miss Cary, the great English fancier. Read her letter—then others.

I cured a case of infectious Canker in a $200 cockerel, followed by the worst case of Chicken Pox I ever saw, with Oculum. I inoculated all of my chicks last year and have seen no evidence of White Diarrhea, and have never had them to grow so rapidly.—OSCAR E. MILES, Columbus, Ohio.

Oculum cured a bunch of chicks that were bad with White Diarrhea. Others of the same bunch that were not treated with Oculum took it and died.—LEROY RICE, Massillon, Ohio.

I consider OCULUM one of the best conditioners and revivers of tired showbirds I have ever come across. I brought my celebrated team of White Orpingtons and White Taverolles all the way from England—three thousand miles—right from a run of the big English shows which started August 14, and on landing inoculated them with OCULUM right off with results. I scored first on (Taverolle) hen, first on cock, first on pen; and in White Orpington, first on cock, third on cockerel and fourth on pen. I think nothing can prove the benefit that results from prompt use of OCULUM better than these results.—MISS S. CARY, Toynton Rectory, Spillsby, England.

Last August I saw Oculum cure a chicken suffering in the last stages of Cholera. I never before had an actual demonstration of any preparation that would cure Cholera in its worst stages.—H. G. HUMPHREYS, President Chattanooga Poultry Association, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Woman and Her Poultry Garb.

The woman who loves poultry has a place to fill in chickendom that cannot be as acceptably occupied by man. Or to say the least, the man will be very glad to have the woman accept the place and fulfil this part of the work. And to the woman comes the recompense outside of the financial revenue of the charm of outdoor exercise, good health, and a peace of mind that cannot be obtained in any indoor occupation, however congenial. And I am speaking from experience in this letter of twelve years, and a profession that was so interesting to me that it seemed I could not be contented without it. I have been obliged to change my mind. And now my fine life on a poultry plant is the ideal one to me. And incidentally can say that an almost chronic throat trouble has entirely left me.

In the poultry yards there is heavy work for the stronger sex to do. But the many little things that a man detests, a woman will take up uncomplainingly, as her work is naturally made up of numerous small tasks, beside the labors of larger dimensions. The little chicks need some one to keep an eye on them, between the time of the regular visits of the poultryman. There are so many accidents that can befall them. I have rescued several chicks from drowning in the water fountain although the space was not larger than needful for them to drink from, yet they would manage in some way to get wedged in there with their head in the water of course. Another time two chicks tried to become "Siamese Twins" by joining themselves together by each swallowing the opposite end of a lengthy string. Another chick was extricated from a knot hole in the board between two pens. It was wedged in so tightly that it must have died from its exertions to free itself if not found in time. And so on, and so on are the dilemmas a baby chick can get into.

Columbian Wyandotte male. Owned and bred by J. K. Clemmer, Souderton, Pa critical times, and other small things that sometimes slip the mind of the busy poultryman often saves expensive disasters.

The feeding and watering of these chicks can be entirely attended to by the woman if desirable.

The gathering of eggs before they become too chilled to use for hatching takes many trips to the laying houses and gives one a "vitalizer" in the open air.

And in the matter of making up breeding pens and selecting show birds, the woman's eye is oft-times quicker to denote the color and proportions if the proper bird. For you know her mind naturally turns to "fine feathers."

HATCH YOUR CHICKENS

With a new 1912 Cycle or Brooder Hatcher. Our new discovery makes poultry keeping easy and profits sure. Our machines were used in the original Philo System Plant where over $1500 from 60 hens in ten months has been cleared from the sale of eggs, baby chicks and fowls. One of the largest plants in America saved over $700 by using our system of brooding. We sell the best brooder ever made for $2.50.

One party hatched and raised $500 worth of poultry last year with four Metal Mothers, and hundreds of others are delighted with our machines and our new way of raising poultry. Our combination machine hatches and broods perfectly at the same time with only one lamp and one-fifth the oil used in other machines. Once filling the lamp completes the hatch. It runs as steadily as a clock in any room, from cellar to garret, and our Long-Burning Safety Lamp runs on for weeks without attention. It is the only machine that airs the eggs in the natural way and applies the heat to chickens like the mother hen.

final decisions, yet she may forward the work by making the first selections.

One of the essentials for the woman to do her work comfortably and healthfully is to don the proper garb.

I have always considered a pair of bloomers to pull on over my skirts as important as the overalls are to the workman. With them one can go to the coops and around over the ground without even soiling the hem of her garment. And then what woman has not been annoyed by the inconvenience of her skirts dropping down in the dirt as she stooped over to do some little act. Or with getting it wet in the dewy grass in the early morning. But with the skirts all safely tucked inside the roomy bloomers a woman feels as free and active as her muscular partner. And this garment need not be immodest or unbecoming. It is made the same as the divided skirt with the hem gathered in with a rubber lacer around each shoe top. And another article that deeply concerns the welfare of the poultry woman is her shoes. They must be something that will keep out the wet and also be comfortable. For who can work or be happy with their feet hurting them?

I have found a pair of sporting boots, high tops and of the moccasin style, to be the most satisfactory. They are made to exclude the water. And even if I want to wade a small stream my feet still remain dry. And I do not have the bother of putting on a pair of overshoes every time I want to step out when it is wet. They are extremely comfortable boots and go well with the bloomer costumes. A jacket of the same material of the bloomers is easily slipped on. Or for colder weather a sweater coat is comfortable and allows one to work easily. Always protect your hands with warm gloves or mittens in cold weather. The fleece-lined leather mittens will keep your hands warmer in extreme cold weather, than gloves although not quite as convenient to work in. Your costume is finished with a broad brimmed hat for summer and a cap for winter. And now you are properly clad to enjoy your poultry occupation.

E. B. Tompson, "Ringlet"

Barred Rock Breeder.

E. B. Tompson! That name sounds good to me and I know it sounds good to lots of other readers of this Journal who owe their success, as Barred Rock breeders, to Mr. Tompson's famous "Ringlets." The name of E. B. Tompson is as familiar in the poultry world as the name of John Wanamaker is in the mercantile world and I believe if the question was put to a vote the honors would be divided about equal. The name "Ringlets" is a household word wherever Barred Rocks are bred and the popularity of this splendid breed of fowls must be very gratifying to Mr. Tompson for he, as no other man knows the price that was paid for the present popularity of his favorite breed. We are satisfied that no monetary consideration could remunerate Mr. Tompson for the nights and days and years spent in producing his "Ringlets." It was the "Joy set before him;" The Fancier's pride that impelled; the victor's glory that thrilled him as he planned, and formed and finally perfected his earlier conceptions of what the Barred Rocks should be, and it is meet indeed, today that Mr. Tompson should reap the well-earned rewards of his life-long efforts. Mr. Tompson's ad appears in its old, familiar place on the top of the back cover page of The Fancier. His catalog is ready for mailing, and it is full of good things for a true fancier. Address E. B. Tompson, Box 444, Amenia, New York.

A Few Facts About the Linfield Poultry Farm, Linfield, Pa., the Home of Poley's "World's Best Buff Plymouth Rocks." By F. D. Sutton.

In this age of the world, the man or men back of any enterprise attracts as much, if not more, attention on the part of those who are interested than the enterprise itself. This is an age of specialists, and he who is able to produce results superior to those of his competitor, will sooner or later command the attention and confidence of his fellow men and receive ample remuneration for his achievements.

The above conclusion has been amply demonstrated at the Linfield Poultry Farms in the production of Poley's World's Best Buff Rocks. This wonderful strain of birds has certainly "come to its own," and we can anticipate, to some degree at least, the true Fancier's satisfaction that must thrill the hearts of both Mr. Myers, the Proprietor, and Mr. Poley, the Manager of the Linfield Farms, over the increasing popularity of their "Buff Beauties" and the enormous business they have created for them in all parts of the world. And let me assure the readers of the Poultry Fancier "there is a reason for it, too;" for Angelo J. Myers is a natural born fancier, a man who prizes friendship and honor above dollars and cents.

The "Poultry Fancy" made dignified history, at a rapid pace, on the day Mr. Myers launched out into the industry and purchased Mr. Poley's entire flock of Buff Rocks, and, with his characteristic business foresight, retained Mr. Poley to manage his poultry interests. It certainly is a great pleasure to welcome a man of Mr. Myers' ability into our ranks, for his name adds prestige to the industry and strengthens the cause to an immeasurable degree. We would that more of similar character and ability could see their way clear to swing into line and help elevate this great industry up to the high level and dignified basis that it should enjoy.

The Linfield Poultry Farm is situated about 35 miles northeast of Philadelphia, on the Phila. & Reading Ry., in one of those "Beauty Spots" and fertile sections which so universally characterizes the course of the Schuylkill River in this section of the State. There are about 100 acres in the Linfield Farm, located high above and overlooking the Schuylkill River, with a gentle slope to the east and south. The location is among the most favorable for a large and profitable Poultry Plant we have ever seen, and we are not at all surprised that Mr. Myers chose this splendid farm for the home of his favorite breed. Mr. Myers' Plant is built on the Colony House plan, with large runs so arranged as to afford shade for his birds any time during the day. There is abundance of grass in all runs, with ample room for any amount of exercise the birds may require. Each house is 16x24 feet and constructed along the most convenient and up-to-date lines. Plenty of sunshine, plenty of fresh air, no draughts, lots of good, clean litter on the floors, insuring plenty of exercise when the birds are confined to the houses, cleanliness evident on every hand, the highest quality of feed. No wonder "Poley's World's Best Buff Rocks" are contented with their lot in life, and develop into birds of such hardiness, high quality and size, and command the highest prices of any Buff Rocks in the world.

Columbian Wyandotte female— Owned and bred by J. K. Clemmer, Souderton, Pa.

Since visiting the Linfield Poultry Farm I have often wondered why it was that Buff Rock fanciers wait for the show season, travel long distances to large Poultry Shows, put up "big hard earned dollars" at fancy-priced hotels for a place to rest their heads for the night, live on "indigestion" through the day-time, at premium prices, just to feast their eyes on a "few" good buff birds, when, on the other hand, they could take a "pleasure ride" over to the Linfield Farm, sleep on good, clean, "gratis," beds, feast on viands that would attract the hungry "Old Gods of the Ancients to far off distant lands" and revel for days among a class of birds, that for quality and numbers, no show room in all the world could duplicate. For the very birds that made the Buff Rock Alley Famous in many of our largest shows sport over the poultry playgrounds of the Linfield Farm.

The Brooder house on Mr. Myers' plant is uniqueness itself. It is another evidence of Mr. Poley's ability as a poultryman. The idea originated with him and the wisdom of the idea is very evident to all who have had the good fortune to inspect it. No wonder chicks cared for under such conditions as exist on The Linfield Poultry Farm thrive from the moment they are hatched, on down throughout the various stages of development, until their beauty is intensified in the show room with a crown of "Blue."

Contagious diseases, thus far, have never appeared on this Plant, and every bird from one end of the Farm to the other stands out preeminently as a convincing witness of what hygienic methods and scientific breeding will accomplish on any poultry plant of either large or small proportions. Another fact that greatly impressed the writer while at this plant was that the question of utility had not been forgotten. Egg production was in evidence in every pen we visited, and we were careful to visit and inspect every pen on the Linfield Farm. Mr. Poley, the able and congenial manager of the Linfield Poultry Farm, and originator of "Poley's World's Best Buff Rocks," is one of the most widely known and popular poultrymen of this present age. Previous to the year 1884, Mr. Poley had been breeding a number of varieties, including Wyandottes, Leghorns and Brahmans, but about this date he began to realize the future popularity and great possibilities of the Buff Plymouth Rock as a show bird and utility fowl. Consequently he disposed of his other varieties and began to specialize with this one breed. That was 28 years ago, and the results John W. Poley has accomplished with his favorite breed reads almost like a romance. It would take pages, and a more skillful pen than mine, to depict the discouragements he encountered, the difficulties he overcame during those long years through which he struggled on to the final goal. But John Poley was a stranger to defeat; the blood of a real fancier coursed through his veins; he was determined to win. Win he must! Win he did! And today "Poley's World's Best Buff Rocks" stand as a living exponent of his true worth to the poultry industry. Angelo J. Myers and John W. Poley—a splendid combination of brains and grit; of keen insight and business integrity. They have a right to succeed and The Fancier esteems it a favor to record their success.

Single Comb White Leghorns Indian Runner Ducks

Day old Chicks      Eggs for Hatching and Stock

The finished product of years of careful breeding and mating. Our strains represent an amalgamation of America's best strains. Why lose time and money in experimenting. We have done that for you, and to-day we are offering you the finished product. Vitality is our strong point. It is not a question of how many chicks you buy. It is how many you raise that means your success.

MANY YEARS OF SKILLED LABOR & THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS HAVE BEEN SPENT IN PRODUCING AND PERFECTING THE "SUNSWICK STRAIN" OF SINGLE COMB BUFF, BLACK AND WHITE ORPINGTONS,—ALSO BUFF AND BLUE ORPINGTON DUCKS.

Sunswick stock has been tried and tested, and proved champion; we produce our own winners, they are not bought ready made for the show room, our birds will reproduce themselves in kind, and breed winners for our customers, as well as for Sunswick.

GOOD STOCK.

GREAT STOCK.

For generations the SUNSWICK birds have been scientifically line bred, therefore you can depend on the result of your hatches.

A great number of the winners at the largest shows come from the SUNSWICK stock and eggs.

Do you ask why we breed our winners? This is the reason; our foundation STOCK was GRAND, their scientific care and line breeding has been grander still and the results have been the GRANDEST thing of all. Our birds have the blood lines to make WINNERS and what is more the strength to hand it on.

Grand Breeding and Exhibition Stock for Sale

Eggs for hatching at $20.00, $10.00 and $5.00 per setting. Colony eggs by the 100, $25.00 and $15.00. Send for our free Catalogue and Mating List; they are instructive reading. We are at your service night and day. Write at once, do not delay, orders are rushing.

Monongehala, Pa., Awards.

It is gratifying to know that one of the most successful Poultry Fanciers' Shows ever held in Pennsylvania ended at Monongehala, Pa., Feb. 3, 1912, it being the first Show. Everything went off with Flying Colors and not a thing was left open to make the Show anything but a success. Due credit must be given the officers of the Association, as everything pertaining to advertising was done, which proves advertising pays. The officers of the Association are: W. S. Shepler, President; W. C. Shipe, Secretary; G. Allen Sonick, Vice-President; Thomas Roy, Asst. Secretary; Theodore Landefeld, Treasurer; J. A. Keeney, Chairman Show Committee; T. W. Hetherington, Supt. of Exhibits; Joseph Marshall, Second Asst. Supt. of Exhibits; Fred W. Foster, Supt. of Pigeon Dept.; The show was cooped by the Standard Cooping Co., Wooster, Ohio, M. F. Crow, Supt. The Judges of Exhibitions were W. F. Anerswald of Wannarsville, Pa., C. R. Mohn, Freedom, Pa.

Nearly 100 birds were entered this year. Next year the Association will have larger accommodations and will surprise all.

Crowther's Reds Have won

I do not need a Page ad. to impress the significance of this statement. What Red breeder today can deliver to you the valuable results of nine years of careful line breeding? My systematic breeding has made possible some of the most wonderful birds and greatest winnings in the history of Reds.

No matter where any breeder has won nor how large an ad. he uses to tell you, you can rest assured there are NO BETTER REDS ON EARTH THAN "ARISTOCRATS."

I have prepared a booklet titled "FAMOUS REDS I HAVE PRODUCED." fully describing my strain and showing many photographs of these famous birds. It is as valuable as a Standard; it shows the leading type of the World. This booklet, with my mating list fully describing over 20 SUPERB MATINGS for 1912 egg season WILL BE MAILED FREE.

"TWO OF A KIND"

TWO OPEN AIR HOVERS

Nature AND Close-to-Nature

BIRD LIFE DEMANDS OPEN AIR--THE CLOSE-TO-NATURE BROODERS GIVE IT

Bird Life Demands Open Air. Close-to-Nature Brooders Give it.

Contact Warmth Like the Old Hen—Plenty of Fresh Air—No Over-Crowding. Give chicks these three things with sanitary conditions and you can raise every chick in flocks of 100 to 300. Close-to-Nature Brooders and Hovers keep the chicks close to nature and they live and thrive.

It is natural for chicks to get their warmth by coming in contact with a warm body. Habit and heredity for several thousand years have made this the case. But Hot Air or Furnace Heat is Not Natural. It dries out, weakens, and finally destroys them.

Chicks in Close-to-Nature Brooders nestle their backs against a warm body that perfectly simulates the broody hen. They breathe fresh, gently warmed air,—not hot air,—hot air kills.

The Close-to-Nature is an elongated narrow contact warmth hover,—both ends of a hover five feet long equally warmed. It is revolutionizing the artificial heat brooder business. Free catalog on Close-to-Nature Brooders.

NIXON'S WHITE WYANDOTTES

Do not be confused with glowing claims! Stop and consider closely these essential points. Who has bred White Wyandottes for 20 years? Who has won highest honors at Madison Square Garden? Who has an Egg record of 210 eggs in one year? Who has judged White Wyandottes at Madison Square, Philadelphia, etc.? Who has sold winners for twelve or more shows this season? Why Nixon has done all this and don't you think he is able to serve you? My matings have never been finer, so place your orders for eggs or stock with the man who has made good. Literature for the asking. Write today.

Our 1912 matings of Columbians are just as good and as well bred as any. The females are bred from noted prize-winners, and male a direct descendant of the Madison Square winners. A typical Wyandotte.

Our Barred Rocks need no introduction. Eggs very reasonable. Correspondence a pleasure. Satisfaction and fertility guaranteed.

Poultry Meeting at Plainfield, N. J.

The first annual meeting of the New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement was held January 2, in Plainfield, and was largely attended. Many new applicants took advantage of the privilege of enrolling as charter members and the association has now enough in numbers to insure its success in every way. Interest in this meeting centered in the election of officers, who would pilot the newly launched craft in the ensuing year.

The following are the gentlemen who will be at the helm: President, Sydney R. Clarke, of Scotch Plains; vice-president, R. S. McAfee, of Plainfield; treasurer, R. G. Slorah, of Plainfield; secretary, J. H. Kimball, of Westfield; assistant secretary, Hilary Watts, of Westfield.

The executive committee consists of W. H. Tavner, of Westfield; chairman, F. T. McInerney, of Plainfield; Joseph Nesler, of Scotch Plains; R. H. Armstrong, of Dunellen, and C. G. Shafer, of Cranford.

The meeting was a most harmonious one as well as very enthusiastic and certainly the new association can consider itself very fortunate in securing so worthy a man as Mr. Clarke for its president. He struck the keynote of approval when he promised, with the hearty co-operation of all, to make this association, just what its name implies. Mr. Clarke's strong personality with his beautiful manner, combined with a liking for work in the poultry world, will surely reap its reward in the good work he is bound to do.

Then again just look at that executive board, who will have plenty to do. They all look good to the boys. Each and all expert poultry raisers and fine fellows, they will render a good account of their stewardship. The pleasant and affable chairman can always be found ready with some new innovation.

The newly elected officers had barely been congratulated before Mr. Joseph Weaver, of Plainfield, presented a document that will cause some of the sleepy old style associations to sit up and listen. This was in the nature of a pledge that each member will have to take if he wants the association to stand back of good dealing, and it goes without saying that it will receive the unanimous approval of every member.

A stamp will be used on all eggs either for hatching or market produce. It will give the date laid, and any one showing eggs bought from a member that do not come up to promises will have their money refunded. This document contains all the good features for which this association was formed and will be issued in the form of a pamphlet on the back of which will be the names of the members together with the breed of chickens they keep.

The new association also has adopted resolutions whereby they become a vigilance committee to see that all chicken thieves are apprehended and punished as such contemptible meanness deserves.

Resolutions were adopted regretting the departure of Joseph Gray, the former president. He will still retain membership, but as one of the founders and enthusiasts he will be missed. However, it was the association that helped Joe get his new job as poultryman at Millington for a big estate.

Mr. Pratt, of Mountainside, a new member, was visited by the evil sneak or sneaks and robbed of a flock of some beautiful White

BLACK LANGSHANS

Summit and Black Diamond-Strains have stood the test for more than a quarter of a century and have rightly and justly won the reputation of The Best in America. Winners at Madison Square, Grand Central Palace Red Bank and Philadelphia, unquestionably the largest and best flock of Black Langshans on the American Continent.

AS EGG PRODUCERS

The Black Langshans have always been considered the greatest of all winter layers. They can stand more cold weather and endure more hardships than any other breed and they lay during weather when other breeds will not. They lay a large, brown egg of superior flavor and my strains have been bred for heavy laying since their foundation.

AS SHOW BIRDS

They need no introduction. The Summit and Black Diamond strains of which I am now the sole owner, have won many blue ribbons in all parts of the land and will during the season of 1912. Their unmatched record at Grand Central Palace, Madison Square and Philadelphia substantiate the statement of the best in America. I can furnish you

SHOW BIRDS THAT CAN WIN—BREEDERS THAT WILL PRODUCE THEM

Let me quote you prices on these Langshans. The breed that has come to the front with leaps and bounds; all because they deserve it; new varieties boomed by extensive advertising flourished for a while but the Langshans has stood the test of the most severe kind and as for beauty, stateliness and productiveness both for eggs and meat they are unmatched wins at Grand Central Palace Show.

Rocks. He offers $25 for arrest and conviction.

"Barry" Dallas joined the club and stands ready for producing a big string of games for the big show next winter.

Mr. Lightfoot of Cumberland street saw the need of introducing new blood and improving his stock and so bought one of Hilary Watts' Barred Rock cockerels.

Maybe "Bob" Armstrong is not there with some witty and pertinent talk on the need of good poultry. The association was mighty lucky to get the big breeder from Dunellen, who has always brought home the "blue" with his Minorcas.

W. H. Tavenor has reported some good sales. He has a dandy booklet out that shows he has been putting in some time with the pen and ink.

Now that Mr. Affleck is ensconced in the new town government he can devote more time to the good of the association. Charlie is a good member and has some fine birds.

E. J. Snyder, one of the pioneer breeders of Leghorns, and who had a big plant at Scotch Plains, has fallen into the Orpington swim and has some fine youngsters out being groomed for the early shows.

Prof. Lewis of the Experimental Station, at New Brunswick gave a chicken talk at Elizabeth last week. Messrs. Tavenor, Shafer, Watts and Kimball went down in Mr. Tavenor's machine and were greatly pleased and benefitted. Mr. Walter B. Rich was also there. Prof. Lewis lectured on breeding and to the beginner it was very instructive, however, the neophytes don't want to follow the books too closely. You have got to teach yourself by the old master, experience. It's all very well to see these things in print and listen to the mathematical provisions for insuring success. But just the same you can't feed young chickens on quadratic equations and expect to avoid smutty undercolor. The cube root of housing never improved type and we want to see each and every person that starts raising poultry to have the Standard of Perfection in sight and have the general and best of utility in the laying as well as market value combined with all the salient and essential qualifications of the show bird.

Mr. P. A. Cook, of the originators of all Orpingtons, will join the new association. This gentleman is probably the ablest judge of Orpingtons in the world. He knows every way to look for the weak points and his comprehensive knowledge coupled with a ready, quick thinking brain, makes him the ideal judge. His grand work at the Elizabeth show will not soon be forgotten. The highest encomium of praise that can be bestowed on "Percy" is that the real good breeders like to have him handle their birds, while the breeder with the scrubs dread to see him pick out their stock from the cage.

"It's the greatest show in point of numbers and quality and most costly birds that Wilkes-Barre has ever had." This was the expression of John C. Kriner of Stetlersville.

The show surpasses by far the fondest expectations of the local association which was only reorganized a few months ago. There are almost a thousand birds in competition, not including the big exhibition displayed by Judge Kriner in the rarer varieties.

S. C. BUFF LEGHORN CLUB.

On December 21st, 1911, during the Madison Square Garden New York Show the National S. C. Buff Leghorn Club was organized with the following officers: L. E. Merrihew, Marathon, N. Y., president; J. C. Punderford, Freneau, N. Y., vice-president; Thos. Peer, Caldwell, N. J., secretary-treasurer. The executive Committee: Rodney Knapp, Binghamton, N. Y., Wm. H. Heil, Easton, Pa., and B. Y. Evans of Little Silver, N. Y. The nucleus of this Club, whose purpose it will be to advance the interest of the Buff Leghorn fowl, were ten members who withdrew from the American Buff Leghorn Club because of dissatisfaction with the manner in which that club has been conducted. The officers of the National S. C. Buff Leghorn Club are well known and experienced breeders. They desire the co-operation of all who are interested in advancing the interests of Buff Leghorns. Communications should be addressed to Secretary Thos. Peer.

