CHAPTER I.

OF ORDINARY MEETINGS.

I. THE ordinary meetings of the Society shall commence the last Saturday but one of October, and be held every Saturday until eight sets of members shall have read their dissertations. * Each ordinary meeting for private business shall commence at six o'clock P. M. and shall not be protracted beyond seven. If the private business should not then be finished, it shall be resumed either at the next ordinary meeting, or at an extraordinary one to be appointed for that purpose †. An adjournment of a few minutes shall take place after the private business, when the public business shall commence, and continue until the meeting be dissolved by the President.

2. The names of the ordinary attending members shall be called over by the Secretary at the beginning of the private business, and at the beginning and end of public business. If any member be absent from the roll-call at private business, he shall be fined 1 s. If from the first roll-call (public business) 6 d.; from the second 1 s. The President shall not give leave of absence before ten o'clock. Any member may be at liberty to leave the Society after twelve P. M (inserting his name in a book provided for the purpose), without the consent of the President.

3. Any member may petition for leave of absence from the meetings of the Society for a limited time, provided he be not to give in dissertations within four weeks. During the permitted time of absence, he shall not enjoy any of the privileges of a member. And if, after the expiration of this time, he should be absent from three successive ordinary meetings, without a sufficient apology, he shall thereby incur the penalty of expulsion.

4. The Secretary shall, on every night of meeting, examine the list of absentees; and if any honorary or extraordinary member, whose name may be on the list of circulation, should have been absent three successive nights, without a sufficient excuse, he shall not be permitted to receive the dissertations and minutes the remainder of that session : Nor shall he, in any future session, receive them, until he shall have petitioned the Society, and obtained permission. If an ordinary member should be absent from three successive ordinary meetings, without a sufficient excuse, he shall thereby incur the penalty of expulsion.

5. No person shall publish, or intentionally furnish any other person with materials for publishing, any of the transactions of the Society without their authority. Any member infringing this law, thereby incurs the penalty of expulsion.

OF EXTRAORDINARY MEETINGS.

1. WHEN the Society may think an extraordinary meeting requisite, the President in office shall appoint it within forty-eight hours, unless the member proposing it consent to its being later.

2. The roll shall be called at the beginning and end of the meeting; and if any member is absent at either roll-call, he shall be fined 1 s. The following appeals to be considered valid; confinement for one day by illness, engagements at other societies, at classes, absence from town two miles or more.

3. The first Wednesday after the last ordinary meeting of each session, there shall be an extraordinary meeting, for the purpose of collecting the money due to the Society.

4. The succeeding Saturday there shall be another extraordinary meeting, for the purpose of receiving the report of the Committee, which shall have been appointed to examine the accounts of the Presidents*.

C H A P.

* See Chap. xii. Law 8.

C H A P. III.

OF MONTHLY MEETINGS.

1. A MEETING shall be held on the first Friday of every month throughout the year, at seven o'clock in the evening, for the purpose of considering such Medical or Philosophical dissertations as any member may communicate to the Society. After the Society have made their remarks on them, they shall be left with the Printing Committee.

2. Every President, and every ordinary member, who may be of the Printing Committee, if absent from the first roll-call, shall be fined 6 d. ; if from the second, 4 s. 6 d. The second roll not to be called until fifteen minutes after the meeting is constituted.

3: The Printing Committee shall, within the space of ten days after their election, chuse one of their number to be Collector of the transactions of the Society for that year : And it shall be the duty of this Collector to present to the Society, at the first ordinary meeting after the 16th of November, a fair copy of such papers as he thinks merit publication, which come under the determination of the Committee. This manuscript to lie upon the table of the Library four weeks ; and the Society shall then determine, by ballot, whether it be printed or not. If determined in the affirmative, the Collector is authorized to get them printed with all convenient speed, at the expence of the Society. When a volume is compleated, it is to be sold for account of the Society.

4. The Printing Committee shall likewise have power to chuse and purchase books for the Society.

5. This Committee shall, at monthly meetings, give in a list of books; which list shall remain in the Library (so that any member of the Society may add whatever book he thinks proper, affixing his name to the propofal), until the last ordinary meeting of the Society for that month, when the President of the meeting shall read over the title of every book comprized in the list. After which, such books, as may be approved of by the Society, shall be purchased by the Committee.

