The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Library of the Public
Archives of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

La bibliothèque des Archives
publiques du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

- Two Balls close, for three ditto
- Two Balls separated, for four ditto

- A ditto under two Balls close, for eight ditto
- A ditto between two Balls separate for nine, ditto
- A flag of any colour, for ten or more ditto

[The above are hoisted at the East or West yard arm, according to the quarter the vessels first appear in, with the addition of a Ball at the centre of the yard until the Rig of the vessel can be made out, when one or more of the following descriptive colours will be hoisted at the mast head:—

An Union Jack for a Flag Ship, with or without a squadron.

Ditto with a blue pendant over, for a Frigate.

Ditto with a white ditto for a small armed vessel.

A blue pendant for a Merchant Ship.

A white flag over any signal, vessel bears a flag of truce.

A red flag pierced white, for the Digby Packet.

A ball at the mast-head, vessel is on shore or in distress:—

☞ Should immediate aid be necessary guns to be fired.

In thick weather, a gun will be fired at Partridge Island, in answer to each gun heard at sea.——When a vessel requires a Pilot, her descriptive pendant will be shown at a yard arm, instead of a ball.

Time of going through the Falls.

THE Falls are level (or still water) at about three hours and a half on the Flood, and at about two hours and a half on the Ebb, which makes it passable four times in twenty-four hours about ten or fifteen minutes each time. No other rule can be given, as much depends on the floods in the River Saint John, and the time of high water or full sea, which is often hastened by winds, and in proportion to the height of them.

1829.

JANUARY HATH XXXI DAYS 1829.

"All Nature's difference keeps all Nature's peace,"
 And some thing wane that others may increase ;
 The elements quarrel, so do man and wife,
 And Heaven itself has been the seat of strife.

Well, since stern winter drives us from the fields,
 We'll cull the fruits the social fireside yields,
 And cultivate those intellectual flowers,
 Which shed their sweets o'er winter's dreariest hours.

1829. FEBRUARY HATH XXVIII DAYS.

The hand of industry is now excluded
 From glebe and garden, winter has denuded;
 The landscape stripp'd, its garniture laid low,
 Seems dead and wrapp'd in winding sheet of snow.

Let books and conversation then impart
 Their mental opulence to head and heart,
 And you will find, while pleasure gilds the hour,
 Knowledge is happiness, as well as power.

MARCH HATH XXXI DAYS.

1829.

Stern winter now, while slowly giving way,
 Though fairly baffled, still keeps up the fight,
 Yields to the prowess of the God of Day,
 But turns and rallies every frosty night :—
 Still the bright conqueror soon makes up arrears,
 His means full adequate his ends t' obtain;
 So the good man, who duly perseveres,
 With proper means, will proper objects gain.

April appears, and, very like a quean,
 Advances slipshod, with dishevell'd robe,
 Forever in the suds, but never clean,
 Like some neat folks, inhabiting this globe.

See that your boots and shoes are water proof,
 Your feet keep dryer than a dull discourse,
 From all excesses hold yourself aloof,
 Or, by and by, you'll be a little hearse ;—

MAY HATH XXXI DAYS.

1829.

The bashful spring at length begins
To make some slight advances,
But shews us, while her way she wins,
Her wayward freaks and fancies.

The bard who sings the charms of May,
Must be a fool or groggy ;
With now and then a pleasant day,
She's mostly foul and foggy.

JUNE HATH XXX DAYS.

Forsooth a finer month than this
 The seasons never brought on,
 The time for every rural bliss,
 Which can be sung or thought on.

That man's the essence of a goose,
 Who owns two legs and yet he,
 With means and leisure to get loose,
 Stays coop'd up in the city.

Bright Sol, advancing hot and high,
 Strains every fiery feature,
 To make a furnace of the sky,
 And of the earth a heater.

From marshes he is prone to suck
 Up elements of thunder,
 And some folks are with lightning struck,
 And some folks struck with wonder.

The arable fields and gay meadows behold,
 And laughing, luxuriant landscape accord,
 In tributes of verdure enamell'd with gold,
 The hard handed laborer's precious reward.
 But pause ere you gather the bountiful crop,
 And listen to well meant advice of a friend,
 The evils which flow from intemperance stop,
 So far as your own good example may tend.

