SIR:—The papers in the case of Orris A. Bishop, saddler, Company B, 8th Illinois Cavalry, forwarded by you to this office, having been submitted to the Second Comptroller, he decides that "A volunteer discharged to re-enlist as a veteran, under Order No. 191, (dated 25th June, 1863,) is, in effect, only transferred to another organization in the same service, and when finally discharged is entitled to his travel, pay, and allowances to his place of original enrollment, and not to the place where he re-enlisted. The Secretary of War having decided that the transportation to be furnished, under General Order 376, (dated Nov. 21, 1863,) to veteran volunteers going on furlough to and from their respective homes, after discharge from their original enlistment, was designed to be a gratuity, no deduction on account of such transportation will be made from their pay, &c., when they shall be finally discharged, or at any other time."

The papers are herewith returned.

Very respectfully, your ob't servant,
(Signed) B. W. BRICE,
Acting Paymaster General.

The importance of this decision will be realized by the re-enlisted veterans when they are finally discharged, as it will place in their possession at least one million of dollars, if not two millions. Heretofore, they have only received travel pay and allowances to the place where they re-enlisted.

I herewith submit the following report of the Special Relief Work under my charge, for the week ending November 5, 1864.

Number of pay accounts of discharged soldiers taken and recorded, . . . 26

|                                                                                   |            |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Number of claims for back pay, . . .                                              | 55         |
| Number of claims for bounty, . . .                                                | 6          |
| Number of claims for the pay of prisoners of war, . . .                           | 12         |
| Number of naval claims, . . .                                                     | 74         |
| Number of pension claims, . . .                                                   | 26         |
| Number of claims for arrears of pay and bounty, . . .                             | 2          |
| Whole number of claims received and acted upon, . . .                             | 201        |
| Number of pay accounts of discharged soldiers adjusted and money collected, . . . | 27         |
| Number of claims for back pay adjusted, . . .                                     | 38         |
| Number of bounty claims allowed, . . .                                            | 1          |
| Number of claims for the pay of prisoners of war allowed, . . .                   | 6          |
| Number of naval claims allowed, . . .                                             | 30         |
| Number of pension claims allowed, . . .                                           | 18         |
| Whole number of claims and cases adjusted, . . .                                  | 120        |
| Amount collected on the pay accounts of discharged soldiers, . . .                | $4,955 09 |
| Amount of back pay secured, . . .                                                 | 3,026 23   |
| Amount of bounty collected, . . .                                                 | 100 00     |
| Amount of pay collected for the families of prisoners of war, . . .               | 797 12     |
| Amount collected on naval claims, . . .                                           | 2,052 28   |
| Total amount collected, . . .                                                     | 10,730 72  |

EXPENSE ACCOUNT.

|                                                                 |        |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Cash received from the Sanitary Commission and otherwise, . . . | 300 25 |
| Expenditures, . . .                                             | 234 45 |
| Cash on hand, November 5, . . .                                 | 65 80  |

HOMES AND LODGES.

The number of meals given at Lodge No. 4, to soldiers and seamen was 2,980.

There has been quite a large number of seamen accommodated here during the week, while waiting to have their claims for pay and prize money adjusted.

The report of the Alexandria Lodge shows the whole number of soldiers and soldiers' friends admitted since last report to be 146. Number of meals furnished, 243; number of lodgings furnished, 83.

There has been an unusual number of very sick and severely wounded men to take care of temporarily, from the regiments on duty along the line of the Manassas Gap and the Orange and Alexandria Railroads. These men are transferred to hospital with as little delay as possible after reaching the Lodge.

The report from the Soldiers' Home in Baltimore, shows 72 admitted since the last report, including 12 soldiers' friends and 1 refugee. Number of meals given, 363. Number of lodgings furnished, 108.

Since my last report I have employed one man, a discharged soldier, who has been in the service three years, and has lost his left arm. I have now seven discharged soldiers on the pay roll of this office.

During the week ending November 5, a large number of furloughs have been granted to soldiers to go home and vote at the presidential election, transportation being furnished them to and from their homes free of charge. So great has been the rush around the transportation offices, that many were delayed one and two days in getting their transportation; while thus waiting around the doors of the offices, we have prepared coffee and food and carried to them. Those who were lame or too feeble to endure the crowd, we took their furloughs and obtained the transportation for them. They were exceedingly gratified for this kindness.

A WORD TO THE BRANCHES.

You are organized for work. You do work. The history of the war has demonstrated more capacity for work in your machinery, from the several centres to their remotest auxiliaries, than was ever estimated even by yourselves. You have done so much that it is very evident you can do a great deal more. Your very success in the past has given you facilities for greater success in the future. There is more friction, however, than there need be in some of your organizations, but no more than you can remove. Will you permit a brief examination of one of the causes of this friction, and a few suggestions for remedying it?

It is this. There is not always unity of purpose. Preferences are expressed for sending supplies here or there. In large States, like New York and Pennsylvania for example, one portion of the State prefers to act independently of another portion; each desires to be a centre for itself, and to be supplied by constituencies of its, or their own choosing. Little districts are then formed—little independencies—the natural inclination of which is to set up for themselves. This is well, when the centre of the little circle becomes itself tributary to the larger one, but when it does not, evil to the cause must be the consequence. Let managers, corresponding secretaries, and others having control of Branches, see to it that they cultivate the most kindly relations with the more distant places,—associate managers in counties and other officers of societies, and through them to each member and to the community generally. The Pope issues bulls; Bishops, letters; Governors, messages; and Presidents, proclamations. Why not women in charge of Branches issue letters to the associate managers in the several counties within their respective boundaries, and these to the little societies in the several towns of their counties respectively, infusing into all the spirit, work, and plans of the Commission, and asking from all, the freest interchange of thought and effort. Concentrated labor is felt; supplies accumulated, are seen, known, and accounted for; independent effort, to gratify local pride or promote some narrow purpose, fails to do much good.

Union should be the watchword of all the Aid Societies, as it is of all the loyal people and States.

QUESTIONS.

We propose to Associate Managers throughout the country, to adopt a list of questions to be answered by the town and village societies in their respective neighborhoods, and forwarded to the corresponding secretaries of the several branches, as follows:

1. What is the name and location of your society?
2. How many working members has it?
3. How many contributing members?
4. How often does it meet?
5. What is the monthly average of its work?
6. What is its plan for raising money?

7. Is a correct record kept of its receipts of supplies, and of their shipment?

8. What is needed to increase the efficiency of the society?

9. Does it hold public meetings frequently?

10. Do the churches, and the pastors of churches in your neighborhood co-operate with you?

11. What objections are there to your plans among the people of your town or village?

12. What can be relied on for the next three months from your society?

13. What other associations for relief of soldiers exist in your neighborhood?

14. What new societies have been formed, and where are they located?

Questions like these, carefully answered once in three months, and forwarded through the Branches to the Central Office, would furnish material for very valuable statistics, and it is hoped that our various Auxiliaries will do their share in furnishing the desired information.

THE LIFE OF THE COMMISSION.

The United States Sanitary Commission, in its conception, organization, and work, is the expression of a grand idea. That idea is its life. It must grow, as all life does, when not encumbered by extraneous or adventitious hindrances.

Men are called to defend the unity of the nation, and thus exhibit in their humanity the idea of nationality. They belong to the nation. For the time being, they lose their individuality as citizens, and are merged into a common struggle for a common end. They need help, and must have it. The impulse of sympathy for the men causes fountains to open, from which, means of help and comfort flow for humanity's sake. The emotions of love for country excite effort to save life and strengthen arms, for the country's sake. Men and nation are both needed for the cause of free institutions in all the world; for freedom of thought and action seem to be essential to the accomplishment of the Divine purposes towards mankind. This great idea is embodied in these words,—

GOOD WILL TO MEN ;

—the idea that moved God so to love the world as to redeem it—that stirred the hearts of angels to sing, and that has given life and power to Christianity, in all the generous developments of its spirit, in every age; and that is now the motive power of every good work in every branch of Christian enterprise.

The idea is, good will to all men, irrespective of name, class, or locality. State lines are obliterated by the touch of this power. Denominational differences are not thought of, by the mind that is possessed of this idea. It is the life of the Commission. It is its power. It is the life of the people, the power of the nation; and because it is, there can be no disagreement in principle or in purpose, between the Commission and the people.

The animus of the Commission being sound, however, does not imply that its organization is complete, because all human organizations are of necessity imperfect; they are so, because humanity is imperfect. But we claim for the Commission that, notwithstanding its imperfections in form, (and in this respect it has a brotherhood relation to all kindred institutions,) it is nevertheless unequalled in its comprehensive scope of effort, in the simplicity of its plans, in the earnestness of its laborers, in the cheapness of its conduct, and in the magnificent results of its efforts, by any other organization known to men.

AID SOCIETIES.

Take the thousands of Aid Societies that meet week after week throughout the land, their general, harmonious co-operation, the hundreds of thousands of boxes, barrels, and parcels that are flowing into the various Branches in our larger cities in the North and West, from these societies,— think of the thousands of children who are doing their little work, and the hundreds of crippled and aged people in their solitude who are knitting and sewing and praying for the soldier, and for the country; and what is the idea that gives impulse, toil, perseverance, sacrifice to all these? The answer is, good will to our soldiers and to our country. Such is the basis upon which the machinery of the Commission is built.

RAILROADS AND EXPRESS COMPANIES.

Take now the means of transportation all over the country, traversing in all directions to and from our great centres of trade and through our rural districts; examine their books, and it will be found that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been contributed by these corporations and companies, in freight and express charges, that the people may not be embarrassed by even ordinary expenses, in their plans for contributing to the army. Consider these things, and ask, What the motive? where the inducement? The answer is, good will to our soldiers—loyalty to our government.

GOVERNMENT FACILITIES.

Look at the interest manifested by the Government in the care of its sick and wounded. Never did a nation provide so liberally before. The hospital stores were never so abundant, or so varied, in the history of our own, or other lands, as they are at this time. A government was never so earnest to make a soldier's life, as much as possible, like home life. Hospitals, in field and city, never had so many competent surgeons; and soldiers were never better fed in the trenches, or better cared for in hospitals.

Look at the transportation for battle stores allowed in the field, by agencies that are only supplementary to the Government, and the kindly sentiment that prevails among army officials towards the Commission, and ask the question, Why? The answer is, to save men from suffering and death, and to save the nation to itself and its people.

ENCOURAGEMENT.

With such a call from the army, such a noble response from the people, such willingness on the part of the Government, the Commission is constantly assured that, in the great heart of the people, the divine idea that gave it existence, still lives and moves. The people continue to do good deeds, and confident that there can be no failure on their part to furnish contributions, the agencies of the Commission, as they are found in every city, camp, and hospital, will still be employed as reliable instrumentalities for the dispensation of their supplies.

DUTY.

Need it be asked, What is duty? The excitement of the political campaign is at an end. The election is over. The policy of the government is decided. The war will go on till the rebellion is no more. Soldiers will still fall in battle; many more will be in hospital. Thousands who are, and will be permanently disabled, will leave the ranks and return to their homes. What shall be done with, and for them? The Aid Societies are still at work. The Government never was more earnest or bountiful. Societies, companies, corporations—all—who are loyal to the country and who love the right, are conscious of the great responsibility that is upon us as a people, and of the great duty we have to perform. Let us do it nobly—do it with good will, with sacrifice if need be, but do it—work for the sick and wounded, save life for its own sake, save men for the country's sake, do our duty for our own sake, do all for the sake of Him, to whom we must give account.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

BY REV. JOHN A. ANDERSON.

The streets in front of the transportation offices were jammed. The sidewalks leading from thence to the Baltimore depot were jammed. The spacious station-house was jammed. The railings which barred out the crowd from the cars were not half so squeezed together as was the crowd itself; and when the cars were once fortunately gotten into, they were more than jammed. It was a jam-up affair; for hale heroes just from out the trenches before Petersburg, and hearty heroes just from out the columns with which splendid Sheridan has so often whirled Early, were going home by the hundreds and by the more than thousands to vote. In the strength of heroism, and better, in the majesty of simple American citizens, they were, shoulder by shoulder with their old neighbors, to deposit a silent ballot for Lincoln or McClellan as each might will; for though defenders of their country and soldiers, that country had not seen fit to politically ostracise them because thereof; and they voted unrestrainedly, not as soldiers, but as citizens.

But though hale and hearty as hundreds of them were, more thousands were just out of hospital; with hands off, with arms off, with legs off, with faces emaciated by disease and frames terribly burnt out by fevers. Those who were strong, might stand six and ten hours before the quartermaster's windows awaiting an opportunity to present their papers; and those who had limbs might be able to stand as many hours before the railings, and to hustle through the dense mass into the cars. But more than two-thirds of the whole number were either so weakened by disease, or so disabled by wounds, as to render such feats of endurance and vigor impossible.

SOLDIERS GOING HOME.

All day and all night long the stream from City Point, the one from Shenandoah, and the one from the Washington and Alexandria hospitals, would meet and surge against the depot, ere it was permitted to pour along the railways; and in the inevitable delay, many a tottering convalescent was famished for food, and shrouded by chill night.

SOLDIERS' HOME AND LODGE.

Close by the depot was the "Soldiers' Home;" and close by the up town transportation office, was the "Soldier's Lodge" on H street; and not only did the Commission throw wide their doors, but also agents were constantly pressing through the crowds and culling out the weakest and neediest, whom they assisted to tables smoking with well filled dishes, and to beds smiling with cleanliness. From dawn until midnight those tables were never emptied, or, rather, were re-filled as rapidly as emptied, a fact that may be seen from the following extract from the books:—

|         | MEALS.       |              | NIGHT'S LODGINGS. |            |
|---------|--------------|--------------|-------------------|------------|
|         | Home.        | Lodge.       | Home              | Lodge.     |
| Nov. 1, | 1,250        | 1,113        | 394               | 84         |
| 2,      | 1,426        | 390          | 449               | 50         |
| 3,      | 1,284        | 352          | 410               | 70         |
| 4,      | 1,163        | 285          | 336               | 70         |
|         | 5,123 | 2,140 | 1,589      | 274 |
|         | 2,140        |              | 274               |            |
| Total.  | 7,263        |              | 1,863             |            |

Nearly two thousand snug beds to shelterless sick men, and over seven thousand meals to hungry convalescents, may be regarded as good work for two of the Washington special relief institutions in ninety-six hours' time; and the capacity of the Lodge, it will be seen, was far from being fully tested, owing to its distance from the depot.

But this was the smallest part of the comfort actually afforded.

Our wife's hand-bag is somewhat of a nuisance when we go railroading, and doubtless the plethoric knapsack is no small burden and anxiety to sick men who must wait hours in the jam.

CHECKING BAGGAGE.

Between two and three thousand checks were issued to these, their baggage safely stowed, and when desired, re-delivered to the owner.

TRANSPORTATION.

The papers of those who were too feeble or too badly crippled to reach the office, were taken by Sanitary Commission agents to the quartermaster, and transportation secured upon them; when, after a meal or a night's sleep, the poor fellow was helped into a car, nestled down into a seat, and sent on his way rejoicing, to be similarly aided—should aid be needed—by the U. S. Sanitary Commission at Baltimore, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Portland and many other railroad centres.

FEEDING IN THE STREET.

Then, too, numbers far greater than the 7000 above mentioned, were fed in the streets and in the depot; for although many had been two days on the way, eating nothing but hard tack, if that, yet so intense was the longing to push homeward, and so great was the dread lest by leaving the line for a meal the only chance should be lost, that hundreds declined the invitation to enter the buildings; and to these were carried steaming bucketsful of coffee and baskets of soft bread and cold meat.

It seems a little thing to mention the constant streams of water which kept pouring into wash basins and canteens, but thirst and dirt are great annoyances.

Week after week such genuine christianity is being silently practised by the Sanitary Commission. As one looked at the poor fellows who, faint and weary, sat at the edges of the throng, yearning for home, hoping for it, with home for the first time in years a possibility, with the cars that would turn that possibility into a certainty in sight, and yet blocked out as if with granite by that solid mass about the gates, one could not but remember the five porches of Bethesda: "In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water;" and of the impotent man who answered the Saviour:—"Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me in the pool; but while I am coming another steppeth down before me." One need not go to Palestine and to the first century to be a good Samaritan.

The sum total of "aid and comfort" given at these institutions can only be cast up by the recipients; but be it ever so large, it can never approximate to the munificence of generosity with which this loyal people would greet its hero sons, nor to the luxuriance of honor which it would wreath upon the brows of its preservers.

The rush at the "Home" still keeps up, and after election, when these men return, will have to be gone through again.

Washington, November 5, 1864.

HOW THEY DO IN THE NORTH-WEST.

The work of the friends of the soldier in Chicago, the centre of the Sanitary Commission for the North-West, has taken a new impulse, the influence of which is felt even here in the East. The following exhibit of two months work will be read with interest.

The number of packages (i. e., barrels and boxes,) received during the last two months, is 804. The number shipped is 3,297; 2,493 of which have been boxes of purchased supplies, consisting of articles never donated in quantities. The average value of these packages was formerly estimated at $40 per box or barrel, but the increased price of every article of food and clothing now renders $50 a low average estimate for the value of the boxes received. At this estimate, it will be perceived that the value of the sanitary goods donated the Commission during the months of July and August, is $124,650. In addition to this, $26,881.63 worth of supplies have been purchased and forwarded to the front. The Commission has received $49,908.31 in money during the last two months, $40,000 of which was the generous gift of the Northern Iowa Sanitary Fair, held in Dubuque, in June. The whole number of boxes shipped to the hospitals and to the front, from the beginning, is 46,890. Special shipments of supplies have been sent to Memphis, $8,000 worth having been purchased for the occasion. About $18,000 worth have been purchased for Louisville, from whence they were to be re-shipped to the front. About $2,000 worth of supplies have been sent to Kansas, to the brother of old "John Brown," who is the sanitary agent for that district. The Commission expend regularly every week about $4,000 in the purchase of necessaries for our wounded men, and will continue to do so during the present campaign. These purchased supplies, it will always be remembered, consist of articles which are never donated—which can only be obtained with money, and which are absolutely essential to the comfort and recovery of the men—as canned milk, concentrated extract of beef, green tea, crushed sugar, crackers, ale, wines, codfish, etc. It must not be forgotten, that all these purchases and shipments are exclusive of donations of articles which are received day by day, and which in the aggregate amount to ten times as much as the purchased supplies. All through the season, for the last five months, the average shipments of sanitary stores to the front and the hospitals, have been about ten tons daily.

Supplies have been sent to Louisville, Chattanooga, Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Duval's Bluff, Memphis, Vicksburg, Cairo, and to the various hospitals in the vicinity. The Chicago hospitals, and the Chicago Soldiers' Rest, and Home, have drawn on us as they have had need; and we are daily supplying soldiers in transitu, who call at our rooms for help.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF CHILDREN.

The children of Chicago have manifested a very commendable and touching interest in the Sanitary Commission during the last two months. Those living in the West Division of the city have been fairly inoculated with a Sanitary Fair mania, which has had so extensive a run among their elders, and the July and August vacation has yielded the Commission quite a harvest from these little fairs. They have been mostly held in the grassy yards of private houses, under the trees, and have been planned and carried on exclusively by children, from nine to fourteen years of age, who have manifested no little shrewdness in their calculations, and ingenuity in their devices. These fairs have netted the Commission about three hundred dollars in money—a very handsome sum for children to earn during the fierce and torrid holidays.

It was the good fortune of the writer to attend one of these fairs. A boy of fourteen stood at the gate as door-keeper, gravely exacting and receiving the five cents admission fee which was charged. Another little chap of ten perambulated the side-walks for a block or two, carrying a banner inscribed, "SANITARY FAIR FOR THE SOLDIERS," and drumming up customers for his sisters under the trees. "Here's your Sanitary Fair, for sick and wounded soldiers," he shouted, after the fashion of a newsboy; "walk up, ladies and gentlemen, walk up!" Inside the yard, under the trees, from which the national colors depended, the Fair tables were spread, and here sat the little fairy saleswomen, some of the wee ones, in high dining chairs, and all presiding over their wares with a dignity that provoked laughter. Big brothers stood behind them, ostensibly to see that their sisters made change right, but in reality, probably, because they enjoyed the whole affair, for the mimic traders resented any of their interference, stoutly declaring that "they could make change themselves." One of the little gipsies shook back her curls, and lifting her sunny face, announced that "already they'd dot twenty-free dollars," and she wanted to know how much that would buy for the soldiers.

The Fair mania has extended into the country, and the young people of Lemont, Ill., sent $75 to the Sanitary Commission, as the result of their Fair, saying in a note, that "they made terrific charges on the pockets or their fathers, which were completely successful." Since then, the same parties have given a concert, which netted the Commission $40.

A few days ago, a beautiful black-eyed, rosy-cheeked boy ran into the office of the Commission with an eager face, and handed to the treasurer a two-dollar greenback. Said he, "I'm five years old to-day, and my papa div me two dollars to buy nuts and tandy—but I don't want none, and you may div the money to the soldiers." He could hardly wait to be thanked, or kissed, but off he ran to his play. God bless the children! their hearts are in the right place; and to them it is a pleasure to sacrifice and labor for the brave men defending the country.

A NEW METHOD FOR RAISING FUNDS.

When it is remembered that the number of sick and wounded men now in hospital approximates one hundred thousand—that the military campaign is to be conducted to the end with no abatement of vigor—that half a million more men are soon to take the field, to pass through the inevitable sickness of acclimation and camp life—and that the Sanitary Commission has during the last two months disbursed half a million of dollars in money, to say nothing of donated stores, it will be seen that there must be a regular supply of means, which shall be as unintermittent and ample as the demand, or fearful suffering must ensue among the country's brave defenders.

The Sanitary Commission now proposes that an effort be made to obtain from every person in the Northwest the proceeds of one day's labor, one day's profits, or one day's income, for the benefit of the sick and wounded of the army. It asks for the 365th part of the gifts of Providence, for the benefit of the gallant men now preserving them for those at home. It is hoped that this appeal will be answered by the toiling seamstress and daughter of luxury, the hardy day laborer and skillful mechanic, by the millionaire, banker, and lawyer, by the successful merchant and his employés, by the hardy mariner and stalwart yeoman, by the government employé—even by corporate bodies, heretofore said to be destitute of souls. No class will be denied the privilege of uniting with, and none will be oppressed by this thorough and systematic plan.

The various trades, professions, and businesses of this city are already organizing, with a view to obtain from all this voluntary assessment. In many of the country towns there is completed an efficient organization for the carrying out of this purpose. It is recommended that committees of two or three persons should be appointed for every department of business and labor, mercantile, mechanical, agricultural, operative; male and female, old and young. It is hoped that clergymen and Sabbath-schools, as well as business men and associations, will become interested in this plan—that the press may be subsidized in its behalf—that Aid Societies, Loyal Leagues, and Good Templars will take it in hand promptly and energetically. The way to do it is, to ORGANIZE! Organize in your workshops, in your families. Let the men organize. Let the women organize. Let the trades organize. Organize everywhere. Let the workmen give with their employers, the employers with their workmen.

It is easily done. If the workmen will authorize their employers to deduct one day from their week's or month's earnings, and the employers will add to it a day of their profits, the whole will be acknowledged together to the credit of the establishment. We say to all, go to work at once with us in this great work. Hurry forward your contributions. Every acknowledgment will stimulate others to follow your example.

Circulars, with full instructions, will be sent upon application, by mail or otherwise, and letters on the subject will be fully and promptly answered.

Two of the churches of Chicago have already taken the initiative in carrying out this programme: St. James' Church, Rev. Dr. Clarkson, rector; and the first Congregational Church, Rev. Dr. Patton, pastor. Each has paid into the Commission the fifty-second part of its church revenue for a year, on the ground that a church organization has but fifty-two days in its year.

In Palatine, a small town in Cook county, a few miles from Chicago, the Aid Society have assessed a monthly tax on every person in the town, varying from $1 00 to five cents. Collectors are appointed for the nine school districts of the town, whose business it is to collect the sums pledged monthly, and pay them to the Aid Society, and the aggregate will be an amount of between one and two thousand dollars yearly. If every town in the Northwest would follow this example, the Sanitary Commission would have a revenue sufficiently ample for its needs, and every Aid Society would be able to supply itself with all the fabrics it needs for the manufacture of hospital clothing.

THE BASIS OF THE SANITARY AND CHRISTIAN COMMISSIONS OF CHICAGO.

To prevent misapprehension on the part of the public as to the work of these two Commissions among the soldiers, they have jointly decided to state publicly, the basis upon which they stand, as co-laborers in raising and disbursing the supplies necessary to prosecute their work :

1st. These two Commissions have heretofore worked, and intend hereafter to work in harmony, and will assist each other in every way possible.

2d. Both Commissions in this city have studiously endeavored in all their official action, to avoid any approach to rivalry in any of their work, desiring only that such methods of raising and disbursing supplies should be pursued as will with least expense, accomplish the most good to the soldiers, as evidence of which it may be stated, that the Christian Commission have turned over a large proportion of their stores to the Sanitary Commission, and in return have drawn from the Sanitary Commission sanitary supplies to be distributed by the agents of the Christian Commission.

3d. And for the future, it is proposed to the public, by both Commissions so far as their authority extend, that any individuals or societies that may desire the Christian Commission to distribute the stores raised by them, shall mark them "U. S. C. Com. care of N. W. Sanitary Commission of Chicago," and such stores shall be forwarded to the army, to be drawn upon by the Christian Commission, as the wants of the army may require; and all agents of both Commissions, whose business it is to raise money or supplies for either, shall be instructed to inform the public that entire harmony of action exists between the Sanitary and Christian Commissions of Chicago acting for the Northwest.

TO THE CLERGY OF THE NORTH-WEST.

DEAR BROTHERS:—Permit me, as one of your number, and a member, from its organization, of the North-Western Sanitary Commission, to call your attention to the plan now in progress for replenishing its treasury, by the one day's income method. This proposes that every individual, business firm, corporation, and church shall give the net proceeds of one day's business, or the wages of one day's labor, or the amount of one day's income. The plan is simple and feasible; and, when properly presented, by argument and example, is sure to take with all loyal people. Some of the churches in this city have already sent us one Sabbath's income of their pew rental, and the pastors a day's income from their salaries. Many branches of business are following the same example. Will you not propose the matter to your respective congregations, and thus aid the good work of supplying the wants of our sick and wounded soldiers? Allow me, from my thorough acquaintance with the operations of the Sanitary Commission, to bear testimony to the efficiency and economy of its methods. Our system of intelligent, experienced, and permanent agents has proved itself to be most worthy of confidence, guarding against mismanagement and waste, and thus more than saving all its incidental cost. The size of our armies and the severity of the campaigns make unusual demands upon our treasury. May we not rely upon the patriotism of our clergy to sustain us to the end of the war? If they will send to this office, 66 Madison street, Chicago, Ill., circulars for distribution will be forwarded at once, containing all necessary explanations. Subscription lists will also be furnished.

In behalf of the North-Western Sanitary Commission. WM. W. PATTON, Vice President.

A PRAISEWORTHY ENTERPRISE.

Home for the Veterans of the United States Army, and Orphan Asylum for the Children of deceased Soldiers, at Egg Harbor City, N. J.

These Institutions have been endowed with 60 acres of land and the partial proceeds of 500 lots, amounting to $13,000, by the directory of the Gloucester Farm and Town Association of Egg Harbor City. The Retreat will offer to the disabled soldiers of the Republic a happy home, where they can find that care and those comforts which a grateful country wishes them to be provided with. The Orphan Asylum will receive and educate all children of deceased soldiers, in order to make them useful citizens. The Board of Trustees is composed of some of the highest officers in the United States, both civil and military.

As we wish to be enabled to afford admittance to all who may apply, we solicit for the better endowment of the Institutions liberal donations from all who feel an interest in the future welfare of those who are disabled and will be homeless and helpless at the close of the war, and also for the Orphans of our fallen heroes. A Quarterly Report will inform the donors and the public of the progress of the Institution.

The Constitution and By-laws will soon be ready in pamphlet form, and further information respecting the Soldiers' Retreat and Orphans' Home will be cheerfully given by the undersigned. All contributions should be directed to the Treasurer, P. M. WOLSEIFFER, Esq., Egg Harbor City, N. J. By order of the Council of Administration.

The Executive Committee—GEORGE O. GLAVIS, L. BULINGER.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

|                                                                                                                                                         |     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| CORRESPONDENCE.                                                                                                                                         |     |
| From Washington—Mrs. S. Barker.....                                                                                                                     | 801 |
| Between San. and Christian Commissions..                                                                                                                | 811 |
| Rev. J. A. Anderson, (Facts and Figures)...                                                                                                             | 823 |
| From City Point, Va.—Laundries in the Army....                                                                                                          | 810 |
| Dr. McDonald.....                                                                                                                                       | 812 |
| From Camp Parole, Md.—Alma Carey.....                                                                                                                   | 813 |
| Joseph C. Batchelor.....                                                                                                                                | 815 |
| From Annapolis, Md.—George C. Miller.....                                                                                                               | 814 |
| From Chicago, Ill.—Rev. W. W. Patton, (To theClergy of the North-West).....                                                                         | 827 |
| REPORTS                                                                                                                                                 |     |
| From Atlanta, Ga., H. Tone to Dr. J. S. Newberry..                                                                                                      | 802 |
| Memphis, Tenn., B. Woodward, " ..                                                                                                                       | 803 |
| Camp Nelson, Tenn., Thos. Butler, " ..                                                                                                                  | 803 |
| Camp Parole, Md., L. S. Phillips to F. N. Knapp                                                                                                         | 814 |
| New Orleans, La., Dr. G. A. Blake, " 804,                                                                                                               | 816 |
| Annapolis, Md., J. Addison Whittaker, "                                                                                                                 | 815 |
| Washington, D. C., J. B. Abbott, "                                                                                                                      | 818 |
| MISCELLANEOUS                                                                                                                                           |     |
| How the Goods go.....                                                                                                                                   | 804 |
| Three months in the U. S. Sanitary Commission....                                                                                                       | 805 |
| New Agent's Impressions.....                                                                                                                            | 806 |
| Sanitary Commission, (Its Chief Object, Relief De-partment, Great Battles, Special Relief, Cost ofAgents).....                                  | 807 |
| The Commission and Party Politics.....                                                                                                                  | 808 |
| Paying Soldiers' Families.....                                                                                                                          | 808 |
| Hospital Fund, (Its Uses, Expenditure, &c.).....                                                                                                        | 808 |
| Hospital Gardens.....                                                                                                                                   | 809 |
| Where's Jeddah? ..                                                                                                                                      | 810 |
| The Refreshment Stations.....                                                                                                                           | 811 |
| Homes and Lodges.....                                                                                                                                   | 817 |
| Economy of Woolen Underclothing.....                                                                                                                    | 817 |
| How they do in the North-West, (Contributions ofChildren, New Method of Raising Funds, TheBasis of the Sanitary Commission of Chicago)...       | 824 |
| A Praiseworthy Enterprise.....                                                                                                                          | 827 |
| EDITORIAL.                                                                                                                                              |     |
| A Word to Associate Managers.....                                                                                                                       | 811 |
| A Word to the Branches.....                                                                                                                             | 820 |
| Questions.....                                                                                                                                          | 821 |
| The Life of the Commission, (Good Will to Men, AidSocieties, Railroad and Express Companies, Gov-ernment Facilities, Encouragement and Duty)... | 821 |

PROTECTIVE War-Claim Association

OF THE

STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HON. HAMILTON FISK, ADMIRAL DUPONT,
JOHN J. CISCO, Esq., RUD. A. WITTHAUS, Esq.

TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HORS. E. D. MORGAN,   | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, JR., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLOWES, D.D., | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to
HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States.

Its present organization is as follows:

|                                              |                      |
|----------------------------------------------|----------------------|
| H. W. Bellows, D.D.,                         | New York.            |
| A. D. Bache, LL.D.,                          | Washington, D. C.    |
| F. L. Olmsted,                               | California.          |
| George T. Strong, Esq.,                      | New York.            |
| Elisha Harris, M.D.,                         | New York.            |
| W. H. Van Buren, M.D.,                       | New York.            |
| A. E. Shiras, U. S. A.                       |                      |
| R. C. Wood, Assistant Surgeon-Gen'l U. S. A. |                      |
| Wolcott Gibbs, M.D.,                         | New York.            |
| S. G. Howe, M.D.,                            | Boston, Mass.        |
| C. R. Agnew, M.D.,                           | New York.            |
| J. S. Newberry, M.D.,                        | Cleveland, Ohio.     |
| Rt. Rev. T. M. Clarke,                       | Providence, R. I.    |
| Hon. R. W. Burnett,                          | Cincinnati, Ohio.    |
| Hon. Mark Skinner,                           | Chicago, Ill.        |
| Hon. Joseph Holt,                            | Washington, D. C.    |
| Horace Binney, jr.,                          | Philadelphia, Penna. |
| Rev. J. H. Heywood,                          | Louisville, Ky.      |
| J. Huntington Wolcott,                       | Boston, Mass.        |
| Prof. Fairman Rogers,                        | Philadelphia, Penna. |
| C. J. Stillé,                                | Philadelphia, Penna. |
| Ezra B. McCagg,                              | Chicago, Ill.        |

OFFICERS.

|                          |                      |
|--------------------------|----------------------|
| H. W. Bellows, D.D.,     | President.           |
| A. D. Bache, LL.D.,      | Vice-President.      |
| George T. Strong,        | Treasurer.           |
| J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., | General Secretary.   |
| J. S. Newberry, M.D.,    | Associate Secretary. |
| J. H. Douglas, M.D.,     | Associate Secretary. |
| F. N. Knapp,             | Associate Secretary. |

STANDING COMMITTEE.

|                        |                     |
|------------------------|---------------------|
| Henry W. Bellows, D.D. | George T. Strong.   |
| Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. | Wolcott Gibbs, M.D. |
| C. R. Agnew, M.D.      | C. J. Stillé,       |

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies, and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.*CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.
U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.
U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.
U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberue, N. C.
U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.
U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.
Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.*CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Stroug, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

HOSPITAL CARS.

Between Louisville and Chattanooga—Dr. J. P. Barum, Surgeon in charge.

SANITARY STEAMER.

James River—Elizabeth.

BRANCH,
No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,
No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported * * * * * IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME. C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U.S.A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept. 20, 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, SO FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU. Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices. Address

B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D.,
President American Artificial Limb Co.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 173 Lake Street, Chicago.
FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above

OFFICE OF THE
M O R R I S
FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE
COMPANY,
COLUMBIAN BUILDING,
CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

---

Authorized Capital, - - - $5,000,000.

Cash Capital, paid in, - - - $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

DIRECTORS.

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. GAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE
Columbian (Marine) Insurance
COMPANY,
Corner of Wall and Nassau Streets.

---

CASH CAPITAL, - - - - - $1,000,000.

From Statement for the Sixth Fiscal Year, ending December 31, 1863.

|                                                                                                                                                         |                |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------|
| Total Amount of Assets, January 1, 1864.....                                                                                                            | $3,140,930 80 |
| Total Amount of Premiums.....                                                                                                                           | 3,252,256 76   |
| Excess of Earned Premiums over Losses, &c.....                                                                                                          | 1,137,063 33   |
| Reserve for Estimate Claims Unadjusted and other Contingencies....                                                                                      | 441,206 49     |
| Guaranteed Cash Dividend to Dealers, (holding certificates of same) onPaid Premiums Earned during the Year, whether Loss has Accruedor not..... | 269,614 80     |
| Scrip Dividend to Dealers, on Earned Premiums.....                                                                                                      | 15 per cent.   |
| Dividend for the Year to Stockholders.....                                                                                                              | 26 per cent.   |

LOSSES PAID IN GOLD

UPON RISKS ON WHICH THE PREMIUM IS PAID IN LIKE CURRENCY.

DEALERS WITH THIS COMPANY will be allowed the option (to be signified at the time of application for insurance) of receiving in lieu of scrip, at the end of each year, RETURNS IN CASH (guaranteed by certificate) of premiums paid and earned during the year, whether loss accrues or not, upon all new risks under the NEW YORK FORM OF POLICY, as follows:

1st. Upon all VOYAGE Risks upon CARGO, a return of TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT.

2d. Upon VOYAGE Risks upon FREIGHT, a return of TWENTY PER CENT.

3d. Upon TIME Risks upon FREIGHT, and upon VOYAGE and TIME Risks upon HULLS, a return of TEN PER CENT.

Such privilege, however, being confined to persons and firms, the aggregate of whose premiums upon such policies earned and paid during the year, shall amount to the sum of one hundred dollars.

DIRECTORS.

EDWARD ROWE,
 DANIEL W. LORD,
 GEORGE MILN,
 JOHN ATKINSON,
 THOS. A. C. COCHRANE,
 WM. H. HALSEY,
 THOS. BARRON,
 ROLAND G. MITCHELL,
 ALBERT G. LEE,
 GEORGE P. DESHON,
 O. L. NIMS,

M. F. MERICK,
 WM. B. OGDEN,
 JOHN ARMSTRONG,
 B. C. MORRIS,
 ANDREW J. RICH,
 DANL. W. TELLER,
 JOHN D. BATES, Jr.,
 CHARLES HICKOX,
 ROBERT BOWNE,
 LAWRENCE MYERS,
 S. N. DERRICK,

MOSES MERICK,
 DAVID J. ELY,
 JOSEPH MORRISON,
 WM. H. POPHAM,
 B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,
 EZRA NYE,
 HENRY J. CAMMANN,
 THOMAS LORD,
 ROBERT S. HOLT,
 J. B. GRIFFIN.

THOS. LORD, Vice-President.

B. C. MORRIS, President

WM. M. WHITNEY, 2d Vice-President and Secretary.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 27.

PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 1, 1864.

No. 27.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 14,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

BOARD MEETING.

At a quarterly meeting of the Board of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, held in Washington on the 2d ult., many interesting reports were read, from which we extract the following.

They exhibit the work of the Commission in a way that cannot fail to impress every candid reader with a sense of its magnitude and its value.

EXTRACTS OF REPORT OF DR. ALEXANDER McDONALD.

We are continually calling for clothing. Many of the men were without money, having four, five, and in some regiments, seven months' pay due them. They were without clothing, consequently on arriving at hospitals; the old, soiled, and ragged garments were replaced by hospital garments; and on leaving, and often before, the Commission was called upon to furnish new articles of clothing. Food for special diet kitchens was to be furnished, hence the calls for farina, corn starch, milk, canned meats, crackers, &c., &c. The use of the canned meats has been greatly diminished, most of the hospitals have a fund which, in some cases, is being used for hospital purposes; and fresh mutton, beef, oysters, &c., are found in some of the kitchens, thereby rendering the use of canned meats unnecessary. Tomatoes are in continual demand, many who can eat nothing else, will take these; and there are very few who do not relish them. Tea is much called for, and forms a staple article of issue. Men who have been long in the field, have become saturated with coffee, and on reaching a hospital find tea a grateful beverage. The issue of stimulants has been materially diminished.

Requisitions are now only on orders approved by surgeons in charge of brigade; thereby making the brigade surgeon, in a certain degree, responsible for the proper use of such stimulants. Furniture and equipments for hospital use, are not so much needed as during the early part of the season. Most of the hospitals are well furnished, and all that is now needed is stock to replenish worn out material; much of this can be obtained of the medical purveyor. Tin cups, plates, spoons, knives and forks are, and will continue to be, constantly demanded. Few, if any of the sick or wounded, are able to save their plates, cups and spoons, and cannot be supplied from any source but from the Commission.

Reading matter of all kinds is in constant demand, bound books for hospital library, pamphlets and papers for general distribution, and a contribution of daily or weekly papers, of recent date, would add greatly to the comfort of disabled soldiers. Such could be kept in the reading rooms of the various hospitals, within reach of all who choose to read, and would be a valuable acquisition for men from all parts of the country.

Towels and handkerchiefs are genuine comforts. Of course large numbers will constantly be needed, as the men are continually coming in and being discharged; each one needs and should have these articles, in order to secure personal cleanliness.

Games of all kinds tend to relieve the ennui of hospital life, and a liberal supply is often required. The tone of an entire ward has been changed by the "animating strains of a jew's-harp," and many a tedious hour whiled away by means of some simple but interesting game; draughts, puzzles, &c., &c., are a source of relief, and occupy the attention of men who would otherwise lie idle, listless, and home-sick.

FIELD RELIEF.

At each army corps, generally attached to one of the division hospitals, is a field relief station, moving with the army corps, from which station are issued to the men and hospitals such supplies as may from time to time be needed. During a battle, its staff form a flying relief corps, for the purpose of rendering aid to the wounded and surgeons as speedily as possible. Each of these stations is composed of a hospital tent, and a tent, two four horse teams, and two loads of stores; to each are attached two relief agents, two teamsters and a cook. There are at the present time seven such stations in the armies operating before Richmond; though there are but five army corps, the sixth and seventh stations are rendered necessary on account of the peculiar situations of the tenth and eighteenth corps. With the field relief corps is an inspector, Dr. N. C. Stevens, whose reports are forwarded.

THE AUXILIARY RELIEF CORPS

under the superintendence of Mr. F. B. Fay, is intended for work more particularly in hospitals. During an engagement, the agents in the corps go to the field, there prepare and dispense food, dress simple wounds, furnish clothing, assist in the removal of wounded, and do all they can to aid or comfort those so unfortunate as to need such assistance. The reports of Mr. Fay will give details regarding this work, and also show how it is continued at the several corps hospitals after sick and wounded have reached those havens of rest. In this department thirty-five men are now employed, and the work is of great interest, productive of much good to both soldier and agent.

SPECIAL RELIEF

in this army has been conducted by all departments; the field relief corps have supplied needy men in the trenches with such as we could give to make their situation more comfortable. The auxiliary relief corps have attended to the personal wants of those in hospital with a tender care, in some instances more like that of brother for brother, than the regard of strangers. The barges have afforded shelter and food for very many who were "too late for the mail boat," tired out with the exertion made to "get home" and recruit the wasted energies preparatory to another campaign, or returning to the scene of labor before health had been fully established; refugees, men, women and children; sick or disabled soldiers en route to or from their homes, too weak to go further; officers without any other place at which to lodge or eat, compelled to remain over night in order to complete their business; citizens of both sexes, in search of wounded or sick or deceased friends, have been crowded upon us, and we have done the best we could do to aid them. Our sleeping apartments and decks have been crowded, our tables cleaned and refilled; day after day, and night after night have these scenes been enacted, and the succeeding night a similar, yet entirely different crowd of humanity, would be found on the "Sanitary boats." A few applicants have been turned away, but we have generally been able to accommodate all who require our aid.

AT NORFOLK

we have a store-house for supplying the hospitals near Fortress Monroe and Portsmouth. At Portsmouth is a lodge for sick or disabled soldiers, and the friends of those in hospital. This lodge, which is in charge of Mr. John L. Alcock, is a model of cleanliness and regularity. It is conducted on the most economical principle, and is partially supplied by government. Mr. Alcock reports that he furnished during the month of

|                          | Meals. | Lodgings. |
|--------------------------|--------|-----------|
| August, . . . . .        | 1,634  | 541       |
| September, . . . . .     | 1,207  | 418       |
| October 8, for the week, | 153    | 80        |
| “ 15, “                  | 401    | 134       |
| Totals,                  | 3,395  | 1,173     |

during the past 45 days, or an average of 75 $\frac{2}{3}$  meals, 26 $\frac{1}{3}$  lodgings, every 24 hours.

Two agents have lately been sent to Hampton to work in the hospitals, they are provided with tent, cooking utensils and food, and will draw supplies from Norfolk. Mr. A. C. Edmunds is in charge of relief work at and around Fort Monroe. An agent goes on the flag of truce boat between Baltimore and Fort Monroe, and it is our intention to supply this boat regularly at the latter place, instead of, as now, at City Point.

SUPPLY TRAIN.

It has been found that a part of the supply train could be dispensed with, consequently the number of teams has been so reduced as to relieve us of the expense of five drivers and fourteen horses.

ACROSS THE JAMES.

The move across the James river, resulting in the wounding of a large number of men, kept our agents very busy for a time. The crossing at Deep Bottom was made by the tenth corps, which immediately advanced and was soon engaged with the enemy. Our agents and wagons, attached to the corps, had followed to the north bank of the James, where a flying hospital had been established, to which most of the wounded from the tenth and eighteenth corps were forwarded for transfer to boats.

A part of the eighteenth corps having remained in their old position, it was deemed best that extra aid should be sent when needed, to the forces across the James. Accordingly, on the day succeeding the passages of our troops, the tug "Governor Curtin" was loaded with battle-field supplies, and proceeded with a force of relief agents to Deep Bottom, where there was plenty of work for all; the wounded having commenced to arrive before our agents reached there.

THE WOUNDED.

Milk punch was immediately prepared, and was supplied with crackers to all in need. Then water was to be brought, slight wounds to be dressed, clothing to be furnished, and food prepared and distributed. In this work our agents laboured faithfully through the afternoon, night, and late into the succeeding day. During the night a cold rain fell, which continued all the next day; then came a call for stimulants and clothing, for warm drinks and food, all of which were furnished as well as possible; and as the ambulances arrived and unloaded, the men were tended with care, supplied with such material as could be obtained, and made as comfortable as possible, under such circumstances,

Two wagons had been forwarded, one to the eighteenth corps, the other to Deep Bottom. The tug made one or two trips per day, as was necessary. Two extra wagons, loaded with supplies, were sent by land the evening after the battle; and reached Deep Bottom at two A.M. of the succeeding morning, having been on the road all night—during a drenching rain. One wagon was unloaded, and the other held in reserve. A wagon belonging to tenth corps station, was sent front, and all arrangements made for the stations at the front to draw their supplies from Deep Bottom, reserving teams to be sent to the rear, if occasion should require. Almost every day since that time, more or less wounded have been brought in, and placed on transports for transfer to corps hospitals. These men have been fed and assisted by our agents, and the boats supplied when they were in want of such stores as we had.

The station at Deep Bottom has furnished supplies for our agents at the front, the flying hospital, tenth corps field hospitals, and various regiments in the vicinity.

The agents have been well employed, and as there is a probability of the flying hospital, which has been temporarily removed, being re-established at or near our present station, we have deemed it best that things there should remain as at present. The work of the Commission is now so systematized, as to be conducted with considerable regularity and much less labor than formerly; hence a part of the reduction in number of employees and monthly expenses.

Most of the employees have endeavored to perform their duties faithfully, and have shown a disposition to aid the work to the full extent of their ability; for their energy and perseverance they deserve commendation. Accompanying documents are herewith submitted for your perusal. They set forth the past and present condition of each department, together with views and suggestions of each superintendent, and will give in detail statements of the work as it is.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORT OF DR. SWALM, CONTROLLER OF ISSUES.

CITY POINT, Oct. 21, 1864.

On Friday, August 12th, the 2d Corps was loaded on transports and passed down the river, destination unknown.

After dark, and from that until midnight, these transports were steering up the river, and were to land the troops at DEEP BOTTOM.

On the 14th inst., 8 A.M., General Grant and staff left the wharf and proceeded up the James, and a few moments after the Commission tug "Governor Curtin," with supplies and agents, in charge of Dr. Parrish followed. On arriving at Deep Bottom, no tents were yet pitched, no head-quarters established, and the wounded had already been brought in from the picket line, and were lying in the wagons. A temporary depot was established with the ambulance train, and ice, milk, sherry wine, Jamaica rum, condensed lemonade, fans and sponges were issued. The gunboat "Agawam," having lost three men killed and several wounded, such stores as were needed on board were issued. As no wagons were allowed across the pontoon bridge, the tug was of immense value to us, enabling us to be first on the ground and to become established, and be ready for the wounded. Tug returned, was reloaded, and Mr. Fay with some of his agents went up in her. About two hundred and fifty wounded had been brought in, and our agents were hard at work.

ISSUES.

Amount of Goods issued from the Storehouse of the Commission at City Point, Va., from June 18th to Oct. 1st, 1864.

Crackers, 52,851 lbs.
Dried Rusk, 75 lbs., &  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbl.
Porter, 136  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbls., 6 bbls.,
37 bottles.
Ale, 61 bbls., 15  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbls., 140
bottles.
Cheese, 835 lbs., 3 boxes.
Eggs, 1,741 doz., 1 bbl.
Potatoes, 1,810  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbls.
Onions, 3,044  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbls.
Sugar, 25,388  $\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.
Cherry Rum, 1,064 bottles.
Cuts, 14.
Butter, 6,237 lbs.
Milk, 60,771 cans.
Turkey, 12,537 cans.
Chicken, 12,017 cans.
Goose, 102 cans.
Tomatoes, 86,441 cans, 186
galls., 10 boxes, fresh.
Soup and Bouilli, 2,355 cans.
Julien Soup, 359 cans.
Lemons, 1,360  $\frac{1}{2}$  boxes.
Whiskey, 6,265 bottles, 140 gallons.
Morphia, 5 ounces.
Fans, 7,531.
Jamaica Ginger, 16,056 bots.
Slippers, 5,718 pairs.
Shirts, (wool), 35,789.
" (cotton), 4,136.
" (can.flan.), 532.
Drawers, (wool), 24,610 prs.
" (cotton), 3,696 prs.
Socks, (wool), 27,127 pairs.
" (cotton), 1,150 "

Towels, 20,787.
Jamaica Rum, 4,812 bottles,
5 kegs.
Wine Sherry, 7,025 bottles.
Brandy, 4,189 bottles.
Cherry Brandy, 628 bottles.
" Cordial, 98 "
Gin, 480 bottles.
Firm Cocktails, 15 bottles.
Bitters, 53 bottles.
Blackberry Brandy, 1,700
bottles.
Blackberry Cordial, 35 btl.
" Wine, 1,871 "
Tobacco, chewing, 12,448 lb.
" smoking, 8,957  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb.
Domestic Wine, 732 bottles.
Hats and Caps, 1,322.
Air Beds, 5.
Iron Bedsteads, 1.
Camp Kettles, 138.
Pads, 1,437.
Cushions, 246.
Medicine Cups, 233.
" Tubes, 119.
Twine, 4 balls.
Brushes, 18.
Buttons, 1 paper.
Firkins with handles, 2.
Seidlitz Powders, 46 boxes.
Kissengen Water, 40 bottles.
Mosquito Netting, 1,590  $\frac{1}{2}$ pieces.
Stretchers, 108.
Nails, 119  $\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.
Rubber Sheeting, 25 yards,
 $\frac{1}{2}$  roll.
Buckets, 214.
Cologne, 1,533 bots., 4 boxed.
Coats, 104.
Pants, 415 pairs.
Vests, 52.
Dried Beef, 901 lbs.
Pork, 630 lbs.
Canned Meats, 185 cans.
Mattresses, 240.
Tin Dippers, 97.
Pickles, 26,804  $\frac{1}{2}$  galls., 1,213 jars, 601  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbls., 144  $\frac{1}{2}$
kegs.
Pickled Tomatoes, 135 bbls.,
6 galls., 1 keg.
Pickled Onions, 8 bbls.
Army Bread, 8 boxes.
Oranges, 108  $\frac{1}{2}$  boxes, 2 doz.
Rice, 852 lbs.
Sauerkraut, 330  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbls., 22  $\frac{1}{2}$
Kegs.
Bed Sacks, 1,513.
Vegetables, 384 bbls.
Vinegar, 43 galls., 113 bots.
Condensed Lemonade, 3,032
cans.
String Beans, 6  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbls., 81
cans.
Extract Coffee, 228 cans.
Pans, Baking, 22.
Old Linen, 26 bbls., 15 lbs.,
3 boxes.
Chloride Zinc, 18 oz.
Epsom Salts, 3 lbs.
Brooms, 235.
Oat Meal, 292 lbs.
Faucets, 17.
Girouans, 2.
Saws, 5.
Hatchets, 6.
Head Rests, 186.
Pens, 9,418, 4 boxes.
Ink, 2,497 bottles.
Pen Holders, 4,773.
Pencils, 7,818.
Note Books, 36.
Writing Paper, 283,500 abts.
Envelopes, 164,023.
Mock Turtle Soup, 35 cans.
Wrappers, 628.
Veal Soup, 129 cans.
Beef Soup, 1,665 cans.
Vegetable Soup, 442 cans.
Roast Beef, 4,333 cans.
Mutton, 9,857 cans.
Raspberry Vinegar, 213 bots.
Knives, Carving, 34.
Forks, " 81.
Tin Plates, 6,653.
" Cups, 13,739.
Knives and Forks, 2,716.
Spoons, (large), 4,001.
" (small), 2,308
Lemon Syrup, 739 bottles.
Apple Pulp, 4,906 cans.
Steak Broilers, 2.
Toasters, 10.
Soda, 9  $\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.
Gypsum, 3 cans.
Raspberries, 7 cans.
Strawberries, 2,046 cans.
Blackberries, 1,900 "
Cherries, 1,059 " Cranberries, 299 "
Pie Fruit, 186 "
Dried Fruit, 1,888 lbs., 1 bbl.
Raker's Iron, 7.
Canteens, 52.
Campbor, 9 bottles.
Wash Tubs, 26.
" Boards, 10.
Washing Machines, 3.
Clothes Wringers, 9.
" Pins, 300.
Grave Boards, 205.
Spit Cups, 52.
Cider, 403 bbls., 1 bbl.
Port Wine, 13 bottles.
Claret Wine, 41 "
Cauldrons, 9.
Pillow Sacks or Ticks, 596.
" Cases, 2,282.
Sheets, 4,157.
" sheeting, 29 yards.
Blankets, 526.
Flannel, 121 yards.
Quilts, 749.
Rubber Blankets, 10.
Fouches, 2.
Games, 157, and 1 box.
Ginger, Ground, 9 lbs.
Meat Forks, 1.
Water Firkins, 6.
Chambers, 165.
Catsup, 397 bbls., 1 box
Alcohol, 8 bottles
Reading Matter, 39  $\frac{1}{2}$  boxes.
Tongues, 9.
Mustard, 450 lbs.
Beef Stock, 2,429 cans.
Beef a la Mode, 646 cans.
Tapioca, 18 lbs.
Farina, 14,961 lbs.
Corn Starch, 18,382 lbs.
Maizena, 1,441 lbs.
Corn Meal, 5,128 lbs.
Tea, 4,810  $\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.
Coffee, 3,016 lbs.
Peaches, fresh, 172 boxes.
" 12,198 cans.
Canned Fruits, 30 cans.
Pails, 451.
" Tin, 84.
Chloroform, 39 lbs.
Oil Silk, 11 rolls.
Soap, 1,308  $\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.
Handkerchiefs, 36,189.
Cbrocate, 5,636 lbs.
Cocoa, 88 lbs., 2 boxes.
Apples Dried, 506  $\frac{1}{2}$  bbls.
Peaches, Dried, 100 lbs.
Bay Rum, 1,763 bottles.
Shoes, 2,431 pairs.
Haversacks, 9.
Coffee Pots, 241.
Bread, Soft, 7 bbls. 26 loaves.
Salt, 17 boxes, 238 lbs., 96 bags.
Coffee Boiler, 1.
Nutmegs, 201 lbs.
Pepper, Black, 117  $\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.
" Cayenne, 3 lbs.
Cinnamon, 7  $\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.
Spices, 69 lbs.
Nutmeg Graters, 19.
Pigs Feet, 12 kegs.
Tripe, 16 kegs.

Cream Freezers, 7.
 Stools, 3.
 Oil, 1½ gals. 1 can.
 " Cloth, 28 yards.
 Hams, 31½, 19 bbls., 50 lbs.
 Curried Cabbage, 52 bbls.
 Jellies, 1,004 bottles.
 Egg Nogg, 266 "
 Flour, 1,456 lbs.
 Gelatine, 122 lbs.
 Codfish, 3,680 lbs.
 Mackerel, 17 kits, 4 bbls., 50 lbs., 4 kegs.
 Saleratus, 59 lbs.
 Green Corn, 525 cans.
 " Peas, 552 "
 Tea Mugs, 48 "
 Shovels, 3.
 Boiler, 1.
 Apple Brandy, 48 bottles.
 Spoons, 230.
 " Zinc, 3.
 Macaroni, 252 lbs., 1 box.
 Arrow Root, 18 lbs.
 Baskets, 36.
 Stoves, 20.
 Wash Basins, 1,182.
 Camp Chests, 1.
 Bandages, 15½ bbls. 9 boxes.
 Candles, 1,134 lbs.
 Matches, 64 gross.
 Arm Slings, 1,313.
 Lint, patent, 23 rolls, 2 boxes.
 Isinglass Plaster, 33 rolls.
 Adhesive " 6 "
 Crutchees, 2,816 pairs.
 Pins, 350 papers.
 Housewives, 1,667.
 Essence Beef, 87 cans.
 Lanterns, 188.
 Candlesticks, 213.
 Tamarinds, 151½ kegs, 5 bbls. 34 galls., 10 lbs.
 Bed Pans, 232.
 Urinals, 97.
 Spittoons, 98.
 Pipes, 1,080, 43½ boxes.
 Sponges, 2 bbls, 25 lbs., 153 pieces
 Combs, (fine), 2,875.
 " (coarse), 7,372.
 Scissors, 53 pairs.

Sardines, 423 boxes.
 Sardine Openers, 8.
 Pillows, 2,649.
 Blackberry Syrups, 1,274.
 Peas, 481 cans.
 Flavoring Exts., 960 bottles.
 Cork Screws, 21.
 Axes, 3.
 Ring Cushions, 48.
 Straw, 6 bales.
 Thread, 13½ lbs.
 Needles 700, 183 papers.
 Horse Radish, 215 bottles, 2 boxes.
 Gooseberries, 40 cans.
 Grapes, 832 cans.
 Beets, 29½ bbls.
 Turnips, 84 bbls.
 Prunes, 1,063 lbs.
 Blacking, 78 boxes.
 Clams, 50 cans.
 Surgeon's boxes, 8.
 Tobacco Cutter, 1.
 Ligatures, Silk, ½ lb.
 Watermelons, 109.
 Spelling Books, 219.
 Boiled Onions, 775 cans.
 Lard, 4 lbs.
 Mops, 4.
 Mucilage, 5 bottles.
 Condensed Egg, 530 cans.
 Chlorium Acid, 1 bottle.
 Cream Tartar, 4 lbs.
 Cantelopes, 323.
 Camp Chair, 1.
 Bologna Sausage, 1.
 Broma, 1 box.
 Apples, Green, 44 bbls.
 Apple Preserves, 14 cans.
 Apricots, 12 bottles.
 Barley, 25 lbs.
 Corned Beef, 2 bbls.
 Blotting Paper, 1 bunch.
 Bromine, 2 lbs.
 Cabbage, 5,016 heads.
 Deseccated Vegetables, 1 can.
 Havelocks, 29.
 Sweet Potatoes, 24½ bbls.
 Shears, 3.
 Tally books, 6.
 Yeast Powder, 109 cans.

patients, and supply them personally, under direction of the surgeons. They also supply the special diet-kitchens, where all the delicacies are properly prepared.

RELIEF CORPS.

The issues to the front hospitals have also been large, and they are made through the Relief Agents, stationed in every corps. Surgeons and chaplains draw from us for the sick in their own regiments,—the men not sick enough to send to hospital, and yet not well enough for duty. Such are the sources from which the demands have been made upon us; nor do I think they have been large, considering the amount of suffering.

VEGETABLES FOR TROOPS.

After what has been issued to the army, there were still on hand, July 2d, 758 barrels of vegetables, for which transportation was easily procured at General Headquarters, and they were equally distributed among the troops. So this great work went on, and, as fast as the vegetables arrived, they were sent to those for whom they were intended; and up to July 18th, one month after the arrival of the Commissioner at this point, there were issued—

2,497 bbls. potatoes, 1,346 bbls. pickled cucumbers, 355 bbls. sauerkraut, 356 bbls. dried apples, 68 bbls. fresh beans, 58 bbls. beets, 443 bbls. pickled onions, 1,309 bbls. fresh onions, 133 bbls. turnips, 54 bbls. curried cabbage, 132 bbls. assorted vegetables, 6 bbls. fresh peas, 8,930 cabbages.

CEDAR LEVEL.

Still they came, and, from want of room, a vegetable depot had to be established at Cedar Level, of which John Butler, one of our agents, was placed in charge, and the goods were subject to the order of J. Warner Johnson, Superintendent of Relief Corps at the front. Cars were always readily furnished for the transportation of the goods; which acts of kindness were duly appreciated, and were among the many which already existed, and still exist, and which I think are further evidences that the usefulness of the Commission is recognized. By sending the goods to Cedar Level the distribution was greatly facilitated, and several miles of travel for the teams saved.

July 20th the following were sent:—

74 bbls. potatoes, 63 bbls. onions, 27 bbls. green apples, 1 bbl. tomatoes in cans, 10 bbls. cranberries, 53 bbls. pickled cucumbers, 2

This enormous amount of supplies, valued at $403,933, will not astonish, when taking into consideration the number of sick and wounded we have had in the hospitals. In the Base Hospitals alone the number admitted was twenty-two thousand during June, July, August, and September, as follows:

|                  | Sick. | Wounded. | Total. |
|------------------|-------|----------|--------|
| July, . . .      | 1,896 | 1,465    | 3,361  |
| August, . . .    | 7,262 | 4,504    | 11,766 |
| September, . . . | 4,251 | 419      | 4,670  |
| Total, . . . . . |       |          | 19,797 |

The figures for June cannot be obtained, the hospital being established late in the month.

The number, however, is estimated at . . . . . 2,203

---

22,000

AUXILIARY RELIEF CORPS.

The issues to these Base Hospitals are made through the agents of the Auxiliary Corps, who come in direct contact with the bbls. beets, 27 bbls. pickled tomatoes. Total, 257 bbls.

July 22d.—Potatoes, 697 bbls.; onions, 424 bbls.; beets, 157 bbls.; sauerkraut, 1 bbl. Total, 1,279 bbls.

July 23d.—Tomatoes, 780 boxes; potatoes, 67 bbls.; cranberries, 1 bbl.; onions, 32 bbls.; beets, 37 bbls.; tomatoes, 45 bbls. dried apples, 107 bbls. Total, 789 bbls. and 780 boxes.

July 27th.—Onions, fresh, 115 bbls.; pickled tomatoes, 40 bbls.; pickled cucumbers, 6 bbls.; pickled onions, 9 bbls. Total, 170 bbls.

July 30th.—Onions, 319 bbls.

August 2d.—1 case 2 doz. 3 lb. tomatoes; 44 cases 2 doz. 2½ lb. tomatoes; 27 cases 2 doz. 2 lb. tomatoes; 50 bbls. pickles, assorted; 45 bbls. pickles; 6 bbls. onions, pickled; 2 bbls. tomatoes, pickled. Total, 72 cases, 103 bbls.

August 3d.—Pickles, 126 bbls.; onions, 31 bbls.; sauerkraut, 1 bbl.; tomatoes, 3 bbls.; tomatoes, 2,376 lbs.; tomatoes, 324 gals. Total, 161 bbls., 2,376 lbs., 324 gals.

August 5th.—Pickles, 61 bbls.; onions, 250 bbls.; sauerkraut, 24½ bbls. Total, 335½ bbls.

The station at Cedar Level was broken up, and for some time the issue of vegetables was stopped, to a great extent. What were issued during August and September will be found in the table of issues above.

Recapitulation of Issues of Vegetables at Cedar Level.—Potatoes, 3,335 bbls.; pickled cucumbers, 1,637 bbls.; pickled onions, 458 bbls.; fresh onions, 2,543 bbls.; sauerkraut, 381½ bbls.; fresh beans, 68 bbls.; beets, 254 bbls.; tomatoes, in cans, 1 bbl.; tomatoes, 45 bbls.; turnips, 133 bbls.; curried cabbage, 54 bbls.; assorted vegetables, 132 bbls.; fresh peas, 6 bbls.; green apples, 27 bbls.; cranberries, 11 bbls.; pickled tomatoes, 69 bbls.; tomatoes, 852 cases; dried apples, 107 bbls.

The cost of the above is about eighty thousand six hundred and forty-eight dollars, which, in conjunction with the approximated value of the issues in the above table,—viz., four hundred and three thousand nine hundred and thirty-three dollars,—the total aggregate will be about four hundred and eighty-four thousand five hundred and eighty-one (484,581) dollars. The above shows the work of the Commission and the issues to have been very large. The time of year has arrived when the demands upon us for woolen-under clothing will be much larger. We are also on the eve of a great battle, when it will be expected of us to do a great work; and I am happy to state I think we are in such a condition that we will be able to meet any demand that will be made upon us. As regards the imposition that is said to be practised upon us, it cannot be wholly avoided. The surgeon's signature to requisitions is required, and I think but very few misapply the goods. At any rate, it is to be hoped, for the credit due themselves and the profession, it is not carried on to a great extent.

FROM CITY POINT.

BY DR. N. C. STEVENS.

Since my last communication I have been along the trenches and breastworks of our line of defence, from the Appomattox to the extreme left; thence along our flank line to —, on the James river. The appearance of the troops was a matter of special observation. Most of the divisions were encamped along within a few rods of the breastworks; the space between being thoroughly cleared of everything, and daily policed, as were also the various operations of the soldiers. Most of their quarters were very neat, nearly all sleeping on bunks raised from the ground from eight to twenty inches. A very few regiments only slept on the ground—"still in the slough of despond." These were mostly new troops. Some of these regiments have already improved their quarters. The fifth corps occupies an oblong square, through the centre of which the Weldon railroad and the traveled pike run. In making the bed for the railroad, there was left on either side, a deep ditch, in which had grown up low underbush, and which was otherwise filled with material not conducive to health. These places, as well as the borders of the swamp within the lines, were being most thoroughly cleaned; so that they were hardly recognizable. I mention this to show that what was formerly last thought of, is now the first thing to claim the notice of surgeons and others. They say it is easier to keep men well by these attentions, than to cure them of the diseases produced by neglect. Cateris paribus, the longer a soldier has been in the field, the better care he will take of himself; and this will prove true of officers in the care of their men. The general health of the army at this season of the year, was never better. A brigade surgeon told me this morning, that of an effective force of two thousand men, he had only one hundred and one on sick report; and he thought that many other brigades were as favored as his. From my own observation, I think the entire sickness of the army in the field is less than seven per cent. The morale of the army was never better than at present. Our men acquired position and full confidence in the government, and our southern victories make every man feel that he can begin to see the end. You cannot find a soldier who has given three years of hard service, that is willing to have anything but a united, undivided country. It is for that they have fought and bled, and they will never be satisfied with anything short of it.

A. M. SPERRY'S REPORT.

AUXILIARY RELIEF AGENT.

Among special duties, we have given us the making and administering of all stimulating drinks. Nothing is trusted to the nurses or other attendants, relieving the surgeons of much responsibility, and adding to the welfare of the patients.

Since taking up work in the wards, I have always had under my care some man, often more than one, who must have the best care possible, or die. The very sick and the badly wounded are usually sent away, but it often happens that such cannot be moved without danger. For such men I try to care to the best of my ability. Men who will live with ordinary treatment, must yield precedence to men who will not. There are always such to be found, the saddest thing being that while attending to one, others equally deserving must be neglected. To nurse, feed and care for a desperately sick man is no slight task. Yet these must have all this care if they are to recover.

To general duties, attending to minor yet necessary things, the daily rounds, the making of punch, egg nog, etc., the attending to diet, the petty, yet pressing wants of men, the writing of letters, hearing sad stories, comforting, advising and cheering men, add a few such cases as those mentioned, and a day's work is presented that is little less than appalling.

Though to give such constant attention as I have shown ought, and often is given, may be really impossible in every case, such an approximation should be made as the utmost liberality of the people will permit.

We save in a direct saving manner. Nothing here is subject to the dishonesty or selfish caprice of any surgeon, steward, or ward-master. There are no losses between the issuing barge and the patient, or other rightful recipient. Many times no doubt the agent gives indiscreetly, but if he be competent and honest, experience enables him to guard more and more against imposition. Goods kept in our store tents are as free from invasion as if on the issuing barge, and yet much nearer the men. When as at this station, the issues are made directly to the men through no middle parties, there can be no losses. We know where they go. No "surgeon" drinks the liquors, no "officer" gets more than his needs as a sick man requires. "Sanitary" is here "for the soldiers." I might enlarge, but I forbear adding that my own opinion, my own feeling is, that we save many times what we cost, and that personal service is the most efficient means of reaching the soldier, thence his home and the hearts and the purses of the people at home.

The greatest good to the sufferers is the end to be attained. This is the very purpose for which the people give.

Of shirts, drawers, and socks, the demand is very great and our supply very inadequate. Until other means can be used, it is our plain duty to supply as many as possible, and be just in other directions. I would recommend that suspenders be put on the list of regular supplies; also that green tea be furnished in small quantities for special cases. We need crushed sugar in part, instead of all coffee sugar as now furnished. The general condition of our work is flattering; it is generously appreciated, and that appreciation frankly expressed. Concert of action with the hospital authorities is perfect, and mutual confidence exists. With an honorable position clearly defined, we have only to labor and wait for our sure reward.

AN INCIDENT.

The following is from a letter written by a friend who is laboring in Hospital for Colored Troops at City Point.

I have about twenty contrabands who cluster round me like a great family. In the evening I teach some of them their letters, and Sunday evening they come into my tent and we sing and pray, and it is beautiful to see how anxious they are to know the right way. I tell them that they want a religion which will make them good every day, which will keep them from lying, stealing, and being impure, and then I explain these things to them in very simple terms, and they respond with enthusiasm, "Jes so, Miss H.," or "Dat's so, Miss H."

I asked Lizzie the other evening, what the preacher said in the afternoon service? She replied that he said, "dey mus all drink and eat at de sweat of der own eyebrows." It struck me so humorously, I thought I would write it to you.

WASHINGTON.

Amount of Hospital Supplies issued by the U. S. Sanitary Commission at Washington, D. C., during the months of July, August, and September, 1864.

|                              |        |                                |         |
|------------------------------|--------|--------------------------------|---------|
| Air beds.....                | 3      | Coffee, ground, lbs.....       | 1,529   |
| Air pillows.....             | 17     | Condensed milk, lbs.....       | 19,457  |
| Adhesive plaster, rolls..... | 148    | Crackers, lbs.....             | 19,660  |
| Apples, dried, lbs.....      | 198    | Corn starch, lbs.....          | 8,706   |
| Apples, green, bbls.....     | 1      | Corn meal, lbs.....            | 7,012   |
| Arrowroot, lbs.....          | 389    | Cod liver oil, bottles.....    | 8       |
| Alcohol, bottles.....        | 131    | Camphor, lbs.....              | 19      |
| Baskets.....                 | 8      | Chloroform, bottles.....       | 17      |
| Bandages, bbls.....          | 88     | Cream tartar, lbs.....         | 7       |
| Bandage rollers.....         | 6      | Charcoal powder, lbs.....      | 436     |
| Bedsteads.....               | 15     | Cheese, lbs.....               | 50      |
| Bed ticks.....               | 1,351  | Door locks and mats.....       | 16      |
| Bed pans.....                | 187    | Bisulfate of powder, lbs.....  | 75      |
| Blankets.....                | 1,960  | Drawers, cotton, pairs.....    | 13,887  |
| Blankets, rubber.....        | 87     | Dried wool, pairs.....         | 4,668   |
| Brushes.....                 | 188    | Drawn fruit, lbs.....          | 7,965   |
| Brooms.....                  | 40     | Eggs.....                      | 9       |
| Books.....                   | 3,310  | Eggs, dozen.....               | 155     |
| Body bands.....              | 432    | Eggs, desiccated, cans.....    | 149     |
| Buttons, doz.....            | 29     | Eye-glasses.....               | 9       |
| Beef, lbs.....               | 800    | Envelopes.....                 | 188,931 |
| Beef stock, lbs.....         | 4,182  | Fans.....                      | 14,974  |
| Brad, leaves.....            | 1,000  | Faucets.....                   | 4       |
| Butter, lbs.....             | 940    | Filts, dozen.....              | 1       |
| Barley flour, lbs.....       | 125    | Flannel, yards.....            | 42      |
| Bay Rum, bottles.....        | 1,054  | Flaxseed, lbs.....             | 120     |
| Brandy, bottles.....         | 2,762  | Flour, lbs.....                | 87      |
| Bitters, bottles.....        | 21     | Farina, lbs.....               | 2,334   |
| Camp stools.....             | 1      | Flavoring extracts, bbls.....  | 390     |
| Camp kettles.....            | 42     | Games.....                     | 166     |
| Coffee pots.....             | 12     | Gas stoves.....                | 1       |
| Cauldrons.....               | 2      | Ginger, extract, bottles.....  | 4,225   |
| Combs.....                   | 10,338 | Hammers and hatchets.....      | 26      |
| Chairs.....                  | 23     | Halters.....                   | 24      |
| Chairs, rocking.....         | 81     | Hinges.....                    | 12      |
| Chambers.....                | 31     | Head rests.....                | 2,688   |
| Cushions.....                | 3,998  | Head boards.....               | 100     |
| Cushions, rubber.....        | 98     | Horse shoes, kegs.....         | 4       |
| Clocks.....                  | 3      | Herbs, bbl.....                | 15      |
| Corkscrews.....              | 65     | Hops, lbs.....                 | 15      |
| Crutches, pairs.....         | 1,252  | Hams, lbs.....                 | 1,555   |
| Cans.....                    | 166    | Haversacks.....                | 55      |
| Canteens.....                | 33     | Handkerchiefs.....             | 28,865  |
| Causas, sy. fr.....          | 360    | Ice, lbs.....                  | 62,475  |
| Cambric, yards.....          | 455    | Ink, bottles.....              | 330     |
| Cotton batten, lbs.....      | 13     | Inland moss, kegs.....         | 149     |
| Candles, lbs.....            | 375    | Jellies & preserves, jars..... | 1,255   |
| Candiesticks.....            | 186    | Knives and forks, doz.....     | 164     |
| Cups and saucers, doz.....   | 16     | Knives, carving.....           | 3       |
| Clothing, boxes.....         | 2      | Lumber, planed, feet.....      | 2,000   |
| Caps and hats.....           | 330    | Lime, bbls.....                | 46      |
| Coats.....                   | 205    | Lanterns.....                  | 144     |
| Carbonic acid, g. lbs.....   | 10     | Lamps.....                     | 4       |
| Cologne, bottles.....        | 1,064  | Lint, bbls.....                | 126     |
| Condensed elder, lbs.....    | 33     | Life preservers.....           | 118     |
| Condensed meats, lbs.....    | 6,834  | Lemons, boxes.....             | 320     |
| Condensed fruits, lbs.....   | 9,428  | Lard, lbs.....                 | 253     |
| Cond vegetables, lbs.....    | 2,123  | Mattresses.....                | 46      |
| Catsup, bottles.....         | 415    | Matches, gross.....            | 10      |
| Chocolate, lbs.....          | 4,274  | Mucilage, bottles.....         | 2       |
| Coffee, extract, lbs.....    | 727    | Mittens, pairs.....            | 18      |

|                               |       |                              |        |
|-------------------------------|-------|------------------------------|--------|
| Memorandum books.....         | 110   | Spoons, dozen.....           | 174½   |
| Magazines.....                | 1,907 | Sieves.....                  | 2      |
| Medicines, bottles.....       | 33    | Seissors, pairs.....         | 51     |
| Medicine cups.....            | 233   | Stretchers.....              | 29     |
| Medicine chests.....          | 1     | Stings.....                  | 1,909  |
| Morphia, oz.....              | 5     | Sponges, lbs.....            | 306    |
| Mutton tallow, lbs.....       | 35    | Soap, lbs.....               | 755    |
| Molasses, gallons.....        | 68    | Salts, Epsom, lbs.....       | 8      |
| Malt, bushels.....            | 2     | Soda, lbs.....               | 12½    |
| Malt liquor, bottles.....     | 1,288 | Sago, lbs.....               | 23     |
| Malt liquor, gallons.....     | 1,488 | Sugar, lbs.....              | 8,605  |
| Mugs.....                     | 36    | Spices, lbs.....             | 329    |
| Netting, mosquito, pes.....   | 649   | Syrup, bottles.....          | 1,178  |
| Needles, papers.....          | 274   | Sweet Oil, bottles.....      | 14     |
| Needle books.....             | 1,824 | Shall fish, bbls.....        | 390    |
| Neck ties.....                | 316   | Shoes, pairs.....            | 2,431  |
| Nails, lbs.....               | 204   | Slippers, pairs.....         | 7,211  |
| Oil silk, rolls.....          | 96    | Socks, cotton, pairs.....    | 10,113 |
| Oil cloth, yards.....         | 35    | Socks, wool, pairs.....      | 6,757  |
| Oil, kerosene, gallons.....   | 15    | Shirts, wood.....            | 9,758  |
| Old linen, bbls.....          | 303   | Shirts, cotton.....          | 23,544 |
| Onions, bbls.....             | 54    | Suspenders, pairs.....       | 920    |
| Oakum, lbs.....               | 400   | Sheets.....                  | 7,756  |
| Oatmeal, lbs.....             | 1,480 | Spittoons.....               | 199    |
| Oranges, boxes.....           | 41    | Spirit cups.....             | 272    |
| Oysters, pickled, bott's..... | 46    | Spits.....                   | 554    |
| Pails, wooden.....            | 61    | Splints.....                 | 30     |
| Pails, tin.....               | 68    | Towels.....                  | 18,808 |
| Plates, earthenware.....      | 621   | Tin cups.....                | 8,817  |
| Plates, porcelain.....        | 156   | Tin basins.....              | 393    |
| Planks, spruce, feet.....     | 100   | Tumblers.....                | 25     |
| Pitchers.....                 | 13    | Tables.....                  | 2      |
| Poison, bottles.....          | 4     | Teapots.....                 | 29     |
| Pens.....                     | 5,294 | Trusses.....                 | 3      |
| Penholders.....               | 1,238 | Twine, balls.....            | 12     |
| Pencils.....                  | 1,347 | Thread, lbs.....             | 47     |
| Pipes, boxes.....             | 3     | Tracts, box.....             | 1      |
| Pillows.....                  | 2,547 | Tamarinds, gallons.....      | 61     |
| Pillow cases.....             | 5,279 | Tea, lbs.....                | 2,446  |
| Pillow ticks.....             | 888   | Tobacco, lbs.....            | 7,352  |
| Pants, pairs.....             | 218   | Tobacco cutter.....          | 6      |
| Pins, papers.....             | 275   | Urinals.....                 | 115    |
| Pickles, gallons.....         | 1,279 | Vests.....                   | 111    |
| Potatoes, bbls.....           | 46    | Vegetables, bbls.....        | 14     |
| Porok, lbs.....               | 200   | Vinegar, bottles.....        | 227    |
| Quilts.....                   | 1,675 | Wood, cords.....             | 13½    |
| Rubber cloth, yards.....      | 53    | Water coolers.....           | 4      |
| Reading matter, boxes.....    | 30    | Water casks.....             | 4      |
| Rice, lbs.....                | 361   | Water beds.....              | 4      |
| Rum, Jamaica, bottles.....    | 552   | Writing desks.....           | 1      |
| Rum, cherry, bottles.....     | 285   | Writing paper, reams.....    | 340    |
| Sash, window, pairs.....      | 22    | Wrappers.....                | 1,559  |
| Sheet lint, lbs.....          | 96    | Wine, domestic, bott's.....  | 9,288  |
| Syringes.....                 | 7     | Wines, foreign, bottles..... | 4,779  |
| Stoves and furniture.....     | 3     | Whiskey, bottles.....        | 3,770  |
| Stewpans.....                 | 10    | Yams, lbs.....               | 10     |
| Skimmers and dippers.....     | 54    | Yeast powder, cans.....      | 16     |

NEW ORLEANS.

Amount of goods forwarded to New Orleans, during the quarter ending September 30, 1864.

|                              |        |                              |       |
|------------------------------|--------|------------------------------|-------|
| Chambers.....                | 24     | Cotton socks, pairs.....     | 335   |
| Combs, gross.....            | 2      | Fans.....                    | 106   |
| Writing paper, reams.....    | 40     | Cotton, (old) barrels.....   | 4     |
| Envelopes.....               | 20,000 | Cotton, (old) barrels.....   | 4     |
| Pens, gross.....             | 6      | Bandages, bbls.....          | 6     |
| Pen holders, gross.....      | 3      | Lint, barrels.....           | 2     |
| Lead pencils, gross.....     | 6      | Whiskey, bottles.....        | 144   |
| Ink, gross.....              | 1      | " casks.....                 | 7     |
| Bay rum, bottles.....        | 48     | Domestic wine, kegs.....     | 7     |
| Jamaica ginger, bottles..... | 72     | " bottles.....               | 180   |
| Butter, lbs.....             | 406    | Foreign wine, bottles.....   | 4     |
| Corn Starch, lbs.....        | 960    | Brandy, jugs.....            | 1     |
| Farina, lbs.....             | 400    | " bottles.....               | 120   |
| Sago, lbs.....               | 277    | Pickles, jars.....           | 8     |
| Tea, green, lbs.....         | 84     | " kegs.....                  | 42    |
| Sherry wine, bottles.....    | 144    | " casks.....                 | 15    |
| Raspberry wine, bottles..... | 132    | Cheese, lbs.....             | 15    |
| Peaches, cans.....           | 480    | Books and papers, boxes..... | 306   |
| Tomatoes, cans.....          | 480    | Mosquito netting, yds.....   | 450   |
| Linen sacks.....             | 412    | Chocolate, lbs.....          | 108   |
| Pants, pairs.....            | 109    | Condensed milk, lbs.....     | 1,000 |
| Coats.....                   | 109    | Malzena, lbs.....            | 1,000 |
| Vests.....                   | 101    | Crackers, lbs.....           | 1,507 |
| Bed sacks.....               | 1,025  | Beef stock, lbs.....         | 800   |
| Pillow cases.....            | 1,691  | Codfish, lbs.....            | 525   |
| Sheets.....                  | 2,631  | Sugar, white, lbs.....       | 467   |
| Towels.....                  | 1,565  | Coffee, lbs.....             | 137   |
| Handkerchiefs.....           | 4,201  | Quinine, ounces.....         | 10    |

|                           |     |                          |      |
|---------------------------|-----|--------------------------|------|
| Kissingen water, bottles  | 288 | Blankets.....            | 100  |
| Dried apples, barrels...  | 6   | Washbowls.....           | 109  |
| Dried fruit, barrels....  | 13  | Lanterns.....            | 12   |
| Fruit vinegar, bottles... | 280 | Wool socks, pairs.....   | 1733 |
| " " kegs.....             | 1   | Pillows.....             | 219  |
| Cut tobacco, barrels....  | 1   | Cushions.....            | 535  |
| Blackberry cordial, bots. | 205 | Pillow ticks.....        | 442  |
| Onions, barrels.....      | 100 | Cotton drawers, pairs... | 1387 |
| W. W. Vinegar, gallons    | 43  | Cotton shirts.....       | 1590 |
| Tin cups.....             | 300 | Slippers, pairs.....     | 140  |
| Wrappers.....             | 304 |                          |      |

BEAUFORT, S. C.

Amount of goods forwarded to Beaufort, S. C., during the quarter ending September 30, 1864.

|                            |      |                             |     |
|----------------------------|------|-----------------------------|-----|
| Beef stock, lbs.....       | 1200 | Quassa salts, lbs.....      | 1   |
| Oyster crackers, lbs.....  | 1621 | Paregoric, pints.....       | ½   |
| Condensed milk, lbs....    | 450  | Tinct. Opil, oz.....        | 4   |
| Concentrated coffee, lbs.  | 960  | Sulph. Morphia, oz.....     | ½   |
| White sugar, lbs.....      | 456  | Adhesive plaster, rolls..   | 2   |
| Extract of coffee, lbs.... | 5    | Blue mass, oz.....          | 2   |
| Ice, tons.....             | 226  | Calomel, oz.....            | 2   |
| Shoes, pairs.....          | 5    | Dover Powder, oz.....       | 4   |
| Combs.....                 | 6    | Nit. Potassa, oz.....       | 8   |
| Wool socks, pairs.....     | 5    | Cit. Ferri et Quinine, oz.  | 3   |
| Wool drawers, pairs....    | 5    | Gum Arabic, lbs.....        | 1   |
| Onions, barrels.....       | 20   | Blistering Colodion, oz.... | 4   |
| Potatoes, barrels.....     | 20   | Butter, lbs.....            | 89  |
| Potash, lbs.....           | ½    | Cheese, lbs.....            | 45  |
| Rochelle salts, lbs.....   | 2    | Flour, barrels.....         | 1   |
| Epsom salts, lbs.....      | 2    | Fruit, boxes.....           | 1   |
| Cream salts, lbs.....      | 2    | Sheets.....                 | 212 |

NEWBERNE, N. C.

Amount of goods forwarded to Newberne, N. C., during the quarter ending September 30, 1864.

|                          |      |                           |      |
|--------------------------|------|---------------------------|------|
| Blankets.....            | 157  | Sheets.....               | 270  |
| Wool shirts.....         | 588  | Towels.....               | 543  |
| Wool socks, pairs.....   | 504  | Cotton drawers, pairs..   | 470  |
| Condensed milk, lbs....  | 1008 | Cotton shirts.....        | 385  |
| Mazzena, lbs.....        | 400  | Bed sacks.....            | 153  |
| Farina, boxes.....       | 10   | Collars.....              | 78   |
| Ground coffee, lbs.....  | 252  | Handkerchiefs.....        | 1316 |
| Mustard, lbs.....        | 24   | Pickles, kegs.....        | 8    |
| Slippers, pairs.....     | 500  | Bitters, bottles.....     | 24   |
| Adamantine candles, lbs. | 200  | Lint, barrels.....        | 2    |
| Oyster crackers, lbs.... | 780  | Cotton, barrels.....      | 2    |
| Crackers, lbs.....       | 627  | Bandages, barrels.....    | 1    |
| Brandy, bottles.....     | 74   | Sberry, bottles.....      | 2    |
| Lemon syrup, bottles...  | 144  | Sbrub, bottles.....       | 1    |
| Prunes, lbs.....         | 394  | Cider vinegar, bottles... | 2    |
| Codfish, lbs.....        | 200  | Maderia, bottles.....     | 12   |
| Pillows.....             | 334  | Champaigne, bottles...    | 12   |
| Quills.....              | 149  | Claret, bottles.....      | 24   |
| Mattresses.....          | 2    | Brandy cheese, lbs....    | 3    |
| Pillow cases.....        | 314  | Papers and corks, boxes   | 2    |

Special Relief Department.

EXTRACTS FROM J. B. CLARK'S QUARTERLY REPORT, WASHINGTON, D. C.

The number of men who have been received from regiments that were on the way home, having served their time out, is very much larger than at previous times. This is accounted for from the fact that nearly all of the one hundred days' men from Ohio, have passed through this city, within the last two months; and invariably they have had a very large proportion of their number sick; in some of the regiments the surgeons have reported as high as three hundred, out of nine hundred men; in others not more than one hundred. It will thus be seen that nearly one quarter of these men are sick and unfit for duty; showing conclusively, to my mind, that the enlistment of men for a short term of service, is of very little good to the government; not merely from the fact that they are unable to do much duty for the time they are out, but it gives them an idea that all the men in the army are unfit for duty in about this proportion, which is not the fact as we all know. These men are in the field just long enough to get sick from change of habits and food; and going home as they do at this time, do not recognize the fact that a very large proportion would have recovered in a short time and have become acclimated, and would, without doubt, be as hardy men and make as good soldiers as any we have in the army.

These ideas, carried home to the various parts of the country, can but have the effect of keeping not only these men, but others that may be brought in contact with them, from coming into the army if they can in any way avoid it.

The number reported from the "Soldiers' Rest," as sick, are as heretofore, either from new regiments coming out, or men on their way from the hospitals to Camp Distribution. We have had very few men who were here to be examined for commissions in colored regiments, compared with the previous reports; but a large proportion of the number are not in the army, but are young men that have been students of the Military Academy in Philadelphia, and have been sent here by Col. Taggart. There has been a very large number of men who have had their wounds dressed, or have been furnished medicine, that have not been entered on the register. Such cases are either on passes from the various hospitals, on their way home, or returning from home to the hospitals; and have needed this attention without its being necessary to keep them for any length of time.

HOSPITAL VISITING.

MRS. BARKER'S REPORT.

Washington, Monday, October 31, 1864.
—Carried to Harewood two dozen pairs drawers, some woolen gloves, two dozen suspenders, seventy-one slippers. Also gave to Mrs. Moore, the matron of the linen room, three cans peaches, one bottle of tamarinds, one jar currant jelly, one can pine-apples, one bottle bay-rum, two bottles port, and two of sherry wine, for discretionary use.

Tuesday, November 1, 1864.—Visited Harewood as usual in the forenoon, but found that, owing to the rapid call for sanitary clothing among invalids who were sent home on furlough to vote, my supply was insufficient. I came home to get more supplies, and returned in the evening, so as to be ready for the next morning. I was just in time, for our last shirt had been called for.

Wednesday, November 2, 1864.—Finding nothing more important than to look after the disconsolates at Fort Woodbury, whom I left last week feeding on dry bread, tough beef, and salt pork, I expended a few dollars in mutton, potatoes, apples, &c., and carried some of the firkin butter, and also currant jelly. Dinner just came in; and the scene which followed was most gratifying to them and to myself.

Thursday, November 3, 1864.—Thursday forenoon again at Harewood, with some shirts and socks; also with jellies for the wards. A boy at Campbell lies very sick, and nobody seems to know how to care for him. I have had beef-juice prepared at Lodge No. 4 for him, and also sent him some pure brandy.

Friday, November 4, 1864.—Stormy, and staid at home in the forenoon; in the afternoon went to Fort Strong, to inquire after Wm. Wetherbee, of Leominster, in answer to a letter from his aunt. Found him convalescent, and most tenderly cared for by his surgeon, N. B. Dean, of Salem, Mass.

Saturday, November 5, 1864.—Went to Campbell, to carry some beef-juice to the sick boy. Found another man who had just recovered from pneumonia, who had just taken off a flannel shirt to be washed, and had none to put on in its place. Being sure he would take cold, I went back to the store on purpose for a shirt, and he put it on at once. Also visited Camp Barry hospital, with supplies, and gave orders for more.

Nov. 8.—Received $20 Ware Fund from Mr. Hovey. Answered a letter from Mrs. Seymour, concerning effects of Henry W. Faxon, who died at Harewood. Also another letter from Mrs. Lothrop, Vice-President, about Saterlee, who died at Harewood. Visited Harewood with supplies of butter, pickles and blackberry jam.

Nov. 9.—Visited Sherburn Barracks and East Capitol Barracks Hospitals before dinner; divided between them pickles and blackberry jam. Found the men convalescent, mostly up and dressed. Afternoon visited Rush Barracks (Invalid Corps) and drew an order for one dozen woolen drawers.

Nov. 10.—Forenoon at store, Cliffburn and Fry Hospitals, where I carried flannels, stationery, pickles, &c., all ask for vegetables, onions especially. At one Invalid Corps Hospital they have scurvy.

Nov. 11.—Forenoon at Harewood and Campbell, carried more brandy to my sick man at Campbell. He does not know how to get along without it, but he prospers finely. Patients at Harewood gone home to vote, so as to materially thin out the wards.

BY J. B. HOLT.

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
Nov. 12, 1864. }

I have the honor to submit the following report for the week ending Nov. 12, 1864.

Have visited during the week, forts Lyons, Williams, Ward, Albany, Woodbury and Strong. Invalid Corps Hospitals, Freedman's Village, Fairfax Seminary, and twenty hospitals at Alexandria. Have attended to quite a number of cases of Special Relief. * * * Would that the good people of the North could all visit and see how much is needed to make our poor suffering soldiers in hospitals comfortable. Each and all would contribute far more liberally I am confident. Pillow slips and towels are called for and much needed. Bandages and old linen are much called for, and if there should be many wounded sent to our hospitals, there would be very great suffering for the want of such. There is not anything that will be so much needed and relieve so much suffering. The furloughed soldiers are coming back as a general thing much better for the change, and with much better courage.

I trust ere many months shall pass, we shall hear the glad notes of peace, and the calls upon the Commission to minister to the wounded will no more be heard.

EXTRACTS FROM JOURNAL OF MRS. J. B. JOHNSON.

Oct. 1864.—My labors as Hospital Visitor in the month of October, 1864, have, by your directions been confined to Campbell, Douglas and Stanton General Hospitals.

My plan of visiting is; first, to visit and consult the surgeon in charge, and ascertain his views as to the plan of distribution, as well as to obtain permission to visit the various wards. Second, to become acquainted with the soldiers as far as possible in order to comfort them with kind words if they are low spirited or home sick, and to understand their real wants in order to distribute supplies as judiciously as possible.

I have been in every instance kindly treated by the surgeons, who seem to desire the aid of the Commission in its benevolent work; and for me to say, the supplies are thankfully received, is but to repeat what has been so often asserted since the commencement of the war. If the oft repeated "God bless the Sanitary Commission," and other expressions of gratitude from the soldiers could be heard by the members of the "Aid Societies" in the North, I think their energies would be redoubled, and the storehouses of the Commission be filled to overflowing.

* * * I have distributed as follows:—28 pairs drawers, 36 pairs suspenders, 24 night caps, 10 bottles ink, 30 shirts, 60 pairs socks, 30 handkerchiefs, 7 pairs slippers, 12 neckties, 12 bottles jellies, 5 bottles blackberry brandy, 30 needles, 2 wrappers, besides quantities of stationery. All of which I think have been judiciously expended. The many cases of diarrhoea among recent admissions, render the blackberry brandy and syrup very useful.

Report for the week ending Nov. 12, 1864.—* * * On my entrance to the 1st ward, and after making my mission known, I heard exclamations on all sides, such as, "The Sanitary Commission always gives us something that does us good." "They always know what we want." "They are so liberal." "My appetite is poor and I need some jelly," &c.

The demand for woolen shirts and drawers is very great, while in accordance with instructions, I have given only in the most extreme cases.

The following have been supplied:—6 fine combs, 12 pairs suspenders, 4 pairs drawers, 20 pairs socks, (wool), 2 wrappers, 5 pairs slippers, 5 bottles blackberry brandy, 6 woolen shirts, 2 to 3 quires of paper and envelopes, 2 pairs crutches, 6 handkerchiefs.

CAMP PAROLE.

Alma Carey and S. L. Phillips, U. S. Sanitary Commission Lady Visitors at Camp Parole, Md., report as follows:

Since our last weekly record, a large proportion of the patients in this section have been sent home on furloughs; consequently much excitement has prevailed in the wards. While many were rejoicing, in prospect of speedy reunion with loved ones, after long and painful separation; other have been disheartened by delay in receiving furloughs, and many are detained by severe indisposition; yet, as but few have been admitted during the week, the number of inmates have been greatly reduced. But two have died since our last report. One, a man of middle age, after having sent favorable reports to his family, deceased quite suddenly. His wife, who had been apprised of the alarming change, arrived after his interment, but had the consolation of learning that he left pleasing evidence of being prepared for his summons to the Heavenly rest.

The other case, was that of a young lad, homeless and friendless, as far as could be ascertained; but in prison, he had found the only unfailing Friend, and though all-untaught, particularly in divine knowledge, the simple trust, expressed to those about him, gave precious evidence of his adoption into the family of God. And as your agents, with a few Christian friends, at his burial, listened to the sad record, no relatives, they were cheered by the suggestion of the officiating clergyman, that he had found loving kindness in the home of the blessed.

November 11, 1864.

The lapse of another week brings but little apparent change in the current of events here. The wards are being gradually filled again, by the transfer of patients from the camp. Application for aid and supplies have usually been readily met; but some few articles, already noticed in our requisitions, must still be refused the suffering applicants, it having been impossible to procure them. We would mention blackberry wine or cordial, which is frequently prescribed by the physicians, and has been a source of relief and comfort to such as have contracted disease in Southern prisons.

Disease and death are still doing their sad work in this section. After a few days respite, the dread destroyer appeared somewhat suddenly again on Wednesday morning, and removed three more victims to their eternal home. It was a sad sight as, at the burial, the three coffins lay side by side, enveloped by the glorious old flag their lives had been sacrificed to defend, but most comforting to think of the more than mortal honor put upon each by Him who died that they might live, for all, as we believed, had departed in full hope of a glorious immortality. One of these cases, which created much sympathy, was that of a head nurse in one of the wards, who, having long been faithful at his post, was suddenly stricken down by disease and called away, before the wife and little ones he had left in a distant state could be notified of his illness. His last night was spent in prayer for himself and family, and his last words were those of trust in Jesus. Another, who had been long a prisoner, as death drew near, manifested deep anxiety and penitence for sin, at last found peace in believing, and, at his earnest request, received baptism on his dying bed. Another, the fourth who had passed away during the week, had long followed Christ, and died rejoicing in the prospect of the heavenly rest.

In cases like these, how gratifying to your agents to be permitted to smooth the passage to the tomb, by the temporary relief provided through the munificence of the Commission, as well as, by the grace that is in Christ Jesus, to lift the veil, and point to the heavenly mansions prepared for them.

FROM ANNAPOLIS, Md.

BY J. ADDISON WHITAKER.

Two gentlemen came from Philadelphia to obtain the body of a deceased brother. They were directed by Mr. Boardman, of that city, to Mr. Sloan. I put them in the way of obtaining the body, afforded them every facility for disinterring it and bringing it to depot; gave them a ticket to the "Home" for meals, furnished them beds to sleep in in our "Lodge Room," and spent some time in stating what our work was from the time of the arrival of the prisoners till they were ready to return to duty or their homes. I showed them our journal, containing receipts and issues; explained how we welcomed and entertained visiting relatives; how we helped the soldier collect his ration money, back pay, and in case of death, helped the widow, &c. collect her pension, bounty and other money due her, and all free of any expense. How careful we were in the receipt and issue of stores; how difficult it was for us to misuse the stores or funds, and for others to impose on us.

They were delighted and amazed at what to them was all new. They had been told that others did all the work. They had heard all sorts of charges against the Sanitary Commission, and only the Sabbath before, they had discussed the subject in their Sabbath-school. One of the teachers ventured to speak for the Sanitary Commission, but he was met with objections everywhere against it.

They said they were sorry that they had known so little of the good we were doing, and should take the first opportunity of setting forth the truth in regard to our work. They regretted that we did not take more pains to let our work be known. I am glad to say, they left knowing more of the real work than they did before.

Misses Phillips and Cary are faithful and are doing a noble work. Their services are as valuable to us as they are to the soldiers, and their friends visiting them. Their work in that hospital is an illustration of the fact that the Sanitary Commission can attend to the souls of men as well as their bodies.

Of all our work, none meets with more approval than "The Home." From the Matron's report, you will see what a large family we have had this week. Our moving was so quietly and quickly done, that it did not interfere in the least with accommodations to visitors. It has, indeed, been a house of mourning this week. About a dozen came with expectation of administering to those so dear to them; but alas! it was too late. Their only consolation in so great an affliction was found in the pleasant accommodations of the "Home."

I believe our work in this district commends itself to public favor and confidence.

BY J. C. BATCHELOR.

There has been a great deal of excitement in camp this week on account of most of the men going away on furloughs. Between two and three thousand have gone. Not over five hundred are left, altogether. Some of the poor fellows were not fit to go, though they insisted upon it, and must have suffered much while traveling. One case was especially pitiful. A man, I should judge, of forty-five years, wasted away by chronic diarrhœa to almost a skeleton, unable to walk except with assistance, started for the western part of Ohio, without overcoat, blanket, or anything more than his usual clothing to protect him from the inclemency of the weather. Seeing his condition, without saying anything to him, I procured a blanket, and threw it over his shoulders. He was completely confounded, and for a long time could not realize that it was given him. But after he understood it, you should have seen the look of gratitude given me, though he said little, as he was choked by his emotions. He went with the expectation of never returning, saying he was going home to die. To all of the severe cases I gave Jamaica ginger to warm and strengthen them on their journey. Many had no covering for their sore feet, and those I supplied with good warm slippers.

The hospital is now in charge of Surgeon James C. Fisher, U. S. V., with Dr. Wm. St. G. Elliott, as executive officer.

November 12, 1864.

This has been an unusually dull week in camp, there being so few men remaining here; and a greater portion of them having received pay a few days since, needed very little, if any, help from the Commission. * * *

A good share of my time has been spent in Section A, attending to the claims of the soldiers for back pay, bounties, &c. &c. Many of the men have families who are suffering, because their husbands and fathers cannot obtain the funds wherewith to support them.

While conversing with Dr. Fisher, he recommended that woolen nightcaps be furnished the men, for this reason: the wards being ventilated through the roof during the night, the cold wind blows on the heads of the men, and they, to protect themselves, wrap their bed-clothes around their heads, which, of course, is very unhealthy, as they breathe confined air.

Our agents in Section A report all things to be moving on as usual. The wards are gradually filling up, Section D in camp having been changed from hospital to barracks, and all the men removed. * * *

Blackberry wine or cordial is instanced as being ordered by surgeons for diarrhœa cases.

THE HOME.

The following is the report of "The Home" for the week ending November 6, 1864.

|                              |       |
|------------------------------|-------|
| Whole number admitted, . . . | 969   |
| "    "    Lodged, . . .      | 2,070 |
| "    "    Meals, . . .       | 6,547 |

From the following States:—Maine, 109; New Hampshire, 73; Vermont, 20; Massachusetts, 123; Rhode Island, 5; Connecticut, 25; New York, 269; New Jersey, 30; Pennsylvania, 196; Delaware, 2; Maryland, 9; Virginia, 3; Ohio, 17; Illinois, 3; Indiana, 3, Wisconsin, 61; Michigan, 21.

On account of the great number of furloughed soldiers arriving at the Home during the past week, it was impossible to make a record of all their names, and at the same time take care of the baggage. Mr. Wood, the only one assisting, was kept busily employed all the time securing transportation for the feeble and wounded ones, and seeing to their getting on the cars.

The only names taken for four days, were those arriving in the evening, when I had the assistance of Mr. Murray and others.

All were allowed the privileges of the dining room, which was open from a quarter past five in the morning, till half-past eleven at night. In the evening, the most needy were provided with beds as far as they went, and the others the shelter of "The Home."

For the two nights that we made no record, the number lodged was 859. Number of meals given, 2,700; included in the report.

BY GEORGE A. MILLER.

The soldiers have been paid this week, and a great number sent home on furloughs to vote. The anticipation and reception of their pay; then the anticipation, and in some cases, the reception of furloughs, has kept the men in good spirits the past week, so they have thought less than usual of their wants and troubles.

The poor sick fellows seem to enjoy having some one to talk with them, as much as almost anything that can be done for them. They love to tell their experience in the army, and in Dixie. Some of them have suffered everything but death, and are ready and willing to suffer even that now for the salvation of the country.

There is a house near Libby Prison occupied by Union people. At certain times when the rebel officers were out of sight, a young lady would cheer the boys by waving the Union flag in her chamber window. She was finally detected and imprisoned.

It is the opinion of many of our paroled men that there is a strong under-current of Union sentiment in the South, which will show itself as soon as there is an opportunity.

The work of the Commission is going along as usual. Great things are not being done. But that is not the purpose of the Commission. It is to supply those little things which Government does not. Those little things, however, are of great consequence to the soldier. Those tokens of kindness, coming right from the loved ones at home, have a mighty power to sustain and cheer the desponding heart of the noble hero as he lies on his bed suffering from wounds or disease.

BY H. WOOD.

Report of the Home for the Wives and Mothers of Soldiers, for the week ending November 6th, 1864.

|                              |     |
|------------------------------|-----|
| Whole number admitted, . . . | 19  |
| “ “ Lodged, . . .            | 143 |
| “ “ Meals, . . .             | 331 |

BY EDMUND KLOTT.

Report of the Hospital Department of the Home, Washington, D. C., for the week ending November 6th, 1864.

|                                                                     |     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Total number of patients admitted,                                  | 470 |
| Number of permanent patients, who stayed for a day or longer, . . . | 94  |
| Number of transient patients, . . .                                 | 26  |
| “ “ wounds dressed, . . .                                           | 350 |
| <hr/>                                                               |     |
| Total number as above,                                              | 470 |

OUR PRISONERS.

LETTER FROM SURGEON G. L. PALMER.

U. S. A. GENERAL HOSPITAL, DIV. NO. 2, }
ANNAPOLIS, MD., Nov. 12, 1864. }

REV. J. A. WHITAKER,
Supt. U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your kind favor of this date, tendering the aid of the Sanitary Commission, in the anticipation of the arrival of a large number of paroled prisoners, at this place. I have already made requisition upon the medical purveyor, commissary and quartermaster for supplies, which I believe will be enough to meet the emergency. But there are numerous articles of comfort, which soldiers generally purchase with their own money, and as these unfortunate prisoners are always destitute of money, I know they will be glad to accept them from you; and I shall be happy to facilitate their receiving anything to make them comfortable and happy. They will want pens, ink, paper, envelopes, stamps, handkerchiefs, suspenders, towels, pocket knives, &c. I may need for extra dressing, some rags and shirts; and if the weather is very cold, I may need one or two hundred quilts, as these men require about double the clothing necessary for other sick men. I think some pickles will also be needed.

I have the pleasure to inform you that I have received this day, and distributed, forty rocking chairs, purchased with the hundred dollars which you gave me for that purpose last Sabbath.

EXTRACTS FROM THE REPORT OF J. B. ABBOTT, WASHINGTON, D. C.

For week ending November 12, 1864.

I have the honor to submit the following report of the Special Relief work accomplished under my charge, for week ending November 12, 1864.

|                                                                                  |            |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Number of pay accounts of discharged soldiers received for adjustment, . . .     | 32         |
| Number of cases settled, . . .                                                   | 26         |
| Amount collected on the cases settled, . . .                                     | $5,732 46 |
| Number of bounty cases taken, . . .                                              | 6          |
| “ “ “ allowed, . . .                                                             | 3          |
| Amount collected on the bounty cases adjusted and allowed, . . .                 | $275 00   |
| Number of claims of soldiers in General Hospital for back pay received, . . .    | 28         |
| Number of claims adjusted, . . .                                                 | 38         |
| Amount of back pay secured, . . .                                                | $2,730 09 |
| Number of claims for the pay of soldiers who have become prisoners of war, . . . | 13         |
| Number of claims allowed, . . .                                                  | 5          |
| Amt. collected on cases allowed, . . .                                           | $255 80   |
| Number of naval claims filed, . . .                                              | 29         |
| “ “ “ allowed, . . .                                                             | 33         |
| Amount collected on claims, . . .                                                | $3,784 06 |
| Number of pension claims filed, . . .                                            | 27         |
| “ “ “ allowed, . . .                                                             | 1          |
| Number of claims for arrears of pay, &c. filed at 2d Auditors, . . .             | 2          |
| Number of claims allowed, . . .                                                  | 1          |
| Amount collected on claims, . . .                                                | $104 33   |

|                                                           |             |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Aggregate number of claims received and acted upon, . . . | 131         |
| Aggregate number of claims completed, . . .               | 105         |
| Aggregate amount collected, . . .                         | $12,881 74 |

CASH ACCOUNT.

|                                  |         |
|----------------------------------|---------|
| Cash on hand, November 5, . . .  | $65 00 |
| Expenditures, . . .              | $16 00 |
| Cash on hand, November 12, . . . | $49 80 |

The work of the "Homes and Lodges" is considerably larger than last week.

|                                                           |      |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Lodge No. 4 furnished lodgings to soldiers, . . .         | 312  |
| Meals to soldiers, . . .                                  | 1961 |
| Alexandria Lodge furnished lodgings to soldiers, . . .    | 53   |
| Meals to soldiers, . . .                                  | 158  |
| Number of persons of admitted, Sixth street Lodge, . . .  | 107  |
| Furnished food, coffee and stimulants to, . . .           | 195  |
| Home at Baltimore has accommodated during the week, . . . | 60   |
| Classified as follows, Soldiers, . . .                    | 40   |
| Soldiers' friends, . . .                                  | 13   |
| Refugees, . . .                                           | 7    |
| Number of meals given, . . .                              | 335  |
| Number of lodgings furnished, . . .                       | 104  |

At Lodge No. 4, Harrison Town, private Co. G, 61st Regt. N. Y. Vols., died very suddenly about 12 o'clock to-day. He had been home on furlough to vote, and was on his way back to the hospital, Mt. Pleasant. He arrived at the Lodge about 10 A.M., and wished a place to lie down, complaining that he felt quite ill; he was made as comfortable as possible, and rested for an hour or so, when he began to grow worse. I at once sent for a physician, but before he arrived, the poor fellow was dead. He was a fine looking soldier. His body was carried to Mt. Pleasant hospital and deposited in the dead house there. Unfortunately we were unable to obtain the address of his friends from him before he died. I have taken measures, however, to ascertain their address. The cause of his death, the physician stated, was probably heart disease. * * *

Mr. E. B. Cutler I sent yesterday to visit some of the hospitals in New England, to make arrangements to aid the patients in collecting such arrears of pay as they may have due them. Mr. Brown will proceed next week to make similar arrangements at Buffalo, N. Y.

RECORD OF VISITS MADE AT STANTON AND DOUGLAS HOSPITALS.

BY MRS. M. A. C.

Nov. 1, 1864.—To-day I have fairly commenced my winter work. Went this morning to Stanton Hospital, had a pleasant chat with the surgeon in charge, Dr. Wilson, who was willing to have me attend the hospital as "Sanitary visitor." He promised me his assistance in anything I might undertake, which would be of benefit to his men; he took me to the room of the "Sisters of Mercy," who received me kindly, and expressed their pleasure that the U. S. Sanitary Commission had appointed a regular visitor; went entirely through the hospital to-day, including twelve wards; found very few men comparatively, as all who are able have been furloughed, in order that they may go to their respective States to vote.

After taking note of the wants of the men, came home, resolved to do all in my power to administer to their needs, and to show them what the Sanitary Commission is, and what it is able and willing to do for them.

Nov. 2.—This morning made out my requisition and went to the "Office" 244 F street, where it was approved by the Chief Clerk, then proceeded to the Storehouse, hoping to find a goodly supply of the various articles on my list. But, alas! slippers, rags and drawers were among the missing. When will the people at home realize how much we need these things, and send us ENOUGH? However, I filled my baskets with something and started, and happy looked the men, and hearty were their greetings as I entered the wards, even though I was obliged to disappoint them in some of the things they had asked for. After distributing my supplies, went over to Douglas Hospital, directly opposite the Stanton, and had a talk with the Surgeon in charge there. He too, expressed his willingness to help me in my work. Went hastily over the hospital and found very few men, as in Stanton. Took down the wants of these, and came home, feeling cheerful and happy.

Nov. 3.—Went this morning to Douglas, with baskets filled with jellies, tobacco, pickles, suspenders, letter paper, envelopes, &c. As I was standing in one of the wards with my basket by my side, one fellow looked up and said, "I should like a pair of those suspenders, Miss, how much is to pay?" I laughingly told him he was welcome to a pair without paying for them. He looked as if he wondered who I could be, coming there with such a lot of things to give away. I immediately explained to him that the Sanitary Commission furnished these things, and that they were most happy to do it, and left him—I think far more cheerful and hopeful than when I found him, for he then had the consciousness that there were some who, though, strangers cared for him. In the afternoon called at Stanton, found them comfortable.

Nov. 4.—Have spent the day in much the same manner as previous ones.

Nov. 5.—Have been with supplies to Douglas and Stanton hospitals. After distributing clothing, and sundries in the barracks of the former, was walking through the main building looking for bed 176, for whose occupant I had a woolen shirt. Meeting one of the "Sisters," I asked her to direct me to it. "What do you want of bed 176?" said she. I told her, when she turned to me and said, "You have no right to distribute clothing in the wards, Sister Superior says you are to leave nothing with the men excepting tobacco and letter paper." On thinking the matter over quietly at home, I came to the conclusion that the "Sisters" had "no right" to thus dictate to the Commission what they should give the soldiers, and what they should not, and went to the office and asked the Secretary what were his views. He thought as I did, and advised me to go to the Surgeon in charge, which I did, and came away well satisfied with the interview. He gave me authority to do as I pleased, to give the men anything I chose, excepting food and drink. So that cloud has passed and all is sunshine again. Hope I may not feel so unpleasantly any more about such a little thing, must learn to take the world as it comes.

Nov. 6.—Dark, dreary and rainy. Have been unable to make my hospital visits to-day, on account of the rain. Feel as if a long time had elapsed since I have seen my poor soldier boys. Ah! what a pleasant feeling that I can daily, or almost daily be among these poor suffering ones, and be the means, through others, of making them, in a measure, forget their pains and trials. They are doing everything for us, and shall we not do all in our power for them.

Nov. 8.—Still unpleasant, but I have been to Stanton, with baskets of reading matter, find that the men need more books than they can get. Hope the folks at home will not forget this, and will send us fresh supplies soon. Met one of the "Sisters" in the Hall who told me that one of the boys was "running down" for want of pure brandy. He had been taking poor whiskey, and the Doctor had decided that he must have something much better than that, and she, poor woman, was feeling very badly about it, and asked me if I could help her. I thought of the Sanitary Storehouse, but no pure French brandy could I see there. I thought of my money purse, no five or six dollars could I find there. What can I do? passed through my mind. I could see of no way of getting anything, when it flashed across my mind that I could go to the office for advice, where we poor visitors always go, at least I do. So off I went and presented my case to Mr. H—, there. Before I had time to think, he asked the Chief Clerk to get me one of those bottles of French brandy, issued only on special occasions, like the present one. Soon I was on my way rejoicing, and I had the satisfaction of seeing that poor sick soldier's face light up with joy, as he said, "Ah! that will make me live." Wish some one would send us a big case of this real brandy.

Nov. 9.—Have been to both my hospitals to-day, but carried very few things; find shirts in great demand.

Nov. 10.—Went to Stanton for a little while this morning, took down a few wants, but as a general thing they are pretty well supplied for the present. Called at Douglas, and left an overcoat for a little boy, ten years of age, who had his shoulder crushed by a horse lying upon it. He is a bright, intelligent little fellow, and well deserves our sympathy and help.

Nov. 11.—Have been to Douglas, and distributed a few things, and taken down a few wants; found plenty of errands to do for the soldiers. It is a great deal of work to do to go to all parts of the city so often, but I enjoy it, for I know I am doing good. Found one poor fellow nearly gone in consumption, I fear I shall not find him alive to-morrow; I spoke some words of comfort to him, and did an errand for him for which he seemed very grateful. Did not get home until dark, felt tired, very happy and satisfied with my day's work.

Nov. 12.—Have visited both hospitals to-day, and distributed largely of sundries.

Found a few new men, some very sick. The man that was so low yesterday, is still alive; have been able, I trust, to give him some comfort. I feel to-night that the past week has been a pleasant and profitable one.

BOSTON.

OFFICE OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, }
No. 76 Kingston Street, }
Boston, Oct. 20, 1864. }

The report concerning the Special Relief Service of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, in this city, for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1864, exhibits the continually increasing scope and importance of the work, and its equally marked economical and humane results.

Since its organization, April 1, 1863, it has received at its depot, No. 76 Kingston Street, 23,240 soldiers, to whom aid has been administered as follows:

|                                                                |        |
|----------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Furnished transportation, at Government rate, to . . . . .     | 9,623  |
| Furnished transportation, paid by the Commission, . . . . .    | 219    |
| Furnished transportation by U. S. Quartermaster, . . . . .     | 934    |
| Furnished carriage within the city, . . . . .                  | 4,075  |
| Furnished special attendance to their homes, . . . . .         | 100    |
| Furnished lodging, . . . . .                                   | 13,973 |
| Furnished meals (total number of meals, 34,440), . . . . .     | 17,222 |
| Furnished clothing (total number of garments, 1,160) . . . . . | 550    |
| Furnished aid in arranging papers, . . . . .                   | 182    |
| Furnished aid in obtaining pay, . . . . .                      | 226    |
| Furnished medical advice, . . . . .                            | 689    |
| Wounds dressed, . . . . .                                      | 3,178  |
| Sent to hospital, . . . . .                                    | 130    |
| Referred to Local Relief Associations, . . . . .               | 46     |
| Re-enlisted, . . . . .                                         | 27     |
| Deaths, . . . . .                                              | 6      |
| Furnished Undertaker's services, . . . . .                     | 9      |

In addition to the above, the Hospital-Car Service between New York and Boston has been sustained, affording transportation to 11,751 soldiers, and giving as the whole number of soldiers aided, to Sept. 30, 1864, 34,991.

The recipients are apportioned to respective States as follows:

Maine, 9,336; New Hampshire, 1,186; Vermont, 180; Massachusetts, 8,887; Connecticut, 98; Rhode Island, 72; New York, 207; New Jersey, 6; Pennsylvania, 46; Maryland, 6; District of Columbia, 102;

Ohio, 91; Kentucky, 14; Michigan, 10; Indiana, 10; Illinois, 26; Kansas, 7; Iowa, 13; Minnesota, 31; Wisconsin, 24; Missouri, 12; Tennessee, 3; North Carolina, 4; Louisiana, 6; Alabama, 4; Virginia, 2; Georgia, 2; Delaware, 1; California, 1; Mississippi, 1; Florida, 1; Arkansas, 1; U. S. Regulars, 971; U. S. Navy, 203; Veteran Reserve Corps, 535; Corps D'Afrique, 21; Rebel Army, 2.

34,440 meals have been furnished to 17,222 men, an average of two meals each.

9,623 orders for transportation at Government rate have been issued, covering an aggregate of 1,299,935 miles of travel, and resulting in a saving to the soldier of $11,440 86.

Back pay to the amount of $26,528 72 has been collected.

$437 16 has been loaned or given to 250 men, an average of $1 75 each. Of this amount, $165 78, or more than one-third has been returned.

1,160 garments have been given to 550 men, an average of two one-ninth each.

The whole expenditure has been $27,902 87, classified as follows:

|                                    |            |
|------------------------------------|------------|
| Rent and taxes, . . . . .          | $1,037 49 |
| Furnishing and repairs, . . . . .  | 2,829 27   |
| Salaries, . . . . .                | 3,741 75   |
| Travelling expenses, . . . . .     | 257 57     |
| Advertising, . . . . .             | 303 92     |
| Stationery and printing, . . . . . | 1,179 80   |
| Postage, . . . . .                 | 36 00      |
| Telegrams, . . . . .               | 6 64       |
| Hospital stores, . . . . .         | 370 63     |
| Superintendent's expense acct.*    | 15,220 41  |
| Miscellaneous, . . . . .           | 345 07     |
| Hospital-car service, . . . . .    | 2,574 32   |

The average cost per man of the service (including Hospital-Car Service) for successive quarterly periods since its organization, has been as follows:

|                                     |          |
|-------------------------------------|----------|
| First quarter ending June 30, 1863, | $2 35   |
| Second " Sept. 30, 1863,            | 1 28     |
| Third " Dec. 31, 1863,              | 99 15-21 |
| Fourth " March 31, 1864,            | 73 21-44 |
| Fifth " June 30, 1864,              | 68 17-22 |
| Sixth " Sept. 30, 1864,             | 63 1-3   |

The accompanying tabular statements exhibit the comparative results of the service, for successive quarterly periods, from the date of its organization to Sept. 30, 1864.

* Classification of Superintendent's Expense Account.—Transportation, $1,468 62; Travelling expenses, $193 83; Meals, $11,566 51; Furniture, $70 59; Fuel, $157 42; Washing, $778 14; Salaries, $273; Money loaned and given, $420 66; Postage, $23 63; Sundries, $642 92.

For a fuller exhibit of its character and details, reference is made to the Annual Report, copies of which may be obtained at the Office of the Committee.

H. B. ROGERS,
JAMES M. BARNARD,
JOHN S. BLATCHFORD,
J. HUNTINGTON WOLCOTT,
Executive Committee.

CHARLES F. MUDGE,
Superintendent.

Statement, exhibiting the comparative results of the Special Relief Service of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, in Boston, Mass., for successive quarters, from the date of its organization, April 1, 1864, to September 30, 1864.

| Quarterly Periods.                 | Number registered. | Daily average. | Total cost. | Average cost per man. | Average cost of meals. |
|------------------------------------|--------------------|----------------|-------------|-----------------------|------------------------|
| 1st quarter ending June 30, 1863,  | 833                | 9½%            | $1,962.17  | $2.35                | .24 2-5                |
| 2d quarter ending Sept. 30, 1863,  | 2,217              | 24½%           | 2,833.79    | 1.28                  | .25                    |
| 3d quarter ending Dec. 31, 1863,   | 2,685              | 29¾%           | 3,088.53    | 1.15                  | .31 1-2                |
| 4th quarter ending March 31, 1864, | 5,475              | 60¾%           | 5,862.93    | 1.08                  | .31 1-2                |
| 5th quarter ending June 30, 1864,  | 5,416              | 59¾%           | 5,683.37    | 1.04 7-8              | .33 1-2                |
| 6th quarter ending Sept. 30, 1864, | 6,634              | 72¾%           | 5,897.26    | .88 8-9               | .39                    |

Statement, exhibiting the comparative results of the Hospital-Car Service, between New York and Boston, for successive quarters, from the date of its organization, November 2, 1863, to September 30, 1864.

| Quarterly Periods.                     | Number transported. | Total cost. | Average cost per man. |
|----------------------------------------|---------------------|-------------|-----------------------|
| 1st two months, ending Dec. 31, 1863.* | 1,473               | $1,064.33  | .70 1-2               |
| 2d quarter, ending March 31, 1864.     | 3,432               | 666.55      | .19 1-2               |
| 3d quarter, ending June 30, 1864.      | 3,405               | 373.86      | .10 9-10              |
| 4th quarter, ending Sept. 30, 1864.    | 3,441               | 486.79      | .14 1-8               |

Whole number transported, 11,751.

Whole cost, $2,574.32.

Average cost per man, 21 9-10c.

Whole number of soldiers aided (including Hospital-Car Service) to Sept. 30, 1864, 34,991.

Whole expenditure, $27,902 87.

Average cost per man, 79 2-3c.

BY GEORGE A. BLAKE.

NEW ORLEANS, October, 1864.

* * * Everything is working finely in this department. By request of Major

* [The Hospital-Car Service commenced Nov. 2, 1863, and the cost for the two months, ending Dec. 31, 1863, includes expenditure for first outfit of cars.]

General Granger I have sent a large supply of stores to Fort Gaines, under charge of our agent, Mr. Miller, anticipating a concentration of troops in that region. I hope you will hear the announcement before many weeks, that Mobile is ours. * * *

The "Home" is what it should be. Mr. Howes is a capital superintendent. * * *

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

OUR SEMI-ANNUAL REPORT—NO. I.

TO OUR FELLOW-WORKERS:—Our usual semi-annual report is now due. Although our annual report, with its detailed account of supplies and money received and distributed, will be submitted to you next spring, as always, we do not propose to publish our semi-annual report this year. There are several reasons for this. One is the expense of publishing; another is, that the meeting which we held in this city on the 16th November, and to which delegates from all our Soldiers' Aid Societies were invited, assumed the form of a large public semi-annual meeting, the reports presented being not only those of our own Branch for the past six months, but of the work accomplished during that time by the whole Sanitary Commission. Another reason, and perhaps the most potent, for not publishing our usual six months' report, is that henceforth we are to have the privilege of addressing you directly, through the columns, and by every number of the Sanitary Commission Bulletin.

We have often felt the want of some such medium of constant communication, but the space of the New York city papers has always been too valuable to admit anything of this kind, and we have therefore been limited almost entirely to the little we could say through the medium of letter writing.

Our present plan is, by means of the Bulletin, to tell you what our work at the rooms has been during the fortnight; where your supplies have been sent to; what is most wanted. We propose to answer any questions of general interest we may receive from you; to make suggestions for making your work more easy and more effective; to give whatever we have of information or explanation about our work; to say what we can, of encouragement and cheer; to tell you where you and we have failed. We mean to speak very plainly about ourselves and yourselves, without flattery, without fear of giving offence,—as one would speak, in all love and charity, to a tried friend, drawn very close by a common interest in a noble cause, working alongside of you year in, and year out, undaunted either by the magnitude or the length of the task ahead.

Let us hope that our work may soon be over. Let us hope so, because when it ends the war will end. At no other time during these three and a half years—since we have known one another—has the prospect been so bright for our country as now. Let us thank God that it is so. And as we look forward, and feel that we can almost see the gleam of returning peace, let us resolve that the short time we may still have to work together, shall be a season to be looked back upon, through long years of prosperity and peace, as one marked by peculiar devotion to our cause, as one for which we shall have abundant reason to be thankful.

Respectfully and sincerely yours,

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER,

Chairman Committee on Correspondence.

November 9th, 1864.

THE COMMISSION ABROAD.

HANDSOME GIFT TO THE SANITARY COMMISSION FROM HON. ROBERT J. WALKER.

The following letter to Collector Draper, of New York, explains itself:

LONDON, No. 21 COCKSPUR STREET, }
Oct. 22, 1864. }

DEAR SIR:—The Hon. Robert J. Walker has authorized me to ship from London or Liverpool, to your care, for the United States Sanitary Commission, some thirteen or fourteen cases, containing most valuable pictures, etc. These pictures are a present from Mr. Walker to the United States Sanitary Commission.

Very respectfully, yours,

E. C. FISHER,

Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

To Hon. Simeon Draper, Collector, New York.

The pictures presented by Governor Walker to the Sanitary Commission are of the most valuable kind, having been procured by him in his recent European tour, at a cost of over ten thousand dollars in gold. Of course the purpose must be to make these fine works of art produce as much as possible for the Commission, and that most efficient organization will know how to make this large gift available for promoting the health and comfort of our noble army.—Washington Chronicle.

THE ORGANIZATION OF THE COMMISSION.

In the last number of the BULLETIN, a few words on the "Life of the Commission" were presented to the reader. This was stated to be an idea, out of which has sprung a representative in the form of an organization; and like the cell which forms the nucleus of all life—it has been constantly reproducing itself in other organizations, which naturally, and by virtue of an inherent force, are coherent with the primal organism from which they came. The life-force in the original idea has produced a variety of forms of construction, all tending to the same purpose, and auxiliary to the first, through the subordinate branches. That these branches, which exist in our chief cities, and their auxiliaries in the several counties of the States, and in almost every town in all the States not visited by the war, should all be impressed with the idea of the Commission in the same way, is not to be supposed.

In its purity, it knows nothing but the highest good to the entire army, embracing the complete scope of the work in all its departments of inspection, supply, relief, &c., with all the details of each.

In its more limited sense, it comprehends only a part of the great plan. In some localities, the people do not reach the farthest boundaries, or the deepest foundations of the Commission's service, in their conceptions and plans. They may only think of supplies to meet the soldier's wants in the emergencies of battle, not knowing that an inactive army, in the quiet routine of camp life, is really more an object for skilful care and oversight, than an army in motion. In the fighting army, men are wounded and killed, and the quickest and commonest instincts of humanity are all aroused to perform the ministries which are their own natural expression. In the long dreary days and nights of winter, however, with frequent rains and snows, dull ennui languishes about the camp fires, and in the smoky tents, so that the thought is uppermost with the most thoughtful on this subject, how to give a healthy moral tone, and thus preserve a vigorous physical life, to the hundreds of thousands who make up our armies.

Men in hospital who are dragging through lingering fevers, or resisting the exhausting influence of suppurating wounds,—nervous, irritable, and dissatisfied, claim a degree of personal care and moral support, which ordinary nurses, however faithful they may be in the mechanism of their work, are not able to supply.

The Government does not issue a page of reading matter to the army, and the men cannot procure it, except it comes to them from outside sources. The effect of a few pages of cheerful reading upon a discouraged patient, is sometimes a stimulant to his moral nature, just in the sense that stimulating medicine revives the failing pulses of his animal life. All these are questions which claim earnest thought and effort, that are not appreciated by all.

In other places the idea of special relief in some of its varied forms attracts the people, and they lay hold of it as the grand centre around which they will gather their strength and make their contributions. In such instances, the organizations, while they may be complete in themselves, are not in harmony with the spirit and life of the Commission. Concentration in, and diffusion from a common centre is involved in the ideal of our working machinery. Whatever interrupts the concentric flow, disturbs the harmony and impairs the symmetry of the whole; and whatever confines the distribution to sections, or to any limitation short of the entire army, is equally damaging to the completeness of the work. Organizations then, to agree with the idea of the Commission, must be based upon the same principle. Unity in existence,—concentration in effort,—equality in distribution.

The universal acceptance of the animus of the Commission, as the inspiration of all its auxiliary societies, may not yet be, in its full measure; but the time is at hand when the common sense,—the moral sense,—the religious sense—of the people, will accept the declaration as true, that they should acknowledge and practice the same idea, in the matter of their associated benefactions, as they do in their struggle for freedom and unity. That such is not universally the case now, is to be regretted. That States should be clamorous for peculiar privileges for State soldiers; that neighborhoods should be equally energetic for neighborhood soldiers, while the Nation is battling with a rebellion of State and neighborhood interests against national life and integrity, is an anomaly that illustrates, not the intentional disloyalty of the people, but their ignorance of the spirit and magnitude of the issue at stake in the present contest.

The organizations of the Commission then, should demonstrate to all minor and rival associations, the grand idea of unity in their joint labors. One centre, one treasury, one supervision, one purpose should mark the plan; and when it shall be complete, and the necessity for its existence shall have ceased, history will make it one with the Government and with the cause for which the Government called it into being.

The practical thought now suggests itself, that all local societies, all local interests, all homes, lodges, offices and officers, no matter where they may be, that are working in this behalf, should contribute their strength to the central power, and draw as they may need, from it again, to refresh and replenish their own work. Such is the genius of the cause. If branch associations, associate members, relief societies, church circles, social clubs, who work for the soldier, will lay aside local jealousies and harmonize in one purpose, and use one agency for the accomplishment of the unity of the Nation, they will be consistent in their subordinate action, with the high aim of the Government, in the general administration of its power in favor of union.

FROM NEW ORLEANS.

BY GEO. A. BLAKE, M.D.

STEAMER CAHAWBA, Nov. 2, 1864.

I have endeavored to meet the wants of the soldiers on the Florida coast, and have forwarded to them thrice during the past six weeks, shipments of vegetables. Mr. Stevens went in charge of the last lot, about one week ago, (fifty barrels onions and a general assortment of stores). Cheering reports of improvement in the health of the troops, come to me from every quarter. I send you by this mail, the New Orleans Times, containing correspondence from Brasos, which incidentally returns thanks to us for a supply of vegetables. I believe I have tickled the palate of every soldier at every post in the department, excepting Key West and Tortugas, with that succulent and savory vegetable, the onion. And I was glad to learn through you, that Dr. Newberry intended to send me another load.

I have bought no kraut for the troops, having fresh vegetables on hand until yesterday, when Lieutenant Colonel Clarke and the surgeon in charge of his regiment, 1st Michigan heavy artillery, formerly 6th Michigan infantry, stationed at Fort Morgan, made a strong appeal to me, as their men were suffering with scurvy; and I purchased 3 barrels kraut, at $16 per barrel. I shall buy no more unless the call is very urgent, hoping soon to welcome an arrival from Louisville. I purchased before for $8 per barrel; now the lowest price is $16, and two weeks ago sold for $25 per barrel, 40 gallons.

I forward with this, account of stock for 31st ult. In view of the shipment I recently received, and the requisition I forwarded on the 14th ult., I will make no special request for stores by this letter; will simply say that the larger portion of socks that we have on hand are cotton, and the demand for woolen is constant.

Mr. Stevens expected a tent with the last shipment. As it is something I know nothing about, will let him acquaint you.

FROM HILTON HEAD.

BY L. O. BEEBE.

STEAMER NORTHERN LIGHT, }
HILTON HEAD, S. C., Nov. 13, 1864. }

Steamer Fulton leaves for New York tomorrow, so I improve the opportunity to write. Arrived at the Head Tuesday morning. Went down to Fort Pulaski last night, and this morning the "Rebs" were transferred to the "New York" and "Gov. Leary;" our boat being too large to go up the river. Now we are on our way back to Hilton Head, with instructions to clean ship, take on coal and await orders. * * *

Col. Mulford said he didn't know how long we would remain. I saw Mr. Leggett at the Head just a moment. He came on the "Crescent," reports all right with him. Have seen none of the others since we left Fortress Monroe. Shall write to Dr. Marsh at Beaufort, and undoubtedly see him before my return. To-day I will go to Hilton Head and ascertain who is there. * * *

FROM BEAUFORT, S. C.

BY M. M. MARSH, M.D.

Nov. 9th, 1864.

It may not be uninteresting to you to hear from this department.

In a military point of view, very little is transpiring. The condition of health, perhaps, as good as in any portion of this southern country, but nowhere has the same degree prevailed, as in the three years since the occupation by our forces. Fevers and congestive chills, more feared than fevers, prevail. Cold weather is our only certain remedy, and the mercury now stands at 87°. These sands become cooled at evening, and the moisture elaborated in the form of vapor during the day, is deposited in a shower of rain at night; thus rendering protection from atmospheric changes essential to health. And to this want of protection, quite as much as to scarcity of food, may be attributed the mortality prevailing among our unfortunate men in the Confederate lines.

PRISONERS.

The efforts of the Commission in this department at present, are directed almost exclusively to this class of men. You are aware, that early in July the Confederate authorities allowed us to send to prisoners clothing and the coarser articles of food. And with but a brief interruption, the way has been opened and widening to the extent of their limited means of transportation. We can assure you, that we believe the Confederate officials, here, desirous that supplies should reach the parties for whom they were designed, and to the extent of their ability have promoted this end; the commissioner receipting for them and considering himself personally accountable for their delivery to whomever addressed. The gentlemanly demeanor of these officials has, if possible, increased our anxiety that peace may soon allow us to meet them as citizens of a common government.

An acknowledgement is due, in this connection, to the zeal of our own officials, to mitigate the sufferings of the unfortunate in Confederate prisons. It is not enough to say, that every facility has been extended us to minister to these men, but it is only simple justice to remark, that had the General commanding, and all in any way connected with the transfer of supplies been moved by fraternal impulse, they could not have labored more assiduously and earnestly. When peace is restored, may a grateful country remember these men. General Foster has arranged to send a boat twice a week with supplies. The last two meetings have occurred in Savannah river. The supplies sent during the past week, are annexed to indicate their nature and extent. 3,000 blankets, 520 hats, 1,020 shoes, 110 coats, 107 vests, 2,000 pants, 1,000 blouses, 2,040 shirts, 2,040 drawers, 2,040 pairs socks, quantity stationery, quantity tin-ware, 1,065 overcoats, 960 pounds of army beef stock, coffee, milk, farina, and other hospital stores.

A part of these were accumulated stores; a part, as the hats and overcoats, purchased from the quartermaster through an order from General Foster. And here it is proper to remark, that this is the second time when the supplies of the Commission having been exhausted, the General commanding, entering into the true spirit of its mission, has, by allowing the Commission to purchase at nominal prices, placed it, the prisoners, and through them the country, under obligation for his deep interest in the suffering soldier.

The public mind, not recognizing the fact that a large portion of all prisoners are quartered in the adjacent parts of the Confederacy, and consequently when all our means are expended it is but a tithe to a man; and further, that the arrangement between Lee and Grant is prospective, not actual, may become indifferent to the condition of these suffering patriots. A moment's reflection will show a claim for increased beneficence. What has been done, is not at all commensurate with the pressing necessities of these men, as their begging letters daily indicate.

The Confederate authorities have opened wide the door, and we have the assurances of the recipients that the supplies are received by them; we have every facility in the discharge of our duties which the department can furnish; we only need supplies.

VALUABLE LETTER TO DR. J. S. NEWBERRY.

BY DR. A. N. READ.

BRANCH OFFICE,
CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 4, 1864. }

After an absence of two months, I returned about the 1st of October to the work of the Commission. In Louisville, I called on the Assistant Surgeon-General, that I might ascertain where there was most need of the work of the Commission, and to obtain from him such aid and directions as he was pleased to give. He was cordial, spoke well of our work, and promised to write to Dr. L. D. Bristoe, Medical Inspector, on Gen. Sherman's staff, for the purpose of securing the necessary aid.

Through the aid of Major General Thomas, I obtained pass and transportation to Gen. Sherman, on the field. I rode to Chattanooga on hospital train, which was in good condition, cars and beds clean, and food abundant. There is daily change of the patients in the hospitals at Chattanooga, sending to Nashville, and receiving large numbers from Atlanta and intermediate posts. All the sick and wounded of the three armies are being brought from below as fast as possible. As there was a prospect of a general engagement with Hood's forces, I made every effort to secure a supply of such stores as would be needed, first having ascertained what could be furnished by the Medical Purveyor and Commissary. There is yet a probability that battles stores will soon be wanted, but at a point nearer Nashville than Chattanooga.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.

On the 18th I visited the hospitals on Lookout Mountain. They were in excellent condition. There were two hospitals. No. 3, in charge of Dr. Jackson, and the officer's hospital in charge of Dr. Harlow. Both contained 800 patients,—mortality for the last three months less than two per cent. a month. The atmosphere was pure, the water clean, sky clear, as if just washed, and the forests of the mountain tops and sides gorgeous in their dying beauty. Many officers object to this location for a hospital—the top of a high mountain—but wood and water are so easily obtained, that fewer teams are needed for the transportation there for 1,000 men than would suffice for the same number in the town, and the mortality is much less—partially due, no doubt, to the pure air and water, but principally to the fact that the worst cases are retained in town. This is especially true of No. 1, which has a much larger per centage of deaths. This is the hospital nearest the railroad depot, and thus receives the worst cases. Those who must be moved on stretchers are all sent there. One train alone brought from Atlanta 16 cases of amputation, 2 of resection, and 28 of compound fracture. There were treated in this hospital in May last, 6,304; died, 196; in July, 1,597; died, 227; in August, 1,156; died, 129; in September, 1,000; died, 95; in October, 1,901; died, 56. This hospital is in charge of Surgeon John H. Phillips, and five assistants; wood buildings in the south part of the town, on an elevation, near the river; has 683 beds, 800 cubic feet of air space per bed. Has 4 stewards, 11 ward masters, 68 male nurses, 8 female nurses, and 29 cooks, and more patients than the beds could accommodate. The wants of the hospital were vegetables and clothing, especially clothing, for those who were brought from the front and hurried forward to Nashville.

ATLANTA.

The last of October I visited Atlanta. There were about 4,000 patients there in hospital. These had received stores from the Commission, and before Mr. Hood took charge of the transportation, 142 regiments and 25 batteries had received about three rations of fresh vegetables, mostly onions—the beginning of the large amount which you had sent to supply all the army. The health of the troops in the field is improving, and has been since they began to obtain green corn, berries, and sweet potatoes. So far as I have been able to ascertain, scurvy has nearly disappeared.

Owing to the anticipated movements of our forces, I gave directions to break up our store-rooms and office there and at Kingston as soon as the sick were removed. Should a portion of the army go to Mobile or Savannah, I hope a boat load of stores will be sent them. Rev. J. C. Hoblit and D. A. Johnson I now expect will go with the army, to render such aid as they can—collect lists of casualties, and mark and locate the graves of those who fall. Mr.

Bartlett and Mr. Brundrett have been to Huntsville and Athens, but did not open rooms, waiting further developments.

We have in Chattanooga, a good supply of vegetables, and but few other stores, more we hear are on the way, having received a telegram that twenty-five car loads would soon be sent from Nashville. Convalescents are arriving from the front in large numbers. The first train brought down here, after the partial opening of the road to Atlanta, 488 in number, marched several miles over the break in the road, not then closed up, and arrived in the evening. Fifty-six were sent to hospitals, the balance were quartered out without shelter, many without blankets. The captain in charge was not indifferent, but could find no better quarters. We went to his aid, gave the men a full supply of onions and crackers, and obtained shelter for them. As soon as the last one had passed into the building, rain began to fall, and continued during the night. Since that night, I believe all who arrive are provided with shelter. We add to the hard bread and meat which they receive as rations, all the onions they want, and some crackers.

HOSPITAL GARDENS.

The vegetables grown in the Hospital gardens have been distributed, excepting green tomatoes, fall radishes, and turnips. The green tomatoes are being made into pickles. My brother has had machines made for slicing them with onions, and so large is the supply, that the pickles thus made will pay for all that the Commission has expended for seeds, implements, and cultivating the garden.

Soon after my arrival, I sent a note to Surgeon Jones, Post Medical Director, asking information concerning the value of the garden to the hospitals, and the propriety of continuing the work another year. I received the following testimonials.*

Most of the surgeons who drew for their patients vegetables in the spring and early in the summer, are now away on other duty. Could we hear from them, I have no doubt their testimony would be even stronger than these, as they received largely of the first fresh fruits after the deprivations of the winter. We are indebted to Major-Generals Thomas and Steedman for that aid and protection which has enabled us to succeed. The design is to submit to them the question upon the testimony of the propriety of another effort. The garden at Murfreesboro' of 90 acres, in charge of John Hanneinan, has been a like success. The one cultivated at the Cumberland Hospital at Nashville, of 16 acres, was of essential service, and the surgeon in charge ask seed and implements of the Commission sufficient to enable them to plant one much larger early next spring.

* To be forwarded.

As this hospital will be as permanent as the war, it seems to me very desirable that it should be furnished with a building sufficiently large for a chapel, library and writing room.

I start for Nashville to-morrow, to look after the present and prospective wants of the Army of the Cumberland, now gathering in the vicinity of General Hood's forces.

We have no difficulty now in obtaining transportation for stores, and all agents necessary for the work assigned us.

ANNAPOLIS JUNCTION, U. S. A. GEN. HOS., }
Nov. 16, 1864. }

REV. J. A. WHITAKER,
Supt. Sanitary Commission, &c.

SIR:—Your request bearing date Nov. 12, 1864, desiring to know the condition of this United States General Hospital for supplies in amount sufficient to meet any demand, that the arrival of a large number of sick and wounded might require, is received. I am pleased to be able to state in answer that at no time, within my knowledge, has the hospital been in better condition for such an emergency, than at the present time. Roofs and furnaces have been put in thorough repair, and a most excellent sanitary condition exists. I enclose herewith a list of articles belonging to the Commission now on hand, to this you can add requisition for articles forwarded you under date of Nov. 15, 1864. * * *

The attention of the Commission to our wants at previous dates, and your present letter enquiring after our needs, require my most earnest acknowledgements.

And believe me, sir, very truly,

Your obedient servant,

C. BACON, JR.,
Assistant Surg. U. S. A., in charge.

MEETING AT NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT.

The people of New Haven, assembled on Sunday evening, the 13th ult., in Old Centre Church, to show their interest in the Sanitary Commission. The ordinary services in the several churches were omitted, and pastors and people met together, in token of their confidence in the cause which they have hitherto sustained so liberally, and of their determination to continue in the good work, so long as the demands of the army and navy may be made upon the country for supplementary aid. The venerable Dr. Bacon, pastor of the Centre Church, opened the meeting with appropriate religious services, and as his earnest prayers ascended in behalf of our country, and all her interests; of our soldiers and all their wants; of our Commission and all its labors, the multitude which crowded the grand old Church, seemed to be deeply impressed with a sense of the responsibility which rests upon all true lovers of the nation and the race, to renewed efforts and contributions in behalf of this cause. The congregation joined in singing, after which Dr. Bacon read an abstract of the report of the Ladies' Branch, in New Haven.

Rev. J. J. Marks, Rev. F. W. Williams, Rev. A. Cather, and Dr. Jos. Parrish, all of whom have been actively engaged in the service of the Commission, addressed the meeting, and furnished numerous facts and incidents to illustrate its work. The meeting was a success, and the faithful women who have labored so long and so well in New Haven, were greatly encouraged by the generous support of the community in this hearty interest in their work, and are now renewing their exertions to make the future even more marked by success than the past. The following extracts from their report will be read with interest:

Early in the winter, the waste pieces both of our flannel and cotton cuttings, were made into filling for eighty comfortables,—that much abused institution, the shoddy mill, enabling us in this case to make excellent use of what would otherwise have been lost to us. This is worthy of mention as showing that no small amount of material had passed through our hands, also that it is our habit to gather up "all the fragments that nothing be lost."

Later, an urgent demand was made for sheets and towels, when letters were sent to our auxiliaries asking their assistance in the purchase of material. They responded generously—many sending double, and some three and fourfold the amount asked for. The material was purchased, and the following articles made, washed, marked, and sent off, within the space of three weeks, viz: 1,000 sheets, 1,500 towels, and 1,600 handkerchiefs and napkins; and by the close of another week, the number amounted to 1,232 sheets, 1,921 towels, and 2,099 handkerchiefs.

Thus passed our winter and early spring, when in May the telegram from Washington, "send by express all the rags and bandages you have," sent a thrill through our hearts, causing us to realize as we never before had done, the direful necessities of the conflict raging at the "front." This message, with a request for material and help, read in the churches and published in the papers, brought to our rooms large quantities of old linen and cotton, and many earnest workers, who aided in preparing them for the hands of the surgeon. Cushions, pads, towels and handkerchiefs, together with all kinds of appliances for wounds, were gathered and made with great celerity, and all that busy hands and anxious hearts could do for the alleviation of our suffering brethren, was done, when tidings of the carnage of deadly combat in the Wilderness greeted our ears. Many touching evidences of sacrifice came to our knowledge, weeping mothers who had already offered up their sons, bringing their treasured garments to swell the sacrifice, "knowing," as they said, "that it would be what would have pleased them."

Heir-looms in the shape of linen spun and woven a century ago (in one instance 130 years) were brought in, and aged women who had toiled for soldiers in the earlier perils of our country, used their waning energies to swell the volume of contributions for the exigencies of the hour. Of the linen sent us which had so long been household treasure, we made towels and pillow cases with permanent inscriptions on each, giving its age, and by whom preserved and presented. It must be a pleasant thought for the soldier to dwell upon, in the weary hours of convalescence, that his comfort is deemed worthy of such sacrifice.

As an example of the systematic effort by which the Auxiliary Societies contribute so largely to the efficiency of our central agency, we would speak of one in this connection, which repeats on a smaller scale, our own mode of organization.

Eleven sub-societies, formed in as many districts of the town, collect donations of money and hospital supplies, and at weekly meetings, make into garments the material furnished by us to their General Society; the scale on which we purchase enabling us to supply them at better rates than they could obtain it elsewhere. These sub-societies report monthly their receipts, and the result of their labor to the General Society, which ultimately reports to us, and forwards to our rooms all supplies collected from the different districts. Various plans of subscription and taxation are resorted to for raising funds, and the success of these efforts is shown in the fact that within eight months, they have sent to our treasury, the sum of eight hundred and sixty-seven dollars ($867), and twenty barrels and boxes of hospital supplies.

In other emergencies we have made special appeals, which have been uniformly answered most satisfactorily. As the heat of summer strengthened and our brave soldiers toiling in the trenches fainted under its influences, a call came from their camps for fresh vegetables, fruits and anti-scorbutics of all kinds, not only for the sick but for the preservation of health and strength to those not yet compelled to surrender to the influences of exposure, malaria, and insufficient diet. Our readers need not be reminded of the Fourth of July contribution, made by our children and youth who sacrificed their usual enjoyment in explosives of all kinds, to raise a fund for the purchase of these much needed supplies. The Executive Committee, conferring upon the propriety of making the suggestion and discussing its probable success, ventured the hope that "as much as two hundred dollars might be realized in that way." Our surprise and gratification may be imagined, when the sum in the aggregate amounted to seven hundred and thirty dollars and thirty-two cents ($730 32)!

Our "cruse" has not failed us, and we trust will not, but there is no disguising the fact that our abilities are cramped, and our usefulness circumscribed by the necessity we are under of limiting our purchases by a scant treasury. The manufacturers are generous with us, deducting certain percentage on their wholesale prices; the express and transportation companies are obliging, and assist us all they can in their way; the press are uniformly ready to lend us their columns to communicate with the public—but we need a fuller treasury, and means to operate with more freely.

The Fairs held in our large cities had netted such large amounts that many persons, not appreciating the magnitude of the work, regarded the sums inexhaustible, and seemed to consider their duty ended in that channel.

While realizing fully that the field of work is sufficiently large to be occupied by both Commissions, we yet feel that the longer and more complete organization of the Sanitary Commission has given it advantages for benefitting the soldiers, and that experience will prove to any who engage in this work, that large expenditure is indispensable to accomplish the ends for which we labor.

Copy of a letter sent to Mrs. B., Hospital Visitor, by a friend of a soldier :

EAGLE, Nov. 2d, 1864.

DEAR MADAM:—At the request of my friend, Mr. D——, I will try and pen a few lines to you, to let you know that he arrived at our house one week ago last Friday. I think his journey was most too much for him, though he stood it much better than he expected; we were surprised to see him, for we feared he would not live to return. He is very thankful to think his life has been spared, and truly he has great reason to be. His limb is better than it was when he left the hospital, though it gains very slowly; the swelling kept going down in the foot, and yesterday morning he had it opened just below the ankle joint; it is very painful, but he bears his suffering without a murmur, I hardly think he would bear up under it if he had not an arm stronger than man's to lean upon. He has spoken of writing to you a number of times, but he is so weak—it is too much of a task; he can hardly say enough in your praise; he is truly thankful for the aid you rendered him. Sick and wounded, with no kind sister or loving mother to watch over him, he found a friend in you, though a stranger, and surely God's blessings will rest upon you for your kindness to him. And now, Mrs. B——, perhaps you would like to know what we are doing to help the Sanitary. We have not been idle the past summer, have met once a week, and done what we could in furnishing bandages and lint, &c.; have filled one firkin of butter and sent to the Soldier's Rest in Buffalo. Mrs. S——, the president, has sent us work most of the time. We have been making pickles, and are now drying apples.

Mr. D——, sends his best wishes to Mr. S——, and kindest regards to you, hoping you are well, and that your life may be spared for many years to come. We all unite in sending our best wishes for your happiness. I am truly your friend,

M—— B——.

Pike, Wyoming Co., N. Y.

NEW YORK MEETING.

We anticipate for next number of BULLETIN an official report of the Grand Council of Women from the different societies auxiliary to the New York Branch. It was a good meeting—large, spirited, cheering. The evening meeting at Cooper Union was addressed by Rev. F. N. Knapp, of Sanitary Commission, Rev. Dr. Adams, of New York, Col. Hawkins, of East Tennessee, and Dr. Bellows. Professor Hitchcock presiding.

The Council next morning was addressed by Dr. Bellows and A. M. Sperry, Relief Agent, from City Point, and by Mrs. Barker, Hospital Visitor, from Washington. A large number of delegates assembled from New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Long Island, and Massachusetts, and visitors were in attendance from other States. A basket full of reports was handed in, which required a committee to collate. Much good must result from such gatherings.

REPORT FROM DUVAL'S BLUFF, ARKANSAS.

BY BENJAMIN WOODWARD.

October 31, 1864.

Found that an invoice of vegetables and pickles, we sent from Memphis, had been received. Judge Bingham, the Ohio State Agent, and Mr. Moody, the Agent of the Western Sanitary Commission, had sent a part of the supplies to Little Rock. They had given out a part to hospitals and regiments at this post, and retained the greater bulk of them for my orders. I had written Judge Bingham "that if he found them much needed here, to issue them on his own responsibility." I find from his vouchers, that his issues have been most judicious. There are 120 sick here in General Hospital, 50 in the Quartermaster's Hospital, and a greater number in the different regiments. The surgeons acknowledge the benefits which they have received from Sanitary stores issued by the Western Sanitary Commission. Some of these stores came from the U. S. Sanitary Commission, as we had no agent on the ground. I talked with officers and men of the 3d Minnesota regiment. When the regiment arrived here in May last, it was 900 strong—now there are but 96 men fit for duty. 54 have died from disease. Scurvy, diarrhoea, and intermittent fevers have been the prevalent diseases, as they are in all commands here. These men say, that when vegetables or other supplies have been received here, "they have been issued by the Commissary Sergeant of the regiment, and that all the men have shared equally." Patients in the hospitals, and men in all the regiments unite in the expression, "that they are fairly dealt by, and that though many have died, it has not been from neglect or misappropriation, but from actual destitution of supplies," and "that they are satisfied that what few vegetables have been given out, have been the means of saving many lives." Soldiers' statements must always be taken with some grains of allowance, for they cannot always know what has been received, and though they may intend to be truthful, may be mistaken; but when they unite in saying "they believe all has been done for them which it was possible to do," we are bound to believe them. The demand for vegetables is imperative. The market prices for vegetables here are so fabulous, that no hospital can accumulate a fund sufficient to purchase them. Prices are: potatoes, $20 per barrel; pickled cabbage, $60 per barrel, or 30 to 35 cents per pound; onions vary from 20 to 40 cents per pound; butter, $1 per pound; cheese, 90 cents per pound; common vinegar, 90 cents per gallon, and even at these prices are scarcely to be had. Sometime the present season, Lieut. Col. —, of the — regiment, made a speech at —, Michigan, before a meeting called in behalf of a Soldiers' Aid Society, in which he stated "that his regiment had received nothing from the Sanitary Commission." Inquiries were sent here where the regiment has been quartered. The vouchers in the hands of the Western Sanitary Commission prove that the regiment has received large supplies during the time it has been here, and I took pains to find numbers of men of the regiment. They all say the Surgeon has issued them freely as soon as received, and they feel satisfied with the honesty of the issues. The vouchers are now on their way to the Aid Society at —, with statement of the men who reside there. Thus one slander after another is nailed. One of those vouchers shows that at one time twenty barrels of potatoes, and a good general supply was issued to the regiment.

The 9th Kansas Cavalry is here, and have many sick, but they have just arrived, and have not been within reach of sanitary supplies. Company L of this regiment is composed exclusively of Caw Indians. A finer body of men was never seen, and the officers of the regiment say they are the best and most reliable scouts, and most splendid horsemen.

The Christian Commission has an agency here, under the care of Rev. Mr. Mattis, of St. Louis. They occupy two large tents, filled with books and writing material. The soldiers speak in the most kindly terms of them and their work. The Sanitary Commission has in Captain Gombert, the Post Quartermaster, a warm and efficient friend, ready at all times to aid in every way in his power. I am indebted to him for personal attentions, and the hospitalities of his table and quarters while here.

I would call attention to the need there is of a "Soldier's Home," or "Lodge," at the Bluff. This is the point of ingress and egress of the army in Arkansas, and its base of supplies. All soldiers furloughed or discharged from the service stop here. There is no place even of shelter for them. Dr. Moody is very anxious that a home should be put in immediate operation, and if an agent of ours should be sent there, he could have the management of it. Winter is near, and if such an enterprise is thought best, no time should be lost. Accommodations for one hundred men are needed.

THE GENERALS AND VEGETABLES.

Maj. Gen. Smith said, in a letter:—"Tell the Commission that these men need vegetables, lemons, &c., more than even those in the hospitals, and I will send teams for anything the Commission can give." Generals Burnside, Warren, and Hancock said the same. The officers of the ninth army corps headquarters declined to receive their share, and said: "Give them all to the men, they need them more than we do." After the distribution through the entire army, affording the men a ration of vegetables for ten days, the officers reported a marked improvement in their condition. General Grant has also given the most cordial co-operation and ordered increased facilities of transportation.—Rev. W. W. Patton.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

|                                                                                                                                                                                                            |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Board Meeting.....                                                                                                                                                                                         | 533 |
| REPORTS                                                                                                                                                                                             |     |
| City Point.—Extracts from Report of Dr. A. W. McDonald—(Auxiliary Relief Corps, Special Relief, At Norfolk, Supply Trains, Across the James, The Wounded) .....                                            | 834 |
| Extracts from Report of Dr. Swalm, (Deep Bottom, Issues from the Storehouse of the Commission at City Point from June 18, to Oct 1, 1864, Auxiliary Relief Corps, Vegetables for Troops, Cedar Level)..... | 837 |
| A. W. Sperry, Auxiliary Relief Agent, City Point, (Amount of Hospital Supplies issued by the U. S. Sanitary Commission at Washington, D. C., during the months of July, August, and September, 1864).....  | 839 |
| Hospital Supplies issued at New Orleans, during the months of July, Aug., and Sept., 1864 .....                                                                                                            | 840 |
| Hospital Supplies issued at Beaufort, S. C.....                                                                                                                                                            | 841 |
| Hospital Supplies issued at Newbern, N. C.....                                                                                                                                                             | 841 |
| Washington.—J. B. Abbott, Special Relief.....                                                                                                                                                              | 846 |
| J. B. Clark's Quarterly Report.....                                                                                                                                                                        | 841 |
| Annapolis.—J. A. Whitaker.....                                                                                                                                                                             | 844 |
| J. C. Batchelor.....                                                                                                                                                                                       | 844 |
| George A. Miller.....                                                                                                                                                                                      | 845 |
| H. Wood.....                                                                                                                                                                                               | 846 |
| Camp Parole.—Alma Carey and S. L. Phillips.....                                                                                                                                                            | 843 |
| Women's Central Association of Relief Semi-Annual Report.....                                                                                                                                              | 850 |
| Report from Dnyvall's Bluff, Arkansas, by Benjamin Woodward.....                                                                                                                                           | 859 |
| HOSPITAL VISITING.                                                                                                                                                                                  |     |
| Washington, D. C.—Mrs M. A. C.....                                                                                                                                                                         | 847 |
| Mrs Barker.....                                                                                                                                                                                            | 841 |
| J. B. Holt.....                                                                                                                                                                                            | 842 |
| Extract from Journal of Mrs. J. B. Johnson.....                                                                                                                                                            | 842 |
| CORRESPONDENCE.                                                                                                                                                                                     |     |
| City Point—Letter from Dr. N. C. Stevens.....                                                                                                                                                              | 838 |
| Chauffanooga.—Valuable Letter to Dr. Newberry, by Dr. A. N. Read, (Lookout Mountain, Atlanta, Hospital Gardens, &c).....                                                                                   | 854 |
| Annapolis.—C. Bacon, Jr., Assist. Surg., U. S. A.....                                                                                                                                                      | 856 |
| Letter from a Soldier's Friend to Mrs. B., Hospital Visitor, Washington, D. C.....                                                                                                                         | 858 |
| New Orleans.—George A. Blake, M.D.....                                                                                                                                                                     | 833 |
| Hilton Head.—L. O. Beebe.....                                                                                                                                                                              | 833 |
| Beaufort, S. C.—M. M. Marsh.....                                                                                                                                                                           | 853 |
| MISCELLANEOUS                                                                                                                                                                                       |     |
| An Incident.....                                                                                                                                                                                           | 839 |
| The Commission Abroad, (Handsome Gift to the U. S. Sanitary Commission from Hon. Robert J. Walker).....                                                                                                    | 851 |
| EDITORIAL.                                                                                                                                                                                          |     |
| The Organization of the Commission.....                                                                                                                                                                    | 851 |
| Meeting at New Haven, Conn.....                                                                                                                                                                            | 856 |
| New York Meeting.....                                                                                                                                                                                      | 858 |

PROTECTIVE

War-Claim Association

OF THE

STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HON. HAMILTON FISK, ADMIRAL DUPONT,
JOHN J. CISCO, Esq., RUD. A. WITTHAUS, Esq.
TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HON. E. D. MORGAN,    | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLOWES, D.D., | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to
HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

- 1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.
- 2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.
- 3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.
- 4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
F. L. Olmsted, California.
George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
A. E. Shiras, U. S. A.
R. C. Wood, Assistant Surgeon-Gen'l U. S. A.
Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., New York.
S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
Rt. Rev. T. M. Clarke, Providence, R. I.
Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
Prof. Fairman Rogers, Philadelphia, Penna.
Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
George T. Strong, Treasurer.
J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.
J. H. Douglas, M.D., Associate Secretary.
F. N. Knapp, Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

- Henry W. Bellows, D.D. George T. Strong.
Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. Wolcott Gibbs, M.D.
C. R. Agnew, M.D. Charles J. Stillé.

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies, and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.*CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.
 Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.*CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

HOSPITAL CARS.

Between Louisville and Chattanooga—Dr. J. P. Barnum, Surgeon in charge.

SANITARY STEAMER.

James River—Elizabeth.

BRANCH,
No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,
No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported

IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.

By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U.S.A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept. 20, 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, so FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE

The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.

The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.

Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices Address

B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D.,

President American Artificial Limb Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILLCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York,
FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY, OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y.
Hon. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn. E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.
WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York. J. T. SANGER, New York.
JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,

No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

OFFICE OF THE

M O R R I S

FIRE &amp; INLAND INSURANCE

COMPANY,

COLUMBIAN BUILDING,

CORNER WALL &amp; NASSAU STS.

---

Authorized Capital, - - - $5,000,000.

Cash Capital, paid in, - - - $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

D I R E C T O R S .

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 28.

PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 15, 1864.

No. 28.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 14,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

COME TO THE SOLDIER'S AID.

BY MRS. E. G. D. POWELL.

Come to the "Soldier's Aid,"
Mother and wife and maid.

There's a soldier away at the South
Whose lips have been pressed to your mouth,
With mutual kisses and mutual vows,
As father or son, as brother or spouse,
Who, lying now in his blood and dirt,
Would weep with joy for a fresh clean shirt.
O say, shall that brave one fret and grieve
When here is one, only wanting a sleeve,

At the rooms of the "Soldier's Aid."

Come to the "Soldier's Aid,"
Mother and wife and maid.

On that soft pillow, a mother's breast,
A little hand was accustomed to rest;
That self same hand, once so soft and white,
Is lying now in a dreadful plight;
Nothing is left but the palm and thumb,
Which by turns is burning, aching, or numb;
To add to his pain he has not a sling,
But a kerchief almost reduced to a string,
While here is an easy one, partly made,
At the rooms of the "Soldier's Aid."

Come to the "Soldier's Aid,"
Mother and wife and maid.

There's a soldier "learning to walk alone,"
With a crutch in place of a broken bone;
Can gentle compassion and sympathy hear
To hear this sad truth—the other is here!
Wanting a slipper, aye, even a sock,
When here in the room is plenty of stock,
Waiting for fingers to mend or to make,
O come, for that suffering soldier's sake,
To the rooms of the "Soldier's Aid."

Come to the "Soldier's Aid,"
Mother and wife and maid.

On the same pillow at night with thine
A noble head has been wont to recline,

And dreams of beauty oft visited too,
Like meteors glancing through fields of blue.
That heal and heart with its hopes and aims,
That replied at once to our country's claims,
Is tossing now in delirium wild,
Pleading patriotism undefiled;
Mixing it all with kind thoughts of thee,
Like the debris of a raging sea.
The hospital wards are overrun
With many a wounded husband and son;
And not a cot or pillow is there
For that tossing head in its wild despair.
Here are feathers, and a yard of tick,
With scissors, thread and needle; come quick
To the rooms of the "Soldier's Aid."

Come to the "Soldier's Aid,"
Mother and wife and maid.

For know that leg, that arm, and that head,
Is suffering now in our own limbs stead.
List the ungarnished tales of woe,
As through the West the guerillas go,
And would they not scatter, and sear, and peel,
These Northern States with their iron heel,
Were there none to keep the insurgents back
From their work of death on their bloody track.
They stand in the fore front's deadly fight,
That we in quiet may sleep at night;
O then gratefully, mother and maid,
Come to the rooms of the "Soldier's Aid."

Come to the "Soldier's Aid,"
Mother and wife and maid.

There's a sweet refrain to the terrible song,
To the thunder of war that rolls along;
Soft and sweet as the tones of a lute,
When the shocking canon and shell are mute;
A sweet refrain of a helping hand,
That follows the war-shout over the land;
Dressing and nursing with oil and balm,
Or soothing the spirit with prayer and psalm.
Mother and maiden, sister and wife,
We may not join in this bitter strife,

But may flow into this song of love,
Caught from the angels, bending above,
At the Commission's side we may stand,
They to bind up, we to make the band,
At the rooms of the "Soldier's Aid."

Come to the "Soldier's Aid,"
Mother and wife and maid.

There is still another motive to press:
To educe in our own hearts tenderness,
Like His who in agony blessed the thief,
And sent the son to his mother's relief.
If you bind the infant's limb or hand,
From all exertion by gyve or band,
Will the bones grow firm and the muscles swell,
And the mind in a vigorous body dwell?
Thus if no acts of goods are performed,
Will not the spirit become deformed?
Hence, would we grow in each Christian grace,
Let us seek the good Samaritan's place;
Cherish all promptings to neighborly love,
After the pattern of those above,
Where can we do this, mother and maid,
So well as we can at the "Soldier's Aid."

Correspondence.

ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 4, 1864.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Sec. Western Dept. U. S. San. Com.

SIR.—I think it due the agents of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, who have shared with us, the toil and hardships of the campaign, as well as to the people who have generously given each their gifts; while it is a personal pleasure to acknowledge the numerous obligations and favors which they have conferred upon our sick and wounded.

At no period of my service (more than three years) has it been my fortune to see the supplies which the Commission furnish, so steadily provided for our hospitals, and so invariably on hand during and immediately after an action. It is true, that regiments have not, to any great extent, been supplied with extra stores, but this could not be done with the limited transportation at command, besides which, I doubt the practical utility of such an attempt during a campaign. Since we reached Atlanta, a large quantity of vegetables have been issued to the regiments, who were greatly in need of them, and could obtain them from no other source. But in respect to the sick and wounded, of whom we had a large number, I believe that the Commission has done everything possible to alleviate their sufferings, working in the most direct and systematic way, through the Special Agent attached to each corps. If each one of these gentlemen did his work as faithfully and systematically as the one attached to our corps, (Rev. J. C. Hoblit,) certainly no more could have been done, for the whole heart of the man is in his work.

The work which these agents at the front have to do, is no small or easy job. You, accustomed to the regularity and method of secure civil railroads, have no idea of the crowd and haste, and weary watching lest the train should come or go when least expected, which must be endured to get these supplies through to the field hospitals. Nor have you to dread lonely rides to the rear, to hasten up supplies when the army has pushed ahead, in expectation of a battle, most lonely because in dread of capture.

Besides this, they furnish data of the sick, wounded, dead and missing, after every action, which at Chattanooga, Nashville, or Louisville, is to answer the inquiries of hosts of anxious friends. I must ask that people will, for their own interests, bear in mind that these records are reliable, obtained on the field, and in field hospitals, often from the wounded themselves, their comrades, or the head-board of the soldier's grave, and by men who understand their business, and are permitted to go where strangers are not permitted to come. It will save many weary hours of travel and anxiety, if the people will consult these records, and take the advice of the men who have them in charge.

Finally I wish to express to the members of the Commission with whom I have been brought in contact, my gratification at witnessing the reciprocal courtesy and cordiality existing between them and the members of the Medical Department of the army, each recognizing the other as a co-laborer in the common cause of humanity.

N. C. BENNETT,

Surgeon U. S. V., Medical Inspector 20th Army Corps.

FROM REV. J. C. HOBLITT.

BATTLE-FIELD RELIEF AGENT.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov 10, 1864.

The hospitals have all moved to the rear, as far back as Chattanooga. The last of the sick left to-day. All who were not fit for immediate and hard duty were sent away, and the remainder were ordered to be prepared for a fifty days campaign. We have given out every thing that would be of any service on the march. We had but little to send back to Chattanooga. The army will get a good supply of antiscorbutics as they march through the country. The men are in excellent spirits and health; only a few cases of scurvy. With the advice of Dr. Read I have decided to go with the army;

Mr. Johnson goes with me. We have at no time failed to have a representation with the troops in the field, and to give up now we cannot.

It is true we can do nothing with stores, but never has there been a movement where we could be of more service in the Hospital Directory Department than now. There will be a long time of suspense and weary watching for letters, but no letters will come. After awhile Sherman and his noble army will be heard from. Mothers will then anxiously look for letters from their sons, and wives from their husbands, but there are many mothers and wives and friends who will be doomed to disappointment; no letters will come from their soldier friends. After waiting a reasonable length of time for letters, they will make inquiry at our Hospital Directory at Louisville, and it is my object, having gathered a complete list of the deaths, casualties and missing on the campaign, to be able to report to you, so that Mr. Holbrook can answer the multitude of anxious ones who may crowd his office.

I know what I am undertaking. It is no easy or small enterprise. There will be much to be endured in such a winter campaign as this will be, and yet I am not willing, while this work is entrusted to my care, to let the interests of the Commission suffer, or fail to serve the cause of humanity, simply that I may have ease and comfort. I am well prepared for the march, and before this reaches you, we will be fairly on our way, somewhere. There is not a doubt but Gen. Sherman is about entering upon the boldest and most glorious campaign of the war; if not burning his ships behind him, at least destroying his communications. When we come again to the world without, and have communication with you, I will hasten to make my report for the benefit of multitudes of inquiring friends after soldiers in the Army of Georgia.

The last train of cars leaving Atlanta for the North will carry this letter to you. Hoping to see you early in January, I bid you, farewell.

REPORT FROM LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS.

BY BENJAMIN WOODWARD.

Nov. 2, 1864.

TO DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Asso. Sec., Louisville, Ky.

Arrived here on the night of the thirty-first ult. Met Dr. Wyeth, Agent Western Sanitary Commission. He has received all the goods forwarded to his care from Duvall's Bluff, in good order, except the loss of a barrel of onions, broken open and contents stolen. The Western Sanitary Commission has had an agency here since September, 1863. During the time, the hospitals have been moderately well supplied; and the issue books and vouchers show that all the regiments within reach here, shared in the distribution. Surgeon Weeks, so well and favorably known in Louisville, is the chief of hospitals for the department of Little Rock. He is the warm friend of Sanitary Commissions, and speaks decidedly of the benefits which they have conferred upon the army. He furnished me the statistics of the sick within his department; which, at the last weekly report, amounted to 3,274 infantry, and 1,535 cavalry. It is not proper to state where most of the sick are, for at some posts the number is greater than that of the well. I could not get to Pine Bluff, the Arkansas river being too low for even the smallest boats. Last week's report from that post, showed 780 in hospitals, and a much larger number in hospital quarters. The last official report from Fort Smith was for August 27, there were then 476 white, and 186 colored soldiers in hospitals, and entirely destitute of

VEGETABLES.

Scurvy, diarrhœa, and malarious fevers are the predominant diseases through the State. It is impossible to overestimate the importance of sending vegetables to this department. There is no post that has suffered as much from scurvy as Pine Bluff, very few vegetables having reached that point. The hospitals at Little Rock have an arrangement with the Agent of the Western Sanitary Commission, by which they are well supplied with all that is needed so far as their hospital fund will go. The mode is this: at the end of each month the fund, with an invoice of what is needed, is put into the hands of the Sanitary Commission agent. He sends to St. Louis, and expends the fund in that market.

GOVERNMENT TRANSPORTATION.

The government provides all the transportation, so that the articles are delivered in Little Rock for just what they cost in St. Louis; making a saving of over three hundred per cent. I took especial pains to examine into the working of the system, and so well does it work, that I earnestly recommend a trial of it by hospitals at other points, distant from good and cheap markets. This arrangement leaves the Sanitary Commission free to expend its energies on the troops in regiments, which are the great sources of disease. We have now at Little Rock 106 barrels of onions and cabbage, pickles and crackers, and 24 boxes of codfish, milk, syrups, sugar, &c., which is destined for Pine Bluff. A dispatch was sent to the commander of the post, and he answered it, saying, "I will send a train of ten wagons and an ample guard, on Friday, the 4th inst., to bring the stores to the Bluff." Dr. Wyeth will go with the train, and see to the proper distribution, and will report to me on his return. I cannot too strongly urge the appointment of an agent to this field; who should be stationed at Duvall's Bluff, and whose duty it should be to go with all stores to the points where they are to be sent, and see to their proper distribution. An active, prudent man, could work in harmony with Dr. Moody, of Duvall's Bluff, and Dr. Wyeth at Little Rock, the agents of the Western Commission. These gentlemen are the only agents on this wide field, assisted by detailed men.

VEGETABLES WANTED.

Wherever I go, the surgeons say, "Send us all the vegetables possible. The men in the field must have them or die; but do not send pickled potatoes, they are a waste of money. And send no canned fruits, send them dried." Milk intended for this part of the country, should be put up four or six boxes in one large box, and no label on the box to designate what is in it; for the temptation to steal is so great, that even when it is sent as medical stores to the purveyors, it may be broken.

GENERAL F. STEELE.

I called on General F. Steele to thank him for the facilities granted. He remarked, "The obligation is on my side. Had it not been for the Sanitary Commission at Vicksburg, our army would have suffered much more than it did. We found the agents of the Commission and their stores, always on hand when most wanted, and during my campaign in this State my army could not have existed without them; for they fed and took care of the sick, and cheered and comforted the well, and I always feel when I meet Sanitary agents, that they are my personal friends." On the 4th of October General Steele issued his general order No. 242, a copy of which I enclose; giving every facility to the agents of different Commissions.

ILLINOIS STATE AGENTS.

It has been claimed that the Illinois State agency has to a great extent, supplied the wants of this department; and that Colonel Robb, the Illinois State Agent, has acted as forwarding agent for the Western Sanitary Commission. I have made every inquiry in my power of agents, surgeons, and quartermasters, and can find no evidence of a dollar's worth having come from those sources, except one box in April last, directed to the 26th Illinois Volunteers; which was not, and had not then been in this field. I was told at Memphis "the Col. kept this part of the army supplied." I have made my reports from this trip, lengthy, perhaps too much so, but I wished to give as many facts as possible, in order that you may as fully as possible, understand the field.

FROM FORT SCOTT.

BY J. R. BROWN.

November 7, 1864.

I have just come into this Post from Mound City, where we have over one hundred wounded men whom I helped to pick up on the battle-field near that place. There, as at Westport, I had with me sanitary stores first on hand, and I assure you that your Commission was duly credited for what was done for the suffering wounded soldiers. I have been with the Medical Director and his corps until my supplies were exhausted, and I was obliged to return to Leavenworth for a supply, which I had to buy, mainly on account of shipments from Chicago being delayed. I have been furnished with as many ambulances as I wished to carry hospital stores to points where the wounded could be gathered and cared for; and now as the army has gone too far South for me to reach them, I am desired to take charge of a train of ambulances conveying the wounded up to Leavenworth, as they are able to be moved. I find over two hundred sick and wounded in this hospital, a train having just come in from Newtonia with wounded.

From present appearances all the hospitals in Kansas will be filled for the winter, and I shall have all that I can do. My health is good, and I am just where I like to work. I have had no better bed than I could make on the ground or in an ambulance, since Price's raid reached Westport, and I never slept sweeter or worked harder.

Price's raid cost many valuable lives, and caused much suffering, but the noble manner in which he was met at the border of Kansas and followed on that border beyond the State, has saved our people, and done great credit to our military forces.

My freedmen and refugee work will now be mainly done by others, as you proposed, and I shall not be compelled to neglect my sanitary work.

Will you write me often ?

FROM MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE.

BY BENJ. WOODWARD.

Nov. 10th, 1864.

After a long, tedious trip, I arrived here from Little Rock, to-day. Enclosed I send you results in the form of reports. It has been an expensive trip, but I made it as little so as possible. I send you an account of money expended. You will find two items of wine and food for sick soldiers. The circumstances were these, When we arrived at the mouth of White River, a lot of very sick men were put on board to come to hospitals at this city. They were in charge of Assistant Surgeon Curtis, of the 96th Illinois Volunteers. Nothing was provided for them but army rations, which they could not eat. I consulted with Dr. Curtis as to what was best, and then went to the steward of the boat, and had farina cooked with milk, and good soups made for them. He charged me only the cost of the articles. I got wine from the bar for some. I think some of them would not have lived to get here, had it not been for this aid. I do not know that under the "rules" this can be allowed me, if not I am willing to pay the whole; were I again situated in the same circumstances, I should do the same. It was a clear case of men perishing for want of food. I shall go to Vicksburg in a few days. Mr. D. B. Carpenter, will start in a few days for Duvall's Bluff and Little Rock, with a good invoice received here by the ill-fated Dunleith. I think him just the man for that field.

LETTER FROM ORPHEUS EVERTS, SURGEON-IN CHIEF, 3D DIV. 2D CORPS.

HEADQUARTERS, 3D DIV., 2D CORPS, }
November 23, 1864. }

War, as manifested upon the plane of political organizations, whether it be waged for conquest or in defence of established privileges, is, in the abstract, but a violent manifestation of selfishness. The act of war, in its influence upon individuals engaged develops all the inherent love of self, which society, home, and civilization constrain, and which regeneration displaces with a higher love. From the Major General, jealous of his stars, and too often conscious of the fiction through which they were obtained down to the pitiable private, who has mutilated his own body to escape from danger, which is more dreadful to him than a life of secret shame, we throw to the surface like a shell all the selfishness of our nature, and wear it just underneath our uniform. Nor is war in its influences confined to the armies in the field. Politicians, contractors, speculators, all classes of community are pervaded with various manifestations of the same results.

But as nature and the plane of the senses constitute the basis and highway of the spirit's progress to higher life, and what seems to us so terrible, death, is but separation from these; so war externally, and a state of combats internally, with peace, rest, as their object and ultimatum, constitute the normal condition of man here: and war, with all its horrors, cruelties, and manifestations of the evils of man's nature is closely allied to, and brings into active relations the highest virtues.

To say nothing of individual acts—the special heroisms—the martyr-like devotion of rare men, whose deeds reward themselves, without promotion, or worldly recognition, what a great compliment to this war has been the great redeeming feature of our people, the U. S. Sanitary Commission. In an age of political corruption—of falsehood and pretence—in a land where "shoddy" seems to reign supreme, and selfishness is revelling in boundless lust, we find these are but the superficies, the thin rind of the fruit, and underneath are patriotism, benevolence, and Christian charity.

Three years and a half constantly in the field in close contact with all the evils which war develops and puts in active operation, the knowledge of this great fact, that whole communities, from one end of the land to the other, had organized themselves, without regard to sect, or church, or locality, into a great family, alike in blood and in affection; standing to the soldiers in the field without distinction of State or regiment, as brothers and sisters, fathers and mothers, bestowing with the same liberal hands gifts of comfort and of healing to all, has been to me a constant inspiration; and has done more to redeem the age, and our people from the appearance of utter selfishness and greed than all other manifestations combined. It cannot be possible that the Commission needs testimony of its usefulness at this day. When truth requires a witness, and charity a trumpeter; when mercy and love are matters of doubtful virtue; when faith wears the garments of denial, and asks impertinently if there is a God; one might expect to hear a question raised respecting the propriety and usefulness of the Sanitary Commission: not otherwise.

Nor does the need, the unmistakable demand for this institution reflect the least discredit upon the Government. The Government performs its functions toward the army well. But unless the Government created an additional department and adopted the Sanitary Commission with its peculiar features as a part of itself, it could not supply the place of the Commission by any possibility. Convert the Commission from a spontaneous benevolence to a governmental machine, and it would lose the essential essence of its virtue: the relation which it occupies toward both people, home, kindred, and the suffering soldier, far away, at a moment when all his nature is yearning from its depths toward that heaven with inexpressible need! It would be as different as compulsion is different from volition—as different as obligation is different from love—as different as the ministration of a paid and professional priest to the soul of the dying is different from the ministration of angels sent from the throne of the everlasting Father. The men, too, whom the Commission has placed in the field, so far as my observation extends, are worthy of it—among whom none are more worthy than the field agent of this corps, Mr. Holbrook, of Keene, N. H. Everybody knows "Uncle John," who needs no praise. These men come nearest me now, and so I mention their names. And now, to the good people at "home" let me say, and let my voice be the voice of experience and conscientious observation from the beginning of the war, through every campaign of the Army of the Potomac, bearing witness from every battle-field, let not your exertions in behalf of the Sanitary Commission be relaxed for one moment until the end is peace, declared in triumph through the land.

SLANDERS.

It has always been the policy of the U. S. Sanitary Commission to conduct its vast business with reference to the great responsibility imposed upon it by a generous and confiding people. Conscious of its integrity of purpose, and of its accuracy, even in the smaller details of business, it has not often taken time to notice complaints that may have been made concerning its members and its management, unless they have been direct and tangible. Jealousy, rivalry, prejudice, disloyalty, have each and all of them contributed their portion of abuse and invective, and hitherto they have been allowed to pass with but little, if any thought or notice. Under the garb of sincerity, and with the appearance of earnest concern for the welfare of soldiers, some people have allowed themselves to do the smallest things that humanity is capable of, in order that they may divert the interests of societies or communities, away from the channel opened by the Commission between the people and the army. A remarkable feature in the opposition to the Commission, has been its covert character. But few, if any, have had the courage to make an open assault upon it, while very many have found means to insinuate that evils exist, and to allow false statements to be received as true, for the apparent purpose of gratifying some jealous fear or unfounded suspicion.

We believe that if the Commission conducts its business on false business principles, if it distributes its supplies wastefully, if it pays its agents extravagantly, if it is an unfaithful or an unwise steward of the benefactions of the people, the people ought to know it; and those who believe it, ought to be honest enough with themselves and the truth, considerate enough of the public good and the good of the army, loyal enough to the government which has authorized and encouraged this work, to undeceive a trusting public, whose proud privilege it has been to do as a nation never before did, with its resources in a time of war. They should do it, not by presenting partial statements to suit a purpose; not by uttering in private, for facts, what they are afraid to say in public; not by appealing to morbid sympathies, and encouraging groundless fears; but by an open, face to face, christian appeal; just as we appeal to the moral sense of the community against gambling, drunkenness, dishonesty in trade, extravagance in living, and everything else that deteriorates manhood and enervates society. Let such a course be pursued. We give below some correspondence, which will explain the reason for the foregoing remarks.

NEW YORK, November 20, 1864.

REV. HENRY W. BELLOWES,
President U. S. Sanitary Commission.

MY DEAR SIR:—In conversation with Mr. J. C. H. this morning, he informed me that there were reports of the gravest character afloat, affecting some member of the Sanitary Commission, which were hushed up for fear of their effect on the public. He said that he knew the person, but would not disclose his name. I inferred, though he did not so state, that the charge was of pecuniary delinquency.

I know that it has been always the practice of the Commission to examine thoroughly into all charges brought against any person connected with it, and I trust that you will demand an explanation in this matter.

Very truly yours,
G— G—.

NEW YORK, November 21, 1864.

J. C. H—, Esq.

DEAR SIR:—The enclosed note explains itself. Will you permit me to ask the name of the person referred to in your conversation with Mr. G., and the nature of the grave charges brought against him? Being wholly ignorant ourselves of the report referred to, it is very necessary that we should be able to meet the slanderous rumor with all the directness possible. As the U. S. Sanitary Commission has always invited the closest scrutiny into its pecuniary affairs, it seeks to confront any accuser who dares to impugn the integrity of any member of the Board. I cannot doubt your friendly desire to afford us any light you possess, or can throw upon a subject of so much importance.

Very respectfully yours,
HENRY W. BELLOWES,
President.

NEW YORK, November 22, 1864.

SIR:—Your note of yesterday, enclosing a note addressed to you by Mr. G. G., has just reached me. In answer to it, I inform you, that I regard what passed, as being in a private conversation with a person with whom I had an intimacy, and that I certainly did not intend what I said should go any farther. Second, that the report alluded to by me did not refer to any instance or charge of "pecuniary delinquency," either by the Sanitary Commission as a body, or by any member of it. This was merely, as Mr. G. states in his note to you, "inferred" by him. Your obedient servant,

J— C. H—.

REV. HENRY W. BELLOWES,
President of the Sanitary Commission,
823 Broadway, New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23, 1864.

J— C. H—, Esq.,

SIR:—I have been shown your reply to Dr. Bellows' note in reference to the conversation which passed between us at the Astor House.

On a little reflection, I think you will admit that a charge affecting the official character of men with whom I am associated, is one that I cannot consider as confidential. I did not understand you to make it, and I certainly should not have received it as such.

The information was volunteered by you. You asked me if I had heard the charges against the Sanitary Commission, and on my reply in the negative, stated that there were grave ones, affecting the character of one of its members, which were hushed up for fear of their effect on the public. You refused to give his name indeed, but your remark that the charges did not concern any one that you or I were specially interested in, in no degree assured my mind, for I have a deep interest in the character and conduct of the Commission itself, as well as in the fair fame of its members. It is these anonymous slanders that associations and individuals have to dread. It is the whispered insinuation, for which no one is responsible, and the point of which is intangible, that ruins reputation and thwarts worthy objects. This is not the first time that the Commission has had to demand specified charges and avowed names, and has failed to get them. When you informed me of these rumors, I wrote at once to the President of the Commission to demand an investigation, as it was my duty to do. As he has invited it, and you do not see fit to further it, I can only conclude that these charges have no better foundation than the others.

I am glad to find that the charge is not one of pecuniary delinquency. I "inferred" it, because I could conceive of no other way in which the official conduct of any member of the Commission could be involved.

I have the honor to be Sir, your obedient servant,

G— G—.

Mr. J. C. H. is quite willing to say in a "private conversation" to an intimate friend, what would injure in that friend's estimation and in the estimation of all his friends to whom the same "private conversation" might be repeated, a member or members of the Commission, and through them, all others who are at work in the same body. He did not refer to "pecuniary delinquency," but to some other delinquency, which is not yet discovered.

Again, we give below an example of another kind of covert attack. A soldier writes a letter to his wife, for publication in a paper known as the "North Branch Democrat," and published at Tankhannock, Pa. The letter is dated at "Camp near Petersburg, Aug. 4, 1864," and the following extract from it concerns the Sanitary Commission.

Among the many humbugs which have grown out of this war, there is none that ranks higher than the much vaunted Sanitary Commission, the labors and charities of which have been so eulogized by suborned newspaper correspondents and others. It would be but just to the public, which has made such liberal contributions to sustain it, were some person well acquainted with the manner in which the Sanitary Commission business is conducted here, to make an expose of the proceedings of its agents, so that those who have flattered themselves that they were sending luxuries and comforts to the sick and wounded soldiers might be gratified with a knowledge of how their charities had been dispensed and who reaped the large share of the benefits disposed of. At City Point, there are now lying some four or five vessels loaded with sanitary stores, and I am informed that an entire wharf is devoted to the business of the Commission. It has, besides, vessels at Fortress Monroe, Norfolk, and in every harbor in possession of the United States army. These vessels are loaded with every variety of clothing suitable for army use, tin ware, canned fruits, fresh vegetable, tables, wines, brandy, gin, whiskey, rum, porter, cider, and every other known stimulant, in endless quantities. There are printed forms, for requisitions, furnished to the officers of the different organizations throughout the army, and all that is necessary to procure a wagon load of anything desired is to fill out one of the blank forms, naming the articles desired, sign any M. D., or mule driver's name to the bottom and load up your wagon. As a consequence, few of the articles furnished by the Sanitary ever reach those for whom they were intended. The army officers furnish their tables with luxuries, get fuddled on the stimulants, and draw their shirts, drawers, &c., from this source. The coarse varieties of food—"sauer kraut," pickles, cabbage, onions, &c., fall to the share of the men, but come so seldom and in such diminished quantities that they only furnish cause for grumbling, and are not received with any degree of thankfulness whatever. I do not doubt but that the Commission has accomplished some good among the hospitals, but nothing in proportion to the demoralizing influence it has exerted in other quarters, and if the whole arrangements were confined entirely to the hospitals, or wiped out of existence, it would be an absolute blessing to the army. As it is, it is only a whiskey shop on a large scale, furnishing employment to scores of idle loafers, and a very convenient purveying establishment for army officers, whereat goods are furnished, to their class free, for which the too credulous public pays. Hereafter, if you have anything to bestow upon your country's defenders, send it direct to some acquaintance in the army who will need and appreciate the favor; but, by all means, give the Sanitary Commission the cold shoulder. It is an arrant imposition, as at present conducted, and the public should know it.

Now see the correspondence concerning it. On August 29, the paper reaches a friend of the truth, who informs the Commission as follows:

I send to your address, to-day, a most infamous letter from "Clint," a soldier in the army. The name of this man who signs his name "Clint," is D— C. K—, 3d N. Y. Independent Battery, Artillery Brigade, 6th Army Corps. I thought it entirely proper that you should be informed of this letter: the author should be rebuked.

When the letter was forwarded to our agency at City Point, Dr. A. McDonald, in charge of the work of the Commission at that place, issued the following instructions to Mr. J. W. Johnson, the experienced Superintendent of Field Relief Corps:

Mr. Johnson will please see "Clint," and find out what he has to say about Sanitary matters.

Just nail Mr. "Clint," if you can, and make him retract this wholesale lie, if possible, over his own signature.

ALEX. McDONALD.

MR. JOHNSON'S REPLY.

HOSPITAL, 2ND CORPS,
Nov. 18, 1864. }

MY DEAR DOCTOR:—During the early part of October, I called on D. C. K— respecting an article which was attributed to him, and published in a paper you had sent to me.

In presence of his captain he admitted that he was author of article signed "Clint," stated that it was a private letter to his wife, not intended for publication. On being pressed for facts on which his statements were founded, he said he could not recollect any special act, but had made his statement from general camp rumors, which he supposed were true. He told me that he would write a letter for publication, and have it ready in a few days.

I called on him on the 16th, when he replied that he had been busy with his papers, and had not time to write it. I then placed the matter in Mr. Holbrook's hands, requesting him to see him frequently and if necessary his captain also, and to continue urging him for it. This has been done without success, as you will see by Mr. Holbrook's letter, to which I refer you for later particulars.

J. WARNER JOHNSON,
Superintendent.

Dr. ALEX. McDONALD, City Point, Va.

Mr. Holbrook's letter makes the following disclosures:—

1. That on his first visit to "Clint," he said he was too busy to write what he had stated to Mr. Johnson; viz., that he was not in possession of any testimony to substantiate his charges.

2. That on the next visit, he had made up his mind that he would not write a letter acknowledging his mistake.

3. That he would not write it because it would be made use of by Mr. Johnson or the Sanitary Commission.

Thus "Clint" writes a letter, making grave charges against the Commission, without any evidence to sustain them; refuses to admit the injustice he has done to himself and the Commission, because his admission would be used in justification of the truth.

This correspondence has been presented to show just how the thousand rumors that frighten timid and jealous people, arise; how little foundation they have; how little importance is to be attached to them, and to remind our friends that they whose faith in the Commission may be shaken by such stories, have a feeble faith. May it be strengthened.

THREE MONTHS IN THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

NO. III.—FROM PORT ROYAL, VA., TO WHITE HOUSE LANDING ON THE PAUMUNKEY.

