

NIGHT OF TERROR IN BOUNDARY TOWN

Hotel at Niagara Dynamited, Killing Two People and Injuring Nine—Girl's Body Blown in Two.

(Special to the Times.)

Grand Forks, Nov. 19.—The greatest outrage ever perpetrated in the Boundary district happened about 12 o'clock last night at Niagara, a small railway village seven miles up the north fork of the Kettle river, when unknown parties blew up the Canadian hotel at that town with dynamite, killing a girl named Louisa King, aged 18, and an Italian, whose name is unknown, and injuring nine other people.

FIRE DEPARTMENT VERY BADLY PAID

WARDENS WILL PRESENT REPORT TO CITY COUNCIL

Meeting Last Night Decided That Increases in Salaries and Equipment are Needed.

Something must be done to improve the condition of the Victoria fire department, both as to salaries and equipment, said Ald. Fullerton, chairman of the fire wardens, this morning.

A few feet from her mother. The girl's body was blown right in two, leaving the trunk intact. One side of the building was completely demolished by the blast, which started a fire, consuming the major portion of the hotel.

It is reported that yesterday afternoon a fight occurred in this hotel between some Italians and Frenchmen, when threats were made to blow up the hotel.

During all last night there was a great deal of rifle shooting done by drunken railway laborers, and several travellers narrowly escaped being struck by the flying bullets.

Coroner C. A. Kingston will likely hold an inquest to-morrow on the remains of the two victims of this outrage.

At a meeting of the fire wardens held early last evening there was considerable discussion on this point, particularly in regard to the paucity of the salaries paid in comparison with other fire departments on the coast and in Winnipeg. During the hard times six or seven years ago all salaries over $60 per month in Victoria were reduced by 25 per cent, and has never been replaced.

LICENSING BOARD DISCUSS MATTER OF TOURIST CAFE

The Police Court Proceedings Were Reviewed Yesterday Afternoon—Adjourned Until To-Day.

The board of license commissioners held a short afternoon session yesterday to consider the question of the liquor license at present held by W. F. Jackson for the Tourist Cafe. In opening his Worship the Mayor, as chairman, said that in recent police court proceedings there had been such a lapse of memory on the part of Mr. Jackson and other witnesses that the board considered it right to inquire if it was proper to continue the license to a man of such deficient memory.

ISLAND FARMERS TO PARTICIPATE

IN THE STOCK JUDGING CONTESTS NEXT SPRING

Spring Fair at Royal City—Fat Cattle Show—Last of Fall Meetings.

Dr. S. F. Tolmie, who returned a couple of days ago from a long tour of lecturing and instruction at the fall meetings of Farmers Institutes in different parts of the province, will leave to-night for the two last meetings of the series.

Mr. Higgins wished it noted in the record of proceedings that Mr. Jackson was allowed to refer to the Municipal Councils Act, which he read pointing out particularly that witnesses should be examined under the powers vested in any court of law in civil cases, and that "no party or witness shall be compelled to answer any question by his answer to which he might render himself liable to a criminal prosecution."

His Worship stated that the board intended to get whatever evidence it could and would not be bound by any restrictions.

The wards by-law passed the third reading. An appropriation of $20 was made for Mackenzie avenue, and $100 for the Gorge Road sidewalk.

After ordering a number of accounts paid, and transacting other routine business the council adjourned to meet December 1st.

MISS CLARKE'S SUCCESS.

Dr. Torrington Refers to the Good Work Done by Young Victoria Student.

In a letter received by Herbert Kent from Dr. Torrington, of the Toronto College of Music, reference is made to the good work being done by the Arion Club and wishing success to that organization.

Dr. Torrington's letter contains news of the success of a Victorian at the college. He says: "We hope to have one representing Victoria at our next concert in the person of Miss Alma Clarke to whom I gave a scholarship in recognition of her ability and her work under her teacher, Miss Smith, of your city. You will be pleased to know that Miss Clarke is making steady progress in her work at our college. She played for the first time at our regular Saturday-afternoon recital last week and displayed very good taste and feeling in the Chopin Etude and Rachmaninoff Prelude. She is preparing the Chopin Polonaise in E flat for performance with orchestra in which I am sure she will gain credit. She also plays the violin in the orchestra which is a collateral advantage of great value."

MAYOR'S BY-LAW IS ROUGHLY HANDLED

INTRODUCTION TO COUNCIL IS DELAYED

Ald. Davey Makes Scathing Attack on It—Referred to Committee on Legislation.

The Mayor's license by-law made its appearance at last night's council meeting and met with a decidedly chilly reception. After several of the aldermen had passed scathing remarks upon it, the motion to formally introduce it was referred to the legislative committee, the debate upon this motion being adjourned in consequence of the late hour.

FATALITIES ON NORTHERN COAST

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE OF WILLIAM SUTTON

Was Drowned After Clinging to Keel of an Upright Boat For Many Hours.

News of a fatality in the north was received yesterday through the arrival of the steamer Princess Beatrice and Venture. Some days ago William Sutton, a young man known in this city, and a companion attempted to cross the river from Naas harbor to Fishery Bay, when their boat was caught in a squall and upset. After struggling some time in the turbulent waters the men managed to get on to the keel of the overturned boat. To this they clung as long as their strength permitted, but being chilled and numbed from the cold and wet, Sutton's strength soon gave out. To keep him from drowning his companion tied him to the boat with the anchor line, and in this manner the two remained for many hours. Finally Sutton perished from exposure, and his companion would have met a similar fate but for timely assistance.

URUGUAYANS SEIZE FOUR SEALERS

BELONG TO SCHOONER GEORGE, OF HALIFAX

Canadian Government Interesting Itself in Behalf of Men Who Have Been Imprisoned.

Captain Matt Ryan, well known in this city, who three years ago was arrested by the Uruguayans on the charge of hunting seal within prescribed limits, is having more trouble in the South American republic. It will be remembered that on the first occasion the captain was in command of the Agnes Donohue, a sealing schooner owned by Capt. S. Balcom, of this city. The Donohue, it afterwards transpired, was illegally seized when beyond territorial waters, was taken to Montevideo and held for several months, her captain and crew being in the meanwhile detained as prisoners aboard the vessel. Representations, however, were made to the Canadian government with the result that in time the schooner was released. Compensation was then sought by the owner for loss of time, but so far as known this claim, though advanced, has never been pushed.

The news now is that four of the crew of the Halifax schooner George, of which Capt. Matt Ryan is mate, have been arrested by the Uruguayans. A special dispatch to the Times from Ottawa in relation to the incident says: "The Halifax sealing schooner George, Capt. Ryan, is in trouble in Uruguay. Four of the crew, one of whom is the skipper's brother, have been arrested and are now in Montevideo jail waiting trial for seal fishing on the coast of Uruguay. The four men in a boat were caught in a fog and could not make the ship. They pulled for shore and were seized by the guard ship.

"The Canadian government is now interesting itself in their behalf. "Some time ago the Agnes S. Donohue was seized and the captain and crew put in prison for months. They were released because there is no law against sealing in Uruguayan territorial waters."

FEATHERSTONE MUST PAY PENALTY FOR CRIME

(Special to the Times.) Ottawa, Nov. 20.—John S. Featherstone, now in the provincial jail at Victoria, will hang on December 12th for the murder of Mary Ann Dalton at South Wellington, B. C. The government has refused to interfere with the sentence.

UNFOUNDED REPORT.

(Associated Press.) New York, Nov. 20.—The report that Andrew Carnegie had promised $1,000,000 to Congressman Richard Bartholdt, of Missouri, to promote the cause of international arbitration, was denied at the residence of Mr. Carnegie in this city to-day. Mr. Carnegie sent word that there was no basis for the story.

THE BABINE INDIANS

Negotiations in Progress For Acquiring Lands For the Tribes.

Correspondence is passing between the Dominion government and the local administration looking to the sale of land in the north for the use of the Babine Indians. The object which the Dominion government has in view is the acquisition of lands upon which the Babine tribes can be given an opportunity to make a living by tilling the soil.

To do this negotiations have to be opened with the provincial government. This has been done and letters have passed between Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior at Ottawa, and Hon. R. F. Green, Minister of Lands and Works in the provincial government.

Members of the local ministry state that they do not anticipate any difficulty arising in connection with the matter, and they are willing to assist in every way in the settlement of the question. In return for this grant of land proposed to be made the Indians have agreed that barricades shall be permanently prohibited. The Dominion government also undertakes to furnish nets to the Indians for salmon fishing purposes.

THE ARION CLUB HAS REFUSED TO AMALGAMATE

Will Not Join Forces With Victoria Musical Society—Ambitious Production Announced.

The Arion Club, that has completed fourteen successful seasons in the musical life of Victoria, decided unanimously last night not to amalgamate with the Victoria Musical Society. This decision was reached at the regular rehearsal of the club held last night in Wait's hall. A communication was read from the Bishop of Columbia, representing the younger association, asking the Arion Club to appoint a committee to meet one from the Victoria Musical Society recently named to consider the question. After a full discussion of the matter the above named decision was reached.

A splendid programme is being arranged for the first concert of the fifteenth season which will be held in Institute hall on December 5th or 6th. The most ambitious production will be Dudley Buck's setting of the "Xmas of Nidaros," to Longfellow's words from the "Saga of King Olaf." This will be accompanied by a full string orchestra and the organ. The tenor solo running all through the composition is extremely beautiful. Victoria musicians will be particularly interested in this number as several selections from the same composition have already been given by the club, but the opening concert of the coming season will be the first time it has been given in entirety in British Columbia. Another beautiful number will be "Break, Break, Break," a characteristic setting by John Hyatt Brewer, of Tennyson's well known poem.

The Arion Club has received an invitation from Dunsmuir to give a repetition of the same programme there on December 5th and the invitation has been accepted.

SCHOONER ABANDONED.

San Francisco Vessel Is Deserted by Crew and Will Go Ashore.

A dispatch from Honolulu says: "The small schooner Emma Claudina, from San Francisco, is reported to have been abandoned north of Grays harbor, and will probably go ashore. The captain sent his wife to Aberdeen on the Mary Winkelman, and remained on the Claudina for two days, when he and the crew were obliged to leave. The Claudina has a gross tonnage of 195."

POLICEMAN KILLED.

Shot During a Fight With Ex-Convict—Assailant Fatally Wounded.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Policeman Luke Fitzpatrick is dead and Charles Hanson, an ex-convict, is dying, as the result of a fight at an early hour today in an elevated railroad station. Hanson and a companion last night blew open the safe of a Hammond, Ind. grocery store and escaped with several hundred dollars and negotiable paper, after exchanging shots with the Hammond policeman.