SEPTEMBER HATH XXX DAYS 1829.

It may very truly be said
That his is a noble vocation,
Whose industry leads him to spread
About him a little creation.

His labours are mere exercise,
Which saves him from pains and physicians ;
Then, farmers, you truly may prize
Your own the best of conditions.

OCTOBER HATH XXXI DAYS.

The summer flowers are faded,
 The fate of beauty sharing,
 And nature, somewhat jaded,
 Seems overdone with bearing.
 The fields of corn are studded,
 With ears of golden glowing,
 And all the land is flooded
 With bounties overflowing.

Men in office should be men of business.—He who is too indolent or too careless to attend properly to his own business, ought not to be entrusted with that of the public.

Spend prudently.—What folly lays out in kid-skin gloves in ten years, managed by prudence might fill a small purse. Are not white dollars worth more to a farmer than white hands? If your finances are small be not ambitious of owning a three story house. A humble cottage is a good beginning. Enter at the "little end of the horn," and you may see at the other an elegant house large enough for the thrifty farmer.

Punctuality.—Be punctual even in trifling matters; for failing in little things will cause you to fail in a greater, and render you respected.

AGRICULTURAL.

FRIENDS AND PATRONS! the revolving seasons have again ushered us into your presence, together with our new Calendar, which we hope will prove a passport to your good graces. We once more crave the liberty to open our budget of admonitions and proscriptions, which you will find to be either wise or otherwise; and efficient for every purpose for which they will answer a good purpose. Those which you do not like, you need not copy into your Lady's Album; and those which you do like it is likely you will profit by, provided they are profitably put in practice. Let every operation connected with the well being of your domestic animals go on with as much regularity as a longitude chronometer. Neither neat cattle, sheep nor swine will thrive if their meals are given them at haphazard, and they are stuffed one day and starved the next. Cattle well wintered are half summered, and

Necessity will ne'er be driving

The man, who keeps his neat stock thriving.

A Farmer's barn and wood house are the indices to his circumstances and conduct; and by taking a view of their contents, a man, without being exactly a conjurer, can tell Mr. Cultivator whether it is or is not time to propose a compromise with his creditors to keep the Constable from darkening the door of his domicile.

We shall here state, concisely, some of the principal pre-requisites for successful horticulture, directing our observations, chiefly, to what relates to the kitchen garden. Gardens are usually classed under the following heads:—the kitchen garden; the fruit garden; and the flower garden. The Flower Garden, being designed principally for ornament, should be placed in the most conspicuous part, that is, in front, or next to the back part of the house; the kitchen garden and fruit garden may follow in succession. With respect to the natural situation of a garden, Nicol and Forsyth agree in preferring a gentle declivity towards the south, a little

"A kitchen garden," observed Dr. Deane, "should not be situated any great distance from the house, lest, being too much out of sight, it should be out of mind, and the necessary culture of it much neglected." It should be placed adjoining to a stable, whence the dung may be easily conveyed into the enclosure. It should be sheltered, as much as can be, from the north and east, to prevent the blighting winds from affecting the trees. The best soil for a garden is a sandy loam, two or three feet deep, according to Forsyth: but if deeper, the better. The earth should not be of a binding nature in summer, nor retentive of rain in winter, but of such a texture that it can be worked at any season, when not frozen, without difficulty."

Dr. Deane observed, that "a garden should have a close fence, that the winds may not drive seeds of weeds into it. The fence should be at least seven feet high, and picketed to prevent the entrance of thieves. The height and closeness of the fence will increase the vegetation by increasing the warmth of the air in the garden, excepting, perhaps, the parts which are shaded by the fences. The rage of high winds will be so opposed as to prevent the tearing and distorting of tender plants, and fowls may be more easily kept out." Loudon remarks, that, "the height of walls for training fruit trees, generally approved, is from ten to twelve feet; but it is more commonly determined by the size and form of the garden, and the inclination of its surface." "Many low walls, or stout ranges of paling," Abercrombie observes, "will produce a greater total effect, in accelerating fruit, than the same expenditure in high walls." "Fruit walls, five or six feet high." Hitt remarks, "will do very well for peaches, cherries, vines, and figs; but he would not advise the planting of apricots, plums, or pears, on such walls, they requiring more room, and to stand longer before they bear. Garden walls have been coloured white or black, and the latter colour is justly preferred as absorbing and refracting more heat than any other, and thereby accelerating the maturity, and improving the quality of fruits." —Pessenden's New American Gardener.

