The Squire Joketh with his Wife.

The squire had a friend to visit him on business, and was very much annoyed to be interrupted by his wife, who came to ask him what he wanted for dinner.

"Go away! let us alone!" impatiently said the squire.

Business detained his friend until dinner time and the squire urged him to remain. The squire was a generous provider, proud of his table, and he complacently escorted his friend to a seat. A little to the surprise of both, they saw nothing on the board but a huge dish of salad, which the good wife began to serve up.

"My dear," said the squire, "where are the meats?"

"There are none to day," replied the lady.

"No meats! what in the name of poverty! the vegetables, then! Why don't you have the vegetables brought in?"

"You didn't order any vegetables."

"Order! I didn't order anything," said the amazed squire.

"You forgot," coolly answered the housewife. "I asked what we should have, and you said 'lutuce alone!' Here it is."

The friend burst into a laugh, and the squire after looking lurid and lugubrious a moment, joined him.

"Wife, I give it up. I owe you one. Here is that fifty dollars you wanted for that carpet, which I denied you." The squire forked over. "Now let us have peace—and some dinner."

The good woman pocketed the paper, rang the bell and a sumptuous repast of fish, poultry and vegetables was brought in.

A few days after, the squire remained working in the garden sometime after the usual tea hour. His wife grew impatient at his delay and went to find him. His excuse, when she asked him what he was waiting for, threw her into a flutter of excitement.

"Some one's to come to supper!" She exclaimed: "Why didn't you tell me? I declare you are the provokingest man?"

And without asking which of his friends was expected, she hastened to change her dress and "slick up" her hair for the occasion—this done, she came out, and found the squire seated at the table reading a newspaper.

"Where's your company?"

"My company, I haven't any company."

"But you said you expected somebody to supper?" exclaimed the indignant wife.

"My dear, I said no such a thing. You asked what I was waiting for, and I said, 'Summons to come to supper,' that's what I said I was waiting for, my dear. And I came at once."

"And you have made me go and change my dress; O, I'll pay you for this!"

"No matter about it, my dear. I owe you, remember, for that lettuce."

HAD HIM THERE.—Judge C——, a member of one of our best families, and himself occupying a high position at the bar, as well as socially, was going up the river last fall on a slow steambot; and, of course, entered into all the familiar companionship common to travelers thrown together for a week, with nothing else to do. There was one man aboard who, learning the judge's name, announced that it was the same as his own, and instantly claimed kin with him. The judge though indifferently; but with perfect good nature answered the innumerable genealogical inquiries propounded to him, while at each reply the bore would exclaim:

"Why, sir, we're kin, as sure as I'm alive!"

At length this fellow became unendurable with his pertinacity and questioning; and losing all patience at last Judge C—— turned upon his tormentor with the abrupt remark:

"Well, perhaps we are relations. Are you a white man?"

"White man!" shouted the bore, leaping from his chair; "I'd only like to see the man who would say I wasn't!"

"Ah!" continued the judge, very quietly, "well, my father, sir, was a mulatto!"

You may rest assured that Judge C—— was tormented no more on that trip, nor even recognized by the man who was so lately claiming relationship with him; while the other passengers enjoyed the joke immensely.

ALWAYS the idea of unbroken quiet broods around the grave. It is a short port where the storms of life never beat, and the forms that have been tossed on its chafing waves lie quiet forever. There the child nestles as peacefully as ever it lay in its mother's arms, and the workman's hands lie still by his side, and the thinker's brain is pillowed in silent mystery, and the poor girl's broken heart is steeped in a balm that extracts its secret woe, and is in the keeping of a charity that covers all blame.—Dr Chapin.

The Disguised Courtship.

