Foreword

Twenty-eight years is negligible in the span of history. But when we survey the years between 1912 and 1940 the comparison is significant in the theme—PROGRESS. Small indeed was the first Clearwater High School, with a maximum of twenty-five in its student body, taught by one teacher in one room. The first graduating class contained four members.

From that tiny seed Clearwater High School has almost outgrown its present attractive building with thirteen class rooms, two laboratories, a library and an auditorium.

It is a long way from the realm of that one teacher, who was "Lord of all he surveyed," to our efficient faculty of sixteen members. The student body of 1940 has as its enrollment 497 and the senior class boasts of 132 members.

Clearwater High School students are proud of their chances for scholastic development, but even more proud are they of their thirty extra curricular activities, which answer the varied aspirations of any student. They constitute a far cry from "speaking pieces" on Friday afternoon and a spring baseball game.

Viewed in relation to history and time this progress is infinitesimal, but examined from a standpoint of accomplishments, it is infinite. From a small pamphlet, the yearbook has grown to the present somewhat imposing volume. It is the sincere hope of the staff that this, the first "Aqua Clara," will justify in quality its increase in size and will be a fitting commemoration of a quarter century of progress.

Presentation

Tradition has its place in the scheme of life, but tradition can become stagnation. Clearwater High School stands for advancement, and for this reason we, the graduating class of 1940, have chosen as our theme, "Progress." In the pages which follow, an endeavor has been made to present pictorially and in writing the steps which our school has made in its growth. In so doing, we are endeavoring to pay tribute to those who have pioneered in the various fields and through whose efforts our school has taken its rank among the best. Because of the unusual progress realized within the past two years, this, the 1940 "Aqua Clara," not only sets forth the progress of the more remote past, but especially the contemporary expansion.

It is our hope that this annual with its theme shall become the foundation and incentive for greater progress as the years come and go.

Dedication

To those predecessors, the alumni of C. H. S., the businessmen, citizens, well-wishers of the communities who supply this school with students; to the teachers and leaders of C. H. S., who, through their energetic labors, keen foresight, pride in their community and realization of the power of knowledge, have aided Clearwater High School on its road of progress—as a token of gratitude, we, the students of Clearwater High School, do faithfully and gratefully dedicate, this, the first volume of the “Aqua Clara.”

History of Senior Class

We are the Seniors! After struggling twelve, thirteen and fourteen years to reach this goal we rightfully and justifiably crow. Looking back we see years of gradual evolution—from hair ribbons and knickers to Caesar and long pants. What progress! On the side, we learned a few things about algebra, social science, English and whatever else came our way.

From our precarious perch, we are reminded of the days when we were the fearless freshmen, the mighty masterminds of junior high. Never in the annals of the school has there been such an illustrious class . . . nor such a modest one. Some of the more aspiring students wandered over to senior high to gaze upon those magic words, "Mica, mica, parva stella, etc., etc." We left many otherwise promising students still muttering, "hic, haec, hoc." Highlight of the year was the election, with Eugene Jones and Geraldine Turner making the political speeches for the presidency. Miss Turner carried away the gavel. Being a party-loving crew, we enjoyed many picnics and skating parties, rounding up the year with our first real dance at the Elks Hall.

September of the next year found a very sophisticated sophomore class. Geometry, biology and foreign languages shortly quelled our egotism but never dampened our spirits. Our class was soon organized and Mrs. Crowell was chosen as adviser to succeed Miss Briggs in junior high. An election was held and Herb Hopper became our president. The idea of a boy in the highest seat was quite an innovation, but the reserved young man carried the responsibilities very well. The year, with new studies and faces, was an eventful one and the students speedily became a part of the various clubs of the school—the Honor Society, Chatter Staff, F. L. S., the language clubs and social organizations.

Our sophomore year passed rapidly and in the fall of '39 we became juniors. We knew that we had reached the summit of learning. However, finding ourselves again under the influence of Morse, Kelly & Morse, we were convinced that we still knew little less than nothing. Once more we put our noses to the proverbial grindstone. Mrs. Crowell was again our adviser and after a few weeks our class was organized. The election was a hard-fought battle with the female of the species the recipient of the battered gavel. Jere once more proved herself the exceptional leader. Our biggest job of the year was to give a "different" party for seniors. An able committee conceived the brilliant and hithertoto untried idea of an advertising party. Everyone was to come dressed to represent a popular product on the market. It was a "whooping" success. Perfectly ridiculous costumes were in order and a general funfest was enjoyed.

