Alden, Walker & Wilde Likely to Accept Proposition from Quincy

While every stone is being turned in Quincy to induce Alden, Walker & Wilde the East Weymouth shoe manufacturers, to locate in that city, there seems to be a surprising indifference in Weymouth whether this large industry remains in town or not.

Up to Tuesday no member of the Weymouth Board of trade, no member of the Board of Selectmen, no committee of East Weymouth merchant, had approached any member of the firm of Alden, Walker & Wilde to ascertain whether there was any foundation to the report that the firm was seeking a new location in Quincy; to see if the firm had any grievance either against the town, the Board of Trade, the banks, its employees or anybody else.

The Gazette and Transcript has learned that the firm is rated high; that it gives employment to 300 to 400 men and women; and all but 17 of these employees reside within the town limits of Weymouth.

Quincy is very much alive to add this large firm to its industries, and capital is ready to build a modern factory on any site that the firm may select and lease it on very favorable terms. It is a fact that architect's

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Prudence Starr, eldest of five motherless girls, comes to the Methodist parsonage at Mount Mark, as house mother for her father, the Methodist minister.

CHAPTER II—The girls entertain a visiting minister at luncheon, to his discomfort. Carol, one of the twins, rides the family cow with disastrous results.

CHAPTER III—Prudence and Fairy receive the Ladies' Aid society while Lark, Carol and Connie practice modeling in mud on the dining room table.

Lark managed to crowd back the tears that would slip to the edge of her lashes. "I—I'm very sorry, Prudence." "Very well, Lark, you may go. I do not really object to your modeling in mud, I am sure. I am sorry you look so disreputable. You must change your shoes and stockings at once, and then I can go on with your modeling. But there must be no more pushing and chasing. I'll see Connie about that tonight. Now go." And Lark was swift to avail herself of the permission.

Followed a quiet hour, and then the Ladies put aside their sewing and walked about the room, chatting in little groups. With a significant glance to Fairy, Prudence walked calmly to the double doors between the dining room and the sitting room. The eyes of the Ladies followed her with interest, and even enthusiasm. They were hungry. Prudence slowly opened wide the doors, and—stood amazed! The Ladies clustered about her, and stood amazed also. The dining room was there, and the table! But the appearance of the place was vastly different! The snowy cloth was draped artistically over a picture on the wall, the lowest edges well above the floor. The plates and trays, napkin-covered, were safely stowed away on the floor in distant corners. The kitchen scrub bucket had been brought in and turned upside down, to afford a fitting resting place for the borrowed punch bowl, full to overflowing, with fragrant lemonade.

And at the table were three dirty, disheveled little figures, bending seriously over piles of mud. A not-unrecognizable Venus de Milo occupied the intentionally! I can't punish them for the effect on me, you know! Would that be just or fair? At heart, they meant no harm."

It must be confessed that there were many serious faces among the Ladies. Some cheeks were flushed, some eyes were downcast, some lips were compressed and some were trembling. Every mother there was asking in her heart, "Did I punish my children just for the effect on me? Did I judge my children by what was in their hearts, or just by the trouble they made me?"

And the silence lasted so long that it became awkward. Finally Mrs. Prentiss crossed the room and stood by Prudence's side. She laid a hand tenderly on the young girl's arm, and said in a voice that was slightly tremulous: "I believe you are right, my dear. It is what girls are at heart that really counts. I believe your sisters are all you say they are. And one thing I am very sure of—they are happy girls to have a sister so patient and loving and just. Not all real mothers have as much to their credit!"

A meeting was held Saturday to talk over the baseball situation, and it was decided to write letters to different clubs in this vicinity, and see if they are interested in a fast baseball league. It is hoped by many that such a league may be formed, so as to give the people a chance to see the National game played in good style. If any club that might be interested does not receive a letter, it will be appreciated if they would call or write H. H. Buxton, care C. M. A.

Now is the time to join the Association and enter into the activities, not only for your own good, but the others need you. You need the gymnasium class exercises; spring will soon be here and without regular, systematic exercise, you will still have that tired spring feeling. center of the table. Connie was painstakingly at work on some animal, a dog perhaps, or possibly an elephant. And—

The three young modelers looked up in exclamatory consternation as the doors opened.

"Oh, are you ready?" cried Carol. "How time has flown! We had no idea you'd be ready so soon. Oh, we are sorry, Prudence. We intended to have everything fixed properly for you again. We needed a flat place for our modeling. It's a shame, that's what it is. Isn't that a handsome Venus? I did that!—If you'll just shut the door one minute, Prudence, we'll have everything exactly as you left it. And we're as sorry as we can be. You can have my Venus for a centerpiece, if you like."

Prudence silently closed the doors, and the Ladies, laughing significantly, drew away.

"Don't you think, my dear," began Mrs. Prentiss too sweetly, "that they are a little more than you can manage? Don't you really think an older woman is needed?"

"I do not think so," cried Fairy, before her sister could speak, "no older woman could be kinder, or sweeter, or more patient and helpful than Prue."

"Undoubtedly true! But something more is needed, I am afraid! It appears that girls are a little more disorderly than in my own young days! Perhaps I do not judge advisedly, but it seems to me they are a little—unmanageable."

"Indeed they are not," cried Prudence loyally. "They are young, lively, mischievous, I know—and I am glad of it. But I have lived with them ever since they were born, and I ought to know them. They are unselfish, they are sympathetic, they are always generous. They do foolish and irritating things—but never things that are hateful and mean. They are all right at heart, and that is all that counts. They are not bad girls! What have they done today? They were exasperating, and humiliating, too, but what did they do that was really mean? They embarrassed and mortified me, but not

ONE OF THE FINEST.

Selectman Hanley, of Weymouth, at the banquet of the Old Colony Driving club, would not let Mayor Whiton of Quincy, get away with the state ment that Quincy was any better place to live in than Weymouth, and pointed out that Weymouth had one of the finest fair grounds in New England, as well as a large number of most enthusiastic horsemen, whereas a statement by the toastmaster credited Quincy with but two horsemen and no fair grounds. — (American Horse Breeder.

—Years ago the only excitement people had in this village during the winter months was the church fairs. There are so many activities at the present time that one can hardly re-nerate them. Every little while someone is leaving for the South, a most unheard of thing years ago. A weekly evening Spanish class takes up the spare time of some of our studiously inclined residents. A weekly dancing class fills another evening for those so inclined. A gymnasium class opening this week takes up an afternoon for a number of people who feel the need. The young folks have basket ball and Boy Scout work as extras. All these things "added to what we've got," or in other words added to what people did years ago, makes a plenty to do.

Newton of Hershey, Pa., formerly of North Weymouth, and the poem written about the first fire apparatus in town and its quarters, was read with much interest by the older residents of the village, who remembered the facts. Also by those not as old who will remember the persons whose names were mentioned. One of our older residents, Miss Mary Thomas, could recite the poem, and there were many who enjoyed the article.

She passed away Sunday, January 28, after a week's illness of pneumonia. Besides her husband, John Bacon of Cambridge, Mrs. Bacon leaves a brother, Frank Hersey of East Weymouth. A service was held at her late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the body was brought to the family lot in the North Weymouth cemetery for burial.

—The ladies' sewing circle of the Universalist church will meet next Wednesday.

—Mrs. Mary (Hurley) Williams wife of Arthur Williams, of Boston passed away Tuesday morning, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hurley, on Newton street. Mrs. Williams had been ill but a short time and her death came as a great shock to the many friends of the family. She had fulfilled her duties as daughter, wife and mother. The loss to her husband and four children is a keen one, as it is also to her parents sisters and brothers. She will be sadly missed in the family circle which is broken for the first time by her death. The large circle of friends which the family has in this village extends their heartfelt sympathy in their sorrow.

Funeral services were held at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hurley at 8:15 Thursday morning, with requiem high mass at St. Jeromes' church at 9 o'clock.

PARK THEATRE.

In the unique offering, the World-Brady five-act film, "The Red Woman," Gail Kane interprets the part of an Indian maiden, the scene of the play being laid in Mexico. The little Indian maiden daughter of a chief is sent east to school and captures the highest honors at commencement, but is ignored by her white schoolmates at the dance held after the graduation exercises. She returns to her old life among the Indians and in time meets a young man from the east who has been set adrift by his wealthy father with only a poor Mexican mine in place of the big fortune he had expected to be his. He falls in love with Maria, the Indian girl and later finds he has really fallen heir to his father's entire fortune. The girl back home who broke their engagement when she thought him penniless, comes to Mexico and then comes the startling and wholly unexpected climax.

Fully realizing that Mr. Collyer has many friends in the other parts of the town, who have been awaiting this opportunity of rendering some aid, the committee desire these people to either phone or write to Mr. Tirrell at his office in Jackson square, and he will immediately see that tickets reach them.

Upon solicitation, the public are buying from one to ten or more tickets, at 10cts. per ticket, and they may rest assured that the money will be a blessing to the unfortunate gentleman and his aged mother.

So now, good readers, while this matter has your attention, if a phone is handy, why not remove the receiver and call Wey. 66, or pen Mr. Tirrell by mail, your request for one or more books of these tickets, and in turning same into cash you may well feel contented for having done a mighty good turn.

Contributions will be gladly welcomed by W. M. Tirrell, Secretary, East Weymouth, Mass.

Base Ball Benefit.
A benefit which was very successful, both financially and socially was given by the Fair View Base-ball club, at the New Orpheum Tuesday night. The program consisted of a seven reel picture entitled "The Yankee Girl." Between the reels Clifton Harlow, the ever popular fonemaker from Weymouth, entertained with Hawaiian songs, and Leo Madden ably contributed several ballads and popular classics.

The grand finale was a four-man minstrel show by "Weymouths Big Four" featuring James Gilligan, Jim Madden, Al Turner and Jim Dondoro. This quartet held the audience spellbound with their able manipulation of the tamboes, and with songs and jokes.

The Fair View Club is a recently formed organization, chiefly for the purpose of running a base-ball team, which is to be managed by Angelo Dondoro and coached by John Reddy. As this team is running in competition with the White Sox, much rivalry is promised the local fans for the coming season.

WEYMOUTH HEIGHTS

One of the pleasantest occasions ever held in the Old North chapel was the annual reception given by the "Wide Awakes" last Friday evening. The chapel was artistically decorated with the colors of the club, namely, blue and gold, also calla lilies and ferns. A word of welcome was given by the president, Miss Helen Ries, after which the guests were ushered to the receiving line, which consisted of the officers of the club, by the Misses Ruth A. Nash and Muriel Gladwin. During the reception music was furnished by Miss Isabel McIsaac of East Weymouth. The secretary's and treasurer's reports for the year were read, and the evening's entertainment was then in charge of Miss Ruth A. Nash, who ably conducted many unique and interesting games. One of the features of the evening was the pleasing vocal solos, rendered by James Sheehy of Quincy. Refreshment of ice cream, cakes and candies was served, and the evening's fun closed, all having spent a most enjoyable evening, and wishing the Wide Awakes continued success in their good work.

Miss Bertha C. Nash was a guest of her friend, Miss Gladys Adams, of Roslindale, on Saturday.

Mrs. Elmer Lunt is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

A food sale under the auspices of the Ladies' Benevolent Society was held in the Old North chapel on Thursday afternoon.

Miss Florence B. Nash was entertained by her friend, Mrs. Sidney C. Beane, of Wollaston.

Wallace Bicknell celebrated his 73rd birthday on Tuesday. Mrs. Julia Smith of Dorchester was a guest of the occasion.

Miss Isabel Jones of Simmons college is to spend the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Jones.

Albert Hamilton of Boston was entertained on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lunt.

In honor of the 36th anniversary of the birth of Christian Endeavor the Y. P. C. E. Society of Weymouth Heights will entertain Clark Union including several of the surrounding Endeavor societies, in the Old North chapel, this evening. A unique entertainment is called for 7:30 o'clock, which will be followed by a number of jolly games, also other surprises when everybody will get acquainted. All members of the Weymouth Heights Society will please be present to help give the others a good time.

Mrs. Ellen Blanchard, who recently went to make her home with her cousin in Melrose is now back again to stay with Mrs. Mary Arnold.

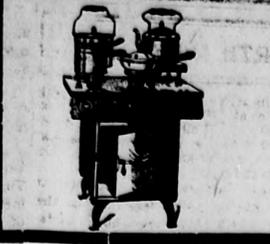

Christian Endeavor Week in the Y. P. C. E. Society of Weymouth Heights has been observed in a most creditable manner. On Christian Endeavor Day, which came last Sunday four new members were secured, making in all ten young folks who have recently joined. Also on that evening an opportunity was given to be come members of the Quiet Hour where one promises to devote fifteen minutes of each day in communion with God, or of Bible reading, and there were several in the society who became Quiet Hour comrades. On Monday evening, twenty members from the Weymouth Heights Society attended the Christian Endeavor Rally at the Bethany Church, Quincy. Next Sunday will be Decision Day, it being a very opportune time for all who are not members of the society to make their decision in the right way. Also it will be a splendid time to make the decision of becoming a member of the Quiet Hour, or the Tenth Legion. The subject of the meeting at 6:30 o'clock next Sunday night will be "Visions and Tasks," under the leadership of Miss Edna L. Sladen. All are welcome.

A Junior Christian Endeavor Society, with Miss Florence B. Nash acting as superintendent, assisted by others, is to be formed at the Heights and all boys and girls, ages seven to fourteen, are invited to meet Sunday afternoon, Feb. 4th, in the Old North chapel at a quarter of four. It is hoped the parents of the children in the community will co-operate with the Junior Superintendent, and encourage their children to join.

UNABLE TO RENEW LEASE

drawings have been made and submitted.

Among those in Quincy who are interested are Mayor Whiton, President Campbell and other officials of the Quincy Trust Company, Henry M. Faxon, and merchants of the city.

The Gazette and Transcript further learns that failure to get a renewal of the lease of the factory at the junction of Broad and Madison streets is the only reason why the firm of Alden, Walker & Wilde are seeking a new location.

The lease will expire the first of next December. This may seem a long time away, but not so. If a new factory is to be built for the firm at Quincy or elsewhere it will require seven months to build, so that work must be started before May 1.

Therefore there are only a few weeks in which the boosters of Weymouth can show their mettle and do some real home missionary work.

Alden, Walker & Wilde like Weymouth as a place in which to do business. They are well established here. They have a good organization. The members of the firm are interested in Weymouth and different organizations of Weymouth and want to see the town prosper.

But any shoe firm would be handicapped in an old factory building, in comparison with a modern factory, and the Quincy offer, therefore, is tempting.

The firm will not run two factories. Should it locate in Quincy, it will vacate its building in Weymouth. Such a removal would mean a great loss to East Weymouth and one which would affect real estate values and other interests and organizations; possibly increase taxes.

A member of the Board of Selectmen says there is nothing the board can do to keep the firm here. But possibly there is. The Board of Trade has not called a special meeting and don't seem to be doing anything. Would it not be a good idea for a committee of the East Weymouth merchants to wait on the firm, get all the facts and then see what can be done?

Perhaps such a committee could secure a favorable lease, or failing in that could interest capital and erect a new, modern factory building. There should be no delay. It is a live issue for Weymouth as a whole.

Theodore H. Tyndale.

Theodore H. Tyndale who passed away in Boston so suddenly on Wednesday was a resident of Weymouth for a number of years living on Commercial street a short distance below the Tufts crossing. He was 70 years old. He was very affable, a pleasant man to meet and had many friends. He was greatly interested in flowers and plants and spent most of his time outside of business hours in his garden. His wife, whom he married in 1887, was before her marriage professor of English literature in Iowa University. She was a fine German scholar and had many pupils while in Weymouth. She served one term as president of the Monday club. Many remember them both pleasantly.

WEYMOUTH, 43—READING, 18

The popularity of basket ball as an evening sport was well illustrated by the attendance Thursday evening when Weymouth High defeated Reading High in the Clapp gym, score 43 to 18. This was Weymouth's second game with Reading this season, Reading beating them before 36 to 33. The game was scheduled for 8 P. M. and at 8.15 P. M. standing space in the gallery was at a premium. At times Reading resorted to very rough and unsportsmanlike tactics, which left a disagreeable impression of the visiting team in the eyes of the local "lover of the game". Sampson, Whittle and Gannon starred for the local team, while MacLeod, and Keaney featured for the visitors. The score: WEYMOUTH READING Gannon, rf lb, Keaney Mahoney, lf rb, Stevens Whittle, c c, Richards Sampson, lb rf Gibbon Curtin, rb lf, Baugs Substitutes, Stiles, MacLeod, Ellison. Summary.—Weymouth H. S., 43; Reading H. S., 18. Goals from floor, Gannon, 7, Whittle 4, Mahoney 3, Sampson 3, Curtin, Keaney 2, MacLeod, Richards, Ellison. Goals from fouls,—Sampson 7, MacLeod 8. Referee,—Curtin. Dorothy's Dime Grayce looked grim as he threw open the door and then stumbled over the roll of rugs that lay just within.

"Another night has come and that landlord still lives his evil life," he called, and from the dimly lighted parlor came an answering sniff.

Bert Grayce hung up his coat on the half-shrouded hatrack and entered the room. The furniture was swathed in burlap and excelsior, the piano was covered with old blankets and other soft wrappings, and trunks and boxes were piled with some attempt at order along the bare walls and upon the equally bare floor.

On top of the upturned soap box a group of candles sputtered dimly their feeble rays serving to accentuate the absence of gas. Desolation—the desolation of an exodus—brooded everywhere, even upon the face of the woman who sat in a low rocker beside the candles and vainly made pretense of reading.

Her's was a lovable face, framed in masses of silver hair, and Grayce's smile softened and grew more tender as he bent to kiss the still smooth forehead.

"Cheer up, mother mine," he said, laughingly. "All is not yet lost, though the painters remain on strike. Tomorrow the new home will be painted. By Saturday we shall be comfortably settled."

"Are you sure?" demanded Mrs. Grayce, wistfully. "If you are, we will not have the gas turned on again."

"There are electric lights in the new home," he reminded. "You will forget these nights of Egyptian darkness, and the next time we move we shall not order the current turned off until we are safely out of the house."

"To think that at the last moment, with all packed and ready to move, this strike should have come up!" said Mrs. Grayce, with a groan. "Are you positive, Bert, that the painter you have engaged will not be won over by the strikers?"

"Never more certain of anything in my life," was the laughing response. "The painter is no less a person than your accomplished son. I stopped in and ordered the paint sent over this morning. Tomorrow I shall go up and wield the brush, so you must wake and call me early. I must put in a full day."

Bert passed on to his own room, lighting his way with matches, and his mother heaved a sigh of relief. For eight days they had virtually camped in the apartment they had given up, waiting for their new quarters to be finished.

The packers had done their work the man had come to cut off the gas and the moving vans were backed up to the door when a telephone message came to the effect that owing to a strike of the painters, the new rooms were not yet ready for occupancy.

From day to day the landlord had promised that something would be done at once, but now a full week had passed and hope had commenced to fall, until Bert decided to do the work himself.

He made an early start and eight o'clock found him in a suit of jeans applying the paint with as skillful a brush as though painting were his regular occupation. He worked rapidly and well, and the rooms had begun to assume a habitable aspect when he heard the hall door open and close and looked up, expecting to see the landlord.

Instead, he faced about to encounter the gaze of a pair of brown eyes which seemed to pierce his paint-stained jacket and give him an odd queer sensation about the heart. The possessor of the eyes was a fragile slip of a girl whose pure oval face was oddly like a picture by some old master. The slender form was wholly concealed by a brown Holland pinafore, and this was splashed with blue.

"So you have come," she said at length. "I was beginning to think that you would be out on strike all winter. I was promised that my floors should be shelled first."

"Yes, but—" began Bert. "I want no answers," said the girl, with a stamp of her tiny foot. "I am to have an exhibition day tomorrow, and the floors must be done by then, do you hear?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Bert meekly. "Then pick up your pail and brush and come along." was the quiet command. "If I had not smelled the paint in the hall, you would have spent the day here, when I need you so much more. Come on, please."

She turned to lead the way as though there were no argument to be made, and Bert, grinning over the ridiculousness of the affair, followed after. He saw with pleasure that the other apartment was only across the hall from his own. It was a much smaller place, and it did not take Bert long to paint the floors. The girl stood in the doorway superintending the work, and Bert was sorry when at last he rose from his knees and announced the completion of the job.

"You will have to finish the other apartment," said the girl, severely

"Next time do as you are told, and you will have less trouble. You know very well that the agent told you to do this apartment first. He promised me that he would."