An extraordinary case of courtship at Moulton, England, came up for examination before the magistrates of Northampton a short time since. From the accounts given in the English journals of the affair, we condense as follows: The prisoner looked a neat, dapper, smart sort of a young fellow, and very respectably attired. She wore on the fourth finger of her right hand a handsome ring, containing a stone which glistened, and which she did not fail to show off to the best advantage, as a present from Miss Smith. She carried in her hand a boy's cloth cap, with peak and band. Her hair, which was fashionably cut short, was neatly parted on the left side, and well brushed up and oiled. She wore a dark colored coat, much in the Newmarket fashion, with outside pockets. Her vest and trowsers were light and well shaped, and her boots, laced up in front, were heavy, and were what we call Balmorals. Altogether, she presented the general outline of a pretty little man. Miss Smith, who was present with her father, brother and friends, appeared about 17 years of age, and was also well and fashionably dressed. The only witness examined was Miss Smith's father, who said the prisoner was the wife of a painter, her first cousin, to whom she was married, at Cheltenham, seven years ago, when she was sixteen years old.—About five months since, they came to reside at Shefford, in Bedford, and in the same house with them lodged his, (the witness's,) daughter, Ellen Smith. On coming to Shefford, the prisoner put on man's attire, said her name was Fred, and that she was the son of a planter, at whose trade she regularly worked as journeyman and with whom she lived. Miss Smith, not having the slightest suspicion that she was other than she represented herself, became very intimate with her, and speedily fell passionately in love with her. Fred, (for it will be necessary to call her by her assumed name; in order to render the evidence intelligible,) reciprocated this affection, and in every way conducted herself as Miss Smith's lover and intended husband.

They conversed in terms of endearment towards each other, and in letters written by the prisoner to Miss Smith, she called the latter her "dear Ellen," and spoke of the happiness with which she should meet her again. About a month ago, the planter represented to witness that he was about to remove to London; that he was anxious to take Fred's intended with him, in order to introduce her to his relatives. The witness, under these circumstances, consented to her departure.—Days and weeks having transpired without hearing from her after she left, the witness proceeded to London to make inquiries. Finding that there were no relatives of the painter living at the number in Sloane street, he returned to Bedford, and communicated with the parent of the painter, at Cheltenham, who informed him, in reply, that the parties were living at Moulton, in Northamptonshire, and they added that they supposed Fred was not the son, but the wife of the painter, and that he had better look sharp, lest his daughter should be decoyed into a trap. The witness, of course, lost no time in proceeding to Moulton, where he found his daughter had been represented to be the daughter of the painter and the sister of Fred. Matters, which were strange before, were thus becoming more complicated, but the witness put an end to deception by producing the letter from Cheltenham. The effect was, he said, indelibly strange. His daughter, at first, could not believe the contents to be true; but Fred made no secret that they were perfectly correct, and that she was the painter's wife. Miss Smith was thunderstruck, and had never held up her head since. Fred was then taken into custody. The bench decided that they had no power to interfere, and that the prisoner, whose conduct was most reprehensible in gaining the affections of a young woman for some purpose which did not exactly appear, must be discharged. The case had originated in Bedfordshire, and there the father of Miss Smith could commence an action in the county or some other civil court against the prisoner and her husband for the loss of his daughter's services. The prisoner wept, and said it was all a foolish lark; and so the case ended. As the prisoner was guarded out of court by the police to where the painter was in waiting to receive her, an immense crowd of women followed and jeered her.

A FAMILY WEAKNESS.—Washington Irving chanced to be caught one day in a thunderstorm with a rustic neighbor, who refused to join him under the shelter of a tree, and gave as his reason that his father was killed by lightning. "Ah," said Irving, "It runs in families then?"

"You want nothing, do you?" said Pat. "Bedad, an' if it's nothing you want, you'll find it in the jug where the gin was."

THE ADVANTAGE OF NEWSPAPERS.

A child beginning to read becomes delighted with newspapers because he reads of names and things which are familiar, and will make progress accordingly. A newspaper in one year is worth a quarter's schooling to a child, and every father must consider that substantial information is connected with his advancement. The mother of a family having more immediate charge of children, should herself be instructed. A mind occupied becomes fortified against the ills of life and is braced for the emergency. Children amused by reading or study, are of course considerate and more easily governed. How many thoughtless young men have spent their earnings in a grog shop who ought to have been reading. How many parents who have never spent twenty dollars for books or papers for their families would gladly have given thousands to reclaim a son or daughter who had ignorantly and thoughtlessly fallen into temptation!