THE feed mixing problem is solved. For many years the poultrymen have needed a feed mixer that was a real mixer. Now there is one. There have been no less than four different types tried on the famous Afton Poultry Farm and their Mr. Twining pronounces the one shown in the illustration the best he has ever used and all he could ask for. He has given it a thorough try-out and knows of what he speaks.

Because of the part Afton Farm has played in the perfecting of this mixer, and because of the further fact that it has done so much toward making Afton Farm more profitable, the machine bears the name

"Afton Farm" Feed Mixer

The value and economy of home mixed feeds is well known to poultrymen. Why pay the extra price for ready mixed feeds when you can mix your own cheaper, better, and have it fresher? "Afton Farm" Feed Mixer is metal throughout, and will last a life time. It is as simple as a scoop shovel. It mixes more thoroughly and blends the feed much better than is possible to do by hand. With an "Afton Farm" Mixer, one man can mix as much as three men can by hand. It thoroughly blends both dry and moist mashes. It is a grain saver and a labor saver. When you know that it reduces your cost of feed mixing two-thirds; and it saves a large per cent. of the feed bill; and that it makes the feed more palatable and easier digested, you will realize that you can not afford to be without one. It is made in capacities of 15 qts., 75 qts. and 150 qts. Larger sizes for poultrymen and dairymen made to order.

With our 50c booklet, "Feed Formulas" given as a premium with each mixer, and an "Afton Farm" Feed Mixer every poultryman can be a successful feeder.

Write today for special inducement to one man in each community to introduce the "Afton Farm" Feed Mixer.

Golden Laced Wyandottes

Their record at Madison Square, the greatest show in all America has never been equalled or approached. This means they have no superiors in quality. As to beauty they are conceded to be the most handsome of thorough fowls. As to egg producers they lay under such conditions that other varieties would not.

As to meat, they stand alone without a peer. The Ideal Fowl for the suburban estate, the backyard, poultryman and the Fancier. Hundreds of grand birds for sale -- EGGS at reasonable prices

Wilmington, Delaware Show By J. W. Morrow.

There was held at Wilmington, Del., Jan. 23-27, by the Diamond State Poultry Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, the best poultry show ever held in this city. This is one of the oldest poultry organizations any where, and they continue each year to give a better show than the preceding one.

All exhibitors who fail to accompany their birds to this show miss a treat. Every one is made to feel at home and depart with the desire to return again.

The display of ornamental land and water fowl by Mrs. Alfred I. DuPont attracted much attention, and added greatly to the beauty of the show and was highly appreciated by all.

The exhibit of White Wyandottes by Samuel Little, of Newark, Del., whose ad. appears in the Fancier, certainly proved he has the stock, as did also the Barred Rocks of Wm. Moore, of Marshallton, Del. His ad. is in this month's Fancier.

Bouthbrook Farm, of Edge Moor, Del., as usual had a large exhibit of Orpingtons; and many other exhibitors, if space would allow, could be mentioned, that have exhibited birds at this show year after year always feeling they get a square deal here.

The following awards speak for themselves.

A. J. FELL'S FAMOUS White Wyandottes

At the imperial show of America, MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Winter of 1911, win as follows: 1st and 3rd prize cock, 2nd and 4th prize hen, 3rd, 4th and 6th prize cockerel, 1st and 3rd prize pullet, 1st exhibition pen.

My exhibit was one of the greatest ever seen at Madison Square Garden, every bird having that snow white color, with grand Wyandotte type. My birds are noted for their short broad backs, wide spread tails, full round breasts, with fine head points and are second to none in the world. Five first prizes in two years showing at MADISON SQUARE GARDEN is White Wyandotte history.

Fifteen grand pens mated. Eggs for hatching. Mating list ready Feb. 1st.

MITCHELL STRAIN

My hobby, "Highest Grade Birds only." Among my winnings this year in Partridge Cochins, not counting a clean sweep at minor shows, are Allentown, 2-3-4 cock, 2-3-4 hen. Trenton 1-2 cock, 1-2-3 hen. Male takes special for best Cochin shown. Haggerstown 2-4 cock, 1-2-3 hen. 1st hen takes special for best bird in Asiatic class and special for best female Cochin shown. Note, that the above awards in these three shows were taken by right different females. Last season at Philadelphia took 1-2 cock, 2-4 hen, and 1st on pullet; at Baltimore 1-2 cock, 1-2-3 hen, 1 pullet. Philadelphia 1-2-3 cock, 2-3-4 hen, 3 ckl, 1 hen, 1-2 pen. My only exhibit in light Brahmās so far as Trenton, where five single entries took four blues. No stock in Partridge Cochins for sale until after the big shows. In Light Brahmās I have some fine yearling cocks and hens to spare.

HOW "TYCOS" THERMOMETERS ARE TESTED FOR ACCURACY.

The process of manufacture of some of our most useful and important articles of every-day life and work, makes a most interesting story, largely because we grow accustomed to the use and reliance upon that article without giving a thought to the painstaking, careful performance of a multitude of little details in its making, but each one of which is necessary to the reliability, permanency and accuracy of the instrument.

For illustration, if we could go through the factory where the famous "TYCOS" Incubator Thermometer is made, and could see the operators at work, in one process after another, from the selection of the glass to the final shipping of the finished, guaranteed instrument, including filling of the tube, "pointing," graduating the scale, testing, etc., many of us who incubate poultry would have an increased respect for this little "heart of the thermometer", upon whose truthfulness the success of our hatch depends.

After the little tube has been filled with mercury, sealed and laid away to "season, so that it may become permanently accurate; after it is taken out of its many months of "aging" in the big vaults, and the scale has been fitted and it has been assembled for packing and shipping; after being tested through all these processes of actual manufacture to make sure of accuracy, it would seem that it might be a perfectly safe instrument to intrust one's eggs to but even there the manufacturers of "TYCOS" Thermometers will not allow their instruments to go out upon the market without one final test to determine if each and every thermometer for incubator use will perform exactly as it should when put to actual incubation use.

To make this final test, the TAYLOR INSTRUMENT COMPANIES have made at great expense an air-tight, electrical testing apparatus, capable of maintaining an even temperature for an indefinite period of time. This apparatus is illustrated in the above reproduction from an actual photograph of the machine being filled with "TYCOS" Incubator Thermometers, preparatory to a "test."

It is arranged with a double deck for holding a quantity of "TYCOS" Incubator Thermometers, and is fitted with glass doors and windows, for the careful observation of all stages of the test, as any draft of outside air would disturb the temperature of the inside chamber. A Standard "TYCOS" Thermometer is located in the chamber and as the heat of the chamber increases, this instrument is closely watched until the temperature is shown to be 105 degrees Fahrenheit, or HIGH incubating temperature.

The temperature is held at this degree for a short period, while the registration of the thermometers to be tested are observed, after which it is reduced to 103 deg. F. or correct incubation temperature. This is continued until all the thermometers in the case have had ample time to register and demonstrate their accuracy under actual incubating conditions.

This testing machine is in line with the policy of the TAYLOR INSTRUMENT COMPANIES, that their instruments must show efficiency under actual working conditions.

This new "TYCOS" Incubator Thermometer Testing apparatus is so perfectly made that undoubtedly a fine hatch of chicks could actually be made in it, the same as in any of the high grade incubators now equipped and furnished with the "TYCOS" Incubator Thermometer. The conditions of temperature within the machine are identical with those of an incubator, so that the thermometer is subjected to actual practice before being sold to dealer or consumer.

Thermometers are delicate and sensitive instruments and in appearance there is little to choose between a good thermometer and one that is entirely unreliable, as the characteristics which make a thermometer dependable are not those features which the eye can judge. Consequently the maker's name and reputation is the consumer's best guide in selecting a thermometer. For Sixty Years the TAYLOR INSTRUMENT COMPANIES have been foremost in the manufacture of thermometers and their "TYCOS" brand is known for reliability and accuracy the world over.

This testing apparatus for the testing of the "TYCOS" Incubator Thermometer is only one of the "safeguards" with which they surround the poultry raiser, using the "TYCOS" Thermometer. No process which will insure greater accuracy, permanency or reliability is considered too expensive, too costly in production or unnecessary by these manufacturers. Every detail of making is with their "war-cry" in mind:—"Taylor Thermometers Tell the Truth—"TYCOS" is their Sterling Mark."

An interesting booklet on the making of "TYCOS" Thermometers for incubators, "TYCOS" Incubator Thermometer Facts Worth Knowing" may be had from the TAYLOR INSTRUMENT COMPANIES, Rochester, N. Y., upon request.

Helps to Make Advertising Pay

By J. E. Willmarth, Amityville, New York.

In nearly every Poultry Paper that we look through we can pick out one or more advertisements that we are sure do not pay the advertiser. Not long ago we saw a very attractive advertisement, nicely displayed, and setting forth the good qualities of the stock for sale, but the advertiser seemed to think that he had the only kind of poultry there was in this country, for he failed entirely to state what variety he was advertising. This was a four inch advertisement in a popular Poultry paper, and the space must have cost him quite a sum. But we do not believe that he received one inquiry from it; for it would be one with a surplus of curiosity and patience who would look this advertiser up to see if he were breeding the kind the reader wished to purchase.

ous as possible. The reader does not care what your name is. He wants to know if you have the kind he is looking for, and if you can convince him in your Ad. that you have what he wants, you are pretty sure of getting an inquiry from him. Having done this, you can rightfully expect nothing further from the advertisement or the publication in which it appears. They have done their duty in that inquirer's case. Now it's "up to you" to sell him what he wants. We say the last half dozen word advisedly, for while one may be a good enough salesman to sell one something that he does not want, that is poor policy if we are expecting any repeat orders.

Having received the inquiry, answer it just as soon as you possibly can, and if he asks any specific questions, answer

S. C. White Leghorn male. 1st at Hughesville show. Owned, bred and exhibited by B' Monroe Posten, Hughesville, Pa.

The above is an exceptionally bad case of advertising, but there are several others that are not as good as they might be. The one style that is wrong, that we most often see, is where the breeder's name is very prominent, while we have to hunt around to find what he is breeding or advertising, for the name of his variety is set up in smaller type, when it should be the reverse.

Practically every reader is a breeder of some variety or thinks of starting with poultry, and has made up his mind what kind he wishes to start with. If a beginner, he will look through the Poultry papers for the Advertisements of the kind he wants, and he will see nothing else. He will not stop to see what kind you are breeding, no matter how prominent you make your name; but every advertisement that names his favorite breed will be carefully read. So make the name of your breed conspicthem also to the best of your ability, even though they have no direct bearing on the subject. Every inquirer generally writes to several breeders at the same time, and if you wait from a week to a month before you answer him, some other fellow will probably have sold him some stock before he gets your letter. A prompt reply creates confidence and gives the impression that you attend to your affairs in a business manner. Most inquirers put off purchasing birds until they need them and, having received a prompt reply from you, will naturally presume that you will be just as prompt in shipping any stock that they may order from you.

This is a mail order business. Look at the large mail order houses' advertisements. They make all kinds of inducements to get people to send for their catalogue or write them. They are successful concerns, and it's a good idea to follow their system. Don't ask inquirers to send you stamps, and don't be afraid of a Post Card inquiry. We even know breeders who will not take trouble to reply to a Post Card inquiry, yet they spend good money in advertising. We consider this a case of "a Fool and his money soon parted." As stated above, nearly every inquirer writes to several breeders at the same time, and a postal saves both money and time, and the fellow who does not answer these Postals certainly will not get their orders.

In your Advertisement you can tell what kind you are breeding and tell something about their quality, but space is too expensive to go much further than this, as an over-crowded Ad. is seldom read. The inquiry is all you can expect from the Advertisement, and it is hardly practical to write fully to every inquirer telling all about your stock, how they are bred, what they have won, and how you have pleased other purchasers of your stock. A circular is necessary to do all this.

Like in some advertisements so it is in many circulars. Much space is entirely wasted. We even received a circular from one party in which he stated that he was breeding the best of stock and that they came from good strain. This took up one-half of his circular. The other half was devoted to jokes. This is "the limit" in business circulars.

If you are a beginner and have done some winning, give a list of these in your circular, and also state what strain you are breeding, and state on what terms you will do business. You can not go much further than this. Do not "fill up" with matter that has no bearing on the subject. If you have been breeding a few years, and made sales, and have some testimonials from pleased customers, include these in your circulars. Don't "hide your light under a bushel," even though it be but a small candle; but don't get the idea that this "Candle" is an "are light" and that it is your duty to light up the world of your favorite breed, for your light will probably come to an untimely end if you do.

PEAPACK FARM

WHITE ROCKS

International champions. Winners at Americas great shows as well as Crystal Palace. Send for mating list.

Peapack Farm - Peapack, N.J.

I began breeding this variety because I was confident that there was more money to be made with them than any other variety in America, and because I believed them to be the best all around fowl in the world, as a white fowl is a great favorite and the Rose Comb the preference among American people. The S. C. White Orpingtons have made a big run during the past few years. They have obtained this position for themselves through merit as layers and for rapid maturity. The R. C. Whites are destined to do equally as well for the same reason.

There is another reason why Rose Comb Whites are destined to make a place for themselves. The new standard calls for a few years they would be where the Single Combs are to-day. Get in line now and you will soon be in the front ranks as their popularity is increasing by leaps and bounds and the outlook for them in a financial sense is most promising. I would insist that every admirer of the R. C. White Orpingtons would join our club, which is now forming, and send $1.00 to the Secretary, Milton W. Brown, of Cincinnati, O. Several of the largest Orpington breeders of this country have taken them up and a strong club is promised, which will mean a great deal to the ones that start with them now. Every breeder I had correspondence with stated a short back in the Wyandottes, which means decreased egg production and this will lead to the ruin of the breed. I receive many letters from prominent White Wyandotte breeders stating that they are ready to drop their favorites and take up the Rose Comb White Orpington, which variety comes nearest to their favorite in appearance of any breed. I have found the R. C. Whites mature as rapidly as the S. C. and they lay considerably better than the average Single Combs. Their greatest advantage over their S. C. cousins is their close fitting comb. A frosted comb means to check the egg production, and this has never happened any of my R. C. Just lately I received a letter from one of the largest breeders of Single Comb Orpingtons in America, stating he never saw the like the way his Rose Comb Whites were laying. This variety he has just taken up, and he also stated that in they could not near furnish the demand. Since my winnings at New York, Boston, Williamsport, Allentown and Hagerstown shows I have gotten many letters inquiring for stock and eggs. Those who have seen my matings for this spring in R. C. White Orpingtons are extremely enthusiastic over them. They have the size, type and color of the S. C. standard. I know of no fowl so well adapted to the town-dweller, the Fancier or the beginner. When it comes to beauty, there is no nicer fowl raised. Their white plumage, white legs, red comb, wattles and face make them attractive. I believe it would be impossible to produce a better all around purpose fowl. In my opinion they are the long looked for fowl to fill the vacancy in the poultry world, and I believe they will have one of the greatest booms any fowl ever had, which they most justly deserve.

"Crystal" White Orpington 1st pullet (8 lbs), Scranton, Pa '19'2. 2nd Williamsport, Pa. Dec. 1911. Owned and bred by John C. Peifer, Danville, Pa.

Ouz Friend the Belgian Hare

By J. McCulley, North Lewisburg, Ohio.

For a number of years past we have seen headed "Poultry and Pet Stock Asso." and "Poultry and Pet Stock Show," and gentle reader you would be surprised if you only knew how many there are who are interested in the Pet Stock department. And it is growing by leaps and bounds, especially the rabbit side of the question.

Who of us did not stop and admire the little beauties of Red Belgians or his larger clumsy brother, the Flemish Giant, and why? If you happened to have the children there did you notice that the rest of the show had lost its interest for them? The love of Pets and those Pet animals is born in children. They will take more interest in a pair of rabbits than in a whole flock of chickens, and if one boy in the town should be fortunate enough to own a pair of rabbits see how soon every other boy wants some also, and he generally gets them, for, with proper care and attention, I do not know of any thing else that he can get more pleasure and profit from. The rabbit craze is spreading rapidly through all sections of the country; people are becoming as never before, and there must be a reason for all this; and when they are more fully understood you will find as many raising them as you now find raising poultry. Once eaten, if prepared right, you find nothing else that will take their place.

The raising of these little fellows is very profitable, much more so than poultry, for they can be raised and do well in limited quarters. It does not take such a fat pocket book to start in the business. A trio may be purchased from most any reliable breeder for about $5 and off of this trio you should easily raise $30 worth a year. It is true that they don't lay eggs; neither do they get the gaps; their combs don't freeze nor do they die with the roup. You are not bothered feeding the little ones from the day they are hatched. The mother looks after them until they are about three weeks old. All you have to do is to feed her well on oats, bread and milk and clover hay; if in summer, some green feed is relished, but you must be careful when the little ones commence to eat or they will eat too much of it and it will give them the slobbers. This is caused by them eating too much before they can properly chew it or digest same. Do not neglect to have plenty of fresh water around her at this time as she is very thirsty. Keep her pen clean at all times. This pen can be a store box three feet by four feet, and eighteen inches high, with some pigeon wire in front, all of which can be purchased for fifty cents.

They can come in zero weather same as the Fourth of July, and can be saved if taken care of and properly looked after. The box should be in a barn or shed in the winter time. You can not raise them in the rain and mud. They must be kept dry to do well. There is not a city lot but what you can have your rabbit box and raise what you wish to

GREEN & KAPLE'S Royal Columbian Plymouth Rocks

Again Outclass All Competitors

At America's premier exhibition, BOSTON, JANUARY 1912, where the annual meeting of The American Columbian Plymouth Rock Club was held, which brought out the best birds from all sections, North, East, South and West, our "Royals" on six entries simply out-classed all competitors by winning:

1st cock, 1st and 6th cockerel, 1st pen, 2nd pullet and 3rd hen. Cash sweepstake special for best display, cash special for best cockerel in the class; Silver Cup for best surface colored male and the President's cash special for the best Columbian Plymouth Rock in the show, male or female.

Also the beautiful specials offered by the American Columbian Plymouth Rock Club for best shaped male and best colored male.

A grand total of more first prizes than all other competitors combined; double the number of Special Prizes of any other exhibitor and every First and Special Prize offered on males.

This great Championship record stands alone and unequalled—an achievement that has never been approached by any other Columbian Plymouth Rock exhibitor in the history of the Boston Show, and proves beyond all question of doubt the superiority of our "Royal Strain" and substantiates the fact that they still remain undisputed champions.

Our birds possess quality in every sense that the term implies. Excellent layers, large in size, typical Rock type, fine head points and the clean "Royal" color, free from the smoky, splashed effect in body and fluff feathering that is so undesirable.

EGGS FOR HATCHING

Our breeding pens for 1912 have been mated with great care. They not only contain the sons and daughters of our "Royal" Champions, but are headed by noted sires themselves. From these we will sell eggs at $10.00 per 15 and we urge every Columbian Rock fancier who appreciates extreme high quality to write us before purchasing elsewhere. Other breeders may sell you eggs for less money but when you buy of us you secure quality that cannot be duplicated. Descriptive circular free.

eat if you do not care to raise them for profit.

One thing we think is hardly fair. We see in the different poultry papers the list of awards of the poultry and pet stock shows. The poultry winners are there but how many of you have looked at the end of the list and looked in vain for the winnings in the rabbit or pet stock line. You do not see it, and then you lay the paper down with a feeling of disappointment and say it does not pay to monkey with them; there is no one interested in them. The boy or girl who is raising them wants to see who else is in the business also, and if he sees the awards this year he will get his hares ready and see what he can do next. We have been attending shows for several years past and have heard this expression more than once. "Why I have better rabbits than that at home." So my advice to all of you is, take what you have to your next show and see what you can do. If you happen to be beaten ask your judge where you fell down, and next time look out for that.

Disqualifications for Red Belgians are: lop or fallen ear, wry or crooked tail, dew lap or a roll of fat under the chin.

As this was our first introduction to you, we will say we have been a successful breeder for the past ten years and should we come again we will try and tell you how to avoid some of the mistakes that have caused us to lose a few of our little friends, and they are our friends, for if you have no love for them, only from a financial standpoint, you will fail and have no luck raising them.

Hatching and Breeding Chicks

By J. H. Snyder, Arona, Pa.

Now as it is about time for us all to start our Incubators for another season of Hatching I will try and give some hints and instructions as to same. First, be sure your incubator is thoroughly clean. Disinfect it with some good solution. We usually take Carbolic Acid, only a small amount, and add Creoline, and go over your machine thoroughly in every crack and crevice. By so doing you should be able to get a larger hatch of chicks and also destroy all germs of White Diarrhoea.

After we have the chicks we come to the most difficult part, that of raising them to maturity. This will require your closest study, and also time on your part. Have your brooder heated up to about 95 degrees. Take the chicks and put them into the brooder. I will give you our method. We use a hover, This we cleanse very carefully and put it in a small coop, 3 x 6 feet; put some fine chaff for litter on floor; do not feed for about one day after removal from incubator, for they absorb enough of the yolk to do them for that length of time. For the first feed, we usually give some sharp sand or grit in a small pan and bread soaked in sweet milk is good for them for about four or five days, also a little commercial chick feed thrown in the litter. This will keep them busy at all times.

After they are about a week or ten days old give them fresh ground bone or bone meat, also sweet milk to drink.

Keep plenty of pure, fresh water before them at all times. Feed about four to six times a day all they will eat, but never let any feed lie around the coop, for it will sour and you are sure to invite bowel trouble which is fatal to young chicks.

Give them good range and plenty of green feed and you will be surprised to see them grow. When about two months old we usually transfer them to a colony house out on the range. This house is 5 x 10 feet by 5 feet front, 4 feet in rear. From this on we feed a dry mash composed of 200 lbs of Bran, 100 lbs. of Middlings, 50 lbs. of Corn Meal and 100 lbs. of Beef Scraps. We also give them cooked oats, and wheat and some corn and we find our young stock always does well on this feed for us.

Now just let me add a few more words before closing. Be sure and clean your brooder coops every morning, or at least every other day. This will help in keeping your coops sanitary and wards off disease. When we put in a new brood of chicks we also disinfect our hover and coops.

The 5 x 10 coops are cleaned every three days, and litter is removed every two weeks and roosts and drop boards are treated with kerosene oil every two or three weeks in the summer to keep out lice and vermin. I believe, dear readers, if you follow this method you will raise more and stronger chicks.

Buff Leghorns for Show and Table

By H. G. Richardson.

Just a few words to the beginner in breeding Buff Leghorns. First, get good stock or eggs from a reliable breeder for your foundation. If you start right you will go right in mating up your pens for breeding, first picking out a good male bird with an even, soft, golden buff surface color, under color a trifle lighter, the bird to carry tail rather low, comb five points as near as you can get it with good wide base, standing erect back of comb to clear the neck well, with good white lobes, free from red as possible, good yellow legs and to stand well up on them. We cannot get all surface color; not so many partly red birds as you will get from black or bronze feathers in tail or wings. If your male is very dark, with black smutty tail and very dark under color, the female should have a good even surface color, with light under color, with good buff tails, running very light to the tips. Shape should not be lost track of; for once you get poor shaped birds it is very hard to breed out. If you have got a good strain of birds stick to it; for mixing up half a dozen different strains of birds you cannot produce good colored birds. If there has been any the goods points in the male bird, but where he is weak we must have our females extra strong. I like to breed from birds with good clear wings. Beware of those white quills, for once introduced they are hard to get clear of. I prefer a few light feathers in the tail to black, as it will give you a more soft, even breeding behind these it will soon show itself.

Too much cannot be said about their laying qualities. I have had some very good egg yields from them and their large white eggs find ready sale. Give them a good warm house, with plenty of fresh air and sunshine, with a good deep litter, and they will do the rest. Look after their water and don't let it freeze this cold weather. Put in a little warm water, just enough to take off the chill.

ARE YOU TURNING POULTRY FEED INTO CENTS OR DOLLARS?

If B. H. Greider, of Rheems, Pa., charged $1.00 for his poultry book, everybody who bought would get their money's worth. But he doesn't charge $1.00.

Greider's book has helped make fortunes for hundreds of poultry men and farmers. His book has over 100 illustrations—many in natural colors—tells all about hatching, breeding and marketing poultry products—a veritable gold mine on how to make money from chicks. Mr. Greider charges only 15c for his wonderful book—it's certainly worth ten times that much, in our opinion. Price list free.

The book quotes low prices for thoroughbred stock, hatching eggs, incubators and brooders. None of our readers will go amiss sending for this booklet.

A Few Side Lights on the Newtown Producing Company's Achievements From 1908 to 1912.