"He'll promise anything," began Bert, grimly, but the tiny foot stamped a warning. The girl did not care to argue the point with a workman, and she dismissed him with a nod.

"Come in tomorrow and give it a second coat," she commanded. "Wait a moment," she added, as Bert turned to go. "Buy yourself a good cigar," she finished, as she handed him a coin. Bert dropped the dime in his pocket with a murmured word of thanks and backed out of the door. Once on the other side his embarrassment died down, and he paused long enough to ascertain from the card on the door that it was Dorothy Rensen who occupied the apartment. That she was a china decorator he already knew, and vaguely he remembered having heard of her skill.

He was tired when he sought his home that night, but the thought that he would see the girl again on the morrow gave him a feeling that the day had been well spent. He carefully slipped the dime in a locket which he wore on his watch fob and smiled as he thought of his "tip."

He painted the studio doors the first thing next morning, and then turned his attention to his own apartment. It was late in the afternoon when he had finished and was cleaning up. There came a ring at the door, and he opened it to confront a young woman who radiated confusion and penitence.

"I have come to apologize," she said, blushing redly. "I stopped in to thank the agent for sending me a painter, and he did not know that my floors had been done. Then he recalled that you were painting your own place, and explained my error."

"It's a very natural one," he said, with a laugh. "If you were half as desperate as my mother, I should not blame you for kidnapping me with a full knowledge of the facts. I am only glad that I have been of service to you."

"You don't know how greatly you have aided me," she said. "I can never repay your kindness. I am so sorry that I was abrupt yesterday. Will you pardon me?"

The long, slender hand was clasped in Bert's own, and he smiled down into the brown eyes that dropped shyly before his gaze.

Dorothy slipped back into her own apartment, and Bert, closing his door, drew the dime she had given him from his pocket.

"The job's going to cost you more than that, little woman," he said, as he smiled to himself. "It's going to cost you your heart and hand, and they are worth millions of dimes."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Hot Bread for Cold Morning

As a race we are said to be addicted to the eating of hot breads. But it is doubtful if there is anything heavier and more indigestible in the American cook's list of hot breads than English muffins. Some of the Viennese breakfast breads, too, are a bit heavy, and probably every country of Europe would have to plead guilty at the bar if accused of producing breakfast breads that defy the requirements of regular digestibility.

Whatever the real situation with regard to hot breads may be, the fact remains that good muffins or other hot breads make breakfast worth the eating.

Troubles of Wives

Gen. Sir Sam Hughes said at a dinner in New York: "The wife of a Canadian soldier and the wife of a South African soldier met in a London boarding house. 'It's very hard on us poor married women in South Africa,' the latter said. 'I live with my husband on an ostrich farm, and it's nothing at all for him to be away two whole days at a time on an ostrich.'

"Humph. What of that?" said the Canadian woman. 'My husband is off-en away two whole weeks on a lark.'

Peculiar Stimulation

An English farmer, who testified in a license hearing, said that he "was in the habit of giving a quart of beer to the cows after calving, and that he also gave them a pint of whisky occasionally." If deprived of these beverages the stock would suffer, he said. Beer for calving is comprehensible, if a revelation of British dairy methods. But a pint of whisky for a cow is not easily seen through. Perhaps it was a cow so stimulated that jumped over the moon.

Disillusioned

Her Father—Harold seems to have an exemplary character. I don't see why you say your marriage to him was a hideous mistake.

Mrs. Junebride—It's just that. I married him to reform him, and now I find that he never needed reforming.

CHINA AND INDIA NIGHT

At February Meeting of Clapp Memorial Mens Club

Members of the Men's Club of Clapp Memorial Association obtained first hand new light on China and India on Wednesday evening at the regular February meeting. Fully 75 gentlemen were present, including clergymen, physicians and well known business men. Rev. William N. Newton asked the blessing.

A hot roast beef dinner was served at 6.30, the meet being carved on the table. The menu also included large baked potatoes worth ten cents apiece, squash, biscuits, ice cream, cake and chocolate. Then cigars were passed. The service was by young men. The hall was attractive with its Valentine decorations for the dance the following night.

President W. C. Earle first introduced Secretary Buxton of the Clapp Memorial Association who in a vigorous address urged all men to become members of the association and assist in the work. Blanks for membership were passed.

Both of the speakers of the evening were young men, Mr. Chang being a native of China, and Mr. Sircar.

ANNUAL BALL OF FIREMEN

Pretty Scene at the Bates Opera House

The 20th annual concert and ball of the Weymouth Firemen's Relief Association was one of the most successful in recent years, the capacity of the Bates Opera House being tested. All parts of the town were represented, and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The only decoration was an American flag on a standard, the property of the association.

Among the invited guests were Chief Fred Tenney of Braintree, Chief Holmes of Milton, Chief Faxon Billings of Quincy and Engineman Herbert Griffin of the same city, Chief George Cushing of Hingham, Chief Mitchell of Hull, and the Middleboro chief.

An excellent promenade concert was given from 8 to 8.30 by Cuff's orchestra, the program being:

March—"Signal Corps" McCoy
Intermezzo—"Shades of Night" Sterns
Xylophone Solo

Mr. Leon B. Shaw
March—"Stars and Stripes" Sousa

The grand march at 8.30 was the feature of the evening. It was led by President W. H. Bicknell and his daughter Miss Esther, in a pretty

TOO BUSY TO TALK WITH REPORTERS

Committees and Business Men Have Met Almost Daily With Alden, Walker and Wilde

Within three hours after the broadside in the Gazette and Transcript last week, a committee of merchants met at the Town Offices at East Weymouth to see what could be done to keep in Weymouth the large shoe manufacturing firm of Alden, Walker and Wilde, which Quincy is trying to entice away.

The broadside in the Gazette, and the situation in general, have been the town talk during the week, and has resulted in some work which will undoubtedly bear good fruit.

At the meeting in the Town Offices were W. M. Tirrell, C. R. Denbroed, and other merchants.

Later, the committee of business men visited the manufactory of Alden, Walker & Wilde, and had an interview with members of the firm. They have also interviewed the heirs of the late Jacob Dizer, — Walter Dizer and Alida Baker, — and their agent, Charles B. Cushing.

The Assessors of Weymouth have also been interested and met at the manufactory on Thursday.

Later, when the publisher of the Gazette called on Alden Walker & Wilde he found the office full of representative men of the town, and Mr. Alden said he would be too busy that

ON THE RIGHT ROAD

Writer Compliments Gazette and Transcript

Editor Gazette and Transcript: It seems as though you should receive the congratulations of the people of the Gazette and Transcript serves for your efforts in giving them a newsy, up-to-date weekly paper. You are certainly doing your part in keeping momentous questions before the citizens.

Your appeal to the boosters was timely and squarely put, and if the town loses the Alden, Walker & Wilde business you have done your part in warning the people. If this concern goes out, others may follow, but if we can keep them here the others will stay, for it is usual for manufacturing establishments to become established in places where there are numerous plants and people, that plenty of help may be had when needed.

For example, years ago most of our boot and shoe manufacturers went to Brockton. When one went others followed. Also at Wollaston, where a few years ago one saw empty lowlands now are seen many manufacturing plants. One went there and others followed.

If you can be the means of keeping Alden, Walker & Wilde in Weymouth, others will stay and others will come. The publicity you are giving the matter is your best effort in arousing the people to the importance of keeping them here. MAY YOU WIN.

In reading your paper one cannot overlook the new departments you have added since taking over the Gazette. You are getting the news and producing it in an interesting manner. You are handling town matters of importance in a masterly way, which should be the means of enlightening the voters on matters with which they should be well acquainted before voting at the annual town meeting.

Your club and social notes should make a decided hit, while the business directory is a clever idea and should awaken business people to their opportunity to fill in where there are vacancies.

It might be interesting to the readers to know how many of the business Ad. vacancies have been filled since you started this idea. I hope that each of those headings will be well filled soon. The more the merrier, for competition makes business, and you opened an opportunity for competition.

Getting and giving the people the LIVE news means increased circulation, increased advertising, less plate matter, a larger paper and a LIV-LIER TOWN. You are on the right road.

Yours truly, J. Herbert Walsh

PASTOR RESIGNS.

Rev. W. M. Newton Very Successful at East Weymouth Church.

At a recently held fourth quarterly conference at the First Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. W. M. Newton announced his intention of severing his connection with this church, April 1, when the annual conference meets.

The conference extended to Mr. Newton, a unanimous rising vote of thanks for his work during the three years now drawing to a close, and commended him to whatever church might secure his services.

The church is being left in the best of condition for his successor. A burdensome debt has been cancelled, a new parsonage built and paid for and the current expenses put on a business basis.

Last Sunday at the regular service of the church two were received by certificate, ten were received from preparatory membership, sixteen were received to preparatory membership and six adults received Christian baptism. The number received on probation and from probation to full membership during the pastorate of three years has been exceeded but once in the pastorates of the last 22 years, and that a five years' pastorate.

"Miss Springtime" is a Delight.

There is just one beautiful thing after another in Klaw & Erlanger's exquisite musical comedy production, "Miss Springtime" which has joyously entered upon a second month of prosperity at the Tremont Street theatre. It has revived the capacity audience days when this playhouse, the most advantageously located in Boston was the home of the highest class light operatic successes. And "Miss Springtime" is in a present day class all by itself. Its alluring appeal finds response alike from music lover, laughter lover and beauty lover. It combines about everything to arouse the public's enthusiasm. Its romantic Hungarian story is expertly told. Kalman in his score provides bewitching melodies that are being hummed and whistled everywhere.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Prudence Starr, eldest of five motherless girls, comes to the Methodist parsonage at Mount Mark, as house mother for her father, the Methodist minister.

CHAPTER II—The girls entertain a visiting minister at luncheon, to his discomfort. Carol, one of the twins, rides the family cow with disastrous results.

CHAPTER III—Prudence and Fairy receive the Ladies' Aid society while Lark, Carol and Connie practice modeling in mud on the dining room table.

CHAPTER IV.

A Secret Society.
Carol and Lark, in keeping with their twinning, wore the dearest chums and comrades. To them the great, rambling barn back of the parsonage was a most delightful place. It had a big cowshed on one side, and horse stalls on the other, with a "heavenly" haymow over all, and with "chutes" for the descent of hay—and twinning!

Now the twins had a secret society—of which they were the founders, the officers and the membership body. Its name was Skull and Crossbones. Lark furnished the brain power for the organization, but her sister was an enthusiastic and energetic second. Carol's club name was Lady Gwendolyn, and Lark's was Sir Alfred Angelcourt ordinarily, although subject to frequent change. The old barn saw stirring times after the coming of the new parsonage family.

"Hark! Hark!" sounded a hissing whisper from the corner, and Connie, eavesdropping outside the barn, shivered sympathetically.

"What is it! Oh, what is it?" wailed the unfortunate lady.

"Look! Look! Run for your life!" Then while Connie clutched the barn door in a frenzy, there was a sound of rattling corn as the twins scrambled upward, a silence, a low thud, and an unromantic "Ouch!" as Carol bumped her head and stumbled.

"Are you assaulted?" shouted the bold Sir Alfred, and Connie heard a wild scuffle as he rescued his companion from the clutches of the old halter on which she had stumbled. Up the haymow ladder they hurried, and then slid recklessly down the hay chutes. Presently the barn door was flung open, and the "society" knocked Connie flying backward, ran madly around the barn a few times, and scurried under the fence and into the chicken coop.

A little later Connie, assailed with shots of corn cobs, ran bitterly toward the house. "Peeking" was strictly forbidden when the twins were engaged in Skull and Crossbones activities.

And Connie's soul burned with desire. She felt that this secret society was threatening not only her happiness, but also her health, for she could not sleep for horrid dreams of Skulls and Crossbones at night, and could not eat for envying the twins their secret and mysterious joys. Finally she applied to Prudence, and received assistance.

The afternoon mail brought to the parsonage an envelope addressed to "Misses Carol and Lark Starr, the Methodist Parsonage, Mount Mark, Iowa," and in the lower left-hand corner was a suggestive drawing of a Skull and Crossbones. The eyes of the mischievous twins twinkled with delight when they saw it, and they carried it to the barn for prompt perusal. It read as follows:

Miss Constance Starr humbly and respectfully craves admittance into the Ancient and Honorable Organization of Skull and Crossbones.

The twins pondered long on a fitting reply, and the next afternoon the postman brought a letter for Connie, waiting impatiently for it. She had approached the twins about it at noon that day.

"Did you get my application?" she had whispered nervously.

But the twins had stared her out of countenance, and Connie realized that she had committed a serious breach of secret society etiquette.

But here was the letter! Her fingers trembled as she opened it. It was decorated lavishly with skulls and crossbones, splashed with red ink, supposedly blood, and written in the same suggestive color.

Skull and Crossbones, great in mercy and in condescension, has listened graciously to the prayer of Constance, the Seeker. Hear the will of the Great Spirit! If the Seeker will, for the length of two weeks, submit herself to the will of Skull and Crossbones, she shall be admitted into the Ancient and Honorable Order.

The week that followed was a gala one for the twins of Skull and Crossbones. Constance swept their room, made their bed, washed their dishes, did their chores, and in every way behaved as a model pledge of the ancient and honorable. The twins were gracious but firm. There was no arguing and no faltering. "It is the will of Skull and Crossbones that the damsel do this," they would say. And the damsel did it.

Prudence did not feel it was a case that called for her interference. So she sat back and watched, while the twins told stories, read and frolicked, and Constance did their daily tasks.

A week passed, ten days, and twelve.

Connie followed her sister soberly, and the twins flashed at each other startling and questioning looks. The three girls were at table when Prudence came into the dining room alone. She fixed a tray-supper quietly and carried it off upstairs. Then she came back and sat down by the table. But her face bore marks of tears, and she had no appetite. The twins had felt small liking for their food before; now each mouthful seemed to choke them. But they dared not ask a question. They were devoutly thankful when Fairy finally voiced their interest. "What is the matter? Has Connie been in mischief?" "It's worse than that," faltered Prudence, tears rushing to her eyes again. "Why, Prudence! What in the world has she done?"

Band Concerts.

Editor Gazette and Transcript:

Accepting your invitation to take up any of the articles appearing in the town warrant, I wish to explain the reason for asking the voters to raise and appropriate $600 for band concerts.

When the summer months arrive, and we can enjoy living out of doors, the people want entertainment, and one of the first thoughts of the majority is, I wonder if we will have any band concerts?

Sooner or later some one will start out with a paper, and most of our business men will subscribe from one to ten dollars, to help pay for band concerts. This happens year after year, and the same men are the ones who foot the bill every time.

Very few of these givers get a chance to enjoy the concerts, while those who do hear them very seldom give anything towards defraying the expense. Sometimes programs are offered at ten cents each, and generally very few are sold.

We have three band stands and two bands, and what is their good unless they are used. Most live towns appropriate money each year for the purpose of band concerts, and it seems as though we have reached the time when the proper thing for us is to do the same thing. Six hundred dollars will give about three concerts in each section of the town that has a band stand, and also in North Weymouth where they probably would have a band stand if they could have concerts.

To raise and appropriate $600 would be an equitable way of paying for this form of entertainment, and it seems as though the majority of voters would be glad to vote for this appropriation. Everybody likes to feel that "our town" is up-to-date, and this is one way it can be made so.

Women and children and most men enjoy sitting out in the summer and listening to a band concert. Let us have the concerts and pay for them in the right way; do not put the bill on the same few each summer.

ROAST PIG SUPPER.

Tuesday evening at 6.45 "The Men's Class That's Different" of Union Church School, South Weymouth, met in the vestry for a "get together" time and supper. The "Blues" led by Captain Charles Sturtevant supplied the supper, consisting of oyster stew and two roast pigs with accompaniments. Roast pigs came as a complete surprise to the men. They gave the "Blues" three rousing cheers and a vote of thanks. Though the "Blues" lost out in the contest they certainly showed their metal in the supper and entertainment provided.

After supper ex-Mayor Thurston of Cambridge, who "hit the trail" during the recent Sunday meetings, gave a talk on his experiences both before and after his conversion. Mr. Thurston is in such demand since his conversion that he says he has spoken somewhere practically every night since his conversion, and at least three times, sometimes four, on every Sunday. He is now a prominent member of the recently formed "Billy Sunday Business Men's Club" of Boston.

Charles H. Locke, president of the class, acted as toastmaster and introduced Mr. Thurston.

About 8.30 the men gathered in the gym above, where two basketball games were enjoyed; one by made-up teams from the men, whose score was 6 to 6; the other between the U. A. C. of Union church and East Weymouth, whose score was 42 to 24 in favor of Union. The made-up teams provided the most fun, however.

There were 68 men at the supper. There are now 58 men enrolled in "The Men's Class That's Different."

Last Sunday there were 40 in attendance. The men are studying together "The Bible and social living" with Mr. Price as leader. Object of the class is "To help men to live." We give every man who comes a glad hand and a warm heart.

a native of India.

The former is a student at Harvard University, and discussed the social civilization of the far East and West. He thought China would never become a monarchy again. The country was grateful to the United States for all it had done. The indemnity returned by the United States would be used in sending students to the United States. The future of China was complicated by Japan, which desires to dominate. He did not think Japan would ever fight the United States because it could not control China. The United States he said was the only country which seemed to respect international law and try to enforce it. China proposed to help. (Long applause). Questions by the Rev. Edward T. Ford gave further light on the sub-China.

Mr. Sircar, the other speaker, is a Hindu, and is employed by Stone & Webster in the engineering department. At the outset he refuted many of the stories of cruelty circulated about India, which he said were news to him when he came to this country. He said India was now ruled by Great Britain 3000 miles away and that facts about that country were censored and juggled so that the world did not get the facts. The speaker then proceeded to tell the real facts about India, which was formerly an independent country and proud of her history. The speakers were liberally applauded and given a rising vote of thanks.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Otto Kahn On Financial Farm Loans

Every citizen who desires to become capable in business should study banking, and every farmer who wants to see the business of agriculture properly financed should study diligently the financial systems of other industries. All other lines of industry have developed financial facilities adapted to their needs. We have all sorts of financial syndicates authorized by law or custom to deal in a certain line of securities, but in none of these financial channels will farm securities travel without a bonus in the way of an excessive rate of interest or heavy discounts.

The most powerful financial institutions in America are private banks and they are the most important to the financial life of industry. In no line of business does honesty, efficiency and stability make more imperative demands than upon private bankers, whose greatest asset is the confidence of the buying public in his business judgment and integrity. Mr. Otto Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, when asked to state the relation of the private banker to the business of the nation, said in part:

"One of the most important functions of the private banker is to be the instrument for providing the money needed for the efficient conduct and development of railroads and other industries. He does this by buying securities in bulk from those needing capital, for which purpose he usually associates himself with a large number of other financial houses, great and small, thus forming what is called a syndicate. Having in this way concluded the buying transaction he offers to the public, through the facilities of the retail means of advertising, circularizing and through the agencies of the securities houses included in the syndicate, many of whom employ traveling salesmen. Of course the banker and the syndicate count on a reasonable profit for their services; on the other hand they run the risk of the securities, which they have definitely bought and paid for at a fixed price, remaining on their hands wholly, or in part, if the public, for one reason or another, should be unwilling to buy them. The selling of securities is a highly specialized trade, requiring much experience, organization, machinery and scrutiny. This is one of the reasons why corporations do better in offering securities to the public through bankers than if they offered them direct. The willingness of the public to buy depends upon their confidence in the integrity and the judgment of the banker who makes the offer, and a banker who attempts to mislead the public, or who is deficient in care or judgment, would very soon find himself without customers and, therefore, out of business. In many European countries, the functions of the private banker include the placing of bonds secured by farm mortgages. Bonds of this nature are issued in large quantities by mortgage banks who buy mortgages on farms and other real estate and deposit them as security for their own bonds, which in their turn are sold to bankers. It is to be hoped that similar institutions will, in course of time, be created in America, thus placing the farming industry on a par with other important industries in facilities to obtain capital."

STEAM HEAT CHASES WINTER

Why not enjoy the comforts of the most systematic and economical way of heating. The cost of installing steam heat is paid for many times by the comforts derived. Plenty of heat when and where you want it at less cost than stoves—safer, cleaner, more sanitary.

Rumor Has It

That Alden, Walker & Wilde may remain in Weymouth.

That they have discovered that Weymouth is interested in her manufacturers.

That it is more important to keep the industries that we have than to strive for new concerns.

That new firms will also receive a helping hand.

That credit is being given the Gazette and Transcript for awakening an interest in the Alden, Walker & Wilde case.

That East Weymouth merchants have an opportunity to show their appreciation by advertising liberally in said newspaper.

That advertising invariably brings good results.

