

Does Baby fret?

In the majority of cases it is a question of food. Either the diet of the mother who is feeding her child is insufficient or unsuited to her peculiar need, in which case Virol will help her, or the food substituted for that living liquid is unsuitable to the needs of the child.

More than 3,000 Infant Welfare Clinics and Public Health Authorities are meeting these difficulties by supplying Virol, the food specially designed by Medical Experts to meet the needs of growth and development.

Virol contains those vital principles that enable the body to transform food into living tissue. Virol is such a palatable and delicate preparation that it is assimilated by the weakest digestion.

Try Virol for yourself and for your little one.

Crown Produced Three New Witnesses With Story of Traces on Boak Car

Jurors in Next Case Warned Not Required Until Thursday Morning

The first independent testimony to the effect that there were traces of blood or brain matter on the Boak car was offered by witnesses before the afternoon session of the Assize Court yesterday. The evidence came from three sources.

John Dempster, garage man, stated that while he and a helper named George Faulkner were working at the Boak car after the accident, Faulkner accidentally placed his hands in a patch of brain matter on the rear fender. Witness, whose attention was called to the fact looked at the traces and described them to the court as a patch of brain matter about three inches in diameter. Witness was hotly pressed on cross-examination by Mr. Maclean, who challenged him with submitting evidence at this hearing that was not given by him at the lower court.

Witness affirmed he was not asked in the lower courts about the incident. He told Chief Brogan about it later but could not say at what special time.

George Faulkner, an assistant to Dempster in the garage business, took the stand to tell at first hand of his discovery. Witness said he was looking at the traces and described them to the court as a patch of brain matter on the rear fender. His hand fell upon something moist. He looked and saw a patch of what he took to be brain matter and blood. The patch was three or four inches in diameter. Witness remained unshaken on cross-examination. He had told the police some time later when Chief Constable Owens came up to take the statement of Dempster and himself.

Mr. Justice Murphy: Were you present when Dempster gave his statement to the police?

Witness: Yes, Sir.

The Court: Have you talked about this before?

Witness: No, Sir, except that I told him at the time.

NEW TESTIMONY
New testimony for the Crown of a startling nature was entered by Frederick Borden, a farmer of the Lake Hill district. Witness was at the scene of the accident at 7 a.m. next morning, quietly looking things over for himself. A portion of the sun visor of the windshield was torn. His attention drawn by the tear, witness saw what he took to be a rear mudguard witness noticed what he took to be a blood spot.

There was some conversation as to brain matter on the rear mudguard, but witness took no part in it, and held his counsel at that time. On cross-examination witness said the blood spot pointed out to him by others, but he discovered what he considered to be blood and brains on the sun visor himself. He told no one at that time as to his find. The first time he mentioned the matter to the authorities was one day last week when two members of the Provincial Police called at his home and asked for his statement.

INTERRUPTED FIRE DRILL AT SCHOOL

While the inspection was taking place in the city schools recently, Chief Vernon Stewart posted two firemen on the road-way with flags, to stop passing traffic from breaking through the ranks of children filing from the building. Despite this precaution several drivers insisted on cutting through the lines, and the test, one to time of evacuation of the building, was rendered useless. Chief Stewart believes that once the utility of the fire drill is realized the hindrance will cease.

ISLAND VISITED BY RAILWAY DIRECTORS

President and Officials of Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Line Here To-day

Car Connection Will Come When Lumber Shipments From Island Warrant

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway is keenly alive to develop its business with Vancouver Island, both passenger and freight, according to H. E. Bryan, president of the line, who arrived here late last evening from Nanaimo on an inspection tour with directors of the railway, and left again this morning on the steamer Sol Duc.

The passenger traffic from the island on that line is growing, Mr. Bryan said to The Times, and its lumber traffic is an important factor. What the Central States are not using large shipments from the seaboard at present, he pointed out that the good crops harvested on land which has yielded indifferently for several years, are not being used by the farmers spending money on buildings and as a result he looked for a very considerable improvement in the eastbound movement of lumber. The company wants to develop its lumber business from Vancouver Island, and in co-operation with the Great Northern and the Chicago, Burlington and Quinceles, is spending a large sum of money in advertising the northwest, the three companies being in a pool to attract eastern travel.

In answer to a question with regard to a car ferry from the island to connect up with the company's line at Port Angeles, Mr. Bryan said that the time was not ripe for that development, though the subject has been discussed some years ago. He hoped, however, that the company would soon get an increasing share of the prairie lumber business, particularly for the Northern States.

Mr. Bryan has been several times a visitor here, but had not had time to motor through the island before, and he was tremendously impressed with the beautiful scenery of the island. Some of his fellow directors had never been on Vancouver Island before, and their exclamations were a tribute to the beauty of the island. Mr. Bryan said he was delighted with the two hour delay at Cowichan Bay, where they halted to fish and stated he was not surprised that the subject of arrangements for the construction of the Island Highway, some of his fellow directors had never been on Vancouver Island before, and their exclamations were a tribute to the beauty of the island.

PRINCE COMES TO VICTORIA AS PLAIN-INTERESTED VISITOR

It is not considered likely that there will be any official receptions of anything of that nature.

Lieutenant-Governor Nichol to-day telegraphed the Prince inviting him to Government House and putting Government House at his disposal during his visit. So far no reply has been received from the Prince.

As no word has been sent here from Ottawa, as is usual in such cases, it is thought that the Prince will stop at the Empress Hotel and live for the two days he is here as much as possible like an ordinary citizen. As a matter of fact, it is understood that reservations of several suites have already been made at the hotel for the Prince and his party.

Good Bread and Your Teeth

If you serve Shelly's Bread faithfully every day there will be on your table for your family a goodly supply of calcium, necessary for the keeping of the body bones in vigor and the teeth firm.

Calcium is essential to the growth of the bone structure in children. Without a proper supply of it the body would readily yield to disease.

Shelly's Bread contains 18 per cent of the required amount. Eaten with milk alone it will give all the mineral salts needed.

Remember there are differences in bread quality. Shelly's is scientifically healthful, while at the same time delicious to the taste, appetizingly full of zestful flavor. Give the children plenty of it; eat more of it yourself. But remember, don't just say "bread," say Shelly's.

Here's a delicious luncheon recipe:

That Wheaty Flavor

Remove stems and inside from six peppers. Put the shells into boiling water and let them cook five minutes, then put them in cold water. Make the stuffing as follows:

1 cup breadcrumbs	1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup finely chopped ham	1/2 teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon grated onion	1/2 teaspoon thyme

Drain the pepper shells and fill with stuffing. Sprinkle tops with buttered bread crumbs. Place the peppers in a deep casserole, pour one-half cup of water or stock around them and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes.

CALENDAR CARNIVAL PROVES SUCCESS

Special to The Times
Nanaimo, Sept. 26.—The grand Calendar Carnival which was held under the auspices of the Cedar Women's Institute and the Novelty Hall, turned out to be a success, and realized the sum of $950, which is to be placed at the disposal of the Crippled Children's Fund in B.C.

Throughout the day over 1,900 persons had visited the various stalls to purchase the dainty articles on display, while in the evening the hall was again crowded to capacity to dance to the strains of the Novelty Five Orchestra. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion in gold and green streamers, under the able supervision of R. Kaplansky, and presented a very pretty appearance.

The concert in the afternoon was presided over by Mayor Busby, with C. F. Davis, M.P.P., for the Cripple Children's Fund in Vancouver, gave an excellent address and stated the aims and objects of the fund. The programme, which was rendered under the supervision of Mrs. Grayson and Mrs. R. T. Wilson, was as follows:

Chairman's remarks — Mayor Busby.
Remarks — Dr. Davis, M.P.P.
Pianoforte selection — Mrs. R. T. Wilson.
Solo — "Pale Moon," Mrs. W. W. Gray.
Violin solo — Miss Salmon, Wellington.
Solo — Mrs. O. D. Roberts.
Highland dance — Miss Jean Keen.
Number by Miss E. Hickling, representing the South Cedar School.
Song — Mrs. R. T. Wilson.
Address — Mrs. Harry Duker.
Number — North Oyster School.
Song — Mrs. E. Brown.
Number — North Cedar School.
Song — Miss Taylor (Vancouver).
Number — East Cedar School.
Song — Miss Jessie Ferguson.
Five numbers — Violin Solo, Miss Minnie Laird.

In the evening the hall was crowded to capacity when dancing was indulged in. Several special numbers were introduced, such as the balloon waltz, the confetti one-step and the serpentine fox trot, which were forced to the encore many times by the dancers. The Novelty Five Orchestra excelled themselves throughout the evening, and kept the merry throng very lively. During the evening the various drawings were made with the following results:

The pen painted cushion made and donated by Miss Minnie Laird was won by Mayor Walkem of Ladysmith with ticket No. 220. This drawing proved to be the best money maker, as the sum of $85 was realized. The pen painted centre piece was won by ticket No. 905 and was unclaimed. The beaded bag, made and donated by Mr. Sanford, a returned soldier residing in North Cedar, was won by W. Cassidy. Tickets Nos. 87, 67 and 68 won the three plants which were donated by A. C. Wilson, florist. Ticket No. 363, which won the basket of home-made candy, was unclaimed. Dave Bourton winning the box of candy for second prize.

Mrs. William Grieve as president of the institution was general convener for the Calendar Carnival, and was ably assisted by the following members: Home-cooking stall, Mrs. S. York and Mrs. H. Fiddick; currency store, Miss Fiddick and Mrs. Ferguson; sewing, Mrs. Laird and Mrs. Meikle; handkerchiefs, Miss Edna Keen and Mrs. C. Bennie; sample stall of B.C. products, Mrs. Elmer Holberg; tea, Mrs. E. Keane and Mrs. Parker Williams; candy, Mrs. R. W. Thomas and entertainments, Mrs. Grayson and Mrs. R. T. Wilson; soft drinks, Mrs. Saunders.

FANCY DRESS PARTIES FOR THE CHILDREN

Special to The Times
Colwood, Sept. 26.—An All-Halloween party for children of the Colwood district has been arranged by the convener of the child welfare committee for that district, which promises to be a very enjoyable affair. The party is free to all children wearing fancy costume, and with the help of friends and the child welfare committee of the Colwood Women's Institute, a host of games and "stunts" have been planned for the amusement of the young people. The event will take place in the Colwood Hall, and parents and friends will be invited to attend if they wish, but it is distinctly understood that the evening, up to the time of serving refreshments is to be given entirely to the children and their enjoyment, though adults may claim the later hours and dance or frolic as they wish.

The convener of the Institute Child Welfare Committee is also the supervisor of the child welfare and nurse in charge of the Esquimalt rural nursing service, which operates throughout that district, having held that position since October 1922. Evidence of the nurse's thoughtfulness for the welfare of her charges was very conclusively shown during the recent district Fall Fair held in that district, by the transformation of a marquee tent into a charming room, with comfortable easy chairs, for the comfort and convenience of mothers with babies and little children.

A children's fancy dress party and ball will be held in the Lutton Hall on All-Halloween under the auspices of the Lutton and Happy Valley Women's Institute, from 7 to 10 p.m., to be followed by an adult dance from 10 to 1. A special request is being issued to all children to wear fancy costume to add to the festivity of the occasion.

FALL FAIR IS SUCCESSFUL

Courtenay, Sept. 27.—The quality of the Comox fall fair was fully demonstrated by the large attendance, there being fifty entries in the potato classes. Livestock was strong and there was a large entry of flowers and vegetables.

A special marquee was necessary to accommodate the ten entries in the class for decorated tables, and some very charming effects were produced. The baby show, which caused much interest and which brought out twenty-five entries, all under twelve months, was won by Ralph Harroston. This event, which was in the capable hands of Dr. George K. McNaughton, of Cumberland, was for the special prize given by A. W. Neill, M.P. McNaughton was assisted by Nurse Cuddy, of the Comox Hospital, and Nurse Sehl, of the Cumberland Hospital.

Four saddle events, including an open half-mile flat race, proved a popular attraction to the owners of local horses and ponies as well as to the spectators. The exhibition was formally opened by P. P. Harrison, M.P.P.

MAKES EFFORT FOR UNIFORM FUND

Special to The Times
Sidney, Sept. 26.—The Brownies held a very successful musical afternoon and silver tea at Beach House, which had been kindly lent for the occasion by Mrs. Simister, on Thursday afternoon. It was in order to obtain uniforms for the afternoon was held, and as it was made this evening greatly help towards the object. A large number of people attended. There was a candy stall in charge of the Brownies. Tea was served by Miss Margaret Cochran played several piano solos. Mrs. J. Copthorne of the Bay sang and Mrs. Barlow of All Bay gave some monologues.

New York, last season, had over 140 pianoforte recitals alone. London had 120.

Continuing their present project connected with the Coliseum's new management, is the continuation of "special music attractions," in addition to the usual picture. "Music Lover's Night" has "caught on" at this house in sincere manner, and the vocalist of the present week is Miss Kathleen Davis, soprano, another of the younger singers of the city. Miss Davis has a mezzo-soprano voice of beautiful quality and her style, method and intelligently enunciated deliveries are all excellent.

A particularly interesting church affair was the special old-time service on Sunday evening last at the First Presbyterian Church, in celebration of Dr. Campbell's fifty years in the ministry. Included in the musical part of the service were many old familiar and well-remembered numbers, such as "The Radiant Morn," "Jackson's Te Deum," "Silent Thine Ear," and "Cast Thy Burden." Noticed in the choir, which, by the way, gave an unusually good account of itself under choirmaster Jackson Hanby, were several well-known and prominent citizens, who many years ago assisted in many of the music affairs of the community.

DIES BY OWN ACT

Port Alberni, Sept. 27.—At an inquest on the body of Anthony Manning, whose body was taken from the harbor, it was shown that he had been drinking and was despondent. A verdict of suicide was returned. Tied around the waist was a piece of rope from which three bars were suspended, while the cap of the man was in his hand.

MUSICAL NOTES

(By George J. Dyke)

At the seventeenth annual music supervisor's national meeting, held usually in the late Spring of each year in America, is noted the following significant subjects in its five days programme:

"The Importance of Music in Education," "Music in the Public Schools," "Public School Music of the Future," "Applied Music Courses in Public Schools," "The Use of the School Orchestra," "The School Orchestra in Grades Below the High School," "The writer is so far wrong in consistently advocating music credits in the public schools of British Columbia. Will not the Education Department of our Parliament consider the project?"

Bombay organized its first symphony orchestra three years ago, and up to the present has given forty-two concerts, an average of fourteen a year.

Verdi's opera, "Maznadleri," founded upon Schiller's play "The Robbers," lost for many years, has recently been found in the archives of the Budapest Opera House. It will be produced there this season. This find is stirring all operatic circles, and naturally, too, as all Verdi's operas are glorious.

Handel's bitterest opera, "Xerxes" and "Rodelinde" have been produced at Gottingen with striking results. These operas it is said may rival his oratorios in popularity, but it is difficult to imagine that any oratorio or opera will ever displace the "Messiah" from the high oratorio pinnacle attained by this beloved work.

A Hindisi is the Italian name for a drinking song.

It is noticeable that in the new works embodied in the programmes of the "Proms" at Queen's Hall, which terminate its season this week, not a single work represents an American composer. And Sir Henry Wood, conductor, and Robert Newman, manager, are among the most discerning, broad-minded and cosmopolitan of men in music's sphere.

Barcelona, Spain, has three symphony orchestras. Madrid has two.

Spain is witnessing a most interesting movement in favor of the guitar, some new improvements have recently been made in this instrument which have been for centuries associated with that country's folk-music.

Victor Herbert has already been missed wherever he went. His wit, geniality, and cheery laugh always created a joyous atmosphere among his fellow creatures. Victor Herbert is gone, but his musical style, fresh melodies, happy faculty and individuality of music treatment are not likely soon to be.

The Ballarat (Australia) Competition Festival, held annually in October, has been in existence for forty years. Outgrowing this in recent years, however, is the Queensland Elstiddoff, which had nearly forty choirs in competition at Warwick during last Easter week.

Argentina is extremely musical. Buenos Aires, its capital, alone has over 300 conservatories, and a vital factor of the musical progress of this beautiful city is the "Association Argentina de Buenos Aires," which has a membership of over 2,500.

The beginning of a series of performances on musical comedy lines, by Reginald Hincks and his company at the Royal Victoria, during the coming Winter season will please his many followers in the city. The opening week saw an arrangement of the London "Two-nights" "The Night" which met with the success it deserved. "Ernie" and "Peggy" continue to delight everybody with their natural talents. Frank Almond, the butler, was better than usual, and Will Marshall can never be accused of dullness in any part in

THE VERY LATEST NATURAL FIGURE AID

Women do need some figure support, if it is only the moral support which comes with the feeling that they are "snuggled up" a bit about the hips and held firm front and back.

With the Nature's rival Circle Sash you have the sensation of combining the needs of a fashionable figure with exhilarating ease, comfort and coziness.

The waist line is so designed that it will not bind, and the elimination of the front steel and clasp does away with the unsightly corset appearance.

14,000 People Kept Going

Last year each citizen of our Province paid $110 of his living expenses for goods made outside British Columbia — and the same things of equal or better quality are made here.

B. C. will always have an unemployment problem as long as we fail to help industries within our own borders; 14,000 people were kept busy making the goods mentioned — but they were not B.C. people.

CHINA COULD BE POWERFUL

First Class Power in Ten Years with Real Leader, Says Colonel Pottinger

Melbourne, Aug. 27.—If China had a real leader it would be a first class power within ten years, in the opinion of Colonel Eldred Pottinger, who came here to lecture on Eastern problems in their relation to Australia.

