366 DAYS IN PRISON

A Series of Articles on Experiences in Andersonville Prison by I. Preston, Who Was a Prisoner of War for Over a Year

Chapter III

The stockade was built very strong with hewn logs 12 inches square set upright in the ground 6 feet deep with a walk on the outside within 3 feet of the top for the guards to walk on from one post to the other. It had shades every hundred feet which gave their men some protection from the rain and ho sun, and, as they were just over us, the could see all that was going on inside therefore all tunnel work had to be done nights. In the summer of 1864 there was a great rain and it flooded everything, undermining the South wall and toppling it over outward which created a great excitement and a rush of troops to the part broken. All our plans to get away were detected by spies sent in as Union prisoners. They would find them out and report, thus all our hard labo was thrown away. For a time we would be disheartened and we would try again only when we thought we were nearing freedom and prospects of home and friends but we would be doomed again disappointment and many of noble boys to death and the trenches The guards were laboring under a pre mium for every Yankee they caught un-der the dead line. If the Yankee was shot the guard was given a 30 day fur-lough home to visit his friends and tell them he had shot a vile Yankee, and talk over his great work for his country and the Rebel flag or rag.

In the summer of '64 the stockade wa enlarged two acres but this did not give us any more room for prisoners came in every day, until at one time there wer 35,000 of us cooped up there that pen of filth that would not do to tell of here. We had other enemies in the gray backs to numerous to mention, and also fleas and mosquitoes. Starvation and exposure brought on different diseases, the principle ones being diarrhea typhoid, and malarial fever. These soor relieved many noble men of their suffering. The record shows the fewest deaths in one day to be 3 and the most to be 281. We could see men dying at all times of the day. Had the Rebels put us down three miles from there on the banks of the Flint River where the water was pure and given us axes and a few saws we would have built houses and had wood and fire and kept clean and thus saved most all those dear boys who are now lying in the long trenches. When our own men were detailed to bury thei dead as best they could, trenches were dug six feet wide and three feet deep and the bodies were laid side by side, lapping shoulders. Each had a number burnt or small piece of board or stake and set in the ground at the head. These grounds are now enclosed with an iron fence and well kept by the government for which those noble men died. Rest, dear noble No more will the blast of the bugle call you to arms. One hundred and twenty-two persons have lost their eyesight, 551 have lost the use of one eye, 432 have lost the use of arms, legs or hands, and 1541 have been crippled by the loss of fingers.

The decrease from 1903 and 1910 is due to more intelligent methods of celebration, the most marked decreases occurring in States where the agitation for the restrictive measures was most urgent.

ORIGIN OF METEORIC DUST.

Bombardment of Shooting Stars—A Never Ending Shower. Meteoric dust particles are infinitely finer than grains of sand. They have an interesting origin. Meteors or shooting stars have been bombarding the world from the beginning at a rate estimated at many thousands an hour, of which, however, an average of only five or six are visible to the naked eye in that time.

Owing to our protecting envelope of air, few of these missiles reach us. In weight meteors vary from a few ounces to many pounds. Occasionally one is of sufficient dimensions to survive the passage of 80 to 100 miles through an atmosphere increasing in density as the earth is approached.

The speed at which they enter the atmosphere, calculated at not less than thirty-five miles a second, generates such intense heat by friction that the iron, of which the meteor principally consists is immediately reduced to an incandescent vapor, which is the luminous train so frequently seen in the heavens on a clear night. The vapor rapidly cools and condenses in form of these minute particles, which assume the spherical form as does shot during its fall from the top of the tower.

Finally the little spheres are scattered by the winds and currents in the upper air and gradually descend in their millions as an invisible, never ending shower. The perfect condition in which these meteors are found is due to the presence of certain non-corrosive elements, found by analysis to be present in the metal of meteors which have come to earth .-- Chicago

FARMERS NOW BUYING HIGH PRICED CARS.

Four hundred Rambler cars were sold by the P. J. Downes Company of Minneapolis to farmers in the states of Minnesota and the Dakotas during the first six months of 1910. The av erage price per car was $2250.

Because the sales of Ramblers in the cities have been exceptionally large and the average price is above $2000, this record sale in the agricultural districts is considered remark It demonstrates that farmers able. are buying cars of better quality and are not confining themselves to those of low value.

By way of comparison, the Thomas B. Jeffery Company has furnished in formation indicating that this record sale in Minnesota and the Dakotas compares most favorably with sales of Ramblers in the larger cities.

British Officers Conspicuous in the Armies of Europe.

