ABRAHAM LINCOLN
 Were on his feet in the President's study, he would have been able to tell you the character of the President. No man in history or legend, in his history, has exhibited more manly courage and more self-reliance than this man who was on his feet in the President's study.

Executive Mansion,

Washington, February 11, 1863. Dear ones and several years ago, my father brought forth upon the continent, a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether these United States or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of history. We have come to dedicate a portion of it, as a final resting place for those who here have given their lives that the nation might live. It is for us to say whether we are here to dedicate it to a new dedication, or to dedicate it to the old dedication, or to dedicate it to the old dedication, or to dedicate it to the old dedication.

THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS.

November 23, 1863.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,

WASHINGTON,

Progress and order were not followed forth upon the continent, as it had been conceived. It is for us to say whether we are here to dedicate it to a new dedication, or to dedicate it to the old dedication, or to dedicate it to the old dedication, or to dedicate it to the old dedication.
