CANADA WILL SEE LAST OF GREAT ACTOR

Forbes-Robertson is Saying Farewell to Stage in Cities of Dominion

Victoria will be one of the eight or ten last cities which will have the pleasure of seeing Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson appear on the stage.

Because of this, there is at present a great interest in the man and his career, not only among those who regularly attend the theatre, but also among those who pay but perfunctory visits to it.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson has paid eight previous visits to this continent with ever-increasing popularity. The first occasion was many years ago as leading man to Mary Anderson.

His popularity in London as a leading actor-manager, however, prevented his return for one reason or another until 1902, when he was seen in "The Light that Failed," and achieved fame far and wide as "Hamlet," which on another visit he was induced to revive.

He joined Henry Irving in 1882 at the Lyceum and the Bancrofts in 1883 at the Haymarket, playing leading parts up to 1885, when he made his first appearance in America with Mary Anderson.

and subsequently joined John Hare in Pincro's plays. Then came another American tour, and he appeared thereafter with Irving as Buckingham in "Henry VIII"; in a famous revival of "Diplomacy," at the Garrick; with Irving again in "King Arthur," and then entered into management on his own account.

TREES' ANNUAL RINGS

At the meeting of the Natural History Society, C. G. Pemberton read a letter from G. B. Sudworth, dendrologist in the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., in reference to a letter which appeared in the Times of December 1, 1914, by C. G. Brown, referring to the age of trees and their annual rings.

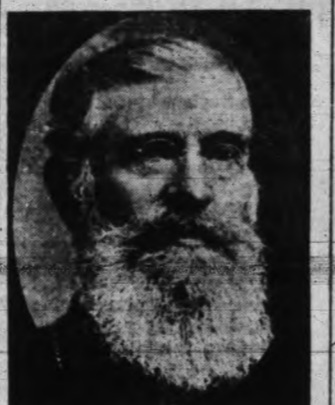

There are three distinct phases of ring growth. Trees growing in temperate climates regularly form a layer of growth each year, and the age of such trees can be accurately determined by counting the annually formed rings. Errors may easily occur, especially in the case of large trees, by not cutting the trunk low enough down to include the first annual ring.

In connection with the age of California redwoods, these trees regularly form one ring each year, which makes it possible accurately to determine their ages. A second phase of this question is the occasional formation by trees in temperate climates of intermediary or false rings. These, however, can be readily distinguished by careful examination from a regular annual ring.

The cause of intermediary rings may be due to an interruption of the tree's growth. Thus, the complete defoliation of a tree by leaf-eating insects brings about a cessation of vegetative action. Growth is again resumed when the tree acquires a new set of leaves, and the remainder of the season's ring is regularly terminated. These false rings often give considerable trouble in determining the age of the trees in temperate climates.

The wide distribution of mahogany (Swietenia mahagoni) furnishes a very interesting example of how a tree in the relatively temperate climate of its northern range may form one ring annually, while in its tropical range it may form several rings during a season's growth.

While here he was the guest of Bishop MacDonald.

PROVINCIAL CHAPTER

Resolution Bearing on Subject of Universal Military Drill in Schools Brought up before I. O. D. E.

The quarterly meeting of the Provincial Chapter, I. O. D. E., was held at the Alexandra committee rooms, the regent, Mrs. Croft, in the chair. Mrs. Henshaw, regent of the Municipal Chapter of Vancouver, and Miss Robertson, the secretary of the same, were present, and representatives of Scarf and Sidney chapters were also at the meeting.

A very hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. Hasell, who had given so much time to the preparation of a pamphlet on the work of the order in British Columbia since the declaration of war.

A suggestion advanced by Lady Tupper, provoked considerable discussion. This had to do with the introduction of universal military training in the schools, as adopted and operated by the Australian government. Mrs. Hanington spoke on the influence which the women of Canada might bring before the proper authorities to have such training instituted, and a resolution was drawn up and referred back to the Municipal Chapters of both Vancouver and Victoria for careful consideration before the annual meeting.

Reports submitted to the meeting comprised that of Mrs. Shaw, who sent a statement of the sale of Christmas cards designed by her and sold for the benefit of the Provincial Chapter. Mrs. Neroutos, the organizing secretary, submitted a very satisfactory report in connection with the formation of new chapters. Mrs. Henshaw's statement that there were now 21 chapters under the jurisdiction of the Vancouver Municipal Chapter, was also very satisfactory.

The annual meeting of the Provincial chapter will take place on April 19, the place to be announced later. Whatever turns the soul inward on itself tends to concentrate its forces, and to fit it for greater and stronger flights. —Burke.

MINE FATALITIES OF 1914

Fewer in Collieries Than in Previous Year But More in Metal Mines.

During the last quarter of 1914 there were four fatal accidents in the coal mines of the province, as shown in the quarterly statement of Chief Mines Inspector Thomas Graham.