That many are disgusted with the ground hog.

That people are wondering if February and March are to be as snowy as last year.

That last Saturday was cold enough, the mercury clinging around the zero mark all day.

That hot times are ahead.

That there will be more candidates than usual for town offices.

That the Gazette and Transcript will also have a contest with a grand prize.

That women as well as men can vote in this contest, and that the chances of victory are with the former.

That the winner can select some one to accompany her to Washington, D. C.

That the Gazette and Transcript will pay the expenses.

That there were many favorable comments on the club and social notes last week.

That the three columns were read with unusual interest.

That many are wondering who Miss Beatrice Vanderbilt is.

That she has certainly made good at the start.

That the ladies will make no mistake in forwarding to her, early each week, all club and social items.

That Miss Vanderbilt should have been at the grand ball of the Weymouth firemen.

That possible she was.

The illumination at the Fore River Plant these winter evenings is a brilliant one and those who have not seen it with the snow on the buildings and ground have missed a beautiful piece of scenery. On Monday when every thing was covered with snow and the sun came out, the plant was a wonderful sight, as was also all the trees and shrubs about town. Those who have gone South to avoid our winter lose some of the effects caused by the winter's storms which no doubt they are willing to lose.

W. B. Dasha is at home for two weeks.

Sunday afternoon Rev. Charles Clark met with about 25 of the boys and girls. This is the pastor's class, and he was assisted by Mrs. Lena Our and Miss Ella Stephenson. This class is one of the direct results of the Sunday campaign.

Sunday evening was the closing service of Christian Endeavor week and it was called a "Decision Service." There was a good attendance and a good response.

There have been formed recently a men's Bible study class, and also a women's Bible study class. These classes are an integral part of the Pilgrim Sunday School, though the women's class will be held some evening during the week, while the men's class will meet at the regular Sunday School hour. The plan of each is to choose a leader and a chairman each month—the men to have also a secretary and treasurer. For the present month Mrs. Gardner Alden is leader of the women's class, with Miss Cora L. Beard chairman. In the men's class George Bean is leader and John P. Regan chairman, secretary and treasurer.

The Boy Scouts held an unusually interesting meeting on Monday evening. Assistant Secretary Burtis entertained with a camp-fire, accompanied by the telling of stories which interested the boys.

The Pilgrim Ladies' Circle met Wednesday afternoon with a supper at 6:30. Next Sunday the Sunday School will observe Lincoln Day by appropriate exercises.

RECEPTION TO NEW PASTOR

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Tingley Heartily Welcomed

Four clergymen assisted at the reception on Wednesday evening to Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Tingley and son at the Baptist church, the Rev. Frank B. Cressey, the pastor of ten years ago; Rev. William Hyde, of Trinity Episcopal church; Rev. A. P. Watson, of the Union Congregational church; and Rev. H. C. Alvord, pastor of the Old South Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Cressey arrived early in the afternoon and called on several friends, but was obliged to leave early. Rev. Mr. Watson was a former neighbor of the new pastor. Rev. Mr. Hyde was proud of the fact that his pastorate in Weymouth had been the longest, but he came only one year before Rev. Mr. Alvord. All pledged support and encouragement to the new pastor.

The vestry of the church was decorated for the occasion with streamers, evergreen and flowers. A grand march was the feature of the reception, when Rev. and Mrs. Tingley and son were assisted by the deacons M. R. Wright and Nathan J. Crane. The ushers were: Frank Bryant, Gilbert Stone, Fred A. Thayer, Robert Long, Ralph Beals and Chester Wright. There was music by Keith's orchestra, a male quartet and the church choir.

The success of the occasion was due largely to the social committee of the church, Mrs. Chester W. Wright, Ralph Beals, Mrs. S. F. Beals, Miss Katherine Gerald and Miss Hazel Hollis.

Incidentally it was the 63rd anniversary of the church. Refreshments were served at the close and a social time enjoyed.

DOING, NOT TALKING.

That we can prove our faith by our works is no new thought, but at this season of the year when, having turned a fresh page in our lives we point with pride to the many things we intend to do during this year that is just beginning, it is well to keep in mind the fact that we can accomplish far more by doing than by saying, says Charleston News and Courier. So many of us for one reason and another procrastinate entering upon the actual accomplishment of whatever tasks we assume, but this procrastination does not prevent us from noising abroad the news of what we mean to do. We are quite likely on occasion to tell anybody we may chance to meet the plans we have made for the future; we talk about what we are going to do with as much confidence and even with as much pride as though we already had achieved successful results. And then, because life is so uncertain and because we do not make allowance for our plans going astray, we awaken suddenly to the fact that we have only been talking and not doing, and that because we missed the golden moment when it was in our minds we have made our faith but idle words. If we mean to do something real and earnest in life, something that we hope will prove our worth and our ability, we shall stand a far better chance of success if we simply go to work without advertising the fact far and wide.

The great American peanut is broadening its empire. The crop grows even faster than the peanut-eaters multiply. The demand which bulges at county fairs and baseball games and jogs along steadily in every town and hamlet all the year through is not equal to the increased supply. But the peanut does not suffer. The oil industry balances the score, says Cleveland Leader. The nuts the millions of peanut-eaters don't eat can be swallowed easily by the mills which make peanut oil and peanut meal. The oil is a welcome and very good addition to the food supply of the country. The meal gets the same end less directly. Cattle and swine eat it and then they are eaten in turn. This year Texas alone expects to make about 60,000 barrels of peanut oil. There will be 40,000 tons of peanut meal as a side product. These figures will doubtless be far surpassed before long. Ultimately a great deal of soap may be made in the United States, as it is in France and other countries of Europe, with peanut oil as one of its ingredients. So the peanut is not only holding its own, but widening its field of usefulness. It is one of the products of American agriculture which are as promising as they are popular.

An official report upon the rise of prices in the various countries since the outbreak of the war, issued in London, shows that in England it has been 68 per cent in the cost of food alone, for rents, which enter into the cost, of living to a very large degree, have not risen. In Berlin the rise has been about 158 per cent, in Austria 178 per cent, in the Scandinavian states about 54 per cent, in Australia 80.5 per cent, in New Zealand 102 per cent, while in Canada the rise has been only 18 per cent. The very great rise in Germany and Austria is attributed to flooding the country with a vast amount of paper money. There was no report on the rise in prices in the United States, remarks Omaha World-Herald, but the ordinary wage-worker is inclined to insist that it is about 500 per cent.

News comes from London that city-bred girls enlisted in the back-to-the-soil movement have proved failures. They liked the romance of the country, but balked at the work. This is where the adaptability of the American girls would prove them superior in the like experiment. The latter would enjoy the romance the more for the pluck with which they refuse to be daunted by the work.

The considerably elevated financial schedule required in connection with the maintenance of human life in this, and other sections of the planet, has struck the Texas Jack-rabbit, hitherto hunted only spasmodically, but who now is to be manufactured, in large numbers, into sausage.

CLARK UNION ENTERTAINED

Endeavorers of Old North Church Celebrate

In spite of the severely cold night, the celebration of the 36th anniversary of Christian Endeavor at the Old North church last Friday evening when the Weymouth Heights Endeavorers entertained Clark Union and their friends was certainly a most successful event.

The many groups of young people from the Scituate, the Weymouths, Hingham, Abington and Rockland had all arrived by 8 o'clock and the program opened with a selection by a three-piece orchestra from the Rockland Baptist. Following this, short addresses of welcome were given by Rev. Edward J. Yaeger, pastor of the Old North church and Geo. Lunt, president of the local society. Next came a reading by Mrs. Jessa B. Carr of Abington, which was enjoyed by all.

Miss Mae Griffen of Abington rendered a short story entitled "The Birth of Christian Endeavor," which proved to be very interesting as well as instructive.

A pleasing part of the entertainment was the illustrated songs, "Coming through the rye" being given in a most creditable manner by Miss Ruth A. Nash of the Heights; "The old oaken bucket" sung in a very clever manner by Howard Bailey of Scituate and "The end of a perfect day" by Herman Gardner of East Weymouth.

The pleasantest surprise of the evening was the greetings which were received from Rev. Francis Clarke, founder of Christian Endeavor, in which he sent his best wishes for an enjoyable social and wishing the Endeavorers continued success.

Monologue selections were rendered by Harry Schaffer of Boston, whose wit and humor caused much laughter.

This completed the first part of the evening's entertainment and all were assigned a partner and marched into the chapel, where refreshments of ice cream and individual cakes decorated with the C. E. monogram were served. A feature of the refreshment hour was the beautifully illuminated birthday cake for Christian Endeavor. The honor of cutting the cake was given to Allan Monroe of South Weymouth, president of Clark Union, who served a small portion to the presidents of all the societies and to all the pastors present.

During the evening a rally song for the Christian Endeavor convention to be held in New York next July was heartily indulged in by everybody. The words were written to the tune of "Brighten the corner where you are," and the song gave the Endeavorers great enthusiasm for the next C. E. convention.

The souvenirs of the occasion were red and white candles around which was tied a slip of paper bearing the verse, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

The chapel was artistically trimmed with red and white bunting and C. E. monograms, the decorations adding much to the party.

The majority of the guests were obliged to leave early in order to get home, but those who were able to secure a late train, remained until a late hour and enjoyed a jolly program of games.

The local C. E. society was much pleased with the results of the evening and the good time enjoyed by all and the good crowd who attended will long be remembered by all.

FASHIONS IN SHOES

THAT THEY BE MONOGRAMMED IS THE LATEST.

Means That Footwear Must Be Made to Order—Tops Match Costumes in Both Shade and Fabric—Other Popular Touches.

The monogrammed shoe is one of the latest conceits of fashion. It must, of course, be made to order, and this admits of a wide choice in the design, size and color of the letters, besides making it possible to have the monogram placed as high or as low on the shoe upper as is desired. Fashion has authorized longer skirts this season than last, and a few of her followers have obeyed the mandate, so that it is always the very top stitching of the shoes visible, as was almost uniformly the case last year.

The monogram is usually only applied to shoes combining two contrasting colors—a dark vamp and light upper—and the lettering, placed wherever desired on the upper, matches the vamp.

Due to the scarcity of leather, cloth is again largely employed in the development of shoes, and it is used in shoes of fine quality and high price, as well as in medium and low grades, so that it is not an economy fabric altogether.

Tops matching the costumes in both shade and fabric are popular, but the white-topped shoe with black patent leather tip has not lost a bit of its several seasons of popularity, and it is shown and favored this year in both the buttoned and laced styles.

One very popular shoe is the black patent leather toe with upper of gray glazed kid, buttoning at the side with white buttons. Tan shoes with white buckskin uppers are worn with tailored suits and frocks, and tan shoes having beige or gray buckskin uppers are also well liked.

These usually have quite low, or at least sensible heels, and may almost be classed with sports shoes, inasmuch as the term "sports," when used sartorially, embraces a wide range of garments.

This season's evening slippers are extremely elaborate. Fabrics embroidered with beads or colored silks are employed, and satin slippers matching the gown with which they are worn, and ornamented with rhinestones are popular. The puttee slipper continues popular, especially with the younger set, and the bracelet slipper of satin is also a favorite.

MANY USES FOR LONG COAT

English Fashion Journal Points Out How It May Be Employed in a Variety of Ways.

The long coat is a useful possession. It can replace the coat of the little dress on an extra cold day, or it can cover up a dress that is a little the worse for wear, says a writer in the Queen, London.

It needs to be very well made, and the choice of it is not easy, because it has to answer several purposes and it is not given to all women to wear long coats gracefully. The short woman needs something smart to exaggeration or she looks dull, undoubtedly dull in a long coat.

The tall woman is more easy to coat, especially if she is slender. Neutral colors are indicated for the long coat, but the lining may be something quite striking. There is a lovely little gray cloth which looks delightful lined with dark blue as a contrast. In fact, an inside-out coat is very smart.

Costume Jewelry. The latest development of costume jewelry is the bracelet and hair band to match. Some of the newest evening gowns have long, floating angel sleeves caught to the wrist by bangles of gem studded filigree gold of the same design as the circlet worn around the head.

IN NOVELTY SATIN STRIPES

The boardwalk at any and all of the winter resorts is the gathering place for Dame Fashion's most ardent admirers and humble subjects. To carry oneself properly one must be becomingly garbed, and the costume must not verge toward any extreme. The above afternoon frock is ideal for Palm Beach wear. It is made of novelty satin stripe material. The collar of the waist and the cuffs are of the same material. The apron-like effect gives the tunic a most fetching little touch to the costume.

BLOUSES ARE LESS SIMPLE

Latest Styles Show More Decorative Effect—Severity for the Moment Has Been Laid Aside.

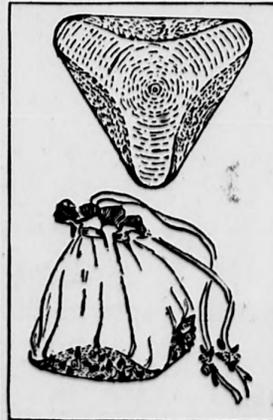

A point worth knowing is that the severely simple "shirtwaist" affair is being replaced by a more decorative variety. A feature of the newest blouses is the embroidery in silk, wool, or even beads, that helps to relieve their Puritanic severity. A further departure from precedent is the revival of the basque—sometimes a fancy affair that falls into deep points on the hips, at others merely a gathered frill that falls just below the waistline; while, as regards color, there are decided indications of a reaction in favor of yellow, putty, peach, and pale apricot shades instead of the pink which has until lately been accounted the "only wear."

The newest hats do not seem to be at all attractive, but as the fashion of a hat is more ephemeral than any other thing in dress it may safely be hoped that another week will give us more attractive models. Sometimes the milliners seem to have a brief spell of almost bad taste, and during those brief spells we get unlovely models. Only a few days ago an authority on dress said something about the very questionable taste of military models in clothes, and alluded to the military modes in hats which are to be seen here and there. She spoke of the imitation of the trench helmet, and there is now a toque very like the English service cap, which is worn on one side and caught up with a buckle on the other. The peak in front is carried round the crown as a brim. Neither as an adaptation nor as an imitation is it a success.

about 10 cents, and a yard of satin ribbon.

I made my bag of pink silk, and lined it with white. The satin roses for the sides of bag and tied on the ends of ribbon, I bought from my milliner. The tea mat, which formed the bottom of mat, I pressed down to look like a three-cornered hat by placing flatirons on the mat in three different places. I then lined the pink silk neatly with white silk and sewed to the mat. Through the top of the bag just below heading I cut at intervals small slits, which I neatly buttonholed. Through these I ran pink ribbon.—Boston Globe.

TO CLEAN CURTAINS

Certain Methods Must Be Adhered to If It Is to Be Successful.

Time is needed to make home curtain-cleaning a success. Pins are also needed—and many of them. Clean the curtains in pure soapsuds and then rinse them gently in clear, lukewarm water. Dry them. Then starch them in starch colored to give them their original tone, and then pin them out to dry.

If the curtains were originally pure white, blue the starch, rather deeply. This will give the curtains a blue-white look that they had when fresh. If they are cream-colored use tea in the starch to get the right tone, and if they are deep ecru, use coffee to give the desired color.

Dry the curtains on sheets stretched out on a carpet that is tacked down—if you possess such a thing. If not, stretch the sheets out on a heavy rug and pin them into place. Then pin the curtains with the innumerable pins to the sheets.

If you have an unused mattress in a sunny room, spread a sheet over it and pin the curtains to that. Then be sure to air the mattress thoroughly, so that any dampness from the curtains will dry thoroughly.

The best way to wash curtains is to shake them as nearly free from dust as possible and soak them in a tub half full of tepid water in which half a pound of pure soap has been dissolved. In the morning squeeze them fairly dry and place them in a tub full of very hot water to which a tablespoonful of borax and enough dissolved soap to make a strong suds are added.

When they seem clean, after splashing them about in this water, rinse them thoroughly, until there is no trace of suds or dirt. Then squeeze them gently dry. Let them dry thoroughly on the grass or hang them over a line to dry. Then starch them.

Selectmen Favor New Bridge on Quincy Avenue

The docket was light for the Selectmen at their regular weekly meeting on Monday.

A hearing was given the Telephone company on its petition for a location on Middle street for an underground conduit. There being no opposition, the petition was granted.

A hearing was given on the petition for abatement of the unsafe condition of the Merchant block in Jackson Square, recently gutted by fire. The only one heard was A. P. Garey, who represents the owners. He promised to remove all dangerous parts, and as soon as weather would permit, to begin repairs.

As the result of a conference between the board and the town counsel, it was voted to settle the suit of Marietta Burrell, for injuries on Pine street, out of court.

Chairman Hunt and Town Counsel Worthen were instructed to appear at the hearing before the Legislature next Tuesday at 10.30, in favor of the bill for a new bridge over the Monaquot river on Quincy avenue, East Braintree.

The bridge bill was introduced by B. H. Woodsum, one of the Selectmen from Braintree. A public hearing will be held February 13 in room 427 at the State House. The bill provides that the state shall pay 20 percent, the county of Plymouth 10 percent, county of Norfolk 10 percent, City of Quincy 10 percent, town of Weymouth 10 percent, and Braintree 15 percent. The additional 15 percent remaining shall be paid for by any street railway petitioning for the privilege for laying tracks across the bridge. Amount proposed is $110,000.

Hingham Magazine

A Boston paper reports that Commanding Officer J. L. Wallace of the Hingham naval magazine received information from Washington this week that $53,000 had been appropriated for the addition of two powder magazines and a shell house and $5000 for additions to the barracks. Commandant Wallace has asked for 25 additional marines for the station but no reply has been received as yet.

Extra precautions are being observed, as well as at Fort Revere, Hull, where Capt. F. S. Long has doubled the sentries, barricaded the entrances and installed searchlights at all the approaches.

In view of the strained relations with Germany and the fact that Naval vessels are under construction at the Fore River shipyards, Mayor Whiton was authorized by the City Council Monday afternoon to take whatever precautions he may deem necessary to guard the Fore River yards from "unwarranted interference" until such times as the National Government can take steps to protect them.

A UNIFORM SURPRISE

Story of the American Revolution Laid in General Washington's Southernmost Command.

By ETHEL HOLMES

General Washington, commander in chief of the patriot forces during the American Revolution, had a very large territory to watch over. True, the revolting colonies all lay on the Atlantic coast, but they reached from Maine on the north to Georgia on the south, inclusive, and it must also be remembered that the only method of conveyance on land in those days was the legs of a man or those of other animals, principally the horse.

Naturally Washington was obliged to rely on his lieutenants in different sections. In South Carolina General Marion was carrying on a hide and seek warfare with British troops under Colonel Tarleton, an energetic young cavalry officer.

One evening a man stopped at the plantation of John Rutledge, a cotton planter, and asked if he could be lodged for the night. All the men of the family were with Marion, the "Swamp Fox," as he was called, the only inmates of the manor house being Mrs. Rutledge and her daughter, Kate. At the time of the stranger's coming Kate was on the gallery, and it was of her that he made his request. He wore the clothes of a poor white man, but there were indications that he was a gentleman.

"We are patriots in this house, sir," said Kate, "and my father, who is fighting for our independence, charged us to admit no one who favored the British cause. If you are one of us you are welcome to what we have to give; if not, we must decline to receive you."

The young man did not reply immediately to this. When he did he said: "To make truthful assurance that I am a patriot would be impossible. I can only say this: If I receive your hospitality you need have no fear that I will abuse it. I promise you that no harm shall come to any one in this house through me."

There was a look on the man's face that betokened he was in fear of something. Besides, he looked tired and hungry. Miss Rutledge being a woman, the stranger excited her commiseration. There was an unmistakable sincerity in his words. She yielded so far as to invite him in to partake of a meal, reserving her decision as to further entertainment till later. A negro cook was soon preparing a supper, while the stranger, having turned his horse over to a black stableman, was in an upper chamber getting rid of South Carolina dust.

When his supper was ready he was summoned by a quadron house servant. Kate Rutledge felt that she should be present with the guest at supper, but since his dress betokened that he was of inferior social grade and he seemed to have Toly sympathies she felt it beneath her dignity to do so. As soon as he had eaten he called for her and said:

"If you will permit me to occupy the means of your chambers for the night I will go forth at dawn without disturbing you or any of the household. If you insist upon my moving out I will sleep under the stars. Which course shall I take?"

This was too much for Miss Rutledge's education in hospitality, and she permitted the man to remain in the house. As soon as she had given her consent he retired to his chamber, saying that he had had no sleep for some time and since he must be off early could not now take a full night's rest. In thanking his hostess for her kindness to him it seemed to her that for the moment he forgot himself and fell into the manner of a gentleman. At any rate, she suspected that he was of higher grade than his coarse coat and breeches and woolen stockings betokened. However, there was not enough incongruity between the manner and the clothes to make much of an impression on her.