FREAKS OF MEMORY.—A British captain whilst giving orders on the quarter-deck of his ship at the battle of the Nile, was struck on the head by a shot, and immediately became senseless. He was taken home and removed to Greenwich Hospital, where, for fifteen months, he evinced no sign of intelligence. He was then trephined; and immediately upon the operation being performed, consciousness returned, and he immediately began busying himself to see the orders carried out that he had given during the battle fifteen months previously. The clock-work of the brain, unaware that it had stopped, upon being set going again, pointed to the exact minute that it had left off. These sudden revivals of a lost intelligence almost rival in their dramatic effect the consequence of the prince's advent in the palace of the sleeping Beauty, where, at the magic of a kiss, the inmates of the royal household, who had gone to sleep for a hundred years, transfixed in their old attitudes, leaped suddenly into life and motion, as though they only for a moment slept.—[London Journal.

YOUR BABIES NOT MY BABIES.—About thirty-five years ago, there resided in the town of Hebrou a certain Dr. T., who became very much enamored of a beautiful young lady resident in the same town. The doctor was a strong and decided Presbyterian, and his lady love was a strong and decided Baptist. They were sitting together one evening talking of their approaching nuptials, when the doctor remarked:

"I am thinking, my dear, of two events which I shall number among the happiest of my life."

"And pray, what may they be, Doctor?" remarked the lady.

"One is the hour when I shall call you my wife, for the first time."

"And the other?"

"It is when we shall present our first born for baptism."

"What! sprinkled?"

"Yes, my dear, sprinkled."

"Never shall a child of mine be sprinkled."

"They shall be, hey?"

"Yes, my love."

"Well, sir, I can tell you, then, that your babies won't be my babies. So good night, sir."

The lady left the room, and the Doctor left the house. The sequel was, that the Doctor never was married, and the lady is an old maid.

A BAD NIGHT.—A gentleman was once dining with a friend, when a most dreadful storm arose. In hopes of abatement, the entertainment was prolonged to the latest possible hour; but at length it was over, and the storm showed no signs of ceasing, but on the contrary, grew worse and worse. The host insisted on his guest's acceptance of a lodging for the night, in view of the impossibility of his reaching his home.

The guest complied, but in a few minutes was missed from the parlor. In half an hour he re-appeared, drenched with rain.

"Where in the Heaven's name have you been?" asked the host, viewing the singular object, which looked like a dog around the paws and a weeping willow about the head.

"I!" said he quickly shaking off the water, "I have been at home to tell my wife that as it is such a bad night, I should not return!"

A Gentleman met another in the street who was ill of consumption, and accosted him thus:

"Ah, my friend, you walk exceedingly slow."

"Yes," replied the sick man, "but I am going very fast."

WEALTH does not always improve us. A man, as he gets to be worth more, may always become worth-less.

THE storms that prove most destructive to connubial peace usually begins with little squals.

"JUST AS I EXPECTED."—The following story is a good illustration of the infatuation of intemperance:

Old Jacob R. was in the habit of getting drunk, and so closely did his intoxication lock up his senses, that no remembrance of what occurred, remained with him. He often wondered, when aroused from his drunken lethargy, what gave him such a bloody face, aching head, and torn and soiled clothes.

Knowing this peculiarity, his friends laid a plan to recover him from his vicious habit. They procured a coffin, brimstone, masks and other things necessary, and waited patiently for his next debauch, which was not long. In his drunken stupor, he was taken, stripped, wound in a sheet, put into the coffin, and carried into a large empty room, upon the walls of which was sketched imps of various sizes and forms, and in various antics.—Over them in great black characters, some of his own misdeeds were written. The coffin was so placed that when he first opened his eyes they fell upon the writing. Lights was so arranged as to throw a dismal glare over the whole room, and a strong sulphurous stench, from burning brimstone, was almost suffocating. The friends, dressed in the most hideous manner, and masked, paced slowly about his coffin, waiting for him to arouse.

Soon he opened his eyes and for a moment so intense was his stare, that they seemed starting from their sockets. They wandered from one hideous object to another until they rested upon the writing. After slowly following them through, closed, and he seemed thinking aloud as he murmured, "In hell at last; just as I expected!"

Seeing one of these hideous persons passing, he called out:

"Say, Mr. Devil, do you keep anything for a fellow to drink down here?"

