

NEW TITLE SYSTEM

MEASURE GOVERNING TRANSFERS OF PROPERTY IN EFFECT TODAY

Revolutionizing the land recording system, the new Torrens land law will go into effect at midnight tonight. Just how the Torrens law operates has been made clear in a statement issued by Earl Newmire, an attorney in the Washington building, Los Angeles, who has completed a digest of the law and the interpretation of its provisions. Mr. Newmire said:

"The new Torrens law is with us to stay. From the number of inquiries made to date, it is safe to say that a special department of the superior court will have to be designated to handle the business arising under it. People desire titles which are indisputable, and the new law places titles upon such a foundation by a superior form of quiet-title action.

"Lands brought under the Torrens law are known as 'registered lands.' Our recorder will also handle all documents relating to registered land, but in that capacity will be known as registrar.

"The two features about the Torrens law which make it superior to the old system of recording are: "First: The condition of the title to a piece of registered land can be ascertained by an inspection of one page in a book known as the 'register.' Second: The state assurance fund guarantees your title to be as shown on the register.

"This Torrens law is not a new fad by the way. Land title registration dates from the twelfth century. Minnesota, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Ohio, Massachusetts, Washington, Oregon and other states in the Union have the Torrens law in operation.

"I have a sample of the new certificate which the registrar will give to owners of registered lands. It is simplicity itself. The state keeps the original and you get a duplicate certificate. It is a single sheet of paper, yet it shows the exact condition of the property it covers.

"The actual cost of registration is lower than an ordinary certificate would cost you. As I figure it, you will pay the county clerk $6 when you file your petition. Your advertising can be done for $5 and the filing of your decree and the issuance of a certificate to you will be $1 more.

"You will also pay the registrar one-tenth of 1 per cent of the value of your land, including permanent improvements, as shown by the last county (state) assessment. Ordinarily I should say this charge will run about a dollar more. This goes to make up a fund known as the 'assurance fund' and will be the cost of your title insurance.

"This will be a total of $13, and if the case is contested, there will be an extra $2 to set the case for trial. All told, the actual costs should be between $15 and $20."

P. T. A. MEETING

The Intermediate Parent-Teacher association met on Thursday afternoon at the Third street school. The president, Dr. Jessie A. Russell, presided. The following chairmen gave short reports: Mrs. Frank E. Thorpe, chairman of the visiting committee; Mrs. Herman Paine, chairman of the ways and means committee; Miss Helen White, of the school beautiful committee. Owing to illness, the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. E. S. McKee, was unable to be present.

An excellent address was given by Mrs. Frank E. Thorpe and papers were read by Mrs. John G. Hunchberger and Miss Carrie Noble, vice-principal of the school. Numerous requests were made that these papers be published at a later date in order that more mothers might have the privilege of reading them.

The question box brought interesting discussions from the large number of letters and attendance. Mrs. Francis Smith of Pontiac, Ill., was one of the prominent guests present.

TO PURCHASE ADDITIONAL LOTS

There was a meeting of the school board Thursday night at the Third street school, at which time it was reported that the board have closed with all the property owners and have agreements for the purchase of the eight additional lots to the Third street school. Bids for the addition to the Third street school will be advertised for next week. Bids have already been advertised for on the Central avenue addition.

The matter of the request from the Parent-Teacher Federation, which was presented at the meeting, requesting that a bond election be called, was laid over until the next meeting of the board.

RA-EM-KA OF EGYPT

OLDEST STATUE IN THE WORLD IS DESCRIBED BY PASADENA WOMAN

By Mary A. Clarke Colquhoun of South Pasadena.

Near the middle of the nineteenth century some Egyptian workmen excavating under the direction of M. Mariette in the cemetery of Sakkara, a little south of the pyramids of Gizeh, exhumed a statue so life-like, so greatly resembling the governor of their native district, that one of them involuntarily exclaimed: "The Sheik-el-Beled!" (governor of the province), and so gave to what is supposed to be the oldest statue in existence one of the names by which it is familiarly known.

This statue is today in the Cairo museum, which was first situated at Boulak. This fact and the material of which the statue is made, are together responsible for its other name. We are quite prepared to find this oldest of statues buried beneath Egyptian soil, but it is somewhat startling to find a statue which is probably over six thousand years old made of wood. Thus, though being by no means the only wooden statue ever made in Egypt, it is conspicuous among the statues made of granite, porphyry and basalt, which fill the length and breadth of that old land, and so it is often called "The Wooden Man of Boulak." If this is the statue of the owner of the tomb in which it was found, it should properly be called the statue of Ra-em-ka, but it is not probable that its present picturesque name will ever be discarded.

