DIVISION OF CITY

PROMINENT CITIZENS ADVOCATE REARRANGEMENT OF NUMBERING SYSTEM

As far as can be ascertained there is a very strong sentiment in Glendale for a rearrangement of the city divisions. At present Adams street is the dividing line between east and west and First street the dividing line between north and south. These divisions were made at a time when the city was very much smaller than it is at present and when it was anticipated that the growth of the city would be around and east of Adams street. The Glendale Evening News has elicited the following opinions on this subject from various prominent citizens:

Brand Boulevard Division

Editor Glendale Evening News: Twenty years ago it was believed Adams street would prove the central or dividing line between east and west Glendale. But times change. This year the city assessors took Central avenue as the division or boundary line, thereby proving that somewhere near Central avenue lies the center of population. Is it not absurd to still retain the city division as laid out twenty years ago when the city was so much smaller and conditions so vastly different?

Brand boulevard is now the natural logical division between east and west. In this respect Tropic is ahead of us, for in that city West and East Tropic lie west and east of Brand Blvd.

Here is an amusing fact: 210 E. 10th street is on the second block east of Brand Blvd., but 210 E. 9th is on the second block east of Adams street. No wonder strangers become twisted up when trying to locate Glendale streets and numbers. Even the street car conductors fail to understand our illogical system and constantly give wrong directions to enquiring passengers.

Let us get busy and ask our city trustees to make Brand boulevard the dividing line between east and west and then to rearrange the numbering system accordingly.

NANNO WOODS.

"The Pasadena System"

Editor Glendale Evening News: To a stranger our numbering system is about as confusing as it could have been made. Our present numbering center is remote from any business center and affords no clue to the newcomer or casual visitor that helps him to get his bearings. A system that will help people to find places, and which can be explained in a few words, is very much needed, and can be adopted at this time with practically no expense.

What I have previously described as "The Pasadena System" is particularly well adapted to a city with irregular sized blocks and with some diagonal or angling streets as we have here. The corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway is the ideal center from which to begin numbering, because both streets are through streets, both have main transportation lines, both are our best business streets. If Glendale avenue ran due north and south it might be substituted for Brand with perfect propriety. Let's attend to this matter now.

ADVANTAGES OF GLENDALE

Editor Glendale News: Some things that I think would help Glendale: Keep at it and get the bridge over the Los Angeles river. It seems to me that a more concerted action on the part of the committees would get this work started. You know everybody's business is nobody's business. There always has to be someone to take the initiative and unless someone does take it matters can drag along indefinitely. If a thing is going to benefit a city the sooner it's done the better.

Work for Packer for supervisor. Glendale will not only be advertised by having our fellow citizen the supervisor from the fifth district, but many benefits will come to us collectively; so, we should do all we can to help along his candidacy.

Boost for your town. Don't knock Glendale has the best water in the county. Glendale is the cleanest town of its size in the county, especially when the lots are cleaned and the weeds are cut. The weeds and dry grass in many places need attention now and by burning them or plowing the ground we would be helping the appearance of things and lessening the fire risk. JAP COMMITS SUICIDE

SEIJIRO NISHINO, AFRAID OF DEPORTATION, SHOOTS HIMSELF

Seihiro Nishino, a Japanese employed as a house servant at the home of O. E. Selzer, 824 S. Central avenue, committed suicide Friday morning, about 1:30 o'clock, by shooting himself with a shotgun. Nishino loaded both barrels, placed the muzzle of the gun under his chin and pulled the triggers with a cord. His head was blown to pieces.

Nishino has been a house servant at the home of O. E. Selzer for three years. For some time past he has given way to a craving for liquor, at intervals. His conduct has been the subject of investigation by the police authorities of Glendale and a movement was on foot to deport him to Japan as an undesirable character.

Nishino was born in Japan Sept. 4, 1880. It is surmised that he had been in the Japanese army or navy and had deserted. When he understood that he was likely to be deported to Japan he became excited and begged various parties to intercede for him, that he might not be sent back.

Believing that he would be sent back to Japan the unfortunate Japanese saw no way out of his trouble except by suicide. As that is the recognized remedy for many troubles in Japan Nishino thought it quite natural. Back in Japan he would be arrested and probably shot as a deserter. There appeared no alternative to him. He braced up his determination by drinking to excess and then committed the deed.

The body was taken to the funeral parlors of the Pulliam Undertaking company and the burial took place Saturday afternoon.

MRS. PARKER HOSTESS TO P. E. O.

Chapter B. A. of P. E. O. enjoyed a delightful all-day meeting, Friday, at the home of Mrs. Harry Parker on North Louise street. She was assisted by Mrs. C. B. Wilde, and they proved most hospitable hostesses.

A delicious two-course luncheon was served after a brief business meeting.

The dining room was aglow with quantities of gallardia and coreopsis blossoms. A beautiful basket filled with the yellow flowers formed a splendid center piece for the table.

The following guests from sister chapters were present: Mesdames Edward Lynch and John Logan of Tropic; Mesdames R. E. Chase, John Pirtle and Gus Pulliam of chapter L, Glendale, and Mrs. Homer Silsbee of Hollywood, all of whom brought greetings to B. A.

Chapter B. A., which was organized in April, is launching forth with plans for a splendid year's work in the near future.

Special California subjects with additional miscellaneous work, some real work for "sweet charity" and a number of delightful social events promise a year of work and pleasure. During the summer months garden and porch affairs will be given at the various homes.

B. A. will hold the next business meeting at the home of Mrs. Archie Parker June 3, when the study of the constitution will be taken up under the leadership of Mrs. Willisford.

WEDDED IN GLENDALE

A quiet but tasteful wedding was solemnized at the residence of Judge Miller, 1022 W. Seventh street, Friday, at 5 p. m., when William Henry Van Grove, 639 Lincoln avenue, Glendale, and Anna Weinberg, of Chicago, were united in matrimony. The bride and bridegroom were accompanied by four friends. The Miller residence was appropriately decorated for the occasion, with white roses and a profusion of greenery. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played. Charles L. Lewin of Los Angeles and Mildred S. Steiger of Chicago were the witnesses. Both bride and bridegroom are 21 years of age. After a brief automobile honeymoon tour they will be at home at 629 Lincoln avenue.

AUSTRIAN CROWN PRINCE IN COMMAND

ITALIANS BELIEVE FORCE OF ATTACK ON THEIR LINES IS NOW SPENT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

ROME, May 20.—The Austrian crown prince is directing the operations along the Trentino front. The Italians have been compelled to make further readjustments of their lines in consequence of the Austrian attack. They believe, however, that the full force of the Austrian offensive has been exhausted and that it must come to an end very shortly. About 300,000 troops have been engaged in the forward movement, which is intended to impress neutrals. Regiments have been scraped together from every front to take part in this attack.

ONE THOUSAND REGULARS FOR BORDER

COL. SIBLEY'S FORCE WILL KEEP AFTER MEXICAN BANDITS WITH REINFORCEMENTS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Reports that the Sibley-Langhorne forces would not be withdrawn as proposed are confirmed here today. The troops will be reinforced by one thousand regulars from Col. Pershing's command and a thorough search will be made after the raiders of Glenn Springs. Part of the American cavalry that has been operating in Mexico arrived at Columbus, N. M., today. This consists of 800 men. These are the first troops to be withdrawn. The rest will be brought back by degrees.

GERMANS PREPARE TREMENDOUS OFFENSIVE

TEUTONS PILING UP AMMUNITION AND MASSING TROOPS FOR ASSAULT NEAR YPRES

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, May 20.—The Germans are preparing a tremendous offensive on the Belgian front. For three days there has been a constant movement of men and ammunition. Enormous quantities of shells have been brought into convenient positions behind the attacking line. Numbers of big guns have been gathered together and constitute a formidable menace. It is expected that the Germans will make an attempt to break through in the direction of Calais.

GERMAN ATTACKS ON BELGIAN FRONT FAIL

YOUNG TROOPS OF TEUTONS SWEEP AWAY IN THOUSANDS AND DEMORALIZED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, May 20.—All German attacks on the Belgian front have been failures. The young troops, of the levy of 1916, while brave, did not show the stamina of the troops that fought in the early stages of the war. These have nearly all perished or at least they have lost their identity as individual commands. In the attacks on the Belgians the raw German levies became completely demoralized and were beaten back with enormous losses. Thousands were swept away by the rifle and machine-gun fire. They were completely cut to pieces.