Development of a leader is by no means impossible, Colonel Pottinger holds. Thousands of Chinese have Western education and millions have experienced the advantages of democratic self-government in other countries.

Expansion, he believes, is more important to China than to Japan. China has nowhere to send her people unless she can force an outlet. At present this is impossible, but with a strong central government, under a firm dictator, it would be possible. "There are 400,000,000 people in China, which commands unlimited resources. Let these people be welded and the world will have to watch unceasingly the land of the dragon," is the colonel's prediction.

"China's opportunity to strike at an unpeopled land would be in the event of a war between Japan and the United States and a rebellion to occupy the British in India. These things are not impossible and it must be remembered that the Chinese, properly led, are fine soldiers."

FINDERS QUICKLY INTRODUCED TO LOSERS!

A Lost and Found ad is a real peace-bringer! The anxious, worried loser of a valuable article, hoping that the finder is honest, advertising at once. Perhaps the finder—also anxious to quickly relieve the loser's natural anxiety has advertised. In any event, the classified ad promptly introduces them to each other, and increases the world's stock of content, good-will and faith in our fellow man!

IT IS OUR FAULT

ONE OF OUR CONTEMPORARIES blames the provincial and Dominion governments for the present rate of taxation in this country and charges migration of Canadians to the United States to their methods of business.

People who blame governments for practically everything are usually in the front line of delegations which go to governments with hat in hand for anything they can beg for enterprise which should be developed by individual initiative.

Take mining. The Slovan silver mines laid the foundation for the growth of Spokane—a prosperous community of 104,000 people with an assessed realty valuation of $82,518,812 and a net debt of $4,692,000.

Are provincial and Dominion governments to blame for allowing the foreign capitalist to come in and develop our natural resources and create employment for his and our benefit? And is it not a fact that we in Canada run to governments too often and neglect the many opportunities which are near at hand?

THE INTERURBAN PEOPLE AFFECTED BY the suspension of the interurban railway have taken the right course in collecting arguments in favor of a reconsideration of its decision by the British Columbia Electric Railway Company.

Some of the Laborites in Britain are waxing wrathful over the sartorial weaknesses of the Ministers. Court uniform and clanking swords are not to their liking; but they really look quite well in their regalia and we can understand why they continue to ignore the objections of their proletarian critics.

ALL GOOD CHILDREN More than 200,000 kiddies had the fun of the Canadian National Exhibition grounds yesterday and in testimony to the permanence of the fair—there was enough of it left to permit of reopening this morning.

PECULIAR MENTALITY AT LONG LAST THE name of Franks and its association with an infamous crime and a famous trial has crept into the newspapers again. This time it is to inform the world that when some of the things in the now deserted Franks home in Chicago were put up for sale the other day thousands of curiosity seekers were on hand to satisfy their morbid inclinations.

WHITE IDEALISM From The Sydney Bulletin White Australia must be defended on the highest grounds or not at all. The claim that brown and black men are inferior may not always hold; the claim that they cannot acquire the feelings that we as a race possess, though they live with us for a thousand years, is sound and unassailable.

THE MILL BAY FERRY

THERE IS MORE IN THE operation of the Mill Bay Ferry than a matter of convenience for automobile owners in this particular locality or on the Island generally. To them it means, of course, that in the Winter months they will be independent of the Malahat and will not have to worry about the condition which adverse weather may have put it in.

The ferry will obviously be of great advantage to the people of the Island as a whole. It will provide a useful traffic alternative at all seasons of the year, and furnish a service that ought to have advantages for the immediate neighborhoods which it will directly connect on regular schedule.

ONTARIO'S BALLOT ONTARIO HAS PREPARED a ballot for taking an expression of opinion on the liquor question which limits the inquiry to two questions. They are: "Are you in favor of the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act?" and "Are you in favor of the sale as a beverage of beer and spirituous liquor in sealed packages under Government control?"

THE ballot is almost identical, as far as the principle goes, with that which was submitted to the electorate in this Province in 1920. In the meantime the Ontario Government has seen that, with the exception of Alberta and Quebec, there is a tendency to limit liquor distribution to official vending establishments and not generally widen the policy.

WORDS OF WISE MEN He surely is most in want of another's patience who has none of his own. We praise the things we hear with much more willingness than those we see, because we envy the present, and reverence the past, thinking ourselves instructed by the one and overlaid by the other.

"Truth in Advertising"

THE American delegates to the Advertising Convention in England were cordially received. Many things were said at this convention to indicate that the subject of advertising has passed from the region of extraordinary and unwise things into the realm of laws and customs.

Most emphasis perhaps was laid upon the slogan, "Truth in Advertising." This recognizes the great law of business which is that anyone who expects to remain in business must depend very largely upon the good will of his customers and that good will cannot be obtained unless his performance is equal to his profession.

TUNNEL MYSTERY STIRS WASHINGTON

German Spies, Plotters and Civil War Days Linked With Discovery

Washington, Sept. 27.—The capital city hummed to-night with unstrained excitement over a little mystery all of its own—the discovery of a network of underground tunnels or a labyrinth of catacombs in the exclusive northwest section of the city.

Sophisticated to a point where it can toss off without batting an eye the most choice scandals congress can offer, Washington nevertheless frankly admits excitement over the underground passages. Speculation has evoked many stories. Some credit German spies with building the works; others connect it with civil war days, while still others describe it as the rendezvous of unscrupulous plotters. But Washington awaits the explanation.

This much is known—the tunnels were discovered yesterday when a truck wheel broke a hole in what appeared to be just "plain" earth. Someone entering this hole found it dropped into a passageway about four feet wide and seven feet deep.

Engineers inspecting the tunnels said the masonry was of the finest construction and must have cost thousands of dollars. A date "1915" was found on one piece of cement block.

WOMAN'S DOMAINE

VICTORIA RESIDENT PRESENTS TABLET TO WINNIPEG CHURCH

Handsome Honor Roll Given By John Galt Unveiled Recently

Mr. and Mrs. John Galt of Rockland Avenue were present at the dedication in Winnipeg on September 21 of the handsome bronze tablet presented by Mr. Galt to St. Luke's Church to commemorate the memory of the 328 men of the parish who served overseas. The Winnipeg Tribune contained the following account of the ceremony: 'St. Luke's Anglican Church honor roll was unveiled and presented to the church by John Galt, the donor, Sunday, following the morning service. Mr. Galt, who accompanied his husband from Victoria for the dedication, assisted at the ceremony. The choir, led by C. W. Moreton, carrying the ceremonial flag, and followed by the rector, Canon Bertal Heenev and Capt. Ray. W. Robertson, left the chancel during the singing of the last hymn, passing down the middle aisle to the entrance to the tower porch, forming around the big bronze tablet which occupies the whole space between the two doors into the porch. 'The door frame and whole end of the nave under the entrance to the porch has been rebuilt in carved mahogany and butternut wood, forming an appropriate frame for the massive bronze, on which are inscribed the names of the 328 men of St. Luke's parish who served in the Great War. The names of the forty-three who made the supreme sacrifice are placed in the centre under the cross. Canon Heenev pronounced the dedicatory prayer and benediction. The wardens, H. D. Gooderham and R. S. Law, Mr. and Mrs. John Galt, John Woodman, Major-General Ketcher, C. D. Shepard and C. W. Rowley also took part in the ceremony. The choir returned to the vestry by the west door, crossing the lawn to the south porch.'

HOME NURSING CORPS SUGGESTED FOR RURAL AREAS

Dr. Helen MacMurdy Suggests Plan Under W.I. Auspices

Women's organizations who have for some years past been bending their efforts towards the establishment of some scheme to provide adequate maternity care for mothers in isolated rural districts at a reasonable cost will find much to interest them in the plan which has been prepared by Dr. Helen MacMurdy of the Federal Department of Health. The scheme has been prepared at the request of the Women's Institute of an Eastern province, and consists of a Home Sewing Nursing Corps, affiliated with the Women's Institute, the idea being that such a corps might be organized in each province with the aid of the Provincial Departments of Health and Agriculture.

Under this suggestion the members would include: 1. Home service nurses whose training and qualifications in home nursing have been approved as directed by the Provincial Department of Health, and whose character and experience, training, knowledge and skill in home nursing and general welfare of the children and other members of the family have been approved as directed by the Provincial Institute of Home-makers Clubs or Cercles des Femmes. 2. Home nurses, who have been approved as above for home services work only. Certificates and official badges may be awarded to the above.

MOTHERS' NEED The primary object would be to meet the need of help for the mother in the home, especially during the period of childbirth, or when there is sickness or other emergency in the home. The following letter from a mother illustrates the need: 'I hardly know what to do. My only neighbor has gone away to work for a while so she cannot come in. I have written and tried all over. There is a woman about three miles away who could come and give the baby its first wash, but couldn't come to stay. If I could only get hold of some reliable woman who could look after me while I am in bed. It's a great worry to be here alone. Last week we drove for miles trying to get a woman. 'I wouldn't mind really who came, and I am willing to pay them, as I said before. We are not well off, but I will pay a woman, for I must have someone in. I would mind if there was a woman who had a child who could come. Is there any such a likely person up there? It seems a pity for a woman to have a baby and not a soul to help her each one is addressed of such women so that can secure their applications and forward them to the proper authorities. Records of all this work should be kept by the secretary. REGISTER PROPOSED It is suggested that a local home service nursing corps be established in every municipal or electoral district, or Women's Institute district in the province, and that a list of names and addresses and telephone numbers of each one is prepared and to be furnished by the provincial authorities to the Women's Institute, to the local medical officer of health, to the secretary of the Medical Society. In unorganized districts, this register should also be furnished to the district medical officer of health.

Scientific Frankness
on a subject known as woman's oldest problem
Women who seek daintiness, peace of mind, exquisiteness and security under all circumstances, use it. Once you do, no other method will ever satisfy. And millions will tell you this.

THIS is a subject which vitally interests every woman. A subject every woman will understand. Modern science has found a better way—safer, less embarrassing, more hygienic—than the old-time "pad." It is called KOTEX. Discovered in wartime France, now 8 in 10 women in the better walks of life have discarded makeshift methods for it. KOTEX is far more absorbent than ordinary cotton. It absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture.

KIWANIANS HOLD MOST SUCCESSFUL DANCE

Five Programme Features Opening Dance of Season at Alexandra House

Over 200 Kiwanians and their wives attended the opening Winter function of the Victoria Kiwanis Club held in the Alexandra ballroom last night. The affair proved to be most successful and a number of these social evenings are planned by the club during the season. A fine programme was arranged last evening. Dancing was the evening's principal entertainment while vocal solos and duets rendered by Thomas Kellogg and Ernest Butterworth were greatly appreciated. One of the features of the evening were novel musical turns arranged by Carl Stocker and Harold Dignon. Gladys Heaton and Phyllis Rosher, both pupils of Madame Valda, delighted the audience with their deserved dancing which earned well deserved applause. A Kiwanis choir of fourteen voices rendered popular melodies. The ballroom was as tastefully decorated for the occasion by a committee headed by A. S. Denny. Refreshments were served in the supper room, arrangements being made by a lady-in-waiting, Mrs. S. J. Willis.

Several ladies were proposed for membership, and it was decided to hold this drive at the home of Sister Roy, 1031 Pandora Avenue, on Thursday evening, October 2, at 7.45 o'clock. A very successful box social followed at the meeting, Sisters Hay and White delighting the audience with their singing. Mr. Farmer's "Punch and Judy" created lots of fun. Mr. Farmer made an efficient auctioneer, and the thanks of all are extended to him and the other artists for their kindness. The evening concluded with the singing of the National Anthem. Rummage Sale—The Women's Parish Guild of Christ Church Cathedral will hold a rummage sale in the new schoolroom—Quadra Street, on Wednesday, October 1, at 10.30.

RUMOR SAYS STARR SANK LAST NIGHT Estevan Wireless Station Heard Position Reported This Morning

Seattle, Sept. 27.—Wireless stations on the North Pacific Ocean were inquiring to-day into the truth of a report that the steamer Starr had sunk in the night between Sanak Island, in the Aleutians, and Unimak, about seventy-five miles west of Sanak.

The wireless station at Estevan, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, reported that at 3 o'clock this morning the Starr, a mail steamer plying between Seward, Alaska, and the Aleutians, had been overheard reporting her position.

Lawrence C. Calvert, president of the San Juan Fishing and Packing Company, of this city, which owns the Starr, had been unable to obtain any word of a mishap to the vessel.

The Starr was in command of Captain Ole Johnson of Seattle, who had a crew of twenty-five. She was built here in 1919, of steel, 131 feet long, 20 feet deep and 26 feet beam.

Scottish Capt. mentioned in a dispatch received in San Francisco as the destination of the Starr, is a headland 420 feet high on Unimak Island at the south end of Unimak Pass.

SEARCH FOR SHIP WHICH SOLD RUM-RUNNER LIQUOR

American Boat Comet is Sought by Government Craft of Two Nations; Police Agree W. J. Gillis and Son Were Victims of Rum Pirates and Probably Murdered.

Provincial police, working from Sidney and sent from this city, as well as Captain Bittancourt, with the customs gasoline launch, are still scouring the waters of the gulf and the shores of islands thereabouts...

The death by violence of Captain W. J. Gillis and his son, is now admitted by the police to be the only feasible explanation of their disappearance.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 27.—Search for the ship Comet, reported to have hold liquor to Captain W. J. Gillis, of the Beryl G, before that craft was hijacked, still continues through the waters of the Gulf of Georgia and the Straits of Juan de Fuca.

According to police, the Comet is an American vessel with headquarters in Seattle, but has been chartered by two Canadian rum runners who are now in San Francisco with a boat outside that port loaded with liquor.

American and Canadian boats have been going out to the Comet and taking their cargoes off the ship, returning to Seattle in the case of the American boats, or to the Gulf Islands for transfer in the case of the Canadian boats.

According to police, Gillis took his cargo from the Comet about September 13. He then spent some time repairing his engine before leaving the Comet for his rendezvous at Smugglers Cove on Discovery Island.

The next that was known of the Beryl G. was when the lighthouse keeper at Stuart Island picked up the boat drifting without any sign of life aboard. The deck was blood stained and bullet holes were in evidence in the house and on the deck.

Rumors that Indians living on islands in the Gulf of Georgia had a hand in the killing of Capt. Gillis and his son were found by Provincial police to be groundless.

GULF ISLAND ROUTE The Island Princess will be withdrawn from the Gulf Island route after completing the trip on Saturday, September 27. The steamer Otter will resume the service on Monday, September 29, and will leave the Canadian Pacific Belleville Street wharf at 7.15 a.m. every Monday and 8 a.m. every Wednesday for Gulf Island points.

WOULD REVIVE CHORAL SOCIETY

A few enthusiastic choral singers are endeavoring to revive the Victoria Choral Society which for a number of years was responsible for a series of concerts of very high standard. These enthusiasts feel confident that out of Greater Victoria's population of 60,000 there are one hundred singers willing and able to give up one night each week for the study of high-class choral music.

In the event of sufficient support being secured, F. T. C. Wickert, A.R.C.O., a musician with considerable experience in these matters, is willing to act as conductor. Anyone desirous of assisting in the revival of the Society is requested to get in touch with Mr. Wickert.

ETERNITY

"Means that beginning is unending and end likewise."

INFINITY

If space is infinite it had no beginning or end and is without boundaries. Infinity vanishes when a boundary line is marked—says Prof. Ludwig Barkin:

CAUSE OF CAUSES may be carried backward and forward without stopping until we reach electrons. Here we stop as if confronted by a stone wall, for the cause of causes (electrons) are unknown and unknowable. Yet we know that the beginning is the end and the end is the beginning.

By subdividing we can trace bodies back to protoplasm, water, molecules, atoms and electrons, and by composition back again in the opposite direction, as all elemental bodies are interchangeable. So why not abandon such an elaborate and expensive research system as that based on Pasteur's germ theory and go beyond the germs to the cause—electricity.

Only superficially trained minds consider germs the cause of, and drugs the cure for, disease. Science has proved the human body to be an electro-chemical mechanism, explodes the whole complex theory of germs and drugs, and ushers in an entirely new system of "HEALTH WITHOUT DRUGS" in the Jordan system.

JEWISH CONCERN TO CELEBRATE

Jewish Year, For Religious Purposes, Based on Cycle of the Moon

Congregations on Pacific Slope to Observe Festival in Time Honored Custom

Jewish congregations along the Pacific Slope, in keeping with the every other part of the continent, will celebrate the Jewish New Year, commencing to-morrow. The Jewish calendar for the year 5685 from the creation of the world, according to the traditional religious reckoning. The Jewish year is a religious year, and Jewish lunar year, with its thirty month beginning with the new moon, is a religious calendar now used only for estimating the feasts and fasts of the Jewish year, just as is done of the Christian Church. For all ordinary purposes the civil calendar is used by Jews as well as Christians.

HOW YEAR RECKONED

The festival of the New Year is the first of the month of Tishri, which is the eighth month of the Hebrew year. Just as the Sabbath, the holy day, is the seventh day of the week, so the seventh month is a holy season. It includes the New Year, the Day of Atonement, the Feast of Tabernacles, the New Year, and the Day of Atonement for a single day, but when the Jewish people were expelled from Palestine and could no longer make their observation of the new moon from the height of Zion, a second day was added in order that they might be certain of keeping the exact time of the new moon in Palestine. Liberal Jewish congregations have returned to the early custom of a single day, but the conservative ones still observe the civil New Year in being purely a religious festival. It is not the time for dating documents, neither is it a time for extravagant gaiety. It is a day of happiness and feasting. Religious services will be held Sunday night and Monday morning in all synagogues. The observance of the conservative ones will hold them on Monday night and Tuesday as well.