WORKING BULLS.—The bull is naturally vicious, and often becomes so mischievous as to endanger valuable lives; an evil which we conceive might be remedied by teaching him to labour. Bulls are not only broken with little difficulty, and work well, but they recover from fatigue much sooner than an ox.

WORKING COWS.—"Why should the cow be exempted from the labours of the field, while the wife and daughter of the farmer are expected and required to be daily employed in cooking, washing, baking, spinning, milking, and making butter and cheese? Ought a farmer to treat his cows more tenderly than his wife and children?" In a work written by the famous Arthur Young, entitled "Young's Eastern Tour," it is remarked, that "Mr. Bakewell, a famous English cultivator, used to draw with oxen, but now draws all with cows. Mr. B. finds them fall as handy as oxen, and that they draw just as well as oxen of the same size." Indeed, we can see no reason why cows should be exempted from labour any more than mares. The only objection to cows being trained to the yoke of which we are aware, is, that for some time before and after calving they will not be in a condition to labour. This objection, however, applies with equal force to mares. Cows commonly calve at a time of the year when team work is but little wanted. Besides, a farmer with considerable neat stock might so manage that some of his cows might always be fit for the yoke. And it is possible that working cows moderately would serve the purpose of exercise to the human species, and would thus strengthen the constitutions, and improve the breeds of the animals, by imparting vigour to the breeders.

powder or dust of tobacco thrown over the beds, in a garden where the plants are just coming up, will save them from the worms, which frequently destroy them before they have fairly broken through the ground.

HINTS WITH REGARD TO FATTENING SWINE.—If your object is merely profit in fattening your hogs, you must take time for the process, and make them thoroughly fat. A farmer, stating the result of some experiments in the Bath Society papers, volume 6, p. 332, says "I invariably found that quantities of food consumed by fattening hogs increased every week till the animals became three parts fat; after this period they ate but little; and almost all they ate turned to fat; and that can only be done by giving time." The experienced farmer need not be told that fattening hogs should have now and then a dose of brimstone or antimony given with their food, in order to preserve their health and increase their appetite. But there may be some, who never knew, or have forgotten that rotten wood, thrown to them occasionally will be eagerly devoured, and serve as an absorber of those acid juices, which, might, otherwise occasion a disorder. It is likewise said to throw them now and then a few pieces of charcoal will answer the same purpose.

LUCERNE.—This is one of our earliest grasses. It should be sown, on a rich, deep, clean and light soil, free from weeds, about the first of May, or as soon as the ground has acquired warmth sufficient to give it a vigorous growth. It will not answer for clayey or wet grounds. It should be sown with oats, barley or rye, to protect the roots till they get hold of the soil. It is extensively cultivated in France and in New York and Pennsylvania, on account of its great productiveness, three and four crops being generally cut every season. Judge Buel of Albany, an eminent and intelligent farmer, says, "one acre will feed six cows five months, from 25th of May, to 25th of October," fed out green.

Lucerne, from its long roots, is but little affected by droughts or frosts, and but few grasses abide longer in the soil. It does not attain its full growth till the third year, and its medium duration is from ten to twelve years.

ORCHARD GRASS.—This is also an early and valuable grass. It is extensively cultivated in England by the name of Cocksfoot Grass, for sheep pasture; and in the fine pastures of Devonshire, celebrated for fattening the largest quantity of stock, it constitutes the principle herbage. Its roots are long and fibrous, and to enable it to abide in the soil, and flourish, it requires to be sown where the subsoil is porous and not stagnant. It answers in shady lands, as in orchards, better than most grasses, whence its common name. The seed necessary for an acre is two bushels, which should be soaked forty-eight hours before sowing, and then used with about ten pounds of red clover.

