Reminiscences of Gen. Jackson.

All public exhibitions have their peculiar physiognomies. During the passage of Gen. Jackson through Philadelphia, there was a very strong party opposed to him, which gave a feature to the show differing from others we had witnessed, but which became subdued in a degree by his appearance. A firm and imposing figure on horseback, General Jackson was perfectly at home in the saddle. Dressed in black, with a broad-brimmed white beaver hat, craped in consequence of the recent death of his wife, he bowed with composed ease and a somewhat military grace to the multitude. His tall, thin, bony frame, surmounted by a venerable, weatherbeaten, strongly lined and original countenance, with stiff, upright, gray hair, changed the opinion which some had previously formed. His military services were important, his career undoubtedly patriotic; but he had interfered with many and deep interests. There was much dissident humming.

The General bowed right and left, lifting his hat often from his head, appearing at the same time dignified and kind. When the cavalcade first marched down Chestnut street, there was no immediate escort, or it did not act efficiently. Rude fellows on horseback, of the roughest description, sat sideling on their torn saddles just before the President, gazing vacantly in his face as they wound from the gallery, but interrupting the view of his person from other portions of the public.

James Reside, the celebrated mail contractor, became very much provoked at one of these fellows. Reside rode a powerful horse before the President, and with a heavy longlashed riding whip in his hand, attempted to drive the man's broken down steed out of the way. But the animal was as impervious as the rider to sense or decency, and Reside had little influence over a dense crowd, till the escort exercised a proper authority in front. I saw the General smile at Reside's eagerness to clear the way for him. Of course, this sketch is a glimpse at a certain point where the procession passed. I viewed it again in Arch street, and noticed the calmness with which the General saluted a crowd of negroes who suddenly gave him a hearty cheer from the wall of a grave yard where they perched. He had just taken off his hat to some ladies waving handkerchiefs on the opposite side of the street, when he heard the huzza, and replied by a salutation to the unexpected but not despised color.

After the fatigue of the parade, when invited to take some refreshment, Jackson asked for some boiled rice and milk at dinner. There was some slight delay to procure them, but he declined anything else.

I recollect an anecdote of Daniel Webster in relation to Gen. Jackson, which I wish to preserve. On some public occasion, an entertainment was given, under large tents, near Point-no-Point, in Philadelphia county, which the representatives to the Legislature were generally invited to attend. Political antipathies and prejudices were excessive at that day. No moderate person was tolerated, in the slightest degree, by the more violent opponents of the Administration. Mr. Webster was present, and rose to speak. His intelligent and serious air of grave thought was impressively felt. He spoke his objections to a certain policy of the Administration with a gentle firmness. I sat near him. One of his intolent friends made an inquiry, either at the close of a short dinner table address, or during his speech, if "he was not still in the practice of visitating at the White House?" I saw Webster's brow become clouded, as he calmly but slowly exclaimed:

"His position as Senator required him to have occasional intercourse with the President of the United States, whose views upon some points of national policy differed widely from those he (Webster) was well known to entertain;" when, as if his noble spirit became suddenly aware of the narrow meanness that had induced the question, he raised himself to his full height, and looking firmly at his audience, with a pause, till he caught the eye of the inquirer, he continued:

"I hope to God, gentlemen, never to live to see the day when a Senator of the United States can not call upon the Chief Magistrate of the nation, on account of any differences in opinion either may possess upon public affairs!"

This honorable, patriotic and liberal expression was most cordially applauded by all parties. Many left that meeting with a sense of relief from the impression of political intolerance so nearly allied to the tyranny of religious bigotry.

I had been introduced, and was sitting with a number of gentlemen in a circle round the fire of the President's room, when James Buchanan presented himself for the first time, as a Senator of the United States from his native State.

"I am happy to see you, Mr. Buchanan," said Gen. Jackson, rising and shaking him heartily by the hand, "both personally and politically. Sit down, sir."

The conversation was social. Some one brought in a lighted corn-cob pipe, with a long reed stalk, for the President to smoke. He appeared waiting for it. As he puffed at it, a Western man asked some question about the fire which had been reported at the Hermitage. The answer made was, "it had not been much injured," I think, "but the family had moved temporarily into a log house," in which the General observed, "he had spent some of the happiest days of his life." He then, as if excited by old recollections, told us he had an excellent plantation, fine cattle, noble horses, a large stillhouse, and so on. "Why, General," laughed his Western friend, "I thought I saw your name, the other day, along with those of other prominent men, advocating the cold water system?" "I did sign something of the kind," replied the veteran, very coolly puffing at his pipe, "but I had a very good distillery, for all that!" Before markets became convenient, almost all large plantations had stills to use up the surplus grains, which could not be sold to a profit near home. Tanneries, and blacksmiths' shops were also accommodations, for essential convenience.