The robbers boarded a car for Chicago. The conductor who had heard of the robbery was suspicious of the men and he informed Policeman Fitzpatrick upon reaching Chicago. Fitzpatrick and the conductor followed the men. The officer ordered them to halt and they, at once opened fire on him. Fitzpatrick was struck several times and fell down the stairs, but managed to empty his revolver at Hanson, who ran down the stairs to escape. Hanson fired several more shots at the officer, who died soon after.

Policemen Birch and Wilson, who heard the firing, arrived as Hanson was running away, and Birch shot him in the back, inflicting a fatal wound. Hanson's companion, whose name is thought to be Guy Van Tose, escaped by sliding down one of the supports of the elevated road.

In the rooms of the Alexandra Club this afternoon an interesting event will take place. It will be the presentation to Miss Dolly Sehl of a gold necklace to be given by Mrs. Locke Robertson on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jubilee Hospital and Daughters of Pity. Miss Sehl is shortly to be married, and the ladies are taking advantage of the present opportunity to formally recognize in the manner mentioned the good services which Miss Sehl has rendered.

STORMS IN KANSAS AND TENNESSEE

DAMAGE WILL REACH THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS

Traffic on Santa Fe Railroad Is Interrupted—Cattle on Ranges Are Suffering.

(Associated Press.)
Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 20.—With the rain falling, at times reaching a down-pour, the situation in this section of the state becomes more and more serious. It is estimated that already the flood losses will approximate a quarter of a million of dollars in Shelby county.

Show in Kansas.
Topeka, Kas., Nov. 20.—The storm over this section of Kansas has abated today, dying away with a rainy shower. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe officials report their main line to Atchison, Kansas, open today, but several trains snow-bound on Pan-Handle division, where the snow is four to five feet deep in the cuts. Between Carlsbad, N. M., and Amarillo, Tex., along the Santa Fe line, the worst storm ever known is believed to be now being from 10 to 15 inches deep. Cattle are suffering from the storm all over the state.

Records Broken.
El Paso, Tex., Nov. 19.—Snow has been falling steadily since 7 o'clock last night. It is very cold and as the storm is general in this vicinity heavy damage to live stock and sheep in West Texas and New Mexico is feared. The snow is drifting badly, and at 6 o'clock to-night 8 1/2 inches of snow has fallen, breaking by three inches all records since the establishment of the United States weather bureau, nearly thirty years ago. Reports from several points on the Mexican Central railroad indicate that the storm extends well down into Mexico.

Country Flooded.
Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 19.—Following the wind storm of Saturday night rain has fallen almost continuously throughout this territory and practically the entire district is under water to a depth of several feet and creeks and small streams are leaving their banks.

To add to the seriousness of the situation, the weather is becoming bitterly cold and much suffering is anticipated. From Winona, Maben and Matlacha, Miss., more complete records were received today, a conservative estimate placing the total damage to the three towns at $300,000.

Yule river is out of its banks, the overflow carrying away over ten thousand logs, valued at $100,000. From present indications it is believed that fully $500,000 damage has been done to the roads and turpentine system of this county.

THE TEES ARRIVE.
After a Stormy Voyage From West Coast Loaded With Whale Oil.
The steamer Tees arrived at 2:30 this afternoon from the West Coast and reports a very stormy voyage. She was loaded with fertilizer and whale oil from Sechart. Among the passengers were Messrs. McEwan, of Seattle, and Arnold, of New York, who are interested in the Sutton mill at Mosquito harbor. There were also 14 loggers from Clayoquot on board who have come to Aberdeen on this holiday. They report having got out a large number of logs in readiness for the starting of the big mill. Inspector Busby, of the customs service, was also a passenger. He has been inspecting the offices at Alberni and Port San Juan.

HELD IN ABEYANCE.
Order Dismissing Negro Troops Will Not Be Carried Out For Some Time.
(Associated Press.)
Fort Reno, Okla., Nov. 20.—The order from Washington to hold in abeyance the order discharging the negro troops without honor did not come as a complete surprise at Fort Reno. Military men who have watched the extent of the public feeling against the discharge orders have believed that the war department would delay the carrying out of the project until a further investigation was made. It is believed here that Secretary Taft is responsible for the abeyance order. During his recent trip of inspection of the military posts

It is understood that Gen. W. S. McCaskey, head of the department of Texas, made the secretary thoroughly acquainted with the history of the entire affair at Brownsville. Before the order was received yesterday from Washington twenty-four members of company "B" had already been discharged without honor. The weather was cold and disagreeable, as the soldiers were paid off and dismissed, they were orderly and well behaved. None displayed any ugly feelings. The officers were numb.

CHURCH PROPERTY.
French Officials Employed in Taking Inventories Are Supported by Troops.
(Associated Press.)
Marseille, Nov. 20.—The authorities here by a vote today accomplished the task of taking the inventories of the churches without disorder. Entering the churches and cathedrals before daylight they completed their work before the people had arisen.

Supported by Troops.
Landerneau, Department of Finistere, France, Nov. 20.—Three squadrons of Hussars, a hundred cuirassiers and all the sappers and gendarmes of the district were divided into detachments of 40 yesterday and departed at night to support the officials charged with taking the inventories of the churches.

No Serious Riots Reported.
Paris, Nov. 20.—Although more resistance was reported in the taking of church inventories to-day, no grave incidents occurred, and in only one case, at Ville Longue de La Salangue, where the citizens standing guard for two days, were the authorities balked. When the soldiers battered down the doors of their church at Ville Longue de La Salangue they were driven out by sulphur fumes, and the prefect was compelled to postpone taking the inventory. In most cases the parish priests and bishops, after protesting, yielded to a show of force, but some of the priests defended their churches until the doors were broken down. In hundreds of cases the priests were taken by surprise, the authorities and soldiers arriving before daylight and completing their work before an alarm could be given.

AMBASSADOR TO STATES.
London Paper Urges Appointment of Man of Supreme Ability.
(Associated Press.)
London, Nov. 20.—The Westminster Gazette to-day urges the government to select a man of supreme ability for British ambassador at Washington. The paper declares that Great Britain's former influence and prestige at Washington have been usurped by the German ambassador, adding that Mr. Roosevelt is in more close and more confidential communication with Emperor William than with any other ruler or statesman in Europe.

THREATENS FURTHER CRIMES.
Man Who Killed Professor Declares He Will Commit More Murders.
Naples, Nov. 18.—Save Rio Lagana, who stabbed and killed the famous sociologist Giovanni Rossi, of the University of Naples, in this city on Saturday night, is from Reggio, Calabria. He has been in communication with the police by letter. In a communication to the chief of police and certain colleagues of Professor Rossi, Lagana declares with unconcealed rage that on the occasion of the funeral of his victim, which is set for next Tuesday, he will give an even more disastrous evidence of what he can do. He writes of committing further crimes, for he says: "I will not give myself up to justice before I have killed another professor and a socialist; for I know the socialists accuse me of being a spy in the service of the police."

In view of this warning it has been decided to allot a police escort to each professor in Naples, and Signor Rossi's funeral procession will pass between cordons of troops.

BADLY BUFFETED.
Steamer Burnside, of Tacoma, Has Arrived at Sitka in a Damaged Condition.
"With her deck seams opened, the United States cableship Burnside, Capt. Stamford, which sailed from Tacoma last week with 200 miles of new cable, arrived at Sitka Friday," says the Tacoma News. "She was buffeted about by gales, and at times she was entirely submerged. The cabins filled with water. The firemen tried to pump out the water, but it was with difficulty they were kept at their posts. The voyage, that under ordinary conditions would have taken four days, consumed seven days. The damage to the vessel is considerable, but it is not believed that the laying of the cable will be delayed more than a few days."

MAN WITH THREE LIVES.
Curious Study in Psychology Reported From Pennsylvania.
No stranger case of treble personality could be imagined than an instance from the life of an Englishman abroad, which is recorded on the authority of two American medical men in the latest issue of The Journal of Abnormal Psychology.

The narrator of the facts is Dr. Edward B. Angell, of Rochester, Pennsylvania. They concern the adventures of a young man now 26 six years of age, who left his home in Essex, twelve years ago, for the United States. Within this period he has led a life largely mysterious. Only a small portion of his actual experiences are known beyond question. He has led apparently two kinds of consciousness—one amid the hard human realities, another in the airy realms of fancy. And in these dual forms of existence fact and fiction have become so closely interwoven that the man's history presents to the scientific mind a wonderful study in psychology. Dr. Angell describes it as "a case of double consciousness," in which memory fabricated the second, or illusive existence without any vicious or deceitful design of the man himself.

Briefly, the outline of the story follows: "A frank, open-hearted Englishman, publicly married last Christmas day as Horace Robbins, a young woman of Rochester. On the morrow he was taken ill. On January 20th he left home, and disappeared mysteriously. His bride had no tidings until on January 18th there came a letter from him dated at the Memorial hospital in Sayra, Pa., saying he had been ill and under the care of Dr. Fox. His medical attendant at Rochester, Dr. Vary, hurried to Sayra, where he found there was no Memorial hospital and no Dr. Fox. Twelve hours later he discovered Robbins in a neighboring town. Everything he had written to his wife was without foundation, and he could not now account for his ten days' wanderings. Nor had he any recollection that he had written the letter to her, though when she came he recognized her, and "was much concerned that he had written falsehoods."

Dr. Vary and his wife brought him home and nursed him for a fortnight. He was like a day dreamer, a man hypnotized, occasionally writing business letters and then having spells of delusions, but by February he appeared normal and well.

Then he gave the first story of his life—the first of a contradictory series, which the doctor styles "a modern collection of Canterbury Tales." His home was in Musselburgh, Scotland; his father an army officer, who shot himself through grief; he himself, the sole survivor, emigrated to Canada, enlisted in the Canadian contingent for the Boer war, and afterwards returned via England to the Dominion. Subsequently coming back to England, he awoke one morning in an Edinburgh hospital, and when cured went to new York for his wedding, but lost all his wedding presents.

This tale held good till his aunt, Miss C—, arrived from England and gave glimpses of his real history. His name was not Robbins, but Horace Rawlins. He left England in 1884, and wrote regularly home to his friends until last summer, since which time all their letters to him had been returned unanswered.

Thus confronted, his true story was a puzzle to him, but later he admitted his real name, and recounted a second extraordinary narrative to explain having taken the name of Robbins. He and Horace Robbins graduated from McGill University in engineering and went to Manitoba, where both were ill. Robbins dying and leaving him his property. Then he assumed the name Robbins, and henceforth he lived Robbins' life, with different adventures.