His friends decided him a hopeless case.

TIM DOYLE was a jolly-looking tar, with the richest of brogues, and he applied to the custom-house not long since for a "purtecton" as an American citizen.—He was asked for his naturalization papers.

"Me nateral papers is it your honor wants?" said Tim, with an insinuating grin, "An' me a full-blooded American?"

"You don't mean to say that you were not born in Ireland?"

"Born in Ireland," replied Tim. "Sure I was. But thin, your honor, Ikem from Cork to New Orleans last summer, and there the bloody-minded musketeers run their bills into every inch of me, and sucked out every drop of me Irish blood, good luck to 'em, an' now I'm a full-blooded American."

THERE was an old farmer who kept a large poultry yard, and had one hen who, not content with her proper sphere of action, was continually endeavoring to crow. At last, after repeated attempts, she succeeded in making something like a crow. The farmer was taking his breakfast at the time, and hearing the noise rose and went out, and discovered the author of the curious attempt. He soon returned, bearing in his hand, the crowing hen, minus her head. "There," said he, "I'm willing hens should do most anything! but I ain't willing they should crow. Cocks may crow as much as they please, but hens shall not; it's setting a bad example."

A Doctor was employed by a poor man to attend his wife, who was dangerously ill. The doctor threw out a hint that he had fears of not being paid.

"I have five pounds," said the man to the doctor, "and if you kill or cure, you shall have them."

The woman died in the doctor's hands, and after a reasonable time called for his five pounds. The man asked the doctor if he killed his wife?

"No."

"Did you cure?"

"No."

"Then," said the poor man, "you have no legal demand!"

A Reporter of the Boston Courier, heard a couple of politicians sighing over the affairs of the nation.

"I wish," said one of them, "Old Jackson was in Buchanan's place."

"I ain't so particular about that," retorted the other; "I'd be satisfied if old Buchanan was in Jackson's place."

A DUTCH VALENTINE.—A Dutch friend of ours was thrown into a fever by getting a picture of a big-nosed, bottle-bellied Teuton, absorbing a huge glass of lager. "Mine Got," gasped he, "why didn't they send it mit the lager!"—Nevada Transcript.

No man knows the genuineness of his convictions until he has sacrificed something for them.

We do not compromise our own faith by admitting the honesty of another's doubt.

THE BALL.—On Monday evening next the opening Ball of the (new) Union Hotel will come off. We are satisfied it will be the Ball of the season, and from our own knowledge if the weather should be favorable, a good delegation from Sacramento will be looked for. The roads are in fine order, and every accommodation can be given to make guests comfortable.

TO THE TRAVELING PUBLIC.—We would suggest to our readers and their friends who may be traveling to Placerville or Washoe, to call at the Keoker Hotel, Main street, Placerville, a few doors below the Court House, and inquire for A. C. Judy, who will accommodate you to all the best that the market affords in the way of eatables; also, good beds, stabling, &c.

THE HESPERIAN.—The Hesperian for this month is at hand and commences with the sixth volume. It contains a very fine engraving of "A Mother's Defence" and numerous illustrations of late Patterns, also the usual amount of reading matter.

The Marysville Appeal, says: "Excellent port wine was made at Washington, Yolo county, last fall, by A. A. Bennett, from native grapes."

We live in Yolo county, and have not tasted any yet, so we cannot endorse its excellent qualities. [Ed.]

GRAPES.—Mrs. Farnsworth, of Placer county, has succeeded in preserving grapes in their freshness by wrapping them with cotton batting. She has some of the fruit thus preserved which was taken from the vine in the flush of the last grape season.

OSCAR E. WOLF, a native of Virginia, aged forty-three years, died at the San Francisco Home for the inebriate from an overdose of morphine, administered by himself, on Saturday last.

BACON.—Lord, Peters & Co., at Oakland, Oregon, are curing 100,000 pounds of bacon for the San Francisco market.