If we may judge by this representation of him, Ra-em-ka was a sleek, smiling, well-fed, self-satisfied and masterful overseer. In the days of the old empire when the pyramids were a-building, the highest princes were proud to bear the title "superintendent of the works of the king." That Ra-em-ka was a man of importance is proved by the fact that his tomb was a mastaba in the neighborhood of the pyramid-tomb of his master. It does not require a very vivid imagination to conceive of this man—as some do conceive of him—as having had charge of the hundreds of slaves who built the Great Pyramid. The statue is about three feet eight inches in height; it is made of sycamore wood, which is now as hard and as resonant as metal; the arms were made separately, the left being of two pieces; they were attached at the elbows; the eyebrows were of opaque white quartz, set in a bronze sheath that forms the eyelid; in the center of each is a bit of rock crystal, and behind this is a shining nail; the eyelashes are thin rings of metal. The effect is marvelously realistic, though the eyes are somewhat startling.

The hands of Egyptian statues usually hung straight at the sides, here the bent elbow is unusual. Perhaps the left hand held the staff of office, as the restorer has suggested. Originally the figure was covered with linen, and this with stucco, which was painted; these have disappeared during the progress of the ages.

Egyptian sculpture, which ended with convention, began with realism. This, the oldest of the Egyptian works of art, is one of the most natural things in all art, and it is at least three thousand seven hundred years older than any other specimen of the sculptor's work which is worthy to be placed beside it.

OFFICIAL BOARD MEETING

A very interesting meeting of the Sunday school board of the West Glendale Methodist church was held in the church parlors on Thursday evening. There was a large attendance, almost the entire board being present. Reports of the various treasurers of departments were read and approved. Election of officers was held, which consumed considerable time, and then the meeting was open for discussion of various subjects, all tending toward the advancement of the Sunday school.

Mrs. Hoskyn, instructor of the teacher training class, reported that her class was steadily advancing and would be ready for graduation about the middle of February, having completed a most helpful year of work and study. Another class will be formed by Mrs. Hoskyn immediately and it is expected a large number will enter upon this work for another year, as it is a great aid to teachers of all grades. The West Glendale Sunday school is a good working body and have outgrown their quarters, so that the board have found it necessary to add two large rooms. These rooms are almost completed and will be ready for occupancy very soon.

TROPICO NEWS NOTES

NEARING HOLIDAYS CAUSES ACTIVITY IN CLUBBING OF TROPICO

A most interesting meeting of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon club was held in K. of P. hall Thursday afternoon. Miss Kate Foley gave a very interesting talk on "Work of State Library Commission for the Blind." Many donations were made for the needy in Tropico, thus Christmas cheer will permeate several homes where, were it not for the ladies of the club, it would have been a dreary Yuletide for them. Hostesses for Thursday's delightful club event were Mrs. Clarence Good, Mrs. Harry Neal, Mrs. E. U. Bacon and Mrs. A. W. Collins.

Miss Margaret Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Richardson of North Central avenue, is ill at her home, suffering an attack of chickenpox.

Mrs. L. G. Rice of South Central avenue, who has been spending a few days at the beach, returned home Wednesday evening and will remain here for an indefinite period.

Mrs. Cover Melrose and son, Clifford Melrose, arrived from their home in Corcoran to spend the happy Yuletide as the guests of Mrs. Melrose's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ayers of Palmer avenue.

The ladies who will assist Miss Cora Hickman, who has charge of the country store that will be one of the features at the bazaar to be given by the auxiliary of the Florence Crittenton home on Saturday in the Mason opera house building, are Mrs. David H. Imler, Mrs. Charles Henry, Mrs. Samuel A. Pollock, Mrs. Eva M. Cain, Mrs. W. W. Hamilton, Mrs. Margaret Hall and Miss Helen Hurd. Eugene H. Imler and Merrill Blain will assist the ladies. Mrs. R. H. Dunlap has been donated over 150 handsome dolls and the doll booth will certainly be a joy to many a dear little girl.

At the First M. E. church of Tropico the pastor, Rev. R. T. Smith, will preach on Sabbath morning at 11 o'clock from "The Rainmaker," and in the evening at 7:30 from "The Overflow." There will be special music by the choir at both of these services, Miss Helene Morgan pianist. Sunday school at 9:45. Junior League at 2:30. Epworth League at 6:30.

VALLEY VIEW

Frank C. Smedley of 780 Pacific is home from Boston, Mass., where he works for a big coffee house, to spend a few weeks with his wife.

Mrs. E. W. Parker of 1443 Lomita is home from a several months' visit in New York City with relatives.

Mr. McKibben of Los Angeles, who traded for the Straub property at 781 Pacific recently, is making some improvements to the place.

Mrs. Sternberg has been here for several days looking after her property at 1446 Vine street.

B. K. Kivits and family have moved into Walter Deacon's house at 1615 Oak street. Mr. Kivits recently received a box of goodies from his father, who was out here early this year for a few months, then went back to his home in New Harmony, Ind. In the box were good old Indiana red apples, shellbark hickory nuts and pecans from the banks of the Wabash.

C. H. Darling and wife have occupied their home again at 1628 Oak street. Fifteen months ago they went back to Moline, Ill., to dispose of some property, expecting to return in nine months, but the illness and death of Mrs. Darling's mother delayed them.

The many friends of Mrs. Anna Goad, who recently was called to Mt. Vernon, Ind., by news of the serious illness of her mother, will be saddened to hear that the illness was fatal, but Mrs. Goad arrived a day before death ensued. She expects to return to Glendale next year.