MILLET.—This is now extensively cultivated in Europe, and is getting into general use in this country. It is a round yellowish white grain, which grows at the top of the stock. A warm, rich, though somewhat sandy soil suits it best. It should be sown about the first of May, when cultivated for seed;—but for fodder (for which it is considered by many equal to the best English hay) it will answer to sow it from May to the 20th of June. The quantity of seed for an acre, is from two or three pecks. It has produced on the farms of Colonel Powel, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Colman, of Salem, three tons to the acre. It comes to maturity for fodder in about eight and nine weeks, on which account it is an important article, when there is an appearance, in the early part of summer, of there being a scarcity of hay.

The Locust Tree.—Not many of the natives of the forest rival the Locust in beauty and foliage, and none are more valuable for timber. Its durability and hardness render it particularly suitable for application to the purposes and for the of fences.

the purposes of the arts in ship building and machinery, and for the uses of rural economy in the construction of fences. Unlike most other trees, it invites the grass to grow under it: its small and rounded leaves afford shade from the scorching rays of the sun, retain the moisture of showers and dew in summer, and by their annual deposit in autumn enrich the ground. The ameliorating effect on the most barren soil, the clothing of sandy and almost desert knolls with luxuriant herbage by the cultivation of Locust groves, is exemplified in almost every spot where they grow. After a few trees have been planted, little care is required for their propagation. Shoots are consequently sent up from the roots, or young trees rise from the seeds, and in a few years arrive to maturity. The winds of the northern winters, it must be confessed, often impair their symmetry of form by breaking the branches, and the value of the timber is injured by worms; but loss from the first cause can be prevented by proper pruning, and the destruction of the gnawing enemy effected by reasonable care. But although our climate is not the most propitious for the growth of this tree, it is sufficiently favourable to allow of its attaining good size with soundness.

The price at which the timber has been purchased by Government for building vessels of war, is stated at 75 cents the cubic foot, and a supply has been procured with difficulty. The profit which would result from the cultivation of the Locust for the market would be very great. The value it possesses is increased from the circumstance that it may be made the means for the improvement of barren soils, and that the waste places may not only be covered with groves but with luxuriant vegetation beneath them.

Swine.—An Ohio Farmer recommends coals as useful in fattening hogs. After giving his hogs a small quantity daily, say two pieces to each, about the size of a hen's egg, they discontinued rooting, were more quiet and appeared to fatten faster. He omitted the coal a few days and they commenced rooting; he gave it again and they ceased to root. He supposes that the coal corrects the morbid fluid in the stomach which incites them to root deep in search of fresh earth. Hogs in summer should at all times have water in which they can wallow, and they will encrust themselves with a coating of mud, so as to prevent their being troubled with vermin.

Weaning Lambs, &c.—The weaning of lambs should be effected about July, or when the lambs are from six weeks to two months old. At this age they should be taken from the ewes, and have the best of pasture during the first fortnight; by the end of which time they will be so much accustomed to living on grass that they may be turned into a poorer pasture. It is important that the lambs when weaning should have a good bite of fresh grass, otherwise their growth will receive a check which no subsequent management can overcome. Where they have grazed with their dams so long as five or six weeks little hindrance to their growth will be sustained by the separation. The ewes should be removed to such distant pastures or other places as that their bleating may not be heard by the lambs. There is, however, one caution to be attended to in turning lambs into a rich pasture, which is to let them be in some degree satisfied with food, previously, that they may not be surfeited or hoven or swollen. On weaning the lambs, it may be necessary to milk their dams several times, in order to relieve their udders, which otherwise sometimes become swollen and painful.

The worst woolled lambs, bad coloured ones, and those that are very small, should be made over to the butcher, and need not be weaned. It is recommended, however, not to kill or sell, for killing any lambs till they are about six months old, at which time their fleece becomes valuable.

“Those ewe lambs, which are intended for stock,” according to Deane, “should not come at the rams. For if they have lambs at a year old, it stints them in their growth; and they have so little milk that their lambs commonly die for want of nourishment. Or if they chance to live, they will be apt to be always small. This practice is one reason why our breed of sheep in this country is so poor.

