

Paris. Nov. 18th 1861
55 Rue de Valenciennes
Lombony St. James

Dear Caroline.

I enclose the invoice to go by the Niagara from Liverpool to Boston on the 27th with the box, which is ready for thee had to be fastened on. Let me make a few remarks. 1st The white china - some 20 fr worth. The four tall things for Cologne were 15 sous apiece. Had they not been imperfect they would have been 10 or 12 fr apiece. But I thought you might sell them for 60 ds apiece, which would be quadrupling the money, while if perfect you could never hope to sell them for 40 fr apiece.

2nd every thing that we have bought is marked at just the price we gave for it in fr & centimes. If it cost 2 francs 50 centimes it is marked 2 50 & so on.

3^d. The imitation bronzes were very cheap here & you can quadruple upon the impostants I should think. The "encreur Nemphar", of cast bronze, by number worth, (that is the foundry & kind) being signed by him, & he being dead, & these would not being things that last forever, cost dear. & if you get your money again be content. It cost 25 fr. but then it & the little Henri IV in his hercean ^(22 fr) & the lion on a leaf ^(12 fr) & the leaf ^{alone} (6 fr) in all 65 fr are all artistic & rare.

4th - The negro girl. This is very much admired. The Comte de Chambord has ordered one. I thought it best to get it. People here love to hear me tell the story of Annemont to that degree that that they give me 5 fr apiece & some, more, & I could have got the whole most readily if people had been in town. I think it would give ^{all the towns} real pleasure to hear that it gone by purchase at the fair - to Mrs Stone. Mlle Leconte & Madame Lemonnier wanted to buy it at once for only, as Miss Beville said next day, "It would be hard work to raise the money." But in the ^{moment} of enthusiasm she was ready to fly to get it.

The translations are multiplying. It certainly will be quite good here as well as elsewhere.

5th I must have rather had "tinkered" with Juel as he says. The gres, you have 5 or 6 dollars worth of & a good deal for your money. From Almettes I have got at the rate of 12 sous a box, can't you double it?

6th The little soldiers caps, drums, trunks &c. are four sous apiece. fill them with pins, or peppermints, & sell them for from 12 to 20.

7th The pottery is dearer but it is very elegant & very fashionable. It is the perfect imitation of the Etruscan made at Naples now, & of which there is so much all at the Louvre.

A large vase costs 100[£]. We could only afford you small ones, & without handles for fear of accident.

The Muse-lamp & candlesticks are the best imitation.

8th I send the "Pire Tom" to Mrs Stone. The translation in the press is better. Poemi will not of course do anything. It would be impossible, as these translations have got possession, she will merely make a few selections for a new years gift for children, which I told her Mrs Stone never would present her for doing, even if the law took effect "right away".

9th Some of C. Hinds Autographs are very valuable - Scott's & Dr Chalmers letters particularly.

10th The imitation vases Statuettes, with their consoles, will I hope do well. They are different to get here. Some of the moulds are broken. The to get it Rachel Madame de Coligny had every where for I could not get it. The Canagucci & La Mortine, can't be got for love or money except by some persons like ourselves who know how to approach ^{the} republican statues. The making of them is dangerous & forbidden by this monster. We know as you ~~know~~ ^{through} ~~know~~ ^{Malouin} who has been in prison 8 years for a political offence till his health is ruined & he can only make these statues of republicans.

The police have his moulds the other way & told him to "make the Emperor!"

Every body wants these statuettes & we want to keep them, so I think they will sell. If people want to buy the busts without the consoles, the latter will sell for lamp-stands. There's many a place by the parks some where, that could be made more comfortable for the father of the family to read his nightly newspaper or the mother to mend her stockings instead of holding the candle ^{stick} or her knees & her hand.

11th - I send beneath for Mr Weston a sum due to be fixed where Mr Weston & the Quadrant decide, to supply the place of the old 12^o Cock mark which the new moon has shut out.

12th - Madame Putnam's arrival, & it. You may have thought that you saw at the cafe in the Palace royal, great Peas & Apples; for doubtless you must have seen. But no such thing they are only the likenesses of Peas & Apples, now much used to decorate ^{supper} tables, & make desserts look tempting. They are a consequence of the great improvements in horticulture: ~~when~~ ^{the} ^{fruit} A Man gets the prize, he becomes so in love with it, by dint of watching & watching its returning, that he can't bear to think of its decaying. So he sends it to a Man in the Rue d'Enfer - (seul de son espece) who takes its portrait, or bust if you will & so exactly, both as to weight & impurities, & well as to perfection of form & colour, that he can't tell the true from the false apple when he has finished it. It is a new mantra, & its composition is a secret. - Only the man & his wife are in it. You must advise this "to Horticulturalists." That's all.

Now for other things. I left off last at C. to C. - Correspondence.
I have written 8 pages to Honey & 25 to H. Mantineau since I wrote last. To Jeremiah Winstow of thanks. D. - Decorations. When we got your letter ordering Curtains - stuff, I had just completed our Curtains here, for one window & a bed, of a beautiful red woollen damask, - say 20 yds,