Martin, the President's doorkeeper, was very independent, at times, to visitors at the White House, especially if he had been indulging with his friends, as was now and then the case. But he was somewhat privileged, on account of his fidelity and humor. Upon one occasion he gave great offense to some water-drinking Democrats—rather a rare specimen at that day—who complained to the President. He promised to speak to Martin about it. The first opportunity—early, while Martin was cool—the President sent for him in private, and mentioned the objection.

"Och! Jeneral, dear!" said Martin, looking him earnestly in the face, "I'd hev enough to do ef I give ear to all the nonsense people tell me, even about yerself, Jeneral! I wonter who folks don't complain about, now a days. But if they are friends of yours, Jeneral, they maybe hed cause, ef I could only recollect what it was! So we'll jist let it pass by this time, ef you please sur!"

Martin remained in his situation. When the successor of Mr. Van Buren came in, the door keeper presented himself soon after to the new President, with the civil inquiry:

"I suppose I'll have to flit with the other Martin?"

He was smilingly told to be easy.

I saw Gen. Jackson riding in an open carriage, in earnest conversation with his successor, as I was on the way to the Capitol to witness the inaugural oath. A few days after, I shook hands with him for the last time, as he sat in a railroad car, about to leave Washington for the West. Crowds of all classes leaped up to offer such salutations, all of whom he received with the same easy, courteous, decided manner he had exhibited on other occasions.—Atlantic Monthly.

A Second Ulysses.

An old man, of very acute physiognomy, answering to the name of Jacob Wilmot, was brought before the Police Court of Philadelphia. His clothes looked as if they might have been bought second handed in his youthful prime, for they had suffered more from the rubs of the world than the proprietor himself.

"What business do you follow?" demanded the magistrate.

"Business! None—I'm a traveler."

"A vagabond, perhaps?"

"You are not far wrong—travelers and vagabonds are much the same thing. The difference is the former travels without brains and the latter without money."

"Where have you traveled?"

"All over the Continent."

"For what purpose?"

"Observation."

"What have you observed?"

"A little to commend, much to censure and very much to laugh at."

"Umph! and what do you commend?"

"A handsome woman that will stay at home—an eloquent preacher that will preach a short sermon—a good writer that will not write too much—and a fool that has sense enough to hold his tongue."

"What do you censure?"

"A man who marries a girl for her fine dancing—a youth who studies law or medicine, while he has the use of his hands—and people who elect a drunkard or a blockhead to an office."

"What do you laugh at?"

"I laugh at a man who expects his position to commend the respect which his personal qualities and qualifications do not merit."

He was dismissed.

A BEGGAR woman, when questioned if she was not an Irish woman, dropped a curtesy, and added:

"Sure I am your honor, and have been since I was a child."

The Birth of Louis Napoleon.

Nearly eighty years ago an exceedingly graceful, attractive lady, about twenty-five years of age, was crossing the ocean from Martinique to Havre, in France. She was dressed in great simplicity, and though cheerful in address, her countenance bore an expression of settled pensiveness. She led by the hand a remarkably beautiful and vivacious daughter five years of age. There was a goat on board the ship with which this child amused herself much of the time. She was a great pet of the sailors, and greeted them with the wonderful agility and grace with which she danced to the music of their rough voices. Her only pair of slippers were soon worn out. A kind sailor cut down an old pair of slippers which he had, and with needle and twine made quite a nice fit for the child. The mother was exceedingly gratified, and in subsequent years said:

"No present which I have ever received afforded me half so much pleasure as the gift of those rough shoes, from the hands of that old sailor."

This mother was Josephine, afterwards the bride of Napoleon, and this child was Hortense, the mother of the present emperor of France. Josephine, when very young, had been married to the Count de Beauharnais, at Martinique, and had accompanied him to France. There the Count plunged into such dissipation that Josephine was compelled to leave him, and with a saddened heart and all her hopes blighted, she returned to her friends in Martinique, as sorrowful a woman as perhaps could be found in the world. She retained her daughter Hortense.—Her husband kept with him their little boy Eugene.

But at length Count de Beauharnais became penitent, and his affection for Josephine was so strongly revived that he wrote to her most imploringly to return. Such were the circumstances under which she was now crossing the ocean. Her husband received her very cordially, and for a short time she enjoyed the greatest of all earthly blessings, a happy home. The French Revolution commenced. Her husband espoused the popular cause, and was one of the Girondist party. The Jacobins gained the ascendancy, and he was sent to the guillotine. Josephine was also arrested and plunged into prison. Her children were left penniless and friendless, Eugene was apprenticed to a cabinet maker; Hortense to a seamstress. The fall of Robespierre released Josephine and restored to her her confiscated property.