The new schoolhouse now lacks but the inside finishing. It is a beautiful building and should certainly be a source of pride to its constructors, May Bros.

GLENDALE RAINFALL COMPARISON

Mr. H. E. Bartlett of 101 South Brand boulevard, local weather man, reports as follows for the rainfall in Glendale:

Rainfall for recent storm, 1.27 inches.

For the season to date, 4.01 inches.

For last season to this date was 4.36 inches.

NARROW MINDEDNESS

A DISAGREABLE TRAIT WHICH MAY ARISE FROM IGNORANCE OR SELFISHNESS

The man or woman in business has an excellent opportunity to study human nature and after a very short interval of meeting the public one is willing to agree to the old saying that "it takes all kinds of people to make a world." Some of these types are those who make the world happier and better and a few could apparently be spared with little danger of disrupting the social system.

A country newspaper publisher has abundant opportunity for this study. The types he meets are many and diverse and of all the qualities that go to make up a personality, it seems to one who has made a study of human nature that that of narrowness is the most disagreeable trait which to come in contact.

There seems to be two causes for narrow mindedness, the first ignorance and the second selfishness and meanness. The one who is narrow through ignorance deserves pity for he never knows of the many good things of life which he misses. The man who is narrow from selfishness is a truly disagreeable person to meet. The narrow minded person lays out a little course for himself and walks therein and we be to the person who dares express a view contrary to his own. Is it some matter of public interest or local improvement? His way is the only way. He will not deign to listen to arguments. He is as firm as the rock of Gibraltar and this attitude which he assumes is not so much influenced by honest conviction as by stubbornness and narrowness. However worthy our opinions and ideas may be, there are usually those who have better, and a little openness of mind is a good thing for all concerned and the one who meets the suggestions of others half way with a desire to learn more about the matter under discussion will get more pleasure out of life than the one who knows he is right and his way is the only way, and dares anyone to disagree with him.

There are persons who were never inside of a newspaper office who know just how a newspaper should be run. If their taste runs to prizefights, they think nothing but sporting news should be published. If they like society news, they think the paper should be made up of that class of matter in spite of the fact that some do not care to read such news. If their morality is a little warped, they like to read the scandals and divorce proceedings and see no need of any other kind of news.

Is a statement made with which they disagree? They are immediately up in arms that anyone should dare to express such an opinion. One learns by years of experience to judge these people by the depth of their mentality, "consider the source," as it were. Ignorance may be the cause of the attitude which this narrow minded person assumes and not pure meanness, as we are sometimes led to believe. Lack of association with broadminded people, little opportunity for reading and study may be the cause.

Several weeks ago there was published in the Glendale News a letter received by a Glendale woman from a friend living in England. A few days ago a similar letter was published from a German girl to her cousin in Glendale. These two letters gave as nothing else could an insight into conditions in those countries. The News believes in President Wilson's attitude of strict neutrality and when we published the English lady's letter we did it solely because it was of great interest in giving insight into conditions that the war news does not and cannot give. For the same reason we published the German lady's letter. As might be supposed, both these ladies are patriotic and loyal and each wishes for the success of her own country in this awful conflict. After making due allowance for this love of country, it cannot be denied that these letters contain valuable and interesting information and we have received many words of commendation for placing this information before the public. In one instance only were we criticized for publishing one of the letters (only one) and we have very charitably attributed this criticism to narrow mindedness through ignorance of the fact that loyalty and love of home and country are common to all nations.

BARONESS VON HIRSCH BASSETT

Died at Whittier Thursday, Dec. 17, 1914, Mrs. Nina Hirsch Bassett, aged 82 years, mother of James E. and Emil H. Bassett.

Mrs. Bassett before her marriage to Capt. Thos. E. Bassett, deceased, was Baroness Von Hirsch. She was born in Christiania, Norway, Sept. 17, 1832. She was a musician and composer of note. Madam Bassett finished her musical education in Paris under Signor Spiratto, the Italian master. She came to America when very young and soon married. Her husband enlisted from Missouri and was quartermaster in General Grant's army.

Mrs. Bassett, though a foreigner, was an American patriot, and at one time during the war gave a concert in St. Louis to raise money to help bury the soldiers who died on the battlefield in her home state, Missouri.

Mrs. Bassett is survived by two sons, James E. Bassett of Casa Verdugo and E. H. Bassett of Los Angeles.

Funeral services at the chapel of the Los Angeles crematory on Saturday morning at 10:30; private.

FIRST SHASTA DAISIES

Jos. Sinton, the man who brought the first Shasta daisies to Pasadena, died at his home in Colorado Springs, Colo., yesterday at the age of ninety-four. He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. G. Frank Otis, who lives in this city at 560 Prescott street, says the Pasadena Daily News.

Sinton was one of the early settlers and came here in 1893. He lived here until 1908, when he moved to the Middle West.

When he first came here Sinton bought four Shasta daisy plants from Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, at a price of $1.50 for each daisy.

It was from this start that Pasadena has the great masses of Shasta daisies that now bloom in many yards here. His fields were on South Los Robles avenue.