HAS BIBLICAL BASIS

The Biblical basis of the New Year festival was found in the twenty-third chapter of Leviticus and the twenty-ninth chapter of Numbers. Here it is referred to as "The Day of the Blowing of Trumpets," a custom which is continued to the present time. It was a day of solemn assembly, a day on which special sacrifices were brought to the sanctuary. In the modern synagogue, the day is observed by special prayers, including some very beautiful poetic compositions and unusually elaborate musical settings; by the reading of special portions from the Bible; and by the blowing of the ram's horn or Shofar. The Biblical readings are from the life of Abraham, especially the story of his sacrifice of Isaac, with its touching lesson of supreme faith.

A TRUMPET BLOWN

The trumpet, blown only on one festival, is made of a ram's horn and has no mouthpiece, being cut from the side. Its most primitive musical instruments in existence. It was the kind of horn used as a bugle in the early days of the Jewish people in the wilderness, and the custom has been preserved through all the centuries as a memorial of God's care for His righteous ones. The first ram's horn is said by tradition to have been made of the horn of the ram which Abraham sacrificed in place of his son Isaac.

The New Year festival has a profound religious meaning, bound up as it is with such a wealth of historic associations. It is known as the Day of Memorial, a day of memory and search for the heart. The pious Jew, in his house of worship, confesses before God his sins of the past year, and turns over a new leaf for the year to come.

It is the Day of Judgment, for this confession brings forgiveness on the Day of Atonement, ten days after; while the absence of true repentance brings punishment of some kind on the head of the sinner. These two aspects of religious thought are joined in all the services of the day, and their meaning is impressed still more deeply on the congregation by the annual notes of the Shofar, with their meaning of solemn reminder of the past and warning for the future.

A GENERAL CONCOURSE

The New Year and Atonement season is, in a way, a revival season among the Jews, orthodox and liberal alike, attend the synagogue, whatever may be their attitude through the year. At this time every Jew who is worshiper, in addition, in every large Jewish community temporary holiday services are organized to accommodate non-members, and the leading congregations everywhere provide overflow services if needed.

The intense and universal celebration of this religious year of the Jewish calendar, and impresses anew on every worshiper the eternal lessons of faith and duty.

FALLING IRON

Montreal, Sept. 27.—A thirty-five pound piece of iron crashed through the roof of M. P. Morgan's home on Casgrain Avenue yesterday afternoon and striking a bed on which Mrs. Morgan had been lying a little while before, reduced it to ruins. According to investigators, the affair is inexplicable, for there had been no sound of an explosion and nobody in the vicinity could even hazard a guess where the projectile came from.

There will be a meeting of all ranks of the Eleventh Canadian Machine Gun Brigade on Tuesday, Sept. 30, at 3 p.m. at the New Drill Hall, Dress, mfr. All members are expected to make every effort to attend in order that platoons may be formed and appointments made before. It is hoped every member will bring along at least one recruit.

Interesting Address by B.C. Nicholas at Feature of Evening

At the meeting of the Camosun Assembly No. 25 of the Native Sons of Canada Thursday evening, B.C. Nicholas gave a stirring address of an informal, but vastly interesting nature. The meeting was held in the lounge room of the organization, and a musical programme was given.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Nicholas pointed out that Canada's destiny must lie as a progressive and self-governing partner within the Empire, independence was impossible; that would involve annexation by the United States, which the great majority of Canadian people did not desire.

Canada's greatest need is the promotion of Canadian unity, the bridging of the gaps which separate the different sections of the Dominion, he said.

The people who came to the Dominion from other countries should be taught to be Canadians in spirit as well as in name, and they should put their new home land first in their thoughts and activities.

The speaker emphasized some of the most difficult problems with which Canada had to deal. He explained the conviction that she would eventually become the most important part of the British Empire.

The programme of musical entertainment was as follows: "Selections," by Heaton's eight-piece orchestra; violin solo, Mr. Cartwright; flute solo, Mr. Jones; piano solo, Mrs. Deaville; recitation, by Miss Pottinger; Mrs. Bryant; solo, Mrs. Bridge; violin solo, Mrs. Thornborrow.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved to those who were included in the programme.

TRYING TO AVERT UNEMPLOYMENT

Victoria Unemployed Want Chance of Work on the Cowichan Bay Line

To meet the situation which is expected to develop when the Winter unemployment becomes more acute, various suggestions are occupying the attention of the civic authorities. To-day Mayor Hayward wrote to A. E. Palmer of Vancouver, successful tenderer for the Cowichan Bay branch line, asking him to employ a reasonable amount of Victoria labor on the grading, and stating that the men available here were of the right type.

If this contract for the Canadian National Railway is put in hand soon, and the Canadian Pacific Railway starts construction on the Crystal garden within two months, it is hoped to take care of most of the men without work. The Mayor is being daily solicited for employment. Owing to the fact that the city did not receive the hoped for assistance from the Government this Spring, before the tax rate was struck, funds are almost exhausted for public work. Several municipal gangs have been laid off, and men are being discharged from the parks maintenance. Under these circumstances some outside way of absorbing the increasing number of unemployed has to be found.

It is hoped the request to Mr. Palmer will be favorably received, His Worship pointing out that the situation is becoming daily more acute.

WINTER SCHEDULE OF E. AND N. LINE IS NOW SETTLED

Arrangements for the Winter schedule of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway, operative two weeks hence, were announced by H. E. Beasley, General Superintendent, to-day. There will be a daily train service to Courtenay, except on Sunday, for the present, subject to the conditions of traffic.

The Fort Alberni train in and out will run three times a week, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, to make connection with the Winter schedule of the steamer Princess Patricia at Nanaimo.

The trains out of this city north-bound will remain on the present schedule of 9 a.m. and 15:40 p.m. In connection with construction work it may be stated that the company has concluded the filling at the crossing by the road and railway of a creek just north of Ladysmith, and both will now pass on a fill over a concrete culvert, in place of the old wooden trestle, thereby relieving the danger in case of fire.

The company is putting in an abutment at Haslam Creek, and the Provincial Government is also placing concrete abutments in position, the road, and railway bridges being along side. This is preliminary to a permanent highway bridge.

Plans are being prepared for the new mill yards at Chemainus and as soon as approved by both companies will be started.

Manager Harris Places Ban on Social Affairs; Must Win Remaining Games

New York, Sept. 27.—Washington, official and otherwise is upset to-day, following a social affair not exactly on the programme of welcome for returning baseball heroes—a Boston tea party with the Red Sox being an honor to the Senators.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS BANNED

The leaders were further handicapped by the injury to Johnson who may not be able to take his turn in the box in any of the three games remaining. As a result, Manager Harris has placed a ban on social affairs and issued orders to his men to apply themselves to the serious business of winning the three remaining games in order to clinch the pennant.

Referees Ruing Boxing By Timidity In Ruling Fighters

Edgren Says That Pro Boxing Will Not Survive Unless Rules Are Enforced

Claims Wills Should Have Lost For Holding Firpo; Wilde's Knockout Disgrace

By ROBERT EDGREN

Professional boxing is not going to last in the United States, unless referees enforce the rules. Boxing needs a national commission to pass on the qualifications of referees as well as fighters.

REFEREES IMMUNE

Referees are seldom suspended, if ever, and almost invariably the referee is as much at fault as the offending boxer in cases of fouling.

WILLS WAS BAD

In my opinion the worst case of persistent fouling I've seen in years.

NEWS AND NOTES FROM THE CHURCHES

RALLY DAY AT LOCAL CHURCHES

Special Services and Music Arranged For Sunday

Sunday being Rally Day in Canadian Churches appropriate programmes are planned by local churches. At Hampshire Road the young people have charge of the decorations and music, and are also presenting a pageant in connection with a Congregational Social to be held in the church on Monday evening.

Harold Cross of the Y.M.C.A. will speak to the Sunday School at 2:30. At Belmont Avenue Mr. John McTurk, the Scotch Evangelist, will preach in the morning, and address an open session of the school in the afternoon, exchanging with the pastor, Rev. Frank Hardy, who is renewing association with his former congregation at Wilkinson Road at their Rally Services.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN
The First Presbyterian Church Sunday school have made arrangements on a large scale for Rally Day Celebrations to be held on October 5 and 6. On Sunday, October 5 a great Rally Service will be held in the church auditorium commencing at 8 p.m. A special programme has been arranged and promotions will be an interesting feature at this service. The Sunday School choir, under the leadership of Alfred Gurney, will lead the singing, and there will be special musical items. It is also expected that there will be a large attendance of the adult members in the congregations as this service is open to the public. On Monday, October 6 the annual rally day concert will be held in the church hall. A most interesting and unique programme will be rendered and contributed to be some of the best talent in the city. At this entertainment C. H. Rowles will give one of his popular character sketches. There will be also vocal and instrumental numbers. No effort has been spared to make this year's celebration surpass all previous years in connection with the Sunday school.

CENTENNIAL
The annual Rally Day service of Centennial Methodist Sunday School will be held in the auditorium of the church on Sunday at 2:30 o'clock. A good programme has been arranged with musical items and scriptural readings.

UNIQUE SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY FOR TO-MORROW

Service Will be Held at First Congregational Church

The morning service at the First Congregational Church to-morrow will represent an innovation in things ecclesiastical there. The entire service will be in the hands of the young people.

Members of the Young People's Society and of the Sunday School will announce the hymns, read the Scripture, receive the offering, etc. Margaret Sayer will give an address on the subject "What I Think a Christian Young Woman Should Be." Colin Curtis will speak on the subject "What I Think a Christian Young Man Should Be" and a quartette from the Excelsior Bible Class will render special music.

Following the addresses a baptismal service will be held. At the evening service Rev. A. K. McMin will speak on the subject, "The Bible and Literalism." Whether the Bible ought to be (or can be) taken literally is a question which has vexed the church in all ages, according to Mr. McMin. It has figured very prominently in theological controversy and has been the cause of very many rents in the church life. Although it is settled so far as the scholars and the majority of the ministers are concerned it is still the ground of wide differences, debate and strong feeling. It lies at the very centre of the controversy "Fundamentalism" which has threatened more than once to cause a split in some of the large denominations; and among the smaller religious bodies it is still considered the one thing vital in religion. Behind the question lies the very insistent and very human demand for the "infallible" authority and for the key to truth and progress.

Mr. McMin will answer the question from church history and from the Bible itself in order to help those who are perplexed by the matter and who make repeated inquiries concerning it.

GREATEST LIVING MAN, SUBJECT OF DR. DAVIES SUNDAY

A. Langdon, English Actor And Playwright, to be Pulpit Guest

According to Dr. Clem Davies, who will speak on Sunday evening on "Who is the Greatest Living Man?" if we would natter any period in history, we must seek the master man. Quoting Carlyle, who said, "Find your man and all else will follow," Dr. Davies affirms that sometimes these men appear in a great galaxy—Columbus and an new world, Galileo and a new sky, Gutenberg and a new Bible, Luther and a new doctrine, Shakespeare and a new literature, Michael Angelo and a new art, Erasmus and a new culture, Calvin and a new statement of theology. He points out:

Great men seem to reproduce many types, as for instance: One Luther, many protestants; one Wesley, many Methodists; one Emerson, many philosophers; one Shakespeare, many poets; one Raphael, many painters; one Christ, millions of Christians. Stating that history will reverse our estimates of those whom we call great, he continues: "Five years ago Mr. Lloyd George's name was upon all lips, and it looked as though he would go down to destiny as one of the world's greatest men. Then came along the book, 'Mirrors of Downing Street,' and the gentleman with the duster flicked aside the popular impression and gave us a new and strange Lloyd George. The populations of the cities of Europe fought to see the face of Mr. Woodrow Wilson on his triumphal tour during the world conference. Returning to his own land he was despised and rejected by millions of his own countrymen, and to-day these are of many thousands. 'None so poor as to do him reverence.'"

Concluding, Dr. Davies says: "On the other hand several years after the death of John Wycliffe, the authorities of the day dug up his dust and scattered it in the river near his home because the influence of his life was so great that it infuriated them. To-day Wycliffe is enthroned universally in the hearts of millions of churchmen. What tricks history plays upon us!"

"How will history deal with many men to-day who are called great? Two hundred years from now who will be the heroes of our descendants? What places in the roll of fame will be occupied by Cochrane, Wilson, Harding, Wells, Bernard Shaw, Ramsay MacDonald, Baldwin, Clemenceau, Mussolini and others who, to-day, scintillate on the page of history? What are the signs of enduring greatness? What betokens a great man? Who, according to eternal standards, is the greatest living man?"

These questions will be answered on Sunday evening at the City Temple. Replying to Rupert Hughes' caustic criticism of the church in the October Cosmopolitan in an article entitled "Way to the Church," Dr. Davies will discuss the attitude of Jesus toward the sinner in the hereafter. Dr. Davies thinks that Rupert Hughes blames Jesus Christ for a hell that he never intended. His subject will be "Sunday morning, 'Where is Judas Inheritor Now?'"

The City Temple pastor says: "Clergymen have, as a rule, steadfastly withheld pulpit discussion of the dark life of Judas, the betrayer concerning the doom of the impatient has undergone a rapid change this last few decades, and they have thought that perhaps it was wisest to leave the subject alone at all. They felt, many of them, that they could not preach a doctrine which made the Almighty such a monster as the older theologians are wont to do on the other hand they could not preach a 'smoother hell' for fear of inviting looseness of

Times Sunday School Lesson

By REV. GEO. C. PIDGEON, D.D.

THE CHOICE OF THE TWELVE
Matthew x 1-8

The fundamental condition of discipleship is leaving all and following up and this first converts looked up and followed rightly, the need of special training for Christian work, but every child who is brought up in a Christian home has the fundamental preparation necessary for effective service, if, to his knowledge of God and of the divine will, he adds personal acceptance of Christ and consecration to his service. Christ was not too particular about those whom He chose to be the founders of His church. In no way did He regard the material necessities of the rank and file than that of committing the interests of His Kingdom to the hands of these men. A social and political necessity caught their attention and put it in practice by going out on the streets in a downtown Chicago, and gathering up all who were trying to serve the community and bringing them together for consultation. They were a motley crowd, exponents of every phase of social disapproval, of every shade of opinion, of every shade of religious belief, alike only in their zeal for the public good. After considering the need of the hour and agreeing on what was the first need of the children of the ward, and then to unite in securing it. Together they accomplished what he himself could not do. Zeal for the common good, no matter how strange its complexion, is a tremendous driving force. If only it can be organized and guided, Christ chose men who were willing to serve and then equipped them for His service. The church errs in always going after experts. Experts are scarce and therefore are so much that they alone can do, but their number is limited and a great deal of the work of the Kingdom must be done by ordinary folk. The members of the church err in refusing to serve on the ground that they have no special qualification. These qualifications are necessary but they can be acquired as one follows Jesus in the way; the prime condition of discipleship is readiness to follow Him.

II. The list of the names of the disciples is an interesting study (Luke vi 13-16). None of them had position, or influence, or learning. On the other hand they were true Jews who were waiting for the Kingdom of God, and counted it the highest privilege attainable to have a share in it when it came. They were eager to serve; their lives were not too precious to invest in its promotion.

Christ's choice of men for His work was based on certain principles that govern the work of the Kingdom. (1) Christ works through personality. He left no writings; He formed no organization; He depended on living men imbued with His spirit, possessed of His ideas, and lifted by His love to live in Him. (2) Christ's way to the soul is always through other souls. When He takes His throne in the heart of a man or a woman, He first enters in contact with every life they touch and can work His wonders through them. Apart altogether from our gifts and attainments, or the accidents of our position and possessions, the most precious and the most useful gift we can bring to God is the surrender of one's own personality. (3) Christ's work is a training school. The stamp showed the worth of the training of the ordinary Jewish child. Most of His disciples were from Galilee; they had no of the training of the schools and little of the narrowness of Judea. But in the central truths of the Old Testament they were trained from their infancy. The truths of God and His grace and His great choices, the principles of His righteousness revealed to the Hebrews, what they had for their fathers as familiar to them as the air they breathed. With their limitations their nature had been deepened and prepared for the teaching and influence of Jesus and for the mighty spiritual powers that came on them with His ascension. The teaching and training of their Jewish home with its beliefs and hopes, laid the foundation on which Jesus builded; it is not too much to say that He could not have done His work in them had this foundation not been laid. It is a well known fact that the church can do with the second or third generation of Christians in a foreign mission field what it cannot do with converts just out of paganism. These children of belief have been trained from their life and laxity of conduct. Hence many people imagine that the church will hold captive by the chains which the earlier theologians have forged around our thinking, and this gives writers like Rupert Hughes the opportunity to harpoon the church for a conception which it does not really hold."

Arthur Langdon, a distinguished English actor and playwright, will be the pulpit guest at the City Temple on Sunday night, and will render a brief inspiring sermon on the subject of "Sunday night, 'Who is the Greatest Living Man?'" This oratorical introduction to Victoria audience. The Temple chorus and quartette and soloists will render the musical programme morning and evening.

ASPIRATIONS OF THE CHRISTADELPHIANS

"We plan to incorporate the insurance idea into our scheme of organization and to encourage the development of other mutual industrial enterprises. The principle of mutual aid will be given the fullest expression within our power."

NO BARRIERS OF CREED
"There will be no creedal barriers to its privileges and fellowship. The revelation of truth we believe to be progressive. Hence any static creed that attempts to cover all important aspects of truth is bound to become more or less obsolete. The truth seer must preserve an open mind with his face towards the light."