But this story, on inquiry, turned out to be a flight of fancy, his friend Robbins being a myth, but he mixed the fiction up with several matters, such as his wedding, etc., that were undoubtedly true.

As time wore on, and medical attention improved his health, physically and restored normal mentality he committed to writing his final tale, a long narrative, with the proviso "I cannot vouch for all the statements, so I write them knowing they may be either fact or fancy."

His name, he says, is Horace Rawlins, born on March 25th, 1879, at Finchfield, Essex, and his mother, sisters and brothers reside at Cedar road, Hampton Wick, Middlesex.

The neurologist, Dr. Angell, who narrates the case, says: "Dr. Vary and myself are satisfied his tales are but creations of an unstable imagination."

FROM GOLF LINKS TO ALTAIR.

While golfing on Stonehaven Links, Aberdeenshire, the other day Sheriff Mowat saw a motor-car drive up. In it were the sheriff clerk deputy, a young man of twenty-one, and blushing girl of seventeen summers. "We have motored from Aberdeen to get married," the youthful bridegroom explained. And the deputy clerk added that there was no one to perform the ceremony unless Sheriff Mowat obliged. The sheriff at once stopped his game, entered the motor-car, amid a sympathetic cheer from the golfers and caddies, and the ceremony was performed in a hotel.

NEW ASSESSMENT SCHEDULE

Which Has Been Adopted for the Yukon Mining Country.

On January 1st a new schedule that has been arranged for assessment work in the Yukon country will go into effect.

In speaking of this new measure to a Dawson newspaper man Governor McInnes is reported to have said: "This new schedule must not be regarded as a mining revolution in any sense."

As compared with the one advertised under the new code two or three weeks ago, it will be found that many changes have been made in it according to the suggestions of miners that presented to us.

For instance, the cubic yardage has been dispensed with, and the measurements simplified by being reduced to linear feet.

In addition to that we recognize the necessity of allowing a higher rate of drifting from the bottom of the shaft as against tunneling from the surface, and our comparison of the additional cost will, I think, be found to be generous.

"There was an objection raised that only a keystone drill was mentioned. This has been eliminated and the word drill is used, so that any drill can be used. As to the rate we have changed it so that it now reads $2 per running foot in unfrozen ground to $1 per foot in frozen ground."

"Now, inasmuch as shaft sinking is the principal mode by which claims are presented, there has been a little stiffening up, but only to the extent of a little over five feet. At the present $4 (inches) represents a claim. Under this new schedule it will be 40 feet. But the drill will go to 100 feet in unfrozen ground and 50 feet in frozen ground."

STUDING MINES.

Engineer From India is Now Visiting British Columbia Collecting Information.

Nanabhai D. Daru, a prominent mining engineer of Surat, India, is now on the Coast. He is one of the scientific experts India is sending out to take back new ideas to foster the industrial development of that country, and has been thoroughly investigating the mining conditions in Canada, after spending five weeks in England studying at the Royal School of Mines at the London University and at Gray's Inn.

He has spent about a year and a half in Canada, and has visited every province with the exception of Prince Edward Island. Considerable time was spent in the interior of British Columbia, at Rosedale and other mining centres. The extensive information he has collected will be embodied in an official report to his government. India has its own gold, coal, manganese and mica mines, and development in the near future will probably be remarkable. It has a yearly output of about 9,000,000 tons of coal, the mica extracted is equal to the combined output of Canada and the United States, while tungsten ore is the second largest producer in the world. Valuable gold mines are operated in Mysore. But, Mr. Daru thinks, the resources of India have not by any means been fully developed.

New Industries For Montreal—Murderer Sentenced to Death—Highwayman's Victim Succumbs to Wounds.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—The Allan line steamer Bavarian, which went ashore on Wye rocks below Quebec in October, 1905, was successfully floated this evening by wreckers engaged by the underwriters to whom the steamer had been abandoned. She will be taken to Quebec for temporary repairs.

New Industries.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—Montreal will likely in the near future have two large new industries added to its industrial activity. A number of capitalists are negotiating with the Lachine town council for land, etc., upon which to erect a million-dollar cotton mill which will employ seven hundred hands. The company will be owned by the Dominion Textile, Graham Fraser, formerly of the Nova Scotia Steel Company and later of the Dominion Iron & Steel Company, in company with his son and some capitalists working toward the construction of a car wheel plant at Longue Pointe, in which several hundred thousand dollars will be invested and which will furnish employment to a large number of mechanics.

Sentenced to Death.

Winnipeg, Nov. 19.—Chief Justice Howell sentenced Hyak, guilty of manslaughter, to 15 years in the penitentiary, and Marci, guilty of murder, to hang, January 10th.

Died From Wounds.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—Horace W. Grigg, buyer for the whitewear department of the John Murchy Co., Ltd., who was shot by a highwayman last Tuesday evening in Montreal West, died at the General hospital to-day as a result of his wounds. THE LE ROI COMPANY.

Dividend of Two Shillings a Share Has Been Declared.

Roseland, B. C., Nov. 19.—A cablegram received to-day from London states that at a meeting of the Le Roi Mining Company, held there, a dividend of two shillings a share was declared. The report of J. McMillan, managing director, was read and it gave a most favorable account of the condition of the mine. The present dividend is for $100,000, and this, added to what has already been paid, $1,277,000, gives the grand total of $1,477,000. The condition of the mine, with the discovery west of the Josie dyke which makes Le Roi practically a new mine and with the important discoveries of ore in the old workings, is most favorable. There is more ore in the mine than ever in its history. Already its gross yield has been $18,000,000 and the probabilities are that in the next ten years it will yield twice that amount.

THE BURLINGTON ROAD.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 19.—The Bee to-day says: "Within one week the equity which the Northern Pacific now holds in the Burlington will pass into the hands of the Great Northern, and within fifteen days the Burlington and Great Northern will be merged into one system, with James J. Hill in control. This statement was made to a reporter for the Bee to-day by a man closely connected with the official department of the Hill roads, who has just returned from Chicago, where the intricate operations of this gigantic transaction are now being perfected."

INSULTED THE ARMY.

Naples, Nov. 19.—An anarchist made a demonstration against the army here to-day while the Duke of Aosta was distributing prizes to soldiers who distinguished themselves in the relief work during the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in April last. A man named Nicola Fiore, known to be a member of an anarchist organization, threw a package of anti-military newspapers at the regimental standards and at the same time shouted insulting statements directed against the army in general. He was immediately arrested.

TAKING INVENTORIES.

French Prefects Resume Work but Meet With Little Resistance.

Paris, Nov. 19.—The taking of the inventories of the 3,500 churches which were not enforced last spring owing to resistance and disorders, was begun simultaneously throughout France to-day. Troops were everywhere held in readiness to support the prefects, it being the intention of the government not to hesitate before resistance, but no repetition of disorders under the scale of last spring were anticipated, although considerable trouble was feared, especially in the department of Aveyron, Vendee and Finistere.

The first resistance reported was at Pyrennees. The clericals there, after carrying away the sacred emblems, barricaded and locked themselves in the church.

The inventory of the church of St. Augustine was taken without a repetition of the violent demonstrations of last spring, when this church was occupied and held by a determined body of parishioners. Several priests and the churchwarden assisted the government commissioners in the operation to-day. The doors of the edifice were barred and a party of twenty persons who were attending a baptism were turned out. The clergyman conducting the ceremony protested against the commissioner and refused to hand over the books. The officials then burst open the safe, secured the registers and other documents, completed their inventory and retired. They met with no resistance. St. Augustine's is the last church in Paris in which an inventory will have to be made.

Reports from other parts of the country show that few inventories were taken to-day and there was no serious trouble. Most of the day was taken up with military and civil preparations for the prevention of disturbances.

FIRE AT GOLDFIELD.

Three Persons Believed to Have Lost Their Lives.

Goldfield, Nev., Nov. 18.—A fierce fire, swept by a strong wind, completely destroyed the Hotel Goldfield, the leading hotel of the town, possibly cost the lives of three guests, and threatened the destruction of the entire residence part of the town.

The missing, who may have perished, are Judge J. M. Kline, of Denver, Colorado; Mrs. E. J. Kline, of Denver, Colorado; and Mrs. E. J. Kline, of Denver, Colorado. Within twenty minutes after the fire was discovered the entire building, including a three-story addition nearing completion, was enveloped in flames. The fire started at the time but all of the seventy-five guests, except those named, escaped.

C. S. Young, a Los Angeles and San Francisco capitalist, broke his leg in jumping to the ground. E. H. Woods, of Spokane, sustained a sprained leg, and A. H. Kram broke his ankle. The property loss is $100,000, with insurance of $20,000.

GIRLS OF TO-DAY ARE WEAKINGS!

FEW POSSESS THE VITALITY AND GIRLISH BEAUTY OF THE OLDEN TIMES.

Never before was physical health and vigor so highly esteemed and so eagerly sought for as to-day.

No man finds happiness in a sickly wife, and the woman who wishes to enjoy the pleasures of life should spare no effort to maintain perfect health. If your daughter is growing up thin and ruddy? Has she strength to drink so zealously? Or is she compelled to use the street car instead of enjoying the delightful exercise of walking—does she after the ball arise refreshed and vigorous, or is she exhausted, indifferent, and perhaps irritable?

When strength and vigor can be so easily maintained by Ferrone, when the glow of health is so quickly brought to the cheeks and elasticity to the step, it is plainly a mother's duty to see that Ferrone is on hand to assist her daughter back to health.

Upon the wake of Ferrone quickly follows a stream of rich, nourishing blood, which imparts that power and surplus energy so earnestly desired by those in ill-health.

Stop and think what this means for your daughter—certainly a great deal, and it can be accomplished by Ferrone.

Every growing girl and young woman derives enormous benefit in many ways from this nutritive, vitalizing tonic. It is especially suited for young women and is a guarantee of health and regularity as long as it is used.

Ferrone is free from alcohol and perfectly safe to use. Prepared in the form of a chocolate-coated tablet and sold in 50c boxes or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

RULERS OF DENMARK.

King Frederick and Queen Louise Pay First Official Visit to Berlin.

Berlin, Nov. 19.—King Frederick and Queen Louise of Denmark, arrived here to-day from Copenhagen, paying their first official visit after their accession to the throne. They were welcomed at the railway station by the Emperor and Princess Augusta Victoria.