A few hours later when Miss Rutledge was about to prepare for bed she heard a loud knocking below and, taking a candle, went down to see who might be seeking admittance. Opening the door, there stood a young man in the uniform of a captain in the Continental army. He entered hurriedly, closed the door behind him and said: "Hide me, Kate, quick! I was captured this afternoon by the British and escaped this evening. They are after me."

"Won't they search every nook and corner?" "I fear they will."

"Wouldn't you have a better chance in a disguise?" "What disguise have you for me?"

Kate paused to think. "Father's clothes," she said presently, "are too large for you, and Arthur's are too small. A stranger came to the house this evening and asked for food and lodging. He is about your size. If you could use his clothes they would serve you admirably."

"Where is he?" "Asleep upstairs."

"I'll go and see what I can do with him."

The officer was Captain Stringfellow, the fiancé of Kate Rutledge. He ascended to the stranger's chamber, awakened him and said to him:

"My friend, I would like to borrow your clothes."

The man, seeing an officer in Continental uniform, looked surprised.

"If I lend you my clothes I shall have nothing to wear."

"As soon as it is daylight Miss Rutledge will send out for apparel for you."

"And if there is delay I suppose I can wear your uniform?"

"Certainly!"

"In that case you are welcome to my clothes. But I suppose you will not need them till tomorrow?"

"Indeed I shall. I need them now."

"Very well; take them."

While Stringfellow was doffing his uniform and putting on the citizen's clothes the latter asked him what it all meant. The captain told him of his capture by the British and his escape and that he expected pursuers might arrive at any moment and search the house for him. The stranger listened to all this intently, but made no comment.

"By the bye," said Stringfellow, suddenly remembering that if the man were so disposed he might betray him, "which side are you on?"

"Never mind that. I shall do you no harm or any one else in this house. That I promised the young lady who kindly took me in, fed me and gave me a bed for the night."

When Stringfellow had changed his clothes the stranger said that if he came to the house to make a search he would prefer to be up and about. So he arose, put on the captain's uniform and went downstairs with him. Kate Rutledge received the two men in the great hall, used principally for a living room, and seeing the stranger in the uniform of an American officer, was not only surprised at his costume, but that in such apparel he appeared far more gentlemanlike than ever before. Besides, he greeted her with the manner of a born aristocrat.

"Do you not fear," she said, "that in this uniform if British soldiers come they will make a prisoner of you?"

"If they do I will prove that I am not an American officer."

"But that will betray Captain Stringfellow. They will surmise at once that he has changed clothes with you."

"Never fear for that. I will not reveal the true situation until there is no danger of betraying him. You kindly took me in and gave me meat, drink and shelter. No one in this house shall suffer through me."

The three chatted together, the stranger being informed as to the relation between the other two, and the lady's name. But he gave no information about himself. His change from a poor white man to a gentleman would have excited the curiosity of Stringfellow and his fiancée had it not been that they were momentarily expecting a party of British soldiers to look for the American.

Presently sounds of horses' hoofs announced the coming of the pursuers. A voice without was heard detailing a sergeant and six men to search the house, while the rest rode on. Then the door was thrown open and the searchers entered.

"Come, come, sergeant!" said the guest in a tone of authority. "When you enter a dwelling of genteel folk use the knocker."

The sergeant looked at the speaker in a puzzled way, then suddenly stood erect and saluted.

"What means this, Major Thorndyke? How come you to be in a rebel uniform?"

"What is your business here?" asked the major instead of replying.

"We captured a rebel captain this afternoon. He escaped, and we are following him. I have the orders of the lieutenant commanding to search this house."

"And you have now the orders of Major Thorndyke to retire from this house and leave it undisturbed?"

The sergeant looked for an explanation to follow the words, but since no explanation was vouchsafed he saluted and retired with his men. However, as he was about to close the door behind him Major Thorndyke ordered him to ride on and recall the searchers.

During this scene Stringfellow and Miss Rutledge looked on with increasing wonder. As soon as the soldiers had gone the guest turned to them and said:

"You see, captain, that I have kept my word. You are as safe here from the king's troops as if you were at General Marion's headquarters. If there are rebel troops about I am in far more danger than you. Three days ago I left Colonel Tarleton's headquarters in the disguise you now wear with a view to gaining information as to the "Swamp Fox's" lair, that we might trap him. I failed and was working my way back to where I belong through this country, where the king's troops and the Continentals are both roving, when a few hours ago I asked food and shelter of Miss Rutledge. She gave them to me, and I verily believe in her kindness of heart if I had been discovered here by your men she would have protected me. You must admit, captain, that I risked something in donning your uniform, for had your men instead of mine come here I would have been hanged for a spy. You are at liberty to get back into it and without danger from our troops so long as I am with you."

The evening was finished with refreshments ordered from the larder by Miss Rutledge, after which all retired to their rooms. In the morning Captain Stringfellow appeared in his uniform, and Major Thorndyke, having sent a trooper for his own refreshments, presented himself at breakfast in proper apparel. After the meal had been finished Captain Stringfellow was sent under a flag of truce to Sleepy Time Story That Comes From Faraway Japan.

HOW A FISH LOST ITS SHELL.

Very Queer Medicine That Was Prescribed For an Undersea Queen—Adventures of a Monkey and a Tortoise. Severe Punishment For a Tattle Tale.

Well, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, tonight I am going to tell

A FISH STORY.

Did you ever hear how the jellyfish lost its shell? The Japanese say it was in this way:

Once in the long ago the jellyfish had a shell which covered his soft body and kept him from getting hurt.

He was quite a somebody at the court of the sea queen and treated others with a very grand air indeed.

It happened once that the sea queen was taken quite ill. The king was much troubled.

At last some one said that if the queen were given the liver of a monkey to eat she would get well.

Now, there are no monkeys in the ocean, so when the sea king made up his mind that the queen must try a monkey liver he sent out the tortoise to look for a monkey.

The tortoise traveled until he came to an island where there were a number of monkeys playing and chattering in the treetops.

The tortoise was pretty sure none of the monkeys would go with him willingly, so he tried a trick. He lay down under a tree and waited until a frolicsome little monkey came so near that he could catch it and hold it with his claws.

Then he told the monkey that unless it came with him of its own free will and without struggling he would kill it.

So the monkey said all right, he would go with the tortoise. They started out, the monkey riding on the tortoise's back.

This was the first monkey which had ever visited the ocean world, and every one was interested in it.

"Poor thing! I wonder if it knows its liver is to be eaten," said the jellyfish as he watched the monkey frolicking around teasing the fishes.

So the jellyfish took the monkey aside and told it the fate in store.

The monkey had no wish to lose his liver, and so he pretended to the king and queen that he must go back to land and get his liver, which he had left hanging on a tree.

He went back as he had come, on the tortoise's back, but that was the last seen of him, for as soon as he got safe to shore he ran quickly away and never came back.

When he learned that the jellyfish had tattled to the monkey the sea king was very angry and said that after that the jellyfish should be punished by losing its shell and having to go undressed forever after.

A Young French Soldier.

The boy who is here shown in uniform is a real soldier, and he fights for his native country, France, in the trenches. This youthful warrior's name is Jacques Veriot, and he is only thirteen years of age.

teen years of age. He can handle a gun as well as his grown up comrades. Jacques appears to have learned one bad habit in his soldiering, that of smoking. He probably thinks he looks manly with a pipe in his mouth, but tobacco is not good for one so young. Nevertheless Jacques is said to be a valiant fighter.

Jolly Jinks, the gallorman, went to sea in an oyster can. But he found the water wet. Fishes got into his net. So he pulled his boat to shore and vowed he'd sail the seas no more. —St. Nicholas.

Worked the Car Owners.

Quite recently patrons of a well known New York restaurant, who were in the habit of leaving their cars unattended outside, uncovered the methods of a new kind of practical joker, new because he was practical.

It appears that almost every day some one would have trouble in getting his car started. After he had tinkered for a few minutes an obliging mechanic would stroll up, proffer his aid and have the engine running in no time. Two actors happened to compare notes one day and found that this incident had occurred to both of them. They immediately became suspicious and on leaving the restaurant saw the man working at a car a short distance down the street. By quick action one of them pounced on him and caught him. He was the obliging mechanic, and after his arrest it developed that he had deliberately disconnected portions of the cars' electrical systems and then had collected substantial rewards from puzzled owners for services rendered in starting the machines. —Motor Life.

How Wood Shrinks.

Students in the college of forestry at the University of Washington have proved by experiment that a cord of full length wood when sawed and re-piled in the ordinary stack shrinks on an average 24.70 per cent. As dealers buy wood in full lengths and usually measure it for delivery before sawing it, they are often accused of giving short measure.

A "cord" is the standard measurement of wood, and it is defined as 128 cubic feet of wood, measured by a pile four feet high and eight feet wide of logs four feet long.

The discrepancy between the cord as bought by the dealer and as delivered to the customer, according to Professor Hugo Winkenwerder, dean of the college, is not entirely explained by the sawdust. When wood is piled up in four foot lengths there are many spaces between sticks, caused by knots and curvatures. These spaces are eliminated when the wood is cut up small.

Ancestry of Modern Dogs.

According to Charles R. Eastman, writing in the Museum Journal, our modern dogs have a varied ancestry, some being descended from Asiatic and some from African species. The spitz in all its varieties is a domesticated jackal. The mastiff and St. Bernard and their kind are descended through the molossus of the Romans from a huge, wolflike creature that was already domesticated by the Assyrians 3,000 years before our era.

The Russian borzoi and the Sicilian hound had their origin in the Cretan hound, which is still common in Crete, and it and its cousin, the Ibiza hound of the Balearic islands, came from the ancient Ethiopian hound, which was a domesticated wolf. The collie or shepherd dog seems to come down direct from a small wild dog of the paleolithic period.

Here's a Tip About Hotel Guests.

In the American Magazine a writer says: "Here's a funny thing, by the way, that I've noticed about hotel guests: You leave a soiled towel in a room and the guest will probably complain, but you can leave a bucket of paint and a paper hanger's scaffold in the hallway and compel the guest to crawl under a stepladder to get to his room and he will put up with it cheerfully, because he knows you are painting or papering by way of making an improvement and he is in sympathy with that. It doesn't cost much to make over a carpet so that a bare spot in front of the dresser will be eliminated, but such little details are a vast help in making a hotel prosper."

The "Only Child."

When parents have an "only child" it seems to get as much attention as six or eight children in a large family. Some statistics show that out of a hundred "only children" eighty-seven were nervous, the girls suffering worse than the boys. And then the statisticians say the only child lacks self reliance, is precocious, vain and unsocial, is often extremely timid, being afraid of dark rooms and of sleeping alone.—Exchange.

It's an Ill Wind.

"Rejected; you, did she, old man?" "Yes." "Too bad! No doubt you had planned to buy her a ring and all that?" "Yes." "Had your money all saved up, eh?" "I should say so. Had $50 all ready." "I say, old man, you—couldn't lend me that $50 till you find some other girl who will have you, could you?" —Boston Transcript.

Worse Still.

"Does your father ever comment on my staying so late at night?" "No, Algeonon." "That's good." "But he sometimes makes sarcastic remarks about your staying so early in the morning." —Birmingham Age-Herald.

Cause and Effect.

She—So you danced with Miss Light-foot at the ball last night? He—Yes. Did she tell you? She—Oh, no. But I saw her going into a chiropodist's this morning.

Mosquito Netting.

Mosquito netting is an ancient Greek if not Egyptian invention, even if it does seem a Yankee idea.

It is easier for the generous to forgive than for the offense to ask it.—Thomson.

TOWN MEETING TOPICS DISCUSSED

Mr. Sheehy Writes on Water Extension, Sewerage System, Streets and Sidewalks

Editor Gazette and Transcript:
I think that is a very good idea, your calling on the citizens for comments of the various articles to be acted on at our next town meeting. I see Idewell calls for $7,000 to extend the water system, the interest on which would be about $300 per year, besides the wear and tear and upkeep. The last time, about two months ago, I was in Idewell, they had built or were building seven cottages, costing I should guess, $200 to $500 each. Some of them shacks, apparently, and so out of place that people who are looking for nice conditions will in many cases get rid of their lots by forfeiting their deposits, or getting what they can for their interest. When they build 100 or more cottages will be time enough for Weymouth to move in the matter.

I am a believer in progress, and of meeting them more than half way. I don't, however, think the town should tax itself to enrich land speculators, when all the evidences are, that all the interest they show is to unload on people who know little or nothing of land values, and later putting the town to the expense of advertising them for taxes, etc. If it was a good wholesome development like the Bluff in North Weymouth, we would be justified in anticipating somewhat.

Here is a case, if the Planning Board was on the JOB, such a condition would not be allowed to exist. Here lies one of the great assets of Weymouth, her shore property, and it is being wasted. People of means, who would bring wealth to our town, are being repelled by such conditions, and they simply won't come. Not that we object to the poor and orderly people, but you have to have taxable property to help pay the bills, and most of us, even if we are poor, like to see pleasing conditions in the way of nice cottages, nice yards, nice trees, shrubs, etc. They are the things that make for beauty, grandeur and wealth. Just think of it, bringing people out from the city who are tempted because they see the open air and green pastures; then selling them lots 40x80, thus bringing them back again to city conditions, which they don't see on account of the present openness of conditions. If these lots should be all built on, it would mean afterward that the public will be called upon to provide spaces in the way of playgrounds, fire protection, etc., to enrich a few at our expense. Perhaps we like to keep doing this; if we do, why not vote to give the $7,000? If anyone has any doubt about what I say, take a trip to Idewell and see some of those cheap shacks I tell you of.

Speaker at Board of Trade Meeting Praises Good Work of Local Paper

The annual meeting of the Weymouth Board of Trade on Wednesday evening was one of the best for several months; a larger attendance; most everybody taking part in the business; and some strong facts presented why Weymouth is bound to grow and flourish. In the absence of President Burton B. Wright, Patrick J. Derrig of the Executive Committee was in the chair.

First came "a feed" of oyster stew and pickles, doughnuts and cheese, and coffee.

Secretary Walter L. Bates in his annual report, reviewed at length the meetings of the year, the different topics and speakers, and told what the Weymouth Board of Trade had accomplished.

WEYMOUTH BANKS.
Hon. George L. Barnes of South Weymouth, the president of the Weymouth Trust Company, was introduced, and the facts and figures he presented relative to "Banking in Weymouth" was a most pleasing surprise to all, and made those present feel proud that they were residents of good old Weymouth.

He said banking was really co-operative effort for a community, and one of the chief requisites of a town, indicating thrift, progress and character. Savings banks were established only during the last 100 years, yet they pay the largest single item that the State Treasury collects annually. Weymouth is very fortunate in its savings institutions, as some have existed many years. They were organized and are managed by men in whom the citizens have respect. On Feb. 12 the deposits of the East Weymouth, South Weymouth and Weymouth Savings Banks amounted to $5,866,697.14.

And the total deposits of all the banks of Weymouth, including the Co-operative banks and Weymouth Trust Company, amounted to $6,993,045.76.

Dividends on this amount at only four per cent, would result in savings of $280,000 annually by the people of Weymouth.

Then again, the number of accounts in the three savings banks was 13,854; in the co-operative banks 2,410, and in the Weymouth Trust about 500, a total of 16,764.

The Weymouth Savings bank also had 2,804 depositors out of a total of 4,036 school children of Weymouth and Braintree in its School Savings Bank department, with deposits amounting to $27,000.

All these banks have invested these deposits in Weymouth real estate and helped the town greatly. The total assets of the three savings banks are $7,851,302.89.

These banks can be assisted by good

Edward E. Leonard brought up a subject which was before the State Board of Trade at Norwood, a movement to extend the civil service to counties. The board was asked to take a referendum vote, but postponed action until March.

Arthur C. Gerstley, the treasurer, reported that there was in the treasury but $57.96, but all bills were paid. He said the board actually had but 70 paid members.

Reports were expected from the various committees, but few had anything to offer.

Mr. Gersley thought the committees had been lax and really had done very little except to stave off the petition of the street railway for curtailment of the South Weymouth service. He was thankful for that.

NEW OFFICERS.

A. P. Worthen for the nominating committee, reported the following list of officers for 1917-18, which was unanimously adopted:—

Vice-President—Burtón B. Wright.
Secretary—Walter L. Bates.
Treasurer—Sidney G. Dunbar.

TREMONT THEATRE, BOSTON.

The significance of what the highest measure of artistic quality really means upon the stage, is illustrated by the enthusiastic popularity gained by "Miss Springtime" at the Tremont Theatre. It is now nearing the advent of its third month, which is a supreme test of success under present day conditions. There is no resisting the infinite charms of "Miss Springtime," which carries the quality brand that is the guarantee of a Klaw and Erlanger musical comedy. It is delightful from every angle, with Kalmann's witching melodies, fast and furious fun, beautiful girls, expert comedians, singers and dancers, wonderful color schemes in costuming and scenic illusion. It rouses big audiences to enthusiastic and serene enjoyment. Frank McIntyre, and his fun-making spell-binders, keep the audiences in an uproar of laughter. Ethel Pettit, Harrison Brockbank and Wilmoth Merkyl adeptly translate the sentiment of Rosika's romance in song and action. For the special holiday matinee on Washington's Birthday, seats are now on sale.

George A. Dailey.

George A. Dailey, a life-long resident of East Weymouth, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Walter L. Hunt, Commercial street, after an illness of only a few days. He was at one time a member of the Weymouth Fire Department; was a member of the Sons of Veterans; and had been night watchman at the Stetson factory for a number of years; was a member of the Mutual Benefit Association of the Stetson Shoe Co. of South Weymouth. He leaves a wife, two daughters, Mrs. George D. Huntington of Brockton, with whom the widow is living, and Mrs. Walter Hunt of East Weymouth, and a brother, Warren P. Dailey, of St. Paul, Minnesota.

The funeral was held at the M. E. church, East Weymouth, Sunday afternoon, the Rev. W. M. Newton conducting the services. The body was taken to Fairmount cemetery for burial, where the Sons of Veterans burial service was rendered very impressively.

The floral tributes were very beautiful, including pieces from the Sons of Veterans, the Mutual Benefit Association and others.

BEST EFFECTS IN FURNITURE

Black and White, in Artistic Designs is Most Popular of Fashionable Furnishings.

The fad for black and white in interiors still rages. In its present form this fad is a good one, for now that we have passed the days of overdoing the black-and-white idea we have come upon some really charming effects.

The rage for black has taught us that dark furniture is often far more effective than light furniture. And that is something worth learning. There are places, of course, where dark furniture does not look well. But in a room of rather heterogeneous color scheme dark furniture is almost sure to look best.

So if you have on hand any old furniture, even of a dilapidated sort, darken it. Use brown or black stain, and with this stain turn the cherry bedside stand, the golden oak rocking chair, the battered curly maple writing desk, the green-stained mission bureau and dressing table, the gray enameled bed—turn them all into a dull, dark bedroom suite. Then place them in a room with mustard yellow or soft blue paper on the walls, with bright chintz or soft cream muslin hangings, and congratulate yourself on the result, which will most surely be a charming one.

It is really a very interesting work, this painting and staining of furniture. And the fact that it does bring harmony out of a lack of it, that it does make old and worn furniture a pleasant possibility, makes the work quite worth while.

So get a can of dark oak or dark walnut stain or of black paint or enamel and go to work to bring dark harmony out of your old furniture.

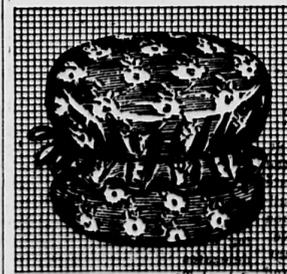

Then there is the Jacobean and Elizabethan and Tudor furniture, that has a decided vogue at the present time. This is finished in a soft dull brown that is very attractive.

USEFUL PIECE OF FURNITURE

Ottoman Can Be Made of Excellent Service in a Surprising Variety of Ways.

These round humpty ottomans are very useful in a sitting room; they can be, of course, made small for a foot-stool or in larger size for a seat.

The first thing to do is to make a round, thick cushion the size decided on; it must be very tightly stuffed so that it is quite firm; any clean pieces of rag might be cut up into small pieces for stuffing the lower part, then towards the top vegetable down or woolen socks should be used. Cretonne or furniture brocade may be used for covering. On the lower part the sides halfway from middle to bottom should be covered; stretch it as tightly as possible and sew it at the top first; then turn lower edge under the bottom and sew firmly; finish by sewing a circle of lining on to cover all rough edges.