Sinton is survived by three sons and a daughter, as well as twelve grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

MT. LASSEN AGAIN ERUPTIVE

Word comes from the vicinity of Mt. Lassen that the mountain is again on a rampage and has literally split open; that steam and smoke are now coming from innumerable vents and fissures and all down the mountain side. Many old settlers who at first laughed at the fear of others, are now making ready to vacate the region immediately adjacent to the mountain. The eruption of Tuesday night lasted more than eight hours, while the one Monday night lasted seven hours. The heavy snow on the peak has been melted off by the heat.

ENTHUSIASM SHOWN

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES BODY TO BE FORMED—FOUNDED ON BUSINESS PRINCIPLES

There was a very fine representation of the different organizations of the valley at the meeting held at the high school auditorium on Thursday evening for the purpose of forming an associated charitable body for Glendale and vicinity.

Dr. E. P. Ryland of Hollywood, who is very closely associated with the associated charities movement in Los Angeles, was present and gave an excellent address along the line of what they are doing in the city and of how they are doing it. After Dr. Ryland's address the meeting was open for discussion by the representatives of the different organizations, and it finally culminated in the appointment of a committee of seven who are to formulate a plan for a central committee, consisting of probably three or five members. This plan, when formed, is to be presented to all the different organizations in Glendale and vicinity and they will be asked to participate, probably by the appointment by each organization of its own committee, which will work in conjunction with the central committee.

The aim of the organization is to get a central body through which all the organizations which have anything to do with charitable work may operate, so as to prevent duplication and also to prevent oversight. This central committee, when appointed, will be a sort of clearing house through which all reports of need will be passed, and then handed out to the organization that may have charge of the district in which the case is located.

Mr. H. L. Howe was chairman of the meeting and the following were appointed to formulate plans and to choose a central committee: Mrs. Charles H. Toll, chairman; Mrs. E. D. Yard, Mr. A. W. Tower, Mr. Ezra Parker, Mrs. John G. Hunchberger, Mr. Thos. Watson and Mrs. Chas. A. Barker.

The sentiment of the meeting was all in harmony and they were unanimous respecting the need of such an organization as is proposed.

MUSIC SECTION EARNS LARGE SUM FOR CHARITY

The benefit concert given Tuesday evening under the auspices of the music section of the Tuesday Afternoon club was a success, not only from a musical standpoint, but also financial, and Mrs. Freeman Kelley, chairman of the section, and her loyal band of members are congratulating themselves on the very tangible evidence of the success of the concert and feel that their work was not in vain, as the amount realized will mean food and clothing to those not otherwise provided for and will bring cheer at Christmas time. The ladies cleared as a result of the benefit $67.60. Twenty-five dollars of this amount was turned over to the philanthropic committee of the club to be used for the Children's hospital. The remainder, $42.60, was given to the chairman of local charities to be used for Glendale's needy.

GREETINGS FROM SICK ROOM

Mrs. Mary Howard Gridley-Braly has been very dangerously ill at her home, 205 North Brand boulevard, for the past three weeks and is still in a very serious condition. She has been threatened with double pneumonia and the danger is not yet past. Mrs. Braly is not able to see her friends, but she wishes to send Christmas greetings to all.

Should she improve rapidly it will be a long time before Mrs. Braly is restored to her usual health, but the physician, nurse and husband, who are constantly at her bedside, are fearful of complications.

If the wishes and prayers of friends are of any avail, this lady will be speedily restored to health.

MEETING OF INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT COMMITTEE

The committee appointed by the board of trustees to consider the matter of an industrial district for Glendale and bring in a report, met this morning at 9 o'clock at the city hall. All members of the committee, which comprises Messrs. Lane, Maxwell, Bentley, Crane, Hall, Litchfield and Watson, were present.

Mayor O. A. Lane was chosen as chairman and City Manager T. W. Watson as secretary. The question was discussed in all its phases and after appointing sub-committees they adjourned to meet again on the morning of December 31 at 9 o'clock, when further information will be available.

BUSINESS AND NEWSPAPERS

Successful business men, especially in the mercantile field, have long since found out that there is not a more paying investment than a well-worded, attractive advertisement in their local paper. The paper goes to the home and is read by each and every member of the family. The ladies, who are constant searchers for "bargains," scan eagerly every advertisement to see what is offered and are ready buyers when appealed to. Long since they learned to look upon the local paper as a friend, and found that they could rely upon its utterances and depend upon its advertisers.

What a wonderful medium the newspaper is for the merchant! Every day it speaks directly to the families in his field and is carefully listened to. A surer, quicker, more effective way of reaching the trade could not be devised. Stop the newspapers and note the effect upon business! Some time ago, through a strike of the pressmen, all the newspapers of Chicago suspended for three days. The bottom of the retail business fell out—there was no business during that period. That was probably the finest tribute ever paid to the newspapers as advertising mediums, and in it there is a world of food for thought to the merchant

This seems a ridiculously late day for discovering that a wife has a legal right to presents given her by her husband. But it has taken the year of our Lord 1914 to bring that decision out of the supreme court of Missouri.—Philadelphia Ledger.