The streets through which the royal party passed were guarded by the whole of the garrison of Berlin, a special act of courtesy on the part of the Emperor. The burgomaster welcomed the visitors at the Brandenburg gate, the King replying to the civic address with a speech of over five minutes.

The carriage of the royal procession contained the Danish minister for foreign affairs, Count Ruden Lovtzen and Countess Lovtzen, formerly Miss Moulton, of Boston, who carried her right arm in a sling. The bone of her arm was broken when she was thrown from her horse in a riding accident at Copenhagen. The Countess was especially included in the Emperor's invitation.

The Danish King and Queen will leave Berlin on Tuesday night.

RAILWAYS RACED TO LOCATE ROUTE

RIVAL CORPORATIONS HAVE LOST NO TIME

Grand Trunk Pacific Achieved Victory Over Canadian Northern in Selection of Yellowhead Pass.

The Edmonton Bulletin referring to the decision of the Grand Trunk Pacific to make the Yellowhead Pass the route through the Rockies says:

"The big railway race to the Yellowhead is over and the Grand Trunk Pacific wins, the Canadian Northern coming in a bad second."

"All doubt as to what route the big transcontinental is going to take to the Pacific ocean was set at rest to-day by a special Ottawa wire received by the Bulletin bringing the news that the Grand Trunk Pacific had selected the Yellowhead pass with the railway department at Ottawa this morning for their route from Edmonton to a point 14 miles to the west of the Yellowhead Pass. The exact point on the British Columbia side of the watershed is not mentioned, but it is probably about Bear Lake, or Yellowhead Lake as it is now called."

"The intermediate portions of the route will not be known until duplicates of the plans filed at Ottawa are received at the registry office here."

"Probably no single feature in the railway history of Canada has been more spectacular and at the same time more quietly and phlegmatically worked out than the railway race for the Yellowhead, which—finished—with the Grand Trunk well in the lead this morning, when plans were filed for the route to a point 14 miles on the British Columbia side of the divide."

"And probably there has never yet been the location of a route on which there was more speculation and guess-work than the Grand Trunk crossing of the continental divide. It is going on toward three years since the fiddle was first propounded: 'What route will the Grand Trunk Pacific take?' And no one in Canada, unless it might be the king-pins of the head office, has ever heard the answer before this morning. Wise ones east, west and south have been guessing and the line has been guessed into place by competent authorities in every known or alleged pass in the Rockies from Kjekling Horse to the Peace river. In Edmonton, however, the question had narrowed down to two passes last spring, the Pine and the Yellowhead, and those who were following the movements of the company's advance guard throughout the summer were morally certain that the latter route was the chosen one, although no one, not even the engineers themselves, positively knew. All summer long the greatest activity on the whole route has been centered on the Yellowhead Pass section of the route. Several parties of surveyors are still in the field and will be there all winter in an effort to get the road surveyed through to the Pacific coast."

"The route which has finally been settled upon is well known. As long ago as 1881 when the Dominion government made a preliminary survey of the Yellowhead, it became known that it was a lower and easier pass than that used by any other railway crossing the continental divide. Its greatest altitude at any point is 3,256 feet, and at no place in the entire crossing does the grade exceed 1 per cent, and that only for a few miles. Almost the entire climb is made on three-tenths of one per cent, and the descent on the other side is of a water grade almost all the way to the Pacific coast."

DIED IN CONSTRUCTION CAMP.

G. V. Gzowski Passed Away After a Short Illness.

The death occurred on November 9th at the construction camp hospital on the line of the Nicola branch of the P. E. of George Vernon Gzowski, who was a member of the engineering staff of Loss, Macdonell & Co., contractors on the Nicola branch. Mr. Gzowski was attacked with pneumonia about a week previous, and was removed to the hospital where everything possible was done to alleviate the patient's sufferings. The attack, however, was too severe and in spite of the best medical attention the deceased passed away after a short illness.

The deceased was 29 years of age and was well known and respected all over the district, while on the construction he was a general favorite, liked by everyone with whom he came in contact.

"The deceased leaves a father, mother and several brothers and sisters to mourn his early loss."

"By the way, old man, could you let me have a liver till to-morrow night?"

"Well, that will do. Source never cuts any figure with me." Milwaukee Sentinel.

A report was received showing the treasury had been enriched by the sum of $16, net proceeds of the bridge tournament held at Rocabella. From various sources it was learned that preparations are being made for a most successful street fancy fair to be held in the drill hall at the end of the month. Robertson and Stuart Robertson was appointed to attend the annual convention of that body to be held shortly.

The Montreal Gazette in a recent issue says: "A song by Frank T. Watkins, who has recently settled in Montreal, has just been issued, entitled 'Love's Seeking.' It contains elements which should make it popular with singers; while it is melodious and effective. Both the accompaniment and voice part are within the capabilities of the amateur, and the professional will find it a good number for his programmes. There are some original harmonic effects in the accompaniment, and the melody is interesting throughout. The words are by Harold Gregory Hart, a well known English tenor, who writes under the name of Harold Gregory. The song is published for low and medium voices."

At Monday's meeting of the city council the three motions to have matters which have already been made public placed before the electors at the next municipal election will be presented over the signature of Ald. Fullerton. These three motions are as follows: "That the opinion of the electors be taken at the forthcoming election for Mayor and aldermen on the question: 'Shall the compulsory audit clause, section 95, Municipal Clauses Act, be applied in this municipality?' "Shall the council appoint honorary park commissioners?" and "Shall all new work be carried out under the provisions of the local improvement general by-law?" When introduced these questions are likely to provoke some discussion, as there is a difference of opinion regarding them in the council. Providing the city solicitor reports that the city can abolish liquor licenses in grocery stores the petition asking that the question of abolition be submitted to a referendum vote will be considered.

E. Middleton, sr., and W. McNeill, to ascertain as speedily and accurately as possible the voting strength of this congregation with a view of rendering it fully available in the forthcoming municipal election."

After about a week a relapse took place which terminated fatally. Mr. Bennett was only 24 years of age.

NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY. Interesting Paper Read on Climatic Conditions of Victoria at Meeting Last Evening.

A well attended meeting of the Natural History Society was held last evening in their rooms in the parliament buildings, the president, E. A. Wallace, presiding. After the usual routine business, J. R. Anderson exhibited some specimens of "Infusorial Earth or Marl," which he had obtained at Windermere. The specimens will be examined and reported on by Mr. Hastings at a future meeting. The paper of the evening was given by A. W. McCurdy, the subject being "Factors Which Modify the Climate of Victoria." The able lecturer drew a careful comparison between the weather conditions prevailing at Victoria and vicinity, and the conditions existing in the Northwest Territories, and also east and west of the Rocky mountains. By the aid of carefully prepared maps and charts he clearly showed that Victoria is the only point on the coast where the winter is mild, from severe climatic disturbances, the probable causes for which he also clearly explained. At the conclusion of the lecture, which was highly interesting and instructive, a cordial vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer, and the meeting adjourned.

EXCITING TRIPS DOWN THE SKEENA

ARRIVAL TELLS OF LOSS OF MAIL BAGS

Occupants of the Canoe Had Narrow Escape From Drowning by Canoe Upsetting.

Particulars of the loss of the mail bags in the Skeena some weeks ago has been received in the city by the arrival here of one of the occupants of the canoe which upset in midstream resulting in the loss of the bags. A. Oldham, who has been spending the summer in the Bulkley valley on survey parties, is at the Dominion. He was one of the three white men who came down the Skeena from Hazelton in the canoe which carried the mail. The late loss of the bags was an exciting one. There were three Indians and three white men, the latter coming out for the winter. At the canyon the water was low and the run-down the channel was not unusually dangerous. It was not until the party neared the mouth of the river that the real danger was encountered. The canoe was going at a lively pace with a fair wind and the Indians in their favor. Mr. Oldham thinks they were probably making 16 or 18 miles an hour at the time they were caught by a gust of wind. With little or no warning the canoe was upturned and everything loose in the craft was immediately swept out of reach. The occupants of the canoe could do nothing except save themselves.

They were about 80 yards perhaps from the shore in icy cold water. The point where the canoe capsized is known as "Hole in the Wall," and there is little chance for making a landing. All managed to escape with their lives. The upturned canoe and proceeded a short distance on it when the craft struck a snag in the river and tore the side out of it. He was then left to reach shore by swimming. He managed to grasp an overhanging limb of a tree and pulled himself out of the water. The others also gained the shore, but practically all the contents of the boat were swept away.

Securing another boat they proceeded a little farther down the stream to an Indian cabin and here they spent the night getting their clothes dried and making ready for the trip to Hazelton. The mail which was all lost was made up, Mr. Oldham thinks, of unregistered mail from Hazelton and interior points. Dr. G. E. Jernyn, of Vancouver, who had spent several months in the Bulkley valley as inspector under the Dominion government for glanders, was one of the occupants of the canoe. His loss of about three-quarters of a dozen records he made during the season and in addition, lost about 1200 or 1400 worth of personal effects. He also scrambled on to the canoe after it capsized. When the boat struck the snag he was caught on it and in order to extricate himself had to strip off his clothes and drift for a mile or more to the shore. He was fortunate in that he had a small valise under the seat of the canoe and it held in place and was recovered later. This contained some records which will assist the doctor in preparing his report.

The remaining member of the white passengers was also one of the surveyors who had been engaged in the Bulkley during the summer with Mr. Oldham. Speaking of the conditions in the Bulkley, Mr. Oldham says that he saw some magnificent specimens of vegetables grown there during the summer. The main difficulty he sees in connection with it is an agricultural district the danger of summer frosts. The trail leading in is also in a deplorable condition and it is a most difficult thing to get supplies into the district. There is the greatest need of better facilities and it is a wonder to him that as many supplies go in as are at present transported when the condition of the trail is taken into account.

ADVISER IS HERE. Rufus Pope is Now in the City—Rumored He Has Political Mission.

Rufus Pope, ex-M. P., is again in the city, having arrived from the seat of his business, it is said. He visited Victoria last winter, it will be remembered, and on account of his important standing with the Conservative party in the east was given a splendid reception by the members of the government and the Conservative members of the legislature, which was then in session. It is rumored that the present trip to the coast has been made by Mr. Pope for the purpose of acting in an advisory capacity with the premier and the members of the government in the present trying situation when Hon. Mr. McBride is endeavoring to make up his mind whether it is safe for him to risk an appeal to the country. Mr. Pope, who has been brought up in the midst of politics, is considered a safe adviser for the premier at this time. He is the son of the late Hon. J. H. Pope, who for many years was a member of the government of the late Sir John A. Macdonald. In addition to this Rufus Pope has himself been a member of the House of Commons. He may therefore be expected to remain in the city until the premier has decided definitely whether to appeal to the country or wait until another session. That decision it is safe to say must be reached very shortly.