6. No appeal for non-attendance can be admitted from the members of this Committee, except previous confinement by illness for two days, or absence from town for more than six miles, and during two days.

7. All the transactions of the Printing Committee shall be minuted in a book kept for that particular purpose: In which all the books approved of by the Society, every commiffion for particular books, and those which have been purchased by the Committee, shall be registered. And this book shall remain in the Library of the Society for the information of every gentleman.

8. No member of the Committee shall be permitted to transact business with any Bookseller whatever, unless an order for that purpose be previously inserted in the minute-book of the Committee: And when commissions for books are granted to Booksellers, which cannot be procured in Edinburgh, a letter from the Bookseller, acknowledging the commission, shall be obtained.

9. A discretionary power is vested in the Committee for the purchasing of new publications; which they again shall delegate to two of their number, in rotation, from one monthly meeting till another. These two gentlemen shall exercise the discretionary power vested in them for the purchase of such books, by written orders signed by them; which order must be sent along with the books to the Library of the Society, and the Secretary be directed to preserve them.

10. The Booksellers shall be directed to send the books which are purchased from them to the Library of the Society, at an hour when the Secretary will attend, who is to grant receipts for them, and minute the date of these receipts, so that it may appear that they came into the Library of the Society the same day they were sent from the Bookseller.

11. The receipts of the Secretary shall be the documents by which the Booksellers shall authenticate their

their accounts when they present them to the Society; and if the date of the receipt do not correspond with the date of the purchase, the account shall not be admitted.

12. For better enforcing that law, which determines that one-third of the gross revenue of that Society be appropriated to the Library, the Treasurer shall be directed to carry over the ordinary expences of one year to the ordinary expences of the succeeding; and, without a repeal of this law, it shall not be lawful for him to pay any accounts of the Society from the funds allotted to its Library, except those which belong to the Library itself. This law cannot be repealed, at any meeting of the Society, unless six extraordinary and 30 ordinary members are present who do consent to its repeal.

C H A P. IV.

OF THE PRIZE QUESTION.

1. THE Society shall, annually, on the 1st day of January, propose an experimental question, connected with the objects of their institution; and a medal, value 20 guineas, shall be given on the first day of meeting in April, two years and three months afterwards, to the author of the best dissertation on that subject, if such dissertation be judged to have sufficient merit. Dissertations, (written in Latin, English, or French), must be sent to the secretary of the printing committee, on or before the 1st day of January, two years succeeding the publication of the advertisement.

2. Each essay must be accompanied with a sealed letter, and motto on its outside, corresponding to that prefixed to the essay, and sealed with a similar seal. The author must mention in this letter his name and place of abode. The other essays to be burnt, or returned, if required, with the letters unopened.

3. The determination of the respective merits of the dissertations shall be vested solely in the Printing Committee.

4. The

4. The dissertations shall circulate amongst the members of the Printing Committee. They shall be sent first to the oldest member of the Committee, who, after he has perused them, shall send them to the next, in the order of seniority; and so on, in succession, until all the members shall have perused them.

Every member shall form his opinion apart, with regard to the merits of the different essays; and conceal his sentiments, even from the other members of the Committee.

5. There shall be a box provided for the Committee. And, on the day appointed for the decision, each member shall put into this box a paper, without signature, containing his opinion.

6. The prize to be adjudged according to the opinions of the majority thus collected.

OF THE DECISIONS OF THE SOCIETY.

1. WHEN any proposal shall be made to the Society, and seconded, if it be not unanimously agreed to, it shall be determined by ballot at the ensuing ordinary meeting.

2. The manner of balloting shall be as follows : Every member who may not choose to vote, having retired, each remaining member shall receive a balloting ticket, which he shall put into the admit or reject side of the balloting box. The Secretary shall then count the number of voters ; and, if this be found by the President and two senior members present, (who shall always together examine the returns), to correspond with the number of balloting tickets in the box, the President shall announce the decision of the question, according to the proportion of tickets in the different sides.