NOTICE OF STREET WORK

Public notice is hereby given that the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale on the 14th day of Dec., 1914, did, at its meeting on said day, adopt a Resolution of Intention, Number 770, to order the following improvement to be made, to-wit:

First: That Eighth Street from a line drawn parallel with and twelve feet Westernly from the Eastern line of Verdugo Road to a point 1012 feet Easterly therefrom, be graded, oiled and macadamized in accordance with Map Number 186, Profile Number 397, and in further accordance with Specifications Number 21 for the paving with crushed rock, screenings and asphaltic oil of streets and avenues in the City of Glendale.

Third: That a cement sidewalk five (5) feet in width be constructed along the south side of Eighth Street from the east line of Verdugo Road to a point 1000 feet Easterly therefrom, in accordance with Map Number 186, Profile Number 397, and in further accordance with Specifications Number 11 for the construction of cement sidewalks in the City of Glendale.

THE CLARIONS TONIGHT

J. W. Huddleson, the giant bass, stands six feet four and one-half inches tall, wears a No. 13 shoe, a No. 20 collar, 7 1/2 hat, weighs 315 pounds and has a voice in proportion. He sings with ease to B-flat below the bass cleff.

Prof. Lough was for seven years at the head of the prohibition forces in Indiana. He is a member of the famous "council of one hundred" and a member of the national prohibition committee, singer, lecturer and an author.

These singers and entertainers will present a very unique entertainment this evening at the Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock. The admission is free and everyone is invited. The entire program is under the direction of the C. E. society of the Presbyterian church.

SATAN'S SERMON

Although this subject appears to be sensational and out of line with those which Bruce Brown has been using for his sermons, you may be sure that it will not prove to be so, but will be taken directly from the Bible and will deal with a purely Bible question. Few, if any, men who have held evangelistic meetings in Glendale have been able to get so many interesting sermons direct from the scriptures, or have been able to present Bible truths in such clearness and helpfulness. This subject for tonight's consideration will be worth much to you and you cannot afford to miss it.

Thursday evening's service was an enthusiastic one and a good audience was present. The chief conclusion which Mr. Brown reached was that we shall certainly know each other in Heaven much better than we do here.

The service for "old folks" has been changed to Lord's day morning, because it has been thought they will be better able to attend than at night.

For Saturday night the evangelist will allow the people to select the subject. It will be one of these two: "Will the Moral Man Stand a Chance for Heaven?" or "A Scriptural Church for Today in Which All Christian People Could Unite Without Sacrificing Principle or Conscience."

Come tonight and tell him which you would prefer to hear.

CLOUD AFFECTS BUSINESS.

Business should be established on such a basis that a cloud hovering about should not affect it. Because today is cloudy is almost assurance that tomorrow will be clear.

Business men who believe in the merits of publicity will not allow the gloominess of today to influence them in advertising their wares for tomorrow's market, fearing that the clouds and rain will keep the looked-for purchasers at home.

Reasoning thus, the Evening News would be very irregular in its publication. A cloudy morning would indicate a rainy afternoon, poor advertising patronage, inconvenience in delivering papers, consequently no paper. That would not be a successful way to conduct a newspaper, nor can a merchant successfully conduct business who hampers his sales by refraining from advertising on account of every little cloud that makes its appearance over the hilltops.

NORTH GLENDALE

Mr. and Mrs. James Chowell, Jr., of 1018 Dryden street are rejoicing over the arrival of the stork, who brought to them a beautiful seven-pound baby girl, little Fannie Louise, Dec. 3, at the Glendale sanitarium. We are very glad to announce that mother and little one are now at home and doing very nicely and the happy parents are receiving the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends.

Mrs. Everette K. Barnes of 1309 North Brand boulevard, who is a member of the Craft Study club of Los Angeles, was among the several who had beautiful specimens of their handwork on exhibition at the Hotel Leighton last Tuesday, which was enjoyed very much by the invited guests and others who are interested in art craft work. Articles on exhibit were of copper, silver, brass and other metals.

Mrs. K. M. Dougall of 1301 Arden avenue was the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. A. King of West Thirty-sixth place, Los Angeles, during the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Rice of 1632 Ruth street are looking forward with pleasure the arrival of Mrs. Rice's uncle, Mr. John Greenlee, from Chatfield, Minn., who with Mrs. Greenlee and daughter, Miss Leah Greenlee, will spend the winter in Southern California visiting relatives in Pomona and other places.

Mrs. W. Glosser of Colorado boulevard was the guest of Mrs. Frank Eichelberger of 241 North Maryland avenue at a prettily appointed luncheon on Thursday.

MOVIES KILL SALOONS

Recently has attention been called to the fact that the moving picture shows take business from the saloon. There has been definite and conclusive observation on the subject, offering resultant data that are interesting, but the fact is of greater significance than the details. An incident in this connection is, however, worthy of specific note. It is said that for this reason and with the added burden of war tax on beer, a number of Chicago saloons have been obliged to go out of business.