“The largest lambs should be sheared at the time of the new moon in July. Their fleeces will yield as much the next year, and the wool will be better; and as cold storms rarely happen at that time of the year, the lambs will do better without their fleeces than with them.

Culture and uses of Potatoes.—At the weekly breakfast given by the President of the Royal Society on the 1st instant, Sir John Sinclair requested permission to lay before the meeting, a statement of the objects he had in view, in wishing that public attention should be more steadily directed than heretofore it had been, to the culture and use of potatoes; and having produced specimens of potato meal, and of the farina of potatoes; he proceeded shortly to explain how these two substances were prepared, and to what purpose they were respectively applicable.

Potatoe Meal.

In preparing potato meal, no material part of the root is lost. The whole, after being merely scraped or peeled, is cut into very thin slices, then carefully dried in any kiln or stove, and afterwards ground into meal in a common mill.

Gardener's work for September.—Hoe and thin your growing crops of spinach. Earth up celery as it advances in growth, but be careful to avoid covering the hearts of the plants. This work should be done in a dry day. See that you do not bruise nor injure the stalks; for if they are crushed or wounded they will be subject to rot. Towards the latter end of the month you may transplant all kinds of hardy perennial, aromatic, and medicinal herbs, which will thus become rooted before winter. This work should if possible, be done in moist weather. Pull and preserve your ripe onions, and sow more to stand over winter. Protect grapes and other fruit against wasps. This may be done by hanging up phials of honied or sugared water near the fruit you wish to defend. Thoroughly clean from weeds all the seed beds and nurseries of trees.

Water in Farm Yards.—The author of Husbandry in Scotland, is of opinion that when cattle are fed in winter on dry food, as hay or straw, no expense should be spared in supplying them with a sufficient quantity of water. It has been ascertained that a bullock feeding upon straw, having water at command, will drink of it eight times a day; hence it is evident that he cannot get enough, if only driven twice a day to an adjoining stream or pond. It is therefore, advisable, where it can be done, to bring water into a cistern in the fold yard, to which the cattle may go whenever they are in want of it.

Summer-made Manure.—Many cultivators waste nearly all the manure, which their cattle make in the summer time by mismanagement. Their cow-yard is large, and the droppings of their cattle are spread in thin layers over a large surface. Of course they are first dried through and through by the sun, and secondly washed away by the rains. Cattle should be yarded in summer in a small space. Their manure, once or twice a week, at least should either be ploughed in or mixed with soil, for compost—placed under cover—shovelled into heaps and covered with earth, or in some way secured against the robbery of the elements. A farmer would be thought crazy, who should expose his cattle-fodder to the weather for months, before he made use of it; and he cannot be in his right mind, if he suffers his manure, (which is the hearts-blood of agriculture) to be

Importance of knowledge to Farmers.—1. The farmer ought to rise early, to see that others do so, and that both his example be followed, and his orders obeyed. 2. The whole farm should be regularly inspected, and not only every field examined, but every beast seen at least once a day. 3. In a considerable farm, it is of the utmost consequence to have hands specially appropriated for each of the most important departments of labour, for there is often a great loss of time, where persons are frequently changing their employments; and the work is not executed so well. 4. Every means should be thought of to diminish labour, or to increase its power. For instance, by proper arrangement five horses may do as much labour as six perform, according to the usual mode of employing them. 5. A farmer never ought to engage in a work, whether of ordinary practice, or intended improvement, except after the most careful inquiries; but when begun, he ought to proceed in it with much attention and perseverance, until he has given it a fair trial. 6. It is a main object in management, not to attempt too much, and never to begin a work, without a probability of being able to finish it in due season. 7. Every farmer should have a book for inserting all those useful hints, which are so frequently occurring in conversation, in books, and gathered in the course of his reading, or in a practical management of his farm.

Good food for Milch Cows.—Beat up in a mortar dry corn cobs, pour boiling water over them, or boil them in a pot, stir them frequently when boiling, and when cold give it to your cows.