The loading up of the steamers with the wounded ones, which commenced on Friday evening, was continued throughout Saturday, and by midnight all of them were cared for, and those of our Relief Agents not detailed to go on the transports with the wounded, were resting on the Kent, the Mary F. Rapley and other vessels, of which we had quite a fleet. During the day upwards of one thousand contrabands, of all ages and sizes, had gathered on the dock, asking to be taken to the land of freedom. Each one carried some article of household use, and it was very gratifying to see our government so mindful of them, a fine vessel was set apart for their use, for which favor they showed their appreciation by holding, at midnight, a service of praise and prayer to God, their deliverer; reminding one strongly of the song of Miriam on the thither side of the Red Sea. A more beautiful scene was never before presented on the Rappahannock than the full shining moon witnessed that night. Not less than thirty vessels riding at anchor, or made fast to the improvised docks; away up stream lay the transports freighted with precious cargoes of maimed and suffering patriots; below us were the liberated slaves,—the unwitting cause of all this suffering and death,—rejoicing in a prospective condition, of which they possessed only the most vague ideas, while between the two, hovered that minister of mercy and love, whom God evoked from his favored ones in this and other lands, and personified in the U. S. Sanitary Commission, and which through myriad channels was night and day performing its heaven-born mission among all colors and conditions.

THE SABBATH.

The Sabbath dawned serene and bright, and at 9 A.M., we started down the river. As the day wore on, one by one of the agents appeared on deck, refreshed and cheerful. Among the company on board was Dr. Briggs, of California, who had come from that far off State to witness the workings of the Commission, and though he had been with us but a few days, he so thoroughly gave himself up to the work of charity, as to win the praise of every agent. This gentleman, Mr. John A. Anderson invited to conduct religious worship. He accepted, and the service was held. His text was from Luke xiv. 12-14. It was a discourse eminently practical and inspiring, for he spoke of the peculiar position occupied by his auditors in relation to the fearful contest they are now waging, and if he spoke with great fervor it is not at all surprising, for was he not just from the most terrible scenes a man can dare to look upon? For many weeks the sermon and its surroundings were the theme of numerous conversations. In that particular I was highly gratified, for I had been led to believe, therefore, that the U. S. Sanitary Commission was a godless institution, yet to my astonishment I found most of my companions God-fearing men and women. There was not a song of Zion I commenced singing but was well-known and ably supported by the ladies and gentlemen on board. Nor was this all, on board the other vessels divine service was also held, and on our downward trip it frequently happened, that as the vessels neared each other for the respective commanders to counsel together, both ships company's would join in singing some familiar hymn. Thus was the time spent until we arrived at the White House landing, at 6 P.M., on Monday, May 30.

WHITE HOUSE, VA.

It was a truly desolate looking place, hallowed as it had been by its associations with Washington. As I viewed its charred walls and devastated tombs, I could not help exclaiming, "O secession what hast thou not wrought?" As we were early on the ground no wounded had yet reached there, but fresh troops were being pushed to the front rapidly, and we were soon made aware that their commissariat was in some way defective, for many of the brave fellows were going hungry away. Almost in the time it takes me to tell it, the utensils were on shore, coffee was made and the work of feeding commenced. We also discovered a lot of sick soldiers scattered around over an area of four miles, these were gathered up and properly cared for. While engaged in this good work the smiling month of May left us, and as the dawn of the first June morning sent forth its greetings, an installment of three hundred poor wounded ones reached the landing at White House. J. J. B.

THE NEW YORK MEETING.

MEETING OF DELEGATES FROM THE SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETIES.

A meeting of delegates from the various Soldiers' Aid Societies of New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, parts of Massachusetts, Vermont, New Jersey, and Canada, was held in the hall of the Cooper Institute, Wednesday evening, Nov. 16, 1864, under the auspices of the Woman's Central Association of Relief. There was a large attendance, principally composed of ladies who are always foremost in works of benevolence. Over the platform was a large diagram, furnished by Dr. Bellows, President of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, exhibiting the organization and different agencies of the Commission.

Professor Hitchcock, in accordance with the announcement, assumed the Chair, and having called the meeting to order, called on the Rev. Mr. Duryea, of the Reformed Dutch Church, to open the meeting with prayer. Mr. Duryea then offered prayer for the nation, the army, and the efforts made in its behalf.

Professor HITCHCOCK proceeded to explain the object of the meeting; he said:— It is neither fitting nor needful that I should stand long between you and the gentlemen who have come here this evening fully charged with important information pertaining to the great interest which has called us together. What the Sanitary Commission is doing, and what it has done is known to every person on this continent, perhaps, we may say, is known to every person in the whole length and breadth of Christendom. The Society at whose call we are convened this evening, The Woman's Central Association of Relief, is simply an organization tributary to the Sanitary Commission. It is, we may say, one of its tap-roots. It is through this organization that large amounts of needed stores have been sent forward to the army, over all the field. This tap-root has its many fibres running through the soil in the country around about, and those fibres are here to-night, namely, these auxiliary societies from Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, and other localities which are represented by delegates to this Convention. And I suppose I do but justly interpret the opinion of this New York City Society, and of these kindred helping societies, when I say that the work in which they are engaged, is not merely a work of mercy, but also of patriotism as well. They have devoted themselves to this work not merely because the soldiers are wounded, sick and suffering, but because the hearts of these women are in the cause for which these men bleed and suffer. So that this instrumentality has been yielding nutriment to the patriotic sentiment of the country, as well as affording relief to the soldier.

These societies are convened this evening that they may compare notes, see what has been accomplished already, and take counsel in regard to the future, which also offers its burdens, because none of us can be so sanguine as to suppose that we have quite reached the end of this sad chapter yet. Would to God that the only men on this continent who can make peace would make it by grounding their arms, by saluting the old flag, by accepting the old protection of the nation's laws. (Applause.) But these only possible peace makers on the continent are resolutely bent on war, and so long as that is their choice there is nothing left for us but to fight it through. (Applause.) I speak this not vauntingly, not in the military spirit at all, for that is not the mood of mind in which we are met. We are met to consider the mercies which pertain to this work, to contemplate the burdens which are still to rest on our shoulders, and to gird ourselves for those tasks which are still before us; and while we welcome these ladies from the tributary societies which represent so many States, we are under the sad necessity of saying to them, go back to further labors, for other months, for another year—it may be for other years, so long as God permits this wanton rebellion to exist. While our brave boys are standing at their guns, we have only to stand behind and care for them when they fall, and nurse them when they are sick; they fighting to the end of this sad illiad of our woes, we caring for them to the end. And here on this altar we lay ourselves afresh, be it for one month, for two months, for six months, for one year, for two years, for three years—until peace comes by righteousness which God can approve. Until that supreme hour, so long as our boys have to fight, we will care for them. (Applause.) That is our resolve to-night.

You will be addressed by several gentlemen who understand, from long and intimate acquaintance with the work, all the necessities of the case. Mr. Potter, will now make a brief report.

Mr. HOWARD POTTER then read a list of the various Soldiers' Aid Societies represented at the meeting, and handed in to the Chairman the reports of the delegates present, and a short report, from which it appears that the Women's Central Relief Association had expended in purchasing material, flannel and other things the sum of $29,329 31, of which the different societies had contributed nearly one-half. It had also received the following articles:—cotton shirts, 17,180; flannel shirts, 24,212; cotton drawers, 9,258; flannel drawers, 11,836; socks, 6,776; slippers, 2,564; wrappers, 1,336; handkerchiefs, 46,444; bed sacks, 5,008; pillow sacks, 4,910; pillows, 3,844; pillow cases, 6,912; sheets, 9,012; bed quilts, 2,067; towels, 13,711; bandages, 79 bbls.; old cotton, 139 bbls.; dried fruit, 202 bbls.; jelly, 2,185 jars; pickles, 4,500 galls.; whisky, 403 bottles; brandy, 3,726 bottles; blackberry brandy and cordial, 9,816 bottles.

The supplies have been distributed by the Supply Committee during the summer to Washington, Baltimore, and Harper's Ferry, (for Gen. Grant's and Gen. Sheridan's armies), to Norfolk and City Point, to Newbern, N. C., Beaufort, S. C., and New Orleans. It has also filled requisitions for several U. S. steamers and the naval stations at Key West and Pensacola. The military hospitals in this vicinity have made frequent, but small demands, which have generally been complied with. All these goods have been given out, either upon the order of the Sanitary Commission, or upon requisitions from Surgeons.

The New England and New York State Soldiers' Homes in this city have been so efficiently conducted that the claims upon the Special Relief Committee have been but small, being chiefly directed to the relief of a few cases of extreme suffering from sickness and wounds.

The Corresponding Committee has distributed during the past six months, 29,717 copies of the "Sanitary Commission Bulletin" and reports, at an average expense of 1½ cents a copy.

The Treasurer reports the receipt of $38,318 82 which have been expended by the several Committees.

Mr. F. N. KNAPP, Associate Secretary of the Sanitary Commission for the East, was then introduced to the Convention. He said:

My friends, I suppose what is wanted of me to-night, is to give to those who represent the aid societies, tributary to the Sanitary Commission, in order that they may carry it home to their various organizations such information concerning the use that is made of the stores put into the hands of the Commission, as will give assurance that their work is not in vain, that the supplies do reach the soldiers, for whom they are intended, and that the needs of the soldiers are known to those who have charge of these supplies. It is not required of me, I apprehend, to present to you the magnitude of this undertaking, and the greatness of the benefit that it confers upon the needy soldiers of the army and through them upon the country, for the sake of inspiring new zeal, but simply to tell you how we do the work, so that you may be able to answer the questions which are constantly put by those who are so anxious to do all the good they can, that they become skeptical in regard to the good that has been done by the Sanitary Commission.

In the first place, I will state in general terms the principles upon which the work is done. The design is to secure the greatest good to the greatest number, by the most equal distribution of the supplies that are placed in our hands. Our work is first to distribute the supplies which are sent to us; secondly, to purchase other supplies with the means furnished; thirdly, to meet cases of special distress arising out of emergencies and exigencies where the ordinary provisions for relief do not suffice.

It is proper to state that we do not pretend that our working is perfect, or that there are no mistakes made in the issuing of these supplies. Some of them do not get into the hands they are intended for, and some wants are not met. Our agents are not at every possible post in the field; and we do not pretend that every person connected with the Commission is so devoted to his work that he will allow nothing but the thought of the best interest of the soldier to influence him. Ours is a human undertaking, and conducted by human agencies, therefore we cannot guard against misuse and abuse in every instance. But I know we can give you assurance that in the main, the object for which you are laboring has been accomplished, and that the amount of good that has been done, is vastly larger than you yourselves hoped for when you were at work, or than you even now suppose. For only those who have been on the field, and in the hospitals, know, or can know, the twentieth part of the blessing that has attended this instrumentality.

The question is frequently asked, and it was repeated to me to-night, since I came from the adjoining room. How do you distribute these supplies in such a way that you know they reach the soldiers? I will tell you briefly through what process they get there, and by what safeguards they are protected in their transit.

HOW THE SUPPLIES REACH THE SOLDIER.

An invoice is sent, say to Washington, of supplies which are on the way to one of the storehouses there. As soon as it reaches Washington it is copied into an invoice book, numbered, recorded and filed. A corresponding number is entered into a larger book, with the name of the place from which it is sent, the party who sends it, the party who receives it, the date of its being sent, the date of its arrival, or if it does not arrive, the statement of the fact, and the probable time that it may be expected, so that it may be looked out for. A copy of the invoice is then put into the hands of the Receiving Storekeeper, as he is called, who receipts for the same, and becomes responsible to the office for the goods. If they do not arrive, then he makes a minute of it, and search is made for the proper person upon whom the responsibility rests. When the goods arrive notice is sent to the office, and they are entered among the stock on hand, and the Chief Clerk becomes responsible for them. They are then issued by him upon such requisitions as we think insures their getting to the places where they are most needed. These requisitions are written orders upon the Storekeeper. He is not allowed to issue anything without giving a receipt for the same, and he brings every day to the Chief Clerk, an account of what he has issued the day before, as well as what he has received, together with a statement of the stock on hand. He sends on his receipts to the Chief Clerk, who thus has a constant check upon the person who receives the goods at the Receiving Storehouse, and upon the person who issues them at the other storehouse.

CAUSES OF COMPLAINT.

After passing from the hands of the Chief Clerk, the supplies are distributed with a careful scrutiny on the part of the Chief Clerk, of the actual needs. The demands may be greater than the supplies on hand, or than the Chief Clerk feels justified in issuing. In that case, he distributes according to his judgment, where the need is greatest, rather than where the demand is greatest, and with reference to an equal distribution. There is a constant necessity for cutting down the requisitions of the surgeons, and from friends in the hospitals. This, of course, creates ill feeling and complaint on the part of those who cannot get all they want, at the various posts. Many complaints arise from this cause.

HOW GOODS ARE DISTRIBUTED.

When the goods are brought to the vicinity of the hospitals where they are required, the Hospital Visitors, (to whom reference may be made, as doing a most admirable work), look out for them, and make sure that they reach the soldiers in the several wards of the hospital. Of course, it is impossible for them to follow each garment or every morsel of food, but they can keep a general supervision, and they give us constant assurance that they reach those for whom they are intended. For these Visitors give not merely an hour's attendance, but go from bed to bed and find out what the men want, and what they have got.

FIELD DISTRIBUTION.

The supplies in the field are distributed very largely by the agents of the Commission personally, to the men, so much so, that during the recent campaign in the Army of the Potomac, for illustration, thousands of barrels of fresh vegetables, and over two hundred tons of fresh tomatoes were distributed to the men in the trenches, and in the camps, by our own agents. They saw the men receive them, and in the majority of cases, saw them eat them.

The garments are also distributed by our agents personally. Often, of course, they cannot see to giving them to the individual men, but they carry them into the wards, and it is there known that the Sanitary Commission has brought so many garments for so many of the most needy men.

I can assure you that we do know that in the great majority of cases at the front, where, of course, there is less possibility of a careful detail of supervision, the articles given out do reach the men. Nearer Washington and other principle depots of supplies, receipts are taken so far as it is possible upon regular requisitions, indorsed by Brigade Surgeons, and there is a degree of restraint put upon those who call for issues, which gives us assurance that they reach their destination. That restraint however, or red tape, as it is called, is relaxed when the emergency requires it. After three years of experience, a proper mean has been found between undue restraint and a too free scattering of supplies, so that now, I believe, if a shrewd, honest business man were to investigate the matter, although he would, of course, find occasional misuse, he would say, in view of the humanitarian as well as the business side of the question, that the method adopted is perfectly satisfactory. I say this after large and careful observation.

AFTER A BATTLE.

As an instance of relaxation, I will refer to the fact that immediately after a battle no restraint is placed upon the issues. We then rely upon the honesty of the men employed. A man for instance, whom we believe or know to be honest says, "Under yonder tree are gathered twenty wounded men; in that barn are forty more; they have been without food and blankets since morning, and the Government supply will not reach them before night. Will you intrust us with your supplies to carry to them?" In such cases we say, yes. If possible, we receive from them without delay, receipts, and then our agents pass round from point to point and see that the supplies reach the men. It is at such times that the restraints are most likely to be removed. Amid such scenes of suffering men are not likely to do wrong and abuse their privileges. It is not in human nature to be selfish at such times.

BETWEEN THE FIELD AND HOSPITAL.

When the wounded soldiers are gathered at intermediate points between the battle-field and general hospital, then these restraints are so far removed as to make sure that the wounded shall not suffer, if we can help it, for want of supplies. This was the case at Belle Plain, Gettysburg, Fredericksburg, Winchester, City Point, and various other places. It is the policy of the Commission not only to go out and meet the wounded with supplies, but to anticipate their needs; in other words, to wait for those needs to occur. Therefore it is that in some instances supplies have been lost and captured by the enemy. In nineteen out of twenty cases where we have waited days, weeks, and sometimes even months to meet emergencies, we have not waited in vain. I mention this, because we have had many inquiries why we did not wait until the need arises and not keep such a reserve on hand; why we kept agents waiting anticipating battles, as at Martinsburg and Winchester; why we spent the people's money in that way. We do so because we know it is better to spend a thousand dollars in waiting than to have a thousand men suffer by waiting themselves; and because we know that one life saved to the army and to some home (for we put the army always before home) is worth a thousand dollars spent in waiting. (Applause.)

WHY ARE SUPPLIES AT HOSPITALS?

Another question naturally asked is in regard to the propriety of giving out supplies to the men after they have reached points where the Government can help them. And this question suggests also another broader one, namely: Why is it that at this period when the Government is doing so much, sanitary supplies are demanded at all? Are not the needs more imaginary than real? I was requested to refer to this to-night.

Our experience is that the needs do continue, and that they will continue so long as the army is in the field—not merely comforts that friends at home are anxious to supply, but real wants which must be supplied to maintain muscle in the arm of war—that it is not merely a call of humanity, but a wise and provident policy, giving strength to the army. For example, as soon as a man is wounded and carried from the battle-field to the place where the wounded are gathered, it is assumed that he will be immediately transferred to Washington. But it is found that many must remain on account of the seriousness of their wounds. In the meantime others are brought in, until what was intended as simply a temporary hospital or shelter for the men, becomes by degrees a large and permanent place for gathering the men. The Government meantime does not see fit to make arrangement for a permanent hospital, and, consequently, the men do not receive the provision which the Government usually affords. In that way the agency of the Sanitary Commission comes in and benefits the soldiers largely.

TRANSFER OF WOUNDED.

So, in the transfer of the wounded, the Government assumes that adequate means are at hand to make the men comfortable until they reach a certain station, whereas it frequently happens that a train is started with only one quarter of the blankets necessary to keep the men from suffering, and with insufficient supplies of food and attendance, because the Government agents posted there had not power to draw supplies for these temporary purposes. One train which I accompanied from Winchester to Harper's Ferry was five miles long. A wagon broke down at such a point that the rest of the train not being able to pass it was delayed three hours, so that we did not arrive till midnight, and but for the provision furnished by the Commission many of the men would have suffered from hunger.

HOME COMFORTS.

The spirit which we endeavor to inspire in every new agent who joins us in this work is this: to feel that we are not ourselves, but that we are you—that these supplies are not merely so many blankets to cover the soldiers and so much food to feed them, but they are home blessings to the soldier. If there is one single thought more than another which we endeavor to impress upon the hearts of our working men, it is to try to make the soldiers feel that the blankets and the food come from home. There is a healing power in this consciousness more than I can tell. It is not merely sentiment, but reality, as we who have had experience in this work can testify.

ISSUES.

We have issued about 30,000 blankets, from 50 to 60,000 cushions, of which the Government supplies almost none; 43,000 bed-ticks, to be filled to meet emergencies in temporary hospitals, and but for which the soldiers would have had to lie for days and sometimes weeks on the floor or ground; from 50 to 60,000 pillows, 130,000 pillow cases, about 20,000 pillow ticks, to be filled with hay or straw, 60,000 quilts, 119,000 sheets, 255,000 towels, 300,000 pairs of drawers of different kinds, 275,000 handkerchiefs, over 400,000 shirts, different kinds, 230,000 socks, nearly 40,000 wrappers, 30,000 cans of meat, and about 30 tons of canned milk. Many of these articles are not furnished by the Government at all. An account is kept of every article issued, and constant reference is made to the record.

SPECIAL RELIEF WORK.

This special relief department is doing not merely a supplemental work to the Government, but a work which the Government has never undertaken and probably never would undertake. We have, in fact, the whole work in our hands—that of caring for soldiers where, but for us, no provision would be made. Since the commencement of our work we have received in our Homes over half a million of men, and spent over half a million of dollars. We have 20 or 30 Lodges in different parts of the country, wherever they are wanted. We have now engaged in this work forty or fifty agents. The expense is large, it is true, but we believe it is justified.

My friends, if I could only convey to you the feelings of the soldiers, their constant, grateful expressions for what they receive from the hands of the Commission, you would be able to carry home with you the conscious assurance that the gifts which your various societies are furnishing are blessings to the wounded and suffering soldiers. (Applause.)

REMARKS OF COL. RAY HAWKINS.

After speaking of his wounds and privations, he said, as he was not yet able to return to the front, he felt like doing something for the cause.

I consulted some gentlemen about the Sanitary Commission. Their answer was, "We would like to give money to that cause if we only knew that the soldiers would get it." "Well," said I, "my friends, there is one thing very certain: if you don't give they will never receive. It is your duty to give, and trust to Providence that the soldiers get it."

I began to work and worked on, and suffice it to say, that during the past six months I have established in the States of Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, and Kansas, over 300 Auxiliary Aid Societies. (Applause.)

I believe there are few towns now in Illinois, Indiana, or Ohio, that have not an aid Society. Even in Missouri, which has suffered so much from the rebellion, the loyal ladies are contributing their mites to the Sanitary Commission. And even in Kansas, in the city of Lawrence, that was burned by Quantrell's men, and is rebuilt with board cabins, the loyal ladies had established an aid society, and were at work for the soldiers. (Applause) And throughout the entire West they hold their society meetings regularly, every week, one day being devoted each week to the soldiers. They make drawers, shirts, handkerchiefs, towels, bandages, and lint. I saw aged women, with trembling, palsied hands, picking linen to pieces, and making lint for the wounded boys.

If the ladies and gentlemen present tonight, could only visit the hospitals at Nashville, Chattanooga, Knoxville, and Atlanta; if you could go into the wards of the hospitals and see the sick and wounded boys when the Sanitary agent comes along, and distributes on each side, as he passes through, such things as the boys need to make them comfortable and happy; you would be assured of the success of the Commission. Perchance some poor boy gets a little box of some delicate article, and finds the name of some dear friend at home labelled on it. Perchance the name of a sister or a mother is written upon the parcel, and he turns over in his couch and says, "John, my sister has not forgotten me, though I have been so long away." If you could only see those countenances light up with gratitude towards the loyal people of the North, and especially the ladies that are engaged in this noble enterprise, you would feel amply repaid and rewarded for your kind efforts at home. While they have been guarding your homes at the front, they rejoice to know that you have been caring for them, and toiling for them around the midnight lamp.

The Sanitary Commission, I may safely say, has done as much good to the cause of liberty and humanity as would have been effected by thirty thousand recruits sent into the field. (Applause.) If you succeed by nursing in saving or curing one sick or wounded veteran, so that he is able to return to his regiment, it is equal to five raw recruits. For while every one of the five may make a good soldier, it takes time to do it. You can't expect to take a man right from the plow and make a soldier of him immediately. Send him to the front, into the swamps of the South, and the chances are that in a few days he is taken sick and removed to a hospital, because he has not become acclimated, as the veterans have.

REMARKS OF DR. BELLOWS.

I do not know how your hearts are affected by hearing these words—the Army of the Cumberland, the Army of the Tennessee, the Army of the James, the Army of the Potomac—banded about from lip to lip, in connection with the Sanitary Commission; as if it were an every day thought, a simple and easy thing, that a benevolent, spontaneous association like ours, should have a nation in its arms, and an army spreading all over this vast continent, the object of its daily solicitation and its care. For one, I feel a devout, a humble, an inexpressible gratitude to the Almighty God, who has permitted an association to come into being, and to organize an enterprise that for three years has been sustained by the people of this country in carrying on a work so sublime in its magnitude, so vast in its reach, so infinite, I might almost say, in its details, so deep, so high in its motives, spreading so far; and yet, in the magnificent scope of its enterprise, not forgetting the least duty or opportunity in which the soldier could be helped, from one end of this vast field to the other, and the largest ever occupied by armies and for the longest time in which such vast armies were ever before on a field of war. There is a grandeur in the work which the people of the United States have undertaken, and in which the women of America have performed so large a part, an enterprise which has united the whole people in one great work of benevolence; which now has stretched itself from one end to the other of this vast continent; as well known on the slope of the Pacific as it is here on the Atlantic. The hearts of those people, three thousand miles from yours, are beating in the strictest unison, combined and united in one perfect plan, working with you as if you were sprung from them, a wheel in the same coach; so that their sympathies, affections and intelligences, correspond absolutely, with perfect, practical exactness to yours, in the objects, purposes and modes of operation connected with this Sanitary Commission. I cannot tell you the emotions of joy, and pride, and national glory which filled my soul after sailing six thousand miles around our continent, to find on the Pacific coast American men and women feeling precisely as we did, and not only expressing our own familiar national thoughts and ideas, but uttering our humane and philanthropic sentiments in regard to this Commission, in the identical style and with the identical feelings that I had left here at home. It gave me a conception of the more than colossal thought that could stride this continent, rest its feet on opposite shores, and poising itself, could reach down from its extended limbs to one common heart which animated a pair of corresponding arms that were active in the great ministration of love to our great American army. (Applause.)

And when I find the same ideas filling the hearts and souls of the men and women on both sides of the continent, from the farthest north down to the deepest south, except where the angry blood of rebellion and secession stops the progress of human sentiments and ideas, then I extend my eye, and in all parts of the world, in all languages, rejoice to hear sympathy expressed for this great American work. It occupies the thoughts and feelings of journals in French, German, and English. I picked up accidentally, on my own study table, as I left this evening, a powerful review in the best English Medical Journal on the work of the American Sanitary Commission. I picked up the London Globe, and there were three columns devoted to the Sanitary Commission. I took up the London News, and found two columns devoted to it. And in all of them were expressions of amazement and surprise that the semi-barbarous people of America, who were incapable of self-government, and were going to rack and ruin on account of their ignorance of the principles of law and government; had yet succeeded in producing, through this organization, such results that they stood before the world, in this particular alone, as a type of a civilized community and a christianized people. (Applause.) Don't you think that we have, all of us who have sustained this enterprise from the beginning, some right to pluck up courage and thank God, and determine to go on to the end; making this work, to which we have pledged ourselves, from this time forward, more effective, more skillful, more humane, more tender, more generous, more complete. (Applause.) I, who have studied this matter, and have been in a position to know the character of its work, pledge myself to you that, if it is not well carried on, if it is not all that it ought to be, in point of prudence, of exactness, of thorough fidelity on the part of agents, it has these imperfections not from the want of the most prayerful, the most intense, the most constant devotion on the part of those who have this business in hand. This country does not know, and it is not important it should know, and certainly I am not here to boast that I know, the men who have worked shoulder to shoulder, hand in hand, with me since the beginning of this war. But I know their daily toils and their daily anxiety in regard to the pecuniary burden that has pressed upon them. I know how solemn they have felt their responsibility to be in organizing the general operations, in which every dollar spent becomes a matter of anxious investigation. Every bill must be passed in our daily session, every point scrutinized, and every guard and every caution invented and applied, that human ingenuity can search out, to secure a wise expenditure of the money placed in our hands.

And do you know what pulling and hauling we have had with our active agents in the field? Mr. Knapp has spoken to you. I wish Dr. Newberry, who represents the Western Department, had also spoken to you. The agents in the field, who see the suffering, are rummaging at our stores to pull out supplies; wanting to spend more money, telling us the work is not half done, and that they need a great deal more of every article and more liberty to spend. They pull at our heart-strings and resources of treasure and supplies in every shape and form; and here we stand, the guardians of the people's money that has been put into our hands, checking them, cutting them off, cautioning them, beseeching them not to make such heavy requisitions, sending down people to inquire if they cannot do with less. And thus, between this upper and nether millstone, this business is ground out with pain, anxiety and controversy, such as the apostles had together. We have this strife among ourselves, and what is it for? It is a strife between those anxious to be faithful on one side to the soldier, and on the other to the people, who supply the necessaries and means of helping the soldier.

And then we hear criticisms made by idle tongues that don't know what they are talking about, by persons that have never been down and investigated the matter; and if they had, could not know much better than before they went the facts of the case—persons who stick their heads into a barrel, and then pretend to give wise counsels about a business that must be studied like a profession to be understood. I deny that anybody knows and is competent to criticize the operations of the Sanitary Commission, who has not devoted his time for months to it, any more than he is competent to criticize the business affairs of Stewart, or any other mercantile concern whose dealings amount to millions, and whose trade extends over a whole continent. How do you think he would value the criticism of one, who, after looking into his books of account for half an hour, should feel himself competent to inform the public that his business was not conducted in a way satisfactory to them? (Laughter.) I assure you, so far as I am concerned, and as the gentlemen of the Sanitary Commission are concerned, we have profound peace in our consciences as to our designed fidelity to the vastest trust, perhaps, that has ever been committed by the benevolence of any people on the face of the earth, to a small number of men. We feel this to our heart's core, and God send the time when the burden can be lifted from our shoulders and hearts, and we can give back to the people the trust that they have confided to our hands. Meanwhile, I ask you to trust us a little longer. We shall not run away, and the time will come when you will have an opportunity of looking very closely into all our affairs.

But let me say, we have very little to complain of after all, and I take it, no more criticism or jealousy exists than must inevitably attend the organization and operations of an institution so extensive, so ramified, and that has so much in its hands. Therefore, grateful for the confidence that the women and men of the country have reposed in us thus far, we say that we have succeeded, and we are succeeding, and we are confident that we are going to succeed to the end of the last chapter and page of this great war in which we are engaged. Dear California, so far off that she cannot see us, trusts us with her young fresh heart, as if we were real apostles sent down from heaven, and pours out her gold and silver into our hands. When I went there I found not a particle of distrust. The only question was, What means shall we adopt to do more for the Sanitary Commission? (Applause.) And her people went to work to do about twice as much as they had ever done before, and when I left there they had about a dozen agents in the field establishing Aid Societies in every town of fifty inhabitants throughout the whole coast, so that there will not be a little agricultural hamlet in all that region that will not, in the course of the next three months, be forwarding its means into our hands. When I proposed to establish dime societies there, "Dime!" said they, "you mean half-dollar; that is the least anybody here is willing to give." (Laughter.) Only yesterday we received a "gold-telegram," informing us that we could draw from the banks $16,000 in gold, the first instalment on the new arrangement, probably the product of a single month of labor. Two thousand more came from a little place called Nappa, where they must be all pretty wide awake, I think, in spite of the name. (Laughter.) Such is the spirit that prevails there and should prevail here. You are more occupied here, called upon in a great variety of ways to give, but let us hope for still greater success in our efforts here in this cause.

Let me say to the lady delegates, that they may be particular and minute in their inquiries. Put me in the witness-box tomorrow. We promise to tell you the precise truth and give you all the information we have in our power to give. Continue in the good work in which you are engaged. After you are satisfied with your explorations, return to the fields from which you came encouraged, and with the blessing of God, the smiles and approbation of all good men, the gratitude of the army, and the admiration of your country, go on aiding the gracious Commission, and flooding the resources of this Central Aid Society with the stores that we so much need. For remember, that a few months ago that 80 per cent. of all our supplies were in kind, but now we have come to the pitch when 80 per cent. are bought with the people's money. I tell you it is a sad state of things when we are obliged to go into the market and buy supplies. Hitherto seven millions of all we have distributed have been gifts in kind, about three millions is all we have received in money. We shall spend it all very rapidly if the people do not wake up to the duty of sending in, as they have done in times past, supplies in kind. It is from your aid societies that we must find that life blood that shall enable us to continue our work to the end. Don't fail us; don't let the country fail us in this great and glorious work. (Applause.)

Prof. HITCHCOCK then introduced the Rev. Dr. Adams.

The Rev. Dr. ADAMS said: If I were to ask this audience in what respect the speeches of Dr. Bellows and Mr. Knapp differ from the medical department of the government, I suppose you would respond that they need no supplement. I had come here with the intention of saying a few words, more in the way of expressing my interest in this subject, than in any supposed necessity for arguing with any who are skeptical concerning it. But at this late this hour I think the best favor I can render to the audience, is not to detain them with any remarks.

The doxology was sung and the convention adjourned.

LADIES MORNING MEETING.

In an upper room of the Cooper Union the delegates met on the following morning, to listen to details of the work from persons officially connected with the Commission. The meeting was largely attended, and greatly interested in what was said by the several speakers.

Dr. Bellows read a letter from Dr. Gordon Buck, of New York, regretting that he was unable to attend the meeting, and paying a high tribute to the work accomplished by the Sanitary Commission.

A large diagram, representing the various branches of the Commission, was placed behind the platform, by means of which the workings of the Commission were explained.

Dr. Bellows said that the most important part of the work was represented by the ladies who furnish the stores and supplies. He also explained the character of the organization. The central depot is at Washington, where the Board holds stated meetings.

The Central Committee, which consists of five members, is stationed in this city. It had been found necessary to compose the Committee of men who could meet frequently, and therefore it was necessary that they should reside here. This Committee, which has entire charge of the Commission when the Board is not in session in Washington, meets daily at three o'clock. Recently, two members have been added, one from Boston and one from Philadelphia, who meet with the Committee twice a month.

The General Secretary is the executive officer, and lives in New York. He frequently visits the field, and makes himself acquainted with the work performed, and the manner in which the officers of the Commission perform their duties. The Standing Committee also visits the field from time to time, and inspects the work of the Commission. The General Secretary reports to the Standing Committee.

The speaker said that the wisdom and skill of the founders of the Commission was proved by the fact that it has remained unchanged since it went into operation. The method and plans upon which it was formed were carefully designed, and founded on study and experience; and there has been no occasion to alter its workings. It is not a sentimental humane association, designed to embarrass the work of the government, nor to enervate the soldier, but to encourage the medical department of the army, and to help the government, the army, and the country.

In speaking of the workings of the Commission, the speaker said that it had not been the object of the Society to keep itself before the people more than was necessary to accomplish its work. He believed that much was done by the Commission for which the government received the credit, and he was willing that the credit of its labors should go to the government.

The Commission is divided into two departments, the Eastern and Western, with principal depots at Washington and Louisville. Each department is under the direction of an Associate Secretary, who guides and controls the several agents under his supervision.

The speaker said an experienced and capable man was constantly employed in buying stores for the Commission. In this city a committee, consisting of Messrs. A. A. Low, Jonathan Sturges, and W. B. Astor, examine the financial condition of the Commission at stated periods.

Dr. Bellows explained the workings of the office in Washington. He said that it was opened at daylight, business commencing at seven o'clock, and closing at eleven P.M. During the night a servant answered the bell, and supplied all proper requisitions. From this depot fifteen army posts and general hospitals are daily supplied with stores. Besides the daily calls from hospitals, there are at least one hundred applicants for individual relief, together with philanthropic ladies who solicit goods to distribute among sick and wounded soldiers. Each of these applicants has to be attended to, requiring much time and labor on the part of those employed by the Commission. In addition to the business transacted at the Washington office, general intelligence is given to strangers seeking information. It is, in fact, a general encyclopædia of military knowledge, to which hotel-keepers and others direct persons inquiring for regiments, brigades, or divisions. Lists are kept of all the surgeons in the various departments. There women, wives, fathers, boys, and others, go to learn of their friends.

The Home, which is near the railroad depot, has several hundred beds, where soldiers who have become separated from their commands, or for other reasons, having no place to sleep, are accommodated every night. There are twenty-five similar Homes throughout the country (although not so large), including those in Georgia.

As many as five hundred persons have visited the office in Washington during one day, on business.

The speaker explained the rigor of the army regulations, and the difficulty experienced by men in obtaining necessary supplies, which were at hand, but which could not properly be provided according to regulations. He said that these restrictions on the part of the government were necessary. Dr. Bellows added, that if the government had twice as many officers, and five times as many supplies, it could not do the work now done by the Sanitary Commission.

A lady handed the speaker a note, asking him to give some information in respect to the salaries paid to the officers of the Commission.

Dr. Bellows said that the Commission did not often employ volunteer agents, and that they did spend a good deal of money on salaries. They must have men who would be under rigid discipline, and would perform the work required of them. They did it to be economical. The Board received no remuneration, and the largest salary paid is to the General Secretary, who must be a man of ability, and whose entire time is given to the service. Fortunately, they had thus far been able to get men for moderate salaries. They employed from two hundred to five hundred men at an average of two dollars a day, less than was paid to mechanics.

The address of Dr. Bellows was interesting throughout, and at times eloquent.

At the close of his speech, the audience was addressed by Mrs. Barker, Hospital Visitor from Washington, and A. M. Sperry, Auxiliary Relief Agent from City Point. The meeting was in every respect a success, and the delegates separated with good cheer in the work, retiring to their homes renewed in spirit and purpose for future work.

DELEGATES

Present at Soldiers' Aid Society Council, New York, November 16 and 17, 1864.

ASSOCIATE MANAGERS.

- Miss F. Arnold, Eastern Westchester Co., N. Y.
 Mrs. W. D. Hamlin, Eastern Oneida Co., N. Y.
 Mrs. George Letchworth, Northern Cayuga Co., N. Y.
 Mrs. Wm. Starr Miller, North Western Dutchess Co., N. Y.
 Mrs. E. H. Redfield, Western Orange Co., N. Y.
 Miss G. B. Schuyler, South Western Westchester Co., N. Y.
 Mrs. Emma P. Thurber, Onondaga Co., N. Y.
 Mrs. C. E. Bacon, Northern Fairfield Co., Conn.
 Mrs. Benjamin Douglas, Middlesex Co., Conn.
 Mrs. John Olmsted, Hartford Co., Conn.
 Mrs. Lydia R. Ward, South-eastern Fairfield Co., Conn.
 Mrs. Eliza Howard Powers, Paterson, N. J.

NEW YORK.

- Anandale*, Mrs. J. C. Cruger.
 Mrs. Ab Staatz.
 Mrs. C. E. Sands.
 Mrs. John Bard.
Ashford, Miss Jane Losee.
Auburn, Mrs. C. H. Merriman.
 Mrs. Kirby, Samaritan Society

- Belfast*, Miss Mary Truesdell.
Broodalbin, Mrs. C. S. Jerome.
Brooklyn, Mrs. J. S. T. Stranahan.
 Mrs. S. B. Caldwell.
 Mrs. G. B. Archer.
 Mrs. N. Burchard.
 Mrs. J. Emery.
 Mrs. Halliday.
 Mrs. W. J. Miller.
 Miss Manning.
 Miss S. A. Perkins.
 Miss M. Stranahan.
 Mrs. Jesse Smith.
 Mrs. W. Cornell.
 Mrs. W. C. Goddard.
 Mrs. F. E. Taylor.
 Mrs. D. S. Mills.
 Mrs. J. S. Turner.

Cape Vincent, Mrs. H. A. House.
Dobb's Ferry, Mrs. J. M. Ackerman.
 Miss A. A. Hotchkiss.

Dunkirk, Mrs. O. S. Winans.
Ellenville, Mrs. George A. Dudley.
 Mrs. William C. Derby.
 Mrs. Alfred Neafie.

Garrisons, Miss Arden.
 Mrs. H. W. Belcher.
 Mrs. W. S. Livingston.
 Mrs. F. Livingston.

Glen Cove, Miss E. Valentine.
 Miss E. Coles.
 Miss E. Craft.

Gloversville, Mrs. M. Lebar.
 Mrs. E. W. Burlingame.

Goshen, Mrs. E. A. Redfield.
Harlem, Mrs. E. B. Haddem.
 Mrs. E. H. Gillette.
 Mrs. J. L. Colby.

Harrison, Mrs. David Haviland.
 Mrs. Joseph Park.
 Mrs. James Griffin.
 Mrs. W. F. Haviland.
 Miss Sarah Griffin.
 Miss M. Lenman.
 Mrs. Grady.

Irvington, Mrs. Thomas.
 Mrs. Crosby.
 Mrs. R. M. Blatchford.
 Mrs. Brown
 Miss Dutcher
 Miss Mulhollen.

Kingston, Miss Angela Tappan.
Leonardville, Mrs. Isaac Brown.
Mamaroneck, Mrs. A. N. Locke.
 Miss M. E. Knapp.
 Miss J. Halsted.
 Mrs. E. T. Stanley.
 Mrs. J. P. Lyon.

Newburgh, Mrs. E. Hasbrouck
 Mrs. L. P. Dodge.

North White Creek, Mrs. Moneyppenny.
Nyack, Mrs. John G. Gunn.
Oblong, Miss Mary S. Cline.
 Miss Clara C. Reed.

Palisades, Mrs. Greenleaf.
 Mrs. Park.

Peekskill, Mrs. Dr. Stewart.
 Miss Mills.
 Mrs. G. F. Hussey.

Potsdam, Miss C. S. Partridge.
Poughkeepsie, Mrs. Richard Bayley.
 Miss Julia N. Crosby.
Pulaski, Mrs. A. C. Burton.
 Miss M. J. Ingersoll
Rhinebeck, Mrs. Stephen Schuyler.
 Mrs. William Cross.
 Mrs. W. Starr Miller.
 Mrs. Lewis Marquat.
 Miss Eliza S. Bowne.
Schenectady, Miss Maria Potter.
Singsing, Mrs. Ryder.
 Mrs. Pentz.
 Mrs. Cunningham.
 Mrs. Woodruff.
 Mrs. Campbell.
 Mrs. Smith.
 Miss Snowden.
 Miss Van Cortlandt.
 Miss Carpenter.
 Miss Ludlum.
Somers, Miss Sarah Brown.
South Brooklyn, Mrs. E. Shapter.
 Mrs. J. Miller.
 Mrs. S. B. Caldwell.
Syracuse, Mrs. Emma P. Thurber.
Tappan, Mrs. F. B. Lewis.
Tarrytown, Mrs. William S. Wilson.
 Mrs. G. S. Davis.
 Mrs. Wheeler.
 Mrs. McCutcheon.
 Miss Hoffman.
 Reformed Dutch Church, Mrs. Frank
 Vincent.
 Miss F. A. Thompson.
 Miss A. D. Cobb.
Troy, Mrs. J. Lansing Van Schoonhoven.
Upper Red Hook, Mrs. Mooney.
Utica, Mrs. William Hamlin.
Waterloo, Mrs. Col. Barton.
Waverley, Miss Mary Turner.
West Wayfield, Mrs. Walker.
 Miss H. Stout.
White Plains, Mrs. R. Berrian.
 Mrs. J. J. Clapp.
 Miss A. Silliman.
 Miss P. Underhill.
Yonkers, Mrs. G. Hilton Scribner.
 Mrs. Cyrus Cleveland.
 Mrs. S. Hibbard.
 Mrs. J. Lawrence.
 Mrs. Davidson.
 Mrs. Brett.
 Mrs. Leib.
 Mrs. Clapp.
 Mrs. Rich.
 Mrs. Walsh.
 Miss Walsh.

CONNECTICUT.

Bridgeport, Miss Lydia R. Ward.
 Miss Sarah C. Ward.
Central Waterford, Mrs. D. P. Rogers.
 Mrs. Edmund Darrow.
Cheshire, Mrs. Mary J. Doolittle.
Danbury, Mrs. C. E. Bacon.
East Bridgeport, Mrs. L. E. Nelson.
 Mrs. S. C. Kingman.
East Haddam, Miss Lucretia Brainerd.
 Mrs. Jehiel Williams.

Georgetown, Mrs. Sturges Bennett.
Greenwich, Mrs. Mark Banks.
 Mrs. J. H. Linsley.
Hartford, Mrs. John Olmsted.
Lakeville, Mrs. M. H. Williams.
 Mrs. S. S. Robbins.
 Mrs. M. H. Robbins.
Middletown, Mrs. Benjamin Douglas.
New Haven, Mrs. A. N. Skinner.
 Miss J. W. Skinner.
New London, Mrs. Albertson.
Salisbury, Mrs. L. B. Werden.
Southington, Mrs. E. C. Jones.
 Mrs. Joshua Fletcher.
South Manchester, Mrs. George W. Cheney.
South Norwalk, Miss H. Aymar.
 Miss Emma Cape.
 Miss Mary Hill.
Westbrook, Mrs. A. A. Spencer.
 Miss Sarah E. Burr.
Wethersfield, Miss Fanny Stanton.

RHODE ISLAND.

Newport, Mrs. Berry.
Providence, Mrs. Hoppin.

NEW JERSEY.

Camden, Mrs. H. S. Miller.
Dover, Mrs. E. Lindsley.
 Mrs. Dr. Condict.
Elizabeth, Miss Baker.
Jersey City, Mrs. Wilbur.
 Mrs. Sauzade.
Keyport, Mrs. H. E. Bishop.
 Mrs. H. H. Seabrook.
New Providence, Mrs. Jarvis Johnson.
 Mrs. Daniel A. Valentie.
Orange, Mrs. Theron Baldwin.
 Miss Hillyer.
 Miss Anne Tierson.
Paterson, Mrs. Henry Clark.
 Miss Mary Quin.
 Mrs. A. Stoutenborough.
 Mrs. E. H. Powers.
Plainfield, Mrs. Rev. T. S. Brown.
 Mrs. Dr. C. H. Stillman.
 Miss Mary E. Coon.
Rahway, Mrs. W. Edgar.
 Miss G. Degraw.
 Miss Shedden.
Red Bank, Mr. Dunnell.
Shrewsbury, Mrs. L. C. Williams.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Holyoke, Mrs. William G. Porter.
 Mrs. J. M. Burns.
North Egremont and Great Barrington, Mrs. Sullivan.
Shelburne Falls, Mrs. Dr. A. H. Taylor.
Stockbridge, Mrs. Jonathan Field.

VERMONT.

Brattleboro, Mrs. Davenport, Assoc. Man. N. E.
 W. A. A.
Rutland, Mrs. Ripley, Assoc. Man. N. E. W. A. A.

MICHIGAN.

Detroit, Mrs. Stearns.

CANADA.

Toronto, Mr. George H. Folts.
 Miss Mary E. Folts.

Number of Soldier's Aid Societies represented, 92. Number of Delegates, 213.

We shall be glad to have made known to us any errors or omissions in the above list.

HOSPITAL GARDENS.

BY N. C. READ.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., }
November 19, 1864. }

In sending you a final report of the issues from the hospital gardens at this place, I cannot deny myself the gratification of a brief reference to a few of the military and medical officers whose hearty co-operation has rendered it so eminently successful, since without their aid and protection, nothing could have been accomplished.

To Dr. Perine, at that time Medical Director, we are indebted for bringing the subject to the attention of the General commanding the Department, who readily granted all necessary orders to protect us in the possession of the premises, and to prevent all trespassing.

LOCATION.

The grounds were chosen after a careful reconnaissance of the whole neighborhood, in company with Dr. Salter, who was requested by Dr. Perine to make the selection. A fertile tract was found, bordered on one side by the Tennessee, on one by Citico Creek, while a continuous woods from which a fence could readily be made, skirted the other sides. It was situated near the town, at a point where no military roads were required, and when in any possible attack or defence of the post, it was scarcely possible hostile forces would ever cross it.

TOOLS.

As soon as the grounds were selected, details were furnished on the orders of Maj. Gen. Steedman, then Post Commandant, to fence and work it. He authorized us to replenish our stock of tools by impressments from the country, and the tools thus gathered were promptly repaired, and others made to order by Capt. H. M. Smith, Quartermaster in charge of Government shops.

HORSES.

When in the early stages of the enterprise, the want of horses seemed likely to cause an entire abandonment of the work, permission was obtained to select such as might be made serviceable, from the corrals of disabled animals, and these under careful treatment so improved that all the work has been done by them, and at the close of the season, we have seventeen serviceable animals, any one of which is worth more than they all were when taken from the corral. Through the assistance of Capt. Clark, Quartermaster for the hospitals, we obtained these animals and forage for them, and have received constant and almost daily assistance which was indispensable to success.

CONVALESCENTS.

To Drs. Cloak and Salter, successively Medical Directors of the Post, we were indebted for constant favors; and in the midst of the season when details could not otherwise be procured for the necessary care of the crops, through the kindness of these officers, arrangements were made to send convalescents from the hospitals for light duty at the gardens, who went into a temporary convalescent camp, were worked as they were able to work, fed freely upon vegetables, gradually inured to exercise and exposure, and after a few weeks, forwarded to their regiments, better fitted to endure the hardships of the camp, than if they had been sent directly from the hospitals.

To all of these officers, to the commanding officers of the colored troops, and to many others, have we been indebted for that constant assistance, without which the work could not have been prosecuted, and which has been uniformly rendered with that hearty good will, and with such expressions of interest in the work as proved that its value was fully appreciated.

Copies of reports made to the Medical Director of the Post, from the Surgeons in charge here, have already been forwarded to you, and the table enclosed will show you the aggregate issues from the garden, a good supply of winter radishes and turnips yet remaining to be gathered.

We have furnished seeds for several regimental, brigade, and headquarter gardens, and in some instances, tools for their cultivation.

PICKLES.

The pickles we are making at the rooms from the unripened tomatoes, after sending to the hospitals all that could be put up there, would sell in any of the Northern markets for more than the entire cost of the gardens, while the cash value of the vegetables issued, estimated at a price less than one-half the rates charged by citizens, who have peddled their vegetables during the season, is, as you will see, over $66,000, which in a pecuniary point of view may be taken as the profits of the enterprise.

PLAN OF DISTRIBUTION.

The vegetables were distributed on the principle that the sick and wounded in hospital should be first supplied, then that all the sick and convalescent out of hospital should be reached, and whatever surplus there should be at any time after these demands were met, should be distributed to all the troops in and about Chattanooga. As opportunity offered, occasional supplies were sent during the campaign to the hospitals toward the front, but of necessity, the most of them were distributed here.

The value of these issues is not to be estimated in dollars and cents. The first wounded brought to Chattanooga were supplied on the day of their arrival with fresh vegetables from the garden, and from that time daily issues, Sundays excepted, have been made throughout the season; while during much of the time no vegetables could possibly have been obtained if this source of supply had not existed. And, as by universal testimony, a generous supply of vegetable food is indispensable to the recovery of the sick and wounded, who, during an active campaign, have been supplied only with the ordinary portable rations, the restored health of many soldiers, and the lives of many actually saved, should be taken as the net profits of the work. For the value of this return, there is no possible pecuniary estimate. Let the wife or mother, or children of the soldier who has been restored to them in health, estimate if possible the value of the supplemental aid, without which the best attention and the highest skill might have proved unavailing, and his return have become impossible.

For this year the work of the gardens is nearly finished. Most of the ground has been plowed for spring planting, and the men are repairing the tools and putting everything in order for early work.

GARDENER.

Mr. Wills, the gardener, has labored with untiring energy, has taken a commendable pride in the garden, and has achieved a success worthy of his efforts. His headquarters are a model of taste, commanding a view of the greater part of the grounds, and are erected upon a symmetrical Indian mound, the slopes and top of which have been covered with a profusion of flowers. Its beauty has commanded the admiration of every visitor, and the demand for the gardener's papers of seed for flowers, have been exceeded only by the demand for his vegetables.

A report of the yield of the garden, and copies of the reports from the surgeons in charge of the hospitals here, have been forwarded to General Thomas, and I doubt not he will authorize the continuance of the work another year, if this point is to be occupied as a military post.

The experience of this season satisfies me that such gardens are both economical and indispensable, and that the convalescents of the army, if properly organized, could be made available for the cultivation of vegetables sufficient for the entire demands during the summer, and with great benefit to the health and habits of the men.

SUPPLIES ISSUED.

Abstract of Issues from the Hospital Garden of the U. S. Sanitary Commission at Chattanooga, Tennessee, April 15 to November 14, 1864.

|                   |             |                              |               |
|-------------------|-------------|------------------------------|---------------|
| Lettuce,          | 1,250 bush. | Turnips and winter radishes, | 7½ bush.      |
| Beets,            | 1,363 "     | Cucumbers,                   | 2,693 doz.    |
| Onions,           | 1,407 "     | Summer squash,               | 5,536 no.     |
| Mustard,          | 1,496 "     | Cabbage,                     | 10,761 heads  |
| Potatoes, (Irish) | 904¾ "      | Table corn,                  | 107,462 ears. |
| Radishes,         | 715 "       | Okra,                        | 1,717 doz.    |
| Peas,             | 442 "       | Peppers,                     | 938 "         |
| Snap beans,       | 431 "       | Melons,                      | 1,668 no.     |
| Lima "            | 148 "       | Winter squash,               | 312 "         |
| Tomatoes,         | 1,269 "     | Pumpkins,                    | 1,132 "       |
| Sweet potatoes,   | 384 "       | Flower seeds,                | 5,779 papers  |
| Spinach,          | 133 "       |                              |               |

Estimated value at Chattanooga, $66,375 70.

The crop of winter radishes and turnips remain to be issued.

ORDER OF MAJOR GENERAL THOMAS.

CHATTANOOGA, }
Nov. 24, 1864. }

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Sec. Western Department U. S. Sanitary Commission.

MY DEAR SIR:—Enclosed you will find copy of General Thomas' order for the cultivation of the gardens at this post, for the coming season.

Mr. Wills will return North soon, and will make out lists and amounts of seed required. It is important that the seeds be purchased and forwarded, so that the work can commence early, and go on without interruption. I will write to-night to Mr. Newton of the Agricultural Department, and secure a supply from him, but of course not a large amount. Shall make immediate efforts to enrich the gardens on the mountain.

Yours truly,

M. C. READ.

HEAD QRS. DEPT. OF THE CUMBERLAND,
CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Nov. 23, 1864. }

Special Field Orders, No. 321.

Extract.

* * * * *

IV. The protection heretofore furnished the Sanitary Commission, in the cultivation of abandoned lands, for the benefit of hospitals, &c., is hereby renewed, and its authority extended over the brigade garden on Lookout Mountain.

Every preparation will be made for keeping the gardens under its control, in full cultivation for the ensuing year.

* * * * *

By command of Major Gen. Thomas,
SOUTHARD HOFFMAN,
Assistant Adjutant General.

MR. READ,
Agent Sanitary Commission.

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS AT RED RIVER.

BY JOHN STEVENS, JR.

NEW ORLEANS, }
Oct. 25, 1864. }

DR. GEO. A. BLAKE.

DEAR SIR:—At the invitation of Col. Dwight, Commissioner of Exchange, I left in the steamer St. Marys for Red River, landing on the 21st inst. My boxes had an assortment of articles, such as stimulants, milk, beef stock and farina, with reading matter and many other things which would be acceptable to men who had tarried long in rebeldom, where they entered scantily furnished on account of sudden capture, and where they lived six months or more, without any additions in the way of comforts.

We had some one hundred and fifty well clothed and well filled rebels, who evidently had enjoyed their stay in the city, even if it had been forced.

Reaching the mouth of the Red River late Saturday evening, it was not till next morning that we were able to communicate with the rebel commissioners, and about noon, two of our late steamers came down the river with the white flag at the "fore," and the red and white ensign aft.

A band, playing Bonnie Blue Flag, worked a response from our excursion boat, which joined us, with General McGinnis, from Morganzia, in the way of all good national airs, which were sweet music indeed to the crowd of poor, dirty, ragged creatures that crowded their decks, and whose ears had too long been accustomed to their hateful tunes. Real good Anglo-Saxon hurrahs would fill the air, contrasting pleasantly with the rebel yell which one has to hear to appreciate.

The preliminary forms having been attended to, the exchanges were made, and those who had suffered a long imprisonment were free once more.

THE OLD FLAG.

The color bearer of the 48th Ohio, many of whose regiment were captured at Mansfield, had, when surrounded, stripped his flag from the staff, and secreted it around his body. When in the stockade in Texas, it being rumored among the rebels that such was the case, a diligent search was made for it, but our men had shrewdly buried it. After resting some time in rebel soil it was dug up, and only slightly soiled, and stitbed into the jacket of one of the captains, under the lining, and thus it passed its captivity. On the way down the river the men secretly made a flag-staff, so that the very instant they stepped on board our boat, after the exchange, they drew out from its long hiding place their good old flag, spreading it to the breeze. The effect can be imagined better than described; shouts, yells of defiance, and tears of joy followed, with no doubt many thanksgivings to God for His mercy in thus sparing them, to witness this triumph.

Most of the men, physically, were in good condition. Some dozen or more were, however, suffering from chronic diarrhœa, and my attention was soon directed to them. Some hot broth and stimulants relieved them, but death had marked several for his own. One died in a few hours. There was no regular medical attendance at their place of confinement, and although not as cruel as in some other places, yet there was more neglect than humanity would allow. A great many had died of scurvy, and no means had been taken to prevent it. As for clothing, there was not a whole decent garment in the crowd. Most were not even protected sufficiently for the season. As soon as we were settled, I had pails of milk punch ready for those who seemed exhausted, which with soft crackers, was relished much. Getting a sergeant there, we distributed onions to the different messes. On our way home opened a box of newspapers, magazines, and a bundle of Testaments, with other little books, which were greedily seized; also writing paper, envelopes and pens; so that all could send home the good tidings of their deliverance.

About 4 P.M. on Monday we landed our motley crowd at New Orleans, where they were cared for by the officers of the department.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION AND OUR RETURNED PRISONERS.

BY D. J. BRIGHAM.

With seven other agents of the Sanitary Commission, I started on Thursday, October 27, for Fortress Monroe. Arrived there Friday afternoon, not knowing where we were going or for what purpose. We were there told that our destination was Savannah River; that we were all to go on different ships, each taking a quantity of Sanitary Commission stores on board, to be issued to our prisoners, on their return to Annapolis.

On Tuesday, November 1, we received orders to go on board the different ships with our stores, so as to be in readiness to start at any time. We then divided the stores, giving to each one a share proportionate to the size of the vessel on which he was ordered, and in a short time I found myself on board the Gen. Sedgwick.

Arrived at Port Royal on Saturday, November 12. On the 15th we went to Beaufort, came back to Port Royal the 17th.

On Sunday, November 20, we started with the whole fleet for the point of exchange in the Savannah River. Opposite Fort Pulaski the river is filled with sunken vessels; no ships have passed above this obstruction till within a few weeks. By means of a skillful pilot we passed it in safety, and arrived at Venus Point, where the exchange is taking place.

I went on board the New York (which was then receiving our prisoners) and there witnessed a scene of misery beyond anything I ever conceived. Many of our men were unable to walk. Most of them were barefooted, many of them without under-clothing, and their thin, wasted forms were covered with dirt and vermin. When they found themselves on our vessels, their eyes, before without expression, were lighted up with new brilliancy; it seemed like the dawning of a new existence to them. When the hard-tack and coffee were given them, they were wild with joy, and each vied with the other in the quantity he could dispose of. Although it was with pain we witnessed their misery, yet a feeling of happiness, that I have seldom before experienced, came over me on seeing their sufferings in a measure alleviated.

We expected to get our load the next day, but did not until Tuesday, November 22. I had my stores placed where I would have access to them easily, and about noon we received five hundred men, and started at 2 P.M. for the North, having on board a surgeon, to whom I reported as directed. We had a strong wind in our favor and went along very fast; were soon out to sea. I gave out 40 blankets, and by the Surgeon's direction a large quantity of Government blankets; also gave out numbers of tin-cups.

Wednesday, November 23, awoke very sick, the vessel rolling and pitching terribly. I went forward, and the mate and I, with eight men detailed to help us, and the cook, raised some stores from the hold. The men were then given a breakfast of army bread and coffee. I then brought up a quantity of eaned milk and tomatoes, and gave them to the cook. For dinner they were given meat, pickles and "San. Com. soup," as they called it, made of tomatoes, onions, meat and crackers. Nothing tasted so good to them as pickles and vinegar. During the day I gave out the shirts, socks, slippers and other goods. Every man who received these articles was in a very destitute condition, in fact almost naked. I also gave out considerable medicine, liquor, &c., according to the surgeon's directions. Went to bed as soon as dark; was completely exhausted, having eaten nothing during the day; was soon rocked to sleep.

Thursday awoke quite refreshed; found the storm had abated. The men were mostly well and feeling in good spirits. I made the acquaintance of a great many prisoners; and many a tale of hair-breadth escapes, recaptures, rebel cruelty and intense suffering was told. Many were intelligent men, who appreciated the service of the Commission highly. They said that one-third of the stores sent them, reached those for whom they were designed, the balance is given to those in rebel hospitals. The sea was perfectly calm during the rest of the voyage over, and the men seemed to enjoy it very much.

Friday, had a beautiful ride up the bay. The day passed off nearly the same as before. Arrived at Annapolis at 2 o'clock A.M. Went to the wharf at 7, and immediately commenced landing the men. All were given new clothes; and, except eight, who were carried to the hospital on stretchers, were marched to Camp Parole.

List of Sanitary Stores forwarded to Fortress Monroe to accompany Expedition to Savannah for released prisoners.

|                             |                            |
|-----------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1,500 pairs, wool socks.    | 120 bot. old Maderia wine. |
| 1,020 wool shirts.          | 4,800 lbs. tomatoes.       |
| 1,020 wool drawers.         | 20 barrels, onions.        |
| 2,000 pocket handkerchiefs. | 20 kegs, pickles.          |
| 1,000 towels.               | 150 tin caps.              |
| 200 blankets.               | 10 spit caps.              |
| 40 pillows.                 | 21 lanterns.               |
| 36 military caps.           | 80 lbs. candles.           |
| 300 pairs, slippers.        | 24 wooden buckets.         |
| 200 lbs. crushed sugar.     | 5 wooden buckets.          |
| 200 lbs. green tea          | 50 doz essence ginger.     |
| 25 boxes, chocolate.        | 360 lbs. tobacco.          |
| 3,827 lbs crackers.         | 1,000 envelopes.           |
| 1,008 lbs. condensed milk.  | 3 reams of letter paper.   |

Special Relief Department.

SPECIAL RELIEF—ONE WEEK.

BY J. B. ABBOTT.

I respectfully submit the following report of the "Special Relief" work accomplished under my charge for the week ending Nov. 19th, 1864:

|                                                                                                   |            |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Number of pay accounts of discharged soldiers taken for adjustment, . . . . .                     | 22         |
| Number of bounty claims taken, . . . . .                                                          | 4          |
| Number of cases for back pay taken, . . . . .                                                     | 60         |
| Number of applications for the pay of soldiers who have become prisoners of war, taken, . . . . . | 11         |
| Number Naval claims taken, . . . . .                                                              | 6          |
| Number of pension claims filed, . . . . .                                                         | 26         |
| <hr/>                                                                                             |            |
| Whole number of cases taken, . . . . .                                                            | 129        |
| Whole number of cases adjusted, . . . . .                                                         | 78         |
| Whole amount collected, . . . . .                                                                 | $7,586 61 |
| Number of drafts forwarded, . . . . .                                                             | 19         |
| Amount of the drafts sent, . . . . .                                                              | $1,837 03 |

My attention having been called to the fact, that there are a large number of soldiers in the Hospital at Buffalo, New York, who have from four to ten months back pay due them, and no way of obtaining it, as no payments are made at that hospital, I at once commenced to investigate the matter, for the purpose of securing the patients their pay, if possible, which they need very much, as many of them have families dependent upon the small monthly pittance they receive from the Government. I first applied to the Paymaster in charge of the Department at New York, who referred me to the Paymaster's statement at Albany. He informed me that the Medical Officer at Buffalo, had not furnished the Pay Department with rolls on which to make a payment. Having received this information, I sent Mr. Brown to Buffalo to investigate the matter there. He was treated very courteously by the Medical Officer in charge of the hospital, who assured him that measures should be taken to insure a speedy payment of the patients in his charge, and gave him every facility for taking the cases of those who claimed back pay, for which we obtain certificates that will enable the men to be mustered for all the pay due them. The result of our investigation has been very satisfactory, and the prospects are now, that the soldiers there will no longer have reason to complain as heretofore.

CASH ACCOUNT.

|                                    |         |
|------------------------------------|---------|
| Cash on hand Nov. 12th, . . . . .  | $49 80 |
| Cash returned from loan, . . . . . | 12 00   |
| Expenditures, . . . . .            | 75      |
| Cash on hand this date, . . . . .  | 61 80   |

The amount of work accomplished at the Homes and Lodges is less than usual, this week.

|                                                                           |       |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| There have been furnished at Lodge No. 4, lodgings to soldiers, . . . . . | 289   |
| Meals to soldiers, . . . . .                                              | 1,912 |
| Meals to others, . . . . .                                                | 643   |

|                                                                                                              |       |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Whole number of meals given, . . . . .                                                                       | 2,555 |
| Number of soldiers and soldier's friends admitted at the Alexandria Lodge since the last report, . . . . .   | 128   |
| Number of meals given to soldiers, . . . . .                                                                 | 247   |
| " " " " to soldiers' friends, . . . . .                                                                      | 84    |
| Number lodgings furnished to soldiers, . . . . .                                                             | 117   |
| Number lodgings furnished to soldiers' friends, . . . . .                                                    | 28    |
| The number of soldiers and soldiers' friends admitted at the Home in Baltimore, since last report, . . . . . | 82    |
| Number of meals given to soldiers and their friends, . . . . .                                               | 386   |
| Number of lodgings, . . . . .                                                                                | 112   |

HARRISBURG.

Mr. C. C. Brown, whom I temporarily assigned to the charge of the Soldier's Rest at Harrisburg, Mr. Ferguson, the Superintendent, having gone home on sick leave for a few days, reports:

|                                               |    |
|-----------------------------------------------|----|
| Number of meals given for the week, . . . . . | 55 |
| " " lodgings furnished, . . . . .             | 51 |

A. H. Trego, Courier, reports eighty-three sick and wounded soldiers assisted and waited upon in transitu between this city and New York, during the week. The number thus aided is unusually small.

In conclusion, I take the liberty to suggest the importance of a Lodge at Newbern, North Carolina, where I am advised by those who have visited that military post, that one is very much needed. I trust that measures will be taken to establish a lodge there, through the Agent of the Commission stationed at that post.

BY JULIUS NICHOLS.

The following is the report of the sick, in Home Hospital, for the week ending 20th instant:

|                                    |     |
|------------------------------------|-----|
| Permanent cases treated, . . . . . | 15  |
| Transient cases treated, . . . . . | 42  |
| Wounded men dressed, . . . . .     | 92  |
| Total, . . . . .                   | 149 |

BY H. WOODS.

The following is the report of the "Home" for the Wives and Mothers of Soldiers, for the week ending Nov. 20th, 1864:

|                                  |     |
|----------------------------------|-----|
| Whole number admitted, . . . . . | 37  |
| " " meals, . . . . .             | 370 |
| " " lodged, . . . . .            | 144 |

BY P. J. M'HENRY.

The following is the report of "The Home" for the week ending Nov. 20th, 1864:

|                                  |       |
|----------------------------------|-------|
| Whole number admitted, . . . . . | 748   |
| " " lodgings, . . . . .          | 1,223 |
| " " meals, . . . . .             | 2,854 |

Representing the following States:—Maine, 50; New Hampshire, 37; Vermont, 7; Massachusetts, 83; Rhode Island, 6; Connecticut, 19; New York, 197; New Jersey, 22; Pennsylvania, 158; Delaware, 5; Maryland, 9; Virginia, 1; Ohio, 32; Indiana, 8; Illinois, 15; Michigan, 91; Wisconsin, 6; Iowa, 2.

BY J. ADDISON WHITAKER.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 21, 1864.

I herewith respectfully present my report for this District, for the week ending this date.

Office duties have been more pressing than usual, on account of large quantities of stores arriving every day, in view of the expected arrival of ten thousand paroled prisoners from rebel prisons.

I had previously been informed by the surgeons in charge of the hospitals what each of them would need, to add to the comfort of the unfortunate men. Consequently as the stores arrived from day to day, I made immediate distribution of them, according to requests of the surgeons. In this way, I avoided a large accumulation in the storehouse, and by the end of the week, with the exception of handkerchiefs and towels, so far as the Sanitary Commission's work extends towards supplying the District, we were ready to welcome home our long absent ones, who have so patiently, and patriotically endured the privations of rebel prisons.

During the reception and distribution of the stores, the office has at times been filled with visitors, some to have their cards renewed at the "Home," some to have their cards approved for admittance, some waiting conveyance to "Soldier's Cemetery," where, perhaps, just a few hours previous a husband, son, or father was interred.

Some wanted information about collecting deceased relative's back pay, bounty and pension. Dozens of poor soldiers who have been prisoners, and whose families are really suffering for necessities of life, were waiting to hear whether I could not procure certificates for commutation of their rations while they were prisoners.

Letters of inquiry also came, written by friends at home, who wished to anticipate the arrival of the "Flag of Truce Boats."

Thus the week passed leaving the impression on our hearts, at least, that we had done another six days good work.

I have received, issued, and have on hand, stores as statement per paper "A."

Camp Parole continues to open a wide field of usefulness to our agents. It affords me great satisfaction to review our work there from week to week. Our agents are not inactive, I assure you. Being well supplied with everything needed in our work, they are ready to reach forth a helping hand to our poor suffering soldiers, the moment they arrive. And what a satisfaction it must be to their friends at home to know that the Commission has so magnanimously provided for almost every little want they may have on their arrival.

Divisions numbers 1 and 2, U. S. General Hospitals, are visited regularly by our Agent, Mr. Miller. He is kindly welcomed by officers, and gladly received by the men.

I regard the presence of an agent in these hospitals as most essential to our work, and the welfare of the men.

"The Home," as you will see by report this week, is not so much crowded as heretofore, nevertheless, affording to many a sorrowing heart a place of retirement and rest. I regard the report as quite interesting this week.

In conclusion, allow me to express my thanks to you and your Assistant for the promptness with which you have enabled me to meet the requisitions of the surgeons of the different hospitals, your reward at present may be that we are ready for the boats!

Statement of U. S. Sanitary Commission Stores issued by Addison Whitaker, Superintendent Annapolis District, for the month of Nov'r, 1864.

| ARTICLES.         | U. S. General Hospital, Div'n 1. | St. John's College Hospital, Div'n 2. | Camp Parole. | College Green barracks. | Annapolis Junction Hospital. | Special Relief. | Whole Amount. |
|-------------------|----------------------------------|---------------------------------------|--------------|-------------------------|------------------------------|-----------------|---------------|
| Wool shirts,      | 658                              | 300                                   | 124          |                         | 48                           | 20              | 1,150         |
| Wool drawers,     | 216                              | 120                                   | 124          |                         | 30                           | 15              | 505 pairs     |
| Wool mittens,     | 98                               | 50                                    | 100          |                         | 48                           | 1               | 297 "         |
| Wool socks,       | 396                              | 180                                   | 96           |                         | 16                           |                 | 688 "         |
| Cotton shirts,    | 50                               |                                       | 48           |                         |                              |                 | 98 "          |
| Cotton drawers,   |                                  |                                       | 48           |                         |                              |                 | 48 "          |
| Stippers,         | 20                               |                                       | 23           |                         |                              | 2               | 45 "          |
| Shoes,            |                                  |                                       | 6            |                         |                              | 3               | 9 "           |
| Suspenders,       | 258                              | 240                                   | 123          |                         | 24                           | 4               | 679 "         |
| Handkerchiefs,    | 625                              | 170                                   | 750          | 700                     | 26                           |                 | 2,271         |
| Towels,           |                                  |                                       | 960          | 678                     |                              |                 | 1,648         |
| Eye whiskey,      | 6                                | 6                                     | 6            |                         | 6                            | 12              | 30 bottles    |
| Brandy,           | 25                               | 2                                     |              |                         | 6                            |                 | 33 "          |
| Black y Brandy,   | 12                               | 12                                    | 30           |                         | 6                            |                 | 60 "          |
| Sherry wine,      | 12                               | 1                                     |              |                         | 2                            |                 | 15 "          |
| Bay rum,          | 16                               | 12                                    | 6            |                         | 2                            |                 | 36 "          |
| Jamaica ginger,   | 96                               | 60                                    |              | 192                     |                              |                 | 348 "         |
| Dried apples,     | 5                                | 2                                     |              |                         | 3                            | 1               | 11 bbis.      |
| Ass'd dried fruit | 1                                | 1                                     | 1            |                         |                              |                 | 3 "           |
| Boston crackers,  | 4                                | 3                                     | 4            | 3                       |                              | 1               | 15 "          |
| Chocolate,        | 35                               |                                       |              |                         | 35                           |                 | 70 lbs.       |
| Farina,           | 8                                |                                       |              |                         | 8                            |                 | 16 "          |
| Beef stock,       | 24                               | 66                                    | 24           |                         |                              |                 | 114 "         |
| Can'd tomatoes    |                                  |                                       | 96           |                         |                              |                 | 96 cans.      |
| Condensed milk,   | 72                               | 96                                    | 48           |                         | 48                           | 48              | 312 "         |
| Fine combs,       | 432                              | 456                                   | 518          | 1152                    |                              | 15              | 2,558         |
| Coarse combs,     | 432                              | 432                                   | 504          | 1152                    |                              | 15              | 2,520         |
| Writing paper,    | 8                                | 4                                     | 7            | 8                       |                              |                 | 27 rms.       |
| Envelopes,        | 3500                             | 2000                                  | 3450         | 4000                    |                              |                 | 12,950        |
| Steel pens,       | 144                              | 144                                   | 258          | 144                     |                              |                 | 564           |
| Lead pencils,     | 144                              | 144                                   | 144          | 576                     |                              | 24              | 1,176         |
| Penholders,       | 144                              | 144                                   | 169          | 144                     |                              |                 | 641           |
| Writing ink,      | 4                                |                                       | 15           |                         |                              |                 | 19 qts.       |
| Quilts,           |                                  | 110                                   | 40           |                         |                              |                 | 151           |
| Sheets,           |                                  | 50                                    | 24           |                         |                              |                 | 74            |
| Blankets,         |                                  |                                       | 5            |                         |                              | 2               | 7             |
| Cushions,         | 75                               |                                       |              |                         | 45                           |                 | 120           |
| Crutches,         | 25                               | 25                                    |              |                         |                              | 1               | 51            |
| Water beds,       | 1                                | 1                                     | 2            |                         |                              |                 | 3             |
| Air cushions,     | 2                                | 4                                     |              |                         |                              | 1               | 10            |
| Tobacco,          | 232                              |                                       | 132          |                         |                              |                 | 364 papers    |
| Bandages,         | 25                               |                                       | 20           |                         | 25                           |                 | 65            |
| Thread,           | 6                                | 6                                     | 18           | 10                      |                              |                 | 40 lbs.       |
| Spit cups,        | 12                               |                                       |              |                         |                              |                 | 12            |
| Needles,          | 12                               | 5                                     | 39           | 10                      |                              |                 | 66 papers     |
| Scissors,         | 6                                |                                       |              |                         |                              |                 | 6 pair        |
| Pillows,          |                                  | 25                                    | 22           |                         |                              | 3               | 50            |
| Corn meal,        |                                  | 1                                     | ½            |                         | ½                            |                 | 2 bbis.       |
| Soap,             | 12                               | 12                                    | 22           |                         |                              |                 | 46 lbs.       |
| Corn starch,      |                                  |                                       | 50           |                         | 25                           |                 | 75 "          |
| Bed ticks,        |                                  |                                       | 54           |                         |                              |                 | 54            |

FROM WASHINGTON, D. C.

BY J. B. HOLT, HOSPITAL VISITOR.

I have the honor to submit the following report for the week ending Nov. 19, 1864: Have visited during the week the hospitals at Alexandria, 20 in number, not including two at barracks. Have also visited Fort Lyons, Fort Williams, Forts Ward, Albany, Woodbury, Strong, Fairfax Seminary, and Invalid Corps hospital at Freedman's Village, Arlington Heights. Have written very many letters (evenings) for soldiers in regard to State bounties, &c. Have, by writing to friends and citizens, in towns where the men were arrested, obtained testimony showing that in two cases the arrests were illegal, the men never having enlisted. The men have been sent home to their families, after being confined in prison and sick in hospitals for many months. I have given much information in regard to back pay, bounties, transfers, &c. The supply in storehouse the past week being more abundant than for some weeks, I have been able in consequence to do much more for the comfort of the suffering, making my work much more pleasant. In consequence of a ride to-day of some fifteen miles, I will beg you to accept this meagre report.

PROFESSOR SILLIMAN.

The New Haven Daily Journal is before us. It gives a column to the name and virtues of Professor Benjamin Silliman, Senr. The following extract is noticed here, as bearing upon his interest in the U. S. San. Com.:

His last appearance in public was at the meeting on Sunday evening, which was held for the Sanitary Commission, by his interest in which his patriotism, his humanity and his public spirit were all illustrated in this last public act which proved the occasion of his death.

We remember to have seen Professor Silliman at the meeting referred to, and we well remember his remark at its conclusion. Taking us warmly by the hand, he said:

"I am now satisfied that the interests of our soldiers will be well served. New Haven is safe for the Sanitary Commission."

Such was the testimony of this great and good man. A Christian, ripe in years, in experience, in hope.

GENERAL SHERIDAN AND THE SANITARY COMMISSION.

The Sanitary Commission has received the following letter from Gen. Sheridan :

HEADQUARTERS MIDDLE MILITARY DIVISION, }
IN THE FIELD, November 13, 1864. }

J FOSTER JENKINS,
General Secretary U. S. Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR:—Yours of October 31, advising me of my having been elected an associate member of the United States Sanitary Commission, is received.

I have the honor to thank you for the compliment paid me, and in behalf of the sick and wounded of this army, to acknowledge the many benefits derived from your charitable association.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Atlanta.—By N. C. Bennett, Med. Inspector, 20th Army Corps..... 866

Rev. J. C. Hobbitt..... 866

Little Rock.—By Benjamin Woodward, (Vegetables, Government Transportation, Vegetables Wanted, General F. Steele, Illinois State Agents).... 867

Fort Scott —By J. R. Brown..... 868

Memphis, Tenn.—Benjamin Woodward..... 869

Orpheus Everts, Surgeon-in-chief, 3d Division, 2d Army Corps..... 869

REPORTS.

Hospital Gardens.—By M. C. Read, (Location, Tools, Horses, Convalescents, Pickles, Plan of Distribution, Gardener, supplies Issued, Order of Maj. Gen. Thomas)..... 866

Exchange of Prisoners, Red River, By J. Stevens, Jr. 888

The San. Com. and our Returned Prisoners, by J. D. Brigham..... 889

Washington—Special Relief Work, One Week, by J. B. Abbott, (Cash Account, Harrisburg)..... 890

By Julius Nichols..... 891

By H. Woods..... 891

By P. J. McHenry..... 891

By J. B. Holt..... 892

Annapolis.—By J. Addison Whitaker..... 891

Statement of U. S. San. Com. Stores issued by J. Addison Whitaker, Supt. Annapolis District for November..... 892

MISCELLANEOUS

Come to the Soldiers' Aid..... 865

Three months in the U. S. San. Com., No. 3, (From Fort Royal, Va., to White House Landing on the Pamunkey, The Sabbath, White House, Virginia)..... 873

The New York Meeting, (Meeting of Delegates from the Soldiers' Aid societies, How the Supplies reach the Soldiers, Causes of Complaint, How the Goods are Distributed, Field Distribution, After a Battle, Between the Field and Hospital, Why are Supplies at Hospitals? Transfer of Wounded, Home Comforts, Issues, Special Relief Work, Remarks of Colonel Ray Hawkins, Remarks of Dr. Bellows)..... 874-882

Ladies' Morning Meeting..... 882

Delegates Present at Soldiers' Aid Council, N. Y., November 16 and 17, 1864..... 884

Professor Silliman..... 892

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HON. HAMILTON FISK, ADMIRAL DUPONT,
JOHN J. CISCO, ESQ., RUD. A. WITTHAUS, ESQ
TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, ESQ.

DIRECTORS.

HONS. E. D. MORGAN, HOWARD POTTER,
GEORGE OPDYKE, WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr.,
HIRAM BARNEY, THEODORE ROOSEVELT,
JAS W. BEEKMAN, PETER COOPER,
H. W. BELLOWES, D.D., GEORGE BANCROFT,
JOHN JACOB ASTOR, DANIEL LORD,
JAMES BROWN, WILSON G. HUNT,
WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, ROBERT L. STUART,
JAMES GALLATIN, ALFRED PELL.

Apply in person or by letter, to
HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
35 CHAMBERS STREET, NEW YORK.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

- 1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.
- 2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.
- 3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.
- 4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
F. L. Olmsted, California.
George T. Strong, Esq, New York.
Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
A. E. Shiras, U. S. A.
R. C. Wood, Assistant Surgeon-Gen'l U. S. A
Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., New York.
S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
Rt. Rev. T. M. Clarke, Providence, R. I.
Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
Prof. Fairman Rogers, Philadelphia, Penna.
Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
George T. Strong, Treasurer.
J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.
J. H. Douglas, M.D., Associate Secretary.
F. N. Knapp, Associate Secretary.

PROTECTIVE
War-Claim Association

OF THE
STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.
LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

Henry W. Bellows, D.D. George T. Strong.
Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. Wolcott Gibbs, M.D.
C. R. Agnew, M.D. Charles J. Stillé.

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies, and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La

Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

HOSPITAL CARS.

Between Louisville and Chattanooga—Dr. J. P. Barnum, Surgeon in charge.

SANITARY STEAMER.

James River—Elizabeth.

BRANCH,

No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,

No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec 12, 1863.

Sir:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported

IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.

By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U.S.A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept 20 1864.

Sir:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, so FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General.

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE

The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.

The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.

Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices Address

B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D.,

President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY, OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y.

HON. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn. E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.

WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York. J. T. SANGER, New York.

JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,

No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

OFFICE OF THE

M O R R I S

FIRE &amp; INLAND INSURANCE

COMPANY,

COLUMBIAN BUILDING,

CORNER WALL &amp; NASSAU STS.

---

 Authorized Capital, - - - $5,000,000.

 Cash Capital, paid in, - - - $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

DIRECTORS.

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 29.

PHILADELPHIA, JANUARY 1, 1864.

No. 29.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 14,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

A VOICE FROM PRISON.

It is not an uncommon thought among the poor fellows who lie in Southern prisons that they are forgotten by friends at home. Long absence, distance, oppression, starvation, disease, suffering, combine to depress their spirits in many instances; and despairingly, they give way to the thought that they are forgotten. Such was the case with a poor boy of sixteen years, who had been captured, and who under the weight of his distress wrote the following lines, which have been copied from the original manuscript by a lady friend, who has been visiting the returned prisoners at Annapolis.

WILL YOU LEAVE US HERE TO DIE?

Will you leave us here to die
When our country calls for men?
We came from forge, and store, and mill,
From workshop, farm and factory,
The broken ranks to fill.
We left our quiet, happy homes,
And ones we loved so well,
To vanquish all the Union's foes,
Or fall where others fell.
Now in prison dread we languish,
And it is our constant cry,
O ye, who yet can save us,
Will you leave us here to die?

The voice of slander tells you,
That our hearts were weak with fear;
That all, or nearly all,
Were captured in the rear.
The scars upon our bodies,
From musket ball and shell,
The missing legs and shatter'd arms,
A truer tale will tell.
We have tried to do our duty
In the sight of God on high.
O ye, who yet can save us,
Will you leave us here to die?

There are hearts with hope still beating
In our pleasant Northern homes,
Waiting, watching for the footsteps,
That may never, never come.
In Southern prisons pining,
Meagre, tatter'd, pale and gaunt,
Growing weaker, weaker daily,
From pinching cold and want.
Here brothers, sons and husbands,
Poor and hopeless captives lie.
O ye, who yet can save them,
Will you leave them here to die?

From out our prison gate,
There's a graveyard close at hand,
Where lie ten thousand Union men,
Beneath the Georgia sand.
Scores on scores are laid beside them,
As day succeeds to day,
And thus it ever will be,
Till they all shall pass away;
And the last will say, when dying,
With upturn'd and glazing eye,
Both Love and Faith are dead at home,
They have left us here to die.

MILITARY PRISON HOSPITAL,
Andersonville, Ga.

REPORT ON EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.

BY RICHARD T. J. FALCONER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2, 1864.

Having returned from the Exchange Expedition, I have the honor to submit to you the following as a report of my work as Relief Agent of the Commission.

Our party of agents—eight in number—left Washington, on board the Manhattan, Thursday, Oct. 27, and were at Fortress Monroe on Friday noon. We were obliged to remain there until Tuesday, Nov. 1, when I received a permit from Lieut. Col. Mulford, Assistant Agent for Exchange, to proceed with sanitary supplies to Hilton Head, S. C., on board steamer Kanark. (The other agents were same day assigned to different vessels of the fleet lying off the fort.)

We remained off Fortress Monroe till Tuesday, Nov. 8, when we started for Hilton Head, at which place we arrived Saturday, Nov. 12. By Sunday all the transports were anchored at Hilton Head. When we arrived at the furthest point of our expedition,—the place for the exchange—Col. Mulford came aboard the Kanark, and informed us that a rebel flag of truce boat would be down with prisoners Saturday, A.M., Nov. 26, and that the Kanark would have the first boat.

We were much cheered to see the men as they came in the rebel boat Saturday morning, and when they gave three hearty cheers for our flag as they passed some of the vessels. They hauled up alongside of the Star of the South. The men were there washed, put aboard the Crescent, clothed, and by Sunday noon, over 500 of them were aboard the Kanark. In the afternoon of Sunday we were underway. The men were put under charge of a sergeant, who immediately formed them into messes. My work soon began; and while their first meal was being prepared I distributed 400 handkerchiefs and 100 towels. The crackers, onions and pickles were open to the men. At first they received pickles and onions at messes, but when we saw that there were sick who needed them so much more than the others, they were given to them. The steward assisted me in giving out the wine and condensed milk prepared for them to drink, as also the onions and pickles. He worked very energetically among them, though suffering from sea sickness. The supply of wine, pickles and onions was sufficient to the time we reached Annapolis.

Most of the men were in a good condition when we arrived at Annapolis. Some few were badly attacked with scurvy and diarrhoea. Socks, drawers and blankets were distributed among them as needed.

MORE ABOUT THE PRISONERS.

BY L. V. BEEBE.

STEAMER NORTHERN LIGHT,
CHALESTON HARBOR, December 8, 1864. }

The Varuna leaves to-morrow or next day for Annapolis, and not knowing when we may go, I improve the chance to write.

We came here on Monday. Yesterday morning we received 227 men—skeletons—from the rebels. All the exchanged men who are not very much enfeebled are sent on other boats, only the worst cases being put upon this. It is the same story of starvation, scurvy and chronic diarrhoea. These cases are very low, and many will not live to reach Annapolis—already 7 have died. I am very busy amongst them, and I tell you the supplies are gratefully received. "There comes the Sanitary man," and "God bless the Sanitary Commission," are expressions which ring in my ears all day. Onions, pickles and tomatoes are THE things. Not an article but what will be well appropriated here. Dried peaches, and little bits (very small) of cheese are relished in a manner that would astonish you. But the cry for onions and the avidity with which they are received and devoured beats all.

I have made a "tour" amongst them this evening, and have promised them bean soup with onions and tomatoes in it. Soft crackers too, and every man a pickle: and you may believe I have left them in high spirits in this "heaven" as they call it. Of course I am governed entirely by the Surgeon's instructions about issuing and when. The officers and crew, as well as the nurses, of which there are but few, all assist me very cheerfully. Fearing that my onions and tomatoes would not hold out, I made a raid on Leggett, and increased my stock materially.

As this is the "Hospital Ship," and may be detained here indefinitely, and as his boat will receive well men, and will not have them over four or five days, I thought best to draw on his stock. I am very glad I am on the "hospital" ship. There is hard work, to be sure, but I flatter myself that I can meet it. I have no idea when we shall leave, but I think we must go on Sunday or Monday, as we are nearly out of coal, and we ought to have our compliment of men by this time.

ARMY OF THE SHENANDOAH.

BY S. BUDLONG WESTCOTT.

MARTINSBURG, Nov. 1, 1864.

Since my last report we have had some of the most interesting and difficult labors to perform that I have yet seen in the Commission's service. Up to October 22, the wounded have been coming in small numbers, at no time exceeding three hundred, and I found on examination that the Medical Department was fully prepared to receive them. But on the 22d a train of wounded came in without notice. There was not room in the hospitals for nearly all of them, and they had to be placed in private families. Many of these not having supplies for such a number, came to the Commission for tea, coffee, crackers, clothing, bedding, and such other things as we had. I issued freely to all in need, according to the number and their wants. The families were surprised; and I have since heard several of the citizens and soldiers express admiration that the Sanitary Commission was such an institution, and able to do so much. October 23, another train of wounded arrived. With the valuable assistance of Mr. Quail, who came on duty this day as Relief Agent, we were enabled to furnish refreshments to all. On the 26th, 27th, 28th, and the 31st, more arrived, and each time were put directly on the cars and forwarded, part to Cumberland, part to Baltimore, the same night of their arrival. Mr. Quail, with the assistance of Mr. Breed, and several other Relief Agents, who came timely to hand, distributed hot milk punch and crackers to each and all of the wounded sufferers, for which they expressed the most unbounded thanks. James Byron, Co. E, 18th Connecticut, with many thanks donated one dollar to the Sanitary Commission, which you will find enclosed. Our individual relief continues about the same as in last report.

BY NATHANIEL SEAVER, JR.

WINCHESTER, Nov. 23, 1864.

CONDITION OF HOSPITALS.

I feel warranted in saying that the condition of our hospitals has greatly improved. In no ward now, is there the least lack of any article of clothing or hospital furniture. Our issues of this kind are only such as are demanded by the ordinary wear and waste of hospitals. But few patients have been received since the battle of Cedar Creek, and meanwhile patients have been transferred to the rear, so that the number now in Winchester is about one-third of that which was here in the early part of October. Our stock of goods has been ample, and surgeons' requisitions have been promptly filled. At times, owing to some disarrangement of the Government machinery, we have been called on to furnish the whole supply of stimulants for this quarter, and to the extent of our means, have responded to the call. Surgeons and patients all join in praising our Commission.

GENERAL SHERIDAN.

Even no less a person than the gallant General who commands our army in this Valley, recently grasped my hand, while visiting our tents at Sheridan Hospital, and said with a quiet earnestness which showed how deeply he felt what he spoke, "I am under great obligations to your Commission, I do not know what I should have done without it." These tents,—there are two now,—are a success. Mr. Corbin is on the ground, and ready day or night to respond whenever a surgeon makes a call, or a fresh arrival of wounded and sick demands his attention. The Surgeon in charge furnishes him with every accommodation needed, and the proper officers detail a tent guard, or an ambulance, when he is called away. The Hospital Post Office has also been placed in his charge, so that the Sanitary tents are at times literally surrounded by ward masters, nurses, and convalescents.

A CONTRAST TO BELLE ISLE.

As humanity is the first rule of civilized warfare, we have not in our distributions, overlooked the sick and wounded prisoners, who now comprise one-fifth of our hospital inmates. Many a poor maimed son of the South, has so far forgotten his contempt of the "Northern Mudsills" as to bless the Sanitary Commission, in my presence. Poor, misled fellow-countrymen, I know they are sincere, and lest some Northern man or woman, with more feeling than reflection, begrudges this stewardship of their bounties, let me say that every arm-sling thus bestowed helps to strengthen a growing respect for the North, and every crutch branded in deep letters "Sanitary Commission," is a vote for peace, and a plea for the humane treatment of more than one brave brother who now lies in a Southern prison.

BY GEO. A. MUHLECH.
HARPERS FERRY, VA. Dec. 13, 1864.

I have just returned to the Ferry from Martinsburg, where I have made a final settlement of all accounts, and have had the rest of our property removed to here, turning over some small items to the hospitals at Martinsburg. * * * Having paid off all accounts at this agency, I shall leave for Winchester to-morrow morning, in company with Mr. Hammer, who has come down to get supplies. The pressure on the Commission just now, has become very great from all sides. The very severe cold which has set in so suddenly explains this pressure. If more warm underclothing, socks, mittens, stimulants, crackers, canned milk, and farinaceous food are on hand I would most urgently request you to order it up without delay. The army in this valley, I am sorry to say, are far from being in a proper condition to breast the rigors of a winter which commences so suddenly. Two days ago an officer came in from "Opequan Crossing," stating that his own brigade are suffering most intensely for the want of shoes, blankets, socks, mittens and underclothing. If this statement is correct not one-tenth of those men have any other cover but their india rubber blankets. I have despatched an agent to the spot with blankets and a small number of woolen shirts, drawers and other help to the extent of my ability.

Matters at Winchester remain unchanged. Although of our six thousand wounded but few are left in the hospitals, and that all those who can bear transportation are immediately forwarded North, there is nevertheless but a slow decrease in the number of patients. The sick take now the place of the wounded, and if the weather, even for a short time, continues as severe as it is now, there will be a large increase on the hospital lists at all points. It is necessary for the safety of our supplies sent from the Ferry to Winchester, that an agent be permanently stationed at Stevenson's depot (five miles north of Winchester,) the terminus of the road. I will furnish him tent and stove; and for the post I shall select one of our strong, hearty and active agents. * *

Mr. Seaver has been unremitting in his labors. He deserves the gratitude of the Commission in its fullest sense. His assistance has been invaluable to me in every branch of the work. I shall sadly feel his loss now that he is on the eve of leaving this department, where his great heart and splendid mind have worked as few have done. Mr. Quail, the excellent old gentleman, is also leaving us. His work at Martinsburg has been as constant and devoted as it was done quietly and modestly. His name, as well as that of Miss Harris, will be kindly remembered forever by hundreds of poor, brave fellows, whose sufferings they alleviated. Mr. Quail has not only fed and attended our sick and wounded, but he has besides cared that their dead comrades were properly buried, and their graves neatly marked with head-boards bearing the proper inscriptions. In many cases he has filled the functions of chaplain, and said the last prayer over the grave of the brave.

As to Mr. Westcott, who returns home in a few days, I say with pleasure that he has most faithfully administered the agency at Martinsburg.

RELIEF TO WOUNDED REBEL SOLDIERS IN THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

From the report of Mr. J. V. Hammer, Field Agent of the Commission in the 19th Army Corps, dated Winchester, Va., November 18, 1864, we take the following interesting account of aid rendered to rebel soldiers lying wounded outside our lines.

On the evening of the 17th word was brought to Acting Superintendent Seaver at Winchester, by the Provost Marshall of the 19th Army Corps, Capt. N. C. Inwood, that a body of these men were lying in a very destitute condition one and one-half miles beyond our picket lines at Newtown, Va. Capt. Inwood requested aid for them and promised an escort sufficient to protect the stores and men in reaching the town.

Accordingly our agents and the Sanitary Commission wagon, with an assortment of stores, started the next morning for the 19th Army Corps headquarters, where they were joined by Capt. Inwood and the escort. Reaching Newtown they found the men, eighteen in number, quartered in a church, in charge of one of their own surgeons, Dr. Carter. They were all severely wounded, many having amputated limbs. Their condition, as represented by Capt. Inwood, was found to be one of the utmost distress. The object of the visit was made known to Dr. Carter by Mr. Hammer, and our assistance proffered. No notice of the intended relief had been sent, nor had it been expected. It came as a sudden surprise.

The surgeon-in-charge "could hardly give expression by words, of his gratitude to the Commission for its timely aid;" and the men, "with moistened eyes," joined in grateful thanks for the relief thus brought. Stores were left with them, and the party returned in safety to Winchester.

It is thus that our noble Commission endeavors to carry on its work of mercy, fulfilling the law of Christ, unmoved by the spirit of revenge that cries out for "retaliation." "If ye love those that love you, what thanks have you."

KANSAS NOT FORGOTTEN.

LETTER FROM MR. J. R. BROWN.

LEAVENWORTH, Nov. 18, 1864.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Secy. U. S. San. Com., Western Department.

DEAR SIR:—I have again returned from below to Leavenworth, and am gratified to find very liberal shipments of Sanitary stores, just arrived from Chicago and St. Louis. The special effort made by our Kansas people to raise relief for those wounded in the struggle for the defence of Kansas against Price's merciless horde, together with the goods I was compelled to purchase to meet the exigencies of a case which would admit of no delay, added to the shipments I have received, and those I have noticed as on the way, will make an ample supply for the present.

I have received many most encouraging letters, evincing appreciation of our work. Copies of two please find enclosed.

Our hospitals in Kansas, from present indications, will be full of sick and wounded for the coming winter, and some faithful agent of the Commission must be actively engaged in this field.

The letters referred to consist of the TESTIMONIAL OF SURGEON VAN DUYN.

U. S. GENERAL HOSPITAL, }

FORT SCOTT, KANSAS, Nov. 15, 1864. }

MR. J. R. BROWN,

Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of a good supply of clothing and sanitary stores for the relief of sick and wounded soldiers and refugees at this post.

Their arrival was most timely, as they came on the eve of the recent battles on the border, when the hospital was crowded and our supplies inadequate.

It is in such emergencies that the inestimable value of the great charity of which you are a worthy and faithful agent, is so happily felt.

The benefactions of the Commission, and your own efficient service, here, and on the field, and in the hospitals on the border, have been appreciated and highly valued by both officers and men.

Please accept for the Commission and yourself our grateful acknowledgments.

Respectfully, your obedient servant

A. C. VAN DUYN.

Surgeon U. S. Vols.

TESTIMONIAL OF SURGEON TWISS.

POST HOSPITAL, MOUND CITY, KANSAS, }

Nov. 16, 1864. }

OFFICERS OF U. S. SAN. COM.

GENTLEMEN:—Having been on the field of battle with the army of the border, from Lexington, Mo., to Mine Creek, Kansas, and having witnessed the sufferings of the soldiers at the several places where battles were fought, it affords me great pleasure to attest to the timely and efficient aid of the Sanitary Commission. Mr. J. R. Brown, agent of the Western Department, was with the corps of surgeons, and worked incessantly in getting in the wounded, and in furnishing food and clothing at a time when it could not otherwise have been obtained. The Commission have reason to congratulate themselves that they have so efficient an agent in this department. He has secured the confidence and good wishes of all by his application to his duties, and I am glad to add my testimony in his favor.

I am very respectfully,

Your obedient servant.

E. TWISS.

Surgeon 15th Kansas, Cav. Vols.

Tennessee.

BY R. BRUNDRETT.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 25, 1864.

Since my last report Mr. Tone, Mr. Drake, and myself left for Pulaski, on the 17th, with a large supply of vegetables for general distribution at that point and Columbia, which was accomplished previous to the evacuation of Pulaski. Never in our experience has so large a supply been distributed at any one time, or given such general satisfaction. The entire army, officers and men, have had an abundant supply of potatoes, onions, pickles, kraut, and other vegetables, sufficient for several days, of which Mr. Tone will report in detail.

Upon the evacuation of Pulaski, we left on the last train and arrived the same night at Columbia, where we were kindly cared for by Dr. A. J. Comfort, surgeon of the post.

After getting a list of deaths, from October 1 to November 21, we left for the depot, where we found Mr. Tone and Mr. Drake, who had preceded me two days. They had distributed a large supply at that point, and had on hand still three car loads to distribute, so soon as the troops settled down.

I left for Nashville on the evening train; indications were that a collision would take place between the opposing armies at or near Columbia, and that supplies would be needed for battle purposes. I shall return in the morning to the front, and, to the best of my ability, will keep you informed as to everything connected with our mission.

Please find enclosed list of casualties and deaths in post hospital at Pulaski, since last report up to 23d, also list of deaths in post hospital at Columbia, to same date. Enclosed also Dr. Failor's complimentary notice of the workings of the Sanitary Commission.

NOTE.—According to Mr. Tone's detailed report, to be issued as follows, from November 7 to November 21, 1864.

|               | Kraut & Pickles. | Onions.      | Potatoes.   |
|---------------|------------------|--------------|-------------|
| Columbia,     | 2,799 Gallons.   | 344 Bushels. | 47 Bushels. |
| Stevenson,    | 840 "            | 135 "        | 15 "        |
| Johnsonville, | 1,117 "          | 564 "        | 51 "        |
| Pulaski,      | 11,716 "         | 1,733 "      | 94 "        |
|               | 16,472           | 2,776        | 207         |

TESTIMONIAL FROM SURGEON FAILOR.

PULASKI, TENN., NOV. 25, 1864.

MR. ROBERT BRUNDRETT.

DEAR SIR:—To day, while passing through the various regiments composing the army now concentrating at this point, I was struck with wonder when I saw the profusion of supplies which they had received from you as agent for the United States Sanitary Commission. Regiments from Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Iowa, and every other State represented, were equally supplied. Looking at the amount issued at this place, a person would suppose that the North had emptied its gardens and cellars to furnish sufficient for this one issue; but having been with the troops during the entire campaign, I know that this amount, however large it may appear, is nothing compared with the aggregate issued by the agents of the Commission during the campaign. At Cleveland, Dalton, Resaca, Kingston, Dallas, Ackworth, Kennesaw, during and after the siege of Atlanta, the troops were fully supplied, whenever an opportunity offered. You have my personal thanks for the interest taken by you in supplying the sick and wounded of the 3d division, 4th Army Corps, with vegetables; and I feel confident that with the aid of these, we were enabled to treat much more successfully, all the diseases that came under our notice.

I learn that you are going to Ohio in a few days, and feel that you will find more pleasure, during your years of retirement from active life, in reflecting upon the noble nature of the work in which you were engaged, during the progress of the rebellion, than from any other personal consideration; for be assured, the fervent, hearty "God bless you," of many a brave soldier, has been uttered in your behalf.

I have often wondered if the people of the North were fully aware of the magnitude and importance of the work undertaken by the United States Sanitary Commission. The season now approaches when we will again hear of Sanitary Fairs, and of increased activity on the part of the "Soldiers' Aid Societies," when during the long winter evenings, the northern farmer will sit by his bright blazing fire, his cellar filled with plenty. When, during the leisure that follows a summer of toil, thoughts of absent loved ones will enter every family circle. These thoughts will culminate in a resolve to send something to their brave boy, and the next thing discussed will be by what channel shall we send? If I could enter that family circle, then I would say to them, "give of your stores to the United States Sanitary Commission; for if the past is a guarantee for the future, no matter where that loved boy may be, whether in camp, trench, or hospital, he will get what you send." I sincerely trust that the Commission will receive the whole contribution of the people.

It is the interest of the contributor and the soldier, that the channel through which supplies are sent, shall be sufficiently comprehensive in its detail, liberal in its endowment, and energetic in its execution to reach the soldier at all times, and in all places. The United States Sanitary Commission now does this, its organization is complete, its agents have experience and understand the magnitude of the work to be performed, and it should have the united support of a magnanimous and patriotic people.

That the army endures more, suffers less from sickness, and is in every way more efficient, under a full and regular supply of vegetable diet, has been so often shown, and is so generally admitted, that the arguments in its favor need no reiteration by me.

Wishing you and the Commission abundant success,

I am very respectfully, your friend,
B. M. FAILOR, 19th O. V. I.

Surgeon-in-charge of Hospitals, 3d Division, 4th A. C.

BY BENJAMIN WOODWARD.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 28, 1864

I have just returned from Vicksburg, Natchez, and intermediate points. At Vicksburg found Mr. J. G. Brown, who has a good supply of most kinds of stores. He is an earnest, faithful worker, and enjoys the full confidence of the military and medical authorities. The troops at Vicksburg are in far the best condition of any that I have found in this department. The same is true of the hospitals. The McPherson hospital, Surgeon Edwin Powell, in all its arrangements, police, and general management, comes nearest to my own ideas of a "perfect hospital." A billiard table, devoted exclusively to the use of the establishment, a gymnasium fitted with all the necessary appliances, for the use of all the inmates, and a well selected and valuable library, add much to the health and comfort of the patients. The light diet kitchen, under the charge of a lady from Kalamazoo, Michigan, furnishes all the requirements in that line. The "fund" not only keeps the hospital clear of debt, but enables the surgeon to buy nearly everything necessary.

BUTTER.

One thing only is absolutely required, which cannot be purchased, and that is butter. This article of diet is not so much a luxury as a necessity. Experience proves it to be one of the most perfect restoratives that can be given convalescents, while in cases of diseases of the lungs, and suppurating wounds, it is invaluable. Wherever I go, butter is asked for, and I am of the opinion that for hospital use, no one article is more valuable. At Vicksburg I found Mrs. Governor Harvey, of Wisconsin. She devotes her whole time and means to the soldiers, by whom she is regarded with love and veneration. While I was in her room a poor emaciated creature came in, who was going home on a furlough, which she had procured him. A few kind words, a quilt to keep him warm, and a greenback in his hand to purchase any little luxury he might want, and he started home with a tear in his eye, and a blessing on his lips.

NATCHEZ.

From Vicksburg I proceeded to Natchez. Here I found one hospital, with 118 patients, poorly provided for in articles of diet. There are but few white troops there, but a large force of colored. While I was there a squad of soldiers, belonging to the 29th Indiana Volunteers, came to the Sanitary Commission rooms, asking for shoes, socks, and shirts. These men had been sent from Morganza, on a scouting expedition, and were in a destitute condition. Several of them were barefoot and ragged. There was no way in which they could draw from government, being on detached service. Their wants were fully supplied, and they left on another scout, with cheers for the Sanitary Commission. Finding what was needed there, Mr. Marsh, agent of Western Sanitary Commission at Natchez, accompanied me to Vicksburg, and I gave him a small stock of stores to take back with him. Natchez is so small and unimportant a post, that I think an agent is not required there, as Mr. Marsh will act for us, the most perfect harmony and good feeling existing between the two Commissions. At Goodrich's Landing, Milliken's Bend, and one or two other minor posts, the want of vegetables is great. Mr. Brown made a shipment to some of those points while I was there, and will attend to the wants of all. There is pressing demand for woolen shirts, under shirts, and socks. Can you not send some? The stock of cotton shirts is ample. I wrote you some time since that "Mr. Carpenter had gone up White River with a large invoice." I told him "if possible, to go to Fort Smith." Letters received from him show that the Arkansas River had so risen, that he could proceed there. "He has done so, and taken all the goods with him." I rejoice that it was so. Mr. Grant will leave on the first boat, with stores for the mouth of White River, and an invoice will be sent to Helena in a day or two.

EXTRACTS FROM "CLEVELAND BULLETIN."

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Oct. 30, 1864.

* * * I have taken occasion upon this trip, as I have frequently heretofore, to look into the workings of that huge benevolent association, the United States Sanitary Commission. I find it as ubiquitous, as humane, as charitable, as life-saving, as indispensable as ever. On every hand, both in the army and upon all the lines of communication, its presence is felt. Every hospital train, whose easy beds and rapid transit save unnumbered throes of mortal anguish to wounded heroes, rattles its praises. Every long delayed letter, retained for want of a pre-payment of sufficient postage at home, when it reaches the weary and home-sick soldier at the far off "front," endorsed "Paid by U. S. Sanitary Commission," tells of its ever watchful care for the nation's defenders. Let those who have contributed to the support of this noble Commission feel assured that their contributions fulfill their object. I have seen many applications of the contributions of the people of Huron County and other localities, and know that they have been honestly, justly, and wisely used to the end for which they have been given. The members and agents of the Commission are live, earnest, working, Christian men; men who have succeeded in life in their own business, and who are not, consequently, engaged in the work to gain a livelihood, but through patriotic and charitable motives. I wish I could give your readers an adequate idea of the number of ways in which the Commission dispenses charities and renders assistance to the soldiers; but I cannot. One of its most important successes has been achieved through the medium of its Sanitary Gardens, of which in this department it has four, viz: one at Murfreesboro, one at this point, one on Lookout Mountain, and one at Knoxville. These are intended to furnish supplies for the various hospitals in their respective localities. That at this place consists of about one hundred and twenty-five acres; and has been a great success. There have been gathered from it during the season, about twenty thousand bushels of produce of various kinds, worth at this point, as estimated, fifty thousand dollars! All this has been accomplished at an expense to the Commission of less than three thousand dollars! The other gardens have been more or less successful, according to the various circumstances of adaptation of soil and climate, supply of seeds and implements, etc., which have surrounded them.

I am fully persuaded,—and I have been "in this army" over three years—that owing to the efforts of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, many, yes, very many valuable lives have been saved, and untold suffering has been avoided. Let this work go on!

Let the loyal people of the land sustain this noble enterprise! and then, after this dire struggle shall have ceased, and peace shall again smile upon our distracted country, it will be recorded that not the least in the great work of saving the republic, was found, erect in all its purity, noble in its charity, and resplendent in its practical christianity, the United States Sanitary Commission.

It is expected that the road to the front will soon be repaired, and the trains be running as usual. I shall endeavor to take the first train through to Atlanta.

C. P. WICKHAM,
Major 55th O. V. I.

OFFICERS' HOSPITAL, LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, }
CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Aug. 26, 1864. }

I take advantage of a short sick leave, which seems to be a regular episode in the middle of a summer's work at Chattanooga, and is a very pleasant one when spent on these breezy heights, to send you some of my impressions of the Sanitary Commission work.

In the first place although I expected to find that the Commission was doing a great work among the soldiers, I was not prepared for the extent to which it seems to be regarded as a regular branch of the service, and to have in its care the comfort and even the life of the sick and wounded. I have talked with many private soldiers on the subject, sometimes without making known my own relations to the Commission, and although some have grumbled at what they believed to be its abuses, I have found scarcely any one who has not given it credit for being essential to the army.

A very intelligent corporal, who had no other interest in the Commission than as a former recipient of its bounty, having been lately discharged from the service, expressed to me his own views and what he believed to be the views of all who had properly considered the subject. "As long as a man is doing full duty in his company the government usually takes full care of him, but as soon as he drops out of the ranks from sickness or wounds, he is thrown upon the Sanitary Commission. He is clothed hastily in the field hospital from the Sanitary stores, he lies upon a Sanitary bed and whatever he receives that a sick man can possibly eat or drink comes from the same source. As the hospital arrangements now are, not one in ten of those who now recover could do so without the Sanitary Commission. But because it issues on the requisition of surgeons and other officers, instead of distributing at once to the patients, the latter suppose that everything is furnished by their own commissary, and they abuse the Commission while accepting its favors without knowing it." I myself have known the most blatant grumblers go off crestfallen on being shown the mark of some Soldiers' Aid Society on the clothing which they were wearing.

The question is often asked whether the Commission is not doing much that government ought to do, and which its incompetent officers have neglected. True there has been some of this, but it grows less every day. But whatever government ought to do there is much which it leaves to the Sanitary, which will not be done without it, and which the army cannot spare. Whatever is lost or converted to unworthy uses, the soldiers themselves have told me that they considered to be amply repaid by the good accomplished by the rest.

Visitors who have been staggered on first coming down here by the apparent confirmation of unfavorable reports, have afterwards said, as indeed many soldiers tell them, that there is no department under strictly government management in which the loss is not greater. I have never felt so keenly as now the necessity of supporting the Commission promptly and liberally.

The above is an extract from a letter received at this office from a gentleman of this city who visited the front as our special agent.

THREE MONTHS IN THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

NO. IV.—AMONG THE WOUNDED AT WHITE HOUSE LANDING.

On the second day of June the wounded began to arrive, and seeing heavy work ahead, the cargo of the Kent was discharged into the Hoboken, and that steamer left for Baltimore, to get another supply of needed articles. A portion of the Elizabeth was set apart for the better accommodation and feeding of the Relief Agents and nurses whose recent arduous labors at Fredericksburg, Belle Plain, and Port Royal, Va., had shown the imperative necessity of exercising more care toward them in their food and rest, both as a matter of economy and justice. The writer of these papers was honored with the position of Purveyor, a part of the duties pertaining to that office, being the providing of food and lodging for all persons connected with the Sanitary Commission at the water base of the Army of the Potomac. I may say in passing, that necessitous cases hourly arose thereafter which caused the Director finally to instruct me to limit the blessings of feeding and resting needy soldiers and civilians to the extent only of the capacity of possible accommodation. It should here be understood that no case was admitted unless the need was proven, and then only on the order of some responsible officer in the service of the Government or of the Commission, as I shall have occasion to refer again to this branch, I will not enlarge now.

ARRIVAL OF WOUNDED.

On Thursday, June 3, the wounded arrived by thousands, and thank God, our force was fully prepared for them. The field was taken as divided by Government officers in such cases, and relief stations with proper supplies, set up near each brigade hospital, to which were attached dressers of wounds, relief agents, &c. The Directors in this work, Hon. Frank B. Fay, and Dr. Joseph Parrish, pitched their tents in central locations on the field of operations, the better to supervise the work. To facilitate the obtaining of necessary supplies, a large tent was erected at a convenient point, to which stores were drawn from the boats. So if a hospital steward needed a bandage, instead of making out a formal requisition, and running down to the boat of the Sanitary Commission, and there awaiting his turn, involving the waste of perhaps two hours, he simply had to run to the next tent, where he was known to be what he represented himself, and not a bandage alone, but every article that could comfort or assist the patient, was to be had for the asking; and when the stores of the brigade tents failed, they were replenished from the large supply tent alluded to. Thus was the work systematized, and our whole force busied themselves from early dawn until far into the night of June 3. Similar scenes greeted us to those that were witnessed at Port Royal.

TRANSPORTATION.

Those dreadful army wagons without springs, as usual shook out the life from many a brave boy, but there seemed no help for it at those times and places. One poor fellow I shall never forget, as I saw him with both hands amputated at the wrists, and part of his face broken in by a shell, being led to the hospital boat by an elderly gentleman, an Agent of the U. S. Sanitary Commission; he looked so piteously thankful for the favor. When at eleven o'clock P.M., the Relief Corps returned to the boat for refreshments and rest, each and all expressed devout thanks that not one had been omitted who needed assistance.

INCIDENTS.

Many were the incidents narrated at these repasts from the experience of the agents. On the occasion referred to, I distinctly remember two, one was that of a Massachusetts man who was severely wounded in the throat, so that he could take no nourishment, and was only easy while in an upright position. One of our nurses devoted his whole time and attention to the poor fellow while he needed it. The soldier derived great comfort from a photograph of a family group, consisting of himself, his wife and three children; in looking upon the shadows of those he loved his eyes expressed what his tongue could not; his spirit's departure was sweet; he motioned the nurse to moisten his parched lips, placed the picture within the folds of his inner garment, and laying his head on the shoulder of his attendant he expired. The other incident was that of some colored men who were awaiting a passage from the White House. Seeing the difficulty many of the poor wounded had in reaching the boats, they procured wheelbarrows and volunteered their services to carry some of the slightly wounded ones thereto, and they did gallant service both in leading and carrying, on that occasion. Before the late repast alluded to was finished, the news was brought us that the van of a train bearing eight thousand more of the wounded had arrived, and that more help must be sent into the field. To add to the troubles of the occasion a fierce rain storm had set in. However, a few of those who were really hardened to the work, volunteered, while the rest were urged to rest in preparation for the work of the following day. This day's issues of supplies was the largest of any previously chronicled in the history of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, and exceeded that of any day during the ever memorable struggle at Gettysburg.

RESOLUTIONS

Adopted at a meeting of American Citizens held at Buenos Ayres, S. A., June 20, 1864.

Whereas, We recognise in the United States Sanitary Commission an institution eminently Christian and humane, organized for the prevention and relief of suffering, to which object we have constant evidences that it is devoting its efforts most faithfully and energetically, therefore,

Resolved, That we hereby desire to record our expression of sympathy and interest in the work of charity and love in which the Commission is engaged, promising to promote its objects by giving it what lays in our power, of our influence and means.

Resolved, That a Committee of seven American Citizens be appointed by the Chair to raise contributions for the benefit of the Commission, in such manner as they may deem proper, with instructions not to confine their field of labor to this Republic, but to extend the same to the neighboring Republics of Uruguay and Paraguay, with power to appoint such sub-committees as they may consider advisable.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed be authorized to remit to the Treasurer of the Commission, the contributions that they may receive, in such manner as they may consider most advantageous, combined with safety.

Resolved, That the Committee be authorized to call meetings of the subscribers and friends of the movement, at such times as they may deem expedient.

Resolved, That we hereby tender to the Hon. Mr. Kirk our thanks for granting us the use of his rooms on this occasion, and for the warm interest he has taken in this movement; also the Editors of the "Standard" for their gratuitous publications of the notices calling this meeting, and for the favorable allusions made to it in some of their recent numbers.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the President of the United States Sanitary Commission.

(A true copy.) HENRY S. AYRES,
Secretary.

BUENOS AYRES, S. A., Oct. 11, 1864.

J. FOSTER JENKINS, M.D.,
Secretary of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

SIR:—In accordance with one of a series of Resolutions, adopted at a meeting of American citizens, held here on the 20th of June last, for the purpose of taking measures to raise funds in aid of the United States

Sanitary Commission, I beg leave to wait upon you with a copy of these resolutions, for the information of your organization.

The movement then initiated has resulted in the collection of the sum of £1,195 1s. sterling, which will be remitted to your Treasurer by this mail; it is hoped that this amount will be somewhat increased by further contributions.

With the prayer that the Commission may be enabled to continue its work of humanity until the necessity for it ceases, which God grant may be soon.

I remain, your obedient servant,

HENRY S. AYRES,
Secretary.

REPORT FROM SUSQUEHANNA CO., PA.

In pursuance of instructions of the County Council held at Montrose, on the 18th of October, the following summary of what has been done by the different Aid Societies of the County, for the Sanitary Commission has been prepared. The delay has been unavoidable, as some of the important reports were received only a few days since. A few societies have been unable to report by reason of the loose manner in which their accounts have been kept. Deaths, sickness, and removal, are the true reasons in most cases, of tardy or imperfect reports. A large number have sent in complete returns containing list of all articles forwarded, with estimated cash value, while some have sent complete lists with cash value of only a part, or the cash value of all that had been done, with only a partial list of articles. Some have given only a list of articles, and others only the cash value. This summary, therefore, though unavoidably imperfect, is the best that can be prepared from such data as can now be obtained.

Montrose, Harford, Uniondale, Franklin, Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, Rush, Forest Lake, Friendsville and Forest Lake, West Harford, Lawsville Centre, Dimock, (2 soc.,) Friendsville, West Auburn, Clifford, Springville, Auburn, East Bridgewater, and Little Meadows Aid Societies have sent to the Sanitary Commission :

- |                            |                                           |
|----------------------------|-------------------------------------------|
| 1,247 shirts.              | 295 bottles of wine.                      |
| 174 sheets.                | 71 gallons of wine.                       |
| 588 pairs drawers.         | 1 keg of wine.                            |
| 729 pillows.               | 1 cask of wine.                           |
| 756 pillow cases.          | 25 gallons of syrup.                      |
| 212 arm slings.            | 507 cans of fruit.                        |
| 291 dressing gowns.        | 2,709 pounds of dried fruit of all kinds. |
| 247 pairs slippers.        | 13½ bushels of dried fruit.               |
| 342 pairs socks.           | 273 packages dried fruit.                 |
| 1,013 towels and bandk'fs. | 31½ firkins of pickles.                   |
| 126 quilts and blankets.   |                                           |

- |                          |                                                      |
|--------------------------|------------------------------------------------------|
| 100 pounds of butter.    | 11 bushels potatoes.                                 |
| 5 tubs of butter.        | 110 needle-books, &c.                                |
| 1 firkin of butter.      | 61 pads.                                             |
| 50 pounds maple sugar.   | 1 sack dried corn.                                   |
| 1,125 cakes maple sugar. | 8 quarts dried corn.                                 |
| 173½ dozen of eggs.      | 12 pounds horse-radish.                              |
| 1 keg of eggs.           | 17 pounds corn starch.                               |
| 16 coats.                | 32 pounds of cheese.                                 |
| 64 hop pillows.          | 6 pairs of mittens.                                  |
| 2 pairs of shoes.        | 4 pairs of pants.                                    |
| 3½ bushels of apples.    | 110 lemons.                                          |
| 10 quarts of vinegar.    | And more than 200 packages of unenumerated articles. |
| 12 cans of honey.        |                                                      |
| 14 cans, sundries.       |                                                      |

Large quantities of bandages, lint, old cloth, reading matter, dried beef, sage, hops, fruit, combs, jelly, tea, green currants, pie-plant, currant, shrub, raspberry, and elderberry vinegar, peaches, pears, eggs, beans, etc., are reported, of which no exact account can be given.

Great Bend, Glenwood, Elk Lake, Brooklyn, Upsonville, and Jackson Aid Societies report estimated cash value of articles sent at $943 62; donation from Welch citizens, $200; sent to Central Fair articles valued at over $3,000; making considerably more than four thousand dollars, in addition to the foregoing list of articles.

West Auburn, and several other societies that were struggling to keep up the good work, acknowledge with thanks, ten dollars donations for their encouragement, from unknown friends, by hand of Miss S. M. Walker.

It cannot be doubted that the amount contributed by citizens of this county to the Sanitary Commission, and kindred charities, for the relief of our suffering soldiers, is very much larger than is here reported. Let those whose labors of love fail to be made known to the world, remember that they are not forgotten of our Heavenly Father.

It may safely be said, that benefactions so grand and magnificent, would never have been made had it not been for the noble women, who at great sacrifices and untiring zeal, have sustained the Aid Societies. Many of our citizens have most nobly seconded their efforts; some have done but little, while a large number have done almost nothing. Let no lover of his country who reads this report, fail to "help those women." The call for aid is now, and must for sometime be urgent. Let every one who can, do something, and the almoners of our benefactions will be forced to cry, "hold, enough!" Till that time, may there be no lack of giving or doing.

CALVIN C. HALSEY,

Secretary of the County Council.

MONTROSE, PA., Nov. 28, 1864.

Correspondence.

CONTRIBUTION FROM SOLDIERS.

CAMP CONNESS, Sept. 18, 1864.

DEAR SIR:—Enclosed you will find twenty-five dollars, a donation from Co. H, 2nd C. C. V., to the Sanitary Fund. The donation was made from fractions of dollars due the men at the pay table, which the paymaster could not make at the time the men were paid—the amount being paid to them in bulk afterwards—and they (the men) voted to send it to the Sanitary Fund for the relief of our fellow-soldiers, who are fighting for “the Union and Liberty” in the East. Although not with them in person, our hearts and sympathies are in the work, and may God speed the day when this cursed rebellion shall be conquered, and peace, happiness and plenteousness once more reign supreme over our land. Hoping that this will reach you in safety, and praying God will bless and aid our cause, I subscribe myself most respectfully,

Your ob't servant and well-wisher,

WM. W. WHITE,

Private Co. H, 2d C. C. V., Camp Conness,
Utah Territory, near Salt Lake City.REV. HENRY W. BELLOWES,
President of the Sanitary Commission,EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS BY AUXILIARY RELIEF AGENTS AT CITY POINT, VA.

AMONG COLORED TROOPS.

I have endeavored to familiarize myself with each and all, by engaging them in conversation as to their previous history, connections, &c., and have been very much pleased with the intelligence displayed by some, and gratified by the respectful, as well as grateful demeanor of all. I find it both pleases and cheers them to find an interested listener to their relations, and I think tends to dissipate to a considerable extent the depression of spirits consequent upon sickness and absence from friends, and just to the same extent helps to promote their recovery. While their patience under suffering is most exemplary, on no single occasion have I seen anything like impertinence in their manner or coarseness in their expressions. As fact is said to be stranger than fiction, I have listened to the recitals of the experience of some which gave me a more vivid idea of the wrongs and cruelties of slavery, than any description I ever read or heard. Out of the whole number in my ward, (263), 161 can both read and write, while the rest, almost to a man, (where able to sit up,) are anxious to learn. I have assisted them as much as possible with books and instructions, and find them as a rule apt scholars. Becoming accustomed to, I really like my work, not that it is at all agreeable, but the consciousness of being engaged in a good and noble cause, as well as aiding to some extent to discharge the obligations we owe them as a race for ages of oppression and cruelty, amply compensates for the self-denial, which the most unpleasant part of the work requires. In addition to this, the grateful feeling they manifest is most pleasing and encouraging.

I regard the moral and social aspects of this work as of greater importance than the physical ones, as I believe they tend to develop and elevate their character, while intimate social intercourse and real friendly interest stimulates their desire for improvement, and this tends to make them better soldiers and better members of society. A double obligation binds us to do all we can for this despised and down-trodden race; what we owe them for years of oppression and caste prejudice, and what we owe society in which they are henceforth to mingle as free citizens. Every kind word and act, and every useful effort, while it helps to fulfill our obligations to them as the Creator's intelligent creatures, tends also to develop mind and manhood in them.

AN INCIDENT.

There is more real romance in this war than will ever be written, and my calling brings me face to face with more or less of it. About a week since (not more) a young man was brought in here, suffering and worn down with chronic diarrhœa. He sent for me when he found that his hours were numbered, and told me his story and begged my prayers. He had been a first lieutenant in the English army, and had with him his commission and Crimean medal. Coming to this country in May last as a traveler, (from love of excitement), or because his was the old, old story of the prodigal son, he enlisted in July as a private in a cavalry regiment, and the 1st of September found him acting in that capacity in front of Petersburg. I found him dying, almost a stranger in a far country—a gentleman by birth and education, only twenty-nine years of age, and strikingly handsome—and as he told me the story of his wanderings from home and from God, and bade me write to those nearest and dearest to him, my heart was touched as it has seldom been before. He fell asleep, humble, penitent and resigned, and this evening at sunset I committed his body to the dust, in the hope of a joyful resurrection. He sleeps in our quiet little cemetery on the Appomattox, while loving hearts across the Atlantic are waiting and watching for his footsteps. It is better as it is, for God has called the wanderer home.

I have been thinking, as I wrote, that we little know of what material the rank and file of this great army is composed, and of what high honor it is worthy at the hands of the people.

Individual Relief from a single Auxiliary Relief Station, Army of the Potomac, in one day, (November 17, 1864,) exclusive of Hospital Relief.

| Applications. | Articles.     | Applications. | Articles.   |
|---------------|---------------|---------------|-------------|
| 2             | Apples.       | 22            | Onions.     |
| 1             | Bay rum.      | 9             | Pipes.      |
| 10            | Combs.        | 4             | Paper.      |
| 1             | Cologne.      | 6             | Penholders. |
| 1             | Crackers.     | 15            | Pens.       |
| 3             | Drawers.      | 3             | Pencils.    |
| 1             | Envelopes.    | 5             | Pins.       |
| 2             | Ginger.       | 3             | Suspenders. |
| 1             | Haukerchiefs. | 4             | Slippers.   |
| 6             | Luk.          | 4             | Shirts.     |
| 1             | Lemons.       | 3             | Towels.     |
| 6             | Mustard.      | 12            | Tobacco.    |
| 2             | Matches.      | 9             | Thread.     |
| 1             | Milk.         | 1             | Wine.       |
| 6             | Socks.        | 1             | Yarn.       |
| 3             | Needles.      |               |             |

Total number of applications, 149. Variety of articles, 32.

WISCONSIN SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 9, 1864.

Editor Sanitary Commission Bulletin:

DEAR SIR:—Perhaps some of your sanitarian readers would like to know something in brief of the work that is being done here in the common cause, by the good ladies of Milwaukee. For the last three years a Soldiers' Aid Society, with auxiliaries in other towns and villages, has done for the State of Wisconsin, the same noble work with which the whole country, and more especially its armies, are now so familiar. It has since become an auxiliary of the Commission, and has added to the means of the latter, some 3,500 cases of supplies, which have in great part been distributed through the agency of the North-Western Branch of the Commission located in Chicago.

But it is not alone in the collection of supplies, nor in the inspection of them so thoroughly, that not an article is repacked for transmission to Chicago and the front which has not been put in perfect order, nor a potato re-barrelled which has not had its "evil eye" eradicated, nor an onion that is not hard and sound, peeled in the "picking room," (an establishment, the atmosphere of which, is so redolent of sympathy, and its phenomena so replete with all that is affecting, that I had no sooner entered the door than I felt their lachrymal influence, and left it with streaming eyes (not yet wholly dried), nor is it that in the packing of everything, such thoroughness is observed that the packages are passed through the depot of the Branch in Chicago "on faith," without a thought of examination—as I was there informed, before I had an opportunity to see for myself—it is not alone thus, that they serve the friends and neighbors who are fighting their battles for them. They serve them in a way still dearer to those whose patriotism has not quenched, but rather quickened the sacred fires of the domestic altar, and who hear the sighings of their wives and the cries of their children, above the roar of the cannon and the whizz of the minie ball. They serve them by serving those, the memory of whom cheers the soldier, amid the waste places of the weary march, and the thought of whom, never more to be seen in this world, adds bitterness to his last hour on the field of death.

As I look through the frosted window panes, I see women hurrying along the white, slippery street, wrapping close around them whatever of woolen and furs they have on—often alas! too scanty, though every one here wears furs—to shield themselves, as much as may be, from the keen bitter wind that drives the snow and ice before it, through an atmosphere wherein the thermometer stands at so many degrees below zero, that I am afraid to mention it to the—comparatively speaking—"sunny south" denizens of the cities of Brotherly Loves, Monuments, Magnificent Distances, and wherever else southward Sherman and the Sanitary Commission Bulletin have by this time penetrated;—and when they get to the door they push in—the bolder and more demonstrative of them, for some of them are timid and quiet—with such a hasty scrambling stamp of their snow-covered feet, and such a sharp clicking snap of the latch, as shows that they grudge every half-moment outside, when they can get inside. And when they get inside it is no wonder that the hoods and woolen wrappings become gradually thrown back and loosened, for a huge stove, the like of which for dimensions is quite unknown to the ordinary purlieus of the sunny-southward places before-mentioned, radiates a most grateful warmth all through the large long room; nor is it any wonder that their faces soon become thawed and their features unpuckered, for in the midst of them—by this time their numbers have increased to quite a little multitude, some sixty I should say without counting—sits a little group of “elect ladies,” with looks and tones of welcome for them; and in the midst of the elect ladies sits the one who not only—like others perhaps among them—gives all her days, and sometimes sleepless nights to the Wisconsin Soldiers’ Aid Society, but who, two or three months ago, braving railroad smashes, Mosby’s guerrillas and all other perils of the road, journeyed all alone to Washington, and by her Napoleonic tactics so softened the hearts of the stern officials of the Quartermaster’s Department—no, for it is too serious a matter for jesting—by her graphic representations of these very women now before me, soldiers’ wives or widows, waiting for back pay or pension, through months and sometimes for over a year, with the “hope deferred that maketh the heart sick,” waiting on such days as this with hungry children cowering round her fireless hearth; by the power of truth and her pathetic delineations of the alternative if the boon were refused, of great and unavoidable suffering among the families whose providers had abandoned home ties for the wider circle of duty, which at every point touches hardship, danger and death, obtained a Government contract for the making up of soldiers’ underclothes, and it is by the work and pay afforded them in sewing these clothes, that these poor women get the tea to soften their bread, and the salt to flavor their children’s potatoes. Would that a new contract could be obtained every week or two, and then they might now and then add sugar to their tea, and meat to their potatoes.

But a more important work still is done for these poor women and their children by these ladies, and that is, in securing for them the County and State money allowed by the laws of the State to the families of soldiers in the field, but which most of them are too uneducated—at least in English, for the Teutonic element largely prevails—to get for themselves, and are thus left to the long delays of uninterested persons who make only a matter of business of their affairs; or still worse, become a prey to sharppers and those wicked ones who “devour widows’ houses” and “afflict the fatherless child.” In this room in fact is a branch bureau of the great and beneficent Special Relief System of the Commission, and it has been organized by and is carried on under the instructions of the Secretary of State for Wisconsin, an ex-General, who has given an arm and his health to the cause, and knows how to sympathize with his old comrades, both in their anxieties of the field and of their homes. Over this bureau presides the wife of an eminent judge, and the ermine certainly loses nothing of its purity and dignity when it covers such workers, and shields such work as this. On the table before her lie, numerous blanks, which are rapidly being filled in, by herself and her assistant—who, as interpreter, exchanges the soft tones of her native Castilian for English and for the still more guttural German—and as fast as they are signed (or marked) by the claimants, they are laid together to be forwarded to Madison, the capitol of the State, for official action. By their side lies a pile of bank checks, the fruit of former papers of the same kind, substantiating similar claims to payment of State dues. You should see how that poor German woman’s square heavy face, reddened by the frost and hardened by poverty and anxiety, refines and lightens up, as the stuff for the garment is put into her hands; or better still, the price of those she brings back is handed to her to be exchanged for some little article of necessity, or to her luxury for herself or child; or still better, as the pen is put into her finger for the stiff, angular, black-letter-like German signature that looks so hard and crabbed to English-scrip-reading eyes, or is guided over the paper to form the cross which indicates “her mark,” which mark, simple as it is, is the “open sesame” to a Golconda of several greenbacks; or best of all, as the sundry dollars collected on a check in her favor is consigned to the depths of her glove, her handkerchief or her pocket. What a pity she can’t lay down her cross once for all when putting it on paper, and that she can’t get a check cashed every week without having to bear it!

Thus, here in the far North-West, one lays one’s hand, amid the ice and snow, on one point of the circumference of that same vast circle (its stupendousness and beneficence not realized perhaps even by its own central workers) which, alive with deeds of charity at every point within its superficies, throws out its magnetic wires laden with messages of love and its tracks freighted with good cheer, and from this and every other available spot of its periphery, from the frozen North to the burning South, from the malarious levee of the father of waters to the long bleak reaches of the Atlantic coast, untouched, let us hope for permanent harm by the sectarian envyings of its enemies without, or by the local jealousies of its friends within, or by manifold other infirmities within and without, and which, let us also hope, will be used to the end as a potent instrument of the Almighty for the staying of the famine and thirst, the covering of the nakedness, and the healing of the wounds and fevers of the battle-field, during the evil days of the civil war; and, by the memories of its impartial beneficence, for the blotting out of old scars and feuds, and the cementing of National Brotherhood in the glad time that shall come after it.

Truly yours,

ALFRED J. BLOOR.

Special Relief Department.

A NEW "HOME" AT PADUCAH, KY.

On Monday, November 21, a new Sanitary Commission "Home" was opened at Paducah, Ky., for the reception of soldiers in need of temporary shelter and food.

Its need is shown by the fact that the first day 120 meals were given, 30 men coming in "before rations could be furnished." During the first six days 946 meals were given, beside many men furnished with lodgings, and the attentions given to the sick.

Thus, at another point, the beneficent love of the people is reaching the needy soldiers in the field; and in no way does this love have a more practical expression than in these "Homes," where the hungry find food, the homeless find shelter, and the weary find rest.

ANNAPOLIS.

BY J. ADDISON WHITAKER.

I herewith respectfully present my report for this District, for the week ending Nov. 26, 1864.

OFFICE.

I have expended $89 50, as you will see by reference to statement, Paper A, forwarded to B. Collins, Esq., Assistant Treasurer, New York.

I have received, issued and have on hand stores as stated in Paper B.

In view of expected arrival, and at last (Thursday) the arrival of paroled prisoners, we have been engaged in preparation for their reception. This work, however, has not in any way interfered with the regular "office duties," which from the fact that the District has been pretty well cleaned out by furloughs, and the return of convalescents to their regiments or other hospitals to make way for the paroled men, have not been so pressing as heretofore. As it may interest you to have some idea of our office duties, even in the lull of business, I present a copy of my journal for three days, viz.:

November 21.—Office opened at 9 A.M. Large number of soldiers called for blanks for commutation of rations. Reports for week ending 19th inst. from Camp Parole, hospitals and office sent by mail. Furnished two destitute ambulance drivers with shoes and shirts. Call from Chaplain Hammond, St. John's College hospital about printing for office, and requesting my attendance during his absence at funerals. Letter from John Bowne inquiring of Hugh O'Brien, a soldier. Lady called; she arrived this morning, found her husband dead and buried; furnished her with the necessary blanks for widow's pension, &c.; sent her in conveyance to the Soldiers' Burial Ground to visit the grave of her husband; she was much distressed and shed tears of real sorrow; took her meals at "Home," and expressed great gratitude to the Commission.

November 22.—Weather cold and snowing. Furnished two destitute soldiers with one pair shoes, two pairs socks and two pairs mittens. Two ladies from Baltimore called to obtain information in regard to balance of Maryland State Bounty due deceased relatives; they were informed how to proceed, and were successful in obtaining the money. Two agents of the Christian Commission called on business. Applications for towels and handkerchiefs; none on hand. Letter from Dr. Palmer, surgeon-in-charge, St. John's College hospital, requesting attendance at burial of soldier. Letter from Dr. Bacon, surgeon-in-charge Annapolis Junction Hospital, asking supplies for Thanksgiving dinner for soldiers. Sent him meal, corn starch, also keg of fresh oysters. Many calls from soldiers for application for commutation of rations while in prison. Forwarded four certificates for New York State Bounty for soldiers. Sent stores to Camp Parole. Letter from A. B. Clapp inquiring about his son.

November 23.—Renewed cards for admission at "Home" for three ladies. Call from Ohio State Agent; our interview was very agreeable, explained our manner of conducting business, &c.; was much interested and seemed to appreciate the efforts of the Commission and its great usefulness; was thankful for information given him, and expressed himself much obliged. Several calls from soldiers asking assistance in collecting commutation of rations, &c.

Thursday, flag of truce boats began to arrive. Blackstone 565, Atlantic 660 and 44 deaths, Gen. Sedgwick 505, Weybossett 500, Herman Livingston 755 and 2 deaths. Others are looked for daily, and unless Gen. Sherman has interfered with the exchange, (and it is intimated he has,) we shall soon have a much larger number than can be comfortably accommodated here. Many of them are in a very destitute condition.

The Government officers, I believe, have done all they could do to promptly meet the wants of the sufferers. We have worked a helping hand as usual, and I trust not in vain. Towels and needles are now the only things we are in need of. Our agents are active in rendering much assistance at their several stations. Camp Parole is filling up, and our work is being steadily prosecuted by our agents there. Mr. Miller, hospital visitor, is also busy, and has promptly met every boat on its arrival. The "Home" is quite empty, but no doubt shall have a large number of visitors soon. My report is hastily sketched on account of a number of interruptions.

BY MRS. S. L. PHILLIPS AND MISS ALMA CARY.

CAMP PAROLE, Dec. 2, 1864.

Our usually quiet and orderly encampment has been the scene of unwonted activity and excitement for the last few days, owing to the arrival of the thousands of prisoners from the Charnel House, at Andersonville. Commission Agents, as well as Government officials of every grade, have been occupied in caring for these, our unfortunate fellow-countrymen, who came back to us living skeletons, monuments of the inhuman barbarity instituted or countenanced by "Southern chivalry." They will soon constitute a majority in our crowded hospital wards, and may be readily distinguished by their lean visage and peculiar complexion. Their condition calls for our deepest sympathy, and their united testimony fully corroborates the different and repeated portrayals in our public journals, of their untold sufferings. When conversing with them, their eyes often fill with tears, as they say, "O! it can never be told, no language can express our suffering; could we tell all, it would not be believed. It is scarcely possible to exaggerate them," etc.

We were interested in an account given by a young man of Philadelphia, of a political meeting held in the "Stockade," as they term the "pen" into which they were crowded like herds of cattle, where some of our men spoke boldly and eloquently, for the Union and our noble President, in the hearing of some Rebel officers, who had given permission for a discussion between the two parties, and when the vote was taken in that dismal place, where they had been told our Government led them to die, a large majority was given for the Union. All who are not too ill, seem overjoyed at their deliverance, and speak of their present condition as almost a paradise. They usually express fervent thanks for the least contribution to their comfort. Some are beyond the reach of human aid. To speak a few words of sympathy, to furnish a little cordial, to receive last messages for absent dear ones, to point to the ever present Almighty Friend, who alone can go with them through the dark valley; to write and repeat the sad tale to absent friends, is in many cases, all that is left for your agents to do. One of these died the next day after coming to this section, others must follow soon, and, as one of their number expressed it, "Oh! what multitudes are ruined for life, who may yet survive."

But it is hoped that in many cases, these afflictions "will work out for them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory" in a future life.

CAMP PAROLE HOSPITAL,
December 9, 1864. }

Although the past week has been one of deeply painful interest here, we can but reiterate the oft-repeated tale of suffering, death and sorrow, yet now intermingling with the untold joys of deliverance from cruel bondage; and with the more favored ones—the anticipation of a speedy reunion with loved ones at home, by many of whom the ransomed will be received as life from the dead. Our wards in this section are becoming crowded with the newly arrived; but, alas, many only come to die—six have gone to their long home during the week. One who had been a sailor, a German by birth, only lived long enough to leave a noble and precious dying testimony, for which he had to be repeatedly aroused from the stupor of death. "God," he said, "had been with him by sea and by land—his only refuge in all his afflictions." Again and again he blessed Him for all His mercies, particularly in bringing him here to die, among the kind friends of the soldier and the Union—while his peaceful and radiant countenance told more than words could express.

Much sympathy has been excited for a very young soldier boy, who, after several weeks had become convalescent, and was anticipating a visit home, but was again prostrated by fell disease, and suddenly passed away—it is hoped to be with Christ, as he expressed trust in Him. A severe case of typhoid fever was watched with much solicitude for several days; while the patient endurance and calm trust spoke a soul at peace with God. Nor was this all. "Tell my mother," said the noble sufferer, as death drew nigh, "not to mourn for me—I die happy; I hope to meet her in heaven at the great day; and I hope this wicked rebellion will soon be ended." While the heart sickens at scenes like these almost daily repeated, it is a fact that calls for fervent gratitude to God, that in a majority of cases, thus suddenly taken, have given precious evidence of having been only transferred to that world of light and love where pain and sorrow never come. And in recording them, we do not forget that they are far exceeded in intensity of woe by scenes daily transpiring in the neighboring city, to say nothing of the hundreds that died daily, uncalled for, except by the compassionate Redeemer—among those scenes of revolting cruelty—which seem to beggar description, the remembrance of which will ever remain a foul blot even on the Confederacy; and which it would seem must arouse the indignation of every Christian or patriot in our land.

BY C. F. HOWES.

ANNAPOLIS, MD., Dec. 10, 1864.

I have the honor to submit the following as my report for the week ending December 10, 1864.

In assuming the responsibilities of the Sanitary work in this district, so faithfully superintended by my predecessor, I find a very large field of labor. The destitute condition of a large number of returned prisoners, who have arrived the past week, and the constant demand upon the Commission for supplies, prove how well adapted are its arrangements for meeting their wants. The Sanitary Commission is well represented when the several boats arrive, and the surgeons render every possible facility to aid our agents in their work, and often express their appreciation of our efforts. 740 prisoners arrived to day. Every man has been supplied with a towel, handkerchief, comb, needles, thread, paper, pencils, and had his palate tickled with a few goodies from the Sanitary Commission storehouse. There is no limit to the variety of assistance we give these men.

The New England Womans' Auxiliary Association deserves special mention for the timely arrival of towels and handkerchiefs to meet an immediate demand. For hospital divisions No. 1 and 2, I would refer you to Mr. Miller's report. Here I would speak of the valuable influence of Mrs. Dr. Parrish, exerted among the sick and wounded in the various hospital wards of this city. The kind and cheering words at the bedside of the suffering forms, and the many letters of affection written by her to long absent and loved ones at home, caused tears of joy to flow from eyes that had long seen suffering, and such expressions of gratitude as come only from lips livid with months of terrible suffering. One of the men informed me that when he saw her entering his ward, he commenced to pray that she would come to his bedside and talk to him of friends and home.

The "Home" has been crowded to its utmost capacity. Thus far, none have been turned away. Joy and sorrow, rejoicing and mourning, fill its cheerful halls. Our little matron, Mrs. Sayres, makes every one around her happy, and the admirable condition of the "Home" shows that her heart is in the work. All who share its hospitalities return to their homes overflowing with "Sanitary," saying, "I now see some of the avenues through which the Sanitary Commission reach the needy and destitute."

CAMP PAROLE.

The importance of our work at Camp Parole will be seen by Mr. Batchelor's report. The system of paying and giving furloughs to the men, is now very complete. It has been found necessary to retain the men several days in camp before attempting to pay them, because with money many would injure their health and even endanger their lives, by eating improper food.

Captain Davis, who first cares for the men after their arrival, informs me that Jamaica ginger, mixed in stewed apples, is beneficial for their first few meals; both of the above articles we have furnished him in sufficient quantity.

I have found it necessary to make further claims for commutation of rations. The men are now mustered for this and subsequently paid. Enquiring letters for friends among the exchanged prisoners are numerous, and daily increasing in number. When no positive information can be obtained of their condition, the name, company, and regiment are registered (with address of enquirer) in this office, and the search is renewed upon the arrival of each subsequent boat. I may say our work is moving smoothly on, with no jarring notes of discord.

BY JAMES BATCHELOR.

ANNAPOLIS, MD., Dec. 3, 1864.

I herewith respectfully offer my report for the week ending at date.

This has been an unusually busy week on all hands, as about three thousand prisoners from Savannah have arrived in camp. My two assistants have, together with myself, been kept so busy on the days of the arrival of the men, that we have scarcely had time to obtain our meals. The men were in a terrible condition, and the combs, towels, handkerchiefs, &c., which were distributed to them came in very good use. The worst cases were put in Section D. When they found what good quarters they were to be placed in, viz., a bunk with a straw bed, they were well pleased, and two of them told me that it was like getting into heaven, compared with their accommodations, or rather want of accommodations just before. One man told me that he should never again complain of the common troubles of life, as they were nothing in comparison with what was endured in the rebel lines. And then their expressions of gratitude were refreshing, after the sullenness and ingratitude of the professional bummers, who are often heard complaining of their lot. I have distributed a number of shirts to sick men who could not endure the Government shirts. Three-fourths of the men are sick with the scurvy, and many of them cannot eat the food furnished them. Such cases I supplied with crackers, and to some who were not allowed coffee, I gave tea. To-day fourteen hundred men came in, and as they missed their dinner, I sent a man who distributed several baskets of crackers among them.

From Section A comes the report of a busy week; and a description, which though vivid, can convey only a small idea of the condition and sufferings of the hospital patients. Several deaths have occurred already, and it seems probable that a great majority of the new cases cannot live.

The surgeon-in-charge wishes me to furnish him with a quantity of "pickled cabbage" for the scurvy cases in the hospital. As he cannot buy the article, I would recommend that it should be furnished him.

PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY.

BY REV. J. A. ANDERSON.

In Christ's description of the last judgment we find not a word concerning the belief which guides an action, but teeming paragraphs concerning the actions themselves. He is silent as to the intellectualities, so to speak, of religion; but vivid and pungent respecting the deeds of religion. The vigor and sweep of his utterances, labor to express themselves in such words as these:—"Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom: For I was ahungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Verily, I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

We would, by no means, have it inferred that the intellectualities of religion are unimportant; but would only guard against that tendency, in the minds of some, which elevates theology above practice; and which does not deem those organizations that abound in the practice of religion to be as christian and as praiseworthy, as those which teach the intellectualities of religion. Giving a man directions how he shall thread his way across the vast Plains to the Pacific, is one thing, and an important thing; but dotting those Plains with "Homes," where he shall find lodging, food, rest, and clothing, is, to say the least, quite as important, and quite as christian.

These thoughts were suggested by the numbers of lodgings and meals that were given to the men who are fighting the fierce battles of God's truth, by the Sanitary Commission, in its "Soldiers' Homes" at Louisville and Camp Nelson, Ky.; Jeffersonville and New Albany, Ind.; Cairo, Ill.; Nashville and Memphis, Tenn., and New Orleans, La. For October, the figures are:

|              | Lodgings.     | Meals.         |
|--------------|---------------|----------------|
| Louisville,  | 28,203,       | 84,609.        |
| Camp Nelson, | 12,495,       | 34,882.        |
| New Albany,  | 862,          | 3,209.         |
| Cairo,       | 3,425,        | 15,701.        |
| Nashville,   | 9,603,        | 32,023.        |
| Memphis,     | 1,203,        | 4,358.         |
| New Orleans, | 5,753,        | 15,879.        |
|              | <hr/> 61,544. | <hr/> 190,661. |

For the month of November:

|                 | Lodgings.     | Meals.         |
|-----------------|---------------|----------------|
| Louisville,     | 33,449,       | 100,347.       |
| Camp Nelson,    | 8,556,        | 17,358.        |
| Jeffersonville, | 1,511,        | 2,743.         |
| Cairo,          | 5,981,        | 20,762.        |
| Nashville,      | 15,020,       | 49,961.        |
| Memphis,        | 1,140,        | 4,048.         |
| New Orleans,    | 7,306,        | 20,408.        |
|                 | <hr/> 72,963. | <hr/> 215,627. |

The soldiers of our armies have come to these Homes in all conditions of health or sickness; of hunger, thirst, or raiment; of all natiivities, languages and complexions; enlisted under the banner of every State, yet fighting under the broad standard of all the States; and whether near the Gulf of Mexico, upon the banks of the Mississippi, the Cumberland, or the Ohio, or on the hills trod by Daniel Boone, have been fed; have been put to sleep in clean beds; have been clad, when clothing was necessary; have had their wounds dressed, or their brows bathed as the interminable hours of a feverish night dragged by; have been transported to the proper depots; forwarded on their way to another "Home," thence to another, and finally to their friends; while couriers have been sent in charge of the sickest; and money has been furnished the neediest. Is such a work as "Christian," in the sight of the full-hearted Father, as is the distribution of tracts?

Between twenty and thirty Soldiers' Homes, placed by the Sanitary Commission all over the land, from North to South, and West to East, at centres where they are most needed, are in daily and nightly operation.

By these seven, we find that in October 2,052 lodgings were given each night, and 6,356 meals each day. In November, 2,423 lodgings were given each night, and 7,187 meals were given each day.

At this ratio, these seven Homes furnish, in one year, 807,042 lodgings, and 2,437,728 meals.

How many lodgings and meals have been given by all the Homes during the past year cannot now be stated; but the aggregates are large.

Arrangements are being perfected, by which the Bulletin and Reporter will be able to make monthly publications of these and similiar facts. And when the public does know all that is being done by the people through the U. S. Sanitary Commission, we shall hear fewer objections concerning its management.

"HUNGRY, AND YE FED ME."

The Sanitary Commission does not confine its efforts to one locality, and then seek to leave the impression upon the community that said efforts and said locality are to be taken as average specimens of its work. The world, generally, would consider such a course as dishonorable; and the church, generally, would term it as dishonour.

From the old "dark and bloody ground," the following report is wafted to us; and while it will serve to show that the efforts of the Sanitary Commission are not confined to the Army of the Potomac, it will, also, which is better, show that the brave soldiers under Major Generals Stoneman and Burbridge, are made comfortable through its instrumentality.

SOLDIERS' HOME, CAMP NELSON, KY., }
Dec. 1, 1864. }

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

DEAR SIR:—I herewith subjoin statement of our work at the "Home," for the month of November, 1864.

Meals, 17,358. Lodgings, 8,556.

The peculiar situation of the "Home," in a camp controlled almost entirely by the rules of uncertainty and beyond the reach of calculation, renders our work inevitably spasmodic and undefined.

If the day is dull, and only a few soldiers call for the ever ready meal, the evening, and perchance the late hours of the night, will surely bring us scores, and frequently hundreds of hungry and weary men.

Often, when our business horizon is clouded, and we think there is very little work in store for us until to-morrow, a breeze is stirred, and a cloud of candidates for our bounties is blown suddenly upon us. Then comes the most grateful sensation which prevails every where, throughout dining hall, kitchen, and wards; the "Home" detail cheerily throwing off the oppression of ennui, and hasten cheerily to their work.

The Commissary, always happiest when hurrying after rations, prefers, even at midnight, his work rather than his bed; and goes willingly in quest of the Government bakery and butchery.

Our rule is to keep on hand a reasonable supply of fresh beef and bread, but we are sometimes surprised, when cautious not to draw more than we may use while they are fresh; hence, the necessity for these nocturnal visits to the bakery, &c.

Such was the case on the evening of the Nov. 23. All our men, and sundry friends, had interested themselves in ornamenting our dining hall with cedar and shrubbery, and making the arrangements for a thanksgiving dinner. The day had otherwise been quiet, but at nightfall a large representation of three regiments, 53d, 54th, and 55th Ky., with members of other regiments, in transitu, came suddenly for supper, when we readily dropped our preparations for the morrow, leaving it to care for itself, while we hurried ourselves about the demands of the present. As several hundreds had to be fed, our supper continued until after midnight, for the men had been without rations since early morning, and were unprovided with cooking utensils.

The preparation of food continued all night. Breakfast began at three o'clock in the morning and continued until three o'clock in the afternoon, without the least intermission; after which, the troops marched thankfully away to meet the rebels under Breckenridge or any other man.

The rush of business has been so great for the past twenty-two hours that our effective force was entirely worn out, and there was scarcely enough energy left to enable us to enter fully upon the thanksgiving feast. However, under the management of Mrs. Butler, a company of three hundred soldiers sat down at six o'clock, to a bountiful supper of turkeys, chickens, cakes, fruits, vegetables, &c. Revs. Schofield and Vitters delivered happily conceived speeches, and remarks abounded from soldiers and their friends. The entertainment was highly satisfactory, and was truly an oasis in the life of the soldier.

The decorations and arrangements of the dining hall were very tastefully made, and in the fulness of lamp-light appeared like the elegance of a similar entertainment at home. Very respectfully,

THOMAS BUTLER.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY YEARS AGO.

BROOKLYN, Dec. 9, 1864.

During a recent appeal to the loyal women of Brooklyn for old linen for the wounded soldiers, among other responses we received the following note, accompanying a donation of linen bearing the marks of age.

Thinking it may be interesting to others as it was to ourselves, we send it for the readers of the BULLETIN. K. W.

"FRIENDS OF THE RELIEF COMMISSION:—It may not be uninteresting to you to know, that some of the pieces of old linen left by me at your office this morning are very venerable by reason of age.

"A hundred and fifty years ago, among the Ochill hills, in Caledonia, and at the open window of a farm house of that locality, the passer by might have seen a young blooming lassie working merrily at her spinning wheel, preparing for the most eventful change in the life of any one; in short, she was spinning for her own future use, sheets, towels, &c.

"Little did that young woman dream, as she merrily drove her wheel, that her handy work would be used in 1864 to bind up the wounds of heroic men, who stand and fight for freedom in days of danger; yet, such is the case, and I thought that you might be pleased to know the fact.

"Respectfully, W. M. K."

PRISONERS.

The work of the Sanitary Commission among our soldiers, who are prisoners in the South, may never be sufficiently estimated. The best that can be done for them is done. The following copies of invoices of goods forwarded to them by Dr. M. M. Marsh, Sanitary Commission Agent in Gen. Foster's department, will indicate a portion of that work. The receipt of the Confederate officer was taken on the delivery of each invoice, and contains a promise that the goods should be "safely and promptly delivered to the Union private soldiers, held as prisoners of war at Charleston, S. C., and in its vicinity."

U. S. TRANSPORT "CANONICUS," }
OFF CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 3, 1864. }

I hereby acknowledge the receipt, this day, from Lieut. Col. Stewart L. Woodford, 127th N. Y. V., of Maj. Gen. Foster's staff, of boxes numbered 26 to 82, and marked according to the above invoice.

The clothing and stores contained in these boxes are agreed by Maj. Gen. Sam. Jones, commanding Confederate forces, to be safely and promptly delivered to the Union private soldiers, held as prisoners of war at Charleston, S. C., and in its vicinity.

P. C. WARNICK,

A. D. C. to Maj. Gen. Sam. Jones,
Commanding Department S. C.

The 57 boxes alluded to in the above receipt contained the following articles:

|                            |      |                         |      |
|----------------------------|------|-------------------------|------|
| Blankets.....              | 79   | Soxks, woolen, prs..... | 516  |
| Coats.....                 | 25   | " cotton, prs.....      | 96   |
| Drawers, flannel, prs..... | 4106 | Shirts, flannel.....    | 1711 |
| " cotton, prs.....         | 200  | Slippers, prs.....      | 200  |
| Overalls, prs.....         | 12   | Towels.....             | 1072 |
| Pins, gross.....           | 4    | Vests.....              | 5    |
| Pants, prs.....            | 3    | Wrappers.....           | 391  |
| Quilts.....                | 54   |                         |      |

In addition to these for the private soldiers, 23 boxes were sent on the same day to the officers at the same places. These boxes contained

|                    |      |               |      |
|--------------------|------|---------------|------|
| Bed sacks.....     | 258  | Towels.....   | 1100 |
| Drawers.....       | 1217 | Shirts.....   | 518  |
| Handkerchiefs..... | 2084 | Wrappers..... | 221  |
| Quilts.....        | 83   |               |      |

Receipts similar to the above have been received for all articles forwarded. We give below a list of the goods with the dates upon which they were sent.

Sanitary stores and clothing furnished by the U. S. Sanitary Commission, through Maj. Gen. Foster, for U. S. soldiers, prisoners at Andersonville, Ga. September 22, 1864.

|                               |      |                      |      |
|-------------------------------|------|----------------------|------|
| Crackers, barrels.....        | 100  | Blankets.....        | 200  |
| Condensed milk, cases.....    | 12   | Soxks, pairs.....    | 1010 |
| Condensed coffee, ".....      | 12   | Drawers, pairs.....  | 1005 |
| Canned tomatoes, ".....       | 12   | Shirts.....          | 1001 |
| Towels.....                   | 1184 | Slippers, pairs..... | 444  |
| Concentrated beef, cases..... | 24   | Handkerchiefs.....   | 1276 |

Clothing for Federal prisoners of war at Charleston, S. C., forwarded by Dr. M. M. Marsh, Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission, October 1, 1864.

|                   |      |                     |     |
|-------------------|------|---------------------|-----|
| Felt hats.....    | 1000 | Zouave jackets..... | 66  |
| Coats.....        | 76   | Blankets.....       | 200 |
| Pants, pairs..... | 132  |                     |     |

Sanitary stores furnished by the U. S. Sanitary Commission through Maj. Gen. Foster, for relief of officers and soldiers, prisoners of war, in and near Charleston, S. C., October 2, 1864.

FOR OFFICERS.

|                     |      |                        |     |
|---------------------|------|------------------------|-----|
| Towels.....         | 1250 | Handkerchiefs.....     | 650 |
| Flannel shirts..... | 186  | Quilts.....            | 99  |
| Wrappers.....       | 221  | Bed sacks.....         | 258 |
| Cotton shirts.....  | 205  | Canton flannel drawers | 462 |
| Cotton drawers..... | 518  |                        |     |

FOR SOLDIERS.

|                     |      |                      |      |
|---------------------|------|----------------------|------|
| Drawers, pairs..... | 3098 | Wrappers.....        | 534  |
| Towels.....         | 1872 | Bed sacks.....       | 258  |
| Soxks, pairs.....   | 612  | Blankets.....        | 355  |
| Quilts.....         | 172  | Slippers, pairs..... | 206  |
| Shirts.....         | 2481 | Pants, pairs.....    | 133  |
| Coats.....          | 101  | Vests.....           | 6    |
| Jackets.....        | 67   | Felt hats.....       | 1000 |
| Handkerchiefs.....  | 2504 |                      |      |

Stores sent by U. S. Sanitary Commission to Union prisoners of war in South Carolina, in care of the rebel General Hardee, November 1, 1864.

|                     |      |                   |      |
|---------------------|------|-------------------|------|
| Blouses.....        | 600  | Shirts.....       | 1920 |
| Blankets.....       | 2001 | Shoes, pairs..... | 600  |
| Drawers, pairs..... | 1776 | Soxks, pairs..... | 1360 |
| Pants, pairs.....   | 1235 |                   |      |

November 9, 1864.

|                             |      |                      |     |
|-----------------------------|------|----------------------|-----|
| Blankets.....               | 460  | Handkerchiefs.....   | 300 |
| Blouses.....                | 300  | Pants, pairs.....    | 685 |
| Bed sacks.....              | 60   | Pillows.....         | 190 |
| Condensed milk, cans.....   | 354  | Shoes, pairs.....    | 360 |
| Condensed coffee, cans..... | 354  | Soap, lbs.....       | 60  |
| Chocolate, lbs.....         | 120  | Shirts.....          | 298 |
| Corn starch, lbs.....       | 720  | Slippers, pairs..... | 50  |
| Drawers, pairs.....         | 68   | Tan, black, lbs..... | 70  |
| Extract beef, lbs.....      | 1560 | Tomatoes, cans.....  | 120 |

Clothing for Federal prisoners at Florence, S. C., forwarded by Dr. M. M. Marsh, Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission, November 9, 1864.

|                |     |                         |      |
|----------------|-----|-------------------------|------|
| Felt hats..... | 500 | Infantry overcoats..... | 1065 |
|----------------|-----|-------------------------|------|

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.—A MIS-TAKE CORRECTED.

The following paragraph has been widely circulated through the West and Northwest by persons unfriendly to the Sanitary Commission, as a synopsis of a report of its business in the Western Department for the three years past. As the statements it includes are grossly untrue, and could not, if believed, fail to affect unfavorably the minds of those who have hitherto been the friends and patrons of the Sanitary Commission, I have thought it desirable to publish a true statement of the business of the Sanitary Commission in the Western Department for three years, ending July 1, 1864, with a request that it may be as widely circulated as the false has been.

THE FALSE.

"The Western Department of the Sanitary Commission have made a report of their doings from September 1, 1861, to January 1, 1864. They had collected $321,065 42. Of this only $93,592 56 had been appropriated to the purchase of supplies, and the rest was appropriated to defray the expenses of distribution. In short, it cost over two hundred thousand dollars to get a little over ninety thousand worth to the soldiers, notwithstanding the government did much of the transportation gratis. A large amount is paid in salaries to agents. The Eastern Department have made no report."

THE TRUE.

The United States Sanitary Commission had expended July 1, 1864, through the hands of its Western Secretary, IN CASH, $321,065 42, and had distributed at the same date, in the armies of the West, hospital stores valued at $2,790,811 01; of the cash expenditure $190,924 42 had been expended in the supply department; of this $93,592 56 had been expended for the purchase of supplies; the balance, $97,331 86, constituted the expense account of the supply department, and had paid for the distribution of stores valued, as above, at $2,790,811 01 being about three per cent. upon that valuation. So that all the contributions made by the Western States to the Sanitary Commission to July 1, 1864, had been distributed at a cost of three per cent. upon their value, and that three per cent., it may be said, had all been paid by contributions from California and the Eastern States.

With these facts before them, can our friends in the West and North-west complain that their business has not been done for them cheaply enough?

J. S. NEWBERRY,
Sec. West. Dep., U. S. San. Com.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION,

From June, 1861, to Oct. 1, 1864.

The undersigned, a committee appointed by the U. S. Sanitary Commission to prepare a statement of its financial condition, beg leave to submit the following report:

Total Cash Receipts and Expenditures.

|                                       |                |
|---------------------------------------|----------------|
| June, 1861, to Oct. 1, 1864, received | $3,083,124 58 |
| June, 1861, to Oct. 1, 1864, expended | 2,467,958 55   |

Balance in hands of Treasurer, Oct. 1, '64, $615,166 03*

The work of the Commission involving this expenditure embraces six distinct departments: the cost of carrying on each department is given in the accompanying tables.

Added to these is a table which accounts for certain outlays, as enumerated, not conveniently classified under any one of the above divisions. The aggregate of these tables gives the total amount disbursed.

The following are the several divisions of the Commission's work, with a general statement of the character of each, that thus the nature of the various items of expenditure may be more clearly seen.

1st. The "Supply Department"—which has for its work the collecting, storing, forwarding, and distributing through the hospitals, and to the armies, and on the battle-fields, the supplies sent by the people to the soldiers. With this work is inseparably connected a large amount of relief service rendered to the sick and wounded by the agents employed in this department, which service would not be included in the mere work of transporting and distributing the supplies. The sum, therefore, charged to the "Cost of Distribution" (see "Exhibit A") is thereby considerably larger than it would otherwise appear; as is also the ratio of "the cost of distribution" to the "value of the supplies distributed" (see "Exhibit C"). It is allowed to stand thus because the exact apportionment of the expense belonging to each of these two classes of labor cannot be made, even as the services themselves cannot be disjointed.

The work of distributing these supplies, and administering the general relief connected with it, has required the labor of a permanent corps averaging 200 men.

With the necessity of providing "independent transportation" for these supplies, this work has involved the purchase and maintenance of several wagon trains, and the chartering of a number of steamboats at various times. In the expense of this department is embraced the cost of "supplies purchased."

2d. The Department of Medical Inspection, or "Inquiry and Advice;" by which, for nearly three years, a series of inspections has been kept up by scientific men in the general and field hospitals, and among the various regiments composing the army. The aim of this Inspection has been to discover all conditions of camp or hospital life unfavorable to the health of the soldier, and to suggest and secure such sanitary reforms as would guard against disease and death. In the opinion of both military and medical men thousands of lives have been saved by this service.

3d. The "Special Relief Department," by which all sick, discharged or disabled men, not otherwise provided for, can be guarded, sheltered, fed, and helped out of trouble. This department includes the maintenance of "Homes" and "Lodges," or temporary asylums, Relief Stations near battle-fields, Claim Agencies, Pension Offices, nurses to accompany the very feeble to their homes, men to visit hospitals and to look up and collect the back pay of soldiers, and a variety of kindred work. This is an agency, which, in these several ways, aids and protects on an average 2,500 men daily.

* The balance in the hands of the Treasurer, December 1, 1864, is three hundred and fifty-one thousand nine hundred and twenty dollars and seventy-nine cents ($351,920 79).

Under this head of Special Relief will be found placed the amount expended upon "hospital transports" and "hospital cars," a large sum in itself, but small when compared with the many thousands of sick and wounded to whom it furnished easy transportation from the battle-field to the hospital.

4th. The "Hospital Directory," whose mission it has been to serve as the friend of fathers, mothers, and wives of soldiers, by keeping those at home informed of the location and condition of their sick sons or husbands in the general hospitals. One million and thirty thousand names of hospital patients have been entered in the Directory, and many thousand anxious inquiries answered.

5th. The "Statistical Department," which gathers up, tabulates, and deduces valuable general principles from all the material collected by the Medical Inspectors of the Commission, so as to make it all available for preventing disease in the army. This work is also incidentally tributary to valuable scientific researches.

6th. The "Department of Publication," by which, as one branch of its work, the choicest results of modern medical and surgical science upon all the special topics most important for an army surgeon to be informed upon have been furnished gratuitously, and in compact form, to every medical man in the army. Many thousands of these medical monographs, prepared by the ablest men of the country, have been thus distributed by the Commission. Forming, as the series often has done, almost the only book of reference carried by the surgeons into the field, it cannot be doubted but this expenditure of money has essentially aided the army surgeon in his work of saving life and alleviating suffering.

Such are the chief divisions of the Commission's work upon which its money has been spent.

It will be seen that there is one other group of expenditures which embraces all our outlays (as therein specified) not exclusively belonging to any one of the above-named divisions, but shared partly by each, and incurred in the general administration of the affairs of the Commission.

Appended to this report (as a thing essential to its completeness) is an estimate—"Exhibit B"—of the cash value of the various supplies which have been forwarded from the homes of the country to the distributing depots of the Commission, and thence carried by the agents of the Commission to the soldiers.

Add to this sum the cash expended on supplies, and compare with this total the expense of distribution, less the present appraised cash value of the property used in carrying on the work of supply distribution, and we shall find—"Exhibit C"—that but four and eighty-eight hundredths per centum (4.88) of the value of the goods issued has been spent in distributing them.

C. J. STILLÉ,
C. R. AGNEW,
J. HUNTINGTON WOLCOTT,
GEORGE T. STRONG,
J. FOSTER JENKINS,

Committee.

CENTRAL OFFICE, U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION,
December 1, 1864.

EXHIBIT "A."

I.—SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

Cost of gathering and purchasing Supplies.

|                                                                                                                                                                              |                |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------|
| Money paid in direct purchase of supplies.....                                                                                                                               | $1,129,400 62 |
| Money advanced to Branches for supplies.....                                                                                                                                 | 59,015 22      |
| Cost of Canvassers, Agents and supply correspondents and clerks, for soliciting supplies..                                                                                   | 37,856 53      |
| Freight paid on collecting supplies at central storehouses...                                                                                                                | 33,145 81      |
| Balance of "Field Hospital" account, (1861) chiefly incurred for purchase of supplies.....                                                                                   | 12,154 45      |
| Total cash outlay in gathering and in purchasing supplies....                                                                                                                | $1,271,611 63 |
| Transportation and Distribution of Supplies.                                                                                                                          |                |
| Storehouse account—receiving, assorting, storing, packing, and issuing supplies from the storehouses at Washington, Baltimore, N. York, Louisville, &c.                      | 823,351 85     |
| Purchase of horses and wagons, repairs to wagons, forage, wages of drivers, subsistence, &c., (present value of horses, wagons, harness, storehouses, &c., $46,826 50)..... | 80,958 25      |
| Charters of steamers, purchase of barges, &c., for transportation of supplies to the "Water Base,"—(present value of barges belonging to the Commission, $13,500).....      | 171,772 65     |
| Expense of "Field Relief Corps," and one-half expenses of "Auxiliary Relief Corps".....                                                                                      | 194,688 79     |
| Total expense of transportation and distribution of supplies...                                                                                                              | 470,771 54     |
| Total cost of Supply Department                                                                                                                                              | $1,742,383 17 |

II.—MEDICAL INSPECTION.

Expenses of this department..... $119,935 69

III.—SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

Cost of establishing and maintaining twenty-two "Homes and Lodges" for the care of sick, furloughed, and discharged soldiers, also Relief Stations near battle-fields; including "Special Relief" rendered to sick and wounded soldiers and their families..... $140,771 87

Cost of the various Agencies for obtaining "pensions," "arrears of pay," "honoury," "prize money," "widows claims," &c..... 24,616 46

Expenses in the transportation and care of sick and discharged soldiers under circumstances where there is no legal claim upon the Government for relief..... 11,297 44

One-half expenses of "Auxiliary Field Relief Corps"..... 18,600 00

Cost of maintaining "hospital boats," including stores, surgeons, dressers, nurses, &c.... 48,137 29

Equipment of "hospital cars"..... 7,677 62

Total cost of Special Relief Department... $251,100 68

IV.—HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

Total expense of maintaining the Hospital Directory at Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Louisville..... $47,564 94

V.—STATISTICAL DEPARTMENT.

Expenses of this Department, tabulating 14,000 returns camp inspectors, physical examinations, &c., &c..... $14,241 98

VI.—PUBLICATIONS.

Monographs on medical and surgical subjects, for the use of surgeons in the field and hospitals; Reports of all kinds, Documents, "Sanitary Bulletin" at New York, and "Sanitary Reporter" at Louisville, Ky..... $38,800 37

VII.—EXPENSES.

Office Salaries, Washington, New York, Louisville, &c..... $45,504 72

General expenses—including advertising, stationery, and Office printing, freight, postage, telegrams, rent, stables, and all petty expenses for all the above offices..... 78,774 31

$124,279 03

CASH IN HANDS OF AGENTS.

Cash in hands of Agents at Louisville, Ky; New Orleans, La.; Beaufort, S. C.; Newbern, N. C.; City Point, Va.; &c., &c..... $64,027 90

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cash paid over to Western Sanitary Commission, (St. Louis), by order of California Contributors..... $30,000 00

Metropolitan Fair, Metropolitan Fair buildings, and Brooklyn Fair..... 15,624 79

$65,624 79

SUMMARY.

Total amount of receipts..... $3,083,124 58

Expenditures.

Supply Department..... $1,742,383 17

Medical Inspection..... 119,935 69

Special Relief..... 251,100 68

Hospital Directory..... 47,564 94

Statistical Department..... 14,241 98

Publications..... 38,800 37

Expense..... 124,279 03

Cash in hands of Agents..... 64,027 90

Miscellaneous..... 65,624 79

Total amount of expenditure... $2,467,938 55

Balance of cash in hands of G. T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, New York, October 1, 1864..... 615,166 03

$3,083,124 58

EXHIBIT "B."

Showing the nature and appraised cash valuation of articles received in kind, as contributions for the soldiers, by the U. S. Sanitary Commission, from June, 1864, to October 1, 1864.

Bedding, hospital furniture, and wearing apparel..... $5,286,439 85

Hospital food and delicacies..... 1,362,560 42

Miscellaneous supplies..... 298,437 28

Uninvoiced boxes, 5,013 boxes, (appraised value)..... 165,428 60

Valuation of Sanitary supplies sent directly from the Branches and Aid Societies to hospitals and regiments not included in the above list..... 81,795 00

$7,134,661 15

Adding to the above the "total cost of gathering and purchasing supplies," (as per Exhibit A)..... 1,271,611 63

We have for cash valuation of all supplies which have passed through the hands of the U. S. Sanitary Commission..... 8,406,272 78

EXHIBIT "C."

Deducting from the sum spent for distribution, viz..... $470,771 54

The appraised cash value of the property on hand, now used in "supply distribution," viz:

Horses, wagons, and harness..... $40,976 50

Barges..... 13,500 00

Storehouses, Tents, and Appliances..... 5,850 00

60,326 50

We have for the total cost of distribution..... $110,445 04

Applying this sum to the total value of the supplies distributed. [Exhibit B.] viz: $8,406,272 78, we find the actual cost of distribution to have been four and eighty-eight one hundredths per centum [4.88] of the value of the supplies distributed.

NOTE.—During the last quarter (viz: July 1 to Oct. 1) the bill for "transportation of supplies" has been vastly increased by the necessity of chartering boats for carrying the large amount of anti-scorbutics and other stores forwarded by the U. S. Sanitary Commission to the Army of the Potomac. Previous to July 1, 1864, the "cost of distribution" was but three and seventy-six one hundredths per centum (3.76) of the value of the supplies distributed.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

It is an old saying that "figures are hard facts." It is an old philosophy, too, that teaches the wisdom of judging by facts.

It is a fact that we are still in the midst of a rebellion that for nearly four years past has written its history in blood and sorrow.

It is a fact that hundreds of thousands of men have been sick, wounded, and slain, in consequence of this rebellion.

It is a fact that hundreds of thousands more are now exposed to the dangers and privations of the camp and the march, that by tens of thousands they continue to fall by sickness and wounds, and that so long as the rebellion shall live, the sad record of suffering will continue to characterize our history as a nation.

It is a fact that the people have said that the army and navy shall be sustained amid all their hazards and toils; and that all the machinery of government which has been laid under contribution to serve this end, shall be sustained also

It is a fact that the President and all the departments under his control; that Congress, with all its legislative wisdom; and the people in the majesty of numbers, and with the eloquence of unity, have resolved to stand fast by our soldiers and sailors, and sustain them while they sustain the laws.

It is a fact that next to the government, the people have been represented most earnestly and faithfully in the principles and work of the United States Sanitary Commission.

It is a fact that the Sanitary Commission has distributed supplies to the soldiers and sailors of our forces, valued at $8,406,272; and that this estimate is much lower than the goods would have cost, if they had been purchased.

It is a fact that the expense of distributing over $2,250,000 worth of supplies, as reported by the Western Department one year ago, was $35,000, or one and one-half per cent., and that all statements to the contrary are false.

It is a fact that previous to July 1, 1864, the cost of distribution in all the departments was but three and seventy-six one hundredths per centum (3.76) of the value of the supplies; and that the large amount of anti-scorbutics and other stores forwarded to the Army of the Potomac, which necessitated the chartering of boats at the present high prices, has only increased the total cost of distribution to four and eighty-eight one hundredths per centum.

It is a fact that none of our agents are simple carriers of supplies, but relief agents; relief agents in the largest sense of the term; and that including them in the account of "cost of distribution," we include a vast work of beneficent charity in the (4.88) cost of distribution.

It is a fact that at a single centre of Special Relief, in Washington, 121,047 nights' lodgings have been given to our soldiers, in white, sweet beds; and that 359,816 substantial meals have been given at tables, besides which many thousand more meals have been given to steamboat loads, and car loads of wounded, at all hours of the day and night. It is a fact that there are twenty-two of these Special Relief Stations in the North and West, and that the meals and shelter furnished to our men, in transitu from the army, may be counted by millions annually.

It is a fact that the people have contributed with a freedom and generosity unequalled in any other age or nation of the world, to the Sanitary Commission, as the best and cheapest instrumentality within their reach for supplementing the appliances of the best of governments.

It is a fact that the more the people examine the work of the Commission, the more they are satisfied with its Christian principles, its lofty purposes, and its economical plans.

From the classification and arrangement of these general facts and figures, it is evident that the work that has been done hitherto is very large; that the good government, the brave army, and the loyal people, being all united in the one grand purpose of saving the country, as they look back upon the past,—count the demands of the present,—and estimate the wants of the future, have agreed that they must each rely upon the other, for the conduct of that future, as they have done in the past, and that the same class of results will follow, from the same kind of earnest labor.

The work is sure to go on. The tendency is more and more to unity; the people are becoming one in spirit and purpose; factions and factious oppositions, are being fused into a current that flows toward a common centre; and the grand record is being made, of a nation united in its benefactions to the army, as it is in its purpose to cheer that army in its struggle for Union and liberty.

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN. NO. III.

During the past fortnight, we have received 187 boxes and barrels of supplies. Our distributions, for the same period, have been, to Harper's Ferry, 10 packages; to Washington, 15 packages; City Point, 46 packages; Norfolk, Va., 3 packages; Beaufort, S. C., 52 packages; New Orleans, 11 packages; Hospitals in New York City and vicinity, 8 packages; U. S. Hospital Transport, 9 packages. Our greatest present need is flannel drawers, but we want all kinds of hospital supplies.

In the account of our Soldier's Aid Society Council, published in the last number of the Bulletin, there is a short statement of the work accomplished by this branch, from May 1 to Nov. 1, 1864. Although not an official semi-annual Report, it is accurate so far as it goes, and includes the greater part of what has been done during the half year. We will not repeat that statement here, but will only call your attention to it, as the gratifying result of your own work during the summer months. When we say that we have sent supplies hither and thither, to Grant's, or to Sherman's, or to Sheridan's armies; we are speaking of ourselves only as your trustees. We simply receive your supplies and pass them over to the soldiers, in your name. It has lately been objected that the work of the Commission was getting to be "too large;" that the gifts of individuals were being lost sight of, in the vast business character which the work has assumed. People think that because what they send must pass through the hands of an "Association," must go through the ordeal of examination and repacking, will appear and reappear in reports and invoices, and shipping lists, and all this under the direction of "Committees;" and when was a Committee ever suspected of having a heart, that by the time it reached the soldier, all the love and the sentiment which started with it will have been beaten out, and the wounded man, if he ever does get the article, upon which so many hours and so many stitches have been spent, will never know where it came from, nor what it means. But this is not so. Do you think that when the flannel shirt, you made last week, is put upon that soldier, faint and cold from loss of blood, and now happy at feeling warm and clean again, that he is thinking of store houses, and hundreds of boxes, and invoices, and shipping lists, and Associations and Committees? Far from it. His thoughts, instead, go back to the sewing circle of his own little village, to the woman who made that shirt—always supposed to be his own wife, or mother, or sister—to his own home. The bond cannot be more direct than it is, in both thought and feeling, between you and him. The Sanitary Commission Agent is only the messenger, who takes your gift to him, and, with it, whispers those words of cheer and spiritual consolation, which his friendless condition, and the nature of your gift demand. Is the work of the Commission then too large, because, through its means, this simple incident is repeated, over and over again, hundreds and thousands of times? Is there any heartlessness about an agency which watches over a single handkerchief, given by a little child, carries it thousands of miles, and with it bathes the head of some fever-stricken soldier? It is because its heart is large enough to sympathize with the sufferings of the masses as individuals, and because it sees so much suffering that it cannot relieve, that it calls upon you, so frequently, to increase your contributions—only some little thing from every one of you at home, to be taken to the hospital and battle-field, given to some sick or wounded soldier in your name, until all suffering shall be relieved, so far as lies in human power. Until this is done, the work of the Commission can never be "too large."

When this letter reaches you, dear friends and fellow workers, the holidays will be over, and we shall have all settled down to our steady winter's work. While wishing you a happy New-year, individually, and a happier year for our country than any of those lately passed, we would ask you to redouble your efforts at the Society, during this coming month of January, for we shall more than need to have your contributions doubled before the winter is over. The active campaigning has been removed, in great measure, from the Western to the Eastern States. Beside the ordinary drafts made upon our stores from the armies under Sheridan and Grant, as well as from those troops along the coast, from New York to New Orleans, we have at present the addition of Sherman's large army, and the prospect of very active movements by all these armies. This branch, is the largest shipping depot of the Commission, and it is very important, therefore, that we be well prepared to meet the extraordinary demands which we cannot doubt will shortly be made upon us. We ask you to take the matter of devising means for doubling your ordinary monthly contribution, into serious consideration.

Before closing this article, we wish to make one suggestion about the BULLETIN. You will, many of you, doubtless, remember receiving last summer, a list of questions, asking your criticism as to the nature, or your opinion of the Sanitary Commission Bulletin. Suffice it to say that, the result of these enquiries was to establish without any doubt, the very great value of this publication, and the necessity of its continuance. It was found, however, that owing to the distractions of conversations, and of the work itself, it was almost impossible to read the pamphlet aloud at the Society's meetings. The only way was to circulate it among the members, between the meetings.

This is not done as thoroughly as it might be. Generally, every time the Bulletin is borrowed, it is returned to the Secretary of the Society, to be lent by her again. This occasions great loss of time and much trouble, particularly if the Secretary lives at any distance from the village. We would suggest that, at the next meeting of the Society, the Secretary take the names and addresses of all members desirous of seeing the Bulletin. That she should then write to the Associate Manager of her section, or to this office, for a sufficient number of copies, to allow one copy to every seven readers. In sending them out, write the names of seven ladies, residing near each other, at the head of each copy, with dates opposite each name, allowing two days to each, thus:

Mrs. Edwards, January 5th.
 Mrs. Morton, " 7th.
 Mrs. White, " 9th.
 &c., &c., &c.

It will be the duty of each lady, to send the Bulletin to her next neighbor on the list, on the day placed opposite her name. At the end of the fortnight, or at the following meeting, the Bulletin should be returned to the Secretary, when a later number, then due, should be started on the same round. Several copies might, in this way, be kept circulating through a village, with but little trouble. If once thoroughly systematized, the carrying out of the plan only necessitates, on the part of each person, the sending of a pamphlet, a short distance, once every fortnight, and a very little care and attention. Try the plan, and let us know how it succeeds.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER,
 Chairman Committee on Correspondence, &c.
 NEW YORK, Dec. 17, 1864.

MEETING AT BUFFALO, N. Y.

PUBLIC MEETING AND WOMEN'S COUNCIL.

BY ONE OF ITS MEMBERS.

The ladies of the General Aid Society in Buffalo, anxious that their auxiliaries should more thoroughly understand the Commission, for which they have so earnestly worked, and feeling the importance of a general meeting, issued invitations to all their auxiliaries to meet in council on December 7 and 8.

Notwithstanding the extreme inclemency of the weather 73 delegates, representing the societies at Otto, Lancaster, Lockport, Beach Bridge, Newstead, Brant, Cheektowaga Suspension Bridge, Clymer, Forestville, Williamsville, North Boston, Colder, Evan's Centre, Griffin's Mills, East Hamburg, Byron, Portageville, Wyoming, Wilk, Varysburgh, Eagle, Perry, East Aurora, Youngstown, South Wales, Alden, Cowlesville, Glenwood, Harris Hill, Hanover Centre, Lewiston, and Middleburg, reported at the Aid Rooms and were assigned to their different places of entertainment.

The first meeting was held in St. James Hall, on the evening of the 7th. The meeting was called to order by the Rev. Dr. Hosmer, and on motion Hon. G. W. Clinton and Dr. Rochester were appointed president and secretary.

Dr. Parrish of Philadelphia was then introduced, who gave an insight into the workings of the Commission; he opened his address by reading extracts of reports from the Aid Society, which showed since its organization in January, 1861, $20,000 in money received, $1,800 of which was given by children; 180,497 articles disbursed, valued at $218,175; the expenses of the room, which includes freight, cartage, and publishing annual and monthly reports, postage stamps, fuel (not donated), porter's wages for the last year and a half, (before that time hiring only as needed) and other incidental expenses, amount to about $1,500. 17,083 shirts, and 13,000 pairs drawers had been cut in the rooms, and returned made by the different societies. At the "Soldiers' Rest," since its opening in June, 5,350 meals, 1,558 nights' lodgings had been furnished to 2,003 disabled soldiers, going to and from the army, at an expense in money of $460 60.

The Local Claim Agent's report showed since its establishment under the auspices of the Aid Society, in May last, 220 claims presented. 180 letters had been written to the hospital directories in Washington and Louisville since June, and 74 conclusive answers returned to anxious friends.

Dr. Parrish was followed by Dr. Marks, who gave feeling incidents of his experience in the army, during the three years he acted as chaplain.

Dr. Heacock closed with a beautiful tribute to the two Commissions.

The meeting adjourned to meet in the hall at 10 o'clock the next morning, when, although the weather still continued tempestuous, a fair audience were present.

The names of delegates present were called.

The names of 48 societies sending reports read.

Dr. Parrish then introduced Mrs. Stephen Barker, a hospital visitor of the Sanitary Commission, in and around Washington; she gave in a happy manner an idea of her routine of daily life, moving her audience to tears and smiles by the sad or amusing incidents. She spoke of the little things from home which cheered the soldier; among others, of "little bags filled with 'a little of everything,' called 'comfort bags;' not forgetting," she said, "among the contents, a ball of yarn and a few needles, or a bit of flannel, and above all, a letter must be there, no matter how short, a few written words to show a sympathizing heart had arranged all these things." Her remarks made a deep impression, as evinced by an old lady, who, with tears in her eyes, thanked Mrs. Barker, and said: "I will go home to take a greater interest than ever in my work for the soldiers."

Mr. Sperry, Relief Agent of the Commission at City Point, was earnest and forcible in his recital of his duties, impressing upon all, the necessity of providing flannel shirts.

A unanimous vote of thanks was given to

Mrs. Barker and Mr. Sperry for their entertaining addresses.

Dr. Parrish then, by a large diagram which he had brought with him, explained the organization of the Commission, the connections of the branches to the central office, the gratuitous labors of the Standing Committee, the duties of secretaries, &c., &c., giving in a brief address a clear and distinct idea of the general plan of work of this noble institution. A delegate remarked in reply to Dr. Parrish, when he expressed his desire to answer any question not understood, that "she had many to ask when she came, but the remarks of the morning had answered everything." After complimenting the faithful co-laborers of the Aid Society, in the country, upon their untiring devotion to the work, he closed his address, leaving that impression upon his hearers which will inspire them with greater confidence in the "Aid Society," greater love and devotion to the Commission, and with pleasant remembrances of those who came to instruct them.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION IN THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

HONOLULU, October 11, 1864.

REV. DR. BELLOWS,

President of the Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR:—A Christian lady at the Sandwich Islands, a native, who was young in the days of Kamehameha I., but is now blind, sends with her best aloha (love) a small contribution of tamarinds to the soldiers who are fighting for the great cause of human liberty. She wished that she had something better than sour tamarinds to send to the brave soldiers, and to gratify her kind feelings, I have had the sour fruit taken out of the pods and preserved in Hawarian sugar. Most happy shall I be if they reach their destination in safety, and add a mite to the comfort of those for whom they are designed. Praying God Almighty to bless the Sanitary and Christian Commissions, and speedily bring the war to an end, I am, in behalf of the good old Estera, (Esther),

Very truly yours,

MRS. M. P. CHAMBERLAIN.

[Mrs. Chamberlain is one of our oldest and most estimable missionary ladies.]

CONTRIBUTIONS of woolen mittens and socks for the army are solicited. Mittens may be made of cloth. The fore finger and thumb should be distinct.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CORRESPONDENCE.
 Leaveyworth, Ks., Letter from Mr. J. E. Brown... 901
 Fort Scott, Ks., Testimonial from Surgeon Van Duyen 901
 Mound City, Ks., Testimonial from Surgeon Twiss... 901
 Pulaski, Tenn., Testimonial from Surgeon Faylor... 902
 Buenos Ayres, S. C., Letter from Henry S. Ayres... 906
 Camp Conness, Utah Territory, Letter from William W. White, (Contribution of Soldiers)... 908
 City Point, Va., Extracts from letters by Auxiliary Relief Agents at City Point, Va. .... 909
 Milwaukee, Wis., Letter from Albert J. Bloor... 909

REPORTS.
 On Exchange of Prisoners, by Richard T. J. Falconer 898
 More about the Prisoners, by L. V. Beebe... 898
 Army of the Shenandoah, by S. Budlong Westcott... 899
 Winchester, by Nathaniel Seaver, Jr. .... 899
 Harper's Ferry, by George A. Muhlebach... 900
 Nashville, Tenn., by R. Brundett... 901
 Memphis, Tenn., by Benjamin Woodward... 903
 Montrose, Pa., Report from Susquehanna Co., Pa. .... 907
 Annapolis, Md., by J. Addison Whitaker... 911
 By C. F. Howes... 913
 By James Batchelor... 914
 Camp Parole, Md., Mrs. L. S. Phillips and Miss Alma Carey... 912

MISCELLANEOUS.
 A Voice from Prison, "Will you leave us here to die?" 897
 Relief to Wounded Rebel Soldiers in the Shenandoah Valley... 900
 Extracts from "Cleveland Bulletin"... 903
 Three Months in the U. S. Sanitary Commission... 905
 Resolutions adopted at a meeting of American citizens held at Buenos Ayres, S. A., June 20, 1864... 906
 A New "Home" at Paducah, Ky. .... 911
 Practical Christianity, by Rev. J. A. Anderson... 914
 "Hungry and ye Fed me"... 915
 Prisoners, Supplies Distributed... 916
 The U. S. Sanitary Com., A mistake corrected... 917
 Financial Report U. S. Sanitary Commission from June, 1861, to October 1, 1864... 918
 Women's Central Association of Relief, No. 3... 922
 Meeting at Buffalo, N. Y. .... 923
 The Sanitary Commission in the Sandwich Islands... 924

EDITORIAL.
 Facts and Figures... 920

- 2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.
 3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.
 4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
 A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
 F. L. Olmsted, California.
 George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
 Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
 W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
 Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., New York.
 S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
 C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
 J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
 Rt. Rev. T. M. Clarke, Providence, R. I.
 Hon. R. W. Barnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
 Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
 Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
 Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
 Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
 J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
 Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
 Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
 A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
 George T. Strong, Treasurer.
 J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
 J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.
 J. H. Douglas, M.D., Associate Secretary.
 F. N. Knapp, Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

- Henry W. Bellows, D.D. George T. Strong.
 Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. Wolcott Gibbs, M.D.
 C. R. Agnew, M.D. Charles J. Stillé.

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regi-

PROTECTIVE
 War-Claim Association

OF THE
 STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
 NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HON. HAMILTON FISK, ADMIRAL DUPONT,
 JOHN J. CISCO, ESQ., RUD. A. WITTHAUS, ESQ
 TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, ESQ.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HON. E. D. MORGAN,    | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLOW, D.D.,   | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to
 HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
 35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

ment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

♣Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La

Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

EAST.

"Special Relief" Office, 76 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

WEST.

Soldiers' Home, No. 81 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

Soldiers' Home, Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Louisville, Ky., James Malona, Sup't. James Morton, Special Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, New Albany, corner of Main and State Streets.

Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., C. N. Shipman, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Nashville, Tenn., Captain I. Brayton, Sup't. Rev. J. Hoblit, Relief Agent

Soldiers' Home, Columbus, Ohio, Col. Isaac Dalton, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Cleveland, Ohio, Joseph Jerome, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Lodge, near landing, Memphis, Tenn., C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Camp Nelson, Ky., Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Paducah, Ky.

BRANCH,
No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,
No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted & them for an Artificial Arm, having reported
IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.
By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U.S.A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept 20, 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, SO FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General.

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices Address

B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D.,
President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY,

OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y.
Hon. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn. E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.
WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York. J. T. SANGER, New York.
JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,

No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

OFFICE OF THE

M O R R I S

FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE

COMPANY,

COLUMBIAN BUILDING,

CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

---

•••••

Authorized Capital, - - - $5,000,000.

Cash Capital, paid in, - - - $200,000.

---

•••••

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

•••••

D I R E C T O R S .

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 30.

PHILADELPHIA, JANUARY 15, 1865.

No. 30.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 14,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

OUR PRISONERS.—THE EXCHANGE.

BY L. C. LEGGITT.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17, 1864.

In company with seven other agents, I left this city on the 27th day of October, and in compliance with instructions, proceeded to Fortress Monroe, having in charge a large supply of sanitary stores, consisting of crackers, onions, pickles, tomatoes, wine, lemons, milk, beef, pails, slippers, towels, caps, handkerchiefs, stockings, tea, lanterns, candles, shirts, drawers, pillows, sugar, cheese, chocolate, &c., &c., which stores were placed on board U. S. Steamer "Crescent," by order of Colonel Mulford, Agent for Exchange of Prisoners.

On the 8th November, I sailed in the "Crescent" for Port Royal, S. C., where we arrived on the 13th November.

Colonel Mulford at once proceeded to Venus Point, to meet Captain Hatch, and consummate the arrangement for the exchange, while the fleet went to Beaufort to obtain the requisite supply of coal. This detained us until the 18th, when we sailed from Port Royal to Venus Point, and their met Colonel Mulford, and a number of the vessels of the fleet.

THE FLAG.

On the 20th November, Captain Hatch came down the river, bringing one thousand prisoners. At the sight of our flag, they commenced cheering, until they were forced to desist from inability to raise their voices. Some of them, who were too feeble to join in cheering the old flag, testified their joy by tears, the only manner in which their excessive debility would allow them to manifest it.

DESTITUTION.

I trust I never shall have occasion to witness such another spectacle, as these poor fellows presented: many of them destitute of shoes, and their feet so badly bruised and swollen, that they suffered most excruciating pain at every step. Most of them had but one or two articles of clothing to protect them, and some of them were almost entirely destitute of anything in the shape of a garment. Upon reaching our vessel, whatever old clothes and rags they had upon them, were thrown overboard, and after a thorough washing, they were each provided with a suit of clothes, and then a plentiful supply of good coffee, meat and hard tack, was furnished them. After which, they were transferred to the vessel which was to bear them to a civilized country; and as we steamed down the river, cheer after cheer, as hearty as their weak condition would permit, were given for Colonel Mulford and the flag.

We received in all, at Venus Point, five thousand and five hundred prisoners. When we were informed that General Sherman's near approach to Savannah, would prevent the delivery of any more at that place, we at once sailed for Charleston Harbor, where the balance of the ten thousand were received. These last were, if possible, in a more destitute condition, than those received at Venus Point.

One man breathed his last, while they were conveying him from one vessel to another.

On the 12th December, the "Crescent" received her compliment of passengers, consisting of sixty-eight officers, and seven hundred and sixty men. The highest praise is due to Captain Lathan, his officers, and the men of the "Crescent," for their kindness to the officers and soldiers, and for their constant endeavors to alleviate their sufferings, and make them as comfortable as they could during their voyage to the North.

SUPPLIES.

The stores entrusted to our charge, were distributed in such a manner as circumstances seemed to require, with a view to relieve suffering, and render these abused patriots as comfortable as possible, and their gratitude there for, was expressed by calling blessings upon the Sanitary Commission, and in grateful tears.

LEFT BEHIND.

They all speak of the sufferings and destitution of their comrades who still linger in the rebel prisons, not having been so fortunate as themselves in obtaining their release, and beg the Sanitary Commission to do all in their power to alleviate their sufferings, by furnishing them with comfortable clothing, and other articles which they so much need.

Being fully acquainted with the condition in which those were at the time they reached the flag of truce boats, we can easily realize what must be the situation of their more unfortunate comrades, who still remain in the power of the rebels. And what must be their sufferings during the winter months? Dying by inches for want of nourishment and suitable clothing.

INTERESTING LETTERS.

BY MRS. L. G. PARRISH.

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 1, 1864.

The steamer Constitution arrived this morning with seven hundred and six (706) men, one hundred and twenty-five (125) of whom were sent immediately to hospitals, being too ill to enjoy more than the sight of their "promised land." Many indeed, were in a dying condition. Some had died a short time before the arrival of the boat. Those who were able, proceeded to the high ground above the landing, and after being divided into battalions, each was conducted in turn to the Government storehouse, under charge of Capt. Davis, who furnished each man with a new suit of clothes, recorded his name, regiment and company. They then passed out to another building near by, where warm water, soap, towels, brushes and combs awaited them.

WRITING LETTERS.

After their ablutions they returned to the open space in front of the building, to look around and enjoy the realities of their new life. Here they were furnished with paper, envelopes, sharpened pencils, hymn books and tracts from the Sanitary Commission, and sat down to communicate the glad news of their freedom to friends at home. In about two hours most of the men who were able, had sealed their letters and deposited them in a large mail bag which was furnished, and soon sent on their way to hundreds of anxious kindred and friends.

DISTRIBUTION OF FOOD—JOY OF THE PRISONERS.

Capt. Davis very kindly invited me to accompany him to another building, to witness the administration of the food. Several cauldrons containing nice coffee, piles of new white bread, and stands covered with meat, met the eye. Three dealers were in attendance. The first gave to each soldier a loaf of bread, the second a slice of boiled meat, the third, dipping the new tin-cup from the hand of each, into the coffee cauldron, dealt out hot coffee; and how it was all received I am unable to describe. The feeble ones reached out their emaciated hands to receive gladly, that which they were scarcely able to carry, and with brightening faces and grateful expressions went on their way. The stouter ones of the party, however, must have their jokes, and such expressions as the following passed freely among them: "No stockade about this bread," "This is no confederate dodge," &c. One fellow, whose skin was nearly black from exposure, said, "That's more bread than I've seen for two months." Another, "That settles a man's plate." A bright eyed boy of eighteen, whose young spirit had not been completely crushed out in rebeldom, could not refrain from a hurrah, and cried out, "Hurrah for Uncle Sam, hurrah! No Confederacy about this bread." One poor feeble fellow, almost too faint to hold his loaded plate, muttered out, "Why, this looks as if we were going to live, there's no grains of corn for a man to swallow whole in this loaf." Thus the words of cheer and hope came from almost every tongue, as they received their rations and walked away, each with his thank you, thank you; and sat down upon the ground, which forcibly reminded me of the scripture account where the multitude sat down in companies, "and did eat and were filled."

OH! WAIT FOR ME.

Ambulances came afterwards to take those who were unable to walk, to Camp Parole, which is two miles distant. One poor man, who was making his way behind all the rest to reach the ambulance, thought it would leave him, and with a most anxious and pitiful expression, cried out, "Oh, wait for me!" I think I shall never forget his look of distress. When he reached the wagon he was too feeble to step in, but Captain Davis and Rev. J. A. Whitaker, Sanitary Commission agent, assisted him till he was placed by the side of his companions, who were not in much better condition than himself. When he was seated he was so thankful that he wept like a child, and those who stood by to aid him could do no less. Soldiers—brave soldiers, officers and all, were moved to tears. That must be a sad discipline which not only wastes the manly form till the sign of humanity is nearly obliterated, but breaks the manly spirit till it is as tender as a child's.

Dec. 6. 1864.

A VISIT TO ST. JOHNS' COLLEGE HOSPITAL.

The St. John's College Hospital is under the management of Dr. Palmer, surgeon-in-charge, and his executive officer, Dr. Tremaine. These gentlemen are worthy of praise for the systematic arrangement of its cleanly apartments, and for the very kind attention they bestow on their seven hundred patients. I visited the hospital a day or two ago, and, from what I saw there, can assure the relatives at home that the sufferers are well provided for. If they could only be seen, how comfortable they look in their neat white spread beds, much pain would be spared them. One of the surgeons informed me that all the appliances are bestowed either by the government or the Sanitary Commission.

ROCKING CHAIRS.

As I passed through the different wards, I noticed that each one was well supplied with rocking chairs, and alluding to the great comfort they must be to the invalids, the surgeon replied: "Yes, this is one of the rich gifts made to us by the Sanitary Commission." An invalid took up the words and remarked: "I think it's likely that all about me is from the Sanitary, for I see my flannel shirt, this wrapper, and pretty much all I've got on, has the stamp of the United States Sanitary Commission on it."

DIET KITCHEN.

The diet kitchen is under the care of Miss Rich, who, with her assistants, was busy preparing delicacies of various kinds for two hundred patients who were not able to go to the convalescent table. The whole atmosphere was filled with the odor of savory viands. On the stove I counted mutton chops, beef steaks, oysters, chicken, milk, tea, and other very palatable articles cooking. A man stood by a table, buttering nicely toasted bread; before him were eight to ten rows of the staff of life, rising up like pillars of strength to support the inner man. The chief cook in this department informed me that he buttered twelve hundred slices of bread, or toast, daily for the diet patients, and prepared eighty-six different dishes at each meal. While in conversation with this good-natured person, the butcher brought in a supply of meat, amounting, he informed me, to one hundred pounds per day for the so-called diet kitchen, though this did not sound much like it. Before we left this attractively clean place the oysterman was met emptying his cans. Upon inquiring how many oysters he had, he replied, "Six gallons is my every day deposit here;" and oh! they were so inexpressibly fine-looking, I could not resist robbing some poor fellow of one large bi-valve to ascertain their quality. Next we were shown the store-room, where there was a good supply of Sanitary stores, pads, pillows, shirts, drawers, arm-slings, stock of crutches, fans, and other comforts, which, the doctor said, had been deposited by the United States Sanitary Commission agent.

These were useful articles that were not furnished by the government.

The executive officer having given us permission to find our way among the patients, we passed several hours most profitably and interestingly, conversing with those who had none to cheer them for many months, and writing letters for those who were too feeble to use the pen. When the day closed our labors we felt like the disciple of old, who said, "Master, it is good to be here," and wished that we might set up our tabernacle and glorify the Lord by doing good to the sick, the lame, and those who had been in prison.

December 8, 1864

OUR PRISONERS FROM SAVANNAH.

No human tongue or pen can ever describe the horrible suffering we have witnessed this day.

TWO HUNDRED BAD CASES.

I was early at the landing, 8½ o'clock in the morning, before the boat threw out her ropes for security. The first one brought two hundred bad cases, which the Naval surgeon told me should properly go to the hospital near by, were it not that others were coming, every one of whom was in the most wretched condition imaginable. They were, therefore, sent in ambulances to Camp Parole hospital, distant two miles, after being washed and fed at the barracks.

A DECK LOAD OF THE DYING.

In a short time another boat-load drew near, and oh! such a scene of suffering humanity I desire never to behold again. The whole deck was a bed of straw for our exhausted, starved, emaciated, dying fellow-creatures. Of the five hundred and fifty that left Savannah, the surgeon informed me not over two hundred would survive; fifty had died on the passage; three died while the boat was coming to the land of liberty. I saw five men dying as they were carried on stretchers from the boat to the Naval Hospital. The stretcher-bearers were ordered by Surgeon D. Vanderkief to pause a moment that the names of the dying men might be obtained. To the credit of the officers and their assistants it should be known that everything was done in the most systematic and careful manner. Each stretcher had four attendants, who stood in line and came up promptly, one after the other, to receive the sufferers as they were carried off the boat. There was no confusion, no noise; all acted with perfect military order. Ah! it was a solemn funeral service to many a brave soldier that was thus being performed by kind hearts and hands.

THE INSANE.

Some had become insane; their wild gaze and clenched teeth convinced the observer that reason had fled; others were idiotic; a few lying in spasms; perhaps the realization of the hope long cherished, yet oft deferred, or the welcome sound of the music, sent forth by the military band, was more than their exhausted nature could bear. When blankets were thrown over them, no one would have supposed that a human form lay beneath, save for the small prominence which the bony head and feet indicated. Oh! God of justice, what retribution awaits the perpetrators of such slow and awful murder.

VERMIN AND DISEASE.

The hair of some was matted together, like beasts of the stall which lie down in their own filth. Vermin are over them in abundance. Nearly every man was darkened by scurvy, or black with rough scales, and with scorbutic sores. One in particular was reduced to the merest skeleton; his face, neck, and feet covered with thick, green mould. A number who had Government clothes given them on the boat were too feeble to put them on, and were carried ashore partially dressed, hugging their clothing with a death-grasp that they could not be persuaded to yield. It was not unfrequent to hear a man feebly call, as he was laid on a stretcher, "Don't take my clothes;" "Oh, save my new shoes;" "Don't let my socks go back to Andersonville." In their wild death-struggle, with bony arms and hands extended, they would hold up their new socks, that could not be put on because of their swollen limbs, saying, "Save 'em till I get home." In a little while, however, the souls of many were released from their worn-out frames and borne to that higher home where all things are registered for a great day of account.

AN APPEAL TO CHARITY.

Let our friends at home have open purses and willing hands to keep up the supplies for the great demand that must necessarily be made upon them. Much more must yet be done.

Thousands now languish in Southern prisons, that may yet be brought thus far toward home. Let every Aid society be more diligent, that the stores of the Sanitary Commission may not fail in this great work.

TOWELS, COMBS, ETC.

The government does not supply towels and combs to the soldiers. On their arrival the agents of the Commission are ready with a stock of these very useful and much needed articles, giving them freely to each man. Fourteen hundred towels were given out one morning, and the recipients, who had not seen such things for a long time, and who needed them much, made merry over them indeed. One said, "I do believe if it wasn't for the Sanitary, we would never have got out of the Confederacy. I do believe they have interceded for us."

FROM ONE COMPETENT TO JUDGE.

The Rev. B. T. Phillips, Chaplain U.S.A. General Hospital at Annapolis Junction—whose ability, spirituality, and untiring zeal in his noble work have won for him golden opinions both from his old friends and from the officers and men with whom he has long been associated—in a letter addressed to Rev. J. A. Whitaker, for many months our agent at Annapolis, speaks so frankly and advisedly of the Sanitary Commission, that we cannot refrain from extracting as follows:—

U. S. A. GENERAL HOSPITAL, }
ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 15, 1864. }

REV. AND DEAR BROTHER:—The duties incidental to the recent large arrival of paroled prisoners at this hospital from Andersonville and other prisons of Georgia, have prevented me from making an earlier expression of my sentiments towards you, and my feelings at your leaving Annapolis for your new sphere of labor in behalf of the Sanitary Commission. * * *

Of the great and good work of the Sanitary Commission I would like to say something, but I hardly know how to speak of it without using terms, which, while to me they seem to fall far below what truth and justice demand, may to those unacquainted with or experienced in its practical workings, seem exaggerations. But the fact is, it cannot be exaggerated, and language is inadequate. Following the soldier as it does from his enlistment to his discharge, whether that be to his family or his long home, its kind and judicious and prompt help is ever at hand, oftentimes unconsciously to himself, but shedding its gentle influence and ministrations of mercy as nothing else does or can. And all this with an economy and protection against imposition, that is rarely found in even our best benevolent enterprises. I speak advisedly when I say that in these regards it may safely challenge comparison with any institution of the kind with which I am acquainted. I know whereof I speak, having carefully examined into its mode of operation, and having had much personal experience of its practical working since its very commencement, in my regiment, in temporary hospital, on many a battle-field, and in general hospitals. In all that experience of nearly four years, I have had increasing reasons for believing not only that no other organization can compare with this noble pioneer in the work of humanity it has undertaken, but also to admire the thorough business manner in which it has been conducted, the wisdom which has been displayed by its managers, and their good judgment in the selection of the agents, to whom has been entrusted the disposing of the charity which the people have put into their hands. Their policy to employ the best agents, and retain them as they become experienced, as well as their good fortune in these regards, have had just such results as might have been expected; they have been served faithfully, and the soldier has reaped the benefit, while the loyal people of the land have shown their appreciation by their liberal gifts. They feel they can confide in it, and that by no other agency can they so directly and beneficently relieve the suffering soldier, or in case of his death, help his needy family.

But I find I must stop, leaving unsaid what my heart prompts me to utter, but which I have not the time nor space to say.

BY E. C. GUILLES.

ANNAPOLIS, MD., Dec. 17, 1864.

Since my arrival at this place, I have occupied myself in obtaining the requisite information, and answering letters of inquiry, received at this office. These letters have been numerous, and often of a most affecting character. Appeals from mothers and wives, beseeching us to use every effort to get some intelligence for them, from those recently returned from imprisonment at the South—of their dear ones—last heard from, it may be, six months or a year ago; short manly notes from fathers or brothers, asking us whether such or such a name was to be found among the list of paroled prisoners. Requests such as these, could not fail to command our immediate and earnest attention—promptness and thoroughness of investigation, however, it has been impossible to combine.

Twice have the flag of truce boats recommenced their trips; they have come with such frequency and brought such large numbers—one thousand or fifteen hundred, sometimes in a day—that the list of names has been in constant use by the military authorities, and could not be at once referred to. Every facility, however, has been afforded us, and in many instances, we have had the pleasure of communicating to the anxious once at home, the news, that he whom they had inquired for, was left behind, in good health, by his comrades. In other cases, we have been obliged to convey the sad intelligence, that the person inquired after, had died in captivity. But, in such instances, we could almost feel glad of having something definite to reply: it was so much harder to be compelled to say, as in the other cases we have been, that no information could be obtained. In these cases, however, a careful list of the names has been kept, that no opportunity may be lost, as the boats continue to arrive, of giving what intelligence we can.

I have occupied myself in assisting at the distribution of the articles to the men. Liberal as the provision made by the Government is, there are certain articles of universal necessity, which they do not supply. Here it has been our pleasure, as well as our duty, to furnish, as far as the stores at our disposal would allow, to every man.

The first wish of the paroled prisoner, finding himself at liberty, is to communicate with home. It is our aim, therefore, as soon as may be, after the arrival of each boat, to furnish each man with paper, envelope and pencil. These are most gladly welcomed and put in use. The next desire of the men, is to carry out more fully the work already begun, of cleansing themselves from the dirt, and freeing themselves from the vermin incident to the terrible life they have been leading. We take them, when mustered into line for dinner, and issue a towel and a comb to every man. These are most gratefully received. The only words of complaint which have reached my ears here been owing to the great earnestness of the men to get thoroughly cleaned. Our stock of fine-tooth combs being small and speedily exhausted, caused a good deal of disappointment. However, we supplied them with a comb of some sort, and the change in their appearance, after receiving a suit of clothes from Government, and facilities for making themselves clean, is very remarkable. We have issued also to each man, a skein of thread and needle.

I have also had the honor to assist from time to time in the duties of the office. I have been greatly interested in the experiences of the officers who have begun to arrive on the later boats. Not entitled to clothing from Government like enlisted men, they have come to the office clad in the ragged and dirty garments, which have been their only defence from the cold in their prison life, to see what we could do for them. Underclothing has been issued readily, but outer garments not being included in our stock on hand, it has been impossible for us to supply. But it has been very impressive to observe the manly and simple dignity of these men, in tattered clothes. With long untrimmed hair and beard, with feeble tottering gait, there was yet to be seen, the noble spirit unquenched, the true man coming out purer, with more tried patience, with more calm power from the furnace of affliction—the fiery torment of the terrible experience.

The frank, straightforward gratitude with which they accepted the little favors we were able to do them, was very touching. It is a thing to be very thankful for, and from which to take hope for the future, that such men have been spared to the nation.

I have busied myself as opportunity offered, in observing whatever was going on in connection with the men, now at this post, that I might obtain such a knowledge of the general condition of affairs, as would enable me more efficiently to serve the Sanitary Commission.

I have several times witnessed the impressive scene presented by a funeral in the Naval School yard, preceded by the band, and escorted by a guard of men under arms.

The long file of wagons moved slowly up and took their positions in front of the Chapel. On the steps stood the chaplains of the Naval School Hospital, and the Officers Hospital, and delegates of the Christian Commission, with some of the ladies connected with the hospital, and all around were gathered such of the men as were able to be about. A hymn was sung by the ladies, with some of the members of the band. An address was made by a delegate of the Christian Commission. The list of the dead (forty-four names) was read, prayer was offered by the chaplains, the solemn notes of the band were heard again, and the line of wagons passed on, each draped with the American flag, to the Cemetery, a mile or two out of town. The large number of the dead commemorated in a single service; the absence of any near personal friends; the presence within the curtains of the neighboring tents of so many hundreds, who may soon be borne out to be placed by the side of them; the thought of the long suffering through which they have passed, and of the blessed rest they had found, made the scene one long to be remembered.

I have also had the pleasure of attending the prayer meetings, held two evenings in the week at the Chapel. They were exceedingly interesting occasions. Most of the men who took part in the exercises were young men, and their testimony was clear and strong to the power of faith, to maintain the soul through the most fearful trials and temptations. They had found Christ to be their strength and comfort in their time of adversity, and looked forward with joy to devoting themselves to his service in the brighter days which were now in store for them amid the prevailing sadness from present suffering and distressing recollections; these hours of prayer and thanksgiving, of glorying in God, and rejoicing in the Lord Jesus Christ, are times of true repentance.

THE SOLDIER'S FUNERAL HYMN.

BY MRS. J. W. LANE.

We weep, to-day, the fallen brave,
Now sleeping in their distant grave,
Our stricken hearts in anguish mourn,
For loved ones who will ne'er return.

The soldier's calm, untroubled sleep,
Where Heaven's pure dews alone may weep:
Nor clash of arms, nor trampling feet,
Can reach them in their safe retreat.

We saw not the ensanguined fray,
Where the red life-stream ebbed away,
Nor watched the dauntless spirit's flight,
As life's fair sun went down in night.

We saw not Death's gray shadows lie
On the damp brow and glazing eye,
Before us still they seem to move,
All health and brightness, life and love.

Thou Sovereign Ruler of the skies,
Accept this costly sacrifice,
And teach our aching hearts to rest;
Resigned and hopeful, on thy breast.

And when fair Freedom's banner waves,
In triumph over these honored graves,
To them each freeman's love shall raise,
A hero's monument of praise.

EAST BETHANY, December 5, 1864.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

BY J. WARNER JOHNSON,
SUPERINTENDENT OF FIELD RELIEF.

Dec. 14, 1864.

Thinking that the readers of the SANITARY BULLETIN, might feel some interest in following the movements of their agents during the recent raid under General Warren, and in learning somewhat of the life we lead, I propose to give you a sketch of our movements. The ordinary quiet of camp life, was broken about sunset on Tuesday, the 6th inst., by orders for the Fifth Corps, and the third division of the Second Corps, to be ready to move at day-break the following morning, with six days rations, and suitable ammunition.

The supply trains, ambulances, and ammunition wagons, were limited in number, and every order indicated that a rapid but not very extended move was to be made.

BATTLE SUPPLIES.

Before dark, a wagon was filled with our battle supply, for each of these Corps. Woolen shirts, drawers and socks, condensed milk, whiskey and brandy for milk punch, beef stock, soft crackers, farina and corn starch, rags, bandages, blankets, handkerchiefs and towels, and such articles as are most needed after a battle, constituted our stores on this occasion. Some tea, sugar, soft crackers, and a few cans of apple sauce, were added for our mess; time not permitting us to prepare suitable substantial food, we relied upon our friends for beef and bread, as occasion required, and never in vain.

MOVING.

By daylight of the morning of the 7th Dec., we were ready to move, Mr. Barton taking charge of the 5th Corps supplies, leaving his associate in charge of the Station, while Mr. Holbrook, accompanied by Uncle John (Vassar,) and the writer, went with the wagon of the Second Corps. Each agent in charge, was provided with a saddle horse, and in the wagon was forage enough for six days. Scarcely had we left camp, before the promise of the early morning was realized, by a heavy rain storm, which lasted till noon, and made our gum blankets of the greatest value. By the end of the day, the sun broke out bright and warm, making every one cheerful and inspirited; the moon afterwards added her mild light to guide us on our way to camp by nine o'clock.

MIDNIGHT SHOWER.

We were roused from comfortable sleep about midnight, by a heavy shower, which coming upon us suddenly, as we lay upon the plain without shelter, (our tent having been forgotten,) soaked both beds and occupants before we succeeded in getting into or under the wagon. When the heaviest of the shower had passed, we made a fire, and gathered around it till day-break, drying our clothes, and comforting the inner-man with tea and crackers. By that time, the column was again on the move, and falling into position in the rear of the hospital wagons, our team began the duty of the day.

UNCERTAINTY.

Laughable conjectures as to our destination, beguiled the slow and tedious march of our little army. They varied as much as the minds of their originators, and extended from a reconnoissance toward the South Side road to a union with General Sherman's forces in Georgia. It was not clear however, that our six days rations would last quite long enough for a trip into South Carolina, or, that our little army could subsist itself upon the enemy, on so long a march.

SUSSEX CO.

Our road lead us through Sussex C. H., a village of some pretensions, on the map, but owning only three or four houses, conspicuous among which, is the Court House of brick, standing a short distance back from the road. The general appearance of this country indicates exhaustion. The soil under good cultivation and proper returns will be productive, but the large farms and bad system pursued, has reduced it so much, that no evidences exist of fair crops being harvested. Fields of cotton are quite frequent. Some have been picked; a few still carry their small crop.

CONTRABANDS.

Groups of contrabands met us occasionally, giving active exercise to the humane feelings of those in sympathy with them, by their appeals for aid. Children of all ages, and the infirm, through their leaders, asked for transportation; but a difficulty arose in getting it, from all the wagons still being loaded, and from the fact that we were going from home with limited rations for the troops.

Few, if any of these parties, were however, left behind our column. Could any advocate of the Divine Institution have witnessed the meeting of these poor creatures with their friends by the road side, and have seen the exhibitions of delight with which they welcomed each accession to the ranks of those, who loved freedom better than slavery, he would have learned a lesson never to be forgotten.

WELDON RAIL ROAD.

About noon of Thursday, we came in sight of a railroad bridge over the Nottoway river, which the cavalry had fired a short time before. Here the object of the move was developed. Before us was the Weldon Railroad, in operation toward Petersburg as far as Stony creek, where wagons were used to carry supplies across the Danville road or around the Army of Potomac to Petersburg.

DESTRUCTION OF THE ROAD.

The line of road was at once occupied by the troops, and for thirty-six hours almost the entire force bent its best efforts to its destruction. Many willing hands make short work with such a duty. Strong arms are used, and many men apply themselves to the task. The rails and ties are lifted on one side, and thrown over into one long line.

The ties when torn from the rails, are piled up, and the latter are laid across them and covered with light wood, so that when the fire has reached its fiercest power, and the iron has become softened by heat, the weight of the ends, bends the rails to the ground, and utterly ruins them for present use. Twenty miles of such devastation, was accomplished without opposition, and the Weldon road to the Meheria river, ceased to exist. Rebels in Richmond, have but one line of rail, the single track road to Danville, by which to carry troops and supplies, from the Southern States.

HALT AT NIGHT.

Our halt took place about sunset, the weather growing colder, and giving indications of snow. The first duty on reaching camp, is to get a supply of soft dry wood for the night, and water for supper. Instinct seems to guide the soldier to the nearest spot where either can be obtained, and fences of all kind disappear with wonderful rapidity, before the host of claimants, who throng after them. A fire is quickly started; the coffee soon boils over the hot coals; the slice of beef or pork is soon fried; and a gum blanket spread upon the ground, furnishes a table, around which, appetites sharpened by a fast since daybreak, are gathered for the frugal meal.

Should the ground prove very rough, a few strokes of the shovel will level it to receive the blankets upon which we lie. If it rains, a gum cover over our blankets, is our protection from the storm of a winter's night, and fortunate are those whose slumbers are undisturbed by the discovery that they obstruct the flow of a young river on its oceanward course.

START AT DAY-BREAK.

Daybreak finds the column on the march, and detained only by the labor of destroying the railroad, we go forward to the Meheria River, about twenty miles from Weldon. Here a skirmish between our cavalry and the rebel forces on the other side of the river, exposes the defences thrown up to prevent our crossing. Enough of the road has been torn up to prevent its use for weeks. The passage of the stream would involve considerable loss, with no other benefit, than the opportunity of destroying a few miles of the road beyond, and as the weather was getting colder and wetter, and the roads more difficult for the trains, it was decided to retire. Half an inch of sleet and snow covered the country and the sleepers in the army, when the bugle calls roused the latter for the march. The troops had hard work in store for them. Deep mud and half frozen water cover the roads, and constant thawing brought such showers from the forests, that little comfort was found during the day on the march, or during our halts.

IN THE MUD.

Just after dark, our wagon was driven into a mud hole, from which the tired horses were unable to draw it. The trains all passed on, the last of the infantry were around us, the cavalry but a short distance in the rear, and as it became an interesting question how we were to save our supplies, a sudden attack by the rebel cavalry, which penetrated between us and the rear guard, within half a mile, seemed to make a speedy decision, a matter of necessity. Fortunately, a few volleys sent the chivalry to the right about, and we again had an interval of quiet.

The efforts of the soldiers, loaned for the purpose, failed to release our wagon from its muddy bed, and it became necessary to part with a portion of the contents. This was done in a very short time, and in such a way as secured a proper application of our supplies, and with lightened load, we reached the head-quarters of a brigade, where we were kindly cared for during the night. A short distance from camp next morning, was sufficient to show that we were required to further reduce the weight of our supplies, and to make it necessary to obtain a driver more competent to manage our team. The kindness of the ambulance officer of the Third Division Second Corps, enabled us to bring off our wagon and team of fine horses, and we had the satisfaction of knowing that our distribution of stores was made to those who had means and disposition to place them in proper hands.

GUERRILLAS.

Some unfortunate stragglers from the column of troops, on our march down were captured by the guerillas, and after being murdered and beaten till they were disfigured, were stripped of their clothing and left on the road side. Such atrocity could not go unpunished. The General in command, (Warren,) issued orders at once, which will teach an useful lesson to those who disregard all the ordinary rules of civilized warfare, and render retributive justice a stern necessity.

MOONLIGHT MARCH.

A moonlit march until late in the evening, brought us to camp. A very cold wind drove us to shelter in a wood, where, after kindling a large fire, we were soon sound asleep and dreaming of home. The morning of our last day's march, found us off at sunrise. The ground was frozen very hard, and a high wind from the north-west whistled across the country. Home was however before us all; a few hours would bring us to the comparative comforts of our former camps, and every one feeling cheered by hope, and brightened by the brilliancy of the morning, was eager to make a rapid and final march to what we were all glad to call, our winter quarters.

From noon till night, the troops in a continuous line, marched into the lines, and thus ended this memorable raid down the Weldon Railroad.

LETTER FROM CITY POINT.

T. C. P.

It has long been the boast of all rival relief societies, that they possessed the advantage of direct and personal contact with the men; and it is a lamentable fact, that people at home overlook to a great extent, the operations of the Sanitary Commission in this respect. We do communicate personally with the sufferers. To make this statement more forcible, I will endeavor to sketch the working of the

A. X. C.

What volumes are contained in these three symbolistic characters. The "God bless you's" of men made happy by a gift from home; the tears of gratitude for some simple act of kindness; the resurrections from filth and despondency into cleanliness and hope.

These three letters mean the "Auxiliary Relief Corps." They were instituted by the founder of the Corps, Mr. Frank B. Fay, of Massachusetts, and will long be held as mementos of an experience, at once pleasant and profitable.

We, of the Corps, number about thirty-five men, and from three to six of us, are connected with each hospital at this point. We have a storehouse in each hospital, receiving our supplies from a central or general storehouse at City Point. The hospitals are divided into wards, and each agent has an assigned ward, to the men of which he gives out his goods. This is the practical working of the Corps in their stations. In case of a battle, men are immediately selected from our number, and sent to the field with supplies of stimulants, good wholesome eatables, and good warm clothing. Oh, I shall never forget, when once I was among the number called to go to Deep Bottom, just after a battle in Butler's lines. The surgeons were almost all occupied with the amputating tables,—three in number, and the minor cases were left mostly to the care of some members of the Christian Commission and ourselves. For two days and two nights, the men came pouring in, and as fast as they were examined and attended to, put on board the hospital boats, to be shipped to the regular stations. And I think that I can safely say, that not a man went from the battlefield to the boat, without passing through our hands. The working, in detail, would occupy more space and time, than we can afford: it is nearly as various, both in character and effect, as the men with whom we come in contact. One cannot appreciate it though, without having personal connection with it.

MEETING OF AGENTS.—HON. F. B. FAY.

A meeting of the Auxiliary Relief Corps, of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, was held on Monday evening, December 19, at the Ninth Corps Depot Hospital, for the purpose of listening to the parting address of its Superintendent, the Hon. Frank B. Fay, of Chelsea, Mass.

Mr. Fay having been connected with this part of the Commission's work from its origin, the parting was filled with reminiscences of the many sad and sacred scenes through which the Corps had passed.

The following preamble and resolutions were presented, and unanimously adopted, as expressing the sentiments of the Corps, towards its founder and friend, to whom the cause owes so much.

Whereas, The Hon. Frank B. Fay, Superintendent of the Auxiliary Relief Corps of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, is retiring to his home, at the close of a long and arduous period of service in the field, with the expectation of being separated for a time from the Corps, with which he has been identified since its inception.

Resolved, That the Corps of Relief Agents, take this opportunity of expressing to Mr. Fay, the high appreciation of his services, and of the self-sacrificing spirit which, ever since the beginning of the war, has led him to enlist in the work of ministering to our sick and wounded heroes.

Resolved, That a copy of these proceedings be forwarded to the Executive Committee in New York, and to the SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN, in Philadelphia, for publication.

THE SOLDIER'S FRIEND!

is the title of a charming little book, prepared by one of the noble women of our land, who has shown herself, by various works of love, to be truly devoted to the soldier's temporal and eternal welfare. It is published by the United States Sanitary Commission, to meet a most pressing necessity of the men of our army and navy. To those who see it, not one word of explanation or commendation is needed, but would call the attention of those who have not yet seen it to some of its features.

1. Calendar.

2. Pay table for non-commissioned officers and privates in U. S. army.

3. An address "to our soldiers and sailors," which will be read with deep interest by "the million," both citizen and soldier.

The address gives in a concise form the "principles of the Commission," "its relation to the government," "its means," and "plan;" calls the especial attention of soldiers in hospitals to the design and work of the Commission in respect to their wants while sick and wounded; gives a list of "depots of collection and distribution of supplies," together with information respecting "letters" and hospital visitors.

Another general feature of the address is a most satisfactory account of the special relief work of the Commission, respecting which there is an astonishing want of information on the part of those most deeply interested. Ten special features of this relief work are presented. Prominently among the rest are those which refer to the securing of back pay, bounty, pensions, &c., for discharged soldiers, free of charge; and to pay the same attention to sick and wounded in hospitals, whose cases have been overlooked in the regular payments. It is also to assist in the same way the families of prisoners.

Next comes a full list of the Sanitary Commission homes and lodges, located at different points, where lodging, meals, counsel, &c., are given free of charge; also of the homes for wives, mothers, &c., of soldiers, who may be called to visit the hospitals at Washington, Alexandria, and Annapolis. An account of monthly pay, transportation, subsistence, clothing, &c., of discharged soldiers and those on furlough. A more particular account of "claim agencies" closes this part of the address. Seven warnings to soldiers will be duly appreciated by many who will escape from snares in which they would have been caught, were not their attention arrested by these suggestions. With advice respecting the method of obtaining artificial limbs, the address proper closes. The account of "aid societies," "alert clubs," &c., concludes this part of the little "Friend."

The second part of the work is made up of beautiful hymns, selected from various collections, miscellaneous and patriotic pieces, which will be read, sung, and enjoyed while the war lasts; and long after the war is over the "Friend" will be remembered with gratitude. The volume closes with the Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer, and a few appropriate Psalms.

The work itself reflects great credit upon the head and heart of the compiler, more than could be indicated by any complimentary words that might here be written. The book, which is just the size for the breast pocket, is gratuitously distributed among the men of the army and navy. In addition to the number so circulated, it is proposed to supply the "Aid Societies," auxiliary to the Sanitary Commission, with the number of copies they may be able to sell, and have the proceeds of such sales appropriated to replenish their various treasuries. Here is a field of usefulness for all the "societies," "alert clubs," &c. The information is as valuable to the "loved ones at home" as to the absent brave. Shall not every loyal family be supplied with one at least? Shall not half a million be distributed this winter? A. C.

Specimen numbers will be sent to each Branch, and orders received at the office of the BULLETIN, will be promptly attended to. We can cheerfully endorse all that is said above by the reviewer.

LETTER FROM NATHANIEL SEAVER, Jr.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20, 1864.

As my connection with the Sanitary Commission has now drawn to a close, I beg leave to submit the following condensed report of my labors.

Arriving in Washington, in September, during your absence East, I was temporarily assigned to hospital visiting.

Accompanied by Mr. Holt, I made the tour of nearly all the hospitals in the vicinity of Washington, including those at Alexandria. Having thus acquired some idea of the vastness of our work, and of the needs of the hospitals, I was especially assigned to Finley and Campbell Hospitals, as regular visitor. This duty I performed to the best of my ability, until the early part of October, when at my request, I was assigned by yourself to Winchester. Arriving at that place October 6, I was appointed by Col. Muhlech, "Superintending Hospital Visitor." What my duties were in that capacity, I have already enumerated in my report, published in a former number of the BULLETIN. How, from this work, I became transferred to the office, it would be difficult to tell. The battle of Cedar Creek found me agent in charge. Fortunately, Col. Muhlech, who had been absent for some days, was with us at that time. Our stock was good, our corps of agents large; not too large however. In the evenings, from the 20th to the 23d, when the wounded came in by hundreds, we were compelled to call upon members of the Massachusetts 37th, then doing guard duty at Winchester, for assistance. Noble fellows! they worked with us several evenings, into the midnight hours, deeming it a privilege to help their wounded fellow soldiers. Many too of the nurses and assistants at the Sixth Corps Hospital, rendered us valuable service. At Sheridan Hospital, Mr. Corbin was warmly seconded by numbers of the Christian Commission. Our tent on the ground, at this time, proved invaluable, and for a time, Christian and Sanitary Commissions became a partnership for the distribution of the stock there collected. I cannot let this opportunity pass, without expressing my approval and gratitude, for the manner in which Mr. Corbin performed his duty, on this, and other occasions. Two years a soldier, and several months a hospital steward, he was eminently fitted to fill this place, and that he was wise as well as faithful, the united testimony of patients, surgeons, officials, and visitors proves. Now, after a residence of over two months in the Shenandoah Valley, I am once more in Washington, and about to bid farewell to the Sanitary Commission. The position of responsibility which I have occupied for most of that time, has not been without its trials and anxieties, but on the whole, my brief experience has been a very happy one. I early found, that the great question to be decided in the stewardship of the bounties of the loyal North, was "how not to do it." At least, one-half the applications made for individual relief, are by undeserving persons, and it requires a combination of shrewdness and benevolence, rarely found in human bosoms, to detect the incorrigible "bummers" and "dead beats," and still to avoid turning way the deserving. Our work in the valley is for the present about completed. Sheridan Field Hospital rejoices in warm bedding, home-made quilts, and cheerful tent chimneys. The city hospitals are even more fortunate. Meanwhile, the patients are being transferred to the rear. But, even with these facts, I say farewell with many regrets; regrets, which would become the prickings of a guilty conscience, were it not for the fact that I leave in my place, an old tried friend, the Rev. Geo. Batchelor, to whose care and good judgment, I feel that I could resign every interest, with a certainty that it would be watched over with the fidelity of a brother and a Christian.

THREE MONTHS IN THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

NO. V.—STILL AT WHITE HOUSE, VA.

All through the night of June 3, and all day of the 4th, the rain came steadily down, the atmosphere was chilly, and those who could spare time for reflection, allowed the whole circumstances which were crowded into that day, to be entirely unfavorable to health or comfort. The wounded were brought in by thousands, throughout all day of the 4th and 5th; the mode of transit being the same as that spoken of in relation to the wounded at Port Royal, Va. A portion of my diary for June 4, reads as follows:—Rained all night, raining still; 8000 wounded said to be on the way in those dreadful army wagons. Oh, it is terrible to think of the suffering of our poor soldiers, as they are jolted over those corduroy roads to this spot. I have often sighed over their sufferings on the battle field; hereafter I shall sigh as I think of their sufferings while being brought to the base of supplies. Several of our agents were already at the front helping the wounded and dying on the field; and it was thought, if a stronger force were sent there, many a valuable life might be saved by the application of a little good nursing, and feeding, before the horrid journey was commenced; but how to spare the men was the question. Over one hundred agents were at work, but two hundred could not perform the work of feeding and dressing those who greatly needed attention. It happened at almost every ambulance, that some poor wounded one would ask, "When is the doctor coming?"

Can you not dress my wound?" In their eagerness to have their wounds dressed, they would, to excite the agents, sympathy and assistance, uncover the gaping lacerations, and reveal them filled with disgusting life; at such times, every person who approached them, was addressed as "Doctor." With such piteous, urgent appeals, and such necessities staring them in the face, it could not be otherwise than that the Relief Corps, should return to their resting places, always at or near the midnight hour. On the boat, the feeding was continuous from 6 A.M., until midnight. I have said the issues of supplies on the 3d of June, exceeded any thing ever known in the history of the Commission, which was true; yet the daily issues of the 4th and 5th, by far exceeded those of the 3d. The chief storekeeper estimated the value of the issues on those three days, as closely approximating one hundred thousand dollars. June 5, the cry still came for more help, more supplies, more nurses; every body strained their nerves to accomplish more. Our boats were being filled with special cases of wounded ones; among whom was Colonel Winslow, a son of the lamented Dr. Winslow, so long and so favorably known in connection with the U. S. Sanitary Commission. He was brought from the front, to the boat, by his father, whose tenderness for his child, equalled that of a mother's. It was the afternoon of that day, before I even suspected it was the Sabbath day. I could, in part, realize what Sunday must be in the army, especially were men had hard daily duties to perform. In the absence of a majority of the Corps, a few of the resting ones joined with me in a meeting of prayer and praise. On this day, wagons loaded with necessaries and delicacies, attended by a number of our best men, started for the front, for the purpose already indicated. The action was well timed, for it found and helped men who had been waiting for succor, just where they fell; and replenished the depleted supply tent of the Commission's Agents. On Monday, the steamer James Guy, Captain Parkhurst, commanding, started for Washington, for supplies and nurses, having on board Dr. Winslow, his wounded son, and a favorite horse. I have omitted to state, that during our stay at this point, the roar of cannon, and crash of small arms, were almost incessant, and they acted upon our agents as a spur to a willing, but jaded animal. The requisition for supplies for the front, was so urgent, that another lot of wagons were loaded up and sent, but we could not possibly spare more Relief Agents. Mr. Holstein reported the burial of 21 men this day, but this number was only a fraction of those who died. All coming under the supervision of the Sanitary Commission, were buried as Christians; the burial service of the Episcopal Church, being read over their remains. Each occupied a separate grave, which was properly marked. The effects of each deceased soldier, were taken in charge, even to a broken comb, and their friends written to on the same day, announcing his death, with every particular which would be of interest for them to know. On Wednesday, June 8, twenty fresh men, (nurses,) arrived from Washington.

My diary of this day, says: "A fine cool day. There is some talk of a change of base to Bermuda Hundred. It is said, Grant is swinging his left to the James, and that a strong force under Sheridan has gone from Newcastle to make a circuit of Richmond, and join Butler, on that river. Our Corps is still hard at work, and when it returns late at night, each member expresses himself dissatisfied with the amount of labor done, and wishes as I have done many times, that he had a thousand hearts, and arms, and legs. The U. S. Sanitary Commission has, at this point, forty-four wagons, with four horses to each wagon; considerably over one hundred Relief Agents, and not less than one hundred and fifty other persons, engaged as teamsters, laborers, clerks, &c. On Saturday and Sunday last, there was nine thousand dollars worth of shirts and drawers distributed among the wounded ones."

J. J. B.

PAID AND UNPAID AGENTS.

BY REV. J. A. ANDERSON.

The other day, a prominent and influential agent of the Christian Commission expressed himself to the effect that the agents of the Sanitary Commission, in being hired, only felt called upon to work so many hours per day and at a slow gate per hour; while the agents of the Christian Commission work for nothing save love for the soldier, and, by consequence, infused more soul and vim into their labors than do the paid men of the Sanitary Commission. The idea was, that because Sanitary agents receive a scanty compensation they cannot be expected to labor with such a purity of benevolence, nor with such an enduring celerity, as do agents who receive no compensation.

It is somewhat singular that when any given objection against the Sanitary Commission reaches us from one section of the country, it is speedily heard of from many and distant sections—which suggests to us that somebody takes pains to spread the objection; and as this allegation is coming up from different quarters it deserves a moment's attention.

The qualifications of an agent are found in his heart, mind and body—not in his purse; and are neither lessened by his acceptance of a stipend, nor increased by his rejection of a stipend. The question of compensation has nothing to do with his fitness as an agent; neither is he by the reception of pay debarred, in the most remote degree, from acting upon the broadest principles of humanity, nor from being impelled by the truest motives of strong-pulsing charity. If it be asserted that no genuine benevolence can be exercised except by agents who are unpaid, then it instantly follows that the noble bands of Christian ministers, who are confessedly among the most effective and brilliant philanthropic instrumentalities of the age, are devoid of that benevolence; for, though as a class worse paid than men of the same abilities in the other professions, yet all of them receive pay, and are enabled by that pay to devote themselves to the grand work of the glorious Emanuel. But does any one affirm that because thereof, their charity and humaneness cannot be as pure and throbbing as if they received no pay? The best of books declares the laborer to be worthy of his hire; and the common experience of mankind confirms the declaration. There is a vast difference between laboring for money under the guise of benevolence; and laboring for benevolence, though money enough be received with which to defray ordinary personal expenses. If it be intended to allege that the agents of the Sanitary Commission work simply for money or chiefly for money, and not chiefly from true motives of humanity; then, we simply and emphatically declare the allegation to be false in fact, and unjust to scores of men who have resigned ample incomes, and continue to reject offers of revenues double the amount of those which they receive from the Commission. Or, if it be intended to affirm, that because they receive pay they will not or do not work as heartily as those who are unpaid; it is only necessary to say, that the sufferings of mangled Americans, or the totterings of emaciated veterans, thrill through a kind heart irrespective of the pocket which walks about with that heart; and that our agents are selected with special reference to their benevolence, energy and endurance, and that persons who do not on trial display these qualities are discharged, is known to all who know anything about the matter.

The assumption that an agent who is paid does not work so vigorously or with such laudable spirit as does one who is unpaid, affects scores of pastors who go to the front as volunteer agents of the Sanitary or Christian Commission quite as much as it does our permanent agents who are paid; for each of these volunteers receives compensation, if not from one of the Commissions, from the congregation which, in granting him a leave of absence, continues the payment of his salary during that leave. The question of compensation simply narrows itself down to the organization through whom the payment shall be made, for in both cases the common charity of the country is the banker who furnishes the means; and the difference between the two methods is, that in the one case the charity of the country empowers the Commission to pay the agent directly for doing army work, while in the other case it empowers a congregation to pay a minister for his pastoral work, and the congregation loans his services to the Commission.

In the first case you can procure trained, disciplined and skilled laborers—men who know what is to be done, how to do it, and who will not shrink from either manual labor or tedious routine; in the other case you must rely upon the efforts of gentlemen, who, in most instances, are compelled to return to their congregations just about the time they become familiar with army life and acquired fitness for army work, and who will do manual labor or perform menial services only at their own option.

As to the preference which business men would give to these two systems there can be no doubt, for it is a law of political economy that trained workmen and the permanent assignment of the same men to the same thing, is true and large economy; while, from what has been said above, it is evident that no excellence accrues to the motives of unpaid agents because of their being unpaid, which does not equally accrue to paid agents in spite of their being paid.

But enough with abstract reasonings upon a point which is clear to all, and agreed upon by all disinterested persons. We not only affirm, but know that facts will substantiate the affirmation, that the agents of the Sanitary Commission are as warm-hearted, as keenly alive to suffering, as quick-witted in affording relief, as patient, energetic and cheerful in the performance of unromantic duty, and as enduring and courageous under field hardships, as are the agents of the Christian Commission or any other organization. And, furthermore, we are beset with the general impression that this, and scores of other rumors which are swept through communities, will, upon thorough investigation, be found to have received their first announcement by friends of organizations which are jealous of, or antagonistic to, the Sanitary Commission.

THE TWO COMMISSIONS.—COMPARATIVE ECONOMY.

We invite attention to the article in the present number, on "Paid and Unpaid Agents." It is worthy of being read and considered, and as it suggests a few thoughts we ask attention to them, as follows:

"Who pays the agents?" The answer is—the people. They may contribute their money to either or both of the Commissions, or they may pay their agents for doing the work of the Commissions, directly from their own hands. The fact is, that the Sanitary Commission pays its agents from its own treasury, that treasury being supplied by the people.

The Christian Commission does the same with its permanent delegates in the field, their treasury being likewise supplied from the same bountiful source. But there is a class of delegates who go to the front as volunteers, meaning by this term, gratuitous laborers, upon whose claim to voluntary service, much stress is laid, as an argument in favor of the economy of the Christian Commission. Let us examine this subject, and it will be seen that the system of a volunteer agency is more expensive than that of a compensated agency.

The Sanitary Commission pays for its relief work in the field, forty-five dollars per month, to each agent, in addition to to his subsistence.

The permanent Christian Commission delegates, receive no less, but we believe, more than this sum; fifty dollars having been stated as their salary per month.

The small difference of five dollars per month need not be thought of in this comparison, beyond the mere statement. The salary of all relief agents, in both Commissions, is meagre enough to satisfy the most careful and even parsimonious spirit. The work of such men, who live amid the exposures and dangers of the front to do good to our suffering soldiers, cannot be estimated by dollars and cents, and the pittance given them ought never to be complained of.

But we desire to meet the question of volunteer service upon its real merits. Ministers of religion are usually selected by the Christian Commission for this service, and each of these pastors is supposed to be receiving a salary, which may vary from five hundred to five thousand dollars per year: we will estimate the average however, at the low mark of eight hundred dollars per year, for pastoral service at home. Taking this average to be fair, when these parties volunteer their services to the soldiers for a month, they are in receipt from their congregations of sixty-five dollars for that month's pastoral service, in addition to subsistence and traveling expenses from the Commission. They are thus the gainers individually, for the time being, by the two latter items being added to their salary, while the cost of supplying their places during their absence, must also be borne by the people at home. Now add the cost of subsistence and transportation. A delegate may go from Maine or Minnesota, as from any part of the country. He may go to Washington or Annapolis only; or he may go to New Orleans or Texas; but, until he reaches a base of supplies, either at the West or East, he is at the expense of transportation by steamboat or railway, and though a portion of his fare may be generously commuted by the companies transporting him, it will not be unjust to allow forty-five dollars for his average cost, to and from the front. It thus costs one hundred dollars a month, to pay the volunteer agents who go to the field for temporary and inexperienced service. Take the two or three thousand delegates who have gone to the field as temporary volunteers for the Christian Commission, and count their cost to the charity of the country at one hundred dollars each, and we have the volunteer system, requiring two or three hundred thousand dollars to pay its delegates.

Meanwhile, the permanent delegates are moving on in the daily track of duty; hard, exposing, dangerous duty, at the low figure of forty-five and fifty dollars per month; becoming inured to hardships, accustomed to labor, skilled by experience, known to officers and men, and reaping rich harvests from their constant seed-sowing.

It is not assumed that this vast expense is borne by the Commission directly, but by the people, and the very people who find fault with the expensiveness of paying agents to go to the front—the people who will oppose the Sanitary Commission because it pays its hard working, constant agents, forty-five dollars per month, while the Christian Commission pays its permanent agents fifty,—these very people will pay double the sum to volunteers, and complain of others having their small stipend of forty-five dollars.

The system would be a gratuity,—a most generous and note-worthy gratuity, if the cost of this voluntary service could be turned to account. If the pastor going as a delegate would bestow his monthly salary upon the aid society of the congregation or village from which he goes, and allow the service to be indeed an offering for the soldier, it would then be entitled to the claim of voluntary service; but as it is, it cannot be claimed as gratuitous.

We commend the system as a successful one for securing the sympathy of a very worthy class, and for committing their influence in behalf of the Commission which obtains their service, but when it is presented to the public as an economical system, in comparison with that which trains and keeps its agents, and pays an acknowledged standard sum, we must protest against it, and ask the people not to misjudge in the premises.

Again, when certain churches agree to employ and pay agents one hundred dollars each, per month, and send them away as delegates of the Christian Commission, we assert that they are not to be ranked as volunteers, generously giving their services to the Commission. They are paid.

The war is the people's war; the army is constituted of the people; the Commissions were originated, and are sustained by the people. The people may do as they will, and they are prepared to believe the following simple example in arithmetic, and decide for which they pay the most money.

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |        |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Sanitary Commission's work for six months at any given point.                                                                                                                                                            |        |
| Two permanent agents each at $45 per month.....                                                                                                                                                                         | $540  |
| Transportation to and from the front at $45 each.....                                                                                                                                                                   | 90     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | <hr/>  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | $630  |
| Christian Commission's work for six months at any given point by one permanent agent, and six volunteer delegates who remain but one month each, and whose time of service is equal to that of a second permanent agent: |        |
| One permanent agent at $60 per month.....                                                                                                                                                                               | $300  |
| Transportation.....                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 45     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | <hr/>  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | $345  |
| Six volunteer delegates, one month each, at a cost to their congregations of $65 per month.....                                                                                                                         | $390  |
| Transportation at $45 each.....                                                                                                                                                                                         | 270    |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | <hr/>  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | $660  |
| One permanent agent.....                                                                                                                                                                                                 | $345  |
| Six volunteer delegates, remaining one month each, time of service equal to a second permanent agent                                                                                                                     | $660  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | <hr/>  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | $1005 |

RESUME.

|                                                                                             |         |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| Total expenses of Christian Commission policy to charity of the country for six months..... | $1,005 |
| Total expenses of Sanitary Commission policy for same labor and time.....                   | 630     |
|                                                                                             | <hr/>   |
| Economy of San. Commission's policy in six months                                           | $375   |
| Economy of San. Commission's policy in one year                                             | $750   |

Assuming each Commission to employ one thousand agents per year to do a given work, the cost to the common benevolence of the country of the Christian Commission's policy over and above the policy of the Sanitary Commission would be three hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars, ($375,000) each year.

OUR CANVASSERS.

We are pleased to announce, that the canvassing system is now completely organized, and successfully at work. Twenty lecturers are in the home field, most of them ministers, instructing the people, and meeting the objections that may exist in the public mind, concerning the Sanitary Commission. We commend these gentlemen to the kind guidance and hospitality of the people, with the assurance that their labors will be useful. They have all been at the front in hospitals, and among the soldiers in the camps. They have seen the work of the Commission and handled its stores. They know of what they testify, and are entitled to credit.

OUR WOMEN.

We want to say that the aid societies, are as diligent as ever. The testimony comes to us from all quarters, that the supplies are increasing, because the faithful women of the land continue to be faithful. Some, it is true, have grown cold, and if they work at all, work in another direction. But their lukewarmness is compensated for, by the zeal of others, and by the forming of new societies, in new neighborhoods. The work never looked brighter, in the brighter days of our history. We say to our women,—then, go on, you have been the means of saving thousands of lives; you have comforted tens of thousands of sufferers, and the call is for you to persevere. Every garment you have made, every comfort you have contributed, has been so much added to the strength of the nation; and every blessing that has been uttered by soldiers, and many more, that have been too deeply felt to be uttered, have fallen upon you from trembling lips, or burdened hearts, but to stimulate your zeal, and cheer your hearts. Go on!

UNITARIAN TRACTS.

We are in receipt of a letter from a friend, which contains the following statement:

A minister told me he had learned that the funds raised by the Sanitary Commission, were being expended for Unitarian tracts, and that these were circulated through the army.

Of late, this rumor has come to us from several quarters. It has sprung up simultaneously, in new and distant places, and has assumed a magnitude which attracts notice. It is, as our friend very properly replied to his informer, a "slander." It is well known, that while the U. S. Sanitary Commission, is a Christian institution, it is not sectarian. It has not expended money for party purposes, in any way. It has not purchased a dollar's worth of sectarian literature, but has spent thousands in promiscuous reading matter. It has spent thousands in purely Christian literature, well selected from various authors, without reference to denominational interest or choice. It recognises the fact, that our army is composed of men of all shades of religious belief, and that it would be unjust to the people to allow itself to be used as a means for advocating sectarian dogmas. It would be impossible for the Commission to do this, and maintain any consistency with itself: for while it is true that the president is a minister of religion under the form of Unitarianism, its Board, their secretaries, agents and employees, represent what is known as evangelical forms of religion, by a very large majority. It is disheartening to be compelled to defend the Commission against such ungenerous assaults, especially when they are made by ministers, whose opportunities for discovering the real truth upon all these matters, are so ample. The names of the members of the Board, and of all the prominent officials connected with the work, are open to the public. They are well known to this country, as among the foremost men of the day, in religion, science and literature. To believe such statements as the above, is not only to discredit some of our best citizens, but to lay ourselves open to just criticism, for not being better acquainted with public men and public affairs, and not having a higher appreciation of common honesty. If the whole Sanitary Commission was made up of Unitarians, they could not be supposed, as servants of the people, so to abuse their trust, as to convert their association into a proselyting machine, to serve their own sectarian purposes. Nobody believes this could be done, except those who would, with similar advantages, use them to promote their own selfish ends.

At a recent meeting of a Unitarian Association, the question of distributing religious reading to the army was considered. The fact was well known that the Christian Commission could not lend itself to the circulation of Unitarian literature, and it was agreed to appoint an agent for the purpose of disseminating their own publications in the army, at the expense of the association; but how such agent could find subsistence and shelter was the next question to be considered. Application was made to the Sanitary Commission to allow the agent to subsist with them, and render what service might be required of him in times of need or emergency, as a consideration for his board. The application was presented to the Executive Committee of the Commission, of which Dr. Bellows is chairman, and was refused.

We say then to our correspondents, to our ministerial friends, to all, that whenever they hear such stories to disbelieve them, unless the reporters of them are prepared with testimony that is conclusive; when that shall appear, we will join in exposing the wrong.

FOUR DAYS' WORK.

Read the following exhibit of four days' work among our troops near Nashville, Tenn. To say nothing of Special Relief afforded at Homes and Lodges, which is immense, the issue of these vegetables alone must have been a great blessing to our men.

Consolidated Statement of Stores issued by the U. S. Sanitary Commission to Troops near Nashville, from December 2 to December 6, 1864.

|                           | Bushels of Potatoes. | Bushels of Onions. | Gallons of Pickles and Kraut. |
|---------------------------|----------------------|--------------------|-------------------------------|
| 4th Army Corps.....       | 777                  | 757                | 2,861                         |
| 16th " " 2d Division..... | 329                  | 329                | 1,542                         |
| 17th " " 1st ".....       | 120                  | 120                | 462                           |
| 20th " " detachment.....  | 30                   | 30                 | 126                           |
| 23d " ".....              | 421                  | 413                | 1,306                         |
| Provisional Division..... | 84                   | 63                 | 243                           |
| Cavalry.....              | 151                  | 155                | 524                           |
| Artillery.....            | 59                   | 55                 | 228                           |
| Miscellaneous.....        | 36                   | 35                 | 143                           |
| Colored Brigade.....      | 38                   | 37                 | 163                           |
| Total.....                | 2,045                | 1,994              | 7,663                         |

METROPOLITAN FAIR BUILDINGS.

Mr. P. B. Wright, Architect of the Metropolitan Fair buildings, has made a very interesting statement concerning their erection, and as a matter of justice both to the parties mentioned and to the many friends of the Sanitary Commission, as well as an evidence of the appreciation given to such generous actions by the Commission and the American people, whose agent it is, we extract as follows:—

It is due to some of the mechanics (to whose energy we are indebted for the completion of a building covering 24,000 square feet of ground in sixteen and a half working days,) to state that Messrs Hunt & Son performed the carpenters' work at one-half the usual rates (five per cent. on the actual cost), the portion of their commission which was waived amounting to $617.

The accounts of the Messrs Hunt, heretofore submitted, are remarkable for their minuteness and perspicuity; by reference to them you can ascertain the name of every workman and the number of days and parts of days' work performed by each.

Mr. Codington, the mason, performed his work on the same terms. Messrs Barnes and New, roofers, did their work at three cents per foot, with the permission to remove it, the regular price having been seven cents per foot. Messrs Philbin & Quinn, plumbers and gas-fitters, charged the actual cost of labor and twenty-five per cent. of the cost of materials, after taking the same back.

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

SUPPLIES.—NO. IV.

Exhibit of Receipts, for periods of six months each.

|                                     | Cotton shirts. | Woolen shirts. | Cotton drawers. | Woolen drawers. | Socks.  | Handkerchiefs. | Sheets. | Blankets and bed quilts. | Dried fruit, barrels. | Blackberry cordial & brandy, gallons. |
|-------------------------------------|----------------|----------------|-----------------|-----------------|---------|----------------|---------|--------------------------|-----------------------|---------------------------------------|
| Six months ending Nov. 1, 1861..... | 10,798         | 3,150          | 4,467           | 674             | 15,703  | 5,449          | 7,429   | 9,576                    |                       |                                       |
| Six months ending May 1, 1862.....  | 10,798         | 3,150          | 4,467           | 674             | 15,703  | 5,449          | 7,429   | 9,576                    |                       |                                       |
| Six months ending Nov. 1, 1862..... | 56,380         | 4,501          | 25,193          | 2,116           | 19,934  | 44,392         | 16,838  | 2,883                    |                       |                                       |
| Six months ending May 1, 1863.....  | 20,790         | 22,764         | 5,979           | 12,171          | 25,839  | 18,198         | 8,917   | 3,480                    | 120                   | 553                                   |
| Six months ending Nov. 1, 1863..... | 15,304         | 7,947          | 10,501          | 3,513           | 14,376  | 10,630         | 5,146   | 1,888                    |                       | 332                                   |
| Six months ending May 1, 1864.....  | 8,253          | 24,493         | 2,618           | 24,655          | 15,153  | 6,733          | 5,299   | 2,558                    |                       | 186                                   |
| Six months ending Nov. 1, 1864..... | 17,180         | 23,913         | 9,258           | 10,246          | 6,776   | 46,444         | 9,012   | 2,067                    | 202                   | 2,500                                 |
| Total.....                          | 142,513        | 89,936         | 62,483          | 54,049          | 113,504 | 137,295        | 58,070  | 31,828                   | 1,393                 | 2,500                                 |

Although we withhold our usual Semi-Annual Report, we cannot omit presenting the above interesting table to our Auxiliaries. Each line gives the receipts of certain articles for a period of six months. The first two coincide, because we kept no separate account for the summer and winter, and now can only divide the total receipts for the year. But examine the column of flannel shirts. In the summer of 1862 we received forty-five hundred; during the winter following more than five times as many. The summer of 1863 gave nearly eight thousand; the next winter three times as many. See now the summer of 1864, almost twenty-four thousand, three times as many as last summer, six times as many as the previous one. To what is this constant increase due? First of all to the unusual activity of the army, so that every woman felt that there must be greatly increased numbers of wounded and suffering men, and rested not, but with redoubled zeal, plied her needle for their benefit. Next, we must confess, (and we do it with proud satisfaction,) that our neighbor, the Woman's Relief Association of Brooklyn, has contributed of these twenty-four thousand shirts, over fourteen thousand; and of the ten thousand pairs of drawers more than one-half, beside other articles not included in the table. This Association is one of the most thorough and efficient in the country, and the men of Brooklyn seem to feel it as much their duty to contribute funds, as the women do to make up garments for our soldiers; and together they produce this beneficent result.

We believe that no inconsiderable advantage has arisen from our plan of distributing material at half price to feeble societies; and very many of them (nearly two hundred and fifty) are now working regularly and actively with us, that have heretofore made only occasional contributions. We hope to be able to pursue this plan to the end; since it not only materially increases our stores, but unites us more closely to these earnest, unknown friends. We cannot fail, also, to recognize the valuable assistance of our Associate Managers, who zealously co-operate with us in spreading information both of the demand for supplies, and of the results accomplished. All the Branches of the Sanitary Commission hold it to be their best plea, to make plain statements of the manner in which the work is conducted, and to invite the scrutiny of all interested; satisfied that this will ensure their hearty sympathy and support.

At the request of Mrs. Barker, one of the hospital visitors of the Commission, whom those of our friends who were at our November Council cannot fail to remember with pleasure, we make a few suggestions. All cotton garments should be nicely washed and ironed before they are packed. We cannot afford to pay city prices for washing; but if each lady who makes a shirt, or a sheet, will send it in clean and smooth, it is doubly welcome to the sick. So with old linen and muslin; if each person will cut off hems and seams, and roll it neatly, it is ready for immediate use. Handkerchiefs should be at least twenty inches square; smaller ones are not worth giving to the men and are often thrown aside and lost. Better give six handkerchiefs of reasonable size than twice as many scraps of linen, hardly likely to be used at all. She says also:

"It affords untold pleasure to the soldier to know, by the marks it bears, whence the garment he receives comes. For this reason, it is an excellent plan to mark each article that can be marked, with the name of the village, town or city, and State, where it was made, using therefor a stencil plate and stencil ink."

Mrs. Marsh once wrote to us from Beaufort, "to give poor ill-made articles to the men does more harm than good; they say, 'if I was worth anything they would not give me these miserable things;' but the little signs of neatness and care touch them, and they feel as if a mother or sister has provided for them the shirt the 'Sanitary' gives, as indeed is true."

The end has not come yet; this New Year may not bring it. We thank you, friends, cordially, for your support, and above all for the faith you have shown in us; and we rest upon it with firm confidence for the future.

ELLEN COLLINS,

Chm. Committee on Supplies.

NEW YORK, January 2, 1865.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM GEORGIA.

HEAD-QUARTERS TWENTIETH CORPS, }
NEAR SAVANNAH, GA., Dec. 19th, 1864. }

DR. J. FOSTER JENKINS,

General Secretary, U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR:—On learning that General Sherman was about to make a bold move through the State of Georgia to some point on the sea coast, it was deemed important that some one of the Commission's Agents should accompany the expedition. That duty fell to my lot, and I now have the honor to report to you the work and observations of my mission. Early in the month of November there was great activity at Atlanta; sending stores and non-combatants to the rear, and preparing the troops with clothing and rations for the prospective campaign. By the middle of the month the work was accomplished, and on the fifteenth of November, 1864, the Army of Georgia took up camp and commenced its long and unparalleled march toward the land of the palmetto. The troops—officers and men—were in excellent spirits, and even jubilant over the prospect before them. Each division had its hospital department well organized before starting, and had, besides the hospital wagons, about fifty ambulances. All the sick and wounded were to report, or be reported to the chief surgeon in charge of the hospital, for transportation and treatment. The surgeons of regiments were furnished with cards admitting the bearer to a place in an ambulance. These cards were given out at the surgeon's call in the morning. The bearer marching as far as his strength would permit, then resting by the wayside until his ambulance came up.

For the first few days the ambulances were well filled by men from soreness, but they soon got well, and even cases of fever, and wounded men recovered in these traveling hospitals. The plan works well. Everything was systematized. When the column halted for the night, the hospital tents were speedily put up by a party detailed for that purpose, while others were preparing supper. The sick and wounded were taken from the ambulances and made comfortable in the tents. About the time they were snugly put away for the night, a savory supper was ready and served to them. Each hospital had its organized foraging party, whose business it was, to gather during the day's march, supplies for the hospital from the abundance in the country; and they seldom failed to bring in at night, plenty of sweet potatoes, chickens, fresh pork and mutton, of which there seemed to be no end; also corn meal and sometimes flour. Much of the time honey was to be found on the diet list. Milk was to be had in abundance. Scores of cows were driven along for a supply of this excellent article, in the treatment of sick and wounded men. In the morning the surgeons examined all the patients, treating as each case required. Breakfast over, the ambulances were loaded with their human freight, tents struck and the hospitals were ready to move with the column. Thus, day after day did we proceed. It is remarkable but true, that there were several divisions that did not lose a man by sickness during the march of about three hundred and fifty miles. Those of other divisions who died, were principally among the new recruits. The general health of the army was much better when we halted before Savannah, than when we left Atlanta. The generous and even luxurious living of the men on sweet potatoes, turnips, fowls, various kinds of fresh meats, sorghum, molasses, honey, &c., had the good effect to eradicate whatever of scorbutic taint previously existed. The march was of immense value to our army as a sanitary measure. I have procured and forwarded to the Hospital Directory a correct and complete list of the casualties since leaving Atlanta, of the killed—the time and place of the deaths in hospital—the date and where buried, of the wounded—the nature and locality of the wound in most cases—those seriously sick, and also the missing and captured. In all cases, where possible, have given the place and the circumstances. We have spared no labor or pains to get a full report, and here I wish to make mention of the uniform kindness and co-operation received from officers in the different commands in perfecting this work. I am glad to be able to state that with a very few exceptions all the sick and wounded were brought through with the army. I had designed to procure a list of Union prisoners, buried from rebel prisons, Andersonville and Macon. We did not reach Millen. I visited where so many of our brave soldiers were confined. About twelve acres of ground were enclosed by a strong stockade, twenty feet high; this was in the midst of a dense forest of pines. A marshy stream ran through it. No buildings to cover the prisoners were permitted. All the shelter from rain and cold the men in that enclosure could obtain, were huts made in the ground and covered with mud-bricks. The dampness must have been killing to the prisoners, for the water comes very near the surface of the ground, in all those marshy plains. Mortality was terrible among our men there. The place was occupied twenty-two days by an average of twelve thousand men, and during that time seven hundred and five were buried, and one I found dead still in his mud-hut. When I found the graves of these heroic dead, you may imagine my indignation, at discovering that not one name was on a single head-board, although each grave had a separate board. The hospital was placed below the prison and on the bank of the marshy pond, into which the stream with all the washings and filth of camp ran. All the water used at that hospital must have been taken from that filthy pond. Is there no way for our Government to secure to her prisoners held by the rebels, a more humane treatment? We have invested Savannah and gained a communication with our fleet by storming and capturing the works of Fort McAllister, on the Ogeechee River. Savannah is virtually ours, and most probably without a fight. Everything looks hopeful. I hope we may have a good supply of stores. As soon as we enter the place, I will procure rooms, and have everything ready by the time they can arrive.

Yours, very truly,

J. C. HOBLIT,

General Relief Agent, U. S. San. Com., Army of Georgia.

BY A. N. READ.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Dec. 12, 1864.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Secy. U. S. San. Com., Western Department.

DEAR SIR:—Since my last report, the Army of the Cumberland has been brought together in the vicinity of Nashville. Decatur, Columbia, Franklin and Johnsonville have been vacated; Columbia after a little, Franklin after severe fighting. The troops in the field have no winter quarters, only shelter tents, and the cold weather for the past few days has been severe upon them; as many of them are upon hills, with no forests to break the wind, and wood not abundant.

Most of them have been paid, are well clothed, and have an abundance of food, except fresh vegetables. Although they have been hard worked, and have had little rest since the first of May, there is no unusual sickness, and they are in good spirits.

There have been over 70,000 admissions to the hospitals since the first of May. These have received every attention that a Government, careful of the welfare of her soldiers, could furnish. Thanks to the efficient, earnest, faithful services of Dr. Wood, the Asst. Surg.-Gen.; Dr. Cooper, the Med. Director of the Army of the Cumberland, and their long-trying and faithful subordinate surgeons.

We have issued vegetables in large quantities to the troops in the field, principally to the well men at Stevenson, Pulaski, Columbia, Johnsonville, and along the line of battle in front of Nashville. This was done at the suggestion of Maj.-Gen. Thomas and Dr. Cooper, who gave us transportation, and every facility for their distribution. The whole amount distributed, besides the issues to hospitals, from Nov. 1 to Dec. 6, was, of kraut and pickles, 26,744 gallons, 5,523 bushels of onions, 2,249 bushels of potatoes.

A friend related to me the following incident, which occurred at one of the theatres in Nashville, the actors, during the play, were eating vermicelli or maccaroni, the soldiers thought it was kraut, and they shouted, from all parts of the house, "kraut!"

kraut! kraut! Sanitary! Sanitary! Sanitary!"

Division Hospitals are established at this time near our lines, where the sick and wounded are to be received, the wounds dressed, operations performed, and as soon as practicable, removed to hospitals in the city. These Division Hospitals are visited daily, by Field Agents Messrs. Tone, Brundrett and Bartlett, and such stores furnished as are needed, teams being sent for them to our store-rooms in the city. For the past two weeks we have been cut off from our communication with Murfreesboro and Chattanooga, but I have sufficient reason to believe that they have stores enough, as most of the sick and wounded had been removed.

Gen. Thomas has issued the necessary orders to secure to us the land protection and help to continue the Hospital Gardens the coming year, and has renewed the detail for Mr. John Harraman, the efficient gardener at Murfreesboro.

The "Home" in Nashville has been filled to overflowing the past two months. So full has it been that every available space on the floors has been used for a soldier's bed, and at times, the sidewalk and the vestibule of the Catholic Cathedral have been crowded. Would it have profaned God's temple to have admitted within its walls His children? A larger building was assigned to us, and would have been ready in a few days, but to meet the anticipated wants of the present emergency, has been taken and furnished as a hospital.

The sufferings of the refugees have been such as to compel us to sympathize with them. We have occasionally administered to cases of extreme want, taking them into our quarters, giving them food and clothing, and sending them on their way.

On the morning of the 22d of November, four children were found dead at the Chattanooga Depot, frozen to death; also, one soldier. Over these, and the thousands whose sufferings continue, all over the South,

"Is heard Columbia's piercing cry, Oh, Absalom my son!"

After the battle of Franklin, the wounded were brought immediately to Nashville, and we had no opportunity to give aid on the field. The number of admissions to the different hospitals in Nashville, from April 1, 1862, to Dec. 12, 1864, is 212,143. The number of deaths, from March 3d, 1862, to the same period, is 10,203. There are now in hospital, Dec. 12, 4,904. While I write, our troops are reported to be moving out after Hood.

Our special wants, at this time, are more of the usual battle stores; also, woolen clothing, shirts, drawers, socks, mittens, blankets, &c. We have many calls for these that we cannot fill. These calls are increasing, because of the number separated from their regiments, and the frequent changes of the troops, during which many articles are unavoidably lost, and cannot be replaced, through Government officials, until several days.

If the friends of the soldier will continue to give liberally, they will be paid as was a conductor on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, who found a soldier, wasted by long sickness, longing for home, and with his furlough in his pocket; he could not get a seat in the cars, they were all full, and he so weak, that when he would get one, others pressed in before him. He was finally placed in a box car, without a seat and without a bed. Here this conductor found him, and took him into his own caboose, and first laid him upon the floor, but the car was warm. Not satisfied with this, he soon placed him upon his bed, when the soldier grasped his hand, and as the tears fell from his eyes, he said, in broken accents, "Oh, sir, my mother will pray for you every night for this!"

FROM LOUISIANA.

BATON ROUGE, LA., December 17, 1864.

I arrived at this post on Thursday, the 8th inst., with all my stores in good condition. Although the day was rainy, I succeeded in getting everything safely stored before evening. Not being able to find any room suitable for an office, I took quarters with the agent of the Christian Commission, in the Court House.

My attention was first directed to the General Hospital, where there seemed to be many deficiencies. None of the men were supplied with slippers, or hospital wrappers. The diet seemed to be deficient, particularly for the wounded. They were without the extras which their condition required. A new surgeon has just come in charge, and an improvement is already manifest.

I issued to the General Hospital 50 sacks vegetables, 8 bbls. kraut, 24 galls. tomatoes, 48 lbs. milk, 25 pair slippers, 18 lbs. corn starch, 12 lbs. farina, 12 lbs. chocolate, 12 bottles ketchup, 1 bbl. soda crackers.

Besides this, I visited all the wards, giving to the patients tobacco, pipes, combs, towels, needles, thread, &c. These small articles were most gratefully received, and many a blessing was lavished upon the Sanitary Commission.

During the absence of the cavalry on an expedition, the regimental hospitals are mostly broken up. I have visited all that are still maintained, and have supplied them all with needful comforts. I have issued four pounds of vegetables and a quart of kraut to every man at the post, and am now making a second issue. This is besides the quantity sent to the General Hospital.

No provision is made by which men at the General Hospital can draw their clothing. A provision of this kind is very much needed. The call for woolen under-clothing is very great; and I hardly know how to meet it. I have sent considerable of the small stock which I brought to the small-pox hospital, where there are several soldiers entirely destitute.

Twelve barrels of the kraut, shipped on the Navigator, was sent to Port Hudson in care of Post-Surgeon David. The kraut opened in excellent condition, and is the most acceptable issue which could be made to a large portion of the troops.

The per centage of sick among the cavalry is very much larger than among the infantry. Long marches, much exposure and a far greater proportion of accidental injuries, will account for the difference. Acute dysentery in very aggravated forms, is lamentably prevalent. The small-pox is increasing among both soldiers and citizens. About sixty cases are now under treatment.

TESTIMONIALS.

HOSPITAL 6TH U. S. C. I., }
MORGANZIA, LA., Oct. 10, 1864. }

MR. BOLTWOOD:—I take this occasion to acknowledge to you, and through you to the Sanitary Commission, whose agent you are, the receipt of Sanitary supplies, at several times, for the use of sick in my regiment, which have been much needed in the absence of fresh meat and vegetables, the want of which has been severely felt since the Missouri Brigade came into this department.

Scurvy, in addition to the more common diseases of camps, has been alarmingly prevalent. Although much of the health and consequent usefulness of the troops has been lost, with many valuable lives, your timely appropriations of potatoes, onions, pickles, acids, &c, to this regiment, and others, has effectually checked, for the present, the ravages of scurvy, and the number of sick is constantly diminishing by convalescence and recovery.

I take this occasion to present to the Sanitary Commission, through you, one of its many hard-working agents, the expressed, and I doubt not, heartfelt gratitude of the soldiers of this regiment, with the assurance that now and ever they will hold in grateful remembrance the benefactors whose almoner you are. Very respectfully,

JOSIAH JORDAN,

Surgeon 67th U. S. C. I.

HEAD-QUARTERS 62D REG'T U. S. C. I., }
MORGANZIA, LA., Sept. 28, 1864. }

MR. H. L. BOLTWOOD, ESQ.,

Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

SIR:—I take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt, through you and other agents of the Sanitary Commission, at different times during the past summer, of dried and canned fruits, hospital clothing and bedding, cordials and other hospital supplies, which were much needed by the sick of this regiment. The fresh and pickled vegetables I have lately received from you have been of almost incalculable benefit to our men, who are afflicted terribly with scurvy. I know not what I could have done, or how I could have got along without the anti-scorbutics received from you, and I wish to tender my thanks through you to the Commission, and those who sustain it for this timely aid.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant.

CORORTON ALLEN,

Surgeon 62d Regiment U. S. Col'd Infantry.

HEAD-QUARTERS 6TH MICH. HEAVY ART'Y, }
FORT GAINES, ALA., Dec. 12, 1864. }

W. R. MILLER,

Sanitary Agent.

MY DEAR SIR:—Permit me, through you, to acknowledge the many obligations that the 6th Michigan H. A. are under to the Sanitary Commission for the many vegetables and delicacies that you have so kindly furnished them with. Had it not been for the instrumentality of this Commission, I have no doubt that many valuable lives would have been sacrificed, as the health of the regiment, at the time we applied to you for relief, was in such a deplorable condition that they imperatively demanded vegetables and delicacies that could not be obtained through any other source, but were promptly furnished by you. It is indeed a proud satisfaction for the soldier, who has left the comforts and endearments of home, to struggle for the national existence of his country, to know that there are friends at home who are not unmindful of his welfare.

Yours, respectfully,

J. W. MASON,

Assistant Surgeon 6th Michigan H. A.

HEAD-QUARTERS 1ST N. O. VOLS., }
NEW ORLEANS, LA., Oct. 6, 1864. }

DR. GEO. BLAKE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to thank you, and through you the Sanitary Commission, for your very, very generous donation to my regiment of ten sacks of fine onions. I had them divided equally among the companies, and directed that the onions be peeled and sliced, and covered with quick vinegar. The men then are to be allowed a definite quantity with each dinner. If I can be supplied with onions, from time to time, I can guarantee that my men shall be exempt from scurvy.

Again permit me to express my deep obligations to you.

Your obedient servant,

GEO. W. AVERY,

Surgeon 1st N. O. Vols.

FROM LOUISVILLE.

LOUISVILLE, KY., December 20, 1864.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY.

DEAR SIR:—Please find enclosed, my report of delivery of cargo of steamer Navigator, now just returned from New Orleans. The trip has been very fortunate, and aside from the accomplishment of our main object, without unusual incident.

We left Louisville Saturday morning, November 26, arriving at Cairo the next evening. Here we took on special shipments of not large amount, for Memphis and Vicksburg, and also a quantity of stores from Jefferson Co., Iowa, and partly from North-western Commission, destined for Barrancas, Florida. At Memphis, which we reached on Tuesday evening, were left, beside the special shipment from Mr. Shipman, such other supplies as the agents at that place deemed necessary—chiefly kraut and potatoes—and during the night we continued our course, accompanied by Dr. Woodward. To Mr. Allen, Agent of Western Sanitary Commission at Helena, was delivered an amount of vegetables, considered sufficient for an ample issue to all the troops at that post; most of which was delivered to the different regiments while the boat was still lying at the levee. The remainder of the cargo, with the exception of a limited amount discharged at Vicksburg, and the vegetables issued to gun-boats, was delivered to Dr. Blake at New Orleans.

A larger and more general issue was made to the Mississippi squadron than perhaps ever before; some slight compensation for the want of a Thanksgiving dinner, so generally furnished for their brothers in the East, in the same branch of the service.

Twenty-six gun-boats, stationed at the different points between Osceola and the mouth of the Red River, received supplies. Many of them had never received anything from the Sanitary Commission before; some had drawn nothing for months, while those which had drawn more recently, had obtained supplies merely for their sick. Enough was given for the crews of all, regulated in amount by the previous gifts of the Commission, the number on board, and the facilities of the boat for keeping the articles on hand.

The gift was immediately acknowledged in a kind and gentlemanly manner, and a high estimate placed upon the vegetables affecting the general health of the navy.

Very respectfully yours,

WM. A. SUTLIFFE.

FROM THE VALLEY OF THE SHENANDOAH.

SHERIDAN FIELD HOSPITAL, SHAWNEE SPRING, }
WINCHESTER, VA., Dec. 29, 1864. }

DR. J. FOSTER JENKINS,

DEAR SIR:—The last patient of the 4,141 that have been treated here since the 24th of September, has to-day said "farewell" to Shawnee Spring; and the last kind visitor from the glorious society of Unionists in the city, has to-day offered her services to this hospital, which to-morrow will be among "things that were."

It is but justice to your valuable association to return thanks for favors that have been received. The day I came here you personally responded to our requirements as liberally as your supplies would permit. You had the things we needed—things that gave comfort to our patients. Some days after the regular supplies came through the Medical Purveyor's office. Since then your agents have been attentive to similar wants.

Will it be invidious for me to mention the names of some with whom I have had business? Messrs. Nathaniel Seaver, Jr., E. H. Smith, J. V. Hammer, George Knowlton, George Russell and T. J. Corbin, have been earnest and constant in their endeavors to promote the cause of the Commission, and they have justly participated in the blessings invoked by suffering patriots on the Sanitary Commission. The deaths have numbered but 248, and you can believe there would have been more but for the relief promptly given.

But while I speak of your Agency, there is another which comes most vividly to mind. It may not be so well organized, nor so extensive as yours, but it is none the less grand in proportion to its extent. I mean that company of nurses—loyalists of Winchester, who have suffered great losses by the war, yet are sacrificing their personal comforts that they may aid our sick and wounded soldiers. You know Miss G——'s thrilling history. Was it not an honor that almost the last scene in this hospital should be the visit of such a heroine? Miss M—— remarked, when warned against presenting a flag to the hospital, "I'll do it though the rebels kill me when they come."

Would it not be well to publish in your periodical the names of these ladies? If so, here are those most frequently seen in the hospitals:

Miss Harriet H. Griffith, Miss Susan Jolliffe, Miss Ella Brown, Miss Margaret Brown, Miss Lizzie Brown, Miss Flora Sharp, Miss Alice Sharp, Miss Mattie Shumate, Miss Rebecca Shumate, Miss Ann Sidwell, Miss Martha Sidwell, Miss Rebecca Wright, Miss Mary Jackson, Miss Julia Chase, Miss Darlington, Miss Dunlap, Miss Meniman, Miss Lucy T. Meredith, Miss Jennie Meredith, Miss Emma Bonham, Miss Emma Glen, Miss Mary Cochrane, Miss Rebecca Cochrane, Miss Emma Crabbe, Miss Mollie Hackney, Miss Sallie Diffenderfer, Miss Annie Diffenderfer, Miss Amelia Maloy, Miss Rebecca Maloy, Miss Sibel Maloy, Miss Ella B. Ginn, Mrs. John Marvin, Mrs. Catharine Burns, Mrs. Dickinson, Mrs. Joseph Denny, Mrs. Tripp, Mrs. Cooper, Miss Mariannie Griffith, Miss Anna Griffith.

With best wishes for yourself and the Commission,

I am your obedient servant,

HENRY ROOT,

Surgeon 54th N. Y. S. M.

MEMORIAL OF THE GREAT CENTRAL FAIR AT PHILADELPHIA.

A very natural curiosity is felt by all those who hear of the wonderful results of the various Fairs held in aid of the Sanitary Commission to know by what system of organization such extraordinary success is achieved by those in charge of these enterprises. The Fairs themselves form a new era in the annals of benevolence, and their history will always be studied by those who seek to understand one of the most striking characteristics of the American people in this war. The Executive Committee of the Great Central Fair, held in Philadelphia in the month of June last, have thought it important to lay before the public a complete history of the origin, progress and results of that most successful undertaking. They very naturally thought that it was due not merely to the labors of those by whom this success was obtained that such a record should be preserved, but also that it was important as an example to those who may come after us to explain how more than a million of dollars was raised in a few months in aid of the Sanitary Commission. They entrusted the task of preparing such a history to Mr. CHAS. J. STILLE, and it has at length appeared in the shape of a very elegant quarto volume, containing more than two hundred pages. The book, although very beautiful in its mechanical execution, (in this respect indeed being one of the handsomest specimens of American book-making ever issued,) is a very unpretending one. It enters fully into the reasons which induced the managers of the Fair to undertake the enterprise, and explains the system of organization adopted which was so fruitful of good results. As those who had charge of it had the benefit of the experience of other Fairs, they were led to make some changes in the details of the organization of such a project, which the author of the "History" claims, with apparent good reason, were great improvements. The book traces the various modes by which nearly a hundred distinct committees, in charge of the various departments, performed each their share in the common work, and finally succeeded in fusing the scattered lays of patriotic sympathy into a harmonious whole. A deserved tribute is paid to the untiring energy and zeal of the great army of laborers employed in the work. A description of the buildings, whose imposing architectural effect was not the least striking peculiarity of the Fair is given, and a detailed account of each separate department, containing articles for exhibition or sale is added. The various incidents of the Fair have been carefully preserved in this record, and appended to it will be found a financial statement of the result, showing that after November 26, 1864, the net amount realized was $1,010,976 68. A full list of all the committees occupies more than fifty pages of the volume, thus preserving, in a permanent form, the names of all who were the active workers in this great undertaking.

On the whole the "History" is a most fitting commemoration of the occasion. A limited edition only has been printed. Those who desire copies can obtain them by addressing Mr. JAMES K. SIMON, the agent for the sale of the book, No. 33 South Sixth street, and enclosing five dollars.

NEW ORLEANS.

The annexed table, taken by chance, will give the reader some idea of the nature, variety and extent of the relief afforded in the Soldiers' Homes. There are many details necessarily omitted because of want of room; but it will be seen that during eleven months, 10,784 soldiers and sailors, from twenty-three different States, have found a home in the far distant Gulf-city; that of these 2,821 were discharged men who, having no claim upon government, would otherwise have been homeless; that 63,113 lodgings, and 197,562 meals have been given; that 878 sick have been treated in the hospitals of the Home; that 16 have died; and that, at the option of the owners, $104,257 have been kept in the safe, and thus wrested from the clutch of the harpies who rob the soldier and his family of his earnings. It will be noted and remembered that no other organization does, or attempts to do, this most practical Christian work.

The statistics of the whole Special Relief Department are being collected for the purpose of consolidation and aggregation. The necessity of a uniform classification is apparent; and superintendents of Soldiers' Homes, Lodges, Rests, Homes for Nurses, and for Soldiers' Relations, &c., conducted by the U. S. Sanitary Commission, are requested to furnish—if they have not already done so—similar statistics of the work done in the institutions of which they have charge.

CONSOLIDATED REPORT OF U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION'S "SOLDIERS' HOME," AT NEW ORLEANS, L. A.

|            | Arkansas | Conn. ent. | Delaware | Illinois | Indiana | Iowa | Kansas | Kentucky | Louisiana | Maize | Maryland | Mass'etts | Michigan | Missouri | New Hampshire | N. Jersey | New York | Ohio | Penn'va. | Rhode Is-land | Texas | Vermont | Wisconsin | U. S. A. | Invalid Corps | Artigue | Corps d' Marines | Refugees | Whole No. | Hospital. | Died. | Dischar'd. | Paroled | Lodgings | Meals.       | Money de- posited in safe. |
|------------|----------|------------|----------|----------|---------|------|--------|----------|-----------|-------|----------|-----------|----------|----------|---------------|-----------|----------|------|----------|---------------|-------|---------|-----------|----------|---------------|---------|------------------|----------|-----------|-----------|-------|------------|---------|----------|--------------|----------------------------|
| Dec. 1863. | 14       |            |          | 180      | 126     | 79   | 1      | 18       | 6         | 60    | 3        | 87        | 2        | 8        | 27            | 194       | 136      | 5    | 1        | 1             | 43    | 85      | 16        | 1,097    | 181           | 181     | 3                | 2        | 1,097     | 878       | 16    | 181        | 148     | 5,290    | 18,300       | no record.                 |
| Jan. 1864. | 35       |            |          | 181      | 54      | 29   |        | 16       | 13        | 11    | 80       | 7         | 1        | 8        | 2             | 217       | 47       | 1    | 1        | 17            | 14    | *32     | 17        | 31       | 1,797         | 132     | 132              | 6        | 6         | 1,797     | 1     | 132        | 182     | 4,616    | 14,026       | no record.                 |
| February,  | 8        |            |          | 48       | 43      | 39   |        | 16       | 10        | 52    | 48       | 7         | 1        | 8        | 4             | 335       | 47       | 1    | 0        | 24            | 19    | 43      | 16        | 5        | 706           | 152     | 152              | 2        | 2         | 706       | 2     | 152        | 4,098   | 15,255   | $4,660.40   |                            |
| March,     | 26       |            |          | 59       | 33      | 89   |        | 9        | 8         | 29    | 4        | 5         | 0        | 4        | 4             | 369       | 37       | 7    | 0        | 50            | 22    | 26      | 17        | 9        | 851           | 184     | 184              | 7        | 7         | 851       | 74    | 184        | 4,731   | 14,331   | 14,391.00    |                            |
| April,     | 10       |            |          | 88       | 69      | 137  |        | 4        | 10        | 46    | 34       | 0         | 0        | 0        | 16            | 210       | 74       | 7    | 0        | 13            | 31    | 36      | 13        | 5        | 944           | 155     | 155              | 2        | 2         | 944       | 28    | 155        | 5,577   | 11,342   | 27,378.14    |                            |
| May,       | 1        |            |          | 171      | 108     | 53   |        | 6        | 19        | 88    | 2        | 5         | 4        | 4        | 16            | 256       | 94       | 17   | 8        | 17            | 48    | 97      | 11        | 4        | 1,104         | 404     | 404              | 3        | 3         | 1,104     | 83    | 404        | 6,993   | 15,268   | 20,469.00    |                            |
| June,      | 8        |            |          | 96       | 75      | 50   |        | 13       | 13        | 72    | 0        | 11        | 14       | 6        | 18            | 185       | 26       | 8    | 14       | 22            | 41    | 118     | 16        | 4        | 1,016         | 249     | 249              | 1        | 1         | 1,016     | 189   | 249        | 8,713   | 17,293   | 20,396.60    |                            |
| July,      | 10       |            |          | 101      | 71      | 33   |        | 12       | 0         | 65    | 7        | 5         | 1        | 43       | 16            | 185       | 26       | 8    | 14       | 22            | 41    | 118     | 16        | 4        | 914           | 296     | 296              | 189      | 189       | 914       | 189   | 296        | 6,486   | 20,272   | no record.   |                            |
| August,    | 17       |            |          | 42       | 36      | 41   |        | 8        | 45        | 3     | 0        | 0         | 8        | 7        | 8             | 153       | 145      | 3    | 2        | 16            | 70    | 45      | 12        | 23       | 867           | 83      | 83               | 5        | 5         | 867       | 80    | 83         | 6,632   | 17,619   | 3,244.00     |                            |
| September  | 1        |            |          | 134      | 59      | 23   |        | 31       | 7         | 3     | 2        | 18        | 3        | 24       | 1             | 126       | 67       | 16   | 4        | 10            | 65    | 20      | 6         | 6        | 800           | 112     | 112              | 2        | 2         | 800       | 93    | 112        | 6,835   | 17,399   | 3,739.00     |                            |
| October,   | 1        |            |          | 108      | 25      | 7    |        | 1        | 11        | 9     | 4        | 2         | 4        | 53       | 1             | 192       | 136      | 6    | 2        | 38            | 34    | 107     | 6         | 2        | 814           | 121     | 121              | 1        | 1         | 814       | 136   | 121        | 5,753   | 15,879   | 4,069.78     |                            |
| November   | 3        |            |          | 63       | 44      | 4    |        | 52       | 341       | 3     | 0        | 2         | 11       | 5        | 14            | 87        | 118      | 1    | 6        | 5             | 3     | 17      | 3         | 5        | 824           | 90      | 90               | 2        | 2         | 824       | 301   | 90         | 7,306   | 20,408   | 3,278.60     |                            |
| Total      | 1        | 1,06       | 11       | 1,331    | 743     | 614  | 15     | 279      | 461       | 455   | 54       | 520       | 117      | 112      | 229           | 3         | 243      | 961  | 60       | 102           | 24    | 267     | 533       | 578      | 161           | 172     | 22               | 25       | 10,784    | 878       | 16    | 2821       | 63,113  | 197,562  | $104,257.50 |                            |

* Gen. Bank's Band.

† Paroled Prisoners, 54.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CORRESPONDENCE.
 Annapolis, Md., Interesting Letters by Mrs. L. G. Parrish, (A Visit to St. John's College Hospital, Our Prisoners from Savannah)..... 930
 Extract from a Letter by B. T. Phillips, Chaplain U. S. A..... 933
 Army of the Potomac, by J. W. Johnson..... 9-5
 City Point, Va., by T. C. Parrish..... 938
 Washington, D. C., Letter from Nathaniel Seaver, Jr. 939
 Savannah, Ga., Interesting Letter from Georgia, by J. C. Hohlit..... 948
 Louisville, Ky., by William A. Saitliffe..... 952
 Winchester, Va., by Henry Root, Surgeon, U. S. A..... 952

REPORTS.
 From Washington, The Exchange, by L. C. Leggett..... 929
 From Annapolis, Md., by E. C. Gules..... 933
 From Nashville, Tenn., by A. N. Read..... 949
 From Baton Rouge, La., by H. L. Boltwood..... 950

MISCELLANEOUS.
 The Soldier's Funeral Hymn, by Mrs. J. W. Lane... 935
 The Soldier's Friend..... 939
 Three Months in the U. S. San Commission, J. J. B. 940
 Paid and Unpaid Agents, by Rev. J. A. Anderson... 942
 Meeting of Agents—Hon. F. B. Fay..... 938
 Four Day's Work..... 946
 Metropolitan Fair Buildings..... 946
 Women's Central Association of Relief Supplies, No. 4..... 947
 Testimonials..... 951
 Memorial of the Great Central Fair..... 953
 New Orleans..... 954

EDITORIAL.
 The Two Commissions..... 943
 Our Canvassers..... 945
 Our Women..... 945
 Unitarian Tracts..... 945

- 2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.
 3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.
 4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
 A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
 F. L. Olmsted, California.
 George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
 Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
 W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
 Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., Cambridge, Mass.
 S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
 C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
 J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
 Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
 Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
 Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
 Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
 Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
 Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
 J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
 Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
 Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
 A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
 George T. Strong, Treasurer.
 J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
 J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.
 J. H. Douglas, M.D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

- Henry W. Bellows, D.D. George T. Strong.
 Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. Wolcott Gibbs, M.D.
 C. R. Agnew, M.D. Charles J. Stillé.

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regi-

PROTECTIVE
 War-Claim Association

OF THE
 STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
 NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HON. HAMILTON FISK, ADMIRAL DUPONT,
 JOHN J. CISCO, ESQ., RUD. A. WITTHAUS, ESQ
 TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, ESQ.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HONS. E. D. MORGAN,   | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLINGS, D.D., | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to
 HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
 35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

ment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

☞ Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 11 Cooper Union, New York.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.
- Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

EAST.

"Special Relief" Office, 76 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

WEST.

Soldiers' Home, No. 81 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

Soldiers' Home, Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Louisville, Ky., James Malona, Sup't. James Morton, Special Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, New Albany, corner of Main and State Streets.

Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., C. N. Shipman, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Nashville, Tenn., Captain I. Brayton, Sup't. Rev. J. Hoblit, Relief Agent

Soldiers' Home, Columbus, Ohio, Col. Isaac Dalton, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Cleveland, Ohio, Joseph Jerome, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Lodge, near landing, Memphis, Tenn., C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Camp Nelson, Ky., Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Paducah, Ky.

BRANCH,
No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,
No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.
By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec 12, 1863.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept 20 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st Inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, SO FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General.

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices. Address

B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D.,
President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY,

OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y.
HON. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn. E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.
WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York. J. T. SANGER, New York.
JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,

No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILLCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

OFFICE OF THE
M O R R I S
FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE
COMPANY,
COLUMBIAN BUILDING,
CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

---

Authorized Capital, . . . $5,000,000.

Cash Capital, paid in, . . . $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

D I R E C T O R S .

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

F. S. WINSTON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Assets over Eleven and a half Millions of Dollars.

Policies known as "Non-Forfeiting," on the terms they express, on the Ten-Year plan, issued by this Company, possess advantages in profits and rates of premiums, greater than are offered by any other Life Company.

THE

Widows' & Orphans' Benefit Life Ins. Co. of New York.

LUCIUS ROBINSON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

Many of the Trustees and other officers of this Company are connected with the well-known MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, and the intimate and amicable relations between the two Companies, guarantee favorable results to Policy-holders.

Universal Life Insurance Company of New York.

JOHN WADSWORTH, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

This Institution has been formed for the benefit of those who, because of imperfect health, are unable to obtain policies in other companies. It thus meets the case of thousands who have been turned away disappointed in their efforts to provide for their families, and of a still larger number who have felt it useless to apply for insurance.

Every information may be had, on application, by letter or otherwise, to

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
 400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

Insurance against Accident by the

TRAVELERS' INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

CAPITAL, - - - $500,000.

JAMES G. BATTERSON, PRESIDENT.

Insurance effected in this Company against ACCIDENTS of every description.

Yearly Policies will be issued for a Premium of

Fifteen Dollars,

granting Insurance to the amount of

Five Thousand Dollars

against loss of life by any accident whatever.

Twenty-Five Dollars

secures a Policy for

Five Thousand Dollars,

together with $25 per week compensation for personal injury, incapacitating the assured from his ordinary business.

Fifty Dollars Premium

secures a Full Policy for $10,000 and $40 per week compensation for all and every description of Accident.

Policies for $500, with $3 per week compensation, can be had for $3 Premium, or any other sum between $500 and $10,000 at proportionate rates.

WM. W. ALLEN, Agent,

404 WALNUT STREET.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 31.

PHILADELPHIA, FEBRUARY 1, 1865.

No. 31.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 14,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

WOMEN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

QUARTERLY SESSION OF THE SANITARY COMMISSION IN WASHINGTON.—NO. V.

For the past month, from December 15, to January 15, we have to report as follows: Number of packages received, 331. Distributed to Annapolis, 16 packages; Washington, 40 packages; Harper's Ferry, 2 packages; Norfolk, Va., 38 packages; Bermuda Hundred, 1 package; Beaufort, S. C., 51 packages; Savannah, 6 packages; Hospitals in and near New York, 17 packages; Hospital transports, 14 packages; steamers in Mobile Bay and elsewhere, 9 packages.

All kinds of hospital supplies, excepting lint, are needed; but more especially flannel clothing, bed quilts, socks and mittens.

During the past week we had the privilege of being present at the Quarterly Session of the Board of Commissioners in Washington. Besides the daily meeting of the Standing Committee in New York, and the fortnightly meeting of the members from Boston, Philadelphia and New York, a session of the whole Board is held every three months in Washington, usually lasting about a week. At these meetings reports are received from agents in every part of the field, representing every department of the work. These are discussed and passed upon. The plan of work for the future is also determined upon. There were present at the January session, last week, beside Commissioners from both Eastern and Western States, the officers of the Commission, several Associate Members and representatives from two of the Eastern Branches. As has been repeated again and again, the policy which has guided us all through our work has been, and is, to give you the fullest information as to the conduct of our own work, and the work of the Commission. It was to enable us to do this more satisfactorily, that we asked and readily obtained permission to be present at this session of the Board.

How shall we begin to condense these twenty-three pages of notes which we have brought away with us? How can we give you an idea of the magnitude of the work as it was forced upon us, weighted with the mighty power of concentration? How make you understand in ten minutes, what we could not comprehend in as many hours? It seems hopeless, and yet we want to try and give you some of the impressions we have brought home with us.

The extent of the work and the character of the agents now in the service of the Commission remain among the most prominent of these impressions.

Thousands of miles were traveled over in those few hours. Wherever the Sanitary Commission went, we went, and the Sanitary Commission went everywhere. We were driving wagon-loads of hospital supplies on to the battle-field—any battle-field—every battle-field. We were binding up wounds; we were feeding the hungry and clothing the naked. Or it was a night spent at the Home in Washington, or Cincinnati, or Nashville, or New Orleans, and we were watching those weary eyes light up in that bright, cheerful room, watching the smile upon the pale, thin face at this foretaste of home-comfort. Now, we were standing in a garden with its long, neat rows of cabbages and onions and potatoes. Again we were marching through a rich and fertile country, with a mighty host, and at the end of our journey, raising a sick boy for his first sight of that grand, deep-blue ocean. We were collecting the back pay for a disabled soldier waiting to go home. We carried the first instalment of pension money to a poor widow. We were reading a funeral service in the wilderness by the side of an open grave. We were on ship-board, lifting down cabin stairs, and caring as best we might, for those brave men who went from us strong and well to be returned the victims of systematic and fiendish cruelty. We were writing to a mother, anxious about an only son, telling her that he was safe, that he was recovering, that he should want for nothing. We were building chapels and reading rooms. We were putting Bibles and Prayer-books into some hands; picture and story-books into others. We were watching by the bedside, and praying with a dying man. We were merry over a game of checkers with a little drummer boy, whose happy face was a bright spot in that hospital ward. We were reading a letter, a half-sheet of coarse, yellow paper, merely a pencil scrawl, dated Florence, S. C., "Would the Sanitary Commission send food and clothing and blankets, for we have nothing to cover us."

We will not take you further on this terrible journey, for with all that we can do to alleviate suffering, the horrors of war must still remain uppermost, when one comes in contact with them. We do not wish to take you into battle and pestilence, and through the many scenes which we hope may ever remain among the untold, but will bring you at last to the end of our journey. It was a bright picture and pleasant ending to be brought back into one of your own cheerful, happy sewing circles, and there we will rest, for that is our home.

Does this faint outline give you any idea of the extent of the work of the Commission? Hardly, we are well aware. In fact, many of the departments of the work have not been touched upon at all. And yet we hope it may have brought the relief work somewhat nearer to you.

We spoke of having been impressed by the character of the Relief Agents of the Commission, as made known to us by personal observation, and through their written reports. This visit to Washington only confirmed the impression of previous visits among the Homes and Lodges of the Commission there, bearing new testimony as to the fitness, the reliability, the humanity and tenderness of those persons in charge of these different resting-places for our soldiers. The same impression was derived from the reports we heard read. They were evidently written by earnest, hard-working men, men whose hearts were in their work. They were not only detailed, business-like reports of what had been accomplished, but they contained suggestions for improvement, and requests to be allowed to do more—those unmistakable signs of life and sincerity. We should feel ashamed of any want of confidence in these men. Be assured that we may not only trust them, but be grateful that our gifts to our soldiers are rendered doubly precious from being received through such faithful loving hands.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER,

Chairman Committee on Correspondence, &c.,
New York, Jan. 16, 1865.

BEDDING FOR HOSPITAL USE.

Bedsack of burlap or ticking, 2 yards and 12 inches long; 40 inches wide. Sew all round. Cut opening in middle 27 inches long; close with three [3] buttons; put a stay at each end of opening and one under each button. Required, 3 knots linen thread.

Pillow Sacks of ticking or crash; 16 inches wide, 30 inches long. Leave opening in middle of one end. Close with 2 buttons.

Sheets. Linen and cotton. 8 feet long. 4 feet wide. Required, one-half skein of cotton or one-twelfth part of a hank.

Pillow Cases of cotton or linen.  $\frac{1}{2}$  yard wide. 1 yard long.

Quilts. 7 feet long. 50 inches wide.
Blankets for single beds.

CUSHIONS FOR WOUNDED LIMBS.

Square Cushions from 8 to 24 inches square.

Ring Cushions to be made in the form of a ring from 8 inches to 24 inches in diameter.

The best covering is enamel cloth, but any material may be used. In stuffing, avoid anything heating. Any of the following articles may be used: hair, excelsior, tow, carpet ravelings, shreds of husk, straw or hay.

Hop Cushions covered with any cheap material, 8 to 24 inches square.

Bandages of old cloth, strong enough to bear a firm steady pull. All selvages and seams should be torn off. In piecing lap one edge well over the other, without turnings, and sew firmly close to each edge. Be sure the pieces are exactly the same width. Roll very tight and even (bandage machines are cheap and very desirable). Mark the length on outer edge and fasten with two small pins. The most useful are from 2½ to 3½ inches wide and from 5 to 8 yards long. The roll must never be never be too large to be held easily in one hand.

Old Linen and Cotton pieces, no matter how small, tied in bundles and marked on the outside. Tear off all selvages and seams.

Lint may be made in various ways.

1. Of linen ravelings of any length thrown together without order.

2. Of linen ravelings from 4 to 8 inches long laid in order, but not tied.

3. Of scraped linen.

4. Of balsam.

The different kinds must be separated, and never packed in newspapers.

Towels of crash or strong cloth, seven-eighths of a yard long.

Handkerchiefs of any soft material. Large size.

DIRECTIONS FOR HOSPITAL CLOTHING.

DIRECTIONS FOR KNITTING SOCKS.

1 lb. yarn knits three pair socks.

Use No. 13 needles, and three-threaded yarn.

For small sock, set up 65 stitches—foot 10 inches long.

For medium sock, set up 70 stitches—foot 11 inches long.

For very large sock, set up 75 stitches—foot 12 inches long.

Leg.—Cast on stitches. Rib 3½ inches.

Knit plain 6½ inches, keeping one stitch seam.

Heel.—Take half the stitches on one needle for the back of heel. Knit three inches, seaming every other row. Then turn the heel thus: Knit three-quarters of your stitches, and slip and bind the first stitch of the last quarter. Turn and seam back, repeating the same on first stitch of the quarter at the other end, and so on, back and forward, till the two end quarters are used up.

Instep.—Divide the remaining stitches on two needles, and pick up on each needle the stitches on that side of the heel. With these and the stitches on the instep needle begin the foot. Narrow at the last stitch but two on the side needles, near the instep needle. Do this every other round until you have reduced the number of stitches on each heel needle to half that on instep needle.

Foot.—Knit on plain till your foot is the right length, allowing 2½ inches for the toe.

Toe.—Knit one round, narrowing every seventh stitch. Then knit six rows plain. Knit one round narrowing every sixth stitch. Five rows plain, and so on till you narrow every other stitch. Cast off.

Run heels and toes.

To avoid running, and make heel double, follow directions for heel as above; but on seam needle, slip every other stitch.

DIRECTIONS FOR KNITTING MITTENS.

(With one Finger and Thumb.)

Cast on 76 stitches.

Rib 2 inches.

Knit 1 inch plain.

Make 1 stitch in the middle of needle.

Knit 2 rounds plain. Make 1 stitch (in 3d round) on each side of the new stitch. Proceed in this way, making 1 new stitch on each side of the other new ones, in every third round, till there are 21. Take off these 21 new stitches on a thread. Knit the rest of the stitches, making 4 additional ones on the first round where the separation for the thumb occurs, thus making 80 stitches in the hand. Knit a little more than an inch plain. Take off 24 stitches on a thread to form the first finger, and joining the rest together, knit round and round 2½ inches more; narrow every 5th stitch. Knit 5 rows; narrow every 4th stitch. Knit 4 rows and so on.

For finger, take up the 24 stitches. Knit plain  $2\frac{1}{2}$  inches; narrow every 3d stitch. Knit 3 rows, &c.

For thumb, take up the 21 stitches and the 4 new ones in front of the thumb, thus making 25 in all. Knit  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches; narrow every 3d stitch. Knit 3 rows, &c., as in finger.

ANOTHER KIND OF MITTEN.

Mitten—Right Hand.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING MITTEN.

It may be made of any strong woolen material. The diagram shows the outside, the inside is the same, without the hole for the thumb.

The mitten is whole on the side next the thumb; if the cloth is not large enough this is not necessary. It is to be stitched round and hemmed at the bottom.

The thumb is to be stitched and sewed into the hole. An elastic braid draws up the inside at wrist.

WRISTERS—(KNIT.)

Wristers.—Use four needles. Rib, like the leg of a sock, about 6 inches, setting up enough stitches to slip well over a man's hand. Then begin to make hole for thumb by knitting backwards and forwards on needles for 2 inches. Then knit round and round again for about 3 inches. Cast off.

HOME, DUTY, WIFE AND SANITARY!

EXTRACT FROM REPORT OF AN AGENT, AT CITY POINT.

I have the honor to report that after a brief but very pleasant visit home, I am prepared again to labor in the cause I deem so worthy. It was somewhat trying to leave home this time. The little social circles are gathered round the hearths and the long winter evenings are crowded full of happiness. All the summer I looked forward to a winter of rest and quiet enjoyment at home. These considerations and the remonstrances of friends made the parting reluctant, but I could not yield and remain away, and know that there was a privilege still open to me, a creditable task that I might do.

I do not wish sir, in extolling the cause, to evince a selfish pride. I am only anxious that you should know that I appreciate the work in which we are engaged, and that every atom of heart is enlisted in its behalf.

On the mail boat I got into conversation with a civilian, evidently "well to do in the world," and "rather set in his ways." Without solicitation, he spoke as follows:

"The Sanitary is doing a great work. The people North don't know it. They don't appreciate its magnitude or the thorough manner in which it is done. I am a Boston grocer. I used to be decidedly opposed to the Sanitary Commission. Thought it was a money-making concern. Wife often wanted to contribute, but I always said 'No!' and put my foot down heavily if urged.

"I came up from the store one day. There was an appeal in the papers. Wife said 'John, I want to send something to the Sanitary rooms for the soldiers,' but I said emphatically several times, 'You shall not send a thing.' She persevered, saying, 'Suppose George,' (I had a brother-in-law in the service then) 'Suppose George is sick. Wouldn't you like to send him something nice?' I grew emphatic, and hammered the table some and said, 'He'd never get it if it were sent.' She took a newspaper and held it before her face, I never knew whether she laughed or cried, but two hours later I met her coming out of the Sanitary rooms, whither she had just taken some goods.

"I was unconverted till Gettysburg. I was with the army there. I saw the Commission work. Sir, they saved thousands of lives. I could not disbelieve my own eyes. I was at Fredricksburg when the town was filled with mangled humanity, and the authorities could not do much. It was the same there. No task was too arduous or loathsome for the agents to do.

"When I got home I said, 'If you have anything to give, give it to the Sanitary, it is doing the right thing. Don't be afraid,' and now I feel in duty bound to do and say all I can for your cause."

I have dwelt upon this gentleman's testimony longer perhaps than is necessary, but I cannot let it pass without alluding to a fact upon which it bears. The people, the supporters of this beneficence, should know more of its workings, should be familiarized with its individual results.

THE WORK OF A GREAT PEOPLE.

A pamphlet with the above title, having reference to the operations of the Sanitary Commission, has recently been issued in Paris. It is distinguished throughout by a very liberal spirit towards this country, and evinces a familiarity with affairs in the United States, which is certainly remarkable in a foreigner. Its perusal must, we think, afford sincere gratification, not merely to those who are directly interested in the reputation of the Sanitary Commission, but to all who feel a pride in the true glory of the country. We make the following extracts.

A remarkable fact proved by the statistics of different armies, is not so generally known as it should be; it is that DURING A CAMPAIGN, AT LEAST THREE TIMES AS MANY SOLDIERS DIE OF DISEASE, AND FROM A WANT OF THE PROPER CARE WITH RESPECT TO THE WOUNDED, AS ARE KILLED BY THE ENEMY. Such a condition of things demands our most serious attention, that it may be remedied as far as possible.

The statistics of the medical corps of the English army, establish the fact that, during the war in the Crimea, while the mortality resulting from wounds was only three per cent. of the whole number, that produced by disease amounted to more than twenty per cent.

In the war of 1846 between the United States and Mexico, the difference in the American army was still more considerable, for scarcely fourteen in a thousand died of wounds, while about one hundred and three in a thousand fell victims to disease, intemperance, &c.

During a military campaign, it is almost impossible for the medical corps to give much attention to purely sanitary measures, all their time and attention being required in taking care of the sick and wounded. Moreover their duty is prescribed to them according to strict military rules, in which, for the most part, everything which looks like innovation is studiously avoided.

The experience of all nations proves that the proper application of sanitary science to armies in a state of war, is yet to be learned. Whatever can throw light upon so important a subject, be its source what it may, must contribute to the general interests of humanity.

We propose, in the following pages to show what the Americans have done, during the war which for three years has desolated their country, towards solving this important problem. The energy and eminently practical sense of that people have led them to move of their own accord in this enterprise, without waiting for the assistance or co-operation of the government. The women and even the children of the republic have been employed in promoting the comfort of the soldiers during the campaign, and their numerous agents have proved by their example that voluntary assistance and practical advice may be given to the medical corps of an army, without interfering with military discipline, and yet essentially promoting the comfort and welfare of the troops. The results obtained afford a signal confirmation of the noble words of M. Henry Munant: "The personel of military moving hospitals is always insufficient, everywhere in all wars, in every age and in every army." The military annals of all nations confirm this melancholy truth, and what is yet more sad, however generous and persevering may be the efforts made by the Government to extend or improve the regularly provided means for succoring the sick and wounded, a satisfactory result cannot thus be reached.

THE PROJECT OF A SANITARY COMMISSION IN THE UNITED STATES.

Let us now turn our eyes to the distant land of America; towards those battle-fields moistened with the blood of thousands of soldiers—of fathers, brothers, husbands. No war in ancient or modern times has appeared to us so horrible as the one which now rends that unhappy country. For three years past it has seemed each successive day to increase in severity. Every succeeding day America is the scene of fresh horrors, in relating which the writers of Europe seem to vie with each other as to which shall exhibit the greatest power of tragic description. In the proclamations of sovereigns, in the discussions of legislative assemblies, in the public journals, everywhere, in short, all are agreed in deploring the length and obstinacy of this fratricidal conflict. Accustomed to look at the question only from this point of view, the people of Europe are firmly convinced that the history of this war can be nothing more than a monotonous recital of massacres, of ruin and despair, without one ray of beneficence or humanity to soften the darkness of the picture.

Is it not strange that when the evil side of this question is so thoroughly understood the good alone should remain entirely concealed? Yet in the midst of the deluge of blood and fire in which America is now plunged, she has been able to give a form—as yet imperfect perhaps, but practical—to that which was elsewhere nothing more than an aspiration. In the midst of this vast desolation, the inevitable result of such a war, generous hearts have been moved while beholding the sufferings of the combatants, and compassionate women and noble men have accomplished a work which Europe had as yet only contemplated.

It is not our purpose to discuss here either the motives or the object of the civil war which broke out in the United States on the bombardment of Fort Sumter. The subject with which we propose to occupy these pages, is the work of beneficence and philanthropy commenced and established by the women of the United States, on so vast a scale and with so much success. We would, if possible, by setting forth their intentions, their plans, and the results at which they have arrived, induce the people of other nations to follow their example—to form similar organizations in anticipation of similar results. This field of labor is a neutral territory, where persons of all parties may meet together. Political or national distinctions have nothing to do with this great question. It is impossible (which ever side of the American contest we may be inclined to espouse,) not to feel the highest admiration for the courage with which these women have surmounted all the obstacles that one must necessarily encounter in such an enterprise, and not to wish them success in their noble work of humanity and beneficence.—L'Œuvre d'un Grand Peuple, par J. N. P., Paris, 1864.

In future numbers of the BULLETIN other extracts from this admirable pamphlet will appear, so that our readers will see how the Sanitary Commission is esteemed in France.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORT ON THE OPERATIONS OF THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION IN THE VALLEY OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

For the Quarter ending September 30, 1864. By Dr. J. S. Newberry, Secretary Western Department.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., October 22, 1864.

DR. J. FOSBERG JENKINS,

General Secretary Sanitary Commission :

DEAR SIR:—I herewith submit detailed Reports of the different departments of our work for the three months ending September 30, which will, I trust, give full and clear information of what has been accomplished, and how it has been done, in all parts of the field under my supervision.

These reports I will preface by a general summary, presenting in a condensed view all the information derived from this and other sources, which will be of interest, and have a practical bearing on the administration of the Commission.

You are so well informed from my weekly reports, and from the public journals, in regard to the progress of military events in this department, that no detailed history of them will now be necessary or proper at my hands.

Suffice it to say that our attention, as well as that of the public, has been in a large degree centered in that great move on the military chess-board, the advance of Sherman's army into the heart of Georgia, and the succession of battles and victories culminating in the capture of Atlanta. Most of the events connected with that campaign occurred in a previous quarter, and, so far as they had a bearing on our work, have been reported to you.

Although to a greater or less degree embarrassed by the interruption of communication with the front, and by the want of transportation, which we shared with every branch of the service, up to the time of the capture of Atlanta we were able to keep with the army so large a working force, provided with so generous a supply of stores, that we were at all times prepared to furnish to those needing it such an amount of material and manual aid as to considerably soften the hardships of an arduous campaign, and fully sustain the reputation and responsibilities of the Commission.

The number of our agents paralyzed or removed by sickness rendered it necessary to send so large reinforcements to the field, that our corps presented a more formidable array of names than ever before; compelling us to draw more largely on our privileges of passes and transportation than has ever before been necessary. In addition to this, a host of civilians, representing other benevolent organizations, or pursuing individual aims of a philanthropic or mercenary nature, reckoned themselves, or were reckoned by the military authorities—who, since the recall of Gen. Rosecrans, have never been careful to discriminate between the good and bad, the true and the false—in the category of "sanitary agents," of whom, at one time, eighty per week were receiving passes and transportation from Chattanooga to the front. Impelled by a desire to abate this clear and formidable abuse, a step rendered necessary by the difficulties surrounding the transportation of supplies to the army, Gen. Sherman issued a peremptory order prohibiting, with a few rare exceptions, the access of all civilians to the forces at the front, and limiting the number of our agents in the field. Under this order we were permitted to keep but two resident agents at Atlanta—a smaller number than was desirable to sustain all the departments of our work, and yet, with the detailed help and other facilities cheerfully furnished us, sufficient to prevent serious embarrassment. The interests of the Commission with Sherman's army, and all along the line of communication with that army, are now in the hands of our most experienced and efficient agents, all important absentees having returned to duty; and I have entire confidence that we shall enjoy in the future, as we have done for three years past, all facilities and privileges necessary for the thorough performance of our work.

Dr. Reed having recovered from the serious illness which compelled him to withdraw, has returned to take the supervision of the field work in Gen. Sherman's army. We may be sure that, guided by his wisdom, it will not languish or be badly done.

At Chattanooga, the agency is again under the care of M. C. Read, who, with Mr. Hosford, has recently returned from sick furlough. The absence of both these gentlemen has been seriously felt, and I congratulate myself that they are again at their posts, in the enjoyment of full physical vigor, and the exercise of the rare faculties which they possess.

The garden at Chattanooga, under the management of Mr. Wills, has more than accomplished our anticipations of its usefulness. The entire issues from it during the season to October 1, have been 10,023 bushels of potatoes, tomatoes, beans, &c., and 1,784 dozens of corn, melons, squashes, cabbages, with a large store of fall crops still remaining.

At Knoxville we have suffered serious loss in the death of Mr. J. H. Milliken, a most estimable and efficient man, who had the superintendency of the agency after the departure of Dr. Seymour. His place has since been filled by Mr. T. Y. Gardener, who is no less worthy of our respect and esteem. The hospital garden, in charge of Mr. Culbertson, although less extensive than at Chattanooga, has played a no less important part in the supply of the hospitals there. During the month of September, Mr. Culbertson distributed from the garden 277 bushels of tomatoes, 264 bushels of beans, 6,847 dozen cucumbers (mostly pickles), 1,929 heads of cabbage, &c.

The "feeding stations" at Kingston, Dalton, Decherd, &c., have formed a most important, indeed, indispensable portion of our work, during the last quarter. Under the general supervision of Mr. Eno, and individually managed by Mr. Brundrett, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Sutcliffe, and Dr. Hillman, they have supplied food, and all needed care, to nearly every sick or wounded man transported from the front to the rear, extending their benefits to many thousands, and performing a service of incalculable value.

The agency at Nashville has continued under the supervision of Judge Root, and has been most wisely conducted, and highly prosperous. With its business offices, its warehouse, its Soldiers' Home, and agents' quarters, each occupying a distinct building, the Sanitary Commission at Nashville is a very conspicuous and noticeable institution, yet I am sure uses to excellent purpose the wide space which it covers. Indeed, the work it is accomplishing has already outgrown its accommodations.

The "Soldiers' Home," under the efficient management of Capt. Brayton, has become an institution so popular as to be constantly filled to overflowing, and has proved so inadequate in capacity to the demand upon it, that the military authorities have promised to give us, in exchange for the building now occupied, one of the largest hospital buildings in the city.

At Louisville no changes have occurred in our work or our corps of agents requiring special mention. Each department is moving on smoothly, and, as you will see from the accompanying detailed reports, with steadily increasing importance.

The Home has never accommodated near so many as within the past three months, having been daily crowded to its utmost capacity. And such has been the throng of furloughed and discharged men passing through the city, that the necessity has been laid upon us for the establishment of a similar institution on the opposite side of the river, of which mention will be made in the notice of the department of Special Relief. The warehouse has never been so much crowded with stores as of late, nor the amount of goods received and shipped daily near so large.

The condition of the HOSPITAL DIRECTORY will be learned from the accompanying report of its Superintendent, and I will only say in regard to it that the value of its register, now so immense, is receiving constant and increasing illustration. Reports from all the hospitals in this department come in with regularity, and I have reason to believe that the great importance of this branch of our work is now fully recognized as well by the military and medical authorities as by the people.

The demand for the REPORTER has been gradually increasing, and we are now compelled to print an edition of about 7,500 copies. We have satisfactory evidence that we are far more than compensated for the expenditure by the influence it exerts, in spreading a knowledge of, and fostering an interest in, our work.

The Pension Agency, as you are aware, but recently established here, has been rapidly gaining in importance, and has already secured the presentation and acceptance of the claims of very many deserving persons, too ignorant or too poor to prosecute them without its assistance.

DISTRICT OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

The work of the Commission on the Mississippi, so greatly reduced by the withdrawal of the Army of the Tennessee, has of late claimed more of our attention, from the activity of military movements in that quarter. The agencies of the Commission at Cairo, Memphis, and Vicksburg, have been constantly maintained, it is true, and the first of these has grown rather than diminished in importance, but the garrisons of the posts along the river have been comparatively small, requiring only a limited amount of assistance from us; and the army in Arkansas, mostly composed of troops from the Department of the Gulf, has been considered still within the sanitary jurisdiction of Dr. Blake, of New Orleans, and has been followed by his representatives, who have, as a general rule, looked to him for supplies.

The prevalence of a scorbutic taint in this army has, however, created a demand for such a quantity, and such kinds of stores, as could not be readily supplied from the Atlantic States. In these circumstances, Dr. Blake appealed to me for vegetables, and other anti-scorbutics, and in answer to this, the Dunleith was fully freighted and sent down the Mississippi, delivering half her cargo at New Orleans, distributing the other half at way stations along the route. This shipment was most timely, and was welcomed with enthusiasm by Dr. Blake and the military authorities. As, however, it furnished but a temporary relief from the wants it was intended to meet, it has seemed to me necessary to forward further supplies by the same means, and the Dunleith has been reloaded and again despatched on the same route. It is scarcely possible that the troops on the lower Mississippi and its tributaries can receive an adequate supply of anti-scorbutics from any other source than the Western States; and should the difficulties now existing of procuring adequate transportation through the Quartermaster's Department continue, it may be desirable to make further shipments by steamers chartered for that purpose.

The business of the agency at Cairo, as I have intimated, has of late been greater than ever, and I cannot speak too highly of the zeal and wisdom with which it has been managed by Mr. Shipman. The Home at this point has been for weeks and months past, literally inundated with the tide of soldiers that has flowed through it, and there are few who see the crowds fed and sheltered there that fail to ask themselves what would be the fate of these poor fellows were no such asylum provided for them.

In compliance with the request of the Medical Director, Dr. D. W. K. Danforth, approved by Lieut. Colonel Allen, Medical Inspector, I have recently established a "Home" at Paducah, under the supervision of Mr. Edward D. Way. A commodious building, and all other needed facilities, have been provided by the military authorities, and I have reason to believe that the "Home" at this point, though not large, will be complete in its appointments, well managed and a great blessing to those who may become inmates of it.

DISTRICT OF KANSAS.

During the past quarter, our work in Kansas has been thoroughly reorganized, and freed from some incumbrances by which it was formerly somewhat clogged. Our efficient agent there, Mr. J. R. Brown, embraced in his wide-spread sympathy every object of compassion or charity in any way consequent upon the war, so that the refugees and contrabands, as well as the sick and wounded of our soldiery, found in him a most earnest and devoted friend.

So untiring and successful was he in his efforts, that he became recognized by both the people and the military authorities as the great, if not the sole, medium through which all cases of want and suffering were to be relieved. As a natural consequence, he found himself rapidly involved in duties and responsibilities which made drafts on his strength and resources he was utterly unable to meet. After struggling bravely with accumulating difficulties, finally overburdened and discouraged, he applied to me for counsel and assistance. At my suggestion he accompanied me to New York, and presented the claims of the refugees to the officers of the societies formed for their care. As I hoped, his appeal was answered at once, and such provisions made for the support of both white and black refugees, that Mr. Brown has relieved himself of all but a general supervision of their interests, and has thus been able to give a more undivided attention to our work. The present invasion of Missouri, and threatened invasion of Kansas, have given great activity to military operations in this quarter, and I have authorized Mr. Brown to employ additional assistance, if necessary, to meet the increased demand upon him.

WEST VIRGINIA.

The concentration of troops in the Valley of the Shenandoah has withdrawn from Western Virginia the larger portion of those for whose care we have been in some degree responsible. Our work has therefore materially decreased in this district, and I have directed Mr. Fracker to break up the agency at Marietta and transfer his stores to Wheeling; trusting to be able to meet the demands arising in this district from that one station. All parts of this field have been recently inspected by Dr. Parker, and the change I have designated has been made in accordance with his recommendation.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

A marked change has taken place in our work in this department since the beginning of the war. Then everything was needed, of diet, clothing, or medicine, by well men or sick, that we could furnish. Now, the number and variety of cases of disease in the veteran regiments is comparatively small. The heads of the hydra which formerly devoured at such a fearful rate our newly-recruited forces, have been by various influences scotched, until but two formidable ones remain—scurvy and chronic diarrhoea.

The resources and methods of the Medical Department have been so far improved, and its officers are now so thoroughly trained in their duties, that comparatively little is needed from us of clothing, medicine and delicacies, of which we formerly supplied such large quantities.

Our efforts, therefore, of late, have been mainly directed to the supply of the universal and pressing demand for vegetables and other anti-scorbutics, which are not, and cannot be, furnished in sufficient quantities through the regular channel.

During the year past, the quantity of potatoes, onions and cabbages, fresh and canned tomatoes, kraut, pickles, dried apples, &c., which we have forwarded to the army, has been, as you will see by our tabulated reports, unprecedentedly large. To procure these, our friends all over the Northern States have been actively engaged, and our agents have not only visited all our own markets, but also those of Canada.

The season for the production and distribution of these articles had, at the 1st of October, but just commenced; but our shipments of onions, for example, had, up to that time and since the last report, exceeded twenty thousand bushels.

In addition to the supplies just enumerated, soft crackers and codfish, not furnished in any considerable quantities by the Commissary Department, have formed an important part of our shipments. Of stimulants, since they are freely supplied through the regular channel, and are, of all stores, most liable to misappropriation, we have forwarded as few as possible. Concentrated beef and concentrated milk have been in such constant demand, and are articles so generally and decidedly useful, that we have been in the past, and shall be in the future, compelled to make them prominent items in our supply table.

From the statements I have made, it will be seen that we have now relieved ourselves from the most fruitful cause of anxiety and reproach in the administration of our Supply Department; and any one who will examine the invoices of our shipments to the army will soon discover that canned fruits, wines, and other domestic delicacies, in regard to the use of which our contributors have had so much concern, form a very insignificant part of them; and we may hereafter effectually silence the criticisms of those who question the purity of our work in this department, by the assertion that scarcely one per cent. of our stores are such as are susceptible of misappropriation or unworthy use.

In the transportation of supplies, we have had no other difficulties than such as were incident to the interruption of communication with the front, and the crowded state of the road when open. On the contrary, we have enjoyed every facility which we could ask at all points, and from the officers in every branch of the service. The recent break in the road has occasioned the accumulation of twelve car loads of onions at Chattanooga and six at Nashville, all of which were intended for Atlanta. But since there is now a large force on this side of Tunnel Hill, where the break begins, there is ample demand for all we have to issue.

On the Mississippi, the interruption of trade has so far diminished the opportunities for shipment, that it has been necessary, as I have before stated, to charter a steamer for the supply of our stations in that district. As soon as adequate transportation can be otherwise procured, this source of expenditure will, of course, be removed.

In our constituency of the Home Field a cordial and harmonious spirit of co-operation prevails. Where large funds have been collected by Sanitary Fairs, a disposition has been manifested to rest upon the unusual exertion made in connection with them; there has been a relaxation in the efforts to collect supplies, and, as a consequence, a diminution in the quantity received. In every field, however, the produce has been precisely proportionate to the thoroughness of the tillage, and there is scarcely a portion of the country from which we derive stores that could not be made doubly productive by a more vigorous and systematic canvass.

DEPARTMENT OF SPECIAL RELIEF.

Our work in this department has so far increased as to be inferior to no other in magnitude and importance, and there scarcely seems to be a limit to the work of mercy which may be done by the different offices and institutions which it includes. The number of "Soldiers' Homes" under the superintendence of the Sanitary Commission in this department was, at the date of my last report, eleven, namely, those at Nashville, Louisville, Camp Nelson, Memphis, Cairo, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Buffalo, and New Albany. To these I have recently added one at Paducah, and another at Jeffersonville, Indiana. In the accompanying report will be found an enumeration of the lodgings and meals furnished to the inmates of these homes, during the past quarter, forming an aggregate of 111,748 lodgings, and 322,881 meals. While these large numbers will impress any one with the magnitude of the work accomplished by the "Homes," they form but an imperfect exponent of the many and varied good offices which they perform to the objects of their charities. I must refer you to the detailed reports from their superintendents for a fair presentation of a subject to which space will not now permit me to do anything like justice.

HOSPITAL TRAINS.

The transportation of sick and wounded, at one time a conspicuous portion of our work and expenditure, has now become so far self-sustaining as to require little intervention on our part. The hospital trains organized by the Sanitary Commission, and for eighteen months manned and sustained by it, were turned over to the medical authorities as soon as they were willing to accept the responsibility; and the major part of the expense attending the fitting up of the numerous and complete hospital cars on the road has been borne by the Government, although the contributions made by the Sanitary Commission have, in the aggregate, amounted to some thousands of dollars.

In the transfer of the care of the sick to the Government, Dr. Barnum, who was in our service, was employed by the Medical Department, and he has since been given the supervision of the whole matter of the transportation of the sick and wounded to the rear, and the superintendence of all the trains upon the road. By his wisdom and energy, the work has been so far systematized as to form one of the best ordered branches of the medical service in this department.

To enable Dr. Barnum to accomplish his purposes fully, he has been authorized to draw freely upon the resources of the Commission, and a small number of his assistants continue to be paid from its funds.

HOSPITAL VISITORS.

The duty performed by the Hospital Visitors continues to hold the high place in my respect which I have heretofore given it, and my only regret, in this connection, is that the number of devoted and faithful men engaged in it cannot be largely increased. The reports of several of the Hospital Visitors are herewith submitted, and from them you may judge whether I overestimate their value. The Commission has sustained a serious loss in the resignation of Rev. J. P. T. Ingraham, for the year past our Hospital Visitor at Nashville. Greatly to the regret of all with whom he has been associated, he has felt compelled to return to his pastoral duties.

In this connection I ought to refer to two sources of expenditure which properly belong to the Department of Special Relief; of these, the first to which I refer is the pre-payment of postage on soldiers' letters, retained in the offices of Chattanooga, Nashville and Louisville. The number of letters, mostly kind words from home, thus made to reach their destination, is something like 16,000 per month, forwarded at a cost of about $800. I cannot but think that the present arrangement, useful as it is, should be but temporary, and that if this great and richly deserved blessing cannot be secured to the soldier through the Post Office Department, the subject should receive the attention of Congress at the commencement of the next session.

Yours, respectfully,

J. S. NEWBERRY.

A—FINANCES.

The cash expenditures of this department have been almost entirely made from funds collected in the East and in the far West. The contributions made to the Sanitary Commission by the loyal States of the Mississippi Valley have equalled, both in gross amount and in proportion to the population, those derived from any and all other portions of the Union; but they have been for obvious reasons, mostly made in kind, and not in cash. The great West is still comparatively poor in money, but rich in the vast though unconverted capital of her fertile plains and exhaustless mines, and richer still in the conspicuous patriotism of her warm-hearted people. That which she has had—the fruits of the field, the treasures of the earth, the products of the loom and anvil—she has given without measure.

The East, richer in capital, has given most freely of that; while the extreme West, too distant to send her less valuable products, has made her contributions in silver and gold.

Thus it happens, that the cash expended through my hands has been drawn directly from the treasury of the Commission in New York, while the contributions of the Western States, as they have reached me, have been altogether in stores; the cash collected by cities, towns, and villages for the Sanitary Commission, by fairs or otherwise, having been kept by each, for such things as could be better bought at such points than elsewhere.

The money expended by the Western Secretary is deposited to his credit in New York, and drawn upon as wanted. All such money is accounted for with rigid exactness. A statement of account, with vouchers, is forwarded at the close of each month, at which time the accounts of the Western Department, like all others, are balanced and closed. In addition to the careful examination of our accounts at the central office, at each quarterly meeting they are audited by such men as Prof. Bache, Horace Binney, C. J. Stillé, J. Huntington Wolcott, &c., whose high character for intelligence, conscientiousness, and great business experience, are a sufficient guaranty that they have been accurately kept.

B—SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Hospital stores distributed by the Sanitary Commission in the armies of the West, have been mostly contributed in kind from the several branches of the Commission in the Western Department. In addition to such contributions, purchases of stores have been made from this office to the amount of $139,119 38; and others of the value of $23,471 55, purchased in New York and sent to Louisville. A statement of the kinds and quantities of stores distributed in this department during the quarter ending September 30, 1864, and another showing the aggregate of distributions, from Sept. 1, 1861, to the same date, are herewith given. The value of the supplies distributed by the Sanitary Commission in this department to July 1, 1864, giving each article its value in the home market, was $2,790,811 01.

During the quarter ending Sept. 30, supplies of the value of $385,439 00 were distributed: adding these sums we have as the value of supplies distributed in this department to Oct. 1, 1864, $3,176,270 01.

The expense account of the Supply Department, for this period, is as follows:

|                             |             |
|-----------------------------|-------------|
| Canvassing, - - -           | $11,122 79 |
| Freight paid on Stores, -   | 45,404 12   |
| Distribution of Supplies, - | 62,718 70   |

$119,245 61

To this should be added one-third of the expenses of general administration, viz., $11,016 58—making the gross expense account of the Supply Department $130,262 19, or about four per cent. on the value of supplies distributed.

It should be remembered, however, that the expenses attending the employment of Lecturers and Canvassers in the Home Field—an item of $11,122 79—in the preceding account has inured to the benefit of the Aid Societies and Branches in all their interests, and is therefore not all chargeable to the Supply Department, and no part of it to be reckoned as the expense of distributing stores.

The Freight Account, too, amounting to $45,404 12—since it was altogether incurred in the transportation of stores to the water bases of the different armies, Louisville, Cairo, Memphis, &c., conferred at least an equivalent value on the stores transported, and should therefore be reckoned with donated transportation, as an addition to the valuation of stores as before given. The distribution of stores of the value $3,176,270 01 in the home market has been accomplished at a cost of 2½ per cent. upon their valuation. Adding the cost of transportation to the value of the stores, and the cost of distribution would be 2 per cent. of that value. Giving the stores distributed their cash value at the water bases of the armies supplied, and the cost of distribution would be 1½ per cent. of their value; and the whole expense account of the Supply Department would equal less than 3 per cent. of such valuation.

The manner in which the records of the Supply Department are kept, and the credibility of the results given above, can hardly be learned without an inspection of our books and methods; yet I think I can safely say, that all the many experienced men who have carefully examined our system have been satisfied that the methods pursued were economical of labor and money, and the results reported worthy of confidence.

To those who cannot in person examine the manner in which the stores they entrust to us are handled and used, I may say briefly, that the raising of supplies is especially the work of the members of our Branch and Auxiliary Societies. In the Home Field the methods pursued are theirs, and the responsibility of the entire work is theirs. I have assumed no control over it, and have taken no part in it, further than to furnish by manuscript or printed reports, or by lecturers, fresh and full information in regard to the condition and wants of the Western armies, the means taken to meet such wants, and such other matters as have a practical bearing on the home work.

From time to time assistance has been needed by the different Branch Societies, and it has been liberally afforded. Canvassing agents, lecturers, messengers, and various assistants, in the work of the Supply Department have been placed at their disposal, and money paid them from the general fund of the Commission to the amount of more than $60,000.

As soon as stores are shipped to me or my representatives from the various contributing depots, I become responsible for their proper use, and am vested with the control of them. The stores passing through Ohio and Illinois are transported free by the splendid liberality of the officers of the railroads terminating in Cincinnati and Cairo. On those coming through Indiana we are compelled to pay freight. Arriving here or at Cairo, stores are carefully checked off from cars and boats into the warehouses. All missing packages are at once looked up, and necessary repairs and cooperation done. From these points stores are forwarded as rapidly as possible, on the theory that any accumulation of stores should be near the army.

With all important divisions of the army, and in every hospital centre, depots are established in care of competent business men, by whom stores are received and issued to those needing them, on personal application, or on the requisition of the agents of the Commission, or the Surgeons of hospitals and regiments; for all of which receipts are given and record made. Weekly and monthly reports are sent to the Louisville Office of all issues from all the depots, and from these reports the tabular statements, now or heretofore given of our aggregate issues, are compiled.

NINE "SOLDIERS' HOMES."

Number of Lodgings and Meals furnished by the People to the Soldiers, through the Western Department of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, at NINE of the "Soldiers' Homes," during the months of July, August and September, 1864.

|                            | LODGINGS.     |               |               |                | MEALS.         |               |                |                |
|----------------------------|---------------|---------------|---------------|----------------|----------------|---------------|----------------|----------------|
|                            | July.         | August.       | Sept.         | Total.         | July.          | August.       | Sept.          | Total.         |
| Cairo, Illinois.....       | 4,374         | 4,593         | 7,712         | 16,679         | 15,284         | 13,202        | 17,630         | 46,176         |
| Nashville, Tennessee.....  | 4,646         | 5,731         | 9,518         | 19,795         | 14,552         | 16,956        | 25,829         | 57,328         |
| Memphis, Tennessee.....    | 913           | 1,214         | 1,335         | 3,462          | 4,176          | 5,187         | 4,501          | 13,864         |
| Louisville, Kentucky.....  | 8,427         | 10,761        | 12,188        | 31,376         | 15,929         | 23,320        | 26,329         | 65,578         |
| Camp Nelson, Kentucky..... | 13,470        | 1,385         | 5,995         | 20,850         | 37,179         | 5,173         | 12,805         | 55,157         |
| New Albany, Indiana.....   | 762           | 1,010         | 674           | 2,446          | 2,372          | 2,614         | 2,391          | 7,377          |
| Detroit, Michigan.....     | 1,149         | 1,638         |               | 2,787          | 1,914          | 3,462         |                | 5,376          |
| Cleveland, Ohio.....       | 242           | 619           | 333           | 1,194          | 1,485          | 2,610         | 1,608          | 5,703          |
| Cincinnati, Ohio.....      | 1,973         | 3,135         | 8,461         | 13,159         | 13,894         | 18,146        | 44,282         | 76,322         |
|                            | 35,456 | 30,086 | 46,206 | 111,748 | 106,785 | 90,730 | 135,366 | 332,881 |

Taking this ratio as a basis of estimate, these nine "Homes" would give to our soldiers during one year, 446,992 lodgings and 1,331,524 meals. That the estimate would be too low, however, is apparent from the fact that in the single month of October, Louisville gave 28,203 lodgings and 84,609 meals, and in November 33,449 lodgings and 100,347 meals; thus in two months giving twice the number of lodgings, and treble the number of meals that it furnished in these three. But at this rate there was an average of 3,700 meals given to our soldiers each day of the quarter by the above nine Homes.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL IN BOSTON.

On the 13th and 14th days of December last, the New England Branch of the Sanitary Commission called a meeting of Associate Managers, and of delegates from "all societies working for the soldiers," that by counsel together, all might be aided to more intelligent and faithful pursuance of the work resting on every woman and child in the land. They were asked to bring all questions, doubts and criticisms which they found as obstacles in the way, and by their frank expression show us where we were wrong, or strengthen us in our convictions of right.

Upwards of two hundred women answered the call. Every shade of belief in the Commission found representatives among them, and as result, the discussions were earnest and free, touching on fundamental questions and developing clear convictions. Our hopes of the usefulness of such a meeting were not disappointed. The presence of delegates who came through the heavy snow-storm from far off in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, was encouragement and incentive, and amongst all, there shone forth a warm sympathy and earnestness, giving the meeting a tone of outspoken friendliness which was a most striking feature.

The preliminary meeting, at which we had the pleasure of welcoming Miss Amy Bradley, whose name is so dear to the thousands of soldiers who have felt her care in the great Rendezvous of Distribution, was held on the afternoon of the 13th. The object of the Convention was clearly set before the meeting, as simply a search after the most economical, effective and thorough method of reaching our sick and wounded soldiers; a question not to be decided by light and inconsiderate preference, not one where prejudice could be allowed to influence. The great responsibility bound us all to rest only on honest, thoughtful conviction. Associate members from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts, were called on for information regarding the work in their districts, and the testimony came clear from all that more interest was felt now than heretofore in the subject of army relief, but they were constrained to believe that less work was in truth accomplished. The conflicting claims of so many systems of distribution proving a clog upon action, checking even the earnest, and giving the indifferent a comfortable and reputable mantle of doubt with which to cover their coldness. This difficulty they found at every turn, taking a thousand changing shapes, and they asked for more clearly stated facts, fuller information and advice to guide them.

MISS BRADLEY.

Miss Bradley here spoke some most appropriate words, telling how, practically, waste must ensue where two plans were on the field, each liable to be deceived, and unconsciously repeat the work already done by the other. In illustration, she gave her own experience in the Rendezvous. For she had been there as agent for the Sanitary Commission, and since its organization, the Christian Commission has also had an agent at that place. At first, this agent carried on his work independently, giving his stores according to his own plan, but soon finding how often he was deceived into giving a double portion, he brought them to Miss Bradley, asking, as a favor, that she would distribute them with her own. When this agent's successor came, the same story was gone over once more, till, in the long-tried system of the Sanitary Commission, was found the safeguard from deceit and unjust waste. And in this connection, she deprecated, earnestly, sending supplies through private hands, and told a surprising instance of the manner in which too facile kindness of heart is abused by the men. She received, one day, from the Commandant of the post, a remonstrance against her lavish waste of stores, being told that the expressmen complained of the number of boxes sent from the camp as an annoyance to them, and that these boxes were known to contain new garments and delicacies of food. In answer, she assured him she had never so failed in her duty, but drew his attention to certain constant visitors, called ambulance women, as the cause of the trouble. A few ladies, through special favor, had received the privilege of using ambulances, and were in the habit of filling these with clothing and stores, which, when arrived at camp, they distributed, with open hands, to any who would ask, tempting the loud-tongued to lie, and utterly wasting their stores. From that time these visits were prohibited.

Being urged to tell still more about the work she had left for one short week for our benefit and pleasure, she gave an account of the manner in which she is allowed to help men in distress through loss of papers of discharge. Government gives no duplicate of these, unless there be absolute proof of their destruction, otherwise it would be liable to lose two men for every one really discharged. Even a written statement from an official that the man is entitled to transportation is impossible, for that would amount to a duplicate. So the poor fellows stood helpless till she devised a plan, which Government gladly approved. It is simply this: In her own hand she receives from the Commandant the requisition for transportation for each man, fills up her little train of ambulances with the men named, drives over the river to the Quartermaster's office, shows these requisitions, sees they are filled, and then carries them back to the Commandant to be destroyed. In this way she has helped hundreds of weary, sick men back to their homes.

The meeting listened with the greatest pleasure to her simple account of her labor as it is now, and has been, finding, in her cheerful earnestness, a stimulus to more and better work for our own hands.

The afternoon having worn away, the meeting closed with a few remarks from the Chairman regarding minor business questions. The ladies then adjourned to the office of the Association, to partake of tea and bread and butter, provided by friends especially for their refreshment. The meal was pleasant and cordial, and a most desirable prelude to the public meeting in the evening, to which the delegation proceeded from our rooms.

PUBLIC MEETING.

In the unavoidable absence of Governor Andrews, this meeting was presided over by the Hon. Charles G. Loring. It was addressed by R. H. Dana, Judge Russell, Chaplain Quint, of the 2d Massachusetts Regiment, and Dr. Agnew, of the U. S. Sanitary Commission. The earnest eloquence of Judge Russell, as he described the watchful care of the Commission over the furloughed and discharged soldiers, away from the discipline of camp, away from the influences of home, reached every heart.

Mr. Dana, in his address, put forcibly a truth which lies at the foundation of the Commission's plan: that even if Government could provide all the Commission now gives the soldiers, it ought not to be allowed so to do, for it would thus rob the people of the work which belongs to them by right, which is felt by them to be a great privilege of the time, developing noble sentiments, giving scope to all unselfish desires, soothing many a grief the war has brought, and fostering, in countless hearts, a true and fervent patriotism.

Dr. Agnew gave some interesting and valuable statistics regarding the work already done, and that which is hoped for, and Chaplain Quint followed with an account of experiences in the field during his Chaplaincy.

At the close of the meeting, a committee of prominent gentlemen was formed for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions adequate to the needs of the Commission.

FINAL MEETING.

The final meeting of the Council was held on Wednesday morning, the 14th. Miss Bradley was again present, also, Dr. Marks, a minister of the Presbyterian Church, from Pittsburg, Pa., who entered the service of his country in the spring of 1861, has now served her for three years and a half, first as Division Chaplain, and since, as one of the laborers of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

The Chairman opened the discussion by saying no one could doubt the earnestness of the women in their great purpose of relief, nor that they all meant to include in it not only succor for the suffering body, but help and soothing for the spirit as well. All were bent on the same end: drawing the tortured frame, out of horror and anguish, and opening the eyes of the soul to the blessedness and peace of loving God. Why, then, should the two principal organizations stand nominally opposed to each other? They each have their own work to do, which all would rejoice to see well and faithfully done. Let them labor together, each doing its own duty, but giving help and sympathy the one to the other. If a child be sick unto death, does not the parent send first for the physician, that he may use his utmost skill to save the life God made? And then, when he has done his best, you turn to your minister, asking from him the words of help your heart needs—the prayers with you and your child, which takes you nearer to God with your pain and danger. You need them both, the physician and the clergyman, but they cannot interchange without loss and failure.

The Sanitary Commission was organized from the beginning to soothe the misery which shuts away all thought except of the moment's pain—to save the life ebbing away on the battle-field, too faint to think of death and the coming life, but it is always eager to pour out its strengthening words of Christian faith and hope. Let these two Commissions then, in God's name, work—work together, not in opposition.

REV. J. J. MARKS.

Dr. Marks here gave an account of his first experience of the Commission at Yorktown. He described the desolation of the place and the misery of the men, and how he began his acquaintance with the Commission by making application for 400 cotton shirts, and carrying them in joyful triumph to men who cried with relief when they put them on.

At Fredricksburg, when 1,500 wounded men lay on the ground, without shelter, or blankets, or bedding, he sought the help of the Christian Commission for a portion of them lying faint, but could get nothing, except under the direction of one of its agents. He turned to the Sanitary, and received four wagon loads, 400 quilts, 200 bottles of wine, 200 cans of soup, &c., &c., and the men blessed the Sanitary Commission. At Gettysburg also he saw it at work, carrying help even into the enemy's fire, through such scenes of misery, that those who saw, felt a nation's treasure would be well spent in relieving it. He spoke of the great superiority in the administration of this Commission, being the permanence of its agencies. Waste must follow where one man after another takes up the work, forced to learn by his own failures. The agents of the Sanitary Commission he explained are, to a great extent, men who have been officers or soldiers, who know the life and needs of those they help, and so have peculiar hold upon them.

He was asked if he had seen the stores of the Commission wasted, and his answer, in the negative, was most earnest; he had been often moved to joyful pride in seeing how faithfully its servants worked.

At one time, when in great danger, the Government officers had burned $1,500,000 worth of stores, but from that same scene, the agents of the Sanitary Commission had, by incredible efforts, brought off all its stores.

Question.—Do officers and surgeons receive help from these stores as the private soldiers do?

Answer.—Certainly; if an officer is in distress, he has the same claim upon our mercy as his men. A brave man, suffering among other brave men, that is all we see, we do not look to know whether he wears the chevron or the eagle. And the surgeons, there is no work so exhausting to body and soul as theirs. Should they be debarred from the warmth and refreshment they so much need, because they are "officers?"

Dr. Marks bore heartfelt testimony to the devotedness of the surgeons to their work. He told an anecdote of an officer, who could not say he was sick or in need, yet very much desired to buy some of the comforts the Commission had in its storehouse. He was reminded that the Commission held its goods for the suffering, and only gave, not sold. His answer was, "It is very unfortunate to be an officer."

PRISONERS.

Question.—Do the prisoners really receive what the Sanitary Commission sends them?

Answer.—It is impossible to say if they receive all, but they return to us, when exchanged, clothed in garments bearing the Commission's stamp, and speak of receiving food sent by it.

SALARIES.

Question.—Is it true that Dr. Bellows receives a salary of from six to ten thousand dollars a year?

Answer.—Dr. Bellows receives no salary whatever.

Question.—Does any woman in the service of the Commission receive a salary?

Answer, by Miss Bradley.—Yes; I receive $10 per month, and draw rations from Government.

Question.—Does any woman receive a larger salary?

Answer.—The Commission has paid, for most important services, as much as $600 per year.

Question.—Have you ever found men ashamed to receive help from the Commission—calling it begging?

Answer.—Never; such feelings, if they exist, are exceptional.

Question.—Does the Commission refuse to give to regulars?

Answer.—Never.

CHRISTIAN COMMISSION.

Question.—Has the Christian Commission any salaried agents?

In answer, a letter from Dr. Parrish, of Philadelphia, was read as follows:

"I was told by an agent of the Christian Commission, a few days since, that their pay to permanent field agents is $50 per month—the Sanitary Commission pays for the same service $45. I am informed, by one of their members, that they now have canvassing agents in the field, on good salaries, and are in want of more. I was also told, by one of the agents of the Christian Commission, at Annapolis, that one of the corps at that place was inclined to work in future for the Sanitary Commission, but hesitated because he was better paid by the Christian Commission."

It was suggested, by a delegate, that in view of the fact that the agents of the Christian Commission had been chiefly clergymen, whose salaries had been continued to them, and their desks supplied during their absence, and also, that the Christian Commission paid all traveling expenses, the amount of money in reality spent for their services had been more than that paid to the agents of the Sanitary Commission.

A delegate here rose to say, that so far as she knew, the feeling in her community was not any questioning about economy, or practical methods, but about the final purposes of the two Commissions; the impression being, that while the Christian Commission, which gave the rightful first place of importance to healing the spirit, the Sanitary Commission applied its powers solely to succoring the body.

REV. W. B. MARSH.

The Rev. Mr. Marsh, of the Presbyterian Church, who is now lecturing in the service of the Sanitary Commission, speaking in answer, begged the delegates to combat this idea as utterly untrue. Any man, unmindful of such interests, would be unfit for service in the scenes he would have to share. He had never known an agent of the Commission who was not ready to give the spiritual help a man needs in the hour of death, but had seen many a bedside where they read the Bible and knelt down to pray.

A little scrap of paper was here handed to the President, who read it aloud. It said the writer had five brothers in the army, who wrote, in grateful terms, of the services of every kind which the Sanitary Commission had rendered them.

It was asked why the two Commissions should not divide the supplies given by the people, according to the work nominally undertaken by each. The Sanitary Commission devotes itself to saving life as the first step towards better things; the Christian Commission announces its work as concerning the soul. Let each, then, take the gifts appropriate to its special duty; if the Christian Commission receives stores, let it hand them to the Sanitary Commission, and this in turn pass over to the other books, both secular and religious, which it receives in large numbers; and the means of each being greatly increased by this united canvassing of the country, let them go into the field together, friends. How simple and reasonable the question seemed. How full of usefulness and good of every kind would be the result.

Miss Bradley here put very urgently before the meeting the immeasurable loss of time and money which must be incurred in leaving an old and experienced guide in the intricate labors on which depend the life or death of thousands of men. The Commission knows the proportion of need over all the vast fields of war; by favor of Government, knows just when, in this army or that, there will be battles and misery, and men dying for want of warmth and food, and then it sends out its agents and nurses, with full measure of succor for the time. It may leave its storehouses empty, with nothing to answer the daily calls from the hospitals, but it knows such calls are not to be counted one moment in comparison with the needs of the battle-fields. It is this discrimination which makes the vast organization of the Commission the means of accomplishing the most good with the least waste.

SECTARIANISM.

She expressed her surprise at the idea which she had received, for the first time this morning, that questions of sectarianism entered into this work. She lived so occupied by constant labor, she said, that she had no time to study outside motives. It seemed to her most strange and sad that it should be so. Was not every church represented in the Soldiers' Aid Societies throughout the country? Were they not all conscious of the same desire—to do their best to relieve those who so need relief? Why, then, should there be any words of division among them? Let the question of creeds be forgotten. Christ's sermon was a sure guide to good and blessed deeds; whoever followed that was safe in the shadow of blessing for himself and his work. She told a little story, which touched, in real experience, the very point of the discussion. It was of a soldier, a young boy, who lay dying in her hospital. He asked her if it were indeed so that he must die. She told him yes, and taking her Bible from her pocket, she read to him the 14th chapter of St. John, and then knelt down beside him and prayed. Presently she left him, cheerful and submissive. Returning soon, she found the agent of the Christian Commission speaking to him of his danger, asking him if he should read the Bible to him? "She has read to me," was the answer. "Shall I not pray with you?" "She has prayed with me." Although a woman, and a member of no sectarian church, her words had brought him into the peace of God.

The hour having arrived when many of the delegates were forced to leave, the Chairman closed the meeting with a few words, referring to the earnest feeling displayed, expressing regret that our intercourse could not be longer, and bidding all good-bye as friends.

Documents of importance were freely distributed, and the delegates dispersed. We were glad to welcome some of them again in our office during the week, to show them our whole system of management, and talk with them over details. We felt the insufficient time that the two meetings allowed for the many questions and remarks which would have been pleasant and most useful to both parties, and if another year finds us still needed at our post, we shall profit by this experience, and keep our friends with us for a longer space.

The reports of the Soldiers' Aid Societies, brought to us by the delegates, contained most valuable details of information, and we propose to draw up a tabulated resume of the items for constant reference; the reports themselves being filed among our original documents. The testimony that many of them bear to the hopefulness and faithfulness of these societies, often very poor, yet never despairing that means would come, makes the reading a lesson to sink deep in the heart.

In closing this report, we wish personally to express our heartfelt appreciation of the sympathy and support which were so cordially expressed. Feeling the paramount usefulness of the Commission whose name we bear, we rejoice to find such earnest approval and firm faith among the workers of New England.

MARY G. LORING,

Sec. Exec. Com. New Eng. Women's Aux. Assn.

Special Relief Department.

SPECIAL RELIEF REPORT FROM BOSTON.

BY JOHN S. BLATCHFORD.

For Executive Committee of Boston Associates.

I submit herewith, on behalf of the "Executive Committee of Boston Associates," under whose direction it has been administered, a Report concerning the Special Relief Service of the U. S. Sanitary Commission in this city, for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1864.

With the quarterly statement is also presented the total results of the service, embracing the whole period since its organization, April 1, 1863, to Dec. 31, 1864, a period of twenty-one months.

|                                                   | Quarter endingDec. 31, 1864. | Total.      |
|---------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------|-------------|
| Furnished transportation at Government rate,..... | 2,179                            | 10,389      |
| Do. paid by Commission,.....                      | 9                                | 228         |
| Do. by U. S. Quartermaster,.....                  | 1,022                            | 1,956       |
| Furnished carriage within the city,.....          | 632                              | 4,707       |
| " special attendance to their homes,.....         | 10                               | 110         |
| Furnished lodging,.....                           | 5,424                            | 18,497      |
| " meals,.....                                     | 6,444                            | 23,666      |
| " Clothing,.....                                  | 63                               | 613         |
| " Aid in arranging papers,.....                   | 27                               | 209         |
| " Aid in obtaining pay,.....                      | 19                               | 245         |
| " Medical advice,.....                            | 915                              | 1,804       |
| Wounds dressed,.....                              | 1,156                            | 4,344       |
| Procured commutation of rations,.....             |                                  | 76          |
| Loaned money,.....                                | 43                               | 175         |
| Gave money,.....                                  | 16                               | 134         |
| Sent to Hospital,.....                            | 17                               | 147         |
| Referred to local Relief Associations,.....       | 10                               | 56          |
| Re-enlisted,.....                                 | 1                                | 28          |
| Deaths,.....                                      | 2                                | 8           |
| Furnished undertakers' services,.....             | 2                                | 11          |
| Amount of pay collected,.....                     | $2,271 04                       | $28,709 76 |
| Furnished transportation by hospital cars,.....   | 4,125                            | 15,676      |
| Number of soldiers aided,.....                    | 12,397                           | 47,358      |
| Daily average,.....                               | 137 2-3                          |             |

Of the whole number that have received aid at our Relief Rooms, amounting to 31,512—as distinct from the "Hospital Car Service"—Maine has furnished 12,502, New Hampshire 1658, Vermont 201, Massachusetts 12,209, Connecticut 148, Rhode Island 101, New York 260, New Jersey 7, Pennsylvania 57, Maryland 7, District of Columbia 224, Ohio 95, Kentucky 14, Michigan 12, Indiana 12, Illinois 28, Kansas 7, Iowa 13, Minnesota 38, Wisconsin 26, Missouri, 12, Tennessee 3, North Carolina 4, Louisiana 6, Alabama 4, Virginia 4, Georgia 2, California, Mississippi, Florida, Arkansas, Delaware, and South Carolina, 1 each; U. S. Regulars, 1,185; U. S. Navy, 270; Veteran Reserve Corps, 2,251; Corps D'Afrique, 24; Rebel Army, 3.

The following supplies have been drawn from the Supply department of the, "N. E. Women's Auxiliary Association," Woolen shirts, 102; woolen drawers, 96; socks, 108 pairs; pants, 3; 1 lot old clothing; 2 lots bandages; 6 vests; 2 lots lint.

For Hospital Cars—6 pairs socks, 6 pairs slippers, 1 lot lint. For special use—1 pair pants, 2 blouses, 1 comfort bag, 1 bed-sack, 1 wool shirt, 1 pair socks, 1 pillow, 1 pair wool drawers.

The whole amount of supplies furnished by the "N. E. Women's Auxiliary Association," for use in the Special Relief Service in this city, since its organization is as follows:

Bed quilts, 13; blankets, 61; sheets, 286; pillows, 97; pillow-cases, 224; towels, 78; tin cups, 6; water pails, 2; bed comforters, 37; bed sacks, 74; woolen shirts, 308; cotton shirts, 140; woolen drawers, 217; cotton drawers, 119; socks, 388 pair; handkerchiefs, 73; slippers, 62 pairs; slings, 518; dressing gowns, 2; pants, 7; overcoats, 1; coats, 2; old clothing, 4 lots; bandages, 14 lots; crutches, 12 pairs; gaiters, 20; vests, 6; lint, 2 lots. For 55th Massachusetts Regiment at Readville Hospital, May 30, 1863—1 dozen wool shirts, 12 pairs wool socks, 12 wool drawers, 12 sheets. June 24, 1863—7 pillows, 7 pillow cases.

For Springfield Street Home, August 10, 1863—24 woolen shirts. For Hospital Cars, October 23, 1863—2 dozen each of towels, sleeping-caps, handkerchiefs and slippers; 12 each of woolen socks and dressing-gowns.

For camp at Long Island, December 7, 1863—35 bed sacks, 24 pairs mittens.

For Hospital, Fort Warren, February 4, 1864—1 pair pants, 3 pairs socks, 2 pairs drawers, 2 shirts.

For Pemberton Square Hospital, April 23, 1864—1 lot of old linen.

For camp at Concord, July 1, 1864—6 pairs cotton drawers, 6 cotton shirts, 3 pairs slippers, 1 lot bandages and lint.

For Hospital Cars, October 11, 1864—6 pairs socks, 6 pairs slippers, 1 lot lint.

|                                                                                      | Quarter endingDec. 31, 1864. | Total. |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------|--------|
| Transportation has been furnished by orders issued upon respective railroads to..... | 2,179                            | 10,369 |
| Do. procured from U.S. Quartermaster,                                                | 1,022                            | 1,956  |
|                                                                                      | 3,201                            | 12,325 |

|                                                                                          |          |            |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|------------|
| Transportation by Hospital cars, between New York and Boston, has been furnished to..... | 4,125    | 15,876     |
| Cost of Hospital Car service.....                                                        | $431 42 | $3,022 95 |
| Average cost per man.....                                                                | 10 3-7c. | 19 1-24c.  |

The following supplies have been furnished to the Hospital Cars during the quarter: Brandy, 7 bottles; whisky, 8 do.; wine, 4 do.; crackers, 1 keg; extract of coffee, 1 can; slippers, 12 pairs; 4 ounces quinine; 4 do. ginger; 1 bottle spirits ammonia; 1 do. camphor; 4 rolls adhesive plaster; 1 lot bandages; 1 do. rags; 1 do. lint; 1 lancet; 6 pairs woolen socks; 1 hatchet; 1 lantern.

The total expenditure for the quarter has been $7,465 50, classified as follows:

|                                       |            |
|---------------------------------------|------------|
| Rent and taxes.....                   | 238 94     |
| Furnishing and repairs.....           | 66 70      |
| Salaries.....                         | 753 99     |
| Travelling expenses.....              | 24 00      |
| Advertising.....                      | 97 03      |
| Stationery and printing.....          | 252 05     |
| Postage.....                          | 8 00       |
| Hospital stores.....                  | 27 00      |
| Superintendent's expense account..... | 5,547 61   |
| Miscellaneous.....                    | 10 66      |
| Hospital Car service.....             | 431 42     |
| Document account.....                 | 8 20       |
|                                       | $7,465 50 |

Classification of Superintendent's Expense Account.

|                             |          |
|-----------------------------|----------|
| Transportation.....         | 174 75   |
| Travelling expenses.....    | 26 83    |
| Meals.....                  | 4,726 74 |
| Furniture.....              | 15 60    |
| Fuel.....                   | 37 60    |
| Washing.....                | 209 50   |
| Salaries.....               | 98 00    |
| Money loaned and given..... | 123 99   |
| Postage.....                | 6 00     |
| Sundries.....               | 137 25   |

The results of the Special Relief Service of the Commission in this city, for the whole period since its organization, may be briefly summed up as follows:

|                                                                    |             |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Whole number of men aided.....                                     | 47,388      |
| Whole expenditure.....                                             | $35,377 38 |
| Average cost per man.....                                          | 74 3-4c.    |
| Number of soldiers furnished with meals.....                       | 23,666      |
| Number of meals furnished.....                                     | 47,096      |
| Average number of meals per man.....                               | 2           |
| Amount paid for meals.....                                         | $16,293 25 |
| Average cost per meal.....                                         | 34 3-5c.    |
| Number of orders issued for transportation at Government rate..... | 11,802      |
| Aggregate miles of distances.....                                  | 1,502,403   |
| Resulting in a saving to the soldier of.....                       | $13,238 01 |
| Amount of money loaned and given.....                              | $561 19    |
| Number of recipients.....                                          | 309         |
| Average amount to each.....                                        | $1 51      |
| Amount returned.....                                               | $220 44    |
| Average amount returned.....                                       | 2-6         |

|                                            |            |
|--------------------------------------------|------------|
| Number furnished with clothing.....        | 613        |
| Number of garments furnished.....          | 1298       |
| Average per man.....                       | 2 1-8      |
| Number transported by Hospital car.....    | 15,876     |
| Total cost of "Hospital Car Service,"..... | $3,022 95 |
| Average cost per man.....                  | 19 1-24c.  |

The comparative cost of the service (including "Hospital Car Service,") is exhibited by the average cost per man for the successive quarterly periods since its organization as follows:

|                                         |            |
|-----------------------------------------|------------|
| First Quarter ending June 30, 1863..... | $2 35     |
| Second " " Sept. 30, 1863.....          | $1 28     |
| Third " " Dec. 31, 1863.....            | 99 15-21c. |
| Fourth " " March 31, 1864.....          | 73 21-44c. |
| Fifth " " June 30, 1864.....            | 68 17-22c. |
| Sixth " " Sept. 30, 1864.....           | 63 1-30c.  |
| Seventh " " Dec. 31, 1864.....          | 60 1-50c.  |

REPORT OF SPECIAL RELIEF WORK IN WASHINGTON.

For the Quarter ending Dec. 31, 1864, to Rev. F. N. Knapp.

BY J. B. ABBOTT.

SIR:—I respectfully submit the following report of the "Special Relief" Office, and the several Lodges under my supervision, for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1864.

|                                                                            |             |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Number of pay accounts of discharged soldiers received for adjustment..... | 362         |
| Number of cases settled.....                                               | 362         |
| Amount collected.....                                                      | $67,175 00 |
| Number of bounty claims received.....                                      | 97          |
| Number of claims allowed.....                                              | 115         |
| Amount collected on claims allowed.....                                    | $10,750 00 |
| Number of cases for back pay, received.....                                | 543         |
| Number of cases adjusted.....                                              | 487         |
| Amount secured on the cases adjusted.....                                  | $35,121 97 |
| Number of prisoner of war claims entered.....                              | 147         |
| Number allowed.....                                                        | 56          |
| Amount collected on claims allowed.....                                    | $5,324 45  |
| Number of naval claims filed.....                                          | 248         |
| Number of naval claims allowed.....                                        | 155         |
| Amount collected on claims allowed.....                                    | $24,560 55 |
| Number of pension claims filed.....                                        | 654         |
| Number of pension claims allowed.....                                      | 257         |
| Amount saved to claimants on the claims allowed.....                       | $2,570     |

|                                                           |              |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| Number of claims for arrears of pay and bounty filed,     | 71           |
| Number of claims allowed,                                 | 10           |
| Amount saved to claimants on the claims allowed,          | $100        |
| Whole number of cases and claims entered upon our record, | 2,122        |
| Whole number of cases and claims completed,               | 1,442        |
| Total amount of money collected on the claims completed,  | $144,378 61 |

The amount collected does not include the amount received on pension claims.

In calculating the amount saved on pensions, and arrears of pay and bounty claims, I have only allowed the legal fee on each claim.

|                                    |             |
|------------------------------------|-------------|
| Number of drafts forwarded,        | 295         |
| Amount of drafts forwarded,        | $29,977 98 |
| Number of letters received,        | 5,039       |
| Number of business letters mailed, | 5,017       |

RELIEF STATIONS.

Lodge No. 4.

|                                                       |        |
|-------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Number of lodgings furnished to soldiers and seamen,  | 5,410  |
| Number of meals given to soldiers, seamen and others, | 41,383 |

I have no reports from the other relief stations for the quarter as yet.

The monthly reports of the relief stations for October and November were sent to you.

AMBULANCES.

In the early history of field warfare but few appliances were at hand for the benefit of the wounded in battle. Prior to the invention of gunpowder, wounds were inflicted by swords, daggers, spears, &c., or by dull heavy weapons, which caused only contusions. But little skill comparatively was needed to dress such wounds, and the military surgery of those days was necessarily limited to but few means for relief. Gun-shot wounds, however, are much more serious and alarming, and with the introduction of gunpowder, there was a marked development in surgical skill, and in the means for relieving suffering, though it was not uncommon to leave the wounded to the casual sympathies of the people among whom the battles were fought. Surgeons, however, were found without military rank or emolument, rendering services to the afflicted as they had opportunity. The celebrated military surgeon, in the time of Henry IV., of France, by name Ambroise Paré, held no rank whatever in the army, and in the function which he voluntarily assumed in the service of his country, acquired a reputation for probity and skill to which his superior genius justly entitled him; but it was not till the time of Louis XIII. that a chief military surgeon, with rank, was attached to each regiment of the French army. It was there likewise that hospitals were established, both stationary and moveable; and it is to these latter that the term ambulance is applied.

An ambulance is a covered wagon for the immediate conveyance of the wounded from the scene of battle to the field hospital immediately in the rear, and indeed, for the conveyance of the sick and helpless from one hospital to another. Each army corps has its organized ambulance corps, with its chief to control all its movements, with its surgeons, stretcher-bearers, drivers, &c. In a subsequent number, we shall furnish the plan of working an ambulance train. In this, we introduce the subject only, with the following cuts of an improved ambulance, which will bear the study they demand for a complete understanding of their arrangement.

Springs, cushions, beds, water tanks, fracture swings, &c., &c., enter into the arrangement, and every comfort that could be contrived for a moveable or flying hospital seems to have been anticipated. We commend the sketches below to the investigation of the curious, and have only to say, that the minuteness in the detail, as well as the general plan of construction, are the result, in a measure, of the thoughts and efforts of members of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

1, frame in which beds and seats rest; 2, interspaces between frame and body for lateral counterpoise springs; 3, inside of upper section of tail-board; 4, bed sliding over seats; 5, rollers on which bed slides, clearing seats; 6, 7, spigot of water tank protected by upper leaf of tail-board, lowered.

1, leather moveable back for middle seat; 2, spigot of water tank; 3, bed with handles, drawn partly out, on small steel rollers sunk in floor of compartment; 4, bed in position; 5, inside of door for compartment for beds; 6, stretchers; 7, loop for gun rack or head rests.

a, iron rowel (revolving) to facilitate turning; b, semi-elliptical spring; c, moveable leather back on iron brackets; d, compartment for beds when not in use.

1, compartment for beds when not in use, fastening by a spring catch at 2; 3, clasp for stretcher; 4, notch, forming arch over and protecting spigot of water tank, when upper section of tail-board is let down.

1, stout semi-elliptical spring; 2, complete back to driver's seat; 3, leather back to middle seats; 4, hook for fractures.

a, stanchions of frame on counterpoise springs, with blocks of india-rubber at b, and pin at c, to prevent lateral displacement of spring; d, iron clasp, and e, loop for stretcher; f, hook and wheel running on parallel iron bars for suspension of fractures; g, one of the seats removed from its bed in frame h; i, inside of lower section of tail-board; k, fastening rendering water tank motionless; m, interspace between body of ambulance and frame for lateral springs.

Figs. A, B, C and F, beds.
 Fig. B, upper side, one-half cushioned. 4, iron bars let partly in rail; 5, (figs. A and B), iron handles, dotted lines indicate grooves in which tongue of handle work. The part handled is round, the rest of handle square.
 Fig. C, side view.
 Fig. F, 7, bed in position.
 Figs. F and H, 8, 8, 8, seats, permanent but one; 9, rollers, clear cushions of seats  $\frac{1}{2}$  inch.
 Fig. F, 10, counterpoise springs lateral, fastened inside of ambulance body.
 Figs. F and E, a, iron slides on which ends of springs play; b, rubber block.
 Fig. D, perpendicular. c, iron plates on floor of ambulance on which ends of springs play; d, by which spring stanchion and frame are secured; e, block of rubber in staple. Figs. F, D, E and H, frame.
 Fig. D, ledges for seat h; k, ledges for rollers. Figs. D, F and H, m, ledges for bed on rollers.
 Fig. E is outside of D.
 Water tanks, fig. G, showing grooved slide and fastening.
 Figs. G and H, n, spigot. Fig. D, o, stanchions, of which only four.
 Figs. F and H, p, interspace for lateral spring between frame and body of ambulance.
 Stretcher holders, K, L and q H.
 Fig. H, r, compartments for beds when not in use; s, steel rollers; u, spring catch; v, tail-board upper and lower sections closed; w, inside of upper section showing cushions and back of seat; x, step.

INTERESTING LETTERS FROM ANNAPOLIS.

BY MRS. FARRISH.

THE NAVAL ACADEMY HOSPITAL.

This commodious establishment, which is capable of accommodating two thousand two hundred patients, is in charge of Dr. Vanderkeiff, who is assisted by his executive officer, Dr. Ely. At this writing there are two hundred and one officers and four hundred and twenty-eight privates under treatment. What a vast household for the medical skill of physicians, the judicious management of nurses, and the philanthropy of all to care for.

A pretty chapel stands conspicuous among the groupings of other buildings which compose this vast establishment, in which religious service is held every evening in the week, beside twice on the Sabbath day. Here too is the place where so many suffering martyrs are borne to have the solemn funeral rites performed by one who represents a friend indeed, for those who cannot be present to witness the accomplishment of the last sad duty. Nearly every day for the past two weeks many have been deposited here for funeral service; fifteen more bodies were laid before the chancel to-day to have the solemn ceremony read over them; indeed every day some one, or more are borne from this house to the burial lot, where you may at any time find friends searching for the names of loved ones. The Chaplain is most assiduous and faithful in the performance of his charge, and every heart at home may rejoice that such an one is stationed here for this responsible and sad duty. So far as a visitor can judge, there is no lack of care from any one engaged in this hospital; women nurses hold an honorable rank among the sick; detailed soldiers also render important assistance to them. Miss Howe, of Boston, one of the chief nurses, does much to comfort the soldier, in her wards; she often spends the twilight of the day in playing many sweet and choice hymns on the melodeon, which soothe and cheer the weary and depressed patients. Miss Clarke also renders excellent service to the men so lately arrived from Southern slavery. I have met her in the tents with an encouraging word for each, and a kind promise for the morrow, while busily directing and stamping letters for them.

At this hospital too, is found the Sanitary storeroom, on a larger plan than I have before seen it; every appliance that can be devised by the numerous friends at distant homes, is here represented. Delicacies of great variety, wines, cordials, restoratives, form a large per centage of the needfuls, to say nothing of the clothing that abounds, all of which is distributed with much care.

The government supplies are in much greater variety, and more abundant than formerly, yet there are times when it is necessary to supplement the government. For this purpose the wise foresight of the Sanitary Commission has provided a full amount in large variety, so that no matter what accident may befall the government supplies or transportation, the soldiers shall have a second chance, if the first fails. This strikes us as among the most important features of the Commission—to anticipate want—to be prepared for it.

PRISONERS' FUNERAL.

Attended the funeral of forty-two soldier prisoners, who had died on their passage home. None can tell the sadness of such a scene but those who have been present on a similar occasion. Fourteen ambulances stood at one time before the "Dead House" to receive the bodies, which were placed in coffins, and each one marked with name, regiment and company to which deceased had belonged. They were then carried to the wagons, three in number being assigned to each. Four men accompanied each ambulance, and moved slowly on toward the chapel, preceded by a band of musicians who sounded their usual mournful dirge, till all had drawn up in front of the building where service was to be performed.

A promiscuous company had assembled—ministers, surgeons, officers, and comrades of the battle-field and prison were gathered about the place. Women, who represented mothers, wives and sisters were there, and sang with pathos several beautiful hymns.

Chaplain Henries read, in an audible voice, the names of the dead, as corresponding with those on the coffins before us. He was followed by another minister who addressed those present, and offered an appropriate prayer.

The procession then wended its way slowly through the town to the cemetery, distant two miles, the musicians leading the train, followed by an escort, the chaplain on horse, and soldiers walking as pall-bearers by the side of the ambulances.

While we witnessed this sad ceremony entrusted to stranger hands, I was much impressed with the great order and solemnity that pervaded the occasion, and wished that all the mothers in the land, whose sons had been sacrificed in the strife of battle, could know how faithfully and tenderly the last duties to their loved ones were attended to. The pastor at home was represented by the chaplain, the family by sympathizing friends, the neighbors and associates by those who had been comrades with the deceased in camp or in battle, in prison or in hospital, and now followed them to their final resting place, and the soldier, no longer a prisoner, but released from the slow torture of hunger and disease, was laid away forever.

After all were interred, the musicians gathered near, and in plaintive melody united in the hymn, "Come, ye disconsolate," after which the chaplain read the burial service, prayed for those about him and the anxious ones at home, who yet knew not what sorrow awaited them. The body-guards, or escort, then came forward, and, according to military custom, fired a volley three times over the graves of the departed, and, with uncovered heads, passed in single file along the row of open sepulchres and resumed their march to the hospital.

FLESH EXTRACT FOR THE DIET OF FEVER PATIENTS.

Half a pound of fresh beef or fowl, minced fine, without fat, is macerated one hour in a pint of cold water, to which four drops of strong muriatic acid (hydrochloric acid) and a drachm of salt have been previously added. Strain through a jelly bag or fine lawn sieve, and if to be very nice, filter through coarse French filter paper. No fat globules or muscular fibres are allowable in the filtered liquid. To improve its flavor, a pinch of allspice or mace (ground) may be thrown into the mince, and to the filtered liquid add, if desired, two or three teaspoonfuls of good sherry wine. This soup may be administered in doses of two drachms once in two hours, and oftener in convalescence.

B. S. SILLIMAN.

NORTHWESTERN SANITARY COMMISSION.

Branch of U. S. Sanitary Commission, Rooms No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

FINANCIAL REPORT,

From the organization of the Commission, November 4, 1861, to December 31, 1864.

I.—SUPPLIES COLLECTED.

During the three years and two months existence of the Commission, there have been donated, collected, purchased, packed and forwarded through its agency, for distribution to our soldiers in the hospitals, armies and on the battle-fields, sixty-eight thousand eight hundred and three packages of Sanitary and Hospital supplies. Of this number there were sent directly by the people from their homes to the soldiers, 27,681
The remainder contained supplies purchased, as stated below, 41,122
—————68,803

II.—OF WHAT THESE SUPPLIES CONSISTED.

These supplies consisted of articles of diet, medical supplies, clothing, bedding, bandages, hospital furniture, ales and liquors.

III.—THEIR APPRAISED CASH VALUATION.

The appraised cash valuation of these supplies at the respective dates of their receipt by the Commission, amounts to the total sum of $964,059 71

Classified as follows:
Articles of diet and medical supplies, . . . $337,871 14.
Clothing, bedding, bandages, &c., . . . 558,023 83
Hospital furniture, cots, mattresses, stoves and fixtures, washing machines and wringers, table furniture, &c., . . . 16,800 44
Ales and liquors, . . . 8,974 30
1,413 boxes received by the Commission, without accompanying invoices, appraised cash value, . . . . . 42,390 00
—————$964,059 71

IV.—FROM WHERE RECEIVED.

The 27,681 packages above mentioned—received directly from donors—came from the following sources:

|                                              | Pkgs.  |
|----------------------------------------------|--------|
| Illinois, . . . . .                          | 9,593  |
| Wisconsin, . . . . .                         | 6,969  |
| Iowa, . . . . .                              | 4,085  |
| Michigan, . . . . .                          | 5,264  |
| Indiana, . . . . .                           | 369    |
| Ohio, . . . . .                              | 22     |
| Minnesota, . . . . .                         | 266    |
| New York, . . . . .                          | 87     |
| Pennsylvania, . . . . .                      | 4      |
| Through "Board of Trade," Chicago, . . . . . | 855    |
| Unknown, . . . . .                           | 167    |
|                                              | 27,681 |

V.—TOTAL CASH RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.

The total amount of cash received by the Commission since its organization, is $307,390 55
Total amount expended, . . . . . 287,479 76

Balance in the hands of the Treasurer, as per certificate of Auditing Committee, dated December 31, 1864, $19,910 79

VI.—FROM WHERE RECEIVED.

The above amount of cash collected—$307,390 55—was received from the following sources:
Citizens of Chicago, . . . . . $40,331 13
State of Illinois, outside of Chicago, . . . . . 55,541 68
Iowa, (of which amount, $48,348, was the proceeds of the Northern Iowa Sanitary Fair, held at Dubuque, September, 1864, . . . . . 50,229 40
Wisconsin, . . . . . 8,597 86
Michigan, . . . . . 7,901 28
New York, . . . . . 1,054 75
Connecticut, . . . . . 659 78
Minnesota, . . . . . 565 02
Tennessee, proceeds of Ladies' Fair at Memphis, . . . . . 398 31
Indiana, . . . . . 220 53
California, . . . . . 203 45
Pennsylvania, . . . . . 100 00
Nebraska, . . . . . 11 60
Utah, . . . . . 5 00
Missouri, . . . . . 3 40
Berlin, . . . . . 10 00
Bavaria, . . . . . 8 00
Soldiers in the Army, . . . . . 20 05
Proceeds of sale of cotton, donated to the Commission by Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, . . . . . 1,752 20
Net cash proceeds of N. W. Sanitary Fair, held in Chicago, Oct. 1863, . . . . . 75,100 27
U. S. Sanitary Commission, expended in purchase of potatoes and onions, shipped to army in Tennessee and Georgia, . . . . . 47,168 58
U. S. Sanitary Commission, expended for salaries of agents and nurses, . . . . . 3,526 55
Amount received from "Hospital Fund" of sundry hospitals, and expended for purchase of supplies as requested by surgeons in charge, . . . . . 8,654 69
Amount specially contributed for the relief of Union refugees, . . . . . 1,829 52
Amount contributed by friends in Huntsville, Ala., for relief of prisoners at Camp Douglas, and

|                                                                                               |              |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| handed to officer in command, . . . . .                                                       | 108 00       |
| Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., amount received for "Savings," up to December 1, 1864, . . . . . | 6,398 50     |
| Total receipts, . . . . .                                                                     | $307,390 55 |

VII.—ACCOUNT OF EXPENDITURES.

The total amount of cash disbursements, as above stated—$287,479 76—during three years and two months, was expended as follows:

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |            |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Supplies, hospital and sanitary, including articles of diet, medical supplies, clothing, bedding, hospital furniture, ales and liquors, purchased and forwarded to the hospitals, army, battle-fields, and Soldiers' Homes at Chicago, Cairo, Columbus, Paducah and Memphis, $230,645 02 |            |
| Material for hospital garments, made up at the sewing-room, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | $9,162 20 |
| Cost of making up into shirts, drawers, socks and eye-shades, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 758 79     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 9,920 99   |
| Appropriations to Soldiers' Home, Chicago, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | $6,000 00 |
| Appropriations to Soldiers' Home, Dubuque, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1,000 00   |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 7,000 00   |
| Salaries of agents and nurses in the field and at post hospitals, and their travelling expenses ($1,779 84) . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                    | 8,965 79   |
| Clerk hire at rooms of the Commission, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 6,178 52   |
| Labor, for handling, unpacking, distributing, marking and packing goods at rooms, loading cars at railroad stations, cleaning, painting and fitting up of office and warehouse at Chicago, and labor at Soldiers' Home, Cairo, . . . . .                                                  | 4,562 27   |
| Drayage, Express and freight, including drayage on goods to and from railroad stations, Express Company's charges on money and goods, and freight charges on goods, . . . . .                                                                                                             | 6,383 91   |
| Stationery, including paper, envelopes, wrappers, pens, ink and blank books, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 180 29     |
| Printing Circulars advising of supplies needed, &c., reports of army inspection, reports of receipts, shipments and disbursements, direction cards, letter and envelope headings, labels, blank receipts and advertisements, . . . . .                                                    | 4,290 21   |
| Postage on letters and documents, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 1,229 15   |
| Telegraphing, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 203 93     |
| Warehouse and office furniture and fixtures, including signs, locks and keys, chisel, watering-pot, pails, maps, chairs, oil cloth, desks, saws, hatchets, skids, matches, and carpenter work, . . . . .                                                                                  | 205 91     |
| Rent of office, warehouse and sewing-room, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1,306 64   |

|                                                                                                                                                                                                           |              |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| Fuel, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                           | 285 72       |
| Sewing-room Expenses—                                                                                                                                                                                     |              |
| Brushes, tables, shears and scissors, pail, brooms, pitchers, dust pan, wash bowl, chairs, stationery, needles, machine oil, soap, screw driver, carpenter work, and repairing sewing machines, . . . . . | 141 51       |
| Amount advanced for proposed "North-western Sanitary and Soldiers' Home Fair," . . . . .                                                                                                                  | 505 33       |
| Agents and nurses of the U. S. Sanitary Commission paid from funds received for this purpose, . . . . .                                                                                                   | 3,526 55     |
| Union refugees, amount specially contributed for this object, . . . . .                                                                                                                                   | 1,840 02     |
| Camp Douglas, prisoners, amount received for this purpose, . . . . .                                                                                                                                      | 108 00       |
| Total expenditures, . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                             | $287,479 76 |
| E. W. BLATCHFORD, Treasurer.                                                                                                                                                                              |              |

NECESSITY OF SANITARY COMMISSION'S CONTINUANCE.

Extract from Report of DR. M. M. MARSH, dated Beaufort, S. C., Dec. 26, 1864, relating to the recent advance of a portion of Maj. Gen. Foster's command towards the Charleston and Savannah Railroad.

* * * The present Expedition, now four weeks in progress, has been very exhaustive of stores. From the 30th of November to the 6th of December the entire sick and wounded subsisted upon the Commission. This condition of things resulted from a lack of commissary stores for the first four days; the remaining two, from the slow working of the machinery necessary to draw rations after arrival on the ground. The drafts upon clothing, too, have been disproportionate to the number of men. All were ordered upon the field in light marching order, i. e. with rubber blankets only, and many of the regiments were even unprovided with these. They were ordered to take five days food only, with the expectation of returning to camp at the expiration of that period. Food was obtained from the surrounding country, in part, but the underclothing worn from camp, was the only clothing aside from the issues by the Sanitary Commission, for three successive weeks, for almost the entire army. And during this period was experienced a storm of wind and rain of unusual length and severity, and the mercury for two successive mornings down to 24°. Our issues of shirts, drawers and socks exceeded three thousand each, and blankets proportionate; but these last will, to an extent, be returned, as their own are obtained from their previous camp, or the deficiency drawn from the Quarter-master. * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CORRESPONDENCE.
 Interesting Letters from Annapolis, by Mrs. Parrish—(Naval Academy Hospital, Prisoner's Funeral).... 985

REPORTS.
 Extracts from Report of the operations of the U. S.
 Sanitary Commission in the Valley of the Mississippi, for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1864, by Dr.
 J. S. Newberry, Secretary Western Department... 966
 Special Relief Report from Boston, by Jno. S. Blatchford..... 978
 Report of Special Relief Work in Washington, by J.
 B. Abbott..... 979
 North-Western San. Com. Financial Report, from the organization of Com., Nov. 4, 1861, to Dec. 31, 1864 987

MISCELLANEOUS.
 Women's Central Association of Relief, No. 5—Quarterly session of the Sanitary Commission in Washington..... 961
 Bedding for Hospital use..... 962
 Directions for Hospital Clothing..... 963
 Home Duty, Wife and Sanitary..... 964
 The work of a great people..... 965
 Nine Soldiers' "Homes"..... 973
 Women's Council in Boston..... 973
 Flesh Extracts for diet of fever patients, by B. S. Silliman..... 987
 Necessity of Sanitary Commission's Continuance—Extract from Report of Dr. M. M. Marsh, Beaufort, Dec. 26, 1864..... 988

EDITORIAL.
 Ambulances..... 980

PROTECTIVE

War-Claim Association

OF THE

STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
 NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HON. HAMILTON FISK, ADMIRAL DUPONT,
 JOHN J. CISCO, Esq., RUD. A. WITTHAUS, Esq

TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HONS. E. D. MORGAN,   | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLOWES, D.D., | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to

HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
 35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
- A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
- F. L. Olmsted, California.
- George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
- Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
- W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
- Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., Cambridge, Mass.
- S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
- C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
- J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
- Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
- Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
- Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
- Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
- Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
- Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
- J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
- Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
- Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
- A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
- George T. Strong, Treasurer.
- J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
- J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

- |                        |                     |
|------------------------|---------------------|
| Henry W. Bellows, D.D. | George T. Strong.   |
| Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. | Wolcott Gibbs, M.D. |
| C. R. Agnew, M.D.      | Charles J. Stillé.  |

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

—Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.

Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

EAST.

"Special Relief" Office, 76 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

WEST.

Soldiers' Home, No. 81 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

Soldiers' Home, Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Louisville, Ky., James Malona, Sup't. James Morton, Special Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, New Albany, corner of Main and State Streets.

Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., C. N. Shipman, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Nashville, Tenn., Captain I. Brayton, Sup't. Rev. J. Hoblit, Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Columbus, Ohio, Col. Isaac Dalton, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Cleveland, Ohio, Joseph Jerome, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Lodge, near landing, Memphis, Tenn., C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Camp Nelson, Ky., Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Paducah, Ky.

BRANCH,

No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,

No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported

IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MOST ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.

C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U.S.A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept. 20, 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, SO FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE

The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.

The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.

Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices. Address

B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D.,

President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY,

OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y.

HON. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn. E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.

WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York. J. T. SANGER, New York.

JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,

No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILLCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

OFFICE OF THE
M O R R I S
FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE
COMPANY,
COLUMBIAN BUILDING,
CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

---

Authorized Capital, - - - $5,000,000.
Cash Capital, paid in, - - - $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

DIRECTORS.

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICCOX,
N. O. NIMS.

B. C. MORRIS, President,

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

F. S. WINSTON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Assets over Eleven and a half Millions of Dollars.

Policies known as "Non-Forfeiting," on the terms they express, on the Ten-Year plan, issued by this Company, possess advantages in profits and rates of premiums, greater than are offered by any other Life Company.

THE

Widows' & Orphans' Benefit Life Ins. Co. of New York.

LUCIUS ROBINSON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

Many of the Trustees and other officers of this Company are connected with the well-known MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, and the intimate and amicable relations between the two Companies, guarantee favorable results to Policy-holders.

Universal Life Insurance Company of New York.

JOHN WADSWORTH, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

This Institution has been formed for the benefit of those who, because of imperfect health, are unable to obtain policies in other companies. It thus meets the case of thousands who have been turned away disappointed in their efforts to provide for their families, and of a still larger number who have felt it useless to apply for insurance.

Every information may be had, on application, by letter or otherwise, to

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

Insurance against Accident by the

TRAVELERS' INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

CAPITAL, - - - $500,000.

JAMES G. BATTERSON, PRESIDENT.

Insurance effected in this Company against ACCIDENTS of every description.

Yearly Policies will be issued for a Premium of

Fifteen Dollars,

granting Insurance to the amount of

Five Thousand Dollars

against loss of life by any accident whatever:

Twenty-Five Dollars

secures a Policy for

Five Thousand Dollars,

together with $25 per week compensation for personal injury, incapacitating the assured from his ordinary business.

Fifty Dollars Premium

secures a Full Policy for $10,000 and $40 per week compensation for all and every description of Accident.

Policies for $500, with $3 per week compensation, can be had for $3 Premium, or any other sum between $500 and $10,000 at proportionate rates.

WM. W. ALLEN, Agent,

404 WALNUT STREET.

U. S. Sanitary Commission.

CLASSIFICATION OF THE FINANCIAL REPORT to October 1st, 1864.

In the "Cost of Purchasing Supplies" are items 1, 2 and 5 of "Supply Department."

In the "Cost of Gathering Supplies" are items 3 and 4, together with expenses of New York and Brooklyn Fairs.

As "Equipments on Hand," are counted the present value of horses, wagons, barges, etc.

As "Transportation," is reckoned the remainder of items 7 and 8.

Of the "Expenses of Field Relief Corps" ($176,088 79), one-third part is transferred to "Special Relief," so that "distribution on Field" consists of two-thirds of the expenses of "Field Relief Corps," and one-half the expenses of "Auxiliary Relief Corps."

The "General Expenses" are distributed among the several accounts, pro rata.

|                                        |                |                                                       |
|----------------------------------------|----------------|-------------------------------------------------------|
| Total Cash Expenditure.....            | $2,293,604 15 |                                                       |
| Transferred to Western Sanitary Com... | 50,000 00      | Value of supplies received in kind.....$7,134,661 15 |
| Cash in hands of Agents.....           | 64,027 90      | Cost of supplies purchased..... 1,200,579 29          |
| Balance in hands of Treasurer.....     | 615,166 03     | <hr/>                                                 |
| Value of Equipments on hand.....       | 60,326 50      | Value of supplies distributed..... 8,335,240 44       |
|                                        |                | Outlays not for supplies..... 1,093,024 86            |
|                                        |                | <hr/>                                                 |
|                                        | $3,083,124 58 | Total.....$9,428,265 30                              |

|                                 | Cost increased byProportional shareGeneral Expenses. | Percentage ofCash Out-lays. | Percentage oftotal suppliesdistributed. | Percentage ofTotal. |
|---------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------|-------------------------|
| Money paid for supplies.....    | $1,200,579 29                                               | 54.21                               | 14.92                                           | 13.19                   |
| Cost of gathering supplies..... | 86,657 13                                                    | 3.91                                | 1.08                                            | 0.95                    |
| Storehouse account.....         | 23,351 85                                                    | 1.05                                | 0.29                                            | 0.26                    |
| Transportation .....            | 192,404 40                                                   | 8.69                                | 2.39                                            | 2.11                    |
| Distribution on Field.....      | 135,992 53                                                   | 6.14                                | 1.69                                            | 1.49                    |
| Medical Inspection.....         | 119,985 69                                                   | 5.42                                | 1.49                                            | 1.32                    |
| Special Relief.....             | 309,796 94                                                   | 13.99                               | 3.85                                            | 3.40                    |
| Hospital Directory .....        | 47,564 94                                                    | 2.15                                | 0.59                                            | 0.52                    |
| Statistical Department.....     | 14,241 98                                                    | 0.64                                | 0.18                                            | 0.16                    |
| Publications .....              | 38,800 37                                                    | 1.75                                | 0.48                                            | 0.43                    |
| Office Salaries.....            | 45,504 72                                                    | 2.05                                | 0.56                                            | 0.50                    |
| Sum.....                        | 2,214,830 16                                                 | 100.00                              | 27.52                                           | 24.33                   |
| General Expenses.....           | 78,774 31                                                    |                                     |                                                 |                         |

Total Cash outlays...$2,293,604 15

Consequently, of the supplies distributed, 14.92 per cent. were purchased.

85.08 " " received in kind.

The cost of Supplies purchased was.....14.92 per cent. of supplies distributed and 13.19 of "Total."

|                                              |             |       |
|----------------------------------------------|-------------|-------|
| " " Gathering, Storing, Assorting, etc.      | ..... 1.37  | 1.21  |
| " " Transportation and Field Distribution    | ..... 4.08  | 3.60  |
| " " Medical Inspection                       | ..... 1.49  | 1.32  |
| " " Special Relief and Hospital Directory    | ..... 4.44  | 3.92  |
| " " Office Salaries                          | ..... 0.56  | 0.50  |
| All other cash outlays                       | ..... 0.66  | 0.59  |
| All cash outlays, except purchasing supplies | ..... 12.60 | 11.14 |
| The value of Supplies received in kind       | ..... 85.08 | 75.67 |

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 32.

PHILADELPHIA, FEBRUARY 15, 1865.

No. 32.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 63 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

FOR THE SOLDIERS.

BY A. E.

A CALL came up from the soldier's camps.

And sounded in our ears,

Above all the roar of the heavy guns,

And the ringing battle-cheers.

It said: "We are fighting for you, for yours,

In the forefront of danger we stand.

We are driving the ranks of the rebels back:

Will you lend us a helping hand?

"We give you all of our health and strength;

We are flinging our lives away;

Our days and nights, they are spent for you:

Will you give to us just one day?"

And the farmers afar, in the Prairie State,

Heard the call as it sounded by;

And they answered the voice from the far-off camps

With a cheerful, whole-souled "Aye!"

A little girl stood and watched the teams,

With their treasures running o'er,

With their loads of the full-cared, yellow corn,

Drive up to her father's door;

Till the rosy apples, and onions white,

And squashes, golden and round,

That the farmers brought of their hard-earned stores,

Lay heaped all over the ground.

And she said: "Oh, papa! I have nothing to give

That the soldiers would care to hold;

I am so sorry I am so small—

I have neither silver nor gold.

There is my doll, and my hoop, and all my toys,

But they don't want those, you see;

And they would not care for the games nor the books

Of a little girl like me.

"I think, papa, it is very hard;

I have thought all my playthings o'er,

And there isn't a thing they would want to take;

I wish I wasn't so poor.

I am sure there is nothing I would not give

To make their work some less—"

And here she stopped, for her little pet lamb

Was pulling at her dress.

They had played together—the child and lamb—

All the long, bright summer days;

It had shared her supper of bread and milk;

She had taught it its winsome ways.

It would run at the sound of its whispered name

To the mistress it loved so well,

As she loved it, her darling little pet,

Far better than I could tell.

She stopped, and looked in her father's face,

And her eyes grew large and wide;

Then she flung her arms round the lamb's soft neck,

And knelt down by its side.

And her eyes grew full of the blinding tears

That she could not wipe away;

And, "O papa! my darling lamb!"

Was all that she could say.

And closer and closer she held it then,

And faster the tears ran down,

Till she lifted her head and spake again,

Through the sobs that her words would drown:

"O papa! I never had thought of this;

It is all my own, you know.

O pet! you must go for our soldiers brave.

My darling! I love you so."

And, stronger growing: "Oh! yes, papa,

You must not look so grave.

Why, they give up their arms and lives for us;

It is everything I have!

It isn't much; I'm a little girl;

But perhaps, if you tell them so,

They will take it with all the bigger things.

O darling! I love you so."

I think the angels looked down from heaven,
 With tears in their shining eyes,
 At the tearful little upturned face,
 And the noble sacrifice.
 God love her, and bless her, and save the land
 That claims her among its brave,
 Who, 'mid their tears, with unflinching hand,
 Have given all they have!

AMBULANCES.*

(Continued from No. 21.)

An ambulance has recently been constructed by Dr. B. Howard, of New York, late of the United States Army, which seems to combine in an eminent degree the various advantages so much desired in vehicles of this description. (See diagrams in last No. of BULLETIN.)

1. To enable the badly wounded to be easily loaded and unloaded, two litters or beds are provided, made of wood, like an ordinary shutter, with sliding handles at each corner, as seen at figure A B C. Upon this the patient is easily shifted, and without any further disturbance. The litter is slid into the ambulance on rollers, g, figure F and H. In the same way the patient is removed on arrival at the hospital, and without being disturbed until he reaches his bed.

2. If part or all the patients are able to sit up, one, or both of the litters can be slid into a compartment provided for that purpose under the floor of the ambulance, as seen at figure H n, showing the interior with steel rollers in the floor of the compartment on which the litters slide. There are six permanent seats, each situated transversely, and each a corner seat with back and cushioned sides. This gives a comfortable purchase, secures the patients against much of the usual jolting, and prevents them being driven against each other in going over rough roads. The seats are let into the frame of the platform as seen at D h, F 8; the rollers being fixed about a quarter of an inch above them, so that the bed sliding on them do not chafe the cushions. The sides of the ambulance, as also both sides of the back of the driver's seat, and the inside of the upper section of the tail-board, are cushioned, while the middle seats have for a back a wide leather strap, like that used in stage-coaches; thus each seat is rendered very comfortable, and being transverse instead of longitudinal, is in every respect easier for the patient.

3. In order to diminish the motion of the body of the ambulance, and prevent rolling and pitching so intolerable in the ordinary ambulance, semi-elliptical springs have been substituted for the elliptical ones. These keep the body of the ambulance steady, and are very strong, while they have a limited elasticity.

4. In order that the limited motion thus obtained be so modified as to give least jar to patients, internal counterpoise springs are used, the delicacy of which may be modified to any extent desired.

The platform or frame on which the seats and beds rest, of which an internal view of one side is seen at D, and an external one at E, is as long but not so wide by about two inches, as the inside of the body of the ambulance.

Between the inside of the body and the frame of the platform, is an interspace, F pp, this is occupied by two lateral semi-elliptical steel springs on either side, fastened at the center of their arc to the inside of the body of the ambulance, as at F 10, the feet of which play upon iron plates on the outside of the frame E a. Opposite the center of the arc on the frame is fixed a block of soft rubber so that on the application of much force, it should be received by the rubber blocks which thus act as buffer.

The platform or frame on which the seats and beds rest, stands upon four iron stanchions, each of which rests on springs like the lateral springs described above, but much stronger, as seen at D. Figure D c, represents the iron stanchions resting on steel springs, the feet of which play upon iron plates let into the floor of the ambulance at c. The spring is restrained in its motion upwards by an iron staple, and when by an unusual weight it is pressed down heavily, the force is received by a block of soft india-rubber enclosed within the staple. An impulse communicated to the floor of the ambulance, instead of being propagated to the beds or seats, causes a counteraction downwards of the spring at d, which, if the force be very great, spends itself upon the block of rubber, d. In this way, both laterally and perpendicularly, a constant poise is preserved, and what would otherwise be a very violent jar is reduced to little more than a vibration. The steadiness of the entire vehicle is preserved by the stout semi-elliptical spring beneath the body, and the delicacy regulated to any degree by the internal counterpoise springs within the body.

* The statement in last BULLETIN that members of Commission constructed the ambulance is an error. Dr. Howard is the inventor.

5. That the water may be carried securely, immobility of the vessel containing it during transportation is necessary. This is effected by substituting for the casks in ordinary use, a tank, G, which slides into a grooved bed, and is secured by an ordinary fastening. The tank is made of wood, lined with zinc and bound with metal bands. It is readily accessible, the spigot protruding through the tail-board as in figure N and R 2, and is fully protected during loading and unloading by the upper section of the tail-board, which falls down over it.

6. In a military point of view, it possesses a great advantage in this, that beside the prescribed articles which may be carried in the driver's box, a large amount of medical supplies may be carried in the body of the ambulance, without interfering with the comfort of badly wounded patients.

There being but four stanchions, and these being close up to the side of the ambulance, the entire body beneath the platform is free for transportation of supplies. It is during the first few days after great battles, and on almost every occasion after cavalry engagements, that from the necessary absence of the supply wagons, the wounded are most likely to suffer. By packing hospital and other supplies, and thus occupying the available space in a certain number of these ambulances in each division and train, the proper care of the sick and wounded would not be impeded by the absence of the trains, everything necessary being always on hand sufficient to last for several days of active operations.

7. Although at first sight this ambulance might appear somewhat complicated, there is nothing about it which is liable to get out of repair. No spiral spring or anything of a fragile nature is introduced. One of the best guarantees of this may be the fact that in the construction of the first ambulance of this kind, and the one which was most fully tested, nothing except the blocks of rubber was used which was not found in old ambulances or otherwise on hand at the repair shops of the Army of the Potomac, in the field.

8. The various parts are so simple that any one of them being broken could be at once repaired in any ambulance camp or battery in the field. The internal springs which are more subject than any other part perhaps, to accident, consists simply of single leaves of the ordinary ambulance spring, and could be introduced or exchanged in a few minutes. Like the common ambulance, it is drawn by two horses.

There is an arrangement for suspension of fractures of the lower extremity, which is very grateful to the patients. Two parallel iron bars are attached to the roof of the ambulance longitudinally over each bed, between which runs a roller with a dependent hook. The fractured limb being placed in a double inclined plane, or other splint, a bandage is passed through terestra of the box splint, and then carried over the hook from which the limb is suspended.

In this way, instead of the jolting and jarring so commonly experienced, simple oscillation is substituted, or if desired, guys of bandage may be so extended to the uprights of the ambulance as to render the limb nearly motionless during transportation.

An iron looped rack and clasp K and L, are also fixed to each side of the ambulance in which stretchers of any size may be firmly carried without motion or loss during transportation.

We are indebted to Dr. Howard for the description of the plates, and have given it in his own language.

Ambulance Train.—There is a regimental ambulance train, a brigade, and corps train, with a chief over each. The rank of chief for corps is that of captain, for each of the others of first and second lieutenant respectively. They are all under charge of Medical Director.

Six stretcher bearers go with each regiment of not less than five hundred men, and two men with each ambulance.

It is the duty of the stretcher bearers to take the wounded from the field, and carry them to the ambulances, by which they are taken to the field hospitals, and as these become filled, to remove those patients who may be able to bear transportation to base or post hospitals, which are usually several miles distant.

DEFINITIONS.

People are often puzzled about the meaning of certain military terms, an understanding of which would afford them an intelligent appreciation of our military operations, and to meet this defect, we propose to give in the BULLETIN a series of explanations of a few technical terms used in the army, which we gather chiefly from the Military Dictionary of Col. H. L. Scott, Inspector General, United States Army.

Abatis.—(French,) are rows of felled trees, deprived of their smaller branches, the remainder being sharpened to a point, and employed for blocking up roads, defending houses, or isolated posts, as well as more formidable intrenchments or fortifications. When a road passes through a forest, the trees may be cut down on either side, and allowed to fall across it, so that their disengagement is rendered very difficult, and the road rendered impassable, as is seen in

Fig. 1.

In fig. 2, which represents an intrenchment, they are usually fixed in an upright position at the outer boundary of the ditch, (countersarp), so that they are concealed from the view of the enemy.

They are also placed at the foot of the slope, (glacis) in front of the works, the plane of which is broken so as to conceal the abatis from the view of the enemy, and to guard against obstructing the fire from the parapet, where the figure of a man stands with his musket.

Fig. 2.

Alarm Post.—Is the place appointed for every regiment or detachment to assemble in case of sudden alarm.

Approaches are the first, second and third parallels, trenches, saps, mines, &c., by which the besiegers approach a fortified place.

Apron.—A piece of sheet lead, used to cover the vent of a cannon.

Arm.—Infantry, artillery and cavalry are arms of the service.

Armorer.—The person who makes, cleans or repairs arms.

Artillery.—The word is more ancient than the use of gunpowder, and was applied to machines of war in very early times. "And Jonathan gave his artillery unto his lads, and said unto him, go carry them to the city." Javelins, spears, and arrows were the artillery of those days.

AUXILIARY RELIEF CORPS.

IT ORIGINATED

in the need of "personal service" by earnest men among sick and wounded soldiers. Up to the date of its organization, May 1, 1864, the Sanitary Commission had confined its work in the field mainly to the distribution of supplies upon the requisition of surgeons. In some instances, it had established temporary feeding stations after battles, but had never attempted organized systematic personal work in hospitals or among wounded on the field.

This the Auxiliary Relief Corps was designed to do, and has done.

WHEN?

Arriving at Belle Plain, with forty men, in season to meet the first wounded from the battle of the Wilderness, leaving a detachment there, the balance pushed on to Fredericksburg, where twenty thousand wounded arrived in twenty days. The Corps was increased largely by volunteers, and consisted, at times, of one hundred to one hundred and fifty men; devoted, earnest, self-sacrificing, saving, as we believe, many lives, and helping to restore order in that bloody chaos. Going on to Port Royal, White House and City Point, at all of which places, with four hundred different agents, at least seventy-five thousand patients have been served, between May 1, 1864, and January 1, 1865. The agents have represented all shades of religious opinion, and have been drawn from the various walks and occupations of life, and have consisted of Rev. Doctors, Professors, Surgeons, Divinity, Medical and Law Students, Merchants, Clerks, etc., etc.

The Corps now numbers thirty-five men, stationed in the 2d, 5th, 6th, 9th, 25th, Cavalry, and Post Hospitals, and Feeding Stations, at City Point and Point of Rocks.

WHY?

1. To ensure faithful, prompt and discreet distribution of supplies by the right men to the right men.

2. It makes the soldier feel he has a friend by his side, to hear his requests, grant them if in his power, be at once nurse, adviser, friend and brother.

3. Because we claim that, in this war, every soldier is our brother—more akin to us, for the time, than the son of our own mother. The one is ours by accident of birth; the other has earned his relationship by his noble service. He has fought for us, perilled for us limb and life, that we and ours may enjoy, in peace, both life and limb; that our Union may be unbroken—our nation intact.

4. Because we believe that such soldier brother is entitled from the people, the government and from us, to all of home comforts. We, as the representatives of the people, are called upon to strive for this. We shall fail to arrive at this high standard, it is incompatible with field service, but we have always this "high mark," to work up to, and ought never to be content while we fall below it.

5. Every one of these men should be presumed to be patriots. True, some have enlisted for bounties, some are ignorant and vile, but we must not inquire into the moral status of each man. We cannot stop for that. It would not be safe if we could. "Judge not," &c. 'Tis enough that we know here is a suffering man, whether white or black, in blue, grey or butternut, he needs our help.

6. Shall we do less for him than for the sick or wounded stranger found by the roadside at home?—fallen there perhaps, by his own imprudence, degraded, brutal even, but still a man. Do we not open our doors, public or private, and give him bed, fire, clothing, food, and personal comforts, and personal attention? Shall we do less for him who has fallen in the field in the noblest service?

Our premises granted, the claim allowed, the work has been done—

HOW?

What is the process?—As at present organized, this auxiliary work is confined generally to the Base or "Depot Field Hospitals," as they are called.

Arriving at City Point, for instance, with the army, as soon as hospitals are located, a relief station is established in each corps hospital, with five to ten agents, under charge of one of them as captain. They occupy, say three hospital tents, one each for store-room, sleeping-room and clothing. In addition to these are reading and writing-rooms for soldiers when opportunity offers.

To these stations supplies are brought daily from the Sanitary Commission Supply Depot or Barge, upon the requisition of the captain, who makes draft for supplies, according to the number of patients and their peculiar necessities. These requisitions are revised by the Superintendent of the agents who has a general supervision of the whole corps, assigning men to duty, transferring or relieving them, and conducting the correspondence with the other departments. A certain number of tents or wards are assigned to each agent, whose duty it is to visit them several times each day, according to the patient's needs, and to become acquainted with inmates, nurses, ward-masters and surgeons. These relations established, he ascertains the wants of each patient, and distributes to them personally the stores of the Commission, always, of course, subject to the direction of the surgeon; as no man or organization ought, in a hospital, to be independent of the medical authorities. Non-attention to this has caused much mischief, and created much of the prejudice heretofore existing towards civilians in the army hospitals.

The list appended to this, of articles distributed in November, by the corps will show the class of needs which are met.

It can be readily seen that such relations can be established between agent and patient, by his daily visits, at the bedside, as will enable him to learn precisely what is wanted, and how best to meet that want.

This list of course, does not include the distribution of supplies to the division and regimental hospitals at the front, or to the men in the trenches.

It should also be noted that the issues in November were smaller than during any previous month, since the campaign commenced. During the summer months they were at least double that amount.

PERSONAL AND VOLUNTARY SERVICE.

The personal service in addition to the distribution of supplies, consists of reading to, writing for, and conversing with the the patient, giving a cheerful air to the tent, relieving him of the tedium of sickness, and by many little attentions, giving him a taste of home comforts, by the brothers sympathy manifested.

This service is more acceptable from the fact that it is voluntary; for although the soldier nurse may be kind and attentive, the patient knows that he is assigned to that duty, that it is compulsory, while the corps agent is presumed to be there from no other motive than to relieve the suffering body and raise the drooping spirits. This distinction is fruitful of profitable reflections, valuable at home and in society, as well as in the army and in the hospital.

In addition to these duties, are the answers to be made to daily inquiries from the homes of the patients as to their condition, their last hours and burial places, arranging for embalming and forwarding bodies and their effects, and innumerable "little duties," apparently trifling in themselves, but productive of much comfort and consolation to patient and relations.

EMERGENCIES.

Besides this regular hospital service, the agents are called upon to feed wounded in trains, as they are brought in from the field, and to go at a moment's warning to a temporary field hospital, after battles, to supply immediate needs. A permanent Feeding station is maintained near the Hospital landing at City Point, to supply occasional needs of patients passing to the transports, and to be prepared for emergencies likely to arise in case of a repetition of the scenes of last summer.

THE SPECIAL DIET KITCHENS

in these base hospitals are furnished, by the relief stations, with many needed articles which Government does not supply; for instance, tomatoes, canned mutton and beef, canned fruits, dried fruit, lemons, crackers, jellies, chocolate, flavoring extracts, spices and certain cooking utensils, and oftentimes, when the Government supply temporarily fails, with milk, apples, white sugar, tea, pickles, corn starch, farina, &c., &c.

SHOULDERS TO THE WHEEL.

In a word, the Sanitary Commission believes that too much cannot be done for the sick and wounded soldier. It believes that the best personal service is due to him, and to illustrate that belief, the Auxiliary Relief Corps is at work.

The writer "knows whereof he doth affirm" when he commends the "Auxiliary Corps," a part of which he has been. He knows it ought to be appreciated and sustained, and he knows it will be, if the people appreciate and sustain the Sanitary Commission.

No man properly appreciates his duty who does nothing for his country in this crisis. Shoulders were not made alone to bear a knapsack or a gun. They must be put to the wheel. Every man should, either by his personal presence, or his pocket and his prayers, push on this work. The neglect to do it will be a cold record to read years hence. And let him remember, that if he has a friend or a brother in the army, he may yet need and receive friendly and brotherly care from the agents of the Commission. F. B. F.

NEW YEAR, 1865.

A VISITOR'S THOUGHTS.

What does the Sanitary Commission give to the soldiers? Shirts, drawers, socks? Yes, and much more. Preserved fruits, cordials and delicacies? Yes, but more than these.

Let me tell our friends of the North, that having just returned from a southern tour, and having had ample facilities of judging as to which of your many gifts was really the greatest blessing to the soldier, I am fully prepared to say, that the noblest service done by the Commission for the army is the bestowal of GOOD MEN as Relief Agents. I do not belong to the Relief Corps myself, therefore I feel no delicacy in speaking my mind. Down in the hospitals a man has no fictitious value, as men often have in our social system in the North. Down there, a man is seen at his true value, and the accidental accessories of dress are of no account. Keeping these facts in view, I wish our northern friends to know that there are many God-sent men among our agents—men to whom “the world is as dross”—men who are spending their lives and their private means in doing acts of mercy to “the boys.”

You are doubtless in the habit of reading in the BULLETIN the “reports” sent in by these men, but I assure you that these reports give but a poor idea of the many nameless deeds of mercy done by our agents daily; and they are not the men to blazon their charities in print. In fact they don't think they are doing anything at all, but seem to count themselves “unprofitable servants.” Good Mr. B., at Point of Rocks, told me one day with reference to his work among the sufferers, that he had got “calous,” and yet during my visit to that station I learned some things regarding his self-sacrificing devotion to the soldiers, that might well put to the blush many of the more flaunting and showy charities that are current in the world.

I could particularize many instances of large-hearted goodness that came under my notice down South. But I must not—it would be a desecration. These men ask no praise, and what I have said is forced from me by the barest justice. W. H. H.

The Army and the Commission.

LETTER FROM GENERAL SPRAGUE.

POCOTALIGO, S. C., January 19, 1865.

DR. M. M. MARSH,

Inspector U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.

DEAR SIR:—Your note of this morning is received, and the generous supply of sanitary stores you so kindly furnished to this command. We are surprised that you are able to supply us so bountifully. The good things shall be faithfully distributed among the troops.

God bless the Sanitary Commission and the noble-hearted people who sustain it.

Yours, truly,

J. W. SPRAGUE,
Brigadier General.

LETTER FROM A CHAPLAIN.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1ST CONN. ARTILLERY,
BROADWAY LANDING, NEAR CITY POINT, VA. }
January 7, 1865.

DR. W. F. SWALM,

Agent Sanitary Commission, City Point.

MY DEAR SIR.—It is with pleasure that I make this acknowledgment of the benefit which our Regimental Hospital has received from the stores of the Sanitary Commission.

From the 18th May to the 5th December, 1864, at which time I made out these statistics, we had 526 patients, of these 29 had died, 46 had been sent to the General Hospital and 414 had been returned to duty. The aggregate number of days of all spent in hospital was, to that date, 10,207, giving an average of 19.4 days for each patient. It is fair to estimate, that had the men been sent to the General Hospitals, they could not have found their way back under twice that time. The numbers and efficiency of the Regiment have been correspondingly promoted.

The stores of farina, corn starch and canned milk obtained from the Sanitary Commission have made up the deficiencies of the supplies drawn from Government. And the other liberal supplies of tomatoes, beef-stock, crackers, vegetables, lemons, pickles, shirts, drawers, socks, not to speak of many minor matters, have, in my opinion, greatly conduced to the comfort and quicker recovery of the patients. I am able to testify, on the authority of the hospital cook, that his department has never been so well supplied with an abundant variety, as it has during this campaign.

Thanking you Dr. Swalm, and the gentlemen connected with you at City Point, in the trying and delicate duties of the Sanitary Commission, for the unvarying courtesy with which I have been met and the readiness with which my requisitions have been filled, I have the honor to be Very faithfully yours,

S. FERMORE JARVIS,
Chaplain, 1st. Conn. Artillery.

The People and the Commission.

One of the grand results of the present war has been the development of the people in the direction of unity and fraternization. Union, not based on a dogma, but on the idea of nationality—Fraternity, not founded on a tradition, but on the fact of a common brotherhood.

The element in community that distracts the people from the idea of nationality, is that which has its source in local pride and jealousy. States have risen against the Nation from which they came and by which they were sustained.

The element in social society that diverts the people from the fact of a common brotherhood, is that which makes caste the judge of merit. Man has risen against his brother because circumstances have favored him with power and place.

The strife of these opposing principles, is the strife of right against might. The people are in it, to the full. It not only affects us in our political and social relations, but in our religious interests. Intolerance and bigotry, under whatever form, and by whatever name, are traitors against the common instincts of the race, as well as against the purest developments of the human mind: traitors as real, as are the political leaders of the National rebellion.

Our hospitals are crowded with men of all shades of religious belief. The Calvinist is there; the Arminian is there; the Hebrew and Romanist are there; men of no creed are there; men of deep thought and conviction, but with judgments in religious questions unformed, are there, as well as the thoughtless, heedless and profane.

What is the duty of the people towards these thousands of sick and helpless ones? They are our brothers, afflicted and needing care; not physical comfort only, such as watching and nursing can give, but such mental, moral and christian aid as the real heart and soul of the people can bestow, under the inspiration of their highest duty.

Has any individual a right, or any class or combination of individuals a right to assume the dictatorship in the matter of religious instruction? Has the Romanist a right to enforce his rosary or confession? Has the Hebrew a right to insist upon the observance of his peculiar faith? Has the Arminian a right to declare his message of free grace, or the Calvinist to claim that all are predestined to a doom that cannot be averted or avoided? The common sense and democratic sense of the people join, in the reply, that what is the right of one, is the right of all, and what is the right of all is equally the right of each; that in this matter of religious teaching, no class of people has any exclusive privilege, and that the Government has not recognized and cannot recognize any form of faith to be taught in the Army, to the exclusion of other forms.

The Jew and Romanist, the Universalist and Calvinist, the Unitarian and Arminian are each equally under the protection of the law, and each has the moral support of Government alike in the respective administration of their religious creeds among the soldiers of our army and navy.

One thing the people seem to forget in their zeal—it is this—that, though the soldier becomes virtually a machine physically, acting under orders all the time, drawing his very food and clothing by requisitions from the Government—going nor coming, sleeping nor waking, without leave—that he is still a responsible moral agent in the sight of his Maker. And though his movements are under the guidance of law, his instincts, thoughts, aspirations and inspirations belong to himself and his Maker alone. They forget too, that in the employment of these inner faculties, he is an independent being, that he has a right to draw from sources around him, such aliment as he prefers for the supply of his moral appetite. The iron rule of military order cannot check a single aspiration of his unscen nature, but in spite of all else beside, he will be a morally responsible being.

In dealing with him, we must ever bear this in mind, remembering that he is like ourselves, and that we are like him in this attribute of moral responsibility.

This great principle is fully recognized by the U. S. Sanitary Commission. While its work is eminently and essentially a Christian work, and the prevailing sentiment of its members, as well as the ruling influence of its deliberations is what is technically called orthodox or evangelical, there underlies it all, the great, broad, catholic idea of the brotherhood and equality of the race; while there rests over and above and around it, the bright cloud of mercy from on High, so that no state lines shall limit its action, or no denominational caste chill its benevolence.

It antagonizes no smaller or rival associations, but rather rejoices to witness the idea of unity and fraternity leavening to some extent all of them. Separate state agencies have nearly run their day, because this is a war for the union of states, and the war is fulfilling its mission. Other associations having also a narrower platform originally, find themselves, either dwindling into dwarfage, or under the elevating inspiration of the times, and of the spirit of the times, creating broader foundations, that are more enduring than traditional dogmas.

A GENEROUS GIFT.

A most pleasing donation was received by the New England Women's Auxiliary Association last week, from the boys in the Massachusetts School Ship. These boys who are inmates of a reform institution, had saved some spars which were drifting off in a storm; and the owners of the spars had presented them with fifteen dollars as salvage. This sum the boys, by a unanimous vote, presented to the Association. Considering the limited means of the givers, this is one of the most generous gifts which the Commission has recently received, and it is valuable as showing how universal is the sympathy felt for our good cause.

JANUARY 24, 1865.

NECESSITY FOR THE CONTINUANCE OF THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

Extracts from Report of L. V. BEEBE, concerning provision for sick U. S. Soldiers, exchanged prisoners, while in transit from Charleston, S. C., to Annapolis, Md., on Steam Transport, Northern Light, December, 1864.

The next morning after we were placed on different vessels at Fortress Monroe, I learned that Col. Mulford had been instructed by Gen. Butler not to receive any agents of either Commission. Of course as we were already in the fleet with our supplies and ourselves, the order came too late, and we were allowed to accompany the expedition. But suppose we had not been allowed to go? How would have fared those poor, starved, sick men, who are firstly entitled, not only to sympathy, but to every attention the Government can bestow upon them. For the Steamship "Northern Light" nothing but the army ration was provided, except fifty pounds of split peas, fifty pounds of rice, and a small quantity of corn starch and farina. (This was the Hospital Boat.)

The army ration, hard tack, bacon, ham and coffee for sick men! For men, most of whom could not masticate such food, and none of whom had stomachs fit to receive it. To give it to them, though they craved it, would have been poison to nine-tenths. Indeed I have no hesitation in saying that I believe men did die on that ship because they did have small bits of meat. As for the other few articles enumerated above, how far would such a limited quantity go among so many men, particularly, when we had from two hundred to six hundred on board, from the seventh to the seventeenth, ten days.

Nothing but army rations were provided for the officers, (many of them right from the hospitals), and they would have had nothing else, if I had not supplied their table with tomatoes, pickles, onions and soft crackers. I had also supplied them with some articles of clothing, handkerchiefs, towels, &c. The beans, only half a barrel, saved from the rations provided for the Rebels, were all we had. I asked Dr. Fry, Surgeon in Charge on the "New York," for more, but could not get them, and before we arrived at Annapolis we were dependent on the ship for lanterns, as I had asked for candles, but could not get them.

Of the provisions supplied by government, nothing could be used except the coffee, the rice and the peas (fifty pounds only of each) and the small quantity of corn starch, all not being enough to supply these men two days. Hard tack could only be used in soup. Of all provided, there was nothing which could be used, of which there was enough, except the coffee. But suppose there were sufficient quantities of the other articles, are these the only requirements in addition to medical stores, for a hospital boat? The Sanitary Commission was a Godsend to these men, and but for it, the mortality which was fearful, would have been terrible. They lived on the Commission, and without, many could not have survived.

Col. Mulford and Dr. Fry invariably treated me civilly, even cordially, and I am indebted to them for the kindness to the Commission, through me.

But there are many things about the fitting out of the expedition and the manner of loading ships for the return, that seem to me quite wrong. The expedition was not properly provided with supplies, if it was not expected, that the Sanitary Commission would accompany it. * * *

Extracts from Report of DR. GEORGE A. BLAKE, concerning assistance to exchanged prisoners of war, U. S. Soldiers, en route from Galveston, Texas to New Orleans, Dec., 1864.

In my letter of the 16th inst. I promised a longer letter by the mail and a history of my trip to Galveston. When our Agent of Exchange effected an exchange at the mouth of Red River, an account of which you have had from Mr. Stearns, an exchange was agreed upon, by which all the prisoners confined in Camp Grace, Texas, were to be delivered in Galveston Bay, Dec. 10; at that time the number was little over five hundred. Camp Grace is two miles from the village of Hampstead, near Houston. Many of the prisoners confined there were sent from Camp Ford at Tyler, for more secure keeping, as many had endeavored to escape from Tyler and were re-captured. Camp Grace is situated in a very unhealthy location and many of our men died, so that we received only 342. We left here on Steamer "Clinton" on the evening of Dec. 8, and arrived at the blockading fleet off Galveston, Commodore Emmons, commanding, on the 10th, at 1 o'clock, P. M. * * *

Our prisoners were in a pitiable condition, many had no shirts, no drawers and bare feet, none had a decent blanket, and their general appearance indicated a great scarcity of soap and water in the Confederacy, as well as facilities for clothing adequate to the changing temperature. The men were all pinched up with the cold, and were an exhibition of extreme poverty. To the bare-footed, I gave socks and slippers, to the shiftless, wool shirts, and tobacco and milk punch to all. At night it was cold, the men were stowed between decks, a place arranged for transportation of horses, and a large demand was made for blankets.

Before leaving the city, I learned that nothing had been provided for the men except army rations and transportation. By request of Agent of Exchange for this Department, I took with me 350 blankets which I was able to distribute to the men, giving each a blanket. Here was a place and a time, when and where the comforts of the Commission were specially required and appreciated. Suppose I had had no blankets—no shirts—no socks? they certainly could not be made aboard ship in mid ocean, they could not be had at any price. I can assure you it gave me no little pleasure to distribute blankets on that cold, inclement night. If the patrons of the Commission could have seen how much comfort was afforded those suffering heroes that night, two mites would be contributed where one was given before. One man died on the trip and was buried at sea with military honors. No chaplain being present, by request of Col. Dwight, our Commissioner of Exchange, I read the burial service. Many others had not lived to reach their homes, were it not for the timely gifts of the Commission. After our arrival in the city, the men were quartered in Camp of Distribution, where I served to them fresh vegetables, and provided each man with a plate, a tin cup, knife and fork, and a spoon, not furnished by the Quartermaster. * * *

LETTER FROM NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, January 10, 1865.

MR. ROBERT T. THORNE,

Ass't Sec., U. S. Sanitary Commission, Louisville.

DEAR SIR:—Since my letter to you of the 28th ult., the sanitary stores consigned to me for benefit of Union Prisoners of War at Cahawba, have all come to hand, excepting two boxes of tea; the same omission was noted on invoice I received from Mr. Shipman at Cairo.

I had opportunity through the courtesy of Col. Dwight, our Agent of Exchange, to accompany those stores to Mobile Bay, where I met Major Correll, referred to in the correspondence you forwarded to me. He was very willing to receive the stores, but had no transportation for them to the city. The steamer I was on ("St. Mary") received 603 rebel prisoners at Ship Island, being the remnant of the garrison of Fort Gaines, captured August 8, 1864, to be delivered to rebel authorities in exchange for those we received from Camp Grace, Texas, via Galveston, a few weeks previous. Judging from appearances, the rebel quartermaster's department must be at low ebb, as the prisoners were received in two flat-boats and eleven yawls, towed by a small steamer, apparently built to run in a heavy dew. Major Correll was very gentlemanly and was perfectly willing to receive the stores and forward them to Cahawba. To receive the stores at that time was entirely impracticable; if our steamer would wait until next day, he would come out and receive them; that was impossible, as the steamer could not be delayed, and we turned homeward. I intended to leave the stores at Fort Morgan, in charge of Lieut. Col. Clarke, 6th Mich. Art., but the wind was blowing a gale, which prevented our landing at that point. The stores are now safely deposited in my store-room. Negotiations are in progress, whereby both parties, Union and Rebel may amply provide for the wants of all prisoners. Two weeks since 1200 suits of clothing were sent to Cahawba, Ala., per arrangement negotiated by Gen. Washburne and Capt. Henderson, U. S. A., at Memphis in November last. A portion of the contract made by these two parties was annulled by the officer in command at Mobile, and the Union officer who was to go to Cahawba, Ala., by the terms of the contract, with Capt. Henderson, was stopped, and not allowed to proceed beyond the obstructions in the Bay. Our officers in the Navy say the boxes of clothing forwarded from this department, were allowed to remain on the wharf unguarded and unprotected from the rain, for eight days, before they were sent forward to their destination.

I regret exceedingly the failure of my attempt to forward the stores consigned to me. I am assured, however, by Col. Dwight, our Agent of Exchange, that every possible facility will be afforded to forward these stores hereafter.

The two half chests tea were missing. I contributed one half chest from my own stores. I shall avail myself of every opportunity to forward the stores, that they may reach our men in captivity at Cahawba, unless otherwise ordered by you. I hope Dr. Newberry will be able to send me another lot of vegetables, as my store-room is empty, and the demand constant. About fifteen thousand troops arrived from Memphis last week, they rendezvous at Kennerd, about fifteen miles distant, on the Jackson Railroad; Gen. Steele in command; their destination is problematical.

Regretting I can give no better account of my stewardship,

I am, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

GEORGE A. BLAKE.

LETTER FROM SAVANNAH.

HOSPITAL, 15th A. C. }
SAVANNAH, GA., January 17, 1865. }

DR. J. FOSTER JENKINS,

DEAR SIR:—On arriving at Hilton Head after a pleasant voyage, we were informed that the Agent of the Sanitary Commission from Savannah had gone to Beaufort for supplies, consequently not thinking it necessary to stop, we took steamer the same evening for Savannah and arrived here on the morning of the last day of the departing year. We learned that Mr. Hoblit, the Sanitary Agent with Sherman's Army, had gone to Beaufort.

Anxious inquiries were daily made by Surgeons, other officers and patients for sanitary goods. The men coming from their six weeks campaign, with no changes of garments, were in a sad condition, and deprived of the luxuries that had strewn their path through Georgia, and on short allowance of hard bread and pork, they longed for the help your Society would joyfully have given.

Mrs. P. was ready to fly to Beaufort for them, but waited, believing that Mr. H. would soon arrive with them.*

At length a vessel with 400 packages of sanitary goods was announced by the Medical Director, as being at Thunderbolt Bay, four miles off. Still we could not answer the earnest question, "When will those treasures be here?" or meet the wants of our emaciated patients, fearing some would die for want of suitable nourishment. We could get some poor oysters in the shell, and had a few cakes of chocolate. With these Mrs. Porter comforted many. One noble dying soldier said the first day of our arrival, with eyes swimming with tears, "Oh, it does me so much good to see a lady here!" In two days he died, sustained by a joyful, Christian hope. His last words, as he threw his arms around his kind nurse were, "John, I love you." There was a great rush to Mr. Hoblit's rooms, when at length his goods were opened, and every hospital and every patient was made a joyful participant of those luxuries and absolute necessities. Never were sanitary stores so fully appreciated; though happily we had not the wounded from the sanguinary field, as the conquest of Savannah had been almost bloodless. While the prisoners taken here in their Rebel hospital, were lying on soft mattresses and in clean sheets and bed garments, ours were lying on floors, in their war-worn field garments, and the contrast was painful. Many of those prisoners were not over fifteen, and had been conscripted, who said, "If we can get home we will never take arms against the United States Government again." They testified that our authorities were feeding them well on substantial food, though some, as our own soldiers, longed for some of the Sanitary delicacies.

Our good friend, Mr. Hoblit, informs us that with General Sherman's approbation, a ship is appropriated to bring stores from your Commission, and that he is daily looking for a load from Beaufort. I trust we shall not be disappointed.

Mrs. P. is working for the present under great disadvantages, cooking farina, corn starch, &c., and making tea over a wood fire of green pine and using emptied cans for cooking utensils, as we are too tender-hearted to take from these Rebel dwellings stoves and all needed kitchen furniture; while our northern friends are generously shipping food for these same Rebels. Forgive us this wrong. It is difficult under such circumstances, to be angry and sin not.

The Surgeon-in-charge of this hospital has sent to Beaufort for medical stores, a cooking stove and kitchen furniture; if it comes we shall be greatly comforted.

Thanking you in behalf of our gallant Army, for all you have been able to do for it and for us personally,

I am truly yours,

JEREMIAH PORTER,

Chap. 15 A. C. Hospital, Savannah, Geo.

AN AXE TO GRIND.

A man who continually and loudly boasts of his piety or his orthodoxy, generally has an axe to grind. A man who in entering upon a business already successfully carried on by some one else aspires to become a rival of that some one, and who in an orthodox community constantly seeks to make the impression that said some one is an "infidel," very apparently wants that orthodox community to grind his axe.

The allegation has been, and is being made in many localities that the Sanitary Commission is an "infidel concern," and orthodox pastors and people are warned against supporting it there-because. Upon investigation it appears that friends of the Christian Commission, and, in some cases, agents of that organization have started this scandal. Of course we cannot suppose that the Christian Commission have authorized or could authorize such a procedure; first, because those gentlemen know that the Sanitary Commission is not an "infidel concern," and know that its work of feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, visiting the sick, and comforting the prisoner, is a work of genuine christian mercy; second, because they know that the circulation of such a report is unchristian; and third, because it is very bad policy. Our remarks are not intended for them; but they are intended for individuals who, either wholly ignorant of the matter of which they affirm, or, affirming against knowledge, so far depart from the precepts of Christ, and all the usages of honorable men, as to resort to the bad expedient of starting rumors which can only injure one good and christian cause, without ultimately in the permanent advantage of that which they uphold.

The Sanitary Commission has always extended cordiality and sympathy to the Christian Commission in its proper work, and has furnished its agents with supplies upon many a battle-field. It is not the purpose of these remarks to express any diminution of that sympathy. Neither is it their purpose to allow designing men to go scot free, who, wearing the garb of the Christian Commission as a guise, seek to aggrandize their own sectarianism by slandering the greatest relief association known to the military history of any nation, and one whose very deeds constitute the impossibility of its being "infidel," or opposed to His teachings who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

* This delay was caused by the difficulty in securing transportation.

TO SURGEONS.

A Comprehensive Medical Dictionary, containing the Pronunciation, Etymology and Signification of the terms made use of in Medicine and the kindred Sciences, etc., etc. By J. THOMAS, M.D. J. B. Lippincott & Co., 1864, pp. 700.

A pretty thorough examination of this work has satisfied us that it will fulfil the expectations which its title justifies. It emphatically deserves the name of Comprehensive, for though of moderate size, it is full and complete, not only in regard to strictly medical words, but includes those occurring in collateral sciences. To the botanical student in particular, it must prove most acceptable, giving both the definition pronunciation (the latter to be found in no other book,) of all the most important botanical terms, and laying down clearly the principles which should guide us in writing and speaking.

These are explained in an Appendix, pp. 677 to 680, which also contains a valuable table of Materia Medica, a very complete table of doses evidently prepared with the greatest care; also full and explicit directions for writing Latin prescriptions, besides an admirable chapter, giving the explanations of Latin terms and phrases occurring in Anatomy, Pharmacy, &c. This is one of the most important features of the work, and must prove invaluable to those whose misfortune it is to be wholly unacquainted with Latin and Greek, and to those also whose knowledge of these tongues is imperfect, either from defective instruction or from having become rusty by disuse.

In short, we can recommend this work as one of the best, if not the very best of Medical Dictionaries, in the important feature of pronunciation without a rival, and from its comprehensiveness, the fullness, clearness and conciseness of its explanations, and its general adaptation to the needs of the Physician, Medical Student and Pharmaceutist, calculated to be of great utility to all who avail themselves of it.

FROM ANNAPOLIS.

Incidents taken from the Report of J. B. ABBOTT, Washington, D. C., showing how the Sanitary Commission treats the friends of Soldiers.

1. H * * * A. B * * *, Co. E, 1st R. I. Light Art, discharged by special order, by emphasis of being a minor, at the request of his father, the boy having enlisted without his consent. No pay or allowance were given him, he was without money, was referred to the Commission for means to get home to North Scituate, R. I. Gave him a ticket to Providence, R. I.

2. Mrs. L * * * R * * * came from New York to Washington to look up her husband; has not heard from him since the battle of Gettysburg; no records can be found concerning him since then; the supposition is that he is dead. Mr. Forbes has ventured to make out her application for his pay, bounty and pension. She has been stopping at the Home for the Friendless for the last two months; desires to return to her friends in New York, but has not the means to get there. Gave her a ticket.

3. W * * * K * * *, a soldier's father. He came to Washington to look for his son, upon whom he is dependant, and from whom he has received no tidings for a long time. He was a member of the 51st N. Y. Vols. His father could find no record of him; has arranged with Mr. Bowne to ascertain, if possible, whether he is living or dead. He has no means to return home, resides at Framingham, Mass.; is very old and feeble, and much broken down with age, being 77 years old. Gave him a ticket to Boston. He was exceedingly grateful to the Commission for the kind considerations he had received.

Camp Parole Hospital, Jan. 20, 1865, by MISSES A. CARY AND S. L. PHILLIPS.

A pleasant and most welcome variety is at length presented in our daily rounds, by the very unusual number of vacant beds; the occupants having, in a majority of cases, left for the distant homes, that have so long mourned their absence, and many others having become so far convalescent, as to anticipate a speedy reunion with the far-off loved ones, while yet another class, happily few in numbers, have been borne to the soldier's grave. Sabbath morning dawned on the lifeless forms of two new victims. One young man had died very suddenly in camp. Another had lingered many days, while the anxious mother having been summoned, watches sadly and wearily, the sure approach of the dread messenger, who has accomplished his mission, and in sorrow, she returns with the precious relics to that bereaved home to which she had fondly hoped to bring again with joy, the cherished son and brother.

On Monday morning comes again, from two other wards, the too familiar message, that another, and yet another has slept his last long sleep. One of these had been brought in a few days since in a state of wild delirium. During a brief lucid interval, the thoughts revert to the dear ones at home and the anxious desire is expressed that some one will write to apprise them of his critical state, for he fears he cannot recover. To the question, whether living or dying, all will not be well, with an averted face and difficult articulation, he murmurs something of the six little ones who will become orphaned. Soon, reason is again dethroned, and before another mail a postscript must be added to announce to another stricken household, that the husband and father can return to them no more. A few others still remain, on whom death seems to have set his mark, yet among the convalescents are those who have been raised from the very brink of the dark river. Such an one who struggled for days apparently, with the king of terrors, seems rapidly recovering, and recent letters from a devoted wife and loving daughter, show how valuable to them is the life thus graciously spared.

January 27, 1865.

Through the instrumentality of skillful physicians and faithful nurses, attended by the blessing of God, a large number of the returned prisoners, that recently crowded our wards, have so far recovered as to have left for their respective homes; some few still remain in a critical condition, while some of the ward masters and nurses, have been prostrated by violent attacks of fever. One of these has just expired, after a few days' illness. One only, of the other inmates has, during the week past, yielded up his life—a victim to disease contracted in prison, and he has left precious evidence that his afflictions resulting in the death of the body, have brought life and immortal glory to the ransomed soul. Many of the convalescents have recently received intelligence from home, the first in many months. To some, these welcome missives have brought tidings of health and prosperity from those anxiously awaiting their return; while others have learned that during the weary months of absence, their homes have been invaded by disease and death, and the father, mother, sisters or beloved children, have been removed; never more to greet them with a welcome home. One affectionate son is informed that his father, to whom a letter had been addressed since his release, had departed this life more than a year since. Letters received from the friends of deceased soldiers often give a sad interest and variety to our work. A few extracts from one just received, may serve as a specimen: "Your welcome and precious letter, my dear Miss P., was received a few days ago, and should have been answered immediately, but I was taken suddenly ill, and at this moment can scarcely guide my pen, but feel that I can wait no longer to express my unbounded gratitude to you for the interest you took in my darling H. I thank God, that after months of untold suffering, he should at last have fallen into kind hands, where kind words reached his dying ear. You took my place by his dying cot. May the Saviour ever be near to support and comfort you and others who have cared for our dear son. Could you know the comfort your dear letter affords me, as I read it over and over again, you would feel repaid. The assurance that he had, as you trust, given his heart to God has been the only consolation that has calmed my aching heart. I did not expect when my boys entered the army, that they would return to me unharmed, but I little dreamed that one of them would be starved to death. I saw him in his soldier's coffin before he was exchanged to another, and oh! what a change since he left me full of life and health, saying: 'If I die mother, it will be glory, glory to die for my country.'"

From Camp Parole, January 28, 1865, by
GEO. A. MILLER.

I herewith most respectfully present my report for the week ending this day.

The weather has been extremely cold, and we are importuned many times every day for woollen under-clothes and blankets. It is hard to refuse the poor fellows, yet I have felt it my duty to do so, in a large majority of cases. They are men lately returned from furlough, right from home and friends, and ought not to come destitute. They went from here well clad, having a change of under-clothing, over-coat, blanket, &c. Many of them left these things at home, thinking to draw from the Commission all necessary articles. When convinced that such is the case, I find it difficult to hear the voice of duty say "give."

Thursday evening an effort was made to revive the "Military Temperance Society of Camp Parole." About thirty signed the pledge. I would that not only all soldiers, but all the officers, both in Camp Parole and in the army everywhere would both sign and KEEP a temperance pledge.

The "Soldier's Friend" is received, with many thanks, and is valued highly, as it well may be.

I have the honor to forward to you the report from the hospital, which, as usual, is full of interest.

Letter from Annapolis, January 28, 1865,
by E. C. GUILD.

I have the honor to submit herewith my report for the week ending this day.

On Sunday, the 22d inst., I had the pleasure of preaching, by invitation of Chaplain J. P. Hammond, in the Chapel of St. John's College Hospital. Service is conducted here after the manner of the Episcopal Church, and the beautiful psalms and prayers of the Liturgy never seemed to me more full of strength and comfort.

During the early part of the week, I was chiefly occupied with letters of inquiry, but found the search almost fruitless. Many men have been sent away during the week from both hospitals, discharged, on furlough, sent to the front, or transferred to Northern hospitals. A large number of the sick going North were delayed by the ice between Annapolis and Baltimore, and the surgeon in charge of the transport, tells me he was greatly helped by the supplies of stimulants with which we had furnished him. The number of paroled prisoners in the hospitals being so small, I have refrained during the latter part of the week, from making any inquiries, in the hope that a few days would bring us the first instalment of a new exchange, from whom I might have a better chance of getting news. But our hopes in this respect have been again and again disappointed. A few more escaped men, not more than twelve or fifteen, have arrived, that is all. On Thursday, 26th inst., owing to the quantity of ice in the river, a hospital boat from City Point put in here, and the men, about 300 in number, were admitted into the Naval School Hospital. Some very sick ones were among the number, but most of them were chronic cases, on their way to Northern Hospitals, and will probably remain here but a short time. Another most welcome accession was received at the Naval School Hospital, 150 men of the Invalid Corps, as nurses and hospital attendants. Permanent assistants of this sort have been greatly needed, and it is hoped that the want is now well supplied.

On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, in consequence of the blocking up of the approaches to Washington and Baltimore by the ice, the boats from Norfolk and City Point, bringing passengers to these places were obliged to send them here. Large numbers of soldiers discharged, or going home on furlough, were therefore poured in upon us, and the means of transportation by rail from this place being limited, many were delayed for hours, and some compelled to pass the night here. Having no facilities for issuing food to such large numbers, and no sufficient supplies, we were obliged to content ourselves with doing what we could, we distributed several barrels of crackers which were gratefully received. A good many applications for clothing also, we were able to fill, but the draft upon our stores has nearly exhausted them. Where any were obliged to remain for the night we were permitted to refer them to Captain Davis, the commanding officer of College Green Barracks, a most faithful officer, and a generous and noble-hearted man. Though unable to draw rations for so large a number of stragglers and unexpected applicants, he gave them what he had. We furnished him with a barrel of crackers, and a barrel of dried apples, which he tells me proved acceptable to the men, and they found comfortable lodgings there. At the office we have been able to assist the men in many little ways hardly deserving mention, yet greatly contributing to their comfort; giving them information about their transportation, and opportunity to sign their papers, supplying them with writing materials, &c. In this way we have tried so far as our opportunities allowed, to meet their unexpected call, and diminish the discomforts of those who have been delayed here in so unusual a manner.

Report from MRS. HOPE SAYRES, Matron of Home, Annapolis, Jan. 28, 1865.

I herewith respectfully submit the following as my report for the week ending January 28, 1865.

Meals furnished, 283; lodgings, 70. The "Home" has been unusually free of company this past week, as most of the soldiers have had furloughs, and have gone home. I presume our "Home" will soon be filled to its utmost, as three hundred poor sick and wounded boys have just arrived from Fort Fisher. Many letters of invitation will soon reach their homes, and loved ones will come with anxious hearts to meet their dear ones wounded and sick, having left home and friends to go forth to do battle. One lady came this week and found her husband had died. She expressed much gratitude to the Sanitary for providing such a home where she could come and find sympathizing friends. Hoping I shall have more of interest for my next.

BACK PAY—BOUNTIES AND PENSIONS.

We call attention to the notice of the "Relief Department," which is found among the advertisements in each number of the BULLETIN. Many soldier's widows, and all friends of the soldier will be interested to know what this advertisement announces. In explanation of this subject, we present the following article from the Washington Chronicle:

There are various departments of charitable labor in the Sanitary Commission, growing out of the necessitous cases which are daily presented for its care and assistance, among which, probably, there is no branch that involves more judicious labor and persistent effort than that known as the back-pay department. Many are the cases which millitate against a soldier, and frequently prevent him for months, and in many cases for years, from obtaining his hard-earned pay. Among which may be enumerated the loss of his descriptive list without which he cannot obtain his pay. There were at one time in a certain hospital in Philadelphia, not less than 1,500 men in this condition. They had been wounded and were helpless, and, while in that condition, with their other effects had been taken from them their descriptive lists. While endeavoring to get certificates of loss, many of them were removed to other hospitals, where, when pay-day came around, they would be found among those not mustered for pay. Thus have some poor fellows been unable to muster for pay for nearly two years.

The duty of the officer in charge of this bureau of the Sanitary Commission is, to visit the hospitals and take the statements in full of all such cases; fill out blanks provided for the same; have the soldier's signature thereto attached, together with the certificate of the surgeon of the hospital where the soldier is, and the date when last paid, with the name of the paymaster by whom the payment was made; forward these documents, together with all the evidence which relates to the case, to the Second Auditor, thence to the Paymaster General, and thence back to the surgeon of the hospital where the soldier is, after all which he is mustered in and paid. This work was commenced in the special relief department, presided over by J. B. Abbott, Esq., a year ago last October, and was then confined to Washington; but in the spring of this year it was extended to Alexandria and Baltimore; in June still further to Philadelphia, and it is designed to have agencies of this kind in every city of ten thousand inhabitants. As an evidence of the labor done in this branch of special relief, it may be stated that over seven thousand cases have been disposed of since the creation of the bureau; eighty letters having been recently written in three days in connection with this business. This, it should be remembered, is the work of one desk in the office of the United States Sanitary Commission.

A DESERVED TESTIMONIAL.

THE LOYAL TEXAS WOMEN AND THE SANITARY COMMISSION.

The following beautiful letter needs no introduction:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Jan. 1, 1865.

GEO. A. BLAKE, M. D.,
General Agent Sanitary Commission

SIR:—The loyal women of Texas who, by the exigencies of war, have been compelled to abandon their homes and property to take refuge in this (to them) strange city, though under the flag established by their fathers, cannot permit this day to pass without tendering to you their heartfelt gratitude for the generous assistance rendered by the Sanitary Commission, at your instance, to them and their children. Allow us to assure you that such evidence of care and sympathy for us in our destitute condition touches the heart and rekindles our love and affection for the "Glorious Old Union," to sustain which the fathers, brothers and sons of numbers of us are now battling.

Accept for yourself, kind sir, and those in whom you feel the deepest interest the well wishes and prayers of

Yours, gratefully,

|                    |                  |
|--------------------|------------------|
| EVELINE SAVOI,     | R. WATERMANN,    |
| CORDELIA SAVOI,    | M. RENNAND,      |
| JULIEN HICKS,      | LOUISE GEMBALLA. |
| ELIZA G. HICKS,    | C. BLOMBECK,     |
| E. DEKOURISON,     | CORTEINA MOREN,  |
| JANE ROUNDS,       | C. GONZALES,     |
| LOUISA JAMES,      | MARY MANDES,     |
| ANN LEE,           | H. WINTERS,      |
| MARY FLINN,        | LINA FINK,       |
| ELIZA J. STERLING, | ANNA MCCORMAC,   |
| NANCY STERRY,      | C. PETCHKE,      |
| JENNIE DUANE,      | DINA GROSS,      |
| HARRIET STERLING,  | A. WEINREICH,    |
| REBECCA JAMBOIS,   | FRANZISKA JEGGE, |
| LIZZIE DUKE,       | MARY PFEFFERLE,  |
| MARTHA DUKE,       | MRS. MURRAY,     |
| LIZZIE WATERMAN,   | MRS. STEINBURG,  |
| KATE HOLCEHISEN,   | MARY BURNS,      |
| JANE LEONARD,      | A. DREANE.       |

will be sold for fifteen cents a copy by the societies: the proceeds to be used in furnishing supplies for soldiers through the Sanitary Commission. Write to us for as many copies of the "Soldier's Friend" as you want. An account of the number sold will be required.

This week we propose saying something about organization,—about the organization of this Branch. It will be a dull chapter to many of you; but, if carefully studied, it will make the wheels of business run more smoothly in our future intercourse, and is therefore worth some attention. Perhaps too, our faith in your sympathy is strong enough to make us hope that you you may be as glad to know something about our daily work in these rooms, as we always are to hear about yours.

Among the many lessons which our work in this war has taught us, the value of organization and system has been one of the most prominent. Our eyes have been opened to its necessity as the work has gone on; and we firmly believe that the education of the women of this country, in the efficacy of systematic, concentrated effort, and in a willingness to do things according to rule and order, will not be among the least of the valuable experiences remaining to us at the close of the war. It has long been a settled fact that the spasmodic efforts of communities, made only after great battles, do not compare to the amount accomplished by a well-organized, steady-going Aid Society, either in the quantity, the quality, or the value of the supplies.

Nearly four years ago we began life as an association, in a little room in the second story of this building. The room contained two tables, one desk, half a dozen chairs, and a map on the wall. We had one man, who was, by turns, clerk, carpenter, porter and errand-boy. For many days we sent out circulars, wrote letters, looked out of the windows at passing regiments, talked about our work, at times hopefully, at times despairingly. At last, after what seemed a very long time, our first box came—from Orange, New Jersey. It was a great excitement. It was carefully carried up stairs, it was carefully opened, as carefully unpacked and examined. No box before, or since, ever underwent a closer scrutiny. We told everybody about that wonderful box, and were jubilant.

It would be too long a story to take you through the successive stages of our varied

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF. ORGANIZATION.—NO. VI.

With the present number of the BULLETIN, there will be sent to each of our contributing societies, a copy of the "Soldier's Friend," a little book, published by the Sanitary Commission. It contains valuable, practical, condensed information about the Commission; also an excellent selection of familiar hymns and patriotic songs. You may have already seen a notice of this little manual in BULLETIN, No. 30. Although prepared expressly for distribution among our soldiers and sailors, it contains so much valuable information for all, that we send you specimen copies, hoping that the book may thus be more widely circulated. Few will read it through without wishing to put a copy into the hands of every friend in the army and navy. We will furnish our contributing Aid Societies with as many copies without charge, as they think they may be able to dispose of. It is expected that they experiences, from May, 1861 to January, 1865. We will only say that, before that first summer was half over, we were obliged to move down stairs, because the boxes wouldn't move up, and our little office, ever to be associated with the cherished memory of that first box, was passed over to the ladies of our Registration Committee, at that time engaged in training and sending off one hundred nurses for the Washington and Alexandria Hospitals.

That one little room has gradually expanded into an office, 97 feet long, running through the building from one street to the other; a large store-room next door to it; three lofts for storage across the street, and a cellar. The man-of-all work has multiplied hims lf into two clerks, three porters and an errand-boy. That one box stands on our books at the head of a list of over 17,000 boxes, and the one hundred letters, which seemed so many in those early days, are lost among the thousands that have succeeded them. And so we gradually found ourselves launched in an enormous business, of a character entirely without precedent; and of such a nature that but few of the ordinary, long-established business rules could be of any service to us. We had to feel our way very carefully. Without a certain amount of organization and system, we would have been completely overwhelmed, and lost in irresistible confusion. As it was, we were all very ignorant that first summer, and made blunders enough. But as the work gradually increased, and changed, we kept pace with it; learning from experience and daily requirement, until we have finally adopted our present plan of organization. This meets the demands made by the work upon us now, though how long it will do so, the future can alone determine.

The direct object of our association at present, is the collection and distribution of hospital supplies. To obtain these supplies, each branch is allowed to adopt its own policy and plan of work, but in their distribution the branches are all subject to the order, and are under the control of the Sanitary Commission. The policy of this branch has always been to give the people the fullest information about the work and the wants of the Commission; its plan is to help them in their work, so far as is possible, through organization, by practical suggestions, active sympathy and other means.

In this article we propose giving you an account of the home organization of our branch; the next number will contain an account of its field organization.

The Woman's Central Association is at present divided into four committees.

I. Committee on Correspondence and diffusion of information, printed or otherwise.—This long name is expressive of the entire work of the committee. It aims at obtaining supplies through the diffusion of information. The work is subdivided into five departments, viz.: Organization; Correspondence; Document; Lecturing; the Press. The first includes the organization of our field, the appointment of Associate Managers, making out working plans, &c., &c. The second comprises the Associate Manager correspondence, and all correspondence not appertaining to the other committees, or to the officers of the Association. Through the Document department, the BULLETIN and other publications of the Commission are distributed. The Lecturing department includes making out the tours, and sending into the field, those canvassing agents assigned to the branch by the Commission. These gentlemen are not engaged by us, but are appointed directly from the Commission. The Press department comprises publication, writing for newspapers, the BULLETIN, &c. The committee is much aided in its work by a corps of volunteer aids, young ladies, of this city, who do a great deal of clerk-work, such as directing wrappers, copying, &c.

II. Purchasing Committee.—It is the duty of this committee to make purchases of material at wholesale quantities and prices, and to furnish it, at the same price, but in small quantities, to the Aid Societies. It has lately been furnishing material to 250 societies, at the rate of $7,000 a month, according to the proposition contained in our Third Annual Report. Mrs. J. A. Swett is the chairman of the committee.

III. Committee on Supplies.—This committee receives, acknowledges, unpacks, stamps, sorts, repacks and distributes all the supplies sent through the Association. The distributions are made by order of the Commission, or upon requisitions of surgeons of the local hospitals, approved by the Commission. We have also one Hospital Visitor, a lady, who visits the hospitals in and near the city, and draws upon us for supplies for them. Every week an account of the stock in hand is sent to the Central office of the Commission. The supply committee is very much aided in its work by a large corps of volunteers aids. These ladies do all the unpacking, stamping and repacking of all but the cellar supplies. The handling of the boxes requires the hired labor of three porters. Miss Ellen Collins is the chairman of the supply committee.

IV. Committee on Special Relief.—This committee attends to the wants of individual soldiers, who apply at the rooms for aid. It relieves only such cases as are not already covered by existing associations in the city. Many of the applications are referred to the New England Rooms, or Howard Street Home, both of these institutions being entitled to call upon us for supplies. Those wanting aid in the collection of bounty, back-pay, pension, or in need of employment, are referred to the Protective War Claim, No. 35 Chambers Street, now an agency of the Commission. Other cases of destitution, not coming under any known form of relief established in the city, are investigated by the committee, and relieved. Mrs. W. P. Griffin is the chairman on stores.

It would greatly facilitate our work if our correspondents would be kind enough to address communications upon any of the above mentioned subjects, to the committee having them in charge.

The officers of the association are a President, Secretary and Treasurer, who perform the usual duties of their offices. A Board meeting is held on the first Wednesday of every month, at which the Treasurer and Chairmen of the several committees, present written reports, and other business of the Association is transacted. The Annual meeting is held on the first Wednesday in May.

And so we work along, pleasantly, smoothly and easily. We would like to hear that each one of your societies is working as smoothly and easily. Were your organization complete it would be so, and there is no reason why it should not be complete. But this whole subject of field organization, which more nearly affects you, must be left for the next number.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER.

Chairman Committee on Correspondence, &c.

NEW YORK, February 4, 1865.

REPORT OF THE SOUTH NORWALK LADIES' PATRIOTIC SOCIETY FOR THE YEAR 1864.

At the close of the fourth year of the South Norwalk Ladies' Patriotic Society, we submit the following report of the operations of the Society, and of the work accomplished during the year—

|                                                                        |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| No. of articles made and appropriated through the Sanitary Commission, | 686 |
| No. of articles given to soldiers at home,                             | 24  |

Total, 710

The Society has also donated through the Commission, 5 gallons of blackberry wine, (the gift of Mr. Ira Seymour.)  $\frac{1}{2}$  bushel of dried apples, 5 lbs. of dried currants, 1 lb. of arrow root, 2 jars of blackberry jam, 1 bottle of vinegar, 4 books, and several packages of newspapers, lint and linen. The children of South Norwalk have contributed \$20 to our fund, and have also pieced two quilts for hospital use.

The Treasurer's report from Jan 20th, 1864, to Jan. 25th, 1865, is as follows :

|                                                                       |          |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|
| Cash receipts from donations, weekly collections, and entertainments, | $675 90 |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|

EXPENDITURES.

|                                                                                  |        |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Donation to the Chr. Commission,                                                 | 257 36 |
| Paid to Sanitary Commission for flannel,                                         | 215 53 |
| Current expenses of Society, which include donations to various special objects, | 160 41 |
| Cash on hand,                                                                    | 42 60  |

675 90

215 53

|                                                                                                          |          |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|
| Add to this the sum of allowed on the goods purchased of the Sanitary Commission and the total amount is | $891 43 |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|

Our thanks are due to the Editors of the Gazette, for their kindness in publishing gratuitously, notices of concerts and entertainments given for the benefit of the Society. We are also especially indebted to those patriotic gentlemen of South Norwalk, who have aided us pecuniarily in the prosecution of our work.

The meetings of the Society are held weekly as heretofore, at the house of some member of the Society, and are sustained with undiminished interest. It is gratifying to be able to state that while the demand for practical sympathy on behalf of our suffering and imprisoned soldiers, is still great and pressing, there has never been a more earnest desire on the part of our patriotic citizens to meet that demand than at present. The Society has never been more prosperous, than during the past year; more work has been accomplished than in any previous year; the cash receipts show a considerable increase over former years; and we trust a spirit of patriotism is now aroused which will lead to renewed energy and effort in this "great good work," until the peace so long desired shall bless our land, and our efforts in behalf of the soldier shall be no longer needed.

By order of the President,

E. G. PLATT, Sec. and Treas.

Correspondence.

DR. BELLOWS AND * * * * *, SURGEONS AND THE PEOPLE'S STORES.

The name of the author of the letter to Dr. Bellows is prudently withheld from the public, but as it bears upon a subject of importance to the people, it is given, with the reply of Dr. B. in full.

REV. DR. BELLOWS,

President the United States Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR:—I write you as a friend of the United States Sanitary Commission; I have just been looking over the December 15th SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN, and have noticed the complaints there spoken of. I have been in the army as a Christian laborer, and have seen the working of the Commission, and am sorry to say there is ground for such complaint as "Clint" makes in his published letter, though he makes extravagant statements. Officers and surgeons do eat up and drink up and wear the good things of the Commission.

The soldiers know it, though they may not be able to give instances and facts. I saw considerable of it, know of one instance where the surgeon said his whole living did not cost him a cent, got it from the Sanitary Commission. I do not know but this is unavoidable, it surely is under the system of requisitions from officers and surgeons, it may be any way. Bad men fill these places, bad men get detailed as nurses to sick, and will put the delicacies and stimulants down their own neck, though the poor sick soldier die.

If some system could be adopted by which the stores of the Commission could be delivered directly by the agent to the soldier needing them, it would make the soldier feel that the Commission was not simply for the officers, as they now say

The Sanitary has done an untold amount of good, but I think the soldiers feel that some how the best part of the stores do not quite reach them.

I write to you as head of this noble institution, hoping some way may be devised to make the working of the Commission more perfect in this particular.

We have just closed a fair in our city from which the Commission will realize two or three thousand dollars.

DR. BELLOWS' REPLY.

823 BROADWAY, N. Y., Jan. 18, 1865.

DEAR SIR:—I thank you sincerely for your friendly letter. Candid and intelligent criticism of the work we are engaged in is always acceptable. I can assure you that whatever weakness or defects in our system there may be, we have always been and continue to be watchful to the utmost to prevent all avoidable waste or perversion. On the scale on which we work it is simply impossible to undertake as a rule, personal distribution of our stores. We must trust some class of persons, and the class we have to trust is that of surgeons, hospital stewards and ward masters. If they are scoundrels and liars, we cannot be responsible for their stealing and gluttony, but we do not believe this is at all true of surgeons or ward masters, or officers as a class, the same percentage of knaves and gluttons exist among them as in civil life, and the Sanitary Commission suffers a certain incurable loss through their crimes.

Our full conviction after collecting testimony in all quarters, is that certainly nine-tenths of all we send to the army goes to the comfort of the private soldiers, indeed we know this. It is only by generalizing from some unfortunate exceptional experience that these sweeping conclusions to the contrary are arrived at—the single facts are true often when the general deductions are very false.

You had had, you say, personal experience of the wicked misappropriation of our stores. Now, is it not your duty to inform us specifically of the name of the surgeon who infamously boasted that he lived wholly on Sanitary Commission stores, or any other specific cases of abuse of our property? It is only by following up such alleged cases that we are able to detect any inefficiency or carelessness in our own agents. Convinced of your genuine interest, you will greatly add to the favor already rendered, by troubling yourself to give us particular instances of abuse or waste, with names and places. We never omit examining into every specified case of abuse. I know the pain and annoyance of making personal charges, but if honest men refuse to lend in this aid, if all decline as you may feel inclined to do, to appear as accusers, what relief have we from our dilemma? How can we correct abuses which we cannot get any exact evidence of the existence of? How can we profit by general criticism without specifications of persons, time and place?

We have in the army of General Grant, thirty agents engaged in the personal delivery of our supplies, after the fashion you suggest, but we are really doubtful of its expediency, and it would be impossible to carry it out on a general scale in all the columns of the army. The expense would be greater than the cost of the goods, lost by the want of the intermediary agents.

With the fullest appreciation of your kindness, I remain yours truly,

HENRY W. BELLOWES,
President.

REPORT OF R. M. LEWIS, ESQ., SUPERINTENDENT OF PHILADELPHIA BRANCH OF U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

We regret that our space will not admit of the insertion of this valuable report in full.

The following extracts, however, are full of interest, not only to those immediately concerned in the Philadelphia Branch, but all who are interested in the work will be profited by their perusal.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Executive Committee of the Women's Pennsylvania Branch, having charge of the supply department, has, during the past year, retained nearly its original organization. The resignation of their corresponding secretary having rendered some action necessary to fill so important a vacancy, it was deemed expedient to place the whole correspondence in the hands of a competent Committee, among whom the work is systematically divided. Associate managers have been appointed in nearly every county in this department, which includes forty-nine counties of Pennsylvania, the southern part of New Jersey, and the State of Delaware. Fifty-four associate managers in all. It is believed that the present plan of thoroughly cultivating the field by corresponding with the people, as well as sending canvassing agents among them, will yield a rich harvest of comfort for the sick and wounded soldiers of the Union. The Committee report that while the long continuance of the war has, of course, caused the faith and zeal of some to wax cold, yet on the whole there has been a steady growth of energetic liberality, as is evinced by the supplies contributed. This department numbers three hundred and fifty auxiliary societies, besides a considerable number of individual contributors, who send boxes with almost the frequency observed by active societies. During the year, twenty-one hundred and ninety-nine boxes and packages, valued at about one hundred and ten thousand dollars, have been received at the rooms. Eight hundred and seventy-five boxes have been dispatched to various points where they were needed, besides an enormous aggregate of issues for the relief of individual soldiers applying at the rooms of the Commission. Large supplies have also been sent to the various hospitals in this military department.

At the time the Great Central Fair was held, it was feared that the extraordinary efforts then being made by our societies would so exhaust their resources that but little could be expected from them for a long-time. The result has not justified this apprehension; for while there was but a temporary falling off of the receipts, the wide-spread interest excited by the Fair in the work of the Sanitary Commission, has stimulated the efforts of many who before had done little or nothing for its support.

The list of issues, which will be found subjoined, includes those of the Women's Pennsylvania Branch for the year 1864.

RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

During the year just passed, relief of various kinds has been afforded to more than six hundred families of soldiers by the Committee.

Steady employment is given weekly to two hundred and eighty women. The remuneration for this work (though not in any case sufficient for the support of a family) is ample, and more than twice as much as is paid for the same amount of work by the Government.

The Committee have had made for the Sanitary Commission between eight and nine thousand garments; they have, besides, taken work from contractors, for which they receive one-half the amount paid to their workmen. Sixteen thousand and ninety-one garments have been made in this way, and the work is largely sought by many a soldier's wife and widow. These women are visited and cared for in divers ways by the ladies who have them in charge.

The funds to carry on the work of the Committee are contributed by generous friends. These sums are acknowledged, from time to time, in the printed reports of the Committee. During the year 1864, eleven thousand nine hundred and fifty dollars have been received from various sources.

A large part of this amount is in monthly subscriptions, conveyed to the Committee through Mr. A. D. Jessup.

The only regret the Committee ever feel is, that they cannot relieve all the want which comes to their notice.

Last year, much comfort was given by the donation of half a ton of coal to each family. This year the amount of coal contributed for this purpose is ten tons, which the Committee have received through Mr. J. J. Borie, and which will be distributed to the most destitute.

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

During the year just closed, the Hospital Directory has continued its work and greatly extended its sphere of usefulness. It is, indeed, difficult to estimate the amount of anxiety and distress relieved through its instrumentality. Most of those who apply for information of their friends and relatives in the Army and Navy seem to be entirely ignorant how to commence the search. Many, too, are constantly calling for advice, who, having exhausted every other source, apply to the Sanitary Commission. In giving an answer to an inquiry as to the whereabouts of a soldier, not only the inquirer's mind is relieved, but frequently a large circle of friends also. Numerous letters have been received at our office during the year expressing the utmost satisfaction at the answers we have been enabled to furnish. In some cases we have succeeded in ascertaining that men were alive, and in rebel hands, whose families had given them up for lost months before.*

* A Captain in our Army had been missing for nearly a year, and his family had abandoned all hopes of his being alive. His mother, after searching in vain in every other quarter, appealed to the Sanitary Commission. The officer in charge of the Directory applied for information to a released prisoner just returned from "the Libby," and then at our rooms. That gentleman at once declared that the long-lost son had been confined with him for months in the Libby, and was removed to Andersonville on the day of his exchange.

When it is considered that this work is done at a cost of only one dollar and fifty-five cents for each successful answer, it will be readily admitted that nothing which the Commission has undertaken has been more satisfactory in its results. It will be observed that in seventy-seven out of every hundred inquiries we have been enabled to obtain information. As very many never apply at our rooms until they have failed in every effort of their own, it is thought that the proportion of answers given is fully as large as could be expected.

In addition to the regular inquiries of the Directory, we are constantly called upon for advice and assistance of a miscellaneous character, such as the best and cheapest mode of procuring the bodies of deceased soldiers from the army, the means of communicating with those in hospitals at distant points, the method of obtaining passes, the means to be used in securing the effects of men who die in the service, and of writing letters to prisoners, &c. On all these points we keep ourselves thoroughly advised, so as to be able to make the proper answers. It is estimated that not less than fifty weekly, or twenty-six hundred persons during the year, have sought and received information of this nature.

At the present time we have on our books 75,830 names, 47,987 of which have been added during the year.

PROTECTIVE WAR CLAIM AND PENSION AGENCY.

Five classes of claims are now prosecuted by this Agency, viz.: claims for pensions on behalf of disabled soldiers and the relatives of deceased soldiers; for bounty and back-pay due the estates of deceased soldiers; for pay of prisoners-of-war; for pay of soldiers discharged with defective final papers; and for prize money of seamen. Although the prosecution of two classes at least of these claims was not contemplated when the Agency was established, they came so entirely within the relief designed to be afforded that they could not be rejected without manifest inconsistency.

The table accompanying this report will show that since the Agency was organized, in May, 1863, 4,355 claims have been received for collection. Of these, there have been settled 731 claims for pension, 594 claims for bounty and back-pay, amounting in value to $72,067 50; 182 claims for pay applied for by the families of prisoners-of-war amounting to $21,363 64; and 52 claims for prize money, amounting to $1,992 26. The total amount thus collected in cash, and paid to claimants, or held subject to their order, is $95,423 40. To this must be added the sums paid to this date upon the certificates of pension, which, at the lowest estimate, cannot be less than $41,712 00, showing a total sum realized for applicants of at least $137,135 40, without the expense of one dollar to the claimants.

Objection has been taken to the work of this branch of the Commission that it is not strictly charitable, because it makes no distinction in the circumstances of claimants. Such a discrimination, however, even if it were practicable, could not fail to result in embarrassment. A careful observation of the cases presented during the year shows the practical uselessness of the policy by disclosing the fact that of the whole number of claimants the circumstances of at least three-fourths are but a step removed from actual poverty.

The delay in the settlement of claims, so familiar to all who have frequent dealings with Government, needs a word of explanation. The pay-rolls upon which the claims of deceased soldiers are settled by the Second Auditor of the Treasury Department are frequently not accessible to that officer until several months have elapsed after the death of the soldier. These rolls, as well as the proof submitted by the legal representatives of the deceased, must be carefully examined and submitted for approval to the Second Comptroller before any claim can be settled. The result is that an interval often exceeding a year intervenes between the filing and the final adjustment of a claim for arrears of pay. In applications for pension the delay, although not usually so great, is still very considerable. Owing to the numerous attempts at fraud in the presentation of unworthy or fictitious claims, the rules of proof insisted upon by the Department have been gradually rendered more stringent. The disability or death of the soldier is required in every case to be distinctly shown as having occurred in the line of military duty, and as incident to the service. In at least three-fourths of the whole number of cases the Company records fail to throw sufficient light upon these points, and the party, or his attorney, is called upon to furnish the requisite proof. Where the claimant is the widow of a soldier, her marriage must be shown, if possible, by a sworn copy of the church, or other public record of the marriage, and no other proof will be admitted unless the absence of such record is clearly established. Where the claimants are minors, a guardian must be appointed by Court, and the exact ages of the children and the marriage of their parents must be shown, if possible, by record evidence. Where the claimant is a mother, she must establish the fact of her dependence for support upon her deceased son by proof of the sums actually contributed by him, and for what, in general, they were appropriated. The witnesses called to testify in any claim must be disinterested, and, if possible, not near relatives of the claimant. This rule, of course, excludes at once a large number of persons from testifying, with whom the knowledge of these facts peculiarly lies, and increases in the same proportion the difficulty of establishing the claim.

It would be easy perhaps to add a feature of interest to this report by citing examples of the operation of this branch of the Commission in individual cases. These comprise frequently the most afflicting exhibitions of utter poverty and hopelessness. In repeated instances a home has been kept to the families of soldiers by the trifling loans which have been advanced upon claims in course of settlement. During the present month a certificate of pension in favor of a soldier discharged for consumption contracted in the service was received upon the day of his death. His wife called to say that she had no means with which to defray the expenses of his burial. Fortunately the arrears upon the pension proved to be considerable, and were promptly paid by the Government pension agent.

But it is believed that the character of the work, as one of benevolence, is sufficiently indicated in the tables accompanying this report. The large and rapid growth, which, with little aid from the public press, the work has attained, shows the estimation in which it is held, and the ease with which it may be still further enlarged. Probably in no branch of the Commission are the benefits resulting from its labors so direct and so encouraging.

SPECIAL RELIEF.

At the date of our last report, the Special Relief Department in Philadelphia had just been reorganized. Sufficient time had not then elapsed to test its practical working. The results of more than a year's experience is now sufficient to convince us, not only of its immense benefit to our hospitals and men, but also of the economical results of the plan adopted. Colonel Soest, our Special Relief Agent, visits one or other of our hospitals daily, keeping himself thoroughly advised of their requirements. He is prepared at all times to render such assistance as falls within the scope of the Sanitary Commission. When requisitions are made upon us, Colonel Soest, by personal inspection, ascertains whether the articles demanded are really needed or not. Thus a constant check is maintained to secure the economical distribution of the supplies entrusted to our care.

Perhaps the most important portion of our Special Relief work is the looking after the comfort of individual soldiers, those in the service as well as those discharged. Any one familiar with the subject knows how many and various are the wants of the soldier which the Government cannot reasonably be expected to care for. There are at our rooms daily: men without descriptive lists, men with their clothing accounts overdrawn, those discharged, or waiting to be discharged who have claims unsettled, those needing transportation, and those suffering from countless other causes. The case of each man is thoroughly investigated, whenever necessary he is visited, and such aid afforded as the circumstances require.

The applications have recently become so numerous that it has been found necessary to appoint an assistant to Colonel Soest. By this arrangement the latter is enabled to pass most of his time visiting our hospitals.

During the year, 5,356 cases have received attention, as follows:

|                                                                                          |       |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Number of issues of supplies made to general and volunteer hospitals and transports..... | 464   |
| Number of issues of supplies made to individual soldiers in the service.....             | 2,091 |
| Number of issues of supplies made to discharged soldiers.....                            | 1,210 |
| Visits paid to hospitals.....                                                            | 317   |
| Visits paid to individuals.....                                                          | 303   |
| Referred to local relief associations.....                                               | 330   |
| Transportation given or procured.....                                                    | 375   |
| Temporary subsistence given.....                                                         | 139   |
| Supplied with trusses, &c.....                                                           | 6     |
| Miscellaneous.....                                                                       | 121   |
|                                                                                          | 5,356 |

|                                                                                                                    |             |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Value of supplies issued to general hospitals...                                                                   | $24,244 40 |
| Value of supplies issued to volunteer hospitals, refreshment saloons, "bome," &c., including Harrisburg Lodge..... | 7,623 37    |
| Value of supplies issued to transports, &c.....                                                                    | 1,120 50    |
| Value of supplies issued to individual soldiers..                                                                  | 20,777 35   |
|                                                                                                                    | $53,765 62 |

It will be observed, on reference to the above statement, that supplies, amounting in value to $7,623 37, have been issued to the various volunteer organizations for the relief of soldiers in this department. In addition to this, the Executive Committee has appropriated $2,000 to the Citizens' Volunteer Hospital, $2,000 to the Cooper Shop Volunteer Refreshment Saloon, $2,000 to the Union Volunteer Refreshment Saloon, and $500 to the Soldiers' Home.

FROM FORT, FISHER.

BY F. W. FOSTER.

January 20, 1865.

I have the honor to report that acting under orders from head quarters, I proceeded to Fort Fisher, with Sanitary supplies aboard the Steamer Demolay to Fortress Monroe, from that point aboard the Steamer Atlantic, to Fort Fisher.

A portion of my goods were landed in safety through the surf on the 13th, immediately following the troops, and a depot was established near General Terry's headquarters, near the beach.

The troops were all obliged to wade through the surf from the boats, and some were completely immersed in reaching the shore, so that I found it necessary to distribute dry shirts and drawers in some cases, which were gratefully received, and I have reason to believe, prevented much suffering, and probably sickness among the soldiers of General Terry's command.

For three days and nights the troops were exposed on the beach with little or no shelter, and with a limited amount of commissary stores. By great exertion I succeeded in getting a portion of my stores landed on the second day, and upon the request of different surgeons, was able to relieve many necessities, cases where diet, clothing, stimulus, &c., were called for.

The great demand for boats in landing the troops embarrassed me somewhat, but I finally succeeded in getting all my goods ashore before the assault on Fort Fisher began.

I chose a situation to co-operate with the surgeons and the hospital department, in relieving the wants of the wounded as they were brought in, and in distributing comfort to the sick.

I have found it necessary to practice the same careful scrutiny with issue of stimulus, food and clothing, which has been found so useful in other departments, in nearly every case requiring the surgeon's written approval, and delivering the article to the needy person himself, who, unless sick or disabled was expected to present himself at the agency for the articles required, that is when the armies are settled in camp.

All wholesale demands from surgeons, chaplains and others, for regiments represented to be in need, I have carefully declined to fill, but have uniformly requested that the needy party be sent directly to me, with a note from the surgeon stating the wants, I am satisfied by this course that the goods distributed have been to the most pressing cases both among officers and men.

The wounded all received attention from some of the Sanitary Commission Agents, each one having his duty to perform.

On the 15th, at about four o'clock, as the wounded were coming in, we made hot milk punch and beef tea; soft crackers were given for them to eat. At this time no commissary stores were landed, so that all the wounded had at first was what we gave them.

A chest of tea was sent to the cook-ground, or place chosen for cooking. Oftentimes surgeons would call on us for crackers for the wounded, as they were without any. Rags, bandages, sponges, liquors, blankets, &c., &c., were in great demand. We made over two hundred gallons of milk punch.

The timely aid of the Commission seems to be appreciated by all that know the good derived therefrom.

My course has been approved by General Terry and Dr. Burnes, Medical Director of the Department, Dr. Buzzell, Medical Inspector, and other prudent and conscientious officers of different grades. I have received prompt assistance from General Terry, in receiving from him six colored men whom I used in getting and heating water for tea and milk punches, in making farina, &c.

Teams were always furnished me for transporting my stores.

A DREAM.

A letter of one of our agents, written home while on distant duty in the enemy's country, has fallen into our hands, and though it was intended for no eye but one, we have obtained permission to insert this extract in the BULLETIN. The letter reads:

I dreamed the other night of crossing over from a fort to the bank beyond the moat, on a fallen tree. The top of the tree began to settle as I got almost to the bank, and I began to sink down into the deep muddy ditch, and was just wavering between sinking into the moat and springing to the bank, when, without my looking up, I felt a little hand in mine giving the gentlest little pull, but steady and real, which lifted me right up to my feet; and on looking, there was our little, darling boy. It was so real that it woke me, and these are the thoughts it left with me.

"A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM."

A little child is leading me,
I feel his hand in mine;
I'm led as one that cannot see—
His is a right divine.

He has a gentle, timid voice;
A form that's very frail;
A foot that hardly leaves a print;
A tender face, and pale.

And yet he has a certain power
To lead me where he will;
I hasten with his hast'ning steps,
And when he rests, I'm still.

He leads me on to holy thought,
To earnest prayer and love,
To where the heart by God is taught,
To where descends the Dove.

He leads me where the waters flow
That wash out stains of sin;
He leads my heart to seek to know
How Christ may enter in.

He leads me to my own sweet home,
And shows me there at rest,
My children and my wife, so dear,
And all I love the best.

He leads me on where children play
On banks of living green,
Where sunshine lingers all day long,
And angels' wings are seen.

He leads me thence to seek the Source
Of spirit, life and power;
To search the problem, never solved—
The soul's own natal hour!

To ask, How out of God we came?
How unto God we go?
How, 'tis in Him we live and move—
The Holy Spirit's flow.

'Tis thus a child is leading me,
His little hand in mine;
'Tis thus I'm led, that could not see;
'Tis thus his power's divine!

DR. HOWARD'S AMBULANCE.

Dr. Howard, late surgeon of the United States Army, has, after much thought and labor, constructed plans of an improved ambulance, of which we gave a series of wood cuts in the last number of the BULLETIN, and not having the Doctor's text at hand, we inadvertently attributed a measure of the credit of this very creditable work to the members of the Sanitary Commission, whom we know to have taken a deep interest in Dr. Howard's plan, but we take pleasure now in correcting the error by giving the full credit of the work to Dr. Howard, and calling attention to his own description of the improved ambulance, commencing on page 994 of our present issue.

ONE-WEEK'S WORK AS HOSPITAL VISITOR.

BY J. B. HOLT.

Monday morning rode my horse to Alexandria, and spent the day at Louviture Hospital, visited each man confined to his bed, offering words of cheer, finding out their wants, and engaging to supply those wants as far as practicable. Took a number of cases for back-pay. The men were being paid off, and I received many a "God bless you" from those whose cases I had taken, and for whom that very efficient branch of the Commission, the Special Relief, had obtained certificates from the Paymaster General, so that some were receiving pay for fourteen months, others six, eight, ten and twelve.

Tuesday visited Falls Church Hospital, where I met the most grateful and happy man I have seen for many a day. His lower limbs have been paralyzed for five months, the only way he could be moved was to be carried about in the arms of the attendants. Last week the Sanitary Commission furnished him with a "Locomotive Chair," in which he can move about wherever he pleases in the lower part of the Hospital, and when spring comes can move out of doors.

Wednesday visited King Street Commissary and Quartermaster's hospitals. Took quite a number of cases for back-pay. Wrote out statements of two soldiers charged with desertion, who are believed by the surgeons to be innocent.

Thursday, visited St. Paul's Church, Grace Church, and Fort Lyon's hospitals, the latter some three miles from Alexandria.

Friday, visited Grosvenor House, Prince Street and Baptist Church hospitals. Have written to friends of soldiers, their officers, &c., on business connected with the Special Relief Department.

Saturday, (to-day) have visited Fort Williams Hospital, and the headquarters of the Brigade, Fort Ward Hospital; called at Fairfax Seminary, on request of Miss Woolsey; visited Abbott Hospital, and Invalid Corps Hospital, Freedmen's Village, forts Woodbury and Strong hospitals, at each of which there has been much improvement in the sanitary condition within a few weeks, and a general improvement of the patients.

I hear from surgeons in charge of hospitals, every day, remarks like the following: "What a grand institution the Sanitary Commission is." "What should we do were it not for the Sanitary?" "We could not get along without the aid of the Sanitary." All of which is encouraging.

LETTER FROM SURGEON MOORE OF SHERMAN'S ARMY.

DEAR SIR:—Your obliging letter, containing an offer of sanitary stores, was received yesterday. The articles of food and underclothing will be of great use to us here.

If one of your agents could be stationed here it would be a more convenient arrangement than having them at Beaufort. But our surgeons will have to go to Hilton Head for medical supplies, and when there, can easily go to Beaufort and bring down sanitary stores. No orders for these articles will be sent except by division or regimental surgeons. I hope soon to see a branch of your establishment at this place. With kind regards to yourself and the benevolent institution you represent, I remain,

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JNO. MOORE,

Surg. U. S. A., in charge Sherman's Army.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION IN THE SHENANDOAH.

EXTRACT FROM REPORT OF MR. BATCHELDER.

There have been one hundred thousand soldiers' letters committed to our care, on about one-third of which we have paid the postage.

We have forwarded, in money, for soldiers forty-three thousand and seventy-five dollars, and returned receipts for the same. Fifty packages have been delivered to the express company, through our agency. The remains of about twenty-five soldiers have been sent to their friends.

ment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.

Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

EAST.

"Special Relief" Office, 76 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

WEST.

Soldiers' Home, No. 81 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

Soldiers' Home, Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Louisville, Ky., James Malona, Sup't. James Morton, Special Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, New Albany, corner of Main and State Streets.

Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., C. N. Shipman, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Nashville, Tenn., Captain I. Brayton, Sup't. Rev. J. Hoblit, Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Columbus, Ohio, Col. Isaac Dalton, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Cleveland, Ohio, Joseph Jerome, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Lodge, near landing, Memphis, Tenn., C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Camp Nelson, Ky., Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Paducah, Ky.

BRANCH,
No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,
No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported * * * * * IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.
By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept. 20, 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, SO FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices. Address

B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D.,
President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY,
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

- |                                     |                                  |
|-------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. | ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y. |
| Hon. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn.  | E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.    |
| WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York.     | J. T. SANGER, New York.          |
| JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.          |                                  |

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,
No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILLCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

OFFICE OF THE

M O R R I S

FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE

COMPANY,

COLUMBIAN BUILDING,

CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

Authorized Capital, - - - $5,000,000.

Cash Capital, paid in, - - - $200,000.

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

DIRECTORS.

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

WM. M. WHITNEY, Secretary.

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

F. S. WINSTON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Assets over Eleven and a half Millions of Dollars.

Policies known as "Non-Forfeiting," on the terms they express, on the Ten-Year plan, issued by this Company, possess advantages in profits and rates of premiums, greater than are offered by any other Life Company.

THE

Widows' & Orphans' Benefit Life Ins. Co. of New York.

LUCIUS ROBINSON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

Many of the Trustees and other officers of this Company are connected with the well-known MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, and the intimate and amicable relations between the two Companies, guarantee favorable results to Policy-holders.

Universal Life Insurance Company of New York.

JOHN WADSWORTH, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

This Institution has been formed for the benefit of those who, because of imperfect health, are unable to obtain policies in other companies. It thus meets the case of thousands who have been turned away disappointed in their efforts to provide for their families, and of a still larger number who have felt it useless to apply for insurance.

Every information may be had, on application, by letter or otherwise, to

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,

400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

Insurance against Accident by the

TRAVELERS' INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

CAPITAL, - - - $500,000.

JAMES G. BATTERSON, PRESIDENT.

Insurance effected in this Company against ACCIDENTS of every description.

Yearly Policies will be issued for a Premium of

Fifteen Dollars,

granting Insurance to the amount of

Five Thousand Dollars

against loss of life by any accident whatever.

Twenty-Five Dollars

secures a Policy for

Five Thousand Dollars,

together with $25 per week compensation for personal injury, incapacitating the assured from his ordinary business.

Fifty Dollars Premium

secures a Full Policy for $10,000 and $40 per week compensation for all and every description of Accident.

Policies for $500, with $3 per week compensation, can be had for $3 Premium, or any other sum between $500 and $10,000 at proportionate rates.

WM. W. ALLEN, Agent,

404 WALNUT STREET.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 33.

PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 1, 1865.

No. 33.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

ACROSTIC.

BY MRS. DR. MACGOWAN.

T o pour in oil and wine—sustain the brave,
H elp the wan sufferer, be he free or slave,
I rect we here an altar where we plead.

U nlock your purses for our armies need,
N oble the cause, Columbia's patriots cry,
I mplore our aid to save, nor let them die.
T hrough camp and field, mercy with angel wings,
E ach hand outstretched relief and succour brings,
D isease with languid eye not turned in vain,

S eizes the boon, and dreams of home again ;
T read lightly, see a wounded one at rest,
A s breathing low he slumbers, and is blest.
T urn we again, the thickest of the fight,
E yes flaming o'er in death, a ghastly sight :
S ee gentle hands wiping the pallid brow,

S ighing, and groans, exchanged for blessing now.
A nd you fair helpers in this work of love,
N ot seeking aught but recompense above ;
I nspired by that which droppeth as from Heaven,
T he rich reward of doing good is given.
A h, when again sweet peace to us shall come,
R eturning, dove-like, to her exiled home,
Y our starry banner wave on every shore,

C irdling our Union in its folds once more.
O ur glorious country, freed from every ban,
M ajestic rise first in the nation's van ;
M ay the oppressed in every land then see
I n our proud eagle symbol of the free ;
S olace, and rest, and when we drop a tear,
S acred to those whose memories are dear ;
I n grateful hearts and homes, remember well,
O ur liberties secured by those who fell,
N ow fold their banners o'er them—all is well.

DEFINITIONS.

Banquette, is the step or foot bank running along the inside of a parapet, sufficiently high to enable the musketeers to stand and fire over the crest of the parapet.

Barbette.—Guns are in barbette when they are elevated behind the parapet, so that instead of firing through embrasures they can be fired over the top. A much wider range is thus secured.

Barracks.—From the Spanish barraca, are lodging houses for troops. When complete they are sufficiently commodious for mess rooms, cooking houses, guard houses, magazines, &c.

Barricades, are temporary obstructions to the advance of a foe, they are sometimes hastily made of trees, earth, wagons, boxes, barrels, bales, bags, &c.

Bastion, is a huge mass of earth, usually faced with sods; sometimes with brick or stones, standing out from the angles of a fortified work, to protect the walls.

Batardeau, is a strong wall of masonry built across a ditch to sustain the pressure of the water, where one part is dry and the other wet. To prevent its being used as a passage, it is built up to an angle at top, and armed with iron spikes.

Battalion.—An aggregation of two to ten companies of infantry.

Battery.—A battery consists of two or more pieces of artillery in the field. It also implies the emplacement of ordnance destined to act offensively or defensively. It also refers to the company charged with a certain number of pieces of ordnance. The ordnance constitutes the battery. Men serve the battery, horses drag it.

Battle.—Battles are either parallel or oblique, and they are strategic when, in consequence of a plan of campaign, they are fought upon a given and objective point, as the battles of Marengo or Austerlitz.

The following preparations for battle are usually made by great commanders: All disposable troops are held in hand; the readiness of the troops is ascertained by inspection of arms; proper nourishment is given to them before going into battle; the projects of the day are communicated from grade to grade; the points for the ambulances and caissons are indicated; the rendezvous for rallying or retreating are made known; measures are taken to secure the rear and communications, in order to retain the mastery of the base of operations; the army is ranged ordinarily in two lines, and the position of reserves given in the order of battle; the three arms are disposed according to the nature of the ground; decisive points are occupied; open or flanking batteries are established on proper elevations; the front and flanks of the army are furnished with artillery, in number, kind, and calibre according to circumstances. These are preparations for battle; the action commences ordinarily as follows: marksmen are thrown forward, sometimes acting in conjunction with artillery. Either the enemy shows an equal disposition to attack, or else one party insults the other to bring on a combat. When the advanced guards have felt each other, the army disposed to make battle begins or increases its cannonade, to constrain the adversary to deploy his masses, show his different arms, and thus make known the composition, number, importance, and the direction to be given to the adverse forces. The reserves remain stationary, while the cavalry, properly sheltered from fire, watch their opponents, and throw themselves upon weakened or staggered lines of infantry. When the affair has begun, and the positions and dispositions of the enemy are known, and the proper effect has been produced by firing, the infantry may march to the charge, with the arms at a carry or on the right shoulder, leaving to the instinct of the soldier the determination of the proper moment of bringing the musket to the position of charge bayonet.

Bayau, is a small trench, or branch of a trench, leading to a magazine or to any particular point. They are generally called bayaus of communication.

Breastwork, is a hastily constructed parapet not high enough to require a banquette or step behind it.

Bridge.—There are three kinds of military bridges. 1. Fixed bridges of timber. 2. Floating bridges. 3. Flying bridges.

Fixed bridge.—This may be built on piles or trestles, like any ordinary bridges.

Floating bridge.—Is generally adapted for the passage of troops over streams, and are supplied by pontoon trains, which accompany the army. Casks may be used to construct a bridge, and answer a very good purpose, as in fig. 3. Boats may be employed instead of casks.

Fig. 3.

Flying bridge.—This consists of a large boat or raft firmly attached by a long cable to a mooring in the center of the stream. It is made of two, three, or six boats, connected together and floored over, the beams being fastened to the gunwales of the boats with iron bolts, and the flooring planks nailed upon them. The most suitable boats are long, narrow, and deep, with nearly vertical sides, in order to offer greater resistance to the action of the current. A rope or cable is fastened to the upright standard on the floor, to the other end of which is on anchor, which is moored in the channel, if this is in the middle of the stream. If not, the anchor is placed a little on one side of it, toward the most distant shore. By means of a rudder the bridge is turned in such a direction, that it is struck obliquely by the current, and the force resulting from the decomposition of the action of the current makes it describe an arc of a circle around the anchor as a center; and this force acquires its maximum effect when the sides of the boats make an angle of about 55 degrees with the action of the current. See fig. 4.

Fig. 4.

A flying bridge may, in case of emergency, be made of any kind of boats, with the means of fixing rudders to them.

A most curious contrivance for crossing streams is found in what are known as hule boats. They are made of four buffalo hides, strongly sewed together with buffalo sinew, and stretched over a basket work of willow 8 feet long and 5 feet broad, with a rounded bow. To prevent leakage, the seams are covered with ashes and tallow, and exposed to the sun for some hours, when the skins contract and tighten the whole work. Such a boat, with four men in it, draws only four inches of water.

FROM CITY POINT.

BY J. H. DAVIS.

HEAD-QUARTERS FIELD RELIEF CORPS, OF ARMIES OPERATING AGAINST RICHMOND,
PATRICK STATION, Feb. 6, 1865. }

I sit down to write you a narrative of what has transpired during the last two days, which will be somewhat confused perhaps, and disconnected. Late Saturday evening the order came for two brigades of the 1st division and 2d and 3d division of the 2d Army Corps, to supply themselves with four days' rations, and to be in readiness to march at daylight. We accordingly prepared ourselves to go with them. At four in the morning of Sunday we roused ourselves and prepared our wagon for the march. Our battle stock came in very opportunely. We started the column about 7 o'clock, and soon made the picket line. The head of our advance had scarcely debouched from the vedette line, ere skirmishing began. The rebels contested every inch of the ground, and by noon we had only advanced to within five miles of "Hatcher's Run;" here the rebels had made a stand, but the cavalry flanked them out of their rifle-pits.

A BATTLE.

We laid in position the rest of the day, and until 3 o'clock our casualties were small—only about fifteen or twenty killed and wounded. About half-past four, Mahone's Corps of the Rebel Army, advanced on the troops of the 2d and 3d brigades of the 3d division, and 1st brigade of the 2d division, 2d corps, who were busily entrrenching themselves about three-fourths of a mile north of "Hatcher's Run." The rebels came on in three lines of battle, with loud yells, and charged the line; but the vipers bit at a file, for most all the troops had perfected their breast-works. The rebels were repulsed with loss; nothing daunted by their first failure, they came on again and again, until they had made five distinct charges, but every time were signally repulsed. They finally retired with severe loss. Some estimate their loss at upwards of 500 killed and wounded. Our loss was slight. The 8th New Jersey and 120th New York, suffered the most; the 8th losing 42 killed and wounded—altogether, the division lost about 75. The 2d division lost about 60. The two corps remained in undisturbed possession of their works all night.

Being about five miles at the farthest point of our line from the hospital, it was deemed expedient to send the wounded into the hospital, which was accordingly done. General Humphreys sent to us an order to go in, as in his opinion, we could do more good at the hospital; and as the night promised to be cold, he thought we would be more comfortable. Finding that we could be of little use at night we came into camp and unloaded.

I forgot to mention the fact, that Uncle John* and Mr. Riechenbach were with me, and performed much good service. Today I went out again, but did not take the wagon. I filled my capacious saddle-bags with ginger, towels, stockings and matches, and mounting "Old Jeff," wended my way to the battle front.

HATCHER'S RUN.

On approaching "Hatcher's Run," I found the whole 5th corps laying around the old rebel line, which we had taken the day before. They had struck out from the ———, and having made a march of some 15 or 20 miles on the arc of a circle, found themselves on the left of the 2d corps, and in the rear of the cavalry division, who had struck out from the Jerusalem plank road, and made a raid on the Boynton road, running parallel with the South Side railroad, and had captured 27 wagons loaded with forage, besides a rebel colonel, major, and three first lieutenants, whom they brought in early this morning. The brigade of cavalry in the advance, about two miles above the "Run," were in great danger of being captured. While cooking their breakfast they were almost surrounded, and only got out of their position by hard fighting. I arrived on the ground about 9 o'clock, and found Agent Barton of the 5th corps with his wagon; he was with the corps all through their march, but up to that time, had not been able to do much for the wounded. All the morning our cavalry skirmished with the rebels, who proved to be Pegram's Division of Ewell's Corps, and Mahone's Division with part of Hokes. About 4 o'clock a brigade of cavalry were ordered to charge a rebel position to the left of our line, held by some dismounted rebel cavalry, among whom were the 13th Virginia; but the position being among pines, where horses could not go, and a brigade of infantry being found in support of them, we did not succeed in driving them. Here we captured the colors of the 57th North Carolina, and about 100 prisoners. Soon after the 5th corps were ordered in, the 1st division leading, supported by the 2d and 3d, who forced the rebels back, and gained considerable ground. Your correspondent was on the battle-field, and made two narrow escapes from death by the rebel shells, while he stood up to the work, doing all he could in his power to relieve the wounded. The minnie balls came too provokingly close for comfort, but I entered into the excitement of the scene, and was almost unconscious of the fatal bullets, which struck men down all around me. Finally the storm of battle receded and we were left alone with the wounded and dying. I left the field about 5 o'clock, feeling that we had made a splendid advance towards the only railroad now in the possession of the rebels.

THE WOUNDED.

At the Run I found the 6th corps advancing to the support of the 5th. Since I turned my face homeward, I have learned that the 3d division of the 5th corps suffered a terrible loss. The rebels must have charged on that portion of the line, massing their troops for that purpose. We have just received news that the wounded are to be shipped at this station for the Point and are busy making arrangements to receive them; we have several pails of punch made, and shall keep up until they arrive, which will be about midnight. We are doing all that can be done under the circumstances. I shall go out again in the morning and will ascertain the situation.

I need more stock, as my men will be very busy and very tired from their labors; say 3 barrels crackers; 3 water pails, tin or wood; 3 cases milk; 100 shirts; 2 gross Jamaica Ginger; 100 pairs of drawers; 100 arm slings; 100 pairs of stockings; 2 dozen feeding cups; 2 cases soup, bouilli; 1 case Sherry wine; 200 towels; 200 handkerchiefs; 100 lbs. chewing tobacco; 3 boxes of farina; 100 lbs. smoking tobacco; 50 lbs. sugar.

Send all the tobacco you can spare. This will do for both corps—Barton and myself.

I do not know of many officers killed or wounded.

Let me hear from you. Send out letters if there be any. I have been in the saddle for two days; that must be my excuse for not doing better in the story line. I am very tired and sleepy—12 o'clock.

* Rev. John Vassar, one of our most efficient agents, universally known as "Uncle John."

HEAD-QUARTERS ACTING SUPT. FIELD
RELIEF CORPS, OF ARMIES OPERATING AGAINST RICHMOND, Feb. 7, 1865. }

I closed my letter of last night near midnight, with the pots filled, water on the fire and everything ready for the reception of the wounded. Finding that the ambulances did not arrive, I laid down and soon fell asleep. About 2 o'clock in the morning the first load arrived,—and such a load! The night was very cold, and towards morning it commenced snowing. The cars did not arrive in season to meet them; an ambulance train, it is said, was the cause of the delay. The men were unloaded upon the platform, and many died from sheer exposure. The scene upon and around the platform was one which appalled the stoutest heart. Men shot and suffering from every conceivable kind of wounds, groaned in their agony, or shouted in their frenzy,—bleeding, dying for their country. It was a night of horrors; men lay down and died without a struggle. One man is now lying dead on the end of the platform. Here the Commission came in and put in an unanswerable argument in its favor.

“UNCLE JOHN.”

I must tell you how much we owe to Uncle John, (an agent,) who was here, there and everywhere, doing all he could to assist the suffering heroes. He was up all night, carrying out punch, which was dispensed freely to all. All our blankets came into requisition, for the men suffered intensely from the cold. Our stimulants and ginger relieved much suffering. It seems that the 3d division of the 5th corps advanced too far beyond the Run, and were flanked by the rebels; they trying to cut us off from retreating over the corduroy bridge over the Run. The rebels were in heavy force, and made a most desperate charge, closing in on the 3d brigade, and causing them to fall back. It is said that here the contest was fearful; the rebels attacking our men with the bayonet, and in many instances, clubbing them over the head with the stocks of their muskets; many of our men are wounded in this way. The 6th corps were then coming up to the support of the 5th, and a division was thrown across the Run to stop the triumphant career of the rebels. The rebels did not succeed in gaining the bridge and cutting us off, or driving us into the Run, which is a nasty stream, not very wide nor deep, but impassable except by bridging. The rebels took some of our wounded prisoners. Notwithstanding all this our loss is not large. I have not visited the front to-day, owing to the storm and the duties of the hour.

I have been punching the wounded all morning, and have done much to relieve them. All the agents have done well, and the colored men have kept up all night without murmuring. The cavalry and the 5th corps have been at work skirmishing all day, and towards night the 3d division advanced, with what success I have not been able to learn. Picks and spades are coming up, which indicate a determination to hold the ground. I am looking for a big fight to-morrow; if fair I shall pack my saddle-bags and go out early and find Barton; I have not heard from him to-day. The goods came up all right. If we have a fight to-morrow I will be on hand to see all that is going on. I am expecting on 150 more wounded to-night. I am prepared to receive them. Good night.

LETTER FROM A. M. SPERRY.

The statement annexed gives the amount of stores used by the members of the Auxiliary Corps during the past month, but does not represent the work done.

Our agents—about thirty in number—are constantly engaged in visiting the wards, making the rounds with the same regularity as the surgeons.

The clothing and miscellaneous articles mentioned on the return are all given to the men with our own hands, and so well is this work now systematized that we feel sure that it is wisely given. Every case in hospital is intimately known, and no clothing or other article likely to be misappropriated is given until the need of it is fully established. Experience has taught us the necessity of caution, because of a few unscrupulous men, who are always to be found ready to abuse even so pure a labor of love as ours. These men are few, but troublesome alike to surgeons and to us. Experience teaches also that hundreds of worthy men are always to be found deserving all and more than we can do for them. To these it is always a delight to minister.

Articles of diet go to the kitchens for preparation. The call for these will continue, since neither the medical supply list always gives them nor will the hospital fund always justify their purchase. Our supplies of these, form a kind of contingent fund, on which a hospital can draw whenever necessary.

It will be observed that our issues of liquors are very small. They are smaller than the real good of the men demands. It is said the government supplies are ample. So they are for certain purposes and of certain articles, but it is a matter of commonest experience with us that more can be used with greater advantage. Any ward surgeon can at any time point out men who demand attentions and stimulants that he cannot give. Sometimes lives have been saved—often recovery has been hastened. Especially has this been true of Blackberry Cordial. Many men are well to-day who would have died without it. In some hospitals it is regularly prescribed by the surgeons, and issued through the dispensary; and this systematic use of it is really the most successful.

So in the use of ale. Much good has been done by it, and cases are pointed out where its use revived powers of nutrition almost spent.

I need not go through the list. I would it were in our power to give more rather than less. The government does its duty well, but its duty is not ours. Kindly and skillfully it takes care of men in masses. We are to go beyond this and give time and care and love to each suffering man because of those at home who love them.

Tabular Statement of Issues from Auxiliary Relief Stations U. S. Sanitary Commission to the Armies before Richmond, for the month of January, 1865.

|                         |      |                               |        |
|-------------------------|------|-------------------------------|--------|
| Shirts, woolen.....     | 2326 | Dried Apples, bbis.....       | 200    |
| Shirts, cotton.....     | 72   | Cloves, lbs.....              | 3½     |
| Drawers.....            | 1924 | Nutmegs, lbs.....             | 2      |
| Socks.....              | 2378 | Mustard, lbs.....             | 32     |
| Mittens.....            | 500  | Soap, castile, lbs.....       | 51     |
| Blankets.....           | 24   | Thread, lbs.....              | 8      |
| Towels.....             | 2933 | Boiled Onions, cans.....      | 92     |
| Handkerchiefs.....      | 1611 | Apple Sauce, cans.....        | 245    |
| Pillow Ticks.....       | 24   | Beef Soup, cans.....          | 42     |
| Pillow Cases.....       | 36   | Soup and Bonilli, cans.....   | 140    |
| Sheets.....             | 30   | Julienne Soup, cans.....      | 72     |
| Flannel, yards.....     | 4    | Blackberry Brandy, btls.....  | 33     |
| Wrappers.....           | 126  | Blackberry Cordial, btls..... | 232    |
| Milk, lbs.....          | 1754 | Sherry Wine, btls.....        | 93     |
| Tomatoes, gallons.....  | 432  | Ale, btls.....                | 590    |
| Beef Stock, cans.....   | 240  | Cherry Brandy, btls.....      | 116    |
| Roast Beef, lbs.....    | 240  | Jamaica Ginger, btls.....     | 563    |
| Mutton, lbs.....        | 1802 | Whiskey, btls.....            | 12     |
| Tobacco, lbs.....       | 3612 | Lemon Syrup, btls.....        | 80     |
| Chocolate, lbs.....     | 243  | Brandy, btls.....             | 52     |
| Dried Fruit, lbs.....   | 500  | Flavoring Extract, btls.....  | 420    |
| Farina, lbs.....        | 324  | Cider, btls.....              | 24     |
| Gelatina, lbs.....      | 114  | Cologne, btls.....            | 20     |
| Sugar, lbs.....         | 340  | Eucelopes.....                | 24,016 |
| Tea, lbs.....           | 30   | Paper, reams.....             | 88½    |
| Spices, lbs.....        | 33½  | Pencils, doz.....             | 76     |
| Ground Ginger, lbs..... | 5½   | Ink, btls.....                | 616    |
| Maizena, lbs.....       | 428  | Penholders.....               | 364    |
| Crackers, bbis.....     | 44½  | Pens, gross.....              | 1      |

|                      |     |                           |      |
|----------------------|-----|---------------------------|------|
| Spelling Books.....  | 370 | Crutches, pairs.....      | 84   |
| Matches, gross.....  | 174 | Tin Cnps.....             | 408  |
| Pins, papers.....    | 188 | Spoons.....               | 234  |
| Needles, papers..... | 160 | Combs.....                | 3673 |
| Darning Needles..... | 24  | Yeast Powders, boxes..... | 100  |
| Comfort Bags.....    | 50  | Lemonade, cans.....       | 156  |
| Pads.....            | 36  | Pickles, gallons.....     | 146  |
| Rags, bbis.....      | 2½  | Gerkins, box.....         | 1    |
| Arm Slings.....      | 84  | Chambers.....             | 13   |
| Tin Pails.....       | 2   |                           |      |

Department of the South.

A TESTIMONIAL.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., January 21, 1865.

DR. GEO. A. BLAKE,

Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

SIR:—Before leaving the city, allow me to tender to you, and through you, to the Sanitary Commission, my sincere thanks for the many favors I have received at your hands, in the shape of diet and clothing, for the sick and disabled of the 1st Indiana Heavy Artillery.

I believe you to be true to the trust confided to you. Your activity and efficiency in responding to the many wants of our patriotic soldiers must command the respect and admiration of all who uphold the cause of our common country. I am sir,

Very respectfully,

W. L. SHEROD,

Surgeon 1st Indiana Heavy Artillery.

LETTER FROM WILLIAM R. MILLER.

EAST PASCAGOULA, January 28, 1865.

DR. GEO. A. BLAKE,

General Agent Sanitary Commission,
Department of the Gulf.

DEAR DR.:—I write you in the hurry of packing up, and of course, do not expect to present anything worthy of special notice. Confusion is at present the order of the day. Cavalry have all left;—several regiments of infantry have marching orders. I have been asked how long it will take to pack up; and on that hint, have everything packed, ready for a start. Fort Gaines is again to be my depot. I have received two consignments of goods—a large portion of which I have issued, and I am often cheered by the remarks from surgeons and men, "We did not know what the Sanitary Commission was until we met you." The kindest feelings exist between us. From commanding general to drummer-boy, I have all as my friends; and all are interested in the Sanitary Commission. I do not remember any period of my life in which I have realized as much pure pleasure as I have since my connection with the Commission. And now, on this day—which may be my last at Pascagoula,—I am just as happy and contented as I desire to be; being convinced that this is not the proper base for operations against Mobile, and that the proper base has been found, and that Mobile will be ours just as soon as the troops could get there by this route.

Do not send me any more goods until you hear from me. My orders from the Medical Director are to have as much at Gaines as possible, but not to keep any here, more than sufficient for a few days. I have spent the week very profitably for myself and the men, but have no time to enter into particulars. Let it suffice that the command is in good health and spirits. Sick do not accumulate as I anticipated, and I am the more convinced that this is THE place for a General Hospital.

I enclose a letter sent to me a few days since—'tis not from a surgeon, but from one who has seen, perhaps, more of the advantages of the Sanitary Commission than any surgeon in the department. I receive and forward all such that come voluntarily without regard to the rank of the writer.

Dr. Udell, Iowa State Agent, is with me, and I shall send this by him.

Having no letter-paper with me, I am obliged to use note-paper, which you will please excuse.

LETTER FROM EDWARD HARMAR,

Acting Hospital Steward, Field Hospital, East Pascagoula, Miss.

FIELD HOSPITAL, EAST PASCAGOULA, MISS. }
January, 22, 1865. }

MR. W. R. MILLER,

Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR:—As I am about to leave the service, and return North to my home, I feel it my duty to express to you in a feeble way, my appreciation of the many and valuable services rendered to the sick and wounded soldiers of this department, by yourself individually, as well as by the Commission you represent. Having served as Acting Hospital Steward in the St. Louis General Hospital, at New Orleans, La., at the Post Hospital, at Fort Gaines, Ala., and at the Field Hospital, East Pascagoula, Miss., I have in each place witnessed your course of action, and am prepared to say that your smiling and cheerful face is always a welcome one to the soldiers, and that the personal services rendered by you are of incalculable value; at least equal in amount to the supplies which you have so liberally provided, and I am fully satisfied, many valuable lives have been saved thereby. It would give great pleasure to refer to some particular cases, but I find such a multitude, that it is utterly impossible to particularize. Suffice it to say that if all Sanitary Agents equal you in discrimination and zeal, thousands of families will have cause to say God bless the Sanitary Commission, and I assure you I shall make it a point, wherever I go, to urge upon all, liberal contributions to your funds.

FROM ANNAPOLIS.

BY E. C. GUILD.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 4, 1865

I have the honor to submit herewith my report for the week ending this day.

On Sunday, January 29, I had the pleasure, at the suggestion of Rev. J. M. Clark, agent of the U. S. Christian Commission, of preaching at the College Green barracks, under command of Captain Charles W. Davis. There were not many occupants of the barracks this day, but I had a most interesting and intelligent audience of about 30 men, mostly composed of those detailed for special duty, under the orders of Captain Davis. In the evening I attended service in the officer's hospital, of which Rev. D. O. Sloan is chaplain; a sort of family worship in one of the wards of the hospital, followed by an hour given to sacred music. I have also had the pleasure several times during the week, of joining in evening prayers, held every evening in the tent of Miss Hall, superintendent of lady nurses. These social religious observances have a most beautiful influence in uniting in the closest and truest fellowship all who are laboring here in the cause of Christ and of humanity.

On Sunday, and all through the week, we have been overrun with applications for every form of relief, by men delayed here by the ice, or passing through on their way to the front. It has been a pleasure to do all we could to supply their wants, but where the number of applicants is so large, it has been impossible to meet the demands of all. We have reason now to expect that in consequence of milder weather, and the opening of the rivers, this unusual drain upon our resources will come to an end; and we trust soon to be able to begin again our more accustomed work of ministering to the needs of our returned prisoners. Rumors are again afloat of a renewal of the exchange, and our hopes and prayers are earnest and fervent that they may prove well founded, and be speedily followed by the actual arrival of the sufferers whose misery we long to alleviate.

LETTER FROM CAMP PAROLE HOSPITAL.

BY MISS S. L. PHILLIPS.

February 3, 1865.

One of the features now presented in our daily rounds—more prominent perhaps than any other—is the absence of familiar faces that we have been wont to meet daily for many weeks. While some have taken furloughs, some been discharged, a few transferred to hospitals nearer home, and three or four have received a final transfer to their eternal homes, the number of inmates remains nearly the same; as new cases of fever are brought in from the camp almost daily; and a majority of the attendants in the different wards now occupy the place of those whom their assiduity and vigilance have helped to restore to a degree of health; or their kindly offices had failed to snatch from the grasp of death, though they had spared no efforts to do so. Epidemic fevers continue to prevail; but only in one or two instances have they as yet terminated fatally.

Applications to your agency for supplies of clothing have been less frequent of late; while the demand for farina, crackers, baked apples, lemonade, etc., has increased. Lemons are furnished by the Commissary Department.

Of the lingering cases of chronic disease, two or three have slept in death during the week; and a few others, with two or three of the severely wounded, still linger on the brink of the grave.

Cases of special interest to us have not been wanting; but none of so marked a character as to be deemed worthy of record.

Special Relief Department.

REPORT OF J. B. ABBOTT.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

I have the honor to submit the following report of the work accomplished in this office and the several relief stations under my supervision for the week ending this date:

|                                                                                 |    |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Number of pay accounts of discharged soldiers received for adjustment . . . . . | 43 |
| Number of back pay cases, . . . . .                                             | 34 |
| Number of bounty cases, . . . . .                                               | 2  |

|                                                                                    |             |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Claims for the pay of prisoners of war (for their families), . . . . .             | 2           |
| Number of naval cases, . . . . .                                                   | 10          |
| Number of pension claims, . . . . .                                                | 42          |
| Number of claims for the arrears of pay and bounty of deceased soldiers, . . . . . | 3           |
| Whole number of cases received and registered, . . . . .                           | 136         |
| Whole number of cases adjusted, . . . . .                                          | 118         |
| Whole amount secured and collected, (exclusive of pension claims), . . . . .       | $10,783 83 |
| Number of drafts sent, . . . . .                                                   | 14          |
| Amount of drafts sent, . . . . .                                                   | $1,786 03  |
| Number of letters written, and copy pressed, . . . . .                             | 176         |
| Whole number of letters mailed, . . . . .                                          | 447         |
| Whole number received, . . . . .                                                   | 495         |

LODGE NO. IV.

|                                                                       |       |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Number of meals given to soldiers, . . . . .                          | 2,656 |
| Number of meals given to employees of the Lodge and others, . . . . . | 434   |
| Numbers of lodgings furnished, . . . . .                              | 589   |

SIXTH STREET LODGE.

The report of this Lodge shows very little accomplished this week.

Refreshments to 25 sick soldiers, and meals to 125 discharged and furloughed men have been furnished. Mr. McPherran, the Superintendent, will start home on his leave of absence on Tuesday next.

ALEXANDRIA LODGE.

|                                                                |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Number of meals given to soldiers, . . . . .                   | 270 |
| Number of meals given to soldiers' relatives, . . . . .        | 90  |
| Number of lodgings furnished to soldiers, . . . . .            | 99  |
| Number of lodgings furnished to soldiers' relatives, . . . . . | 30  |

You will notice that there has been an increase in the amount of work accomplished at this Lodge the past week. This is on account of a part of the 23d army corps being temporarily stationed in the vicinity. Several hundred articles of clothing, stationery, &c., have been distributed from this station during the week.

One additional servant has been employed temporarily.

HOME AT BALTIMORE.

|                                        |    |
|----------------------------------------|----|
| Number admitted to the Home, . . . . . | 74 |
| Classified as follows:                 |    |
| Soldiers and seamen, . . . . .         | 48 |

|                                                                                                             |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Soldiers' relatives, . . . . .                                                                              | 25  |
| Refugees, . . . . .                                                                                         | 1   |
| Number of meals, . . . . .                                                                                  | 304 |
| Number of lodgings, . . . . .                                                                               | 95  |
| Government transportation secured for . . . . .                                                             | 5   |
| Transportation paid by the Commission to . . . . .                                                          | 3   |
| Wounds dressed, . . . . .                                                                                   | 15  |
| H. H. Trego reports reports 76 disabled soldiers accompanied and cared for between Washington and New York. |     |

During the week we have furnished transportation, at the expense of the Commission, to 5.

BY J. B. BROWN.

I have the honor to submit the following report of the labors of the past week in my department.

|                                                        |            |
|--------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Number of hospital back-pay claims entered, . . . . .  | 34         |
| Number of hospital back-pay claims adjusted, . . . . . | 26         |
| Amount secured on adjusted claims, . . . . .           | $2,228 44 |
| Number of prisoner-of-war claims entered, . . . . .    | 2          |
| Number of prisoner-of-war claims adjusted, . . . . .   | 1          |
| Amount collected, . . . . .                            | $45 50    |
| Number of prize cases entered, . . . . .               | 10         |
| “ “ “ adjusted, . . . . .                              | 4          |
| Amount collected, . . . . .                            | $336 36   |
| Aggregate collections for the week, . . . . .          | $2,610 30 |
| Number of letters written in full, . . . . .           | 58         |
| Number of forms sent, . . . . .                        | 71         |

Total number of letters sent, 129

The amount collected the past week is much less than usual, owing in part to Mr. Cutter's absence, and to the number of old claims which are being worked up.

The number of naval claims have fallen off considerably in the last two weeks, which affect the aggregate collections considerably. Trusting that the coming week will show a large increase both in the number of new cases and in the amount collected.

BY WM. K. NEALL

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25, 1865.

The following shows the result of our labors during the past week in collecting back pay, bounty, &c., for discharged soldiers :

|                                               |            |
|-----------------------------------------------|------------|
| No. of cases received and recorded, . . . . . | 43         |
| No. of cases settled by collection, . . . . . | 34         |
| Amount collected in 34 cases, . . . . .       | $7,310 07 |
| No. of letters written by me, . . . . .       | 20         |
| No. of blanks sent, . . . . .                 | 15         |

CASH.

|                                          |        |
|------------------------------------------|--------|
| Balance on hand, January 21st, . . . . . | $2 00 |
| Expended for car tickets, . . . . .      | 2 00   |

BY W. P. BARRY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 28, 1865.

I respectfully submit the following report of the work of my office for the week ending to-day :

|                                                                                      |          |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|
| Number new claims for pension taken and filed in Pension Office, . . . . .           | 42       |
| Number claims for arrears of pay and bounty, filed in 2d Auditor's office, . . . . . | 3        |
| Whole number claims filed, . . . . .                                                 | 45       |
| Number of pension claims allowed by the Commissioner of Pensions, . . . . .          | 48       |
| Number claims for arrears of pay and bounty allowed, . . . . .                       | 4        |
| Whole number claims allowed, . . . . .                                               | 52       |
| Amount arrears of pay and bounty collected, . . . . .                                | $788 46 |
| Number of letters written, in full, . . . . .                                        | 82       |
| Number of letters written, in part, (blanks,) . . . . .                              | 103      |
| Whole number of letters sent, . . . . .                                              | 185      |
| Number of letters received, . . . . .                                                | 234      |

List of sick and wounded soldiers waited upon in transit between Washington and New York, for the week ending January 21, 1865. By A. H. Trego, Courier, U. S. Sanitary Commission.

JANUARY 17.

G. F. G., B, 29th Mass., Billerica, fits, from Colonel Tufts, discharged.

J. W. H., D, 1st H. A. Maine, Bangor, wounded foot, from "Home," transferred.

Mrs. H., Bangor, Maine, after son, per Miss Bradford.

N. McK., E, 1st H. A. Maine, Bangor, lame back, "Home," furloughed.

11 soldiers, sundry, Maine, via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick and wounded, from Home, &c., discharged and furloughed.

13 soldiers, sundry, Mass., via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick and wounded, from "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

4 soldiers, sundry, Conn., via. N. E. R., sick and wounded, from "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

6 soldiers, sundry, N. H., via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick and wounded, from "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

20 soldiers, sundry, N. Y. City, &c., sick and wounded, from "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

JANUARY 19.

J. K., E, 152d N. Y., Deerfield, left leg off, found at depot, discharged.

J. H. C., B, 2d Art. N. Y., Hagaman's Mills, wounded leg, depot, discharged.

J. F., B, 3d N. J., Bergen, sick, ("non compus,") "Home," discharged.

A. C., C, 19th Maine, Hallowell, arm off, found on train, furloughed.

D. D. F., C, 1st Cav. Maine, Abbottsville, sick, found on train, furloughed.

W. D., D, 56th Mass., Boston, wounded legs, found on train, discharged.

15 soldiers, sundry, Mass., Boston, &c., sick and wounded, from front, &c., discharged and furloughed.

25 soldiers, sundry, N. Y., via. City, &c., sick and wounded, from front, &c., discharged and furloughed.

7 soldiers, sundry, N. H., via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick and wounded, from front, &c., discharged and furloughed.

3 soldiers, sundry, Conn., via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick and wounded, from "Home," &c., discharged.

2 soldiers, R. I., via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick, from "Home," &c., discharged.

JANUARY 21.

5 soldiers, sundry, Mass., Boston, &c., sick and wounded, from "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

3 soldiers, sundry, Conn., New Haven, sick and wounded, "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

4 soldiers, sundry, N. H., via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick and wounded, "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

7 soldiers, sundry, N. Y. City, &c., sick and wounded, "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

Total for week, 135.

For week ending January 28.

JANUARY 24.

H. D., I, 15th N. Y., Albany, wounded, from "Home," furloughed.

E. L. B., D, 10th N. Y., Albany, wounded, from "Home," furloughed.

J. N. L., D, 10th N. Y., Albany, wounded, from "Home," furloughed.

W. E. W., E, 2d Michigan, Detroit, wounded, from "Home," discharged.

T. S., I, 61st N. Y. City, sick, from "Home," discharged.

H. H., C, 5th N. H., Concord, sick, from "Home," discharged.

E. C. R., (and brother,) K, 1st Vt. Cav., Underhill, sick, Baltimore, paroled prisoner.

8 soldiers, sundry, Mass., Boston, sick and wounded, "Home," &c., discharged.

7 soldiers, sundry, Mass., Boston, &c., sick and wounded, from front, &c., discharged and furloughed.

9 soldiers, sundry, Maine, via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick and wounded, found on train, &c., discharged and furloughed.

17 soldiers, sundry, N. Y. City, &c., sick and wounded, found on train, &c., discharged and furloughed.

JANUARY 26.

3 soldiers, sundry, Mass., Boston, wounded, from "Home," discharged and furloughed.

3 soldiers, sundry, Mass., Boston, sick, from "Home," discharged.

5 soldiers, sundry, Mass., Boston, &c., sick and wounded, "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

4 soldiers, sundry, Maine, via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick and wounded, "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

2 soldiers, sundry, N. H., via. N. E. R., N. Y., sick, from "Home," discharged.

11 soldiers, sundry, N. Y. City, &c., sick and wounded, from "Home," &c., discharged and furloughed.

JANUARY 27 AND 28.

Courier quite sick. Total for week, 76.

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

BRANCH ORGANIZATION, CONTINUED.

NO. VII.

An account of the Home Organization of this branch of the Commission was given in our last article. To-day we shall explain its Field Organization.

Each Branch of the Commission has its own field, from whence it draws supplies, and which is organized by it according to its best judgment. These fields are determined as nearly as possible by the natural divisions of the country, and the popular prejudices of the people. Their aggregate comprises the entire area of the loyal States, and constitutes the Home Department of the Sanitary Commission.

Our own field consists of the States of Connecticut, Rhode Island and New York excepting some of the western counties. It is subdivided into Divisions and Sections. We have four Divisions. These have been made for the sole purpose of facilitating the home correspondence, and are arbitrary. A Section is usually one county, or part of a county. Each Section is in charge of one or more resident Associate Managers.

Soldiers' Aid Societies are classified into Centers of Collections and Contributing Societies. These may or may not be auxiliaries. Centers of Collections are established in cities, and in those places which are the natural commercial centres of the surrounding country, as Newport, Providence, Hartford, New Haven, Albany, Troy, &c. The Soldiers' Aid Societies of the towns and villages, sending their supplies either through these Centers of Collection, or directly to the Branches, are Contributing Societies. It is the desire of the Commission that all Auxiliary Soldiers' Aid Societies shall make the Branches in whose fields they are, their central depots. Our Auxiliary Soldiers' Aid Societies are those who, by vote, bind themselves to work exclusively through our agency. We never ask Societies to do this; it must come from themselves—a free will expression of their confidence in us. It is only natural, therefore, that the bond between our auxiliary societies and ourselves should be peculiarly strong. It is one of mutual confidence, dependence and affection, and marked by that freedom of intercourse which characterizes all true friendship.

We have wearied you with this dry detailed explanation, because we want you to understand thoroughly the general outline of the system, in which we are all taking part; and because it will facilitate our future intercourse to be able to call things by their right names, and so speak of them understandingly.

We have said that our plan of work was to help you, so far as was possible, by practical suggestions and otherwise. We are aware how imperfectly this has been done, how—with our own work so entirely different—we have been trying to anticipate your wants, not from any personal experience of them, but through intuition and sympathy alone. You know better than we can, what our failures have been in this respect. We know, too, how far short of the will the deed has been, and must be.

Let us show you at least what the design has been—what we have aimed at.

The women of one of our little villages wish to work for the soldiers. They wish to form themselves into a society, and work systematically and steadily, in such a way too, that the work shall not be borne by two or three only, but shall be, to a certain degree, shared by the whole community. We attempted to meet this want by publishing a "Plan for the Formation of Country Societies," now to be found in BULLETIN No. 12. Its design is to take the burden off the few, and distribute it among the many. The society being organized, the great question is: How shall we get our funds? And this question will be answered in as many different ways as the character, the size, and wealth of the community differ. We have suggested the "Alert Club" system, also published in No. 12, as being especially applicable to little country villages, where, unless all can be made to take an active interest in the work, it is exceedingly difficult to support a society. The Alert Club is composed entirely of young people. Its object is to keep the treasury of the parent society full—by taking up a small monthly collection from each member of the community, and by other means. Elder people like to sit still and sew, but dislike going from house to house, asking for money, for any purpose; younger people and children dislike the sitting still and the sewing, but enjoy the going about, and have not the same false pride about asking for money.

The money being obtained there is material to be bought. As has been stated before, we have facilities for buying materials in the city at wholesale prices, and at lower rates than the same quality can usually be obtained in the country. We will gladly make any purchases of material for you although we cannot undertake to pay the express charges upon them. To auxiliary societies, finding it impossible to support themselves, the following proposition was made in our Third Annual Report and is now repeated: "Any society sending us a sum of money not exceeding $30 per month, for the purchase of material, will receive double the amount in cotton, flannel or in such material as may be most desirable to have made up at the time. This offer is especially designed to revive and stimulate small societies whose chief difficulty has been the want of funds. Express charges must be paid by the societies ordering the goods."

We will suppose that our Society has now received its material. Forthwith a terrible discussion arises as to what patterns shall be used. Some go upon the principle that all soldiers are giants, and wish to cut all the garments twice the ordinary size; some cling to buttons; others insist upon strings. One authority is as good as another, and all authorities differ. And here we would ask you to trust the experience of those who have had most to do with sick and wounded soldiers in the hospitals. The patterns and measurements published in the BULLETIN have been based upon this experience, and have been prepared with great care. A pattern for a Hospital Flannel Shirt is to be found in BULLETIN No. 13—see correction in No. 17. Diagrams of Flannel and Cotton Drawers, same pattern, No. 13—see correction in No. 16. Cotton Shirt, BULLETIN No. 16. Slippers, Arm-Sling and Ration-bag, No. 22. Dressing-Gown or Wrapper, No. 25. Directions for making Bedding for Hospital use, Cushions, Bandages, Lint, &c., for knitting Socks, Mittens and Wristers, No. 31.

Imagine the garments cut out and made. Now comes the packing, directing and sending off. Directions for packing, invoices, &c., will be found in the Appendix of our Third Annual Report. Make what arrangement you can with steamboat, railroad and express companies, many of which are exceedingly liberal, to carry your box free; but should this be impossible, we would much rather pay the freight charges in New York, than have you prepay them. We can readily obtain money for this purpose, while it is much better for the work that all the money you can collect should be expended in materials. Our society has now sent off its first hospital box, and received a letter acknowledging its receipt at our rooms. This alone is scarcely satisfactory. You want to know what is being done with your supplies; what the Sanitary Commission is doing everywhere; you want to know, and ought to know, as much as you can, about the work. It is to meet these wants that the BULLETIN is published every fortnight. Its design is to give you the fullest and latest information about the Commission. The circulation of the BULLETIN through this Branch alone has increased from 2,400 to 2,600 copies during the past month. And yet we wish it was larger. We do not want subscribers, we want readers, and we will gladly furnish as many copies as may be asked for. A plan for facilitating the circulation of the BULLETIN in villages can be found in No. 29. And is this all that we can do to help our society? It seems so little. And yet you have written to say that what, with the information derived through the BULLETIN and from constant correspondence with us, you feel perfectly satisfied, entirely ready to keep on working. It is we, then, who are not satisfied for you. We want you to have the same advantages in the work that we have, we want you to have the opportunity of asking questions, and of talking face-to-face with agents of the Commission who have themselves put your shirts and drawers on to the soldiers. These agents are now going among you as lecturers. Although the specified time has elapsed, we are still ready to receive applications for lecturers, according to the proposition made in our Article No. 2, circulated among you as a fly-leaf with BULLETIN No. 28. We hope that, when these gentlemen come among you, you will allow them to fill in the missing links which we, at this distance can only feel are wanting, without seeing.

And so, dear friends, in this imperfect way we have tried to keep pace with you in your work; have tried, through sympathy, to put ourselves so far as we could in your position, hoping to clear away some of your difficulties. But the burden of the work still remains with you. How can it be otherwise? Our part in it is nothing—excepting as your trustees. No, it is your time and your money, your perseverance and endurance—above all, your steadfast will and loving hearts, which have been the means, through the grace of God, of alleviating the untold sufferings of this cruel, this righteous war.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER.

Chairman Committee on Correspondence, &c.
NEW YORK, 7 COOPER UNION,
February 16, 1865.

THE SOLDIER'S REST, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Buffalo, N. Y., is one of the half-way houses for western travel. Day and night the current from east to west and west to east, pours along the arterial railway; and day and night western soldiers assigned to eastern armies, and eastern soldiers assigned to western armies, come to a halt in the depot. Many of them are sick, at least not well; some just out of hospitals are on furlough; some with legs off, or arms off, or their vitality sucked out by malaria, are discharged. Hundreds only halt in the depot, and are then whirled onward in their journey; while other hundreds walk, creep, or hobble into the street to look for a meal, or bed, or a place to rest until they can radiate from this centre to their respective homes. With but few exceptions they are moneyless, and with rare exceptions they are friendless; and at all times, but especially during these bitter howling months of winter, the questions—who will give me a bed without charge; where shall I obtain a meal without price? Are not only difficult to solve, but of vital importance to the brave fellows who con them over in their minds.

Immediately opposite the depot, standing out in a very modest way, as if it stood out solely from a feeling of duty, and not a whit with the feeling of vanity, is a snug, clean, home-like house, wearing on its brow the words "The Soldier's Rest"—"U. S. Sanitary Commission." Without articulating a syllable, simply by looking and being looked at, it answers the questions in a moment; and to its door walk, totter, or hobble the moneyless and friendless sons of Uncle Samuel, to find a bed, a meal, or a rest, without money and without price; to find carpets and chairs, lounges, books, and fires, which greet them with the genial smile of home, rather than with the bold stare of hotels; and which at once magnetize them into the conviction that the Rest was provided not so much for soldiers in the aggregate and concrete as for themselves individually and personally. It is amusing to see how, at first, some of them look from their shoes to the carpet, and back to the shoes, as if the one had no right on the other; and then how they sidle into a corner where there are no chairs, though they crowd the chairs out of the way to reach the corner. And when the warm-hearted lady who has been appointed superintendent by the warm-hearted ladies of the Buffalo Branch, coaxes them to give the chairs a fair chance along the walls by sitting down in them; and coaxes the weakest men to lie down on the lounges; and coaxes steaming dishes to come from out the tidy kitchen expressly to be eaten; and coaxes the white pillows and sheets to smooth all the wrinkles out of themselves, that they may woo sleep to smooth all the wrinkles out of the tired faces;—while all this is going on, it does one's heart good to see how the

CONSOLIDATED REPORT OF "THE SOLDIERS' REST" AT BUFFALO, NEW YORK.

Showing by States the number of Men entertained and the number of Lodgings and Meals given.

| 1861.             |     | DATE. |      |
|-------------------|-----|-------|------|
| January.....      | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| February.....     | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| March.....        | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| April.....        | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| May.....          | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| June.....         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| July.....         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| August.....       | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| September.....    | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| October.....      | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| November.....     | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| December.....     | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| 1860.             | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| January.....      | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Total.....        | 2   | 144   | 8    |
| California.       | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Colorado.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Connecticut.      | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Georgia.          | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Illinois.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Indiana.          | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Iowa.             | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Kansas.           | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Kentucky.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Louisiana.        | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Maine.            | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Maryland.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Massachusetts.    | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Michigan.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Minnesota.        | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Missouri.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Nebraska.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| New Hampshire.    | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| New Jersey.       | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| New York.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| North Carolina.   | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Ohio.             | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Pennsylvania.     | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Rhode Island.     | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Tennessee.        | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Texas.            | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Vermont.          | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| West Virginia.    | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Wisconsin.        | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Independent Bat.  | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Marines.          | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Old Irish Brigade | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Q. M. Department. | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Refugees.         | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| U. S. Regulars.   | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Unclassified.     | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| V. Reserve Corps. | 1   | 4     | 3    |
| Total.            | 83  | 84    | 344  |
| Lodgings.         | 131 | 131   | 532  |
| Meals.            | 297 | 297   | 1185 |
| Largest.          | 23  | 23    | 7    |
| Average.          | 7   | 7     | 2    |
| Sent to Hospital. | 1   | 1     | 1    |
| Died.             | 1   | 1     | 1    |
| Total.            | 2   | 144   | 8    |

carpets and chairs and walls nudge each other and laugh at the shoes for their timidity; and how quickly the men laugh heartier than all of them as the cheer and glow charm each one into the belief that before he enlisted he built the Rest for his own especial use, but had forgotten all about it till that minute.

The original design of the ladies who compose the Buffalo Branch of the United States Sanitary Commission, was to provide a temporary home for sick soldiers passing through their city, or to the hospitals of their city; and a large number of those who have received the benefits of the Rest have been of this class; but the numerous applications, and evident claims of well men for attention, have caused them to lay the case before Government officials, and with that generosity and humanity which has so eminently characterized the United States authorities, Government has decided to erect buildings on the same ground, and as a part of the Rest, for the accommodation of all soldiers who are justly entitled to rations and care, such regulations being established as that Government rations shall only be issued to soldiers, while, at the same time, the Sanitary Commission can from its own resources feed discharged men or others who are not entitled to subsistence.

The Rest was opened in June, and the daily average of men cared for was three; during July, August and September, the daily average was seven; October, thirteen; and January thirty-one; so that the work done during the last month is ten times as great as that of the first. No better indication of the necessity for the Rest, or of the absolute necessity for its continuance could be asked than this fact. During the eight months of its operation 3,318 enlisted men, from twenty-nine different States, have been cared for; 2,497 lodgings in sweet white beds have been given; and 8,869 hot, toothsome meals have been furnished; and all has been done in such a quiet, unpretending way that thousands of passers-by who might have glanced at the modest house, have not even noticed its existence, much less known its work. A meal to an emaciated convalescent often prevents a relapse, and a few nights quiet rest have saved many a life. If ideas ever take upon themselves a solid form, the "Rest" is but an expression of the Good Master's command, "Love one another."

FROM FORT FISHER.

We call attention to the subjoined extract from the Fort Fisher correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune. It will be gratifying to the people to know, that the wounded after the battle at that place, had every attention possible under the circumstances, and that the agents of the Sanitary Commission worked side by side with the army surgeons in alleviating distress. It is always thus in the field, and that a man, in the language of this writer, "traduces" the Sanitary, is pretty strong evidence that he has not been at the front to make its acquaintance.

The wounded were all carefully attended to and removed to the base hospital, from which they will be sent by steamer to Fortress Monroe at once. Dr. Barnes, the Medical Director of the army, deserves great praise for his indefatigable labors for the care of the wounded. He is ably assisted by an excellent corps of surgeons.

Mr. F. W. Foster, the Sanitary Agent, assisted by Mr. Adams, has been of great service to the wounded, being personally present on the field and in the hospitals, with his supplies of clothing and other necessary comforts at the time they were most needed. The men who traduce this excellent charity know nothing of what they speak. Its praise is the theme of all good and conscientious officers, soldiers and surgeons of the army.

OUR HEROES.

[The poem given below has been recited by Mr. Murdoch before large audiences in Philadelphia, where it was received with shouts, and applauded verse by verse.]

Cheers! cheers for our heroes!
Not those who wear stars;
Not those who wear eagles,
And leaflets and bars;
We know they are gallant,
And honor them too,
For bravely maintaining
The Red, White, and Blue.

But cheers for our soldiers,
Rough, wrinkled, and brown;
The men who MAKE heroes
And ask no renown:
Unselfish, untiring,
Intrepid and true,
The bulwark surrounding
The Red, White, and Blue!

Our patriot soldiers!
When treason arose,
And Freedom's own children
Assailed her as foes;

When Anarchy threatened
And Order withdrew,
They rallied to rescue
The Red, White and Blue!

Upholding our banner
On many a field,
The doom of the traitor
They valiantly sealed;
And, worn with the conflict,
Found vigor anew,
Where victory greeted
The Red, White, and Blue!

Yet loved ones have fallen—
And still where they sleep,
A sorrowing Nation
Shall silently weep;
And Spring's fairest flowers,
In gratitude strew
O'er those who have cherished
The Red, White, and Blue!

But glory immortal
Is waiting them now;
And chaplets unfading
Shall bind every brow,
When called by the trumpet,
At Time's great review.
They stand, who defended
The Red, White, and Blue!

WHY DOES THE SANITARY COMMISSION BUY VEGETABLES?

The question is often asked, and with great seeming grace, "Why does the Sanitary Commission waste the people's money in sending supplies of vegetables and other anti-scorbutics to the army, when it is well known that Government issues these stores with the greatest liberality, and on the largest scale?"

The following extract from a work on Military Surgery, by a gentleman who has for several years held a high position on the medical staff, is a sufficient answer to this question:

In the Army of the Cumberland, the surgeons, however, had been long reporting from week to week, the pressing necessity for vegetables; but we could not learn that any one of these reports had ever been seen or read by the commanding officers, and when it became our duty to call the attention of corps commanders, and even of the Commander-in-Chief of this army to the facts, with few exceptions, they confessed their entire ignorance of the true state of affairs. More than this the commissaries of brigades, of divisions, and of corps, as well as the Commissary General of the Army, who themselves received and distributed the supplies, fully believed that the soldiers had plenty of vegetables; and that, when they had not received more than three full rations in twelve months. The explanation of this extraordinary fact is, that during nearly all this time fresh potatoes, and occasionally other vegetables, were received and issued; but of one hundred barrels issued by the chief commissary, at least twenty-five went to the staff officers' families and servants at headquarters, and to the Post, including often citizens and hospitals; of the seventy-five remaining for distribution to the corps commissaries, twenty-five more barrels disappeared again with the officers and their families; a third distribution to the division commissaries blotted out another twenty-five barrels, and a fourth to the brigade commissaries disposed of the remainder in a like manner, so that the regimental commissary received none; and it is here that the inquiry must always be made, or with the soldier himself, if an inspector desires to know how the troops are fed.

When it is remembered that a large portion of these vegetables is usually spoiled in transitu to the army, and that many more decay before the final distribution, it will be easy to understand how one hundred barrels, shown as received and distributed daily on the chief commissary's books, are completely sifted out before they reach the men in the field. In confirmation of this statement, we will quote a portion of our report for the month of May, 1863, made to the Commanding General of the Department of the Cumberland. It will be noticed that up to the first of April, the soldiers had not on an average received from the Government over three rations in twelve months, and that from this date General Rosecrans and his commissary had determined that the troops should be abundantly supplied. To this end, extraordinary efforts and attention were now directed to the matter. We will see with what result: "In my previous report I informed you, Sir, that from the first of April the Commissary General has been receiving at the rate of one hundred barrels of fresh potatoes per day, but that on the 9th of April, almost none of these had reached the regiments. On the 20th of May, I ascertained that this Department had received from the Government at the rate, on the average of 150 barrels per day, from the first day of April up to that moment, which at a fair computation would give one full ration of potatoes to every soldier in the command on every alternate day.

"The fact of the arrival of these vegetables at this rate was, I found generally understood by the commanding officers, and Major General McCook, commanding the 20th corps, informed me that his mind had been completely set at rest upon this subject, by the report of his own inspector (not a medical officer) that the supply was now sufficient. I was able to furnish him, however, with the written statement of four regimental commissaries in his corps, and these were all of whom I had made inquiry, that only one full ration of potatoes had been received by the men in April, and but three in May."

We ought to mention that, during the periods when the Army of the Cumberland was in need of fresh vegetables, the U. S. Sanitary Commission was constantly supplying the General Hospitals on the field, the Post Hospitals, the Convalescent Camps, and, to some extent, the Regimental Hospitals, with potatoes, onions, and other vegetables; and when, in the early part of April, 1863, we notified Dr. Read, the chief of the Sanitary Commission of that department, of the urgent need that fresh vegetables should be supplied to the troop themselves who were in the field, the Commission responded with a promptness and liberality which were most gratifying, and which demonstrated the value and importance of their organization. It was understood that the army was preparing to advance, and an important battle was anticipated; under these circumstances, there could be no delay, if the troops were to be put into a healthy condition before the action occurred. The Sanitary Commission was notified of our wants on the 11th of April. On the 13th we were informed by Dr. Newberry, the energetic Secretary of the Western Department, that there would be "immediately forwarded large shipments of vegetables for Gen. Rosecrans's army by railroad and by boat, the superintendent of the road having been requested by the Commander-in-Chief to forward promptly all that the Commission can send." On the 16th, 130 barrels arrived at Murfreesboro; and from this time, for several weeks, they continued to arrive at the rate of about 100 barrels per day, and were distributed directly to the troops by the agents employed by the Commission. It is worthy of notice, also, that while those sent by the Government were often damaged by decay in consequence of the barrels having not been properly opened for ventilation before being shipped, and from delay or lack of care in the shipment; those sent by the Commission were always ventilated by an opening of about two inches in diameter in the sides or ends of the barrels before being shipped, and they were almost uniformly in good condition. At one time the Medical Director, Surgeon Perin, found at Murfreesboro 1,500 barrels lying in the Commissary store-rooms; not one barrel of which, we believe, had any ventilation, and the contents of most of which, when we came to open them, were more or less decayed. They were waiting an order from the Commanding General to issue them, but the Commissary had failed to notify the General that they were on hand. The Medical Director, Dr. Perin, promptly informed the General, and an order was at once obtained for their issue.

Such facts as these do not always indicate inefficiency, perhaps, on the part of the Government officers, but rather that the multiplicity of their duties renders it difficult, if not impossible sometimes, to give the necessary attention to all the minor details.

The result of the more free introduction of fresh vegetables into the Army of the Cumberland was, that very soon the cases of scurvy were found to diminish in frequency and in severity; and when, on the twenty-fourth of June, the troops were moved forwards and an engagement with the enemy occurred, the wounds received by the soldiers healed more kindly and were followed by fewer accidents than had been the case after previous battles.—Hamilton's Military Surgery, pages 82-84, 86-88.

HOSPITAL CLOTHING.

The annexed letter treats of a subject which, up to the present time, has been too much neglected. It is true, as stated, that in many instances, soldiers have suffered from the preposterous size of the garments furnished by kind-hearted friends, whose zeal exceeded their knowledge. There was, in fact, at one time on exhibition at a distributing depot of the Commission an article supposed to be for soldiers' wear, the use of which was a mystery to many eminent men of various professions, to whom it was exhibited. It is but fair to say, however, that this was in the early days of the war.

Nevertheless, a little more attention to this subject now will not be without benefit, and we bespeak for the following letter a careful perusal.

DEAR SIR:—Please make corrections in the next number of the BULLETIN of the article in No. 31, entitled "Bedding for Hospital use."

1st, Linen pieces may be too small; we have received many parcels of little scraps not more than two inches square, which can rarely be available. They must be clean.

2d, While we have in hand two hundred (200) barrels of lint, it seems unnecessary to suggest that more may be made; indeed it is wasteful to ravel up a single towel or handkerchief, especially when we are suffering from a famine of old linen and cotton pieces for dressings, and I believe the other Branches of the Sanitary Commission are in a like position.

3d, A pound of yarn, of the suitable quality, will knit three and a half ( $3\frac{1}{2}$ ) pairs of socks; the sizes as given to us by a dealer in army socks, should be,  $9\frac{1}{2}$ , 10 and  $10\frac{1}{2}$  inches, and twice as many of the medium size are required as of either of the other sizes. The soldiers have really suffered from the preposterous dimensions of garments made for them. In some hospitals I have heard of piles of shirts laid aside as useless, because they were so huge, and there was no one to alter them.

Respectfully yours,

ELLEN COLLINS,
Chairman Committee, &c.

TEN MONTHS IN LIBBY PRISON.

BY LOUIS PALMA DI CESNOLA.

Colonel Cesnola is a Sardinian of noble family, and was educated in the best military schools of Europe, having been placed in that at Paris when only nine years of age. His father was at that time Secretary of War under the Sardinian government. The son came to this country just before the breaking out of the rebellion, and hostilities quickly elicited his enthusiastic interest in the cause of the Union. Having had experience in the Crimean war, as a member of the staff of the Sardinian General-in-chief, he was well qualified for the duties of the field. In September, 1862, he took command of the 4th N. Y. cavalry, whose superior discipline and many brave achievements have gained for it an enviable fame. At the battle of Aldie, June, 1863, he was commended for his gallant conduct by General Kilpatrick, early in the action, but afterwards, while far in the advance, he was surrounded by superior numbers, and taken prisoner. He spent ten months in Libby prison. After his exchange he returned to his regiment, and led the brigade to which it belonged in many severe engagements previous to its mustering out, in September last.

Soon after entering Libby, the rebel officer in charge, offered Colonel Cesnola, with some other foreigners, better quarters than their fellow officers had, which proposal was indignantly rejected. "We are U. S. officers," they said.

I entered the service of the United States in October, 1861, and was captured in Virginia the 17th of June, 1863, at the cavalry engagement of Aldie. I was marched, mostly on foot, more than one hundred miles to Staunton, and thence by railroad conveyed to the rebel capital and confined in the Libby prison. I arrived in Richmond the 25th of June, at about four o'clock in the afternoon, and remained immured in that tobacco factory until the 24th of March, 1864, when I was specially exchanged for Colonel Brown of the 59th Georgia, (—) regiment.

SEARCHING FOR VALUABLES.

At my arrival in Libby I was called into the office of the commanding officer of that military prison, Captain (now Major) Thos. P. Turner, and by him, my name, rank, regiment, etc., was registered in his book; the walls of Turner's office were covered with captured U. S. colors, regimental battle-flags, and cavalry guidons. From that office I was ordered into a spacious dark hall, in a corner of which, a rebel sergeant searched me through from head to foot, in the roughest manner possible. He took away from me every little trinket I had, my penknife, eyeglasses, meerschaum-pipe, matches, and a bunch of small keys; and was angry because he could not find any greenbacks on my person. He ordered me to take off my boots for inspection; I answered him that I always had a servant to perform that service for me. He insisted, but I refused until he took them off himself, and searched them very minutely. He asked me what I had done with my money, and if I had any watch. I told him that a chivalric Southron had stolen my watch and money during the march from Middleburg to Staunton. He began to abuse me, using very profane language and denying my veracity. I told him that perhaps the gentleman intended only to borrow those articles from me. Captain Fisher, a signal officer of the Army of the Potomac, was punished and kept walking for several hours with the sentinel at the prison's door simply for not giving up immediately his india rubber coat, which he justly claimed as his own private property. I entered therefore the gates of a Confederate prison stripped of everything except my spurs, which being screwed into the boots could not be removed. I remained in this deplorable condition, without a book to read, or a sheet of paper to write, for over five months, nursing my grief during the whole day, using my boots for a pillow during the night, and sleeping on the bare and often damp plank floor, with neither blanket nor overcoat, nor any other covering. Dogs had certainly better sleeping accommodations in their kennels than I had there. In the same wretched condition, however, were many other officers. We were compelled for several months to wash and scrub the floor, the kitchen, the tables and the sinks ourselves, and I cannot recollect but with feelings of admiration the serenity of countenance with which I saw our present Adjutant General of the State, Brigadier General W. Irvine (at that time Lieutenant Colonel of the 10th New York Cavalry), in shirt sleeves, scrubbing the floor when it was his turn to do so. I must confess such service was revolting to me, and I always found some good-hearted fellow prisoner who, for sake of exercise, would perform it in my stead. It may have been a mere chance, but it was precisely when the officers were performing such menial services that the southern ladies would come to have a peep at the Yankees, who certainly were not looking at that moment to their best advantage. I had but one single shirt during four months, and when I washed it, I looked more like a Roman Gladiator of olden times than a Colonel in the United States service.

RATIONS.

From June up to September, we had for ration the half of an ordinary sized loaf of wheat bread, tolerably good, though often sour. It is very true that the beans were of the poorest kind, in each of which there was the nest of an insect; and the small ration of meat tough, and not of the best quality; but hunger had no law, and I would swallow my ration, bad as it was, longing afterwards for that of my neighbor also. In the rooms where we were, no chairs could be seen, nor benches; in fact, nothing but the bare walls and the bare floor, with the exception of some boards roughly joined together in form of tables, at which one-tenth only of the prisoners could eat at a time. After September, our ration was considerably reduced in quality and quantity, and we received half a loaf of negro made corn bread, so hard that it was called by our officers iron clad, solid shot, railroad iron, etc., and some few ounces of meat, four or five times per month.

INSPECTOR OF PRISONS.

Richard Turner (no relation of Major Turner), a Marylander by birth, and a porter (I am told) by occupation, at the outbreaking of this war at the Eutaw House in the City of Baltimore, is the inspector of the Libby and of other military prisons in Richmond. So much has been said of the ferocity of this man by the press and by the testimony of other officers, that I have nothing to add. I wish I could lighten the heavy burden of misdeeds with which his name goes to posterity. As to myself, personally, he has never done any harm, but rather tried to do good.

He used to come into our rooms at different hours during the day, and if he could catch any officer sitting or lying on his blankets he would confiscate them for the use of his own horses. I was present one day when he caught Captain King, of the 12th Pennsylvania cavalry, spitting on the floor (he simply missed a box which was used as a spittoon), and he brought him down into a dungeon and kept him there for forty-eight hours, on bread and water.

SANITARY COMMISSION.

Early in October intelligence was received at the Libby that the United States Sanitary Commission and our government had sent us a large quantity of boxes, containing blankets and other articles of clothing, etc. I made at once an application to get two blankets for my personal use. It was not, however, until the beginning of the next month that I succeeded in getting them, one to sleep on, and the other to cover me with. These blankets were issued to me by my friend and fellow prisoner, Brigadier General Neal Dow, who had been appointed by the rebel Colonel Ould, commissioner of exchange of prisoners of war, as commissary of distribution.

COMMISSARY OF DISTRIBUTION.

The 10th of November, 1863, late in the afternoon, I was called down stairs in Major Turner's office, and informed by him that I was selected to supersede General Neal Dow as commissary of distribution, whose appointment was obnoxious to General J. H. Winder, Military Governor of Richmond. I was informed that the selection was made on account of my being the next senior officer to the General. He further intimated that I would not be allowed to hold conversation with our men on Belle Isle, nor carry any verbal or written communication from the officers to the men, or vice versa, without previously submitting such communication to the rebel officer in command of the island, and of other personal restrictions. After having promised to comply with such orders, I was allowed to select amongst the field officers, two assistants, subject to the approval of General Winder. I selected Lieutenant Colonel Boyd, and my friend, Lieutenant Colonel Von Schrader, Inspector General of the 14th Army corps; both of whom were approved. The next morning Richard Turner, under whose control were all boxes sent from the North, informed me that he would not send the boxes of clothing down to Belle Isle if I did not pay the transportation for them. I had not one cent of my own; but Colonel Boyd had some funds in the rebel hands and offered to pay with that money the transportation; and after a day's delay it was accepted. We were allowed to go to Belle Isle at 10 A.M. every morning, and remain there until 4 o'clock P.M. Two policemen would accompany, or rather escort us from the Libby to Belle Isle, and from thence back to the prison, every day.

BELLE ISLE.

On the 13th of November there were at Belle Isle six thousand four hundred and thirty-four union soldiers as prisoners of war. I do not describe here the place, as I see it is pretty correctly done by Colonel Farnsworth, of the 1st Connecticut cavalry, in his testimony.

Lieutenant Bossieux, the officer in charge of that prison camp, was well spoken of universally, and I must confess that I found him gentlemanly, humane and generous-hearted. His name, however, shows his foreign origin, though he may have been born in Richmond. Every facility in his power was cheerfully afforded me for the distribution of the United States Sanitary Commission's goods, as well as for those sent by our government. Our prisoners there, were divided into squads of one hundred men, each under the command of a sergeant, (fellow-prisoner,) who was responsible to the rebel commander for the behaviour of his men. This camp was therefore divided into sixty-four squads, augmenting the number of the squads in proportion to the arrival of prisoners there.

DISTRIBUTION OF BLANKETS, CLOTHING, ETC.

We were permitted by Major Turner to see and count the number of boxes piled up in a warehouse near the Libby, and make a rough calculation of the quantity of each article of clothing contained in those boxes. The most necessary thing for those poor men were blankets; so we decided to distribute them without delay, but the number was too small to provide every man with one, so we gave a blanket to every two men. In the progress of distribution, the arrival of many more boxes from Fortress Monroe, enabled us to issue one to each man. The modus operandi was the following: Colonel Von Schrader, with a union soldier as a clerk, would take one squad outside of the enclosure on what was, by the rebels, called "the parade ground," and put down the name of each man and all the articles of clothing he needed into blank rolls sent us by the U. S. government for that purpose; Colonel Boyd and myself would likewise have each one a squad and a prisoner as clerk, to write down names and articles needed, in the same manner.

This method was only continued for the first two days, while we were awaiting the arrival of the boxes from Richmond. But as soon as we received a sufficient number of them, Colonel Boyd being a quartermaster, consented to distribute the articles, while Colonel Von Schrader and myself continued taking down the names and articles wanted by the men. We used to inspect about eight squads a day; the distributing officer, however, could not proceed so fast, as he had to open the boxes, etc.; the average of squads furnished per day was three, that is three hundred men. The greatest part of the day was lost in going from Richmond to Belle Isle, and returning. Sometimes the boatman was not there to convey us to the other side of the James river, and much precious time was thus lost. I endeavored to obtain permission to sleep at Belle Isle, in order to be at work early in the morning in distributing, as the cold weather was terribly felt by our poor men. But Major Turner had no power to grant this, and having asked General Winder if an application to him in writing, signed by the Committee of Distribution, would be taken into consideration, his brutish answer was, "No, certainly not."

Besides the time lost in going and coming back and waiting for the boat, we lost much time there also, as the squads when called out by us, were sometimes receiving their rations; at another they were at roll-call, etc. So we could not transact business really more than three hours every day, which retarded the distribution considerably, while we would have very willingly distributed day and night in order to shelter with good warm clothes the thousands of half naked bodies, shivering from head to foot from cold and hunger. I am a soldier by profession since my boyhood; I have been in several wars in Europe; I am familiar with death, and have seen it in all its different aspects, but my heart has never been moved as it was by the condition of those men at Belle Isle. Their frozen feet wrapped in a piece of blanket or an old flannel shirt, in place of the boots which were taken away from them by their captors, those long, pale, hungry faces, with hair and beard uncut for months; a kind of perpetual motion given to their bodies by the millions of vermin that devoured their very flesh; their emaciated forms, telling at first sight how many long and weary, weary months they had been there fighting against death in the form of scurvy, low fevers, diarrhœa, congestion of the lungs, etc.; their feeble voices saying, "Oh! Colonel, do give us something to eat, for God's sake," etc. These scenes, I confess, were to me heartrending in the extreme. These men received at meal time, one bucket of broken pieces of corn bread, and one bucket of over-boiled sweet potatoes for every one hundred men! I saw it myself many times. Indeed, it was so revolting that I think even pigs would have sickened at it. How the chiefs of squads could divide so small a quantity of food in one hundred parts has always been for me a problem, which I am still unable to solve; though often, while distributing the clothing, some men would come to me and complain that for whole days they could not get anything to eat, because before their turn came the bucket was empty!

It was no wonder if these poor, starved human beings would eat rats and dogs. I recollect the fact of a rebel officer having gone inside the inclosure to visit the prisoners, accompanied by a dog. He did not miss it until he was coming out; but, alas! it was too late, and by that time he could only see one man gnawing with voracity his dog's last bone! The next day the Richmond Enquirer, edited by that Irish patriot, John Mitchell, had a leading article entitled, "Dogs eat dogs," and gave the particulars of the affair, summing up by saying that the Yankee prisoners at Belle Isle, though furnished with plenty of wholesome food, preferred to eat dogs.

Of these six thousand four hundred and thirty-four prisoners, over seven hundred were at the time I first visited Belle Isle, without tents or any shelter whatever at night, lying in ditches, or digging holes in the sandy ground in which they slept in a bundle, one over the other, and I heard that often in the morning those who were on the top were found frozen to death, and I actually saw men wrapped up in blankets brought out of the enclosure who were found dead and frozen in ditches outside of the tents!

Upon this subject I had frequent conversations with Lieutenant Bossieux, who told me himself he had several times made proper requisitions for the necessary tents; that he went to see the quartermaster of the prison himself (an Ohio renegade, was a greater scoundrel than any of the Southren race); that they were promised but never delivered. He also told me he had made a plan for barracks which would have cost very little and would have accommodated our men all comfortably, but that he never heard anything more about it, nor of boards given for that or any other purpose. After having distributed the contents of several boxes, I perceived that the empty boxes were, by order of Lieutenant Bossieux piled up as if to be used for some purpose. I went to see him, and told him I intended to give to the men those empty boxes, so that they could floor their tents with them. He said he had instructions from the quartermaster to save all those boxes, that he wanted them to pack army clothing in, but he would give me in return the boards necessary to floor all the tents. I said nothing further for three or four days, but seeing that the boards were coming only in the same manner as the tents so many times asked, I took upon myself, at the cost of being superseded for it, not to wait any longer, and I distributed them to the men, gladdening many hearts. A portion of these boxes were used to make coffins for those who had ceased to suffer in this wicked place.

PLUNDERING.

There has been so much said about the rebel government stealing half the boxes sent to us by the government, and the United States Sanitary Commission, that I have recalled to my memory all the minutest particulars which have reference to them, and I have come to the conclusion that the largest number of the boxes of clothing were turned over to us for distribution, and that they had no official connection with the heavy robberies which we have unfortunately sustained, and were unable to prevent.

RICHMOND CITY BATTALIONS.

It is true that the Richmond City battalions, who guarded the federal prisoners, had a large number of their men clothed in U. S. uniforms, but my opinion (I may be wrong) is, that the warehouse adjacent to the Libby, in which all our boxes were stored and guarded by them, was visited at night by these undisciplined and unprincipled soldiery, who would appropriate to themselves and sell to others, all the clothing they wanted. I came to this conclusion, after I had visited that warehouse several times, as I found ragged rebel uniforms left here and there in the corners of the warehouse; showing plainly that some of the rebels had made their hasty toilet there. When one hundred and nine union officers escaped from the Libby, through the tunnel, I had the scurvy and could not join the party. The next morning I conversed with some of the sentinels, and laughed at their great vigilance during the previous night. They said that they had seen men coming out from the yard of the warehouse, and running as fast as they could, but they supposed it was some of their own guard making a raid on our boxes. Several times in the stillness of the night, I heard plainly in the warehouse the hammering and breaking of boxes, but this was the robbers' midnight work, and scarcely chargeable to the rebel authorities. The rebel government was, however, guilty of the grossest indifference as to the safe keeping of our boxes; of that there is no doubt, but I cannot bring myself to believe that their authorities were officially connected with it.

The boxes sent from Richmond to Belle Isle for immediate distribution, were also plundered during the night, even after I obtained permission to put some of our own men to guard them. Our hungry men, tempted by the sentinels with bread and pies, would give a portion of the clothing issued to them, for both or either of them; and, as in all large communities, there were amongst our prisoners some rascals who would steal the clothing of their sleeping comrades and sell them likewise to the guard. Colonel Von Schrader and myself remonstrated several times to Lieutenant Bossieux, and he put several of his men in irons for having bought clothing from our prisoners, but the evil could not be stopped by us.

I have often been present at guard mounting in Belle Isle, and remarked the relieved party (sometimes half of them) would have either U. S. blankets, overcoats or pantaloons, and the relieving party of that day would come off duty the next morning similarly supplied with new U. S. clothes. These facts, of course, not being generally known to our fellow prisoners, and from the barred windows of the Libby seeing a very large number of the guard dressed in U. S. uniforms, they came to the very natural conclusion that the rebel government was robbing us to clothe their own men.

The rebel authorities have never given to Colonel Boyd or Colonel Von Schrader or myself (that I am aware of,) the invoices which, I suppose both the government and the U. S. Sanitary Commission must have sent with the goods. I asked Major Turner if he had those invoices; he replied he had not seen them. I inquired also of Richard Turner in regard to them, but he rudely told me that it was not my business. From this reason I was unable to find out how many boxes were sent to us.

MAKING SHOES.

My narrative now soon comes to a close. Towards the latter part of November I was superseded as Commissary of Distribution by order of General J. H. Winder. Two causes originated it. The first was this: The rebels came one day to Belle Isle, and paroled four hundred men to make shoes for their army, and intimated that they would come again in a few days to parole several hundred more for the same object. I decided at once to do what I considered the duty of a U. S. officer, and interfere in this matter. I sent for several of the chiefs of squads, and told them to inform the men that by going to work for the rebels they were breaking their oath towards the U. S. government, and were helping instead of fighting the enemy of their country; that they would be all liable to be court-martialed for it as soon as they reached our lines, and that I considered it my duty to inform them of it. These sergeants went at once to see their men, and the result was that when the rebels came the second time, they could not get a single one, and soon they discovered the reason of it.

The second cause for which I was superseded is the following. One morning, rather earlier than usual, we were ordered out of our room for the purpose of having it scrubbed by the negroes. The overseer who had charge of the negroes (always with a stick in his hands), came to the corner where I had my quarters, and two buckets of water were thrown on the floor by his negroes before I was aware of their presence. In the haste of leaving the room my friend and messmate, Lieutenant Morley, of the 12th Pennsylvania cavalry, had left a piece of ham on the shelf, within reach of any unscrupulous hand which chose to take it. I called him back and told him to put it out of reach, as I was as much afraid of negro thieves as of white ones. The overseer, whom I had not perceived was behind me, heard the remark and applied the meaning to himself. To my surprise he put one hand on my shoulder and made use of the following language: God d—m you, do you mean that I am a thief? If a hot iron had touched my skin it would not have maddened me more than his insolent touch did. I turned myself towards him, and in a second I had him by the throat with both my hands, down he went on the floor, and I struck him many times as hard as I could on his face, until my rage was satisfied. The negroes were jubilant, and of course nobody interfered to help the overseer. I was called down stairs in Major Turner's office, where I explained the whole affair, and though I was not punished bodily, my supereedure took place on that very morning.

From November to March, 1864, I was not allowed to leave for a single moment the Libby prison, and when they began to parole and send North some officers, all all the other colonels but two were sent North before me; though I had been a prisoner longer than any of them. Colonel Robert Ould, the rebel Commissioner, to whom I was obnoxious, said that he did not want to send me North at all, but he would keep me in prison as long as he liked; but he was nevertheless soon afterwards compelled to send me, as Colonel Jack Brown, of the 59th Georgia regiment was sent South conditionally, that if he could not get me exchanged for him, he was to return North and be kept as long as I was held by the rebel authorities.

LOUIS PALMA DI CESNOLA,

Late Colonel 4th N. Y. Cav.

New York, 13th Feb., 1865.

City and County of New York, ss.

Sworn to before me,

JOHN ROGERS,

Commissioner of Deeds.

Dated at NEW YORK, Feb. 15, 1865.

TO SURGEONS.

A Treatise on Military Surgery and Hygiene.

By FRANK HASTINGS HAMILTON, M.D. late Lieutenant-Colonel, Medical Inspector, U.S.A.; Professor of Military Surgery and Hygiene, and of Fractures and Dislocations, in Bellevue Medical College; Surgeon to Bellevue Hospital; Professor of Military Surgery, &c., in Long Island College Hospital; author of "Treatise on Fractures and Dislocations," and of a "Practical Treatise on Military Surgery." Balliere Brothers, New York.

Of this admirable book, we cannot here say all that it demands of us. Military surgery, though distinct in its applications from civil surgery, and requiring a modified and more extended terminology, is becoming so essential to the practitioner in civil life, that he who would faithfully serve the profession at home, dare not remain ignorant of the new developments of science which have grown upon us with the progress of the war. Tens of thousands of disabled soldiers are being sent from the field and post hospitals to Northern cities. Tens of thousands discharged from disability are falling back upon the professional care of village physicians, and for many years to come the necessity will continue for the application of military surgery in civil life.

When the Medical Bureau of the Government shall have presented the reports of its herculean labors to the people, it will be seen what vast contributions have been made to this branch of science, but as that may not be done for years to come, the profession will be glad to avail themselves of this practical manual.

The several chapters include the subjects of Examination and Qualifications of Recruits; General Hygiene; Bivouac; Accommodation of Troops in Tents, Barracks, Billets, Huts, Cabins, Hospitals, with plans of various U. S. Army Hospitals recently constructed; Preparations for the Field; U. S. Army Ambulance Corps as at present organized; Field Medical Service; our means of Transportation of Sick and Wounded Soldiers, including the new Railroad Cars, accompanied with working drawings for their construction—an entirely new feature in transportation—first introduced by Dr. E. Harris, of the Sanitary Commission; Hygienic Management of Troops on the March; General Consideration of Gunshot Wounds; Gunshot Wounds of the Head, Neck, Chest, Abdomen, Extremities; Punctured and Incised Wounds; a complete chapter on Arrow Wounds, illustrated with cases and woodcuts (a new feature in a work on Military Surgery).

Gunshot Fractures, with illustrations of the various forms of apparatus now in use and found most serviceable by our Army Surgeons; Anæsthetics, their value and danger; Hospital Gangrene; Dry Gangrene; Scurvy; Diarrhœa and Dysentery.

General remarks on Amputations; Special Amputations, illustrated by woodcuts; Excisions, illustrated also fully; etc., etc.

It is the result of the author's own experience during three years' active service on the field; and to this has been added, as far as possible, the experience of other U. S. Army Surgeons and foreign surgeons.

The typographical character of the book is in the usual complete style of the enterprising publishers.

THREE MONTHS IN THE SERVICE OF THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

NO. VI.—STILL AT WHITE HOUSE, VA.

At midnight of the 9th, two hospital steamers, the Wenonah and George Weems, made fast to the Elizabeth, and we put on each of the boats full supplies for all sick and wounded on board, and laid down on our blankets, by 2 A. M. of the 10th of June. On that day the James Guy arrived from Washington, and the sad intelligence of the death of Dr. Winslow was confirmed. He was in the act of drawing water from the Potomac, for a favorite horse he had on board the Guy, (and the care of which he would entrust to no other person,) and the steamer being under full headway, directly the bucket touched the water it jerked him headlong overboard. Every effort was made to save him, but of no avail—he sank to rise no more, long before assistance could reach the spot where he was last seen. In the loss of Dr. Winslow the U. S. Sanitary Commission lost an unwearied worker, of immense influence for good, and suffering humanity an ever true friend. In passing I would remark, that his son, the wounded colonel, died in a few weeks afterward of the wounds he had received at the Wilderness fights. On the above day we were favored with a new sensation—a colored guard brought down 700 prisoners of war from the front. These and all prisoners in our hands at that point were sent to Fort Delaware. The day was furthermore remarkable because the news of the nomination of Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson reached us, causing great rejoicing. All our wounded were by that time well cared for; not more than 100 per day were arriving, and all around signs were multiplying of an early evacuation of the place. Every day now brought numerous acquisitions to our auxiliary force, and it was well, for not less than 1600 bad cases needed the unremitting care of qualified nurses.

On Sunday, June 12th, Dr. Marks held Divine service. The sad scenes we had passed through seemed to have ripened the religious feelings of all, or nearly all, in the Commission; for all heard the-word gladly, and several things were determined upon and carried into execution; among which were the establishment of morning and evening meetings for prayer and conference. These were not only countenanced by the Directors, but frequently one or more assisted in the exercises. These meetings were to continue so long as other duties did not divide us nor press so heavily upon us as to prevent our gathering. Another gratifying feature was introduced into our domestic arrangements namely, that of asking God's blessing upon our meat and drink in the dining-room at the public table. I am pleased to say our hurry was never so great as to cause us to omit that tribute of grateful hearts. Its influence we may never be able to bound, but that it was a great good to many souls I have no doubt. At that table sat men who had come from all quarters of the world. They asked of the Sanitary Commission food and lodging; it was freely accorded them after due proof had been given of their need. The tables were loaded with God's bounties, given through the people of the United States to the weary, sick, wounded and unexpectedly destitute soldier; also to those who had left homes far away, and had come to the front in search of loved sons, husbands, or brother, many of whom had money to pay for what they needed but could not purchase, and but for the U. S. Sanitary Commission, they must have starved, even while their pockets were filled with money. These joined us in our meals—the gentle, the rough, the illiterate, and the learned, the officer and the private—all at the same table. The plain fare was placed in good shape and condition on the table—the bell was rung—the guests took their seats at the tables, and as the Purveyor saw some guest at the table who he believed to be a christian, he would ask him to invoke God's blessing on the food. During the invocation the waiters would stand in silence—every voice being hushed, while, perhaps some soldier supplicated Divine favor on the food, its recipients, and their dear, but far distant, friends. I have dwelt on this point more at length than the subject seemed to warrant. But it really deserves what I have said, and much more, from the moral effects and sweet religious awakenings which flowed from it. Among the employees of the U. S. Sanitary Commission were rough laborers, especially engaged for their capacity for heavy, manual toil. Many of these were, perhaps, brought under wholesome moral influence, and the effect on them was of the best character, if we are permitted to accept their professions given subsequently, and under circumstances which would favor sincere utterances. Another large class of persons who had good reasons for thanking God for the establishment of this sweet exercise, were those whose early religious convictions had been choked by the excitements incident to their mode of life,—such frequently informed me that the impressive character of the scenes alluded to, had awakened them to the performance of long neglected duties. And to-day, in thousands of families throughout the loyal States, does the incense of prayer and praise burn, whose flames were re-lighted at the altars set up in the boats and tents of the Sanitary Commission.

LETTER FROM NASHVILLE.

BY EDWARD J. ENO.

NASHVILLE, January 25, 1865.

JUDGE E. ROOT,

DEAR SIR:—With this I hand you a statement of the disposition made of the car-load sanitary stores taken to Huntsville last week.

I found nearly all the 4th army corps in camp at or near this place, resting after a very hard campaign, and fitting up preparatory to the next, with new ambulances, huts and clothing.

The men were generally in good condition, well satisfied with the results of the season's work, and confident of future success.

There was one general hospital under the charge of Dr. Baldwin, with about 195 patients, generally doing very well. Their sanitary supplies were nearly exhausted, and ours came very opportunely. The general field hospital of the Cumberland, was also there in charge of Dr. Bissell. There were but few patients and the doctor asked for only a small quantity of sanitary stores.

It was then three weeks to the close of school, and if we could get it done by that

After consulting with the Medical Directors of the corps and post, it was thought advisable to open Sanitary Rooms, and on application to the Post Commander, Col. Lyon, he gave orders to the Quartermaster "to furnish us the best he could find." Since my return a telegram from Dr. Evans says they are secured.

Stevenson is a point requiring considerable aid from Sanitary. Dr. Humphrey, in charge of Post Hospital, appears to be doing all he can for the comfort of the men in his charge, and really requires a much larger amount of sanitary goods than the number of his patients would indicate, for the reason that so many are thrown upon him temporarily, on the way to or from their commands or hospitals.

The Home at this place (Stevenson,) is in charge of the Government, but needs the aid of Commission to help make convalescents comfortable, who are obliged to stop there waiting transportation. Government does not furnish beds or blankets, and the superintendent asks the Commission to furnish about thirty for sick and convalescents.

I have applied to the Medical Purveyor, and he assures me there is no authority to issue, there being no medical officer connected with the institution to receipt to him for them. In other respects I should think the Home well managed, and a very important station for soldiers going to and from their commands. Here they have to change cars, and remain from 6 to 24 hours. The books show that they feed an average of nearly 500 per day.

Dr. Humphrey had rooms vacated, and promised to reserve them for the Sanitary Commission. I would advise stores being sent there, with an agent to distribute them. It would not be necessary for a man to remain there all the time. A few days once in two weeks would be sufficient.

FOR THE CHILDREN.

The following little story is for the encouragement of Alert Clubs and Sunday-school societies and little sewing circles, that are at work for the Sanitary Commission. We will have severe struggles yet before this wicked rebellion shall come to an end, and every little boy and girl in the land should do something more in behalf of the country, that when peace shall come again, and the Union be established, every little heart will feel glad that its pulses were fresh and warm on the side of humanity and liberty.

BUSY BEES.

Their hive is an old stone school-house, with a low roof, and the most uncomfortable of seats. But we mustn't say much against it, for it was built as many as twenty years ago, when the prairie was first settled, and it is the mother of one of the two churches which stand close by it, and the grandmother of the other, and I've heard some of the old pioneers say that every stone in it was laid up with a prayer. Dear, venerable old school-house! its days are numbered, and soon its stones will be used for the foundation of another. So much for the hive.

The queen-bee last summer was Miss Bell—anybody could tell that a great way off, for as soon as she came in sight there was such buzzing, and flying to meet her, and crowding around her.

One day in August, Mrs. Smith, the minister's wife, came into the hive. She lives in the parsonage across the street; and because she hasn't any little children of her own, she claims tithes of all the boys and girls in the village.

She heard us read and spell, and say the multiplication table, up and down, forward and backward, and criss-cross.

Then we sang, and just before we were dismissed, Miss Bell asked her "to make some remarks." She laughed, and said, "Children, how many of you have friends in the army?"

Ever so many hands went up. Almost every child had either brother, cousin, or uncle there. Miss Bell didn't raise her hand, but we all knew she was thinking of a soldier's grave away down at Vicksburg, whose turf wasn't green yet, where lay her only brother. The next question was, "How many would like to do something for the soldiers?"

Forty right hands went up, and forty pairs of eyes shone like stars. What we were to do was this: Each one to make a block of patchwork for a quilt, and to earn all the pennies we could to buy the cotton and the lining for it.

The blocks were to be made like one she showed us, with a white center, on which the name and age of the one who gave it was to be written. Miss Bell agreed to help us, and write the names with her indelible pencil.

time, we were to invite our mothers to quilt it for us at the parsonage on the last day, while we had a pic-nic in the yard. You may be sure we all voted for it, especially the pic-nic.

For the next three weeks there was a humming and buzzing indeed, and such a flying back and forth between the parsonage and school-house with blocks and pennies!

Some of us were so excited we forgot to shut the gate, and the cows got in and came near eating up Mr. Smith's cabbages! The boys were as busy as the girls, though they had to get the girls to do their sewing for them, except Ellis, who sewed his own block with the nicest little stitches you ever saw.

It was funny to hear how they earned their pennies: one drove a cow to pasture, some drove horses on reapers, some picked up chips or brought in wood, and the girls rocked the babies, washed dishes, picked plums, and little Elsie washed her still smaller brother's face every morning, and bravely earned her penny in spite of his protests.

The last day came, it was as pleasant as if it had been made on purpose for us. The blocks were all finished, marked and set together—about three dollars in money had been collected and the cotton and lining bought. There were thirty-five blocks in the quilt; thirty-four of them had names and ages on them—none over twelve years—and on the centre one was written "Bradford County. For any soldier who loves little children."

We have gone on ever since working in this way—calling ourselves Busy Bees; but sometimes we are more buzzy than busy. We have made a good many comfort-bags and handkerchiefs, and almost blocks enough for another quilt. Our motto is, "Gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost;" and we learn a verse to repeat in concert every time.

But the best thing of all was what became of our quilt. It was sent in a box from the Ladies' Aid Society to the Sanitary Commission, with a note, saying if the one who got it would write to any of us, he would not need to advertise for correspondence.

It was almost three months before we heard from it, and we began to think some of those dreadful officers, that are said to get everything that goes to the Sanitary Commission, had got our quilt surely.

Our winter school had begun under a new teacher, when Mrs. Smith came in again one afternoon, with a letter in her hand, which she read to us, as follows:

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 27, 1864.

To Thirty-four Little Friends of Mine,
Bradford County,

DEAR FRIENDS:—Cold weather is coming on, you know, even down here in the "sunny South;" and, being away from my regiment, and not able to get any clothing or blankets from Uncle Sam, I went to the Sanitary Commission, and was given that splendid quilt that your pennies and busy little fingers made.

I am a Minnesota soldier, though I lived a number of years in your State, and know where you little folks live.

And now, I want to thank you all for your gift to the soldier, and tell you how highly I value it, how carefully I shall preserve it, and how I shall take it home with me (if I don't wear it out, and live to go home,) and keep it as a relic of my army life and in memory of my loyal and true little friends in Bradford County. Keep on, little friends; don't be afraid the soldiers don't get your kindly gifts. Little hands never, never worked in so good and noble a cause. We soldiers honor and are proud of you all. I have not got any little children of my own; but I have father and mother, and brothers and sisters, who think I am very dear to them.

Brighter days are dawning, little friends, and I hope the day is not far off when your fathers and brothers can come home to you again. Once more I thank you as only a soldier can for your gift, and that God will help you all to grow up to be true men and women, and ever let His benediction of love rest upon you, is the earnest, hearty wish of

Your soldier friend, J. S. T.—, Jr.,

Private, Co. E,—th Reg. Minn. Inf'ry

P.S.—Will Mrs. Smith appropriate her share of this letter, and of my thanks. You are all very, very kind to us, and we are not insensible to it, even if it does seem sometimes as if all the good in us would be warped and destroyed. You will have to reform and polish us up when we come home.

J. S. T., Jr.

So, you see, one private did get something from the Sanitary Commission, and by his prompt and graceful acknowledgment of it, more than forty little folks were made happy and taught that even their little hands can do something for the needy and suffering; a lesson worth more to them than their gift to a shivering soldier. "He that watereth shall be watered also himself."