TEXAS HAS RAISED 7500 STATE TROOPS

GOVERNOR FERGUSON AUTHORIZES RECRUITING OF ADDITIONAL UNITS FOR BORDER SERVICE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

AUSTIN, Texas, May 20.—Governor Ferguson today authorized the recruiting of additional units of troops for service on the border. Texas has now raised 7500 troops for this work. The enthusiasm for service is strong. Texas has always desired to be given a free hand in dealing with the Mexican bandits and the men are eager to be on their trail.

ROUMANIA NEAR BREAK WITH ALLIES

WORK OF GERMAN DIPLOMATS RESULTS IN CONSIDERATION OF COMMERCIAL TREATY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20.—Advices received here from Bucharest state that as a result of the clever diplomatic work of the German agents in that capital Roumania is on the eve of a break with the Allies. This is much desired by Germany. It is believed if it can be brought about it might influence Sweden to join the Central Powers also. The German agents have brought the consideration of a commercial treaty between Roumania and the Central Powers almost to a successful conclusion.

MASONIC CEREMONY

DEPUTY GRAND MASTER KEESLING DEDICATES MASONIC TEMPLE

About two hundred and fifty Masons gathered at the Masonic temple, 532 S. Brand boulevard Friday evening to witness the dedication ceremonies of that institution. Deputy Grand Master Keesling, in the absence of Most Worshipful Grand Master Judge Burnett, who is detained in his northern home by a serious illness, conducted the ceremonies. He was assisted by the other grand officers and the Scottish Rite Choir of Los Angeles.

The Knights Templar in full dress uniform acted as escort to the grand lodge officers and added much to the beauty and impressiveness of the occasion. The music of the Scottish Rite choir was of an extremely high order and was greatly appreciated by the audience. John Hobbs and John Schenk, two local men, are members of the organization. The leader is Prof. Kirkhoffer, head of the music department of the Hollywood High school.

After the dedication service the crowd adjourned to the banquet room where a bountiful lunch was served, after the First Worshipful master D. S. Erskine of Unity lodge acted as toastmaster, introducing Mr. Keesling and others who spoke along Masonic lines in a most interesting and helpful way.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr and Mrs. John T. Crampton of 1011 Chestnut street entertained last evening in honor of their daughter, Miss Grace. The affair was in honor of her nineteenth birthday.

The pretty home was aglow with light and good cheer, while a most charming and effective color scheme in yellow and white prevailed. Gorgeous bouquets of sunbeams intertwined with asparagus ferns were the decorations. Dainty flower-shaped shades softened the lights while the young people enjoyed the evening in dancing.

Refreshing punch was served in the drawing room, while a mysterious fortune teller sought to distract the attention of the dancers.

At a late hour delicious refreshments on small tables for four were served. Dainty yellow baskets filled with candy were the favors. A beautiful birthday cake in yellow, bearing nineteen lighted candles, was brought in for the hostess to cut.

Miss Crampton was assisted during the evening by her mother, both being charming hostesses. The guests present were Misses Agnes Frostick, Katharine Phillips, Harriett Wells, Olga Purt, Elizabeth Russell and Grace Crampton; Messrs. Arthur Hutchinson, Harry Wilson, Chase Story, Tom Phillips, Merlin Wilson, Andy Keller and Alexander Badger.

BACK FROM VERDUN

George Le Mesnager, who is known to all Glendale people as a large vineyard owner in Verdugo canyon, has returned from the firing line at Verdun, in France, where he has been one of the gallant defenders of the republic under Gen. Pertain. Sergeant Le Mesnager has fought through all the campaign and has many interesting things to narrate of his experiences. Part of this story will appear in the Glendale Evening News Monday. Sergeant Le Mesnager was badly wounded a few months ago and is just recovering.

Clarence H. Jones, X-ray expert at the Glendale sanitarium, made an interesting portrait of the internal structure of a bat that had one of its wings injured. The X-ray picture shows the whole delicate bony configuration of the little animal and also shows the break in the wing bone. This is one of the most successful small pictures recently made at the Sanitarium.

An Address on "How Philadelphia makes $28,000 per annum off its vacant city lands" will be given June 1 at the regular meeting of the Glendale Garden Society at 7:30 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce. Glendale has 3000 vacant city lots. What then? Just turn the statement over in your mind between this and June 1.

IN A KINDERGARTEN

READING CIRCLE MOTHERS SEE WORKING OF COLORADO BOULEVARD SCHOOL

Not long since the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle was the recipient of a cordial invitation from the teacher of the Colorado boulevard kindergarten, Miss Carrie Ormsby, to visit her school any morning they might choose. The motive for the invitation was, perhaps, the fact that this circle has for the past two and a half months, been studying several excellent books by kindergartners of national reputation who have written on their pages truths that will outlive (as all truth must) the destroying influences of time. These writers have dealt with educational principles from the viewpoint of the kindergarten teacher, but many weeks ago the members of the circle came to see that the kindergarten is but the first step in the stairway that aspires to mental and spiritual development; that it is not to be considered an isolated part of the plan of education, but, if properly utilized, it will prepare the child for subsequent work in a better manner than through other methods. They have learned that by the application of many of the so-called kindergarten principles the home problems are more easily solved, and that friction is avoided, while results are attained in a shorter time and in a more satisfactory manner.

Several mother-students were at the school promptly at nine on last Thursday, each eager to find the particular message the teacher and children had for her. What lessons did they receive? In what way were these children trained during these brief three hours? Was the time spent in play for play's sake, "to keep them out of mischief?" Were they there simply to relieve their mothers of the care and watchfulness all "little folks should have in order, perchance, that mother might shop more easily, or clean house without the busy little feet carrying in dust and muss to be an annoyance to her, the scrupulous housewife?

After all were quietly seated each child was individually greeted with a little song of five tones (the lower and upper tones of the octave). As we all know the scale is the basis of musical notation, and these little folks easily and unconsciously learned there, or were in process of learning, to sing and recognize the principal tones of the scale. A good morning greeting to the visitors was given in the same way. Two or three little stragglers were impressed with the value of punctuality.

Then followed the morning songs, each with a distinct value, and, like all kindergarten songs, set to good music. The first one was a "good morning" to all things in nature, the sun, the clouds, the trees, the flowers, the birds. It has been truthfully said that no one can be ready to do the part God has placed him in this world to play unless he recognizes his true relationship to God, to man and to nature. These songs are for the purpose of rousing in the child the discernment of the beautiful in nature and to place him in sympathetic relationship with all these things. One tiny girl recited a little thought in blank verse that she had conceived, telling how she thought the sun and the sky and the clouds were kind to all. It was a beautiful little conceit, which all the other children were happy to repeat after her. It was quite evident that the thought was the prominent thing in the mind and not the originator; so no false pride in producing it had entered the child's mind, and the effect was sweet and simple. Then followed the "Father, we Thank Thee" song, sung every morning in every kindergarten in the land. This, with bowed heads, was truly devotional. Each child's relationship to God was apparent in the song and the singing. Then followed the motion songs. No tiny child, can sit still for very long. One of his inalienable rights is that of activity. These motion songs gave some outlet for this activity, without which a child must either be ill or imbecile. The ball, the hammer, the umbrella, the cradle were symbolized by the tiny hands. When it came the cradle's turn to be introduced, such tender, careful embryo fathers and mothers as they were, so carefully cradling the infant.

AN UP TO DATE STORE

THE MEN'S SHOP SHOWS EXCELLENT TASTE IN TIMELY NOVELTIES

Taking a critical glance through the modern stores in Glendale one cannot help being struck with the class and fashion of goods displayed in the window and also in the interior of The Men's Shop, 1109 West Broadway. The proprietor, H. H. Faries, has had wide experience in the east in the men's furnishing business and the value of this experience is shown in the selection of his stock.

Fashions in men's neckwear change from year to year. The latest thing in neckties, plaid four-in-hands of all kinds, and other striking materials of a rich appearance are to be seen here. These are suited naturally to certain complexions and figures. Those who do not find the plaid tie to their taste will find another up-to-date novelty, the Piping Rock tie, which is tied in a neat bow and tucked artistically under the collar. In addition to these the latest forms of the wash tie are here in all imaginable patterns.

