In presenting to the public the following Catalogue, we take the opportunity to inform our friends, that no pains or expense have been, or will be, spared, to render our collection of Roses the most complete in this country. Having a piece of ground particularly favorable to their growth, an acre will be devoted to their exclusive cultivation. Our correspondence abroad is such as to enable us to procure every new variety as soon as it can be obtained; and it will be our endeavor, after a full trial of every variety, to select only such as are really worthy a place in the collection of the amateur. Owing to the immense number of seedlings which are yearly obtained by the French cultivators, who are giving great attention to this most beautiful flower, much discrimination is necessary to select only those which are truly good and distinct.

The Rose is the finest of all our garden shrubs, and when a good selection is made of the different classes, of both the summer and autumnal flowering kinds, a succession of blossoms may be obtained, from the middle of June until November.

In order to describe as fully as possible the different varieties in the limited space of a catalogue, the following abbreviations are used.

I. To express the form of the flower :-

GLOB. (globular.)—The outer petals encircling the flower until fully open, in the manner of the cabbage or Provence rose.

Cup. (cupped.)—The outer row of petals incurved, enclosing the interior smaller ones, in the manner of the common moss rose.

Exp. (expanded.)—The petals rather flat, in some sorts showing the stamens—like the common Tuscany. (The number of roses of this style is exceedingly small.)

COMP. (compact.)-Petals rather stiff and close; the flower, in general appearance, like a double ranunculus.

II. To express habit, fragrance, &c.

Those marked P, have long flexible shoots, well adapted for rose pillars, or for a trellis.

Those marked s, are finely formed roses, proper for showing in single blooms, in the manner of dahlias.

Those marked f, are remarkable for their odor.

A few marked thus * are highly approved kinds, desirable in every collection, large or small.

The synonymes are not given, as those of the older sorts are now very generally known.

Plants of the climbing, and of the Bengal, Tea, Noisette, Bourbon, hybrid perpetual, and all the tender roses are kept in pots, and can be packed and sent with safety at any season of the year.

The hardy kinds of roses may be safely removed, either in the autumn or spring: for planting out the Bengal, Tea, Noisette, and Bourbon kinds, the months of April and May are the most favorable.

Catalogues will be issued every year, and may be had at our Seed-store and Agricultural Warehouse, 7 Merchant's Row, Boston—(where many of the flowers, of the finest kinds, may be seen during the blooming season;) and also by application by mail, (post paid.)

Our nurseries are very extensive, embracing upwards of thirty acres of land, the whole of which will be devoted to Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Evergreens, Grape Vines, Herbaceous Plants, Dahlias, Bulbous Roots, Green-house Plants, &c. &c., Catalogues of which may be had on application.

The Nurseries are situated on the Cambridge road to Mount Auburn, half a mile east of Harvard Colleges, and about two miles from Boston. A large conservatory, and an extensive green-house, both with span roofs, have been erected, which are filled with choice collections of Camellias, Roses, Pelargoniums, Ericas, Azaleas, and miscellaneous plants. All amateurs and lovers of plants are invited to visit the Nurseries. In the month of May, a splendid collection of Tulips will be in flower;—in June, upwards of four hundred varieties of hardy Roses;—during the autumn, an unrivalled collection of Perpetual, Bourbon, Bengal, Tea, and Noisette Roses;—and in September, a magnificent collection of Dahlias. In the Conservatory, the Chrysanthemums will be in bloom in November—the Camellias in January—the Azaleas in February—the Roses in March, and the Pelargoniums in April and May. Omnibus coaches run within a few rods of the Nurseries every half hour during the day.

Orders, to secure attention, should be accompanied with a remittance, or a draft, payable in Boston or New York.

A liberal discount will be made to the trade, and to purchasers of a dozen or more varieties.

All orders for trees or plants should be directed to "Hovey & Co., Boston," and they will meet with immediate attention, and be promptly executed. All packages delivered in Boston free of expense.

Orders from the South or West should be received in September, that the plants may be forwarded in the autumn.

Catalogues of Vegetable and Agricultural Seeds, Bulbous Roots, Dahlias, Fruit Trees, Forest Trees, Ornamental Shrubs, Green-house Plants, &c. may be had separately, on application, (post paid.)

The Michigan roses are very robust growing plants, making shoots ten feet long in a season. Numbers 2, 3, and 4, raised by Mr. Feast, are probably the finest climbers known. All these kinds flower in July, after other roses are gone. They are perfectly hardy, and grow in any ordinary soil.

The Perpetual roses are now deservedly admired; their valuable habit of flowering during the autumnal months renders them desirable for every garden. Most of the varieties, like their parent (the Damask) are highly fragrant, and of the newer kinds several are extremely beautiful. They are of dwarf habit, and, from their profuse blooming, require a very rich soil. They are perfectly hardy.

This class is of recent introduction; most of them have been originated from the old Perpetuals and the Chinese and Bourbon varieties. They are of more robust growth than the Perpetuals—have a more beautiful foliage—and are generally highly fragrant. They are abundant bloomers, and grow in ordinary soils very freely, where other kinds do not flower well. They are quite hardy.