"This does not mean that there are no elements of truth that are permanent and enduring. On the contrary, these are so numerous that their enumeration would fill a book. Perhaps one of the most enduring and important of these is the fact of the regenerative power of self-renunciation. It is more important that people in a church be held together by mutual devotion to holy living and the acquisition of knowledge than that they associate merely by common intellectual assent to a detailed statement of creed."

YOUNG ORGANIST AND AGED WIDOW WED; "WAS LONELY," SHE EXPLAINS—Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Fray, wealthy eighty-two-year-old widow, being helped down steps of parsonage at Portsmouth, Va., by her husband, Jack Edward Griffith, twenty-nine, a Norfolk theatre organist, immediately after their marriage.

HIS GOODBYE—General Pershing declared the nation prepared for whatever may happen in his farewell speech in Washington, Defence Day. On that day he retired as head of the American army.

PRODIGY—Myraline Allen of Covington, K., is only eighteen months old—but she can read the alphabet as well as the average adult. This picture here was taken during a test judges, educators, newspapermen and others gave her.

RUNS HIS PLANT THOUGH BLIND—Although totally blind, George Minsker, sixty-five, sticks to his post as president of the Kanawha Woolen Mills at Charleston, W. Va., where he has been on the job for over fifty years. He knows his plant so well that he can feel his way about, and he knows what work is going on by the sound of the machinery.

UNITED STATES'S MIGHTIEST AND NEWEST—Windows three miles away rattled when Uncle Sam tested his newest and mightiest guns at Fort Tilden, Long Island. Upper picture shows one of the big guns firing, and was taken just before the force of the explosion threw the cameraman on his back. Lower picture reveals the size of the shell used, and the detail of the breech.

EX-KAISER'S BROTHER STUDIES AIR "FLIVS"—German inventors are making rapid progress in developing aerial flivvers, equipped with a new type of small but highly efficient motor. The picture shows Prince Heinrich of Prussia, brother of the former Kaiser, inspecting an aerial flivver that took part in an air meet at Hamburg.

A SATURDAY GAME—The idea of this novel contest in Amsterdam, Holland, is to shoot down a slide in a little car and spear a loop holding a tub full of water overhead. If you miss the loop, you get a ducking.

ANGELS MUST GUARD HIM—Up and down New York, in and out of traffic, men shove handcarts loaded with merchandise. Hurrying taxicabs brush past them, machines follow close behind and at intersections automobiles speed across their path—yet one seldom is killed.

JIMMY MURPHY AUTO-RACING STAR, KILLED—When the car driven by Jimmy Murphy, 1922 International racing champion and most consistent race winner of the present generation of drivers, dived through a fence in a 150-mile race at Syracuse, N.Y., traveling only eighty miles an hour, he was so badly injured that he died a few moments later. Murphy had driven as rapidly as 154 miles an hour in safety. He also was an aviator.

KITTENS BORN BY KNIFE—"Iris," the cat shown above, is doing nicely, thank you. Her two kittens were born after a Caesarian operation performed by Dr. C. C. Rohrer, New York veterinarian.

CATHOLIC EDITOR—Michael Williams, Litt. D., one of the editors of press department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Washington, D.C., and author, who addressed the Catholic Truth Society Convention in Toronto.

WHEN TWO OF A KIND ARE WINNERS—Miss Colette Langelade, famous Parisian beauty-contest winner, and her prize-winning feline, which was first in the International Cat Show in Paris. The cat's name is "Julia Cour," or as they say in Victoria, "Pretty Heart."

IT MAKES THE POLICE GRAYHEADED—New York police maintain that the nation's worst traffic tangle is at Columbus Circle, New York, where seven busy streets meet. Street cars, pedestrians and thousands of automobiles would be in a constant tangle, were it not for a force of traffic police forever kept at the corner.

WHEN FIRE SWEEP CALIFORNIA CITY—Fire starting in an oil tank swept through several blocks in Monterey, Calif. It was brought under control only after a forty-eight-hour fight. Several soldiers were killed and dozens of volunteer firemen were more or less seriously injured. Property loss is estimated at $3,000,000.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1924

VICTORIANS ARE ASKED TO SUPPORT PATRIOTIC EFFORT

Model of Design of City's War Memorial For Parliament Square

WAR MONUMENT TO OCCUPY FINE CENTRAL SITE

Statue and Base Will Cost About $15,000 to Erect

Should be Ready For Unveiling Early Next Spring

Empowered by resolution of a well attended meeting the special war memorial committee set to work to select a desirable cenotaph design for Victoria, and the result is the fine bronze figure and pedestal which forms the subject of the present appeal.

The committee invited a number of Canadian sculptors to tender on the matter, but no designs were submitted, and eventually selection was made of the design of Sydney March of Farnborough, Kent, England, a model of which was submitted and approved recently by a public meeting.

Lieut. Governor Nichol has offered to pay for the bronze work, about $5,000, and the cost of the pedestal is estimated to be at least $10,000 more. It is for that purpose that the public is asked to help the local committee, which has established offices in the Halleybury Building. A wide circle of support is desired by the committee.

LOCATION
The question of location occasioned much thought, some desiring Beacon Hill Park, while a downtown location had its supporters, and eventually the place decided upon was the Parliament Square, near the Northeast corner of the grounds. The Provincial Government has offered a site, and to make the necessary foundation work for the pedestal. This site, it is felt, will certainly be central enough, while the public will be able to gather round it for ceremonial Armistice and other fitting days of remembrance hereafter. Even were the memorial not to be surmounted with a statue of a Canadian soldier in action, it would be a substantial and fitting monument, and bring Victoria into line with all Coast cities in the tangible possession of a tangible recollection of the Great War.

READY NEXT SPRING
If the public comes to the assistance of the committee, which is headed by Lindley Crease K.C., as chairman, H. T. Ravenhill as vice-chairman, and Miss Lottie Bowron as secretary. It is hoped to have the memorial ready for unveiling in the Spring of 1925.

The committee has established a central office at the Halleybury Building, Fort Street, in charge of Captain A. E. Harrison, at which subscriptions are being received, and all information is available. The model prepared by Mr. March is on view in one window. There is a sample of the Nelson Island stone, of which it is proposed to build the pedestal. This granite will be used for the steps.

The whole monument is beautifully proportioned, as is all the work turned out by this well-known firm of sculptors. A bronze tablet on one side is reserved for whatever inscription the subscribers decide should be placed there.

No contract for the work will be awarded until the result is known of the amount of subscriptions.

The office at 610 Fort Street will be open from 9 to 6.30 o'clock daily except Saturday, when the hours will be from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing—
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and we lie
In Flanders fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; Be yours to lift it
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies
Blow
In Flanders fields.
JOHN McCRAE
France, 1917.

The Dead

Blow out, you bugles, over the rich Dead!
There's none of these so lonely
and poor of old,
But dying, has made us rarer
gifts than gold.
These laid the years away; poured out the red,
Sweet wine of youth; gave up the years to be
Of work and joy, and that un-
hoped serene
That men call age; and those who would have been,
Their sons, they gave their im-
mortality.
Blow, bugles blow! They brought us for our dearth,
Holiness lacked so long, and Love and Pain.
Honor has come back, as a king
to earth—
And said his subjects with a royal wage;
And Nobleness walks in our ways
again;
And we have come into our Heritage.

EIGHT ARTISTS IN FAMILY ARE CO-OPERATING

Sketch of Remarkable Memorial Designers at Farnborough, England

Career of Sydney March, Designer of Victoria Memorial

The well-known family of March Brothers of Farnborough, Kent, England, have made many memorials for the late war, and the only sculptor to submit a model to the Memorial Committee was Sydney March, a member of the family octette, seven brothers and one sister. The committee unanimously approved the design, and all those who have inspected it are greatly impressed with the monument.

This talented family is composed of Percival, Dudley, Walter, Elsie, Harry, Edward, Sydney and Vernon. Vernon is the modeller and designer, Sydney the designer and sculptor, Edward is a portrait painter, while Miss March is the artist and sculptress. Their remarkable achievements have received a great deal of praise in the British papers, and several illustrations have appeared in the newspapers of the large memorial at Cape Town. The family carries out the entire work of the monuments, from the first design to the ultimate bronze. Their ages range from thirty to forty-eight, and every one is an artist to the finger tips. Each of them is fitted by talent and training to execute details which in the case of a sculptor with only one pair of hands would have to be "put out." Reference has been made already to the special share of Vernon, Sydney, Edward and the sister, while it may be added that Percy and Harry do the casting, Stanley does the technical details, and Walter has also his share in the execution of the memorials. Singularly this remarkable family, all unmarried, gets along without the usual family jars, and as a consequence the most effective results are being attained.

At Wembley great interest was shown in the Cape Town memorial which is regarded as the finest example of the work of the brothers.

HIS CAREER
The people of Victoria are naturally most interested in the work of Sydney March, as the member of the family most intimately associated with the design to be cast for Victoria, and for which delivery is promised in February of next year. He has been engaged in war memorials for the past twenty years. His first engagement was in 1903 for the memorial to commemorate the Enniskilling Fusiliers who fell in the Boer War, and the Royal Irish Rifles memorial at Belfast in 1905.

His brother Vernon works with him, and between them they have made the following war memorials for the late war: Whitefield, Radcliffe, Glossop, Hadfield, Bromley, Lewes, Sydenham and Cape Town.

He designed equestrian statues of Lord Kitchener, erected at Calcutta and Khartoum, and the bronze figures for the Champlain Memorial to be erected next year at Orillia, Ontario. All these works have been made completely from the conception of the idea to the completion and erection by members of the March family.

With regard to the portraiture Mr. March had the honor to be commanded by King Edward VII to make his marble bust for Windsor Castle, King George, Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra also gave him sittings. He also had the only sitting given to a sculptor by Lord Kitchener, and by Cecil Rhodes in his later years.

The Wood of the Evil Name

I met with death in his country,
With his scythe and his hollow
eye,
Walking the roads of Belgium,
I looked, and he passed me by.
Since he passed me by in Plug St.,
In the wood of the evil name,
I shall not lie with the heroes,
I shall not share their fame.
I shall not be as they are,
A name in the land of the free,
Since I looked on Death in Flanders,
And he did not look on me.
E. J. M. D. PLUNKETT
(Lord Dunsany).

The Bivouac of the Dead

The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldiers' last tattoo;
No more on life's parade shall meet
That brave and fallen few,
On Flanders' eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards, with solemn round,
The bivouac of the dead.
No rumor of the foe's advance
Now swells upon the wind;
No troubled thoughts at midnight haunt
Of loved ones left behind;
No vision of the morrow's strife,
The warrior's dream alarm,
No braying horns nor screaming siff
At dawn shall call to arms.

PROVE THEORY OF BALLOON TIRE BY INGENUOUS METHOD

Thousands See Display at Canadian National Exhibition

A feature of the Automobile Show at the Canadian National Exhibition was the demonstration of the comparative comfort of balloon and of high-pressure tires. An ingenious machine gave several hundred thousand people an exact idea of what this new development in automobile tires means.

Side by side were two tires mounted on the same size wheels—one a 32x4 1/2 high-pressure tire, the other a 34x5.77 balloon tire, which takes the place of the 32x4 1/2 tire on a car. Under each tire was a traveling track with a large bump built on it. As the track traveled continuously, everyone was able to see the comparative jolt and vibration transmitted to the car by the tires. In the case of the balloon tire it was hardly noticeable, while it was a distinct jolt in the case of the high-pressure tire.

To make the demonstration more convincing, seats were built on top of each tire and thousands availed themselves of the opportunity of actually testing the two types of tires. Without anyone in the seats, the two tires were equally loaded—400 pounds each.

The demonstration, which was put on by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, attracted great attention and the crowds frequently blocked the aisles of the building.

A further feature of the Goodyear exhibit was the showing of the complete line of Goodyear Tires of all types to meet every motoring need as to mileage, road-grip and price.

Wife—Your honor, he broke every dish in the house on my head, and treated me cruelly.

Magistrate—Did your husband apologize or express regret for his actions?

Wife—No; the ambulance took him away before he could speak to me.

SEES PROMISING BUSINESS AHEAD

George Lillie Confident of Victoria's Commercial Future

one of Victoria's best known automobile accessory dealers, who is head of the Automotive Equipment House, has been in business here for the past twelve years. He has every belief in the future of Victoria.

"Business is very fair at present," he said to-day, "and there are indications, sufficient to be encouraging, that promise something in the future."

Mr. Lillie came to this city in 1912, having been sent from the East to the West by the Russell Motor Car Company, in whose service he then was, to break into new territory on the Pacific Coast. For about a year he was stationed in Vancouver, after having been with the Russell firm since 1903, but eventually found his way to Victoria, where he has remained ever since.

WITH PIONEER FIRM

He was employed by the Canada Cycle and Motor Company before it changed its name to the Russell Motor Car Company. The Russell was the first automobile to be built in Canada, and the first car turned out of the factory, a two cylinder affair, which was entered from behind, was made while Mr. Lillie was with this concern.

BEGINNINGS HERE

From 1912 to 1918 Mr. Lillie was agent for the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Company, and then was a partner in the automobile business for two years with F. G. Woods. After this period of time he went into business independently and has since carried on under his own colors and built up a thriving young business with excellent connections.

Mr. Lillie's present store, on Yates Street is well situated and has a splendid stock of dependable goods.

CANADA'S MOTORS GAIN POPULARITY

The supremacy of Canadian-made automobiles and motor trucks in the New Zealand market is shown by the returns published in the Commercial Intelligence Journal, issued in Ottawa by the Department of Trade and Commerce. Canada sold nearly twice as many cars in New Zealand as the United States did and quadrupled its own 1923 business.

Figures submitted by Trade Commissioner W. A. Beddoe, from Auckland, show that in 1923 New Zealand imported 12,259 motor cars, of a total value of £2,075,297. Of these 7,380 cars, worth £966,384, came from Canada; 4,309, worth £854,171, from the United States; and 469 cars, worth £208,955, from Great Britain.

Canada sent 295 motor lorries, buses, etc., to New Zealand during the year. The value of them was £81,589. The United States sent 437

Tips on how to buy a Used Car
By E. H. Scott.

Pointers on Buying a Used Car

Right through the year new cars are being bought and old cars either sold or traded in. During the fall and at the beginning of spring, however, is the best time to buy a used car, for at these seasons of the year there are always a very large number of used cars on the market and you therefore have a better selection to choose from.

The first thing I want to point out is that there is a great deal of difference in the procedure followed when buying a new car than when buying a used car.

When you buy a new car, you know positively that it is in perfect mechanical condition and the principal points you consider are—price, general appearance, riding qualities and power.

When you buy a used car, general appearance, although it is important, takes second place to the mechanical condition of the car. It is a comparatively simple matter to slick up the body finish and paint the running gear and make a used car look nearly as well as a new car. But if you only know the condition of that car under the hood and could know in advance the grief it: owner is going to have and the money it is going to cost for repairs, you would quickly decide that when buying a used car, outside appearance is not quite so important as the condition of the engine and running gear.

There are many bargains to be picked up in used cars IF YOU KNOW HOW TO PICK THEM. There are many tricks the owner of a used car can use to conceal defects, but a systematic examination and test will protect you against people are suspicious of; dealer and think they can buy a used car much cheaper from a private owner than they can from a dealer. This is not so, for generally the private owner sells his car "as is" while the dealer carefully examines the cars he sells and puts them in good running order. The term "as is" is one you should thoroughly understand if you are thinking of buying a used car.

When you buy from a private owner, you buy "as is" or in other words if the car has been doped up in some way or has some defect which was concealed or temporarily repaired for the demonstration, you have no come-back; for you had a chance to examine the car before you bought it. Once the seller has your money and you have his car, the transaction is concluded.

When you buy a used car "as is" it is more than probable that within a very short time you will have to start spending money replacing worn parts. When a reputable dealer takes a used car in trade, he has it overhauled in his shops and put in first class condition and all worn parts replaced.

If you want a used car in good mechanical condition, therefore, the best place to go for it is the dealer. The best dealer to buy a used car from is the dealer who also sells the same make of car new. When he sells a car, either new or used, his reputation is behind it. When you want service or parts, you know you can always get them.

Another risk you run when you buy a used car from a private owner you do not know, is that of getting a stolen car. Thousands of cars are stolen every month by thieves who make a business of it, and it happens every day that a car bought from some unknown person has to be returned to its rightful owner. If you DO buy a car from someone you do not know, before you pay for it take the car and engine numbers and ask some insurance company to look it up for you. They will be able to tell you whether the person selling the car is the rightful owner and at the same time can give you the exact age of the car. The engine number is usually stamped on the right side of the crank case while the car number is usually stamped on a plate placed on dash under hood or on toe board.

It is always good policy to ask for a bill of sale describing the car fully, its age, condition, and guarantee and for how long it is guaranteed. The usual period covered by a guarantee is 90 days. During this time it is possible to thoroughly test out the car and discover any defects and have them remedied before the guarantee expires. Buying a car in this way you usually pay a little more, but it is worth it.

Next week I shall give you detailed instructions showing how to make a systematic examination and test of a used car to find out just what kind of condition it is in.

A NEW SELF-NEUTRALIZING CIRCUIT

DETAILS OF "FRESHMAN MASTERPIECE RECEIVER"

By H. G. SILBERSORFF

What will be the favorite circuit this coming season? It is a question asked by many interested in radio. The replies from some seem to say super-heterodyne is bound to be it; others claim much for the multi-tube reflex circuits and say their economy is a point which is much sought for by all; still others claim a form of tuned radio frequency receiver, somewhat on the order of the neutrodyne but without its bad features, will take the country by storm.