About four years ago, the Newtown Producing Co., of Newtown, Pa., (composed of some of the most practical and scientific poultrymen of the East) were among the first to recognize the future possibilities of the day-old chick industry in the U. S., and at once "cast-about" for a farm of suitable location and proportions to meet their future as well as immediate requirements. They finally succeeded in acquiring a farm of a little over 55 acres, right at the very door-way of the railroad station at Newtown, Pa., just one hour's ride by steam cars from Philadelphia, Pa., and only 10 miles by trolley cars from Doylestown, Pa., and located between N. Y. City and Philadelphia makes it convenient to reach either of these large cities and insures the best of shipping facilities to transport their products to all parts of the U. S. Here, but four short years ago, the Newtown Producing Co., began the erection of a Poultry plant which to-day is second to none, and equaled but by few in this whole country. They have succeeded far beyond the fondest dreams of their most interested and intimate friends, and to-day the word "Newtown" is "famous" through the wonderful results which the Newtown Producing Company has achieved in so short a time. Four years ago Newtown was hardly known to exist outside of its own home county. To-day it is a household word for "Success" throughout the length and breadth of our land. The achievements this company has wrought are not spasmodic either; they are the natural outgrowth of successfully applied business principles. They builded a sure foundation and have reared an enduring superstructure thereon which stands as a complementary monument to their foresight, application and honesty. The management of this company was careful first about its location; second about its equipment and third about the quality of its foundation stock. These are three of the most essential principles for success in the poultry industry, and to learn how thoroughly these principles were recognized by the management of the Newtown Producing Company. One has but to read their past history and go to Newtown and inspect their magnificent plant.

The location is ideal; the drainage all one could desire; while each and every building is of the latest and most scientific construction. Not a useless expenditure appears; not a feature necessary to the health and comfort of the fowls, or essential to the convenience of the operator omitted. Lots of light; plenty of sunshine; abundance of pure, fresh air; no dampness in the houses; no draughts to endanger the health of their flocks; no sickness to be seen anywhere! What wonderful assets, these, to the prosperity of the company. No wonder SUCCESS is "writ" large all over this end of the Newtown Producing Company's business.

All their yards are large and filled with fruit trees, affording plenty of shade during hot summer days. Over thirty-five hundred fruit trees grace the yards of this splendid plant insuring a handsome addition to the company's profits.

The quality of stock on this plant is one of the chief surprises to the visitor and there's a reason for it too, as the foundation stock of "the Newtown people" was the best that hard earned dollars could buy. They hesitated never at the "Best," and many a "Madison Square Garden" winner and their off-spring soon found at Newtown a pleasant home. Every bird was tested for vitality and laying qualities, and when they were satisfied that they had secured an ideal foundation for a strain of S. C. W. Leghorns that would reproduce these superior qualities in their offspring, and still retain the snow white plumage and beautiful carriage of the typical Leghorn they began at once to increase the size of their flocks, until at the present time they run way up into thousands.

This company is also breeding Rhode Island Reds of the same superior kind and quality as their noted Leghorns, and can furnish baby chicks for hatching eggs from their Reds in large numbers to their patrons, as well as from their White Leghorns.

PERKASIE, PENNSYLVANIA

The building of a poultry plant of large proportions was by no means the only object the management of this company had in view when they decided on their location at Newtown, Pa. To them, scientific, artificial incubation on a large scale had become a question of tremendous importance. To develop their poultry industry along as extensive lines as they had planned, necessitated more economic, and larger facilities for artificial incubation than they enjoyed, and in order to consummate their plans they secured the services of the most competent engineers in the country to assist them in solving the problems of moisture, ventilation and the regulation of heat in the egg chambers. Numerous tests were made under both favorable and unfavorable conditions; experiments in high as well as low altitudes. No principle was neglected, no essential necessary to complete success was omitted in the production of the now famous Newtown Giant Hot-water Heated Incubators, which enhance the value of so many of our large and successful Poultry plants throughout our country.

How eminently successful this company has been in the production of one of the highest class incubators now manufactured is fully attested by the universal and uniform results secured by the people who own and operate their machines.

Having produced a real "Giant Incubator," a machine which would produce big, fluffy, livable chicks, the Newtown people now turned their attention and efforts to the production of a brooder that would successfully "mother" the thousands of fine chicks their great Incubator was hatching. No matter how strong the parent stock, or how well hatched the chick, poor brooding would result in disappointment and failure. Again they called in the best engineers known to the industry, and by their combined efforts, after months of practical experimenting, they finally produced the Newtown Standard (Individual Hover) Hot Water Brooding System. Each individual hover can be operated separate and distinct from the rest of the system. In other words, the heat and fresh air can be adapted to the needs of the chick under any one hover just the same as though that particular hover was not connected with the rest of the system.

Is it any wonder the "Newtown" Chicks thrive under such congenial conditions, or that their customers speak in such universal praise of their products?

The hatching capacity of the Newtown Producing Company is 60,000 eggs at one time. "One of the largest individual hatching capacities in the world."

They have a brooding capacity of over 14,000 chicks at one time. Last season they shipped over 100,000 day-old chicks to all parts of the country. Some of the little fellows were on the road for three or four days and when they reached their destination were in the finest condition. That means VITALITY—one of the great features for which the "Newtown" chicks are noted.

This company takes in custom hatching and have hatched thousands of chicks to the perfect satisfaction of their customers ever since this plant has been in operation. Their prices are very reasonable and their work of the highest order.

Already, this season this company has shipped eggs to the Pacific Coast, to the middle West, as well as to the far off South-land, and every report thus far received has been very gratifying to them. Their old customers are coming back again with "repeat" orders and they pride themselves in the Motto "A customer once, a customer always."

Visitors are always welcome, except Sundays and holidays, between the hours of 9 A. M. and 3 P. M. If any of our readers are within 100 miles of this plant, we would urge them, by all means, to visit it. It will surely prove to be one of the "bright-spots" in life's earthly journey, and a real pleasure to you in years to come.

This enterprising concern have made shipments of their products, covering incubators, brooders and poultry stock to every state of the Union, as well as 23 foreign countries.

WHEN YOU START, START RIGHT

A GREAT BOOK BY BOB ESSEX

We are just in receipt of the annual catalog of the Essex Incubator Co., written by Robert Essex, one of the greatest authorities on Incubating and Brooding that the country has ever produced. This book is brimful of valuable information, from cover to cover. It is a book that is fit to grace the Library of the very best Poultrymen. It is not gotten out for the novice or the beginner exclusively, but for the benefit of every one interested in fowls. This book, coming from the pen of this great Authority, conveys to you information which is most valuable, and will lead you on the road to success. He covers the book thoroughly in 5 chapters, as follows:

Chapter 1, A Woman Fancier's Poultry House.

Chapter 2, When you start, start right.

Chapter 3, How money is made from standard bred and show birds.

Chapter 4, A low cost Farm Poultry House.

Chapter 5, How to get more profit from Farm Hens.

The Editor of Poultry Fancier desires every one that is interested in modern down-to-date Poultry Culture to send for this book. Do not delay. Send today for it. It means Dollars and Cents to you. It is free for the asking. Just tell the Robert Essex Incubator Co. that you saw this notice in the Poultry Fancier, and this great book will be mailed you by return mail.

KEIPPER COOPING CO.

Keipper Cooping Co., 1401 First St., Milwaukee, Wis., are among the Fancier's most reliable advertisers. They put up a coop, which for training or show room purposes is unsurpassed. They are light, durable and can be folded up and stored away in the smallest possible space. These coops are made of a high grade of heavy galvanized wire and when folded together are only about one inch thick. This is a decided advantage over almost any other show room coop on the market. These people are making a special offer to all fanciers and poultry organizations during the months of March and April, and we are fully satisfied that it will prove a lasting benefit to all associations who intend cooping their own shows in the future, to get in touch with Keipper Cooping Company at once. Send for their catalogue and get acquainted with these people, they are perfectly reliable and can do you lots of good. Look up their ad. in The Fancier. Their proposition looks good to us.

POULTRYMEN OF PENNSYLVANIA STRONGLY URGED TO JOIN

THE A. P. A.

Pennsylvania is one of the leading states in producing Poultry products. It has more people interested in Poultry raising than any other state in the union. We have seventy Poultry Associations holding annual exhibitions. There are at least 10,000 people directly interested in the welfare of the poultry industry in our state, and we have but 300 poultry breeders belonging to the Pennsylvania Branch of the American Poultry Association. We need the assistance of every Poultry raiser in the state to place Pennsylvania among the leading states in poultry culture. The appropriations to carry on the experiments are inadequate and do not compare favorably with what New York, Ohio, Missouri and many other states are doing.

The American Poultry Association is the very back-bone of the Poultry industry of America. It publishes and revises the Standard, the book by which all poultry is bred and judged. It has and is working for the education of the farmer and fancier alike. It is fighting for better express service and lower rates. There is only one kind of membership to The American Poultry Association and that is a Life membership, the cost of which is ten dollars. There is never any after cost. One-half of this amount, or five dollars, is received by the Penn'a. Branch, and can be spent for the advancement of the poultry industry in Penn'a., in any way members wish to vote to spend it.

The Pennsylvania Branch needs every one interested in poultry as a member. We must have organization.

The 300 members belonging to the American Poultry Association of Pennsylvania have been appointed a committee to solicit for members. Each member is expected to at least propose one new member, and in this way our membership would be doubled in a short time. The Secretary of the Pennsylvania Branch will mail every member application blanks and hopes to receive one or more new members from each one.

The result of this campaign will be closely watched and the Poultry Journals will publish the progress made.

Successful Hatching is One Problem Successful Brooding is Another— and Greater Problem

Above photo shows how easy and quick the heat entering each hover can be reduced, or closed off entirely in the Newtown Adjustable Brooding System. This secures the different temperatures, as well as air supply, day-old and older chicks require to promote their steady, healthy development while in the brooder house.

Newtown Adjustable Brooding Systems

You can put day-old chicks in one hover, half-grown in an adjoining hover and so on, giving each brood a separate hover having the degree of heat and amount of air each requires at that stage of their growth.

The Newtown alone has this individual heat and air regulation, which cuts chick losses to the lowest and insures rapid, healthy growth.

You cannot ignore this principle of brooding without paying the penalty in weak, deformed chicks, with their train of chick ailments and heavy death rate.

Send for illustrated booklet, proving by actual tests that the "Newtown" is the only successful way.

Louisville, where the big combined shows of the Kentucky State Poultry Association, the Louisville Poultry & Pet Stock Association, and the official A. P. A. Branch Show were being held January 22, to 27. The entry was the largest ever held by any show in the state, and quality of all varieties was good. The awards in Poultry were placed by Mr. S. B. Lane and Mr. Theo. Hewes. Besides the gold and silver Branch medals offered by Kentucky Branch, $200.00 in gold was offered by the Commissioner of Agriculture, Mr. J. W. Newnan, as special prizes, and many handsome silver cups, etc., besides the liberal cash premiums offered by the Association.

There was a large attendance of breeders from Kentucky, as well as many breeders from several other states. Mr. E. N. Hopkins of Arkansas, one of the A. P. A. Organizers, was at the show and assisted Roger V. Harp, Secretary of Kentucky Branch, in an effort for new members; and when a final count was made, there had been signed up 21 members for the Branch, while a great amount of Missionary work was done that will soon result in more applications. This ingathering of members, with those secured since the meeting of the Convention in Denver, gives us a gain of 32 members, or a total membership of 72.

Mr. L. L. Haggin, President of the Branch, and Roger V. Harp, the Secretary, have agreed among themselves to see that the membership of the Kentucky Branch of the A. P. A. reaches the 100 mark by the time of the next annual meeting, which is, we hope, to be held in Nashville.

Through the efforts of the Poultrymen of Kentucky, the Dean of the Agricultural College, Prof. M. A. Scovall, and Mr. J. W. Newman, the Commissioner of Agriculture, have inserted a section in the Agricultural College Bill which, among other things, appropriated $10,000 annually for the advancement of the poultry interest in the state, including experiments in breeding for egg production and methods best adapted for hatching and raising of chicks and feeding experiments, and other investigation tending to the economical production of poultry and eggs. This bill has been recommended for passage by the Committees of the Senate and House. Should we secure the passage of the above measure, which it seems we shall, we will then be in a position to make the poultry interest of Kentucky look up and be felt as a factor throughout the country.

Roger V. Harp, Secretary, Kentucky Branch A. P. A.

Since writing the above, the House of Representatives at Frankfort passed the above bill by vote of 84 to 3 and we have every reason to hope for success in the Senate.

R. V. Harp.

Should Proxy Voting at Our American Poultry Association Meetings be Allowed.

I can plainly hear some one of the Inner Circle murmur gently "why can't that blamed fool write about something which he knows something about?" "Well, I can only reply that there are so many different people writing on all sides of the various poultry subjects that it looked like a tough proposition to write anything new along the regulation lines, and as I personally have a strong feeling against proxy voting and had seen nothing written about it I am simply going to give you the result of my observations for the past few years. I think this one thing is doing more to hurt the A. P. A. and its influence than all other things combined.

Our present officers and executive members, as well, as most of those of the past, have done much that is helpful to the Fanciers and Breeders of America and our present officials are hard-working and earnest men and they will continue to do things that will help to build up the Poultry Industry of this land. There are some things, however, in our methods of doing things that, in my opinion, will have to be changed before we can hope to gain the confidence and support of the thinking Fanciers in any such number as our efforts deserve. Proxy voting, as practiced at our meetings, is one of the most glaring of our faults. It is the greatest gag to the popular expression of the will of our breeders of any rule in the A. P. A. For instance, we have at every one of our meetings half a dozen men with proxy votes enough to rule the meeting exactly as their own private individual opinions say it shall be ruled. If they choose to vote together nothing all the rest can say will beat them, and usually even one of them has votes enough to decide any question that comes up exactly as he thinks is right. Now, I ask is this fair? Especially in a business like ours, where so few people can agree and where hardly two of us can be found doing even the first principles of the business exactly alike. Perhaps no other business has as great a variety of ways and as many different opinions about doing things as the Poultry Business and a successful Fancier has some right to be credited with brains enough to help run the American Poultry Association. Now is it right to give one man the power to vote (his personal opinions) thirty, forty, or seventy times, as his number of proxies happens to be, in an open meeting and thereby out vote and make useless votes cast by individuals who spend their time and money going to attend these meetings? Perhaps, as often happens, the holder of these proxies is a Poultry Editor, a Poultry Judge, or an Ex Breeder and not an actual live Fancier to any extent. But be that as it may, the fact remains that the holders of proxy votes have a right to force their private opinions on us just as many times as they have proxy votes and it doesn't seem right to some of us that this should be so. If we could force all holders of proxy votes to file their voting instructions, how they should vote, from their constituents, it would be a different matter and we would then be getting a representative government, but with proxy holders voting their own views we are not getting within a mile of the general sentiment of our Breeders. This state of affairs, I believe, is doing more to keep down the attendance at our meetings than any other one thing, and until it is remedied we shall never interest the large majority of our best breeders. Now I know some one will jump up and say the attendance has been improving each year, but has it, in proportion to our increased membership, a membership which has been secured by hard work and considerable expense compared with methods used a few years ago? I have attended every regular meeting of the Association for the past seven years and have been a close observer of the events and happenings at these meetings and I tell you right now the number of actual Breeders that attend our meetings is mighty small, and it's getting so year by year that there is less to go for. Most of the work is done in executive session, to which the poor outsider (the actual Breeder) can not go, and then what little business comes up in open meeting that we can take part in, along comes the proxy voter, (with only one opinion, the same as the rest of us poor mortals,) but with the right to express it thirty, forty or seventy times as the case may be, and out-votes you so that you might just as well have spent your time and money on a fishing excursion or looking for the North Pole. It's time this state of affairs was changed and it's time the executive board was made up of Fanciers, Breeders if you please, and I should like to see the day come when the real successful Poultrymen shall take a hand in the government of the American Poultry Association, and I believe such a move would result in doubling the attendance and give us a representative gathering at our Annual meetings.

B. H. Greider, or the Man who Made Rheems, Pa.,Famous. By F. D. Sutton.

The Poultry Plant of Mr. B. H. Greider is situated on the eastern outskirts of the town of Rheems, Penn., and contains about 55 acres. It is certainly "beautiful as to situation," and must be a joy to the heart of the owner.

Although we arrived at Mr. Greider's Farm when it was raining we were so impressed with its location, buildings and the general layout of the plant that we had to start a second time before we finally "got in out of the rain." Up to this present time we do not remember ever having coveted the possessions of any of our neighbors or Fancier friends, but if the time does ever arrive that such a spirit should control our action, the writer is afraid he would take the train for of the best strains of both domestic and foreign breeds to be found anywhere in this country. We looked over at least from thirty to forty different pens of birds, mated up ready for this season's egg trade and we did not see one poor pen in the whole lot, but we did see some marvelously fine specimens in practically every yard. His Partridge Plymouth Rocks, all varieties of Games, Black Orpingtons, White Leghorns, Barred Rocks, S. C. Reds, Indian Runner Ducks, in fact practically every breed Mr. Greider has on his plant, contains birds of very superior merit, and the hundreds of letters he is receiving from all sections of the country from more than satisfied customers fully warrant Mr. Greider's

B. H. Greider, Rheems, Pa.

Rheems and try to convince Mr. Greider he had enjoyed this charming place long enough and ought to move out. But then what is the use? Some other fellow might take the same notion into his head and tell us to go and do likewise. So we will just leave Mr. Greider in the quiet, peaceful, happy possession of his lovely home, and do the best we can to tell our friends about him and his famous poultry plant.

Mr. Greider has possessed the true heart and spirit of the Fancier from childhood and for the past 20 years has been devoting practically all his time to the scientific production of many claim, "that he gives the best quality to every customer."

Every order, whether large or small, receives Mr. Greider's personal care, and no one could devote more attention to the interests of their customers than he. Every bird sold, whether for utility or show room purposes, is crated with the greatest care in coops specially designed and put up in Mr. Greider's own work-shop. We have never seen a lighter coop or one of better construction than these and we often wonder why so many breeders ask their customers to pay expressage on heavy coops when the lighter ones answer the purpose equally as well, and lessen the express charges to a marked degree.

Every spring Mr. Greider buys a carload of stock from Wisconsin, and during the quieter seasons of the year puts these coops up in large quantities, thus insuring a plentiful supply when the rush overtakes him. The equipment on Mr. Greider's Poultry Plant is of the best and compares very favorably with the largest and best constructed plants in the country. His buildings are well arranged, well lighted and well ventilated, and sickness is reduced thereby to the minimum. It is truly wonderful what scientific breeding and hygienic conditions have done during the past decade for the beauty, utility and health of our domestic fowls. And nowhere have we noted these striking features in greater evidence than in Mr. Greider's yards.

His office, feed rooms, work shop and conditioning rooms, are all of the most modern, and convenient construction. His Poultry Houses and Yards are large, well built, and splendidly located, and his shipping facilities the very best. Situated on the main of the Pennsylvania Railway, about three hours out from Philadelphia and but a short distance from Harrisburg, Pa., the capital of the State.

He is able to ship over the most direct routes to all parts of the country. Mr. Greider has published one of the most attractive catalogs and year books we have ever seen, and is offering it for sale at the surprisingly low price of 15 cents. This splendid book cost Mr. Greider over $3000 to publish, and it is full of practical and timely helps for the poultryman. We predict that the entire issue will be sold in a surprisingly short time. Mr. Greider's Incubators and Poultry Supplies are equal to any sold anywhere if one can be governed in his decisions by the great number of complimentary letters he has received from all parts of the country from satisfied customers.

Mr. Greider's Incubators are hot water machines, and are made by expert incubator manufacturers who have been in the business for a quarter of a century. They looked very good to us, and the high percentage of hatches of big, fluffy chicks they bring out must certainly be gratifying to all who are fortunate enough to own one.

Don't fail to write Mr. Greider for his 1912 year book. Its cost is insignificant, but its value to all who are interested in Poultry Culture is of the highest order. Look up Mr. Greider's ad. in this issue. It offers splendid inducements to our readers, and it affords The Fancier great pleasure to call your attention to the same.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NATIONAL COLUMBIAN WYANDOTTE CLUB.

The Annual Meeting of the National Columbian Wyandotte Club was held at Cleveland, Ohio, January 25, 1912, and a good representation of the Membership was present. Enthusiasm ran high for our chosen variety and the outlook for improvement and increased popularity of Columbian Wyandottes was never brighter. Most favorable comment was made upon the appearance of the new Columbian Wyandotte Journal published at Nashville, Tenn.

The increase in membership was 115 for the year and it is confidently hoped to double the present membership. It was voted that the Club Secretary represent the Club at all meetings of the American Poultry Association.

Resolutions were passed upon the death of Brother C. H. Dillon, Cincinnati, Ohio.

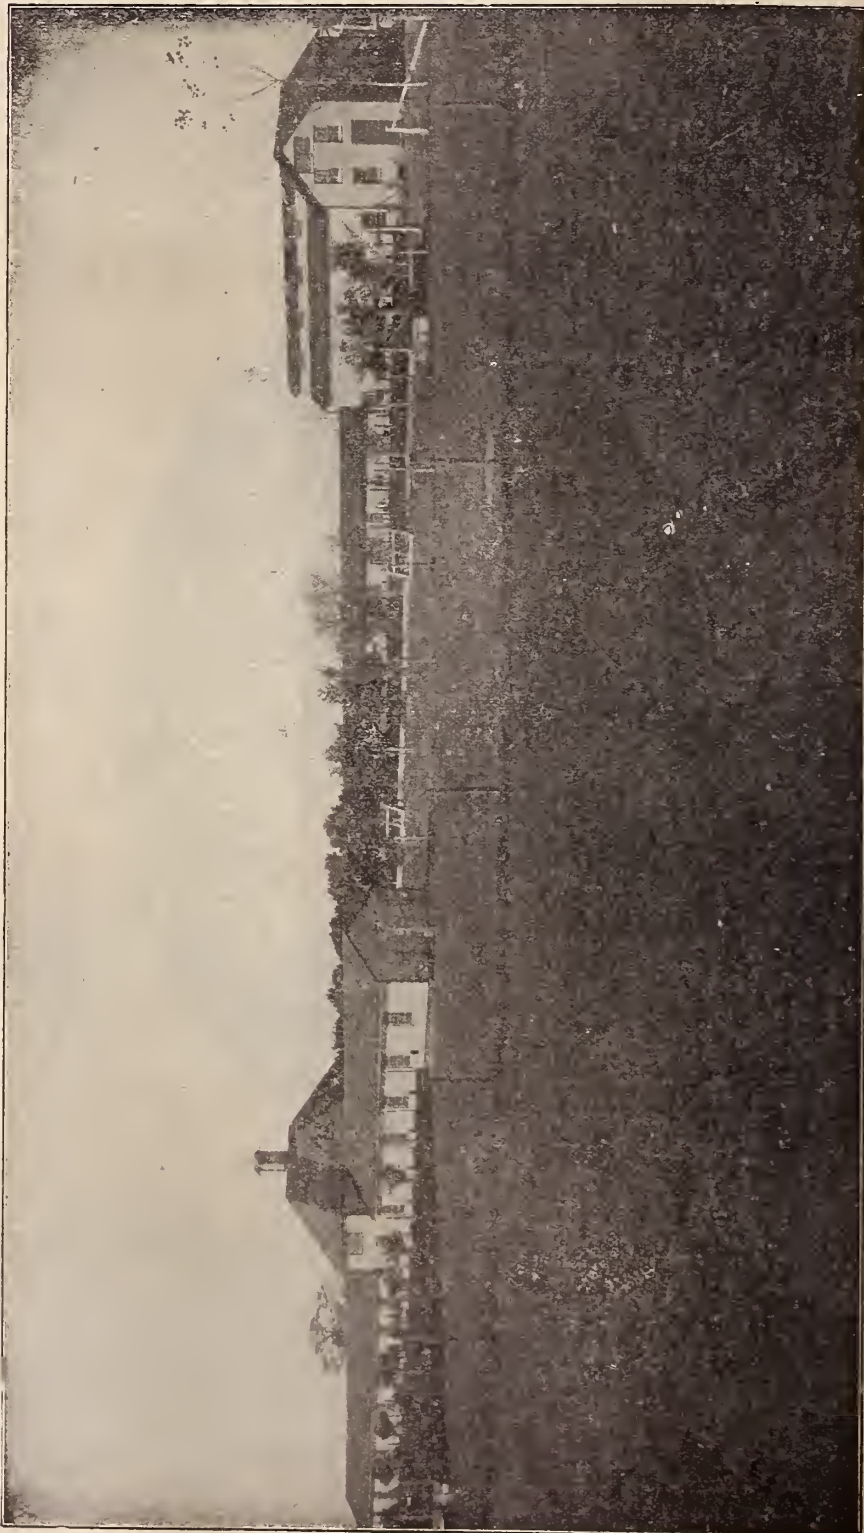

The following officers were elected: President, Walter G. Fenton, Mt. Clemens, Michigan; Vice-Presidents, Charles D. Cleveland, West Orange, New Jersey; S. E. Tiffany, Elkins, West Virginia; Thomas S. Falkner, Tiffin, Ohio; Prof. A. A. Brigham, Brookings, So. Dakota; J. W. Whitney, Uplands, California; Secretary Treasurer, Ralph Woodward, Grafton, Mass.; Executive Committee, The President, Secretary-Treasurer and George F. Eastman, Granby, Mass., J. P. Keating, Westboro, Mass., Charles D. Cleveland, West Orange, New Jersey, S. T. Campbell, Mansfield, Ohio, Dr. C. J. Andrus, Canandaigua, New York.