N. Y. Independent.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CORRESPONDENCE.
 City Point, letter from A. M. Sperry,..... 1029
 East Pascagoula, letter from Wm. R. Miller,..... 1030
 " " " Edwd. Harmer,..... 1031
 Nashville, " " J. Eno,..... 1048

REPORTS.
 City Point, by J. H. Davis,..... 1027
 Annapolis, by E. C. Guild,..... 1031
 Camp Parole, by Miss Phillips,..... 1032
 Washington, by J. B. Abbott,..... 1032
 " " J. B. Brown,..... 1033
 " " Wm. K. Neal,..... 1033
 " " W. P. Barry,..... 1033
 " " A. H. Trego,..... 1033

MISCELLANEOUS.
 Acrostic,..... 1025
 Testimonial by Surgeon W. L. Sherod,..... 1030
 Women's Central Association of Relief, (Branch Organization, continued, No. 7.)..... 1034
 Soldier's Rest, Buffalo,..... 1036
 From Fort Fisher,..... 1038
 Our Heroes,..... 1038
 Why does the Sanitary Commission buy Vegetables?..... 1039
 Hospital Clothing,..... 1040
 Ten Months in Libby Prison, by Col. Louis Palma di Cesnola,..... 1041
 Three Months in the Service of U. S. Sanitary Commission,..... 1047
 For the Children—(Busy Bees,)..... 1049

EDITORIAL.
 Definitions,..... 1025
 To Surgeons,..... 1046

PROTECTIVE

War-Claim Association

OF THE

STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
 NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HON. HAMILTON FISK, ADMIRAL DUPONT,
 JOHN J. CISCO, Esq., RUD. A. WITTHAUS, Esq

TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HON. E. D. MORGAN,    | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLAWS, D.D.,  | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to

HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
 35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
- A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
- F. L. Olmsted, California.
- George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
- Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
- W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
- Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., Cambridge, Mass.
- S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
- C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
- J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
- Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
- Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
- Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
- Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
- Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
- Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
- J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
- Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
- Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

- H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
- A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President,
- George T. Strong, Treasurer.
- J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
- J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

- Henry W. Bellows, D.D.
- George T. Strong.
- Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D.
- Wolcott Gibbs, M.D.
- C. R. Agnew, M.D.
- Charles J. Stillé.

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, Nos. 10 & 11 Cooper Union, New York.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.
- Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

EAST.

- "Special Relief" Office, 76 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.
- "Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.
- "Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.
- "Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.
- "The Home," Baltimore, Md.
- "Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.
- "Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.
- "The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.
- "Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.
- "Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.
- "Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.
- "Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.
- "Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.
- "Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.
- "The Home," New Orleans, La.

WEST.

- Soldiers' Home, No. 81 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Michigan.
- Soldiers' Home, Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.
- Soldiers' Home, Louisville, Ky., James Malona, Sup't. James Morton, Special Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Home, New Albany, corner of Main and State Streets.
- Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., C. N. Shipman, Superintendent and Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Home, Nashville, Tenn., Captain I. Brayton, Sup't. Rev. J. Hoblit, Relief Agent
- Soldiers' Home, Columbus, Ohio, Col. Isaac Dalton, Superintendent.
- Soldiers' Home, Cleveland, Ohio, Joseph Jerome, Superintendent and Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Lodge, near landing, Memphis, Tenn., C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Home, Camp Nelson, Ky., Thomas Butler, Superintendent.
- Soldiers' Home, Paducah, Ky.

BRANCH,

No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,

No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported * * * * * IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.
By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U.S.A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept. 20, 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, so FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices. Address

B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D.,
President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY,

OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

- |                                     |                                  |
|-------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. | ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y. |
| Hon. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn.  | E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.    |
| WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York.     | J. T. SANGER, New York.          |
| JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.          |                                  |

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,

No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

OFFICE OF THE
M O R R I S
FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE
COMPANY,
COLUMBIAN BUILDING,
CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

---

Authorized Capital, - - - $5,000,000.
Cash Capital, paid in, - - - $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

DIRECTORS.

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, JR.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

F. S. WINSTON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Assets over Eleven and a half Millions of Dollars.

Policies known as "Non-Forfeiting," on the terms they express, on the Ten-Year plan, issued by this Company, possess advantages in profits and rates of premiums, greater than are offered by any other Life Company.

THE

Widows' & Orphans' Benefit Life Ins. Co. of New York.

LUCIUS ROBINSON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

Many of the Trustees and other officers of this Company are connected with the well-known MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, and the intimate and amicable relations between the two Companies, guarantee favorable results to Policy-holders.

Universal Life Insurance Company of New York.

JOHN WADSWORTH, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

This Institution has been formed for the benefit of those who, because of imperfect health, are unable to obtain policies in other companies. It thus meets the case of thousands who have been turned away disappointed in their efforts to provide for their families, and of a still larger number who have felt it useless to apply for insurance.

Every information may be had, on application, by letter or otherwise, to

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

Insurance against Accident by the TRAVELERS' INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

CAPITAL, - - - $500,000.

JAMES G. BATTERSON, PRESIDENT.

Insurance effected in this Company against ACCIDENTS of every description.

Yearly Policies will be issued for a Premium of

Fifteen Dollars,

granting Insurance to the amount of

Five Thousand Dollars

against loss of life by any accident whatever.

Twenty-Five Dollars

secures a Policy for

Five Thousand Dollars,

together with $25 per week compensation for personal injury, incapacitating the assured from his ordinary business.

Fifty Dollars Premium

secures a Full Policy for $10,000 and $40 per week compensation for all and every description of Accident.

Policies for $500, with $3 per week compensation, can be had for $3 Premium, or any other sum between $500 and $10,000 at proportionate rates.

WM. W. ALLEN, Agent,

404 WALNUT STREET.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 34.

PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 15, 1865.

No. 34.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

NEW ORLEANS

EXTRACT OF REPORT TO J. FOSTER JENKINS, M.D., GEN. SEC. U. S. SAN. COM.,
BY DR. GEORGE A. BLAKE.

All the work of the Commission may properly be called Relief Work, still, I can better present to your mind our entire work by classification into departments, viz. :—Supply, Relief, Special Relief, and Pension, Back-Pay, and Bounty. This classification is not perfect, because no Department is entirely independent of the others. The Supply Department furnishes material that affords relief, while Special Relief and Pension Departments work together in ascertaining and obtaining back-pay, bounty and pension for the worn out soldier and his relatives.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

Supplies have been furnished this Department from New York and Louisville. Fresh vegetables, sauerkraut, and pickles, constitute the bulk of our receipts from Louisville, while from New York we have received bedding, wearing apparel, stationery, hospital food, delicacies, &c., &c.

The Department of the Gulf being so far removed, and completely isolated from the central office, it has been impossible always to signify our wants and have them filled at once by requisition, consequently considerable latitude has been allowed in the purchase of supplies for special particular emergencies.

The distribution of our supplies to the troops, and those sick in hospital at the principal posts, has been made by our own agents; Mr. Boltwood, representing the Commission at Baton Rouge, Port Hudson, and Morgansia; Mr. Miller, at Forts Gaines and Morgan; and Mr. Stevens at Barrancas, Fla. The demand on us for supplies has been increased by the fact that the troops have not been paid for several months. The regulations provide that every soldier shall be furnished with clothing, but his descriptive roll must be accessible, that entry can be made and relieve the officer delivering the property from all responsibility. But suppose a case, and many such have been presented to our notice.

Descriptive List—where the Commission is particularly useful in supplying clothing, and how the men would of necessity suffer but for its interposition.

A private in a regiment from New York is captured west of the Mississippi River, and confined in Texas several months, during which he is stripped, robbed of everything, and finally is received by our authorities, an exchanged prisoner of war. He is sick and sent to hospital to be kindly cared for. His tattered and worn and filthy garments have been burned or otherwise disposed of, he recovers and wishes to draw clothing, but his descriptive roll is with his regiment, and that is in Virginia. The regulations provide that all soldiers in hospital shall be provided with clothing, through the surgeon in charge, even if they have no descriptive roll, but my experience proves that surgeons in charge of hospitals will not do it when regiments are out of the Department; they will not take the responsibility, and there is nothing to compel them to do it. Now then the right of the soldier exists whether he gets money or not, but the comforts he desires and needs are not obtained; if he was paid his dues he would willingly buy all he requires, but he has no money or credit, is poor indeed, and thousands of miles away from home. The recollection that his mother, wife or sister had worked for the Sanitary Commission, and for the benefit of the soldier, stimulates him to call at our store-room and ask a favor. How many have said, "I wouldn't trouble you if I had any money?" and say they are ashamed to beg, but call on the Commission for assistance, having always considered it the special friend of the soldier. He seems to regard the Commission as a mutual insurance company against want and discomfort in the army, and considers the benefactions bestowed by their immediate friends as so much premium paid to insure their comfort.

Officers.

Officers too, having received no money for five, six, eight and ten months, have solicited assistance. As agent of the Commission all soldiers I must regard alike, whether officer or private, white or black, and when in a state of destitution that cannot be otherwise provided for, all are treated as worthy objects of charity, and their wants supplied according to our ability.

Prisoners—what Government does not furnish to Prisoners, and what the Commission does furnish.

Returned prisoners of war are sent to Camp of Distribution. They have nothing with which to make themselves comfortable. Government furnishes them clothing, but does not furnish tin-cups, knives and forks, tin-plates, or spoons; neither does it furnish a towel, or a comb, and yet every American soldier could provide himself with these articles if he had the money,—if he was "paid off," but he isn't, and to whom can he appeal with any hope, save to the Commission?

How the Commission Sustains the Government.

By supplying these wants, Commission has been able to support and sustain the Government, as it were, pouring oil on the troubled waters by making comfortable what had been scarcely sufferable.

Yellow Fever.

During the latter part of summer and early fall, yellow fever made its appearance among the naval fleet; several vessels were ordered to quarantine, and we were able to contribute largely to their relief by a generous distribution of musquito bars, not only to the sick but also among the crew. Before the supply of musquito bars, it was doubtful in the minds of many, whether the men suffered more from the fever than from the bite and annoyance of that insect.

Fort Gaines.

Mr. Miller, in charge of a large amount of stores, accompanied the land forces in their attack on Fort Gaines, and was enabled to render efficient aid not only to the soldiers but also to the sailors wounded in the great naval conflict in Mobile Bay. Afterwards the wounded were removed to hospital at Pensacola Navy Yard, and were ministered unto by our agent, Mr. Stevens. The sick were brought to this city and placed in Naval Hospital, where there were during the season about fifty cases of yellow fever; several requisitions were filled for the surgeon in charge of the hospital, who gratefully acknowledged receipt of the stores.

Scurvy.

During last summer and early part of the fall, all our troops at every post in this Department suffered severely with scurvy. No vegetables were issued by the Commissary Department of the army, and strong appeals were made to us for anti-scorbutics. The enormous prices that prevailed in the market for fresh vegetables, ten and twelve dollars per barrel, and the immense quantity necessary to supply the demand, deterred me from purchasing. I did, however, buy all the sauerkraut that was in the city, at moderate rates, and distributed it to those posts most afflicted, viz. : Brasos Santiago, Dauphin Island, Mobile Point, and Barrancas, Fla.

In September, we received one hundred barrels of onions from New York, which seemed only as a drop in the bucket, and it was not until we received a cargo from Louisville in October, and subsequently two other large lots in November, that were freely distributed to hospitals and men in the ranks, that the disease was entirely checked, and notes of thanksgiving came to us from every quarter. There was not a soldier in the Department that did not share this bounty, and I only wish every potato and onion could have been stamped U. S. Sanitary Commission, that the source of the bounty should be continually patent to all. I have received many letters from different surgeons, testimonials of the appreciation of our gifts that I have previously forwarded. To-day I received another through Mr. Boltwood, from Surgeon Gray, Medical Director on Brig. Gen. Ulman's Staff, which I append.

Gardens.

That so much disability may not occur another season, by reason of scurvy, I was recently informed by Lieutenant Colonel Vollum, Medical Inspector Department West Mississippi, that an order would be issued from headquarters, General Cauby, requiring that gardens be cultivated at every post in the Department, by the troops stationed there; and he consulted me in regard to the seeds requisite to carry out the order, and solicited the assistance of the Commission. He stated that the only legitimate way in which seeds could be "regularly" procured was from the Post Fund, unless the several commandants purchase them with their own funds, and such instances of benevolence were rare in the army, especially in the present destitute condition of the paymasters. The garrisons of the different posts being changed frequently, a Post Fund had been rarely created, and he asked if the Commission would furnish seeds. It was impossible for me to consult you before deciding, and recollecting that in some departments the Commission cultivates gardens for the troops, I thought it would be willing to furnish seed and allow the troops to do their own work, that it would accord with the spirit of our work to say "yes," and I said it! The order has not yet been issued; when it is, if it ever is, I shall issue a circular to be distributed with the order, from the office of Medical Inspector, engaging in behalf of the Commission to furnish every post in the Department seeds for a garden.*

During the later part of November, I engaged R. C. Chace, temporarily as Relief Agent, and sent him to Key-West, in charge of one hundred barrels of vegetables and sauerkraut, instructing him to report to the Medical Director at that post, and consult him in regard to the distribution best to be made. Surgeon McCulley, Acting Purveyor at that post, advised that half of the stores be sent to Cedar Keys, on the west coast of Florida, about three hundred miles from Key-West, and requested Mr. Chace to go himself in charge; he did go, and as I forwarded his report so recently, I must refer you to that for particulars. After the return of Mr. Chace, I received a letter from Surgeon McCulley, inclosing a requisition for stores, which I append, with a copy of my reply, marked No. 2.

Refugees.

Refugees and their relation to the Commission? This question has perplexed me wonderfully. Their utter destitution has excited my sympathy, and their claim to relief is undoubtedly just and well founded, especially the women and children, the old and decrepit, the sick, maimed, halt and blind. The able-bodied can take care of themselves; avenues to work and usefulness are too abundant under our Government to afford any pretext for them to become suppliants for alms. What can I do for them legitimately and not trespass on the claims of the soldier for our bounty, or prostitute the confidence reposed in me as agent of the Commission, by officially sanctioning a diversion of this charity? I have thus far acted on the principle that the existence of this great want is an anomaly in our country, and at present no definite rules of action can be established; and relying on the elasticity of the benevolent hearts that support our organization, I have ventured occasionally to extend the mantle of its charity to protect the poor refugee.

Families of Soldiers.

Another class of applicants for assistance has besieged the door of our store-room, directly and indirectly, through the city authorities, viz. : families of those soldiers in the United States Army that enlisted in this city. Here the suffering that occurs from non-payment of the troops is double what the soldier and his family experience who enlisted in the Northern States, because here the family receives no relief from State or city authorities, (and one almost includes the other,) and are entirely dependent on the money earned by the husband, father, brother, or son in the army, and the destitution that most necessarily exist when this source fails can be better imagined than described. In cases of sickness in these families, I have occasionally delivered stores to them on requisition from the City Physician.

* The seed has been forwarded to New Orleans.

I will conclude my report in regard to the Supply Department, by giving the aggregate amount of vegetables issued since October 1, 1864, and of milk, wine, farinaceous diet, &c., issued during the past six months, viz.: Vegetables, (potatoes, onions, &c.,) 12,234 bushels; pickles and sauerkraut, 26,360 gallons; tomatoes, (in cans,) 4,643 pounds; condensed milk, 6,312 pounds; farinaceous diet, (farina, cornstarch, &c.,) 3,291 pounds; wine, (foreign and domestic,) 6,327 bottles; crackers, 148 barrels; beef stock, 1,077 pounds.

RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

Soldiers' Home.

Under this head I shall include what I have to say about the "Soldiers' Home." We have no "Lodges," and no "Rests" in this Department, as no necessity for them at present exists. The statistics of the "Home" up to December, 1864, were carefully compiled and forwarded to Rev. J. A. Anderson, Philadelphia, by Mr. Bullard, and afterwards appeared in the BULLETIN of January 15, 1865. I now add the statistical report, consolidated for December, 1864, and January, 1865, as furnished by O. S. Bullard, Superintendent, in his report to me 1st inst., and which I append, marked No. 3.

|                                         |            |
|-----------------------------------------|------------|
| Total number admitted, . . . . .        | 1,611      |
| Number meals furnished, . . . . .       | 27,487     |
| " lodgings " . . . . .                  | 9,280      |
| Amt. money deposited in safe, . . . . . | $8,727 29 |

The name "Soldier's Home" is very broad and comprehensive, and really suggests more than is intended, especially to the shirk, who is disposed to make the "Home" a hiding place from duty, and thus bring discredit upon the institution in the minds of military men, by making it a harbor for malingers, consequently we admit no one without an exhibition of discharge or furlough papers, or orders from proper authority. The rule of our action is comprehended under the following circular designating proper persons for admission to the "Home:"

1. All discharged soldiers.
2. All soldiers furloughed from hospitals or regiments outside the city; those furloughed in the city being detained in hospital or at their quarters, till transportation is procured, in order that they may receive full benefit of their furlough, to be dated when they leave the city.
3. Orderlies detailed at various headquarters, and all "duty men" temporarily detained in the city, with orders from headquarters, defences, or higher authority.
4. All soldiers who arrive at night are provided with lodging and breakfast, after which they will not be received unless an order is presented from headquarters, defences or higher military authority.

By acting in accordance with these rules we are able to do good service to the soldier, and satisfy the military authorities that we are honest, and their real assistants in caring for the soldier.

To convey to your mind more fully the benefits derived from the "Home" by the private soldier, and also the spirit that animates us in the work, I will copy from report made to me by Mr. O. C. Bullard, our worthy Agent of Special Relief.

Relation of the Home to the Soldier—His Rights, and the checks necessary to prevent Imposition and Fraud—necessity for exact records and satisfactory evidence of claim to Protection and Assistance.

"During the month of December, 1864, the attention of those most interested in the welfare and success of the Soldier's Home, was called to the necessity of a better system in the registry of names, classification, use of tickets and other methods to prevent imposition, while we endeavor to perform the double duty of always rendering proper aid to those coming within our province, and at the same time have an honest record, in all our reports to military authorities, on which are based the requisitions for rations, fuel, &c., from Government.

"On the first of January, 1865, a new system of meal-tickets and registry cards was adopted, which, after a month's trial, is considered highly satisfactory. This matter is of more importance at this, than perhaps at any other Home of the Commission. Our peculiar relations with the military authorities require exact records. It is especially important to protect ourselves from the suspicion of harboring soldiers who may seek to hide away from their just obligations; while equal care devolves on us to see that parties for whom rations are drawn, are properly reported, so that Government may not be defrauded. It is intended that it shall be conducted on principles strictly honest towards the Government, and with all proper liberality towards every soldier who has a just claim upon us."

Relation of Home to the Military Authorities—Its Foundation and History.

The relation of the Home to the military authorities and the Commission, is shown by Mr. Bullard, in a letter to Capt. Brown, who was sent to inspect the "Home" by General Sherman. He expressed himself as well pleased, and requested a letter stating the origin of the "Home," and what the Commission contributed to its support, &c., and I copy from it.

"The Soldiers' Home was established under Special Order, No. 272, Headquarters Department of the Gulf, in October, 1863. The history of it up to the time of transfer of its patronage or care from the Western to the U. S. Sanitary Commission need not be here repeated, save to say that in February, 1864, by order of Major General Reynolds, then commanding defenses of New Orleans, an agent of the U. S. Sanitary Commission was appointed Superintendent. Since then the Home has been conducted by the Commission on the following general principles:

"The Government furnishes for the use of the Home the building known as the 'Planter's Hotel,' corner of Magazine and Julia Streets. It also furnishes rations and fuel, based upon the morning reports, daily returned to Headquarters, Defences. The U. S. Sanitary Commission hires three adjoining buildings and lots, No. 94 Julia Street, is used for a baggage room and lodgings for detailed men. No. 96 Julia Street, contains the office of the Special Relief Agent and Pension Agent; the rear of the building being used for lodgings for colored soldiers and colored help, with laundry arrangements on lower floor. Buildings and lot on Magazine Street, adjoining the Planter's Hotel, are used for storage, wood yard, &c.

"The Sanitary Commission has provided iron bedsteads comfortably furnished with bedding; all the necessary kitchen, table, and laundry utensils, and the fixtures for heating, not belonging to the building.

"It pays the gas bills, a surgeon for daily attendance on the sick, the services of Superintendent, Matron, two female nurses, a night watchman, and from twelve to fifteen male and female employees. The working force is necessarily large. The cooking, washing, scrubbing, chamberwork, preparation of wood and coal, incident to such an establishment, (if neatly conducted) will explain the point. The common table is furnished to a considerable extent with vegetables, dried fruit, milk, pickles, &c., by the Commission, in addition to Government rations. There is a comfortable hospital ward for all needing medical attendance, or who are too feeble to go to the common table, or to sit up through the day. Seven men are daily detailed from the 1st N. O. Regiment, who act as guard at the Home, and at the Government buildings on the opposite corner."

The Importance of the Home.

I quote again from Mr. Bullard's report: "In estimating the importance of this institution, it must be remembered that New Orleans in the point from which every soldier discharged or furloughed in this Department starts for the North and North-East, via Cairo and New York. Some are delayed in the city for the settlement of their claims,—all are delayed more or less for transportation.

"Provision has been made in the 'Camp of Distribution' for all returning from furlough, and for those returned to duty from hospitals.

"The numbers reported at the Home are, of course, less than would be the case if we fed regiments passing through the city, or if we were unrestricted in the classes admitted. The work as now conducted is wholly in unison with the military authorities.

"We do not aim to do what is already provided for in the proper channels, but to meet emergencies incident to locality and other circumstances. Thus the Home is not only a charitable institution for the needy and suffering, but affords also direct and efficient help to the Government.

"The hospital ward has become an important department. Miss Jones is a capital nurse, and has her hands full. She is kind, efficient, and untiring in her attention to the sick. Feeble, broken-down men, who have started for their distant homes, and often march straightforward for the long journeys before them by a few day's rest, kind nursing, generous diet and proper stimulants. It is in such cases that the gifts of the people, through the Sanitary Commission come right home to the hearts of the recipients. Occasionally discharged or furloughed men from posts outside the city, get thus far towards their homes, and are too feeble to resume their journey. It is better that they die here, surrounded with such comforts as are gladly furnished, than to pass away on a crowded ocean transport, or on the open decks of a river boat. In connection with the operations of the Home, comes in considerable help for the boys, in getting them started right and comfortably for Cairo or New York. All needed assistance is rendered in procuring transportation. Government transports for New York start from Bulls' Head, some two miles from the "Home;" boats going up the river, leave the levee nearer to us; ambulances and army wagons are obtained from the Quartermaster, to carry men and baggage to the boats, when necessary.

"Furloughed men going home on Government transportation are furnished by Government requisition on the Commissary for five or ten days rations. These requisitions are brought to the Home, and the soldier receives what he wants to make his journey comfortable."

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

The Necessity for it—Its Advantages to the Men, and its Help to the Government.

This work is especially under the charge of Mr. O. C. Bullard, a patient, untiring worker in behalf of the soldier. The labor in this Department is very valuable, aye, inestimable, and is not appreciated—it is not tangible, and cannot be easily represented. Mr. Bullard acts as attorney for the soldier, and sometimes for the Paymaster, protecting him from loss, he is really a mediator between the two. Paymasters are the servants of the people, intrusted with money, and are under bonds to account for it, and those are rare who do not think more of their bond than of the claim of the soldier to his consideration. If the soldier's papers are all correct, he is paid immediately, but if they are not, he is simply told "your papers are not correct, I cannot pay you." Disappointed, he falls back, and another takes his place; he looks at his papers, thinks of his officers, and wonders "what the matter is." Of course, he does not know, and having recovered the shock occasioned by the first announcement, he elbows himself among the crowd up to the Paymaster's desk again, and presents his paper asking what correction is needed, he is informed that his papers are altogether wrong, and must be corrected. The soldier is no wiser than before, and falls back again to give place to another. Perhaps he came from a post between five and six hundred miles away, and means of transportation irregular, still his papers must go back to the officer in command of the company for correction; what correction is required he don't know, and can gain no information from the paymaster, and if he sends his papers to his commanding officer, the chances are they will be again returned incorrect. Disappointed and dejected he falls back and accidentally hears of Mr. B., (and here Special Relief work begins,) who happens to have been present all the time giving instructions to other men. Mr. Bullard is a stranger to him, but he sees that he is willing to talk to a common soldier. Mr. Bullard, too, has not been an unconscious observer of the scene, and says, "Well, my boy, what is the matter?" "Oh! I don't know, Paymaster says they are not right," holding up his papers, "and must be corrected by the captain who made them out, and he is down to Brasos, sir." The papers are examined by Mr. Bullard; and the error noticed; he tells him to call at his office, and he will provide him with a new set of papers, made out correctly, and send them with a letter of instruction to his captain, and in the meantime he can stop at the "Home." The papers are sent forward, and returned corrected, money is collected, and the man goes home. This is no fancy picture; it has been an actual occurrence, and attention to such cases as these is the daily experience of our Special Relief Agent. This is the work that makes no show, but is of real, genuine benefit to the soldier.

PENSION DEPARTMENT.

This has been conducted by Mr. Seaton, who makes the claim as alleged by the applicant and myself, regularly appointed Examining Surgeon for Pensions. In order that Mr. Seaton could legally prosecute claims, it was necessary that he be not only Notary Public, but also have access to the seal of a court of record, and it was a source of pleasure to be able on the strength of the good reputation of the Commission to have him appointed Deputy Clerk of a District Court.

The work of the Pension Department up to January, 1865, is represented by statistical report from Mr. Seaton, which I append, marked No. 5, and respectfully call attention to it. The note at the bottom will account for so few allowances for pension claims.

|                                                         |            |
|---------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Total arrears of pay, bounty and prize money collected, | $5,318 97 |
| Total amount of annual pensions allowed,                | 3,500 00   |

Sick in Hospital in New Orleans.

The number sick in general hospitals in this city, January 31, 1865, was very small.

|                            |     |
|----------------------------|-----|
| Number in Marine Hospital, | 263 |
| “ “ Barracks,              | 136 |
| “ “ St. Louis,             | 272 |
| Total,                     | 671 |

Besides these there are 953 in Hospital Corps d'Afrique, of whom over five hundred are sick with variola or varioloid.

No. 1.

Testimony of Dr. E. P. GRAY, to the value of the contributions of the Commission, not only in relieving suffering, but in saving life and promoting efficiency of army.

MORGANZIA, LA., Jan. 30, 1865.

HENRY L. BOLTWOOD,
Relief Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to make grateful acknowledgments to the U. S. Sanitary Commission for its bountiful issues of hospital supplies and vegetables to the troops of this command, for the past six months. Our sick have been numerous, and our facilities for making them comfortable quite limited. Owing to an insufficient issue of vegetables by the Commissary Department, scurvy was developed to an alarming extent, aggravating greatly all other diseases, and rendering some of the regiments of colored troops totally ineffective for all active service, while their ranks were being daily decimated by death.

This was particularly the case during the months of August, September and October, when it was impracticable to obtain the necessary supplies from the Government.

By the liberality of the people of the North, God bless them! our sick have been made comfortable, scurvy has been banished, the frequency and severity of other diseases greatly diminished, and the mortality reduced to a ratio simply incidental to a healthy condition of troops.

It was observed by all the surgeons at the Post, that within two weeks of the time you made large issues of fresh vegetables in October last, that a marked diminution of sickness was the result, and it is from that date that our deliverance from scurvy and kindred diseases began.

This would not have been accomplished so readily had your supplies not been sufficiently bountiful to reach the indisposed in quarters, as well as the sick in hospital, thus in a measure striking at the root of the evil, (defective nutrition).

Since the 20th of November, the Government ration has greatly improved, we have had regular issues of fresh vegetables, which has stayed all further progress of the disease, and enabled us to cure the cases already on our hands.

The present excellent health of the command is largely owing to the donations of the Commission, and I am sure no contributor to its stores could see the good done here, and not feel both amply repaid and encouraged to continue in the good work.

I am very respectfully, your obedient servant,
E. P. GRAY,
Surgeon 70th N. Y. Vol., in charge U. S. Forces.

No. 2.

Prisoners of Tortugas, and Refugees of Florida.

ACT. MEDICAL PURVEYOR'S OFFICE,
DIST. OF KEY-WEST AND TORTUGAS,
KEY-WEST, FLA., January 10, 1865. }

SIR:—I have the honor to request that the enclosed requisition be filled and forwarded to this Post for distribution in this District. If you confide it to me I shall see that the prisoners at Tortugas are supplied; but it is most needed for the refugees of Florida.

Very respectfully your obt. serv't.,
WM. A. McCULLEY,
Surgeon and Act. Medical Purveyor.

G. A. BLAKE, M.D.,
Genl. Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission,
New Orleans, La.

NEW ORLEANS, January 18, 1865.

WM. A. McCULLEY,
Surge and Act. Medical Purveyor,
Dist. Key-West and Tortugas.

DEAR SIR:—Yours of the 10th instant, inclosing requisition came to hand to-day. I will send you by the first transport the following stores:

96 cans condensed milk; 200 cans beef stock; 3 barrels crackers; half barrel dried fruit; 10 barrels sauerkraut; 100 cotton shirts; 25 wool shirts; 100 towels; 50 lbs. chocolate; 48 lbs. farina; 40 corn starch; 5 barrels of pickles; 12 bottles of lime juice; 25 pairs wool drawers; 25 pairs cotton drawers; 50 pairs wool socks.

These are all I can send you at present. I have no fresh vegetables, and send you pickles and sauerkraut instead. I am daily expecting a shipment of vegetables from Louisville, and will send you a lot another time.

The closing sentence of your letter signifying that the requisition you forwarded was "most needed for the refugees of Florida," causes me to remark that the first and foremost object of the Sanitary Commission is to provide for our national soldiers when sick and wounded, and also when needy and destitute from circumstances beyond their control, and then only when the resources of the Government are inaccessible. And it is a question in my mind how far our supplies may be distributed to refugees without being considered a diversion of this charity.

The poor refugees, especially the women and children, are sadly to be pitied, and deserve better treatment at the hands of our Government than they now receive, and are worthy the charitable consideration of all loyal citizens; still, that fact does not determine what claim they have on the Sanitary Commission.

As I have no specific instruction in regard to this subject, I willingly consign to you this invoice of stores, trusting to your honor and fidelity that they will only be distributed to those actually in want.

Your letter, per our Agent, Mr. Chace, acknowledging receipt of vegetables, came duly to hand.

By signing the inclosed receipt, and returning the same to this office, your will oblige,

Very respectfully your obedient servant,

GEO. A. BLAKE,
U. S. Sanitary Commission.

No. 3.

Report of Home for the months of December and January.

NEW ORLEANS, February 1, 1865.

DR. GEO. A. BLAKE,
General Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

SIR:—I have the honor to submit the following as a statistical report of the working of the "Soldiers' Home," for the month of December, 1864, and January, 1865.

There were admitted into the "Home" during the month of December, 1864, as follows:

|                 |     |
|-----------------|-----|
| Duty men,       | 607 |
| Furloughed men, | 48  |
| Discharged men, | 126 |

Making a total of, 781

|                                                             |            |
|-------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Number of meals furnished during the month,                 | 14,935     |
| Number of lodgings,                                         | 5,042      |
| Amount of money deposited in the safe during the month was, | $4,208 64 |

During January, 1865, there were admitted:

|                 |     |
|-----------------|-----|
| Duty men,       | 601 |
| Furloughed men, | 57  |
| Discharged men, | 178 |

Making a total of, 830

|                                                |            |
|------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Showing an excess over the preceding month of, | 49         |
| Number of meals furnished during the month,    | 12,552     |
| Number of lodgings,                            | 4,238      |
| Amount of money deposited in the safe was,     | $4,518 65 |

Very respectfully your obedient servant,

O. S. BULLARD,
Superintendent

No. 4.

Form of Regulations to secure justice to the Government, and relief to the worthy applicant.

NEW ORLEANS, 186

OFFICER COMMANDING
Regiment

SIR:—Under existing rules, the Paymasters in this Department object to pay on final statements of discharged soldiers, when not perfectly clear and definite on certain important points:

1st. (a). If the discharge is "by reason

No. 5.

Statistical Report of the Work of Pension Department at New Orleans, to January 1, 1865.

| Discharged soldiers or sailors, . . . . . | Friends of deceased soldiers and sailors, . . . . . | Old Pensioners, . . . . . | Total claims, . . . . . | GRANTS OR   |        |        |      |       |       |         |            |          |           |           |       | DECIDED. |          |
|-------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|---------------------------|-------------------------|-------------|--------|--------|------|-------|-------|---------|------------|----------|-----------|-----------|-------|----------|----------|
|                                           |                                                     |                           |                         | FOR         |        |        |      |       |       |         |            |          |           |           |       |          |          |
|                                           |                                                     |                           |                         | EXPECTED IN |        |        |      |       |       |         |            |          |           |           |       | Total.   |          |
|                                           |                                                     |                           |                         | February.   | March. | April. | May. | June. | July. | August. | September. | October. | November. | December. | 1854. |          | Allowed. |
| 10                                        | 62                                                  | 83                        | 59                      | 47          | 32     | 16     | 4    | 14    | 12    | 9       | 367        | 42       | 34        | 7         | 42    | 34       | 7        |
| 3                                         | 3                                                   | 6                         | 13                      | 5           | 6      | 4      | 3    | 1     | 7     | 01      | 42         | 42       | 2         | 44        | 42    | 2        | 44       |
| 15                                        | 6                                                   | 16                        | 7                       | 13          | 15     | 7      | 5    | 9     | 3     | 3       | 99         | 42       | 2         | 44        | 42    | 2        | 44       |
| 23                                        | 7                                                   | 16                        | 10                      | 14          | 16     | 10     | 9    | 12    | 13    | 13      | 141        | 4        | 4         | 4         | 4     | 4        | 4        |
| 1                                         | 1                                                   | 3                         | 1                       | 3           | 1      | 3      | 1    | 3     | 1     | 3       | 36         | 4        | 4         | 4         | 4     | 4        | 4        |
| 51                                        | 90                                                  | 123                       | 80                      | 79          | 68     | 53     | 32   | 35    | 29    | 32      | 622        | 83       | 49        | 127       | 83    | 49       | 127      |

Total amount of arrears of pay, bounty, and prize money collected, $5,318 97.

Total amount of annual pensions allowed, $3,500.

About 160 of the pension claims are those of claimants residing at New Orleans. In these the Commissioner of Pensions refuses to give certificates "until Louisiana is once more unmitakably in the Union."

"OLD FATHER SANITARY."

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 4, 1865.

DEAR DR.:—My last report left me packing up at Pascagoula. On Sunday morning I was notified to be prepared at any moment, but after waiting patiently all night, I with great difficulty procured a wagon on Monday morning, but could not get my stores on board of steamer until near night, when after paying off and sending away my laborers, I received permission to put my stores on board the Warrior, the Mate kindly consented to put them in the hold, if delivered to him on the deck. So of Surgeon's certificate of disability," the last word should be followed by the sentence, "incurred since (or prior to) enlistment," (or re-enlistment). Papers are rejected that are not explicit in this respect.

(b). If a soldier is discharged "for wounds," it should be stated, "by reason of wound received in battle at," etc., (giving place and date).

2d. (a). Place (town and State) and date of enlistment should be given, as well as place and date of muster into service.

(b). If drafted, place and date of draft should be given.

Travel allowances are reckoned from place of discharge to place of enlistment.

Clothing accounts are settled from date of enlistment, unless there has been a subsequent settlement of clothing.

(c). A volunteer, discharged to re-enlist as a veteran, having so re-enlisted, when finally discharged, is entitled to travel allowances to place of original enlistment. Therefore, the place of original enlistment and place of re-enlistment should be given.

3d. Date of last settlement of clothing account should follow amount of clothing since drawn.

If there has been no settlement, the words "since enlistment" (or re-enlistment) should follow amount given.

4th. If the soldier has received advanced bounty, one or more instalments, the actual amount should be given, not including premium.

If one or more instalments are due, but unpaid, the fact should be so stated.

5th. The date of final statements must be the same as that of the certificate of discharge.

The place of discharge must be plainly indicated on final statements, to meet the question of travel allowances.

The great inconvenience to which discharged soldiers have been subjected from apparently slight errors in their papers, and the saving to Government in all cases fully settled on discharged papers, are deemed sufficient excuse for this circular.

Your attention to the above suggestions is respectfully solicited.

O. C. BULLARD,

Special Relief Agt. U. S. Sanitary Commission.

Marginal notes must be signed officially.

O. C. B.

to work I went, to roll barrels of kraut on board with my own hands, but before I had got the first barrel on board, I heard a voice which said, "Come boys, here is old Father Sanitary in a scrape, let us help him out," and so they did, for in less than fifteen minutes they had placed on board 25 barrels, 23 boxes, and 5 chests. This I assure you was very gratifying to me, I felt that my labors were appreciated by the private soldiers, the very men whom I came to benefit, and I received it as a personal compliment, as these very men, if detailed for the purpose, would not have worked with the same care or spirit as they did voluntarily, not even waiting for me to ask assistance.

Well, at last, on Tuesday, we left for Fort Gaines, arriving there the same night. I had my light goods taken to my rooms that same night, or rather near daylight. I succeeded in getting my stores all stored, distributed two barrels of kraut to each regiment on the Island, and made arrangements to supply those on the main land with the same quantity; took a memorandum of articles required, and here I am. Having lost two night's sleep this week, and feeling otherwise the want of rest, I shall remain for a few days, feeling assured that there can be no forward movements which will require my attention, during the time I expect to remain here. From all indications I anticipate active forward movements, and when a move is made, it will be an extensive and active one, hence for the next few months there will be no such thing as rest.

Respectfully,
W. R. MILLER,
Relief Agt. U. S. Sanitary Commission.

FROM BATON ROUGE.

BY HENRY L. BOLTWOOD.

BATON ROUGE, LA., Jan. 12, 1865.

DEAR SIR:—Since my last report I have received your shipment per "Starlight," 64 packages all in good order. The additional supply was very acceptable. A large proportion of the potatoes was sent to the general hospital, where four-fifths of all the sick are at present treated. The regimental hospitals are generally given up; wisely, I think, for the general hospital is large enough to accommodate all who need accommodation; and it is impossible to make the sick very comfortable in tents during the cold and stormy weather now common. Besides, the cavalry which makes up the large portion of the force here, is liable to frequent and sudden moves, when the sick are very likely to suffer.

In issuing the vegetables I made liberal issues, so far as my supply went, thinking that a supply large enough to be felt would be better appreciated when received, even if all did not receive at the present issue. The kraut was particularly acceptable to the cavalry regiments, which are very largely made up of Germans. Most of the hospital supplies were sent to the general hospital. The pesthouse, where there are twelve soldiers and fifty citizens sick with the small-pox, also received a supply of shirts and drawers enough for all the soldier patients, besides milk and other articles of diet.

PAROLED PRISONERS.

Twenty-one paroled prisoners, who came in from Cahawba, Alabama, were supplied with shirts, drawers, combs, and towels, all of which they greatly needed. They were generally in good health, and though they had been thoroughly pillaged at their first capture, they had been tolerably well treated. Their supply of food was much better than their facilities for cooking it.

IN HOSPITAL.

I spend a considerable portion of each day in the hospital, endeavoring to see each of the 300 patients three times a week. I have supplied every man with tobacco, needles, thread, combs, huttons, paper, and envelopes; besides distributing 100 pipes, 60 handkerchiefs, and 40 housewives. I have supplied the hospitals with tobacco for the last month, issuing nearly 100 pounds in all. None of the men have been paid since May last, and they are entirely destitute of money.

HOUSEWIVES FROM NEW YORK.

The housewives which came in the barrel sent to my address from New York, were very neatly gotten up and well supplied with sewing materials, combs, handkerchiefs, and last but not least, letters, which are very highly prized. I have distributed considerable milk in the wards, particularly in the ward appropriated to the wounded. I have given them enough for their tea and coffee every day, and have also carried them several bottles of catsup which they all pronounce "hully." I have spent several hours in reading aloud to the men in this ward, who were very much pleased and request me to come often. I have also been called upon several times to officiate as chaplain at the funeral of deceased soldiers. I find no difficulty in occupying my time fully, and so far as I can judge profitably.

SUPLIES GO TO THE MEN.

I am sure that the supplies distributed here have relieved men who were really needy and suffering, and I am also sure that they went to those for whom they were designed. Knowing the prevalence of the notion that the soldiers do not receive the articles sent them, I have taken great pains to distribute personally all that I consistently could, and also to make the recipients understand where the articles came from. The Commission seldom gets any credit for articles distributed through the regimental commissary, or added to the regular hospital diet. Men may be fed and clothed for weeks by the contributions of the Commission without knowing it.

Considering the exposure and heavy duty to which the cavalry has been subjected of late, the health is good. The men complain that the government rations are not enough to satisfy their hunger, and I am inclined to think that as they are generally cooked, they are not quite large enough.

FROM MORGANZIA, LA.

January 25, 1865.

DR. G. A. BLAKE.

DEAR SIR:—I arrived at Morganzia on Friday last, having been nearly three days on the way. I find the troops at this post in a very healthy condition. Only five per cent. are reported unfit for duty, and there are very few serious cases. One regiment doing garrison duty in the fort, and living in log barracks is by far the sickliest of any in the command. As it has previously been healthy, I think the cause must be sought in the close barracks, too small to give sufficient air, and also situated in low, damp ground. The post bakery, recently put in operation, supplies the command with good fresh bread daily. The supplies really needed are not large in quantity or of great variety. Milk, corn starch, hospital shirts and drawers, bedding, rags and bandages, are the principal articles called for. The pickles and kraut are always acceptable. The weather is very cool, and I find tent life by no means luxurious. I am having a small cabin built, to serve as store house and lodging-room. The lumber and the workmen are furnished me without any expense to the Commission. Every one here seems to recognize the U. S. Sanitary as an indispensable institution.

FROM SOUTH CAROLINA.

BY M. M. MARSH, M.D.

BEAUFORT, S. C., Feb. 14.

To render intelligible the issues appended, a very brief epitome of the work for the last two months is essential. For the last year we have extended very little aid to established hospitals, leaving them to depend almost entirely upon their own resources; which, if properly managed, are abundantly sufficient for the maintenance and comfort of patients.

During the month of November our issues were principally to escaped prisoners. With the necessities of this unfortunate class you are, in a general way, acquainted; but to appreciate the extent, the eye must behold them, and a picture will be impressed that memory will ever retain. Had the Commission never done more than what it has accomplished for prisoners, confined and escaped, this alone would justify all its expenditures, from its inception to the present.

POCOTALIGO.

During the last days of November an expedition was organized to operate against the enemy in the neighborhood of Pocotaligo. With its general results you are familiar, but why so exhaustive of Commission supplies, requires explanation. First it was supposed that the object of the expedition would be accomplished almost immediately, and preparation for five days only was made by the military authorities. As usual, a steamer was assigned the Commission by General Foster, and more from habit than expectation of a prolonged campaign (which continues until the present), preparations were made for any possible contingency. And another cause for our disproportional issues, was the fact that during the succeeding months, December and January, the thermometer has presented a lower average temperature than has been for years, if ever, known in this section of country.

Unfurnished for many days with any additional supplies, the troops must have suffered terribly had not the Commission had clothing, blankets, &c., in abundance on the field. In the article of food, as well as clothing, the supplies of the Commission were available; for from the 30th November, on which the battle of Honey Hill occurred, to the 6th December, in the P.M., not a ration was drawn for a sick or wounded man. This is not said to censure, but to show the propriety, when practicable, of extensive preparation.

I would also call attention to the folly of a remark lately noticed in one of your city journals, viz., that the aid of the Sanitary Commission is no longer necessary to the army, in consequence of better preparation for troops than in the early part of the war. And further, that expeditions are conducted so secretly that the Commission cannot be on the ground in time to render any essential aid.

Did such futile objections demand a reply it can be found in the importance which the General commanding attaches to the aid of the Commission, by always giving timely notice for preparation, and allowing a steamer for the use of the Commission from the very limited transportation of the department.

About the 20th December an additional and heavy draft was made upon the resources of the Commission. The army of General Sherman had arrived at Savannah, but found inadequate preparation for its reception. Hundreds of valuable horses and mules were slaughtered for the want of forage. At one time 1,000 men were put upon one-half rations. Nor were they more fortunate in medical than commissary supplies. About this time Dr. Moore, Medical Director for the whole army, writing from Savannah, requested supplies, and urged that a branch of the Commission be established among them. His request was complied with, and the store has been supplied from the central depot at Beaufort.

SAVANNAH.

Savannah has now between three and four thousand sick and wounded, left behind by this onward conquering army. Between one and two thousand are in hospital in Beaufort, and a very large number have been sent North. Two entire steamers' cargo of vegetables have been issued to the 15th and 17th corps of this army; thus contributing to the 17th corps alone (one of its major generals affirmed), an efficiency greater than the addition of 5,000 recruits, and, of course, a corresponding saving of the industry, the equipment, and the maintenance of a like number of men. When this army resumed its onward movement, the Commission furnished its hospital wagons with such supplies, in clothing, blankets and subsistence, as its division surgeons, with their limited transportation, required. These particulars are mentioned to show the necessity for the large issues appended. And permit me to state, that when this army again approaches the coast, similar issues must be repeated. Rushing as it does from point to point, there is an immense waste of material, and whenever it emerges to the coast, government is but half prepared to supply its most pressing necessities. Its stay is too brief to accumulate stores, and hence the necessity that the Commission meet them with an open hand. They look to it as to a brother; it must not disappoint their expectations. Permit me to add, that in my intercourse with the army I have not met a larger percentage of resolute, gentlemanly men, determined to do their whole duty to the country and its enemies.

Approximate list of issues for December and January.

|                       |      |                              |       |
|-----------------------|------|------------------------------|-------|
| Woolen socks, pairs   | 4382 | Sherry, btls.                | 106   |
| Woolen shirts         | 5065 | Med Stimulants, btls.        | 8     |
| Woolen drawers, pairs | 5111 | Broma, lbs.                  | 633   |
| Overcoats             | 995  | Whiskey, btls.               | 478   |
| Cushions              | 673  | Calisaya bark, btls.         | 12    |
| Cotton drawers, pairs | 8    | Extract Ginger, btls.        | 742   |
| Cotton shirts         | 518  | Cheese, lbs.                 | 220   |
| Hats and Caps         | 498  | Tea, lbs.                    | 160   |
| Shippers              | 123  | Brandy, btls.                | 75    |
| Handkerchiefs         | 1817 | Beef, corned, bbl.           | 1     |
| Files                 | 693  | Hams, bbl.                   | 1     |
| Quilts                | 164  | Jelly, lbs.                  | 112   |
| Pillow Cases          | 1832 | Pickles, kegs.               | 60    |
| Sheets, pairs         | 270  | Pickles, bbls.               | 50    |
| Undershirts           | 200  | Kraut, bbls.                 | 43    |
| Blankets              | 4093 | Farina, lbs.                 | 804   |
| Pants, pairs          | 931  | Corn Starch, lbs.            | 1000  |
| Shoes, pairs          | 1020 | Blackberry Brandy, btls      | 27    |
| Blouses               | 1019 | Quinine, oz.                 | 8     |
| Bed Sacks             | 328  | Alcohol, gals.               | 3     |
| Pillow Ticks          | 955  | Malzena, lbs.                | 1563  |
| Flannel bandages      | 209  | Canned Mutton, lbs.          | 2112  |
| Chocolate, lbs        | 392  | Canned Soup, lbs.            | 1560  |
| Towels                | 1865 | Peach butter, lbs.           | 840   |
| Combs                 | 3156 | Dried Apples, bbls.          | 16½   |
| Sponge, lbs.          | 3½   | Ale, bbls.                   | 8     |
| Lint 2 bbls., boxes   | 1    | Spoons                       | 100   |
| Bandages, bbls.       | 8    | Knives and Forks.            | 122   |
| Wrappers              | 12   | Urinals.                     | 3     |
| Coats                 | 151  | Bay Rum, btls.               | 48    |
| Milk, lbs.            | 4670 | Blackberry syrup, gals.      | 20    |
| Coffee, lbs.          | 1356 | Crutches, pairs.             | 37    |
| Extract Beef, lbs.    | 9133 | Dried Fruit, bbl.            | 1     |
| Old pieces, bbls.     | 32½  | Gelatine, cases.             | 2     |
| Mittens, pairs.       | 880  | Tomatoes, lbs.               | 15226 |
| Dried Apples, bbls.   | 39½  | Smoking Tobacco              | 443   |
| Potatoes, bbls.       | 689½ | doz. 4 oz. papers.           |       |
| Onions, bbls.         | 721  | Cheewing Tobacco,            | 879   |
| Crackers, bbls.       | 201  | doz. 2 oz. papers            |       |
| Sugar, bbls.          | 3½   | Writing Paper, reams.        | 110   |
| Wash Basins.          | 60   | Envelopes.                   | 52800 |
| Tin Cups.             | 181  | Ink, Pens, and Pencils, qty. |       |
| Domestic Wine, btls.  | 60   |                              |       |

SANITARY COMMISSION AT SAVANNAH.

BY REV. A. D. MORTON, CHAPLAIN.

As an independent observer and friend of humanity I take pleasure in saying a few words about the operations of the Commission in this place. It has scarcely, in the history of the world, fallen to the lot of an army or city to be placed in the peculiar condition in which Sherman's army and this city were placed by Federal occupation. It is not my object to speak of the city, only to say, it is greatly crest-fallen, and looks in all respects sad and seedy enough to be sure. Of our noble army, I may say a word. It had just performed a wonderful march of over three hundred miles through an enemy's country. It was necessarily destitute of the ordinary army supplies, many were sick, without clothing, and being at a point so far from the base of supplies, was in great want. It was just at this point and nick of time the Sanitary Commission was on hand, and ready with its bountiful stores of material comfort and aid to dispense to those who so greatly needed and richly deserved it.

When the hospitals were fairly established they contained about 3,000 patients, and were in want of everything that is peculiarly sanitary. The Commission opened its store in one of the finest rooms in the city. It has dispensed so far about 200 barrels of vegetables, including 50 barrels of dried apples, 50 barrels of crackers, 25 barrels of pickles and kraut, 100 barrels of potatoes and onions. Also a large amount of dried berries. In clothing about 1,500 shirts, 1,500 pairs drawers, with pants, blouses, overcoats, blankets, and all kinds of sanitary and hospital stores. A great quantity, I don't know how much, so much, however, that one of the surgeons emphatically said, the Sanitary Commission is feeding and clothing the hospitals in Savannah.

It is doing also a dear work in clothing, in many instances even from top to toe, escaped prisoners coming in daily, singly and in squads, from two to a dozen.

These dear fellows, hungry and naked, so long held in barbarous confinement, are clothed and sent on their way rejoicing. Whose heart does not leap light at the very thought of such a work as this?

Of the business of the concern under the management of Rev. J. C. Hoblit, agent, mingled emotions of justice and pleasure require me to say it is admirable indeed. I have seen the operations of the Commission from Nashville to Atlanta, and while they have done well, he has done better. Nowhere did the stores present so magnificent an array, and nowhere did the business seem to be managed with such liberality and accuracy. A receipt is taken for all articles dispensed, and regular accounts kept; so the people at home can see the disposition made of their contributions. In conclusion the Sanitary Commission is one of the greatest benevolences of the age, and when the war is closed the extent of its operations will astonish the world. Give,—people,—give. The soldiers will bless you, and if you desire it, you can see the figures.

FROM ANNAPOLIS.

BY C. F. HOWES.

ANNAPOLIS, February 11, 1865.

I have the honor to submit the following as my report:

OFFICE.

The amount of work done in the office the past two weeks has been unusually large. The greater portion of our care and attentions having been given to those men who were on their way to join their regiments. Transportation to and from the army has been through this city, and our office being just opposite the depot, its flag is always sure to remind some poor destitute soldier of the very articles he is in "so much need of." Regiments, detachments and squads of men have been constantly passing through, and I am not mistaken when I say that more than two-thirds of the number have looked in upon us, obtained a few necessary articles of comfort, asking many questions, wishing directions, some hurriedly exclaiming, "Will you be kind enough to write a letter for me to my mother, and tell her I am well and on my way to join General Grant's army." We have been considerably embarrassed at times to make proper provisions to feed these hungry men. As Government transportation through this city to the army will probably cease with the opening of the Potomac river, and breaking up of the ice in the harbor of Baltimore. I did not deem it advisable to tax the Commission with the expense of fitting up a building suitable for a "Lodge." Captain Davis, commanding at College Green Barracks, has very kindly provided for these men, and no person, to my knowledge, has suffered from cold or hunger.

City Point boats usually arrive at 8 A.M., and leave the wharf to return about the same time P.M. With a portable stove we could make coffee in our own yard, and give to the men, which would add to their comfort, and cheer them up while waiting at the depot or wharf to move on their journey.

One thousand prisoners from Richmond arrived last Tuesday. Although very poorly clothed, the health of these men were much better than the previous arrivals. Only about one hundred were sent to hospitals. The towels, combs, needles, thread, &c., sent from your office, reached us in season to supply each man. In hospitals I have placed many of these articles in the hands of nurses for distribution, as the men require them. I do not think it necessary for men in hospitals to be supplied with each of these articles, for instance, one towel will serve the purpose of several men, the ward should be well supplied, but when the soldier leaves his bed to join his regiment, each of these articles should be found in his knapsack. At College Green Barracks we supply each man as he marches up to the cook-house to obtain his dinner. This method of issuing prevents confusion, and no one is neglected. As soon as the men are comfortably provided for, many of them set immediately at work to do something for the comfort of their suffering comrades left behind. A box of provisions is made up to send them. I have furnished some articles of clothing, such as shirts, drawers, socks, towels, handkerchiefs, &c., and I have had the assurance that these goods have reached the destitute soldier in Southern prisons.

Another boat with prisoners is soon expected. From good authority I can say that three to four thousand men will arrive each week, up to the closing of the exchange. I shall then find it necessary to call largely upon you for towels, handkerchiefs, combs, needles, thread, pencils and other articles for immediate distribution.

E. C. GUILD.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 11, 1865.

I have the honor herewith to submit my report for the week ending this day.

On Sunday, Feb. 5th, I had the pleasure of holding service at College Green Barracks, in connection with Rev. J. M. Clark, Agent U. S. Christian Commission. We had an audience of about seventy-five or eighty men, mostly from western regiments on their way to the front. It was an occasion of great interest to me. The immediate prospect of danger which was before the men,—the manliness and earnestness of their bearing,—the silence and interest with which they listened to us, gave us a deep sense of sympathy with them, and we felt blessed by the privilege of speaking to them the glad tidings of the Gospel of Christ. It was also a great pleasure to me as the representative of your Commission, to stand side by side with the delegate of the Christian Commission, and unite with him in the noble work in which he is engaged. And I cannot refrain from bearing my testimony to the energy and single-heartedness of the Agent of the Christian Commission, with whom I have been thrown in this place, and to the great and manifest good which results from their efforts among the soldiers.

AN INFANT CHRISTENED.

After service we had the pleasure of attending the christening of an infant at the "Home," a somewhat unusual incident in the proceedings of the Sanitary Commission. 'Twas not born under the red and white flag of the Commission, yet the infant having been brought when but a few days' old to the "Home," seemed to be under our peculiar charge. The mother, the wife of a soldier, now at the front, grateful for many favors received, desired the child to be called by the name of our kind-hearted and gentlemanlike Surgeon, in charge of U. S. A. General Hospital, Division No. 1. In accordance with her wishes the service was performed by Rev. J. P. Hammond, Chaplain of U. S. A. General Hospital, No. 2, a clergyman of the Episcopal Church, and our good friend and faithful co-worker, Mrs. Gridley, of the Michigan State Agency, stood as godmother, and our energetic and popular superintendent, Major C. F. Howe, stood as godfather.

The little man so introduced into the scenes of life, will be surely bound to be loyal to his country, loyal to his church, and loyal to the Sanitary Commission.

On Monday my time was mostly spent in attending, so far as we were able, to the wants of those who came in by boat from City Point,—especially of ladies on their sad journey home with the bodies of dear friends whom they have lost. Several instances of this sort have occurred during the week, and it gives us pleasure to be able to be of service by advice and assistance to the friends of those who have given their lives in their country's cause. We feel that we can in no way better carry out the designs of those who contribute to the support of the Sanitary Commission than by offering all the assistance in our power to the noble-hearted women of the land, who have made such costly sacrifices, in giving a husband, a brother, or a son, to redeem a nation's honor, and preserve the nation's life. While we endeavor to dissuade those whose friends have died here, from removing their bodies, yet when their own means are sufficient and their feeling strong in the nation, we are glad to give them our help. Although as a matter of personal opinion, we may believe that it is more fitting that the body of the soldier should lie in the place where death found him in the discharge of his duty—among those with whom he has fought and suffered, yet in deference to the wishes of those most deeply interested, we are ready to afford them every facility in what they feel to be their duty.

ARRIVAL OF PRISONERS.

On Tuesday our hearts were made glad by the arrival of the paroled prisoners from Richmond, whom we have been anxiously expecting for some two weeks. They reached the wharf early in the morning in the midst of a severe snow-storm. Of the whole number—1170—only about 150 or 200 were hospital cases, and these were received at St. John's College Hospital. A large portion of these were placed in a new ward, now occupied for the first time, large, well ventilated, with a wide space between the rows of beds, and ample room between the beds; a most cheerful, comfortable place, the very look of which is health-giving. The larger portion of the men, however, though weak and much reduced, were able to find their way to College Green Barracks. Here in consequence of the severity of the storm, the issue of clothing was postponed, as these men were not so utterly destitute as those who have hitherto arrived here from Andersonville. They were warmed and fed, and made as comfortable as possible, however, by Captain Davis, the faithful friend of the prisoner. On Wednesday, the weather being more favorable, the Government issue of clothing was carried on as heretofore, and I had the pleasure, with the assistance of Mr. Miller, our Agent at Camp Parole, of issuing from the stores of the Commission, needles and thread, and a towel to every man. They were most thankfully received, and the general spirit of gratitude, friendliness and good will manifested by the men was delightful to witness. At the invitation of Captain Davis, we took our dinner at the cook-house, receiving the same amount and quality issued to the men, and no one could ask for better fare or an ampler supply. Fine, rich, well-flavored soup, full of meat and vegetables and rice, fresh white bread in generous quality.

During the latter part of the week my time has been occupied in going about among the newly arrived men—taking lists of the men of certain States, also lists of the deaths which have occurred in prison for publication, and seeking information in regard to persons about whom we have received letters of inquiry within the last few weeks. Until now it has been impossible to do much in the way of obtaining the necessary information to enable us to reply to these letters, as the men paroled from Andersonville have almost all been scattered by this time to their homes or to their regiments. And even now my success is not very great, as the men about whom we have received inquiries of late are mostly known to have been confined at Andersonville, so that those who have now arrived, coming from a different part of the Confederacy, are not able to tell us much about them. The promise of a general exchange, however, gives us the welcome prospect of speedily being able to satisfy all inquiring friends.

BY MISSES CAREY AND PHILLIPS.

CAMP PAROLE HOSPITAL, Feb. 10, 1865.

As our little community has been in a kind of transition state for several days past, it is difficult to furnish a report which will be clearly understood by those not acquainted with the circumstances. Early in the week much excitement was created in the different wards by an order for a general transfer to Philadelphia of all the exchanged men able to bear the journey. Many of them were just recovering from fevers, others had suffered much from long confinement with severe wounds, and needed warm clothing; and as there was not time for those who had not previously provided for the emergency to draw from Government, in the regular way, the Sanitary Commission came to the rescue, and furnished many articles of comfort for the journey. Those few who were unable to walk, were taken on beds or stretchers to the station, accompanied by ward masters or nurses; and all under the escort of kind assistant surgeons, left in the early train on Wednesday morning. They seemed happy, many of them in the prospect of being speedily sent to the hospitals of their respective states; some appeared gratified with the idea of any change after weary months of confinement, while others remarked that they had been well cared for here, and had no cause to desire a change. But to those of us to whom they had been objects of interest and sympathy, for weeks or months past, it seemed like parting with old friends, and for a short time some of the wards seemed almost deserted.

Meanwhile fevers and other acute diseases continue to prevail; new cases occurring or being brought in from the camp almost daily; and several of the ward masters and other attendants are or have been seriously ill. A few others have been brought near the grave, but none of the fever cases have as yet proved fatal. The only death during the week, was that of an interesting New England boy, who died of diphtheria, after a brief illness.

The new arrangements, to some of which reference has been made, it is understood are preparatory to making provision for some of the newly arrived prisoners from Georgia.

HOSPITAL CASES.

Affairs at this section are still in a fluctuating state. Convalescents are being returned to camp, confirmed invalids discharged or transferred to the hospitals of their respective States, others are returning daily from visits home; and several new cases of severe illness have been brought in. Among these are a few of the late arrivals from Libby prison. Although very roughly treated, they seem to have fared much better than those from Georgia, and represent the rebels as being themselves reduced to such straits, that they could scarcely have been expected to have done more for them. Yet many were frozen to death, for want of clothing and fuel.

New cases of fever and pneumonia are found almost daily in all the wards. Of the last named, an interesting young man died after a brief illness. The parents were promptly notified, but arrived only in time to take home the precious remains. Two others, who lingered long with chronic diseases, have slept their last sleep. One died of a wound received in May last, after weary months of untold suffering. We trust he has at last found rest in Him who will not break the bruised reed, and has gone where the wicked cease from troubling. The other case was one of the Georgia prisoners. He was much prostrated at first, but had so far recovered that he had made his arrangements to visit home, when the disease returned with renewed violence, and again he took his bed. His wife and only brother were summoned from their New England home; and after their coming he once more seemed to rally, but for a few days only. Death came suddenly but found him prepared. Through his languishing sickness, and repeated disappointments he was sustained by the precious hopes of the gospel. His oft expressed desire to visit his home once again, yielded to the divine will without a murmur. Speaking on this subject a few days before his death, he adds, "But I am satisfied to live or die just as God pleases. It is only a few months since I began to know and trust him. My sufferings in prison brought me to reflection. We had such good prayer meetings then, until the rebels broke them up." In a letter to his wife, after his release from prison, he says, "Tell my mother that her prayers are answered. The prodigal has returned, and finds bread enough and to spare in his Father's house. (We give the ideas, the precise words are not remembered.) As the end drew nigh, he exhorted all about him to commence at once to live for God, and meet him in heaven.

TEMPERANCE IN THE ARMY.

BY G. A. MILLER.

There is quite an interest in the temperance movement in camp, and the developments have convinced me that the statement is not correct that among officers drinking is universal. There are officers who have the moral courage to resist the mighty pressure that is brought to bear on them in that direction, and have maintained their manhood unsullied.

How inconsistent men are in their effort to be consistent! A captain in a New England regiment told me that he came into the army a rigid temperance man; but in the fatigue of long marches he learned to take a little stimulant. Presently, shorter marches required it, until at length no march at all demanded it. Says he, "I do not expect to become a drunkard, I know I shall not; and yet I should not be willing that a sister of mine should marry a man who drinks as much as I do."

SANATARIA.

The establishment of permanent institutions for the care and employment of disabled soldiers when the war shall have ended, is already beginning to agitate the public mind; for that there will be thousands of maimed and crippled veterans thrown upon the country, whose capacity for usefulness will be impaired in proportion to the nature and extent of the injuries received in battle, is already a settled fact that no one will attempt to gainsay.

What is our duty towards them? They cannot go into the marts of trade as they have been wont to do and compete with ordinary labor. Thousands of strong right arms are now mingled with the soil of rebellious states, and will never again add a single mite to the productive industry of the country; and yet strong hearts of true men beat beneath the disabled bodies, and are just as fresh with domestic affection, and just as warm with social attachments, as before the sacrifice was made; and the loyal people, seeing this, are more earnest than ever to provide permanent homes, and honest employment, and heartfelt, invigorating associations for those who have defended us against treason.

The impulses of the nation are all right in this direction. The people and the representatives of the people in legislatures,—local and general,—are moving to do what seemeth best for the soldier, when he shall return among us to enjoy a peace that he shall have aided to secure, by conquering and subduing the causes of war.

The U. S. Sanitary Commission having represented the people in the care of the soldier in the field, having watched and defended him in transitu from the field to his home, and from his home to the field again; having acted as his agent to collect his bounty, prize money, and other claims, without cost or hindrance; having regarded the interests of his family, in procuring information that they could not procure, and in adjusting claims with the government for pensions, &c., have been for more than a year employing themselves with preparations for establishing Sanitaria for his future protection and comfort, and they ask the people to regard this interest with peculiar favor.

Let us learn wisdom for the future by the experiences of the past. The multiplication of diverse interests is always a calamity in any great effort for the common good; and the multiplication of instrumentalities, all tending in one direction and concentrating in one channel, for the greatest good to the greatest number, is alike the cheapest and most efficient method of doing good. Had the local societies and rival institutions which have grown up in the country since the war began, concentrated their energies and united their gifts, upon the broad catholic principle of a universal brotherhood, such a record would have been made before the world, as has never been conceived. That record however cannot be made. It will never be known how much has been done during the past four years for our army and navy by the hearty, and yet discursive and unsystematized benevolence of the people.

It will never be known how much of labor, treasure, and time have been wasted by these rival methods, but that money has been thrown away, supplies squandered, time misemployed, and lives lost there cannot be a doubt.

That we should profit by the instructive experience of the past four years is plainly a duty now. Let the earnest benevolence of the people seek the wisest and cheapest means for the employment of their funds in the establishment of Sanataria; and it is not without the confidence inspired by the assurance of truth, that we declare the U. S. Sanitary Commission to be the most reliable instrumentality for this purpose within reach of the people.

From the commencement of the war the subject of sanitary science has been a part of the great idea of the Commission, and certain members of it who have made it their special study for years, could not avoid using the opportunities furnished by the war, for increasing their knowledge and promoting the cause. So that the Sanitary Commission stands to-day before the people of this country as the chief centre of intelligence, and the chief bureau of information, on the subject of locating, furnishing, and conducting Sanataria.

The experience of the Commission in its temporary homes, lodges, and rests, of which there are about thirty already in existence, and at which some four thousand soldiers are fed and lodged every day, as they pass to and from the field, is an experience rich in incidents of unusual interest, rich in the teachings of detail, as in the classification and tabulation of facts, by which the Commission is more thoroughly conversant with the wants and habits of disabled men, and with the means of supplying them, than any other organization in the land.

We ask the people therefore, who desire to labor in this behalf to do so through the Sanitary Commission, and to do so earnestly and systematically. Let the funds that are collected for this purpose, be contributed to the treasury of the Commission, that the plans that have been developed, and are now being matured, as a result of years of thought and careful investigation, may be vitalized by the hearty sympathy and concurrence of a generous public, whose record hitherto, in the matter of benevolent deeds, is more illustrious than was ever known in any other nation or age of the world.

A "COMFORT BAG" IN THE ARMY.

The writer very well remembers packing with a great variety of articles, last summer, a certain "Comfort Bag," containing needles, thread, blackberries, and a letter from the giver—one of our patriotic little girls—requesting a reply from the soldier who might receive it. Sure enough, here it is! and we have it published, as it so plainly proves that our offerings to the soldiers, through the Sanitary Commission, reach their intended destination.

CAMP 61ST REG. MASS. VOLUNTEERS,
DEFENCES CITY POINT, Va., Feb. 2, 1865. }

DEAR M.:—I was so fortunate as to receive from the Sanitary Commission, yesterday, one of those little bags you made last May. The little letter dates June 1, 1864. I will now reply, as you wish to hear from the one who might receive it.

It was so long ago, perhaps you may have forgotten its contents.

Those dried blackberries were excellent; we stewed them last evening and they were nice, and you know that soldiers do not often get luxuries.

The needles we often have occasion to use, and as often will think of the patriotic little girl at Glen's Falls.

Now you would, perhaps, like to know something of the soldier who received your little gift: I have been a soldier almost even since the war began. I went out with the 1st Mass. Regiment, three years ago last May. I have been in many battles and skirmishes, and was slightly wounded at Chancellorsville the 3d of May, 1863, and again at Spotsylvania, on the 10th of May, 1864. I was a prisoner in Richmond during July and August, 1862. I remained at home six months after our regiment was discharged, and then enlisted again in the 61st Mass. Regiment, and I am now with the regiment at City Point, Va. So you can see I have some experience of a soldier's life; it is not all sunshine, to be sure, but for one who loves the noble cause we are engaged in, the hardships can sometimes be borne with pleasure. Our friends at home can never know how much their kind regard for the soldiers has done to sustain us on the long, weary marches, through the storms and heat and dust. How often, when nearly sinking to the ground from fatigue, the thought of those at home has rallied us to make another effort. That yours may be a long and happy life, is the wish of

Your soldier friend,

JAMES T. HIGGINS,
Co. G, 61st Mass. Vol's.,
City Point, Va.

SOLDIER'S SCRAP BOOKS.

Loyal love ever seeks its expression in action, and to those whose every effort has been given to one object for the past four years, it may be acceptable to find some new vent for their energy, some new mode of satisfying their constant desire to be at work for those who are so bravely and faithfully at work for them. To such we would recommend the making of "Soldier's Scrap Books."

Many of you will say, "This is nothing new, we have been doing so for a long time." Very probably, and I am most happy to know that you have done so; but I find in conversing with persons generally, that it is a new idea to them, and therefore I have taken this method of circulating it.

Most persons in looking over old papers, or arranging closets or drawers, will find many newspaper scraps, both of prose and verse, of much interest, which will be exactly adapted to the purpose. Take either a blank book or any old copy book, and paste these pieces into them, covering the page entirely; it is surprising, by this means, what an amount of reading matter one copy book may be made to contain. The pictures taken from our illustrated papers and magazines are valuable also to enliven the book, and it is well to vary the pages in this manner.

Keep this idea in your mind as you read the daily papers, and extract constantly whatever you think will be useful or entertaining. In this way you will be steadily accumulating a stock, which you can arrange in your book at your leisure. This work has been found particularly suited to invalids, and we would recommend it to those desirous to aid the soldiers, and yet with strength for very little exertion. Many aged persons also have found much pleasure in selecting pieces and forming books in this manner. We know of one old gentleman, who, having lately lost a tenderly loved daughter, has been induced to occupy his mind in this way, and has found (as those ever will, who turn from their own griefs to lighten those of others) comfort and solace in the work. But my young friends of the "Alert Clubs," to you most especially would I direct these remarks, and beg you to turn your attention to this branch of aid to the soldiers. Could you have seen, as I have, the many weary hours of hospital life, when suffering or debility prevents any continuous reading, and watched the pleasure expressed in the face of some poor fellow at the sight of one of these same "Scrap Books," full of short articles complete in themselves and requiring no sustained attention, you would at once resolve to add this to your other duties for the Sanitary Commission, and keep one always on hand, so that as rapidly as one package was sent off, in those nice boxes which we are always so glad to receive from you, another should be under way, and thus the supply steadily kept up.

I trust that those who have been in the habit of making these books will continue to do so, and also that those to whom the idea comes for the first time, will make the experiment, and we can safely promise them in advance, the warm thanks of all who shall receive any such contributions.

D.

PHILADELPHIA, 1307 CHESTNUT ST.,
March, 1865.

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

ASSOCIATE MANAGERS.—NO. VIII.

We report our receipts and distributions for the month of February, as follows:—number of packages received, 164. Distributed to City Point, 57 packages; Fortress Monroe, 1 package; Newberne, N. C., 29 packages; Beaufort, S. C., 164 packages; New Orleans, 22 packages; Danville, Va., 1 package; Louisville, Ky., 50 packages; Navy, 4 packages; Hospitals in and near New York City, 15 packages. Total, 343 packages distributed.

We are aware how very inaccurate this method is, of reporting by "packages." The term package is used for boxes, barrels and bales indiscriminately of all sizes. We cannot give the space required for the publication of our detailed monthly reports, in which every article received and given out is specified, and yet we want to give you a general idea of what has been accomplished during the month. We have therefore adopted this imperfect method as the shortest way of gaining that object.

In addition to the ordinary demand for flannel drawers, sheets, socks, handkerchiefs, towels, old linen, and almost everything else, we have this week a special call to make. Mrs. M. M. Marsh, wife of our Inspector at Beaufort, S. C., writes us, February 8, "Another want, which could I have foreseen in half its extent, would I am sure have been partially met, viz., READING MATTER. Sherman's men, cut off for so long a time from book or paper, were voracious, and I may use the present tense of all left here, and they are many. Our little stock of books is a centre of attraction, and you cannot think how promptly they are returned. They do much toward whiling away the weary hours in hospital. Would that every home would contribute just one readable book or magazine. It would be like the 'penny contribution' that built a cathedral. Will you help us? These men, left behind in hospital, or doing solitary duty in detachments far away from both home and regiment, feel alone, and very naturally seek something for diversion."

We hope that our friends will enable us to meet this and similar calls, in a way which will be more satisfactory to them and to ourselves. At present we are much in want of good reading matter.

In this, our third and last article upon the organization of our Branch, we shall define the position and duties of Associate Managers.

The Associate Manager organization was adopted by us from the New England Branch of the Commission, after a most satisfactory trial of the plan for several weeks, by a member of our own Board.

The plan is to divide the whole field into sections, and appoint one or more Associate Managers in charge of each section. Up to this time about forty-five Associate Managers have been appointed. These ladies act as our representatives and are in constant correspondence with us. Their object—irrespective of what we all have in view preeminently—is two fold; to help you and to help us in our work. These ladies, like ourselves, are volunteers. Their traveling expenses even are not repaid them; postage charges alone being refunded by the Association. The position is one of responsibility and hard work, involving a great deal of time and thought. The value of this service to our cause is indisputable. It is proved that it has been the means of greatly extending the interest in our work.

The duties of an Associate Manager, as defined two years ago in one of our reports, are as follows:—

1st. To ascertain whether Soldiers' Aid Societies exist in every town and village of her section, and if so, for what they are working.

2d. When they are not working for the Commission, to use all her influence to induce them to do so, meeting all objections by bringing forward in a kindly spirit the convincing proofs furnished by the published documents of the Commission, and the testimony of the officers of the army of the United States.

3d. When such societies, tributary to the Commission, do not exist, we wish to have them organized by our associate, or, if preferred, she may send us the name of the right person, in the particular town or village, to whom we should address ourselves.

4th. To visit all the auxiliary societies in her section, from time to time, for the purpose of giving information, answering questions, dispelling doubts, and encouraging workers;—this personal intercourse being thought very desirable. This, however, would be at the option of our associate, who can judge better than we can how best to produce the desired result in her own section.

5th. To keep the broad Federal principle, upon which the Commission is based, ever before the people. Our whole experience shows that our people are truly liberal in spirit, and only ask for information as to the best way of working for the sick and wounded. Where, during the past year, whole communities have worked for special regiments, it was only necessary to explain the national principle upon which the Sanitary Commission rests, and it was immediately adopted.

6th. To bring every influence to bear which may stimulate this work, the responsibility of which we feel so deeply, and which may tend to make it more thorough and efficient. It should always be presented on the high grounds of duty, patriotism, and Christianity.

7th. To keep herself thoroughly informed of the working of the Commission, by frequent correspondence with this office. When questions are asked us which we cannot answer, we write to the General Secretary at Washington for information, or refer our associate directly to him.

8th. To send us a friendly letter once a month, with a report of the condition of things in her section, pointing out any errors on our part, and making any suggestions which may help us to make our work more effective, and which will be gladly received.

To these have been added the entire charge of the distribution of printed matter throughout her section; and more recently, the arrangement of lecturing tours.

It is through the associate managers, too, that we obtain that information which enables us to work harmoniously with you. How can we work together with any sort of concerted action, unless we know what your interest in the soldier is? And so we keep a book, in which is entered the name of every post-office village in our field, and opposite each name is recorded what the Aid Society of that place has done for the soldiers through our agency, or any other agency, if that can be ascertained. Excepting through our associate managers it is not possible for us to obtain this information.

We wish we could speak as we feel of the great help and comfort these ladies have been to us in our work; not only in their official position, but as personal friends. The interest with which they have adopted our plans, and aided us in carrying them out, their readiness to accept additional labor, without thought of sparing themselves, their well weighed suggestions and frank criticisms, their loving trust and patience, their words of sympathy and encouragement, which cross our paths like so many sunbeams; all this, and much more, for which we cannot be sufficiently grateful, rushes through heart and head as we write. Of how these ladies have aided you it is unnecessary for us to speak. Let us, on our part, resolve to do all that we can to make the work of our associate managers as easy for them as possible, by meeting their efforts in our behalf in the same spirit with which they are made.

And thus we conclude these three articles upon the organization of our Branch. We have wished to show in them that the system which characterizes the whole work of the Sanitary Commission, extends no less through its Home Department; that there is method in the collection of supplies, as well as in their distribution; that we have each an assigned part in this vast plan—a niche in this great temple erected to humanity. When the war is over, and we shall have returned to our ordinary duties, there will be few things we shall prize more than the consciousness of having been members of the U. S. Sanitary Commission;—a work which has been so essentially the exponent of the patriotism of the women of our country, and which, because so noble in itself, has bound us together with no ordinary bonds of sympathy and respect.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER,

Chr. Committee on Correspondence, &c.

NEW YORK, 7 COOPER UNION,

March 4, 1865.

GOOD NEWS FROM HARTFORD, CONN.

RECEIPTS.

The Hartford Sanitary Association has, during the months of January and February, 1865, received the following very acceptable donations of money:—From five friends, $52 40; Mrs. H. B. Treat, $10; Mrs. S. N. Hart, $5; Miss Arthur's class in Bethel Sunday-school, $1; Miss E. M. Watkinson, $25; Mrs. Robert Watkinson, $10; Hartford Alert Club, $300; Mrs. Edward Kellogg, $5; Mrs. N. Shipman, $25; Alfred Smith, Esq., $25; Samuel Spaulding, $1; Mr. T. Wadsworth, $5; Box at R. R. Station, $1 75; Simsbury Alert Club, $43; Marlboro', $19; Southington Alert Club, $53; Collinsville Alert Club, $54; Wethersfield, avails of a festival, $712; Plainville Alert Club, $16 50; Gilead, $17 20; East Glastenbury, $11; West Hartland, $12 60; Hartland, $20; Canton Centre, $15 90; South Manchester, $20; Glastenbury, $15; Unionville Alert Club, $20.

Contributed by the following friends for the purchase of a knitting machine:—Mr. E. W. Wells, $2; Miss M. W. Wells, $3; Mrs. R. Watkinson, $1; Mrs. G. M. Bartholomew, $1 25; Mrs. E. N. Kellogg, $2; Mrs. J. Warburton, $5; Mrs. E. Roberts, $1; Mrs. T. Steele, $1; Miss M. H. Parsons, $2; Mrs. G. Wells Root, $3; Mrs. S. S. Ward, $2; Mrs. O. G. Terry, $2; Mrs. H. A. Perkins, $5; Mrs. Thomas Smith, $10; Mrs. E. H. Owen, $10; A friend in Collinsville, $2. Total receipts, $1,562 76.

Also supplies in kind, as follows: Avon, 4 feather pillows; Mrs. Wheeler, pickles; Bloomfield, from four little girls, a bed quilt; East Berlin, Mrs. C. A. Royce, 4 bottles of catsup; Canton Centre, Mr. S. Taylor, quantity dried fruit; Collinsville Alert Club, 2 bed quilts; Farmington, Mrs. E. L. Hart, dried fruit; Glastenbury, 31 ring pads; Mrs. F. Schouler, 1 pair of socks; West Granby, cotton and linen; East Granby, Mrs. A. Pratt, linen; East Hartford, Mrs. Aaron Olmsted, blackberry syrup, wieu, linen, dried fruit; West Hartford, Mrs. Allen Burr, dried fruit, honey, vinegar, linen; Miss Butler, newspapers; Hartland, 11 handkerchiefs, 1 pair socks, linen, hops, beeswax, mutton tallow, 1 barrel dried fruit, 1 barrel pickled tomatoes, sheets, pillows, pillow cases and 23 comfort bags from children; North Manchester, lint; South Manchester, 6 handkerchiefs; Simsbury, dried currants, 4 handkerchiefs, 2 towels; Southington, 8 handkerchiefs, 2 pillow cases, linen; Mrs. and Miss Merriam, 8 pounds dried currants, 2 pairs socks; Plainville, bandages, linen and cotton; Unionville, cotton; Windsor, Mrs. Mather and Mrs. E. N. Phelps, cotton and linen; East Windsor, 3 comfort bags, 4 pairs slippers, 4 ring pads, 1 pair socks; Mrs. G. P. Booth, 2 bed quilts; Windsor Locks, 103 "Wounded Soldier's Friend," lint, cotton; Wethersfield, Mrs. Savage, 2 barrels onions; Miss Fanny Knight, dried apples; South Windsor, Miss Sarah Moore, Miss Gray, Mrs. Susan Elmer, cotton and linen; Jewett City, 8 comfort bags, 9 pairs hose; Hartford, South Church Sunday-school 400 comfort bags filled with valuable articles; Mrs. H. Fitch, under shirts; Mrs. Packard, 7 bottles smelling salts; Mrs. H. B. Treat, 3 pairs of socks, 1 pair mittens; Mrs. C. Richards, 4 napkins, 5 pairs socks, old linen; Mrs. J. Stillman, 2 quilts; Mrs. G. W. Newton, vinegar; Miss Mary Gage and schoolmates, very nice bed quilts; Mrs. Harwood, 2 pairs socks by Mrs. Holaday; Mrs. Smith, 8 pairs cloth mittens; Mrs. C. Nott, 2 pairs socks; Mrs. E. H. Owen, 4 arm rests, bandages, old linen; Mrs. T. W. Russell's Sunday-school class, one album quilt; Mrs. S. Hamilton, bandages; Mrs. William Savage, compresses, lint, linen; Mrs. E. Godwin, shirts; Mrs. William Kellogg, shirts; Mrs. George Robinson, linen, pickles; valuable gifts of boxes and barrels for packing from Messrs. A. Larned, W. M. Judd, E. S. Sykes, Munyan and Chalker, Starr and Burkett, Weatherby and Co., C. Haynes, Griswold and Miss A. M. Hills.

Forwarded to No. 10 Cooper Union since January 1, 1865, (or during the months of January and February,) 11 boxes and barrels, containing 420 comfort bags, 253 pairs of socks, 504 flannel shirts, 38 surgical shirts, 33 pairs mittens, 9 bed quilts, 2 pairs cotton drawers, 2 dressing gowns, 4 arm rests, and a quantity of reading matter. Total, 1,295.

In response to our recent call for old cotton and linen, numerous friends both in city and country have given liberally, and many books and newspapers have been sent in.

VEGETABLES AND PICKLES NEEDED.

But we beg leave to request all the friends of the soldier to bear constantly in mind, that vegetables, pickles, old linen and cotton are standing wants of the army, which are never fully met, and that they can do much toward supplying the lack of the two former articles, by sending from time to time a barrel, bushel or keg of either, as they can be spared; and particularly as the season for planting arrives, by devoting a plot to the cultivation of them especially for the soldier, and by sending to the Commission, through its auxiliaries, any overplus they may have on hand at the close of the winter, instead of selling them at a reduced price, as many did to their great regret, last spring.

DISBURSEMENTS.

The Hartford Sanitary Association, since its organization in April, 1864, to January 1, 1865, has forwarded to No. 10 Cooper Union, 166 boxes and barrels, the contents of which (including 16 previously forwarded by the Associate Managers) were as follows:—shirts, 1,530; drawers, 1,506; hose, 848 pairs; mittens, 136 pairs; sheets, 401; pillow slips, 136; pillow ticks, 186; towels, 2,003; pillows, 523; quilts, 139; blankets, 9; slippers, 16 pairs; arm slings, 191; dressing gowns, 9; bed sacks, 7; ring pads, 90; second hand garments, 331; miscellaneous, 233. Total, 8,294.

Bandages, 16,914 yards; old linen and cotton, 8 barrels and 9 packages; books, 6 cases; dried fruit, 424 pounds, 88 packages and 3 cases; groceries, 116 pounds; jellies and preserves, 643 jars and 3 cases; wine and spirits, 114 bottles; fresh fruit, 3 barrels; pickles, 11 kegs and 65 barrels; fresh vegetables, 45 barrels; dried apples, 5 barrels and 3 cases; tomatoes, 17 bottles; barberry syrup for fevers, 86 bottles; cologne, 18 bottles; spices, 4 boxes; blackberry cordial and brandy, 267 bottles; miscellaneous, 11 packages.

CONDENSED STATEMENT.

These supplies have been furnished by 52 towns, which have also aided us by contributing to our funds, and in making garments, &c. The names of these towns are, Avon, Berlin, East Berlin, Bloomfield, Blue Hills, Bolton, Bristol, New Britain, Burlington, Canton Centre, Collinsville, Coventry, Farmington, Forestville, Glastenbury, East and West Granby, Gilead, Griswold, Griswoldville, Haddam Neck, Middle Haddam, East Hartford, West Hartford, New Hartford, Hartland, West Hartland, Hebron, Higganum, Jewett City, Kensington, Manchester North and South, Marlboro', Newington, Plainville, Plymouth Hollow, Rockville, Simsbury, Southington, Suffield, Terryville, Torrington, Unionville, Vernon Centre, Vernon Depot, Wethersfield, Windsor, Windsor Locks, South Windsor, East Windsor Hill, and Warehouse Point.

We have received from friends

|                           |            |
|---------------------------|------------|
| of the cause in the city, | $2,897 95 |
| in the country,           | 3,222 41   |

|        |            |
|--------|------------|
| Total, | $6,120 36 |
|--------|------------|

COUNTRY AUXILIARIES.

This we think is a good record, and the result is owing in a very great degree to the energy and steadfastness of our country auxiliaries. To give some idea of the value of their assistance, we would instance the town of Southington, which, during a period of eight months, has contributed to our treasury the sum of $358 89, and made 800 garments.

ANNIE E. COOKE,
Secretary.

EXTRACTS FROM A LETTER BY BENJAMIN WOODWARD, M.D.

MEMPHIS, TENN., February 17, 1865.

The Western campaign and series of battles opened with "Belmont," Mo., in Nov. 1861; then, in course, came "Donaldson," "Fort Henry," "New Madrid," "Island No. 10," bombardment of "Fort Pillow," the siege of "Corinth," with all its battles; the battle of "Perryville," "Stone River," or as it is sometimes called "Murfreesboro'"; the advance of General Rosecrans through Tennessee, ending with the battles of "Chattanooga," "Chickamauga," "Lookout Mountain," "Missionary Ridge;" the defense of "Knoxville," "Buzzard's Roost," "Marietta," and "Dallas." This was the last great battle of which I can speak from personal knowledge. Over all this extent of country and time, we have never been beyond the reach of the Sanitary Commission. Time and again, during my three years service as surgeon, when ordered to open or take charge of hospitals in the immediate rear of the army, I was entirely dependent upon the Commission for everything except bacon and hard-bread, and coffee. At one time at Cowan, Tenn., I had to open a hospital at night, and before morning had over one hundred wounded fresh from the field; but had no beds, pillows, blankets or change of clothing for them. An agent of the Sanitary Commission came, hearing of the fight, and before noon I had beds, bedding, blankets and clothing, with all those delicacies and stimulants so much needed by wounded men. I should weary you were I to tell one of a thousand cases of relief received from that source, and will only instance one case coming under my own eye. Soon after the battle of Franklin, Tenn., on the 30th of November, last, I went there to search among the dead for the body of a beloved son killed there. I found the hospital well supplied with all they needed, received from the Sanitary Commission. Surgeons, officers and men told me "that for eight days after the battle, our wounded—two hundred and eighty—had nothing but what the Sanitary Commission gave them; as the rebels in whose hands they were—our forces having fallen back—had issued no rations or food of any kind to them;" and, said some, "If it had not been for the Sanitary Commission we should all have starved to death."

During the past three months we have sent from our depot here, more than two thousand barrels of vegetables; besides a very large quantity of other supplies to the Department of Arkansas; and nearly as much to posts on the Mississippi River, besides keeping the gunboats and monitors supplied. All the general hospitals not only in this city, but at Vicksburg, Natchez, Morganza, Baton Rouge, are dependent on us for vegetables. Within the past week we have issued vegetables and hospital stores to the whole of the 16th Army Corps, on their way down the river. We recognize our Eastern friends as among our most liberal donors. The work is one, as the cause is one. If you will take your map and find Little Rock, Arkansas, and then trace 150 miles down the Arkansas River you will find Pine Bluff. There had last fall a large force, and very many sick. Among the sanitary stores sent there in October, were some shirts, marked "Soldiers' Aid Society, Bangor, Maine." Was that not an evidence of the nationality of the work. We shall have an active campaign in this Department before long. Large bodies of troops are moving, and while I write twelve thousand cavalry are leaving on a fleet of transports. We are concentrating supplies as fast as possible to be ready to send them to any required point.

That God may bless and abundantly reward the labor of love of those who are giving their means and their influence to this good work is my daily wish.

CHIEF JUSTICE CHASE AND THE UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION.

On taking the chair at the annual meeting of the National Freedman's Relief Association, held in the hall of the House of Representatives, at Washington City, February 26, 1865, the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, Salmon P. Chase, referred to the Sanitary Commission as follows:—

This war, now waged for national unity, is marked by peculiar characteristics. The praise of our brave army and navy is upon all lips. The endurance and patriotism of the heroic people, which has never faltered in its resolve to maintain, at whatever cost, the integrity of the American republic, furnish to this, and will furnish to all aftercoming generations, objects of wonder and topics of eulogy. The vast energies and the vast resources which have been called into action, puzzle the statesmen and economists of the old world, and astonish our own.

But these, I think, will not hereafter be regarded as the most peculiar characteristics of this war. Men of thought, and especially men who recognize the providence of God in the affairs of men, cannot fail to observe that it is distinguished by great charities even more than by great achievements.

What age before this age, and what country besides our country, ever witnessed such an organization as that of the Sanitary Commission? What needs have been supplied; what wants relieved; what wounds healed; what evils averted, by the activity, wisdom, and unflagging zeal of this admirable organization, fostered and sustained by the people, and recognized and aided by the government.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL BY QUARTER-MASTER GENERAL M. C. MEIGS.

QUARTER MASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 20, 1865. }

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Sect. Western Dept. U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR:—I have received and thank you for your Report of 22d October last. It is an honorable record. I notice particularly the value of the hospital gardens. Remembering the scarcity of all provisions, except the substantial parts of the army ration, and even of those, at the time I met you at Chattanooga, in the winter of 1863, I read with gratification the statement of the quantity of esculents which your gardens, established the next spring, produced for the sufferers in hospital.

I endeavored, while at Chattanooga, to have arrangements made for cultivation during the ensuing spring and summer, but found every one too much occupied with the sterner work of war to be willing to devote time and labor to raising, at that warlike centre, a portion of the supplies which, when brought from the distant North, cost so much and so much interfered with the transportation of men and munitions.

I hope that these gardens will be continued, and that the Sanitary Commission, which is free from the pressure of the sterner duties of the soldiers, will continue to give its attention to extending this cultivation for their benefit.

I am very truly and respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
M. C. MEIGS.

Quarter-Master General and Brevet Major General.

IMPERFECT DESCRIPTIVE LISTS.

To the Editor of the Army and Navy Journal:

SIR:—It is my misfortune to have charge of a General Hospital to which a large proportion of the maimed soldiers of the army find their way, for the purpose of procuring artificial limbs, and eventually their discharges. It might interest your readers to hear of a right armed "police party," a left-hand "coal squad," and a detachment of no-legged clerks; but such is not my present purpose.

I wish, through your columns, to call the attention of company commanders to the great injustice which is often done to worthy soldiers by failing to give complete military histories in their descriptive lists. The palpable violation of orders in not furnishing the amount of bounty received and due is almost too common to hope for reformation, but far more annoyance is occasioned by the simple neglect of stating the circumstance under which a soldier was wounded. The fact that his discharge was given him in consequence of injuries received in the line of his duty must be mentioned in his final statements and discharge, or the contrary is presumed to be the case, and his pocket suffers accordingly. No medical officer wants to give the same certificate of disability to a maimed sergeant that is furnished to a bounty jumper wounded by a Provost-Guard. It is of little use to return such descriptive lists for completion, as weeks or months generally elapse before they come back again. It has never been explained why it takes an official communication ten times as long to reach the Army of the Potomac as a private letter occupies.

Ignorance of their proper duties was once considered the cause of such neglect, but it is hard to believe that in the fourth year of the war any company commander does not know how to make out a descriptive list; yet such must be the fact, for these papers are sent from some of the most distinguished regiments in the army, signed by a non-commissioned officer. Date of enlistment, last paid, bounty, clothing account, and the time and place of wounds received, comprise all that is needed, yet not one in ten is complete. These, with a personal description, are required by the regulations, and justice to the soldier demands them, yet every officer having charge of detached soldiers is constantly bothered by the omission of some important item. At this moment over two hundred men, who have lost a limb in the service of their country, are detained in this hospital, kept from home and maintained by the government at great expense, by the careless conduct of their officers who, having sworn to obey the regulations of the service, now neglect those to whose bravery and devotion they owe their present position and credit. If Nemesis is not dead, many captains ought to suffer sleepless nights, because, through their carelessness, faithful soldiers of their command have been deprived of their just dues.

In the name of all mustering officers, all paymasters and all surgeons, I beg for more attention to descriptive lists. B.

THREE CHILDREN.

We have to acknowledge the receipt of ten dollars, for the Sanitary Commission, from three little girls in New Castle, Del., who have sent the following note with their donation. If three little children in every town as large as New Castle, in the loyal States would do likewise, what a nice fund would be on hand to aid the soldiers during the coming campaign. We thank the little donors, and hope they will continue in well doing all their lives long.

NEW CASTLE, DEL., Feb. 22, 1865.

Please accept this as our aid to the Sanitary Commission, being the proceeds of a fair held by three children.

ELMER W. CLARK,
LIZZIE T. CLARK,
EMILY BATES.

(Ten dollars.)

JOHNSON'S FAMILY ATLAS.

The war has suggested to hosts of intelligent Americans, one thing, viz.: that they were inconveniently ignorant of the minute geography of their native land. If the splendid copy of Johnson's Family Atlas which is open before us were open before them, it would suggest another thing, viz.: that by its use they could very conveniently dispel their ignorance.

It contains over a hundred large, clear maps, illustrating the mathematical, descriptive and physical geography of the world; statistics of the religious denominations in the world; chart of national emblems; a diagram exhibiting the difference of time between Washington and the important cities of the world; a list of the cities, towns, villages and post offices, with their states and counties, in the United States and Territories; historical and statistical views of the United States, Mexico, Europe, &c., &c., &c.

Every page is terse, complete, exact, interesting; and as a book of reference it seems unimproveable, though, from the fact that the binders have left "guards" or "strips" for the insertion of new maps, which the publishers agree to furnish by mail at fifteen cents each, it would seem that wise precautions are made for improvement, and for keeping it up to the times as a standard work.

It is gotten up J. H. Colton and A. J. Johnson, concerning whom nothing in commendation need be said; and is furnished exclusively by subscription. The general agent is Mr. F. G. Rowe, post office box 2060, Philadelphia.

DISABLED AND DISCHARGED.

At a meeting of the Standing Committee of the United States Sanitary Commission, held February 24, 1865:

Resolved, That the United States Sanitary Commission, deeply convinced of the importance of providing, from time to time, as its funds will allow, shelter and protection for disabled and discharged soldiers, will from this date consider itself authorized to devote any portion of its funds to this purpose; and that due notification be made of this resolution in the Bulletin, Reporter, and its usual advertising mediums.

J. FOSTER JENKINS,
General Secretary:

No. 823 Broadway, New York.

"SOLDIERS FRIEND."

The following letter from Rev. J. Shrigley, Chaplain of the McClellan U. S. A. General Hospital, Philadelphia, is one of many which we have seen testifying to the grateful reception met with by the "Soldier's Friend," wherever it has reached those whose "Friend" it is. This is right, and in our opinion, aid societies cannot do better for themselves or for soldiers, than by aiding its distribution as far as they are able among the returned prisoners or furloughed soldiers, to whom the information it contains is especially valuable.

It can be obtained by any Aid Society in small quantities, upon application at this office.

McCLELLAN U. S. A. GENERAL HOSPITAL, }
Philadelphia, March 10, 1865.

DEAR COLONEL:—I am so highly pleased with the "SOLDIER'S FRIEND," published by the U. S. Sanitary Commission, I should be glad to place a copy in the hands of every patient in this hospital.

It is multum in parvo. While it gives every soldier valuable information, it likewise tends to the cultivation of his religious faculties, leading him to put his trust in that Divine Being whose mercies never fail.

The collection of hymns is decidedly the best yet published for the army and navy. May I solicit a further donation for the use of the sick and wounded who may be sent to this hospital? I am, dear sir,

Your very obedient servant,

JAMES SHRIGLEY,
Chaplain U. S. A.

COL. SOEST,
Special Relief Agent U. S. San. Com., Philadelphia.

STORES FOR SHERMAN'S ARMY.

The Sanitary Commission has just sent by the steamer Uncas, to Gen. Sherman's army in North Carolina, as it communicated with the coast, an assorted cargo of hospital and field relief supplies. It has now another steamer loading with supplies to replenish its stock at Newbern and Wilmington, and at which last place an exchange of prisoners is now going on, and has ordered a third load for the special emergency of its service in North Carolina.—Associated Press.

HOMES.

CAIRO.

At the "Home" in Cairo, during the quarter ending with December 31st, there were furnished 15,529 lodgings and 53,800 meals.

MEMPHIS.

At the "Lodge" in Memphis, during the same time there were furnished 3,593 lodgings and 12,723 meals.

PADUCAH.

There was a good deal of confusion at this point, when the "Home" was first established, owing to the demonstrations of the rebels. During the latter part of November and the month of December, there were furnished about 6,000 meals.

NASHVILLE.

At the "Home" in Nashville, there were furnished during the quarter ending with the year, 37,707 lodgings and 123,444 meals.

JEFFERSONVILLE.

The "Home" here was opened about the 1st of November. During November and December there were furnished 2,136 lodgings and 4,613 meals.

NEW ALBANY.

During the quarter ending with the year there were furnished at the "Home" 1,913 lodgings and 9,397 meals.

CAMP NELSON.

At the "Home" at Camp Nelson, there were furnished during the quarter ending with the year, 35,773 lodgings and 92,573 meals.

LOUISVILLE.

At the "Home" and "Rest" in this city, during the same time, there were furnished 59,872 meals.—Sanitary Reporter.

SUPPLIES are still needed. The spring and summer campaign will make large demands upon the people for help.

ment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Nos. 10 & 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La. Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

EAST.

"Special Relief" Office, 76 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

WEST.

Soldiers' Home, No. 81 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

Soldiers' Home, Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Louisville, Ky., James Malona, Sup't. James Morton, Special Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, New Albany, corner of Main and State Streets.

Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., C. N. Shipman, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Nashville, Tenn., Captain I. Brayton, Sup't. Rev. J. Hoblit, Relief Agent

Soldiers' Home, Columbus, Ohio, Col. Isaac Dalton, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Cleveland, Ohio, Joseph Jerome, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Lodge, near landing, Memphis, Tenn. C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Camp Nelson, Ky., Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Paducah, Ky.

BRANCH,
No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,
No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported
IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.
By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept. 20, 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, SO FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK. PALMER, LL D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM. for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices Address

B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D.,

President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY,

OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y.
Hon. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn. E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.
WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York. J. T. SANGER, New York.
JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,

No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILLCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

OFFICE OF THE

M O R R I S

FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE

COMPANY,

COLUMBIAN BUILDING,

CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

---

Authorized Capital, . . . $5,000,000.

Cash Capital, paid in, . . . $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

DIRECTORS.

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
E. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

F. S. WINSTON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Assets over Eleven and a half Millions of Dollars.

Policies known as "Non-Forfeiting," on the terms they express, on the Ten-Year plan, issued by this Company, possess advantages in profits and rates of premiums, greater than are offered by any other Life Company.

THE

Widows' & Orphans' Benefit Life Ins. Co. of New York.

LUCIUS ROBINSON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

Many of the Trustees and other officers of this Company are connected with the well-known MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, and the intimate and amicable relations between the two Companies, guarantee favorable results to Policy-holders.

Universal Life Insurance Company of New York.

JOHN WADSWORTH, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

This Institution has been formed for the benefit of those who, because of imperfect health, are unable to obtain policies in other companies. It thus meets the case of thousands who have been turned away disappointed in their efforts to provide for their families, and of a still larger number who have felt it useless to apply for insurance.

Every information may be had, on application, by letter or otherwise, to

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

Insurance against Accident by the

TRAVELERS' INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

CAPITAL, - - - $500,000.

JAMES G. BATTERSON, PRESIDENT.

Insurance effected in this Company against ACCIDENTS of every description.

Yearly Policies will be issued for a Premium of

Fifteen Dollars,

granting Insurance to the amount of

Five Thousand Dollars

against loss of life by any accident whatever.

Twenty-Five Dollars

secures a Policy for

Five Thousand Dollars,

together with $25 per week compensation for personal injury, incapacitating the assured from his ordinary business.

Fifty Dollars Premium

secures a Full Policy for $10,000 and $40 per week compensation for all and every description of Accident.

Policies for $500, with $3 per week compensation, can be had for $3 Premium, or any other sum between $500 and $10,000 at proportionate rates.

WM. W. ALLEN, Agent,

404 WALNUT STREET.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 35.

PHILADELPHIA, APRIL 1, 1865.

No. 35.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

THE BATTLE ABOVE THE CLOUDS.

"The day had been one of dense mists and rains, and much of Gen. Hooker's battle was fought above the clouds, which concealed him from our view, but from which his musketry was heard."—Gen. Meigs to Secretary Stanton, Nov. 26.

By the banks of Chattanooga watching with a soldier's heed,
In the chilly autumn morning gallant Grant was on his steed ;
For the foe had climbed above him with the banners of their band,
And the cannon swept the river from the hills of Cumberland.

Like a trumpet rang his orders—"Howard, Thomas, to the bridge!
One brigade aboard the "Dunbar!" Storm the heights of Mission Ridge,
On the left the ledges, Sherman, charge and hurl the rebels down!
Hooker, take the steeps of Lookout and the slopes before the town!"

Fearless, from the northern summits, looked the traitors, where they lay,
On the gleaming Union army, marshalled as for muster-day ;
Till the sudden shout of battle thundered upward its alarms,
And they dropped their idle glasses in a hurried rush to arms.

Then together up the highlands, surely, swiftly swept the lines,
And the clang of war above them swelled with loud and louder signs,
Till the loyal peaks of Lookout in the tempest seemed to throb,
And the star-flag of our country waved in smoke on Orchard Knob.

Day, and night, and day returning, ceaseless shock and ceaseless change,
Still the furious mountain conflict burst and burned along the Range,
While with battle's cloud of sulphur mingled densely mist and rain,
Till the ascending squadrons vanished from the gazers on the plain.

From the boats upon the river, from the tents upon the shore,
From the roofs of yonder city anxious eyes the clouds explore ;
But no rift amid the darkness shows them father, brother, sons,
While they trace the viewless struggle by the echo of the guns.

Upward! Charge for God and country! Up! Aha, they rush, they rise,
Till the faithful meet the faithless in the never-clouded skies,
And the battle-field is bloody where a dewdrop never falls,
For a voice of tearless justice to a tearless vengeance calls.

And the heaven is wild with shouting ; fiery shot and bayonet keen
Gleam and glance where freedom's angels battle in the blue serene.
Charge and volley fiercely follow, and the tumult in the air
Tells of right in mortal grapple with rebellion's strong despair.

They have conquered! God's own legions! Well their foes might be dismayed,
Standing in his mountain temple 'gainst the terrors of his aid ;

And the clouds might fitly echo pæan loud and parting gun,
When from upper light and glory sank the traitor-host, undone.

They have conquered! Through the region where our brothers plucked the palm Rings the noise in which they won it with the sweetness of a psalm;
And our wounded, sick, and dying, hear it in their crowded wards,
Till they know our cause is Heaven's, and our battle is the Lord's.

And our famished captive heroes, locked in Richmond's prison hells,
List those guns of cloudland booming glad as freedom's morning-bells,
Lift their haggard eyes, and panting, with their cheeks against the bars,
Feel God's breath of hope, and see it playing with the stripes and stars.

Tories, safe in serpent-treason, startle as those airy cheers
And that wild, ethereal war-drum fall like doom upon their ears;
And that rush of cloud-born armies, rolling back the nation's shame,
Frights them with its sound of judgment, and its flash of angry flame.

Widows weeping by their firesides, loyal hearts desponding grown,
Smile to hear their country's triumph from the gate of heaven blown,
And the patriot-poor shall wonder, in their simple hearts, to know
In the land above the thunder their ombattled champions go.

T. B.

—Watchman and Reflector.

A WORD TO THE AID SOCIETIES CONTRIBUTING TO PHILADELPHIA AGENCY.

WOMEN'S PENNSYLVANIA BRANCH,
UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION,
—PHILADELPHIA, March 10. }

We come to you with full hearts; hearts full of love and gratitude for the generous response which you have made to our demands, and for the manner in which you have enabled us to carry on the work of the Commission. If it be indeed, as we are told daily, almost hourly, a great work, grand and glorious in its relief of suffering, in its succor to the needy, then to you in a large measure be the honor, to you be the praise! for on you must we of necessity be dependent for support and supplies.

"Oh! sweetest task—like Christopher,
Without a thought of pride;
To bear the Christ of charity,
Thro' battle's reddest tide."

But your very liberality leads us on; we come to you with increased demands; we ask for added interest, added labor, added service; we entreat you never for one moment to slacken or pause, as long as this desolating war shall continue. Go on eagerly and earnestly, finding nothing too small to offer in the service of your country. You can never know the value of what to you may seem all unworthy of your giving. One pair of carpet slippers may carry comfort to a soldier's heart, even more than to his feet; and, by the bright multiple of love, be doubled, trebled, quadrupled in its cheering influence, proving practically as it does, that those at home are thinking and caring for our poor fellows in the field.

I should scarcely have deemed this appeal necessary were it not that wafted on the air has come the faint echo of a feeling,—faintly heard, because, I trust, faintly held and faintly uttered,—that it was all well enough at the beginning of the war: you were ready and willing to work for a moderate term, but that the fourth year over-taxes you; it is more than you can give. It may be there is truth in part of what you say, but only in part. It does need much to carry on and continue such a work. It needs care. It needs thought. It needs labor. It needs interest. It needs self-denial. It needs heart. But it does not need more than you can give; it does not need more than you will give gladly and gratefully to our brave "boys in blue," who, surely, if any, are the ones to find the war too long.

Where had we been at this moment, had there risen from their midst one murmur of discontent, one sign of disaffection? No! They go on, proudly and perseveringly to battle to the end; and while they thus go forth cheerfully and uncomplainingly in our stead to hardship, danger and to death; while they give time and toil and blood, shall we, dare we, withhold our efforts for their good? Shall we grudge aught of service that can serve to lighten the weary hours, to relieve the toil or staunch the blood which daily bathes the earth for us with its red current? Oh! what is all we do or can ever do for them when we think upon all this? Nothing, and less than nothing.

"When is your time out?" said I the other day to a bright young lieutenant, risen from the ranks, at home on a fifteen day's leave. "My time out?" said he promptly, "when the war is out, and not before."

So let us say, "When the war is out, and not before," we may pause. And yet we may not even then; for should our country ask our aid for the suffering army which must remain, still are we ready, and warmly do we pledge ourselves to give her all she asks, and right well we know you will redeem our pledge.

It is our last campaign. And as the happy hour draws near when our blessed banner shall float from every fortress-top in the glad sunshine of a nation's peace, so like the horse whose speed redoubles as the long-wished for goal appears in sight, let us redouble every effort, put forth every power, strain every nerve, that we may not fail or falter till the final moment come.

One word more! Come with me for a moment and look upon two pictures ere we part. I will not detain you long. To many of you this is a new scene. Most mercifully have you been shielded, in your distant homes, from those sad scenes which this same sad four years has made us so fearfully familiar with. I ask you to enter with me this hospital ward. Do not shrink, do not draw back; yes, there is sore suffering here; you may not care to witness it, but let me assure you that one glance for yourself will nerve your arm and fire your heart more than whole pages of description. Walk in; we who are at home here do not hesitate, as we did at first; we know a welcoming smile awaits us from each one of this long row of beds, which seems to strike you so much on entering. Pass up between them with me, and come first to this young white-faced boy, whose life-blood has been ebbing out, and scarcely yet is stayed; and who is fixing those eager, wistful eyes so wonderingly upon the party with me. "Never mind, George, I only want my friends to see what I saw yesterday, and to hear what you told me then; but you are far too weak to talk, let me tell them."

He was brought into the hospital yesterday on a stretcher, wrapped in that counterpane, that you see over him now, of bright patch-work; he seemed more dead than alive, but after stimulants and a few hours rest, he rallied, and by way of beginning an acquaintance, I commented upon the coverlet upon which I read "Aid Society, — County, Penna., U. S. Sanitary Commission." Large drops of blood concealed the town and county, but I at once recognized the work of some of our kind helpers.

He brightened instantly. "That counterpane," he said, "did me more good than all the surgeons gave me. The Sanitary Commission's Agent brought it and wrapped me in it, when they carried me off the field to the hospital, and as soon as I caught sight of that piece there, patch do you call it? I knew it was Mother's dress, and I felt sure she had made it, and somehow ever since I just catch hold of that place, and I can see her close to me, and I can go to sleep. They wanted here to change it for one of the hospital spreads, but I begged so hard to keep it, the Wardmaster asked the surgeon, and he gave me leave." I thought even were his idea a delusion, it was such a happy one that I should be the last one to disturb it. No! he does not hear us, he has sunk into that lethargy produced by excessive loss of blood. Look! his hand even now, is grasping the very piece of calico he showed me yesterday, and I think that clasp will only be unlocked in death. Did the kind heart who devised that quilt ever dream of the moral ease and comfort it was one day to bring?

Look at the next bed; see that poor arm resting on that soft pillow, and read the mark on its corner, "U. S. Sanitary Commission." Cross the ward, and look at that jar of pickles. "Ah, Henry! I see you've got your pickles."

That was one of yesterday's sick fancies, and the surgeon gave a ready consent but did not supply the article.

"Yes, thank you, ma'am, they told me you got an order for them from the Sanitary Commission, and they're the first thing that's helped me to taste my dinner for a week."

We must not pause at each bed, or the story would be the same; but just stop for a moment and speak to this man rolling himself up and down the ward in that chair with wheels.

"Why John! I have never seen you out of bed before; how are you to-day?"

"Better, much better, thank you, ma'am, and bless the Sanitary Commission for that. They sent me this bully chair, and now I can travel round first-rate."

More hearts than one, I fancy, since this war began, have said, "God bless the Sanitary Commission," and will say it again and yet again, I trust, ere it is done. But we must linger no longer here. One other picture, although, perchance, less cheering to our hearts. Unlatch that door and enter another ward. Was that a groan? Scarcely. A groan or any audible sign of suffering, save the sad moans in sleep, is such a rare sound that I can hardly understand it. The beautiful patience and calm, heroic endurance of the poor sufferers, under great physical agony, has almost passed into a proverb. Let us walk up to that bed; it seems to come from there, and see what it means.

"What is it, Richard? Are you suffering terribly to-day? Oh, I see; you need a pad to support your poor aching limb. Why don't you send the orderly for one?"

"That's just it, ma'am. I asked for one. We used to have them when I was wounded here before, but he says government never gave them things."

"No, of course not, but the Sanitary Commission does."

"It used to, ma'am, but that was at the beginning of the war; and they say it kept on so long, the Aid Societies, I think he called them, had all stopped; and so we can't have any more, but I think if we wanted them once, we want them just as bad now. Oh dear, oh dear."

"Alas! alas! I feared this would be so when I heard that they had disbanded."

Just look at that man over there, holding his wounded arm. Surely he should have a sling.

"Why, Hamilton, that arm ought to be in a sling; why don't you keep it in one?"

"The surgeon did make this bandage into one for me this morning, but it don't seem to hold it up; and makes it ache worse, so I took it out."

"Of course that must make it ache more. You need one of those nice arm slings, which would support it all the way up, and let it lie, resting as if it were in a bed."

"Ah, yes ma'am. One of the boys was telling me they used to have them in the beginning of the war, but government don't give them, and you know the Sanitary Commission don't send any more; the war kept on so long they stopped. I wish I had stopped too."

"They little know, Hamilton, how much suffering they would cause by stopping, and what constant comfort they gave, or they would never had stopped, I am sure."

Is this not sad? But before leaving the ward let us walk down to see my friend Field, who was so badly wounded in the chest; he lies at the far end of the ward, just where you see that screen."

"Well, Field, how is your wound this morning?"

"It broke out in the night, Miss, so you'll have to excuse this bloody shirt."

"But why not have it changed?"

"So I will, ma'am, when mine comes from the wash. I don't want to draw any more. I've had to draw so many any how, on account of the wound, and you know it comes out of my pay, and I want all that for my poor wife and little ones at home."

"But why not get one from the 'Ladies' Room.' That is precisely what those are kept for to supply just such a case of need?"

"So they say it used to be, Miss, but not now. Those came from the Sanitary Commission, long ago; and they tell us the societies which used to supply them have all stopped, because the war lasted so long, and we can't have any more."

"So you must lie there with that shirt stiffened with clotted blood, till yours comes from wash, in order to save your pay for your family, because the Aid Societies no longer contribute to your comfort."

I do not like this picture, it is too painful; let us go, my friends, I am quite sure it is equally distressing to each one of you.

My first picture was a reality, occurring in our midst every day of our lives. Shall the second ever become so?

On you, and on your efforts, the answer must depend. D.

March, 1865.

FROM ANNAPOLIS.

BY C. F. HOWES.

ANNAPOLIS, February 20, 1865.

I have just returned from College Green Barracks, where I have assisted in distributing about six hundred towels, combs, needles and thread to newly arrived prisoners. More than fifteen hundred of each of these articles were distributed one day last week. It will be a heavy tax upon the Commission to supply each returned prisoner with all these necessaries. Yet nothing could be given these men which is more needed, and so much appreciated, as these very articles. I hope the Commission will continue its bountiful supply.

The exchange is now progressing rapidly. No less than five thousand men will probably arrive this week. I hope to be able to meet each and every demand.

BY MISSES CARY AND PHILLIPS.

March, 1865.

As our hospital wards are all becoming crowded by large daily accessions from the ranks of the newly arrived prisoners, we find full occupation in endeavoring to become familiar with the circumstances and wants of the sufferers. A large proportion of those brought here, have become ill since leaving prison. The change of air proving too much for their weak frames. We find that in many cases they had neglected to apprise their friends at home of their arrival, having expected to go home in a short time, and the most grateful service we can render, is to write and apprise them of their safety, and urge them to write that they may hear from them once more. Very frequently those who hear from home, for the first time in many months, learn that some of the dear ones they left there, and were fondly hoping to meet so soon, have been removed and numbered with the silent dead. Others who come full of hope and courage, in the prospect of speedily joining those most dear to them, are suddenly cut down in the midst of their fond anticipations and sleep with the dead.

Such an one, intelligent and fine looking, whose character could be read, even in the wan countenance already tinged with the hue of death, was at first able to express his joy and fervent gratitude to God for his deliverance, but soon became unconscious. In a brief lucid interval, just preceding dissolution, he recognized a young comrade who had been with him in prison. "Where am I?" asked the dying man. "In a Union hospital," was the reply. He seemed incredulous for a moment, but his friend calling his attention to the soft bed and warm blankets, he added, "and nice white sheets too." "Oh, I'm all right now. Thank God, thank God, I shall be at home soon. I bless God for bringing me here, where some one will write to my dear wife, and she will come to me." It was evident that he had but a short time to live, and he was asked, "But God, who was with you in prison and has been so good to you, is he not with you now, and do you not love him and trust in him?" To this and other questions of similar import he replied in the affirmative with deep emotion. Becoming exhausted he asked for a cup of tea. It was soon brought, but not until the weary spirit had fled to that heavenly home where sickness and want are unknown, and where he will not miss the loved ones for whom he had pined, for He whose love is stronger than death and greater than that of all other friends combined, will be with him there.

A German soldier, from one of the Middle States, had been captured at Winchester in November. After long waiting for letters from home, they had come just on the eve of battle, bringing the sad news of the death, first, of a loved child, and then of the wife and mother, leaving three helpless little ones unprovided for. The neighbor who wrote to apprise the husband and father of his loss, asks what shall be done for them, but before he has time to reply, orders came for the march. During the action he is taken captive, and all these weary months he has been held in suspense, not having even yet learned the fate of his motherless babes. Such are some of the scenes which come to our knowledge daily, illustrating but faintly, the horrors of war.

CAMP PAROLE HOSPITAL, March, 1865.

The week just closing has been marked with an unusual degree of mortality at the hospital. Each day has witnessed the departure of one or more, and on one day as many as six weary souls fled to the spirit land. Some pass away suddenly, in a few hours after being brought in; others linger and wearisome days and nights are appointed them; others still, apparently in no better condition, rally, as if by miracle, and are rapidly recovering.

A large number of the convalescents have been sent away during the week, to make room for the newly arrived prisoners, who continue to be brought in by scores. It is affecting to see the disappointment manifested by many of the poor fellows. "Oh, I have kept up as long as I could, hoping to get home," is a common remark. Many of these suffering ones cannot speak of their prison experience without weeping. It is not possible, they assure us, for any one who has not felt it, to imagine what it is. "Our trials," says one, "were enough to bring us to reflection. We have learned lessons we can never forget."

Said a bright looking young man, "I had been a wild boy, but in that horrid place I was led to think of God and a future life, and there I first learned to love and trust in him." One of the first who arrived, and who has been at the point of death, but is recovering, now says, "If God lets me live, I will be henceforth a true Christian soldier." In conversation with an intelligent man, he remarked, "Often have I lain beside a comrade, conversing of home and absent friends, when his voice would suddenly cease, and on reaching forward to learn the cause, I would find the face cold in death."

But one of the saddest scenes of the week to us, has been the death of one of the ward masters, whose kind, cheerful face and pleasant smile we have been wont to meet daily for many months. He was ever faithful, patient, and efficient, and as is believed, a sincere Christian. He fell a victim to the prevailing fever. After a few days diphtheria set in, and he was suddenly taken from us, to be forever with the Lord.

BY E. C. GUILD.

February, 1865.

I have the honor herewith to submit my report for the week ending this day.

On Sunday, I had the pleasure, at the invitation of Chaplain Henries, of preaching at the chapel of the Naval School Hospital, and also in conjunction with Rev. J. M. Clark, at College Green Barracks. This latter occasion was one of great interest, as the men were just escaped from such a dire torment in their captivity; just set free by such a joyful deliverance, and just about to go to their homes filled with such conflicting feelings of hope and fear in the thought of what might have occurred in their protracted absence. The occasion spoke for itself, and it was easy to find words for the thoughts that crowded up at the very suggestions of the circumstances themselves. On Friday, we had the pleasure to welcome some 1,500 more paroled men from Richmond, and on Saturday we issued a towel, comb, needle and thread to every man. Paper and envelopes were also issued to them at various times until all were supplied. We have also been kept busy at the office by the demands of the men going to and fro by the City Point boat. It is a pleasure to us to afford every facility in our power to these men, returning from the hardships of camp life, or going forward to encounter the perils of battle. Surely if any are entitled to have assistance and supplies which we have to give, it is those men who are away from their regiments and traveling by an unaccustomed route. The inefficient means of transportation of the single railroad running from this place often delays them for twenty-four hours and causes them much inconvenience. This we have tried to alleviate by every means in our power.

The constant arrival of prisoners at this time keeps us very busy, and I must ask your indulgence in presenting so brief a report, and plead the pressure of immediate duties as my excuse.

ANNAPOLIS, March, 1865.

This week has been an unusually quiet one. While we were notified to be prepared for an unprecedentedly large number of paroled prisoners expected during the week, only a few have arrived, most of them escaped men who have come into our lines. Doubtless the delay in the exchange is but transient, and we feel that any day or any hour may be the commencement of a steady influx of paroled men at this post. Meantime, considerable effort is being made in the hospitals to be prepared for their reception; extra beds are arranged in the wards, the tents which have been removed during the extreme cold of the winter are replaced, and additional tents set up. Additions have also been made to the medical staff of the hospital.

In the leisure afforded by the non-arrival of the expected boats, my attention has been called to several cases of more permanent interest. Visiting from time to time the "Home" of the Sanitary Commission in Annapolis, in addition to the faces which come and go, remaining hardly long enough to form an acquaintance, one sees a few sad looking ladies, day after day, week after week, month after month, coming in to refresh their bodies exhausted with watching and have their spirits cheered by kindly sympathy. Here is one who has, with all a mother's patience and tenderness watched over her boy for months; he lies on his back, shot through the body, almost helpless, continually under the irritating influence of excessive pain and needing constant care; but he never looks for help without finding that loving mother at his side ready to do all that can be done for him, and to speak to him words of Christian hope and comfort. Here is another who watches by the bedside of her husband; torn by a racking cough, reduced by his long imprisonment to a mere skeleton, he sits night and day upon his bed unable to lie down, and by his side the faithful wife stands always ready to minister to his every want. And yonder is another wife whose husband lies by himself in a tent, where she keeps continual watch over him. Released from imprisonment, he received a furlough and revisited the well-known and dearly-loved scenes of his home, apparently in good health. Returning to report himself at the hospital he was struck down with fever, and when the fever left him gangrene set in, and now he lies very low, hardly expected to live from hour to hour, and night and day his devoted wife is at his side to soothe and uphold him in his terrible suffering, and to do for him all that watchful love can suggest. Besides those who are keeping their long and faithful watch by the side of the sick bed, every day brings some wife or mother, summoned by telegraph, not knowing what to expect, and finding sometimes that death has come before, or more rarely that health has already returned, and going away sorrowing or rejoicing, according to the tidings they have received of their loved ones. Surely the Sanitary Commission can do no better work than to afford every aid and comfort in its power to those who are passing so bravely and faithfully through such trying experiences.

This period of accidental leisure was also taken advantage of for an occasion of a social character at College Green Barracks, worthy I think of record. The detachment of men detailed for duty under Captain Davis—men having charge of the buildings and employed in the Captain's office, and in all the varied work of the post—feeling desirous of showing him their respect and gratitude, complimented him on the evening of the 4th of March with a serenade and supper. I had the honor to be present with two other gentlemen of our office and Rev. Mr. Clark of the Christian Commission, and it was a pleasure to see the feeling of mutual confidence and respect which was apparent between the Captain and his men. Such harmony and good will speaks volumes of praise for both parties, and promises the best of care for the paroled prisoners whose interests they have in charge.

BY GEO. A. MILLER.

CAMP PAROLE, March, 1865.

The camp is now quite full of paroled men, and they are coming in very rapidly. The condition of the men is as good as could be expected, considering the treatment they have had while in prison.

Having been so long deprived of wholesome food, or even unwholesome food in quantity sufficient to satisfy the demands of nature, they have now an ungovernable appetite. Government furnishes as much good food as they ought to eat, but they are not satisfied, and having obtained a little money as commutation of rations that they did not get while on their visit South, they go to the sutlers and expend their money for pies, cakes, &c. The sutler, being a very philanthropic man, and knowing that these poor fellows will expend all their money for food, and that the less they eat the better for them, very kindly relieves them of their cash for a small quantity of eatables. Nevertheless, it is not uncommon for men to eat enough to kill them. Doubtless many valuable lives are sacrificed in keeping a sutler in camp. It is sometimes convenient to procure things of a sutler, but his presence is by no means "Sine qua non;" but on the contrary a superfluous appendage, and that, too, at great expense to government, if she values the lives of men.

A number of officers, lately from the South, have been stopping in camp, waiting for papers from Washington to allow them to visit their homes. They can now appreciate freedom. We, who have never been deprived of it, know little of its worth.

My work has been about the same in kind and amount as formerly, viz.: writing letters and presenting claims for soldiers, and occasionally ministering to the comfort of an unfortunate man, by giving him a few articles of clothing.

Many of the soldiers are troubled with diarrhoea, and I find the "Essence of Jamaica Ginger" an excellent remedy and highly appreciated by the recipients.

IN PRISON.

Extract from a Report by S. G. DOOLITTLE, Supt. Alexandria Lodge.

ALEXANDRIA, VA., February 19, 1865.

I visited one of the military prisons, and by the request of the surgeon furnished 17 quilts and 10 pillows; they were for the hospital ward and badly needed.

March 4, 1865.

During the week I have visited the following prisons: The Slave Pen, Odd Fellows Hall, Washington Street Prison and the Jail, and distributed a large amount of reading matter. I found them very destitute in this particular, and a lot of men more eager for something to occupy their minds I never saw.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM W. H. HENDERSON.

TURIN, LEWIS COUNTY, N. Y., }
March 10, 1865. }

At the close of my address at Harrisburg I was much gratified by a short speech made by one of the audience. The gentleman stated that last fall he had gone down to Harper's Ferry to obtain the remains of his brother; that notwithstanding he carried with him ample recommendations and references, he had been unable to pass within the lines until aided by the Sanitary Commission. The Commission obtained a passport for him promptly. Having got within the lines, however, he found himself equally at a loss for want of full information regarding the circumstances of his brother's death, and the required formalities for obtaining the body. Here again the Sanitary had met him with full particulars, obtained from their Directory, and with all facilities for filling up the government forms. He assured the rest of the audience that he could not possibly have accomplished his errand without the aid of the Sanitary Commission.

FROM CITY POINT.

FROM T. L. SEIP.

CITY POINT, VA., March 13, 1865.

As we have nearly finished our work at this point I will drop you a few lines, that they may reach you before our return. Mr. Schindel and myself have visited the different Sanitary Stations in this army, and although they are not as busy as usual, in consequence of the fact that the men have just been paid off, still we could not fail to see the necessity of the United States Sanitary Commission, and the good it has already accomplished and is now doing. Many lives have doubtless been saved by its operations, and untold misery alleviated. Besides the great things that it does for the men, it is in furnishing little articles and in relieving the little, but not trifling wants of the men, that it does a most salutary work. Life, or rather a great part of it, is made up of little things, and so is and should be the work of the Sanitary Commission. But you must not infer from this that I think the Sanitary Commission does no great things. I had too manifest a proof of this, i.e. that it does, the other day, to think otherwise. A boat load of exchanged prisoners, who had just come from Richmond, and were yet in all their filth and destitution, stopped at this station. The men, one hundred and sixty in number, were all provided with necessary food and stimulants, were cleansed and newly clothed and made as comfortable as circumstances on the boat would allow, when they proceeded on their way to Annapolis. These poor fellows were in a very pitiable condition. They were mere living skeletons, and were too weak to stand. Two of them died between Richmond and this place, and no doubt others died before they reached their destination.

I used to think the accounts of the sufferings of our soldiers in southern prisons were exaggerated, but since I have heard their tale from their own lips, I believe that the whole truth is not and will never be known; because tongue cannot express nor pen describe what our brave men have endured in the miserable pens of the South. I met several who stated that the United States Sanitary Commission had reached them even in their prisons South. Such cases, of course, are not numerous, because the goods sent by the Sanitary Commission reached their destination in comparatively few instances.

Thus far I have been very much gratified with my visit, and I am now more than ever convinced of the necessity of our people at home supporting, and liberally too, the U. S. Sanitary Commission. I have found the agents generally the right men in the right places, a thing most difficult to find in any very extensive organization.

LETTER FROM J. C. BUSH.

FLAG OF TRUCE STEAMER GEO. WASHINGTON, }
AKIN'S LANDING, VA., Feb. 25, 1865. }

Unexpectedly meeting at this place, that indefatigable gentleman, Lieut. Col. Mulford, whose name is now a household word in so many domestic circles through the entire country, as the instrument of causing so many anxious hearts to vibrate with increasing hope by the general exchange of prisoners of war—I learned from him that about 1,500 of our men were expected on the rebel flag of truce boat from Richmond to Cox's Landing, about four miles from here overland. It is worthy of remark to contrast the difference of appearance between the rebels just brought from Camp Chase and Chicago, and the Union prisoners from Danville and Salisbury.

When the rebels left the transports that brought them here from Baltimore, they were not only looking healthy and strong, but were well clad, every man wearing good clothing from head to foot, and not one in a hundred that could not travel off like horses, while most of our men were but moving skeletons, dragging their emaciated forms along, very few with other than an old rag of a shirt and pants to cover their nakedness, many entirely barefooted and without blankets. Among the five steamers laying here to transport these men to Annapolis, the George Washington was designated by Col. Mulford as the hospital boat to take the most feeble cases. Too weak to stand or walk they were brought over in ambulances and carried on board on stretchers. As soon as all were on board we started with such a load as rarely ever freighted a vessel before. The reality cannot be described. But there was no time to be lost. These men had been as highly excited as their feeble condition could endure with the idea of being free again. Having had no nourishment that day, the smell of food made them almost frantic. Soon a piece of dry toast and a cup of good coffee with milk and sugar was given to each man, which was devoured as only hungry animals can devour food. Then each had a clean shirt, drawers and stockings furnished him, was washed and changed and had his wounds and sores dressed. While this was being done, the ever vigilant steward gave each man a drink of good hot whiskey punch. Such as were able to read had papers or books given them. Very soon there came another round of good beef soup, thick with potatoes and onions. None can imagine the joy and gratitude expressed by these 152 men. On soft beds, fed and clothed, their conversation was strange and mixed. I took their names and address, wrote letters to their friends. The thoughts of home caused many to weep as they gave the name of wife, or mother, or friend to whom I addressed the letter. Soon another cup of coffee and toast bread. Some would sleep, others so full of joy that sleep had departed. Amid their experience in rebel prisons, as they related it, the following may be of interest.

They had their money, coats, shoes, canteens and haversacks taken from them when captured or when put in prison. Those who secreted their money were required to pay at the rate of two dollars for a common size biscuit, three dollars and fifty cents for a pound of poor flour, two dollars for a pound of rice, six and seven dollars a pint for molasses, very thin and black. Meat was so rarely given that they eat all the rats and mice they caught. Pork, when they could induce the guard to get it for them, was sixteen dollars per pound. The officers were opposed to anything being sold to our men, but the guard would smuggle in goods to them. The negroes appeared much pleased when they learned our men were to be exchanged. An intelligent sergeant said he saw the official report of the deaths at Danville from the middle of August to 19th of February, when they left for Richmond, which was 678 out of 2,151, almost one in three. The filth and vermin can only be imagined, when we think that during seven months no change of garments. All the water was brought in pails by details of men under guard from the Danville river. The sergeant of the guard would frequently neglect to have it done. The water left in the pails, not enough to wash and a scarcity to drink and cook what little food they had. They felt more indebted to the Sanitary than they could find words to express. The work was very fatiguing, yet one would not become weary, for the satisfaction derived in relieving their dreadful condition. We arrived at Annapolis, losing but one man on the way, when to all appearance one would think that a score of them was too far gone to survive the journey.

FORT SMITH AND LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS.

The following report and invoice, says Dr. Woodward, are of deep interest, from the fact that Fort Smith is 300 miles above Little Rock, on the Arkansas River, and the country along the route so infested by guerillas that it has hitherto been impossible to get sanitary stores through; only one small lot, by wagon, having ever previously reached that post, and none but a man of Mr. Carpenter's determined character would ever have succeeded.

His trip has been a great success, and his report will rejoice the hearts of those who have friends in that forlorn region. He goes now to New Orleans with the stores just sent by you on the steamer Missouri, and will either turn them over to Dr. Blake or follow up the army as circumstances may direct.

Invoice of goods taken by D. B. Carpenter, Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission, to Fort Smith, Arkansas, February 4, 1865.

|                             |     |                                |     |
|-----------------------------|-----|--------------------------------|-----|
| Drawers, pairs.....         | 100 | Crackers, lbs.....             | 500 |
| Towels.....                 | 76  | Potatoes and onions, bbls..... | 100 |
| Dressing gowns.....         | 24  | Corn starch, lbs.....          | 120 |
| Oil silk ring pads.....     | 4   | Tea, lbs.....                  | 15  |
| Slippers, pairs.....        | 28  | Condensed milk, cans.....      | 96  |
| Dried fruit, lbs.....       | 600 | Prunes, lbs.....               | 20  |
| Lime juice, btls.....       | 75  | Arrow root, lbs.....           | 13  |
| Jamaica ginger, btls.....   | 12  | Hospital shirts.....           | 265 |
| Catawba bitters, btls.....  | 48  | Handkerchiefs.....             | 60  |
| Assorted jellies, btls..... | 24  | Vests.....                     | 3   |
| Cranberries, jars.....      | 48  | Arm slings.....                | 24  |

|                               |     |                               |     |
|-------------------------------|-----|-------------------------------|-----|
| Rubber cloth, pieces.....     | 6   | Peaches, cans.....            | 48  |
| Crutches, pairs.....          | 20  | Kraut and pickles, galls..... | 96  |
| Whiskey, bbls.....            | 150 | Crushed sugar, lbs.....       | 100 |
| Raspberry vinegar, bbls.....  | 36  | Tin cups.....                 | 50  |
| Ginger wine, bbls.....        | 72  | Flaxseed, lbs.....            | 30  |
| Blackberry cordial, bbls..... | 24  | Spit cups.....                | 10  |
| Sugar and lemons, cans.....   | 72  | Wash basins.....              | 12  |

BY D. B. CARPENTER.

DUVALL' BLUFF, ARK., }
Feb. 15, 1865. }

I succeeded in getting the stores I wrote you I intended taking to Fort Smith on board the steamer Lotus, during the night of Saturday, and started on our "dubious tour" at daylight the next morning. Of the comforts and luxuries of the trip, it is sufficient to state that the cabin was small, crowded with refugee women and children, returning to Fort Smith after the scare produced by the evacuation. It was cold, with almost no fire, and I had the softest board I could find, with my blanket, to sleep on. It was the same returning, only "more so," as the boy said. I did hope, in going up, that the return trip would be less crowded and more bearable, but found myself grievously disappointed, as far as table luxuries and delicacies are concerned. They wanted to charge $1 per meal for the biscuits and fat pork, but concluded to take 75 cents this time. Of the compliments the guerrillas and bushwhackers saw fit to send us, you have probably some full accounts in the papers, and, as that is not germane to my purpose, I will not repeat it.

We touched at Lewisburg an hour or two. I left some stores there for the hospital, and paid it a short visit. It is under the charge of Dr. A. D. Thomas and Assistant Dr. Madison; is a good frame building, and appears neat and well kept. Did not have time to go to any of the regiments. Sanitary stores have been supplied to them occasionally from Little Rock. I made arrangements with Dr. Thomas to have the mortality report copied and forwarded to Louisville, which he did before my return from Fort Smith; also to forward all changes in the hospital regularly, for the use of the Directory. At Fort Smith I found matters in a very chaotic state, as they had not become re-arranged since the evacuation. Dr. Swasey, Acting Medical Director, had only arrived the day before, and some of the surgeons the same day. Most of the hospital furniture and medical supplies were on the same boat as myself, consequently it would not be just to form a judgment or express an opinion, from their condition at that time. Dr. S. is as fine and honorable appearing a man as I have met in the army. He was there before the evacuation, and would know best where stores were needed, so that I thought it best to turn the supplies over to him, to distribute according to his best judgment. They were stored, under his care, in the rooms of the medical purveyor. I did not visit the hospital only for two reasons; first, lack of time, which was very limited, and, secondly, I was so unwell and used up, that I could not take the necessary exertion, without manifest injustice to myself; but I learned from the surgeon that the general health of the troops was full as good as any where else in the department. I think scorbatis is more prevalent. The country is so devastated, that they get no vegetables at all, and the guerrillas are so thick, that no foraging is done, except in large parties. They have been on part rations a good share of the time,—sometimes one-half and sometimes one-fourth. I think chronic diarrhoea is not as prevalent as at points down the river. I suggested to Dr. Swasey to raise a hospital garden, as there is a fine piece of ground convenient. He said he would be very glad to do so, but could get no seeds. I proposed to furnish these to him; and, in my opinion, no greater boon can be granted to the poor fellows, sick, and away out of the world at Fort Smith, than to furnish them immediately with garden seeds and onion sets sufficient for 11 acres of ground. There is plenty more land there for a larger garden, and the men would be glad to work it, but fencing is among the things that "were, and are not." I took up an excellent supply of stores for present exigencies. Vegetables and pickles, together with all the dried fruit we can get, will be the principal requirements at that point, as well as the rest of that department. A considerable quantity of crackers and farinaceous articles will also be required for the hospitals. I made arrangements also and left blanks with Dr. Swasey to have the mortality record and names of the patients in the hospitals copied immediately, and all changes forwarded to Hospital Directory weekly.

I am now at Duvall's Bluff, awaiting further orders.

SOLDIERS' LODGE, PORTSMOUTH, VA.

Ever since the capture of Norfolk, Va., by our forces, Portsmouth has been the immediate base to the army of occupation stationed in that quarter; and, as such, a point where many soldiers on furlough, discharged, or convalescent, have gathered. Large general hospitals, in the immediate vicinity, have been kept filled by the sad sickness of past seasons, and, as a consequence, many relations of patients therein treated have found themselves in the cheerless streets of the twin-cities, friendless and homeless, if not moneyless. To the same point, also, white and black refugees from Virginia, North Carolina, and other southern states have fled. Hence it was deemed necessary by the United States Sanitary Commission that a Soldiers' Home should be established. Accordingly, in March, 1864, Mr. John Alcooke, as superintendent, opened the "United States Sanitary Commission's Soldiers' Lodge" in Portsmouth. Every facility that could be reasonably asked was promptly extended by the military authorities; and, since they have witnessed the admirable workings of the institution, their cordial approbation has only been excelled by the praise expressed by the recipients of its benefits. Soldiers; fathers, mothers, wives or sisters, who are nursing their dear ones in the hospitals; refugees, wet and worn by the trip through the Dismal Swamp; and, not last, fugitive slaves, have found care and comfort at the hands of the warm-hearted Friend in charge. The following extracts from reports and letters will give a partial idea of the variety of the relief given; while the annexed table shows that 3,110 soldiers have been entertained, and 5,553 lodgings, and 16,960 meals given during the past year

LETTER FROM JOHN ALCOOKE, SUPT.

PORTSMOUTH, VA., Feb., 1865.

FRIEND —:—I fear thee will think I have forgotten thy request. In the first place a Lodge was much needed here, in consequence of so many soldiers being stationed within a few miles of this place, and also in consequence of many hospitals being here. We opened the house on the 16th of March, 1864, after much labor, as it was in a most filthy condition.

Thou wilt find in the accompanying paper a list of meals for each month, also lodgings and men accommodated, also the number of soldiers from each State, also the relatives of soldiers who have been accommodated. Up to the end of February the number of meals given was 16,960, and lodgings 5,553; the number of men 3,110, besides over 6,000 men who have been relieved in various ways with clothing, shoes, slippers, combs, towels, tobacco, pens, paper, and envelopes, and many other articles.

DYING BOY.

On the 18th of March, after we opened the lodge, I was notified of a sick soldier boy lying in the street in a helpless condition. I went and found him as reported, in a dying state. He not being able to walk, I took him up in my arms and carried him home. He had been at Fort Schuyler, and just come off a transport. It was a relapse from measles. Not being able to take care of himself during the voyage, he was in a very dirty, destitute condition. After having made him comfortable, we sent for one of the surgeons from the hospital, who found him in a very low state, and requested that, after reporting to the Medical Director, he be sent to the hospital. The next morning he was too far gone to be removed. He lived only ten days. He was desirous at all times to hear prayer and instruction. A few hours before his death I asked him how he felt,—if his Redeemer was near him. He looked up to me with such a beaming face and replied, "Oh, friend A——, I am not afraid to trust my soul in his hands." He sent loving messages to his home, and in a short time died in my arms, blessing me for what had been done for him.

MOTHER AND CHILD.

We have had numbers of soldiers here from their regiments, for a few days good nursing and care; and in all cases have received letters from them after their return. The latter end of May a soldier's wife was brought here with a child twelve months old, both in the last stage of consumption. She was with us seven weeks. She died on the 5th of July, and the child on the 15th. They are buried together in the city graveyard in this place. During the time they were with us we did all we could for their comfort and happiness. I engaged a colored woman to attend to them, and I myself was their nurse. The poor young woman died

DISMAL SWAMP AND DISMAL PROSPECTS.

We have had many refugees here, and to tell all their sufferings would fill a volume. One instance I must relate. On the 27th December, 1864, a party of refugees came here who had gone through everything. They had to wade three feet deep in water through or up a creek, four miles. One man, educated and intelligent, who had been previously sick, took a violent cold on his lungs. I found the next morning he was not able to accompany the rest. I asked him his destination, &c., his answer was if he could find a place to stay till he was better he should be most thankful. I told him he should stay here; I consulted with General Vogdie, who gave a hearty assent. I called in a doctor who said he could not live ten days; but I am thankful to say that he is now well. We have done all in our power to restore him, and God has blessed our efforts; and through the influence of a friend of ours he has procured a situation in a dry goods store in Norfolk, and is gone this morning.

ONE OF MANY.

About ten days ago a poor woman, who had never been ten miles away from her home before, was brought to us by a lady residing in this place; stating she had found her weeping bitterly on the landing. Her husband was sick in a hospital here, she said, but did not know where. The lady at once brought her here. After she had taken some refreshments, I went in quest of her husband. His name, Iram Pety, N. Y. V., belonging to 13th N. Y. Heavy Artillery. I at once went to the hospital of that regiment, taking her with me; but the poor man had died the night before. Words cannot tell her grief when I told her he was dead. We did all we could for her. His comrades had his body embalmed, and she stayed here until all was ready. She then took him home. I was so much grieved when she opened her trunk to show what in her poor way she had brought for his comfort. All sorts of nice eatables which her means would allow, and which he liked when at home.

FATHER AND SON.

Major B. was here two weeks ago and visited the camp of the 3d N. Y. Cavalry at Suffolk, where his son, a lad of 19 years, is a private. He brought the boy down here, as he was not well, to stay a few days and have a rest. When he went away he recommended the boy to my care and sympathy if he needed it. Well, on last sixth day the company he belongs to went on a raid to Blackwater—the boy was shot through the head. I have had him embalmed, and also have provided a good coffin, nice flannel grave clothes, and placed him in his coffin. I have just been to the side of his coffin to put some early spring flowers around him, and he looks as if he was sweetly sleeping. I have combed the hair over his wound, and done all I can to spare his poor father's feelings. I am looking for him this morning, and dread the meeting. I trust our Heavenly Father will comfort him, he loved the lad much. I can only feel as I stand by his coffin and look on his placid face, that he is, I trust, sweetly sleeping in Jesus. They brought him to me from Suffolk in a box, just as he had died, but there is now nothing to shock any one's feelings. I have had crowds to see him since he was in his coffin. It made me feel bad to see the soldiers of his company come in so orderly, and pass around the coffin to take a last look at their comrade, whilst the great tears rolled down their sunburnt cheeks—may God teach them how uncertain is life. Time and space will not allow me to say more.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

From Dr. W. Madill, Surgeon 20th N. Y. Cavalry, formerly Medical Director.

"You have ever been kind to the soldiers of my regiment, for which please accept my sincere thanks. Many of them will never forget your kindness, and willingness to mete out comforts to them when needed. May God prosper you in your good work, and may you finally reap the reward you so much deserve."

From Captain Peter Bailey, of the 27th Massachusetts Infantry.

"Accept my heartfelt thanks for the many acts of kindness shown to me, a perfect stranger, unknown to you. I shall always remember you with feelings of kindness and friendship, as well as to the boys of my regiment. There are those at home who have already blessed you for your great kindness to many a poor soldier boy."

From the Mother of a Soldier, who went from the Lodge to die at his home in Ohio.

"Allow me, at the close of my letter, to bless and thank you for the great love and kindness shown to my poor son. He never wearied in talking of you; and oh, how can I thank you for pointing his dear soul to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world. May God ever bless you, and the noble Sanitary Commission for what they have done, and are constantly doing, for our sons on the field of battle."

FROM A SISTER.

"DEAR FRIEND:—I received your kind letter, containing my own to my brother —, on the 26th inst. I thought I would not answer it until the remains of my dear brother arrived. They reached this place last night. This morning his coffin was opened, and once more we looked upon the face of our long absent and loved one, but not as ever before; for now he is clasped in the embrace of death. Oh! it is painful to see him lie there, so still and quiet, entirely unconscious of our presence, and know that he can never look or speak to us again. His features are natural, and there is a sweet smile resting upon his lips. The flowers placed round him are nearly as fresh as when put there. He loved flowers when he was alive, and I am very grateful to you for putting them in his coffin. His remains and shroud show that loving and careful hands placed him there in his long narrow resting place. Words cannot express the gratitude we feel towards you, for your untiring and affectionate care to our dear absent one, and God will bless you for taking care of the needy. We did not know that he was dangerously sick, until we heard of his death; so the news was most unexpected. It would have been a consolation to us if we could have taken care of him, and attended to even any of his wants; but that was impossible, and, as it is, we feel that he was as well cared for as he could have been at home. We thank God for raising him up a helper and comforter in time of sickness and death. * * *

"My brother — has just this moment come from the post-office, with your kind letter of —. Your renewed sympathy and affectionate words call forth fresh gratitude. You have done all we can ask, for our dear Robert. One sentence alone gives us great consolation; it was this: 'I hope and trust he has gone to live with our Redeemer.' That is all I wish. They are the most precious words you could have spoken."

SANITARY COMMISSION.

The loyal thousands of the land who have contributed so liberally to the aid and support of the United States Sanitary Commission would be gratified and more than repaid could they see for a day the workings of the Commission in this city. The thousands of our released men who have arrived here during the past and present month from Richmond and other rebel dungeons have been cared for in the most liberal manner, and their many wants supplied from its bountiful storehouses of articles not furnished by the Government.

It is sometimes asked, "How all the money of the Sanitary Commission is expended?" The thousands of our returned prisoners will answer for the department of Annapolis. Through the untiring efforts of Major C. F. Howes, of Massachusetts, an old army officer, and his energetic assistant, Mr. P. S. Schwrar, all are made as comfortable as it is possible to make men in their condition. But it is not only our returned prisoners who are the recipients of the bounty of the Commission. The sick and wounded in the hospitals are supplied with many delicacies and comforts that otherwise they would never see or know of, and that materially assist in relieving their sufferings. The Commission here works quietly and unostentatiously, but none the less energetically. It should be fostered by the friends of the soldier everywhere in the land, for all alike, and from every state, have experienced its blessings. — Balto. American, March 11, 1863.

LETTER FROM BEAUFORT.

BY M. M. MARSH, M.D.

March 2, 1865.

For the last month, I have very little to communicate.

Our work has been chiefly among the sick, left by General Sherman, at Savannah and Beaufort, comprising about five thousand; which number, however, is rapidly reduced by the hospital boats, Barnes and Ben De Ford, conveying these diseased men (there are few wounded) as early as possible to a more salubrious clime. Usually the sick are retained in regimental or general hospitals until a removal is simply to secure a northern grave. Not so the policy of General Sherman. As soon as a man sickens he is sent to the rear, and as soon as possible thereafter, north. These men recover and return; and, unlike some other commands, there is no complaint, that "when a man goes north that is the last of him," but there is, from these invalids and recruits, a constant accession in numbers. The soldiers of this army see the immediate fruit of their labors, which doubtless accounts for their unbounded devotion to the interests of this command. For certainly they are clothed and fed more poorly, and worked harder, than any body of troops I have seen. If commiserated, the soldier commonly replies, "If our officers can stand it, we can." The officers of this army do share with the soldier all his privations, and if it lightens not, it makes him willing to endure toil and suffering.

During the month we have received two entire cargoes of sanitary supplies, by the steamer Uncas, and have distributed to the necessities of hospitals, to the various detachments of General Sherman's army, lying at Beaufort, awaiting his advent to the coast, and to patients going north upon hospital boats. This latter class have especial reason to bless the providence of the Sanitary Commission. Thrown into hospital with clothing fit only to burn, and while there their respective commands ordered on the march, and no provision made by which they could draw a single article when they should come out of hospital, and the Department of the South unable or unwilling to issue to them, when the time came to return to their regiments, or to be transferred north, the Sanitary Commission was their only reliance, absolutely, in most cases, their only resource. Nor will this call cease while "Sherman's men" are in the department. Their officers have told me that not one-half the clothing which the men required was issued before the march. They assert that the same state of things existed before leaving Atlanta; and the appearance of the army fully justifies the assertion. Anovistus boasted to Cæsar that some of his men had not been under a roof for fourteen years: this army can certainly rival the German's in respect to clothing. There are constantly arriving, too, from the north numbers, temporarily waiting to rejoin their regiments, who are sent without any preparation, and for whom the Commission must provide. In addition, the small-pox hospital—which disease is just now rife—has made no inconsiderable demands upon us. A soldier is taken there, perhaps with a well-filled knapsack, blankets, and overcoat; all these, with all his personal apparel, are burned; and, on leaving hospital, Government allows him for his three blankets, overcoat, dress parade suit, and his personal every day clothing, only one shirt, one pair of stockings, one pair of pants, and a thin flannel blouse; and one who has served his country faithfully, and escapes death from a disease which eminently reduces vitality, is turned out to the damp and piercing winds with this protection, inadequate for the most robust and hardy; and this is said to be by an order from the war-office. Certain, it is the practice, and the country ought to know it.

These calls alone have made large drafts upon the Commission; but on the 25th ultimo we forwarded to Morehead City, N. C., by the steamer Uncas, to meet this roving army, an entire cargo of sanitary stores, in part composed of the following: 200 bbls. pickles, 150 bbls. kraut, 6,000 lbs. canned tomatoes, 3,000 lbs. beef stock, 4,200 lbs. canned milk, 600 bottles stimulants, 20 chests of tea, with coffee, sugar, butter, hams, cheese, 2,000 lbs. dried apples and fruit, 150 bbls soft crackers, and the the different farinaceous articles in proportion; with clothing consisting of 200 military overcoats, 200 prs. pants, 200 blouses and dress-coats, 1000 blankets, 37 cases woolen shirts, 23 cases of drawers, 17 cases of socks, 8,000 towels, 9,000 handkerchiefs, 8 cases of cushions and pillows; and a corresponding supply of the little but very necessary articles of pins, needles, thread, &c., with stationery and postage stamps,—a necessity, from the fact that most of this working, conquering army have received no pay for more than eight months, whether members of cabinet and Congress have or have not drawn their monthly stipend. The above cargo, with one nearly equal in value, which we hope the Commission in New York will ship directly for Morehead City, will pretty fully meet the wants of these brave, intelligent men, of whom the West may well be proud; and giving an elasticity of muscular fibre and feeling, which a recognition of services always insures, will help them to accomplish that which they most desire, viz., to meet the strength of the rebellion, under him whom, inch by inch, they fought, from Chattanooga to Atlanta. For such men the country cannot do too much; and at this juncture the efficiency of this army, to an extent, depends upon the efforts of the Sanitary Commission.

BY F. A. S. PERRY.

HEADQUARTERS U. S. SAN. COM. }
 IN THE FIELD, SIX MILES FROM COVE CREEK, }
 March 11, 1865. }

SIR:—I have the honor to report, that for the past week my time has been occupied at Newbern and here, as follows:

Last Sunday and Monday I was at Newbern, discharging the cargo of the Commission's steamer Uncas. Tuesday we were engaged in storing away the same. Wednesday we packed stores for the front, put them aboard the cars, and came to this place, pitched our tent, and placed our stores under shelter. In doing all this we had very hard muscular work to perform, and since we arrived here we have been up late every night, issuing relief to our sick and wounded.

It was the early hour of one o'clock Thursday morning when we reached this place, and, after three hours sleep in camp, were in readiness to commence work for the day. We first arranged our stores in tent, so as to be had when wanted, and took us about midday, when in came some seventy wounded from the front, to whom we rendered every assistance in our power. We pitched a tent for them, spread it with straw, and helped them in it, and furnished them with sacks and blankets, made them beef soup and coffee, gave to such as were wounded in the feet socks, in the legs drawers, in the body shirts, and to all such as were dirty such articles of clothing as they were in need of. The beef soup and coffee were very timely, as the poor fellows had come seven miles in ambulances, over a dreadful road, and were weak and hungry. They blessed us over and over again, and will one day say to the people of the North, the Sanitary Commission has been a God-send to them. It was stormy through the day, and at night a heavy and chilly rain set in, and, but for the tent we gave them, they would have had none. They were dependent upon us for a change of clothing and for food, except hard-tack and salt pork.

On Friday showers of rain fell, and the heaviest fighting at the front occurred; but only some forty men of our wounded have yet come in here. We served them as we did those of yesterday, and left them only as they fell asleep or sought it. At midnight I set out upon horseback, with a quantity of stores for the 3d Division Hospital, at Gum Swamp, five miles distant, as they were wanted for immediate relief. My path thither was alongside the railroad track, and was in some places so narrow my horse's hoofs would strike the sleepers, so close did I have to ride to the track, from fear of my horse falling into the deep ravine which runs from here all the way to Gum Swamp. When half way up, my horse became restive, and backed down into the ravine, there some eight feet deep, and half full of mud and water, but did not dismount me. My horse became more restive than ever, and, as I reined him up the steep bank, he stood upon his haunches and leaped, taking me through a margin of thick bush, and, leaping again, stumbled and fell with me to the ground, doing me no injury, further than maiming me a little. Upon reaching Gum Swamp, I found the hospital there more than full of wounded patients, and in immediate want of the stimulants and beef stock brought them, and greatly in need of blankets and other things I had not with me. I therefore slept upon the ground beside a blazing fire, with nothing but two rails underneath and the canopy of heaven above.

Saturday morning, as early as seven o'clock, I left Gum Swamp and returned upon foot, without having had a mite of breakfast, and reached here in about two hours after. No wounded have come in to-day, and our issues have been small, so I have had time for rest.

A MAJOR'S OPINION OF THE SOLDIERS' HOME AT COLUMBUS, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, }
 March 17, 1865. }

MY DEAR FRIEND:—Being detained in this city for four hours to-day, by missing the Crestline train, I thought I could spend my time profitably in visiting the Soldiers' Home, a large and commodious building erected by that truly patriotic and national organization, the United States Sanitary Commission. The building is only a few yards from the depot, and the sick or wounded soldier needs no direction to find it, for a large, conspicuous sign informs all that it is the Soldiers' Home; and, on entering, I assure you I found it to be such. I entered a large sitting-room, where I found about sixty returned prisoners sitting comfortably around a glowing stove, and reciting to a few listeners their thrilling stories of outrage and wrong, that make us blush for our kind south of Mason and Dixon.

To the left of the entrance was a large hall, with long, cleanly spread tables, on which was loaded an abundance of that wholesome food for which these noble fellows had pined during their gloomy captivity. But now "they were in God's country," as they called the North; and I felt, as I gazed on these provisions made for their comfort by the voluntary contributions of our citizens, that they were also "amongst God's people." One of the officers of the Commission took me into the comfortable little hospital attached to the "Home," where I saw rows of neat, clean cots, and on each was stretched the pale, emaciated form of a returned prisoner. Poor fellows! no tongue can tell their sufferings while in the hands of "the chivalry;" and, although I have seen the reality myself, I listened with renewed interest, and, as I heard some touching story from the lips of a worn-down, ghastly looking soldier, once a strong and stalwart youth, I could not hold back the tears of sympathy, while the fires of indignation burned afresh against our more than barbarous foe. But here, in the cozy "Home," there was a quiet feeling of happiness. Kind hands were here to minister, and a hundred comforts assured them that their prolonged captivity was not caused by a lack of interest on the part of the American people. They fully appreciated the philanthropy of the Sanitary Commission; and I heard many repeat the oft-quoted phrase, "God bless the ladies." I understand these poor fellows will be forwarded to their homes to-morrow, and their places will be occupied by others coming on. I assure you, my friend, my heart went out towards this noble organization, and I know every true soldier blesses it.

The Legislature is in session here, but my visit to the Home prevented my going to see the State-House. I hope to see you soon. With best wishes, believe me

Faithfully your friend,

A. R. C.

"SANITARY SUPPLIES FOR THE SOULS OF SOLDIERS."

An editorial in the New York Observer of 23d inst., under the above caption, seems to require a notice and reply, as follows:

The U. S. Sanitary Commission has never purchased a dollar's worth of Unitarian or Universalist literature for the army; but such literature having been sent to it for distribution, and some of our soldiers, having a preference for that kind of reading, the Commission, as a national organization, had no right to determine that they should not read what had been sent. The ranks of our army are not filled up exclusively by orthodox or evangelical Christians; there are tens of thousands who do not believe as most Christians do, and whose convictions are just as firm and as honest as ours are, and we have no right to attempt to control their choice, unless we can furnish them with what we think is better. The "boys" in the army, (as some are pleased to call our soldiers,) are eager for reading matter, and if the Church does not supply the kind of reading that is best for them, through this largest and most efficient agency within reach of the people and the army, we have no right to complain that the men seek other kind of reading. If we would flood the Sanitary Commission with a stream of gospel truth, in the form of good books, bibles, &c., it would flow through every camp and hospital in the land, for the healing of the nation. The Church, however, has not done this. It has not availed itself of the providential advantages that were thrown in its way. The Sanitary Commission has appealed to them again and again for religious literature, but the supply has been small. Soon after the Christian Commission came into being, it was welcomed by the Sanitary Commission, by whom the proposition was made to transfer the whole matter of receiving and distributing religious reading to them, as well as the matter of religious teaching, provided that the Sanitary Commission should be allowed to act as the channel for all the stores that might be contributed by the people. Had such an arrangement been made, the agents of both Commissions would have had a common storehouse for supplies, and a common storehouse for reading matter, and a union and fellowship of interest and labor would have been seen, such as the world has never yet seen; but the offer was declined. The Christian Commission claimed to be the representative of the Christian sentiment of the people, and by this act of refusal to cooperate have placed that sentiment below, as we think, its normal and actual standard. The Sanitary Commission was thus compelled either to ignore its broad, catholic principles, or to continue before the country as an unbiased, free, and universal channel for whatever the people might send to the army. The wants of the soldier must be met; the nation demands it. His moral and spiritual, as well as his physical wants must be met. The Church by its immediate agency or by its assumed representative, the Christian Commission, has not met the emergency, by supplying the reading and supplementing the chaplaincy, as its sole and honored calling, and hence must bear the responsibility of the evil now complained of. It was in its power to have controlled by an overwhelming influence this whole question, so far as national organizations were concerned. It did not, however, measure up to the demands of the hour, and has lost the grandest advantage that ever opened before a Christian organization. The record of the Sanitary Commission is clear upon this subject. While it has never assumed to teach religion in either of its distinctive forms, and while it has never published or contributed to the publication of Unitarian or Universalist literature, it has published by tens of thousands, hymns from our choicest Christian selection, and psalms, commandments, and prayers, such as are commonly used in all our Sabbath and domestic services. These have been circulated by authority in all parts of the army, while no strictly denominational literature has ever been officially recognized. It could not have done otherwise. The grand spirit of Christian charity, and the noble expression of Christian benevolence that crown this age with the richest honor for the past, and promise for the future, would not have been satisfied with any narrower ground.

The only remedy now available for the evil complained of by the Observer, is for the Church to gird up its loins and go into the work, in connection with the Sanitary Commission—to use this organization for the free and abundant employment of our Christian literature. It will be gladly received and diligently circulated. This institution is acknowledged to be the broadest, grandest, and most comprehensive instrument known to the world, for reaching all parts of the army; and, as its storehouses are open for Christian books, and its agents are ready to receive them, and the soldiers are anxious to read them, the Church is recreant to its obligation, in not using such an opportunity for extended usefulness. The Managers of the Commission have never authorized its agents to call for such reading as the Observer objects to; they call upon whomsoever will give, and the Church cannot afford to be less liberal in giving than those whom the Church ignores. On the other hand, the Managers have objected by vote to propositions from associations that are named by the Observer, to allow their missionaries to use the Commission as a vehicle for promoting their denominational interests. The Observer thinks the “Commission should decline altogether the work of circulating religious reading,” rather than subject itself to objection on such grounds. It is submitted again, that the Commission, foreseeing the evils of a division of interest, proposed the only remedy to the Christian Commission, but they, declining to accept the exclusive work of supplying the army with religious books, have unintentionally assumed the burden of the evil of which complaint is now made. The remedy is with the people. The last paragraph in the Observer's article points to this remedy;—it is, that Christians “put forth vastly augmented efforts.” Let these efforts be in the direction, not of opposition to the Sanitary Commission, but efforts which shall embrace this most efficient and comprehensive agency, that opens its doors for all the contributions that may be given, and offers its aid in the scattering of every tract or Testament that may be placed at its disposal. This question must be met—fairly met. If the churches and the religious press can afford to say that the Sanitary Commission is not a Christian commission as well, they can afford to ignore tens of thousands of their church members and subscribers, who are identified with its interests, and who will continue to be, while it is in existence. It has been sustained hitherto by the Christianity of the land as a Christian work; it has been peculiarly prospered and blessed by a Providential guidance, which is cause for constant thanksgiving. We would say, then, to those who offer these objections, mark well the paths of your feet, that all your ways may be established. Remember the beam, before striking at the mote.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CONFERENCE.

Remarks by Doctor Joseph Parrish, of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, before the Philadelphia Conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, March 23, 1865. Reported for the Bulletin.

MR. PRESIDENT:—I have to thank this Conference for the opportunity thus afforded me to speak for a few moments, especially as the opportunity was not only unsought by myself, but unthought of until the proposition came voluntarily from this body. I receive your invitation as another evidence of the fraternal interest you have frequently manifested towards me on former occasions, and while I heartily appreciate it, I desire in any way that I can, to reciprocate it. It is also another evidence of the interest you feel in promoting the works of humanity, and of knowing the whole truth as to what is being done by the people for our army and navy; and for this I offer you especial thanks. I want to say to you a few words about the United States Sanitary Commission, not because I want to divert your attention from other interests, but simply that you may know what you do not now know about that Commission. It was instituted very soon after the commencement of this war, and one of its characteristics is, that it is a mixed Commission. It knows no denomination. It recognizes no race. It believes in no party lines, and its action covers the entire territory of the United States, regardless of all differences of opinion, and of all sects. In that respect it differs from some other organizations.

As to the extent of this work, I have only to say that having been appointed by the President of the United States and the Secretary of War, at the request of the Surgeon General, it felt it to be its duty to go wherever the army and navy went. If you will begin at Washington, and run down the Potomac and all along the coast, till you get to the Florida Keys, then come up the Gulf coast and follow it to the mouth of the Rio Grande, and starting again at New Orleans up the Mississippi to the mouth of the Ohio, and go westward and eastward to St. Louis, and Cincinnati, and Pittsburg, you have a line covering over four thousand miles of extent, which the Sanitary Commission has traversed with its stores and agents, and where it is now represented by some of its agencies at garrisons, ports, camps and hospitals. If you will then begin at Harper's Ferry, and follow Sheridan in his march through the Valley, you will find the work of this Commission represented in every foot of that march, and its relief afforded in every battle. If you will begin with the noble Sherman, when he started from Chattanooga, not on a grand march, but on his quiet promenade across all those states, till he came to the coast, you will find all along his journey, the Sanitary Commission accompanying him, with its agents and stores. When he reached Savannah and Charleston, he was met also by the agents of this Commission, with their storehouses all supplied. And if you will go for a little while in front of Petersburg, among the trenches and hospitals there, you will find the same work of busy care for present, and active preparation for anticipated wants. I run over this, simply to show the extent of the field of service occupied by the Commission.

We have also a large home work, with ten thousand women all through the Northern states, as an available army, engaged in various churches and communities, not in gathering money simply, to be sent to our treasury, but in gathering stores as well, to be sent to our depots of collection and distribution.

You will ask, very naturally, "How are these goods distributed?" The question comes up here as to the voluntary system and the paid system of distribution. Our people, in some places, have an idea, and probably some of this Conference sympathize with that idea, that the surgeons and even the chaplains are accused of appropriating the stores intended for the soldiers for their own use. Now, I don't believe that our chaplains are that class of men. I don't believe the surgeons and officers of the American army are made of such stuff; that they will take the contributions of the people, and withhold them from the soldiers for whom they are intended. But the system of distributing these goods in the hospitals and the trenches by the agents, who are paid, or distributing them in the hospitals by surgeons, who make requisitions for them, is a question which interests the people, and about which they ought to know.

The voluntary system is a grand system. It brings into the service hundreds and thousands of men, from the pulpits and colleges of the North, and puts them right alongside the soldiers in the hospitals, and in personal sympathy with them. They no doubt do good there, and when they come home they do good by stirring up the people in behalf of the soldiers; but as a question of economy, and efficiency, it is very doubtful in experience. The Sanitary Commission, I am thankful to say, employs agents in the field, pays them a reasonable compensation for their service, and keeps them at it. We would just as soon expect to receive them for nothing, as a reliable force, as we would expect to see the government calling upon its citizens to go down for a month or so to try the battle-field, and come back to be exchanged for others who would do a similar amount of service, on the same gratuitous terms, and busy themselves gathering new recruits for the same voluntary employment.

I will not detain you with incidents of this field-service, to excite your sympathies, and awaken your responses, for of these there are more than I can tell. You do not need this. Your patriotism is all alive, your hearts are all aglow with noble impulses, and I know I need not attempt to add to the inspiration you already feel; but I believe there is solid sense enough in this Conference to take hold of this great question in all its solemn weight and importance, and measure it in its vast proportions; and while time will not allow me to do more than glance at the surface of the work, I must call to your notice one phase of it done by the Sanitary Commission that nobody else does, that the Christian Commission, or the government does not, and that would not be done, but for the Sanitary Commission.

While we are sitting here to-day, there are thousands of soldiers—to say nothing of those who are in the hospitals, and who are otherwise disabled from efficient service—who are in transitu from their homes to the field, and from their regiments to their homes, on furlough, who need to be fed and lodged, and to be provided for, personally, in various ways, who have their claims upon the government for back pay, bounty, prize money, &c. Also, thousands of widows all through the land, who have similar claims against the government; and who, if it were not for some benevolent agency in their behalf, like the Sanitary Commission, would fall into the hands of sharpers, and be deprived of a great portion of their money. Every day there are from five to ten thousand soldiers fed and lodged, and having their claims against the government collected, free of charge, who are kept out of rum-shops, and drawn away from other sources of temptation and evil, and directed on their pathway home. In this city there is to-day, in the office at 1307 Chestnut street, a crowd of soldiers and soldiers families, who are there to receive direction and guidance. An hundred a day, on an average, present their claims upon the government through that office alone for back pay, prize money, &c.; and as many more come, wanting little personal attentions and guidance. Then, all through the trains along the western routes, and up through our great throughfare, from Washington to New York, are hospital cars attached to the trains, when needed for carrying the sick to the hospitals of the East and North; and three times a week a physician is always on the train from Washington to New York, ready to administer medicine and necessary luxuries to those sick and wounded soldiers who may need them. And all this is free of expense to the soldiers. The money expended for this purpose comes from the great loyal heart of the American people. Now, as a conference of ministers, representing a great church, you will very naturally ask of this Commission, which has spent ten million dollars worth of supplies upon the army, within the past four years,—this Commission, which covers so great an extent of territory, that has at hand such wonderful resources, Does it carry the gospel to the soldiers? The popular sentiment is that it does not. If you will tell me what the gospel is, in your judgment, then, perhaps, I will be enabled to answer the question a little more definitely. If by carrying the gospel is meant carrying simply methodism, presbyterianism, or any other ism in the shape of dogmas and preaching, then the Sanitary Commission don't do it. It recognizes, I said, no race, no degree, no denomination, but it goes with the love and example of Christ, carrying comforts personally to the men who are fighting the battles of our country. It does that kind of work without stint, and none work so efficiently in its behalf as the ministers of the gospel themselves, and in no strictly ministerial service do they do more or better preaching than in these deeds of mercy.

I would not appeal to so low a motive as the Methodism of this body to enlist its sympathy on behalf of the soldiers. I would appeal rather to its high, noble Christianity, and ask it to recognize in our efforts the hand of the Almighty leading a great people to the performance of the noblest Christian charities that a nation was ever called to perform. How can you look upon this vast work and be indifferent to its success? Can the church afford to say that it will not give it a helping hand? that it will not aid this well planned scheme of benevolence, and assist its well directed instrumentality which the people have so generally employed to attain a humane and Christian object?

It was my privilege during part of last summer to have charge of the work of the Sanitary Commission in the armies operating against Richmond. We had seventy ministers and theological students employed in our service; not for a few weeks at a time, but month after month; some of them laying down their lives, in going from bed to bed, and from intrenchment to intrenchment, administering comfort, temporal and spiritual, to the soldiers there. I mention these things in order to secure the judgment of this Conference in favor of the declaration that this work is a Christian work. I do this because an effort has been made, and is now being made, to prove that it is not a Christian work. But I feel sure that this body of Christian ministers are not prepared to endorse such a sentiment.

I have been asked (and I confess that I approach the subject with some delicacy, because I know that I may come in contact with the sympathies of a great many men whom I love), I have been asked to state distinctly to this body what is the relation of the U. S. Sanitary Commission with the Christian Commission. I do it frankly, in a plain, honest, Christian spirit, as I trust. The Sanitary Commission was the first-born child of benevolence in a national form, which this country knew after the outbreak of the rebellion. After it was organized, planned, and in full operation, the Christian Commission, its young and vigorous sister, came into the field likewise. We received her with open arms, and said, Come, let us work together. We made the official proposition,—Come, let us work together,—let us go hand in hand, and heart to heart into this magnificent field, and do whatsoever our hands find to do in this behalf; and in order that there may be no collision you shall share our supplies, and we will share of your Bibles, Testaments, and tracts, and both lend our time and strength to the cause of God and the Union. Let us do the hard, grinding toil of carrying the boxes, and wheeling the barrels, and feeding and dressing the soldiers, and let your duties be that of administering to their spiritual wants. That was the official proposition made to these brethren. What was the answer? "No." And so we went on with the work, each of us doing what we could. Again the proposition was made, and again declined. Perhaps it is well that it was declined. Perhaps there is much more interest created in the country by having two agencies. Perhaps there are larger contributions by the people, and though it may be well, in this respect, experience has proved that it is not economical. But as we can't have this unity of action in one direction, or through one channel, let us have unity of feeling and concord, and let us go on with this work to the end. (Applause.)

I don't believe as some do that the war is going to be stopped in ten days or two weeks. I believe there are deeper issues at stake than can be settled in so short a time. An army of five hundred thousand men cannot be disbanded in a few days. An army of one hundred thousand or more disabled men cannot find employment in so short a season. The thousands who are now in the hospitals, and such as are about to be discharged, cannot come back and take to their old industrial pursuits at once. We must therefore keep up our organization, which looks to the welfare of men so situated. Such is now the programme which is laid out under the direction of the Sanitary Commission. For this purpose Annapolis alone, with its wasted and starving prisoners is enough to engage the labor and sympathy of the country for a long time, and here the Commission has done an immense work. Oh, if I could only infuse into this Conference the spirit that was manifested by a poor widow woman at Annapolis, the other day, who went down there in search of her son, who had been taken prisoner, and who had died in Andersonville, I know that you would be the better for the inspiration. She said to some of his comrades at Annapolis, on their return, "Have you seen my George?" "Yes, I saw George," said a former associate of her son's, "I saw George carried out of prison in Andersonville, dead." "Oh no," said she; "George can't be dead. My George is not dead." And as the next boat came up to the wharf, and the poor fellows from the Southern dungeons walked out with their skeleton faces staring upon freedom again, and their feeble limbs tottering homeward, every man looking like every other man, so that you could scarcely distinguish them, she stood anxiously at the plank, and gazed into the eyes of each one that passed, hoping to find her George; and she did not leave when all the living had landed, but waited till the dead were carried off on stretchers, and as each corpse was brought out she lifted up the sheet that covered it, and gazed at the face hoping yet to recognize her son; but still it was not George. Having seen the whole number, she came to the conclusion that George had really died in Andersonville, and then, with the noble impulse of a noble American woman, she said, "Well, it is no matter, they are all Georges to me, and instead of grieving and lamenting I will go into these hospitals and take care of every one of them, just as I would of George." (Applause.)

That is the spirit that actuates the women of this land. That is the spirit that ought to actuate every man in this land; a spirit of universal sympathy, a spirit unfettered by name or rank. When our denominational preferences rise up to hinder us in our labors, we should banish them for the broader and truer love of God and humanity, and reach our hands out to every man that fights under our flag, be he black or white, American or foreigner. So long as he has the blue uniform on his back and the brass buttons on his coat, and marches under the broad standard of liberty, he should be recognized as a brother and friend. (Applause.)

Now then, Christian brethren, let us think this thing over; and no matter whether we be pledged to this or that charity, let us remember that the Sanitary Commission is a universal Christian charity, such as the world has never before witnessed. It occurs to my mind here that when I last saw this Conference two years ago, you little thought at that time, when under circumstances which you will all remember, there was a spirit of fear and trembling passed over this body, when a few little children stood up before you to sing a hymn of praise to God to the tune of "Old John Brown;" that you yourselves during this Conference would rise up with the same tune on your lips to sing the battle cry of the Republic beginning with

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord;"

and each verse ending with the stirring refrain

"The truth is marching on."

And two years from this day you will be astonished on reviewing the past to see the conquests that truth shall have made in the church and out of the church. The truth is marching on, and God is marching on.

All I have to say now is that you remember this work, that it is a Christian work, and when you hear people say that it is not, do not stop to argue the question. Take the example of our blessed Master, who went about doing good to all, and compare that with the work of this Commission and settle the question for yourselves.

Rev. S. W. Thomas desired to know how ministers of the gospel would offer their services to the Commission, and also how soldiers obtained their pensions through the Sanitary Commission.

Dr. Parrish said that if any members of this Conference desired to work in behalf of the army, through the Sanitary Commission, or desire to go to the front, that they could do so by sending their names and residence to him, and if there should be an emergency requiring the service of such men they would soon be called upon. Passes will be furnished at Philadelphia, and the way will be opened for doing much good. They would have the privilege of living in tents, eating hard tack and bacon, and going about doing good, like their Master did before them.

Rev. Mr. Neill inquired as to the manner of procuring pensions and back pay through the Sanitary Commission.

Dr. Parrish said there are offices in this city, and in all the principal cities, where all claims against the government are collected without cost to the soldier or his friends. In this connection he stated a case of a widow whose husband had died in the war, and who had a claim against the government. Not knowing how to collect it, she went to a lawyer who charged her two-thirds of the whole amount that was coming to her. A widow applying for money due her must give a satisfactory voucher as to her marriage and identity, stating the name of her husband, the company and regiment to which he was attached, and other necessary information. It is of course necessary that strict attention be paid to the details, to protect the Commission and the government against fraud. We have published a little book called the Soldier's Friend, which is to be had at the offices of the Commission; which book contains the necessary directions for all these matters, and a copy which is on the stand for each member of the body.

Dr. Parrish thanked the Conference for the kind attention with which they had listened to his remarks, and retired from the stand amid the congratulations of the members. A resolution of thanks was passed for his address, and of commendation of the cause.

EXTRACTS FROM A LETTER OF DR. C. R. AGNEW, OF U. S. SAN. COMMISSION.

WILMINGTON, N. C., March 20, 1865.

The returned prisoners sent number about 9,000. Of these, 6,000, the less famished, have been sent North. General Abbott, who receives them in exchange, just told me that language would utterly fail to describe their condition. Filth, rags, nakedness, starvation were personified in their condition. Many of the men were in a state of mind resembling idiocy, unable to tell their names, and lost to all sense of modesty, unconscious of their nakedness and personal condition; some of them moving about on their hands and knees, unable to stand upon their gangrenous feet, looked up like hungry dogs, beseeching the observer for a bite of bread or a sup of water. Some of them hitched along on their hands and buttocks, pushing gangrenous feet, literally reduced to bone and threads, before them. Others leaned upon staves, and gazed from sunken eyes through the parchment like slits of their open eyelids into space, without having the power to fix an intelligent gaze upon passing objects. Others giggled and smirked and hobbled like starved idiots, while some adamantine figures walked erect, as though they meant to move the skeleton homewards, so long as vitality enough remained to enable them to do so. To see the men who remain here in the hospitals, would move a heart as hard and cold as marble. Their arms and legs look like coarse reeds, with bulbous joints, and their faces as though a skilful taxidermist had drawn tanned skin over the bare skull, and then placed false eyes in the orbital cavities. They defy description. It would take a pen expert in the use of every term known to the anatomist and physician, to begin to explain their fearful condition. "May God, in his mercy, forgive our enemies."

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

GLEANINGS.—NO. IX.

Will our Auxiliary Societies be kind enough to send us their names, and the names of their Presidents and Secretaries, before the 1st of May? And will those who have already done so, during the past year, be good enough to repeat it, as we want to make our list complete up to the latest dates. Auxiliary Societies are defined in a previous article as "those who, by vote, bind themselves to work exclusively through our agency." Those societies, however, who do this, without having gone through the formality of voting, may be entered upon the list as auxiliaries.

In this connection we cannot forbear speaking of the pleasure we have recently had in welcoming to our ranks the "Soldiers' Aid Society" of Rochester. For years this great centre has been one of our most valuable contributors, and we may well feel gratified at this unsolicited expression of confidence from a society so large, so flourishing, and of such marked efficiency as that of the "Rochester Soldiers' Aid Society." The letter, lately received, says: "We have held our meeting, and the motion for an auxiliaryship to the Woman's Central Relief Association was carried unanimously. The change seems, at first view, merely in form, we were so closely connected with you before—and yet it is more than this. There is a great difference between contributing to the Sanitary Commission from month to month at pleasure, and identifying ourselves with it. The latter gives us a more fixed character, moulds us into a more definite shape, in other words, precipitates us into a Sanitary crystal. We talk Sanitary Commission now in more decided words and tones than before, and the decided and general satisfaction evinced, although I had felt that we were ready for the movement, exceeds even my anticipations."

While looking for the letter from which to make the above extract, we happened upon, and stopped to read over for perhaps the twentieth time, a little package of letters, now lying on the table beside us. It is an unassuming little package, held loosely together by an elastic strap, the letters themselves seeming never to have been either folded, or filed, or pasted, or spiled, but retaining each its individual post office character. Should you ask to what department these letters belong, and whether you might not endorse, and put them away, we should answer that they don't "belong" anywhere, and that they are never put away. The fact is that we like to keep them always in sight, and think we value them none the less for not having the business-like look of other correspondence. And, at the close of one of our "statistical" days,—so called because spent in poring over figures, balancing accounts, or making up reports,—when eyes and brain are weary, there are some of us who think—it may be only a fancy—that there is a talismanic charm about the little package, a charm which dispels fatigue, and brings rest and renewed strength.

The busy, bustling day's work is over, and we may hope for a quiet half hour before going home. Take this seat, here by the desk, and let us read over the little package together. This first letter is from one of our old correspondents. Struggling with ill health she has still kept on with the work until this year, and now writes to say how much she regrets that increased feebleness obliges her to cease every active effort. We want to thank her again for that unreserved expression of confidence in the Sanitary Commission, for her words of personal sympathy, and for the little glimpse of home-life, so simply told: "I have three little girls," she writes, "who, for a while, have been denying themselves sugar at the table, on articles of food where they most desired it, and the money they have raised by this means has been called their 'soldier money.' In the box, which will I hope soon reach you, you will find sago, tapioca, &c., for the hospitals, provided by these little girls with their well-earned money, and affording them the sincerest pleasure, I assure you. The lint and bandages have been made, and the bundle of cotton and linen washed and ironed with their own hands. May some suffering hero find even half the comfort in these articles, which the little girls have found in their preparation."

God bless the children! Could the soldier, slowly recovering from fever in some distant hospital, but know of the three little hearts, beating so warmly for him, of the six little hands, ministering so tenderly to his comfort, we think it would put new life into the worn-out body, and homesick heart—would make him feel that he was not alone, while the love of these little children remained with him, a love sealed by sacrifice.

A little note drops out of the package; merely two or three lines, of very familiar handwriting, which came with a pair of socks. They are the one hundred and thirty-fourth pair knit and sent us by an old lady in her seventy-fourth year. Those two letters may lie together. Surely, this must be a blessed work, to be so sanctified by the gifts of childhood and old age.

The third letter, from a private in hospital at Germantown, was brought us by the mother herself. She had not heard from her boy for ten weeks, since this, his last letter—no answer to her letter; and "he had always been so good about writing—would we write to the surgeon for her? for perhaps, Miss, they might answer a letter from you, with the printing at the top of it, sooner than they would my poor writing." We give the letter, word for word, as it lies open before us:—

"U. S. HOSPITAL, GERMANTOWN, }
December 23, 1864. }

"MY DEAR MOTHER:—I hope you got home safe from here, and that your health is better than when you were here. My health is very poor, but I hope it will soon improve. I have fretted about the loss I came to, not on my own account, but on your account. When I paid my money on that place I thought I would have a home for you in your old age; but God forgive them that cheated me out of my deeds. Dear mother, keep up your heart; if I am spared to come home, I will make you happy and comfortable. Yet I would advise you to stop in New York, as you belong to it, and when my time is up I will claim you—if I don't make up my mind to join the army again, if there is another call for men. But don't be angry, if I say I love my country's cause, and the dear old flag, I may say, better. Do you blame me for doing so? Although I have a ball in my cheek, it will not stop me from facing the enemy; and, dear mother, if I should fall, you live in a noble country. It will not let you want, as you will be entitled to a pension. Dear mother, I hope you will be praying for me, and I hope I will soon be enabled to rally round our dear old flag once again; and don't be afraid, but we will shout the battle cry of freedom.

"I must conclude; and remain

"Your affectionate son until death,

"_____,"

"Co. A, 140th Regt. N. Y. Vols."

There may be many letters coming home, day after day, from camp and hospital, as simple and as true as this is; but we do not remember seeing one more noble in spirit, or which breathed a stronger love of country, united with such tender filial affection, as shown in these rough, untutored lines, from the boy in the hospital to his widowed mother at home. And so our soldiers fight and fall. Thank God, that we are permitted to do something for such men as these—let us pray that we may be faithful to the privilege and to the trust.

We will read no more to-day. Fold up the letters; slip them under the strap. Lie there little package—your charm is still unbroken; for are we not rested, and is not our strength renewed?

For the Committee on Correspondence.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER,

Chairman.

NEW YORK, 7 COOPER UNION, }
March 24, 1865. }

THE GREAT SANITARY FAIR.

FINAL REPORT OF THE PROCEEDS—MORE THAN A MILLION DOLLARS MADE.

We have received the following documents, showing the results of the Great Philadelphia Fair:

UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION,
PHILADELPHIA AGENCY,
No. 1307 CHESTNUT ST., March 24, 1864. }

To the Editor of the Press:

SIR:—I beg leave to enclose to you copies of the receipt by the Treasurer of the United States Sanitary Commission, and the letter of the President of the Commission, to John Welsh, Esq., showing the fruits of the Fair, and the acknowledgments of the Commission to the Philadelphia gentlemen who conducted it.

Subject to the receipt of final reports from some of the committees, the work of the Fair is now closed; and the Sanitary Commission acknowledge gratefully your active and valuable aid in attaining the results now realized.

Very respectfully yours,

HORACE BINNEY, JR.,

Chairman of Executive Committee of Philadelphia Associates of the United States Sanitary Commission.

Received, New York, Feb. 17, 1865, of C. Cope, Treasurer of the Philadelphia Associates of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, one million, thirty-five thousand, three hundred and ninety-eight dollars and ninety-six cents, being the net proceeds of the Great Central Fair, held in Philadelphia, in June last, for the benefit of the United States Sanitary Commission.

$1,035,398 96. GEORGE T. STRONG,
Treasurer of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

NEW YORK, February 25, 1865.

TO JOHN WELSH, ESQ.,

President of the Great Central Fair.

DEAR SIR:—On returning to New York, after a week's absence, the Treasurer of our Commission informs me of his receipt from Mr. Caleb Cope of the sum of (\$1,035,398  $\frac{96}{100}$ ) one million and thirty-five thousand, three hundred and ninety-eight and  $\frac{96}{100}$  dollars, being the total net product of the Great Central Fair, for the benefit of the United States Sanitary Commission. We have remitted \$514,310 08 to our Philadelphia associates, to be expended in their Branch, for our general benefit.

The grand result of your Fair is already known to all the world. I found the people in California rejoicing in it last July, and the beautiful chromotype commemorating the scene of it hangs in hundreds of homes, thousands of miles apart, on both sides of our continental country. The elegant record which our distinguished fellow-commissioner, Mr. Stillé, has made of the Fair, already in so many admiring hands, will, with other documents of the Commission, be, in a few days, on its way to Egypt, to fill an order made by American friends there in favor of the reigning Pasha.

There is no part of the world where the history of the uprising of American women and children, American homes, American industry and art, in behalf of the brave sufferers in the cause of our national integrity and stableness, has not excited an enthusiastic sympathy and approbation, and redounded to the honor of free, popular institutions and the American name. The United States Sanitary Commission had the privilege of leading off in this glorious career, and of first crystallizing on a national scale the sympathies and practical benevolence of the people, in behalf of our sick and wounded soldiers. Into its treasury, accordingly, have flowed the broad streams of the popular favor and support; and specially it has worn about its neck a golden chain, on which the great cities, linked together, have hung their jewels, each more splendid than the other, as it caught the public eye, and all dearer than Cleopatra's pearl, because to be finally dissolved in a draught of mercy, for lips more royal, even those of an army of martyrs for Liberty.

No city in the Union has given a stouter and more persistent support to the war, to the comfort of soldiers on their way to and from the war, or to the relief of the sick and wounded falling in the course of the war, than Philadelphia; and to no city, except San Francisco, is the United States Sanitary Commission so much indebted for an intelligent, laborious, and costly support—a support including moral, intellectual, and financial sustenance and loyalty. Philadelphia has understood and endorsed the peculiar principles of the Sanitary Commission, trusted its officers with generous confidence, and fed its treasury with systematic contributions.

The magnificent contribution we have just received, the product of your Fair, is, I venture to say, the largest ever made in one sum, not only to this, but to any unincorporated charity in the world. It is a miracle of free, concerted action seeking with unjealous and confiding benevolence to make an institution, without local or State interest, the almoner of its overflowing bounty towards those sufferers made sacred by the cause in which they offer their lives and shed their blood. You have freshened the Declaration of Independence, originally made in your city, issuing it anew, rewritten in the blood of your sons, with every precious line of it now illuminated with your gold.

I was, fortunately, present at the great gathering of the heads of all the economical interests of your vast hive of industry, when the Fair was inaugurated by assigning its departments to the most energetic men in Philadelphia. I said then, what I repeat here, that I never knew an undertaking whose success was so thoroughly assured by the method and spirit in which it was started. What the zeal, the taste, and the generosity of your State and city—not unaided by New Jersey and Delaware—finally produced in the way of a splendid and instructive spectacle, I learn from thousands who had a pleasure denied to me, then in California, of visiting that beautiful temple of art and humanity. The solid product of all those labors and successes I have now the profound gratification of acknowledging the receipt of, into the treasury for which it was originally designed.

To that Divine Providence in which all great blessings originate; to the generous public who first gave and then bought back the materials of the Fair; to the women of your city and neighborhood, whose taste and humanity, whose strength and tenderness flowed into its preparation and conduct; to the various committees, whose patient fidelity in a noble rivalry with each other, secured the success of all its departments; to the executive committee, whose wisdom and devotion reduced the parts of such harmony and perfection; and to you, sir, the president of the Fair, to whose admirable administration, unflagging oversight, and Christian inspiration, all accord the highest respect and admiration, I beg leave humbly to offer, in the name of our clients—the sick and wounded soldiers—the gratitude of their hearts, and with them that of the homes of the nation.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, yours,

HENRY W. BELLOWS,
President U. S. Sanitary Commission.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents is crowded out by more important matter. In its place is presented the notice of the Philadelphia Protective War Claim and Pension Agency.

PROTECTIVE

War Claim and Pension Agency

OF THE

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

All the papers and correspondence required to procure Pensions, Bounty and Back Pay, and Prize Money for discharged soldiers and sailors, and for the relatives of soldiers and sailors dying in the service of the United States, prepared and forwarded, and the proceeds of all claims, when collected, remitted to the parties entitled, free of charge.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

WILLIAM M. TILGHMAN, Chairman.

|                        |                       |
|------------------------|-----------------------|
| HORACE BINNEY, JR.,    | ROBERT M. LEWIS,      |
| ALEXANDER BROWN,       | GEORGE M. CONARROE,   |
| HON. J. I. CLARK HARE, | CHARLES J. STILLÉ,    |
| WILLIAM WELSH,         | GEORGE D. PARRISH,    |
| WILLIAM L. REHN,       | H. LENOX HODGE, M.D., |
| GEORGE TROTT,          | ATHERTON BLIGHT.      |

H. LENOX HODGE, M.D., Examining Surgeon.EDWARD A. SMITH M.D., Assistant Surgeon.W. N. ASHMAN, Solicitor.JAS. W. HAZLEHURST, Assistant Solicitor.

Office: No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

PROTECTIVE

War-Claim Association

OF THE

STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

|                      |                        |
|----------------------|------------------------|
| HON. HAMILTON FISK,  | ADMIRAL DUPONT,        |
| JOHN J. CISCO, ESQ., | RUD. A. WITTHAUS, ESQ. |

TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, ESQ.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HONS. E. D. MORGAN,   | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLWS, D.D.,   | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to
HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
F. L. Olmsted, California.
George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., Cambridge, Mass.
S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
George T. Strong, Treasurer.
J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

|                        |                     |
|------------------------|---------------------|
| Henry W. Bellows, D.D. | George T. Strong.   |
| Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. | Wolcott Gibbs, M.D. |
| C. R. Agnew, M.D.      | Charles J. Stillé.  |

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Nos. 10 & 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.

Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

EAST.

"Special Relief" Office, 76 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.

"Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.

"Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.

"The Home," Baltimore, Md.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.

"Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.

"The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.

"Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.

"Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.

"Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.

"The Home," New Orleans, La.

WEST.

Soldiers' Home, No. 81 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

Soldiers' Home, Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Louisville, Ky., James Malona, Sup't. James Morton, Special Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, New Albany, corner of Main and State Streets.

Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., C. N. Shipman, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Nashville, Tenn., Captain I. Brayton, Sup't. Rev. J. Hoblit, Relief Agent

Soldiers' Home, Columbus, Ohio, Col. Isaac Dalton, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Cleveland, Ohio, Joseph Jerome, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Lodge, near landing, Memphis, Tenn. C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Soldiers' Home, Camp Nelson, Ky., Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Soldiers' Home, Paducah, Ky.

BRANCH,
No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,
No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported * * * * * IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME. By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept 20, 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, SO FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU. Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General.

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices Address

B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D.,
President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY,
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

- GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y.
Hon. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn. E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.
WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York. J. T. SANGER, New York.
JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,
No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILLCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

OFFICE OF THE
M O R R I S
FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE
COMPANY.

COLUMBIAN BUILDING,

CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

---

Authorized Capital, . . . $5,000,000.

Cash Capital, paid in, . . . $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

D I R E C T O R S .

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

F. S. WINSTON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Assets over Eleven and a half Millions of Dollars.

Policies known as "Non-Forfeiting," on the terms they express, on the Ten-Year plan, issued by this Company, possess advantages in profits and rates of premiums, greater than are offered by any other Life Company.

THE

Widows' & Orphans' Benefit Life Ins. Co. of New York.

LUCIUS ROBINSON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

Many of the Trustees and other officers of this Company are connected with the well-known MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, and the intimate and amicable relations between the two Companies, guarantee favorable results to Policy-holders.

Universal Life Insurance Company of New York.

JOHN WADSWORTH, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

This Institution has been formed for the benefit of those who, because of imperfect health, are unable to obtain policies in other companies. It thus meets the case of thousands who have been turned away disappointed in their efforts to provide for their families, and of a still larger number who have felt it useless to apply for insurance.

Every information may be had, on application, by letter or otherwise, to

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
 400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

Insurance against Accident by the

TRAVELERS' INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

CAPITAL, - - - $500,000.

JAMES G. BATTERSON, PRESIDENT.

Insurance effected in this Company against ACCIDENTS of every description.

Yearly Policies will be issued for a Premium of

Fifteen Dollars,

granting Insurance to the amount of

Five Thousand Dollars

against loss of life by any accident whatever.

Twenty-Five Dollars

secures a Policy for

Five Thousand Dollars,

together with $25 per week compensation for personal injury, incapacitating the assured from his ordinary business.

Fifty Dollars Premium

secures a Full Policy for $10,000 and $40 per week compensation for all and every description of Accident.

Policies for $500, with $3 per week compensation, can be had for $3 Premium, or any other sum between $500 and $10,000 at proportionate rates.

WM. W. ALLEN, Agent,

404 WALNUT STREET.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 36.

PHILADELPHIA, APRIL 15, 1865.

No. 36.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

DRIVING HOME THE COWS.

Out of the clover and blue-eyed grass,

He turned them into the river-lane;

One after another he let them pass,

Then fastened the meadow bars again.

Under the willows and over the hill,

He patiently followed their sober pace;

The merry whistle for once was still,

And something shadowed the sunny face.

Only a boy! and his father had said

He never could let his youngest go!

Two already were lying dead,

Under the feet of the trampling foe.

But after the evening work was done,

And the frogs were loud in the meadow-swamp,

Over his shoulder he slung his gun

And stealthily followed the foot-path damp.

Across the clover and through the wheat

With resolute heart and purpose grim,

Though cold was the dew on his hurrying feet,

And the blind bats flitting startled him.

Thrice since then had the lanes been white,

And the orchards sweet with apple-bloom;

And now, when the cows came back at night,

The feeble father drove them home.

For news had come to the lonely farm

That three were lying where two had lain;

And the old man's tremulous, palsied arm

Could never lean on a son's again.

The summer day grew cool and late;

He went for the cows when his work was done;

But down the lane, as he opened the gate,

He saw them coming, one by one.

Brindle, Ebony, Speckle, and Bess,

Shaking their horns in the evening wind;

Cropping the bitter cups out of the grass—

But who was it following close behind?

Loosely swang in the idle air

The empty sleeve of army blue;

And worn and pale, from the crisping hair,

Looked out a face that the father knew;

For Southern prisons will sometimes yawn,

And yield their dead unto life again;

And the day that comes with a cloudy dawn

In golden glory at last may wane.

The great tears sprang to their meeting eyes;

For the heart must speak when the lips are dumb,

And under the silent evening skies

Together they followed the cattle home.

Harper's Magazine.

A FORTNIGHT WITH THE SANITARY.

Reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly.

For three years I had been a thorough believer in the United States Sanitary Commission. Reading carefully its publications, listening with tearful interest to the narrations of those who had been its immediate workers at the front, following in imagination its campaigns of love and mercy, from Antietam to Gettysburg, from Belle Plain to City Point, and thence to the very smoke and carnage of the actual battlefield, I had come to cherish an unfeigned admiration for it and its work. For three years, too, I had been an earnest laborer at one of its outposts,—striving with others ever to deepen the interest and increase the fidelity of the loyal men and women of a loyal New England town. I was prepared then, both from my hearty respect for the charity and from my general conception of the nature and vastness of its operations, to welcome every opportunity to improve my knowledge of its plans and practical workings. I therefore gladly accepted the invitation which came to me to visit the headquarters of the Commission at Washington, and to examine for myself the character and amount of the benefits which it confers.

The evening of August 23d found me, after a speedy and pleasant trip southward, safely ensconced in the sanctum of my good friend Mr. Knapp, the head of the Special Relief Department. Starting from that base of operations, I spent two crowded weeks in ceaseless inquiries. Every avenue of information was thrown wide open. Two days I wandered, but not aimlessly, from office to office, from storehouse to storehouse, from soldiers' home to soldiers' home, conversing with the men who have given themselves up unstintedly to this charity, examining the books of the Commission, gathering statistics, seeing, as it were, the hungry soldier fed and the naked soldier clothed, and the sick and wounded soldier cared for with a more than fraternal kindness. I visited the hospitals, and with my own hands distributed the Sanitary delicacies to the suffering men. Steaming down the Chesapeake, and up the James, and along its homeless shores, I came to City Point; was a day and a night on board the Sanitary barges, whence full streams of comfort are flowing with an unbroken current to all our diverging camps; passed a tranquil, beautiful Sabbath in that city of the sick and wounded, whose white tents look down from the bluffs upon the turbid river; rode thirteen miles out almost the Weldon road, then in sharp contest between our Fifth Army Corps and the rebels; from the hills which Baldy Smith stormed in June saw the spires of Petersburg; went from tent to tent and from bedside to bedside in the field hospitals of the Fifth and Ninth Corps, where the luxuries prepared by willing hands at home were bringing life and strength to fevered lips and broken bodies. I came back with my courage re-animating, and with a more perfect faith in the ultimate triumph of the good cause. I came back with a heartier respect for our soldiers, whose patience in hardship and courage in danger are rivalled only by the heroism with which they bear the pains of sickness and wounds. I came back especially with the conviction that, no matter how much we had contributed to the Sanitary work, we had done only that which it was our duty to do, and that, so long as we could furnish shelter for our families and food for our children, it was our plain obligation to give and to continue giving out of our riches or out of our poverty.

I have felt that in no way could I do better service than by seeking to answer for others the very questions which my fortnight with the Sanitary has answered for me. Most, no doubt, have a general conviction that the charity inaugurated by the the Sanitary Commission is at once marvelous in its extent and unique in the history of war. All, perhaps, are prepared to allow that the heart which conceived such an enterprise, and the mind which organized it, and the persistent will which carried it to a successful issue, are entitled to all the praise which we can give them. Few will deny now that this and kindred associations, by decreasing the waste of war, will affect in an important degree our national fortunes. And most, indeed, know something even about the details of Sanitary work. They comprehend, at least, that through its agency many a homely comfort and many a home luxury find their way to the wards of great hospitals. They have seen, too, the Commission step forward in great emergencies, after some terrible battle, when every energy of Government was burdened and overburdened by the gigantic demands of the hour, and from its storehouses send thousands of packages, and from its offices hundreds of relief agents, to help to meet almost unprecedented exigencies.

But what people wish to know, and what, despite all that has been written, they do not know fully and definitely, is how and when and where, and through what channels and by what methods, the Commission works: precisely how the millions which have been poured into its treasury from public contributions and private benefactions have been coined into comfort for the soldier,—how the thousands and hundreds of thousands of garments which have gone forth to unknown destinations have been made warmth for his body and cheer to his soul. The whole height and depth and length and breadth of Sanitary work, what varied activities and what multiform charities are included in the great circumference of its organization,—of that not one in twenty has any adequate conception. And all about that is what everybody wishes to know. The curiosity, moreover, which dictates such queries, is a natural and laudable curiosity. Those who have given at every call, and often from scanty means, and those who have plied the needle summer and winter, early and late, have a right to put such questions. The Commission wishes to answer all proper inquiries fully and unreservedly. It would throw open its operations to the broadest sunlight. It believes that the more entirely it is known, in its successes and its failures alike, the more sure it is to be liberally sustained. To bring the humblest contributor from the most distant branch, as it were, into immediate communication with the front is a work most desirable to be done. I do not wish to glorify the Commission, nor to theorize about it, nor to discuss its relative merit as compared with that of kindred organizations, but rather to tell just what it is doing, precisely where the money goes, and exactly what kinds of good are attempted.

The work of the Sanitary Commission may be naturally and conveniently classed under five heads.

First, the work undertaken for the prevention of sickness and suffering.

Second, the Special Relief Department.

Third, the Hospital Directory.

Fourth, the assistance given to stationary hospitals.

Fifth, the grand operations in the front, on or near the actual battle-field.

The efforts for the prevention of suffering and sickness are first in order of time, and possibly first in importance. When this war commenced, we had no wounded and we had no sick. What we did have was a crowd of men full of untrained courage, but who knew little or nothing about military discipline, and as little in regard to what was necessary for the preservation of their health. What we did have was hundreds and thousands of officers, taken from every walk of life, who were, for the most part, men of great natural intelligence, but who did not at all comprehend that it was their duty not only to lead their men in battle, but to care for their health and their habits, and who had never dreamed that such homely considerations as what are the best modes of cooking food, what are the most health localities in which to pitch tents, what is the right position for drains, had anything to do with the art of war. What we did have was surgeons, many of whom had achieved an honorable reputation in the walks of civil life, but who, on this new field, were alike inexperienced and untried. The manifest danger was, that this mass of living valor and embodied patriotism would simply be squandered,—that, as in the terrible Walcheren expedition, or in the Crimea, the men whose strength and courage might decide a campaign would only furnish food for the hospital and the grave.

Who should avert this danger? The Government could not. It had no time to sit down and study sanitary science. It was bringing together everything, where it found—nothing. Out of farmers and merchants and students it was organizing the most efficient of armies. It was sending its agents all over the world to buy guns and munitions of war. It was tasking our factories to produce blankets and overcoats, knapsacks and haversacks, wagons and tents, and all that goes to make up the multifarious equipment of an army. It was peering into our dockyards to find steamers and sailing vessels out of which to gather makeshift navies, until it could find leisure to build stancher ships. Manifestly the Government had no time for such a work. The existing medical bureau was hardly equal to the task. Organized to take charge of an army of ten thousand men, in the twinkling of an eye that army became five hundred thousand. At the beginning of the war the medical staff must have been very busy and very heavily burdened. With great hospitals to build, with troops of willing, but young and inexperienced surgeons to train to a knowledge of their duties, and to send east and west and north and south, with every department of medical science to be enlarged at once to the proportions of the war, it had little leisure for excursions into fresh fields of inquiry. That it brought order so quickly out of chaos, that it was able to extemporize a good working system, is a sufficient testimony to its general fidelity and efficiency. It was the Sanitary Commission which undertook this special duty. It undertook to find out some of the laws of health which apply to army life, and then to scatter the knowledge of those laws broadcast.

Prevention, therefore, effort not so much to comfort and cure the sick soldier as to keep him from being sick at all, was, in order of time, properly the first work. And it is doubtful whether at the outset anything more was contemplated. The memorial to the War Department in May, 1861, says, explicitly that the object of the Commission "is to bring to bear upon the health, comfort, and morale of our troops the fullest and ripest teachings of sanitary science." How many of the contributors to the funds of the Society are aware what an immense work in this direction has been undertaken, and how much has been accomplished to prevent sickness and the consequent depletion, and perhaps defeat of our armies? As I have already indicated, at the commencement of the war we knew little or nothing about what was necessary to keep men in military service well,—what food, what clothing, what tents, what camps, what recreations, what everything, I may say. Now the Sanitary Commission has made searching inquiries touching every point of camp and soldier life,—gathering in facts from all quarters, and seeking to attain to some fixed sanitary principles. It has sent the most eminent medical men on tours of inspection to all our camps, who have put questions and given hints to the very men to whom they were of the most direct importance. As a result, we have a mass of facts, which, in the breadth of the field which they cover, in the number of vital questions which they settle, and in the fulness and accuracy of the testimony by which they are sustained, are worth more than all the sanitary statistics of all other nations put together.

And we are to consider that these inquiries were from the beginning turned to practical use. If you look over your pile of dusty pamphlets, very likely you will find a little Sanitary tract entitled, "Rules for Preserving the Health of the Soldier." This was issued almost before the war had seriously begun. Or you will come across some republished European medical paper containing the last results of the last foreign investigations. So early was the good seed of sanitary knowledge sown. We must remember, too, how many mooted, yet vital questions have now been put to rest. Take an example,—Quinine. Everybody had a general notion that quinine was as valuable as a preventive of disease as a cure. But how definite was our knowledge? How many knew when and in what positions and to what extent it was valuable? As early as 1861 the Commission prepared and published what has been justly termed an exhaustive monograph on the whole subject, collecting into a brief space all the best testimony bearing upon the question. This was the beginning of an investigation which, pursued through a vast number of cases, has demonstrated that, in peculiar localities and under certain circumstances, quinine in full doses is an almost absolute necessity. And in such localities, and under such circumstances, Government issues now a daily ration to every man, saving who can tell how many valuable lives? One more illustration,—Camps. Suppose you were to lead a thousand men into the Southern country. Would you know where to encamp them? whether with a southern or a northern exposure? on a breezy hill, or in a sheltered valley? beneath the shade of groves, or out in the broad sunshine? Could you tell what kind of soil was healthiest, or how near to each other you could safely pitch your tents, or whether it would be best for your men to sleep on the bare ground or on straw or on pine boughs? Yet, if you inquire, you will find that all these questions and countless others are definitely settled,—thanks in a great measure to the Sanitary Commission, which has gladly given its ounce of prevention, that it may spare its pound of cure.

If you imagine that the need of this work of prevention has ceased, you are greatly mistaken. Only last summer, in the single month of June, the Commission distributed, in the Army of the Potomac alone, over a hundred tons of canned fruits and tomatoes, and not less than five thousand barrels of pickles and fresh vegetables. It is hardly too much to say that what the Commission did in this respect has gone far towards enabling our gallant army to disappoint the hopes of the enemy, and to hold amid the deadly assaults of malaria, the vantage-ground which it has won before Petersburg and Richmond. All through the spring and summer, too, at Chattanooga, on the very soil which war had ploughed and desolated, invalid soldiers have been cultivating hundreds of acres of vegetables. And on the rugged sides of Missionary Ridge, and along the sunny slopes of Central Tennessee, the same forethought has brought to perfection, in many a deserted vineyard, the purple glory of the grape. And this not merely to cure, but to prevent, to keep up the strength and vigor of the brave men who have marched victoriously from the banks of the Ohio to Atlanta.

Nor is it likely that the value of this office will cease so long as the war lasts. In the future, as in the past, new conditions, new exigencies, and new dangers will arise. And to the end the foresight which guards will be as true a friend to the soldier as the kindness which assuages his pains. Looking back, therefore, upon the whole field, and speaking with a full understanding of the meaning of the language, I am ready to affirm, that, if the Sanitary Commission had undertaken nothing but the work of preventing sickness, and had accomplished nothing in any other direction, the army and the country would have received in that alone an ample return for all the money which has been lavished.

I come now to the Special Relief Department. I should call this a sort of philanthropic drag-net, differing from that mentioned in the Gospel in that it seems to gather up nothing bad which needs to be thrown away. In other words, it appeared to me as though any and every kind of Sanitary good which ought to be done, and yet was not large enough or distinct enough to constitute a separate branch, was set down as Special Relief. The whole system of homes and lodges to feed the hungry and shelter the homeless comes directly under the head of Special Relief. The immense collection of back-pay, bounties, pensions, and prize-money, which is made gratuitously by the Commission, is Special Relief. Visits to the hospitals are under the direction of this same department. And even the Directory and the vast work done at the front perhaps legitimately belong to it. We can readily conceive, therefore, that the Commission has no department which is larger or more important, or which covers so wide and diversified a field of activity. Let us survey that field a little closer.

Sanitary homes and lodges,—what are they? A soldier is discharged, or he has a furlough. He is not well and strong, and he has no money, certainly none to spare. He ought not to sleep on the ground, and he ought not to go hungry. But what is everybody's business is apt to be nobody's business. Fortunately the Commission has seen and met this want. In Washington, on H Street, there is a block of rough, but comfortable one-story wooden buildings, erected for various purposes of Special Relief, and, amongst others, for the very one which I have mentioned. In the first place, there is a large room containing ninety-six berths, where any soldier, having proper claims, can obtain decent lodgings free of expense. In the second place, there is a kitchen, and a neat, cheerful dining-room, with seats for one hundred and fifty. Here plain and substantial meals are furnished to all comers. This table of one hundred and fifty has often, and indeed usually to be spread three times; so that the Commission feeds daily at this place alone some four hundred soldiers, and lodges ninety to a hundred more. The home which I have now described is simply for transient calls.

Near the depot there is a home of a more permanent character. When a soldier is discharged from the service, the Government has, in the nature of the case, no further charge of him. Suppose now that he is taken sick, with no money in his purse and no friends near. Can you imagine a position more forlorn? And forlorn indeed it would be, were it not for the Commission. The sick home is a large three-story building, with three or four one-story buildings added on each side. Here there is furnished food for all; then one hundred and fifty beds for those who are not really sick, but only ailing and worn out; then bathing-rooms; and, finally, a reading-room. There is here, too, a hospital ward, with the requisite nurses and medical attendance. In this ward I saw a little boy, apparently not over twelve years of age, who had strayed from his home,—if, alas, he had one!—and followed to the field an Ohio regiment of hundred-days' men, and who had been taken sick and left behind. Who he was or where from nobody knew. Tenderly cared for, but likely to die! A sad sight to look upon! One feature more, Every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday a physician goes from the home in Washington to New York, taking charge of those who are too sick or too crippled to care for themselves; while the relief agents procure for the sick soldier the half-price ticket to which he is entitled, or else give him one, and such articles of clothing as are needful to send him in comfort to his own home.

I must not fail to speak in this connection of another beautiful ministry,—the home for soldiers' wives and mothers. A soldier is like other human beings: In his sickness he yearns for a sight of the familiar faces, and sends for wife or mother; or wife or mother, unable to bear longer the uncertainty, when she can get no tidings from the absent, starts for Washington. There, searching vainly for husband or son, she spends all or nearly all her money. Or if she finds him, it may well be that he has no funds with which to help her. In the little buildings on one side of the refuge for the sick are rooms where some sixty-five can receive decent lodging and nourishing food; and if actually penniless, the Commission will procure them tickets and send them back to their friends.

We often hear people wondering, almost in a skeptical tone, where all the Commission's money goes. When I was at Washington and City Point, I only asked where it all came from. Consider what it must cost simply to feed and lodge these soldiers and their wives at Washington. And then remember that this is but one of many similar homes scattered everywhere: at Baltimore, Washington, and Alexandria, in the Eastern Department; at Louisville, Nashville, Chattanooga, in the Western; at New Orleans and Baton Rouge, in the Southwestern; and at many another place beside. And, finally, reflect that this whole system of homes is really but one portion of one branch of Sanitary work.

The collection of back-pay, bounties, and pensions,—how many have a definite idea of this work? Not many, I suspect. Yet it takes all the time of many persons to accomplish it, and it was the branch of Sanitary work which awakened in my own mind the deepest regard; for it has its foundation in a higher virtue than any mere sentimental charity,—yea, in the highest virtue known in heaven or on earth,—justice. However impossible it may be to prevent such occurrences, certainly it is a cruel and undeserved hardship to a soldier who has served faithfully and fought for his country, and has perhaps been wounded and almost died at the post of honor and duty, that he should be unable to obtain his hard-earned pittance, when, too, he needs it for his own comfort, or when it may be that his family need it to keep them from absolute suffering.

Look at a single class of these collections, the back-pay of sick men. Government, we all allow, must have some system in its disbursements. It should not pay money without a voucher, and the proper voucher of a soldier is the pay-roll of the regiment or company of which he is a member. Now a sick or wounded man drops out of the ranks. He gets into a field hospital to which he does not belong. He is transferred from one hospital to another, from hospital to convalescent camp, and finally, it may be, is put on the list of men to be discharged for physical disability. Meanwhile his commanding officer does not know where he is, cannot trace him, thinks it very likely that he is a deserter. On pay-day the man's name is not on the roll, and, having no voucher, he gets no money. You say that there ought to be a remedy. There is none. It would be difficult to devise one. What shall the soldier do? He cannot go from point to point to collect evidence, for he is sick. Besides, he is utterly ignorant of the necessary forms. If he applies to a lawyer, it costs him often from one-half to three-quarters of all he gets. Very likely the lawyer cannot afford to take care of one or two petty cases for a less price. In this emergency the Commission steps in, and, with its knowledge of routine and its credit in all quarters, obtains for the poor fellow for nothing what he has in vain sought for in other ways. Take one single case, and what they would call at the Relief Office an easy case. Study it attentively, and you will get an idea of all cases,—and you will understand, moreover, how much work has to be done, and how impossible it would be for a sick man to do it.

Charles W. J——, is a member of Company K, One hundred and Twenty-First New York Regiment, and he has been transferred to this company and regiment from Company F of the Sixteenth New York. He has been thus transferred for the reason that the Sixteenth New York is a two years' regiment, whose time has expired, while he is a three years' recruit, who has a year or two more to serve. Now he claims that pay is due him from November 1, 1863, to August 1, 1864, and that he needs his pay very much to send home to his wife. He represents that he was at Schuyler Hospital from the time he left the ranks until December 17, 1863; that then he was sent to Convalescent Camp, New York Harbor; and on December 29, to Camp of Distribution at Alexandria; whence, February 8, 1864, he was brought to Staunton Hospital, Washington, where he now is. He has never joined his new regiment, has only been transferred with others to its rolls. His new officers have never seen him, and do not know where he is. The relief agent hears the story and then sets about proving all its details; first, that the man was a member of the Sixteenth New York Regiment; second, that he has been transferred to the One Hundred and Twenty-First Regiment; third, that he has never been paid beyond November 1, 1863; fourth, that he has really been in the various hospitals and camps which he mentions. This evidence is procured by writing to agents and surgeons at convalescent and distributing camps, and at Hospital Schuyler, and by examining the rolls of the Sixteenth and One Hundred and Twenty-First Regiments. In a few days or weeks the man's story is proved to be correct, and he is put into a position to receive his pay,—a satisfaction not simply in a pecuniary sense, but also to his soldierly pride, by removing an undeserved charge of desertion.

Now I beg my readers not to imagine that this is a difficult case. At the Relief Rooms they treasure up and mysteriously display, much as I suspect a soldier would flaunt a captured battle-flag, a certain roll of paper, I dare not say how many yards long, covered with certificates from one end to the other, obtained from all parts of the country and from all sorts of persons, and all necessary in order to secure perhaps a three or six months' pay of one sick soldier. The correspondence of the back-pay department is itself a burden. From thirty to forty letters on an average are received daily at one of its offices. They are written in all languages,—English, German, French,—and must be read, translated, and the ideas, conveyed often in the blindest style, ascertained and answered.

A new branch has recently been added,—the collection of pay for the families of those who are prisoners in Rebellom. But as this involves no new principles or fresh details, I pass it by. Another class of cases should receive a moment's notice. This includes the collection of bounties for discharged soldiers, of pensions for wounded soldiers, of bounty, back-pay, and pensions for the families of deceased soldiers, and of prize-money for sailors. These cases are not, as a general rule, as intricate as those which I have already considered, inasmuch as the proper departments have a regular system of investigation, and take up and examine for themselves each case in its turn. All that the Commission does is to put the soldier on the right track, and to make out and present for him the fitting application. It undertook this because Washington was infested with a horde of sharpers, who, by false representations, defrauded the soldiers out of large sums.

I cannot more appropriately close this branch of my subject than by stating the simple fact, that during the months of July and August, the relief agents examined and brought to a successful issue 809 cases of back-pay and bounty-money, averaging $125,—203 cases of invalid pensions, 378 cases of widows' pensions, and 10 cases of naval pensions, averaging $8 a month,—and 121 cases of prize-money, averaging $80.

I have only to add that the amount of good which can be done in this direction seems to be limited only by the capacity of those who undertake to do it. A relief agent said to me, in conversation, that in one hospital in Philadelphia, there were several hundreds who claimed, but were unable to collect their just dues,—and that what was true of this hospital was true to a less extent of all of them.

The Hospital Directory is a most interesting branch of Sanitary work. Not because it will compare with many other branches in extent of usefulness, but because it shows what a wide-reaching philanthropy is at work, seeking to furnish every possible alleviation to the inevitable hardships of war. Whoever has at any time had a sick or wounded friend in the army knows how difficult it often is to obtain any intelligence about him. I have in mind a poor woman, who exhausted every resource in seeking to ascertain the whereabouts of a sick son, and who never received any tidings of him, until one day, months after, he came home, worn-out and broken, to die. The regiment is in active service and passes on, while the sick man goes back. He has several transfers, too,—first to the corps hospital on the field, then to the army hospital at City Point, then to Washington, and very possibly again to some hospital in Baltimore, Philadelphia, or other city or town farther north, and on that account believed to be more healthy. Meanwhile, amid all these changes, the man may be delirious, or from some other cause unable to communicate with his friends. How shall they get information? The Commission undertakes to keep a correct list of all the sick and wounded men who are in regular hospitals. They obtain their information from the official returns of the surgeons. I do not mean to say that these lists are absolutely correct. They approximate as nearly to correctness as they ever can, until surgeons are perfectly prompt and careful in their reports.

The amount of work done is very great.

Seven hundred thousand names have been recorded in this Directory, between October, 1862, and July, 1864. From ten to twenty-five applications for information are made each day by letter, and from one hundred to two hundred and fifty personally or through the various State agencies. Branch offices, working upon a similar plan, have been established at Louisville and elsewhere.

The subject of assistance to regular hospitals may be despatched in a few words,—not because the gifts are insignificant, but because the method of giving is so regular and easy to explain. Whenever the surgeon of any hospital needs articles which are extras, and so not supplied by the Government, or which, if allowed, the Government is deficient in at the time, he makes a requisition upon the Commission; and if his requisition is deemed to be a reasonable one, it is approved, and the goods delivered on his receipt for the same. As to the amount given, I can only say that something is sent almost every day even to the hospitals near Washington and the great cities, and that the amount bestowed increases just in proportion to the distance of the hospital from the great Government centres of supply. This is a noiseless and unostentatious charity,—sometimes, I am tempted to think, too noiseless and unostentatious. A few weeks ago, a lady friend visited one of the hospitals near Washington, carrying with her for distribution some Sanitary goods. She gave a handkerchief to one of the sick men. He took it, looked at it, read the mark in the corner, paused as if he had received a new idea, and then spoke out his mind thus:—"I have been in this hospital six months, and this is the first thing I ever received from the Sanitary Commission." "But," she replied, "have you not had this and that?" mentioning several luxuries supplied to this very hospital for extra diet. "Oh, yes, often!" "Well, every one of these articles came from the Sanitary Commission."

Just now the Sanitary is seeking to enter into closer relations with the hospitals through the agency of regular visitors. The advantages of such a policy are manifest. The reports of the visitors will enable the directors to see more clearly the real wants of the sick; and the frequent presence and inquiries of such visitors will tend to repress the undue appropriation of hospital stores by attendants. But the highest benefit will be the change and cheer it will introduce into the monotony of hospital life. If you are sick at home, you are glad to have your neighbour step in and bring the healthy bracing air of out-door life into the dimness and languor of your invalid existence. Much more does the sick soldier like it,—for ennui, far more than pain, is his great burden. When I was at Washington, I accepted with great satisfaction an invitation to go with a Sanitary visitor on her round of duty. When we came to the hospital, I asked the ward-master if he would like to have me distribute among his patients the articles I had brought. He said that he should, for he thought it would do the poor fellows good to see me and receive the gifts from my own hands. The moment I entered there was a stir. Those who could hobble about stumped up to me to see what was going on; some others sat up in bed, full of alertness; while the sickest greeted me with a languid smile. As I went from cot to cot, the politeness of la belle France, with which a little Frenchman in the corner touched the tassel of his variegated nightcap at me, and the untranslatable gutturals, full of honest satisfaction, with which his German neighbour saluted me, and the "God bless your honor," which a cheery son of Old Erin showered down upon me, and the simple "Thank you, sir," which came up on all sides from our true-hearted New England boys, were alike refreshing to my soul. No doubt the single peach or two which with hearty good-will were given to them were as good as a feast; and it may be that the little comforts which I left behind me, and which had been borne thither on the wings of this divine charity, perhaps from some village nestling among the rocky hills of New England, or from some hamlet basking in the sunlight on the broad prairies of the West, had magic power to bring to that place of suffering some breath of the atmosphere of home to cheer the sinking heart, or some fragrant memory of far-off home affection to make it better. I came away with the feeling that visits from sunny-hearted people, and gifts from friendly hands must be a positive blessing to these sick and wounded people.

Of course the deepest throbb of interest is given to the work at the front of battle. That is natural. It is work done on the very spots where the fortunes of our nation are being decided,—on the spots whither all eyes are turned, and towards which all our hopes and prayers go forth. It is work surrounded by every element of pathos and of tragic interest. The wavering fortunes of the fight, the heroic courage which sustains a doubtful conflict, the masterly skill that turns disaster into triumph, the awful carnage, the terrible suffering, the manly patience of the wounded, all combine to fix the attention there and upon everything which is transacted there. The questions constantly asked,—What is the Sanitary doing at the front? what at City Point? what at Winchester? are natural questions. Let me state first the general plan and method of what I may call a Sanitary campaign, and afterwards add what I saw with my own eyes at City Point and before Petersburg, and what I heard from those who had themselves been actors in the scenes which they described.

When the army moves out from its encampment to the field of active warfare, two or three Sanitary wagons, loaded with hospital stores of all sorts, and accompanied by a sufficient number of relief agents, move with each army corps. These are for the supply of present need, and for use during the march, or after such skirmishes and fights as may occur before the Commission can establish a new base. In this way some of the Commission agents have followed General Grant's army all the way from the Rapidan, through the Wilderness, across the Mattaponi, over the James, on to the very last advance towards the Southside Railroad,—refilling their wagons with stores as opportunity has occurred. As soon now as the march commences and the campaign opens, preparations upon an extensive scale are made at Washington for the great probable demand. Steamers are chartered, loaded, and sent with a large force of relief agents to the vicinity of the probable battle-fields; or if the campaign is away from water communication, loaded wagons are held in readiness. The moment the locality of the struggle is determined, then, under the orders of the provost marshal, an empty house is seized and made the Sanitary headquarters, or general store-house; or else some canal barge is moored at the crazy Virginia wharf, and used for the same purpose. This store-house is kept constantly full from Washington, or else from Baltimore and New York; and the branch depots which are now established in each army corps are fed from it, while the hospitals, in their turn, make requisitions for all needful supplies on these branch depots. That is to say, the arrangements, though rougher and less permanent in their character, approximate very nearly to the arrangements at Washington.

A few details need to be added. Where the distance from the battle-field to the base of supplies is great, what are called feeding-stations are established every few miles, and here the wounded, on foot or in ambulances, can stop and take the refreshments or stimulants necessary to sustain them on their painful journey. At the steamboat landing the Commission has a lodge and agents, with crackers and beef-tea, coffee and tea, ice-water and stimulants, ready to be administered to such as need. Relief agents go up on the boats to help care for the wounded; and at Washington the same scene of active kindness is often enacted on their arrival as at their departure. This is the general plan of action everywhere, modified to suit circumstances, but always essentially the same. It will apply just as well West as East,—only for the names Baltimore, Washington, and City Point, you must put Louisville, Nashville, and Chattanooga.

When I was at City Point, the base of operations had been established there more than two months; and though there was much sickness, and the wounded were being brought in daily by hundreds from the prolonged struggle for the Weldon Road, everything moved on with the regularity of clock-work. As you neared the landing, coming up the James, you saw, a little farther up the river, the red flag of the Sanitary Commission floating over the three barges which were its office, its store-house, and its distributing store for the whole Army of the Potomac. Climbing up the steep road to the top of the bluff, and advancing over the undulating plain a mile, you come to a city—the city of hospitals. The white tents are arranged in lines of almost mathematical accuracy. The camp is intersected by roads broad and clean. Every corps, and every division of every corps, has its allotted square. Somewhere in these larger squares your eye will be sure to catch sight of the Sanitary flag, and beneath it a tent, where is the cross station. You enter, and you find within, if not as great an amount, at least as varied a supply, of hospital stores as you would find anywhere, waiting for surgeon's orders. To a very great extent, the extra diet for all the sick and wounded is furnished from these stores; and very largely the cooking of it is overseen by ladies connected with the Commission. In every corps there are from five to fifteen relief agents, whose duty it is to go through the wards once, twice, three times in each day, to see what the sick need for their comfort, to ascertain that they really get what is ordered, and in every way to alleviate suffering, and to promote cheerfulness and health.

I shall never forget a tour which I made with a relief agent through the wards for the blacks, both because it showed me what a watchful supervision a really faithful person can exercise, and because it gave such an opportunity to observe closely the conduct of these people. The demeanor of the colored patients is really beautiful,—so gentle, so polite, so grateful for the least kindness. And then the evidences of a desire for mental improve and religious life which meet you everywhere are very touching. Go from bed to bed, and you see in their hands primers, spelling-books, and Bibles, and the poor, worn, sick creatures, the moment they feel one throb of returning health striving to master their alphabet or spell out their Bible. In the evening, or rather in the fading twilight, some two hundred of them crept from the wards, and seated themselves in a circle around a black exhorter. Religion to them was a real thing; and so their worship had the beauty of sincerity, while I ought to add that it was not marked by that grotesque extravagance sometimes attributed to it. One cannot but think better of the whole race after the experience of such a Sabbath. The only drawback to your satisfaction is, that they die quicker and from less cause than the whites. They have not the same stubborn hopefulness and hilarity. Why, indeed, should they have?

Speaking of the white soldiers, everybody who goes into their hospitals is happily disappointed,—you see so much order and cheerfulness, and so little evidence of pain and misery. The soldier is quite as much a hero in the hospital as on the battlefield. Give him anything to be cheerful about, and he will improve the opportunity. You see men who have lost an arm or a leg, or whose heads have been bruised almost out of likeness to humanity, as jolly as they can be over little comforts and pleasures which ordinary eyes can hardly see with a magnifying glass. So it happens that a camp of six thousand sick and wounded, which seems at a distance a concentration of human misery that you cannot bear to behold, when near does not look half so lugubrious as you expected; and you are tempted to accuse the sick men of having entered into a conspiracy to look unnaturally happy.

If you go back now six or thirteen miles to the field hospitals, you find nothing essentially different. The system and its practical workings are the same. But it is a perpetual astonishment to find that here, near to the banks of a river that has not a respectable village on its shores, from Fortress Monroe to Richmond,—here, in a houseless and desolate land which can be reached only by roads which are intersected by gullies, which plunge into sloughs of despond, which lose themselves in the ridges of what were once cornfields, or meander amid stumps of what so lately stood a forest,—that here you have every comfort for the sick: all needed articles of clothing, the shirts and drawers, the socks and slippers; and all the delicacies, too, the farinas, the jellies, the canned meats and fruits, the concentrated milk, the palatable drinks and stimulants, and even fresh fruits and vegetables. And in such profusion, too? I asked the chief agent of the Commission in the Ninth Corps how many orders he filled in a day. "Look for yourself." I took down the orders; and there they were, one hundred and twenty strong, some for little and some for much, some for a single article and some for a dozen articles.

But it is not in camps of long standing that the wounded and sick suffer for want of care or lack of comforts. It is when the base is suddenly changed, when all order is broken up, when there are no tents at hand, when the stores are scattered, nobody knows where, after a great battle perhaps, and the wounded are pouring in upon you like a flood, and when it seems as if no human energy and no mortal capacity of transportation could supply the wants both of the well and the sick, the almost insatiable demands of the battle-field and the equally unfathomable needs of the hospital, it is then that the misery comes, and it is then that the Commission does its grandest work. After the battles of the Wilderness and Spottsylvania, twenty-five thousand wounded were crowded into Fredericksburg, where but ten thousand were expected. For a time supplies of all kinds seemed to be literally exhausted. There were no beds.

There was not even straw. There were not surgeons enough nor attendants enough. There was hardly a supply of food. Some found it difficult to get a drop of cold water. Poor, wounded men, who had wearily trudged from the battle-field and taken refuge in a deserted house, remained hours and a day without care, and without seeing the face of any but their wounded comrades. Then the Sanitary Commission sent its hundred and fifty agents to help the overburdened surgeons. Then every morning it despatched its steamer down the Potomac crowded with necessaries and comforts. Then with ceaseless industry its twenty wagons, groaning under their burden, went to and fro over the wretched road from Belle Plain to Fredericksburg. A credible witness says that for several days nearly all the bandages and a large proportion of the hospital supplies came from its treasury. No mind can discern and no tongue can declare what valuable lives it saved, and what sufferings it alleviated. Who shall say that Christian charity has not its triumphs proud as were ever won on battle-field? If the Commission could boast only of its first twenty-four hours at Antietam and Gettysburg and its forty-eight hours at Fredericksburg, it would have earned the everlasting gratitude and praise of all true men.

But is there not a reverse to this picture? Are there no drawbacks to this success? Is there no chapter of abortive plans, of unfaithful agents, of surgeons and attendants appropriating or squandering charitable gifts? These are questions which are often honestly asked, and the doubts which they express or awaken have cooled the zeal and slackened the industry of many an earnest worker. There is no end to the stories which have been put in circulation. I remember a certain mythical blanket which figured in the early part of the war, and which, though despatched to the soldier, was found a few weeks after, by its owner, adorning the best bed of a hotel in Washington. To be sure it seemed to have pursued a wandering life,—for now it was sent from the full stores of a lady in Lexington, and now it was stripped perhaps by a poor widow from the bed of her children, and then it was heard from far off in the West, ever seeking, but never reaching, its true destination. Without heeding any such stories, although they have done infinite mischief, I answer to honest queries, that I have no doubt that sometimes the stores of the Commission are both squandered and misappropriated. I do not positively know it; but I am sure that it would be a miracle if they were not. It would be the first time in human history that so large and varied a business, and extending over such a breadth of country and such a period of time, was transacted without waste. Look at the facts. Here are thousands of United States surgeons, and attendants of all ages and characters, through whose hands many of these gifts must necessarily go. What wonder, if here and there one should be found whose principles were weaker than his appetites? Consider also the temptations. These men are hard-worked, often scantily fed. Every nerve is tried by the constant presence of suffering, and every sense by fetid odors. Would it be surprising, if they sometimes craved the luxuries which were so close at hand? Moreover, the Commission employs hundreds of men, the very best it can get, but it would be too much to ask that all should be models of prudence, watchfulness, and integrity.

I allow, then, that some misappropriation is not improbable. At the same time I do say, that every department is vigilantly watched, and that the losses are trivial, compared with the immense benefits. I do say, emphatically, that to bring a wholesale charge against whole classes, whose members are generally as high-minded and honorable as any other, to accuse them as a body of wretched peculations, is simply false and slanderous. I maintain that fidelity is the rule, and that its reverse is the petty exception; and that it would be in opposition to all rules by which men conduct their lives to suffer such exceptions to influence our conduct, or diminish our contributions to a good cause. In business how often we are harassed by petty dishonesty or great frauds! Nevertheless, the tide of business sweeps on. Why? Because the good so outweighs the evil. The railroad employee is negligent, and some terrible accident occurs. But the railroad keeps on running all the same; for the public convenience and welfare are the law of its life, and private peril and loss but an occasional episode. By the same rule we support, without misgiving, the Commission, because the good which it certainly does, and the suffering it relieves, in their immensity cover up and put out of sight mistakes, which are incident to all human enterprise, and which are guarded against with all possible vigilance.

But allow all the good which is claimed, and that the good far transcends any possible evil, and then we are met by these further questions: Is such an organization necessary? Cannot Government do the work? And if so, ought not Government to do it?

I might with propriety answer: Suppose that Government ought to do the work and does not, shall we fold our hands and let our soldiers suffer? But the truth is, Government does do its duty. Some persons foolishly exaggerate the work of the Commission. They talk as though it were the only salvation of the wounded, as though the Government let everything go, and that, if the Commission and kindred societies did not step in, there would not be so much as a wreck of our army left. Such talk is simply preposterous. The Commission, considered as a free, spontaneous offering of a loyal people to the cause of our common country, is a wonderful enterprise. The Commission, standing ready to supply any deficiency, to remedy any defect, and to meet any unforeseen emergency, has done a good work that cannot be forgotten. But, compared with what Government expends upon the sick, its resources are nothing. I have not the figures at hand, though I have seen them; and it is hardly too much to say that, where the society has doled out a penny, the Government has lavished a pound.

No sane defender, therefore, of this charity supports it on any such ground as that it is the principal benefactor of the soldier. The Commission alone could no more support our hospitals than it could the universe. But the homely adage, "It is best to have two strings to your bow," applies wonderfully to the case. In practical life men act upon this maxim. They like to have an adjunct to the best-working machinery, a sort of reserved power. Every sensible person sees that our mail arrangements furnish to the whole people admirable facilities. Nevertheless, we like to have an express, and occasionally to send letters and packages by it. When the children are sick, there is nothing so good as the advice of the trusted family physician and the unwearied care of the mother. Yet when the physician has done his work and gone his way, and when the mother is worn out by days of anxiety and nights of watching, we deem it a great blessing if there is a kind neighbor who will come in, not to assume the work, but to help it on a little. The Commission, looking at the hospitals and the armies from a different point of view, sees much that another overlooks, and in an emergency, when all help is too little, brings fresh aid that is a priceless blessing. To the plain, substantial volume of public appropriations it adds the beautiful supplement of private benefactions. That is all that it pretends to do.

There are some special reflections that bear upon the point which we are considering. This war was sprung upon an unwarlike people. The officers of Government, when they entered upon their work, had no thought of the gigantic burdens which have fallen upon their shoulders. Since the war began Government, like every body else, has had to learn new duties, and to learn them amid the stress and perplexity of a great conflict. And, among other things, it has been obliged, in some respects, to recast its medical regulations to meet the prodigious enlargement of its medical work. Beyond a doubt, much help, which, on account of this imperfection of the medical code itself, or of the inexperience of many who administered it, was needed by our hospitals at the commencement of the war, is not needed now, and much help that is needed now may not, if the war lasts, be needed in the future. But it takes time to move the machinery of a great state. And when any change is to become the permanent law of public action, it ought to take both time and thought to effect it. You do not wish to alter and realter the framework of a state or of a state's activity as you would patch up a ruinous old house. If you work at all in any department, you should wish to work on a massive, well-considered plan, so that what you do may last. It is not likely, therefore, that, in the great field of suffering which the war has laid open to us, the public ministries will either be so quickly or so perfectly adjusted as to make private ministries a superfluity.

Neither do we reflect enough upon the limitations of human power. We think sometimes of Government as a great living organism of boundless resources. But, after all, in any department of state, what plans, what overlooks, what vitalizes, is one single human mind. And it is not easy to get minds anywhere clear enough and capacious enough for the large duties. It is easy to obtain men who can command a company well. It is not difficult to find those who can control efficiently a regiment. There are many to whom the care of five thousand men is no burden; a few who are adequate to an army corps. But the generals who can handle with skill a hundred thousand men, and make these giant masses do their bidding, are the rare jewels in war's diadem. Even so is it in every department of life. It is perhaps impossible to find a mind which can sweep over the whole field of our medical operations, and prepare for every emergency, and avoid every mistake; not because all men are unfaithful or incapable, but because there must be a limit to the most capacious intellect. Looking simply at the structure of the human mind, we might have foreseen, what facts have amply demonstrated, that in a war of such magnitude as that which we are now waging there always must be room for an organization like the Sanitary Commission to do its largest and noblest work.

But, above and beyond all such reflections, there are great national and patriotic considerations which more than justify, yea, demand, the existence of our war charities. Allowing that the outward comfort of the soldier (and who would grant it?) might be accomplished just as well in some other way,—allowing that in a merely sanitary aspect the Government could have done all that voluntary organizations have undertaken, and have done it as well as they or or better than they,—even then we do not allow for a moment that what has been spent has been wasted. What is the Sanitary Commission, and what are kindred associations, but so many bonds of love and kindness to bind the soldier to his home, and to keep him always a loyal citizen in every hope and in every heart-throb? This is the influence which we can least of all afford to lose. He must have been blind who did not see at the outset of the war that, beyond the immediate danger of the hour, there were other perils. We were trying the most tremendous experiment that was ever tried by any people. Out of the most peaceful of races we were creating a nation of soldiers. In a few months where there seemed to be scarcely the elements of martial strength, we were organizing an army which was to be at once gigantic and efficient. Who could calculate the effect of such a swift change? The questions many a patriotic heart might have asked were these: When this wicked rebellion is ended, when these myriads of our brethren whose lives have been bound up in that wondrous collective life, the life of a great army, shall return to their quiet homes by the hills and streams of New England, or on the rolling prairies of the West, will they be able to merge their life again in the simple life of the community out of which they came? Will they find content at the plough, by the loom, in the workshop, in the tranquil labors of civil life? Can they, in short, put off the harness of the soldier, and resume the robe of the citizen? Many a one could have wished to say to every soldier, as he went forth to the war, "Remember that, if God spares your life, in a few months or a few years you will come back, not officers, not privates, but sons and husbands and brothers, for whom some home is waiting and some human heart throbbing. Never forget that your true home is not in that fort beside those frowning cannon, not on that tented field amid the glory and power of military array, but that it nestles beneath yonder hill, or stands out in sunshine on some fertile plain. Remember that you are a citizen yet, with every instinct, with every sympathy, with every interest, and with every duty of a citizen."

Can we overestimate the influence of these associations, of these Soldiers' Aid Societies, rising up in every city and village, in producing just such a state of mind, in keeping the soldier one of us, one of the people? Five hundred thousand hearts following with deep interests his fortunes,—twice five hundred thousand hands laboring for his comfort,—millions of dollars freely lavished to relieve his sufferings,—millions more of tokens of kindness and good-will going forth, every one of them a message from the home to the camp: what is all this but weaving a strong network of alliance between civil and military life, between the citizen at home and the citizen soldier? If our army is a remarkable body, more pure, more clement, more patriotic than other armies,—if our soldier is everywhere and always a true-hearted citizen,—it is because the army and soldier have not been cast off from public sympathy, but cherished and bound to every free institution and every peaceful association by golden cords of love. The good our Commissions have done in this respect cannot be exaggerated; it is incalculable.

Nor should we forget the influence they have had on ourselves,—the reflex influence which they have been pouring back into the hearts of our people at home, to quicken their patriotism. We often say that the sons and brothers are what the mothers and sisters make them. Can you estimate the electric force which runs like an irresistible moral contagion from heart to heart in a community all of whose mothers and daughters are sparing that they may spend, and learning the value of liberty and country by laboring for them? It does not seem possible, that, amid the divers interests and selfish schemes of men, we ever could have sustained this war, and carried it to a successful issue, had it not been for the moral cement which these wide-spread philanthropic enterprises have supplied. Every man who has given liberally to support the Commission has become a missionary of patriotism; every woman who has cut and made the garments and rolled the bandages and knit the socks has become a missionary. And so the country has been full of missionaries, true-hearted and loyal, pleading, "Be patient, put up with inconveniences, suffer exactions, bear anything, rather than sacrifice the nationality our fathers bequeathed to us!" And if our country is saved, it will be in no small degree because so many have been prompted by their benevolent activity to take a deep personal interest in the struggle and in the men who are carrying on the struggle.

These national and patriotic influences are the crowning blessings which come in the train of the charities of the war; and they constitute one of their highest claims to our affection and respect. The unpatriotic utterances which in these latter days so often pain our ears, the weariness of burdens which tempt so many to be ready to accept anything and to sacrifice anything to be rid of them, admonish us that we need another uprising of the people and another re-birth of patriotism; and they show us that we should cherish more and more everything which fosters noble and national sentiments. And when this war is over, and the land is redeemed, and we come to ask what things have strengthened us to meet and overcome our common peril, may we not prophesy that high among the instrumentalities which have husbanded our strength, and fed our patriotism, and knit more closely the distant parts of our land and its divided interests, will be placed the United States Sanitary Commission?

To Ticknor and Fields, publishers of Atlantic Monthly, our readers are indebted for the foregoing valuable article.

LETTER FROM NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

BY C. B. RUGGLES.

March 1, 1865.

THE GRAVES OF THE DEAD.

I report the following in regard to my work on the battle-field of Nashville, during the past few weeks. Early in January my attention was called to the bodies of the heroes of this battle, by many persons coming here from the North in search of the remains of departed friends. One man, a Mr. Bracken, from St. Paul, Minnesota, was here for several weeks, searching for the grave of his brother. After visiting the regiment, now lying at Eastport, of which his brother was a member, and getting directions from the men who buried him, he was at last successful in finding the place of his burial, although some wanton hand had removed the head-board and every trace of the grave. While aiding Mr. B. in his search, I made a record of the locality of every grave which we could find with the names on the head-boards, whenever there were any. These graves were scattered over a large extent of territory, from the Charlotte to beyond the Franklin pike; in yards and gardens, near houses, by the road-side, in meadows and tillage lands, in the woods, by fences, wherever the poor boys had chanced to fall—except the graves of negro soldiers and a few of the whiter, but not otherwise nobler heroes. The negroes, some fifty in number, were buried in one trench, near the Overton Hill, and another trench, in front of Compton's Hill, holds fifteen Minnesota boys. The list of names from the head-boards, enabled several to find the graves of their friends quite easily.

A BENEDICTION.

One man, from a town in N. Y., came to a surgeon in one of the hospitals here, and asked his aid in finding the grave of his friend. The surgeon, in his perplexity, came to the Sanitary Commission, and to his surprise was informed where the body could be found. The hearty "God bless the Sanitary Commission" which was his expression of thanks, amply repaid me for many a hard ride in collecting the list.

A CLERGYMAN'S SON.

A clergyman, from Iowa, came for the body of his son; and although he was buried without a head-board, we were enabled by knowing the position of the regiment in the charge, and by accounts which the father had from his comrades, to find the grave at once. The above illustrate several instances of the kind.

REMOVAL OF THE DEAD.

As the spring opened, and preparations were being made to till the land, it was evident that many of the graves, if the bodies were permitted to remain on the field, must soon be obliterated; and also those near the houses would soon be removed by the occupants. The head-boards in several instances had already been destroyed; therefore, I determined to make an effort for the removal of all the bodies to the Soldiers' Cemetery, where the graves could be well marked, and monuments erected over their last resting places, if friends desire. Besides, in the removal we could examine the bodies of the "unknown," and perhaps be able to answer some of the many inquiries which are received here, for friends who were last heard of before the battle of Nashville.

A statement of the case was made to General Miller, commander of the post, who fully sympathized with the project, and immediately made an arrangement with Mr. Cornelius, the government undertaker, to remove the bodies of all Union soldiers, under the superintendence of the Sanitary Commission. The work is now going on, some 50 bodies have already been removed, and in one or two weeks it will be completed. The bodies are taken up, and a record is made of everything which will help friends to recognize them. I select a few names from the record, to illustrate.

RECORDS OF UNKNOWN.

Unknown Soldier.—Brown hair, full beard, cavalry man, shot in side by shell, five feet eight inches high, aged about 22, buried to the left of Hillsboro' pike, near J. Compton's, body covered with tent cloth, a gum blanket near grave was marked W. Hall or Hale, 100 O. V. I. Number of grave, 12,274.

Unknown Officer.—Buried beside lane leading to Casmon's house. Officer's blouse, staff buttons, five feet five inches high, light hair, heavy moustache, small goatee, rest of face smooth, checked muffler about the neck, buried in box, reported by negroes to have died the night of the 15th of December, and to have been buried by a friend, who called him Captain. Number of grave, 12,275.

THE WIFE.

J. Henry.—Eighth Wisconsin, Co. I. Buried near Castleman's place. Head-board was marked with his wife's address, viz:—Mrs. J. Henry, Viroqua, Vernon County, Wisconsin. Number of grave, 12,276.

Each body as it is taken up is placed in a neat coffin, the same as those used in burying from the hospitals, and laid in a separate grave, in a square set apart for the Nashville heroes. The graves are numbered in order with all others buried from the hospitals. I think the number of bodies will not much exceed two hundred. When this work at Nashville is completed we hope to get the same done at Franklin.

A request has already been sent to General Thomas for the order, but his action is not yet known.

LETTERS FROM WILMINGTON, N. C.

BY T. W. FOSTER.

February 27, 1865

I have the honor to report the workings of the Sanitary Commission in the Army of the Ohio, Department of North Carolina, during the month of February, 1865.

On February the 8th, I arrived at Fort Fisher with the large supply of goods that was shipped from City Point on the 2d. Through the kindness of Capt. Lamb, A. Q. M., I got the whole supply at the station during the afternoon.

HOW IT WORKS.

On the 9th, 10th, and 11th I went around to every regiment in the field, leaving each regiment its portion of paper and envelopes, and at the same time giving the regiments an order for dried fruit, according to their aggregate strength, which was highly appreciated by officers and men, as some had been sixty and even ninety days without vegetables.

On the nights of the 11th and 13th, the 24th corps was ordered up the beach, about fifteen miles. I followed them, returning in the morning, and as no wagons were allowed to go, I packed my mule, so as to be on hand if any sanitary stores should be wanted.

THE ADVANCE.

Dr. Washburn thanked me kindly for being on the ground, as transportation was so limited. On the 12th, General Terry moved his whole force about two miles in advance of the old works, thus bringing his outer line under the rebel breastworks. The colored division was in advance; our casualties were light. I followed up the army Field Hospital with supplies, giving the wounded milk punch, and clean clothing before going to the rear, particularly those who had suffered amputation.

The wounded were sent to the base hospital, some five miles distant, in army wagons; and on their arrival they were well cared for by Mr. Adams; he deserves much credit for the manner in which he distributed milk punch, clothing, &c.

On the morning of the 19th, at 1 o'clock, A.M., I received a request to accompany the troops that were to cross the river. I loaded my cart with shirts, drawers, socks, tea, milk, canned beef, whiskey, &c., &c.; during the day there were 19 wounded and 1 killed. The hospital had no transportation except what men could carry on stretchers, so you will readily see that all the wounded would get was what the Sanitary agents could furnish them.

ON THE RIVER.

After the wounded were all taken care of, I secured a sail boat to run stores up the river, as they were needed. As the cart would get empty, I filled it from the boat, moving with the army up the river, which served as a base.

RECEPTION BY PRISONERS.

On the 22nd, about 10 o'clock A.M., I entered Wilmington with the troops, who marched up the streets to the buildings now occupied by our captured soldiers. There was a scene that no language that I can write can express; feelings of sympathy were aroused in all for the poor fellows, and indignation against those who are responsible for their starvation. The next thought that seemed to enter the mind was, what can the Sanitary do for the poor fellows? Many would look at the little flag on the cart so heavily loaded, and say, "God bless the Sanitary." It was here I left the column and commenced distributing clothing, &c.

I gave the cooks beef-stock to make up at once, for men that had not tasted meat or soup for three months. Tea and milk for supper was a great treat for the poor boys.

Mr. Adams has not as yet arrived from Fort Fisher. I have not heard from you or the supply that I ordered on the 11th inst. I am in hopes to hear from them, and hear that a large and general supply is on the way.

Three thousand prisoners arrived here this day.

March 5, 1865.

I have the honor to make a report of the work of the Commission, in this department, since the capture of Wilmington.

THE EXCHANGE.

About ten days ago our exchanged prisoners commenced coming in. I was notified by the medical director of the fact, several hours beforehand, and knowing their condition I immediately pressed ten colored men to work, making fires and drawing water.

By the time the first boat arrived, we had some 90 gallons of hot milk-punch, which we distributed to them as they landed; this has been done with every boat that has arrived, and before leaving they were furnished with more for their use on the journey. We have, since the 22d of February, furnished all the hospitals with milk-punch, ready made, for those who required it; and these are not a few. The hospitals are all full, and about 1,500 men are in the railroad depot; the majority of them are almost starved to death. We have them drawn up in line, with cups in their hands, and then send three or four men with buckets, who pass along with the punch, giving each man his portion. Time after time has the Commission been heartily cheered by these starved, ragged, abused, but brave soldiers.

There was a great demand for clothing, but owing to our limited supply, and the great number of calls, many were refused who really needed it; but they did complain when told there was none.

On the 21st inst. I followed up the army on the right bank of the river, with a strong mule and cart, heavily loaded with beef-stock, milk, tea, sugar, crackers, farina, shirts, drawers, socks, rags, bandages, &c., &c., and distributed them from time to time to the best advantage.

I think the Commission has done a vast amount of good in this department, with the quantity of stores furnished, and I have been aided very much by the following articles, which have been turned over to me:—22 barrels liquor, 16 of whiskey, 6 of rum, 7 barrels of dried apples, one half barrel of sugar, 1 barrel of syrup, 1 barrel of fish, 50 lbs. hams, 50 lbs. of crackers. These were given to me by the provost-marshal, who has promised to send me two or three cases of tobacco.

I hope to hear from you soon, and see a good load of stores.

"NEW YORK OBSERVER" AND TWENTY FACTS.

The following article, from the New York Observer, was noticed in the last number of the BULLETIN. The reply there given cannot be admitted into the columns of the Observer without the publication of the following in the BULLETIN. We cheerfully afford the needed space to the Observer, and wish our readers to compare the two articles and judge for themselves. The question of circulating religious reading in the army has been discussed now for four years, in all its bearings, and a few facts have been established, which we prefix to the Observer's article, as follows :

1. The soldiers must have reading matter.
2. The Government does not supply it.
3. The soldiers cannot procure it themselves.
4. The people must furnish it.
5. The people must furnish it through some voluntary agency, emanating from themselves.
6. The first agency that appeared in the field, as the expression of the people, was the U. S. Sanitary Commission.
7. This agency comprehended the whole work, and as the war progressed, it enlarged its sphere of operations; and has received, all the time, the sympathy and support of the people.
8. It has always been the office of the Sanitary Commission to furnish supplies of all needed kinds, to all the army in all places, where the Government required its help.
9. It has been busily engaged doing this work of distributing supplies, and reading matter of various kinds, from churches, and publishing houses, and benevolent individuals, and still has the esteem and confidence of the people and the army, as well as the encouragement and aid of the Government.
10. A new organization, called the Christian Commission, came into the field, six months after the United States Sanitary Commission was appointed by President Lincoln, and assumed the work of collecting and distributing religious reading.

11. This Commission, assuming the name "Christian" as a distinctive title, claimed to represent the Christian sentiment of the people, and to be the judge, for the army, as to what was Christian reading matter, and act accordingly.

12. The Christian people did not withdraw their support from the Sanitary Commission, but were as zealous as ever in offering their contributions for its support.

13. The Sanitary Commission proposed to form a union between the two organizations, so that they should act in harmony with each other, and thus teach foreign nations, that while the American people were struggling for their perpetuity as one nation, they could demonstrate one spirit of true Christian charity and effort in the trying times of their struggle.

14. The Christian Commission refused to accept the offer, and thus failed to confess the broad charity of a common brotherhood in this work.

15. There was thus exhibited to the country the original national organization appointed by the Government, with its new and zealous rival—the first embracing all the people, and covering the wide field of the nation's resources; the second excluding from its communion a large portion of the people, and yet asking from all a liberal support.

16. These two organizations are now in the field, both doing the same work.

17. The chief objection to the Sanitary Commission is, that it is broad, comprehensive, and unfettered by ecclesiastical rules.

18. The chief boast of the Christian Commission is, that it excludes from its fellowship all who do not subscribe to certain teachings of religion, which they assert are necessary to the Christian character.

19. The people perceive and understand the difference, and can afford to go on with their work of supplying the army and helping the Government, without being moved from their purpose by discussions as to who are, and who are not Christians.

20. That man is a Christian, and that society a Christian society, which does the whole work of Christ in the way of His appointment.

Who will be the judge? Man in his ignorance, or God in his wisdom?

From N. Y. Observer.

SANITARY SUPPLIES FOR SOULS OF SOLDIERS.

From various quarters we receive information of the wide and constant circulation of Universalist and Unitarian tracts in the army, and through the agency of the Sanitary Commission. We speak of it not to find fault, either with those who furnish or those who distribute them. And in making use of the fact to awaken new and larger interest in efforts to give the pure gospel, the real bread of life, to our brave soldiers, we are specially solicitous to avoid the suspicion of a desire to censure those who do not believe as we do, for seeking to persuade others to believe as they do.

Of course we think it evil, and only evil, to put into the hands of any man, especially one who is exposed to the dangers of war, a tract with such teachings as this:

"God is love, and he loves us right through. He loves us here, he will love us yonder. He loves us now, he will love us forever. Death makes no difference with the love of God. When the body is dead, then God takes that one good grain that is in us all, and plants it again in better soil than this, and under a kindlier sky, and he will care for us, and see to our growth forever and forever."

This is from a tract for a sick soldier, one of a series of army tracts, published by the American Unitarian Association, and distributed by the Sanitary Commission, in the hospitals of the army, from the Potomac to the mouth of the Mississippi. The tract is full of the doctrine of Universalism, and it is read by hundreds and thousands of sick and dying men. A correspondent of the Monthly Journal of the Unitarian Association says of this tract: "Boys in the hospitals at Frederick have told me that they have read and re-read it five or six times." In the same number of the Journal the relief agent of the Sanitary Commission, at Newbern, says: "I wish I had a large invoice of your army tracts and the Soldier's Companion, for distribution in the camps and hospitals of this department. Your publications would be gladly received here, and would do great good. I am in a position to give them an extensive circulation." Again, at Washington, Rev. F. A. Knapp, agent of the Sanitary Commission there, acknowledging a second box of 4,000 tracts, says: "Allow me to thank the Association through you, and for the Sanitary Commission, for this liberal supply of reading (and singing) matter. Although so large, it will be distributed within ten days at the furthest, and give aid and comfort to a great many suffering soldiers. We shall then be ready and glad to receive again of your bounty for these poor fellows, who ask for books as if craving for food." The agents of the Sanitary Commission not only distribute, but beg for these supplies of poison to give to sick soldiers. We do not object to their distributing what is sent to them under their rule to circulate all the books and tracts sent to them; but we suggest that it is carrying the thing a little too far, when their agents, who are paid for another work, make imploring appeals for Universalist tracts to distribute in the hospitals of the army.

In another place the publishers of these tracts say: "We have sent large quantities of the tracts to the Sanitary Commission, at New York, Washington, Newbern, N. C., Louisville, Ky., Evansville, Ind., and St. Louis, Mo.; and to hospitals and regiments at Baltimore, Annapolis, and Frederick, Md.; Philadelphia, New Orleans, and other places too numerous to mention." And their army agent writes: "I am permitted to state that it has just been decided by the managers of the Sanitary Commission to offer to distribute impartially for all denominations whatever religious matter they may supply. I took especial pains to ascertain by my intercourse with the officers of the Commission whether it would be advisable to avail ourselves of this offer, and I am satisfied that it would, (second of course to the method already described.) This gives us the means of distributing an unlimited amount."

There are two points toward which it is proper for the friends of the Sanitary Commission and the friends of the gospel of the New Testament to turn their attention, in connection with the facts we have now recited.

1. If the Sanitary Commission undertakes to supply religious instruction for the army, it will distribute whatever is committed to its care for that purpose. It cannot be expected to discriminate against books containing Roman Catholic, Universalist, or even rationalistic and infidel sentiments. There is an agency here in New York for the publication of infidel tracts, and they have been cunningly mixed up with packages of Evangelical tracts, and so smuggled into the camps and hospitals. The Sanitary Commission, with Rev. Dr. Bellows, Unitarian, at its head, cannot decline to send these or any other publications entrusted to them. And it is worthy of inquiry if this was the service for which the Sanitary Commission is instituted and supported by the contributions of the patriotic and benevolent? Every man who gives a dollar to its funds aids in supporting those agents who send their appeals for Universalist books and tracts, and then distribute them among the soldiers. We are free to express our deep and solemn conviction that the Sanitary Commission should decline altogether the work of circulating religious reading, rather than be made the agent for the spread of those works which the great body of its supporters believe to be destructive to the souls of men. If it does work for one sect, it must for all; and, as there is no necessity for its aid in this department of labor, it is worthy of its consideration whether impartial duty to its patrons does not demand the expenditure of its strength upon the appropriate work for which it was instituted, leaving the distribution of tracts, good or bad, to other agencies formed for that purpose.

Another point is this: If the mighty agency of the Sanitary Commission is employed in distributing Universalist tracts to "an unlimited amount" among our sick and dying soldiers, is it not the duty of evangelical Christians to put forth vastly augmented efforts to give the knowledge of the way of life by Jesus Christ to them who are ready to perish? Hundreds and thousands of soldiers have been converted by these efforts, and the intelligence we have from the army is full of encouragement to increase and extend them. While those who teach the soldier that all men, good or bad, will be saved, are sowing tares, let us who believe that repentance and faith are essential to the soul's salvation, be up and doing with our might to give the gospel to the army.

LETTER FROM DOCTOR AGNEW.

WILMINGTON, N. C.,
March 20, 1865, 11 P.M. }

MY DEAR DOCTOR:—I am now writing from the steamer Chase, at the dock at Wilmington. We left Morehead City at 12 M., yesterday, reached the bar off Wilmington at 10 30 P.M., and came to anchor to await daylight and high tides, at 11 A.M., we crossed the bar, passing Fort Fisher, and reached Wilmington at 1 P.M. We immediately sought for Mr. Foster, and found him exhausted from hard and continuous labor. He had dispensed the last of his stores yesterday afternoon at 4 30, our arrival, therefore, being most fortunate. I saw at once General J. C. Abbott, commandant of the Post, and Captain Lamb, Post Quartermaster, and obtained a wharf and storehouse for our cargo. Dr. J. C. Dalton immediately explored the town, and ascertained that about 1,500 returned prisoners and 2,400 sick and wounded from Generals Sherman and Terry's forces were still here in hospitals, the former in a condition impossible to describe, and the latter needing also many of our supplies. The medical officers were delighted to hear of our arrival, and expressed the warmest thanks, in advance, for the stores brought. General J. R. Hawley, commanding the district, at once, upon hearing of our arrival, sent an orderly on board of our vessel, with a note expressing his gladness at our arrival, and a warm sense of the value of the supplies of food and clothing which we had bought. To-morrow morning at 6 o'clock Captain Lamb will send a detail of 50 men to unload our vessel, and Mr. Foster, our agent, will receive the stores and issue them at once. Every thing we have will be immediately used. We only left about one-fourth of the cargo at Morehead, and I cannot tell you how thankful I am that we did so. We could not obtain any reliable information at Morehead of the condition of things here, and hence our bringing so large a portion of the cargo was most providential.

The returned prisoners sent into Wilmington numbered nearly 9,000. About 7,000 of the less famished have gone North. General Abbott, who received our poor fellows in the exchange, has just told me that language would utterly fail to describe their condition. Filth, rags, nakedness, starvation were personified in their condition. Many of the men were in a state of mind resembling idiocy, unable to tell their names, and lost to all sense of modesty, unconscious of their nakedness and personal condition. Some of them moving about on their hands and knees, unable to stand upon their gangrenous feet, looking up like hungry dogs, beseeching the observer for a bite of bread or a sup of water. Some of them hitched along on their hands and buttocks, pushing gangrenous feet literally reduced to bone and shreds before them. Others leaned upon staves, and glared from sunken eyes through the parchment-like slits of their open eyelids into space, without having the power to fix an intelligent gaze upon passing objects. Others giggled and smirked and hobbled like starved idiots; while some adamantine figures walked erect, as though they meant to move the skeleton homewards so long as vitality enough remained to enable them to do so. To see the men who remain here in hospital would move a heart as hard and cold as marble. Their condition is that of men who have for months suffered chronic starvation. Their arms and legs look like coarse reeds with bulbous joints. Their faces look as though a skilful taxidermist had drawn tanned skin over the bare skull, and then placed false eyes in the orbital cavities. They defy description. It would take a pen expert in the use of every term known to the anatomist and the physician to begin to expose their fearful condition. May God, in his infinite mercy, forgive the creatures who have done this horrid thing.

Everything we have with us will be needed, so that I shall not have much, to leave at Morehead on my return. We propose, through Dr. Buzzel and the hearty co-operation of Generals Hawley and Abbott, and Captains Lamb and Hopkins, to commence to-morrow to clothe and feed these sufferers. We shall issue about 4,000 suits of woolen clothing, and feed every sufferer for at least three weeks to come. The surgeons have promised to issue our tomatoes, beef stock, condensed milk, chocolate, soft crackers, onions and potatoes as freely as the starved men can eat them. They now have army rations, and such food as the hospital fund can purchase in this bare market, but many of them cannot muster physical power enough to bite a hard cracker, or stomach to digest beef or pork. They must be fed with nourishing broths and vegetable food for a long time, before they can be moved North. Many, alas! will go to the cemetery to lengthen the lines of graves, now so long.

Wilmington is very, very dirty; its alleys and back-yards are as bad as they can be, and no one who has not been in the South can form an idea of what this means. The streets swarm with refugees, 15,000 black refugees, and about 5,000 white ones. Almost all of these people occupy one dead level of poverty. The negroes can work for the Quartermaster and get rations and pay. About 4,000 white refugees are fed daily by a local relief committee from stores of corn meal and rice, while all draw rations from the post commissary, of pork and beans. Such a scene I have never before witnessed. Now, a few words in regard to supplies. I cannot yet say, in whole, what will be needed here additional, but we need some helpers for Mr. Foster, who is overworked. I would propose to have Mr. Knapp run down here at once. Many details in the conduct of the future relief work will demand his skilled labor. Lime is needed to disinfect the city, say 500 bbls., in the proportion of 150 bbls. of chloride of lime, to 350 of unslacked lime. Ice is needed in the hospitals. Lemons greatly needed, they should be sound ones, or else portable lemonade would be better. Slippers are needed, say 1,000 pairs. Bed-ticks, say 1,500; also shoes, 1,000. I write as I think, and therefore may prolong my letter and make it more obscure than it should be.

I shall unload the Chase to-morrow, and dispatch her to New York, direct, via Beaufort, N. C., if her coal will carry her there, if not, to Fortress Monroe, to coal, and thence to New York. She draws too much water for us. The Uncas is a better boat for our purposes as she can run to Newbern via Hatteras inlet, and also over the bar to Wilmington. My being compelled to lighten the Chase, at Beaufort, caused three days' detention. It is not safe to send a steamer to these parts on such errands as we run, drawing more than eight and one-half feet for Newbern, or twelve for Beaufort, or ten and one-half for Wilmington. Send, to repeat, Mr. Knapp to Wilmington with an assistant or two, and answer all Dr. Page's requisitions. Send very few, if any, potatoes or onions. Send it to the committee at New York after you have read it. Nothing from Dr. Marsh later than my last. Dr. Page is deserving of our highest esteem and confidence.

Supplies sent to North Carolina by steamer Chase, March 11, 1865, to be drawn upon for the relief of exchanged Union prisoners, and the sick of General Sherman's army at Wilmington.

|                               |       |                                    |       |
|-------------------------------|-------|------------------------------------|-------|
| Blankets.....                 | 1750  | Sour-kraut, bbls.....              | 166½  |
| Flannel drawers.....          | 2400  | Tomatoes, cans.....                | 12000 |
| Flannel shirts.....           | 2400  | Condensed milk, cans.....          | 12000 |
| Knit shirts.....              | 2904  | Condensed coffee, cans.....        | 92    |
| Knit drawers.....             | 2-04  | Ground coffee, lbs.....            | 1875  |
| Wool half hose.....           | 6000  | Crackers, bbls.....                | 479   |
| Cotton shirts.....            | 211   | Maizena, cases.....                | 40    |
| Towels.....                   | 3084  | Corn starch, cases.....            | 20    |
| Handkerchiefs.....            | 1008  | Chocolate, lbs.....                | 3300  |
| Shoes, pairs.....             | 60    | Bourbon whiskey, bbls.....         | 1320  |
| Beef-stock, lbs.....          | 2040  | Stock ale, bbls.....               | 10    |
| Onions, bbls.....             | 507   | Lemon syrup, doz. bbls.....        | 8     |
| Potatoes, bbls.....           | 529   | Smoking tobacco, dozen papers..... | 28    |
| Pickled tomatoes, gals.....   | 1457  | Tobacco, lbs.....                  | 50    |
| Pickled onions, gals.....     | 3162½ | Thread, lbs.....                   | 132   |
| Pickles, cucumbers, bbls..... | 194   | Pen-holders, gross.....            | 8     |
| Needles.....                  | 12000 | Pencils, gross.....                | 4     |
| Writing paper, reams.....     | 270   | Ink, doz.....                      | 24    |
| Envelopes.....                | 51500 | Ink-stands, doz.....               | 12    |
| Pens, gross.....              | 42    |                                    |       |

Also chloroform, opium, cushions, crutches, haversacks, candles, soap, suspenders, combs, head-posts, bed-pans, urinals, stationary, cooking utensils, tin-cups, &c.

PETERSBURGH AND RICHMOND.

That the public may be relieved from anxiety with respect to the provision made for the comfort of our sick and wounded at Richmond, Petersburg, and City Point, the Sanitary Commission would say that they had on Friday last an abundant supply of all things necessary on the spot, and that since then two vessels loaded with supplies, in addition, have reached City Point, and others will be dispatched.

The Commission, with a view to the present emergency, has provided a full corps of agents, both with the army and at the hospitals at or near City Point, where most of the wounded are brought.

Two gentlemen of the Commission, from this city, visited the army last week, and found every preparation made for the emergency.

In addition to the heavy stock at City Point and with the army, the following articles have reached there since Friday last.

Respectfully yours,
R. M. LEWIS.

General Superintendent of Philadelphia Branch of the United States Sanitary Commission.

|                                    |       |                            |      |
|------------------------------------|-------|----------------------------|------|
| Shirts, woolen.....                | 10000 | Suspenders, pairs.....     | 1200 |
| Shirts, cotton hospital.....       | 2687  | Blankets.....              | 1000 |
| Drawers, woolen, pairs.....        | 10000 | Combs, fine, gross.....    | 2200 |
| Drawers, cotton, pairs.....        | 2000  | Black's cordial, bbls..... | 1200 |
| Socks, woolen, pairs.....          | 5000  | Crackers, lbs.....         | 200  |
| Towels.....                        | 20000 | Beef and mutton, cans..... | 1500 |
| Handkerchiefs.....                 | 11000 | Cups, tin.....             | 5000 |
| Comfort bags, house-wives, &c..... | 1125  | Pails, wooden.....         | 140  |
| Slippers, pairs.....               | 1500  | Condensed milk.....        | 9600 |
|                                    |       | Corn starch, lbs.....      | 4000 |

|                                     |      |                                |      |
|-------------------------------------|------|--------------------------------|------|
| Maizena lbs.....                    | 2000 | Pickles, galls.....            | 1433 |
| Farina, lbs.....                    | 4500 | Pickles, jars.....             | 100  |
| Dried apples, bbls.....             | 20   | Old linen, lbs.....            | 7    |
| Campbor mixtures, gr.....           | 5    | Jamaica ginger, galls.....     | 50   |
| White thread, lbs.....              | 25   | Sugar, bbls.....               | 20   |
| Black thread, lbs.....              | 24   | Soap, castile boxes.....       | 20   |
| Yarn, lbs.....                      | 50   | Soap, brown family, boxes..... | 40   |
| Tin dippers, with long handles..... | 200  | Candles, boxes.....            | 12   |
| Combs, coarse, gross.....           | 2200 | Knives and forks, gr.....      | 20   |
| Chocolate, lbs.....                 | 2000 | Cushions.....                  | 2000 |
| Bay rum, bbls.....                  | 500  | Plates, tin, gross.....        | 6    |
| Crutches, pairs.....                | 2000 | Cond. egg (desiccated).....    | 200  |
| Con'd lemonade, boxes.....          | 70   | Head rests.....                | 50   |
| Apple batter, galls.....            | 75   | Pings tobacco, lbs.....        | 2000 |
| Lemons, boxes.....                  | 20   | Smoking tobacco, lbs.....      | 2000 |
| Ale, bbls.....                      | 1400 | Brooms.....                    | 36   |
| Pillows.....                        | 300  | Tin pails, small.....          | 100  |
| Fruit asst'd, dried, bbls.....      | 1000 | Tobacco pipes, boxes.....      | 25   |

And a large amount of stationery and other useful articles.—Philadelphia Papers, April 5, 1865.

LETTER FROM PATRICK STATION.

BY J. HENRY DAVIS.

March 26, 1865.

Early yesterday morning the troops were under arms and in motion. Orders were given to the hospitals of the 2d Corps to pack up and to be ready to move at a moment's notice. The 2d Corps station. Sanitary Commission, were instructed to pack up and move with the 3d Division. The surplus stock, large tent and stove, were sent down to the Point under charge of Mr. Peck. The two wagons belonging to this station were loaded and everything got ready for a march. The 5th Corps station did not move, the 5th Corps hospital not receiving orders to pack up; but Mr. Barton, in charge of the station, had his wagons packed, and could have moved at short notice.

Before sunrise of the 25th, the enemy made a sortie on front of the 9th Corps, surprised and captured a fort, turning its guns upon our troops. The enemy were successful for a time, but our brave men were soon rallied and forced the enemy to retire, after suffering severe loss. Our loss was slight, in all not over 400.

The 2d Corps began before daylight to feel the enemy's lines, on their front. The 3d Division commenced at 3 o'clock to skirmish with the rebel line, which was responded to by the enemy with spirit; the 6th Corps also commenced picket firing. This amusement was kept up all day, varied by occasional discharge of heavy guns.

During this time the rebels had strengthened their skirmish and picket line, until it became a strong line of battle. About 5 in the afternoon the 3d Division of the 2d Corps were ordered to charge the rebel lines, which they did most gallantly, capturing many prisoners, and the enemy's old picket line, which was held by Alabama and Georgia troops. The 1st Division also charged along their lines, capturing many rebels. The official list of the wounded foots up to about 100 killed, and between 5 and 600 wounded, and perhaps 50 missing. This loss is between the 3d and 1st Divisions. The 2d Division suffered slightly, their loss being only 40. The 6th Corps also made a charge, capturing 500 prisoners and holding their old picket line. At dusk the building known as General _____'s quarters was fired, and lit up the scene for some hours. The loss of the 6th Corps was between 3 and 400 in all. The 5th Corps were, with the exception of the 1st Division, in reserve, under cover of Fort Fisher, and supporting the 6th Corps. The 1st Division, 5th Corps, were held along the left, on the flank of the 2d Corps; throwing out their skirmish line they found the enemy, engaged him for some time, inflicting some loss upon the enemy, and losing about 50 in all. Mr. Barton is busy looking after the wounded in that direction.

The 6th Corps wounded have all been sent in. Our wounded at this point will be loaded on the cars at 1 o'clock, and sent to the Point. About 1 o'clock yesterday the first load of wounded came into the 3d Division, 2d Corps. I at once gave instructions to make milk punch, which was done and continued far into the night. Up to this time over 100 gallons of punch have been made and given to the sufferers. All about this station have worked well. They have, I am proud to say, done their duty. Mr. Thomas and Mr. Vasser were dispatched to the field with canteens filled with punch, and performed signal service in ministering to the sorrows of our wounded braves.

The 1st Division has been supplied with crackers and many with shirts. On every side we hear the warmest expressions of gratitude to the people of the North, who through the Commission, aid so nobly, remembering their fellow citizens on the battle-field. My supplies, with a few exceptions, are yet ample; my stock of milk, and liquors, and crackers, is getting short. If you will send up 3 cases whiskey, 2 barrels crackers, 3 cases milk, I think I would be as ready as ever to relieve the wounded. If you could add 2 cases tomatoes, it would be a blessing.

On the whole yesterday was a day of victory. The object was probably to ascertain the strength of the enemy, and keep them in their lines. The official report foots up for this day's work, 3,800 rebel prisoners, 1,200 killed and wounded, rebel loss, low, 5,000. Our loss cannot be over 1,000 or 1,200. All well, but somewhat tired.

"IN PRISON AND YE CAME UNTO ME."

BY GEO. H. RICE.

BOSTON, March 23, 1865.

DEAR SIR:—Yours of 21st instant duly received, and this morning the book came to hand. Please accept my warm thanks for the same. It will be read with great pleasure, the more so that I have heard you relate some of the incidents while in camp. The want of mental exercise was that which we suffered for so much. Did I tell you how eagerly the books which reached us from the Sanitary Commission at New Orleans were sought after? If not, you would be pleased to learn with what pleasure we refreshed our memories with the first rudiments of arithmetic, and the various class-readers. No one knows, but those that had felt our wants, how welcome such things were. I confess had I never been a prisoner I should never thought of making such selections; but they are truly welcome, and the Sanitary Commission need have no fear of their not being gratefully received, everywhere. It would have done you good to have seen the little groups that got together with a piece of board for a slate, and charcoal for pencil.

From the New Orleans Daily True Deits, March 18.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION AND CONFEDERATE PRISONERS.

The following letter shows that it is not alone our own gallant soldiers who derive benefits from that great charitable institution, the Sanitary Commission. A subscription is now being taken up among our citizens to aid in replenishing the treasury of the Commission, and with the following statement before them, even persons whose sympathies are with the rebellion will hardly refuse to contribute according to their means:

SHIP ISLAND, MISS., January 25, 1865.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.:

GENTLEMEN: Serious indisposition, from which I am just convalescing, has prevented my acknowledging your valuable favors at an earlier period. I have during the past few months received from your hands a large quantity of pickles, pickled cabbage, sauer-kraut, onions, potatoes, shirts, drawers, socks, combs, soap, etc., for the use of the sick and suffering at this post. Nothing could have been more opportune than these gratuities. Besides the large number of persons ordinarily at this station, we have had recently as many as seventeen hundred prisoners of war. These, from long exposure, insufficient food and clothing, and utter neglect of personal cleanliness, were mostly broken down in health, and were as wretched a set of men as were ever assembled together. The diseases prevailing among them were small-pox, measles, scurvy, and a great variety of cutaneous and other contagious affections. Out of the entire number there were not five hundred exempt from disease, and the mortality upon their first arrival amounted to an average of two cases per day. With your prompt assistance, together with that of the Medical Department of the army, we have in a very short time been enabled to change this gloomy aspect. We have been enabled to furnish bedding, clothing, proper diet and cleanliness to men who had long been deprived of these comforts. The sick list among them has decreased from nearly one thousand to less than forty patients, and but three men have died in as many weeks.

Under these circumstances, I cannot too sincerely thank you for the kind assistance you have rendered, nor too highly commend an institution whose good works in the cause of humanity are so palpable and potent.

With much respect, I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

JOHN H. GIBON, Ass't Surgeon

In Charge of Hospitals at Ship Island, Miss.

ONE HOSPITAL IN SAVANNAH.

BY CHAPLAIN JEREMIAH PORTER.

MARSHALL HOUSE, SAVANNAH, GA., }
March 17, 1865. }

I am happy to report that Mrs. Porter has continued her labors in this hospital, unremitting except by a few days of sickness, until the present time. That now our number being reduced from 400 to about 100, and of these only a few that are not recovering, she is anxious to go to Sherman's army as soon as it shall find a new base on the Atlantic, which we trust will be reached before this reaches you.

In the twelve weeks since we arrived here 27 of our white patients have died and 8 colored. All of these were comforted by the sympathetic attentions of Mrs. Porter, as the almoner of the bounties supplied by the U. S. Sanitary Commission. Beside preparing light diet and delicacies for the feeble and sick, she has replaced garments worn out or lost on the battle-field and hospitals the following, to individuals who could not purchase, either because out of money or without their descriptive roll: pants, 47 prs.; flannel shirts, 35; vests, 11; woolen drawers, 39; blouses, 14; overcoats, 13; prs. stockings, 20; hats, 20; blankets, 24; prs. shoes, 14. During one month, from Jan. 9th, the opening of the first Sanitary goods in this city, to Feb. 7th, Mrs. Porter received the following supplies, by request of the surgeon in charge, and saw that they were distributed so as to comfort the sick:— Bbls. potatoes, 2; bbls. dried apples, 2; bbls. crackers, 3½; cans tomatoes, 48; cans milk, 45; cans beef stock, 50; papers farina, 62; corn starch, 47; papers gelatine, 6; cans currant jellies, 2; cans extract coffee, 12; bottles Jamaica ginger, 16; bottles bay water, 5; bottles blackberry cordial, 11; bottles raspberry vinegar, 2; prs. pants, 31; blouses, 11; hats, 6; prs. shoes, 6; drawers, 66; shirts, 64; vests, 11; prs. socks, 24.

During the past month our number of sick has been constantly decreasing by return of convalescents to duty in the field; by furlough of the wounded, and by sending the permanently diseased to northern hospitals; and Sherman's army having gone, we are receiving very few new patients, yet we have drawn liberally from the Sanitary rooms.

The gratitude of the patients for these sanitary supplies through our hands has been expressed by multitudes of them. I have always had from the Sanitary writing paper, envelopes, ink, pens and pencils, as well as a rich variety of books and papers, so that intellectual as well as physical wants have been happily supplied. In the hospital chapel, the patients having been removed from it, and it being pleasantly seated, we have had religious meetings each evening for a fortnight of very pleasant religious interest. There has been joy here, as we trust, in heaven, over sinners repenting among convalescents, as well as those who have died trusting in the Saviour.

Among the stores received the past month were two pecks of dried currants and as many dried blackberries. Nothing except the blackberry cordial has comforted so many sick and contributed so much to the comfort of the emaciated as these berries. Mrs. Porter keeps some of them stewed on hand always, and every one who would be benefited by them is readily supplied. They are much more profitable than jellies, and much more easily brought to the army and kept for use. Call loudly for small fruits dried, and multitudes comforted by them will bless you for it.

A few days since an escaped prisoner from Andersonville from the 111th Illinois, who was captured on the 22d of June last before Atlanta, was brought to our room by two of his own regiment who are now nursing in this hospital. Testifying to his entire truthfulness, and finding him almost destitute of clothing, as he could bring nothing from his prison except what he wore, and having traveled 300 miles in 24 days, he was furnished with a complete outfit: a hat, an overcoat, a pair of pants, a flannel shirt, a pair of drawers, a pair of stockings, shoes he had previously obtained. Doffing his brown cotton, and clad in his Sanitary suit, he hardly retained his personal identity. So I gave him a certificate showing how he was clothed after his long imprisonment and journey to Savannah. He confirms all the terrible reports of Andersonville. He left here for Iowa.

We are highly gratified to see a thousand colored children and adults already gathered into schools in Savannah: while we are pained to visit the hospital for the blacks and find it in a loathsome condition. We have endeavored to see that the sufferers are made more comfortable. In the last two days the few surviving ones are removed to hospital tents, and we hope their wants will now be better supplied.

One or two regiments of colored troops just raised at Charleston have come to garrison this city. The inhabitants are horrified at the thought that their own arms are all taken from them and they are to be guarded by armed negroes. Is not this righteous retribution? Who dreamed that our eyes would see these things when Uncle Tom's Cabin was written. Truly has inspiration said: "I work a work in your day which ye will not believe if a man declare it unto you."

LETTER FROM E. L. JONES.

NASHVILLE, March 25, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY.

DEAR SIR:—I enclose my report for the week ending this evening. We are doing a good deal for the hospitals, and with the grateful appreciation of their officers. The large number of patients from the new regiments seems to diminish rather than add to their hospital fund, and they are drawing upon us more largely than heretofore.

There are also more troops in and around the city, and they all want something, so that the total issues make rather large figures, larger than I calculated during the week, as I had on mind the importance of sending as many stores forward to Chattanooga and Knoxville as possible. We have now comparatively few applications that we cannot provide for reasonably well. My remarks in former letters will still apply to the want of bedding, ticks, sheets, quilts, pillow-cases, towels, and handkerchiefs, slippers, eye-shades, and especially rags and bandages,—to canned fruit, condensed milk, and codfish. I have had many applications this week for eggs, wines, and spirits, and cordials, and even whiskey; we have none of these to issue, except in small quantities, none to ship. Everybody wants a few onions, but we have none. Boots, shoes, and hats; once in a while one is a great comfort to a ragged, dirty, and barefooted soldier just escaped from a southern prison or exchanged.

Monday I loaded two cars* for Chattanooga, one with fifty barrels kraut, and the other with seed potatoes, onion sets, &c. I also loaded two cars* for Knoxville direct, same day, with fifty barrels kraut and ninety-four barrels potatoes. The cars are still on the track, though I had the promise of the agent that they should be sent off immediately. The fact is they have not the motive power at their command to move them, but they are daily now expecting engines from the South that will enable them to clear the track again. The pressure upon the road for the transportation of troops and munitions has been tremendous, and could not be interfered with except by the major general in person.

We have received from Cincinnati, this week, 200 barrels potatoes, 50 barrels kraut, 25 barrels cabbage in curry, 25 barrels pickles, and 15 barrels dried apples.

LETTER FROM H. TONE.

CAIRO, March 25, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY.

DEAR SIR—I arrived at Paducah only this morning, having been delayed on the river by heavy winds.

* These cars got off the next day.

By permission of Captain Ernst, A. Q. M., the captain of the Atlantic delivered to me at that place all the sanitary stores which were not covered with grain in the hold of the boat, and these, very fortunately, included all the boxes, 160 in number, and forty-nine barrels of crackers and dried apples. Mr. Sutcliffe has gone to Eastport with the remainder, to issue whatever is needed, and reship whatever is not needed to Paducah. There is quite a number of sick still at Eastport, notwithstanding the hospital steamer D. A. Jamany brought away a full load.

Mrs. Horner arrived from Eastport yesterday morning, and from her I learn that the great cavalry expedition started from there on Tuesday last. Their first objective point is said to be Tuscaloosa. They had a skirmish with the rebels on the afternoon of the first day, and several wounded were sent back. It was anticipated that there would be considerable opposition, and, perhaps, a pitched battle in three or four days, as Forrest is represented as having 8,000 well mounted cavalry, and 4,000 infantry, within that number of day's march of Eastport. At the time she left, General Hatch expressed himself as fearful that the exchange of prisoners having been so long delayed would not be effected.

Mr. Way received your despatch to-day, stating that the Elnora would leave Louisville on Saturday night, and directing me not to wait for her. There was no boat for Vicksburg at Paducah to-day, and I presume the Elnora will be the first along. Having made all necessary arrangements for forwarding the stores by the first boat, I came on to Cairo to see what was being prepared here, and to have the goods sent on the same boat with the others. I find Mr. Shipman has already sent forward one shipment, and is expecting another from Chicago, which I hope will arrive in time. I will enclose invoices of them if I can get them before the mail closes.

Mr. Johnson will come as directed on the Elnora. Mr. Owen has nearly recovered from his illness and will report at Louisville as soon as he is able.

THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

In the telegrams from San Francisco, dated April 5, we learn that, "arrivals in twenty days from Honolulu bring intelligence of liberal subscriptions to the U. S. Sanitary Commission and heavy earthquakes." That the subscriptions to the U. S. Sanitary Commission have caused the earthquakes is not probable, and that the earthquakes have not caused the subscriptions is certain; for the large-hearted benevolence of those distant and regenerated Islands—a benevolence based upon principle and impelled by a fervent love for the broad truths of the gospel—is as natural and splendid to their people as is the foliage of their vallies. What grand changes have been wrought by the Good Father since the days when the hero missionaries first set foot upon the coral shore. "A nation has been born in a day;" and that Pacific nation, born from out heathenism into Christianity, aids with its wealth in bearing to the wounded upon Atlantic battle-fields and the captive in the barbarous prisons of the Gulf, both temporal and spiritual benefits.

"Mine eyes have seen the coming of the glory of the Lord."

FANS FOR ARMY HOSPITALS.

The following letter from Dr. MacGowan has been received by Dr. Bellows:

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 21, 1865.

H. W. BELLOWS, D.D.,

President of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

REV. AND DEAR SIR: So varied are the functions which are performed by the U. S. Sanitary Commission, that those who have plans for promoting the comfort of disabled soldiers naturally submit them to your association for trial. To the consideration of a proposal having that end in view, I have the honor of inviting your attention.

The warm season is approaching, when musqueto netting is resorted to in our hospitals for protecting patients from the annoyance of those enemies of repose. But there are times the netting almost stifles the sufferer, who, it may be, is in special need of a current of fresh air. He needs not only a contrivance which shall keep musquetoes away by night, but which shall constantly ward off from his wound the attacks of flies. These objects, together with fresh air, are obtainable easy enough by having relays of attendants for fanning the patient. But no hospital, public or private, can command the requisite number of attendants. The end can be attained, however, by a very simple contrivance, by the suspension of a punkah from the ceiling of ward, having a palm leaf fan, or merely a handkerchief waving gently over each bed.

PROTECTIVE

War Claim and Pension Agency

OF THE

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

All the papers and correspondence required to procure Pensions, Bounty and Back Pay, and Prize Money for discharged soldiers and sailors, and for the relatives of soldiers and sailors dying in the service of the United States, prepared and forwarded, and the proceeds of all claims, when collected, remitted to the parties entitled, free of charge.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

WILLIAM M. TILGHMAN, Chairman.

|                        |                       |
|------------------------|-----------------------|
| HORACE BINNEY, JR.,    | ROBERT M. LEWIS,      |
| ALEXANDER BROWN,       | GEORGE M. CONARROE,   |
| HON. J. I. CLARK HARE, | CHARLES J. STILLÉ,    |
| WILLIAM WELSH,         | GEORGE D. PARRISH,    |
| WILLIAM L. REHN,       | H. LENOX HODGE, M.D., |
| GEORGE TROTT,          | ATHERTON BLIGHT.      |

H. LENOX HODGE, M.D., Examining Surgeon.EDWARD A. SMITH M.D., Assistant Surgeon.W. N. ASHMAN, Solicitor.JAS. W. HAZLEHURST, Assistant Solicitor.

Office: No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

PROTECTIVE

War-Claim Association

OF THE

STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

|                      |                        |
|----------------------|------------------------|
| HON. HAMILTON FISK,  | ADMIRAL DUPONT,        |
| JOHN J. CISCO, Esq., | RUD. A. WITTHAUS, Esq. |

TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HONS. E. D. MORGAN,   | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLWOS, D.D.,  | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to
HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
F. L. Olmsted, California.
George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., Cambridge, Mass.
S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
George T. Strong, Treasurer.
J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

|                        |                     |
|------------------------|---------------------|
| Henry W. Bellows, D.D. | George T. Strong.   |
| Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. | Wolcott Gibbs, M.D. |
| C. R. Agnew, M.D.      | Charles J. Stillé.  |

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

☞ Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 18 West Street, Boston, Mass.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, Nos. 10 & 11 Cooper Union, New York.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, State House, New Haven, Conn.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Distribution, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 46 Sharp Street, Baltimore, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.
- Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

- U. S. Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets, Cincinnati, O.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 95 Bank Street, Cleveland, O.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 66 Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.
- U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 59 Fourth Street, Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street, Detroit, Mich.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Columbus, O.

U. S. Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street, Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

EAST.

- "Special Relief" Office, 76 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.
- "Special Relief" Office, 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.
- "Soldiers' Rest," Buffalo, Exchange street, opposite R. R. Depot.
- "Soldiers' Lodge," Harrisburg, Pa.
- "The Home," Baltimore, Md.
- "Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," Annapolis, Md.
- "Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C., where assistance is rendered in procuring Pay, Pensions, Bounty, Prize Money, and arrears of Pay and Bounty, and in various other ways.
- "The Home," No. 374 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.
- "Home for Wives, Mothers and Children of Soldiers," 374 N. Capitol St., Washington, D. C.
- "Lodge No. 4," for discharged soldiers, No. 389 H Street, Washington, D. C.
- "Lodge No. 5," near terminus of Washington and Alexandria R. R., Maryland Avenue, Washington, D. C.
- "Lodge No. 6," near Steamboat Landing, Sixth Street, Washington, D. C.
- "Alexandria Lodge," near terminus of Orange and Alexandria R. R., Alexandria, Va.
- "Special Relief Office," New Orleans, La.
- "The Home," New Orleans, La.

WEST.

- Soldiers' Home, No. 81 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Michigan.
- Soldiers' Home, Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.
- Soldiers' Home, Louisville, Ky., James Malona, Sup't. James Morton, Special Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Home, New Albany, corner of Main and State Streets.
- Soldiers' Home, Cairo, Ill., C. N. Shipman, Superintendent and Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Home, Nashville, Tenn., Captain I. Brayton, Sup't. Rev. J. Hoblit, Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Home, Columbus, Ohio, Col. Isaac Dalton, Superintendent.
- Soldiers' Home, Cleveland, Ohio, Joseph Jerome, Superintendent and Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Lodge, near landing, Memphis, Tenn. C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.
- Soldiers' Home, Camp Nelson, Ky., Thomas Butler, Superintendent.
- Soldiers' Home, Paducah, Ky.

BRANCH,

No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,

No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.
In compliance with the recommendation of the Board, when a SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.
C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U.S.A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Sept 20, 1864.
In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, so FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,
W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices Address

B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D.,
President American Artificial Limb Co.

THE TARR FARM PETROLEUM COMPANY, OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Office, 61 Cedar Street, New York.

Capital, $3,000,000. 30,000 Shares, Par Value $100 each.

TRUSTEES:

GEORGE P. BRADFORD, Esq., New York. ALANSON A. SUMNER, Albany, N. Y.
Hon. ROGER AVERILL, Danbury, Conn. E. B. BELDEN, M.D., New York.
WILLARD PARKER, M.D., New York. J. T. SANGER, New York.
JAMES WADSWORTH, New York.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania, the name of this Company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee in more than TWENTY productive wells, and in TWELVE others now rapidly approaching completion, while the further development of its large unimproved area will, at an early day, greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

JAMES WADSWORTH & COMPANY,
No. 61 Cedar Street, New York.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont,

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILLCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

OFFICE OF THE

M O R R I S

FIRE & INLAND INSURANCE

COMPANY.

COLUMBIAN BUILDING,

CORNER WALL & NASSAU STS.

---

Authorized Capital, - - - $5,000,000.

Cash Capital, paid in, - - - $200,000.

---

This Company issues on the most favorable terms, Policies of Insurance,

WITH OR WITHOUT PARTICIPATION IN PROFITS,

against loss or damage by fire, on Dwelling Houses, Stores, and all kinds of Buildings, and on Household Furniture and other Property, and on Vessels and their Cargoes, while lying in Port.

Losses will be Promptly Adjusted and Paid.

---

DIRECTORS.

EDWARD ROWE,
ALBERT G. LEE,
GEORGE MILN,
J. C. MORRIS,
ROBT BOWNE,
EZRA NYE,

JOHN D. BATES,
FRED. H. BRADLEE,
EDWARD C. BATES,
WILLIAM MACKAY,
BENJ. E. BATES,
B. C. MORRIS, Jr.,

JOSEPH MORRISON,
DAN'L W. TELLER,
HENRY J. CAMMANN,
S. N. DERRICK,
CHARLES HICKOX,
N. O. NIMS.

WM. M. WHITNEY Secretary.

B. C. MORRIS, President.

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,
400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

F. S. WINSTON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Assets Thirteen Millions of Dollars.

The Insured may EACH YEAR receive their dividends in cash in payment of premium, or apply it in increasing the amount insured.

THE

Widows' & Orphans' Benefit Life Ins. Co. of New York.

LUCIUS ROBINSON, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

Many of the Trustees and other officers of this Company are connected with the well-known MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, and the intimate and amicable relations between the two Companies, guarantee favorable results to Policy-holders.

Universal Life Insurance Company of New York.

JOHN WADSWORTH, PRESIDENT.

Cash Capital, $200,000.

This Institution has been formed for the benefit of those who, because of imperfect health, are unable to obtain policies in other companies. It thus meets the case of thousands who have been turned away disappointed in their efforts to provide for their families, and of a still larger number who have felt it useless to apply for insurance.

Every information may be had, on application, by letter or otherwise, to

F. RATCHFORD STARR, General Agent,

400 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

Insurance against Accident by the TRAVELERS' INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

CAPITAL, - - - $500,000.

JAMES G. BATTERSON, PRESIDENT.

Insurance effected in this Company against ACCIDENTS of every description.

Yearly Policies will be issued for a Premium of

Fifteen Dollars,

granting Insurance to the amount of

Five Thousand Dollars

against loss of life by any accident whatever.

Twenty-Five Dollars

secures a Policy for

Five Thousand Dollars,

together with $25 per week compensation for personal injury, incapacitating the assured from his ordinary business.

Fifty Dollars Premium

secures a Full Policy for $10,000 and $40 per week compensation for all and every description of Accident.

Policies for $500, with $3 per week compensation, can be had for $3 Premium, or any other sum between $500 and $10,000 at proportionate rates.

WM. W. ALLEN, Agent,

404 WALNUT STREET.

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 37.

PHILADELPHIA, MAY 1, 1865.

No. 37.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

For the Sanitary Commission Bulletin.

STARVED TO DEATH!

Suggested by the remark of a mother, one of whose sons had died of starvation in a rebel prison; "I hardly expected my boys would return to me unharmed, but I never dreamed one would be starved to death."

BY MINNIE MINTWOOD.

Above me, soft'ning April skies;
And all around, the tender grass,
With slight green arms that eager rise
To catch the sunbeams as they pass;
And just below, the rippling brook,
With pulses throbbing low and deep,
While birds and flowers and mossy nook,
All mem'ries of my darling keep.

Within, upon my pictured wall,
One brow is fairer than the rest;
Ah, me! it seems at yester's call,
His head was pillowed on my breast.
His every curl some gold had caught,
The sweets of flowers were in his breath;
In all my life he was inwrought,
And now, to know he starved to death!

That he was brave you well may know,
No heart more loyal, true and leal,
Among the first of all to go
And bare his breast to rebel steel.
And when he in his armor stood,
The bravest of them all, one saith:
"Virginia's soil may drink his blood,"
But none, "your boy will starve to death!"

Full well I knew 'mid shot and shell
And clash of sabres he would stand;
But He, who doeth all things well,
Might shield him with His loving hand.
But if he fell! I could not bear
Within my heart a place for this!
To see no more his forehead fair,
Or nevermore his lips to kiss.

Still, should it be my woman's part
To see my bliss in ruins lie,
For my loved country, e'en my heart
Could bear for him to die,
If he, as patriots, should fall
With victory flashing in his eye,
His spirit leaping at the call
To join the ranks of souls on high.

For every mine must yield its gold,
From every hearth some incense rise,
I gave the best of all my fold—
My boy—a country-sacrifice!
But, God! I never thought to know,
With hunger weakening every breath,
By squalid want and torture slow,
My boy would ever starve to death!

Hilldale Farm, near Ludlowville,
Tompkins County, New York, April, 1865.

LETTER FROM NEWBERN, N. C.

BY J. W. PAGE, M.D.

March 19, 1865.

I enclose to you some of the notes received from my brother, in charge of the Relief Corps at the front, and dated respectively the 11th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, and 18th. Several of these should have gone forward with the lists of wounded I have already forwarded; but the early hour and hurry of my departure for Moorehead, on the day of my last communication, occasioned their oversight, and I was surprised to find them still lying on my table.

These notes, jotted down on the field, tell in their style, as well as in their narrative, the yeoman service which our Relief Corps has rendered thus far in a campaign in which, perhaps more than in any other of the war, not only the comfort, but the salvation, of our sick and wounded depended on the extraneous Relief of the Sanitary Commission at the right time and the right place. The railroad construction has progressed pari passu with the army, but five or seven miles in the rear. Our chief supply tent was at the terminus of the railroad in season to receive, and shelter, and provide for the first instalment of the wounded from the battle field; while our Relief agents were extending the needed relief to the field hospitals along our extended battle line. The reconstruction of the railroad, employing an army of two thousand constructionists, building wharves and depots, laying tracks and transporting material therefor, has been going on at the same time with the transportation of thirty thousand troops, with all the impedimenta of modern warfare, directly into the enemy's country, equipped and appointed for an immediate battle with an army of the enemy equal in numbers. Yet all this herculean work has been done with four wheezy engines and a correspondingly insufficient provision of truck and box cars. I question whether such a brilliant feat of railroading, all things considered, has ever been accomplished since the commencement of this war, of which railroading has been such a novel and important military element. It is a railroad victory which adds as much lustre to the genius and energy of Colonel Wright and Mr. Van Dyne, as does the battle of Kinston to the military reputation of our successful generals. These allusions would be episodic, were they not intended to draw your attention to the long intervals which must necessarily happen between the arrivals of trains on a road so illy provided with rolling stock, and so enormously taxed beyond its reasonable capacity. A long line of railroad, constantly advancing its terminus into a wild and swampy country, where our sick and wounded must meet it at unheralded hours, and await on the damp ground, through rain and shine, or enveloped in the swamp fogs of the chilly nights, with only the little covering and scanty comforts that could be brought for six miles over horrible roads, in overloaded ambulances, from destitute field hospitals and await, through these cheerless hours, the unfrequent trains. We have had floods of rain; and an ambulance travelling over the deeply gullied roads would tax the endurance of well men. You can imagine, then, the condition of our sick and wounded after six miles of such rough jolting; and you can imagine, perhaps better than I can describe, the full measure of their satisfaction, when, instead of being dumped on the cold, wet ground, to await, chilled and hungry, the arrival of the cars, they found, ready for their reception, our spacious tents, emblazoned in front, so that "he that runs may read," with the full name of our glorious old Commission, and provided within with every comfort for the outer and the inner man. Soft beds of quilts, laid on clean straw—warm blankets—rich soups, with Boston crackers—hot coffee and tea, gentle attendance and good cheer, and the assurance of the same comforts being transferred to the cars for their transportation to Newbern. The luxury of being the instrument in affording such relief was new to my brother, and to some of the improvised corps of assistants, and stimulated them to exertions too strained and continuous for their own safety; so that I have relieved them in a measure, by forwarding, in charge of supplies, the volunteer but temporary aid of several young gentlemen in the Department, whose truthful natures and warm sympathies I had learned by previous acquaintance to appreciate. The number and character of these offers from young men long associated with this Department in military and civil positions, and their proffered willingness to serve the Commission at the front, at the very time when the drizzling spring rains and the booming of the distant cannon told them plainly that such a campaign was no child's play, have illustrated, with gratifying clearness, the deep hold which the Sanitary Commission has already gained on the affections of the generous youths of our land, whose characters are being moulded on the gigantic occurrences now transpiring, and forming the history of their country. I had anticipated the usual proffer of battle-field aid from "our friends over the way" of the Christian Commission, as in days gone by. I had received instructions to accept such proffered aid on the field, and to supply and treat the delegates as our own Relief agents; and my experience in South Carolina, and in previous campaigns in this Department, had led me to place a high estimate on the value of such relief aid; and I had instructed my brother, if such relief was proffered to accept and treat it in accordance with the estimate I had entertained of its value. No proffer, however, was made by the delegates of the Christian Commission, though several of them were here, and several new ones appeared on the ground about the time and since our active campaign began. I understand from one of their number, that several of the new ones left, during the week of the fight, for other localities, as Wilmington and Plymouth, &c. None of them, however, were on the field, nor have been to the front; unless I except a quasi delegate, who appeared after the fight, penny-a-lining items for the local newspaper. This avoidance of the field, at the time of active operations, and when our soldiers are breasting the deadly fire of the enemy, leads me to suppose there may have been some change in the programme of the Christian Commission, of which, from my long absence from our northern centres of action, I have not been made aware. From previous experience, I had reckoned on their co-operation, and its failure compelled me, at a late hour, to improvise a supplementary Relief corps from the ardent and generous materials I have previously alluded to. My previous acquaintance with the self-denial and usefulness of the delegates of the Christian Commission at such times as these, would lead me to think any such fundamental change in the objects of their mission an unfortunate one, as I cannot see any corresponding compensation to the service.

I returned from the front on Wednesday, the 15th, leaving our Sanitary depot and corps at Dow's Station, then the terminus of the railroad, about 8 miles from Kinston, and from which point our stores radiated to the different hospitals and encampments of our large army. The corps and division wagons were constantly arriving at and departing from that point with army stores, and every facility for transportation was furnished us. From the moment of the arrival of our stores and the establishment of the Sanitary depot where the hospital trains must meet the terminus of the railroad, an order was issued from the headquarters of General Palmer to the Quartermasters of his division to furnish all the transportation we might need in forwarding our relief to any portion of the field. Our Depot has kept pace with the railroad. It has been a moving hospital, meeting the sick and wounded always at the point where the long weary hours of detention would have been painful and dreary but for the comforts provided for them by the agents of our Commission there. The long list of wounded which I have forwarded you were all the recipients of our care at that point, and their railroad wants provided for until they should arrive at the doors of the general hospital in Newbern.

I spent one day in visiting the Division headquarters along the extensive line of our new position, and the hospitals in the field, witnessing the elation of our gallant troops, and the burial of a multitude of rebel hopes.

The earthworks thrown up by our troops under fire, and begun with the use of tin cups and shingles, instead of the pick-axe and spade, are a wonderful monument of the daring and efficiency of our veteran troops. Though the work of a couple of hours, they are as extensive and strong as the original defences of Newbern, on which the rebels had labored for weeks. This was especially observant on the right of our line, in front of the old 9th New Jersey, of Burnside fame, and the 132d New York, whose valor has so often and so stubbornly held our outposts against the assaults of the enemy. These regiments, with the rest of the division of General Palmer, held the extreme right of our line, which the enemy assailed vigorously on the first day's fight, with their heavy artillery in exact range of the Division Headquarters, but relinquished the attack for the desperate onset they made on the left, in which they were at last so severely punished.

Our sanitary stores had reached the Division in quantity, and were stacked under guard. Mr. Perry, our Relief Agent, did some hard horse-back riding, and severe and prolonged labors, in conducting our wagons over miles of muddy and deeply gullied and rough corduroy roads. I saw the captains of two companies of cavalry, long celebrated in this Department for their vigor and daring, now, when under orders to move forward, appeal to these stores for vegetables for their men, and themselves count out the onions, that they might be sure every man should get one. These vegetables are more prized at such a time by these men than would be the choicest tropical fruits.

On the advance of the army from the battle field, I accompanied it to Kinston, passing one night at the new encampment opposite the town, and in the morning visiting the town itself. The rebel works on both sides of the river are of the strongest description of earth works, and well manned would have presented a formidable obstacle to our advance; but our stout fighting in front, and the fear of danger in their rear, compelled them to abandon these works.

I returned to Newbern via "Dover Station," to which point our depot had advanced, and after a splashing ride of ten miles on horseback, as many more by cars, three miles on foot, and five on a hand-car, arrived here at dusk. Crowds of soldiers have been passing up to the front, and everything indicates operations on a large scale.

I received a telegram from Dr. Agnew on my return, and took the first train for Morehead City, where I met him on the transport steamer Chase, with a full cargo of stores for the Commission. The limited capacity of the railroad, already overtaxed, forbade the landing of stores at the wharf. Dr. Agnew placed such stores as we needed here on board a provisionary schooner, some four or five hundred barrels in bulk, which I have made arrangements to transport to Newbern by water. The next day Dr. Agnew took the rest of the steamer's cargo to Wilmington, for the relief of our liberated Union prisoners, and on his return will discharge what may remain at Morehead for the campaign on this line.

I was at Wilmington the day after its capture, having run down with Generals Palmer and Carter and staffs; I met the Sanitary Agent, Mr. Foster, there, preparing for a depot of reception, but at the time destitute of supplies. I should have advised the sending what few stores could then have been spared from this point, had not Mr. Foster informed me that he had eleven days before, made full requisitions on the central depot at New York, and was daily expecting ample stores. The condition of such of our returned prisoners as I then saw was pitiable beyond expression, and the evidences of the barbarity of the rebel leaders was most damnable. The filth, squalor, emaciation, idiocy, and insanity of those who survived their infernal treatment, prepared me to witness the sight of the charred remains of those whom the rebels burned on evacuating the city; telling the poor, bed-ridden victims of their cruelty "if they would not get out and follow their army, they would scorch them out," and carried out their devilish threat by setting fire to one end of the building!

HEADQUARTERS U. S. SAN. COM. IN THE FIELD, SIX MILES FROM COVE CREEK, N. C.,

March 11, 1865.

I have just returned from a visit to the Division Hospital at the front. I started in advance of an army wagon, furnished me by the Chief Quartermaster, which I loaded with stores for the front from our depot at this station. I arrived at the hospital, nine miles from this station, at about 3 o'clock this P.M. A portion of the road being almost impassible for man or beast, and so I spent a longer portion of the day on the road than I otherwise would; but I met Dr. Rice at the hospital, and found him making his preparations for breaking up his hospital at that point, and preparing for a forward movement toward Kinston. I learned that the rebels had burnt their iron clad ram and the bridge across the Neuse river at Kinston; also that they were retreating toward Goldsboro'. They retreated from our front, taking only such of their wounded as they thought likely to survive their injuries, leaving the worst cases and the dead for our forces to bury and otherwise care for. On my return to camp I found that Mr. Perry had obtained the enclosed list of wounded men from the front, whom he had cared for and seen properly and comfortably provided with blankets, and had a rich beef soup made of the beef stock furnished by the Commission, and every one had a tin cupful before being placed on the cars, after which he gave each one a cup of hot coffee and crackers. I also called on my return from the front at the hospital at Gum Swamp, where I found Dr. Weaver in charge, having seven wounded men from the front, and wishing for some relief, which was afforded him immediately, as he came to the depot, and I supplied his immediate wants from the stores of the Commission. To-night I go to bed for the first time since I came out here before two o'clock at night.

HEAD QUARTERS U. S. SAN. COM., IN THE FIELD, 6 MILES FROM COVE CREEK, N. C.,

March 12, 1865.

I wrote to you yesterday morning, quite early, a hasty note, which I forwarded by Dr. Wilson, Assistant Surgeon, 123d Indiana Vols., in charge of about thirty wounded and some 20 sick soldiers from the front.

I had on that day visited, in company with Captain Kimball, Chief Quartermaster, the headquarters of General Palmer, which is at the right of the line of defences. We left our depot at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and arrived at headquarters about 12 noon. We heard heavy firing all the time, and on arriving near, we learned that the rebels, under Hoke, had made a desperate attempt to flank the left of the line of General Palmer's Division, but were repulsed with a severe loss in killed and wounded, and a few hundred prisoners, including one Lieutenant Colonel, and one of General Hoke's aid-de-camps.

While at headquarters a courier arrived with a message from General Cox, commanding the 1st Division of the 23d Army Corps, saying that couriers had arrived at his (Cox's) headquarters, bringing intelligence from General Couch, commanding 2d Division of the 23d Corps, that he was at that time at Beaver Dam, moving from Wilmington on to Kinston. This intelligence was received with a hearty welcome, and doubled the assurance of the capture or annihilation of the rebel force so desperately struggling to break through our lines, if they did not retreat.

I learned also that our loss during the day in killed and wounded, was not near as much as that of the enemy. The force opposed to us on our front, amounted to about 20,000, commanded by the rebel Generals Hoke, D. H. Hill, and S. P. Lee, well known in this region from his having made several unsuccessful attempts to drive the "hated Yankees" from Newbern. Seven consecutive charges were made on the fortifications at the right of the line, commanded by General Palmer. Every attack was repulsed with as much determination as it was made, and the rebels were obliged to retreat. At the last attack a portion of one rebel brigade was captured by our forces, which will partly compensate for the loss of one regiment, captured by them yesterday forenoon, that is as far as numbers of prisoners are concerned.

I also visited the division hospital, with Dr. P. B. Rice, the Division Surgeon. I met here Dr. Whitney, of the 18th Wisconsin Vols., and Drs. Whittier, 23d Mass. Vols., Holcomb, Surgeon, and Cowles, Assistant Surgeon 15th Conn. Vols., busily attending to the wounded as fast as they were brought in from the field of action.

Here I obtained from Dr. Rice a memorandum of what stores he was in pressing need; and as transportation is very limited to the front, and the roads in such a condition as to enable but about 1,200 or 1,500 lbs of stores to be transported by one six mule team, I made the assortment to comprise the greatest variety possible, as you will see by a memorandum copy of the issues of to-day, which I send you, as follows:— 100 handkerchiefs, 50 towels, 120 pairs socks, 96 cans condensed milk, 48 lbs. farina, 40 corn starch, 60 tomatoes, 60 beef-stock, 1 bbl. dried apples, 25 lbs. white sugar, 1 box lint, 1 bed tick, 1 bbl. old linen, 24 btl. whiskey, 2 bbls. crackers, 1 bbl. onions. Captain Kimball, Chief Quartermaster of this division, has promised me one army wagon to-morrow morning, which I shall load and send forward, and see that they reach their destination as soon as possible.

At 10 o'clock, P. M., I sent Mr. Perry with relief supplies to the division hospital at "Gum Swamp," 5 miles further up the road.

I have thus far obtained all the names of the wounded sent to this station, except some who have been sent to the general hospital at Newbern, via the county road to Cove Creek, in ambulances, passing a mile or more at the right of this station, and at times when I have not been apprised of the fact until too late to get the names; at any rate, I have sent you nearly all the names thus far of the wounded, to this date; with the nature and region of the wound, and the missile with which it was inflicted.

I have also attended to the placing these men on the cars, and supplying them with the necessary articles for their comfort during the transportation to Newbern general hospital; and many have been the heartfelt expressions of gratitude towards the Commission for the attention paid to them in their suffering. I have made long day's work for the time I have been here. Last night I was among the wounded all night, going to bed about 3 o'clock this morning; so it has been all along. I am not unwilling to sacrifice my own comfort for the relief of our gallant boys, who have fought so bravely and been the unfortunate ones to stop the deadly bullet of the rebel minions.

I shall write to you again to-morrow evening, and give you all the particulars I can obtain of the condition of affairs here and at the front.

This morning comes out clear and cool. The first pleasant day from the time that we established our depot at this point. I have called on the Quartermaster of the 1st Division of the 23d Army Corps, and made arrangements to send a load of sanitary stores to Dr. Spurrier, Surgeon-in-Charge of that division.

I have visited the Division Hospital, 1st Division, District of Beaufort, at Gum Swamp, and furnished them with relief from our stores. Dr. Weaver, the Surgeon-in-Charge, has since called at our depot, and says he shall send all the wounded forward to-night to this station, to be sent to the general hospital at Newbern, and I have had made provision for their accommodation under shelter, until they can be forwarded.

We have heard some artillery firing in the direction of Kinston, at intervals during the forenoon, and couriers who arrive from the front, say that the rebels have destroyed a portion of the bridge across the river at Kinston, and are retreating towards Goldsboro', destroying the railroad as they go.

I also learn that General Couch's Division of the 23d Army Corps, from Wilmington, has formed a junction with the left of our line, in the rear of Kinston.

This forenoon, 260 rebel prisoners including one Lieutenant Colonel, and several other officers, were brought here under a strong guard from the front, to be taken to Newbern by railroad. Your visit to our station to-day, gave you the opportunity of seeing the condition of affairs at our depot.

I have to-night, at 11 o'clock, received a communication from Dr. Weaver, asking me to aid him in getting the wounded from Gum Swamp Station to Newbern general hospital; I have seen the conductor of the train; and he has promised to stop a car at a point three miles this side of the Swamp, and have them taken on and forwarded.

These wounded men, some 12 or 13 in all, have twice been started for this station in ambulances, but owing to the bad condition of the roads, were unable to proceed, and returned to the hospital; but to-night they have come from the main road across a new road to the railroad, at which point I have made arrangements to take them on the cars.

The addition of Mr. Rand to our present relief corps, in the field, has come just in the right time, as Mr. Perry and I have been taxed pretty severely, having been at work day and night for three days, and his arrival relieved us of a portion of the duty.

March 13, 1 o'clock, A.M.

The cars have just arrived from Newbern, heavily loaded with rations and pontoon bridges. I have seen the conductor, and made arrangements to take these men on the train, as they return to Newbern. At 5 o'clock the train started down the track, and when they arrived at our depot I supplied them with relief, and having had them all comfortably arranged in the cars, and seen them start off, properly cared for, and under the charge of Acting Hospital Steward —, of the 132d N. Y. Vols., I went to our tent and lay down for an hour or two; after this short rest, I procured a six mule team from the quartermaster, and loaded it with an assortment of sanitary stores, and sent Mr. Perry in charge of it to the 1st Division, 23d Army Corps, Dr. Spurrier Surgeon-in-Charge. He left our depot at 11 o'clock, A.M. During the remainder of the day I was at the depot, making arrangements to move the tent and stores five miles further up the railroad, to Dover Station, and issuing a few minor articles of relief such as paper, envelopes, socks, shirts, &c., to some of the sick in the field relief hospital at this station. During the day I had some 100 letters left with me at the tent, to forward by mail, and as we have no mail carrier at this station, will it not be possible to make some arrangement by which we can have a mail-bag left with us each day, and forward these soldiers' letters to Newbern postoffice each day, as they accumulate. I think it will be a much needed service rendered by the Commission if it can be so arranged.

I have this evening made preparations, and packed our stores ready to strike the tent for removal just as soon as we can obtain transportation, which our quartermaster at this station informs me will be to-night or to-morrow morning.

Mr. Perry returned from the front at 11 o'clock, P.M., having walked some 12 miles, there being no means of transportation. He says that the division at the front will advance to-morrow morning some five miles nearer to Kinston, to await the arrival of the pontoon train, and then cross the Neuse at some point near, and occupy Kinston.

HEADQUARTERS U. S. SAN. COM. }
IN THE FIELD, DOVER STATION, N. C. }
March 14, 1865.

I have, as you will see, by the date of this letter, removed our depot some three miles nearer to the front; this being the terminus of the railroad to-day.

I took down our tent, and with the assistance of men from the quartermaster's guard, placed all our stores on the cars by 12 o'clock, M., when the train was backed six miles down the track to Cove Creek to obtain water for the engine, which being rather a slow process, we were at 3 o'clock again under headway for our new position at this station, where we arrived at five o'clock, P.M.

While Mr. Perry superintended the discharging of the stores from the cars, I proceeded to find a location in which to again set our tent which should be convenient to transportation, both by railroad and wagons. Having found a good location I had the tent set and the goods stowed away inside. Fortunately we had a fine day, and although it was well along into the evening, we succeeded in storing everything at about dark.

On my arrival at this station I found an ambulance train loaded with the wounded, sent in here this forenoon, with about eighty wounded soldiers from the Front Division Hospital 1st Div. 23d A. C. There were many very severely wounded cases among them, and as they had nothing to eat since morning, I immediately took a barrel of crackers from the cars and distributed them among all. This done, I consulted the surgeons in charge of them, Dr. Wilson, 123d Ind., and Dr. Garwood, as to what relief we could furnish to these men from the stores of the Commission. I learned from them that the most immediate want was blankets and stimulants while on the cars between here and Newbern, whither they were being taken to the General Hospital. As the men were placed on the cars each one was supplied with an extra blanket. I also sent candles, lanterns and stimulants to the surgeons to use in the transportation to Newbern, and when the cars left the station all were provided for and made comfortable.

Just before the cars left I learned that there were several very sick men from the 3d Div. (Couch's) of the 23d A. C., who had been sent in from the front and placed in an old house near our quarters. I immediately went to the house, and there I found twenty-three men, lying on the floor, some without and some with blankets, without any attendant whatever. They told me that they were left there this forenoon, and some of them had nothing to eat or drink since they left their hospital this morning. I went to our tent, had some hot coffee prepared for them, and took a pailful of crackers and carried them to these men, also took blankets to cover those who had none. I found here one case of measles, three very sick of typhoid fever, two who were completely paralyzed and unable to even turn over without help, and the remainder were cases of remittent fever and diarrhœa or rheumatism. I had them all properly cared for according to my best judgment, and left them to sleep or rest, intending to call at 11 o'clock and see them again before I went to bed, as I did, when I found some sleeping quietly, while others too sick to rest or sleep on so hard a bed without some medical assistance or medicine. I again supplied them with good drinking water, and fixed each one anew in his bed, and bade them good night, promising to see them early in the morning, and to make arrangements to send them to Newbern by the first train of cars. This quieted their fears of being left here to take care of themselves; and they all thanked me for my attention to them, and seemed to feel as though they had one friend, (the Sanitary Commission), so I heard one of them say.

I went to our tent, and had just layed down when I heard some one call at our door, to know if we were all asleep.

I turned out and found it was Assistant Surgeon Platt, of the 140th Ohio Volunteers, who had been detailed to come in from the front to attend to these poor fellows, and ship them to Newbern immediately. He thanked me very kindly in the name of his Division Surgeon for the attention I had paid to them, and after going with him again through this house and learning that nothing more could be done for them at present than I had already done, I left him, and went to bed at nearly 1 o'clock on the morning of March 15th.

HEADQUARTERS U. S. SAN. COM. IN THE FIELD, }
AT DOVER STATION, NEAR KINSTON, }
March 15, 1865. }

This morning is clear and fine. I have been engaged in assorting our stores and arranging them in our tent. I also have had a rich soup made for the sick men spoken of in my letter of last night. I also had each man furnished with soap, towels and water, or had them washed, and gave them a clean suit of under-clothing, after which they all seemed to feel very much better, and were ready to be put on the cars for transportation to the General Hospital at Newbern.

During the forenoon, Chaplain Bayles, of 16th Kentucky Vols., in charge of the Corps Hospital 3d Div. 23d A. C., to which these men belong, called at the tent, having coming in on purpose for sanitary stores, and on learning what I had done for these men, he thanked me very kindly in behalf of the Division Surgeon, as well as the whole command, saying that he did not know what would have become of the poor fellows, had they not been relieved by the attentions of the previous evening. He also expressed his highest appreciation of the Sanitary Commission, and has offered to assist me in obtaining transportation to the front, by volunteering the services of his train of hospital wagons under his command. I shall try and secure this opportunity to push forward to Kinston immediately.

I have sent a few stores to the 2d Brigade of the 1st Division; also, have been able to supply some relief to the needy at this station.

The sick were all sent to Newbern this evening; a list of which I forwarded in my letter of yesterday.

A wounded man from Capt. Graham's company arrived at the tent just at dark, he was dumped on the railroad about a mile from here by the ambulance driver, and obliged to walk here. I received a telegram from Dr. Rice to look out for him and put a bandage on his wound, which I did and kept him in the tent until the cars left. He seemed to suffer some pain from having to walk so long a distance to this station on the railroad.

The wounded man referred to is now in the General Hospital here in Newbern, and is doing well.

J. W. P.

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

MONTHLY REPORT—NO. X.

Our report for the month of March is 239 packages received, 470 packages distributed. Of these there have been sent to City Point, for the armies operating against Richmond, 357 packages; to Norfolk, Va., 24 packages; to Washington, 1; Newbern, N. C., 10; Beaufort, S. C., 39; New Orleans, 21; Portsmouth Grove, R. I., 1; U. S. Navy, 1; five hospitals in and near New York city, 15; "Special Relief," 1.

Since we last wrote, we have to congratulate our friends upon the capture of Richmond—the capitol of the late Southern Confederacy. The good news, coming to us yesterday, is too recent, the joy and thankfulness too deep for many words, as yet. We meet our friends, we shake hands, we say:

"Yes, it is indeed good news—thank God!" That is all. And we try to realize what it means, and why it is that this victory is so much more to us than any other victory, and we look back and count over the battles of the four years, and remember how we felt after each one of them, and feel this to be very different from any of the others. And we wander off into thoughts of peace, of a time when there will be no more fighting, no more prisoners, no more anxiety, of a time when body and spirit can rest from the thought-pressure of physical suffering—how strange!

"I suppose you are very busy so-day, sending off everything," says a voice at our elbow, recalling us from dream-land to the practical realities—the poetical realities often—of No. 10 Cooper Union. "No, not particularly busy just now—we were very busy last week and a fortnight ago, shipping supplies to City Point, in anticipation of these battles. More than three-quarters of all we sent off during the past month went there. Here are the invoices of those consignments. Naming only the most important articles, we find 10,020 flannel shirts, 8,129 pairs flannel drawers, 1,994 pairs cotton drawers, 981 pairs of socks, 282 pillows, nearly 200 bed quilts, and 1,200 cans lemonade. Besides these, large quantities of supplies, which we could not furnish, have been purchased and sent from the Central office of the Commission. This morning a telegram from City Points tells us that the store houses of the Commission are full, and that everything is being done for the wounded. It is a great relief to know this. Were it not for the steady work of the Soldiers' Aid Societies, working, as they do, month in and month out, with or without any special excitement, we could never have been so prepared for this emergency, could never have had these supplies on the very spot, and at the very moment when they are so much needed." "And what is your work for this week?" "Our receipts will be larger than usual, they always are after a battle, and we are thankful that it is so. They will keep us busy. We shall also, most probably, make large shipments, but whether to go up the James River to Richmond, or to some point on the coast for Sherman's army, we do not know—have not yet received the requisition from the Central office."

You may have noticed that our distributions for both February and March largely exceed the receipts for those two months. Owing to the comparative inactivity last winter of the armies at the East, we were able to accumulate a large stock on hand, and it is this reserve stock we are now drawing upon, and which enables us to meet the very heavy demands for this spring's campaign.

How much longer the need for our efforts may continue, we do not yet know. We do know that when the time comes for us to stop working, the Commission will apprise us. Until then we hope the work will not be allowed to slacken.

For the Committee on Correspondence.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER,
Chairman.

NEW YORK, 7 COOPER UNION, }
April 4, 1865. }

A WEEK IN ANNAPOLIS.

Extracts from the Journal of Mrs. H—, Visiting the Prisoners.

ANNAPOLIS, March 25.

MY DEAR MRS. G. :—The few days we have been here we have been fully occupied in acting as "Hospital Visitors." Perhaps a few incidents, taken from the daily entries in my note book, may give you a better insight into our work.

The very first thing that attracted our notice, the morning after our arrival, was a train of ambulances passing the San. Com. office, carrying the dead to the cemetery. We followed on after them, the bodies in the first and last ambulance are covered with the flag, under whose folds they have so often battled bravely. The ambulances, the guard following the procession, carrying 19 coffins moved on into the Soldiers' Cemetery, and there, with the burial-service said for all, we saw them laid to rest.

It seems to me but right, that on each prisoner's head-board should be inscribed, "STARVED TO DEATH;" that in time to come, Southern chivalry may see and know what they have done.

The remainder of that day we spent at St. John's College Hospital. In the 1st ward we found an old gentleman from Ohio, watching by the bedside of his only child, the last of six, as he said. The rebels captured and murdered his other sons the past summer, and this one was all he had. The boy, though starved, is doing well, probably may live.

In the last arrival came a skeleton-looking boy who seemed to grieve sadly over his younger brother, who died before reaching the cars; he said they had 3 miles to march, his brother was too sick to walk, so he took him upon his back and carried him two miles, when he found that his strength was so entirely gone that he was obliged to lay him down to rest awhile. When he started again, he found he could not move any further, and laid him upon the ground. The boy reached up towards him, put his arms around his neck and died directly, and there he was obliged to leave him, while he tottered on himself to the cars. Steward Newman, of the 5th Michigan cavalry, told us of a father who coming to look for his son, arrived two hours after his death! He was the last of seven sons, who had fallen in the service; four died in rebel prisons, and the fifth soon after he landed.

While Newman was prisoner at Florence, he entered his name in three different squads, that he might draw rations for 3 men,—he was so starved and desperate that he was willing to run the risk of being detected and of receiving 100 lashes, which he knew would be the penalty. At thanksgiving, the rebels found they were tunnelling out somewhere, and because they would not tell, gave them no food for eighty hours.

A little German boy had been so low with scurvy that his palate dropped off. At Anderson he laid for two days beside a dead man that he might draw his rations.

ANNAPOLIS, March 27.

The more I see of the "Sanitary Home and its working, the more inclined I am to say with a woman from Mass., "that it is the best and noblest institution she ever heard of." She came, a stranger, looking for her boy; was aided in her search, and to-day found his Bible, his father's likeness, and a few other treasures, and then upon the record read his death on the 14th. He was too weak to speak plainly, and so they had not his name correctly, but the articles belonged to him, and that was enough.

Yesterday there were two mothers here, mourning for their dead. One, from New York, had been an inmate of "The Home" for six months, waiting upon her wounded son, a returned prisoner. He was her only child, and yesterday, after so many weeks of suffering and of agony, calmly and gently "slept the sleep that knows no waking." The other, an English woman, from Germantown, Pa., who arrived two hours after her son was buried,—“he was her only son, and she was a widow.” She bears it all so beautifully, submitting as only a Christian can. The whole house is interested in her, and her expressions of grateful appreciation of the kindness received through the Sanitary Commission are most touching.

ANNAPOLIS “SANITARY HOME,” March 29.

Yesterday I had the privilege of assisting in some sanitary work so very gratifying to me, that I cannot but write immediately to tell you of it. Major Howes permitted us to take part in the distribution of sanitary articles, as they are given out at the “College Green Barracks.” First in order comes the long line of men, 1,400 in all; each man with his new cup, plate, knife, fork and spoon; they march on to the kitchen window, where each in turn has his cup filled with soup, and receives one-half loaf of bread, and a mess of cabbage. Some few would stop to taste the savory dinner before they wished to move; but the guard or attendants in the kitchen would call out, “Hurry up men, double-quick!” and the loiterer would be reminded that other men wanted dinner; and so they passed on in the same orderly manner coming up in the line to the Sanitary storehouse, where was given to them thread, needles, combs, envelope, with sheet of paper nicely folded in it; towels, soap and water in abundance to be found at the bathing house. They all looked, and I have no doubt, were pleased. Many “thank you’s” were said heartily, blended often with more soldier-like phrases, such as “that’s bully, just what I was looking for;” and several remarked, “Boys, wouldn’t we like the rebs to see this?” “The folks do care for us at home,” “Good dessert this!” and so, a hurried, oftentimes merry conversation was kept up with the moving line, such as “Where do you come from, State and corps?” “Old 2d of Pennsylvania.” “Ah! all right, that’s mine;” or, “Where do you belong, cavalry?” from a lady on my right; if the answer came “Michigan,” which it often did, the response would be, “The 1st or 5th is a brave regiment, is it not, and your General (Custer) just as brave?” “That he is lady,” from the soldier. And then the lady on my left would enquire, “You are a Yankee boy, I know?” “Yes, Boston, ma’am.” Two stalwart looking fellows answered to the query, “California;” a goodly specimen of the country, though now showing rebel care and treatment. One of our valued agents found a few that replied “England,” whom he saw in the ranks from his island home. In about two hours, the crowd had all been supplied, and were scattered. As an ending to such a pleasant day’s work, I must give you an extract from a note which I have just received from the wife of the Assistant Adjutant General, Mrs. G——, who was one of our party. She says: “Accept my thanks for the agreeable manner in which I spent yesterday morning, and believe me more devotedly the friend of the Sanitary Commission than ever. Heaven prosper the noble work and all who are engaged in it. Its deeds of charity are among the few rays of light which pierce the dark shadows of war. They will ever be a beloved memory, both to recipients and donors.”

Mrs. G.’s husband came here a prisoner, wearing some Sanitary clothing, which had reached him in his far-off prison; so she feels the value of this noble work. * * *

A Maryland infantry boy, belonging to the 9th corps, was a prisoner eight months, had had a furlough, and was now back again ready for duty—had asked to be sent front, saying, “The rebels had boarded him eight months, and he was anxious to go back to settle his bill of fare.”

ANNAPOLIS, March 29.

The arrival of a boat with returned prisoners, is the signal for every one to rush to the landing; following the crowd, we came to the wharf just in time to see the unsteady column begin to move from the vessel. On board, the Hospital Band is playing cheerful strains of welcome, and they come ashore to the sound of music.

“Back to the North where the air is free,
Back from the land of pain.”

Tottering and feeble, bronzed and smoke-blackened, tangled hair and matted beards, some in rebel garb, many barefooted and bareheaded, the majority clothed in shirt and drawers furnished by the Sanitary Commission in Wilmington, a few fortunate possessors of a blanket; this is the walking party, but such walking. It was more than some of them could do to move, and so they gave it up, and as the line of stretcher-bearers followed in their wake, were added to the list.

Sorry plight, for 300 brave men to come from Southern care. They are martyrs for the nation—patient and uncomplaining. They do not blame the Government. They censure no one. In all the precious lives lost to friends and home, and the wrecks of noble soldiers yet remaining, is not the hand of God seen? The costly offering was asked for and given, that the nation might be saved, and that distant lands might learn to what refinements of cruelty, SLAVERY had educated a people.

In a previous arrival, a man was noticed straining his eyes towards the shore, and as they neared the wharf was among the first to press forward to leave the vessel. He walked along the plank, eagerly looking in the distance, a few feeble steps upon our soil, and then fell dead; his wish gratified—he died at home. When taken to the Hospital they are bathed, hair and beard trimmed, have clean clothes put on them, and are laid on good comfortable beds. When, a few hours later, we saw them, we could not recognize the squalid crowd we had so lately seen. The Sanitary Commission has no nobler, better work carried on than this "Home." From this quiet place will go out an influence to be felt in States, near and remote. Whoever has been here cannot but be a worker for the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

ANDERSONVILLE PRISONERS.

CAIRO, April 5, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY:

DEAR SIR—Enclosed please find copy of letter from Mr. Brown, giving some idea of the condition of our poor soldiers from Andersonville. I trust the shipments already made will relieve them until further shipments can be made.

I have notice of a shipment from Detroit, also from Milwaukee, on receipt of your telegrams to each.

I have, to-day, made shipment in addition to one made on the 2d inst. Since my last report to you, I have advices of two carloads, on the way from Chicago. Hope to be able to keep them supplied.

Very respectfully, yours,

C. N. SHIPMAN,

Agent U. S. San. Com.

VICKSBURG, March 30, 1865.

MR. C. N. SHIPMAN:

DEAR SIR—I have just received the supplies invoiced to us on the 24th inst. All right! Many thanks. I can assure you the goods are needed, and more, too. I doubt whether there has been a more distressed looking set of men since the war began, than those now coming in from Andersonville. Many are dying on the way, and others are just able to get into what they call "God's country" to die. Six were buried at Black River, last evening, and two more died on the cars, coming in from there. Out of a squad of a hundred and twenty-five that reached Black River yesterday morning, almost every man is suffering from scurvy. About five hundred came in from Black River this morning, making about forty-five hundred in all. Several thousand more are coming, so that there is no danger of our getting too many sanitary stores on hand here. I hope I shall get the goods invoiced on the 25th instant, soon. We need the crackers. Vegetables are needed very much.

The hospital boat, R. C. Wood, is here loading with sick for Northern hospitals. I will write again soon.

Very truly, yours,

J. G. BROWN.

From the Sanitary Reporter, March 15.

SUPPLIES.

The accompanying papers from some of the military and medical authorities, will show how eager the call for vegetables is in the Army of the Cumberland. The Commission has already sent forward large supplies of potatoes, kraut and pickles, and will continue to send all it can obtain from the contributions of auxiliary societies and by direct purchase. The branches at the West will, no doubt, respond generously to the appeal made to them.

So many new recruits are going to the army, that the hospitals are beginning to fill up again, and all sorts of supplies will be most acceptable. Word comes from the principal distributing depots, that the wants of the soldiers are large and pressing, and that the Commission must keep up a largely increased stock of articles to correspond to the increasing numbers of troops.

Let there be good preparation for the spring campaign, and let what is to be done, be done at once.

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF THE CUMBERLAND,
MEDICAL DIRECTOR'S OFFICE,
NASHVILLE, TENN., Feb. 23, 1865. }

SIR—It is represented that the troops of the cavalry corps, stationed at and near Eastport, Miss., are in need of vegetables and sanitary supplies of that kind. Such as were sent some time since were taken by Major General A. J. Smith's command, en route to New Orleans. Will you please see that supplies of the kind needed are sent as soon as possible?

Very resp'y, your obd't servant,

GEORGE E. COOPER,

Surgeon U. S. Army Medical Director.

Judge Root, Agent U. S. S. C., Nashville, Tennessee.

HEADQUARTERS CAV. CORPS, MIL. DIV. MISS., }
GRAVELLY SPRINGS, ALA., Feb. 16, 1865. }

Special Orders No. 31.

EXTRACT.

Major Lusk, 10th Mo. cavalry, is hereby authorized to proceed to Louisville, Ky., on duty connected with the U. S. Sanitary Commission. Quartermaster General will furnish the necessary transportation on chartered transports.

On completion of his business he will return without delay to his command.

By command of Brevet Major General Wilson. E. B. BEAUMONT,

Major and A. A. G.

HEADQUARTERS CAV. CORPS, MIL. DIV. MISS., }
GRAVELLY SPRINGS, ALA., Feb. 17, 1865. }

DEAR SIR—The bearer hereof is Major Lusk, of this corps, whom I desire to introduce to you. Major General Wilson has directed Major Lusk to proceed to Louisville for the purpose of procuring sanitary supplies of an anti-scorbutic character. The articles most required are potatoes, kraut and pickles; clothing and stimulants we do not need.

The number of troops in this region is about —. If you can consistently give us a liberal supply of the articles mentioned, I believe much sickness will be prevented thereby.

I am, sir, very resp'y, your obd't serv't,

F. SALTER,

Surgeon U. S. V., and M. D. Cav. Corps, M. D. M.

Dr. Newberry, U. S. S. C., Louisville, Ky.

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF THE CUMBERLAND, }
MEDICAL DIRECTOR'S OFFICE, }
NASHVILLE, TENN., March 1, 1865. }

SIR—There are — troops in and about Chattanooga, and in and about Knoxville, who are requiring sanitary supplies—vegetables. Can you make it convenient to furnish the same?

Your obedient servant,

GEORGE E. COOPER,

Surgeon U. S. V., Medical Director.

Judge Root, Agent U. S. S. C., Nashville, Tennessee.

HEADQUARTERS 1ST DIVISION CAVALRY CORPS, }
WATERLOO, ALA., Feb. 20, 1865. }

DEAR SIR—I am compelled by the actual need of vegetables in this command, to ask you to send us a quantity of potatoes and onions, if you have the supply on hand. Our cavalry numbers in the neighborhood of — men, that can be reached by sending a boat to Eastport. Our division numbers —. If you could not ship for the whole corps, please ship what you can for this division, and I will see to their distribution. We are much in want of vegetable food, and while the command is lying in camp is the time to prepare our men for active operations, and good health is what is most needed.

Please ship to George E. Sloat, Surgeon in Chief 1st Division Cavalry Corps, Military Division, Mississippi.

Very respectfully, your obd't servant,

GEORGE E. SLOAT,

Surgeon in Chief 1st Division.

Dr. J. S. Newberry, Sec. S. C., Louisville, Ky.

From Sanitary Reporter, March 15.

DEPARTMENTS OF THE MISSISSIPPI AND ARKANSAS.

In looking over the Sanitary work in these departments for the past four months, though there have been no demands for the exigencies of great battles as in other departments, and therefore there is nothing to attract the public eye, nothing to create the intense interest which always concentrates about large numbers of wounded men; still to those who examine the real demands to be supplied, in order to prevent disease, to keep up the efficiency of the army, and to add to the comfort of the soldiers, the work assumes a magnitude and an importance which can hardly be estimated.

The field embraces the whole of the Mississippi River from Cairo to New Orleans, and the State of Arkansas, with all of the "homes" or "lodges" for soldiers, the hospitals, garrisons, camps, and troops in the field, and all the Naval vessels of the Mississippi, White, and Arkansas rivers.

There are in the department, including Cairo, but eight paid agents of the Commission, viz: One Inspector, two Superintendents of homes or lodges, one Hospital Visitor, and four General Relief Agents; at each station there are more or less detailed soldiers to assist in the work.

During the year ending Dec. 31st, 1864, the issues from this depot, Memphis, alone amounted to one hundred and sixty thousand dollars, the value being estimated at the wholesale cost in northern markets. This does not include the thousands of little articles contributed by individuals for the comfort of the soldiers, and which, though it is impossible to estimate their value in money, add much to the real value of the work.

During the last four months the work has been more than in any of the four months of the year preceding, though at present the cash value cannot be estimated. From causes beyond the control of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, the interior Posts of Arkansas, such as Duvall's Bluff, Brownsville, Little Rock, Pine Bluff, and Fort Smith, have not received the attention which was demanded; but since Nov. 1, 1864, all these Posts, hospitals, garrisons, and camps have been supplied with vegetables, both fresh and pickled, clothing and hospital supplies as the means of the Commission would warrant, and it is most gratifying to know that now there is little real suffering for the want of anything the Commission can furnish.

The hospitals in this city, Vicksburg, Natchez, Helena, Duvall's Bluff, Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Brownsville, and Fort Smith are kept supplied, as far as transportation can be had. Every naval vessel in the river receives a generous supply. Thousands of troops in transitu call at Cairo, Memphis, Vicksburg, and other points, and get clothing, vegetables dried fruit, concentrated milk, stimulants, &c.

Within the past few months the whole field has been thoroughly explored and every hospital and garrison visited, and the exact wants of each are shown. The Inspector of the department is kept advised of the average number of troops at each station, both in the garrisons and hospitals, so that he can draw orders on the Commission for what is wanted; and now, a trusted and long-tried agent of the Commission, D. B. Carpenter, has gone with supplies with the army operating in the extreme South. The friends of the Commission may rest assured that, so far as their agents have the means at their disposal, no want shall go unsupplied; and it is thankfully acknowledged that the supplies on hand have often been greater than transportation could be had for; still, it is but just to say, that without one exception, the army Quartermasters have always afforded all the facilities in their power, and but one military commander has ever given the Commission the "cold shoulder." With this one exception the commanders have acknowledged the great good done by the Commission, and to Major-Generals Washburn, Steel, Hurlburt, and Buford, the Commission is deeply indebted for kindness sknown.

The opening of the Spring campaign admonishes us that we have a great work to do the present season; but we rejoice to feel that we can rely with confidence on the people of the North. The army is theirs, the work is theirs, and their whole heart is in it. Letters of cheer are constantly coming from Boston, from Buffalo, from Milwaukee, extreme points of our great country—the East calls to the West, asking, "What do you need?" One noble woman who has from the first been one of the most constant and indefatigable workers, and who has traveled from one end of the land to the other, writes, "How can we spend our money to the best advantage?" The least we can do is to tell them where these benefactions go, and assure them of the good accomplished. BENJ. WOODWARD,

Supt. Dep't.

From the Cincinnati Gazette.

EXPLOSION OF STEAMER ECLIPSE.

PADUCAH, Ky., Feb. 8.

Eds. Gazette:—The undersigned having received invaluable assistance from the agents of the U. S. Sanitary Commission at this place, during the time that the unfortunate sufferers from the explosion of the steamer Eclipse were on our hands, would respectfully, through the medium of your paper, desire to return thanks to the said Commission and its agents, Messrs. E. D. Way, L. Owen, D. C. Petty, and T. E. Horton. These gentlemen labored with unremitting ardor from early morning to late at night, in cooking and distributing coffee, soups, &c., to the sick, and furnishing the surgeons with rags, bandages, towels, and such other necessaries in the shape of dressings as we required. Twenty minutes after the boat temporarily used as a hospital steamer arrived at our wharf, they were on board with their cauldron of boiling coffee and rich soup, ready to distribute it to the men, many of whom had not tasted food since the night before. Indiana owes these gentlemen a debt of gratitude for the exemplary way in which they acquitted themselves of their stewardship.

Requesting insertion for this, in order to show our appreciation of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, we are,

Very respectfully yours,

HENRY W. DAVIS,

Surgeon U. S. Vols., and Medical Director, Dist. of Western Kentucky.

SOL. B. WOLFF,

Surgeon 181st Ohio Vols., Post Surgeon.

KNOXVILLE, TENN., March 24, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY :

Sec'y Western Department U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR:—As I have already notified you by letter and telegram, I left Chattanooga yesterday morning for a brief visit to this post. This seemed to be imperatively demanded from the fact that after starting two car loads of stores for Knoxville, I learned by letter from Mr. Gardner, Agent in charge here, that he had gone on to the front with Gen. Gillam's command, to make out lists of casualties, if an engagement should occur. He left a young man, William Lupendon, of Co. B, 103d O. V. I., in charge of the rooms, who was fully qualified for the work with the small supply of stores on hand; but it was evident that an authorized agent should be at the post to give directions in regard to the goods just shipped.

On reaching Knoxville, I found William also gone. Receiving notice of the shipment, he made preparations to receive it, and worked all day on the 22d to get the stores to the rooms. He labored hard, and too hard, but seemed well, and made no complaint. On the morning of the 23d, not appearing at breakfast, search was made for him, and he was found at his room on his cot insensible, in a moribund condition, and died in about thirty minutes after he was found. Dr. Curtiss, Medical Director, and other surgeons made every effort to save him, but without avail. They will report, after examination, on the cause of his death, which is yet uncertain.

I find by a letter from his mother, left upon his table, that he lived at Cleveland, Ohio; that his pay was carefully saved and deposited in bank to enable him to get an education when the time of his enlistment had expired. A well worn Greek Grammar and many other evidences of his studious habits are to be found on his table. I was not personally acquainted with him, but the surgeons and all who have met him at the rooms, speak in the highest terms of his noble and manly character.

Under the circumstances, though needed at Chattanooga, I shall feel compelled to remain here until Mr. Gardner returns, or the help from Louisville, for which I have telegraphed, is received.

This post has largely increased in importance. A large army is pushing its way Eastward, and a large supply of stores and at least three first class men are needed at once; one to stay here, receive stores, issue here and ship to the front; one to remain in the field, visiting the different commands, ascertaining their wants, and reporting to the office here; the third to pass backwards and forwards upon the railroad, taking charge of shipments, and, perhaps, keeping up a depot at the terminal station.

Although particularly interested in the post of Chattanooga, as it is specially under my charge, I feel constrained to report that this depot needs, and probably for some time will need, a larger supply of sanitary stores than that. It seems to me, also, that it is of more importance than ever before, that there should be some one man in the field, who can frequently visit all the posts from Louisville to Knoxville, and then to the East of Knoxville and to the South of Chattanooga, and report upon the comparative wants of each. I can see no other way in which an impartial distribution of the gifts of the people can be made.

The benefit which the armies in this department have received from the Commission through the special efforts which have been made from time to time to furnish vegetables in large quantities, so that they could be distributed to all, whether sick or well, can never be over-estimated; and at no time has there been, as I am well persuaded, more reason for such an effort than now. The army has had an unusually active winter campaign. The country through which it has moved and is likely to move, is stripped of supplies, detached and convalescent men have been gathered up from all quarters and sent to their commands. Large numbers of new troops unaccustomed to the hardships and privations of army life, have just taken the field. For a long time no antiscorbutics, or no adequate supply of them have been distributed, and cases of scurvy are by no means rare. I fear that the cheering prospect of an early peace is diminishing the zeal of the army of workers at home, but hope it will rather increase their zeal. We may be disappointed in these hopes, but if fortunately we are not, I trust that the soldiers in the field will have occasion to feel that their friends at home have remembered and loved them unto the end, and that the last campaign will witness such an overflowing supply of sanitary stores as will demonstrate that the army and the people are one.

We have to-day made a large issue of stores to the Asylum Hospital, and I have been able to visit with Dr. Mencham, the Surgeon in charge, several of the wards, the kitchens, dining rooms, bakery, commissary rooms, &c. It has, in round numbers, — patients, mostly in tents, who are evidently doing well, look cheerful, and are well provided for. The arrangements and condition of the hospital are excellent. The highest possible meed of praise is certainly due to the Surgeon in charge and to Dr. Curtiss, the Medical Director of the post, for their successful efforts in providing for the comfort of their sick. They have been left, with an inadequate medical force, to rely almost entirely on their own resources in providing for the sick. At this distant post, with communication frequently interrupted, the commissary and the Commission have been able to furnish but a meagre and fitful supply of hospital stores. Almost their sole reliance has been upon the country, and they have scoured it far and near for articles of diet. Apples, green and dried; potatoes, butter, milk, eggs (from 80 to 100 dozen a day), chickens, &c., have been thus obtained, not, perhaps, in as large quantities as have been needed, but in quantities as large as are often obtained for hospitals of the same capacity in the most favored locations. But the supply from this source cannot be kept up. The potatoes obtained are of an inferior quality, and it would be very ungenerous as well as unjust to practically say to those gentlemen, you are so faithful and energetic that you do not need our help.

This hospital has received the patients from the others which have been successively broken up, but there is a demand for more room, and another large hospital is to be immediately opened. For both of these and for the front, I cannot make too urgent an appeal, asking you, however, not to forget Chattanooga while sending bountiful supplies here. Yours very truly,

M. C. READ,

Agent at Chattanooga.

THE FAR WEST.

LEAVENWORTH, KANSAS, April 1, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Secretary U. S. Sanitary Commission West. Dep't.

SIR:—I have the honor to transmit herewith my report of receipts and disbursements for the month of March, and beg leave to call your attention to the remarks* made thereon. From the large number of hospitals depending on this post, and their great distance, you will see that it is impossible for me to make personal visits to them all. I enclose a letter from Andrew J. Willey, Surgeon in charge of Post Hospital at Cottonwood Springs, Nebraska Territory, which is but a sample of many I receive from those distant posts. I am often unable to fill requisitions for want of transportation. Frequently, when it is offered, my assortment is so broken that I am unable to send the articles most needed. My supply of clothing is sufficient for the present, but I greatly need antiscrobutics and dietary articles.

My health has been bad for the past month, and I respectfully request leave of absence for thirty days, to recuperate.

Respectfully, your ob't ser't,

J. R. BROWN.

* The following is a list of hospitals depending upon this post for sanitary supplies:—Lawrence, Olathe, Salina, Mound City, Paola, Humbolt, Fort Riley, Fort Zarah, Omaha, Dacotah, Cottonwood, Columbus, Fort Kearney, Plumb Creek, Junction Station, Fort Rankin, Denver City, Fort Scott, and Fort Leavenworth, with an aggregate of — sick, as shown by last week's report to Medical Director Davis.

Up to this time all the transportation has been used in carrying supplies to the army, and several requisitions made upon me for sanitary supplies have not been filled. The Medical Director says that very soon transportation will be furnished for all supplies that I can send to these extreme western points, and that the necessary comfort for the sick can be procured in no other way.

As soon as transportation is furnished, my assortment of stores will be inadequate to the demand. You will see by the report the articles that I am most in need of.

I am also in receipt of a requisition from Salt Lake City for antiscrobutics, &c., which I would like to fill if they could be furnished in a compact form, and by the middle of May.

AID TO VICTIMS OF SOUTHERN BARBARITY.

Vicksburg, Miss., April 2, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY.

Secretary U. S. Sanitary Commission.

I arrived here late last night, and find that our stores have not reached here any too soon. There are now in camp four miles from here about 4,000 prisoners, and more are coming in every day. Those who came in first were from Cahawba, and were in much better condition than those now coming in, who are from Andersonville. The latter are in a very feeble and distressing condition, every train containing more or less who have died upon the road. Yesterday an ambulance came in which started from Jackson with four sick men, and when it arrived they were all dead. Large trains of ambulances are running between Black River and Jackson, bringing those who are too feeble to walk. The city hospitals are being emptied to make room for them, and every thing is being done that can be done, but still many will die, for the succour has come too late.

It is expected that between ten and fifteen thousand men will be brought here, and they will be several weeks coming in. They are neither exchanged nor paroled, but are still under the control of a rebel officer, (Col. Henderson, I believe), who is at the camp.

I visited Gen. Morgan L. Smith this morning, and he promised me every facility and assistance, placing laborers, teams and a guard at my disposal. The supplies which I have will last for some days, but will need large additions, especially of kraut and onions if they can be procured. I would also urge that a large quantity of tobacco be sent, as it will be most gratefully received. The men have not been, and cannot be paid. They are greedy, ravenous for tobacco; and, famished as they are, are willing to trade a part of their rations for it. Several hundred pounds have already been donated by the citizens, but it hardly gave them a day's supply. I think no better expenditure could be made than to purchase three or four thousand pounds of tobacco, both chewing and smoking, and a few boxes of clay pipes. The camp is in the midst of a cane country, where plenty of stems can be procured. Mr. Brown tells me there is also a great call for suspenders. None are furnished by Government, and in their weak and emaciated condition the men cannot bear to have their pants buckled tightly about them.

I learn also that there is great need of a feeding station at Black River crossing, and shall make an effort to start one there to-morrow, as we have all the necessary appliances. Mr. Johnson is an experienced hand at that business, and will be just the man to take charge of it. I do not think we shall need any more clothing, unless it be socks, of which we have very few. Col. Noble, of the 17th Connecticut, delivered a lecture here last night, in which he stated that there were men on their way here who have not had a shirt on their backs for more than twelve months. Their only article of clothing is a piece of blanket tied about the loins, and their bodies are so dried and blackened by smoke that you cannot tell whether they were originally white or black.

I have not yet been to the camp, but shall go with a supply of stores to-morrow morning, and will keep you informed of anything I may see.

Hoping soon to hear from you in the way of a supply of kraut, onions, tobacco, &c., I remain,
Very respectfully,

H. TONE.

P. S.—I find there is a great scarcity of towels here, and they are badly needed.

THE UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION AT CITY POINT, VA.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION, }
WASHINGTON, April 6, 1865. }

To the Standing Committee of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

GENTLEMEN:—The eventful week in the experience of the armies of the Potomac and James has found the Commission prepared to do its proper work with those armies.

On the 4th inst. the schooner Baltimore reached City Point with an assorted cargo of supplies, and another left New York on the 3d inst. As a measure of precaution, I have ordered another consignment of stores, similar to the last sent from New York. From City Point but one application for supplies has been received, and that but for two articles, bandages and arm-slings. The Journal of the 3d inst. states our losses in Sunday's fight to be comparatively slight. The wagons of the Commission with the Twenty-fifth Corps, accompanied it into Richmond; one of the Ninth Corps wagons entered Petersburg on the 3d with the hospital train of the 2d Division, and our agents under J. Warner Johnson, with wagons and stores, are with the moving column in pursuit of Lee.

There has been no call for additional assistance. Not less than fifty well qualified persons, selected with care for this work, await a call to the field.

It is believed that City Point will remain a base of supplies to the armies, and that the depot hospitals will be maintained there.

I have just received a letter from Mr. Harris, written yesterday, which says: "The demand on us for stores has been large, but with the ample stock on hand we have been able to meet all necessities."

Dr. McDonald accompanied the President's party to Richmond on the 4th inst., by boat to Varina, thence by horse.

The number of persons in the service of the Commission with the armies operating against Richmond was on April 1, 1862, and has not yet been materially increased.

The accompanying list of articles sent to City Point since Feb. 1, will indicate the character of the provision made for the present emergency.

Very respectfully,

J. FOSTER JENKINS,

General Secretary.

|                           |        |                            |       |
|---------------------------|--------|----------------------------|-------|
| Blankets .....            | 1100   | Ink, bottles.....          | 3608  |
| Candles, lbs.....         | 1400   | Writing-paper, reams. .    | 610   |
| Cushions.....             | 2000   | Ale, bottles.....          | 1832  |
| Dippers.....              | 236    | Dried apples, bbls.....    | 35    |
| Head-rests .....          | 100    | Blackberry cord 1, bots    | 1632  |
| Knives and forks, doz.    | 150    | Canned meat, lbs.....      | 6336  |
| Pails.....                | 360    | Condensed egg, lbs.....    | 200   |
| Lanterns.....             | 130    | Cond'sed lemonade, pgs     | 2280  |
| Pillows.....              | 800    | Small dried fruit, lbs.    | 1000  |
| Pipes, boxes.....         | 39     | Chocolate, lbs.....        | 2900  |
| Quilts.....               | 500    | Ground coffee, bbls.....   | 2     |
| Towels.....               | 24800  | Condensed milk, lbs.....   | 9600  |
| Tin cups.....             | 6000   | Crackers, bbls.....        | 350   |
| Tin plates, gross.....    | 21     | Corn starch, lbs.....      | 4400  |
| Spoons, doz.....          | 360    | Jamaica ginger, bots.....  | 14400 |
| Drawers, cotton, pairs.   | 2000   | Lana, lbs.....             | 5950  |
| Drawers, woolen, pairs    | 18000  | Ferrous, boxes.....        | 25    |
| Handkerchiefs.....        | 2200   | Malzena, lbs.....          | 2000  |
| Mittens, pairs.....       | 14200  | Pickles, kegs.....         | 75    |
| Shirts, cotton, hospital  | 2654   | Sugar, white, bbls.....    | 25    |
| Shirts, woolen.....       | 19000  | Spices, lbs.....           | 125   |
| Slippers, pairs.....      | 30000  | Tea, chests.....           | 5     |
| Socks, woolen, pairs..... | 22000  | Canned tomatoes, lbs.      | 24240 |
| Suspenders, pairs.....    | 1800   | Tobacco, lbs.....          | 5160  |
| Yarn, lbs.....            | 95     | Bay rum, bottles.....      | 672   |
| Cologne, bottles.....     | 120    | Books, spelling, vols..... | 3000  |
| Crutches, pairs.....      | 3000   | Reading matter, boxes      | 25    |
| Games.....                | 1000   | Penholders, doz.....       | 660   |
| Sponges, lbs.....         | 300    | Thread, lbs.....           | 155   |
| Pin-cushions, needle-     |        | Needles, papers.....       | 2500  |
| books, &c.....            | 16925  | Pins, papers.....          | 1200  |
| Soap, boxes.....          | 72     | Pencils, doz.....          | 3720  |
| Envelopes.....            | 275000 | Pens, doz.....             | 2400  |

Bed-pans, combs, knives and forks, corn meal, jelly and preserves, mustard, sago, salt, tapioca, gin, buttons, lint, old linen, &c.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

It is meet that we add our humble testimony to the worth of our late Chief Magistrate.

Among the earliest acts of his administration, was to approve with his signature, as with his heart and influence, the U. S. Sanitary Commission. The Constitutional Commander of the Army of the United States, he was nevertheless its friend; and as he called the people to arms in the spring of '61, and felt the inadequacy of the Government to meet all the wants of the soldiers, and remembered his own, and the peoples' inexperience in war, he was glad to give his moral and official support to an agency that promised so much good to the country. Among the last acts of his life was to visit the hospitals of City Point, and it is perhaps the most pleasing reminiscence of their hospital life, that our soldiers can recall the circumstances of his late visit.

The convalescents from the wards were ranged in files along the streets of the camp, and he passed from man to man, saluting each one with a friendly hand-shaking, and giving to many, kindly words of cheer and sympathy. But he did not forget those who, unable to leave their beds, could not enjoy the pleasure of receiving him publicly, and retiring from the crowd, he passed through all the wards, stopping at bed after bed, till every man had touched his hand, and the whole five thousand of the camp had been treated with his friendly salutation.

Imagine the gloom that fell upon these men on hearing the news of his terrible death. Every heart seemed touched not only with a solemn sadness, but a silent grief rested upon all. As we strolled away from the camp into the country, a soldier, sitting alone, with drooping head, beside a little stream, was, with apparent listlessness whittling a stick, as we stopped in front of him and arrested his attention by an ordinary remark. He looked up solemnly and said, "Bad news, sir—bad news! I was thinking, sir, that I never knew before how much I loved our President. I loved him, sir; the army loved him, and may God forgive the fiend who murdered him." Such is doubtless the sentiment of the whole army.

Among the contrabands too, who gather in from the plantations and villages to Richmond and other places, there is apparently a deep and impressive solemnity at the mention of his name. Two old people of this neglected class were standing together in Richmond the other day, when the news of the assassination came in, and one was heard to use his name to the other thus:—"Did you know that President Lincoln was dead?" when the answer came quickly, "Oh, yes, but don't call him President, call him Father—he was Father Lincoln."

In the annals of American history no man has received a larger share of public confidence and affection, and it being the first time that an assassin has so convulsed the nation by the most diabolical deed in modern history, it is the saddest period that we have ever known. President Lincoln's great heart, full of tenderness and forgiveness, was what endeared him to the people. Politicians differed as to his administration. Statesmen may have sometimes doubted his wisdom. Extremists may have condemned him; but his honest, upright devotion to duty; his sympathy with the sick and suffering, his broad philanthropy towards all, gave him a place with the common people, and endeared him to the whole nation. For his qualities as a man, for his integrity as a ruler, for his benevolence as the Great Emancipator, his name and his memory will be honored by the lovers of right and freedom in all the world.

OFFICIAL ACTION OF THE COMMISSION ON THE DEATH OF THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. H. Binney, Jr., on behalf of the committee appointed on the 18th instant, to report a plan of action to be taken by the Commission in expressing its sense upon the occasion of the death of the President of the United States, presented the following Preamble and Resolutions, which were, on motion, unanimously adopted by the Board:

The infamous and cruel hand of a conspirator and assassin has stricken down the beloved and honored head of the nation.

The members of the United States Sanitary Commission desire to relieve their own hearts in adding their tribute to that of the whole people to the memory of the man and the Chief Magistrate whom we have lost.

If it be possible for us to love and honor Abraham Lincoln, more than we did when living, we do so now.

We lose him when we need, more than ever, his wise head and true heart. Our loss is one which we cannot adequately measure, and our grief such as we feel unable to express.

The nation mourns as it has never mourned since the death of Washington, and the Inaugural of our twice-chosen President, of which the echoes still linger on our ears, becomes a second Farewell Address, which will hold its place forever with the first in the hearts of the American people.

In common with various associations of our fellow-citizens, the Sanitary Commission mourns a true friend and faithful protector. His sagacity at once adopted the scheme of the Commission when it was first planned, and he gave it his official approval—an act of inestimable value to us, and, as we think, of the greatest benefit to the country. His protection and countenance were continued to the close of his life, and his personal visit to the great Central Fair held for the benefit of the Commission in Philadelphia in June last is but one instance of his deep interest in its success.

Desiring to record an expression of our respect, affection, and gratitude for our friend, protector, and benefactor, we adopt the following Resolutions:

Resolved, That the members of the United States Sanitary Commission honor, and will ever honor and cherish, the name of Abraham Lincoln, the nation's twice-chosen President, as that of a true and unselfish patriot, a wise and sagacious administrator of the Government, and a loving friend and protector of the people, whose simplicity of character, soundness of judgment, firmness of purpose, and undoubting faith in God, deserve and will be held in everlasting remembrance.

Resolved, That the United States Sanitary Commission, called into existence under the official approval of President Lincoln at the outbreak of the Rebellion, to supplement the military power of the nation by organizing the intelligence and sympathy of the country in its behalf, hereby records its deep gratitude for the approval and aid which he gave and continued to the hour of his death.

He encouraged the Commission in its first appeal "to the Loyal Women of America," and the following words which he then used will be recalled as the most valuable praise the Commission has ever received:

"The Sanitary Commission is doing a work of great humanity, and of direct practical value to the nation in this time of its trial. It is entitled to the gratitude and the confidence of the people, and I trust it will be generously supported. There is no agency through which voluntary offerings of patriotism can be more effectively made.

"A. LINCOLN."

This great and good President has now passed beyond the reach of our praise, but we give thanks to God for the good example of one who, in his high office, never forgot the sick and suffering soldier of the Union, and we rejoice that he was permitted to see the dawn of the nation's triumphs before he was called to his reward. Our earnest prayer and hope will be that his mantle may have fallen upon his successor.

Resolved, That the foregoing resolutions be published in the Sanitary Commission Bulletin, the Sanitary Reporter, and the principal journals of the country.

VISIT OF THE COMMISSION TO PRESIDENT JOHNSON.

The President and a delegation of the Board, consisting of the Treasurer, Mr. G. T. Strong, Horace Binney, Jr., Esq., and C. J. Stille, Esq., by permission called on President Johnson at 4 P.M., April 20, and presented him the respects of the Board and their congratulations upon his accession to the office of the chief magistracy. They conveyed to him their condolence on the bereavement the country has sustained in the decease of the late lamented President, whose constant support and favor they had experienced during the whole of his administration, and asked the continuance of the Government's countenance of their labors under his presidency. The President avowed his deep sense of the usefulness of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, and the obligations of the Government to it for its long and faithful services; expressed his readiness to do all in his power to advance and sus-tain its good work, and begged the delegation to convey to each and every member of the Board his gratitude for their good will toward himself and the administration, and his warm expression of sympathy for their important labors. After some general conversation, leaving the most favorable impressions of the seriousness, good sense and patriotic zeal of the President, the delegation withdrew with profound satisfaction at the interview.

THE BULLETIN—A MONTHLY.

At the late meeting of the Commission, held at Washington, it was resolved that the Bulletin and Reporter should be issued but once a month for the future. Though this action will deprive our friends of a visit every fortnight, of their welcome messengers of tidings from the field, the wisdom of the arrangement will be admitted.

THE CRISIS.

What will the Commission do now? Will it wind up its affairs, make a final report of its proceedings and disband, or continue its work?

These are questions which come to us almost every day, and while we cannot answer them decisively, we will offer a few thoughts which they suggest.

The Commission's work is the people's work. It commenced with the war for purposes connected with the war, and cannot cease legitimately till all those purposes shall be accomplished.

Its proper work is to supplement the Government in the care of soldiers. So long as there are soldiers who need care, and so long as the Government needs aid in its care of soldiers, there will be a demand upon the sympathy and support of the people; and so long as the sympathy and support of the people are pledged to this service, so long will they sustain the organization that has so faithfully represented them till this time.

The return of soldiers to the common relation of citizenship again, will of necessity occasion some irregularity.

What is a soldier? He is always under orders—always the subject of military law and discipline. What he eats, and drinks, and wears, come to him through requisitions, which are dictated, signed, endorsed, drawn, and distributed by others. What he does in the way of duty, is done by orders through generals, colonels, captains and lieutenants, till they reach him; and no matter what he may think, or how he may feel, he is bound to act in obedience to orders. This is among the highest characteristics of a good soldier.

In becoming a citizen he is released from the restraints of military rule. He eats, and drinks, and wears according to his choice, what he buys with his own money—and not what another buys and orders for him. He thinks for himself, acts for himself, and is himself again.

But he is disabled—blind, or deaf,—has lost arms or legs—has shot about his person, or is somehow maimed for life. He went into the battle a whole man, and has come out of it a disabled man. Government gives him a pension for life; but it is not equal to his support; and if it was, the American soldier is too independent and thrifty to be a loungee in the community, if there is any honest employment that he is capable of pursuing.

Will the Government furnish him employment? If not, the supplementary power,—the good will of the people, must.

Here is one question to be met. The Sanitary Commission has anticipated it by the establishment already of a Bureau of Employment.

If he is disabled so that he cannot work, will the Government give him a support?

If not, the supplementary power,—the good people, will. Here is another question to be met. The Sanitary Commission is considering it now.

Resolved, That the President and General Secretary be requested to prepare an address to the Branches and Aid Societies, stating in substance, that although there is reason to hope for the speedy termination of the present war, such termination, even if immediate, would leave much to be done for the relief of the national forces in garrisons, and before they could be safely disbanded and the men re-established in the pursuits of civil life; that such garrisons, as a general rule, require more aid from the Commission than forces in the field, because more readily accessible, and that said Societies should therefore, in the opinion of this Commission, not abandon their work, but continue the same, with additional activity, in view of the prospect that it may soon gradually cease to be necessary.

RESIGNATION OF DR. J. FOSTER JENKINS AS GENERAL SECRETARY OF THE COMMISSION.

Of Dr. Jenkins we need say no more than that his self-sacrificing industry in the service of the Commission, and his high qualities as a Christian gentleman, have won for him the regard of all his co-workers in the cause, whose good wishes will follow him into whatever field he may enter.

The following resolution is expressive of the feeling of the Commission. It was unanimously adopted at the late meeting in Washington:

Resolved, That in accepting the resignation of Dr. J. Foster Jenkins, the General Secretary of the Commission, the Sanitary Commission desire to express their perfect appreciation of his personal worth, and of his integrity, truthfulness of character, and devotion to the interests of the Commission.

Carried unanimously.

Mr. John S. Blatchford was unanimously elected General Secretary.

From the Soldier's Journal.

WORKINGS OF THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION AT CAMP PAROLE, VA.

We have long desired to give a brief history of the workings of the Special Relief Agent of the U. S. Sanitary Commission at this post; but have been unable to get at the data until now, and, even now, are compelled to omit much of interest in order to make the article suitable to our limited space, as well as from the reason that no regular record of items not deemed important at the time has been kept. The present agent, Miss Amy M. Bradley, has held the position of Special Relief Agent of this great Commission ever since the re-organization of Convalescent Camp, Dec. 17, 1862. During all this time she has given the utmost satisfaction to the various commanders of camp and hospital, and to the thousands of soldiers to whose wants it has been her daily and unceasing task to administer. Her labors here have been of the most extensive, and in many cases, the most complicated class; and a glance at the imperfect record which we are enabled to present will strike with surprise even those familiar with the grand system of the Commission which she represents, and others with incredulity that so much work could be accomplished by a single woman in a life-time, much less in a little over two years, as has been the case. These figures show more the result of the labor performed, than the amount of the labor itself. To properly show the latter we would have to give the number of letters written, the number of trips to Washington required, and many other items which none but the most practiced statistic compiler would think of. All this required labor, however; and the exertions must have been indeed indefatigable when we reflect that she never had a clerk or assistant, but did all the writing and traveling herself. Few have a correct idea of the amount of trouble and writing requisite to the prompt collection of a claim for back pay. Men generally, having any considerable amount of back pay due them, have been absent from their regiments from sickness or wounds, for a long time, and frequently are not properly accounted for on the rolls. All this time must be accounted for by obtaining certificates from commanders of companies and hospitals, which are carried personally to the proper departments, filed, and a certificate for the pay drawn. This is the ordinary routine of collecting back pay, and when erroneous charges of desertion are made, the task is much more difficult and laborious. The success with which our Sanitary agent has attended to such cases, is shown by the figures presented; and in that branch alone, is a conclusive argument in favor of the great utility and usefulness of the U. S. Sanitary Commission. We do not know how many such agents represent the Commission, but if the labors of any of them equal those of the agent at this post, the good accomplished must be far beyond what even the warmest friends of the society believe. No society has ever approximated it in goodness and usefulness. It is the growth of the most gigantic war known to modern history, but the magnitude of its charities seem fully equal to the emergency which has called them forth. However, we must not now speak of the Sanitary Commission generally, but of one of its agents.

The following briefly shows the workings of the Special Relief Agent at this post, from the re-organization of the Convalescent Camp, Dec. 17, 1862, to Feb. 28, 1865, the time of the close of Rendezvous of Distribution.

CONVALESCENT CAMP.

Number of men received from Dec. 17, 1862, to Dec. 31, 1863, 60,934

Number discharged from Dec. 17, 1862, to Dec. 31, 1863, 8,778

Number assisted in settling their accounts (whose names, companies and regiments we find re-recorded in her books) from May 1, 1863, to Dec. 31, 1863, 1,830

Average amount of money collected on these cases, ($100 per man,) $183,000

[Prior to May 1, 1863, no record was kept of the number assisted, though very many of the feeblest ones were accompanied to Washington, and their accounts settled.]

Number of statements taken for arrears of pay from Oct. 19, 1863, to Dec. 31, 1863, 93

Amount of money collected on these cases, $7,185 50

The following is the amount of stores distributed among the soldiers of Convalescent Camp and Hospital (numbering 60,934 men) from Dec. 17, 1863, to Dec. 31, 1863:

|                        |        |                                  |     |
|------------------------|--------|----------------------------------|-----|
| Bed Ticks.....         | 79     | Corn Starch, lbs.....            | 109 |
| Blankets.....          | 60     | Corn Meal, lbs.....              | 75  |
| Brushes, Hair.....     | 54     | Dried Fruit, lbs.....            | 180 |
| Combs.....             | 1,109  | Farina, lbs.....                 | 109 |
| Flannel, yds.....      | 4      | Jellies and Preserves,           |     |
| Head Rests.....        | 8      | "    jars.....                   | 160 |
| Mattresses.....        | 1      | "    Lemons, boxes.....          | 4   |
| Mosquitoe Nettings,prs | 1      | "    Oranges, boxes.....         | 14  |
| Pillows.....           | 84     | "    Pickles, gals.....          | 14  |
| Pillow Cases.....      | 337    | "    Porter, bbls.....           | 1   |
| Quilts.....            | 165    | "    Potatoes, bbls.....         | 1   |
| Sheets.....            | 190    | "    Rum, bottles.....           | 9   |
| Spittoons.....         | 12     | "    Syrup, bottles.....         | 6   |
| Towels.....            | 10,592 | "    Tamarinds, gals.....        | 6   |
| Tin Cups.....          | 12     | "    Tobacco, lbs.....           | 4   |
| Tin Basins.....        | 6      | "    Vinegar, Raspberry,         |     |
| Thread, lbs.....       | 16½    | "    "    bottles.....           | 28  |
| Coats.....             | 135    | "    Wine Foreign, bottles.....  | 12  |
| Drawers.....           | 1,476  | "    Wine Domestic, bottles..... | 17  |
| Eye Shades.....        | 159    | "    Whisky, bottles.....        | 2   |
| Handkerchiefs.....     | 11,171 | "    Alcohol, bottles.....       | 1   |
| Hats and Caps.....     | 6      | "    Bay Rum, bottles.....       | 31  |
| Mittens, prs.....      | 875    | "    Cologne, bottles.....       | 18  |
| Neckties.....          | 107    | "    Bandages, bbls.....         | 1½  |
| Pants.....             | 149    | "    Books, vols.....            | 137 |

|                            |        |                               |     |
|----------------------------|--------|-------------------------------|-----|
| Shirts.....                | 4,892  | Crutches, prs.....            | 36  |
| Slippers.....              | 705    | Fans.....                     | 200 |
| Socks.....                 | 1,950  | Flannel Bandages.....         | 7   |
| Suspenders, prs.....       | 6      | Hops, bbls.....               | 3   |
| Vests.....                 | 161    | Magazines.....                | 675 |
| Wrappers.....              | 24     | Needles, papers.....          | 129 |
| Apples Green, bbls... 1    | 1      | Old Linen, bbls.....          | 3   |
| Dried ".....               | 3      | Pins, papers.....             | 12  |
| Beef Stock, &c., lbs... 16 | 16     | Pin-cushions and Needles..... | 470 |
| Brandy, bottles.....       | 76     | Reading Matter, boxes         | 1   |
| Condensed Milk, lbs..      | 18     | Soap, cakes.....              | 40  |
| Cocoa, lbs.....            | 18     | Note Paper, reams....         | 57½ |
| Crackers, lbs.....         | 750    | Pens and Holders.....         | 24  |
| Envelopes.....             | 30,700 |                               |     |

The Sanitary Agent also established a hospital of her own upon her arrival at the camp, which then consisted of tents and huts, and continued it from Dec. 23, 1862, until April 1, 1863, by which time the barracks were completed, when the patients were removed to them.

The mention of the above hospital were not properly complete without publishing a verbatim copy of the letter of Surgeon Hunt, then Surgeon in charge, to the Chief Special Relief Agent at Washington :

CONVALESCENT CAMP, VA., }
June 1, 1863. }

To Mr. FRED. N. KNAPP,

Special Relief Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

In reply to the suggestion that I would state my opinion of the services rendered in this camp by Miss Amy M. Bradley, of your Commission, I take pleasure in saying that since I reported for duty here in January last, Miss Bradley has been actively and unobtrusively useful. As a matter of negative merit, she has never interfered with duties belonging to others. Positively, she has been of great service in at first maintaining a neat and comfortable tent hospital; and since the erection of the permanent hospital, in caring for the interests of discharged soldiers, many of whom would have been subjected to serious hardships on leaving this camp, had it not been for her business tact and judicious friendly care. In various other ways she has been of great use to the soldiers, and I shall be gratified to have her remain in her present position.

SANFORD B. HUNT,
Surgeon U. S. V., in charge.
SAM'L MCKELVY,
Lieut. Col. Commanding.

Approved,

RENDEZVOUS OF DISTRIBUTION.

Number of men received from Feb. 8, 1864, to Feb. 8, 1865, 108,238
Number of men received at Augur Hospital, 9,322
Among these were distributed the following articles by the Sanitary Agent :

|                          |        |                                  |        |
|--------------------------|--------|----------------------------------|--------|
| Bed Ticks.....           | 100    | Corn Starch, lbs.....            | 74     |
| Combs.....               | 4,184  | Dried Fruit, lbs.....            | 10     |
| Pillows.....             | 92     | Farina, lbs.....                 | 12     |
| Pillow Cases.....        | 438    | Jellies and Preserves, jars..... | 85     |
| Sheets.....              | 500    | Lemons, boxes.....               | 1½     |
| Towels.....              | 9,631  | Oranges, boxes.....              | 3½     |
| Thread, lbs.....         | 59     | Tobacco, lbs.....                | 20     |
| *Coats.....              | 303    | Tomatoes, lbs.....               | 72     |
| Drawers.....             | 486    | Wine Domestic, bots.....         | 45     |
| Handkerchiefs.....       | 13,171 | Whisky, bottles.....             | 30     |
| Hats and Caps.....       | 36     | Bay Rum, bottles.....            | 42     |
| Mittens.....             | 3,760  | Cologne, bottles.....            | 30     |
| Pants.....               | 272    | Bandages, bbls.....              | 1½     |
| Shirts.....              | 1,170  | Books, vols.....                 | 13     |
| Suspenders, prs.....     | 14     | Needles, papers.....             | 390    |
| Slippers, prs.....       | 300    | Pins, papers.....                | 24     |
| Socks, prs.....          | 1,373  | Old Linen, bbls.....             | 3      |
| Vests.....               | 203    | Pin-cushions and Needles.....    | 1,600  |
| Wrappers.....            | 36     | Soap, cakes.....                 | 76     |
| Apples Dried, bbls... 3½ | 3½     | Traits.....                      | 500    |
| Brandy, bottles.....     | 31     | Envelopes.....                   | 25,300 |
| Brandy Bl'k'ry, bots     | 66     | Note Paper, reams....            | 84½    |
| Canned Meats, lbs....    | 174    | Pen Holders.....                 | 294    |
| Canned Fruit, lbs....    | 81     | Pens.....                        | 1,804  |
| Canned Vegetables, lbs   | 60     | Pens.....                        | 912    |
| Crackers, lbs.....       | 60     |                                  |        |

* The coats, pants, vests, shoes, hats, caps, drawers, shirts and socks were mostly distributed amongst the men in Deserter's Division of the Rendezvous, who had no opportunity of drawing these articles from government.

Number of statements taken for arrears of pay, ending Dec.

31, 1864, 131
Amount collected, $11,039 13

[During the months of January and February, 1864, the agent was confined to her bed by a serious illness, and no work was done other than distributing clothing by an orderly detailed for that purpose. During these two months 750 men were discharged the service, and were sent in ambulances to the Sanitary Lodge, 389 H street, Washington, where they were assisted by Mr. W. K. Neal, of the Commission, in settling their accounts.]

No. of statements taken for arrears of pay for the months of January and February, 1865, 86
Amount collected, $8,677 43

Amount of monies received from soldiers and delivered to J. B. Abbott, Chief Ass't Special Relief Dep't, to be forwarded to their friends, during the two years ending Dec. 31, 1864, $4,146 50

Amounts received and forwarded during the months of January and February, 1865, $779 00

The plan and system of her work was organized under ten heads, which she has persistently followed from the commencement of her labor to the present time. They are as follows :

1. Distributing clothing among the needy.
2. Procuring dainties for the sick, and administering to their comfort by furnishing gruel, stimulants, etc.
3. Accompanying discharged soldiers to Washington, and assisting them in obtaining their pay, etc.
4. Distributing note paper and envelopes, and writing letters for the sick in hospital.
5. Receiving and forwarding money for soldiers to their friends at home. This done by draft without cost to the soldier.
6. Answering letters of Inquiry to Hospital Directory.
7. Obtaining certificates for arrears of pay for soldiers, and getting erroneous charges of desertion removed.
8. Distributing reading matter, such as newspapers and periodicals throughout the camp.
9. Telegraphing to the friends of soldiers very ill in hospital.
10. Furnishing meals to feeble soldiers in barracks, who could not eat the food prepared for stronger ones.

During the summer of 1864, the agent had charge of the low diet of Augur Hospital, and much of her attention was given to the sick. In September she received a furlough, and visited her home in Maine, being the only respite she has had from her labors for three years.

The above, as we have already stated, briefly show the work done by a single agent of the U. S. Sanitary Commission. They seem like mere dry facts and statistics; but they will live as long as goodness and industry are honored, and will always form a bright record to a life that has been given almost wholly to the benefit of the soldier.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTER BY DR. J. FOSTER JENKINS, GENERAL SECRETARY.

JAMES RIVER, April 10, 1865.

To the Standing Committee of the U. S. Sanitary Commission:

GENTLEMEN—I am on my return to Washington, from a visit to City Point. I reached that station at 1 P.M. yesterday, and have given our work thence westerly, as thorough scrutiny as could be accomplished by interrogation of our officers and others possessing opportunities of observing it. You will be glad to hear that our supplies are, and have been, abundant from the beginning of the late active movements. No embarrassment has been felt from this cause. There is, of essential articles, a good supply now on hand, and the goods about to arrive will make the stock complete probably for all this month.

The number of our agents is ample. Their better organization than ever before, the improved degree of preparation of the Medical Department, and the comparatively moderate number of wounded in the recent engagements, render the present force sufficient to do what falls to our hands to do. I saw the surgeon in charge of the Depot Hospitals, near City Point yesterday, and spent an hour with him. His resources seemed to be very large. He had despatched, the day before, the material for a hospital of 2,500 beds, to Burkesville, although there was a probability of finding not more than 1,000 patients, and with the hospital had sent up 26 surgeons, and was ready to repeat the consignment, if called upon. The hospital accommodation at City Point is 15,000 beds, and there are in hospital only 6,000. He seems to be a genuine friend of the Commission, and thinks that it is doing its work well. He accepts its services gratefully where they are necessary.

We have a storehouse at Richmond, in the same building with the Medical Purveyor, and are doing a solid work, though as usual not a showy one. The sick are all rebels. At Petersburg we also have a strong force for the necessity, which is not urgent. In the field we are strong, and Johnson at Burkesville asks that no more stores be sent until further call from him. The performance of our proper work at and about Richmond is successful and creditable. Mr. Knapp, who had gone with Dr. McDonald on Thursday to Richmond, returned last night, and is on the way with me now to Washington. He reports our work as having been very well done at Wilmington. He left there on the 4th inst.

We are just at Fortress Monroe, 4 P.M. I expect to be in Washington at 10 A.M. to-morrow—Tuesday.

Respectfully yours,

J. FOSTER JENKINS.

THE COMMISSIONS.

We clip the following from a Buffalo paper:

THE SANITARY COMMISSION.—Mrs. Horatio Seymour has just received the following telegram from Dr. Jenkins, the General Secretary of the U. S. Sanitary Commission:

WASHINGTON, April 7, 1865.

"Agents and supplies had been placed at the disposal of our Inspector at City Point, anticipating the movement of the armies. Our wagons entered Richmond and Petersburg with the hospital trains of our military forces. We have most ample supply of men and material at Richmond, City Point and Petersburg, and with the army in pursuit of Lee. These supplies are being constantly reinforced. Every report made to us indicates that our work is being fully and efficiently carried on.

"J. FOSTER JENKINS."

The above shows that the Sanitary Commission work is now so thoroughly systematized that it may almost be regarded as a part of our military organization. It must be highly gratifying to the generous people who made this Society the almoners of their bounty, to know that the work is done so well. The constant and regular offerings of the people have placed this Society upon so satisfactory a basis that it is now able to anticipate the wants of our soldiers. Continued generosity on the part of its patrons will enable it to maintain this desirable position, without the necessity of making any special appeal when an emergency arises.

AN APPEAL FROM THE CHRISTIAN COMMISSION.—The following dispatch was received yesterday. In response, the Branch of the Christian Commission in this city send to-day $3,000. Will not our churches and communities in the city and country respond nobly to this last appeal?

PHILADELPHIA, April 3, 1865.

"REV. S. HUNT, SECRETARY:—The battle is raging—our delegates in the field—minute men starting by every train—Treasury empty. New York and Boston merchants moving to-day on 'Change. Will not yours do likewise? For how much may we draw on you? Telegraph immediately. Minutes are lives to-day.

"GEO. H. STUART, Chairman."

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CITY POINT.

April 14, 1865.

The Sanitary Commission at City Point is still the Sanitary Commission. I find the agents at work with earnestness and devotion. The hospitals are not crowded, as they have sometimes been, but they are well kept and the men are cheerful. Our distributors are known every where, and treated with respect and consideration.

Besides many good things that they have done in the ordinary line of their legitimate service, they have established schools for soldiers, which have been very successful. Many of our men have come into the service without the knowledge of letters, and others with but very limited knowledge. The Commission has been engaged in the work of instruction, and with the most satisfactory results. They have also furnished books for "the contraband schools," as they are called, which are connected with the contraband camp and are objects of unusual interest.

The work among refugees is also considerable. Last evening there were housed in "our old barge" several families of women and children who were seeking friends and freedom among Northern Unionists. Some of them were intelligent people, and excited much interest; others, equally deserving of sympathy and care, were not so well trained and educated, but as appreciative of attention and kindness.

At Petersburg and Richmond the work is under way. Homes are being established and much solid comfort afforded. Burkesville station is supplied by our train, and active agencies are established there.

The flag of the Commission waves where the flag of our country is, and where our soldiers are, there are our stores and agents.

It is to be hoped that our people will continue their organizations and their efforts. Troops are coming in from the North by the transport load, and tens of thousands of rebels, wounded and sick, are dependent and thrown upon the care of Government, and swelling the list of those who claim the benefactions of our people.