Napoleon was then coming into notice, and was entrusted with the military command of Paris. Eugene called upon him to solicit the return of the sword of his father. Napoleon, charmed with the grace and intelligence of the boy, sought an interview with his mother, and, to use an expressive phrase, "fell desperately in love with her." It is the universal testimony that Josephine was one of the most fascinating and loveable of mortals. They were soon married, and with the truest paternal affection Napoleon cherished both of the children. Hortense grew up to be one of the most beautiful ladies in Europe. The Duches of Abrantes thus describes her when seventeen years of age:

"She was as fresh as a rose, and though her fair complexion was not relieved by much color, she had enough to produce that freshness and bloom which constituted her chief beauty. A profusion of light hair played in silken locks around her soft and penetrating blue eyes. The delicate roundness of her slender figure was set off by the elegant carriage of her head. But what formed the chief attraction of Hortense was the grace of her manners. She had wit without the smallest ill-temper. I have seen many princesses in their own courts and in Paris, but I never knew one who had any pretense to equal talents with Hortense."

Napoleon had a younger brother Louis, a man of profound religious sensibilities. His health was feeble, and he was naturally a very melancholy man, reserved and solitary in his tastes. With the susceptibility which always belongs to such natures, he had formed an intense attachment for a young lady, a daughter of one of the ancient nobility. Napoleon was apprehensive that the marriage of his brother into one of the families of the old aristocracy, might injure his own influence. He broke up the match by sending Louis away from Paris on a mission, and causing the young lady to be married to another. Louis was crushed by the blow, and never recovered. Napoleon had no idea that he loved with such intensity of devotion, and becoming conscious of the irreparable wound he had inflicted, did everything in his power to repair the wrong.

He resolved to make Louis King of Holland and give him Hortense for a bride, with a magnificent dowry. The motherly pride of Josephine was also deeply interested in this arrangement. But unfortunately Hortense was deeply in love with a very elegant young cavalry officer by the name of Duroc. Still the tact of Josephine and the power of Napoleon, triumphed over all obstacles, and Louis and Hortense, in despairing resignations, were led to their melancholy espousals. Louis was a man of the most inflexible integrity, and of an earnest devotional spirit, but so somber in his character as to present no attractions to a mirthful girl. In his dirge-like memoirs he writes, in reference to these nuptials:

"Never was there a more gloomy wedding. Never had husband and wife a stronger presentiment of the horrors of a forced and ill-suited marriage. Before the ceremony, during the benediction, and ever afterwards, we both equally and constantly felt that we were not suited to each other."

These sad nuptials were consummated on the 4th of January, 1802. Louis was appointed king of Holland. He was a very unhappy man, suffering constantly from extreme dejection, much owing to the disordered state of his health. Three children were born to them. The first, Napoleon adopted as his heir, he being then childless. But to the great misfortune of Napoleon and of all Europe, the child, of rare promise, died when but five years of age. It was one of the greatest griefs of Napoleon's life, and led to the divorce of Josephine. It was the desire to conciliate Europe, and to save France from civil war, which led to this great wrong. The second child died 30 years ago, a young man struggling in the cause of Italian freedom. The third son, Louis Napoleon, was born at the palace of the Tuileries on the 20th April, 1808. He was the first prince of the Napoleon dynasty born under the empire. His birth was hailed with general demonstrations of public rejoicings. All France welcomed his advent, and the waving of banners, the ringing of bells, and the explosion of artillery, were witnessed from one end of Napoleon's majestic empire to the other. The young prince was a great favorite of the Emperor, and was often fondled on his knee. Those who knew him in childhood and early youth, are not surprised at the genius and character he has exhibited in maturer years. The spirit of malignity with which some seem disposed to pursue every member of the Napoleonic family, has cast aspersions upon Hortense. They are entirely unfounded in any evidence. Hortense was so far as all historic evidence can prove, a pure-minded and a noble woman—the worthy daughter of Josephine. Whoever will carefully investigate this subject with a candid mind, will sustain the testimony of the Berkeley Men in the Napoleon Dynasty.

"We have found nothing," they say, "in our investigations on this subject, to justify even a suspicion against the morals of Louis or Hortense, and we here dismiss the subject, with the remark that there is more cause for sympathy with the parties to this unhappy union, than of censure for their conduct."—Abbott.

AT WORK.—We noticed yesterday that the workmen were busily engaged on the new Bridge at Harbin's crossing on Cache creek. The timbers were on the ground and framed, and the work appears to progress rapidly.

IMPORTANT TO SETTLERS.—Jno. W. Snowball, Esq., has been appointed agent of Judge Black of Washington, D. C., through J. B. Williams, Esq., of San Francisco, for the collection of Judge Black's fees for services in defending the rights of the settlers in the "Carmel" Grant Case. Mr. S. is a perfectly reliable and complete business man, and his selection will give general satisfaction to the settlers on the Grant, all of which are expected to come forward, and show their appreciation of the valuable services Judge B. rendered them, by paying up promptly the amount of their subscription.

TAXES.—The assessment of this county for the present year shows the following footings:

Total value of property...$2,261,184 00
Total tax on same..... 37,761 80

This, however, does not include the "subsequent assessment" now being made, nor is it any fair index to the real valuation of property in the county, as the present roll is known to be the most utterly unreliable thing of the kind ever made in a country in which reading, writing and cyphering are supposed to be known to the inhabitants.