Three men were killed in the Crow's Nest Pass Coal and Coke Co.'s mine at Coal Creek last month, and in November 3, there died a man who had been injured in the Cumberland collieries of the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir), Limited, on April 14 last. This man succumbed to a complication of diseases arising from that accident.

There were no fatalities in the metalliferous mines of the province during the three months. During the year there were 17 men killed in coal mines, as compared with 27 in 1913, but in the metalliferous mines there were 19 killed as compared with 13 in 1913.

During the year there were six fatal accidents in the Cumberland collieries, four in the Nanaimo mines of the Western Fuel Company, three in the C. P. R. mine at Hosmer, three in the Crow's Nest Pass mine at Coal Creek and one in that company's mine at Michel. Fourteen were killed underground by falls of coal and rock, by returning on an unexploded shot, by suffocation in fine coal, by electricity and by being crushed by mine cars and hauling apparatus. One was killed on the surface by a lorry, one in the shaft by falling off the bucket and another by the cage.

Of the fatalities in the metalliferous mines nine were in the Boundary district, three in West Kootenay, three in Cassiar, two in Vancouver district—in the Britannia mine—one in Ymir and one in Osoyoos. The chief causes underground were premature blasts, gassing or suffocation from powder fumes, and falls of ground, while other causes were drilling into unexploded powder, falling in chutes, by mine cars and haulage and returning on an unexploded shot. On the surface three men lost their lives by a slide of rock off the quarry face and one by an aerial tramway.

LETTER FROM FRONT

Former Member of Metropolitan Church Congregation Writes During Four Days' Rest

The following is an excerpt from a letter received yesterday by Rev. Dr. Scott, of the Metropolitan Methodist church, from a former member of his congregation, Corporal Butterworth, now with R. F. Co., 2nd Scots Guards, British Expeditionary Force, France: "I have a few spare moments at my disposal so I am sending you a line. I cannot disclose the name of the locality, owing to the possibility of the mail falling into the enemy's hands.

"We are at present billeted about two miles behind the firing line. We were relieved from the trenches three days ago for four days' rest. In the vicinity of our billet there are about half a dozen farm houses. Yesterday the Germans began shelling them; twas a pitiful sight to see the women and children running from their homes pale stricken with bundles of clothes and food. After a deal of coaxing they were persuaded to stay with us until the firing ceased.

"To-day is Thursday and we had a church service in a barn, which consisted of three hymns, a well-read lesson, and a very pleasant sermon. We were in the trenches last Sunday, so had to postpone the service until Thursday. The dangers and privations of this war have been responsible for hundreds of men being converted.

"GERMANY'S OUTLOOK."

Interesting Address Given By Rev. F. N. Stapleford; German Doctrine Described.

A very interesting address was given by Rev. F. N. Stapleford, pastor of James Bay Methodist church, at this week's meeting of Centennial Epworth League. Miss L. Aubin presided, and at the close of the lecture a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker, whose subject, "Germany's Outlook on the Present War," was dealt with in a masterly manner.

Prefixing his talk with a brief resume of the history of the German empire, Mr. Stapleford pointed out that since all the German states had united in one empire, with Prussia predominant, the Germans had been promulgating documents showing that war was necessary. Their doctrine, "Right is Right," was upheld in over seven thousand books and papers which were in circulation, one of the great axioms upheld by the militarists of that empire being that anything hindering success must be discarded, and that promises need not be kept when a nation was at war.

Germany, the speaker showed, was a great commercial country, and the various industries gave employment to vast numbers of people. The empire, consequently, felt the need for colonies and fresh markets. Britain should not be left to control the seas, therefore she must war against her and break her power. France must be crushed absolutely, so that Germany might have a greater outlet to the sea. Russia must be destroyed on account of her vast natural resources, which Germany wished to add to her wealth. She must be driven back from the Baltic to make room for Germany's naval power, when the German doctrine, world power or downfall, the non-necessity of moral ideas for the state, the crushing out of all small countries which impeded her progress, could be carried out.

In conclusion, Mr. Stapleford iterated some of the chief points in the international code of ideas adopted by Great Britain. These included the right of small states to live, the honoring of international treaties, and a respect for the freedom of nations as of individuals.

Ten million pounds was spent by Germany in reconstructing the Kiel canal. One of the difficulties which confronted the engineers was the building of bridges over the canal sufficiently high to clear the masts of the warships passing underneath. The sluices of the canal at Holtenau are the largest in the world, being over a thousand feet in length and 16 ft. wide.

BOWSER SITS DUMB HEARING CHARGES

(Continued from page 3.) Just the cheap subterfuge of a cheap politician to whitewash the members for Vancouver. The right thing for the government to have done was to investigate conditions on Vancouver Island and the reasons why the miners were out on strike, which was given as one of the chief reasons why a shortage of coal existed.