The Club Catalogue will be issued about March 1st and besides giving the list of Members will contain interesting articles by prominent Columbian Wyandotte breeders.

Membership dues are $1.00 per year and application for membership and request for Catalogue should be sent to Ralph Woodward, Secretary-Treasurer, Grafton, Mass.

Too much praise cannot be given the members of the association for the go-ahead and get-together manner in which they carried through the work attendant upon such an undertaking and in so short a time. Three hundred and twenty coops were made by the members themselves, and it was found necessary to loan over a hundred more to accommodate the more than 500 birds entered.

As an appreciation of his leadership and work in behalf of the association it presented at its meeting last Monday evening ten dollars to B. M. Posten. The association has cancelled all bills and has nearly $40 in the treasury.

Following is the list of special prize and ribbon winners:

A Medical Poultry Book Free to You

Every person interested in poultry, as a breeder or in a commercial way will find "Zenoleum Chicken Chat" a useful and reliable adviser. It gives full directions for the treatment of all diseases that affect poultry, and the prevention of contagious and infectious diseases in the poultry yard. It tells the most effective treatments to rid the flock of parasites, such as lice, mites and various germs, that cause roup, pip, tape-worm, canker, typhoid, blackhead, etc., that if allowed to spread in the flock will surely cut off all chances of profit, and disgust the owner with the business.

"Chicken Chat" is the production of the most competent authorities on diseases of fowl and is printed and sent out free by the manufacturers of Zenoleum Disinfectant, Germicide and Lice Killer, which has the endorsements of FORTY-FIVE out of forty-eight State Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations.

"Chicken Chat" teaches the doctrines of cleanliness, disinfection and the prevention of disease as the surest and safest method of making the industry profitable.

To the commercial poultry raiser, who must depend upon the incubator to hatch out his chicks the report of the Ontario government poultry expert, obtained in a series of tests at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, will be found of especial value. This test shows that the free use of Zenoleum in the incubator not only causes a large percentage of live chicks when hatched from the eggs in the incubator, but a greater percentage were alive at the end of four weeks than without the use of Zenoleum or by hens under ordinary conditions. In other words, the chicks hatched out in the incubator treated with Zenoleum, had greater vitality, and consequently were better able to stand the various ills, that cause the death of one-half the hatch of incubators operated in the industry, and the Canadian Government issued a bulletin on the subject, which will make the business more profitable and certain than ever before.

"Chicken Chat" is free to every reader of this paper. A cent spent for a postal card will return you a profit of many dollars. Address, Zenner Disinfectant Company, 242 Lafayette Avenue, Detroit, Michigan, before you forget it.

Standard Wyandottes in Colors and How to Judge Them

By THEO. HEWES

Reaches the Climax for those Interested in this Variety. WHEN YOU SEE IT YOU WILL ACKNOWLEDGE THAT IT IS THE BEST AND WORTH MANY TIMES THE PRICE TO YOU.

This book teaches you How to Score and Judge the greatest of all the American varieties. No other work published will give the information as it is given by Theo. Hewes in his articles, which are fully illustrated by over one hundred pictures, together with the chart system, of which he is the originator, and which is copyrighted by him. Not only do full page half-tone plates of some of the finest living specimens of these breeds appear in black and white, but the richest and grandest work ever done in oil by an artist is given by I. W. Burgess in a series of twelve pictures representing male and female, accompanied by feathers from the different sections of the birds in colors.

Size of book 11½x8½ inches. Contains over 70 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00.

These pictures are 4½x2 inches in size, and cost over $1,000 for the copper plates alone, to say nothing of the artist's labor and general cost of production. In fact no expense has been spared to make it by far the most valuable work on Wyandottes ever printed in America or elsewhere; you cannot duplicate it at any price, but you can have one by return mail for $1.00, and if you are not satisfied we will refund your money. We do as we say we will, now and always. Our past dealings with the public will prove this.

Remit by Express, P. O. Order or Check as this is the safest way. Book will be sent immediately upon receipt of order.

RHODE ISLAND REDS

How to Breed and Judge Them
By THEO. HEWES

Is the Best and Most Complete Treatise Ever
Published on this Great Variety

There is no breed so widely advertised to-day as the Rhode Island Reds and no breed in which there is such a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes perfection.

"RHODE ISLAND REDS; HOW TO BREED AND JUDGE THEM" is better than the "STANDARD OF PERFECTION"

because it goes into detail and describes every section, with numerous illustrations, showing ideal and defective shape and color, thus making scoring so simple that any one can understand. Some sections have four or five illustrations showing the several defects that may be found in them, with the proper discount for the same as applied by our leading judges.

Size of Book 11½x8½ inches. Contains over 50 pages, including cover, which is printed in three colors, and all on good half-tone paper. PRICE $1.00

In addition to this most complete series of articles on scoring, there are numerous articles from America's foremost Red breeders on every phase of Red breeding. This book tells you just what you want to know. It tells you how to mate your pens; how to grow your chicks; how to select your show birds; in fact, it tells you how to grow, exhibit and make money out of Reds.

This book is sold on approval. The price is $1.00, and, dear reader, if you are not satisfied with your bargain, send us back the book and we will refund your money.

A Genuine Rupture Cure

Sent on Trial to Prove it

Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer

After Thirty Year's Experience I Have Produced an Appliance for Men, Women and Children that Actually Cures Rupture.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon to-day and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. F. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir.—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot no matter what position it was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it hurt your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON.

80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

The above is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the appliance, who cured himself and who has been curing others for over 30 years. If ruptured, write him to-day.

Recommend From Texas Famer

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co., Marshall, Mich.

Gentlemen—I feel it my duty to let you, and also all people afflicted as I was, know what your Appliance has done for me. I have been ruptured for many years and have worn many different trusses, but never got any relief until I got your Appliance. I put it on last November, but had very little faith in it, but must say I am now cured. I have laid it away—have had it off for two weeks and doing all kinds of farm work with ease. While I was wearing it, I had lagrippe and coughed a great deal but it held all right. Words cannot express my gratitude towards you and your Appliance. Will recommend it to all ruptured people.

Very sincerely,

J. E. LONG.

Bald Prairie, Texas

case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,

SAM A. HOOVER.

Child Cured in Four Months

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

Gentlemen:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks. Yours very truly,

ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market to-day, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.

6. The soft, pliable hands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.

7. There is nothing about it to get foul and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.

8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.

9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon to-day.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day.

Others Failed but the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks, Marshal, Mich.

Dear Sir—Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you. Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON.

Golden Wyandottes---I Breed Them for Pleasure and Know They Have Made Good

By Theodore Eichorn, Erie, Pa., Member Golden Wyandotte Club of the World

When the desire to raise chickens took possession of me I had little reason to believe that it would result in my developing into a confirmed "chicken crank." In fact, it wasn't so long ago that a chicken was chicken, even if one happened to be a rooster or the other a hen. My main purpose in becoming interested in poultry was for pleasure—something different from the humdrum of every day-life—and I found it.

Having decided to become a fancier it was my desire to select a breed with beauty, egg-producing qualities and one that could grace the dinner table should occasion require. The Golden Wyandotte, to my mind, has supplied the beauty to the eye; experience has confirmed my faith in their ability to produce eggs; remembrances of happy family dinners of chicken certainly ought to allow me to put the stamp of approval on the Golden Wyandotte as a table f.c.w.l.

Like most beginners, I did not realize that it made much difference where you got your stock from to start with, and, of course, my first lot of Golden Wyandottes were a failure, the direct result of careless inbreeding. It might be proper to state right here that I believe it is more important in Golden Wyandottes than in any other breed to get your stock or eggs from a breeder who is interested in seeing that breed made a popular one and not from a person who sells his Golden to relieve himself of his surplus stock, regardless of results, and possibly with the hope that his patron will get disgusted with the breed and not become a competitor in that line. However, it did not take me long to get my bearings, and I find that Golden Wyandottes are the equal, if not the superior of any other breed.

I am at a loss to account for the fact that Golden Wyandottes are not more extensively bred. Their brilliant plumage has attracted the attention of all who have seen my Golden and I have been successful in interesting many coming fanciers in this bound-to-be popular breed. Regardless of crazes over the more recent breeds, I feel that the Golden Wyandottes can be made to take the front rank in American poultrydom if all the breeders will take the right kind of interest in pushing the good qualities and do all that they can to help people who desire to raise Golden, even if some of the advice required to be given is of the "secret" order. While my first experience with Golden was of a character to disgust almost any mortal man, it was with the desire to show that I had not misplaced my faith in selecting Golden Wyandottes that I stuck to the ship, and it was in my first show that I pulled down six ribbons and a special on six birds that I placed my faith in. I have found the majority of Golden Wyandotte breeders that I have dealt with to be men who will do all that they can to start a man on the road to "golden success." However, a few breeders who are in the game for merely what they can get for themselves will serve to keep down almost any breed, regardless of its beauty and utility value.

With the organization of the Golden Wyandotte Club of the World, much good should result. A united effort to secure interest by local fanciers can be successfully carried out by the smaller breeder, while the larger and more successful breeders can carry the campaign on in its wider scope.

I have pinned my ticket on Golden Wyandottes. They have certainly stood the rigors of a bad winter with satisfaction on my part. With my increasing knowledge of the breed, every indication points to the fact that my poultry raising for pleasure will be more delightful than any other effort to which I could devote my spare time.

I find that there is an increasing interest in the keeping of poultry by those whose work keeps them closely confined or whose minds are busily occupied during working hours. To the ordinary man who can't stand the strain on his pocketbook to buy an automobile to enjoy that sport as a relaxation, or who doesn't enjoy other recreations because of the connected expense, not having required time or a desire to avoid risks connected therewith, I would say that if you want to do something that will soothe your nerves, make you forget your troubles, and act as a general tonic for your entire system—get some chickens. Get the beauty breed, the Golden Wyandotte, and you will have something to show your friends when they come around to see you that will tickle their eyes. When I am with my Golden, I forget everything else. I am sure your experience will be a duplicate of my own. Don't make a false start but get your foundation strain from the best blood that you can obtain and you will never have reason to regret it. Join the Golden Wyandotte Club of the World and you will live to see the time when the Golden Wyandotte will be in the front ranks, where it belongs and our poultry exhibitions will have classes of entries that will compare favorably with any other breed. I am to boost Golden and every breeder of Golden Wyandottes should feel proud of the fact that the Poultry Fancier has devoted an issue to exploiting the fine points and qualities of a fowl that has too long remained in an obscure division of American poultrydom.

My advice to the beginner is to get in on the ground floor with a breed that is sure to make things hum in the future—Golden Wyandottes.

The Main Road to Success

Some Valuable Advice Which Ought to be Acted Upon by Thousands of Fanciers Who Are Neglecting Their Opportunities and Losing Trade. By H. P. McKay.

Assuming that the breeder has bred his flock up to Standard requirements and is in a position to furnish fancy stock and eggs for hatching, this article will endeavor to state some things in relation to disposing of the above products in a business-like and profitable manner, things which many breeders neglect or fail to give the proper attention, and which many others consider of slight importance.

The first step in establishing a trade in pure-bred stock and fancy eggs can be attained in either of two ways, or in both. These are by showing at some reputable poultry show and by advertising judiciously in some of the poultry publications. Both of these are important and of mutual aid to each other, but of the two, advertising is of the greatest importance and the one to which the poultryman should devote the most thought.

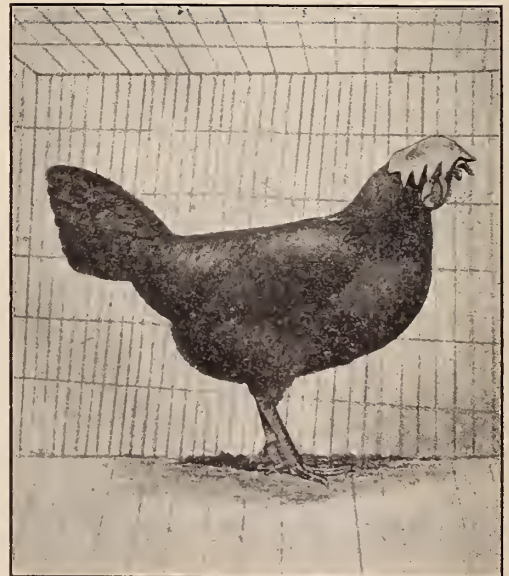

In placing advertising, the following things must be considered: quantity of stock to be disposed of, amount of money available for the purpose, and the medium.

If only a small number of birds and eggs are to be disposed of, it would certainly only be a waste of money to carry a page or half page ad. when a small card in the classified column would accomplish the same purpose. It is very nice to receive plenty of orders, but it hurts when you have to return money and too many breeders are tempted to go out and buy stock to fill these extra orders, which is very bad policy, for it is sailing under false colors. Better keep your ads running in proportion to the amount you have to supply the demand with and gradually increase them as you have increased facilities for taking care of more orders, thus saving money and keeping in the straight path of honesty at the same time.

In considering the cost of advertising, especially if the amount to be expended is limited, it is best to divide up the amount in a way to secure the greatest benefit and value for the money. It is a proven fact that some poultry publications are better mediums than others and good judgment must be employed to get the journal or journals that will bring the best returns in proportion to the cost.

Try to place your name before as many readers as possible, and keep it there. In time, readers will look for your advertisement each month and it will become part of the paper. Spasmodic advertising while better than none at all, does not accomplish the greatest amount of good that it should. But your name alone is not sufficient. That is, not until you have a well-established reputation and trade. Do not divide up advertising in such small parcels that none of them have any worth. Better have fewer ads and stronger ones.

S. C. Black Minorca female, winner of two firsts as pullet and late as hen. Metuchen Poultry Farm, Metuchen, N. J.

Above all, make your advertising attractive and original, if possible. Do not be funny, loquacious or sarcastic, and avoid repetition. Neatness and conciseness are very important factors. I believe in stating prices in an advertisement; not necessarily a complete schedule, but enough to give a prospective buyer some idea of the range of your terms. He is then more apt to write to you than to some other advertiser who simply states that he has Barred Rocks, White Leghorns, or some other breed for sale and leaves the price an unknown quantity. Illustrations from life are one of the best ways in which to attract attention in advertising matter, for they show just what your stock looks like. Be truthful in your statements. You have the right to place your stock and plant in the best possible light, but it is bad practice to claim the finest plant and the best stock if you cannot show the goods. Someone who reads your claims is apt to happen along to your place some day, and if the plant and birds do not fulfill your description, it would be quite embarrassing for you, I should imagine. So, I say, paint your business, equipment and winnings in as glowing terms as are justifiable, but do not exaggerate.

After placing advertising in the above manner, and supplementing it with articles for the poultry press and by exhibiting at some of the shows, the foundation is laid for a good trade. Replies and inquiries will begin to come in and the battle is half fought. But perhaps the hardest half, at least to some people, and the one most neglected, is the correspondence relating to these inquiries. This should be carried on in a progressive, prompt, businesslike manner, in order to derive the greatest benefit from the advertising. I could never understand how poultrymen would spend time and money in advertising and then take care of the accruing correspondence as indifferently as some of them do. It is as bad as spending money for fancy buildings and not knowing how to raise enough stock to fill them. Several of the most serious faults met with are lack of proper materials, poor writing, insufficient replies, and lack of promptness.

Get good attractive stationery and printed matter, with good cuts, even if it does cost more. It and what is written on it are your agent and what you will be judged by. Don't use a common, everyday cut of your breed, such as are turned out by the dozen to anyone who will pay the price. Get some pictures taken of your fowls and plant and have some attractive half-tones made from them. Be different—be original—above the throng. It is the unusual man who is the successful one. It will certainly cost more, but less in proportion to results. Cuts can always be made use of in your catalogue and in advertising, and in some cases good pictures leave a more decided, lasting impression than any amount of word description would.

If poultry is just a side line with you, keep it separate from your other business, and do not use your regular stationery in conducting your poultry correspondence. I believe the majority of people like to think, at least, that they are dealing with a poultryman who is devoting all his time to it, and not just his spare moments. So, if you are a banker or a druggist, keep it apart from your poultry interests, and do not give people the impression that poultry is only a fad with you, and that probably someone else is looking after your birds for you in an indifferent manner.

It is a serious handicap not to be able to write well, but one that is usually easily remedied. If you are a poor writer, try to get someone to write for you, for it is disappointing to get a letter that can be deciphered only with difficulty, and it leaves a poor impression. If your wife or son or daughter are not available to write for you, buy or rent a typewriter. In this age nothing gives such an air of business stability as does the typewriter. Very serviceable machines can be had for little money, and the advantage of a typewritten letter cannot be overestimated.

Always give an inquiry a complete reply. Merely sending a catalog in answer to all inquiries will not suffice. Many times a catalog does not contain the exact information to fit the case, and besides, a personal letter shows that the poultryman takes a real, live interest in every sale, be it large or small.

Be prompt in your correspondence, above all things. It may tend to make a prospective customer think that you are doing a rushing business to delay answering his letter for a few days, but he may conclude you are so busy that you will not give his order the proper attention, and therefore, send it elsewhere. Then, also, he may have sent several inquiries for prices and, being in a hurry, the first answer gets the business. Anyway, to keep correspondence from accumulating take care of it each day and it will become a pleasant occupation instead of a task. To be sure, you will probably get many inquiries merely from curiosity, but don't take any chances in not answering from this fact. The inquiry at least shows interest on the writer's part, and perhaps some day he will have some money to spend and he will remember you. I believe in the follow-up system to a certain extent, say, to the second or third letter, but after that your letters are apt to be thrown aside without much attention.

Conduct poultry raising on commercial lines and in a business way, if you would succeed. Respect your business and it will command a respect from others. The time is past when the chicken business was a laughing-stock, and it is now a legitimate, paying vocation—in fact, a science, when carried on along up-to-date, intelligent methods. If carried on with the same careful attention to details and the same energy as is necessary in any other business to make it a success, then poultry raising as a business is bound to be a successful paying venture and one of which no one need be ashamed.

Buying Eggs for Hatching

By J. E. Willmarth, Amityville, N. Y.

Buying eggs for hatching is somewhat of a lottery, but in the great majority of cases the buyer gets the best of the deal. But the occasional purchaser who has poor luck is quite apt to make full advantage of the mishap and is often quite unreasonable in his complaints. Others who obtain fair results from purchased eggs do not appreciate their good luck, but complain because they did not get more than their money's worth. Then, the fellow who gets a chick from every egg and raises them into first class stock thinks he has gotten no more than he should have. At least we never heard of such a one sending the Breeder any extra money because of the good results obtained from his eggs.

We appreciate that there are some Breeders who are not as they should be, and indeed, the temptation is often great to "cater to the trade," even though we know that it is not best for the purchaser.

Take a Breeder of Cochins, for instance. This is a heavy feathered, clumsy breed, from which it is generally hard to get fertile eggs. If the Breeders are bred to win and produce winners this lack of fertility is quite apt to be pronounced.

A purchaser of such eggs is fortunate if he gets a fifty per cent. hatch. The beginner purchasing such eggs will put up an awful kick on getting not over five chicks, for instance, and he will come pretty near thinking the Breeder he purchased the eggs from a rascal. Now suppose that Breeder was wise and upon receiving this beginner's order he had sent him eggs from a pen of sprightly, light-built Cochins, good, lively but not show birds. Eggs from these will probably run nearly all fertile. Hatching out a large number from such eggs the purchaser would think he got great value and he would write the Breeder a nice letter of appreciation for the fine

First cockerel at Pittsburg, Pa., 2nd cock Sunbury, Pa. 1912.

hatch. Here we would have a pleased Customer, and the Breeder would have his best eggs for his own use or to sell to some one else who knew what to expect. A true case where "Ignorance is Bliss."

Suppose we pay five dollars for fifteen eggs of any certain breed, and hatch out but five chicks, are we necessarily stung? It costs no more to raise those chicks than it does a mongrel worth seventy-five cents when grown. Suppose from those five chicks one is worth ten dollars, one five dollars, the others averaging two dollars each. Here we have twenty-one dollars worth of chickens. Cost five dollars for eggs, seventy-five cents each to raise or three dollars and seventy-five cents for the five. Our five birds cost us eight seventy-five. A profit of twelve twenty-five, or possibly a little less if we spent more to raise the chicks. This is just an average result from five chicks from good stock. Now, suppose we got a dozen chicks from a setting, but those chicks turned out to be not worth more than two dollars each on an average; then we would make but ten dollars on the deal. Yet in the first case we would be likely to kick about the poor hatch, while in the last case we would probably be well pleased with the large hatch.

Two chicks from a setting can well be worth more and show a better profit on the investment than a dozen chicks from a setting. Quality, not quantity counts.

We appreciate that one stands a much better chance of getting good birds when he hatches a dozen chicks from a setting than when he hatches a much less number, providing the eggs be of equal quality, but this is a "buyer's chance" in purchasing such eggs, and we think that nine out of every ten purchasers of eggs for hatching get more than their money's worth. We have had considerable experience buying both low and high-priced eggs, and the average of chicks raised from a setting was four, yet we have come out ahead on every purchase when the birds matured.

Buyers are entitled to expect that the Breeder use his best efforts to have his eggs as fertile and to reach the purchaser in as hatchable a condition as possible and to be from the stock that he says they will be. Beyond this a Breeder can not be expected to go, although many Breeders make definite guarantees.

A favorite one is to guarantee a certain fertility or that a certain number shall be hatched from a setting. The word "guarantee" seems to us to be rather "stretched" in such cases, although general usage in this matter gives the buyer an idea as to what is meant.

Granting these "guarantees" to be right, how do they work out? One buys a setting of eggs that are "guaranteed" to run ten fertile. In some cases the purchasers have to return the infertiles at his own expense; in others the Breeder takes his word for it, and sends other eggs to make up the number of fertile eggs. On all these the purchaser pays extra express charges. Another guarantee is that eight chicks shall hatch or another setting will be sent at half price. This is really selling eggs at a 25c. reduction from list price, and this guarantee encourages dishonesty on the purchaser's part.

Yet granting all these methods are O. K., when one orders eggs for hatching he wants them so that they will hatch out chicks at a certain time, and it is not generally satisfactory to get a small hatch and have the purchaser replace the setting, even though he do so free; for thus we will get out our chicks a month later than we had arranged to do.

The one fair way to sell eggs is at purchaser's risk, providing the Breeder is honest and uses his very best efforts to have the eggs as fertile as possible, by giving his stock proper care and packing the eggs well so that they will travel through safely.

Eliminating White in Plumage of R. C. Brown Leghorns

Mrs. W. W. Gale

Undoubtedly one of the most discouraging things a Brown Leghorn breeder has to contend with in breeding birds of standard requirements is white in some section or other. When the little fellows begin to get their first feathers, the amateur is astonished to see bars of white in wings, spots of white here and there, and the chicks were hatched from high grade eggs. The higher the grade the more white appears. He is disgusted, sells the bunch for a song, and, well, he does not say real flattering things of the breeder who sold him the eggs. He still has a desire to own the great egg machine, the beautiful brown hen, so he buys again. This time he pays less, and he does not get quite so much white. Perhaps it is later in the season and the chicks get more of nature's food—so his start is made. Now let us consider the cause of this very objectionable white. Our Brown Leghorns were first known as Red Italians. They were spotted instead of stippled, that is the stippling was coarse, uneven and of a reddish color. The main colors being red and black. These were nature's colors. Scientific breeding has modified these colors to shades of brown and slate in our females. Our standard says light brown finely stippled on a darker brown with slate under color. When we get light brown stippling on darker brown surface we have a beautiful brown hen. Should the stippling be brown on a black we have more of a spotted female that fades and is anything but beautiful. Red is a much stronger color element than any other, hence our great trouble comes in trying to rid the females of brick on wings. Thus we work year after year trying to remove the red. When you remove a color you get no color or white. The mean is most difficult to keep for nature is continually trying to take her to one extreme or the other. The Browns afford great opportunity for the careful, scientific breeder. She has fineness of marking not found in any other variety. Fortunately the white does not come to stay. If the little fellows are yarded be very sure to balance the ration. Three very essential things are plenty of meat, green food and shade. Let them run an hour or so each day and they will throw the white chick feathers to the four winds. Bear in mind the fact that an injury to the young quill will usually leave a white tip or spot of white on some portion of the feather. When a foreign colored feather comes, wait until it is full grown, then pull it. Be sure the bird is in perfect health, feed the meat, and the feather grows in the desired color. One more difficulty is moulting the pullet bred male so that the feathers are the proper color. If he is gallant he will see that his ladies have their share, and perhaps a little more of the meat and tender lettuce that has been fed in his pen. He has been bred to produce the light brown female free from red on wing and lacks the strong coloring elements in the blood, hence unless you supply the proper food white is sure to appear. However, do not be discouraged. His breeding qualities are not impaired.