The top covering must be cut in a circle large enough to allow for the hemmed fell; stretch it over the top and fix it by pins; get it as tight and smooth as possible, and arrange the fullness, evenly for frill; stitch it round, then cover the stitches with thick furniture cord; pull this very tight and tie in a loopy bow at the side.

For Young Girls. In the evening the more diaphanous the dresses of the young girls the more becoming they are, and scarves of tulle of every color are twisted round the figure and neck, just as a pretty woman knows so well how to adjust them with the most satisfactory results.

Cooky Drawer

Having hit upon such an excellent place for keeping drop cooking (or any others) I thought perhaps someone else might welcome the idea. It is a shallow box, three inches deep, three feet long, and as wide as the pantry shelf. I made it from a smooth wooden grocery box and painted it inside and out with white enamel paint. The cookies can be laid flat on sheets of waxed paper in the bottom. As the drawer is entirely concealed by the shelf paper it would be a good idea where it is thought necessary to conceal cookies from the small members of the household. Aunt Jo.

Ragout of Mutton With Rice

Put into a stew pan a tablespoonful of olive oil, and when melted add a tablespoonful of flour and let slowly brown; add onion, cut into small pieces, and sliced carrots, celery, hot water, salt, pepper, and a fourth teaspoonful sugar; a bit of bay leaf, six whole cloves and a sprig of parsley. Cook slowly for two hours. Just before serving add half a can of peas. This is fine cooked in a casserole. Serve with hot boiled rice.

Peach Cream Cake

Bake a yellow sponge cake mixture, and when cold place it on a lace paper dolly. Heap sliced peaches in the center, and cover with whipped cream put through a star tube if possible. If a star tube is not obtainable, shape with a teaspoon. Pass a pitcher of plain thick cream with the cake.

Studies in Sacrifice

"Do you think women ought to take an active part in politics?" "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "But I'm afraid that a girl who sacrifices her life to politics is going to have something like the customary experience of a girl who marries a man to reform him."

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

A regular meeting of the Weymouth Teachers' Association was held in Clapp Memorial hall on Wednesday, at 4 o'clock. Miss Martha J. Hanes presided at the short business meeting preceding the afternoon's program which was in charge of the teachers of the Jefferson school, Miss Ida M. Cronin, Miss Marguerite A. Connor, Miss Ruth Reidy and Mrs. Harold Burrell.

The hall was artistically decorated for a Valentine social. The basic color was red. Streamers of red crepe paper radiated from the central electrolier to many parts of the room. Suspended from the centre was a large Cupid and a multitude of smaller cupids. The table was decorated with hearts and cupid, a vase of carnations and candles with red shade. Across the front of the platform were ferns and potted plants.

At the close of the business session, Miss Cronin, principal of the Jefferson school, graciously welcomed the guests, and expressed the pleasure of the teachers of the Jefferson school in having the members as their guests of the afternoon, and introduced Mr. Buxton, physical director of the Clapp Memorial, who urged the co-operation of the teachers and people in general in the work which the Clapp Memorial was trying to accomplish.

Miss Cronin then introduced Miss Emma M. Nichols, superintendent of Nurses at Boston City Hospital, and the organizer of the Boston Branch of the Red Cross, who gave a most interesting account of the Red Cross movement, its organization, and its aims. She urged everyone to take an interest in the work of the Red Cross, and spoke of the work as it is carried on in other countries. Most interesting was her description of the Red Cross work in Japan. Every newly-born baby is enrolled in the society. The Japanese even own steamships which they rent to commercial concerns with the understanding that they can be called for in time of war. She also spoke of the importance of first aid and helpfulness to railroad employees and miners through their knowledge of the subject. Miss Nichols' remarks were received with appreciative applause and many came forward at the close of the lecture to meet Miss Nichols and converse with her on that subject.

After the lecture a social hour was enjoyed. Dainty refreshments consisting of coffee, sandwiches, tempting home-made cakes and candy hearts were served. The pourers were Mrs. Parker T. Pearson and Mrs. Harold Pratt. The servers were Miss Sylvia Canterbury, Miss Hazel Manuel, Miss Katherine Lyons, Miss Katherine Eldredge, Miss Elsie Monroe, Miss Helen Pray, Miss Ethel Martin, Miss Herberta Stockwell, Miss Helen Corridan and Miss Mary McIsaac.

Miss Pauline Bergeron, violin, and Miss Mildred Leary, piano, contributed selections while the guests were assembling, and during the social hour.

At six o'clock all took their leave, pronouncing the teachers of the Jefferson school ideal hostesses.

Tuesday evening the Lovell's Corner Improvement Association met at Pratt's hall. After a short business meeting, in which progressive reports were given by standing committees, an athletic meet, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leach, assisted by Bowdoin Smith, was enjoyed by those present. A sale of home-made candy was held during the evening.

Dora, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Smith, is at a Boston hospital for treatment.

KILLED BY MIDNIGHT TRAIN.

Frank L. Whalen, aged 55, night flagman at Heywood's crossing, West Hingham, was found by the day man, B. E. Wrighton, early Saturday morning, dead in his shanty, frozen, and with his right leg almost severed from his body.

Such a serious injury must have been the result of being struck by the midnight train with just life enough to crawl to his shanty for protection from the extremely cold weather.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon from his late home, 1207 Commercial street, East Weymouth. Rev. E. A. Hoyt of the Universalist church of Hingham officiating. Burial was in the Port Hill cemetery. The pall-bearers were Emil Peterson, William Fields, George Heywood and Edwin Collins.

Nash Benefit Successful.

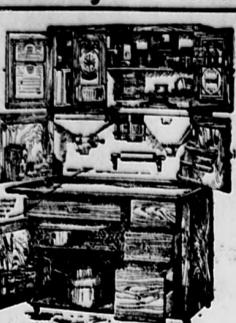

Editor Gazette and Transcript: Realizing that a great many people were interested in the benefit for Bertram Nash, I want to take this method of letting them know the result. At present we have $226.41 and expect it will be raised to $270, as there are a few tickets that have not been returned.

Also I should like to take this opportunity to thank everybody who in any way contributed to the success of the benefit both in the entertainment itself and in the selling of tickets. Also to L. F. Bates of the Bates Opera House and Editor Prescott of the Gazette and Transcript.

LADIES' NIGHT.

Weymouth Council of the Knights of Columbus. A brilliant party assembled at Masonic hall Wednesday evening for the annual ladies' night of Weymouth Council, Knights of Columbus. It was the intention to have had a caterers' supper at 5.8 o'clock, to be followed by an entertainment and dance. But the caterer met with a mishap en route and was delayed, so that it was nearly 10 o'clock before the tables were spread.

Meanwhile a pleasing concert was enjoyed, the Alpha Quartet rendering "The sunshine of your smile," "Somewhere a voice is calling" and several other selections. Addresses were made by Rev. D. P. Crimmins, Rev. C. I. Blordan and District Deputy Charles J. McGilvray of Quincy.

The menu was a very good one and thoroughly enjoyed by the hungry ones. Dancing followed until 1 A. M., all the numbers being round dances. The committee of arrangements included J. Edward Mulligan, William Brie, Anthony Fahy, Edward F. O'Brien, Frank Daley, Joseph A. Fern, Joseph Conroy, Joseph McDonald, George McGowan and Patrick Santacrose.

BOY SCOUTS' COMEDY.

Troop I, Boy Scouts of America, are hustling along with their arrangements for their forthcoming performance of Sydney Grundy's famous musical comedy, "Mother-in-Law." A picked cast of local amateurs are rehearsing every evening at the Baptist church parlors, and a fine chorus of thirty young girls will commence Thursday. The entertainment will be quite pretentious and should prove quite an event. Full particulars in next week's issue.

—Mails arrive at the North Weymouth post office at 7:30 and 11:30 a. m., 2:30 and 5:30 p. m. Mails close at 8:15, 12:15, 3:45 and 6:45. A collection is made at 7:10 a. m., and on the delivery trips. On Sundays at 1 p. m.

—The old factory building on the E. S. Beals estate is being taken down. This structure was erected in 1858. It hasn't been used for a number of years.

—Mrs. Andrew Culley entertained her sister, Mrs. Annie Noonan, a few days this week.

—At the Universalist church on Sunday, Dr. Chas. Earle addressed the Boy Scouts of North Weymouth. The church was well filled and all present were inspired by the able sermon on the boyhood of Lincoln. The text used was the story of Jacob. The young girls' choir rendered two anthems, and Percival Ames rendered a pleasing violin solo. Patriotic hymns were sung by choir and congregation.

—A letter from Austin Pratt last week told of extreme heat, on account of which he had gone on to Memphis, Tenn.

—On Monday morning about 10 o'clock, smoke was seen coming out of the little building off Sea street occupied by J. B. Barker, painter. The fire apparatus was called by telephone and responded quickly. The place was filled with a dense smoke and when the fire was out, it was found that the back part of the building was considerably gutted. Mr. Barker lost most of his clothes and other belongings.

—Mrs. Ella Riley of Medway is the guest of relatives in town.

—The Men's Bible Study Class opened Sunday at the Pilgrim church with fifteen members, and the Women's Bible Study Class opened Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Royal on Sea street with eighteen members. Hereafter the women's class will meet on Tuesday evenings. Next week it will meet with Mrs. Hiram Nadell.

—Miss Alice Barker of Ashmont was the guest of her mother last Sunday.

Go to Church Sunday.

A State-wide movement is on foot, looking to the observance of Sunday, Feb. 25, as "G. O. C. church Sunday." A good number of the local church people are interested and it is hoped that there will be a general observance of the day by the people of the church and the people of Weymouth.

If They Could Keep It Up.

There have been big men in Wall street who did all the work themselves, who attended to every minute item, who were from Missouri in regard to each point in any proposition put up to them. One of these marvels was among the very greatest financiers the country ever had. But he didn't last long, and there have been few others like him. If a man with the first order of brains and ability could only keep it up there is nothing to prevent his owning the United States. If E. H. Harriman could have kept on fifteen or twenty years longer at the pace he was going he would have gobbled up all that was left of the railroads in sight, and he was just getting a strangle hold on the big banks. He conquered every square foot of territory as he went along. There was no force on earth to stop him except premature death, and now he is almost forgotten.—A. W. Atwood in Saturday Evening Post.

Most Buoyant Wood.

The lightest wood known, so far as any evidence attainable is concerned, is balsa wood, which grows extensively in the Central American and northern South American states. It is composed of very thin walled cells, which are barrel shaped, interlaced with each other and are almost devoid of woody fiber. These cells are filled with air, making a natural structure well adapted to prevent the transmission of heat because of the particles of air imprisoned in the material without interconnecting fibers. Various tests of the insulating properties for resisting the flow of heat have been made. Balsa wood has been used quite extensively in the past as a buoyancy product for life preservers and in connection with the fenders of lifeboats and rafts. Its life is short, under ordinary conditions, unless treated with antiseptic or preservative material.

Ariake Bay's Mystic Fire.

Shiranubi, the mystic fire of Ariake bay, Kyushu, has been famous for the past 2,000 years, the sight being considered one of the great wonders of the Japan seas.

In a recent issue of the Taiyo Magazine M. Kaneko, a teacher in the Shimabara middle school, relates his impressions of the fire. According to Mr. Kaneko, when he witnessed the spectacle the first light appeared like a star about five miles distant. Suddenly the volume of light increased until it soon covered an area of many miles. The light moved with the waves and resembled electric lights being lighted and then suddenly extinguished. Mr. Kaneko says that intermittent wavelike movements are the chief characteristics of the mystic fire. He fails to find a cause for the origin of the fire.

Cheaping.

In parts of Switzerland the baker's wife carries round the bread in a sort of hamper, and she has not a fixed, immutable charge, but chafers for a price with the customers. The old English word for this process was "cheaping," which in many places in England has been corrupted into clipping. Clipping Norton, for instance, is really Cheaping Norton, or the place where goods were cheapened—that is, sold by chaffer.—London Standard.

Congressional "Pairs."

The custom of legislative "pairing" is the practice of members of legislative bodies by which two members of opposing parties agree to refrain from voting on a prescribed subject or to be absent during a certain time. It was first used in the United States house of representatives in 1839.

Whangs—Is your wife a good conversationalist? Bangs—She would be but for one thing—she talks so fluently that she interrupts herself.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Sense in the Sickroom.
 Every one who goes into a sick person's room should be bright and cheerful. Sick people are extremely sensitive to the manner of those around them, and any depressing influence has a most injurious effect. Hope is the best medicine. Unfortunately the sick person's relatives often take the worst view of the case, and their anxiety is unmistakably manifested by their looks, voice and general manner. They even talk despairingly in the room, thinking that because the patient is quiet and dull he does not understand. But his perception of everything relating to his illness is markedly acute. Note the good effects of the visit of a cheery doctor. For hours after the patient seems better and is better. Of course it does not do to be flippanant, but if relatives would force themselves to take a hopeful view and show it in their manner they would in many cases actually save the sick person's life.

Don't Take Up Your Rugs or Move Your Furniture To Have Your House Wired.

Electricians are neat and gentlemanly and they work without dust, dirt, noise or confusion. You hear the saw and hammer when a piece of closet or floor is removed. The small pieces of plaster from the very small holes where the wires go are caught as they fall.

When the job is finished not a trace remains but the ELECTRIC fixtures, switches and receptacles and the WONDERFUL CONVENIENCE OF ELECTRICITY.

Our representative will call and give you exact cost of wiring.

advertising by people of Weymouth. Speak well of them.

Formerly there were two National banks in Weymouth, but one had liquidated, and now the First National Bank had been reorganized as the Weymouth Trust Company. It was highly desirable that Weymouth should have a flourishing commercial bank. The board of directors had been enlarged to include representative men from the different precincts. The banking rooms are being remodelled and the facilities improved. Automobile collection and delivery, etc., have been installed to make it easy to bank at your place of business or at your home. Deposits may also be made in Boston.

A bank to succeed must furnish facilities as good as other banks. The Weymouth Trust is doing this. We believe Weymouth is entering upon an era of prosperity. Some do not assent to this. But personally I cannot see it any other way. Other metropolitan towns are now congested, and people are coming from these towns to Weymouth every year. So growth must now come to Weymouth, and we will experience great changes in the next ten years.

The last census figures available (in 1914) show invested capital in Weymouth industries to the amount of $7,601,946.00.

That there was on hand stock and material to the amount of $5,058,347.00.

That the amount paid annually in wages is $1,196,197.00.

And that the value of the products each year is $8,251,041.00.

The percentage of increase is larger than in previous periods. A strong bank will help these industries. It would be interesting to get together some evening the directors and workers of all the Weymouth banks. We ask your co-operation.

OTHER BUSINESS.

Bradford Hawes wanted to have the address printed at length in the newspapers.

Martin E. Hawes had a complaint for George L. Barnes.

Edward E. Leonard wanted to see new life in the Weymouth Board of Trade. He suggested a committee to get the bank people together at a meeting. Some committees of the Board of Trade should wait upon Alden, Walker & Wilde right away, and get the facts, and make it possible for the firm to remain in Weymouth.

Mr. Gerstley said the Board of Trade was not worthy of the name unless it got busy and saw the firm.

M. E. Hawes thought the bunch had been surmounted and that the firm would stay.

Henry A. Day, however, favored a committee.

Acting President Derrig said he came here especially for the factory business of which he had read so much in the Gazette for two weeks. We need more industries, not less. Weymouth is a nice town to work in also to live in. We should be proud of our water front. We should all stand up for Weymouth.

Edward T. Jordan thought the Weymouth Trust should co-operate here.

George M. Keene said Alden Walker & Wilde were very beneficial to Weymouth, as practically all the help lived in Weymouth.

Secretary Bates thought it would be a calamity to Weymouth to lose Alden, Walker & Wilde, and favored a committee.

Voted unanimously to appoint a committee to be selected by the new president.

Mr. Gerstley wished to express his appreciation of the good newspaper work of the Gazette and Transcript. He would give all the credit to the paper if Alden, Walker & Wilde remain in Weymouth. The Gazette was responsible for bringing the issue so forcibly to the attention of the people of Weymouth.

Fred Humphrey did not want to see any delay.

Other business was brought to the attention of the Board by E. T. Jordan, C. H. Chubbuck, Jr., Walter W. Pratt, Fred Humphrey, Secretary Bates, Mr. Dunbar and others.

CLAPP MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION.

The good times, and time well spent, have started at the Clapp Memorial Association. Gymnasium classes for boys, ladies and men; basket ball games and athletic meets, bowling leagues for ladies and men. Then the get-together Valentine party and social dance for members and friends was such a success people are still talking about it, and wondering how it was done. Giving the people something worth while and the best, is their motto.

The boys' supper and good time Wednesday evening was a grand success. This meeting was to start a membership campaign called "Get two." Four teams were chosen to work in different sections. The team that secures the least number of members will wait on the other three teams and new members at a supper next week. $2.50 or $3.50 is money well spent for a year's membership.

Here the boys' leisure time is well spent, and under the right influences. A Father and Sons' banquet is also being planned.

The shoe factories in our town have been invited to use the Association some evening for their employes. Tuesday, Feb. 20, Geo. E. Keith has picked for their evening, and a grand time is being planned. Pool and bowling tournaments, basket ball games, band concert and entertainment, then dancing and refreshments. The Association is desirous that all the factories will accept their invitation and use the building some evening in the near future.

The basket ball teams are doing good work. The Intermediates won in Brockton Saturday night against the Douglas shoe factory league champions. Weekly a game is played at home. The Midgets play North Abington Y. M. C. A. Saturday at 2 o'clock.

The banking corners on the running track have been completed and now athletic meets will be started. The banks are firm and add much to the pleasure of indoor running.

The ladies' bowling team visits North Abington Y. M. C. A. this evening.

Thursday night the managers of the baseball teams in this section met and started to organize a league. Seven teams will probably enter, and this will assure excellent baseball all summer.

spend $1500 for a survey preparatory for sewerage. I am not in favor of sewerage for Weymouth for some years to come, until Weymouth has at least 20,000 population. We are too scattered as a town and the tax would be crushing to many of the poor people on the line who would be unable to pay the tax as assessment. In very few cases would it be less than $350 for assessment, connecting, etc. It may be argued that it could be paid in installments. Very true, but it has to be paid, and with interest. The piping is 100% higher than before the war. Labor is also. If we have to hire much labor we would have to pay $3.00 to $3.50 per day for common labor. Inside of five years our taxes would be $25 to $30 per $1,000; more likely $30. The ones that are trying to engineer this through, don't tell the cost; they know, but want to hide it from you.

People owning $500 to $1,000 in their little homes, in many cases, would leave them because they could not meet the assessment. I am told it has been the history in other places where it has been put in. They no doubt will argue this is only a survey. Very true, but why the expense of that if you are not ready to go ahead with the work. Insist on finding out the working and expense before you spend a dollar. A year or two after the war closes, the work could be done for about half what it can be done now. Even then, Weymouth cannot afford it. With the present price (this is a guess) of piping and labor, it would cost us $1,000,000 to cover even the central locations, and a large portion would be taxed who for many years could get no benefit from it.

STREETS AND SIDEWALKS.
 I am a believer in good streets, and I know the people who run automobiles will insist on having them. I am equally insistent on good sidewalks. Weymouth for the last five years or more has almost wholly neglected her sidewalks, except the little pieces of concrete put in each year in the centers. Men, women and children are driven to take to the streets, because of the condition of the sidewalks, to the great danger of life and limb, and annoyance of the automobile people.

I consider it a shame that from that neglect we are exposing our wives and children to the many infatuated speed maniacs. In saying that, I am aware that the great majority are careful, conscientious drivers. Our people, going back and forth to their workshops, should be given the greatest consideration. It is from their labor that we all draw our sustenance. Their comfort and protection should be our first thought.

All the streets that are travelled a good deal by autos should right away have one good sidewalk. I don't mean by that that it should be concrete. I believe that we can have a better sidewalk for less than half that would cost. A good gravel sidewalk with tarvia, same as our streets, and get a machine made (if you cannot get one now) that can be run along the sidewalks to spread the tarvia the same as on the streets.

By sifting the sand you will have a smooth surface; something that will not wash away. If rightly crowned it will shed the water, and will not allow the frost in winter to heave it.