Mr. Place asserted his constant opposition to militarism in any shape or form. As to the principles for which the empire is engaged in war, freedom and liberty, he said he had to qualify it. These were words without foundation, so much hot air; there was no such thing as liberty or freedom while such class owned and controlled the machinery of production. He admitted that tribute must be paid to the soldiers who were willing to go to the cannon's mouth for what they believed to be right, but the time was past for hurrahing over wars for liberty and freedom. A little later on he said the atrocities committed in Belgium had been exaggerated.

CONCERT AT WILLOWS

Pleasing Entertainment by V. P. U. of Emmanuel Church Draws Big Audience of Soldiers. The concert given last evening at the Y. M. C. A. hall, Willows camp, under the auspices of the Young People's Union of Emmanuel Baptist church, attracted an audience of about two hundred soldiers and their friends, who much appreciated the entertaining fare provided for them. The choir was in excellent form, and among the popular numbers rendered by it were "The Tap of the Drum," "O Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" "Hearts of Oak," "The Rose of the Leaves," "The Song of Biscay" and "Rule Britannia."

It was delightful to see again in Miss Ruth St. Denis so graceful and accomplished an exponent of the newer school of dancing, the new school which is but a revival of the oldest school of all, that which demanded rhythm and grace in every movement of the body, symbolism such as should evolve in the most perfect motion some materialized spirit which should be visible to all who shared in the ecstasy of the dancers.

Space forbids a lengthy review of last night's performance at the Royal Victoria theatre, but from a programme replete with exquisite fancies in Oriental, classic Greek and modern dances one could choose almost at random and find some perfect thing. For sheer interpretative genius, coupled with the most subtle grace and expressiveness of action, Miss St. Denis herself occupied undisputed first-place in her company, nothing better illustrating this than her marvelous performance of the Mystic Dance of the Five Senses, the symbolic number with which she closed her programme.

FOUND OUT AT LAST WHAT WE BRITISH ARE GERMANY SUMS UP

AMUSING PRESS VIEWS TRANSLATED BY J. J. MURTAGH, ALIAS J. J. M.

The German press is very much annoyed. It does not like the British and has discovered us at last. We are shown in our true colors for the first time in history...

From a friend in England I recently received a parcel containing, inter alia, a half dozen newspapers of the kind published in Germany. My friend requested me to translate into English certain marked passages...

Football-kicking Louis. Apart from a few political rants on defenceless German colonies, the enemy's much-vaunted squadrons have us at single drop of darning to their credit.

The whole British Empire, in fact, is but a bubble in the eyes of the German. The British Empire, in fact, is but a bubble in the eyes of the German. The British Empire, in fact, is but a bubble in the eyes of the German.

Monogals at Heart. The envy, hatred, and fear which have taken possession of the calculating Briton have at length moved them to hurt heathenish borders in the face of their cousin by blood.

This war is no longer a war between Germans and their foes. It is the struggle of civilization against barbarism, the white race against the yellow, German against Indians and Mongols, and by the latter terms we would also designate the British themselves.

By joining France and Russia against Germany, Britain has backed the wrong horse. Like the thief she is, she has, thick-lipped, overreached herself in her cupidity.

German mothers have never brought forth such wild beasts as these poison-spreading enemies. The sons of German mothers are formed in the image of God, of the God who brought the sword into the world and entered into friendship with the centurion of Capernaum.

Now we know the worst, indeed!

How comical, what a side-splitting British joke it is! But do they think in London that we are afraid either of the boggy-mad or of the lies and threats which only English venom is able to produce?

Noting More Than Animals. "John Bull's fair play has its limits within the net of the lawn tennis court, he never carries it along with him into the arena of world politics. This, indeed, is no more than could be expected in a land where that devil's proverb which was brewed in Satan's witch-kitchen, 'My country, right or wrong,' expresses the creed of the people.

The British, indeed, are really nothing more than animals. In the field of morals or of culture they are as little as their element as a swarm of mountain top. John Bull's crazy playing fields never have been, and never can be the source of ethical culture.

They thought, these haughty brow-beaters of the world, that they could cajole Turkey to make common cause with them in this campaign of immeasurable greed against Germany. And how did they proceed in order to obtain a fresh drop?

The foregoing philippic are nothing more than fair samples of the frenzied rhapsodies which fill the columns of these Satan-begotten (I borrow this forcible adjective from their own columns) boia constrictors which essay the ridiculous farce of educating the German savages in the modern principles of culture and civilization.

When John Bull, the howling jackal, shall have received the full measure of the punishment which the German Michael has destined for him, he will, so far from desiring to set his hands on Germany's industry, be only too thankful for his blind luck, a wild beast with drawn claws.

It's Good To Be British To-day. Joy is the higher faculty of a man's soul when it is brought up to concert pitch. -Ward Beecher.