VETOED.—The Governor has done Sacramento county an essential service in vetoing the Salary Bill, which those interested had succeeded in getting through the Legislature. We now hope the delegation from this county will take up the amendments to the Consolidation Bill, prepared last year, and ask the Legislature to adopt them. Those amendments provide for an increase of salaries from one hundred dollars per month to one hundred and twenty-five dollars, an increase to which there was very little objection. But, aside from all other considerations, to legalize an illegal ordinance passed by the Board of Supervisors is a very objectional and improper mode of amending the Consolidation Bill.—Union.

SALT FOR STOCK.—Experience proves that when cattle or horses are fed on dry corn or hay, they will consume two or three ounces of salt per day, if permitted free access to it; and if fed on new hay or grass the desire for salt is much increased, and the consumption amounts to from six to seven ounces per day. Little things are what keep the ball rolling.—Give the cattle salt.

J. C. BURCH has introduced a bill granting 7,000,000 acres of land to California for Railroad purposes. This seems to meet with much favor with the dominant party in Congress.

There was 12,288 04 ounces of gold deposited, and $165,000 coined, in the Mint last week.

THE Sugar Refinery in San Francisco, manufactured the past year, ten millions seven hundred pounds of sugar.

ACCIDENT AND LOSS OF LIFE.—On Friday last a man named Counts, says the Red Bluff Beacon, with one Dale, lady and child, were attempting to cross Stony creek, in the neighborhood of the Buttes, when the wagon was upset by the current. Counts being entangled in the wagon was drowned, and also the child. Dale got from under the wagon and was rescued, but his lady was washed down stream considerable distance, but saved herself by catching and clinging to some willows overhanging the stream.

SCARLET FEVER.—The Nevada Democrat regrets to state that several families in that city are afflicted with scarlet fever. The Mendocino Herald says a number of cases of this disease have recently occurred in that community, some of which have proved fatal.

Arrival of the Pony Express!

Dates to February 12th.

CARSON CITY, Feb. 25th—10 A. M.
The Pony has just arrived, with dates from St. Louis to Feb. 12th. The following is from the Union:

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 15th
Nothing has occurred to change the relation of the affairs at the South since the last Pony.

The President communicated to Congress, last Monday, the correspondence between the South Carolina officials and Federal Government, in which the latter adheres to the position already indicated, and says if hostilities are commenced South Carolina alone will be responsible; the idea of negotiating for the transfer of the Government property cannot be entertained.

The Southern Confederacy has elected Jefferson Davis President, and Alexander H. Stephens Vice-President.

Davis has telegraphed to Col. Hayne urging him not to precipitate matters in relation to Fort Sumter. What action South Carolina may take has not transpired. The impression is that she will turn over matters to the new Southern Government, though sensation correspondents predict an attack on Fort Sumter.

H. A. Stephens was serenaded at Montgomery, Alabama, and made a speech congratulating the people upon the formation of a new Confederacy.

Congress has done nothing yet tending to a settlement of existing difficulties.—The vote will be pressed of the Committee of Thirty-three this week. The proceedings otherwise are entirely devoid of interest.

The Peace Congress is in session daily with closed doors. It is understood that no important move has yet been made. Many friends of the Union have strong hopes of a favorable result, while non-compromisers and secessionists generally predict a failure. More delegates are constantly arriving.

The Twenty-five Million Loan Bill has been approved by the President. Bankers at the North manifest a disposition not to take the loan until the existing sectional differences are satisfactorily settled.

The Governor of Georgia seized several New York vessels at Savannah, in retaliation for the seizure of arms in the city of New York, but subsequently released them on being informed of the restoration of the arms.

Returns of the Tennessee election indicates the triumphant success of the Union party for the Convention in that State.

The Pennsylvania Legislature guarantees a portion of the new Government loan.

The Naval Appropriation Bill passed the House.

President Lincoln started from Springfield yesterday, on his way to Washington, a number of friends accompanying him. Before leaving he addressed a few feeling remarks to his friends, referring to his mission, and the necessity of Divine aid to enable him to perform it successfully. He was enthusiastically received along the entire route.

At Indianapolis Mr. Lincoln had a grand reception, and made a speech, in which he advanced the proposition, that to march a hostile army into South Carolina would be invasion, but to hold the forts and other property of the Federal Government would not be coercion. Several propositions in illustration of this view were advanced, and among them, one that the State resisting was the party engaged in the work of coercion. He, in conclusion, said he was not asserting anything, but asking questions for the people to consider and decide what was right and what was wrong.