It is not alone organized political agitation that is closing the saloon, not by any means. Every saloon patron, for example, who discovers that he can get more for a dime in a moving picture show than he could get for a dollar at his favorite bar, and that in the one case, unlike the other, there are no next morning regrets, becomes an active, though not perhaps a noisy advocate of clapping on the saloon lid.

This is only one among many agencies of education which are constantly at work against the saloon. They are scattered everywhere and concerned with many activities. They multiply as the years pass, and like this of the moving picture show, their appeal is to common sense.

There is no doubt about the affectiveness of that appeal nor about its ultimate outcome. Almost invariably these are shown when an intelligent and judicious effort is made to rid any state of the saloon. That showing will continue until so few saloon states are left that the enactment of nation-wide prohibition will be a mere formality. We may depend upon it, that time hastens to that end.

SALES OVER FARMS

Sylvester R. Rush, special assistant to the United States attorney-general, has returned to Omaha after securing conviction in the federal court of five officers of a company which sold Florida swamp land to thousands of people all over the United States, says an Omaha paper. He sailed about over the Everglades "farms" bought at $24 per acre by several Omahans and thousands from other parts of the country, in a boat, gathering evidence with which, he hopes, as agent of the government, to break up the sale of this land.

More than 20,000 people in the Middle West, including business men and many school teachers and women investors, have bought ten-acre "farms" in the "drained portions" of Florida's Everglades. An agent of the Chambers Land company sold these "farms" to many Omahans, representing that the land would grow the finest crops in the world.

Officers of four corporations organized for the sale of Everglades lands were indicted by a federal grand jury in Kansas City on charges of using the mails to defraud. The first set of these offenders to be tried has just been convicted under the prosecution of the Omaha attorney.

In order to learn whether the Everglades lands really comprised the "Garden of Eden," as represented in mailed circulars, Mr. Rush went to Florida. After three weeks of failing to reach bottom with a pole, he reported that "if the Garden of Eden ever looked like that it must have been during the deluge."

The original promoter of the Everglades business, who is said to have made two million dollars out of the enterprise, is still at large in Florida, although under indictment. Cases against other promoters will be prosecuted by Mr. Rush as rapidly as they can be brought to trial. Seventeen officers of companies are under indictment.

It has been held in court, in a suit to recover, that money is not baggage; and yet the only way to get it out of storage is with your check.

NO HAIR RESTORER

At a seaside resort a woman bather got out of her depth and her screams brought to the rescue one of the boatmen. A few strokes carried him to the spot, and he reached a muscular arm to grip the poor woman, who was just about to sink. But her frantic struggles just at this moment dislodged her bathing cap, which soon floated away, carrying with it, which was more precious, her wig. "Oh, save my hair!" she cried. "Save my hair!" "Madam," replied the galant rescuer, hauling her in, "I am only a life-saver, not a hair-restorer."

MUNSON, THE DRUG MAN

NEW TO HER

A party of Clevelanders entertained some holiday friends recently and having shown them everything interesting in Cleveland proper, they had to take them out to Newburg for a view of the asylum. The superintendent was in a genial frame of mind, and he conducted the bunch personally.

"Here is a queer case, ladies," he said, pausing at a particular cell. "This man has the delusion that he possesses the motive power that runs the universe. He is perfectly harmless, but he actually believes that without him the world would not move. Strange notion, isn't it?"

"Why, not at all," exclaimed one of the women. "My husband has the same idea, and he always has had it. Is he crazy, too?"—From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sally's winning personality overcomes even the gouty, testy old Earl of Bateson, and it is this same winsomeness that attracts the old Earl's son and makes him forgive her raids on the rose gardens of old Annesley.

But it is hard to tell the story in this space—of the adventures of Sally—her trip to the Gypsy Camp, the present of the wishing ring that led to so much trouble and the final triumph of little Sally.

You must see this Photoplay to appreciate it. It has the splendid spirit of "Peg O' My Heart", and the charm of the outdoors so hard to copy on the stage.

PETROGRAD AND CALAIS ARE CELEBRATED CITIES

Pictures of Petrograd, the history of whose laying out is not dissimilar to that of the planning of Washington, and of Calais, the center of the lace-making industry of France. The one is the directing center of the Russian armies and the other the objective of the German armies in the West. These descriptions were prepared by the National Geographic society for its more than three hundred thousand members, many thousands of whom live in the United States.

Petrograd, the city made to the order of Peter the Great to serve as Russia's political capital, is the administrative center of the mightiest of the world's land empires. It is now probably at higher tension than any other city on earth, performing as ever the work necessary to the administration of church and state over vast distances, from the Gulf of Finland to the Black sea, and the far Pacific, and, besides, taking care of a great war business, which includes planning for the defense of more than 30,000 miles of frontier. This 30,000 miles of frontier, of course, does not take into account the vaguely known northern boundary of the Empire.

"Petrograd has always been a high-tension city. It was constructed upon islands and swamp at the behest of a high-tension ruler; built with wide, straight streets upon a perfectly flat country, with no softening natural beauty except that of its dividing Neva, a river that has often been compared to the English Thames. Even the architecture of the city is repressive, almost wholly of sternly chaste classic Roman and Greek. And in this city, the primary business has been that of caring for a vast empire, embracing in its far-reaching sweep many peoples, numerous religions, diverse traditions, a confusion of tongues, and widely varying ideals. The responsibilities of government have held the city's life as tense as when its founder, with 40,000 workmen, drained the Neva swamps and builded over night his capital, hard upon the lands of the Finns.