Fearing I have trespassed too much on your space, I am,

Yours resp'y,

M. SHEEHY.

PETS CARRY DISEASE.
 "Dogs, cats, rats and mice are the mediums through which much disease is scattered," writes the Texas Medical Journal. "People are constantly making war on rats and mice from economic necessity, but they seldom think of them as disease carriers and germ spreaders. There is no possible good that can come from rats and mice. It is more expensive to maintain a few of them about a place than to feed another person, aside from the harm they do in spreading sickness. The time will come when a city will be ashamed to admit that it has rats or mice in it.
 But what about the dogs and cats? They are even worse than the rats and mice, for they are the favorite household pets of the country. They not only have free access to many homes, but are taken into the arms of the women and children of the family and fondled and caressed, often when they are loaded with disease germs. Dogs and cats are inordinately filthy. Nothing is too dirty for them to get into; no place terrifies them because of the diseases that may be lurking there.
 They are expensive to feed and dangerous to have around. Why will sensible people keep them?"

A crippled English soldier, permanently out of the fighting, objected to the woman's employment assigned him, which was that of hat trimming. "They call us heroes," he said, "but a war hero as a hat trimmer is unthinkable!"
 Others haven't so nice a sense of the "fitness" of things, and take what is offered them, and are becoming expert at what was once exclusively the work of women. One British soldier took this philosophical view of it: "The good wife's a worker in a munition factory; she's supporting a husband and the whole government! By learning to trim hats I may one day be boss of an entire millinery establishment!" That, according to the Toronto Globe, is the comfort the crippled Canadian soldiers get out of the situation—that after the war is ended, instead of returning to their former occupations, "some of them may set up millinery establishments in Canadian towns equal to any branch of the famous Maison Lewis of New York, London and Paris!"

Throughout the entire system of education in our country, at private and public institutions, alike, stress is laid upon athletics to a degree that sometimes indicates a tendency to exalt the athlete above the student. While this may be transitory in its nature so far as it affects the individual, it is likely to leave something of permanent effect on the school itself. Traditions are part of student life, and form a potent agency whose influence on campus activities is beyond computation. Educators recognize this and now and again have been called upon to put forth considerable effort to neutralize the bent of the young mind to hero worship. Sometimes this restriction swings a little too far and the school suffers in degree just as the restrictive measures are made unduly stringent.

You have heard of the "motor car face," that grim-mouthed, half-terrified look which nervous drivers acquire, and of the "motor car air," the pitying attitude of those who ride toward those who walk. But have you heard of the "motor car appetite?" Well, it's a thing that's troubling physicians.
 This appetite is developed from riding in the sharp air. It has an artificial edge on it, since it is not born of exercise. People gorge themselves when they ought rather to be putting on the brakes. They haven't earned the great meal they eat. Digestion rebels. The doctor is visited. He knows the signs. "Eat a lot, I suppose?" he says. "Ride in a motorcar?" "Never walk if you can help it?" Justification enough for intestinal civil war.

 outclassing in size and brilliancy all ley's comet.

 to the American bill of fare. But they are not nearly as important as the sub-tractions.

There are always people to throw

When Pattens Were Worn.
 Americans find it more difficult than the English to understand what Dickens means when he says in "David Copperfield," "Women went clicking along the pavements in pattens." Pat-tens were an abbreviated form of stilts.
 The word is also used by builders as the name of the base of a column or pillar, and so architecturally the patten is the support used by a woman to keep her out of the water and mud.
 From this architectural use has come the secondary application of the word, meaning an arrangement attached to the shoe so that the walker is raised three or four inches above the solid earth, says Popular Science Monthly.
 If the mud and water did not exceed that depth the shoes were thus kept fairly dry.

It appears that pattens were not worn solely by the rich, but were luxuries indulged in by the very poor.
 In speaking of a person who was not especially speedy Ben Jonson uses the comparison, "You make no more haste than a beggar upon pattens."

Wrecked by a Knife Blade.
 A ship was once wrecked on the Irish coast. The captain was a careful one. Nor had the weather been of so severe a kind as to explain the wide distance which the vessel had swerved from her proper course. The ship went down, but so much interest attached to the disaster that a diving bell was sunk. Among other portions of the vessel that were examined was the compass that was swung on the deck, and inside the compass box was detected a bit of steel, which appeared to be the small point of a pocketknife blade. It was learned that the day before the wreck a sailor who had been set cleaning the compass had used his pocketknife in the process and had unceremoniously broken off the point and left it remaining in the box. That bit of knife blade exerted its influence on the compass and to a degree that deflected the needle from its proper bent and vitiated it as an index of the ship's direction. That bit of knife blade wrecked the vessel.

Coming in Out of the Wet.
 There is an amusing story by Athenaeus which suggests the possible origin of the phrase "He does not know enough to come in out of the wet." According to the entertaining grammarian referred to, a town in Greece under stress of evil circumstances borrowed money from a rich man, who took as security for the loan a mortgage on the handsome portico which surrounded the market place. He was not an un-generous creditor, for when it rained he caused the town criers to announce that the citizens had permission to take refuge under the colonnade.
 Strangers visiting the town who failed to have the matter properly explained to them were so impressed by the extraordinary circumstances that they spread abroad the report that the people were so stupid that they had to be told when to come in out of the wet.

Early Insurance.
 William Gibbons of London is said to have been the first man to have his life insured. On June 18, 1853, he signed a contract with eight men by the terms of which he was to have his life insured for £283 for one year for 8 per cent of this amount. In 1850 a resident of a Connecticut city was traveling in England and became interested in the workings of accident insurance for travelers. So he came home and promoted the first accident insurance company in this country.
 His first client was a resident of Hartford, whom he insured for $5,000 against injury in his stroll from the postoffice to his home. Marine insurance goes back to the early part of the fourteenth century and comes from Belgium.

Curious Death Custom in Fiji.
 The Fijians believe that in case a marriageable youth or maiden dies without having gone through with the elaborate nuptial knot tying ceremony of the islands his or her soul is doomed to wander about forever in an intermediate region between heaven and hell.

When any one dies—man, woman or child—a whale's tooth is placed in the hand of the corpse, the missile to be to hell.—London Mail.

Preparing For Patches.
 When making kitchen aprons leave the strings longer and wider than is ing such a phrase as "The house burnt up?" We always say houses burn down. Reporter—Yes, but this one caught fire in the cellar.

 apprehensions than ruined by too confident security.—Burke.

This advertisement is one of a series designed to effect closer co-operation between the company and its subscribers. There are three parties to a telephone call—the person calling, the person called, and the operator who connects them. The quality of service rendered is determined by the spirit in which all three work together, rather than by the individual effort of any one or two of these three persons. We shall gladly send complete sets of the series to those desiring them.

"Don't Answer" Reports

Nobody likes a "Don't Answer" report. To the subscriber it nullifies the value of the service, as far as that particular call is concerned; to the Company it means lost effort and loss of revenue.

Our operating methods provide that before giving a "Don't Answer" report, the operator is required

- (1) To ring the bell of the called station at least three times during a period of 60 seconds;
- (2) To verify the number a second time, if there is doubt regarding its correctness;
- (3) To change the trunk line and ring the station again, in the case of a call made to another central office.

"Don't Answer" reports are given by the operator when the above routine has been completed and

- (1) There is no one near enough to the called station to hear the bell when it is rung, or
- (2) There is an unusual delay in answering at the called station, or
- (3) Through an error by the subscriber in giving, or the operator in repeating, an incorrect number is given and a wrong station is called, and no one answers, or
- (4) There is mechanical trouble which has not yet come to the attention of the Maintenance Department.

A prompt answer at the called station will reduce the number of "Don't Answer" reports.

In a busy central office the operator handles many calls with precision and dispatch. If a call goes wrong she does her best to right it. Occasionally a tangle comes, however, which deserves the services of a specialist.

Behind the operator stands the supervisor. She is ready to give your call her personal attention, check it up from start to finish, and right it, whenever the probabilities, as you know them, warrant you in asking for this special service.

You can say something in this space—even if what you say is set up in small type—the readers of the Gazette will read because it will not take long to read it.

You can use this space one week at a cost of $15.00. For four weeks for $30.00. Or by contract as low as $4.50 per week.

No salesman that you can employ, no matter what price you pay him, can begin to call on as many people weekly—the right kind of people at that—as the Gazette will call on every week, delivering your message in pleasing form and enabling you to talk in a heart-to-heart way with assurance that it will be read.

Rumor Has It
That Lovell's Corner boys and girls are strong for a playground.

That the people are all for band concerts next summer.

That to have one of Weymouth's ladder trucks equipped with a tractor would be good judgment.

That Newton Newkirk is still in the market looking for one or two second-hand steam fire engines.

That Idlewell will boom as soon as land owners can be sure of town water, and that they feel that the expense to the town of construction work will be repaid many times by returns in taxes on improved lands and buildings.

That we as yet have not heard of a guard around our water supply. Safety first.

That Ward 3 citizens have not in this year's town warrant asked for a single drain, sidewalk or street improvement, which gives the Superintendent of Streets an opportunity to put into effect a slight hint for a sidewalk on the north side of Summit street. It is wanted.

That next year the citizens are going after an overhauling and side walking of Prospect street.

That Mr. O. B. is planning on being at the next town meeting with a yes vote right down the line and notakick.

That the town warrant should be published in all town papers each year in time to give the citizens a chance for study and preparedness.

That the licensing of pedlars and junk pickers and the regulation of clamming along our shores (salt water) are causing many red hot debates. Aw, let the clams live.

That it takes a person two hours to go from Washington square to North Weymouth and back by the street cars, with not a minute's stop over at North Weymouth. How about the two long stop-overs at Central Square? Time for a shave on the down stop and a hair cut on the return stop. (For men only.)

That in licensed towns intoxicating liquors cannot be sold on election days. Let's continue to vote no-license.

That when three men run for one office two are likely to get left, or which shell is the pea under?

That the Gazette is making a growing, gripping, galloping gain.

That some men are losing sleep figuring out how to make out their Federal and State income tax papers. You are not alone.

That last week's Gazette made a big hit.

That the Jonas Perkins School Association benefit and the Bert Nash benefits were successes. Good!

That two popular people are going to have a fine trip soon at the expense of the Gazette and Transcript. Who's who?

That North Weymouth wants a public hall, and is going to have a public hall. Where there's a will there's a way. Go to it.

That last Saturday morning when everybody was shivering, the smoking car commuters on the 7.13 to Boston had the pleasure (?) of riding in a car with a full pane of glass entirely missing from the front door; also as we passed and glanced up at the forward car on the train, lo and behold, a pane of glass was mostly missing in that car. The New Haven seems to have beat out the Bay State, who talk of running open cars in winter.

That some of our street lights look like one candle power. What are we supposed to have?

That the sand trust is going to declare another dividend after a few more warm-up, freeze-up spells.

That a shoe manufacturing concern would locate in Weymouth if a factory could be had.

That the Board of Trade had a first-class clam chowder supper Wednesday night. Was you there?

That Spring is due soon. Cheer up. R. E. PORTER.

$2000 FIRE AT SOUTH WEYMOUTH.

An alarm from box 63 at 12.10 a. m. Thursday was for a fire at the house situated on Columbian street, owned by John De Angellis, who is now living in South Braintree. It resulted in a total loss, estimated at over $2,000 and covered by insurance.

The fire was said to have started from the heating apparatus which was being used to dry out the plastering. The fire was first seen by Mrs. Frank Loplatto, who lives opposite. Alfred Loud, a neighbor, sent in a telephone call for Ward 5. Combination 5 made a quick run, but the fire had gained so much headway that they were unable to check it.

The firemen deserve great credit for the excellent work in preventing the nearby home of Alfred Loud from catching fire, as it was the target for a steady shower of sparks and burning embers.

Wonderful Writing.

In competition for a prize offered by a newspaper for the best example of microscopic writing a reader sent in a fairly readable and exhaustive account of the first voyage of Christopher Columbus and the discovery of America written on a hen's egg.

Another competitor's series of efforts included the Lord's Prayer written on a grain of wheat split lengthwise and the first chapter of Genesis inscribed within a circle no bigger than a shilling.

A French Canadian sent in Francois Coppee's novel of "Henriette," containing over 19,000 words, written on the back of a cabinet photograph.

On the inside of a silver watch case a girl of sixteen had engraved 2,107 words, using a tiny platinum needle dipped in a powerful acid.

A committee of six examined the various efforts through powerful microscopes, and eventually the prize was awarded to a man who sent in the first two sheets of a great newspaper written on a postcard.

Thankful Invalid.

"Well, Mrs. Davies," said the district visitor to the old woman who had been bedridden for years, "and how are you today?"

"Oh, I'm pretty well, thank you," was the cheerful answer.

"Ah, that's right!" responded the clergyman sympathetically. "I hardly expected to find you to be in such good spirits, considering your affliction. I was afraid I should find you down hearted."

"No, no, sir!" she cried, interrupting him. "No, no, indeed, sir! I've much to be thankful for, I have. Why, only the other night when that house just opposite was on fire I couldn't help thinking of all the poor people crushing each other in the street and many of them not getting a sight of the fire at all, while here was I, all nice and comfortable in bed, and I could see it beautifully through my window without even turning over. Yes, sir, I've a lot to be thankful for."—Exchange.

Novel Methods of Warfare.

In ancient history there are two well authenticated instances of wild animals being used by attacking armies. The first is related by Appian when describing the siege of Themiseyra, in Pontus, by Lucullus in his war against Mithridates. Turrets were brought up, mounds were built, and huge mines were made by the Romans. The people of Themiseyra dug open these mines from above and through these holes cast down upon the workmen bears and other wild animals, together with swarms of bees. The second instance occurred in England when the Danes and Norwegians were attacking Chester, held by the Saxons and some Gallic auxiliaries. After adopting stoning and boiling water defenses in vain against the besiegers the Saxons threw down all the beehives in the town upon the attackers, who were soon routed.—Exchange.

Crossing the Legs.

If we sit for some time with our legs crossed our foot "goes to sleep." We are really pressing on the sciatic nerve which supplies nearly all of the nerves of the leg and foot. The nerve is elastic and is flattened by pressure just like a rubber hose. The fibers which make up the nerve are sensory—that is to say, they carry sensations to the brain. Motor nerves carry sensations from the brain to the body. The only way to stop a nerve carrying sensations is by cutting it or by pressure, which pushes apart the soft nerve matter, which is covered with a sheath, just as the water is pushed apart if you press a hose. When the pressure is on the nerve messages cannot pass backward and forward. If the pressure is released the nerve matter returns to its place and does its work.

The Loyal Bookseller.

Certainly the most loyal bookseller on record was the John Stubbs who offended Queen Elizabeth by publishing a book protesting against the proposed marriage with the "imp of the crown of France." The unhappy man was condemned to suffer the loss of his right hand, which was accordingly chopped off with a butcher's knife in the market place at Westminster. "I remember," says Camden, "standing by Stubbs, who, as soon as his right hand was off, took off his hat with his left and cried aloud, 'God save the queen!' The next moment he fainted."—"The Romance of Bookselling."

Good Idea.

Bob White

By GEORGE MUNSON

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

Hardwicke was broke, that was the word passed around the stables. He had played the races for years, entering some of the best horses that were to be found along the mountain border of the state. His had been Egliston, who romped home ahead of the fastest horse known before that, Cleopatra, and he had cleared seventy thousand dollars that day. Yet he was broke.

Hardwicke had an uncanny genius in determining a horse. He did not breed horses. He picked them up. He had picked Egliston out of a farmer's trap when she was a filly. He had found Ida Brown yoked to a plow, the farmer mating a one-year-old filly with a mule to draw his implement across his light furrows. He had taken Coniston from a doctor's trap, paying the astounded medico two hundred dollars on the spot. Coniston had brought him nine hundred thousand in his time.

How did Hardwicke go burst? Not on the racetrack. Speculation, probably; at any rate, at fifty Hardwicke was a down-at-heels hanger-on of the race tracks, betting in fives and tens where he had once bet thousands without flinching.

Hardwicke loved the races, but he knew he would have sense enough to quit if he could raise twenty thousand. He would go south and start that horse farm he had always had in mind, and never see a race track again. But twenty thousand seemed an impossible sum. Hardwicke was living on the generosity of former friends.

The great state races were to come off in three months' time. Somebody spread the rumor that Hardwicke had haul him. Then he was in the lead and another and another horse overtook Bob White, until Hardwicke's entry was tagging along at the tail of the procession. When the first round was made Bob White was well in the rear; but Jones was holding him, there was no doubt of that.

"If it wasn't Hardwicke's reputation against my own, I should say that Bob White was just a broken-winded old crock," said the governor to his wife.

The second round found Bob White pulling up a little. But Cremona had maintained his lead and was galloping, as fresh as ever, at the head of the line. Slowly Bob White began to overtake the horses in front of him. The third and final round began and Bob White showed fine form. He was now third in the race, and perhaps half a dozen lengths behind Cremona.

Could he make it? If he could, he would have to make it soon, for Cremona was actually increasing his lead. Those nearest the horses at the turn said afterward that Bob White was panting like the crock he was. At any rate, Bob White began to lag behind. He fell to the rear again as the horses reached the final turn.

Now was the time when the last gallop burst would have to be made. It was at this last turn that reputations were gained and lost. Cremona suddenly shot out like an arrow. And the horses behind Bob White passed him a jumble of heaving flanks and tossing manes. Yells rent the air. The mob was going mad with excitement.

But what of Bob White? In place of the expected sensational burst of speed which was to gain him the reputation of a Coniston, he stopped dead, quivered and rolled over on his back.

"Dead!" shouted the governor.

No, Bob White, tired of the race, put his legs in the air like a kitten and, as Jones in vain, urged him to rise, he calmly began to take a dust bath. The creature had no more spirit in him than was to be expected of a driver's back.

And amid thunderous cheers from the few who had backed him and curses from those who had backed Bob White, Cremona shot past the judges' post, an easy winner.

Jones disappeared very quickly in the crowd that surged toward the grandstand. It was bent on mischief, and some among it would not have stopped at murder. Where was Hardwicke, who had played this sorry trick upon the people? Where was Hardwicke, in whose judgment fifty thousand people had trusted, to their undoing?

Hardwicke had slipped away very quietly, and was at that moment driving as fast as he could go to the railroad station. He would never see the town again. He had made all his arrangements and his trunk was in the waiting room.

He stopped on the way to collect from the bookmaker, who paid up with a wry grimace.

"Thirty-five thousand dollars is a bigish haul," he said to Hardwicke.

"I guess it is, but it isn't too big for me," answered Hardwicke, pocketing the money. "I'm going South now to breed horses of my own. I always knew that the man who backed Cremona would have no cause to regret it. I wish I'd owned him myself."

Putting Up a Pretty Fast Pace.

another find. The rumor took more concrete shape. Hardwicke had found a snow-white stallion, a five-year old, pulling a driver's cart through the streets of the village. And it was said that Bob White was going to carry everything before him at the races.

Now, Bob White was pretty well known. He was an underfed, overworked horse of no particular reputation, a little fast, perhaps, for a driver's cart, but not even of racing build. The shoulders were too straight. There was a distinct sag along the backbone. Bob White was not the horse that would have appealed to anyone as having the makings of a racer. And he was five years old, an age at which most racers have retired from active service.

Still, Hardwicke was a sort of legend and there were hundreds in the sport-loving town who would back Hardwicke's judgment in preference to their own. And then there was the mystery of the proceedings. Hardwicke's groom, Jones, would be seen exercising Bob White at dusk on the deserted meadows. Or, rather, he would be encountered leading Bob White back, sweating, though nobody had even seen Bob White put through his paces.

The interest became intense when it was known that the white horse had been entered for the races. Hardwicke was reported to have borrowed thousands to place on his entry. He spruced up and began to look like the natty racing man of yore. A week before the races the odds against Bob White were 19 to 1. The odds against the favorite, Cremona, were 4 to 1. The day before the races Bob White was easily the first favorite, and the betting was 12 to 1 against Cremona.

The day of the races dawned. The multitude that packed the grandstand went wild as Bob White appeared among the entries, ridden by Jones himself, wearing his master's old colors of blue and gold. Hardwicke himself was in the grandstand beside Colonel Simms, the owner of Cremona, and it was noted that his face was the brighter of the two by far.

It was three times round the track for the race. The horses started at the instant that the gate went up. The crowd went wild with excitement. Bob White dashed away, putting up a pretty fast pace.

But Cremona speedily began to over-

ALWAYS ROOM FOR LOVE

Experience of Horace, the Engineer, in Case That Proves the Contention.

Horace was a nice man whose good looks were noted among his associates. Horace, apart from his love of engineering and the drama, had fallen a victim to the charms of a siren. One evening she refused to marry him. He set his jaw and argued with her.

"Won't you think it over?" he pleaded.

She refused even to do that; said she did not want to marry him, did not love him, had not encouraged him, and so forth.