3. A proposal for adopting a new regulation * shall be admitted by the concurrent suffrages of two thirds of

NO petition for an ordinary seat shall be received from any candidate who has not, for six months, attended some school of medicine. This attendance must be certified in the petition.

2. Every such petition shall be presented in due time, at an ordinary meeting, by some one member, who shall not be at liberty to make a recommendatory speech in favour of the candidate; but a written recommendation shall be affixed to every such petition when it is presented, containing an attestation, upon honour, of the truth of the facts alledged in the said petition; and such recommendation shall be signed by no fewer than six, and not more than twelve members. The spirit of the following recommendation to be preserved. We the underwritten, members of the Royal Medical Society of Edinburgh, attest, upon our honour, that the allegations contained in the petition are true.

Moreover

Moreover, that the petitioner has enjoyed the further advantage of attending medical lectures for years, or of studying medicine for years; and that we know him perfectly qualified to become an useful member to the Society.

4. No petition shall be balloted for more than once the same evening, unless on the discovery of a mistake in the ballot.

5. No petition shall be received from the same candidate more than for three times the same session.

6. Admissions into the Society shall take place only between the 20th of November and 1st of May.

7. If any member promise his vote for or against a candidate, he shall incur the penalty of 2 s. 6 d.

8. A copy of the Laws shall be sent to each new elected member, by the person who shall have presented his petition. The new elected member may sign the Laws (at the appointed time *) any of the three nights of ordinary meeting succeeding his election. But, if he neglect to sign them the first night, he shall incur the penalty of a crown. If he continue his neglect the second night, he shall incur the penalty of another crown. And, if he continue his neglect the third night, he shall incur the penalty of expulsion.

1. ON the first ordinary meeting of the Society, after the 16th of November, (or on the 16th of November, if an ordinary meeting happen that day), the President shall appoint the election of Annual Presidents to take place at the next ordinary meeting.

2. Intimation of the appointment shall be circulated with the dissertations and minutes.

3. Each Member shall be called upon, according to seniority, to deliver to the President a list of those for whom he may vote. A Committee shall then be appointed to examine the lists, and to bring in a written report of the names of the Members voted for, and of the number of votes for each. If a vacancy should occur in the office of President, during the Session, the same order shall be followed in filling it up as at the annual election.

4. No member shall vote at the election, or be chosen President, unless his name shall have been in the list of circulation for one week at least previous to the election.

5. No Extraordinary Member, whose name shall not have been on the circulation for three weeks previous to the election of Presidents, shall be put on the circulation, unless he signify his intention for that purpose to the Secretary by letter. And any member who shall falsify such letter, shall suffer the penalty of expulsion.

6. The resolution of the Society, upon the 20th January 1787, (expressing their sense with regard to the conduct of Extraordinary Members), shall be read aloud from the chair, immediately before any election of Presidents.

7. If, at the beginning of any meeting, all the annual Presidents be absent, the office of President shall devolve on the senior member present. But, if the President whose turn it may be to preside, have occasion to leave the chair, he may substitute in his place another annual President; or, if none of the other annual Presidents be present, any Member whom he may think proper.

8. The four Presidents shall officiate according to seniority. And, if the President whose turn it may be to take the chair should be absent at the hour of meeting, without having obtained another President to officiate in his stead, he shall be fined 1 sh.; and, if he should not appear during the whole business, he shall be fined half a crown.

9. The

9. The President, whose turn it may be to officiate at the public business of any meeting, is to officiate at the private business of the succeeding ordinary meeting, and at all extraordinary meetings which may occur during the intervening week.

10. The President shall announce from the chair every vacancy which may occur in any office of the Society when it shall have happened; or, if it happen in the middle of the week, at the ensuing ordinary meeting. He shall take care that notice of it circulate in the minutes, and that it be filled up at the succeeding ordinary meeting.