The cultivation of potatoes has been introduced at the Grecian Islands by an Irishman named Stevens—and promises to supply the Greeks with food. The President of Greece has declared his gratitude to him.

USEFUL HINTS.

Hints to Mechanics.—Avoid giving long credits even to your best customer. A man who can pay easily will not thank you for the delay; and a slack, doubtful paymaster is not too valuable a customer to dun sharply and seasonably. A fish may as well attempt to live without water, as a man without air, as a mechanic without punctuality and promptness in collecting and paying his debts. It is a mistaken and ruinous policy to attempt to keep or get business by delaying collections. When you lose a slack paymaster from your books, you only lose the chance of losing your money—and there is no man who pays more money to lawyers than he who is least prompt in collecting for himself.

Take care how you agree to pay money for your stock, your provision, your rent, or your fuel, and take dog skins for your work. One hand must wash the other, as poor Richard says, or both will go to jail dirty. Every man's trade ought to bring him money enough to pay all money demands against him; and no man can stand it long, who does not get money enough from his business to pay the cash expenses of carrying it on.

Children.—If you have children, keep them for a month or two on bread and milk. You should always keep them so—but especially at this time. Milk is a sworn enemy to the physicians, while meat and coffee, and green corn, and withered peaches (of which we have an abundance this year,) are their disciples.—Con. Mirror.

Cleanse your Cellars.—If you wish to live half your days, be careful not to be in the habit of breathing the gasses of putrefaction, vegetable or animal. We do not pretend to say whether a parcel of rotting or rotten potatoe, cabbages, turnips, and other vegetables, decaying in a cellar will produce what is called yellow fever or not. But a kind of fever may be manufactured from vegetable or animal putrefaction, which may prove as fatal, though perhaps not quite so rapid in it progress as the genuine plague of the West Indies or the Levant. Beef brine or pork brine, suffered to stand too long, becomes very offensive, and whatever offends the sense of smelling is injurious to health. We have been assured by physicians of eminence, that they have reason for believing that bilious or typhus fevers of a malignant and fatal kind have originated from sources of this description.

On destroying offensive smells, purifying Apartments, &c.—(Extract from a paper by Dr. Webster, Professor of Chemistry at Harvard University.)—N. E. Farmer.

Within a few months great use has been made in France of a chemical compound of chlorine gas and lime or soda, for the purpose of destroying the offensive odours arising from putrifying animal or vegetable matters. The first use of this compound was in a case of judicial inquiry, where it became necessary to disinter a body for examination, and by it the effluvia was destroyed in an hour or two.

For all common purposes, the effects of the compound of lime and chlorine, known in commerce as "bleaching powder," and "bleaching salts," are similar to those of the substance used in France under the name of "Labarraque's Disinfecting Soda Liquid."

The bleaching powder must be sprinkled about an apartment, or a small quantity thrown into a vessel which it is wished to purify, or it may be dissolved in water, and clothes be dipped in the solution, and afterwards brought into the vitiated atmosphere. Vehicles for the removal of offensive substances, as well as the substances themselves, may be freed from all offensive odour by the use of the powder, while at the same time the fertilizing powers of those substances are remarkably increased—a fact which has been established by actual experiments.

In some situations and apartments, a few spoonfuls of the powder may be mixed with the sand with which the floors are usually sprinkled. The many occasions both in public and private, where this purifying agent may be advantageously employed, must be obvious. It is sometimes desirable to prevent the rapid change of a dead body previous to interment; this would be accomplished by a small quantity of the dry powder within the coffin, or by the application of the moistened cloths.

In descending into vaults, pits, sewers, &c. if the air breathed, has passed through a sponge which has been wet with the solution, the person can remain some time without injury in situations where others, not so provided, would infallibly be destroyed.

The use of this substance in the sick chamber will be found a source of no slight comfort, and even safety in some diseases; and it has been applied to ulcer and putrescent sores with manifest advantage.

The effect of this chemical agent is not like that of vinegar, and the various substances resorted to on occasions like the above; it does not merely disguise the odour, it chemically decomposes and destroys it. It is perfectly innocuous, and not expensive, unless purchased in small quantities, usually sold in small tin boxes; it should be obtained from the manufacturer by the pound.

