GAVOTTE for the PIANOFORTE (Op. 14), by
AGNES ZIMMERMANN. Price 2s. Sold at half-price.

"It is no slight compliment to say that in this original piece, also a Gavotte, Miss Zimmermann has successfully emulated the breadth of style and vigour of the great master whose Gavotte she has so admirably transcribed. The original composition may perhaps want the raciness of the transcribed one; but then it should be remembered the one proceeds from the pen of a 'ladye faire,' and the other from that of the sturdy old master of fugue, the Leipsic cantor. Miss Zimmermann's is, however, a capital Gavotte, and worthy to take its place beside that of Bach."—From The Queen, Sept. 26, 1868.

HENRY SMART'S SIX SACRED VOCAL

|---|-------------------|
| DUETS. Price 3s. each. | Poetry by |
| No. 1. There was joy in heaven... | Bishop Heber. |
| 2. The Lord is my Shepherd... | W. S. Passmore. |
| 3. When brighter suns and milder skies... | W. P. O. Peabody. |
| 4. Faint not, fear not; God is near thee | Jessica Rankin. |
| 5. The Sabbath Bell | Eliza Cook. |
| 6. Where the weary are at rest | Eliza Cook. |

Sold at half-price.

"We have here a delightful bouquet, composed of such sweets as Mr. Henry Smart so well knows how to cul—pure melody, glowing harmony, delicate workmanship; and it is but right that the lovers of song should know of the existence of so choice a gathering, that they may speedily avail themselves of its fragrance. Mr. Smart ever writes direct from the heart, and so reaches a sympathetic chord which vibrates at his slightest touch; but his concerted vocal music is so exquisitely voiced, as to possess a peculiar charm over that of almost any writer we can call to mind; and then his accompaniments are so deftly contrived as to heighten the colour, and so contribute to the general effect, while at the same time they admirably support the voices, and never assume undue prominence. The six duets before us, the words of which are of a serious, if not altogether sacred, character, are for a soprano and mezzo-sopano or contralto, the higher voice rarely rising above F, the latter never going below G.

"No. 1. There was joy in heaven, the poetry by Bishop Heber, is in the key of F, common time, and is distinguished by a fine, lofty tone throughout, occasionally rising with the words to something like sublimity, as at the end of the first verse:

'And the stars sang from the sky,
Glory to God in Heaven!'

Again, at the return to the subject, after a beautiful episode in A flat,

'And peace with God in Heaven!'

And also at the close of the duet, when the original coda is amplified in the simplest but most imposing manner.

"No. 2. The Lord is my Shepherd is in A flat, 3-4 time; the words, not as we at first imagined by King David, but a paraphrase of the original by Mr. W. S. Passmore. The music is singularly sweet, and in keeping; and some crafty touches—such as where the second voice rises to E flat, and crosses the first—the very original turn of the opening melody, and the voicing throughout, are in Mr. Smart's happiest manner.

"No. 3. When brighter suns and milder skies, the poetry by Mr. William P. O. Peabody, is in E flat, 6-8 time, and presents us with a delightful picture of pastoral life, in the course of which either voice has a short solo, which both in key and style contrasts so well with the principal subject, as to whet the appetite for enjoying it when it is repeated in the last verse.

"No. 4. Faint not, fear not, God is near thee, the poetry by Miss Jessica Rankin, in E flat again, common time, is smaller than its companions in its dimensions—indeed it is called duettino—but is a faultless example of pure vocal writing, each voice having here, as in No. 3, a short but effective solo.

"No. 5. The Sabbath Bell, words from Eliza Cook, in the key of A, common time, is perhaps the gem of the series, and to lovers of Mr. Smart's music assuredly so, as being most of all redolent of his characteristic manner. Here the composer has painted a picture—which has the charm, however, of being suggestive rather than imitative—in which tone, feeling, handling, are all perfect. Witness the graphic contralto solo—

'Go to the woods, when Winter's song
How's like a famished wolf along,'

and the equally picturesque solo for soprano—

'The lark upon his skyward way,' the accompaniment of which is a masterpiece. This duet lies within so convenient a compass for the two voices as will insure its becoming a favourite.