"The bureaucracy which governs Russia in the names of the Czars, ordering everything in the people's lives, even in the farthest governments, does all of its thinking in Petrograd. From this city, also, the Russian church is administered. Moscow, the ancient capital, is more important economically than Petrograd. Moreover, Moscow has, at least, equal claims as an artistic and intellectual center. And furthermore, Moscow is the center of Russian life and tradition. But, as the symbol of the might of Russia, as the city where the empire's destiny is thought out and directed, as the home of the Czars and consequently of Russian society, Petrograd is easily the first city of the empire.

"Petrograd is the greatest importing center of the empire. A great part of the products of Europe which find their way to the bleak northern plains are entered at the mouth of the Neva, and this despite the fact that the port is ice-bound five months of the year. It has, too, some industry, though its surrounding region is not rich in any of the raw materials of industry. Some 200,000 of its men and women are employed in manufacture, in the machine and iron works, in the shipyards, in the cloth factories, shoe factories and cigar factories, that stand on the outskirts of the city, around the Finland station.

"There is a certain stern beauty in the capital. The broad, arrow-like Nevsky Prospect is fully as interesting as any of the world's famous thoroughfares. It is a business street, some three miles long, lined with shops of average appearance, churches representing Greek, Protestant and Catholic religions, bank buildings, the public library, the Imperial theater, a garden and some dark red palaces. The remarkable diversified life of the remarkable empire flows in a never-ending stream along this avenue. Upon it may be seen the military; members of the capital's student corps of ten thousands or more, from every government, the Finn, Lap, little Russian, Tartan, Lithuanian, Pole, and so on; the government clerk, and members of Russia's highest nobility.

"Calais, which has recently had a world-wide military prominence thrust upon it, has been passed, almost unsuspected, by thousands of tourists, who have given it mere chance consideration as a necessary part of the transition from London to Paris. There is no amusement to speak of in Calais; there are few imposing buildings, and only occasional, unheralded relics of the achievement, effort and romance of the past. But Calais is an important port, a tourists' threshold, a drab and earnest industrial city, continental Europe's nearest harbor to England, a vital key in naval channel maneuvers, the seat of an American consulate which in normal times watches a huge French-American business, and one of the four greatest machine-made lace cities of the world. It is as a center of manufacture of laces that Calais in peace times is most widely noted.

"Calais is a lace town. Almost everything about it has some bearing upon the filmy, delicate webbing which it makes and distributes over the world. Should a tourist miss his Paris express—a thing, by the way, which is most improbable, for the Calais-Paris connections are excellent—and find himself forced to spend some hours in the city, the first thing he remarks is that there seems to be a dozen or more women to every man upon the streets. While, of course, the relative disproportion is nowhere near so great, still girls and women do largely outnumber the men, as the lace industry is continually drawing them from the surrounding country to its factories. Wages in this industry are very low, and many of its operations can be performed as well by young girls as by men.

"The loiterer next notices lace signs everywhere, upon commission houses and factories. Generally the signs appear in three languages—French, German and English. In the spring and autumn he will meet a continual stream of his countrymen, buyers for the big importing houses.

"Of his own free will, however, the traveler seldom stays. He is always willing to leave Calais for most anywhere. There are plenty of self-centered, serious, hustling business towns at home, and there is no occasion for enduring the monotonous twentieth century atmosphere when one is on a pleasure trip. There are, nevertheless, many things worth seeing in the flat, dingy, strictly practical port city. Visits to the great lace factories are well worth while, and usually give one a new reverence for the possibilities of insensible machinery. To see the most intricate patterns mingled in a foam wave of exquisite lace, possibly of several colors, with gold and silver threads, and all this done by a massive complicated piece of machinery, at one end devouring thousands of thread strands and, at the other, giving forth a lace equal to the highest cunning of the human hand, is to witness almost the perfection of man's inventive genius. And then this piece of machinery operates automatically, much like the player-piano.

"Calais shares with Nottingham, England, the honors for the manufacture of machine-woven laces. The other two leading lace towns make what are known as the embroidered and 'burnt out' laces, on entirely different machines. Calais smuggled its industry from England, but it has added to the original English processes and machinery enough to be in position to claim a perfection of its own. Aside from, and beyond, its momentary military interest, Calais has the liveliest interest for the person wide awake to present-day marvels, as a world center of lace production, where all the famed hand-made lace gear are imitated on machines."

VIVIAN MARTIN IN "THE WISHING RING"

Today and tomorrow the Majestic theater will show the first of the Brady & Shubert features. Both evenings and Saturday matinee the bill will be "The Wishing Ring."