If a man wants to be in fashion in the finish of his summer garments he will find that it is necessary to have a monogram belt, which is the "dernier cri," as the French call it, in that line of goods. These handy and dressy belts fasten with a clasp. They are chaste in design and give an appearance of good taste to those who wear them.

Piles of the saucy little white navy caps are here. These are more fashionable than ever this summer and will be seen on every tennis court where men or boys aspire to proper dress. Along with the navy cap can be worn the latest form of outing shirt, the "Balboa," which is the admirable and shapely successor of the rather gaunt "sport" shirt. This new shirt can be worn open or can be closed up at the neck.

No less important to a well dressed gentleman is the quality of his underwear. Here can be seen the "Kenosha Klosed Krotch" underwear, made at Kenosha, Wis. Of the very finest weave this article is proving a fast seller. It is light and yet warm enough for the occasional cold evening.

It is not easy for men to wear anything that savors of womanly tastes and not appear effeminate. Yet here are men's white socks with a dainty clock pattern running up the leg and a few sparsely scattered stars or flower sprigs and they look in good taste, at least for the younger set. They will be quite the rage this summer.

Men's caps continue to be fashionable and useful, light and full, as of late they have been. They can be had in tweeds of every imaginable pattern and will be as much seen on the street as on the golf links.

Boys' blouses are made now without tapes. Buttons and buttonholes along the waistband when fastened give the blouse effect.

White duck trousers will be fashionable this summer as usual. The intermediate school has just placed an order for forty-five pairs of these trousers with the Men's Store for the graduating class. Among other novelties in this store of varied goods may be mentioned boys' combinations that button over the shoulders and have strong-eyed tapes to which the garters may be fastened. Altogether the Men's Store adds to its reputation this season.

PRESERVE HARMONY

It would seem of the utmost importance that perfect harmony should prevail among all the members of clubs, churches and fraternal orders. To the onlooker it seems like a waste of money, time and energy for members of an organization to work hand in hand for months for the good of the cause they represent and then on account of some petty reason these members will disagree and enter into disputes that tend to undo all the good they had previously done.

It is well known that there is an opportunity for great good to be accomplished by the various organizations now in existence and the scope of that good can be measured only by the harmony that exists among the members. When differences come up between members would it not be well for these members thus differing to hold confidential interviews and have these little differences settled without exaggerated reports being given a chance to spread among the entire membership and throughout the community. People who have at heart the intention of doing the greatest good possible should not allow their good motives to be pushed aside by hasty and unwise actions.

equipped and progressive laundry. Glendale has accommodating merchants who put out good goods at reasonable prices. I could go on and enumerate many good things about our dear home town, but will sum it all up by saying that "Glendale is a good place to live." Very truly yours,

System Is Confusing

Editor Glendale Evening News: Visitors to Glendale find the street numbering system and the division of the city at Adams street exceedingly confusing. It is certainly puzzling to strangers where they get off the street cars at Brand and Broadway to find that to arrive at certain numbers on West Broadway they must go east. The city ought to be renumbered from Brand east and west and from Broadway north and south.
J. J. BANTA.

Rev. Edmonds Approves Renumbering Streets

Editor Glendale Evening News: I go about the city a great deal and I am tolerably familiar with the anomalies that exist in the street numbering and division system of Glendale. I think it is an excellent idea to have started this movement. I am sometimes called to streets that I find on the map, but find unnamed on the street corner. Glenda's street division should naturally start at Brand and Broadway. Beginning the division of the city at the artery of traffic and transportation would be a sensible idea and would do away with the present confusion caused in the minds of so many strangers when they get off at Brand and Broadway and find that east is west.

I was witness to a serious inconvenience to which a family was put at a funeral the other day just on this account. Visitors expected from Los Angeles and other points were late for the services at the home because they supposed that West Broadway began at Brand boulevard. That is only one type of trouble occasioned by this unnatural division.

In my regular work I often get mixed up myself on account of the unsatisfactory manner in which the directions run. At the same time I wish to say that some good work has recently been done in making the present system as efficient as possible. This work, however, will not be complete until the center of the city is officially declared at Brand and Broadway and the city renumbered. A uniform method should be decided on and the names of the streets should be plainly visible to anyone and easily found and easily decipherable by strangers.
W. E. EDMONDS.

Where Is the Center?

Editor Glendale Evening News: I think it is likely that a very large number of the people of Glendale have never known that the center of the city is reckoned from Adams and First street. I am sure that people who have recently settled here will find that this is news to them. It is also apparent that the city must have grown quite away from that center if it ever was the center of the city other than topographically. I believe that it was close to the center of population until the railway was constructed out Brand boulevard. Since then the center has undoubtedly shifted. I favor renumbering and dividing the city in accordance with this change.
J. PROCTOR KNOTT,
Owner of Broadway Store and Apartments.

Numbers Misleading

Editor Glendale Evening News: Situated as my "Million Article" store is, close to the intersection of Brand boulevard and Broadway, I have ample opportunity to judge of the working of the present numbering system of Glendale streets. Scarce a week passes that I do not have strangers inquiring in the store as to the location of numbers on East Broadway and imagining that they must be on that section of the street. I know how misleading the present system is and I favor the numbering of the city east and west on Broadway beginning at Brand and north and south on Brand beginning at Broadway.
F. O. MOORE,
"Million Article Store."

Have Vision of Future

Editor Glendale Evening News: You asked me for an expression of opinion in regard to the renumbering of the streets. I believe that it is a matter which is important and should be attended to at once. There seems to be no question but that Brand and Broadway will be the principal streets of Glendale for all time and although they are not geographically central, the transportation and business will largely center on those streets so that numbers beginning on these thoroughfares will make it much easier for everybody to locate a residence or business house. It is a great convenience and saves much time and money frequently if the numbers in a city run regularly and can be depended upon in locating any place.

It is a deplorable condition that the city of Los Angeles is so poorly laid out and has thousands of names of streets, frequently only a block or two in length, and so numbered that they are worse than a Chinese puzzle. We should be glad that our Glendale streets are as well laid out

GLENDALE FOOTHILLS

A large real estate transaction has just been consummated between Ludlow Robbins of Los Angeles and J. H. Tipps of Imperial valley, by which Mr. Robbins transferred to Mr. Tipps seven dwelling houses scattered along Stocker, Remington, Ruth and Dryden streets, all in fine condition. Mr. Tipps, who, for the past nine years has been operating extensive ranches near Calexico, brought his family out of the heat inferno seasonable this time of year in that section and on Monday moved into the largest of his new properties, No. 1600 Stocker street, corner of Remington. His family transportation was well provided for by a Buick touring car so fresh from the dealer's hands that the aromatic dusts of Casa Verdugo had not yet dimmed its luster.

One of the recent acquisitions to the community is Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hollins of 906 San Rafael St. with their two grandchildren. Mr. Hollins is Kentucky born, Tennessee raised and Californian by adoption. His home place comprises half an acre which produces nearly everything that a family requires, aside from sugar and tobacco. Mr. Hollins is numbered among that class of southern gentlemen who acquired a classical education. He was found recently by a caller reclining under a leafy bower enjoying the perusal of his Herodotus in the original Greek. An interesting discussion on classical versus modern education followed, with a result not detrimental to the classical. Mr. Hollins is equipped to discuss from the standpoint of personal translations from the original tongues such theological questions as "Search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life."

Mr. Jas. A. Appfel and family of 1125 Melrose avenue are sojourning at Ocean Park for the benefit of Mr. Appfel's health.

Mr. George Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mitchell of Kenneth road, is moving with his wife into No. 1212 Viola avenue under a term lease, from Los Angeles, which, for residential purposes, as compared with these foothills, has been tried in the balances by them and found wanting.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weetman have leased the dwelling at No. 1121 Viola avenue. Mr. Weetman, a master English gardener, was formerly superintendent of the Bryn Mawr Country club near Philadelphia and has lately been engaged on the Eddie Maier estate on Pacific avenue. Mrs. Weetman has a large local catering patronage.