R. C. Brown Leghorn female, owned and bred by Gale Poultry Place, New Haven, Conn.

Our beautiful rich cherry red males are not so much troubled with white. When white does appear it is either from an injury or improper feeding. We are troubled with brown in breast and fluff. This we trace to our original brown breasted Red Italian. Nature still struggling to claim her own. The males we are showing fall far short of standard requirements. We do not seem to breed out the purple nor breed in the perfect stripe in hackle and saddle that we should. Let each one of us try to bring out birds of higher quality. While our variety are natural egg machines, with care and proper breeding we can still increase their egg yield. Really there is no limit to the amount of profit or pleasure afforded by breeding the Great Brown Hen.

Certification of Prizes

Suggestions for a Plan that Will Make Known the Actual Merit of Birds that Win Prizes. A Remedy for Evils that Exist Under Present Conditions.

Here are two advertisements, of the same variety of fowls, and each reads, "Entered only a pair and won two firsts." From this information it would appear that the fowls were on a parity, and that one might as well draw lots to determine from which of the two to purchase eggs or stock. But what are the facts? One of the parties entered his fowls for exhibition at a show held under American Poultry Association rules, and this fact assures that the birds must have scored 88 points each or more. The show was a large one, and the class, in which these fowls were entered was a strong one, which proves that they were the best ones there, and probably scored several points above the minimum of 88 points. The birds at this large show were judged by a poultry judge of national reputation, which makes it positive that they deserve the prizes which they won. The other party exhibited at a small show, held in an obscure village, and not held under American Poultry Association rules; the birds were the only two of that variety on exhibition; the judging was done by a committee of three men, none of whom professed to know anything about fine poultry. The pair might have been sorry "scrubs," fit only for the pot. Although they won first prizes, there is no assurance that they were birds of any merit.

W. A. Smith, Metuchen, N. J., Proprietor Metuchen Poultry Farm. One of the down to the minute New Jersey plants.

Although the American Poultry Association in the paragraph entitled "Scores Entitling Specimens to Prizes," under "Instructions to Judges," in the Standard of Perfection, has done something to insure that a first prize means a bird of merit, it is possible that something more might be done for the protection of the purchasing public. The rule is sufficient, so far as shows held under American Poultry Association rules are concerned, and that doubtless was as far as the association felt it could go. It cannot prevent and it ought not to attempt to prevent, the organization of poultry associations, and the holding of exhibitions under any rules which these associations may deem fit to make for their government. These little independent organizations are a sign of life and growth in the industry, and may, and probably do, in some cases prove the nucleus about which later on larger and better associations grow. They serve to keep alive and to intensify the interest in fine fowls in their localities. They are to be encouraged rather than to be put down with a strong hand. But they do sometimes create just such situations as the one under discussion. Is there a remedy, and if so, what?

The following tentative suggestion is made in the hope that, even if it prove inadequate, it will lead to other suggestions or plans which will meet the situation fully. The American Poultry Association might provide for the certification of prizes won, showing where, when and under what circumstances they were won, who was the judge, what were the scores, if scoring was done, and what were the merits, if comparison judging were employed. To make the plan more definite the association might pass the following rule:

Any exhibitor may upon application have the prizes won by his birds certified by the secretary of the American Poultry Association. When so certified, he may use in his advertisement the expression "Certified Prizes," or any other which will show that they have been certified by the association.

Certification of prizes may be obtained in the following manner. The exhibitor shall prepare a petition, addressed to the secretary of the association, in which he shall state the name, age, and sex of the variety, whether cock, cockerel, hen, pullet or pen; the place where the birds were exhibited, and the date of the exhibition; the name of the person or persons who judged the birds; the prizes awarded; the number of birds in competition in the classes in which he won; whether the show was held under American Poultry Association rules or otherwise; and such other facts as he may deem necessary for the information of the association; praying that the prizes may be certified by the association. To this petition shall be attached the certificate of the secretary of the association holding the exhibition that the facts stated in the petition are true, and shall be accompanied by a copy of the premium list. With this petition he shall send a fee of twenty-five cents for each prize whose cer-tification is asked for, to pay the expenses incident to the desired certification.

Upon receipt of such a petition, if it appears that the exhibition was held under the rules of the American Poultry Association, the secretary of the American Poultry Association shall, upon proper blanks to be provided for that purpose, certify that the petitioner's birds won the prizes and possessed the requisite merits entitling them to the prizes won. If, however, it appears that the exhibition was not held under American Poultry Association rules, the petition shall be referred to a committee of three, one of whom shall be the secretary of the association and the other two of whom shall be members of the executive committee, the said committee to be appointed annually by the president of the association and to be known as the "Certification Committee," and this committee shall determine from the evidence presented whether or not such certification of prizes shall be made. Under no circumstances shall the fee for certification be returned to the petitioner.

The secretary of the American Poultry Association shall provide and keep a book in which all such certifications of prizes shall be recorded. Said record shall contain the essential facts upon which the certification was granted. Any person may obtain a copy of such certification by applying to the secretary, upon the payment of a fee of fifteen cents.

Any exhibitor who shall wilfully make any false statement in his petition, in order to secure the certification of prizes won by his birds, and any advertiser who shall falsely state in his advertisement or advertisements that the prizes won by his birds have been so certified, shall be debarred from exhibiting at any poultry exhibition held under American Poultry Association rules for a period of two years from the date of such false statement, whether made in his petition or his advertisement, unless otherwise ordered by the American Poultry Association.

Such a rule would at least tend to prevent false statements, and, if generally acted upon, would give assurance to the public that the birds, so certified, possessed qualities which would be equivalent to a score of not less than 88 points for a first prize bird. It would give an added significance to the term "first prize," as well as to other prizes. It would increase through the fees received, pay for such additional to some extent the duties of the secretary, but it would, labor. It seems to be within the scope of the authority of the association, and the penalty for a wilfully false statement is just and would be enforceable if discovered in time. At any rate such a penalty would have a deterring force and would probably secure automatically the end desired.

While the evil which such a rule is intended to correct may not be very widespread, and may not result directly in much loss to the public, it is one which, if feasible to correct, should be corrected. But the greatest value to be derived from such a rule is the added significance which will attach to prizes awarded. Every certified prize will stand for something definite; it will mean that the bird is a meritorious specimen, and it will tend, to some extent, to equalize the value of prizes won at large and small shows.

The rule, as has been said, is offered as a suggestion, with the hope that it may call attention to an evil and result in the enactment of some adequate and workable rule for the correction of such evil. It is a matter to be thought over carefully, and accepted, rejected or amended, as a thorough consideration may demand.

All About Exhibiting Fowls

The Kind and Number of Birds to Exhibit. When, Where and How to Exhibit. Who Should Exhibit and why. By H. S. Babcock.

Show the best specimens which you possess. Go over them carefully, standard in hand, if you are not sufficiently familiar with the requirements of your variety to select intelligently without reference to the text. Discard every specimen showing a disqualification. See that the birds are up in weight. And then, if you are a beginner, call in an experienced friend and get him to go over the birds with you, if such an one is where you can get his assistance. In every possible way be sure that your best specimens are selected.

The number to be shown will depend largely upon how many good specimens are left after the necessary selection. If you have a sufficient number, and it is your first exhibit it will be well to show at least one specimen in each class, cock, cockerel, hen and pullet. Never mind about the pen on the first trial. A very good number to show is 1 cock, 2 hens, 1 cockerel and 2 pullets. If you are not a beginner you will study the premium list and show such a number as will give you "a look in" at the most attractive prizes, including the specials, which usually are worth much more than the regular prizes.

Exhibit this season and as early in the season as may be convenient. The earlier you do this the better, for the first exhibit will "give you a line" on the quality of your stock and determine the question of the advisability of exhibiting at other shows.

For a first exhibit select a near by show, provided it is one where good birds will probably be shown and where the judging will be done by experts. But be sure of these two things, for you wish to compete with birds, to win over which will be an honor, and you need to learn the intrinsic value of your stock. It is better to go down in defeat in good company, where awards are correctly placed, than to be victorious over a lot of scrubs, and then to have even such a victory in doubt because of the unskilled judging. A near by show decreases the transportation charges and makes it less expensive for you to attend continuously.

Exhibit your stock in the best possible condition. Clean them up, washing them if necessary. Have them tame. Train them to assume an agreeable pose. Get them up in weight. Then, having done all in your power in the way of preparation, trust the results to the good sense of the management and the good judgment of the expert judges. Don't feel nervous; but if you cannot help so feeling, don't appear nervous. If you are beaten, don't join the band of kickers; there are enough of them already and it will do you no honor to be elected to membership among them. Take your medicine quietly, whether it is victory or defeat. Show neither disappointment nor exultation.

Every breeder should exhibit. That's the rule, to which there may be few exceptions. The veteran should exhibit to keep his name before the public; the beginner to get his name before the public. The veteran should exhibit to show how the thing should be done; the beginner to learn how it is done.

Breeders should exhibit for a great variety of reasons. (a) Because the exhibition is an important factor in making the prices of fine stock. While it is not the sole, it certainly is a controlling factor in such prices. (b) Because the poultry industry demands that the exhibitions should be sustained, and a practical help towards sustaining them is to make them as large and as interesting and attractive as possible. (c) Because exhibition teaches many important lessons which both veteran and beginner need to learn. (d) Because exhibitions stimulate breeders to further and more determined efforts which result in the further improvement in the quality of the stock bred. (e) Because exhibitions furnish meeting places for kindred spirits, interested in the same or similar things, conveying and receiving helpful hints, and resulting often in delightful friendships. (f) Because the exhibition is to a certain extent a mart for trade in fine fowls and many fine specimens are there bought and sold to the mutual benefit of buyer and seller. (g) Because exhibitions furnish the best possible material for advertising and to some extent act directly as advertising mediums. (h) Because to build up a trade in exhibition stock one must secure publicity and the exhibition directly and indirectly contributes to the necessary publicity. (i) Because the exhibition makes converts to poultry breeding, and the number of breeders is by it increased. These fresh accessions become first of all buyers and add at once to the volume of trade. In the end they become producers and add to the wealth of the nation. For these, and other reasons, breeder and exhibitor should become almost synonymous terms, each should imply the other because to be one should mean to be the other also.

In what has been said we have attempted to bring together in a condensed form certain thoughts upon exhibiting in the hope that they might be helpful especially to the beginner who needs more than the veteran such help, and to the end that the number of exhibitors, seeing the many reasons in favor of exhibiting, might be increased many times. When a breeder fully realizes how vital a thing is exhibiting to the industry at large and to his individual share or part in that industry, he must perforce become an exhibitor. Altruistic and selfish motives, usually arrayed in hostility against each other, are, in respect to this one subject, faithful allies, working with a common purpose for the accomplishment of a common end.

BY THE WAY

By H. S. Babcock

The embargo placed by Germany upon the importation of live geese from Russia brings out the fact that Germany annually imports about 8,000,000 live geese, of which seven-eighths come from Russia, and that in the latter country goose-breeding is a very large and important industry.

The geese are driven by the Russians to the frontier stations where they are placed in cars and shipped to Berlin and other cities. The cars used in shipping are built with four decks, each car having a capacity for about 1200 birds. In the busy season special trains are run, consisting of from 12 to 35 cars, and as many as 50,000 geese have been received in a single day at Magervishhof Market, in Berlin.

I was once told by the proprietor of a goose-fattening plant, at Mansfield, Mass., where from 10,000 to 20,000 geese were annually fattened and marketed, that he purchased the larger part of his geese in Canada and Nova Scotia and carried them to Mansfield. And, as I thought of the many acres, which were producing very little income and were suitable for goose pastures, I wondered why more geese were not reared in this section. I still wonder.

Conservation of our resources is a topic upon which statesmen and near-statesmen have poured out a flood of suggestions, and yet in every state there are thousands of acres which are lying practically idle and which could be profitably employed in the rearing of geese. It is surprising that more attention is not given to this industry. The demand for them exists; the pasturage is vacant; but the flocks which ought to dot these pastures with white and gray are lacking. And American goose-fatteners have to seek the stock which their business requires in a foreign land. We may be sound in many ways, but it appears that we, citizens of the United States, are not yet "Sound on the Goose."

We did originally one new thing in the goose industry when we produced the hybrid between the Canada Wild Goose and the African or Toulouse, the so-called Mongrel Goose. For a time this bird was in demand and brought high prices. Those who knew a good thing were willing to pay for the mongrel goose. But in recent years it seems to have disappeared, and apparently is no longer bred. At least it cuts a mighty small figure now in the markets. Too bad. I've eaten it and know. No explanation of its disappearance is forthcoming. If the demand for pure-bred stock has destroyed the mongrel goose that is something to set down against pure-bred stock. The mongrel goose was the only mongrel which ought to have been tolerated, and that should have been not only tolerated, but highly prized. If the demand can be revived, the mongrel goose can be readily produced once more, but how to revive the demand, that is the question.

In producing mongrel geese the most approved mating was that of a wild gander with an African goose. The African goose was selected because it gave the necessary size to the hybrids and was also a good layer. The reverse mating of a domesticated gander with a wild goose was sometimes used, but as the wild goose laid so few eggs it was not nearly so profitable to the rearer, in respect to numbers, and the young were scarcely as large. These hybrids were of course sterile—males—and were fit only for the table. When well fattened and well cooked there were few, if any, fowls so fit for the table as they.

Goose fanciers are conspicuous by their absence. There are dog, pigeon, and poultry fanciers by the thousand but the fanciers of geese are, like angels' visits, few and far between. It is said that the poet Lord Byron used to travel with his favorite goose as a companion, and he, perhaps, might be set down as a conspicuous example of the goose fancier. Here and there, throughout this country there are a few men who really fancy the goose and breed it to produce exhibition points, but they are so few that a goose fancy can hardly be said to exist.

There are two prominent reasons why there is not a general goose fancy. One of these is the fact that goose rearing requires considerable space. No one yet has been able to show that the intensive system, like the Philo system for example, can be applied successfully to this bird. The majority of fanciers are men who have but a limited area to devote to their stock and they could not, if they would, rear these big birds.

Another, and exceedingly important reason is that up to the present time the goose has not shown the necessary degree of plasticity to sustain a wide-spread fancy. Plasticity, the property which enables a living creature to be moulded at will by the breeder, is the foundation stone upon which a fancy rests. Dogs, pigeons and hens possess this property in a marked degree, and the dog, pigeon and poultry fancy is enormous in extent. From a very few wild originals, there have developed dogs there may arise a strong and wide-spread goose fancy, comparable with that which now exists among chickens. This would be more certain to happen if it could be proved that the goose would give as good results under the intensive system as are given by the common fowl. And it may be that through more general breeding the big aquatic bird may so change its nature as to be reasonably profitable in narrow quarters and thus accommodate itself to the needs of the average fancier. This seems the more probable when we remember the changes wrought in the breeding of the duck. It was once thought, and probably in its early domestication the thought was correct, that without a pond or stream duck breeding was an impossibility. But tens of thousands of ducks are annually reared without the supposed advantages of flowing water, As in the old verse, “Mother, may I go out and swim?”

“Oh! yes, my darling daughter,
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb,
But don't go near the water.”

the ducklings are sedulously prevented from going near the water, which, as one prominent pioneer in this industry has said, is positively dangerous and often fatal to the young birds. If such changes have been wrought in the method of rearing one kind of aquatic fowls, it don't seem impossible that a similar change may be wrought in another. And as this change seems to be contrary to the nature of the bird, why may not another change, apparently no more radi-of many types; from the blue-rock pigeon have sprung the widely differing forms of domesticated pigeons; and from the Galus Bankiva have come all the breeds and varieties of fowls. No such variation is seen among the races of domesticated geese—a few breeds, quickly enumerated, have resulted. And, therefore, the goose fancy is a feeble plant, if it can be said to exist at all.

If, however, even a small amount of variation has appeared, it is the promise of still greater variation in the future. Under the circumstances the goose has not had a fair chance to develop the plasticity. Given a better chance through more extensive breeding by the real fanciers, it is entirely possible that the little plasticity now shown may develop wonderfully; that new and improved breeds of geese may appear; and that in time cal than has been wrought in its nature? Simply because it has not as yet been effected, does not render it impossible. Indeed, progress in our day consists largely in doing what our forebears considered impossible. The application of electricity to the production of light, heat and power; the invention of the telephone by which the human voice is reproduced hundreds of miles from its source; the recording of all forms of sound on wax tablets and their reproduction years afterwards by the phonograph; and the partial, at least, conquest of the air by the dirigible balloon and the aeroplane; what are all these but making actual what was heretofore regarded as impossible? And why should we despair, in the view of the constant realization of the impossible, of so transforming the nature of the goose that it may be bred successfully in the strictest confinement? It may be that this change, so necessary to adapt the bird to the necessities of an extensive fancy, is nearer realization than we wot of.

In many ways the goose is an interesting bird. It has length of days at its command, so that one does not have to renew his stock every year or two, but the breeders, once purchased, barring accident, will be able to render good service year after year. It is a wise bird, even though it does seem silly when it stretches out its neck and hisses. And among the Romans it was held in great reverence because it was said that the Eternal City was once saved by the Capitoline geese. This legend, perhaps, may account for the fact that many a goose in our own land is saving (or thinks he is) the country as he lifts up his voice in the discussion of political questions which neither he nor his audience understand. At any rate the real goose, not its base counterfeit, is deserving of more attention than it receives, and it would be well for some parts of the country if many more of these large aquatic fowls were reared.

White Crested Black Polish---How to Raise Them

By Austin W. Carpenter.

Much has been said and written in reference to the difficulties experienced in growing Polish chicks to maturity and of the serious problems connected with maintaining the variety in health and vigor. A general impression has gone out among Poultrymen that the White Crested Black Polish are a fowl of low vitality and that it is nearly impossible to produce them. It is this error that I desire to correct. It is only fair to this variety that a true statement of the facts be submitted for the consideration of those whose fancy runs in the direction of the aristocrats of fancy poultrydom.

I have bred the White Crested Black Polish for upwards of ten years and I experienced study and effort have been able to produce the variety in question with as little difficulty as is experienced in producing any of the varieties of recognized strength and vitality. If there are weak and sickly Polish in our country to-day it is the fault of the breeders and not of the variety. Careless mating with haphazard care and attention will bring any variety of standard fowls to destruction if it is only continued a sufficient length of time.

It is my purpose to call attention to a few of the important features that are essential in the development of a healthy vigorous strain of Polish. My suggestions are made from the results of many years' experience and are given with a view of placing the true merits of White Crested Black Polish squarely before the fanciers who have hesitated in selecting this variety because of the erroneous impressions that have been sown broad cast on the negative side of the Polish question.

Polish must be kept free from lice. The crest seems to be a harboring place for mites and if the crest is not given very close attention it is soon filled with lice and once their position is established they take up the life of the chick or fowl faster than grain can supply the energy necessary to keep the fowl in good condition. Especially is it important that the young chicks be kept free from lice during their maturity. More Polish chicks die annually simply from the attack of lice than from any other cause. It is not a difficult task to combat this enemy. It simply requires a little extra effort and perseverance. Keep the crest of the growing chick sprayed with any of the substantial louse killers and your troubles are at an end. Lard is a good remedy and if applied to the crest quite frequently will rid the fowl of the lice. The lice choose the very front of the crest for their resort and many fanciers in fighting the lice in crest do not attack their stronghold. If you can keep a Polish chick free from lice you have won half the battle for its existence.

Second in importance is the condition of the surroundings in which the chicks or fowls have to exist. It may be true that the Polish cannot withstand the dangers of filth as well as some of the heavier varieties. But any person who will permit birds to be reared in filthy quarters will make a failure of the poultry industry. It is the means to an unsuccessful end in ninety-nine cases out of each hundred. The quarters in which Polish are raised or kept should be dry. The Polish are susceptible to the infections that accompany dampness. No variety should be kept in damp quarters. But above all it is true that the Polish require dry pens and yards. It cannot for a second be used as an argument against their practicability that they require dry surroundings. It is due every variety, Polish included.

The Polish with their large crests have more or less difficulty in utilizing that precious faculty of sight. Many of the large flowing crests destroy the sight of the fowl to a greater or less extent. The plumage of the crest hanging over the eyes becomes wet in drinkings and in cold weather this condition of the plumage against the eye causes the eye to become sore much to the annoyance of the bird. With the eye in this condition the bird does not receive the necessary rations and loses flesh. This trouble can be eliminated in two ways. First, by a determined effort on the part of all Polish breeders to produce a crest that rises high enough in front to leave the eye uncovered as it rounds off to the back and side. Second, the plumage of the crest near the eye may be trimmed without any injury to the crest excepting for show purposes. By trimming the feathers of the crest just above the eyes the sight of the bird can be greatly benefited and the soreness of the eyes cured. It is important to observe your Polish birds with a view of observing if any have the appearance of the eye trouble. Symptoms are easily observed. The bird will move around slowly and in a moping manner. It will quite frequently dig the eye and head with its toes and rub the eye against the body plumage. Immediately these conditions are observed you should go to the relief of the bird. Wash the eye and use camphorated oil upon same.

Lastly, I desire to urge the importance of selecting only the very strongest specimens for breeders. Don't be over-anxious to raise too many chicks. Mate up very small pens with only birds that have every indication of strength and stamina. Be careful with in-breeding. I have found that a thorough and systematic course of line breeding will produce great results. Don't use the weak or sickly specimens.

Polish breeders, let's get busy and demonstrate that the White Crested Blacks possess every bit the vigor of the Leghorn or Plymouth Rock. Let's use only the strongest specimens in our breeding pens this season. Let's give the birds good care, dry quarters and the benefits of our experience. If we do we can fill our pens and exhibitions next season with birds that will lick the Leghorns or Minorcas to a finish. Let's do it.

The AMERICAN LIGHT BRAHMA CLUB'S new annual or catalog is now ready for mailing to the members of the Club.

ARE SCIENTISTS SURE? THE PERSISTENCY OF "ARTIFICIAL" EMBELLISHMENT.

The white crest of the Black Polish many believe to be the result of artificial selection. That this peculiarity is persistent after many generations of neglect and endeavor to breed it out, makes me sometimes doubt whether it is the result of artificial selection. It would seem that it might be accounted for by sexual selection and the female taking, as is frequently the case in other birds, the coloration from the male.

In Farm Poultry several years ago was reproduced a picture of a painting several hundred years old in which very good Polish were depicted. Is it reasonable to suppose that in those days of old, long years of selection had been given to the formation of such an unusual type by poulterers or fanciers of the 14th century? When we have such wonderful variation of form and color and embellishment in wild birds, such as pheasants, parrots, why are we trying to make ourselves believe that all our Hamburgs and Polish are artificially produced from the little jungle fowl?

The LaFleche, a cross between the White Crested Black Polish and Black Spanish, has retained a rudimentary crest, and frequently with white feathers in it. A LeFleche and Andalusian, crossed on Colored Dorking, showed quite a crest, and on her third moult it had some white feathers in it, an evidence of her Polish ancestry. It seems to me that such persistency would not be resultant if the Polish crest were produced by fanciers' effort. The Polish and Hamburgs' wonderful embellishments of form and color, equaling the pheasants', seem more likely to be the work of Nature in her own workshop.

JUST THE TIME TO GET JOHNSON'S CHICKEN BOOK.

Spring time coming right along now when the early starting poultry raisers are getting busy with their chicken plans makes M. M. Johnson's "Old Trusty Incubator Book" most interesting and valuable to get right now. By writing a postal to Johnson, the reader gets this book free by return mail and learns the best facts to know from the successful experiences of over 325,000 regular poultry raising customers of Johnson who use Old Trusty Incubators and Brooders. The book is over 200 pages and hundreds of actual photographs help tell the practical facts you should know.

Johnson leaves it to you and no obligations whether you decide to take a thirty to ninety day trial of an Old Trusty or not. He pays the freight, east of the Rockies, and that far if you live beyond.