The Texas Convention has declared in favor of a Southern Confederacy.

Five war vessels are reported off Pensacola.

John B. Weller has arrived at Mexico as Minister.

The Archbishop and Bishop have been stoned at Vera Cruz.

Miramón has arrived at New Orleans.

THE SUGAR DUTIES.—"The amount of duties paid on sugars imported into this country, to protect the interests of Louisiana, has averaged more than $7,000,000 per annum for the last five years, and during the decade closed have amounted to fully $57,000,000. In 1860 the value of sugar imported was $28,931,000, the duty on which (24 per cent.) amounting to $6,943,000. Of the total consumption of sugar in this country, it is estimated that 40 per cent. is the product of the Louisiana plantations, the whole of which would become worthless in a week, except under a protective tariff. The capital invested in these is probably not less than $30,000,000, and may exceed that figure considerably. During the last quarter of a century, the sugar products of that State must have reached the sum of $250,000,000."

DREADFULLY BURNED.—A man who has been employed as a hostler at the Lake House, on Upper Stockton road, and known by the name of Jerry, was so dreadfully burned on Tuesday evening that he will not probably recover. He lived alone in a small frame building about three hundred yards from the Lake House.

ENGINE TRIAL.—Monumental Engine Company, No. 6, and Vigilant Engine Company, No. 9, propose having a trial of their hand-engines at an early day for a purse of $1,000.

A HORRIBLE ATTEMPT TO MURDER A MAN IN TEHAMA.

—One of the most horrible affairs we have ever had to chronicle, took place in Tehama on Saturday night last, between a German or Swedish cook named George Hahn, and a mulatto barber calling himself A. D. McAlfrey. It appears that a banking game was going on at which one of the parties was dealer and the other a better. A misunderstanding and hard words passed between them, George objecting to the mulatto on the grounds of his color. McAlfrey got terribly offended at this, and went over to the store of L. A. Gyle, and bought a bowie-knife. He was very particular in picking out a large and sharp knife. As soon as he purchased it, he followed George into the new keg house, kept by Mr. Eddy. George was just calling up his friends to drink with him, when McAlfrey stepped in and said, yes, he would take a drink with him. George remarked that no negro could drink with him or his friends. The negro then said he would bet one hundred dollars that he would drink with him. On making this remark he drew out the aforesaid bowie-knife and plunged it into George's side a few inches below the ribs on the right side, a little in front of the point of the hip. The knife penetrated the body about three inches, and at last accounts, he was lying in a very precarious condition. His physician thinks that the chances of his recovery are extremely slim. However, he was still living, on Tuesday. McAlfrey was immediately arrested, and is now in the county jail, heavily ironed.—Beacon.

CALIFORNIA OFFICE SEEKERS AT WASHINGTON.—Mr. Simonton, of the Bulletin, writes from Washington, saying:

"Col. Fremont and Eugene Sullivan will exert a considerable influence in relation to California appointments. Col. Fremont has not made, and probably will not make, any personal recommendation of anybody for place with the exception of C. W. Rand for United States Marshall; but he will find means, nevertheless, of making his influence felt.

C. W. Washburn seems to be quite ruled out of the ring now for the Collectorship of San Francisco. His personal unpopularity, alleged incompetency, in a place of so much dignity, importance and power, and his well known expectation of winning the prize through the influence of his brothers, rather than by that of the California public, have all tended to unite against him the strongest influences from the Pacific coast. Neither Fremont, Sullivan, Baker, nor any others of the influential Californians here, will venture to stultify themselves so far, when the question is directly put to them, as to maintain his selection in preference to Ira P. Rankin.

Sullivan has written to Dr. B. W. Hathaway, of San Francisco, to come on here and be on hand as a compromise candidate, if one should be needed.

Capt. Thomas Gray, of San Francisco, is here, an applicant for the Custom House. There is a strong money influence at work for Birdseye, of Nevada.—A. J. Butler is said to be a chief among his wire-pullers; and it is thought that Churchman, who wants to be Commissioner of Japan, brings some of the funds with him for the Nevada game. A. A. Sargeant, of Nevada, has written to Horace Greeley, urging him to press Birdseye's claims.