Let the blame for all this fall upon the right shoulders—those of the Assessor, Mr. G. J. Overshiner, a man who may be honest, but who certainly has not thus far given any evidence of the quality of "capacity."

AN EXPERIMENT IN BARLEY.—The Alta's correspondent at the Oakland Fair communicates the following:

An experiment made in the cultivation of barley by Mr. Linden, near Oakland, may have an interest for many farmers. Instead of sowing the grain broadcast, he dropped it, while ploughing, into every third furrow, and covered it with the plough. The grain was thus buried about five inches deep, and there may have been about 25 grains to a running foot. The furrow, as originally cut, was about a foot wide, but the grain was crowded away from the plough, so that all the sprouts came up within a breadth of six inches. The space between the rows was nearly three feet. The planting was done in November. In the middle of December, when the green spears were appearing at the surface, the field was harrowed twice. In the middle of January the field was tilled with a cultivator and in March it was hoed carefully. At harvest time, the stalks were very high, and the grain had stooped out to such an extent that, to a person looking over the field, the rows were scarcely visible, the heads standing as close together as in fields sown broadcast. There was less than half an acre, but it yielded 3,225 lbs. of grain, equivalent to 6,450 lbs. or 107 bushels per acre. Barley can be planted in this manner in weather too wet for sowing; only about half the quantity of seed is required, and the stalks are stronger and in much less danger of being blown down than if sown broadcast. Wherever grain is planted alongside of crops ploughed during the summer, it is observed that the grain immediately adjoining the ploughed land is more thrifty than elsewhere.

We find the following in the Sacramento Union:

GEN. CURTIS SOUND.—Major General Curtis was serenaded in St. Louis on the night of September 25th. A large number of army officers and citizens were drawn together by the occurrence, and at the conclusion of the music made loud calls for General Curtis. The General appeared on the sidewalk, and, mounting a bench, returned his thanks in a short but pleasing speech for the compliment so generously paid him. He concluded by expressing his hope for the speedy conclusion of the war, and said he was in favor of the Union not as it is, nor as it was, but as it should be. The General retired amid the hearty cheers of the crowd.

Then the General is not fighting for the Union "as it was," but as he says "it should be." We should like to know what he is fighting for.

THE population of the Sandwich Islands in '32 was 120,000; it has since been decreased by disease to half that number. The race will ultimately be supplanted by Americans and Europeans.

ON THE RAMPAGE.—The Editor of the NEWS is this week like Pixley and his mule—on the rampage. His head is full of politics, religion, or finance, or all three, and the consequence is, he has unlawfully and with malice aforethought absented himself from the Sanctum, all this week. The devil suggests he is probably a candidate for U. S. Senator; but we incline to the opinion that he is in the Wool business, between the buyers and sellers of which staple he will have, if he has not already got the wool effectually pulled over his eyes—at all events the editorial columns this week suffers. The hands in the office seriously contemplate the advocacy of ultra Abolition principles, just by way of a change; and the readers of the NEWS may be satisfied, if its present Editor plays truant another week as he has this, this paper will advocate Fred Douglass as candidate for next President, and that equalization and amalgamation of the races is all that is needed to restore harmony and union in our Government, and, like the Editor, all hands will get on the Rampage.

THE Washington correspondent of the New York World, of date September 16th, has the following. It reads sensational; but we give it for what it is worth:

Most astonishing disclosures have been made here to-day, by letters and verbal communications from prominent politicians, showing that a vast conspiracy has been set on foot by the radicals of the Fremont faction to depose the present Administration and place Fremont at the head of a provisional government; in other words, to make him military dictator. One of these letters asserts that one feature of this conspiracy is the proposed meeting of Governors of the Northern States to request President Lincoln to resign, to enable them to carry out their scheme. The writer, in conclusion, says Gov. Andrews and Senator Wilson are at work, and they are probably at the bottom of the movement. From other well informed sources it is learned that the 50,000 independent volunteers proposed to be raised under the auspices of the New York Union Defense Committee were intended to be a nucleus for the organization of this Fremont conspiracy. It was the purpose of those engaged in this movement to have this force organized and armed by the Government and placed under the independent command of their chosen leader, and then to call upon all sympathizers to unite with them in arms to overthrow the present administration and establish in its stead a military dictatorship, to carry out the peculiar policy they desire the Government should execute. Failing in this, it is stated that a secret organization has been inaugurated, the members of which are known by the name of Roundheads. It is intended that this organization shall number 200,000 men in arms, who shall raise the standard of the conspirators and call Gen. Fremont to the command. They expect to be joined by two-thirds of the army of the Union now in the field, and that eventually 1,000,000 of armed men will be gathered around their standard. This startling disclosure is vouched for by men of high repute in New York and other Northern States. It is the last card of those who have been vainly attempting to drive the President into the adoption of their own peculiar policy.