11. The President in office shall regulate the debates; for any irregularity during which he may impose a fine not exceeding 1 sh. If any personal, impolite, or disorderly expression, should occur during the debate, the President shall immediately censure it. Should he be inattentive to this, any member may remind him of his duty, and (if necessary) may require him to take the opinion of the Society immediately. If the offending member refuse to make such concessions as the Society may judge proper, he shall thereby incur the penalty of expulsion. But if, after he shall have made such concessions, any member should challenge him to a duel, that member shall thereby incur the penalty of expulsion.

12. Any member dissatisfied with the conduct of a President, may accuse him. An extraordinary meeting ing shall be appointed for judging the accusation. If the Society find the allegations just, the President shall be deposed ; if not, the accuser shall incur the penalty of half a guinea.

OF THE SECRETARY AND LIBRARIAN.

1. THE same person shall act both as Secretary and Librarian. So long as he shall discharge his duty faithfully, he shall receive L. 25 Sterling per annum.

2. The Secretary shall call over the names of the ordinary members, at the beginning and end of every ordinary meeting, and at the beginning and end of every extraordinary meeting, also, at the beginning and end of every monthly meeting, the names of the Presidents, and of the four ordinary members who are of the Printing Committee.

3. At private business, he shall read the minutes of the preceding night. At public business, he shall read the case, question, and aphorism; but not the dissertations on them.

4. He shall give to the President, every night at the private business, a list of the gentlemen who are to appoint visitors; also of those who give in dissertations on that and the following night. And also, the names of the gentlemen who are appointed to examine the circulation and periodical publications.

5. He shall write down all the transactions and minutes of the Society; and, at the end of each meeting, deliver such records to the President, to be inspected and signed by him. These minutes (transcribed into proper books), he shall afterwards deliver, together with the dissertations received, to the senior member, every Sunday during the session, at eight o'clock in the morning.

6. He shall receive the dissertations and minutes, after they shall have circulated among the members.

7. In balloting, he shall count the number of voters in the room; and carry round the balls and box.

8. He shall, in a book kept for that purpose, and which shall be allowed to lie on the Library table, mark down the names of all those gentlemen, who may have been absent from any of the roll-calls; specifying the particular one, and the penalty incurred. He shall also mark down, in the same book, when ordered by the President, the names, offences, and penalties of any person, who may have transgressed any of the laws.

9. On the first ordinary meeting in March he shall deliver to the Committee, appointed for selecting subjects for dissertation, the cases, questions, and aphorisms, given in by the members. After the lots have been drawn, he shall, within the space of a fortnight at farthest, transcribe into a book, to be kept in the Library for the inspection of the members, all the sets of papers, marking each set with its proper number; and the name of the person, who is to write on the subject it contains. He shall, then, deliver to each person the original set allotted to him. At the commencement of each session, he shall hang up in the Library a list, specifying the names of the authors for that year, and the subjects of their dissertations. If he transgress any regulation of the above law, he shall incur the penalty of 2 s. 6 d. for each offence.

10. There shall be a book kept by the Secretary, in which he shall register, at the end of every meeting, the sum of money received during that meeting. To this account he shall affix his name, and deliver the book to the President who received the money, that it may be attested by him also.

11. If an extraordinary meeting be appointed, for the accusation of any member, the Secretary shall give information of the day appointed, to the party accusing and the party accused.

12. The Secretary (as Librarian), shall have the sole charge of the Library, and shall be accountable to the Society for every book that may be lost, for which no receipt stands in the book. If he refuse to make compensation, he shall be dismissed and prosecuted.

13. The Librarian shall not erase the name of any book from the press-catalogue, unless by the desire and under

under the inspection of a Committee appointed for the purpose.

14. Whenever a book is added to the Library, the Librarian shall, within a week from the receipt of it, insert its name, &c. into the press-catalogue. For any infringement of this law, the Librarian shall incur the penalty of 6 d.

15. He shall not intrust any member with the keys of the Library, or suffer any one to take down, or put up books into the book-case.

16. He shall attend at the Library every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, between the hours of four and six in the afternoon; for the purpose of giving out and receiving books from the members. After which hour he is not obliged to give out any books.

17. The Librarian shall lend books to members only. He shall take a receipt for every book, or books, lent out; which receipt shall be inserted into a book kept for the purpose, and signed by the member who takes out the books.