We go to Richmond to-morrow, and will write you from there. I hope to obtain a knowledge of its true situation, of which I will advise you. We shall also visit Petersburg and other important points along the line.

J. PARRISH

IN AID OF THE CHICAGO FAIR TO BE HELD MAY 30TH.

WOMEN'S PENN. BRANCH, April 17, 1865.

It has been suggested to the Philadelphia Committee in aid of the Chicago Fair, by one of the country auxiliary societies of this State, that these associates of the Sanitary Commission would be stimulated to aid the Fair if some slight premium were offered to encourage exertion.

We therefore propose to give to every society sending articles or money amounting to one hundred dollars ($100), the elegant bronze medal commemorative of the Chicago Fair, now being struck at the mint.

To the society in each county sending the largest contribution beyond the above sum, an American flag will be given in size and value proportionate to the amount contributed.

Boxes can be directed to the rooms of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, 1307 Chestnut street, marked "For the Chicago Fair."

In all cases an invoice marked at the selling prices must accompany each package. All communications on the subject can be addressed to

Mrs. THOMAS P. JAMES,
President,

Or 400 S. 9th street, Phila.
Miss ANNA P. STEVENSON,
Secretary and Treasurer,
1006 Clinton street.

PETROLEUM FOR THE SANITARY.

NEW YORK, April 8, 1865.

TO THE REV. DR. BELLOWS:

President of U. S. Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR:—For the purpose of answering the great number of inquiries made daily at our office, as to the "modus operandi" of obtaining Petroleum, we have thought it worth while to cause to be constructed a full sized working model of an oil well, with engine, derrick, tank, drills, and indeed all the accompaniments complete, a counterpart of which was contributed by our office to the National Celebration of March 6, and now on exhibition at No. 518 West 22nd street, near Tenth avenue, between the hours of one and four, P. M. To the majority of men the subject is of sufficient interest to render a visit, with their families, to the "Oil Well" profitable.

We have issued tickets of admission at 25 cents each, obtainable at our office, and beg your acceptance of the proceeds for the benefit of the "Sanitary Commission;" an association, that by its noble care of our sick and suffering soldiers, has earned the gratitude of every Union man.

Sincerely congratulating you upon our recent glorious victories,

We remain, Sir, yours very respectfully,
W. W. CLARKE & Co.

NEW YORK, April 12, 1865.

W. W. CLARKE & Co.:

GENTLEMEN—I accept very gratefully on behalf of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, your humane and patriotic offer, to turn over to our treasury the proceeds of the exhibition of your model of an Oil Well and all its accompaniments, complete.

We have "struck ile" in a good many places without "boring" the public overmuch. The domain from which our oil has flowed, the national sympathy and gratitude, has not proved a very rocky soil, and our machinery has been comparatively cheap and simple. Yet the wells have thrown, if not "a hundred feet in height and 1,600 barrels daily," as high as the wounds and sorrows of our stricken soldiers, and sometimes at the rate of 1,600 boxes (a much more astonishing feat) per month.

They threw in one week 700 tons of stores into Fredericksburg, $70,000 of stores into Gettysburg in four weeks, and have thus far furnished the army and navy with about ten millions of dollars worth of extra comfort. They are throwing this minute into Richmond, City Point, Newbern, Wilmington, Goldsboro', the Shenandoah, Nashville, Knoxville, New Orleans, and fifty other stations, whatever the knowledge and humanity of our medical corps ask from us, and there is no immediate prospect that the "Oil" will give out. We have not recently found it necessary to "bull" our stock, nor force it on the market. Sober purchasers seem to understand its value, and invest without noise.

Meanwhile we rejoice that Petroleum wishes to sanctify itself by pouring some percentage of its flow, into the wounds of our noble army of martyrs. It has made fortunes, lighted cottages and cities, cooked dinners and run steamships, lubricated mills and trains, contended with mining stocks, cotton and railroad shares in city roads, for the mastery on the exchange. It now offers itself as a medicine for army wounds and hospital gangrene. We shall be glad to try it. May your oil well go into immediate and most popular operation.

If all who have invested in Oil Stocks and expect to leave fortunes to their children, will only go and take their offspring just to see how those fortunes are made, I cannot doubt that your receipts and ours will be sufficient to reward your utmost expectations, and to meet our largest requirements.

With grateful respect,

I remain, gentlemen, yours, truly,

HENRY W. BELLOWS,

President.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT. CONSOLIDATED REPORT OF NINETEEN

| PLACES.                               | Alabama. | Arkansas. | California. | Connecticut. | Delaware. | District of Columbia. | Florida. | Georgia. | Illinois. | Indiana. | Iowa. | Kansas. | Kentucky. | Louisiana. | Maine. | Maryland. | Massachusetts. | Michigan. | Minnesota. | Mississippi. | Missouri. | New Hampshire. | New Jersey. | New York. | North Carolina. | Ohio. |
|---------------------------------------|----------|-----------|-------------|--------------|-----------|-----------------------|----------|----------|-----------|----------|-------|---------|-----------|------------|--------|-----------|----------------|-----------|------------|--------------|-----------|----------------|-------------|-----------|-----------------|-------|
| Baltimore.                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "The Home,"                           |          |           |             |              | 6         | 2                     |          |          | 5         | 5        | 7     |         | 1         |            | 3      | 2         | 13             | 10        |            |              | 1         | 2              | 1           | 55        |                 | 16    |
| Boston.                        |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           |             | 22           |           | 25                    |          |          | 2         |          |       | 1       |           |            | 84     | 1         | 657            | 3         |            |              |           | 201            | 4           | 14        |                 |       |
| Buffalo, N. Y.                 |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Rest,"                     |          |           |             | 2            |           |                       |          |          | 12        | 1        | 4     |         |           |            | 1      |           | 3              | 7         | 3          |              | 2         | 2              | 2           | 110       |                 | 8     |
| Camp Nelson, Ky.               |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          | 104       | 55       |       |         | 285       |            |        |           |                | 183       |            |              |           |                |             | 31        |                 | 131   |
| Calro, Ill.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           |             | 2            |           |                       | 6        | 664      | 73        | 171      | 30    | 22      | 2         | 21         | 3      | 25        | 80             | 34        | 1          | 174          | 10        | 4              | 108         | 8         | 31              |       |
| Columbus, O.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           |             | 2            |           |                       |          | 107      | 162       | 33       |       |         | 95        |            | 4      |           | 3              | 174       | 4          |              | 24        |                | 5           | 34        | 6               | 1,333 |
| Detroit, Mich.                 |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          | 7        | 2         |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                | 417       |            |              |           |                |             | 9         |                 | 5     |
| Jeffersonville, Ind.           |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           |             | 9            |           |                       |          | 85       | 126       | 71       |       |         | 18        |            | 4      | 12        | 2              | 101       | 16         |              |           |                | 2           | 22        |                 | 185   |
| Louisville, Ky.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           |             | 7            |           |                       |          | 350      | 2,959     | 18       | 2     |         | 804       |            | 2      | 1         | 1              | 1,237     | 175        |              | 228       |                | 3           | 138       | 2               | 2,860 |
| Memphis, Tenn.                 |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     | 6        |           |             |              |           |                       |          | 39       | 37        | 78       | 38    |         |           |            |        |           | 5              | 72        | 27         |              | 77        |                | 9           | 33        |                 | 47    |
| Nashville.                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     | 2        |           |             | 9            |           |                       | 1        | 1,168    | 910       | 86       | 22    |         | 231       |            | 3      | 2         | 6              | 689       | 77         |              | 301       |                | 8           | 115       | 9               | 1,519 |
| New Orleans, La.               |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           | 1           |              | 1         |                       |          | 62       | 76        | 48       | 3     |         | 41        | 6          | 13     | 9         | 22             | 12        | 26         |              | 44        |                | 5           | 49        |                 | 19    |
| Paducah, Ky.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     | 1        |           |             |              |           |                       |          | 163      | 74        | 67       | 1     |         | 76        |            |        |           |                | 32        | 3          |              | 67        |                |             |           |                 | 23    |
| Portsmouth, Va.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          | 5        |           |          |       |         | 1         |            | 3      |           | 38             | 1         |            |              |           | 4              | 2           | 136       |                 | 2     |
| Washington, D. C.              |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| "The Home,"                           |          |           |             | 35           | 5         |                       | 1        | 16       | 35        | 1        | 1     | 14      |           | 54         | 12     | 99        | 51             |           |            |              | 4         | 69             | 19          | 247       | 1               | 50    |
| Lodge No. 4                           |          | 8         | 49          | 9            |           |                       | 4        | 27       | 10        |          |       | 18      |           | 68         | 11     | 107       | 60             | 5         |            |              | 3         | 28             | 17          | 225       |                 | 71    |
| Lodge No. 6.                          |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |
| Home for Soldiers' wives and mothers. |          |           |             | 3            | 2         |                       |          | 4        | 3         |          |       |         |           |            | 6      | 9         | 5              | 3         |            |              |           | 3              | 10          | 19        |                 | 6     |
| Total                          | 3        | 6         | 8           | 147          | 18        | 56                    | 2        | 8        | 3,058     | 4,545    | 594   | 88      | 1,509     | 8          | 1,023  | 62        | 956            | 3,122     | 370        | 2            | 925       | 319            | 91          | 1,354     | 26              | 6,306 |

Soldiers' Lodge, Alexandria, Va. District of Columbia, 31; Michigan, 1; New York, 9; Pennsylvania, 107; Wisconsin, 2; U. S. Regulars, 2; Soldiers, 152; Relatives of Soldiers, 7. Whole number, 159. Lodgings, 344; Meals, 1,036. (Included in above totals.)

THE WORK OF NINETEEN HOMES.

The above table presents the statistics of the Special Relief work done in nineteen Homes, Lodges, or Rests of the United States Sanitary Commission, situated in sixteen different places, during the month of March.

The returns from the Homes at Annapolis and Cincinnati, the Lodge at Harrisburg, and Lodge No. 5 at Washington, have not been received at this office in time for insertion; so that the table does not fully set forth the work of the Commission in this direction.

36,577 soldiers, from thirty-four states, have been cared for free of charge; 266 relatives of soldiers, as a general rule nursing their sons or husbands sick in hospital, have found food and lodging; while 586 refugees, fleeing from their homes to escape the barbarity of their Southern friends, have found a home among strangers. The total number of persons entertained is 37,429. To these 38,144 nights lodgings and 149,801 meals have been given.

HOMES, "LODGES," AND "RESTS," FOR THE MONTH OF MARCH, 1865.

|    | Rhode Island. | Tennessee. | Texas. | Vermont. | Virginia. | West Virginia. | Wisconsin. | U. S. Regulars. | U. S. Navy. | Vet. Reserve Corps. | Q. M. Department. | Paroled Prisoners. | Colored Troops. | TOTAL.    |                        |           | Whole number entertained. | Lodgings furnished. | Meals furnished. | Furloughed. | Discharged. | Under Orders. |
|----|---------------|------------|--------|----------|-----------|----------------|------------|-----------------|-------------|---------------------|-------------------|--------------------|-----------------|-----------|------------------------|-----------|---------------------------|---------------------|------------------|-------------|-------------|---------------|
|    |               |            |        |          |           |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 | Soldiers. | Relatives of Soldiers. | Refugees. |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 34 | 6             | 11         | 2      | 8        | 3         | 4              | 1          | 4               | 130         | 2                   | 334               | 65                 | 42              | 441       | 390                    | 1,651     | 156                       | 18                  | 76               |             |             |               |
| 6  | 2             | 4          | 3      | 1        | 61        | 17             | 206        | 333             | 2,404       | 7                   | 2,411             | 1,683              | 4,304           | 1,634     | 310                    | 143       |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 5  | 13            | 2          | 3      | 8        | 14        | 11             | 485        | 1,324           | 8           | 114                 | 1,446             | 1,542              | 4,235           | 36        | 15                     | 1,273     |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 14 | 56            | 7          | 1,397  | 16       | 7         | 41             | 9          | 3,005           | 3,005       | 3,005               | 1,729             | 8,201              | 253             | 402       | 10                     |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 51 | 60            | 122        | 51     | 2,270    | 2,270     | 2,270          | 5,884      | 1,474           | 349         | 69                  |                   |                    |                 |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 68 | 25            | 123        | 62     | 76       | 39        | 1,036          | 1,036      | 148             | 3,356       | 426                 | 122               | 396                |                 |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 44 | 637           | 370        | 235    | 134      | 1,622     | 60             | 2          | 12,581          | 35          | 12,616              | 6,975             | 40,343             | 716             | 330       | 11,594                 |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 1  | 21            | 1          | 290    | 1        | 2         | 3              | 1,042      | 3               | 8           | 1,053               | 977               | 3,124              | 168             | 164       | 695                    |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 24 | 1,233         | 575        | 761    | 89       | 8,040     | 47             | 8,087      | 7,519           | 24,291      | 2,164               | 4,211             | 1,685              |                 |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 1  | 5             | 36         | 12     | 47       | 2         | 134            | 674        | 674             | 4,015       | 16,137              | 44                | 356                | 274             |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
|    |               |            | 53     | 24       | 1         | 8              | 1          | 12              | 606         | 606                 | 1,200             | 5,823              |                 |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 12 |               | 3          | 297    | 7        | 51        | 265            | 504        | 1,481           | 33          | 18                  | 156               |                    |                 |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 73 | 3             | 5          | 10     | 19       | 34        | 959            | 959        | 3,599           | 8,397       | 558                 | 189               | 212                |                 |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 86 | 10            | 3          | 23     | 4        | 15        | 27             | 1,118      | 5               | 1,123       | 3,133               | 14,235            | 555                | 668             |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
|    |               |            |        |          |           |                | 28         | 260             | 288         | 600                 |                   |                    |                 |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 32 | 2             | 1          | 2      | 4        | 114       | 67             | 181        | 627             | 1,231       |                     |                   |                    |                 |           |                        |           |                           |                     |                  |             |             |               |
| 39 | 28            | 2,065      | 39     | 59       | 148       | 30             | 2,989      | 1,180           | 26          | 565                 | 1,670             | 730                | 738             | 36,577    | 266                    | 586       | 37,429                    | 38,144              | 149,801          | 8,797       | 7,211       | 16,583        |

It is not easy for the mind to realize all that is meant by these figures. Thirty-eight thousand men is a very respectable corps; many of the armies which have fought and won splendid battles, have not greatly exceeded this number. And it must be remembered that this relief has come to men who needed it—at the right time, in the right place, and in the right way.

RELATION OF SANITARY COMMISSION TO REBEL CIVILIANS.

Extract from minutes of Board, Washington, April 27, 1865.

Resolved, That the rendering of aid and the issuing of supplies to the inhabitants of rebel towns and cities when occupied by the National Army, is no part of the legitimate work of the Commission, and that such relief is to be extended only to loyal citizens, or to such as shall have taken the oath of allegiance to the United States, and then in cases of absolute necessity or for the preservation of life, during such short period as may elapse between the occupation of such town or city and the establishment of the Government system of supply, and only when such relief can be extended without prejudice to the National Army hospitals.

LIST OF SPECIAL RELIEF STATIONS.—
We call the attention of Special Relief

Agents, to the new list of "Soldiers' Homes and Lodges," and "Special Relief Officers," page 1182, for the purpose of having them forward to this office notifications of such facts as will keep the list up to the times.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION.

The eventful week in the experience of the armies of the James and the Potomac has found the Sanitary Commission prepared for its proper work. For a month past agents and supplies have been quietly but steadily accumulating at convenient points, in anticipation of the movement that has resulted so gloriously to our arms. The wagon trains of the Commission entered both Richmond and Petersburg in company with our victorious troops, and advices are received that the section of the army now in pursuit of Lee is fully attended by both relief agents and supplies. Over one hundred experienced and well trained men are now at work in this department; and when we consider that this organized band had its disposal on the 4th instant a supply of stores "sufficient to meet all necessary demands," and that such supply has been since increased by the arrival at City Point of two schooners loaded with the proper material, it will readily appear that the well earned reputation of the Sanitary Commission for timely preparation and efficiency in the field is being now fully justified.—Washington Chronicle.

ACCOUNT OF "LITTLE ACORN FAIR," YIELDING $4,000.

In compliance with your request that I should furnish you with some particulars of the Fair of "The Little Acorns," I proceed to do so as briefly as possible. The project was started "in aid of the Sanitary," by six little girls, all under eleven years of age. These children evinced so much energy and perseverance that their older friends became interested, and came to their aid with liberality and kindness. A few of the Cuban merchants in Havana and Matanzas responded handsomely to the appeal made to them for money, &c.

After two months of industry the children's Fair was held in the last week in June, and lasted three days. "The Little Acorns" were successful beyond their hopes, being able to feel that they had cleared $5,000 for the Sanitary, $4,000 of which was immediately paid over to the Ladies' Sanitary Committee of Portland, and $80 subsequently.

The residue of the amount raised by their efforts was retained by one of the ladies of the Advisory Committee, and by her distributed to other objects in the city. Hoping that these facts may be what you required,

I remain, very respectfully yours,

MARY NEAL SHERWOOD.

Portland, January, 1865.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CONFERENCES.

Rev. Andrew Cather, one of our agents, has just returned from visiting the Providence, New England, Troy, and New York Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, lately holding their annual sessions. At each one of them he was very kindly received, and his representations of the six principal departments of the Sanitary Commission's work were heard with marked attention. Each one of the Conferences passed resolutions commending the Commission to the liberality of the people, and expressing their purpose to co-operate with it in its noble efforts.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

|                                                                          |      |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| CORRESPONDENCE.                                                   |      |
| Newbern, N. C., by J. W. Page .....                                      | 1153 |
| Wilmington, N. C., by G. B. Page .....                                   | 1156 |
| Annapolis, by Mrs. H. ....                                               | 1161 |
| Cairo, Ill., by C. N. Shipman .....                                      | 1163 |
| Vicksburg, Miss., by J. G. Brown .....                                   | 1163 |
| Testimonials of Surgeons Henry W. Davis and Sol. B. Wolf .....           | 1155 |
| Armies before Richmond, by Dr. J. Foster Jenkins, Gen. Sec. ....         | 1168 |
| James River, by J. Foster Jenkins, Gen. Sec. ....                        | 1175 |
| Letter from City Point, by Dr. Parrish .....                             | 1176 |
| REPORTS.                                                          |      |
| Woman's Central Association of Relief, by Louisa Lee Schuyler .....      | 1160 |
| Departments of Mississippi and Arkansas, by Benj. Woodward .....         | 1164 |
| Knoxville, Tenn., by M. C. Reed .....                                    | 1166 |
| Leavenworth, Kansas, by J. R. Brown .....                                | 1167 |
| Nineteen Houses, Lodges, and Rests .....                                 | 1178 |
| MISCELLANEOUS.                                                    |      |
| Starved to Death, by Minnie Mintwood .....                               | 1153 |
| A Week in Annapolis, by Mrs. H. ....                                     | 1161 |
| Supplies, from Sanitary Reporter .....                                   | 1163 |
| Andersonville Prisoners .....                                            | 1163 |
| Departments of Mississippi and Arkansas, from Sanitary Reporter .....    | 1164 |
| Explosion of steamer Eclipse, from Cincinnati Gaz. ....                  | 1165 |
| The Far West .....                                                       | 1167 |
| Aid to Victims of Southern Barbarity .....                               | 1168 |
| Official action of Commission on the death of President Lincoln .....    | 1170 |
| Visit of Commission to President Johnson .....                           | 1171 |
| Workings of U. S. San. Com. at Camp Parole, from Soldiers' Journal ..... | 1172 |
| Relation of San. Com. to rebel civilians .....                           | 1172 |
| The Commissions .....                                                    | 1175 |
| In aid of the Chicago Fair .....                                         | 1176 |
| Petroleum for the San. Com. ....                                         | 1177 |
| EDITORIAL.                                                        |      |
| President Lincoln .....                                                  | 1169 |
| The Bulletin—a Monthly .....                                             | 1171 |
| The Crisis .....                                                         | 1171 |
| Resignation of Dr. J. Foster Jenkins, Gen. Sec. ....                     | 1172 |
| The Work of Nineteen Homes .....                                         | 1178 |
| List of Special Relief Stations .....                                    | 1179 |

PROTECTIVE
War Claim and Pension Agency

OF THE

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

Office: No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

All the papers and correspondence required to procure Pensions, Bounty and Back Pay, and Prize Money for discharged soldiers and sailors, and for the relatives of soldiers and sailors dying in the service of the United States, prepared and forwarded, and the proceeds of all claims, when collected, remitted to the parties entitled, free of charge.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

WILLIAM M. TILGHMAN, Chairman.

|                        |                       |
|------------------------|-----------------------|
| HORACE BINNEY, JR.,    | ROBERT M. LEWIS,      |
| ALEXANDER BROWN,       | GEORGE M. CONARROE,   |
| HON. J. I. CLARK HARE, | CHARLES J. STILLÉ,    |
| WILLIAM WELSH,         | GEORGE D. PARRISH,    |
| WILLIAM L. REHN,       | H. LENOX HODGE, M.D., |
| GEORGE TROTT,          | ATHERTON BLIGHT.      |

H. LENOX HODGE, M.D., *Examining Surgeon.*EDWARD A. SMITH M.D., *Assistant Surgeon.*W. N. ASHMAN, *Solicitor.*JAS. W. HAZLEHURST, Assistant Solicitor.

PROTECTIVE
War-Claim Association

OF THE

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

|                      |                       |
|----------------------|-----------------------|
| HON. HAMILTON FISK,  | ADMIRAL DUPONT,       |
| JOHN J. CISCO, Esq., | RUD. A. WITTHAUS, Esq |

TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HONS. E. D. MORGAN,   | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, jr., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLOWES, D.D., | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to
HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
F. L. Olmsted, California.
George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., Cambridge, Mass.
S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
George T. Strong, Treasurer.
J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

|                        |                     |
|------------------------|---------------------|
| Henry W. Bellows, D.D. | George T. Strong.   |
| Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. | Wolcott Gibbs, M.D. |
| C. R. Agnew, M.D.      | Charles J. Stillé.  |

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

- U. S. San. Com., No. 18 West St., Boston, Mass.
- U. S. San. Com., Nos. 10 & 11 Cooper Union, New York.
- U. S. San. Com., State House, New Haven, Conn.
- U. S. San. Com., 1307 Chestnut St., Philada.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

- U. S. San. Com., 244 F St., Washington, D. C.
  - U. S. San. Com. Camp Distribution, Va.
  - U. S. San. Com., 46 Sharp St., Baltimore, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.
  - U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.
- Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

- U. S. San. Com., corner Vine and Sixth Sts., Cincinnati, O.
  - U. S. San. Com., No. 95 Bank St., Cleveland, O.
  - U. S. San. Com., No. 66 Madison St., Chicago, Ill.
  - U. S. San. Com., No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo, N. Y.
  - U. S. San. Com., No. 59 Fourth St., Pittsburgh, Penna.
  - U. S. San. Com., No. 32 Larned St., Detroit, Mich.
  - U. S. San. Com., Columbus, O.
  - U. S. San. Com., Fifth St., Louisville, Ky.
- The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

- F. N. KNAPP, Supt., Washington, D. C.
- J. B. AB BOTT, Chief Assistant, Washington, D. C.

"SOLDIERS' HOMES" AND "LODGES."

[OBJECTS. Temporary aid and protection,—food, lodging, care, &c.—for soldiers in transitu, chiefly the discharged, disabled, and furloughed.]

Alexandria, Va. "ALEXANDRIA LODGE." Orange and Alexandria Railroad Station. J. B. Holt, Superintendent.

Annapolis, Md. "HOME FOR SOLDIERS' WIVES AND MOTHERS" Mrs. Hopes Sayres, Matron.

Baltimore, Md. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 62 Conway Street. A. E. Hastings, Supt.

"SOLDIERS' LODGE." Opposite Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad Station. —, Superintendent.

Boston, Mass. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 76 Kingston Street. Charles F. Mudge, Supt., near Boston and Worcester Railroad Depot.

Buffalo, N. Y. "SOLDIERS' REST." Exchange Street, opposite Central Railroad Depot. Mrs. H. Indevine, Matron.

Cairo, Ill. "SOLDIERS' HOME." C. N. Shipman, Superintendent.

Camp Nelson, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Cincinnati, O. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Third Street. Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.

Cleveland, Ohio. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Joseph Jerome, Superintendent.

Columbus, Ohio. "SOLDIERS' HOME." T. E. Botsford, Superintendent.

Detroit, Michigan. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 81 Jefferson Avenue.

Harrisburg, Pa. Near the Railroad Depot. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." W. H. Hadley, Supt.

Jeffersonville, Indiana. "SOLDIERS' HOME." New Market Street, near the Depot. E. T. Smith, Superintendent.

Louisville, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." V. Scott, Superintendent.

Memphis, Tenn. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Near landing, C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Nashville, Tenn. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Captain I. Brayton, Superintendent.

New Orleans, La. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Corner Magazine and Julia Streets. Sumner Bullard, Superintendent.

New York City. "DISCHARGED SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 45 Grove Street, near Blecker. —, Superintendent.

Paducah, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." E. D. Way, Superintendent.

Portsmouth, Va. "SOLDIERS' HOME." John Alcocke, Superintendent.

Washington, D. C. "THE HOME." No. 374 North Capitol Street. J. B. Clark, Supt.

"HOME FOR SOLDIERS' WIVES AND MOTHERS. No. 380 North Capitol Street. J. B. Clark, Supt.

"Lodge No. 4. No. 389 H Street. —, Supt.

"Lodge No. 5." Maryland Avenue, near Washington & Alexandria R. R. Station. —, Supt.

"Lodge No. 6." Foot of Sixth Street. Howard McPherran, Superintendent.

SPECIAL RELIEF OFFICES.

[OBJECTS.—To give aid in procuring pay, pensions, bounty, prize money, arrears of pay and bounty, and other claims upon government. To supply clothing, hospital delicacies, crutches, &c. To give transportation, information, &c.]

Alexandria, Va. Office in Soldiers' Lodge, Orange and Alexandria Railroad Station. J. B. Holt, Agent.

Annapolis, Md. Office of United States Sanitary Commission: Major F. C. Howes, Agent.

Baltimore, Md. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 46 South Sharpe Street. J. T. Pancoast, Agent.

Boston, Mass. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 76 Kingston Street.

Buffalo N. Y. Branch United States Sanitary Commission, Adams' Block, No. 209 Washington Street.

Cairo, Ill. Office in "Soldiers' Home." C. N. Shipman, Agent.

Camp Nelson, Ky. Office in "Soldiers' Home." Thomas Butler, Agent.

Chattanooga, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission.

Chicago, Ill. United States Sanitary Commission.

Cincinnati, Ohio. United States Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets.

Cleveland, Ohio. Branch United States Sanitary Commission

Detroit, Mich. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street.

Dubuque, Ia. United States Sanitary Commission. Rev. E. S. Morris, Agent.

Harrisburg, Pa. Office in "Soldiers' Lodge." W. H. Hadley, Agent.

Jeffersonville, Ind. Office in "Soldiers'

Home." New Market Street, near railroad depot, E. T. Smith, Agent.

Knoxville, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission.

Leavenworth, Kansas. United States Sanitary Commission. J. R. Brown, Agent.

Louisville, Ky. United States Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street.

Memphis, Tenn. Office in "Soldiers' Lodge," near landing. C. W. Christy, Agent.

Milwaukee, Wis. Mrs. Colt.

Nashville, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission. E. Root, Agent.

New Orleans, La. Special Relief Office, United States Sanitary Commission, No. 96 Julia Street. O. C. Bullard, Agent.

New York City, N. Y. "Special Relief Office," Cooper Union, No. 10 Third Avenue. Mrs. W. P. Griffin, Chairman Special Relief Committee.

Paducah, Ky. Office in "Soldiers' Home." E. D. Way, Agent.

Philadelphia, Pa. United States Sanitary Commission, 1307 Chestnut Street, third story, back. Colonel Soest, Agent.

Portsmouth, Va. Office in "Soldiers' Home." John Alcocke, Agent.

Vicksburg, Miss. United States Sanitary Commission. J. G. Brown.

Washington, D. C. "Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, between 13th and 14th Streets. J. B. Abbott, Chief Assistant.

Wheeling, Va. United States Sanitary Commission.

BRANCH,

No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,

No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported
* * * * *

IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE REGULAR AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.

C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U. S. A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., Sept 20 1864.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, so FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U. S. A.

To B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE
The Best PALMER ARM for a SMALL ADVANCE.
The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.
Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices Address

B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D.,

President American Artificial Limb Co.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILLCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 38.

PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 1, 1865.

No. 38.

The SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first and fifteenth of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the office, 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously, express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or No. 1307 Chestnut street, Philadelphia,) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

GOOD WORDS OF GREAT MEN.

PRESIDENT ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The Sanitary Commission is doing a work of great humanity, and of direct practical value to the nation in this time of its trial. It is entitled to the gratitude and the confidence of the people, and I trust it will be generously supported. There is no agency through which voluntary offerings of patriotism can be more effectively made.

CHIEF JUSTICE SALMON P. CHASE.

What age before this age, and what country besides our country, ever witnessed such an organization as that of the Sanitary Commission? What needs have been supplied; what wants relieved; what wounds healed; what evils averted, by the activity, wisdom, and unflinching zeal of this admirable organization, fostered and sustained by the people, and recognized and aided by the Government.

THE LAST MARCH.

Bear him on! bear him on!
Peace and rest for him are won;
Let his requiem be sung!
Let his dirge be sadly rung!
Hearts so tenderly that clung,
Now with anguish sore are wrung.

Bear him on! bear him on!
In the greatness of his fame,
In the fullness of the same;
Handing down an honored name,
Mighty march of mighty frame,
Dead alike to praise or blame.

Bear him on! bear him on!
Let each sorrowing State receive him;
To their care his loved ones leave him;
Soon the grave for aye shall cleave him
From our sight, but hearts shall wreath him
With the bays of loyal love.

Bear him on! bear him on!
Martial music sadly stealing,
Muffled bells with plaintive pealing,
Sobs the people's heart revealing,
'Neath the shock stout men are reeling,
Women with clasped hands are kneeling,
Prayers with earnest vows they're sealing,
With a stronger, deeper feeling,
From henceforth to serve the right.

Bear him on! bear him on!
Listen to the measured tread
Of the horses, slowly led,
As they bear our Nation's Head
On to final earthly bed.
Moon and stars from sight have fled,
Darkness takes the watch instead,
Hanging sable pall o'erhead,
Curtaining the noble dead.

Bear him on! bear him on!
Distant earth in distant West,
Lightly press your martyred guest!
Martyr for the truth confest,
Principles his life attest
And on that whole life imprint,
With true courage, force, and zest,
Grief is struggling in our breast,
Proud we are, yet sore distrest
Of his form to be possesset,
As they guard him to his rest.
Christ receive him 'mid the blest!
Bear him on! bear him on!

Philadelphia, April 22, 1865.

DELTA.

THE WORK OF A GREAT PEOPLE.

(Continued from Bulletin No. 31.)

THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE ENTERPRISE.

While the men of the Northern and Southern States were preparing for war during the spring of 1861, the women of the North perceived already that in the great struggle which was then commencing there would be also something for them to do. They undertook at first to furnish to the medical corps of the army a supply of lint and bandages. Everywhere in the churches, in the schools, in the saloons of the rich, women and girls of every age and rank met together to prepare lint and bandages out of the linen which they bought. But they soon perceived that their activity and zeal were required in a more extensive field. They then organized the "Women's Central Association of Relief" of New York, and other societies were formed in different cities; and these courageous women resolved to consult men, who by their experience and position could open a suitable field for exertions. A pastor of New York, well known for the interest which he has taken in all works of charity and philanthropy, the Rev. Dr. Henry W. Bellows, gave them the following practical advice. "You want inquiry from the only correct sources. You must find out first what the Government will do, and can do, and then help it by working with it, and doing what it cannot. You must have advice derived from the Government."

This advice was immediately followed. The Rev. Dr. Bellows and three of the most eminent physicians of New York, Messrs. Van Buren, Harris and Harsen were authorized to go to Washington in order to consult the Secretary of War.

An exposé of their mission was presented by the delegates to the Secretary of War the 18th of May, 1861. Such was the commencement of the society now known under the name of the "Sanitary Commission of the United States," a society whose operations embrace a field almost as extensive as the whole of Europe, and whose voluntary contributions for the relief of the suffering soldiers have amounted in less than three years to the enormous sum of fifty millions of francs.

DIFFICULTIES.

It is certainly impossible for any person to have conducted himself towards a government with more moderation and respect than was done by the delegates of these patriotic societies of New York; nevertheless the authorities were not at first favorable to them. That regularity (or routine) which is so necessary in government affairs, is naturally opposed to innovations. We ought not then to be surprised that President Lincoln should call the proposed Commission a "fifth wheel in the military coach." The chiefs of the war department, and particularly those of the medical bureau, at first received the offers of service from the delegates in a manner which was anything but encouraging. But the women of the United States remained immovable in their resolution, and here again was verified the saying, "what woman wills, Heaven wills." Four days after the presentation of the expose by the delegates, Dr. R. C. Wood, surgeon in chief, pro tem., of the armies of the United States, expressed the following opinion in a communication addressed to the Secretary of War.

"The Medical Bureau would, in my judgment, derive important and useful aid from the counsels and well directed efforts of an intelligent and scientific Commission, to be styled 'A Commission of Inquiry and Advice in respect of the Sanitary Interests of the United States Forces,' and acting in co-operation with the Bureau in elaborating and applying such facts as might be elicited from the experience and more extended observation of those connected with armies with reference to the diet and hygiene of troops and the organization of military hospitals."

Profiting by the encouragement which was thus given them, the four delegates did not lose a moment, and the very next morning they sent to the Secretary of War the following:

"The Medical Bureau of the United States Army having asked for the appointment of a Sanitary Commission in aid of its own overtasked energies, the committee of the New York delegation to the Government on Sanitary Affairs, beg leave, at the request of the Medical Bureau, and as explanatory of its wishes, to state what precise powers are sought by the proposed Commission and what specific objects are aimed at."

These proposals made to the Government seemed to show that the contemplated Sanitary Commission might after all be a harmless association, having none other than loyal and laudable intentions; yet the powers which its founders demanded, as will be seen hereafter, were very extensive. But the delegates from New York proved themselves equal to the greatness of their mission by avoiding everything that could have the appearance of unreasonable impertinence, and by submitting themselves in all things to the military and medical authorities. They recognized moreover, at the very outset, not merely the importance but the absolute necessity of administrative etiquette and routine in all that related to the army.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION IS ORGANIZED.

The Secretary of War at length gave his official approbation to the proposed Commission on the 9th of June, 1861, but with little sympathy for the enterprise, and with no confidence in its success. On the 13th of June the Commission obtained the official sanction of the President in this concise form: "I approve the above, A. LINCOLN," subjoined to the order of the Secretary of War. The last sentence of that order is remarkable.

"The Commission will exist until the Secretary of War shall otherwise direct, unless sooner dissolved by its own action."

This was as much as to say that he had no faith in its permanence.

The inquiries made by the four delegates since their arrival in Washington had not revealed a very encouraging state of affairs. The American army, at the voice of the President calling for 75,000 volunteers, had been suddenly raised from 20,000 men to 80,000, and it could not reasonably be expected that the military administration, organized on the basis of the first number, could prove itself all at once equal to the second. The North American Review for January, 1864, gives the following picture of the state of affairs at Washington at the period referred to.

"For the first year of the war there was not commercial industry enough in the country to supply the actual wants of the army. Clothing could not be manufactured fast enough to meet the rapidly recruited ranks. Cloths were imported by the Government as a protection against the enormous rates which holders of suitable stuffs were selfishly exacting. Besides, the ideas of the government bureaus did not and could not expand as fast as the unprecedented wants of the army did. Timidity and caution tied up even the boldest hands. The suffering which existed in the rank and file from want of blankets, stockings, overcoats and tents was very great. The regimental hospitals, undernew and inexperienced surgeons, without acquaintance with bureau routine, were often desperately deficient both in what they might have had, if at the proper time they had known how to ask for it, and what no skill in asking at that time could secure. The general hospitals were just beginning to be established. Inconvenient and wholly unsuitable buildings were the only ones within reach, and the Government was not then aroused to the necessity of creating proper ones. The hospital fund, the usual adequate resource of the surgeon for all extra comforts and delicacies, now extensively, nay universally, in operation, could not at once be inaugurated, even by experts, and was utterly beyond the management of novices. It afforded no dependence for many months, and was of little use for the first year of the war."

It was at that moment of perplexity and need that this voluntary association, seeking to form itself into a Sanitary Commission, offered its services to the Government.

The delegates and their constituents, far from being alarmed at the difficulties which presented themselves to their view, felt only the more deeply the necessity of their enterprise; and having obtained from the Government all that they had asked—the right to exist, to labor and to counsel—they immediately set themselves to work in order to provide the necessary succor for the suffering soldiers.

THE COMMISSION BEGINS ITS WORK.

There had been already several societies organized for the purpose of assisting the soldiers, but they were all more or less deficient from not having an established system of operations. In the different States, districts and even towns, local committees had been formed, who received gifts in money or in kind for the benefit of the volunteers of their particular locality; but these committees were not long in discovering the difficulties necessary to be encountered when provision had to be made for soldiers who were distant hundreds of leagues, and were liable at any time to be sent from one end of a State to the other, that is to say to a distance equal to the length of France, without the public at large having any knowledge of their movements. The Sanitary Commission had at first some difficulty in making these local associations understand that the interest of the troops, for whose advantage they had been formed, would be better promoted by one great national organization, than by mere municipal committees or local societies. One by one, however, they joined themselves to the Commission, and in a short time the women of the whole North had organized themselves into auxiliary societies in all the towns and villages, and were laboring faithfully and energetically for the benefit of the Commission. We shall be able to form some idea of the importance which this association has acquired, when we are informed that at the present time it comprises within its organization more than 32,000 of these auxiliary societies.

In order to supply the continually increasing wants of the army, and to provide for the proper distribution of the articles sent in abundance from all parts of the loyal States, the members of the Commission soon found that their number was insufficient, and they at once resolved to correct the deficiency by receiving new members into their association. Their standing committee was increased to twenty-one members, comprising several of the most distinguished physicians and philanthropists in the United States. Among these we cannot omit to mention Mr. Federick Law Olmstead, whose works on the agricultural and other resources of the Southern States have made his name celebrated in the learned world. He occupied a high position as municipal engineer of the city of New York, but at the first call of the Sanitary Commission, which already had all his sympathies, he resigned his highly advantageous and honorable position in order to accept the post of general secretary of the association under the direction of the committee.

Afterwards, associated members were added to the central committee. These were persons chosen on account of their position, and their willingness to use their influence for the good of the cause, without any other recompense than the consciousness of having performed their duty. The business of these members is to make known to those around them and to the public at large the wants as well as the objects of the Commission, and to induce those who desire to do anything for the soldiers, to put themselves in communication with the association. Thousands of printed circulars have been distributed in all directions, setting forth the wants of the army, and especially of the military hospitals. A proclamation has been sent to all the post-masters of the North, (i. e. of the loyal States), with the request that it may be circulated as much as possible, inviting the inhabitants, and particularly the women, to form themselves into auxiliary societies. The editors of the newspapers and other journals, (and in the United States there are 4,052 journals and reviews with an annual circulation of 927,951,548 copies*), have been invited to discuss the subject in their columns. The presidents and directors of the life insurance companies have been made to realize that they have an especial interest in the welfare and health of the soldiers. In short, an appeal has been made to all classes of society who were in any way interested in the movement, or who felt that it was their duty to labor for the soldiers while these were fighting for their country.

THE SUBJECT OF TRANSPORTS.

The women having at length found a practical method of manifesting their patriotism, and the sympathy which they felt for the hardships of the soldiers, and knowing also what things were immediately necessary to the army, set themselves to work with a zeal and energy rarely exhibited by men. But new difficulties rose before the Commission at every step. The private houses, stores, schools and even the churches were encumbered with bales and packages of clothing and other articles destined for the sick and wounded, awaiting the orders of the quartermaster general. The subject of transportation in a country so extensive as the United States, presents peculiar difficulties, not only on account of the proportionally small number of railroads and canals, † &c., but also on account of the rivalry existing at the commencement of the war between the different States. The theory of the individual sovereignty of the States, and a general desire to maintain the integrity and autonomy ‡ of each, presented a serious obstacle to the efforts of the Commission. Nevertheless, this jealousy of State towards State, which the National Government had been unable to control,

* See "The United States of America," by John Bigelow, United States Consul at Paris.—Paris, 1863.

† The 60,000 kilometres of railroads and the 6,000 kilometres of canals possessed by the United States, are indeed a small affair compared with the extent of the country. [A kilometre is a little more than three-fifths of a mile.]

‡ Or self-government.

was at length overcome by the Sanitary Commission, inspired and directed by the spirit of philanthropy. It was resolved to treat the country, not as a confederacy of sovereign states, but as an indivisible whole; to efface, so to speak, the ancient lines of separation, and to form new sections, of which the navigable waters and lines of railroad constituted the different bases. General depots were established in the large cities in order to receive contributions of every kind from the neighboring towns and villages. Thus one hundred and twenty towns and villages became auxiliaries to the section of which Cleveland, in Ohio, formed the central depot; twelve hundred and thirty-six became auxiliary to New York, &c. The standing committee at Washington was from that time able to regulate and direct the beneficence of the whole country towards the points of greatest need; at the same time they were delivered from, perhaps, the most onerous part of their former labors, having now to correspond only with the general depots.—L'Œuvre d'un Grand Peuple, par J. N. P., Paris, 1864.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORT OF DR. ALEXANDER McDONLAD.

ARMIES OPERATING BEFORE RICHMOND, }
CITY POINT, March 31, 1865. }

DR. J. FOSTER JENKINS,

General Secretary U. S. Sanitary Commission.

SIR:—Since the date of my last report these armies have been comparatively quiet, but until within a few days no movement of the entire armies has been made. Spite of all this seeming quiet a great amount of labor has been performed, and many changes in location of camps made, involving the erection of new quarters, re-arrangement of ground and removal of stores, in some cases several times during the winter; consequently our agents have been kept busy most of the time till the coming of warm weather in protecting themselves and others against the rigors of a Virginia winter, and supplying the wants of the army as completely as means for so doing were at hand.

Our stations at the right, Army of the James, remain in nearly the same location as at date of my last report. Many improvements have been made, and the quarters are very comfortable. One station with each, 24th and 25th Corps, and their base at Deep Bottom, are the points from which the Army of the James is supplied. This department includes all the territory from Point of Rocks to Four Mile Run, and the number of agents is sufficient to meet all present demands. It is under the charge of Mr. Geo. A. Williams, assisted by two agents in each corps and one at Deep Bottom. Another agent will be sent to work among the colored troops of the 25th Corps, as requested by Gen. Ord, so soon as the proper person can be found to undertake this work. These troops are employing their spare time in learning to read, and evince a great desire to improve as rapidly as possible. By the aid of books furnished by the Commission the agents and chaplains have succeeded in establishing a foundation for future education, and increased the desire for information among nearly all the troops.

Our stations with the army of the Potomac are located along the line of railroad to Humphrey's station. The position of these corps has been changed two or three times since January 1, and the work of building on one side would hardly be completed before a move would be ordered, and a new location chosen. This has been specially the case with the 5th Corps. Each station in both armies is furnished with two four horse teams and drivers, two agents, two loads of supplies, and a saddle horse for the agent in charge.

The Relief Corps in the Army of the Potomac is in charge of Mr. J. W. Johnson, and is in a most efficient condition. Stations in this army draw supplies directly from City Point, those in the Army of the James from Deep Bottom, to which place stores are sent from City Point by water.

The army of the James having occupied all the lines from Point of Rocks to Four Mile Run, including the 24th, 25th, and part of the 8th Corps, has demanded and received a due share of attention from the Commission. Including, as it has, all the colored troops in these armies, many of whom have previously been slaves, but now stand out as freemen, battling for the country, yet as children in their dependence on others for necessaries or comforts; many of them heedless regarding the future, looking only to present need, and requiring special instruction and special care, has created a want for the means of instructing men never previously so fully developed; has added to our list of supplies, books, slates, pencils and similar stores of small cost but great benefit, and demanded with the means for education competent instructors, which we have endeavored to furnish so far as lay in our power. Spelling books and slates have been judiciously distributed, and our agents have exerted themselves to have chaplains and others aid in teaching their uses to the men, so that now it is no uncommon scene to find two or three colored soldiers gathered in some quiet place aiding each other in their studies. These troops have seemed to suffer from the extreme cold weather of the past winter much more than whites, and we have been compelled to issue for their use comparatively large quantities of woolen clothing, socks, mittens, &c.

While the agents of the 25th Corps have been thus engaged with colored troops, those of the 24th and 8th have been employed in ministering to the necessities of their men, and have done all they could to relieve or prevent suffering in any of its various forms.

The table of distribution will show that all in this department have received a due share of attention, and that our agents have not been unmindful of their duty.

From this army was sent Jan. 4 an expedition which succeeded in capturing Fort Fisher. Two of our agents, Messrs. Foster and Adams, with a good supply of stores, accompanied it, and Mr. Foster has followed the troops to Wilmington. The service rendered at these points has proved of great benefit to men wounded in the attack on Fort Fisher, and also to men released from rebel prisons and sent to Wilmington, where many of them remain till sufficiently recuperated to resume their journey.

At both places our agents received the thanks and co-operation of government officers, and good evidence that their work was appreciated by the commanding generals and the troops. Messrs. Foster and Adams deserve special credit for their industry and persevering efforts during this campaign.

January 25 Mr. Foster arrived from Fort Fisher, and was supplied with a fresh lot of stores, with which he returned. He reports that the Sanitary Commission was the only benevolent association represented during the attack.

At Wilmington a quantity of liquors were turned over to the Commission to be used for men in hospital, and as the supply of milk was exhausted, our agent purchased a lot, and furnished milk-punch to the hospitals by directions of the surgeons.

The Wilmington station has since been transferred to the department of North Carolina, and future reports will doubtless be forwarded by the agent in charge at Newbern.

With the Army of the Potomac we have six agents in charge of Mr. J. W. Johnson. Their issues have been made mainly to men in the regiments, with a limited distribution to hospitals. They include the 2d, 5th, 6th, 9th and Cavalry Corps, Engineer and Artillery Brigade. Picket firing, attacks on the line, hard duty, raids and advances have kept the hospitals in this department filled with wounded and sick, making the duties of our agents constant and at times arduous.

The sanitary condition of this army during the past three months has equalled, if not surpassed, that of any previous season. Camps have been well chosen, regularly laid out, well policed, and the morale of the men has generally been excellent. Rations are well cooked, quarters, arms and equipments kept clean, daily drills and amusements of various kinds have given a pleasant and healthy stimulus to the men, and enabled them better to endure the duties and fatigues of service.

Particular attention has been paid to men sick in quarters, who may be kept from hospitals and returned to duty. The call for small stores had been great previous to the advent of paymasters. "Uncle John," as he is familiarly called by the men, (John Vasser), reports having distributed from Feb. 21 to 25, 1,000 Soldier's Friend, 2,120 sheets of paper, 1,000 envelopes, 42 combs, 50 pens, 50 handkerchiefs, 25 needles,  $\frac{3}{4}$  lb. of thread, 30 papers of tobacco, 2,090 newspapers, and 9 pairs of mittens. These are personal distributions. Besides these corn starch, farina, milk, crackers, &c., &c., are furnished to the sick, who are thereby enabled, with a few days of rest, to resume their duties.

Feb. 1 and 2 the work of clearing hospitals of 2d, 5th and 6th Corps commenced, and the morning of the 3d found these troops ready for a move. Feb. 4, marching orders were issued, and the troops moved on the 5th, 2d Corps skinning all the afternoon. A fight on the 6th was succeeded by an intensely cold night, with hail and rain, during which the wounded suffered much from exposure. Punch, crackers, &c., were at hand, also Jamaica ginger and blankets. Our work continued through the night, and till noon of the 7th. Each ambulance was provided with Jamaica ginger instead of whisky for a stimulant. Over 1,000 wounded were sent from Patrick station, to whom 100 gallons milk punch, 1 gross Jamaica ginger, 2 bbls. crackers and a quantity of blankets were furnished as they lay on the platform waiting for transportation to the hospitals.

The recent battles at Hatcher's and Gravelly Run have increased our labors in all departments. The wounded cavalymen especially demand a large issue of clothing, as they were prisoners in rebel hands some twenty-four hours, during which time they were robbed of almost everything, even to shoes, stockings and blankets. The 2d, 5th, 9th, 24th and Cavalry Corps hospitals have all had large accessions of wounded.

Schools, libraries, reading, writing and smoking rooms have been established in some of the hospitals, and are meeting with success. Schools are taught by agents after regular duties of the day have been performed, and are well attended. Libraries are established in connection with the schools, from which books are loaned to men who are unable to leave the wards; reading, writing and smoking rooms are for those who are convalescing. These accommodations are a source of much benefit, well arranged for their several purposes, and kept in good order by the application of a proper code of regulations conspicuously posted in each tent.

Washing of clothing was commenced in some of the hospitals and resulted in a great saving to the Commission: also in the establishment of laundries by hospitals, which have for the present superceded the necessity for our doing such work, and it has consequently been temporarily abandoned, yet can easily be resumed if the present arrangement of hospital laundries should not work better than it now promises.

Issues of clothing by quartermasters to men in hospitals reach only those cases where the applicant will probably be compelled to remain several weeks, as officers are not disposed to become responsible for stock to be kept on hand, and will therefore only draw for the amount ordered; consequently men who will go to general hospitals, or be returned to their regiments in a short time, must remain without clothing or be furnished by the Commission.

Refugees, in addition to their lodgings, are furnished with food, but the number of this class has been gradually diminishing, much to our satisfaction, as most of them arrive in an almost destitute condition, and we cannot relieve them without the risk of so depleting our stock as to detract from the proper application at times of necessity.

Stations at Fort Monroe and Portsmouth are continued; their supplies are drawn from the storehouse at Norfolk. This branch is in charge of Mr. H. P. Sherman, and the work of individual relief is being ably conducted; adjacent hospitals also are supplied from the Norfolk store. Disabled men from the front are received and taken care of by Mr. Alcooke, Superintendent of the Soldier's Lodge, at Portsmouth. His reports show that since Jan. 1, 1865, he has given 4,320 meals and 1,422 lodgings, besides supplying necessary clothing and comforts to a very large number of men on their way to or from their regiments. His work has found favor with all who know him, and the facilities afforded by government officers at this point are such as can be expected only from the result of patient and persevering application to duty.

Until the arrival of army paymasters, (Feb. 25), we were continually receiving applications for stationery, buttons, needles, pins, thread, yarn, combs, soap, clothing, and especially tobacco, articles which men must have, but could obtain only by purchase or by application to the Sanitary, and having no money, not having been paid in several months, the Sanitary was their only and last resource. We have endeavored to meet these demands whenever made, well knowing that there was no other source of supply.

We always want clothing, vegetables, stationery, sewing material, dried fruit, sugar, tea, milk, stimulants, tobacco, rags and bandages; these are the standards; hospital food, flavoring extracts, slippers, &c., &c., are needed for special use.

All supplies should be carefully and securely packed; much loss arises from the want of a little care in the preparation of goods for shipment, and in legible marking. We have often received packages bearing a conspicuous mark of their contents, but a very diminutive and obscure address; reverse this order and the arrangement would be complete.

A little work called "The Soldier's Friend," has been largely distributed in these armies, is gladly received, read and preserved. About forty thousand copies have been distributed by our agents, and the work is well appreciated by men and officers. Mr. Sperry suggests the addition of a few simple rules for the preservation of health, to include some instructions regarding the proper preparation and cooking of soldiers' rations.

This little book will be found carefully preserved in the pockets of a great majority of the soldiers who have received a copy. It contains just the information needed by every soldier, so arranged and condensed as to be of practical value to him. Give us more of them.

During the recent exchange of prisoners it has been our good fortune to minister to some of the wants of those who have suffered so much and so long for the cause. The distribution of comforts to a part of these men, although in our regular line of business, was deemed a gratifying though sad opportunity for doing good; and the spirit of thankfulness with which any little attention was received, more than repaid the exertions necessary for such deeds. We have supplied all that could be reached, both at Varina and Wilmington, with all we had that was needed, and our only regret has been that the supply was so limited.

Refugees, men, women and children have been arriving almost daily, many of them in a nearly destitute condition. Women, whose husbands have succeeded in reaching some free city, come through our lines, often traveling miles on foot, "flanking the pickets," and under the flag against which their nearest male relatives have been fighting, seeking protection for themselves and children.

The number of letters forwarded for soldiers since Jan. 1, has been 34,794, of newspapers 1,312.

A large number of letters are written at the several writing rooms and on board our boats, where the conveniences are always at hand, and open at all hours of each day for such as desire to make use of them.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL.

WILMINGTON, N. C., }
March 30, 1865. }

DOCTOR:—I deem it my duty to report to you as the General Secretary U. S. Sanitary Commission, the workings of this institution in this Department, particularly with that portion of the field occupied by Major-General Terry's command.

The last expedition to Fort Fisher was fitted out in a hurry, and but a few medical stores prepared for the army. My assignment to the command as medical director, was on the night before its sailing from Bermuda Hundred, and no adequate arrangements could be made to supply the medical department of the expedition. Indeed I did not then know where we were going. I was informed, however, that "all things would be supplied from Army Headquarters." With this assurance I tried to rest satisfied. On landing at Fort Fisher I found that little or no arrangements had been made to supply the medical department with medicines, dressings or stores, and that we were even without cooking utensils or nourishment for sick and wounded, except such as could be borrowed from regiments composing the command. You may well judge my feelings at the prospect before us. Almost without food and stimulants, and entirely destitute of transportation, upon a bleak shore, in front of a strongly entrenched and confident enemy, with the certainty of a fight, and the prospect of a large number of wounded, I looked about me for help. At this juncture of affairs Mr. F. W. Foster, Agent of the Sanitary Commission, came to my relief. His goods were on shipboard, but he immediately set about getting them off, and through his exertions, and by his supplies we were able to make our sick and wounded comparatively comfortable. Beside the furnishing of supplies, Mr. Foster and his assistant, F. B. Adams, personally distributed food and nourishment to the wounded, acting as nurses, and even dressing wounds. For such efficiency and devotion and timely aid I desire to express to them, and through you to the Sanitary Commission, my most heartfelt thanks. Since the capture of Fort Fisher Mr. Foster has followed the fortunes of this command. At this place, (Wilmington), he, as well as every one with a heart and means, has found abundant for hands and head to do. The Sanitary Commission contributing, under the charge of Mr. F., largely to the care and safety of the returned prisoners.

I have not called your attention to the above case, or facts, as the first instance of relief or occasion I have had to acknowledge the importance and timely aid of this Commission. During a service of four years I have had many opportunities to witness the great good of this Commission under such officers as Mr. Foster.

Mr. F. is now at Wilmington, and proceeding in all respects as he began in January, systematically to feed the sick of this city.

At present we have here about 3,000 of the returned prisoners, most of them too sick to be transported North. The average number of deaths among these people has been about twenty per day. Three of my best medical officers have sickened and died of fever contracted in the discharge of their duties among these sick. Several others are sick, and will probably die. We are endeavoring to remove the sick to hospitals out of town, and by thorough police regulations, place the city in a more healthy condition. To do this we require at least 500 barrels of lime and other disinfectments. If the Sanitary Commission can furnish any part of this they will greatly oblige.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,

NORMAN S. BARNES,

Surgeon U. S. Vols.,
Medical Director, Major-General Perry's Command.

DR. J. FOSTER JENKINS,

Gen. Sec'y U. S. San. Com. Washington, D. C.

AID TO PRISONERS.

SHERMAN HOSPITAL, WILMINGTON, N. C., }
April 8, 1865. }

MR. FOSTER,

Agent of the Sanitary Commission.

SIR:—It gives me great pleasure to bear testimony to the very efficient manner in which yourself and associates with the means placed at your disposal, alleviated the suffering of a great number of paroled prisoners who recently came into our lines from Confederate prisons. I am certain that if your supplies had not arrived at a most opportune moment, many would have died from the want of the necessaries you so kindly furnished. To your energy and faithfulness much is due. I am sure, sir, that all who witnessed your exertions, in caring for the sick and wounded, gave you much deserved credit.

Allow me to thank you for what was done for the men under my charge. You clothed them; you fed them; and I do not doubt but that for your personal attention, many who are living would have died.

I am, Sir, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

W. E. DAY, 117th N. Y.,

Surgeon in charge Hospital,

NEWBERN AND WILMINGTON.

FROM DR. J. M. PAGE.

NEWBERN, N. C., April 23, 1865.

DR. C. R. AGNEW,

MY DEAR DOCTOR:—Your favor of the 17th is just received. I sent the Uncas to Wilmington with twenty-five barrels of lime and seventy-five barrels of chloride of lime. Those barrels of lime and chloride of lime I retained here have been of infinite value to us. The desire to avoid pestilence here the coming season is intense, and the lime and chloride which the Commission has just sent us have inspired the first ray of confidence for the authorities and citizens and service for any chance of immunity from the plague this summer. I have given it and applied it in the proper quarters, which my recent connection with the Board of Health enabled me to do with judicious discrimination. I sent Mr. Bowman to Wilmington, and he has just returned with his report. Dr. Hand, Medical Director of this department, just from Wilmington, reports a great improvement in the condition of things there, with regard to sanitary and to military police. * * *

We have now nearly three thousand occupied beds in our general hospital here, and are constantly sending off loads of the convalescents to make room for the new installments from Sherman's army. In the exigencies of the transportation of such numbers some most happy opportunities have occurred for the timely relief of the Sanitary Commission, and these opportunities have been fully occupied and appreciated, thanks to the abundant and timely supplies forwarded to this department. My brother has already established a Sanitary depot at Raleigh, and I yesterday sent him a car-load of stores—nine to eleven tons weight—with Mr. Hoblit to assist in their disbursement. The depot at Kinston I have broken up, and withdrawn Mr. Perry to assist me here. Mr. Tope is conducting affairs at our depot in Goldsborough. Since the day you left Newbern, when Sherman's barefooted and brave soldiers began to make their appearance, an army—literally an army—has besieged the doors of the Commission, and no less an army has blessed, and been blessed, by the streams of relief which have poured from our doors and windows. There seems now to be such an affinity between want in the army and the great centers of supply for that want among the friends of the army at the North, as to insure the timely transmission of the supplies through our established channels. The large installments of vegetables—over two thousand barrels—invoiced to me arrived just when a boat arrived, and a half-rationed army could obtain fresh vegetables from no other source. The sixty thousand pounds of tomatoes just now received are equally opportune, and eagerly accepted. I forwarded to the front, six thousand pounds of them by last night's train.

OUR WORK AT NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE.

BY GEO. A. BLAKE.

With this I forward you Special Relief Report from O. C. Bullard, Pension Report from Chas. W. Seaton, and Report of Soldiers' Home by W. S. Bullard; also several letters received within the past week from our agents in the field, and others occasioned by our good work, being written on both sides, all sides, and crossed; I must forward few of them unfastened. I can hardly hope to add anything to the information I have given you in my weekly letters.

Since my last report larger demands have been made upon us than ever before. The arrival of Major-General A. J. Smith's command and the fitting out of an expedition against Mobile has occasioned a severe drain on our stock, as our weekly account will show. Knowing that the larger portion of our troops would be congregated in the region of Mobile, either at Fort Gaines on Dauphin Island, or at Barrancas, I have forwarded to these posts a good supply of stores, knowing they were more needed there than here. I have sent as follows:

Memorandum of stores forwarded to Dauphin Island and Barrancas since Jan. 15, 1865.

|                                |       |                       |       |
|--------------------------------|-------|-----------------------|-------|
| Potatoes, bush.....            | 90    | Pepper, papers.....   | 72    |
| Pickles and kraut, gals 10,400 |       | Ginger, papers.....   | 72    |
| Crackers, bbis.....            | 64    | Socks, pairs.....     | 320   |
| Corn meal, bbis.....           | 20    | Shoes, pairs.....     | 60    |
| Dried fruit, bbis.....         | 10    | Slippers, pairs.....  | 355   |
| Tomatoes, lbs.....             | 636   | Cotton drawers, pairs | 568   |
| Beef stock, lbs.....           | 1,475 | Woolen drawere, pairs | 167   |
| Farina, lbs.....               | 595   | Cotton shirts.....    | 1,941 |
| Corn-starch, lbs.....          | 661   | Woolen shirts.....    | 337   |
| Condensed milk, lbs.....       | 1,258 | Wrappers.....         | 107   |
| Chocolate, lbs.....            | 175   | Handkerchiefs.....    | 995   |
| Tea, lbs.....                  | 17    | Towels.....           | 1,310 |
| Sugar, lbs.....                | 250   | Abdominal bandages.   | 150   |
| Cod fish, lbs.....             | 350   | Combs.....            | 500   |
| Canned fruit, cans.....        | 98    | Suspenders.....       | 20    |
| Mustard, cans.....             | 72    | Rags & bandages, bbis | 7     |
| Brandy, bots.....              | 48    | Writing paper, reams. | 19    |
| Whisky, bots.....              | 534   | Envelopes.....        | 8,500 |
| Foreign wine, bots.....        | 312   | Pens.....             | 432   |
| Domestic wines, bots.....      | 192   | Pen-holders.....      | 144   |
| Lime juice, bots.....          | 413   | Pencils.....          | 100   |
| Extract ginger, bots.....      | 48    | Housewives.....       | 7900  |
| Catsup, bots.....              | 35    | Cashions.....         | 102   |
| Luk, bots.....                 | 144   | Pillows.....          | 270   |
| Reading matter, bbis.....      | 2     | Pillow-cases.....     | 180   |
| Chloroform, lbs.....           | 2     | Sheets.....           | 166   |

|                    |     |                        |     |
|--------------------|-----|------------------------|-----|
| Blankets.....      | 105 | Soap, lbs.....         | 30  |
| Bed sacks.....     | 200 | Eye shades.....        | 6   |
| Musquito bars..... | 74  | Arm slings.....        | 106 |
| Tin cups.....      | 124 | Linen thread, lbs..... | 3   |
| Tin basins.....    | 18  |                        |     |

The above is an account of the stock that I have sent forward; it does not include what was delivered to forces of the Expeditionary Corps while at rest in the neighborhood of this city. As I wrote you before, every regiment of 16th Corps, Major-General Smith's, were furnished with more or less kraut or pickles on arrival in this city.

The demand for writing material has been constant, and more than equal to my supply on hand, which will account for my considerable purchases. The soldiers are all anxious to write to their friends, and having no money at their command, they are obliged to call on the Commission. I will venture to say that we have distributed more writing paper and envelopes during the past three months, directly to the soldier, than has been done in this city by any other organization during the war.

We are well represented at the front both in men and stores, and I intend to go forward the first of next week, or as soon as Mobile is occupied. You will hear many reports of "Mobile fallen," but up to this time our forces do not occupy Mobile.

Thus far about one thousand will cover the number of killed and wounded. Most of the wounded have been brought to this city, and we have been able to meet emergencies. Occasionally I have purchased to do so, feeling that the work of the Commission demanded it.

From New Orleans Delta, April 13.

TESTIMONIAL TO THE SANITARY COMMISSION.

The following letter explains itself. It is another evidence of the excellent management of the Sanitary Commission agency in this Department:

NEW ORLEANS, April 7, 1865.

Agent of the U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR:—The following resolution was adopted unanimously at the meeting of the Union Ministerial Association, held in this city on the 3d inst.:

Resolved, That as ministers resident of New Orleans, and chaplains resident in this Department, feeling a deep and abiding interest in the Government of the United States, and the welfare of its soldiers, we are profoundly thankful, on behalf of both, for the aid and comfort afforded to the sick and wounded in the army, by the United States Sanitary Commission, and from personal knowledge of the manner in which the New Orleans agency has been managed by Dr. Geo. A. Blake, we most cordially commend it to the confidence of those who love the Union and seek the good of the soldier. Respectfully yours,

E. ANDREWS,
Recording Scribe of the Association.

HOME AT NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11, 1865.

SIR:—The accompanying statement relative to the Soldiers' Home, was made at the request of Captain Browne, who was sent to inspect the Home by Gen Sherman, commanding defences of New Orleans.

He handed me a paper, of which the following is a copy, as indicating the information sought.

"The number of men on detailed service boarding at the Home, the number in transition on the morning of the 10th inst., and a condensed history of the manner in which the institution is conducted, what Government furnishes, and what is done by the Commission."

The statistics desired were given him on a separate paper. My statement may be of some interest to you, and, I think, has added somewhat to the confidence manifested by the military authorities in our work.

The Home is inspected by different officers, sent by Gen. Sherman, very frequently, so far without the first word of complaint, and with frequent commendation.

Very respectfully,

O. C. BULLARD.

F. N. KNAPP,
Superintendent Special Relief.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 10, 1864.

CAPT. BROWN, A. D. C.

SIR:—I have the honor herewith to furnish you a brief history of the "Soldiers' Home" in this city, its workings and other data that may be of value to meet the object you have in view.

The Home was established under Special Order 272, Headquarters Department of the Gulf, in October, 1863. Chaplain E. Nute, of the First Kansas Volunteers, was appointed Superintendent by Major-General Banks under that order. Mr. Nute was at the time acting as an Agent of the Western Sanitary Commission, having been detailed by General Grant to the service of that Commission in organizing similar work along the Mississippi River.

The Western Commission were in a degree responsible for the management of the Home at first.

During the winter, a transfer of the patronage or care of the Home, was made to the U. S. Sanitary Commission. In February, 1864, Major-General Reynolds, of New Orleans, appointed an Agent of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, Superintendent under the supervision of O. C. Bullard, Special Relief Agent of Department of the Gulf, since which time the Home has been conducted by the Commission on the following general principles.

The Government furnishes for the use of the Home, the building known as the Planters' Hotel, corner of Magazine and Julia streets.

It also furnishes rations and fuel based upon the morning reports, daily returned to Headquarters of Defences.

These reports give the number at the Home, under the several classes of furloughed, discharged, for duty, (or those in transitu, including all the men received on orders from the proper officers), paroled prisoners, detailed soldiers, i. e. orderlies, &c., who are regular boarders at the Home, (received only on orders from Headquarters of Defences), and civil employees, i. e. those employed in the Home and paid by the Commission.

The Sanitary Commission hires three adjoining buildings and lots. No. 94 Julia street is used for a baggage room and lodgings for the detailed men; No. 96 Julia street contains the office of the Special Relief Agent and Pension Agent, the rear of the building being used as lodgings for colored soldiers and the colored help, with laundry arrangements on the lower floor; buildings and lots on Magazine street adjoining the Planters' Hotel are used for storage, wood yard, &c.

The Sanitary Commission has also provided iron bedsteads, comfortably furnished with bedding; all the necessary kitchen, table and laundry utensils; and the fixtures for heating not belonging to the building.

It furnishes the gas, a surgeon for daily attendance on the sick, the services of superintendent, matron, two female nurses, a night watchman, and from twelve to fifteen male and female employees.

The working force is necessarily considerable. The cooking, washing, scrubbing, chamber work, preparation of fuel, &c., incident to such an establishment, (if neatly and perfectly conducted) will explain this point.

The common table is furnished to a considerable extent with vegetables, dried fruit, pickles, &c., in addition to Government rations. There is a comfortable hospital ward for all that need medical attendance, or who are too feeble to go to the common table, or sit up through the day.

Food suitable for the respective cases is served to the inmates of the hospital in the ward by the nurses in attendance.

They are kindly cared for, and such medicines and stimulants administered as the Surgeon may direct.

A few days rest, with good nursing and change of diet, often saves the lives of feeble men, who have before them the long journey to their homes.

Seven men are daily detailed from the First New Orleans Regiment, who act as guard at the Home and at the Government buildings on the opposite corner.

Respectfully submitted,

O. C. BULLARD,
Spectral Relief Agent,
U. S. San. Com., New Orleans.

RELIEF TO PRISONERS.

BY H. TONE.

VICKSBURG, MISS., April 6, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY.

Secretary West. Dept., U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR:—I am happy to be able to report that we are making excellent progress in our work with the prisoners here. I am now issuing daily from forty to fifty barrels of potatoes to the men in camp, (numbering about 4,200), with an occasional additional issue of kraut. The men have all received new clothes, are drawing good rations, and if they could only hear from home and get plenty of tobacco they would be perfectly happy. They have been furnished with considerable quantities of paper and pens, both by private individuals and the various Commissions, but heretofore have had so little ink that much of the supply could not be used. To-day I procured material and manufactured about two gallons, which I carried to camp in pint bottles and divided so as to make it go as far as possible. To-morrow I shall prepare more, and I hope that hereafter no soldier will be prevented from writing home by want of ink.

The citizens here have done nobly. Several of them, foremost among whom were Capt. Greeley and Mr. Foster, have devoted almost their entire time to the matter, collecting funds, purchasing and distributing goods. They expended several thousand dollars for tobacco, towels, combs, shears, razors, paper and envelopes.

Here let me urge again the necessity of sending large quantities of tobacco. The number of people who use the weed, is as astonishing as the almost uncontrollable appetite they acquire for it. Men may be filthy, ragged, buttonless, and in a very miserable condition every way; and yet a "comfort bag" containing towel, soap, buttons, needle and thread and a comb, will not be half as warmly welcomed as a piece of tobacco. The few pounds that I had, (120), although cut into very small pieces, and made to go as far as possible, have brought more thanks and created a greater sensation than all the potatoes I have issued.

I have made arrangements to procure a list of all the men now here, and also, as far as possible, the names of those who died at Andersonville and Cahawba.

Enclosed please find a copy of a communication which I addressed to Gen. Morgan L. Smith, with reference to establishing a feeding station at Black River, with the endorsement thereon by Capt. Fisk, A. A. G.

He also gave me a note to Major Miller, commanding the camp, requesting him to do all in his power to assist in carrying out the object of my mission. The articles desired have been procured, and Mr. Johnston will be on the ground, ready to work, to-morrow. The remainder of the prisoners, being nearly all men who are unable to walk, will be greatly benefitted by such a station.

Two days ago the train took out a car-load of rebel prisoners and brought back a load of our men. The contrast in the physical condition of the two squads of men was very striking. The rebels were fat and hearty, well clothed, carrying large rolls of blankets, and loaded down with bread and meat. Our own men were so feeble that they had to be taken from the cars to the hospital in ambulances, were ragged beyond decency, had not a blanket or a crumb of food in the squad, and some were almost in a dying condition. To-day 190 more arrived, and these were in even a worse condition. While they were at the depot we gave them milk-punch and crackers and wine, and it was enough to make one weep to hear the fervent expressions of "thanks, thanks," coming up from throats too weak to utter more. One died while we were feeding them. Poor fellow, he had lived to endure all the sufferings the rebels could impose upon him, only to die upon the threshold of his home at last.

VICKSBURG, April 3, 1865.

GEN. M. L. SMITH, Commanding.

The Sanitary Commission propose, with your consent and assistance, to establish a feeding station at Black River Bridge for the benefit of prisoners in transit. We have among our stores, extract of beef for making soup, milk, cups, dippers, &c.; and we have here a man who had two months' experience in feeding the wounded at Resaca, Ga. We have also ale, spirits, tea and soft crackers for the sick.

If this proposal meets with your approval, we would respectfully ask for the following articles, to be returned when no longer needed for this purpose, or paid for by the Sanitary Commission: Two tents and one fly, or one tarpaulin, one dozen large camp kettles, half dozen wooden buckets, and two axes. Also an order for procuring from the Commissary the necessary hard bread, coffee and sugar; and four detailed men.

Respectfully, H. TONE,
Agent U. S. San. Com.

This arrangement is most heartily approved.

By command of Brig. Gen. Smith.

A. C. FISK,
A. A. G.

VICKSBURG, Miss., April 9, 1865.

It is now pretty well settled that not more than a hundred more prisoners will be delivered here, communication between this place and Andersonville having been effectually severed.

I do not know the exact number already delivered, but think it will not exceed 5,000, so that in shipping goods for the prisoners here, calculation need be made for no more than that number. We are issuing daily one barrel of potatoes to each hundred men, and have enough on hand to continue at the same rate for two weeks. We have also made two issues of kraut since I came here, and have remaining enough for two or three more. Of hospital stores we have, I think, plenty of everything except fruits; of these we have none. The fifteen barrels sent on the Atlantic would be of great service here.

Sickness is on the increase among the prisoners. The change from starvation to luxurious diet, (for many of the soldiers say they have never fared so well before since they enlisted), has been more than their emaciated frames would bear.

I saw two ladies yesterday just from Selma. They report that Selma was captured and burned by 1,800 cavalry, one week ago to-day. The small number sent there would seem to imply that Gen. Wilson is sweeping over a wide space of country on his march.

A rebel surgeon here informs me that there were only about 2,500 men left at Andersonville, and these were men unable to march. He says the only way left the rebels to deliver them now, is to ship them at Fort Gaines, a little village on the Chattahoochie, and send them by water to the Gulf, or cross the break in the road made by Gen. Wilson, in ambulances, and deliver them here, and the latter he thinks entirely impracticable.

Exchange is going on slowly, probably fifty men having been exchanged since I came here.

The prisoners have all been supplied with new clothing, but as they have no change, and we have enough for this purpose, I intend to issue shirts and drawers to all the men in camp to-morrow or next day.

Besides doing our regular sanitary work, I have been trying to fill a niche which could not be reached in any other way. For instance, all the Commissions were issuing largely of paper and pens but very little ink. So we turned our attention to the manufacture of ink, of which we have issued several gallons. One hospital had a large cooking range but no boiler, so we had one made suitable for making coffee. Another had a large stove and plenty of pipe except a peculiarly shaped piece connecting the two. This also we procured. In this way I have expended some $30, but I am sure it was well invested.

Mrs. Harvey has just returned from New Orleans. Mrs. Monroe arrived here several days since, and is making herself useful at the Barracks Hospital. Dr. Woodward and his wife reached here last night.

The steamer D. A. Janway has just arrived, and will relieve us of quite a number of the sick.

VICKSBURG, April 12, 1865.

DEAR SIR:—Colonel Watts, the Confederate Commissioner of Exchange, told Mr. Johnston to-day that he was expecting an order from the rebel authorities declaring all the prisoners now here exchanged, and to deliver them to the Federal authorities. There are some still coming in, but they are from General Smith's army near Mobile, and from General Wilson's cavalry force, and have been prisoner's only ten or twelve days. They were started for Andersonville, but, finding that Selma was in our possession, their destination was changed to this place. There is a rumor that the remainder of the Andersonville prisoners are to be delivered at some place in Florida, Pensacola, I believe. As soon as General Wilson's cavalry force has gone beyond the line of road, they may resume delivering here, but it is hardly probable, if all accounts of the destruction which he has created on his march be true.

I have not issued shirts and drawers, as I proposed to do in my last letter, for the reason that, on going to camp on Monday to make necessary arrangements, I found the quartermaster already issuing a second suit of underclothing.

Mrs. Monroe is at the barracks hospital. At this place they are laboring under very great disadvantages. The famished patients eat their full ration and still have not enough, and not a dollar of fund can be saved. The buildings are old barracks without any conveniences for hospital accommodations; and, as the whole establishment was extemporized, they are working in a very primitive way. They have but one cooking-range for the three hundred patients and all the attendants. This is fully occupied in cooking the regular ration, so that there is no provision whatever for light diet. The Medical Purveyor has no stoves or ranges, and, as the case is so urgent, I have purchased a second-hand range for Mrs. Monroe, and am fitting her up a kind of light-diet department. This range will be returned to us when the hospital is broken up. * *

We have received four small shipments of goods since I arrived; one from Cincinnati, one from Memphis, and two from Cairo.

I think we have plenty of everything except tobacco, paper, and fruit for the hospitals. The Western Commission brought down upwards of a thousand pounds of tobacco, but even that will not last long. Still whatever reaches here in time must be very soon on the way, as it is not expected the prisoners will remain long.

The steamer Janway did not take a load here, but went on to New Orleans.

VICKSBURG, April 16, 1865.

General Smith has just issued an order recalling all the prisoners who had been detailed or received passes to remain in town, and the order states that they are to be immediately paroled and sent north. * *

The prisoners will not begin to leave here within three days, and it will be at least a week or ten days before the camp will be broken up. Whatever stores are now on the way will have ample time to reach here and be distributed; but there will not be time for anything more, nor do I think anything more will be needed. The men have been abundantly supplied with everything, and they are the most grateful men I ever saw. I never heard so much cheering for the Sanitary Commission before as I have heard here. The Agents have been to the camp so often that we are well known now, and our appearance on the platform of the cars is the signal for a crowd to gather about us and ask, "Well, what have you got for us to-day?" The answer is, "Paper and envelopes, tobacco and pipes, needles and thread, or combs, towels, razors, and scissors," as the case may be. And then comes the expression, "Bully for that! it is just what we want." In issuing such articles, we visit every tent, leaving at each one a certain quantity, so that the whole is equally divided. Potatoes and kraut we deliver to the Commissary and have issued with the rations. Since my last report, I have received and issued the goods sent on the steamer Ruth, and have received notice of still more on the way, which will be here to-morrow. There are two hospital boats here, the Baltic and the R. C. Wood. The Baltic has taken on board three hundred and fifty sick, and leaves for St. Louis to-night.

State Agents are beginning to come in with their little stocks of stores, sent to "our State" troops exclusively. I confess that it gives me great pleasure to state that all the men have been liberally supplied with the very things they are bringing.

A few prisoners are still coming in, but they are from General Wilson's command, and are not suffering, having been prisoners only a few days. I meet some of the same men to whom I issued, six weeks ago, at Eastport.

LETTER FROM NASHVILLE, TENN.

BY E. L. JONES.

NASHVILLE, April 15, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY, Sec'y.

DEAR SIR:—I enclose my report for week ending this evening.

I have sent forward all my kraut and pickles, and need a supply for distribution here. We could use some canned fruit to excellent advantage. Have not had a can except tomatoes for nearly a month. We need all the articles of bedding mentioned in former letters. Rags too, and dried beef. We ought to have some good whisky right away. We have only one or two boxes left, and that is about the only stimulant we keep. The lemons received are good. Oranges are asked for, and cordials are very much wanted and wines.

Our issues have been much lighter this week than usual. I have contracted them with the view of more fully and promptly relieving the wants of the large army in the mountains beyond Knoxville, as advised by Medical Director Cooper.

I have shipped nothing this week except a small invoice by Medical Inspector Hamlin on his special train, as the bridges have not yet been repaired. I have 400 barrels of potatoes which I shall forward so soon as the road is open, say middle of next week, and some dry goods.

No receipts this week except from Louisville.

The dreadful news from Washington has taken the vim out of all of us here to-day.

Yours very truly, E. L. JONES.

Please send us half a dozen boxes more of that brandy. We have good places for some more of it.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

BY CHARLES SEYMOUR.

KNOXVILLE, April 20, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Secretary West'n. Dept., U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR:—Though you are, doubtless, aware of the important changes now in progress in this department, I wish to inform you of the relation of the Sanitary Commission to them. I came here just after the departure of Stoneman's and Tillson's divisions, and just as the 4th Army Corps arrived. I found the troops in great need of supplies. Many of the men had not tasted vegetables of any description since the distribution of onions by the Sanitary Commission, last January. I had just time to arrange matters around Knoxville, when Dr. Starr arrived and took charge of the distribution of the supplies for the troops at the front. Owing to the difficulty of transporting vegetables to troops at a distance from the railroad, there were no stores of any consequence issued until last week, when more than a thousand bushels of potatoes and three thousand five hundred gallons of pickles and kraut were distributed to three divisions of the 4th Corps; in the opinion of their surgeons an ample supply for the present. Two hundred and fifty barrels of potatoes and forty of pickles were reserved for the division under General Tillson, whom we expect to reach in the course of three or four days. I have been afforded all the information that I could desire by the officers in command of the troops, and all that could be done has been done for us by the men in charge of the railroad.

The issues from the store have been as large as the supplies permitted. Troops specially unhealthy, and those about to leave for the front, have been supplied with vegetables for both sick and well. All the troops in this vicinity have been supplied with stores sufficient for the immediate use of the sick. The call for these stores was very urgent. Many men were sent to the crowded hospitals, whom a single meal of food different from that which their stomach loathed, would have returned to duty. Some large issues have been made to hospitals, but most of the surgeons in charge of hospitals have been very energetic in providing for themselves. It often happens, however, that I am able to supply some little but important want. I had this morning the pleasure of giving some lemons to a father, whose son, very ill in the officers' hospital, had an invalid's craving for a fresh lemon. While the supply of handkerchiefs and towels lasted, they were issued, at the rate of twenty-five a day. Shirts have been issued very sparingly, only to the needy and deserving, with an average issue of some half dozen a day. The calls for paper and envelopes, answered by a little package containing three sheets of paper and the same number of envelopes, average about forty a day. Before this reaches you most if not all of the 4th Corps will be at Nashville.

Aside from Stoneman's cavalry, which I presume will look out for itself, there will be left dependent upon this post only some — men. The soldiers' gardens about Knoxville will supply the troops here very soon, though I am sorry that the largest here is so far behind the others in the matter of an early supply.

RATHER REMARKABLE.

The following has been sent us for publication :

A QUESTION FOR THE SANITARY COMMISSION.

To the Editor of the Boston Journal :

A fact has just come to our notice, which suggests an inquiry. The fact is this : The son of Mr. Samuel Rankin of the adjoining town of Wells, Me., was a soldier in the army, and while sick in the hospital received a blanket from the Sanitary Commission. Not recovering, he was sent home a few weeks ago, and died shortly after of the disease contracted while in the service. Soon after his death there came to the father a bill from the Sanitary Commission for three or four dollars for the blanket which it had furnished to the dying soldier in the hospital, which bill the father paid. Now what we want to know is this : Are the sick and wounded soldiers and their afflicted friends charged for the shirts, blankets, socks, &c., which they receive through this organization ?

F. E. F.

Kennebunk, Me., March 30.

The above "Question" appeared in the Boston Journal of the date of April 5, 1865. It appeared without editorial note or comment, and the responsibility for its truth or falsity must fall upon the author, Rev. F. E. Fellows, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, Kennebunk, Maine.

The revered gentleman is very positive in his assertions. Avoiding the cloak of probabilities, he stands boldly forth and makes his libelous statements as facts. "A fact has come to our notice." "The fact is this, &c."

Now, Mr. Fellows might have easily ascertained, as we have, the truth of these statements had he been so inclined. Mr. Rankin, the father upon whom this alleged swindle was perpetrated, lives but a short distance from the reverend gentleman, as he himself states, "in the adjoining town of Wells, Maine;" and he would doubtless have been as ready to oblige the author as he was the subject of that libel by a plain statement of facts.

Mr. Rankin's own evidence as to the truth of the matters mentioned in the article of Mr. Fellows, as given in a "Reply" to the "Question," published in the Boston Transcript of November 11, is briefly as follows :

The son of Mr. Rankin, a soldier in the Union armies, was sick and in hospital at Point of Rocks, Va. While there, Wm. Newbert, another soldier, of Co. I, 8th Maine Vols., sold, as he claimed, to young Rankin a blanket. For this blanket the father, after the death of his son, was called upon to, and did pay, but to Mr. Newbert, the soldier who sold the article, and to him only. The Sanitary Commission is not alluded to in the whole transaction, except in a letter from Mr. Woodman, a friend of young Rankin, through whom the payment for the blanket was made, who says, "I have wondered that your son should buy a blanket of him, Newbert, when there were Christian and Sanitary Commissions at the hospitals, who are supposed to furnish such articles for the comfort of sick soldiers."

The whole transaction is simply one between two soldiers; the one, Newbert, selling his blanket to the other, Rankin.

Now if the "Question" of the Reverend F. E. Fellows, of Kennebunk, Maine, has been answered, we would like, as we are both Yankees, to ask him one in turn. It is this : Are Reverend and Christian gentlemen to be allowed deliberately to write and procure to be published, libelous articles such as this, and then screen themselves behind the veil of silence ?

This Reverend and Christian gentleman has been called upon for his authority for the statements put forth as "facts," but he fails utterly to return a word of reply to that request. It has been well said that speech is silver, but silence golden. Are we not justified in considering this silence as a golden proof that not even the plea of ignorance remains to this Reverend and Christian gentleman.

We append the written proofs of the truth of our version of this rather remarkable story.

From Letters of A. WOODMAN to SAMUEL RANKIN.

"I have received a letter from Mr. Newbert respecting a blanket, which I send you. As I know nothing about the matter, I have not felt authorized to send him the money without orders from you. If you want me to pay Mr. Newbert, you can send the Government price, $3 60 to me, and I will see that it is forwarded."

In another letter he says: "A few days since Mr. Newbert came to my regiment to see me. He said, if you, (Mr. Rankin) were able, or in good circumstances, he would want his pay for the blanket, but if you were not in fair circumstances he did not wish for the money. He made some inquiries, but as Sargeant Larrabee informed me that you are both able and willing to pay the bill, I have settled the same with Mr. Newbert, and will send you receipt in this. He concluded to take three dollars, ($3 00). I cannot tell whether the bill is just or not, and have to take Mr. Newbert's word for it. I have wondered that your son should buy a blanket of him when there were Christian and Sanitary Commissions at the hospitals who are supposed to furnish such articles for the comfort of sick soldiers.

(Signed) "A. WOODMAN."

RECEIPT.

CAMP, 8TH MAINE VOLS., }
 SPRING HILL, VA., April 24, 1865. }

Received by the hand of Alexander Woodman three dollars in full on Daniel Rankin's account for one woolen blanket sold him while in hospital at Point of Rocks, Va.

WM. NEWBERT,
 Co. I, 8th Maine Vols.

The above is a true copy.

SAMUEL RANKIN.

LETTER FROM DR. BELLOWS.

NEW YORK, April 26, 1865.

To the Editor of the S. C. Bulletin:

DEAR SIR:—I find that the precise language I used in acknowledging the receipt of the magnificent contribution paid by one check into our Treasury, by the Treasurer of the Great Central Fair, has been misunderstood. I stated that it (\$1,035,398  $\frac{26}{100}$ ) was the largest ever made "in one sum" to our Treasury. This has been objected to, as if I had said it was the largest ever received from one source; a different proposition.

The contributions at various times forwarded from San Francisco and our California Branch, and which are credited to one source,—not including Oregon ($75,597 56), or Nevada ($99,512 46), or Washington Territory ($20,753 92),—reckon up, at this date, to $1,199,675 51.

The net product of the Metropolitan Fair (New York), of which the largest payment (May 17, 1864) was one million dollars, has, in nine separate installments, run up, at this date, to $1,184,146 72; so that the Metropolitan is considerably ahead of the Quaker

City in the total amount accruing from its great Fair.

Justice seemed to require this explanation of what was intended to be taken with literal exactness, but which is manifestly liable to be interpreted into a claim which was not set up for the Central Fair, i. e. a claim of having yielded a greater total result, and not merely of having made the largest payment in one sum ever made into our Treasury.

Very truly yours,
 HENRY W. BELLOWS,
 President.

WHAT REMAINS.

So earnest and faithful have the women of the country been since the commencement of the war, that now they begin to feel the reaction consequent upon its sudden cessation. But there still remains an important work, which nobody can do so easily or so well, as the thousands of earnest women who are still an organized power for good in the land.

The Confederacy is conquered, our army is coming home, and the prince of rebeledom (captured in skirts) has made his summer tour towards Washington.

The army that has conquered the rebellion, went away from our Northern and Western Homes, to do this noble work, with the prayers and sympathies of all loyal people. They were followed to camp, field, and hospital by the good wishes not only, but the active benevolence of the people.

As they return from camp, field, and hospital, it is meet that the people should welcome them with the same benevolent spirit which has animated all loyal hearts from the beginning.

As the hills of New England, the prairies of the great West, and the broad fields of the Middle States, have joined their products to the vast interests of all the mechanical industries and professions, as well as commercial and mercantile, in gifts of the people, to equip and sustain the army, so is it meet that, on the return of that army, every interest in society should be identified in the re-adjustment of our scores of thousands of soldiers to their former civil relations, with as little delay and inconvenience to the men who have conquered our peace as may be possible. This is a great work. It is new to us all, but no more so than the war was in '61; and we shall find that we can render important aid on the homeward march, just as naturally and successfully as we did when our brave men left us.

The machinery of the Commission is still in good working order, and only needs to be contracted in some directions and extended in others. Our work belongs to the army. As the army leaves the field, so must we. As it marches homeward, we must march with it, establishing transient homes, temporary lodges, and such flying relief as circumstances and conditions demand.

In the field, we were always in the rear of the advancing army; as the army returns it finds us in the advance. The stations that were established, for example, at Richmond and Petersburg, as the army moved into those cities and occupied them, are still there with supplies for the needs of the vast forces that have since moved from farther south toward home. So also the ample provision established at Alexandria and Washington by the Commission for the great army that is encamped near that city, and is still gathering in "from near and from far," is another evidence of the foresight and care of the Commission. Extra arrangements have been made also in Philadelphia and New York in the east, and other centres in the west, from which the forces will scatter into smaller companies and groups, as they radiate to the remotest boundaries of our territory. What has been done by the Commission on a large scale in cities, to meet large numbers, will be done on a smaller scale in small places, to meet the few and even single individuals, who will return with their scars and trophies, to make their welcome all the more hearty. So far then as the Commission is represented in the towns, villages, and rural districts, by societies of earnest women, who have been meeting week after week to do something in this good cause, so far will these societies continue to represent the Commission in the extension of sympathy, advice and counsel to our home-coming troops.

So eager will they be to reach their homes that they will leave unadjusted their claims for pay, pensions, &c., confiding in the people to counsel and assist them. Anticipating the great amount of work to be done in this direction, the Commission is extending its claim offices all over the land. In all the important centres in the several states there will be agencies established for attention to these varied interests of the returned soldier, and of those families of soldiers who will never,—never return. Let the women of the country still retain their associations—meet together and talk over the cases of the men who shall come into their towns and neighborhoods, and see to it that they are kept out of the hands of sharpers who may otherwise defraud them of a good share of their dues, by charging heavy fees for collecting what the Commission will collect without charge. Let the widows and orphans of soldiers also occupy a large share of sympathy and aid. Find them out, lead them to the claim offices of the Sanitary Commission, where they will be instructed as to what is necessary in order to make their claims legal and valid, and then encourage them to trust their cases with the men who shall be selected to attend to these important interests for them.

Claims are not only to be collected, but employment is to be secured for many who will find themselves without sufficient means of support. Who so suitable to advise and assist, as women who have made it their life and joy for years past to sympathize with soldiers?

If every city, county, town, village and country society should constitute itself an Intelligence Association, and its rooms be opened as intelligence offices, with books for the registry of the names and qualifications of applicants for situations as mechanics, or farmers or laborers, the re-institution of the army in peaceful pursuits would be facilitated not only, but established upon a basis that would do much toward securing permanent unity and fraternity throughout our borders.

This kind of sympathetic and yet practical relation of the soldiers and their families to the people among whom they may live, being the outgrowth of an interest which the labor of years in time of war has developed, seems to be so natural, that it scarcely needs more than a suggestion to secure its continuance. Let it claim consideration.

State agencies should also be enlisted in this unifying and federalizing process. While claim offices established by States are doing the same kind of work that the Commission agents are doing, it does not seem necessary that there should be any division of interest or clashing of work.

This terrible war, now brought to a conclusion so suddenly, and with such overwhelming victory for the right, has been a war for the establishment of unity and brotherhood. State lines have been, for the time forgotten. Geographical boundaries between larger sections have been obliterated, and our army comes back to us as the Army of the Union. Every soldier is a United States soldier; his pay comes to him from the United States Treasury; his name will be remembered by his children, after he shall have gone to his rest, not only as their father, but as a veteran in the cause of liberty under the flag of the Union. How fitting, then, that he should reach his civil and social status again through the channels by which he found his way to the field. The women of his town helped him to go from his home, and his state as a Union soldier; so they should help him, as he comes back again, to collect his claims upon the Government he has sustained, through a channel that runs as wide and deep as the Union itself.

THE SPIRIT OF THE COMMISSION.

We are glad to insert the following circular to the Branches and Aid Societies. It comes with peculiar force to us, as the embodiment of the very ideas and thoughts contained in the preceding article, and we have no doubt that the same feelings and impulses have moved in the minds and hearts of our friends all through the land.

The spirit of the Commission is surely not only alive, but enlivened with the fresh inspiration of a new field and a new work. A new mode of administration also seems to be called for in the exigency into which we have naturally fallen. Let it be encouraged and stimulated everywhere. In the former work of the Commission that is written so vividly on the successive pages of the last four years of war, there is an evident spirit of earnest Christian devotion to the cause of our country and our soldiers, which has come from a deep and pure fountain, so steady and unostentatious in its flow, that its strength has not been felt as it deserved, amid the mighty achievements of warriors, and the busy parade of self-seeking devotees at the shrine of fame. But now that the warrior is crowned with victory, and the little, yet tumultuous streams that have rippled along the surface are subsiding, the Sanitary Commission, still living in the hearts of the people, and deriving its strength from the source of All Might, is entering upon a new "campaign" for humanity, that shall add to the already accumulated testimonials of the expansive wisdom and benevolence of those who conceive its plans, and of the people who cherish and execute them. The stream must flow on.

BRANCHES AND AID SOCIETIES.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION,

CENTRAL OFFICE,

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 15, 1865.

To the Branches and Soldiers' Aid Societies tributary to the United States Sanitary Commission:

At the late quarterly session of the Board of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, held at Washington, April 18-21, the President and General Secretary were requested to prepare an address to the various Branches and Aid Societies co-operating with the Commission, and awaiting instructions from the Commission as to their present and future duty.

Since that period such rapid changes have occurred in the military situation, affecting so materially the work of the Commission, that it has been impossible, until now, to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion as to the probable demands to be made upon us.

While our work in the field is rapidly drawing to a close, there remains much to be done by the Commission within the approaching two months for the relief and comfort of our armies as they return from their long marches and exhausting service. New depots of supplies have already been established at the several points where these armies are to rendezvous and encamp preparatory to their discharge.

The abandonment of the Post and Base Hospitals must increase for the time the already large number of patients in General Hospital, while the necessary aid to be extended to the various garrisons during the interval preceding the more permanent adjustment of the new military status must make large drafts upon our resources. The supplies now available at our several depots are wholly insufficient to meet this final but urgent demand upon the Supply Service; and, deeming it important both for the actual relief of existing needs and for the consistent completion of this work of the people, continued now through four successive years of faithful co-operation, that our issues be not meagre or our care neglectful, we call upon our Branches and Aid Societies to maintain their usual system and activity up to the 4th July next, persevering in their work until that time with unabated energy, and with an intelligent appreciation of the necessity of the case.

It is confidently anticipated that their labors in contributing supplies to the hospitals and the field may properly terminate at that date, unless wholly improbable and unexpected events arise to make such conclusion of their work unpatriotic and inhumane. Timely notice will be given if any such necessity occur.

In the meantime the rapid disbanding of our armies and their immediate return to their relations in civil life will devolve upon our Branches and Aid Societies a new and important work, to be performed under their immediate supervision, and necessitating the maintenance of their organization for an indefinite period. The occasion for this continued effort grows out of the fact that these returning soldiers, by their military service, have become more or less detached from their previous relations, associations, and pursuits, which are now to be re-established. Many of these men will be not only physically but morally disabled, and will exhibit the injurious effects of camp life in a weakened power of self-guidance and self-restraint, inducing a certain kind of indolence, and, for the time, indisposition to take hold of hard work. The possession of money in the majority of cases will increase the inducements to idleness and dissipation, as well as the exposure to imposition. To protect the soldier from these evils and temptations, naturally resulting from his previous military life, is a duty which is now owed to him by the people, as much as was the care extended to him, through the Commission, while in active service in the field; for we are to regard the future necessity that may exist for help and guidance to returned soldiers as no less a condition incident to the war than the wounds and sickness to which the supply agencies of the Commission have hitherto so generously ministered.

In submitting to our Aid Societies a practical plan of work adapted to these new conditions, our object is to suggest such methods as will aid the process by which these men are to resume their natural and proper relations in civil life.

The first and most important means in the accomplishment of this object will be found in a systematic provision for securing suitable occupation to all these returned men, adapted, where necessary, to the condition of those partially disabled, thus constituting each Branch and Aid Society a "Bureau of Information and Employment," by which the light occupations in all towns, and whatever work can be as well done by invalid soldiers as by others, shall be religiously given to the men who may have incapacitated themselves for rivalry in more active and laborious fields of duty by giving their limbs, their health, and their blood to the nation.

To this end, and to guard against the possibility of imposition, the names of all men who have enlisted from each town and city should be obtained and preserved, and a record kept that shall gather all facts material to the work in hand; which, while it will be the means of collecting most useful information, will, at the same time, constitute an invaluable contribution to the history of the war. Carefully prepared forms for this purpose will be furnished from the Central Office of the Commission, to which monthly returns will be made, and where they will be duly tabulated. These results will be promptly transmitted each month to the several Aid Societies, to furnish whatever guidance they may for the wise prosecution of the work.

The co-operation of our Aid Societies in extending information concerning the various agencies of the Commission for the relief and aid of discharged soldiers and their families will constitute another important service which they may render.

Some of these agencies are of a character which will not terminate with the disbanding of our armies, but will find their largest field of activity and usefulness during the year succeeding the close of the war.

The Commission is rapidly extending its system of Claim Agencies to all the principalities and centres of population throughout the country. Through these agencies all claims of soldiers or sailors and their families are adjusted with the least possible delay and without charge, thus securing to the applicants the full amount of the claim as allowed, and exemption from the heavy tax, and often gross imposition and fraud, to which they are subjected by the ordinary methods. The evils to which the discharged soldier is exposed in the adjustment of claims against the Government are of so grave a nature that no effort should be spared to secure to him the benefits of this agency of the Commission's work. Regarding the Local Aid Societies as the natural guardians of the soldiers and the supervisors of the work of the Commission in their respective towns or cities, it is desired that they will exercise a careful superintendence of this work, promoting by every practicable means its efficiency, and making sure that every returned soldier in their vicinity and the family of every deceased soldier is actually informed of the aid gratuitously offered them by this agency of the Commission.

The maintenance of the organization of our Aid Societies will preserve to the Sanitary Commission the means of communicating with the people, from time to time, upon such topics as concern the continued welfare of returned soldiers, and especially in regard to the more permanent provision which it will be necessary to make for disabled soldiers, incapable of self-support. It is the profound conviction of the Sanitary Commission, that the peculiar genius and beauty of American institutions is to show itself in the power which the ordinary civil, social, and domestic life of the nation exhibits to absorb rapidly into itself our vast army, and restore to ordinary occupations those who have been fighting our battles; while the sick and wounded are distributed through the country, objects of love, care, and restoration, in the several communities where they belong, instead of being collected in great State and national asylums, objects of public ostentation, and subjected to the routine, the isolation, and the ennui of an exceptional, unfruitful, and unhappy existence. Public provision of this latter kind, as free from its evil as may be, must be made for a certain small class of the friendless and the totally disabled; but humanity and American feeling demand that this class should be reduced to the smallest possible number through the zeal and friendliness shown towards our returning invalid soldiers in the towns from which they originally came. The Sanitary Commission will soon lay before its Branches and the public, plans for such asylums for disabled and discharged soldiers as it may be necessary to establish.

Reserving the expression of our gratitude to our Branches and Soldiers' Aid Societies to a later period, we remain in behalf of the Board,

Yours, faithfully and truly,

H. W. BELLOW, President.

JNO. S. BLATCHFORD, General Secretary.

WIVES AND MOTHERS.

We give below a little table exhibiting the work of one of the Commission's Homes for Wives and Mothers. This is a feature of the work that has grown as a necessity upon us, and has been met only as a necessity. It might have been extended almost without limit, had the Commission felt warranted in appropriating any very considerable amount of the people's contributions to such an object; but it could not fail to

Two o'clock, Thursday the 16th inst., we began to transfer a portion of our cargo to the Maillard, and on Saturday the 18th, at half-past eleven, having lightened the Chase so as to enable her to pass over Wilmington bar, we sailed for Wilmington.

On Sunday the 19th, at one o'clock, we reached the dock at Wilmington. I immediately requested Dr. Dalton to make a thorough visitation of the hospitals, ascertain the number of returned prisoners needing our services, and also the number of sick and wounded from Generals Sherman's, Schofield's, and Terry's commands.

During his absence I waited upon General J. C. Abbott, the commandant of the post, to inform him of our arrival, and obtain from him facilities for the discharge of our cargo. He took a lively interest in our mission, and sent me to Captain Laub, A. Q. M., who furnished a detail of fifty men, and placed at our disposal a large covered wharf, having ready access from the main river street and ample space for the storage of our entire cargo. Having secured these facilities, I went to the distributing rooms of the Commission in the town, and reported our arrival to Mr. Foster, the devoted and overworked agent of the Commission in charge of its affairs here. Mr. Foster had issued his last supplies the previous afternoon, and our arrival, was therefore, most opportune. I may mention, as an evidence of the work done by Mr. Foster, in attempting to meet the more pressing wants of the returned prisoners, previously to our arrival, that he had issued, among other supplies, two hundred and forty barrels of milk punch.

Early on Monday morning, March 20th, we began discharging our cargo, and Dr. Dalton returned from his visit of inspection, with the report that there were between twelve and thirteen hundred returned prisoners in the warehouses and hospitals of Wilmington, and about twenty-six hundred sick and wounded men from General Sherman's army and from the commands of Generals Schofield and Terry. The corrected returns, subsequently received, show that there were at that date actually twenty-four hundred and seventy-five (2475) returned prisoners.

Dr. Dalton reported that all these men would need woolen clothing and condensed food, stimulants, and esculents, and that the surgeons, including Dr. Buzzell, the ranking medical officer, hailed the advent of the Sanitary Commission with great joy. I refer you to Dr. Dalton's report for information as to the principles which regulated us in estimating the amount of food probably necessary to secure the largest benefit to the sufferers.

The surgeons in charge of the various hospitals began to send in their requisitions at an early hour on Monday morning, and the issues made upon their requisitions were sufficient to clothe and feed every individual in the various hospitals and warehouses, and to secure an ample reserve supply of food and clothing for two or three weeks to come.

In order to aid Mr. Foster in the performance of his duties, I instructed him to secure the services of two clerks, and I also requested Mr. Hoblit, our able Relief Agent, who had accompanied General Sherman from Atlanta to Savannah, to make a regular tour of the hospitals, and urge upon the surgeons the necessity of furnishing the patients as large a quantity of tomato soup made from beef-stock, of condensed milk, of chocolate, onions, and farinaceous food, as in their judgment the condition of their patients would require.

I found the surgeons in charge of the various hospitals working to the utmost of their ability in the care of these needy men. Many of them had carried their exertions far beyond the limits of prudence, forgetting themselves in their desire to do good. Many of them were sick, including Dr. Buzzell;* and Dr. Palmer, one of the ablest men in the volunteer corps, had worn himself out and died, while Dr. Jarvis and others who still survived were self-sacrificing in their professional ministrations. My experience here was in keeping with what I have heretofore seen in the conduct of the medical officers in hospitals and on the field; and I think that the people do not yet understand or appreciate what has been done, and what is now doing here and elsewhere every day, by the medical staff, to mitigate the sufferings that inevitably accompany war.

Having completed the arrangements for the discharge of the cargo of the Chase, I visited some of the warehouses and hospitals, to examine into the condition of the returned prisoners. I shall not attempt here to picture their fearful condition.

I congratulate the Commission upon the opportunity which was afforded by the presence of so distinguished a physiologist as Dr. Dalton, who could bring to bear his powers of analysis and diagnosis, in establishing the facts with reference to the causes which had reduced these men to their present lamentable condition. Dr. Dalton spent Sunday and Monday in visiting the hospitals containing the returned prisoners, with a view of determining whether their condition was due to disease, or the consequence of starvation and exposure, and for his calm and well-digested opinion upon this subject, I refer you to his report, heretofore alluded to, marked "A."

* Has since died a martyr to the cause of humanity.

I had several interviews with citizens of Wilmington who had seen our prisoners as they were brought into the city for exchange, with a view of ascertaining what their impressions were, as to the motives which influenced the rebel officers in the management of squads in their respective commands. I found that some of the rebel officers in charge of our returned prisoners had permitted the citizens to furnish them food, while others had forbidden all access to the pens in which the men were quartered; and one, a rebel captain, having charge of about a thousand men, had gone with his drawn sword and knocked the food from the hands of the famished men, informing the citizens who had furnished it, "that the best thing that could happen to the Yankees was to be starved, and thus expiate the crime which they had committed in invading southern territory and destroying the peace of southern homes."

On Tuesday we sailed for Beaufort, taking as passengers David B. Adams, M. D., late Acting Assistant Surgeon U. S. A., sick with typhoid fever, and Henry Hiscocks, Captain Battalion G, 1st Missouri Light Artillery, who was in a state of confirmed phthisis, the consequence of exposure and privation during eight months in a Southern prison, and Colonel B. S. Pardec, Connecticut State Agent.

On Wednesday we reached Beaufort harbor, and discharged the balance of our freight upon the Maitland, making an issue of onions and potatoes to the fleet in the harbor, as many of the men in the fleet had been without any but the scantiest supply of vegetables for two or three months.

On Thursday we waited upon General L. V. Easton, obtained coal for the Chase, made through him an issue of pickles to the six hundred men in the quartermaster's squad, and started by rail for Newbern.

Dr. Page, Inspector of the Commission, on duty in North Carolina, joined us at Morehead City, and went with us to Newbern. At Newbern I examined into the working of our relief stations, visited Dr. Cowgill, surgeon in charge of the Foster Hospital, Dr. Hand the Medical Director, and General Palmer, the Commandant of the post. I found Dr. Page distributing potatoes and onions and other antiscorbutic food, with woolen clothing and other sanitary supplies to the needy soldiers in Newbern and to such as were sent to the rear from the command of General Schofield.

Messrs. Page and Bowman were absent from Newbern, having pushed forward with General Schofield in the advance to Kinston, carrying with them on the construction train two large feeding tents, to meet the wants of those who were wounded and sent to the rear, in the various skirmishes and fights for the possession of the line of the road between Newbern and Goldsboro'. Dr. Page will report to you in detail the operations of the relief corps in connection with General Schofield's advance. Suffice it to say that the abundant resources of the Commission had been used in such a manner as to give material aid and comfort to some thousands of needy men.

Dr. Cowgill's hospital, the Foster, was a model of successful organization and administration, and I was very much struck with the quarters appropriated to the use of the rebel wounded. These quarters were hospital tents raised above the ground, upon yellow pine underpinning and floors, bountifully supplied with bedding, attendants, food, and medicine, and in every way a credit to the professional skill and philanthropy of Dr. Cowgill, and the humanity of our Government. I could not avoid indulging the comparison between the condition of these men under the care of our medical officers, and that of our poor fellows who had suffered in rebel hospitals and rebel prison pens.

I found that Dr. Page was making preparations to cultivate his large hospital garden, amounting to over one hundred acres in the suburbs of Newbern, for the benefit of men in the hospitals, and the forces operating in this vicinity, while all the details of his work in other fields of usefulness were being attended to with admirable zeal, fidelity, and intelligence.

Leaving Newbern on Saturday, we passed through Pamlico, Croatan, and Albemarle Sounds, and the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal to Norfolk, where I visited Mr. Sherman, the gentleman in charge of the affairs of the Commission at this point, and examined his store-house, and method of transacting business, with satisfaction.

I then visited the lodge of the Commission at Portsmouth, opposite Norfolk, which is in charge of Mr. Alcock. I found this lodge in admirable order. As you are familiar with its condition and usefulness through the regular reports of Mr. Alcock, I shall not enter into details.

On Monday the 27th, I left Norfolk for New York, via Fortress Monroe and Baltimore. I cannot express too highly my obligations to Dr. Dalton for his able services, nor forget to mention those of Messrs. Cobb and W. A. Paton, who accompanied us from New York, and gave their assistance in many of the details of the work.

Very respectfully yours,
C. R. AGNEW.

—
A.

Report of J. C. DALTON, M. D., Professor of Physiology and Microscopic Anatomy, College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York.

The Steamer Chase left New York on Saturday evening, March 11, for Beaufort Harbor and Wilmington, N. C., laden with beef-stock, condensed milk, onions, potatoes, pickles, and other similar articles, together with an abundance of flannel under-clothing and blankets. It was intended to discharge the cargo, in whole or in part, at either Beaufort Harbor or Wilmington, as the necessities of the case might make it desirable. It was anticipated that the wants of the sick and wounded from General Schofield's corps, and, possibly, also from General Sherman's army, then moving in a northeasterly direction on its way from Columbia, would be best relieved from the direction of Beaufort; while the necessities of our returned prisoners, recently delivered at Wilmington, would require supplies at the last-named point.

On entering Beaufort Harbor, where the steamer arrived on the afternoon of Tuesday the 14th, a large number of transports were found waiting, partly discharged and partly still laden with supplies and material. General Schofield's corps, which had been transferred by sea from Wilmington to Beaufort, had advanced to Newbern and thence, and along the line of the railroad, toward Goldsboro'. At the time of our arrival it had reached a point within a few miles of Kinston, where it had come in contact with the enemy, and repulsed him after a somewhat severe engagement on the 10th and 11th instants. The efficient agents of the Commission were accordingly then at the front, doing all in their power to aid in relieving the wounded from this engagement; and Dr. Agnew soon learned by communications from them that their supplies were already sufficient for that particular emergency. The railroad from Morehead City, in Beaufort Harbor, to Newbern and Kinston was then entirely in the hands of a construction corps, which was actively engaged in relaying the track and getting the road in running order to the rear of General Schofield's advancing columns, and it was impossible to obtain transportation over this road even to Newbern, except for material required for the construction of the road itself, and supplies absolutely essential for the subsistence of the army. The only other mode of sending to Newbern was to go round by way of Hatteras Inlet and the Neuse River, but this could only be done by vessels of much lighter draft than the Chase. It was decided, therefore, to discharge a part of the cargo upon a schooner, which could remain in Beaufort Harbor as a store-ship, and from which such supplies as were needed at Newbern could be sent round from time to time on lighters, by way of Hatteras Inlet. The remaining and larger portion of the cargo was to be taken immediately to Wilmington in the Chase, for the use of the returned prisoners. These arrangements were completed by the evening of Friday the 17th. By that time we learned that General Schofield had again advanced and had occupied Kinston without further opposition.

On Saturday, 18th inst., at noon the Chase left Beaufort Harbor, and arrived off the bar at the entrance of Cape Fear River before daylight on Sunday, the 19th. At 11 A. M. she crossed the bar, and came to her dock at Wilmington early in the afternoon of the same day.

At Wilmington, we found 3,940 sick and wounded men, including the returned prisoners, whose condition was such that they were all to be regarded as sick men, and urgently in need of comfort and relief. Of the whole number to be cared for there were about 2,000 sick belonging to the command of General Terry (who had moved directly north after the capture of Wilmington, on the line of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad), and about 600 from General Sherman's army, who had been sent down the north-western branch of the Cape Fear River, a few days previously, from Fayetteville. The remainder consisted of our returned prisoners, 1250 in number. Corrected returns, subsequently received, show the number of returned prisoners to have been twenty-four hundred and seventy-five (2,475); making the grand total about 4,900, who had been delivered by the enemy a short distance above the city, at the north-eastern branch of the Cape Fear River, since our occupation of the town. Of these General Terry's sick and wounded were, of course, the best provided for, since they had occupied the town from the date of its capture, and felt, more than anything else, the want of ambulances and other means of transportation, which had been necessarily taken with the main column on its advance northward. Those arriving from General Sherman's command were, many of them, quite destitute, having been on the march through the enemy's country for about two months, ever since the date of General Sherman's leaving Savannah. They needed clothing and food as well as rest and medicines. But the greatest and most pitiful necessities were among our returned prisoners. No description can do justice to their miserable condition, because nothing but an actual inspection of them, in considerable numbers, can show that the wretched faces and figures that present themselves everywhere are not the isolated and exceptional effects of severe illness, but the general result of a uniform and long-continued process of starvation and misery. There were degrees, of course, in which this condition was more or less marked. The better cases were walking about the streets, perhaps barefooted, or with no other clothing than a pair of white cotton drawers and an old blanket or overcoat, both equally ragged. In these the slow, dragging gait, listless manner, and cavernous, inexpressive look of the face, together with the general emaciation, formed a peculiar aspect, by which they alone attracted the attention of the passer-by, and by which they were at once distinguished from the other convalescent soldiers. There was no occasion to inquire in Wilmington which were our returned prisoners; after half a day's experience, any one could distinguish them at a glance. Many of them, who had strength to crawl about in this manner, were prevented from doing so by the want of clothing. Major Randlete, the Provost Marshal of Wilmington, told me that on one day forty of these men came into our lines absolutely as naked as they were born. I inquired of a considerable number of them, whom I saw in the hospitals confined to their beds, naked or with only a shirt, and covered with a hospital blanket, what had become of their clothing, and was told that they had thrown away what remained as soon as they could obtain shelter, because it was so ragged, filthy, and full of vermin. One of them, on being told that the Sanitary Commission had sent them flannel shirts and drawers, caught at the word with a childish eagerness, and repeated the good news to his companions, with a faint half-imbecile smile, as long as I was within hearing. With the great majority of the feebler ones, personal cleanliness was a thing which they appeared to have entirely forgotten. They no longer retained sufficient strength, either of mind or body, to appreciate or correct the degradation to which months of unavoidable uncleanness had reduced them. In the most extreme cases the condition of the mind, as well as the expression of the face, was absolutely fatuous, and the aspect of the patient was not that of a strong man reduced by illness, but that of an idiotic pauper, who had been such from his birth. Nevertheless, several of the surgeons informed me that the condition of the patients had visibly improved since their reception, and that I could not then form an adequate idea of what it was when they entered our lines. In that case it must have been lamentable beyond description.

The testimony of both men and officers was uniform as to the causes of their unnatural condition. These causes were, 1st, starvation, and, 2d, exposure. Only such officers and men as could procure money were able to obtain anything like sufficient nourishment. Some of them told me that during the entire winter they had received absolutely no meat; a pint of corn-meal, often with the cob ground in, sometimes with and sometimes without salt, a handful of "cow-peas," and sometimes sorghum molasses, constituted their usual ration. When in hospital, they had only very thin corn-meal gruel and a little corn-bread. To the debility occasioned by this insufficient food was added that resulting from exposure. It was a common thing for a prisoner, immediately on being taken, to be stripped of his clothing—shoes, socks, pantaloons, shirts, and drawers—and to be left with only an old and worn-out pair of drawers and, perhaps, an equally worn-out shirt and blanket given him in exchange. This robbery of clothing was also practiced, more or less, upon officers. Even an assistant-surgeon, who was captured within four miles of Richmond, told me that he was robbed of his flannel shirt, while standing in front of the Libby Prison, and in presence of the rebel officer in charge of the squad. This was immediately after his arrival in the city, and when he had been, for the three days succeeding his capture, entirely without food. With the scanty clothing thus left them, the men were kept during the winter, often without any shelter, excepting such as they could contrive to provide by excavating a sort of rifle-pit in the ground, and covering it with old blankets or canvas, as their supply of fuel was insufficient, and sometimes entirely wanting. Even in the hospitals their suffering from cold was very great.

One of the most melancholy sights in Wilmington was that to be seen at the "Geer" hospitals. In these hospitals were collected all those patients who had lost their feet, either wholly or in part, by freezing, from their exposure during the past winter, and this in a well-wooded country. In some of them two or three toes only, on one or both feet, were gangrened, and in process of separating by ulceration; in others both feet had entirely separated, and the patients were awaiting the time when their general strength and the condition of the stump would warrant a final amputation. In many cases the patients ascribed this gangrene directly to frostbites received on particular occasions; in others to their illness from which they were suffering—generally fever combined with exposure. My own impression, derived from the result of many inquiries, was that it was generally due to a continuous depression of the vital energies from starvation and neglect, resulting gradually in a destruction of the life of those parts most exposed to the cold and the weather. With all these cases awaiting relief, it was impossible that the stores brought by the Chase should have come at a more opportune period. From all the officers in Wilmington, of all grades and departments, there was but one expression of gratitude and relief at hearing of our arrival, and we could not have asked more ready and cordial co-operation than was given us at once by all upon whom we depended for information and assistance. A capacious covered dock was at once assigned for the discharge and storage of the supplies, and an abundant force of negro refugees assigned to the labor of unloading the steamer. So rapidly was this work effected that during the day, on Monday, supplies were already in process of distribution to the various hospitals, a complete list of which, with the number of patients in each, had been previously obtained. The covered dock was used as an issuing office, as well as a storehouse, and, being very capacious and well-lighted, it afforded admirable facilities for reaching the various articles as they were needed.

It was found that all the returned prisoners, without exception, and all the men recently arrived from General Sherman's army, needed flannel shirts, drawers, and blankets; that shirts and drawers were also required by all the other sick and wounded then in hospital, and blankets by about two-thirds of them. Tin plates, cups, knives, and forks were also much needed, all of which were at once supplied. In order to regulate the distribution of food and stimulus to the different hospitals, the following diet table was made out, to serve as the basis of calculation. It was thought that such a ration, with the interchanges between various articles which could be readily effected whenever desired, would be best suited to the greater portion of the cases:

| Name of Article.           | Daily Ration. |
|----------------------------|---------------|
| Beef-stock, . . . . .      | 2 oz.         |
| Canned tomatoes, . . . . . | 8 "           |
| Condensed milk, . . . . .  | 4 "           |
| Onions, . . . . .          | 4 "           |
| Potatoes, . . . . .        | 4 "           |
| Soft crackers, . . . . .   | 4 "           |
| Chocolate, . . . . .       | 1 "           |
| Pickles, . . . . .         | 4 "           |
| Whiskey, . . . . .         | 2 "           |

The various hospitals were requested to send down requisitions according to the above diet table, in quantities corresponding with the number of patients in each hospital; they were not restricted, however, absolutely to the above quantities, but the diet table was adopted as expressing a minimum ration, which could be increased, if desirable, in particular cases; and which could be supplemented, for those patients who were able to bear it, with articles from the regular army ration.

Early on Tuesday morning a sufficient quantity of the above articles had been landed to supply the whole number of patients in Wilmington for at least fifteen days. A portion of the cargo, over and above this amount, which would be more probably required at Newbern at the next emergency, was retained for reconveyance to Beaufort harbor. On Tuesday afternoon the steamer left Wilmington, and proceeded down the river to Fort Fisher, but, owing to a south-easterly gale and consequent heavy sea on the bar, she was unable to go out until the following day, Wednesday, the 22d instant, at 2 o'clock, P.M. At that time she crossed the bar unhurt without difficulty, and again entered Beaufort harbor on the morning of Thursday, the 23d. At Beaufort harbor the remainder of her cargo was transferred to the storeship, and the steamer, after coaling, sent back to New York.

Very respectfully yours,
J. C. DALTON,

TESTIMONIAL.

CANNONSBURG, PA., May 18, 1865.

MR. STRONG.

DEAR SIR:—Please find enclosed $5 00 for the benefit of the noble Sanitary Commission.

Though we fondly hope the mission of this generous institution will soon terminate with a happy issue of our national troubles in a triumphant peace, no doubt you can yet spend thousands of dollars for the good of our unfortunate braves. Having received many kind offices from it while in the service and since, I feel bound to contribute something, hoping some poor soldier will be blessed by it as a thank offering to be disbursed by the agents of the grandest charitable association, in many respects, that was ever organized. The history of the United States Sanitary Commission, will brighten with age.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,
SAMUEL B. MCBRIDE.

CORRECTION.

In Bulletin of May 1, 1865, page 1172, in heading of article "Workings of U. S. Sanitary Commission at Camp Parole, Va.," read Camp Distribution, instead of Camp Parole.

On page 1173, last line above the table of stores, read "from Dec. 17, 1862" not (63), to "Dec. 31, 1863."

The last error occurs in the copy from which this article was taken, and is no fault of ours, but as it is a misprint in the original, as we are informed by the Editor of the Journal, and will be corrected there, it should be also corrected here.

MARCHES.

Fifteen miles per day is considered a fair average for infantry; and upon long marches ten miles including all the necessary delays, is accounted good traveling. This will depend much however upon the nature of the country, the season of the year, as well as upon whether the troops are newly recruited, or old soldiers accustomed to hardships and to travel.

Some of the longest marches of infantry upon record have been made by American troops. During the first year of the Mexican war, General Kearney was placed in command of the Army of the West, with instructions to conquer New Mexico and California. He left Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in June, and after a journey of nine hundred miles over the great plains and mountain ranges, arrived at Santa Fe, the capital of New Mexico, on the 18th of August.

In the year 1859, a large portion of the Sixteenth Regiment marched from Camp Floyd, U. T., to Fort Buchanan, New Mexico, having travelled one thousand miles and spent one hundred and forty days on the road. But the most unprecedented march of infantry was made by the gallant old Sixth, in 1859, which left Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for California, a distance of one thousand eight hundred miles, and was one hundred and ninety days on the road, of which one hundred and sixty-two were actually passed in marching; being at the rate of about eleven miles per day.

During the present war, our own armies and the armies of the Confederates, have furnished us with numerous examples of long and rapid marches; and in very many instances these marches have been made under an almost constant succession of engagements, demonstrating both the valor and endurance of the American troops.—Hamilton's Military Surgery.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

|                                                                  |      |
|------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| CORRESPONDENCE.                                                  |      |
| Letter from Medical Director Barnes.....                         | 1192 |
| "    "    Surgeon W. E. Day.....                                 | 1193 |
| "    "    Dr. J. M. Page.....                                    | 1193 |
| "    "    Ministers of New Orleans.....                          | 1194 |
| "    "    Nashville, Tenn., by E. L. Jones.....                  | 1199 |
| "    "    Knoxville, Tenn., by Charles Seymour.....              | 1199 |
| "    "    Dr. Bellows.....                                       | 1201 |
| REPORTS.                                                         |      |
| EXTRACTS from Report of Dr. McDonald.....                        | 1189 |
| "    "    Dr. George A. Blake.....                               | 1294 |
| "    "    O. C. Bullard.....                                     | 1185 |
| "    "    H. Tone.....                                           | 1196 |
| Report of Dr. Agnew, Wilmington, N. C.....                       | 1206 |
| "    "    Dr. Dalton, ".....                                     | 1206 |
| Consolidated Report of Home for Soldier's Wives and Mothers..... | 1206 |
| MISCELLANEOUS.                                                   |      |
| Good Words of Great Men.....                                     | 1185 |
| The Last March.....                                              | 1185 |
| The Work of a Great People.....                                  | 1186 |
| Important Testimonials.....                                      | 1192 |
| Aid to Prisoners.....                                            | 1193 |
| Newbern and Wilmington.....                                      | 1193 |
| Our Work at New Orleans and Mobile.....                          | 1194 |
| Testimonial to Sanitary Commission.....                          | 1194 |
| Home at New Orleans.....                                         | 1195 |
| Relief to Prisoners.....                                         | 1195 |
| Knoxville, Tenn.....                                             | 1199 |
| Rather Remarkable.....                                           | 1200 |
| Circular to Branches and Soldier's Aid Societies.....            | 1203 |
| Testimonial.....                                                 | 1212 |
| Marches.....                                                     | 1212 |
| EDITORIAL.                                                       |      |
| What Remains.....                                                | 1201 |
| The Spirit of the Commission.....                                | 1203 |
| Wives and Mothers.....                                           | 1205 |
| Correction.....                                                  | 1212 |

PROTECTIVE
War Claim and Pension Agency

OF THE

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

Office: No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

All the papers and correspondence required to procure Pensions, Bounty and Back Pay, and Prize Money for discharged soldiers and sailors, and for the relatives of soldiers and sailors dying in the service of the United States, prepared and forwarded, and the proceeds of all claims, when collected, remitted to the parties entitled, free of charge.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

WILLIAM M. TILGHMAN, Chairman.

|                        |                       |
|------------------------|-----------------------|
| HORACE BINNEY, JR.,    | ROBERT M. LEWIS,      |
| ALEXANDER BROWN,       | GEORGE M. CONARROB,   |
| HON. J. I. CLARK HARE, | CHARLES J. STILLÉ,    |
| WILLIAM WELSH,         | GEORGE D. PARKISH,    |
| WILLIAM L. REHN,       | H. LENOX HODGE, M.D., |
| GEORGE TROTT,          | ATHERTON BLIGHT.      |

H. LENOX HODGE, M.D., Examining Surgeon.EDWARD A. SMITH M.D., Assistant Surgeon.W. N. ASHMAN, Solicitor.JAS. W. HAZLEHURST, Assistant Solicitor.

PROTECTIVE
War-Claim Association

OF THE

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

OFFICE, 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT.-GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

|                                    |                       |
|------------------------------------|-----------------------|
| HON. HAMILTON FISK,                | ADMIRAL DUPONT,       |
| JOHN J. CISCO, Esq.,               | RUD. A. WITTHAUS, Esq |
| TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, Esq. |                       |

DIRECTORS.

|                       |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| HON. E. D. MORGAN,    | HOWARD POTTER,         |
| GEORGE OPDYKE,        | WILLIAM E. DODGE, JR., |
| HIRAM BARNEY,         | THEODORE ROOSEVELT,    |
| JAS W. BEEKMAN,       | PETER COOPER,          |
| H. W. BELLWS, D.D.,   | GEORGE BANCROFT,       |
| JOHN JACOB ASTOR,     | DANIEL LORD,           |
| JAMES BROWN,          | WILSON G. HUNT,        |
| WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, | ROBERT L. STUART,      |
| JAMES GALLATIN,       | ALFRED PELL.           |

Apply in person or by letter, to
HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families, any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

H. W. Bellows, D.D., New York.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
F. L. Olmsted, California.
George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
Elisha Harris, M.D., New York.
W. H. Van Buren, M.D., New York.
Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., Cambridge, Mass.
S. G. Howe, M.D., Boston, Mass.
C. R. Agnew, M.D., New York.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Cleveland, Ohio.
Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
Horace Binney, jr., Philadelphia, Penna.
Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penna.
Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

H. W. Bellows, D.D., President.
A. D. Bache, LL.D., Vice-President.
George T. Strong, Treasurer.
J. Foster Jenkins, M.D., General Secretary.
J. S. Newberry, M.D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

|                        |                     |
|------------------------|---------------------|
| Henry W. Bellows, D.D. | George T. Strong.   |
| Wm. H. Van Buren, M.D. | Wolcott Gibbs, M.D. |
| C. R. Agnew, M.D.      | Charles J. Stillé.  |

HOSPITAL DIRECTORY.

The Sanitary Commission has made arrangements for supplying information gratuitously, with regard to patients in all the United States General Hospitals.

For information relative to patients in the Hospitals in New York, New Jersey, the New England States, Eastern Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

For the Hospitals in Pennsylvania, address "Office of Sanitary Commission, No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

For the Hospitals in Western Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas, address "Office Sanitary Commission, Louisville, Ky."

In all cases the name, rank, company, and regiment of the person inquired for should be given, and where he was when last heard from. If the application is by letter, the answer will be sent by return of mail; if in person, it will be answered at once; or if by telegraph, an answer will be returned immediately at the inquirer's expense.

Our Soldiers' Aid Societies, clergymen, editors, and others, can scarcely serve the cause of humanity more effectually than by frequently and widely disseminating a knowledge of the above, among those who have friends in the army

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. San. Com., No. 18 West St., Boston, Mass.
 U. S. San. Com., Nos. 10 & 11 Cooper Union,
 New York.
 U. S. San. Com., State House, New Haven, Conn.
 U. S. San. Com., 1307 Chestnut St., Philada.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. San. Com., 244 F St., Washington, D. C.
 U. S. San. Com. Camp Distribution, Va.
 U. S. San. Com., 46 Sharp St., Baltimore, Md.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Harper's Ferry, Va.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Annapolis, Md.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Camp Parole, Md.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Norfolk, Va.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, City Point, Va.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Newberne, N. C.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, Beaufort, S. C.
 U. S. Sanitary Commission, New Orleans, La.
 Temporary Depots for distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. San. Com., corner Vine and Sixth Sts.,
 Cincinnati, O.
 U. S. San. Com., No. 95 Bank St., Cleveland, O.
 U. S. San. Com., No. 66 Madison St., Chicago, Ill.
 U. S. San. Com., No. 2 Adam's Block, Buffalo,
 N. Y.
 U. S. San. Com., No. 59 Fourth St., Pittsburgh, Penna.
 U. S. San. Com., No. 32 Larned St., Detroit, Mich.
 U. S. San. Com., Columbus, O.
 U. S. San. Com., Fifth St., Louisville, Ky.
 The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall Street, N. Y.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

F. N. KNAPP, Supt., Washington, D. C.
 J. B. ABBOTT, Chief Assistant, Washington, D. C.

"SOLDIERS' HOMES" AND "LODGES."

[OBJECTS.—Temporary aid and protection,—food, lodging, care, &c.,—for soldiers in transit, chiefly the discharged, disabled, and furloughed.]

Alexandria, Va. "ALEXANDRIA LODGE." Orange and Alexandria Railroad Station. J. B. Holt, Superintendent.

Annapolis, Md. "HOME FOR SOLDIERS' WIVES AND MOTHERS." Mrs. Hopes Sayres, Matron.

Baltimore, Md. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 62 Conway Street. A. E. Hastings, Supt.

"SOLDIERS' LODGE." Opposite Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad Station. —, Superintendent.

Boston, Mass. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 76 Kiugston Street. Charles F. Mudge, Supt., near Boston and Worcester Railroad Depot.

Buffalo, N. Y. "SOLDIERS' REST." Exchange Street, opposite Central Railroad Depot. Mrs. H. Indevine, Matron.

Cairo, Ill. "SOLDIERS' HOME." C. N. Shipman, Superintendent.

Camp Nelson, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Cincinnati, O. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Third Street. Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Superintendent.

Cleveland, Ohio. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Joseph Jerome, Superintendent.

Columbus, Ohio. "SOLDIERS' HOME." T. E. Botsford, Superintendent.

Detroit, Michigan. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 81 Jefferson Avenue.

Harrisburg, Pa. Near the Railroad Depot. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." W. H. Hadley, Supt.

Jeffersonville, Indiana. "SOLDIERS' HOME." New Market Street, near the Depot. E. T. Smith, Superintendent.

Louisville, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." V. Scott, Superintendent.

Memphis, Tenn. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Near landing, C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Nashville, Tenn. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Captain I. Brayton, Superintendent.

New Orleans, La. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Corner Magazine and Julia Streets. Sumner Bullard, Superintendent.

New York City. "DISCHARGED SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 45 Grove Street, near Bleeker. —, Superintendent.

Paducah, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." E. D. Way, Superintendent.

Portsmouth, Va. "SOLDIERS' HOME." John Aleoake, Superintendent.

Washington, D. C. "THE HOME." No. 374 North Capitol Street. J. B. Clark, Supt.

"HOME FOR SOLDIERS' WIVES AND MOTHERS. No. 350 North Capitol Street. J. B. Clark, Supt.

"LODGE No. 4." No. 389 H Street. —, Supt.

"LODGE No. 5." Maryland Avenue, near Washington & Alexandria R. R. Station. —, Supt.

"LODGE No. 6." Foot of Sixth Street. Howard McPherran, Superintendent.

SPECIAL RELIEF OFFICES.

[OBJECTS.—To give aid in procuring pay, pensions, bounty, prize money, arrears of pay and bounty, and other claims upon government. To supply clothing, hospital delicacies, crutches, &c. To give transportation, information, &c.]

Alexandria, Va. Office in Soldiers' Lodge, Orange and Alexandria Railroad Station. J. B. Holt, Agent.

Annapolis, Md. Office of United States Sanitary Commission. Major F. C. Howes, Agent.

Baltimore, Md. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 46 South Sharpe Street. J. T. Paneoast, Agent.

Boston, Mass. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 76 Kingston Street.

Buffalo N. Y. Branch United States Sanitary Commission, Adams' Block, No. 209 Washington Street.

Cairo, Ill. Office in "Soldiers' Home." C. N. Shipman, Agent.

Camp Nelson, Ky. Office in "Soldiers' Home." Thomas Butler, Agent.

Chattanooga, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission.

Chicago, Ill. United States Sanitary Commission.

Cincinnati, Ohio. United States Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth Streets.

Cleveland, Ohio. Branch United States Sanitary Commission

Detroit, Mich. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned Street.

Dubuque, Ia. United States Sanitary Commission. Rev. E. S. Morris, Agent.

Harrisburg, Pa. Office in "Soldiers' Lodge." W. H. Hadley, Agent.

Jeffersonville, Ind. Office in "Soldiers'

Home," New Market Street, near railroad depot. E. T. Smith, Agent.

Knoxville, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission.

Leavenworth, Kansas. United States Sanitary Commission. J. R. Brown, Agent.

Louisville, Ky. United States Sanitary Commission, Fifth Street.

Memphis, Tenn. Office in "Soldiers' Lodge," near landing. C. W. Christy, Agent.

Milwaukee, Wis. Mrs. Colt.

Nashville, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission. E. Root, Agent.

New Orleans, La. Special Relief Office, United States Sanitary Commission, No. 96 Julia Street. O. C. Bullard, Agent.

New York City, N. Y. "Special Relief Office," Cooper Union, No. 10 Third Avenue. Mrs. W. P. Griffin, Chairman Special Relief Committee.

Paducah, Ky. Office in "Soldiers' Home." E. D. Way, Agent.

Philadelphia, Pa. United States Sanitary Commission, 1307 Chestnut Street, third story, back. Colonel Soest, Agent.

Portsmouth, Va. Office in "Soldiers' Home." John Aleooke, Agent.

Vicksburg, Miss. United States Sanitary Commission. J. G. Brown.

Washington, D. C. "Special Relief Office," No. 389 H Street, between 13th and 14th Streets. J. B. Abbott, Chief Assistant.

Wheeling, Va. United States Sanitary Commission.

BRANCH,

No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH,

No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SIR:—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the City of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial Arm, having reported

IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD, WHEN A SOLDIER MAY DESIRE TO PURCHASE "THE MORE ELEGANT AND EXPENSIVE ARM OF PALMER," FIFTY DOLLARS WILL BE ALLOWED TOWARDS PAYMENT FOR THE SAME.

By order of the Acting Surgeon-General,

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D.C., Dec. 12, 1863.

C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U.S.A.

SIR:—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, so FAR AS REGARDS THE LIMBS MANUFACTURED BY YOU.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U.S.A.

To B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE

The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.

The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.

Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices. Address

B. FRANK PALMER, LL.D.,

President American Artificial Limb Co.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES.

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.
 FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.
 FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.
 FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.
 FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 246 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKES, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT

AND

FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome Street, New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 39.

WASHINGTON, D. C., JULY 1, 1865.

No. 39.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the Central Office, 244 F street, Washington, D. C., and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or 244 F street, Washington, D. C.) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

GOOD WORDS OF GREAT MEN.

PRESIDENT ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The Sanitary Commission is doing a work of great humanity, and of direct practical value to the nation in this time of its trial. It is entitled to the gratitude and the confidence of the people, and I trust it will be generously supported. There is no agency through which voluntary offerings of patriotism can be more effectively made.

CHIEF JUSTICE SALMON P. CHASE.

What age before this age, and what country besides our country, ever witnessed such an organization as that of the Sanitary Commission? What needs have been supplied; what wants relieved; what wounds healed; what evils averted, by the activity, wisdom, and unflagging zeal of this admirable organization, fostered and sustained by the people, and recognized and aided by the Government.

THE FUTURE.

The following most able letter from the pen of Dr. Bellows is rich in thought and forecast:

NEW YORK, May 26, 1865.

Miss ABBY W. MAY,

Chr. Exec. Com., N. E. W. Aux. Assoc., Boston:

DEAR MADAM: In reply to your favor of the 23d instant, I can only give at present a very general answer.

We hope to make our Branches centres

VOL. I. No. 39.

77

both for the diffusion and the collection of light on all that concerns the well-being of our disabled and discharged soldiers. We shall soon issue general instructions, with blanks and forms, bearing upon this subject, and must ask you to wait the careful preparation of these systematic formulas.

We suppose, however, that each considerable community will have its own special experiences, and its own peculiar sphere of necessary work, depending on its geographical position, and on the number and character of the State, municipal, and humane institutions, or other instrumentalities, already at work for the benefit of the soldier. We wish our Branches to assume no work which others are doing well; to do no superfluous, doubtful, or in any way needless labor; and we wish them to discourage all about them in works of superelevation. The soldiers must not be invited to lean, but to stand up; and only those be provided with public support who cannot take care of themselves, or be taken care of by their friends.

The chief work you can do, it seems to me, is to make your Branch a centre, first, for the collection of facts and observations respecting the actual needs of the soldiers returning to your State and city or the sphere of your late work. How many need and deserve assistance of any kind? Make your office a place where soldiers and their friends can come to register their wants and complaints, and where you can obtain your share of facts, to contribute to our illumination in forming a correct theory of the course the nation ought to take for the next five years towards its invalids, its veterans, and the widows and orphans of the war.

Next, let it be a bureau of information to the soldiers and their friends, in respect to pensions, back pay, and bounty. As you have a claim agency in Boston, you will merely extend the knowledge of it and its privileges to the communities you correspond with, so as to secure for the soldiers' families all their rights.

Then, let your Branch be an office for collecting information in regard to the kinds of labor in which invalid soldiers can engage, and the market for their labor; becoming the agency between them and persons willing, or to be made willing through your influence, to give up to them all the light callings for which they are fitted. In this way we hope through you and our Branches and Aid Societies to keep our invalid soldiers scattered—objects of neighborly and personal interest, thinly spread over the country—instead of regimenting them in asylums, to weary and demoralize each other, and to become burdens to the State, and permanent monuments of a civil war, whose painful features we wish as soon as possible to efface and forget.

We recommend you to impress on every Aid Society on your books the importance of making itself the local centre of all that concerns the welfare of returning soldiers in its own neighborhood; to recommend the notion that it is a disgrace to a town to allow its own soldiers or its widowed and orphaned families to look beyond its own limits for support; to make it a matter of holy pride and emulation to provide employment for its own disabled men, and in this way reduce the county and State and national asylums to the lowest possible figure.

We are inclined to think that the healthful tendencies of our American institutions will so largely favor our ideas as to make the number of absolute dependents much smaller than is now feared, and to render the labor put upon our branches far from burdensome. But the next three months, and certainly the next year, (another winter especially,) will test that point.

We already perceive a disposition of a certain set of low-spirited men, who count their wounds not so much an honor as a thrift—an advantage rather than a misfortune—to take up the business of mendicants, and deform the streets with their hat in hand begging. These wounded cowards must not be mistaken for our disabled soldiers, nor be allowed to misrepresent them. For the honor of the whole corps they ought to be discountenanced, and by arrangements with the police, compelled to go to work or to be put in charity asylums. Public, shameless beggary from door to door and in the street is every way corrupting, whether made by blind, lame, or sick men, whether civilians or soldiers; and if the public cannot be expected at once to understand this, it is a matter in which they must be protected from their own impulsive sympathies, by our Branches and Aid Societies co-operating with the municipal or State authorities.

There is, however, a class of persons made helpless by the war—some of them yet to develop the whole extent of their broken constitutions—who must be made comfortable for life in public institutions. How numerous this class will prove it is impossible even to conjecture. It does not include all the helpless; because a large proportion of them will receive the tenderest care of their own families, too happy to watch over and protect and solace them, as they should be, even though in very moderate circumstances. Let us do nothing to discourage this noble pride of domestic independence, this sacred bond of consanguinity. A large share of the invalidism of the war we shall never hear of. Our proud boys will hide their scars, and die in the sacred retirement of homes that will not parade their services or their sorrows, happy in having borne and rendered both. This, too, is every way to be admired and encouraged. But there are many foreigners who have fought for us and have all the claims of natives, since to mix their blood with ours on our battlefields makes them our kindred, and "of one blood," in even a higher sense than usual. There are fatherless, motherless, homeless soldiers; blind, consumptive, limbless men, full of sorrows and of necessities, who require an absolute and perma-ment asylum. How many they will prove nobody can guess at this moment; but some thousands in all. The States are already moving in their behalf. It would be much better if the nation could agree to make four conveniently situated homes for this class of men, independent of State lines and either Federal or State control or support, where the spontaneous charity or mercy of the nation could maintain them in memory of their service to the Union; where the State and sectional feeling should be steadily withstood in favor of a larger and more patriotic sentiment, and the guarantee of private intelligence, energy, and integrity, in their ordering; management, and continued improvement be offered in place of the official formalism, coldness, and fixity which sooner or later cankers all institutions of benevolence passing into Governmental hands. Such asylums, being tentative, require flexibility; should be started on a small scale, in a temporary way, feel their road, and gradually adapt themselves to their experience and the wants of the men. To erect great edifices, upon any present knowledge of what our American life and spirit requires, would be to stereotype our ignorance and petrify our dreams. The nation, through some Board it has learned to trust, should take some one or more of the cheap pavilion hospitals the war has erected, and which must soon be in the market, and having thoroughly purged it, open one or more wards at a time, testing the want and gradually developing the best system for the care and comfort and happiness of the men; making the institutions in all cases mixed, so as to destroy the horrid, deadening informality of classified asylums; putting the wholly disabled and the partially disabled together, the blind and the halt, and by the greatest diversity of industries, and light, even if useless employments, seek to keep up self-respect, drive off ennui, restore to society as many as possible, and make those who cannot be restored as little miserable as their wretched circumstances will allow. The wan and woeful countenances of many blind soldiers, many lame and helpless ones, utter strangers to homes of their own, has already stamped an image on my mind of their long and weary future under the best care they can possibly secure, which is full of motive, and full of solicitude.

The Sanitary Commission, as soon as it sees how much money is likely to be left in its hands after its more legitimate work is done, proposes to open one or more asylums of this character, of a size proportioned to its purse, and the evidences of public interest in its undertaking. Should the nation desire to perpetuate its work in this form, and make the Commission a permanent guardian of this class of the victims of the war, it has only to say so by its generous support of the plan. It seems to us that the spontaneous, public, unofficial character of the ministry rendered to the sick and wounded through the war, has been one of its most marked American features, and that the perpetuation of this distinction is eminently desirable. That government is best which governs least. That state of society is freest and happiest which embodies least of its humanity, mercy, and philanthropy in governmental charities. Never was there a greater need of recalling this principle so gloriously illustrated in our national history, than now, when a habit of dependence on the Government machinery has not only centralized, but bureaucratized our motions. We are clearly in some danger of forgetting that while we astonished the world by the rapid and successful way in which we condensed the national life, will, and power, in the Government, discharging the extremities of their independence for the time, with a deliberate suspension of the personal and local rights of freemen—we have a still more wonderful feat to display in the ease with which we recall those rights, scatter and diffuse that lately concentrated power, and resume the unofficial and unbureaucratic life which is the proud prerogative of a self-governing nation. The fewer the monuments of our martial law, and our purely governmental régime, the better; the more the memorials of our popular, home-bred, and individual life, the better also.

The Sanitary Commission is not ambitious of any further services to the country, and would gladly retire from duty. It will cheerfully resign its care of disabled soldiers to any body of men deemed more capable or more worthy representatives of the national will, as soon as it has exhausted the means already entrusted to it, and for which it feels a deep responsibility. But, if the people wish it, or expect it, or call upon it, to go on with this work, on the general principles herein set forth, it will not shrink from the task and responsibility of continuing to represent the national care and love towards the soldiers who have re-established our liberties and saved our country.

Excuse the length and the generality of my letter, which I certainly began with very little idea of extending beyond the demands of your local inquiries, but which has thus spontaneously grown under my pen into a short treatise.

With ever grateful regards to the Branch you so ably represent, for its readiness to go on with our work, and for its expressions of confidence and co-operation, I remain, dear madam, your friend and servant,

HENRY W. BELLOW, S,
Pres't U. S. Sanitary Commission.

From the New York Independent.

WORK FOR THE SOLDIERS.

What are we going to do for the soldiers when they come home? What for those who have already come, leaving behind them a leg or an arm as pledge of their devotion to the Republic? This is what some men are going to do:

At a meeting held at the house of Theodore Roosevelt, on Thursday evening, the 18th instant, for the purpose of adopting some measures to promote the employment of disabled soldiers and sailors, it was resolved by the undersigned to co-operate with the "Bureau of Employment for Disabled and Discharged Soldiers and Sailors," 35 Chambers street, by employing in each of our places of business—as general messenger, or in other light work adapted for the disabled—at least one maimed discharged soldier or sailor.

It was also resolved to bring this matter to the notice of the business community by having agreements drawn up and presented to all business men for their signature, wherein they shall agree to give at least one man of the above class employment in some light capacity, which has been heretofore ordinarily performed by able-bodied men.

Roosevelt & Son, 94 Maiden Lane.
Brown, Brothers & Co., 56 Wall street.
Phelps, Dodge & Co., 21 Cliff street.
Grinnell, Minturn & Co., 78 South street.
Ward, Campbell & Co., 56 Wall street.
Schuyler, Hartley, Graham & Co., 19 Maiden Lane.

Henry Clews & Co., 32 Wall street.
Metropolitan National Bank, by J. E. Williams, President.

E. Williams, Cashier of American Exchange Bank.

R. H. Lowry, President of National Bank of Republic.

The Bureau at 35 Chambers street was established by the Sanitary Commission. Its object is to get employment for returning soldiers, and like all the work which the Commission has done, it is without money and without price to the soldier. To the employer also it makes no charge. It is an institution purely and generously benevolent. It is another channel into which the abundant stream that the Sanitary Commission, for three years, has poured out is now turned. It is a recognition of the fact that, although the war is ended, the claims which the war has made survive. It is a confession that the debt of the citizen to the soldier can never be paid. It is a demand that the claim of the latter shall always be listened to and respected. On all these grounds we present it to our readers.

With clearness and good sense the circular of the Commission sets forth what its new effort intends. There are a great many soldiers coming home from the war, and they will want work. There are a great many employers who need just the work which these soldiers are able and desirous to do. The Commission proposes to bring these classes together, to adjust the supply and demand, and to facilitate the process of change from a state of war to a state of peace. The interests of hundreds of thousands of men are concerned in that change, nay, the interests of the whole Republic depend largely for the next four years on its right management.

Be it understood, the Commission does not ask for charity to the soldiers whom it undertakes to supply with employment. Nobody is desired to offer places to these brave men from a sentiment of compassion. But, in the first place, they are entitled by their services to employment; in the second place they are competent to do the work which the Commission asks for them.

From a report recently issued, it appears that already there have been 1,546 applicants at this Bureau for work, and 830 of the applications have been filled. Yet the statistics show also that while there were 252 of the applicants who were mutilated in the service of their country by the loss of a leg or an arm, less than one fifth of this number have found employment—less than fifty out of two hundred and fifty-two.

It is to correct this state of things that the agreement above quoted has been drawn up, and it is especially in behalf of those maimed patriots that we urge upon our readers an application to the Bureau. For able-bodied men there is such a demand as will eventually insure the employment of most of the discharged soldiers, but for those partially disabled there is a lack of consideration. Yet they are the very first who ought to get places. For many places they are just as well adapted as their more fortunate comrades. In many branches of mechanics the loss of a leg is no disqualification or even hindrance. In many outdoor and in-door occupations the loss of an arm does not hurt the man's usefulness. To show how wide is the opportunity for selection, we quote this statement:

"Of the 716 men still unemployed whose names are now on the books of the society, 198 are mechanics in different branches, of whom 135 are able-bodied and 63 disabled, more or less seriously; 112 are clerks and book-keepers, of whom 75 are able-bodied and 37 disabled; 69 wish to serve as watchmen and messengers, of whom 20 are disabled and 49 able-bodied; 16 desire to labor as coachmen and teamsters—these are all able-bodied; 321 are farmers and laborers, of whom 209 are able-bodied and 112 disabled, but not so as to incapacitate them from useful service."

Elsewhere than in New York we presume similar bureaux will be opened and similar opportunities offered. All over the land the claim of the soldier ought to be heeded—is heeded by the same benevolence which cared for him on the field of battle. If only the people will respond now as heartily as they did while the war still raged, no fear for the returning soldier. We will not affect to doubt that the country will always keep in mind its immeasurable obligation to the men who have preserved it from destruction.

From the Washington Chronicle, June 3, 1865.

AN EXAMPLE TO BE FOLLOWED.

SHERMAN'S ARMY ON ITS WAY HOME.

As soon as Sherman's army began to move west, some eight thousand men per day, the United States Sanitary Commission opened feeding stations at Harper's Ferry and at Martinsburg, where hot coffee and fresh bread are taken to the cars by a corps of relief agents, and served out to these returning soldiers. The work commences at Harper's Ferry, and is carried through as many cars as time will allow before the train starts, when the agent at Martinsburg is informed by telegraph of the number of the car last fed, and there the work is resumed and carried on till the train is again in motion. Time does not allow all to receive of this bounty, but still a number of thousands daily are thus refreshed. Why will not the people of the different towns and cities where these trains stop on their way to the West, take up this suggestion and form a continuous line of kind hands reached out to these soldiers?

WHAT THE COMMISSION FINDS TO DO.

The following private letter will show that though the rebel armies are disbanded, ours are not; and that there is yet a ministry of mercy to be rendered to the brave heroes:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29, 1865.

MY DEAR FRIEND: You ask me what the Sanitary Commission finds to do in the way of field relief which calls for and justifies the use of so much at a time when there is no active campaigning, and when a large part of the army is only waiting to be disbanded, and will then be comfortably cared for in their own homes. You say that besides the absence of wounded men, we are also relieved from the necessity which has heretofore existed of supplementing Government provision in anticipation of long marches, and of isolation from the usual base of supplies. Hence, as you assert, you cannot honestly understand the real necessity, on this occasion, for such large expenditure, (in addition to the outlay for the usual special relief service, and for the maintenance of the army and navy claim agency, whose value you fully recognize,) I will endeavor to answer your inquiry:

There is really a great emergency to be met just at this time, of a character which has never before presented itself, and which, from the nature of the case, cannot again present itself during the war; and the demands made upon the Commission by this emergency we are endeavoring to meet, not with a careless or prodigal hand, (on the ground that it may be one of our last large calls for aid,) but judiciously, humanely, and as the faithful trustees of those funds given by the people for specified ends. Three armies, consisting of 250,000 men, have been brought hurriedly (some by forced marches) into this vicinity—many of these men, not regiments only, but brigades, divisions, and whole army corps, have come here direct from their weeks and months of toilsome marchings, and even from recent battle-fields. They have been unable to obtain the change of clothing which not only comfort, but even ordinary regard for sanitary laws and common cleanliness required; and when they arrived here, though close by the Government storehouses, nothing can be drawn by these men "on account," for the very reason that all their accounts are necessarily closed, preparatory to making up the "muster-out" rolls. Hence the occasion for relief on the part of the Commission in the more urgent cases, which number in the aggregate very many. Moreover, our medical inspectors find that a very large number of the men in these armies have decided scorbutic tendencies, every day becoming more marked, some already fully developed—as in the case of one regiment from which fifteen cases of scurvy were sent to the general hospital in a single morning—which, unless speedily checked, will, even before these men can get home, lead to a very long sick list; and Government is naturally more tardy now than ever before in making the exertion which at this season of the year would be necessary, in order to furnish liberally of fresh vegetables to these soldiers. For the sake, therefore, of these men who are soon to be discharged, that they may not carry home the disease which they otherwise unavoidably would, and for the sake of rendering most valuable service to that part of these armies,—some 75,000 or 100,000 men who are still to remain under arms, and are really "in the field" as much as if located in Georgia—the Sanitary Commission is purchasing largely, and issuing liberally, potatoes, onions, pickles, sour-kraut, and other anti-scorbutics. Thousands of these men thus supplied, have for months previous been almost entirely without this kind of food: In the opinion of experienced surgeons, the value of the service now rendered by the Commission is great indeed. Then, among all the regiments, there is a class to be cared for (in the aggregate some thousands) who, under ordinary circumstances, would be in general or regimental hospitals, but who are manfully struggling to keep up, so that they may have the satisfaction of going home with the regiment for muster-out. Just the aid which the Sanitary Commission renders these men, (chiefly through our efficient corps of women hospital visitors, who have temporarily been placed on the field relief corps to perform this kind of special service,) probably saves many hundreds, if not thousands, from the necessity of leaving the camp and going to the hospital. Add to this the fact that the occasion and the opportunity of extending this lengthened arm of the people at home to these soldiers, is limited to but a few weeks at the farthest, and that to 150,000 men, this is our last opportunity to make them feel the presence of the Sanitary Commission, which has followed them now for four whole years; connect with it also the other consideration, that here we have concentrated into a field of ten miles square, the work which formerly spread itself out over widely scattered armies, and you see where we find the conditions which, as we conceive, call for and justify this somewhat large expenditure at this time.

We should be untrue to the name and genius of the Commission, untrue to the people themselves, who have entrusted us with these funds to use for the benefit of the soldiers, if we allowed this opportunity, measured not by months, but by days, to slip from us unused.

Truly your friend.

THE GREAT GATHERING AT THE NORTH-WEST.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 9, 1865.

You cannot be much hotter in Washington than we are here in Chicago; and yet the people come from the East and West to make their offerings to our cause at the great Fair. This young city, you know, is the mother of Sanitary Fairs, and now in the days of promised peace; she has not forgotten her obligation to foster the remaining work of the Commission, by an effort as grand and generous as when she came forward in days of deeper trial and did so nobly for the soldier.

All trades are here, several States and churches, in their respective individualities, having booths inscribed with their own names, and each vying with the other in efforts to do the most for the good cause.

Indians have contributed of their belts and bead work, children of their little earnings, schools of their accumulated treasures, and foreign lands have recognized us by uniting in the work.

London, Liverpool, Paris, and the German States are liberally represented.

Among the little things from children, there has come to day a small box, containing several bright butterflies, large and well preserved, with the following note :

"I am a little girl, eleven years old, living at Glenwood, Jefferson County, Kentucky, near Louisville. I want to send something to the Sanitary Fair, and the dried butterflies are all I have. Please accept them.

"KATY M. CAREY."

Now please send Katy the Bulletin, with this letter marked for her. "All I have!" Who has done all they could have done? who of us are doing all we can? but Katy has given all she has. She must be remembered for her good work.

In one of the booths I find a gold watch contributed by a soldier, who having served his country well, and being about to die, took the watch and said: "This is all I have to give to the good Commission, which has done so much for me and my comrades. Send it to the Sanitary Fair."

The display of articles is good, and the financial results will, I trust, be satisfactory.

The Christian Commission comes into the work with an alacrity and generosity that is commendable. The religious press and pulpit have both co-operated, and it is fitting that at the conclusion of the war we should at least approach a union of labor, as we certainly have had all along a community of interest.

Some of the churches have brought very valuable and expensive contributions, and as it is difficult to sell at very high prices, the question of raffling has excited considerable interest. As you know, the Commission has never approved this system of raising money, and the Executive Committee of this fair having resolved to discountenance it, posted cards all about the building, expressive of their disapprobation. Such splendid gifts, however, have come in from divers sources, too costly to be within the reach of the masses, that the question, How shall their value be realized to the Commission? has assumed a serious and practical form. The Executive Committee had declared its opinion—an opinion consistent with the uniform policy of the Commission, and it could not and ought not to recede from its position.

A meeting was therefore held this morning, of the chairmen of the different delegations, and those immediately interested in the sale of articles, which was full of interest. Mr. Bryan, the admirable chairman of the Executive Committee, made a statement of the views of the Committee, and asserted their intention not to swerve from their position, but he wished frankly to announce that, notwithstanding the published declaration of the Committee, raffling was being carried on to a considerable extent throughout the several departments of the Fair, and that a large majority of the representatives of churches had expressed their desire to adopt the system in order to dispose of their valuable articles without sacrifice, and as the Committee was immovable, this meeting was called to express its opinions.

Clergymen, and others immediately concerned, having spent nearly two hours in the discussion of the subject, with good feeling, and yet with much spirit and animation, adopted the following preamble and resolutions, with but few dissenting voices:

Whereas some of the representatives of the people who are here assembled, having come without knowledge as to the wishes of the Executive Committee of the Fair on the subject of raffling, action thereon having been taken after the issue of their circular; and,

Whereas the question of raffling being submitted to this meeting for an expression of its opinion: it is therefore

Resolved, That this is the people's Fair; that it contains the offerings of the people from all sections of the country; and that these contributions are here to sell; and that each party having charge of such contributions claims the right to dispose of their articles, according to their best judgment: Provided, that all sales within the building shall be rigidly confined to the limits of the respective departments, except for such goods as may be disposed of at the auction booth.

Resolved, That in the expression of this opinion, the abstract question of the morality of raffling is not involved.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Bryan exhorted all to go to work in good faith and fellowship, stating, in a peculiarly felicitous style, that while he did not express any opinion on the abstract question of the morality of raffling in fairs, he was satisfied that there were some things quite as sinful as many supposed raffling to be, which he hoped would not be indulged by any, and these things were intolerance of opinion, and yielding to an unchristian temper.

Thus was the vexed question disposed of. The official action of the managers of the Fair discountenancing the practice, and yet the voice of the people demanding it.

Every booth is active, and all hands are earnestly engaged to make as large a division of money to the various interests embraced in the enterprise as possible.

The Christian Commission is to receive a liberal share of the proceeds; and in the bestowments of the people for distributing religious reading, building up homes, and providing for the thousand emergencies incident to reinstating the soldier to citizenship again, there will be a grand totality of benevolent effort hitherto unknown to this region. Yours, &c.,

JOSEPH PARRISH.

TOUCHING LETTER FROM A WISCONSIN SOLDIER.

HEADQUARTERS, POST OF CAIRO,
CAIRO, Ills., May 1, 1865.

MY DEAR LITTLE FRIEND LIZZIE: I am really glad to make the acquaintance of so dear a little girl. I will tell you how it came about. Going down to the "Sanitary Boat," the box containing your comfort bags was being opened, and I espied among the rest one that reminded me so much of my own dear little one, that I seized and claimed it as mine. Opening it, I found your little note addressed "My dear Soldier." I read it with much interest, and re-read it; and showed it to my commanding officer, who is in command of the post. It made him, too, think of his little one at home. So you see, dear one, that your note has at least been on one of its missions, and has rejoiced our hearts. Now for the contents of the bag. You see one of your own sheets of paper comes back to you, and one of your stamps. I used one of your needles, one of your buttons, and some of your thread. The Colonel smoked your tobacco, and wished me to tell you it was fine. In fact, we enjoyed the "Comfort Bag" hugely, talked over it, thought over it; and I must confess, soldier that I am, that I looked at it till a dimness came over my sight, occasioned by the tear it would start. For I thought of the precious jewel God gave me, of your own age, a thoughtful, lovely child; one like you who loved the Sabbath school, her Bible, her pa and ma, her sister, and her dear Saviour; who for years closed not her eyes in sleep till she had said her little prayer, but who, too good for earth, was transplanted by "Our Father" to bloom in eternal youth in the arms of him who said "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven." My dear Lizzie, that her God may be yours is the wish of your "dear soldier." I sit in my room here to-night buried almost in memories called up by your little note, and am happy to tell you they are of the happiest kind. My home is in Wisconsin, and far from the Mississippi river, in the town of Viroqua, Vernon county. See if you can find that on the map. But I am here in my country's service, trying to sustain our nation's life, and insure to you and others, who are growing up to manhood and womanhood, the privilege of living in a free country, never again to be disturbed by any such a war as this. Accept my thanks for your kind favor; and be assured that the memory of to-day, with your bag in sight, (which I shall take home with me,) will always be green. Please tell the ladies of the "Buffalo Aid Society," that if they could have seen the discharged prisoners from such prisons as Andersonville and Cahawba appropriate their little tokens of regard for the soldier's welfare, they would have felt amply repaid for any pains they have taken. Until this "cruel war is over" their efforts will be needed. But we hope that that day is not far distant. Then we hope to meet our little ones, and enjoy their sweet caresses, as I'm sure your own kind parents do yours. That you may regain your health and grow up a blessing to those around you, live in the fear of God, and enjoy his favor in this life and the one to come, is the wish and prayer of your "dear soldier,

JOSEPH D. BROTHERS,
Co. I, 42d Wis. Vol. Infantry.

FLAG QUILTS.

To the Editor of the Bulletin:

Perhaps your readers will be interested in the following items respecting two flag quilts. Some time in April, we received from a country town a quilt made in the form of a flag—red and white stripes and a blue field with the white stars sewed on, all nicely quilted. It was sent to the Commission, with a note attached requesting the soldier who had the comfort of sleeping under this Union quilt to acknowledge it, that we might have some proof that the soldiers received the donations designed for them.

In less than three weeks, the following letter was received at our rooms. Knowing that the exact words of a soldier's letter are always more interesting and effective than any abstract account, I send a copy of it:

"HEADQUARTERS 202<sup>d</sup> REG'T. PA. VOLS.,
"FAIRFAX STATION, VA., May 10, 1865.

"FAIR SEX: I am a soldier in the above named regiment, and also am in receipt of a few lines pinned on one of your quilts; and feel heartily glad to know that we are not forgotten by the fair ones at home. You ask the question for me to inform you whether us soldiers receive such articles. I will answer by saying to the Society that we do. Also, my bed has on a very nice, clean white sheet and pillow, with white slip on. I need not tell you of the pleasant dreams I had, but the first night the flag quilt was spread over me, I did dream of the loved ones far away. But enough; your donations are received—small favors thankfully and larger ones in proportion. I will wait a speedy reply from the fair ones. I am a man twenty-six years of age, and belong to good society. J. B."

This letter was duly answered by the Society which had contributed the gift.

We have another flag quilt, which we shall send this week, around which cluster some touching associations. The lady who brought it told us that, when our national banner was first insulted at Fort Sumter, this flag was made by her mother and brother, and was one of the first that was raised in her town. On the death of the mother, not long after, her sorrowing son cut down the flag staff, and entered the army. He was killed at Chancellorsville, and this flag was never unfurled after his enlistment till the death of our murdered President, when it was draped in mourning for that sad event. Thus consecrated, the sister has now converted it into a quilt, and wishes it sent to some one of our released prisoners still in hospital.

We shall endeavor to comply with her wishes. NEW HAVEN, CONN.

CRUELTY TO UNION PRISONERS.

Extracts from the report of Frederick N. Knapp, Superintendent of Special Relief, read at the quarterly meeting of the Board of the United States Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C., April 20, 1865.

* * * On Sunday, April 2, I arrived at Wilmington, North Carolina, having left Washington in response to the call made by Dr. Agnew in his letter of March 20, describing the wretchedness and destitution of the 1,500 or 2,000 Union prisoners who had just been brought into Wilmington, exchanged or paroled from the rebel prisons. When I reached Wilmington, all but 300 of these Union prisoners had been sent North; and those who remained had been made in all respects clean and comfortable, as had been those who had gone on ship-board. And this had been done largely, almost exclusively, through the abundant supplies of clothing furnished by the Commission—some thousands of garments—which enabled these men to lay aside the filthy rags in which alone they had for months been clothed. I am convinced from what I myself saw, and from the testimony of the medical and the military officers at Wilmington, that the Sanitary Commission did one of its most blessed and beneficent works in the help it gave to the surgeons there, who, with utterly deficient means at hand, were trying to lift these returned prisoners out of a state of filth and starvation—a condition resulting directly from long confinement at the South and studied deprivations. And I may add that among the men who still remained at Wilmington, although they were surrounded by comforts, and their appearance had of course been entirely changed from what it was at first, there was, in the seventy gangrenous limbs (dry gangrene from frost or exposure) of men gathered in one hospital, the saddest and most striking evidence I have yet seen of the malignant cruelty practiced upon our Union prisoners by the enemy. * * * * *

On Friday, April 7, I left City Point, upon the Sanitary tug boat, "Gov. Curtin," which was starting with stores for Richmond. We arrived at Richmond Friday evening, having been delayed on our way up two hours at "Deep Bottom," where we took on board the "Curtin" quite an amount of supplies from what had been the sanitary store-house of the 25th army corps; the sanitary wagons,—which you will recollect followed the troops into Richmond the morning it was evacuated,—though well loaded, were able to take but a share of the supplies.

Saturday morning, after passing by the smoking ruins, and getting sight of "Libby Prison" and "Belle Isle,"—each bound in with its terrible history,—I went out to "Jackson Hospital," one of the principal hospitals of the place, a mile and a half or two miles from the city; and here I saw that which, by contrast, made me feel tenfold more fully than ever before how great had been the barbarity of that system of starvation and exposure by which the rebels, with slow and terrible death, had killed off our men, their prisoners of war.

I found at that rebel hospital the evidence of thorough organization and wise system—a large generosity in all the provisions for the comfort of their patients; and testimony proving the fact that, as a general thing, there had been no lack of supplies there, but usually an abundance of all needed stores. As I looked on these well-ordered methods, and the liberal provision which had long been made by the rebels at that hospital, located within less than cannon-shot distance of Belle Isle, I felt that the thin screen of "ignorance" or of "inability," with which some persons still seek to temper the barbarity of the rebels, must be at once and utterly swept away, leaving the inhuman cruelty of this slow murder to stand out clearly, and its true nature to be recognized; viz: a means systematically arranged and adopted, under a deliberate plan, as an engine of war, whereby to thin our ranks by death, precisely as the bayonet is used in battle—except that the bayonet is connected with bravery, while this instrument of death is the weapon of cowardice. For what could stand in stronger contrast with the boasted chivalry of the South, or with the undoubted valor of her soldiers in the field, than this resort to a process of starving defenceless men by thousands, showing that the spirit of slavery, which fomented and has guided this rebellion, is not only oppressive, but base; since bravery—that virtue which all men praise—dies out under a system that creates and thrives upon brutality and ungoverned passions? What, therefore, if not this meanest and most cruel method of getting rid of a dreaded foe, should forever be branded as cowardice?

Jackson Hospital, as established and conducted by the rebels, was excellent; in some respects, few military hospitals of our own surpass it. It was excellent in its general plan of organization; in its location and its arrangement of buildings; in its administration; in its thorough policing; in the exceeding cleanliness of its bedding, and in the very liberal provision made by the rebel government for the hospital fund.

Jackson Hospital comfortably accommodates 2,500 patients. Winder Hospital, which is near by, but which I did not visit, is said to be similar to Jackson Hospital in general arrangements and capacity, but inferior in its situation and its appointments. The buildings at Jackson Hospital are much like our usual wooden hospital barracks, well arranged and well warmed and lighted, the floors nicely scoured, and the walls, in many wards, covered with canvas, which was painted white. The bedsteads were only wood, but were kept very white, and on each was both a straw bed and a cotton mattress, and two feather pillows with nice pillow cases. The sheets and blankets and bedspreads were unusually clean, and bore marks of being carefully looked after. The cleanliness of the bed-linen was accounted for by the large laundry, where sixty (60) laundresses were constantly at work. The laundry was provided with a long row of fixed tubs, into which the water was brought by pipes, and ample provision was made for heating water, heating irons, &c., &c.

This laundry had its tenements near by for the women employed there, where they seemed comfortable in their quarters, and neat in personal appearance. At the hospital, beside the medical corps and nurses, and the two matrons to every ninety patients, there were in each section a chief linen matron and a chief culinary matron, with their two assistants. In each section was a kitchen for special diet, with four to six stoves—this besides the general kitchen attached to each section. The special diet list was posted in all the wards, and seemed liberal and aiming to secure variety. The dispensaries were well fitted up, and the persons in charge said, in answer to my inquiry, that, excepting a deficiency at times in some few articles, their supply had been good. The linen rooms were kept in the neatest order, and seemed to have been unusually well filled. The baggage rooms were like the rest, clean and well arranged. The dining rooms of each section, where the convalescents ate, were also kept well, and the tables neat, and bearing marks of care and comfort, and convalescents who had been there some months assured me that their fare was, on the whole, excellent. There were no covered walks connecting the different buildings in the section with the dining rooms, nor were there any "tramways" from the kitchens to the wards; but the walks were hard and clean, and the drains deep and free. At the head of each section were neat buildings, one of which was occupied by surgeons, others by matrons and women assistants. These buildings, with their white-washed fronts and green blinds, and patches of grass, had a look of comfort. There was no general method of carrying water by pipes over the different buildings, consequently there was no provision for bath rooms in the several wards—a decided deficiency; but good water for ordinary use was furnished by wells. The water-closets for convalescents were located where a running stream carried off the deposits.

Within the hospital grounds and near by was an open grove of large trees, with grass beneath, neatly kept. At the further edge of this grove was one of the two large ice houses which supplied the hospital, each 30x30 feet, and 18 feet deep. They are both now filled solid with ice, well protected. A little way from the hospital on the other side are large sheds and a barn, also a dairy house, with the cold water of the melting ice of one of the ice houses flowing through it. At this dairy in summer they have had sixty cows, pastured near by, to furnish fresh milk, and at times fresh butter also, to the patients. The refuse from the barn yard goes to enrich the hospital garden of three or four acres, which the surgeon formerly in charge told me had become very productive.

Near the dairy house stands a large bakery, at present not used, with capacious ovens, where formerly, as the man in charge stated, they turned out sixty thousand pounds of bread per day.

To the above memoranda is to be added this most important fact, viz: that the rebel government, in making provision for the "Hospital Fund," added one hundred per cent. to the usual army ration. Thus was furnished large means for purchasing extra supplies.

Such, roughly sketched, is the record of Jackson Hospital, as it had been during the past year or more; while near by, all the time, was Belle Isle, with its shelterless and starving thousands. * * *

THE WORK OF A GREAT PEOPLE.

(Continued from Bulletin No. 38.)

INSPECTION OF THE CAMPS AND HOSPITALS.

While the Commission was thus organizing societies throughout the country for its future operations, it did not lose sight of the important object for which it had been created. From the first, inspectors had been sent to examine the camps and hospitals, not merely with respect to their sanitary condition, but in regard to everything that could enable the soldier more satisfactorily to perform his duties, apart from purely military considerations. The examination was generally made by two inspectors acting in concert: one of these was a physician of acknowledged ability; the other was usually a minister of the Gospel. It was enjoined upon them to present themselves to the general or commanding officer immediately on their arrival at the post which was assigned them, to seek at once to establish friendly relations with the medical corps, and to ask for the information specified in their instructions. After visiting the hospitals, the camps, and even the troops, they forwarded their reports, which were always confidential, to the central committee at Washington. More than two thousand reports have already been thus furnished, and there is great reason to believe that this voluntary benevolent association possesses more complete and more important information of all that relates to the sanitary condition of the troops in the field than can be found anywhere else. Every inspector, in his report, is bound to answer, in writing, to one hundred and twenty-five printed questions, respecting everything that can affect the welfare and health of the soldiers in the various latitudes, and at the different seasons of the year.

The medical department of the army had fallen into a state of inefficiency during the long period of peace which preceded the Southern rebellion. It was necessary to re-organize it. But the administration having been only recently installed, did not at first appreciate the greatness of the work before them. They were content with merely appointing a new Surgeon General, retaining, at the same time, the old organization. The officer thus chosen showed himself from the first hostile to the Commission; but as his opposition could not overpower the authorization granted by the Secretary of War, and sanctioned by the President, he decided at length to allow the Commission to do what it wished in regard to the volunteers, on condition that it should not in any way concern itself with the regular troops.

The Sanitary Commission, authorized by the President and the Secretary of War to continue its work, had been enabled to dispense with the approbation of the Surgeon General, but on this, as on all other occasions, it acted only in concert with the medical and military authorities, a moderation before which all the jealous suspicions of which it had at first been the object were destined to disappear.

The Government, however, not considering the Surgeon General, of whom we have just spoken, equal to the demands of the time, resolved that another should be appointed. This appointment depended on the President, but it was known that the opinion of the Secretary of War would have great influence on his choice. In departing from the rule of seniority, there was great danger lest favoritism might prevail over merit; yet it was of the utmost importance that the position should be given to him who was best qualified to fill it, without respect to rank or age. Under these circumstances, the Commission resolved to choose a candidate, and respectfully to present the name of their choice to the President. While the proposed new medical act was under discussion in Congress, the standing committee, comprising several of the most eminent practitioners in the United States, began to look out for a person possessing the scientific acquirements and administrative abilities necessary for such a position. They made choice of Dr. W. A. Hammond, assistant surgeon of the medical staff. After some hesitation, Mr. Lincoln decided to present the name of the candidate of the Commission to Congress, and he was confirmed. From a simple First Lieutenant, director of a single hospital, Dr. Hammond rose at once to the rank of a Brigadier General, and had all the responsibility of the medical department of an army as numerous as that of any power in Europe. The results of his nomination have answered the hopes of his friends, and satisfied the wants of the country. The London "Medical Times," dated the 17th of October, 1863, says of Dr. Hammond: "Making allowance for the usual transatlantic exaggerations, he really seems to have performed his work well. Appointed by the President in spite of the old routine custom, over the heads of many seniors, he came to his task full of vigor, in the prime of life, and capable of great physical endurance. With a bold hand he surrounded himself with trustworthy subordinates, displacing many who he did not think equal to the crisis, and proceeded energetically with his work. Large armies had to be provided for, a system of military hospitals to be organized, the examining boards to be reconstructed, and an army medical school and museum to be founded. Well, in these vast and useful works, he seems to have succeeded beyond all expectation."

He recognized the importance of the labors of the Sanitary Commission, and after his election this body became what it was destined to be—an aid to the medical corps, and an ever present friend of the sick and wounded.

DISEASES IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE COUNTRY.

After Dr. Hammond had taken charge of the medical department of the army, the Sanitary Commission was enabled to give all its attention to its original object. In order to assail the rebellion to the best advantage, the theatre of the war had been divided by the government into military departments; these were generally determined by the basins of the great rivers, such as the Potomac, the Mississippi, the Cumberland, &c.; but there were also those of North and South Carolina, &c. These departments, in many respects, differ widely from each other; it may almost be said that all the latitudes and all the climates of Europe are therein represented. Diseases which cause great ravages in one of these departments are sometimes wholly unknown in another. It has been necessary to institute particular inquiry respecting the proper mode of treating certain miasmatic diseases to which the armies of Europe are strangers. The Commission has made great efforts to obtain in advance the necessary information concerning the destination or change of position of the different army corps; as soon as it has been obtained, physicians and surgeons have been sent with each army corps, that they might make particular inquiry respecting the principal diseases prevailing in that locality. The reports of these physicians furnish the Commission with full information, not only with respect to the preventive measures necessary to be adopted, and the usual mode of treating the diseases in question, but also as to the best methods of forwarding supplies to the point desired.

HOSPITAL TRANSPORTS.

At the commencement of the war the military operations on both sides had for their bases the courses of navigable waters. To that, both Unionists and Secessionists were forced, by the nature of the country, there being in the South but few railways, and these having but a single track, while good roads of the ordinary kind are almost unknown, and those which do exist are impracticable during a considerable part of the year. In consequence of this state of things, the Sanitary Commission recommended that a system of transports should be organized, and setting the example, it obtained from the government several large river steamboats, and converted them into hospitals. In these it placed its own surgeons and competent attendants for the sick, together with medicines and provisions, and despatched them to the scene of military operations.

In order to give an illustration of the utility of these floating hospitals, we may refer to the campaign of the Peninsula in 1862. The base of Gen. McClellan's operations against Richmond was formed by the rivers York and Pamunkey. From the early part of the campaign until the insurgents had turned the right flank of the main army, (about the end of June,) thus compelling the latter to retreat from its position on the Chickahominy, the sick and wounded of the Federal army were conveyed to West Point, on the Pamunkey. There the general hospitals of the army were established, but they were soon full; the climate of this locality was excessively hot and unhealthy, and the medical corps insufficient in number for the proper discharge of their duties. As soon, therefore, as the floating hospitals arrived, the sick were conveyed by way of the Pamunkey and York to Fortress Monroe, at the entrance of the Chesapeake. There, having the benefit of the refreshing sea breeze, and only twelve hours distant from Baltimore by steam, they could readily obtain all needful assistance, and if occasion required, they could be directly transported to the North.

The steamers on the American rivers are particularly adapted for such a service. All their machinery is above the water line; they draw only a few feet of water, the cabins being arranged one above the other, the vessel sometimes having three tiers of them. The windows are large, the ceilings high, thus allowing a free supply of that element which is so essential to a hospital—pure air—even when there are on board from eight hundred to a thousand persons.

It may not be out of place to give here some idea of the work which has been accomplished on these floating hospitals of the Sanitary Commission. The women here, also, are the life and soul of these establishments, surpassing the men, even, in courage and energy. They belong nearly all to the most wealthy or most respectable families, for it is generally regarded as a great honor to be employed by the Commission in such service. This is the more surprising, because it could not be supposed that their former habits of comfort and luxury could prepare them for encountering the perils and privations which they must necessarily meet with in this field of labor.

From a work recently published, respecting the Sanitary Commission, by one of their female attendants, (gorde malades), we extract the following:

“At midnight two steamers came alongside the Elm City, each with a hundred sick, bringing word that the Daniel Webster No. 2, (a side-wheel vessel, not a Commission boat,) was aground at a little distance, with two hundred more, having no one in charge of them, and nothing to eat. Of course they had to be attended to. So amidst the wildest and most beautiful storm of thunder and lightning, four of us pulled off to her in a little boat, with tea, bread, brandy, and beef essence. (No one can tell how it tries my nerves to go toppling round at night in little boats, and clambering up ships' sides on little ladders.) We fed them—the usual process. Poor fellows! they were so crazy! And then the Wissahickon came alongside to transfer them to the Elm City. Only a part of them could go in the first load. Dr. Ware, with his constant thoughtfulness, made me go in her to escape returning in the small boat. Just as we pushed off, the steam gave out, and we drifted end on to the shore. Then a boat had to put off from the Elm City, with a line to tow us up. All this time the thunder was incessant, the rain falling in torrents, whilst every second the beautiful crimson lightning flashed the whole scene open to us."

Another episode presents traits of character truly heroic. We may here remark, in passing, that the Sanitary Commission does not keep in its service any one who manifests the slightest timidity under the fire of the enemy or in any other danger.

The following circumstances occurred after the retreat from the Chickahominy, when the army of the Potomac had just arrived at the James river:

"Reached Harrison's Bar at 11 A. M., July 1st, and were ordered to go up the James river as far as Carter's Landing. To do this we must pass the batteries at City Point. We were told there was no danger, if we should carry a yellow flag; yellow flag we had none, so we trusted to the red Sanitary Commission, and prepared to run it. The Galena hailed us to keep below as we passed the battery. Shortly after, we came up with The Monitor, and the little captain, with his East India hat, trumpet in hand, repeated the advice of The Galena, and added that if he heard firing he would follow us. Our cannon pointed its black muzzle at the shore, and on we went. As we left The Monitor, the captain came to me, with his grim smile, and said, 'I'll take those mattresses you spoke of.' We had joked, as people will, about our danger, and I had suggested mattresses around the wheel-house, never thinking that he would try it. But the captain was in earnest; when was he anything else? So the 'contrabands'* brought up the mattresses and piled them against the wheel-house, and the pilot stood against the mast with a mattress slung in the rigging to protect him. In an hour we had passed the danger and reached Carter's Landing, and there was the army, 'all that was left of it.'"

Honor to the women! They are the same in all parts of the world; kind, devoted, counting their personal comfort and safety as nothing if they can only relieve those who suffer.

*From the commencement of the war this name was given by the Union armies to the liberated negroes. Its origin was as follows: When General Butler commanded at Fortress Monroe, he wrote to the Secretary of War to ask what was to be done with the negroes who had not run away from their masters, but whose masters had run away from them, adding, that inasmuch as they might be made use of in war, they ought, as well as the other property of the rebels capable of being so used, to be considered as "contraband of war," and the term has since been universally applied to them.

MEDICAL PUBLICATIONS OF THE SANITARY COMMISSION.

The want of a certain kind of experience of the medical officers of the volunteer army had, from the first, attracted the attention of the Commission. Almost all the surgeons and assistant surgeons were ignorant of that particular branch of medical science which relates to armies during a campaign. On the other hand, the Government had too much to do to be able to give the necessary attention to this subject. The Sanitary Commission, therefore, nominated of its own members a special committee, charged with the preparation of a series of reports on military surgery, and the subjects thereto appertaining. The following list of pamphlets published by this committee will give some idea of this branch of labor:

A—Report on Military Hygiene and Therapeutics.

B—Instructions to Surgeons on Field of Battle.

C—Rules for preserving the Health of the Soldier.

D—Report on the use of Quinine as a Prophylactic.

E—Report on Vaccination in Armies.

F—Report on Amputations.

G—Report on Amputations through Foot and Ankle Joint.

H—Report on Venereal Diseases, &c.

I—Report on Pneumonia.

K—Report on continued Fevers.

L—Excision of Joints.

M—Dysentery.

N—Report on Scurvy.

O—Report on Treatment of Fractures in Military Surgery.

P—Report on Miasmatic Fevers.

Q—Report on Yellow Fever.

R—Hemorrhage from Wounds.

S—Infectious Diseases.

T—Plaster of Paris Splints.

All these documents are distributed gratuitously among the members of the medical corps of the army.

Had the Sanitary Commission done nothing else than publish these reports, and give circulation to this kind of information, it would have deserved the thanks of the army and the country, for the surgeons of the regiments, nearly all of whom had recently passed from civil life to their new position, were, for the most part, but imperfectly acquainted with the duties and demands of their office.

THE "CUISINE" OF THE CAMPS.

The proper cooking of the food destined for the soldiers is a subject of great importance, and it early attracted the attention of the Commission. There was a great deal to be done in this respect. The rations of the American soldiers greatly exceed, both in quantity and variety, those of any other nation. But the Americans (generally speaking) are rather poor cooks, so that even the quantity of food became, when it was badly prepared, a great cause of disease among the troops. As a general rule, the cooking during a campaign consisted in roasting (or rather in broiling) the meat which had been freshly killed over a fire built on the earth. In such a proceeding economy of fuel is usually a secondary consideration, and it sometimes happens that after a certain length of time they are reduced to short allowance. After an engagement the soldiers are not generally inclined to fatigue themselves much in search for wood, nevertheless there are hundreds, sometimes thousands, of the wounded and sick to be nourished. On such occasions the Commission made use of immense boilers mounted on wheels, and containing a soup well prepared and nourishing, which its agents distributed to the soldiers, who, on their part, were not long in imitating the example thus set them.

FLYING HOSPITALS.

Another proposition of the Commission, which the medical corps adopted at once, was that of a military hospital arranged on an improved plan. A structure destined to receive the sick, which can be quickly erected, which is sufficiently large, and at the same time easy of transportation, is a very great desideratum to every army; and it may be doubted whether these three essential conditions could be better fulfilled than by the arrangement referred to. It consisted of the trunks of trees placed at the desired distance from each other, the roof being formed of tarpaulin, and the walls of sail-cloth, which could be raised or lowered at pleasure, according as much or little air might be desired. The first hospital of this kind that was constructed contained 1,500 beds.

A FALSE CHARGE REFUTED.

How is This?

To the Editor of the N. Y. Tribune:

SIR: I have just seen a letter from the wife of a soldier belonging to Schofield's army. She says her husband has been in the hospital at Newbern three weeks, receiving good care. But he adds: "The Christian and Sanitary Commissions are represented here, but the poor sick soldiers have to pay for what they get of them. It is the officers that receive the benefit of their ministrations." This being the case, this poor woman has sent five dollars to assist her husband in putting himself in condition to resume his place in line to fight the battles of his country. Are not such women of more real value to the country than our Sanitary and Christian Commissions?

NEW YORK, April 10, 1865.

ROOMS OF THE U. S. SAN. COM.,

NEWBERN, N. C., May 29, 1865.

To JNO. S. BLATCHFORD, Esq.,

General Secretary U. S. S. C.:

DEAR SIR: I propose to make a brief statement of what the Sanitary Commission has done for the sick soldiers in this same hospital at Newbern, during the limited period from January 1 to May 1, leaving the manner of the disbursement to more disinterested evidence.

During the period referred to, we have issued to one hundred and forty-six requisitions of the Chief Surgeon and his assistants, to say nothing of individual relief to convalescents from this hospital calling at the rooms of the Commission. These requisitions embrace—

|                           |       |                          |       |
|---------------------------|-------|--------------------------|-------|
| Arm Slings.....           | 12    | Canned Mutton, lbs.....  | 240   |
| Bandages, lbs.....        | 4     | Condensed Milk, lbs..... | 2,000 |
| Beef Stock, lbs.....      | 300   | Mittens, pr.....         | 1     |
| Bitters, bot.....         | 1     | Needle Books.....        | 6     |
| Blackberry, cond'd, lbs.  | 17    | Onions, lbs.....         | 30    |
| Blackberry Corl, bots.    | 7     | Overcoats, Infantry..... | 35    |
| Blankets.....             | 46    | Pads.....                | 98    |
| Brandy, qts.....          | 5     | Pants, prs.....          | 128   |
| Currants, boxes.....      | 2     | Paper, not, ream.....    | 312   |
| Cushions.....             | 312   | Penholders, doz.....     | 10    |
| Chloride Lime, lbs.....   | 6     | Pens, gross.....         | 112   |
| Drawers, woolen, prs..... | 781   | Pickles, lbs.....        | 3     |
| Drawers, cotton, prs..... | 37    | Potatoes, lbs.....       | 328   |
| Dominoes, boxes.....      | 4     | Prunes, pkgs.....        | 2     |
| Eye Shades.....           | 3     | Pillow Cases.....        | 144   |
| Gelatine, lbs.....        | 16    | Pears, lbs.....          | 60    |
| App. Butter, keg.....     | 3     | Rags, lbs.....           | 212   |
| Bed Pans.....             | 20    | Shirts, cotton.....      | 146   |
| Bioness.....              | 90    | Shirts, woolen.....      | 1,332 |
| Cabbage, lbs.....         | 2     | Shoes, prs.....          | 39    |
| Chocolate & Cocoa, lbs.   | 144   | Slippers.....            | 159   |
| Corn Starch, lbs.....     | 237   | Socks.....               | 600   |
| Crackers, lbs.....        | 33    | Sponges.....             | 6     |
| Crotches, pr.....         | 62    | Sugar, white, lbs.....   | 80    |
| Comfort Bags.....         | 51    | Surgical Shirts, cotton. | 10    |
| Dried Apples, lbl.....    | 1     | Surgical Shirts, woolen. | 7     |
| Dried Fruit, pkgs.....    | 9     | Tea, lbs.....            | 10    |
| Envelopes.....            | 1,600 | Tenements.....           | 12    |
| Farin, lbs.....           | 23    | Tin Cups.....            | 59    |
| Ginger Extract, bot.....  | 1     | Tobacco, lbs.....        | 28    |
| Handkerchiefs.....        | 163   | Tomatoes, canned, lbs.   | 4,325 |
| Hats.....                 | 34    | Towels.....              | 3     |
| Isinglass, lbs.....       | 212   | Mutton, canned, lbs..... | 240   |
| Jellies, jars.....        | 21    | Whiskey, pts.....        | 22    |
| Krout, lbs.....           | 9     | Wine, bots.....          | 25    |
| Lemons, boxes.....        | 2     | Wrappers.....            | 5     |
| Lanterns.....             | 1     | Vaccine Crust.....       | 1     |

The General Hospital, which is under the able management of Dr. Clayton Cowgill, Surg. U. S. V., has of its own a well-regulated, extra-diet kitchen, supplied by a hospital fund, administered with liberality and judgment. The capacity of the hospital has ranged from 800 to 3,000 beds; and the fund has been abundant for supplying to the extra-diet kitchen everything attainable in this market, and for sending an occasional special agent to New York for such articles and quantities as were not attainable in this limited market. This hospital, through its whole history, from the capture of Newbern to the surrender of the Rebel armies, has grown up under the daily observation of the agents of the Commission at this post, and is regarded by me to be as perfect in its machinery and administration, and as justly and humanely administered, as the best regulated institution in the country; and this opinion is sustained by the testimony of every Government official whose duty has led them to inspect it.

I mention this not with the intention of drawing your attention from any malfeasance with which our agents are charged in the Tribune, but to give the proper credit to the management of the hospital, and account for the confidential relations between it and the Commission here. I have found no occasion to send an agent through the hospital to disburse special comforts, as every bedside, at all hours of my visits, showed all the appendages and comforts required in a well attended sick room and by every phase of disease. Yet, during the Carolina campaign of Schofield's and Sherman's armies, the additional strain upon our hospital attention was met by the valuable and voluntary services of one as refined and gentle as the most tender sensibilities could render her, and whose angelic ministrations were operating at the very time when this Tribune item was penned. When the rush of Sherman's sick and wounded poured in upon our overworked hospital and Sanitary corps, the matrons and female teachers employed in Newbern came to the rescue, with offers of help in their appropriate sphere. They formed Teachers' Associations of Relief, drew crude supplies generously from our Sanitary stores, and with gentle hand disbursed them, in the most tempting forms attainable by the culinary art, through all the wards of the hospital, under the professional supervision of the respective surgeons. This supervision was easily maintained, as the daily card of the surgeon for each patient indicated the general and extra diet most suitable for his case.

I record a list of some of the articles drawn by these ladies from the stores of the Sanitary Commission during six weeks of this period:

|                                                 |     |                                      |     |
|-------------------------------------------------|-----|--------------------------------------|-----|
| Milk, cans.....                                 | 215 | Wine, bottles.....                   | 68  |
| Corn starch and maize-na, lbs.....          | 127 | Brandy, bottles.....                 | 20  |
| Gelatin and Isinglass,pkgs.....             | 60  | Cordials and Syrups,bottles..... | 2   |
| Arrow-root, lbs.....                            | 15  | Farina, lbs.....                     | 44  |
| Sugar, lbs.....                                 | 206 | Crackers, barrels.....               | 1   |
| Tomatoes, lbs.....                              | 459 | Tea, lbs.....                        | 9   |
| Dried fruit, barrels.....                       | 2   | Cocoa and Chocolate,                 |     |
| Coffee, lbs.....                                | 65  | lbs.....                             | 41  |
| Bay rum, bottle.....                            | 1   | Peas, canned, lbs.....               | 61  |
| Preserves and Jellies, 8gals. and jars..... | 38  | Ginger, extra, box.....              | 1   |
| Lemons, boxes.....                              | 2   | Pears, canned, lbs.....              | 161 |
|                                                 |     | Peaches " ".....                     |     |
|                                                 |     | Quinces " ".....                     |     |

These ministrations were made "without money and without price," and I deem it impossible that any such malfeasance as indicated in the Tribune's item could be carried on in this hospital.