THE following are the orders received by Major Geary at Fort Ruby, from Col. Conner, for his cavalry expedition against guerrillas and Indians:

You will examine every valley and place where you have reason to believe guerrillas or hostile Indians are congregated, whom you will capture. If they resist you will destroy them; but in no case will you molest women or children. If, on the route to Humboldt, friendly Indians deliver to you Indians who were engaged in the late murder of emigrants, you will, on being satisfied of their guilt, immediately hang them, and leave their bodies thus exposed as an example of what evil doers may expect while I command this district.

On the route from the South Fork of the Humboldt to Bear river, you will spare no pains to discover the whereabouts of a band of traitors or guerrillas, reported to be encamped in the vicinity of the Humboldt, and who are believed to be the instigators of, if not participants in, the late Indian murders. If you should discover such a band you will take them prisoners and convey them to headquarters; but if they should resist, you will destroy them without mercy. You will also destroy every male Indian whom you may encounter in the vicinity of the late massacres.

This course may seem harsh and severe; but I desire that the order may be rigidly enforced, as I am satisfied that in the end it will prove the most merciful.

THE San Francisco Journal says that a late Grand Jury of Sierra county, in their report, said they found the accounts of the Auditor in a chaotic state—could learn nothing from them and prove nothing, save the total unfitness of the incumbent for the place. Said incumbent resigned in consequence and was appointed U. S. Deputy Collector.

San Francisco Correspondence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7th, '62.

EDITOR KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS: I presume your readers would not object to hearing something of the sayings and doings of the people of this, the great city of the Pacific. To a man of staid habits, living in the country, a trip to San Francisco is not only a recreation, but a novelty. Here is personified the perfect American genius full of trade, bustle and activity; ready to take hold of any scheme or enterprise, if you can only convince him it will pay. The great hobby for speculation now is Mining Stock. The almost fabulous yields of silver from some few rich claims in Washoe, has started the fever for this kind of investment, and incorporated mining companies are as numerous as the inventive genius of the Yankee to produce names for them. Here you see—on paper of course—leads of vast extent and wealth, with certificates of assays of the mineral, that by a very simple calculation will make all rich in a short time that are fortunate enough to secure a few shares—the more shares the richer of course, and for your correspondent to suggest that nineteen-twentieths of these companies are a sheer humbug, would be a piece of assurance too great for a country individual to assume; and we all must say they are splendid investments, just because the nabobs of Montgomery street profess to think so. By the way, this Montgomery street is a great institution. A San Franciscan can't speak of the improvements here without alluding to Montgomery street. Here the ladies promenade to show themselves to the gents, and the gents promenade to show themselves and fine store clothes to the ladies; Naval officers and military officers; pretty girls and military boys; Irish Invincibles and Scotch Greys; Generals, Corporals, Comadores and Middies. Here fast men drive fast horses, and slow country men slow teams. All kinds of vehicles apparently wish to pass through this street if they can do so without getting too far out of their way; from the countryman, with his drag and yoke of cattle, to the fast man, with his 2:40 horse; in fact, a lady has not been out for a walk here, unless she has passed at least once through Montgomery street; in all the other streets the real substantial business is done, but here is all the glitter and show of the great city.

Since the Fair subsided in Sacramento, we have had quite a sprinkle of politicians here, looking out for Senatorial chances. Conness and Phelps, Brown and Parks, each alike anxious to serve the dear people in that capacity, and each the right man to save the country in this her day of trouble. Which has the inside track is hard to tell. I incline to the opinion that Parks has the lead in San Francisco, and Phelps in the country. Conness, without he makes a good brush on the home stretch, will be distanced—there is many a slip, &c., and no one knows who will go up and who down before next January.

Among the many sights to be seen in the metropolis, your correspondent visited the select and popular establishment of Miss Aldrich. This is one of the real improvements of the age; here young ladies are trained in all the mental as well as the physical exercises which are necessary to keep both body and mind in vigorous and healthy action. It being to me a novelty, I will endeavor to more particularly describe it. It is exclusively a Female Seminary, and the system the result of the experience of its admirable principal. The young ladies are taught all the branches of study which are usually taught in first class Academies; and attached to the establishment is a large and well arranged Gymnasium. Here the young ladies are required each day at stated times to exercise themselves, and thereby develop their physical system. Connected with the establishment is a large Bath Room, where all are required to bathe after exercising in the Gymnasium. I saw a number of the young ladies of the establishment during the exercises, and the contrast between them and a great many of our young ladies of the present day, was very marked—the former were lively, healthy, red cheeks, and looked the personification of health and happiness—the latter needs no description; it is a fact, admitted generally, that the majority of our ladies are to a greater or less extent, subject to ill health; and it is also admitted, the cause of the same is a lack of physical exercise in their early training. This defect the popular institution of Miss Aldrich fully obviates, and I am pleased to say, her efforts are fully appreciated, as attested by the large attendance of pupils for instructions.