The Nippon Yusen Kaisha line is now operating an exclusively freight steamer in connection with its regular trans-Pacific vessels. This vessel, the Ceylon Maru, left Yokohama on November 15th on her first trip in this service, and will be due here on the 29th inst. with a large general cargo, of which 300 tons is destined for this port. The Ceylon Maru has no accommodation for passengers, in which respect she differs from the auxiliary steamers run in connection with the C. P. R. Empresses. She is the first vessel of the kind that has ever been operated by the company.

NOTICE TO MARINERS. The following official notices to mariners have just been issued: G. Blanchard Dodge, hydrographic surveyor, reports an uncharted rock to be called Falcon rock in the entrance to Prince Rupert harbor, the prospective terminus of the Grand Trunk-Pacific railway. Over the rock is a least depth of 29 feet of water at ordinary low water, spring tides, and from it the light off Lima point bears N. 65 degrees W., distant 1.550 yards. It is to be noted that the rock off Lima point is farther west than shown on Admiralty chart No. 2,453.

Mr. Dodge also reports Jenner rock, with a least depth of 26 feet of water over it, lying S. 68 degrees 30 minutes E. from the light off Lima point, distant 2,300 yards. To lead south of these rocks two white beacons have been erected, one on the top of Coast island and the other on the mainland east of it. These two in line, bearing N. 25 degrees E. lead 700 yards south of Kestrel rock and 350 yards south of Jenner rock, up to within 500 yards of Coast island. Another rock with 9 feet least water over it bears N. 67 1/2 degrees W. distant 3 1/2 cables from the top of Greenport rock in Chatham sound. This is evidently the shoalest part of an old 3-fathom patch.

Marion rock, awash at H. W. springs, lies west 2 1/2 cables from the middle of the northwest side of the west Kichan island. Green rock, between Holland island and Greenport rock, with four feet least water on it, is situated S. 79 degrees W. 3 1/2 cables from the westernmost part of Holland island. This is evidently a wrongly charted rock with 9 feet of water over it. Dorothy rock, between Holland island and Greenport rock, with 4 feet least water on it, bears S. 79 degrees W. 6 1/2 cables from the nearest part of Holland island and N. 65 degrees E. one nautical mile from the nearest part of Greenport rock; it is evidently a wrongly charted rock with 9 feet of water over it.

The rebuilding of Cape Beale light-house tower, referred to in notice to mariners No. 101 (246) of 1906, has been completed, and the permanent light was re-exhibited from the new tower on the 17th October, 1906, the temporary light discontinued, and the mast removed. The tower is similar in size and position to the old one and stands on the old foundation. The old illuminating apparatus is in use, showing a revolving white light every 30 seconds, with a red sector showing over the dangers in Barkley sound, between the bearings of E. and S. E. It is intended in 1907 to replace the present light by a modern quick flashing light.

POPULAR SHIPS. A Montreal dispatch says: "The popularity of the C. P. R. Atlantic Empresses was emphasized by the unusually large passenger list of the Empress of Britain sailing from Quebec on Friday last. She carried out 722 passengers—a record number for autumn sailings from Canada. In fact, this number was exceeded only upon one occasion, that being the sailing of the same steamer on June 23rd last with 775 passengers."

MARINE NOTES. Steamer Tees will sail to-morrow night instead of to-night for West Coast ports. On this voyage she will continue her voyage to Cape Scott. The steamer Besse-Dollar arrived at midnight from San Francisco with cargo for the Victoria Chemical Works. The steamer Hercules came in from San Francisco this morning on her way to the coal mines for cargo.

THE DUTIES OF GOOD CITIZENS

INTERESTING DISCOURSES IN CHURCHES OF VICTORIA

Request of Ministerial Association Generally Complied With—Synopsis of Two Sermons.

At the request of the Ministerial Association sermons were delivered on Sunday in city churches on the subject "The Duties of Good Citizens."

At the First Presbyterian church in the morning, the Rev. Dr. Campbell preached on "Good Citizenship" to an attentive congregation. He said that Canada had thrown open her doors to the hand-workers of the Mother Land, and other nations of Europe, and had done much in many ways to improve the condition of the laboring classes, who if they embraced their opportunities, should become the backbone of the church and the state, in the pulpit and in the pew, in the legislative halls, and centres of industry. The church should awaken to her great work of elevating and establishing a "high standard of Christian citizenship" among artisans, mechanics, and other hand-laborers, who are drifting away from the influence of the church, because the church of to-day is dragging her anchor and drifting away from the common people who heard Christ gladly when He was here on earth. The church should leave nothing undone to gain and hold the confidence of the common people, for when the idea gets crystallized in their mind that the church is only for the rich and well-to-do, it will be impossible to bring them under the influence of the means of grace, which result shall be calamitous to the state, for on the faithfulness of the church to her mission depends the prosperity and safety of the state. When the church loses her hold on the common people, a gulf is gradually being dug between them and the more wealthy stratum of the citizens, and in time rebellion and revolution and war shall be in the atmosphere, and may at any moment materialize. The history of Italy, of Germany, of Great Britain and of Russia holds this as a danger-signal. Every nation should aim by its constitution to raise the lower or working classes, which in a sense is the vital work of the Christian church, for whatever makes men good at heart and in life produces good citizenship. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is the true philosopher's stone to make men good citizens. Let the church come back to first principles, and keep hold of the common people with whom Christ associated Himself, and there shall be no danger of there being anything but good citizenship. The key to the all that is desired is the hand of the church, and on her faithfulness rests the weal or woe of the community.

At Christ church cathedral, in the evening Canon Beauland preached on the same subject. In the course of his sermon, he said:

"It has always seemed to me a radical defect in municipal life that there is so little inclination to treat municipal office with respect. A man who honestly believes that God has endowed him with certain gifts which he may worthily put at the disposal of his fellows and freely devote to the best interests of the community is to be warned—if he be not already aware of it—that no matter what pains he takes, no matter what talents he employ, the citizens as a whole will pay him no sort of honor while he tries, and will neglect his memory when he is dead. Our cemetery wherein the citizens of a bygone generation be dishonored and unknown, forms a fitting parable to the passer by of the fate of those who have sought in their day to do their duty by their fellow men. Strange that we who make our boast of the justice and integrity which has raised our nation above many others should seem to take a pleasure in neglecting the same reward of contempt-to the worst as to the basest of men. But office itself is so despised! It is only in the regalia of benevolent societies that honorable insignia meet with recognition and respect. Surely the whole is greater than its parts? The mayor and council of a city should be more honored than the master and executive of a lodge. Why do not Christian citizens render unto Caesar the things which he Caesar's, instead of treating the office they have themselves created as something more despicable than a purely private and selfish position?"

"No wonder if under such circumstances, men upon this continent often set just the masters they deserve, since the honest and capable shrink from exposing themselves to insults which the fool does not feel, and for which the knave knows how to compensate himself by boodle and graft. Show him my brethren that office is honorable, in your eyes and honorable men will take it. And because you differ in opinion upon some matter with those that you yourselves have chosen to do your civic work for you, do not smirch their characters by vile imputations or belabor them with abuse

CONSUMPTIVE SANITORIUM BUILDING FUND.

One hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) asked for fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) needed, to entitle a committee to Hon. James Dunsmuir's grant of ten thousand dollars ($10,000).

Is a Consumptive Sanatorium needed? During the month of September of this year a boy nineteen years old became consumptive. He lived in a hotel and was dependent on his own efforts as a laborer. As a result of his disease he was turned out of three hotels and refused admission to a public hospital. The boy is now dead. A man who befriended the boy wrote as follows: "God have mercy on us for our neglect of such cases." Need we further ask, is this institution needed?

The death-roll from consumption in Canada exceeds twelve thousand yearly, and in British Columbia it is over two hundred.

The number of persons invalided from consumption is authoritatively estimated to be five times as great as the number of deaths therefrom; therefore, we have some sixty thousand invalids in Canada, and a thousand in British Columbia.

We have, therefore, before us the appalling fact that yearly we lose the benefit of the services and earning powers of thousands of citizens who are incapacitated by illness, and others we lose outright by death, through this one cause—and that a preventable cause. This is something to set political economists thinking very seriously. It is a responsibility too great to be measured by mere figures, or described in mere language.

No fanciful theories, untried methods, or mere experiments are proposed. The simple, God-given remedies, viz., fresh air, suitable food, rest and exercise, under expert supervision, and suitable cheerful surroundings, have more than proved their efficiency. Practically speaking, these requisites are obtainable only in a sanatorium.

A further advantage connected with such an institution is that the admission of a patient means the removal of one source of contagion from the general community; and when, after treatment, such person is returned cured, or otherwise, to the ranks of the public, he or she is an educational centre of first importance, because the first principle impressed on a patient on entering a sanatorium is the care he should exercise in his personal habits; the necessity for cleanliness, for care in disposal of anything about him which would spread, or even be likely to spread, contagion; in a word, he is persistently taught to move and live so that no other human being shall be likely, in the remotest sense, to suffer on account of any thoughtlessness on his part in the care of himself. Such a person, when discharged from the institution, is, by his training in the sanatorium, not only impressed with the necessity for continuing such caution, but, because of his knowledge so gained, becomes in his family and general surroundings an educational influence infinitely more effective than all the literature and arguments of physicians and authorities on the subject.

The conditions as to consumption are not only fully understood, but are well recognized, and it is now an accepted fact that consumption is preventable and may be cured, or its course arrested. That being so, inaction is, to say the least, criminal. It is our duty to endeavor, in any case, to stem the progress of this sacrifice of human beings.

It is proposed to build a sanatorium in British Columbia. The Provincial Government are prepared to assist, and the people generally, through local societies formed all over the country, are willing to maintain. You are asked to help us to build. Action, immediate action, is imperative, if we wish to stem this awful tide of mortality. To stand idly by any longer is tantamount to being willing participants in something worse than race suicide.

TEA SUPERSTITIONS.

There are a good many superstitions current about tea; here are a few of them: When the tea being infused, the lid of the pot is forgotten, and left off for a few minutes, it is said that somebody will certainly drop in for the meal. If two spoons are accidentally put into the saucer of a bachelor or a maid, it is a sign that the person will be married within a year. Putting cream into your tea before you add the sugar is supposed to cause love troubles.