Finishing our junior year, our brave little band, growing smaller as family responsibilities, outside interests, Latin and physiology took their separate tolls, staggered on to greater and more lofty heights. The class was organized quickly and Miss Turner continued as president. Knox Brumby was chosen editor-in-chief of the Chatter; Mary Louise Green, president of the Honor Society; Paul McElvin, Junior Rotarian; Jack Murray, editor-in-chief of the Aqua Clara and president of the Debate Club.

The ambition of the senior classes for the past three years was realized and student government was established March 15. The presidency was awarded to Betty Miller, a leader in the endeavor to create a unified spirit in the school.

Our senior class rings, ordered and coming by way of the war (so it seemed), finally reached us and came up to every expectation. Invitations for commencement were beautiful in design and quite suitable for the occasion. The senior class play was selected, "The Whole Town's Talking," parts assigned and practice had begun by March 1. It need not be added that the play was one of the most successful ever staged, both from the standpoint of performance and finance.

The junior class spent time and effort on our Junior-Senior prom, a "kid" party. Borrowing baby brother's or sister's playsuits we romped around feeling at least two years younger. Our appreciation was shown by the fact that the party was the topic of conversation for weeks after. But the enthusiasm of the seniors in planning and executing the senior banquet more than matched the juniors. This was the social affair of the year and all cooperated in making it a joyous occasion. The "Last Round-Up" was the theme and the "little dogies felt themselves getting along."

Graduation time drew near and faint heart was ever expressed on fair face. The theme of the commencement program was "The Person I Want My Child to Be," and the solemnity of expression upon the faces of the robed students formed a perfect background. Perhaps the thought foremost in the mind was that of regret. True, like our motto, "Progress," we must go on, but in our hearts we shall carry lasting memories of the foundation stone of our later lives, our school of education and experiences, our own Clearwater High.

Then and Now

The first building at top left side was the only school building in Clearwater up to 1908. The enrollment for all grades, 1 to 12, was approximately 50. There were two teachers.

In 1910 the Clearwater schools moved into building two at top. Here the enrollment was 110, and there were four teachers.

At the present time, Clearwater has six buildings. The enrollment is 1,800, and there are 66 teachers.

The third picture is a section of our own Clearwater high school. The enrollment in grades 10 to 12 has been 497 this year, and we have 16 teachers.

Seniors of 1926

In 1925 the first class graduated from our present Clearwater high school building. There were forty-two in the class and our Miss Sara de Kirkpatrick was a member of that class.

The class of 1926 is pictured above. There are fifty-six in the class.

The class of 1940 has 132 on roll. In fifteen years, the number of seniors is three times its beginning.

C. H. S. Council

After considerable investigation and discussion by a committee appointed to study possibilities for student cooperation in school government, March the fifteenth was set as election day for members of a School Council.

Those elected met March the twentieth to select officers and formulate plans for activities for the remainder of the semester, and to set up a working organization for next year. Miss Lois Morse and Miss Martha Kelly were designated as advisers.

It is the desire and plan of the Council that much may be accomplished through the student body for the improvement of the spirit and routine of the school as well as of its general appearance.

The National Honor Society

The Clearwater Chapter of the National Honor Society bestows the greatest honor one can receive from the Clearwater Senior High School when it pledges a student to membership. The colors of the society are royal purple, symbolizing leadership; white, symbolizing character; red, symbolizing service; and pink, symbolizing wisdom. Members are chosen for their ability to fulfill the four requirements symbolized by the colors. The emblem is the keystone of the flaming torch. The torch is the expression of our purpose to bear forward the searching light of truth, to lead others that they may follow in the light, to keep learning in our school a high ambition for the enduring values of life, and to serve.

The sponsors are Miss Martha Kelley and Miss Marguerite Morse.

Virginia Viser (Secretary), Knox Brumby, Edward Hornsby (Vice President), George Tornwall, Jack Murray (President), Miss Kirkpatrick (Adviser).

National Forensic League

Clearwater High School applied last year for a charter in the N. F. L. and was received into the honorary society for debaters this year. Led by Miss Sarah de Kirkpatrick the club expanded rapidly and attained a membership of ten people, but graduation last year left six members for this year. The highest honor a C. H. S. debater can hope to attain is a membership in this organization. The district debate champs are members of our chapter of the N. F. L.