Youth is the keynote of the World Film corporation release, "The Wishing Ring," in which Vivian Martin is starred. Every accent of the adolescent mood is brought forth in the photoplay, so that the most hardened spectator feels the atmosphere because of the genius who staged this feature. In this picture of the early Victorian days, there is a romance that is charming without becoming insipid, sweet, without becoming saccharine. The story in brief is concerned with Sally, her father, Giles, his father, the Earl of Bateson and Mr. Annesley, who owns the beautiful garden of roses into which Sally goes for flowers for her father's church. She does not realize that she is trespassing on property, neither does she realize that in going into that garden she was on her way to meet Giles, with whom she later falls in love. Surely their ways approach and though Giles is a hot-headed boy who loves the outdoor and hates to study, he makes it hard for his father to take care of him in his wildness, and it remains for Sally to reconcile father and son and make his father overlook the fact that he had been Mr. Annesley's gardener, for a time. Things end right for everyone concerned and the romance finishes as all romances should, with everyone happy. Yet it is true that this resume limps along and how could it do anything else? Has anyone ever been able to put into black and white the spirit of charm and romance? "The Wishing Ring" is just that and to feel the charm of it one must see the picture.

"GOOD LITTLE DEVIL"

The photoplay arranged for presentation at the Palace-Grand tonight, Saturday matinee and Saturday night is "Good Little Devil," a picture as broad as human nature itself and as deep as the heart of a child. It is a children's drama by children, but as certain books written for and about children count thousands of grown-ups among their devotees, so this picture will enrapture men and women just as much as it will the younger folk. No limitations of creed, birth or nationality can prevent the spectator from laughing and weeping and thinking and profiting while they are watching the showing of a "Good Little Devil." As a dramatization of life by a child, it should help the older ones to renew their youth and become again as little children, to understand the child mind and the child nature, as they have never understood it since they ceased to be children.

"A Good Little Devil" is the world of adults seen through the eyes of a child, a modern fairy tale with all the keen sense of justice and accurate arraignment of human nature that only a child dares to make.

The story is well known. Its hero is a little aristocrat left an orphan. His grandfather, the old lord, sends him to a queer ogre-like aunt who treats him brutally, but he finds a friend, a neighbor child, a little blind girl, whom he helps and who becomes his playmate. Mary Pickford has a role in this picture suited to her genius for delicate pathos. She is well supported by Ernest Truex. The picture is beautifully photographed with some exquisite scenes and is an offering that will fulfill every promise made for the photoplay.

MR. DALE SELLS GARAGE

This morning Mr. C. T. Van Ness took possession of the Brand boulevard garage, which he recently purchased from the Western Garage & Supply Co., which Edward Dale has been conducting for the past three years.

Mr. Dale expects to spend a few months in Nevada and in the spring will go to Nicaragua, where he will be in charge of a large mercantile business.

During the years that Mr. Dale has been in business here he has won the deepest respect of all those with whom he has been associated, for his businesslike methods and frank, upright dealings with all. His withdrawing from business here is a distinct loss to the personnel of Glendale's business men, but he is to be sincerely congratulated upon the splendid opportunity which has come to him from Central America.

Mr. Van Ness has the good wishes of all in his business venture.

CHRISTMAS CANDY RECIPES

Fudge With Nuts

Take two squares grated chocolate and stir into half cup of milk, two cups granulated sugar and one-third cup of syrup; put on fire and add two tablespoons of butter; when chocolate is melted, let cook slowly, stirring once in a while; when mixture makes soft ball in water, it is done (about five minutes actual boiling). Take from fire and add one cup of nut meats and one tablespoonful of vanilla. Beat until it begins to stiffen and pour out quickly on buttered plates. Mark in squares and let harden.

Peppermint Drops

Two cups sugar, a teaspoon essence of peppermint, a quarter teaspoon cream of tartar. Boil the sugar in just water enough to moisten for five minutes. Let it begin to cool; add the cream of tartar, then the essence of peppermint. Beat with wooden spoon until the mixture begins to whiten, then drop on paper and dry in the open air. If it hardens too fast while you are dropping on the paper, set in a pan of warm water.

HORSES AS TOOLS OF WAR

Vast numbers of horses are being killed on the battlefields of Europe. Motor vehicles are used in great numbers, but horses are in demand. Those which are killed must be replaced by fresh horses from time to time, two months being the average length of life of these animals. If the war goes on a year or two longer, thousands and thousands more must be supplied.

Disregarding for the moment all the other and greater agonies of war, agonies suffered by men at the front, by women at home and by children in want—can the sale of American horses to the warring nations be justified?

The United States is forbidden by the rules of the game to sell guns and powder to the nations engaged in slaughter. But horses for the armies are as much a part of war equipment as are guns and powder. Disregarding for the moment the suffering of all these animals, and their annihilation in turn upon the battlefields—the American people may well question whether the sale of horses—and more horses—is justifiable. America lengthens the slaughter by selling horses to Europe.

To be sure there is huge profit to be made. Is it the profit that blinds people's eyes to the merits of this question?

"Why are you so pensive?" he asked. "I'm not pensive," she replied. "But you haven't said a word for twenty minutes!" "Well, I hadn't anything to say." "Don't you ever say anything when you have nothing to say?" "No." "Will you be my wife?"