Mrs. Ora Crawford of 1234 Viola avenue, who suffered an injury to the spine a year ago, was on Monday, exposed to the Roentgen ray apparatus at the Glendale Sanitarium, having five plates taken, showing the present condition of the impaired vertebrae.

REPETITION OF ALUMNI PLAY

With a call for a repetition of the alumni play, "The Voice of Conscience" by Owen Rhodes, the tickets have now been put back on sale for June 2 at the Palace Grand theater.

These tickets can be bought from any graduate of the Glendale Union High school and it is rumored that if all seats are sold by this coming Wednesday (May 24) another performance may be given. And as opportunities are scarce to enjoy a clean up-to-the-minute theatrical it is felt that the alumni will have to give it again. If you get your tickets now this fact is assured.

The tickets you buy from the alumni are to be reserved at Cornwall & Keltys and when you view the attractive posters you'll buy.

Miss Eulalia Richardson and Miss Ruby Borchick are to be given all due credit for the prettiest display of posters Glendale has ever seen.

as they are, although they might have been very much improved, and it behooves us to use every effort to keep them as regular as possible and to have them numbered as conveniently as we can.

In looking at these things we must always have the vision of its future before us, that Glendale is to be a city of 40,000 to 50,000 people, covering this entire section of the San Fernando valley, with homes set as thickly as they are in Los Angeles, and we must lay our plans accordingly.

As soon as the eastern part of Glendale wakes up to its real advantages and realizes that in altitude, verdure, proximity to the hills and all those things which make delightful location for a home, it is in the first rank, the property owners in that section will subdivide their large holdings and place the property on the market with the proper restrictions and the most desirable section for a home in all of Southern California will be opened up.

The menace of the washes is the only thing which has prevented the forced opening of this property earlier, and with the plans now projected by both city and county for permanent protection from flood waters, that handicap will be removed.
W. B. KIRK.

THE SECRET OF FRENCH FRYING

The secret of successful French frying is to have the lard so deep that it entirely covers what you wish to fry, and so hot that it will instantly form a crust over the entire surface of the article that is immersed in it. If further cooking is necessary, the heat should be immediately reduced. Says the famous Savarin: "In frying, when once the surface has been affected, lower the fire a little, so that the stewing of the interior particles may not be too quick, and in order that the gradual heat may bring out the taste."

The best frying is done by plunging the article entirely in boiling fat. All too often French fried potatoes are merely slices softened in grease. Boiling grease does not enter articles plunged into it, but forms a crust on the surface which keeps out the fat. A well fried article, prepared in the French manner will hardly soil the napkin on which it is laid. Either lard or drippings may be used for this purpose. Test the heat with a bit of bread an inch square; if it browns in one minute the heat is right.

CHEESECLOTH WALLS

In renting a new house, one is frequently obliged to put up with certain unattractive features in a dwelling which is, in general, about what one wants. For example, the wall paper in some rooms is apt to be heavily patterned and dark in tone, while other rooms are treated simply and harmoniously. The paper is usually new and the owners do not wish to change it merely to please temporary tenants. One woman who liked her newly rented house with the exception of one of the bedrooms, which was papered in a heavy all-over design in red and green, found an inexpensive and charming way of concealing the wall. She bought several bolts of 3-cent cheesecloth in a soft cream color, cut it in lengths from picture molding to basement, felled it slightly at top and bottom and hung it solidly over the paper. The picture molding was removed while the cheesecloth was tacked up, and then replaced so that it covered the tacking. At the footboard the raw edge was turned up and the cloth fastened down with white-headed tacks. The effect was of a wall hung in cream, but a rather interesting touch was added in that the heavy pattern in strong colors beneath showed through faintly here and there, relieving the blank expanse of the cheesecloth. No pictures were hung against the cheesecloth, but, on each side wall, were 2 wooden branching candelabra, painted in gay colors, holding two colored candles, and at intervals were strips of Japanese embroidery hung from beneath the molding, on cords of different lengths in dull blues and greens and yellows, finished with fat tassels. The furniture of the room was painted in dull blue and the rugs were of quaint braided rag, made in harmonizing tones. Altogether it was a room of great novelty and beauty.

CARROT PUDDING

One and a half cups flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup suet, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup currants, 1 cup potatoes grated, 1 cup carrots grated, 1 teaspoon soda. Roll in floured cloth and boil three hours.

No one is useless in this world who lightens the burden of it to anyone else.—Dickens.

Machine-made reproductions of hand-made articles are not always satisfactory, but the manufacturers of the imitation old-fashioned rag rugs have been doing surprisingly good work. One may now obtain copies of the quaint rag mats which used to grace the "spare bedroom" of the country farmhouse, both in the round and oval shapes. The round ones are ideal to place before the door of the modern country cottage. They are circles within circles of red, black, dull blue, white and soft green, in varying combinations, and all the rough edges and loose threads of the originals have been carefully retained in the copies. Bits of figured calico are mixed with solid homely colors, and altogether the imitation is most successful. The oval rugs are woven with a broad band of solid color just inside the outer band of mixed color. Large rag rugs for living room floors are also to be had in different combinations of shades. These rugs are pleasantly in keeping with the modern reproductions of old painted furniture and are also good with old mahogany.

FEUILLETAGE

(Good pastry for tarts and pies.) One pound fine flour, half pound butter, a little salt, and enough water to make a stiff paste. Mix flour, salt and water quickly and let it stand 10 minutes. Work the butter to a soft paste. Flour a board or table and roll out the flour paste, fold it up and roll it out again. Spread butter over it, fold it up, butter inside, fold the four corners together and let it stand in a cool place 10 to 15 minutes. Sprinkle flour over it. Roll it out and fold it up; repeat this three or four times, letting it stand a few minutes each time to keep it cool. It is then ready for use.

IRISES

In a vase of gold
And scarlet, how cold
The flicker of marble gray
In this iris sheaf. My eyes fill with wonder
At the tossed moist light; at the withered scales
And, among the uncertain spray,
The wavings white
On the cloudy light
And the finger marks of pearl;
The facets of crystal, the golden feather
The way the petals fold over together,
The way that the buds unfurl.

TEUTON DESIRE FOR PEACE

There is every indication that Germany is anxious to have peace. When the war opened she was anxious for war. She spoke loudly of "the day" and eagerly anticipated marching into Paris in ten days; taking London within six weeks and dining in the imperial palace at Tsarskoe Tselo within six months. As time went on she was made aware that the program of conquering the world had changed slightly since the days when Alexander the Great dispersed an army of 1,000,000 men with 48,000 troops.

There have also been revealed to the kaiser other elements in the life of nations, the capacity of fighting for one's native land, displayed by Belgium for instance; the inventive faculty stimulated in both French and British also and the undeniable fact that you cannot frighten men by talk or shouting. The war was to have been finished in double quick order and the world put to drill and to work under the Hohenzollern drillmaster in a very brief time; but the world is still jogging on and positively refuses to be drilled except in its own way and under its own folk.

So now it is quite in accordance with German principles to suggest peace and to endeavor to get the United States to act the part of the unfortunate cat in pulling the hot chestnuts out of the fire for the benefit of the monkey. It is not likely that, unless for election purposes, President Wilson will make any attempt to play the part of peacemaker in the manner the Kaiser desires.

There has never been a war like the present in the extent of the interests involved or in the enormous cost of the operations. One thing stands out very plainly in the lessons of the war and that is that the attempt to conquer the world is too big a proposition for any nation and that the nation that sets out with such a program is woefully lacking in mental perspective.

Having entered on the course of war and finding that the war does not go as was desired and that none of the program can be carried out; having lost all her colonies; having lost the greater part of her shipping; unable to make any effective use of her great fleet created at so enormous a cost; finding, too, the submarine campaign a failure as regards attacking war vessels and a mere pinprick as far as regards merchant commerce, Germany now desires peace. What the world thinks of the proposition may be seen in the answers from France and Russia where it is declared that the Allies will hold together to the end of the war and that to them the end of the war means the time when Germany will not propose peace but shall sue for peace.