It goes without question that last season was a neutrodyne season and they performed very well when it is considered that in the great majority of cases the sets were being operated while improperly neutralized.

Manufacturers have realized that present methods of neutralization left much to be desired. It could not be done by the average man; an attempt would be made but the job was selprevents the set from oscillating. The circuit is self-balancing when using these tuned radio frequency units and therefore does not require any stabilizer, such as potentiometer or neutralizing condensers.

These coils have a seven-turn primary and a sixty-turn secondary of No. 24 single silk-covered wire. In order to give the reader a clear conception of this winding, which seems to be the most efficient method, the figure shows how it can be accomplished at home. First procure wooden disks $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter and $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thick. Draw a circle having a diameter of 1.5-1.6 inches. Upon the circumference of this circle drill fifteen holes evenly spaced. These holes provide a snug fit for $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch wooden dowels. Cut the dowels into 12-inch lengths with rounded ends, and glue into holes

PROPERLY INSTALLED ANTENNA YIELDS BEST MATERIAL RESULTS

Well Built Counterpoise Materially Reduces Resistance of Grounds

The recent wave of publicity devoted to the elimination of losses, especially in coil and condenser design, has left, strange to say, the apparently unimportant receiving antenna out of all reckoning. Emulating writers, waxing eloquent, have sought to go one step further and advocated the use of the radical advocacy of extremely low losses. The situation has reached the point where the attempts to lower losses, it is going from the comfortable to the ridiculous: where "low-loss" measures are no longer taking into consideration the expense, or, as one radio fan so aptly expressed it, "the monetary efficiency of radio receiving."

Certainly, measures such as the silver and gold plating of radio instruments, the non-use of sockets, the delicate combination of the two, the efficiency, etc., are not warranted attempts of such extreme character as no longer in the interest of overall efficiency, and only defeat their own purpose.

In their zeal to adopt such "stern measures" experimenters have overlooked a point vital in the workings of the radio receiver. When it is recognized that the strength of the final received sound is proportional to the minute current in the antenna it is hard to believe that the receiving antenna has been so long neglected.

Due to the variation of tubes a variable grid leak is recommended and is necessary if maximum efficiency and distance are to be obtained. However, it was also found that once the leak was adjusted to proper value for any one station with a particular tube that point was the best operating point for all stations.

The diagram shown is self-explanatory and little difficulty will be encountered by the builder in duplicating it. There is one variation and that is the phone jack after the first audio tube. It is a single circuit jack and it is seen that the loud speaker can be kept in operation as the signal is tuned in on the headset.

In tuning the set it is best to set the two dials, which should be of vernier type, in the radio frequency circuit to the highest point usually used, and then try tuning in a station by turning the first dial, which is in the aerial circuit, slowly until the station is heard. If there is no station broadcasting on that wave the two dials should then be turned down two divisions and the antenna dial again moved to within approximately one division of the same setting. It will be noticed the scale readings on all three dials are approximately the same on the various wave lengths.

Once a station is logged it may always be brought in on the same dial setting by referring to the log furnished with the receiver.

The function of the receiving antenna is to absorb part of the energy radiated by the transmitter and pass it on to the receiving instrument. The induced radio-frequency electromotive force is used in the actuation of the receiver.

The resistance of conductors, as far as the receiving antenna is concerned, is quite unimportant, as has been rather strenuously and numerously stated in the past. However, for the low-loss fanatic who desires to "make sure," the following will prove of benefit.

Stranded wire has been and still is being sold extensively for use as antenna wire. It is a popular fancy because of its appearance in the antenna system has a decided advantage over solid wire because, due to the parallel strands of conductor, it has a greater cross-sectional area available to carry the minute current present in the antenna. The writer emphatically states that this is actually not so. Stranded wire, as it is usually sold, is rather inefficient.

A higher radio-frequency resistance than solid wire. The only exceptions to this statement are perfectly made "hitz" wire, and, in a more commonly termed, and stranded wire whose individual strands have been separately enameled (the cost of this material is excessive); besides, the wire will have a higher resistance because the enamel is bound to wear off.

To construct an antenna system for broadcast reception, employing "hitz" wire, is decidedly inadvisable, as it is practically an impossibility to put and keep this wire in perfect shape.

Solid copper wire (No. 14 B & S gauge is absolute) is the cheapest of the good antenna wires, but at a slight increase in cost, the enameled solid copper wire can be purchased. Then enamel coating is of benefit, particularly in smoky atmosphere, as it prevents the otherwise inevitable formation of the high resistance oxidation film which manifests itself with the bare wire. In addition, in the further interests of the reduction of losses in the antenna system, it will be mentioned that it is best to construct the antenna so that there are no joints at all in it.

To proceed while the third resistance component—the resistance due to the losses in the dielectric of the antenna—is generally the determining influence in the total of the terms. Its losses, its importance should not be seriously over-estimated for its resistance, of all three, is the one which can be most effectively reduced.

The reduction of this loss consists, in the main, in the segregation of the entire antenna system (including the lead-in, and also the counterpoise, if one is used), to be placed, as far as possible from material objects, such as trees, buildings, etc.

It may be found advantageous, especially where the ground has poor conductivity, to employ a counterpoise. In its simplest efficient form, it will consist of a duplicate of the antenna, enlarged both in width and length.

The insulators used may be of many different materials; the small bakelite or hard rubber insulator has been found very efficient—for the particular, where the danger of static discharge due to vibration is not serious, long glass or porcelain insulators are recommended.

problem, as is usual in engineering, resolves itself into a compromise.

Experiments conclusively indicate that the receiving antenna which is most efficient will be the simplest. It is the low, short "elevated" antenna, working where the nature of the ground is such as to be fundamental to efficient operation in conjunction with a well designed counterpoise. Its advantages are obvious—it is desirable, economical, quite easy to erect, is more selective than the ordinary antenna, and can be used successfully with the ordinary receiver.

Its total length, including the lead-in and ground lead, should not be more than 125 feet; it should be well insulated (corrugated, rain-shedding glazed porcelain, glass, bakelite or hard rubber insulators are recommended) and should be as far as possible from trees, buildings, etc.

When a counterpoise is employed, it should consist of a number of wires (preferably of equal length) fastened to a single point from the ground. The wires should be bunched more closely under the antenna, where the electrostatic field is densest. The entire system should be insulated from the ground.

The advantage of the low resistance receiving antenna has long been somewhat doubtful, but thorough experiments conducted by capable investigators have definitely determined the advisability of its employment, especially where receivers are involved in which the generation is limited, or where, as has been authoritatively stated, when the minimum total resistance of a receiving antenna is more than twenty-five or thirty ohms the resulting decrease in signal strength is appreciable.

There are three different resistance components entering in the total cancellation of some of the power of the best receiving antenna, as induced in the receiving antenna. They have been arbitrarily classified as:

- 1. Radiation resistance. 2. Resistance due to losses in the dielectric of the antenna. 3. Resistance due to losses in the antenna system.

Although the losses due to radiation resistance and the resistance of the antenna are generally not very serious they cannot be entirely disregarded. Both resistances can be rendered almost negligible by exercising the proper precautions in the design and construction of the antenna.

The antenna should be small enough so that it can be worked at the point of natural wave length of an antenna is the point of highest radiation resistance) for it is here that the greatest amount of power of the induced radio-frequency oscillations is used in the actuation of the receiver.

The resistance of conductors, as far as the receiving antenna is concerned, is quite unimportant, as has been rather strenuously and numerously stated in the past. However, for the low-loss fanatic who desires to "make sure," the following will prove of benefit.

FINE EQUIPMENT FOR SHEMANDOAH

U.S. Airship Will Have Most Powerful Sets Ever Placed on Any Aircraft

Following is a description of the new radio equipment now being installed on the United States navy's rigid airship Shenandoah. This equipment is the most powerful that has ever been placed on any aircraft.

The radio transmitters and receivers on the Shenandoah are unique in many ways. All of the apparatus was developed and manufactured at the Bellevue Laboratory. This development and manufacture has covered a period of about a year, and has required the assistance of about eight radio engineers and ten mechanics of the highest order.

The transmitting equipment of the Shenandoah consists of two separate and distinct units. First, the main transmitter, a very powerful set, capable of transmitting several thousand miles. This set is by far the most powerful transmitter that has ever been carried into the air by any nation.

The short wave transmitter or auxiliary set, which will be used in case of a breakdown on the main transmitter, is less powerful. This transmitter incorporates both telephone and continuous wave systems. The telephone system is used in landing operations. The antenna used for the main transmitter consists of nearly 2,000 feet of wire led out from a reel to a point several hundred feet below the ship, this reeling out being accomplished by means of weights on pulleys. It might be said that this antenna is probably the most efficient type of antenna that is used anywhere in the world.

The Shenandoah's receiving equipment is the product of the navy's best engineers and combines the very latest features of the best receiving circuits known to this country. Three separate and distinct receiving sets are used. First, a long wave receiver, covering a range of from 2,000 to 20,000 meters, which is used for direction finding, and the tuning is so fine that interference can be tuned out which is within one-fifth of a kilocycle of the station desired.

The second receiver, called the short wave receiver, also consists of seven tubes employing the same circuit as used in the long wave receiver but covers a wave length band from 150 to 1,000 meters in conjunction with the radio compass. This antenna will be most useful in navigating the Shenandoah, as radio compass navigation has frequently demonstrated its value to aircraft operating in fog or above the clouds when out of sight of the earth.

All the receiving sets combined consist of eight units, with an approximate weight of 200 pounds. The same equipment built for shore or ship work would weigh at least five times that much, but the weight, which is the most important consideration in "lighter-than-air" work, added this extra problem of designing the best equipment with a minimum amount of weight. The combined transmitters weigh about 1,500 pounds which seems excessive for aircraft use. However, radio transmitters of similar power designed for ship or shore station work would weigh several tons.

The new equipment will be located in the after section of the forward or control car of the airship. The compartment containing the radio equipment has been specifically constructed at the naval aircraft factory and is made entirely of wood. This was done so as to minimize all possible inaccuracies in the radio compass which is operated in conjunction with the set.

The gasoline engine to drive the generator of the transmitter will be located with the generator in a small compartment of its own, between the section of the forward car used by the officers of the ship to control her movements and the radio compartment. This arrangement is unique and, while the airship is in flight will more than compensate for the slight decrease in maximum speed occasioned by the removal of this engine.

It is interesting to note that the power used in hydrogen-inflated airships has been limited, due to the danger of the minutest spark occurring in the interior of the airship and igniting the dangerous hydrogen. With helium this danger does not exist, and therefore with the helium-inflated Shenandoah the Navy Department feels that the installation of a radio set commensurate in range with the cruising range of the airship itself, always recognized as highly desirable, is now possible.

The increase in the value of the Shenandoah as a fleet scout, through the installation of this powerful radio equipment, is great. The combination of long cruising range and long communicating range will no doubt open up a new and larger field for work for airships.

Which Radiola?

You will buy a radio set if you have not already bought. It is inevitable, if you would keep up with the times. You may not be interested in music, but there are sports, politics, religion, agriculture, child education, welfare work and a thousand and one things to choose from.

Which set? Here are eight points of Radiola superiority:

- 1. Simplicity of operation. 2. Accuracy of reproduction. 3. Wave length range. 4. Amplification. 5. Selectivity or ability to choose between stations. 6. Sensitivity or ability to pick up distant stations. 7. Fine workmanship. 8. Good appearance.

dom finished to his satisfaction. The feeling that it wasn't exactly right was ever present, and the feeling was usually right.

Neutralizing by means of compensating coils is being used with much satisfaction, and the process is truly a simple one, and now comes a receiver employing two stages of tuned radio frequency, detector and two stages of audio frequency amplification, but without any compensating condensers or coils—in the talk of the radio shop, pointing to fuss with this new receiver is known as the Freshman Masterpiece and was developed by A. W. Franklin, Chief Engineer of the Charles Freshman Company, New York City. This receiver utilizes specially designed coupling coils, wound in such a manner as to reduce capacities and losses to a minimum, and has a close coupling between the primary and secondary windings which tends to reduce capacity to a minimum.

Previous forms of tuned radio frequency receivers used a comparatively loose coupling, which had a tendency to reduce capacity to a minimum. For the benefit of those desiring to construct this receiver the following list of parts will be of value in the next shopping tour to the radio district.

2. 0.002 or .00025 mfd. low loss condensers. 2. low loss coils (as described below). 4. four-prong sockets. 7. binding posts. 1. 0.0025 mica condenser. 1. variable grid leak. 1. 5-to-1 audio transformers. 1. .002 mica condenser. 1. .006 mica condenser. 1. single circuit jack. 1. filament control switch. 1. 20-ohm rheostat. 1. 10-ohm rheostat. 1. 4-inch dials with vernier attachments. 1. 1x18 $\frac{1}{4}$ panel. 1. 1x17 $\frac{1}{2}$ sub-panel. 1. 1x18 $\frac{1}{2}$ cabinet.

SIMPLICITY
It will be noted from the photograph that the only apparatus that is visible when the cabinet is opened are the three tuned radio frequency units, the variable grid leak and the five tubes. All other parts are mounted below the hard rubber sub-panel, this panel also serving as the base of all five sockets and the base of the three tuned radio frequency units. Therefore in the construction of the set the first thing to be considered is the securing of this sub-panel, completely drilled. In the Freshman receiver the sockets are riveted and eyeleted thereto. All wiring, transformers and rheostats are mounted below this panel, thus being entirely hidden from view. This permits the use of short straight-line connections between the different points and keeps the resistance of the circuit down to the lowest possible limit, thus increasing the efficiency.

Most persons, especially when the wiring is open to view, try to make a nearly made bend in the bus bar and lose sight of the fact that in making a set pleasing to the eye they sacrifice the most essential features, low loss and efficiency. In this receiver not only is the latter obtained but the internal appearance of the receiver is improved by its look of simplicity.

Having fastened the sub-panel, we are next ready for the building up of the tuned radio frequency coils. There is but one important point to remember in winding these coils and that is to have the primary of the radio frequency coils wound in a reverse direction to that of the secondaries. It is said that this reversed winding drilled. The recesses on the periphery of the disk are to facilitate the interlocking on the outside of the coil.

WINDING COILS
After the form is completed proceed to wind as follows: Holding form in the left hand with the points pointing toward you, lay the wire over pegs 1 and 2, then inside of 3 and 4 and then over the two following and so on until you come to inside of 15 and 1, after which the second turn is started over two pegs and under two in the same manner. By studying the figure above it will be seen that no two wires are parallel to each other and that they are a considerable distance apart. This is the reason that the distributed capacity of the coil is so low. In winding the second cycle of, four turns, the fifth turn is laid over and inside of the same pegs as the first turn. The sixth turn is laid the same way as the fifth. The seventh follows the same path as No. 3, and so on. This cycle of turns again creates a magnetic field which is staggered from the field made by the first four turns.

The coils of wire are each separated by a space equivalent to the thickness of the wire, and its insulation is thereby suffering practically no absorption losses through the adjacent wire. Hence the maximum amount of inductance is obtained in this form of winding.

Continue winding the required number of turns as above and after the winding process is completed cut the wire, leaving it long enough for a suitable lead. In order to interlock the inductance so as to slide it off the form without collapsing, secure a medium size darning needle and a spool of white thread and guide the

Striking Matches All Day, His Job
London, Sept. 27.—Tom Tuthill, who worked for thirty-six years in a London match factory striking matches to test their quality, died recently from blood poisoning contracted while at work. His job, one of the queerest in King George's kingdom, was created for him after he had suffered from infantile paralysis and needed an easy task.
All day long, day after day, year after year, Tuthill went on with his work, scratching all his matches by hand and passing judgment upon the quality of each fresh consignment from the work rooms. EX FOES BALK AT MAKING UP WITH "FRIZ" WITH "FRIZ"

French Oppose British Motion in "Fidac" to Invite Fractionation

Veterans of Reich Divided; Sentiment in Germany to be Sounded Out

London, Sept. 27—"Fidac" sounds as though it might be the name of anything from a new brand of cigarettes to a new universal language.

"Fidac" is a word coined from the initials letters of the words—in French—"Federation Interallie des Anciens Combattants"—a group having 5,000,000 members in ten nations. This week, while the League of Nations debated at Geneva the question of German entrance into the league, the "Fidac" conference in London was debating the advisability of adopting Sir Ian Hamilton's advice to "shake hands with the German soldiers."

In neither city, however, was a definite action reached. Although "Fidac's" existence was supposed to demonstrate that the veterans of the Allied nations are united in peace as they were in war, nevertheless memories are still too vivid for agreement to be reached on the question of "making it up" with "FRIZ."

BRITISH FOR "MAKING IT UP"

The British Legation, which represents the greater portion of Great Britain's affiliation with "Fidac," favors inviting the German ex-servicemen to join the British Association of former soldiers, and so does the Italian Associazione dei Combattenti.

The French Union Nationale, however, opposes such a move, and apparently, do similar organizations of eastern Europe. As a result, when representatives of the allied forces came to a vote on the British proposal that officers of "Fidac" should draw up a report declaring the former enemy organizations "could with profit to the cause of peace, be invited to join the organization." It was defeated by four votes to three—the other countries represented abstaining from voting.

Immediately afterward the congress passed a resolution that every nation represented in "Fidac" should carry out an investigation of its own, "to ascertain what in the past the military and naval forces of that country with regard to peace." The effect of this action is that German and Austrian veterans' organizations will be invited to join the "Fidac" organization, while the men who fought against them in the war.

