The image shows two vertical columns of Chinese calligraphy on aged, yellowish-tan paper. The characters are written in a fluid, expressive cursive script (caoshu). The first column contains the character '人' (person/human) written twice. The second column also contains the character '人' (person/human) written twice. The strokes are dark and vary in thickness, with some ink bleed-through visible on the reverse side of the paper.

卷之三

A wooden ruler with black markings and numbers. The numbers are large and bold, with '30' and '60' being the most prominent. The ruler is marked in centimeters, with major tick marks every 1 cm and minor tick marks every 0.5 cm.