Under these circumstances it may be measured on what terms the Allies would listen to the voice of President Wilson if the chief executive of this country should choose to act as Germany's agent in the matter. It is becoming more and more plain that Germany is getting tired of a war that has brought her nothing but defeat and disappointment and that threatens to bring also bankruptcy and the final divorce of the Hohenzollern family and the "junker" aristocracy from the political, social and military government of the United States of Germany. It is not apparent, however, that the Allies are ready to listen to any peace proposals at this moment on any basis that would be satisfactory to the kaiser and his advisers.

ADVANCE OF PREPAREDNESS

Everywhere the note of preparedness is being sounded throughout the land. The weak protests of those who honestly, however mistakenly, believe in making no preparation to defend the country, are being overwhelmed by the insistent demand of the people everywhere for such adequate defense as will make the nation feel secure in the event of a dispute forced on it by a foreign power. To argue that there is no chance of war after the war in Europe is over is to talk in ignorance of the history of the past.

Nations that have been at war are blood-hungry and gold-hungry. They are like the tiger who has once tasted human blood. It will be difficult to pacify them should any quarrel arise. Then, too, their treasuries are empty and they have armies on their hands that are ready for action. How great a temptation to a nation flushed with a bloody conflict, that does not need to hesitate about staining its hands in more blood, to fall on a defenseless nation whose coffers are stuffed to overflowing with the wealth obtained during the time the other nations were at war.

Homer Lea, in his volume, "The Valor of Ignorance," points out how tempting a thing money is to a hungry nation. He also shows the weakness of money. There are things that money cannot buy. It cannot buy manhood. It cannot purchase a modern army in a moment. The long era of money-grubbing results in such a debacle of national preparation as is seen in the United States at present where when every available soldier has been sent out of the country into Mexico there remain scarce 1000 regular troops to guard this great country from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

It is gratifying, therefore, to see that on the whole the country is waking up to its responsibility in this matter. Everywhere societies are springing up, the object of which is to advocate and secure preparedness. This country has too long had before it the ideal of the citizen soldier ever to give itself up to militarism. The country which saw the mighty armies of the Civil War quietly disband and go back into civil life need have no fear that its citizen soldiers will ever lend themselves to the schemes of military dictators.

The United States of America, one and indivisible, is too real a monarch in its own right ever to submit to any other monarch than the will of the people. The will of the people is expressing itself every day at present in a demand for the proper fortification of the coasts of the land; for the building up of a navy of adequate strength and also for the training of a regular army of sufficient

Miss Waite!" and there in the doorway appears the loved principal, with a joyful greeting for all, children, teacher and visitor.

On the wall hangs a copy of the beautiful Madonna and Child of Raphael. One little boy asks to sing the beautiful "Holy Night! Silent Night." This they do, entering fully into the spirit of the lovely old hymn. Then they sing it in the German, the tongue in which it was written.

Now the activity must have a more lively outlet—there must be some games to put into use those muscles that are demanding use. The children themselves choose what they shall play. A caterpillar game is evidently a great favorite. "Jane, you may choose three little girls to be caterpillars with you. Ask them if they will please be caterpillars." (How easy it is to teach children to say "please" every time they should if we, their elders, are ourselves thoughtful about it in their presence invariably!) Upon observing Jane's choice, the teacher says, "But I told you to get three!" Accuracy must be preserved, and the child must know to count three. One little voice pipes up, "Rebecca has been caterpillar every time." Wisely the teacher answers, "What a good caterpillar Rebecca must be to be chosen each time." Thus is the petty quibbling of children known to all mothers, logically silenced—be a good caterpillar or what not and you will carry with you the results of your successful attempts—a piece of philosophy we all of us come to learn in life. No child, seeing this game played day after day in the kindergarten, is it safe to say, will destroy any living thing wantonly. The "poor little crawling thing" is so obviously in need of their fostering care. Then what joy, when it bursts forth into a "lovely, lovely butterfly!" Jane has to tell all the others what colors each butterfly carries on her wings (dress). This she does with great accuracy and thus is the teaching of color carried on so easily.

Now is the time to introduce some of the denizens and pets of the kindergarten. This time it is several glass jars of red ants—the kind that the usual child outside the kindergarten will set his foot upon to crush every time he may. After the talk about the ants and their ways which the teacher gives, the child feels so surely that the ants are the little brothers that he will not wantonly harm them. Thus is the man in the making brought into sympathy with God's creatures.

Another skipping game follows, with the attempt to develop rhythm in the children, and to teach courtesy to those with whom they are playing or associated. The right side of the partner is emphasized, that each child may learn infallibly which is the right side. It is astonishing how many big boys and girls become confused as to right and left, when there is need for quick action, and cause confusion in many of the school exercises. I do not think the kindergarten-trained child will fail here.

Now for a brief recess to get drinks and to run and skip for five minutes. Here they come back again all rosy with the lively exercise. One little chap has to rearrange the curtains now. He feels the dignity of his position—he is teacher's helper, and he must move quickly and quietly to gain her approbation and the right to fulfill the same duty another time. In the kindergarten each child is allowed to help wherever possible. No "Go and sit down, I can do it so much better without you," but a spirit of helpful co-operation fostered on all occasions. For the teacher knows that this is the way to train little men and women to future valuable helpfulness, to lead each one to think of what service to humanity he may eventually be.

How is this group of lively babies to be quieted down? How better than by a story told so well that no eye wanders during the fraction of a second from the expressive face of the raconteur? The wondrous adventure of "The Little Red Hen" is like many another tale, an excellent medium for training the mind to follow narration, and for habituating the child to give attention—the attention which he, the higher he advances in the grades, finds necessary to his progress. "I know that story!" pipes up the little voice of one who evidently is fortunate enough to be the listener at many a gathering of the household at the delightful story hour. "Listen carefully, and see if I tell it the same way as mother did," said the teacher, thus compelling the child to exercise his budding powers of discrimination—that quality so often proportions and a citizen soldiery of ample numbers to defend this country from any foe.

The very fact that the United States is now showing a determination to abandon the old do-nothing policy in the matter of defense and the old belief fatuous enough in all conscience that an army can be created in a few weeks, is already reaping the benefit of this change of heart. The voice of the United States is now having a weight in European counsels that it has not hitherto possessed and its suggestions are no longer being sneered at but are thought of as having some value. When the country has been put into a proper state of defense it is quite likely that the troubles in Mexico will vanish speedily at the suggestion of the powerful neighbor.

lacking in adults. The story, though a simple one, is not without its ethical value, for is not laziness punished and virtue and industry rewarded? And to the childish mind that is the supreme test of a story, the final disposition of the characters as to rewards and punishments. The animals in the story were so very polite as to use and adjust the napkin properly, that one felt each child would be minded to use his own properly the next time at home.

All are quiet now and in fine mood for individual effort. One group is sent to the tables with pretty squares of bright colored paper and blunt-pointed scissors to cut and make something, anything that he feels he can create. Each child is encouraged to do his best and make something of value to offer to the circle later. To all the rest are given boxes of blocks (one of the gifts of the kindergarten). The teacher directs for awhile, telling very plainly just what to do. Those who do not or cannot follow closely, soon become hopelessly tangled, and learn early the value of listening and doing obediently what they are told to do. This is done with some of the blocks. Then "Now, children," says the teacher, "you may use all the other blocks and make a pattern for a rug." This is an exercise to develop originality, to allow the child to create. Some of the products of the paper workers and of the block builders are very clever and creditable and are commended and commented upon in a helpful manner, so that each child is glad that he has done his best.

Now comes a special treat because visitors are present and because little children should learn that they should always show hospitality to guests. A large plate of crisp ginger snaps appears and is eagerly eyed by the little ones, whose breakfast hour is three or four hours previous. "We must have napkins first," says the teacher, so Willie gets some paper that will serve the purpose nicely and proudly passes around the ring, attending to the visitors first—a distinct mark of courtesy. Then come the cookies, passed, oh, so carefully, by another boy who serves the guests with great dignity.

And so on and on are the golden hours of the morning passed, with no opportunity lost to teach politeness, consideration for others and their rights, love for the weak and helpless, animals and human beings alike, joy in the beauties of nature, and reverence for God. Incidentally, through play, are taught countless lessons, number, form, color, occupations of mankind, materials and their sources. And all these lessons are taught in such an unobtrusive way that the child thinks he is having a jolly good time. Only he learns to know that he must heed certain inflexible requirements; he learns them in so gentle a way, that the teacher's voice is never raised above a low pitch, and a soft tone on the piano is sufficient to bring all to attention at once. To be sure, he plays and plays, but with so deep a meaning and purpose in the play that the casual observer sees it not.