He makes Old Trusties on a profit of less than 70 cents, at a price to you, delivered complete ready to hatch with less than $10 anywhere you happen to live.

Write to Johnson, with a pencil on anything at all—a postal will do as well as anything—and he'll send the book.

Say that you read this here if you want to. No matter who you are, it's all the same. Johnson likes to let his old friends tell strangers to him about Old Trusty's work. He'd even rather you'd consider what others have to say than to tell you himself. His book does both.

Address M. M. Johnson, Incubator Man, Clay Center, Nebraska. That's enough. You'll get the book quick—and like it fine.

A Visit to W. H. Truslow's Blue Mountain Poultry Farm

By B. Monroe Posten of the Fancier Staff of Correspondents.

When I was a boy I used to fish and hunt on the ground now occupied by this one of the largest and best equipped plants in the country, so I know how it has grown. When a man hatches 50,000 chicks in a year, you will know that is some work. Well that happens every year at this plant. Why he keeps 1500 breeders over winter and you can see in the cut a likeness to a snow storm.

I found Mr. Truslow had hatched already 460,784 ducks. My, Oh Me! What a lot, and what a lot of work and patience and feed necessary to finish so large an undertaking. The management has spared nothing in making a success of rearing them. I saw 7,000 in one house, three weeks old and the loss had been so small it is not worth mentioning. The heat regulation is so complete, the water supply fresh, the care regular, they could not help but live. Mr. Truslow is business itself. He wants to know and he usually finds out. He knows what's going on, telephone connection with every part of the plant. Electric lights everywhere.

All the latest improved methods are in vogue. A Digester Mill, a wet Feed Mixer that shoots into a wagon 20 bushels per minute and all coming from the bins without handling. Incubator capacity of 20,000 eggs. He used 30 cars of feed last season, costing $15,000.00.

He says he is a fresh air crank. Nothing strange about that nowadays. Success comes that way. All houses are open as a saw mill with curtain fronts. He has 2900 two-year old layers in S. C. White Leghorns. What a sight! Besides he has hundreds of pullets that are not used in breeding until they are hens, so 3000 eggs a day is easy, yet not so easy after all. I guess you would get tired about the third day.

He has lately started Broilers and capons, using White Rocks. The males for capons, the females for soft roasters.

All ducks are tagged with an orange tag, and find ready sale, as the celery fed duck is of first quality. He has a nice catalogue. You can secure same by writing for it and mentioning the Fancier.

Columbian Plymouth Rocks

Again Outclass All Competitors

At America's premier exhibition, BOSTON, JANUARY 1912, (where the annual meeting of The American Columbian Plymouth Rock Club was held), in competition with the foremost breeders of the country and likewise the best birds that could be produced, our "ROYALS" on only SIX entries simply out-classed all competitors by winning:

1st cock, 1st and 6th cockerel, 1st pen, 2nd pullet and 3rd hen. The American Columbian Plymouth Rock Club's beautiful specials for best colored male and best shaped male. Frank L. Platt's $10.00 cash special for best cockerel in the class, the Association's silver cup for best surface colored male, and the President's cash special, the greatest of all honors, for the best Columbian Plymouth Rock in the show, male or female.

A grand total of more first prizes than all other competitors combined; more Special Prizes than any other exhibitor and every First and Special Prize offered on males.

This great Championship record stands alone and unequalled—an achievement that has never been approached, where like quality and numbers were represented, by any other Columbian Plymouth Rock exhibitor in the history of the Boston Show, and proves beyond all question of doubt the superiority of our "Royals" and substantiates the fact that they still remain undisputed champions.

Our birds possess QUALITY in every sense that the term implies. Excellent layers, large in size, typical Rock type, fine head points and the clean "Royal" color, free from the smoky, splashed effect in body and fluff feathering that is so undesirable.

EGGS FOR HATCHING

Our breeding pens for 1912 have been mated with great care. They not only contain the sons and daughters of our "Royal" Champions, but are headed by noted sires themselves. From these we will sell eggs at $10.00 per 15 and we urge every Columbian Rock fancier who appreciates extreme high quality to write us before purchasing elsewhere. Other breeders may sell you eggs for less money but we believe the quality represented in the eggs we furnish can not profitably be duplicated at a less price. Handsome catalogue free.

A $30.00 Hen House for the Town Man or Any One Else

After visiting many houses and working in not a few I am offering you one for your consideration. Very many questions have been solved in this house for me. It is built 10 feet wide and 20 feet deep.

How to begin: First get 8 posts, two feet long; set them on end for the floor is to rest on them 10 x 20, a tight board floor.

Then we are ready for the sides and ends. The front is 6 feet high, that is above the floor. The rear 4 feet high, the sides 20 feet long, slanting from 6 feet to 4 feet. Then the roof being on, you are ready to plan the inside.

The drop boards are in the rear two feet from the floor, slanting towards the front a trifle, to make easy work cleaning them.

The roosts are two inch stuff on 2 x 4's made to be taken out. Like all other things in this house, they are all loose so we can clean once a year, like some farmers do. They take a bath once a year whether they need it or not.

The rear is made of two doors two feet by five feet on hinges that allow the door to open up and fasten to top, leaving one-half of rear open. This is where we get the eggs out, also where we clean out. Everything is swept out this door.

The nests being under the drop boards afford a dark place for the hens to lay, avoiding many broken eggs and are a big help to keep from egg eating.

Another door is made on long side in the middle so we have a little shelf four inches high on each side of the door for the water vessels, the grit and shell boxes near at hand so you don't even have to go in, to water or feed.

The front is wired small mesh to keep the sparrows out. A frame covered of muslin, on hinges, drops down on very cold nights.

Now the lower part is boarded up in winter, except the front and half of one side. They are sash for light. In summer, however, the whole lower part is open, covered with wire.

It takes 750 feet of matched lumber,

THE $30.00 HEN HOUSE.

1st preferred Hemlock, as the pine we get with terps taken out is short lived for out doors. Sixteen 2 x 4's are also necessary and 150 feet of rough lumber for enclosing bottom.

In this house you will see 60 Leghorns of the winning kind. Three things you will find in the house, you won't find in all hen houses. 1st, plenty of fresh air, plenty of light, plenty of room. Forget it not, forget it not.

Here is another advantage of this house. No wet feet to soil the eggs and this kind of a two foot fence will keep the Leghorns in all right.

I had to have some help in building it, but counting my labor, the house cost me all complete and painted one coat, $30.00.

It is by FAR the easiest to work in and the most satisfactory of all I have seen or used.

Mating Single Comb Buff Orpingtons

By A. J. Street, Forrest Hill, Md.

More than likely 90 per cent. of the birds that enter the show room for the season of 1912-13 will be hatched during the months of April, May and June. The birds that are destined to wear the blue are carefully raised; every precaution is taken to insure growth and color of plumage; every care is taken to prevent too much exposure to rain and unshine, in fact every known practice that has been written upon by the Poultry press of two continents will be used. As for myself I do not profess to be any authority on breeding all varieties of chickens as some claim to be, but for the readers of Poultry Fancier I will give my way of breeding and raising S. C. Buff Orpingtons for the show room. I think perhaps I can speak on S. C. Buff Orpingtons with some authority, as I have bred no other breed for the past six years, and my winnings in the largest and best shows of this country during that time is proof sufficient I have them pretty close to standard requirements. In the first and most important part is the selection of the breeders. Many writers have different opinions on this all important part. My system is, first select one-half the breeding pen, which is beyond a doubt the male bird. He should be as pure in color all through as can be possibly found, good under color, red eye, not too short on leg, as I have found better results from what I call a medium length of leg; in fact a good exhibition color male with legs just a trifle longer than the standard calls for is my selection. In shape a fraction longer on back than the standard requirements. Now after the selection of the male, if he be a cockerel, I select hens as near the size, type and shape as I can get to meet the standard requirements, free from any suspicion of white in any section, but if dark just a fraction dark in tail I do not care. Of course you must know buff fades with age. If a hen is of the right size and shape and had the right color when a pullet do not discard her, but never mate a male or female unless they have red eyes no matter how perfect they are in other sections. On the other hand, if your male is a cock, select pullets of the same even color from head to tail as the color of the breast of the cock bird. Each pullet should be selected with special care as to size, type and shape and as near standard requirements as is possible to obtain. Never forget the red eye and never breed a pullet with a shawl that is a dark hackle. It is far better to breed one dozen birds mated as I have described than to breed from one-hundred picked up any old way.

Now having selected your breeders, I yard them in a house 6 x 8, nine females to one male, with yard 40 by 100 feet. If no shade trees in yard you should provide artificial shade by means of canvas stretched over a couple of tressles, so that they can gather under out of the hot rays of the sun; fresh water, oyster shells and grit should be before them all the time. I feed wheat in the morning and whole corn at night, one quart of each to ten birds, and a dry mash in a hopper all the time which consists of the commercial mash which you can buy in your nearest market. That is my method of feeding the breeding yards.

Now as to the way of feeding chicks. For the first 48 hours I keep them in a box or basket covered with a good warm blanket and just let them sleep. I then have the brooder warmed up to 90 degrees; put them in and their first feed is oatmeal and warm water. I teach them to eat and drink and to go back and forth from the warm part of the brooder for a couple of days; then their feed is commercial chick feed, with crumby corn meal dampened with skim milk once a day in connection. Give the young fellows a run of a short distance from brooder; after they are four or five days in brooder gradually increase the run until they have full swing of the farm, and after they are large enough to eat whole grain all you have to do is to watch them develop in to the future prize-winners of the fall and winter shows.

South Plainfield, N. J. the Home of Sunswick

Poultry Farm's Orpingtons.

Wherever Orpingtons in Buff, White or Black, are popularly known the name of "Sunswick" Farm spells superlative quality. There is no breeder of Orpingtons in this country, whether of Buffs, Whites or Blacks, whose name stands for a squarer deal or higher quality than the name of Rufus Delafield, proprietor of the "Sunswick Farms." Never has a complaint of any kind been registered at our office against him. His record is untarnished, his birds of the highest quality, and his friends and satisfied customers are legion. The Sunswick birds have been scientifically line bred for many years and some of the most noted Orpington winners of the age, in all three varieties bred by Mr. Delafield, have been produced on the Sunswick farm. His pens contain fifty-one of this past season's first prize winners, together with their champions and their sons and daughters that have won many honors in the greatest shows of this country. No wonder the boys fear Sunswick birds in show competition, and that a battle royal is fought out in every Orpington alley wherever they are shown.

Mr. Delafield has spared neither time nor money in his endeavor to give to the world the best in Orpingtons, and the splendid success he has achieved is very gratifying to all admirers of this very popular breed. The show room record of the Sunswick Orpingtons since 1907 is one of which Mr. Delafield may well be proud. Their victories in such shows as Madison Square Garden, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Allentown, Hagerstown, Grand Central Palace, N. Y., Baltimore, Md., Augusta, Ga., and Indianapolis, Ind., and many other important shows run well above a thousand.

The Sunswick Orpingtons are reared under ideal conditions. The two large laying houses are 25x100 feet each with central alley way from which one can pass into the pens on either side. Every essential to an up-to-date laying house is in evidence. Excellent ventilation, clean, dry quarters and abundance of sunshine. The soil is of a sandy, porous nature and the climate ideal for poultry raising. The chicks are mostly hatched by hens in one of the best arranged and most conveniently equipped buildings of its kind to be found anywhere. There are eight smaller laying houses divided into four pens each with large runs and ample shade. The chicks are raised in colony houses and given unlimited range. They have access to abundance of shade in the woodlands which border the outskirts of the cleared sections of the Sunswick Farm. This plant is located in one of the real beauty spots of "Old" New Jersey and naturally affords every facility for an ideal poultry farm. The Sunswick Farm is located at South Plainfield, N. J., on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and is convenient of access from all parts in the East. If any of our friends can possibly find time to visit this plant we would advise them by all means to do so. It will surely prove a profitable and pleasant trip and one you will remember with satisfaction in years to come. Mr. Delafield's ad. always graces the pages of the Fancier. Look it up and write him for his catalogue and mating list. It will help you to larger success and greatly enhance the credit side of your ledger.

"OCULUM!" THE WONDER POULTRY REMEDY OF THE 20 TH. CENTURY.

The writer esteems it a duty as well as a privilege to add his testimonial to the merits of this great poultry remedy. We have used Oculum in our yards for over two years and have found it to be the most valuable remedy we have ever used, for swelled heads, canker, chicken pox and roup in matured fowls, as well as a preventative and cure for white diarrhoea in little chicks. We unhesitatingly recommend it to all of the Fancier's readers, and our friends, and feel certain they will hold it in as high esteem as we after they have given it a fair and impartial trial. Mr. John M. Fleming, No. 10 So. Front St., Philadelphia, Pa., has the exclusive agency for Oculum for the greater part of Pennsylvania, all of New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. ## A Gold Bug With Feathers or How C. H. Brundage, of Danbury, Conn., won World Wide Fame.

Years ago when the Golden Wyandottes were "Golden" in name only, Mr. Chas. H. Brundage, of Danbury, Conn., conceived the idea and undertook the tremendous task of perfecting this breed and gave to the world the BEAUTY fowl of the 20th. century. How well he has succeeded has been written in Golden letters upon the annals of many of our largest and most popular poultry shows. He laid a sure foundation and wrought out, in his quiet and unostentatious way, results of which others hardly dared to dream, and when the door of achievement had swung out upon its hinges and the well conceived and long looked for results had been accomplished, he swept down on Old Madison Square Garden like a pent-up river that had over-run its banks and carried away the most coveted prizes in the Golden Wyandotte alley. His victory was a real eye-opener to his competitors and well-earned satisfaction to Mr. Brundage. Three years in succession has his famous "Gold Bug" worn the crown of Blue in the Garden's Golden Alley, and as a breeder of blue ribbon winners he stands to-day without a peer in the Golden Wyandotte World. Mr. Brundage values this wonderful sire at $20,000 because he has sold enough stock and eggs from the pen he headed to pay the interest on $20,000 at 6 per cent. for two years in succession.

In dealing with all his customers Mr. Brundage has kept in mind these general rules which have been a settled policy of his business from the start, viz: Be helpful, and answer all questions kindly, intelligently and carefully, whether there is an order in it or not. Gives to his customers the benefit of his doubt, believing it is generally safe to leave it to him on his honor. Show your patrons you want to be fair and nine times out of ten he will come back in the same spirit. No wonder Mr. Brundage has succeeded; no wonder the entire poultry fraternity holds him in such high esteem. The pity is that more men of his stamp are not engaged in the fancy poultry business. The question of "honor" would naturally adjust itself and a crown of increasing glory would settle down upon the brow of the entire fraternity.

We gladly recommend Mr. Brundage to all who may be interested in his popular breed and bespeak for him a portion of their patronage.

Sunswick Orpingtons Buff, Black and White

SPECIAL NOTE—We reserved for our own use more S. C. Buff, White and Black Orpington Cocks and Cockerels than we will need for our breeding pens. They represent the cream of hundreds reared from our 1911 matings of line bred birds whose sires and dams are the best blood lines in America and the noted prize winners at America's greatest shows. These males offered at sacrifice move quick prices is just what you need, and by breeding from one of them will add 50 per cent. increase to the value of your flock. Sunswick Orpingtons have won a reputation from ocean to ocean and these grand birds are now offered you at such prices that you cannot afford to let this opportunity pass. Tell us what you want to pay for a breeder of these great blood lines. We have a bird to please you and we will describe him. Order to-day. If you are in urgent need send $5 or $10 and bird will go forward by next express. And if he don't please you, send him back. We are in the business to stay and please our customers. And sometime some day you will regret it if you don't get a Sunswick male. We will also state that we can spare a limited number of females, at special low prices. This done so to start with the Sunswick Orpingtons. Our special offer on cockerels only appeals to those who have already Orpingtons. BUT WE GO FURTHER, and sacrifice choice females in order that those starting in the business may have the opportunity of starting right and let us say

THE RIGHT START SPELLS SUCCESS. WHY?

Because inferior stock and weak blood-lines cannot produce young stock that will command a profitable price. And now concerning

Eggs for Hatching

The above saying is true as every successful poultryman will tell you, and I want to place my 1912 mating list into the hands of every man and woman interested in Orpingtons of the better kind. When you start, start right or don't start at all. This statement I make for your own welfare. Send for handsome descriptive mating list. Free for the asking. Mention Poultry Fancier when you send. Respectfully yours,

The Old Buckeye state is noted for great men and great enterprises. Her achievements along industrial and commercial lines hold a very unique and important place in the development and steadily increasing influence of our great country. As a manufacturing and commercial center she stands in the front ranks of her greatest Sister states. Her valleys are lined with richest soils, and her hillsides are graced with some of the finest orchards in the world. Within her borders are many of the most historic battle-fields of our nation's earlier days. Over her plains and through her valleys the Red men reared their Teepees and wooed and won the hearts and hands of Nature's dusky-browed maidens, and watch the smoke from their Wig-wams curl in fantastic forms up to the "Blue above." Within her confines, from Chillicothe on the North to Marietta on the South those ancient, mysterious and ever interesting people known as "The Mound Builders" builded their historic burial grounds and attained to a considerable degree of civilization before they mysteriously disappeared from these quaint scenes of activity, leaving only a fine, strange, practically undecipherable hieroglyphics in clay-built mounds to acquaint the nations following of who they were, whence they came and whither they had gone. The appearance and disappearance, of these historic people, we are told, occurred ages before the "Star of Empire" directed the footsteps and blazed the path-way of our forefathers as they pressed their way onward to this splendid land of promise.

It was during these early and strenuous days that the ancestors of D. M. Covert, one of Old Ohio's most noted Barred Rock Breeders, bequeathed to the Middle West their share of its splendid history. It is, therefore, no surprise to us that the name of D. M. Covert stands for integrity in the Barred Rock World and that his "Highland" Barred Rocks are in such universal demand wherever the merits of this popular breed of fowls are known. For over fifteen years Mr. Covert has been breeding Barred Rocks and gradually, climbing to the top with his "Highlands," until to-day his birds challenge the admiration of the foremost breeders of the world.

In both under and surface barring they command the highest admiration of expert authorities, while in shape they have never failed to satisfy the most exacting. His old customers of a dozen years standing are constantly sending in "repeat orders" and seldom fail to commend the high quality received for their money. His 2d ekl. at the recent Cleveland show was conceded, by practically all competent judges, to be one of the most extraordinary birds of the age. All of Mr. Covert's this season's winners are in his breeding yards and his customers will enjoy an equal chance with him to secure birds of the highest merit. Our readers can rest assured that there are no "hidden" or private pens on this farm from which Mr. Covert secretly breeds his prize winners, for we know he is advertising eggs for sale from each and every pen at the Highland farms, and every order will receive Mr. Covert's own personal oversight, whether the order calls for one setting or one hundred. Every customer will be treated with the same courtesy and their wants attended to with equal care. Mr. Covert's plant is located near Willoughby, Ohio, in one of the most attractive localities and historical sections of the old Buckeye State and is ideally situated for poultry raising. His stock is all "farm raised" and enjoys unlimited free range, insuring strong, healthy chicks. His average percentage of fertility is running extremely high this spring and the chicks are great big, fluffy fellows that send a thrill of deep satisfaction through the heart of the owner. All of the buildings on the Highland farms are built after Mr. Covert's own conception of ideal poultry comfort, and the unusual results he has been able to accomplish in the general health of his birds as well as the large percentage of egg production, fully justifies his methods of housing and care. We esteem it a compliment of rare quality to number D. M. Covert among the Fancier's friends and we trust that any one who is interested in breeding Barred Plymouth Rocks will not forget the "Highlands" when placing their orders for either stock or eggs.

J. S. Brady, Parkers Landing, Pa., Who Helped to Make White Orpingtons Famous.

Among the old Keystone State's most prominent and trustworthy White Orpington breeders no one is more popular or widely known than John S. Brady, of Parker's Landing, and we doubt very much whether any other specialty breeder in this country has attained higher distinction or more pronounced success than he when one considers the period of time Mr. Brady has devoted to this greatest of all American industries. His White Orpingtons have the richest English Orpington blood coursing through their veins, as well as the best America has produced. His Lady of Quality, winner of first at the recent great Philadelphia Show, has won twelve straight firsts without one break in the leading show of the country. At Philadelphia Mr. Brady received $100.00 for this wonderful hen. His patrons are coming in all leading shows of the United States and Canada and his business is crowding into the front ranks with marvelous rapidity. Mr. Brady is as greatly interested in the success of his customers as he is in his own victories, and many times has made great sacrifices to aid others who are struggling on to the front. His mails are full of complimentary letters from satisfied customers and he points with a true fancier's pride to the confidence and friendship of his old customers. Mr. Brady's whole farm is devoted to the raising of big prize winning White Orpingtons and nothing pleases him better than to talk over the merits of his favorite breed with his patrons and friends, and to give the amateur a "boost" in the right direction. Mr. Brady is among the Fancier's oldest and most trustworthy advertisers and it is with a large degree of pride that we call the attention of our friends to his advertisement in this journal. Write Mr. Brady for whatever you need in the line of stock or eggs. You can depend upon kind and courteous treatment at his hands.

A CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR.

Poultrymen throughout Pennsylvania will be pleased to learn that Dr. G. W. Garber, of Mt. Joy, has bowed to the will of his friends and has consented to become a candidate for State Senator from Lancaster and Lebanon counties. This will be particularly good news for the poultrymen from Lancaster and Lebanon and we are inclined to think that the poultrymen from all over the State of Pennsylvania will hold the poultrymen of Lancaster and Lebanon counties responsible for Dr. Garber's defeat.

We all know that the Penna. Branch of the American Poultry Association is working hard and has been for a large state appropriation for the Poultry Industry and we all know that Dr. Garber is one of the back-bones of the Penna. Branch of the American Poultry Association, respected and trusted by every member, even to such an extent that they would not even listen to his declining the office of election commissioner, but was unanimously elected.

Dr. Garber is well qualified to fill this office, a business man of rare intellect, a successful business man, who has the welfare of the community at heart. Poultrymen, it is up to you, particularly up to the Poultrymen of Lancaster and Lebanon counties. Your support is needed at this time if it was ever needed before.

Lay politics aside, go to the polls and vote and support Dr. Garber for State Senator. He is worthy of your vote and we know that the Doctor is going to leave nothing undone to bring about a state appropriation for the Poultrymen of the State of Pennsylvania. As our readers well know, Dr. Garber is Superintendent of the Poultry Department of the Lancaster County Fair and under his efficient management has made that show one of the big four of Pennsylvania. The Doctor will do his duty. You do yours.

Misguiding and Mislead- ing Dope.

Yes, that is all this misguiding and misleading poultry literature is worthy to be called. And it's a dope that is doing more harm to the American home, to the American family, than cocaine or opium.
All over this broad land of ours there are thousands of men, women and children who will bear witness to this broad sweeping statement. These witnesses are they whose minds and thoughts were led astray by books and systems that led them to believe that thousands of dollars could be made from a few hours in the back yard or from so many hens on a little farm.

They sold their comfortable home, they staked their last dollar on the teachings of the poisonous dope only to realize that the poultry business must be learned the same as any other business. Yes they staked their last dollar and lost and who suffers? Is it the man who sold them the system at so much per system? No, it is not. It is the man's family, his wife and children! They go back to the city or town and declare the whole business a farce, when it is not. The poultry business is a good business, but it must be learned the same as any other business.
And here we have the Great American Poultry Association standing by and permitting this great poultry business to be ruined by men who are writing systems that lead the people to believe that a few hundred hens will net so much a year, figures so astounding that it represents double the amount of their present income. What is the A. P. A. going to do with the systems? Or what can the A.
P. A. do with the systems? It looks as if they should at least do something, take some action in suppressing an evil that is bound sooner or later to cause a setback to the advancement of the poultry industry. We dare say that the time is not far distant when some authority or power higher than the A. P. A. will investigate. There is a day of reckoning coming and woe to the systems.

Select Your Judges Now.

Poultry Associations should select their judges now and not wait until several weeks before the show. A number of judges advised us that their dates were filled already and in selecting judges it would be well to remember that there are plenty of good judges outside of the editorial ranks, and also that the rank and file of the exhibitors are opposed to soliciting-editor-judges, and many exhibitors will steer clear of shows judged by soliciting-editors, and, of course, we don't blame them for doing so.

Rule 17.--Some More Things to Consider.