18. The Librarian shall not allow any member to have out more than eight volumes from the Library at a time, except when a book consists of a greater number of volumes; in which case, he may lend out the whole work.

19. When a book is returned, he shall expunge it from the receipt-book immediately, under the penalty of five shillings.

20. On the first ordinary meeting in December, and also that in April, the Librarian shall intimate to every member who may have the Society's books in their possession, the Society's order, that these books be returned before the next ordinary meeting. He shall give in to the Committee of fines, a list of those who neglect to obey that order. If he transgress this law, he shall incur the penalty of 5 s.

21. During the recess, the Librarian shall give intimation, by letter, to the person who, in rotation, may be appointed to examine the publications lying on the Library table.

22. He shall collect and preserve the periodical publications.

23. For every neglect of duty, not otherwise particularly specified, he shall incur the penalty of 2 s. 6 d.

24. He shall attend Committees when ordered.

25. He shall not be permitted to speak in the Society as a member : But, if accused for neglect of duty, &c. he may (on petition) be allowed to answer in his own defence, as members, when accused.

26. The Society may dismiss the Secretary at pleasure, upon giving him intimation of their intention four weeks before ; or immediately, upon paying him a month's wages from the time of his dismissal.

27. He

27. He shall not be allowed to resign his office, without giving the Society four weeks notice; during which time a Committee shall be appointed to examine into the state of the Library, to receive the keys, and settle accounts with him.

OF PROVIDING SUBJECTS FOR DISSERTATIONS.

1. UPON the first ordinary meeting in March, the President shall order every ordinary member, and such other members as receive the books in circulation, to deliver to the Secretary, at the next ordinary meeting, the history of a case, a Medical or Philosophical question, and an Aphorism of Hippocrates, each to be written on a separate paper, and signed by the name of the person delivering them.

2. These papers shall be delivered to a Committee, who shall select thirty-six sets, consisting each of a case, question, and aphorism. If there shall not have been a sufficient number of proper subjects, the President shall appoint a second delivery, so that thirty-six sets may be procured. Each of these being numbered, and sealed up in a separate cover, the whole shall, at the next ordinary meeting, be delivered by the Committee to the Secretary, together with a report, specifying the names of the persons whose papers may be contained in each of the numbered covers.

3. The sets of papers having been thus returned, the President shall order that every person, intending to write the ensuing session, shall, at the next meeting, declare (in person, or by letter), his intention. Each of the thirty-six senior members, who intend to write, shall then from numbers, on slips of papers, corresponding with those marked in the several sets, draw one.

4. After the lots shall have been drawn, the Secretary shall, within the space of a fortnight at farthest, transcribe into a book, to be kept in the Library for the inspection of the members, all the sets of papers, marking each set with its proper number, and the name of the person who is to write upon the subjects of it. He shall then deliver to each person the original set allotted to him. And at the commencement of the ensuing session shall hang up in the Library the names of those members who are to write, and the subjects of their respective dissertations.

5. Any person may write on the subjects given in by himself, provided they shall have met with the approbation of the Committee, and that he shall have (in writing) signified his intention at the time of delivering in his set. After the subjects shall have been thus disposed of, by lot or choice, any person who shall make any alteration, or alterations, in them, shall be fined 5 s. for each.

6. The

6. The President, Secretary, or any member, who may have transgressed any of the laws, for providing subjects for dissertations, shall incur the penalty of 2 s. 6 d. for each offence.

OF THE DELIVERY OF DISSERTATIONS.

1. ON the first Friday in October, the President shall order the three senior ordinary members, then resident in Edinburgh, to deliver to the President, on the last Saturday but one of October, each a dissertation on one of the subjects allotted to him: The senior, one on his case; the second, one on his question; and the third, one on his aphorism. On the Saturday following, the senior, one on his question; the second, one on his aphorism; and the third, one on his case. On the Saturday following, each his remaining dissertation. The President in office shall order the succeeding members, in sets of three, according to seniority, to deliver dissertations in the same order. Any member coming to Edinburgh, after his turn of writing shall have been past, must be considered as the senior member of the next set.

