The VICE PRESIDENCY

We have nerectore given reasons why every friend of popular severeignty in our government and of the interest and honor, of our country in its intercourse of the interest and honor, of our country in its intercourse of the interest and honor, of our country in the intercourse of the foreign nations, should vindicate the one and advocate the other by supporting Mr. Van Buren for Vice President. There are other congiderations, less important perhaps, but not less personaire, which address them entered to the friends of Gen. Jackson and the Republican Party.

It is not denied that a chief object with the "New Coeffition," in the rejection of Mr. Van Buren, was to be sine, weaken, mortify and dishonor the president himself. They knew he had detasted with his own musta, the passage in Mr. M'Landa instructions which they served upon as a pretence; for they were explicity so informed in debate. They knew he disavoused the sinister influence imputed to Mr. Van Buren in producing the discentificate of the firm Cabinet and its final disastence in the country were so informed as well in debate, as through many other channels. In charging Mr. Van Buren with dishonoring his productions, they, therefore, charged the President with the same offence. In persisting in the Pharge, that Mr. Van Buren are offence. In persisting in the Pharge, that Mr. the same offence. In persisting in the charge, that Mr. Van Buren produced the difficulties in the Cabinet which les to its dissolution, they charged the President which led to its dissolution, they charged the resents with falsehood additionable view to his inferiors. They with falsehood him with promoting to the office of Scoretary of State, and then appointing as Linister to Great Britain, a man who was totally unworthy of public em-