FORMER FOES DIVIDED

According to Sir Ian Hamilton and Lieutenant Colonel George Crossfield, vice-president of "Fidac," there are at least 5,000,000 German and Austrian ex-servicemen who are members of permanent organizations. These members of "Fidac" who favor admitting the enemies believe that, roughly speaking, half of the "tonic former enemies" are genuinely anxious for peace, while the other half are bent on keeping alive the organizations for a war of revenge.

It is to strengthen the hands of the first group that the question arises of inviting certain of these German organizations to join "Fidac." Although unable to reach a decision on this point, the Allied exiles who have approved a number of other resolutions and adopted them as tending to minimize the chances of new wars. One of the proposals is to inform all allied governments that "territorial claims which are not sanctioned by the treaties of peace and which are supported by threats of force are a danger to world peace.

Another is that the League of Nations should endeavor to meet the objections directed toward its organization by the United States. The third resolution was that every country affiliated with the movement should be invited to send a woman delegate to take part in the conferences.

ART AND CRAFT NOW CLASH OVER BRITISH ACTORS' UNION

London, Sept. 27—A merry dispute is going on these days between rival sections of British actors. One organization, the Actors' Association—is trying to unionize all British players, just as the variety show artists are entirely unionized.

In opposition is the Stage Guild recently formed by Sir Frank Benson, which is opposed to industrial action and maintains that the stage profession is an art unfit for trade unionism.

"The 'AA' replies by asserting that the guild is the creation of managers who are trying to oppress the chorus girls. First honors in the fight would seem to rest with the 'AA' as three of the leading theatrical managers of England—Andre Charlot, Arthur Boucherier and Robert Courtine—have resigned from the guild to join the rival organization, and two guild managers, Sir John Martin Harvey and Eva Moore—have been boycotted in the provinces, where they are now touring.

The dispute between the two guilds is considered a draft of what the "AA" deems an ideal contract. This marks a step toward peace between the actor and the manager. It is a point which has been long and haughtily refused to meet the Actors' Association at all.

Labor Takes Incident Seriously, as Capitalist Money Is Blow to Class Pride

London, Sept. 27—Although the Prince of Wales has an annuity of approximately £200,000, the Premier's salary amount to only £25,000 a year. Interest is raised in this comparison by the publication of the fact that Premier Ramsay MacDonald had accepted the revenue from £20,000 for the upkeep of his motor car presented to him by the same donor—a life long friend who was honored by a baronetcy, bestowed on him last June by King George.

No event of recent date has excited as much interest and comment as the publication of this bit of news from London. The Premier has handled it not only with the greatest care, but with one conspicuous exception, the London journals have neglected the matter and had nothing to warrant the least comment.

One of two papers have said that MacDonald was guilty of lack of judgment, but they are careful not to speak in glowing terms of his keen sense of honor, and of him as an upright man. Whether the last of the subject has been accepted or not, it is said, but it is highly probably that various phases of the question will be raised in the near future.

Great Britain had Premier some of whom enjoyed only a modest income, but there is no doubt that MacDonald was probably the least highly paid of British statesmen. His salary has been derived chiefly from his journalistic work, the royalties from his various books being comparatively small.

MEANS LIMITED

Although his contributions to newspapers and magazines command a large sum, his total earnings are limited. He is the father of a large family and he has to provide for the education of his children. When at the beginning of the year he was called by the King to accept the post of Prime Minister, he must have given much thought to the question of finance.

"Being of extremely simple tastes and having no interest in social affairs," said the Premier, "I have chosen to accept the opportunity offered him to meet new people and to talk with them. MacDonald may have a taxidermy shop in his pocket to cover all his needs. His Majesty's Premier, however, has been called upon to provide his own servants, his food and wines, out of his salary. He has been compelled to pay the cost of entertaining his guests at Chequer, and had to meet the cost of one or more automobiles.

Before he became Premier he was able to travel from his house to Parliament in the subway. Only when he was busy until late at night could he use a taxi. Sir Alexander Grant, his boyhood friend, who grew up to become a large capitalist, a Conservative in politics and a great sportsman, is said to have presented the Premier with a high priced automobile.

MacDonald hesitated to accept it, fearing it would call attention to the fact that the cost of running the car, Sir Alexander offered to provide also a fund out of which MacDonald could purchase a new automobile. The Premier accepted the offer. Everything about the transaction was aboveboard, and the Premier has accepted it with a good conscience. It is difficult to judge the reaction of the British public.

Unquestionably, the news injured MacDonald. The worst damage was done by the fact that the Socialist Premier accepted the gift from a "conservative capitalist. That though the Premier is a member of the Liberal and Conservative ranks, but it brings chagrin to members of his own party, especially among the laboring classes.

"The fact that the meeting has been postponed is considered significant. In turn, this frank avowal by Dublin that it wants large transfers of population and territory to be made by the commission, has caused the Ulsterites realize that the last word as to interpretation of the optional clause is still undecided. Sir Birkhead of Balfour, but with Chairman Justice Peetham, of South Africa, and it is not willing to risk the loss of Fermanagh and Tyrone by submitting the decision to a third party.

IRISH BOUNDARY DISPUTE

The above map is from a recent issue of The London Daily Telegraph. It enables a clear idea to be formed of the present boundary dispute between the Government of Northern Ireland and of the Irish Free State.

It shows the three counties of Donegal, Monaghan and Cavan, which Ulster gave up under the Act of 1920, the extent of the territory at present included in Northern Ireland, and those portions of Northern Ireland now claimed by the Free State.

It will be seen that the demands of the South have tended to increase. In the latest claim she includes the northwest corner of Londonderry, further slices of Armagh and Down and two further portions of Tyrone.

She agreed in 1922 that the western part of Tyrone was a "divided" area, with neither Unionists or Nationalists preponderating, but this is now included in her claim.

The old Unionist strongholds of Londonderry and Enniskillen are among her demands, which now comprise the whole of Fermanagh and Tyrone. Approximately half of the north and west of Londonderry, Armagh and Down—an area she believes too small to support a Government of its own.

LONDON'S HISTORIC SPOTS FASCINATING TO CANADIANS

By Panton House

LONDON, Sept. 27—After the Dome of St. Paul's Cathedral and Nelson's Column in Trafalgar Square, probably the first London landmark recognized by visiting Canadians is the Clock Tower of the Houses of Parliament. The title of "Big Ben," affectionately conferred by Londoners on both the tower and its great four-faced clock, properly belongs to the bell, weighing thirteen and a half tons, on which the hours are struck; it was named after Sir Benjamin Hall, first commissioner of works when it was hung.

Thousands of Londoners set their watches by "Big Ben," the clock, which is usually so accurate a time-keeper that his rare stoppages are in the nature of a public calamity. Small boys and girls will envy the popular favorite when they know that his four faces are now being washed for the first time in three and a half years, but let them reflect what it must be like to have three and a half years' grime removed at a sitting from a well-known stoppage, who sits on a plank, slung from a scaffold-pole from the battlements which are just above the clock-face, at anything from 170 to 190 feet above the ground. From this specialist's point of view, the only dangerous element in the job is from the minute-hand, which is fourteen feet long and weighs about 200 pounds, and, having an irresistible way with it, is best given a wide berth.

ROMAN LONDON

Lloyd's—the famous association of underwriters, merchants, shipowners and insurance brokers, which has occupied part of the Royal Exchange Buildings for one hundred and fifty years—is to move within the next year to new premises in Ludlow Street. The site has been cleared, and excavations have begun, people interested in London's Roman past are hoping for some interesting discoveries. In the course of fourteen or fifteen hundred years, the level of London has risen by many feet. The surface of Roman London was from six to nineteen feet below that of our streets to-day.

In 1850, when the site of Leadenhall Market was being made ready, the massive foundations were partly unearthed of a building thought to have been Roman London's great civic hall, probably over 400 feet long. Further traces of this may come to light as the present excavations proceed. In the meantime, visitors from the Dominions may be seen any day, studying the Roman relics in the London Museum and the Guildhall collections. They are perhaps less interested in the statues and mosaic floors than in the sandals, household gear, and beautiful deep-red Samian pottery.

Party Agent Writes Letter That Marks Another Point in Breaking of Class Lines

London, Sept. 27—One of the significant signs of the times is the letter sent out during the last week by H. E. Blaine, principal agent for the Conservative Party, to local associations throughout the country, proposing greater representation of working men in the councils of the party.

Blaine's plan, in brief, is that in every constituency there shall be a labor committee, consisting of from two to four representatives of manual workers, and this committee, in turn, shall nominate four members to the party executive group of that constituency.

The object of the scheme, of course, is to attract the bright young workmen to the Conservative party by making them feel that they have no open to them within the organization, and so to break down gradually the virtual monopoly hold that the Labor party at present has in trades union circles.

CAUSES LITTLE COMMENT

Quite apart from its political significance, however, it is truly amazing that this new aspect of "Tory Democracy" should have been met with so little public comment. The social revolution has quietly occurred in England. Canadians long have been proud of boasting that they have no social classes, meaning, presumably, not that there is any difference between the rich and poor, but that it is easy to advance from one grade of society to another.

It long has been considered that in England the social strata are more or less congealed—a scion of the aristocracy must enter the aristocratic world, while the son of a shopkeeper must likewise be a shopkeeper. The comments of Walter Hines Page in his autobiography "That they have no social classes, meaning, presumably not that there is any difference between the rich and poor, but that it is easy to advance from one grade of society to another."

British Doctors Start War on Sick Act System

London, Sept. 27—The British answer to threats of a Franco-German industrial combination may take the form of a gigantic iron and steel trust established in England.

Manufacturers are reported to hold the view that under a central executive bureau, which would serve as a clearing house for purchases of raw materials and disposal of finished goods, more favorable terms could be obtained in both buying and selling transactions.

The ultimate object of such a combine would be to reduce the price of British iron and steel products until they could compete in the world market with Continental goods. As yet no formal move has been made to start this trust, but in well-informed circles in the United States, it is being discussed with increasing interest.

London, Sept. 27—There is a quiet revolution going on in England in the world of men's fashions, its outward and visible signs just now being the restoration of the bowler hat, as Piccadilly calls the Derby, to the place of honor it held in pre-war days.

Up until recently there was a gradual falling off of formality in men's dress, due to the influence of the war. Now the reaction has set in in favor of formal dress. The first indication was the gradual replacement of the soft collar by the old-fashioned stiff linen collar. Next the soft shirt for evening wear, which few Britons ever approved, disappeared, its place being taken exclusively by the more dignified white shirt.

Now comes the complete change in hat fashions. Last year a Derby hat was the exception, but this year it has become the rule. One's hat is attributed to the Prince of Wales to the Derby. At any rate, in Bond Street number of Derbys are being sold in comparison with Tribbys and Homburgs.

Carrying a dash of brilliance on a dark ground cloth, such as brown with yellow, blue, mauve or gray. There are in diagonal waves, but the combination of any two contrasting colors to form a small check pattern is also popular, as are white, green, blue, and red. Especially popular blue, slate gray, navy blue and black.

The evening suits in patterns have a stripe in the form of a fine line or as an indistinct diamond pattern.

HUGE STEEL COMBINE PROPOSED IN BRITAIN

Men's Hat Styles Following Prince Back to the Derby

London, Sept. 27—The National Medical Union, which claims to speak for some 15,000 British physicians, is on the warpath against the panel system of medical treatment under the National Insurance Act.

The National Medical Union is now hard at work completing the case which it hopes to establish against the panel system. It is to be investigated in October by a Royal Commission whose membership includes Lord Lawrence, chairman; Sir John Anderson, Sir Humphrey Rolleston, Sir Charles Watson, Sir Arthur Worley and Sir Andrew Duncan.

The union maintains that the panel system leads to inferior doctoring, that panel doctors are unable to give adequate attention to their long lists of patients and that the system is demoralizing and involves puperization. The forthcoming attack will, it is expected, be the most vigorous yet launched against this phase of the National Insurance Act. Its importance may be gauged by the fact that there are now 15,000,000 panel patients in England, Scotland and Wales.

One charge against the panel system is that the panel doctor, with an enormous list of panel patients, is usually too busy to give them adequate attention. He has private patients in addition to his panel list, and in order to find time for his private patients, it is charged, he must take his patients at high speed.

LEADING BOWLER KILLED

London, Sept. 27—Many bowlers will hear with sorrow of the death of Thomas Hyde, Mr. Hyde, one of the most popular figures in bowling circles in Cumberland and Westmorland, was killed by the overturning of his motorcar between Carlisle and Silloth. Only the previous week he had been a member of the rink which won the Cumberland County Championship.

BIRKENHEAD ATTACKED

The Belfast newspapers attack Birkenhead as vigorously as do the Dublin papers, charging the ex-Chancellor with having drafted the cause of such a way as to make it acceptable to both his Tory colleagues of the coalition Cabinet and to the Irish leaders.

The fact that the meeting has been postponed is considered significant. In turn, this frank avowal by Dublin that it wants large transfers of population and territory to be made by the commission, has caused the Ulsterites realize that the last word as to interpretation of the optional clause is still undecided. Sir Birkhead of Balfour, but with Chairman Justice Peetham, of South Africa, and it is not willing to risk the loss of Fermanagh and Tyrone by submitting the decision to a third party.

The tragedy of the situation is that every impartial observer recognizes the only irrevocable solution of the Irish problem is by agreement among the rival Irish Governments since whatever the commission may decide upon will only aggravate the trouble. Public opinion in North and South Ireland, however, gags their leaders, and so we drift on now to the next chapter in the eternal Irish question.

OLD ULSTER CRER CALLED

The area of Ulster was never very stable. At one time it was simply the transfer of its name to the north, which embraced the modern County Antrim and parts of Down and Armagh. At other times it expanded, and it finally became fixed as the nine counties of Donegal, Derry, Antrim, Down, Armagh, Monaghan, Cavan, Fermanagh and Tyrone.

This was the Ulster that Lord Randolph Churchill referred to when he said "Ulster will fight and Ulster will be right!" It was the Ulster that Lord Carson and the Ulster Unionists swore to defend when they signed the solemn league and covenant against Home Rule. But it is not the Ulster of to-day.

In 1920 the British Parliament, without the assent of a single Irish member, Orange or Green, divided Ireland into two states and put Donegal, the most northern county in the country, and two other Ulster counties, Monaghan, Cavan, into a state which it called Southern Ireland, and created the problem which it is now trying to solve.

TORIES HITHERTO ALOOF

Former cotton mill workers, fitted with sword and knee breeches, attend the King in Buckingham Palace. And, in spite of all this, the Conservative Party has hitherto preserved itself immune from these plebeian touches. No working man has ever been returned to Parliament as a Conservative. The Tory party, at least has never the Tories have put up a manual laborer for Westminster they have been careful to select some place where he was not likely to be seen.

In the last general election only two working men ran on the Tory ticket, and one of them had the manly look of a fighter. Jack Jones in the East End constituency in London, where he had less chance than a Republican in Georgia. Now, however, this is to be changed. The Conservatives recognize that if they wish to return to power in these democratic days they must court the working man.

As the Times remarked: "The time has gone by for putting up a few working man candidates for hopeless seats at the general election and forgetting their very existence when a safe seats falls vacant at a bye-election."

Blaine's recommendation represents the first step in a new political policy. Bona fide wage earners are to be adopted by Conservatives as Parliamentary candidates in districts where there will at least be a fighting chance, and the party at its annual meeting at Newcastle is expected further to democratize its organization. The Tory party, at last, has come to realize the full meaning of the reform bill that its great leader, Disraeli, put over the country in 1867.

THAMES MOTOR SERVICE

It is understood that another fleet of passenger boats is to be placed on the Thames next year. At present the London and his guests can travel up the river from Westminster to Hampton Court and Richmond, or down from Greenwich to Southend and beyond; and a small launch will take them from Westminster to the Tower of London and back. The new boats, which are to be driven by British built semi-Deisel engines developing 192 h.p., will cover the reaches between Hammarsham and Woolwich. They will carry about 300 passengers each at fares of about two cents a mile.

It form than ever. Even the transfer of large areas would leave a problem still to be solved. Here is what official handbook of the Irish Free State says:

FREE STATES CLAIM

"The settlement of the boundary in accordance with such a principle would rob partition of one of its most glaring injustices by restoring the maximum number of unwilling citizens to the government of their choice, but many of the evil results of an evil policy would remain. There would still be left in the partitioned area thousands of dissatisfied citizens." (Concluded on page 22)

London Succumbs To Horn-rims

London, Sept. 27—The British are beginning to take up horn-rimmed spectacles after scoring them for years. Until recently any one seen wearing such spectacles along the pavements of London was taken instantly to be an American.

Yet, walking along the Strand for five minutes the other night, a stroller counted a dozen pairs of eyes looking out from behind the beated horn-rims, and none of these twelve pedestrians was an American.

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO CHILDREN

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE By Uncle Ray

WASHING AWAY SINS

People often do things they believe bad. Then they are likely to have troubled minds. They worry over what they have done, wishing they had acted in a different way. They want to do something to make up for the evil they have caused. The Romans were worried about their sins. They had the habit of offering sacrifices to the gods. That means they killed dumb beasts. They hoped the blood would wash away the stains on their souls.

SCHOOLS AND PUPILS

There were some differences between the education of Greek and Roman children. Greek girls had to stay home all the time. Unless they were taught to read by parents or servants, they never learned. In Rome the girls were allowed to start to school when they were seven years old. They usually remained at school however, only a few years.