Horace was so bitterly disappointed at this refusal that life seemed no longer worth living, and, as he left her, he told her his death would be on her head. Whereat she laughed. He walked all the way to his flat and let himself in. In his room the soft electric lamp offered a welcome; on the table were the materials for highballs, cigarettes and some letters. Her photo stared him in the face. He seized it, and tearing it across, threw it into the scrap basket. He drank; then he smoked; then he opened the letters.

The first was a bill. He realized that his debts would have to be paid before he left the world; it wouldn't be nice to have his relatives sighing over his bills. Then there was a letter from his mother with all the home news and gossip of the home town.

"Horace," said Arnold, a year later, "were you ever in love?"

"I was once dying for love. I actually contemplated suicide."

"Aren't you glad you didn't?"

"I think I was mad at the time," Horace admitted.

As an engineer his work is highly thought of; but even a successful engineer can run up against love sometimes. Why not?—New York Letter in Cincinnati Enquirer.

Valuable Men.

My nephew, aged four and a half years, who has spent nearly all his life in the city, visited a farm last summer for the first time. On the day after his arrival, while exploring the barn, he frightened a hen from her nest in which were two eggs. Surprised at the warmth of the eggs, he ran with them to his mother, exclaiming: "Look, mamma, there's a hen out in the barn that lays eggs already cooked."—Cleveland Leader.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Prudence Starr, eldest of five motherless girls, comes to the Methodist parsonage at Mount Mark, as house-mother for her father, the Methodist minister.

CHAPTER II—The girls entertain a visiting minister at luncheon, to his discomfort. Carol, one of the twins, rides the family cow with disastrous results.

CHAPTER III—Prudence and Fairy receive the Ladies' Aid society while Lark, Carol and Connie practice modeling in mud on the dining room table.

CHAPTER IV—The twins prepare Constance for initiation into their private secret society with results unexpected to themselves.

"I may as well tell you, I suppose—you'll have to know it sooner or later. She—went out into Avery's orchard and stole some apples this afternoon. I was back in the alley seeing if Mrs. Moon could do the washing, and I saw her from the other side. She went from tree to tree, and when she got through the fence she ran. There's no mistake about it—she confessed." The twins looked up in agony, but Prudence's face reassured them. Constance had told no tales. "I have told her she must spend all of her time upstairs alone for a week, taking her meals there, too. She will go to school, of course, but that is all. I want her to see the awfulness of it. I told her I didn't think we wanted to eat with—" a thief—just yet! I said we must get used to the idea of it first. She is heartbroken, but—I must make her see it!"

"I Got What I Could and Ran."

That was the end of supper. No one attempted to eat another bite. After the older girls had gone into the sitting room, Carol and Lark went about their work with stricken faces. They asked if they might speak to Constance, but Prudence went in with them to say good night to her. The twins broke down and cried as they saw the pitiful little figure with the wan and tear-stained face. They threw their arms around her passionately and kissed her many times. But they went to bed without saying anything. It was a sorry night for the twins. The next morning they set off to school, with no chance for anything but a brief good morning with Connie—given in the presence of Prudence. Half-way down the parsonage walk, Carol said:

"Oh, wait a minute, Lark. I left my notebook on the table." And Lark walked slowly while Carol went rushing back. She found Prudence in the kitchen, and whispered:

"Here—here's a note, Prudence. Don't read it until after I've gone to school—at ten o'clock you may read it. Will you promise?"

Prudence laughed a little, but she promised, and laid the note carefully away to wait the appointed hour for its perusal. As the clock struck ten she went to the mantle and took it down. This is what Carol had written:

Oh, Prudence, do please forgive me, and don't punish Connie any more. You can punish me any way you like, and I'll be glad of it. It was all my fault. I made her go and get the apples for me, and I ate them. Connie didn't eat one of them. She said stolen apples would not taste very good. It was all my fault, and I'm so sorry.

As Prudence read this her face grew very stern. Carol's fault! At that moment Prudence heard someone running through the hall, and thrust the note hastily into her dress. It was Lark, and she flung herself wildly upon Prudence, sobbing bitterly.

"What is the matter, Lark?" she cried, really frightened. "Are you sick?"

"Heartsick, that's all," wailed Lark. "I told the teacher I was sick so I could come home, but I'm not. Oh, Prudence, I know you'll despise and abominate me all the rest of your life, and everybody will, and I deserve it. For I stole those apples myself."

Prudence was surprised and puzzled. She drew the note from her pocket and gave it to Lark. "Carol gave me that before she went to school," she explained. "Read it, and tell me what you are driving at. I think you are just trying to shield poor Connie."

Lark read Carol's note, and gasped, and—burst out laughing! The shame, the bitter weeping, and nervousness, had rendered her hysterical, and now she laughed and cried until Prudence was alarmed again.

In time, however, Lark was able to explain. "We both did it," she gasped, "the Skull and Crossbones. And we both told the truth about it."

Prudence laughed. But when she thought of loyal little Connie, sobbing all through the long night, the tears came to her eyes again. She went quickly to the telephone and called up the school building next door to the parsonage.

"May I speak to Constance Starr, Mr. Imes?" she asked. "It is very important. This is Prudence, her sister." And when Connie came to the telephone, she cried: "Oh, you blessed little child, why didn't you tell me? Will you forgive me, Connie? You're a dear, sweet, good little darling, that's what you are."

"Oh, Prudence!" That was all Connie said, but something in her voice made Prudence hang up the receiver quickly, and cry bitterly!

That noon Prudence pronounced judgment on the sinners, but her eyes twinkled, for Carol and Lark had scolded each other roundly for giving things away!

"Connie should have refused to obey you," she said gently, holding Connie in her arms. "But she has been punished more than enough. But you twins! In the first place, I right now abolish the Skull and Crossbones forever and ever. And you cannot play in the barn again for a month. And you must go over to the Averys this afternoon and tell them about it, and pay for the apples. And you must send all of your spending money for the next month to that woman who is gathering up things for the bad little children in the reform school—that will help you remember what happens to boys and girls who get in the habit of taking things on the spur of the moment!"

The twins accepted all of this graciously, except that which referred to confessing their sin to their neighbors. That did hurt! The twins were so superior, and admirable! They couldn't bear to ruin their reputations. But Prudence stood firm, in spite of their weeping and wailing. And that afternoon two shame-faced sorry girls crept meekly in at the Averys' door to make their peace.

"But about the Skull and Crossbones, it's mostly punishment for me, Prue," said Connie regretfully, "for the twins have been in it ever since we came to Mount Mark, and I never got in at all! And I wanted them to call me Lady Magdalena Featheringale." And Connie sighed.

Last week the Norfolk Clothing Company, which has been in business in Washington Square several months, sold out to the American Sales Co. of Boston. The later concern promptly got out large flyers and advertised extensively in the local papers a bankrupt sale to open Friday, February 16. The sale was brought to the attention Russell B. Worster, the sealer of weights and measures, and he was promptly act under Chapter 65 of the Revised Laws amended to June 1, 1916, which relates to licenses of itinerant vendors, hawkers and peddlers. He was assisted by the State Inspector. They summoned the American Sales Company representative to Boston and "read the law" to him. It seems a license of $50 or more is required by such vendors, and under the circumstances the company thought it best to vacate the Weymouth store. The goods were moved out yesterday.

SYNOPSIS.
CHAPTER I—Prudence Starr, eldest of five motherless girls, comes to the Methodist parsonage at Mount Mark, as house mother for her father, the Methodist minister.

CHAPTER II—The girls entertain a visiting minister at luncheon, to his discomfort. Carol, one of the twins, rides the family cow with disastrous results.

CHAPTER III—Prudence and Fairy receive the Ladies' Aid society while Lark, Carol and Connie practice modeling in mud on the dining room table.

CHAPTER IV—The twins prepare Constance for initiation into their private secret society with results unexpected to themselves.

Lessons in Etiquette.

Connie was lying flat on her back near the register. The twins were sitting on the floor near her, hearing each other conjugate Latin verbs. And Prudence, with her darning basket, was earnestly trying to get three pairs of wearable stockings out of eleven hosiery remnants. So Fairy found them as she came in, radiant and glowing. "Glorious day," she said, glancing impartially at her sisters. "Just glorious! Connie, you should be out of doors this minute, by all means. Twins, aren't you grown up enough to sit on chairs, or won't your footies reach the floor?—Babbie, Eugene Babler, you know—is coming to spend the evening, Prudence."

The whole family came to attention at this. "Oh, goody!" cried Connie. "Let's make taffy." "Yes," agreed Carol with enthusiasm—Carol was always enthusiastic on the subject of something to eat. "Yes, and what else shall we have?" "You will likely have pleasant dreams, Carol," was the cool retort. "You twins and Connie will not put in appearance at all. Prue will serve the refreshments, and will eat with us. Babbie and I shall spend the evening in the front room." "The front room?" echoed Prudence. "This room is much cheerier, and more homelike."

"Well, Babbie isn't a member of the family, you know," said Fairy. "You are doing your best," sniffed Carol.

"Now you girls must understand right off that things are different here from what they were at Exminster. The proper thing is to receive callers privately, without the family en masse sitting by and superintending. That's etiquette, you know. And one must always serve refreshments. More etiquette. Men are such greedy animals, they do not care to go places where the eats aren't forthcoming."

"Men! Are you referring to this Babbling creature now?" interposed Carol.

"Ouch!" said Lark. "But won't it be rather—poky—just sitting in the front room by yourselves all evening?" asked Prudence doubtfully, ignoring the offended twins. "Oh, I dare say it will. But it's the proper thing to do," said Fairy complacently.

"Wouldn't it be more fun to have the girls in for a little while?" persisted Prudence.

"Oh, it might—but it wouldn't be the proper thing at all. College men do not care to be entertained by babies." "No," snapped Lark, "the wisdom of babies is too deep for these—these—these men in embryo."

This was so exquisitely said that Lark was quite restored to amiability by it. "In embryo" had been added to her vocabulary that very day in the biology class. And Carol said "Ouch!" with such whole-souled admiration that Lark's spirit soared among the clouds. She had scored!

"And what shall we serve them?" urged Prudence. "I suppose it would hardly do to—pop corn, would it?"

"No, indeed. This is the first time, and we must do something extra. Babbie is all the rage at school, and the girls are frantic with jealousy because I have cut everybody else out."

"Do you like him, Fairy? Don't you think he's tiresome? He talks so much, it seems to me."

"To be sure I like him. He's great fun. He's always joking and never has a sensible thought, and hates study. The only reason he came here instead of going to a big college in the East is because his father's a trustee."

"Well, we'll serve oyster stew then. Now, will you twins run downtown for the oysters?" asked Prudence briskly.

"Who? Us?" demanded Lark, indignantly and ungrammatically. "Do you think we can carry home oysters for this Babbling young prince? Not so! Let Fairy go after the oysters!"

"Oh, yes, twinies, I think you'll go, all right. Run along, and be quick." For a few seconds the twins gazed at each other studiously. Neither spoke. Without a word, they went upstairs to prepare for their errand. They whispered softly going through the upper hall.

"Twins! You must hurry!" This was Prudence at the bottom of the stairs. And the twins set off quite hurriedly. Their first call was at the

"A Nickel's Worth of Pepper."

"Just sprinkle this over the carpet. It won't do any harm, and it smells like thunder. It costs a quarter."

Carol frowned. "I suppose we'll have to take it," she said, "but it's pretty expensive. I hate to have druggists get such a lot of money."

He laughed aloud. "I hate to have you get a good licking tomorrow, too—but you'll get it just the same, or I miss my guess."

When the twins arrived home Fairy was just cutting the candy she had made. "It's delicious," she said to Prudence. "Here's a nice dishful for you and the girls. Pitch in twins, and help yourselves. It's very nice."

The twins waved her haughtily away. "No, thank you," they said. "We couldn't eat that candy with relish. We are unworthy."

Then they went upstairs, but not to their own room at once. Instead they slipped noiselessly into the front bedroom, and a little later Carol came out into the hall and stood-listening at the head of the stairs, as though on guard.

"Be sure and leave quite a few stitches in, Lark," she whispered once. "We want it to hang together until Babbie gets here."

That was all. Presently Lark emerged, and their own door closed behind them.

"It's a good thing father has to go to the trustees' meeting tonight, isn't it?" asked Carol. And Lark agreed, absently. She was thinking of the oysters.

As soon as they finished supper Lark said, "Don't you think we'd better go right to bed, Prue? We don't want to taint the atmosphere of the parsonage. Of course Fairy will want to wash the dishes herself to make sure they are clean and shining."

"Oh, no," disclaimed Fairy, good-naturedly. "I can give an extra rub to the ones we want to use—that is enough. I do appreciate the thought, though, thanks very much."

So the twins plunged in, carefully keeping Connie beside them. Connie had a dismal propensity for discoveries—the twins had often suffered from it.

Then they all three went to bed. To be sure it was ridiculously early, but they were all determined.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Those who desire to become correctly informed on a subject which is attracting the attention of thoughtful people everywhere today, would do well to attend the lecture on Christian Science to be delivered on Sunday afternoon next in Music hall, Quincy, as advertised in this issue. Being a member of the official Board of Lectureship of the Christian Science denomination, the speaker is in a position to treat his theme with a degree of authority.

SHOE GIRLS' DANCE.

The Stetson Shoe Company girls, aided by the Stetson Shoe Band, held their first entertainment and dance in Fogg's Opera House at South Weymouth, Thursday evening, Feb. 15. The band, composed of 25 pieces and conducted by George White, rendered a number of classical and popular selections, which met with favor. Then there were vocal solos by Miss Marion Bowker, recitations by John Sullivan, quartet numbers, and popular songs led by Miss Teresa Hanson and Mrs. Flora Blenis, and specialties by Hall and Willett.

Following the entertainment the floor was cleared and dancing enjoyed until 1 a. m. Music for the dancing was furnished by the Stetson Shoe orchestra.

Robert Martin acted as floor director with Alice Bliffe, Ethel Church, Elizabeth Willett and Theresa Hanson as aids. Calvin Veazie was the head usher with a corps of twelve assistants. The committee in charge of this most successful affair were Peter Ventie, Florence Devine and Charles Heald.

Will Selectmen Approve Bill?

Excess of bill over Gazette bid	$77.20
Amount of bill expected by Town in excess of expectation	$1,260.00
	$196.00

The publisher of the Gazette and Transcript has been asked repeatedly during the last few weeks, "How did you happen to lose the Town Report contract?"

Answer—Because he put in an HONEST bid, expecting to do the job for $1,378.80.

Four proposals for printing the Town Reports of 1916 were received at these prices per page:

Ivers Johnson	$4.19
F. N. Pratt	3.84
Gazette and Transcript	3.83
Crawford Press	3.50

The contract was awarded to the Crawford Press, it being the first time for many years that the Gazette and Transcript Publishing Co. did not get the contract.

This week the Town Reports were issued, and if the Crawford Press submits a bill for 416 pages at $3.50 per page, the total will be $1,456.00, which is $77.20 in excess of the bid of the Gazette and Transcript Publishing Co.

The advertisement for proposals contained this clause: "The report of the year 1915 is to be taken as a standard in regard to quality of paper, form, type, etc."

Under the above restriction the Gazette was bound to keep the book within 350 to 370 pages, as has been done in past years, when the work was always satisfactory.

But the Town Report of 1916 makes a book of 416 or more pages. Hence the increase in the bill.

The length of some of the reports is compared below for the two years, showing the number of pages:

Committee In Daily Conference

Almost daily since the broadside in the Gazette and Transcript of February 2 and 9, members of the East Weymouth committee of merchants, have been in conference with the heirs of Jacob Dizer or with the firm of Alden Walker & Wilde.

At times with some degrees of success; at others disheartened over the prospects of keeping this large shoe manufacturing firm in Weymouth. Many propositions have been made, but as yet none have been wholly acceptable to both sides.

The Gazette hopes to have good news to report next week along this line.

Grand I. O. O. F. Exemplification

Over 400 Odd Fellows representing five jurisdictions and over 60 lodges in Massachusetts, witnessed one of the finest exemplifications of the four degrees of the order ever seen in the State on Washington's Birthday right here in Weymouth.

Besides the local lodges these lodges were represented: Old Colony, Pilgrim, Winthrop, Colfax, Massachusetts, Electric, Brockton, Campello, Blue Hill, Cohasset, Dorchester, Mattakeset, North River, Adams, Middleboro, Vesta, Mayflower, Mt. There were also visitors from Watertown, N. Y., Plymouth and Franklin N. H.; Denver, Colorado; Tacoma, Washington; and from Pennsylvania.

The work began early in the afternoon, the initiatory being put on by a picked staff from Crescent lodge of East Weymouth, with Alfred W. Gardner as degree master and Irving H. Tirrell as noble grand.

The first degree by the regular degree staff of the same lodge, George D. Bagley degree master and Charles M. Taylor noble grand.

The second degree in the evening by the degree staff of Willey lodge of South Weymouth, with Benjamin Ellis as degree master and Winfred Baker as noble grand.

The third degree by the degree staff of Old Colony lodge of Hingham with Charles E. Brooks as noble grand.

All the work was highly praised by the Grand Officers in their addresses, and merited all the kind words said.

A pleasing incident of the evening was the presentation by Crescent lodge to Deputy Johnston of a travelling bag.

Between the afternoon and evening sessions a good supper was served in the banquet hall by members of Steadfast Rebekah lodge, Mrs. Maud Pratt chairman, who was assisted by 15 sisters.

An orchestra and quartette assisted in the work and the closing selection by the quartette was: "A perfect day."

Double Anniversary.

Members of Delphi Lodge Knights of Pythias, observed a double anniversary on the holiday, the 53rd birthday of the order and the 40th of the Insurance department. At 3.30 there was an entertainment by "The Sunbeams" in readings, songs to banjo and piano accompaniment and a two girl white face minstrel show.

BETTER SERVICE.

Many Weymouth people, especially those at North Weymouth, attended on Tuesday the hearing at the State House on House bill 1231 for the widening of Washington street from Quincy Point to Quincy, as it would allow double tracking by the street railway and greatly improve the service between Weymouth and Boston.

Among those present were Henry A. Day, president of the North Weymouth Improvement Association; George Newton, of the Board of Selectmen; W. L. Bates, secretary of the Board of Trade; Edward Kavanagh and others.

Perhaps the strongest argument was made by the attorney of the Massachusetts Automobile League, who considered that this street needed widening more than any street in the state.

Section one of the bill reads: Section 1. The Massachusetts highway commission is hereby authorized to expend during the present year the sum of thousand dollars in the construction or improvement of a highway known as Washington street in the city of Quincy, beginning at the intersection of said highway with Temple street, so-called, in said Quincy and extending from said point to the intersection of said highway with Chubbuck street in said city and at a point where the state highway runs from this location. And the said commission is authorized and directed in such construction and improvement to widen the said highway so that it shall be in width at least seventy-five feet from the intersection of said highway with Temple street to the intersection of said highway with Canal street and sixty-six feet from the intersection of said highway with Canal street to the aforesaid Chubbuck street, and take all necessary action to carry the same into effect. Neither said way nor any part thereof shall thereby become a state highway, and the way shall be maintained and kept in repair by the city of Quincy. This act shall not be construed as prohibiting the laying out and construction of said way, or any part thereof, as a state highway under the laws applicable thereto whenever the Massachusetts highway commission shall deem it expedient so to do. Any unexpended balance of the sum to be expended may be used in the succeeding year for the same purpose.

Section 2 provides for the payments by the State.

present who had been very successful in this work, and told of their experience. These pupils were not more than 13 years old, but each gave quite a description of their work before a large audience. Later there was a number of beautiful pictures shown upon a screen, taken by a camera which photographs colors, so one could see the beautiful flowers as they actually appear in the gardens. Among them were different views of the Hunnewell place at Wellesley. Some were from Dedham, one or two from Quincy. It was a wonderful sight.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.
Weymouth High easily swamped the Wellesley High five in the Clapp Gym Friday evening, score 60 to 14.
Weymouth High met defeat by Boston College High at their gym Tuesday afternoon, score 20 to 16.
A very enjoyable musical program was given in the school hall Wednesday, Feb. 14, which consisted of vocal solos and duets by various members of the school.
The latest improvement is the equipping of the lunch room in the basement with up-to-date wide armed chairs, which are greatly appreciated by the students.
E. E. Leonard was a guest at the school last week.
Mr. Foley, track coach, sent in 16 entries for Huntington School track meet held at the Boston Y. M. C. A., Saturday.