Preserving Smoked Meat, &c.—(Extract of a letter from the late Thomas Gold, Esq. formerly President of the Berkshire Agricultural Society, to the Editor of the N. E. Farmer.)—You have published in your valuable "New England Farmer," several methods for preserving smoked meats. Much experience has enabled me to offer you a prescription on the subject that never has, and never will fail of answering the purpose viz.—preserving those meats safe from the ravages of all small animals, and pure and sound for any length of time, and in any climate. It is the use of Charcoal. My mode of putting down any kind of smoked meats is thus: Take a tierce or box and cover the bottom with charcoal, reduced to small pieces, but not to dust;

The use of charcoal properly prepared in boxes, is of great benefit in preserving fresh provisions, butter and fruits, in warm weather; also in recovering meats of any kind when partially damaged, by covering the same a few hours in the coal. Let those whose situation requires it, make the experiment on any article of food subject to decay, and they will more than realize their expectations.

II
Preventives.

Gentle is a true proverb, that "Money is the root of evil;" but it is now obsolete, since we never hear it mentioned any more. What then can be the cause of the present depraved state of our morals? I think that we may trace it in the general use of strong drink, which now pervades every class; what I call strong drink is, any thing that causes unusual or more than ordinary flow of spirits. This is effected, in some, by a gill of brandy; and in others by a glass of wine. There are several causes which lead to the present degraded state of society, in drinking and which bid fair to make us a nation of drunkards surpassing all other nations in that vice. In the first place, the cheapness of liquors with us, cannot but have a fatal tendency that way. If the States would recommend to Congress to lay a tax of 25 cents a gallon on all domestic spirits, (with a corresponding advance on all foreign,) for a fund for internal improvements, &c. and pay over to the Treasury of every State all the moneys so collected in each State, then will this vice be made to contribute much towards the general good of society; for such a tax as that would produce a revenue sufficient to make a new stone turnpike through the State every eight or ten years. Another cause of drunkenness is, our mistaken notions of hospitality, in always offering our decanters of slow poison to all our friends, whenever they enter our houses, and when we call at hotels, or other public places of resort and call for some strong drink; every child, no matter how young, must have a share of this poison, to them! Can it be wondered at, if we turn out to be a nation of drunkards, when we commence tipping while yet in the arms of a nurse? Another cause is, that instead of having all our stews cooked with the slightest seasoning of salt and without any pepper, or other pungent article—all of which ought to be kept in separate bottles on the table, so that each person could add to suit his palate—instead of which all our dishes are made and to suit the vitiated taste of the old, and not the purer one; of the latter, who, when taken to the measure, will refuse all pepper, &c. unless their taste has been already corrupted by using those articles, or by using wine, &c. But of all things, tobacco, whether in chewing or smoking, is the most pernicious and subversive to the use of any a preference for strong drink. For no habit does a person addict himself to the use of this strong and most poisonous of all weeds, than the mouth and palate lose all relish for milk or water, or any mild beverage, and long continually for something ever stronger than this drug to drink, and excite similar sensations on those organs which soon become much impaired in the facility of tasting. Persons who are fond of it, would keep an account of the additional expences they incur, in quenching the continual artificial thirst which is excited by the acidity of that poisonous weed; they will find, that it not only impoverishes the purse, but likewise the health. For I have heard a respectable physician say, that he could draw a poison from the tobacco, sufficiently strong to kill any man.

I have seen, repeatedly, sucking infants, of a few weeks old treated to a share of the raw rum gill or brandy, to which the mothers had been treated at various country stores and taverns.—Indeed, it is a common thing, in this Western world, for the common people to give their infants a dram of whiskey as soon as born! while I would as soon think of putting rat's bane in the mouth of a child of mine, as any kind of spirituous liquor whatever.

When I was a youth, about forty years ago, it was rare to hear of a murder committed in these United States; in six or seven years; whereas, now we can scarcely take up a weekly paper, without finding an account of some murder or murderous attempt!—Am. Paper.