Roman boys started to school at the same age, but remained much longer. They went to private schools and their fathers had to pay the teachers. The poorer children, of course, had to go without schooling. In Greek schools pupils were taught ends. Games of that kind were common among boys of olden times.

Little girls usually played games which were less rough. They amused themselves by picking flowers, gathering colored stones and pretty shells or tossing balls back and forth. Dolls were in common use. The richer girls had dolls of ivory, the poorer had to be content with those made of hard clay. Many of the dolls had arms and legs which could be moved.

Fairy tales were popular among children. They were often to be seen sitting almost breathless at the feet of their nurses, listening to stories. Roman fairy tales were a great deal like those of the present time. They had much to say of kings and queens, beautiful princesses who were won by handsome princes and ugly sisters who tried to keep the pretty sister from being seen by suitors.

ROMAN COCK FIGHTS

I wonder what makes people like to watch a fight. I suppose it's the excitement which gives a bit of a change from the dull life of "making a living." Prize fights, when men batter and beat and do their best to hurt, are really ugly things; yet there are great numbers of persons who are willing to spend their time watching. Bull fights (man against bull) are very popular in Spain and Mexico. Some Americans raise their hands in horror about the bull fights, but they say little or nothing about prize fights.

Boys in Roman times appear to have enjoyed the "sport" of cock-fighting. One of our pictures shows two boys who have been presiding at a cock fight. The loser is carrying away his "bird," which is limp—perhaps dead. The young master is rubbing his eyes. The other boy has a champion almost as big as himself. From the picture you would think he could get on its back and take a ride. Far to the right is a bust of a god.

Defeat and Victory.

On the altar are wreaths and palm branches such as were given to the victors.

Our other picture is just as interesting. It also shows the end of a cock fight. One bird is bleeding from the pecks of its opponent. One of the masters is saddened because he has lost; the other holds a wreath aloft. Two slave boys are nearby. One bears a palm branch in his hands, the other is weeping. You can guess which boy belongs to which master.

ROMAN TABLES AND BEDS

Did you ever try to figure out why the supports of tables and chairs are called "legs"? The reason is very simple. The pieces which hold up the tops do some of the same work as the legs of animals. That is why early people often shaped the legs of their chairs and tables like those of animals. One of our pictures shows a Roman table with such legs.

Roman tables were often very costly. The top parts were made of stone or wood, and were sometimes covered with gold or silver. The Roman orator, Cicero, paid $20,000 for a table. Another table, belonging to a very rich family was worth $50,000.

Romans of the poorer class usually sat on simple stools. Richer persons had chairs with backs. Sometimes the backs were stiff and straight. Others were built more for comfort. One kind of chair was called a "cathedra." It was very comfortable and was used by bishops after the Christians gained power in Rome. The word "cathedral" comes from the name of this chair. Bishops had charge of the finer churches or "cathedrals" (places with bishops' chairs).

Slaves and the poor slept on bedding thrown on the floor, or else on simple couches. Even the rich seldom paid much attention to their beds or bedrooms. The framework of a bed which we show is of the better class.

Some of the most useful of the gifts of science were first revealed to mankind by a malevolent rather than a benevolent aspect. But even the most destructive agencies may in the course of time be brought into the constructive service of the human race.

Steel, man's most useful metal, made its appearance in the form of swords and spearheads for the killing of man. Now we employ it for the skeletons of skyscrapers and steamships.

Petroleum was first employed as "Greek fire" for setting ships ablaze. Now it is employed, among other things, as fuel for the propulsion of ships.

Cherries were introduced into Great Britain from Flanders in 1540.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and the Baked Beans

Copyright, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate (By Howard R. Garis)

Uncle Butter, the gentleman roat, pranced into the hollow stump log-cabin of Uncle Wiggily one morning. The rabbit gentleman had just finished twinkling his pink nose, getting ready to go out and look for an adventure.

"Come along adventuring with me, Uncle Butter," invited the rabbit gentleman.

"Thank you, I shall be delighted," bleated Uncle Butter. "And will we build a campfire, Wig, and cook something to eat, as we used to do when we were boys together?" "We can do that if you like, But," answered the rabbit. "You see he used to call Uncle Butter 'But' for short, and Uncle Butter called the bunny 'Wig.'"

"Could we bake some beans in a pot in the embers of a camp fire?" went on Uncle Butter. "Seems to me nothing would taste as fine as baked beans. What do you say, Wig?" "I say the same, But," answered the bunny. "We must speak to Nurse Jane about it. I don't know how to bake beans."

"I'll fix them for you, all ready to bake," said Nurse Jane. "But you two are very foolish to go off into the woods to bake beans. I can do it much better for you right here in the oven of my stove."

"Thank you; but we want to pretend we are camping out in the woods," Nurse Jane, bleated Uncle Butter. "It will remind us of when we were young."

"Very well," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I will put the beans soaking in water, and when they are soft I will put them in a brown, earthen pot, with some molasses and a piece of pork. Then all you will need to do will be to put the pot in the fire, and bake the beans."

So, a little later, Uncle Wiggily and Uncle Butter started off together with the pot of beans. They built a fire in the woods and sat down on a green mossy log near the blaze.

"Ah, this is the life!" sang Uncle Wiggily.

"The best fun I've had since I caught the measles and didn't have to go to school," bleated Uncle Butter. They put the pot of beans down in the hot ashes and embers of the fire, and waited for the baking to be finished. But, all of a sudden, while the two friends were sitting on the log, out of the bushes popped the bad, cross old Bear.

"Ah, ha!" growled the Bear. "I shall have four ears to nibble to-day—two of Uncle Wiggily's and two of Uncle Butter's."

"How about nibbling some baked beans?" asked Uncle Wiggily, casual like and disinterested. "We have a pot of beans soaking in the fire, Mr. Bear. If you will kindly help yourself you are welcome!" bleated the Bear. "I'll eat your beans and then I'll eat your ears."

The Bear took a stick to poke the pot of beans out of the fire, but no sooner had he started to do this than "Bang!" something shot off like a gun. The Bear tumbled backward, turning a somersault, and a shower of beans and fire ashes were scattered all over Uncle Wiggily and Uncle Butter, but they weren't hurt.

"Goo! Goo!" Who shot me?" howled the Bear as he limped and lumbered off into the woods. Uncle Wiggily and Uncle Butter didn't know what had made the bean pot burst, until Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boy, came running into the woods.

"Oh, what happened to my big fire-cracker that I cracked when the month of July?" he barked. "I had a big fire-cracker and I was saving it for next Fourth of July, and I put it in a pot in your pantry, Uncle Wiggily, and—"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny. "It was Jackie's fire-cracker in the bean pot that exploded when the beans baked hot. Nurse Jane didn't know the cracker was in the pot. But it's a good thing it was, for it scared the Bear." And so it did. Uncle Wiggily and Uncle Butter got more baked beans—this time without any fire-crackers in the pot, and they had a fine time in the woods. And if the molasses cookies doesn't stay so late at the movies that the cup of tea has no one to play with, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's snafu.

Ben, Who Doubled

Medicine From Poison

Many of our modern medicines were used by savages for poisoning their arrow points. Strychnine and aconite had their ill-omened origin. Another arrow poison, obtained by the savages from cassava juice, is hydrocyanic acid, which in the hands of the modern metallurgist, extracts nine-tenths of the gold supply of the world.

Arsenic, which during the Renaissance was the fashionable means of poisoning the people, is now used for the more laudable purpose of poisoning plant pests and the parasites of man.

We owe our wireless to the progress of the art of aviation, which played an important part in that conflict, has not yet found a place of importance in civil life.

FEATURES FOR SMALLER FOLKS

The Nursery Rhyme Quiltie

NUMBER SIX

Barber, Barber, shave a pig— How many hairs to make a wig? Four and twenty, that's enough. Give the poor barber a pinch of snuff.

Well, Mr. Piggy, will you have a marcelle, a shampoo or a bob? Such a gentleman of a pig that visits the barber shop surely should have something fancy done to him. If you were a barber, I bet you'd hate to get paid in nasty, old snuff; a penny would be much nicer, I think.

Of course we are using these blocks to make up a quilt for ourselves or our cousins or for somebody nice, but now that Christmas is coming soon, I do not know that there is any reason why we should not use these patterns to make some lovely Christmas gifts as well as keep the blocks for the coverlet. You know the block can be transferred from this pattern several times if you are very careful.

If you will look at Number 1 of the quilties you will see "Mary and Her Little Lamb." Now wouldn't that be lovely on a school bag? Well, just transfer it onto a nice new bag, and work it for your quilt, and you will have Mary right there for keeps.

Another nice Christmas gift can be made by taking four of these blocks, transferring them to muslin or other material, working them and then sewing them into a square with strips between for the top of a pillow. That would match your quilt, too.

Taking Successful Children's Photos

Happy photographs appeal to everybody. We may not know just why we are attracted by them, but probably the happy picture we admire most depends for its attractive power on some phase of expression. It may be the mischievous twinkle in the eye of a child; it may be the glint in the eye of a favorite terrier; or it may be the whimsical glance of a pretty kitten anticipating a game.

But expression is not always indicated in the eye. The poise of the head, the sweep of an arm, or the hunching of the shoulders may convey humor in human beings; while in animal life there are scores of attitudes which tell funny stories.

Photographs which record expressions, especially funny ones, have one very desirable quality—they have a market. There are always publishers waiting for such pictures, which, strange to relate, are really scarce considering the enormous number of photographs taken every day.

Amateurs should be continually on the look out for expression in their subjects. A picture of a kitten may be pretty, but it cannot hope to compare in interest with another picture of a kitten which is clearly "talking through its eyes." Yet there is not the least difficulty in getting a kitten to supply expression at a moment's notice. All we have to do is to attract its attention by dangling something before it, or by giving it a ball or a piece of paper to play with.

By placing the little creature on a small table and coaxing it to play we may snap away to our heart's content.

Any terrier will cock his ears and put his head on one side if we say "rats" or "puss," thus making a picture full of expression and therefore attractive. The same thing applies to babies, which make interesting pictures if they convey an expression of happiness. If they are allowed to play naturally they will strike all sorts of pleasing attitudes.

Working at close quarters on a subject which may move at any time, there is always the danger that it may have moved out of focus at the moment when the snapshot is made. There is only one satisfactory way of dealing with the problem. Set the camera focus at a given distance—say six feet, or even four feet—and practice snapping at that distance. It is not necessary to waste plates or films in the process.

One then approaches an object to as near the distance as one can guess it. The focusing screen is then examined to see what sort of a guess has been made. After a little of such manoeuvring it becomes easy to judge a distance of six feet.

When about to snap a subject for expression, the camera is set for the distance, and all one has to do is to subject, stepping forward or backward as it moves.

Last Week's Who

THE FOX

You all know that it is common to say, "As cunning as a fox." For thousands of years he has been famous for the cleverness he shows in getting his food, and running away from the hunter. His eye is quick, his muzzle is shrewd-looking and sharp, his ears stand up as if they were always listening. His real life and habits answer to the appearance of his head.

The fox digs out burrows in which he lives. There he hides himself during the day and only comes out at night, to try and find some food. He likes hares and rabbits and partridges best to eat, but if he cannot get these he will not disdain rats and mice or even frogs. Of course a young chicken from the farm just suits his fancy, but he will not take undue chances getting caught.

In color the fox varies from red to silver grey. Many of them have a white shirt frill on their breasts and a white tip at the end of their tails. He is very sly and cunning and has a bad reputation. Fox hunting has been an old and very exciting sport, and clever is the dog that can keep on his trail. The catching of him has proved "sour grapes" for many a pack.

Who is it has the toughest hide. Like armor-plate on his outside? Who only has one single horn? Nope, he is not a unicorn!

To make sure of your guess, cut and arrange the puzzle pieces before you paste onto card board. You will always find a narrow line for the outside of the "WHO" which makes it easier, and by cutting along that line after mounted, you can have a new animal for your "ZOO" every week. The verse will tip you off to the secret.

Getting ready for a sacrifice.

They are covered with fruit, and over each a garland is hung. Above the altars are small sacred trees. The priest can be seen before one of the altars. He has his robe or toga over his head so that it looks like a hood. To his left is a helper who holds a box. That means the helpers are behind. Most of them have garlands above their heads. One holds to recite poetry and to play musical instruments. The Romans seem to have thought such teaching useless. They made the children learn to read and write, to count, and to do small problems in arithmetic.

To do their writing, Roman school pupils generally used a small rod an axe to be used for killing the beasts. Sacrifices of this kind were usually made in honor of Mars, the god of war, or Jupiter, king of the gods.

Sometimes altars were placed on the steps of temples, and fires were lighted on top. People brought offerings to the temple to be placed on the fire. The flames could often be seen by persons praying inside.

TEMPLES FOR THE GODS

Temples were special homes for the gods. The Romans built temples and prayed to the gods because they wanted to have the gods help them. Most noted of the Roman temples was the Pantheon, its name means "home of all the gods." It was indeed a place of splendor. The roof was a great dome, shaped something like an umbrella. It sparkled with tiles of gilded bronze.

This great dome was almost 150 feet wide. In its centre was a great hole twenty-six feet from side to side. This hole was to light the place. It also let the rain fall in. The wind did not get in this hole and the drops fell straight down. They made a circular marking on the floor. Some of the walls were twenty feet thick. Below the dome were great pillars of yellow marble. There were niches all around inside of the walls. Statues of gods were placed in these niches. Oddy enough, the Romans let people of almost any religion put their gods inside.

This grand temple was built about two thousand years ago. Twice it caught fire, but in each case a Roman emperor had it fixed up again. If you go to Rome, you will find this building still standing. It is not so bright as it was in Roman times, but you will get a very good idea of how

ROMAN CHILDREN AT PLAY

Our picture shows one of the games played by boys during Roman times. It is taken from a painting found at Pompeii, a city near the sea which rich families from Rome used to visit quite often. Notice that two of the boys are not wearing any clothes and the others are lightly clad. Southern Italy has a very warm climate, and small children were glad to be able to keep cool.

The boy at the centre appears to be "it." He holds a rope tied to a spike in the floor. We have no writing to tell about this game, but we can guess that the boy who is "it" is getting ready to lunge out and touch one of the other boys. Until he does so, he probably cannot let go of the rope and must let the other boys strike him with rods and rope-

Last Minute News on Stocks and Financial Affairs

SPOTTY AFFAIR IN STOCKS

New York, N.Y., Sept. 27. (By R. P. Clark and Co., Limited)—To-day's market was very much of a spotty affair.

Another cut in mid-continental crude oil prices was announced, but this did not attract any particular attention.

We still have confidence in the stability of prices as a general proposition and believe that ere long the various upward factors in the general situation will be reflected in a forward movement of security prices.

ADVERSE WEATHER REPORTS AFFECT CORN

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 27. (By R. P. Clark & Co., Ltd.)—Wheat in spite of heavy frost taking wheat closed about steady.

Export buying was again heavy overnight and good during the day in spite of the advance and this is the best indication that European conditions in Western Europe still unfavorable with hard storms.

Cash prices here southwest and northwest were well maintained and the bulk of the Spring wheat movement is going to Duluth while the latter market is shipping freely every day.

Canadian markets were a little easier relatively with selling there against purchases here. The market is entitled to a little resting spell but we have no reason to change our views and believe it should be bought on all fair reactions.

Corn—Was in fair demand at the start and the buying increased later with brisk covering by shorts and a big bid and out trade all day.

Country offerings were larger, but the bear news was overshadowed by the predictions for heavy frosts in the northern and western portions of the belt.

Receipts were liberal at 278 cars estimated. The crop reports indicate that a large percentage of the crop could be well managed, and the over Sunday developments will have to be awaited.

If killing frosts do not materialize corn is probably high enough for the present.

Oats were given good support and closed strong, influenced largely by corn, but this market is beginning to reflect the heavy accumulation which has been going on for some time on the setbacks.

Receipts were not so heavy here. The shipping demand was fair. Compared to other grains oats are cheap and we would favor the buying side on all setbacks, believing will be an unusually heavy consumptive demand coming season.

Rye made a new top all around with export buying continuing. Duluth reported active eastern buying and Minneapolis stocks decreased 150,000 for the day.

The foreign situation is very strong and we look for only moderate setbacks.

NASH AND C.T.P. MOVE SENSATIONALLY

New York, Sept. 27. (By B. C. Bond Corporation)—Stocks closed the week with substantial advance and encouraging strength.

Rubber stocks were under persistent accumulation in the belief that the balloon trend vogue should favor able effect earnings for the rest of this year and allow of 1925.

The low-priced group Fisk and Ajax were mentioned as offering good speculative opportunities. One of the most notable moves in this group has been made by Fisk Rubber. Sales have improved considerably, and the prospects are favorable for the balance of the year.

Continued advance among the industrials was followed by fresh buying of the investment rails.

Government ownership of the railroads. Atchison advanced into new high ground for the year at 107 1/2, reflecting the opinion that the stock is in line for a dividend increase from 24 to 27 per cent.

Norfolk and Western was also well bought on the theory that a distribution of some of its extra-operating assets would be

WHEAT EASES OFF; FROST BULLS CORN

Chicago, Sept. 27. (By B.C. Bond Corporation)—Wheat heavy profit-taking and closed at a moderate recession from the day's best figures.

Export sales were estimated as high as 3,000,000 bushels. European buyers are likely to wait for soft spots to do the buying.

Unfavorable weather over most of the corn belt, with predictions of light to killing frosts to night in the central states, caused heavy buying and a sharp upturn in corn.

Oats: Some export business was said to be under way. As long as foreign buyers buy wheat and rye, these grains will hold strong.