2. The first set of writers having, according to the above law, delivered their dissertations on the last Saturday but one of October, the Society shall discuss them them on the second Saturday of November. During the immediate time, the Secretary shall, in the course of the first week, have the dissertations transcribed into books to be kept for that purpose; and, on the following Sunday, shall deliver them, at eight o'clock in the morning, to the senior member on the list of circulation, that they may circulate amongst the members.

3. The books in which these dissertations shall have been transcribed, shall lie on the table in the Library, for the inspection of the members. Any person who may remove them from the Medical Hall shall be fined half-a-guinea.

4. Every set of writers shall deliver their dissertations to the President, three weeks before they are to be discussed, in order that they may be transcribed the first week, and may circulate the remaining fortnight.

5. Should the person, appointed to write, neglect to give in his dissertation at the stated time, he shall incur the penalty of 6 d. for every hour of neglect, until his fine shall amount to half-a-guinea. If he totally neglect to give in a dissertation, on the night appointed for the discussion of it, he shall, in addition to the above, incur the penalty of half-a-guinea for the first offence; of one guinea for the second; and of expulsion for the third. Sickness shall, in no case, be deemed a valid excuse, unless the person shall have been confined for two weeks previous to the time appointed for giving in his dissertations to be transcribed.

6. No person shall be allowed to exchange his turn of writing with another, unless for a complete set, leave to exchange having been obtained by petition. No member shall be permitted to exchange with one who was not to have written that session.

C H A P. XVII.

OF THE CIRCULATION OF MINUTES AND DISSERTATIONS.

1. A Sufficient number of copies of dissertations shall be procured, at the expence of the Society, so that every member may receive them in circulation.

2. The dissertations and minutes shall circulate among the members, according to seniority, unless any two agree to change their times of receiving them for mutual convenience. No member is to keep them longer than six hours. Any person detaining one or more of the papers beyond the time appointed for sending them away, shall be fined 6 d. for each hour.

3. The Secretary shall begin the circulation every Sunday, during the session, at eight o'clock in the morning, by sending the dissertations and minutes to the senior member whose name may be on the list of circulation. This member shall send them to the next in rotation at the hour appointed,—he to his, and so on. If any person detain them more than six hours beyond the time at which he ought to have sent them away,
he

he shall not send them to the next on the list, but to him whose right it may then be to have them. And every person is to send the dissertations and minutes, at the appointed time, whether they shall have been six hours in his possession or not.

4. If the dissertations and minutes be delivered at the abode of any member later than the hour appointed for him to have sent them away, he shall not incur a penalty, though they should happen to be detained; but he must endeavour to set the circulation right as soon as possible.

5. A book shall circulate with these, in which shall be inserted the names, and places of abode, of those members who are to receive the dissertations and minutes, and the time allotted to each for the perusal of them. In another part of the same book, each member shall mark, in proper columns, 1. The name of the person from whom he may have received the dissertations and minutes. 2. The hour at which he may have received them. 3. The name of the person to whom he may send them. 4. The hour at which he may send them. 5. His own name.—For every irregularity, or omission, in marking the circulation, he shall incur the penalty of 6d.

C H A P. XVIII.

OF THE READING OF DISSERTATIONS.

1. THE Secretary shall, at public business, read the subjects of dissertation from the book in which they shall have been transcribed *. Then the member whose turn it may be shall read his own dissertation; in failure of which, he shall incur the penalty of 2 sh. 6 d.

2. If any author be absent during the discussion of his paper for more than a quarter of an hour, he shall incur the penalty of 5 s. The President shall notice whatever time he may be absent.

❖ See Chap. Law 4.

C H A P. XIX.

O F T H E L I B R A R Y.

1. SUCH periodical publications, relating to philosophy or medicine, as a committee to be appointed for that purpose may approve of, shall be purchased.

2. The last number of these publications shall be laid upon the Library table, and shall not be removed from the Medical Hall, until a succeeding one appear. Any person who may remove, or in any way abuse, one of these publications, shall incur the penalty of 5 s.