SACRAMENTO Union of Oct. 15th:

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 13.—Sixth Regiment of Missouri State militia have, in several scouting expeditions within the past few days, broken up various bands of guerrillas—killing about fifty of them and capturing a large correspondence of interest.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14th.—The Times' Harper's Ferry correspondent confirms the statement that a forward movement of the army has been determined on.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—Last evening's Washington Star says a man who arrived in that city from Conrad's Ferry states that he was in Gen. Stuart's presence a few minutes before crossing the river. Stuart informed him in a sarcastic tone that he had fooled the whole party, but regretted that he had not accomplished what he intended when he started, as he expected to reach Frederick, Md., to destroy the Government stores at that point, and then destroy the bridge over the Monocacy; but all things taken into consideration, he had carried out his programme with much success. Stuart's horses looked extremely exhausted, but he was in high glee.

FR. MONROE, Oct. 13th.—Richmond papers of the 9th October contain accounts of the battle of Corinth and acknowledge a loss of 5,000 killed and wounded.

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—Official orders have been issued for a draft in Massachusetts, to commence to-morrow. It will be found necessary in but few localities in the State.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Reports of the late fights at Corinth and Hatchie continue to represent them as the most desperate of the war. A dispatch from Cairo to-night says the country has yet no just conception of the late battles. They were the bloodiest on the record, when we take into consideration the number engaged. Our loss is estimated by some as high as 2,000 in killed and wounded. The rebels, in this retreat from Hatchie, threw away their arms by the wagon loads, cutting their horses and mules loose from the wagons, in order to get away as fast as possible. There are now said to be several thousand of them scattered over West Tennessee. Several squads of them have been seen by steamers coming up from Memphis.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Exchange, 146 @ 147; Gold, 33 @ 33 1/2; Gold Bars, nominal; Sixes of '81, 104 @ 104 1/2; Demand Notes, 21 1/2; Pacific Mail, 129 1/2; California Sevens, 111 1/2.

ST. JOHNS, Oct. 14.—Spence, writing to the London Times, says:

The victories gained by the Federal forces in Maryland have placed the North in a position to make peace without dishonor, but that golden opportunity will be lost, and adds, as the North cannot be the first to acknowledge the independence of the Confederacy, Europe should remove the stumbling block by recognizing the Confederate States, and the North may then follow the example.

The New York correspondent of the London Times, writing under date of the 19th Sept., says:

It is evident that the decisive battle of the war has not yet been fought. All that has happened is but preliminary to the final onslaught; and how it will be is not likely to make or mar the fortunes of the Confederates.

The Army and Navy Gazette says the South has tried the offensive and failed. They have shown great daring and been beaten.

The exportation of arms and ammunition from England to America is rapidly increasing. The shipments of the first eight months of the year are valued at £1,300,000.

The Paris Patrie hears from a good source that nothing is more likely than the recognition the South, on the basis of accomplished facts, very soon, England and France acting in concert.

The Bourse was much excited on the 3d, rents closing at 72. It was supposed that the advance was caused by a rumor that the Papal Government had shown a more pliant disposition.

On Sunday, October 12th, a royal decree will proclaim an amnesty to Garibaldi and his followers, excepting only deserters from the royal army.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—Midnight we cannot sate yet with any degree of certainty the result of the election. The indications, however, are, that a Union victory throughout the State has been gained.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—Eighteen wards in the city have given Alexander Harvey, Union candidate for Mayor, 4,700 maj. Campbell, Rep., is probably defeated in the 7th Congressional District by Gen. McCall. Dispatches indicate the election of Gen. James Morehead, Rep., in the 22d District.

READING, Pa., Oct. 15.—The whole Democratic ticket is elected in Berks county, by about 4,000 maj.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 15.—In addition to the members of Congress elected, telegraphed to-day, we have the following: In the 8th District, S. B. Ancona, Dem.; 10th, Stems, Dem. (loss); 12th, Crow, Union; 14th, Patterson, Union; 15th, E. McPherson, Union; 18th, S. S. Blair, Union; 21st, Davidson, Dem. (in doubt); 23d, Williams, Union.

The returns indicate the election of Russell Thayer, Union, for Congress in the 5th District.

CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 14.—Bailey, Union, for Congress, has 2,500 maj. in Cumberland county.

A Harrisburg dispatch says: "It is thought here that the Union ticket has carried the State by 50,000 maj."

The results of the Congressional election thus far known are as follows: 1st District—S. J. Randall Dem., elected; 2d—Charles O'Neil, Union, said; 3d—John Kline, Dem., loss; 4th—Wm. D. Kelly, Union, probably; 5th—Stiles, D.; 11th—Johnson, Dem., loss.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 15.—The city election yesterday resulted in a complete Democratic triumph.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 15.—The returns received up to midnight indicate the following result for Congress: 1st District, John Laws, D.; 2d, A. Cravens, D.; 3d, Wm. M. Dunn, U.—probably vote close; 4th, Wm. S. Holman, D.; 5th, G. W. Julian, U.; 6th, E. Dumont, U.; 7th, D. W. Voorhees, D.; 8th, Orth, U.; 9th, S. Colfax, U.; 10th, Wm. Mitchell, U.; 11th, P. C. Shanks, U. The vote on the State ticket is close. The Union men claim a small majority.