The progress of the Canadian harvest will be watched closely, but up to now reports are moderate.

Weather in Alberta has not been as favorable the past few days, but it seems reasonable to suppose that the growers will accept present prices, which would be reflected in more liberal receipt and hedging pressure.

The buying by foreigners during the past two weeks has been enormous and they are likely to be supplied for the immediate future.

With this buying power removed from the domestic markets, together with the over-bought condition of the wheat market, we regard it the better part of wisdom to accept profits on long wheat at current levels and await a healthy reaction before re-entering the market.

Oil Stock Deals Cause Downfall of This Broker

New York, Sept. 27.—Expulsion of George F. Secor, partner of the brokerage firm of Secor, Reynolds and Company, was announced by the New York Stock Exchange.

For alleged irregularities in Southern States Oil stock. The action came as an echo to the suspension of Southern States Oil stock from the curb market trading, which led to the failure of another brokerage firm, J. M. Byrne and Company and indirectly to bankruptcy proceedings against the Middle States Oil Corporation, which took over the Southern States stock.

Evidence obtained by the exchange of the firm issued a formal statement denying the charges made by the stock exchange. They asserted that its financial stability was unquestioned, but in view of its expulsion requested customers to transfer their accounts, Mr. Secor has been a member of the stock exchange since 1911, and owned a firm in 1922. Norman T. Reynolds, junior partner, was not a member of the exchange.

Terminus Nearing Big Ore Strike

Tunnel at the Terminus mine near Starbuck has now passed the 212-foot mark, according to word sent down here by Engineer Hayward.

Lakeview Uncovered Promising Ore Body Surpassing Danwell

Directors of the Lakeview (Stewart, B.C.) Mines Limited, have received word from the mines superintendent that during surface stripping of the N.W. E.E. vein, a fine body of ore has been exposed and proven to date to a length of over 200 feet.

Work in the drift is progressing, with good ore again coming in the face of the tunnel.

Work by the company has proven the existence of a large prospect, and it is on the result of further stripping and a few feet more drifting in the present drift, Mr. Hill will select the site for tunnel No. 2, in order to attack and prove the ore body at a maximum depth. It is possible that before finally deciding the exact location for Tunnel No. 2, that a series of diamond drill holes to cut the vein at a depth of several hundred feet will be required.

Property at present is looking particularly well, at the same stage of development surpassing the showing of its neighbor, the famous Danwell mine.

Work on the new cabins, storehouses and office will be completed by the middle of October for continuous winter operations. A crew of 200 men are employed at present in drifting, surface stripping and on buildings.

The Government have full crews working on the Deetjens road and if finished in time will do the preparatory slashing from Danwell No. 4 on to Lakeview before snow falls, which will enable the company to take a compressor in on the snow over an eight per cent grade and speed up the work.

English Cricketers Defeat Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—Showing superior form in bowling, batting and most all other departments of the game the Incegnito cricket team of London, yesterday defeated the Frankfort eleven by an inning and fifty-eight runs in a two days' match. The local team made 138 runs in its first innings on Thursday and 119 in its second innings to-day for a total of 257. The visitors ran up a total of 315 in their first innings, ending the contest.

VETERAN FLYERS ON BOARD BIG ZEPPELIN

Every Man Who Will Take Atlantic Flight Saw War Service

Friedrichshafen, Sept. 27.—Every man of the crew of the ZR-3 is an "old air dog," having seen much dirigible service prior to 1914, and during the war, when the big lighter-than-air machines were particularly active. Many of the officers and men have made so many flights that they have lost all count of them.

REEL STAR WAS IN REAL DANGER DURING EPISODE

Superb horsemanship alone made possible one of the most beautiful scenes in Thomas Meighan's latest picture "The Alaskan."

Under the direction of Herbert Brenon, who produced this James Oliver Curwood story for Paramount, Meighan posed on a narrow point of cliff. Horse and man were silhouetted against the sky. Below the crumbling ledge on which they stood was a sheer declivity of more than 1,000 feet. In the background was the finest range of snow-clad peaks to be found in the entire Alaskan peninsula.

"Babbitt" at the Playhouse Theatre, is an unusual photoplay. Every effort was made to put across the same convincing sledge-hammer blows of portraiture and realism that made Sinclair Lewis' book such a best seller. In doing this Warner Brothers believe they have poured the requisite stuff into the mould of the picture, so that the great army of average film fans might be carried away by its story. The cast consists of Willard Louis, in the title role; Mary Alden, Carmel Myers, Gertrude Olmstead, Raymond McKee, Maxine Elliott Hicks, Virginia Loomis, Robert Randall, Clay Warner, Ricardo Cortez, Julia Faye, Theodore Kosloff and Robert Edeson. The picture comes to the Dominion on Monday next.

"REVELATION" IS FILM MASTERPIECE; COMING TO CAPITOL

"Revelation," Metro's screen classic, which will play next week at the Capitol Theatre, is without doubt one of the finest pictures of the season. There are three reasons for this. First, Mabel Wagnall's story of the little Parisian model who won her soul back through the gentle influence of posing as the Madonnas, makes for a most sympathetic role ever put on the screen. He plays the old father of Mary Phillip, who stars in the new Universal production adapted from Owen Kildare's celebrated novel "My Mamie Rose," a colorful story of the old Bowery.

MANY THRILLS FORCE ACTOR TO TAKE VACATION

Reed Howes, who has the leading male role in "The Cyclone Rider," at the Capitol Theatre for a six-day run, had so many hair-breadth escapes when the picture was being made that he announced he was going to take a three-month vacation from the camera just as soon as he completed all his contracts. When you see "The Cyclone Rider," you will not wonder regarding the young daredevil's intention. Instead, you will wonder that he is still alive. Here are a few of the things he was called upon to do in course of the filming of this mighty William Fox thrill melodrama: Fight for his life with an underworld gangster on a slender beam 300 feet above the ground. In escaping from the same ruffian become a human pendulum and

DUKE INTERESTED IN SPANISH LINK WITH THIS ISLAND

Greatly Pleased With Provincial Archives, Especially Its Maps

The Provincial Archives have received few more interested visitors than the Duke of Alba during his short stay here yesterday. They spent an hour in the records room, being particularly interested in the early maps and plans of this country.
Discussing the subject previous to their visit with The Times, the Duke stated that his chief object in going to California now was to see the relics of the Spanish occupation, and he had been much struck with the increase of Spanish names as he came further West. In Seville there was a wonderful collection of records dealing with the Hispano-American development, and as the Nooka colonies the most northerly of the permanent settlements made by the Spaniards under the direction of the viceroy of Mexico, it was of special interest to him to come to Vancouver Island.
The Duke expressed the hope that the records of the pre-Columbian history of America would receive greater appreciation in the West, and said he was much interested in the scientific effort now being undertaken to establish the extent of Mongolian influence on the races of the Pacific seaboard, and where the borderline was to be drawn between them and the interior tribes.
He expressed also his satisfaction that the British Columbia authorities had decided to restrict the Provincial Museum to natural history and anthropological remains, as there already are many general collections throughout the world, and in a new country its special features should be given first consideration.
He stated he was keenly interested in the preservation and development of museums and art galleries, and always visited them when on tour.

CHINA'S MOVE TO MILITARISM FRAUGHT WITH PERIL

While the nations of the west were crucifying again and again the Prince of Peace whom they mocked with their worship, the spirit of China, whose highest court of appeal is presided over by death and whose cause is argued, not with reason but with the deadly clatter of the machine gun.
China is now drilling and arming her pacifist population by the myriads, to enable litigious provinces to settle their disputes by killing their adversaries according to the most scientific methods. The differences calling for this bloody settlement are not even those of the people who fight. They are merely personal and provincial rivalries and clashing ambitions of a few rulers and generals. China is indeed becoming modernized. She is not only learning the lessons of the twentieth century from the West; she is unlearning the lessons of twenty centuries taught by the East.
What kind of material will they make for war? The fate of civilization may depend on the answer to that question. They are intelligent, industrious and without fear—and there are 400,000,000 of this remarkable race. What a joke they are and have been for all men with a conventional sense of humor! And the greatest jest of all is their utter inability to understand that the only way for nations to settle disputed claims is to kill or get killed.
To what extent have they been already mobilized for war? One day the grin of contempt which they provoke will become a grimace of terror, for the Chinese are rapidly becoming "converted."
There are now in China at least four rival armies in the field. Between them they muster fully half a million men. Their equipment may fall short of European standards at the end of the Great War, but it is infinitely superior to anything China has even yet seen in her armies, and Napoleon would have been quite pleased with the weapons which Chang Tso Lin, the Manchurian warlord, has equipped his army. He has artillery, machine guns, aeroplanes, and it is rumored that he has poison gas. In fact, his brief is primed with every modern argument for enforcing the justice of his cause. Where have these arms come from?

As usual, the countries that send missionaries have also supplied guns. The Bible and the revolver have come from the same resourceful and adaptable nations. China has accumulated much wealth in recent years. Much of the scattered riches of the Great War has been blown by the storm to China and the pollen has fertilized there. Factories have sprung up on the great rivers; looms have multiplied and active merchants have become more enterprising. There is more concentrated wealth than ever in the history of China. Chinese bankers are now financing railways of their own. Provincial governors are aspiring to the presidency or kingship. They have thus, ready to hand, money for purchasing the weapons essential to maintaining the justice of their claims.

I met recently a highly intelligent Chinese merchant who knows the condition of his country thoroughly. He told me that the rebellious governors would encounter no difficulty in finding the necessary cash for purchasing arms. The Chinese peasant was the most frugal in the world and, although his earnings were small, he managed to save. China was very lightly taxed. There are—were—no huge armies and navies to maintain. The machinery of government was the simplest, as the Chinese are the least governed of all races; hence the lightness of taxes. So light are the taxes that, according to my informant, foreigners have been known to reside and become naturalized in China in order to escape the tax gatherers of their native lands.

There is thus a reserve available to the hands of provincial governors who want to raise armies. This reserve has been drawn upon freely in recent years. Chang Tso Lin, the Manchurian, is reputed to have the best equipped army. He is supposed to be a capable administrator, whilst his rival, Wu Pei Fu, reported to be a competent general. There is here an interesting and instructive conflict of qualifications. They have all employed foreign instructors and organized their armies. The recent death of a distinguished Russian general at Canton directed attention to this fact. Wu Pei Fu, the general of the central government, is trained in German tactics and has, in all probability, German instructors. There are known to be American army men in the various armies, a number of those restless spirits who love fighting for its own sake and who cannot settle down to the pursuits of peace after the excitement of the Great War.

The best army is supposed to be commanded by a Christian general of the name of Peng Huh Siang. He has trained his army in the most modern Christian principles, as they are practiced in the West. They, alone in China, know how to drive an argument home with the truth. He has assumed they are true Protestants, for they pride themselves on being called "Ironside." In the war of 1922 the eminent Christian warrior who leads his forces and is reported to have ridden into Honan on a bicycle, came straight to the Y.M.C.A. there, and in his reply to addresses of welcome naturally tendered him by his fellow believers, declared himself a Christian and said it was his aim to do his duty as a Christian should. He is as good as his word, for he has marched at the head of 10,000 of his Ironsides to take part in a fratricidal struggle around Shanghai.

Up to the present, there was one stringent vice in the Chinese character which disqualified them as a military race. They were apt, when a battle was developing between arrayed forces and before real fighting had begun, to call a parley and arrange a peaceable accommodation of their disputes. This inherent weakness in the race has spoiled many a great fight. I understand from the news columns that our Christian general, with his Ironsides, is depended upon to counteract this traditional tendency of his fellow-countrymen to talk it over and settle without shedding of blood.

Taking it all in all, the news from the East is promising. China is getting on. She is marching back at double quick time to civilization. I wonder whether our children will be equally pleased when they find China has arrived at the destination to which, between us, we have lured and goaded her gentle people.

ULSTER MAY FORCE CRISIS ON BOUNDARY

Ulster who yearned for reunion with their fellow countrymen. The natural organism would still be weakened and deprived of its full power of development. The Irish Free State, the newest member of the commonwealth of nations, would still have an irremediable problem comparable to that of Alsace-Lorraine or Italia Irredenta. The new line would be shorter than the old and more in accord with economic and geographic realities, but it would still be an arbitrary line in a small country clearly marked for unity by the sea.

PARTITION THREATENS TROUBLE

There are Irishmen of all parties who share the view of John Dillon when, speaking near the grave of the Redmond who died at March, he deplored the idea that any Irishman should be officially associated with representatives of the British Government in the partition of Ireland. When these Irishmen disagree with the motives underlying the refusal of Sir James Craig's government to appoint a representative on the boundary commission, they do not regret the refusal, and they hope that the delay may lead to some settlement.

REFEREES RUNNING BOXING BY TIMIDITY IN RULING FIGHTERS

was at the Wills-Firpo fight in Jersey City. There is a universal rule of boxing against "holding," and no rule of boxing gives a boxer a right to hold with one hand and hit with the other. In every round Wills persistently slipped his left hand under Firpo's right arm and jerked Firpo toward him, twisting Firpo's right arm and shoulder to the right and making the sting out of his right-hand punch. While holding Firpo and pulling him forward Wills drove right-hand blows into his body. Sometimes he held Firpo, and twisted him around, and while holding him pounded at his back and kidneys with the right hand. Occasionally he held his own head with both hands, with right or left. Wills has developed a great deal of skill in this trick of holding and hitting, and has been getting away with it for a long time. In England, where boxing rules are enforced, he'd be disqualified in the first round. He should have been disqualified in the first round. In England, where the referee spoke very politely to Wills, it was "Please, Harry—you're holding," all through the fight.

VILLA FOULED WILDE

Pancho Villa wouldn't have become the flyweight champion if the rules had been strictly enforced. In the first round of his fight with Jimmy Wilde Villa showed that he outclassed the little Englishman. He held him down, knocked him down, and had little chance to win. However, Wilde walked into Villa, refused to retreat, and stood up to a hard beating. His age showed. He seemed unable to start. Or perhaps he was waiting for a sure opening. Just before the end of the second round Villa was hitting Wilde so fast and hard that it was a wonder he stood up, unswerving. The bell rang. Villa had pulled his right hand back to deliver a swinging blow. He hesitated. Wills dropped his hands and half turned toward his corner when Villa suddenly let the right go, landing squarely on Wilde's chin. Wilde went down, knocked out. The blow landed about a second after the bell. Probably Villa didn't hear the bell. Wilde's seconds carried him, unconscious, to his corner and worked over him about half a minute before he woke up.
That blow after the bell settled Wilde's chances. He stood up against a terrific battering for five rounds more before he was knocked out. He shouldn't have been sent out for the third round, and he should have been given the decision on a foul, whether the blow was intentionally delivered after the bell or not.

PLENTY OF CLEAN FIGHTERS

Sometimes the referee does enforce the rules. Tom Gibbons, as clean a boxer as I ever saw, was fighting Billy Miske in Madison Square Garden. It was Gibbons' fight. In the tenth round he was pounding at Miske's body, and Billy doubled over. Gibbons reached around and threw in punch after punch. Miske suddenly went down, claiming that he had been hit low. There was a difference of opinion all around the ring, many (thinking the blow was fair. But in the referee's judgment it was low, and he disqualified Gibbons and gave Billy the fight, which was the proper thing to do.
I have seen some instances of vicious infractions of the rules that were not punished by the referee. Last Spring I saw a Brooklyn middle-weight, bunched all over the ring by a smaller boxer, pull a trick that fortunately isn't common. He began deliberately spitting in the other man's face every time they came together. The referee did nothing, and the crowd made many humorous remarks. Afterward the boxing commission suspended the offender. That action was a little late. A competent referee would have thrown him out of the ring.

SOME REAL CHAMPIONS

No fighter of real class ever fights unfairly. Benny Leonard is another who never loses his head and never uses unfair tactics. He is a real champion. He is at his fighting best when in danger of being knocked out. Jack Dempsey is another champion who is quick as lightning in action and who never overlooks a chance to finish a contest by fair means. But no one ever saw Jack Dempsey wrestle or hold his man with one hand and pound him with the other, the way Wills does. He's too good a sportsman to try to get around the rules.
Mickey Walker is a very fair boxer, and Gene Leoney is another whose work in the ring is a delight to look at. Of the old timers Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries, Sam Langford, Stanley Ketcher and a hundred others I could name were clean fair boxers. In fact I remember only two or three exceptions to the rule. Perhaps in past times was a master of education. Referees were in the ring with only one thought in mind—to enforce the rules without thought of any outside influence whatever. Conditions will be the same again if boxing is ever taken out of political control. But perhaps boxing never will be. There is too much money in the game as it is played to-day.

Why wait till Spring?

The last golden days of summer are quickly passing! Blue skies will soon be grey! The vivid beauty of leaves and flowers must die, the moonlit wonder of balmy nights give place to inky blackness and chilling winds! Good-bye Summer—Good-bye!—And with hurrying feet we turn to the warmth and brightness of home.
What a place of beauty the home should be, especially through the cold months when our lives must be lived within its walls! That's why Autumn is the natural time to beautify those walls, so that we may be surrounded by the colorful loveliness of a summer garden, despite the bleakness outside our windows.
Do YOUR walls need added beauty? Do they need re-decorating? See the Staunton Line of Wallpaper! Staunton Wallpaper not only has loveliness of color and design, with a variety that provides for every taste, but it is SEMI-TRIMMED—a feature that means economy and convenience. With Staunton Semi-Trimmed Paper, you simply tap the ends of the roll on table or floor and the surplus falls off. It saves time. It saves labor. It saves money.

Ask your dealer to show you the patterns.