3. When a new periodical publication shall appear, the former shall either be bound immediately, if it be sufficiently large; or be laid aside until a number, deemed sufficient for that purpose, by the Librarian and Treasurer, be collected. Each particular book shall then be entered into the Library Catalogue, and lent out under the common regulations of the Library*.

4. At every ordinary meeting of the Society, the President shall appoint, in rotation, one of the ordinary members to report, in writing, at the following ordinary meeting, what publications may at that time be upon the Library Table. At the last ordinary meeting of the session, and at each monthly meeting during the recess, the Presidents shall appoint, in rotation, one of the ordinary members residing in Edinburgh to give in, at the succeeding monthly meeting, a similar report. During the recess, the Secretary shall give notice, by letter, to the person upon whom the appointment may have fallen. Should the President, Secretary, or Member appointed, fail to observe what this law prescribes, he shall incur the penalty of 2 s. 6 d.

5. At the first ordinary meeting in December, and also at that in April, the President shall order all the books of the Society to be returned before the ensuing ordinary meeting. Of this order, the Secretary shall give notice to each member who may at that time have any of the Society's books in his possession. If any member neglect to obey this order, the Librarian shall, on the third ordinary meeting, report his name to the Society; should the President, Librarian, or any member, fail to observe what this law prescribes, he shall incur the penalty of 5 s.

6. A box shall be kept in the Library, in which shall be deposited the great anatomical plates, and such other books as the Society may order. The key shall be lodged with the Janitor, and access granted to the members every day, from eight in the morning till eight at night. These books shall not be lent out, nor is the Librarian to be accountable for them.

7. No member shall cause a book belonging to the Society to be taken farther than two miles from Edinburgh, under the penalty of 10 s. 6 d. for each book.

8. If any member neglect or refuse to give up a book at the request of another member, after it shall have been fourteen days in his possession, he shall incur the penalty of 1 s. for each day he may continue to detain it.

9. At the end of every session shall be printed a separate catalogue of the books added that session, containing the names of the books, with those of the places and times of their publication annexed, disposed (as in the former printed catalogues), in alphabetical order.

C H A P. XX.

O F C O M M I T T E E S.

1. THE Printing Committee shall consist of sixteen members, two of whom shall be Secretaries. The four Annual Presidents shall be of this Committee by office. Of the other members, three shall be chosen from the Royal College of Physicians, three from the Royal College of Surgeons, four from amongst those members whose names may be on the list of circulation, and two (who are to officiate as Secretaries) from amongst members resident in Edinburgh.

2. This Committee shall be elected annually, on the first ordinary meeting after the election of Presidents.

3. The Committee of Fines shall consist of nine members, namely, the four Annual Presidents, and the five eldest ordinary members.

4. This Committee shall meet by themselves every Monday during the session at noon. They shall determine, by ballot, every question that may arise with respect to the validity of appeals * from fines. And each member shall be understood to have pledged his honour that he will not divulge what may pass among them.

5. If any member of this Committee be absent at the time of meeting, he shall incur the penalty of 6 d. If he neglect to attend during any part of the meeting, he shall incur the penalty of 1 sh.

6. All Committees for examining accounts must consist of the four Annual Presidents, the Treasurer, and five ordinary members.

7. At the last ordinary meeting of the Society, in every session, a Committee shall be appointed to examine the accounts of the Annual Presidents. This Committee shall make their report to the Society at the second extraordinary meeting after the close of the session.

8. At the first ordinary meeting in January, a Committee shall be appointed to examine the Treasurer's accounts.

9. At the stated periods † for giving in the books of the Society, a Committee shall be appointed to inspect the Library.

10. On the Saturday previous to the election of Presidents, a Committee shall be appointed to examine the List of Circulation.

* See Chap. Law 2.

† See Chap. . Law 6.

11. The Committee appointed for the imposition of fines shall be authorized to collect them in the following manner : On the first meetings of the above Committee, in the months of November, January, and March, the Committee shall direct the Secretary to transmit to every gentleman a written account of his fines ; and, before the next meeting of the Committee, each member of the Society so written to shall pay to the Secretary the full amount of his fines, under the penalty of 2s. 6d.

12. The Presidents shall receive this money from the Secretary at the next meeting of the Committee, and shall account for it, in the usual manner, to the Treasurer.