"The real reasons for the adoption of kindergarten, for all classes and conditions of children, are: Because the kindergarten method is based upon a loving understanding of child nature; because it recognizes in its practices that the mental and spiritual faculties of man must, like everything else in the universe, proceed according to fixed laws; because the true and complete development of any individual can be attained only by following those laws; because the kindergarten method is the method of nature, i. e., development through self activity; because the kindergarten provides suitable materials and favorable environment for the joyous and profitable exercise of that self activity."

PRIZES OFFERED

Now that summer days are coming warm and dry don't let us forget our feathered friends, the birds. Without birds such fruit pests as the codling moth and the black olive scale would entirely destroy the fruit crops of the United States. The annual loss to the United States from the codling moth, which destroys the apple crops, is fifteen million dollars. It is believed that birds feed on 50 to 85 per cent of the hibernating pupae; with this assistance from the little birds apples would soon become things of the past. One of the most serious pests of California is the destructive black olive scale; twenty-nine species of California birds feed upon this scale, the black-headed grosbeak and the bush-tit especially consuming the scale in great numbers. So even if the birds do eat some of our fruit they more than recompense us for our loss in the great good they otherwise do.

Birds become thirsty and need drinks. They also become dusty and need baths. Every garden should maintain a bird bath. It costs nothing to provide this necessary luxury for our little friends. We all know how the birds come hopping round under the lawn sprinkler, dipping their bills in the water, and refreshing their dainty wings in the spray. Who will fashion a bird bath. An old pie dish would do. Keep it clean and sweet and renew it each day with fresh water? There are two pretty bird baths in the garden of Mrs. J. H. Seaman, 112 N. Central avenue, Tropic, and it is a constant delight to the whole family to watch the birdies disporting themselves and twittering their thanks.

How many children will put bird baths in their front or back yards? Mrs. Nanno Woods, president of the Glendale Garden society, asks every child who will do this to phone their name and address to her at Glendale 1357 or evenings Glendale 394 and the editor of the Evening News will print a list of the children. More than this, two members of the Garden society offer a box of chocolates to the girl and boy who sends in the best account written by themselves of the way they made the bird bath, what kind and numbers of birds came and how the birds seemed to enjoy themselves. All essays should be sent to headquarters, 1111 W. Broadway, Glendale, by the 30th of June. The prize essays and any others worthy of honorable mention will be printed in the Glendale Evening News. So now there will be more than a month in which the antics and tricks of our little feathered friends can be watched and studied. Remember, the descriptions sent in must be true, must have really happened. Start right in at once. Devise some attractive bird bath, use ingenuity. Go to Mrs. Seaman's house and ask to look at her bird baths; then go home and make something yourself. Watch the birdies that come to the bath. If they are shy about using it, put out a few crumbs to attract them. Notice what kinds of birds come; describe their size and coloring. Find out what sort of twitter they make. You may also turn on the sprinkler and see how soon the birds fly under the spray and what they do.

MRS. NANNO WOODS.

COMPLIMENT MRS. SMART

A most enjoyable social affair took place at the home of Mrs. J. N. McGillis, 205 Lomita avenue, Friday afternoon, when the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance City Union met in regular session. The house was decorated with yellow daisies and ferns and something out of the ordinary seemed to be in the air from the first.

Devotionals were led by Mrs. L. Manson, the keynote of the lesson being "Love." Mrs. Manson read I. Cor., 13th chapter, and after prayer service plans for the coming California Dry campaign were discussed. A parliamentary lesson on duties of a secretary was given in the form of a farce. Mrs. A. Frank was the presiding officer while Mrs. Charles Grist made a splendid secretary. These studies give much pleasure as well as information to the organization.

One of the members informed the Union that the president had committed an indiscretion, owing to the fact that she had recently had a birthday and no woman over sixteen years of age should ever have a birthday. A birthday always calls for a birthday cake and an immense and beautiful white cake bearing sixteen burning candles was then presented to the surprised president, Mrs. Ruby J. Smart. As each member approached the president to extend congratulations and kind wishes, Misses Elene Grist, Lulu Slade, Faith Taring and Ruth Palmer were from a hidden niche distributing gorgeous bouquets bearing text cards tied with white ribbons so that the little president was fenced in with banks of flowers of every kind, roses, carnations, ferns, blue bells and daisies, while Miss Elizabeth Mottern sang in her rich sweet voice "A Perfect Day." Among the gifts for the beloved president was a handbag containing some gold and silver.

The hostess served delicious home made cake and ice cream. Mrs. Smart made an appreciative response in her own happy manner and the meeting adjourned.

GOOD GOVERNMENT MEETINGS

To awaken interest in the coming election and organize the voters favorable to Congressman Charles H. Randall's renomination and election a number of neighborhood meetings have been arranged for the coming week as follows, to which all friends of Mr. Randall are invited:

Monday, May 22d, 7:45 p. m., at W. F. Tower's, 427 Everett St.

Tuesday, May 23d, 7:45 p. m., at Frank Farrand's, 415 E. Colorado.

Thursday, May 25th, 7:45 p. m., at Mrs. Eva Kenyon's, 1500 Oak St.

At Mrs. D. F. Keim's, 1442 W. 2nd.

Friday, May 26, 7:45 p. m., at Mrs. H. N. Harrell's, 457 E. 2nd.

At Mrs. L. Reed's, Adams near 3d.

Congressman Randall has made a splendid record that his numerous friends can well be proud of. Not only in the 9th district, but his active and able services in congress have attracted national attention. Demands for speeches have poured into headquarters from all parts of the country. But Congressman Randall considers his first duty is at Washington during these trying times and has declined all invitations of this character. This fidelity to public trust and his efforts for clean legislation and the probe of the oil trust have convinced voters that he is the people's representative and on the principle that "self preservation is nature's law" are favoring his reelection to congress. A Randall club will soon be formed in Glendale.

SEE PUDD'N HEAD WILSON

Under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher association of the Intermediate school there will be a benefit production of Pudd'n Head Wilson at the Palace Grand theater Friday evening, May 26. While the people of Glendale have been asked to give financial assistance to many institutions the past year this is the first time that the ladies of the Intermediate school have asked any help from the people of the community and they deserve a full house as the proceeds are to be used for a most commendable cause. A small amount is to be used for the graduating class picnic while the greater part of the proceeds will go toward purchasing playground equipment and shrubbery for the school grounds. Purchase a ticket for this benefit and enjoy the feeling of having assisted a worthy cause and enjoy the film production of Mark Twain's clever story.

HIGH SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Glendale Union High School has been giving, this week, a most excellent exhibit of every department of this splendidly equipped school, which can not help adding enthusiasm to the large number of friends and patrons who visited.

The exhibit in the Mechanical Arts building, which embraces the four departments of study, machinery, forge, wood working and mechanical drawing, was specially interesting. Miss Wall, who is instructor in mechanical drawing, presents a splendid exhibit of drawings from elementary to the most intricate problems in drawing. Her pupils' work show great care in neatness and accuracy.

Prof. Oliver is indeed worthy of great praise for the splendid work of his class. The woodworking department under the direction of Prof. W. Hildebrand presents a splendid exhibit of wood carving and cabinet making. There are two years devoted to this course, beginning with the making of crude joint models and finishing with chests, chairs, desks, etc. A splendid piece of furniture exhibited was a large filing cabinet, and a large library table to match, made of hard oak. There were music cabinets and many other splendid pieces of furniture. This department made for and furnished forty-five tables for the High School cafeteria. The blue print room, with its many fine machinery drawings, is a very interesting place.

When entering the forge and machine shop one can imagine he is entering a splendidly equipped industrial school. The most complete and practical machine is a fine Kimp-smith model, which is complete in every detail. A most interesting eight-inch lathe, complete in every detail, every piece of which was secured from the foundry in its roughest and crudest state, has been built entirely by our High School boys. Also a gas engine is under construction in this shop. A miniature jack with ball bearing head and complete in every detail is one of their productions.