Sam Bell, of Mariposa, withdraws from the contest for the Collectorship, in favor of Rankin, and will devote his attention to succeeding Austin E. Smith in the Navy Agency. Capt. Folger claims this place. Col. Fremont has written, privately, a strong recommendation of T. J. L. Smiley for this position, which outrages Bell, who considers that he had special claims upon the Colonel's assistance.

The candidates for the Naval Office now include Mr. Pateh, of the late Evening Gazette, W. B. Farwell, of ditto, Mr. Chesebourn, and Dr. Gunn, of Sonora.

For the San Francisco Post Office, the most prominent candidates are Dr. W. Rabe, W. H. Stevens and M. S. Whiting.

For Superintendent of the Mint, Mr. Stevens, Col. Baker's son-in-law, continues prominent. He has a special recommendation from the State Central Committee. A. J. Butler thinks he could take good care of the 'mint drops,' and would like to have an opportunity to try; and Judge Crane of Alameda is similarly ambitious.

Dr. J. T. McLean of Marysville is here, endorsed by the Republican State Central Committee for the office of Surveyor of the Port.

John P. Zane is the only applicant here for United States Appraiser.

For Surveyor General, J. A. Nunes and Jas. McM. Shaffer, are the only candidates. The latter of the these will have the Fremont influence; but as he is understood to have a large ranch of his own, the boundary lines of which are yet to be run, and as he is rich enough not to need the office, the chances are against him.

Col. Baker has gone to New York to have a consultation with Col. Fremont, with a view to arrange concert of action if possible, between them. The Fremont party evidently intend to play heavy cards in the award of the patronage."

DEATH'S the only master who takes his servants without a character.

STILL GOING ON.

—It appears that the feud between W. F. Hobson and T. Gardiner, has not yet come to an end. We understand that of late, Hobson has sent several insulting letters to Mrs. Gardiner, which naturally much exasperated her husband, who concluded to talk to Hobson seriously in relation to the matter. This forenoon, Hobson, while standing near the corner of J and Fourth streets, saw Gardiner coming towards him whereupon he drew his pistol and rushed into a milliner's shop, Gardiner after him. Hobson passed through to a back room, and then held the door so that his pursuer could not get in. The proprietress prevailed on Gardiner to leave by the front door and Hobson left by the rear, passing into the alley, and thence to Fourth street between I and J. On reaching the corner, Gardiner turned, and seeing Hobson, broke from the person who was with him, and again the chase commenced, several anxious spectators joining in the pursuit. Hobson ran like a deer up J street, and Gardiner was making first rate time, when some persons stepped between them, and put a stop to the exercises. Hobson was much excited and fatigued at the time of the interference. The affair created no little excitement at the time, and great inquiry was made as to what it was all about. We have told the story as 'twas told to us.—Bee, Feb. 26th

DOG LAW WANTED.—A sheep-raiser in this valley informs us that he lost 58 head of valuable sheep in one night, last week, by the depredations of dogs. He says that his losses from this cause, during the last few weeks have amounted to more than $500—which, in our opinion, is more than all the dogs in Solano are worth.

Last year an effort was made to pass a law through the Legislature, making the owners of the dogs liable for the damage they may do. It was defeated by some members from the large towns, who affect not to understand how dogs can do so much damage. As sheep-raising is a main feature in the enterprise of the county, we hope our representatives at the capital will take the matter in hand and get a law passed protecting the interests of the farmers.—Solano Herald

A MAN OF FAMILY.—The grandfather of Hannibal Hamblin, was Vice President elect, Eleazer Hamlin, was born in Pembroke, Mass., where he resided till 1778, when he removed to Harvard, and from thence to Westford, in 1794, where he died at the age of 75 years. He had seventeen children. His second wife had two young children when he married her, and these, added to his own, which in the process of time were increased to seventeen, made the convenient and comfortable family of nineteen children.