Suppose my reader you were working for some firm at so much a week, getting along nicely and living comfortably and along came some fellow that could kill two birds with one stone, do your work and still draw his own salary. He would be drawing two salaries and what would you draw? (Dick Oak would say flies.)
Just apply this to the soliciting-editor-judging question, who in nearly every instance is drawing a nice salary from the journal he is working for. Now, Mr. Exhibitor, let me ask you a question. When you show your birds in competition with large advertisers or prospective large advertisers, and you cannot afford to advertise, do you think you get a fair shake? We leave you to answer this question, but we dare say you would prefer to exhibit where the judge has no friends to serve or enemies to punish.
And again we believe that every honest judge, the same as any other working man, is worthy of living wages and we do not believe that our judges should be compelled to encounter competition from soliciting editors who are drawing fat salaries from poultry journals. We stand pat for Rule 17 and we stand pat for live and let live, and we believe the reign of soliciting-editor-judges is about over; for the few that are supporting it even admit that the sentiment against soliciting editors is sweeping the country and we dare say that if this all important question was to be settled by a mail vote Rule 17 would pass by a two to one majority.

But what's the difference, it is going to pass anyway, and Nashville will record the defeat of the soliciting-editor-judges. Vote for Rule 17.

Deserves Credit.

We cannot help but compliment and give much credit to C. M. Ferry, the noted breeder of Black Langshans from Summit, N. J., for what he has done in the interests of this great breed. We doubt whether any man who ever bred the Asiatics has worked harder or done more for any breed than what C. M. Ferry has done and we doubt whether any man breeding the Asiatics ever spent more money in bringing the merits of the breed before the American people than has C. M. Ferry, and it is certainly with pleasure that we can speak Editorially of the success he has met with.

It is a great question as to whether C.
M. Ferry made the Black Langshans famous, or whether the Black Langshans made C. M. Ferry famous. We let our readers to be the judges, but one thing sure and certain, the staying power of Mr. Ferry is certainly to be commended and we hope that the Black Langshans will reach the top mark of public favor and popularity, which place they justly deserve.

Success to you, Mr. Ferry, in your work.
You are deserving of all that is coming your way.

Golden Laced Wyandotte Breeders Awake.

We cannot help but note the great interest that is being taken by the Golden Laced Wyandotte Breeders throughout all parts of the country and the demand for the Golden Laced Wyandottes to-day is really greater than the supply.

This grand and beautiful breed is well deserving of the popularity that it now has. Considered by many to be the most beautiful of the Wyandotte breed and the equal and superior of many of the other Wyandotte variety, indications are that there will be more Golden Wyandottes bred in this country this year than ever before, and with the increasing demand, the awakened breeders are going to reap a Golden Harvest from the Golden Wyandottes.

When we analyze this situation, we cannot help but give much credit to that genius, Chas. H. Brundage, who has stood by the Golden Wyandottes through thick and thin and to-day is considered one of the foremost breeders in the land and no one is more deserving of the Golden Harvest that is being enjoyed by the breeders of Golden Wyandottes than is our friend Brundage, considered the E. B. Thompson of the Golden Wyandottes.

We also are compelled to give much credit to J. S. Pennington, of Plainfield, Ill., who is State Vice-President of that state. Mr. Pennington has also contributed his share to the popularity of the Golden Laced Wyandottes. Then we also cannot help but speak a word of praise for Simmons Bros., of Stockton, Ill. All these gentlemen have done a little more than their share in bringing the Golden Wyandottes up to where they are to-day.
Such loyalty to the breed as the above

What the Inland Poultry Journal Says.

Theo. Hewes, Editor of Inland Poultry Journal, Indianapolis, Ind., says: The February issue of the Poultry Fancier is before us. It has changed its dress and most of its underclothes, and has come out with a brand new cover and a lot of inside improvements. F. W. DeLancey is the editor and manager and his new address is Sellersville, Pa. Frank has made remarkable changes in the makeup of the pages and the February issue is full of good readable articles. Take a look at it. Your name on a postal card addressed to Poultry Fancier, Sellersville, Pa., will bring you a sample copy.

We can't help but congratulate Theo. Hewes on the excellent journal he has been serving his subscribers with. It contains real hen sense and the makeup and illustrations are above par. Theodore is delivering the goods we must admit. Send for a copy. It is worth your while.

Now in Our New Quarters.

This issue of the Poultry Fancier was printed on the new equipment at Allentown, which was especially installed to print the Fancier. We were considerably handicapped the past several issues and were several days late on account of placing the new machinery and getting it in running order. Now since everything is running smoothly, The Fancier will be out on time, and our subscribers can rest assured that we are going to do our level best to give you the best journal that is published. Our new editorial and business office at Sellersville is completed and we are now prepared to handle everything promptly that comes our way. When you come to Allentown or Sellersville come in to see us.

What Poultry Success Has to Say.

The following editorial appears in "Poultry Success," Springfield, Ohio, A. D. Hosterman, publisher and Henry Trafford, editor. We cannot help but appreciate these kind words coming from the former employers of the writer. It was on Poultry Success that the writer got his schooling in journalism. The writer has often said that A. D. Hosterman was the best and kindest employer he ever worked for, and all that the Poultry Fancier is and will be can be traced back to the kind and wise teachings of A. D. Hosterman.

POULTRY FANCIER.

Poultry Fancier, which recently changed hands, and is now under the capable and efficient management of Mr. Frank W. DeLancey, is already making rapid strides to the front. The issues already published by the new management reflect great credit upon Mr. DeLancey and his associates, and especially when so little time was available for getting business and material. The headquarters of the Fancier will hereafter be at Allentown,

What Poultry Has to Say.

The following editorial appeared in "Poultry" published at Peotone, Ill., and edited by that Napoleon of Journalism, Miller Purvis. You will note that Mr. Purvis is inclined to think that editor-judges will be put to the bad and let us hope so.

"POULTRY FANCIER" SOLD.

The "Poultry Fancier" has been sold by Frank Heck to Frank DeLancey, who has severed his connection with "The Poultry Item." Why DeLancey left the "Item" is no business of ours, but we venture the opinion that that journal will miss him a whole lot. When DeLancey took hold of the "Item" it was not much to brag about but under his efficient management it has become one of the really big publications of the poultry world. We predict that the "Fancier" will soon be heard of in a way that it has never appeared before. DeLancey explains to us that his editor-judge flight of fancy has been taken too literally. He has no condemnation for editors who judge and do not solicit subscriptions or advertisements at the shows where they are judge. As that let us out we forgive him, but all the same we think the editor-judge folly will be perpetrated at the next meeting of the Association. However we are not going to lose any sleep over it but let DeLancey live with his own conscience for putting editor-judges to the bad.

Thanks to the Boys of Hanover.

During the past four months upwards of 15,000 subscriptions were received at our office and we appreciate them all and one lot made the writer feel particularly good. They were from the Hanover shoe factory and they were from shoemakers, the men who make the famous Hanover shoe. Now the writer is an old shoemaker himself, and knows all the many ups and downs of the business and all I can say is I will do my best to give you as good a journal as you are giving us in the way of a shoe.

Equal Rights and Justice to All.

We believe that every advertiser is worthy of the same consideration, and we believe this consideration should not be governed by the size ad. he carries, but that it should be governed by merit, and that was our idea and one of the reasons why we put those words on the outside lid. Now let it be known that every advertiser will receive the same consideration and that Poultry Fancier will publish the cuts of classified advertisers as well as those of display advertisers. That is our interpretation of equal rights and justice to all.

REGAL EGG MACHINES

During the years I have been perfecting the exhibition qualities of my Regal White Wyandottes, I have not neglected the utility qualities. I have always maintained that beauty and utility should be combined and by means of the trap-nest. I have made wonderful progress. "Dorcas" my champion layer (record 241 eggs) is an exhibition hen absolutely white and splendid in shape. She could win in keen competition. Some of her daughters have records over 200 and nearly all would be called exhibition females. Customers all over America testify to the persisting laying of Regal females. I submit the following letter—

Mr. John S. Martin, Port Dover, Can.

Madison, Ga.

Dear Sir:—I am enclosing affidavit which will verify my previous letter to you. I have two other pens of White Wyandottes FROM TWO OTHER LARGE BREEDERS IN THE U. S. and am frank to say your pens have laid for me ONE THIRD MORE EGGS PER HEAD than the other two pens. Another thing I set 13 eggs from this big layer and hatched 13 strong, healthy chicks which are all doing fine. This will prove two things, viz: that a show hen can be bred to lay and at the same time produce fertile eggs. I am very much pleased with your idea of mating and I know that YOU SIMPLY HAVE THE GOODS. With best wishes, I remain, Yours very truly,

W. W. Sanders.

Crusader III
A Boston Winner. April 22nd, 1911.
I, W. W. Sanders, Proprietor of the White Bird Farm, do solemnly swear that one of my hens, "Rosebud" by name, bought of John S. Martin, Port Dover, Ontario, Canada, in February, 1911, laid forty-five eggs in succession in forty-five days, beginning February 28th, 1911 and finishing April 13th, 1911, and is still laying although she skipped several days after the 13th inst.

The above was determined by the trap-nest system.

I also swear that I set thirteen of the above hen's eggs and hatched thirteen strong, healthy chicks.

Pens 18, 19 and 20 are composed of my trap nested, heavy laying stock. Every female is snow white with good shape and the males are bred from heavy laying females and have show records. Eggs from these pens are $5 per 15; $15 per 50 and $27 per 100.

Utility eggs from healthy surplus stock are $9 per 100; $17 per 200 and $24 per 300.

The Ancona as a Fancier's Fowl.

By W. H. Stetson, Member Internal Ancona Club.

In mentioning the Ancona to some people recently, as being one of the very fanciest of fancy fowl, they expressed surprise, and asked, "Isn't that one of those new breeds we are just beginning to hear about?" The Ancona is very, very far indeed from being "one of those new breeds." The question is asked doubtless because of the fact that Anconas have been kept for so long by persons purely as past-time, or for pleasure, always having in mind, of course the large number of big white eggs they produce in the winter, but not keeping them for strictly commercial purposes. This doubtless explains why the Ancona has not been advertised nearly so extensively as other breeds, but now that several breeders have taken hold of the Ancona with the end in view of keeping them for commercial purposes, and breeding fancy and utility birds for the market, and selling Ancona eggs for hatching, they are fast becoming better known, and as a result of the very limited advertising that has been done by a few of the more prominent Ancona breeders, the number of people who keep Anconas has increased in the last few years in leaps and bounds. Un-

And yet, while its colors are in such marked contrast they are perfectly harmonious throughout.

I desire to digress for a moment to say that the term "fancy," as I understand it, and as I use it here, as applying to poultry does not signify a bird valuable only for its fancy points, nor do I believe any one considers "fancy" poultry, regardless of what the breed may be, in that light, but from the point of view of its usefulness as well as its fancy points.

In other words, to make myself clear, no one would think of keeping, or breeding any breed of poultry which did not possess some claim also of utility, a bird that will supply either meat or eggs, or both.

To begin with, the Ancona has a plumage which can be equaled only by few other breeds, and is certainly not surpassed by any other breed. It is a rich black, which in the sunlight is a greenish sheen or tint, with small white spots flicking the whole plumage of the bird, like snow drops upon a background of black velvet. The "Standard" specifies "each fifth feather to be tipped with white," but thus far no perfect birds, as to this particular requirement have been produc-

Poultry Industry Now On A Business Basis

Increased profit is today, in an intelligently operated poultry plant, a certainty. This is not theory. It is due to a difference in methods. Please read the facts. See how plain and simple are the principles. And how unailing.

The Secret

The great cost in running a poultry plant is the chicks that die. Every chick that pips a shell bears a percentage of the expense of operating the entire plant—insurance, taxes, wages and interest charges. So the first step of business certainty is a method of handling chick life from embryo to colony house whereby a profitable percentage will live. That step was taken 36 years ago by Mr. W. P. Hall.

through the open slatted construction of each egg compartment bottom. Temperature, moisture and oxygen (fresh air) are controlled by the incubator utilizing natural physical laws. Thus conditions are perfectly balanced as in Nature. So hatches not only average bigger but also a larger percentage of all chicks hatched live and grow.

Some Experiences

One customer writes: "Thanks to the Hall, we are now making money." A New England customer says: "Our total loss, up-to-date, out of 853 chicks has been 21, which is not quite 2½ per cent." Another writes: "Your machine enabled me to accept an order for 150,000 lbs. of ducks for the New York market." A Western customer has so built up his business that his hatching capacity is now 60,000 eggs. Consider how important are these facts to you.

Correct Brooding

The Hall Brooding System is just as vital an improvement to you as The Hall Mammoth Incubator—especially at this season.

Our 72 page catalog covers the principles of Hall equipment thoroughly. Write for this catalog. Read every page of it. See for yourself how valuable a business opportunity Hall equipment offers. If you have a business letter head, please address us on it. Mention this paper. Be sure to ask for catalog.

til these few breeders commenced to advertise and send out their circulars telling of the wonderful characteristics of the Ancona many people who had been keeping poultry for years never even heard of the Ancona, to say nothing of having any enlightenment upon its good points.

The Ancona combines in its many good characteristics all that any fancier could desire.

In the first place it is a bird of exceeding artistic beauty. In the second place it is a bird of exceeding grace. Its outline is very petite and its curves are in themselves the highest expressions of grace.

It has a combination of color which is something marvelous, and especially is this true where one admires a contrast.

How You Lose Profits

Nature endows each fertile egg with just so much vitality. We cannot add to it. We must not take away from it. Yet ordinary incubators do. They have many faults. One is lamp fumes in the cellar. The greatest is lack of incubator ventilation. Thus the incubating chicks breathe air that is largely carbon dioxide; poison-laden with the waste products from their own bodies. Such chicks have spent, while incubating, a large part of their vital force battling for life. So those hatched from eggs not having great vitality soon die.

The Improvement

The Hall Mammoth Incubator is hot water heated by a small self-regulating patented furnace, connected to a chimney. There are no fumes of any kind. The incubator efficiently ventilates

ed. That is the ideal plumage to which the best and most careful and painstaking Ancona breeders are aspiring. Their combs and wattles are a deep blood red. The eye a deep bay. Their earlobes are pure white. The upper mandible of the beak is yellow, shaded with black. Their legs are yellow, or yellow spotted with black. As to shape,—and there is a point which comes to my mind as I write, upon which I desire to touch, and that is the expression one frequently hears, "The Ancona is the same shape as the Leghorn." Now, that is not due, as many of the uninformed might suppose, to the Ancona lacking in a shape and outline distinctly its own.

It is simply due to the existing conditions, as recited in the first part of this article, viz: the fact that the Ancona has not been advertised as other birds have been, and has not been bred so widely. The Leghorn, on the other hand, has been very widely advertised, and as a result very widely bred, and I believe the Leghorn family is to-day the most popular of all varieties or breeds, simply because they have received the benefit of such world-wide advertising. So it is only natural when one is asked about the shape of the Ancona that one says the Leghorn shape to convey to the inquirer some idea, not an exact idea, however, of the form or shape of the Ancona.

In reality, the ideal Ancona is somewhat heavier than the Leghorn, both the male and the female, and both the male and the female Ancona have outlines differing markedly from the outline of the Leghorn. The female Ancona has a somewhat long body, and therefore a somewhat longer back, of the type generally termed "the egg body" than the Leghorn.

As stated above the Ancona has not yet reached perfection as a fancy bird, so there is ample room in which the ability of the breeder of the fancy can be exercised. In individual cases it has surpassed the egg record of any other breed.

The writer thoroughly believes that on account of its great beauty, its great domesticity, its economy of keep, its hardiness, and its wonderful qualities as an egg producer, the Ancona is destined to be, and that, too, at no distant day, one of the very foremost breeds of poultry in the point of general popularity in the world. I say "in the world" advisedly, because the Ancona has been bred in all climes, and it seems to do equally well wherever placed.

A FEW HOURS WITH COOLEY, OF PITTSBURGH.

During the Pittsburg Fanciers' Association show I had the pleasure of spending a few hours with James J. Cooley. I had often heard of the White Orpingtons bred by him and made it a point to see him and his stock, and to say that I was surprised at the quality of stock I saw is putting it mildly. I have seen a few White Orpingtons in my travels and I have yet to see a finer cock bird than the one I saw at Mr. Cooley's. In breast and back I think him just a little bit better than anything I have ever seen. The females are par-excellence, and I predict that some of next season's prize winners are going to be raised from his matings. His plant is not a large one, but it has quality. We can not help but recommend Mr. Cooley to our readers, and above all, we can guarantee a hundred cents' worth for a dollar. And we predict that Mr. Cooley will in the not far distant future have a much larger plant, where he will have ample room to meet his growing demands. Success to you Mr. and Mrs. Cooley.

A Correction.

F. A. Faulds, the well known Minorea breeder of London, Ont., Canada, wishes us to announce that the printers made a mistake in his mating list. The cockerel heading the 4th pen $5.00 eggs was printed as second when it should have been 5th.

MR. MCGREW NOT A CANDIDATE.

When I met Mr. Reese V. Hicks at the Madison Square Garden Show, in December, I told him that I would not be a candidate for President of the American Poultry Association. I still maintain this position and I must decline to be a candidate for two reasons: First, my time belongs to my employer, the International Correspondence Schools, and to the five thousand poultry students directly under my charge. Second, I cannot see my way clear even to attempt to give the time to the business of the Association that would be necessitated by the position of President.

I wish to thank the members of the Pennsylvania State Branch for having endorsed me for their candidate. I wish to thank all those who cast their vote for my nomination, all members of the Association for their many acts of courtesy, and the poultry press for the words of kindness expressed in my behalf.

I hope that the vote of the Association will be cast for Mr. Hicks for President and for Mr. Campbell for Secretary, and that all members will take hold willingly to make the American Poultry Association bigger and better than ever before.

Very truly yours,
T. F. MCGREW.

Scranton, Pa., March 12, 1912.

ROUPENE TO THE FRONT.

Mr. Wm. M. Whiting, East Orange, N. J.
Dear Sir:—You will no doubt remember having treated one of my "SILVER CAMPINES" with "ROUPENE" for Congestion of the lungs, while in the Scranton Quality Show Room. At the time of removing this bird from the room I was advised, by what I consider one of the best breeders of the state, not to remove her from the room as she would surely be dead the following morning. After treating her again I removed her to my yards. I placed her in a training pen, and treated her as per your instructions, and within the short space of time of less than a week I placed her in the breeding pen. I consider her to-day one of my best breeders. While receiving treatment in the pen this pullet was laying as usual.

I should have written to you before, but I wanted to convince myself as to the quality of your goods. This I have done, and I must say that I would not hesitate a single moment in giving it to my highest price bird, "ROUPENE." You sure have the goods in "ROUPENE."

Thanking you for your kindness in treating this bird in the Show Room, and wishing you all the success in the world with "ROUPENE," I beg to remain,

Respectfully yours,
E. STANLEY BETTERLY.

P. S.—I am to-day enclosing one of your "ROUPENE" folders with all mail sent out by me, so you can understand just how highly I appreciate your "ROUPENE" in my yards.

NEW SELF-RAISING GATE.

Should any of our subscribers be looking for an extra heavy gate of the Self-Raising type, we would advise them writing to The Brown Fence & Wire Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, for their gate catalogue.

This company is manufacturing these gates and are using High Carbon Galvanized Steel tubing about two inches in diameter for the frames, and extra heavy No. 9 Galvanized Wire for the filling, making the gates absolutely rust and waterproof.

They claim there is nothing in the market that begins to compare with these gates. They also claim they are low in price, compared with any similar gates offered and that they possess features that no other Self-Raising gates have.

The Brown Fence & Wire Co. also makes all kinds of farm fence, poultry fence, lawn fence, in fact, a fence for every farm purpose.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

It is often said that you cannot get something for nothing, but the G. E. Conkey Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, are really giving away something of real value. It is a book on poultry breeding which is very complete in all departments. Its chapters on diseases of fowls are especially valuable. It also describes their many poultry remedies but they take up but twenty of the eighty pages in the book. The other pages are brim full of information, with illustrations of and plans for buildings, roosts, etc. The regular price of this book is 50c, but if you will mention POULTRY FANCIER when you write them they will send you a copy free. Address the G. E. Conkey Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

WILLOW BROOK FARM, CATASAUQUA, PA.

Very few people in the poultry business and particularly in White Orpingtons have not heard about Mrs. J. W. Holton and her Willow Brook Farm. Several weeks ago we had the pleasure of visiting this place. We found it even beyond our expectations. The farm is situated about one mile from Catasauqua and is beyond all doubt one of the finest in that locality. We find the buildings modern and down to date, and those buildings contain some of the very best White Orpingtons we have had the pleasure of seeing. Well, why shouldn't they? As they are a representative lot of the best blood lines in America, and we are all familiar with the show record made by Mrs. Holton in competition with the great breeders. She has always had an ambition to furnish Americas best blood lines at prices within reach of the masses, and a glimpse at her advertisement this month will convince you she has not fallen short of this mark. And we predict that within the next year Willow Brook Farm will be heard from in a different way than what it has in the past. Developments will soon be coming. See the ad. of Willow Brook Farm in this issue.

Brady's S. C. White Orpingtons

The biggest winners of the season's show. To enumerate our winnings at Williamsport, Philadelphia, Kittanning, Nashville and Pittsburg is unnecessary at these great shows, they met competition from the North, South, East and West, they met the country's greatest breeders, they were victorious. They have proved themselves to be the biggest winners of the season.

NEVER BEFORE
have better S. C. White Orpingtons been yarded, representing the best blood lines in England and America, birds that have been bred right, mated right and will breed right. To be successful. The cause of failure is poor blood lines which produce poor results. It costs you no more to deal here than elsewhere and Crystal Quality will put you on the road to success.

You Must Start on a Concrete Foundation.
Send for illustrated catalogue. Eggs, $5, $10 and $15 for 15. Eggs from pens headed by English Lord and White Chester 15. Stock for sale at reasonable prices. Mention Fancier when writing.

TALK A. P. A.

The great thing the American Poultry Association needs is publicity of the right kind. You as a member can give it that publicity by talking to your friends and telling them of the good work the A. P. A. is doing through its members, its branches and its committees.

Tell them how it is making a fight for better express rates, and what is even more important, better express service. Tell them that it is, through its officers and committees, making a fight for a parcels post which will give better express facilities and give two methods of sending many small parcels. Tell them how its Branches in Missouri, New York, New Jersey, Kansas, Ohio, Illinois and other states have been able to secure appropriations running from $5,000 to $90,000 each. Tell them how it expels members who are dishonest and will secure a fair and just settlement of disputes between seller and buyer. Tell them how by joining the A. P. A. they can wear an A. P. A. button, print the emblem in their ads. or on their letterheads, and thus have a live, progressive body of 4,000 poultrymen behind them, to say nothing of the backing of the poultry clubs and poultry show associations. Tell them that the A. P. A., besides publishing the Standard has supervision of the show rules, supervision of the judges and through its supervising care has developed and is developing the poultry industry.

Make your self a committee of one to secure at least one new member during the next three months.

TEN REASONS FOR JOINING THE A. P. A.

First. It is the most influential, largest and the strongest poultry Association on the American Continent.

Second. It stands for a square deal and fair treatment for everyone in every branch of the poultry business.

Third. There would be no pure breed poultry business if it were not for the A. P. A. Every bird you sell at a price above market poultry is due to the A. P. A.

Fourth. Being a member is the guarantee of your reliability, as you can print the A. P. A. emblem in your catalog and ads., and wear the button of the Association, etc.

Fifth. As a member you can compete for valuable silver medals and the $20 gold medals, which are offered at each Branch show. These are for members only. The winning of one will pay for a life membership. In addition you can also compete for the beautifully engraved three-color special diplomas offered at all shows that are members of the A. P. A. for A. P. A. members only.

Sixth. By becoming a member your name is announced not only through this Bulletin, but throughout the poultry press thus placing your name permanently before hundreds of thousands of poultry breeders.

Seventh. The Association is taking up the work of getting our breed Standards. You owe it to your breed to help this good work by joining the Association.

Eighth. Through its committees the Association is working for better express service, lower express rates and adjusting express questions. A special committee will help you secure satisfaction from the express companies.

Ninth. One-half of your life membership fee of $10 comes back to your own Branch to be spent right at home in promoting the poultry industry.

Tenth. The American Poultry Association is taking up the matter of the Standards for market eggs and poultry, thus developing this branch of the industry.

Take these ten reasons to some breeder in your community who is not a member of the A. P. A. and ask him to join.

To the Editors of Poultry and Farm Papers.

Won't you kindly publish these ten reasons and add the address of the Secretary, S. T. Campbell, Mansfield, Ohio?

WHAT THE A. P. A. IS.

As you know, the American Poultry Association is the very backbone of the poultry industry. It publishes and revises the Standard, the book by which all poultry is bred and judged. It has and is working for the education of the farmer and fancier alike. It is fighting for better show rules, better express service and lower rates. By all this and by issuing the Standard it makes the purebred poultry business possible. Without it we could not judge poultry, would have no poultry shows, or poultry business and yet you, a wide-awake, intelligent fancier at heart, and breeder, have never come forward and paid your membership fee as your share toward the upbuilding and maintenance of this largest live-stock organization in the world.