Debate Club

Under the capable leadership of Coach Kirkpatrick, the Debate Club this year has represented Clearwater well in the various speech contests throughout the state.

The Debate Club which was organized three years ago won the first district tournament in which it entered. Next year, formed into the permanent Debate Club, the club again won the district meet. This year the club entered contestants in oratory, debates, and extemporaneous speaking. For the third consecutive year the C. H. S. debaters won the district meet, thus setting up an enviable record.

The local chapter of Quill and Scroll, honorary journalistic society, was organized in January, 1940. Charter members of the club are: Mary Louise Green, Jere Turner, Jack Murray, Knox Brumby, Tommy Harris, Angela Palmisano, Ann Rourk, Daisy Ellen Lewis. Later Carolyn Nichols, Barbara Harris, Don Munger and Betty Miller were inducted into the chapter.

The Quill and Scroll promotes school newspapers of high standards. A literary and journalistic magazine, The Beach Comber, containing articles written by the high school students has been edited by the local chapter. To cover the expenses entailed a skit and candy sale were given.

The school paper, "The Chatter," underwent many changes in form and operation this year. For instance, the title line was changed, a policy for student participation was published, a notable department was founded, and a Quill and Scroll Chapter was instituted.

"The Chatter" was edited almost entirely from the new journalism class and placed second in Class B in the state contest.

The French Club was organized in 1936, in recognition of our realization that the true significance of language study lies in a deeper appreciation and understanding of the brotherhood of man and the unity of world civilization. This thought has been furthered by correspondence of some of the club members with boys and girls of France.

The club work has included a study of language, history, national character and culture in drama, music, biography and folk dancing.

The outstanding event of each year is a dinner given by the club for the French department and its honor guests.

Ending his seventh year in Clearwater high school, Coach Al Rogero can point with pride to the team he has developed.

The Tornados went through their best season with one game lost, to Plant high school.

For the first time ever, a C. H. S. team beat Hillsborough high school.

Clearwater placed four on the Honorable Mention All-State team.

"Stumpy" Tscarios, our slippery wingback, was elected captain for the 1940 Tornados, and Carter Whelpley, guard, will serve as alternate captain.

To Johnny Rountree and Harvel Dunn go the scoring honors, with 32 and 32 points, respectively.

Strainer's 55-yard run in the Hillsborough game is to be remembered.

Also to be remembered is Peck's consistent punting.

Many a Clearwater foe will remember how hard it was to make any distance through Harry Hill, Herbert Dudley, Edwin Blanton, Carter Whelpley, and Bill Leithieser, who were the spark plugs of Clearwater's line.

Fans will remember the defensive and offensive work of J. M. Harris, James Hope, Albert Strainer, and "Cotton" Brown, who held down end positions this year.

Most of all to be remembered is the sportsmanship and clean football that Clearwater was known by.

First Row, Seated: Russel Trombley, Miles Moore, Harry Hancock, Charles Maloney.

Second Row: Harry Hill, Carter Whelpley, Albert Strainer, Harvel Dunn.

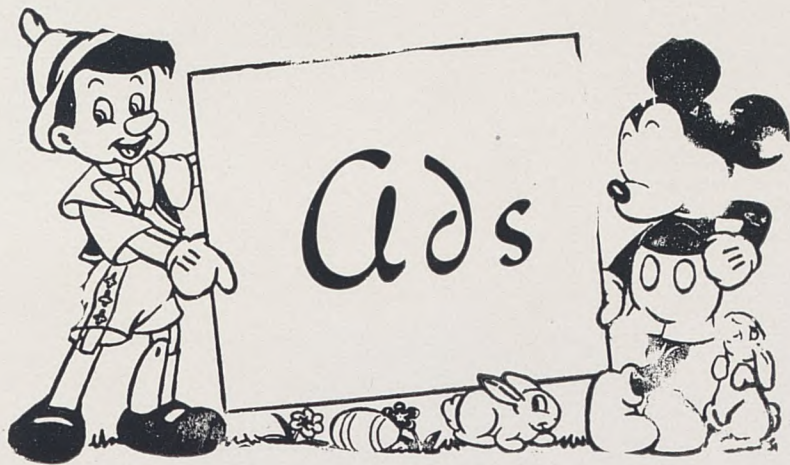

Third Row: Coach Al Rogero, Clinton Holden, Richard Brown.