"No. 6. Where the weary are at rest, also to Eliza Cook's words, is in the key of G, common time, and, in our opinion, divides the palm with 'The Sabbath Bell.' Equally with the latter is the compass adapted to voices of limited means—of itself a strong point of recommendation—while the tender sentiment expressed in the words is admirably typified in the music, which is gentle, soothing, comforting, and exquisitely vocal throughout. What a charming idea, too, is that contained in the cadence of each verse!—a cadence as chaste and refined as it is original and effective.

"It is with reluctance we take leave of this most interesting collection of duets, the delicate and refined beauty of which is remarkable, even when compared with other compositions of the same author, and which cannot fail in their sphere, to further the interests of all that is pure and healthy in the art of music."—From The Queen, October 10, 1868.

GAVOTTE, in G, by BACH, arranged for the Pianoforte by AGNES ZIMMERMANN. Price 2s. 6d.

Sold at half-price.

"This truly glorious piece of music, transcribed by Miss Zimmermann from a suite for the violoncello, is so brimful of freshness, life, and good humour, that we defy the least impressionable listener to remain unmoved by its stirring melody, its robust vigour. As to ennui, we should like to see the sufferer by this distressing, if somewhat negative complaint, whom a hearing of this Gavotte would not effectually cure. This is not the first of glorious old John Sebastian's pieces Miss Zimmermann has, so to speak, transplanted from its original destination (violin or violoncello) to the pianoforte, and we sincerely trust it will not be the last. More sterling, and at the same time more exhilarating and effective music it would be impossible to name; and right well too is it arranged, by a lady whose very name is a synonym for musicianly skill and good taste."—From The Queen, Sept. 26, 1868.

A LITTLE CHILD'S HYMN to OUR SAVIOUR.

For a Child's Voice, with an easy Pianoforte Accompaniment. Written by F. T. PALGRAVE, comp. sed by J. TILLEARD. Price 6d.

"A very pretty, simple, and innocent melody."—The Queen, Sept. 7, 1867.

"Here the music is simple as the words, and it is as charming. It deserves to be extensively known."—The Literary Churchman, November 2 1867.

"A delightful composition."—Somerset County Herald, June 29, 1867.

"Both words and music are alike unexceptionable. They are well fitted to each other, the charming simplicity of Mr. Palgrave's verses finding suitable expression in the flowing melody and accompaniment furnished by the composer."—Eddowes' Shrewsbury Journal, October 9, 1867.

"Amid the mass of so-called music which now finds its way to the reviewer's table, it is no ordinary refreshment to find so simply beautiful a composition as this undoubtedly is. Words and music are alike in spirit and conception. . . . The air and accompaniment are as simple, as pathetic as the words, and though the symphony requires a little practice, every child can easily learn it, and should have this brief but beautiful hymn amongst his or her exercises."—Derby Mercury, June 19, 1867.

"The music is particularly pleasing, and the words singularly appropriate to the lips of a child."—Cheltenham Journal, June 15, 1867.

TILLEARD'S CHORAL ADVENT HYMN:

"Lo! He comes." Price 2d.

"From the eight hymns before us, we would select the Advent Hymn, 'Lo! He comes,' which opens with a very happy and extremely beautiful phrase, as the most successful of the collection."—The Queen, September 7th, 1867.

"During the approaching Advent season this noble hymn will be generally sung, and therefore any worthy music to which the words may be wedded will be very welcome to singers. Many eminent composers of hymn music have given to the world their conceptions of what they considered suitable harmony for these words; and Mr. Tilleard has produced a bold, tuneable melody, easy to sing. To those who have not already made their choice, but are looking out for a good tune, we can heartily recommend Mr. Tilleard's composition."—Derby Mercury, November 21st, 1868.