The Bourbon roses, though of recent introduction, are among the most superb kinds in cultivation. They have a robust and elegant habit, with glossy and broad foliage, and their flowers possess a beauty peculiarly their own. Like the Bengal roses, they bloom the whole season: but they have one quality which gives them a higher claim to our attention; with a slight protection of leaves or litter they stand our winters uninjured; and when once the plants are established, they throw up strong shoots, which are covered with flowers. They are also well adapted for pot cultivation, and bloom freely in winter.

The Bengal roses, from their brilliant colors, are admirably adapted for turning out into the flower border, during the summer, where they bloom profusely from June until November. Planted in masses, they form splendid ornaments throughout the summer. In the winter they should be protected in a frame, or taken up and potted, and placed in the green-house, where they will bloom freely in March and April, and may again be turned out into the ground in May. The plants delight in a deep rich soil, highly manured.

| The Tea-scented roses have no | ot only extre | mely large and beautiful flowers, bu       | t have |

The Tea-scented roses have not only extremely large and beautiful flowers, but have that delightful tea odor, from whence their name. They are more tender than the Bengal roses, and many of them are of slender growth and habit; but they all flourish well in a good, rich, highly manured, light soil. The plants may be turned out into the ground, as recommended for the Bengal roses, and protected in the same manner during winter. Unlike the Bengal roses, which surpass in the vividness of their colors, the Tea roses excel in the delicacy and softness of their tints, and number among the varieties all those so remarkable for their yellow and creamy shades.

This class is remarkable for the abundance of its flowers, and the immense clusters in which they are produced. Some of the varieties number as many as fifty in one corymb; and they are constantly in flower all the summer. Some of the varieties are nearly hardy, but it would be safest to take up all the kinds, except when there are duplicates, and place them in the green-house or frame. They like a deep rich soil, with plenty of manure. Those marked P, make long flexible shoots, well adapted for training up the columns or the rafters of a green-house or conservatory. Amie Vibert is quite hardy.

Remarks on the Cultivation of Tender Roses in Pots.—All the Bourbon, Bengal, Tea, and Noisette roses, grow freely and bloom abundantly the whole year. The best way to manage them is to plunge the pots, or turn the plants out of the pots, in the month of May, into the open ground, planting, as has been already advised, in a very rich soil: on this much depends. At the time of setting out, or a few days afterwards, trint off and shorten all the principal shoots, which may be used for cuttings, and may be readily struck by placing them in a soil composed mostly of sand, under a common hand glass-The plants turned out will bloom abundantly from June to October, at which time they should be taken up and potted, using a good rich loamy soil. They should be placed in a frame for a week or two, if one is at hand, and moderately watered; at the expiration of which time, they may be removed to the parlor or greenhouse, or even a cold frame; heading them in well if in either of the first two places. They will commence blooming again in December, and will continue to flower till they are turned out again into the open ground in May. During the blooming season, liquid manure, made either from cow manure, poudrette, or guano, may be applied once a week, with the most beneficial effect. Always prune freely. If the plants flourish as they ought, under good management, they will bear it very well. A plant full of small slender branches never produces good flowers: the object should be to encourage fresh and strong shoots from near the root, on which the most beautiful flowers are produced, often in large clusters. No. 3 pots (five inches diameter,) are sufficiently large for one year old plants; shifting them into a size larger each year, till they become old and woody, when their place should be supplied by young and thrifty ones grown from cuttings.

MAGAZINE OF HORTICULTURE,

AND ALL USEFUL DISCOVERIES AND IMPROVEMENTS IN RURAL AFFAIRS.

Containing nearly 500 pages...... Published monthly, at $3.00 per year, in advance.

EDITED BY C. M. HOVEY.

A few copies of Vols. I. to X. may be had, bound in boards.

Vol. X. of the Magazine of Horticulture commences January 1, 1844. The Magazine is the only periodical in the United States, devoted to horticulture and rural pursuits, and contains original communications on subjects of interest to every individual who possesses a garden—to all, indeed, who wish to spread their tables with the choicest fruits, or to fill their parterres with elegant flowers.

In commencing a new volume, the publishers embrace the opportunity to repeat the objects and purposes of the Magazine: they are to place upon record all information which can aid the horticulturist, the floriculturist, or the botanist. To the horticulturist, in the notices of new fruits and vegetables, and the best method of their growth and treatment:—to the florist, in the notices of new plants, the production of new varieties, and the cultivation of the various objects of the green-house, hot-house, parlor, and open garden:—to the botanist, in the record of new species, and the reviews of botanical works:—to the amateur gentleman, in the valuable intelligence which will be offered upon the laying out, arranging, and planting ornamental grounds and villa gardens:—in fine, by presenting original communications upon all these subjects—by the full reports of the exhibitions of horticultural societies, and by presenting the spirit of the English gardening periodicals, to render the Magazine interesting to all classes of readers.

The Magazine is published in monthly numbers, printed on the finest paper; each number contains forty pages octavo, forming a volume of nearly five hundred pages a year, with a table of contents and index, and illustrated with numerous engravings. Subscriptions $300 a year, in advance.

Subscriptions for the Magazine received, and specimens of the work seen, at the Book Stores of C. C. Little & Co., Otis, Broaders & Co., and at the Seed Store of the publishers, Hovey & Co., Boston, and at the following agents in other cities:—G. C. Thorburn, New York: D.