The work room for this department is furnished with splendid working machinery, all equipped with electric motors perfectly safeguarded.

The commercial department, with its bookkeeping, typewriting, shorthand and penmanship work presents excellent exhibits of the thorough work being done in our schools along these lines.

A look into the biology work room proves our pupils are learning the necessary things in plant and animal life. Many specimens are on exhibition.

The Fine Arts department of our school is one to be proud of. A most beautiful exhibit in drawings, paintings from nature, designs in plaster and pottery with exquisite blending of colors is to be seen here. The concrete pottery work and the block printing and designing are all worthy of attention. The girls who are taking up this work have tables of articles carrying out color schemes which add to the artistic touch.

The sewing and millinery departments prove by their exhibit that this work is thorough, practical and meeting with favor.

The household economics is another interesting place to visit—perfectly equipped kitchens with numerous electrical devices for the model kitchen are at the command of these students who not only learn to cook but learn the necessary elements for healthful menus. Lessons on furnishing a house are taught and sensible and practical purchasing for the home is learned, so that our young women who choose to be home-makers are well equipped with a splendid knowledge of how to govern their own households.

During the exhibition the guests have been served tea and wafers made in the domestic science kitchen. On Friday afternoon a forty-five minute musical entertainment was given to the visitors and students by the music department. Each number on the program was an original composition of the ones taking part and was greatly enjoyed by all who had the pleasure of hearing it.

The gardens of the school are worthy of mention and give the boy and girl who choose to till the soil his first practical lessons in this work.

A CORDIAL INVITATION

If you are not a regular subscriber for the Evening News you are asked to become one. Every community of the population of the Glendale community should have a local daily paper; it is a necessity. Valuable publicity matter is given space in the local paper that receives no consideration whatever by the management of the large city papers. Members of your family at certain times are anxious to refer to the Evening News to get important information. Neighbors will loan the paper, but often they do it reluctantly. Subscription rates are published on page 4 of this issue.

If you wish to subscribe only for a weekly paper your attention is called to the Tri-City Progress, a live weekly publication which contains much of the news published in the daily. The subscription price of the weekly is $1.50 per year or $1.00 in advance. Either the daily or weekly may be ordered by telephone. Sunset 132, Home 2401.

APPROPRIATED HAY

Before Judge Whomes, Saturday morning, Pietro Bizzo, an Italian, resident in La Crescenta, was convicted of having taken a cartload of hay from a field on Cameron Thom's place, on Verdugo road near First street. The Italian seemed to think that there was no great harm in the appropriation of another party's property, or possibly he thought that hay was not property. Cameron Thom was not inclined to be hard on the culprit and pleaded for leniency for him. Judge Whomes fined Bizzo $5.

GLENDALE GIRLS ATTEND BANQUET

Thirteen young ladies of the First Methodist church attended the Pasadena District, Queen Esther banquet, at the First Methodist church, Pasadena, Friday evening. The Queen Esthers are the young women's branch of the Women's Home Missionary society. About four hundred sat down to the annual banquet, which was served in the spacious social hall of the Pasadena church.

Unique and happy arrangements had been made for the occasion. A splendid program of musical numbers and addresses was given.

The members attending from the local Queen Esther circle were: Mrs. B. D. Snuden, Misses Mary Wagnon, May Bond, Marian Addison, Madeline Love, Jessie Sheppard, Margaret Lusby, Juanita Emery, Helen Reynolds, Ila Brooks, Leone Shattuck, Doris Ingledue, Ruth Pierce.

The merry party made the excursion in the autos of T. A. Wright, Rev. B. Dudley Snudden, and T. H. Addison.

A clean mouth is essential to good health.

A BLUE SKY REFLECTION

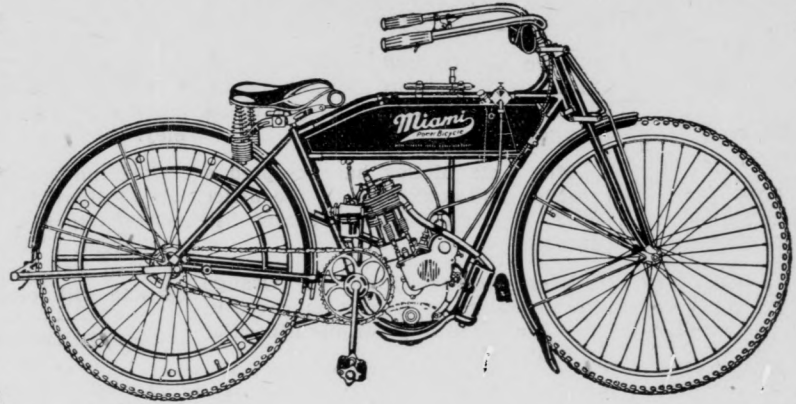

An ingenious idea has been worked out in the treatment of a beautiful pool on a country estate on the Hudson river. The bottom and sides of this pool, which is round and about 15 feet in diameter, are painted a soft sky blue. When the pool is filled with water, the effect is exactly as if the surface reflected a clear blue sky, although, as a matter of fact, the skies may be gray and the water itself slightly clouded. This attractive scheme has been followed by another country dweller, who has painted blue the bowl of a bird bath which rests in the grass among a group of slender white birches. The reflection of the delicate leaves and branches in the water, which, apparently, reflects also a deep blue sky, makes a charming picture when the robins hover on the brink.

NEW BOOK ON NEEDLECRAFT

Needlewomen who have a desire not only to turn out beautiful handiwork but to understand the design back of the patterns they embroider, stencil or crochet, will welcome a little book, published in London and recently introduced to the United States by E. P. Dutton & Co. "Embroidery and Design" was compiled by its author, Miss Joan H. Drew, to encourage women to make their own original designs, instead of trusting to the carbon paper, pencil and tracing paper, through which most women borrow their patterns from some other source.
In her preface Miss Drew asks the needlewoman—who, perhaps, has never yet drawn a pattern for herself—to follow out the ideas given, so that she may become mistress of a craft new to her, and thus learn to depend upon her own efforts rather than upon the machine-printed embroidery patterns of the factory that are turned out by the thousand. Nine out of 10 of the patterns shown are sadly wanting in good drawing or design. There are excellent exclusive patterns to be obtained, but these are generally expensive, and the needlewoman will find a greater delight in originating her own designs than they could ever know in merely executing the designs of others.

"Is it not possible," she asks, "to create a distinctive national craft in Britain, when Russia and Sicily can produce exquisite embroidery in their villages? Has not France her Breton dresses, and is there not in the North American Indian woman an unerring instinct for design?" And she closes her foreword with the hope that "it will encourage needlewomen to go further afield in the exercise of their art."

Why run baby ribbon through the eyelets of lingerie, when a durable narrow silk tape is now to be had in all the pale shades, which stand two or three washings without fading, and will outwear the garment if allowed to remain?

EAGLEDALE NOTES

Eagle Dale, the district which lies immediately east of the Glendale boundary to the foot of Diddock hill, including Rock Glen avenue and the adjacent streets, is likely to have a schoolhouse before long. Steps have been taken in that direction and the inhabitants of the district are looking for the laying of the foundation within a very short time.

Among those active in a social way in this community are Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young of Rock Glen avenue. Mr. Young recently completed the laying of a fine dancing floor in his grounds under a beautiful old pepper tree. The floor is spacious and nicely polished for dancing. Electric lights have been strung all round and altogether it is an ideal spot. A most enjoyable dance was given there last Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Young. A large number of young people of the neighborhood and their parents were present. Music was supplied by a Victrola and a very pleasant time was provided. Coffee and refreshments were served. On Thursday night there was another dance and these dances will be kept up all summer.

Mrs. Mildred Maus of Rock Glen avenue entertained friends from Long Beach Tuesday evening. After dinner the guests adjourned to the new dancing floor in the Young grounds where they had a very pleasant time. About twenty persons were present.

Mrs. W. R. Palmer of Rock Glen avenue gave a charming porch party Wednesday afternoon. Twenty ladies of the district were present. The ladies had a pleasant time discussing various neighborhood affairs. The ladies did some embroidery and needlework.

Little Frances Bourne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bourne of Bourne's canyon, which is at the end of Douglas avenue, has been quite ill with a heavy cold, but she is now recovering.