A tea stalk floating in a girl's cup is a "beau." Some people opine that the best thing to do is to secure him by swallowing the tea stalk as quickly as possible. Others, however, hold that the right course for her to take is to stir her tea briskly, and then to hold her spoon upright in the centre of the cup.

If the stalk be attracted to the spoon and cling to it, a gentleman visitor may be expected; during the evening; if however, it go to the side of the cup the visitor will not come that day.—London Sun.

RAGGING.

A Way They Have in the Army.

By Haladane Macfall, in London Chronicle.

This ragging in the army is a much more serious subject than it appears to the giggling crowd who read its crude humor. Behind it is the danger of blasting the bed-rock of that discipline on which the very efficiency of the army rests.

There are two kinds of ragging—the one is good-natured horseplay and harmless as peppermint; the other is a venomous and cowardly business, and no punishment is too severe for it—the officers who take part in it, and their seniors who countenance it, should be cashiered, and for cowardice. Nothing else will cure the disease; and it deserves no milder treatment.

First, as to the horseplay in the army, nothing could be more innocent. Good-humored practical jokes, the one upon the other, without an ounce of venom or ill-nature, perpetrated on one's best comrades, never upon a man who is not hitting it off with his fellows, are the basis of the "tomfoolery."

I recall many a ridiculous frolic in which I was under-dog—many in which I started as under-dog and came out top-dog.

The Good-Natured Type. He is a lucky youngster who has the good fortune to join a regiment in which "no ragging of the unpopular" is the unwritten law. However to our good-natured ragging; laughter should be the sole end.

I remember, one night in camp, seeing a youngster, whom they called Stingo, leaving his tent to go to his mess after writing up some duty scrip—in find the boys in wild career. The feet was in, and the red-coats and blue-jackets were in "high spirits"—claret and soda water were not in favor when the feet was in. The fun was fast and furious.

down upon the crafty Stingo again. Stingo arranged his fall dramatically, so that they should pitch together into the laps of three naval subalterns.

And they pitched. The Markiss gurgled with joy. He sat on Stingo's chest, tore the two scales (or fringed "epaulettes") from his shoulders, and holding them aloft with dangling strips of scarlet mess-jacket hanging therefrom, he hewed victory.

As Stingo shot him on to the floor, he got one of the Markiss's own scales away. What was left of those two mess-jackets at the end of the business was not worth cleaning lamps with.

When they stood up, brown and dusty, the Markiss said: "Now, I think I'll go and put on my best mess-jacket." Stingo took off the shreds of the one he wore and handed it to the Markiss: "That'll do," said he.

The Markiss laughed the loudest of them all, even though he laughed somewhat wryly. This may have been rough ragging enough.

An Incident. But ragging is another thing—an ugly and sinister thing—when ill-nature enters into the business.

I remember well the sour beginning of such a rag being brought to naught by the wit of a youngster. At a musketry school were gathered together officers from many regiments. One affected youth known to the service as "Satchel" was one of several officers whom "Little Bob" had sent to the rear because they had had a distaste to go to the front when the bugles sounded the advance at the Peiwar Khotal.

Now this Satchel, who, odd to say, had a following, turned his dislike upon a young West India subaltern; and having intrigued to get him ragged he said, offensively, at mess one night: "Bludge of ours is an awful cad—and we're going to hustle him out of the regiment—draw him till his life ain't worth living—and paint the West India regiment all over his baggage."

There was a tense silence; and all eyes turned to the boy in the West India regiment, who said, slowly: "Why don't you address his baggage to the Peiwar Khotal?" That rag fell through. There is a type of ragging in which no man can take part and not suffer cool to his good name. It is an approved maxim throughout the civilized world that if two men attack one they are playing the cur's part. When a man gathers others to help him to vent his spite upon another, he commits a foul act that no ingenuity of a bully's brain can rid of the charge of cowardice. There is no excuse, no palliation for it.

Bullying. If an officer in a regiment, by his bearing or acts, arouses the dislike of his fellows, it is easy enough to give him the cold shoulder. Only too often, however, that man is the best man and the best soldier in the regiment. To refuse to be a nincompoop with other nincompoops is his most manly claim to honor.

the cur's act—and their combination is their sole support. This is bad enough in itself. But they commit a breach of the civil law, an assault upon a defenceless man—and that man also one who bears their king's commission. They thereby deface their own commissions from the king; which they hold on terms which leave their duty to the king in no doubt.

They generally further defile their honor by committing an indecent assault in stripping their victim, and putting the foulest indignities upon him. In the civil courts they would receive a term of imprisonment for this act.

They render the authority of the man they degrade a thing of utter contempt; the men over whom their king has deliberately set him.

Such men should be drummed out of the army at the earliest opportunity, for they are not worth the parchment on which their commissions are written. On committing so grave an act, they should be at once put under arrest for cowardice, tried for cowardice, and cashiered the service for cowardice.

The land has no lack of men qualified by manhood and a high code of honor to bear with dignity and with capacity and courage the rank of an officer and a gentleman.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

Some years ago, when the present Queen of England was Princess of Wales and her children were very small, they were staying at a quiet watering-place. Once, on returning from a short sail, one of the little Princesses was walking up the plank. An old sailor instinctively said: "Take care, little lady!"

The child drew herself up haughtily and said: "I'm not a lady, I'm a Princess." The Princess of Wales, who overheard the kindly injunction and the rather ill-bred reply, said quickly: "Tell the good sailor you are not a little lady yet, but you hope to be some day."—Montreal Star.

LOOKS GOOD FOR THE HIGH SCHOOL

VICTORY AT BASKETBALL MAKES BOYS CONFIDENT

The City League Meets To-Night—Y. M. C. A. Tournament—Items of Local Interest.

PICTURES FOR TONIGHT

7:30—Harriers—Y. M. C. A. hold regular run from association rooms.

8:00—City—Basketball—League Annual meeting, election of officers and consideration of season's schedule.

"It looks good for the High school. The team has wonderfully improved since last season."

The first half was extremely one-sided. Every time the ball got dangerously near the high school goal...

On the opening of the second half there was a change made in the High school five. Erb, the regular forward, was in his position, Campbell retiring.

When the High school team goes to Vancouver on Saturday, it will be by an extremely strong aggregation, as they are certain to give a good account of themselves.

NO MATCH WEDNESDAY. The basketball match, set for Wednesday night between Peden's team of the Y. M. C. A. league and the Fernwood Juniors, has been put off for a few days owing to the inability of several members to attend on that day.

CITY LEAGUE MEETING. The meeting to be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-night to elect officers for the ensuing year in the City Basketball League will be well attended.

FIFTH REGIMENT. All members of the Fifth Regiment who intend joining the Harriers' Club are requested to be on hand in the drill hall to-morrow at 3 p.m. sharp.

THE RIFLE. VANCOUVER JUNIORS. Last week the Vancouver public schools junior rifle teams showed up splendidly. All shot well, and two of them, G. Alexander and T. Cross, came within one of the possible. There is keen competition for the blue-eye medals presented by Sgt.-Major Bundy.

PAY MORE AND GET THE BEST. A cheap flashy burning corn remedy is never satisfactory. The best is Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, which is guaranteed to cure thoroughly.

though the first half was much in favor of Peden's five, 19 to 9, Whyte bucked up, and, at the finish, the score stood 25 to 24 in favor of Peden.

WESTMINSTER THROWN DOWN

Comment on the following correspondence is unnecessary. If nothing else can be done for amateur lacrosse, why not extend the scope of the Kilmarnock cup and make it the emblem of amateur supremacy? These are the letters:

P. D. Ross, Esq., Secretary Minto Cup Committee, Ottawa:

Dear Sir:—As a representative of the New Westminster Lacrosse Club, which has been champion of British Columbia for years, I beg to request the trustees of the cup to either put up the cup for competition between amateur lacrosse association champions on neutral grounds as set down in the rules, or put it in the hands of the Westminster Lacrosse Association, which has earned the right to hold it.

In pressing our claims, we wish to point out that we have defeated all known champions of the N. L. A. from 1902 to the present year, with the exception of the N. L. A. champion of 1905, who was defeated in the details of which can be furnished you if you require them.

The following letter has been received in reply: H. Ryall, Esq., Secretary New Westminster Lacrosse Club:

Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of your favor of Oct. 30th, and beg to state that the principle English method of allowing professionals to play with amateurs in contest for the Minto cup, and the trustees would not at present raise that question, or consider making any change in the location of the cup.

ROUTINE MATTERS AT COUNCIL MEETING

MUCH TIME SPENT ON GENERAL BUSINESS

Petition Asking Referendum Vote on Abolition of Grocery Store Liquor Licenses Is Presented.

A long time was spent at last night's meeting of the city council in dealing with routine matters. In fact, but for the short debate on the Mayor's new by-law an account of which appears in another column, the meeting was devoted to the transaction of general business.

A communication was received from the minister of marine and fisheries stating that the title to the waterfront at the foot of Davago street had been proved, and asked the city to forward a plan.

The provincial secretary acknowledged the receipt of a copy of the life-saving memorial. This was received and filed.

H. Bovey, secretary of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, wrote saying that if the council had any matters which they wished to submit in the form of amendments at the next session of the legislature, such amendments should be forwarded to him on or before December 20th.

J. R. Tabot submitted an offer of $5,000 for the 18 lots, block 30, James Bay, owned by the city and encircled a cheque for $100. The terms he desired were to extend over three years.

After some discussion the letter was laid on the table for a week. Mr. Phillips and Heisterman wrote asking that the Catholic cemetery be surveyed. Referred to cemetery committee.

George A. Morphy wrote as follows: On behalf of Jas. Hillson, W. L. Dupon, O. Vaughan, Wm. Neil and Gustave Moreman, I beg to submit to you the following facts: These gentlemen have all received notices, copies of which are enclosed herewith, demanding payment of road tax for which each of them hold a receipt, and which I am prepared to produce at any time.

The city solicitor reported that permission had been granted by the provincial government to extend Richardson street through the government house property on St. Charles street. Referred to streets, sewers and bridges committee.

The city solicitor also reported that he had examined the titles to the property, which was purchased for the North Ward park and had found them complete. He requested that the clerk be handed a cheque to pay for same. Adopted.

The same official reported that he had examined the deed of property submitted by R. Jackson, and had found same complete. He recommended that it be accepted.

The residents of North Pembroke street petitioned for a light to be placed in the neighborhood of the W. C. T. U. home. Referred to the electric light committee.

The finance committee presented a report containing accounts totalling $3,024, which were ordered paid.