THE REBEL STEAMER ALABAMA.—The intelligence respecting this vessel, published in the Times of yesterday, has occasioned a rise in war risks. The Alabama is nearly 1,000 tons burden and 300-horse power, and when she left the Mersey she accomplished under unfavorable circumstances nearly 13 knots an hour. She is armed with a 100-pounder Blakeley rifled gun forward, a 68-pounder smooth bore aft and 4 32-pounders. Her crew, all picked men, numbers 110. She will, probably, be heard of off Nassau and Charleston, opening a passage for vessels carrying munition of war for the Confederates. The Alabama took her armament on board in the Western Islands from the Bahamas steamer, notwithstanding a heavy sea which prevailed. She is considered to be quite a match for the Tuscarora and is superior in speed. She can carry 21 days' coal.—London Times, Sept. 3d.

RETURNED.—The Review states that nearly all the squatters at Healdsburg have returned to the land and homes from which they were so lately dispossessed by law.

ARREST OF A CONFIDENCE MAN.—A few weeks since a young man hailing from Mansfield, Ohio, named Robert McComb, appeared in Marysville, and waited upon several of our citizens who were acquainted with his relatives, who are among the most respectable families of the Buckeye State. He said he had been with the three months volunteer corps at the East and having served the time for which he enlisted in the army, he became tired of that life, and concluded to take a pleasure trip to California. He made himself quite at home at San Francisco, and Sacramento, and told big stories concerning the various projects he had in view, and the speculations in which he intended to embark, in this State and elsewhere. On sundry occasions, when his cash would run short, he would suggest to some of his acquaintances that they would confer a favor by making advances to meet his immediate obligations, as sums of money were due him from responsible parties, which would soon be in his possession. On Sunday morning he went to the stable of I. Eckert, in this city, and hired a horse and saddle, for the alleged purpose of going to Sacramento, but one of our police officers saw him going into the interior, and suspecting something wrong, informed Mr. Eckert, who requested Marshal Johnston to endeavor to secure his arrest. The Marshal telegraphed to officer Edwards, at San Juan, who arrested McComb, at that place, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Last evening he was brought down in the stage, in charge of S. S. Hussey, and lodged in the Station House. We are informed that on his way up, McComb stopped two teamsters on the road, and demanded their money. They having no mineral about them, handed over two jack knives, when McComb opened a bottle of wine, and the whole party drank thereof. This is a very singular case, and the young man has certainly conducted himself in a very unbecoming manner during his short sojourn in California.—Cal. Express.

WEST TROY FIRE.—The extensive chair factory of Seymour & Co., at West Troy, says the Albany Argus, was totally destroyed by fire on Saturday morning, September 20th. The factory consisted of two large brick buildings, three stories each in height, from 140 to 160 feet long, and 30 to 40 deep, with dry houses, sheds and offices. Judge Gould, of Troy, was the owner; George R. and Henry I. Seymour, the occupants. The property was entirely destroyed. Messrs. Seymour were insured for $21,800, in the following companies: Lorillard, Rutger, Metropolitan, Brevoort, Exchange, Pacific and New Amsterdam, of New York; a Atlantic, Washington and Hope, of Providence; Phoenix, of Hartford; and Northwestern, of Oswego. Judge Gould's loss must be about $13,000. He is insured for $10,000, in the Columbea, Harmony, Merchants', Excelsior, Exchange and Mechanics' Companies. By this fire one hundred and fifty persons are thrown out of employment, and seventy-five convicts in the Albany Penitentiary are deprived of work on chair bottoms.

ORDER.—A copy of the following order, issued by Adjutant General Kibbe, has been forwarded to all the Militia Captains in the State:

Owing to the peculiar element of which the population of California is in all localities composed, and the large number of men amongst us who are trading our Government, denouncing its present Administration and constantly seeking its overthrow, it behooves those who are the custodians of the arms and munitions of the State to be vigilant in the duty of carefully guarding and protecting the same.

The Company Armories of the State should be daily inspected, and probably in some localities constantly guarded.

I feel it my duty to caution you in regard to the apparent exigencies of this State, and will urge you to take such precautions for the protection of your arms as the actual condition of your localities may dictate.

Every member of your company (if he has not already done so) should be required to take the oath of allegiance to our Government. I commend this subject to your serious attention.

MAINE ELECTION.—Lorenzo D. Sweat, Democrat, is elected to Congress from the First District of Maine, by a majority of 229. The Republicans elect in the four remaining districts, as follows: Second, Sidney Perham; Third, James G. Blain; Fourth, John H. Rice; Fifth, F. A. Pike. Thomas A. Fessenden has been chosen in the place of Judge Walton of the Second. The vote throughout the State indicates a falling off of the Republican vote of about 8,000. The Democrats express hopes of having carried the House of Representatives; but this is improbable.