A FRIEZE OF BOXWOOD

In a dining room in New York city there is a novel and interesting treatment of the plate rail which may commend itself to some housewives who would like to get away from the serried ranks of plates which march around their walls. The wall below the rail is paneled in black, with soft green paper in the panels. Above the rail the dropped ceiling has been painted a soft, cloudy gray, with patches of blue sky showing through here and there. Against this background a frieze has been formed of sprigs of glossy green boxwood, stuck into the crack between wall and rail. The irregular bits of foliage vary from three or four inches to a foot and a half in height, and some are broad and some are straggly and branchy, placed with a careless but easy balance. They give the effect of the tips of tall Lombardy poplars, rising from behind the parapet of the plate rail. For summer the effect is one of cool outdoors air and open sky. The boxwood retains its greenness, although not placed in water.

TRAFFIC WAITED ON CAT

A cat recently held up the traffic on busy Broadway, New York city. It was a little incident, yet it showed that real sympathy and kindness do prevail, even among those caught in the whirl and noise of Broadway.

Just at one of Broadway's busiest hours a cat with a tiny kitten in its mouth appeared at the curb and was apparently desirous of crossing the street. She made two starts, but each time she turned and rushed back to the curb terrified. Suddenly a big policeman saw her difficulty and instantly he held up his hand. The rush of traffic going both ways at once stopped; just for a moment the noise lessened. Seeing its chance the cat grasped its burden tighter and darted across the wide street. When it had reached the opposite curb in safety there went up a sigh of relief from some passersby; then the traffic swept on its way.

POTATO CAKES

Peel about two pounds of potatoes and boil in salted water. Drain off the water and mash the potatoes; quickly add some butter, the yolks of three or four eggs (or two whole eggs), a little sugar (and a little milk if not too thin). Let it cool. Flour the board, form little balls of the mixture, turn and flatten them on the floured board, place them on buttered sheet and bake in moderate oven; serve hot with powdered sugar sprinkled over them.

LADY OSTLERS

A notable example of the utilization of female labor is afforded by three large military horse depots at Reading.

There is not a single man on any of the staffs, the work of attending to the horses being done by gentlewomen.

The fifty ladies working at the depots wear caps, short breeches and gaiters. They meet the horses at the railway stations and do all that is necessary for their comfort.—Tit-Bits.

WHO PAID THE LAWYER?

It was one of those familiar occasions, known too well to the average credit man, when a debtor, "honest, honorable, but a victim of circumstances beyond his control," laid before his creditors a frank statement of his affairs. The creditors were the usual assortment, some viewing the situation with suspicion, some frankly bored, others indulging in the sort of humor that is always current coin at such lamentable times. "Gentlemen," the debtor's attorney had just concluded, "my client is known to you all. He has dealt with you fairly for three years. His affairs are in your hands; his books may be inspected by any of you who cares to spend One Hundred Dollars carefare to visit —; he offers 10 per cent in full settlement of all obligations, 5 per cent cash, the balance in notes due in three, six and nine months. Will you take it or risk expensive litigation?"

It was a generous offer. That was evident from the expression of the attorney's face, not less than by the abject appearance of the debtor. But among the creditors was a lawyer who had represented debtors himself, and he was not satisfied with this proposition. He withdrew with the debtor and the debtor's attorney, and returned evidently pleased with himself. "Gentlemen," he said to the creditors apart, "after a talk with the debtor, I am convinced that he can and will raise his offer to 12 1/2 per cent cash. I have had great experience in such matters, and I already represent $5,000 worth of claims. If you care to have me arrange it for you, I shall be only too glad to represent your interests and for my services shall charge you nothing."

The faces of the creditors brightened. Here at last was an attorney worthy of his profession! Here was a lawyer inspired by true altruism, —to whom fees were an incident, and service an ideal! Gladly they accepted his offer, and quickly the agreement with the debtor was arranged. An honored debtor had been preserved, to order anew large lots of goods. Every one was happy. The next day the attorney was seen in a bright new automobile, and he, too, was satisfied.—Builder and Contractor.

PHOSPHORESCENT GLOWING

We are told by some students that there is a species of owl that has a phosphorescent glow in the dark and that it is a rare bird. There may be such a bird, but a careful investigation on the part of a number of persons who have made such things a careful study has revealed the fact that certain owls and even bats and other creatures that are known to roost in old hollow trees that are in a certain state of decay producing that peculiar phosphorescent condition so often witnessed and coming in contact with the matter that makes the glow, the feathers or outer coating of the creatures become saturated with the luminous matter, and on damp nights give forth a brilliant glow, such as is often seen in old stumps, decaying logs, and in some localities on ledges of limestone that protrude from the hillside.

This same glow is often seen on small animals and a number of insects, says the Philadelphia North American. The glowworms are quite common in various sections of the world, and in some localities insects have a brilliant glow coming from beneath their wings. The fireflies are the most common in the United States.

In some countries certain vegetable growths are known to give forth such a glow, and it has been hinted that some of the crops harvested and stored in barns have the same properties, and under certain conditions produce not only glow, but actual flame. The same phosphorescent glow is often witnessed at sea. It seems to cover the surface of the water, and on certain nights, when conditions are right, it shines quite brilliantly.

CARAMEL APPLES

Boil one cup of sugar with one-half pint of water 10 minutes. Peel and core six large apples and cook them in sirup until tender, turning often. Remove the apples and dissolve one heaping tablespoon of gelatine in sirup. Put one cup of brown sugar, quarter cup of cream and one tablespoon of butter in a pan and cook to the firm ball stage. Then add one cup of chopped nuts, pour into the centers of the apples, fill in with sirup and allow to set. Serve with whipped cream.

A CURIOUS PET

In Argentine a common household pet is the small armadillo called matico, which is only about fifteen inches long. Dr. Bergner says that, when it rolls itself into a ball, its unarmored legs disappear into the shell and the head closes it securely. The animal cannot straighten out its body, says the New York World. It has a singular tripping gait upon the tips of two toes of which the claws are longer than the others. Children play with it by rolling it about like a ball or letting it run on a board in order to enjoy its funny gait. It is quite harmless, soon gets tame and eats out of the children's hands.

"Have you ever traveled in the South?" asked the New Orleans man of the chap from Bangor, Me. "Oh, yes, indeed!" said the Maine man. "I have been to Boston and New York."

THE SUN LOOKED OVER THE HIGHEST HILLS

The sun looked over the highest hills,
And down in the vales looked he;
And sprang up blithe all things of life,
And put forth their energy;
The flowers crept out their tender cups,
And offered their dewy fee;
And rivers and rills they shimmered along
Their winding ways to the sea;
And the little birds their morning song
Trilled forth from every tree,
On a Whit-Sunday morn in the month of May. —John Orchard.

THE WONDERS OF THE LANE

Strong climber of the mountain's side
Though thou the vale disdain,
Yet walk with me where hawthorns hide
The wonders of the lane.
High o'er the rushy springs of Don
The stormy gloom is rolled;
The moorland hath not yet put on
His purple, green and gold.
But here the titling spreads his wing,
Where dewy daisies gleam;
And here the sun flower of the spring
Burns bright in morning's beam.
Oh, then while hums the earliest bee
Where verdure fires the plain,
Walk thou with me, and stoop to see
The glories of the lane.
For, oh, I love these banks of rock,
This roof of sky and tree,
These tufts where sleeps the gloaming clock,
And wakes the earliest bee.

The sweetness of revenge often sours the disposition.

Sure, painting costs some money. So the thing to do is to buy the paint that lasts the longest, and the answer is

Let Lynn Help You Make Your Floors Like New

Twenty, thirty years ago it was the fashion to stiple floors. Like many of the old time customs "stipling" and bringing out a grain in the wood has again become the style. Few present-day painters really understand the art of stipling, but Mr. Lynn's years of experience as a painter have made him so proficient that he can make an old pine floor look nearly as good as a new hardwood floor. Have him do over just one floor in one room, and you will be more than pleased.

The beauty of waxed floors can also be yours, whether hardwood or soft, if you will try OLD ENGLISH WAX, the kind that spreads better, lasts longer and polishes better than ordinary waxes. For those who prefer, we also have Johnson's Prepared Wax.