The kitchen cat was officially christened Saturday morning by a number of the seniors. Ah! boys, it is sad, but "pussy" now answers to the name of "Wally."
Examinations are again the order of the day. They were given Thursday and Friday last week owing to the holiday this week.
One of the prettiest and most successful social events in the history of the school was the annual dancing party.
The Minstrel Show which is to be given under the direction of James W. Calderwood, by the Boy's Glee Club will be held in the school hall on the evening of March 23.
The students were well pleased at the news of no school Thursday or Friday, owing to Washington's Birthday. This short vacation will give them a chance to partly recover from the effect of the "exams" which have been "raging" the past week.
Weymouth vs. Wellesley at Wellesley Saturday, Feb. 24.
The relay team defeated the Water-town High relay team at the Huntington school meet Saturday evening. As Weymouth has been beaten by the same school the past three years the boys feel well pleased over their hard-earned victory.
The agricultural department is now equipped with apparatus necessary for the testing of soils for acids by "Truog's test."

It is of great advantage to know whether the soil is sour or not, and by this method the amount of acid contained therein is easily determined. The department will gladly test soils for people of the town free of charge.
A Babcock milk tester has also been installed and the department will gladly test samples of milk, cream or skim milk for butter fat. Before taking a sample, the milk should be thoroughly stirred, in order that the cream which rises to the top may be thoroughly mixed with the milk.

FORE RIVER BOXING.
Thirty-two bouts were staged at the first amateur tourney of the Fore River Club at Quincy Monday evening. The results in the finals were:
One hundred and fifteen-pound class—Harry Loring, Medford, defeated William Hughes, Charlestown.
One hundred and twenty-five-pound class—M. Gordan, Roxbury, defeated J. J. Durdine, Lynn.
One hundred and thirty-five-pound class—Sam Willis, Somerville, defeated E. Goodrich, Lynn.

They played pool, basket ball, bowling, and they put on a play in the hall. After which all enjoyed dancing until 12 o'clock. It was a good time and long to be remembered.
The other factories have been invited to use the association some evening for a good time and they deciding on some date that will be convenient for all.
After the ladies left the gymnasium Wednesday afternoon they spent an hour bowling. Were you there? If not, why not?

TERRIBLE SCANDAL.
It appears that Arthur Humming Top has been behaving in an altogether reprehensible manner of late—during the absence of his wife, who is away on a visit—and Mrs. Gillibrand, his mother-in-law, is most angry and perturbed in consequence of his questionable behavior and has determined to call on her neighbors to settle the matter, and has placed the Boy Scouts of America, grouped in Weymouth and the whole matter will be thrashed out pro and con, at Bates Opera House, Wednesday night, Feb. 28, before the entire population of Weymouth, or as many of them as can crowd into the theatre.
It will be some hilarious night for Arthur in bad, and Mrs. Gillibrand will have no mercy upon the cringing wretch. The rehearsals for this very funny comedy are progressing splendidly and with a week more to perfect the details "Mother-in-Law" will be a scream. Mrs. A. D. Tirrell has the title role, and it fits her to a "T." Miss Marion Sherrick is the much worried wife. Miss Mary L. Allen appears as the "real" niece, and is most admirably suited in this dainty part. Miss Bertha S. Johnson essays the demure "Barbara," while Miss Margaret M. Ramsay portrays the character of the breezy "Rosa," the cause of the whole trouble, in a bright sparkling style that will win her many admirers. Walter C. Richards is the stolid English butler "Dobson" to the life. Leslie Sweet has the difficult part of "Ralph," but his previous experience stands him in good stead, for his interpretation will be fine. Howard M. Clark has a corkingly funny character in "Joshua," and he and his eye-glass will win many laughs through the evening. Mr. Hoskyn, the director, appears as the much married "Humming Top."

There will be some charming musical numbers during the performance, one of them a quaint Japanese ballad, "Sweet Sana-oo," in which some thirty girls will appear garbed in Japanese costumes. The stage settings and lighting effects will be exceptionally interesting—the orchestra an excellent one—and so one can surely expect a most enjoyable evening at the hands of the Boy Scouts, whose organization is well worthy of the support and financial aid of any patriotic citizen.

ALLURING "MISS SPRINGTIME" to see it is distinctly well worth while.
The tremendous success of "Miss Springtime" at the Tremont Theatre, is new evidence that "Class will tell" in musical comedy as in everything else. Musical shows come and go in Boston, but this joyous and graceful blend of rare and distinctive charms is nearing its third month without abatement of enthusiastic popular approval. "Miss Springtime" is joyous entertainment, with melodies that haunt the memory and a story of charming sentiment, with a constant cross-fire of incisive wit and wholesome humor. Frank McIntyre, Ethel Pettit, Harrison Brockbank, Frank Doane and Zoe Barnett have registered uncommon personal hits. The production is sumptuous and beautiful. Its high standard is carefully maintained, and the fascinating musical play is sung and acted with unflagging spirit and vivacity. "Miss Springtime" will not be presented elsewhere in New England, and a special trip to Boston PARK THEATRE, BOSTON.
It is not so many years ago that the moving picture was a flickering indistinct screen tiresome alike to the eyes and head, but science has made rapid strides in the perfection of the film and the latest world picture Brady-Made shown the coming week at the Park Theatre is convincing and pleasing in every detail. This great 5 act drama is entitled "The Web of Desire" and charming Ethel Clayton in the leading role of Grace Miller, the unhappy wife, is supported by Rock-liffe Fellows. Another strong film shown the coming week is the Metro 5 acts wonder-play "The Promise," starring Harold Lockwood and May Allison.

Useful Mary

It was an alluring advertisement, in the first place. The Josslyns could hardly be blamed for going down to look at the house. It is true Mrs. Josslyn said something about the remoteness of the suburb, a circumstance to which she afterwards alluded.

"At all events it will do no harm to see it," said Josslyn.

Mrs. Josslyn agreed to this.

So they called upon the urbane and eloquent Barker. Barker was the agent for the property and resided in Cedarhurst. He took them around to the "ideal home" and showed them its points. It had points, that was undeniable. It had a few drawbacks, also, but Barker made light of them.

"I like the house," said Mrs. Josslyn, "but it's too large for me to manage alone, and I know we could never get satisfactory help out here."

"My dear madam," said Barker, "you never made a greater mistake in your life. I know myself of a girl whom I think—in fact, I am sure—you can get. I can recommend her personally, because at one time she worked for Mrs. Barker. A good cook, steady, no young fellows tralling about, strong as a horse, neat as a pin and not a lazy hair in her head. If she's out of a place now I'll send her to you and if she isn't I'll send you another equally as good."

Mrs. Josslyn wavered visibly and Josslyn asked a few questions that looked like business. It ended by their saying they would think the matter over and let Barker know within a few days.

The next evening a young woman, who said she came from Mr. Barker, appeared at the Josslyn flat. She had heard from Mr. Barker that Mrs. Josslyn intended moving to Cedarhurst, and Mr. Barker thought she might get a place with her. She had just left the place she had with Mrs. Duckworth. Mrs. Duckworth was a nice lady, but the children were an objection. She could refer Mrs. Josslyn to Mrs. Duckworth, however, with entire confidence.

She certainly looked as if she could. If ever capability was written on a girl's face, it was written on Mary's face. Mary was her name. She was frankly anxious to get the situation.

"I'll come home early tomorrow and we'll go close the deal," said Josslyn, decidedly. "Think of that girl working for four dollars a week when we're paying six dollars to this thing we've got."

Two weeks later the Josslyns were established in their new home with Mary. And Mary was indeed "a peach," if one is to accept that fruit as a synonym for excellence. She was a domestic treasure. She cooked to perfection and the house fairly shone under her soapy ministrations. Six weeks of this bliss—and then Mary quit.

Then began the succession of slovenly, incompetent and expensive girls which has continued in the Josslyn family to this day. Mrs. Josslyn says that unless you are millionaires you simply cannot get a good girl to stay in Cedarhurst. But Mary is still working in Cedarhurst.

Mrs. Josslyn called upon the people who had just moved in half a block west of her about a week after her bereavement, and found Mary there. The new neighbor said Mary was a treasure. She really did not know what she would do without her. Mr. Barker, who had rented their house to them, had been kind enough to recommend the girl.

Mrs. Josslyn told her husband about it when he returned home and Josslyn happened to meet Duckworth the same day. He said: "We never asked you about Mary, who worked for you. What sort of a reference did you get with her and how long did she work for you?"

"We had the best of a reference from Barker," grinned Duckworth. "We had the luck to keep her two months, but the renting season was dull just then. She's a daisy, ain't she? But I guess Barker's about the only one who can get her to work steadily. He pays her well, though."

Josslyn is not a revengeful man, but if ever Barker is delivered into his hands—"Well," he says, "you'll see."

Turkish Back Wiper

Take a small bath towel such as can be purchased in a five-and-ten-cent store; fold lengthwise through the middle and crochet the folded ends together or not as one prefers. Make four strands of chain-stitch from each end and join to a white ivory ring. When taken by the rings, over one shoulder and under the other arm its value as a back-wiper is quickly appreciated.

FEATURED FACTS

Divorce pulls the feathers from the wings of love.

Gold is generally at a premium when a dentist handles it.

If wishes were automobiles, beggars might kick for airships.

Even the summer girl doesn't trifle with a millionaire's heart.

Some men brag about their wives as if they wanted to sell them.

No, Cordelia, it isn't the proper thing to eat prunes with a pruning knife.

Many a man who wouldn't make a wife of his cook makes a cook of his wife.

Even an amateur organist can play a wedding march that is entirely satisfactory to the female in the case.

Remorse is a good deal like a wooden leg—it helps a man on his way, but he can see where he'd be happier without it.

POINTS FOR POULTRY RAISER

A little salt in the mash food during the winter is an advantage, though not enough should be used to make it taste salty.

All of the kitchen and table waste is good for the fowls, unless it contains a lot of salt, and it may be fed mixed in the mash or merely as scraps, in a trough at mid-day.

A good way to find out what the requirements of well-bred fowls are, is to visit a poultry show and study the exhibits, talk with the exhibitors and question the Judge.

Although damaged grain, sweepings, screenings, etc., can be bought for comparatively low prices sometimes, they are not an economical food because they contain so little available food that will nourish the hen and make eggs.

It is the abuse and not the use of corn that condemns it as a poultry food.

The keeping and care of a flock of pure-bred birds is a pleasure, where the keeping and care of a flock of mixed birds is a task.

Do not feed more food of any kind in troughs or in the scratching litter than the fowls will eat up in a reasonable time, because any that remains is likely to spoil and be a detriment to the fowls as well as a waste to the owner.

Average Man's Honesty

A banker who, for the first time in his life, has come into intimate contact with poverty-stricken folk, says: "The average man wants only half a chance to be honest."

This is a thing worth learning, remarks the Toledo Blade. But it did not require visits to the slums to find it out. A little thought would have served as well. The mass of people is constituted of average men. The mass has the power to do whatever it wills to do. It could, if it wished, rise in the night and strip the rich bare, and since it is the mass that represents the majority will, it could, so far as the law is concerned, go unpunished.

But the average man is honest. The mass wants nothing of bloodshed and robbery. Those who possess are safe from those who have nothing. Our banker friend who visited poverty row used his eyes. His remark shows that, for most of his years, he hadn't on this particular subject, used his brains.

Apple Dumplings

Pare and chop one apple for each dumpling. Prepare a crust, consisting of one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one large teaspoonful of baking powder, one heaping tablespoonful of butter, and moisten with enough milk to roll out. Cut in squares for each dumpling and fill with the apples. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon, wet the edges, pinch together, place in a baking pan, fill with boiling water seasoned with one cupful of sugar and a half cupful of butter. This makes the sauce. Bake until the apples are done.

Hot Corn Salad

Take a can of corn and stew it in a little milk, adding butter, pepper, salt and a dessert spoonful of sugar by way of seasoning. Add a half cupful of flaked boiled codfish and two chopped Spanish peppers. When hot, drain the salad on thin slices of brown bread, lightly spread with anchovy paste. The salad must be served as quickly as possible so as to retain its heat.

Generous Enjoyment

"Did your husband smoke the cigars you gave him?"
"No. But he enjoyed them just the same when he saw how happy the lovely premium that came with them made me."

MINERALS IN FOOD

ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY FOR PRESERVATION OF HEALTH.

Physical Ailments Sure to Result When They Are Lacking—Serve Fruit, Vegetables, Milk and Eggs Liberally.

Prepared by Laura Breeze of the Department of Farmers' Institutes of the University of Wisconsin.
Some of the physical ailments resulting from mineral starvation are rickets, scurvy, pellagra and anemia. An anemic person has weakened vitality and resisting power, and is, therefore, a prey to colds, grippe and fevers.
The foods rich in minerals are vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals made from whole grains, eggs, milk and the natural rice. In the milling of the white flours, cornmeal, some oatmeal and most cereals, the parts of the grains containing the greatest amount of mineral substance are eliminated, consequently their value as sources of mineral foods is reduced.

The housewife, however, can always supply her table with fruit, vegetables, milk and eggs. There are such numerous ways of serving these foods that their appearance on the table should never become monotonous.

The following recipe offers suggestions for an attractive way of serving cabbage, the mineral content of which is very high:

Imperial Cabbage.—One medium-sized head of cabbage; two carrots, pared; two potatoes, pared; one cupful of cooked meat or chicken (or more, if desired); two teaspoonfuls of salt, one small onion, one-fourth cupful butter, melted; a little pepper.

Remove decayed leaves of the cabbage; form a basket of the head by removing the center and allowing two layers of the outside leaves to remain attached to the core. Crisp the cabbage by allowing it to stand in cold water. Drain well.

Put the cabbage removed from the center, the carrots, potatoes, onion and meat through the food grinder, add butter and seasoning. Mix all well, and fill the cabbage with the mixture. Tie the leaves in place over the stuffing with a clean string, and place the cabbage in a tightly covered baking dish and bake about one hour. There will be no need of adding water, as there is sufficient moisture in the vegetables to steam them.

Apple and Rice Pudding.
Peel small, tart apples, core and put them in a baking dish. Have ready one cupful of boiled rice, mix with it two cupfuls of hot milk, into which has been beaten the yolks of three eggs and one-half cupful of sugar. Stir in one-half cupful raisins, some strips of citron and, if you wish to, one-half cupful blanched almonds. Put one teaspoonful of sugar into each apple and pour this mixture over them. Put in oven, covered, and bake until the apples are tender. This pudding may be frosted with the whites of eggs or served with whipped cream.

Apple Dowdy.
Cut up apples in pudding dish in quarters (in eighths of apples are hard) sprinkle about four tablespoonfuls of sugar over the apples, a few drops of lemon extract and some bits of butter. Add about a tablespoonful of water. Make nice piecrust and cover. Bake about one hour. Eat hot with whipped cream flavored with vanilla or nutmeg. Fill dish quite full of apples, as they shrink in cooking. Car bake this Saturday and warm over in oven on Sunday.

Hint on Broiling Fish.
Has anyone ever tried broiling fish on paper? Some call it pan-broiled. Everybody knows how fish sticks to broiler pan or any other receptacle it is cooked in, no matter how well greased. Cut thick brown paper, two inches larger than pan, so it will set well upon the sides and ends; butter and lay fish on; place pan in broiler pan and set quite close to gas. It will cook and brown deliciously and, best of all, leave your pan clean.—Baltimore American.

Bread and Prune Pudding.
Soak a pound of prunes in warm water all day. Butter a baking dish and put in a layer of stale bread cut in thin slices and buttered a little, then a layer of stoned prunes, and so on until the dish is full, the last layer being bread. Beat two eggs with one-quarter cupful of sugar, add a pint of milk, pour over the prunes and bread and bake one hour.

Turnip Scallops.
Mince beef, mutton, duck or game very fine; add chopped onions and season to taste and a little gravy. Fill scallop shells or small cups three-quarters full and fill up with mashed turnip that has been nicely seasoned. Spread tops with soft butter and bake until nicely browned.

Swiss Salad.
Mix one cupful of cold cooked chicken cut in cubes, one cupful of chopped English walnut meats, one cupful of French peas, one cucumber pared and cut in cubes. Marinate with French dressing, arrange on serving dish and garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

Good Fudge.
A few drops of molasses in your fudge will prevent it from getting sugary and improves the flavor. To get the best results every ingredient should be accurately measured.

IMPORTANCE OF HEALTHY KIDNEYS

WEYMOUTH PEOPLE SHOULD LEARN TO KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

The kidneys have a big work to do. All the blood in the body is coursing through the kidneys constantly to be freed of poisonous matter. It is a heavy enough task when the kidneys are well, but a cold, chill, fever or some thoughtless exposure is likely to irritate, inflame and congest the kidneys and interrupt the purifying work.

Then the aching frequently begins, and is often accompanied by some irregularity of the urine—too frequent passages, sediment or retention. Thousands testify to the wonderful merit of Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy for the kidneys only, that has been used in kidney troubles 50 years. You will make no mistake in following this advice. It comes from a resident of East Weymouth.

B. O. Raymond, 16 Cottage street, East Weymouth, says: I think kidney complaint and lame back in my case came on from working hard. Mornings when I got up, I had a tired ache across the small of my back. If I tried to stoop over to put on my shoes or got up after sitting, a catch took me in my back. During one spell I was unable to do much work or even get around. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and led me to get up two or three times at night. The passages were accompanied by a burning sensation and the secretions contained a brick-dust like sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills soon rid me of backache, and the kidney action became more regular in passage.

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Raymond had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props. Buffalo, N. Y.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES

A. W. Hastings Wins at South Weymouth

But few changes in town officials is probable at the annual town meeting. Ralph P. Burrell of South Weymouth voluntarily retires from the Board of Selectmen, and the contest at South Weymouth for his place resulted in almost a walk-over for Alfred W. Hastings. There will also be one or more independent candidates for Selectman, but the time limit expires today.

Although several of the caucuses endorsed Arthur H. Alden for nomination for School Committee, it was said he did not care for a reelection. Therefore Ward 1 had little difficulty in securing the regular nomination for E. R. Sampson, a former principal of the High school.

TOWN CAUCUS.

The 50 delegates elected at the Republican ward caucuses assembled at the Republican Town caucus in old G. A. R. hall Monday evening. Called to order by Russell B. Worster. The veteran war horse, Martin E. Hawes was elected chairman, and ably filled the position. L. W. Bates was clerk. Reports were received from the various ward caucuses as reported above.

First Church Notes (Old North)

"Go to Church Sunday" will be observed at the Old North with an appropriate service. The spirit of going to church is in the air. The real reason for "an all alive church in this community" will be in the preacher's thought at the morning hour. Come and be lifted out of the newspaper world of sin and strife to the mind of scripture in Jesus Christ.

An invitation is extended to the Y. P. S. C. E. by the pastor to attend the morning service in a body on "Go To Church" Sunday, Feb. 25.

A meeting will be held in the church at 7.30 p. m. "Rallying to the Colors." "The Unmistakable Call for Men." Take any seat in the room. You are invited.

The Thursday evening meetings are popular. They are the people's meetings. Adults and young together make them go! A different leader each meeting. Subject next Thursday, March 1: "Jesus and Five Thousand;" John: 6, 1-21. Have you been? Come in; the meeting is for you.

Grand Fair This Year.

The shareholders of the Weymouth Agricultural & Industrial Society held their first quarterly meeting in Clapp's hall, South Weymouth, last Friday evening with a large number of members present. All the executive officers were in attendance.

The meeting was called to order by President Linnehan, who explained to the shareholders present the financial condition of this society and from the explanation made by President Linnehan, the society is in a very creditable condition. He called attention to many matters that should be attended to preserve the several buildings at the fair grounds. It was voted unanimously to give the board of directors the authority to make all needed repairs and improvements upon the grounds and buildings. This, we understand, includes the reloaning of the track, the repairing of fences, the resilling of the grandstand, and the building of 25 or 30 more horse-stalls.

This year the fair will be held on Aug. 3, Sept. 1 and 3. Over $3,000 will be paid out for purses for the horses to race for, $1,500 of this being for guaranteed stakes, $250 for dressin's muster, and several hundred dollars for cattle and breeding stock.

Special features will be the sports for children under the management of a committee of which A. M. Newbert is chairman; entertainments for the smaller children by a committee of which Mrs. J. W. Linnehan is chairman, and under these two committees it is safe to say that the children of Weymouth are in line for one grand time during Weymouth Fair week; the department on art, useful and fancy articles, which will be in charge of a committee of which Mrs. Robert Hoffman is chairman. Other important departments are to be in charge of good working committees.

It is expected that one of these committees, the one for the horse show and breeding, will have their work cut out for them, as there are six yearling colts bred by different stallions in Weymouth at the present time, besides several high-bred brood-mares.