The Association needs you as a member. We must have organization. How can we get it if those interested don't come forward and join?

There is only one kind of membership to the American Poultry Association and that is "A LIFE MEMBERSHIP," the cost of which is $10. Five dollars of this is paid back to the Branch in your state and can be spent for the advancement of the poultry industry in any way your members wish to vote to spend it.

Get your friends to join.

Our old friend Charley Vass, of Washington, N. J., breeder of Single and Rose Comb Buff and Single Comb White and Black Orpingtons certainly appreciates the high quality of the Poultry Fancier and has swung into the front ranks of the Fancier's yearly advertisers. The high, uniform quality of Mr. Vass' birds needs no comment from us. His show records in the leading shows of the country speak with sufficient eloquence of their worth to satisfy the most exacting fancier. Mr. Vass is one of New Jersey's oldest and most reliable breeders of pure bred fowls, and is worthy of the highest esteem and fullest confidence of all our friends. We are glad to welcome Mr. Vass among our advertisers and sincerely trust his investment with the Fancier will result in a splendid volume of business. Mr. Vass has printed a very unique mating list, which is free to all who are interested. Better write for it to-day, to-morrow may be too late.

A Few Hours With Men Who Raise Chickens.

The Twin Oaks Farms, A. G. Stauffer, Palmyra, Pa., Prop., is living up to its splendid motto, "A Dollar's value for every dollar received." Their hatching eggs and day-old chicks are proving a grand success in the hands of their customers. Eggs are hatching splendidly and the chicks are developing with remarkable rapidity. This fact does not surprise the writer as he well knows the conditions under which the parent stock are kept and the care and attention they receive at Mr. Stauffer's hands. The best of results must follow such devotion to business methods and insure every one of Mr. Stauffer's patrons the highest possible value for their money. Mr. Stauffer breeds S. C. W. Leghorns, Barred Plymouth Rocks, Indian Runner Ducks, White Plymouth Rocks, White Wyandottes, Columbian Wyandottes, White Holland and Mammoth Bronze Turkeys. Send for his catalogues. They are brimful of good things a true fancier loves. Look up Mr. Stauffer's ad. in the Fancier. His prices are very attractive for the quality of stock and eggs he is offering for sale.

The Perkasio Poultry Co., Perkasio, Pa., is one of our big, reliable S. C. White Leghorn breeders. This responsible firm is incorporated under the laws of the state of Pa., and owns one of the largest poultry farms in the country. Their record for honest dealing is very enviable, indeed, and the rapid strides they are making toward the front ranks of the industry is a source of great satisfaction to their many friends. Their Leghorns are the big, long-bodied type, the real egg machines of the 20th century. Their prices on hatching eggs and day-old chicks are very reasonable indeed for the quality of stock they raise. All eggs sold for hatching are taken from the same pens that they hatch from for themselves, as well as for the day-old chick trade. Customers are therefore sure of getting good, hatchable eggs and chicks from big, healthy, vigorous birds. There is absolutely no risk in sending your order to this firm for either eggs or chicks. Write them and mention the Fancier.

The Mount Pleasant Farm, Mount Pocono, Penna., W. A. and H. H. Lerch, proprietors, is sending out one of the neatest and most practical pamphlets we have ever had the pleasure of reading. The title is "A Few Points for Amateur or Expert." It is free and we advise all our readers to send for it at once. This firm has a standing second to none in the Keystone State, and their record for usque dealing is very enviable, indeed, and the hundreds of testimonials from thoroughly satisfied customers in all parts of the country is complimentary in the highest degree.

This firm breeds Single Comb White Leghorns exclusively, and their yearly output in hatching eggs and day-old chicks is simply enormous. Their incubator capacity is 24,000 at one setting. They will distribute during this present season at least 50,000 day-old chicks and an equal number of hatching eggs. They sell eggs for hatching from yearly hens only, usink all their pullet eggs for market purposes.

Their incubator cellar is 32x90 feet, with feed, office and packing rooms on the first floor. They have two thoroughly down-to-date brooder houses, 24x120 and 24x40 feet, respectively. The pullet house is 20x100 feet; also two yearling hen houses, one 16x200 and the other 16x174 feet. They do all their hatching with a Hall Mammoth Incubator and brood their chicks with the Hall brooding system.

Carpenter & Carpenter are famous the country over for their high quality White Crested Black Polish and Buff Wyandottes.

Mr. P. J. Thompson, of Youngstown, Ohio, one of Ohio's popular Single Comb White Leghorn breeders, has put out a very neat and attractive mating list for 1912. We are well acquainted with Mr. Thompson and know he has some of the best White Leghorns in the Buckeye State, and are fully satisfied that no one will be disappointed with eggs or stock purchased from him. His birds have genuine Leghorn shape, splendid tail carriage, and are as white as snow. We trust our readers will write Mr. Thompson for his mating list and carefully note his matings. The number of pens are small, but the quality is great.

Among Pennsylvania's most prominent R. I. Red breeders the name of E. L. Gelatt, Proprietor of Glenwood Poultry Plant, Jermyn, Pa., stands out with increasing prominence. His Reds have won the highest awards in such shows as Scranton, Pa., where Red quality was of the highest order. Mr. Gelatt will give his customers eggs from the pens from which he breeds his own prize winners and will duplicate all unsatisfactory hatches at one-half the regular price. His yearling cock bird, winning second in a large class of S. C. R. I. Reds, is a very fine individual and worthy of every hit of praise he received.

His first Single Comb hen and first pullet at Scranton, Pa., stood out distinctly from the rest of their class, while all of his winning Rose Comb Reds were worthy every honor they received. Write Mr. Gelatt for his mating list and tell him the Fancier advised you to do so.

The North Side Poultry Co., Wm. A. Bartholomew, Mgr., 343 N. Seventh St., Allentown, Pa., breeders of White, Buff and Columbian Wyandottes, White, Buff and Black Orpingtons, S. C. White, Brown and Buff Leghorns and a number of other Standard bred fowls, also agent for Hall's Mammoth and Buckeye Incubators, are running a conspicuous ad. in the Fancier and are offering some very attractive prices on breeding stock, hatching eggs and day-old chicks. This firm is perfectly reliable in every way and none of our friends will hesitate to place their orders with them for anything they have to sell. Their chicks are hatched in Hall's Mammoth Incubators and are great, big, fluffy fellows, brimful of vitality and sure to thrive if given half a chance. Send for their circular and price list. A two cent stamp will bring it to your door.

As a foundation for their flock they chose birds from what they consider the world's best flocks of Single Comb White Leghorns and from their first year's raising they selected the foundation of the Mount Pleasant Farm strain. Only one bird in ten was considered worthy of space in their breeding yards and from that time on to the present they have retained only the largest specimens they could produce, birds with long backs, deep breasts and great vigor. All their birds are raised in open front houses, 2,000 feet above sea level, in an extremely cold climate, thus insuring great vitality, immunity from colds and early maturity. This firm is carrying a yearly ad. in the Fancier and we heartily recommend them to our friends.

We have the 1912 mating list of the Roseland Poultry Farm, Chas. W. Switzer, owner-mgr., South Euclid, O., before us, and it "Sort O" puts a few degrees on top of our "hen fever" that makes us feel restless at our desk and thrills us with the longing to lay down our pen, flee from the office and hoard the first train for So. Euclid, O., and use whatever persuasive powers we possess to convince Mr. Switzer that he ought to part with at least a few of his wonderful Buff Orpingtons and give some of us Eastern chaps an equal chance to meet him in the show room competition! But after more deliberate thought, and the "lapping" off of these extra degrees of temperature, we have about decided to save our carfare and devote what might otherwise prove to be lost time to a brief description of these Roseland Orpingtons, that our friends may know what caused our fever to rise so rapidly and our pen to grow languid upon the page before us. To begin with, Mr. Switzer is a real poultry fancier and a perfect gentleman, whose chief aim in life is to do by the other fellow as he would have the other fellow do by him if conditions were reversed. Never has any man knocked at his door without admittance and a congenial welcome. Never has any fancier had occasion to regret any transaction with Mr. Switzer. He is always frank, courteous and on the square. We would that more men of Mr. Switzer's stamp graced the ranks of the world's greatest industry. The Roseland Buff Orpingtons have been bred in line for years. They combine rare shape, wonderful color and breast size, qualities hard to produce in any breed of fowls. Mr. Switzer's winning male birds are among the very best we have ever seen. His cock birds heading his 1st and 2nd breeding pens are, we believe, equal to any in this country while the cockerel heading his 3rd breeding yard, winner of first prize at the great 1912 Cleveland, O., Show, is one of the greatest individuals produced this last season.

The Locust Poultry Farm, Canton, Pa., Specialty breeders Single Comb White Leghorns, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Newell, Proprietors, are certainly making attractive history with their favorite breed. Their winnings during the past season have been very pronounced indeed and they have every reason to be proud of their record. They breed D. W. Young's Strain only and paid him the highest prices for their foundation stock. They are direct descendants from Mr. Young's famous Edward VI and Edna, and have been line bred with the greatest care. Prince Edward, 1st cock at Williamsport, Pa., heading their 1st breeding pen and Crystal Prince heading their 2nd breeding pen, are breeds of the highest quality, great, big fellows with low, well spread tails, white lobes, with plumage as white as snow. Their females are of the same high quality as their male birds and their matings this season will, without doubt, produce many of the best Youngsters of the coming season. They have a number of very excellent cockerels for sale from $3.00 to $10.00 each and if any of our friends are in the market for extra good stock at very reasonable prices they will make no mistake by sending their orders to the Locust Poultry Farm, Canton, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Newell have a very helpful mating list ready for distribution and will be pleased to send it to all parties interested in White Leghorns. Don't fail to write for it at once.

The Roseland mating list is replete with quality and we urge our friends to write for it at once. We are sure it will not only prove interesting but profitable as well. The Fancier's advertisers believe in a "Square Deal," and the Fancier stands back of every one of these.

Feeding, Care and Management of Breeding Stock

By J. A. Snyder, Buff Leghorn Specialist, Arona, Pa.

Having been requested by the editor to write an article for your paper, I will try and give you our experience on the above subject to the best of my ability. Now first I will give you my method such as used on our extensive Leghorn Farms. In the morning we feed commercial scratch feed in litter, about two quarts to one hundred hens in litter which is about five to eight inches deep. This will make them walk for their feed, also give them plenty of exercise.

At ten o'clock we distribute our dry mash, consisting of 200 lbs. of Bran, 100 lbs. of Middlings, 75 lbs. of Corn Meal and 100 lbs. of Beef Scraps. This makes up our dry mash. Then about one o'clock the attendant in charge distributes green feed, consisting of Cabbage or Alfalfa. At four o'clock we give a feed of whole corn. This completes the feeding for the day. In addition we constantly keep charcoal grit and oyster shells before them at all times; also plenty of fresh pure water is supplied in founts which are cleaned every evening with boiling water. This keeps your drinking founts clean at all times, thus preventing disease.

Now we come to the pens. These are all of modern type and are well ventilated, with board floor. Now, dear readers, I will just say a few words in regards to floors in poultry houses. Many people will advocate dirt floors, some will say cement floors. Now I will say we have tried dirt and cement and will say for dirt floors they are a nuisance, while cement floors are too damp and may cause failure. Will say for board floors there is nothing can equal it. You can put your litter on it and when you clean it out you can scrub clean and thus it will always be clean and sweet. In cleaning we always clean our houses every morning, and remove litter on floor every three months. The houses and yards are thoroughly disinfected every three weeks in winter and every two weeks in summer. This will prevent any germs from infecting your flock, also keep off all lice and mites.

If you keep your houses and yards and stock in good condition, and plenty of good feed and water, and a good house with plenty of fresh air you are sure to get eggs when prices are at top-notch, but don't expect eggs or good strong chicks from stock kept in damp and close quarters; for remember plenty of fresh air and the right kind of feed makes healthy stock and healthy stock produces strong fertile eggs that will produce healthy livable chicks every time providing your original stock was from a strong and vigorous strain.

Now I will just add a few more words on gathering eggs to be used on hatching. These should be gathered every three hours. In cold weather this will prevent them chilling and you will get a larger per cent. of chicks in your early hatches. Keep your eggs in a temperature of about seventy degrees and turn every day. This prevents them from losing fertility in hatching qualities. Eggs should never be kept longer than ten days or two weeks; we usually keep ours only about five days for shipping and for our own use only about ten days. This insures strong fertility.

Now in closing this article let me simply say we have tried to be brief and not build air castles, but give you plain unvarnishable facts that if followed will produce results.

Will just say to all beginners and others any information we can give, be free to write us at any time. Be brief and to the point, and I will try and give you advice to the best of my knowledge and ability. Always address me personally this will insure you a prompt reply.

DO CHICKENS PAY?

Does it Pay the Professional Man to Have Chickens?

By S. H. Johnson, Bloomsburg, Pa.

One often hears this question asked. I, of course, say it does. Since most of us are like the man from Missouri, I will endeavor to show that it does.

A few general thoughts before we enter upon the proof. It is first necessary that one get the best stock to start with. Which is the best variety? I reply by saying that there is no "best." The kind that one likes best is the kind that he can make a success with. He will not be able to even keep the ledger balanced with any other kind.

One would not think of keeping a horse that he did not like. Neither would he think of living with a woman that he did not care for. The same is true of chickens.

FAIRVIEW FARM, J. S. Haupt, Prop., Box F. Easton, Pa.

After the breed has been decided, buy only the very best that can be bought. It does not cost as much to keep a strain of good, vigorous, healthy chickens as it does to keep the run-down kind. Then, too, the results are so much more pleasing.

After they have been placed in the pens

the work begins. The more work one puts upon them the greater the results. Of course, one can not keep as many chickens in town as he could if he were living in the country, but he can receive larger results.

I have been in the school room for nineteen years and have had a pen of S. C.

Black Minorcas for the past fifteen years. I spend at least an hour each morning and evening with my chickens. While I do not have such a large number, I do have them of the very best and have all of them so tame that I can pick them up at any time or place. That is one of the secrets of the business. No hen will do as well if she is scared every time one comes near the pen. Besides the results being far better if they are tame, it is a pleasure to have them gather around you even if they do get on one's shoulders at times.

In keeping a record of the chickens from year to year I always charge them with every cent spent for feed, straw, repairs to the pen and, in fact, with all outlays because of having them. If I build larger I charge the expense to them. On the other hand, I always give them credit with all the eggs they lay, all that I kill and eat, but do not credit them with the "droppings" which I use on the garden.

I not only charge them with the feed from the time they are hatched but charge them with the eggs set each year.

It would be too long and tedious a job to give the record for the full fifteen years so will give it for the past few years. I will not give it for the past year because I built larger last year, entered several shows, sold several cockerels at good prices besides the large number of settings of eggs sold at $2 and $3 per setting. This, as you see, would not be fair because every one does not enter the work to such an extent. In the years named in the following I simply had the chickens for the pleasure and the privileges of having our own fresh eggs. In 1908 my nine hens gave me a profit of $11.18 over and above $6.12 spent for repairs and improvements. In 1909 I had a net gain of $19.18 from the same number of hens. In 1910 I had profit of $34.66 from 9 pullets and 4 hens. Then, too, I still had the chickens clear besides. These years are simply a repetition of the years before. I have never had a year that they did not more than pay for themselves.

As I said before, last year I doubled my number, built extra pens and yards, attended four shows, sold stock and eggs and you would be surprised to see the gain after all expenses are paid.

Of course, no one could have the success if they did not keep the pens clean. I clean all roosts every morning except Sunday, am always careful that the nests, water cans, etc. are well cared for. I have a change of feeds and plenty of it.

So much for the money side of it. But there is a side that can not be figured in dollars and cents. It is the health that comes from the work in the pure fresh air each morning and night. It is just the opposite from the school room and is better than medicine. I am better able to enter upon my duties in the school room than I would be if I were to lay in bed until just time to get there.

There is also a great pleasure in having one's own produce. It is far more satisfactory to be able to have a fresh egg—and know that it is fresh than to be compelled to depend upon the store eggs.

History of the Partridge Rocks

By the Originator of this Breed, S. A. Nofztger, N. Manchester, Ind.

From early childhood I have been a "poultry crank" and at the age of seven embarked in the poultry business with a trio of "Shanghais," but along with natural love for chickens came admiration of Partridge color. So intense was my fondness for this color that it bordered on adoration and before I had reached my teens America's leading breeders of Partridge Cochins (the only breed of Partridge color then in existence) were well known to me, and continually for twenty-eight years Partridge Cochins of quality were in my yards.

The wonderful beauty of the old Partridge Cochin attested to the genius of those who built and perfected the breed. But there came a crisis in the history of the dear old fowl that seems almost tragical to some of us. The tragedy was the introduction into this country of the English, or full feathered Cochin, to eventually push aside our old favorites.

ladder of popularity by accepting massive feathering at the cost of utility and beauty.

When the English Cochin ascended the throne some other use had to be made of our more beautiful scanty feathered fowls. Either they must be crossed with their English cousins, to improve English color and make the American feathering more massive, or sent to market. This was quite evident, since fowls of wonderful color could not win without heavy feathering.

Securing fowls of the English type I crossed them with my American Cochin and by careful selection succeeded in perfecting a strain of Partridge Cochins with sufficient merit to win at the largest shows from the Atlantic to the Pacific, these fowls possessing the true American color and massive English feathering, but it was evident that as feathers increased popularity decreased.

For a time after the introduction of the English Cochin there were separate classes made in the show room for the two types but soon one was dropped and the massive Cochin was king. Americans had succeeded in producing the most beautiful Partridge color in the world and then permitted their English cousins to push their favorites down the

During my experience as a breeder thousands of admirers of the color had told me that while they were the most handsome of all chickens, yet their feathered shanks were objectionable, and it was but natural that it should occur to me that a popular breed second to none, with yellow shanks free from feathers, could be made by breeding in the opposite direction. After giving this much thought I was more deeply impressed than ever and decided to make the trial.

Whether the effort was successful or not is not for me to say. I would prefer to have a jury, made up of true fanciers of all breeds, to decide the matter. Their verdict would approve the superior qualities of Partridge Plymouth Rocks. The labor of making this breed has been pleasant, because of an innate love for poultry and enjoyment of nature, yet it has been arduous and at times discouraging.

To many warm friends among the true fanciers and poultry judges and editors I owe my success, whatever the degree may be, for without their encouragement work might have been abandoned.

The production of Partridge Rocks was begun in 1898, although previous to that date Partridge Wyandotte Sports only were known. The foundation stock consisted of Partridge Cochin hens with scanty leg feathering and (then) Indian Game males.

Often it has occurred to me that the road to success might have been shorter and the path less thorny had only Partridge Cochins been bred and their feathers been bred off the legs. However, that is problematical and efforts along that line might not have resulted in failure.

On the first day of April, 1896, a Cochin hen hatched twelve chicks for me, four cockerels and eight pullets, which weighed just one-hundred pounds the 18th day of December following. They were wonderfully good in color and fine general purpose fowls, but were the scanty feathered class. One of these, "Georgine," laid twenty-seven eggs in twenty-eight consecutive days and as an egg machine her type had few equals.

It was this hen, a full sister and two half sisters, that were selected because of superior qualities for both utility and beauty, for the foundation of the new breed and each mated with an (then) Indian Game Cockerel, to begin the production of something new in the fancy poultry.

Although the cockerels for the first cross were carefully selected and had characteristics bordering on the desired type as nearly as possible yet the results were not entirely satisfactory. The feathers had been greatly reduced on shanks but game station and very dark color predominated. After much consideration it was decided that from all the available stock the best cross to overcome these defects would be Golden Wyandotte. Procuring large, vigorous, long-bodied cockerels with single combs, the cross was made which greatly brightened male color but brought mottled breasts in male and clay in breast of females.

The third year nine matings were made by selecting only my own fowls for foundation and breeding back to the original stock. The results were satisfactory in the main, but from time to time the progeny of many of the matings were all discarded, as it soon became evident that this plan was the shortest route to the desired goal. It is surprising how few of the many matings really figured in making the breed, but the large number was always good judgment since this gave opportunity for better selections and a number of fair specimens were sold for breeding purposes.

Several of the best were placed on exhibition and they met with so much encouragement from the poultry fraternity that for 1901 more matings were made than ever before. The improvement in the quality continued but was not as rapid as had been hoped for and when, with change of residence, came the necessity of making fewer matings than ever for 1902, the outlook was somewhat discouraging.

In the midst of the season of 1903 my entire lot of Partridge Rocks, breeding youngsters, were sold to a party in Wisconsin who was manager of a Keeley institution and probably my efforts in the origination of the breed would have ended then and there but for the fact that this gentleman was transferred to another institution within a few months and wrote asking if I wanted some of the old stock. Procuring stock of him and other customers the work was taken up in 1904 more energetically than ever, with the result that the youngsters of this year were fairly pleasing.

The year 1905 found me in a position to make more and better matings than for sometime. This season saw marked improvement in the breed and for the first time critics of Partridge color began to look favorably upon some of the new fowls. It was this year that appeared the great "Generosity," by some called "The Hambletonian 10 of Partridge Rocks" and at some of the minor shows where my fowls were shown they were very highly complimented by the judges and fanciers.

Probably the most noticeable step forward was shown in the matings of 1908. For the first time my pens of breeding stock could be pointed to with pride, and critical as I was of Partridge color, it was now evident to me that the breed was destined to become a practical and popular one. The interest in it was great while good specimens were not rare and the comparatively small per cent. of rank culls was gratifying. Some of America's leading judges were already scolding me for not exhibiting at the largest shows.

Feeling much encouraged and anticipating showing at some leading exhibitions, the matings for 1907 were made in larger number of pens, as well as more females in each yard. The careful system of pedigreeing, as had been done from the very beginning was continued. My labor for the year was rewarded with great success in quality and number of youngsters, but very bitter indeed was my disappointment when illness of myself and family during the entire fall and winter of 1907-1908 prevented me from showing. Even after making entries at the Jamestown Exposition I was compelled to forfeit the entry fees.

However, "there is no cloud without its silver lining," and even to misfortune there is some advantage. Inability to give the usual attention to correspondence and to exhibit my fowls failed to increase sales and I left more youngsters on hand than otherwise would have been, and as a consequence better quality could be selected for the future. In addition to this, as a consequence of some of the flocks having been undisturbed, records were obtained that were of value and a further incentive in the work for the new breed.

One record, established previous to this time, however, first impressed me with the wonderful laying quality of the new fowl and has ever since been a source of pleasure. It was from one flock of youngsters, hatched between April 1st and April 14th, 1906, in which there were just twenty-four pullets. Except to remove the cockerels about the first of September, these remained undisturbed until the 20th of the following January after which some were sold for breeders and the others went into our breeding pens. An accurate and correct daily record was kept to January 20th, and those twenty pullets had laid one hundred and five dozen eggs. In addition to this these pullets were of such quality that every one was used for breeding purposes. The subsequent tests gave me added confidence to send fowls to laying contests, where they have acquitted themselves well and justified my faith in them.

From the extra supply of youngsters and old breeding stock fourteen matings were made for 1908. The results of this year were much better than ever and the fowls from these matings which were exhibited gave a good account of themselves. In addition to winning the Lion's share of the prizes at the Indiana State Fair and Chicago show this year, (the winning including every first at Chicago and four out of the five firsts at Indianapolis, which were the two largest classes of this breed in America that year) fowls won for my customers at many of the leading exhibitions of the continent. At Indianapolis the great cock bird "Generosity" and others attracted the attention of judges of national reputation, and later in the year at Chicago my exhibit attracted much attention.

While the year 1908 will be remembered as the one which gave Partridge Plymouth Rocks their first real standing in poultrydom it was for 1909 to furnish the first attractive catalog. The fine quality had caused leading poultrymen, judges and fanciers all over the country to investigate and prophesy a great future for the new breed. My office was flooded with requests for information relative to the new fowl, and the issue of catalogues disappeared like magic.

Fifteen regular matings were made for 1909 and already these compared very favorably with the older breeds of Partridge color. The time had arrived when we need not apologize to judges who came to see the stock after viewing that of the leading breeders of other Partridge breeds, and even at that there was, as usual, a noticeable improvement in the offspring over the ancestors. At three leading shows my fowls made almost a clean sweep of the prizes, while at almost all the very largest exhibitions my customers shared in the glory.

A very discouraging incident in the history of Partridge Rocks occurred in 1909. At the meeting of the A. P. A. at Niagara Falls for the first time application was made for admission of the breed to the standard and prior to the meeting all necessary papers had been filed. At this meeting it developed that