CHANGE OF VENUE DENIED TO HORACE SMITH.—When the Twelfth District Court convened at San Francisco on Saturday morning last, Judge Cambell rendered his decision in the motion for a change of the place of trial of Horace Smith, indicted for the murder of Samuel T. Newell. The Court denied the motion without, however, making this decision final if in the course of the case circumstances should be shown that would render it necessary to the ends of justice that trial should take place elsewhere. The counsel for Smith took exceptions to the decision. The trial will probably take during the next term, which commences this month.

FROM ARIZONA.—The news by the Overland Mail, which brought the Mesilla Times of Feb. 6th, is unusually interesting.

Mr. Alex. Warfield, resident in the Indian Nation, lost or had stolen from the Sante Fe stage, on the 2d instant, a valise containing money and papers to the value of $80,000.

A man named Elam, and a Mexican, both of whom were under conviction for murder, escaped from the calaboose at Mesilla, on the night of the 5th, and had not been heard of. They were heavily ironed at the time of their escape.

On the 30th ult, the Navajos attacked a sheep heard near the town of Las Cruces, belonging to a New Mexican, and killed two of the herders. The Indians drove off a part of the sheep, scattering the remainder in all directions. The owner succeeded in recovering probably one half of the herd, numbering some six thousand.

On the 31st ult, Mr. A. Barnes' train consisting of seven wagons, was attacked by a large party of Indians, supposed to be Navajos, about 25 miles east of Mesilla, near the San Augustine Spring.—They mortally wounded one driver and slightly wounded another. They succeeded in separating one wagon from the train, and probably destroyed it with its load of freight, and drove off fourteen head of mules and a horse. The Indians kept the train corralled until assistance arrived from the valley.

The Tucson correspondent of the Times says: The Apache Indians on the valleys of the Sonoita, Santa Cruz, and San Pedro rivers, continue their depredations as usual. They have lately cleaned out all the stock, cattle and mules, belonging to the Santa Rita Mining Company, and have stolen many animals from Patrick Gradon, William Ake, and other proprietors of ranches. They do pretty much as then please.

There is considerable talk here of organizing a Ranging Company of citizens to contend with these inveterate plunderers. A subscription paper is now in circulation for that purpose.

OVERLAND.—The Overland Mailstage yesterday carried 4,089 letters and one through passenger, John Thompson.

AN EARL TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER.
From England we learn that the Marquis of Devonshire will shortly be tried for the murder of his daughter's lover, the Lieutenant who was left in charge of his yacht. That muscular nobleman, when at Eaton, killed his schoolmate in a fight with his fists.

The Columbia (Tuolumne county) Times has seen, in the garden of a gentleman of that place, a pear tree full of blossoms just ready to burst. Cucumbers of this spring's growth, has been for sale in the Folsom market.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, } ss.
COUNTY OF YOLO, }
In the District Court of the Eleventh Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Yolo,

THE People of the State of California, to John Anderson, greeting:
You are hereby summoned to answer the Complaint of John Koon in said Court, filed against you, within ten days of the service of this Writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in this County, but if served on you without said County, then in forty days from such service, exclusive of the day of service, in an action commenced on the 28th day of January, 1861, in said Court.—Who sues to recover the sum of $565 and interest thereon, at six dollars per month, from the 14th day of January, 1861, due upon a promissory note, executed by you, to him, on the 14th May, 1857, for the sum of $300 75, payable one day after date, with interest at six dollars per month until paid, and for his costs and such other relief as to equity belongs.—And you are hereby notified that if you fail to answer the complaint as directed, Plaintiff will demand judgment by default for said sum and costs.

In testimony whereof, I, I. T. Daly, Clerk of the Eleventh Judicial District Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and impress the Seal of said Court, at Office in Cacheville, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1861.

HOP ROOTS—FIRST PREMIUM.

J. R. Ray, 106 J Street, Sacramento, has for sale a limited stock of those superior Roots, from his old Hop Yard, thirty miles below Sacramento, where the sample sack was raised that took the first premium at the late Fair of the State Agricultural Society.

As much has been said about male and female plants, and often to mystify the subject, it may be well to say that purchasers of Roots will be provided with the proper proportion of each, with directions for planting, if desired.

The plants which we offer roots are five years old, having been brought from one of the best hop yards in the Atlantic States.

As the stock of Roots from my yard is limited this season, it may be well for those contemplating planting to advise me early.