Gen. Blunt Pasha, who has just died at the age of 74, is described as the last of the group of British officers who took service in the Ottoman gendarmerie at the time of the Russo-Turkish war, the London Chronicle says. Another conspicuous member of that group was Col. Valentine Baker of tragic memory, but in the Turkish army itself there were also several Englishmen, notably Capt. Herbert, who was in Plevna with his regiment during the siege, and whose account of that great military drama, published several years ago, is the best extant, because it is the work of an experi the Franco-German war there were far commissioned Britishers in the Prussian army than fought for the cause of the Sultan in the Russo-Turkish campaign. The very first officer to fall on the German side, at Saarbruck, in 1870, was a Captain Winsloe, who had also two brothers in the Prussian service. Then there was Campbell of Craignish (who captured a French eagle in a hand-to-hand combat in the great cavalry charge at Mars-la-Tour) and a Captain Knox, a Lieutenant An nesley, a Captain O'Danne, a Genera Wright and a score of others. Even now the Prussian army contains several Scots officers, and notably Colonel Graham, who commanded a German column in the Chinese campaign.

Choosing a Builder.

The selection of a builder is quite as important a matter in putting up a house as the choice of an architect. Don't choose the cheapest builder merely because he is cheapest. If you accept his bid, find out the reason the cheapness. Frequently the builder is a man of little means, and often he operates on borrowed capital. Should the builder become bankrupt or fail to pay for his labor or materials the own-er, under the mechanics' laws of most states becomes liable for the builder's debts. This is true even though the owner has paid the builder for his work. In order to obtain his house free and clear in such a case the owner must meet the builder's obing is finished and when the completed house is turned over to the owner .-Circle Magazine.

A New Form of Construction With Strong Flexible Joints.

One of the defects of sheet steel pil-ing as heretofore constructed is that the interlocking edges which connect one pile with another are apt to spread open when the piles are under strain. Pictured herewith is a new form of

Pictured herewith is a new form of sheet piling with strong flexible joints, so constructed as to oppose spreading strains at the various positions which the piles may assume with relation to each other.

Fig. 1 shows a set of piles driven in a curved row. Details of the interior locking parts are given below in sectional views, which show two different forms of piles. Each pile consists of a web, A, furnished with a pair of flarges formed to interiors with the flarges of the next adjacent pile. In the construction shown in Fig. 2 the right and left hand ends of the western Kentucky, the second of the construction shown in Fig. 2 the right and left hand ends of the western Kentucky. end has a wide, tapering flange, B, that is bent to the form of a hook, and a short, slightly curved flange, C. The left end of the pile is somewhat similar in form, the flange E being curved to approximately the same form as flange B, but the flange D is considerably longer than the flange C.

right and left hand forms. With either design the interlocking flanges will be rigidly retained under pulling will be rigidly retained under pulling strains at whatever position the parts may assume. The piles are of simple construction and may be readily roll-ed in rolls of proper design. The in-ventor of this pilling is William Neil-son of 1379 Montezuma street, Pitts-burg

Mr. Malgnen declared that he had discovered germicidal properties in certain nonpoisonous mineral salts that had proved capable of destroying the anthrax bacillus and that had been followed by remarkable quantitations. been followed by remarkable curative results in the treatment of leprosy and tuberculosis. He cited the case of the leper boy Charles Clark, until recently in an institution in Blackwood, N. J., and now at large, who had been pronounced by competent authorities free of sores of any kind and there-fore clean. After using the antiseptic solution new skin grew over injured parts, and finger joints that had been rigid could be moved freely.

Rail Planing Device.

A machine for planing street car and other rails has recently been accepted by several street railways in Australia and also by one of the large steam railroads. It is a self sustained machine and travels on the rails so machine and travels on the rails, so that it can be worked day or night without interfering with the traffic.

The claim of the inventors is that by restoring the rail to its original level and evenness of surface the cost of putting down a new rail is nost.

of putting down a new rail is post-poned for many years and the incon-venience incident to tearing up the track is obviated.

In the case of street car rails the inventors contract to deepen the cut in which the flange runs and to reduce the narrow outside lip to the level of the rest of the rail.

Graphite Replacing Lead In Paint.
The growing exclusion of lead from

So many new uses have been found for graphite, which not long ago was em-ployed almost exclusively for the manproyed atmost excusively for the man-ufacture of lead pencils, that large quantities are now made with the elec-tric furnace, the natural deposit of the mineral not being sufficient to supply

Removing Scale From Water Jackets. Scale usually may be removed from within the water jacket by means of a 20 per cent solution of muriatic acid, says the Nautical Gazette. The jacket is filled with this solution and allowed to remain three or four hard. to remain three or four hours to dissolve the scale, which may then be blown out. Care must be taken to avoid burns from the acid. The jacket must be carefully washed out afterward with clear water.

Fifty Years of Married Life

Editor and Publisher

On the 26th day of September, 1860, at Des Moines, Iowa, J. D. Irwin and Emily D. Downs joined hearts and hands and are now about closing their fiftieth year of happy married life. Three years ago they came to California for Mr Irwin's health and located at Campbell, where they now have many warm friends. The delightful climate here has been very

Owing to the fact that six of the daughters are so far away and scattered, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin will not attempt to hold a reunion or Jubilee celebration in honor of the event. Of the seven daughters, one resides at Des Moines, one at Altoona, la., one at Boise, Idaho, two at Los Angeles, one at Pleasanton, and one, Mrs. Henry, at Campbell. They had but one son who died recently.

The Press joins with the many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Irwin.