Soldiers, in thousands of instances, eat drink, and wear, the choicest stores of the Sanitary Commission, without dreaming of the source from which they derive these comforts and luxuries, and in the very act of enjoyment, would be ready to aver unconsciously that they "never received anything from the Sanitary Commission." They do not always know what it is that softens the asperities of the service in this war, nor whence comes the relief that makes the soldier's life in our armies so much more tolerable than in any of the armies heretofore recorded in history.

It would be difficult to conceive in what way the "five dollars" were needed "to assist her husband to resume his place in line," &c., unless it was for clothes, and for these the hospital had two sources to draw from, viz: the Government stores and the Sanitary Commission. The surgeons in charge had a carte blanche on the Commission here for supplies to meet pressing wants, and the list shows that they made liberal use of it for their patients, as in the limited period alluded to, they drew over 800 pairs drawers, 90 blouses, 163 handkerchiefs, 35 overcoats, 138 pairs pants, 1,477 shirts, 39 pairs shoes, 159 pairs slippers, and 600 pairs socks.

I have prolonged this notice of the Tribune's item to show that a soldier in the General Hospital in Newbern need not suffer for comfort, nor buy Sanitary stores, nor seek from distant friends the relief necessary to enable him to place himself in line. No agent of the Sanitary Commission has, at any time, sold any article to any person in this department. Very respectfully, your ob't serv't,

J. W. PAGE, M. D.,
Inspector U. S. San. Com.

DOWN THE MISSISSIPPI.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,
Sec'y West'n Dep't U. S. S. n. Com.,
Louisville, Ky.:

DEAR SIR: According to your instructions, on the 13th of April I took charge of the steamer J. T. McCombs, at Louisville, chartered by the Sanitary Commission, and loaded with stores, principally for the paroled prisoners at Vicksburg, or, in case they were not wanted there, to be taken to New Orleans.

We left Louisville that night, and after stopping at several towns along the river to leave passengers, reached Paducah, Ky., before daylight on the 15th. I left a few packages for the agency of the Sanitary Commission there, and then went directly on to Cairo, where we arrived in a few hours. There were about two car-loads of our stores, some stores of the Indiana State Agent, and a number of articles for the Freedmen's Institute, which I took on here. The news of the death of President Lincoln reached us here, and it so occupied the minds of all that it was almost impossible to accomplish anything. We left at 7 p. m., reported that night at Columbus, and reached Memphis the next afternoon. I left here some tobacco, codfish, condensed milk, and concentrated beef. A large supply of stores had been received a few days before, so they needed but a few things from our cargo. We were detained here four hours. We coaled a short distance below Memphis, and then kept on to Vicksburg.

Monday afternoon we tied up at a military station, as the weather indicated a storm, but at 1 a. m., on Tuesday, we started again, and had not proceeded far when a sudden squall struck us, so that although the engine was reversed, we were driven with great force upon the bank, and then recoiling, were blown into the timber just below where we first struck. Here the boat was made fast. The extent of the damage was a leak, which, however, was not bad enough to prevent our continuing on our way in a few hours.

We arrived at Vicksburg at 10 a. m., on the 18th. I immediately found Mr. Tone, the agent for the relief of the paroled prisoners, and learned from him that there was need for but a few stores from our cargo. I therefore transferred to him ten boxes tobacco, one box pipes, one box pincushions and housewives, one box suspenders, one box buttons, thread, &c., one box stationery, one box miscellany, nine barrels dried fruit, two barrels green apples, three kegs butter, and reading matter, also the packages for the Indiana State Agent and the Christian Commission. That evening I started with the remaining cargo for New Orleans. The next morning we reached Natchez, and were detained a couple of hours in putting off the articles for the Freedmen's Institute.

In the evening, a few miles below Morganza, we went to the bank to wood. While there six guerrillas came up, and upon talking to them, they said there was a force of sixty more a short distance up the river, but they would send up a man to tell them not to come down. Nevertheless, we got up steam as quickly as possible, and sent one of the hands to let go our line, but the guerrillas threatened to shoot him if he touched it, so we let it go from the boat and backed off. Our man was not quick enough in getting on the boat, and was left. They fired at us once, but did not hit us. We afterwards learned from the man, whom they suffered to follow us on another steamer, that they were waiting for a larger force to come down to capture us.

We stopped at Port Hudson and Baton Rouge that night to report, and reached New Orleans on the afternoon of the 20th. Dr. Blake was very glad to receive the stores, as there was great need of them at Mobile. I delivered to him 1,375 barrels, 316 boxes, 20 bales, 8 kegs of stores. The stores were in very good condition on our arrival. Friday and Monday we discharged our cargo. On Saturday all business was stopped throughout the city. Tuesday morning we coaled, and then started on our return. I was unable to get any private freight to bring up, and had none of our own until we reached Vicksburg, where I took on a number of articles that were of no further use there, since all but a very few prisoners had left. I should have taken some prisoners on our boat, but there were ample hospital accommodations in Vicksburg, and a hospital boat was expected soon, which could make them (there being only about 150) much more comfortable than we could.

Nothing of any importance happened on the journey up the river. The news of the terrible disaster to the Sultana, which left Vicksburg three days before us was communicated to us by a gunboat near White river. We stopped at places only long enough to report or coal, and reached Louisville on the 4th of May, three weeks from the day we started.

The steamer, though a small one, was quite fast, and under the charge of excellent officers.

Very respectfully yours,
RUSSELL HODGE.

THE CLOSE.

In the narrowing of the supply work of the Commission, and the consequent centralization of its records and laborers, the Bulletin office has been removed to Washington. This number makes its first visit to the Branches and Aid Societies from the Central Office. It will visit them once more—next month; and then, like the Aid Societies, of which it is the organ, will rest till Providence may indicate the necessity for further expression.

Words perish; but the ideas which lie behind and beneath them are immortal. Forms die; but the principles of which they are the visible expression—never.

The great idea of the Sanitary Commission is a living idea; it lives in the heart of the American people, and can never be obliterated. We may write its history and record the names and deeds of its workers—it may be preserved through generations and admired by all people; but the ideas, principles, and thoughts which it has infused throughout the entire system of our political and social life have made an impression upon human character and given shape to benevolent effort that can never lose its impression upon human society.

This seems to be saying a great deal, but it is saying no more than may be said of all truth and goodness.

The Aid Societies that exist through the country, though they may for a while cease their activity, can never cease to exist, in an ideal form, in the minds and hearts of the women who constitute them.

They have been the spongioles of the larger roots of our tree, which have gently and imperceptibly moved among the hidden springs of the heart of America, and drawn in the current of sympathy and love that has developed a fruitage such as the world has never seen before.

There must be no severance of any part of this great life machinery. If it should for a time cease to be active, it should be like the tree in winter, without leaves or visible life, but ready for the outcoming sun and falling rain of another season to revive and beautify it. If the season never comes, it may stand a bold and noble tree still, being its own record of past usefulness.

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF.

CLOSE OF THE SUPPLY DEPARTMENT OF THE COMMISSION—No. XI.

To the Members of the Soldiers' Aid Societies, contributing through the Woman's Central Association of Relief:

DEAR FRIENDS: We promised you that the U. S. Sanitary Commission would let you know, at the earliest possible moment, when your work might conscientiously be brought to a close. The accompanying Circular (San. Com. Doc. No. 90) fixes the 4th of July next as that date.

The war is over! No more battle-fields, no more starving prisoners, no more wounded men, no more terrible lists of the missing and dead. The suffering and woe we have all tried to mitigate are at last passing away!

We will continue to furnish you with material as heretofore, only requesting you to take what you are sure you can return by July 4th. If your treasury contains money enough to buy all you can make up in that time, we will send you its full value in material, but without doubling the amount as usual. Thus all the funds in hand, collected for the use of the soldiers through our agency, may be immediately turned over to the Commission.

Although our work of furnishing supplies for our sick and wounded soldiers at a distance is nearly at an end, there still remains to us the duty and the privilege of cherishing the maimed and disabled veterans who are returning to us. Every town and district will claim the opportunity of supporting and helping such of its own soldiers as may need this care. We beg you will keep alive your Soldiers' Aid organizations for this sacred duty.

Our usual Annual Report will be omitted, or rather deferred, until we can give you our final statement and farewell.

For a few weeks longer, then, we shall work together, as we have for the past four years. Should some new demand arise in the future, we shall rejoice to renew our connection with you.

I am, most affectionately yours, on behalf of the Association,

ELLEN COLLINS,

Ch'n Committee on Supplies.

NEW YORK, 11 COOPER UNION,
May 23, 1865.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

CENTRAL OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10, 1865.

In our circular of the 15th ultimo, addressed to the Branches and Aid Societies tributary to the U. S. Sanitary Commission, concerning future opportunities and methods of work, and more especially the procurement of employment for discharged soldiers, as far as may be necessary in consequence of physical disability, or as a means of aiding their return to former relations and occupations in civil life, it was proposed to furnish certain carefully prepared forms.

These forms are herewith transmitted.

Their use, while diminishing the labor, will also facilitate an intelligent and systematic prosecution of the work, and will enable the Central Office of the Commission eventually to tabulate the results gathered from all Aid Societies throughout the country.

Forms A, B, C, D, and E, relate exclusively to the procurement of employment, and sufficiently indicate the method and all necessary detail pertaining to the work.

It is important that the large and varied measure of good which may be secured to the soldier and to the community, by a thorough and generous application of the methods here presented, be kept clearly in view.

The Bureau of Information and Employment is designed to accomplish the following specific objects:

1. To aid those who have served honorably in the Army and Navy of the United States in obtaining employment, and to facilitate their return to former occupations and relations in civil life.

2. To prevent, as far as possible, the necessity for costly charitable institutions, by thus encouraging industry, and aiding the disabled soldier, who might otherwise seek an asylum, to strive for self-support.

3. To lessen the pauperism and crime, necessarily more or less a consequence of war, which surely attend on large numbers of unoccupied men left to themselves without employment or means of subsistence.

4. To save to the country a large amount of productive labor, at a time when it can least afford to maintain idle hands.

Form F embraces questions to be answered, not by the soldiers themselves, but by intelligent observers, upon certain general conditions incident to the war, and to the return of the soldiers to their homes.

This form may seem to some unnecessarily full, and demanding information not immediately tending to practical results. The purpose which has determined the selection of the questions embraced may, therefore, be distinctly stated. It is, First, to collect such information concerning our discharged soldiers as will enable us most judiciously and effectively to be prepared to render to those really needing it any form of aid or relief which may be demanded of the people, in behalf of the men, or the children of those men, who have fought our battles; Second, to seize upon the occasion which is now presented for gathering material which shall illustrate the manner in which, under republican institutions, these men, long aliens from home pursuits, are at once quietly reinstated in their former industrial relations, and become again vital parts of the living whole. The value of the facts which may be thus obtained, in answer to the questions of Form F, can scarcely be over-estimated in its bearing upon many important questions, which already begin to engage the attention of statesmen and philanthropists, and which, in their answers, are to have a direct influence, in most practical ways, upon the future of the race. Unless the people themselves, through these agencies of the people, answer these questions, this record will never be made with the completeness which the present opportunity alone affords.

The attention of our Aid Societies is again directed to the valuable service which they may render to the families of discharged soldiers, by securing to them, through some systematic method, a knowledge of the existence, and work of the "Army and Navy Claim Agency" of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, which performs without charge the work which would otherwise fall into the hands of claim agents, thereby subjecting the soldier to a heavy tax, and often gross imposition and fraud.

It is suggested that in places where there may be no established Claim Agency of the Commission, the Aid Societies may render valuable service by applying to this Office for necessary blanks and instructions, that will enable them, in many instances, to transact all necessary details in the adjustment of claims.

In addition to the issue of cards and circulars, (according to accompanying forms,) to make known in your respective communities the work you are prepared to do, it is recommended, as an aid in your undertaking, that a liberal use be made of your local press for advertising your office and its facilities for giving help to the discharged soldiers and their families.

The necessary books and forms will be furnished by the Commission, upon application to the Branches or the Central Office; and will be finally returned to the Central Office of the Commission, for purposes of tabulation.

It is earnestly hoped that the work marked out in this supplement will be entered upon promptly. It is the demand of the present hour, as related to the welfare of our returning soldiers.

JNO. S. BLATCHFORD,
General Secretary.

Form A—U. S. Sanitary Commission.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

APPLICANT'S REGISTER.

|                                                     |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
|-----------------------------------------------------|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|
| 1. Number of Application.....                       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 2. Date .....                                       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 3. Name .....                                       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 4. Age .....                                        |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 5. Nationality .....                                |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 6. Residence .....                                  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 7. Regiment.....                                    |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 8. Term of Military Service.....                    |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 9. Nature and Degree of Disability.....             |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 10. Occupation previous to Enlistment...            |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 11. Occupation desired.....                         |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 12. Qualifications .....                            |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 13. Habits—Temperate or otherwise.....              |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 14. Means of Support.....                           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 15. Married .....                                   |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 16. Persons dependent on Applicant for Support..... |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 17. References.....                                 |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 18. Opinion of Referee.....                         |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 19. Kind of Employment secured.....                 |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 20. Remarks.....                                    |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |

Form B—U. S. Sanitary Commission.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

EMPLOYER'S REGISTER.

|                                         |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
|-----------------------------------------|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|
| 1. Number.....                          |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 2. Date .....                           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 3. Name .....                           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 4. Address.....                         |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 5. Service required.....                |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 6. Hours of service required daily..... |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 7. Skill or strength demanded.....      |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 8. Proposed Term of Engagement.....     |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 9. Compensation .....                   |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 10. Remarks.....                        |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |

Form C—U. S. Sanitary Commission.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

Central Office, 244 F street, Washington, D. C.

MONTHLY RETURN.

(Insert name of Aid Society.)

186

Month of.....186 .
 Number of applications for employment:
 By Able-bodied men.....
 By Disabled men.....
 Total.....
 Number of applications by Employers.....
 Number furnished with Employment:
 Able-bodied Men.....
 Disabled Men.....
 Total.....
 Number who having been once furnished with employment have applied a second time.....

KIND OF EMPLOYMENT FURNISHED.

No.

Agricultural, . . . . .
 Mechanical, . . . . .
 Commercial, . . . . .
 Teaching, professional or fine arts, . . . . .
 Laborers, . . . . .
 Others, not included in above, . . . . .

REMARKS.

Form D—U. S. Sanitary Commission.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

(Insert name of Aid Society.)

186

To .....

With the design of obtaining employment through this Bureau..... refers to you as to his character and qualifications.
 You will oblige us by filling out and returning the annexed blanks with your signature. Your reply will be shown only to his employer.

Respectfully yours,

Is he temperate?.....
 Is he industrious?.....
 Do you deem him honest?.....
 How long have you known him?.....
 State facts which may be of service to him, or of which his employer should be informed.....
 No.....(Insert No. of application.)

Form E—U. S. Sanitary Commission.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

(Insert name of Aid Society.)

186

To .....

You are requested to call at our office respecting your application at.....o'clock..... on.....inst., and to bring this notice with you.

No.....(Insert No. of Application.)

Form F—U. S. Sanitary Commission.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

CENTRAL OFFICE 244 F ST., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Returns from.....186

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |  |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--|
| I. Population, according to census of 1860, included in the area embraced within the limits covered by this report.....                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |
| II. Number of men who have enlisted from.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |  |
| III. Number who are still in the service.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |  |
| IV. Number who have died in the service.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |  |
| V. Of those who have returned home, what proportion are able-bodied.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |  |
| VI. Of those disabled, what proportion are seriously disabled ?                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |  |
| VII. What proportion are slightly disabled.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |  |
| VIII. What proportion have come distinctly upon the charity of others for support.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |
| IX. What agencies exist in your community for the relief of discharged soldiers or their families.....                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |
| X. What has been the kind and amount of aid which these agencies have rendered.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |
| XI. In your community how far is preference given by employers of labor to discharged soldiers.....                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |
| XII. Number of widows of soldiers.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |
| XIII. Number of these widows who are poor and partially dependent.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |
| XIV. Number of children of deceased soldiers.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |
| XV. What available provision has been made by the State or by other agencies by which these children, if poor, can be cared for and educated.....                                                                                                                                                         |  |
| XVI. To what extent is aid of this kind, if any exists, sought and used for the advantage of these children.....                                                                                                                                                                                          |  |
| XVII. What, upon the whole, has been the effect of this long term of military service upon the moral tone of the soldiers themselves.....                                                                                                                                                                 |  |
| XVIII. What has been the effect upon the industrial habits of these men.....                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |  |
| XIX. Is there any marked effect upon the homes and upon the children of these soldiers, produced by this long absence of the father of the family? If there is, how, in general terms, does it show itself.....                                                                                           |  |
| XX. Taking your community as a whole, what do you observe is the influence of the war, including, on the one side, the effect of these calls for generous sacrifices, the discipline of hopes and fears and sorrows, and, on the other hand, the demoralizing influences brought back from army life..... |  |

(Form of Circular to be printed and used by Aid Societies in their respective localities, the proper designation of each being inserted.)

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

(Insert name of Society.)

This Bureau is established with the following objects:

1. To aid those who have served in the Army and Navy of the United States in obtaining employment.

2. To prevent, as far as possible, the necessity for costly charitable institutions, by thus encouraging industry, and aiding the disabled soldier, who might otherwise seek an asylum, to strive for self-support.

3. To lessen the pauperism and crime necessarily more or less a consequence of war, and which solely attend on large numbers of unoccupied men left to themselves without employment or means of subsistence.

4. To save to the country a large amount of productive labor, at a time when it can least afford to maintain idle hands.

The services of the Bureau are given gratuitously.

Information and suggestions are solicited relative to employments adapted to maimed and disabled men. Employers are earnestly requested to make application to this Bureau for every class of labor; and are reminded that our Army and Navy have contained many of the best and most trustworthy young men of the nation—skilled in every occupation.

It is demanded by both patriotism and humanity, that the light occupations of all towns, and whatever work can be as well done by invalid soldiers as by others, be given to the men who may have incapacitated themselves for rivalry in more active and laborious fields of duty, by giving their limbs, their health, and their blood to the nation.

[Append names of Officers of Aid Society.]

JNO. S. BLATCHFORD,
General Secretary.

THE RECORD OF THE COMMISSION.

The years of thought and labor that have been given to the Commission are in the past. Their record is unseen of the people as yet, and hence it is not appreciated.

In all the societies that have been tributary to it, there is a history of toil, of prayer, and patriotism that should be developed as an example to the world, as well as a just tribute to those who have participated in the work.

Every agent upon the field, every visitor and inspector of camp and hospital, has a record of his work, if not in tangible form, in his memory and heart. And it should be brought to light, that the whole may be condensed, and a history which shall exceed the history of any other benevolent organization the world has ever known, be made the crowning glory of our age.

The churches have not done for missions, humanitarians for their peculiar plans of benevolence, politicians for their ministries of public charity, what has been done for the army of the Union by the Union-loving people of the country during the continuance of the war.

The reason why so much has been accomplished is found in the universality of the claim for aid, without reference to names or divisions. All classes of people went to war, as representatives of all classes at home, and the generous sacrifice of the soldier was only equalled by the response of the people at home to strengthen and supplement the resources of the Government, that it should not fail in its care of the soldier.

Let all these fragmentary histories be collected. Let every incident of striking value be taken from the private diary of every one who has labored for the Commission, and forwarded to the Historical Bureau.

In the armies of the East and West alike, noble women have ventured into camp and field, and done noble service. Let these make their record.

Volunteers who have not been sent out by the Commission, but who have labored with it, and drawn from its supplies, have a record. Let the facts of their experience be presented and make a part of the history of the times.

State agents have gone under appointment of governors and legislation, quartered with the Commission, and been a part of its practical machinery. These have a peculiar record that should be incorporated in history with that of the whole people.

Railroad, transportation, and telegraph companies have opened their cars, boats, and offices, and said to the people, "Use us and our appliances in the cause;" and the generosity and promptness with which they have acted is not only a matter of public interest, but one which is needful to make complete the testimony that will be seen of men in this behalf.

The work of children, in schools, alert clubs, and little social fairs, has been wonderful; and when these children shall grow to manhood they will be glad to find the truth written for them and theirs.

Let aid societies, churches, children, agents, visitors, observers, corporations, and individuals, who have aided the Sanitary Commission in any way, and who should be incorporated in its history, furnish their own record of facts and labors, and all such documents shall be filed and properly noticed.

Address, Historical Bureau, U. S. Sanitary Commission 244 F St., Washington, D. C.

REBEL BARBARITY.

STATE OF VIRGINIA, }
County of Fairfax, } ss.

Charles A. Watson, 1st sergeant Company "E;" Freeman D. Nason, sergeant, Company "G;" James Cusack, private, Company "A;" Benjamin Herrald, private,

Company "A;" Henry W. Howard, private, Company "D;" Henry Slate, private, Company "D;" George Taylor, private, Company "D;" George Hurley, private, Company "D;" all of the 17th Regiment of Vermont State Volunteer Infantry, being severally duly sworn, each for himself deposes and says: That deponents were captured by the rebel forces on the 30th day of September, 1864, at Shady Grove Church, near the Weldon railroad, in the State of Virginia; that they were taken to prison first at Petersburg, next at Richmond, and finally at Salisbury, N. C., at which place they all, except deponent, Slate, remained imprisoned from October 5, 1864, until February the 24th, 1865; that upon deponents' arrival there were about 10,000 Union men in said prison at Salisbury; that immediately after their capture, and at Petersburg, Va., their blankets and all their valuables were taken from the persons of deponents by the rebels; that during their stay at Salisbury prison, of four months and over, no clothing whatever was issued by the rebel authorities, and until about the time of deponents' release, in February, 1865, no blankets were furnished to the prisoners at that place; that hardly any of said prisoners had blankets of their own; that during a large portion of the time of their imprisonment, viz., the months of December, 1864, and January and February, 1865, the weather was very cold, with heavy frosts and severe rains, and that said prisoners, during such period of time, had no shelter of any kind whatever from the inclemency of the weather, except as follows: about one-third of the prisoners dug holes or caves in the ground, into which they crept for protection. That the rations of food issued to the prisoners at Salisbury were as follows: daily to each man, either one-half pound of corn or sorghum bread, or one pint of corn meal ground with the cob, and one half pint of very thin soup, without any seasoning. About twice in each month beefs' heads and livers and tripe, raw and bloody, were served out in quantities sufficient to give each prisoner a piece about the size of a man's two fingers. Besides this no meat of any kind was ever served to the prisoners. Sometimes, but never in connection with the issue of meat as above, sorghum was given in the amount of two or three spoonfuls to a man. This issue was made, perhaps, once in each week. No salt was ever furnished the Union prisoners, and no food was ever issued of any other kind or in any other quantities than as stated, during deponents' stay in said prison. On an average, at least one day in each week no ration or food whatever was given to the prisoners; and on thanksgiving and Christmas days of 1864, no food was given to said prisoners, and the reason assigned that these were feast days for their friends at home and should be made fast days to them. During the first two or three months of their confinement as above, deponents say that water was only given to them from reservoirs or cisterns in the prison yard, containing the drainings of the yard. A very great number of the prisoners were so feeble and sick as to be unable to reach the sinks to relieve the wants of nature, and the filth and excrement deposited by these men were washed by the rain, and that water drained into these wells and cisterns. After the first month the number of wells was increased, but the character of the water was unchanged. Water was not furnished in sufficient quantities for both washing and drinking, and consequently the great majority of the men were unable to wash at all, either their persons or clothing. Many became so blackened by dirt and smoke as not to be distinguishable from negroes except by the color or character of their hair.

That there were eight hospitals in the yard, containing in all about 550 patients, and always full, and that there were always more sick, and actually more men died in the open yard than in the hospitals. The sick were laid in these hospitals on the bare board floor, and in one hospital on the earthen floor, without bed, bedding, or covering of any kind whatsoever. To each sick man was issued daily rations of wheat bread  $\frac{3}{4}$  of a pound, a little rice soup once each day, and a little meat about the size of a man's two fingers once a week. Deponent, Henry W. Howard, further says that he was employed in said hospitals as a nurse to the sick, and has known instances of sick prisoners being two whole days without food of any kind. Said Howard and deponent Watson further say, that they kept records of deaths in the prison during said four months of their stay, and from these records, and from information derived from the records of surgeons in said hospital, they state that of the 10,000 prisoners confined in said prison in October, 1864, over 5,100 died mainly from want, hunger, and exposure, between October, 5, 1864, and February 24, 1865.

Prisoners dying were commonly stripped of their clothing, if it was of any value whatever, thrown naked, and in a miscellaneous pile, into a wagon, carted out of the yard, and thrown, in layers three or four deep, into trenches five or six feet in depth, dug for the purpose of burial. Deponents further say, that they have and each of them has seen these wagons, full of the dead bodies of Union prisoners, when hindered by a rut or hole in the road, relieved by throwing out the bodies of our men like sticks of cord-wood.

Deponents further say, that about the middle of November, 1864, the rebel authorities began efforts to induce the prisoners to enlist in the rebel army. The process was this: For two or three days no food was issued except a pint of thin soup, without bread or other accompaniment. On the third day a large box of cooked meat and a box of white bread was placed at the gate, within full sight of the prisoners, and the offer was made by either General York, Brigadier General, C. S. A., or by Major Gee, in immediate command of the prison, or by some other authorized officer, that to each prisoner who would enlist in the rebel army one pound of the meat and one loaf of the bread would be given. Many men enlisted under this temptation, but deponents refused; and on such refusal deponent Watson on one occasion heard said Brig. Gen. York state with an oath that it was their intention to starve said prisoners until they did enlist; and on another occasion, deponent Taylor heard said Major Gee make the same statement. This process was put in force eight or ten times during the period of these deponents' imprisonment, and about 1,500 Union soldiers were driven by their sufferings so to enlist. That on one occasion, for two whole days no food or rations of any kind whatever were issued to the Union prisoners, and on the third day, which was, as deponents recollect, the 26th day of December, 1864, the boxes of meat and bread were again brought out, and the offer as above made. That under this great pressure, on that day five hundred or six hundred of the said Union prisoners did so enlist in the rebel army, and deponent, Henry Slate, says that, driven by famine and suffering, he did so enlist among them, and received the bounty of two loaves of bread and one pound of bacon. Said Slate further says, that he never bore arms in the rebel ranks, but was employed in digging in the trenches, and about April 10, 1865, escaped to the Union lines.

CHAS. A. WATSON, 1st Sergt. Co. E, 17th Vt.
FREEMAN D. NASON, Sergt. Co. G, 17th Vt.
JAMES CUSACK, Co. A, 17th Vt.

his
BENJAMIN X HERRALD, Co. A, 17th Vt.

mark.
Witness—GEO. J. SICARD.

his
GEORGE X TAYLOR, Co. D, 17th Vt.

mark.
Witness—GEO. J. SICARD.

GEORGE J. HURLEY, Co. D, 17th Vt.
HENRY W. HOWARD, Co. D, 17th Vt.
HENRY SLATE, Co. D, 17th Vt.

Subscribed and sworn before me this 24th day of June, A. D. 1865, at Headquarters, 17th Vermont Vols., near Alexandria, Va.

JAMES S. PECK,
Adj't 17th Vt. Vols.

SPECIAL RELIEF WORK ON THE RAILROAD CARS.

During the past month the Sanitary Commission has been rendering a most valuable service through the agency of its Corps of Hospital Couriers, who go out upon the evening express trains from Washington to minister to the needs of the disabled soldiers who may be upon the several trains. In the process of rapidly discharging the inmates of the general hospitals there are many men quite feeble and helpless who start upon the railroad cars; there have been during the four weeks past from ten to forty such men in each express train. The Hospital Couriers of the Commission are at the railroad station before the cars leave to help these feeble men in obtaining tickets, (if not provided beforehand,) and in securing comfortable seats; and during the journey to New York, Harrisburg, Wheeling, or wherever it may be, these sick soldiers have this friend near them, marked by his badge, whom they can call upon for any help they need. At the end of each of the routes assigned to these Hospital Couriers respectively, the soldiers are transferred to such Relief Station or railroad train as is fit; and where the case calls for it, another Courier goes from this given point with any soldier who is too feeble to be left simply to the care of his companions. The Hospital Couriers who leave Washington daily start from "The Home" of the Sanitary Com-

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT--CONSOLIDATED REPORT OF EIGHTEEN

| PLACES.                                  | Alabama. | Arkansas. | California. | Connecticut. | Delaware. | District of Columbia. | Georgia. | Illinois. | Indiana. | Iowa. | Kansas. | Kentucky. | Louisiana. | Maine. | Maryland. | Massachusetts. | Michigan. | Minnesota. | Mississippi. | Missouri. | New Hampshire. | New Jersey. | New York. | North Carolina. | Ohio. |    |
|------------------------------------------|----------|-----------|-------------|--------------|-----------|-----------------------|----------|-----------|----------|-------|---------|-----------|------------|--------|-----------|----------------|-----------|------------|--------------|-----------|----------------|-------------|-----------|-----------------|-------|----|
| Alexandria, Va.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Rest,"                        |          |           |             |              |           | 3                     |          | 5         |          |       |         | 1         |            | 14     | 2         | 14             | 12        |            |              |           | 5              | 2           | 27        |                 | 27    |    |
| J. B. Holt, Supt.                        |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Annapolis.                        |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "The Home,"                              |          |           |             | 1            |           |                       |          | 1         | 2        |       |         |           |            |        |           | 4              | 4         | 1          |              |           |                |             | 25        | 1               | 2     |    |
| C. F. Howes, Supt.                       |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Baltimore.                        |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "The Home,"                              |          |           |             | 9            |           |                       |          | 6         | 14       | 3     |         | 2         |            | 7      | 2         | 10             | 2         | 1          |              |           | 2              | 5           | 3         | 50              |       | 16 |
| A. E. Hastings, Supt.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Boston.                           |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        | 1        | 14        | 2           | 7            |           |                       |          | 2         |          | 1     |         | 1         | 457        | 1      | 736       |                | 7         | 1          |              |           | 51             | 2           | 19        |                 | 6     |    |
| Chas. B. Mudge, Supt.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Buffalo, N. Y.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Rest,"                        |          |           |             | 2            |           |                       |          | 9         | 5        |       |         |           |            | 1      |           |                | 4         |            |              |           |                |             | 77        |                 | 8     |    |
| Mrs. H. Indevine, Mat.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Cairo, Ill.                       |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        | 3        | 4         |             |              |           |                       |          | 391       | 59       | 174   | 14      | 27        |            | 10     | 1         | 1              | 10        | 42         |              | 63        |                | 17          | 50        |                 | 35    |    |
| C. N. Shipman, Supt.                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Camp Nelson, Ky.                  |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          | 60        | 18       |       |         | 638       |            |        |           |                | 180       |            |              |           |                |             | 11        | 6               | 123   |    |
| Thos. Butler, Supt.                      |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Cleveland, Ohio.                  |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        | 14       |           | 4           |              | 3         |                       |          | 181       | 242      | 58    |         | 105       |            |        |           | 3              | 350       |            |              | 9         |                |             | 49        | 16              | 1,350 |    |
| T. E. Botsford, Supt.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Detroit, Mich.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          | 1         |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                | 671       |            |              |           |                |             | 13        |                 | 6     |    |
| Luther Sawtelle, Supt.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Jeffersonville, Ind.              |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        | 1        |           | 16          |              |           |                       |          | 87        | 128      | 57    |         | 33        |            |        |           | 2              | 53        | 28         |              | 1         |                |             | 14        | 1               | 217   |    |
| Egbert T. Smith, Supt.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Nashville, Tenn.                  |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        |          | 1         |             |              |           |                       |          | 605       | 763      | 90    | 23      | 115       |            |        | 2         | 3              | 397       | 48         | 1            | 157       |                | 4           | 90        | 6               | 897   |    |
| Jos. Gilson, Supt.                       |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| New Orleans, La.                  |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          | 91        | 48       | 44    | 9       | 19        | 61         | 5      | 14        | 10             | 7         | 31         | 28           |           |                | 6           | 31        |                 | 29    |    |
| N. S. Bullard, Supt.                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Paducah, Ky.                      |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          | 251       | 65       | 82    |         | 34        |            |        |           |                | 42        |            |              | 45        |                |             |           |                 | 78    |    |
| E. D. Way, Supt.                         |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Portsmouth, Va.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                        |          |           | 3           |              |           |                       |          | 4         |          |       |         |           |            | 3      | 5         | 29             | 5         |            |              |           | 2              | 3           | 153       |                 | 12    |    |
| Jno. L. Alcocke, Supt.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Washington, D. C.                 |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Lodge No. 6                              |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| H. Y. McPherran, Supt.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "The Home,"                              |          |           | 30          | 4            |           |                       |          | 9         | 16       | 1     |         | 9         |            | 59     | 11        | 62             | 42        | 12         |              |           | 5              | 21          | 21        | 245             | 44    |    |
| J. B. Clark, Supt.                       |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| "Home for soldiers' wives and relatives" |          |           |             | 1            | 1         |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            | 3      | 6         | 16             | 4         |            |              |           | 3              | 9           | 40        |                 | 8     |    |
| J. B. Clark, Supt.                       |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |                |             |           |                 |       |    |
| Total                             | 15       | 4         | 184         | 7            | 10        | 3                     | 1,702    | 1,300     | 510      | 46    | 985     | 62        | 559        | 48     | 890       | 1,793          | 158       | 29         | 282          | 87        | 67             | 894         | 30        | 2,863           |       |    |

mission, 374 North Capitol street, near the Railroad Station, where arrangements can be made for the care of any disabled soldier, discharged or furloughed, who is going upon the train, and where, likewise, all information can be obtained concerning transportation, hospital cars, relief stations, &c.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION,
CENTRAL OFFICE, 244 F STREET,
WASHINGTON, June 8, 1865.

In consequence of the very large demand made upon the Sanitary Commission by the armies encamped in and about Washington, it has become necessary, for the present, to restrict our issues of articles of clothing to the sick, and to such soldiers as are really destitute and unable to procure supplies through regular channels, by reason of absence from their commands, want of descriptive lists, or other cause.

JNO. S. BLATCHFORD,
General Secretary.

"HOMES," "LODGES," AND "RESTS," FOR THE MONTH OF APRIL, 1865.

|     | Pennsylvania. | Rhode Island. | Tennessee. | Texas. | Vermont. | Virginia. | West Virginia. | Wisconsin. | U. S. Regulars. | U. S. Navy. | Vet. Reserve Corps. | Q. M. Department. | Paroled Prisoners. | Colored Troops. | Unclassified. | Rebels. | TOTAL.    |                        |           | Whole number. | Lodgings. | Meals. | Paroled. | Under orders. | Discharged. |
|-----|---------------|---------------|------------|--------|----------|-----------|----------------|------------|-----------------|-------------|---------------------|-------------------|--------------------|-----------------|---------------|---------|-----------|------------------------|-----------|---------------|-----------|--------|----------|---------------|-------------|
|     |               |               |            |        |          |           |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               |         | Soldiers. | Relatives of Soldiers. | Refugees. |               |           |        |          |               |             |
| 58  | 6             |               |            |        |          |           |                | 2          | 2               |             | 6                   |                   |                    |                 | 4             |         | 100       | 43                     | 7         | 240           | 450       | 1,355  | 37       | 18            | 133         |
| 20  |               |               |            |        |          | 1         |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               |         |           | 62                     |           | 62            | 726       | 2,141  |          |               |             |
| 21  | 1             |               |            |        | 2        | 1         |                | 3          | 13              | 1           | 3                   |                   | 68                 | 1               |               |         | 245       | 25                     | 100       | 370           | 576       | 1,851  | 142      | 30            | 5           |
| 4   | 1             |               |            |        |          |           |                |            | 47              | 23          | 90                  |                   | 126                |                 |               | 1       | 1,699     | 15                     |           | 1,614         | 974       | 2,829  | 1,057    | 200           | 181         |
|     |               |               |            |        |          |           |                |            | 5               |             | 19                  | 10                |                    |                 |               |         | 140       | 9                      | 13        | 162           | 292       | 627    | 82       |               | 59          |
| 15  | 2             |               | 30         |        |          |           |                | 1,211      |                 | 13          | 15                  |                   | 38                 | 6               |               |         | 2,237     |                        | 5         | 2,242         | 1,160     | 5,840  | 200      | 10            | 246         |
|     |               |               | 2          |        |          |           |                |            |                 | 2           |                     | 7                 | 254                |                 |               |         | 1,300     | 29                     | 65        | 1,394         | 1,324     | 3,431  | 6        | 1,262         | 32          |
|     |               |               |            |        |          |           |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               |         | 1,433     |                        |           | 1,433         | 628       | 2,490  |          |               |             |
| 48  |               |               | 52         |        | 55       |           |                | 12         |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               |         | 2,557     |                        | 138       | 2,695         | 2,557     | 7,969  | 2,368    |               | 428         |
|     |               |               |            |        |          |           |                | 7          | 8               |             | 63                  | 1                 | 341                |                 |               |         | 1,111     |                        | 3         | 1,114         | 1,368     | 5,160  | 588      | 87            | 94          |
| 17  |               |               | 26         |        | 2        |           |                | 18         | 28              |             | 94                  |                   |                    |                 |               |         | 818       |                        |           | 818           | 160       | 1,939  | 342      | 296           | 46          |
| 160 |               | 1,035         |            |        | 4        |           |                | 248        | 640             |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               | 29      | 5,317     | 28                     |           | 5,345         | 3,690     | 16,728 | 2,214    | 551           | 2,552       |
| 1   | 3             |               | 131        |        |          |           |                | 53         | 7               | 1           | 6                   |                   |                    | 50              | 2             |         | 589       |                        |           | 589           | 5,000     | 14,743 | 30       | 332           | 238         |
| 48  |               |               | 48         |        |          |           |                | 101        | 8               |             | 10                  |                   | 149                |                 |               |         | 961       | 2                      |           | 963           | 1,200     | 7,524  | 20       | 921           | 10          |
| 13  |               |               |            |        | 5        |           |                |            |                 |             | 35                  | 10                |                    | 5               | 7             |         | 299       | 3                      | 23        | 325           | 490       | 1,496  |          |               |             |
|     |               |               |            |        |          |           |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               |         | 60        |                        | 17        | 77            |           | 700    |          |               |             |
| 135 | 2             |               | 1          |        | 9        | 11        |                | 13         |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               |         | 762       | 1                      | 5         | 768           | 3,310     | 7,723  | 370      | 289           | 113         |
| 52  | 1             |               |            |        | 1        |           |                | 2          |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               |         |           | 147                    | 20        | 167           | 946       | 1,700  |          |               |             |
| 502 | 16            | 1,195         | 31         | 17     | 72       | 2         | 1,670          | 758        | 39              | 334         | 35                  | 573               | 465                | 13              | 30            |         | 19,618    | 364                    | 306       | 20,378        | 24,851    | 86,260 | 7,506    | 4,046         | 4,137       |

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Future—Letter from Dr. Bellows..... 1217
 The Great Gathering at the Northwest—Letter from Dr. Parrish..... 1222
 Touching Letter from a Wisconsin Soldier..... 1224
 What the Commission finds to do..... 1221
 A False Charge Refuted—Letter from Newbern..... 1231
 Woman's Central Association of Relief..... 1234

REPORTS.

Cruelty to Union Prisoners—Extracts from Report of F. N. Knapp, Superintendent of Special Relief. 1225
 Down the Mississippi, by Russel Hodge..... 1233

MISCELLANEOUS.

Work for the Soldiers..... 1220

An Example to be Followed..... 1221
 Flag Quills..... 1224
 The Work of a Great People (Continued from No. 35)
 —Diseases in Different Parts of the Country; Hospital Transports; Medical Publications of the Sanitary Commission; The "Cuisine" of the Camp Flying Hospitals..... 1227
 Bureau of Information and Employment..... 1235
 Rebel Barbarity..... 1240
 Special Relief Work on the Railroad Cars..... 1241
 Consolidated Report of Eighteen Homes for April, 1865..... 1242
 Issues of Clothing..... 1242

EDITORIAL.

The Close..... 1234
 The Record of the Commission..... 1239

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

H. W. Bellows, D. D., New York.
 A. D. Bache, LL. D., Washington, D. C.
 F. L. Olmsted, California.
 George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
 Elisha Harris, M. D., New York.
 W. H. Van Buren, M. D., New York.
 Wolcott Gibbs, M. D., Cambridge, Mass.
 S. G. Howe, M. D., Boston, Mass.
 O. R. Agnew, M. D., New York.
 J. S. Newberry, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.
 Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
 Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
 Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
 Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
 Horace Binney, Jr., Philadelphia, Penn.
 Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
 J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
 Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penn.
 Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

H. W. Bellows, D. D., President.
 A. D. Bache, LL. D., Vice-President.
 Geo. T. Strong, Treasurer.
 Jno. S. Blatchford, General Secretary.
 J. S. Newberry, M. D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

Henry W. Bellows, D. D. Geo. T. Strong.
 Wm. H. Van Buren, M. D. Wolcott Gibbs, M. D.
 C. R. Agnew, M. D. Charles J. Stillé.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

Central Office, 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

This Bureau is established with the following objects:

1. To aid those who have served in the Army and Navy of the United States in obtaining employment.

2. To prevent, as far as possible, the necessity for costly charitable institutions, by thus encouraging industry, and aiding the disabled soldier, who might otherwise seek an asylum, to strive for self-support.

3. To lessen the pauperism and crime necessarily more or less a consequence of war, and which surely attend on large numbers of unoccupied men left to themselves without employment or means of subsistence.

4. To save to the country a large amount of productive labor, at a time when it can least afford to maintain idle hands.

The services of the Bureau are given gratuitously.

Information and suggestions are solicited relative to employments adapted to maimed and disabled men. Employers are earnestly requested to make application to this Bureau for every class of labor; and are reminded that our Army and Navy have contained many of the best and most trustworthy young men of the nation—skilled in every occupation.

It is demanded by both patriotism and humanity, that the light occupations of all towns, and whatever work can be as well done by invalid soldiers as by others, be given to the men who may have incapacitated themselves for rivalry in more active and laborious fields of duty, by giving their limbs, their health, and their blood to the nation.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Army and Navy Claim Agency.

NO CHARGE FOR SERVICES.

This Agency is established to prosecute the claims of those who have been in the service of the United States, in the Army and Navy, and their dependents, for Pensions, Arrears of pay, Bounty, Prize-Money, and all other Army and Navy claims on the Government, WITHOUT CHARGE OR EXPENSE OF ANY KIND WHATSOEVER TO THE CLAIMANT.

CENTRAL OFFICE, 244 F ST.,

WASHINGTON, D. C.

DARIUS FORBES,

General Agent.

LOCAL AGENCIES:

Albany, N. Y.; McClure & Miller.
 Amity, Penn.; J. D. Huston, P. M.
 Augusta, Me.; Joseph Burton.
 Adrian, Mich.; C. E. Barstow.
 Alton, Ill.; James Newman.
 Buffalo, N. Y.; Dr. Joseph A. Peters, 29 Niagara street.
 Boston, Mass.; Francis S. Dyer, 53½ Summer st.
 Baltimore, Md.; Col. J. P. Creager, 558 West Baltimore street.
 Bucksport, Me.; J. Edward Sherman.
 Bridgeport, Conn.; Andrew Grogan.
 Bangor, Me.; Ruel Smith.
 Bowling Green, Ky.; E. F. Kinnard.
 Burlington, Iowa; J. P. Brown.
 Brattleboro', Vt.; Geo. H. Bailey.
 Burlington, Vt.; A. J. Howard.
 Corinna, Me.; Freeman Knowles.
 Chicago, Ill.; M. D. Bartlett.
 Cleveland, O.; Wm. H. Gaylord.
 Carbondale, Penn.; D. W. Lathrop.
 Concord, N. H.; Samuel C. Eastman.
 Chillicothe, Ohio; Thaddeus M. Minshall.
 Dubuque, Iowa; E. S. Norris.
 Des Moines, Iowa; Geo. P. Abel.
 Davenport, Iowa; Charles H. Kent.

Dayton, Ohio; Robert Brundrett.
 Detroit, Mich.; Wm. Jennison, Jr.
 Elmira, N. Y.; Mrs. Charles B. Stuart.
 Erie, Penn.; A. J. Foster.
 Evansville, Ind.; Charles E. Marsh.
 Freehold, N. J.; Acton C. Hartshorn.
 Fond du Lac, Wis.; N. C. Griffin.
 Fort Wayne, Ind.; David P. Whedon.
 Hampton, N. Y.; H. C. Broughton.
 Harrisburg, Penn.; Dewitt & Snodgrass.
 Hartford, Conn.; Richard W. Roberts.
 Indianapolis, Ind.; Temple C. Harrison.
 Levant, Me.; T. H. Wiggin.
 Lenox, N. Y.; R. H. W. Bruce.
 Ludlowville, N. Y.; John Ludlow.
 Louisville, Ky.; John Brown.
 Lafayette, Ind.; Taylor & Watson.
 La Crosse, Wis.; Stogdill & Daniels.
 La Porte, Ind.; Wm. Andrew.
 Lowell, Mass.; N. D. A. Sawyer.
 Meadville, Penn.; D. C. McCoy.
 Milwaukee, Wis.; Wm. G. Whipple.
 Madison City, Ill.; David G. Phillips.
 Manchester, N. H.; Cyrus A. Sulloway.
 Montpelier, Vt.; D. L. Fuller.
 Madison, Wis.; Buel E. Hutchinson.
 Marietta, Ohio; Geo. M. Woodbridge.
 New Orleans, La.; C. W. Seaton, 96 Julia street.
 New York, N. Y.; Henry Greenfield, 35 Chambers st.
 Newburgh, Me.; Ariel Kelly.
 Neponset, Mass.; Thos. Temple.
 New Haven, Conn.; Francis M. Lovejoy.
 New London, Conn.; Chas. M. Wilcox.
 New Bedford, Mass.; Wm. Almy.
 Paris, Me.; William A. Pidgeon.
 Portland, Me.; W. H. Fessenden.
 Providence, R. I.; William R. Walker.
 Peoria City, Ill.; Chauncey Nye.
 Portsmouth, N. H.; Sullivan Holman.
 Plattsburgh, N. Y.; Oren C. Gregg.
 Quincy, Ill.; Henry A. Castle.
 Rochester, N. Y.; Dr. Austin Mandeville, Room No. 5, Corinthian Hall Building.
 Rutland, Vt.; James E. Porter.
 Richmond, Ind.; Lewis D. Stubbs.
 Syracuse, N. Y.; Silas F. Smith.
 St. Pauls, Minn.; Col. John Peller.
 Springfield, Me.; Lewis A. Tift.
 Spencer, N. Y.; C. W. Bradley.
 Shippensburg, Pa.; D. W. Thrush.
 Springfield, Mass.; Lewis A. Tift.
 Troy, N. Y.; B. H. Hall.
 Trenton, N. J.; D. C. Allinson.
 Terre Haute, Ind.; Thomas C. Bailey.
 Wilkesbarre, Pa.; Hubbard B. Payne.
 Worcester, Mass.; John A. Lovell.
 Watertown, Wis.; Calvin B. Skinner.
 Wilmington, Del.; Levi C. Bird.
 Zanesville, O.; David Hull.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

F. N. KNAPP, Supt., Washington, D. C.
 J. B. ABBOTT, Chief Asst., Washington, D. C.
 "SOLDIERS' HOMES" AND "LODGES."

[OBJECTS. Temporary aid and protection,—food, lodging, care, &c.,—for soldiers in transit, chiefly the discharged, disabled, and furloughed.]

Alexandria, Va. "ALEXANDRIA LODGE." Orange and Alexandria Railroad Station. J. B. Holt, Superintendent.

Annapolis, Md. "HOME FOR SOLDIERS' WIVES AND MOTHERS." Mrs. Hopes Sayres, Matron.

Baltimore, Md. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 62 Conway Street. A. E. Hastings, Supt. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Opposite Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad Station. —, Superintendent.

Boston, Mass. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 76 Kingston street. Charles F. Mudge, Supt., near Boston and Worcester Railroad Depot.

Buffalo, N. Y. "SOLDIERS' REST." Exchange street, opposite Central Railroad Depot. Mrs. H. Indevine, Matron.

Cairo, Ill. "SOLDIERS' HOME." C. N. Shipman, Superintendent.

Camp Nelson, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Cincinnati, O. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Third street. Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Supt.

Cleveland, Ohio. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Joseph Jerome, Superintendent.

Columbus, Ohio. "SOLDIERS' HOME." T. E. Botsford, Superintendent.

Detroit, Michigan. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 81 Jefferson Avenue.

Harrisburg, Pa. Near the Railroad Depot. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." W. H. Hadley, Supt.

Hartford, Ct. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Near Railroad Depot. O. B. Segir, Superintendent.

Jeffersonville, Indiana. "SOLDIERS' HOME." New Market street, near the Depot. E. T. Smith, Superintendent.

Louisville, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." V. Scott, Superintendent.

Memphis, Tenn. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Near landing. C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Nashville, Tenn. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Captain I. Brayton, Superintendent.

New Orleans, La. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Corner Magazine and Julia streets. Sumner Bullard, Superintendent.

New York City. "DISCHARGED SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 45 Grove street, near Bleeker. Dr. M. M. Marsh, Superintendent.

Paducah Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." E. D. Way, Superintendent.

Portsmouth, Va. "SOLDIERS' HOME." John Aleoche, Superintendent.

Philadelphia, Pa. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Corner 13th and Christian streets, near Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad Depot. Col. C. E. Soest, Supt.

Richmond, Va. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Geo. T. Williams, Superintendent.

Washington, D. C. "THE HOME." No. 374 North Capitol street. J. B. Clark, Supt. "HOME FOR SOLDIERS' WIVES AND MOTHERS." No. 380 North Capitol street. J. B. Clark, Supt. "LODGE No. 4" No. 389 H street. —, Supt. "LODGE No. 5." Maryland Av., near Washington & Alexandria R.R. Station. —, Supt. "LODGE No. 6" Foot of Sixth street. Howard McPherran, Superintendent.

Wilmington, N. C. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Market street. F. B. Foster, Supt.

SPECIAL RELIEF OFFICES.

[OBJECTS.—To give aid in procuring pay, pensions, bounty, prize money, arrears of pay and bounty, and other claims upon government. To supply clothing, hospital delicacies, crutches, &c. To give transportation, information, &c.]

Alexandria, Va. Office in Soldiers' Lodge. Orange and Alexandria Railroad Station. J. B. Holt, Agent.

Annapolis, Md. Office of United States Sanitary Commission. W. H. Holstein, Agent.

Baltimore, Md. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 288 West Baltimore street. J. T. Pancost, Agent.

Boston, Mass. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 76 Kingston street.

Buffalo, N. Y. Branch United States Sanitary Commission, Adams' Block, No. 209 Washington street.

Cairo, Ill. Office in "Soldiers' Home." C. N. Shipman, Agent.

Camp Nelson, Ky. Office in "Soldiers' Home." Thomas Butler, Agent.

Chattanooga, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission.

Chicago, Ill. United States Sanitary Commission.

Cincinnati, Ohio. United States Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth streets.

Cleveland, Ohio. Branch United States Sanitary Commission.

Detroit, Mich. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned street.

Dubuque, Ia. United States Sanitary Commission. Rev. E. S. Morris, Agent.

Harrisburg, Penn. Office in "Soldiers' Lodge." W. H. Hadley, Agent.

Jeffersonville, Ind. Office in "Soldiers' Home." New Market street, near railroad depot. E. T. Smith, Agent.

Knoxville, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission.

Leavenworth, Kansas. United States Sanitary Commission. J. R. Brown, Agent.

Louisville, Ky. United States Sanitary Commission, Fifth street.

Memphis, Tenn. Office in "Soldiers' Lodge," near landing. C. W. Christy, Agent.

Milwaukee, Wis. Mrs. Colt.

Nashville, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission. E. Roof, Agent.

New Orleans, La. Special Relief Office, United States Sanitary Commission, No. 96 Julia street. O. C. Bullard, Agent.

New York City, N. Y. "Special Relief Office," Cooper Union, No. 10 Third Avenue. Mrs. W. P. Griffin, Chairman Special Relief Committee.

Paducah, Ky. Office in "Soldiers' Home." E. D. Way, Agent.

Philadelphia, Pa. United States Sanitary Commission, 1307 Chestnut street, third story, back. Colonel Soest, Agent.

Portsmouth, Va. Office in "Soldiers' Home." John Alcooke, Agent.

Vicksburg, Miss. United States Sanitary Commission. J. G. Brown.

Washington, D. C. "Special Relief Office," No. 389 H street, between 13th and 14th streets. J. B. Abbott, Chief Assistant.

Wheeling, Va. United States Sanitary Commission.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies, and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. San. Com., No. 18 West st., Boston, Mass.

U. S. San. Com., Nos. 10 & 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. San. Com., State House, New Haven, Ct.

U. S. San. Com., 1307 Chestnut st., Philada.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. San. Com., 244 F st., Washington, D. C.

U. S. San. Com., Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. San. Com., 288 W. Balt. st., Balt., Md.

U. S. San. Com., Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. San. Com., Annapolis, Md.

U. S. San. Com., Camp Parole, Md.

U. S. San. Com., Norfolk, Va.

U. S. San. Com., City Point, Va.

U. S. San. Com., Newbern, N. C.

U. S. San. Com., Beaufort, S. C.

U. S. San. Com., New Orleans, La.

Temporary Depots (or distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. San. Com., corner Vine and Sixth sts., Cincinnati, O.

U. S. San. Com., No. 95 Bank st., Cleveland, O.

U. S. San. Com., No. 66 Madison st., Chicago, Ill.

U. S. San. Com., No. 2 Adams' Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. San. Com., No. 59 Fourth st., Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. San. Com., No. 32 Larned st., Detroit, Mich.

U. S. San. Com., Columbus, O.

U. S. San. Com., Fifth st., Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to Geo. T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 68 Wall street, N. Y.

PROTECTIVE
War-Claim Association

OF THE
U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.
OFFICE 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.
LIEUT. GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.
VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HON. HAMILTON FISK, ADMIRAL DUPONT,
JOHN J. CISCO, ESQ., RUD. A. WITTHAUS, ESQ.

TREASURER.—ROBERT B. MINTURN, ESQ.
DIRECTORS.

HONS. E. D. MORGAN, HOWARD POTTER,
GEORGE OPDYKE, WILLIAM E. DODGE, JR.,
HIRAM BARNEY, THEODORE ROOSEVELT,
JAS. W. BECKMAN, PETER COOPER,
H. W. BELLOWS, D. D., GEORGE BANCROFT,
JOHN JACOB ASTOR, DANIEL LORD,
JAMES BROWN, WILSON G. HUNT,
WM. H. ASPINWALL, ROBERT L. STUART,
JAMES GALLATIN, ALFRED PELL.

Apply, in person or by letter, to
HENRY GREENFIELD, Secretary,
35 CHAMBERS STREET, New York.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

PROTECTIVE

War Claim and Pension Agency

OF THE

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

Office No. 1307 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

All the papers and correspondence required to procure Pensions, Bounty and Back Pay, and Prize Money for discharged soldiers and sailors, and for the relatives of soldiers and sailors dying in the service of the United States, prepared and forwarded, and the proceeds of all claims, when collected, remitted to the parties entitled, free of charge.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

WILLIAM M. TILGHMAN, Chairman.

HORACE BINNEY, JR., ROBERT M. LEWIS,
ALEXANDER BROWN, GEORGE M. CONARROE,
HON. J. CLARK HARE, CHARLES J. STILLÉ,
WILLIAM WELCH, GEORGE D. PARRISH,
WILLIAM L. REHN, H. LENOX HODGE, M. D.,
GEORGE TROTT, ATHERTON BLIGHT.

H. LENOX HODGE, M. D., Examining Surgeon.
EDWARD A. SMITH, M. D., Assistant Surgeon.
W. N. ASHMAN, Solicitor.

JAS. W. HAZLEHURST, Assistant Solicitor.

BRANCH

No. 744 Broadway,
NEW YORK.

BRANCH

No. 19 Green Street,
BOSTON, Mass.

Important Information for Soldiers and Sailors who have lost Limbs.

The "PALMER" ARM and LEG are now furnished for the mutilated heroes of the Army and Navy, and I have the pleasure of presenting extracts from official letters from the Surgeon-General, which will gratify numerous applicants, who, in the past, have been led to believe that they must accept an inferior limb, or have no aid from Government.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., Dec. 12, 1863.

SR.—The Board of Medical Officers assembled in the city of Philadelphia, for the purpose of examining the different models submitted to them for an Artificial ARM, having reported
In compliance with the recommendation of the Board, when a Soldier may desire to purchase "the more elegant and expensive arm of Palmer," fifty dollars will be allowed towards payment for the same.
By order of the Acting Surgeon-General.

C. H. CRANE, Surgeon U. S. A.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., Sep. 20, 1864.

SR.—In answer to your letter of the 1st inst., I am directed to inform you, that the Report and recommendation of the Medical Board recently assembled in New York, to examine samples and models of Artificial Limbs, is not designed to supersede the recommendation of the former Board, so far as regards the Limbs manufactured by you.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, by order of the Surgeon-General,

W. C. SPENCER, Assistant Surgeon U. S. A.

To B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D., 744 Broadway, New York.

The Best PALMER LEG is furnished THE SOLDIER FREE.

The Best PALMER ARM, for a SMALL ADVANCE.

The Best LINCOLN "GOVERNMENT" ARM, FREE.

Prices of the PALMER LIMBS not raised to OFFICERS and CIVILIANS.

Apply in person, or by letter, at either of the offices. Address

B. FRANK. PALMER, LL.D.,

President American Artificial Limb Co.

FAIRBANKS' STANDARD SCALES

Adapted to every branch of business.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTORS,

E. & T. FAIRBANKS & CO., ST. JOHNSBURY, VERMONT.

PRINCIPAL WAREHOUSES:

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 252 Broadway, New York.

FAIRBANKS & BROWN, No. 118 Milk Street, Boston.

FAIRBANKS, GREENLEAF & CO., No. 172 Lake Street, Chicago.

FAIRBANKS & EWING, Masonic Hall, Philadelphia.

FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 346 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Descriptive Circulars furnished or mailed to any address, on application to either of the above.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

486 BROADWAY

AND

441 BROOME ST.

SEWING MACHINES

OF THE MOST APPROVED MAKE, SUCH AS THE

WHEELER & WILSON,

GROVER & BAKER,

WILCOX & GIBBS,

A. B. HOWE,

SINGER AND OTHERS.

TO RENT AND FOR SALE,

At MANUFACTURERS' PRICES, and with the same privileges. Instruction THOROUGH and gratis, at the

N. Y. SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM,

Corner Broadway and Broome St., New York.

V. W. WICKES, Jr., Proprietor,

486 Broadway, Up Stairs.

T H E

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.

No. 40.

WASHINGTON, D. C., AUGUST 1, 1865.

No. 40.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN is published on the first of every month, and as it has a circulation, gratuitous or other, of above 15,000 copies, it offers an unusually valuable medium for advertising.

All communications must be addressed to the Editor, at the Central Office, 244 F street, Washington, D. C., and must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers.

As the continuance of the publication of the BULLETIN is uncertain, depending on that of the war, and on the resources of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—the Standing Committee feels a certain degree of reluctance to solicit subscriptions for it—and thereby to pledge the Commission to its issue for a definite period.

The Committee understand, however, that some of their friends to whom it is now sent gratuitously express a wish to pay for it, and they therefore give notice that the sum of two dollars, remitted to the Treasurer, (G. T. STRONG, 68 Wall street, New York, or 244 F street, Washington, D. C.) will secure its being sent to such contributor during the remainder of the current year, unless its publication be sooner discontinued.

GOOD WORDS OF GREAT MEN.

PRESIDENT ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The Sanitary Commission is doing a work of great humanity, and of direct practical value to the nation in this time of its trial. It is entitled to the gratitude and the confidence of the people, and I trust it will be generously supported. There is no agency through which voluntary offerings of patriotism can be more effectively made.

CHIEF JUSTICE SALMON P. CHASE.

What age before this age, and what country besides our country, ever witnessed such an organization as that of the Sanitary Commission? What needs have been supplied; what wants relieved; what wounds healed; what evils averted, by the activity, wisdom, and unflagging zeal of this admirable organization, fostered and sustained by the people, and recognized and aided by the Government.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION,

CENTRAL OFFICE,

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4, 1865.

To the Branches and Aid Societies tributary to the Sanitary Commission:

In a circular (No. 90) issued from this office May 15, last, you were called on to continue your labors in collecting and providing supplies up to the present date. For the alacrity you have shown in complying with this request, under circumstances so unfavorable to zeal, we tender you special thanks. Your continued support has enabled us to extend a generous assistance to our armies gathered at Washington and Louisville, and elsewhere, before being finally mustered out of service. When you have forwarded to our Receiving Depots such supplies as you may now have in hand, we hope to find our storehouses sufficiently recruited to meet all remaining wants of the service. In the Eastern Department our work of supply is substantially done, with the exception of a limited service still required in the Department of Washington.

In the Western Department it may continue, on a very diminished scale, a couple of months longer. In Texas and the Department of the Gulf the supply service may possibly last all summer. But, by economy of our stores in hand, we feel authorized to say that after collecting what is already in existence we shall be able to meet all just demands made upon us. We, therefore, in accordance with our promise, notify our Branches that their labors in collecting supplies for us may finally cease with this date. We shall make no further requisitions upon them, except in regard to supplies already in their hands.

We hope our Branches will use all diligence in forwarding to our Receiving Depots, through the accustomed channels, whatever stores may reach them from their Aid Societies, or any they have in hand.

All balances in cash left in the Branch treasuries, after settling up their local affairs, will be forwarded to Geo. T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

So far as any of our Branches are engaged in other portions of our work than in collecting and forwarding supplies, their labors will continue so long as those of the Commission itself last. But the supply work is over, and the characteristic labors of the women of the land, in furnishing hospital clothing and comforts for sick and wounded soldiers, are completed. Henceforward, during the few months of existence still allotted to the Sanitary Commission to complete its work of collecting the pensions and back pay of the soldiers, in which it already has one hundred and twenty-seven offices established, to make up its scientific record and close up its widely-extended affairs, there will be no probable necessity for addressing the women of the country, and this circular may be our last opportunity, until the final Report of the Commission is made, of expressing the gratitude of the Board for their patient, humane, and laborious devotion to our common work.

For more than four years the U. S. Sanitary Commission has depended on its Branches, mainly directed and controlled by women, for keeping alive the interest in its work in all the villages and homes of the country; for establishing and banding together the Soldiers' Aid Societies which in thousands have sprung up and united their strength in our service. By correspondence and by actual visitation, as well as by a system of canvassing, you, at the centres of influence, have maintained your hold upon the homes of the land, and kept your storerooms and ours full of their contributions.

By what systematic and business-like devotion of your time and talents you have been able to accomplish this we have been studious and admiring observers. Your volunteer work has had all the regularity of paid labor. In a sense of responsibility, in system, in patient persistency, in attention to wearisome details, in a victory over the fickleness which commonly besets the work of volunteers, you have rivalled the discipline, the patience, and the courage, of soldiers in the field—soldiers enlisted for the war. Not seldom, indeed, your labors, continued through frosts and heats, and without intermission, for years, have broken down your health. But your ranks have always been kept full—and full, too, of the best, most capable, and noble women in the country. Nor do we suppose that you, who have controlled and inspired our Branches, and with whom it has been our happiness to be brought into personal contact, are, because acting in a larger sphere, more worthy of our thanks and respect than the women who have maintained our village Soldiers' Aid Societies. Indeed, the ever-cheering burden of your communications to us has been the praise and love inspired in you by the devoted patriotism, the self-sacrificing zeal, of the Aid Societies, and of their individual contributors. Through you we have heard the same glowing and tear-moving tales of the sacrifices made by humble homes and hands in behalf of our work, which we so often hear from their comrades, of privates in the field, who throughout the war have often won the laurels their officers have worn, and have been animated by motives of pure patriotism, unmixed with hope of promotion, or desire for recognition or praise, to give their blood and their lives for the country of their hearts.

To you, and through you to the Soldiers' Aid Societies, and through them to each and every contributor to our supplies—to every woman who has sewed a seam or knitted a stocking in the service of the Sanitary Commission—we now return our most sincere and hearty thanks—thanks which are not ours only, but those of the Camps, the Hospitals, the Transports, the Prisons, the Pickets, and the Lines; where your love and labor have sent comfort, protection, relief, and sometimes life itself. It is not too much to say, that the Army of women at home has fully matched in patriotism and in sacrifices the Army of men in the field. The mothers, sisters, wives and daughters of America have been worthy of the sons, brothers, husbands, and fathers who were fighting their battles. After having contributed their living treasures to the war, what wonder they sent so freely after them all else that they had! And this precious sympathy between the fire-sides and the camp-fires—between the bayonet and the needle, the tanned cheek and the pale face—has kept the Nation one; has carried the Homes into the Ranks, and kept the Ranks in the Homes, until a sentiment of oneness, of irresistible unanimity—in which domestic and social, civil and religious, political and military elements entered, qualifying, strengthening, enriching, and sanctifying all—has at last conquered all obstacles, and given us an overwhelming, a profound, and a permanent victory.

It has been our precious privilege to be your almoners; to manage and distribute the stores you have created and given us for the soldiers and sailors. We have tried to do our duty impartially, diligently, wisely. For the means of carrying on this vast work which has grown up in our hands, keeping pace with the growing immensity of the war, and which we are now about to lay down, after giving the American public an account of our stewardship, we are chiefly indebted to the money created by the Fairs, which the American women inaugurated and conducted, and to the supplies collected by you under our organization. To you, then, is finally due the largest part of whatever gratitude belongs to the Sanitary Commission. It is as it should be. The soldier will return to his home to thank his own wife, mother, sister, daughter, for so tenderly looking after him in camp and field, in hospital and prison; and thus it will be seen, that it is the homes of the country which have wrought out this great salvation, and that the men and the women of America have an equal part in its glory and its joy.

Invoking the blessing of God upon you all, we are gratefully and proudly your fellow-laborers.

H. W. BELLOW, President.

A. D. BACHE.

F. L. GLESTED.

GEORGE T. STRONG.

ELSIE HARRIS.

W. H. VAN BUREN.

WOLCOTT GIBBS.

S. G. DOWE.

C. R. AGNEW.

J. S. NEWBERRY.

RT. REV. T. M. CLARK.

HON. R. W. BURNETT.

HON. MARK SKINNLER.

HON. JOSPH DOLT.

HORACE LINNEY.

J. HUNTINGTON WOLCOTT.

REV. J. H. HEYWOOD.

CHARLES J. STILLÉ.

EZRA B. McCAIG.

JNO. S. BLATCHFORD, General Secretary.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION,

CENTRAL OFFICE,

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 15, 1865.

With the issue of the accompanying circular, it is deemed important to call the earnest attention of all those co-workers who have so faithfully contributed to the usefulness of the Commission during the past four years, to the work of its "Army and Navy Claim Agency," now being prosecuted by agencies established throughout the loyal States, for the gratuitous adjustment and collection of claims against the Government, for soldiers, sailors, and their dependents. It is most earnestly desired, that within the next sixty days the fact that this enterprise has been inaugurated may be brought to the knowledge of, and the opportunity of enjoying its benefits afforded to, every soldier and soldier's family throughout the Union. To the Branches and Aid Societies the Commission appeals with confidence, to enlist their lively interest in this effort. A list of the Local Agencies already established by the Commission is appended.* Each Aid Society should select the names of those agents most accessible to the field of labor, and should direct in person, if practicable, every claimant to such agent. Where this cannot be accomplished, the claimant's name and post-office address, and the name, rank, company, regiment, and service of the soldier, with the date of his discharge or death, should be taken, and a letter written at once to the agent, who will return the proper blanks, with directions for their execution.

These suggestions are simple, but if energetically carried into operation, most valuable results must follow.

This is a work worthy of your utmost zeal and energy, and in its accomplishment all the appliances of the press, of public speech, and private effort, of the various local interests so familiar to you all, should be freely used.

Let but the united activity of all be exercised in this enterprise, and in the future it will be rightly termed the crowning effort of the Commission's career of beneficence.

JNO. S. BLATCHFORD,

General Secretary.

FOURTH ANNUAL AND FINAL REPORT OF THE WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF FOR THE ARMY AND NAVY OF THE UNITED STATES, JULY 4, 1865.

It has been suggested that we should make this, our Final Report, a short History of the Association, tracing its course from the time of its organization, April 20, 1861, to this 4th of July, 1865, when, its work being done, the Woman's Central Association of Relief closes its career, and must live henceforth only in the memory of its friends, or as an incident in the chronicles of the Great Rebellion. But whatever may be thought desirable hereafter, in regard to this proposition, we have determined for the present simply to take up the thread where we left it fourteen months ago, and, as clearly and rapidly as possible, follow the course of our work from that time to this, when the end of the war has brought with it the end of our work.

* See page 1277.

Fourteen months ago to-day, at the opening of the spring campaign, our gallant Army of the Potomac was obstinately fighting its way through the dense underbrush, in those merciless battles of the Wilderness. May, with its buds and blossoms, its tender green, and delicate wild-flowers, came and went. June, filled with the beauty of earth, and air, and sky—the richest and loveliest month of the year—burst upon us in all her splendor. And still the fighting went on. Five weeks passed—six weeks—seven long weeks. Was there to be no end to the bloodshed and the suffering, to the anxiety and misery of those days and nights? And still that army, with its face set towards Richmond, pressed on—marching and fighting, fighting and marching. From the Rappahannock to Spottsylvania Court House, from Spottsylvania to Cold Harbor, from Cold Harbor to the entrenchments before Petersburg. "We shall fight it out on this line, if it takes all summer," said our Lieutenant General, with quiet, determined voice. It took all summer—it took all winter. Sherman, who had fought and marched his army from the prairies to the sea, was at hand. Sheridan, with his cavalry, had swept down the Valley. The "right time" had come, and our General gave the signal. The assault was made. Petersburg and Richmond were evacuated! Lee's and Johnston's armies were surrendered! The war was over!

Since we last addressed you, death has again entered our little circle. At the Annual Meeting in May we missed our kind and ever-courteous President from his accustomed seat. Although in his eighty-third year, Dr. Valentine Mott was most punctilious in his attendance at our meetings and unflinching in his interest in our work. To his influence and active support was due much of the public respect and confidence shown towards this Association at its formation. At a recent meeting it was resolved that the vacant office in the Board, occasioned by his death, should remain unfilled, out of respect to the memory of our first and only President.

During the past year, or rather the past fourteen months, there has been but little incident of note in our work. If we except our Soldiers' Aid Society Council, held in this city last November, the days at our rooms have come and gone with almost unvarying sameness. At this Council, an account of which has already been published in the Bulletin, there were 215 delegates present, representatives from Soldiers' Aid Societies in New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Jersey, Michigan, and Canada. Since then, a series of articles, addressed to you, and published in the Sanitary Commission Bulletin, have kept you fully informed of the progress of our work.

In examining the statistical reports of the different Committees, we find some few changes in their work from previous years. The Committee on Correspondence reports having had in the field, at different times, nine Canvassing Agents. Also, that 369 lectures have been delivered by these gentlemen in the States of New York and Connecticut. We notice also, in this connection, an increase of 138 Contributing Societies over the number reported a year ago. The proposition made in our Third Annual Report, to furnish those Auxiliary Societies desiring it with material at half-price, under certain restrictions, has been of mutual benefit. Our Contributing Societies at present number 813, not including those sending through Centres of Collection. Of these, 375 have availed themselves of this offer. Nearly one-half of the sum expended for material was furnished by the Aid Societies; the rest being given by the Sanitary Commission for this purpose, at our request.

For the last few weeks the Special Relief work has been greatly increased by the returning regiments passing through this city. Our rooms have been thronged daily with soldiers in need of clothing. A new feature in this department of work has been the systematic visiting of all the Military Hospitals in this city, and upon the neighboring islands, which has been done by our Hospital Visitor—a lady who volunteered her services for this duty. We had before this supplied these hospitals upon requisitions of the surgeons, or through other trustworthy agencies. The last report of our Hospital Visitor, sent in three months ago, speaks of the condition of these local hospitals as exceedingly satisfactory—sufficiently so, it is suggested, to make the services of a Hospital Visitor no longer necessary.

We call your attention to the Tables at the end of this Report. They contain a Summary of the total receipts, distributions, and expenditures, of the Association, in money and supplies, from its organization to the close of its work. Also a list, as complete as we have been able to make it, of all places from which supplies have been received during the war. They number 1,920.

In our Third Annual Report, we spoke of "Homes," or "Sanitaria," which the Sanitary Commission proposed to establish for our disabled soldiers. After much research and careful study of the subject, the Commission decided that the vexed question, as to whether these Homes were or were not needed by our American soldiery, and to what extent, could alone be determined by actual experiment. They have accordingly opened a "Home" in this city, for disabled discharged soldiers. It contains at present only about 40 inmates, although it has been open two months. Our latest information upon this subject is derived from a letter written by the President of the Commission, dated May 26, from which we quote:

"There is, however, a class of persons made helpless by the war—some of them yet to develop the whole extent of their broken constitutions—who must be made comfortable for life in public institutions. How numerous this class will prove it is impossible even to conjecture. It does not include all the helpless; because a large proportion of them will receive the tenderest care of their own families, too happy to watch over, and protect, and solace them, as they should be, even though in very moderate circumstances. Let us do nothing to discourage this noble pride of domestic independence, this sacred bond of consanguinity. A large share of the invalidism of the war we shall never hear of. Our proud boys will hide their scars, and die in the sacred retirement of homes that will not parade their services or their sorrows; happy in having borne and rendered both. This, too, is every way to be admired and encouraged. But there are many foreigners who have fought for us, and have all the claims of natives; since to mix their blood with ours on our battle-fields makes them our kindred, and "of one blood," in even a higher sense than usual. There are fatherless, motherless, homeless soldiers; blind, consumptive, limbless men, full of sorrows and necessities, who require an absolute and permanent asylum. How many they will prove nobody can guess at this moment; but some thousands in all. The States are already moving in their behalf. It would be much better if the nation could agree to make four conveniently-situated homes for this class of men, independent of State lines, and either Federal or State control or support, where the spontaneous charity and mercy of the nation could maintain them, in memory of their service to the Union; where the State and sectional feeling should be steadily withstood, in favor of a larger and more patriotic sentiment, and the guarantee of private intelligence, energy, and integrity, in their ordering, management, and continued improvement, be offered in place of the official formalism, coldness, and fixity, which sooner or later cankers all institutions of benevolence passing into Government hands. Such asylums being tentative, require flexibility, should be started on a small scale, in a temporary way, feel their road, and gradually adapt themselves to their experience of the wants of the men. To erect great edifices, upon any present knowledge of what our American life and spirit requires, would be to stereotype our ignorance and petrify our dreams.

"The Nation, through some Board it has learned to trust, should take some one or more of the cheap Pavilion Hospitals the war has erected, and which must soon be in the market; and, having thoroughly purged it, open one or more wards at a time, testing the want, and gradually developing the best system for the care and comfort and happiness of the men; making the institutions in all cases mixed, so as to destroy the horrid, deadening uniformity of classified asylums, putting the wholly disabled and the partially disabled together—the blind and the halt—and by the greatest diversity of industries, and light, even if useless employments, seek to keep up self-respect, drive off ennui, restore to society as many as possible, and make those who cannot be restored as little miserable as their wretched circumstances will allow. The wan and woful countenances of many blind soldiers, many lame and helpless ones, utter strangers to homes of their own, have already stamped an image on my mind of their long, weary future under the best care they can possibly secure, which is full of motive and full of solicitude."

With the close of the Supply Department of the Sanitary Commission, our National work, through this agency, ceases. But our work for the soldier does not cease. It has only been brought to our own doors with our returning veterans, and henceforth takes its place as among the most sacred of our home duties.

O friends! On this Fourth of July, this day of our National Independence, which now welcomes home those who have fought and won for us a Second Battle of Independence and Freedom; while flags are flying and drums are beating, and the air is full of rejoicings, in double celebration of this great day; while our hearts are full of gratitude to God for having preserved our country through such great peril, shall we not best prove our gratitude by pledging ourselves anew to finish the work we have so well begun? Our soldiers have not faltered. They have fought the four years' fight through to the end. Nor have we faltered. The loyal women of America have been equally true to the cause, equally faithful to their work, through these long years of anxiety and toil. They knew that peace would come with the triumph of the right. Peace has come; the right has triumphed. The war is over, and our sons and brothers are returning to us. But, in the midst of our rejoicings, let us remember those whose sons and brothers will never return to them, with whom the war will never be over. Let us remember those who come back to us, having left health and limb upon the battle-field, and who would gladly have given life itself had it been required. Let us remember the last words addressed to us, by one whose memory is especially present with us to-day: "With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and orphans, to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations." By the love we bear our martyred President, by the memory of his love for us, we pledge ourselves to carry out this, his last request. And may God bless us in this resolution.

We have been asked to make a few suggestions in regard to the practical form this future work should assume. We do so with diffidence. The confidence, dear friends, with which we have guided you in your work heretofore, falters and hesitates as it approaches your own thresholds. For we feel that the homes, whose thoughtful love has followed the soldier hundreds and thousands of miles, for four years, must surely know best how to cherish and care for him upon his return. At your request, however, we would suggest the following classification of your Home Soldier work:

1st. The care and support of totally disabled men, who may need it; and assistance to the widows and orphans of soldiers requiring aid.

2d. The Collection of Claims, through the Army and Navy Claim Agencies of the Sanitary Commission.

3d. The finding of suitable Employment for partially disabled men.

4th. The visiting of any neighboring Military Hospital, or "Home," and the furnishing of such supplies as may be desirable.

On another page we publish a list of the Claim Agencies already established by the Sanitary Commission. Through these agencies the Commission collects any claim the soldier or his family may have against the Government, whether of Bounty, Back-Pay, or Pensions, free of charge. In many of the smaller places, however, no regular agency will be established. We, therefore, suggest that one member of the Soldiers' Aid Society makes this his or her duty. Write for directions and blanks to the "Army and Navy Claim Agency, U. S. Sanitary Commission, Washington, D. C."

In many places, however, and we hope in most, this local work will be insufficient to absorb all the surplus energy and resources of the community. The great National work of the day, growing out of the war, now presents itself to us through the "American Freedmen's Aid Union," and the "American Union Commission." We enclose their circulars, commending them to your judgment.

It has been only after much earnest thought, and serious counsel, that we have concluded that it is best and right for us to dissolve our Association. To undertake any part of the work for our soldiers, as indicated above, would be merely to duplicate that which is already being done through established agencies of the Commission in this city. We give the list of those agencies as they now exist:

Army and Navy Claim Agency, 35 Chambers street.

Bureau of Employment, 35 Chambers street.

Soldiers' Home, 45 Grove street.

Headquarters of Sanitary Commission, 823 Broadway. Apply at this office, either in person or by letter, for any desired information regarding the work of the Commission.

The end of the war has brought with it the end of our work. You, our faithful fellow-workers for four years, can well understand why we should repeat these words, and dwell upon them with mingled feelings of joy and sorrow. For while we rejoice that the horrors of war are over, that our country is not only restored to us in all its integrity, but that henceforth it is a free country—purged from the sin of slavery by fire and sword; while we are thankful that the necessity for our work no longer exists, and are glad to be released from its responsibilities and cares, yet these very conditions, dear friends, bring with them the breaking up of our intercourse, and the severing of ties whose strength we scarcely knew, until now, when the hour has come for us to part. There are twenty-five large, thick books, still standing upon our shelves, in which every one of your invoiced letters, received during the past four years, have been carefully preserved. These books are our most valuable records. Let those who want to understand the work in its truest sense read over those hundreds, or rather thousands, of letters. They will find there every phase of the war as reflected in the hearts of the women at home. They will find, too, what the relation of our Association to the people has been, and get some faint idea of the strength and endurance of the people's love for the army. They show also, as nothing else can, the love and confidence which have grown up between us, during these four years of trial, and which we trust may continue to be sacredly cherished to the end of our lives.

As members of this Branch of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, we have held the enviable position of being brought into immediate contact, on the one hand, with the earnest, active minds, and patriotic zeal of the officers of the Commission, while, on the other hand, our work has given us four years of constant intercourse with the most patriotic, the most earnest, and the noblest hearts and minds found among our countrywomen. For the influence of this two-fold relationship we shall never cease to be grateful. It is impossible to be engaged in such a cause for so long a time, and with such associates, without feeling one's own nature elevated and deepened.

The bond existing between the Woman's Central and the Sanitary Commission has been a peculiarly strong one; not only because we are its oldest Branch of Supply, or on account of the exceedingly agreeable and harmonious character of our intercourse, but because, with all our love and admiration of the Commission, there is a little lurking pride—we may as well confess it—that the Commission itself is, in some sense, an offshoot of our own Association.

The President of the Commission has always been a member of our Board. It was while acting as our delegate in Washington, the first summer of the war, seeking the best channel for the distribution of our supplies, that he conceived the idea of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, which, when moulded by the genius of Frederiek Law Olmsted, also one of our earliest members, produced that wonderful organization which has prevented and relieved untold suffering, and, as "bearer of the people's love to the people's army," has blessed both giver and receiver.

On the 24th of June, 1861, the Woman's Central voluntarily offered to assume a subordinate position to the Commission as one of its Branches of Supply. It proposed to open a central depot in the City of New York, for the collection of hospital supplies, "such supplies to be delivered solely upon requisition from the Sanitary Commission, or to agents authorized by it." The manner of obtaining these supplies was left to the Association. This agreement, of mutual benefit, has remained unbroken to the present hour.

One remarkable feature in the work of the Commission, and to which, without doubt, much of its success is due, is its discipline. We refer particularly to the discipline enforced and respected throughout its volunteer corps of workers. Its Branches receive their orders from the Commission, and carry them out, with as little thought of disputing them as a captain would the orders of his colonel. And you yourselves, dear friends, with your deference to our wishes, have taught us to believe that our authority with you is paramount also. You have chosen to have it so, and have received directions about the work from us in the same spirit of obedience with which we have received them from the Commission. One of your letters says: "We don't think your plan a very good one, but we shall obey orders." And others: "Tell us what to do"—"If you want anything more, tell us what it is, and how soon you want it"—"The war is over, but we mean to keep on working until you tell us to stop." So many, many letters repeating this in every variety of expression. "After this work is over will you not advise us what to do next?" writes another friend.

This wonderful discipline in the volunteer work of the Commission! What is it but the strongest of all bonds—which is love.

It is with aching hearts that we read over these last, most precious letters from you. They are too personal, too sacred, to be quoted, or to be answered here. We want you to know how dependent we have been upon your sympathy and encouragement throughout our work. Don't forget us. Although the Woman's Central no longer exists, its old members wish to be remembered by you as friends, and as fellow-workers in and sympathizers with every cause that represents the welfare of our country, and the interests of humanity. And may God bless us in the future as in the past, and keep us in His great love and mercy.

For the Association.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER,
ELLEN COLLINS,
CHRISTINE K. GRIFFIN,
M. D. SWETT,
HOWARD POTTER,
SAMUEL W. BRIDGEMAN,
Committee.

RESOLUTIONS.

At the Final Meeting of the Woman's Central Association of Relief, Branch of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, held at Cooper Union, July 7, 1865, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Woman's Central Association of Relief cannot dissolve without expressing its sense of the value and satisfaction of its connection with the U. S. Sanitary Commission, whose confidence, guidance and support it has enjoyed for four years past. In now breaking the formal tie that has bound us together, we leave unbroken the bond of perfect sympathy, gratitude and affection, which has grown up between us.

Resolved, That we owe a deep debt of gratitude to our Associate Managers, who have so ably represented our interests in the different sections of our field of duty; and, that to their earnest, unflagging and patriotic exertions, much of the success which has followed our labors is due.

Resolved, That to the Soldiers' Aid Societies, which form the working constituency of this Association, we offer the tribute of our profound respect and admiration for their zeal, constancy and patience to the end. Their boxes and their letters have been alike our support and our inspiration. They have kept our hearts hopeful, and our confidence in our cause always firm. Henceforth the Women of America are banded in town and country, as the men are from city and field. We have wrought, and thought and prayed together, as our soldiers have fought, and bled, and conquered, shoulder to shoulder; and, from this hour, the Womanhood of our country is knit in a common bond, which the softening influences of Peace must not, and shall not weaken or dissolve. May God's blessing rest upon every Soldiers' Aid Society in the list of our contributors, and on every individual worker in their ranks.

Resolved, That to our band of Volunteer Aids, the ladies who, in turn, have so long and usefully labored in the details of our work at these rooms, we give our hearty and affectionate thanks, feeling that their unflagging devotion and cheerful presence have added largely to the efficiency and pleasure of our labors. Their record, however hidden, is on high; and they have in their own hearts the joyful testimony, that in their country's peril and need they were not found wanting.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Association are due to the ladies, who have, at different times, served upon the Board, but are no longer members of it; and that we recall in this hour of parting the memory of each and all who have lent us the light of their countenance, and the help of their hands. Especially do we recognize the valuable aid rendered by the members of our Registration Committee, who, in the early days of this Association, superintended the training of a band of one hundred women nurses for our Army Hospitals. The successful introduction of this system is chiefly due to the zeal and capacity of these ladies.

Resolved, That in dissolving this Association, we desire to express the gratitude we owe to Divine Providence for permitting the members of this Board to work together in so great and glorious a cause, and upon so large and successful a scale; to maintain for so long a period, relations of such affection and respect, and now to part with such deep and grateful memories of our work and of each other.

Resolved, That the close of the war having enabled this Association to finish the work for which it was organized, the Woman's Central Association of Relief for the Army and Navy of the United States, is hereby dissolved.

By order.

SAMUEL W. BRIDGHAM,
Secretary.

GENERAL AID SOCIETY OF BUFFALO, N. Y.
Resolutions passed at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the General Aid Society, Buffalo, July 24.

Whereas the necessity of the continuance of the efforts of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, organized for the benefit of the sick and suffering soldier, is now brought to a close by the restoration of the blessing of peace, we, as managers of a branch of this inestimable work, express our feelings in the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we hereby place on record our sincere thanks and full appreciation of the sympathy and encouragement rendered us by the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

Resolved, That we are most happy to communicate to the officers of this organization, expressions of the most unfeigned gratitude for the kind and harmonious action so invariably extended to this branch of the noble and philanthropic work.

Resolved, That while we acknowledge the aid and encouragement given by the officers of the Commission, we are not unmindful of the labor bestowed and the sacrifices made by our auxiliary societies; their prompt assistance and ready response to every appeal has been a sunbeam to brighten every shadow cast upon our exertions in the cause of the suffering soldiers.

Resolved, That we rejoice in the reflection that we have been made co-laborers in this stupendous and unexampled charity, and while life lasts we will cherish the remembrance of this benevolent effort, and hope that future generations may exult in the results of this glorious organization.

Resolved, That these resolutions be signed by the officers of the Buffalo General Aid Society, and a copy sent to the Central Office of the Sanitary Commission.

Mrs. HORATIO SEYMOUR, President.
Mrs. HENRY R. SEYMOUR, Vice President.
Mrs. J. R. LOTHROP, Vice President.
Mrs. JAMES P. WHITE, Treasurer.
Miss GRACE E. BIRD, Secretary.

ROCHESTER SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the Rochester Soldiers' Aid Society, recently held at their rooms, the following resolutions were presented, and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this Society desires to express its high appreciation of the value of the work achieved by the U. S. Sanitary Commission in aid of our soldiers, both through its relations to the home work and to that upon the field; in the former, encouraging, stimulating, and directing the production of supplies; and in the latter, wisely distributing to our vast armies the immense contributions, which, since its organization, have constantly flowed into its channels from almost every home in the land.

Resolved, That we regard with unfeigned satisfaction our own connection with this body, as one greatly promoting the efficiency of our efforts, and highly agreeable to ourselves, and that we desire to express our thanks for the courtesy and kindness which has ever characterized its intercourse with this Society.

Resolved, That the Corresponding Secretary be requested to transmit these resolutions to the Sanitary Commission, at Washington.

By order of the Society.

MRS. L. GARDNER,
Cor. Secretary.

SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY—NEW HAVEN.

In closing the business of this Society, it is due to our friends and co-laborers to give expression to feelings growing out of our long connection in labor for the amelioration of the soldiers of our armies in their struggles and sacrifices in the cause of human rights and the government of our fathers, vindicated and maintained by their noble sons, and re-established forever by their valor : it is therefore,

Resolved, That we, as a Branch of the "U. S. Sanitary Commission," express our pride in having formed a portion of that active organized benevolence, unparalleled in its proportions in any country, and tender our thanks to its officers for the uniform courtesy, sympathy and consideration extended to us as a society; and we further express our approval and admiration of all its satisfactory results in the great christian and beneficent objects of relieving the calamities of war and assuaging the woes of its avenging justice.

Resolved, That to our auxiliary societies words can but partially convey the expression of feeling that affects us in dissolving the ties that have united us in this holy cause. Reliance in our good faith, patience with our short comings, prompt and cheerful compliance with our repeated and urgent calls, can never be forgotten by us, individually or as a society, and calls forth deep and heart-felt gratitude.

Resolved, That our satisfaction is increased by the pleasurable reflection that in our country and in our midst there are women equal to the great emergencies of christian war; women who have not quailed before disease and death, or shrunk from the spectacle of hospitals or the horrors of the battle-field, but have left the comforts of home and the luxuries of wealth to serve and administer to the wounded soldier or to smooth the dying pillow, and carry the last whispered message to the loved at home. With such illustrations of the heroic element in wives, mothers, and sisters, have we not a sure guarantee that husbands, fathers, and brothers, with God's favor, will be forever invincible?

Resolved, That we are deeply indebted to the various transportation companies for long-continued and cheerful assistance in our operations. To Adams' Express Company especially, which, from the nature of its organization, was in more constant requisition, warmest thanks are due from the whole community, as well as from ourselves and our auxiliaries. Their aid has been, from the beginning to the glorious end, cheerful, untiring, and of great value.

Resolved, That we bow in humble adoration to the Giver of all good, that He has delivered our nation from the violence of enemies and the scourge of war, and preserved to us, for all generations, the country of our sires; and that we, the descendants of heroic mothers, have been able to add to the mite of our labor the contribution of prayers to the Giver of victory, for blessing and favor, and the consolations of sympathy with the sorrows of the widow and the orphan.

E. S. ROBERTS,
Cor. Secretary.

RESOLUTIONS OF SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY, IRVINGTON, N. Y.

At a meeting held by the Soldiers' Aid Society of Irvington, June 29, 1865, the following resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted :

Resolved, That we do not dissolve the Soldiers' Aid Society, but consider its duties changed. Hereafter we will turn our attention to ascertaining and relieving the wants of the soldiers and their families who have enlisted from Irvington, or come here to reside after their discharge from service.

Resolved, That the materials and money remaining in the hands of the Society shall be used for the benefit of soldiers and their families in this place, who may at any time hereafter be in want of such aid; and that the same shall be in charge of the officers of this Society.

Resolved, That when any member of this Society becomes aware that a soldier or his family, residing in Irvington, needs assistance, she is to communicate the fact, at once, to any one of the officers of this Society, who shall forthwith call a meeting of the rest, to decide what aid to render. A meeting of three of the officers shall be considered sufficient to transact such business.

RESOLUTION OF THE WISCONSIN SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY.

MILWAUKIE, July 25, 1865.

Resolved, That in closing their long and arduous duties, the Wisconsin Soldiers' Aid Society and its Branches (numbering over three hundred) take pleasure in acknowledging the uniform kindness and consideration manifested towards them by the U. S. Sanitary Commission, with which they have been connected as auxiliaries; that they feel a lively satisfaction in looking back upon a union of effort, which has proved so beneficent to others, and has been marked by so much harmony and fraternity between themselves; and that they take this occasion to express their entire concur-ence in the wise and humane course pursued by the Commission, and their admiration of the ability, integrity, and fidelity with which it has discharged the delicate and important trusts confided to it by a generous and patriotic people.

Respectfully yours,

MRS. CHAS. KEELER,
President.

MRS. J. S. COLT,
Cor. Sec'y.

Per MRS. J. B. DOUSMAN,
Asst.

NEW ENGLAND WOMAN'S AUXILIARY ASSOCIATION.

To our Friends and Fellow-workers throughout New England:

It is deemed desirable that we should say a parting word to you, in this closing number of the Sanitary Bulletin. Many thoughts rush into our minds, and our hearts are full, but words fail us. You do not need them, we know. Your constant intercourse with us, for three years and seven months, has assured you, far better than any words could do, that we have valued your sympathy, and needed your aid at every step we have taken. We have asked much and constantly of you, and we have not asked in vain. We do not wish now to thank you for what you have done for the soldiers. In some respects we may speak in their behalf; but, in this case, we cannot worthily represent them. They must speak for themselves, either in this world, or in that better land, where, if sorrow and suffering do not enter, at least the memory of such relief as you have bestowed must find a place. Our gratitude to-day is only personal. For three years and a half you have touched us by your kindness; you have upheld us by your sympathy and ready aid; you have humbled us by a generous confidence, of which we could not feel that we were worthy. The success that has been gained is chiefly your own; we are thankful to have been in any way sharers in it.

Need we tell you that we honor, and trust, and love you in return; that the only pain we feel to-day, as we reflect upon our relation with you, is that it must end so soon; that the pleasant paths—"paths of peace," indeed they have been, in the midst of devastating war—which we have trodden so happily together, are to be ours no longer?

But new ways are before us, and life is full and rich in other directions, and beckons us on to fresh endeavors, in ever-changing experiences. The result of past labors and past enjoyments shall be to make us stronger for what is yet to come.

And, if in any new effort it should be our good fortune to meet with you again, we believe it will give you the same satisfaction that we shall feel in renewing a connection that, however long it may be laid aside, can never cease to be remembered as one of the greatest blessings of our lives.

And now farewell! May God bless you and yours forever.

In behalf of the New England Women's Auxiliary Association.

ABBY W. MAY,
Chairman Executive Committee.

LETTER FROM N. W. BRANCH U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

CHICAGO, July 29, 1865.

DEAR DR. PARRISH: The happy termination of the war having so greatly reduced the field and hospital work of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, that its gifted and venerated President, the Rev. Dr Bellows, has felt warranted in announcing to the Branches and the Aid Societies a release from the further procuring and forwarding of supplies and money to the Parent Society, we would take this opportunity to speak in behalf of the Aid Societies and tributaries of the Northwest Branch of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

We would express, as they have directed us, the deepest gratitude for the privilege of laboring in so sacred a cause in connection with the U. S. Sanitary Commission, which has so wisely, efficiently and faithfully ministered to the wants and met the necessities of our glorious army of patriots, from the beginning of this terrific rebellion until it has been subdued, our own armies disbanded—"the sword beaten into the ploughshare and the spear into the pruning-hook."

We consider it a privilege, as well as a duty, to express our deep sense of satisfaction and admiration at the prompt, accurate and thorough mode of applying the gifts which the patient and self-denying people of the Northwest have poured into the great reservoir of the U. S. Sanitary Commission. Our confidence has grown with added years of experience and co-operation, and our satisfaction has only been exceeded by our wonder, that so huge a scheme of benevolence, national in its resources and results, could so minutely and accurately dispense its benefits, and supervise and hold to a strict account, its most humble employees.

While it has embraced in its grasp armies of wounded heroes, and expended on battle-fields tens of thousands of dollars in a day, it has as carefully met and cared for the individual, emaciated, or wounded soldier, bound up wounds, furnished his cot, cooked his food, saved his pay, carried to his home, or dug his grave, and marked the place of his interment.

Our prayers and blessings must ever rest upon its founders, officers and aids, wherever found. We shall always feel grateful that we have been permitted to be humble co-workers with the most colossal humanitarian organization that the world has ever seen; one which has blessed a nation, and to which history will give her highest page. With these heartfelt sentiments of love, confidence and gratitude, we heartily respond to the words of cheer and approval contained in the letter of our beloved President. We pray that upon himself and his fellow-laborers the light of God's countenance may rest, and give them peace.

MRS. A. H. HOGE,

MRS. D. P. LIVERMORE,

Associate Managers N. W. Branch U. S. San. Com.

FROM MICHIGAN AGENT.

ANN ARBOR, MICH., July 24, 1865.

TO HENRY W. BELLOW, D.D.,

Pres't U. S. San. Com., New York.

REV. AND DEAR SIR: As the field and hospital work of the U. S. Sanitary Commission is, most happily, nearing its close, and the official relations of the various Aid Associations and members of the Parent Society are soon to terminate; as commissioner of Sanitary Supplies in Michigan, co-operating with the Northwestern Sanitary Commission at Chicago, Ill., I cannot, with any due regard to a sense of gratitude for the great and inestimable blessings of which the U. S. Sanitary Commission has been the able almoner, omit the opportunity of expressing, through you, to the Commission:

1. Gratitude to God for raising and sending forth, on its mission of love, good will, and beneficent deeds among our hero-sick and wounded, the United States Sanitary Commission.

2. Thanks to the Commission for the ever-efficient manner in which supplies of all kinds, from the various Aid Societies in Michigan, have been forwarded by its agencies to the front.

3. Admiration of the vast and constantly increasing labors and resources of the Commission; the careful supervision exercised in all its departments; the efficiency of its business method; its charity, impartiality, and economy in the distribution of its stores, together with the rigid accountability to which all its agencies have been held.

4. A grateful sense of obligation to the Commission for the service it has rendered to the whole country, in the many lives which, under God, it has been instrumental in saving—by hundreds here in Michigan, by thousands in the whole land; to the widowed mothers, self-denying wives, patriot-minded sisters, who have sent out their sons, husbands, and brothers, our national jewels, to do battle for the life of the nation, right, and liberty.

5. A God-speed to the Commission in all its remaining work in the general hospitals, its Soldiers' Homes, its Employment, Bounty, Back Pay, and Pension Bureaus, with the earnest prayer that those agencies may be continued, in all their past and present efficiency, until the head-stone of its great work shall be brought forth by the Commission in ample relief, rendered to the last hero-soldier needing its aid.

In the expression of these sentiments, reverend and dear sir, I not only speak from my long and varied experiences and observations on the front as a chaplain, but I am sure I give utterance to the long entertained, well established, and thoroughly tested opinions of tens of thousands of patriotic minds in Michigan who have been associated, as humble auxiliaries, with the United States Sanitary Commission, in its truly noble, great, patriotic, catholic, and christian work.

More than this I may not now add. Less it were unjust to have said.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

SAMUEL DAY,

Com. U. S. Sanitary Supplies, Mich.

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR.

DEAR R.:—I cannot be with you in making up the last Bulletin.

You will insert the admirable address of the Board, to the Branches and Aid Societies. I forward to you divers letters and resolutions, which come fresh from the people, as expressive of their feelings in this time of parting, which you will put in their proper places.

I want to add, also, my own testimony to that of others, concerning the work in which we have been engaged with the people, and to express my appreciation of the cordial intercourse that has been so long maintained between the auxiliaries of the Commission and myself.

The single-mindedness and devotion of the women of the United States during the four years of sorrow and sacrifice through which we have passed, is without a parallel in history; but their own history must be written, and stand as a memorial for those who shall come after.

There is now being prepared a series of questions, to be submitted to them, which will enable all the societies in the country to return answers according to a uniform plan; and when these returns shall have been made, some idea can be formed of the magnitude and magnificence of the work.

The societies are still in existence, and will find it an agreeable service to collect incidents of their experience, and prepare the results of their labor, for permanent preservation by the Commission; while they will consider the future field that is open before them, appealing, as it does, to their sympathy, and awaiting the promptings of their genius for organization and labor, that has given such efficiency to the benevolence of the country during the war.

The Southern country—many parts of which are desolated by war—has a population which needs the aid of Northern enterprise and philanthropy. The people, depressed by defeat, schoolless and churchless, and without the energy and education which belong to a true social and civil state, look to the North for aid and instruction.

The Government has established a "Bureau for Freedmen, Refugees, and Abandoned lands," which, in the present crisis, stands before the people, as did the War Department in 1861, with the same kind of confidence in their willingness and ability to furnish the needed help.

As the women came forward then and organized to supplement the War Department, so they are beginning now to come forward to help the Government in this new field. That they may rise to the magnitude of the opportunity offered them is greatly to be desired; and if they resolve to do so, their record for the four years to come will be even more bright than it has been in the past. The country cannot afford to dispense with their services. The Government has depended upon the women of the land too long and too confidently, to spare them in the time of present trial.

The sore with which the South is bruised must be healed, until we can go in and out among them, as sharers of all the common industries and improvements of a wise civilization; and no power on earth is so efficient for good in this direction as woman's love and labor. Let these be spent in furnishing supplies to the needy, and instruction to the ignorant, and the next decade will show a new people, with new hopes, a new agriculture, new schools, new manufactories, and a blessing upon the sacred bond of domestic life.

I wish I could send you something about the new organization that is being formed, for the purpose of aiding and elevating the Freedmen; but I cannot now. I bespeak for it, however, a welcome support by the women who have organized and conducted the auxiliaries of the Sanitary Commission, and say farewell to them in this field of labor, with the hope of co-operation in the future.

Yours, faithfully,

JOSEPH PARRISH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12, 1865.

We call the attention of all to the full list of Claim Agencies on page 1276. Thousands of dollars are being collected monthly, without any expense whatever to the claimant.

FORM C.—MONTHLY RETURN FROM CLEVELAND BRANCH SANITARY CO MISSION SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY, NORTHERN OHIO.

CLEVELAND, July 1, 1865.

MONTH OF JUNE, 1865.

|                                          |    |
|------------------------------------------|----|
| Number of applications for employment :  |    |
| By able-bodied men.....                  | 36 |
| By disabled men.....                     | 44 |
| Total.....                               | 80 |
| Number of applications by employers..... |    |
| 22                                       |    |
| Number furnished with employment :       |    |
| Able-bodied men.....                     | 20 |
| Disabled men.....                        | 6  |
| Total.....                               | 26 |
| Kind of employment furnished :           |    |
| Agricultural.....                        | 5  |
| Mechanical.....                          | 3  |
| Commercial.....                          | 7  |
| Laborers.....                            | 2  |
| Others, not included in above.....       | 9  |

REPORT OF J. C. HOBLIT.

LOUISVILLE, KY., June 29, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY,

Sec'y West. Dept. U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR: On arriving in this city two weeks since, by your direction I immediately commenced visiting the troops located near the city, consisting of the 14th, 15th, and 17th Army Corps. I prosecuted this work until every portion of the army was reached. Substantial issues of vegetables have been made to every regiment, detachment, and headquarters, so far as I know, throughout the entire command. The issues made were at first once each week, but afterward twice, at the rate of four barrels of potatoes to each 100 men, one barrel of pickles to the regiment, unless there were more than 400 men, then two barrels. Onions were also distributed in considerable quantities, as well as other Sanitary stores, for the use of the sick in the regiments. There are no Division Hospitals as formerly. The sick are sent to the General Hospitals in and about Louisville. In some instances, however, there has been an attempt to retain and treat the patients, when they were not seriously sick, in the regimental quarters, rather than send them out of the command. Brown Hospital has received most of the patients from the army. This hospital is entirely too much crowded for its capacity, and number of surgeons and nurses. The patients have not been able to receive the attention they should, from this fact; the defect, however, is being corrected. The troops are exceedingly glad to receive the vegetables furnished by the Commission. The government is not supplying vegetables, and many have been the testimonies of both officers and private soldiers to the great value of our work. All the non-veterans have gone home, and now 15,000 of the veteran troops of the Army of the Tennessee are to be mustered out of the service immediately. One division of the 15th Army Corps has gone to Arkansas. Thus the large Army of the Tennessee will soon be reduced to a small command. I learn that the Corps organizations are to be broken up, and what troops are retained in the service will be sent to garrison different posts in the South. This will, perhaps, all have been accomplished by the last of July. Among all the troops I have been received with cordiality.

Yours, very truly,

J. C. HOBLIT.

REPORT OF DR. J. W. PAGE.

JNO. S. BLATCHFORD, ESQ.,

General Secretary U. S. San. Com.

DEAR SIR: Mr. F. A. S. Perry, who has been Relief Agent of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, in this department, since August of last year, left Newbern last week to report to the Central Office, at Washington. He went the inland route, via Raleigh and Greensboro to Richmond. Mr. Perry, after months of faithful service in this district, went forward with the advance stores on the spring campaign, and kept at the front until the capture of Kinston, where he remained in charge of the depot until the reduction of the garrison and the withdrawal of Sherman's army rendered the existence of a permanent depot unnecessary at that point. His efforts to forward our stores on the early marches, and his own personal labors and exposures in carrying supplies to the field hospitals, in the battles around Kinston, over roads which no vehicles but government wagons under military orders would venture to traverse, merit the high appreciation of the Commission, as they have gained him the thanks and gratitude of those who directly received the benefit of his self-sacrificing ministrations. I send you enclosed his special reports from March 4th to June 10th, which gives a fair exposé of his labors, and some inkling of the condition of the service, and the beneficial relations of the Sanitary Commission with it.

Since the closing of our Sanitary depot at Raleigh, all our relief work has been done from the depot at Newbern. The chief position of our white troops in this district have been in rendezvous at "Camp Chattanooga," a wide clearing in the woods, some three miles from town—a wild, romantic spot—first occupied as an encampment by that rollicking Irish General, Mcagher, with his nondescript brigade, the "Les enfans perdus" of our Southern armies. Here, in a space of rolling land, sufficient for the "Grand Army," are pleasantly bivouacked some dozen different military organizations, vying with each other in camp decorations and artificial evergreen shade—a rural oasis, eclipsing in picturesque effect the novel representations of romantic encampments set off by the rich fancy and facile pen of Bulwer. Here some thousands of our veteran troops, with their hearts fixed on near visions of home, await the slow routine of red tape to unloose the leash in which they are held, and let them speed to the longing arms so impatiently stretched forth to receive them. This clerical delay is straining the patience and martial discipline of these brave fellows to the utmost. While some relieve the strain on their patience by letting off unmeasured strictures on the motives of delinquent officers, others, and far the greater portion, despondent at delay, and sickened by hope deferred, are yielding to the depressing influences of the advancing season. With comparatively few severe cases, hundreds are on the sick list, and some of the more sensitive or susceptible have succumbed to a low but rapid type of fever. Every effort is being made to sustain the moralé of the men. The more intelligent officers cheer the encampment with musical soirees and evening hops; the Christian Commission are in the field with their good reading and boiled blackberry root; and the Sanitary are doing all that their generous stores and the bountiful yield of luxuriant gardens can do for the soldiers, to console their "outward and inward man." Young, ardent boys, and old, hirsute veterans, who, in the rough bivouac and stern excitement of actual war, left these "sick charities" to their less hardy comrades, now seek our stores and beg a memento, if only a handkerchief, to show the gentle ones at home that their handiwork has been within their reach, while breasting the dangers which beset their homes and their country. This association of the Sanitary Commission with their homes at this juncture of their service is a gratifying evidence of the relations the Commission has borne to the soldier in the camp, and how well he has appreciated the home-felt comforts it has brought to his relief. The presence of the mustering officer, and the arrival of transports to take them home, will do more for these soldiers than any direct relief. Several regiments have already embarked, and are on their homeward track. The 23d Massachusetts, 16th Connecticut, and 3d New York Artillery have shipped. The 5th Rhode Island, 15th Connecticut, and some others are mustered out, and awaiting transportation. I enclose a tribute to the Commission, sent in to me just as they were leaving the department, by the officers of the 3d New York Artillery, an immense regiment, whose attachment to this department has been coeval with that of the Commission. This expression was a spontaneous one, and quite unexpected, from batteries which have been on active duty to the most remote parts of the department.

Our season thus far is remarkably uniform, like the winter preceding it. This month we have had but three days with the thermometer at noon below 80°, and no day above 88°. There are many cases of sickness, but all mild. Most every one has felt more or less shaky, even though not subject to actual chills. The town is now clean, and is occupied wholly by colored troops. The general hospital has been removed to Morehead City. The hospital at Wilmington is to be broken up immediately, and its archives brought to the Medical Director's Office in Newbern. Mr. Foster reports favorably of sanitary matters there. The chief Medical Director of the department, Dr. Hand, applied to me last week for chloride of lime, to be used in Raleigh. A fatal fever, I understand, has broken out in and near the town, more especially in the spacious insane asylum in the suburbs, for which more particularly the disinfectant was required. I sent up ten barrels. The recent arrival of an invoice of chloride of lime and stone lime, fifty barrels of one and one hundred of the other, has enabled me to fill another timely requisition of an able and watchful Medical Director; this time for Greensboro, to which I also supplied ten barrels of chloride of lime. I inclose the requisition, which speaks for itself.

I shall make no requisitions at present on the general stores of the Commission.

The service seems to be gradually narrowing down to a peace establishment of black troops, the nature of whose duties will hardly necessitate the continued operation of extraordinary relief, but will assimilate itself to the condition and regime of the old regular army. The waning of the summer will probably witness the winding up of our hospitals, and the healing over of the human scars which are now the traces of the struggle we have passed through. Old mother earth will, however, with her ineffaceable trenches, and her serried graves, carry down to the remotest ages the balanced account between the dead and the living of the heaviest transaction since the formation of nations. Every element in nature has been drawn into the contest, and influences, more subtle and powerful than the fancy of heathen poets ever ascribed to their gods of war, have lent their might to turn the scale of the fight, making the moral effects of the war more imperishable and important on the welfare of the race than any revolution it may have effected in politics or in nationality. That the Sanitary Commission shall pass into history as the great humanizing spirit amid these stupendous powers of evil, now for the first time brought to bear collectively in the wars of mankind, immortalizes the period as the greatest triumph of practical Christianity over the passions of men.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. W. PAGE, M. D.,

Inspector U. S. S. C., Dept. N. C.

TESTIMONIAL.

HEADQUARTERS 3D REGT. N. Y. V. ART.,
NEWBURN, N. C., June, 1865.

DR. J. W. PAGE,
United States Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR: The undersigned, officers of the 3d Regiment N. Y. V. Artillery, desire to return to the Sanitary Commission our sincere thanks for the many kindnesses bestowed through you to the soldiers of our commands during this great rebellion. Many comforts have been dispensed to the soldiers which would not have been were it not for the Commission.

To you and your Assistants in North Carolina we would return thanks, believing there never was a better institution for the soldier, and no better person to care for it, in a department, than Dr. J. W. Page.

We subscribe ourselves, very respectfully, yours,

Charles H. Stewart, Col. 3d N. Y. V.

Art'y; T. J. Kennedy, Lt. Col. 3d N. Y. V. Art'y; J. W. P. Riggs, Maj. 3d N. Y. V. Art'y; A. D. Wilson, Surg. 3d N. Y. V. Art'y; F. W. Benjamin, Assist. Surgeon; J. E. Storke, 1st Lieut. and Adj't.; O. D. Ball, 1st Lieut. and R. Q. M.; Samuel P. Russell, Captain Comdg. Battery A; William E. Mercer, Capt. Comdg. Battery C; Stephen Van Housen, Capt. Comdg. Battery D; W. A. Kelsoy, Capt. Comdg. Battery G; W. M. Kirby, Capt. Comdg. Battery I; S. H. Mowers, Capt. Comdg. Battery L; William Richardson, 1st Lieut. Battery A; G. H. Edward, 2d, 1st Lieut. Battery C; John Stevenson, Jr., 1st Lieut. Battery D; Edward Cunningham, 2d Lieut. Battery A; John Marley, 2d Lieut. Battery A; Wm. H. Coffin, 2d Lieut. Battery C; Martin Welster, 2d Lieut. Battery C; Thomas Vanderberg, 2d Lieut. Battery D; J. I. Brinkerhoff, Jr., 2d Lieut. Battery D; Charles A. Moore, 2d Lieut. Battery G; R. D. Wade, 2d Lieut. Battery G; H. W. Seymour, 2d Lieut. Battery I; Wm. E. Goodnick, 2d Lieut. Battery I; L. S. Newcomb, 2d Lieut. Battery L.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION, NO. 91.

On the 22d March, 1864, the Sanitary Commission resolved to ask the aid and cooperation of an Auxiliary Finance Committee, to be composed of gentlemen of the highest position and standing, on whose advice it could depend in any questions that might arise as to the best management of its funds.

It was thought desirable that this Committee should also be requested from time to time, to pass upon and examine the accounts and vouchers of its Treasurer. These have been audited and examined by Committees appointed by the Commission and consisting of its own members, at intervals of not less than three months, ever since the Commission was appointed in June, 1861, and have been found correct. But the amount confided to the Commission by the people has been so large, and the responsibility thus imposed on it so heavy, that a thorough investigation of its expenditures by gentlemen not belonging to its own body seemed expedient for the protection of the Commission and the satisfaction of the public.

Messrs. A. A. Low, Jonathan Sturges and John Jacob Astor, Jr., having consented to act as such Auxiliary Finance Committee, all the books, accounts, and vouchers of the Treasurer from June 26, 1861, the date of the first entry they contain (including those of the Washington and Louisville offices) were laid before this Committee. It proceeded to engage the services of a professional accountant, and on the 30th May, 1865, reported the result of its examination down to January, 1865.

The reports of the Committee and of its accountant are as follows :

NEW YORK, May 30, 1865.

GEO. T. STRONG, ESQ.,

Treasurer.

DEAR SIR: We hereby certify that Mr. James M. Halsey, Teller of the Seamen's Savings Bank, was selected and appointed by us to examine into the books and accounts of the Sanitary Commission, and after many months devoted to this work more or less continuously, the accompanying certificate shows the result of his examination.

His name is appended to a statement of receipts and disbursements from June 26, 1861, to January 1, 1865, sent herewith, the aggregate being $3,470,587 94.

Respectfully yours,

J. J. ASTOR, JR.,
A. A. LOW,
JON'N STURGES.

78, WALL STREET,
NEW YORK, July 20, 1864.

Messrs. A. A. LOW, ESQ., JONATHAN STURGES,
ESQ., J. J. ASTOR, JR., ESQ.

GENTLEMEN: I have to report (pursuant to your instructions) that the accounts of the Treasurer of the U. S. Sanitary Commission have been carefully examined, and that I find them correct in all particulars.

The examination included the bank accounts kept by the Treasurer, and I find vouchers returned for the same, correct both as to date and amount.

Herewith I hand you a statement of the receipts and disbursements of the Commission from June 26, 1861, to May 1, 1864, showing a balance of cash on hand of $394,598 62, which I find to have been the balance on the Bank Books at that date.

Any further information you may wish in regard to the accounts I shall be pleased to furnish, with the assistance of the Assistant Secretary, (Mr. B. Collins,) at any time when required.

Respectfully yours,

JAS. M. HALSEY.

NEW YORK, March 30, 1865.

Messrs. A. A. LOW, ESQ., JONATHAN STURGES,
ESQ., J. J. ASTOR, JR., ESQ., Committee.

GENTLEMEN: Herewith I hand you my report of the operations of the U. S. Sanitary Commission from June, 1861, to January, 1865.

Upon a careful examination of the books, I find vouchers for all disbursements, and, to the best of my knowledge and belief, the enclosed account is correct in every particular.

Respectfully yours, &c.,

JAS. M. HALSEY.

The same Committee has been requested to continue its examination from 1st Jan., 1865, until the affairs of the Commission shall be finally wound up. The result of such future examination will be duly laid before the public.

HENRY W. BELLOWS,
President.

JNO S. BLATCHFORD,

General Secretary.

823 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, June 1, 1865.

REPORT OF DR. J. S. NEWBERRY, ASSOCIATE SECRETARY WESTERN DEPARTMENT.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION,
LOUISVILLE, KY., July 8, 1865.

J. S. BLATCHFORD, ESQ.,

General Secretary Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR: I regret to say that the oppressively hot weather of the last month, combined with the unusual amount of work thrown upon us, have so far affected the health of my associates and myself, that it is impossible for me, at present, to make the journey to Washington, and report in person the condition of our Sanitary work in this Department. I must try, therefore, to give you a brief synopsis of it by letter, trusting that this will afford all the information necessary to enable the Board to legislate for this, as all other parts of our field of labor, at its ensuing meeting.

In its general aspects, the work of the Sanitary Commission in the Western Department is not greatly different from what it has been during most of the past two years, and the changes which we had anticipated would take place as soon as the first of this month, have not as yet occurred. During the past quarter, all departments of our work have been nearly as active as at any former period, and our labors at this point have for the past month been greatly increased by the immediate presence of 50,000 troops, just returned from a campaign without precedent for its hardships, craving, and really needing, an amount of help from the Commission, which has taxed our power and resources to the utmost. The demand for assistance of various kinds in other parts of our extended department has, for various reasons, been even more important than heretofore; and it now seems probable that, contrary to all expectation, the last days of the Sanitary Commission will be among its busiest.

The movements of troops, the transfers of patients in hospital, the wholesale discharge of invalids, the mustering-out of large numbers of men, have produced a degree of activity, and even confusion, in military operations, that have thrown upon us much unusual thought, labor, and expenditure.

Our Homes have been filled with discharged and furloughed men; the Hospital Directory been burdened with the discussion of an unusual mass of records; and the confusion attending the disorganization and re-arrangement of a great and widely-scattered army, has left regiments and hospitals more dependent upon the attentions and charities of the Commission than when we had a larger force in the field, but that force—while enduring all the hardships and performing all the duties of an active campaign—stimulated by the excitement, and provided for by the necessary system of real and successful warfare.

The want of vegetables and other anti-scorbutics, which has been felt among our troops every spring since the war began, has been as plainly felt and expressed during the last quarter as at any former time. To meet this want we have gathered potatoes and onions, sourkrout and pickles, from all parts of the North-Western States, and even from Canada, and have sent them not only to all parts of this Department, but have forwarded several large shipments, at his request, to Dr. Blake, at New Orleans. Copies of his letters asking for and acknowledging these shipments are herewith enclosed.

The Army of the Tennessee, which, war-worn, unpaid, and hungry, has been encamped at Louisville since the first of June, has been liberally dealt with, from considerations of both policy and philanthropy. The markets of the Ohio Valley being nearly exhausted of vegetables, almost nothing of the kind has been issued to this Army by the Commissary, while, by purchasing far north, we have been able to issue regularly to the entire Army a larger allowance of potatoes, onions, pickles, and krout than they have at any time received from the Government.

We have issued once and sometimes twice a week, for the past month, four barrels of potatoes, and one of pickles or krout to every two hundred men. We have also issued largely of other stores included in our supply table, but the items I have mentioned have been by far the most important. The effect of this special effort to feed a whole army hardly needs, I think, to be discussed before approval. Probably not all we have been doing for this army during the past three years has done so much to make them know and feel the value of the Commission. They will certainly leave here with a pleasant taste of the Sanitary Commission in their mouths, and are likely to be led by this comparatively unimportant service to give us something of the credit with our constituency at home, which all our silent and legitimate good-doing in hospitals would have failed to obtain.

Although the demand has, I have said, been kept up, the supply, so far as derived from contributions in kind, has considerably fallen off, especially during the past month. This has been a consequence of a general conviction that "the war is over," and the work of the Sanitary Commission about done. This impression was strengthened by the issue of Sanitary Commission Document 90, which, while giving a just view of our work at the East, anticipated the progress of events at the West by two or three months. For this reason our purchases have been unexpectedly large for the month of June.

The effect of our liberal issues to the Army of the Tennessee has been happy in more respects than one. Not only has the issue of vegetables, pickles, &c., had an important influence on the health and comfort of the troops, but has done much to make them contented in the peculiar and trying circumstances in which they have been placed. I am promised testimonials to this effect from a large number of officers.

In the Louisville office few changes have occurred which require notice. Mr. Thorne, having been most laboriously engaged in the service of the Sanitary Commission without intermission for more than a year, has taken a furlough for thirty days. Dr. Soulé was two weeks since taken sick, and has been since dangerously ill, but, I am happy to say, is now better.

The Reporter, having finished its second volume in May, has not been since published. I propose, however, to issue a supplementary number in a few days, bringing the record of our work down to the present time.

The work of the Hospital Directory has been nearly as active during the last quarter as at any previous period. Reports have been regularly received from the hospitals to July 1, and information has not only been furnished to individuals, but not unfrequently to the officers of Government. Several inquiries have been received from the Adjutant General's Office at Washington, all of which have been satisfactorily answered.

In accordance with permission given me at the last meeting of the Board, the list of deaths in the prison at Andersonville was purchased, and has been incorporated with the other records of the Hospital Directory. This list included 12,456 names, giving the name, rank, company, regiment, disease, date of death, and place of burial, of every man who died in that prison during its existence, with the exception of some 428, who, dying without friends or papers, could not be identified. This record has proved of great value, and has told the fate of a large number whose friends have previously sought in vain to gain any intelligence of them.

The circular recently issued by the Surgeon General is likely to render it more difficult than it has been for us to gather the facts which form the Directory Record; but, in view of the great value of this record to the people and the Government, and the fact that not the slightest evil has ever been traced to it, I can hardly believe the medical authorities in this department will literally construe it.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

The work of the Homes at the West has as yet fallen off but little. The number of applicants for admission to those on and south of the Ohio river has somewhat decreased, but those admitted are now almost exclusively furloughed and discharged men.

The Homes in the "home field"—as at Cleveland, Columbus, &c.—have been crowded by returning regiments, and have done, and are doing, a great and most popular work.

WEST VIRGINIA.

The Agency of the Supply Department at Wheeling, having in a great degree lost its importance, has been discontinued. Any general work which may be necessary will be performed by the newly-appointed Claim Agent at that place.

KANSAS.

Mr. Brown writes from Leavenworth that the work of the Commission in his district is as urgent as ever, keeping him fully employed, and consuming all the stores he can procure.

DISTRICT OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

Dr. Woodward has remained in charge of this district until the present time, but now enters upon a work of special inspection under Dr. Harris.

Our Agencies at Cairo and Memphis are still kept in full activity, though their work must soon diminish. Mr. Shipman remains in charge at Cairo; Mr. Christy and Mr. Way at Memphis. The Agency at Vicksburg has been discontinued, as no longer necessary, and our excellent representative there, Mr. Brown, has left the service of the Commission.

In Arkansas we have now no agent. Dr. Woodward has been there recently, but it has scarcely seemed necessary for us to do more during the past quarter than to make occasional shipments of stores from Memphis.

Mr. D. B. Carpenter, who formerly represented us so ably in Arkansas, is now in Montgomery, Ala., where he went in company with the 16th Army Corps. His services in connection with that Corps are recognized in the accompanying testimonial of Maj. Gen. A. J. Smith.

The Agency at Paducah has been discontinued since my last report, and Mr. Way, the Superintendent, has been transferred to Jeffersonville, where he takes the place of Major Smith, resigned on account of ill health.

At Seymour, fifty miles north of Jeffersonville, a Lodge and feeding station has been established for the benefit of soldiers detained at that important railroad crossing. This Lodge is in care of Mr. W. Ackley.

DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

The Agency at Nashville still continues in the good hands of Judge Root, Capt. Brayton, and Mr. Jones, and is still doing a great and good work. During the past quarter the presence of the Fourth Army Corps has greatly increased the duties of our agents at Nashville, but, so far as I can learn, their responsibilities have been fully sustained, and the reputation of the Commission with the Army of the Cumberland maintained to its final dismemberment. During the past three years our Agency at Nashville has occupied large and commodious buildings furnished by the Government. A few days since all the property held by military authority in the city, including some two hundred buildings, was restored to its owners. By this measure we are placed at the mercy of the proprietor of the premises occupied by us, for which they demand an aggregate rent of about $10,000 per annum. We shall therefore be compelled to look elsewhere for accommodations. If these are not readily found, the warehouse and Home will be closed. The office we shall retain control of, and it will be occupied by the Claim Agency, if one shall be established there.

CHATTANOOGA.

This post has lost much of its former importance, but it still contains something of a hospital population, and is the base of supplies for a number of garrisons. The hospital garden at Chattanooga is now in a fine state of cultivation, and is almost the only dependence for vegetable food of hospitals and troops in the vicinity.

The Agency at Knoxville is now scarcely less useful than at any time during the past year; but on the arrival of Mr. Seymour, the newly-appointed Claim Agent, the services of Dr. Starr and Mr. Mason can be dispensed with; Mr. Seymour taking charge of any relief or supply-work remaining to be done.

A large number of names are stricken from our roster this month, and in September I feel that we may dispense with all but a corporal's guard, whose duty will be simply to administer upon the estate of the then deceased Sanitary Commission, which shall at that time have entered upon its destined immortality.

Hastily, but respectfully, yours,
J. S. NEWBERRY,
 Associate Secretary.

HOSPITAL GARDEN.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., July 1, 1865.

DR. J. S. NEWBERRY.

DEAR SIR: It gives me pleasure to inform you of the successful operations of our Garden thus far. The past, three or four weeks have been very hot and dry; regardless of this, our crops are looking well. The much-needed rain has come; we are getting a splendid shower, which seems likely to continue for the day.

Troops are being fast sent from here; still there are enough left to consume the products of the Garden, which have been considerable, as enclosed report will show. Our Garden is attended to with much less labor this season than last year, with as good or better results. Our present help will not number more than half that of last year. The vineyards, too, are looking well, up to this time. If the present rain does not continue, the prospects are favorable for a good crop of grapes. The owners of the vineyards are expected here in a few days: two of their servants have arrived. From the number of troops supplied during the season, I think almost every man must have enjoyed the fruits of our industry. I do not know of any requisition that has not been filled, the supply being sufficient for the demand up to this time.

Our floricultural arrangements this season are much enlarged, a number of varieties being added which are doing splendidly up to this time, and are visited by large numbers of persons, who are highly pleased with appearances.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
 THOS. WILLS.

TESTIMONIAL OF GEN. SMITH.

HEADQUARTERS 16TH ARMY CORPS,
 DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF,
 MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA, June 17, 1865.

MR. D. B. CARPENTER,
 Relief Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission.

DEAR SIR: I have had the pleasure of observing the amount of material and much needed aid which has been extended to the troops of my command by means of your agency, and I cannot permit you to go from among us without giving you a feeble expression of the deep feelings which we cherish towards the noble society which you have so faithfully represented, and whose benevolent objects you have so ably carried out. The war is over, and thousands of patriot soldiers are returning to their homes, carrying with them reminiscences of the eventful scenes of the past, which, for long years to come, they will rehearse to their children, and their children's children; and among their reminiscences, many will tell how, when they were wounded and faint and weary, "the agents of the blessed Sanitary Commission" came and cared for them "like ministering spirits," binding up their wounds, and uttering words of hope and comfort, gave to them all the aid which man could render to his suffering fellows. In behalf of the officers and men of this corps, I tender to you and the Sanitary Commission our most heartfelt thanks for the many favors which we have received at your generous hands, and assure you that they will be gratefully remembered by us all.

I am, yours truly,

A. J. SMITH,
Major General, U. S. A.

REPORT OF BOSTON EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

SANITARY COMMISSION,
OFFICE EX. COM., 76 KINGSTON STREET,
BOSTON, July 10, 1865.

JNO. S. BLATCHFORD,
Gen. Sec. U. S. Sanitary Commission,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SIR: I submit herewith a report concerning the Special Relief Service of the U. S. Sanitary Commission in this city for the quarter ending June 30, 1865.

AID RENDERED.

|                                                      |            |
|------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Furnished transportation at Government rates.....    | 3,850      |
| Furnished transportation paid by Commission.....     | 81         |
| Furnished transportation by U. S. Quartermaster..... | 12         |
| Furnished carriage within the city.....              | 811        |
| Furnished special attendance to their homes.....     | 3          |
| Furnished lodging.....                               | 6,283      |
| Furnished clothing.....                              | 7,057      |
| Furnished aid in arranging papers.....               | 94         |
| Furnished aid in obtaining pay.....                  | 104        |
| Furnished medical advice.....                        | 448        |
| Wounds dressed.....                                  | 317        |
| Loaned money.....                                    | 121        |
| Gave money.....                                      | 23         |
| Sent to hospital.....                                | 22         |
| Referred to Local Relief Associations.....           | 35         |
| Amount of pay collected.....                         | $2,099 85 |
| Furnished transportation by hospital cars.....       | 4,314      |
| Number of soldiers aided.....                        | 12,779     |
| Daily average.....                                   | 140.13-30  |

Of the whole number that have received aid at our Relief Rooms, amounting to 8,465, as distinct from the "Hospital Car Service," Maine has furnished 2,317; New Hampshire, 286; Vermont, 19; Massachusetts, 4,396; Connecticut, 45; Rhode Island, 18; New York, 117; New Jersey, 4; Pennsylvania, 22; Maryland, 7; District of Columbia, 15; Delaware, 2; Ohio, 12; Michigan, 17; Indiana, 3; Illinois, 8; Iowa, 3; Minnesota, 9; Wisconsin, 7; Tennessee, 2; California, 10; Louisiana, 10; Alabama, 4; Georgia, 3; Kentucky, Kansas, North Carolina, Virginia, Arkansas, and rebel army, one each; U. S. Regulars, 265; U. S. Navy, 430; Veteran Reserve Corps, 381.

The following supplies have been drawn from the Supply Department of the New England Women's Auxiliary Association: sheets, 48; pillow cases, 96; woolen shirts, 276; woolen drawers, 264; socks, 264; handkerchiefs, 192; bandages, 6 lots; lint, 1 lot; caps, 12.

|                                                                                        |             |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Transportation has been furnished by orders issued upon respective railroads, to.....  | 3,850       |
| Transportation procured from U. S. Quartermaster.....                                  | 12          |
| Transportation by hospital cars between New York and Boston has been furnished to..... | 4,314       |
| Cost of Hospital Car Service.....                                                      | $108 13    |
| Average cost per man.....                                                              | 10 1/4 cts. |

The following supplies have been furnished to the hospital cars during the quarter: brandy, 5 bottles; whisky, 6 bottles; wine, 4 bottles; extract of coffee, 3 cans; pillow slips, 24; fans, 6; bay water, 2 bottles; kerosene, half gallon; wicking, 1 p'kg; soap, 1 lot; chloride of lime, 1 bottle.

The total expenditure for the quarter has been $8,197 19, classified as follows:

|                                                                     |             |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Rent and taxes.....                                                 | $225 00    |
| Furnishing and repairs.....                                         | 214 58      |
| Salaries.....                                                       | 1,040 01    |
| Travelling expenses.....                                            | 6 00        |
| Advertising.....                                                    | 78 84       |
| Stationery and printing.....                                        | 164 01      |
| Hospital stores.....                                                | 19 95       |
| Superintendent's expense account.....                               | 6,025 58    |
| Miscellaneous.....                                                  | 16 04       |
| Hospital Car Service.....                                           | 408 18      |
| Whole number of men aided.....                                      | 12,779      |
| Whole expenditure.....                                              | $8,197 19  |
| Average cost per man.....                                           | 64.1-7 cts. |
| Number of soldiers furnished with meals.....                        | 7,057       |
| Number of meals furnished.....                                      | 15,346      |
| Average No. meals per man.....                                      | 2 1/4       |
| Amount paid for meals.....                                          | $6,077 22  |
| Average cost per meal.....                                          | 38 1/2 cts. |
| Number of orders issued for transportation at Government rates..... | 3,850       |
| Aggregate miles of distance.....                                    | 279,533     |
| Resulting in a saving to the soldier of.....                        | $2,975 12  |
| Amount of money loaned and given.....                               | $25 89     |
| Number of recipients.....                                           | 144         |
| Average amount to each.....                                         | $2 26      |
| Amount returned.....                                                | 75 67       |
| Average amount returned.....                                        | 13-34       |
| Number furnished with clothing.....                                 | 139         |
| Number of garments furnished.....                                   | 317         |
| Average per man.....                                                | 2.3-18      |

Your obedient servant,

JAS. M. BARNARD,

Ch. Ex. Com. Boston Associates U. S. Sanitary Commission.

WOMAN'S CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF RELIEF—No. XII.

To the Members of Soldiers' Aid Societies, lately auxiliary to the Woman's Central Association of Relief:

DEAR FRIENDS: There are a few last words still to be said to you, and it is my privilege to be allowed to say them.

We asked you to continue your work until the 4th of July. On the 3d of July, the last day, we received 57 packages, a larger number than on any previous day for many months. Our receipts throughout the past fortnight have been also unusually large. We were not surprised; you told us you would go on with your work until we asked you to stop.

The Final Meeting of our Association was held on the 7th of July. It was de-

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT--CONSOLIDATED REPORT OF EIGHTEEN

| PLACES.                              | PLACES.  |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
|--------------------------------------|----------|-----------|-------------|--------------|-----------|-----------------------|----------|----------|-----------|----------|-------|---------|-----------|------------|--------|-----------|----------------|-----------|------------|--------------|-----------|-----------|----------------|-------------|-----------|-----------------|
|                                      | Alabama. | Arkansas. | California. | Connecticut. | Delaware. | District of Columbia. | Florida. | Georgia. | Illinois. | Indiana. | Iowa. | Kansas. | Kentucky. | Louisiana. | Maine. | Maryland. | Massachusetts. | Michigan. | Minnesota. | Mississippi. | Missouri. | Nebraska. | New Hampshire. | New Jersey. | New York. | North Carolina. |
| Alexandria, Va.               |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Rest,"                    |          |           |             | 30           | 17        |                       |          |          | 96        | 60       | 26    |         | 6         |            | 64     | 28        | 88             | 36        | 27         |              | 2         |           | 31             | 66          | 286       |                 |
| J. B. Holt, Supt.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Annapolis.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "The Home" Relatives.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       | 2        |          |           | 1        |       |         |           |            | 3      |           | 2              | 1         |            |              |           |           |                | 2           | 8         |                 |
| C. P. Howes, Supt.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Baltimore.                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "The Home"                           |          |           |             | 3            | 1         |                       |          |          | 5         | 4        | 2     |         | 6         |            | 15     | 6         | 11             |           |            |              | 1         |           | 2              | 11          | 52        |                 |
| A. E. Hastings, Supt.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Boston.                       |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    | 1        | 10        | 9           |              | 6         |                       | 3        |          |           | 1        | 1     |         |           |            | 667    |           | 904            | 7         | 3          |              |           |           | 137            |             | 35        |                 |
| Chas. E. Mudge, Supt.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Buffalo, N. Y.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Rest,"                    | 1        |           | 3           |              |           |                       |          |          | 11        | 17       | 18    |         | 1         |            |        | 6         | 6              | 1         |            | 1            |           | 1         |                | 1           | 92        |                 |
| Mrs. H. Indevine, Mat.               |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Camp Nelson, Ky.              |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          | 72        | 14       |       |         | 316       |            |        |           |                | 168       |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Thos. Butler, Supt.                  |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Columbus, Ohio.               |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    | 4        |           | 9           |              |           |                       |          |          | 50        | 188      | 11    |         | 109       |            | 2      | 5         | 16             | 118       |            | 7            |           |           | 2              | 6           | 79        |                 |
| T. E. Botsford, Supt.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Cairo, Ill.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    | 1        |           |             |              |           | 2                     |          | 639      | 320       | 184      | 9     | 25      | 9         | 3          | 2      | 5         | 71             | 56        |            | 145          |           |           | 16             | 60          | 2         |                 |
| C. N. Shipman, Supt.                 |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Jeffersonville, Ind.          |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    |          |           |             | 6            |           |                       |          |          | 135       | 234      | 37    |         | 35        |            |        |           | 9              | 117       | 11         |              | 6         |           |                | 7           | 67        |                 |
| Egbert T. Smith, Supt.               |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Memphis, Tenn.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    | 2        | 5         |             | 5            |           |                       |          |          | 245       | 126      | 62    | 29      | 23        |            | 4      | 2         | 10             | 73        | 62         | 2            | 75        | 2         |                | 11          | 41        |                 |
| C. W. Christy, Supt.                 |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Nashville, Tenn.              |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Jos. Gillson, Supt.                  |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Portsmouth, Va.               |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    |          |           |             | 16           | 1         |                       |          |          | 2         |          |       | 5       |           | 5          | 2      | 3         | 56             | 10        |            |              |           |           | 3              | 6           | 189       |                 |
| Jno. L. Alcock, Supt.                |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Cleveland, Ohio.              |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| J. Jerome, Supt.                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Nashville, Tenn.              |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    | 36       |           |             | 4            |           |                       |          |          | 478       | 615      | 76    | 24      | 101       |            | 3      | 2         | 4              | 479       |            | 155          | 449       |           |                | 5           | 62        |                 |
| Isaac Brayton, Supt.                 |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| New Orleans, La.              |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    |          |           |             | 4            |           |                       |          |          | 250       | 112      | 114   | 3       | 15        | 42         | 15     | 4         | 55             | 17        | 45         |              | 34        |           |                | 10          | 52        |                 |
| N. S. Bullard, Supt.                 |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Paducah, Ky.                  |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Soldiers' Home,"                    |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          | 75        | 22       | 30    | 1       | 4         |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                | 2           |           |                 |
| E. D. Way, Supt.                     |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Washington, D. C.             |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "The Home"                           |          | 1         | 22          | 10           |           |                       |          |          | 17        | 13       | 6     |         | 5         |            | 50     | 17        | 114            | 55        | 4          |              |           |           | 38             | 25          | 344       |                 |
| J. B. Clark, Supt.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "The Home for wivesand mothers," |          |           |             | 4            | 4         |                       |          |          | 1         | 1        |       |         |           |            | 2      | 12        | 13             |           |            |              |           |           | 6              | 6           | 42        |                 |
| J. B. Clark, Supt.                   |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Lodge No. 4,"                       |          | 1         | 7           | 5            |           |                       |          |          | 41        | 18       | 8     | 2       | 3         | 17         | 47     | 9         | 149            | 20        | 3          |              | 4         | 1         | 14             | 17          | 188       |                 |
| D. G. Loomis, Supt.                  |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| "Lodge No. 6,"                       |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| H. Y. McPherran, Supt.               |          |           |             |              |           |                       |          |          |           |          |       |         |           |            |        |           |                |           |            |              |           |           |                |             |           |                 |
| Total                         | 44       | 6         | 12          | 122          | 38        | 6                     | 4        | 7        | 2,117     | 1,746    | 580   | 59      | 634       | 68         | 878    | 90        | 1,442          | 1,178     | 212        | 167          | 730       | 3         | 235            | 195         | 1,587     | 4               |

cided then that we should request you to send any supplies intended for us, and which you were unable to finish by the time specified for closing, to our old address, that being so well known by Express-men and carriers. The supplies will be received by an agent of the Sanitary Commission, at one of their storehouses, nearly opposite the Cooper Union. The letters, containing invoices, should be addressed "U. S. Sanitary Commission, 823 Broadway, New York." This is in answer to several letters recently received from you upon this subject.

At the same meeting, the proposition of having a History of the Woman's Central "HOMES," "LODGES," AND "RESTS," FOR THE MONTH OF MAY, 1865.

| Ohio. | Pennsylvania. | Rhode Island. | Tennessee. | Texas. | Vermont. | Virginia. | West Virginia. | Wisconsin. | U. S. Regulars. | U. S. Navy. | Vet. Reserve Corps. | Q. M. Department. | Paroled Prisoners. | Colored Troops. | Unclassified. | Total Soldiers. | Relatives. | Refugees. | Whole number. | Lodgings. | Meals. | Furloughed. | Discharged. | Under Orders. |
|-------|---------------|---------------|------------|--------|----------|-----------|----------------|------------|-----------------|-------------|---------------------|-------------------|--------------------|-----------------|---------------|-----------------|------------|-----------|---------------|-----------|--------|-------------|-------------|---------------|
| 88    | 294           | 46            |            | 33     | 8        | 26        | 19             |            | 13              |             | 100                 |                   | 324                | 1,714           | 61            | 12              | 1,787      | 1,294     | 4,912         | 76        | 100    | 1,538       |             |               |
| 1     | 14            |               |            |        |          | 4         |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    |                 |               | 38              |            | 38        | 409           | 1,315     |        |             |             |               |
| 7     | 31            | 1             | 1          | 6      |          | 4         | 2              |            | 1               |             | 45                  |                   |                    | 218             | 31            | 62              | 311        | 321       | 1,255         | 78        | 38     | 61          |             |               |
| 5     | 3             | 7             | 1          | 7      |          | 3         | 104            | 93         | 148             | 3           | 176                 |                   |                    | 2,334           | 20            | 1               | 2,355      | 1,785     | 4,009         | 959       | 862    | 353         |             |               |
| 28    |               | 4             | 2          | 2      | 2        | 16        | 10             | 6          | 6               |             |                     |                   |                    | 2               | 225           |                 | 225        | 276       | 838           | 77        | 156    |             |             |               |
| 168   |               |               |            |        |          | 6         |                |            | 20              |             | 238                 |                   |                    | 1,002           | 17            | 10              | 1,038      | 1,068     | 2,916         | 26        | 198    | 778         |             |               |
| 1,720 | 31            | 4             | 55         | 15     | 6        |           |                |            |                 |             | 107                 |                   |                    | 2,544           |               |                 | 2,544      | 2,436     | 5,948         | 556       | 1,096  | 892         |             |               |
| 174   | 36            | 2             | 72         | 2      | 5        | 5         | 1,437          |            |                 |             | 206                 |                   | 9                  | 3,488           |               | 1               | 3,489      | 1,608     | 7,849         | 1,221     | 237    | 30          |             |               |
| 239   | 18            |               | 7          | 1      | 63       | 236       | 362            | 4          | 66              | 2           | 1,662               | 8                 | 8                  | 1,678           | 8             | 8               | 1,678      | 218       | 2,437         | 594       | 332    | 688         |             |               |
| 149   | 44            | 1             | 102        | 2      | 6        | 192       | 4              | 1          | 51              | 465         | 3                   |                   |                    | 1,790           |               | 40              | 1,830      | 1,007     | 3,410         | 159       | 151    | 940         |             |               |
|       |               |               |            |        |          |           |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    | 1,008           |               |                 | 1,008      |           |               |           |        |             |             |               |
| 11    | 19            | 4             |            | 3      |          | 2         |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    | 337             | 5             | 8               | 350        | 806       | 2,435         |           |        |             |             |               |
|       |               |               |            |        |          |           |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    | 1,656           |               |                 | 1,656      | 683       | 3,832         |           |        |             |             |               |
| 705   | 87            |               | 295        |        |          | 146       |                |            |                 |             | 4029                | 49                |                    | 4,078           |               |                 | 4,078      | 3,006     | 8,620         | 675       | 3,337  |             |             |               |
| 84    | 29            | 19            | 7          | 3      | 14       | 113       | 1              |            | 9               |             | 114                 | 43                |                    | 1,218           |               |                 | 1,218      | 3,100     | 15,452        | 263       | 611    | 344         |             |               |
| 23    | 2             |               | 15         |        |          | 25        | 2              |            | 7               |             | 33                  |                   |                    | 254             |               |                 | 254        | 800       | 3,671         | 25        | 25     | 204         |             |               |
| 41    | 224           | 5             | 3          | 13     | 10       | 27        |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    | 1,044           | 2             | 4               | 1,050      | 3,438     | 9,168         | 253       | 314    | 477         |             |               |
| 6     | 39            | 2             |            | 1      |          |           |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    | 139             | 21            | 160             | 715        | 1,476     |               |           |        |             |             |               |
| 56    | 163           | 16            | 5          | 13     | 5        | 10        |                |            |                 |             |                     |                   |                    | 824             |               |                 | 824        | 3,322     | 12,431        | 241       | 543    |             |             |               |
|       |               |               |            |        |          | 15        |                |            | 20              | 7           | 25                  | 50                |                    | 117             |               | 10              | 127        | 39        | 1,400         |           |        |             |             |               |
| 3,505 | 1034          | 111           | 565        | 5      | 94       | 38        | 19             | 1,934      | 839             | 100         | 559                 | 92                | 1,190              | 449             | 369           | 25,474          | 370        | 186       | 26,030        | 26,322    | 93,374 | 5,203       | 8,010       | 6,300         |

Association written for publication, was considered. It was decided to have it done; and a Committee, composed of members of the Board, was appointed to prepare it, at their own time and convenience.

Our books, letters, and papers will be turned over to the Sanitary Commission, at their request, and, with their own records and those of the other Branches, will finally be deposited for preservation in some public building, probably in Washington.

Should there be any unsettled accounts still open, which we have not thought of, or should extra copies of our Final Report be desired, or other pamphlets of the Association, letters addressed to Miss Ellen Collins or myself, at the office of the Sanitary Commission, 823 Broadway, will reach us. And it will give us both great pleasure to hear from you, dear friends, at any time, upon any subject.

There is one explanation and apology which I wish to make to some of you. In No. 11 of the series of papers of which this is the last, we promised to send a lecturer in the course of the winter, to explain the work of the Sanitary Commission to any society desiring it. We were never able to fulfill the promise, and the annoyance and regret this has occasioned us have been, we trust, far greater than your disappointment. The explanation is, that we were obliged to depend for our lecturers upon the Canvassing and Supply Department of the Commission. Owing to the very numerous applications for lecturers, made simultaneously by all the Eastern Branches, this department was entirely over-taxed, and unable to obtain a sufficient number of gentlemen capable of filling the position. We are very sorry to have thus been obliged to break faith with you, for the first time.

I have been requested to say, that persons desiring Card Photographs of the Exterior of our Office, No. 11 Cooper Union, can obtain them by sending their names and addresses, and enclosing 25 cents, to Roekwood & Co., Photographers, 839 Broadway, N. Y. For larger photographs of the same, 75 cents.

Before closing I must thank you for your most precious, farewell letters, which have come to us during the past fortnight, and which have given us great pleasure. We would like to answer each separately, but there are many hundreds of them, and the winding up of our work will still keep us so busy for several weeks that it is impossible to do so.

We knew that we loved you, and we thought that we knew how you loved us, but we have never really known it until now—when the time has come for us to part. This spontaneous expression of such warm affection on your part has completely overcome us, and there have not been many dry eyes or clear voices at our rooms lately, after the receipt of the day's mail.

We feel humbled too. How can it be otherwise, when we see how entirely you have over-estimated our share in the work? Our part in it, with the stimulant and excitement of being so much nearer the centre of interest, with our great opportunities of seeing and knowing what was being done, and sustained by the sympathy received daily through your letters, has been nothing compared to the great difficulties which you have met and overcome in keeping up the interest of the work, and in raising the funds for the support of your societies. We know all about it—just how hard it has been sometimes for you to struggle on, the amount of time and labor often spent in raising the five or ten dollars, collected at many houses, in many little pieces of currency; the walks through the cold, and the heat, and the storm to go to that weekly meeting; the home sacrifices made by those who could not otherwise have given to the soldiers; and all this quietly, constantly, cheerfully. No, dear friends, these are not little things; we cannot forget them; and we could not, in all sincerity, have left your last letters unanswered without saying this to you.

We have all tried to do our duty; but, when we look back, we shall not think of how much we have done, but of how little, with the regret that we did not do more while the opportunity lasted. God has greatly blessed us in our work during the past four years—a work interwoven with prayer. And may His blessing rest upon us always.

Believe me, affectionately, your friend,
LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER.

NEW YORK, 11 Cooper Union,
July 8, 1865.

DR. C. F. TAFT'S FANNING MACHINE.

LINCOLN U. S. GENERAL HOSPITAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29, 1865.

H. W. BELLOWS, D. D.,

President of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

REV. AND DEAR SIR: I have the honor to report that I have performed the duty which the Executive Committee of the U. S. Sanitary Commission imposed on me, of awarding their premium for the best invention for fanning patients in military hospitals.

In calling your attention to that subject, you will recollect that I pointed out the desirability of having a contrivance something like the Indian punka, by which all the patients of a long ward might be gently fanned, so as to protect them from flies by day, and from mosquitoes by night—thus superseding the cumbrous and stifling curtains now in use; it being all-important, however, that the machine should work noiselessly, be simple, and cheap, requiring the labor of a single attendant to keep it in motion.

No sooner did the announcement appear in the newspapers that such a machine was needed, than plans were transmitted to me in great numbers, all of them exhibiting great ingenuity, many of them being the inventions of our ingenious soldiers, who, when in hospital, had often suffered for the want of fanning. I was unable, however, to form an opinion of the relative value of these plans from a mere inspection of the drawings, or the little models that were presented. The expense attending the construction of the apparatus on a scale sufficiently large to test its value, deterred all but two inventors from competing for the premium. One of the contrivances is the invention of Mr. Blonquist, of New York, who, under the patronage of L. E. Chittenden and T. B. Bunting, Esqrs., and at considerable expense to the last-named gentleman, came to Washington, and put up a fanning-machine in one of the wards of this hospital—Dr. McKee, U. S. A., surgeon in charge, kindly favoring this attempt of accomplishing a hospital desideratum.

This invention afforded much satisfaction to Profs. A. C. Post and C. A. Lee, of New York, and Prof. Bacon, of New Haven, who witnessed its operation. Mr. Blonquist also exhibited an automaton punka, which is admirably adapted for domestic use—for single beds, offices, dining-rooms, and the like.

But a machine, the invention of Surgeon Taft, A. A. S. U. S. A., in charge of the Signal Corps Hospital, Georgetown, D. C., has been put up in an adjacent ward, which, for military and municipal hospital purposes, is, in the opinion of Dr. McKee, myself, and others, entitled to the palm. It is so simple, that any carpenter attached to a hospital can construct one; so inexpensive, that twenty-five cents will cover the expense for each bed; and, withal, capable of being kept in motion by a single attendant, who can thus fan two rows of beds, thirty or more in a row. Its action can be suspended over any single bed when desired, or its fan may be extended, so as to keep flies from a suppurating foot.

With true professional feeling, Dr. Taft declines taking out a patent for his invention. He is only desirous of having its benefits extended to patients.

There is now, thanks be to God, who hath given us the victory, comparatively little occasion for a hospital fanning-machine; but it is needed, nevertheless; and as it is desirable that it should be speedily brought into general use, I hope you will make the public acquainted with the invention, and through your own publications give the technical description herewith transmitted.

While the humane and patriotic deeds of the Sanitary Commission will be embalmed in history, an ever-active memento of its beneficence will be afforded in hospitals by this hygienic appliance, which it has been the means of calling into existence.

Most respectfully,

D. J. MACGOWAN.

LINCOLN U. S. GENERAL HOSPITAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29, 1865.

MY DEAR DR. BELLows: Everybody hereabouts—nurses, patients, surgeons, and visitors—are delighted with the fanning invention. If the instrument does not come into general use, it will be because there is no Sanitary Commission to stimulate hospital authorities. I wish you could get some one to come to see the contrivance in operation. It is expected that you will publish my report immediately in the New York dailies and in your own publications. And also that, either in one of these latter or in a circular to be sent to the hospitals, you will publish Judge Taft's technical description of his son's invention.

Please direct that the premium be sent to Dr. Taft, care of Judge Taft, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C.

Most truly, yours,

D. J. MACGOWAN.

A Rough Sketch and Description of Dr. C. S. Taft's Hospital Fanning Arrangement, for the Mechanic.

A braced bracket (A and B) is projected from the wall of the hospital ward about two feet, or to suit the position of the bed. (D) is a strip of board, nailed fast to the top of the bracket, and running the length of the ward. (C) is the oscillating-block, bung loosely on a strong wire, (E), which is tightly driven into (D). These brackets are placed at convenient distances apart. The blocks are, of course, placed over each bed, usually six or seven feet from the floor. (F) is a stiff wire, bent something as represented, and driven fast into the block. The fan-rod (G) is run through this bent wire, (as seen,) the middle portion resting on the rod as a spring, to keep it in place. The same arrangement is at the bottom of the fan-rod, to hold the SIDE VIEW.

WALL OR SIDE OF THE WARD

PIVOT

CORD OR WIRE

G
FAN ROD

FAN

PENDULUM ROD

fan, which may be the common palm-leaf. These wires, or clasps, allow both the fan-rod and the fan itself to be placed in any position to suit the patient.

A cord, or wire, (copper wire is best,) is strung from one end of the ward to the other, or from the two outside blocks, and is attached to the top of each block; another cord, or wire, is attached to the bottom of the two outside blocks; both cords, or wires, are tightly drawn, while the blocks stand perpendicular. In this condition, the movement or oscillation of either of the outside blocks moves or oscillates the whole. And the whole may be worked by a lever from either end of the ward. But to give steadiness and regularity of motion to the fans, it is found best to extend the cords, or wires, at one end, and attach them to the rod of a pendulum, at equal distances, above and below the pivot upon which the rod swings. A weight, weighing fifteen or twenty pounds, is attached to the bottom of the rod. This pendulum may be on the outside of the ward, if desirable. By hanging the pendulum so as to swing transversely at the end of the ward, and extending the wires from the fan-blocks from each side of the ward around pulleys, and attaching them to the pendulum-rod as above, the movement of the pendulum operates all the fans in the ward, and is done by one man.

Such is the arrangement now in operation at the Lincoln Hospital, fanning sixty beds—thirty on each side of the ward.

LETTER FROM GENERAL MEIGS.

Q. M. GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19, 1865.

JOHN S. BLATCHFORD, ESQ.,
General Secretary U. S. Sanitary Commission.

SIR: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th inst., covering a Resolution of the Sanitary Commission, acknowledging the co-operation of the Quartermaster's Department, in the efforts and operations of the Sanitary Commission, during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion.

I shall take pleasure in communicating the Resolution of the Commission to the officers under my command, and desire to express my thanks for the manner in which the Commission has acknowledged the assistance and aid which we have been able to render them.

The Quartermaster's Department is charged with the duty of transporting and delivering to the troops, whether in garrison, hospital, camp, or field, nearly all the supplies essential to life and comfort.

It stores and transports not only the supplies of clothing, equipment, shelter, and means of transportation, but the subsistence, hospital supplies, and ammunition, which are provided by other Departments.

Upon the efficient performance of its duties depend, therefore, in a great measure, the military efficiency, comfort, and health of the troops, and thence the success of military operations.

The Sanitary Commission, organizing sympathy, has given unity and character to the efforts of the friends and relatives of the soldier on a gigantic scale, and borne an important part in the war. It has supplied, without the delays which are inseparable from a complete official, pecuniary, and personal accountability, much which the regular Departments of supply could not so soon, or could not at all distribute.

Its agents have been everywhere, and have aided and assisted the officers, cheered many a weary and wounded man, and saved many a life. When the Secretary of the Commission first called upon me, at the outbreak of the war, I well remember the interview, and the joyful expression with which, after comparing our opinions and views, as to the manner in which the Commission could best fulfil its objects of usefulness, he said that I had given him a new hope and confidence, and that he then, for the first time, felt as though he had "touched bottom," and had found firm ground to stand upon.

Since then I have seen the operations of the Commission, not only in this city, and the extensive hospitals which surround it, but at the bases of supply, the temporary depots through which the wounded were passing after great battles, I have gratefully recognized the value of its labors to the soldier, to the officer and to the cause, and rejoiced that I was early brought into contact with it, and that I had been able to aid it by my own efforts and by those of officers under my direction.

This country has many proud memories to mingle with the sadness of the late war, and among the proudest will be the magnificent voluntary sympathy and charity to its representative soldiers, organized and conducted by the Sanitary Commission.

Wishing the members and officers of the Commission health and happiness, and long life to enjoy the honor and regard with which their names are crowned by a free people,

I have the honor to be, most respectfully, your obt. servant,

M. C. MEIGS,

Quartermaster General, Brevet Maj. General.

MISAPPLICATION OF SANITARY COMMISSION SUPPLIES.

LETTER FROM REV. F. N. KNAPP.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 10.

MY DEAR FRIEND: Your letters were duly received calling the attention of the Commission to the fact that a returned soldier in your neighborhood is said to have in his possession various articles of clothing with the mark of the Sanitary Commission upon them, and you suggest the importance of having the affair cleared up by an investigation at the hospital near Washington where the soldier was recently an inmate.

Probably the facts are just as stated to you; it would be strange if to every thousand soldiers, honest in themselves, and grateful to the Commission for its services, as most of them are, there were not at least one man so unprincipled and devoid of gratitude as to lead him to steal sanitary stores, just as he would any other goods he could lay his hands on. And moreover, in the process of "breaking up" the general hospitals, now going rapidly on, though the system of issue by the Commission may have been, as we believe it has, eminently wise, and though the surgeons in charge may be watchful, it is simply impossible to prevent cunning men from secreting some of the articles which may be in use in the various wards, and which, of course, having been once appropriated to the hospital and regularly accounted for in the issues of the Commission, the Commission cannot keep a personal watch over.

The hospital you refer to was "broken up" some weeks ago, with ten or fifteen other hospitals in this vicinity. Of course no investigation can be made at the hospital itself in the case you refer to. But it seems to me eminently the duty of any friend of the Commission, who is cognizant or suspicious of the existence of such facts as you state in his own neighborhood, to see the man himself, and make a thorough examination in an open and straightforward manner. If such investigation should be made in the present case, as I trust it may be, will you inform me of the result?

One word more. Considering the vast amount of supplies issued by the Sanitary Commission, and the utter impossibility of the agent of the Commission keeping a personal watch over these supplies after they are once issued; considering, too, how soldiers, after they are once well, will sell articles of clothing which have been furnished to them when sick; considering these points, it really seems strange to me, not that occasionally goods bearing the Sanitary Commission mark are found in the wrong hands, but that such occurrences are rare as they are. Am I not right in this view of the case?

Sincerely your friend,

FRED. N. KNAPP,
Superintendent Special Relief.

Mrs. HORATIO SEYMOUR,
Buffalo Branch U. S. Sanitary Commission.

WOMENS' PENNSYLVANIA BRANCH U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

1307 CHESTNUT STREET,
PHILADELPHIA, July 4, 1865.

To the Aid Societies contributing to the Women's Pennsylvania Branch of the United States Sanitary Commission:

We send you to-day document No. 93, being the Farewell Address of the Sanitary Commission to its tributary branches and aid societies.

We have, of course, accepted it to guide our action at this office. Our Ladies' Executive Committee feels it a duty and a proud privilege once more to communicate with those who have worked with it so long, so faithfully, and so harmoniously. The close of the war has come upon us so suddenly that we feel like those who dream, as if the peace or the war were, one or the other, a vision. Yet the peace is a glorious present reality, and the cruel war, which yet was the means of banding us together in a work of holiest sympathy and love, is, with the necessity of our banded labor, among the things of the past. As we have toiled together in our days of sorrow, so let us together rejoice and give thanks, on this day of joy, to the great Ruler who has held the destinies of our dear country in His hands, and has preserved to us this precious heritage of our fathers, "now and forever, one and indivisible." We thank you for your warm, earnest, and untiring co-operation, feeling that, if the Philadelphia Agency of the Sanitary Commission is able to look with grateful satisfaction upon results accomplished, the praise is largely due to you as faithful co-workers in this blessed ministry to the suffering. Our work is closing, dear friends, but shall we ever forget how our hearts have been knit together during its accomplishment? Our memories of these years will never perish. The sorrow and the agony cannot be forgotten; but, like a rainbow upon the storm, we shall look back with ever-returning joy to the help we were enabled to give to that most noble of instrumentalities for good whose work has been so vast and so beneficent—the United States Sanitary Commission.

MARIA C. GRIER,
Chairman Executive Committee.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Army and Navy Claim Agency.

NO CHARGE FOR SERVICES.

This Agency is established to prosecute the claims of those who have been in the service of the United States, in the Army and Navy, and their dependents, for Pensions, Arrears of pay, Bounty, Prize-Money, and all other Army and Navy claims on the Government, WITHOUT CHARGE OR EXPENSE OF ANY KIND WHATEVER TO THE CLAIMANT.

CENTRAL OFFICE, 244 F ST.,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

DARIUS FORBES,
General Agent.

MAINE.

Augusta.....Joseph Burton
Bangor.....Ruel Smith
Bucksport.....J. E. Sherman
Corinna.....Freeman Knowles
Levant.....T. H. Wiggin
Newburgh.....Ariel Kelly
Paris.....William A. Pidgin
Portland.....W. H. Fessenden
Springfield.....A. D. Clarke

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Concord.....Samuel C. Eastman
Manchester.....Cyrus A. Sullaway
Portsmouth.....Rev. Sullivan Holman

VERMONT.

Brattleboro'.....Geo. H. Bailey
Burlington.....A. J. Howard
Montpelier.....D. L. Fuller
Rutland.....James E. Porter

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston.....Francis S. Dyer
Lowell.....N. D. A. Sawyer
New Bedford.....Wm. Almy
Neponset.....Thos. Temple
Springfield.....Lewis A. Tift
Worcester.....John A. Lovell
Greenfield.....Geo. W. Bartlett
Pittsfield.....E. M. Wood

CONNECTICUT.

Bridgeport.....Andrew Grogan
Hartford.....Richard W. Roberts
New Haven.....Richard W. Roberts
New London.....Chas. M. Wilcox

NEW YORK.

New York City.....Henry Greenfield
Albany.....McClure & Miller
Buffalo.....F. G. Pattison
Elmira.....Mrs. Charles B. Stuart
Rochester.....Dr. A. Mandeville
Syracuse.....S. F. Smith
Troy.....Sewell Sergeant
Utica.....Geo. C. Carter
Ogdensburg.....Gardner B. Chapin
Watertown.....Lucian E. Carter
Plattsburgh.....Oren C. Gregg
Ludlowville.....John Ludlow
Lenox.....R. H. W. Bruce
Hampden.....H. C. Broughton
Spencer.....C. W. Bradley
Poughkeepsie.....Walter C. Allen

NEW JERSEY.

Trenton.....D. Cooper Allinson
Newark.....David A. Ryerson
Somerville.....Isaiah N. Dilts

PENNSYLVANIA.

Harrisburg.....Dewitt & Snodgrass
Pittsburg.....B. F. Brown
Erie.....A. J. Foster
Wilkesbarre.....Hubbard B. Payne
Carbondale.....D. N. Lathrop
Meadville.....D. C. McCoy
Shippensburg.....D. W. Thrush
Amity.....J. D. Huston

DELAWARE.

Wilmington.....Levi Clark Bird

MARYLAND.

Baltimore.....J. P. Creager
Frederick.....Joseph M. Ebberts

WEST VIRGINIA.

Wheeling.....James Gilchrist
Grafton.....James M. Scrogin

OHIO.

Cleveland.....Wm. H. Gaylord
Dayton.....Robert Brundrett
Zanesville.....David Hull
Chillicothe.....Thaddeus A. Minshall
Marietta.....Geo. M. Woodbridge
Steubenville.....W. A. Walden
Toledo.....Hartwell Osborn
Mansfield.....Vance & Dailey

INDIANA.

Indianapolis.....Temple C. Harrison
La Fayette.....Taylor & Watson
Evansville.....Charles E. Marsh
Richmond.....Lewis D. Stubbs
Madison.....David G. Phillips
La Porte.....Wm. Andrew
Terre Haute.....Thomas C. Bailey
Fort Wayne.....W. F. Jenison

ILLINOIS.

|                |                 |
|----------------|-----------------|
| Chicago.....   | A. N. Linscott  |
| Peoria.....    | Chauncey Nyé    |
| Quincy.....    | H. A. Castle    |
| Alton.....     | James Newman    |
| Centralia..... | Samuel P. Tufts |
| Vienna.....    | John S. Crum    |

MICHIGAN.

|                   |                        |
|-------------------|------------------------|
| Detroit.....      | Wm. Jennison, Jr.      |
| Adrian.....       | C. E. Barstow          |
| Kalamazoo.....    | Chas. A. Thompson, Jr. |
| Jackson.....      | G. Thompson Gridley    |
| Grand Rapids..... | Isaac H. Parrish       |

MINNESOTA.

|                 |             |
|-----------------|-------------|
| St. Paul's..... | Jno. Peller |
|-----------------|-------------|

WISCONSIN.

|                  |                    |
|------------------|--------------------|
| Milwaukee.....   | Wm. G. Whipple     |
| Madison.....     | Buel E. Hutchinson |
| Fond du Lac..... | N. C. Giffin       |
| Watertown.....   | Calvin B. Skinner  |
| La Crosse.....   | Stoddill & Daniels |
| Janesville.....  | Pliny Norcross     |

IOWA.

|                 |                 |
|-----------------|-----------------|
| Dubuque.....    | E. S. Norris    |
| Davenport.....  | Charles H. Kent |
| Burlington..... | J. P. Brown     |
| Des Moines..... | Geo. P. Abel    |

MISSOURI.

|                |               |
|----------------|---------------|
| St. Louis..... | Henry M. Post |
|----------------|---------------|

KENTUCKY.

|                    |                  |
|--------------------|------------------|
| Louisville.....    | H. H. Burkholder |
| Bowling Green..... | E. F. Kinnard    |
| Frankfort.....     | Jno. M. Brown    |

TENNESSEE.

|                |               |
|----------------|---------------|
| Knoxville..... | Chas. Seymour |
|----------------|---------------|

KANSAS.

|                  |                |
|------------------|----------------|
| Leavenworth..... | Chas. H. Crane |
| Lawrence.....    | Eugene L. Akin |

LOUISIANA.

|                  |              |
|------------------|--------------|
| New Orleans..... | C. W. Seaton |
|------------------|--------------|

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

|                 |             |
|-----------------|-------------|
| Washington..... | M. P. Barry |
|-----------------|-------------|

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

LETTERS.

|                                                                                        |      |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| From the Commission to the Branches and Aid Societies tributary to the U. S. S. C..... | 1249 |
| From John S. Blatchford, General Secretary.....                                        | 1251 |
| From Abby W. May, N. E. Womens' Aux. Ass'n.....                                        | 1259 |
| From N. W. Branch U. S. S. C., by Mrs. Hoge and Mrs. Livermore.....                    | 1269 |
| From Michigan Agt., Samuel Day.....                                                    | 1280 |
| From General Meigs, Q. M. Gen.....                                                     | 1275 |

|                                                           |      |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|------|
| From Rev. F. N. Knapp, Superintendent Special Relief..... | 1276 |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|------|

REPORTS.

|                                                                  |         |
|------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| Fourth annual and final report of the W. C. A. R.....            | 1251    |
| Monthly report from Cleveland.....                               | 1262    |
| Report of J. C. Hoblit.....                                      | 1262    |
| Report of Dr. J. W. Page.....                                    | 1262    |
| Report of Dr. J. S. Newberry, Asst. Sec. Western Department..... | 1265    |
| Report of Boston Executive Committee.....                        | 1269    |
| Reports of eighteen Homes, Lodges, and Rests for May, 1865.....  | 1270-71 |

EDITORIAL.

|                             |      |
|-----------------------------|------|
| Letter from the Editor..... | 1260 |
|-----------------------------|------|

MISCELLANEOUS.

|                                                            |      |
|------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Resolutions of Womens' Cen. Assn. Relief.....              | 1256 |
| Resolutions of General Aid Society, Buffalo, N. Y.....     | 1257 |
| Resolutions of Rochester Soldiers' Aid Society.....        | 1257 |
| Resolutions of Soldiers' Aid Society, New Haven, Conn..... | 1257 |
| Resolutions of Soldiers' Aid Society, Ironton, N. Y.....   | 1258 |
| Resolutions of Wisconsin Soldiers' Aid Society.....        | 1258 |
| Women's Pennsylvania Branch.....                           | 1276 |
| Testimonial from 3d Regt. N. Y. V. Artillery.....          | 1264 |
| Dr. C. F. Tark's Fanning Machine.....                      | 1272 |
| Army and Navy Claim Agency—list of Local Agencies.....     | 1277 |
| Hospital Garden.....                                       | 1268 |
| Testimonial of General Smith.....                          | 1268 |
| Womens' Central Association Relief, No. 12.....            | 1269 |
| Missapplication of Sanitary Commission Supplies.....       | 1276 |

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND EMPLOYMENT.

Central Office, 244 F Street, Washington, D. C.

This Bureau is established with the following objects:

1. To aid those who have served in the Army and Navy of the United States in obtaining employment.

2. To prevent, as far as possible, the necessity for costly charitable institutions, by thus encouraging industry, and aiding the disabled soldier, who might otherwise seek an asylum, to strive for self-support.

3. To lessen the pauperism and crime necessarily more or less a consequence of war, and which surely attend on large numbers of unoccupied men left to themselves without employment or means of subsistence.

4. To save to the country a large amount of productive labor, at a time when it can least afford to maintain idle hands.

The services of the Bureau are given gratuitously.

Information and suggestions are solicited relative to employments adapted to maimed and disabled men. Employers are earnestly requested to make application to this Bureau for every class of labor; and are reminded that our Army and Navy have contained many of the best and most trustworthy young men of the nation—skilled in every occupation.

It is demanded by both patriotism and humanity, that the light occupations of all towns, and whatever work can be as well done by invalid soldiers as by others, be given to the men who may have incapacitated themselves for rivalry in more active and laborious fields of duty, by giving their limbs, their health, and their blood to the nation.

THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION

Was constituted by the Secretary of War in June, 1861, in accordance with the recommendation of the Surgeon General of the United States Army, and its appointment and plan of organization were approved by the President of the United States. Its present organization is as follows:

H. W. Bellows, D. D., New York.
 A. D. Bache, LL.D., Washington, D. C.
 F. L. Olmsted, California.
 George T. Strong, Esq., New York.
 Elisha Harris, M. D., New York.
 W. H. Van Buren, M. D., New York.
 Wolcott Gibbs, M. D., Cambridge, Mass.
 S. G. Howe, M. D., Boston, Mass.
 C. R. Agnew, M. D., New York.
 J. S. Newberry, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.
 Rt. Rev. T. M. Clark, Providence, R. I.
 Hon. R. W. Burnett, Cincinnati, Ohio.
 Hon. Mark Skinner, Chicago, Ill.
 Hon. Joseph Holt, Washington, D. C.
 Horace Binney, Jr., Philadelphia, Penn.
 Rev. J. H. Heywood, Louisville, Ky.
 J. Huntington Wolcott, Boston, Mass.
 Charles J. Stillé, Philadelphia, Penn.
 Ezra B. McCagg, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICERS.

H. W. Bellows, D. D., President.
 A. D. Bache, LL. D., Vice-President.
 Geo. T. Strong, Treasurer.
 Jno. S. Blatchford, General Secretary.
 J. S. Newberry, M. D., Associate Secretary.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

Henry W. Bellows, D. D. Geo. T. Strong.
 Wm. H. Van Buren, M. D. Wolcott Gibbs, M. D.
 C. R. Agnew, M. D. Charles J. Stillé.

SPECIAL RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

F. N. KNAPP, Supt., Washington, D. C.
 J. B. ABBOTT, Chief Asst., Washington, D. C.
 "SOLDIERS' HOMES" AND "LODGES."

[OBJECTS. Temporary aid and protection,—food, lodging, care, &c.,—for soldiers in transitu, chiefly the discharged, disabled, and furloughed.]

Alexandria, Va. "ALEXANDRIA LODGE."
 Orange and Alexandria Railroad Station. J. B. Holt, Superintendent.

Annapolis, Md. "HOME FOR SOLDIERS' WIVES AND MOTHERS." Mrs. Hopes Sayres, Matron.

Baltimore, Md. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 62 Conway Street. A. E. Hastings, Supt.

"SOLDIERS' LODGE." Opposite Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad Station. —, Superintendent.

Boston, Mass. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 76 Kingston street. Charles F. Mudge, Supt., near Boston and Worcester Railroad Depot.

Buffalo, N. Y. "SOLDIERS' REST." Exchange street, opposite Central Railroad Depot. Mrs. H. Indevine, Matron.

Cairo, Ill. "SOLDIERS' HOME." C. N. Shipman, Superintendent.

Camp Nelson, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Thomas Butler, Superintendent.

Cincinnati, O. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Third street. Col. G. W. D. Andrews, Supt.

Cleveland, Ohio. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Joseph Jerome, Superintendent.

Columbus, Ohio. "SOLDIERS' HOME." T. E. Botsford, Superintendent.

Detroit, Michigan. "SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 81 Jefferson Avenue.

Harrisburg, Pa. Near the Railroad Depot. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." W. H. Hadley, Supt.

Hartford, Ct. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Near Railroad Depot. O. B. Segir, Superintendent.

Jeffersonville, Indiana. "SOLDIERS' HOME." New Market street, near the Depot. E. T. Smith, Superintendent.

Louisville, Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." V. Scott, Superintendent.

Memphis, Tenn. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Near landing. C. W. Christy, Superintendent and Relief Agent.

Nashville, Tenn. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Captain I. Brayton, Superintendent.

New Orleans, La. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Corner Magazine and Julia streets. Sumner Bullard, Superintendent.

New York City. "DISCHARGED SOLDIERS' HOME." No. 45 Grove street, near Blecker. Dr. M. M. Marsh, Superintendent.

Paducah Ky. "SOLDIERS' HOME." E. D. Way, Superintendent.

Portsmouth, Va. "SOLDIERS' HOME." John Alcooke, Superintendent.

Philadelphia, Pa. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Corner 13th and Christian streets, near Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad Depot. Col. C. E. Soest, Supt.

Richmond, Va. "SOLDIERS' HOME." Geo. T. Williams, Superintendent.

Washington, D. C. "THE HOME." No. 374 North Capitol street. J. B. Clark, Supt.

"HOME FOR SOLDIERS' WIVES AND MOTHERS." No. 380 North Capitol street. J. B. Clark, Supt.

"LODGE No. 4." No. 389 H street. —, Supt.

"LODGE No. 5." Maryland Av., near Washington & Alexandria R.R. Station. —, Supt.

"LODGE No. 6." Foot of Sixth street. Howard McPherran, Superintendent.

Wilmington, N. C. "SOLDIERS' LODGE." Market street. F. B. Foster, Supt.

SPECIAL RELIEF OFFICES.

[OBJECTS.—To give aid in procuring pay, pensions, bounty, prize money, arrears of pay and bounty, and other claims upon government. To supply clothing, hospital delicacies, crutches, &c. To give transportation, information, &c.]

Alexandria, Va. Office in Soldiers' Lodge. Orange and Alexandria Railroad Station. J. B. Holt, Agent.

Annapolis, Md. Office of United States Sanitary Commission. W. H. Holstein, Agent.

Baltimore, Md. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 288 West Baltimore street. J. T. Pancost, Agent.

Boston, Mass. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 76 Kingston street.

Buffalo, N. Y. Branch United States Sanitary Commission, Adams' Block, No. 209 Washington street.

Cairo, Ill. Office in "Soldiers' Home." C. N. Shipman, Agent.

Camp Nelson, Ky. Office in "Soldiers' Home." Thomas Butler, Agent.

Chattanooga, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission.

Chicago, Ill. United States Sanitary Commission.

Cincinnati, Ohio. United States Sanitary Commission, corner Vine and Sixth streets.

Cleveland, Ohio. Branch United States Sanitary Commission.

Detroit, Mich. United States Sanitary Commission, No. 32 Larned street.

Dubuque, Ia. United States Sanitary Commission. Rev. E. S. Morris, Agent.

Harrisburg, Penn. Office in "Soldiers' Lodge." W. H. Hadley, Agent.

Jeffersonville, Ind. Office in "Soldiers' Home," New Market street, near railroad depot. E. T. Smith, Agent.

Knoxville, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission.

Leavenworth, Kansas. United States Sanitary Commission. J. R. Brown, Agent.

Louisville, Ky. United States Sanitary Commission, Fifth street.

Memphis, Tenn. Office in "Soldiers' Lodge," near landing. C. W. Christy, Agent.

Milwaukee, Wis. Mrs. Colt.

Nashville, Tenn. United States Sanitary Commission. E. Root, Agent.

New Orleans, La. Special Relief Office, United States Sanitary Commission, No. 96 Julia street. O. C. Bullard, Agent.

New York City, N. Y. "Special Relief Office," Cooper Union, No. 10 Third Avenue. Mrs. W. P. Griffin, Chairman Special Relief Committee.

Paducah, Ky. Office in "Soldiers' Home." E. D. Way, Agent.

Philadelphia, Pa. United States Sanitary Commission, 1307 Chestnut street, third story, back. Colonel Soest, Agent.

Portsmouth, Va. Office in "Soldiers' Home." John Alcocke, Agent.

Vicksburg, Miss. United States Sanitary Commission. J. G. Brown.

Washington, D. C. "Special Relief Office," No. 369 H street, between 13th and 14th streets. J. B. Abbott, Chief Assistant.

Wheeling, Va. United States Sanitary Commission.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, before Charleston and at Chattanooga—its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. The following is a list of depots, to which auxiliary societies, and all disposed to aid the sick and wounded, without reference to States or localities, but simply to their relative necessity for assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. San. Com., No. 18 West st., Boston, Mass.
U. S. San. Com., Nos. 10 & 11 Cooper Union, New York.

U. S. San. Com., State House, New Haven, Ct.
U. S. San. Com., 1307 Chestnut st., Philada.

DEPOTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

U. S. San. Com., 244 F st., Washington, D. C.

U. S. San. Com., Camp Distribution, Va.

U. S. San. Com., 288 W. Balt. st., Balt., Md.

U. S. San. Com., Harper's Ferry, Va.

U. S. San. Com., Annapolis, Md.

U. S. San. Com., Camp Parole, Md.

U. S. San. Com., Norfolk, Va.

U. S. San. Com., City Point, Va.

U. S. San. Com., Newbern, N. C.

U. S. San. Com., Beaufort, S. C.

U. S. San. Com., New Orleans, La.

Temporary Depots or distribution are established from time to time as necessities of the service require.

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.

CENTRAL DEPOTS OF COLLECTION.

U. S. San. Com., corner Vine and Sixth sts., Cincinnati, O.

U. S. San. Com., No. 95 Bank st., Cleveland, O.

U. S. San. Com., No. 66 Madison st., Chicago, Ill.

U. S. San. Com., No. 2 Adams' Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. San. Com., No. 59 Fourth st., Pittsburgh, Penna.

U. S. San. Com., No. 32 Larned st., Detroit, Mich.

U. S. San. Com., Columbus, O.

U. S. San. Com., Fifth st., Louisville, Ky.

The Commission receives no pecuniary aid whatever from the Government, and is wholly dependent on the voluntary contributions of the public for the means of sustaining its operations. Contributions to the Treasury are solicited, and may be transmitted to Geo. T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer, 63 Wall street, N. Y.

PROTECTIVE

War-Claim Association

OF THE

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.

OFFICE 35 CHAMBERS STREET,
NEW YORK.

PRESIDENT.

LIEUT. GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

1st. To secure the soldiers and sailors and their families any claims for pensions, pay, or bounty, etc., without cost to the claimant.

2d. To protect soldiers or sailors and their families from imposture and fraud.

3d. To prevent false claims from being made against the Government.

4th. To give gratuitous advice and information to soldiers and sailors or their families needing it.

INDEX.

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.—Nos. 37-40.

A.

|                                                       | PAGE. |
|-------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Agnew, Dr.—See Reports.                               |       |
| Account of "Little Acorn Fair," yielding $4,000..... | 1180  |
| Aid to Prisoners.....                                 | 1193  |
| Aid to Victims of Southern Barbarity.....             | 1168  |
| Andersonville Prisoners.....                          | 1163  |
| An Example to be followed.....                        | 1221  |
| A False Charge Refuted.....                           | 1231  |
| A Week in Annapolis, by Mrs. H.....                   | 1161  |
| Army and Navy Claim Agencies, List of.....            | 1277  |

B.

|                                           |      |
|-------------------------------------------|------|
| Barnes, Medical Director.—See Letters.    |      |
| Bellows, Dr. H. W.—See Letters.           |      |
| Blake, Dr. George A.—See Reports.         |      |
| Brown, J. G.—See Letters.                 |      |
| Brown, J. B.—See Reports.                 |      |
| Bullard, O. C.—See Reports.               |      |
| Bureau of Information and Employment..... | 1235 |

C.

|                                                               |      |
|---------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Cruelty to Union Prisoners.....                               | 1225 |
| Circular to Branches and Soldiers' Aid Societies.....         | 1203 |
| Correction.....                                               | 1212 |
| Circular, by Jno. S. Blatchford, Esq., General Secretary..... | 1242 |

D.

|                                                                      |      |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Dalton, Dr.—See Reports.                                             |      |
| Day, Surgeon W. E.—See Letters                                       |      |
| Departments of Mississippi and Arkansas, from Sanitary Reporter..... | 1164 |
| Down the Mississippi.....                                            | 1233 |

E.

EDITORIALS.

|                                      |      |
|--------------------------------------|------|
| Bulletin, The—a Monthly.....         | 1171 |
| Correction.....                      | 1212 |
| Close, the.....                      | 1234 |
| Crisis, the.....                     | 1171 |
| List of Special Relief Stations..... | 1179 |
| Letter from the Editor.....          | 1260 |
| Methodist Episcopal Conference.....  | 1180 |
| President Lincoln.....               | 1169 |

|                                                                                                      | PAGE.      |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| EDITORIALS—Continued.                                                                         |            |
| Record of the Commission, The.....                                                                   | 1230       |
| Resignation of J. Foster Jenkins, M. D., General Secretary United StatesSanitary Commission..... | 1172       |
| Spirit of the Commission, The.....                                                                   | 1203       |
| What Remains.....                                                                                    | 1201       |
| Wives and Mothers.....                                                                               | 1205       |
| Work of Nineteen Homes.....                                                                          | 1178       |
| Explosion of Steamer Eclipse, from Cincinnati Gazette.....                                           | 1165       |
| F.                                                                                            |            |
| Flag Quilts.....                                                                                     | 1224       |
| Fanning Machine, Dr. C. F. Taft's.....                                                               | 1272       |
| G.                                                                                            |            |
| Good Words of Great Men.....                                                                         | 1185, 1217 |
| H.                                                                                            |            |
| Hodge, Russell.—See Reports.                                                                         |            |
| Home at New Orleans.....                                                                             | 1195       |
| Hospital Garden.....                                                                                 | 1268       |
| I.                                                                                            |            |
| In Aid of the Chicago Fair.....                                                                      | 1176       |
| Important Testimonial.....                                                                           | 1192       |
| Issues of Clothing.....                                                                              | 1242       |
| J.                                                                                            |            |
| Jenkins, M. D., J. Foster, General Secretary.—See Letters and Reports.                               |            |
| Jones, E. L.—See Letters.                                                                            |            |
| K.                                                                                            |            |
| Knapp, Rev. F. N., Superintendent Special Relief.—See Reports.                                       |            |
| Knoxville, Tennessee.....                                                                            | 1199       |
| L.                                                                                            |            |
| Letter from Annapolis, by Mrs. H.....                                                                | 1161       |
| Letters from Armies before Richmond, by J. Foster Jenkins, Gen. Secretary.....                       | 1175       |
| Letter from Barnes, Surg. Norman S., U. S. Vols.....                                                 | 1192       |
| Letters from Bellows, Rev. Dr.....                                                                   | 1201, 1217 |
| Letter from Cairo, Ill., by C. N. Shipman.....                                                       | 1163       |
| Letter from City Point, by Dr. Jos. Parrish.....                                                     | 1176       |
| Letter from Day, Surgeon W. E., U. S. A.....                                                         | 1193       |
| Letter from James river, by J. F. Jenkins, M. D., General Secretary.....                             | 1175       |
| Letter from Knoxville, Tennessee, by Charles Seymour.....                                            | 1199       |
| Letter from Ministers of New Orleans.....                                                            | 1194       |
| Letter from Nashville, Tennessee, by E. L. Jones.....                                                | 1199       |
| Letter from Chicago, by Dr. Jos. Parrish.....                                                        | 1222       |
| Letter from Vicksburg, Miss., by J. G. Brown.....                                                    | 1163       |
| Letter from Washington.....                                                                          | 1221       |
| Letter from the Commission to Branches tributary to the U. S. Sanitary Com-mission.....          | 1249       |
| Letter from Jno. S. Blatchford, Esq., General Secretary.....                                         | 1251       |

|                                                                    | PAGE.            |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------|
| Letters from Newbern and Wilmington, by Dr. J. W. Page .....       | 1153, 1193, 1231 |
| Letter from Abby W. May, N. E. Womans' Auxiliary Association ..... | 1259             |
| Letter from N. W. Branch, by Mrs. Hoge and Mrs. Livermore .....    | 1259             |
| Letter from Michigan Agt. Samuel W. Day .....                      | 1260             |
| Letter from General Meigs, Q. M. Gen. ....                         | 1275             |
| Letter from Rev. F. N. Knapp, Superintendent Special Relief .....  | 1276             |

M.

|                                                      |      |
|------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Marehes .....                                        | 1212 |
| McDonald, Dr. A. W.—See Reports.                     |      |
| Misapplication of Sanitary Commission Supplies ..... | 1276 |

N.

|                              |      |
|------------------------------|------|
| Newbern and Wilmington ..... | 1193 |
|------------------------------|------|

O.

|                                                                           |      |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Official action of the Commission on the death of President Lincoln ..... | 1170 |
| Our Work at New Orleans and Mobile .....                                  | 1194 |

P.

|                                          |      |
|------------------------------------------|------|
| Page, G. B.—See Letters and Reports.     |      |
| Page, Dr. J. W.—See Letters and Reports. |      |
| Parrish, Dr. Joseph—See Letters.         |      |
| Petroleum for the Sanitary .....         | 1177 |

R.

|                                                                                                                      |         |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| Rather Remarkable .....                                                                                              | 1200    |
| Rebel Barbarity .....                                                                                                | 1239    |
| Reed, M. C.—See Letters and Reports.                                                                                 |         |
| Relation of Sanitary Commission to Rebel Civilians .....                                                             | 1179    |
| Relief to Prisoners .....                                                                                            | 1196    |
| Report of Agnew, Dr. C. R., Wilmington, N. C. ....                                                                   | 1206    |
| Report of Blake, Dr. Geo. A. Extract from .....                                                                      | 1194    |
| Report of Boston Ex. Committee .....                                                                                 | 1269    |
| Report of Brown, J. R., Leavenworth, Kansas .....                                                                    | 1167    |
| Report of Bullard, O. C., New Orleans. Extract from .....                                                            | 1195    |
| Report of Dalton, Dr., Wilmington, N. C. ....                                                                        | 1209    |
| Report of Eighteen Homes, for April, 1865 .....                                                                      | 1242    |
| Report of Eighteen Homes, Lodges, Rests. Condensed .....                                                             | 1270-71 |
| Report of Hoblit, J. C. ....                                                                                         | 1262    |
| Report of Hodge, Russell .....                                                                                       | 1233    |
| Report of Home for Soldiers' Wives and Mothers. Condensed .....                                                      | 1206    |
| Report of Jenkins, Dr. J. Foster, on the work of the U. S. Sanitary Commissionat City Point, April 6, 1865 ..... | 1168    |
| Report of Knapp, Rev. F. N., Superintendent Special Relief. Extract from .....                                       | 1225    |
| Report of McDonald, Dr. A. W. Extract from .....                                                                     | 1189    |
| Report of Newberry, Dr. J. S., Asst. Sec. Western Department .....                                                   | 1265    |
| Reports of Nineteen Homes, Lodges, and Rests .....                                                                   | 1173    |
| Report of Page, Dr. J. W. ....                                                                                       | 1262    |
| Report of Reed, M. C., Knoxville, Tenn. ....                                                                         | 1166    |
| Report of Tone, H. Extracts from .....                                                                               | 1196    |
| Report of Womans' Central Association of Relief, by Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler1160—1270                            |         |
| Report of Woodward, Benjamin—Departments of Mississippi and Arkansas .....                                           | 1164    |

|                                                              | PAGE. |
|--------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Report of W. C. A. R., fourth annual and final.....          | 1251  |
| Report from Cleveland—Monthly Return.....                    | 1262  |
| Resolutions of W. C. A. R.....                               | 1256  |
| Resolutions of General Aid Society of Buffalo.....           | 1257  |
| Resolutions of Rochester Soldiers' Aid Society.....          | 1257  |
| Resolutions of Soldiers' Aid Society of New Haven, Conn..... | 1257  |
| Resolutions of Soldiers' Aid Society of Irvington, N. Y..... | 1258  |
| Resolutions of Wisconsin Soldiers' Aid Society.....          | 1258  |

S.

|                                           |      |
|-------------------------------------------|------|
| Schuyler, Louisa Lee.—See Reports.        |      |
| Seymour, Charles.—See Letters.            |      |
| Shipman, C. N.—See Letters.               |      |
| Special Relief Work in Railroad Cars..... | 1241 |
| Starved to Death, by Minnie Mintwood..... | 1153 |
| Supplies, from Sanitary Reporter.....     | 1163 |

T.

|                                                                                                                     |            |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Testimonials from Surgeon Henry W. Davis, and Sol. B. Wolff.....                                                    | 1165       |
| Testimonials to Sanitary Commission from E. Andrew, Recording Scribe of Ministerial Association of New Orleans..... | 1194       |
| Testimonials to Sanitary Commission from Samuel McBride, commanding Cannonburg, Penn.....                           | 1212       |
| Tone, H.—See Reports.                                                                                               |            |
| The Commissions.....                                                                                                | 1175       |
| The Far West.....                                                                                                   | 1167       |
| The Future.....                                                                                                     | 1217       |
| The Great Gathering at the Northwest.....                                                                           | 1222       |
| Touching Letter from a Wisconsin Soldier.....                                                                       | 1224       |
| The Last March.....                                                                                                 | 1185       |
| The Work of a Great People.....                                                                                     | 1186, 1227 |
| Testimonial from the 3d Regiment New York Volunteer Artillery.....                                                  | 1264       |
| Testimonial from Major General Smith.....                                                                           | 1268       |

V.

|                                               |      |
|-----------------------------------------------|------|
| Visit of Commission to President Johnson..... | 1171 |
|-----------------------------------------------|------|

W.

|                                                                                           |      |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Wisconsin Soldier.—See Letters.                                                           |      |
| Woodward, Benjamin.—See Letters and Reports.                                              |      |
| Work for Soldiers.....                                                                    | 1220 |
| Workings of United States Sanitary Commission at Camp Parole, from Soldiers' Journal..... | 1172 |
| Women's Pennsylvania Branch, by Mrs. M. C. Grier.....                                     | 1276 |
| What the Commission finds to do.....                                                      | 1221 |
| Woman's Central Relief Association, Supply Department, Close of.....                      | 1234 |