Following is the report of the streets, sewers and bridges committee, which was adopted:

Your streets, bridges and sewers committee, having considered the undermentioned subjects, beg to report and recommend as follows:

Recommended that a culvert be put in at Speed avenue, at an estimated cost of a sum not exceeding $100.

Re complaint of Mr. C. J. Brown, Hereward street. Recommended that a pipe drain be laid at a cost not to exceed $100.

Recommended that a pipe drain be laid on Cedar Hill road, near Oakland avenue, at a cost not to exceed $25.

Recommended that a sidewalk be laid on Shakespeare street, east side, from North Pembroke street north, at an estimated cost of $50.

Recommended that a sidewalk be laid down on Esquimalt street, north side, at an estimated cost of $100.

Recommended that the amount paid for the lots (portion of the Cameron property) by R. Jackson be expended on grading and macadamizing Government street between Michigan and Toronto streets; also that the sewer be laid, and that a report for permanent sidewalks be prepared.

Recommended that portion of Pembroke street, east side, be macadamized to connect with Maple street, at a cost of $125.

BY GEORGE DOUGLAS.

And that, on a lower level, was what whiskey did. He had no conception of what Tam really meant—there were people indeed who used to think that Tam never knew what he meant himself. They were as little able as Gourlay to appreciate the mystic, through the radiant haze of whose mind thoughts loomed on you sudden and big, like mountain tops in a sunny mist, the grander for their dimness. But Gourlay, though he could not understand, felt the fortitude of whiskey was somehow akin to the fortitude described. In the increased vitality it gave, he was able to tread down the world. If he walked on a wretched day in a wretched street, when he happened to be sober, his mind was bitter and you in a thousand perceptions and a thousand fears, fastening to (and fastened to) each sound thing around. But with whiskey humming in his blood, he paced onward in a happy dream. The wretched puddles by the way, the rowning rookeries where misery reigned, the melancholy noises of the street, were passed heedless by. His distracted powers rallied home; he was concentrate, his own man again, the hero of his own mind. For, like all weak men of a vivid fancy, he was constantly framing dramas of which he was the towering hero. The weakling who never "downed" men in reality, was always "downing" them in thought. His imaginary triumphs consoled him for his actual rebuffs. As he walked in a tipsy dream, he was "standing up" to somebody, hurling his father's phrases at him, making short work of him! If imagination failed, the nearest tavern supplied a remedy, and flushed it to a radiant glow. Whereupon he had become the master of his world, and not its slave.

"Just imagine," he thought, "what key doing for me what philosophy seems to do for Tam. It's a wonderful thing, the drink!"

His second session wore on, and when near its close, Tam gave out the subject for the Raeburn.

The Raeburn was a poor enough prize, a few books for an "essay in the picturesque," but it had a peculiar interest for the folk of Barbie. Twenty years ago it was won four years in succession by men from the valley, and the unusual run of luck fixed it in their minds. Thereafter when an unsuccessful candidate returned to his home, he was sure to be asked very pointedly, "Who won the Raeburn the year?" to rub into him their perception that he at least had been a failure. A booby would dander slowly up, saying, "Aye, man, ye've won hame!" then, having mused awhile, would casually ask, "By-the-by, who won the Raeburn the year?"—Oh, it was a Perthshire man! It used to come out airt, but we've seen to have lost the knack o't. Oh, ye see, sir, Barbie bred writers in those days, but the breed seems to have decayed." Then he would murmur dreamily, as if talking to himself, "Jack Goudie was the last that got it hiferya. But he was a clever chap."

The caustic booby would dander away with a grin, leaving a poor writhing soul. When he reached the Cross, he would tell the Deacon blithely of the "fine one he had given him," and the Deacon would lie in wait to give him a fine one, too. Barbie, at least, your returning student is never met at the station with a brass band, whatever may happen in more emotional districts of the North, where it pleases them to shed the tear.

"An Arctic Night" was the inspiring theme which Tam set for the Raeburn. "A very appropriate subject" laughed the fellows; "quite in the style of his own lectures." For Tam, though wise and a humorist, had his prosy hours. He used to lecture on the "verses of Lapland" with figures and leagues across a darkling plain, dark itself and little and lonely in the gloomy splendour of a northern sky. A ship put to sea, and Gourlay heard in his ears the skirl of the man who went overboard—struck dead by the icy water on his brow, which smote the brain like a tomahawk.

He put his hand to his own brow where he wore that, and "Yes," he cried eagerly, "it would be the cold would kill the brain! Oh-oh, how it would go in!"

A wail of ice groaned round him in the night; bergs ground on each other and were rent in pain; he heard the splash of great fragments tumbled in the deep, and felt the waves of their distant falling lift the vessel beneath him in the darkness. To the long desolate night came a desolate dawn, and eyes were dazed by the encircling whiteness; yet there flashed green slanting chasms in the ice, and towering pinnacles of sudden rose, lonely and far away. An unknown sea beat upon an unknown shore, and the ship drifted on the pathless waters, a white dead man at the helm.

"Yes," by heaven," cried Gourlay. "I can see it all, I can see it all—that fellow standing at the helm, frozen white and as stiff as an icicle!"

Yet, do what he might, he was unable to fill more than half a dozen small pages. He hesitated whether he should send them in, and held them in his ink-fingers, thinking he would burn them. He was full of pity for his own inability. "I wish I was a clever chap," he said mournfully.

"Ach, well, I'll try my luck," he muttered at last, "though Tam may gey me before the whole class, for doing so little o't."

The Professor, however (unlike the majority of Scotch professors), rated quality higher than quantity.

"I have learned a great deal myself," he announced on the last day of the session, "I have learned a great deal myself from the papers sent in on the subject of an 'Arctic Night.'"

"Hear, hear!" said an insolent student at the back.

"Where, where?" asked the Professor, "stand up, sir!"

A gigantic Borderer rose blushing in to view, and was greeted with howls of derision by his fellows. Tam eyed him, and he winced.

"You will apologize in my private room at the end of the hour," said Aquinas, as the students used to call him. "Learn that this is not a place to brag in."

The giant slunk down, trying to hide himself.

"Yes," said Tam, "I have learned what a poor sense of proportion some of you students seem to have. It was not to see who could write the most, but who could write the best, that I set the theme. One gentleman—he has been careful to give me his full name and address—twinkled Tam, and picking up a huge manuscript he read it from the outer page—Mr. Alexander MacTavish, of Benmaestronach, near Auchanaper-hoolish, in the island of South Uist, has sent me in no less than a hundred and fifty-three closely written pages! I daresay it's the size of the adjectives he uses, that makes the thing so heavy," quote Tam, and dropped it thudding on his desk. "Life is short, the art of the MacTavish boys, and to tell the truth, gentlemen, he gloomed at them humorously—"to tell the truth, I stuck in the middle o't!" (Roars of laughter, and a reproving voice, "Oh, ye pold Mac-Tavish! whereat there was pandemonium.) MacTavish was heard to groan, "Oh, why did I leave my home," to which a "Aye, man, ye've won hame!" then, having mused awhile, would casually ask, "By-the-by, who won the Raeburn the year?"—Oh, it was a Perthshire man! It used to come out airt, but we've seen to have lost the knack o't. Oh, ye see, sir, Barbie bred writers in those days, but the breed seems to have decayed." Then he would murmur dreamily, as if talking to himself, "Jack Goudie was the last that got it hiferya. But he was a clever chap."

When the tumult and the shouting died, Tam resumed with a quiver in his voice, for "a pold MacTavish" had tickled him too. "Now, gentlemen," he said, "don't judge essays by their weight, though I've told you sometimes tursie that that method in Glasgow!"

(Groans for the rival University, cries of "Oh-oh-oh!" and a weary wail, "Don't mention that place—it makes me feel quite ill.")

The Professor allayed the tumult with dissuasive palm.

"I believe," he said drily, "you call that noise of yours 'the College Tramp,' in the Senate we speak o't as 'the Cuddies' Trudge.'—Now, gentlemen, I'm not unwilling to allow a little noise on the last day of the session, but really you must behave more quietly. So little does that method of judging essays commend itself to me, I may tell you, that the sketch which I consider the best barely runs to half a dozen short pages."

Young Gourlay's heart gave a leap within him; he felt it thudding on his ribs. The skin crept on him, and he breathed with quivering nostrils. Gillespie wondered why his breast heaved.

"It's a curious sketch," said the Professor. "It contains a serious blunder in grammar, and several mistakes in spelling, but it shows, in some ways, a wonderful imagination."

"Ho, ho!" thought Gourlay.

"Of course there are various kinds of imagination," said Tam. "In its lowest form it merely recalls something which the eyes have already seen, and brings it vividly before the mind. A higher form pictures something which you never saw, but only conceived as a possible existence. Then there's the imagination which not only sees but hears—actually hears what a man would say on a given occasion, and entering into his blood, tells you exactly why he does it. The highest form is both creative and consecutive, if I may use the word, merging in diviner thought. It radiates the world. Of that high power there is no evidence in the essay before me. To be sure there was little occasion for its use."

Young Gourlay's thermometer went down.

"Indeed," said Aquinas, "there's a curious want of bigness in the sketch—no large nobility of phrasing. It is written in gassy little sentences, and each sentence begins 'and'—and—'and,' like a schoolboy's narrative. It's as if a number of impressions had seized the writer's mind, which he jotted down hurriedly, lest they should escape him. But, just because it's so little wordy, it gets the effect of the thing—fairly, says, it's right on to the end of it every time! The writing of some folk is nothing but a froth of words—lucky if it distends without, like a blobber of iridescent foam. But in this sketch there's a perception at the back of every sentence. It displays indeed, too nervous a sense of the external world."

"Name, name!" cried the students, who were being deliberately worked by Tam to high pitch of curiosity.

"I would strongly impress on the writer," said the shepherd, heedless of his bleating sheep, "I would strongly impress on the writer, to set himself down for a spell of real hard solid and deliberate thought. That almost morbid reception, with philosophy to back it, might create an opulent and vivid mind. Without philosophy, it would bring thought the material to work on. Without philosophy, it would simply distract and irritate the mind.

"Name, name!" cried the fellows.

"The winner of the Raeburn," said Thomas Aquinas, "is Mr. John Gourlay."

Gourlay and his friends made for the nearest public house. The occasion, they thought, justified a drink. The others chafed, Gourlay about Tam's advice.

"You know, Jack," said Gillespie, mimicking the sage, "what you have got to do next summer is to set yourself down for a spell of real, hard, solid and deliberate thought. That was Tam's advice, you know."