13. In cases where any member of the Society desires to make an appeal, he shall intimate his intention before the next meeting of the Committee, by a written reply to the note he received from the Secretary ; and, if the appeal be not sustained, the appellant shall incur the penalty of 5 s.

14. If any gentleman, thus applied to, shall not answer the note from the Secretary, within fourteen days after the receipt of it, the Committee shall report the conduct of such gentleman to the Society, under the penalty of 2 s. 6 d. from each of its members.

15. If a Committee be thought necessary for any purpose, except printing the transactions of the Society, and adjusting the fines, the proposer of the motion, for the execution of which the Committee may be thought thought necessary, shall be nominated by the President to be chairman of the Committee. The chairman shall then nominate a second member, the second a third, and so on, till the Committee be completed.

16. The Committee shall give in their report in writing at the appointed time *, on the ensuing night of meeting, and be then dissolved, if the contrary be not specified.

17. The President in office may attend as a member of any Committee.

* See Order of the Proceedings of the Society, No. 12.

C H A P. XXI.

O F P E N A L T I E S.

1. IN a book which shall be laid on the Library table, the Secretary shall mark the offences and penalties of each person who may transgress any of the laws.

2. The validity of all appeals shall be determined by the Committee of Fines.

3. No excuses for non-attendance can be deemed valid, except two days confinement, or two days absence from town.

C H A P. XXII.

OF THE COLLECTION OF MONEY.

1. EACH member, upon signing the Laws of the Society, shall pay to the Presidents five guineas for the funds. He shall be entitled for this to a copy of the Laws, and shall be considered as having paid his first year's subscription of one guinea to the Library.

2. At the first ordinary meeting in December annually, each ordinary member, provided it is the second session of attendance, shall pay one guinea; if the third session 10 s. 6 d.

3. There shall be a book kept by the Secretary, in which he shall register the fines, confirmed by the Committee for that purpose. Upon payment of each of these fines, the President shall annex to the account of it his signature. There shall also be another book kept by the Secretary, in which he shall register, at the end of every meeting, the sum of money received during that meeting. To this account, the President receiving the money, and the Secretary, shall annex their signatures.

4. Each

4. Each member must discharge his debts to the Society on or before the first extraordinary meeting after the close of the session ; or, in default thereof, incur the penalty of expulsion.

5. No member shall be entitled to receive a diploma or certificate, until he shall have discharged his debts to the Society.

6. The money collected by each President shall be paid to the Treasurer on each of the first ordinary meetings in January and April, and on the day preceding the second extraordinary meeting after the close of the session.

ROYAL MEDICAL SOCIETY

OF EDINBURGH.

FROM ITS INSTITUTION.

N. B. Those Gentlemen whose names are printed in Italics, have been elected Honorary Members, without having been previously ordinary members of the Society. Many others have been raised to the same rank ; some in consequence of having written a number of Dissertations ; others as the reward of particular services ; and a third set as a testimony of esteem for merit. But it has been thought improper that their names should be distinguished by any particular mark in this list, although it has been done on some former occasions.

CONDITION PRIOR TO TREATMENT

There was no cover. There were remains of the leather spine. The sewing was intact. The laid paper text was flexible, and slightly soiled, although the first and last leaf were moderately soiled and have tears. There were library stamps in the text. The surface pH of the text was 4.8.

TREATMENT

The text block was disbound, after the spine was softened with methyl cellulose poultices. The first and last leaves and heavily soiled leaves were surface cleaned with grated and solid white vinyl erasers. The text was washed in calcium enriched deionized water and deacidified in magnesium bicarbonate (1M solution in water). The leaves were repaired with hand made Japanese paper and wheat starch paste. The last two pages were reinforced with handmade Japanese paper and methyl cellulose. The book was re sewn by hand with unbleached Irish linen thread with the addition of new end leaves of handmade paper. The spine was lined with both Japanese paper using wheat starch paste, and unbleached Irish linen with PVA adhesive. The book was recovered in a non-adhesive paper cover reinforced with acid-free buffered board. The surface pH after treatment was 8.8.