The iron clad for California, now in course of construction at Jersey City, New Jersey, is made in sections. She will be put together there, tried, then taken apart, shipped to San Francisco and rebuilt.

MANUFACTURER'S AGENTS, AND dealers in Pitt's, Ball's, Russell's, and other popular

Thrashing Machines. Also, the following

Reapers and Mowers, Improved for the harvest of 1862:

Burt's Eagle Combined Machine; New York do.; McCormick's do.; Heath's Eagle do.; Kentucky Harvesting Machine; Haines' (Illinois) do.; Ball's Ohio Reaper and Mower; Manny's Improved Machine.

Esterly's Improved Machine; Rugg's Combined machine; Vermont mowing machine; Buckeye do.; Bay State do.; Molly Stark (Ohio) Mower:

And sole agents for the celebrated Nourse, Mason & Co's

Ketchum's Improved Mowers, With or without Reaper attachments—the best mowing machine in use. They will be furnished this season at greatly reduced prices, bringing them within the reach of every farmer. These machines are very much improved, and never fail in the matted or lodged clover—cutting with equal ease the tall or tangled grass without clogging or breaking; and so close that it will save from one to five dollars' worth of hay per acre more than any other machine. They are furnished with Reaper Attachment, at small cost—making them a good and serviceable combined machine; and when all other machines have failed in the tangled grain, the work has been done by the Ketchum machine to the perfect satisfaction of all. The one horse machine cuts four feet; the light two-horse machine cuts four and a half and five feet—two sizes; the heavy two-horse machine cuts five and five and a half feet, two sizes. Any boy capable of driving the team can manage the machine; it is not liable to get out of order.

The New Bay State two-wheeled Mower.—We have purchased the patent right to the New Bay State Mower for the State of California. It is one of the many machines lately invented, and stands far ahead of all others in point of excellence as a two-wheeled mowing machine, having all the new improvements that have been fairly tested. It is very light, strong, durable machine, and cuts full four and a half feet.

The Vermont Mower—Also, a two-wheeled machine. It is made mostly of iron, simple in construction, and can be managed with ease.

The Buckeye Machine has two driving wheels like the Vermont machine, and is simple in its construction.

The Molly Stark Mower, (manufactured at Canton, Ohio), is a very light mower, of the Buckeye pattern.

Ball's Ohio Harvester, (manufactured at Canton, Ohio), is a two-wheeled Reaper and Mower. Has two cutter bars—one for reaping and one for mowing. We have imported a few for trial this season.

The Kentucky Harvester cuts about five and a half feet. Said to be a very good machine.

McCormick's Reaper and Mower—a very good reaper—intended for four large horses.

Burt's Eagle Reaper and Mower, (Improved for 1862.) Baker & Hamilton, sole agents for this machine in California and Oregon.

We have imported these machines for the past two years, which were furnished to some of our neighboring farmers and thoroughly tested. They gave general satisfaction both in cutting grain and grass. The style is very much the same as the celebrated Esterly's machine, except that they are better made; have a strong iron finger bar; are hand-raking reapers and have no side draft. They have a large four foot driving wheel. The outside grain wheel is thirty inches in diameter, the driver's seat is over two iron truck wheels, each thirty inches in diameter, and the machine may be turned round without crowding the horses, as there is no weight upon their necks. They have two sets of gearing for fast and slow motion; a smooth knife for mowing, and a sickle for reaping; the back of each is made of hammered cast steel. They cut about six and a half feet, and can be worked with two light horses. We have but a few for this season's trade, owing to the fact that the great demand at the factory made it impossible for the manufacturer to fill our orders for a large number in season for shipment to this market.

Rugg's Reaper and Mower, cutting six and nine feet. This machine cuts in advance of the horses, and the cutter can be raised by the driver from one to twenty-four inches. Sold very cheap.

Haine's Illinois Harvester, or Header, cuts ten feet. Improved for the harvest of 1862. We have also imported complete sets of trucks, or running gear for header-wagons, with neck yokes and whiffletrees complete.

P. Manny's Improved Combined Reaper and Mower.—This is a new style of machine, very light, yet strongly built, lately patented by P. Manny, in which there are many valuable improvements. We are willing to guarantee this Combined Reaper and Mower in every instance.

We have imported a large stock of extras for repairing Reapers, Mowers and Thrashers, all of which will be sold cheap for cash.

—ALSO— Haying and Harvesting Tools

Of every description necessary to meet the wants of the farmers. These they have in large quantities, and can supply to traders wholesale and retail, at San Francisco prices.

All kinds of Farming Implements, Hardware and Seeds.

We are determined not to be undersold by any other house in the State; and invite customers to call and examine for themselves at our AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE SEED STORE. Nos. 9, 11 and 13, J street, between Front and Second, SACRAMENTO.