"Him and his advice!" said Gourlay.

CHAPTER XIX.

There were only four other passengers dropped by the 11 o'clock express at Skegban station, and as it happened, young Gourlay knew them all. They were petty merchants of the neighborhood whom he had often seen about Barbie. The sight of their remembered faces, as he stepped on to the platform, gave him a delightful sense that he was nearing home. He had passed from the careless world where he was nobody at all, to the familiar circle where he was somebody, a mentioned man, and the son of a mentioned man—Mr. Gourlay.

He had a feeling of superiority to the others, too, because they were mere local journeymen while he had travelled all the way from mighty Edinburgh by the late express. He was returning from the outer world while they were bits of bodies who had only been to Fechar's. As Edinburgh was to Fechar's so was he to them. Round his neck was the halo of distance and the mystery of night-travelling. He felt big.

"Have you a match, Robert?" he asked very graciously of Robin Gregg, one of the porters whom he knew. Getting his match, he lit a cigarette; and when it was lit, after one quick puff, turned it swiftly round to examine its burning end. "Reasonable," he said, and threw it away to light another. The porters were watching him, and he knew it. When the station-master appeared yawning from his office, as he was passing through the gate, and asked who it was, it flattered his vanity to hear Robin's answer, that it was young Mr. Gourlay, of Barbie, just back from the University.

He had been so hot for home that he had left Edinburgh at twilight, too eager to wait for the morrow. There was no train for Barbie at this hour of the night; and, of course, there was no gig to meet him. Even if he had sent word of his coming, there'd be no need for travelling so late. Old Gourlay would have growled—"let him shank it! We're in no hurry to have him home."

He set off briskly, eager to see his mother and tell her he had won the Raeburn. The consciousness of his achievement danced in his blood, and made the road light to his feet. His thoughts were not with the country round him, but entirely in the moment of his entrance, when he should proclaim his triumph with proud enjoyment of his mother's pride. His fancy swept to his journey's end, and took his body after, so that the long way was as nothing, annihilated by the leap forward of his mind.

He was too vain, too full of himself and his petty triumph, to have room for the beauty of the night. The sky was one sea of lit clouds, foamy ridges upon ridge over all the heavens, and each wave was brimming with its own whiteness, seeming unbordered, of the moon. Through one petty nook, and only one, shone a distant star, a faint white speck far away, dimmed by the nearer splendors of the sky. Some-times the thinning edge of a cloud brightened in spume, and round "the brightness came a circle of amber, making a window of fantastic glory for Dian the queen; there her white vision peeped for a moment on the world—and the next she hid behind a fleecy veil, witching the heavens. Gourlay was alone with the wonder of the night. The light from above him was softened in a myriad tints, no longer mere light and cold, but a spirit indwelling as their soul, and they were boughs no longer but a woven dream. He walked beneath a shadowed glory. But he was dead to it all. One only fact possessed him. He had won the Raeburn, he had won the Raeburn!

The road flew beneath him. Almost before he was aware, the mean grey streets of Barbie had clipped him round. He stopped, panting from the hurry of his walk, and looked at the quiet houses, all still among the gloom. He realized with a sudden pride that he alone was in conscious possession of the town. Barbie existed to no other mind. All the others were asleep; while he had a thrilling consciousness of them, and of their future attitude to him, they did not know that he, the returning great one, was present in their midst. They all knew of the Raeburn, however, and ere long they would know that it was his. He

AT THE THEATRES.
 Harry Beresford, Will Appear at the Victoria To-morrow-Benefit Week at Empire.

"Since I have been playing in 'The Woman Hater,'" says Harry Beresford, who will appear at the Victoria theatre to-morrow evening, "I have often thought of a remark once made to me by a well known society woman. 'I always smile,' said she, 'when I hear of a man who abuses my sex and proclaims himself as a woman hater, for I know so certainly that sooner or later that man will be led to the altar as submissively as a lamb. Indeed, it is an exaggeration to say that many of the most dutiful and devoted husbands of my acquaintance have graduated into matrimony from a condition of undisguised antagonism to the fair sex.'"

"I really think that the lady is correct. The real crusted attitude in the Laodicean who never gives a serious thought to woman, either one way or the other. It is always a sign of weakness and susceptibility when a man takes the trouble to proclaim himself a woman hater. He is like the attorney who abuses his opponent when he knows that he is going to lose his case. I have known lots of such men and they have always met the same fate. Really apron strings were invented for just such men."

"They tell me you are a woman hater," said a pretty, dimpled, little friend of mine to a very handsome scroffer at marriage. "Well, it's the truth," growled the bear. "Oh, I'm so glad to hear you say so," responded the minx with a bewitchingly mischievous smile, "because I hate your sex so; I am sure now that we will be the best of friends. Now what man could resist a challenge like that? Within a month she had the bear in chains and within a year they were married."

The Empress.
 Last evening the Empress Stock Company inaugurated "benefit week" with the initial presentation of the famous comedy, "What Happened to Jones." The fact that the management intends to hand over half of the total net receipts for the week to the Royal Jubilee hospital is, perhaps, a strong inducement to patronage, and last night, despite the inclement weather, a good audience assembled and followed the design and sayings of the illustrious Jones with unremitting merriment.

The piece was well played and well staged, and evoked a creditable reflection on all concerned. Arthur Cyril, as Jones, the purveyor of hymn books, and "as a side line," playing cards, played splendidly, and kept the house laughing with his adventures and misadventures. The comedian of the company, H. J. Hooley, was, however, the star of the piece, and, as Professor Ebenezer Goodley, the student of theology, and, in an unguarded moment, of the noble art of prize-fighting, he displayed his abilities to the full. Sid Diamond was quite at home in the role of William Biggie, "who fancies that he is an Indian," and helped considerably toward making the fun go. Warren Ellsworth, a newcomer, played Rev. Anthony Goodley, "the Bishop of Ballarat," to perfection, and, in his adventure with "the Indian," he gave an extraordinarily fine exhibition.

Miss Bertha Kiatvold made the best of the role of "Cissy," the indispensable one, although she is obviously not suited to comedy. Her part did not allow her much scope, but what she had to do she did very well. The other characters were all portrayed and the production was well balanced and decidedly entertaining.

The specialties between the acts were greatly appreciated by the audience. Queenie Macdonald, "the child vocalist," as she is known, contributed several songs and won more than one encore. Bert Aronson also made a hit with his up-to-date songs, and Jack Medland was deservedly applauded for his comedy turns. The Mullally sisters and Harriet Maxwell made up a good vaudeville bill which would not disgrace a theatre devoted to that class of entertainment alone.

"What Happened to Jones" will be continued all week, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION.
 Governor Melnes Will Consult at Ottawa—Various Subjects Affecting Yukon.

"While I greatly enjoy life in the Yukon," said Governor Melnes in an interview given the Dawson News. "The work of adjustment of affairs in the Yukon has been progressing nicely. We have not a great many grievances to lay before Ottawa just now, but there are certain things which I shall recommend."

"I hope to bring about an adjustment in salaries in the gold office, and perhaps to some greater extent in the Yukon service. In the gold office in particular the boys have buckled to the work and have put in overtime, and I hope to see that they get what should be received under the circumstances. A readjustment of salaries is needed in that office in order to make it unattractive and to keep up the harmony of the force. It is demoralizing to have salaries anywhere unevenly apportioned, and I want to see that each and every man gets good pay and gets pay for all the time he has put in."

"I feel that the Yukon never was more attractive as an investment centre, and shall go to Ottawa prepared to give good news in this line."

"As to the mining code, there doubtless are some sections in it that will need a law removed here and there, or a kink taken out one place or another; but the changes when they do come, will be slight."

"It is best not to precipitate in making alterations. It is best to wait and see exactly what is needed, and then to administer the remedy with no uncertainty. While some minor changes may be made to the code this session, I am rather inclined to think that it is best to wait until the following session, and then know exactly what we want beyond question."

"The wiping-out of the concession troubles is the biggest live question pending. I do not know exactly what is to be done with respect to the contention between the government and Bronson & Ray, and the Anderson concessions, but I have heard that the Yukon Consolidated has bought the equality in the concessions, and will take up the old suit of the concessionaries against the government."

"I shall be greatly pleased to visit my old friends in British Columbia. I have a great admiration for British Columbia. It is an empire within an empire. No province in Canada is more richly endowed with natural resources. The awakening Oriental traffic and the coming of new transcontinental lines into the province means that British Columbia will be a beehive of great population and activity. Climate, geographical position and variety of products, great sea coast and endless fuel and water supplies and farming, fishing and mining contrive to make British Columbia a land of destiny. Yes, the old province has a fine future."

While dressing a goose Mrs. Mary Cartwright, an elderly lady, of Greenheys, Manchester, tripped her thumb with one of the claws. Blood poisoning set in and the woman died.

KAISER'S HORSES.

Emperor William is probably the most magnificently horsed monarch in Christendom. This is due to the fact that as King of Prussia he has a right to select, free of cost, each year six his royal perquisite 30 of the finest horses—that is to say, the pick of the flock from the state stud at Trakehnen.

The latter is a national institution of world-wide fame upon which the government ever since the days of Frederick the Great has lavished enormous sums.

Every year some of the finest horses on the English, the French, and the American turf are purchased, well nigh regardless of cost, and are carried off to this huge breeding farm of the German cavalry.

A feature of these Trakehnen horses of the Kaiser is their extraordinary docility. Trakehnen is in the easternmost portion of Prussia, and the property is about 10 miles in one direction and stretches seven miles in the other. It was the father of Frederick the Great who first pitched upon the place and who converted the swamp into the finest pasture land in Germany.—Washington Post.

A SHOOTING GALLERY SECRET.

The beach was empty. The boardwalk was dead. The shooting-gallery man was packing to go south for the winter.

"Do you see this glass ball?" he said. "It was a ball of hollow glass, an airy glass soap bubble, that had swung all summer at the end of a thread in the foreground of the clay pipes, bells and what-not that had made up the gallery's targets, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat."

"This glass ball," the man went on, "is my great money-maker. All summer long people tried to hit this ball—it was bigger and nearer than any other target—and everybody failed. Thousands of bullets were fired at the ball, thousands of nickels were spent on it; yet here it is, still untouched, my best breadwinner."

"All wise shooting-gallery men have a glass ball like this. It makes such a tempting target, yet it is never hit. It is never hit because the air that precedes a gun charge is sufficient to blow the ball aside, out of the way. You might fire a hundred shots at it, but, like a living thing, like a timid soldier, for instance, it would dodge each shot."
